

Citizens Group Denied Direct Participation In Search for Supt.

"If I went into an election booth and they threw my vote out, I wouldn't feel any more walked on than I feel tonight," said Rebecca Abner, of Prater Creek, after last Wednesday's Board of Education meeting at Betsy Layne High School. "I'm so crushed."

Mrs. Abner was responding to a decision that stunned many in the audience, the board voting to exclude a citizens' committee from formal participation in the selection of a new school superintendent.

Joyce Everly, of Prestonsburg, who accused the board of hatching its plan in an illegal, closed session, responded in a tone of disgust. "It was business as usual," she said. "For eight years they've done business in secret and they're still doing it. They ignored what the state said; they ignore what anyone says; they do what they want to."

Public input in the selection of the superintendent had been urged for several months by the Floyd County Education Forum, and state education officials said in September it would be one of the things they would look for in their continued monitoring of Floyd school administrators.

The decision to ban public access to the selection process came as a rider to a motion by Ray "Shag" Campbell that the board hire Dr. Charles F. Faber, professor of school administration at the UK College of Education, to help with the search for a new school chief. The hiring of a consultant was also required by state school officials in September as a condition of their leaving the management of Floyd schools in the hands of local administrators.

Herbert "Pete" Royle, the state Department of Education official who is responsible for monitoring the Floyd board and who was represented at Wednesday's meeting by a deputy, said Thursday that "the action taken by the local board does not prohibit the consultant and the citizens' forum from interacting in a cooperative way. In fact, it is my understanding that Dr. Faber and the forum are scheduled to meet December 12."

"Dr. Faber is experienced in working with local districts in the selection (See Story No. 1, Page 4)

Reorganization Of Police Dept. In Effect Soon

The Prestonsburg police department should operate more smoothly and effectively soon, with more specialization and better trained officers.

A brain child of Chief Stan Fletcher, the new organization is based on the structure and methods of the U.S. Army military police. Fletcher served as an MP at Fort Knox, Louisville, before going into civilian police work.

Effective next Sunday, the police department will no longer be staffed by officers sharing the same basic responsibilities. Rather, there will be three distinct branches: investigative, traffic and patrol. While officers in each section will be available to assist officers in other sections, their primary duties will be focused on a much narrower scale.

The investigative section, which now includes only one officer, Detective Sgt. Mike Ormerod, will gain another officer, Sgt. Sue Blackburn.

According to Fletcher, Ormerod and Blackburn will specialize in domestic complaints, work with civic and church groups and improve drug and alcohol awareness programs for schools. "We also plan to be more aggressive with the child identification program," he said. (See Story No. 2, Page 4)

IF YOU GET THIRSTY at a meeting of Floyd Fiscal Court, you will need to weave your way through a pile of new truck and grader tires before you make it to the water fountain in the hall. The tires are stockpiled in the courthouse annex, explained Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo, because of a chronic theft problem at the county garage at Allen. The garage is being moved this month to a more secure facility at Garth.

Public Building Seen As Source Of Energy Loss

People may not be as conscious of saving energy today as they were during the Arab oil embargo, but that is not to deny that public concern about fuel conservation has come a long way since the pre-embargo days of gas-guzzling autos and poorly-insulated homes, said James Ratcliff, director of continuing education at Prestonsburg Community College, last week.

For all that, the managers of public buildings in this county still have much to learn about energy conservation, said Robert McAninch, professor of government at the college, who predicted "substantial savings of public funds" if school and local government officials could be persuaded to take conservation seriously.

Ratcliff and McAninch have participated for seven years in an educational program organized among continuing education directors in Kentucky's universities and community colleges. Founded in 1978 by Larry Moore, director of special projects in Murray State University's office of extended education, the Kentucky Energy Conservation Consortium recently received a national award for its efforts to promote conservation.

In this area, those efforts have mostly taken the form of energy seminars among home builders, real estate agents, and building trades students at Mayo Vocational School and the Job Corps Center. For several years, the group has also distributed widely a calendar illustrated with energy-saving ideas suited for each month of the year.

At the outset, PCC put into practice what it planned to preach. With energy costs soaring in 1978, the college formed an energy committee to seek out ways in which fuel consumption on campus could be reduced. A lot of unnecessary lights were turned off, a few water coolers went, the heat was shut off on weekends, weatherstripping was installed, and thermostats were lowered. (See Story No. 7, Page 4)

EVEN THOUGH there's been little snow, it's only 14 days until Christmas, and children everywhere are looking forward to a visit from Santa.

Citizen Protests Mark County Board Session

His months-long pounding on the Floyd Board of Education for removal of teachers' cars from the Martin grade school playground ended for Everett Akers in yet another stalemate at last Wednesday's board meeting. But Akers vowed, "I'll be back," and no one doubted it.

"A year is long enough to give you people. There's going to be action on this. I'm going to stir it up," said the Finance Hollow resident, who has long argued that the encroachment of vehicles on the playground, which followed the collapse of a perimeter fence some years ago, is an imposition on children at the school and a danger to them.

Acting Superintendent Ray Brackett said he understood that Martin city officials were unable to provide the 25 to 30 parking spaces needed to accommodate the teachers' cars. But Akers claimed it is up to teachers to resolve their own parking problems and Rebecca Abner, a Prater Creek woman who works in Martin, said there is "plenty of parking" on the area known locally as Back Street and on Main Street.

"They might have to walk half a block," Mrs. Abner said of the teachers, "but it would be good exercise."

Akers also joined Karen Marcum, of Prestonsburg, in a complaint about the $212,000 price paid for three classroom trailers at Garrett grade school, saying it was excessive. Brackett said the single bid offered on the mobile units was approved by the state Department of Education but Akers said that, if that was true, the state officials responsible "ought to be hung."

When it rains, students and teachers at Betsy Layne grade school have to set out buckets and move desks around in an effort to cope with that school's leaky roof, said Dan Hall, representing a parents' group there. A child was recently struck by a piece of ceiling panel that fell down as a result of rain damage, he said.

Brackett said temporary repairs would be made on the roof but that money is not available for the major renovation that is needed. Similar roof replacements are also being held up for

Garage Move to New Location Could Have Deep Implications

Announced at last month's meeting of Floyd Fiscal Court, the decision to move the county garage this month from Allen to Garth Hollow was billed as a simple, money-saving matter. Some observers, however, see the move as part of a major reorganization of county government.

Without question, there is money to be saved by moving the garage—now a trailer on an open lot owned by Mary Lee Woods on KY 1428 about two miles north of Allen—to a more secure location. During December, equipment and supplies at the old garage are being moved piecemeal to an empty building on the site occupied by Floyd County Solid Waste, Inc. at Garth.

While the county has been paying $250 a month rent at the old location, the new site will come virtually rent-free. "The county has helped us a lot in the past," explained Robert McAninch, head of the solid waste agency. "It's time we did something for the county."

Nor is cheap rent the new site's only advantage. It also boasts a fence.

That could prove a major asset for a plant traditionally so insecure that to store anything there was almost to ask for it to be stolen. Visitors to the fiscal court have become accustomed to threading their way through a stockpile of truck and grader tires in a hallway of the courthouse annex, outside the judge-executive's office. "Anything that is of any value, I don't let it go out of here," explained Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo, who acknowledged that gasoline, oil, lumber, pipes and tools have for years regularly disappeared from the county garage.

"You can haul in a tractor-trailer load of pipe and in a month's time it will be gone and you'll never know where it's gone to," Stumbo said.

Nor did the judge-executive deny persistent reports that timesheets of county road employees are little more than a joke, that sick leave is regularly abused, that some employees are not above fueling their own autos and stocking their own garages from county supplies, and that many knock off work long before quitting time.

All that is going to stop, however, if he has his way, Stumbo asserted last week. "I'm going to get a handle on it," he said. Moving the county garage to Garth is clearly only one element in the judge-executive's strategy for "getting a handle" on the county roads operation.

As Stumbo envisages the operation, the first thing to insure—after the garage is moved to a more central, more secure location—is that all county equipment is stored there and stays there. Trucks, graders, bulldozers, pipe and power saws would be checked out each day as needed, under the instructions of the county road foreman, and checked in at the end of the day.

Road workers, too, would be expected to clock in of a morning, accept assignments from the road foreman, and clock out when they finished for the day.

Gasoline tanks will be installed at the new site, allowing the county not only to purchase gas in more economical quantities but also to keep control over who gets to use it, Stumbo said.

Centralizing the county roads operation will mean a more efficient use of equipment; a road maintenance plan better geared to the needs of the whole county, and substantial savings at a time when federal revenue-sharing funds are being choked off, Stumbo said.

What he didn't need to add is that it could also plunge him into a fierce power struggle with the county's four magistrates, who have become accustomed to running the road operation in their own districts.

With two magistrates leaving office at the end of this month and another awaiting the result of his appeal of a felony conviction, the timing of the judge-executive's bid to regain control of the fiscal court is hardly coincidental. Nor does Stumbo make any secret of his belief that responsible county government means restoring to the judge-executive's office the control it had before it was dispersed among the magistrates—by most accounts, during the administration of Yvonne S. Jones, who served for 18 months as judge-executive after the death of her father, the legendary Judge Henry Stumbo, in April, 1978.

Stumbo's version of the proper relationship between the judge-executive and the magistrates is likely to find support this week in Owensboro, where incoming magistrates are scheduled to attend a three-day workshop for county officials sponsored by the state Department for Local Government.

State officials have long sought to impress on county magistrates that, under state law, they are not road foremen but legislators. They have authority only when they meet in an official session of fiscal court, where they are responsible for, among other things, designing a countywide road maintenance plan, which is then carried out by the judge-executive through the county road foreman.

No one imagines the lesson has been heeded in counties like Floyd, where individual magistrates jealously guard their "own" pieces of road equipment. (See Story No. 6, Page 4)

Few State Flags Come Free For War Memorial at Park

A proposed flag plaza at Archer Park's war memorial has run into a snag, but City Manager David Evans feels the flags will be in place by summer.

The idea for the flag display grew from a suggestion by a member of the park board that the city fly an American flag over the memorial.

"Someone said how nice it would be to have a flag there," said Evans. "I suggested writing the governors of all the states to see if maybe they'd send their state flags. We thought they might consider the request because it was for a war memorial. The park board thought it was a good idea, and I mailed out the letters." Evans said he sent out the inquiries November 13.

So far, most of the responses have been cordial, but few flags have been forthcoming. With Nevada, New Jersey, New Mexico, Wisconsin, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, West Virginia, Washington, Texas, Georgia and North Carolina yet to reply, the city has received only six flags, plus a letter from Tennessee that one was on the way.

clude Arkansas, Florida, Louisiana, Virginia, Connecticut and Massachusetts. Conspicuous in its absence is a Kentucky state flag.

Like most states that have responded, Kentucky pleaded a shortage of funds in refusing to honor the city's request.

In answering Evans' query, Hank Lindsey, executive assistant to the state adjutant general, said Kentucky received about 50 requests each week for flags and, since the state "is experiencing severe financial limitations... a policy has been established that we can no longer provide flags at no cost."

Lindsey said a state flag could be purchased from the Commonwealth for $36. Most states gave addresses of companies or state agencies which sold flags, and Evans said the city might go that route if flags couldn't be obtained any other way.

"We'll probably go ahead and buy the flags if we have to," he said, "but we'll try other ways first." He said the next plan of attack might be letters to U.S. senators from the various states.

Rep. Stumbo To Seek Post in House Again

State Rep. Gregory D. Stumbo announced this week that he will be a candidate for reelection next year and that if he is successful in that race will seek reelection as majority floor leader of the House of Representatives.

Stumbo, who is now in his second term as Representative from the 95th district (Floyd county), is at 34 the second youngest Democratic majority floor leader in the nation (a Maine state representative is the youngest). He also is the first House majority floor leader from Eastern Kentucky in 50 years.

"Floyd county has honored me by sending me to Frankfort as their Representative, and I feel that my colleagues in the House have honored our section of Kentucky by choosing me as House majority floor leader," he said in announcing his candidacy.

There may be misalignment of vertebrae in the spine causing pressure on nerves, yet the patient experiences no pain in the back. Instead, a variety of sensations may be felt in other parts of the body. These include tingling, tightness, hot spots, cold spots, crawling sensations, electric shock sensations, stinging, burning, and others.

The following nine symptoms involving back pain or strange sensations are often the forerunners of more serious conditions. Any one of these may spell back trouble

- (1) Paresthesias (see above) (2) Headaches (3) Painful joints (4) Numbness in the arms or hands (5) Loss of sleep (6) Stiffness in the neck (7) Pain between the shoulders (8) Stiffness or pain in lower back (9) Numbness or pain in the legs.

These signals may indicate your body is being robbed of normal nerve function. Until this function is restored, you will, in some degree, be incapacitated. The longer you wait to seek help, the worse the condition will likely become. Don't wait! Should you experience any of these warning signals...call for in depth consultation in Layman's terms.

Beef Cattle Prices Edge Up

At mid-November, Kentucky farmers were receiving slightly higher prices for several commodities than they received in October, according to the Kentucky Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. "Though in many cases the increases in November were small, several commodities are bringing much higher prices for farmers than they did at this time last year," said Agriculture Commissioner David E. Boswell. "We must be encouraged by this upward trend." The mid-November beef cattle price of $47.20 was up from the October average of $45.90 and up $3.20 from the November 1984 price of $44. Calves had a mid-November price of $58.30 compared with an average price of $56.10 for October. Both prices this year were up from the October 1984 price of $51 and the November 1984 price of $49.70. Soybeans continued their upward move with a mid-month price of $5.08 per bushel, compared to the October average of $5.03. Both prices this fall were considerably lower than the November 1984 average of $6.17. Wheat had a mid-November price of $3.17 a bushel, up from the October average of $2.80, but lower than the 1984 November price of $3.42. The November Index of Prices received by U.S. Farmers for All Farm Products increased three points (2.4 percent) from October to 126 percent of its January-December 1977 average. Higher prices for cattle, broilers, corn, strawberries and oranges were partially offset by lower prices for lemons, hogs and grapefruit. The index was 10 points (7.4 percent) below last year. The index of prices paid by U.S. Farmers for commodities and services, interest, taxes and farm wage rates for November was 163 percent of its 1977 average. This is one point higher than a month earlier, but one point (.6 percent) lower than in November 1984.

Training Program For New Officials Starts This Week

A management training program for newly elected county judge-executives and magistrates-commissioners is being conducted by the Department of Local Government this week (Tuesday through Thursday) in Owensboro. "Our training programs are, for the most part, conducted to meet statutory requirements in this area. The training program developed for county judge-executives and magistrates (or commissioners) is not required by law, but we believe it is a vital element in the Department of Local Government's goal to assist local officials," Governor Collins said. The training program agenda includes sessions covering topics such as duties and responsibilities of these elected offices, county administrative codes, county finance, revenue sources, audit procedures, personnel management, liabilities and other issues pertinent to these offices. "This training program doesn't down play the magnitude or importance of the duties of county Judge/Executives and Magistrates/Commissioners," Cole said. "These offices require knowledge in many areas of local government administration. Our hope is that this program will be as successful as past training offered by the Department of Local Government in providing vital information and a forum for the exchange of ideas to enhance the performances of these new officials."

process. I have every confidence he will approach the task in an open and professional way," Roysie said.

