Ed Kuss, who owns both pieces of property, said he plans to build a Taco Tico on the site. Serving authentic Mexican food, the full-service, fast-food restaurant will be "a fancy, pretty place that Prestonsburg will enjoy and will add to the area," Kuss said.

Hueysville Gunfight Leaves One Man Dead, Another Hurt

One man was shot dead and another was injured during an exchange of gunfire Sunday night in the front yard of a Salt Lick home, according to state police.

Trooper Ken Frost, of the Pikeville post, said Dallas Shepherd, 54, was killed and Russell Neeley, 30, was injured after an argument broke out between the two Hueysville men around 10 p.m. The two are reported to be cousins.

Det. Keith Scott, who is investigating the incident, said no arrest warrant has yet been issued and, because the inquiry is incomplete, he does not expect an indictment to be issued by the Floyd Circuit Court grand jury currently in session.

While six persons are said to have witnessed the shooting, none claims to know what the argument was about and officials are not yet certain who fired the first shot, said Floyd Coroner Roger Nelson.

Nelson, who pronounced Shepherd dead at the scene, said the former coalminer was killed instantly by a bullet that struck him in the face. Another slug hit him in the chest.

Neeley was hospitalized at Highlands Regional Medical Center with wounds in both legs caused, the coroner said, when a single bullet passed through them.

Nelson said the men began arguing after both arrived at the home on KY 7 of Eddie Prater, who was not involved in the dispute. Shepherd remained in the cab of his pickup in Prater's driveway while Neeley stood in the front yard, about 12 feet away, witnesses said. Each man produced a .38 revolver.

Shepherd's weapon was fired once, Neeley's five times, the coroner said.

An autopsy was performed in Lexington by Dr. John C. Hunsaker, associate chief medical examiner for the state, who reported that a bullet pierced Shepherd's cheekbone, about an inch under the eye, severing the brainstem.

Shepherd was born August 17, 1932 in Hueysville, a son of the late David Fair Shepherd and Pearl Ratliff Shepherd, of Knott county. He is survived by two sons, Michael Brent Shepherd, of Gapville, and Larry Keith Shepherd, of Hueysville; three brothers, Dial Shepherd and Everett Ray Shepherd, both of Pontiac, Michigan, and James Shepherd, of Lake Oregon, Mich.; a sister, Barbara Fonniss DeRossett, of Wheelwright; and three grandchildren. He was also preceded in death by a brother, T. J. Shepherd, and a sister, Evelyn Patton.

Funeral services will be conducted tomorrow (Thursday) at 1 p.m. at the Hall Funeral Home chapel in Martin, with Rod McQueen officiating. Burial will follow in the Reffitt and Gearheart families cemetery in Hueysville under direction of Hall Funeral Home.

Court Rescheduled

Floyd District Court cases scheduled for January 26, 1987 have been rescheduled on March 24, 1987 at 10 a.m., in the Floyd District Courtroom, Floyd County Courthouse, court officials said. Cases scheduled for January 27 have been rescheduled on February 3 at 9 a.m.

Gym, Women's Dorm In Job Corps Plans

Within the next two years, Prestonsburg's Job Corps Center is scheduled to open its doors to women. Until then, it will remain one of a very few centers in the nation that offer job training only to young men.

Several young women here were disappointed to learn that recently, when they were turned down for the center's new non-residency program.

Center officials say they are disappointed, too. They wanted to begin accepting women when the new program got underway last month, but that plan was scuttled by officials with the U.S. Department of Labor, who must approve the programs offered at the center. Instead, the federal officials said the local center must wait until a new women's dormitory is built and the center is ready to offer all of its programs, both residential and non-residential, to women as well as men.

The new dormitory probably can't be built before the summer of 1988 and may not be ready before early 1989, according to center director Rodney Chambers. In the meantime, Chambers said, center officials will put together new training programs for the women they hope to attract—training aimed at "traditionally female jobs" such as data processing and health care.

The center currently offers training in six trades: carpentry, electricity, plumbing, masonry, building maintenance, and cooking. Women already are being trained in those trades at many Job Corps centers, Chambers said, and at least four local women called the center last month to ask about signing up for the training when they heard about the non-residential program.

Nevertheless, Chambers feels that developing "special programs for the ladies" will be an essential factor in the transition to a co-educational center. His concern stems from a desire to integrate the center with a large group of women rather than with just a few.

Two Pass Test Qualifying For Circuit Clerk

Two of three Floyd residents who took a state test now required of candidates for circuit court clerk were successful, it was announced this week by the Administrative Office of the Courts. They were Prestonsburg businessman David R. Hereford and Frank DeRossett, Jr.—a probation and parole officer and son of the incumbent clerk, Frank DeRossett.

As the incumbent, the elder DeRossett was not required to take the test.

The clerk, who has already begun campaigning for a fifth term in office, will get no opposition from his son. DeRossett Jr. said this week he has no political ambitions. Hereford said Monday he is still undecided about whether to enter the race.

If Hereford does decide to throw his hat into the ring with DeRossett, it will not be the first time. The two ran a close race in May, 1963, when DeRossett seized the clerk's office

Banker Urges Regional Cooperation, Better Education, As Keys To Growth

Economic development. Talk to Burl Wells Spurlock about it, and he'll take a regional approach. Floyd county can't solve its economic problems by itself.

"The most immediate reason is the lack of available industrial sites here," Spurlock said in an interview last week. "But historically, the counties in eastern Kentucky have competed against each other for new industry, when our real competition has been the counties in western and central Kentucky. We need to stop competing against each other and consolidate our resources."

Spurlock should know what he's talking about. Besides being president of the First Commonwealth Bank of Prestonsburg and the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce, he accompanied Governor Martha Layne Collins last year to Japan to sell Kentucky as a place in which to invest and build industries.

His ideas for economic development are pragmatic, starting as they do from an awareness of the region's geographical limitation and a sense of how fierce the competition is for new industry and jobs. "Jobs are the basis of growth and creating them is the problem everyone has," he said.

"In this county there may be only one or two sites large enough to build a plant with 400 or 500 employees. But Pike county may have one or two sites. And Johnson may have two or three more. So, when you think of the region as a whole, there are several sites that could be used." Spurlock sees the five-county region expanding its potential for growth—if the counties work together.

Spurlock joined the First Commonwealth Bank in 1969. In those 17 years, the bank has grown in assets from $18 million to $141 million today.

Last December he represented Floyd county at the Kentucky Community Economic Development Exposition held in Louisville. The exposition, sponsored by the State Commerce Cabinet, gave Spurlock an opportunity to sell the region to prospective businesses interested in finding new locations.

Being competitive with other areas starts with leadership and an awareness of the problem, according to Spurlock, who says a sales program should be developed to market the assets of the area. He sees the need for a regional coordinator—a person who can work at bringing in companies to the Big Sandy area. "We don't have anyone to take that role here," he says. "We must become proficient in the way we sell our area."

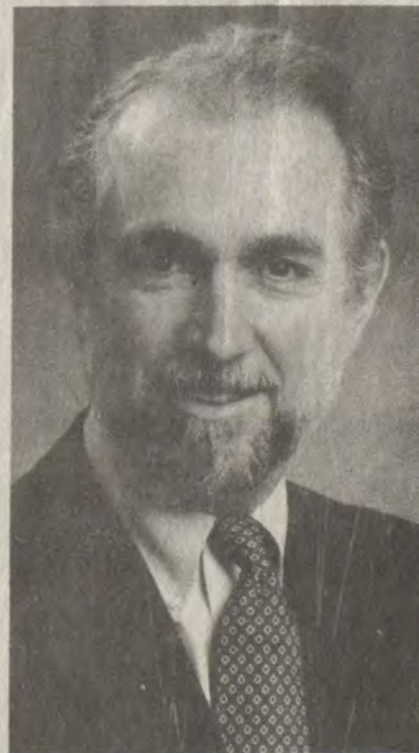

Spurlock would like to see businesses in the area sponsor the hiring of a person to do this job. It would be costly, he acknowledges—$25,000 to $30,000 for the coordinator's salary—but, in his opinion, it would be well worth it.

To further economic development, a nucleus of business people is needed to provide leadership, said the banker, who looks to organizations like the Chamber of Commerce, the Kiwanis, and Rotary to fill the leadership vacuum. Leadership should not be left to government, he insists. "The business community must get out front."

There are many factors that come into play in making an area attractive to outside industry. Good roads is one of them. Spurlock stressed the importance of improving transportation and making the area more accessible. He is looking forward to completion of U.S. 23 and the Big Sandy Regional airport in Martin county.

Spurlock, who has just been appointed to the Eastern Kentucky University Board of Regents, is critical of the education system here. While crediting a few schools like Prestonsburg and Pikeville high schools with good work, he said education as a whole is a drawback as far as attracting top management people to the area.

Appeals Court Reinstates Jury Verdict Against Bank

The 1985 verdict of a Floyd jury, which sided with a Grayson coal operator in his dispute with a Prestonsburg bank, was reinstated recently by the Kentucky Court of Appeals. The verdict had earlier been overridden by Floyd Circuit Judge Hollie Conley.

