

School Construction Funds Endangered by Site Delays

Anybody with visions of four new schools rising any time soon in this county was brought back to earth Monday as architects described for a Betsy Layne High School audience the practical problems yet to be overcome before such dreams materialize.

One of the architects said the "odds were better than even" that $4.4 million earmarked for construction of a consolidated high school on Left Beaver Creek would pass to another school district because of delays in selecting a site for the school.

And the same architect, James A. Ellis, of Pikeville, lashed out at critics of a Board of Education decision to hire construction managers to oversee the projects, describing the critics as "way off track."

At a meeting sponsored by the Floyd County Education Forum, he audience of about 40 persons was told that:

—Even for the Prestonsburg Middle School, the only one of the four projects for which a site has been purchased, the first plans have yet to be sketched. Substantial work needs to be done on the Lancer tract and plan development will take "quite a bit of time," said architect Lee Shannon. "There is a tremendous amount about middle schools I don't know," Shannon confessed.

—After waiting 15 weeks to get an official appraisal of a tract intended for the new Allen Elementary School, the property owners have declared the price too low and appraisal of another site is now being sought. The state School Facilities Construction Commission recently gave Floyd school authorities an extra eight weeks to purchase a suitable site. No serious work can begin on drawing plans as long as "the property is in limbo," said architect Randy Burchett. When a site is chosen, construction drawings could be expected to take from 3½ to 4½ months to complete, he said.

—Although negotiations for purchase of a Goose Creek tract for the consolidated Garrett-Wayland school were said to be "moving along pretty well," architect Paul Hoffman acknowledged that he too has yet to begin drawings for the $3.4 million school to be built there.

—With Left Beaver communities still deeply divided over the location of a consolidated Wheelwright-McDowell high school, "the odds are better than even that Casey or Woodford county is going to end up with the $4.4 million" set aside for that school, said architect Ellis.

While Ellis has done preliminary drawings for a school on the Minnie site he considers "the most designable," his reckoning of the distance upper Left Beaver students would have to travel to a school on that site was at odds with the distance a Wheelwright parent said she had recorded on her auto odometer.

Noting that state guidelines put at 45 minutes the maximum time any child should have to travel to school, Barbara Gullett said she had clocked at 24.6 miles the road distance between Skull Branch, at the upper reaches of Beaver Creek, and Minnie. "There's no way (a school bus) can do that in 45 minutes," she said. Ellis said one of his employees had figured the distance from topographical maps at 17.5 miles.

Ellis said he was "annoyed" at criticism voiced recently at a Floyd Board of Education meeting by the Floyd County Education Forum, which took the board to task for hiring two construction managers at a combined cost of $717,571 without allowing any public input in the decision. The architect said the critics were "probably out of order to speak before they understood" the construction manager concept.

IF YOU RIDE the Warco bus and think you're seeing double, it is not necessarily time to have your eyes checked. Four sets of twins ride the bus to and from Martin Elementary School and, if it's confusing for bus driver Gloria Layne, it is sometimes a bit of a puzzle to the twins themselves! Asked outside Mrs. Rosemary Hopkins' second grade room Tuesday whether she could identify herself in the picture, Jessica Salisbury, 8, could only say for certain that she is one of the two on the far right. The other is her sister, Joanie.

The others, from the left, are: Maria and Laura Leonard, 11; Lucianna and Tiffany Francis, 9; and Sara and Jani Conn, 9.

Martin Woman Bites Trooper, Pleads Guilty

A 20-year-old Martin woman pleaded guilty last week to a charge of assault on a police officer, after she bit a state trooper on the right arm and thumb.

State Trooper Dewey Murphy said he was chasing a car that pulled up outside the trailer of Theresa B. Wallen on KY 1428 at Martin, around 11:15 p.m. on Nov. 17. The driver of the car, identified as Wallen's boyfriend, fled on foot and, while Murphy was questioning a passenger, Wallen burst out of the trailer, argued belligerently, and pushed him, the trooper said.

When he attempted to arrest her, she resisted and the passenger, John E. Gambill, 24, of Guage, intervened, Murphy said. Gambill came between the two, repeatedly telling him to "leave her alone," the police officer said. The woman bit him as he tried to place her in his cruiser, he said.

Wallen was charged with assault, resisting arrest, disorderly conduct, and hindering the apprehension of the driver. She received a 10-day jail sentence and was fined $100.

Gambill, accused of public intoxication, disorderly conduct, hindering apprehension of the woman, and resisting arrest, initially pleaded not guilty but later agreed to plead guilty to public intoxication if the other charges were dismissed. He was sentenced to two days' jail and ordered to pay $72 in fine and court costs.

District Court Has Full Docket

Although he honored it on the advice of the state attorney-general's office, County Attorney David Barber said Monday that the deal his predecessor had struck last year with a repeat drunk driver caused him "some amount of embarrassment."

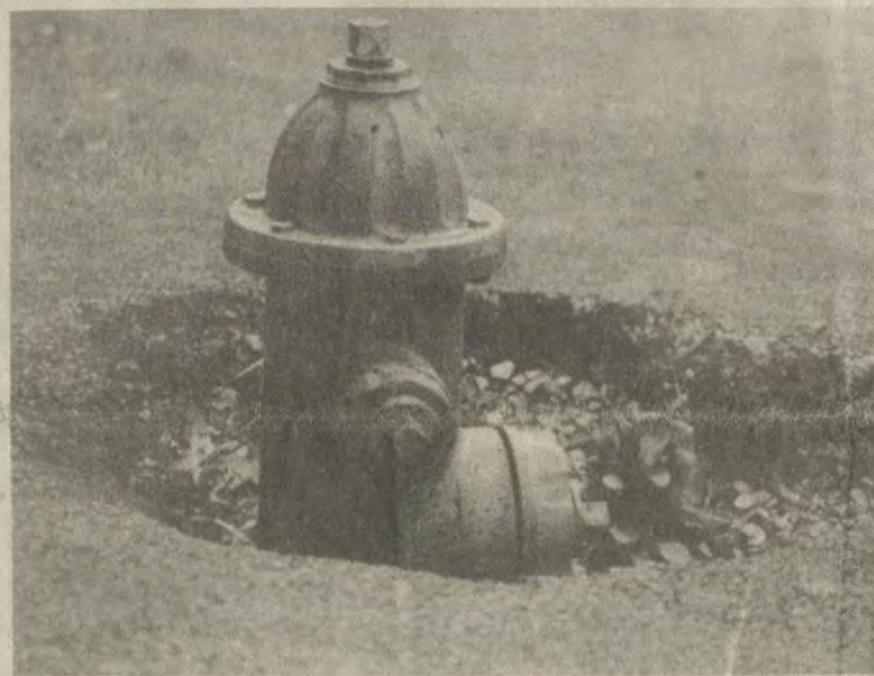

The case involved James S. Ison, a 43-year-old highways department employee, who was charged on Sept. 10 last year with driving under the influence and, six weeks later, was again arrested for the same offense.

County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr., then near the end of his term in office, agreed to dismiss one of the counts and accept a guilty plea on the other if Ison completed an alcohol treatment program and stayed off alcohol for a year.

In a Nov. 6 letter to Attorney-General David Armstrong, Barber acknowledged Ison had kept his end of the bargain and said he felt obliged to honor the Commonwealth's commitment. But he indicated he had "personal feelings" against dismissing a DUI charge supported by high Breathalyzer readings. "I have never dismissed a DUI over 15 percent," Barber told Armstrong. Ison had recorded BA readings of 27 and 22 percent.

"I would advise you that you are bound by the agreement," replied David M. Lewis, director of the special prosecutions division of the attorney-general's office. "Mr. Ison relied upon the agreement and fulfilled his obligation in respect to it."

Before the attorney-general's letter was received, Ison was convicted in (See Story No. 5, Page 4)

IN CASE OF FIRE don't bother to tap this fire plug. The hydrant, on the grounds of Garrett Elementary School, is almost inaccessible on account of the asphalt playground built up around it and, in any event, is inoperable. Parents complained recently that they have tried 15 months to have the hydrant repaired only to have school and Beaver Elkhorn Water District officials each hold the other responsible for the work.

That issue is still unresolved, but the necessary parts have now been ordered to raise the hydrant and replace its faulty valve, said Russell Frazier, assistant to the school superintendent. And if Beaver Elkhorn won't pick up the tab—estimated to amount to around $850—the school board will, he said.

HRMC Is Denied Entry To Home Health Field

With the current push toward shorter hospital stays and lower costs, Highlands Regional Medical Center officials argued last year that home health care was "the rising star" in the health care industry. Approval by a state licensing board of Highlands' request to establish a home health agency here seemed to guarantee the hospital would bathe in the new star's light.

The proposal was plunged into darkness last week, however, as the new Commission for Health Economics Control, which has replaced the old Certificate of Need and Licensure Board, reversed the licensure board's July, 1985 decision.

The reversal represents a victory for three Floyd home health agencies, which had argued that the field was not big enough to justify entry of another competitor. The home health services arm of the Floyd Health Department, the Big Sandy District Home Health Agency, and McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital appealed the original licensure board decision to Franklin Circuit Court, which remanded the proposal to the Health Economics Commission for its review and action.

Although the hospital argued that operating a home health agency of its own would provide continuity of care to patients after their discharge from Highlands, the question of whether their entry would tread on the toes of those already in the field was a touchy issue from the start.

The existing providers fought the Highlands proposal all the way, arguing that the hospital had not demonstrated a need for another home health agency here, and they were generally able to persuade officials reviewing the proposal. Before it was finally accepted by the Licensure Board, the proposal was rejected by the Big Sandy Area Health Council, by the licensure board's own staff, and by an independent hearing officer.

Associate Administrator Russell W. Briggs acknowledged at the time that five home health agencies were already operating in this area but Highlands' project was unique, he said, in that it was the only agency authorized to serve a five-county area. It was intended to serve Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin, and Pike counties.

The proposed Highlands-owned agency would be able to draw on the (See Story No. 3, Page 4)

P'burg Village Investors Sue Engineering Consultant Firm

Engineering consultants who helped persuade them to invest $13.5 million in the Prestonsburg Village Shopping Center failed to tell them all the facts about that troubled site, the investors claim in a suit filed last week in Floyd Circuit Court.

Attorneys for Buckingham Holdings, Inc., Buckingham Kentucky Holdings, and Pan-American Properties—which all share the same New York City address—say they hired Merritt and Harris, Inc., a New York firm of architectural and engineering consultants, to represent them on the Prestonsburg Village job.

Their September, 1984 contract required Merritt and Harris to see that construction of the shopping center was "workmanlike" and in conformity with specifications, plaintiffs said. Partly as a result of the consultants' assurances on those points, the investors loaned $13.5 million to W&G Prestonsburg Associates, the shopping center developer, in November, 1985, with the property as collateral.

W&G Prestonsburg Associates was recently declared bankrupt and the shopping center ordered sold to satisfy its debts.

Although Merritt and Harris began in August, 1984 to make written reports on their findings, the plaintiffs said they only discovered from other sources that the highwall surrounding the shopping-center site is unstable and potentially dangerous, that it was not faced-up according to building specifications, that local authorities had ordered a halt to construction, and that some of the buildings already partly-constructed will have to be torn down before the highwall can be stabilized.

Although the consultants estimated last November that $3.1 million would be needed to finish the project, they believe it will take $5 million or more to complete the job, the investors claim.

The lawsuit was filed on their behalf last Wednesday by William McCann, of the Lexington law firm of Wyatt, Tarrant & Combs. It outlines only the plaintiffs' version of the issues in dispute.

City Okays Insurance, Plans Park, Pool Work

At a time when municipal governments throughout the state and country are having a hard time affording and holding on to their liability insurance, the Prestonsburg City Council Monday approved an insurance policy offer made by the Hatton-Allen Insurance Agency and presented to council by City Administrator Fred James. The annual premium will be $51,300 and will be payable in monthly installments—an important concession to the cash-short city.

Order Restrains Surface Owners In Mine Dispute

By order of Floyd Circuit Judge Hollie Conley, a Cow Creek couple was restrained Thursday from interfering with a stripmine operation on their property.

The restraining order capped a months-long dispute between Estill Crace, Jr. and his wife Phyllis, the surface owners, and Coal Mac, Inc., owner of the coal rights.

Although the Craces agreed in June, 1984 to let Coal Mac come on their property in return for a 50-cents-a-ton royalty on any coal taken out, the property owners have tried to interfere with the mining operation for several months, said Coal Mac representative Thurman Woodrow Barker.

Last Wednesday, Estill Crace threatened to kill anyone who tried to remove coal, the mining firm alleged.

A petition filed Thursday by Prestonsburg attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. asked for an order restraining the Craces, for a determination of boundary lines and the respective responsibilities of the surface and mineral owners, and for compensatory damages.

The coal company claimed it was losing $39,000 a day in gross receipts while the mining operation was shut down.

Councilman William O. Goebel III called the offer "our best shot" at affordable liability coverage. The other council members agreed.

Council also passed two resolutions giving the go-ahead to the Prestonsburg Park Commission to apply for two matching grants from the Federal Land and Water Conservation Fund to renovate Archer Park's swimming pool and build a senior citizens' park and hiking trail.

The renovation of the pool will include resurfacing and sandblasting, reconstruction of return lines and skimmers, repair of the lighting system, and improvement of the filtering system. Bill Ray Collins, park commission chairman, presented the project to the council and stressed the need for the renovation, citing the fact that the pool was built in the early 1960's, and due to its age, major repairs are needed if the pool is to open next season, Collins said.

The second project presented by the Park Commission calls for a senior citizens' park to be built across from the existing senior citizens' building. If the funds are made available, four shuffle board courts, three horse shoe pits, a croquet court, and a pavilion will be built. The planned hiking trail will be 5,000 feet long and will circle the softball fields. Peppermint Park will not be touched but the playground equipment now scattered through the park will be consolidated into one area.

The total estimated cost is $60,000 for each project. If the matching grant is approved, the federal government will contribute $30,000 and the city of Prestonsburg will contribute the other $30,000. However, the city's share will not necessarily come from the taxpayers; it can be made up in the form of private contributions, labor, and materials.

Kay Willis, Park Commission member, said they should hear some time in March if the grant applications have been approved and, hopefully, construction work will start in the spring.

In other business, James brought the council up to date on the city administration. (See Story No. 2, Page 4)

UK Research Shedding Light On Harmful Eating Disorders

For some women, the battle of the bulge develops into an intense fear of fatness.

This fear, coupled with a distorted body image, may lead them to harmful dieting methods such as bingeing and purging (bulimia) or not eating (anorexia nervosa).

Neither of these behaviors has a single cause or simple cure. But Laurie L. Humphries, director of eating disorders at the University of Kentucky, is trying to find answers.

Humphries has just completed a national study of the behaviors associated with anorexia and bulimia. More than 5,000 women throughout the U.S. and Canada participated in the study.

According to Humphries, her survey is providing the first national information about bulimia and is indicating that the syndrome is more prevalent but less understood than anorexia.

"In my opinion, 5.7 percent of my sample suffer from severe bulimia, 8.3 percent have mild or insipid bulimia while 1.6 percent showed attitudes and behaviors consistent with the diagnosis of anorexia," said Humphries.

"However, only 1.8 percent had ever sought help. Furthermore, a Gallup survey done in April had similar results; while many people could identify symptoms of anorexia, very few knew what bulimia was," she said.

From her national project, Humphries also learned about the social history of the syndromes.

"I found that eating disorders often start with a diet, an innocuous behavior that many people engage in."

"In the case of bulimia, the women would turn to bingeing and purging, often with abuse of laxatives, diuretics, or ipecac, after a diet had failed to produce the desired result. In fact, there is direct statistical evidence that a lot of people who use diet pills go on to abuse various purgatives which have detrimental medical effects including heart arrhythmias and kidney damage," she said.

The use of ipecac, a poison, can destroy the heart muscle. This drug was used by 2.3 percent of the women surveyed to induce vomiting after over-eating, a high percentage according to Humphries. However, ipecac is presently sold without a warning label.

In light of her research, Humphries would like to see the Food and Drug Administration put a warning insert into the ipecac packages.

Humphries also wants to study the relationship of body weight to menses, particularly how low weight can cause amenorrhea.

Currently unknown data, this information could help women discover the cause of their menstrual problem more quickly and save themselves some expense.

For example, if a woman suffers from amenorrhea, her low body weight could be the culprit and this variable would be treated first. If added weight is indeed the solution, then the patient has avoided taking costly tests unnecessarily.

Global Economic Competition Is Changing U.S. Jobs, Wages

International economic competition could change the way America's educational system is structured, says Marc Tucker, executive director of the Carnegie Forum on Education and the Economy.

Tucker spoke at the Brown Hotel during the annual meeting of the Council of Chief State School Officers. Superintendent of Public Instruction Alice McDonald was the host of the conference, which had as its theme "Education: Key to Economic Vitality and Individual Fulfillment."

Jobs requiring limited skills are going to countries like South Korea, where workers earn $3,000 for working 363 days a year, Tucker said. If the United States choose to compete with countries like South Korea, eventually equilibrium in hours and wages will be reached, he said.

"Why would people pay us 10 times as much to work half as hard?" Tucker asked the education officials.

"It's a question of reaching a standard we've never met before," he said. To train its workers, the United States is depending on an educational system only slightly different than it was in 1920, he pointed out.

Because of world competition and because technology is eliminating unskilled jobs, Tucker said, "We must become a nation of people doing non-routine work. We must transform our notion of what we have to do to succeed."

The economy is already changing the numbers and types of jobs available, he said. Rather than hiring data entry clerks, gasoline buyers are using credit cards to code information into computerized gas pumps. Consumers are doing the work previously done by company employees.

Employment statistics reflect these changes, Tucker said. The numbers of salesclerks, warehousemen and other laborers are decreasing.

"We must become a leading-edge economy, create our niche in the world economy. The only reason we can get paid more for our labor is to produce something before the others figure it out," he said.

"Then the work will be automated or sent overseas for production. As soon as we create it, others will find ways to produce it cheaper and faster. We must keep coming up with new ideas and repeating the cycle."

America "must reorganize the enterprise, combine the resources and rearrange," he said.

Tucker urged the education chiefs to "organize schools completely differently" to take advantage of teachers' experience and abilities and to focus on "self-starting" students.

"We must organize schools to provide resources to self-starters, to enable them to apply a wide range of knowledge to the unexpected. Mass production isn't going to work. We must build schools based on different structures and management philosophies," he said.

Re-Run Two Episodes Of "Upstairs, Downstairs"

Fans of the highly acclaimed "Masterpiece Theatre" presentation "Upstairs, Downstairs" are in for an evening of TV Worth Watching when two episodes from the award-winning drama encore Thursday, December 11, beginning at 8:00 p.m. on KET.

The episodes, "Guest of Honor," from the series' first season, and "Goodwill to All Men," from the series' second season, highlight the rigid social codes separating the aristocratic Bellamy family and their servants, and the complex situations that develop from them.

In "Guest of Honor," the boundaries separating the aristocratic Bellamys from the servants fall apart. As the Bellamys entertain the King of England in genteel splendor upstairs, a complication arises in the servants' quarters. Sarah, the saucy household maid, who as been exiled to have her illegitimate baby—fathered by the Bellamys' son James—arrives to deliver at the Bellamy home. A hectic night unfolds as Sarah goes into labor and the Bellamys strive to keep the news from the King.

"Goodwill to All Men" illustrates how class distinctions prevent two young girls from becoming friends. Sixteen-year-old Lady Georgina Worsley visits the Bellamy household. She immediately strikes up a friendship with Daisy, the young housemaid. Ignoring the advice that "everyone must stick to their station in life," Georgina secretly accompanies Daisy to visit her impoverished family in Hoxton. When the Bellamy family learns of their liaison, the girls discover what "Goodwill to All Men" really means in British society.

"Upstairs, Downstairs" is produced by London Weekend Television and is presented by WGBH/Boston.

A Lexington consulting engineer also defended the hiring of construction managers, saying that the arrangement has been used by his firm in building 11 schools in Kentucky and that "the state is sold" on the idea.

Employment of construction managers saves school boards money, results in better work, makes it easier for local firms to bid on work, and means that schools are more likely to be built on time, said Thelmer McClanahan, of Kiser-Taulbee Associates. "We have found it super-successful," he said.

Unlike the traditional general contractor, the construction manager is an agent of the school board. McClanahan noted. Moreover, while a general contractor is likely to add a 15-20 percent mark-up to cover his costs and profit, salaries paid the two construction managers employed by the Floyd board represent only five percent of the project cost. "They're going to earn their keep," McClanahan said.

district court of a second DUI, sentenced to 15 days' jail, and ordered to pay $757 in fine and court costs. Upon receipt of the letter, the conviction was recorded as a first offense, the jail sentence revoked, and the fine and costs reduced to $357.

Of three earlier DUI charges against Ison—two in 1983 and one in 1982—two were reduced to public intoxication; record of the third was not available.

In a quick plea bargain that caught court clerks offguard, Theresa Hall, 28, of Galveston, was convicted of drunk driving, sentenced to do two days' work around the courthouse, and ordered to pay $157 in fine and costs.

Her attorney, Jerry Patton, conceded that Hall had previously been convicted of drunk driving, a circumstance that warrants a stronger penalty under the 1984 Kentucky DUI law, but said her previous conviction predated the new law.

According to court records, however, Hall has DUI convictions dating both before and since the new law. She awaits trial, moreover, on yet another DUI charge.

Bits and Pieces

THINGS I CAN'T BELIEVE

I still cannot believe that on the late, late show I can see Errol Flynn and the President of the United States starring in a 1942 escape saga about five daredevil bombardiers fleeing Nazis in Poland. Whew!

I also don't believe plastic is better than glass for bottling; I never believed Exxon really wanted us to know. Neither did I ever believe there was a shortage of gas—not gasoline—gas like that leaking out of countless wells in Eastern Kentucky.

Three out of four ain't bad.

THANKSGIVING

I wonder how many harried, working women are losing their individual and collective minds trying to get ready for the holidays? Children are coming home, and all the things you said you'd do last summer—and didn't—are now glaringly obvious.

It's too late to do the remodeling—didn't want to spend the money, anyway. But the bedrooms have to be painted, and the carpeting's shot. And just why did the garbage pickup people want to come in the house this week, anyway? So, all right, already. It's not too neat, but still.

With all that said, let me say, also, I love having Thanksgiving dinner at my house even if getting through it is something like walking through a mine field. It's nice to have your family with you even if you're beat. If there's time, you can polish the silver, drag out the good china and crystal, but who cares, really? It's being together that counts.

Don't get in a tizzy. Just count and enjoy your blessings.

Jury Finds For Barnettts

A Floyd Circuit Court jury decided last week that a Michigan insurance firm should pay a former Bucks Branch couple for the loss of their trailer.

The mobile home that Raleigh and Flora Barnett bought in July, 1983 burned down the following March while the couple and their two small children were reportedly in Florida. The Barnettts filed a claim with Foremost Insurance Co. of Grand Rapids, but the firm had refused to honor it.

