

Kuss Loses Spot In Mayor's Race

Absentee Ballot Challenge Loses In Court Hearing

A candidate for mayor of Prestonsburg lost a bid to block certification of his opponent's vote tally last week and, in the view of one member of the Floyd County Board of Elections, Floyd countians lost an opportunity to clean up the election process.

At issue in a Circuit Court hearing Friday afternoon was a motion filed by Ed Kuss, Prestonsburg hairdresser and pawnbroker, which sought to enjoin the board of elections from certifying the tally of Harry W. Short, listed as the second-highest vote-getter in the ballot for mayor.

Short and Kuss, who ran third, both ended the race well behind Ann Latta. While the voting machine total put Kuss two votes ahead of Short for the No. 2 spot, their positions were reversed after absentee ballots were counted, Short ending up with a 27-vote lead and the right to square off against Latta in the general election in November.

Kuss contended that the absentee votes should not be counted because some appeared to have been turned in after the 3 p.m. deadline on election day and because the box in which the absentee ballots were kept was not secured by three locks as the law requires.

County Clerk Carla Boyd conceded that the ballot box has only one lock. She replaced the box in use when she took office in 1983, she said, because it was in such disrepair "if you looked at it, it would collapse." The firm which supplied the new box said it was suitable for election purposes, the clerk said.

All absentee ballots counted in the election were received prior to the deadline, Mrs. Boyd said, although some of them were still being processed—recorded in a log and affixed with the voter's registration card—when election commissioners began verifying and counting the votes. The delay in processing resulted in some ballots being delivered to the election board after 3 p.m., she said.

Severe Storms Cause Damage Over Wide Area

In a week marked by almost daily rainfall, two storms of major proportions developed—one, in the Prestonsburg area last Wednesday, and the other around 3 a.m. Monday, which brought widespread power outages from Crider's Branch in the lower end of the county to both Right and Left Beaver Creeks and Johns Creek.

One of the heaviest downpours in years, accompanied by gusting winds, occurred here late Wednesday afternoon. The First Commonwealth Bank had about an inch of water in its main bank, while Prestonsburg Furniture, across the street at the main intersection of town, suffered more severe damage, accumulating an estimated eight inches of water, when storm drains proved unable to carry the heavy volume of water away fast enough.

Other businesses sustaining some flooding included Don Moore's Furniture and the Factory Outlet Shoe Store.

The main thoroughfare through town was closed for approximately an hour before the water drained away sufficiently to allow traffic to resume.

At the same time, Wednesday, a power outage at Blue River was caused by a storm which residents describe as a twister. A path, plainly marked by large uprooted trees, lends credence to their belief.

More major damage was sustained early Monday from a storm which Kentucky Power Company representative, Charles Thompson, said seemed to travel in a straight line from near Hazard through Right and Left Beavers, Johns Creek, missing Mud Creek and Pikeville, on toward Zebulon and Williamson.

Trees blown across power lines caused outages in the Lackey, Garrett, Wayland, Kite and Maytown areas of Right Beaver Creek and at Weeksbury and McDowell on Left Beaver. Thompson said calls began coming in at the Pikeville offices about 5:30 a.m. and that most places saw power restored in from two to five hours.

Danny Hamilton, troubleshooter for the power company here, said every available man had been out working.

The daily rains continued through Tuesday, with the possibility of more through the remainder of the week.

Justell Man, 80, Held in Murder, May Be Released

An 80-year-old Justell man is expected to be released from jail on bond this (Wednesday) afternoon, after funeral services have been concluded for the man he is accused of killing.

State police charged William E. Hatcher with murder following the shooting death last Saturday of Toma (Tommy) Dean Spradlin, 36, also of Justell.

According to Coroner Roger Nelson, witnesses said Hatcher was inside his small camper home on Justell Hollow when Spradlin began harassing him, around 8:30 p.m. Saturday. The younger man was reported to have been "hollering and cussing" and to have taunted Hatcher—who had armed himself with a .38-caliber pistol—that he "didn't have the nerve to pull the trigger."

The old man reportedly fired a shot through a window screen, the bullet passing through Spradlin's neck, severing the jugular vein. The victim ran away, bleeding profusely, before dropping dead on a roadway about 400 feet from where he was shot.

There were reports also that Spradlin was drinking on the night of the shooting and had beaten Hatcher in the past, the

Fire Protection Subscribers Few; Span Work Seen

It has been a year since Prestonsburg offered fire protection to rural subscribers within a five-mile radius of the city and, so far, the rate of renewal among the 400-or-so subscribers has been sluggish.

But that may change, City Manager David Evans predicted this week, if an upcoming review by the ISO—an organization used by insurance companies to assess and rate fire protection services in different communities—results in a better rating and reduced premiums for subscribers.

Already, some insurance firms offer insurance at reduced premiums for subscribers—who pay $24 a year for fire protection—but, in the absence of an official rating by the ISO, many underwriters do not recognize the new fire protection program.

Rural communities without recognized fire protection services have the lowest ISO rating—a Class 10. Because of its relatively sophisticated fire department, Prestonsburg enjoys a Class 4 rating.

If necessary, Prestonsburg will borrow the $75,000 it still needs to do its part in financing the proposed new Goble-Roberts bridge, the city council decided Monday. The city is required to put up a total of $240,000—20 percent of the $1.2 million the bridge is expected to cost—with the bulk of the project to be financed by the federal government. State and Area Development District funds are also being sought to help pay for the bridge, construction of which is expected to begin later this year.

The Floyd County Board of Elections will be asked to provide another voting machine at the Porter precinct, according to a council resolution. Dorothy Osborne complained that residents in that precinct had to wait as long as two hours to vote during the recent primary.

First reading was given to a proposed city budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1. The $1.4 million budget anticipates receipts of $112,837 in federal revenue-sharing money, $32,000 in municipal road aid, $28,000 in coal severance taxes, and $12,163 in taxes on alcohol sales. The bulk of the city's income is expected to come from property taxes ($162,000), license and permit fees ($688,500), service charges ($255,000) and franchise fees ($14,000).

At Blockhouse Bottom...

Move for Reconstruction Of Harman Station Begun

An airstrip is its distinguishing feature, and the spot is known to aviation enthusiasts and many others as Combs Airport, but to history buffs and those who look back to the early days of the white man in this region it remains Blockhouse Bottom.

And now, when the days of the airport appear to be numbered as a larger and more modern air facility is nearing completion a few miles away, there are those who want to make certain that its identity as Blockhouse Bottom, or Harman's Station, will be perpetuated.

The southern (upper) end of the airstrip covers what was the old blockhouse that was Harman's Station soon after the American Revolution ended, and there are those who hope the state of Kentucky, or its Department of Parks, will build, or help build, a replica of the old blockhouse when planes no longer take off and land there.

An Ohioan, J.W. Bryant, who married a Johnson county woman, has communicated with Gov. Martha Layne Collins, asking that Harman's Station be designated a landmark property to develop a tourist attraction for the area. Responding to Mr. Bryant's request, David L. Morgan, director of the Kentucky Heritage Council, and state Historic Preservation officer, wrote: "The Kentucky Heritage Council strongly agrees with you that Harman's Station is historically one of the most important sites in Kentucky."

