Bond Refinancing May Net Court Funds for Fire Plugs

There will be fire plugs "throughout the county" if the fiscal court realizes the savings he expects it will by refinancing seven-year-old housing bonds, Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo said last week.

In a special meeting Wednesday, the court authorized stockbrokers E.F. Hutton and Co. to restructure the $18.9 million residential mortgage bonds issued here in 1979. The refinancing, which will take advantage of the lower interest rates now available, could result in a $300,000 windfall for the county.

Because the bond issue was intended to make housing affordable, it seemed appropriate to earmark the savings for fire hydrants, said Stumbo, who noted that homeowners' insurance is becoming prohibitively expensive and hard to obtain in areas without fire protection.

Underwriters charge less for insuring homes and businesses that are served by a fire department and are located within 1000 feet of a hydrant. Outside of Prestonsburg, fire plugs are relatively rare in Floyd county.

Under his plan, hydrants would be set in all existing water systems at intervals of around 2000 feet, Stumbo said. About 10 miles of water line laid by the county during the last three years—on Bucks Branch, Stephens Branch, Corn Fork, Cow Creek, Slick Rock, Coldwater, and Simpsons Branch—could have hydrants installed, as could existing systems along U.S. 23, on Middle and Beaver Creeks, in David and Auxier, and the system currently being installed on Prater Creek, the judge-executive said.

"I think we can pretty well cover the county. That way it will help the people with their insurance," Stumbo said. While it usually costs about $1200 to have a fire hydrant installed, Stumbo said he expected to be able to get a substantial discount by buying in bulk and that the fiscal court would likely take competitive bids on installation.

Low water pressure could make installation of hydrants impractical in some areas, the judge-executive acknowledged. But most systems have adequate pressure and water mains of sufficiently large diameter to make the project worthwhile, he said.

While water mains should be of at least six-inch diameter to be ideal for firefighting purposes, the four-inch lines serving the bulk of Floyd residential users are generally considered adequate to support hydrants as long as water pressure is good. Users at (See Story No. 1, Page 4)

Caudill Loses Attempt To Overturn Conviction

Left Beaver Magistrate Ed Caudill last week lost a round in his battle to overturn his July, 1985 conviction on a charge of possessing a forged instrument. But his attorney declared later that the fight is far from over.

At issue before the state Court of Appeals was whether Caudill's Sixth Amendment right—to be tried by a jury "of the state and district wherein the crime shall have been committed"—was violated when a

Constitutional Rights Win Man His Freedom from Jail

Over the prosecutor's objection, a Betsy Layne man accused of auto theft was ordered released without bond Tuesday. District Judge Harold Stumbo ruling that to keep him longer in jail would violate his rights.

Harold Robert "Robbie" Baer was arrested in Florida on October 29 and charged with stealing a 1980 Chrysler LeBaron from Kathleen Sweeney, also of Betsy Layne, the previous month. Since his return to Floyd county on October 30, he has been lodged in the county jail in lieu of a $2000 cash bond.

"It might as well be $2 million," said Public Defender Norm Bennett, who said his client was penniless. Bennett said Baer should be released since he had been held in jail longer than 10 days without a preliminary hearing.

Assistant County Attorney Dan Rowland insisted Baer had waived his right to a hearing in view of the fact that his case was about to be presented to a grand jury the first week in November. In fact, because a police officer was not notified in time to appear, the grand jury did not consider the case, he said.

That in itself was grounds for releasing Baer, said Judge Stumbo, who state prosecutor moved successfully to have his case moved from Floyd to Pike Circuit Court.

A tactic commonly used by defendants when they feel a community might be prejudiced against them, change of venue is less often sought by the Commonwealth. Caudill's attorney, Ned Pillersdorf, opposed the change, arguing that there was little evidence that the case could not be tried fairly in Floyd county.

The appeals court agreed that the evidence submitted by an assistant attorney-general in support of the venue change was "meager" but said the move was within the prerogative of Special Judge Will T. Scott, who granted it.

On the constitutional question, Judge William Dunn, who wrote the unanimous opinion upholding Caudill's conviction, acknowledged that Floyd is not in the same state judicial district as Pike county. But "inasmuch as the limitation as to district is part of the U.S. Constitution, the term 'district' applies only to federal judicial districts," Dunn said. Floyd and Pike counties are in the same federal judicial district.

Pillersdorf said he was "very disappointed" with the ruling and will ask for Caudill's case to be heard by the Supreme Court of Kentucky. "If it is left the way it is, it will be a boon to prosecutors. It opens the door for prosecutors to go forum shopping," said the attorney, referring to the practice among some lawyers and litigants of searching out a court in which they will be most likely to prevail.

Of the appeals court's argument that the Constitutional reference is to federal districts, Pillersdorf said it relies on a selective reading of the 14th Amendment, which made the Bill of Rights applicable to the states.

"It is not logical to take a clause out of the middle of the Sixth Amendment and say this particular clause does not apply," the attorney said.

"Floyd county is in the 31st Judicial District. Pike is in the 35th. That sounds to me like different districts. In saying they're in the same federal district, the Court of Appeals is mixing apples and oranges," Pillersdorf said. "My client was charged with no federal crime."

The defense attorney said he was still confident Caudill will prevail, either in the state high court or in the U.S. Supreme Court. "It's a significant constitutional issue and Caudill is the first Kentucky defendant to raise it," the attorney said. "I feel strongly about it. If this (appeals court decision) stands, it will mean any time you indict someone who is popular in a county you can chase him out, you can try him in the next county. It has potentially bad ramifications for criminal defendants."

Caudill, 62, received a one-year prison sentence after being convicted of endorsing and cashing a $2000 check issued by Floyd Fiscal Court in 1982 on the basis of a bogus claim. The long-time magistrate said he endorsed the check on the instruction of then-Judge-Executive Jerry Lafferty, Jr. and he assumed he was being reimbursed for money he had spent earlier on furnishing a watchman's trailer at a Minnie park.

HILL OF SALT stored in the state Highways Department yard near Allen in preparation for snow clearing operations this winter became a cause of concern during Tuesday's rainfall, when neighbors feared the runoff would pollute the nearby Big Sandy River and the city's water supply. Foreman Leo Roberts said 25 tractor-trailer loads, about 600 tons, of salt were delivered Tuesday and would be stored under cover by today (Wednesday). In any event, drainage from the highways department yard is toward KY 1428 rather than toward the river, he said.

Task Force Slates Meet At May Lodge

It is no accident that the legislative task force charged with coming up with solutions to Kentucky's insurance woes has scheduled its first meeting for the general public in Prestonsburg.

The Task Force on Insurance and Liability was invited to hold its December meeting here "because of the serious insurance problems plaguing the mountain area," said House Majority Leader Greg Stumbo. It will be held at May Lodge next Wednesday, Dec. 10, beginning at 10 a.m.

High premiums and difficulty in obtaining some types of coverage are not confined to eastern Kentucky but the problems—especially that of getting affordable homeowner's insurance—are acute here, as many insurance firms doing business in Kentucky have shunned this area.

An industry brochure lists no fewer than 623 property insurance firms operating in this state as of June 30 last year, including 33 companies headquartered in Kentucky, but only a handful of them offer policies to mountain homeowners.

"In the 38 years I've been in the business, there have never been more than 10 or 12 firms (offering insurance coverage) in eastern Kentucky," said Prestonsburg agent Blaine Hall, who is a member of the legislative task force. "We've always had this bad image."

The practice by insurance firms of writing no policies in whole areas held to be risky—a practice known as redlining—will be the subject of a talk to be given at next Wednesday's meeting (See Story No. 3, Page 4)

Christmas Season Is Time of Sharing

Christmas is traditionally a time for giving and thinking of others less fortunate and it's no different in Floyd county. In the spirit of giving, churches, social agencies, and individuals throughout the county will be busy in the coming weeks, organizing events and donating their time and money in an effort to help the needy.

Once again this year the Southern Baptist Churches of Prestonsburg and vicinity will be delivering food baskets on Christmas Eve to about 400 families in the Prestonsburg, Martin, and Allen areas. The food will come from financial contributions made to the churches.

St. Vincent's Mission in David has sent out invitations to needy families in the area, inviting them to their Christmas store, according to Sister Ida Marie Deville, mission director. For one day parents will be able to pick out an item of clothing or a toy at the store for each member of the family. Also, each family will receive a gift certificate redeemable for food at a local supermarket. Sister Ida said the store is stocked from private donations and contributions made by Our Lady of the Way Hospital.

The Presbyterian Church at Drift will also have a Christmas store. Besides a gift, each child will receive a hat and mittens for winter, and books will be given out. There will be men's and women's gifts for the parents, and each family will be given a bag containing groceries and toiletries. Friends and volunteers will help Doreen Martin run the store. Prestonsburg Kiwanis, individuals, and churches from all over the United States donated to make the store possible. Last year, 277 families were helped, Martin said.

Along with Christmas baskets and stores, there will be a Christmas party this year for Head Start Children from 10 a.m.-2 p.m., December 17, at Archer Park skating rink, according to Janie Smith, coordinator of the program. Santa Claus will make an appearance, refreshments will be served, and the children will all receive a gift. Parents will receive fruit, canned goods, and books funded by area merchants, banks, and coal companies. Smith called the occasion, "a time for all the children," (See Story No. 2, Page 4)

Repair Work Done, Glo Bridge Reopens

The Glo bridge, abruptly shut down in October by federal authorities, was reopened to traffic Monday afternoon after a county crew completed repair work and a state bridge engineer declared the bridge safe.

Thirty-two families had been forced to take rough, circuitous routes in and out of the community while the bridge was barricaded, an inconvenience that led some of them to mount a vigorous publicity campaign to have the 60-year-old span repaired and reopened.

"We're totally delighted," said Mary Bradley, who owns a florist business in Glo and led the push to have the bridge restored. "I was the first one to get to go across it."

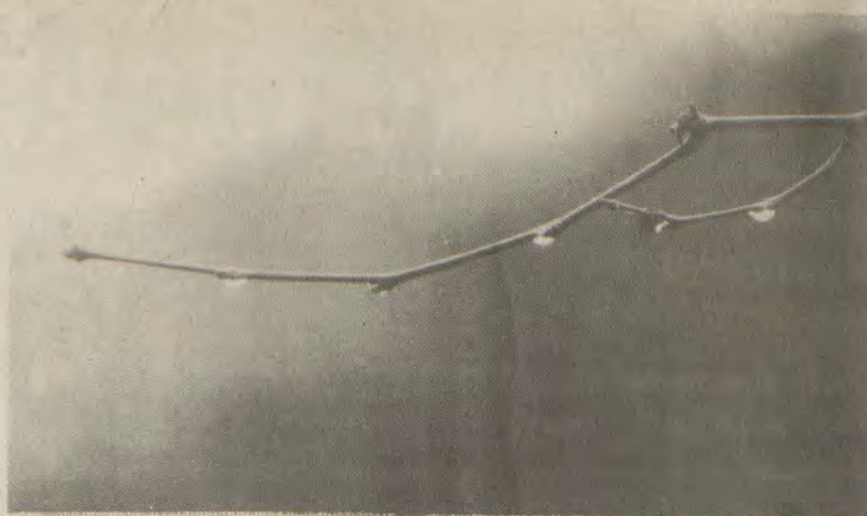

Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo said about a ton in weight had been taken off the bridge by replacing heavy flooring timber with lighter lumber. Parts of the steel frame were also reinforced, he said.

To Aid Deaf Children, Early Detection Is Key

The Kentucky Commission on the Deaf and Hearing Impaired announced recently that Governor Martha Layne Collins will proclaim the week of December 7-13 as Deaf Heritage Week in Kentucky. The theme of this year's Deaf Heritage Week will be the needs of deaf and hearing impaired infants and toddlers.

During Deaf Heritage Week, Dr. Mason Cogswell will be honored. Dr. Cogswell's commitment to the education of his deaf daughter, Alice, resulted in the founding of the first permanent school for deaf children in this country in 1817.

Arthur A. Abshire, the parent representative on the Commission and the father of a hearing impaired daughter, commented on Dr. Cogswell's concern and commitment to his child. He stated, "Early detection of the hearing impairment and close cooperation between parents, teachers, and other professionals are essential in stimulating educational experiences of the child to minimize the effect of the impairment and to achieve normal development and opportunities pioneered by Dr. Cogswell."

William B. Rogers, executive director of the Ky. Commission on the Deaf and Hearing Impaired, also announced recently the formation of a support and information program for parents of hearing impaired children titled "BEGINNINGS". This program, utilizing a videotape and a resource booklet, will be implemented in the very near future.

Kentucky Blasters To Hold Conference

The 13th annual Kentucky Blasting Conference will be held Dec. 3-5, at the Holiday Inn-North, in Lexington. The conference will consist of three technical sessions which are intended to be useful to the blaster in the field. Areas to be discussed include blast design, blasting safety, regulations governing blasting, blast seismology and new products now available in the industry.

This year, for the first time, the conference will include a short course entitled "Blast Damage: Causes, Claims and Cures." This session will be presented on Wednesday afternoon, Dec. 3.

In addition to the technical sessions, there will be an exhibit area where suppliers of products and services to the blasting industry will be available to explain the latest advances in blasting technology.

The conference is co-sponsored by the Kentucky Blasting Conference, the University of Louisville Speed Scientific School and the Kentucky Center for Energy Research. For registration information, contact Larry Schneider, secretary-treasurer, Kentucky Blasting Conference at (606) 257-8818.

Teachers Tour Highlands

Floyd, Johnson, Martin, and Magoffin counties were represented at the November Teacher Information Program at Highlands. Sixteen elementary and secondary school teachers from those counties came to learn about Highlands Regional Medical Center.

"The Teacher Information Program is an ongoing program," explained Susan Martin, co-ordinator of the sessions. "Our purpose is to inform teachers about the educational resources we have here."

Highlands Regional supplies speakers for classes, club meetings, or career days; and tours of the facility are available.

"Tours of the hospital are very popular," added Martin. "Most people don't get to see what happens behind the scenes in the lab or the nuclear medicine department, so the teachers enjoy the tours as much as the students." Tours are designed for all ages from kindergarten to college.

To schedule a tour or a speaker, contact Carol Blevins at Highlands Regional Medical Center.

By HAROLD COOLEY
ABSORBENTS

Absorbents are the type of ingredient most frequently found in over-the-counter anti-diarrhea products. They work by absorbing nutrients, toxins, and bacteria from the intestinal tract. Because they are generally taken in large doses, most of them are flavored for a better taste. Absorbents are generally used in the treatment of minor diarrhea. This is because, when taken orally, they are safe and have the ability to absorb digested materials as well as bacteria and other irritating matter. These products are not themselves absorbed. They act as a sponge in the intestines. Because it may interfere with the ability to absorb other medicines, talk to the pharmacist before buying an absorbent anti-diarrhea product.

As with any medication, always follow label directions. Many people think that over-the-counter medications are "safe" to use and do not stop to realize that these medicines if not taken carefully and properly can have repercussions. The literature enclosed in most medications warn the user of any side effects the medication may produce. If in doubt about a medication, ask your pharmacist. COOLEY APOTHECARY takes great pride in the role we play in promoting the health of members of your family. We are located in No. 2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106. Open: Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-4. higher elevations or at a long distance from the system's nearest pump or storage tank may have insufficient water pressure, however.

Under the resolution authorizing the restructuring of the 1979 bonds, the First National Bank of Cincinnati succeeds the First Wisconsin Trust Company as bond trustee.

The court also resolved to seek re-financing of the $1.5 million in bonds used to finance the county solid waste system in 1980. Any savings realized will be used to replace the agency's aging truck fleet, said Robert McAninch, chairman of the solid waste agency board.

by Doug Hinkle, part-owner of the large Walter P. Walters Insurance Agency in Pikeville. While in some other states redlining has provoked legislatures to enact tough laws governing insurance firms, however, Hall said that is not the solution he espouses.

"We've got some legislators who may not know too much about how the insurance industry operates. I'm afraid they'll want to pass harsh legislation," the agent said. "We must not let that happen. I know jobs are being lost already because of insurance companies moving out of the state."

As Hall sees it, there is enough blame to go around. Greedy underwriters brought on the insurance crisis when, eager for cash to invest when interest rates were high, they sold policies at cut rates—only to find themselves in trouble when interest rates fell and claims began to mount.

But venal lawyers, frivolous litigation, unreasonably high liability judgments, padded hospital bills, and arson all play a part in driving insurance costs up—and all will have to be addressed if a comprehensive solution is to be found—the agent said.

One reform that Hall has advocated and on which a decision is expected this month from the board that oversees administration of the Kentucky Fair Plan would see homeowner's insurance restricted to so-called "market-value" policies under the plan. Limiting the amount for which houses could be insured in higher risk areas would lessen the temptation to overinsure a house and later burn it down, the agent said.

The legislative task force was created earlier this year by the General Assembly to study the insurance industry and the state Department of Insurance and to make recommendations to the 1988 General Assembly. The group, which has until next December to complete its report, has already scheduled hearings for corporate, municipal, and hospital representatives.

In the coming months, the task force will be hearing from the large, powerful re-insurance firms—those that insure the insurers—many of whom, led by the giant Lloyd's of London, have abandoned the field in the face of mounting losses.

Hall does not deny that the re-insurance firms will have a decisive say in what reforms are imposed on insurance firms doing business here. But in the meantime, he said, next Wednesday's hearing will provide a forum for those whose main interest in the health of the industry lies in securing reasonable protection for their homes, their cars, and their health.

Two To Prosecute Child Abuse Case

Because of his familiarity with the case, County Attorney David Barber will join Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen in prosecuting a Lackey couple on child-abuse charges, Barber confirmed Tuesday.

Danny and Tammy Ratliff, step-father and mother of six children ranging in age from about 10 weeks to six years, were indicted by a Floyd Circuit Court grand jury last month on a charge of beating a two-year-old daughter.

With the indictment, jurisdiction over the case moves from district to circuit court and responsibility for prosecuting it from the county attorney to the commonwealth's attorney. Barber said Allen agreed to let him participate in the prosecution, however, "since I've been in the case from the beginning and am real familiar with it."

Because of his involvement in the criminal case, a move to terminate the parents' rights to all six children will now be handled by an attorney for the state Cabinet for Human Resources, Barber said. The children are in foster care pending resolution of that issue.

parents, staff, and members of the Board of Education to come together and share."

Operation Santa Claus has been a tradition in Floyd county for over 10 years and is sponsored by a group of anonymous donors. This year 4,200 toys have been purchased and will be distributed with fruit and candy by church workers, rescue squads, and volunteer fire departments.

This diversity of giving and sharing is reflected also in the work of the Christian Appalachian Project, which will be leasing out kerosene heaters to warm homes this winter, distributing gifts and food baskets to needy families, and visiting the elderly to sing Christmas carols.

These are but a few of the efforts that continue to make Christmas a time of caring and sharing in this county.

Honaker Man's Death Is Apparent Suicide

The gunshot that killed a 66-year-old Honaker man was apparently self-inflicted, a state pathologist said.

George Carroll, who lived alone on Big Branch of Little Mud Creek, was found by his son, John Paul Carroll, around 9 a.m. Monday, according to Assistant Floyd Coroner Glenn Frazier. The younger Carroll, who lives next door and was accustomed to checking on his father daily, found his body, fully-clothed but for shoes, on a bed, it was said. There was a single bullet wound in the chest. Carroll's .38 caliber pistol was reportedly found lying next to his body.

An autopsy was performed in Lexington by state pathologist Dr. George Hunsaker, who reported Tuesday that the weapon which killed Carroll was in contact with his chest when it was fired and that powder residue was found on the victim's hand. The evidence suggested suicide, he said. The case is also being investigated by State Det. Danny Stumbo.

Carroll was born March 21, 1920, a son of the late Nathaniel and Frances Kidd Carroll. He was a retired coal miner and once also operated a grocery store. His wife, Vinnie Carroll, died last Feb. 9.

He is survived by five sons, Alex Carroll, in Virginia; Everett Carroll, of Grethel; Edgar Carroll, of Stanville; Adrian Carroll, of Betsy Layne; and John Paul Carroll, of Honaker; three daughters, Della Mae Hall, of Harold; Mary Frances Hamilton, of New London, Ohio; Fannie Mae Lawson, of Honaker; a brother, Nathan Carroll, of Galveston; two sisters, Della Kidd, of Honaker, and Rosa Owens, of New London, Ohio; 21 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a.m. Friday at the Pilgrim Home Regular Baptist Church at Grethel with Regular Baptist ministers officiating. Burial will follow in Parsons Cemetery at Honaker under the direction of Hall Funeral Home. Visitation will be after 11 a.m. today (Wednesday) at the church.

"University Journal" Looks At Secondary Education

The role of a secondary education will be discussed when "University Journal" airs Monday, December 22, at 9:30 p.m. on KET.

The half-hour monthly program features Robert Sexton, Lexington, Executive Director of the Prichard Committee for Academic Excellence. Sexton and host Dr. David Lee, Western Kentucky University professor of history, will discuss Kentucky's secondary and elementary education systems.

According to Sexton, it is important that we consider "what needs to be accomplished in the classroom," and what "actually motivates students to learn."

The Division of Coal Mine Workers' Compensation reported that during the fiscal year, approximately $591 million was paid in benefits to coal miners, eligible survivors, and medical providers according to the Labor Department's Annual Report for Fiscal Year 1985. Of this amount, about $492 million was paid to miners and their survivors as monthly benefit payments.

Ten Years Ago

(Dec. 1, 1976)

The manslaughter trial of Richard Franklin Spencer, accused of the slaying earlier this year at Lancer of his father-in-law, Jeff Nelson, ended in its second day Tuesday when the defendant entered a plea of guilty to reckless homicide. A Floyd county teacher named the county board of education and Supt. E. P. Grigsby, Jr. defendants in a suit filed Saturday, protesting her transfer from one school to another. The Floyd county jail had its own population explosion Sunday afternoon when County and State officers imprisoned 37, persons, including six juveniles, after a marijuana raid on Prater Creek. Derailment of 16 coal cars Monday night, near Hunter, spilled several hundred tons of coal along the tracks and into an adjacent field and interrupted rail service on the Left Beaver Creek branch line of the Chessie System. County Attorney Harold J. Stumbo this week drafted a six-point proposal to the fiscal court, pointing out that the present solid waste disposal system in the county "is not working," and recommending that the court create a garbage district, issue revenue bonds to pay for necessary equipment and provide for management of the countywide operation by a board separate from the court and elected officials. There died: Jennie Stephens Horns, 92, died Thursday at her home at East Point; Mrs. Frances McGuire Spradlin, 83, former resident of Prestonsburg, died Tuesday, November 23, at her home in Lexington; Delmas Frederick Saunders, 35, formerly of Prestonsburg, Nov. 23 at the U.K. Medical Center; Lawrence Hicks, 71, died Saturday at his home at Langley; Mrs. Belle Sizemore DeRossett, 96, of Water Gap, Tuesday at Highlands Medical Center; Elmer Clifton, 83, of Prestonsburg, Saturday at Highlands Regional; James Cecil, Jr., 57, of Allen, at McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital Friday; James Frasure, 75, formerly of McDowell, died Friday in an Ashland hospital; Vernon Hunter, 26, of Topmost, Sunday at McDowell Appalachian Regional hospital; Mrs. Bridgett Grayson, 55, formerly of Garrett, Sunday in the Lorrain Community Hospital, Lorrain, Ohio.

Twenty Years Ago

(December 1, 1966)

The faint hope that a contract settlement would be reached at a brief resumption November 23 of negotiations between representatives of the United Fuel Gas Company and the Oil, Chemical & Atomic Workers Union went glimmering and the company continues to lose heavily from the dynamiting of gas mains. Two meetings on as many nights next week have been scheduled for the purpose of acquainting landowners with the Left Beaver Creek snagging and clearing project and to procure easements from owners of land along the part of the stream which is proposed for improvement. Tuesday's snowfall rendered highways in this and other counties of the area hazardous to drivers, resulting in nine highway accidents being reported to the Pikeville post, Kentucky State Police. Miss Marietta Stumbo, of McDowell was named Miss Snow Queen of 1966 here Saturday. The long-delayed 1966 state, county and school tax bills are due to begin reaching taxpayers in this county, perhaps within the next 10 days. Married: Miss Brenda Hughes, of Prestonsburg, and Mr. Abraham Vanderpool, of Emma, Saturday at the Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church; Miss Jenny Lee Meece, of Prestonsburg, and Mr. William Edward Bottoms, of Lexington, November 18 at the First Methodist Church here. Born: to Mr. and Mrs. O. R. (Pete) Howard, of Prestonsburg, a daughter, Mina, Thanksgiving Day at the Prestonsburg General hospital; to Mr. and Mrs. A. Randall Hughes, of Portsmouth, O., formerly of Prestonsburg, a son, Charles Randall, Nov. 13 at the Scioto County Memorial hospital; to Mr. and Mrs. Bob Conn, of Ivel, a son, Glenn Preston, Thanksgiving Day at the Prestonsburg General hospital. There died: John Carmody, 68, of Kent, O., formerly of Bevinville, last Tuesday at a Ravenna, O. hospital; Rufus Shepherd, 46, last Wednesday at his home at David.