Floyd County Education Forum Coordinator Jean Rosenberg acknowledged that Faber had agreed to attend a Dec. 12 board meeting of the citizens' group, which was moved to a larger site in view of the turnout now anticipated. The meeting will begin at 7 p.m. in the Betsy Layne High School library. But, while the meeting may provide a "first step" in the process of citizen participation in the choice of a superintendent, it falls considerably short of the kind of role FCEF had hoped the public might play, she said.

"We wanted people involved in a way that made them feel responsible for the process, in a way that made them feel that they had to follow up, that they were accountable. That's why we invited people from groups with a stake in education," Mrs. Rosenberg said. "It's a lot different from showing up one night for a meeting, saying your piece, and then going home."

For a time, the chances seemed high on Wednesday night that citizens would be given a role in choosing a superintendent. Board Chairman Dr. J.D. Adams noted that the state had required it. Dr. Faber said he could work with a citizens' group, and Mrs. Rosenberg spelled out details of her organization's plan for public input.

That plan called for the creation of a committee comprised of representatives of seven Floyd groups—the Floyd County Education Association (a teachers' organization), school principals and supervisors, students, Prestonsburg Community College, the Chamber of Commerce, the Floyd County Education Council (a citizens' group that was instrumental in forcing former Superintendent E.P. Grigsby, Jr. out of office last August), and the Floyd County Education Forum (a distinct group that originated in last year's much-publicized "town forum on education" at Allen Central High School)—to help draft criteria for choosing a school head and to help seek out qualified applicants.

Faber said the inclusion of citizens would probably extend the selection process by a month, delaying until February 22 the date on which he could be expected to submit to the board the names of five candidates he considered best qualified for the post. "I think it would be a good move on your part to involve the community," he told the board.

Board Chairman Adams said the month's extension would be "no problem." The board could make its choice at its March 5 meeting, he said. But Campbell would brook no delay and he soon found support in the audience of around 80 persons.

Burl Scott, who last rose at the September 4 meeting to scold board members for abandoning Grigsby in the face of state and media pressure, was on his feet again, this time charging that the proposed citizen committee was "weighted toward Prestonsburg." Scott, a coal company official, lives in the Left Beaver Creek community of Hite. His remarks drew applause from many in the audience.

Mrs. Rosenberg, who lives in the Clark Addition on Middle Creek, denied Scott's charge, arguing that her organization and most of the others intended for inclusion on the search panel are widely representative of the county. But board member James A. Duff, citing a "difference of opinion" among citizens, seconded Campbell's motion to exclude them from the selection process. The two were joined by Division 5 board member Fred Newsome for a majority. Adams and Dr. Mary Hall voting no.

Allen businesswoman Dolores Smith characterized as "ridiculous" the charge that the proposed citizens' committee was unrepresentative. "But they were looking for a reason (to exclude the public), and I guess that gave them a reason," she said.

Asked about the possibility of state intervention, Mrs. Smith replied, "I don't relish going to the state every time we have a problem. I don't like people across the state to think we can't handle our own problems."

In any event, while state officials "can direct that certain things be done, they can't live here with us and make them happen," Mrs. Smith said. "Until this community itself decides it wants to play a major role in the educational process, I don't think it's going to happen, with or without the state. The people who live in this community are going to have to do it for themselves."

"We've got the facilities to fingerprint and identify these children now, but we're pretty much doing it sporadically as parents bring them in."

The traffic section will include Sgt. Gerald Clark and Patrolman Jeff Stumbo. "They'll be better trained in accident investigation," said Fletcher. "We'll be able to provide better traffic enforcement."

The police chief said Clark and Stumbo would monitor traffic flow with radar, paying special attention to school zones and housing projects. A strong emphasis will be placed on getting drunk drivers off the road.

"One of the reasons I see a need for a more specialized traffic section is the increase in DUI arrests," he said. "In comparison with last year, we had 13 DUI arrests for October of 1984. This past October, we had 21. In November of '84 we had 11 DUI's; this November there were 25." Fletcher said he felt the increase in DUI arrests was due more to an increase of drunk drivers than more efficient police work. "We've not been doing anything different to catch these people," he said. "I just feel we need to make a more concentrated effort now."

The most heavily staffed section of the force, however, will remain the patrol unit. Seven men strong, Captains Bill Potter, William R. Campbell, Woodrow Lafferty and Darrel Conley, along with Sgt. Greg Hall and Patrolmen Jim Mullins and Chuck Akers, will deal mainly in security of homes and businesses, handling complaint calls and regular foot and vehicle patrol.

"The patrol unit will still be the heart of the agency," said Fletcher.

The forthcoming changes will fulfill one of Fletcher's long range plans for the department. "This is something I've been wanting to do for a long time," he said. "When I took over in July of 1984, I wanted some day to have specific units. But, due to lack of manpower, we haven't been able to do it till now."

He stressed the new organization was designed to make life safer and easier here, not to be more intrusive.

"We don't want Prestonsburg to become a speed trap, by any means," he said. "We just want the city to be a safe place to shop or do whatever. I think the community will be pleased."

proved a grant of only $9800, which school officials here insisted was inadequate to resolve the problem.

Floyd students, who were scheduled to return to school on December 30 and 31 after their week-long Christmas break, will return, instead, on January 2 and two days' classes will be added at the end of the school calendar. The decision was in response to a request by the Floyd teachers' association, which predicted high absenteeism on the part of both teachers and students if the Christmas vacation was cut short.

The next regularly scheduled meeting of the Floyd Board of Education will be held on January 8 to avoid the New Year's Day holiday. The first three regular meetings of the new year will be held at Prestonsburg High School, it was announced.

Hired were:
Judy Eversole, special education teacher at Betsy Layne High School; Mildred Anderson and Audrey Pratt, certified substitute teachers; Laura Renee Hamilton, Clea Haywood, Lula Ratliff, Marvin B. Meade, Ruth E. Thompson, Jonathan Reniger, Joe D. Marson, Kathryn L. Caudill, Ella Ruth Tackett, Joy Lee Patton and Roy Haley, emergency substitute teachers. Clerk Shirley Hall was transferred to Wheelwright High School and Janie Case Tackett was hired as clerk at McDowell.

Also hired were: Jessica Tackett, teacher aide at Stumbo School, and Tressia K. Hall, exceptional children teacher aide at Betsy Layne High School; Ann Slone, Nancy Goble, Janice Goble, Sarah Ratliff, Loretta Martin, Jenny Slone, Carrie Hicks, substitute cooks; Nadine Springer, Delores Moore and Joey Horn, substitute janitors; Jerry McGarey, Birchell Duff, maintenance materials and inventory control.

Kalawese Oden was hired as remediation teacher aide at Osborne Elementary School; Glen Hackworth as bus driver in the Prestonsburg area and Darrell Platkus as bus driver in the Stumbo School area; and Jean Hackworth as substitute clerk at Clark Elementary.

Ten Years Ago

(December 10, 1975)

The Floyd fiscal court last Friday may have passed up its last chance to comply officially by required resolution with the Federal Flood Insurance Act. The deadline for compliance had already passed for the incorporated towns of Allen, Martin and Wayland. Only Prestonsburg and Wheelwright have officially complied with the program. The city of Wheelwright may have the first husband and wife police force in the nation, with city marshal Harold D. Bates last Tuesday swearing in his wife, Mildred, as deputy marshal. The two comprise the community's entire police force. Last meeting of the Floyd County Board of Education for the year was held Saturday, and the session was short with little action beyond the routine. One hundred forty-seven graduates of Floyd county high schools are currently students at the University of Kentucky, Lexington. For the first time in about 20 years, an athlete from Prestonsburg High School has made the first string All-State Football Team. Mike Dixon, Prestonsburg senior, was chosen as a first team defensive guard on the Class AA All-State team selected by the Louisville Courier-Journal; given honorable mention on the All-State team selected by the Lexington Herald, and named to the 1975 All-Area squad by the Ashland Daily. Tom Whitaker, Prestonsburg Community College Art Instructor, is holding an exhibit this week at the PCC library. Born: to Mr. and Mrs. Sammy K. Wallen, of Prestonsburg, a son, Michael Jason, Nov. 28 at Pikeville Methodist hospital; to Mr. and Mrs. Homer Wright, III, of Louisa, formerly of Prestonsburg, a son, December 7 at the Louisa Community hospital; to Mr. and Mrs. Michael Hobson, of Ligon, a daughter, Lisa Deneen, November 22 at the Pikeville Methodist hospital. There died: Jack Ratliff, 73, of Wayland, December 3 at Our Lady of the Way hospital, Martin; Roosevelt (Preacher) Castle, 73, of McDowell, December 2 at Our Lady of the Way hospital, Martin; Mrs. Clarence Reed Pickett, formerly of Hueysville, Saturday at her home in Chattanooga, Tenn.; William V. (Bill) Bunting, 86, of Lexington, formerly of Prestonsburg, Dec. 2 at Mayfair Manor Nursing Home, Lexington; Andy Shepherd, 68, of Cincinnati, O., and formerly of Watergap, in Cincinnati, Nov. 30; Robert Edgar Layne, 59, of Betsy Layne, December 3 at Our Lady of the Way hospital, Martin; Mrs. Viola Mitchell, 90, of Teaberry, Saturday at her home.

Twenty Years Ago

(December 9, 1965)

A recent survey of food establishments in this county, undertaken by a representative of the State Environmental Health Division, the area sanitation inspector and the county sanitarian, revealed that out of the 52 or so restaurants located in Floyd county, 15 were found to be below the minimum public health rating. Congressman Carl D. Perkins announced this week that the Office of Economic Opportunity has made a grant of $71,829 to the Big Sandy Area Development Council for a preschool Head Start program in Floyd county. Strip mining on Clear Creek, Knott county, was punctuated by gunfire and promised this week the added drama of women vowing to stand in the path of a bulldozer when and if it returns to work in the vicinity of their homes. The two-month-old Dewey Lake Fish & Game Club, already 221 members strong, announced this week that it has purchased approximately 50 acres of land on Stratton Branch, in the lake area, to be developed into a club center. There died: Dennie Tackett, 57, of Langley, last Wednesday en route to the Beaver Valley hospital at Martin; Manuel Perkins, 63, December 8 at his residence at Tram; Ronnie "Buddy" Osborne, 26, of Prestonsburg, December 1 at the UK Medical Center, Lexington; David Marrs, Jr., 70, December 6 at his home at Martin; Robert A. Burke, 85, of Prestonsburg, Sunday at the Prestonsburg General hospital; Mrs. Nora Martin Hayes, 89, December 7 at the Golden Years Rest Home, Lackey; Mrs. Tamey Hall, 77, December 2 at her home at Grethel.

Thirty Years Ago

(December 8, 1955)

If federal aid is not made available, the school building needs of Floyd county, to mention only one of the thousands of school districts in the nation, will never be met, said County Schools Superintendent V. O. Turner, this week. Distribution of surplus foodstuffs to the county needy is being resumed as the result of action taken last Thursday at a special fiscal court session here. "A major portion of the problems facing Kentucky's people is a product of low income," states a preliminary report of the Extension Program Planning committee. An estimated 2,500 youngsters and their elders thronged Prestonsburg sidewalks and stores Saturday to catch a glimpse of Santa visiting the town to open the Christmas shopping season. Wayland's Kelly Coleman turned in a one-man show in scoring 47 points to pace the Wasps to a 72-61 win over vaunted Flat Gap, Tuesday night. Born: to Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Steffy, of Pikeville, O., a daughter, Deborah Kay. Mrs. Steffy is the former Naomi Fannin, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. G. R. Fannin, of West Prestonsburg. There died: Joe Sammons, 84, Nov. 26 at his home at Lancer; Alex M. Spradlin, 61, office manager here of the county Agricultural Stabilization Committee, Friday, at Veterans hospital, Louisville; Mrs. Catherine M. Scott, 90, of Amba, Monday at the Methodist hospital, Pikeville; Peter C. VanGilst, 75, Saturday at Logansport, Ind.; Mrs. Louise Allen Joseph, 78, of Prestonsburg, last Friday at the Paintsville hospital; Teatle Ousley, 43, of Risner, dead on arrival last Friday at the Prestonsburg General hospital.

Forty Years Ago

(December 6, 1945)

Two suits filed by defeated candidates at the November election were those brought by Mallie Conn, Republican candidate for Magistrate, Dist. 4, and Dial Salisbury, Republican candidate for sheriff. The House Appropriations committee voted Friday a total of $122,275,000 for flood control and navigation projects, thus restoring the construction of a flood control dam at Dewey on Johns Creek to the list of projects to be developed. Mrs. Gertrude Chaffins Triplett, 21, of West Garrett, was killed Saturday night as she was struck by two of four revolver bullets fired through the window of a Garrett tavern. With Bill Sturgill already a regular at a guard position, and his "little" brother, Barkley, having already seen action as a forward, there's a definite possibility that two Prestonsburg brothers may be regulars on the famed Kentucky Wildcat basketball team this year. In this newspaper thirty years ago this week, we find a little girl's obituary that reads: "Nine-year-old Mary Ousley, of Martin, died Wednesday morning at her parent's home, a victim of leukemia, a rare blood disease." Thirty years later it seems leukemia is not quite so rare. Married: Miss Thelma Howard, of Prestonsburg, and Mr. Edgar Russell Doty, of Lancaster, Kentucky, November 10 at Frankfort; Miss Audrey Cooley, and Mr. Elvie Martin, both of Prestonsburg, November 27 at Pikeville; Miss Kathryn Evelyn Thomas, of Seattle, Washington, and Sgt. Charles Vincent DeCoursey, of Wayland, August 2 at Ft. Lawton, Washington. There died: Mrs. Lucy Tackett, 38, of Manton, the Beaver Valley hospital, Martin, Tuesday; Jean Johns, 13, of Martin, at the Beaver Valley hospital, Saturday; Miss Velva Thornsbury, Sunday, at the home of her mother at Bevinsville; Mrs. Hester Kidd, of Little Mud Creek, at the Beaver Valley hospital, Monday; Ellis Carroll, 18 months old, Friday at Drift.