He pointed out, however, that exact location of the old fort would be required for it to be listed either as a Kentucky landmark or on the National Register of Historic Places, and that that would necessitate archeological exploration of the site. These requirements, he added,

Past, Present Defenders At Odds in Murder Case

A former public defender stepped over ethical boundaries when he agreed to help the Commonwealth prosecute a murder, the current public defender charged in Circuit Court here Thursday.

Public Defender Gary Johnson said that his predecessor, Ned Pillersdorf, undertook—while he was still being paid by the state to represent criminal defendants unable to afford private attorneys—to help secure an indictment against Gary Hall, who is accused of stabbing a man on Arkansas Creek last July.

The indictment, handed down May 8 by a Floyd Circuit Court grand jury, accuses Hall of stabbing Dennis Wayne Conn, who was married to Hall's sister's daughter. Conn died of his injuries two months later.

After the grand jury declined to issue an indictment on the basis of evidence presented by state police last year, the victim's parents hired Pillersdorf, who was soon to quit the public defender's office to run for district court judge here. Pillersdorf is named as the only witness on the true bill returned against Hall in May.

In moving to have the indictment quashed, Johnson said Pillersdorf's role in securing it represented a conflict of interest. The former public defender hoped to use the prosecution of Hall as a means of currying favor among voters on Arkansas Creek, Johnson also charged.

Pillersdorf conceded that he was still public defender when he agreed to assist in prosecuting Hall but said that Hall was not then a client of the public defender's office. His contract with the state Office of Public Advocacy allowed him to represent the Conn family in a private capacity, he said.

Although Pillersdorf agreed to withdraw from the case "to avoid the appearance of impropriety," Johnson continued to press for dismissal of the charge against Hall, claiming that Pillersdorf's role had already compromised the Commonwealth's case. "He did it for money," the defense attorney charged, "at a time when he was retained (by the state) to represent people who wound up getting indicted on account of his actions."

But Pillersdorf replied, "I took (the case) because I think he's guilty and he killed somebody."

After having a court reporter summoned, Johnson insisted that he and Pillersdorf be put under oath in order to testify about a conversation in which they had described Pillersdorf's chances in the November election. Johnson quoted Pillersdorf as saying, "At least I'll carry Arkansas Creek, because I got that indictment," and added, "I specifically remember it because it shocked me down to my bootstraps."

Pillersdorf said his remarks were "being taken completely out of context." While he may have joked with Johnson about the political implications of the case, Pillersdorf said he did "not think the Conns are from Arkansas Creek," adding, "I don't know where they live."

Pressed by Johnson, Pillersdorf said he did not remember what he had said during the conversation. But "if a comment was made about carrying Arkansas Creek, it was made in jest," he said.

Circuit Judge Hollie Conley, noting that Pillersdorf had agreed to withdraw from the case, denied Johnson's request to dismiss it. Trial was set for January 13.

AH, JUNE!

June has a lot going for it. The month of brides... such approval from the poet that he trilled, "What is so rare as a day in June?... no Monday holidays. But I find a fly or so in the sun tan oil. June 21 will mark the end of spring and the onset of summer, and the 90-degree temperatures already recorded make summer a bit foreboding. Fly No. 2: June 17 is the deadline for filing your estimated income tax return.

If you would beat the heat, get out of bed, sleepy head, and outside before the sun rises. Its cool freshness, the feel of a new beginning and the cheer of bird-song make of early morning the best part of the day.

JUST YOU WAIT!

If we live long enough, we all get our come-uppance.

Things have come to such a pass that now I rue those sniggers of years ago when an elderly aunt stalked the house looking for the spectacles that were firmly in place across her nose. We should have been more tactful in helping her find them, but it was so very funny then.

Now, I am prone to misplace the "specs," among other items. I do not propose to list here my several aberrations.

Academic All-American

The National Secondary Education Council has announced that Rhonda Zemo has been named an Academic All-American.

The NSEC has established the Academic All-American Scholar Award Program in order to offer deserved recognition to superior students who excel in the academic disciplines. The Academic All-American Scholars must earn a 3.3 or better grade point average. Only scholars selected by a secondary school instructor, counselor, or other qualified sponsor are accepted. These scholars are also eligible for other awards given by the NSEC. These are awards few students can ever hope to attain.

because of their long hunting trips into the wilderness, these men included Matthias Harman, the Skaggses and other hunters and Indian fighters. Historians record that Daniel Boone visited this lodge in 1761, six years before he saw the Blue Grass section of the state.

Then the blockhouse was built in 1787-'88, about a half-mile downstream from the mouth of Johns Creek in Floyd county and approximately 100 yards back from the river. It was 20 feet square, of two stories, and the roof angled up from all four of its sides to reach a sharp point at the top. The surrounding forest was cleared back on all sides and burned off the distance of a rifle shot to deny all cover to attacking Indians.

Through the stockade which surrounded the blockhouse ran a stream from the adjacent hillside, making it unnecessary for defenders to leave the fort for water while under siege. This stream still runs from the mountainside to the river and its location pretty definitely fixes the location of the old fort.

It was to Harman's Station and its blockhouse that Jenny Wiley, the pioneer heroine, fled when she escaped her Indian captors. (She lived 43 years after her escape, and, although her story has been romanticized to some degree, her own recollections became family knowledge and was made available to future historians.) Indians attacked her cabin-home in Ohio while her husband, Thomas, was away. Three of her older children and her brother were slain. Jenny and her baby were taken captive. The savages later killed the baby.

Followed 11 months of wanderings at the will of her captors. Their wilderness route rambled from West Virginia, across the Tug Fork of the Big Sandy to the Little Sandy, then swung south to the Cherokee Fork of Big Blaine Creek in Lawrence county. There a baby was born prematurely to Mrs. Wiley in a rockhouse shelter. Later, the Indians gave the baby a traditional tribal test. They strapped the child to a slab of wood and placed it adrift on a nearby stream. The baby cried, and was killed.

The route continued up Hoods Fork of Blaine to Laurel Creek and from there on to the present Flat Gap in Johnson county, then to Mud Lick and down that stream to its mouth where was an old Indian settlement.

The party reached that point in April, 1788, and it was in November of that year that Jenny Wiley had a "vision" on a wild night of wind and rain—a vision that was repeated that night. She saw a way to safety.

During the night rain blew inside the cave where she lay, and the leather thongs with which she was bound were soaked. The leather stretched and the captive contrived to free herself. In storm and darkness she began her storied flight.

Jenny Wiley always insisted she had no knowledge of the existence of a blockhouse. She had been in captivity 11 months, and all contact with the crude civilization that she had known had been lost. Yet in the darkness she waded swollen mountain streams and followed an uncharted path to reach the river's edge at what is now East Point—and there, on the other side of the stream was the refuge she had "seen" in her vision.

(Much of the historical material in the foregoing was supplied by Mrs. Douglas Galbraith, who resides in a part of Blockhouse Bottom.)

The council voted to advertise for an additional fulltime firefighter, bringing the department up to 12 members. The additional officer is needed to cover summer vacations and sick days, it was said. Moreover, two members of the department are largely occupied with non-firefighting duties—Paul Chaffins as building inspector and Larry Adams as fire inspector—it was explained.

