

McAninch Cites Seven Firms For Trash Burning

"It's against the law to burn your garbage, and we're going to enforce the law," the county's top garbage official announced flatly.

Or at least he is insisting that the state Division of Air Pollution enforce the law, said Robert McAninch, director of Floyd County Solid Waste, Inc., who filed complaints Monday with the Division's Hazard office, citing seven Floyd firms for allegedly burning trash that should be disposed of in the county's only authorized landfill.

For McAninch, who recently filed dozens of lawsuits aimed at forcing people to use and pay for the county's mandatory garbage collection service, trash burning is not only a way of skirting the county's official garbage system but is also a health hazard.

"People don't realize how dangerous it can be" to burn certain materials, he said. "In some cases the fumes can kill you." In any event, gases released into the atmosphere by burning contribute significantly to the problem of acid rain, he said.

While the law ordinarily permits a variety of outdoor fires—the family chef can prepare a summer barbecue, construction workers may huddle around a stove in winter, gardeners can burn a pile of leaves or weeds—it does not allow anyone to burn garbage or synthetic materials, McAninch said.

Among the materials covered by the ban, the solid waste official said, were the truckloads of construction debris—including fibrous, plastic and rubber products—he followed last week from the site of the new Holiday Inn on the outskirts of Prestonsburg to the Prater Creek stripmine where it was apparently going to be burned. Hayes, Inc., the Betsy Layne firm which contracted to remove trash from the motel construction site, was among the businesses cited Monday.

Complaints, with accompanying photographs, were also lodged against Floyd S. Pike Electrical Contractor, Inc., an Auxier firm accused of burning rubber and plastic products; Wildcat Liquors and the Branham office complex.

IN A PICTURE taken shortly before their indictment by a Floyd Circuit Court grand jury in December, 1984, then-Magistrate Kenneth Roberts, left, and Magistrate Ed Caudill attended a meeting of Floyd Fiscal Court. Roberts was convicted this week of theft by deception in connection with unauthorized use of county credit cards and faces a 2½-year prison sentence. Caudill was earlier sentenced to a one-year term on a charge of possessing a forged check and is free and in office pending the result of his appeal.

Jury Finds Roberts Guilty on One Count

In a few months Floyd county's financial affairs would be in such disarray the state Finance and Administration Cabinet would confiscate the fiscal court's checkbook and a special investigations unit of the state police would have begun a probe of county government that was to last three years and result in the indictment of 16 individuals, including five public officials.

But nothing could have been further from the mind of former magistrate Kenneth Roberts as he and two friends set out in a borrowed truck-and-camper one crisp October morning in 1982, on a journey that would take them across two-thirds of the continent, to an area in the Wyoming Rockies known in tourist guidebooks as the "home of the world's largest elk herd" and described by his attorney as "a hunter's paradise."

For this was a time, state investigators claim, when some county officials were routinely milking their public offices for private gain—as Roberts did, when he used a county credit card to chip in his share of the costs of the 4000-mile hunting trip.

At least as far as the hunting trip was concerned, a Pike Circuit Court jury was convinced: it found Roberts guilty of a single count of theft by deception and recommended that he be given a 2½-year prison sentence.

On six other theft counts, the jury was unable to reach agreement, despite five-and-a-half hours of deliberation. Conviction on any of the seven felony charges could have resulted in a penalty of from one to five years in prison.

Friday's verdict, which ended a four-day trial before Special Judge Will T. Scott, cast a shadow over the career of the Garrett strongman who has long dominated Right Beaver Creek politics. A four-term constable and then a four-term magistrate, the burly, 61-year-old former National Mines weighman lost a bid for re-election last May, six months after his indictment by a Floyd Circuit Court grand jury.

In closing arguments before the Pike jury, Phillip D. Damron, Roberts' attorney, charged that the political ouster of his client was the real objective of the state police investigation of the Floyd county administration of the late Judge-Executive Jerry Lafferty, Jr. and the subsequent prosecution by the attorney-general's office of three magistrates, a former deputy judge-executive, and a former county court clerk.

"We basically have a political trial here," he said, urging jurors to "send a message" that they were tired of the expenditure of public funds "to send busloads of policemen up here from Lexington."

But Assistant Attorney-General Barbara Whaley said the message that needed to go out "loud and clear" from the Pike circuit courtroom, where the trial had been transferred at the prosecutor's request, was that "the law applies to public officials the same as it does to everyone else."

While Damron described his client as a man who had been "harassed, humiliated, defeated and destroyed" by prosecution charges and press attention, Whaley said the ex-magistrate was "a common thief," who had "made a mockery" of his office and "laughed at" the public trust placed in him.

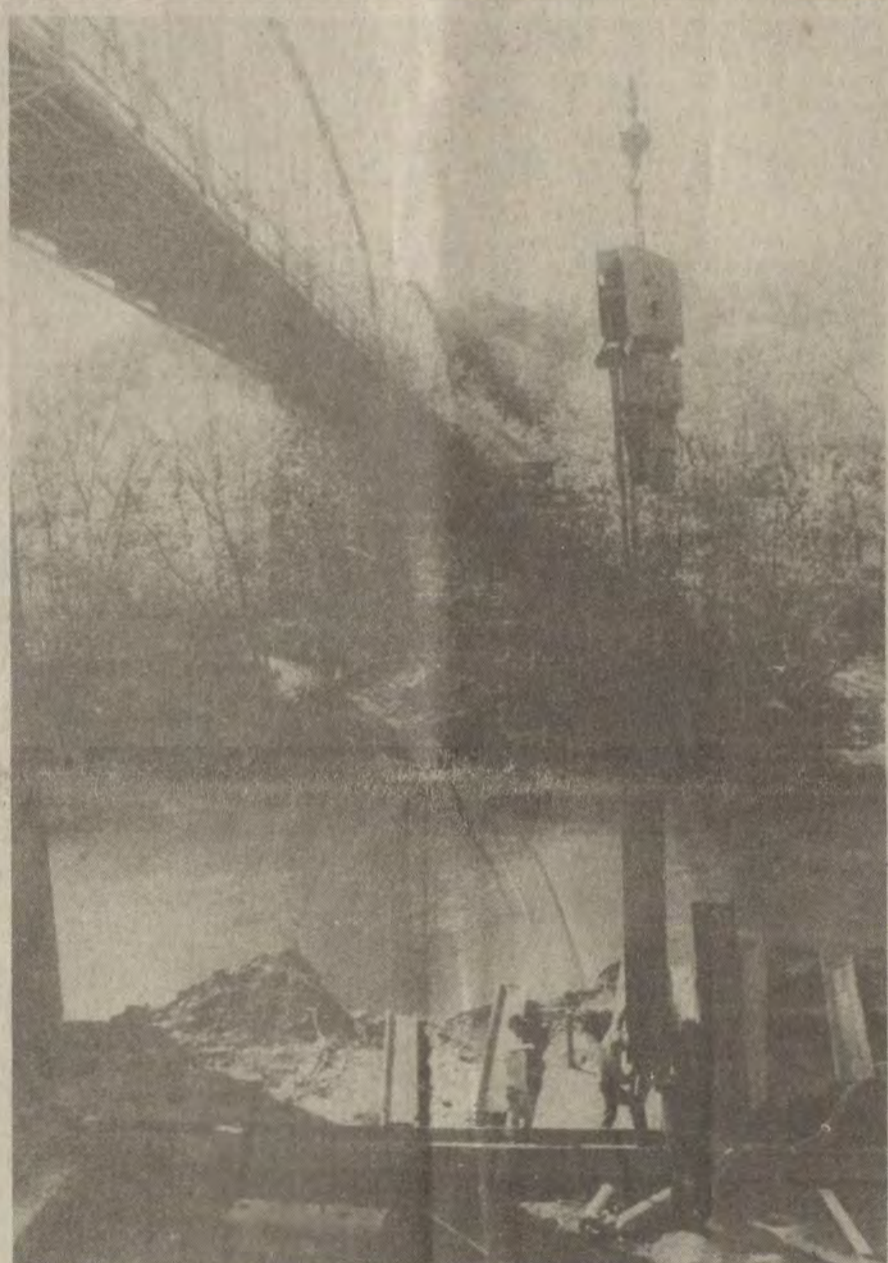

Noting that former Floyd County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. had initiated the police probe—the county attorney requested an investigation after a Finance Cabinet audit in January, 1983 indicated possible criminal misconduct in the handling of county finances—the defense attorney accused Turner of soliciting state assistance by promising local help in a state official's political campaign.

(Turner was an ally of then-Attorney-General Steven L. Beshear in his successful race for lieutenant-governor. However, the attorney-general's office became involved in the Floyd prosecution not at Turner's request but at the request of Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen. "I simply asked the state police to look at the records," (See Story No. 1, Page 5)

AS THE OLD SPAN looms in the background, work was under way this week on the new bridge being constructed across the Big Sandy at Cliff.

Fence Heights Fall As Neighbors Feud

A dispute between neighbors has resulted in a city ordinance lowering front-yard fence heights in Prestonsburg.

Though existing fences can remain, and those who had acquired building permits before the new ordinance went into effect can build, new fences in front yards can be no taller than 36 inches. Previously, a fence of six feet could be placed anywhere in a yard, as long as it did not obscure a neighbor's view.

The conflict arose when Mays Branch neighbors, Rev. Danny Curry and City Councilman Thomas Tackett, disagreed on a plan by Curry to build an in-ground swimming pool and surrounding five-foot high fence in a section of his yard which adjoins Tackett's property. Tackett said the fence would obscure his view and lessen the value of his home.

Curry applied April 4 for a building permit from city building inspector Paul Chaffins, but was told the permit could not be issued because of an appeal from Tackett.

The Currys were asked to appear before the city Board of Zoning and Adjustment on April 10. At that meeting, they agreed to end the pool two feet further back from the street, bringing it into conformity with existing zoning regulations. They re-applied that day for a building permit.

However, before the permit could be issued, the city council met in emergency session to enact an ordinance limiting the height of fences in the front yards of residences. The meeting at 8:30 a.m., April 11, was called at the urging of Tackett, who insists he was acting as a private citizen, not as a council member.

As the issue was declared an emergency, the council had power to pass the ordinance that day. It passed with yea votes from Frank Adams, Bill Callihan, William O. Goebel, III, Margie Osborne and Bobbie Ranier. Harry Ray Porter was not present and Tackett abstained.

Upon hearing of the council's decision, Curry instructed attorney Mitchell Kinser to file suit in circuit court, naming Mayor Ann Latta, the council members and Chaffins as respondents, and seeking permission to begin construction under the old guidelines.

Judge Hollie Conley said that in his opinion, the new ordinance was merely issued to frustrate the Curry's building plans, and he termed such action inappropriate. While the ordinance will stand, Conley ordered Chaffins to issue the Currys a building permit under the old ordinance. Conley told Tackett he was free to pursue a civil action to stop the construction, an avenue Tackett said he would explore.

The city councilman said he thought the court's decision unfair, and added he was considering moving if the fence is built.

"I just think a man's home is more important than another man's swimming pool," he said.

District Court Docket Sees Variety of Cases

An Allen youth brought an assault charge against a retired truckdriver in Floyd District Court yesterday (Tuesday) but, by the time the second witness had testified for the prosecution, it was obvious to District Judge Harold Stumbo that the youth had no case to put before the jury.

In a directed verdict, Chester Porter, 59, was acquitted of striking Robbie Dwayne Jones, 18, on the head.

Jones earlier testified that, while he was waiting for the bus to take him to Betsy Layne High School last September, he got into a fight with Greg Clifton. Soon after, Chester Porter struck him on the head with the metal hook Porter wears in place of his right hand, opening a wound that required six stitches to close, Jones said.

But the plaintiff admitted he did not know if it was Porter who hit him and Angie Baston, 17, who was called as a witness to corroborate Jones' story, testified that she didn't know either.

Assistant County Attorney Dan Rowland implied that the young witness had changed her story and insisted there was evidence enough to put to the jury, but defense attorney John Caudill successfully petitioned the judge for an acquittal.

In an effort to resolve a dispute among Grethel residents, Judge Stumbo at first offered to go to Mud Creek to listen to the sound of Marrow Bentley's truck but later decided to let a jury decide the issue.

Delmer Frasure accused Bentley of deliberately driving the truck in a noisy manner and offered to play a tape-recording of the sound, but Bentley said he had been driving the 1974 International by Frasure's home without complaint for 10 years and, if there was any noise problem, it resulted from the truck design and not from his driving. A jury is scheduled to hear the case on May 15.

When his daughter, who was driving the family car, collided last September with a car driven by Jay D. Spears, of Prestonsburg, Leon Layne, of Phelps, learned to his dismay that Spears was uninsured. He took Spears to court Tuesday, resulting in his conviction on a charge of having no insurance and the levy of $557 in fine and court costs. Spears did not appear to answer the charge.

Also convicted in their absence were Willie Rainey, of Prestonsburg, who was sentenced to 60 days in jail and fined $100 for allegedly threatening to kill Highland Heights maintenance man Alex Johnson on January 28, and Patricia Lemaster, of Prestonsburg, accused by Coral Reef Pet Shop manager Deanna Hicks of passing her a cold check for $15.16. A bench warrant was issued for Lemaster, who was sentenced to five days' jail and fined $25.

In the cases of Phillip D. Moore, 42, of Price, and Arnold Mosley, of Wheelwright, it was the arresting officer who failed to appear in court. Wheelwright police officer Danny Bates booked Moore on charges of drunk driving—his third offense—and driving on a revoked license but failed to show up in court to testify in the case. Mosley was accused by Bates of reckless driving and attempting to elude a police officer.

In explanation of the officer's absence from court Monday, court officials said they had received a call that Bates was briefly fired by city councilman Glen Thornsbury and later reinstated. The charges against Mosley were dropped.

PRESTONSBURG COMMUNITY COLLEGE'S Mountain Dew Festival was in full swing last week, as evidenced by PCC freshman David Frazier and teammates in the volleyball competition.

Outside of City Fire Protection Cost To Increase

Fire subscription rates will increase soon for people living outside Prestonsburg city limits.