Fifty Years Ago

(December 6, 1935)

Changes in the faculty of the Prestonsburg and Floyd county high school here were ordered Monday by the county and city boards of education in joint session in order to meet state department of education requirements and thus retain the school's accredited standing. Wiley Abrams, 40, died Sunday at his home at Minnie as the result of a knife wound. Prestonsburg's new city council, sworn into office, Monday, consists of the following: H. H. Holcomb, Elder Hall, Art Hager, Ray Collins, John Osborne, S. T. Spradlin, J. P. May and R. T. Allen. Cash Triplett and Frank Conley, of Lackey, are in the Beaver Valley hospital, suffering from injuries sustained Sunday night when the restaurant in which they were sleeping was blown apart by a blast of dynamite. Mrs. Martha Hughes was seriously injured here Saturday morning when struck by an auto. The Floyd County Health Department this week placed a ballot box in front of the Francis Cash Store for reception of contributions to the Will Rogers Memorial Fund. There died: Will Duncan, of Hueysville, at his father's home, Thursday afternoon.

Evans was hopeful a Kentucky flag could be obtained through Floyd native Greg Stumbo, majority leader of the state House of Representatives.

Though many replies were negative, Evans was pleased with the tone of the letters.

"Most have been real nice," he said. "The governor of Arkansas sent a really nice letter, granting our request, and the governor of South Dakota, William Janklow, turned us down, but sent a personal letter signed, 'Bill.'"

Until spring, and more flags are obtained, those already sent will reside in a closet in the Municipal building.

"Maybe until then we'll have 'Six Flags over Prestonsburg,'" quipped Evans.

The fuel bills took a reassuring turn downward.

While response to the program has been good among homeowners and builders, those in charge of maintaining public buildings here have shown little interest in it, Ratcliff and McAninch said. A case in point, they said, was a planned November 12 seminar to which maintenance managers in the county's schools, government buildings and community centers were invited. Response was so dismal, the seminar was cancelled.

Acting Schools Superintendent Ray Brackett said he needed no persuading that money could be saved by retrofitting and weatherizing the county's aging school buildings. But the school district does not have the funds to do the job, he said. "Even if you end up saving money in the long run, you have to make the initial outlay, and we don't have the money," he said.

Ratcliff said, however, that it takes little money to start saving energy costs in public buildings. "A caulking gun doesn't cost much," he said, "and it doesn't cost anything to make students aware of broken windows, fountains left running, or lights left on."

As it happens, the school district's energy bills may be on a downward trend, even without special energy-saving efforts. Natural gas, which cost the schools $314,000 in 1983-'84, cost $262,000 last year, and $260,000 has been set aside for gas bills this year. Electricity, which cost $423,390 two years ago and peaked at $449,868 last year, is expected to cost around $430,000 this year. Some $30,000 has been budgeted this year for coal purchases, which cost $32,000 last year, $24,000 in 1983-'84.

County officials, on the other hand, are anticipating a continuing rise in the cost of utilities. Electricity and gas bills paid by the fiscal court (and reimbursed in large measure by the state, whose officers occupy much of the main courthouse building) amounted to $55,645 last year and this year's budget anticipates bills of around $65,000.

Neither county Finance Officer Delores Dingus nor Prestonsburg City Manager David Evans recalled receiving notices about PCC's November 12 seminar. Prestonsburg's city hall is so recently constructed it enjoys a high degree of energy efficiency, Evans said, although he conceded that city-owned buildings at Archer Park could probably use some energy conservation measures.

Larry Moore, the Murray State educator who founded and still directs the Kentucky Energy Conservation Consortium, theorized in a telephone interview last week that public officials, like the public generally, "have become complacent" since the passing of the energy crisis. For long-term energy education, he would like to see an energy curriculum in the schools, with conservation principles reflected in the teaching of a broad range of subjects, he said.

"If we can teach conservation awareness early in life, they'll carry it into adulthood," he said.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Nellie Burton would like to extend their appreciation to all those friends, neighbors and loved ones who helped comfort them during their time of sorrow. Thanks to all who sent food and flowers, prayers, or spoke words of comfort. A special thanks to the staff at the McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital and the Hall Funeral Home for their kind and courteous service. It.

1 of Trio Fined For Passing Bus

Three Little Mud Creek residents accused recently of passing a stationary school bus appeared in district court last week, one of them entering a guilty plea and the others pleading not guilty.

Jessie Coleman, of Honaker, who pleaded guilty to the charge, was fined $50 and ordered to pay another $47 in court costs. Charges against Lois Adkins and Barbara Hunter were set for trial on March 27. The three were named in complaints filed by Schools Transportation Director Ed Patton and bus driver Sharon Case.

Convicted of peddling bootleg tapes at a flea market just north of here were Freda M. Jackson, 24, of Manchester, Keenan Clark May, 26, of Hurley, Va., and George Franklin Wells, 39, of Andover, Va. They were each put on six months' probation and ordered to pay $200 in fines and costs.

A bench warrant was issued Thursday for Tommy Nelson, 27, of West Prestonsburg, who failed to appear to answer a charge by Dr. Charles Hieronymus, The Prestonsburg physician said Nelson threatened to kill him and his family.

Appearing on a similar charge was Teddy B. Tackett, of Teaberry, who was given three months probation, instructed to stay away from Nancy Howell, and ordered to pay $82 after pleading guilty to a charge of terroristic threatening. On October 26, Tackett said "I'm gonna burn your house and burn you all up alive; I'm gonna kill all of you," according to Mrs. Howell's complaint.

Rita Tackett, of Prestonsburg, will have to pay $97 in fine and costs after pleading guilty to a charge of deliberately giving state police false information on an accident report.

A January hearing was scheduled to consider a motion by attorney Jerry Patton, who asked that a drunk driving charge against his client, Larry E. Hicks, 34, of Hueysville, be reduced to public intoxication or dismissed altogether. Hicks, who allegedly had a BA reading of .22 percent, claims he was parked, not driving, at the time of his arrest.

Although the Commonwealth joined in the defense attorney's motion, District Judge Harold Stumbo declined to go along with it until he heard testimony from the arresting officer, State Trooper Cary L. Cross.

Twenty three were sentenced after pleading guilty to drunk driving charges. They were:

Sharon Robinson Spradlin, 30, of Prestonsburg, who pleaded guilty to her second DUI offense under the new law and also to driving on a suspended license and without insurance (seven days' jail, $561 in fine and costs); Terry Bellamy, 37, of Hueysville, DUI, resisting arrest, $207; Sally M. Adkins, 29, of Grethel, DUI, two days' public service, $157; Linda Cox, 31, of Crestwood, DUI, $357; Douglas Vanderpool, 24, of Hueysville, drunk driving, driving on suspended license, no registration, two days' public service, $407.

Brant Steven Rector, 33, of Martin, DUI, $357; Adrian Crowder, 69, McDowell, DUI, seven days, $507; Russell Neeley, 29, of Hueysville, DUI, driving on suspended license, 30 days' probation, $424; Connie R. Joseph, 32, of Auxier, DUI, $407; Pauline McGue, 38, of Pikeville, DUI, $407; Bobby L. Keel, 41, Van Lear, DUI, $357; Jimmy Conley, 19, Hindman, driving under influence of drugs, driving on suspended license, possession of marijuana, $357; James L. Boyd, 21, Banner, DUI, $157.

Eddie L. Childers, 30, of Mousie, John E. Murphy, 51, of Langley, and Russell Ousley, 21, of Prestonsburg, all DUI, $357 each; Tony R. Potter, 19, Allen, DUI, no insurance, two days' public service, $157; Steve E. Stewart, 19, Sullivan, O., DUI, $357; Danny R. Gayheart, 23, of McDowell, DUI, $157; Ronald E. Johnson, Teaberry, DUI, $161; Buell Spears, Jr., 31, Langley, DUI, driving on suspended license, two days' public service, $157; Jerry Neil Arnett, 31, of Hendricks, drunk driving, $357.

A DUI charge against Laura L. Terrell, 51, of Prestonsburg, was amended to drinking on highway on a motion of the prosecutor. The defendant, who allegedly had a BA reading of .10 percent, was given a seven day probated sentence.

control their own road workers, and sometimes hoard their own supply of gravel or pipe. (It took the threat of a court order recently to persuade one magistrate to allow two county trucks dispatched by the judge-executive to be loaded with red dog from a stockpile the magistrate had virtually commandeered).

Officially, Stumbo was looking forward last week to a new era of "cooperation" between the judge-executive and the magistrates of the fiscal court. But clearly he was not missing the opportunity for a little housecleaning before the new men have a chance to learn the old ropes.

DR. OWENS TO SPEAK

The Kiwanis Club of Prestonsburg will have as its guest speaker tomorrow (Thursday night), Dr. William Owens, president of Pikeville College. Dr. Owens, a native of Hazard, comes to Pikeville from Centre College, where he has been professor of mathematics. The club meets each Thursday at the Highlands Regional Medical Center cafeteria, beginning at 6:15 p.m.

Club members are asked to bring a gift or toy that can be given to a needy family this Christmas.

Vocational Educ. Course Updated

Kentucky vocational education has revised its course offerings to meet the technological and vocational needs of modern industry.

A program in robotics and automated manufacturing has been added to the curriculum at the Bowling Green State Vocational-Technical School. The highly technical program is geared at fulfilling employer needs in that area, principal Bob Bierman said.

"This model program was designed with direct industry input," he said. "This ensures that the program format is in line with the real needs of the area's employers."

Wilburn Pratt, associate superintendent for vocational education, said, "What we are saying to employers, students and community leaders is that we hear you. We can and will change to meet your needs. We want to do this statewide."

"Our goal is to turn out highly motivated, well-trained people who can fill the demand for high-paid, technical positions in industry."

Superintendent of Public Instruction Alice McDonald said several required support courses had been added to the curriculum for postsecondary vocational schools this year.

"In order to update our curriculum and better prepare students for the job market, we are now requiring computer literacy, academic-related programs, economics, employability skills and study skills for postsecondary vocational students," she said.

"Computers are being used in agriculture, business and office, home economics and the medical field. Students are learning about them in vocational schools."

There's 'Nothing Hifalutin' About Norman Rockwell

By INK MENDELSON
Smithsonian News Service

Should you ever want to paint a chicken, here's some advice from Norman Rockwell for posing your model: "You pick up the chicken and rock him back and forth a few times. When you set him down, he will stand just as you've placed him for four or five minutes. Of course, you have to run behind the easel pretty quickly to do much painting before the chicken moves...It's very strenuous painting a chicken."

Rockwell had "a passion for detail," the youngest of his three sons, Peter, a sculptor, has noted. For one Saturday Evening Post cover painting of a young lady after a fight at school, Rockwell advertised that he would pay five dollars for a genuine black eye. His plea went out over the wire, and he received hundreds of responses from football teams and prisons.

The artist created a picture in his mind before he ever lifted brush to canvas. Rockwell, who died in 1978, always felt his hardest task was thinking up an idea universal enough to tell a story that would be understood and appreciated by many readers.

Once Rockwell had his idea, he became casting director, set and costume designer, prop man, actor and producer. He would set models, scenery and props in place and act out the parts. His son Jarvis, also an artist, recalled that his father "might bring a horse into the studio...It was like the circus had come to town."

The cast of characters was the most important aspect for this "people painter." Mostly, his models were his family, friends and neighbors—and occasionally himself. "We kids took posing more or less for granted," Tom Rockwell, an author of children's books, remembers. "After all, most of our friends were father's models, too." "In spite of occasional vagaries, I couldn't ask for better models than my neighbors," Rockwell said of his model citizens in Arlington, Vt., and Stockbridge, Mass. But he wouldn't have dreamed of asking any woman in Stockbridge to pose for his mermaid cover.

When Rockwell, in 1916, began painting covers for the Post, he haunted playgrounds for kids and chased dogs through backyards to get these ever-popular cover subjects down on canvas. He bribed kids with piles of coins that kept growing as long as the models were stationary. In a mutt named Lambert, he found a faithful model—until a cat came along.

Problems with restless and peripatetic models were alleviated, when, in the late 1930s, Rockwell began using photography. The artist gathered his production together, and a professional photographer took hundreds of pictures, providing a bank of visual information for the final painting, which became much more detailed.

Rockwell turned for his models to bank presidents, clerks, farmers, umpires, society matrons, sheriffs—and always children and animals. Sometimes they would pose in their real-life roles. Often, like the local mailman, who was transformed into a big city political boss, they acted.

For a 1956 Post cover, Anne Braman, the flower arranger for Stockbridge's Red Lion Inn, posed as a schoolteacher. "Norman said I reminded him of his favorite teacher," Braman recalls. A "kind and gentle" Rockwell adjusted the collars, braids and hair ribbons of the children who were posing as her students. "And then he went to work on me. He didn't think my shoes were right, so he asked me to trade shoes with his wife. And there I stood, propped up against the blackboard in shoes three inches too long."

Dr. Donald Campbell, the Stockbridge town doctor, posed in his own office as a physician about to give an apprehensive youngster a shot. Campbell chuckles when asked why he was chosen as a cover subject. "Norman's choices were somewhat limited in a small town, and he preferred to do business locally. There was nothing highfalutin' about Norman."

Rockwell was not, however, perfect. Once he painstakingly posed a neighbor's cow and painted its prominently displayed rear end for a calendar. "Turned out to be my worst failure," Rockwell sighed. "What you want in a calendar is quiet sentiment...something that will last an entire year...to fill a calendar with a cow's hind end is sheer folly."

KET, State Join To Help Jobless

The Department for Employment Services and Kentucky Educational Television are joining hands next month in an effort to help unemployed Kentuckians find jobs.

They will co-sponsor "How To Find A Job," which will air Jan. 11 from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. (EST).

Louisville radio personality Milton Metz will host the day-long program, and viewers will have a chance to phone in questions.

"This isn't going to be a job-a-thon," said Employment Services Commissioner James Daniels. "During the program we will offer tips on how to fill out a job application, how to prepare a good resume, what a person should say and do during a job interview and how a jobseeker can do a self-evaluation."

"Job applicants need to think about the things they like to do, the hours they want to work, whether they will work overtime, whether they prefer working indoors or outdoors, and have these things in mind before they start looking for work," Daniels said.

"In one segment of the program we will explain the services the department's local offices provide job applicants," he said. "We do an assessment of an applicant's skills and interests and develop a guide for his or her job search before we refer the person for a job interview. We also will discuss registering for unemployment insurance benefits."

The program also will provide information about programs for dislocated workers, on-the-job training programs and educational opportunities that are available.

Taped presentations will be shown on each subject. In addition, department staff and people who operate Job Training Partnership Act programs throughout the state will be in the studio to provide additional information and answer questions that are phoned in.

Unemployed Kentuckians are not the only ones who can benefit from the show, Daniels said. "Any worker can profit from the information on preparing a good solid resume and what to do during a job interview," he said. "And employers can learn more about programs operated by the department, such as on-the-job and other training programs, which may be beneficial to them."

Floyd Again Leads District's Jobless

Jobless rates rose in 85 Kentucky counties between September and October, according to figures released today by the Cabinet for Human Resources. In 27 counties the rates were lower in October and in eight the rates were the same as in September.

Seventy-one counties reported unemployment rates of 10.0 percent or higher in October, compared to 65 in September and 47 in October 1984.