The city recreation commission will advertise for a new park manager. David Hereford, who was appointed to that position in March, resigned at the end of May. A vacancy on the commission itself was filled Monday, Randy Polk being named to replace James Arthur Hughes, who resigned.

Hired as summer workers were Mark Lyons, Don Osborne, Timmy Marsillett, Sam Stephens, David Clifton and William Chaffins. The youths, all aged from 15 to 17 and chosen from about 60 applicants, will cut grass, pull weeds and paint kerbs.

A bank loan will be taken out to finance the purchase of a new garbage truck, the contract for which was awarded at the last council meeting. Cost of the truck is $66,051, of which $50,000 will be financed. At the same time, the city is selling an old garbage truck to the city of Leitchfield for $13,500.

A $5665 bid for recreation equipment was awarded to the Clayton Company, of Louisville. The contract calls for the installation of playground equipment in a recreation area in the Goble-Roberts Addition.

The franchise was renewed under which Kentucky Power Co. provides electricity here. Under terms of Kentucky Power's bid, the only bid tendered, the utility will pay Prestonsburg a franchise fee equivalent to 25 percent of what the city paid last year for street lighting.

tions or misadventures, since doing so might confirm the idea some low fellows already have—namely, that I may have dropped a marble or so—but I do confess to a few minor lapses along the way.

I believe I have pointed out earlier to the tendency to forget both plot and personae of certain "pot-boilers" with which I entertain myself. This has turned out to be a money-saver; for, instead of investing in another paperback, I can lay the one just read aside for a few months—and then, lo! it is, as they say, as good as new. Get several on the shelf, and you've got the makings of a circulating home library—if you don't forget where you put them.

Then there are these TV plays. If the commercial breaks get any longer before the story line is renewed, I fear I'll need a review of what happened before the interruption—something like the synopses they used to print with those "continued stories" in newspapers and magazines to refresh the reader's memory of what had gone before.

Who's laughing now? Nobody but some young whippersnapper who'll get his come-uppance later.

The woman cooed and a-hed and cuddled the puppy which she held till the little girl standing by cautioned her: "Don't let him off your lap. He isn't housebroke yet."

Deputies Harvest Parkway Pot Crop

Sheriff's deputies confiscated 48 marijuana plants in a raid on a Middle Creek property Monday morning and predicted they would soon make an arrest in the case.

Acting on a tip, Deputies Paul Auxier and John Blackburn found the pot growing "in a weed field up a hollow" off the Mountain Parkway. No one was there at the time but the owner of the tract and another man are under suspicion, it was said.

The confiscated plants were later destroyed, except for a sample being held as evidence in the case.

Rock Music Goes to Court...

Tape Recording Played at Trial Of Auxier Nightclub Operator

Floyd district courtroom reverberated to the sound of rock music yesterday (Tuesday), as several Auxier residents sought to demonstrate what it is like living with a nightclub as a neighbor.

Over the objection of defense counsel, District Judge Harold Stumbo permitted Freddie L. Goble, a plaintiff in the case, to play a tape recording he had made in his neighbor's living room one Friday night last February. The sound of the live band, as Goble described it, was of "thumping and noise loud enough to drive a fellow crazy."

On trial on charges of disorderly conduct were Rita Wells, licensee of The Warehouse, and Forest Music, a Warehouse employee. Goble, Woody Wells, Russell Slone and James Mollett had complained that, on February 20, 22, and 23, the defendants had permitted "unreasonable noise" to emanate from the nightclub.

Now that the county is "wet," County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. told the district court jury, the case forced them to decide where the rights to entertainment end and the rights of neighbors begin. "What price are you going to put on the right of these people to live peacefully in their homes?" he asked.

The jury was back with its answer in minutes, acquitting Music but finding Mrs. Wells guilty and recommending that she be fined $200. Defense attorney Hugh Richards said the verdict would be appealed.

Deputy Sheriff Paul Auxier, the only witness called by the defense, testified that he had twice been to The Warehouse and heard no excessive noise there. State ABC Agent Darrell Embry at first said only that music at the nightclub was "a little loud at times" but later acknowledged he had once told complaining neighbors, "There's no sense in this. I'm going over there and tell them to turn it down."

Goble, who lives about 75 feet from the nightclub in Crawdad Bottom, said the noise was forcing him to try to sell the house he has lived in for 20 years. "We can hear every word of every song. We hear people screaming," and the "thumping" of bass drum and bass guitar are especially invasive, he said.

Cross-examined by the defense attorney, Goble conceded that the nightclub proprietor had taken steps to insulate one wall of the building and that neither state police nor the sheriff's department had apparently charged anyone at The Warehouse for making excessive noise.

The state Alcoholic Beverage Control Board suspended Mrs. Wells' license for 20 days in January after finding that she had allowed loud music to disturb residents between January and November last year. Prosecutors in the present case were not permitted to make any reference in court to the earlier conviction, which is still under appeal.

Attorneys Barkley Sturgill and David Barber, representing the defendants, contended that Kuss had not demonstrated any irregularities in the vote count. But Francis D. Burke, Pikeville attorney representing the plaintiff, said his client was not required to show there were actual irregularities, only that there was substantial non-compliance with state election laws.

"The integrity of the absentee ballots was so compromised," Burke said, "there should be absolutely no confidence in what they show."

Circuit Judge Hollie Conley denied Kuss' motion, however, explaining, "All in all, I don't think there was much showing" that the integrity of the ballots had been compromised.

Among those named as defendants in the action, besides Boyd, were Sheriff Henry C. Hale, Wilma Haley, Kay Hale, Morris Isaac and Gorman Collins. Haley, a deputy county clerk, served on the elections board as an alternate for Boyd, who was ineligible to serve because she was herself a candidate. Miss Hale acted in the same capacity for her father, Sheriff Hale. Isaac and Collins were, respectively, the Democratic and Republican appointees to the board.

Although a defendant, Collins—and his wife, Eva, who deputized for him while the absentee ballots were being counted—appeared in court for the plaintiff, Collins explaining that he thought Kuss' complaint gave the court an opportunity to "show people they were not going to let things like this happen any more."

Collins, who characterized the recent primary as "the rottenest election I ever heard tell of," described as "a joke" the hearing that resulted in the denial of Kuss' motion. "I don't care one way or the other who's mayor, but they passed up an opportunity to have a system people can have confidence in," Collins said, adding, "The way is, why don't they just say they'll auction it off to the highest bidder?"

Ratcliff Draws 16-Year Terms In Deaths of 2

Formal sentencing was carried out here Monday for Elmer Ratcliff, 35, the Shelbyville man who pleaded guilty to two counts of manslaughter in the deaths of Steven and Brenda Perkins in an auto collision at Harold last October.

Following a recommendation of the prosecutor, Floyd Circuit Judge Hollie Conley sentenced Ratcliff to concurrent 16-year pen terms. He will receive credit for the 242 days he has already spent in jail.

As part of a pre-sentence report, a Pike county parole officer noted that Ratcliff was "very well liked" in the community and was a hard worker. The convicted man's only problem was his drinking and, even while drinking, he "tended to mind his own business," said parole officer Charles Shockey.

Ratcliff worked as an equipment operator in a mine until his second wife died of cancer in August last year. District Court records in Pikeville reveal that he was convicted of public intoxication 14 times between 1978 and 1984 and acquaintances said his drinking worsened after his wife's death.