Thirty Years Ago

(November 29, 1956)

Coal production in the field represented by the Big Sandy-Elkhorn Coal Operators Association is still ahead of last year at this time, it was noted in a recent report of the group. Funeral rites were conducted Sunday morning for two Floyd men who received fatal injuries in a head-on collision of their cars on U. S. 23 at Harold, Thanksgiving evening. Dead are Earl Kidd, 28, of Harold, and Raymond Newman, 24, of Grethel. Rabid foxes struck in three places in this county recently with one invading the home of Bert Newman on Frasure's Creek, at East McDowell last Friday night. Former State Representative Jerry F. Howell, of Price, was seen this week as a sure-fire bet to be the next Floyd county Democratic chairman as the last threat of a scrap in the election of precinct committee members vanished. A copy of the official seal of Floyd county has been supplied at Navy request by County Judge Henry Stumbo for incorporation into the official emblem of the USS Floyd County, U. S. Navy destroyer named for this county. Married: Miss Joyce Lorene Martin, of Wayland, and Mr. Orbin Childers, of Garner, Ky., November 17 at the Wayland Methodist Church. Born: to Mr. and Mrs. Don Sullivan, of Prestonsburg, a son, Don, Jr., Nov. 22 at the Prestonsburg General hospital; to A-3c and Mrs. Dean Peters, of Martin, now in Japan, a daughter; to Mr. and Mrs. Willie Crum, of Allen, a son, Sunday at a Martin hospital. There died: Tony J. Compton, 60, of Betsy Layne, Sunday at Methodist hospital, Pikeville; Lester Judd, 61, Sunday at his home at Drift; John Boyd, 59, Sunday at his home at Wayland; Ad Layne, 73, of Langley, last Saturday at the Beaver Valley hospital, Martin.

Forty Years Ago

(November 28, 1946)

Support of Congressman-elect W. Howes Meade of the Big Sandy river canalization move was seen in his presence Monday evening at Pikeville in a meeting of proponents of the movement. Although an attempt to put a stop to Sunday movies in Betsy Layne reached a point where a warrant was issued for the arrest of the theatre owner there, he is in no danger of the law. A law describing operation of a theatre in Kentucky on Sunday as the offense of breaking the Sabbath, has been repealed, it was learned. A feature of the Armistice Day program in Paintsville recently was the presentation of Bronze Star medals to Capt. Bert T. Combs and Lt. Walter S. Harkins, both of whom are Prestonsburg attorneys. H. B. Patrick, Prestonsburg oil and gasoline distributor, announced this week that he will build here a frozen food locker plant within the next few months if sufficient interest is shown by county residents in such a facility. The Prestonsburg B;lack Cat football team closed out its season Friday afternoon, battling Paintsville to a 6-6 tie. Married: Miss Hilda Mae Arrington, of Martin, and Mr. Steve Stout, of Prestonsburg, November 2. Born: to Mr. and Mrs. Herschell Tackett, of Prestonsburg, a son—Paul Carter—November 24 at the Prestonsburg General hospital; to Mr. and Mrs. Estel L. McKinney, of Prestonsburg, a daughter—Donna Sue—November 23 at the Prestonsburg General hospital; to Mr. and Mrs. Z. S. Dickerson, Jr., a son—Richard Evans—November 21 at the Good Samaritan hospital, Lexington; to Mr. and Mrs. Darvin Webb, of Dwale, twins—Bobby and Betty—last week. There died: Miss Mary Patton, 31, at home here, Monday morning; Mrs. Peachie Craft, 26, of Town Branch, Monday, at the Martin General hospital; Palma, four-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Reed, of Hueysville, Saturday.

Fifty Years Ago

(November 27, 1936)

The home on Jack's Creek of Mrs. Alice Hall was dynamited early Monday morning. Sheriff M. T. Stumbo investigated but no definite clues have been uncovered. Chester (Chick) Allen, Walter Butler and W. D. Frazier were seriously injured when the car in which they were riding crashed into a rock cliff on the Allen-Lackey road below Bosco Tuesday afternoon. The two-story residence of Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Spurlock, of West Prestonsburg, was destroyed by fire Thursday morning. Arthur Johns Archer and Beverly Burchett have purchased the Pelphrey's Dry Cleaners in Prestonsburg. Mr. and Mrs. Troy Hughes and baby were injured Saturday afternoon when the truck Mr. Hughes was driving plunged over an embankment on the Mayo Trail near Prestonsburg. The Lackey high school Lions defeated Auxier high, Friday, 15 to 6. Born: to Mr. and Mrs. Elder Wright, of West Prestonsburg, a daughter—Carol Sue—November 1. There died: Mrs. Emma Lafferty, 93, at her home here, Friday; Lewis Howard, 75, at his home at Hueysville Saturday night; William M. Perkins, 90, of Tram, Friday; Mrs. Osa Stone, 28, of Ivyton, November 19; the 22-months-old child of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Clifton, of Bays Branch, Monday.

Bits and Pieces

SUBLIMINAL MESSAGES

I've been looking long and hard and from every angle at Ritz crackers for about six years now. I've looked at them full on. I've examined them edgewise. I've scanned the other side—don't know whether it's front or back. I've gone so far as to break them in half for an inner look. Yes, I've even looked at pictures of them.

No, I don't have a fixation about them, nor am I the victim of a deep-seated, unreasoning fear of Ritz crackers because of something that happened back in the dim reaches of my childhood. In fact, at times I like them. Moreover, no matter how I look at them, they just look like a little round cracker.

The thing that started all this was a nice lady, sincere, earnest, and most exercised about subliminal messages by which the just and the unjust, according to her, were being daily bombarded on TV, in newspapers, on radio, and yes, Ritz crackers.

Now, I'm morally certain that we have been subjected to any number of psychological gimmicks, or, if you will, subliminal messages, but personally, I read labels. If there are lots of additives I don't know about, I don't use it, no matter what it looks like.

So much for subliminal whatever. Perhaps, like beauty, it is in the eye of the beholder.

But wait a minute. Why did I buy those fig newtons?

Employees Raise Record $116,000 for United Way

United Way agencies and their clients across Kentucky will be the beneficiaries of a record-setting fund raising effort by the employees of the Cabinet for Human Resources.

Human Resources Secretary Al Austin recently announced that the six-week campaign topped its goal of $100,000 for the second consecutive year. "In fact, the employees of this agency have raised, donated or pledged in excess of $116,240 for this year's United Way drive," Austin said. "This is $15,000 over the final total from last year and it represents an increase of more than $50,000 above the agency's contributions raised just three years ago."

Austin gave credit for the successful United Way drive to campaign chairman George Nichols of the Department for Mental Health and Mental Retardation Services. "George was without a doubt the key to this year's campaign," he said. "Not only did he surround himself with enthusiastic unit coordinators and other volunteers, but he personally saw to the success of several fund raising events. His commitment made others want to make it work."

Human Resources employees in local offices and facilities made contributions which will remain with United Way agencies in their home communities. Contributions and funds raised by central office employees in Frankfort will, for the most part, benefit agencies funded through United Way of Kentucky Inc.

BACK HOME

For the first time since George Washington was president, an Atlantic salmon has migrated 255 miles from Long Island Sound to historic spawning grounds in Vermont's White River. According to International Wildlife magazine, the salmon disappeared from New England rivers in the 1800s as a result of pollution, overfishing and dams along the migration routes.

Burke Wins Patent Suit Against Powerscreen Co.

It was while he was reclaiming a gob pile in David in 1981 that Billy T. Burke came up with a better way to wash coal.

Known as the Burke Energy Separator, the portable, self-contained unit could be set up right at the mine site, used only a fraction of the water that conventional coal-washing plants require, promised to be the salvation of the small coal operator—and looked like making a tidy profit for its inventor, who secured a patent for it in 1983.

Others proved eager to manufacture and market the coal-washer under a licensing arrangement but, when he and they were unable to agree on terms, three firms stole his idea and began marketing it anyway. Burke claimed last year in lawsuits filed in U.S. district court.

One of the suits was settled last month, when U.S. Eastern District Magistrate Joseph Hood ruled that Burke had a valid patent on the machine and enjoined Powerscreen of America, a Louisville-based firm, and Powerscreen of Eastern Kentucky, which has its head office in Mount Sterling, from making or selling it.

A cash settlement was also agreed on although, under terms of the settlement, the amount was not disclosed. Burke, who claimed that at least 10 of the units had been sold illegally by the time he filed suit, originally sought $7 million in damages from the two firms.

Pikeville attorney Garred Cline, who represented Burke and who is now his business partner, said the Powerscreen firms, which make belts and screens for the coal industry, acquired the technical information which allowed them to manufacture the innovative coal washers after they hired an

A Friend To Floyd County

I would like to remind the people of Prestonsburg and Floyd County of what a great friend the late William H. May was. He resided in Frankfort, but his heart remained with his friends and family in Eastern Kentucky. He never forgot his roots and the people of his home. I had personal experience with Bill May's generosity to and concern for causes and progress in Floyd County.

In 1959 we organized to raise money to purchase land for the Prestonsburg Community College. We formed a corporation to do the fund raising. We only had 18 days before the Kentucky Legislature met to show community interest by purchasing a site. Money was very scarce in Floyd County in those years. There was some doubt about success even among the members of the Finance Committee. We planned and held a radiothon on WPRT and WDOC for two consecutive Sundays. I remember the great effort made by all the people of Floyd County to assure that we would construct a Community College. One old gentleman walked from West Prestonsburg, cashed his Social Security check and donated half to the college fund, explaining that he wanted his children to have a better opportunity than he had had. I particularly remember the largest and the smallest donation. A Cub Scout Pack in Prestonsburg emptied their treasury of $1.69 and gave everything to the fund. The late William May made the largest donation of $5,000 to the fund. He lived and worked in Frankfort, but he was always interested and supportive of anything which would bring improvement to the quality of life in Floyd County.

We have lost a dear friend of the whole county since his passing. I would hope that we all remember just how he wanted to help all of the people of Floyd County and how he continued to do just that all of his life.

Who Is Divided?

We are all concerned about the possibility of losing the funding for the new school. What authority does James Ellis have (as an architect) concerning the purchase of the land for the new school site?

Ellis stated "Left Beaver communities were deeply divided over the location of the high school." Other than a chosen few, the majority of the Left Beaver community agree a central location is best. Ellis's persistence to put the new school at Minnie (which he considers "the most designable") has made himself part of the problem instead of part of the solution for finding the new site. Knowing a site has not been purchased, why would Mr. Ellis begin any type of drawings for the school? There are other options to consider, ones that he seems to have closed his eyes to. So just who is really divided on a location for the new school?

Six Floyd Groups Receive CAP Funds

Six organizations in Floyd county received $18,000 from the Christian Appalachian Project in Lancaster.

The grants or loans were included in $266,703 distributed by the Christian Appalachian Project during its 1985-86 fiscal year to 81 organizations and individuals. Among these are the following in this county:

Hospice of the Big Sandy, Prestonsburg, received $5,000 for home care of terminally ill persons; Big Sandy Family and Childbirth Education Association, Prestonsburg, received $3,500 for general administrative support of its program; Kentucky Fair Tax Coalition, Prestonsburg, received $5,000 for general administrative support of its programs; and St. Martha's Catholic Community, Prestonsburg, received $1,000 for financial assistance with utilities for letting local organizations to use the building. Wheelwright High School Cultural Journalism Project received $2,000 for general support of the journalism program; and the city of Wheelwright received $1,500 for salary of the librarian.

The Christian Appalachian Project, a non-profit, Christian service organization, seeks to help the people of Appalachia improve their lives through education, economic opportunity, employment, and a sense of community.

The grants and loans are made by the Christian Appalachian Project to other organizations who also serve the people of Appalachia.

Although the grants and loans program principally supports church-related ministries that care for the immediate needs of people around them, it also gives financial assistance to secular organizations that serve the Appalachian people.

Holiday Cuisine Scheduled On KET

Novel combinations of imported and American cuisine from Polish mushroom soup to roasted chestnuts are among the highlights of "Holiday Entertaining With Martha Stewart" on Thursday, December 18, at 7 p.m. The program repeats Saturday, December 20, at 1 p.m.

Martha Stewart, one of America's foremost chefs and author of five books on cooking and entertaining, shares some of her favorite holiday recipes and offers creative and practical approaches to every aspect of family entertaining including menu planning, food preparation, table setting and seating arrangements.

From her restored 19th-century Connecticut farmhouse, Stewart demonstrates how to transform a conventional turkey with some show-stopping variations such as smoked pheasant and pastry-wrapped turkey breast. Her home-grown produce provides the inspiration for a variety of relishes, preserves, vegetable dishes and salads. Tips on preparing hors d'oeuvres and choosing the right wine are included. A traditional pumpkin pie dessert shares the spotlight with Concord grape pie and cranberry sorbet.

In addition to the holiday recipes, the special includes features on table design, including how to make dried flower and herb centerpieces, and trips to the butcher shop, a cranberry bog, apple orchard and garden.

Stewart is a contributing food and entertaining editor for House Beautiful magazine. Her recipes and entertaining ideas have also appeared in Food & Wine, Cooks Magazine, House & Garden and Mademoiselle. Her 10-year-old catering firm services corporate and private clients throughout the country.

"Holiday Entertaining With Martha Stewart" is produced by WGBH/Boston.

34 Give Blood In PCC Drive

Thirty-four people participated in Prestonsburg Community College's in-center blood drive with 30 pints donated. The drive was sponsored by Central Kentucky Blood Center and the Phi Beta Lambda Chapter at Prestonsburg Community College. Phi Beta Lambda faculty advisor, Mazolla Salmons, and blood drive chairperson, Bernice Stacy, organized the in-center blood drive.

Contributing to the successful turnout was the Phi Beta Lambda members, who actively recruited blood donors and promoted the drive throughout the community.

Central Kentucky Blood Center is holding its Sixth Annual Donorama at the Prestonsburg Holiday Inn, December 16 through December 19, from noon to 9 p.m. For more information about the Floyd County Blood Program or the upcoming Donorama, please call Larilynn Leffler at 1-800-432-9528.

The following people took time to share their good health by donating at the blood drive.

Enrollment Increases At Western University

The official enrollment for the fall semester at Western Kentucky University is 12,257, an increase of 8.8 percent over last year's number.

Western President Kern Alexander announced the figures at the University's regular quarterly Board of Regents meeting, recently. The increase represents a 17 percent increase in freshmen, Alexander said, and this is the first time the University has exceeded the 12,000 mark since 1983. Enrollment is up 998 students from 1985 figures.

The Regents adopted a resolution authorizing the issuance of $8.45 million consolidated educational buildings revenue bonds and approved the 1985-86 financial report for the University.

FINANCIAL PLANNING

EMPLOYEE VERSUS CONTRACTOR

Businesses engaging others to perform services should beware. It may be perfectly clear to you and to the individual performing the services that you have a "contractor" relationship. This means that you consider yourself to be exempt from withholding income taxes, paying social security, industrial accident, and unemployment taxes, or from being liable for any overtime hours worked.

The Internal Revenue Service, the Social Security Administration, the Wage and Hour Board, the Unemployment agency, and the Industrial Accident Board may all take a different view. Each of these government agencies has its definition of an employee versus an independent contractor.

For income tax withholding purposes, the Internal Revenue Service defines an employee as an individual who performs services subject to control by an employer both as to what services shall be performed and as to how they shall be performed.

Some states have made it almost impossible to have an independent contractor relationship where the services performed are in the normal line of work of the employer. For example, a logger will have a difficult time classifying a timber faller as an independent contractor.

A claim filed by someone you considered an independent contractor can be time-consuming and expensive. If you are in doubt, select the employee status and pay the appropriate withholding and payroll taxes.

The "employee" definition was established to protect working people. Some government agencies felt that employees would agree to claim independent contractor status with its greater benefits for the employer in order to secure employment. To prevent this, each agency has a determination based on facts and circumstances as to who is an independent contractor and who isn't. The fact that two knowledgeable individuals agreed that there was to be a contractor relationship may not hold up under examination.

Real Estate Roundtable

By JOHN C. WOLFF, JR., Ed.D.
Executive Director
Kentucky Real Estate Center
University of Kentucky

There's a Cloud on My Title!

Q. We recently bought a home. In order to make sure that the title to the home was free and clear, the mortgage company had the title searched.

Before we could close the mortgage loan on the property, the lawyer said that there was "a cloud on the title which had to be cleared." We were in a rush to close, and the attorney was very busy.

We know that means that there was something wrong with the title. Whatever it was, it had to be taken care of. Could you take a couple of minutes to tell us more about what "a cloud on the title" means?

A. Real estate does have some very literary expressions. We recently discussed "colour of title," and now we have an opportunity to outline "a cloud on the title."

A cloud on a title is usually a claim against the property. It prevents the owner from giving "clear" title to the property and almost always stops a sale dead in its tracks until the cloud is removed.

Probably the most frequent cloud on a title is a previous mortgage that has been paid in-full but has not been "released." When you went to buy your home, the seller might have owned it long enough to have paid off his mortgage loan.

Let us imagine for a moment that the lender—bank, savings and loan association or mortgage company—had forgotten to release the loan when it was paid completely. They release by certifying in the margin of the mortgage filed at the courthouse that it has been paid. They can also file at the courthouse another document called a "deed of release."

Although professional lenders almost never forget to release a mortgage, it is more frequent when the mortgage is held by individuals who are not used to the process of releasing it. They release it in the same two ways.

Another typical cloud appears when a husband or wife does not sign a deed. Husbands and wives in most cases have property rights (called dower and curtesy which will be covered in a future column) that have to be released when they sell. This is done by having both parties sign the deed.

The problem of either the husband or the wife not signing a deed can be corrected by use of what is called a "quit claim" deed. Let us imagine that a wife did not sign. In order for the property to be clear, the wife signs the quit claim deed which means she gives up any and all rights she might have had in the property. The quit claim deed is then filed at the courthouse.

Even if the seller assures you that the title is clear or you are assuming a loan and a title search is not required (as it was in this example), always have the title searched before you close and commit yourself to 20 or 30 years of payments.

The information we have provided is very general in nature. If you have a specific question, please be sure to consult an attorney.

★ Cancer Hopeline

QUESTION: Can stress affect whether or not I get cancer?

ANSWER: Over the years, there has been a lot of discussion about stress, emotions, and personality traits as risk factors for cancer. Presently, there is no proof that stress increases a person's risk for cancer. However, scientists are continuing to study stress and its effects on health and illness.

It is known that stress activates the body's hormone system, which can then cause changes in the immune system (the body's defense against disease). Stress also affects blood pressure, stomach fluids secretions, and levels of neural transmitters in the brain.

Scientists do not know the exact reasons why stress is harmful. More research is needed, and the National Cancer Institute is supporting several studies on emotions, the hormone system, and the immune system. One study called "Psychological and Familial Precursors of Cancer" was begun in 1946 at John Hopkins University. Another study "Psychological Stress and Cancer Risk" is being carried out at Mt. Sinai School of Medicine in New York. However, there is still no scientific evidence that changing personality traits or reducing stress can have an effect on a person's cancer risk or help the recovery of a cancer patient.

A certain amount of stress in our lives is unavoidable and possibly even beneficial. Again the exact reasons why stress can become harmful are not well known. Stress is difficult to measure, but it seems that a person's response to stressful situations is as important as the amount of stress to which he is exposed. Taking action to reduce stress can increase our sense of well-being and add to overall health. Doctors have come up with a few suggestions on how to deal with stress:

- 1) Work off stress through exercise, hobbies, or other physical activity.
  - 2) Talk out your worries; maintain a trustworthy confidant.
  - 3) Learn to accept what you cannot change.
  - 4) Avoid self medication (abuse of alcohol or drugs).
  - 5) Get enough sleep and rest.
  - 6) Balance work and recreation; seek rewarding experiences in all areas of life.
  - 7) Do something for others.
  - 8) Take one thing at a time.
  - 9) Try to keep a positive view of life.
- For a fact sheet on stress, or for information on cancer, call 1-800-4-CANCER. The Cancer Information Service is a program of the Kentucky Community Cancer Program.

Martin Senior Citizens News

During October the Martin Senior Citizens participated in the Red, White and Blue Day Parade, where they received first place in the float competition.

October 24, a covered-dish dinner was held, and the new director, Anna R. Church, received a dozen red roses from her staff and helpers, who are Ruth Mosley, Ruth Flanery, Karen Combs, Sue Mullins, Anna Mae Spencer, and Dorothy Tackett, Mrs. Church was also presented with a trophy from the Red, White, and Blue Day Parade Committee, Tommie Whitaker, Johnnie B. Stephens, Mildred Halbert, and Hawley Scott from the Big Sandy Area Development.

October 31, the center held a Halloween party. Everyone participated by dressing up in costumes and after lunch went trick-or-treating at the businesses in Martin, then to the Martin Grade School, where first and second graders were treated. The second grade students chose a winner from the Senior Citizens costumes, the Wicked Witch, Patsy Case. She was awarded with a bowl of candy.

Headwaters Series Continues On KET

"Headwaters," a series that deals with the issues of interest and concern to Eastern Kentuckians, begins a new season Tuesday, December 16, at 7 p.m. "Mud Creek Clinic," the season premiere episode, depicts the victory of a small Floyd county community in organizing and maintaining health care for all its people.

"Mabel Parker Hardison Smith," airing December 23, is the story of a black Appalachian woman who for more than 35 years taught school in the coalfields of Eastern Kentucky. Smith speaks with eloquence about her life, about the history of black migration to the coal camps, and about the joy and peace she has found in gospel music.

"Headwaters" features "One-Ring Circus," December 30. This episode offers a behind-the-tents look at a small traveling circus that tours mountain towns. Interviews with performers, concessionaires and the owner are intermixed with scenes of the big top going up and the actual circus performance.

"I'm What This Is All About," set to air January 6, presents a look at the complex issues that face parents and educators in rural schools: consolidation, taxation and funding, patronage, educating special needs children and parent-community involvement.

This season "Headwaters" also will highlight a "Renaissance Man" of the mountains, celebrate regional theatre and look at a strike by union coal miners.

"Headwaters" is produced by Appalshop, a non-profit media arts center located in Whitesburg. It is funded in part by the National Endowment for the Humanities.

FLOYD COUNTY HEALTH NEWS

By JANE BOND
Health Educator

A nurse from the Health Department will be in Wayland, Friday, December 12, from 10-2. She will offer T.B. skin tests, urinalyses, blood pressures, anemia screening, and immunizations. This clinic is a free service of the health department and is open to the public. The same services will be offered at Harold at the Vogel Day Methodist Church, Friday, December 19, from 10-2. A pap clinic will be held at the health department Thursday, December 11, from 8:30-11:30 and from 1-2. This clinic is a free service of the health department and is open to women of all ages, but those women age 45 and over are especially urged to take advantage of this service since this is the high risk age for the disease.

"Lady Liberty" Is Show Theme

"A Tribute to the Lady—Our Statue of Liberty" will be the theme of Morehead State University's Bi-Annual Floral Design Show sponsored by the Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

Scheduled for Monday, Dec. 8, the show will be held in the Gold Room of MSU's Adron Doran University Center. Public viewing will be from 3:30 to 7:30 p.m.

Supervised by Martha Norris, MSU associate professor of agriculture, the show will feature flower arrangements by students in MSU floral design classes. According to Norris, "Students will interpret a fall design for the country of their choice, paying honor to the immigrants from many countries."

A panel of four judges will present awards in the following categories: tricolor, creativity, and best-in-show.

Having a Healthy Holiday

To many Americans, the holiday season means family feasts and celebrating with good friends. But overindulgence at Thanksgiving, Hanukkah and Christmas often leads to a New Year's resolution to lose weight.

This year, resolve to maintain a healthy lifestyle and still enjoy the festivities. It's easier than it sounds.

For example, the traditional centerpiece of most holiday tables is a plump, roasted turkey — an excellent low-calorie, low-fat main course. There are only 163 calories in a three-ounce serving of white meat without the skin. But use good judgement when buying the bird. Some self-basting turkeys are injected with oil that is high in saturated fat and sodium. Choose a plain frozen turkey instead, or check the labels for a self-basting brand that uses unsaturated vegetable oils.

Turkey isn't the only admissible entrée. For those who prefer something a little different, Cornish hens might be the answer. An exotic low-fat alternative is game. Wild duck and pheasant are acceptably lean, as are partridge, quail and other small birds. Venison is very lean, and rabbit, with a flavor somewhat like chicken, has only a fraction of chicken's fat. But avoid commercially-raised game animals which have a higher fat content than their cousins from forest and field. The American Heart Association Cookbook has several tasty game recipes. Don't offset the heart-healthiness of the main course by going overboard on the trimmings. Learn to make a low-fat gravy, and reject that extra helping of dressing. Vegetables are practically fat-free and low in calories, so don't be bashful about asking for seconds. But the calorie-conscious should know that butter and cream sauces add unnecessary fat and cholesterol. Flavor with garlic, onion, lemon juice, herbs or spices instead.

