

City Bank Robbed By Man In Woman's Garb

An undisclosed amount of money was stolen from the North Lake Drive branch of the Bank Josephine early yesterday (Tuesday) morning by an apparently unarmed robber.

Prestonsburg Police Detective Sgt. Mike Ormerod, the first officer on the scene, said bank officials called police at about 8:55 a.m. to report the robbery. The bank opened at 8:30.

Police said that at the time of the robbery, the suspect was wearing women's clothing, dark glasses and a dark wig. Early on, investigators were not sure of the suspect's sex. By afternoon, however, state police said they were looking for a white male with short blonde hair and smooth olive skin. He was said to be of slight stature, about 5' 4", 130 lbs., wearing brown pants, a brown shirt with yellow stripes and carrying a blue duffel bag.

Special Agent Sam Smith of the FBI's Pikeville office said that a teller, whose identity was not disclosed, was handed a note demanding money. Smith said the suspect did not display a weapon. Only cash from that teller's window was taken. A bank official refused to comment on the amount of money issued to tellers each morning, or on how much was likely in the drawer at the time. Unconfirmed reports placed the amount taken variously at $500, $5,000 and $6,000.

After leaving the bank, the suspect was seen on foot, running north in the alley behind the adjacent Kentucky Fried Chicken restaurant. A surveillance camera was in use at the bank but, as of yesterday, it was not known if it would produce useful evidence.

Solid evidence was found in the men's restroom of the nearby SuperAmerica gas station. City police officers Jim Mullins and W.R. Campbell found items there believed to have been discarded by the suspect. Among these were the note apparently used in the robbery, a dark brown wig, and women's clothing.

Early leads had officers looking for a white Mercury Cougar which had been seen behind the bank before the robbery but was gone afterward. Roadblocks were set up by the Johnson county sheriff's department and state police on

Action Termed 'Improper' As Lawsuit Is Dropped

The judge would have no part of it but Prestonsburg police officers cut a deal last week with a man facing multiple charges in district court here, on condition the man drop a lawsuit charging them with brutality.

Albert O. "Buddy" Gibson, 51, of Calf Creek, faced two charges of assault, three of terroristic threatening, one of resisting arrest, and one of public intoxication stemming from his arrest by three city police officers on March 27 last year. All charges were dismissed in district court last Wednesday except for public intoxication, to which Gibson pleaded guilty. He was fined $10 and ordered to pay court costs.

In bargaining with the prosecutor for his client's freedom, Pikeville attorney Thomas Goodman played a strong hand, offering to drop a $5.1 million civil rights suit filed by Gibson in US District Court in return for the dismissal of all charges against him.

Parents Push For Improved Special Educ.

In the current push to improve the quality of Floyd schools, parents of handicapped students gave notice last week that their children will not be left out.

None of those who met to discuss the problem at a meeting in the county library Thursday imagined that a solution would come easily. Although it was declared a federal law 10 years ago that no child may be denied a tax-supported education, parents of youngsters with physical, intellectual or emotional problems have often found a frustrating gap between what is legally required and what is actually available.

Ogie Slone, who took over this year as director of special education programs for Floyd schools, made no attempt to gloss over the difficulties. "PL 94-142 is only 10 years old and we're about 10 years behind the rest of the country," she told the meeting of parents and professionals.

By other standards, attendance at the meeting might be considered light. By comparison with earlier efforts to

Suit Names Second Supermarket Chain

Apparently a victim of what one grocer has described as a period of "cutthroat" competition among area supermarkets, three Piggly Wiggly stores owned by Taylor Price are named in a suit filed last week by Big Sandy Wholesale, Inc.

The Harold wholesale firm claims it has not been paid for merchandise delivered to the three stores last November and December and valued at $24,414.

According to the suit, filed in Floyd Circuit Court by Pikeville attorney Joseph W. Justice, the Martin Piggly Wiggly owes $11,623, the Prestonsburg store $6,664, and the Pikeville store $6,126.

(Suits filed in court give only one side of the issues in dispute.)

Rowland voiced no opposition to the deal but District Judge Harold Stumbo refused to condone it, calling it "improper." Through his attorney, Gibson then offered to plead guilty to the single drunkenness charge and to pay a $10 fine, with no further mention being made of his withdrawing his lawsuit.

That done, lawyers for both sides again huddled briefly in a jury room adjoining the courtroom and Gibson, emerging from the jury room, conceded that he had agreed to drop his suit.

"I hate what was done to me," said Gibson, in reference to his claim that the three officers beat him over the head with flashlights. "But I've done so much time I hated to take a chance on doing any more. . . I'm going to drop it all and get the hell out of here."

Judge Stumbo said later he thought the criminal charges against Gibson should be tried without any reference to the pending civil suit. "If the prosecutor has a weak case, he should

Local C of C Honors High School Authors

"Tickled to death" is how Freddie Goble described his satisfaction this week at seeing a bevy of high school students and their teachers honored with a luncheon put on at May Lodge by the local chapter of the Chamber of Commerce.

They were some of the authors and artists whose short stories, essays, poems and illustrations grace the pages of Mountain Magic, a literary magazine produced by Floyd high school students, the first issue of which recently rolled off the presses.

Their work is for Goble graphic proof of what can be achieved through the project he has promoted this year with a reformer's zeal and about which he speaks with passion—the School-Community Partnership Program. "It's an example of the school and community working together, instead of just leaving education to the teachers," he explained.

In the case of Mountain Magic, the community input came in the form of a $500 donation by the Prestonsburg-Floyd County Chamber toward the $1728 it cost to print 500 copies of the 68-page magazine. The balance was paid with part of a $5000 grant provided by the Kentucky Educational Foundation, Inc., a non-profit corporation organized two years ago as part of a well-publicized push to lift the standards of Kentucky schools.

The literary magazine, which contains entries from all five county high schools, will be one of a number of Floyd projects showcased in September at the Governor's Second Conference on School-Community Partnerships. Goble has no doubt this district will acquit itself well when compared with its counterparts across the state. "We're going to bring back a prize," he predicted flatly.

A state Department of Highways engineer, Goble is confident the Spring, 1986 issue of Mountain Magic will be only the first of many annual editions. Moreover, by next year it will be joined by a publication for younger authors—kindergarten through grade 8—he said.

The writing and artwork are of themselves only the most obvious benefits of a literary magazine, said the Auxier resident, for whom the more important gains are in the image students and teachers have of themselves and the image the schools have in the community.

600-Ton Rock Is Heavy Issue For Developers

The mayor and some Prestonsburg City Council members remained skeptical but the man who is now running the Prestonsburg Village operation here assured the council Monday that the most obvious safety problem at the shopping-center site—a 600-ton rock jutting out from the cliff face behind the Winn-Dixie supermarket—will be tackled this Friday night.

Dan Storie, formerly operations director for Commonwealth Development Corporation and now filling an identical position with Brown Properties, Inc., which operates out of the same Louisville office, told the council that a cable would be passed around the overhanging rock in an attempt to pull it down.

The work will be done at night when nearby stores are closed and when the power supply can be cut off, Storie said. A major concern of city officials here has been that falling rocks could

Numerous Delays Keep Drug Cases From Court Trial

Three drug cases stemming from a state police undercover operation three-and-a-half years ago are still unresolved following numerous postponements, according to district court records here.

Still pending are charges against Mack H. Lewis, of Betsy Layne, accused of trafficking in Valium; Carlon Harris, of Auxier, accused of trafficking in marijuana, and Tim Spurlock, of Prestonsburg, charged with trafficking in amphetamines. All three have been free on unsecured bonds since their arrest in December, 1982.

The cases of Harris and Spurlock have each been continued, or postponed, 11 times—the last time on April 15 this year. Generally, no reason is listed for the continuances, although Harris is recorded as being absent on five scheduled trial dates.

The Lewis case has been set and continued five times, according to the court record. On one occasion, defense attorney Ned Pillersdorf sought the postponement because he was already scheduled to represent a client in Knott county; on another occasion, because he was scheduled to appear in Letcher county.

The defense attorney has filed a motion to have the case against Lewis dismissed, arguing that the Floyd Circuit Court grand jury did not indict him on the felony of which he was accused—he was said to have sold 46 Valiums to Det. Leroy Buckner on Dec. 8, 1982—and that there is no court order remanding the case to district court.

The original felony charge against Spurlock, who is accused of selling 20 amphetamine capsules to the undercover agent on October 2, 1982, was remanded to district court as a misdemeanor after the state police lab-

Traffic Snarl Worse During Power Outage

A faulty power-line bracket made for even worse than normal traffic congestion here last Thursday.

The trouble began around 1:30 p.m. when a passerby noticed sparks shooting from a high-voltage cable in front of Lee's Famous Recipe on North Lake Drive. City fire and police units were dispatched to the scene, where they secured the area and re-directed traffic. Vehicles were routed away from the intersection of U.S. 23 and North Lake Drive, making for snarled traffic and frustrated motorists.

A repair truck was sent from Kentucky Power's Pikeville office, but didn't arrive here until about 6 p.m. Once the truck arrived, the cable was repaired in about 30 minutes. Electricity was turned off in the city while repairs were effected.

Fire Chief Tom Blackburn said the problem arose when a bracket securing the 7,200 volt line became loose and allowed movement. Had the cable made contact with a secondary line strung beneath it, "it could have been the 4th of July all over again," he said. In addition to the danger of fire and electric shock, Blackburn said, had the wires touched, much of Prestonsburg would have suffered a power outage lasting far longer than the half-hour needed to make repairs.

Fire Dept. Paying Off At Weeksbury

What Peggy Bradford described as "five long years of bakesales and everything we could think of" has paid off for a volunteer fire department on Upper Left Beaver Creek and, as of Sunday, it began paying off for area homeowners as well.

For that was the day the area served by the Weeksbury-based Southeast Floyd County Volunteer Fire Department received a coveted Class 9 designation by the Insurance Services Office, an organization that rates fire protection services for insurance firms, according to Mrs. Bradford, the fire department's secretary-treasurer.

"We're all real proud of it. It will help our people," said Mrs. Bradford, a second-grade teacher at Melvin Elementary School and president of the Weeksbury Community Club. She cited a May 12 letter from the ISO to Fire Chief Bobby Johnson explaining that the improved classification, which followed an inspection of the fire department by an ISO field representative last month, will apply to areas within five road miles of the fire station.

Covered are communities from Weeksbury north to Meade Hill, including Melvin, Jacks Creek, Buckingham, Burton, Abner and the unincorporated sections of Wheelwright. Homeowners in those areas should ask their insurance carriers about reductions in premiums, said Mrs. Bradford, who anticipates hers will be reduced by around $150 a year.

Organized about seven years ago under the direction of Johnson, a Weeksbury resident who operates a Virgie barber shop, the volunteer fire department has its fire truck paid for and 15 members with the required 150 hours of training. Besides further training, the "big goal" now on the agenda is buying a site and building a station house, said Mrs. Bradford. The fire truck is currently housed in a

Earns Coveted Award

One of the highest honors bestowed on a poet, the Silver Poet Award for 1986, will be presented to Mrs. Doris R. Prater, Prestonsburg resident and former teacher, here, at ceremonies in Orlando, Fla., August 30.

World of Poetry's Board of Directors has voted to so honor Mrs. Prater in recognition of her poetry, and John Campbell, editor and publisher, will make the presentation at the second annual convention marking the 11th anniversary of the organization in Marriott's Orlando World Center. Among those attending will be celebrities Vincent Price, Maya Angelou, Herman Berliand, as well as World Television to record her acceptance of the honor.