Soon after noon on October 6, Ratcliff left Marlow's Country Palace, where he had been drinking, and drove on U.S. 23 toward Floyd county. At that time, the Perkinses, who had stayed overnight at May Lodge, were heading toward Pike county on their way from Dayton, Ohio, to a religious meeting in North Carolina. They died—one instantly, the other on the way to hospital—when Ratcliff's car crossed the median at Harold and hit their car, head-on.

A blood test showed Ratcliff had an alcohol level of .31 percent, more than three times the level at which Kentucky law presumes a person drunk.

Seven Cases End In Plea Bargains

In plea bargains in Floyd Circuit Court last week, seven defendants entered guilty pleas, generally to reduced charges, in return for sentences recommended by the prosecutor.

Johnny E. Sloas pleaded guilty to two counts of theft, receiving a year's jail term on each count, to be probated if he makes restitution to the Rudd Equipment Co. within a month. Sloas was accused of stealing $395 from Rudd in August last year and $395 in November and of covering the losses by making false entries in the firm's computer record of cash sales.

Rodney Mitchell, accused of stealing a pocketbook last April from Shirley Mitchell and a 1982 Toyota Corolla belonging to Cindy Wells, received a one-year sentence on each charge, the sentences probated on the understanding that Mitchell would waive extradition to Arkansas, where he faces more serious charges.

Lenny Newsome, accused of striking Shane Mullins on March 6, was put on probation for a year and ordered to pay restitution of $478.

Thomas Bartram, of Martin, pleaded guilty to damaging a sign leased by Sam Martin III and valued at $1800. An Auto Trek advertisement, the sign was defaced with paint on Nov. 29. Bartram received a probated one-year sentence and was ordered to make restitution of $1050.

Diana Howell, whose address is listed as the Sandy Valley Motel, was handed a year's jail sentence of which she will have to serve 90 days, with the remainder probated. She was accused of forging Ronald Frasure's name on a check for $175 which she used to pay a laborer on Jan. 20.

A burglary charge against James Jacobs was reduced to criminal trespass and he was sentenced to nine months in jail after pleading guilty. He was accused of breaking into an unoccupied house owned by Maggie Dixon on Feb. 2.

Ronald Roth was given 12 months' probation after pleading guilty to a charge of growing marijuana in an apartment on University Drive.

Horn's Suit Alleges Partnership Denied

A Mare Creek businessman wretched on a pledge to take him in as an equal partner in a coal company, Randall D. Horn, of Prestonsburg, claims in a suit filed Friday in Floyd Circuit Court.

Horn said he agreed to lend money to Wallace D. Scalf, president and sole shareholder of the Circle J Coal Co., last year, on the understanding that Scalf would transfer to him 50 percent of the company stock.

He loaned Scalf money or paid his debts in the amount of $12,000, Horn said, and also gave him the loan of a roof bolter and power center rectifier. But Scalf has not transferred the stock as agreed upon and has allowed the borrowed equipment to fall into disrepair, the suit alleges.

Horn wants the $12,000 and the equipment returned. He also seeks compensation for damage done to the machinery, which he says is now "virtually worthless," and $50,000 in punitive damages.

(Suits filed in court outline only one side of the issue in dispute.)

Bassin' Buddies Win Trophies

The Bassin' Buddies made two stops in May. The first was at Lake Cherokee in Tennessee. Cherokee was in great shape to fish, the only trouble was the lake was 15 feet below summer pool because of a lack of spring rain. Shoreline cover was little and far between, but all and all a good catch was brought in.

First place went to Tee Watkins with 9 lbs., 13 ozs. Tee's fish came on a spinner bait from the upper end of the lake. Second place went to J.R. Frisby and Fannie Arrowood with 6 lbs., 9 ozs. Arrowood also had a big fish at 2 lbs., 10 ozs. Their fish came on a crankbait from the German Creek area. Third place went to Gary Hackworth and Bill Botkins with 4 lbs., 13 ozs. Their fish came on spinner and buzz baits from the main lake area.

The next stop was at beautiful Wood Creek Reservoir and once again the clear deep waters proved to be extra tough on the Bassin' Buddies as only seven fish came to the scales.

Glen Copley, long known for his ability to fish a "Blue" worm real S-L-O-W proved he had the right touch for the tough conditions as Glen and Doug Young took first place with two fish. Second place went to Paul Hagans and Paul Horn who also had two fish, and third place went to Tee Watkins and Marty Minix with one fish.

The Cherokee tournament was sponsored by Jones-Preston Funeral Home, of Paintsville. The Wood Creek Tourney was sponsored by Bob Daniels Sporting Goods and East KY Beverage, of Paintsville.

Sprayers For Zapping Bugs and Weeds

Whether you fertilize plants or control bugs and diseases organically or inorganically, if you're applying a liquid you'll need a sprayer. A sprayer may also be needed if you're chemically controlling weeds.

The product you'll be using and the type of area or plants you'll be covering will suggest the number, size and type of sprayers you'll need. If you'll be spraying herbicides along with pesticides and/or fertilizers, you should have two sprayers—one for herbicides, one for all other. Herbicide residue in a sprayer can kill desirable plants. (If you absolutely can't have two sprayers, always rinse a sprayer thoroughly with several changes of water and at least one rinse of a two percent ammonia solution.)

For very small jobs—a few houseplants, a few container plants on a patio—you may be able to recycle a window-spray bottle. If you have roses, a large vegetable garden or lawn, a fruit orchard, or something that requires more than a few ounces of solution, a larger sprayer will be necessary.

Larger sprayers range from pint size hand trigger sprayers to sprayers holding several gallons of solution that are worn on one's back. The three major types based on the mechanism for producing the spray are hose-end, compression and slide-type sprayers.

Hose-end sprayers, which screw onto a hose and hold concentrate which mixes with the water as it's delivered, don't require pumping and deliver a large volume of liquid quickly, good for spraying lawns or massed shrubs. Their precision is limited, as is flexibility due to attachment to a hose.

Compression sprayers, generally in two or three gallon sizes (although I have a new half-gallon that's excellent for small insect populations in vegetable gardens), are the most commonly used home garden sprayers. Aside from the need to pump them every minute or two to develop adequate spray pressure, they are quite precise and versatile.

The backpack sprayer is also a compression sprayer but has advantages over regular compression sprayers in that the 20 to 40 pounds of solution and sprayer can be carried centered on one's back, and they can be kept evenly pressurized by a slow, continuous pumping of a side-mounted lever.

Slide-type or trombone sprayers work by sliding a nozzle tube back and forth. They require continual sliding and produce the farthest-reaching spray stream (good for trees), although the stream is not constant.

While most sprayers are made of materials highly resistant to corrosion (brass, stainless or galvanized steel, plastic), if water or solution is left in a sprayer it may corrode. Plastic is a safer choice for that reason, and because it's usually lighter weight. Also look for fittings made of high-impact plastic.

Features to look for include shoulder straps for larger compression models, non-kink hoses, in-line filters to screen out impurities to reduce nozzle clogging, and adjustable (to go from fine mist to jet) and removal nozzles. The two basic nozzle types are the hollow cone nozzles that spray circular patterns void in the center (best for pesticides) and flat fan nozzles that spray a solid rectangular-shaped band (best for herbicides).