The meal ends with good news: There's no reason to skip dessert. Simply use a few tricks to make cookies, cakes and pies that taste great but have less fat and cholesterol. For example, substitute evaporated skim milk for evaporated milk, use three egg whites instead of two whole eggs, and choose low-fat toppings over whipped cream. And don't forget that a simple bowl of mixed fruit is a natural way to satisfy the sweet tooth.

Even if major holiday meals are under control, there is great temptation to nibble at office parties, neighborhood gatherings and family reunions. A smart snacker avoids baked goods and highly salted nuts and chips in favor of raw vegetables or fruit treats. Party-goers, who just can't resist should get involved in a stimulating conversation as far from the food as possible.

The party shouldn't be an excuse to overdo it — especially when it comes to alcoholic beverages. Limit consumption to a moderate amount, and be sure there's a non-drinker available to do the driving.

Finally, there are many things families and friends can do together besides eat and drink. Schedule an outing that involves exercise, such as a brisk walk, a bicycle ride, ice skating or sledding. And there are plenty of indoor activities such as bowling, racquetball, basketball, and volleyball. In many areas, indoor tennis courts and swimming pools are available.

The American Heart Association hopes this holiday season is a safe and healthy one for all.

Mountain Inspiration

By GLENN MOLLETTE
It was a stormy night in 1860. Lake Michigan was churning up some very rough waves.

Edward Spencer was walking along the shoreline and saw a crowded steamboat named the Lady Elgin rammed by a freighter loaded with lumber.

In minutes 393 passengers were thrashing in the water. Spencer plunged in and swam toward the survivors. He managed to save 17. Spencer was acclaimed a national hero but, he never recovered from the shock of that night. "Did I do my best?" he later asked.

Unable to resume his studies at North Western University, he was admitted to an asylum.

A few years later Spencer was an invalid and confined to a wheel chair.

An editor of a Chicago newspaper did a follow up story on that tragic night and interviewed Spencer who was now the forgotten hero.

What was his most vivid memory of that fateful night? Not one of the 17 persons he had saved ever returned to thank him.

In Luke 17 we read where Jesus healed 10 lepers and only one returned to thank him. "where are the other nine," Jesus asked.

Life is too short for ingratitude. It's Thanksgiving, and we ought to make special note of this.

But Thanksgiving should really be a way of life.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Edgar Thornsbeary wishes to thank all who helped in any way upon the passing of their loved one. We deeply appreciate the flowers, food and the words of kindness given by all. Thanks to the ministers, Red Alley, Earnest King, Dennis Martin, the Mill Creek Little County Church, and the Hall Funeral Home for its kind and efficient service.

"Oh, For The Good Old Days!"

By ALICE McDONALD
Superintendent of Public Instruction

"The good old days" is a phrase that conjures up a nostalgic past—kindly horses pulling picturesque buggies, mothers baking cookies on big iron stoves, grandmothers knitting warm mittens, and barns filled with shadows and mystery.

In the good old days, bread was 4 cents a pound, a Coke was a nickel, and the movie on Saturday afternoon cost all of 10 cents.

There was another side of those good old days, however. George Colvin, one of Kentucky's few Republican superintendents of public instruction, and by any standards one of its most outstanding, wrote about them in his report to the General Assembly in 1923. He wrote proudly, recounting accomplishments:

"We have had the largest and most regular attendance in the history of our state. Attendance in rural schools in the past four years increased from 37 percent to 65 percent... and in city schools... from 51 percent to 76 percent.

"High school enrollment has increased from 20,700 to 38,179. ...The number of high school graduates has grown from 2,500 to 4,600."

"Though still inadequately supported," he wrote, "Kentucky's schools have received greater financial support during the past two years than at any previous time in our history."

"The custom practiced four years of using state school funds for other purposes has been discontinued. ...As far as I know, this is the first time that the law has been compiled with and that this has been done in the history of our state."

He continued by writing, "The largest per capita ever paid in the history of our state is now being paid—a per capita of $8." (That was the amount of state money provided per child.)

In 1923, Colvin reported that the average salary paid to teachers had risen from $411 in 1919 to $725. The average salary paid to county superintendents was up too, from $1,064.38 to $1,833.95.

"It is significant," Colvin wrote (and today we would say almost unheard of) that "during the past three years only one bond issue to raise school funds has been defeated."

"It must be understood always that there are some districts in Kentucky where it is difficult to secure a teacher or to hold the teacher when secured," Colvin acknowledged. "This fact is due to local conditions, partly economic and partly sociological."

In 1919, 37 percent of Kentucky's elementary teachers had not gone beyond the eighth grade, Colvin reported.

"At the present time no teacher is permitted to take an examination to teach unless such teacher has completed at least one year of high school and has had at least five weeks of professional training," he wrote.

On another subject, he wrote: "The weakest point in Kentucky's educational system continues to be poor administration." He took pride in the improvements made in some counties. "In other counties, however, honesty compels us to state that in many cases administration is tragically if not criminally bad. In our efforts to change from a political basis to a professional basis, progress, as expected, has been slow."

Kentuckians who participated in recent efforts to pass a constitutional amendment to appoint the state superintendent will be particularly interested in his next words.

"State administration will never be permanently nor positively improved until a different method of selecting the superintendent is adopted, and until the superintendent has the right to succeed himself."

Despite the weaknesses he perceived at that time, he wrote: "On the whole, I am confident that Kentucky is approaching a great educational awakening. The realization of this hope may be postponed or delayed by feeble or incompetent leadership. Even so, it will come. The people of the state have willed it, and no power will be permitted long to postpone it."

Colvin's recommendations for new legislation included:

1. The ex officio political State Board of Education should be abolished. A representative lay board should be created in its stead and all powers vested in it.

2. All certification laws should be repealed. A new law should create just one certifying authority—the state. All teachers' certificates should be based on credentials instead of on examinations, and all teachers should show definite academic and professional training. "We must forever rid ourselves of fraud and favoritism in granting certificates," he wrote.

3. A better method should be developed for financing the schools.

4. A compulsory attendance law should be enacted.

Last year in Kentucky, the percentage of attendance was 94.3. Total high school enrollment (grades nine through 12) was 208,445; 38,532 students graduated in 1984-85; and 45.3 percent went on to college or advanced training.

Teachers' average salary in 1985-86 was $20,948, and that of district superintendents was $43,576. State revenue (not counting any funds from local or federal sources) was $1,645 per child in average daily attendance in 1985-86. And all Kentucky teachers have graduated from college and have outstanding qualifications.

Today, every child has the opportunity, and is expected to take advantage of, free public education from kindergarten through the 12th grade.

In the good old days, those who finished 12 years of school were the exceptions to the rule.

And that included the teachers!

Learn To Knit

Whether you are a beginning knitter or an "old pro," you will want to join Elizabeth Zimmermann when KET airs her "Knitting Workshop" series starting Sunday, December 14, at 3:00 p.m.

Zimmermann, author of three books and a knitting newsletter, is a prolific advocate of circular knitting and the use of unusual yarns.

In 1958, she began selling her designs to knitting magazines.

Zimmermann's 12 half-hour shows are accompanied by a book also titled "Knitting Workshop." Her knitting lessons start out with basics for the beginner and offer circular sweaters for the intermediate knitter. Four "master classes" for the more experienced knitters also are offered.

A Christmas Special With Luciano Pavarotti

Renowned Italian tenor Luciano Pavarotti returns for an encore performance this holiday season when "A Christmas Special With Luciano Pavarotti" airs Sunday, December 21, at 2:00 p.m. on KET.

In "A Christmas Special With Luciano Pavarotti," the noted Metropolitan Opera star and best-selling classical vocalist both solos and is featured with Les Petits Chanteurs du Mont-Royal Canadian boys' choir and Les Disciples de Massenet adult chorus.

He sings such favorite as Schubert's "Ave Maria," Bizet's "Agnus Dei," and Franck's "Panis Angelicus." Les Petits Chanteurs du Mont-Royal accents the spirit of Christmas with "Silent Night," and Les Disciples de Massenet lift the tempo with a stirring rendition of the Hallelujah Chorus from Handel's "Messiah."

Recorded in Montreal's Notre Dame Cathedral, this richly acclaimed special topped previous programming records when it premiered in 1980.

Zebulon Lodge 273 F&AM To Confer M.M. Degree

Prestonsburg's Zebulon Masonic Lodge will confer the Master Mason degree at the meeting to be held Saturday beginning at 6 p.m.

The first section will be conferred, and dinner will be served following at 7 o'clock.

A degree team from John W. Hall Lodge, at Martin, will be on hand for the long-form second section.

All Master Masons are invited to attend.

New Tax Law Calls For Year-End Tax Planning

Taxpayers face lots of changes due to the passage of the new tax bill. Instead of numerous tax brackets, Congress has reduced the number to two, with a "phantom" third.

Eventually, all taxpayers will be in the 15%, 28% or the 33% (phantom) categories. But during 1987, the transition year, there will be five brackets—11%, 15%, 28%, 35% and 38.5%.

Tax brackets were not the only thing cut. A lot of popular deductions were eliminated, and everyone will be affected, said Bob Flashman, Extension family resource management specialist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Taxpayers no longer will have the option to income average. Under the old law, if your income was more than 140% of the last three-year average, you could income average to reduce your taxes.

"Income averaging was beneficial particularly to individuals who received unusual incomes because one spouse returned to work, received a promotion or changed jobs," said Flashman. "If their income jumped significantly during one year, it was advantageous to average."

The two-earner deduction has been lost for married couples filing a joint return. Because of that more married couples will pay more tax.

Capital gains have been affected. Under the old law, only 40% of your gain was taxed; the new law will tax the full 100% (but at a lower rate).

The percentage of consumer interest that can be deducted will be less, as will percentage of miscellaneous deductions.

"The new tax law changes all the rules in the middle of the game," said Flashman. "The changes really don't give much time to get out of the game or to change the game plan. Taxpayers will have to rethink their plans, objectives and financial strategies or they may be financially devastated."

In the long run the tax bill should be good because it will reintroduce economics into all of our investment decisions, said Flashman. In the past, the tax aspect was a major decision for investments.

In the short run, the new tax bill will be hard on some individuals, particularly those who are in the $30,000 to $100,000 income range. But for about six million low-income tax payers, they will be removed from the tax roles. People who are in the 35% and above brackets also will be helped because eventually they will be in the 28% bracket.

"The new tax bill will hurt many individuals who, in the past, paid no taxes because of all the loopholes. They will now have to pay at least a minimum tax," Flashman said. "Because of measures like this, the economy should be helped."

VISIT PARENTS

Dallas Fay Sammons, of Morehead, spent Thanksgiving here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Sammons. Also visiting with her parents were Dr. and Mrs. James Lester and daughter, Melanie.

The Job Training Partnership Act is sharply focused on training with a legislatively mandated requirement that at least 70 percent of all funds be used for this purpose, according to the U.S. Labor Department's annual report for fiscal year 1985.

Results of School Failures "Staggering," Says Official

Children at risk of school failure are a national problem with "staggering human and economic consequences for our life together as a nation," the new president of the Council of Chief State School Officers said at the organization's national conference in Louisville recently.

Focused national efforts, and major changes in school policies and practices are needed to assure that every child is successfully educated for productive living, said David Hornbeck, Maryland state school superintendent.

School systems across the country have developed many programs for youngsters with handicaps and learning disabilities, he said, but children with emotional problems and family difficulties or living in poverty—children at risk of suicide, dropout, untimely pregnancy, drug and alcohol abuse—are falling through the cracks in presently-structured school programs.

The numbers of "at-risk" children are growing so large that "We are in danger of being toppled by our sense of rightness and righteousness," said Hornbeck, who has degrees in divinity and theology as well as history and law. The U.S. educational system well serves white, middle to upper income, well-motivated children from relatively stable families, he said, "but as students have deviated more and more from that norm the system has served them less and less well."

He outlines some of the danger signs: —The dropout rate for all youth shows signs of climbing again, and in some urban schools there are more students dropping out than graduating.

—The percentage of children in poverty is increasing—up from 16 to 22 percent since 1970.

—Delinquency among youth aged 10-17 is up 130 percent since 1960. "The economic consequences are staggering and wholly unacceptable," Hornbeck said. It is clear that U.S. workers must work smarter to compete in world markets and maintain a high standard of living, "but the ability, the skill, and the capacity to work smarter must—for the first time in human history—be characteristic of our total population," he said.

Hornbeck called for new legislation at the state and federal levels; changes in school practices that form barriers to at-risk children, such as tracking and certain responses to student behavior; and a search for programs now in schools that are helping to prevent children from becoming at risk or are serving those who already have problems that interfere with learning.

At the end of a year's groundwork, Hornbeck said, he hopes the state school officers organization can launch a $1 million grant program to help states undertake those programs identified as effective.

Heat Help Checks To Be Mailed Soon

The Kentucky Department for Social Insurance has been authorized to spend federal winter heating assistance funds, meaning approved applicants should begin receiving their checks in early December.

Social Insurance Commissioner Mike Robinson said the first payments to be processed will be the approximately 49,000 successful applications made during the opening segment of this year's Home Energy Assistance Program (HEAP).

"Now that the program's federal funds have been released, we're moving as quickly as possible to make payments for households approved in the elderly and disable segment," Robinson said. "Once those checks are cut and mailed, we'll begin processing approved applications from the current segment for all eligible low-income families."

Robinson said the department expects payments to be produced by the state treasurer's office and in applicant's hands as early as the week of Dec. 8.

Delays in Congressional appropriation of this year's HEAP budget caused a backlog in the granting of federal authorization for states to draw upon that funding.

A total of $5.4 million in HEAP funding was allocated to each of the early segments, with another $6 million available for the crisis portion of the program beginning in January.

Currently, applications in the second HEAP segment are being accepted only in counties in the Northern Kentucky and the Bluegrass area development districts. Funds have already been exhausted in other parts of the state following the acceptance of more than 54,000 applications across the state.

PCC Art Students To Exhibit Drawings

An exhibition of drawings by PCC art students will be on display at the College Library from December 3 through 5. Portraits, landscapes still life and fantasy subjects are included. Art instructor Tom J. Whitaker says, "This class has the most serious art students it has ever taught."

A reception with the artists present will be held opening night from 6 to 8 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

Evening At Pops Is A Holiday Gift

John Williams and the Boston Pops Orchestra deliver a special gift to KET viewers when "Evening at Pops" presents "A Christmas at Pops" Thursday, December 25, at 9:00 p.m. The program repeats Saturday, December 27, at 1:00 p.m.

This hour-long program includes appearances by the Vienna Choir Boys and the Tanglewood Festival Chorus, world-class skaters, scenes from an old-fashioned Christmas pageant and a special visit from Santa Claus.

The holiday celebration was taped last year in a performance at Boston's Symphony Hall. In this festive setting, Williams conducts a program that includes Christmas classics and traditional Pops sing-alongs.

The Vienna Choir Boys and the Tanglewood Festival Chorus, accompanied by the Pops, perform "O Come, All Ye Faithful," Irving Berlin's beloved "White Christmas" and "Santa Claus Is Coming to Town."

The Pops sing-along will include "Joy to the World," "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing," "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear," "Away in a Manger," "Jingle Bells" and "We Wish You a Merry Christmas."

Miss Harris, Mr. Ousley Wed, November 15

Miss Jonni Lyn Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Harris, and Mr. Jack Richard Ousley, II, son of Dixie Frasure and Jack Ousley, were married November 15 at the Community Methodist Church with the Rev. Ron Masters officiating.

Miss Paula Spencer greeted guests as nuptial music was presented by Kent Dickerson, pianist, and Gary Crisp, guitar soloist, who is the uncle of the bride. The Wedding March was played by Karen Ousley.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a traditional gown of white satin and lace, with a headpiece of white roses and string pearls. She carried an armspray of fresh white lilies, roses and jackstraws.

Paula Harris, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Misti Ann Howell, Teresa Lafferty, and Missy Reynolds. Angela Howell was the flowergirl. They wore tea-length dresses of turquoise taffeta.

The best man was David Smith, and ushers were J.D. Franklin, Glenn Ousley, and Brian Sexton. Chris Frasure, brother of the groom, served as ringbearer.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony in the fellowship hall. The three-tiered classic wedding cake, created by Mable Goble, was served along with a chocolate groom's cake, punch and mints. Karen Ousley, Teresa Wells, and Martha Johnson presided over the refreshment table.

Mrs. Ousley is a graduate of Prestonsburg High School and of the Prestonsburg Community College Nursing Program. She is employed as a registered nurse at Pikeville Methodist Hospital. Mr. Ousley is a student at Prestonsburg Community College, majoring in accounting, and an employee of Radio Shack.

Following a brief wedding trip, the couple are at home to friends and family at Allen, Ky.

EKU Reports Fall Enrollment Increase

Enrollment at Eastern Kentucky University increased approximately 4.2 percent for the fall semester. Fall semester enrollment for 1986 is 12,737, up from the 1985 figure of 12,229 by 508 students.

"I am pleased with the substantial enrollment increase in both traditional and adult students for the fall semester," said Dr. John D. Rowlett, vice president for academic affairs and research and dean of the faculties. "In addition to our commitment to the traditional student, we have increased our efforts to serve the adult learner both on campus and in our 22-county service region."

Rowlett said additional evening and Saturday classes have been scheduled to meet the needs of part-time students. Eastern Kentucky University at Richmond serves its 22-county service area with a variety of off-campus course offerings at both the graduate and undergraduate levels.

Nine Apply To Fill Job Of Police Chief, Here

Nine applicants, including four members of Prestonsburg Police Department, had applied for the job of police chief here when applications closed Nov. 15.

Mayor Ann Latta said she is interviewing candidates and intends also to consult council members on the selection of a chief to replace Stan Fletcher, whose resignation she accepted in October.

Fletcher, who was named chief in June, 1984, submitted his resignation after he and the mayor disagreed over the disciplining of an officer who failed to report for duty. Fletcher wanted to dismiss the officer; Latta thought dismissal too harsh.

When the police chief offered his resignation and later asked to withdraw the offer, however, it was the mayor who took a hard line, insisting that Fletcher's resignation would stand.

The former chief is staying on in a "consulting" capacity until the new year, when a new chief is expected to be named

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Opal Burchett Clark would like to express their appreciation to the many people who helped us in our time of need. Those who sent flowers, brought food, or helped in any way, we will never forget you.

To Rev. David Garrett and Rev. Virgil Hunt we would like to express our appreciation for their help, comforting warm words and deeds, and for Opal's final service and message. Also, our thanks for the fine message brought through the spiritual music of the singers and pianist.

We would also like to thank the Floyd Funeral Home for their many services.

More importantly, we appreciate the kindness, thoughts, and prayers of our family and friends. May God bless each and everyone.

Microwave Ovens To Be Subject Of KET Series

Microwave ovens are expected to be a standard feature of more than 60 percent of all United States kitchens by 1987. However, microwave oven owners are unsure of how to get the most out of their microwaves.

"Microwaves Are For Cooking," a new seven-part series beginning on KET Saturday, December 13, at 12:30 p.m., will demonstrate efficient preparation of many popular dishes with the microwave.

Host Donovan Jon Fandre, a former NASA public relations specialist, demonstrates how to prepare ethnic dishes, cakes, breads, pot roast, casseroles and vegetarian delights.

Fandre said many people have been misled into thinking that sophisticated microwave ovens will make them instant master chefs. "The truth is, if you're a lousy cook, your microwave oven will only make you a faster lousy cook."

Microwave tips of interest are presented to the 11 million new microwave owners each year, as well as long-time users. How to keep a clean machine, how to defrost ground meat and how to prevent foods from drying out are among the hints.

Meet To Address DUI Prosecution

During the first eight months of 1986, there were more than 31,000 arrests for drunken driving in Kentucky. Many criminal justice professionals are involved in the DUI issue, from the arresting police officers to county attorneys and commonwealth's attorneys who prosecute the cases. December 3-4, the Attorney General's Office, in cooperation with the state Justice Cabinet and the Highway Safety Standards Office of the Kentucky State Police, will sponsor a training seminar for criminal justice professionals from the standpoint of effective investigation and prosecution of DUI cases. It will be held at the Galt House East in Louisville, and Attorney General David L. Armstrong will give the introductory remarks at 1 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 3.

"The conference will address the critical issues of drug and alcohol abuse as they relate to offenses involving the operation of automobiles," Armstrong said. Sessions will include trial techniques, the constitutional aspects of search and seizure involving automobiles, drug and alcohol testing, and the use of field sobriety tests and roadblocks, as well as a discussion of current testing equipment and recent technological advances in the field.

The conference is made possible by grants awarded by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration for public awareness projects and the training and education of criminal justice officials.

Both Norma C. Miller, Secretary of the Justice Cabinet, and Morgan Elkins, State Police Commissioner, will be working closely on a project to train law enforcement officers throughout Kentucky on the techniques of accident investigation and reconstruction.

For more information about the conference, contact Charles Horton, director of the Attorney General's Prosecutors' Advisory Council Services Division, 909 Leewood Dr., Frankfort, Ky. 40601, (502) 564-2348.

THE SPORTING TIMES

Just when you thought Miami quarterback Vinny Testaverde had answered his critics comes this question, is Testaverde the glue that holds the Hurricane together or is Miami's supporting cast so excellent that they could have made anyone a lead quarterback.

The 6' 5" senior has indeed rolled up some unbelievable numbers during his past two seasons, but without the talented Miami program around him, Testaverde could very well be just another name in the huge quarterbacking hat.

When Testaverde missed Thursday's contest against East Carolina, his understudy, Jeff Taretta, hit on 20 of 30 passing attempts for 328 yards and three touchdowns.

In 10 games previous to his motor scooter accident, Testaverde had thrown for over 2500 yards and 27 touchdowns. These numbers aren't shabby, to say the least, but if you multiply Taretta's one-game stats by 10, the end product would greatly outnumber Testaverde's stats.

No one in his right mind would dare make a comparison between America's latest heartthrob-hero, Vinny Testaverde, and seldom-used backup, Jeff Taretta.

In fact this isn't intended to compare one athlete to another, because in this case no comparison can be made. Testaverde, as well as having a shotgun where most people's right arm goes, has perfect physical numbers for a quarterback.

His 6' 5" frame gives the dashing young man the luxury to see over a defensive line while having enough strength and quickness to elude most college rushers, that is, when anyone can find a way to penetrate the Hurricanes' tough offensive line.

Jeff Taretta, on the other hand, doesn't possess these superman type abilities, but he can certainly throw a football where it is supposed to be thrown.

You certainly won't agree that Taretta is as good as Testaverde, but by the same token, you can't deny the thought that this little-known reserve may have built as many impressive numbers as the man starting in front of him if the tables had been turned two years ago.

Testaverde is a great passer, and fortunately, ability, not numbers, determines a first-round draft choice. Now, if only the Heisman Trophy people would use this idea.

The Miami quarterback is a certain first-rounder, and more than likely the top player in college football. Many professional people say Testaverde is a franchise player who could make a losing team a playoff contender.

In the chase for this talent, Indianapolis appears to be the top choice in nabbing Testaverde but the Colts need much more than a rookie quarterback. This is one fact as to why Indianapolis could make a trade.

Dallas needs a quarterback as does Los Angeles, and these teams have a reputation for trading many quality players in order to get a great prospect to fill their needs.

If the Colts don't trade their choice and they select Testaverde, it may be several seasons before, if ever, Testaverde proves his true abilities and professional worth. However, with a Dallas or Los Angeles, this young man could progress from a college force to a super bowl quarterback quickly.

Although Testaverde has made his ability obvious, the jury is still out. Miami doesn't exactly play a tough schedule, but if there are any questions remaining, they will certainly be answered on the second day of 1987.

The Hurricanes and Vinny T. will tangle with number two rated Penn State in the Fiesta Bowl. Penn State has probably the toughest defense in the nation, but even if the Miami offense falters, one game isn't going to spoil Testaverde's career.

In the past two years, Testaverde has drawn more attention than any other college athlete and come Saturday, he will more than likely be honored with a Heisman Trophy. This award is intended to go to college football's best performer, and nobody seems to think Testaverde has much competition.

No one has stirred up as much excitement as has Testaverde, but being a quarterback at Miami, how could anyone go wrong.

This is the school that produced Jim Kelly and Bernie Kosar while Testaverde sat on the Hurricane bench. Throwing a football at Miami is like playing linebacker at Penn State, the schools have produced so many pros at these positions, the only thing an athlete has to do is play these positions at these schools. Obviously the coaches take over from there.

Miami has made a hero of Testaverde, and Testaverde had a great deal to do with this, but if Jeff Taretta had been a starter all season, his numbers would have been as good as anyone's in the country.