Four months after a Floyd Circuit Court jury decided in February, 1985 that the Bank Josephine owed Larry Prichard $98,263, Judge Conley ruled that the bank did not owe the money. Decisions that go against jury verdicts are occasionally made if a judge is persuaded, after a trial, that no genuine question of fact was raised for the jury to decide on.

In reinstating the jury verdict, the three-member appeals court panel held that the present case raised several factual issues and that Conley had conceded as much in letting the case go before a jury in the first place.

To override the jury verdict after the trial, when he had earlier refused to give the bank a directed verdict, "created an anomaly" in Conley's ruling, the appeals court said.

Prichard claimed in his lawsuit that Evelyn "Suzy" Wells (then Hager), a Bank Josephine assistant vice-president, had persuaded him in 1975 to keep supplying coal to a struggling Louisa coal firm, the Lady Washington Mining Company, by assuring him that the bank would see he got paid for his deliveries. Although he shipped another 5,552 tons of coal to the firm, it went bankrupt and he was never paid for the coal, Prichard said.

The Bank Josephine had an interest in Lady Washington's staying in business, Prichard argued. Under a factoring agreement, the bank had advanced money to Lady Washington to pay the firm's coal suppliers, on the understanding that the bank would be repaid with interest when Lady Washington sold the coal to the West Penn Power Company, a Pittsburgh utility.

When, in August, 1975, Lady Washington attempted to pay him with a cold check for $9,094, Wells made good the check and urged him to fill his contract with the Louisa firm, Prichard claimed.

Bank officials said Wells was not authorized to extend such a line of credit, did not in fact offer the guarantees Prichard claimed she did, and that the bank would have had nothing to gain in doing so. Contrary to Prichard's claim that the bank profited from its dealings with Lady Washington, the Bank Josephine lost $200,000 when the coal company folded, bank attorney William G. Francis insisted.

But Prichard said the bank received $98,263 in payments for the coal he trucked to Lady Washington's river loading dock near Ashland and that Wells lied in saying the bank had never received the payments. Evidence was presented in court that the West Penn Power Company routinely paid the Bank Josephine for the coal Prichard delivered to Lady Washington.

Despite Supreme Court Decision...

Long Legal Journey Still In Store For Okie Bevins

Although the U.S. Supreme Court refused last week to hear an appeal from William Okie Bevins, who faces the death penalty for killing five men in an Allen truck parts store in 1981, his legal battle to avoid execution is far from over.

Bevins, who pleaded guilty in 1983 and received the death penalty in Greenup Circuit Court, argued in his appeal that his guilty plea was not truly voluntary and that Kentucky law does not properly determine whether crimes were committed under "extreme emotional distress."

The Supreme Court's refusal to hear his case means that Bevins' lawyers—he is currently represented by Kevin McNally, of the state Office of Public Advocacy—will likely take another legal route, beginning again in Greenup Circuit Court.

There defense attorneys may request within 60 days what is known in legal circles as an "1142 hearing," in which they could be expected to argue that their client's conviction should be overturned either because he was ineffectively represented by his trial attorney or because new evidence has come to light or both. Bevins was represented at trial by former Somerset attorney Lester Burns, who recently resigned from the Kentucky bar after pleading guilty to insurance fraud.

Failure to persuade the Greenup Circuit Judge could be followed by another recourse to the Kentucky Court of Appeals and a failure there could see the case pursued through the federal court system—with a hearing in U.S. District Court, an appeal to the (See Story No. 1, Page 4)

Owner Yields, Drops Dancers From Club Bill

Professional dancers—male or female, fully clothed or otherwise—need not apply for work at Floyd nightspots, County Attorney David Barber made it clear this week. And, for the time being at any rate, nightclub owners appear willing to toe the line.

The operator of the Silver Fox Lounge, a Lake Road establishment whose scantily-clad entertainers caused complaint within a week of its opening, agreed last week to book no more dancers or revue-type performances, Barber said.

It is at least the second county nightclub to tone down its entertainment at the bidding of county officials. Of an all-male act that sometimes appeared at the Warehouse, in Auxier, Barber said flatly, "The revue is history."

Food Program Wins At Least Temporary Stay

At least for now, low-income families in Kentucky will continue to receive supplies of extra food provided by the U.S. government.

In addition, one local official said he feels confident that the food-distribution program will be restored by Congress.

The Kentucky Cabinet for Human Resources decided last week that it would pay for distributing the food through the end of March, in the hope that Congress will override President Reagan's decision to cut the federal money that has traditionally paid distribution costs. The state agency will spend about $80,000 to keep the food flowing to needy families, according to a Cabinet spokesman.

Public Schools Left Behind In State Push For GED Diplomas

Floyd county residents who want to get in on the state Department of Education's widely-touted Project Second Chance '87 will have a hard time getting help from the local public schools.

The state money that pays for Floyd county's Adult Learning Center has been all but used up for this year.

Classes are available, however, from at least two other agencies.

Over the last couple of months, widespread publicity has been given to this new state project, which seeks to get more Kentuckians enrolled in literacy classes and prepared to receive their General Educational Development (GED) certificate. Dozens of Kentucky businesses have offered their help, including utility companies which are promoting the project by including sample GED questions with the bills they mail to their customers.

A toll-free telephone number is listed along with the sample questions. Interested people who call that number will, in turn, be given the telephone number of the Adult Learning Center closest to where they live.

In Floyd county, they will be told to contact Cozetta Newsome, supervisor of adult education for the county schools. But, according to Newsome, all of the state money that pays for adult education teachers for this school year already has been spent.

"We have to wait until probably next August," she said last week. "They really didn't give us much."

The school district requested a total of $22,490 for its adult education programs this year, including $3,000 for books and other teaching supplies and enough to pay for 750 hours of work by certified teachers. What it got from the state was $14,340. The book budget was sliced in half, and the money for teachers was cut by 20 percent, to 600 hours.

All of those teaching hours had been used up by the end of January. The budget also included money for a paraprofessional, not a certified teacher, who provides home instruction for students in the Mud Creek area. The paraprofessional will continue working through April or May, but is too busy to take on any new students.

In the meantime, Newsome said, she is looking for volunteers to teach any new students who show up because of Project Second Chance '87. "What else can we do till we get more funding?" she asked.

Another option, she added, is to refer callers to the adult education programs run by the David School or Mountain Comprehensive Care.

The David School currently has only one teacher in its adult education program, but Ann Greene indicated that she is willing to accept new students.

"The number is no problem," she said. "I'd love to have a large number of new students."

Classes are held at the school, located about 13 miles west of Prestonsburg, and also in Prestonsburg at the Presbyterian Church on N. Lake Drive. The school received $16,000 for this year through the state Job Training Partnership Act, and Greene said she plans to hire an additional part-time teacher later this year.

Darlene Starnes, adult education teacher for Mountain Comprehensive Care, also is ready to take on more students. "I have books on hand for about 35 more," she said.

She currently is teaching about 40 students, and said that the number had been picking up in recent weeks. Starnes is the only full-time teacher for adults at her agency, which received a $14,380 state grant for this year. She holds classes twice a week in Prestonsburg, Martin, and Pikeville, and at the Mud Creek Clinic.

For most of her students, obtaining a GED certificate is the eventual goal, Starnes said.

More than 60 percent of the adults in Floyd county do not have a high school diploma or a GED certificate, according to Libby Walthall, director of the GED Foundation in Frankfort. That means they don't have entry-level credentials for the labor force.

"Many companies won't even consider a worker without a high school diploma or a GED," she said.

The sample GED test that is being sent to Kentuckians in their utility bills is designed to reassure people that the test is not as difficult as they might think, she added. Answers to the questions are provided on the sample test, in the hope that people will see how many questions they can answer correctly.

"A lot of people have built up a fear of any kind of test," Walthall said. "We like to show them that they are far more competent than they think they are."

Some of the sample questions are fairly easy, while others are trickier. The test asks, for example, for a synonym of "under" (beneath), an antonym of "full" (empty), and the sum of 5 plus 4 (9). Most folks probably won't have much trouble with those questions.

But it also asks for a synonym of "pensive" and "immaterial," and an antonym of "internal" and "antique." It asks potential test-takers to multiply .19 by .17 and to add the following amounts: (1/4 of 40) plus (1/4 of 12).

Those who score high enough on the sample test are eligible for a $10 scholarship to cover the cost of taking the real GED test, which will be given here during April.

Academic Showcase Draws Two Floyd High Schools

The second annual Sweet 16 Academic Showcase regional competition for regions 13, 14, 15, and 16 will be held on Saturday, February 7 at Morehead State University. Approximately 400 students representing 37 schools will participate in math, computer, art, music and speech competitions. From this county, Allen Central and Prestonsburg High School will be competing.

The Sweet Sixteen Academic Showcase involves a series of regional competitions culminating with final competitions in Lexington coinciding with the Sweet Sixteen Boys' State Basketball Tournament March 25-28. The Academic Showcase calls attention to and rewards academic skill and enterprise at the same time many Kentuckians' minds are centered on athletics. It encourages academic activities, giving academicians an opportunity to hone their talents the way that only competition and an opportunity to be seen by the public can provide. Academics and athletics become partners in advancing competition's best aspects.