At Monday's city council meeting, first reading was given to an ordinance which would change the method of charging out-of-town clients from a flat rate of $24 per year to $1 per $1,000 property evaluation for residences and a scale based on building-size for businesses. The changes were proposed better to reflect city costs in providing the service.

One person affected by the change, Jim Combs, of Bull Creek, asked council members to explain why they felt the present rate was too low, and requested justification of the move to use property evaluation as the new measure. Combs pointed out that the county tax assessor bases property evaluation not only on the value of a home but also on the size of the lot.

Fire chief Tom Blackburn was unable to give a per-run cost for out-of-town fires, but said such calls were more expensive than the $2 per month the city has been charging. On such calls, firefighters are paid time-and-a-half. Also, fuel costs and general wear and tear on vehicles were taken into consideration, said Blackburn. He pointed out that just replacing a clutch in a city fire truck costs about $2,000.

Mayor Ann Latta, who told Combs that the city was simply looking for an equitable way to charge for the service, admitted the problems with using property evaluation as a scale had not been foreseen. She and members of the council invited Combs to attend the next council meeting and present any evidence he might have to support using a different scale.

The rates for businesses, not likely to change from the plan unveiled Monday are: $175 per year for a building of 2,000 square feet or less; $225 for 2,001-5,000 sq. ft.; $275 for 5,001-10,000 sq. ft.; $350 for 10,001-15,000 sq. ft.; $425 for 15,001-20,000 sq. ft.; $500 for 20,001-30,000 sq. ft.; $575 for 30,001-40,000 sq. ft.; and, for 40,001 sq. ft. and above, two-cents per square foot, yearly.

All businesses which store volatile material will be charged $500 yearly, unless the premises occupy more than 40,000 sq. ft. The rate would go up accordingly for larger businesses.

In other action, council presented the first reading of an ordinance which would allow those people living along the Auxier Road section, which the city is attempting to annex, to keep their livestock if the annexation goes through.

The ordinance was said to be designed to prevent hardship on property owners of that section; it would allow residents to raise livestock, poultry and other animals for economic benefit.

City Administrator David Evans reported to the council that signatures on petitions from Auxier Road residents seeking to block annexation were presently being checked against voter registration records in the county clerk's office and with the county tax assessor.

Other ordinances given first reading related to restructuring the city park board, and changing the rate of pay for council members and the mayor.

High School Press To Meet at Marshall

More than 300 scholastic journalists and their advisers are expected to gather at Marshall University in Huntington April 18-19 for the 59th annual meeting of the United High School Press Association.

High Schools from all parts of West Virginia as well as eastern Kentucky and southern Ohio will be represented, said Wallace E. Knight, UHSP director and an associate professor of journalism at Marshall.

"We'll have the students and advisers who produce newspapers for their schools, and editors of their yearbooks, and others who develop radio and television programming as a part of their studies," Knight explained.

The convention is coordinated annually by the faculty of Marshall's W. Page Pitt School of Journalism. It includes two days of workshops on subjects related to all aspects of journalism, and a Saturday luncheon at which awards for outstanding work in 20 categories are presented to students.

"The awards cover everything from news and editorial writing to photography and yearbook design and editing," said Dr. Deryl R. Leaming, director of the School of Journalism. "Among them is a $500 scholarship for the most promising student journalist—and the competition is tough, with very high standards."

Students submitted materials for judging about a month ago. The judges are journalism educators and professionals working for newspapers, magazines and related media across the country.

Another part of the convention activities is a series of critique sessions for schools that want their publications or broadcast programs analyzed by widely experienced journalists, Knight continued.

"The convention theme this year is 'Be a winner,'" he explained. "We feel the awards, critiques and workshops all contribute to that goal; they're designed to help students and schools improve their journalistic efforts. They also show students the way toward interesting and productive careers in writing, editing, photography and other parts of the growing field of communications."

United High School Press Association was established in 1927 by W. Page Pitt, who introduced the study of journalism at Marshall. Its conventions have been held each spring since that time except for lapses during World War II and on one occasion since then.

The first known use of the expression "A-1" was said to be by Lloyd's of London, the British insurance organization. Lloyd's graded ships according to the risk of insuring them and those rated "A-1" were thought least likely to sink.

FBLA Winner

Michelle Cole, daughter of Jimmy and Janice Cole, of Martin, represented the Garth Area Vocational Education Center, FBLA Chapter, at their Regional Conference held at Morehead State University recently.

Miss Cole won second place in the Business English event and will accompany her advisor, Mrs. Doris Lawson, to Louisville to compete in the state competition.

Merchants Help Breast Center

The downtown merchants of Prestonsburg and Paintsville have declared April 26 "Merchants Day" in their cities. On that Saturday, participating merchants will donate up to 10 percent of their sales to the establishment of a breast cancer screening and diagnostic center at Highlands Regional Medical Center.

Highlands will have a health-screening table at centralized locations in both cities that day.

Nurses and HRMC lab personnel will be doing free blood pressure tests, blood sugar tests, and blood typing at the health screening table.

Information about the breast center and the hospital will also be available. There will be a free gift for anyone who stops by the health screening table.

Susan Martin, HRMC's director of development, remarked, "Our purpose in Merchants Day is two-fold. First, we want to raise money for the breast center. Second, we want to increase awareness of the breast center and our fund raising goals."

"I'm very excited about this project," said Carol Blevins, public information officer at Highlands, "we've received enthusiastic support from the merchants in both towns. We are providing merchants with a poster so shoppers will know that up to ten cents of every dollar they spend will go to the breast center."

Air stored in telescope and brass buttons for hundreds of years may help researchers understand the "greenhouse effect" by which the earth's temperature rises, reports International Wildlife magazine. Scientists hoped that by measuring the carbon dioxide level in the antique air, they can better understand how changing levels have influenced global warming over centuries.

Weddles Take Student View

Life begins at fifty, or at least a new perspective on life occurs when you suddenly become a student again. Leo and Laura Weddle, Prestonsburg Community College professors and the first couple hired in the Community College System over 21 years ago, reverted to the world of the married graduate student at Morehead State University last semester.

"A productive sabbatical which renewed my perspective" is the way Mr. Weddle phrased it. He spent his semester working on a master's degree in sociology with a specialty in gerontology. He considered his field work at a nursing home a productive experience, his research focusing on the effects of the nursing home experience on the life perceptions of nursing home residents.

Mrs. Weddle, whose original degrees were in English, opted to seek this master's degree in communications. She felt that it was a true role reversal from faculty to student since they also attended concerts, ballgames and other student activities. "At times it seemed very odd to realize that we were the oldest couple on campus," she said. Both are glad to be back on the faculty at PCC again after refreshing their memories and perceptions on the very real problems and concerns of students.

KET Airs All-New 'Partners in Crime'

Crime fiction's first husband-and-wife detective team, the irrepressible Tommy and Tuppence Beresford, return to "Mystery!" in "Agatha Christie's Partners in Crime," five all-new, self-contained stories debuting on KET on Saturday, May 11, at 9 p.m.

Francesca Annis and James Warwick again co-star as the fun-loving, flapper-era couple.

Introduced on "Mystery!" two seasons ago, Tommy and Tuppence are two of London's "bright young things" who jump at a Scotland Yard inspector's invitation to take over a detective agency as a way to escape their boring lives. Their qualifications as sleuths? They've read every detective novel published in the preceding 10 years.

Besides her traditional intricate plotting and a full quota of red herrings, Dame Agatha also injected some non-traditional humor into her Tommy and Tuppence stories. The young couple approach each assignment as a game—even though they often wind up in a physical danger.

"Agatha Christie's Partners in Crime" was produced for London Weekend Television by Jack Williams.

State Jailers To Meet At Paducah, April 23-25

The Kentucky Jailers Association announced its Fourth Annual Jail Improvement Conference to be held on April 23-25 at the Executive Inn Riverfront in Paducah. Jim Knauf, Kenton county jailer, who is president of the association, confirmed that due to the quality of this year's conference the Corrections Cabinet has approved it for Jailer Training Credit.

Seventeen different workshops have been planned from which those attending may select those areas of most interest. The topics are designed to meet the needs of both the large as well as the small jail and there are workshops for jailers who are serving as transportation officers. A sample of the workshops includes Kentucky's Jail Information System, Kentucky's Jail Construction Program, Developing a Commodity Food Service Program, The 1986 Legislative Session in Review, The Female Jailer And Her Job, Dealing With The Threat Of AIDS.

In addition, Thursday's program will feature major presentations by Representative Fred Cowan, chairman of the House Judicial/Criminal Committee and former Governor Julian M. Carroll.

President Knauf also announced that the association will be electing new officers and members of the Board of Directors. For more information contact Jerry Lundergan—(606) 255-0717.

FINANCIAL PLANNING TAX FREE EXCHANGES

Each year an increasing number of real estate sales are being designed to qualify as tax free exchanges. The inflated value of a parcel of real estate over its purchase price causes a high gain on the sale of that property. The income taxes, otherwise payable on a sale of real estate, can be deferred by arranging a tax free exchange.

It is unlikely that you will find a person with acceptable property to trade you when you are ready to sell. However, you can arrange for your buyer to acquire satisfactory replacement property which he then trades you for your real estate. This latter approach is referred to as the three-way exchange and should be considered by anyone intending to sell property and buy replacement property.

There are four categories of real estate by use.

- (1) Investment property
- (2) Property held for productive use in a trade or business
- (3) Taxpayer's primary residence
- (4) Inventory held primarily for sale

Of these four categories of real estate, the first two qualify for tax free exchange under Internal Revenue Code, Section 1031. I normally wouldn't mention Code Sections except that "1031 Exchange" is becoming almost a household word.

There is a common misunderstanding that you call sell "investment" or "productive use" property and replace it within a given time limit to eliminate the income tax. Your primary residence is the only property which can be sold and replaced within a given time limit to avoid the income tax. If you accept cash or a contract on the sale of commercial real estate, you will pay the income taxes on the transaction even if you buy replacement property the same day.

Since inflation is causing most taxpayers to be in a higher tax bracket, the use of the tax free exchange can save you thousands of dollars in income taxes.

Berea Program Open To Floyd Students

Floyd county students are among those eligible for admission to Berea College's 1986 summer program for outstanding high school students.

This summer's Rising Seniors Program, open to students who have completed the junior year of high school with at least a B average, consists of college credit courses in Wildlife Biology, Spoken French, Critical Issues for Black Americans in the 20th Century, College Writing, and Mathematical Structures in Computer Science. The four-week session, which allows students to do intensive study in one of the five subjects, begins June 15 and continues through July 11.

Each course offers one college credit, the equivalent of four semester hours. The per student cost of $228 covers room and board, use of college facilities, insurance, health service and activities fees. Some full or partial scholarships are available, and each student will receive pay for participation in Berea's on-campus work program. The college library, tennis courts, pool and gymnasium, as well as a program of planned activities, are available to participants.

Applications and additional information are available from Charles E. Morgan, Rising Seniors Program, CPO 2344, Berea College, Berea, Ky. 40404. Students form Berea's nine-state admissions territory, especially those with limited financial resources, will receive preference in admission to the summer program.

Floyd county residents currently enrolled at Berea College include Barbara Ann Collins, Dorothy Jean Johnson, Regina Mae Messer, Don Parker, Jr., Glen Slone, Willis Richmond Slone, William D. Stanley, and Barbara Downs Williams.

Our Yesterdays

(Items taken from The Floyd County Times, 10, 20, 30, 40 and 50 years ago.)

Ten Years Ago

(April 14, 1976)

Three days of sporting and social events, enhanced by cloudless skies and warm temperatures, made the past week's Mountain Dew Festival a particularly successful one. The Huntington District, U.S. Corps of Engineers, announced last week that it will do a detailed study of the flood hazard areas in Prestonsburg. A former Floyd woman, Mrs. Fred Luster, now of Indio Hills, Calif., whose only son had been missing in Vietnam for seven years, learned only last Thursday that his body had been found and was being returned to this country for burial. Miss Ella Noel C. White, 81, of Prestonsburg, who for 46 years served Floyd Chapter, American Red Cross, as its executive secretary, died at Highlands Medical Center last Thursday following an illness of a few weeks. The Maytown Woman's Club celebrated its 25th anniversary as a member of the General Federation of Woman's Clubs, March 19. Three liquor raids featured the activity of law officers in this county over the weekend. Geri Grigsby, 5-foot-5 junior guard at McDowell High School, has been selected for the second consecutive year as a first team All-Stater by both the Louisville Courier-Journal and The Lexington Herald-Leader. Two of the county's oldest residents died this week. Mance Bolding, 94, of Estill, died Monday, and Joe Ward, 99, of Buckingham, died Tuesday, both at McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital following extended illnesses. Born: to Mr. and Mrs. Edison Blair, of Watergap, a son, Christopher Shawn, March 29 at Highlands Regional Medical Center; to Mr. and Mrs. William D. Stephens, a son, John Kelly, March 29 at Highlands Regional Medical Center. There died: Ralph Vernon Moore, 12, of Lackey, Friday at the UK Medical Center, Lexington; Mrs. Nancy Hall Slone, at her home at Hi Hat, Friday; Mrs. Hulda Conn Boyd, 90, of Dana, April 8 at Our Lady of the Way Hospital; Brian Douglas Spurlock, 5-years-old, of Printer, April 6 at the McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital; Cynthia Layne Crabtree, 83, of Ocela, Ind., formerly of Prestonsburg, April 5 at the Turtle Creek Nursing Home, Elkhat, Ind.; Selton Slone, 60, of McDowell, Saturday at McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital; Mrs. Susie Green, 88, of Estill, Monday at Our Lady of the Way Hospital.