Taretta isn't a Vinny Testaverde, but he will be drafted come next year, and he will go before many of the top starting quarterbacks.

If you are good, the scouts will find you even if your job is playing second fiddle, and especially if you are good enough to play a close second fiddle to Vinny Testaverde.

Betsy Layne Comes Up Zero In Own Hosted Pan-O-Rama

The Virgie Lady Eagles took advantage of a poor Betsy Layne shooting performance in the fourth quarter to down the Lady Bobcats, 47-44, Wednesday night.

After taking a 37-33 lead after three quarters, Betsy Layne failed to cash in from the floor while Virgie tossed in five field goals and hit on four of nine free throws for the margin of victory.

The Lady Eagles were led in scoring by Autumn Damron with 16 points while Ladonna Parsons topped Betsy Layne and all scorers with 17 points.

Sandy Flannery also reached double figures for the Lady Bobcats, scoring 12, while Yolonda Keathley added nine points.

Betsy Layne was forced to play without all-conference performer Piper Presnell, who is suffering with an injured knee. The talented forward is expected back soon which will make a big difference in Lady Bobcat outcomes.

Betsy Layne will see their next action Thursday when they take on a stronger Prestonsburg team in pre-season tournament action.

Fourth quarter scoring also proved to be the Bobcats' biggest problem as they fell victim to highly rated Johnson Central.

Playing in front of the home folks for the first time this season, Betsy Layne jumped out to an early lead but could manage only two field goals in the second half to come up on the short end of a 58-45 final score.

The Bobcats held a 27-18 halftime advantage but were outscored 24-8 in the final stanza.

Todd Sturgill, a 6' 1" junior forward, led the Bobcats in scoring with 15 points while Bud Newsome added 10 in the losing cause.

Highly touted Johnson Central guard Bart Williams led all scorers with his 24 points, all but six coming from outside shooting.

With a new coach and four new starters on this year's squad, the Bobcats are still in the getting-acquainted stages. Betsy Layne has shown some problem areas in their two pan-o-rama contests, but if free throw shooting wins games, the Bobcats should be successful.

The 'Cats of Craynor Slone toed the charity stripe 29 times Wednesday night and connected on 27 of those times.

Like the women's team, Betsy Layne's men's squad will take on Prestonsburg this Thursday as the pre-season tournament introduces county teams with their fans.

In Wednesday's other game, the Virgie Eagles proved their worth in upending a highly regarded 16th region team, the Morgan County Cougars.

Despite playing without star point guard Lonnie Rowe, Virgie displayed superior quickness and strength to turn back the Cougars 66-60.

Virgie coach Bobby Osborne will be the first to tell you that he has the best Eagle team ever and the team that can beat Paintsville.

Osborne is a true optimist but after Wednesday's performance many people are beginning to agree with the veteran coach.

SHORT SPORTS

Morehead State University head football coach Bill Baldrige was recently named the Ohio Valley Conference's coach of the year.

Baldrige, a former defensive tackle and all-conference player at MSU, directed his Eagles to a 7-4 record this season which proved to be Morehead State's first winning campaign since 1979.

The 42-year-old Baldrige came to Morehead State in 1984 but could manage only three wins in his first two seasons. However, the coach rallied Eagle troops in 1986 to equal the most seasonal wins ever at the Eastern Kentucky school.

Baldrige is making his second coaching appearance at Morehead State University after serving as defensive secondary coach in 1975-76.

The long awaited Heisman Trophy presentation will become a reality this Saturday as the Down Town Athletic club will honor their college football player of the year.

In the past, this ceremony has ranked along with various athletic drafts as one of the most highly anticipated events in college athletics, but with a mid-season injury to Lorenzo White and Vinny Testaverde's impressive season, the glamour and excitement of this event has been lessened.

Testaverde is the odds on favorite to capture the coveted award. The Miami passer has thrown for over 2500 yards and 27 touchdowns on his way to winning a Heisman after finishing fifth last season.

The Heisman Trophy was developed in honor of Coach John W. Heisman who brought about our modern day center's snap and the forward pass. This year's event will be aired by CBS television Saturday at 5:30 p.m.

On the strength of their victory over East Carolina, the Miami Hurricanes earned a spot in this season's number one bowl, the Fiesta Bowl.

After playing second fiddle to most other top bowls, the Fiesta Bowl finally

Tradition Rich Bobcats Chosen As District's Number Four Contender

During the past several years Junior Newsome built an incredible basketball tradition at Betsy Layne High School. Known as one of the best coaches in the state of Kentucky, Newsome directed the Bobcats to six district championships and 11 regional appearances in the past 11 years.

Newsome's accomplishments included a conference and district championship a year ago, but as the Betsy Layne Bobcats prepare for another season, they find themselves without the coach who led them to a regional final berth last season.

Also gone from the 1985-86 season are four starters which will effect the Bobcats this year more than losing their coach to retirement.

Veteran coach Craynor Slone takes over at the Betsy Layne helm and with his past success will cushion the hard loss of Newsome, but Slone's Bobcats return only three players who saw game action last year.

"Right now we're just trying to find ourselves," Slone said of his inexperienced squad. "We've just got one starter back, and Bud Newsome and Jamie Little are the only other players on the team with experience. After that, it will be a game by game type thing to see who's playing well."

Jimmy Stumbo, Betsy Layne's only returning starter, scored at an 11-point per game clip and gives the Bobcats a solid outside scorer while Little, who scored five points and hauled down four rebounds a game, is capable of turning in a solid performance inside.

Newsome, a 5' 10" point guard, has already shown his leadership ability as his football team's quarterback. Newsome accounted for three points per contest last season and will be relied upon heavily as both a scorer and ballhandler.

Betsy Layne isn't exactly short on talent, but their talent is short in stature. Little is their only man over 6' 1", and short on experience, but Coach Slone expects to keep a rich tradition alive.

"Junior has been real successful," Slone said. "He has built a great tradition here, and we just hope we can continue that tradition."

During a recent coaches vote, Betsy Layne received a fourth place consideration. Most basketball people expect the Bobcats to struggle early, but Slone says his club can become a competitive one before this season concludes.

"By the end of the season, I think we can be very competitive," Slone predicted. "As far as wins and losses go, I don't know, but to improve and move up as the season goes along is our main goal."

Betsy Layne has already shown improvement from their first pan-o-rama contest to their last. After falling short to Montgomery County earlier the Bobcats gave highly regarded Johnson Central all they could handle until the final two minutes of Wednesday's matchup.

Betsy Layne fans aren't expecting a repeat performance of last season, but most do expect a strong finish as does Craynor Slone. Before this can become a Bobcat reality the coach says his team has to develop much stronger defensive skills.

"Right now we're trying to get them to play some defense," Slone revealed. "I think our shooting is there, and if our defense comes along, we will be all right."

Slone's idea of defense is somewhat more intense than most. As the head man at Ashland a year ago, Slone's Tomcats won more games because of their defensive style than they did offensively, and this is what the coach hopes to develop at Betsy Layne.

"It's a different style of defense, and it may take a while for us to learn it," Slone said. "We're just not reacting right now. We're in the right places, but we're not reacting correctly."

In their first two pan-o-rama appearances, Betsy Layne has gotten solid play from 6' 1" forward Todd Sturgill and guard Duran Newsome. Mike Vance gives the Bobcats some bench strength, but until experience is gained, Coach Slone's club will be thin in the depth department.

Betsy Layne has a solid group of athletes who have displayed their ability to win in other sports which could make the Bobcat rebuilding process a rapidly developing one.

Slone and crew have a long way to go in becoming one of the district's top contenders, but if good coaching, good athletes, and a winning tradition is what it takes, the Bobcats could very well evolve into a tough challenger.

Betsy Layne's first official test will be one of their toughest as they take on this district's second choice, Prestonsburg. The Bobcat-Blackcat contest is set for Thursday night when they meet in the pre-season tournament.

Move From Prestonsburg Hasn't Affected Coach Philip Haywood

Football and Belfrey High School have always combined to produce outstanding results and throw in a tried and true coach with the abilities of a Philip Haywood and the end result is two back-to-back state finals' appearances.

Haywood, after nine years of building a sound program at Prestonsburg, went to Belfrey in 1984 where he promptly directed the Pirates to a playoff appearance and a 7-4 record.

The 1984 season would have been a successful one for most coaches, but for Phillip Haywood it only proved to be the worst one of his career at Belfrey.

As 1984 faded and this small football community eagerly awaited yet another successful season, their coach wasn't about to let their hopes die on the field. Haywood carefully groomed his troops to a fine finish, a finish in the state 3A finals.

Belfrey came up short in their search for a state championship, and with 17 of their 22 starters graduating not many football people considered the Pirates a top choice to make a return trip to Louisville.

However, football games are won and lost on the field rather than following the predictions of a person who relies on his computer to give him a winner. Coach Haywood and the Pirates did return to the state finals but 1986 proved to be a repeat of the season before, and Belfrey returned home on the short end of a score, this time 14-0 to Owensboro.

Losing the big one the first time around was tough indeed, but Coach Philip Haywood says it's worse the second time.

"It's always tough to lose a championship game, but it was tougher the second time around," Haywood admitted.

Although Coach Haywood and his Belfrey program has an unhappy memory of dropping two games that could have made them state champions, those losses are among only a few during Haywood's current stint at the Pike county school.

In the past three years, the former Blackcat coach has compiled a 29-9 record, numbers everyone is proud of.

"We're proud of it, but we would've liked to have won the big one," Haywood said. Two reasons rank high on the list as to why Belfrey football teams have been successful, good coaching and good players to coach.

"We've been very fortunate in the fact that we have had some good kids who were pretty good football players," Haywood revealed and also credited Pirate fans with an important assist.

"Belfrey is a football community and these people really get behind their program. The last two years we have had more fans at the finals than any other schools, except the Louisville schools and it's in their own back yards."

For Philip Haywood the football coach, his record reflects his gridiron teaching ability and for Philip Haywood the man, well, he speaks for himself.

When this man's name is entered into a conversation most people talk more about his players who enjoy football beyond high school, and Haywood himself says preparing young men for life after high school athletics is where his priorities lie.

"I think that is what we are in this business for, if you want to call it that," Haywood said. "To be a positive influence on these young men is what high school athletics is all about; to see kids grow and mature and be good citizens regardless of whether they play college football or not."

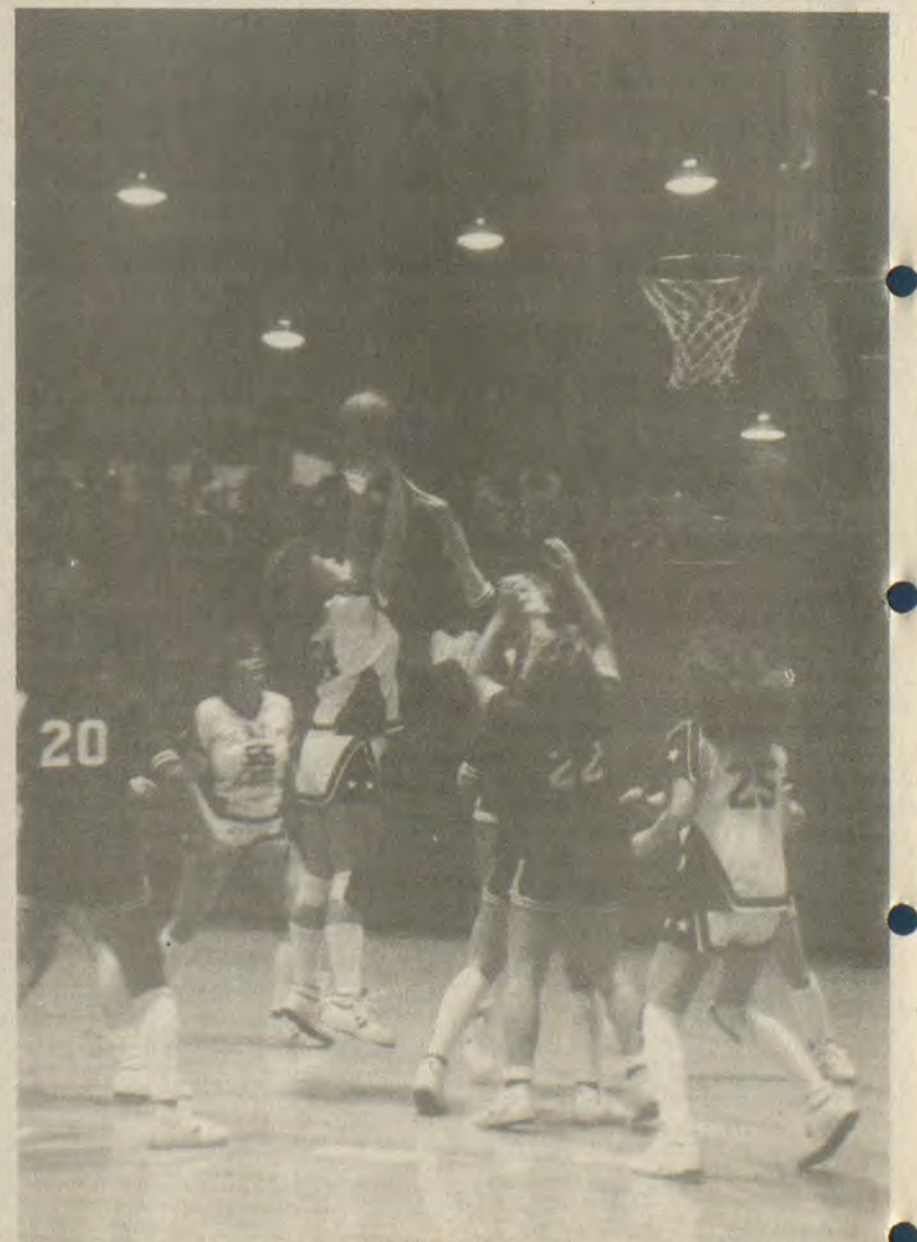

For Belfrey football parents, they may be getting more than just a chance to watch their children win football games. Haywood teaches life as well as football, but at the same time does what he is paid to do, win games on the scoreboard.

The Pirates will be hit hard by graduation come May and once again the little man will type his information into his little computer and with the information given back, will more than likely not include Belfrey at the top of his 3A poll.

It may be tough for the Pirates to return with as much talent and determination as they displayed this season. They lose many key and experienced players, but the same was the case last year.

"Last year we graduated 17 of 22 starting positions, and this season we will lose 14 starters," Haywood revealed.

"We will be young, there's no doubt about that, but we think we've got some good young kids who can play football."

TWO FOR THE CAUSE: Betsy Layne's Ladonna Parsons goes up for two of her game high 17 points Wednesday night.

News And Notes From The NFL

If you are a professional football fan then this time of year has to be your favorite. The playoff chase has reached a fever pitch, and in every division except one a full scale war is being waged for that all important top spot.

The only division without the promise of an exciting finish is the Central division of the NFC where the Chicago Bears have a top sport signed and sealed.

The Bears assured themselves of their second consecutive divisional title when Kevin Butler nailed a field goal in overtime to turn back Pittsburgh. Chicago's winning the NFC Central didn't come as any great surprise, but the Bears, without Jim McMahon, haven't been their usually dominating selves.

Neither have the Denver Broncos, but like the Bears, they somehow find a way to win. Denver led Cincinnati 34-14 in the second half but had to have some help from the officials to beat the Bengals in Denver.

After staging an incredible comeback, Cincinnati recovered an obvious Bronco fumble deep in Denver territory but after an instant replay confirmed this, official Jerry Markwright searched his crew until he found one willing to admit he had blown the play dead before the fumble. You're wondering how an official can whistle a play dead before the play is over, right? Well, you are certainly not alone.

With this loss, Cincinnati slipped a notch from first to second in their division while the Broncos gained another game on Los Angeles.

Philadelphia gave the Broncos their second gift of the day when Randall Cunningham scored an overtime touchdown to upset LA and enable the Broncos to increase their lead to two games over the Raiders.

Overtime appeared to be the rule rather than the exception, Sunday, as the Cleveland Browns also needed the extra period to gain a win. The Browns, and new place kicker, Mark Moseley, stopped Houston with a 29-yard overtime field goal.

Field goal kickers also proved their worth in week thirteen and none were more important than Max Zenedejas. The rookie from Arizona kicked a three-pointer with 45 seconds left in regulation play to give Washington a victory over St. Louis.

The Los Angeles Rams didn't need any late field goals to keep their first position intact as they thrashed the hapless New York Jets.

Coming into the game, everyone knew the Jets' defense was hurting, 45 points to Miami a week earlier, but who would have thought that New York's offense could be shut down two weeks in a row.

In their past two games, New York has scored a grand total of six points and without their defense giving the offense great field position, the Jets look like a team in trouble and they are.

With the Jets' loss and New England's victory, the Patriots take an advantage in the AFC East. Although their records are identical, New England is actually on top because of a better divisional record. The first form of tie-breaking is head to head competition and the second is the divisional record.

Home wasn't the place to be this week as only three teams won at home, including the San Francisco 49ers. New York turned back the 49ers Monday night to keep pace with Washington, and this particular divisional battle will come to a head this week.

The Giants roll into Washington this week for an important divisional battle. With Dallas on the skids, the Giants-Raiders clash could be the deciding factor in which of these teams win a division and which one gets a wildcard choice.

The schedule coming up this week could go a long way in deciding the playoff picture but this year's races are so close that week 14 may have trouble deciding anything.

Both Washington and New York have locked up a post season spot and now are playing for pride and home field advantage during the playoffs, but several good teams are merely clinging to fast fading extra game hopes.

The San Francisco 49ers are in a two-team battle for the second NFC wildcard spot with the Dallas Cowboys, and based on how they have played recently, neither team has enough talent to win.

The Cowboys travel to LA this week to take on the Rams, and with an LA victory, Dallas would be eliminated from the playoff picture. That is, if the 49ers could win at home against the troubled New York Jets.

If San Francisco defeats the Jets and New England beats Cincinnati, the Patriots will take over sole position of the AFC East.

At the same time New England could all but put the Bengals out of the running for a wildcard position. The Patriots haven't played tremendous football, but like all good teams, they have found a way to win, something Cincinnati hasn't been able to do.

Denver appears to have a comfortable lead in the Western division, but they play on the road at Kansas City, a team capable of better things than they have shown the past few weeks.

Los Angeles, a team trying to stay in contention, will have a tough time in Seattle and will, during these remaining three weeks, have as much to say about Cincinnati's playoff chances as do the Bengals.

If LA continues to lose, Cincinnati may have new life, but the Raiders don't usually lose when winning means so much, especially to post season action. Other than these teams mentioned, the NFL is mainly completing their season and in Indianapolis they have a new coach to go with their first draft choice.

Ron Meyer has been named as the new head man for the Colts, but without major dealings, Meyer won't accomplish anything great in Indianapolis, even Vinny Testaverde won't be the answer.

Some notes of interest—Joe Klecko should be back this week for the Jets while the New England Patriots should have linebacker Andre Tippitt back for the Cincinnati game.

SHORT SPORTS

This particular bowl game will feature the nation's top two teams in number one Miami and number two Penn State.

Miami has been considered as one of the best college football teams in recent years while Penn State has their usually tough defense and one of the nation's top runners in D.J. Dozier.

The Eastern Kentucky Colonels now represent Kentucky's only NCAA division 1AA team left in this season's playoff picture.

Eastern earned an at large bid to the playoffs and proved their worth this past Saturday by defeating Furman 23-10.

Quarterback Mike Whitaker threw for 125 yards and two touchdowns as Eastern advanced to the second round of playoff action.

The Colonels, 9-2-1, will now meet Eastern Illinois this Saturday, who eliminated Murray State with a 28-21 whipping of the Racers.

LSU coach Bill Armsbarger announced that he would be leaving the Bayou Bengals after his team's bowl appearance this season.

According to various reports Armsbarger decided to leave Louisiana State in order to become Florida's director of athletics.

The New York Knicks have been a surprising team so far this season in the NBA, but also surprising in the fact that they haven't won.

After many top draft choices during recent years the Knicks were regarded as a power in the east, but this theory has yet to become a reality.

As a result New York management decided to make a coaching change, firing their coach Hubie Brown.

W'wright Hopes Speed, Shooting Is Sufficient

For the first time in ten seasons Danny Johnson led the Wheelwright Trojans to a regional tournament appearance last season but for his efforts the Floyd County Board of Education relieved Johnson of his duties.

Not only is their coach gone, but Wheelwright also graduated three of their starters from last year's successful team.

In looking forward to a new year and a transition period, Trojan players will have to rely on quickness and good outside shooting if they are to develop into a 58th district contender.

The Trojans, in a recent vote tally of county coaches, were selected as this district's last placed team, and looking around the 58th district, Wheelwright may have a tough time in improving on their last place selection.

However, Wheelwright High School did salvage a few things from 1986 with some talented players returning. Although the Trojans won't beat anyone with physical strength, they may very well be the quickest team in Floyd county.

Wheelwright returns two starters from last year's squad, including point guard Tony Hutton and forward Johnny Isaac.

Hutton showed tremendous ability to direct a team last season while displaying an ability to heat up the nets. The 5' 10" guard is probably the quickest guard in the district and gives Wheelwright a solid penetrator.

Tommy Jones is another Trojan guard with offensive ability and could become a strong outside shooting threat. At 6' 1", Jones is Wheelwright's tallest guard and compliments Hutton's defensive and ballhandling skills.

Johnny Isaac, a 6' 3" forward, may be the Trojan's best athlete and also is a proven outside scoring power. Isaac, in last year's district tournament, scored 33 points against Allen Central. Just one example of his offensive ability.

Wheelwright has an offensive team that can rival anyone in the district but inside is where the Trojans could find their most trouble. Isaac represents their biggest experienced player but even he is most effective from 15 feet.

In a district filled with talented big men the Trojans will have to compensate for their lack of size through quickness and fundamental basketball which isn't beyond their grasps.

No one is expecting great things from this version of Wheelwright High School basketball, but from early indications they could be one of the most exciting teams to watch in this area.

New coach Monroe Jones brings to the Trojans a youthful enthusiasm that could be the deciding factor as to whether Wheelwright will have a successful season.

Jones says his team may struggle early but could challenge later in the season.

"I think when the players adjust to a new coach and learn a new system, we'll be alright," Jones said. "We may lose a few early, but by January or February we will have a pretty good team."

Although Jones will have to rely on inexperienced players at three starting positions and for bench strength, the first year coach is optimistic that his Wheelwright team will develop into a competitive squad.

Local Teams Unveil Talents As Pre-Season Tournament Begins

In keeping with local tradition, county teams will give the public their first composite look at 58th district talent as the Floyd County pre-season tournament is set to begin tonight.

The tournament, which is one of only a few of its kind, gives fans and coaches an opportunity to see where they stand against district competition, but the pre-season tourney's popularity may be slipping just a bit.

"It used to be more important than it is now," Allen Central coach Johnny Martin said. "I think now most people look at it as what it really is, a pre-season game."

Martin's Rebels are serving as hosts this season and will provide competition for the McDowell Daredevils in the tournament's opener Wednesday night.

The pre-season tournament doesn't figure in the final conference standings and doesn't affect the district seeding in any form, but regardless of these factors, all coaches and players want to give a good accounting for their schools.

"It's a basketball tradition in county basketball, and you want to play well, but I don't know how important winning it is," said first-year Bobcat coach Craynor Slone.

Slone's Betsy Layne squad will open their tournament play against Prestonsburg, Thursday night, and at least one person in Prestonsburg isn't exactly crazy about the pre-season tourney concept.

"If a team plays well, they could establish themselves early, but in my book this is too early," Blackcat coach Jeff Riley said.

"I don't like the tournament, because we already have to play each other twice in the regular season and possibly again in an invitational tournament, and I think that we're beating each other to death."

This year's tournament will run from December 3 thru 6 and will include both men's and women's competition.

Unlike the district tournament, which has the seeding process, this tourney is determined by the draw.

Due to this fact, the ladies' side of things features the top two teams going against each other in the opening round.

The Betsy Layne Lady Bobcats will tangle with Prestonsburg Thursday night in what could prove to be the tournament's most exciting ladies' matchup. Betsy Layne has been selected as the team most likely to capture a 58th district crown, but they are playing without all-conference forward, Piper Pressnell. This along with a talented Lady Blackcat team makes for an interesting contest.

The Wheelwright Trojans drew the tournament's bye and both the men's and women's squads will do battle on Friday night against Wednesday's Allen Central-McDowell winner.

For most county teams the tournament will provide their first actual game exposure but for Allen Central the pre-season activities could be more than they can handle.

"If we advance to the finals, it would mean that we have to play four games in five days," Coach Martin explained. "At this point, you want to get as many games in as possible, but young players have a tough time playing that many games so early in the season."

Local coaches aren't exactly thrilled about the pre-season tournament, but county fans are. This type tournament gives basketball supporters a good idea of how their favorite team can match up with district talent and what they have to do to advance beyond district play.