Funding for this program comes from private donations and by money raised from the Academic Auction. This year's auction held January 20 at Lexington's Rupp Arena netted $61,000. Last year approximately $10,000 was raised from the auction. The money will go toward scholarships for academic winners.

Veterans' Rep. Here

Jack D. Clark, a representative of the Kentucky Center for Veterans Affairs, will be in Prestonsburg on Wednesday, February 4, to assist veterans and their families in making claims. The office will be located in the National Guard Armory. Office hours will be from 10 a.m. to 3:00 p.m.

City Council Buys Computer, Sets Up Youth Advisory Board

At a special meeting Friday, Prestonsburg City Council accepted the bid of Abacus Computer Store to buy three personal computers and printers. Total cost will be $11,917.

City Administrator Fred A. James analyzed the bids of three other computer companies before recommending Abacus. While the Abacus bid was the highest received, James said the price difference was offset by the $1600 free software package Abacus included. He also cited the high quality of the merchandise, the one year guaranty, and immediate installation and training as reasons to accept the bid.

What swayed the councilors though was the fact that Abacus is a Prestonsburg business. "They live here, and they pay taxes here," William R. Callihan said before he made the motion to accept the bid. The other councilors agreed.

The three computers will be used in the city clerk's, city treasurer's, and city administrator's offices. They are IBM compatible and consistent with the city accountant's computer system. The new computers can also be used to print property tax bills, according to James.

The other firms which bid on the computer sale were Computer Land, of Pikeville, which submitted the low bid of $8,954; Computer Plus, of Paintsville, $9,885; and Computer Management, of Pikeville, $10,762.

In other business, the council passed a resolution to create a Prestonsburg Youth Center Advisory Board. The board will be composed of five citizens-at-large appointed by the mayor and two members of the city council.

Dr. Gary D. Brown and William O. Goebel, III were selected to represent the council, and Mayor Ann R. Latta has already appointed Mrs. Dick Clark, Mrs. James Allen, Charlie Miller, and Mrs. Joe Burchett as citizens-at-large. The mayor will fill the last vacancy in the near future.

The advisory board will provide a financial report to the council each fiscal year, adopt rules and regulations for the center, and have authority to operate and maintain it. Presently, the city lacks a year-round facility for youth-oriented activities.

The council selected The Preston Group, a marketing communications firm from Lexington to design and print a downtown development brochure. The city has received a $6,500 federal grant to help pay the cost.

U.S. Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals and, if necessary, yet another petition to the U.S. Supreme Court.

An attorney familiar with the case said that, especially in view of the fact that a petition for a hearing is likely to come up again at the end of Bevins' progress through the federal court system, it was not surprising that the Supreme Court declined to hear the case at this stage.

It could take six to eight years for the Bevins case to make its way through the court system, said the attorney. "This is not a delaying tactic by defense attorneys," he said, "but a legitimate review."

Bevins, who was 70 at the time, walked into the Mountain Truck Parts Store on KY 1428—it has since been razed and another building stands in its place—on Oct. 16, 1981 and opened fire with a semi-automatic carbine. Killed were Michael Halbert, 28, of Martin, owner of the store; Roger Click, 28, of Allen, the man prosecutors said Bevins had plotted to kill; Rufus Hamilton, 42, of Ligon; Jarvey Hamilton, 27, of Grethel; and Roger Hatfield, 34, of Mohawk, W.Va. Wounded were Ron Bryant, then 24, of Hueysville; Roy Dale Wright, 23, of Emma; and Anderson Newsome, 42, of Ligon. According to court documents, Bevins had threatened Click and his family over Bevins' desire to resume a sexual relationship with Click's wife.

Bevins was also convicted of murdering a man named Music in 1929 and was sentenced to life in prison. He was paroled after serving eight years.

A former Printer resident, Bevins is the only Floyd countian, and is believed to be one of the few eastern Kentuckians, to be on Death Row.

He cited the low number of high school graduates in the Fifth and Seventh Congressional Districts as evidence of the problem. Unlike other county officers, circuit clerks are elected for six-year terms.

The state Supreme Court enacted a rule in July, 1985 requiring circuit-clerk candidates to score at least 70 percent on an exam prepared and administered by the state Administrative Office of the Courts. The high court reasoned the test was needed because the job of circuit clerk had become much more complex in recent years, especially because of a mid-1970s revision of the state court system.

Some 271 prospective candidates took the six-hour test, which was administered in Frankfort on Jan. 17. It included questions in math, reading comprehension, accounting, and clerk policies and procedures. A total of 214 achieved the required score.

A former Monroe Circuit Court clerk who failed the test said she is considering a legal challenge to the test on the argument that it goes beyond the qualifications for circuit clerk set by the Kentucky constitution in 1891.

between Prichard and the Bank Josephine through Wells, whether the bank officer had or appeared to have authority to enter a contract with Prichard, and whether there was reason for the bank to persuade Prichard to keep shipping coal to Lady Washington were all questions of fact that were properly put to a jury, the appellate court ruled.

Moreover, the higher court ruled, Judge Conley conceded as much when, before the trial, he refused to grant the bank a summary judgment in the case, and when, in his instructions to the jury, he included an instruction on the question of Wells' actual or apparent authority to enter a contract with Prichard.

Bill May, director of the local Community Action Program, said there will be no disruption in the distribution schedule here. The surplus cheese, flour, meal, rice and powdered milk, provided by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, will be available as usual this month.

May also said that he believes Congress will override Reagan's action. "I have a gut feeling that the USDA program will continue," he said.

Several local people whose families depend on those extra food supplies have contacted his agency since news of Reagan's decision was released. May added, "They were real concerned that they were going to lose it," he said.

About 21,000 low-income families in the five-county area around Prestonsburg have been receiving the free food from May's agency since 1982.

Reagan notified Congress and the USDA last month that he intends to cut $28 million from the budget that pays for shipping the food out to where the needy families live. The food would still be available, but unless state and local governments stepped in to pay for distributing it, it would not reach the families.

Before the state took action, food distribution in this area was scheduled to end this month, according to Roger Recktenwald, director of the Big Sandy Area Development District, which contracts with May's agency to operate the surplus-food program.

U.S. Rep. Chris Perkins, D-Hindman, said last month that he was "outraged" by Reagan's action. "A President who would do such a thing does not have a drop of milk of human kindness in his soul," he said.

Wells, Baldwin To Leave Govt.

Labor Secretary John C. Wells, an Auxier native, has resigned his cabinet position and will leave office later this month.

Gov. Martha Layne Collins announced Wells' resignation and also that of Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Secretary Charlotte E. Baldwin. Both had been cabinet secretaries since Collins took office in December, 1983.

Wells, who was Labor Commissioner under Gov. John Y. Brown, Jr. and was one of the few top Brown-administration officials to stay on under Collins, will become a research fellow in labor-management relations at Harvard University.

Wells emphasized labor-management cooperation during his term, setting up nine labor-management councils, which he credited with reducing the number of strikes in Kentucky. He became Labor Secretary after Gov. Collins removed the Labor Department from under the Public Protection Cabinet and made it a cabinet in its own right.

Deputy Labor Secretary Carol Palmore has been appointed acting labor secretary.

Secretary Baldwin is leaving to become a vice-president for First Kentucky Trust Co. in Louisville. She will be replaced by Mary Helen Miller, the governor's chief executive assistant.

Board Game Is Used For Safety Lessons

Would your child know what to do if someone calls when he or she is home alone? A burglar tried to break in your house or a fire breaks out?

The Lifesaver Game, a board game which answers these questions and more can be provided to Kentucky elementary schools free through the Kentucky Crime Prevention Association and local law enforcement.

How to obtain the game was revealed by Sgt. George Deuchar of the Washington Township, N.J., Police Department recently at the semiannual meeting of the Kentucky Crime Prevention Association.

Lifesaver Charities, the sponsor for the board game, was the organization highlighted in the August 1986, issue of the Reader's Digest. That story described the efforts of Californian George Wager in developing the Lifesaver I.D. The tag, containing emergency medical information and identification, is placed in children's clothing. To date, the crime prevention association, sponsored by the Kentucky Justice Cabinet, has distributed 250,000 tags, according to Wendy Frockt, executive director of the association.

Deuchar spoke at the University of Louisville's National Crime Prevention Institute. He told the group that the Lifesaver board game has now been developed into a 24-by-36-foot floor game which can be played by an entire school. Its involvement ranges from high school students, who design scenery, to kindergarten students, who can play the game. It is pointed toward home and personal safety for children. Sgt. Deuchar stated he was pleased to be able to share his success in New Jersey and added, "I hope, with Kentucky's help, we can teach children general safety without hysteria." For further information call the Kentucky Crime Prevention Association at 1-800-633-KCPA.

CHRISTMAS FESTIVITIES

A Christmas dinner for the elderly, sponsored by the Christian Appalachian Project on Dec. 2, drew 90 senior citizens to the Martin Methodist Church. On Dec. 13, the Martin Youth Center sponsored a Christmas party at the Golden Years Rest Home at Lackey.

LETTERS To the Editor

The views expressed here are those of the writer, and not necessarily those of this newspaper. No unsigned contributions will be published.