Mrs. Prater has been requested to bring selections of her poetry to share with the more than 2,000 other poets expected to attend. She is also now eligible to be named World of Poetry Laureate for 1986 and for induction into the World of Poetry Hall of Fame.

In addition to other awards she has received for writing, Mrs. Prater, who taught English and journalism at Martin and Prestonsburg High schools from 1957 to 1974, was named "Outstanding Secondary Educator of America for 1974."

Mrs. Prater and her husband, Dallas Prater, well-known businessman, have resided here for nearly 30 years. She is the daughter of the late Raymond and Tana Martin Turner, who resided at Drift.

Wheelwright Has Another Mayor

Joe Stewart, a miner, was sworn in as mayor of Wheelwright last Wednesday after Councilman Dennis Holbrook decided he did not want the job after all. Holbrook had been installed as mayor earlier to replace Tommy Engle, who resigned to resume his old post as chief of police.

Stewart's interim appointment by the city council will stand until the election of a permanent mayor in November, according to Katie Newsome, Wheelwright city clerk.

THESE BOULDERS COVERING MORE THAN HALF THE HIGHWAY, presented added hazards to motorists traveling new Ky. 80 at Martin, Saturday. The rockfall blocked two lanes of traffic until its removal several hours later.

Honored On Retirement

Aileen Hall, of Betsy Layne, was honored with a retirement dinner Saturday evening, May 17, at Holiday Inn North in Lexington. Her retirement, March 31, marked the end of a 37-year career that took her into varied assignments and earned for her many awards.

For 14 years she served as a trainer for newly appointed postmasters, and in 1983, assisted with a USPS documentary film of rural America. A member of the National Association of Postmasters of the United States (NAPUS), she was involved on the state, regional and national levels. The first woman to be elected president of her state organization, she also served in every other elective office. She was five times elected state secretary-treasurer and for several years has written articles for the state paper, The Kentuckian.

She was a member of both the state and national legislative committees, did nominating speeches for candidates at national conventions and was for two years Editor-at-Large of the national magazine, The Postmasters Gazette.

More than 100 friends and family members including her husband, Walter Hall, attended the retirement dinner and shared in the tributes paid by her fellow postmasters. R.C. Day, NAPUS vice-president and postmaster of Somerset, served as master of ceremonies. Speakers included Ohio NAPUS president, Grant Cook, of Celina, Ohio, and Jim Russelburg, of Indianapolis, Indiana. Also paying tributes were former KY NAPUS presidents, Bremer Ehrler, Louisville; Bud Hudson, Hopkinsville; W.S. Chamber, Westport; and Dub Johnson, Lawrenceburg. Mrs. Hall's daughter, Rhonda Blackburn, of Betsy Layne, gave an account of their family life and brought a message from her other daughter, Nancy Spradlin, of Tampa, Florida.

Bremer Ehrler, whose term as Jefferson County Judge/Executive ended in January, presented Mrs. Hall a plaque naming her an honorary Captain of the Belle of Louisville. She also received a gold watch, an engraved silver tray, an engraved plaque of special stamps and a book filled with messages from her family and postal friends across the nation. The dinner was hosted by Delma Smith, of Louisville; Jean Hall, Viper; Elfreda Bowen, Bonnyman, and Jack Stumbo, Versailles.

Latta Is Named To State Group

Mayor Ann Latta has been appointed by Governor Martha Layne Collins to a committee which will study outdoor recreation in Kentucky.

Latta spent Monday in Frankfort attending the first meeting of the Kentucky Commission on Outdoor Recreation Resources Review. She described the meeting as informative.

Attached to the Department of Local Government, the commission's main function will be to examine the state's comprehensive outdoor recreation plan, and make recommendations for the future.

To that end, the commission will hold three public hearings, the first this month at Kentucky Dam Village State Park; the second July 24 at Jenny Wiley State Park, and the third at Lexington in August. It is hoped that interested parties will attend, particularly those who operate private recreational enterprises.

Latta said her appointment to the commission will aid her in making contacts with state officials who may be able to aid the city with state grants in the future. She added that her membership on the commission doesn't mean preferential treatment for Jenny Wiley State Park or Archer Park here, though they stand to benefit from study of how such facilities can be improved.

She added that last year's comprehensive plan showed Eastern Kentucky to have the greatest need, statewide, for recreational development.

PLANNING

GENUINE TAX REFORM (It's Not Law Yet)

Just when tax reform appeared to be dying at the hands of special interest groups, Bob Packwood, Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, took swift, bold moves to bring forth a genuine tax reform proposal. The bill trades off most deductions and credits for sharply reduced tax rates.

- Included in this latest reform proposal are these provisions:
- Two tax rates, 15% and 27%, would replace the current 14 rates ranging from 11% to 50%.
- The current top corporate tax rate of 46% would be reduced to 33%.
- Capital gains would be taxed as ordinary income.
- Both the personal exemption and the standard deduction would increase. The personal exemption in 1987 would be $1,900, increasing in 1988 to $2,000. The standard deduction for joint filers would increase to $5,000.
- Contributions to IRA plans would not be deductible for individuals who have some other pension plan. The tax deferral on earnings in IRAs would continue, however.
- The "paper losses" generated from tax shelters would be eliminated.
- The 10% investment tax credit for business equipment would be eliminated, but depreciation for equipment would be made more generous.
- Itemized deductions that would be retained include mortgage interest payments on homes, charitable contributions, state and local income taxes, real estate and personal property taxes. The deduction for sales tax paid would be eliminated.
- Interest deductions on non-mortgage items would be limited to interest income.
- A stiff 20% minimum tax for individuals and corporations would be established. Tax exempt bond income would not be affected. There is wide support for the Senate proposal, but keep in mind that it's not law yet. Don't make important financial decisions without first checking the status of tax reform.

Morehead Schedules Orientation Session

Morehead State University has scheduled four two-day summer orientation, advising and registration (SOAR) programs to acquaint new students and their parents with the university's academic programs, student services and campus life in general.

SOAR sessions for 1986 are scheduled on Fridays and Saturdays as follows: June 20-21, June 27-28, July 11-12 and July 18-19.

A cooperative effort by MSU's student development and admissions staffs, SOAR offers incoming freshmen and transfer students help in getting off on the right foot by assisting them through their first registration.

"Not only do the students and their families hear about the university and its services from various administrators, but also from other students currently enrolled who serve as Eagle Guides," explained Bruce Heasley, MSU's acting director of admissions.

"In addition to discussions with top University officials, deans and department heads, the program includes a cookout on the lawn in front of Camden-Carroll Library and a dance later in the University Center Grill," he continued.

Tim Rhodes Wants To Help You Go To College This Fall

When Tim Rhodes was growing up in these beautiful Eastern Kentucky hills he dreamed of going to college. He followed that dream from Menifee County High School to Morehead State University. His parents helped as much as they could but Tim found that he needed financial assistance, a situation faced by many college students, then and now.

With the encouragement and advice of MSU's student financial aid staff, Tim received the help that enabled him to stay in school and become a first generation college graduate.

Today, Tim Rhodes is helping other young people follow in those footsteps. As MSU's director of student financial aid, he and his staff administer 10 state, federal and institutional assistance programs. And, just as any good neighbor would do in Eastern Kentucky, he goes that extra mile by suggesting at least 10 other ways that students can find help from private sources.

If you want to go to college this fall and are concerned that you can't afford it, Tim wants you to pick up a financial aid form from your school counselor and then call him at 783-2011. He enjoys helping students and he is good at his job.

But, most of all, he remembers a young man with a dream.

various roads north of Prestonsburg. Ormerod was uncertain if the robbery was done by a professional thief. But it was obvious, he said, that there was some planning involved. The suspect "didn't just do this on the spur of the moment," said Ormerod. He speculated the robbery took about five minutes.

The bank was closed from the time of the robbery until about 11 a.m., with state police Det. Scott Woodard and FBI agent Smith inside, heading up investigations for their respective agencies.

At the request of police, bank officials declined comment on the robbery. However, Assistant Vice President Judith Curnutte did confirm that no one at the bank was injured, nor did anyone attempt to foil the hold up. "Of course, your life is the most important thing," she said.

building provided by Willard Stanley, state Mines and Minerals commissioner, she explained.

While several other county fire departments are now supported by tax dollars, the board of directors of the Southeast Floyd County VFD is still reluctant to go that route, preferring to rely on voluntary donations. The secretary-treasurer said.

organize people around the issues of special education here, however, the two dozen who turned out Thursday were taken as a sign of a new determination to give exceptional students in this county the help they need. "I said I'd be really excited if 20 showed up," said Mrs. Slone, as seats in the small meeting room began to fill up. "I just can't believe it."

The task set for the meeting, which was chaired by Beverly Ratliff, a staffer with the state Office of Education for Exceptional Children, was to come up with strategies to implement three goals earlier identified as top priorities:

—to staff Floyd schools with teachers and principals qualified and knowledgeable in the area of special education;

—to educate handicapped students to the point where they can get a job and live independently on the completion of their schooling; and —to make the general public aware of the handicapped and their needs.

The difference that a knowledgeable principal can make was a point stressed by Barbara Ware, teacher of hearing-impaired children at Garrett Elementary. How handicapped children fare in a school, she said, "has a lot to do with whether the principal thinks they should be stuck in a room way off to one side, or whether he is uncomfortable with deaf children using sign language with the other kids."

With the encouragement of Garrett Principal Ralph O'Quinn, signing is part of the curriculum not only for the deaf child in the class but for the whole first grade, she said.

An often unspoken assumption that handicapped children could not learn resulted in the past in policies that kept them out of public schools or else relegated them to "caretaker" type programs. That is changing. The law now requires that every handicapped child be enrolled in a program that is as normal as possible while still meeting the child's special needs.

The thinking behind the law is that handicapped children benefit educationally and socially by being with their non-handicapped peers. But educators point out that children without handicaps and society at large also have a stake in seeing the new policy work.

Those who advocate education in the "least restrictive environment" as offering the most benefit for handicapped students note that it also helps other students accept individual differences and to recognize the capabilities of handicapped children rather than judging them on their disabilities. They can better come to understand that the handicapped have the same needs and desires as the non-handicapped. And they can better learn to respect the rights of all people.

None of those are unimportant lessons, according to the group that brainstormed here Thursday. If they can figure out a way, the rest of us will be learning them better in the coming year.

Branham Guilty In Theft Of VCR

A Floyd Circuit Court jury last week convicted a Langley man, Paul Branham, of theft and recommended that he be given a 12-month jail term.

Branham was accused of renting a VCR last May from Village Video in Martin and then selling it. He could have received up to five years in jail.