Twenty Years Ago

(April 14, 1966)

Commissioner of Highways Henry Ward last week issued authorization for design of a bridge across the Big Sandy river at Lancer and of the Lancer-Water Gap road to connect with the proposed new U.S. 23 on Bull Creek. Dr. Russell Hall, county health doctor, estimated this week that 2,000 or more residents of the county are now experiencing the aches, pain and fever of influenza and that many, or more, will contract the disease within the next week. Failure of the City Council at Martin to appoint a Planning and Zoning Commission may cost that town a 20-unit housing complex for the benefit of the elderly in the low income level, it was said here this week. Every union organized coal mine in District 30 was idle Monday, presumably to emphasize the United-Mine Workers' demand for a new contract. Born: to Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Eugene Music, Jr., a son, Marvin Eugene, III, April 5 at the Prestonsburg General Hospital, here. Married: Miss Judy Caldwell, and James Charles Curnutte, of Auxier, April 7, at Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church, here. Ferrell, 71, of Printer, last Tuesday at Veteran's Hospital, Richmond, Virginia; Mrs. Emogene Gray Milligan, 41, of Prestonsburg, last Wednesday at the Prestonsburg General Hospital; Woodrow Dye, Jr., 5, formerly of Orkney, last Wednesday at Mansfield (Ohio) General Hospital.

Thirty Years Ago

(April 12, 1956)

Floyd deputy sheriffs and state police were making a quiet probe this week into the dynamiting of a union hall at Allen between 2 and 3 o'clock Monday morning. The Federal Coal Mine Safety Board of Review ruled Tuesday that four mines at Wheelwright, must be considered as one because the presence of gas in one would endanger the lives of men working in three others. Miss Linda June May, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher May, of Langley, was crowned "Miss Maytown, 1956" at the Maytown Woman's Club annual spring fashion show, April 2. More than 400 Girl Scouts are expected to be here for the annual Rally Day of the Sandy Valley Girl Scout Council, April 21. Floyd county Republicans last Saturday endorsed President Eisenhower and Vice-President Nixon for renomination and election. Married: Miss Ava Lou Hicks and Mr. Thomas Meade March 29 at the home of the bride in Evington, Virginia. Born: to Mr. and Mrs. Willis J. Hondel, formerly of Martin, a son, Willis, Jr., April 1 at Columbus, Ohio. There died: Mrs. Rachel Anna Robinson, formerly of Prestonsburg, March 21 at McAlistier, Oklahoma; W. T. Forty Years Ago

(April 11, 1946)

First actual work by the Ryan Construction Company toward construction of the Dewey Dam was done Wednesday morning with the beginning of clearing operations. The Congressional Rivers and Harbors committee will conduct a public hearing on the Big Sandy waterway project in Washington, May 6 and 7. The City Council Wednesday night in a special meeting voted the purchase of parking meters for Prestonsburg. Floyd county's first church bus will go into service next Sunday morning, its owner, the Allen Baptist Church, announced this week. Bids ranging from $2,900 to $4,300 for construction of each of nine one-room rural schools advertised for letting to contract were considered exorbitant by the Floyd County Board of Education at its meeting last week and County Superintendent Town Hall was directed to re-advertise the structures for retelling. Fire at Wheelwright Junction Monday morning destroyed a two-story brick building owned by Lee Hall, causing damage estimated at $25,000. Married: Miss Ella Virginia Miller and Mr. Charles Jeff Wells, both of Auxier, March 21 at Trenton, New Jersey; Miss Johnnie B. Branham, of Martin, and Mr. Jack Armstrong, of Louisville, April 4 at Martin. Born: to Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Osborne, of Martin, a son, April 5. There died: Mrs. Jane Case, 65, at home at Drift, Saturday; Mrs. Mary Ann McGuire Cooley, 62, of Dwale, Tuesday at the Gearheart Hospital, Martin; Mrs. Mary Jo Reffitt, 82, at home at Pyramid, April 1; Mrs. Elzie Maggard Frazier, 67, at her home near Martin, Sunday.

Fifty Years Ago

(April 10, 1936)

Approximately 100 families moved back into their homes along Right Beaver Creek yesterday, following the fall of that stream's high water. Spinal meningitis claimed two victims in the county last week: Billy Gordon McCown, 11, of Ivel, Friday, and Richard Ice, Jr., three months old, of Prestonsburg, Tuesday night. Floyd county's tax levy for 1936, as fixed by the fiscal court in session here Tuesday, is 45 cents lower on the $100 valuation than 1935. Charlie Roe, of Wheelwright, was shot and killed Sunday night during a fight at the Rocky Camp tourist camp on Shelby Creek, Pike county. G. H. McClanahan, of Stone Coal Creek, died at the Paintsville Hospital Wednesday, of injuries sustained in a mine accident several weeks earlier. Mrs. Demra Taylor, 32, of Martin, was fatally injured Sunday in an auto accident in Arizona. Strict safety measures will be put into effect at the Wells-Elkhorn Coal Company's mine No. 6 at West Garrett within the next few days, owing to the number of injuries and three fatalities at this mine during recent months. Born: to Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Rose, a son, Roger Deane, April 5 at their home in Prestonsburg; to Mr. and Mrs. David Branham, a son, David R., at home at Prestonsburg, Sunday; to Mr. and Mrs. R. V. May, of Prestonsburg, a daughter, Julia Mayo May, Sunday at the Paintsville General Hospital. There died: Mrs. John Lovely, 25, of Wayland, at the Paintsville General Hospital, last Thursday.

Bits and Pieces

LOOK AROUND YOU—

If you're feeling down, or just generally put upon, look around you. Our hills have survived a sore and fiery season to present their spring spectacular of beauty. Pristine white of the first "sarvus" trees has yielded to the snowy drifts of the dogwoods, highlighted by rebuds against a backdrop of fresh, cool green. Nature's beauty pageant is ours to enjoy.

'SWUNDERFUL

Being a grandmother has its definite advantages. A mother is sometimes held back from telling one and all how absolutely marvelous, beautiful, intelligent, and talented her children are by the teeniest doubt that she might possibly be a bit prejudiced. She knows very well, by close acquaintance, that they're not the best-behaved. But a grandmother has no such inhibitions. For instance, yours truly has no hesitation in collaring any innocent bystander and delivering an oration proving beyond doubt that mine is irrefutably the brightest, loveliest, most affectionate, and yes, even the best-behaved child in the whole world.

And, if anything ever happens to shake this rose-colored view, it has to be the son's or daughter-in-law's fault, or vice versa.

Ah, yes, age does have its advantages, and being foolish about a grandchild is one of the best.

GOOD GRIEF!

A man's home may be his castle, but locally, his lawn is another matter. In an effort, it says here, "to protect the welfare and safety of citizens and beauty of front yards in Prestonsburg," the city council has, in emergency session, yet, passed an ordinance that no front and/or side yard fence may be more than three feet high.

In another edict, the council lo'ed and beheld that all dogs must be confined within the owner's premises. (Now, the fact is some dogs would step over a three-footer.) There is also the requirement that if a swimming pool is located here, a five-foot fence is needed to protect children from danger of drowning and property owners from lawsuits.

So where does this leave us?

On the one hand, we must have a fence no higher than three feet to protect the welfare and safety of the citizenry as well as enhance the beauty of the city. On the other, some folks also must have a five-foot high fence to protect the welfare and safety of others. Caught in between is poor old Rover, who apparently will be chained to a tree.

Now if only we may be directed as to whether to sow Bluegrass, or a mix of Bluegrass and clover, what kind of shrubs, if any, to plant, how often to mow the grass, what trees are allowed within the city limits, and what type of front walk meets the council's collective approval, the citizens of Prestonsburg can set about the business of making this the garden spot of the universe.

Seems to me that if the council wanted to do something really useful in the way of beautifying our fair city, it would outlaw Japanese beetles.

EAST POINT HOMEMAKERS

The East Point Homemakers met April 8 at the home of Mrs. Arnetta Snavely. The completed shadow quilting projects from last month's lesson were displayed. Mrs. Frances Pitts discussed the Cultural Arts Camp, and the lesson for next month.

The guest speakers for the day were Carole Blevins and Pat Willis from the Highland Regional Medical Center, who presented an interesting and informative talk about the Breast Examination Center coming soon to the Medical Center. Members of the club voted to donate $100 to this worthy cause, and they wish to challenge all other homemakers clubs in Floyd and Johnson counties to match this donation.

Officers were elected for the coming year. They are: Sharon Watkins, president; Leatha Kendrick, vice president; Lorena Horn, devotions; Dorothy Harris, secretary/treasurer; Betsy Baldrige, phone chairperson.

Mrs. Snavely served refreshments to Sharon Watkins, Lorena Horn, Elsie Leake, Wilma Montgomery, Nola McNical, Dorothy Harris, Frances Pitts, Betsy Baldrige and guests, Gayle Bastin and daughter Alissa, of Somerset.

The next meeting will be May 13 at 10:30 a.m., at the home of Mrs. Elsie Leake.

ABBOTT HOMEMAKERS NEWS

The Abbott Homemakers' regular monthly meeting was held Tuesday night, April 8, at the church annex. The president, Mrs. Sharon Sparr, presided, and Mrs. Ruby Frasure gave the devotionals. Mrs. Frances Pitts presented the lesson on "Household Equipment." She announced that a leadership meeting would be held at May Lodge, May 29, at 10 a.m. and that the State Homemakers' meeting would be held in Lexington, during May. Mrs. Sparr will be a delegate.

Mesdames Grace Conley and Ethel Ratliff served a dessert course to Renee Spraulding, Ruby Frasure, Sharon Sparr, Frances Pitts, and Cynthia Frasure.

The next meeting will be at the same location, Tuesday night, May 13.

Bus Driver Misidentified

A correction about an article in the paper April 9. It said that I was fired as a bus driver. I haven't driven a bus for 15 years. I am not the "Clyde" and I have never been fired.

Maybe, if the transportation personnel would get acquainted with their drivers and help them more with the discipline, it would be much better. I do know the drivers need all the help they can get.

This is not an error of the editors but the transportation personnel's error.

CLYDE BLACKBURN,
Endicott, Ky.

(Editor's note: Actually, the error came from the superintendent's office. The driver who was fired was not Clyde Blackburn but Clyde Lafferty.)

Need Building Now

The Garrett parents fail to understand why our board member James Duff gave our school away again. According to our records that we obtained from the Board of Education this makes the third time our school has been placed down on the list of priorities.

We feel that Prestonsburg is very fortunate to have two board members representing their community.

Furthermore, we have been told that it doesn't matter what position you hold on the list of priorities one, two, or three, that you will get a new school, but if that is so, then why were we moved from number one to number three? We believe that there will not be enough money to build three schools next year. Therefore, we will have to wait until 1990 before our school can be constructed. The children of Garrett cannot wait that long. Will it take a disaster to make everyone realize this?

We feel that our students who attend classes in a building that has wooden beams bracing the downstairs ceilings deserves an explanation.

Guard Helps Easter Seal

I think your readers would be interested in knowing that the Kentucky Army National Guard, including officers and men on a completely non-paid, voluntary basis, went out last weekend, the 5th and 6th of April, and raised more than $125,000 for the disabled of Kentucky through services provided by the Kentucky Easter Seal Society!

This shows the quality of Kentucky's National Guard and the officers and men who are trained and ready in case of emergency to protect and assist Kentuckians from every section of the commonwealth.

In the fifteen years that the Guard has been working with the Kentucky Easter Seal Society to provide services for the disabled, it has raised more than $1,125,000. This money is given by generous Kentuckians to Guardsmen who volunteer their time at collection points throughout the state. Their contribution this year is particularly significant in light of major cutbacks in federal funding for programs serving the disabled. I particularly want to commend Major General Billy G. Wellman, who has also served us well as State Easter Seal Campaign Chairman and as a member of the Board of Directors of the Kentucky Easter Seal Society.

Why Higher Here?

I can't understand why gasoline is so much higher in the Big Sandy Area than it is in other places all around us, especially in the Prestonsburg, Pikeville, Paintsville area. We are paying 5c to 29c higher for the exact same kind of gas as they are paying for in Middlesboro, Pineville, Lexington area and also in the Logan W. Va. areas. And the roads into the Big Sandy Area are just as good or better than they are into these other areas above mentioned. And our money is just as dear to us as it is to those in Middlesboro, Pineville, Lexington or Logan. Why hold us up?

I think some action should be taken to remedy this discrimination.

Thanks Homeroom Parents!

It is with sincere gratitude and appreciation that I would like to thank you, the parents of my homeroom, for the time and labor that has changed the appearance of the room. It has been completely transformed to one of a much brighter and happier atmosphere for all of us. I want to thank Sharon and Gary Branham for the donation of the paint and brushes.

We all love the beautiful spring colors!

Court Meets Today

Because some county officials will be attending an accounting workshop later this week, the meeting of Floyd Fiscal Court originally scheduled for Friday will be held instead today (Wednesday), beginning at 10 a.m., a court official announced this week.

Turner said this week. "What they looked at and what they found was not controlled by me."

In a brief appearance for the prosecution in the closing hours of the trial, Turner gave testimony that may have been instrumental in securing a conviction in the case. Damron said the former county attorney "came in to throw one last rock at Mr. Roberts."

At issue was the nature of the week-long trip to Pinedale, Wyoming, that Roberts took in October, 1982 with two Maytown men, Larry Hagans and Lewis Collins. A state auditor said the magistrate used county credit cards to run up $604 in apparently "extravagant and unjustified" bills on the trip, including a $211 bill for a pair of Western-style boots.

Billed to the county were charges at the Juice and Junk Restaurant in Newton, Iowa, the Wayfarer Motel in Henderson, Nebraska, the Outlaw Inn in Rock Springs, Wyoming, and the Drury Inn in Mt. Vernon, Illinois, as well as 10 gasoline stops along the way.

Roberts said the trip was for county business as well as for hunting and that Judge Lafferty agreed he should charge half the travel expenses to the county. The cowboy boots were for Lafferty, who said he would later reimburse the county, Roberts testified.

Cross-examined by the prosecutor, the magistrate said he spent five or six hours looking for a used rock-crushing machine in Cheyenne and Rock Springs, Wyoming and near Denver, Colorado. He said he could not remember the names of the dealers, which he got from advertisements in Rock and Dirt magazine, but he produced what he claimed was a letter of introduction written on his behalf by Judge Lafferty.