More importantly for the tournament's sake, these same fans support the pre-season affair, and as long as this continues, so will the tournament.

Everyone has their own opinion about this event, but one thing is for sure, nowhere else can you find a more competitive and more exciting tournament where the loser isn't any worse for wear.

A game similar to soccer was probably played as early as 400 B.C. by the Chinese.

The word soccer comes from "assoc.", an abbreviation for "association". In Great Britain, soccer is called football or association football.

What About American Home-Grown Terrorism?

A few days ago some of our home-grown terrorists announced a cross-burning in Idaho. Another political splinter announced a convention to unite the Ku Klux Klan and "Aryan Nations" in the Northwest. Newspapers, radio and TV have carried feature stories—rivalling the attention paid the confrontation of Reagan and Gorbachev in Iceland or Great Britain's welcome diplomatic rebuke to Syrian terrorism.

And as a matter of fact, whether home-grown or international, terrorist groups and their potential are coming to be recognized as one of the most dangerous challenges to liberty and self-government to be found.

With the daily discussions in the newspapers and over the air, a good many Sunday School classes are being told that "the Aryans" have wrong ideas. One person said of their views while being interviewed in Spokane, "that's one thing we don't need out here for sure!" Another said there was little real danger, for "there are a lot of good people and only a few bad ones." Both Roman Catholic and Protestant church groups, have held public rallies condemning the terrorist racists. Lola Evans, wife of the Governor of Idaho, was one of the speakers in one rally.

These are good people, and in the long run they represent what is vital and dependable about America. What concerns us now is the short run: We need an Early Warning System on potentially genocidal movements, and we need some new approaches on how to put them out of business as rapidly and painlessly as possible. Axiom: the German Nazi Party was a terrorist movement before it ever became a criminal government with the power to commit genocide.

Meanwhile the Federal authorities are beginning to move against some members of the terrorist network. Their approach reminds us that they finally caught Al Capone not for the serious crimes his gang committed but for income tax evasion. Right now two terrorists are being prosecuted for trying to pass counterfeit bills.

Few in number but violent in both theory and practice, "the Aryans" consist of fragments and cells of the KKK, neo-Nazis, "the Church of Jesus Christ Christian" (i.e., not of Jesus the Jew, who was of David's lineage), Brueder Schweigan ("the Silent Brotherhood"), Strike Force II, "the Order," "the Second Order," and so on.

This network is proletarianized in the classical sense—in the society, but not of it. They do not think as loyal American citizens think, nor do they have the same love of the American Constitution and the liberties it protects. They live in a different world and have a different hope for the future. It is a hope that to most Americans looks like a nightmare.

"Cinderella" Performance By San Francisco Ballet

A special "Dance in America" presentation encores when "Great Performances" presents the "San Francisco Ballet in 'Cinderella.'" This program airs Monday, December 22, at 8:00 p.m. on KET.

Noted balletomanes Kermit the Frog and Miss Piggy host the special and introduce each of the ballet's three acts. This enchanting fairy tale is one of the most popular productions of the San Francisco Ballet, America's oldest ballet company.

Evelyn Cisneros dances the title role. Co-starring are Tomm Rudd and Vane Vest as Cinderella's stepisters, and Alexander Topcyj as the Prince. "Cinderella," set to Prokofiev's music, is choreographed by the late Lew Christensen along with Michael Snuin.

Fascination with guns and violence is part of the atmosphere of these cells. While one member was known for pushing his racist views in a lumber plant where he worked, and where he quit after other employees resisted his missionizing, another's friends say of him that he was never racist. Instead, as one of them said, "he gets his kicks by fantasizing. He's got this fantasy about being a real mercenary-type GI Joe... sort of like a Rambo."

But as the record of the 1920-23 coalescing cooperation between the then tiny Nazi Party and the Freikorps in the Weimar Republic amply documents, an alliance between ideological racists and unemployed Rambos can be very dangerous.

So far we have lucked out, in America. But how long will our luck last? And how long will it be before the politicians treat the issue of terrorism—both international and internal—as something more than a buzzword in political speeches?

So far ninety-nine and forty-four hundred percent of the people of Idaho—and the rest of the beautiful and rugged Northwest—would applaud decisive action to put terrorist conspiracies out of business. But the loyal, law-abiding citizens are quietly anxious, for they know something that apparently hasn't occurred to those who think the whole thing is a matter of opinion: the terrorists have the guns, and they are getting more.

Fire Suppression Costs Are Repaid

Natural Resources Secretary Charlotte E. Baldwin recently distributed $12,000 among 48 counties who had paid their 1985 county forest fire protection assessment. Floyd county received $247.24 of this amount.

According to Kentucky law, the Division of Forestry may collect the cost of suppressing forest fires from persons responsible for starting the fires. The fire suppression cost is usually ordered paid when the guilty party is determined by the district courts. This same law instructs the division to return fire suppression reimbursements to counties that have fully paid their annual county forest fire protection assessment. The money returned to the counties goes into a special forest fire protection fund to help pay the upcoming year's assessment.

Counties receiving the highest amounts were Lawrence, $1,700.47; Perry, $939.41; Boyd, $885.28. Lowest amounts were received by Union, $8.17; Hancock, $17.08; Nelson, $19.82. Neighboring Johnson county received $368.02, and Pike county, $392.87.

Clerk Aspirants Must Pass Exam

If you're not the Circuit Clerk already but would like to be on the ballot for clerk next May, you will need to pass a standard examination, according to a Supreme Court rule that becomes effective on Jan. 1. The exam has been set for 9 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 17, at Kentucky State University. For further information, contact the office of the county clerk or county attorney.

Soap Beat

Bidding a reluctant farewell to 'Search for Tomorrow'

By Marie Michaels

It's always sad to witness the end of a formerly successful venture. This is particularly true in the case of "Search for Tomorrow," a soap with an illustrious history that has meant so much to so many people, from the actors and production crews it has employed to the audience that has stuck with the show over its 35-year span.

Stuart and Haines

When the news of "Search for Tomorrow" 's cancellation circulated in early November, few industry insiders were shocked or surprised by the joint move by Procter & Gamble, which owns the show, and NBC, which has aired "Search for Tomorrow" for the past four years.

The cancellation of "Search for Tomorrow," daytime TV's longest-running soap opera ("Guiding Light" boasts 49 years in broadcasting, but that includes the show's radio as well as its television years) makes one wonder whether the three remaining half-hour daytime soaps, "Ryan's Hope" (ABC), "Loving" (ABC) and "Capitol" (CBS), might soon suffer the same "pink slip" fate.

All of the half-hour soaps have been lagging in the all-important Nielsen ratings for some time. CBS will introduce a new half-hour soap, "The Bold and the Beautiful," in March, but its current contender, "Capitol," has had to squash numerous rumors that it might be the next to go, even though it consistently has been the highest rated half-hour contender.

No one seems to have an answer to the dilemma faced by the half-hour soaps, which simply don't have the same time to tell a detailed, action-packed story or develop their characters as hourlong soaps do.

Suggestions to improve the future of the half-hour soaps have included changing the lineup so that they aren't competing against the hour soaps for viewership and expanding the existing half-hour shows to an hour.

But none of the networks have made a dent in the problem so far. Sadly, "Search for Tomorrow" will be but a memory after it airs its last episode on Dec. 26. All its cast will be missed, but Mary Stuart and Larry Haines, who have been with the soap for so long, deserve special mention.

ANASTASIA: THE STORY OF ANNA

Amy Irving (r.) stars as Anna Anderson, the mysterious woman who may — or may not — be Russia's Grand Duchess Anastasia, in "Anastasia: The Story of Anna," concluding MONDAY, DEC. 8, on NBC. Jan Niklas co-stars as Prince Erich, the man who loves her.

AN AMERICAN TAIL (G-Universal). ★ ★ 1/2 ★

By J.T. YURKO

Nearly every phase of the media has been involved in the centennial celebration of the Statue of Liberty, so it is only fitting that Hollywood becomes involved as well. Rising to the call are Steven Spielberg and company.

In "An American Tail," director Don Bluth and executive producer Spielberg present an animated slice of 19th-century immigration. The twist is that this story concerns an immigrant family of mice.

Beneath the home of the Moskowitz family in old mother Russia lives a family of mice named — you guessed it — the Mousekewitz family. It's Chanukah, and the family is gathered around the fireplace. But the peace is broken by the screams of a Russian pogrom. Father Mousekewitz has often spoken of America, where there are no cats and the streets are paved with cheese, so the family sets out for the new promised land.

On board ship, the son of the family, Fievel, gets a bit too curious about fish, and gets washed overboard. There is much mourning in the Mousekewitz family. When they land, America proves to be a bit of a disappointment.

Cheese isn't that easy to come by, and there are plenty of cats — big vicious cats. Feival proves durable, however, and thanks to a floating bottle arrives safe at the foot of the soon-to-be-completed Statue of Liberty.

As the human passengers go through immigration, so do the mice. They then head for the Lower East Side with the other Jewish mice. These aspects of the film are intended to please the older members of the audience, but they do form a parallel world that the youngest child might instinctively understand. Whether mouse or human, the immigrants had it rough.

What will appeal to children is Feival himself, a spunky little creature who never gives up hope of finding his family. What will turn off viewers of all ages is director Don Bluth's whirlwind animation. In an effort to keep things moving, the images rush by in a blur of color and light. And he has an unhappy tendency to forego close-ups of the characters. In live action or animation, this is an unpardonable crime.

This one is for young and forgiving viewers.

HILL STREET BLUES

The conscience of Furillo (Daniel J. Travanti) is in knots when he goes home to learn that his father's shooting death resulted not from robbery, but from suicide, on the "Fathers and Guns" episode of NBC's "Hill Street Blues," airing TUESDAY, DEC. 9.

New Bankruptcy Law May Help Ky. Farmers Keep Their Farms

Farmers who declare bankruptcy have a greater chance to reorganize their operations and keep them going now that a new bankruptcy law is in effect.

"Often when farmers declared bankruptcy under chapters 11 or 13 of the federal bankruptcy law, they were unable to put together a debt repayment plan that met the approval of creditors. As a result, their assets were liquidated and they were forced off the farm, said University of Kentucky Extension agricultural economist Don Shurley.

Under the new law, farmers have more leeway in reorganizing a debt repayment schedule, which should give them a greater chance to continue farming. The new law, commonly referred to as Chapter 12, gives farmers only 90 days to come up with a plan for repayment of debts, but does not require approval by the creditors for implementation, Shurley said.

Chapter 12 should prove to be a significant benefit to Kentucky, where farm bankruptcies continue to escalate. Now, some 23,000 acres of western Kentucky farmland are controlled by bankruptcy courts. Many will be taken over by the banks who hold the mortgage, making them reluctant farmers, Shurley said.

Although the new law probably will result in fewer farms being liquidated to banks, it may be seen by bankers as anti-lender because it does not allow them or other creditors to veto reorganization plans as they have been able to in the past.

In addition, lenders may find it troublesome the way the law defines "adequate protection for undersecured creditors." Under previous bankruptcy laws, farmers were required to continue paying interest on their debts while the court was processing the case, or be subject to liquidation. Now, farmers are required to pay only a fair rental value on their land until the case is resolved.

"Farmers more likely will be able to pay the fair rental value for their land than to keep up interest payments on it. This should make it easier for them to have their repayment plans confirmed and reduce the chance that their assets will be liquidated," Shurley said.

Finally, the new law allows debts to be reduced to an amount not greater than the market value of assets held as collateral, he said.

Chapter 12 is available to farmers who have less than $1.5 million in debt and who earned more than half of their gross income from farming in the year before the petition is filed.

Bankruptcy cases already filed may be converted to application under the new law provided the court hearing the bankruptcy case decides that Chapter 12 would lead to a successful reorganization of the farmer's debt and if a prior plan has not already been filed, Shurley said.

Shurley advises farmers who are contemplating bankruptcy declaration to consult with a bankruptcy attorney before they make any decisions.

★ Cancer Hopeline

QUESTION: A member of my family was told he has cancer. I want to be helpful, but what should I say to him?

ANSWER: There are no right or wrong things to say. Being yourself and relating to this person in the same way as before are both important. Very often, the most helpful thing one can do is to be a good listener. A good listener means to be open to thoughts and feelings. There is no judging, advising, or attempts to change the other person. The good listener tries his best to understand what the other person is going through. Understanding the other's feelings, by itself, is very helpful for the person who has cancer or his family members. It is, in fact, more often helpful than advice or talk aimed at changing another's feelings. Good listening is also called active listening. It takes practice and a change in the way we usually communicate. Some general guidelines for active listening are:

—Allow some extra time after each person speaks (a few seconds is usually enough).

—After you've heard what the other person has to say, ask yourself "What does this statement mean to me?"—let the other person know, in your own words, what you heard or understood.

—At or near the close of the conversation, summarize what you've discussed.

A WONDERWORKS SPECIAL
"Anne of Green Gables"
Sundays, December 7 and 14, 11:00 a.m. (ET), 10:00 a.m. (CT) and repeating Saturdays, December 13 and 20, 7:00 p.m. (ET), 6:00 p.m. (CT)

It's a very special "Wonderworks" when this popular, Emmy Award-winning adaptation of Lucy Maude Montgomery's classic returns in a two-part encore presentation. Colleen Dewhurst, Richard Farnsworth and Megan Follows star in the story of young orphan Anne Shirley who touches the lives and hearts of the elderly brother and sister who somewhat accidentally adopt her from an orphanage.

UPSTAIRS, DOWNSTAIRS
Thursday, December 11, 8:00 p.m. (ET), 7:00 p.m. (CT)

Two episodes from this award-winning drama encore on KET. In "Guest of Honor," from the series' first season, the boundaries separating the aristocratic Bellamys from the servants fall apart. As the Bellamys entertain the King of England in genteel splendor upstairs, a complication arises in the servants' quarters downstairs. "Goodwill to All Men," beginning at 9:00 p.m. (ET), 8:00 p.m. (CT), illustrates how class distinctions prevent two young girls from becoming friends.

GREAT PERFORMANCES
"Baryshnikov on Broadway"
Monday, December 15, 8:00 p.m. (ET), 7:00 p.m. (CT)

Mikhail Baryshnikov is joined by Liza Minnelli and Nell Carter in a special salute to Broadway. Songs from the musicals "Oklahoma!", "Ain't Misbehavin'", "Cabaret" and "A Chorus Line" are performed.

HEADWATERS
Thursdays, 7:00 p.m. (ET), 6:00 p.m. (CT), beginning December 16

A new season of "Headwaters" comes to KET in December. This series addresses issues and interests aimed primarily at Eastern Kentuckians. "Mud Creek Clinic," the premiere episode, depicts the victory of a Floyd County community in organizing and maintaining health care for all its people. The triumphs of a black Appalachian woman are presented December 23 in "Mabel Parker Hardison Smith." She recounts her more than 35 years in the teaching profession and the history of black migration to the coal camps. "One-Ring Circus," December 30, goes inside the tents to look at a small circus traveling to mountain towns.

KENTUCKY CENTER PRESENTS:
THE SNOW QUEEN
Wednesday, December 17, 8:00 p.m. (ET), 7:00 p.m. (CT)

This KET production airs live from Louisville's Kentucky Center for the Arts. Presented by Stage One: Louisville Children's Theatre, this timeless fairy tale by Hans Christian Andersen is the story of a happy family whose lives are disrupted when the Snow Queen abducts foster grandson Kay and turns his heart to ice. Grief-stricken by his absence, Gerda leaves her grandmother's cottage on a long and perilous journey to bring him back.

HOLIDAY ENTERTAINING WITH
MARTHA STEWART
Thursday, December 18, 7:00 p.m. (ET), 6:00 p.m. (CT) and repeating Saturday, December 20, 1:00 p.m. (ET), 12:00 p.m. (CT)

Martha Stewart, one of America's most accomplished cooks and author of five popular books on the art of entertaining, celebrates the spirit of the holiday season in a one-hour special. The program offers creative and practical approaches to every aspect of the holiday season.

EVENING AT POPS
"A Christmas at Pops"
Thursday, December 25, 9:00 p.m. (ET), 8:00 p.m. (CT) and repeating Saturday, December 27, 1:00 p.m. (ET), 12:00 p.m. (CT)

The Vienna Boys' Choir and the Tanglewood Festival Chorus join conductor John Williams and the Boston Pops Orchestra for a festive holiday celebration at Boston's Symphony Hall. Opening with the Vienna Boys' Choir's a capella version of "Adeste Fideles," the choirs also perform favorites such as "Silent Night" and "The Little Drummer Boy." Program highlights include a visit from Santa Claus and the traditional Pops' audience sing-along.

Friendship Results In Gift Of Artworks To Morehead U.

A 16-year friendship has resulted in the gift of 24 artworks, valued in excess of $12,000, to Morehead State University. All but a handful of the prints and posters are originals.

The collection was given to the University by Philip and Muriel Berman of Allentown, Penn., whose knowledge of MSU stems from their long time association with Tom Sternal, Department of Art chair.

Among the artists represented are Gauguin, Picasso, Calder, Francoise Gilot, Motke Blum, Chaim Gross, Pinchas Litvinosky, Leroy Neiman, Dong Kingman and Dali. Included in the five prints by Dali is his portrait of Picasso.

"Morehead State is most grateful to the Bermans for sharing these works with us," said MSU President A.D. Albright. "The gift has more than a monetary value, for one cannot place value on beauty."

"Even more important perhaps is the role that this gift will play in enriching the lives of our students as well as the people of the region who will come in contact with works by some of the great artists of our time," Dr. Albright said. "And for this we thank Philip and Muriel Berman."

The Bermans, former owners of Hess's department stores, became acquainted with Sternal and his work while he was on the faculty at Muhlenberg College from 1970 to 1980. "The Bermans are extremely sincere and generous people," said Sternal, adding that they are probably the most active art collectors in the nation.

This gift is not the first time that the Bermans, who have gained national prominence as art collectors and benefactors, have contributed to the campus art scene. The campuses of Lehigh University, Pennsylvania State University, Rutgers University and the University of Notre Dame have benefitted from their generosity.

Also the Bermans were the impetus for MSU's outdoor monumental sculpture exhibit which decorated the campus landscape from spring through fall of 1985.

"That show in itself attracted the attention of art critics, not only in Kentucky, but nationally as well, reflecting upon our art program and campus," said Sternal. "It lent credibility to what we are doing here in Eastern Kentucky in the art field."

The Bermans, whose gift to their own community of nine abstract outdoor sculptures created front page news in the Philadelphia Inquirer, have broad philanthropic interests.

The Jerusalem Biblical Zoo, the Vatican, local scout troops and several major universities have benefitted from their commitment to giving.

"When someone asks you and you can afford to help them, if you feel the cause is right, then you should," Mrs. Berman explained in an interview.

A highly successful businessman, Berman began his career with a dealership for International Harvester heavy trucks. He later purchased Hess's Department Store in Allentown and from this store he and his wife, who served as the firm's vice president, built a chain of 39 Hess's stores before selling them.

RED EYE

COPYRIGHT 1986 KVMA

Kentucky Veterinary Medical Association
A common problem which affects both domestic and farm animals is "red eye." It gets its name from the appearance of the infected eye and can be caused by several agents.

The eye is a highly vascular organ and has many superficial blood vessels which can be readily seen. These include the blood vessels in the conjunctiva, a membrane which lines the inside of the eyelids and lies over the sclera, which is the "white" of the eye.

Normally these vessels are barely visible, but when they are irritated they become engorged with blood and may become so big and numerous they make the eye appear red.

One of the more common causes of "red eye" is conjunctivitis, an irritation of the conjunctiva. This irritation may be caused by mechanical irritation when dust, smoke or chemicals get into the eye and irritate the exterior surface.

The malady may also be caused by viral or bacterial infection.

Another cause of "red eye" can be improper tear production. When inadequate quantities of tears are produced, the eyeball becomes dry which leads to irritation and other problems.

When this happens, bacteria normally present on the eyeball would multiply and cause infection.

Still another cause of "red eye," much more serious, is glaucoma. This is simply an increase in fluid pressure within the eyeball, and through various consequent changes the vessels become engorged with blood.

Still a fourth possible cause is irritation of the internal blood vessels which in turn leads to redness of the surface vessels. This condition is called uveitis and has numerous causes. If not quickly and correctly diagnosed it can lead to serious eye damage.

These are only four of the more common causes of "red eye." There are many more, including some serious body diseases and sometimes reactions to therapy for diseases.

Usually "red eye" can be cleared up quickly, once the cause is determined. Also, usually, the animal's owner does not know how to correctly discover the cause, and incorrect treatment can cause even more damage.

Your veterinarian is competent to diagnose the cause and treat "red eye." He is a highly trained health professional which the necessary resources to obtain quick, accurate diagnosis and prescribe effective treatment.

CLEVER, THESE JAPANESE

The results are in and the "eyes" have it! According to International Wildlife magazine, an experiment conducted by Japan's All-Nippon Airlines found that painting large eyes on the engines frightened birds away from the plane, reducing the number of "strikes". In the past year, the airline recorded only one bird strike per engine on the painted 747s while the unpainted 767s were struck 22 times per engine. The airline is preparing to paint eyes on all of their commercial jets. While this may startle the birds, it probably will save their lives.

Accidents Of Nature Create Beautiful Gems

By VICKI MOESER
Smithsonian News Service

It's about as big as a gem can be and still fit on a ring. The nearly 38-carat Chalk Emerald is said to have the ultimate color for such a gem—a brilliant, transparent green. While this emerald's history may not be as well known as the Hope Diamond's, there is a certain notoriety surrounding it just the same.

The emerald reputedly is one of a set of earrings worn by Cleopatra and was once the property of an Indian maharajah. More recently, it belonged to the wife of a Washington, D.C., financier, Mrs. O. Roy Chalk.

Several years ago, Mrs. Chalk wore her emerald ring to a reception at the White House during a state visit by Britain's Queen Elizabeth II. Afraid her emerald might outshine the Queen's jewels, Mrs. Chalk tactfully twisted the ring around her finger to hide the gem in her palm. Shortly after that episode, the emerald ring was donated to the Smithsonian Institution, where it now sits on display in the Hall of Gems at the National Museum of Natural History.

The Chalk Emerald is in good company. The legendary Hope Diamond, an extraordinary blue diamond weighing 45.5 carats, is nearby. So is the Logan Sapphire. Weighing 423 carats, the Logan is about the size of an extra-large hen's egg and one of the largest blue sapphires known to exist. Another neighbor is the Rosser Reeves Ruby, quite likely the world's finest star ruby.

According to John White, curator in charge of the National Gem Collection, "The Smithsonian's gem collection is probably the best publicly exhibited gem collection in the world." Aside from the crowd-gathering aspect, White says, "it's perfectly reasonable, and in fact traditional, for natural history museums to display gem collections, since gems are cut and polished bits of minerals.

"There are close to 9,000 pieces in the Smithsonian's gem collection," he says, "but they're not all on display. Typically, the most 'important' gems are on exhibition. In our case, that's about 2 percent of the collection."

White hastens to note, however, that the national collection of gems is not mainly jewelry. "The vast majority of exhibited gems are unset, faceted pieces that best illustrate the desirable characteristics of each type. Set gems are displayed only if the jewelry is historically important or its beauty is greatly enhanced by the setting."

The National Gem Collection celebrated its 100th anniversary in 1984. "But it wasn't until 1958 when the new gem and mineral hall opened that the collection experienced spectacular growth," White says.

That was also the year the Smithsonian received the Hope Diamond. The public's imagination was captivated and, shortly afterward, the institution received the Vetlesen collection of carved Chinese jade objects—one of the finest private collections of carved jade in existence. "Over the next few years," White says, "the gem collection grew from being merely a very fine public exhibit to one of great stature."

To Jeff Post, the Smithsonian's associate curator of mineralogy, gems are "the best crystals from different types of minerals. To be useful as a gem, a mineral must have characteristics such as beauty, brilliance, durability and rarity. The harder a gem is, the larger and more perfect the crystal, and the more intense its hue and tint, the more valuable the specimen."

There are about 3,000 different known minerals found in the Earth's crust, each a natural substance having a definite chemical composition and specific physical characteristics by which it can be distinguished from others. "Several hundred kinds of mineral species account for the most familiar minerals," Post says. "Of those, only a couple dozen, including quartz and feldspar, make up the vast majority of the Earth's crust. Fewer than a hundred mineral species are traditionally used as gems." Some gems, such as pearls, coral and amber, technically are not minerals; rather, they are derived from living organisms.

There are a number of reasons why most mineral crystals do not make good gemstones. "Some are too rare," Post explains. "Some minerals don't form nice crystals—they may either be very small or not very clear. Some minerals just aren't attractive. Others may be pretty, shiny and colorful but very soft, or the minerals may not cut easily or polish nicely—unlike the diamond, which has a lot of pizzazz."