With most precincts of the state tabulated Wednesday afternoon, U.S. Senator Earle C. Clements had rolled up a lead of 80,412 votes over his principal opponent, Joe B. Bates for the Democratic nomination in the Senate race, and in the Seventh Congressional district, where 142 of 716 precincts remained unreported. Congressman Carl D. Perkins had a lead of 17,110 over Ralph N. Walters, his nearest competitor at that stage of the counting...Floyd county's population now stands at 43,680, a decline of 9,820 persons since the decennial census of 1950. Judge Bert T. The two-months-old soft coal strike ended Wednesday, with the miners receiving, under a contract negotiated with the federal government, a base wage of $1.18 1/2 an hour instead of the former $1, and among other concessions, a welfare fund provided by a royalty of five cents a ton on coal...A second Floyd county town is slated soon to end its existence as a mining center. G. Pennington, of Prestonsburg, brought her car off Abbott Mountain, near here, Friday evening without the benefit of brakes. However, after a wild ride saw them safely at the foot of the mountain, the last curve on the approach to the Cliff Bridge proved too much. Mrs. Pennington's car struck the side of the span. She and a passenger, Mrs. N. M. White, Jr., also of Prestonsburg, suffered only minor cuts and bruises...Brady Shepherd, of Prestonsburg, was seriously injured last Thursday when the truck he was driving plunged over an embankment on Bull Creek...Married: Miss Minerva McGuire and Mr. Farley Gibson, both of West Prestonsburg, May 25. Bids were not received Monday, as had been planned, for construction of the addition to the Floyd county courthouse, and Forrest D. Short, County Attorney and a member of the Floyd County Building Committee, said that date of the opening of bids would be set ahead to such time as when sufficient number of bids are received to insure the county the benefit of competitive bidding...Bill Hunt, 18, was shot through the right side of his chest Monday night on the Mayo Trail here. Approximately $20,500 will be available for rural highways in Floyd county this year. Floyd county officials were told a few days ago in a meeting with highway officials at Frankfort...Though the new state law providing that all roadhouses outside of incorporated towns must be licensed by the county court, no applications for such permits have been filed by roadhouse operators in this county, it was said Tuesday. Contracts covering the expenditure of more than $14,000 on five school buildings were awarded by the Floyd county board of education, Saturday. Dr. R. S. Bits and Pieces

SLINGS AND ARROWS

Before the slings and arrows of outrageous fat, to almost quote the Bard, o'ertook me, I too, would greet the swimsuit season with a whoop and a holler and dive in. Now, I view the situation with a somewhat jaundiced eye. That is to say, a perfect 10 some of us are not. But do the designers of those body-baring creations know this? Apparently not.

Way back in the dark ages of my youth, I remember swimsuits with real holding power—strong, stretchy stuff. Ha! And again, ha! In fact, bah! Where is it now that I need it?

Then too, there are ruffles to balance the top with the lower half—not to say too bluntly, the bottom. Of course they—the ruffles, that is—did tend to droop a bit when wet. But actually, those suits stood the water test better than most of today's aquatic sensations. One could, on those occasions when the urge was too strong to resist, plunge in and come up at least decent, if not calculated to dampen Bo Derek's spirits.

Ah, youth. Ah, strong, stretchy stuff. Ah—even—ruffles!

Now, fetch me my muu-muu.

A ROSE IS A ROSE

My neighbor, Flo Homes, says there is nothing worth having that isn't some trouble, and over the years, it has been borne in on me that this pretty much hits the nail on the head. Now, by some fairly involved mental process, this leads us to the subject of roses.

For many seasons, I hesitated to try my luck at rose growing, chiefly because I suspected that it is not as much a matter of luck as of a lot of hard work, and let's face it, some of us are not overburdened with ambition in that direction. There has, at our home, always been my faithful Blaze climber and a lovely old-fashioned rose given to me by Mrs. Bess Williams who named it the Mary Ellis rose. They are undaunted by wintry blasts, heat waves, drought, or Japanese beetles. If I could have only two roses, I would choose these.

But then, one spring, I remembered my neighbor's philosophy and decided that roses, too, were worth the trouble. While mine are not in the flower show category, they do uplift my spirits when they flag. The Queen Elizabeth, tall and stately, is aptly named, and Senior Prom, while not my favorite, has a brash exuberance I enjoy. There are others—Tropicana and Don Juan, a dark, handsome specimen, among them—and my garden is getting a bit crowded. This year, I am waiting for Angel Face to blossom forth. Sometimes a rose is not exactly what I expected, but I am rarely disappointed.

Beauty is indeed worth the trouble.

Woman Faces DUI Charges Second Time

An Ivel woman was charged with drunk driving Sunday following a two-car collision on U.S. 23 there. It was her second arrest under Kentucky's stricter, 1984 DUI law.

Jo Ann Isaacs, 43, was also booked on charges of leaving the scene of an accident, and of driving without a license or insurance. She was lodged overnight in the Floyd county jail and released Monday under a $15,000 property bond. Arraignment was set for August 5 in Floyd District Court.

State Trooper S. L. Trees said Mrs. Isaacs was found about half an hour after the 1 p.m. accident, "staggering down the road" on Tom's Creek. She had a strong odor of alcohol on her breath and failed several sobriety tests, the officer said. She was taken at her own request to Pikeville Methodist Hospital for blood alcohol analysis, the results of which were not disclosed. The driver of the other car was reported hospitalized with multiple leg fractures.

According to court records, Isaacs, whose address was then listed as Teaberry, pleaded guilty on Dec. 27, 1984 to drunk driving and driving on a suspended license. She was ordered to do two days of public service and to pay $207.50 in fine and court costs.

Reading Program Free This Summer

During June and July, the Department for Libraries and Archives will again cosponsor a statewide Summer Reading Program with 110 Kentucky public libraries. The program, which encourages reading for pleasure during the summer months, is free to all elementary and preschool children.

Due to popular demand, this year's theme, "Explore the World Through Your Public Library," will again feature the floppy-eared dog, Library Jones, and his faithful teddy bear, as well as a feline friend. The three characters will share worldwide adventures with over 24,000 Kentucky children through reading activities held at most local libraries.

The program will also offer special incentives that will enable the children to earn free prizes for reading a specific number of books. The participants will be competing for passes to the Kentucky Horse Park and the popular "Read and Ride" program will again offer redeemable coupons for rides at the Kentucky State Fair.

Anyone interested in registering for the Summer Reading Program should contact their local public library.

strike electrical transformers mounted on poles behind the stores, possibly energizing the stores' metal frames.

Responsible for the rock removal, said Storie, will be Scalf Engineering, of Betsy Layne, and Beulah Engineering, of Lexington, two firms which had earlier said they would do no more work for the shopping-center developer until their outstanding bills were paid.

Although the developers face lawsuits claiming they are in default on a $13.5 million loan and owe contractors as much as $1 million for work already done on the unfinished site, Storie said the money to pay the two engineering firms for Friday's scheduled salvage operation is "in the bank."

While the hope is that the overhanging rock will be dislodged, Storie said another possibility is that it will turn out to be too stable to move with the 1 1/4-inch cable wrapped around it. "If the cable breaks and the rock doesn't move, we won't worry about it for a while," he said.

Until outstanding legal issues are resolved, no plans can be made about stabilizing the rest of the cliffs surrounding the shopping-center site, construction of which has been stalled since February, Storie said.

Homeowners Given Hope of Coverage They Can Afford

Retirees and widows, among those who have had the hardest time paying for homeowner's insurance since rates rose sharply a few years ago, should be getting a break soon as a result of recent legislative action.

The General Assembly voted to expand the kind of coverage available under the Kentucky fair plan—the state-mandated pool for providing coverage in marginal areas where underwriters would otherwise be unwilling to offer it—and an insurance policy has now been designed to take advantage of the change in the law, Prestonsburg insurance agent Blaine Hall said this week.

Whereas the fair plan has traditionally provided only basic fire coverage, the new policy will offer liability and contents coverage like a regular homeowner's policy, said Hall, a member of the task force appointed to come up with a plan to implement the new law.

The change will mean everyone will be able to afford homeowner's insurance and all agents will be able to write it, he said.

While the new policies are expected to become available in July, premium rates have yet to be worked out. Moreover, underwriting guidelines will probably restrict those for whom the policies are available, Hall said. "We'll be looking at the stability of people and checking on the condition of the premises," he explained.

While the incidence of arson here has given eastern Kentucky a bad reputation among underwriters, it is not wholly deserved, said Hall, who noted that 108 fires were set in Lexington last year, including 72 by juveniles, and that 155 were set there in 1984. "We have a few houses burn and it's a disgrace. They have 155 and we hear nothing about it," he said. "I don't think we're being treated equally."

FmHA Slates Sale Of Homes

"The Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) will offer 80 single-family homes for sale from June 1 to August 29 in Kentucky," Kendall L. Seaton, state director said today.

"These are homes that have come into our possession through loan liquidations and have been determined unsuitable for FmHA's Section 502 housing program. These homes are being offered on attractive terms," Seaton said. "They are priced below market value, and the normally required downpayments are being waived or reduced during the 90-day sale period."

The U.S. Department of Agriculture Agency acquires residences from time to time from borrowers who are unable to continue payments and voluntarily turn the property over, and through foreclosure.

Persons interested in buying a house either for a residence or for investment purposes can obtain information on locations, descriptions, sale terms and prices from FmHA County Offices. The Government listing section of the local telephone directories under "United States Department of Agriculture, Farmers Home Administration" will give the location of the nearest county office.

This is an Equal Housing Opportunity Program.

Dreama Lee Hager, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Hager, of Auxier, received an associate of arts degree in nursing from Midway College during 40th annual commencement exercises held Saturday, May 17.

Many Eligible For Medicaid, But Don't Know How To Apply

More than 346,000 low-income Kentuckians in 1986 will receive medical care that is covered by the state's Medicaid program. Many more Kentuckians could be eligible if they knew how and where to apply for help and what factors are used to determine Medicaid eligibility.

The Kentucky Department for Medicaid Services provides people who qualify with a medical assistance identification card, which some doctors, dentists and hospitals use as payment for medical bills. The card also helps pay for many medicines and for some costs in long-term facilities.

"We try to make certain that all Kentuckians eligible for Medicaid coverage receive the needed medical care with as little red tape as possible," explained Hughes Walker, Medicaid Services Commissioner. "However, we are required by the federal government to gather certain information about the client's living situation, income and resources. It's important for the applicant to be able to provide accurate and detailed information."

People may apply for medical assistance at the Kentucky Department for Social Insurance office in the county where they live. The Department for Medicaid Services contracts with the Department for Social Insurance to process medical assistance applications and determine eligibility statewide.

What records are needed? The client must provide a Social Security card for each person to be covered by Medicaid. The Social Insurance caseworker will assist in the application for a Social Security card for a client who doesn't have one. A birth certificate may be needed for each dependent child.

The client needs to provide income records, such as current paycheck stubs or, if a person is self-employed, the latest federal income tax return. "You don't have to be unemployed to qualify for Medicaid," Walker said. "A family of four with an income of $325 a month could be eligible."

An applicant also needs to provide records of other financial resources, such as checking and savings account statements, certificates of deposit, stocks, bonds, life and health insurance policies, prepaid burial contracts and award letters for unearned income, such as Social Security or Veterans Administration benefits. The client also may be asked to provide additional documents.

Some people are eligible for Medicaid because they are receiving certain other benefits. "For example, parents and children receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) benefits automatically are issued a monthly medical card without having to make a separate application," Walker said. "Medical assistance continues as long as they receive AFDC. And people whose AFDC benefits are discontinued due to earnings may retain medical assistance under specific conditions for four additional months."

People 65 years of age or older and blind or disabled citizens receiving Supplemental Security Income benefits also are automatically eligible.

Others who may qualify for the program include patients in long-term care facilities, children in foster care homes, and people under age 21 who are in psychiatric hospitals.

And people facing high medical bills also should apply. "When a family exceeds the income standard for Medicaid eligibility, we look at the household medical expenses for a three-month period," Walker said. "When a client incurs medical expenses that use up the excess income, we can provide Medicaid from the day the excess was exhausted through the end of the three-month period."

Walker stressed the critical importance for Medicaid clients and applicants to provide honest responses to eligibility questions. "Our number one concern is the medical care of the individual. However, we will not ignore a situation of possible fraud. That's unfair to the other Medicaid clients, the medically indigent who don't qualify and to the taxpayers who foot the bill."

Contract Is Awarded For Roadside Mowing

The state Transportation Cabinet has awarded a contract for a mowing project on 82.7 miles of roadway in Perry, Knott, Floyd and Pike counties.