He submitted two estimates and his credit card slips to Lafferty on his return, and the fiscal court subsequently approved payment of his claims, Roberts testified.

Whaley charged that the supposed search for a rock crusher was "concocted" after Roberts was caught hunting and fishing at the expense of a financially-strapped county. She noted that the purported letter of introduction was a copy, its signature unable to be verified; that minutes of fiscal court meetings recorded no discussion about purchasing a rock crusher; that no estimates for a rock crusher were found among Lafferty's papers; and that all credit card slips relating to Roberts' trip were missing from the county records.

Former county attorney Turner testified that the fiscal court had not discussed or authorized a trip in search of a rock crusher and that no estimates on rock-crushing equipment were presented to the court. While the court approved payment of the October, 1982 credit card bills in general, magistrates were not ordinarily aware of the specific claims they were approving, he said. "Only after the state investigation began was the first time people started pulling the bills and looking at them," Turner said.

One of the counts on which the jury was unable to reach a verdict involved a $300 county check made out by Judge Lafferty in September, 1982 to Mack Horne, of Hueysville, and apparently endorsed in turn by Horne, Kenneth Roberts, and Roberts' daughter, Vickie Roberts Martin, who cashed it. Horne claimed that he had never seen the check, that the signature on the check was not his—even his name was misspelled—and that, while he had once worked on the county park at Allen, he had already been paid for the work.

Roberts said that Anthony "Harpo" Castle, of Hueysville, asked him to cash the check on Horne's behalf and that he had no reason to doubt it was an authorized payment or that Horne's signature was valid. Castle explained that neither he nor Horne wanted to present the check to a bank for fear of jeopardizing their unemployment checks, Roberts said.

The other counts on which the Pike circuit court jury was unable to agree included charges that Roberts used a new county backhoe and two county employees, Chester Neeley and Dolvin Ratliff, to dig a footer for his new house at the mouth of Stone Coal Creek in September, 1977; and that, over several months in 1979, Neeley and another county worker, Earlas Hall, remodeled a barn and a former hardware store that Roberts owned in Hueysville, using county lumber on the jobs.

The barn and Roberts' home had burned prior to the reconstruction in which county workers were allegedly employed; the hardware store burned later, during a brief period when Roberts had transferred the property to Clyde Douglas Marshall.

Roberts produced a contract in which he agreed to pay a contractor $54,158 to build his home; he denied a county backhoe was ever used on the job. The former hardware store was never remodeled; and any work done on the barn was done after he had traded his share of the property to Anthony Castle, Roberts said.

Defense attorney Damron hammered at the credibility of prosecution witness Chester Neeley, calling him a liar and a thief and accusing him of cooperating with the prosecution in an effort to get his jailed son paroled. Neeley claimed he was paid $1500 and had his road graded on Salt Lick for signing an affidavit recanting statements he had earlier made to state police implicating Roberts, but he later reported the payment to police and reaffirmed his original testimony.

As evidence of a bargain struck between the prosecution witness and the state police, Damron noted that Neeley's son, Cisco, who is serving time for two convictions of vehicular manslaughter, was moved from the state penitentiary to a prison farm on the very day his father was testifying against Roberts. Moreover, six other charges against Cisco Neeley, including one of assaulting a state trooper, were dropped on the initiative of the special investigations unit instrumental in Roberts' prosecution, the defense attorney noted.

In a reference to "carloads of people out of Frankfort," sent to assist in the three-year investigation and prosecution of his client, Damron said, "People holler about government waste. What are all their salaries costing the taxpayers? Why are they supporting Chester Neeley? Political revenge, that's what we've had."

But prosecutor Whaley, noting that the special investigations unit came here only after the Finance Cabinet's county and municipal accounting division found evidence in the judge-executive's office of widespread mismanagement and possible criminal wrongdoing, insisted that "the state police have no dog in this fight; they have nothing at stake. They have no motive to go after Kenneth Roberts; they're just doing a job."

"The truth does finally catch up with you," said the young woman sent by the attorney-general to prosecute the Floyd defendants when Commonwealth's Attorney Allen disqualified himself. "It finally caught up with Kenneth Roberts."

Sentencing for the former magistrate has been set for May 23. Prosecutor Whaley said this week that no decision has yet been made on whether to re-try Roberts on the six counts on which the jury failed to reach a verdict.

Of the other defendants indicted with Roberts as a result of the state police investigation of 1982 county finances, former deputy judge-executive Thomas Lafferty, Sr. and his son, former county clerk Thomas Lafferty, Jr. still await trial. A Pike jury was unable to reach a verdict on a trial of the senior Lafferty last July; no new trial date has yet been set for him and no trial date has yet been set for his son.

Magistrate Ed Caudill was convicted last July of possessing a forged check and sentenced to a year in jail. He remains free and in office while the conviction is under appeal.

Hugh Fugate pleaded guilty last July to three counts of theft by deception and received concurrent one-year jail terms. He was released from Floyd county jail in December after serving 10 weeks of his sentence.

Entering guilty pleas to reduced, misdemeanor charges were Alma Castle, her son Anthony Castle, and Harlos Marshall. Mrs. Castle received a one-year, probated sentence; one-year sentences were also recommended for her son and for Marshall but formal sentencing has been delayed, pending their possibly testifying for the Commonwealth in later trials.

Trials are yet to be scheduled in Floyd Circuit Court for Ballard, Ricky and Jackie Crum, and in Pike Circuit Court for John Mark Stephens.

Kenneth Roberts and his sister-in-law, Naomi Green, were cleared of theft counts in a trial earlier this year.

Folk Blues Musician To Be at Appalshop

Sparky Rucker is a folk-blues musician from Knoxville, Tennessee. Based on his contention that there is a strong and largely unrecognized body of black balladry in this nation's past, he pursues black American heritage through American ballads.

In addition to being a polished performer and instrumentalist (guitar, banjo, spoon, tamborine and hands and feet), he accompanies his warm, soulful singing with fine finger-picking and slide guitar. His performances are entertaining, but it is his research that demands attention.

The former schoolteacher learned that many of the standard ballads, which were assumed to have been written by white people, were actually, written by blacks, such as Stagger Lee, Delia Homes, and Poor Lazarus.

Rucker remarked, "many people, even blacks, shun the blues because they consider the music sad." What they don't realize, he said, is that "the old blues songs were the Top 40 of their period. Those songs were to get you out of that sadness."

In addition to the blues, Sparky sings ballads, gospel and worksongs. He offers his audience both an oral and musical history of black Americans.

Robert and Charlie Engle will be opening the show with original folk and country tunes.

Rucker will be performing at Appalshop in Whitesburg, May 3 at 8 p.m. Tickets are available. For reservations, call Jerri at 606/633-0108.

K Mart Provides Food For Needy Area Families

The Pikeville K mart provided an Easter feast for 10 needy families in the area.

On Friday, March 28, each family received food baskets from K mart containing ham, potatoes, vegetables and bread—all the holiday meal trimmings for a family of four.

Schools helped to identify needy families in the area, and K mart employees delivered the food baskets to each family.

"Last year our Thanksgiving and Christmas food basket programs were very well received by the community," said K mart Manager Tom Dersler. "K mart wants to continue to reach out to those less fortunate and provide nutritional meals for needy families as often as possible."

The Pikeville K mart is one of 2,100 K mart stores participating in this nationwide community Good News Program.

S.A.R. To Meet
At Ashland Apr. 25

The Ashland Chapter, Kentucky Society, Sons of the American Revolution, will have a luncheon-meeting at Bellefonte Country Club, Ashland, at noon Friday, April 25, celebrating its 36th anniversary.

Membership in the Society is based on authenticated descendancy from a person active in the American Revolution. James B. Goble, chapter president, welcomes and urges all members to be present.

At Ft. Leonard Wood

Billy Ray Handshoe, of Hueysville, has enlisted in the United States Army and will receive training as a light wheeled vehicle mechanic. He was assisted in choosing a skill from among the many available in today's Army by Sgt. Robert Gordon, of the Prestonsburg Recruiting Station.

Handshoe is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilkie Handshoe, of Hueysville, and attended Allen Central High School.

The 18-year-old Floyd county resident decided to join the Army because "I've wanted to be in the Army, it's always been a dream and now I'm really doing it and it's great!"

Handshoe is receiving basic combat training and advanced individual training at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo. After training, he will be assigned to stateside duty.

Inspector General Is State Watchdog

When William Gardner says his main job is oversight responsibility, he may be guilty of the understatement of the year.

Gardner is Inspector General for Kentucky's Cabinet for Human Resources. And, like E.F. Hutton, when the Inspector General's office speaks, people listen. Sometimes they want to listen. Most of the time they have to listen.

In fact, if Kentucky state government agencies ever conducted a popularity contest, the Office of the Inspector General probably wouldn't get many votes, even from within the Cabinet for Human Resources itself.

"This office may be considered by some as a necessary evil, but I'd like to be thought of as a necessary good," said Gardner. "The function of our staff is that of a watchdog. We try to see to it that Kentuckians are provided with the best possible services. And that's regardless of whether those services come from someone with a state license or from another part of this cabinet."

The role of the Office of the Inspector General falls into three general categories: investigation, consultation, and enforcement. However, those few, broad areas encompass very specific and important responsibilities, such as:

A spot check of a day care center for proper child care staffing, nutrition, education and health and safety requirements;

A routine inspection of a hospital or nursing home to insure that state and federal health care standards are being adhered to;

A follow-up on a report that an employment agency is advertising jobs which either don't exist or haven't been listed with that business;

A joint investigation with the cabinet's Adult Protection branch into a complaint of abuse or neglect of residents at a nursing home;

An audit to examine the validity of the Medicaid charges submitted by a hospital or nursing home;

Or even an internal investigation of possible poor management, fraud or criminal actions involving another section of the Cabinet for Human Resources.

"We have fewer than 150 staff statewide who serve in some investigative or direct regulatory role, so there's no way that we can watch everybody and everything," Gardner said. "At the same time, our inspections are unannounced, our investigations are conducted carefully and quietly, and no one knows exactly when our auditors will be examining their records. In other words, our presence is well-known by those we regulate."

The Office of the Inspector General consists of three divisions:

Licensing and Regulation, which licenses, inspects and enforces standards set for health care facilities, ambulance services, employment agencies and day care centers;

Audits, which reviews Medicaid charges by health care providers, referring disallowed or fraudulent charges to other enforcement agencies, as well as auditing contracts for external services provided to the cabinet;

Special Investigations, which gathers evidence in cases of alleged fraud by welfare recipients and conducts probes and management reviews within the cabinet itself at the request of the secretary or a department's commissioner.

Gardner said while he believes strongly in all three general roles assigned to the Inspector General—investigation, consultation and enforcement—he feels the consultation role has to be the key.

"We enforce established standards and regulations. We can't go beyond what are in most cases minimum standards. That puts us squarely between the proverbial rock and a hard place—specifically licensed service providers and special consumer interest groups," he said. "It serves no one to walk around, in a non-emergency situation, waving a 'big stick' and threatening enforcement action just because the authority is there."

"We have proven that when we do find problems during an inspection or an investigation, corrective action and improved services to the clients can be achieved much faster than we attempt to work with the provider on a solution."

EKU Slates Tryouts For Band Auxiliary

Auditions for flag, rifle, and majorette positions in the 1986 edition of Eastern Kentucky University's Marching Maroons Band will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday, May 3.

Auditions will be held in the auxiliary gym of EKU's Alumni Coliseum, according to Dr. Robert Hartwell, EKU director of bands.

Tryouts will consist of an individual routine to music of the applicant's choice, and a group routine. A short training session will be held to teach each flag, rifle, or majorette candidate the group routine.

Auditions are open to incoming freshman, transfer students, and students currently enrolled at EKU.

For more information, or to pre-register, please contact Dr. Robert Hartwell, Department of Music, Foster 101, EKU, Richmond, Ky., 40475, or call (606) 622-3161.

How high can a grasshopper leap? Nearly 10 feet, thanks to a rubber band-like protein called resilin stored in a grasshopper's knees, reports International Wildlife magazine. Resilin has a returning stored energy value of 97 percent, which means a ball made of the substance would bounce nearly as high as you threw it.

Sign-up Under Way For Tap-on, Rehab Program

Mud Creek residents wishing to apply for assistance under programs designed to connect their homes to the public water system or upgrade the plumbing in their homes have until the end of next week to file a claim.

They should come to the Mud Creek Clinic between 10 a.m. and 7 p.m. Monday through Saturday, said Rob Nicholas, a water specialist with the Big Sandy Area Development District. They will need to bring a paper showing their annual income, since there are income limits for those applying under the programs.

Under the tap-on program, the Mud Creek Water District will install and connect a meter free of charge. The rehab program is designed for persons 62 or older, whose homes lack indoor plumbing.

Miss Turner, Mr. Martin Wed

Miss Charletta Turner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sterlin Turner, of Garrett, and Mr. Harvey Lee Martin, son of Mr. Robert Martin, of Topmost, exchanged wedding vows March 15 at the Martin Branch Free Will Baptist Church. The Rev. Clinton "Buddy" Jones solemnized the wedding ceremony. Selection of nuptial music were presented by Connie Tackett, pianist. The bride, who was escorted to the altar by her father, wore a gown of chiffon and Schiffler embroidered lace. Her chapel-length heart-shaped train was adorned with ruffled lace and pearls. She wore a strand of pearls given to her by a friend who lives in Hong Kong, and she carried a cascade bouquet of pink roses and stephanotis. Alysia Turner, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Vylinda Carrie Turner, cousin of the bride, served as flower girl. Both wore dresses of pink chiffon and matching picture hats. Mr. David Ray Crager was the best man, and Jason Martin, cousin of the groom, served as ringbearer. Stella Renee Click and Christie Rae Shepherd, both cousins of the bride, welcomed guests and served as guest book attendants. Vyron Todd Turner, seaman in the United States Navy, served as the usher. The ceremony was followed by a reception at the church. Mr. and Mrs. Martin are now residing at Garrett.