Compared to October 1984, 86 counties reported higher rates, 33 had lower rates and in one county the rate was the same.

Higher jobless figures on the local level mirrored the rise in the statewide unemployment rate, which rose from a revised 8.9 percent in September to a preliminary 9.2 percent in October. Nationally the rate decreased from 6.9 percent in September to 6.8 percent in October. The comparable state and national rates are not seasonally adjusted.

"The state's unemployment rate increased as more people entered the labor force in October but were unable to find jobs," said state labor market analyst Ed Blackwell. "Job increases reported in trade; education; agriculture; transportation, communications and utilities; construction; and finance, insurance and real estate were offset by losses in manufacturing, services and bituminous coal mining," he said.

Three counties reported rates below 5.0 percent. Woodford County's 3.2 percent rate was the lowest, followed by Fayette's 4.6 percent and Oldham's 4.9 percent.

Sponsor Youth Night At Local Roller Rink

The Dove House, Christian Bookstore and ministry center, will be co-sponsoring the first of a weekly event at the Music Rollerland at East Point on Route 1428 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville, Thursday, December 12, from 7 to 10 p.m.

Featured will be the video and music of Amy Grant and other popular Christian musicians where youth and everyone can skate to the beat and view the videos.

Dove House will provide tickets to the event at half the regular price. This includes skating and chances to participate for free albums and cassettes. Prizes will be awarded to winners of the different games to be played during the skate night.

The first 200 persons will also receive a free 45 RPM Christian record. All the records and cassettes have been donated by Word Record Company of Texas.

According to Jerry Herrmann, director of Dove House, the purpose of the Thursday Night Christian Skating is to "introduce young people to music that a person can tap their feet to."

Dove House has sent a complimentary ticket to all of the churches in Floyd county stressing that not only are the youth invited to these gatherings but parents, pastors and youth ministers are urged to participate. The Dove House has asked that if any pastor did not receive the ticket and invitation to please call and a ticket will be promptly sent.

For more information and tickets, call the Dove House at 886-8386 or Music Rollerland at 789-3904.

Dance at Park

Buff those dancing shoes and get out the bow ties for Natural Bridge State Resort Park's "Holiday Hoedown" on Dec. 28. The fun begins at 7:30 p.m. with an indoor mountain-style square dance and clogging team demonstrations.

For more information, call the park at Slade at 606-668-6650.

Two counties reported rates above 20.0 percent. Menifee's 25.5 percent was the highest, followed by Carter's 20.6 percent.

An estimated 1,566,700 Kentuckians were working in October, down 2,200 from the 1,568,900 recorded in September and 33,100 below the October 1984 report of 1,599,800.

An estimated 159,600 Kentuckians were jobless in October, up 6,400 from September, when 153,200 were out of work, and 11,200 higher than in October 1984, when 148,400 were unemployed.

Annual changes in the number of Kentuckians employed and those out of work reflect the number who have dropped out of the labor force.

The state's civilian labor force totaled 1,726,300 in October, compared to 1,722,100, in September and 1,748,200 in October 1984. The civilian labor force includes non-military people who are working and unemployed people who actively are seeking work. It does not include anyone who is out of work but not looking for a job.

In the Big Sandy district the jobless rate inched downward from a revised 11.3 percent in September to a preliminary 11.2 percent in October. Martin county's 5.5 percent rate was the district's lowest and only single-digit rate, while Floyd county's 13.3 percent was the district's highest.

The monthly sample of claimants of unemployment insurance benefits showed 51.6 percent had worked in mining, 13.5 percent in trade, 8.9 percent in services and 8.5 percent in construction.

In the Kentucky River district unemployment rose from a revised rate of 14.2 percent in September to a preliminary rate of 14.4 percent in October. Breathitt county's 9.4 percent was the district's lowest and only single-digit rate, while Letcher county's 19.8 percent was the district's highest.

The monthly sample of claimants of unemployment insurance benefits showed 41.6 percent had worked in mining, 18.3 percent in services, 12.2 percent in manufacturing and 19.6 percent in trade.

KET Program Examines The Status of Women

In 1975, the United Nations launched the International Decade for Women, a time for governments and women to devise ways to improve the lives of half the world's population. This pivotal period in women's history is traced in "The Women's Decade: Beyond Beginnings," airing Tuesday, December 31, at 9:00 p.m. (ET), on KET.

The program looks at the current status of women all over the world to evaluate what has changed, or not changed, in the last ten years. While it is clear that women living in industrialized nations have had a different experience from their counterparts in the third world, it is also obvious that some of the gains are part of a worldwide trend. The proportion of illiterate women in the world has dropped, and women are making gains in the workplace.

Despite these gains, there are areas of little or no progress. For example, women around the world have little or no voice in government. This has also been a decade of numerous worldwide crises—famine, economic recession, wars—and many of these factors have slowed the rate of improving conditions for women.

"The Women's Decade: Beyond Beginnings," also includes a British documentary, "The Impossible Decade," which examines the decade as a whole.

The program ends with a segment on the 1985 United Nations Conference of Women. The Nairobi Conference was the largest international gathering of women in this century.

Susan Stamburg, host of National Public Radio's "All Things Considered," anchors the program.

"The Women's Decade: Beyond Beginnings" is produced by WETA/Washington.

Tours Available at Highlands Regional

Sheila Ratliff's seventh grade class from Wayland Elementary School toured Highlands Regional Medical Center, Tuesday, December 3. The students (pictured above) visited the emergency room, lab, outpatient surgery, obstetrics, and nuclear medicine. In each of these areas a Medical Center staff member was on hand to explain the equipment and answer questions.

Carol Blevins, Public Information Officer at HRMC, who was host and tour guide, said, "The students were very interested in all the areas they visited and they asked excellent questions. They were studying health in class and the areas they visited fit right in with their classwork."

Ms. Ratliff first learned of the availability of the Medical Center for school tours when she attended one of the Teacher's Information sessions at HRMC. The Teacher's Information Program is an on-going program to make area teachers aware of the information resources available at HRMC. The next teacher information session is scheduled for the end of January.

In addition to Medical Center Tours, a speaker's bureau has been established at HRMC. Topics are both medically oriented and non-medical, and are designed for all age groups. Speakers are available at no cost for non-profit organizations.

For further information about tours or the Speaker's Bureau, contact Carol Blevins, Public Information Officer (ext. 286) at Highlands Regional Medical Center.

Trust Fund Grants To Be Announced

Four grants from the Child Victims' Trust Fund will be announced at a press conference Tuesday, Dec. 10 at 10 a.m. at Louisville's Galt House East, Attorney General David L. Armstrong said this week. The announcement will precede a meeting of the state Child Sexual Abuse and Exploitation Prevention Board, which administers the Trust Fund. Armstrong is chairperson of the Board.

"This is our second funding period, and, as before, we were looking for programs benefiting children and adolescents that provide services directly to people at the grassroots level with a dedicated corps of volunteers, and directed toward the prevention of sexual abuse and exploitation. As usual, the selection process was difficult, but we are sure our four selections this quarter fill these criteria quite well."

The press conference will be in the Brown Room on the second floor of the hotel.

Grants are awarded on a quarterly basis. The next application deadlines are Jan. 1, 1986 and April 1, 1986. Award dates are two months following each deadline date.

The Child Victims' Trust Fund was established in 1984 without any money being appropriated from the General Fund. All money in the Trust Fund comes from donations and a voluntary tax check-off on the Kentucky income tax form. The state Board, which has 15 members, reviews and awards the grants to non-profit organizations that deal with prevention activities.

Armstrong added, "I continue to urge everyone who is to receive a refund from Kentucky to check-off line 21B on their state income tax form and, if possible, to give even more."

Applicants must meet certain criteria, such as having IRS not-for-profit status and being able to match the grant money on a one-to-one basis. Projects must also demonstrate a need for services in specific geographical areas and avoid duplication of existing prevention services. Extensive use of volunteers is also encouraged.

Organizations wishing to apply for the third funding period may contact the Victims' Advocacy Division, Office of the Attorney General, 909 Leewood, Frankfort, Ky. 40601 or call the Kentucky Crime Victims' Hotline toll-free at 1-800-372-2551.

Verdi's "Falstaff" To Air

Giuseppe Verdi's last opera, his comic masterpiece "Falstaff," will be presented on "Great Performances" on KET, Monday, December 16, at 8:00 p.m.

Based on Shakespeare's "The Merry Wives of Windsor" and parts of "Henry IV," the opera stars the noted European baritone Gabriel Bacquier in the role of Sir John Falstaff, the portly, courtly gentleman whose knightliness has gone to seed, and Richard Stilwell as Ford. The remaining cast includes Karan Armstrong as Alice Ford; Jutta Renate Ihloff as Nannetta; Sylvia Lindenstrand as Meg Page; Marta Szirmay as Dame Quickly, and Max-Rene Cosotti as Fenton.

Sir Georg Solti leads the Vienna Philharmonic Orchestra, the Vienna State Opera Chorus, and the Vienna Boys Choir.

Sir John Falstaff, once the companion of royalty but now a corpulent parody of his former self, sends identical, passionate letters to Mistress Ford and Mistress Page, two young patrons of Windsor whose wealth and beauty have attracted his attention. The ladies compare their letters and, with the aid of Dame Quickly, decide to teach the old roue a lesson. They contrive a series of pranks for his public humiliation: Sir John is dumped from a clothes basket into the Thames and ambushed, attacked and ridiculed in Windsor Forest.

A Unitel, Munich, production, "Falstaff" is presented by WNET/New York.

The Ultimate Field Trip... Will Beam Back Experiments To The Nation's Classrooms

Concord, NH teacher Christa McAuliffe will teach live from space when the shuttle reaches orbit after launch on January 22.

In what the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) is calling "The Ultimate Field Trip," McAuliffe will transmit experiments into the nation's classrooms via the Public Broadcasting Service.

"We're pleased that NASA is making the flight a live learning experience for the nation's students. I'm urging each teacher to take advantage of this unique learning opportunity and to plan ahead to use the lessons from space," says Mary Hatwood Futrell, president of the National Education Association.

McAuliffe, notes NASA, will conduct experiments for students in the following areas:

- Earth's Magnetism. To understand the role of magnetic lines of force in space and to photograph and observe lines of magnetic force in three dimensions in a microgravity environment.

- Newton's Laws. To demonstrate Newton's first, second, and third laws in microgravity: (1) show that even though mass has no weight, it still takes some force to move it; (2) show that the more force is applied to a mass, the faster it accelerates; and (3) show action-reaction.

- Bubbles. To understand why products may or may not effervesce in a microgravity environment.

- Space Expressions. To generate creative works from students that reflect their interpretation of the space program/experience. Students will view slides of McAuliffe's activities and scenes she observes from the orbiter and give their personal interpretations, express their interpretations through various art forms, and identify appropriate locations for the display, presentation, or publication of their works.

- Simple Machines/Tools. Audience will be able to identify and understand the use of simple machines/tools and the similarities and difference between their uses in space and on Earth.

- Earth Science. To show the effect of microgravity on plant growth, growth of plants without soil (hydroponics), capillary action, osmosis, and chromatography, and to demonstrate a possible procedure that will be used on the space station and in future space endeavors to provide nourishment and even oxygen in an enclosed environment in microgravity.

Details about the experiments and broadcast times will be announced in the near future.

Record-Keeping Rules For Business Auto Use

The Internal Revenue Service has issued temporary and proposed regulations on recordkeeping requirements for the business use of automobiles and certain other property.

The regulations result from Public Law 99-44, in which Congress repealed the requirement for contemporaneous recordkeeping imposed by the Tax Reform Act of 1984. Public Law 99-44 requires that for tax years beginning after 1985 taxpayers must prove the business use of cars and certain other property with "adequate records or by sufficient evidence corroborating the taxpayer's own statement." The regulations are derived from the legislative history of P.L. 99-44 and will provide guidance to taxpayers on the application of this recordkeeping requirement.

The new regulations clarify that contemporaneous logs are not required and include several special rules to minimize the burden of recordkeeping. These include a sampling technique that can be used instead of continuous recordkeeping and a safe harbor for farmers. The regulations also identify a number of "qualified nonpersonal use vehicles"—such as tractors and vehicles over 14,000 pounds—that are exempt from the new recordkeeping rules. The use of these special vehicles will not result in income when provided to an employee.

IRS also announced today that it will soon issue regulations on the tax treatment of fringe benefits. The regulation will permit use of the standard mileage allowance to value the personal use of an employer-provided vehicle regularly used in the employer's business, provided that the vehicle has a fair market value of $12,800 or less. This rule will apply as of January 1, 1985.

Today's regulations on recordkeeping were published in the Federal Register on November 6, 1985. Copies of this issue of the Federal Register may be obtained by sending $1.50 to the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

Miss Cranford, Dr. Edwards Wed

Miss Marian Elaine Cranford, of Carrboro, North Carolina, and Dr. Robert Willis Edwards, of Chapel Hill, North Carolina, were married Saturday, December 7, 1985, at 2 p.m. in the chapel of the Cross Episcopal Church, Chapel Hill, North Carolina.

The Right Reverend Thomas A. Fraser, Retired Bishop of the Diocese of North Carolina, officiated and celebrated the marriage and the Holy Eucharist, assisted by the Reverend Stephen Elkins-Williams, Rector of the Chapel of the Cross. Mr. Hamlin Trotter Raney, III, of Raleigh, N.C., nephew of the bride, was crucifer.

The bride and bridegroom were presented in marriage by their parents. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Owen Cranford, of Albemarle, N.C. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. Lloyd R. Edwards, of Prestonsburg, Kentucky, and the late Mrs. Vera C. Edwards.

Wedding music was provided by Dr. Wylie S. Quinn, III, organist; Mr. Stafford Wing, soloist, and Mr. Don Eagle, trumpeter.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore an ivory silk gown reminiscent of the Renaissance period. The high-yoked neck of illusion and alencon lace was complemented by matching lace at the dropped waistline. The long sleeves were designed with appliqued bouffant silk tops with lace over illusion extending to the wrists. The full skirt swept back into a chapel length train, and the appliqued chapel-length veil of illusion was held in place by a lace Breton cap. The bride wore diamond earrings, designed and given to her by the bridegroom, and she carried a spray of ivory silk orchids and roses.

Attending her sister as matron of honor was Mrs. Martha Cranford Cox, of Cary, North Carolina. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Louise Cranford Artman, of Richmond, Virginia, and Mrs. Sandra Cranford Raney, of Raleigh, N.C., sisters of the bride; Dr. Ponjola Coney, of Oklahoma City, Oklahoma; Dr. Sheron J. Dailey, of Terre Haute, Indiana, and Miss Betty Ann Taylor, of Miami, Florida. Miss Roxanne Hall, of Chapel Hill, N.C., was junior bridesmaid. Flower girl was Miss Stephanie Hall, of Chapel Hill, N.C., and ring bearer was Master Clinton Wilkinson, of Carrboro, N.C.