Poynter Mowing Services of Corbin received a $11,507 contract for right of way mowing on the following roads:

Miss Simpson, Mr. Compton Wed

Miss Beth Simpson, daughter of Mrs. Minnie Simpson, and Mr. Leonard Compton, son of Charles and Janet Compton, exchanged wedding vows April 19 in a double-ring ceremony solemnized by the Rev. Ron Kinzel at the First Baptist Church at McDowell.
 Selections of wedding music were presented by pianist Libby Hall, of Drift, and vocalists, Mrs. Trish Cieslak, Glenda Lawson, both of McDowell, and Mr. Robert Hardee, of Prestonsburg.
 An arch, entwined with white carnations and red rose, and decorated by the mother of the bride, provided the setting for the ceremony.
 The bride wore a floor-length gown accented by miniature hearts, which was a gift from the groom. She carried a bouquet of red and white roses.
 Mrs. Marcia Baxter, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Mr. Chuck Baxter, brother-in-law of the bride, served as best man.
 Karen Ward, of Prestonsburg, assisted the bride in planning the wedding, and Miss Dodie Webb, of Prestonsburg, was photographer.
 Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the Fellowship Hall of the church.
 The couple received a wedding trip from the bride's mother, and Mr. and Mrs. Chuck Baxter to Hidden Trails in West Virginia.
 Prior to her wedding, the bride was honored by her aunt, Mrs. Ann Rae Ward, and her cousin, Mrs. Debbie Hardee, with a surprise bachelorette party. She also was winner of a $500 wedding plan from Occasions Unlimited.

Physical Therapy Week Designated June 1-7

This marks the fifth year for celebration of National Physical Therapy Week. Over 150,000 people per day receive help in overcoming pain and physical disability from one of the nation's 40,000 practitioners of physical therapy. According to Gary Knight, director of physical therapy at Highlands Regional Medical Center, his department performs over 25,000 treatments per year.

Modern physical therapy was established during World War I with the inauguration of the Division of Special Hospitals and Physical Reconstruction by the Surgeon General's Office. The component parts of physical therapy had developed through the ages, but it wasn't until then that the skills were united to meet the demands of rehabilitating the wounded.

The field was initially dominated by women. In fact, The American Physical Therapy Association began as an organization of women who had worked in army hospitals or veterans hospitals. By the 1930's, men were admitted into the profession. The number of physical therapists grew significantly during the 1940's and 1950's to meet the needs for therapy generated by World War II and the polio epidemic.

Today's physical therapist offers two basic kinds of care: (1) treatment, in which something is done to the patient to relieve pain, to increase joint mobility, to heal open wounds and burns, or to stimulate muscles to contract and (2) training, in which the patient learns to improve strength, endurance, skill, balance and the performance of activities required in daily living. Physical therapy can help a patient rebuild self-confidence and the desire to return to a normal, active life.

Academic All-American

The National Secondary Education Council has announced that Travis Crum has been named an Academic All-American.

The NSEC has established the Academic All-American Scholar Award Program in order to offer deserved recognition to superior students who excel in the Academic disciplines. The Academic All-American Scholars must earn a 3.3 or better grade point average. Only scholars selected by a secondary school instructor, counselor, or other qualified sponsor are accepted. These scholars are also eligible for other awards given by the NSEC.

Crum, who attends Allen Central High School was nominated for this national award by Rita Osborne, computer instructor. His name will appear in the Academic All-American Scholar Directory, which is published nationally.

Crum is the son of Dannie and Fran- ceen Crum. His grandparents are Hage and Katherine Crum, of Martin, and Lace Hicks, of Eastern, and the late Otha Hicks.

World Travelers Need Immunization

Kentuckians who travel international- ly should check with a physician about precautionary immunizations before leaving the United States, according to Kentucky's chief epidemiologist.

"Travelers in developed nations are probably at no more risk than in the United States, but certain immuniza- tions are recommended as a precau- tion," said Ward Hinds, M.D., of the state Department for Health Services.

Immunizations sometimes suggested for international travelers, particular- ly those visiting areas where sanitation is poor, include those for yellow fever, typhoid, polio and hepatitis A, said Hinds.

"Yellow fever vaccinations, for exam- ple, are recommended for travel to countries which require a certificate of immunization against yellow fever before entry is permitted," he said. "This vaccine is also suggested for trips to areas where yellow fever exists, such as parts of Africa and South America."

Measles immunizations are general- ly recommended for travelers born after 1956 who have no evidence of immuni- ty. Hinds recommends rubella im- munization particularly for women of childbearing age. Adults should have tetanus-diphtheria booster shots every 10 years.

In Africa, Asia, Central and South America, the Middle East and the Far East, living conditions and sanitation vary greatly, so the risk of acquiring a disease varies. Travelers visiting primarily tourist areas on itineraries that do not include travel or visits in rural areas have less risk of exposure to food or water of questionable quality, Hinds said.

Depending on the countries visited, type of travel, personal lifestyle and length of stay, other immunizations are recommended, including rabies, plague, Japanese encephalitis, hepatitis B and meningococcal polysaccharide vaccines.

"One of the most common health threats is malaria, which can be avoided by taking appropriate anti-malarial drugs," Hinds said. "The risk of acquir- ing malaria depends on local condi- tions." Malaria is known to exist in parts of Mexico, Haiti, Central and South America, Africa, the Middle East, Asia and the South Pacific.

Kentuckians planning international travel should consult their family physi- cian well in advance, Hinds said. Infor- mation also is available from the state Division of Epidemiology by calling either (502) 564-3418 or 564-4478 or by writing to the division at the Kentucky Department for Health Services, 275 East Main St., Frankfort, Ky. 40621.

Kentucky Fishing Report

(June 2)—Fishing activity fell to the moderate level across Kentucky, with summertime angling conditions beginning to prevail as temperatures rose into the high 70s and low 80s. The lake-by-lake rundown, as reported by creel clerks and conservation officers at each lake:

WEST: Watch for white bass in the jumps and black bass along shoreline cover. Flippin' in the buck brush at Barkley has produced some good catches of largemouths. Catfish are spawning off rocky banks and rip-rap.

KENTUCKY: Clear to murky, rising slowly, almost at summer pool and 79 degrees.

BARKLEY: Clear, stable, at summer pool, 74 degrees.

WEST CENTRAL: Largemouth bass and bluegill were the top two fish, with a few crappie reported from Rough River Lake. Plastic worms and crankbaits were producing bass, while bluegill were being taken on worms fished off the steeper banks and points.

BARREN: Clear to murky, rising, two feet below summer pool, 83 degrees.

NOLIN: Clear, stable at one foot above summer pool and 78 degrees.

ROUGH RIVER: Clear to murky, rising, 2-1/2 feet below summer pool, 79 degrees.

CENTRAL: Bass were being taken on plastic worms or deep running crankbaits, except at Lake Cumberland, where surface lures fished around the willow bushes were the best bet. White bass were reported in the jumps at Herrington, where catfish and freshwater drum were also being taken on cut bait. DES Mock Disaster To Be Held Monday

Floyd county emergency agencies are bracing for a disaster next Monday. But don't be alarmed—it's only a test.

According to Bill Callihan, III, Area 9 Coordinator for the Kentucky Disaster and Emergency Service, the "disaster" has been in the planning stages since January. Floyd is the only county in Callihan's 10-county area to have a live test. The others will have "table top" tests, checking out responses to emergency situations in theory. Next year, a different county will have a live test, with Floyd being among the group tested theoretically.

Monday's exercise, the nature of which is top-secret, will involve area hospitals, fire and police departments, along with any civilians wishing to take part. Callihan said the DES will be glad to use anyone interested in being a "victim."

Mock disasters are held each year as mandated by federal law. County hospitals must test their emergency operations plans yearly in order to keep their license of accreditation from the Joint Commission of Hospitals.

During the test, a number of emergency vehicles should be in evidence around the county. Callihan said that police and fire departments have been alerted, and plans call for token groups involved, with the remainder of the forces on call in case of an actual emergency.

Floyd county has not experienced a live DES test in more than a decade.

In other action, the Floyd county-Prestonsburg DES will be holding a countywide roadblock June 14, in an effort to raise funds to buy a radio for the fire department here, and to unify fire department and rescue squad communications throughout the county. Paul Chaffins, city building code inspector and DES officer, said the ability to communicate with units over the county can be of vital importance during a time of emergency.

Caught a Whopper

Luke Halbert, of McDowell, caught this 20-pound catfish at Thelma Lake, Monday, May 26.

Babe Ruth Baseball News

In game one of a doubleheader, it was Cardinals, 4, Angels, 2. Winning pitcher was Rody Martin who pitched a three-hitter while striking out six batters and helped himself by going 2 for 2 and batting in three of the four runs. Nathan Shelton and Henry Webb had first inning doubles, and the Cardinals all played good defense.

In game two, Cardinals won 3 to Angels 0. Winning pitcher was Henry Webb who pitched a two-hit shutout while striking out six batters. Henry did not walk a batter. Shawn Hicks sparkled on defense at shortstop, and once again the whole team played outstanding defense. Rody Martin had a first inning double.

Correction—Tony Kidd did not homer for the Cardinals but for Garrett. The only two runs the Cardinals had were batted by Dustin Conn who doubled with two men on.

Game one—Garrett, 5, A's, 3. Mike McQuate was the winning pitcher, and Tony Kidd came on in the fourth inning for the save.

Game two—Garrett, 12, A's, 3. Tony Kidd was the winning pitcher striking out eight batters. Garrett is coming on strong winning their last four games, manager Shawn Thacker said.

It's National Fishing Week

Governor Martha Layne Collins has proclaimed June 2-8, 1986, as National Fishing Week in Kentucky, encouraging all citizens to "sample some of Kentucky's incomparable angling."

In the formal proclamation, Governor Collins, who is an avid outdoor enthusiast, said that "over one million Kentuckians annually enjoy the sport of fishing," and that Kentucky's lakes and streams represent a major attraction, promoting travel and tourism in the Commonwealth.

She praised fishermen, saying that they "are among our leading conservationists, lending their personal and financial support in an effort to ensure a better environment," further adding that "fishing is a wholesome, healthy and relaxing pursuit, one that can be enjoyed by young and old alike."

National Fishing Week was established in 1979 by the American Fishing Tackle Manufacturers Association as a time to celebrate the fun and enjoyment of angling, although this is the first year that National Fishing Week has been recognized by Congress and the President of the United States.

Nationwide an estimated 54 million persons participate in the sport of fishing.

Each year the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources helps thousands of anglers find out more about fishing in Kentucky through brochures. Requests for up-to-date information are received via the mail and telephone inquiries. The list of brochures that are mailed free to the public include: Fishing in Kentucky, Access to Streams, 1986 Fishing Digest, 1986 Kentucky Fish Limits poster and the spring fishing edition of Kentucky Outdoors, an 8-page tabloid which details the most recent record fish caught in the state, on-going management programs and related topics of interest to fishermen.

For more information write: Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, Division of Public Relations, No. 1 Game Farm Road, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601, or telephone (502) 564-4336.

D.A.V. Auxiliary Meets at Betsy Layne

The Disabled American Veterans' Auxiliary, Unit 169, Betsy Layne, held its meeting May 12 and elected officers for 1986-87. Officers are as follows:

Christine Akers, commander; Sharlene Osborne, senior vice commander; Ruby Haines, junior vice commander; Billie Joyce Coggins, treasurer; Sylvia Allen, adjutant; Ruby Staton, chaplain; Irene Stone, sergeant-at-arms; Effie Clark, publicity chairman.

Meetings are held twice monthly on second and fourth Saturdays. It is a very worthwhile organization and much is being accomplished toward helping our veterans. We would like those who are interested and are eligible to join the auxiliary to contact any of our officers for further information. Members who are not active are urged to join with us.