"Last Days Of Life" Workshop Slated at Lodge, April 16

Our Lady of the Way Hospital will sponsor a one-day workshop for nurses called "The Last Days of Life: Care of the Terminally Ill" April 16 at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Resort Park. Registration will begin at 8:30 a.m., and the program will be held from 9 a.m. to 3:45 p.m.

Care of the terminally ill, especially how that differs from care of the acutely ill, will be the workshop's focus. A panel will discuss the rights of terminally ill patients.

The workshop will be taught by Sister Virginia Farrel, R.N., M.S., executive director of Hazard-Perry County Hospice and Sue Snyder, R.N. oncology nurse specialist of St. Elizabeth Hospital in Covington. Pat Tyson, R.N., of the McDowell Cancer Network in Hyden, will lead the panel discussion.

The workshop has been approved by the Kentucky Board of Nursing for five contact hours.

Registered and licensed practical nurses who wish to attend should contact Naewana Nickles, R.N., at Our Lady of the Way Hospital, P.O. Box 910, Martin, Ky. 41649, or call her at 606-285-5181, ext. 78.

USDA Pulls Props From Meat Pricing

Efforts by beef and pork producers to prop up prices by reducing production may inadvertently have been thwarted by fallout from the buyout program currently underway in the dairy industry. The U.S. Department of Agriculture, in an effort to reduce the overabundance of dairy products the federal government winds up buying every year, is in the process of buying thousands of dairy farmers out of business. The whole herd dairy buyout program has resulted in the purchase, by USDA, of almost 14,000 dairy herds. Those now defunct dairies will send 1.55 million cows to slaughter within the next 18 months.

Those cattle will add an estimated 500 million pounds of beef to the market, 325 million of it in the next six months.

"The consumer will not see much of this meat except as ground beef," said Dennis Fox, a food biochemist at the University of Kentucky. "Most of these animals will go into hamburger, baloney and steaks in family-priced restaurants."

USDA is authorized to buy 400 million pounds of the meat that will hit the market as a result of the buyout, but it remains unclear just how much the government will actually take off the market, and when. Regardless, Fox said, the consumer is not likely to enjoy any reduced prices.

"The processor will sit on it. Not even McDonald's or Burger King is likely to realize any great benefit. Beef producers will see prices fall for a while as a result of an oversupply. But you can freeze ground beef for up to a year, and very little of this meat will be sold fresh. It will cost the processor to store the meat, but that's better for him than watching the bottom fall out of the market," Fox said.

NUMB ARMS, LEGS' Warning Signals

There may be misalignment of vertebrae in the spine causing pressure on nerves, yet the patient experiences no pain in the back. Instead, a variety of sensations may be felt in other parts of the body. These include tingling, tightness, hot spots, cold spots, crawling sensations, electric shock sensations, stinging, burning, and others.

The following nine symptoms involving back pain or strange sensations are often the forerunners of more serious conditions. Any one of these may spell back trouble

- (1) Paresthesias (see above) (2) Headaches (3) Painful joints (4) Numbness in the arms or hands (5) Loss of sleep (6) Stiffness in the neck (7) Pain between the shoulders (8) Stiffness or pain in lower back (9) Numbness or pain in the legs.

These signals may indicate your body is being robbed of normal nerve function. Until this function is restored, you will, in some degree, be incapacitated. The longer you wait to seek help, the worse the condition will likely become. Don't wait! Should you experience any of these warning signals...call for in depth consultation in Layman's terms.

Call BUD Before You Dig

Planting a garden? Adding an extra room? Before you do any digging, call BUD—Kentucky's Underground Utilities Protection Center.

"South Central Bell and many other Kentucky utilities install underground cables, lines and pipes to keep maintenance costs low and the surrounding area attractive," said Art Willett, local manager. "But if these underground facilities are damaged by cuts, you've got a disruption of service and costly emergency repairs."

Willett urges all diggers—from backyard gardeners to professional contractors—to call BUD before turning that first shovelful of dirt. The center, nicknamed BUD to remind you to call "Before-U-Dig," will notify the utilities in your area. If there are underground facilities in the area where you plan to dig, the utilities' crews will mark the site with colored flags or paint.

"There is no charge for the service," Willett said.

"BUD's toll-free number is 1-800-752-6007, and the center is open Monday through Friday 7:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m.

Shape-Note Singing To Be Held at Berea

The fourth annual Kentucky Sacred Harp singing convention is scheduled Saturday, May 17, at Berea College.

The all-day shape-note singing begins at 9:30 a.m. and will continue until 3 p.m. in Berea's Woods-Penniman Building. There is no admission charge or registration requirement.

Hugh McGraw, chairman of the Sacred Harp Publishing Company and one of the leading shape note teachers in the country, will direct, using the "Sacred Harp," tune book originally published in 1844.

Singers and those interested in listening are invited to attend and to join participants in a dinner on the ground at noon, according to Ray Turner, of Hazard, convention coordinator. Area residents are asked to bring food for the potluck meal. Beverages and dinnerware will be provided.

The event, Kentucky's only annual Sacred Harp gathering, is expected to draw participants from several surrounding states, Turner said. Berea College and the University of Kentucky's Appalachian Association of Sacred Harp Singers, are sponsoring the program.

For additional information, call the Berea College Recreation Extension Office, 606-986-9341, Ext. 453, between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. During evening hours, contact Faith Shine, Lexington, 606-272-4171; Ray Turner, Hazard, 606-378-7021, or Jane Stephenson, Berea, 606-986-9341, Ext. 132.

PCC's Elroy Is Missing

PCC BOOKSTORE MANAGER Carol Horn with notes from "kidnappers" of the store's mannequin, Elroy. Said Horn of the prank, "It's moral turpitude."

By Jeff Weddle

School days, school days...

Though Prestonsburg Community College's Mountain Dew Festival has shrunk now to encompass only intramural activities, once it was an annual athletic and social event bringing together community college students from across the state to ease the pressures of academia, relax and have fun. Some PCC students seem to have a bit of the old spirit left.

Case in point: the kidnapping of Elroy. PCC bookstore manager Carol Horn said the mannequin, which sat just inside the store's doorway, with signs requesting that students leave their books on shelves there, disappeared last week without a trace. It was only later that she suspected foul play.

"Elroy was taken at about 3 p.m. (last Monday)," said Horn. "My assistant, Ralph, was in the back room. When he came out, Elroy was gone."

First there was a phone call from the "kidnappers," with a voice in the background claiming to be the purloined dummy and screaming for help. Notes began appearing the next day, along with a photograph of Elroy bound and gagged, a painted-on black eye marring his youthful face. The first note was handwritten in ink on regular notebook paper. The second was more professional, with words cut from newsprint pasted on a paper plate, telling Horn not to do anything foolish if she wanted to see Elroy again.

Horn addresses the prank with tongue firmly in cheek, but says it points out a need for tighter security at the bookstore. "We might need to install a doorbell," she said.

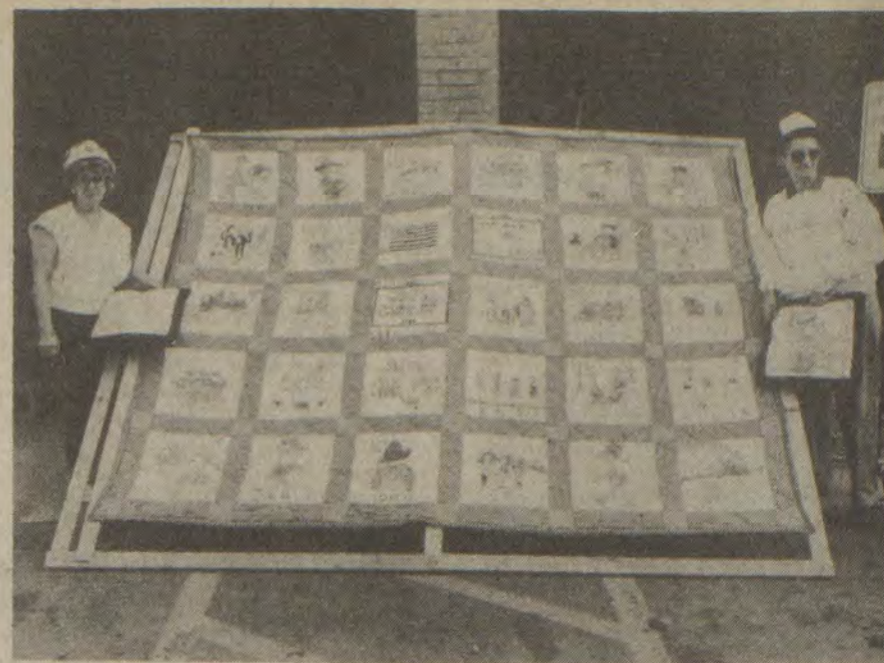

Last year, she said, a group of students had threatened to burn Elroy in effigy, but none of that crew is attending PCC this semester, eliminating them from the list of probable suspects.

The bookstore acquired Elroy a couple of years ago, during a business trip Horn made to Kansas. She found him and his "sister," Elvira, on sale and shipped them here.

"We noticed Elroy was different from other boys when he wouldn't move," said Horn. "He would eat M&M's, but they'd just smear on his face."

Horn doubts the practical joke is related to Mountain Dew. She said it's probably just friends of her employees having a good time. However, employee Chip Dorton disagrees. "I'm sure they're related," he said. But Dorton went further. "The funny thing is, Elroy comes apart. I know they're gonna send him back in pieces. And I wouldn't put it past them to take his clothes off and hang him from the flagpole."

Horn was philosophical about the whole affair. "It's possible this all started because they didn't like to leave their books at the door," she said. "Or maybe they just wanted us to change his shirt."

Foreigners Reminded Of AFIDA Requirement

Foreigners who have bought or sold agricultural land in Floyd county are reminded to report the transaction to the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service within 90 days.

"The Foreign Investments Disclosure Report is required by the Agricultural Foreign Investment Disclosure Act, according to Joe Ed Slone, chairperson of the Floyd county ASC Committee. The Act requires all foreign owners of U.S. agricultural land to report their holdings, acquisitions, dispositions, leases of 10 years or more, and land use changes to ASCS.

According to Mr. Slone, foreign investors have reported owning about 12.1 million acres of agricultural land in the United States.

For reporting purposes, agricultural land is defined as any tract of more than 10 acres now in agricultural, forestry or timber production. This includes land in agricultural use when purchased, as well as land later converted to agricultural use. Foreigners who own or have an interest in 10 acres or less do not need to report unless annual proceeds from the sale of agricultural products grown on these acres exceed $1000. Interest means any right, title or legal share of ownership in agricultural land, such as partnerships, trusts, estates or shares in a corporation that owns agricultural land.

Under AFIDA, land owned by foreigners before February 1977 should have been reported by August 1979. Foreigners who have acquired or disposed of agricultural land since that time should have submitted a Foreign Disclosure Report to ASCS within 90 days of such transaction. Those who fail to report or who are late in reporting face possible fines.

Individuals or companies that specialize in land holding, land transfers or management services should contact the local ASCS Office for details on reporting in behalf of foreign clients.

STUMBO PARK NEWS

By OSCAR RICE
 Director, Stumbo Park
 High school baseball is now a weekly feature at Stumbo Park, at Allen. Allen Central and Betsy Layne now use the field for home games, with McDowell and Prestonsburg playing some games on the park. Allen Central was the only team playing at home this week, and they compiled a 2 and 3 record, dropping games to Mullins, 16 to 8, Virgie, 5 to 4, and Knott County Central, 7 to 5 on Saturday, while Randy Hansford bested Wheelwright, 17 to 3, and Nathan Shelton went two innings for the win over Knott County Central in Saturday's doubleheader.

Hitting stars on the young Allen Central team were Robbie Click, Radie Martin and Arnold "Pooch" Prater with homeruns for the week.

Keith Webb, Roger Horne, and Robert Lee all chipped in with timely hits in the games.

In a light schedule this week, Allen Central plays McDowell at 4:30 Tuesday, and Betsy Layne opens their home schedule with a doubleheader against Millard on Wednesday.

The talented Bobcats of Betsy Layne are the pre-season pick for the district crown as they lost to regional champion Paintsville in last year's regional semi-finals; and returned everyone but one senior from that team.

Saturday, April 12, at 1 o'clock there will be a meeting of all Babe Ruth coaches at the pool at Stumbo Park. A 16-to 18-year-old senior league team or teams will be discussed at this meeting.

At 2 p.m., April 27, the Babe Ruth coaches will hold prep team sign-ups. This new league is open countywide and is strictly for 13-year-olds only, with the hope that this will ease the little leaguers into "Big Field" baseball by competing with their own age group and abilities while competing with the 14 and 15 year olds during the year. This new team concept will allow four to five games per season for only the 13-year-olds.

Stumbo Park is announcing plans for Sunday evening "Picnics in the Park" which will feature gospel singing groups, and hopes to revive the Floyd County Gospel Singing Association. Questions concerning the Floyd County Gospel Singing Association may be directed to Chester Pack at 886-9181 or 886-8073.

For more information, call or see Oscar Rice, Director, Stumbo Park, 874-2965.

Fire Danger Could Delay Turkey Season

The executive order banning most activities in 40 eastern Kentucky counties because of forest fire hazard could delay the scheduled wild turkey hunting season in that part of the state, according to the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

The turkey season is set to open April 16 in selected counties across the state. However, hunting will not be permitted by the governor's executive order as long as this order remains in effect.

The ban on non-essential activities will continue until enough rain falls over the region to substantially reduce the existing forest fire emergency, according to state Division of Forestry officials.

Hunters in Eastern Kentucky should assume that the executive order is in effect and not enter the woods until they hear otherwise.

The following counties in the impacted area have turkey seasons scheduled to open April 16: Bath, Pike, Letcher, Menifee, Harlan, McCreary, Pulaski, Bell and Carter. The Beaver Creek, Cranks Creek and Pioneer Weapons wildlife management areas could also be affected.

In addition to her athletic achievements, she has continued to maintain a 3.8 grade point average and was chosen for Who's Who Among American High School Students. She is a member of the Allen Central Beta Club.

Bassin' with the Pros...