Oppose Death Penalty

Before sunrise, one day next year of the year after, an inmate at the Kentucky State Penitentiary in Eddyville will be taken from a cell on death row, strapped into an electric chair, and killed by the state. At the same time, more than 300 others accused of capital crime will remain alive, some incarcerated and some not. These will escape the death penalty, not because they are less guilty but rather, more privileged. They have more money or influence, more capable or less-burdened defense attorneys, or their victims belonged to a less privileged class of society.

These facts alone are sufficient for questioning the morality and fairness of the death penalty. There are other considerations too. Since the death penalty was reinstated 10 years ago, millions of tax dollars have been spent deciding which murderers will be singled out for execution and which will not. Members of the Kentucky Coalition Against the Death Penalty do not want our tax dollars spent for "murder by lottery," a well deserved term for the arbitrary manner in which the death penalty is currently applied.

Furthermore, we do not want our tax dollars spent perpetuating the myth that the death penalty is a deterrent to capital or crime. The death penalty is not a deterrent to those who believe they can beat the system or to those whose personal lives and values have been impoverished by child abuse, mental or emotional impairment, the influence of drugs or alcohol or by inadequate support systems. More often than not, these are the experiences of victims who will die at the hands of the state.

We, therefore, recommend the following as a more just and cost-efficient approach to the problem of capital crime: (1) abolition of the death penalty. (2) identification and consideration of the underlying causes of capital crime. (3) more extensive training and subsidies for crime control. (4) expansion of state and local police forces.

We call upon every citizen of our Commonwealth to support legislation that addresses these issues, and we welcome membership in the Kentucky Coalition Against the Death Penalty of all who support our efforts to promote morally just and equitable punishment for capital crimes.

Opposes Pyro Chem

In the attempt to control our toxic problems, the government, up till now, has tried and failed to protect the environment through regulation. Many of the programs failed because, in the process of solving one problem, they only created another. For example, some years back the Environmental Protection Agency mandated wet scrubbers be placed on foundry smokestacks to reduce air pollution. Now the foundries have a serious water pollution problem. On farms, to prevent surface water contamination from herbicide and pesticide use, farmers implemented management techniques to keep the water on the land so more of it will soak into the ground instead of running off in the streams. The result was we now have a pesticide-in-ground water problem of unknown proportions. The government allowed toxic waste to be buried, deep well injected, dumped at sea, and in the process creating situations endangering the public.

The government now is permitting hazardous waste incinerators, in what I believe will result in still another futile attempt to regulate a toxic waste industry. Let me quote Lee M. Thomas, administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, in a National Press Club release, April 3, 1985. "Let us say that if you incinerate particular toxic wastes on land there is always some residual risk to the surrounding human population." Since the director acknowledges that hazardous waste incinerators pose a threat to the communities they locate in, I think we have a serious question that has to be answered. Does government have the right to endanger the health and well being of the citizenry, to solve the waste problems of private enterprise? Under the Constitution of the United States the citizen is guaranteed the right to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. When is the government going to get serious about recycling, waste reduction, and detoxification of waste at the site of its creation? It's on these grounds that I oppose the construction of the PyroChem plant in Lawrence county or anywhere else in the state.

A NEW ANTIHISTAMINE

Anyone with an allergy can tell you that antihistamines help alleviate the symptoms of runny eyes and nose. Most antihistamines, however, have the side-effect of leaving a person drowsy and weak. This can be a serious drawback for someone who must drive or work. Now, a new medication offers the relief of an antihistamine without any sedative side effects. Terfenadine has recently been approved by the Food and Drug Administration. It is available by prescription. In addition to not having the usual side-effects of other antihistamines, terfenadine is effective when taken only twice daily. Many other antihistamines require three or four doses a day. Before terfenadine, the cure was often as bad as the problem itself.

COOLEY APOTHECARY can provide you and your family with your total prescription needs as well as any over-the-counter remedies you require. Our entire staff keeps up to date on the latest developments in our industry. If you are new to this area, come by and introduce yourself. We take a great deal of pride in getting to know our customers personally. We are located in No. 2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106. MasterCard and Visa honored plus we welcome all third party payments. Open: Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-4.

HANDY HINT:

If you need an antihistamine, start with an over-the-counter product that contains a single antihistamine ingredient.

KET Special Explores Ky's Natural Wonders

"Kentucky's Natural Heritage" will encore on KET Thursday, February 26, at 8:00 p.m. The three segments of this special will examine Kentucky's unique environment with its wide range of biological and geological characteristics, including naturally carved sandstone arches, cascading waterfalls and cypress swamplands.

The first stop is the Red River Roger, best known for its geological features which include some 100 natural arches carved out over time by the same forces which shaped the Grand Canyon—the erosive powers of water, wind and weathering. There is a grand diversity of plant life in the Gorge's 26,000 acres; 550 species of plants flourish beneath towering outcrops of sandstone and limestone.

Murphy's Pond, in the lowlands of western Kentucky, is a 280-acre swamp which features the last remaining virgin cypress trees in the state. This biological study area is rich in plant and animal life indigenous to swampland.

Cumberland Falls is shown on the third segment of the program. Known as the Niagara of the South, Cumberland Falls produces the only "moonbow" in the western hemisphere. The program examines the role of fresh water in the global weather cycle and the interconnection between watersheds.

JAMIE HALL of Betsy Layne has been elected to be an entrant in the Miss Jr. American Pageant in Louisville Feb. 8. She is the 7-year-old daughter of Johnny and Jemima Hall and attends Betsy Layne Grade School.

You can perpetuate your interest in crippled children by including the Kentucky Easter Seal Society in your will. Additional information on this subject is available from the Kentucky Easter Seal Society or any of its centers.

Gum Disease: The Secret Enemy

(February is Dental Hygiene month. This is the first of a three-part series on preventive dental health care presented by the Kentucky Mountain Dental Hygienists' Association.)

Americans, more than ever, are working hard to stay healthy and fit. They are exercising, watching their diets and finding out more about what it takes to stay healthy.

But many of those health-conscious Americans separate their dental care from their total health care. To them, dental care means having a bright, pretty smile.

Teeth and gums, like other parts of the body, are susceptible to disease. One dental disease which is prevalent among adults, although it can occur at any age, is periodontal (gum) disease. Periodontal disease is the major cause of tooth loss in adults.

The Kentucky Mountain Dental Hygienists' Association recommends you inspect your mouth for any of the following signs of gum disease:

- Bleeding gums when brushing teeth.
- Red, swollen and tender gums.
- Loose or separating permanent teeth.
- Change in the way dentures and partials fit.
- Bad breath.
- Change in the way teeth fit together when biting.

Gum disease can be prevented. Brushing and flossing thoroughly at least once a day, eating well-balanced meals and limiting snacks, visiting your dental hygienist and dentist on a regular basis, and checking for any signs of gum disease are important in preventing gum disease.

PRESTON RITES

Among the persons from Prestonsburg, who called at the Justice Funeral Home, in Pikeville, this past week, to offer condolences to the family of Herbert (Herb) Preston, formerly of West Prestonsburg, more recently of Pikeville, were: Honey May, Burieta Gearhart, Garnett Fairchild, Helen Wilson, Roberta Sloan, Virgil Goble, and Ralph Elkins. Services were held at the Justice Funeral Home, Saturday, January 31, and burial was in the Johnson Memorial Park, Pikeville.

WOMAN'S CLUB MEETS

Members of the Prestonsburg Woman's Club are reminded of their regular monthly meeting, which will be Thursday evening, February 5 (tomorrow) at 7:30, at the Emma May Wells Cultural Center. Mrs. Susie Poe, president, urges all members to attend, and asks that the executive board meet there at 7 p.m., on that same date. Mrs. Lucille Nunnery, rather than Mrs. Sharon Sparr, (who was listed in last week's paper), will be one of the hostesses for this event.

Miss Flanery, Mr. Ward Wed

Miss Sherry Ann Flanery and Mr. Kenneth Michael Ward were united in marriage December 6 at the First Assembly of God Church in Martin. The candlelight, double-ring ceremony was solemnized by the pastor, the Reverend Lorie Vannucci.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Helen Flanery, of Martin, Ky. and the late Isaac Flanery. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lorenz Ward, Jr., of West Van Lear, Ky.

Escorted to the altar by her brother, Danny Flanery, and given in marriage by her mother, the bride wore a traditional floor-length gown of chantilly lace with sequins and pearls. The gown was accented with a Queen Anne neckline, and the full skirt extended into a cathedral train.

The maid of honor was Lisa Spradlin. Ashley Shantelle Mollett, niece of the groom, was flower girl and Michael Flanery, nephew of the bride, was best man.

Traditional wedding selections were presented by pianist, Belinda Branham, and vocalists, Michael Flanery and Myra Lawson. Miss Bethany Horn, niece of the bride, presided at the guest register.

The couple is now residing at Lancer.

FORMER TEACHER BURIED

Representing the Floyd County and Big Sandy Retired Teachers' Association, at the funeral of Mrs. Josephine Stanley Hill, at the Carter Funeral Home, here, on Saturday were: Mesdames Danise Amburgey, Norma S. Stepp, May K. Roberts, Goldia Williams, Lucy Regan, Imogene Caldwell, Rebecca Rasnick, Dixie Webb, Mildred Hall, Alice Martin, and Docia B. Woods. Mrs. Hill was a charter member of the F.C.R.T., and with other members of that group, was recently commissioned a Kentucky Colonel during a meeting commemorating them for their years of teaching experience.