Sprayers with wide mouths and funnel-shaped tops will reduce spill and make cleaning easier. Always clean a sprayer after every use and turn or hang it upside down to dry. Be sure to flush the hoses, slides and nozzles also.

New on the market are compression sprayers with safety valves that automatically open when the pressure reaches an adequate level; and for about $50, battery-operated sprayers that remove the need for a water hose or pumping.

Timely Tip: By now any tree or shrub that is alive (even the crape myrtles) will have new stem and/or leaf growth. Prune dead material or pull entire dead plants. Nothing spoils a landscape faster than dead plants.

76 Anglers Compete In Annual Tourney

Seventy-six fishermen took to Dewey Lake in 38 boats with great expectations of catching fish, winning prizes and just for the fun of it in the Dewey Lake Fish and Game Club's Third Annual Catch and Release Bass Tournament held Saturday.

The buddy tournament's $300 first prize was awarded Eddie Collins and Earl Cline for a total catch of 4 lbs., 12 oz. Second prize of $200 was won by Claude Newberry and Phil Price with a catch of 2 lbs., 5 oz., and the $100 third prize money was split by Mike Hatfield and Tom Compton and Donald Elkins and Ricky Robinette, the two teams which tied with 2 lbs., 3 ozs. each.

First prize winner Earl Cline also won the big bass pool of $300 with a two-pounder, the largest bass caught. Phil Price, president of the club, put it this way, "The fishing was great, but the catching was poor."

Out of the money but still in the winners' circle was the fourth-place team of Greg Stumbo and Ricky with a 1 lb., 11-oz. catch, and Red Clark and Tommy DeRossett in fifth place with a catch of 1 lb., 8 ozs.

Members of the Dewey Lake Fish and Game Club expressed their appreciation to sponsors of the tournament, and said they look forward to a bigger and better tourney next year.

Squirrel Season To Open In August

Frankfort, Ky., June 5—Kentucky's 1985 squirrel season will open on the traditional third Saturday in August, the Fish and Wildlife Commission decided at its quarterly meeting in Frankfort, June 3.

Since its March meeting, the commission had been considering a proposed regulation change which would have delayed the opening date until Sept. 14, but, after reviewing the results of a public hearing on the proposed change and after considering other oral and written comments made at the meeting, the commission voted, 5-4, to retain the traditional framework for at least another year while the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources conducts a major survey of hunter performances.

Under the latest commission ruling, the squirrel season will open Aug. 17 and will run through Oct. 31. The second phase of the split season will run from Nov. 21 through Dec. 31.

In other action, the commission approved dove hunting dates of Sept. 1 through Oct. 31 and Nov. 30 through Dec. 8. Shooting hours during the first phase of the season will be from 11:00 a.m. until sunset, while during the Nov. 30-Dec. 8 portion of the season hunting will be permitted from sunrise until sunset.

The commission also approved an early duck season running from Sept. 11 through Sept. 15 and woodcock and snipe seasons extending from Oct. 1 through Dec. 4. Bag and possession limits remain unchanged from last year.

The dates for dove, woodcock, snipe and ducks are tentative, pending final federal approval.

The U.S. Labor Department's Division of Cooperative Labor-Management Programs helps promote cooperation between labor and management by providing timely information about such programs to both labor and management.

Isaac Ousted As Stumbo's Deputy

Morris Isaac has been fired as deputy judge-executive, Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo confirmed this week.

Stumbo said he asked for Isaac's resignation two days after the recent primary election. "He didn't fit in with what I wanted him to do. He didn't put the time in," the judge-executive explained.

Asked about reports that Isaac was let go because he allegedly switched political loyalties during the primary campaign, Stumbo declined comment, indicating that he wanted to patch up differences with his political opponents.

"I had heard quite a few rumors," Stumbo said of reports that Isaac came out for Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen in the closing days of the campaign. "You will have to ask him."

Isaac failed to return a reporter's calls Monday and Tuesday.

A coal operator and chairman of the Floyd Democratic Executive Committee, Isaac was named to the $18,000-a-year deputy-judge's post soon after Stumbo took office in his first term. The judge-executive said this week he hoped to name a successor by the June 28 fiscal court meeting.

Nat'l Guard Honors Mayse For Support

Richard Mayse, of West Virginia Bakery, here, has received a Department of Defense Certificate of Appreciation for support of the National Guard. Det 1 Co B 1/149th Infantry(M) of Prestonsburg has presented the award on behalf of the National Committee for Employer Support of the Guard and Reserve. Richard Mayse was nominated for the award by Michael Derossett, an employee and a Staff Sergeant in the Kentucky Army National Guard. The award is part of a national program to recognize supportive employers of Guardsmen and Reservists.

More than 1.4 million men and women serve in the Guard and Reserve, and support by employers is critical to their ability to respond to a national emergency. Unless allowed time off for training, Guardsmen and Reservists cannot meet the demanding readiness requirements imposed by high technology equipment and new missions. Today more than 40 percent of the nation's total force is Guard and Reserve. Reserve component units are assigned critical mobilization missions in partnership with active duty military force.

Department of Defense research shows that positive employer attitudes and personnel policies are critical to the Guardsman or Reservist making a decision about continued service.

Staff Sergeant Derossett is the Third Platoon Sergeant. His duties include providing tactical and technical guidance to subordinates, and professional support to lower and higher grade personnel in the accomplishment of their duties.

Micnae Derossett is the son of Bill and Alpha Derossett, of Prestonsburg. He is married to Sheila Howard Derossett and has two children, Shawna and Lamiki.

June 27 Conference To Promote Health

Developing health promotion activities throughout the state is the thrust of the Kentucky Health Promotion Conference, scheduled for June 27 at the Capital Plaza Hotel in Frankfort.

"There has been an increased interest in wellness and by people wanting to become actively involved in wellness programs," said Phyllis Skonicki of the Department for Health Services Health Promotion Branch. "At the conference, we want to show people how to implement health promotion programs."

The workshop is being sponsored by the Department for Health Services and the Health Services Advisory Council, as well as several health advocate agencies throughout the state. The keynote speaker for the conference will be Fred Kroger, Deputy Director, Division of Health Education, Center for Health Promotion and Education, Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta.

"We will be teaching people how to get health promotion programs started as well as the pitfalls and problems to watch out for," said Skonicki. "We will also be giving tips on how to implement successful job and school programs, as well as programs throughout the community."

Emphasis will also be placed on information for coordination and sharing of resources among the various groups and organizations in providing health promotion activities at the federal, state and local level, she added.

Other guest speakers include Dr. Robert Goodpastor, director of Ashland Community College; Kenneth Heppner, forest technician and wellness committee chairman at Westavco Corporation in Wickliffe; Dr. George Perkins, president of Human Development Inc. and co-founder of the Wellness Forum of Louisville, and Dr. Charles Smith, president of the Kentucky Medical Association.

BOARD TO MEET

Mrs. Maxine Bierman, director of the Jenny Wiley Festival, has announced that the festival's next board meeting will be Monday, June 24, at 4 p.m., at the Floyd County Library.

Stumbo Sponsors Resolution Opposing Part of Reagan Plan

House Majority Floor Leader, Gregory D. Stumbo, D-Prestonsburg, has successfully sponsored a Legislative Research Commission resolution that rejects President Reagan's proposal to eliminate state and local tax deductibility from federal income taxation.