In the lawsuit he filed against the insurance company, Barnett sought $39,995 for loss of the trailer and $21,000 for its contents. By the time the case went to the jury last Wednesday, the figures were amended to maximums of $35,000 and $12,421. Eleven of 12 jurors—two more than are needed for a verdict—agreed that the claims should be paid in full.

The judgment came despite defense allegations that Barnett had himself arranged to have his trailer burned, that he had fraudulently inflated his losses, and that the trailer was being used for illegal drug trafficking.

When his home burned, Barnett was unemployed and in debt, the insurance company argued, noting that he owed $16,000 on his trailer and had recently purchased a home in Plant City, Florida. After the fire, gasoline was found in the crawl space under the mobile home and along a center beam inside, the defendants said.

After pointing out that the Barnettts' policy excluded payment on any claim if "the premises are being used for illegal trade or business," the insurance firm noted that, in November, 1983, police allegedly seized illegal drugs in a raid on the trailer and the Barnettts were subsequently indicted for drug trafficking.

On the other hand, Jerry Patton, the homeowners' attorney, argued that the drug raid occurred four months before the fire. There was no evidence, he said, that the premises were being used for illegal trade at the time of the blaze. That was the argument that apparently swayed the jury, said Patton.

The Barnettts are scheduled to be tried in the same court on drug trafficking charges on Dec. 15. They are charged with possession of more than eight ounces of marijuana, 36 Darvocet tablets, and 810 simulated drug tablets and with having 14 Zomax and six Tagamet tablets in improper containers. The drugs were allegedly seized after State Det. Ernie Duleson and an informant went to the trailer to make a purchase on Nov. 11, 1983.

The Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA) is operated on the basis of a program year, beginning on July 1 and ending on June 30 of the following year, according to the U.S. Department of Labor's annual report for fiscal year 1985.

Conspiracy?

There seems to be an ever-growing controversy as to where to locate the new high school on Left Beaver Creek. After surveying the 7th and 8th grade students at McDowell, it is evident to me that there is no contention with the people of the McDowell School district that would be contrary to building the school somewhere near the center of the present location of these two schools. As a matter of fact, by a show of hands, 152 7th and 8th graders were for a location halfway between the two schools, while only 16 were in favor of a nearer-to-McDowell location. I have found very few people in the McDowell area that do not think a central location best. So when considering the above findings, I have no other conclusion but that there is someone conspiring to pit the Wheelwright people against the McDowell people (if you will). I would suggest that both parties initiate a thorough investigation so as to expose this person or persons to the public.

It is my opinion that our new school, regardless of where it may be located, cannot function as a quality institution so long as there is a somewhat cloudy rationale in the decision-making process.

I think the people on Left Beaver Creek can make the George Moore/Boone Hall Memorial High School a great and successful facility for our children.

Turned Off

Is it any wonder the parking lot of a recently opened "specialty" shop in Prestonsburg always appears empty? Perhaps the treatment of a recent potential customer will help to explain why?

Potential customer enters store seeking the phone number of a brand-name manufacturer from the owner in order to resolve a problem with the manufacturer's product. The product was purchased from another store which has since gone out of business. Owner appears willing to comply with customer's request until another party present (not even affiliated with the specialty shop) remarks "What a slap in the face"! Further explanation that customer's intention is NOT to have their store return the merchandise (which wasn't even in hand) only results in more rudeness, questions, and caustic retorts (i.e. "it serves you right for not buying it here.") Owner finally cooperates and supplies customer with manufacturer's phone number.

This type of attitude portrayed to a customer can be and is detrimental to any type of business. Do they ever expect their parking lot to be full...no wonder people would rather travel to Lexington or Huntington to shop!

Abuse Center Burns At Martin, Sunday

A safe house for battered women burned Sunday morning in Martin, apparently from a fire originating in the kitchen of the wood-frame dwelling.

Residents and staff were safely evacuated when the blaze was discovered, soon after 8 a.m., but the house was gutted and only the files were saved, said Pam Meyer, an outreach worker at the facility.

"We were very lucky. The number of residents was the lowest it has been in weeks," said Meyer. Two women and two children were in residence when the fire broke out, she said.

The fact that a stove had earlier been lit to prepare breakfast suggested that burning grease may have caused the blaze but the cause had not been officially determined as of Monday, Meyer said.

While the facility—known formally as the Big Sandy Family Abuse Center—is seeking new quarters, staff members emphasized that a 24-hour crisis line is still operating—the number is 285-9193—and that emergency housing can still be arranged for abuse victims.

It is hoped that at least some of the loss will be covered by insurance, Meyer said, but in the meantime the center is soliciting donations of cash, used bedroom and living room furniture, kitchen appliances, cooking and eating utensils, bedding, etc. Donations may be sent to P.O. Box 1166, Martin, KY 41649. Furniture and other items may be dropped off at the Christian Appalachian Project warehouse adjacent the Mountain Christian Academy in Martin.

Conservation District Essay-Poster Deadline

The deadline for the Conservation Essay and Poster contest is drawing near. Floyd County Schools should turn in their top three essays and posters to the Floyd County Conservation District as soon as possible after December 1 and no later than December 8. This is to allow judges to look over the entries before the final December 16 judging date. Principals reports should be turned in no later than December 12.

Navy Career Beckons Job Corps Graduate

An institution that was not welcomed by everyone when it came and has generated its share of negative publicity, the Carl D. Perkins Job Corps Center is not without its success stories.

Take the case of Reginald Hightower. A Job Corps student until October, the 18-year-old Dublin, Georgia native has already distinguished himself as a basic trainee at the Navy's San Diego Recruit Training Center, according to Lenny Grant, a Job Corps placement specialist. High test scores have earned the young recruit a chance to enter the Navy's college prep school in San Diego, where he could qualify for admission to a Navy ROTC program at one of 50 U.S. universities and possibly even Annapolis.

A student in the buildings and grounds maintenance department at the Job Corps Center, Hightower also earned his high school equivalency diploma (GED) while there. He joined the navy for aviation electronics and, since his enlistment, has been named educational specialty officer for his division, with special class responsibilities.

Hightower has not forgotten those here who gave his stalled schooling a boost. On a recent postcard, he thanked Grant and Job Corps staff members "for all the backing and encouragement they gave me."

Tell Me Now

A poem written by Mrs. Virgil Mays, Wheelwright, Ky.

Give me my praise while I live,
Don't wait until I die
And stand over my coffin
And do your sad, sad cry.
If you love me, tell me now
While I have ears to hear
For when my body is cold
I won't know that you care.
Say good things about me now,
And help me now to pray
For when I am in my grave
I can't hear what you say,
I can't smell your flowers,
I can't see your tears.
So if you want to show your love,
Show it while I am here (ALIVE.)

Announce Engagement

The Rev. and Mrs. Jimmie Baker, of Elizabethtown, Ky., announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Delores Jean, to Mr. Larry K. Barnett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Barnett, of Harrodsburg, Ky.

Miss Baker is a 1981 graduate of Prestonsburg High School and attended Prestonsburg Community College. She is a 1985 graduate of the University of Kentucky and is currently employed as a dental hygienist in Lawrenceburg, Ky.

Mr. Barnett is a graduate of Harrodsburg High School and the University of Kentucky. He is currently employed as the principal of Anderson County High School in Lawrenceburg, Ky.

The wedding will be solemnized at 1 p.m., December 27, at the Alton Baptist Church in Lawrenceburg. A reception will be held in the church fellowship hall, and all friends and relatives are invited to attend.

Rebekah Lodge Meets

The regular semi-monthly meeting of Miriam Rebekah Lodge No. 31 was held November 18 at 7 p.m. at the I.O.O.F. Hall, with Mrs. Mabel Jean LeMaster, Noble Grand, presiding and welcoming the members. Members who were sick and those otherwise in need were reported, and cards were signed to be sent to them. Mrs. LeMaster recognized Mrs. Paulina Owens as State Assembly Paige.

An invitation to a reception at Allison Rebekah Lodge no. 134, Inez, honoring Mrs. Frances Fraley, Assembly Lodge President, was read.

The following committees were elected: Finance, Hope Whitten, Violetta Wright, and Mary Zemo, and Degree Captain, Hope Whitten. The Noble Grand appointed these committees: Decoration, Mary Zemo, Violetta Wright, Teresa Maynard, and Dorothy Osborne; Flower, Hope Whitten and Beverly Hackworth; Telephone, Hope Whitten; Visiting, Norma Stepp, Myrtle Allen, Dorothy Osborne, Otela Smiley, Jean Hickman, Willia Mae Branham, and Violetta Wright; Scrapbook, Mary Zemo, Venelia Rinehart, Effice Hopkins, and Paulina Owens; Kitchen, Maman Leslie, Nancy Duff, Pauline Crisp, Wanda Justice, and Jean Hickman; Youth Service, Nancy Duff, Sue Moore, and Lorena Wallen; Program, Virginia Goble, Norma Stepp, Venelia Rinehart, and Paulina Owens; Publicity, Beverly Hackworth and Docia B. Woods; Gift, Sue Moore, Lorena Wallen, Jewel Bays, Emma Lou Horn, Dotty Lafferty, Sue Wells, and Teresa Maynard; Resolution, Virginia Goble, Hope Whitten, and Mary Zemo and Delinquent, Beverly Hackworth, Hope Whitten, and Mabel Jean LeMaster.

Members were again reminded of the District Meeting to be held at the I.O.O.F. Hall, here, December 6 at 6 p.m. All members are urged to attend and to bring with them a covered-dish and a gift for exchange.

Attending were Mabel Jean LeMaster, Violetta Wright, Beverly Hackworth, Pauline Crisp, Lorena Wallen, Paulina Owens, Hope Whitten, Emma Lou Horn, Maman Leslie, Dotty Lafferty, Norma Stepp, Mary Zemo, and Jewel Bays.

The next regular meeting will be held December 2 at 7 p.m.

North Prestonsburg Homemakers News

The North Prestonsburg Homemakers' Club met November 18 at 7 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Mabel Allen. Due to the absence of Mrs. Mary K. Music, president, Mrs. Elizabeth Ramey presided.

Following routine business, Mrs. Frances Pitts reported on the area meeting and said that clubwomen from this county were in the style show at this event. She also announced of the special workshops and various other special meetings.

Mrs. Pitts presented the lesson on gifts and decorations for the holidays, with a display of decorations and gift items.

The hostess, Mrs. Mabel Allen, served refreshments to Gladys Allen, Garnett Fairchild, Agnes Bauers, June Adams, Thelma Wallen, Elizabeth Ramey, Betty Ward, Goldie Music, and Christine Spradlin.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Mary K. Music, on December 16.

HERE FOR WEEKEND

Dr. James M. Smiley came here from Columbus, Ohio, recently, to spend the weekend with his mother, Mrs. Otela Smiley. While here, Dr. Smiley entertained his mother to dinner at the Carriage House in Paintsville.

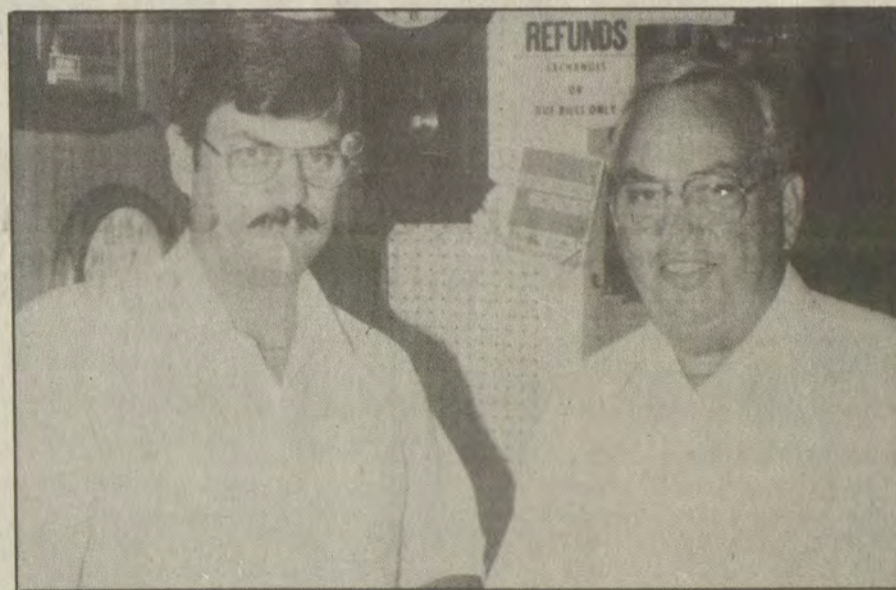

It is said that the musical juke box gets its name from a west African word "dzug" meaning "to behave improperly."

FIRST METHODIST HOLDS LOVE FEAST

Members of the First United Methodist Church introduced the Thanksgiving Season with a Love Feast in Fellowship Hall, there, Sunday evening. The program was led by the church's pastor, Dr. Quentin Scholtz. After singing a hymn, each person was served with Moravian honeybuns and spiced tea. Five grains of corn at each place symbolized the blessings for which participants were to be thankful.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MINE

Pursuant to Application Number 836-0082 Amendment #2 In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350.055, notice is hereby given that Coal-Mac, Inc., P.O. Box 3428, Pikeville, Ky. 41501, has filed an application for an amendment to a surface coal mining and reclamation operation located 1/16 mile west of Galveston in Floyd county. The previously permitted areas contain 490.40 acres. This amendment adds 31.0 acres of surface disturbance and 11.0 acres of auger mining for a new total permitted acreage of 532.4 acres.

The proposed operation is approximately 1/2 mile east of KY 979's junction with Red Morg Branch Road, and located adjacent to Red Morg Branch. The latitude is 37° 25' 30". The longitude is 82° 37' 28". The surface area to be disturbed under this permit is owned by Dorothy and Everett Blanton, Bruce Hill Estate, Homer Lee Hall, Claude Hall, Ellis Keathley, Hobert Hall, Jonathan D. (Buck) Rogers, et al., Dewey Hall Estate, Alex Hall, Arvel Hall, Green Hall, Beatrice Hall, Turner Elkhorn Coal Company, Casey Newsome Heirs, Coal-Mac, Inc., Berry Tackett Heirs, Benny Tackett, Scotty Hall, Ned and Sherree Hall and John Jack Adkins. This amendment will affect the property owned by Casey Newsome Heirs, Turner Elkhorn Coal Company, Coal-Mac, Inc. and Berry Tackett Heirs.

The proposed operation is located on the McDowell and Pikeville USGS 7 1/2 minute quadrangle maps. The operation will use the contour stripping and augering methods of mining.

The application has been filed for public inspection at the Department for Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement's Prestonsburg Regional Office, 503 South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653. Written comments, objections, or requests for a permit conference must be filed with the Director of the Division of Permits, 6th Floor, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

Ex-Smoker Wins "Cold Turkey"

Nurse technician Lucille Yates won a frozen turkey in Our Lady of the Way Hospital's Great American Smokeout "Cold Turkey" raffle.

Yates, who quit smoking five months ago, said she had just returned from trying to chase down a turkey being given away by a local radio station when the phone call came informing her of her win.

To draw attention to the American Cancer Society's Great American Smokeout, each of Our Lady of the Way's employees was given a raffle ticket which doubled as a mini-survey. Of the 102 employees who participated, 24 were smokers, 69 were non-smokers, and nine were ex-smokers. Thirteen employees went "cold turkey" from smoking on Smokeout Day and 22 employees "adopted" them in support of their stop-smoking efforts.

Although one non-smoker said she had "no sympathy" for smokers, nine employees avoided such things as sweets, nail-biting, coffee, and over-eating in sympathy for those trying to quit.

Out-Of-State Firms Control Many Jobs

Most manufacturing jobs located in non-metropolitan areas of Kentucky are controlled by out-of-state parent corporations, says University of Kentucky geographer Thomas Leinbach in a new study.

Leinbach and co-investigator Robert Cromley of the University of Connecticut said 79 percent of the total non-metro manufacturing workforce in 1980 was employed in branch firms, the vast majority of which are controlled by out-of-state parent companies.

And although much attention is paid to the growth of corporate power in the Sunbelt states, and corresponding decline in the North and Northeast, this does not appear to have had any effect on the organization of manufacturing in Kentucky, the researchers say.

Between 1970 and 1980, out-of-state control of Kentucky manufacturing actually increased, and remained almost exclusively tied to parent companies in the traditional "manufacturing belt."

Between 1970 and 1980, out-of-state control of Kentucky manufacturing actually increased, and remained almost exclusively tied to parent companies in the traditional "manufacturing belt."

The researchers said branch operations are usually established to effect savings in labor and fixed costs. Thus, branches tend to conform to patterns of manufacturing traditionally associated with the corporate home territory, rather than local patterns.

"Kentucky has become part of a national hinterland of production associated with these (Northern) manufacturing centers," Leinbach and Cromley said.

For more information, contact Thomas Leinbach at 606-257-1276.

Shannon Is Selected For CNN Internship

Keith Shannon, formerly of Prestonsburg, has been selected for an internship at the Washington, D.C. bureau of Cable News Network. Shannon will intern at the bureau for a three-week period in December and January. As a part of the internship program, he will participate in a rotation which will include work in production, editing, research and field reporting assistance.

The Washington bureau of Cable News Network is the center for the all Washington coverage on the network and originates the "Crossfire," "Larry King Live" and "Newsmaker Sunday" programs.

Shannon and his wife, Mitsuko, currently reside in Huntington, West Virginia. He is an associate with the law firm of VanAntwerp, Monge, Jones and Edwards in Ashland. He is also enrolled in the graduate school of journalism at Marshall University and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Lee Shannon, of Prestonsburg.

The Job Training Partnership Act was enacted into law in October 1982 and became fully operational in October 1983, according to the U.S. Department of Labor's annual report for fiscal year 1985. The law is administered by the Labor Department's Employment and Training Administration.

ONCE AGAIN, the lives of the children who attend the Garrett Elementary School are being gambled with. We have been pleading with the Board of Education and the Beaver Elkhorn Water Company for fifteen months to repair this fire hydrant, and they have failed to do so. This fire hydrant is completely inoperative. Not only is the fire hydrant practically buried by asphalt, but when inspected by Monroe Vanderpool, Chairman of Beaver Elkhorn Water Company, it could not be turned on!

We have been told that it will cost eight hundred and fifty dollars to replace the hydrant, but the Board of Education doesn't want to pay for it, even though it's on the Board of Education's property.

Is eight hundred and fifty dollars too big of a price to pay for 450 students lives?

Pharmacy Footnotes

By HAROLD COOLEY

A TWO-DAY JUMP

One of the best forms of relief from menstrual cramps is an over-the-counter antiprostaglandin drug. The important point to note is that taking these drugs should begin two days before the period and continue through the first couple of days of menstruation, or until the cramps stop. Ordinary menstrual cramps occur because a woman's progesterone level drops immediately before menstruation. At this point, another kind of hormone, prostaglandin, is produced. prostaglandin is thought to make the uterine muscles contract, causing cramps. Since the body begins producing this hormone two days before the period, the best defense is to begin taking medication then.

This is one of the jobs of your pharmacist, keeping you informed about the many and varied medications available to you. Whether filling your prescription medication or selecting an over-the-counter drug, your pharmacist is here to answer any of your concerns. You'll find COOLEY APOTHECARY located at No. 2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106 and open Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-4. MasterCard and Visa honored plus we welcome all third party payments.

HANDY HINT:
Base your predicted time for ovulation from the first day of your period.

Construction Nears End of Third Phase

Phase Three of the Mountain Christian Academy building program is nearing completion as final touches are being put on the gym and the exterior of the secondary school building.

According to Sister Judy Yunker, dean of the school, locker room additions and the erection of four retractable basketball goals have just been completed. Construction crews are currently placing siding on the exterior of the secondary school building.

Phase Three was begun in 1984 and has included construction of the gym and six adjacent classrooms. Several administration offices have also been added. Funding for the project has come from donations made both at the local and the national levels.

Yunker said the final phase of construction will begin in the near future and be completed by sometime next year. This will entail construction of a junior high annex including four classrooms and a lobby.

Yunker said the school's curriculum is constantly being upgraded and added that once the building phases were completed, major emphasis will be given to expanding certain academic programs now taught at the school with computer and health sciences two areas where funding will likely be increased.

Enrollment at Mountain Christian Academy is expected to increase from its present 285 students to 325 next year. The school opened in 1982 and serves preschool through the twelfth grade.

Basketball leagues or individuals interested in using the new basketball facilities in the MCA gym should contact Kevine Benson at 285-5141.

CARD OF THANKS

We would like to thank all the people who helped the family of Joel Martin. Jenny Wiley AARP Election of Officers

Jenny Wiley Chapter No. 3528 American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) held their November dinner meeting in the cafeteria of Highlands Regional Medical Center, last Friday evening.

Those present enjoyed a "white elephant" auction with Orville Cooley as auctioneer.

The annual election of officers was also held with the following being elected to serve for the ensuing year: James E. Goble, president; Orville Cooley, 1st vice-president; Harmison Hale, 2nd vice-president; Delmas Saunders, treasurer and Sarah Laven, secretary.

The winner of the Thanksgiving turkey given by the chapter was Warren Blanton, of Allen.

Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. James E. Goble, Mr. and Mrs. Harmison Hale, Mr. and Mrs. Bradis Goble, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Laven, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Cooley, Mr. and Mrs. James Donohoe, Dorothy Osborne, Myrtle Allen, Hager White, Glenn Anderson, Wesley Howard, Otela Smiley, Honey May, Helen Wilson, and Bill Foley.

There will be no December dinner meeting.

THESE SMILING FACES belong to the seventh and eighth grade honor roll students from Martin Elementary. This group was one of three who toured Highlands Regional Medical Center in October. The other groups were second and third graders from W. R. Castle Elementary in Johnson County, and students from P.C.C.

Hospice Observes Second Birthday

Hospice of Big Sandy celebrated its second birthday Thursday at the Holiday Inn in Prestonsburg. The organization was hosted by the Prestonsburg Kiwanis Club.

The program consisted of a look into the past by Curt Tussey, Jr., a member of the Hospice board of directors; a look at the present status of Hospice by Dr. William Cook, also a member of the board; comments from Mrs. Barbara Esteppe, the daughter of a former patient of Hospice; and a look into the future by Chris Conley, executive director of Hospice of Big Sandy.

The evening gave those attending an opportunity to see how far Hospice has come in the five years since a group of people began investigating the possibilities of a hospice in our community. In the two years that Hospice has been serving patients, it has helped 59 patients and families in Floyd and Johnson counties. Hospice has been licensed by the state of Kentucky to serve terminally ill patients since Sept., 1984.

Hospice hopes to obtain Medicare certification for its services sometime early in 1987. They will continue to offer their services to anyone in Floyd and Johnson counties who needs help in coping with the final stages of a terminal illness.

The birthday celebration was the first opportunity Hospice has had to celebrate its success with those members of the community who have helped to make its work possible.

JOHN GRAHAM CHAPTER, DAR MEETS

The regular monthly meeting of the John Graham Chapter, NSDAR, was held Tuesday evening, November 11, at the Floyd County Library, with the regent, Mrs. Carl R. Horn, presiding.