Lay readers were Dr. Sheron J. Dailey, Mr. Frederick A. James, and Dr. Stephen C. Merritt. Registrars were Mrs. Lynne Yarborough Lee, of Mocksville, N.C., and Miss Martha Jane Snyder, of Clemmons, N.C.

Mr. Robert W. Logan, of Frankfort, Kentucky, served as best man. Groomsman were Mr. Wayne L. Brown, of Prestonsburg, Kentucky; Dr. J. Ed. Hall, of Chapel Hill, N.C.; Mr. Frederick A. James, of Frankfort, Kentucky; Dr. Dana G. Ketchum, of River Ridge, Louisiana, and Dr. Stephen C. Merritt, of Hillsborough, N.C.

Honored guests were Mrs. Marian Ducker, of Bamberg, South Carolina; Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Wilson, of Hillsborough, N.C.; Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Edwards, of Middletown, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Lafferty, of Franklin, Ohio, and members of Hillsborough Assembly No. 77, Order of the Rainbow for Girls.

The bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Owen Cranford, hosted a reception in the Church Parish Hall immediately following the ceremony. Parents of both the bride and groom entertained members of the wedding party, out-of-town relatives, and close friends of the couple at a wedding dinner at 6 o'clock that evening at Spanky's Restaurant in Chapel Hill.

On the eve of the wedding, a rehearsal dinner was held at the Jade Palace Chinese and Seafood Restaurant in Carrboro, N.C., hosted by the bridegroom's father, Mr. Lloyd R. Edwards.

A bridal luncheon was held at noon, Friday, in the South Parlor of the Carolina Inn in Chapel Hill. Mrs. Martha Cranford Cox and Mrs. Louise Cranford Artman were hostesses.

The bride is a 1967 graduate of Albemarle Senior High School. In 1971, she received her B.S. in biology from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, and in 1975 she graduated with honors from the University of North Carolina School of Medicine Surgeon Assistant Program. She is a member of the American Burn Association, the Nurses Association of the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, the Association of Surgical Technologists, the Order of the Eastern Star, and is the Mother Advisor of the Hillsborough Assembly of the Order of the Rainbow for Girls.

Mrs. Cranford Edwards is employed as a surgeon assistant in the North Carolina Memorial Hospital Jaycee Burn Center in Chapel Hill, N.C. She also has been a volunteer medical missionary to Haiti through the Episcopal Church since 1980 and was awarded the prestigious Service to Mankind Award by the Tarheel Sertoma Club of Chapel Hill in March, 1982.

Dr. Edwards is a 1968 graduate of Prestonsburg High School. He received his B.S. from the University of Kentucky in 1974, his M.S. from Eastern Kentucky University in 1976, and his Ph.D. from the University of Arkansas in 1980. He is a member of Sigma Xi and Phi Sigma, scientific research honorary societies, the American Society of Tropical Medicine and Hygiene, the Royal Society of Tropical Medicine and Hygiene, the American Society of Parasitology, the American Public Health Association, and the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He is a clinical assistant professor at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill in the Department of Parasitology and Laboratory Practice in the School of Public Health.

The couple will be making their home at 101 Lorraine Street, Carrboro, N.C., after a wedding trip to the Caribbean.

Space Food: It's No Picnic Up There

By RITA CIPALLA

It was a home-cooked Christmas dinner with all the trimmings—turkey, gravy and cranberry sauce. The travelers, far from home and family, welcomed the unexpected feast.

The scene is often repeated around the holiday season, but this turkey dinner was not in any way typical, served as it was to the Apollo 8 crew circling the moon some 230,000 miles from Earth.

The Apollo 8 Christmas dinner in 1968 was a breakthrough in the U.S. space program, for it marked the first time that solid foods were scheduled to be eaten in space. "In the early days of the space program, everything was packed in toothpaste tubes," says Derek Elliott, assistant curator at the Smithsonian's National Air and Space Museum in Washington, D.C., and the curator of a new exhibit on space food. "That's the image most people still have. Today, however, space food resembles earthly fare. Many items, such as granola bars, nuts and candy, are bought right off the shelf."

Space Age food was not always so heavenly. In the 1950s, researchers experimented with ways to provide nutritious food on board space flights without adding unnecessary bulk and weight. Some strange ideas were proposed.

"Space men may get slug and snail diet," read a New York Times headline on Nov. 29, 1958. "Chickens, rabbits to ride spaceship," proclaimed a 1959 headline to a Christian Science Monitor article suggesting that the creatures could provide fresh meat on a long space voyage.

That these unappetizing predictions did not come true is due in part to scientific ingenuity. Of course, when man first ventured into space in 1961, scientists did not have to worry about meals because the flights were so short. The astronaut would eat a hearty pre-launch breakfast and an equally hearty meal on the recovery ship after the splashdown. As the flights grew longer, there were new dietary concerns to face.

On Earth, a person consumes about 7 pounds of food per day. For a typical 12-day mission, this would mean 98 pounds of food per person, a lot of excess baggage. In addition, space food had to be both nutritious and stable enough to avoid spoilage during long voyages. For psychological reasons, it had to resemble the color, flavor, taste and texture of freshly prepared food, making meal time in space a pleasurable act reminiscent of meals on Earth. The food also had to be convenient to eat in a weightless environment, and that turned out to be a difficult requirement.

Food does funny things in zero gravity. A slowly lifted glass of water was apt to splash onto an unsuspecting face. A forkful of peas raised to the mouth would continue right on moving. But the result is no laughing matter. In a spacecraft's enclosed environment, bits of food, crumbs, even water droplets could short out electrical circuits, clog oxygen lines and saturate an astronaut's clothing.

Scientists went to work. The guinea pig was Friendship 7 astronaut John Glenn, who on Feb. 20, 1962, became the first American to orbit the Earth and to "dine" in space. During his five-hour flight, he pulled an object resembling a toothpaste tube from a storage compartment, placed it in his mouth and squeezed out pureed applesauce.

"Before Glenn's flight, no one really knew how well an astronaut could chew, swallow and digest in space," the Smithsonian's Elliott says. "Glenn proved that the body could negate the effects of weightlessness. His muscles took over and forced the food through the digestive tract."

In the beginning, space food was based, with little or no modification, on methods used by the Air Force for feeding pilots—wearing protective clothing and pressurized head gear. Although the pureed food Glenn ate was easy to use, it was not suitable for long space flights. These foods contained about 80 percent water, providing relatively few calories for their weight.

Two approaches were pursued: freeze-dried food (made by a process in which moisture is removed without appreciably changing the shape, color or texture) and bite-sized cubes of sandwich sections, brownies, cinnamon toast and the like, coated with an edible gelatin to control crumbling.

During Project Gemini in the mid-1960s, the meals were vacuum-packed in plastic containers; the astronauts chose each item. But the astronauts were not impressed. The appearance of most items was not very appetizing. Only lukewarm water could be added to rehydrate meats and stews, and the result was often a thick, tepid soup.

Determined to get a decent meal, some astronauts took things into their own hands. "On Gemini 3 in 1965," Elliott says, "John Young surprised fellow astronaut Virgil Grissom with a corned beef on rye sandwich that Young purchased at a Cocoa Beach, Fla., deli and smuggled aboard. Grissom never finished his sandwich, though, because it started to crumble." This was the first time—although unofficial—that solid food was consumed in space.

During the Apollo program, a more sophisticated system made hot and cold water available for the preparation of food. The astronauts, using a water "gun," added liquid to food enclosed in a plastic pouch, kneading it with their fingers to bring it to the appropriate consistency. Sandwich spreads were also introduced—tuna and ham sandwiches became popular meal items. But most food was still dished up in pouches and squeezed directly into the mouth.

Skylab (1973) improved celestial cuisine further. The spacecraft had a refrigerator and freezer, and ice cream soon became a favorite food. The orbiting space station had a full galley in which the astronauts could cook and eat—and use forks and spoons.

Eating in space took on an international flavor in 1975 when American astronauts sampled Soviet treats during the Apollo-Soyuz Test Project. Astronauts dined on such Russian delicacies as caviar, riga bread and borscht in the now-familiar tubes.

The space shuttle ushered in a new era of space food. "On the shuttle, we use commercially available foods as much as possible," says Rita Rapp, shuttle food systems manager who joined the National Aeronautics and Space Administration in 1961 and worked on meals for the Apollo program. "One advantage is that the manufacturer does the consumer research, so it is less costly for NASA. In addition, a company can produce food in volume and still maintain high quality."

An Appointed, Professional, Kentucky Superintendent of Public Instruction

DOROTHY S. RIDINGS, Chairman
Prichard Committee

Of all the vital education issues expected to be debated by the 1986 legislature, one stands alone in clarity and importance: the need for a professional, appointed state superintendent of public instruction.

The need has never been so acute for top flight leadership, continuity, and good planning in Kentucky education. Yet under the current system, our state superintendent becomes our chief educator by being a good politician. Most of the superintendent's four years in office are spent learning the ropes of this complex job, and the remainder is often spent running for some other elective office.

The Prichard Committee for Academic Excellence, a state-wide citizens group dedicated to education reform, believes there is a better way. In many states, the state Board of Education—appointed by the governor—carefully selects the best professional possible for the job. We believe the Kentucky constitution should be amended to select the superintendent in this way. We do this now in Kentucky when we select university presidents; university boards of trustees search for the best individual available to do what needs to be done. And Kentucky school districts do this when they select local school superintendents: "search committees" look long and hard for just the right person.

It all sounds quite logical. But there has been strong resistance to the concept of an appointed, professional state superintendent, and sometimes the argument has revolved around public control of our schools. Supporters of that argument say that electing the superintendent gives the public needed control, that public schools are public property and the voice of the public must be heard.

Actually, the public has little control now; a superintendent cannot be removed for four years except for the most dire reasons, even if that person is doing a poor job. On the other hand, a superintendent hired by a board of education could be removed just like any other employee.

And it seems to us that the most important public voice in education must be at the local level, through the election of local school boards. That we elect hundreds of these local school board members is true public control, at the level where it's most critical.

But even though the Prichard Committee has a clear position on this issue, we believe even more strongly that there needs to be widespread public dialogue on this critical question. We hope to provide the opportunities for just such discussions, discussions that will include school officials, teachers, the media, and every concerned parent and citizen.

During the next few weeks we will identify individuals in communities across Kentucky to organize these conversations, provide discussion materials, and help bring the issue before the public.

We're confident that thoughtful reflection will underscore the need for a professional educator in the job of superintendent of public instruction, an educator who can be in the job long enough to plan and implement an effective system of public schools. We're confident of the logic in our view that education is too important to be decided by partisan politics every four years, too important for rapid turnover in officials and staff, and too important to be saddled with obligations to narrow interest groups or with great potential for political abuse.

We ask simply that the people have the opportunity to thoroughly discuss the issue, and then be allowed to vote on its merits—a possibility only if state legislators put the question on the ballot so the people can decide.

Our convictions have been shared by many Kentucky governors, including Governor Collins, and by many of our superintendents of public instruction, including current officeholder Alice McDonald.

These convictions are also shared by the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce and Kentucky Farm Bureau, by all education task forces and commissions, and by school board members and superintendents.

We all believe that the superintendent of public instruction is the key to good schools. And to ensure strong and effective leadership in that position, we must be enabled to choose the best educator we can attract, not the best politician around.

Local Block Owner Attends Convention

Eugene Russell, owner of the H & R Block office in Prestonsburg, recently attended the annual H & R Block Satellite Franchise Convention held in Columbus, Ohio.

The theme of this year's convention was "Building Block's For The Future" in honor of the 30th anniversary of H & R Block in the tax preparation business.

The two-day meeting was attended by franchise owners and managers from Ohio, West Virginia, and Kentucky.

Russell attended seminars covering many management and tax topics, in preparation for another year of tax changes.

The local office is currently open Monday and Wednesday to provide tax assistance or free tax information to the residents of Prestonsburg.

Meeting Here Last Scheduled On Peace Move

All Floyd "people of faith" are being invited to join 70 Kentucky church leaders in promoting peace, both on a global level and closer home.

The invitation came in the form of a pastoral letter on peace, on which comments are being solicited in eight public forums before it takes its final form. The last of the meetings is scheduled at 10 a.m. this Saturday at the First United Methodist Church, on South Arnold Avenue here.

Entitled "Bearers of Peace and Justice: An Invitation to Kentucky People of Faith," the letter was first proposed by a Kentucky Council of Churches task force and was drafted by leaders representing a wide range of denominations. The idea was prompted by a similar letter issued by church leaders in Iowa.

The decision to go ahead with the document came in June at a meeting convened by the Most Rev. Thomas C. Kelly, Roman Catholic archbishop of Louisville; the Rt. Rev. David B. Reed, Episcopal bishop of Kentucky; and the Rev. A. Guy Waldrop, general minister of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) in Kentucky.

Church leaders throughout the state were polled on what should be included in the letter; a preliminary draft was written by the Very Rev. Allen L. Bartlett, Jr., dean of Louisville's Episcopal Christ Church Cathedral (since elected coadjutor bishop of Pennsylvania); and Bartlett's version was then refined into the draft that is being discussed in this week's public meetings.

Within two months, the task force expects to have incorporated the input it receives from the meetings into a final text, which any Kentuckian who wants to may sign.

Concerns expressed in the pastoral letter range from the development of new, "destabilizing" nuclear weapons systems and the slow pace of disarmament talks to street crime, child abuse and "violence in entertainment."

"We are appalled by the increasing transfer of national wealth and energy into the production of weapons of war, placing in jeopardy the entire national economy and disregarding the needs of the poor," the draft says.

The current nuclear threat, it says, calls into question both of the positions traditionally taken by Christians on the issue of war—the "just war" theory on the one hand and, on the other, commitments to pacifism and unilateral disarmament.

The letter calls for actions ranging from Bible study, prayer and fasting to keeping informed about weapons systems and communicating with legislators.

Christians must say "no" to nuclear war but "at the same time protect the values of justice, freedom and independence," it says.

Moderator at Saturday's meeting will be the Rev. Timothy Jessen, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church here.

Christian Symbols

By ELMA JESSEN
(for the Local Council of Church Women)

In an effort to recover some of the spiritual meaning of this season, distinctively Christian symbols are being used in many places to signify the true significance of Advent and Christmas. One way of using these symbols is through the Christmon tree. The word "Christmon" is formed from the word "Christ" and the word "monogram"—thus, it is a "Christ-monogram."

Though many who use it as a substitute for "Christ" in "Christmas" are not aware of it, the letter "X" in the Greek alphabet is the first letter of the word for Christ. Combined with the letter "P", the second letter of the word, it forms one of the earliest monograms, called the Chi-Rho, used by Christians for at least 1600 years.