Spring Affects Bass Behavior

By TREY FOERSTER

Spring is a time of peak fishin' fever, especially up North where anglers have had to hibernate from November through April. To take full advantage of the spring season, it pays to understand how bass behave in three distinct spring periods: pre-spawn, spawn, and post-spawn.

Generally speaking, the most important factors in reading these periods are water temperature, weed growth and the developing food chain.

Warming water temperature sets off the spawning instinct. Once the bass is done with the spawn, it wants to have a source of cover available where it can recuperate from its spawning frenzy and can exert little effort in catching prey. That's where weed growth comes in.

The penetration of sunlight is a key factor in the pre-spawn period. Some pros have dubbed this early cycle the "pre-spawn picnic" because of the ravenous feeding frenzy bass have at times. During this period bass school up, so the smart angler can also have a "picnic."

Where does one start fishing in spring?

"I would try the northwest side of the lake or coves that run northwest," says Randy Dearman of the Johnson Outboards Pro Staff. "They'll be protected more from the north wind, and anglers won't have that wind blowing on them. The sun will shine on these waters longer. They should be the first pockets of warmth on the lake, so those would be where the fish would generally spawn first."

On the northwest side of the body of water, key in on rocks, rock piles, and other structures that absorb sunlight and, in turn, radiate that heat into the surrounding water. You can bet that bass will be snuggled up close to those "heaters."

As a general rule of thumb, the pre-spawn period comes when the water temperature is 48° to 58° (Fahrenheit). By asking around at bait and tackle shops, you can find out where the spawning beds are, and odds have it they'll be on the north or northwest side of the lake. If there is a temperature drop, bass move out from the shallow bedding area into deeper waters, but will come back up when there is a corresponding temperature rise. This is the best time to take a lot of bass with crankbaits, No. 7 Fat Raps and Series 600 Bombers.

When the water temperature reaches 58°, and until it exceeds 65°, there will be spawning. However, other factors affecting spawning include bottom conditions and hormone levels. So, contrary to what some anglers think, all bass in a certain area don't spawn at the same time. Some spawn earlier, others later. At any given time in this temperature frame, you may have bass that are in the pre-spawn, spawn and post-spawn cycles, depending on their own biological clock.

Finally, the post-spawn period has a water temperature range of 65° to 68°—which is a very narrow range. For the most part, bass are just "dead"; they don't bite and the big females are off in the depths recuperating.

Through the spring, no matter which of the periods you fish, the bass fisherman can have a heck of a lot of fun on ultra-light tackle. More likely than not, you will catch more small males and these can provide lots of entertainment when caught on 4-pound test line! Pros favor spinnerbaits, minnows on jigs, and Rapalas during this period. Another favorite in parts of the country is a weightless spawning rig—a fancy title for a zero-weight plastic worm on a hook rigged Texas-style (hook imbedded into the middle of the worm). Whatever you decide to use, be sure to maintain a slow retrieve.

Be sure to cast beyond your target. In the spawning period, bring the lure back toward the spawning bed, where you should let it agitate the bass guarding the bed. I generally feel that no harm comes to fish caught during this period if the bass is released so that it can renew its watch on the bed and safeguard the hatch from predators. This insures another generation of America's favorite gamefish.

Have any questions you'd like a bass pro to answer? Jot it down and mail it to "Bassin' with the Pros" at this newspaper. Answers to your questions will appear in a future column.

THE MEADE FAMILY

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of Wesley, Clerinda and Arthur (Aut) Boyd.

This is the family of Wesley and Clerinda Boyd. They had ten children. All are gone except two, aunt Offie and uncle Brad. The deceased are, Jim M., Add M., Warley C., B. Palmer, Arthur A., Minerva Robinette, Mayte Conn, and Sally Click. The Lord has been good to them, they all lived long lives.

It was a shock when we got the news of another that has passed away. I can't speak for all my aunts and uncles, or the other nieces and nephews, but I can speak about uncle Arthur (Aut).

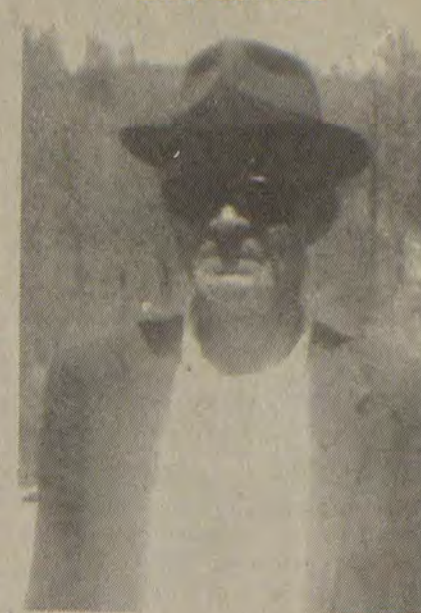

We were all born and raised on Prater Creek. Uncle (Aut) seemed so much closer than just an uncle. He was so good to us all. He has paid his debt and his troubles are all over. I feel he has a better home. Our loss is Heaven's gain.

So children be good to aunt Mona, which I think you all will. I think you are the best children to your parents, I have ever known. Whenever they needed anything, all they had to do was ask, and it was done or fixed right away. You all won't have anything to worry about except the loss of him. I could go on saying good things. But it is no use.

There are just two left of my family, Nell and I, (Minnie). The Lord knows who will be next. I can't visit the sick or visit when some one passes away. But my heart goes out to them. I have sickness at home. Willard, my husband, is not able to go anywhere. So I love you all and may God bless you all is my prayer.

MINNIE BOYD AKERS

IN MEMORY OF LISH LITTLE

APRIL 11, 1896-AUGUST 8, 1983
Daddy left us almost 3 years ago. Although our face he did not know, We knew he loved us very much. Because he knew us through his touch, You were the sunshine of our home. The choice was not yours to leave us alone.

Daddy had eyes but could not see. But in his heart he knew he meant the world to me. Fame and fortune he never had. But in the world of records he was the No. 1 dad.

Daddy sleeps on the hill beside our brother. Thank you Lord, we still have mother. We love you daddy and miss you more each day.

The first combination of black workers occurred when chimney sweepers in Charleston, S.C., refused to work unless their price scale was met. Rather than being a strike against employers, this was a protest against price controls in 1763, according to "Labor Firsts in America," a publication of the U.S. Department of Labor.

HELP THE WIDOW THROUGH GRIEF STAGES

The newly widowed (or "widower-ed") progresses through several emotional stages during mourning. If you recognize these as "stages," it may enable you to help her work through her grieving more fully and effectively.

Sorrow is a basic emotional stage of mourning and very common, often accompanied by self-pity and/or feelings of guilt.

Anger is another stage, a resentment against a "cruel world" which has taken one's mate prematurely.

Fears for the future "without him" as companion and breadwinner are not unusual to a new widow.

Anxiety makes her wonder "who will provide for the family" and "how will I manage my finances alone?"

The widow's confidence in her own abilities need to be strengthened so her re-entry into the world of reality may be achieved more smoothly. As a widow, if she recognizes these stages as natural and common to all, the social adjusting she does will be easier, faster, more effective.

About Your Social Security...

Medicare Available For Kidney Failure

Almost every person in the Big Sandy area who has permanent kidney failure and needs maintenance dialysis treatment or a kidney transplant is eligible for Medicare health insurance, Jim Kelly, District Director for the Big Sandy Area, said recently.

Medicare helps pay for kidney transplant surgery and related inpatient hospital services. It also covers outpatient maintenance dialysis and helps pay for doctors' services including surgeons' services for transplants, outpatient self-dialysis training, and home dialysis treatment, supplies, and periodic support services. Medicare also helps cover the costs of a donor for kidney transplant services.

To be eligible for Medicare because of kidney failure, a person must have worked long enough to be insured, from 1-1/2 to 3-3/4 years depending on age, or be the wife, husband, or dependent child of an insured worker.

Only the family member with kidney failure is eligible for Medicare; others in the family are not.

For people with kidney failure, Medicare protection usually begins with the third month after the month the person begins a course of maintenance dialysis.

Medicare protection can begin earlier if the person takes part in a self-dialysis training and self-dialyze afterwards. Protection can begin earlier if the person is admitted to an approved hospital for a kidney transplant.

Medicare generally ends 12 months after a person no longer needs maintenance dialysis or 36 months after a kidney transplant. Medicare can be resumed, however, if the kidney transplant fails.

Anyone with permanent kidney failure should contact any Social Security office for more information. The people there will be glad to answer any questions. The office is located on U.S. 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville. The telephone number is listed in your local telephone directory under U.S. Government.

P'burg Residents Cast In JWT Season

Four Prestonsburg residents have been cast in Jenny Wiley Theatre's upcoming 1986 summer season. The four were selected from auditions held locally in February and April.

Brandon McDonald, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl J. McDonald; Jesse Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Jones; Stacy Webb, son of Bill and Flora Webb, and Ruth Jessen, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Tim Jessen, will join a group of over 40 actors and technicians in the Jenny Wiley company. Rehearsals begin in early June, and the season opens June 10 with Cotton Patch Gospel, followed by Shenandoah, June 18, Oliver!, July 2, and Sweet Charity, July 17.

Artistic Director Dan Delafield said "We had great turnouts at both auditions," Delafield said, "and I'd like to thank everyone who came out and auditioned for us."

For more information on Jenny Wiley Theatre's 22nd season, call (606) 886-9274.

Pharmacy Footnotes

GENERIC DRUGS

During the past several years, consumers have become more and more aware of the money that can be saved by purchasing generic rather than brand-name drugs. Generic drugs must meet the same FDA standards for safety, strength, purity and effectiveness as brand-name drugs. As a result, the differences between them are largely economic. It is a common misconception that brand-name drugs are produced only by large, well-known firms while generics are made by small, unknown companies. A small drug company can put a brand-name on its product just as a large company can market a drug under the generic name. In fact, some manufacturers make a drug and sell it under both a trade name and its generic name.

Friendly service and the latest medications for all your family's needs can be found here at COOLEY APOTHECARY. We are your local full service pharmacy offering you the personal service your health deserves. You'll find us located in No. 2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106 and open Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-4. Master Charge and Visa honored plus we welcome all third party payments.

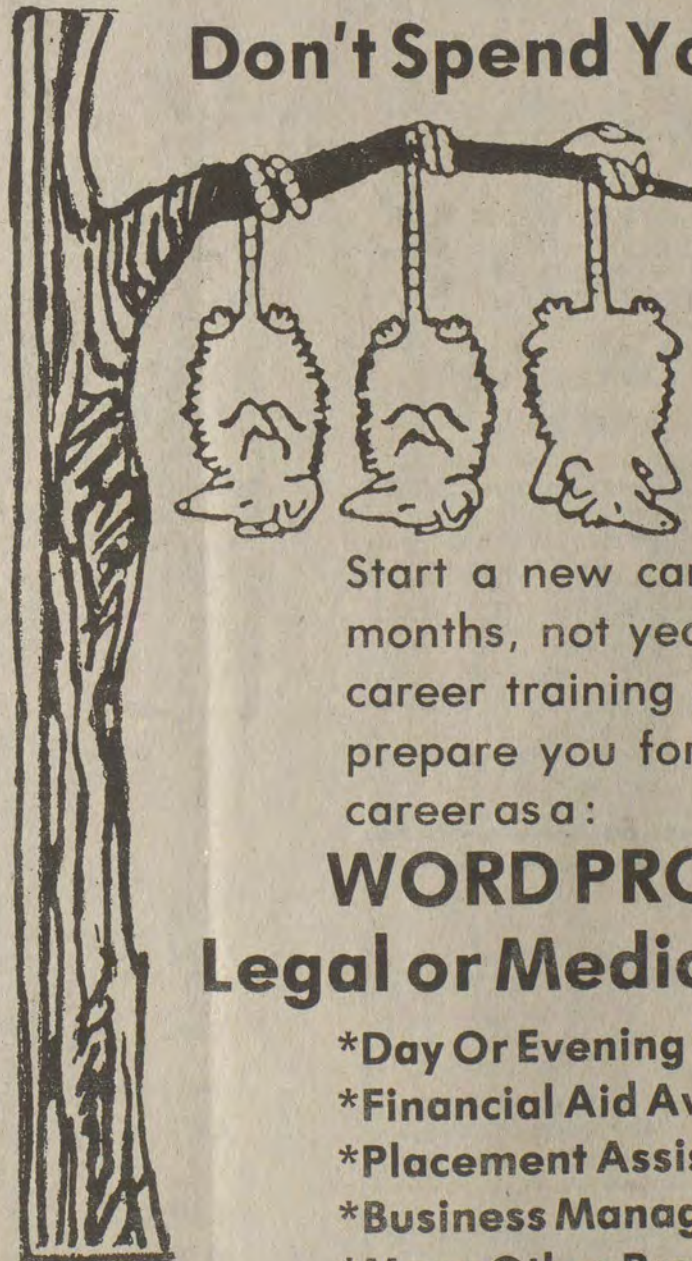

HANDY HINT:

When a generic is substituted for a name-brand drug, the average saving is 30 to 40 percent.

Adams Is Certified Building Inspector

City Fire Inspector Larry Adams has added another credential to his list of credits—building inspector.

Adams said he received word from Frankfort last week, making him the second person with such certification in Prestonsburg. For years, Paul Chaffins has been the only one here so certified.

Fire Chief Tom Blackburn praised both men, saying Adams' certification would help ease Chaffins' work load although Adams' primary duties will still be as fire inspector.

The BOX SEAT

The beginning of the end of 'Monday Night Football'?

By Marty Linehan

An American institution could come to an end after this season.

That's right. ABC's "Monday Night Football" is in trouble, due to losses in advertising, problems in the announcing booth, the upcoming expiration of the network's five-year contract with the NFL next year, and the strictly bottom-line outfit, Capital Cities, which now owns ABC. But it's good to see that ABC is keeping its eye on baseball.

ABC will expand this year's coverage to a total of 22 games. Ten games, from April 20 to July 6, will air Sunday afternoons; eight games, from June 30 to Aug. 25, will air Monday nights; and three additional Sunday afternoon games will be broadcast late in the season.