A fine-quality diamond is widely regarded as a top-of-the-line gemstone, since it possesses—in abundance—the characteristics that determine value. A diamond is the hardest substance known and the highest—a 10—on the Mohs' scale, which ranks a gemstone's resistance to abrasion or scratching.

An opal, on the other hand, has a hardness between 5.5 and 6.5, making it one of the softest popular gemstones. The opal's chemical composition is similar to quartz, but with a small amount of water mixed in between spheres of silica, and that is what makes it fragile. Despite its brittleness, the opal's value is based on its beauty, rarity and dazzling play of colors.

Quartz, one of Earth's most abundant minerals (and the most common type of beach sand), produces some beautiful and popular gemstones. A simple compound of silicon and oxygen, quartz is colorless unless there are traces of impurities in the crystals. "Due to their atomic structures," Post explains, "these elemental impurities can 'sneak' into the mineral solutions when the crystals are forming."

Depending on the impurities, quartz can be yellow, red-orange or black (onyx). Amethyst, February's birthstone, is the most popular variety of quartz and ranges in color from pale violet to deep purple—the result of traces of iron in the crystal. "The fact that these different impurities contribute to producing beautiful colored gemstones might be called a fortuitous accident of nature," Post states.

Rubies and sapphires—gem varieties of the mineral corundum, an oxide of aluminum—are identical in all characteristics except color. The ruby's color, which ranges from pink-red to a dark, slightly purplish red, is caused by traces of chromium. Chromium impurities also give the mineral beryl its green color, thus producing emerald. All gem corundum that is not red is sapphire. While the name sapphire is usually associated with the color blue, the gems can also be yellow, green and pink, depending on impurities present in the crystal.

Star sapphires and star rubies occur when small, needle-like rutile fibers (impurities) grow in a hexagonal pattern during the formation of the corundum crystal. In properly cut stones, the optical phenomenon is known as asterism.

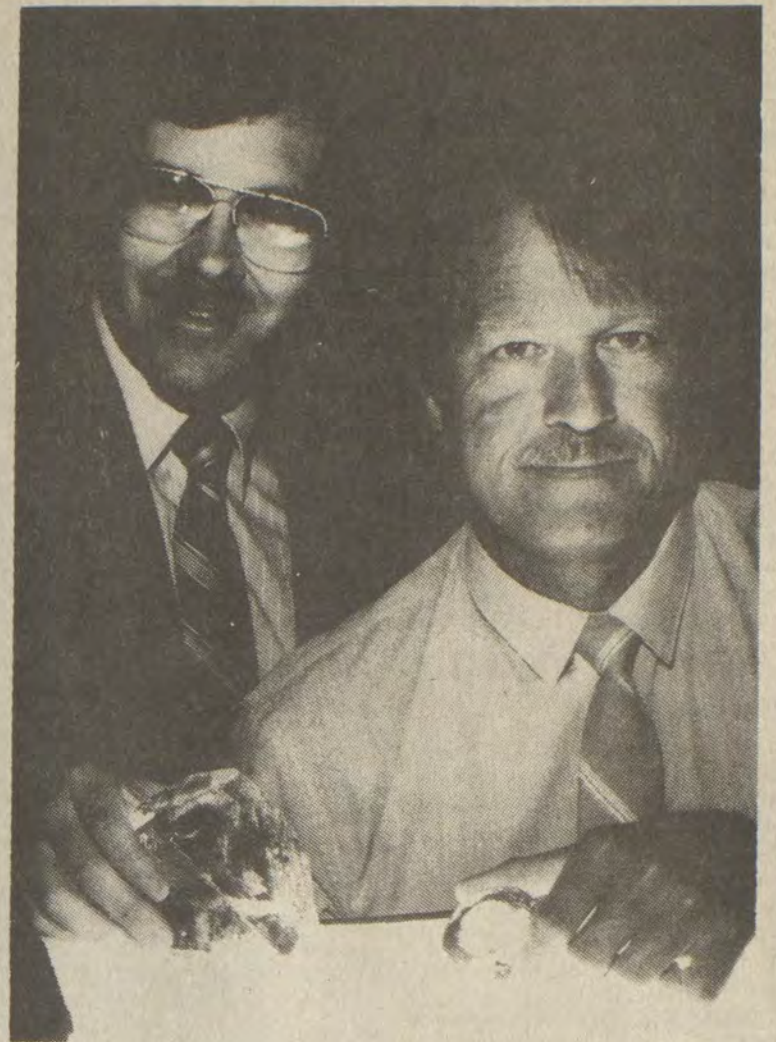

In 1961, the Smithsonian received, in White's words, "a world-class blue star sapphire." The Star of Asia, one of the biggest sapphires known to exist, was acquired from a California gem and mineral dealer in exchange for two lots of small, faceted diamonds that had been seized by the U.S. Customs Service and given to the museum. The sapphire, from Burma, is believed to have belonged to the Maharajah of Jodhpur.

Many gem-quality minerals are found in pegmatites, igneous rocks formed by the cooling of molten materials far beneath the Earth's surface. "These crystals come in an infinite number of forms," Post says. "Some crystals, such as tourmaline, are nearly as valuable as cut gemstones because of their beauty."

There are plenty of uses for minerals that are not of gem-quality. "If corundum isn't colored, for example, the crystals are usually an unattractive gray," Post points out. "But they're still mined. Corundum is the second hardest mineral, and it works well as an abrasive material, such as sandpaper, and to cut and polish other gemstones.

"Beryllium, found in emerald and aquamarine, is relatively rare, but important. It is lighter than aluminum and very strong. Scientific instruments, such as electron microscopes and some medical equipment, use alloys of beryllium. Quartz crystals are used to tune frequencies in radios," Post explains.

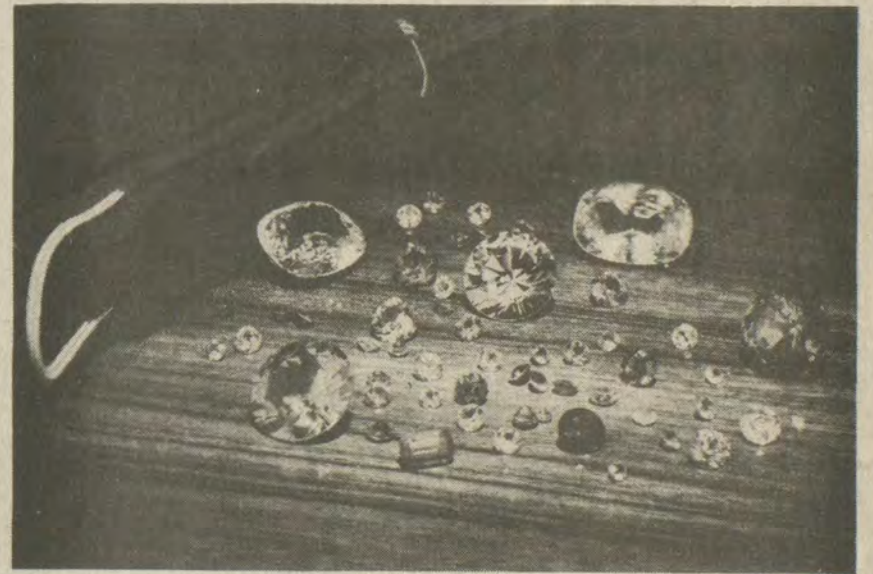

New gems continue to be discovered. For example, the relatively common mineral zoisite—usually an unattractive brown color—has been known to science for nearly 200 years. In the 1960s, however, a deposit of gem-quality zoisite was found in Tanzania and almost immediately, the deep sapphire-blue "tanzanite" became a recognized gemstone. Other new gems include a lovely wine-red garnet named "malaya" and an emerald-green garnet called "tsavorite." "These discoveries are remarkable," White says, "because the gems have been found in relatively large amounts that had escaped detection for a long time. It's unlikely there could be many more major gem deposits awaiting discovery—but one never knows."

The Smithsonian's Jeff Post (left) and John White display a topaz crystal and a 1,174-carat, cut topaz gem from the National Gem Collection.

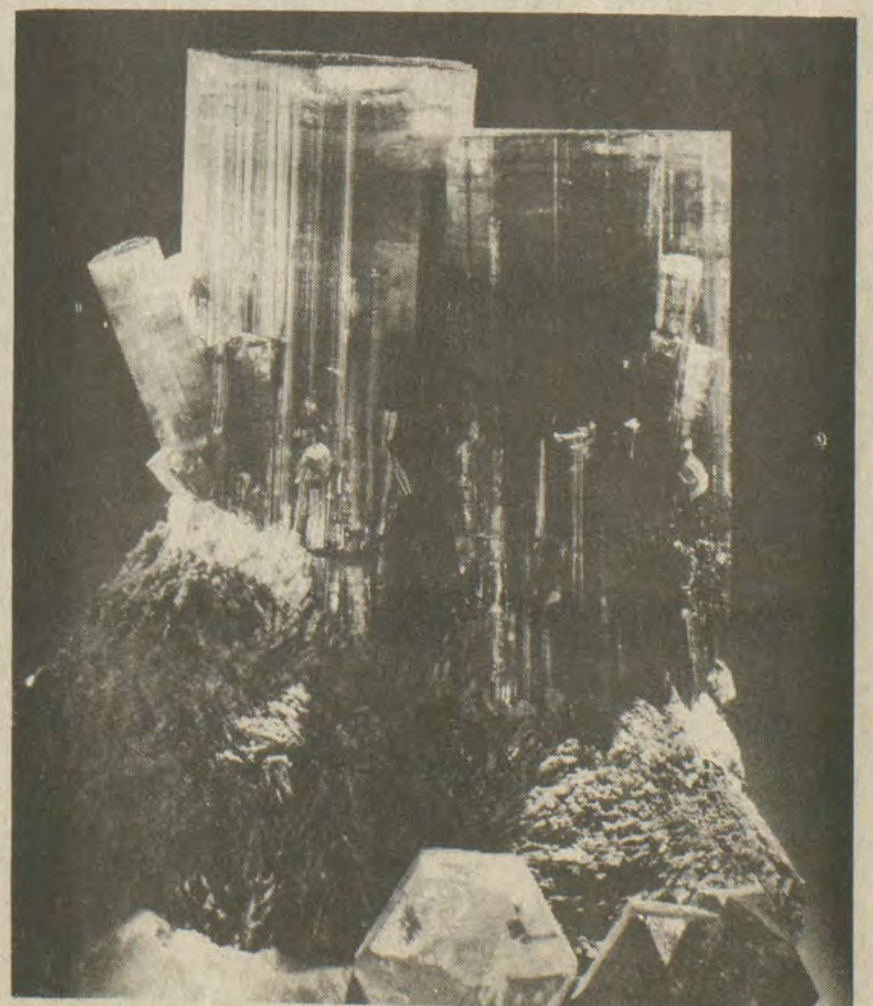

The Smithsonian's 432-carat Logan Sapphire, a spectacular gem set with 20 diamonds, is one of the largest blue sapphires known to exist.

The booty is sapphires! While the finest sapphires are blue, the gems can be white, yellow or pink, depending on which impurities were present when the corundum crystal was forming. These treasures are from the Smithsonian Institution's National Gem Collection.

Tourmaline crystals such as this one contain several colors, and different colored gemstones may be cut from them.

David (Dave) Baldrige

David (Dave) Baldrige, 81, of Hueysville, died Sunday, at Our Lady of the Way Hospital following a long illness.

He was born October 8, 1905 in Knott county, a son of the late John Wess and Ellen Baldrige. A retired coal miner, he was a member of the U.M.W.A. and had been a member of the Stone Coal Regular Baptist Church since 1929.

He is survived by his wife, Sadie Whitaker Baldrige; three sons, Harold Baldrige, of Garrett, Lawrence Baldrige, of Pippa Passes, John Wess Baldrige, of Orlando, Fla.; 13 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted at 10 a.m. today (Wednesday) at the Stone Coal Regular Baptist Church, at Garrett, with Regular Baptist ministers officiating. Burial will be made in the Baldrige cemetery at Hueysville, under direction of the Hall Funeral Home.

Cats Are Examined On Two "Nature" Programs

Wild cats are well known to viewers of "Nature" and the domestic cat is considered by many owners to retain much of the wild in its behavior and attitudes. "Cats," airing on KET Sunday, December 14, at 7:00 p.m. compares the behavior and adaptability of our domestic cats with their wild cousins and also reviews the widely varying attitudes of cats over the 5,000 years of their domestication.

This companion piece to last season's "Nature" program "Man's Best Friend," examines the behavior of our feline friends.

On Sunday, December 21, at 7:00 p.m. (ET), 6:00 p.m. (CT), "Nature" presents "Leopard: A Darkness in the Grass," a unique portrait of a female leopard and her cubs and their relationship with the wildlife that wanders through their territory.

This film, by award-winning cameraman Hugh Miles, documents the experiences of the elusive leopard, the only large predator in Africa that has never been the focus of a major film and seldom is filmed at all.

"A Darkness in the Grass" is an intimate portrayal of the events of two rather unusual days on Africa's hot plains with this leopard family.

"Nature" is presented by WNET/New York.

During fiscal year 1985, the Mine Safety and Health Administration made 68,448 coal mine inspections and investigations. Of these, 49,492 were at underground mines and 18,956 were at surface mines and noncoal producing facilities, according to the U.S. Labor Department's Annual Report for Fiscal Year 1985.

Experts Assert Leprosy Curable

Since biblical times, leprosy has been a disease associated with the scorned and impoverished and still afflicts more than 12 million people worldwide. Yet leprosy, loaded with a terrible stigma, has been curable for almost 40 years.

"NOVA" looks at the tragedy of the disease which does not need to exist when "Leprosy Can Be Cured!" airs Sunday, December 21, at 9:00 p.m. on KET.

"NOVA" features interviews with health officials in the United States, where 6,000 cases exist, and in India, where there are 4 million victims. The viewer will learn that the biggest obstacle to erasing the dread disease from medical records is living conditions which are both crowded and unsanitary. This situation not only promotes the infection's growth but also combines with the difficulty in diagnosing cases during the crucial early stages to make abolishing the disease the task it is.

Unfortunately, the drugs currently used to treat leprosy, first developed in the 1950s, have been partly thwarted by the appearance of drug-resistant strains of the illness. This problem will get worse, according to Dr. Richard Young of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology's Whitehead Institute. "If we could develop a vaccine for one-time inoculation," Dr. Young points out, "then it's possible, some of us believe, to eradicate leprosy in perhaps a generation."

"Leprosy Can Be Cured!" also explores the human tragedy behind the disease. For centuries, victims have been quarantined in virtual prisons by a fearful society. Yet, leprosy is far less contagious than the common cold.

Ironically, the crippling deformities associated with leprosy—missing fingers and toes and blindness—are not a direct result of infection. They are caused by loss of sensation in the nerves where the bacteria tend to flourish. All sense of pain is lost in these areas and injuries and secondary infections go unnoticed and uncared for. Such debilities, when combined with the "untouchable" status associated with leprosy, make rehabilitation very difficult.

"NOVA" is produced by WGBH/Boston.

Movie Nostalgia

By Denise Gorga

"No picture shall be produced which will lower the moral standards of those who see it. Hence the sympathy of the audience shall never be thrown to the side of crime, wrongdoing, evil or sin." — "General Principles" of the MPPDA's Production Code.

"There's only one law: Do it first, do it yourself, and keep on doing it." — Tony Camonte (Paul Muni) in "Scarface" (1932).

"Scarface" romanticized the gangster-hero and focused on the brutality and alienation of the urban scene. Tony Camonte, the film's hero, is a primitive, sexually confused and ambitious hoodlum whose arbitrary rise in Chicago's criminal hierarchy is a twisted version of the Horatio Alger myth. Camonte's incestuous obsession with his sister (Ann Dvorak) causes her death, the death of his best friend (George Raft) and his own death as well.

Despite Camonte's fall from criminal grace at the film's end, 1932's "Scarface" proved to be the swan song of sorts for the newly minted gangster genre, as mid-1930s Hollywood began exercising moral guidelines. Gangster films continued to abound, of course, but the tales were never told from that exact same viewpoint.

But Tony Camonte was resurrected in the 1983 remake starring Al Pacino. It was true to the original, except that it made Camonte a Cuban refugee in Miami and added a distinctly '80s obsession — cocaine — to his list of vices.

Question: What idiosyncrasy did George Raft's character, Guido "Little Boy" Rinaldo, possess that would later become an icon for movie gangsterism?

Answer: His perpetual coin-flipping.

Jobless Rate Dips Below 7%; Oct. Employment Record High

The number of Kentuckians working in October soared to an all-time high as the state's monthly unemployment rate dipped below 7.0 percent for the first time in more than five years.

October employment in Kentucky reached an estimated 1,612,600 people, the highest figure on record, according to figures released today by the Cabinet for Human Resources.

The jump in employment pushed down the state's jobless rate from a revised 7.0 percent in September to a preliminary 6.9 percent in October, the lowest rate since September 1981 when unemployment registered 6.7 percent.

The October employment estimate reflects an increase of 12,500 working Kentuckians over the revised September figure of 1,600,100 and represents growth of 38,000 over the October 1985 figure of 1,574,600.

"Most of the new jobs in October were in a category that includes domestic workers, self-employed people and unpaid family workers," said state labor market analyst Ed Blackwell. "There were 9,200 more workers in this category, the bulk of them child care workers."

"This is a ripple effect from earlier job increases we've had. When more people have jobs outside the home, more families need outside child care."

Nationally the jobless rate decreased from 6.8 percent in September to 6.6 percent in October. The comparable state and national rates are not seasonally adjusted.

The Department for Employment Services monthly survey of non-farm employers showed an additional 3,400 people working in education, 2,800 more in trade and 900 more in construction. Agricultural jobs rose by 1,600.

"Some of the trade jobs also were the result of a ripple effect," Blackwell said. There were 1,388 more people working in department stores, 350 more in restaurants and 274 more in a variety of retail stores.

"While some of the department store jobs probably were the result of early holiday sales, others were the result of overall job increases and a greater disposable income," he said. "Also, when people are busy on the job and gearing up for the holidays, they tend to eat out more often, which leads to more business for restaurants."

Service jobs declined by 700 between September and October. "However, through the first 10 months of this year service industries have averaged 252,300 jobs, compared to 251,900 for manufacturing industries," Blackwell said.

Manufacturing companies reported a net loss of 500 jobs between September and October.

The estimate of jobless Kentuckians dipped from 121,100 in September to 119,300 in October, the lowest figure since October 1981. In October a year ago 145,200 Kentuckians were out of work and the unemployment rate was 8.4 percent.

The state's civilian labor force estimate was 1,731,900 in October, the highest figure in two years. The figure reflected an increase of 10,700 over the September report of 1,721,200 and was 12,100 higher than the October 1985 report of 1,719,800.

The civilian labor force includes non-military people who are working and unemployed people who actively are seeking jobs. It does not include anyone who is jobless but not seeking work.

The BOX SEAT

Boxing goes high-tech

By Marty Linehan

Sports fans might not connect prizefighting and modern technology, but the two will get together on April 6, when the highly hyped Marvin Hagler-Sugar Ray Leonard bout for the middleweight crown is shown on closed-circuit TV.

Bob Arum, the fight's promoter, predicts a $100 million gate. He has guaranteed the fighters $23 million apiece.

Most fighting buffs disagree with Arum about the $100 million figure, but they're sure the middleweights will top the $45 million total pugilist fans spent to watch the Larry Holmes-Jerry Cooney set-back in 1982.

Here's where the high tech comes in. Arum says his fight will be aided by electronic advances that enable a promoter to exploit the closed-circuit market as never before.

"For Holmes-Cooney, promoters distributed their signals by telephone-company lines to the central telephone-company office in each locality," he says. "Then they had to get the signal from the central location to the arena by microwave units. Lots of times, they had to use four and five microwave band units. These cost $12,000 and $14,000 each."

Now we have domestic satellites and fully scrambled signals.

"All a location needs is a regular dish," continues

Arum, "and a special decoder made for the event operated by a central computer, which feeds the code on an unscrambled basis. Formerly there were only 500 sites, because of the tremendous costs involved. Now we will have 3,000 to 4,000 outlets at moderate costs. Moderate because each decoder rents for $300 to $400, and no matter where the site is, the cost is the same."

And Arum has another card up his sleeve. It too concerns closed-circuit TV — and the utilization of private clubs as outlets.

They were discovered during last year's Hagler-Thomas Hearn's bout. "What we had for that fight," Arum continues, "were many clubs big enough to say, 'Hey, we don't want to go to an arena. We'll pay you $20,000 or $30,000 to have closed circuit at the club.' And since then we have found it very profitable. Most of our locations this time will be private clubs and country clubs."

The Hagler-Leonard bout will also set another precedent — the average price at the closed-circuit showing will be $33.

This is a far cry from the Muhammad Ali-Joe Frazier 1971 battle in Madison Square Garden, when the closed-circuit outlets charged $8 and $9. The promoters guaranteed the fighters so much money that they had to raise the top price to $22 — and they still made a fortune.

Twana Tackett was crowned Pretty Little Miss J.M.S. at John M. Stumbo, October 25. She is the daughter of Eugene and Brenda Tackett, of Galveston, and granddaughter of Benjie and Sola Tackett, of Galveston, and Howard and Edith Wilhite, of Ligon.

Give With Good Cheer And To Worthy Causes

With the holiday season at hand, many Kentuckians will be donating to various charitable organizations. Attorney General David Armstrong provides the following information to assist consumers in making sure that their charitable contributions are well utilized.

"Kentucky's Charitable Solicitations Law requires that all professional fund raisers must register with the Attorney General's Office before they solicit funds in Kentucky," Armstrong said. "The registration requires full disclosure of the charitable organization as well as the professional fund raising organization soliciting funds on behalf of the charity." Full disclosure of the total cost of the fund raising efforts as well as the amount of those proceeds going to the professional fund raiser must be included.

Armstrong also provides the following tips for consumers to follow before making a contribution:

Never give to a charity you know nothing about. Request written literature, read it and ask questions if you need additional information.

Always ask to see identification for both the solicitor and the charity.

Don't be fooled by a convincing name. A crooked charity often has an impressive name. Sometimes it closely resembles the name of a respected, legitimate charity.

Don't contribute because of a tear-jerking, hard-luck tale. This is a favorite tactic of phony operators.

Ask the solicitor how much of your charity dollar goes for fund raising and administrative costs, and how much is actually going for the program you want to support. If at least 50 percent of your dollar is going for fund raising and administrative costs, you may want to reconsider and give your money to another charity where more of your dollar is going for programs.

If contacted by telephone, refuse to commit yourself on the first call. Ask questions just as you would for a door-to-door solicitor. If the charity sounds legitimate and worthwhile, request written information. Then make your decision.

Mail solicitations are often accompanied by an item which you are told you can keep if you contribute. But federal law states that unless you asked for the item, you can keep it without making a contribution.

Don't let yourself be pressured or intimidated into giving, whether it's on-the-spot, by telephone or mail. Give yourself time to think about it.

Find out if the charity is registered with the Attorney General's Office. Your Better Business Bureau may also have information on the charitable organization.

Pay by check made out to the organization, not the solicitor.

"Most charities are reputable," Armstrong said. "They use the money they receive for the purpose for which it was contributed. However, when you give to a charity, make sure that you know where your money is going."

If you have any complaints or questions about charitable solicitations in Kentucky, write to the Office of the Attorney General, Consumer Protection Division, 209 St. Clair Street, Frankfort, Ky. 40601 or call the toll-free Consumer Hotline at 1-800-432-9257.

Veterans Administration Questions and Answers

Q—I am a Korean veteran and I am filing for a service-connected disability rating. If I am rated service-connected am I eligible for VA life insurance?

A.—Any veteran who served after April 25, 1951, and is awarded a service-connected disability is eligible for Service-Disabled Veterans Insurance (RH). You must file for this insurance within one year of the award of the disability rating.

Q—I have a Loan Guaranty Certificate of Eligibility which was issued to me by the VA over 15 years ago. Can I still use it?

A.—Yes. Certificate of Eligibility do not expire and are good for the maximum loan guaranty currently available.

Q.—What is the interest rate on a National Service Life Insurance Policy Loan?

A.—The current interest rate on policy loans is 11 percent.

Q.—May a veteran with peacetime service only be buried in a national cemetery?

A.—Yes, providing the service was under conditions other than dishonorable.

Q.—My husband had a Veterans' Group Life Insurance Policy when he died. An attorney from a company where he owed money said they would attach the proceeds of the insurance to pay the bill. Can they do this?

A.—No. Servicemen's Group Life Insurance and Veterans' Group Life Insurance proceeds are not assignable, nor are payments to beneficiaries subject to claims of creditors of the insured or beneficiary.

Q.—Does the VA have an alcohol or drug dependence program for veterans?

A.—Yes. The VA operates both inpatient and outpatient clinics in most VA Medical Centers for honorably discharged veterans.

Fundraising has now reached $38,497 with $53,503 remaining of the total needed.