In the June meeting of the Legislative Research Commission, House and Senate leadership voted to oppose the elimination of deductibility.

"It would share in an erosion of our tax base and violate our federal system of shared responsibility," Stumbo said of Reagan's proposal.

"The deductibility of state and local taxes has been in effect since the inception of the federal income tax in 1913. For over 70 years, we in state and local governments have depended on a partnership with the federal government to raise the revenues necessary to meet the needs of our citizens. Elimination of deductibility would be a blow to state and local governments as they struggle with the reality of sharply reduced federal programs and increasing service costs," Stumbo added.

According to Stumbo's resolution, the deductibility of state and local taxes is crucial to allow Federal taxable income to reflect the individual taxpayer's ability to pay.

Figures from a national study indicate that 90 percent of the families with joint incomes of around $50,000, which encompasses middle class America, itemize on their federal income tax returns—and they would be the ones most affected.

Pharmacy Footnotes

By HAROLD COOLEY

A WEALTH OF KNOWLEDGE

A pharmacist has great knowledge about the drug that has been prescribed for you. Pharmacists are specifically trained in pharmacology. They are the health people who best understand the use, composition and effect of drugs. They also know how they were tested for strength and purity. Most pharmacists maintain patient medication profiles which list the drugs you are taking. They can alert you and your doctor to any possible dangerous interactions. Pharmacists can explain how a drug is to be taken and what side effects can be expected. They will make you aware of the possible toxicities and when the drug is contra-indicated. They also will advise you of the precautions to take while on the medication. Take the pharmacist's advice with your medication.

COOLEY APOTHECARY carries what you would expect to find in a well inventoried drug store including a complete selection of prescription medications as well as over-the-counter remedies. We are very proud to be able to provide families in this area with all their pharmaceutical needs. You'll find us located at No. 2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106 and open Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-4. Master Charge and Visa honored plus we welcome all third party payments.

HANDY HINT:

A pharmacist never discusses or disputes a doctor's diagnosis.

DEVICES TO REMOVE PLAQUE

There are special devices on the market to help remove plaque from hard-to-reach teeth.

The most indispensable items are your toothbrush and dental floss. In addition, there are any number of excellent commercial products available to help facilitate cleaning and aid those who have difficulty flossing because of too-close or capped teeth, bridges or connected jacket crowns.

Look for special flosses, small brush heads, periodontal picks and soft orangewood sticks, interdental brushes, special floss threaders and floss handles—even mouth mirrors—to help you reach all-the-way-back, or awkward spots in and around your teeth.

Ask your dentist for specific recommendations about which aids would be helpful for your mouth. And, remember that regular cleaning at the dentist's office is an important element to maintain healthy teeth.

WHAT DOES THE EXECUTOR OF A WILL DO?

"I have been asked to be an executor of my sister's will. What will my duties be?"

The executor named in a will is the person responsible for managing the after-death affairs of the deceased and eventually distributing his or her property according to instructions in the will. You should be told in advance the name of the attorney who wrote the will.

If you are not an attorney, you should work closely with experts who can help guide you through various federal, state and legal procedures (lawyers, bankers and accountants).

You may also be responsible for making arrangements for the funeral and burial. It is important that you know of any funeral pre-planning by your sister and where her instructions are located.

Your responsibilities with a "small" estate will be less complicated, but states vary in their interpretations of a "small" estate.

Large estates are more complicated and the responsibilities are best carried out under the supervision of a competent attorney.

Add Style and Body Protection With A RUNNING BOARD!

When you install a running board you benefit four ways. First of all, attractive accent is added to the styling of your truck or van. Then it protects the body against flying stones, salt and mud. Of course entry and exit are made much, much easier, and the trade-in value is increased. For a bonus, we sell and install the famous KENCO DIAMOND PATTERN brand, recognized as the leader in styling and protection.

So think of a running board as investment, not expense. Because that's just what it is — paying dividends for the life of your vehicle.

Pike Man Arrested As Tot Sex Photos Said Sent in Mails

U.S. Attorney Louis DeFalaise, and State Police Commissioner Morgan Elkins announced Friday the arrest of Charles Frank Johnson, of Pikeville.

According to Assistant U.S. Attorney Thomas L. Self and Public Affairs Officer Kenneth Frost, of the Kentucky State Police in Pikeville, Charles Frank Johnson, of Pikeville, was arrested June 6, by inspectors of the U.S. Postal Inspection Service and detectives of the Kentucky State Police. Johnson was arrested on a criminal complaint filed June 5 in federal district court, Lexington, charging him with mailing a magazine containing photos of minor children engaging in sexually explicit conduct.

Arabian Breed Horse Show Focus

The world's biggest show devoted to the rare Egyptian Arabian horse will take place June 6-9 at the Kentucky Horse Park in Lexington.

The fifth annual Egyptian Event is expected to attract at least 2,000 persons to view competition in breeding and performance. This year's edition offers a record $160,000 in prize money in 14 classes, said Lee Cholak, executive director of the sponsoring organization, the Pyramid Society in Lexington.

The Middle Eastern theme carries over to a concurrent dog show featuring the Saluki breed. Like the Egyptian Arabian, the Saluki traces its ancestry to ancient Egypt. The American Kennel Club-sponsored show will feature about 400 entries and is expected to draw another 1,000 visitors.

Throughout the four days, the Horse Park Museum will feature an exhibit of major 19th century paintings depicting the Arabian breed. A London, England sports-art gallery, Frost and Reed, is presenting the exhibit.

For more information on the Egyptian Event, contact the Pyramid Society in Lexington at (606) 252-6506 or call Bob Bates, Kentucky Horse Park, (606) 233-4303.

More than 600 Kentucky social workers, prosecutors, judges and police officers have signed up to participate in a series of seminars focusing on cooperative investigation and management of cases of suspected child sexual abuse.

Eight seminars are being co-sponsored this month by the Cabinet for Human Resources and the office of the Attorney General. Human Resources Secretary Al Austin said the seminars will concentrate on law enforcement as well as the importance of minimizing the trauma of child sexual abuse. "We know and agree that child sexual abuse cannot be treated simply as either a social problem or a crime. We cannot prosecute the abusing adult and do little to help the abused child, and vice-versa," he said. "These seminars will help the professionals from all segments of a child sexual abuse investigation to work towards developing local models for cooperation in such cases."

Attorney General David L. Armstrong said the resulting closer working relationship is a key to effectively fighting child sexual abuse. "These seminars represent an excellent first step in uniting all professionals involved in combating intra-family sexual abuse," Armstrong said. "I believe that we will ultimately see a very positive crossover effect on cases of sexual abuse of children by non-family members as well."

The seminars are funded under a federal grant received by the cabinet's Department for Social Services. A Charlotte, North Carolina consulting firm, Action for Child Protection, will conduct the sessions on how to establish a local protocol for the cooperative management of child sexual abuse investigations. A model will be presented by representatives of the Cabinet for Human Resources, Office of Attorney General and Kentucky State Police.

Each of the six-hour seminars will begin at 9 a.m. local time.

In old India, people once believed that a watched pot foretold the future. If a pot of milk boiled rapidly the coming year would be prosperous; if slowly, times would be bad.