CONDITION IMPROVES

Friends and relatives will be glad to know that the condition of Mrs. Edith Johnson, who was ill at her home here for a while, is now showing some improvement.

BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION

Mrs. Mabel Brown honored her grandson, Kenneth Douglas Brown, II, with a party, in celebration of his 11th birthday, on Sunday of last week. Present for this occasion were the honoree, and Mr. and Mrs. George D. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Brown, Mrs. Alka Holbrook, Drew and Jillyan Brown, and the hostess, Mrs. Mabel Brown. Decorated birthday cake and other refreshments were served, and Kenneth Douglas was presented with many gifts.

VISITS MOTHER

Mrs. Tom Ripy, of Arlington, Virginia, was here last week for a visit with her mother, Mrs. Rebecca Martin, at Allen, where they were joined by Mrs. Martin's son, Joe David Martin, of Lexington, who accompanied them to Atlanta, for a visit with one of Mrs. Martin's nieces, who is seriously ill there.

Building A Reputation Of Quality For Morehead State Basketball

In just about every public relations publication concerning Morehead State University, the words "nestled in the foothills of the Daniel Boone National Forest" can be found, but the school may soon scratch this promotional ploy.

No, MSU isn't moving. It may find, however, that athletics plays a bigger part in recruiting students than does scenic beauty.

For a long time Morehead State basketball has played the role of ugly step sister to other Kentucky schools such as Louisville, UK, Western, and sometimes even Eastern, but this past Saturday night MSU made their biggest step ever in equaling the state's bigger programs.

Against rival Eastern Kentucky University Saturday night MSU put together one of their best basketball games of the past two seasons. The Eagles defeated Ohio Valley Conference foe Eastern 87-82 to move into a first placed tie with conference leader Middle Tennessee.

More importantly for the growth of Morehead basketball was the fan support. Officially 6,500 people attended Saturday's game but MSU's home arena, the Academic-Athletic Center, was built to hold 7,000 and not a lot of empty seats were visible. Nevertheless, the crowd represented the biggest in Eagle history and no one is expecting things to change.

Enthusiasm is at an all time high and so is media attention. Normally the state's major media outlets are concerned with only the big guns down state but the tide is turning and could crash in full force on the campus of Morehead State University.

The Lexington Herald-Leader was the first to jump on the Eagle band wagon and for the first time ever the Courier-Journal paid a visit to a Morehead basketball game.

Of course, to get coverage there must first be a demand and to create a demand a team must first win. This is where the 1986-87 Morehead State University basketball team comes in.

After being tabbed as the one most likely to bring up the rear in the OVC the Eagles have surprised and surpassed all expectations thus far this season.

The win over Eastern improved MSU's season record to 12-6 and 6-1 in the Ohio Valley Conference. Several reasons come together as one to explain the new found success of Morehead but number one could be the center of attention, Bob McCann.

The 6' 9" McCann has dominated in the OVC this season while leading the Eagles in scoring, rebounds, and blocked shots. The two time all-conference performer's numbers read as follows, 17.6 points, 11.7 rebounds, and 47 total rebounds.

Another big reason, not in stature but in production, is guard-forward Bo Rivers. The 6' 4" sophomore has been the surprise of the season for MSU, scoring over 13 points and hauling down eight rebounds per contest.

McCann's success has come as a surprise to no one. The New Jersey native has performed admirably since he transferred in 1983. However, not many people expected Rivers to provide the play he has this season. Some MSU personnel say Rivers is the reason why Morehead is in the position they hold now.

Newcomers haven't exactly hurt either. MSU has benefited greatly from three new faces, two in the starting lineup, that have contributed over 23 points to the Eagle attack.

Freshman Tony Curry scores at an 8.3 clip while pulling down 3.2 rebounds per contest from his guard spot. Guard-forward Derrick Davis, 7.7 and 3.8, is a juco transfer as is Michael Mason who adds over seven points and four boards each time he takes the floor.

Put all these suppliers together and what you have is a unit that outscores its opponents by a margin of 10 points per game and also dominates the boards with a 7.4 difference. This later stat ranks Morehead 16th in the nation.

MSU's defense is among the nation's top ten, holding the opposition to a field goal percentage of 41 percent.

Head Coach Wayne Martin said before the season began that the key to success for this year's Eagle team would lie with his young players. People such as guard Jeff Griffin and Kevin Simpson. These two in particular have responded, combining for over 13 points per game.

The Eagles are a young team, starting only one senior and even though that senior is one of the nation's best, Morehead State is looking good for years to come.

Fan support is at an all-time high. Not just for the Eastern game but for the season. The media has finally found reason to include MSU in their coverage and the Eagles are responding with wins.

Don't quote this paper, but there is a saying going around Morehead that goes something like this, Kentucky's true blue is here at MSU.

INSIDE BATTLE: Steve Cole goes up against McDowell's Lenny Hall during early action Friday night. Cole scored 15 points as Wheelwright won their third conference game.

Strong Second Half Powers Trojans To Conference Win Over Daredevils

SHORT SPORTS

The McDowell-hosted 58th district tournament will be held this year in Prestonsburg, according to McDowell principal Gary Frazier.

Frazier said this past week that Prestonsburg was the best place to hold a district tournament for everyone concerned.

The tournament was McDowell's to be hosted by them but due to the small nature of their gym they had to take their tournament elsewhere and Frazier elected Prestonsburg.

The decision enables the Blackcats to remain at home during the district tournament but playing on their home floor doesn't really help Prestonsburg, says coach Jeff Riley.

"We were 1-3 at home against county competition last year so I don't really know how much it will help us," Riley revealed.

McDowell, on the other hand, hasn't won in Prestonsburg in the past two years but keep in mind that past records won't be a factor when the district tournament starts up in March.

The NCAA's top three took another trip in its ever shuffling season this past week as both the number one and two teams lost this weekend.

Number two Iowa fell victim to Big Ten foe Michigan Saturday while North Carolina suffered their second setback of the season, this time to Notre Dame.

With both of the nation's top two teams going down to defeat number three UNLV returned to the top spot in college basketball.

Jerry Tarkanian's Runnin' Rebels have held this position earlier in the season but if the trend continues, probably won't stay in the top position long.

The North Carolina Tar Heels will be without senior guard Kenny Smith for two to three more weeks, according to doctor's reports.

Smith underwent corrective surgery to repair cartilage damage this past Saturday. Smith has been rated as the best point guard in college basketball and his importance to his North Carolina team is obvious.

NBC commentator Al McGuire said that with Smith the Tar Heels are the nation's best team but without him North Carolina proved to be more than beatable, falling Sunday to Notre Dame.

According to Morehead State sports information director Rick Hesterburg, three professional basketball teams were represented Saturday night to watch MSU take on Eastern.

Their major reason for being in Morehead was to watch Eagle center Bob McCann perform and perform he did, scoring 24 points but the scouts were also treated to an offensive showing from Eastern's Antonio Paris.

The 6' 3" Colonel guard exploded for 27 points in his team's loss to Morehead but Paris definitely made an impression on those in attendance.

The University of Kentucky split two conference contests this past week, losing to Ole Miss on the road and defeating Mississippi State in Rupp Arena.

The Wildcats, currently 5-5 in the South Eastern Conference will remain at home Wednesday to take on Auburn before traveling to Alabama Saturday to take on the Crimson Tide.

McDowell coach Rick Hall was confident that his Daredevil team would capture their first conference win over Wheelwright Friday night.

After falling two points short at Wheelwright just more than a week earlier, Hall thought his offense would pull McDowell past the county jinx, which has become more fact than excuse lately.

"If it's an offensive, quick paced game then I think we have an excellent shot at beating them," Hall said Friday before the important county matchup.

During most of the first half Hall's prediction held true. McDowell, led by Dickie Joe Shannon's 14 first half points, powered out to a seven point lead mid way through the second quarter but just like so many times before, the Daredevils saw their opponent come back from a huge deficit.

Wheelwright proved to be no different Friday night. With 1:37 remaining before halftime Trojan forward Craig Martin nailed a short jump shot to cut McDowell's lead to two. The Daredevils later took a three point advantage into the locker room when Jessie Osborne cashed in on the back end of a two shot free throw opportunity with four seconds left.

In the second half Rick Hall's offense left him. The McDowell coach said his offense had finally showed signs of coming together but in the third quarter his offense was all but non-existent.

Take away jumpers from Reggie Hall and Lenny Hall and the Daredevils were shut out during the first seven minutes of the second half. McDowell's four team points were three less than Wheelwright's Johnny Isaac scored himself. Jones said, "We struggled a little bit in the first half but we came back in the second half and finally played the way this team can play."

Jones' Trojans outscored McDowell 42-26 in the second half while playing possibly their best half of basketball thus far this season.

Johnny Isaac led Wheelwright and all scorers with 21 points while Tony Hutton and Steve Cole tossed in 17 and 15 respectively.