Following routine business, Mrs. Brackett reported that she and Mrs. Virginia Goble had conducted a workshop for the Louisa Chapter DAR, Saturday, November 8.

Mrs. J.G. Stepp, chaplain, conducted a memorial service. The prelude was played by Frances Brackett, and the scripture and prayer were given by Virginia Goble. Eulogies in memory of Mrs. Margaret Porter Alley and Miss Jane Kendrick were read by Maurine Mayo and Mrs. Margaret D. Collins. The Call to Remembrance was read by Mrs. Norma Stepp with the assembly giving the Response, and all praying the Lord's Prayer. White flowers were placed in vases by the regent, Mrs. Eleanor Horn. The poem, "Memoriam" was read by Mrs. Frances Brackett, and the benediction given by Mrs. Norma Stepp.

Guests attending the memorial were Suzanne Blackburn Totten, Jane Bickford Herald, Charlotte Arnett Harris, Peggy Bailey, Sis Chaffin, Kay A. Rowland, Harmison E. Hale, Eva Allen Hale, Josephine Fields, Virginia Shivel, Anna May Mellon, Edna C. Greenwade, Julia Porter Curtis, James L. Simpson, James B. Goble, and John Stepp. The next meeting will be held December 9, at 3:30 p.m., at the Floyd County Library, with Mrs. Samuel Gayhart, KSDAR School Chairman, of Hindman, speaking on "Pilgrimage of People to DAR Schools."

South Prestonsburg Homemakers News

The South Prestonsburg Homemakers' Club met November 17 at the home of Mrs. Joyce Allen and Mrs. Theckley Short. Mrs. Allen gave the devotions, and in the absence of Mrs. Karen Colvin, president, Mrs. Theckley Short presided.

The group decided to make their annual contribution to the Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad and it was announced that there would be no regular December nor January meetings. The February meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Drema Miller.

Mrs. Frances Pitts gave the lesson on how herbs and spices can be used in Christmas decorations. She also showed many ways in which homes may be decorated inexpensively with items homemakers have on hand.

A desert course was served by the hostesses, Mrs. Short and Mrs. Allen, to Mesdames Ora Bussey, Lois Ball, Frances Pitts, Drema Miller, and Carlos Haywood.

In old Norway it was believed that keys in the fields would protect the crops from hail.

REVIVAL TO BEGIN

Revival services will begin at the Community United Methodist Church, Sunday, November 30, at 11 a.m., and continue through Wednesday, December 3, with the Rev. Taylor Biggs, of South Shore, former pastor of this church, evangelist. Cottage prayer services were held at the home of Vencil Cooley, Thursday night, and will be conducted at the home of Mrs. Jean Burke, Friday, November 28, at 7 p.m.

Revival Set At Goodloe

The Goodloe Church of God, at David, will hold a fellowship revival, November 28-30. Speakers will be the Rev. Ronald Puckett, Rev. Arner Whitaker, and Rev. Kenneth Prater, Jr.

Services begin Friday and Saturday nights at 6:30 p.m., Sunday at 6 p.m. Everyone is welcome.

VISITS IN PIKEVILLE

Mrs. May K. Roberts spent several days last week in Pikeville with her granddaughters, Misses Elizabeth Anne and Sarah Roberts Baird, while their parents, Atty. and Mrs. William J. Baird, III, attended the state convention of attorneys in the Bahamas.

HERE FOR WEEKEND

Mr. and Mrs. Ward Hall, of Clarksburg, Ind., formerly of Prestonsburg, were visiting their son and daughter, Tommy and Joyce Hall, at the Cliffside Apartments over the weekend. While here, they visited their many friends in the Highland Terrace building where they were employed before moving to Indiana, September 15.

MUCH IMPROVED

Word has been received that Dr. Palmer L. Hall, former Superintendent of Floyd county schools, now retired from Morehead State University, who recently suffered a broken hip, has improved sufficiently to attend services at the church there.

To Wed, December 6

Sherry Ann Flanery and Kenneth Michael Ward, together with their parents, Mrs. Isaac Flanery and Mr. and Mrs. Lorenz Ward, are pleased to announce their engagement and forthcoming marriage. The ceremony will be solemnized December 6, 1986 at 6:30 p.m. at the First Assembly of God Church in Martin, Kentucky.

Miss Flanery is a 1985 graduate of Eastern Kentucky University and is currently employed at Jones, Pack, and Associates, C.P.A.'s of Prestonsburg.

Mr. Ward is a 1979 graduate of Johnson Central High School and is employed with Colley Block, Inc., of Pikeville.

The gracious custom of open church will be observed, and friends are welcomed to attend.

Social Events

DOCLA B. WOODS, SOCIETY EDITOR

THANKSGIVING SERVICES

Persons throughout this area are reminded of the annual Thanksgiving services to be held at the First Presbyterian Church tonight (Wednesday) at 7 o'clock. A cordial welcome is being extended.

THANKSGIVING DINNER

The Archer Senior Citizens held their annual Thanksgiving dinner, last Friday with a large crowd attending. Guests from a distance were Mrs. Karen (Evans) Stanfield and baby son, Zachary, of Lexington. Following the dinner, Mesdames Minnie Pearl Robertson, Clara Harris, and Dixie Campbell served decorated cake and ice cream in commemoration of the 81st birthday of Willie Burchett, "Happy Birthday" was sung to the honoree. Pictures of the occasion were made.

TO ENTERTAIN CIRCLE

About this time each year, Ruby and Cam Garrett choose an evergreen tree from their farm near here, flock its branches, decorate it in keeping with the rest of the house, and, on the first Monday night of December, entertain the members of the Annie Allen Circle, W.M.U., of the First Baptist Church (Irene Cole Memorial) of which Mrs. Garrett is a member and past president, to a covered-dish dinner at their home. The dinner-meeting this time will be December 1 at 7 p.m., and Mrs. Patsy Evans, president, urges members and their guests to share this occasion with the Garretts.

HERE FOR THANKSGIVING

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Salisbury and baby son, Morgan, of Memphis, Tenn., are here to spend the holidays with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Salisbury and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Patton, and other relatives and friends.

FCRTA LUNCHEON

Mrs. Danise Amburgey, president of the Floyd County Retired Teachers' Association, reminds members and prospective members of the luncheon meeting to be held at May Lodge, Thursday, December 4, beginning at 10 a.m.

CHRISTENING CEREMONY

Christened during the morning services at the Community United Methodist Church, Sunday, was Tyler John Burke, son of John, Jr., and Debra Hyden Burke. With him and his parents were his sisters, Rhiannon and Jessie Burke. Baptized during these same services were Rhiannon Burke, Jessica Gadbury, Erin Howell, and Tonya Hale.

HONORED WITH RECEPTION

A reception, honoring Mrs. Frances Fraley, president of the Rebekah Assembly of Kentucky, I.O.O.F., was held Sunday, November 23, at 2 p.m., at the I.O.O.F. Hall, Inez, with all elected and several appointive officers of the State Assembly present. Present also were many officers of the Grand Lodge of Kentucky, I.O.O.F., and members of lodges in this area.

Attending from Miriam Rebekah Lodge No. 31 were Mesdames Mabel Jean LeMaster, Mary Zemo, Sue Moore, Maman Leslie, Clara Harris, Paulena Owens, and Miss Kelly Sue Moore.

Mrs. Fraley was the recipient of many gifts which were displayed on a table in the Lodge Hall. Her family and lodge members served refreshments from tables decorated in colors of pink, orchid, and silver, which she has chosen to use for her year's work in the Order.

VISIT HERE

Mr. and Mrs. Ron Stanfield and baby son, Zachary, were here last week for a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Evans, and other relatives, and to attend the baby shower given for Mrs. Stanfield at the First Baptist Church (Irene Cole Memorial) Thursday evening.

HOSPITAL PATIENT

Mrs. Bess McGuire, who has been a patient at the Mountain Manor Nursing Home, is presently at the Highlands Regional Medical Center. Her many relatives and friends are concerned about her.

THANKSGIVING DINNER INVITATION

Persons of the Prestonsburg vicinity who are alone or have no food to prepare for Thanksgiving dinner are welcome to join members of the Community United Methodist Church in Fellowship Hall, there, Thanksgiving Day from noon until 3 p.m. If transportation is needed, or if plates are needed to be delivered, call 886-2202 or 886-8087. The Community United Methodist Women are sponsoring this event.

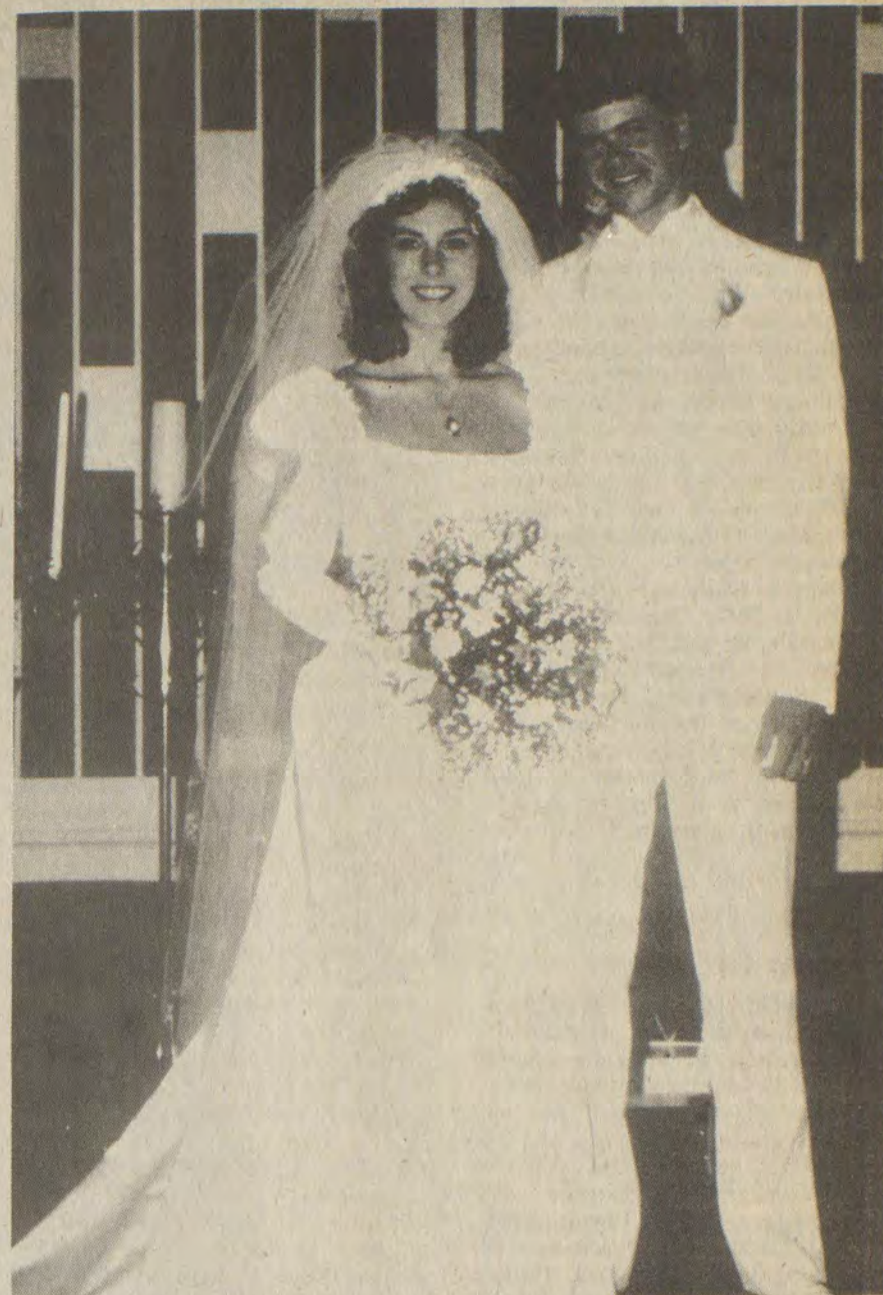

PURCHASE NEW HOME

Mr. and Mrs. Avery Wiley, of Prestonsburg, have purchased the home of the late Crit and Maggie Hall on 3rd Avenue and expect to move there, following renovation of the house.

OUR APOLOGIES

The name of Mrs. Myrtle Allen was unintentionally omitted from the list of members of the Eastern Star, who recently attended a dinner meeting, at the Lodge Hall.

Miss James, Mr. Wilson Wed

Miss Emily Abbott James, daughter of Mrs. Ruth James, of Frankfort, and Fred James, of Prestonsburg, and Airman Kenneth Wayne Wilson, son of Wayne Wilson, of Tampa, Fla., and Debbie Wilson, of Highland Heights, were married September 13, 2 p.m., at South Frankfort Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Jim Wagner performed the ceremony.

Nuptial music was provided by organist Roland Herzel and soloist Gina Tackett.

Ginger Taylor was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Stacy Reitz, niece of the bride, and Michelle Judy. Tara Black was the flower girl.

Tony Powell, uncle of the groom, was the best man. Ushers were Jeff Shelton, of Highland Heights, and Scott Wilson, of Frankfort. Brett James was ring bearer and candle lighters were Allen James and Kris Reitz.

A reception followed the ceremony at the church.

Mrs. Wilson is a graduate of Western Hills High School and will attend McMurray University, Abilene, Texas. Mr. Wilson is an airman first class in the U.S. Air Force, Abilene, Texas.

Following the wedding trip the couple are residing in Abilene, Texas.

VISIT HERE

Mrs. Digna Mandt, of Lexington, and Mrs. Maria Hill, of Frankfort, both of whom formerly resided in Prestonsburg, were visiting friends and relatives here, last Tuesday.

2,100 K Marts Ready Thanksgiving Feasts

For the second year, over 2,100 K mart Good News Committees, groups of employee volunteers, are preparing Thanksgiving feasts for some 42,000 needy families nationwide.

The main ingredients for a traditional Thanksgiving meal—over 504,000 lbs. of turkey, 336,000 lbs. of potatoes, 168,000 loaves of bread and 42,000 pumpkin pies—will be distributed to needy families across America during the program. The K mart food baskets will also contain vegetables, stuffing mix and other items collected by each K mart store.

According to the mart's Chairman Bernard M. Fauber, the positive response to last year's food basket program prompted K mart stores to sponsor the program again.

"Food basket recipients and other community members told us just how pleased they were with last year's program," Fauber said. "They welcomed our community involvement."

Locally, each K mart store will provide at least 20 needy families with food baskets. Other area businesses and community organizations can donate food to sponsor additional families. A local organization will help identify needy families in each area.

Scrubby Bear's First Birthday

Our Lady of the Way Hospital's Scrubby Bear celebrated his first birthday "better than the average bear" October 27.

Nurse Phyllis Dingus created a poem and sketch for the occasion. Invitations were sent to the Scrubby Bear program's major benefactors and the 175 bear recipients of the past year. The dining room was gaily decorated with streamers, balloons and posters describing Scrubby's first year of life.

The highlight of the celebration was Scrubby's personal appearance. Some of the little ones who found Scrubby somewhat overbearing at first, were waving across the room or sitting contentedly in his lap before the party ended.

Guests crowded into the balloon-bedecked dining room to play "Stick the Heart on the Scrubby Bear." Robert Merwine and Trina Handshoe won and received liquid hand soap in bear-decorated containers.

After the game, attention shifted to Scrubby and his cake. The traditional birthday song was sung and bear cupcakes and bear cookies were quickly consumed.

Door prizes were awarded also. Christopher Honaker won a fingernail brush; Joshua Hyden won a bear towel and George Hall won the intricately decorated Scrubby Bear cake.

The children's prizes emphasized the purpose of Scrubby Bear's existence: teaching good handwashing techniques. Since the program began on October 27, 1985, 175 hospitalized children and their families have received instruction about good handwashing. The children receive the bears to remind them to wash their hands and remind hospital staff caring for them to do likewise.

Since the program has been enthusiastically supported by the community and Our Lady of the Way's employees, the hospital's Infection Control Committee intends to continue the program. Good handwashing remains the primary way to prevent the spread of disease and infection.

HRMC Breast Center Construction Begins

Construction of the Breast Center at Highlands Regional Medical Center has begun and is scheduled to open in February.

"Fund raising for the Breast Center will still continue", commented HRMC spokesperson, Carol Blevins. "We only raised $38,000 to date, and we need $54,000 more. Our Board of Trustees authorized the construction because they felt the people in our area will continue to raise money for the Center".

The waiting room has been constructed and the construction of the corridor connecting the waiting area with the mammography room is in progress.

"Become a Part of the Walls You Build" is the slogan for the Tile Program, which has been the main fundraising project. For a $25 donation to the center you can purchase a 4x4 tile, which you personalize with your signature or a message. (Two other size tiles are available for larger donations). Your personalization will be silkscreened onto the tile and the tile will be placed on the walls of the Breast Center's waiting area.

According to Blevins, over 200 tiles have already been purchased.

"I know 200 tiles sounds like a lot", she added, "but we have four walls and we want to see them all covered with tiles".

For more information about the Breast Center or the Tile Program, contact Carol Blevins at Highlands Regional Medical Center (886-8511 or 789-6548).

SPORTS

THE SPORTING TIMES

Can the champion repeat? All sports fans love to ask the question but for last year's 15th region champion, Paintsville, everyone's favorite question is, can anyone beat the Tigers?

On paper Paintsville appears unbeatable, especially when last year's accomplishments and returning talent is considered.

Except for their regular season loss to Betsy Layne, Paintsville handled regional competition with consistent ease and four of their five starters are back for another season.

John Pelphrey heads a long list of Paintsville talent which could be one of the best Eastern Kentucky teams in recent memory.

Pelphrey has been considered by many major publications as Kentucky's top high school senior prospect but the 6' 7" forward isn't alone in Paintsville.

Joey Couch proved last year that he is also a top player in this region while Mike Minix and Keith Adkins while the Tigers probably the best back court in this area.

If Paintsville has one position weaker than a year ago, it would be at the point guard spot. Jeff Baldwin did a more than credible job of leading a youthful Tiger team in '85-'86, but Baldwin is gone. However, Paintsville is a senior oriented team this season and has more than one leadership quality player.

To deny Bill Mike Runyon another state tournament appearance will be difficult one for anyone, but the Tiger coach knows that just across town exists a squad with incredible talent.

"I think Johnson Central will provide us with our toughest competition," Runyon said. "They have four starters back, and they will have a good club."

Paintsville always has a difficult time beating their cross town rival, and this season Central has more talent than they have had during the past couple of years.

Playing in the same district that continues to stay with the draw it is more than possible that Paintsville and Johnson Central could meet in opening round district tournament play.

Also, the 57th district provides a home for always competitive Magoffin county. Along with Prestonsburg's Jeff Riley, Danny Adams is one of the top coaches in Eastern Kentucky, but this year the Hornet head man has material to work with.

Magoffin county holds bragging rights to one of the top point guards in the region with Neal West, who does a masterful job of getting his teammates involved in winning.

The Hornets have a front line average of 6' 3" which could possibly contend with Paintsville and Johnson Central but more importantly Danny Adams knows how to beat the Tigers.

"If a team were to beat Paintsville, they would have to have one of their best games and catch Paintsville on a down night," Adams said. "You would have to get an early lead, and make them play your game."

Simple enough isn't it? Virgie coach Bobby Osborne takes a different approach to beating Paintsville—talent. The Eagles are a team accustomed to winning, and this season will be no different.

The Eagles return three players who scored in double figures last season. They have height, quickness, and experience and appear to have the best chance of visiting the Sweet Sixteen, that is, if Paintsville falls short.

Headed by Richard Burdine, the Eagles are a solid group. At 6' 2", Burdine played both guard and forward last season and scored 18 points doing it.

Pint-sized Lonnie Rowe is also back, but even though Rowe is short in stature, 5' 7" in cowboy boots, this guy can certainly play and could be the quickest 15th region guard.

Coach Bobby Osborne says this version of Eagle basketball could be his best ever, and that is saying a mouthful.

"If this team comes back with the same fire that they left with, then I think that we can beat Paintsville," Osborne said.

The Eagles will have an easier time of getting to regional play than will most other teams which could give them an advantage over other tournament competition.

Allen Central is one of those teams which will give the regional title a run, and Allen Central is one of those teams that will receive a stern test in their own district.

The Rebels, like Paintsville, Johnson Central, and Virgie, return four starters. Allen Central lost by only one to the Tigers last season and could give everyone a run for their state tournament money.

Everyone has their own opinion on how the 15th region stacks up and this is only another of those opinions, but regardless of how the pie is cut, the big four of Paintsville, Virgie, and the two Centrals will more than likely get the largest pieces.

With a key break here or a disappointment there, we all could be surprised when the time comes for regional play, but I know until then be sure to visit your favorite gym. Support your local basketball team and we will all benefit.

BEST TIMES ARE YET TO COME: Although John Gilliam has already proven his college football worth, this native Floyd Countian hasn't seen his best moments on the gridiron.

Gilliam Finishes High On Eagles Defensive Listing

This 1986 football season will long be remembered as one of the most successful ever in Morehead State University history, and no one will remember it longer than John Gilliam.

Surrounded by criticism and controversy, the Eagles overcame several obstacles to equal their most wins ever season.

This is one reason why John Gilliam will remember the 1986 football season. "We seemed to turn things around this year and hopefully we can keep it going and have an even better season next season," Gilliam said.

As a junior, Gilliam emerged as one of Morehead State's top defensive performers, finishing second on the team in total tackles, another reason why John Gilliam will remember 1986.

"You can't ever really be satisfied but I think I had a pretty good season," Gilliam said of his third Eagle campaign.

Gilliam, a 6-2, 221-pound linebacker from Prestonsburg, ended the season with as total of 113 total tackles. The Philip Haywood coaching project accounted for 70 solo tackles, tops on MSU's squad, and added 43 assists to his impressive list.

What makes Gilliam's numbers even more impressive is the fact that he missed six quarters of action, including the entire Wichita State contest.

Coming into this season, Gilliam was expected to be a starter but wasn't expected to steal the linebacking show from pre-season all-American Randy Frazier.

Actually Gilliam had an opportunity to finish as the Eagles' top tackler but fell from the top when safety Kelvin Bellamy shined against Eastern. The former Blackcat star held a two-tackle lead over his teammate going into Saturday's game, but Bellamy accounted for 14 stops against the Colonels.

However, this doesn't bother Gilliam even though it would have made 1986 an even more memorable season for him.

"I would have liked to have led the team in tackles, but Bellamy had a great game against Eastern," Gilliam admitted. "I wasn't sure where I finished in total tackles, I'm just glad I got a chance to play this year."

In his career, Gilliam has consistently been among Morehead State's top defenders. In his initial season, the former third team all-stater finished sixth on the team and came back last season to end up fourth on the Eagles' defensive list in his sophomore year.

With this season in the record books, Gilliam is already preparing for 1987, but before next season arrives, Gilliam may receive several honors for his impressive work.

"Right now I'm just planning on taking some time off until after Thanksgiving then I'll get back on the weights. I need to work on my quickness, but my biggest goal is to increase my strength," Gilliam said, looking forward to his senior season.