Two from County Among Western U. Graduates

Two Prestonsburg residents were among the Western Kentucky University graduates who received their diplomas at ceremonies held at 10 a.m., Saturday, May 10, in E. A. Diddle Arena in Bowling Green. They are Ann M. Everly and Belinda C. Wells.

WITH THE HELP of an $8000 state grant, this playground was built last summer near the Highland Heights housing project in the Goble-Roberts Addition. Now, with warm weather again drawing children outdoors, it is overgrown and littered, its equipment in need of repair. City Manager David Evans said Tuesday that a work crew will be dispatched promptly to put the playground in order.

Task Force On Runaway Children Meets June 12

The Kentucky Alliance on Exploited and Missing Children announces the formation of its Task Force on Runaway and Homeless Youth.

The Alliance has been a visible and influential force in Kentucky since its beginning in 1983. The organization has had tremendous impact in a wide number of areas involving missing and exploited children issues. These include legislative efforts and promotion of public education and concern.

At its annual meeting on December 17, 1985, the Alliance membership decided to direct its focus on the problems of runaway and homeless youth in Kentucky. Runaway youth have in many ways become the "step-child" of the "missing child" problem. This is despite the fact that runaway and homeless children account for approximately 90-95 percent of all missing children reports. Federal estimates suggest that from 1.2 million to 1.5 million children are runaways each year. In point of fact, however, these are only estimates. Poor reporting techniques have resulted in little actual knowledge about the numbers of runaway and homeless youth. Even less is known about the root causes of homelessness among youth or the possible solutions.

The alliance membership believes that the problem of runaway and homeless youth needs considerable attention and comprehensive study. To that end, they have developed a statewide task force to study the problem, and to plan and develop possible solutions. The members of the task force include a wide variety of backgrounds, professional disciplines and geographic areas.

The first meeting for the task force has been scheduled for June 12 at the Capitol Plaza in Frankfort. The meeting will open at noon, with lunch being served. The meetings will begin at 1:00 p.m.

LOUISA

UNUSUAL FOR LAWRENCE

Old animosities, fanned into flame, resulted last Thursday in the shooting of Dora Blanton by Charles Burgess at Burgess' home about two miles below Richardson. Blanton was shot through the left chest by a bullet from a .38 caliber revolver. He will recover, his physician says.

Authentic information of the shooting is lacking. However, it is known that the affray is the outgrowth of an affair a few weeks ago when Blanton shot Burgess with a shotgun, injuring him slightly. Last Thursday Blanton was passing the Burgess home in a wagon and met Burgess while he was feeding his hogs in a hog lot near the road. The shooting followed.

Burgess claimed that as they met, Blanton made a motion as if to draw a gun and that he fired in self defense. Blanton claims that he did not make the motion and did not even have a gun.

Burgess fired only one shot. It pierced Blanton's left chest about three inches above his heart, puncturing his lung, and came out at his back. He is at his home and is getting along nicely under the care of Dr. T. D. Burgess.

Burgess came to town last week and gave up to Police Judge W. B. Clayton. He waived examining trial and was released on a $2,000 bond.

Burgess is about 30 years of age and Blanton about 43.

WELKIN MUSTA RANG!

Charley—John C. Miller, who won the prize at the fair for being the best fox hound caller, reports that on his way home he met his dog coming, running at full speed as if he had heard his master calling him. Mr. Miller further states that he has four eye witnesses to prove his statement, one being a preacher.

LOSE TO ALUMNI

Louisa High School lost its first football game of the season last Friday to the alumni team, 8 to 0.

A touchdown by Radcliffe in the second quarter, and a safety by Marcum in the last few moments of the game gave the alumni their eight points. Radcliffe ran 45 yards for the touchdown after intercepting a pass thrown by Capt. See. At no time was the high school closer than 15 yards of the alumni goal posts.

Forward passes gained many yards for the alumni, but the high school lost yardage when they resorted to aerial attacks. The alumni completed six out of ten passes, the high school four out of nine.

AGED WOMAN AUTO VICTIM

Miss Nan Miles, aged about 75, died in the Riverview hospital here Saturday night from injuries received earlier in the day when an automobile driven by Miss Eva Thompson, of near Busseyville, struck her as she was returning to the poor farm where she stayed as a county charge.

She had been in Louisa during the day and had started early in the afternoon to walk to the poor farm. Shortly meeting the Thompson car she crossed the road and into the path of the car, it is said. Miss Thompson then swerved her car to the left to miss her, and at the same time Miss Miles attempted to get out of the way and stepped again into the path of the auto and was run over. Miss Miles was brought to the hospital here where she died at 7:30 p. m., from internal injuries. The accident was purely unavoidable, it is said.

Ben Miles, of Louisa, is a brother of the deceased. Other brothers live in Ashland. Miss Miles was formerly known here where she had worked in many families.

LOUISA AVIATOR WINS IN DERBY

John P. Woods, of Louisa, came in fourth in the class A National Air Derby, flying from Long Island, New York, to Spokane, Wash., according to associated press news dispatches. Fifteen planes started in the race.

Prizes announced for the class A race are: First, $5,000; second, $3,000; third, $1,000; fourth, $500, and fifth, $250.

One plane in class A crashed, with fatal results. Three others were forced out. Three were delayed, but reported still ready to go on.

DEAN, MAKER OF VIOLINS

A violin made by Benton Dean, C. & O. carpenter on the Big Sandy, who lives on Tabor's Creek a few miles below Fort Gay, received a lot of admiration here Sunday when Mr. Dean showed it to a number of people at the depot. It was made of spruce, dogwood and maple and was of excellent workmanship. It could not be distinguished from a bought violin. Mr. Dean said he had been four months making it, working spare time. He valued it at $100.

Mr. Dean makes violins and sells them. He has made six in the last two years and has sold three of them for handsome prices. He has also made a mandolin.—News.

PIKEVILLE

PIONEER MINISTER DEAD

Rev. W. R. Collins passed away Monday morning, September 12, at his old home on Frozen Creek. He was 86 years and 8 days old. Mr. Collins was well-known through the county and was loved by all who knew him. He was born in Tazewell county, September 4, 1841, and came to Pike county when he was twelve years old. He made his home with his brother, Andy, on Johns Creek, until his marriage. He married Louisa Charles, February 25, 1866. She was born on December 8, 1839, and died February 19, 1911. They were survived by nine children, seven living and two dead; Mary E., who died March 26, 1927; John R. Collins, who died April 25, 1891; Jeff Collins, of Chloe Creek; Mont Collins, of Pikeville; Mrs. Catherine Maynard, of Ohio; Green, Jack, Tom and Ep, of Raccoon. Mr. Collins has 61 grandchildren and 100 great-grandchildren.

He began preaching at the age of 43. The first introductory sermon delivered by Elder W. R. Collins was on August 31, 1864, from Eph. 2nd chapter and 8th verse. "By grace ye are saved." The burial took place Wednesday, September 14, in the Collins cemetery. There was a large crowd who attended. The preachers were W. H. Thacker and H. W. Blair.

OCTOGENARIAN SHOT

Lendo Reynolds, 80, who was shot in a dry raid near his home on Grapevine Creek, was brought to the Methodist hospital here.

Dr. M. D. Flanery, who is treating him, said he was shot through the left shoulder and that another shot entered near the center of the chest and passed out at the right side and through the right arm.

Reynolds did not present his shotgun at the officers, according to the wounded man's story, but stepped back and started to set the gun down when he was shot. The gun, he claims, was not loaded.

He had four squirrels that he had just killed. The whisky found by the officers and which led to the shooting was in a garden belonging to Reynolds' son-in-law, according to Reynolds.

MINER DIES FROM INJURIES

Injuries received by Michael Thurmond when slate fell on him while working at the Pond Creek By-Product Collieries proved fatal Monday afternoon while the injured man was on his way to the hospital at Huntington.

Thurmond was injured while working Monday morning when slate fell on him fracturing his skull, as well as cutting him about the face and bruising him about the body. Before leaving for the hospital Dr. Conley, of Williamson, attended the injured man and held little hope for his recovery.

The body was returned to Williamson Tuesday morning and was buried in the West Williamson cemetery that afternoon.

MOVE TO ASHLAND

Captain Lindsey P. Johns and his attractive wife, left last week for Ashland where they will make their future home. Captain Johns has a distinguished war record, having met his wife, who is a Russian, while in Siberia. She was also engaged in war work, being connected with the Red Cross Society. This patriotic couple have many friends in Pikeville who deplore their going away. For several years Mr. Johns has been connected with the Pikeville Ice Company.

Captain Johns and Captain Roberts, who is also well known here, have gone into business together. Their firm will be that of Accountancy, with headquarters at Ashland.

Professor Lewis, together with sixteen members of the Pikeville Band, went to Louisa for three days last week and furnished the music for the Lawrence County Fair. This is an honor for Pikeville boys and girls to be called to go to other towns on the Big Sandy.—News.

OPTIMISM

By C. M. CHILDERS

It's a pretty good world after all, And we ought to be glad we are here; We may trip, we may stumble and fall, But there's always a message of cheer; There's always a light in the gloom, If we look for the light, as we should, And the flowers are always in bloom, You could see them right now, if you would.

There's always a comforting thought, Though the day or the night may be great, If you look for the best, as you ought, You'll find something good, never fear, Make the most of the good in your way, And your troubles will soon appear small, Then you'll feel, and you'll think, and you'll say, "It's a pretty good world after all!"

DRILL GAS WELL ON ROCK FORK

Hueysville, Ky., Oct. 2 (Spl.)—Wm. Sexton, superintendent of the Hueysville field of New Domain Oil and Gas Company, reports a gas well drilled in by Ed Patton and Ira Smith, drillers for the contractors who drilled the well for his company, averaging about 382,000 cubic feet of gas per day. This is well No. 3, Esther Horton farm, Rock Fork. Drilling was finished Tuesday night, Sept. 27.

Mr. Sexton thinks another well will be drilled near the present one soon, as two well sites were surveyed before the present gasser was begun. The gas from this well will be sold to the Louisville Gas and Electric Company, whose large conveyance line runs to Rock Fork within a half mile of the present well. Connections for joining to the large line have already been made.

DROUTH HINDERS WORK

The Distell-Martin Oil and Gas Company, now drilling a well on the property of "Aunt" Polly Allen near here, had to do some extra work when Salt Lick, the creek which had heretofore been furnishing water for their boiler, became stubborn and went dry. A pump had to be set up on the property of J. W. Huff, enabling them to get water from main Beaver Creek. Oak Osborn is "running" the pump.

WORK ON PIPE LINE

Probably more workmen than this section of the county has ever before witnessed, are now to be seen going to or from the large pipe line being laid up Salt Lick. Daily some new workmen are to be seen getting off the train, inquiring about the camp. It is reported that several cooks are kept busy preparing food for the workers, and from this one may gain some idea of the size of this job's following.

CHILD DIES

Lester Sexton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Sexton, of Salt Lick, and his wife, Mrs. Pearl Sexton, mourn the loss of their year-old baby. The child died early Saturday morning, and burial was made in Hayes cemetery near Garrett. The cause of the child's death is not known, it appears. Mr. Sexton and family are citizens of Lackey.

ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Christian Church of this county was held here Friday, Saturday and Sunday. The attendance was very large; in fact, many people say it was the largest attendance given this church in several years. Mrs. Virgie Allen and Mrs. Marie Smith, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Webb, of Knott county, both joined the church and were baptized Sunday. Several ministers were present, and nearly all of them delivered sermons. The crowd broke up Sunday evening, most of the visitors leaving on the evening train.