With the win the Trojans improve to 6-8 on the season but more importantly, 3-2 in the conference. The win also put Wheelwright in a position to overtake Prestonsburg and move into sole position of third place. All of this comes from a team selected to finish last in the Floyd County Conference.

One thing Wheelwright doesn't have on their side is the fact that their final three conference games are on the road but Jones says this doesn't pose much of a difference.

"A lot of times you'll find that a team comes together on the road and hopefully we will continue to come together as a team and play the way we did tonight," Jones said.

McDowell, on the other hand, is a team with two different personalities. Against county competition the Daredevils are winless but outside Floyd County McDowell sports an impressive 6-1.

Rick Hall wanted desperately to beat Wheelwright but instead, it's back to the drawing board, especially when his Daredevils take on local teams.

Sophomore guard Dickie Joe Shannon provided the home folks with plenty of thrills, scoring 20 points, but what Daredevil fans want most is a win. Not just any win but a win against another Floyd County team.

McDowell has two more conference games at Allen Central and at home against Betsy Layne but the Daredevils will bring up the rear as far as the conference's final standings are concerned.

This means that McDowell will have the fifth seed in the district tournament but also means that McDowell will need only one victory to advance to regional tournament play.

INDIVIDUAL SCORING: WHEELWRIGHT: Johnny Isaac, 21; Tony Hutton, 17; Steve Cole, 15; Craig Martin, 10; Tommy Jones, 6; Bobby Hood, 2.

MCDOWELL: Dickie Joe Shannon, 20; Brian Hall, 12; Reggie Hall, 9; Jessie Osborne, 8; Lenny Hall, 5; Henry Webb, 2; Frank Fannin, 2.

McDowell Returns Favor In Left Beaver Girls Rivalry

In looking at the matchup at McDowell Friday night between the Lady Daredevils and Wheelwright Lady Trojans one might mistake its importance to the two teams.

Both teams are cellar dwellers in the Floyd County Conference and their out-of-county success hasn't exactly demanded much attention.

Coming into the contest Wheelwright was 1-3 in the conference while McDowell was winless but more than staying out of last place was on the line Friday night.

The Lady Trojans lone victory came earlier over McDowell and this did nothing but add fuel to the Lady Daredevil fire, as if any was needed in this heated rivalry.

For as long as anyone can remember these two schools have been going after one another in athletic competition and the fury hasn't subsided any this season. At least it was in full evidence this game.

Intensity has never been lacking either but, for the first eight minutes of their most recent war, the Lady Daredevils appeared as if they wouldn't live up to their part in a classic battle.

On the strength of a full court press which caused several McDowell turnovers, the Lady Trojans jumped out to an early 10-point lead.

However, the Lady Daredevils survived that tough opening stretch, cutting into Wheelwright's lead during second quarter play. On a combination of the Lady Trojans' ineffectiveness and McDowell's stronger play the Lady Daredevils cut the lead to four points at halftime, outscoring Wheelwright 9-3 in the second quarter.

Wheelwright had vacated their press and settled on a half court defense which Meredith Slone's Lady Daredevils took apart in the second half.

"The press hurt us a little bit," Slone admitted. "I've got a young team. Instead of bringing the ball on up the court they tend to stop, pull up the dribble, and so forth, and anytime a young team plays against a defensive change they will have trouble adjusting."

McDowell outscored Wheelwright

32-20 in the second half to pull out their first conference win but, more importantly for the Lady Daredevils, a 48-40 win over Wheelwright.

"We settled down at halftime and went back to our regular offense in the second half," Slone explained. The McDowell coach said he tried some different things early but decided to trash them for his team's more accustomed offense.

Somewhere, someone did something right because McDowell came out for second half play a different team. Led by Padra Hall, the Lady Daredevils outscored Wheelwright 16-8 to take a lead they never surrendered.

Hall hit on six points, all from the floor, while Gwen Stegall matched that output to give McDowell their first lead of the night.

Hall continued her personal offensive streak early in the fourth quarter, hitting on two early field goals as the Lady Daredevils increased their lead. Hall finished the game with a total of 12 points. Stegall led McDowell and all scorers with 16 points while Gloria Mullins broke twin digit scoring with 10.

Although this one win won't make McDowell's basketball season, Coach Slone said the initial conference victory felt good, even better by beating Wheelwright. Without a senior on the team the Lady Daredevils have suffered from inexperience and leadership but Slone says his team is playing better basketball of late.

"We're playing pretty good as a team, when we play as a team," Slone said. "When we go out and stand around we don't do as well as when we hustle, but I guess that's the way with any team."

McDowell, now 1-5 in conference play, is still trailing Wheelwright which sports a 1-4 record in conference play but was scheduled to take on Prestonsburg last night.

In Friday's game the Lady Trojans were led in scoring by freshman April Bradford who tossed in 15 points while Tephania Green added 12 in the losing effort.

THE SPORTING TIMES

No one knows for sure when it started and definitely no one knows when it will end, this thing known as Super Bowl Celebrity.

In the sports world he is known as the quarterback who won a super bowl but to Hollywood he is the person who can gain much needed attention for anyone he works with.

Joe Namath may deserve credit or blame, depending on your outlook, for starting the winning quarterback turned instant celebrity with his football success and glowing personality.

Namath not only predicted an upset win in Super Bowl III, he pulled it off and in doing so opened up several opportunities not available to just any football player.

Not just any athlete, for that matter. Not many World Series winners find themselves making money through personal appearances and commercial duties. Excuse Larry Bird and Magic Johnson and not many basketball players are offered the arrangements open to the Super Bowl winning quarterback.

Namath certainly took advantage of his fame, although his charm didn't hurt any. From broad-casting to commercials to situation comedies, Hollywood Joe absorbed all the attention and could be one of the reasons why the connection between quarterback and camera continues to grow.

Since the days of Joe Willie many a quarterback has played on a Super Bowl winning team—18 to be exact—but few have had the charisma and character of a Joe Namath.

Joe Montana and Terry Bradshaw capitalized on winning a Super Bowl. Montana did some commercials and personal appearances while Bradshaw went all the Hollywood way, leaving football for television.

The tradition is in full bloom. Just have something to sell, be it a product or a TV show, and combine it with the hottest sports figure—presto, a successful sell.

Last year and still continuing through the present, Jim McMahon has been the biggest attraction in the world of advertising, promotion, and just about anything else going.

Like Namath, McMahon has the style and personality to attract attention. Taco Bell has never had more effective commercials and McMahon hasn't hurt from the combination of fast food and football.

However, McMahon, Namath, and all the former Super Bowl winners will now have to take a back seat because the new kid on the block, Phil Simms, will surely take the attention away from past performers.

Simms not only quarterbacked his team to a championship, he dominated, and won the most valuable player award in the Super Bowl.

In Non-Conference Action...

McDowell Avoids Sweep Against County

Without the McDowell Daredevils' victory over Magoffin County Wednesday Floyd county teams would have been swept in last week's non-conference action.

On the strength of a sparkling performance from senior guard Brian Hall, the Daredevils upended Magoffin County 54-53 Wednesday night at McDowell.

Hall scored a total of 20 points, all coming on field goals, as McDowell revenge an early January loss to the Hornets.

"Brian just had a super game," McDowell coach Rick Hall said. "He had ten field goals, about six assists, and ten rebounds. It was probably his best game of the season."

Junior forward Lenny Hall added 12 points to the Daredevil winning cause while senior Reggie Hall hit double figure scoring with 11.

With the win McDowell improved to 6-1 against non-county competition but other Floyd county teams didn't experience the kind of success that McDowell did.

The combination of a prolonged break and the fact that they were playing one of the 16th region's tougher teams proved to be more than the Betsy Layne Bobcats could handle Friday night.

Betsy Layne has developed somewhat of a reputation as the giant killer in this area but fell 62-49 to the powerful Boyd County Lions.

"They are probably the best team we've played this season," Bobcat coach Craynor Slone revealed. "The layoff may have hurt us. We hadn't played in a week and a half."

Prestonsburg coach Jeff Riley knows exactly what playing against stiff competition means. Riley's Blackcats went up against one of the toughest teams the 14th region has to offer and their top player.

Like Betsy Layne, Prestonsburg came up just a bit short, falling 46-45 to Daryl Slone and Knott Central Friday night.

The Blackcats held the high scoring Slone well below his average but two of the star guards' 16 points came with time running out to deny Prestonsburg their 12th win of the season.

The Blackcats, 10-6 on the season, were led offensively by David Martin's 16 points while Cory Vicars tossed in 10. Sophomore Thomas Nairn proved he is back all the way following a short absence by scoring 10 points also.

Knott Central proved to be a strong opponent, as they have all season, but Prestonsburg may be facing even stronger competition this week with games scheduled on the road with Lexington Bates and Wolfe County.

Riley, even though he admits that his club faces a tough stretch, says playing against this type of quality could certainly help the Blackcats.

"It should be a good trip for us," the coach said. "Its certainly real good competition and playing teams like that will get you ready to play."

If playing against stiffer competition improves a team's performance then Johnny Martin and Allen Central should be ready to beat someone.