From high school football to Division I AA football, the jump is sometimes a difficult one, but John Gilliam has leaped much further than anyone expected, even John Gilliam.

"Really and truly I never thought this could happen," Gilliam admitted. "I thought I could come here and play, but I never dreamed that I could come here and finish second in tackles."

Looking forward to next season isn't anything different for Gilliam. Most MSU football people recognize him as one of their hardest workers. Couple this with his already developed talent, and you have one of the top linebackers in I AA football.

Gilliam says his linebacking partner, Randy Frazier, is indeed a professional prospect and next season John Gilliam may have his teammates saying the exact same thing about him.

Daredevils Show Depth In Victory Over Mountain Christian Academy

Although Mountain Christian Academy isn't one of this area's tougher basketball teams, the McDowell Daredevils did prove one quality that could have been a problem area this season.

McDowell returned five players who had seen considerable playing time in the past but their reserve performers were a mystery to almost everyone, but not anymore.

After building an incredible lead in the first quarter against MCA, Daredevil Coach Rick Hall was given the luxury of watching his entire squad perform.

Reserve guard Scott Tackett, known for his defense, led McDowell in scoring with 19 points which should give Coach Hall something to smile about. Tackett along with forward Lenny Hall, are in Hall's words, the team's defensive specialists, but Saturday night these two defensive players combined for 37 points.

The Daredevils also received solid performances from reserve forwards Lance Hall and Jessie Osborne, who will probably see many minutes of playing time before this season concludes.

McDowell had five players to score in double figures. Along with Tackett and Hall, Brian Hall and Reggie Hall checked in with 14 each, while Dickie Joe Shannon added 12 points.

With a talented squad, McDowell's abilities were hardly put through a test

Experience, Stronger Bench Expected To Make Allen Central Stronger Team

All last season Allen Central basketball coach Johnny Martin watched his Rebel team struggle against deeper squads because of the lack of depth on his own team's part.

Allen Central was blessed with a solid starting corps, probably as good as any in the 58th district, but without help coming off the bench, the Rebels fell short of a 15th regional tournament berth.

However, a year will make all the needed difference for Coach Martin as the Rebels return four starters and benefit from last year's freshmen becoming this season's sophomores.

"We have a solid group of sophomores," Martin said. "They played well in front of a big crowd at Sheldon Clark, and I won't hesitate to go to them in game situations."

"This group gives us a lot more depth than we had last year," continued Martin.

Even though the coach is high on Allen Central underclassmen, his group of talented second year men may prove to be just an added luxury.

This year's Rebel team is by no means an unknown quality. Allen Central won 18 games last season and four of those starters return for a another season.

Stanton Bentley, leading scorer and rebounder with over 16 and 10 respectively, returns along with long-range bomber Roger Horne, 15 points, and Allen Central's do-it-all man, Ronnie Ousley, 15 points per game also.

Bentley proved he was among this region's top big men by outscoring and out-rebounding Paintsville's John Pelphrey and Hazard's Dwayne Cornett in head to head confrontations a year ago.

Bentley, however, has slowed in pre-season with various injuries, and his coach says the 6' 4" forward isn't near where he could have been without the ailments.

Horne, Allen Central's answer to the blond bomber craze, can fill it up from any position inside 25 feet and has the offensive ability to carry the Rebels when his shooting form is intact.

Ronnie Ousley, 6' 2" forward-guard, played every position on the court last season and possesses as much talent as anyone in the 58th district. His numbers reflect it, especially when he stays out of foul trouble.

Allen Central also returns two players who saw considerable action at the point guard position in Darrin Conn and Robbie Click. Both Conn and Click, as sophomores, shared that position last season and should excel with the additional year of maturity.

Most pre-season polls have Allen Central as this district's best team while notching the Rebels as one of the top five regional contenders.

Coach Martin won't exactly disagree with this assessment, but the coach is quick to point out the tough district road that awaits his club.

"I guess most of them base it on the fact that we have four starters back from a team that won 18 games last season," Coach Martin said of the high ranking. "But I'm sure Prestonsburg thinks they have a good club as does everyone else. This is the most balanced district we've had in years, and there aren't any weak teams in it."

Rebel fans are expecting good things for this year's team, and Coach Johnny Martin agrees with his team's supporters.

"I'll be disappointed if we don't have a good season," Martin said. "We may not win as many games as we did last season, because we couldn't schedule as many, but we still should have a good season."

At this point in preparation, Coach Martin says his team lacks defensive qualities of a year ago and board work needs work, but both of these problems areas may be solved when burley Tim Bailey returns.

Bailey suffered a fractured foot during the latter portion of football, but is expected back shortly. The 6' 4" power forward may be Allen Central's answer to solving their post position which was left vacant due to graduation.

Bailey played sparingly last season but added quickness and strength, thanks to football. Coach Martin says his team will be as good as they were last season, and if Bailey fills the middle, his squad could be considerably stronger.

Allen Central hasn't found their way to a regional tournament since 1982, but if key players can fill key roles to compliment the four returning starters then 1987 could be the year for Rebel basketball.

The Rebels will kick off their 1986-87 basketball campaign December 2 at Magoffin county before returning home to do battle in the pre-season tournament which will be held at Allen Central.

Betsy Layne Set To Repeat As Conference, District Champs

DOMINATE; to rule or control by superior power. BASKETBALL; a game played by two teams of five players each, in a zoned floor area with a raised basket at either end through which the ball must be tossed.

BETSY LAYNE; a Floyd County high school known for producing dominating basketball teams, at least during the past 10 years, in both men's and women's competition.

And for at least Lady Bobcat basketball, this 1986-87 season doesn't appear as if it will bring any changes anytime soon.

In the past five years, Lady Bobcat teams have advanced to regional play and in this streak lies three district crowns. Last season may have been the best yet for Betsy Layne, going undefeated in county play, thus taking home a conference and district championship.

With two all-conference and all-district players returning, the Lady Bobcats should be yet again the team to beat in Floyd County women's basketball this season.

With five players standing 5' 9" or taller, Betsy Layne will more than likely physically dominate as well as out-finesse most teams they face.

Ladonna Parsons returns as a starter from last season and along with forward partner Piper Presnell, Betsy Layne has a talented and experienced inside game.

If the Lady Bobcats have a weakness, it would be inexperience, but this is an area that can right itself as this season develops.

Betsy Layne appears to be strong enough to defend last year's championships, but their competition may be stronger than that of a year ago.

Prestonsburg returns three starters from a team which finished second in the conference last season, and Coach Bridget Clay thinks her team is one of the better ones in the district.

"I wouldn't say we're the best team in the district, but I think we can be one of the best teams," the Lady Blackcat coach said.

Coach Clay has her backcourt returning with Shon Burchett, 18 points and four assists per game, and Paula Harris, 15 points and six assists, back for their senior seasons.

Both Burchett and Harris were all-conference performers last season and have inside talent to work with.

Karen Frazier brings back her six points and six rebounds per contest, and Coach Clay expects 5' 9" April Stephens to bolster Prestonsburg's inside game, while incoming freshman Amy Hicks possesses "excellent potential and will see a lot of playing time."

Michelle Clemmons, according to her coach, could move into the point guard position. Clay says Clemmons shows excellent leadership needed to fill this spot which will enable the Lady Blackcat coach to do many different things with her talented guard trio.

Guard play will be a key for Allen Central, also, but the Lady Rebs have what could be the region's top point guard in junior Tonya Brown.

In earning all-conference and all-district, Brown, with solid ball handling and defense, led the Lady Rebs to a regional appearance.

The high-spirited Allen Central court leader is expected to work with another returning starter, Tonya Kester, and freshman, Joann Conn, to give Coach Bonita Compton a sound nucleus to work with.

Compton says her team is young, no seniors on the squad, and inexperienced but could become a competitive team.

"When you start a couple of freshmen, a sophomore, and two juniors, that's young, and it's going to hurt not having a senior on the team," Coach Compton admitted.

"We've got to get some experience, and if we do that with our younger players then I think by tournament time we will have a pretty good team."

While Betsy Layne, Prestonsburg, and Allen Central battle for that top seed in district tournament play, McDowell and Wheelwright will strive for contention.

Meredith Slone takes over for Doug Derossett at the McDowell helm where he inherits a team returning three starters from last year's team.

Slone says his squad lacks height which will have to be countered by quickness and outside shooting, but the McDowell coach admits that his team has failed to do this thus far.

The Lady Devils already have three games in this season, a factor that could help them in early conference action.

All teams will introduce their squads to county fans starting December 3 when pre-season conference tournament action kicks off at Allen Central.

SHORT SPORTS

The first public basketball showing of 1986 for the Betsy Layne Bobcats finished on a losing note but their record won't reflect it.

Betsy Layne came up on the short end of a 40-34 score to Montgomery county, Saturday, in the final game of the third annual Johnson Central panorama.

The Bobcats, after trailing by 14 at intermission, battled back in the second half to make the expected outcome interesting but could never overcome Montgomery county.

Betsy Layne, under new coach Craynor Slone, is forced to go with inexperienced players, and many expect the Bobcats to struggle early in this 1986-87 season.

With his second round TKO of Trevor Berbeck Saturday night, Mike Tyson became the youngest heavyweight champion ever, stripping Berbeck of his WBC title.

The victory improves Tyson's record to 28-0 with 26 knock outs, 19 to begin his career, another record for Tyson.

With another win the 19-year-old heavyweight is now in line for a shot at WBA champ Witherspoon or Tubbs with this winner going up against IBF champion Michael Spinks as professional box-

FILLING IT UP: McDowell's Lenny Hall finished as the Daredevils' second leading scorer with 18 points.

News And Notes From The NFL

Has any NFL team ever chosen a kicker as their most valuable player? Hey, don't laugh. Without Raul Allegre's kicking ability the New York Giants would all but be out of the playoff picture.

In the past two weeks, Allegre has kicked nine of nine field goals. Both Sundays the Giants have won, but in these two wins, Allegre was forced to kick a last second field goal in order for his team to come out victorious.

Most recently Allegre nailed a 35-yarder to down Denver and enable New York to maintain a partial lead in the NFC's Eastern division.

Without that kick, the Giants would be looking up to Washington who turned the tables on Dallas, Sunday.

In week six of this season, the Redskins fell hard in Dallas but back home in RFK six weeks later, Washington drilled the Cowboys, Tony Dorsett and Hershel Walker.

Dallas is a football team in trouble, especially when the playoffs are considered. The Cowboys currently find themselves three games behind Washington and New York and with Seattle, the LA Rams, and Chicago remaining the Cowboys may not qualify for even a wildcard spot.

Speaking of Chicago, they became the only team this season to have wrapped up at least a share of their division's title. The Bears did that on the strength of their victory over Green Bay and Minnesota's loss to Cincinnati.

Chicago has Jim McMahon back, or do they? McMahon re-injured his sore shoulder, thanks to a cheap Green Bay shot and the spirited leader may be out for the season.

As Minnesota and Dallas worry about their possible playoff spots the Atlanta Falcons have watched theirs disappear after making a strong run early.

For seven weeks the Falcons led the NFC West, but week eight brought the LA Rams and the end to Atlanta's reign. Now the Falcons have lost five in a row to wash out their post season hopes.

The Rams and 49ers continue their title battle, and both have tough rows to hoe. LA starts their difficult season ending stretch this Sunday with the New York Jets while San Francisco also tests Big Apple talent, entertaining the Giants on Monday Night Football.

Week fourteen brings Dallas to LA while the Jets invade San Francisco and the following Sunday Miami comes to LA and the 49ers travel to Boston way. It all ends in San Francisco Friday of the final week when the Rams take on San Francisco at home.

The remaining schedule in these final four weeks will figure prominently in who makes the playoffs and who watches at home, and no one has a higher hurdle to leap than the Cincinnati Bengals.

After this week's encounter with Denver, the Bengals have to play New England at home and then play host to Cleveland and the New York Jets.

Cincinnati will have to pull some upsets if they want a playoff position, because Cleveland doesn't have a winning team left on their schedule, except the Bengals. The only playoff chance either Cincinnati or Cleveland have is to win the Central division because neither can finish with a good enough record for a wild card choice.

Two reasons for this fact. The Denver Broncos and or the Los Angeles Raiders and the New England Patriots and or the New York Jets.

Denver's record is good enough that all they have to do is beat Cincinnati, and Kansas City or Seattle to prevent the Central division's second place finisher from earning a post season position.

First you have to figure either the Bengals or the Browns have to lose at least one because they have one game remaining with each other. Of course they could end in a tie but that isn't likely.

The Los Angeles Raiders are one game worse than Denver but the Raiders have only one winning team left, Kansas City, but they may not be a winning team come week 15.

New England is in the same situation as both LA and Denver but better off than either. The Patriots can all but eliminate Cincinnati from the wildcard picture with a win in week 14, and like LA, the Patriots are in a divisional battle and has a somewhat easier schedule left than their divisional leader, the New York Jets.

New York has the Rams and 49ers in the next two weeks and will have to play without their defensive line along with linebacker Lance Mehl. New York could also be in trouble, particularly in the divisional chase.

The playoff situation has many different courses to take before this regular season concludes and probably will, but the thing we can be sure of is that some teams do not have a post season shot.

Due to mathematics and an inability to win football games, the Buffalo Bills, Indianapolis Colts, Houston Oilers, Pittsburgh Steelers, San Diego Chargers, Philadelphia Eagles, St. Louis Cardinals, Detroit Lions, Green Bay Packers, and Tampa Bay Buccaneers are just playing until they are free to go home, except the Colts. They aren't playing because of Vinny T.

Several other teams are close to being ousted, but until the numbers say they can't win, these teams are still alive, but they have to count on other people losing, a lot.

The Miami Dolphins are one of those teams in this situation. The Dolphins kept their hopes alive for at least one more week while helping the New England Patriots after dumping New York, Monday night.

Only the future can answer the question of who can continue their season past December 19, but remember one thing, those teams already eliminated can't make the playoffs but they can play an important role in determining who actually does.

An oddity as this season comes to a close in the cities of New York and Los Angeles. Both cities have a legitimate shot of possessing two divisional winning teams. Oh, what an athletic year it has been for the city of New York.

ing attempts to unify its heavyweight title.

The Witherspoon-Tubbs bout is scheduled for December 12 with the WBC-WBA title tie set for next spring. If punches are thrown as expected, the tournament title chase will conclude next spring with a possible battle of the undefeated, Spinks 30-0, and Tyson who would be 29-0.

Philadelphia Phillies' power-hitting third baseman Mike Schmidt was voted this past week the National League's most valuable player.

Schmidt led the NL in both homeruns and runs batted in. For his efforts, the veteran performer earned his third MVP award, only the third player to be so honored.

In an unusual selection, Boston starting pitcher Roger Clemmons was selected as the American League's most valuable player.

Unusual because starting pitchers aren't usually considered MVP candidates but seldom is there a starter with the talents that make as much difference in a playoff chase than Clemmons.

Navy property David Robinson continues to be in the sports news with his basketball talent and his military duty.

The latter, however, may put an end to the former because Robinson owes the Navy four years of service.

Robinson, a pre-season all-American choice and certain first round choice without service duty, may have to put his NBA career on hold.

When Robinson first enrolled at Navy, he was a short 6-7 but in the following three years the late bloomer shot up some six inches which puts him over the midshipman limit.

The NBA, along with all basketball fans, are hoping Robinson's height will influence the Navy to reject the cadet or at least give Robinson an opportunity to pull a double shift, one for the Navy and one for professional basketball fans.

By the way, Robinson scored 36 points in his team's first game this season and against a tough team, the North Carolina State Wolfpack.

The Sports Writers Association of American, Monday, selected St. Louis relief pitcher Todd Worrell as the National League Rookie of the Year.

Worrell collected 36 saves during this past baseball season. The hard throwing right hander set a rookie record with his 36 saves.

against a young and inexperienced Mountain Christian Academy, but the Daredevils will get a better idea of where they stand among district competition next week.

The Floyd County Conference's pre-season tournament will begin December 3 when McDowell tangles with the district's number one team, Allen Central.

If McDowell continues to display the same type unselfish team play they showed during their Homecoming affair with the Falcons, then it may be Allen Central who receives a strong test.

Before the season began, Coach Hall said one major difference in this year's squad in comparison to last was their attitude. "We're all working together for one common goal," Coach Hall stated, and at least in their first contest, McDowell players proved their coach correct.

The Daredevils, now 1-0 on the season, will be off until their pre-season encounter with Allen Central during tournament play.

The McDowell Lady Devils gave their coach, Meredith Slone, a victory Saturday night as they downed Mountain Christian Academy 69-30 to complete a Homecoming sweep.

Going into their next contest, a pre-season contest with the Lady Rebs of Allen Central, McDowell has already played three games which might give them a possible advantage.

Hi, I'm Dicky Beal. I would like to introduce you to The Life Changer. Would you like to have endless energy, endurance, and stamina, without drugs or steroids? I mean, just plain feel good and have a positive attitude. Man, do I have good news for you. A friend introduced me to The Life Changer just six months ago. I haven't been the same since. I've found out that if you give your body total nutrition the natural way, your body will astound you with more dynamic performance ability. In my research, I've found that President Ronald Reagan and Queen Elizabeth take Bee Pollen, as well as many olympic athletes. Other sports figures, such as Billie Jean King, Arnold Palmer, Bill Walton and Mohammed Ali, are Bee Pollen users. Steve Redding, once tabbed as the "fastest human alive" takes Bee Pollen. Many Pro Football teams today are on a Bee Pollen program, including the Dallas Cowboys. Give your body a lift! Energize your body the natural way, and enjoy all the benefits. I challenge you to give your body the help it needs. Do what so many athletes are doing today. Put 100% natural food in your body, The Life Changer way, and BEE pleasantly surprised at the performance you'll get. Consistency is extremely important. If you really want the products to work, eat Mr. Bee Pollen every day. Allow from 2 days to 6 months for results. I wish I had discovered The Life Changer long ago.

Outdoors With Andy... "The New Breed"

By A.G. SPENCER

I have a fondness for things that carry years of use and signs of good service. Old dogs, old friends, old shotguns, old trucks—people, places and possessions that have proven their reliability, that carry memories of good times.

The old-style hunter has always been among the most dearly held of ideals for me. Men whose names were synonymous with sportsmanship, fair play and fair chase. Men who would sooner be accused of anything than poaching, trespassing, claiming game downed by another, or any other unsportsmanlike or unsafe behavior.

The old hunter avoided these misbehaviors not because he would be ostracized for such actions, although the loss of long-time companions and being shunned by his fellows would be a terrible blow, but because he couldn't even bring himself to consider poor sportsmanship or game violations.

Many of these men (some women, too!) spent several game seasons under the tutelage of their father, an uncle or maybe an older brother, not carrying a gun during this time but merely watching and learning. These folks came to appreciate hunting for the same reasons that most of us do. The sense of wonder at watching the forest coming alive as dawn rises, the feeling of oneness and communion that is shared with nature; the sheer pleasure afforded by watching a flock of wood ducks vault from the water's surface amidst the early morning mist, the amazement at seeing a doe and her fawn for the first time—all of these experiences are at once an integral part of being an outdoorsman and the epitome of that title.

The only time that the kill became of primary importance for the responsible hunter was when it was necessary in order to put food on the table. Sure, he might indulge in a little good-natured ribbing of a hunting partner who had missed more than his share that day, but both realized that the outing had been a memorable experience, not for the quantity of game taken but for the companionship, teamwork and sightings of animals and scenery. They also understood that one does not hunt in order to kill, but rather, one kills in order to have hunted.

Though I am no wizened oldtimer, I can clearly remember toting groundhogs and squirrels, watching and learning about safe gunhandling and good sportsmanship from an uncle for the better part of a year before being allowed to carry a firearm afield. I honestly feel that spending that time "paying my dues," and coming to love the outdoors for its own beauty and for the joy of being outside, rather than for just the game provided by its fields and forests, is responsible for maintaining my interest in hunting and ecology.

Unfortunately, there's a new breed afield who does not know what it is like to feel as though he is a part of the natural surroundings. Some are youngsters who have been turned loose with a gun but without the proper instruction or supervision required in order to be safe, responsible sportsmen. Others shoot signs, throw out their popcans and other debris to litter the landscape as they leave an area, don't ask permission to hunt on the property of others, and fire at sounds and colors instead of properly identifying their target, despite knowing better. Still others are simply looking for something to kill.

While the inexperienced and the thugs in the woods comprise a distinct minority among sportsmen as a whole, they give all of us a black eye in the view of the nonhunting public. How many dead and wounded livestock, shot-up signs and cut fences would it take before you ceased to permit hunters to traipse across your land?

Yet, every season we read about some unfortunate blowing his head off by pulling a loaded gun out of a vehicle by its muzzle, or hear of another fatality which took place because some dolt couldn't distinguish between the plastic sheen of a blaze orange vest and brown fur in a bright, sun-lit field, or of another incident in which someone's pet cat, prized hunting dog or show horse was destroyed.

How do we cure this enigmatic problem? Banning hunting is not the answer, any more than it would make sense to convict innocent members of a murderer's family because of his crime. Besides, hunting is widely acknowledged by game biologists as a valuable game management tool, not to mention the tremendous revenue generated by taxes on licenses and ammunition (which exclusively fund each state's game and wildlife department), or the clear intentions of our nation's forefathers to maintain the right to keep and bear arms and to continue the heritage of hunting and proper game management.

As sportsmen interested in preserving this heritage of hunting for our children and grandchildren, there is something we can do about this dilemma. Many states already require that you successfully pass a hunter's safety course before being permitted to purchase a hunting license. No, this isn't a tool being used by some ultra-liberal politicos to eventually ban sport hunting. Indeed, this requirement is usually found in the conservative states in our nation's West.

A mandatory hunter's safety test would eliminate much of the tragedy that results from gunplay each year, as well as be a valuable instrument through which we could leave another important heritage to our descendants—the heritage of firearms safety.

As I have written this, I have not seen the pages, being blinded by outrage and regret. The regret stems from reading of the death of 46-year-old Robert B. Brown, of Taylorsville, who accidentally shot himself in the chest about seven miles east of his hometown last Thursday while crossing a fence. Brown was carrying a handgun in his pocket, and the sidearm discharged as he attempted to negotiate a fence. Aside from the basic tenet of firearm safety that you not cross a fence, ditch or other obstacle with any loaded firearm, it is illegal to carry a handgun in your pocket, as it is then considered a concealed weapon. When you are afield, you can only carry a handgun on your person legally if it is in your hand or in an exposed holster.

My sense of outrage is caused by the fact that one of my beagles is fighting for his life at the veterinarian's as I type this because some idiot thought he looked like something to shoot at. Not satisfied with having nearly killed the poor animal with the first shot, this person poured on more buckshot as the dog fled. I have no idea who did this thing, having been away from the house when it happened, but it would do no one any good for me to know.

If the dog lives, and is not crippled for life, he will be unable to hunt, as this incident will have left him gunshy for the remainder of his life. Of course, that he will be useless to me as a hunting dog is the least of my worries, as I just want to get my once-promising one-year-old beagle back home, safe and sound. (Until next week, please be safe. Happy hunting!)