There are other symbols that represent Christ and the Christmas story that are more common—the star that guided the Wise Men to the Christ-child, the manger itself, the staff of the shepherds, the dove, which is a symbol of peace, and the lamb, which symbolizes "the Lamb of God, who takes away the sin of the world" (John 1:3).

Some churches use only the Christmon symbols to decorate the Christmas trees in their sanctuaries. Many different types of crosses are used, symbolizing the death of Christ as Saviour of the world. The anchor is a symbol of the hope we have in Christ (Hebrews 6:19-20). The butterfly is a symbol of the resurrection, and the fish is a very ancient symbol standing for "Jesus Christ, Son of God, Saviour." A crown reminding us of the "King of Kings" is also used.

We cannot begin to fully grasp the meaning of the coming of God into the world as a baby. But, by the use of pertinent symbols, we can help interpret and understand that message for today. Whether it be the familiar star, candle, or evergreen (representing God's everlasting love), or the less familiar symbols of the Christmon tree, they can serve to point us to the Christ, who is "Alpha and Omega," the beginning and the end, and the reason we celebrate this lovely season.

Church Schedules Christmas Program

The annual Christmas program of the First Presbyterian Church will be held Sunday, Dec. 15, at 7:30 p.m. in the church sanctuary. Entitled "The Lost Feeling of Christmas," the program involves the junior and senior high youth of the church, the children's and adult choirs in a play about the nativity of Christ with contemporary application. Mrs. Caroline Owens will direct the play.

Preceding the program, the Christmas dinner will be held at 6 p.m., sponsored by the board of deacons. Members and friends are asked to bring vegetable, salad, or dessert dishes to go along with the meat, which will be provided by the church.

The public is invited to share in this activity.

33 Floyd Adults Join Study-At-Home Project

Since October, KET's new GED Study-at-Home project has enrolled students from 93 percent of Kentucky's 120 counties. Currently, only seven percent of Kentucky's counties have no students enrolled in the program. More than 6,200 adults have inquired and have been pre-screened in a telephone interview since enrollment began in September. From these inquiries, KET has already enrolled 1,157 adults for the October start date, and for the January 7 start date, 224 adults currently are enrolled. A third start date will begin in April. Students may register by calling 1-800-KET-4-GED. KET's GED Study-at-Home project was developed to provide an alternative means for adults who have been unable to obtain their high school diploma through traditional adult education services. This allows students the chance to prepare at home for the General Educational Development (GED) test by receiving instruction on television. Floyd county has 33 students currently enrolled in the program.

I had withdrawn from the Mayor's race at Wayland, October 19, before the election. The county court clerk had failed to take my name off the sample ballot and voting machine. ### Men Turning 26 Must Register Soon

The Selective Service System reaches an important milestone in the registration of young men on January 1, 1986.

Beginning on this date, men who were required in 1980 to register with Selective Service will be turning 26. Selective Service does not have the authority to accept registrations of men after they turn 26. Men who failed to register will have permanently forfeited their right to certain Federal student aid and job training benefits as well as Federal employment. Additionally, registration with Selective Service is a requirement in some states for various employment opportunities, such as law enforcement agencies and permission to practice law.

Men born in 1960 who have registered, will reach age 26 in 1986 and, under present law, will no longer be eligible for selection for induction. Over 15 million men, age 18 through 25, have registered with Selective Service since President Carter initiated registration in 1980.

Many of the men who are nonregistrants may be unaware of the requirement or do not understand the importance of the obligation to register. Some have served in the military but failed to register either before entering the Armed Forces or after leaving active duty. Others may have been incarcerated at the time of their 18th birthday and not realized they were required to register if released from custody prior to age 26.

Men age 18 to 25 who have not yet registered should register promptly to avoid prosecution and/or loss of benefits. Registration takes only five minutes at any post office. Failure to register is a felony, punishable by a fine of up to $250,000 and/or up to 5 years imprisonment.

2nd Sex Bias Panel Quizzed by Students

The second panel in the series on Sex Bias in Career Choice was presented at Prestonsburg Community College on November 20. The moderator for the panel was Keith Shannon, former PCC student, now attorney and general manager for Appalshop's new FM station WMMT, which will be on the air in December.

The student crowd, which filled Pike Auditorium, listened to and questioned PCC student panelists, Marty Borders, of Allen, engineering student, Edward Cecil, of Paintsville, nursing student, Pauline Coleman, of Pikeville, law enforcement student, and Joseph Keaton, of Leburn, nursing student at Mayo State Vocational-Technical School. Major questions centered around sex bias which both males and females encounter in school and on the job, pay scales, personal difficulties, and personality traits needed for career success.

Census Bureau Seeks Data On Labor Force

The Census Bureau are visiting area residents (December 9-14) to collect data on employment and farmworkers, according to Joseph Harris, director of the Census Bureau's Charlotte regional office.

The employment data will contribute to the national labor force picture to be released January 8 by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. The latest workforce data, for October, show an overall unemployment rate of 7.0 and a civilian unemployment rate of 7.1 percent—the same as in September.

The data on farm operators, hired farmworkers, and unpaid farmworkers, which are gathered periodically, will contribute to a comprehensive picture of the agricultural labor force.

One key to successful gardening is knowing the makeup of your soil, says National Wildlife magazine. For starters, National Wildlife recommends the texture test. Take a small amount of soil, wet it and rub it between your fingers. A gritty feeling indicates your soil is rather sandy. A sticky feeling means your soil has a high clay content, while silt laden soil feels smooth like flour. To make your garden grow best, your soil should have an equal makeup of these three sizes of particles.

Ask Major Revisions In State Medicaid

Meeting its deadline, the Special Medicaid Program Review Advisory Committee today approved its final report and forwarded the document to Cabinet for Human Resources Secretary Al Austin.

The committee, created by Gov. Martha Layne Collins Aug. 1, recommended major revisions in the structure of Kentucky's Medical Assistance program as well as expansion of services to additional recipient groups. The 58-page report will be used by the cabinet, the Collins administration and the legislature in preparation for the 1986 General Assembly session.

Committee chairman Brereton Jones of Midway said, "This committee has performed an invaluable service to the Commonwealth. We have come up with fundamental recommendations for major changes in the Medicaid program."

Key segments of the report call for intensified efforts to eliminate fraud and abuse in the Medicaid program, broadening of the cabinet's Ken-PAC program of individual health care case management to include all Medicaid providers in a system based on efficient use of least expensive care and shared financial risk, an increase in fees paid to physicians and dentists, more attention to preventive health care, and expansion of Medicaid eligibility to cover more older children and mothers and young children under the Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) program.

Jones said, "Nowhere do we suggest this report must be accepted as a total package. Time will only tell if we have enough money for the expansions. But the responsibility for funding the Medicaid program lies with the legislature."

Human Resources Secretary Austin praised the 36-member committee for its comprehensive study of the health care issues facing recipients and providers.

"The committee members have met the challenge of an enormous task with a series of long-range findings aimed at improving the quality of life for thousands of Kentuckians," said Austin. "They have given this administration and the 1986 General Assembly an edge on the legwork necessary to develop a Medicaid program for the rest of this decade and beyond."

Austin said the cabinet would immediately begin studying the recommendations and making copies of the report available to other state agencies and to the legislature.

He said, "For the past four months the committee and its staff have been pushing hard to place a well-researched document into our hands and the hands of the legislators. Now we must examine their work and prepare this agency's Medicaid program plan for the upcoming biennium."

TIMED RELEASE

Cold-cough drugs and other medicines taken orally are dissolved in the stomach and intestines. They then are absorbed through the stomach and intestine walls into the bloodstream which carries them to the head, lungs, nose and other target organs. This action generally occurs within an hour or two. A drug's peak activity as defined by its maximal levels in the bloodstream typically occurs about one to two hours after ingestion. However, a drug may continue to be present and active for several more hours after it is taken. Timed release products spread out and delay absorption from the gastrointestinal tract. Their objective is to provide effective drug action for up to 8 to 12 hours.

Walleye Stocking Program

By ART LANDER, JR.

Late autumn is a time when many anglers turn their attention to walleye. There's a bonanza in store for those anglers hardy enough to brave the cold—walleye stacked up on rip-rap, gravel flats or points in 15 to 25 feet of water, willing and eager to attack slab spoons, crankbaits, jigs, or nightcrawler/spinner combinations.

Although Lake Cumberland now produces walleye up to 14 pounds and is considered by many anglers to be the state's best impoundment for those deep water beauties, four other major lakes are now being stocked and have the potential to support good walleye fisheries.

Water quality studies show that most of the lakes in Kentucky don't have enough coldwater habitat to support walleye during the critical summer months. "I have no doubt that walleye could live in almost any lake in Kentucky, but our goal is to establish quality fisheries capable of maintaining high population density levels. We're concentrating our efforts on the lakes which have the best cool water habitat so the fish will have good survival and maximum growth potential," explained Benjamin T. Kinman, manager of the Predator Fish Evaluation Study for the Kentucky Department of Fish & Wildlife Resources.

Kinman said that this past May three major impoundments were stocked with one to two-inch walleye fingerlings. Paintsville Lake received 60,075 fish; Lake Cumberland, 355,570; and Laurel River Lake, 482,685. Carr Fork Lake was stocked with walleye in 1984, and is scheduled to be stocked again in 1986. "The stocking rate was 50 walleye per acre, or approximately 35,000 fingerlings for the entire lake," explained Central Fishery District biologist Kerry W. Prather, who managed Carr Fork at the time of the stockings. "The walleye exhibited exceptional growth during that first year, with some fish reaching 15 inches," Prather said. All three of the impoundments that received walleye in 1985 will be stocked again in 1986.

Because walleye are one of the first fish to spawn again in the spring, just as water temperatures reach 46 degrees F, they often face threatening weather conditions capable of disrupting their reproductive efforts. If water temperatures fall drastically, or a flood hits (as often occurs in spring), the spawn can be completely lost. Also, since few small fish are available in early spring, many walleye fry or fingerlings are eaten as forage by other fish species. This combination of factors makes the survival of young-of-the-year walleye tenuous at best, and is one of the reasons why biologists recommend stockings to supplement natural reproduction.

Lake Cumberland is one of the few lakes in Kentucky where biologists are certain walleye are having good success at spawning. "Spring spawning runs have been observed at Rough River Lake, Nolichucky River Lake and Laurel River Lake, but only a few young-of-the-year fish have been captured as proof of successful reproduction," explained Kinman. At Lake Cumberland it's apparent that not all of the walleye in the impoundment migrate to the South Fork during the spring spawning run. "The same day that we sampled ripe (full of eggs) adults in the river, we found large number of adults in the lower lake near the dam, some 95 miles downstream," Kinman said. The so-called "northern strain" walleye which have been stocked in Lake Cumberland in recent years are capable of spawning in still water, and often utilize rocky points, gravel bars or rip-rap near the dam—areas winter anglers shouldn't overlook.

Bobcats Topple Rebels In Preseason Tourney

Garnering their second Floyd County Conference pre-season championship in as many years, the Betsy Layne Bobcats, coached by Junior Newsome, defeated the Allen Central Rebels, 80-54.

The final game of the tournament took place on Saturday night at the Prestonsburg Fieldhouse and climaxed four days of hardcourt action for both the girls' and boys' squads in the county.

Leading the game from the opening tip-off, the Bobcats were able to run at will against the Rebels. Brett Meade, who led all scorers with 20 points, pumped in 10 of the Bobcats' 19 first-quarter points.

The Bobcats then ran off 17 points in the first six minutes of the second quarter to Allen Central's six. Leading the scoring for Betsy Layne in the final stanza of the first half was Davy Mitchell, who picked up four field goals for eight points. The Bobcats led 42-27 at the half.

The Rebels, who had compiled the best pre-season record of any Floyd county boys' team coming into the tournament, were unable to muster any type of offense in the second half, trailing by as many as 30 points on one occasion.

The Bobcats advanced to the championship game by defeating the Prestonsburg Blackcats on Wednesday, 66-49, and the Wheelwright Trojans in the semifinal round. Allen Central advanced to the finals by defeating the McDowell Daredevils on Thursday.

The Betsy Layne Lady Cats were also crowned champions in the girls' division of the conference pre-season tourney on Saturday, as they defeated the Lady Rebels of Allen Central, 61-47, in the night's first matchup.

After defeating the Wheelwright Lady Trojans on Friday night, 62-23, the Lady Cats, led by Raquel Keathley's 26 points and the squad's excellent free-throw shooting, were able to hold off the late-charging Lady Rebels.

Allen Central stayed close throughout the game but were unable to draw any closer than four points in the final stanza.

Trina Hall led Allen Central with 16 points, 10 of those coming in the second quarter, allowing her squad to stay close at the half, down by only four points, 22-18.

FIGHTING FOR A REBOUND are Brett Meade, No. 40, and Jimmy Stumbo, No. 23, of the Betsy Layne Bobcats, as Mike McKinney, No. 32, of the Allen Central Rebels, prepares to get into the action. Betsy Layne picked up their second consecutive preseason tournament championship on Saturday night, defeating the Rebels 80-54.

Witnesses Hear Talk On Origin of Peace

"Man has the ability to destroy every person several times over via nuclear weapons," delegates from the Allen congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses were told Sunday afternoon. They were among the 1406 persons attending their circuit assembly at Brushfork Armory, Bluefield, West Virginia.

The speaker was James Hinderer, from the world headquarters of Jehovah's Witnesses in Brooklyn, New York, his subject, "Global Peace—From What Source?"

Mr. Hinderer continued, "Men make plans for peace but no peace comes. So do not look to men for peace. Peace will come only through God's Kingdom. Now God is making a personal appeal for people to come to him. His people will live in peace."

Meredith Spurlock, presiding overseer of the local congregation, said that during the two-day conference the program centered around the theme, "Doing Our Part in Glorifying God," and is part of a regular training program for Jehovah's Witnesses.

A baptism ceremony was held Saturday morning and 30 new ministers of Jehovah's Witnesses were baptized, culminating a period of personal Bible study and advanced ministerial training.

Regular meetings will resume at the local Kingdom Hall this week.

The BACKYARD NATURALIST

By Craig Tufts

A Prairie or Meadow Where a Lawn Used To Be

Even the most avid gardeners among us sometimes yearn for a yard that "takes care of itself" and, at the same time, invites wildlife into our lives.

Lawns. Perfect lawns can, of course, be attractive. But a "flawless" lawn has a price. There's all that watering and mowing! And, most distressing, the pest-killing! Sometimes we can go overboard with the use of chemical fertilizers and pesticides (often applied by a lawn-care firm whose products are not always easy to identify), thereby creating a weedless, insectless (lifeless!) green expanse that actually can be a neighborhood menace, especially to wildlife.

Meadows and prairies. There is a way to by-pass the "perfect lawn" hassle—without sacrificing the large, sunny, open spaces that lawns afford. Go natural. Depending on what grows best in your area, plant part of your lawn as a meadow or prairie of native grasses and wildflowers.