Martin's Rebels ran up on one of this region's better teams Saturday night when they traveled to Virgie. The Eagles have been tabbed as a challenger for a regional title and looked the position against Allen Central.

Richard Burdine, after missing several games earlier this season, poured in 29 points to lead all scorers and Virgie to a 87-63 victory.

Ronnie Ousley led Allen Central in scoring with 16 points while Roger Horne hit twin digits, scoring 11 points.

With the loss the Rebels slip to 11-5 on the season and 8-4 in non-conference action. However, Allen Central now turns their attention to the Floyd County Conference where they are currently tied for the first position. The Rebels will play three of their next four games inside the conference.

Although Floyd county teams took a combined thumping this past week they still hold bragging rights to an impressive non-conference record. Take away games inside the county and Floyd county owns a combined 31-18 record against area competition.

The latest football phenomenon has already had one moment in the sun—an appearance on the Tonight Show—but more will no doubt come. Being in the major market of New York City, Simms will be swamped with non-football offers during this off season.

Simms, unlike some of those before him, doesn't have that special charisma needed to sell public opinion. He leads by example rather than by emotional or verbal methods, and by never being in the public's eye, Phil Simms may not be what Hollywood wants.

Then, on the other hand, Hollywood may not be what Phil Simms wants.

As a youngster, Simms probably dreamed of being a professional athlete but his dreams weren't exactly assured.

Even as a college player Phil Simms didn't receive much professional attention, at least not until his senior season. At Morehead State Simms developed his talents to the level of NFL quality and luckily the New York Giants discovered him.

What would be more interesting for Phil Simms' fans and business people looking to make a few bucks from his fame might be a story of his life.

From a teenager who most college scouts said was too slow to play football to the Super Bowl MVP, if that wouldn't sell then neither would ice water in... well, it would provide some interesting reading.

With all the attention given these lucky few who win a Super Bowl, the negatives should also be weighed. McMahon didn't win another championship. Truthfully, what happened to Jim McMahon is just another example of what has happened to several quarterbacks the year after the Super Bowl.

Not being the type to search for fame and glory off the football field, Phil Simms may not be vulnerable to outside interests.

Those who knew him at MSU say Simms was a quiet, polite young man who was, above all, dedicated to the job in front of him.

Sports information director Rick Hesterburg says Phil Simms is the type to take advantage of various opportunities if they present themselves to him but come spring Simms would once again make a trip to Morehead for some words of advice and when fall comes Phil Simms would return to football. That's the kind of person he is.

Hesterburg said he had received calls from papers such as the Washington Post and the Miami Herald seeking information on Phil Simms. The attention has started and will continue to grow but football has made Phil Simms and he isn't likely to forget that. After all, he hasn't forgotten the small school in eastern Kentucky, the school that gave him a chance to play football.

Phil Simms may indeed be different from personalities before him but he may like it that way. He also may want to break the Super Bowl-Hollywood connection and he may also want to break the Super Bowl-Not Making It Back Next Year connection.

Kentucky Afield... Releasing Domestic Turkeys Can Jeopardize Wild Turkey Flocks

Although individuals and sportsmen's clubs that release domesticated or so-called "pen-raised" wild turkeys into the wild do so with seemingly good intentions, they are actually seriously jeopardizing the wild flocks already present, according to a wildlife biologist with the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

Sportsmen may not realize the effects domestic turkeys can have on wild birds, or even that keeping a wild turkey in captivity is illegal, according to the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources' regulations.

"There is no such thing as a pen-raised wild turkey," says Ellis Carter, wildlife biologist with the department who is working with the turkey program. Carter maintains domestic birds allowed to join or mingle with a wild flock can transmit diseases common to domestic stock. These diseases can virtually wipe out wild flocks if they are transmitted to the wild birds.

Besides being practically impossible to stop after it begins, mycoplasmosis, for example, a respiratory disease sometimes found in chickens and other pen-raised birds, can spread from one flock to another. The disease eventually restricts the turkey's breathing and kills the bird. Carter mentioned keeping domestic turkeys with chickens is a common practice, which makes these birds more likely to become diseased.

Another major problem is that the so-called "wild" turkeys available from commercial propagators do not come from truly wild stock. The behavior of these turkeys resembles those of their domestic counterparts—in other words, they are stupid.

A truly wild turkey is a wise and wary bird which can survive on its wits. Birds stocked by the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources are live-trapped from the wild, are well suited to exist in the wilds of Kentucky, and offer a real challenge to the sportsman. There is a serious danger of genetic dilution of our wild turkey stock by the introduction of these semi-domestic birds. The result from mixing domestic birds with wild ones could be disastrous to the long term maintenance of a truly wild strain.

Hunters who are aware of so-called "wild" turkeys either in captivity or being released illegally should contact their local conservation officer. Releasing turkeys effectively is a complicated process requiring potential site investigation and close regulation of the hunting season.

There are specific habitat and social requirements that areas must meet before birds can be released. For example, each potential stocking area is evaluated on amount of acreage, percentage of hardwoods, number of permanent residents per square mile, how much land is cultivated and in pasture, water availability and amount of disturbance from dogs, humans, traffic and other sources.

If an area receives an optimal rating, turkeys may be released in that area when they become available. If the area rates too low, a more suitable site is chosen. The influx of truly wild birds from in-and-out-of-state sources will ensure a good and viable genetic strain of wild turkeys.

Lady Blackcats Claim Two Victories

The Prestonsburg Lady Blackcats improved their season record to 9-4 with two non-conference wins this past week. Thursday night, after a 13 day layoff, the Lady Blackcats upended Magoffin County on the road 53-41.

Paula Harris led Prestonsburg with 17 points while Shon Burchett added 15 points.

The Lady Blackcats came back Saturday night to down Pikeville 70-66. After building an 11 point lead going into the fourth quarter, Prestonsburg saw their advantage trimmed to two.

Michelle Clemmons cashed in on two free throws, however, to assure her team their ninth-victory of the season.

Shon Burchett checked in with her third 30 point game of the season, this time scoring a total of 31 to lead Prestonsburg. Karen Frasure added 14 in the winning effort.

Outdoors With Andy...

Mail-Order Toys

By A. G. SPENCER
If you follow this humble column, you know that I solved some rainy day blues by going out and buying some fishing lures, straightening my tackle box and untangling line. I optimistically planned to do some midwinter angling as soon as the weather broke. Unless you've been on another planet, I guess you know that those designs went south along with the weather.

So how have I kept from going stir crazy with my supply of rabbits in the freezer dwindling down to three and all that new fishing tackle gathering dust? In a word, catalogs. From the comfort of his own home, the modern sportsman can order practically anything from catalogs designed especially for outdoorsmen.

Unquestionably, some of the finest, trendiest and most expensive gear is available from Dunn's, Inc. (Box 449, Grand Junction, Tenn. 38039, telephone toll-free 1-800-223-8667), Bob Allen (Box 447, Des Moines, Iowa 50302, telephone toll-free 1-800-247-8048), and L. L. Bean Inc. (Freeport, ME. 04033, telephone toll-free 1-800-221-4221). All of the equipment offered by these three old-line firms is strictly first-rate, and is usually unconditionally guaranteed.

If, like me, your budget is more beer-barrel than champagne styled, there are still plenty of outdoor companies offering excellent merchandise for the average Joe. Some of my favorites include Gander Mountain, Inc. (Box 248, Wilmot, WI. 53192, telephone toll-free 1-800-558-9410), Burnham Brothers (P.O. Box 669, Dept. HM-1, Marble Falls, TX. 78654), and Cabela's (837-701st, Sidney, Nebraska 69160). I have ordered both brand-name and bargain-priced merchandise from all of these firms, and have yet to be disappointed. As a bonus, sometimes sales catalogs from these companies offer real steals! There are always items available from these mail-order houses that you simply can't find at your local hardware or discount stores.

To be sure, other companies offer catalogs, too. Check the back of one of your outdoor magazines for listings and advertisements from these other firms. I'm positive there are many fine firms out there which I have never even heard of.

Oh, well, while you drool over those catalogs filled with must-have items, I'm going to take a break and fix one of my few remaining rabbits (I've already run out of squirrels!). Or maybe I'll wipe the dust off of my fishing rods—again! Until next week, happy hunting!

MISSOURI-STYLE FRIED CATFISH

Here's a tasty recipe to tide you over with pleasant thoughts of warm weather night fishing until you can get out and experience the real thing.

- INGREDIENTS:
2 tbsps. minced parsley
1/2 cup mayonnaise
1 tsp. capers, drained and minced
1 tsp. prepared white horseradish
1 tsp. Worcestershire or A-1 sauce
1/4 tsp. hot sauce (Durkee has worked well for me)
1 egg
1/4 cup all-purpose flour
1/4 cup yellow cornmeal
1 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. coarsely ground black pepper
6 skinless catfish fillets (about one-and-a-half pounds—if you don't have any from our last warm spell, go to your local grocer)
1/2 cup salad oil
1 lime, thinly sliced

DIRECTIONS:

Approximately one half hour before serving, set aside 1 tsp. minced parsley. In a small bowl, mix horseradish, Worcestershire sauce, mayonnaise, capers, hot sauce and the remaining parsley. Sprinkle sauce with the reserved parsley, cover, and refrigerate. Beat an egg with fork. On waxed paper combine flour, cornmeal, salt and pepper. Dip catfish into egg, then roll into the flour mixture. Pour salad oil into 10-inch skillet over medium heat, fry catfish filets two at a time for about six minutes or until golden brown on both sides. Drain on paper towels, keep warm. Place the filets (one layer high—don't stack!) on a warm platter garnished with lime slices. Serve sauce with catfish just as you would with conventional tartar sauce. Makes six adult servings. Approximately 380 calories per serving. ENJOY.