Artists throughout the United States are invited to submit original artwork for the 1988 Kentucky Trout Stamp competition.

Issued by the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, the Kentucky trout stamp is a license which sells for $3.50. Revenue from the sale of the stamp is used to fund Kentucky's trout stocking program and trout management research.

Entries for the 1988 competition will be accepted from December 15, 1986 until March 16, 1987. Artists wishing to submit an entry should request complete rules, entry requirements and procedures by writing: Trout Stamp Coordinator, Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, #1 Game Farm Road, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601, or telephone (502) 564-4336.

Kentucky's Trout Stamp Competition began in 1984. Winning designs have been submitted by artists from Texas, Michigan, Kentucky and Oregon. Limited edition art prints of the winning designs of 1984, 1985 and 1987 are still available.

MUSKRAT CREOLE

For some reason, the poor muskrat is largely ignored by connoisseur of game meat. Perhaps it is his name, or the fact that many think his only utility is for his fur coat. Most people don't realize that muskrat is not only edible, but his meat is really quite good.

With the current popularity of cookin' cajun, this next recipe is particularly appropriate.

Ingredients for Creole Sauce:

- 1/4 cup butter
- 2 onions, minced
- 2 medium green peppers, diced
- 1 cup sliced mushroom
- 2 cups chicken broth
- salt and pepper to taste
- dash of cayenne
- 1 bay leaf
- pinch of thyme
- 1/4 cup minced ham
- one quart canned tomatoes, peeled and chopped

Saute onions, peppers, and mushrooms in butter for approximately five minutes in the bottom of a heavy pot. Add the remaining ingredients and simmer for about 15 minutes, stirring occasionally to prevent sticking.

Brown muskrat cut into serving-sized pieces in a skillet with hot oil on low heat. Add just enough of the creole sauce to cover the meat and simmer over a very low flame until the meat is tender. Stir occasionally to make certain the sauce is not sticking or scorching on the bottom of the pan. If the sauce becomes too thick before the meat is tender, add a couple of spoons of hot water. Serve with brown rice.

Kentucky Afield...

Striper Fishing Gets Better And Better At Cumberland

Late November through early March is probably the best time to fish for striped bass (rockfish) than any other time during the year.

Lake Cumberland, over the past few years, has evolved into one of the premier lakes in the nation to catch trophy-sized stripers. The current state record rockfish, which weighed over 58 pounds, was taken last December by Roger Foster of Somerset, Ky. The record Foster broke was set just a year earlier, also in December, when Robbie Bell, of Monticello, hoisted a striper in excess of 49 pounds from Cumberland.

"The big embayments like Indian Creek, Beaver Creek, Otter Creek, Caney Creek, Wolfe Creek and Lilly Creek are probably the best spots to find rockfish at Cumberland, yet they're present any where in the reservoir," said Benjamin Kinman, technical program coordinator for the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources' fisheries division. Kinman explained the nature of the species is to move from place to place in lakes, depending heavily on where bait fish are located. Gizzard and threadfin shad will seek warmer water which flows into creeks after a late autumn or winter rains, which in turn leads the predator stripers to the same areas to feed.

Rockfish were introduced into Lake Cumberland in the 1960s, but the fishery did not develop until after stocking rates were increased in the mid-70s to four to seven fish per acre. Following the 1979 and 1981 stockings at 10 fish per acre, the process was halted for evaluation and determined successful. Supplemental stockings were then continued more recently in 1984-86 at the rate of five fish per acre, which does not jeopardize the forage base and maintains a "good to excellent" striper fishery, according to Kinman.

He explained fish from 2-5 pounds are from recent stockings, then a gap occurs until the 18-25 pound range present from the 1981 class. The 40 pound and above fish are those from the stocking efforts in the mid-70's, substantiating his statement that the majority of stripers in the lake are trophy-size fish.

"It's not uncommon to see fishermen carry out 100 pounds of fish in one day when they're hitting hot," said Kinman. Even so, the biologist said the striper fishery can withstand more pressure than it is receiving. "Beaver and Otter Creek are notorious places to fish stripers, yet the rest of the lake (where stripers are also present) is not too heavily utilized.

"The problem is locating the fish since they move so frequently," Kinman added. Stripers are well-known for the fight they put up when hooked. However, a conventional bass rig with a stiff rod, plenty of 14-17 pound monofilament and a dolly jig/twister tail combination should work as well as anything else. Shad-type crank baits and large surface lures have also produced many excellent fish from the lake.

The limit on rockfish and their hybrid is five fish per day, with a 15-inch minimum size limit. For anglers interested in striper fishing, Striper Magazine will be holding a tournament at Lake Cumberland November 22-23.

Kinman mentioned one other item anglers should have at their disposal. "If you're going to fish for stripers, you better take a large-hooped landing net, because if you hit a big one, you're definitely going to need it."

Bassin' With the Pros...

Bottom Fishing Tactics

By TREY FOERSTER

It's already here: Autumn bassin'. For some it's a blessing, for others in the north it marks an end of a fishing season. Or does it?

In a rough rule of thumb, the autumn period for bass fishing is August through November, and is governed by water temperature. It only stands to reason that as the water temperature drops below 60 degrees, bass activity will drop off. The heat of the summer months is long past, and the cooling off period has been active for at least three months. In mid-fall, water temperatures range from a high in the 70s during the day to the high 50s at night and is quite an ally in zeroing in on locations of bass. The cooler water pulls more oxygen from the air, thus invigorating bass for feeding activity the next day!

You must also remember that during this mid-fall period, bass are stocking up for the winter. However, the food supply hardly matches the bass' appetite. And you couldn't ask for a better time to be out on the water!

Another favorable factor for the angler at this time of year is that bass stay closer to deeper areas and bunch up there. Only in at least 10 feet of water do bass congregate in any numbers; most bass pros suggest 10 to 20 feet of water minimum. Don't over look brush-piles, weedbeds and the like located near this deep water.

In the late fall, when water temperatures dip below 55, the bass have pretty much held their fall feed and are suspended in the middle of a lake or in deep holes in river or creek channels. And that's when you need to know about deep water fishing tactics. Here are a few tips from David Wharton and Guido Hibdon, both members of the Johnson Outboards Pro Staff.

"There are three primary baits to use in fall and one of them is the jigging spoon, like a Hopkins Shorty-75 or a Mann-O-War, of course the jig-and-eel, and worm. The number-one big fish bait for the late fall and winter definitely is the jig-and-eel," stresses David Wharton. "The name of the game is to catch the big fish. So you may as well throw the bait that's going to produce them."

For some anglers who have not been successful with this combination, there seems to be a mystique about its usage.

"There really isn't a great secret in using the jig-and-eel," Wharton explains. "I fish mine a whole lot like I do a worm. I change techniques on it, presentations of it, depending upon what the bass is doing. That's something that you'll have to play by ear or learn through experience. Sometimes I'll hop the bait up off the bottom and let it fall back. Sometimes I'll want to drag it a little bit, or move it slower. It depends on the way the bass are reacting and what's going on on that particular day."

"Until Thanksgiving, we have some of the best bass fishing in the country going on here," states Guido Hibdon of Missouri. "In our clear water lakes you can use a Fat Gibson, or little grubs and jigs."

"On Table Rock Lake," Hibdon continues, "the bass are about 35 feet deep and you can catch some awfully big spotted bass. It seems the deeper you go, the bigger the Kentucky spotted bass are. The largemouth stay shallower a lot longer than the spots do, but in the middle of November they'll start down and get right down there with the Kentuckies around 30 to 40 feet deep."

New OMC Cobra four-cycle motor is a superior, high viscosity lubricant designed for high performance stern drive engines, according to OMC. OMC Cobra motor oil has a high-detergent-dispersant level to resist sludge build-up and keep engines clean and piston rings clear. It is available from most Johnson, Evinrude and OMC marine dealers and comes in a convenient quart bottle.

Kidd Finishes First Season

Former Bobcat running back Darwin Kidd completed his first season as a Union College Bulldog. In their third year of football the Bulldogs finished at 7-3 and 18th in the nation and Head Coach John Ross thinks next season will bring even better things to Union football. Although Kidd was used sparingly this season Bulldog coaches say he will see a lot of playing time before he leaves Union.

Harry Dean Snodgrass

Harry Dean Snodgrass, wellknown insurance agent, died Sunday at his home at Allen, victim of an apparently self-inflicted gunshot wound. He was 71 years old.

Born January 2, 1915 in Ashland, he was a son of the late George and Myrta Ewing Snodgrass. Former owner of the Snodgrass Insurance Agency, he was a member of the Christ United Methodist Church at Allen and of the John W. Hall Masonic Lodge No. 950, F&AM. He was also a member of the El Hasa Shrine Temple of Ashland.

He is survived by his wife, Maude Callison Snodgrass; a son, Ronnie Snodgrass, of Allen, and a daughter, Charlotte Thompson, of Washington Courthouse, O.; one brother, John Snodgrass, of Park Hills, Ky.; five grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted today (Wednesday) at 1 p.m. at the Christ United Methodist Church at Allen by the Revs. Ken Lemaster and Tiny Crisp. Burial will be made in Davidson Memorial Gardens at Ivel under direction of the Nelson-Frazier Funeral Home.

At one time in Europe, special New Year's cakes in the form of a boar were made from the first sheaf cut at the last harvest.

HRMC Workers Join Smokeout

Several employees of Highlands Regional Medical Center took a day off last Thursday to celebrate the Great American Smokeout. They weren't taking a day off from work, but the day off from smoking.

A "Help Station" was set up in the Main Lobby of the hospital. The "Station" distributed Survival Kits, hard candy, buttons, stickers, brochures, and sympathy for the smoker trying to quit. "We were really pleased with the response," said Carol Blevins, HRMC Public Information Officer. "Over 100 people came by our 'Help Station' to find out about the Smokeout. Several had stopped smoking years ago and received the 'Star' button for achieving their goal."

Seven hospital employees were adopted by non-smokers. The adoption program is designed to help the smoker get through the day by offering him or her moral support.

After regular working hours, the "Help Station" moved up to the Respiratory Therapy Department, so night shift employees could pick up their survival kits.

The Office of Federal Contract Compliance Programs completed 5,217 compliance reviews during fiscal year 1985, the largest number for any fiscal year since the program was consolidated in fiscal 1979, according to the Labor Department's Annual Report for Fiscal year 1985.

Delta Kappa Gamma To Meet December 6

Delta Kappa Gamma International will meet at the Paintsville Public Library, Saturday, December 6, at 2 p.m., when the Christmas program will be presented. In charge of the meeting will be Mrs. Zella Wallace Wells, president of the local chapter.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Kathleen Reynolds express their thanks to all who helped during the passing of their loved one. Thanks to all who sent food, flowers and expressed words of comfort. A special thanks to the United Christian Baptist Church for their comforting words and to the Floyd Funeral Home for its kind and efficient service.

BIG SANDY BOARD OF REALTORS HOME OWNERSHIP

"Happy Thanksgiving"

This Thursday, November 27, we Americans will be celebrating Thanksgiving. For most of us this will mean an elaborate feast and family fellowship.

As we enjoy this day, let us remember to give thanks. Thanks to our forefathers who had the vision of a new way of life and thanks for our present standard of living.

We, as Americans, enjoy many rights. One of the best is our right to own property. Look around you as you enjoy the festivities. No where else but America offers you the best in private property ownership. The American dream of home ownership has become a reality for more Americans this year than we could have imagined. Count your many blessings and give thanks for living in a land where our way of life is possible.

Ky. Students Meet Teacher Planning For Space Mission

Barbara Morgan said one of the things she expects to discover on her voyage as the nation's next Teacher in Space, is "how small and fragile our planet is." She was answering a question from a Frost Middle School student in Louisville on Nov. 17. Morgan, a third-grade teacher from Idaho, trained at the Johnson Space Center in Houston with Christa McAuliffe. "The Teacher in Space program was designed not only to put a teacher in space but also to put space in your classroom," Superintendent of Public Instruction Alice McDonald told the students.

The sixth- through eighth-graders were among 79 from the Louisville school who traveled to the Air and Space Museum in Huntsville, Alabama last week. Principal Nancy Weber and Janet Pearson, who teaches eighth-grade science, arranged a two-day bus trip.

"What would you like to accomplish by traveling in space?" one student asked Morgan.

"The astronauts do a wonderful job of explaining what is going on, but I want to be your eyes, your ears and your body and share the experience with you," she said.

The next NASA mission will be launched in February 1988, Morgan said. Its goal will be to launch a third satellite like one that was to be launched by the failed Challenger mission. The second and third flights will be Department of Defense missions while the fourth will launch another satellite.

Astronauts are usually scheduled a year in advance, she said. Crews have not yet been selected for those missions, so she doesn't know when she may travel.

Morgan said she plans to return to teaching after she returns from her mission. "Most of my important work is here on earth. Being Teacher in Space is a way of combining two great jobs."

After the Challenger disaster, Morgan stepped into many speaking engagements scheduled for McAuliffe as well as her own. Now she is team teaching and allows one week a month for NASA travel.

The shuttle accident revived awareness in the space program, she replied to a student's question. "We have more connections than we know to the space program," she said, mentioning increased computer use as an example.

Morgan, 35, is a California native who began her teaching career on a Montana Indian reservation. She has taught at McCall-Donnelly Elementary School in McCall, Idaho, since 1975, except for two years of teaching English and science to third graders in Quito, Ecuador.

She earned a bachelor's degree with distinction in human biology from Stanford University and teaching credentials from the College of Notre Dame, Belmont, Calif.

Morgan also visited Henry Clay High School in Lexington and L.C. Curry Elementary in Bowling Green, where one of Kentucky's Teacher in Space finalists, Judy White, teaches.

Local Physician Receives Fellowship In A.A.F.P.

Dr. Allan Halbert, of Martin, has been named a Fellow of the American Academy of Family Physicians.
 The degree of Fellowship may be attained in either of two ways: Successful completion of 600 or more hours of accredited continuing medical study, or achievement of diplomate status in the speciality of family practice as a result of passing a certifying examination administered by the American Board of Family Practice. In addition, those elected to Fellowship after January 1, 1986 have been members of the American Academy of Family Physicians for at least six years.
 Fellowship entitles the conferee to use the title, "Fellow of the American Academy of Family Physicians", or "FAAFP". The degree was conferred September 30 upon more than 800 members of the Academy in conjunction with AAFP's Annual Convention and Scientific Assembly in Washington, D.C. Fellowship candidates wore academic robes and mortarboard caps. They were recognized according to state chapter groups and the oath of Fellowship was recited en masse.
 The 57,000 member AAFP, headquartered in Kansas City, Missouri, was instrumental in establishing the medical speciality of family practice in 1969. It also was a pioneer in continuing medical education (CME), requiring its members to maintain 150 hours of approved CME credit every three years.
 Dr. Halbert is a native Floyd countian and currently is practicing in Martin.

"Adoption Week" Focus Is On Children With Special Needs

For more than 200 children in Kentucky, the week of various celebrations surrounding the Thanksgiving holiday carries far more significance than simply the traditional meaning.

The week of Nov. 23-29 also marks the national and Kentucky observance of Adoption Week. And those 200 children hope the week's theme, "Adoption is Uplifting," will gain attention as they await placement through the state's Special Needs Adoption Program (SNAP).

"We all think of this time of the year as a time of giving thanks for what we have received," said Anna Grace Day, commissioner of the Department for Social Services. "These children all want to give thanks for the same thing—a permanent home and family of their own."

Adoption caseworkers around the state have been invited to participate in a series of balloon-o-gram launches to publicize the state's adoption efforts. "We want to get the word out that there are Kentucky children waiting and needing a loving, stable home with the right family," said Day.

In 1985 Kentucky was forced to close its non-special needs adoption waiting list of approximately 4,500 couples, some of whom have been waiting to adopt a healthy, white baby since 1979.

At the same time, interest by prospective adoptive parents in the SNAP process has increased. "People are learning that the term 'special needs' applies to a wide range of needs," Day said. "Some of our children do have physical, mental or emotional handicaps. However, SNAP also has children awaiting a home because of their age or sibling relationships."

Kentucky has one of the nation's outstanding overall adoption success ratios—nine out of every ten placements become final.

Brooke Darrow, manager of the state's adoptions branch, said the high success rate is in direct relation to the time and effort put into placements by the SNAP worker, the local adoption caseworker and the SNAP parents.

"Adoption is a complicated process, because simply wanting to give a home to a child is only the starting point," Darrow said. "We understand the frustration of waiting for a child. However, without adequate preparation for adoption, the alternative may be tragic."

Kentucky's Special Needs Adoption Program involves pre-placement training and discussions by prospective parents with caseworkers and other SNAP parents. Once specific children have been selected for placement, a series of visits take place under the watchful eye of the adoption worker.

If all goes well, a successful placement may be ready for final approval by a Kentucky circuit judge within six to nine months after initial placement.

"This is not a quick process designed simply to find homes for our special needs children," Darrow said. "Sometimes even a SNAP family may wait months before the placement of a child is made. If the prospective parents place narrow limitations on the type of child they want, it may be even longer."

In the end, according to Day, the time spent is time well spent. "Being a parent today may be the most complex task any of us can assume," she said. "In the case of adopting a child, especially children with special needs, time for adjustment and learning are vitally important to the future of the child and that entire family."

Information on adoption, SNAP, financial assistance to eligible SNAP families and other services to adoptive families may be obtained from any local office of the Department for Social Services or by calling 1-800-432-9346.

Little Ben

Thomas Benjamin Flanery, of Maytown, celebrated his second birthday, November 16. Last January the doctors of Lexington Clinic discovered that Ben had a large brain tumor. Since then, he has undergone five major operations and numerous complications.

We wish to thank everyone for their prayers for Ben. God has worked miracles for him this year. If it were not for him, Ben would not have celebrated his birthday this year. We thank everyone who visited him, brought gifts or helped in any way. We especially thank Dr. Leon Ravvin, of Lexington, and Dr. Steve Davis and Dr. Tina Slusher, of Pikeville, also the other doctors of St. Joseph and U.K. Hospitals, who were involved in Ben's care. He is doing much better now but still has a long way to go. Keep praying for his complete recovery.

Ben is the grandson of Thomas Ray and Libby Ree Flanery, of Maytown, also of Clinton and Anna Mae Huff, of Eastern.

Big Sandy RC&D Covers Floyd Area

The RC&D Program was established by the Food and Agriculture Act of 1962. This act authorizes the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) to help local units of government to conserve and properly use natural resources in solving local problems. It assigns the leadership role to the Soil Conservation Service.

The Big Sandy RC&D area covers Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Pike counties. The council that runs the area is made up of representatives from the sponsoring organizations, county governments, soil conservation districts, towns and other non-profit groups. Council members include farmers, teachers, politicians, homemakers and others who are volunteering their time to solve local problems.

The Big Sandy RC&D council has broad authority to seek help from the sources they feel are best qualified to provide the needed assistance. The help may be technical assistance from USDA agencies, KY state agencies, local governments, conservation districts, or private industry. It may be in the form of donations, loans, grants, or cost sharing programs.

The council is assisted by an RC&D coordinator, Harry Bilton, a USDA employee. Mr. Bilton is a planner, proposal writer, negotiator, innovator, motivator, creator, expeditor and whatever else the council needs. His work was instrumental at the Oil Springs School, Johnson county, flood proofing project.

African Nations Try To Balance Needs

By VICKI MOESER
Smithsonian News Service
NAIROBI, Kenya—The tour group spotted the elephant carcass on the second day of a three-week photographic safari that would take the visitors through Kenya and Tanzania. The enormous body was lying in tall grass just a few yards from a well-traveled dirt road in Meru National Park, a 700-square-mile wildlife refuge in central Kenya. The majestic elephant had been slaughtered illegally for its ivory tusks.

The animal had been shot by an automatic weapon or a homemade muzzle-loader gun. The elephant's back was to the road, sparing the tourists a grisly view of the creature's butchered face. Poachers could have just chopped the top off of the exposed tusk, but they might have split or shattered the ivory. So they mutilated the elephant's face, removing the ivory from the large cavities beneath the eyes.

The ivory, or "white gold" as it is sometimes called, sells on the open market for up to $170 a pound and often ends up in the Orient. There, it is carved into jewelry and knickknacks, comprising much of a $500 million-a-year industry.

"Elephants don't give up their tusks without a fight," one safari leader said. "You can't just walk up to an elephant and break off a tusk. The animal has to die before someone gets his hands on that ivory." His prediction for the future of the world's largest land mammal? "Grim, very grim."

Throughout Africa, elephants and other animals long identified with this continent are dying. Poaching is one reason; loss of habitat caused by a burgeoning human population encroaching on areas once inhabited by the free-ranging animals is another. Ironically, when, for example, the animals in Kenya suffer, so does the country, which depends heavily on income from European and North American tourists.

Now, however, many officials in most African nations—with Kenya setting an example—seen determined to put an end to this vicious cycle through a combination of vigorous anti-poaching activities, improved park management and aggressive measures to reduce their countries' birthrates.

Sections of the Masai Mara, located in the southwest corner of Kenya and encompassing 540 square miles of the northern Serengeti-Mara Plains, exemplify the dilemma facing these nations. Kenyan-born safari leader David Penrose says, "In the old days, as the elephant herds grew, the animals were able to migrate to new areas. In some parts of the country, many elephants still range beyond a park's borders. But in segments of the Mara, the elephants run headlong into problems. They get up to the park's boundary, and bang, that's it. They run into developed areas and become potential victims of farmers, hunters and poachers."

Poaching is a more serious problem for the black rhinoceros, the fastest-diminishing large mammal on the planet. The ponderous animals are being killed for their horns at what some experts describe as an "unstoppable rate." Those horns fetch more than $1,500 a pound on the world market.

At the turn of the century, a million rhinos inhabited all of sub-Saharan Africa. In the past six years, rhino populations have been wiped out in nine of those countries. In the 1960s, an estimated 20,000 black rhinos lived in Kenya alone. Now this country's fragmented rhino population numbers only a few hundred.

The poachers' trophy, the rhino's horn, is not composed of true horn at all, but of matted, compacted hair. Demand for rhino horn, says Tom McShane, the World Wildlife Fund's African Program officer, is greatest in North Yemen and Asia.

"In the Middle East," McShane says, "rhino horns are made into expensive, elaborately carved dagger handles. In the Far East, the horn is not used as an aphrodisiac, as many people believe, but is ground up for medicinal purposes, such as a fever suppressant."

Indeed, according to Nehemiah Arap Rotich, executive director of the East African Wildlife Society in Nairobi, rhino horn is easy to sell, regardless of its form. "A whole rhino horn may command as much on the black market as a ground horn. Rhinos are easy to poach. They're solitary animals with bad eyesight. Once the poachers kill the animal and get the horn, it's easy to smuggle it out of the country. Elephant tusks are more difficult to hide. And if a tusk is at all damaged, its value decreases."

While most experts agree that the only way to halt the poaching is to stop or control the lucrative market, some countries, Kenya in particular, are leading the way in establishing and equipping crack anti-poaching units to protect the wildlife.