PERSONALS

Mr. and Mrs. Dameron, teachers here, visited Pikeville Saturday and Sunday, returning here Sunday.

Mrs. Dolly Huff, wife of J. W. Huff, is recovering very slowly from her recent illness.

Mrs. Cora Duncan, who recently underwent an operation at General Hospital, Ashland, has returned here and is doing much better.

Troy Reed and Everett Patton visited Lackey Theater Sunday.

T. J. Herald, of Alvin, was in Prestonsburg Saturday.

Auto Parts Plants To Locate in State

Gov. Martha Layne Collins this week announced that two more automotive parts plants will be locating in Kentucky and indicated a third such plant that will soon begin production.

"We're making Kentucky into America's new automotive center," Gov. Collins said in Bardstown while announcing that Woodbridge Inoac and Inoue M.T.P. would build plants there. "These two facilities are further evidence that we have Kentucky on the move, and I want to continue working closely with local officials everywhere to bring jobs to communities around the state."

In Harrodsburg, the Governor joined Hitachi officials in dedicating a plant that will manufacture electronic automotive components. "We're seeing the dividends of our improvements in education," she said. "I'm especially happy today for the 200 men and women who will work here and those who will work in the second plant."

Last fall with its first plant already under construction, Hitachi announced that it would build a second facility in Harrodsburg. The second operation, which will manufacture alternators and starter motors, will employ another 250 people and will double Hitachi's original $3.5 million investment in the community.

Woodbridge Inoac, Inc., will begin manufacturing automotive instrument panels in the first half of 1988. The plant will be a joint venture between the Woodbridge Group of Rexdale, Ontario, and Inoue M.T.P. Co., Inc. of Nagoya, Japan.

Robert Calder, president of Woodbridge Inoac and Soichi Inoue, president of Inoue M.T.P., joined the Governor in making the announcement at My Old Kentucky Home State Park.

In addition to the joint venture, Inoue M.T.P. Co. will build an adjacent, wholly-owned plant called Inoac U.S.A., Inc. It is expected to begin production during the first half of 1988 and will manufacture seat automotive exterior parts.

The Woodbridge Inoac plant will initially employ 43 people, with plans to increase to 119 employees within two years. The investment will be $7.5 million.

Inoac U.S.A. will have an initial employment of 27, with plans to increase to 91 employees within two years. It also represents an investment of $7.5 million.

Woodbridge Inoac will supply parts to Ford Motor Co. of Louisville, Diamond Star Motors of Illinois, and the Toyota plant now under construction in Georgetown. Inoac U.S.A. will supply Diamond Star and Toyota.

IN APPRECIATION

The Baptist Day Care Center of Prestonsburg wants to thank all the generous citizens who sponsored a child in our "Bring a Bike Day," and state policemen Roy Sturgill, Sr., and Jerry Critchelow for taking the children through the safety course. With their help $825, was raised for St. Jude Children's Hospital. This program helps two of our most pressing problems in America—bicycle accidents, and childhood cancer.

It wasn't until the first century A.D. that cats were mentioned by European writers. There is no record of them in India until after the second century B.C.

WHY ARRANGE A FUNERAL IN ADVANCE?

Pre-arrangement is done for peace of mind, economy, and the grief-relief that pre-arrangement provides.

Peace of mind.
Knowing that the task is done is a blessing to many. Your family won't have to do it for you. You'll be secure in the knowledge that both you and your family are assured that all is under control.

Economy.
No extra, unwanted frills, if you so designate. Or, if you prefer, an elaborate, full-service funeral, with all the special touches you'd like at today's agreed-in-advance price. The amount, held in a trust for your funeral expenses, can even earn interest until needed, if you so arrange it.

Grief-relief.
Making funeral arrangements under the stress of bereavement, in the midst of emotional chaos, can be devastating to a widow. By pre-arranging a funeral, you can relieve her of some of the grief, letting her concentrate on family matters of equal importance. For full details on pre-arranged funerals, stop by or call us anytime. No obligation, of course.

VIDEO SCENE

'Scarecrow' best depiction yet of plight of U.S. farmer

By Barton Weiss

John Cougar Mellencamp's "Scarecrow" is a powerful protest song/video about the plight of U.S. farmers.

John Cougar Mellencamp

The clip starts with a brief scene in which a few farmers tell their stories — and remind viewers that farmers are real folks with real problems. The problem, of course, is that they might lose their farms.

Mellencamp fights the good fight with his guitar, and the combination of the real-life farmers and Mellencamp's down-home videogenic appeal give the clip its impact.

WAY OUT WEST — The Unforgiven's "I Hear a Call" also has its pastoral moments, but it has nothing to do with politics. Instead, it comments on romantic notions concerning the Old West. The band lives out a common fantasy and walks down the streets of a ghost town looking like bad, real bad, cowboys in a spaghetti western.

A concert from the band somehow awakens the residents of the ghost town and encourages them to defy the oppressive forces that have made them hide. But the real highlight is the western garb the boys wear.

WHOSE OLD WEST? — Erasure's "Who Needs Love Like That?" also has a western motif. It's basically an Englishman's idea of what a pianist in a bar in the Old West might have been like. The dancing leaves a great deal to be desired, however, and the people in the video simply look foolish.

Erasure, by the way, is Vince Clarke's latest band. Clarke was the brains and keyboards behind Yaz, one of the popular early new wave bands. He has had several hits, but has never, for some reason, managed to make a first-rate video.

NOT VERY 'NASTY' — Dancers abound in Jackson family videos. Since the Jacksons first started making music videos, in fact, they alone may well have hired more dancers than some record companies.

The latest family toe-tapper comes from Janet Jackson and is called "Nasty." The title implies a sexier image than Michael or any of the other Jacksons have projected, but the clip is not nearly as nasty as Vanity 6's "Nasty Girls."

The dancing in this clip is showy, but it doesn't approach the quality of the dancing in any of her brother Michael's clips. "Nasty" also has some "movie within a video" elements reminiscent of Michael's ground-breaking "Thriller."

TOP GUN (PG-Paramount) Starring Tom Cruise, Kelly McGillis, Val Kilmer. ★ ★

By J.T. YURKO

Tom Cruise and Kelly McGillis may play the leads in "Top Gun," but the real star of the film is the Navy F-14 Tomcat fighter plane. At a cost of $36 million, the F-14 can climb 30,000 feet in one minute, fly at twice the speed of sound and haul 7 tons of weaponry.

This is the Navy's great equalizer — a modern steel and microchip version of what the Colt 45 was to Wyatt Earp in Dodge City.

Most of the action takes place in a school in Southern California, where the U.S. Navy sends its most promising pilots to learn the fine art of aerial combat, or "dog-fights." The school teaches the tactics and psychology of battle, so it might almost be called a seminar on the hardware and software of war.

Tom Cruise is the rebel pilot, appropriately nicknamed "Maverick." There are some vague references to a scandal attached to his father, who disappeared over Vietnam, but they make little sense, even when an explanation is finally delivered. The girl is a civilian flight instructor who wears seamed stockings and enough lipstick to tax the supply of Max Factor. Their relationship makes little sense either, but it does allow for the obligatory love sequence.

The Russians conveniently provide the provocation, which results in some spectacularly staged flying sequences and aerial duels. Tom Cruise gets his chance to redeem himself and his family's honor, but although the battle is spectacular, the scene is contrived, cliched and riddled with caricature.

The Navy obviously gave full cooperation to the film makers. In fact, the film is essentially a feature film commercial for the F-14 in particular and the Navy in general. Perhaps the Navy should have gone one step further and spent some of our tax money on a new script.

HRMC Breast Center Fund Raising Update
 Money donated to the Breast Center at Highlands Regional Medical Center has now gone over the $25,000 mark, according to Carol Blevins, Public Information Officer at HRMC.
 "We're over one-fourth of the way to our goal," said Blevins. "We still have $67,000 to raise, but we're confident it can be done."
 The majority of the money raised for the Breast Center has come from Highlands Regional Medical Center employees. The initial $10,000 came from employee donations made in 1984 and 1985. This year 73 employees donated $9,600 to the Breast Center and the employee fund raising drive is still going on.
 Local merchants as well as women's organizations joined the Breast Center Fund Drive. Eighty-six local merchants participated in a Merchants Day on April 26 and May 10. The Johnson County Homemakers, the Xi Alpha Psi Sorority of Paintsville, and the North Prestonsburg Homemakers have also given to the Breast Center. The Riverday Homemakers Club of Johnson county is working toward a $500 goal with raffles, a garage sale, and a bake sale.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Kentucky Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet, Division of Water, hereby gives notice that the Weeksbury Water Supply exceeded the maximum contaminant level for coliform bacteria for the reporting period of February 1986.

The test results for coliform bacteria (normally found in the intestinal tract of humans and other warm-blooded animals) indicate that some contamination occurred. Coliform bacteria is not considered harmful, however, its presence is a reliable indicator that harmful bacteria may have been present in the water at that time.

The Weeksbury Water Supply was formally notified of this violation and the regulatory requirement to inform their consumers of this violation. As of May 12, 1986, the Division of Water has not received verification of the Public Notification. Therefore, the Division of Water is acting on behalf of the water supply in issuing this statement in accordance with the Kentucky Public and Semipublic Water Supplies Regulations (401 KAR 6:015).

Other violations accumulated since July 1985 are:

February 1986—Failed to submit an adequate number of check water samples for bacteriological analysis.

Questions of comments concerning this Public Notice may be directed to Drinking Water Branch, Division of Water, 18 Reilly Road, Frankfort, Kentucky 41601.

Parks System Shake-Up Seen

Significant changes in the organization of the state Parks Department are among the recommendations by a review panel appointed by Gov. Martha Layne Collins in March following the indictment of several department employees on felony theft charges.

The panel, consisting of Tourism Secretary G. Wendell Combs, Finance Secretary Gordon C. Duke, Thomas C. Greenwell, state personnel commissioner and William H. Hintze of the Governor's Office for Policy and Management, was asked by the governor to review the department's management practices and procedures.

Combs said the report generally calls for additional checks and balances in the department's operations. "The review panel did not investigate the alleged wrongdoings of any persons named in the indictment. That is a matter for the judicial system. We were asked to seek ways to improve the management of the Department of Parks, and that is what the panel did," he said.

Gov. Collins said she had reviewed the recommendations and discussed them with Parks Commissioner June Hudson. "The commissioner and I concur with the panel's recommendations. I have signed an executive order containing the proposals and Commissioner Hudson will begin implementing the changes immediately," Collins said.

In what was called "possibly the most important" of the nine recommendations of the report presented to the governor, the panel said that the agency should be realigned to accentuate the parks system and to elevate the role and input of the park superintendents.

"Without the parks, there is no reason for the Parks Department. I feel this fact needs to be re-established. We found the person supposedly running each park (the park superintendent) does not have enough authority or control over the day-to-day operations of the park for which he is responsible," Combs said.

The other recommendations of the parks review panel include: The park superintendent should have primary responsibility and authority for all programs and administrative actions associated with each park.

The report said that the superintendents often "have a minimal role in...many operations in the parks..." and that "approval from the superintendent's office should be required for all purchasing requests, maintenance and construction projects, and financial and accounting concerns."

The organization, staffing pattern, purchasing, and planning of maintenance and construction projects should be substantially changed.

According to the report, the division within the Parks Department responsible for park construction and maintenance projects does not have a defined manager or director. The "autonomy enjoyed by the division and its regional offices has greatly contributed to the deficiencies...of maintenance and construction activities."

The panel recommended that a person be appointed to direct the construction and maintenance responsibilities of the department. Also, the functions of the existing regional offices should be divided between parks officials in the central office and project officers who could more closely monitor construction and maintenance projects.