The announcers are top drawer. Al Michaels and Jim Palmer will cover the American League contests for the main regional Monday night games, while Tim McCarver will aid Michaels with National League games. The regional games will have Palmer and McCarver adding color to Keith Jackson's play-by-play.

ABC will also televise the All-Star Game from the Astrodome in Houston on July 15, and both the National League and the American League championship series.

As for the football telecasts, could it be that Howard Cosell was right? Heaven forbid! But "Monday Night Football" did lose a lot when he left.

John Astin has put together a varied acting career

By Lynn Hoogenboom

John Astin still has vivid memories of the day he told his father, Allen Varley Astin, a noted physicist, that he wanted to be an actor.

John Astin

"I said, 'Pop, I think I'm going to become an actor,'" Astin recalls. "He put down his book, and there was a look of shock on his face. And he said, 'But, John. That's a second-rate profession.'

"Eventually, he tried to come off that remark," Astin adds. "But that, I think, was the essence of how he really felt. He was supportive always, but he wasn't happy about it at first."

Astin has been appearing in "Mary" on CBS and also has a starring role in "Mr. Boogedy," the "Disney Sunday Night Movie" airing April 20 on ABC.

Astin started out in the theater (he appeared in the original New York productions of "The Three Penny Opera" and "Ulysses in Nighttown"), and he made his motion-picture debut in "West Side Story" (1961). "I played Glad Hand, the social director who tries to get the kids to dance at the gym," says Astin. "For five minutes, I was the star of the picture."

His other movies include "That Touch of Mink," "Candy" and "Viva Max," and he has starred in the television series "I'm Dickens — He's Fenster" (1962-63), "The Addams Family" (1964-66) and "Operation Petticoat" (1977-79).

In fact, "Mary," on which he plays Ed LaSalle, the pompous theater critic, is his first series — with the exception of a short stint on "The Phyllis Diller Show" (1967) — in which he has not played a starring role. But he doesn't seem to mind.

"I've really enjoyed this job," says Astin. "Jimmy Farentino and I were having lunch together one day, and we looked at each other and we just started to laugh about how good this job is. We're certainly rooting for the show."

About Miss Moore, he simply says, "She's the best. She can make a symphony out of an ordinary line. I've had a lot of experience, but I really look sometimes in awe and wonder at her ability to carry the show as she does. And whatever obstacles occur in the first year — and they do occur — she has been able to maintain like an absolute champion."

Kentucky Afield...

April Is White Bass Time

When anglers daydream about spring, crappie often come to mind. And rightly so because we have some great crappie fishing waters in Kentucky. But in doing this, a whole lot of folks overlook what is probably the bread-and-butter springtime fish for a majority of Kentuckians—the white bass. There's no scrapper fish that swims our lakes and rivers than "old silver," or the "stripe" as he's called.

And if you don't believe me, grab a handful of jigs and spinners, an ultralight rod and reel and head for the nearest tailwaters area or the shallow flats of a cove on most any major lake. You'll probably find white bass because there's no better time to catch white bass than now. April is white bass time.

White bass spawning runs occur in most of our river systems where there's fast moving water, as well as in the tailwaters and headwaters of large man-made lakes and in tailwater areas below highrise dams on the Ohio River. White bass (Monrone chrysops) are highly adaptable fish which thrive in the presence of gizzard and threadfin shad populations. In Kentucky, white bass are found in both highland reservoirs like Lake Cumberland and Laurel River Lake, as well as classic flatland impoundments like Kentucky Lake and Lake Barkley.

Built in 1925, Herrington Lake was Kentucky's first large scale manmade impoundment. Although the 1,860-acre lake in central Kentucky's Mercer, Garrard and Boyle counties has always been a top black bass producer, its reputation was earned because of a highly popular white bass run. Through the years many of stringer of white bass has been taken from the swift waters below the Ky-52 bridge in Garrard county, just east of Danville.

For reasons not completely understood by biologists, Herrington Lake's white bass fishery declined in the late 1970s during a time when the lake was drawn down extremely low for dam repairs.

But biologist Benjy Kinman, the department's coordinator of the Predator Fish Evaluation Study, said that "data from recent creel surveys, cove rotenone studies and gill netting indicates that the white bass fishery is now on the increase."

Kinman explained that the good white bass spawns in 1983 and 1984 have really helped the population rebound. According to data collected by a creel clerk on Herrington Lake in 1983, the white bass harvest was estimated at 14,515 pounds or 8 percent of the harvest total by weight. Because of poor fishing conditions—high water in the spring and low water in the fall due to repairs on the dam—the 1984 harvest total dropped to 517 pounds, or 1.2 percent of the total harvest by weight. In 1985, the white bass harvest total jumped to 20,173 pounds or 8.1 percent of the total harvest by weight. The good fishing in 1985 may be attributed to solid year classes of fish found in studies during 1984—large number of young-of-the-year fingerling white bass, and 8 to 9-inch and 13 to 15-inch adults sampled in cove rotenone studies and gill nets.

Ronda Combs Is Named Wayland C-F Chairman

Ronda Combs has been appointed chairman of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation's spring fund-raising event in Wayland.

"We are grateful for her commitment and support," said Robert Montague, president of the Kentucky/West Virginia Chapter of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation. "Together, as a team working on similar fund-raising events, we can make a strong impact on the fight to conquer cystic fibrosis."

Money raised from the event will help fund research to determine the genetic cause and treatments for cystic fibrosis, the nation's number one genetic killer of young people. Cystic Fibrosis is an incurable disease which primarily affects the lungs and digestive system. Thanks to money raised in previous events, the past year saw tremendous strides in cystic fibrosis research. These advances have brought the cure to cystic fibrosis within sight.

This year, events are being held nationwide in memory of Alex Deford, who died of cystic fibrosis in 1980 at age eight. She was the daughter of Frank Deford, senior writer for Sports Illustrated and chairman of the National Board of Trustees of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation. The story of Alex's short, courageous life will be told in an ABC television movie airing April 21.

Safe Trucking Is Top Priority of KSP Program

"Operation Truck S.T.O.P.", Safe Trucking Our Priority, a program for the enforcement of moving hazardous violations for trucks is moving into the last phase of the program. The program is sponsored by the Kentucky State Police in cooperation with the Kentucky Motor Transport Association.

Because of the increase of fatal and non-fatal accidents involving tractor-trailers in recent years, KSP Commissioner Morgan T. Elkins has engaged the state police in a three-phase program to reduce these kinds of accidents.

The first phase of the program determined truck involvement in crashes in Kentucky. "Big trucks are twice as likely as small trucks to be in a crash—three times as likely as passenger vehicles to be in a fatal crash," says Elkins.

In 1984, tractor-trailers were involved in more than 14,400 accidents. Of those, 149 people were killed and 3,772 were injured. This is compared to 1983, when there were 11,213 accidents involving big rigs; 119 were killed and 2,936 were injured.

National studies have found that one of every three tractor-trailers can expect to crash in a year. Because of these crashes, a car occupant is 35 times more likely to be killed than if he collided with another car and a person riding in a subcompact is 52 times more likely to be killed.

In addition to this data, contributing factors were examined. Defective brakes and oversized loads were two of the major mechanical contributors to these accidents. Failure to yield the right-of-way and driver inattention were also two of the main human errors, but fatigue is probably the primary cause of more than 40 percent of big truck crashes.

Because of these local and national statistics, phase two of "Operation Truck S.T.O.P." was implemented—an information campaign stressing adherence to the 55 MPH speed law, vehicle maintenance of equipment and drunk driving. Problems abound in each of these areas.

Average truck speeds, according to one survey, are as high as 67 MPH depending on the location. The larger motor carrier companies support this law in theory, but it is not usually adhered to on the road.

When crucial equipment on a tractor-trailer fails the results can be disastrous. The braking disparity alone means that when a car driver brakes in an emergency, the big rig behind may not be able to stop in time. If the brakes are not in good working order, the results could be fatal.

Alcohol is another problem. One in five truck drivers killed in single-vehicle crashes have illegally high blood alcohol content. Truck drivers are rarely killed in fatal multiple-vehicle crashes, and they are rarely tested for alcohol. A federal report puts alcohol involvement at 24 to 36 percent of all crashes in which the truck driver is killed.

Elkins says the trucking industry was drawn into this second phase. "The industry was included in the educational effort to encourage voluntary compliance. We stressed the economic impact and safety, including the use of safety belts."

Phase Three of Truck S.T.O.P. is going into effect today. The KSP, along with the full cooperation of the Kentucky Motor Transport Association, is launching a media blitz campaign and an enforcement program. "Since the deregulation of the trucking industry, it's been just a matter of time before action would have to be taken on a state level. Since de-regulation, there has been a series of rate cutting by the truckers in order to maintain business. In turn, the first programs to suffer from the competition has been their safety programs," adds Elkins.

Strict enforcement will take place on Kentucky's primary roads. However, the KSP will provide for fair and equal enforcement on trucks, along with other vehicles that travel Kentucky's highway system. This phase is primarily intended for attention to be directed to moving hazardous violations by trucks for an indefinite period of time.

Elkins says that like other highway safety problems, the hazards posed by big rigs are not solved by a single solution. "We need to educate the general public as well as the trucking industry. Both factions need to understand and respect the problems of the other."

Alcohol, Drug-Free Proms Are Planned

Plans for drug- and alcohol-free graduation parties are under way at high schools across the state.

The Student Advisory Council to the Kentucky Department of Education sponsored a seminar in November to teach high school students and their advisers how to plan successful drug-free parties that would attract teens.

The 18-member council appointed by Superintendent of Public Instruction Alice McDonald selected the project as a method of reducing teen traffic fatalities.

They sponsored the three-day seminar in cooperation with the Department of Education and the Kentucky State Police.

State Police Capt. John Lile told the council that teen-agers were three times as likely to be involved in drunken-driving accidents as people of other ages and that one out of 10 weekend drivers was drunk.

Teens and sponsors planning the parties have begun soliciting donations of money and materials from their communities.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Norman Allen wishes to thank all who were so kind and concerned upon his injury and during the following weeks, especially those who offered prayers. We will always be grateful for your support. We deeply appreciate all the expressions of sympathy and comfort extended to us upon his death and truly thank all who helped in any way, for the floral tributes, those who brought food, or who made contributions in his memory. We especially appreciate the willingness of the Rev. Ira McMillan, who came here to conduct his funeral services.

Again, we thank you all for your continuing kindness.

1986 might mark the beginning of a caviar race with the Russians... thanks to Sergei Doroshov, a Soviet caviar expert who defected to the United States in 1977. With Doroshov's help, Californians may succeed in raising the first completely American domesticated offspring of sturgeon, whose eggs are known as caviar, reports National Wildlife magazine. The delicacy should sell for about 1800 a pound in this country.

Wildlife Federation Threatens Suit Over Failure to Enforce Strip Law

The National Wildlife Federation and the Kentucky Resources Council, an independent, non-profit organization, notified the Office of Surface Mining (OSM) and the U.S. Department of the Interior this week of their intent to sue in 60 days if the OSM fails to fulfill its responsibilities under the 1977 Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act.

The two organizations charge that Jed Christensen, acting director of OSM and Donald P. Hodel, Secretary of the Interior, have failed to perform vital statutory responsibilities in nine key areas. These include OSM's failure to perform a sufficient number of inspections and enforcement actions to assure strip mine operators comply with the federal law; failure to deny new permits to strip mine operators who have outstanding violations; and failure to oversee that states ensure proper reclamation of mine sites.

OSM's oversight program has been under fire from the Federation for years. Last October, NWF released a comprehensive study, "Failed Oversight—A Report on the Failure of the Office of Surface Mining," the result of a year-long analysis by NWF staff of the agency's management and enforcement activities.

"More than nine years after passage of the federal strip mining law, OSM is badly mismanaged and guilty of neglecting its responsibility to assure that the states carry out their enforcement responsibilities," said Jay D. Hair, NWF executive vice president. "Instead of helping solve the environmental abuse brought about by unregulated strip mining, the OSM has allowed abuses of staggering proportions to continue unabated."

Unreclaimed strip mines have caused serious environmental damage in coal-producing states, ranging from landslides and heavy siltation of streams and rivers to acid discharges and massive loss of vegetation.

Although the 1977 law grants states the opportunity to regulate the strip mining of coal if certain requirements are met, the Office of Surface Mining is charged with the responsibility for ensuring that the states comply with all aspects of the federal law and regulations.

Twenty-four states initially developed regulatory and enforcement programs, and were granted "primacy,"—i.e. authority to administer the federal law. However, in cases where the state fails to carry out its mandate under the program, OSM is required to take over enforcement responsibilities until the state shows itself capable of properly enforcing the law.

The Kentucky Resources Council, co-plaintiff in the letter, contends that Kentucky, the nation's largest coal-producing state, has a long record of serious strip mining act violations, and is a significant example of state mismanagement and neglect of the federal law.

The nine areas cited in the letter are OSM's failure to:

- 1) take proper inspection and enforcement actions required by the law in cases where the state has failed to do so;
- 2) make the required number of inspections at mine sites prior to the time when the states achieved "primacy";
- 3) take appropriate enforcement actions at more than 1,000 mine sites where strip mine operators abandoned the sites and left the land unreclaimed;
- 4) take action against states which illegally released bonds to operators who did not properly reclaim strip mine sites, and who had outstanding violations of the law;
- 5) inspect and take enforcement actions at off-site coal preparation facilities;
- 6) take appropriate inspection and enforcement actions at coal exploration sites;
- 7) take appropriate enforcement actions in literally thousands of cases where strip mine operators have failed to pay the required fees, to finance reclamation of abandoned mined lands;
- 8) conduct an adequate number of inspections in order to properly evaluate state program performance in enforcing the law;
- 9) deny new permits to strip mine operators who have outstanding, uncorrected violations.

The National Wildlife Federation, celebrating its 50th anniversary this year, is the nation's largest conservation organization with 4.5 million members and supporters in 51 affiliate organizations nationwide.