Once established, your wild yard will be relatively easy to maintain. It will be a nice visual contrast to trees and shrubs, and it will attract far more birds, butterflies—and bunnies—than ever visited your lawn.

Your neighbors will probably ooh and aah even more than they did over your lawn—especially if you've alerted them early-on to the fascinating new plans for your yard. (Alert them, however, after you've cleared the way for transforming your property with your local authorities, to make sure there is no "weed ordinance" to prohibit you from "going wild.")

How to establish a meadow or prairie. The first couple of years may not be easy, and it takes 2 to 3 years to establish a meadow or prairie. The hardest part is preparing a seed bed by killing off your lawn with an herbicide in the spring. Next comes rototilling and, perhaps, reapplication of herbicide.

Choose one of 2 ways to establish your meadow or prairie:

1. The lengthy (2 to 4-year) process. Treat the area as a large planting bed and introduce (plant-by-plant) all-native perennial wildflowers and grasses, either grown from cuttings, transplanted from nearby locations (with landowner's permission, of course) or propagated from seed.

2. The quicker, easier (but riskier) way. Buy a wildflower or prairie seed mix. It will include both native and non-native plants. The risk: the non-native plants may tend to take over and spread beyond your own property—or they may not prosper at all in your soil. However, careful shopping and close attention to package instructions can prevent such wayward activity.

Maintenance of a prairie or meadow means identifying and eliminating weeds that sprouted from seeds exposed during tilling. However, many weeds—including the noxious ragweed—usually disappear naturally by year two, when barren areas are covered by meadow or prairie growth. With some initial hard work, and mowing once every two years, you'll have an almost self-maintaining yard that you, your neighbors and wildlife will enjoy for many years to come.

For more information about wildlife around your home, contact the National Wildlife Federation, Dept. BN, 1412 16th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036-2266.

Handling Holiday Emotions Topic Of Call-In Program

Joy is not the only emotion brought on by the holiday season. Depression and stress also are felt by many individuals. How can a person cope successfully with these holiday emotions?

"Handling Holiday Emotions" will be the topic of discussion on the Thursday, December 12, edition of KET's live, viewer call-in show, "The People's Business," which airs at 7 p.m.

Guests for this episode of "The People's Business" will include Dr. Daniel Nahum, Assistant Professor of Psychiatry, University of Kentucky. Nahum also is an attending physician on the adult addictive disease unit of Charter Ridge Hospital, Lexington. Also joining the panel will be Patricia Curry Wright, a licensed clinical social worker with the In-Patient Psychiatry Unit, University of Kentucky Chandler Medical Center, Lexington; Dr. David Feinberg, a Lexington psychologist in private practice; and Dr. Emery Emmert, founder and president of Kentucky Christian Counseling, Inc. Emmert provides pastoral counseling, dealing with families and individuals.

Dealing with post-holiday let-down, coping with other people's excitement, and remembering the death of a loved one all can contribute to holiday depression and stress. How to deal constructively with these emotions also will be discussed.

Viewers may pose questions to the panel regarding handling holiday emotions by calling (606) 233-3000. Collect calls will be accepted.

"The People's Business" is a KET production.

Efforts Are Widespread To Curb Drunk Drivers

In fact, in 1984, drinking drivers were responsible for almost half of the traffic fatalities which occurred in Kentucky. That's a sobering fact which drug and alcohol abuse experts say should be on the minds of Kentucky motorists during the holiday season.

"Last year, 315 of the 767 Kentuckians who died on the state's highways were involved in alcohol-related accidents," said Dianne McAvoy, of the Department for Mental Health and Mental Retardation Services Division of Substance Abuse.

During the traditional Christmas-New Year's Day party season of 1984, 13 of Kentucky's 21 traffic fatalities involved an intoxicated motorist.

"With increased public awareness of the dangers of driving while under the influence of alcohol or drugs, the number of alcohol-related deaths on the state's highways are showing a decline," said McAvoy. "Last year, there were 13 percent fewer deaths in accidents where alcohol was involved than in 1983, while the number of injuries was down 10 percent."

McAvoy noted that several positive steps are being taken to help reduce the number of drunk drivers on Kentucky's highways, most notably the "Slammer Bill" which was passed by the 1984 Kentucky General Assembly and took effect in July 1984. Organizations such as Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD) and Students Against Drunk Driving (SADD) have drawn national attention to the problem.

But individuals and community groups are organizing their own efforts too, she added. Public forums are being held that call for an end to such promotions as "happy hours," "two drinks for the price of one" and "all you can drink for one price."

"Programs that advocate serving non-alcoholic beverages or limiting the intake of alcoholic drinks are quickly gaining in popularity," said McAvoy. "Many party-goers now insist on getting a taxi for a friend who has had too much to drink or having a non-drinking friend to drive them home."

Other programs such as the Traffic Alcohol Patrol and toll free telephone numbers to report drunk drivers have sent a message to the public that drunk drivers will not be tolerated or excused as they were in the past, she added. Many employers and businesses are limiting the serving of alcohol at office parties, and bartenders, waiters and waitresses are being urged to refrain from serving patrons who have had too much to drink.

"By supporting programs that keep drunk drivers off the road, pushing for strict enforcement of drunk driving laws, and calling for stiff penalties for persons convicted of DUI, we can send a message across the state—sober driving is in; drunk driving is out," said McAvoy.

To report a suspected drunk driver, call the Kentucky State Police toll-free at 1-800-222-555. For information on how to keep the "life" in your holiday party, call the Drug Information Service of Kentucky at 1-800-432-9337.

December Health Tip

By NAEWANA NICKLES, RN, Health Educator

As the holiday season approaches, we become busier, more active people. Shopping, visiting with friends or relatives, entertaining, or attending parties are a tradition during this time of the year.

Most of us think nothing about this hectic pace we set for ourselves, but for the diabetic person the holiday season can present many serious problems. Eating out at fast food restaurants or at parties is one of those problems diabetics must face.

As a general rule, people who have diabetes can eat where everyone else eats. They merely have to do some intelligent choosing. Here are some guidelines recommended by the American Diabetes Association to make that choosing easier.

—Know your diet. If you use insulin, try to choose foods that are close to your allotted exchanges. "NO" to an extra large burger and "YES" to juice, skim milk or tea.

—Note nutritional value. Many fast foods can provide good nutrition, but they can also be high in carbohydrates (starch) and fat. An order that includes French fries, a shake, and apple pie has about 835 calories and little nutritional value. Choose a salad (with low-calorie dressing), plain baked potato and diet soft drink instead.

—Skip the sweets. Avoid obviously sweet foods such as shakes, pies and desserts.

—Foods to order include: fresh fruit salad (with low-cal dressings); broiled meat, poultry; poached, boiled, or scrambled eggs; baked potato (plain), vegetables, coffee, tea, and diet soft drinks.

—Foods to avoid: Creamed soups or vegetables, fried or breaded meats and poultry, cream sauces, gravies, barbecued meats, fried eggs, French fries, coleslaw, canned fruits, sweet desserts, regular soft drinks, milk shakes, chocolate milk and cheeseburgers.

In addition, remember to take your insulin or pills as ordered. Don't skip meals. Eat a light snack before exercising (for example, shopping trips). Test your urine for sugar and ketones.

For free information concerning diabetes or other health-related matters, call Our Lady of the Way Hospital, Martin, Kentucky at 285-5181.

MAKES COLONEL

Kenneth R. Couch, son of James R. and Eva H. Couch, of Brigham City, Utah, has been promoted in the U.S. Army to the rank of colonel.

Couch is a nursing anesthesia chief at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, with the Brooke Army Medical Center.

His wife, Patricia, is the daughter of Fred Shelton Jr., of Martin, and Josephine Owsley, of Ashland.

The colonel received a master's degree in 1977 from Boston University.

What are common causes of early vision problems? Conditions such as crossed eyes, amblyopia ("Lazy eye"), nearsightedness or farsightedness. Without treatment by age 6, amblyopia can result in permanent reduction of vision—or even blindness—in the affected eye.

Retired Teachers' Leaders

The Floyd County Teachers' Association, which was organized in April, 1971, honored its charter members with a program and dinner at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park, on Retired Teachers' Day, Nov. 13. Two of these charter members, Mrs. Mae K. Roberts, left, and Mrs. Norma S. Stepp, right, have served as presidents of the association. Now serving as president is Mrs. Danese Amburgey, center, who joined the F.C.R.T. shortly after her retirement, a few years ago. These three, the association's only presidents, were present for Retired Teachers' Special Day.

Whitaker Print of David School

The limited edition print, "David School—(David Commissary)" by Tom J. Whitaker was announced last week by the Development Office at the school. Accompanying the print is a brief history of the town and building (author, faculty member Tim Sizemore), and a list of all those who have been associated with the David School as teachers, staff, and board members.

The print is a tribute to the living history of the former company store at David, probably the only one in eastern Kentucky that has been preserved for community use.

It is available in consideration of contributions to the David School established for those young persons who are not in school, but who want to return to their education. This population includes upwards of 40% of all Floyd county adolescents.

Persons who would like to receive a copy of this limited edition (only 400) can contact the school at 886-8374.

By Paul Elie

What was "The Rat Patrol"? A lethal pesticide? A demented Boy Scout troop? If you answered yes to either of the above, think again. "The Rat Patrol" was a drama that featured four World War II commandos and aired on ABC from 1966 to 1968.

Led by Sgt. Sam Troy, the Patrol roved the African desert in a pair of battered jeeps. Although they fought for the Allies, they were an independent unit — their machine-gunning style of battle was too free-wheeling for the regular Army. In addition to fighting Germany's Afrika Corps, they fought the hazards of the desert — heat, thirst and mile after mile of sand.

Surprisingly, their most common enemy, a German commander, often teamed with them to ward off Arab marauders.

Question: Who was this commander?

Answer: Captain Dietrich (Hans Gudegast)

Joanna Kerns always had faith in 'Growing Pains'

By Constance Pace

Perhaps the biggest surprise this season is the success of ABC's "Growing Pains," a family show starring former talk-show host Alan Thicke as psychiatrist Jason Seaver. Before the show premiered, most industry observers labeled it a bomb. But Thicke's co-star Joanna Kerns (who plays Jason's newspaper-reporter wife Maggie) always had faith. And Miss Kerns is something of an expert when it comes to overcoming pre-conceived notions.

"Do you know how I knew it would work?" Miss Kerns asks. "It was from watching Alan with our kids." Both Thicke and Miss Kerns are single parents, and they often take Thicke's sons, Robin and Brennan, and Miss Kern's daughter, Ashley, on recreational outings together.

"His children live with him every other week, so he's not a weekend father," continues Miss Kerns. "He works hard with those kids. And on our show, he works like a dog. Many people just think of him as a snazzy talk show host, but he's also a television writer with great instincts. And of course, he's so cute!"

As a single parent, Miss Kerns sees a great need for a show like "Growing Pains." "We (the Seavers) are a nuclear family. There are so many divorces in this country that people need to watch a whole family that is working things out." Miss Kerns says she doesn't see the connection many critics have seen between her show and the family-oriented "Cosby Show." "Our characters are different. At the end of the day, Maggie just doesn't pat people on the back or dry some tears. She's in there fighting."

Miss Kerns is quite a fighter herself. Until the success of "Growing Pains," she had always stood in the shadow of her sister, Donna de Varona, a gold medal-winning Olympic swimmer who is currently a commentator with ABC sports. "I'm very, very proud of Donna. But the best thing I ever did was to change my name (when she was married 10 years ago). It's very tough to have a sibling in the limelight."

The de Varona sisters grew up in Santa Clara, Calif., and both excelled in athletics. Miss Kerns, a gymnast, tore a knee cartilage shortly before the 1968 Olympic trials. She subsequently became a dancer, then a stage actress. She starred in Alan Alda's brief TV series "The Four Seasons" and wrote an as-of-yet unsold screenplay based on her sister and herself that she calls "Free-style." "In it, the younger sister learns she doesn't need that gold medal after all to feel good about herself."

Friday the 13th...

"D" Day on Highways

Forty states will participate in Operation C.A.R.E.'s second annual "D" Day on Trafficways, an intensified drunk-driving enforcement effort, on Friday, December 13, 1985.

Operation C.A.R.E. stands for Combined Accident Reduction Effort. It is a network of state and highway patrols concerned with highway safety issues such as drunk driving, safety belts and the 55 MPH speed limit.

This year the theme for "D" Day on Trafficways will be "An Unlucky Day for Drunk Drivers," appropriate for the campaign's target date and the 13-hour enforcement period in which it will take place, from 4 p.m. on the 13th through 5 a.m. the next day.

The Kentucky State Police and the Tennessee Highway Patrol co-sponsored the program in 1984, and encouraged 22 other states to participate. The program will usher in President Reagan's "Drunk and Drugged Driving Awareness Week" declared for December 15-21.

Operation C.A.R.E. National Chairman and Kentucky State Police Commissioner Morgan T. Elkins said there are two major goals of the "D" Day Program.

"Our first mission is to inform people that they should not drink and drive on "D" Day or any other day, and in the meantime, educate them about the perils of drinking and driving. Our second mission is to enforce this message on the actual target date of December 13," he said.

"A concentrated effort will be made by those participating state and highway patrols and their respective local police agencies to keep the drunk driver off the road. Increased enforcement and sobriety checkpoints, including joint state-border patrols and checkpoints will be the main thrust of "D" Day," Elkins said.

"Last year, the 22 participating states combined to make a total of 2,100 drunk-driving arrests by a working force of 2,460 law enforcement personnel. The average blood alcohol concentration was .13, well above the legal limit in most states. There were 21 fatalities," Elkins said.

PHS Wins a Round In Academic Meet

Prestonsburg High School emerged as winner after a rigorous day of competition, Saturday, sponsored by the Eastern Kentucky Academic Conference. Ten area schools participated in the academic contest, which was held in Pikeville.

In math, points were earned by PHS students Tony Skeans, Melissa Horn and Cliff Miller. Science points were contributed by Mike Rosenberg, David Spiggle and Tommy Horn. David Edwards, Scott Wells, and Mike Parker scored points in social studies. The humanities team members were Geoffrey Belcher, Heather Sturgill, and Gretchen Nunn. A total of 15½ points were tallied for Prestonsburg's written examination participants.

Prestonsburg took first place team honors in "quick recall" by winning 15 points for three matches. Outstanding oral responses were given by Geoffrey Belcher, Tony Skeans, Scott Wells, David Spiggle and Mike Rosenberg.

The conference will meet in Pikeville for a further round of competition this Saturday.

VIDEO SCENE

Straight from the heart

By Barton Weiss

Bruce Springsteen's latest, "My Home Town," is shot completely live, but without audience shots. There is no posing and positioning, Springsteen looks comfortable — and sings his heart out.

Bruce Springsteen

This clip looks a lot more like old-fashioned televised music than a modern music video, but it's as effective as anything currently on the screen.