"Our heat pump works just like our refrigerator."

In the summer, a heat pump works the same way as a refrigerator does—it pumps the heat out to keep things cool inside. In the winter, a heat pump keeps you warm by pumping heat from outside into the house.

The heat pump is so wonderfully efficient and economical because it pumps the heat that's already in the air. A heat pump delivers two units of heat for each unit of energy it uses because it doesn't have to generate heat, just pump it. And that saves you money.

No doubt about it—for dependability, economy and year-round comfort, the electric heat pump is a great value.

A MESSAGE FROM JOHN M. STUMBO

TO ALL MY FRIENDS, FAMILY AND SUPPORTERS:
I sincerely thank you for your labor and effort. I will not forget you.

To my opponent and his supporters I extend a hand of reconciliation. The intensity of the past County Judge-Executive's race is unprecedented and we must be careful not to allow it to now be replaced by bitterness or spite. The best interest of our citizens is served by a common effort by our elected officials. This common effort need not be based upon mutual affection but simply upon a common desire—a better life for our people. During the next four (4) years I plan to demonstrate my desire by hard work and service, and invite your cooperation and support for the same.

Finally, to every Floyd Countian, let me assure you that I share your dream for a cleaner, safer, and more prosperous county. The record vote in the May primary demonstrates the great desire of our citizens for progressive change. I will do all within my power to see you are not disappointed.

Sincerely,

JOHN M. STUMBO

Committee To Oversee Fire Prevention Grants

Governor Martha Layne Collins has named a coordinating committee to implement fire prevention, education and protection programs throughout the state.

The Kentucky Volunteer Fire Prevention Program Coordinating Committee will be an advisory body attached to the office of the State Fire Marshal within the Public Protection and Regulation Cabinet. Kentucky is one of 10 states participating in a national community fire prevention program and will receive grant monies to carry out the program.

Under the program, selected community organizations will receive grants to assist them in initiating fire prevention projects. Urban community organizations will receive $25,000, suburban groups $25,000 and rural organizations $10,000 to fund local programs. Shelter Residents Want New Home

You'll occasionally find a pure-bred type at the Eastern Kentucky Animal Shelter but there are always a bunch of fine, healthy mixed breeds like this big pup that, many times, will make a better pet than a show dog. At any rate, there is a good selection of both dogs and cats at the shelter available for adoption. Anyone interested can visit the shelter, which is sponsored by the Eastern Kentucky Wildlife Federation, or call 886-3189.

Dingus, An Educator With Varied Interests

The Ironton (O.) Daily Tribune tells the story of a man with Floyd county origins who combines an educational administrative career with an unusual number of business and civic activities.

Bill W. Dingus (grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joe S. Dingus, of Little Paint Creek, and great-grandson of Mr. and Mrs. William Dingus, of Prestonsburg), is director of Ohio University's Southern Campus in Ironton, O., and beyond his work in classroom and administrative offices on campus are the following activities in which he is currently involved:

Secretary of the board of directors of Ironton Iron Inc.; a member of the board of directors of First National Bank; president of the Ohio Center for Youth and Family Development, Inc.; vice-chairman of the Tri-State Cultural Arts Committee; chairman of the Lawrence County Board of Education; vice-president of the Lawrence Economic Development Corp.; chairman of the Lawrence County Planning Commission; a member of the board of the Lawrence County Board of Parks and Recreation; the Lawrence County Council on Aging and the Central Ohio Valley Industrial Council; a member of the Ironton Rotary Club and the Chesapeake Lions Club.

Dingus has also served as a teacher in the Dawson-Bryant school district, a teacher and Title I coordinator in the Fairland school district and curriculum supervisor for the Lawrence County Board of Education.

"It's unfortunate that many people in government and education consider themselves apart from the business community," Dingus says. "Those of us in educational and governmental positions should be willing to give an amount of community service."

He is a son of the late Joseph Vernon Dingus.

Mrs. Eva Collins, on behalf of the organization, presented a W.M.U. President's pin to the outgoing president, Mrs. Ruby Garrett, in appreciation of her services during her tenure of office. The incoming president, Mrs. Patti Minns, gave each of the officers a Missionary Manual, and asked that all members make an effort to enlist others to become members of this organization. The hostess served refreshments to Mesdames Ruby Garrett, Patti Minns, Rebecca Rasnick, Eva Collins, Goldia Short, Sarah Laven, Lucy Regan, Dolly Pettrey, Myrtle Allen, Ada Meade, Ora Bussey, and "Docia Woods". NUMB ARMS, LEGS Warning Signals

There may be misalignment of vertebrae in the spine causing pressure on nerves, yet the patient experiences no pain in the back. Instead, a variety of sensations may be felt in other parts of the body. These include tingling, tightness, hot spots, cold spots, crawling sensations, electric shock sensations, stinging, burning, and others.

The following nine symptoms involving back pain or strange sensations are often the forerunners of more serious conditions. Any one of these may spell back trouble.

- (1) Paresthesias (see above)
- (2) Headaches
- (3) Painful joints
- (4) Numbness in the arms or hands
- (5) Loss of sleep
- (6) Stiffness in the neck
- (7) Pain between the shoulders
- (8) Stiffness or pain in lower back
- (9) Numbness or pain in the legs.

These signals may indicate your body is being robbed of normal nerve function. Until this function is restored, you will, in some degree, be incapacitated. The longer you wait to seek help, the worse the condition will likely become. Don't wait! Should you experience any of these warning signals... call for in depth consultation in Layman's terms.

A praying mantis may be the answer to your prayers, reports International Wildlife magazine, if you have a cockroach problem, that is. Laura McInnis, of Escatawpa, Mississippi, tried every roach treatment she could think of, then a praying mantis flew into her home. Within a week, the roaches were gone. Mrs. McInnis has grown so attached to the insect that she has named it Mandy Pandy. "Every home should have one," she says.

Before starting your next diet, consider the appetite of a hummingbird. In a single day, a hummingbird may consume more than half its total body weight in food and eight times its weight in fluids, says National Wildlife magazine.

Toll-Free Lines Open for Parks

Travelers now have a direct line to each of their favorite Kentucky state resort parks. Individual toll-free lines for both in-state and out-of-state calls have been installed for each park.

Room reservations and special events information for any resort park in the system are now just a toll-free call away, noted Parks Commissioner Fran Curci. "Kentucky state parks are now more accessible than ever," Curci said. "A visitor now has a toll-free 'hot line' to any of our 15 resort parks," he said.

He added that the Parks Department's original toll-free number, 1-800-255-PARK, is still available to provide general information and to help those undecided about which park to call.

The following is a list of park toll-free numbers:

Ellen Wheeler tackles her most challenging role

By Nancy M. Reichardt

Ellen Wheeler grew up in show business and admits, "I realized early that acting was all I knew how to do, so I decided I'd better keep doing it."

"I hope I'll always be in show business. It's too scary to think of trying to be anything but an actress," she says. "I'm not as picky as some actors who want to go right into doing film roles. I just want to work."

When the time is right, she'd also like to get married and start a family. (She's the eldest of seven children.)

In her dual role as Marley Love and her heretofore unknown twin sister Victoria on "Another World," Miss Wheeler has been given a real acting challenge: portraying twins who are complete opposites in temperament.