Fourth Birthday

Kenneth Ryan Hamilton celebrated his fourth birthday March 26 with a party at Burger King. He also had a Thunder Cat cake at home.

He is the son of Kenneth and Christine Hamilton, and the grandson of Mrs. Goldie Hamilton, all of Ivel.

Hummingbirds, among the most prized of all backyard wildlife, are particularly enticed by red flowers and even red-colored vials of sugar water. In fact, sugar water feeders—made by adding one part sugar to four parts water—are so popular that some birds will fight over access to them.

Jobless Rate Up For Feb.

Seasonal trends pushed unemployment up in February, according to figures released recently by the Cabinet for Human Resources.

The normal seasonal decline in trade and construction jobs helped move Kentucky's unemployment rate up from a revised 11.7 percent in January to a preliminary 12.5 percent in February. Nationwide unemployment was also on the rise during February. The national jobless rate jumped from 7.3 percent in January to 7.8 percent in February. The comparable state and national rates are not seasonally adjusted.

"Kentucky's unemployment rate in February is historically one of the highest monthly rates every year," said state labor market analyst Ed Blackwell. "People generally don't plan any kind of construction during the winter months, so construction jobs are down. Fewer people are working in tourism-related jobs at hotels and restaurants. The tobacco market winds down and the post-holiday sales are over, which reduces trade jobs."

Woodford county's 4.9 percent rate was the lowest in the state, followed by Trimble's 5.4 percent, Fayette's 5.9 percent and Oldham's 6.3 percent.

Morgan county reported the highest rate, 31.9 percent, followed by Elliott with 30.8 percent, Magoffin with 28.4 percent and Carter with 28.0 percent.

An estimated 1,460,500 Kentuckians were working in February, down 15,000 from the January figure of 1,475,500 and 20,700 below the February 1985 report of 1,481,200.

The state's unemployed in February totaled an estimated 208,000, up 13,300 from 194,700 in January and 8,100 more than in February 1985, when 199,900 were out of work.

The state's civilian labor force estimate in February was 1,668,500, down 1,700 from the January figure of 1,670,200 and 12,600 below the February 1985 report of 1,681,100. The civilian labor force estimate includes non-military people who are working and unemployed people who actively are seeking jobs. It does not include anyone who is unemployed but not looking for work.

Annual changes in the number of Kentuckians employed and those out of work reflect the number who have dropped out of the labor force.

In the Big Sandy district, the jobless rate rose from a revised 16.6 percent in January to a preliminary 18.3 percent in February. All five counties reported rates above 10.0 percent, ranging from 16.0 percent in Pike county to 28.4 percent in Magoffin county. Floyd county's jobless rate was 17.9.

The monthly sample of claimants of unemployment insurance benefits showed 46.0 percent had worked in mining, 16.8 percent in trade and 12.1 percent in construction.

In the Kentucky River district the unemployment rate rose from a revised 17.3 percent in January to a preliminary 18.5 percent in February. All counties reported double-digit rates ranging from 15.3 percent in Perry county to 25.3 percent in Lee county.

The monthly sample of claimants of unemployment insurance benefits showed 35.5 percent had worked in mining, 17.7 percent in construction, 15.6 percent in trade and 10.1 percent in services.

Spring Has Sprung In Glorious Color

The spring spectacular is on! In the next several weeks, Kentucky's woodlands will come to life, as a multitude of wildflowers, shrubs, and trees carry the unmistakable visual message that spring has arrived. Because of unseasonably mild weather, some species already are in full bloom, while others are poised to show off their brilliant colors before long.

Spring beauties are among the first wildflowers to begin blooming in Kentucky. These pink-petaled flowers with tiny, star-shaped blooms thrive in the open woodland, and sometimes can be seen growing on lawns. Spring beauties can be found throughout Kentucky.

The hepatica blooms in early spring in the eastern part of the state. This short flower has six to eight petals usually ranging in shade from white to pink, although some variations are blue to lavender. The hepatica can be viewed along trails at Natural Bridge, Carter Caves, Buckhorn Lake, and Cumberland Falls state resort parks. Other areas where hepatica grows in profusion are the Cumberland Gap National Historic Park and Daniel Boone National Forest.

Bloodroot is a flower common throughout Kentucky. It is easy to identify, being a single white flower on a single stalk with one leaf. Its crimson root appears to bleed when cut. The "blood" was used for medicinal purposes in pioneer days especially in antiseptics.

Pink and yellow lady's-slipper orchids are popular among wildflower lovers. Neither is widespread in Kentucky, but they do grow abundantly in some eastern Kentucky areas, such as Natural Bridge, Pine Mountain, Cumberland Falls, and Carter Caves state resort parks. The pink lady's-slipper requires an acid soil to grow in, so people who thoughtlessly dig them up and transplant them to their flower gardens usually watch them slowly die.

The showy orchids, which has pink or white blooms resembling an orchid's, is fairly rare, but this later bloomer can be found at Natural Bridge and Cumberland Falls resort parks.

Trilliums are a sure sign of spring. As the "tri" prefix implies, this flower has three petals and three leaves; its bloom ranges in color from white to pink to crimson. One of Kentucky's most widespread species, trilliums carpet the ground in places like Carter Caves.

The shooting star, with its white, star-shaped bloom, is found mostly in western Kentucky. Visit Pennyryle or Lake Barkley state resort parks, or the Land Between the Lakes national recreation area to see this pretty flower.

Nature's beautiful colors are not confined to flowers, of course. Colorful trees brighten the landscape, too. The dogwood can be seen all around the state, especially in western Kentucky. The redbud tree, with its tiny, pinkish-red bloom, is prevalent in south-central Kentucky, around Lake Cumberland. Also worth noting is the serviceberry tree (sometimes called "sarviceberry"). It reportedly got its name from the fact that it blooms early and therefore it provided decoration in years gone by for early-spring church services such as weddings or Easter.

The mountain laurel is a well-known flowering shrub. It blooms in late May to early June, displaying white to pink blossoms contrasting against the dark green of the Eastern Kentucky mountains.

Planning a trip to the spring woodlands to see the breathtaking flora can be an enjoyable and rewarding experience for the entire family. In many state, national and private parks, staff members are available to inform visitors about nature's wonders. At seven state parks, naturalists can help guests identify flowers, and they schedule regular nature walks and other outdoor activities. These parks are John James Audubon, Barren River, Carter Caves, Cumberland Falls, Lake Cumberland, Natural Bridge, and Pine Mountain.

The Department of Parks in the Tourism Cabinet also publishes a color magazine that features occasional articles and photographs on wildflowers and other natural features at the parks. Information on the magazine may be obtained by calling toll free (800) 255-PARK.

Staff members in the cabinet's Department of Travel Development have at their fingertips a wide selection of travel literature and information to help plan an outdoors vacation. Call toll free (800) 225-TRIP or write TRAVEL, Dept. JC-15, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

Boyd Attends MSU Physics Field Trip

Melvin resident David Boyd was among nine Morehead State University students who recently took a three-day nuclear physics training program conducted by the Oak Ridge Associated Universities, Oak Ridge, Tenn.

Boyd, an MSU junior, was among those enrolled in Physics 499 who took advantage of the federal program sponsored by the U.S. Department of Energy.

The group toured the Physics Research facility at the Oak Ridge National Laboratory. Experiments in detecting, measuring, analyzing and distinguishing the various types of nuclear radiation were conducted by the students using the Oak Ridge facilities.

According to Dr. Russell Bregelman, MSU professor of physics, who accompanied the group, the students were able to work with equipment valued at nearly $12,000 and to gain professional experience.

"It was not just a field trip. They worked hard and learned a lot but still had a good time," Bregelman said.

Defensive Turkey Hunting

Turkey hunters should avoid the colors red, white and blue because they are similar to the coloration of the gobbler's head. Several hunters have been wounded while wearing these colors. Gobbler calls should also be avoided because of the very great risk of being mistaken for one!

Roof Falls No. 1 Killer In U.S. Mines

Roof falls in underground coal mining continue to plague the U.S. mining industry. They remain the No. 1 killer in these mines, bringing the death toll to 11 for the first quarter of 1986.

During the past 10 years, more than 300 underground coal miners lost their lives in roof and rib falls. And, fatalities as well as permanent disability for this single type of mine accident are higher than any other underground coal mining accident recorded.

Of the 11 roof fall fatalities this first quarter, the Department of Labor's Mine Safety and Health Administration (MSHA) announced that four each occurred in Virginia and West Virginia and one each in Pennsylvania and Colorado. A rib roll (also classified as a roof fall), where a slab of coal fell from the rib of the coal mine striking the victim and causing fatal injuries, occurred in Utah. In the majority of these fatal accidents, the miner had over 10 years of mining experience.

In the case of the fatality at a Pennsylvania coal company, the victim, a 22-year old miner, had only one day of mining experience. He walked under unsupported roof while attempting to scale down loose materials. In contrast to this case, a Virginia foreman with 22-years of mining experience was struck in the back of the head when he attempted to crawl under unsupported roof, killing him instantly.

"During the first quarter of 1985, only one roof fall fatality occurred," said David A. Zegeer, Assistant Secretary of Labor for Mine Safety and Health. "We had a total of 18 roof falls for the entire year," he added.

"MSHA became encouraged with the downward trend. However, we must now redouble our efforts and increase our emphasis on safety training and better roof control techniques," said Zegeer.

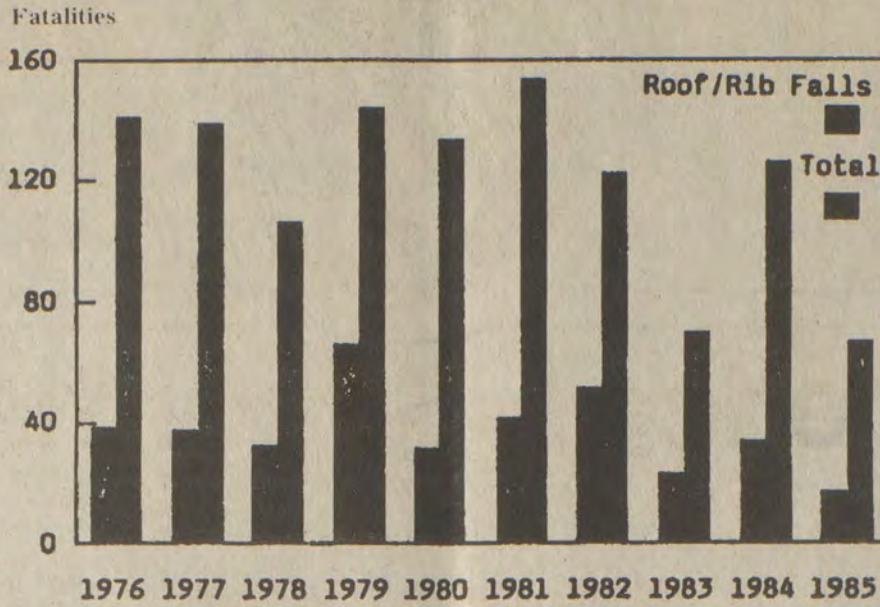

MSHA plans to further emphasize and develop its already existing "Roof Evaluation and Accident Prevention" (REAP) program, which began in 1984. The program, sponsored by the coal mine industry, labor organizations and State and Federal government agencies, has the goal of eliminating roof fall accidents through the use of safety training, technical information distribution, technology and enforcement.

"MSHA is counting on all the dedicated people from these organizations to pitch in and help everyone increase their awareness of proper roof control practices," said Zegeer. "Our success in eliminating these deadly accidents is depending on everyone involved in underground coal mining."

Attached chart and table show roof fall fatalities for the last 10 years.

The emerald was known in ancient times for its alleged power to heal diseases of the eye.

33 Floyd Countians Join Regular Army

Army recruiters assigned to the U.S. Army Recruiting Station here have commended local residents for their support of recruiting as fiscal year 1985 ended September 30.

Sergeant Robert Gordon, U.S. Army Recruiter of the Army Recruiting Station here, said that 33 young men and women from this area took advantage of Regular Army opportunities and 12 took advantage of the Army Reserve opportunities during the fiscal year.

"We appreciate that support," he said. "It's enlistments from towns like ours that help collectively to build America's Army."

Fiscal Year 1985 began October 1, 1984 with some apprehension from Army recruiters. A difficult year in military recruiting had been predicted due to an improved economy and fewer people available between the ages of 17 to 19. Despite those factors, Army recruiters enlisted 125,434 Americans into the Regular Army. Another 68,391 joined the Army Reserve to serve part-time as citizen-soldiers.

Recruiting records indicate that the U.S. Army has possibly become the smartest fighting force in its history. Sixty-three percent of those who enlisted during fiscal year 1985 scored in the upper half of the Army's aptitude examination, versus 25 percent in 1980 and 56 percent last year. On the other end of the scale, Regular Army enlistees who scored in the lowest aptitude category fell to about nine percent from last year's 13 percent and 1980's 57 percent.

"We try to recruit quality people every year," Gordon said. "The technology we have in today's sophisticated equipment demands a highly motivated person, someone with above average intelligence. Smarter people make better soldiers in every way."

The recent passage of the new G.I. Bill plus the New Army College Fund has enhanced the Army's college financial aid package by raising the benefits as high as $25,200 for a four-year enlistment.

For a two-year enlistment, which only the Army offers, a soldier can accumulate up to $17,000 from a personal contribution of only $1,200.

Two years of college and the same personal contribution can furnish a two-year enlistee with up to $21,000 toward continuing education. An enlistment of three years, with the same contribution, can build an educational fund of almost $23,000.

For more information on the New Army College fund or any Army program, call Sergeant Gordon in Prestonsburg at (606) 886-9431 or stop by his new office at 38 North Lake Drive.

CLYDE B. BURCHETT
COURT ST.-PRESTONSBURG, KY.

In 1985, fires burned more than three million acres of forest, grass and range lands in the United States. Ninety-two percent of those fires were caused by people: campfires, flicked cigarette butts, trash burning, arsonists playing with matches, and accidents. And 31% of these fires were deliberately set...the work of arsonists.