Scratch her up

Elton John rides one of clipdom's new trends — scratch video (recycling old film clips) — with "Wrap Her Up," in which Elton John mixes himself into all kinds of old clips. When he finally arrives in modern times, he is joined on stage by George Michael of WHAM! Elton John even struts around like WHAM! Overall, a very nice job.

Try again

Speaking of those WHAM! boys, they have a new clip as well. It's a simple black-and-white stage version of their new single called "Baby I'm Your Man." This is the first new music from this band for a

SANTA CLAUS, THE MOVIE (PG-Tri-Star Pictures) Starring Dudley Moore, John Lithgow, David Huddleston. ★ ★ 1/2 ★

By J.T. YURKO

Santa Claus is coming to town, this time in cinematic form in a $50 million epic titled "Santa Claus: The Movie."

The film covers the whole story: how Santa got his start, how he met the elves, where his workshop is at the North Pole and so on. Example: It's the middle of the 17th century. Mrs. Claus has a great idea — why not give toys only to good little boys and girls? Santa thinks the idea is just peachy. He turns to his chief elf and says, "Make a list of who's naughty and who's nice ... and remember I'm going to check it twice." An often tongue-in-cheek sense of humor shows up frequently in "Santa Claus: The Movie."

But this is really two movies. The second part of the film deals with Dudley Moore, who plays an enterprising young elf who applies some assembly-line tactics to Santa's workshop. The result is defective toys. The disgruntled elf then heads for New York, where he falls under the wing of an unscrupulous toy manufacturer, played with aggressive villainy by John Lithgow.

Is the $50 million that was spent making the movie evident on the screen? For a set of kids raised on the special effects of "Star Wars," the answer is a resounding no. But the sets are lavish and colorful, Santa's workshop is everything a child ever dreamed it would be, and with one of their husbands. Loni Anderson, Stephanie Zimbalist, Michele Lee. 1985.

Bruce Weitz has a natural rapport with most kids

By Lynn Hoogenboom

Bruce Weitz is neither a reformed substance abuser nor a squeaky-clean All-American type. So why did the "Hill Street Blues" star choose to devote his time to the National PTA's Drug and Alcohol Abuse Prevention Project?

Bruce Weitz

"I've always had a good rapport with kids," says Weitz. "I wish more people felt that way."

One aspect of his work with the National PTA was the "Write Bruce" project in Chicago. (It is now being repeated in Los Angeles). "Kids wrote to me and told me what problems they had with alcohol and drugs, what influence peer pressure had over them," Weitz explains. "The results were used to put together a fascinating brochure." (That brochure can be obtained by writing to the National PTA at 700 N. Rush St., Chicago, IL 60611).

Did the Chicago responses produce any surprises? "I was very surprised to see 7- and 8-year-olds hitting the bottle rather heavily," says Weitz. "What's shocking to me is not what the kids do, but the tremendous amount of denial that goes on — among parents, among schools, among principals."

"One mother told me how pleased she was that her 11-year-old son didn't use drugs. He just got drunk. I said, 'Lady, if your son drinks, he does drugs. Alcohol is a drug.'"

Weitz hotly denies that there is any more substance abuse in Hollywood than there is anywhere else.

"I guarantee you that if you took a survey, you'd find more substance abuse among doctors than you would among actors," says Weitz. "And people don't depend on actors for their lives."

Professionally, Weitz shows some signs of restlessness, though he remains proud of his work as Belker on "Hill Street Blues." "After six years, it's difficult to keep the character fresh," he says. "We've come about as far as we can go."

None of his four brothers are involved with show business ("I'm the only fool in the lot"), but many younger family members have shown an interest in following in their illustrious relative's footsteps. "I have a cousin, Eric Weitz, who's in the Guthrie Theater. He's very talented."

Weitz laughs. "And I don't think his mother has ever forgiven me."

The BOX SEAT

Some weighty changes

By Marty Linehan

All America is talking about the Chicago Bears' "Refrigerator," William Perry, but David Letterman discovered a "Refrigerator" before the Chicago Bears did. He was Terry Forster, a left-handed reliever for the Atlanta Braves. To say Letterman made sport of Forster's weight problem on his late-night TV show would be to put it charitably.

Letterman gave Forster and his midsection (Forster tops the scales at 270 pounds) national attention.

After Letterman referred to him as a "fat tub of goo," Forster appeared on the show and, going along with the gag, discussed his favorite foods. Forster even made a music video for a number entitled "Fat is In."

But that was last summer. This winter fat is out and the fun is over. Forster has decided to get rid of at least part of his midsection. He's going to spend two weeks on a weight-reducing program at the La Costa Lifestyle and Longevity Center in Carlsbad, Calif. Did somebody call it a "fat farm"?

"I'm tired of everyone throwing my weight in my face and telling me how bad it is," says Forster. "I'm going to take the weight off, keep it off, and just pitch. I'm doing it for health reasons. I had to make some changes. Nobody will say anything about it again, and that's the way I want it."

Goodbye, Mr. Letterman.

Of course, if Forster is really serious about losing all that weight and keeping it lost, he could get a job as a basketball referee. That's what the Mid-American Conference's Steve Welmer did.

Welmer, at 6 feet 11 inches, is the tallest referee in the conference — and probably the country. And at 250 pounds, he's also the biggest. But what basketball fans are seeing now is the trimmed-down version.

Welmer was called "The Whale" when he played center on Evansville's basketball team. When Evansville won the N.C.A.A. Division II title in 1971, he weighed 270. But once his playing days were over, his weight ballooned to 300 pounds, and he had a real problem on his hands.

Then he started refereeing high-school games, went on to the M.A.C., and this year he'll do some Big 10 games. Refereeing turned out to be just what the doctor ordered. All that running up and down the court has reduced him to a much trimmer 250 pounds.

But Big 10 fans will still know when he is handling a game. He's not a showboat, but his formidable presence, along with his emphatic calls, have made the 35-year-old more of a moose than a whale.

Forum To Discuss Selection of Supt.

By JEAN ROSENBERG, Coordinator, Floyd County Education Forum, Inc.

The Floyd County Education Forum board of directors will meet tomorrow (Thursday) night, December 12 at 7 p.m. in the library of Betsy Layne High School. The Forum's guest will be Dr. Charles Faber. Dr. Faber has been employed by the Floyd Co. Board of Education as a consultant for the selection of a new superintendent. The public is cordially invited to attend.

The agenda will include a discussion of criteria which the community would like to see used when candidates for the position of superintendent are screened.

The Forum is hopeful that Dr. Faber will be receptive to this type of input, even though the Board of Education at its last meeting voted to exclude citizen participation from the superintendent selection process. Forum members have expressed disappointment at this action, which they say is contrary to the strong verbal support the board gave the Forum's proposal for a community-based committee to assist in the search and screening process.

The Forum's proposal was developed at a county-wide meeting in August when the job of selecting a new superintendent fell to the Board after the resignation of former supt., E.P. Grigsby, Jr.

Part of Thursday's Forum board meeting will include a discussion of steps the group might take to encourage the Board of Education to reconsider its recent decision.

The following people were placed on the Forum board at its November annual meeting: Rebecca Abner, Everett Akers, Rita Allen, Judy Burchell, Charles Collins, Marie Conn, Clare Day, Beverly Goble, Freddie Goble, Patty Hunter, Timothy Jessen, Barbara Gullett, Lloyd Hamilton, Elmer Miller, Ruby Miller, Janet Pillersdorf, Rebial Reynolds, Jean Rosenberg, Harry Short, John Sparr, Carol Stumbo.

The Forum would welcome any comments the community would care to make concerning any aspect of the involvement of the community in the superintendent selection process. The Forum's mailing address is Floyd County Education Forum, Inc., P.O. Box 420, Allen, Ky. 41601.

Movie Nostalgia

By Denise Flaim

Cheeseburgers and fries at the drive-in, jukeboxes glutted with nickels, frenzied necking at the senior prom ...

George Lucas, in a pre-"Star Wars" effluvia of nostalgia, donned penny loafers and walked down memory lane in 1973 when he wrote and directed "American Graffiti." The film was set in 1962 — part of that idyllic era in which presidential assassinations, racial riots and undeclared wars were still just a twinkle in some bureaucrat's eye.

And the 1973 American public, weary of the American Dream gone haywire, was ready to be reminded of the innocence of that bygone era, through a reincarnation of the songs, optimism and pubescent naivete of its adolescents. The film grossed a record $50 million in its first year — which wasn't bad for a movie that had only cost $800,000 to produce.

Ron Howard and Cindy Williams, the reigning teenage couple of "American Graffiti," later doo-wopped onto the small screen with the enormously popular and long-running series: "Happy Days" (based loosely on "American Graffiti") and its spinoff, "Laverne and Shirley."

Question: What sitcom queen had a bit part in "American Graffiti"? (Hint: She spent most of her time navigating an elusive T-Bird.)

ANSWER: Suzanne Somers.

Pitts Honored for Service at Clark

On November 26, the Clark Elementary School PTA and faculty honored John Pitts, its former principal for twenty-one years, with several presentations and a reception.

Pitts became principal of Clark Elementary when it opened in 1964. He served in that capacity continuously until this year, when he assumed the duties of instructional supervisor at the Board of Education's central office.

The PTA presented Pitts with a wall plaque which lauds him for his "outstanding contribution to the children of Floyd County, Kentucky as principal of Clark Elementary School, 1964-1985." The PTA also presented him with two books about the history of Eastern Kentucky—a special interest of Pitts—an author-inscribed copy of John David Preston's "The Civil War in The Big Sandy Valley of Kentucky," and a copy of the recently published "Growing Up Hard in Harlan County" by G.C. Jones.

In making the presentation on behalf of the PTA, John Rosenberg noted Pitts' singular concern for providing the best possible education to children here in the mountains; his tireless dedication, and his willingness to help parents, teachers, and children in so many school projects, regardless of the time involved.

Judy Marshall, on behalf of the Clark faculty, then announced that the faculty was separately presenting Mr. Pitts with an original painting of Clark School by local artist Mack Martin.

Pitts was accompanied by his wife, Frances, and daughter, Jane, who is now a second grade teacher at Clark. The Pitts' son, David, is a graduate student in business at the University of Kentucky.

HOME FROM HOSPITAL

Mrs. Kay Akers, who spent several days as a patient at the Highlands Regional Medical Center, due to a fall, is now recovering at her home. She would like to thank her many friends and relatives who visited her and those who sent cards or remembered her in any way during this time.

HERE FROM BEREA

Dr. and Mrs. Paul C. Hager, their son Eddie and daughter Julie, of Berea were here during the holidays for a visit with relatives and friends. On Thanksgiving Day they were dinner guests of Dr. Hager's mother, Mrs. Priscilla Hager, and on the following day, they had dinner with her mother, Mrs. Opal S. May.

CARD OF THANKS
The family of Lucretia Osborne Wicker wishes to thank all those friends, neighbors and family who helped them in any way upon the passing of their loved one. Thanks for the food, flowers, prayers and words of comfort expressed. A special thanks to the Regular Baptist ministers for their comforting words and the Hall Funeral Home for their kind and efficient service. It.

Child Abuse An Endless Cycle

By ALICE ADAMS

Child abuse cases reported to authorities doubled between 1976 and 1981, according to the American Humane Association. That means 413,000 cases were reported nationwide in 1976; 851,000 in 1981. Much of the increase stems from growing willingness to report family violence, as the nation's attention focuses on this problem.

Physical abuse means more than a spanking that gets out of hand. Mary, a middle-class suburban dweller, was reported in Time magazine as saying:

"What I remember most about my mother was that she was always beating me. She'd beat me with her high-heeled shoes, with my father's belt, with a potato masher. When I was eight, she black-and-blued my legs so badly, I told her I'd go tell the police. She said, 'Go, they'll just put you into the darkest prison.' So I stayed. When my breasts started growing at 13, she beat me across the chest until I fainted. Then she'd hug me and ask forgiveness. When I turned 16, a day didn't pass without my mother calling me a whore, and saying that I'd end up in Potter's Field, dead, forgotten, and damned for all eternity. Most kids have nightmares about being taken away from their parents. I would sit on our front stoop, crooning softly of going far, far away to find another mother." (5 Sept. '83)

Some children are abused sexually, and numbers of incest and child-molestation cases are growing. In The Silent Scream, autobiography of Linda Halliday, she writes: "All the time my father would be having sex he would be telling me I really liked it or telling me what a great body I had." She relates how her father had intercourse with her and three sisters from when she was seven until she was sixteen. "I would fight the waves of vomit that washed over my body but never made it past my throat. In my mind I would scream all my hate of what he was doing to me but again it never passed my lips. I would lay there wishing I could die."

What causes a parent to do such things? According to Parents Anonymous, a self-help group with branches in Kentucky, any case of abuse has three underlying causes: a reminder of something from the abuser's own childhood, such as unresolved anger at his own parents; a need in the present that is not being met, such as the need to be understood; and a stressful event that triggers the situation, for example, being laid off from work.

Child abuse, both physical and sexual, has effects on the child in later life, and may cause him to become an abuser also. The basic emotional problem is depression and lack of self-esteem, caused by growing up to believe himself worthless. Another effect is rage at authority figures and being unable to handle control by another. People with this problem can get into trouble at work or with the law. The abused child is also frequently immature and impulsive in his behavior. Thus he is likely to abuse his own children when under stress, even though he always swore he would never repeat what was done to him.

Child abuse creates a cycle of abusers and victims who become abusers—endless until someone breaks the cycle by going for help. Help is at hand. Prestonsburg Community College is sponsoring a Parents Anonymous group to provide help and support for the potential abuser. For further information, call Hugh or Alice Adams, 874-9874.

McDowell FHA In Thanksgiving Project

By PATTY HERRINGTON

The F.H.A. (Future Homemakers of America) is a new club at McDowell High School sponsored by Mrs. Janet Bowling, the new home economics teacher.

There are 23 active members in the club. The members need one year of home economics or to be recently enrolled in a home economics class to be an honorary member. The members are required to have at least one year of home economics to be eligible as an officer in the club.

The club officers and members have raised $126.50 for our Thanksgiving project. The money has been used for fruit baskets for the senior citizens of our community.

The F.H.A. will be doing many other projects to raise money for Christmas. We are also taking up donations in the home economics room for unwanted toys. The members of the club will clean and make any needed repairs on these toys which then will be issued to the underprivileged children in our community. The F.H.A. will deliver the toys to the fire department and they will distribute the toys to the children.

Boone-Associated Attractions, Topic Of the Geographic

The best-known of Kentucky's early settlers, the famed Daniel Boone, is the subject of a 30-page article in the December 1985 issue of National Geographic.

The article traces his explorations throughout the area in the late 1700s, and seeks to refute some of the more common myths about the near-legendary figure. The article, written by assistant editor Elizabeth A. Moize, includes descriptions of popular Kentucky tourism attractions associated with Boone, such as Fort Boonesborough State Park.