An even greater threat than poaching to Africa's animals, however, is loss of habitat due to a high human birthrate—the highest in the world. Kenya's population is growing at a rate of 4 to 5 percent a year compared to a rate of 0.7 percent in the United States. "Unfortunately," Penrose says, "when habitat is lost, so is space for tourism—and the income tourists bring. Therefore, the government has initiated a program to get the population growth under control."

That program includes an increased number of family planning and health care clinics and radio, TV and educational pitches aimed at schoolchildren and adults, which extol the benefits of smaller families, such as a higher standard of living. The program is still in its infancy, but officials say the response has been encouraging.

Tourism is currently Kenya's second biggest source of foreign exchange—right behind coffee and tea exports. Even though big-game hunting was outlawed in 1977, wildlife continues to be the backbone of Kenya's tourism trade. The government's target is to attract a million tourists by the end of next year.

The tourists are certainly welcome, but their sheer numbers can prompt headaches. Most of Kenya's 600,000 tourists crowd into the 13 national parks and 24 national reserves between June and November, straining resources and threatening the fragile ecosystems. Several of Kenya's protected areas suffer from such problems as off-road driving, excessive noise and frequent harassment of such vulnerable species as the cheetah.

Cheetahs are hurt by tourism, Arap Rotich of the East African Wildlife Society says, in part because they are daytime hunters. "The cheetahs are out there trying to make their kills while the tourists are in the parks. The mini-buses and tour operators will sometimes move between the cheetah and its prey so that the tourists can get a better view. This is, after all, why people are coming to Africa. But the cheetah is a shy animal, and once three or four vehicles show up, the cat will just walk away; other predators will take its kill. Since the animal only hunts once every three or four days, it could be a week or so before it eats again."

The cheetah faces another problem unrelated to tourism. David Wildt, a reproductive physiologist with the Smithsonian's National Zoological Park, says that genetically, "all cheetahs look alike." Studies by Wildt and others show that the cheetah is vulnerable to disease and has an infant mortality rate that is estimated at 40 percent.

"The most plausible explanation for the cheetah's unusual genetic makeup," Wildt says, "is that at some point in the past, the species went through a bottleneck, a severe population reduction. This was followed by inbreeding, which further diminished the gene pool. But despite their genetic uniformity, cheetahs are existing in sufficient numbers in the wild, and if man doesn't interfere, they should do well."

The East African Wildlife Society is one group that welcomes zoo researchers from abroad. "American and European researchers have made many useful contributions to animal conservation in Kenya," Arap Rotich says. "In many cases, they've been able to breed African animals in captivity, gathering data that have been useful in forming policies for managing our parks and animals in the wild."

Arap Rotich does not join those who are predicting doom and gloom for Africa's wildlife. "The worst is over for the animals. If present trends continue, there's reason for optimism." He cites among Kenya's activities a planned rhino sanctuary at Lake Nakuru that would consolidate the vulnerable, scattered black rhinos into a protected area where they will be allowed to breed. Long-term proposals call for additional sanctuaries and eventual reintroduction into the rhino's natural habitats.

"If the government continues to be mindful of the animals and gives them specific protective measures," he says, "their future looks good." Presumably, their preservation is a good thing for all of Africa's plant and animal species, great and small. As one safari leader put it: "I don't want to live on a sterile planet, and I hope there are others who feel the same way. I find good company in other creatures besides man."

Estate Planning Makes Sense

By Attorney General
DAVID L. ARMSTRONG

Most of us want to provide well for our loved ones, both emotionally and financially. One way to be sure that your property is distributed according to your wishes is through wise estate planning today. There are many laws, both state and federal, which may concern the decision you make in planning for your estate.

For example, if you die without a will (intestate) your property will be distributed according to a formula set forth by law. Subject to the general rights of a surviving spouse to obtain one-half of the real and personal property held by the decedent at the time of death, the property of someone who dies without a will is distributed first to children and their descendants, if any, and then to one's surviving parents, and then to the surviving spouse and other surviving relatives.

You may also take certain steps to hold property jointly with a spouse or other person so that legal title is controlled by the surviving joint owner immediately upon one's person's death, without subjecting that property to probate.

A holographic will, one that is written totally in the handwriting of the person preparing it, is still recognized in Kentucky, but you may wish to contact an attorney not only for decisions concerning your will, but about all other aspects of estate planning as well.

Decisions such as whether to prepare a will, the selection of an executor of the estate, and those decisions which will affect your tax liability, are all matters where the correct choice will differ according to one's individual situation and, therefore, may require more specific legal advice. Regardless of which preparatory legal steps are best for you, it makes sense to plan ahead.

For more information, contact the Office of the Attorney General, Capitol Building, Frankfort, Ky. 40601 or call (502) 564-7600.

PARVO

COPYRIGHT 1986 KVMA

Kentucky Veterinary Medical Association
Spring and fall seem to be the times of the year when a potentially deadly disease called Canine Parvovirus makes appearances. It has had a devastating impact on the world's canine population since it was first diagnosed in 1978.

Even though vaccines are available which can prevent it and treatment is often effective, particularly in older animals, the disease persists.

The virus is highly contagious between dogs and is transmitted by way of stool, urine or closely confined air. However, exposure to the virus does not necessarily mean infection. Apparently resistance varies considerably from animal to animal, and consequently the intensity of the disease and symptoms also varies.

At the mildest, parvo infection may not cause any visible symptoms. At its most severe, the owner may notice lack of appetite, vomiting, profuse and often bloody diarrhea, high fever, dehydration and often death—all within 24 hours. In between, any combination of signs is possible.

The virus grows cells quickly and attacks the intestinal lining, literally dissolving it, resulting in diarrhea and severe bleeding as well as poor digestive ability.

In young dogs there is an even more insidious form of attack possible, because the parvovirus also invades the heart muscle presenting the possibility of sudden death due to heart failure. This can follow an apparent recovery from the diarrhea form of the disease, or can occur without the other form ever occurring.

Treatment must be swift and intense to be of any success in preventing a large number of deaths in young dogs. Older animals, with appropriate treatment, are much more likely to survive. Treatment consists of replacing lost fluids, control of diarrhea and vomiting and antibiotics. The area in which the animal is kept must be cleaned with disinfectant to keep the virus from spreading.

Vaccination is by far the best way to control parvovirus, as well as the least costly. Cost of treatment can be significant, cost of vaccination is modest by comparison.

During the first few years the vaccine which protects against cat distemper was used as an emergency measure, because it had some short term effect against parvovirus. Then, when canine vaccines against parvovirus were introduced, there was some concern that they might make the animal more susceptible to other diseases.

There are now available vaccines against parvovirus which have been thoroughly tested and have no adverse side effects.

Your veterinarian can advise you concerning the need for vaccination (sometimes it is advisable to vaccinate more often than once a year) and he is also kept up to date on the number of cases reported in your community.

The first issue of "Sour Mash," a campus humor magazine, appeared in February 1936 at the University of Kentucky. It was supervised by Sigma Delta Chi, a journalism honorary.

The History Corner...

"The Boone Legacy"

By A.G. SPENCER

The year of 1775 proved to be a very busy one for Daniel Boone. Historians disagree about his activities in the early part of the year. Some believe that he was back in his old stomping grounds on the Yadkin, while others contend that he was exploring the watersheds of the southwest Virginia and eastern Kentucky rivers.

There seems to be more evidence supporting the latter belief, as a rock bearing the inscription "D.B. 1775" was found some years ago near the top of a mountain on the old Allen farm on the Gosling Fork of Goose Creek on Beaver Creek here in Floyd County. Comparisons with documented carvings of Boone's initials lead many to believe in the authenticity of this carving.

Moreover, it is believed that, after guiding hunters and explorers onto the headwaters of the Clinch River late in 1774, Boone may have struck westward through the Pound Gap, down Elkhorn Creek, through Shelby Gap, over Indian Creek and on to Left Beaver Creek. He is believed to have wintered here, where game was then plentiful. It is significant to note that one more ascent from where his winter camp is thought to have been would put him high on the mountains where the "Daniel Boone Rock" rests. While much of this is only educated conjecture, Boone must surely have traversed the game trail that led past that rock many times during his winter foraging.

Exactly when Boone abandoned his encampment on Left Beaver is not known, but we do know that in early 1775 he was retained by a Mr. Henderson, who was an agent for the Transylvania Company, to mark a trail into central Kentucky. When the subsequent signing of the Treaty of Sycamore Shoals took place on March 17, 1775, between the Transylvania Company and the Cherokees, Boone had been gone for at least a week. Restless with the brief inactivity that followed the completion of his blazing a trail into the central portion of the state, Boone and his axmen had set out to blaze the Wilderness Road and to help establish the Boonesboro settlement.

When we continue next week, we will examine the connection between the ancestors of the Leslies, the Auxiers and the Harmans with Daniel Boone.

Drug Dosing Of Aged Subject of Program

Appalachian Regional Healthcare and the University of Kentucky's Colleges of Allied Health Professions and Pharmacy are co-sponsoring a continuing education program on Drug Dosing in the Aged.

The program is designed to familiarize pharmacists with the impact of pharmacokinetic principles and pathophysiologic changes on drug dosing requirements. The program will be held December 7, at the Holiday Inn, University Area, 1415 Fourth Avenue, in Huntington, West Virginia and meets the criteria for four contact hours (0.4 C.E.U) of continuing education credit. A registration fee will be charged.

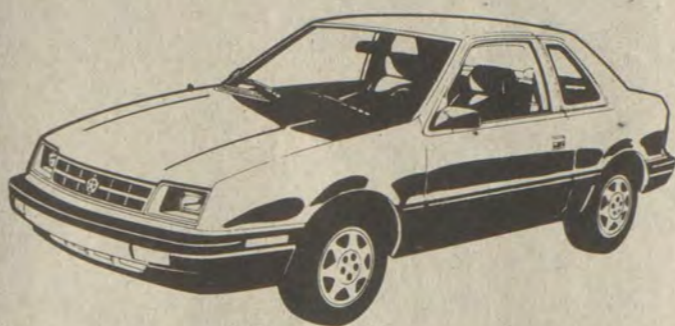

Robert A. Blovin, Pharm. D., Associate Professor and Director of the Clinical Pharmacokinetics Drug Monitoring Program at the University of Kentucky, is the speaker. Dr. Blovin is involved in teaching and research in the geriatric/pharmacokinetic field. He is also a faculty member of the Ohio Valley Appalachia Regional Geriatric Center.

For further information, contact: Carol Percy, Allied Health Continuing Education, Medical Center Annex 3, University of Kentucky, Lexington, Kentucky 40536-0218, Phone: (606) 233-5618. In Kentucky only (outside Lexington area) call 1-800-432-0963.

Appalachian Regional Healthcare is a not-for-profit health care system with hospitals, primary care centers and other related facilities and services in Hazard, Whitesburg, Harlan, Middlesboro, West Liberty, McDowell, and South Williamson, in Kentucky; Beckley and Man, in West Virginia; and Wise, Virginia.

MSU Enrollment Shows Increase

The final tally for Morehead State University's 1986 fall enrollment reflects a 3.5 percent increase over the fall of 1985.

This fall's headcount enrollment is 5,894, compared with 5,695 last year, MSU President A.D. Albright has announced.

Preliminary figures released to the media in late September showed a 2.8 percent increase. At that time, Dr. Albright noted that the figures could change between then and the enrollment reporting date set by the Council on Higher Education.

The increase reverses a pattern of declining enrollment which has plagued Morehead State over the past decade, including an 8.2 percent drop last fall from the previous year.

In addition to the increase in headcount figures, MSU reversed the decline in full-time students, actually gaining a student over last fall.

Dr. Albright attributed MSU's improved enrollment to three primary factors. "It was a combination of an intensive recruitment drive, an image-building promotional campaign in the region's media, and the addition of a new program of upper-division undergraduate course offerings at four two-year college sites," he said.

Noah Young ran a mile in 8 minutes 30 seconds carrying a 150-pound man on his back. Young weighed 198 pounds. He made the run on April 12, 1915, at Melbourne, Australia.

Pageant Winner

Kelly Lee Bates was crowned Floyd County's Little Miss Red, White and Blue, Saturday, October 4 at the McDowell High School gymnasium.

She is the daughter of Dora Bates, of Bevinville and Bud Bates, of Lexington, and the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Shumate.

She was escorted by Brent Tackett, son of Larry and Linda Tackett, of Melvin. His grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Delzie Crawford and Mrs. Effie Tackett, of Melvin.

Both students are in Mrs. Griffin's fourth-grade class at Osborne Elementary.

School Trumpeters Perform At UK Game

Three Floyd musicians joined approximately 200 high school trumpeters at the University of Kentucky's "Trumpet Day" on Nov. 15 in Lexington.

"Trumpet Day" included a morning clinic, taught by UK trumpeter Vince DiMartino, rehearsals and a special performance at halftime of the UK vs. Florida football game that afternoon in Commonwealth Stadium.

William Harry Clarke, director of UK bands, said, "These young musicians represent the best trumpet players in the state. They were chosen to participate by their school band director."

Members of the trumpet sections from the UK band and the Florida band joined the Kentucky high school trumpeters in music arranged special for the day.

The Floyd trumpeters who participated were: Royal Taylor, son of Brenda Taylor of Wheelwright (Wheelwright High School); Lee Boyd, son of Michael and Vicky Boyd of Allen; and Brent Turner, son of Arnold and Libby Turner, of Allen (Prestonsburg High School).

Hazardous Materials Class At Garth Area Vocational

MSU Hosts Personal Enrichment Program

Top high school home economics students and their instructors recently participated in a Personal Enrichment Program (PEP) at Morehead State University. Carolyn Taylor, MSU Department of Home Economics chair, left, presents certificates for participation to Jenny Tagliarino, of Louisville; Shella Franklin, of West Liberty; and Deborah Patton, of Prestonsburg. The program, sponsored by MSU's Department of Home Economics, was designed to give students and teachers an inside look at different aspects and job opportunities in the field. YES Seeking Host Families

The Youth Exchange Service (YES) is currently seeking families who are interested in hosting a student from Mexico, Central or South America. These students are due to arrive in December and some will stay for the second semester of the 1986-87 school year while others will stay for only three months.

These students are intelligent, mature and very eager to experience the American culture as well as to share their culture. They bring their own spending money and have excellent medical/accidental insurance. The family provides room, board and care.

The host family will be able to claim a $50 tax deduction for each month. Make a difference and say YES. Write to: Youth Exchange Service, 350 South Figueroa Street, Suite 257-P, Los Angeles, CA 90071 or phone: 1-800-848-2121.

Workshop Held At PCC

Prestonsburg Community College recently sponsored a two day workshop for college and high school administrators and counselors at the Prestonsburg Holiday Inn. The Bridging for Success workshop included presentations by American College Testing (ACT), College Scholarship Service and the Council on Higher Education, as well as training in the use of the new computer program, Discovery, which is an excellent tool for career planning. Over 50 persons attended the workshop which gave 12 hours in-service education credit.

Chemical-Free Parties Is State Project Aim

Kentucky's second annual Project Graduation conference ended with the hope that over 100 high schools will participate during next spring's graduation period.

Speakers during the conference included: Kentucky State Police Commissioner Morgan Elkins, Superintendent of Public Instruction Alice McDonald, and former University of Kentucky basketball player Dickie Beale.

Students and adult sponsors from over 100 high schools in the state attended the conference, which included workshops and discussion sessions concerning ideas for chemical-free parties during the commencement season. Other speakers during the meeting included Kentucky's Junior Miss Melanie Glasscock and Operation Sober of Jefferson County.

Project Graduation is a program coordinated by the Kentucky State Police and Kentucky's Department of Education. The project's goal is to train high school students and adult sponsors in soliciting community involvement and conducting chemical-free parties during the prom/graduation season.

Although Project Graduation does not necessarily take the place of other parties during the prom/graduation season, it does provide an alternative event that shows teens they can have a successful party without alcohol or drugs.

And save big money!

Electric Thermal Storage (ETS) is a unique, money saving system to heat your home. ETS uses lower "off-peak" electric rates that save you money.

The ETS system works like a thermos. It stores heat at night when electric rates are at their lowest. Then it uses this stored heat to keep your home warm.

Find out more about your latest choice in home heating — ETS. Ask us today for a free brochure or a free cost comparison of ETS versus your current heating system.

Mormons Celebrate Family Week

The Martin Kentucky District of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints is celebrating National Family Week this week and members of the congregation have offered suggestions for the observance.

Pete Grigsby, president of the twelve-county district organization, said national Family Week is a time for "all Americans to celebrate the joys of family life."

"It's important for a family to have fun together," said Grigsby. "And the effort is well worth it. Often the most memorable and happy times of your life will be those times spent together with your family."

Finding time when all members of a family are willing to get together can be very difficult, he said, but even an occasional activity that involves everyone is effective in bringing a family closer together.

Gene Pace, president of the Martin congregation, stated "Members of many churches are instructed to have family time together. We have 'Family Home Evening' where the entire family comes together one night a week to talk about family problems or to have fun together."

Family Celebrates
David and Peggy Turner and their children try to extend the purpose of national Family Week throughout the whole year by setting aside every Monday night as a family time together.

Fun activities are alternated with lessons about gospel principles in a program called 'Family Home Evening'. They are members of the Martin congregation and reside at Drift.

"Since each of our family members has such busy and varied schedules, I feel good to know that at least one night a week we can count on being together as a complete family," said Mrs. Turner. "You don't have to be a member of the church to enjoy the benefits of the 'Family Home Evening' program.

Some Suggestions
Grigsby offered some suggestions for families who want to strengthen ties.

—Take time to develop friendships within the family. Have regularly scheduled family activities that involve all family members.

—Attend church or Synagogue weekly, with the whole family.

—Choose television programs and movies carefully.

—Educate the family on the harmful effects of drugs.

—Teach the value of honesty and moral ethics to your family.

—Create situations where family members can learn to love each other.

"We feel that families can create a home environment that's stable and loving," said Grigsby. "National Family Week provides an excellent opportunity for us to re-examine just how strong our families are—and how we can improve them."

LITTLE PAINT FIRST CHURCH OF GOD
Pastor, Wayne Burch

WHY IS A PEOPLE NOT GRATEFUL?

It is either because they have nothing for which to be thankful or they have everything to be thankful for. Certainly we cannot claim the former, but the latter fits our situation! Gratitude results when the extremes of NOTHING and EVERYTHING intersects.

This is the case which pictures the saints in Heaven worshipping, praising, and thanking God in Revelation 7:9-14. When an elder asked who they were and where they came from, he was told: "THESE ARE THEY THAT HAVE COME OUT OF GREAT TRIBULATION". Because they have had trouble, suffering, and adversity, they could be grateful for the privilege of being before the throne of God, rather than before Nero's tribunal!

This could well be the situation with the first Thanksgiving. It WAS NOT a time of plenty but one of scarcity. The first Thanksgiving meal consisted of clams and bread made out of Indian corn.

The real enemy of gratitude is AFFLUENCE! When we are prosperous, we tend to forget the goodness of God. We take things for granted as though we deserve all GOOD things. We have problems appreciating what we have because we have never known anything else, nor have our children. It is certainly NOT A SIN to have things if they are possessed by an attitude of gratefulness to God!

Star Lore

By Fred Cooper Tichenor

Do more than just party, Gemini!

ARIES (Mar 21-Apr 21) Don't over emphasize the food and drink on Thanksgiving, there's more to it than that. Continue the holiday cheer all weekend. You will be in a playful mood and could arrive at a new understanding with the loved one. Of course you'll do it the hard way, but, your way may last longer.

TAURUS (Apr 22-May 22) Your ruler, Venus, has turned direct and will put you in a rather selfish mood for the holiday, but Thanksgiving will mark the perfect opportunity to renew your marriage. An exciting weekend for your love life - the loved one is ready; and Saturday would be the perfect time as you will become less selfish.

GEMINI (May 23-Jun 21) Save some time this holiday week to finalize those plans you've been making - it's time to move. It won't be easy because of all the parties. The Thanksgiving spirit will inspire you to work for the unfortunate. Whatever you do, "you'll like it", pleasure is going to be involved.

CANCER (Jun 22-Jul 20) You should have an ideal Thanksgiving, the signs are all positive. You will be the perfect host/ess and everyone will sing your praises. Get your house cleaned up quickly, you'll have more company over the weekend. But it will be an entirely different kind of gathering this time.

LEO (Jul 21-Aug 20) You won't even be able to relax for Thanksgiving and will be trying to organize something. Creative activities will be compelling and you will attend a concert or the theatre. Work and play can be combined this weekend. A Libra neighbor will be inviting you to a party - a real Dionysian evening so be prepared.

VIRGO (Aug 21-Sep 22) You will be in a perfect mood for Thanksgiving and your social graces will be in demand. Your home will be the host to exciting events. You will continue the holiday mood all weekend, but don't be surprised if it's expensive. If you've wanted to get better acquainted with a neighbor, do it now.

LIBRA (Sep 23-Oct 23) Your ruler, Venus, has turned direct just in time for Thanksgiving - perfect! You will be entertaining, or be entertained by, important people. You may be left with all the cleaning up to do and that's depressing. But when you remember what a joyful Thanksgiving you had, you won't mind much.

SCORPIO (Oct 26-Nov 23) If you are traveling for Thanksgiving, leave early as tie-ups and delays are to be expected. It will be hard to relax over the holiday as your mind will be working a mile-a-minute. The love of your life can be rejuvenated this year, are you ready? You can find eternal romance if you'll do your share.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 24-Dec 21) Don't forget, helping the unfortunate is tax deductible - maybe for the last time. You will be content to stay at home the entire holiday with just your family. The Thanksgiving spirit will stay with you through the weekend. A secret will come to light in your household.

CAPRICORN (Dec 22-Jan 17) If you get a chance at a good buy on futures this week, go for it. This will be the holiday of your dreams if you've done your home-work. You will be making a major change in a week and need to be thinking about what you want to do. If a Scorpio wants to float-a-loan, you'd better say "No".

AQUARIUS (Jan 18-Feb 16) You will be inclined to over-do the partying this week. But you will be thinking more of the unfortunate than your own this year. You have an idea that could make you a bundle before Christmas - work on it this weekend. Get on the phone and set it up.

PISCES (Feb 17-Mar 20) You will feel the true meaning of Thanksgiving this year. And that, in turn, can help you learn the true meaning of your life. Remember all the nice things you say and think on Thursday and back them up with a check. It will be just like buying a Blue Chip Stock - it will pay off forever.

Announce Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy R. Jacobs, of Lexington, announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Kimberly Kay to Christopher Edward Garrett, of Lexington.

The marriage will be solemnized at 6 p.m. Saturday, December 6 at the Hill 'N Dale Christian Church, Lexington. A reception will be held after the ceremony.

Miss Jacobs' grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Roberts, of Garrett, and Mr. and Mrs. Columbus Jacobs, of Hueysville.