The Johnson County Farm Bureau joins Wal-Mart, Music-Carter-Hughes, The East Point Homemakers, The Riverday Homemakers, John Gray Pontiac/Buick, and Royal Crown Cola in the "Big Donor" club. These clubs and businesses have each donated $400 or more to the Breast Center. The seven "Big Donors" are responsible for $5,850 of the money raised so far.

Construction of the Breast Center has already begun, with the opening date set for February.

Colvin Named Head, Baptist Convention

A.B. Colvin, newly elected president of the Kentucky Baptist Convention, was elected over Louisville pastor Ferrill Gardner during the 149th annual session of the KBC in Elizabethtown. Colvin received 774 votes; Gardner, 372.

Born in 1917 in Grant county, Colvin attended Kentucky public schools and the University of Kentucky, receiving the A.B. degree in 1939. He continued his education in Kentucky at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary and received a master in theology in 1942.

Colvin then entered the Air Force and upon his return, he accepted the pastorate of Southside Baptist Church in Covington. In 1952 he accepted the call to the First Baptist Church of Lebanon, spending six years there, also. He then began his long association with the KBC Executive Board as an employee, a career that encompassed three jobs and spanned 28 years.

In 1958, Colvin became director of the Missions and Evangelism department, coordinating the work throughout the state.

Colvin retired in July, 1985, but his work with Kentucky Baptists was far from over. He is interim pastor at Ballardville Baptist Church in Oldham county and teaches at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary where he was once a student. He also teaches at Boyce Bible College and performs a special ministry for Oneida Baptist Institute, a school serving young people in grades 1-12.

Barkley Moore, president of Oneida Baptist Institute, sent word to Colvin that he would like to talk with him. The resulting talk produced an enthusiastic, supportive spokesman for Oneida. "Colvin is not paid anything for this service, nor is he reimbursed for his time and effort. "I represent Oneida all over the state, because it's important," Colvin asserts.

Colvin is looking forward to yet another year of active service to Kentucky Baptists. As president of the convention, his responsibilities include mediating at the 1987 Kentucky Baptist Convention in Louisville. The convention will mark the 150th anniversary for Kentucky Baptists and will open on Colvin's birthday. "I'm not interested in pulling off some big thing while I'm president," Colvin told Kentucky Baptist Press (KBP). "My chief concern is that we, as Kentucky Baptists, might just give the Lord the best year we've ever had."

Cicada or Locust—They're on the Way

Kentucky fruit growers might well consider postponing planting new trees for a year unless they prepare now to take vigorous action against next spring's outbreak of the 17-year cicada.

A lot of people buy trees, put them in the ground and do nothing else for a year, said Doug Johnson, Extension entomologist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

They can't do that this year, he said. They're going to have to protect their trees.

How sure are we that the expected onslaught of what many Kentuckians call the 17-year locust actually will occur?

"Absolutely sure," Johnson said. "The last outbreak of this particular locust (called Brood 10) was in 1970, and you can mark it on your calendar that they'll be back in 1987 and again 17 years after that."

They will hit over half the counties in Kentucky. The cicadas (they're completely different insects from locusts which are in the grasshopper family) can be quite damaging to fruit trees, especially newly planted ones. That's why Gerald Brown, UK Extension horticulturist, said some commercial growers "who have more than they can say grace over already" may want to skip this year's new plantings unless they have the time and inclination to take unusual measures to protect the young trees.

That's not always an easy judgment call, however. Brown said some peach growers were badly hurt by severe freezes in 1984-85. Those farmers have many trees that need to be replaced, and they will have to make a decision as to whether the economic certainties of not planting outweigh the economic risks of planting.

There are some things that can be done to protect newly planted trees, however.

Johnson said damages can be prevented by covering the tree with a bag made of protective netting such as cheesecloth.

"Cover the trees and tie the netting to the trunk below the branches," he said. "This covering should be removed when the egg-laying is completed. For a commercial operator we're talking about thousands of bags and a lot of labor."

There also are several insecticides which can limit cicada damage. Johnson said that growers normally on a 10 to 14-day spray schedule probably will need a five to seven-day schedule during the two month danger period from May to July. It depends on whether the cicada population is large in the particular orchard.

"A lot depends on how much you know about your particular trees," he said. "If you know you had a problem 17 years ago and the trees are still there, you will

Junior High Students Vie In MATHCOUNTS

Beginning this fall, students in the Big Sandy Area will participate in MATHCOUNTS, the nationwide math program for 7th and 8th grade students. The program is being sponsored in Prestonsburg by the Big Sandy Chapter of the Kentucky Society of Professional Engineers.

MATHCOUNTS is both a coaching program and a series of competitions at regional, state, and national levels. Beginning in November, teachers will spend several months coaching students for the upcoming oral and written competitions. Those who make the school math teams will compete against other school "Mathletes" in February.

PCC Chorus Presents "Messiah," Dec. 7

The Prestonsburg Community Chorus will present the Christmas section of "Messiah" Sunday, December 7, at 3 p.m. in the Pike Auditorium at Prestonsburg Community College. Also included on the program will be: Fanfare For Christmas Day (Show), As Lately We Watched (Black), Glory to God In The Highest (Thornson), Sweet Little Boy Jesus (Niles), I Wonder As I Wander (Niles) and The Crown (Caldwell).

Soloists for the performance will be Dr. Phillip Simpson, tenor; Rev. Tim Jessen, bass; DeeDee Callis, soprano; Elma Jessen, soprano; Vicki Pack, contralto. Mary Grace Garland will accompany the chorus and soloists. The performance will be under the direction of Gus Kalos, head of the music department at Prestonsburg Community College.

"Messiah" was completed by Handel during the twenty-four days between August 22 and September 14, 1741. After a rehearsal on April 8, 1742, it was performed for the first time at a charity concert held at Dublin on April 13. Approximately a year later, it was heard in London on March 23, 1743 but since that time has probably had more performances than any masterwork in the history of music. The public is invited to attend the program.

MAYTOWN NEWS

Our sympathy to Mrs. Margaret Scott, whose son passed away in Beckley, W. Va. recently. She was with him for several weeks before he died.

Mrs. Alsa Samuels, of Flatwoods, passed away last week and was buried at Maysville. Those from this county attending the funeral were Nora Martin, Daphne Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Martin and family, Mr. and Mrs. Jeffery Martin and family, Darleen Blanton, Lacy Hicks, Mr. and Mrs. Tyrone Martin, Anzie Martin, Phyllis Isaac, Gherd Martin and Docia Tackett, of Michigan, Tommy Martin, of Winchester and Denise Martin.

Mosaleete Patton spent several days last week in New York City where she attended Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade and toured other points of interest.

There was a large attendance at the Maytown United Methodist Church's annual Thanksgiving dinner last Sunday. Following the dinner, everyone enjoyed the Ron Wright concert.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Webb, Katina and Marcus, of Springfield, O., were the holiday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Howard, of Prestonsburg, and Mr. and Mrs. Claud E. Webb.

Miss Connie Salisbury, of Beaver, O. visited her grandmother, Mrs. Rebecca Salisbury and Mr. and Mrs. Claud E. Webb, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. N.D. Turner and David, of Vienna, Va., were holiday guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James E. Allen.

Mr. and Mrs. David Webb, of Lexington, and Mrs. Sharon Lawson, of Columbia, Ky., were Thanksgiving guests of Mrs. Gertrude Webb. They also attended a family Thanksgiving dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. May and children, at Allen.

Mr. and Mrs. Tommy E. Webb were in Lexington last Wednesday for business and in Poplar Bluff, Mo., Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. James G. Gibson, of Mt. Orab, Ohio were the guests of his mother, Mrs. Bertha Gibson, last weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Weldon Oakly, of Sidney, O., Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bowling and Richard, of Vandalia, O., and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bowling and Beth, of Stone Mountain, Ga. were holiday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ory Bowling.

Dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Allen Saturday evening were Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Bowling and Beth, of Stone Mountain, Ga., Mr. and Mrs. N.D. Turner and David, of Vienna, Va., and Mrs. Roberta Sloan, of Prestonsburg.

James L. Allen, Jon and Barron spent several days in Gainesville, Fla. attending the Winter Olympics Motorcycle Races.

Mrs. Jimmy Ratliff is a patient at Our Lady of the Way Hospital.

Mrs. Sonja Ramey and Tim, of Alexandria, were holiday guests of her mother, Mrs. Marie Martin and other family members. He also visited his aunt, Mrs. Edna Click.

The family honored Mrs. Pearl Ellis on her 70th birthday with a party at their home, Nov. 23rd. Birthday cake and other refreshments were served to the following guests: Gertrude Webb, Sharon Lawson, Joan Lambert, Glenda Meeks, Judy Goble, Mr. and Mrs. Gifford Truitt, Altonette Bentley, and her children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren. She also received many gifts.

The engineering society anticipates that as many as 5,500 students will enter the program this year. Nationally, as many as 7.4 million 7th and 8th grade students can enter the program and have the opportunity to be coached in such accelerated math topics as probability, statistics, linear algebra, and polynomials. The winning teams of each state will receive trips to Washington, D.C., for the national finals in May. National winners will be flown to the Johnson Space Center in Houston, Texas, for a special visit, among other prizes.

President Reagan awarded a Private Sector Initiatives Citation to MATHCOUNTS and hailed the program as "...an effort which has the potential to awaken our young people to the importance of mathematics to our country's future."

By sponsoring the MATHCOUNTS program, the engineers hope to address the nationwide problem of declining math skills among pre-college students. The engineering society will supply, free of charge, contest information and coaching materials to all participating schools and also will assist in coaching students for the first MATHCOUNTS competitions in February.

National sponsors of MATHCOUNTS are the National Society of Professional Engineers (NSPE), the CNA Insurance Companies, the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics (NCTM), and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA). # UK Researchers Get Jump on Fescue Bugs

When University of Kentucky scientists produced a low-endophyte tall fescue and put it on the market, they knew Mother Nature rarely fails to take notice of a change.

Lack of the endophyte, hailed as a virtue in the new variety, Johnstone, when it was released a year or so ago, could be a problem. There is reason to believe that the endophyte in other varieties of tall fescue protects the plants from insects.

"If there is an ecological niche you can bet some organism is going to fill it. If farmers begin to plan sizeable acreage to Johnstone it's a safe guess that one insect or another is going to discover the absence of the endophyte and begin feeding on it," said Doug Dahlman, an entomologist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Tall fescue has long been a favorite pasture grass for Kentucky cattle producers, but until the introduction of the Johnstone variety all types of tall fescue were infected to one degree or another with an endophyte which reduced animal performance during the summer. The endophyte, a small organism living inside fescue, produces toxins which poison cattle. Cattle don't graze enough of the poison to kill them, but many do become very sick.

Johnstone tall fescue solved the problem of "summer syndrome" by removing the endophyte. Now producers can graze their cattle on fescue year round.

But Dahlman said the low-endophyte fescue has shown itself to be very susceptible to greenbugs in the laboratory.

"They'll kill it in 10 days or less," he said. "They'll even go through a small stand of mixed varieties in the lab and feed only on the endophyte-free grass," the insect expert said.

There have been no problems outside the lab up to now. Older varieties of endophyte infected fescue, such as Kenry or Kentucky 31, have not been known to be a food host to insects. The endophyte which makes cattle sick seems also to ward off insects. And while the low-endophyte Johnstone is a food host in the lab, there is not enough of it in production to have caused a shift in the feeding patterns of the insects which feed on it in nature.

But, as more and more farmers plant Johnstone, the likelihood of such a shift increases.

It is for that reason that Dahlman, agronomist Lowell Bush and plant pathologist Malcolm Siegel are looking for an endophyte that maintains the insect resistance but does not make cattle ill.

"Sheep producers in New Zealand had a similar situation with a perennial ryegrass several years ago. The grass had an endophyte in it which made sheep sick. New Zealand scientists produced a variety of the grass without the endophyte and at the same time produced a whole new set of management concerns," Dahlman said.

Since endophyte infested grass makes animals sick, they naturally don't graze it extensively. When the New Zealanders removed the endophyte from the grass, the sheep ate it right down to the dirt, killing it. When the sheep ate it right down to the dirt, killing it. When the sheep producers adjusted their pasture management to prevent the sheep from killing the grass, the Argentine stem weevil moved in and destroyed pastures.

Dahlman and others hope to forestall similar problems in Kentucky and surrounding states where Johnstone is being widely planted. That's where the endophyte comes back into the picture.

"The endophyte produces a variety of compounds called alkaloids. Some of the alkaloids are suspected to be responsible for causing the illness in cattle, and others for the resistance to insects," Bush, the agronomist, said. Studies are now underway to find an endophyte which produces only the desired alkaloids, and introduce that into the low-endophyte tall fescues. Early research is aimed at finding such an endophyte in some other type of grass. If that search proves fruitless, scientists may go into the lab and attempt to change existing endophytes to suit their needs.

"If we can't find a new endophyte we'll try to build one," Dahlman said.

Bush said some people think he and his colleagues are being too cautious. They question the wisdom of finding a solution for which there is no problem at present.

"There are quite a few people who think we're overly concerned, but we think the prudent course is to anticipate problems and prepare for them. Experiences similar to the situation with Johnstone, and conventional wisdom, suggest that we need to be aware of the potential for insect problems with Johnstone. Changes in pasture management can be made in a relative hurry. Reactions to an insect pest take longer.

WKU President To Be Inaugurated Dec. 13

Western Kentucky University's Board of Regents will inaugurate Dr. Kern Alexander as WKU's seventh president during ceremonies Saturday, December 13.

"We are pleased that the inauguration committee has scheduled a week-long program of activities leading up to the inauguration," said Board of Regents Chairman Joe Iracane of Owensboro. "We are especially pleased that Gov. Martha Layne Collins and the four living former WKU presidents will be attending."

The inauguration ceremony will be held in Van Meter Auditorium at 2 p.m., and Dr. Charles Reed, chancellor of the University of Florida system, will deliver the inaugural address.

The inauguration activities begin on Sunday, December 7, at 7 p.m., with the Christmas Madrigal Feast, a modern invention based on several Renaissance and Medieval traditions and will be held in the Garrett Conference Center. Tickets are available from the WKU Ticket Office.

Receptions will be hosted by the WKU Student Alumni Association Monday from 3 to 5 p.m., and by the WKU National Alumni Association on Tuesday from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. Both receptions will be held in the Craig Alumni Center.

The unveiling of "Western Presidents 1906-1986" will take place at 5 p.m. Wednesday in the Kentucky Museum. Former presidents Kelly Thompson, Dero Downing, and John Minton will unveil the exhibit. It will be on display Thursday and Friday in the lobby of Wetherby Administration Building and Saturday at Van Meter Auditorium.

A community dinner, hosted by the Bowling Green-Warren County Chamber of Commerce, will be held at 5:30 p.m. Wednesday in Galleries K and L of the Kentucky Museum. Dr. Lowell Harrison, university historian, will be the featured speaker. Tickets are available from the Chamber of Commerce.

Thursday, a reception will be hosted by the Faculty Senate at 4:30 p.m. in the College of Education Building Auditorium. A lecture by Dr. Vivian Williams, of Oxford University follows at 5:15 p.m.

The University Concert Band will perform Friday at 8 p.m. in Van Meter Auditorium.

Following Saturday's inauguration ceremonies, a reception will be held in the ballroom of the Garrett Conference Center.

VA Home Loan Rate Drops To 8-Year Low

For the seventh time in 18 months, the Veterans Administration has lowered its maximum home loan interest rate. Effective November 24, VA-guaranteed fixed rate mortgages dropped to 9 percent—the lowest since June 28, 1978.

The decrease continues a pattern that began in September 1981 when VA rates peaked at an all-time high of 17½ percent. The last change, from 10½ percent to 9½ percent, occurred March 3, 1986.

The cut brings the VA rate closer to the market rate nationally.

Besides benefitting new veteran-buyers, VA officials said the cut in the rate can help many veterans who already have home loans with high interest rates. By refinancing, veterans may be able to cut monthly payments by $200 a month or more and save thousands of dollars over the life of the loan.

The VA will also decrease by one-half percent the maximum rates for Graduated Payment Mortgages (GPMs) to 9¼ percent and home improvement loans to 10½ percent.

The rates for manufactured home loans will also be decreased to 11½ percent for unit-only loans and 11 percent for loans to purchase either a unit with a lot for a unit already purchased.

VA home loans may be used to purchase, construct, alter, improve, repair, or refinance a home. This includes the purchase of condominiums and manufactured homes with or without a lot.

HRMC Fundraiser Wins Recognition

The International Association of Business Communicators (IABC), District III, presented Highlands Regional Medical Center with an Award of Merit last month. The award recognized the Merchants' Day fund-raising promotion, which occurred in April and May of this year.

"We were very honored to have received this award", said Carol Blevins, HRMC Public Information Officer. "A lot of people, hospital employees and store owners, worked very hard to make Merchants' Day a success. This recognition honors all of us."

According to Blevins, IABC, District III, is made up of eight states including the District of Columbia. Highlands Regional was the only organization in Kentucky to receive an award.

On Merchants' Day, stores donated up to 10% of their sales to the Breast Center. As an added incentive to shop on those days, Highlands' medical personnel offered free blood pressure and blood sugar tests. Over eighty stores, restaurants, and car dealers in Prestonsburg and Paintsville participated; and almost $7,000 was raised for the Breast Center.

Jacksonville, Florida, boasts the largest area of any U.S. city, with a whopping 827 square miles.

The fox is probably the only four-footed animal indigenous to Iceland.

"The Snow Queen"
Airs Live On KET

Take a front-row seat on a fantasy journey from a cozy garret to a king's palace, to a robber's tent, to the Ice Palace of the Snow Queen when "Kentucky Center Presents: The Snow Queen," a live KET production airing Wednesday, December 17, at 8:00 p.m.

Presented by Stage One: Louisville Children's Theatre, this timeless fairy tale by Hans Christian Andersen is the story of a happy family whose lives are disrupted when the Snow Queen abducts Kay, the foster grandson, and turns his heart to ice. Grief-stricken by his absence, Gerda leaves her grandmother's cottage on a long and perilous search to bring him back.

This holiday performance by one of the country's premiere children's theatres is one of a variety of productions KET will be airing as part of a combined effort between KET and the Kentucky Center for the Arts. Other programs will feature the Louisville Ballet's "Sunflower/Variations Serieuses/Liebestraume," a Kentucky Opera production, and a 10-part series of Lonesome Pines Special concerts.

According to Vince Spoelker, KET producer for "The Snow Queen," "The Kentucky Center for the Arts is an incredible cultural resource, and the best way for it to be shared with the rest of the state is through KET's statewide network."

Producing director for the show will be Moses Goldberg, Louisville. Clark Santee, New York, will be directing for KET.

The cast of characters as performed by the Louisville Children's Theatre includes: Jill Susan Meyers, Louisville, as Gerda; Geoffrey Hobin, Louisville, in the roles of Kay and the King; Breton Frazier, Horse Cave, as Granny, the Second Guard and the Robber Chief; Rick Munger, Chicago, as the Chancellor; Tess Krebs, Louisville, as the Snow Queen; Terry Weber, Chicago, as the Storyteller; William Groth, Horse Cave, as Karl the Raven and the first Robber; Deborah Rhodes, New York, in the roles of Christina a Princess, the Reindeer and the first Snow Monster; Thomas James O'Leary, New York, in the roles of Klaus a Prince, the second Robber and the second Snow Monster; and Bonnie Akimoto, New York, as the first Guard and Wenki.

"The Snow Queen" will repeat Monday, December 22, at 2:00 p.m. (ET), 1:00 p.m.

"Kentucky Center Presents: The Snow Queen" is a KET production.

Elie Wiesel Receives Nobel Prize

The selection of Elie Wiesel for the Nobel Prize for Peace is another triumph for human rights advocates. It is also another validation of the importance of teaching the Holocaust and its lessons. It is also, of course, a time of rejoicing for the Jewish people—especially for other Holocaust survivors—and for all who have experienced the Holocaust as a watershed event in human history. Finally, it is also another authentication of America's role as a haven for the homeless—what the Bible calls "a City of Refuge"—in a brutal world.

Just a few weeks ago, at the time of the Centennial of the Statute of Liberty, Elie Wiesel was one of a select group of "new Americans" who received from the President of the United States a citation and a medal for what he as a newcomer had contributed to his country of choice. Just a few days ago he became one in another select group—one of a number of Nobel Prize winners who came to the United States to find the liberty and dignity to which the human person is entitled and which enhances his creativity.

Elie Wiesel first became famous in Europe and America for the writings based upon his experience as a youth during the Nazi slaughter of the Jewish people. He survived Auschwitz, but not before he had seen his mother and sister and father turned over to death in Hitler's "final solution to the Jewish problem." His autobiographical book Night contains the most powerful crucifixion story in 20th century literature.

What does it mean that the major interpreter of the Holocaust receives the Peace award? For one thing it stands as an answer to those who deny the Holocaust its integrity and meaning, either because they are neo-Nazi "historical revisionists" or because they think it a "dark chapter of human history" that should be buried and forgotten. Twenty years ago there were many individuals and organizations, Jewish as well as Christian, who wanted to suppress the story and divert attention from it. Today there are thousands of high school and college classes on the story of the Holocaust and its lessons, and every year the Days of Remembrance are observed at the White House, by the Congress, by all 50 governors, and by all mayors of major American cities. We have come to understand that this watershed event cannot be suppressed, cannot be denied: its stories must be told and its lessons drawn, by Jews and Christians and gentiles—indeed by all persons of conscience, and in all civilized countries.

The Peace award is the citation that went to Bishop Tutu of South Africa, Lech Walesa of Solidarity, and Martin Luther King, Jr. of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference. Each of them has insistently directed our attention to major issues that many want to avoid. Elie Wiesel has earned the Peace award, with his vigorous advocacy of the claims of the disinherited and exploited and oppressed—the "boat people," refugees from Central America, Jews in the Soviet Union. My most recent personal experience was to join with him in a Memorial Day for the Gypsy Victims of Nazi Genocide. And in February there will be held under his chairmanship a major international conference on "other victims" of the Third Reich.

But Wiesel, for all that he has suffered, is moved by the spirit of love and reconciliation—not by hate. He has been a leader in German-American reconciliation efforts, and a whole section of the West German parliament sent a petition supporting his nomination for the Nobel Prize. He is a spokesman for new life and new beginnings—for Israel, for American-German reconciliation, for Soviet Jewry, for refugees from despotisms and dictatorships in many parts of the world. He is our America at her best!

Mr. and Mrs. Denver Hall, of Hi Hat, announce the engagement of their daughter, Tracy Lynn, to Joe Marson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Adams, of Prestonsburg.

Miss Hall is a graduate of McDowell High School and is employed with First Guaranty National Bank.

Mr. Marson is a graduate of Prestonsburg High School and is attending Alice Lloyd College.

A May wedding is planned.

Reporting System Will Monitor Flu Outbreaks

Kentucky epidemiologists have developed a formal reporting system to provide information about the severity, type and number of flu outbreaks in the state.

"We had a heavy flu year in 1985-86," said Reginald Finger, M.D., of the Department of Health Services, "and everybody wanted to know where the worst outbreaks were and how many cases were occurring. We had no formal system of reporting, so we couldn't knowledgeably answer the questions."

"This year, when we see where the first flu outbreaks are, we can alert physicians and public health departments in other parts of the state about what to expect in the near future. Maybe we can give them time to gear up for an onslaught of patients."

The flu tracking system involves 20 counties and about 500,000 physicians' patients throughout the state. Each county coordinator, who is a health department employee, polls between one and 20 physicians for the number of flu-like illnesses treated in a week's time. The coordinator also calls area schools for absenteeism reports. The calls are made weekly, starting Nov. 10 and running through May 5. Coordinators then report to Finger's office.

"The counties were chosen based on geography," said Finger. "We tried to choose counties that had a major ingress from other states, because a lot of flu viruses travel here from other areas. There is a mixture of large and small counties and rural and urban counties. Magoffin and Pike counties are among them."

"We're looking at school absenteeism because peaks in overall absenteeism have proven to be good indicators of flu activity," he said. "These numbers, together with reports from physicians, will give us good information about flu activity in a certain area."

The tracking system also provides a mechanism for determining the type or types of flu viruses in the state. Throat culture kits will be distributed by health departments to participating physicians in the 20 counties. The physicians will take throat cultures from early flu patients and send the kits to Frankfort where they will be analyzed by the state lab to determine the virus' type. Knowing the type can then guide physician treatment of subsequent cases.

During the first two weeks of reporting, Nov. 10-21, there were 1,254 flu-like illnesses in 15 counties and a school absenteeism rate of 5.3 percent.

"I can't say how those numbers compare to other years. We don't have data from past years, which is why we've started collecting information," Finger said. "This time next year, perhaps we can look at early numbers and make some kind of interpretation."

"Once the tracking effort has concluded, we'll publish the overall results in the 'Kentucky Epidemiologic Notes and Reports,'" he said. The publication is the monthly newsletter of the Division of Epidemiology.