Miss Wheeler always was confident that she could handle the dual role, but she admits that she at first wasn't sure how she was going to go about creating the two individual characters.

"I did a lot of research on characters like Victoria," says Miss Wheeler. "I decided that Marley had to be kept sweet and that she had to dress less flamboyantly and had to wear much less makeup than Victoria would use."

has helped me with Marley-Victoria," she continues. "One reason things have worked out so well is that we film my scenes as Marley on one day and my scenes as Victoria on another." Miss Wheeler also gives credit to the show's producers, writers, and production people, who have all pitched in with helpful advice.

Victoria started out as a four-week role, but Miss Wheeler recently learned that Victoria will probably be involved with her twin sister Marley throughout the summer.

"Professionally, portraying Marley and Victoria has been a real learning and growing experience for me," says Miss Wheeler, who hopes to do some theater work in New York City when her hectic schedule on "Another World" slows down.

STARVIEW

Deborah Shelton didn't hesitate for a second

By Peter Meade

Deborah Shelton

'DALLAS' BEAUTY — When you get a call from a producer on "Dallas" and he says he wants you to be a regular on the series, don't hesitate. Don't even pause to ask about the role or its size. Just say yes — and quickly.

That's what former Miss USA Deborah Shelton did. Miss Shelton, 32, says she never had any doubt about taking the role of model Mandy Winger, even though executive producer Philip Capice didn't say much about what was in store for her.

As it turns out, her strong-willed character has been a welcome addition to the Friday night series, which has endured seven years of powerful Ewing men taking advantage of their usually wimpy women.

LEGENDS IN THE ATTIC — Berl Rotfeld has created his own sports-show empire in the attic of an Italian restaurant on the outskirts of Philadelphia. And from the look of his crowded quarters, business has no place to go but — literally — through the roof.

"It sounds corny because we're still a little company," Rotfeld says, "but we've brought Hollywood to Bala Cynwyd, Pa."

It all started in 1972 with "Greatest Sports Legends," a syndicated sports biography series that has since profiled heroes (wrestler Bruno Sammartino), heroines (track star Wilma Rudolph) and even horses (Niatross).

"It's a very positive show," says Steve Rotfeld, who gave up a law career to join his father in the attic. "We don't consider ourselves reporters like Howard Cosell on 'SportsBeat.' We say, 'Hey, this guy was great. Let's show it.'"

This season, the Emmy-winning show will profile baseball great Juan Marichal and tennis legend Arthur Ashe, among others. Ten more greats will be profiled for the 1986-87 season, when San Diego Padres first baseman Steve Garvey takes over hosting duties from Jayne Kennedy. Garvey already has his eye on a legend who has been among the few to say no to the persuasive Rotfelds: Sandy Koufax.

Ky. Crops Far Ahead Of Those Last Year

"Spring fieldwork continues to progress rapidly across the state, despite recent rains," Agriculture Commissioner David E. Boswell said last week.

"The rains were a big help and didn't really slow fieldwork that much," Boswell added.

Corn planting is now 84 percent complete, compared to only 42 percent at this time last year and 62 percent complete on the average.

About three-fourths of the planted corn has emerged. It is rated in mostly good to excellent condition. Cutworms are causing problems in some fields, but the overall problems are minimal.

Tobacco setting has become increasingly active. About 15 percent of the burley is set. This compares to only 1 percent last year, which is also the average.

An adequate amount of tobacco plants will be available for transplanting in most areas. The plants in the beds are generally in good condition, with few disease or insect problems reported.

"Soybean planting is 16 percent complete, well ahead of last year's 3 percent and the 13 percent average," Boswell said. "Also, planting of single-crop beans is picking up as corn planting is completed."

Wheat is reported in mostly good to fair condition, with about 95 percent of the crop headed or beyond. Rust is a problem in a number of areas across the state.

The first hay cutting is now under way, with the yields reduced somewhat in dry areas. Recent rain slowed harvest and delayed cutting.

Pasture conditions vary from fair to excellent depending on the amount of moisture the area received.

Useful Questions Help Children Learn

Questions are useful things.

They are how we remind our child of what we assume he hasn't done: "Have you hung your coat up?" "Have you fed the cat?"

Questions are how we tell our child how we hope he feels, how we hope he behaves: "Did you have a nice day at school today?" "Were you a good girl?" And sometimes, when we ask "how many?" "what color?" "why this?" "who that?" the questions are how we test to see if our child knows the "right" answer, the answer we already know.

And yet questions like these, useful as they are to remind, sway, and test, are also traps, reminds Growing Child, the monthly child development newsletter. Because no, the child hasn't hung up his coat, and he isn't sure what color the ribbon is. He's wrong or in the wrong. Caught again.

There is a knack, and it can be learned, to asking questions that don't trap or make a child feel pushed or dumb or bad, but instead invite confidence, indicate interest, become conversation. The knack is in asking, honestly, for answers you don't know beforehand.

"What do you think happens," you ask, "when everyone has bought all the milk in the store and there isn't any left?"

"The man in the store makes more," your child might reply. "I've never seen him make milk, have you?"

"I saw Mrs. Pickford make milk." No wrong answers here, because the mother couldn't know what her child thought or saw until he said it. She is learning that he has ideas about where milk comes from.

Maybe Mrs. Pickford was making powdered milk. Maybe she was mixing infant formula from a can. Maybe she was even nursing her baby. The mother will find out by asking more.

The child will find out that people can discuss things, and figure them out together. Perhaps his mother will take him to a farm zoo to see a cow. Or show him a mother cat feeding her kittens.

A child can't give you a "wrong" answer to questions like these. He can only tell you what he thinks. When you understand what he thinks, you can help him understand more. And that, after all, is a more useful question.

The Growing Child newsletter follows a child's development month by month from birth to six years old. For more information and a free sample newsletter, please write to Growing Child, P.O. Box 620N, Lafayette, Indiana 47902. Include child's birthdate when writing.

MOTHER AND TWO CHILDREN KILLED

Tragic Drowning In Tygart Creek

(Special to the Independent)

GREENUP, KY., FEB. 1, 1926—Mrs. Edward Webb, 32, and two children, Billy, 7, and Beatrice, 13 months of age, met tragic deaths late Saturday afternoon, near Warnock, when the mother and son were drowned in Tygart Creek and the baby sustained a broken neck.

The tragic accident occurred when a wagon loaded with household goods and the family turned over on the Tygart Creek Road, hurling the mother and son into the swollen stream. The baby was pinned beneath the wreckage and died instantly of a broken neck. The father, Edward Webb, and cousin E.L. Martin, who were riding on the wagon at the time of the sad occurrence escaped with minor injuries.

Mr. Webb and family and Martin, left the home of the latter's brother, Wiley Martin, near Fullerton about seven o'clock Saturday morning enroute to a small farm near Warnock, Ky., where they contemplated making their future home. Mr. Webb is a former construction worker on the C. and O. and was employed near Greenup for some time.

Mrs. Webb was formerly Dulcena Martin and is a native of Pike county, Ky. They were former residents of the Riverview section.

It was stated the bodies of the mother and son drowned were recovered and that they were removed to Carter City, Ky. where they are being held pending funeral arrangements.