Who's Who Lists 23 At Pikeville College

The 1987 edition of WHO'S WHO AMONG STUDENTS IN AMERICAN UNIVERSITIES AND COLLEGES will include the names of 23 students from Pikeville College who have been selected as national outstanding leaders. Seven of these are from Floyd county.

Campus nominating committees and editors of the annual directory have included the names of these students based on their academic achievement, service to the community, leadership in extracurricular activities and potential for continued success.

They join an elite group of students selected from more than 1,400 institutions of higher learning in all 50 states, the District of Columbia and several foreign nations. Outstanding students have been honored in the annual directory since it was first published in 1934.

Students from Floyd county named this year from Pikeville College are: Pam Frasure, of Martin; Mrs. Jan Hunt, of Honaker; Rebecca Mayton, of Stanville; Mrs. Jayne McGuire, of Pikeville, formerly of Prestonsburg; Sheila Ortega, of Betsy Layne; Mrs. Angelia Porter, of Prestonsburg; Steve Ruffing, of Prestonsburg.

"Are You Swimming In A Sewer?" Subject Of "NOVA" Documentary

Toxic metals, acids, cyanide, raw sewage, disease-carrying bacteria and viruses—all of these hazardous substances routinely are flushed into our coastal waters as if they would disappear, never to return. Unfortunately, they do return—in the fish we eat and in the water we swim.

"NOVA" dips into our polluted marine environment in "Are You Swimming in a Sewer?" airing Sunday, December 7, at 9:00 p.m. on KET.

Daily a massive dose of residential and industrial waste water, much of it untreated, is dumped into the waters off Boston, Seattle, Los Angeles and other coastal cities.

Human waste is only part of the story. By far, the most serious pollutants are toxic chemicals generated by industry. These substances are poured into bays and oceans with little understanding of the effect on coastal ecosystems. Once in the water or in sediments, these toxic chemicals are impossible to remove. "It's just unthinkable to use the oceans in such a way as to cause an irreversible contamination that will be with us forever," warns marine biologist George Woodwell.

Even so, some scientists advocate dumping wastes as far out at sea as possible, trusting the oceans' supposed assimilative capacity. Since no one knows where currents will take the wastes or how they might poison the food chain, this approach may be disastrous in the long run.

"NOVA," the award-winning weekly science documentary series, is produced by WGBH/Boston.

Many historians believe that the Christmas celebration had its origins in ancient Greek and Roman festivities to mark the midwinter change of seasons.

"Great Performances" Features Judy Garland

From the melancholy "The Man That Got Away" to the rousing "Swanee," and of course, the immortal "Over the Rainbow," Judy Garland performs 36 of her best-loved songs—16 in their entirety—in "Judy Garland: The Concert Years," an encore showing of "Great Performances" Monday, December 8, at 8:00 p.m. on KET.

Hosted by Garland's daughter Lorna Luft, the program celebrates and focuses on Garland's concert career she started after her movie career.

"Judy Garland: The Concert Years" features moments from her 1963-64 television series and her earlier television specials, unique footage from a number of live concerts, and recollections on her enigmatic life from close friends and family.

Testifying to Garland's great talent and personal warmth are her former husband/manager Sid Luft; musical conductors and arrangers Mort Lindsey and the late Nelson Riddle; and her former colleagues Tony Bennett and Alan King.

In the program, Stephen Holden of the New York Times maintains Garland is the mother of the "I-want-to-give-my-heart-to-you" style that drew an intimate, emotional reaction from her audiences.

Producer Joan Kramer added, "She died 16 years ago, and finally the myths and nonsense surrounding the personal elements of Judy's life are being carried away. Hopefully, in our program, we'll be able to see the artistry, talent and uniqueness of an American original."

"Great Performances" is presented by the Great Performances Alliance: WNET/New York; KERA/Dallas-Ft. Worth; KQED/San Francisco; SCETV/Columbia, S.C.; and WTTW/Chicago.

Recognized for Tree Farm Work

Tim Sheehan, Service Forester for the Kentucky Division of Forestry, recently presented Frank Fitzpatrick, at left, above, with certification in the American Tree Farm System. Fitzpatrick was also presented with the 1986 Eastern District Tom Wallace Award for his outstanding accomplishments in forest management. The award is annually sponsored by the Louisville Courier Journal and Times.

Since 1958, Mr. Fitzpatrick has completed 26½ acres of timber stand improvement, planted 224,000 trees on 190 acres, harvested 1,495,000 board feet of timber off 772 acres, and improved 30 acres for wildlife. He has been a tree farmer for nearly 30 years.

A tree farm is a privately owned forest land protected and managed for the production of repeated crops of forest products. It provides watershed protection, better food and habitat for wildlife, and opportunities for outdoor recreation. There are 1.6 million individual landowners in the South.

Landowners interested in having their woodlands inspected for certification, at no charge, may contact Tim Sheehan at the Division of Forestry office in Prestonsburg, or call 886-8562.

UK's Corncob Burner Exceeds Expectations

University of Kentucky's "corn cob burner," which is supposed to produce inexpensive energy to dry corn, is doing better than expected in its first year of actual on-the-farm testing. According to Sam McNeill, an engineer with UK's College of Agriculture, the biomass burner produced enough energy to dry newly harvested corn at less than one-half the cost of burners fueled by the traditional propane gas. The burner is being tested on a working farm owned by Wayne McAtee in Trigg County. That savings is especially significant considering the current low price of gas. As propane prices go up, as most economists figure they will, the possible savings from the biomass burner will increase. Although the biomass burner was designed by the UK College of Agriculture to burn corncobs, McAtee used woodchips which were more readily available from a nearby lumberyard in his tests. McNeill said the farmer kept his own careful records to compare costs of the biomass burner with propane. Not only did he compare costs per bushel, he also recorded costs per "point" of moisture removed from the corn. "First, he dried two batches of corn at the beginning of the season using propane gas," said McNeill. "He found his cost using the traditional fuel was seven-tenths of one cent per point of moisture removed. Since he wanted to dry his corn to remove 7 points of moisture, his per bushel cost was 4.9 cents per bushel." McNeill added, "Using the wood chips, which have a market value of $18.50 per ton, his costs were three-tenths of a cent per point or 2.1 cents per bushel." By using corncobs, which are free for the using, even more savings are possible, McNeill said. One third the cobs from an acre of corn can dry all the corn produced on that acre. So why doesn't everyone run out and buy a biomass burner and use the corncobs? The front end cost to purchase the burner is one reason. It costs about $12,000. Second, it is difficult to gather the corncobs at present. Harvesters which sell the corn in the field just spit the cobs out along with husks and other chaff. Manual labor to pick up cobs could be expensive. Nevertheless, McNeill believes the biomass burner using corncobs as fuel is the way of the future and both obstacles can be overcome. Price will come down as the manufacturer which purchased the College of Agriculture's patent recovers its development costs, and the UK College of Agriculture's engineering department is already underway with a new project to develop an efficient and economical way to gather the cobs.

A GIFT OF WARMTH

If you have someone on your gift list who is always difficult to buy for... or if someone you care about is having trouble making ends meet... or if you'd like to join in helping others in need this holiday season, a Columbia Gas energy gift certificate can be a welcome answer.

As an individual gift, you purchase a certificate in any amount you choose for $10 or more in the name of the Columbia Gas customer who will receive it. If you desire, you can make the gift anonymously. Columbia will mail the certificate with a card explaining that the amount indicated has been credited to the person's account. Or if you'd rather, you can take the certificate and card to deliver personally to the recipient.

As a gift to a charitable organization, the program allows you to make a tax-deductible contribution to help local people in need. Your donation is made in the name of a charitable organization which chooses the recipients.

You can purchase energy gift certificates or arrange for your tax-deductible charity gift at any Columbia Gas office.

Mapping Agency Honors Little

Willis Little received an outstanding performance rating from the Hydrographic/Topographic Center of the Defense Mapping Agency. He is a supervisory cartographer at the center's field office in Louisville. Little is the son of Will and Elizabeth Little, of Melvin.

The rating is given to those employees who exceed the performance standards established for their position. Little earned the rating after an evaluation of his performance during the previous 12-month period. He received this recognition in previous years as well.

After graduating from Wheelwright High School in 1960, Little earned a bachelor's and a master's degree of arts from the University of Kentucky, in 1964 and 1973 respectively.

Little and his wife, Mary Ruth, are the parents of two children: Willis, II and Mark Shane. The family resides in Louisville.

DMAHTC is a component of the Defense Mapping Agency, which has its headquarters on the grounds of the U.S. Naval Observatory. The center provides hydrographic, topographic and geodetic data, maps and charts and related products and services to the armed forces, other Department of Defense and federal agencies, and to the Merchant Marine and mariners in general.

Harold Homemakers News

Harold Homemakers Club met last Wednesday at the church. Carma Sturgill, vice president called the meeting to order, and Lillian Sturgill gave devotions.

Dues were paid by members to Sylvia Allen, donations were also given for Ovarian Cancer Fund. Mrs. Allen also gave a report on sale of pecans and turned in several new members at large to Mrs. Pitts.

Mrs. Ruby Staten gave an interesting lesson on the use of herbs, and Mrs. Pitts and other club members had homemade Christmas items on display.

Ruby Conn and Elizabeth Little were hostesses for a covered dish luncheon.

Members and guests attending were Ruby Conn, Lillian Sturgill, Sylvia Allen, Josephine Branham, Elizabeth Little, Ruby Staten, Frances Pitts, Carma Sturgill, and guests, Maybeth Spurlock and Ross Cline.

The next meeting will be held at the church at 11 a.m., Dec. 17. Members will exchange gifts and guests are invited. All members will participate in preparing the holiday luncheon.

NOTICE OF INTENDED ENACTMENT AND SUMMARY OF ORDINANCE

I. TITLE.

AN ORDINANCE RELATING TO THE AUTHORIZATION AND EXECUTION OF A FIRST SUPPLEMENTAL TRUST INDENTURE AMENDING THE INDENTURE AUTHORIZING THE COUNTY OF FLOYD, KENTUCKY, RESIDENTIAL MORTGAGE REVENUE BONDS, SERIES 1979, DATED APRIL 1, 1979.

II. SUMMARY

As required by Chapters 67 and 424, I hereby certify that an Ordinance, the title of which is the foregoing, was introduced and given first reading by the Fiscal Court of the County of Floyd, Kentucky, at its regular meeting on November 14, 1986, at the Courthouse in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, and that said Fiscal Court at its special called meeting at 10:00 a.m. on November 26, 1986, will give second reading to and consider said Ordinance for enactment. The Ordinance:

A. Authorizes and approves the participation of the County in a proposed restructuring program (the "Program") of the County of Floyd, Kentucky Residential Mortgage Revenue Bonds, Series 1979, dated April 1, 1979 (the "Bonds"), for the purpose of freeing-up and making available to the County certain residual funds at the present time which would otherwise become available to the County in future years.

B. Authorizes and approves the execution of a First Supplemental Trust Indenture between the County and First National Bank of Cincinnati, Cincinnati, Ohio, as trustee, custodian and paying agent (the "Trustee") amending and supplementing the original Indenture authorizing the Bonds.

C. Authorizes the County Judge/Executive and other County officials to take any other necessary action to effect the Program.

D. Provides that nothing in the Ordinance will create a general obligation of the County or cause the County to become liable on the Bonds.

E. Provides that the Ordinance shall be effective upon the publication of a Notice of Enactment and Summary of Bond Ordinance.

F. The full text of the Ordinance is on file in the office of the undersigned Fiscal Court Clerk, during normal working hours, Monday through Friday, in the Courthouse in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, where it is available for public inspection. (Signed) Carla R. Bolton, Fiscal Court Clerk. 11-19-3t.

Beginning at a stake and corner to tract of land J. B. Harris; thence up the creek with same to a rock cliff; thence around the side of the hill to a cross on a rock at the mouth of a drain; thence up the creek with same 150 feet to a rock; thence up the hill with a drain 300 feet to a rock and beech; thence around the hill to a hickory and beech; thence around the hill to opposite beginning; thence down the hill a straight line to the beginning, containing ten acres, more or less.

The amount of money to be raised by this sale shall be in the principal sum of $20,000.00, accrued interest of $9565.42 thru August 4, 1986 and interest thereon at 16% annually from the 4 day of August, 1986 until satisfied and the costs of this action, including costs of advertising of this sale and the fees and commissions for conducting this sale.

For the purchase price the purchaser must execute bond with approved surety or sureties, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid and having the force and effect of a judgment with a lien retained upon said property as a further security. Bidders will be prepared to comply with these terms.

Given under my hand, this 17 day of November, 1986.

MARSHALL DAVIDSON, Master Commissioner 11-19-3t.

PUBLIC NOTICE

An application for a place of entertainment license has been filed by Jack Patton, of HC 88, Box 195, Huesville, Ky. The nature of the business will be game room.

The County Attorney's Office is required to file a written report to the County Judge Executive's office reflecting if the person applying is "not of good moral character or who will not, in the judgment of the Court, (County Judge Executive) obey the laws of the state in the carrying on of the business."

Any interested citizen having information relative to said applicant's lack of "good moral character" or willingness to obey the laws of the state in the carrying on of the business is requested to file the same in writing, with the County Attorney's office. Said written information shall be signed, dated, and reflect the current address of said citizen, and must be delivered to the County Attorney's office no later than the 17th day of December, 1986.

DAVID A. BARBER, Floyd County Attorney 11-26-2t.

FLOYD DISTRICT COURT
IN RE: Estate of Elbert J. Little

84-P-195 VS: NOTICE OF SALE

By virtue of a judgment and order of sale of the Floyd District Court rendered at the November 11 term, 1985 and November 24 term, 1986 and October 30 term, 1986, in the above-styled cause I shall proceed to offer for sale on the premises occupied by the late Elbert J. Little on Steele's Creek, near Wayland, Kentucky, at public auction, on the 13th day of December, 1986, at 10:30 o'clock a.m., same being a day of the regular term of the Floyd Circuit Court, for cash only, the following described property, to-wit:

Household furniture, furnishings, appliances, too numerous to be listed in this Notice of Sale. Each item will be sold separately or as grouped by the Commissioner, e.g. Bedroom suites will be sold as one item.

Appraised value of each item will be recited prior to its sale and no bid will be accepted for less than 1/2 of the appraised value. Successful bids will be paid in the exact amount of the bid and may be paid by check or cash. A 1980 model 90 Oldsmobile, a 1979 model Chevrolet pick-up truck and a diamond ring will be sold at the same time and place for not less than 3/4 of their appraised values for cash or upon credit of 30 days. The appraised values and list of all items will be announced at the time of sale.

This sale is conducted to settle the estate of the late Elbert J. Little.

The amount of money to be raised by this sale shall include the costs of this action, including costs of advertising of this sale and the fees and commissions for conducting this sale.

For the purchase price the purchaser must execute bond with approved surety or sureties, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid and having the force and effect of a judgment with a lien retained upon said property as a further security. Bidders will be prepared to comply with these

Summer Bird Feeding

Why, you may ask, should anyone feed birds in the summer? Don't they get enough seed, fruit and insects on their own? Probably, yes—if you're talking "survival." But there's no reason not to offer the seed, fruit and other food that will draw birds to your yard—all year.

Your summer visitors are apt to be a different mix from your winter birds. Some of the winter ones will stay, but some summer birds aren't around in the winter and might not come to your yard in the summer except for the food you provide. Many young birds, too, come to feed with their parents in summer, and watching bird families is a rare treat: parents teaching their young to eat; family squabbles; perhaps a "run" learning to get its fair share of food.

With some exceptions, the same kinds of food you put out in winter will serve the birds well in summer.

Seeds: Sunflower seeds are a mainstay, but try standard mixtures with a high percentage of proso millets, sunflower seed and some cracked corn. These will draw many seed-eaters and their young. Chickadees and titmice are especially entertaining to watch—with their families of 4-to-7 fledglings learning the ropes.

Fruits: Citrus fruits, plus bananas, pieces of apple, and raisins. These are not necessary food but, in many parts of the country, a fruit salad will likely bring in orioles, house finches, grosbeaks and tanagers. Fruits are almost sure to draw mockingbirds, thrashers, and catbirds (which rarely visit northern feeders in winter). Even woodpeckers, which normally subsist on a diet of insects, may avidly take fruit.

Many seed-eaters, in fact, eat fruit and other foods.

Sugar water: A 4-to-1 mixture of water and sugar, placed in small, plastic vials, wired to shrubs and trees, will likely draw not only hummingbirds but a number of other birds. A purplish solution of water and grape jelly may attract treetop-inhabiting orioles (the Baltimore in the East; Bullock's and other species in the West)—especially if you have large trees in or adjacent to your yard.

Exceptions to winter foods in summer: Unless you live in the far north, there's no need to offer suet and rendered-fat foods such as seed balls or peanut butter mixtures. They'll probably melt. Besides, a summer insect diet gives the birds the high-fat content that suet provides in the insect-poor wintertime.

So, with one eye on your food budget and the other on your bird feeders, enjoy the backyard picnic all summer long.

Consultants Tour Downtown P'burg

Following its selection as a demonstration city for the Main Street Program, Prestonsburg was toured Monday by three members of the Kentucky Heritage Council. The group visited the downtown area to evaluate the structures and offer advice on revitalization. Historic architect William Mills Crosby, a member of the Heritage Council said, "The people of Prestonsburg were very receptive to the Main Street Program. Merchants and building owners were real positive, real upbeat."

The Kentucky Main Street Program was started in 1979 and patterned after a national program to focus attention on the need for historical preservation and the upgrading of downtown buildings.

Mayor Ann Latta, who conducted the tour, also introduced the members of the council to the public following Monday's city council meeting. A slide presentation and talks followed on how to implement the ideas of the program and create public awareness.

"Organization is the key," said Becky Shipp, Heritage Council member, and she emphasized the importance of community commitment. She said it is up to the Main Street manager to set priorities and give direction to the program. A part-time manager for Prestonsburg will be hired by the first of the year, according to Mayor Latta. Following the appointment, the city's manager will attend in February a three-day training school conducted in Frankfort by the Heritage Council.

All three members said they were impressed with the City of Prestonsburg and look forward to positive things happening in the future.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Johnny Boyd would like to express their thanks to all who helped during the passing of their loved one. Thanks to all who sent food, flowers, prayers, and words of comfort during this time of sorrow. A special thanks to the Little Salem Regular Baptist Church, members and ministers, and to the Hall Funeral Home for its kind and efficient service.

Scholarship Semifinalist

The National Merit Scholarship Corp. recently announced that Mr. Thomas N. Cornett has been honored as a semifinalist in the 1986 National Merit program.

To be considered for Merit Scholarships, students must advance to finalist standing by documenting high school performance, being endorsed and recommended by their high schools, taking the scholastic aptitude test, and confirming their qualifying performance, and submitting information about their school and community activities, personal interests and goals.

About 90% of the semifinalists are expected to qualify as finalists and to compete for one of the Merit Scholarships to be announced next April and May.

Cornett is also the starting shortstop on his varsity baseball team at Groves High School in Birmingham, Michigan. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H.T. Cornett, of Birmingham, Michigan, the grandson of Mrs. Creasie B. Hale, of Prestonsburg.

Say 'No' To Drugs Is Message At MCA

Since Mountain Christian Academy opened four years ago, students from kindergarten up have been taught once a month on the dangers of drug abuse. The students have watched films and have made films themselves regarding drugs; they have held mock trials in class to demonstrate how society is affected; and they have listened to area professionals talk about just what drug abuse can do to physical and mental health.

By providing knowledge about drug abuse before students can be exposed to drugs, MCA administrators and teachers feel their students will be best prepared to Say "No" To Drugs!

Kiwaniannes Meet

The Prestonsburg Kiwaniannes held their monthly luncheon meeting at May Lodge, Thursday November 30. In the absence of Mrs. Jane Bond, president, the secretary, Mrs. Barbara Dawson, presided.

Mrs. Dawson read a letter of thanks from those in charge of the Breast Center at Highlands Regional Medical Center for the gift made by the club. It was decided that a donation of $50 would be made to the Hospice Program, here.

The Christmas luncheon will be held at the lodge, Thursday, December 18. Reservations should be made by December 11, by calling Mesdames Barbara Dawson, May K. Roberts, or Garnett Fairchild.

It was announced that the following members had been ill: Mesdames Anna Mae Mellon, Virginia Shivel, Jane Wallace, and Kathryn Frazier. A new member, Mrs. Dixie Webb, was welcomed.

Present were Mesdames Barbara Dawson, Lucy Regan, Dixie Webb, Margaret Collins, Minerva Cooley, Dorothy Osborne, Zella Archer, Ada Meade, Hope Whitten, Mabel Jean LeMaster, Myrtle Allen, Garnett Fairchild, Thelma Wallen, Mary Margaret Webb, and Docia Waddens.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Charles Jones wishes to thank all who helped in any way upon the passing of their loved one. We deeply appreciate the flowers, food and the words of kindness given by all. Thanks to the Regular Baptist ministers, the nurses and staff at Our Lady of the Way Hospital, and the Hall Funeral Home for its kind and efficient service.

THE FAMILY

VIDEO SCENE

Clapton upstaged by great 'Color of Money' pool shots

By Barton Weiss

Eric Clapton is upstaged by the brilliant pool shots in "It's in the Way You Use It," his new clip from the movie "The Color of Money."

Eric Clapton

These shots were also the real strength of the film. In fact, they were so compelling that they tended to take away from the performances of Paul Newman and Tom Cruise. They work better in the video, since Clapton's shots are used in a way that accentuates their strength.

Shift to the beat

Fine Young Cannibals have a new video from Jonathan Demme's film "Something Wild."

This video uses the band-in-the-movie-theater formula that we've seen over and over again. The nicest touch is the way the shots of the film are incorporated in the clip, going back and forth with the beat of the music.

Innovative

Just when you start thinking there's nothing new under the sun, something pops up.

New Order is a synth-pop band that is popular with the hip and trendy crowd, but the group has absolutely no stage presence. Its videos to date have accentuated the difference between the excitement of their music and the blandness of their style.

But in their new video, "Bizarre Love Triangle," director Robert Longo does something unheard of. He stops the clip in the middle, and out of nowhere a woman says, "I refuse to believe in reincarnation, because I don't want to come back as a rabbit or a bug." A guy looks up and sarcastically replies, "You know, you're a real up person."