For now, Finger recommends that anyone in a high-risk group who hasn't gotten a flu shot should do so. Persons in high-risk groups are those, including children, with a history of chronic heart, lung or kidney disease or diabetes or who are residents of nursing homes or other chronic care facilities. Everyone older than 65 should be vaccinated as well, Finger said.

Phonothon Highlights Western's 80th Birthday

More than 1,000 student volunteers at Western Kentucky University raised $54,917 during the sixth annual alumni phonothon which ended Thursday, November 20 highlighting Western's 80th birthday.

Alumni gave birthday presents to the University by way of private donations. The final tally exceeded the $37,000 pledge goal and last year's record $48,888.

Christmas Special On Sesame Street

Celebrate a very special "Christmas Eve on Sesame Street" when this one-hour special encores Saturday, December 20, at 11:00 a.m. on KET. The program repeats Tuesday, December 23, at 8:00 p.m.

"Christmas Eve on Sesame Street" features the Muppets and skaters from Holiday on Ice in this evening of ice skating, tree trimming and caroling. Amid these holiday preparations, Big Bird draws attention to a perplexing problem: How does big, fat Santa Claus get down those skinny chimneys?

The more Big Bird thinks about this problem, the more he writes. Unless he can solve the mystery, a lot of stockings will be empty when Christmas morning rolls around. With the help of Kermit the Frog, Big Bird sets out to ask the help of those who know Santa Claus best—the children.

Kermit gets lots of ideas on how Santa delivers presents from the children of "Sesame Street." Big Bird is not convinced and late Christmas Eve sets off on his own to find the answer to the puzzle. His worried friends organize search parties. Big Bird finally learns that how Santa climbs down chimneys isn't important—being with loved ones is what really matters.

Musical selections include Oscar the Grouch singing about his feelings toward the holidays in "I Hate Christmas." Other original songs include "A True Blue Miracle" and "Keep Christmas With You."

"Christmas Eve on Sesame Street" is produced by Children's Television Workshop.

System Devised At UK May Be Used Worldwide

A new system for describing chemical reactions—first proposed by University of Kentucky chemistry professor Robert Guthrie in 1975—may soon be adopted by an international chemistry governing organization.

The International Union of Pure and Applied Chemistry is expected to give final approval to the new system at its 1987 meeting in Boston, Guthrie said.

The nomenclature system will give scientists and students a more detailed, but systematic, way of symbolically expressing the sequence of events that occur in a chemical reaction. Guthrie feels it will help scientists better communicate their research findings.

Guthrie proposed the system in a paper published in 1975. His ideas, along with a related system proposed by John Littler of England, have been revised and refined by a IUPAC committee of which Guthrie is a member.

"The main advantage over the present system is that it is systematic," Guthrie said. "The old system does not always clearly distinguish between different sequences of events, such as electron movement as bonds are made and broken, that occur in a chemical reaction."

The new system, he said, clearly and systematically designates each event in the chemical reaction, using various symbols and subscripts.

"New students being introduced to these ideas for the first time seem to like it. It's straightforward and they can learn it quickly," he said.

Guthrie said the leading textbook in organic chemistry will be revised to reflect the new system, if adopted, which will speed the acceptance of it among the scientific community.

Sue Wilkerson Is MCA Raffle Winner

Sue Wilkerson, an employee at Highlands Regional Medical Center, won the raffle drawing sponsored by the Mountain Christian Academy in conjunction with Thompson's IGA in Martin and walked away with $300 of groceries. The winning ticket was selected by IGA customer Maudie Martin, of Eastern, Saturday, November 22.

According to a school official, the raffle raised almost $1,500 which will go toward operational expenses of the school.

The raffle was organized by MCA parent Jean Czekaj and Thompson's IGA contributed $100 in groceries to the project.

Consumer Product SAFETY ALERT

FROM THE U.S. CONSUMER PRODUCT SAFETY COMMISSION, WASHINGTON, D.C. 20207
November 1986

Under laws administered by CPSC, an estimated 325 million potentially hazardous products have been called back from the marketplace and consumers since 1973 (when CPSC was created). Most of these were voluntarily recalled by manufacturers who established programs to repair or replace the products, or to refund the purchase price.

Supreme—Court or Constitution?

Last summer Attorney General Edwin Meese gave a speech before the American Bar Association that caused this question—how should the Supreme Court interpret the Constitution—to become a matter of public discussion and debate. That was a very good thing for him to have done, and I for one am grateful. The future of democracy would be bleak if the meaning of the Constitution were to be decided by a private conversation among judges and lawyers from which the public is excluded. For decades—since the great controversy over Roosevelt's court-packing plan in the 1930s—the Supreme Court, aided by its allies in the universities and the legal profession, has transformed the way it views the Constitution without serious public discussion of the new principles of its jurisprudence.

How should judges, especially Supreme Court justices apply the Constitution when they decide whether actions of the state and federal governments are constitutional? The importance of the question is obvious. The Constitution is the supreme law of the land, and its meaning affects every American citizen in the most intimate way. For example, does the Constitution really grant a right of abortion to a fifteen-year-old girl against the laws of a state and without her parents' consent or even their knowledge? Does the Constitution really require the citizens of Texas to pay for free public education for illegal immigrants? Does the Constitution really tolerate the teaching of Marxist dogma in our high schools while forbidding the teaching of respect for God? Recent Supreme Court decisions have said "yes" to all these questions. It does not take much insight to see that the Supreme Court has had a strong tendency in recent years, not to follow the Constitution, but to read into that document its own personal views of right and wrong.

Attorney General Edwin Meese challenged this last summer. Meese called for the Court to practice a "jurisprudence of original intention." He said that the Court should read the Constitution in "the sense in which the Constitution was accepted and ratified by the nation." Meese was only stating what is implicit in the idea of constitutional government: that the Constitution is the basic law, that its authority comes from its being approved by the people, and that the basic law must have some meaning if its being approved by the people means anything at all.

Justice William J. Brennan gave a speech last fall, and this speech ridiculed and denounced Meese's insistence that the Supreme Court should interpret the Constitution in the light of its original intention. Brennan said that the jurisprudence of original intent "is little more than arrogance cloaked as humility. It is arrogant," he said, "to pretend that from our vantage we can gauge accurately the intent of the Framers on application of principle to specific, contemporary questions. Typically, all that can be gleaned is that the Framers themselves did not agree about the applications or meaning of particular constitutional provisions, and hid their differences in cloaks of generality."

The true method of constitutional interpretation, according to Brennan, is for judges to adapt the Constitution to changing times. To quote again from his Georgetown speech: "Those who would restrict claims of right to the values of 1789 specifically articulated in the Constitution turn a blind eye to social progress... For the genius of the Constitution rests not in any static meaning it might have had in a world that is dead and gone, but in the adaptability of its great principles to cope with current problems and current needs. What the constitutional fundamentals meant to the wisdom of other times cannot be their measure to the vision of our time."

In one sense, Brennan is indeed correct: We always have and always will need to adapt "constitutional fundamentals" is crucial. These fundamentals must be grounded in the text of the Constitution and in the thinking of the society that framed and ratified it. Outside the judiciary will be a despotism accountable to no one. It is this Brennan doesn't seem to comprehend.

The Brennan's view of constitutional fundamentals is less than satisfactory becomes clear when one examines his view of the Eighth Amendment. He believes that the Eighth Amendment forbids the death penalty as "cruel and unusual punishment" under all circumstances. This view, he admits, is not yet subscribed to by a majority of the justices of the Supreme Court. Nor is it justified by the Constitution's text, which clearly shows that capital punishment is sanctioned in several instances. The Fifth Amendment states that "No person shall be held to answer for a capital, or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a Grand Jury;...nor shall any person be subject for the same offense to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb;...nor be deprived of life...without due process of law."

If Justice Brennan really believes in "constitutional fundamentals," then how does he justify his stance that capital punishment is unconstitutional? The Constitution itself shows that it is. The "fundamental" ban on "cruel and unusual punishment" clearly did not apply to the death penalty when it was written. So how did it suddenly change? Either constitutional fundamentals are fundamental, and they don't change, or they are not fundamental and do change.

If the Constitution is to be taken seriously, it must have a real, discernible meaning—a meaning that does not change from one generation to the next. Its fundamentals are applied to new situations certainly; but they themselves stay the same. A constitution, after all, is a fundamental law, ratified by the people as a solemn and extraordinary act. It stands above all institutions created by it—even the judiciary.

To Keep Drunks Off Road... Seminars Are Designed For Alcohol Sellers, Servers

A major new program to help keep drunken drivers off the road and help businesses that serve alcohol do so responsibly was launched in Louisville Thanksgiving week. It will be available statewide within a month.

The training program for those who serve and sell alcohol is called Concerned Alcohol Servers Education, or CASE. Leaders in the restaurant, hotel/motel, tourism and alcoholic beverage sales industry requested the program, and the Kentucky Department of Education's Office of Vocational Education developed the half-day seminars for businesses throughout the state.

"We at the Department of Education were eager to join with the hospitality industry in a program that promotes the responsible use of alcohol," State Superintendent of Public Instruction Alice McDonald said. "The hospitality industry is very important economically to Kentucky, and we all want to stop the tragic toll of lives lost and shattered by drunken drivers."

The CASE program for servers and sellers of alcohol will be ongoing, with training sessions starting in Louisville, Lexington, Paducah, Owensboro, Bowling Green and Northern Kentucky by mid-December, before the major holidays.

Representatives of the Kentucky Restaurant Association, the Kentucky and the Greater Louisville hotel-motel associations, the Alcoholic Beverage Sales Association and the Kentucky Tourism Federation met at the Galt House in Louisville Monday (Nov. 24) to finalize the course materials with Department of Education vocational staffers.

"These groups asked for the training to help their employees become responsible hospitality professionals, and to deal with the increasing third-party liability problem their industry faces," said Bill Asher, Office of Vocational Education specialist who is coordinating CASE with Jo Carols Dickson of Jefferson State Vocational School.

Using videotapes, role-playing and class exercises with small groups, instructors will help bartenders, servers and clerks selling package liquor recognize various stages of intoxication, learn techniques to slow a patron's drinking in an effective but courteous manner, and know how to help the patron sober up before leaving or get home without driving a vehicle.

Joan Kemper, executive director of the Kentucky Restaurant Association, noted that it is important for managers to have the same kind of awareness training. Managers are welcome at CASE seminars, Asher said, and a private firm based in Louisville is offering workshops for owners/managers that cover the legal liability and documentation techniques in more depth.

Les Nichols of the Kentucky Hotel/Motel Association said the affordability ($1 per person for materials) and the ongoing nature of the CASE seminars are especially important as the businesses have fairly high turnover.

A number of businesses have already asked for training on-site, Asher said, and seminars for any other alcohol-serving and selling firms will be available at state vocational schools. The preferred class size is 10 or more, but under 30 persons.

Kentucky's CASE is believed to be the first alcohol server training program offered by a state education department in cooperation with the businesses affected. Oklahoma has a program ready for implementation soon, and there are a limited number of private firms offering training. CASE training is free, with a $1.00 per person materials fee.

"Our program makes the training affordable for the smallest bar or convenience store," said State Supt. McDonald. "It is the small businesses that need our help most if they are to thrive and contribute to the state's economy."

There are about 10,000 liquor licenses issued to Kentucky businesses, Asher said, and the Office of Vocational Education is trying to reach all such businesses through their trade associations, the media, and direct mailings. Interested owners or managers of businesses handling liquor may contact Bill Asher at the Kentucky Department of Education, Office of Vocational Education, 2133 Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Ky. 40601. The phone number is (502) 564-3472.

Earnest Hall's confidence brought him 500 miles home for surgery...

Earnest Hall's most memorable hunting trip began outside of Macon, Georgia. It ended after a painful 500 mile ride back to Highlands Regional Medical Center for surgery that was needed to treat a serious abscess. Why would someone in such pain travel that far to be treated at Highlands? Earnest came home because he had confidence in our surgical services. He had been here before. And he knew that the quality of surgery right here in Prestonsburg is as good as Lexington — or anywhere else. In some cases, even better.

And that means a lot to people like Earnest.

"When they said they'd have to operate on me that night in Georgia, I said, 'No way, I'm goin' back home.' I've been in plenty of hospitals, and I got the best service here I've ever gotten anywhere I've been."

Highlands now has 15 full-time surgeons on staff, covering specialties from internal to cosmetic and reconstructive surgery. And our performance has earned accreditation by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals* based on strict national standards.

Experienced, skilled surgeons are only part of the story. Highly trained medical support teams in anesthesiology, nursing, diagnostic services and post operative care, combined with state-of-the-art equipment and facilities, make Highlands one of the safest, most professional surgical centers for inpatient and outpatient surgery around.

Maybe that's why some people would rather come a long way home to Highlands for something as important as surgery. So if you're already here, why go anywhere else?

For more information on inpatient and outpatient surgery, ask your family physician, or call Highlands at 886-8511.

Tree Lighting Heralds Christmas In Frankfort

Gov. Martha Layne Collins will officiate at the annual Christmas tree lighting program Thursday, Dec. 4, at the Capitol. "This is a special tradition and really signals the beginning of the Christmas season for the Collins family," the governor said. "I want to encourage everyone to come and bring their families," she added. The tree lighting program will begin at 6 p.m. in front of the Capitol and there will be a reception and entertainment for the public immediately following the program in the Capitol Rotunda. The Executive Mansion will also be open to the public from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. Gov. Collins has also invited a very special guest from the North Pole who has promised to make an appearance during the festivities.

NOTICE OF INTENDED ENACTMENT AND SUMMARY OF ORDINANCE

I. TITLE. AN ORDINANCE RELATING TO THE AUTHORIZATION AND EXECUTION OF A FIRST SUPPLEMENTAL TRUST INDENTURE AMENDING THE INDENTURE AUTHORIZING THE COUNTY OF FLOYD, KENTUCKY, RESIDENTIAL MORTGAGE REVENUE BONDS, SERIES 1979, DATED APRIL 1, 1979.

II. SUMMARY. As required by Chapters 67 and 424, I hereby certify that an Ordinance, the title of which is the foregoing, was introduced and given first reading by the Fiscal Court of the County of Floyd, Kentucky, at its regular meeting on November 14, 1986, at the Courthouse in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, and that said Fiscal Court at its special called meeting at 10:00 a.m. on November 26, 1986, will give second reading to and consider said Ordinance for enactment. The Ordinance:

A. Authorizes and approves the participation of the County in a proposed restructuring program (the "Program") of the County of Floyd, Kentucky Residential Mortgage Revenue Bonds, Series 1979, dated April 1, 1979 (the "Bonds"), for the purpose of freeing-up and making available to the County certain residual funds at the present time which would otherwise become available to the County in future years.

B. Authorizes and approves the execution of a First Supplemental Trust Indenture between the County and First National Bank of Cincinnati, Cincinnati, Ohio, as trustee, custodian and paying agent (the "Trustee") amending and supplementing the original Indenture authorizing the Bonds.

C. Authorizes the County Judge/Executive and other County officials to take any other necessary action to effect the Program.

D. Provides that nothing in the Ordinance will create a general obligation of the County or cause the County to become liable on the Bonds.

E. Provides that the Ordinance shall be effective upon the publication of a Notice of Enactment and Summary of Bond Ordinance.

F. The full text of the Ordinance is on file in the office of the undersigned Fiscal Court Clerk, during normal working hours, Monday through Friday, in the Courthouse in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, where it is available for public inspection. (Signed) Carla R. Bolton, Fiscal Court Clerk. 11-19-3t.

BRUCELLOSIS

Copyright 1986 KVMA Kentucky Veterinary Medical Association Kentucky veterinarians are continuing to combat brucellosis with varying degrees of success, depending mostly on the cooperation of Kentucky farmers.

Not only is brucellosis a public health hazard because of the possibility of infecting humans with undulant fever, it is a matter of increasing economic importance to farmers not only because of possible abortions but because more and more states are restricting sale of infected cattle.

A state sponsored program to vaccinate against the disease is well accepted in some areas, and almost totally ignored in others.

When the current campaign against the disease was started in 1980, Kentucky was one of nine states in which 90 percent of the herds known to be infected with brucellosis were located.

Aside from the effect undulant fever may have on humans (the organism is shed in milk, and drinking raw infected milk is how it spreads to humans), the disease can have serious economic impact on farmers.

Abortion is the most dramatic effect. However, infected cows may retain placentas and their fertility may be impaired. Bulls that become infected may become infertile.

Veterinarians advise that most herd infections begin with the purchase of infected cattle which are added to the herd, although it may enter from intermingling with cattle from an adjacent and infected farm.

Several steps are suggested to control the disease, including:

Raising your own herd replacements, if your herd is brucellosis free; isolating all purchased replacements a minimum of 60 days, then retesting for brucellosis; having all heifers vaccinated at between two to six months of age; avoiding contact of your herd with cattle of unknown status; not borrowing or loaning bulls; limiting calving season to the shortest possible time period; initiating with your veterinarian a sound herd-health program; seeking veterinary advice at the first sign of abortion or fertility problems; following the current rules and recommendations of official disease control problems; encouraging others to cooperate in the attempt to eliminate brucellosis.

Your veterinarian is not only trained in medical knowledge of brucellosis and how to prevent and eradicate it, he is also completely informed about the programs the state sponsors to control the disease. He also knows the current regulations regarding sale of infected cattle to other states, as well as the recommendations of federal studies.

PHS First-Round Competitor On "KET Scholastic Challenge"

One hundred seventeen high school teams throughout Kentucky will converge on the KET Network Center again this year to compete in the fifth season of "KET Scholastic Challenge," which airs Sundays at 1:00 p.m. on KET. Prestonsburg High School is among those appearing on the initial Dec. 7 Broadcast.

The program was developed by KET five years ago to help promote interest in education in Kentucky. Sally Jackson, producer of "KET Scholastic Challenge," which airs Sundays at 1:00 p.m. on KET. Prestonsburg High School is among those appearing on the initial Dec. 7 Broadcast.

The program was developed by KET five years ago to help promote interest in education in Kentucky. Sally Jackson, producer of "KET Scholastic Challenge," says "KET is pleased to be able to show to the viewers across the state the young people who will make a difference in Kentucky's future. 'Challenge' is a high-energy, quick-recall game the whole family can enjoy following together."

Each hour-long program consists of two games, with three high school teams competing per game. Each game has five rounds of questions in the areas of English, history, math and science, with one round devoted entirely to questions about Kentucky.

Bill Myers returns as host for his second year. Myers is a veteran of 30 years broadcasting experience in the Cincinnati area, formerly as anchor man and weather forecaster.

The winning team in the championship will win $500, and the two runner-up teams will each receive $250. The money is donated by the Friends of KET and goes to the libraries of the winning schools.

The Prestonsburg team (left to right) includes Christ Croot, son of Ernest and MaryLou Croot, Bevinville; Tony Skeans, son of Karen Kestner, East Point; Scott Wells (captain), son of Bob and Herbie Wells, Prestonsburg; and faculty advisor Nell Lawson; and host Bill Myers. Mike Rosenberg and David Spiggle are alternates. Other faculty advisors are Bob Wells and John Patton.

Everyone Should Know About Generic Drugs

By Attorney General DAVID L. ARMSTRONG

Before you go to the pharmacy to have your next prescription filled, it is important for you to know about Kentucky's generic drug law. The law was passed to ensure that you receive the savings from having a lower cost generic drug selected by a pharmacist in place of the brand name drug prescribed. This legislation can greatly reduce the cost of your prescription drugs.

It is important for you to know what is meant by the term "generic" drug. Each drug has a generic name which is the universal or scientific name of a drug. One generic drug may have several different brand names. For example, tetracycline, an antibiotic, is sold under several brand names, such as Sumycin, Tetracylin, Achromycin, or under its generic name of tetracycline. Not all brand name drugs have generic equivalents because the brand name drugs may be protected by patent for a period of time and no substitution can be made.

Your pharmacist may sell only generic drugs that are therapeutically equivalent to brand name drugs. That means that the drug must have the same active ingredient, strength, quantity and dosage as the brand name drug your doctor listed on the prescription. Kentucky's pharmacists consult a list of nonequivalent drugs published by the U. S. Food and Drug Administration when they select a generic drug. All drugs, whether sold under their brand name or generic name, must meet the same standards set by the U. S. Food and Drug Administration for safety, strength, purity and effectiveness.

Brand name drugs often cost much more than their generic counterparts. Often, the consumer pays for the advertised brand name, when the medication could be bought for less under its generic name.

To comply with the generic drug law, drugstores must post this notice:

"This pharmacy is required to dispense the lowest priced generic drug which is therapeutically equivalent to the one prescribed for you by your doctor unless you or your doctor do not approve. The Commonwealth's Kentucky Drug Formulary Council has approved these therapeutically equivalent drug products. Ask your pharmacist."

Ask your doctor to write the prescription for a generic product. When your pharmacist receives a prescription for a brand name drug for which he or she has one or more acceptable equivalent drugs in stock, the pharmacist must select the lowest-priced therapeutic equivalent drug.

Pharmacies are not required to stock generic drugs, although most will do so to help the consumer save money. In some instances, your doctor may not wish to have a generic selection made. In that case, he or she must write "Do Not Substitute" on the prescription blank.

Be sure that you are getting the lowest-priced quality generic drug possible. Comparison shop. Prices vary from one pharmacy to another. With the generic drug law, you can do something about the high cost of being sick.

For more information, write the Office of the Attorney General, Consumer Protection Division, 209 St. Clair St., Frankfort, Ky. 40601 or call the toll-free Consumer Hotline 1-800-432-9257.

State Agency Helps Nail Fathers Behind On Child Support Payments

Thousands of Kentucky fathers make regular child support payments in compliance with their court-ordered obligations. Unfortunately, there are also thousands of others who don't.

When Kentucky families have difficulty receiving child support payments, the Division of Child Support Enforcement in the Department for Social Insurance works with local officials to help ensure those commitments are kept.

"As a child develops, the involvement of the father, both physically and financially, plays a very important role," said division director David E. Cathers. "In most of these homes, the financial support means the difference in independently providing for the health and welfare of the children or going on public welfare. However, failure to meet this obligation goes beyond money.

"If those payments are neglected, it could be interpreted by the child as a sign the father no longer cares for his children. That can have a devastating impact on a child's self-image."

Collection of child support payments in many of Kentucky's 175,000 cases may involve more than simply going to the delinquent father for the money.

"A mother who is having trouble collecting child support first should contact the county attorney or one of our 10 regional offices," Cathers explained. "If she is having trouble locating the father, we can help. Even if he is in another state, we may be able to locate him through a nationwide information network."

After the delinquent parent has been located, the division can help to establish a court-ordered obligation, enforce the court orders and collect the child support payments.

However, Cathers admits that the chances of collecting payments in many of those cases are not all that great.

"Collecting child support payments is a significant problem in Kentucky, just as it is nationally," Cathers said. "Slightly more than one-third of Kentucky fathers with a court-ordered obligation are making a serious attempt to comply with that order."

Without the division's help, that figure might be even lower. Last year, the division collected almost $24 million in direct child support payments. The division also collected $11.7 million in child support payments for 47,000 Kentucky families who receive Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) due to divorce or desertion by one parent.

"Very seldom do child support payments cover the cost of raising children," said Cathers. "A recent U.S. Department of Agriculture study placed the cost of raising a child at $207 per month providing only the basic necessities.

"The average monthly court-ordered child support payment per family is $110, while AFDC benefits begin at $170 per month and are graduated according to the number of children in the family."

Recent changes are making it easier to collect delinquent payments.

"The administrative process will allow us to establish a child support obligation if paternity is not an issue, eliminating lengthy delays caused by an

Window Spotting Contest Will Aid Cancer Society

The Floyd County Chapter of the American Cancer Society and the Prestonsburg downtown merchants are sponsoring a "Window Spotting" contest beginning December 1.

Each of the participating downtown stores will have an item in the window that is not sold in the store. Contestants must "spot" the items in all the windows in order to win. The stores will display a poster indicating they are participating.

Carol Ormay, public information officer for the Floyd County Chapter explains further, "To enter the contest you buy an entry form at any of the participating stores. The entry form costs one dollar and will list the stores. After you've spotted each item, write in on the entry form and turn it in."

Completed entry forms should be turned in at the main office of the First Commonwealth Bank or the Bank Josephine before December 12. Prizes will be awarded for the first, second, and third correct (or closest) entries. First prize is $150 cash, second prize is an expense paid weekend at the Holiday Inn, and third prize is $50 in cash. Drawing for the correct entries will be on December 12.

The prizes were donated by the Bank Josephine and the First Commonwealth Bank.

overloaded judicial system," Cathers said. "In addition, a law was passed which allows delinquent child support payments to be withheld from federal and state income tax returns and unemployment benefits.

"These changes are making it easier to collect past due payments and more difficult for parents to avoid paying court-ordered child support payments."