Competitive bids and service maintenance contracts should be used wherever possible to reduce the amount of construction and maintenance work by force account.

The committee found that the use of the competitive bid process, as well as maintenance contracts "should be significantly expanded," and recommended "all projects and major product revisions" be reviewed in advance by main parks officials in Frankfort, "including the commissioner."

Equipment and vehicle acquisition, inventory, and use should be more tightly controlled.

The panel said that while inventories do exist, "there are only limited procedures" to guarantee accuracy.

The number of individuals empowered to make purchases should be curtailed.

Although the panel found "significant improvement" in the agency's procurement procedures during the Collins' administration, it recommended stricter control of purchasing authority by parks employees and officials.

An internal audit staff function should be created which would report directly to the Commissioner of Parks.

The report said there are periodic audits performed within the Parks Department, but "there should be internal audits of all activities of the department on a regular basis."

Emergency purchases and emergency construction and maintenance projects should be thoroughly documented and evaluated according to written, established criteria. Emergency construction and maintenance projects should be closely monitored while in progress and should be reviewed by an internal audit staff upon completion.

Each of these recommendations should be implemented as soon as possible and a status report of their implementation shall be provided to the governor on a periodic basis.

Named Regional Judge

Circuit Judge Stephen N. Frazier, of the Johnson Circuit Court, has been named chief regional judge for the 7th Region, according to an announcement last week by Chief Justice Robert Stephens, of the Kentucky Supreme Court.

Judge Frazier, whose jurisdiction also includes Lawrence and Martin counties, will serve a two-year term in the post and becomes the first circuit judge from the 24th Judicial Circuit to hold the supervisory position for the 22-county region.

Frazier, a circuit judge in Paintsville for just over two years, termed the appointment "quite an honor" and explained that duties of the post are varied. The position entails supervisory work for all judicial circuits in Kentucky's Mountain District, including the assignment of special judges, monitoring case loads, equalization of case loads and trying cases "from time to time" in other jurisdictions.

Frazier succeeds Letcher Circuit Judge Byrd Hogg in the position. His term begins effective June 1, 1986.

Summer Jobs Program

The Big Sandy Community Action Program will be operating a summer youth employment program in the counties of Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Pike, Bill W. May, CAP executive-director, has announced.

The program will serve economically disadvantaged youths, ages 16 through 21, who are high school graduates, college students, vocational school students and high school dropouts who are planning to return to school in the fall.

The program, which is funded by the Eastern KY Concentrated Employment Program, will run for five weeks, beginning June 23 and will pay $3.35 per hour for 40 hours per week.

To be considered for this program, an applicant must meet all eligibility criteria and be certified as eligible by the KY Dept. for Employment Services. Documentation of proof of age, family size, and family income will be required prior to certification. In addition all applicants must have a valid social security card and all male applicants 18 and older must provide proof of military registration.

Applications are now being taken Monday through Friday, from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., at the local Community Action Program office and at the Dept. for Employment Services Office on North Lake Drive.

WIC Program Hearing Set

The Kentucky Cabinet for Human Resources has scheduled a public hearing on a federal nutrition program for low-income mothers and young children.

Kentuckians can express their opinions about the operation and services of the Special Supplemental Food Program for Women, Infants and Children, better known as WIC, at a public meeting at 1 p.m., June 11, in the first floor auditorium, Department for Health Services Building, 275 E. Main St., Frankfort.

Persons who plan to attend the hearing with comments or questions about the WIC program should preregister before June 10 by writing to Peggy S. Kidd, Department for Health Services, Division of Maternal and Child Health, 275 E. Main St., Frankfort, Ky. 40621.

Those unable to attend the hearing may submit written comments by June 10 to the same address or to local agencies that operate the program. Addresses are available from local health departments.

WIC provides nutrition education and specific foods high in protein, iron and vitamins A and C to low-income pregnant women, new mothers, and children up to five years of age. To be eligible for the program, women and children must have health problems that can be improved through better nutrition.

Approximately 65,000 Kentuckians receive services each month through the WIC program, which is funded by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

HRMC Sponsors Blood Drive

Share your good health and donate blood. Central Kentucky Blood Center and the Blood Donor Committee have scheduled the second blood drive of 1986 in the Floyd Room of the hospital on Wednesday, June 4 from 12 noon to 7 p.m. At least 70 donors are needed to help maintain an adequate blood supply for patients in Highlands Regional Medical Center. There seems to be a trend among Americans to take care of ourselves. Stress reduction, exercise and having some quiet time every day are some of the habits we are developing. Donating blood is another healthy habit that Americans are developing. Statistics show that about seven percent of the eligible population gives blood.

A blood donation is a simple, relatively painless procedure that most of us are eligible to do. The donation takes less than an hour and you will help patients in area hospitals to a faster, more comfortable recovery. Heart surgery patients, organ transplant recipients or patients being treated for cancer are potential recipients of blood and blood components.

For more information about the blood drive, call Don Hicks at 886-8511.

DIURETICS

Diuretics are commonly referred to as "water pills." They act on the kidneys, causing them to eliminate excess water and salt from the body through urine. For almost 20 years, oral diuretics have been a mainstay in the treatment of high blood pressure. They help control high blood pressure while keeping prescribed medication and the number of undesired effects to a minimum. Diuretics can help control high blood pressure but cannot cure it. They also are used to treat the retention of fluid in the body caused by illnesses such as heart, liver or kidney disease, or by taking steroids.

"The Drug Store With a Difference" COOLEY APOTHECARY offers professional, concerned and personalized service so the next time your physician prescribes some medication let us fill it. We will gladly answer any questions you may have...when to take it, with what to take it or possible side effects. Complete patient profiles are maintained here at No. 2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106. Open: Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-4.

HANDY HINT: High blood pressure generally can be treated easily with a proper diet, moderate lifestyle and drug therapy.

Flying Cockroaches Are Only Temporary Pest, Expert Says

Even the most careful housekeeper may find huge, dark brown cockroaches in the home at this time of year. Fortunately the repulsive creatures will be gone in a few weeks, with or without action on the part of the homeowner.

Wood roaches, also known as Pennsylvania cockroaches, are mating this time of year and will be attracted, at night, to lighted houses. Pennsylvania cockroaches are the only type of cockroach attracted to light. The others shun light.

"That is one of the keys to recognizing wood roaches. They are the ones buzzing around the light you flip on in the kitchen at midnight while all the others scurry off behind the refrigerator or under the stove," said Chris Christensen, Extension entomologist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Wood roaches are usually found under loose bark or inside hollow trees and in woodpiles. As mating season progresses their attraction to lights may result in their being accidentally introduced into the home.

"There's nothing to worry about. They'll be dead by the middle of July whether they find their way out of the home or not, and regardless of whether anybody sprays them with anything," Christensen said.

The important thing is to determine whether the insects are actually wood roaches or German or some other type of roach. German roaches, one of the common types of household roaches in Kentucky, are smaller and lighter colored than wood roaches. Male wood roaches are about two inches long, dark chocolate brown and have wings which they use quite effectively. The females are the same dark color, about half the size, and have no wings.

German roaches are light brown to tan, one-half to five-eighths inch long, and have two parallel black streaks on the pronotum, the back of what would pass for the creature's head.

Christensen said there's no point in taking any extraordinary measures to remove wood roaches from the home or the woodpile.

"They will not establish themselves in the home. They do not like houses and would much prefer to be outside. If a male and female encounter each other in a house they are not likely to mate, and if they do the female is not likely to lay her eggs in the house, and if she does they are not likely to hatch. There's just no point in spraying a bunch of chemicals around to correct something that simply isn't a problem," Christensen said.

There's also no point in spraying the woodpile. Christensen said any roaches that might be carried into the house on firewood would be too sluggish during the cold weather usually associated with fires in the fireplace to get out from under the bark before they are consumed in the flames.

Signs On Poles Endanger Lives

Nailing signs to utility poles may seem like a good way to promote a garage or yard sale, but the nail that holds up the sign could endanger a utility repair worker who has to climb the pole, according to South Central Bell manager Art Willett.

"A lot of people don't realize that the signs and nails can make pole climbing more difficult, resulting in more danger of falls," he said.

A nail can prevent the gaff used by the pole climber from entering the pole, or it may cause the gaff to give way, said Willett. It also may damage the point of the gaff and cause problems later.

Even the signs can pose a danger. Cardboard signs may get in the climber's way, and metal signs could pose a risk of injury in the case of a slip.

Aid to Juveniles Is State Service

On any day, more than one thousand children are in the court-ordered custody of Kentucky's Cabinet for Human Resources. Some of these youths are only temporarily in state-operated programs. Some will never return to their natural homes where, for many, their troubles began.

In Kentucky, juvenile custody means juvenile treatment. It's a system that continues to undergo review and revision. Building a better system of juvenile treatment is the responsibility of the Division of Children's Residential Services of the Kentucky Department for Social Services.

"These are children with problems of truancy and running away from home. They are also children who have committed offenses up to and including capital crimes," said Social Services Commissioner Anna Grace Day. "They are children with behavioral problems caused by abuse, neglect or mental disability. They are children in serious need of help before they become adults."

To address the varied needs for help, the department operates a system of 42 programs designed for different degrees of counseling and care, according to Bill Verbeten, director of the Children's Residential Services division.

"We try very hard to identify and then meet the specific needs of each child. The kids wouldn't be helped if all we did was conveniently fit them into the system of available treatment," Verbeten said.

The juvenile treatment programs fall into four main areas: day treatment, groups home, residential and clinical programs.

Thirteen-day treatment programs help an estimated 500 troubled youths continue their education while remaining in their home communities. Day treatment programs are either operated by the department directly or contracted through local school systems. The treatment concept includes heavy family counseling since most of the children involved return home each day.

Fifteen group homes provide a family-like treatment atmosphere for approximately 110 children who, for example, attend local public schools and participate in other community functions. Group homes are considered more "structured" than day treatment programs in that greater expectations are placed on these children as to how they should behave.

Nine residential treatment facilities provide the most sophisticated level of counseling and care for juveniles who have demonstrated that they need to be removed from the community and have yet to show an ability to stay out of trouble. There are 346 slots for children in those facilities, which are the most secure and highly structured programs in the system.

The five clinical programs are home to more than 180 emotionally disturbed and mentally ill children ordered into state custody. Two of those programs work specifically with emotionally troubled children between ages six and twelve on a five-day-a-week basis in treatment that is heavily family-oriented.

Even with the ability to help more than 1,100 children in the various programs, Verbeten said waiting lists for placement are the rule rather than the exception.

Some relief was provided by Gov. Martha Layne Collins and the 1986 General Assembly. The new departmental budget includes funds for five additional group homes, a new boys residential facility, an emergency child psychiatric evaluation unit and a program to help 36 older, responsible juveniles to become better prepared for living on their own, once state custody ends at age 18.

However, according to Day, additional treatment slots in established programs isn't the final answer to improving Kentucky's juvenile treatment system. "We have to get involved early with children in trouble," she said. "We are beginning to work with a child with behavioral programs in the family and in the home community. Then we have a much better chance of having a positive impact on that child and possibly avoiding a case of a much more hardened juvenile in trouble a few years down the road."

Parents To Discuss Disturbed Children

"For Parents Only," a conference for parents of children under 18 with emotional problems, is scheduled for June 21-22 at the Harley Hotel in Lexington.

The conference, sponsored by the Department for Mental Health and Mental Retardation Services, is designed to give Kentucky parents who have a child or adolescent with emotional problems a chance to discuss their experiences with people in similar situations.