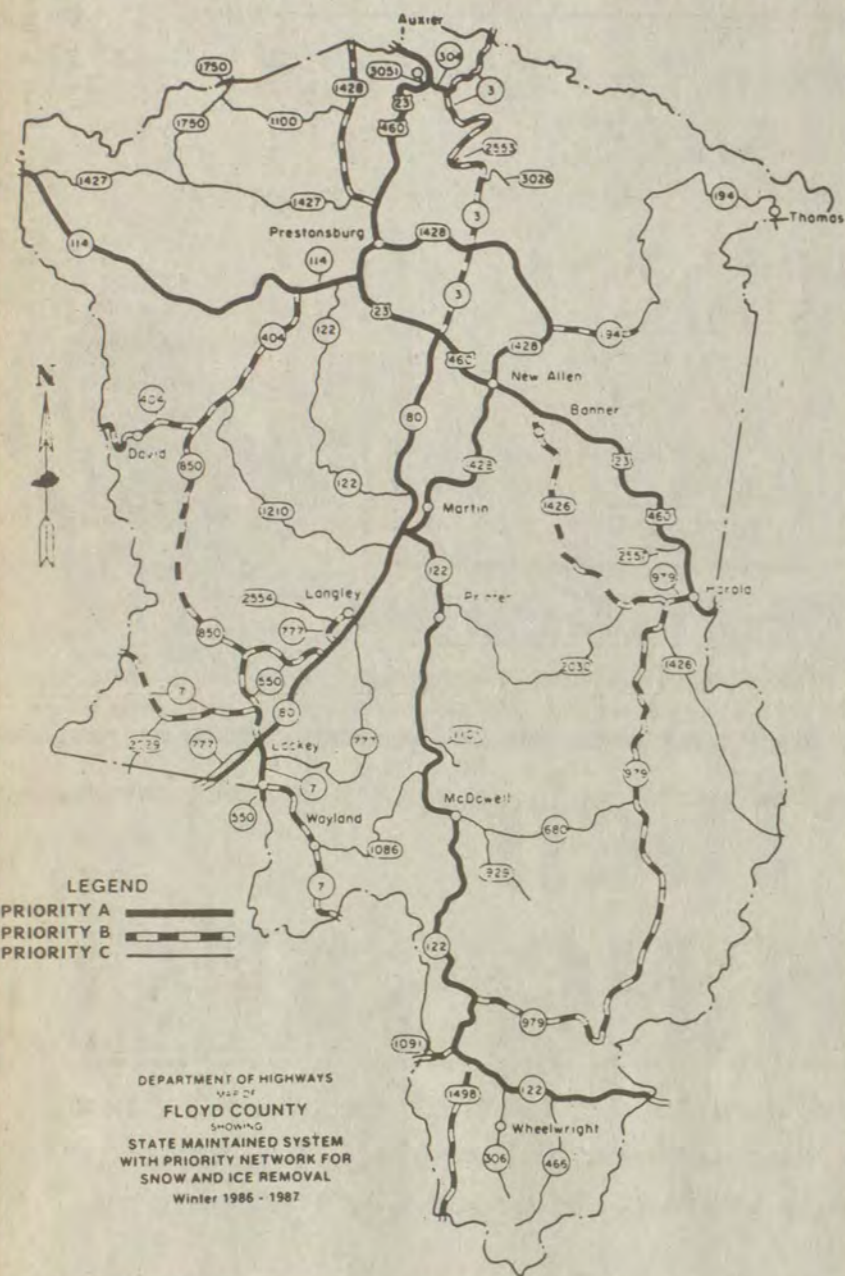

These lines aren't from a movie, they're not from the album, and they're not from the 12-inch version of the record. They're simply used to break the video up, and it works.

Real upbeat

It wasn't so long ago that "Jeopardy," "White Wedding" and a host of other songs placed a great deal of emphasis on the syllable "lock" in the word "wedlock." But in "Keep Your Hands to Yourself," the first video from Georgia Satellites, a band we're bound to see more of, the marriage ceremony is the climax of an upbeat clip, which features a nice intro where the band joyfully plays on the back of a flat-bed truck.

State Plans Snow Strategy

When the snow falls this winter, expect these Floyd roads to be cleared first—US 23, the Mountain Parkway, new KY 80, KY 1428 (from Prestonsburg to Martin), and the Left Beaver road (KY 122)—the state Transportation Cabinet announced last week.

Those highways have been designated Priority A because they are the most heavily traveled. When they are cleared, state highway crews will work next on Priority B roads. These include KY 404, KY 850, KY 7, KY 3, KY 194, KY 1426, KY 979, and KY 1498. Secondary or Priority C roads will then be taken care of.

The roads are cleared as soon as precipitation becomes significant, with crews setting out from Pikeville with salt or plows to clear the top priority roads first. Motorists can plan their trips more safely by using Priority A roads whenever possible during bad weather, a Transportation Cabinet news release advised.

"This year, as in years past, we want fast, effective snow removal so motorists will be able to travel safely during the winter months," said Gov. Martha Layne Collins.

All-star celebrations range from Eastwood to Muppets

By Wendy Wallace

"Go ahead, make my day."

Clint Eastwood

Clint Eastwood, the man who made these words famous, gets his wish in the All-Star Party for Clint Eastwood (CBS, Nov. 30). This 11th-annual salute by Variety Clubs International, show business's renowned service organization, was taped in late September and honors the actor for his career and his humanitarian achievements.

Variety Clubs International annually announces a new care facility bearing the name of the year's honoree at a hospital somewhere in the nation. The Clint Eastwood Recovery Center, dedicated to the 24-hour-a-day treatment of the chemically dependent, will be expanded at the Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula in California.

More than 100 of Eastwood's fellow celebrities and co-workers were on hand, among them Sammy Davis Jr., Roberta Flack, Cary Grant, Bob Hope, Marsha Mason, Don Rickles, James Stewart, Bea Arthur, Hal Holbrook, Fred MacMurray and Danny Thomas.

As the Christmas season approaches and visions of sugarplums start to dance in our heads, ABC will present an entire evening of Christmas specials on Dec. 6. In the first, Muppet favorite Kermit the Frog introduces viewers to a brassy tiger cub named Rugby, a lion-hearted mouse named Mew, and a whole family of new characters created by Jim Henson. Kraft Presents — Jim Henson's The Christmas Toy involves a group of toys that band together to teach the naive stuffed tiger the true spirit of Christmas — before his conceit leads to disaster.

John Grin's Christmas, an all-black production loosely based on "A Christmas Carol," is the second feature of the evening. It stars Robert Guillaume as an evil toy manufacturer and Roscoe Lee Browne, Ted Lange and Geoffrey Holder, respectively, as the ghosts of Christmas Past, Present and Future. Alfonso Ribeiro also co-stars.

Perry Como wraps up the evening in Perry Como's Christmas in San Antonio, his annual Christmas special.

Love is Never Silent (NBC, Dec. 1), the acclaimed Emmy Award-winning drama starring Mare Winningham, Sid Caesar, Cloris Leachman, Phyllis Frelich and Ed Waterstreet, will be rebroadcast as a Hallmark Hall of Fame drama. It focuses on a young woman in the 1940s whose quest for independence is complicated by the fact she is her deaf parents' only link to the hearing world.

Ask Toni

Janet Jackson's TV roots

By Toni Reinhold

Did Janet Jackson appear in "Good Times" and "Diff'rent Strokes"? — A.R., Lincoln, Neb.

Janet Jackson

She sure did. Michael's little sister, who has become a big singing star herself with such hits as "What Have You Done for Me Lately?" "Nasty" and "When I Think of You," played Penny Gordon Woods on "Good Times," from 1977 to 1979. In "Diff'rent Strokes," she played Willis's girlfriend, Charlene, from 1981 to 1982.

What is Michael Beck doing, and where can we write to him? — G.J., Columbus, Ohio.

Michael Beck will star in a CBS mid-season detective series titled "Houston Knights." His co-star will be another heartthrob, Michael Pare. Beck also portrayed the legendary Jim

Bowie in the recent CBS movie "Gone to Texas: The Sam Houston Story."

Send mail to him c/o The Garrett Company, 6922 Hollywood Blvd., Los Angeles, CA 90028.

We thought Jack Elam had died, but we recently saw him on "Easy Street." Were the shows taped earlier, or is he still alive? — L.P., McAlester, Okla.

Good news! Elam is very much alive and co-starring with Loni Anderson in that new NBC sitcom.

What happened to all those terrific annual children's specials, such as "Little Drummer Boy" and "Cinderella," with Lesley Ann Warren? I loved them as a child, and now I'd like my children to see them. — L.M., Merced, Calif.

They are collecting dust in the film rooms of the stations that once aired them. Write to the program directors of the networks and your local TV stations and let them know what you want to see. Enough mail should generate a favorable response.

(Send your letters to Ask Toni, United Feature Syndicate, 200 Park Ave., Room 602, New York, NY 10166.)

FAME

For Barbara Walters, the key is in the follow-up

By Lynn Hoogenboom

By now, Barbara Walters has a pretty good idea of what not to do on an interview.

Barbara Walters

"I think the mistake is to try to do it to impress your peers, hoping the newspapers will write it up and say, 'Wasn't she brilliant?' I'd rather ask the question that makes everyone say, 'Did he really? And then what? I always wanted to know that!'"

Walters, who is now 55, has asked plenty of such questions in her career. She was the one, for example, who thought of asking Cuba's Fidel Castro if he was married. "I didn't get much of an answer, did I?" she says when that's mentioned. "It's funny, because we're trying to get him again, and every few months I write to him. He sent me a wedding present. We had to send it back, but I thought it was very, very touching."

But wedding present and all, Walters has yet to nail down the new interview. "It's wedding present, yes; interview, no," she says. "I'll have to write to him and tell him that neither of us are getting any younger."

Walters promises a few unusual questions and unexpected responses in her latest "Barbara Walters Special," which airs Tuesday, Dec. 2, on ABC and features interviews with Lionel Richie, Betty White and Richard Pryor.

The Richard Pryor interview, in which Pryor talks about the AIDS rumors and introduces his new wife, Flynn, and a 2-year-old son, Steven, whose existence has been a secret until now, is probably a highlight. "This is an interview where we edited very little," says Walters. "He had so much to say that we just let it go. And once Pryor decides to do something, he tells you everything."

The key to being a good interviewer, says Walters, is coming up with the good follow-up question.

"I think the follow-up is more important than the original question," she says. "Anybody can ask that question. But too often the interviewer is so busy looking at his next question that he or she does not do that follow-up question." The right follow-up, says Walters, can be as simple as "Just a second, what?" or even "Fine, but you didn't answer my question."

Not that Walters doesn't occasionally have a bad moment or two herself. "My idea of hell is you finish and someone comes up and asks, 'Did you ask thus and such?' and you say, 'Awwwww. Exactly what I forgot.'"

Special Children In Spotlight As Championship Rodeo Begins

The North American's first Exceptional Rodeo clearly showed that cowboys have more than grit. They have hearts.

The Exceptional Rodeo held in Louisville, November 13, featured nearly 40 youngsters as they lassoed fake steers; climbed atop fur covered replicas of bulls; and rode real horses. Every child was a victim of fate. Fate had dealt the young people a hand filled with cerebral palsy. But, the North American's Exceptional Rodeo set aside the handicap to provide a setting that few will ever forget.

A five-year old boy sat astride a roan quarter horse and yelled "yippee" as he threw a frail hand into the air... he was flanked and guarded by five cowboys. Their chaps were covered with dust from the ring and the young man had dust on his cheeks and hat, a result of cowboy hugs and protective hands. The boy's dad said it was the first time his son had ever touched a horse.

Fred Wiche, WHAS Television & Radio Farm Director, stood in the center of Freedom Hall and said, "it's super, it's super—it's like a Crusade for Children." Later Wiche, who represented the Exceptional Rodeo's sponsor, observed that the rodeo broadens the vision of handicapped children.

Apparently little Kris' father agreed. Tears eroded a muddy track on his cheek as his daughter took a rope from a cowboy. "She's never done anything like this," he said, "it's great... I hope we can do it again next year."

Angela said her favorite event was riding the horse. A big, rawboned cowboy looked away to hide his emotion and grumbled, "God, I'm lucky!" Angela turned her crystal blue eyes on her cowboy partner and hugged his back. He left. And another cowboy took his place.

Nearby, six steer wrestlers stood around a blanket covered bull while a seven-year-old bounced about on the fake critter. Twelve hands steadied the young man as he took the ride of his life.

Hadley Barrett, announcer for the Nationally televised PRCA Rodeo in Oklahoma City walked among the children and the rodeo professionals during the 1986 North American International Exceptional Rodeo. Pausing to tell a favorite story, the nationally known rodeo spokesman also betrayed the reason why rodeo athletes support Exceptional Rodeo activities:

"During 1983 we had an Exceptional Rodeo just before the national finals in Oklahoma City," explained Hadley. As the young people finished their activities that evening, most excited beyond words, one small child was brought to the microphone to accept a tiny trophy. The child spoke a few, halting words of appreciation to the cowboy announcer, not an unusual event at the exciting rodeo for the handicapped. "But, says Barret, we found out later that those words were the first the boy had ever spoken, and he's been talking ever since."

Rodeo events routinely test the endurance of cowboys and cowgirls who pit themselves against the brute strength of bulls and the determination of broncs. The Exceptional Rodeo is designed to crack the shell of young people whose bodies are racked by forces beyond their control. The Exceptional Rodeo is a new dimension in the small universe of handicapped youngsters.

"This is the best part of the rodeo," said John Andrews, a steer wrestler from Clayton, Indiana.

Scientists in 1979 took a 656-foot column of sediment from the Pacific Ocean floor. It contains a continuous eight-million-year record of many kinds of natural phenomena.

Plan Will Provide Cheaper Home Loans

Thousands of Kentuckians of modest means would be assured of home ownership over the next 20 years under a program announced by Gov. Martha Layne Collins.

The Kentucky Housing Corporation is devising programs to continue low-interest construction loans and below-market mortgage loans to families of low and middle-income citizens. The corporation, a non-profit, independent state agency, also is cooperating with other state agencies to sponsor a symposium on housing needs for the elderly, the governor said.

Kentucky is leading the nation in providing the new programs to replace programs that federal actions are eliminating. "We're moving in housing just as we're moving in education and economic development," Gov. Collins declared.

The governor made the announcements at the Third Annual Governor's Housing Conference in Lexington Nov. 19.

Planning for the programs for low-cost housing and the elderly already has begun but a timetable for accomplishment is not final, said Lynn Luallen, executive director of the housing corporation.

Initial plans call for building five to 10 homes in 10 to 15 communities in the state, Luallen said.

Collins said that the Home Builders Association of Kentucky is working with the corporation on a statewide project to "deliver innovative, affordable, housing designs... and will take advantage of below-market interest rate KHC financing."

For further information contact Lynn Luallen at (502) 564-4982.

Art Center Seeks Faculty Applicants

Letters of interest and resumes are being accepted for faculty positions for the Governor's School for the Arts. The Governor's School for the Arts will convene July 5 and run through July 26. The program will provide instruction to talented high school juniors and seniors in dance, drama, instrumental music, vocal music, creative writing and visual arts.

Founded in 1986 by Governor Martha Layne Collins and the Kentucky General Assembly, The Governor's School for the Arts will be jointly administered by the Kentucky Department of the Arts and the Kentucky Center for the Arts. Auditions for the program will begin in January at various sites around the state.

Letters of interest and resumes should be sent to: David Thurmond, Kentucky Center for the Arts, 5 Riverfront Plaza, Louisville, Kentucky 40202.

Recently the Chesapeake and Ohio, one of the greatest coal carrying railroads in the United States, greatly added to its facilities by leasing the newly-completed, modernly-built, 63-mile line between Gregg, Ohio, and Valley Crossing, Ohio. This line gives a long-needed physical connection between the Chesapeake and Ohio and its subsidiary, the Hocking Valley. It furnishes an adequate outlet for the coal originating along the Chesapeake and Ohio through the Columbus gateway over the Hocking Valley to the Great Lakes and the rich Northwest beyond.

Through Hampton Roads on the East, or the Lake ports on the West, industry all over the world is fed the power by which it moves, and homes are furnished the fuel that give food and comfort. The Chesapeake and Ohio rejoices in the extent and adequacy of this service to the public.

W. J. HARAHAN, President.

GLO

A SADDENED HOME

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Kelly Adams was overshadowed with sorrow Wednesday of last week, when their two-year-old daughter fell a victim to pneumonia and died within two days. All was done that human skill and loving hands could do, to assist the little sufferer in thwarting the disease but to no avail. The tender years could not withstand the ravages of the disease. The grief-stricken parents have the sympathy of all in this, their great sorrowing hour.

NEW BRIDGE

A new swinging bridge spans Beaver Creek from the upper part of our camp to the lower end of Wayland, replacing the bridge swept out by the recent flood. This bridge is a great convenience to our pedestrians traveling from Glo to Wayland and vice versa. L. P. Martin, who was the chief promoter of this construction, deserves much credit for this achievement.

SAFETY FIRST MEETING

Members of the Safety First meeting of the Glogora Coal Company met last week in the office of John S. Hampton, engineer, with the following members present: Chas. D. Schlegel, superintendent, presiding; John S. Hampton, Doc Parrish, Roscoe Compton, Sam Crider, W. W. Price, L. C. Gambill and G. B. Carter.

The usual routine of business was gone through. The matter of mine accidents was taken up and the investigation proved that fewer accidents, all of which were of "minor" account, occurred now than at any former period. It further developed that this decrease in the number of accidents was due to the constant vigilance for the safety of the men. Much credit is due this body for its interest in those under its care. Refreshments and adjournment followed.

POLITICAL SPEAKING

Former Senator Stanley spoke Wednesday night of last week at Wayland to a fair-sized crowd. The audience was smaller than it otherwise would have been, due to the belated train bearing the speaker. Some enthusiasm was noticeable, as the speaker in his usual manner flayed the opposing forces and held the G. O. P. responsible for the I. C. C. in its recent action relative to the freight rates on coal, which action all but paralyzes the coal industry in this county, the only industrial activity we have now, since our timber is gone, and now that we can not meet competition in the lake trade we are much more seriously injured than was at first thought. Mr. Stanley led us to believe that the next session of Congress will be able to give us relief.

SCHOOL PLAY

The Friday evening entertainment given by the pupils of our public school last Friday was one of the most splendid and enjoyable affairs of the entire season. This reflects much credit to the teachers in charge and to the pupils' part in this performance. The next move is athletics, which is being put in action, as all the preliminaries have been met and the athletic department will soon be in full swing. Following this will be domestic science, of which we will speak later.

HOUSE IMPROVED

The house of L. C. Gambill, so completely wrecked during the recent flood, is now being repaired and will soon be ready for occupancy. There will have been added to it two rooms and a bath with modern equipment.

MOVED HERE

Frank Miller, of Kiss, has moved into our town and is well pleased with his new location.

VISITS OHIO

Mrs. Charles Hughes is spending a month in visiting the friends and relatives of her husband in Jackson, O. She will be joined a little later in Cincinnati by her husband, who will accompany her home. At present Mr. Hughes is actively engaged in giving our town a new coat of paint, which, by the way, is adding quite a lot to the appearance of our town.

OUR SICK

Mrs. Red Eaderman, who was taken to the hospital in Charleston, W. Va., for treatment some weeks ago, has returned home in a much improved state of health.

Mrs. Pet Harris, who has been so seriously ill for several days, is at this time, we regret to say, no better. She is quite ill and has remained about the same for several days.

James Williams has returned to work after an illness of several days.

Millicent, small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Schlegel, who was threatened with pneumonia one day last week, passed the crisis without being attacked with the dread malady and is now enjoying good health.

Ballard Hunter is again on duty after several weeks' lay-off due to an injured finger.

John Craft has resumed his regular place in line of work after several days' absence, due to illness in his family.

PERSONAL MENTION

Hager Clare returned last Sunday from his home in Boyd county, where he had gone to spend a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Clare. Mrs. Carter was the week-end guest of her daughter, Mrs. C. V. Martin, at Paintsville.

TO THE VOTERS OF THE 31st JUDICIAL DISTRICT:

When you vote for me on November 8, you can do so with the assurance that every duty devolving upon the office of Commonwealth's Attorney will be performed to the letter of the law; that no criminal will escape punishment that my humble powers as a prosecutor will prevent. I have for the past six years pleaded with the juries of the country to put down crime.

You do not have to conjecture what I will do in the future. You have tried me and know what I will do. I pledge you, if re-elected, that every ounce of energy and ability that I possess will be expended in an attempt to make the law paramount, respected and obeyed in this country.

I solicit the votes of all men and women, regardless of politics, on my record as made.

Your obedient servant,

CLAUDE P. STEPHENS.

Women's Shelter Guttled by Fire

Shelter for battered women operated by the Big Sandy Family Abuse Center in Martin was destroyed Sunday morning by a fire thought to have originated in the kitchen. No one was injured in the blaze. Staff workers this week searched for emergency housing for their clients and solicited furnishings and utensils for use when permanent premises are found. The facility is funded by a state grant and by the Christian Appalachian Project.

Seek Host Families For Latin Students

Intercambio International de Estudiantes, A.C., a student exchange program, is offering local families the opportunity to share their home life with a young boy or girl from Latin America. Students will arrive in November, December, or January for a two-month stay.

Founded in 1959, the Intercambio Program has successfully arranged for well over 50,000 students and families to meet and experience one another's cultures. Intercambio is designed for younger students, ages 11 to 16, who are looking for a home which has a youngster of the same age, sex and of similar interests.

These students are sponsored by their own parents, are covered by insurance for health and accident, and will bring their own spending money. Besides the goal of personal formation for the student, Intercambio is taking a big step toward establishing international friendships.

Families interested in providing room, board, and sharing their activities can learn more about Intercambio by calling toll free the Coordinator of Placement's office at 800-437-4170, or writing INTERCAMBIO, 3122 Broadway, Fargo, N.D. 58102.

FLOYD COUNTY HEALTH NEWS

By JANE BOND
Health Educator

The Health Department will be closed Thursday and Friday, November 27 and 28 in observance of the Thanksgiving Holiday.

A nurse from the Health Department will be in Martin at the Beaver Valley Clinic on Monday, December 1, from 10:00 until 2:00. She will offer T.B. skin tests, urinalyses, blood pressures, anemia screening, immunizations and pap tests. This clinic is a free service of the Health Department and is open to the public.

Family Planning clinics at the Floyd County Health Department offer many choices of Birth Control. These clinics are staffed by area physicians who help individuals coming to the clinics make decisions about which form of birth control is best for them. These clinics are open to all people regardless of sex, race, color, or national origin. Federal regulations require that a fee be charged for services in these clinics. The fees are based on family size and income using a sliding fee scale.

Family Planning clinics for the month of December are as follows: Monday December at 12:30; Wednesday, December 3 at 8:00; and Monday, December 8 at 12:30. No appointment is needed for these clinics. For more information call 886-2788 and ask for family planning.

Yellow coloring in the left eye of the famous painting "Mona Lisa" has led experts to suggest she may have suffered from high cholesterol.

Some very common farm animals—cattle, sheep and goats—have no upper front teeth.

HOME FROM HOSPITAL

Mrs. Anna May Mellon, who was a surgical patient, recently, at St. Joseph's Hospital, Lexington, is recovering nicely at her home, here. She was accompanied home by her cousin, Mrs. Anna Laura Boulos, of Lexington. Mrs. Boulos and Mrs. Virginia Shivel and daughter, Mrs. Mary Jo LaPointe, of Prestonsburg, were with Mrs. Mellon during most of her stay at the hospital, and other relatives and friends visited with her.

OVERNIGHT GUEST

Mrs. Nonnie Hoffee, of Cisne, Illinois, was the overnight guest last week of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wallace. Mrs. Hoffee was enroute to Alice Lloyd College, Pippa Passes, to attend the Homecoming festivities.