"It's important for us to have parents' input, for them to tell us what they think," said Marsha Willis-Fredman, a children's program specialist in the Division of Mental Health. "When parents meet each other, share experiences and identify the services needed, it helps us provide the best services possible for children."

The conference will feature open discussion sessions, where parents can air their views concerning problems they encounter and areas where they feel support needs to be increased.

Other subjects to be discussed include legal rights of emotionally-troubled children and their families, how to negotiate through the service systems and the importance of self-help groups.

Deadline for registration is June 6. The registration fee of $10 per person or $15 per couple includes a Saturday night banquet at the Red Mile and continental breakfast Sunday morning. Financial assistance is available for fees, lodging and child care. For more information, contact Marsha Willis-Fredman or Mae Whaley-White at (502) 564-7610.

Seek Trainees For Air Traffic Control

The Federal Aviation Administration has announced a nation-wide Air Traffic Controller recruiting program.

The agency plans to hire 2 to 3,000 controllers in the next year and is actively seeking candidates through its "We Need more of the World's Best" recruiting campaign.

An FAA spokesman said the agency wants U.S. citizens, age 30 or under, with 4 years college, or 3 years work experience, or an equivalent combination of the two.

Candidates must pass an aptitude test, with a high score, for final selection. Aviation experience is not necessary. Persons hired at the $17,824 starting salary receive free training at the FAA's Oklahoma City Academy with final placement throughout the US. Depending on their assignment, controllers can receive up to $55,000 in basic annual salary through Civil Service advancement.

Those interested should send a postcard to the FAA, Dept. 140, Box 26650, Oklahoma City, Ok. 73126 for further information.

School Bus Rodeo Set at Richmond

Kentucky school buses will head for Eastern Kentucky University's practice driving range in Richmond at 9 a.m., Saturday, for the second annual School Bus Safety Rodeo.

Thirty-two school bus drivers earned their starting spots in the rodeo lineup by placing first or second in 16 regional contests designed to test their driving skill and measure their knowledge of regulations.

The two drivers scoring the most points will be eligible to attend the national rodeo on July 21 and 22 in Rochester, Minn.

The state event is sponsored by the Kentucky Department of Education's Division of Pupil Transportation and the Kentucky Association for Pupil Transportation.

"These events focus on the important issue of school bus safety and bring public recognition to our 7,500 bus drivers," Superintendent of Public Instruction Alice McDonald said.

Participants from Floyd county are Jimmy Dewayne Hall and William Clevenger. Others and the counties they represent include Diana Bradford, McCracken; Patricia Skinner, Calloway; Suzanne Freeland and Charlotte Williamson, Trigg; Nick Render and Martha Brizendine, Ohio; Bobby Adams, Simpson; and David Smith, Warren.

Also, Donald Clark, Bullitt; Margaret Johnson, Oldham; Douglas Walter, Kenton; Jerry Harwood, Boone; William Moore Jr., Robertson; Terry Hester, Bracken; William F. Miller, Fayette; and Jinda Vanouer, Jessamine.

Others are Eddie Owens and Paul Gibson, Knott; (Jimmy Dewayne Hall and William Clevenger, Floyd); Kenneth Skaggs, Elliot; Thomas Vannatter, Boyd; Johnny Minton and Kelley Inabnitt, Pulaski; Leon Bingham, Jackson; and R.B. Miller, Rockcastle.

Jefferson county bus drivers taking part are Michael Smith, Sharon Lee Smith, Donald Eugene Bishir and Clarence Moorman Jr. Names of the winners in the fifth region, around Har-din county, were unavailable.

Info. Available To Explain Appraisals

New from the Society of Real Estate Appraisers is an 8-page brochure to introduce relocating families to the relocation appraisal process. "Understanding Your Relocation Appraisal" will aid the homeowner in understanding how his home is valued at a time when he is concerned with obtaining the best price for it before committing funds for the purchase of a new home. Developed by the society's public relations committee, the brochure is being offered at no charge to relocation management firms, employers with relocating employees, and individuals who are planning to relocate.

Spelled out in layman's terms are: the definition of the relocation appraisal; who the appraiser is and what the appraiser does; steps in the appraisal process; how the homeowner can assist the appraiser; what's in an appraisal report; and how to select qualified appraisers.

A relocation appraisal is an estimate—a highly educated estimate—of the probable price for which your home will sell in the current market within a reasonable length of time. The appraiser inspects the home, analyzes the factors that influence the market, and reaches a value conclusion which is the most probable price for which your home could be sold. The importance of a timely appraisal is stressed as, for better or worse, the value of your home doesn't remain the same. Its value is probably not the same now as when you bought it, and it probably won't be the same next year or possibly in six months. An appraisal at the time a homeowner decides to relocate enables him to benefit from any appreciation in home value over the years of his ownership. Generally, one or more appraisals may be obtained by your employer or relocation company in order to estimate the market value of your home. Sometimes an average of two or more appraisals is utilized (depending on your company's policy) and an additional appraisal might be undertaken if there is any significant discrepancy.

The Society of Real Estate Appraisers is the largest independent association of professional real estate appraisers in North America, with 16,000 members. It makes available training courses, publications, and its designations program. Upon completing requirements of education, experience, and demonstrated skill, individual appraisers can earn the Society's SRA (Senior Residential Appraiser), SRPA (Senior Real Property Appraiser, or SREA (Senior Real Estate Analyst) professional designation.

To obtain additional copies of "Understanding Your Relocation Appraisal," contact: the Order Dept. of the Society of Real Estate Appraisers, 645 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, IL 60611; (312) 346-7422.

For "Miss Kathryn" Frazier, cardiac rehabilitation was a heartening experience...

"We all just had a really good time helping ourselves get well. That doesn't sound possible, does it?"

exercise, dieting and instruction helps heart patients like Kathryn return to a normal, productive and enjoyable life-style.

And like most things in her life, Kathryn got more out of the program than just her healthy recovery.

"I made new friends down there and it was good for me. The doctors are very good and they monitor you very carefully so you don't overdo yourself. Yet at the same time, they insist that you do what you can. I tightened up muscles, I rode my bicycle and we just had a really good time helping ourselves to get well. That doesn't sound possible, does it?"

The cardiac rehab program at Highlands isn't just for heart attack victims. It helps patients recover fully and quickly from major heart surgery. Supported by highly sophisticated diagnostic technology, cardiac rehab can also help prevent future heart problems for those in high-risk categories. And it's all right here at home, in the Big Sandy.

Call Patsy Sword for more information about the outpatient cardiac rehabilitation program at Highlands Regional Medical Center.

See what a heartening experience it can be.

Maytown Grade School Graduation June 9

Maytown Grade School graduation ceremonies will be held June 9 at 7 p.m. in the school's auditorium. Pictured above: valedictorian, Wesley Fritts, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Fritts; salutatorian, Kelly Hairston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Billy Joe Caudill; salutatorian, Tabby Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Martin.

MAYTOWN GRADE SCHOOL NEWS

Maytown Grade School students released nearly 300 colorful balloons into the air May 6 in a "Curriculum Balloon Send-Off."

Attached to the balloons was information asking who ever finds one to return it to its owner or to the school. So far, responses have come from Betsy Layne, as well as South Williamson, Cyclone, Accoville and Beckley, West Virginia.

Through the Balloon Send-Off, teachers and students were involved in many different learning activities. Some teachers introduced the fun-filled activity as a geography study, others as an English activity. The lower grades used the exercise as an imaginative learning activity, the children pretending they were balloons traveling in the sky.

Names Task Force On Workman's Comp

Gov. Martha Layne Collins told a Special Task Force on Workers' Compensation earlier this week that its efforts are important for everyone who works in Kentucky, the business that operate here and the state's economic development efforts.

She said any equitable resolution of the state's problems in workers' compensation must provide three essentials: Justice for disabled workers, fairness for employers who pay the insurance premiums, and rates that keep Kentucky competitive in retaining existing jobs and attracting new ones.

The 14-member special task force, appointed by Governor Collins, convened briefly in her office May 20 before its first meeting. The General Assembly called for the task force in a resolution that noted workers' compensation insurance costs are increasing rapidly; and the availability of adequate workers' compensation coverage is diminishing.

The Governor said that any solution to these problems "must ensure that men and women who have lost earning power because of work-related injuries are adequately compensated for the loss. At the same time, injured workers' just claims must be balanced against the employers' ability to pay premiums and remain competitive."

She said, "Holding these premiums at reasonable rates is an issue for everyone who works in Kentucky and for everyone who wants to work or who hopes to get a better job."

Workers' compensation allows weekly benefits for people with work-related disabilities. Payments are funded by employers throughout the state who must pay for workers' compensation insurance.

Kentucky Farmers In Nat'l Survey

Kentucky farmers soon will be asked to participate in a nationwide survey to develop estimates of 1986 crop acreages and mid-year livestock numbers.

"During late May and early June, representatives of the Kentucky Agricultural Statistics Service will be personally interviewing a cross-section of farmers to gather information for the estimates," said Agriculture Commissioner David E. Boswell. "Some farmers will receive their questionnaires through the mail."

"We are asking for full cooperation from farmers in providing this information to the survey," the Commissioner added.

All individual information is confidential and will be used only in developing official national and state crop and livestock estimates.

According to Dave Williamson, state statistician, the survey seeks to provide unbiased acreage and livestock information to help farmers during a time of production and market uncertainties. The mid-year reports can prove helpful to farmers' plans for this year.

National and state estimates will be published by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Statistics Board. The report on 1986 crop acreages will be available on July 11. The report will also include estimates of yield and production for several small grains.

Estimates of national hog and pig numbers will be released on June 23. Cattle numbers will be released on July 25.

Garrett Bike-a-Thon Winners

Youngsters at Garrett earned almost $1,000 for St. Jude Children's Hospital when they participated in a bike-a-thon held at Baptist Bottom, there, recently. The exact amount raised was $948.90.

Top prize winners are pictured above. They are, from left, David C. Lovely, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hamlet Lovely, who won second prize, a bike donated by Sharon Gibson and Dorothy Combs; Tracey Dawn Gibson, daughter of Phyllis Gibson, who won first prize, a bicycle donated by Wal-Mart, of Prestonsburg, and Randy Bentley, son of Norman Bentley, who won third prize, a boom box given by K-Mart, of Paintsville.

Mrs. Sharon Gibson, chairman of the bike-a-thon, expressed her appreciation for the prizes donated and for the efforts of all the riders, who will receive T-shirts and tote bags.

Firm Bills For Free Service, Kelly Advises

Responding to numerous inquiries, Jim Kelly, district director for the Big Sandy Area, said recently that a firm operating in the east Kentucky area solicits people through direct mail. This firm is attempting to sell a service which is provided at no charge by every Social Security Office.

The company obtains a list of local birth records and then mails new parents an offer to get a Social Security number for their child for a $10 fee. This organization is not a government agency and has nothing to do with the Social Security Administration.

The direct mail advertisement also indicates that new legislation may require that children be listed by Social Security number on the parents' tax return. There is no legislation, Kelly said. In addition, Social Security does not provide counties with information about which children have Social Security numbers. The public should take a closer look at mail that solicits any money and gives the impression it may be associated with a government agency.

The Big Sandy Area Social Security Office is located on U.S. 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville. The telephone number is listed in your local telephone directory under U.S. Government.

Wins Pageants

Andrea Leigh Jones, four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Jeffrey Jones, of Langley, was named 1986 Young Miss Easter and won the Miss Easter Photogenic award at Garrett. She has also won several other titles including Tiny Miss Red, White, and Blue, and Young Miss Thanksgiving.

She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rhomas L. Jones, of Langley, and Mr. and Mrs. Alroy Click, of Martin.