Jennifer Ashe has a lot of fun playing Meg on 'ATWT'

By Marie Michaels

The role of villainess Meg Snyder on "As the World Turns" is a perfect one for Jennifer Ashe, who has frequently been cast in "naughty girl" roles since she switched from the ballet to an acting career.

Jennifer Ashe

"I have a lot of fun playing Meg," says Ashe. "You get to think about what nasty little things you'll be doing each day. But I look for the sympathetic points in the character, too, because you have to love to hate someone, not just have them get on your nerves. I have to find the justification for Meg's actions. Meg has a lot of bitchy ways, but she's vulnerable to certain situations and to certain people — like her mother."

Ashe admits that she and the manipulative Meg have a few things in common. "I have Meg's energy," she says, "and when I was Meg's age I was also obnoxious."

Portraying a soap opera villainess can be hazardous to one's health. Fans often heap verbal abuse on the poor actor who plays the villain on a soap. But Ashe reports that all her fan encounters have been pretty positive, despite her character's evildoings.

"A lot of people come up to me on the street and say, 'We hate you so much, so you must be playing your role well.' A lot of fans are surprised when they meet me and realize that I'm not like Meg in real life. They usually say things like, 'You're so nice in person.' I guess as long as people say 'I hate you,' I'm doing my job right," Ashe concludes.

This isn't Ashe's first soap opera role. She portrayed Lily Slater on "Loving" for nine months. During her two years between soap roles, Ashe was busy taking acting lessons and performing in the theater.

'The Two Mrs. Grenvilles' battle it out on NBC

By Wendy Wallace

Ann-Margret, Claudette Colbert (in her first film in 25 years) and Stephen Collins star in The Two Mrs. Grenvilles (NBC, Feb. 8 & 9), the adaptation of the Dominick Dunne novel about a former showgirl who marries into the aristocratic Grenville family and faces a head-to-head battle with her husband's mother.

Ann-Margret

It was love at first sight for showgirl Ann Arden (Ann-Margret) and the wealthy Billy Grenville (Collins), the heir to a vast family fortune. But their happiness was not shared by Billy's proud and powerful mother, Alice — the "other" Mrs. Grenville.

Their marriage starts to unravel as Ann tries to please her husband by aping her mother-in-law's tastes and manners, and her obsession with fitting into New York society culminates in the shooting death of her husband.

In Romancing the Stone (ABC, Feb. 8), Joan Wilder, a writer of romantic adventure tales, never imagined that she would find herself involved in one of those stories herself. But after receiving a frantic call from her kidnapped sister, Wilder heads for the jungles of Colombia. Her only ally is a rugged jungle hunter (Michael Douglas) who reluctantly comes to her rescue and helps search for her sister. Danny DeVito rounds out the cast in this delightful 1984 movie.

Phil Reed (John Ritter), a single, smart and successful man in search of Ms. Right, finally finds the woman of his dreams. There's one catch — she's engaged to another and won't call off her wedding. What's poor Phil to do? Ritter and Connie Sellecca star in The Last Fling (ABC, Feb. 9), a romantic comedy about Reed's attempts to keep Ms. Right from marrying Mr. Wrong.

Set amid the glamour and cutthroat competition of Washington, D.C., Stillwatch (CBS, Feb. 10) features Lynda Carter as television reporter Patricia Traymore, who is assigned to do a profile on Sen. Abigail Winslow (Angie Dickinson). With that assignment, she begins to unravel a mystery within powerful political circles of the nation's capital.

And on Emmanuel Lewis: My Very Own Show (ABC, Feb. 13), the young "Webster" star takes us through a number of America's entertainment and sports centers, where he meets guest stars Bob Hope, Sammy Davis Jr., Debbie Allen, the Los Angeles Raiders, comedian Paul Rodriguez and Siegfried and Roy.

THE EQUALIZER

On CBS's "The Equalizer," airing WEDNESDAY, FEB. 11, McCall (Edward Woodward) feels he must offer his assistance after a police inspector's daughter (guest star Melissa Sue Anderson) learns the identity of an informant who is aiding her father in his organized-crime investigations — and finds herself in danger.

Readers' Theatre To Be Held In Pikeville

The Peach Orchard Players of Pikeville College will hold open auditions on Monday, February 16, at 7 p.m. in Faith Chapel for "An Evening of Appalachian Readings." The production will consist of readings of poems, short stories, and excerpts from novels, memoirs, and non-fiction by writers of the Appalachian region, performed in the style of readers' theatre.

Those who wish to audition should bring two copies of the text they wish to read. If the poems are short, a reader may present more than one poem by a single author. The maximum length of any presentation is six minutes. If you would like to participate but don't have a work in mind, contact Peggy Davis, Alvin Stinnett, Cindy Price, or Laurie Lindberg at Pikeville College as soon as possible for recommendations.

Readers' theatre is a special kind of theatre: the emphasis is on the text rather than the performer, so no sets, make-up, or costumes are used. Readers may memorize their selections, if they prefer, but memorization is not necessary because all readers will use texts on stage.

"An Evening of Appalachian Readings" will be performed April 6. For more information on auditions or the production, call Laurie Lindberg, Director, at 432-9379, or come by Wickham 130, Pikeville College.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of my dear husband, Dockie McCoy, who was called home to be with the Lord January 28, 1978, nine years ago. This would be his wish for his family and friends to continue on in this life.

When I must leave you for a little while, Please do not grieve and shed wild tears And hug your sorrow to you through the years, But start out bravely with a gallant smile;

And for my sake and in my name Live on and do all things the same Feed not your loneliness or empty days, But fill each working hour in useful ways,

Reach out your hand in comfort and in cheer And I in turn will comfort you and hold you near;

And never, never be afraid to die, For I am walking for you in the sky, I have loved you with an everlasting love; Therefore I have continued my faithfulness in you. Jer. 31:3

"WHERE REVIVAL IS HAPPENING."

The BACKYARD NATURALIST
By Craig Tufts, National Wildlife Federation

Amelanchiers, members of the rose family, are native trees and shrubs that should find a place in most home landscapes. They bloom early and provide ripe fruit long before most other plants. They also attract a wide variety of native songbirds and other wildlife.

The fruit is as tasty to people as it is to birds. One of my fondest memories of sharing food with the birds was sitting, early one July, on the banks of the Little Beaver Kill in New York State's Catskills. Having exhausted most of the possibilities of catching brown trout, I was sitting underneath a tree-sized Amelanchier, sharing lots of the incredibly sweet purple-red fruit with cedar waxwings and Baltimore orioles.

Throughout much of the United States, 10 to 15 species of Amelanchier (also known as shadbush, shadblow, sarvis and serviceberry) are fairly commonplace in the natural environment. We may rarely notice them, except in the early spring when their billows of starry white flowers brighten the still rather austere landscape. Over the past 10 years or so, some of the plants, notably Amelanchier canadensis and Amelanchier laevis, have found their way to many local nurseries. These plants have few disease problems, excellent spring flowers, tasty fruit, attractive bark and, sometimes, red or yellow fall foliage.

With an Amelanchier or two in your yard, you might expect their flowers to attract some of the earliest-emerging butterflies, such as the larger swallowtails, the blues, the whites, some hairstreaks and elfins.

Songbirds will make the most use of your shades, feasting on the ripe fruits. Visitors may include, for instance, orioles, tanagers, certainly cardinals and robins, plus a variety of other thrushes, mockingbirds, catbirds, yellow-breasted chats and thrashers, as well as game birds such as quail and turkey.

The type and size of a shadbush should be keyed to the size of your property and its soil conditions. Some Amelanchiers are small shrubs (4 or 5 feet in height) and grow upright, in clumps. At the other extreme are species such as Amelanchier canadensis and Amelanchier arborea which grow into 10 to 30-foot trees. In time, the trees too will probably feature 3 or 4 trunks, growing the way clump birch and witch hazel trees grow. A few Amelanchiers prefer wet soils; others grow on the driest of rocky slopes.

Some Amelanchiers are available through the mail; others are obtainable only through specialty nurseries. The wonderful shadbush is well worth a close perusal of your winter mail order catalog or a visit to your local garden center. Whether you're concerned simply with the plant's form and color or, like millions of other Americans, you'd like to entice songbirds to your yard, it's a wonderful landscape choice. No matter what your reasons, shadbush can fill the bill.

For a Backyard Wildlife Habitat information packet, contact the National Wildlife Federation, Dept. BN, 1412 16th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036-2266.

Exchange Vows
Mrs. Mary Beth Chitwood, of Fergusson, Ky., and Clemit Alan Damron, of Prestonsburg, exchanged wedding vows in a Christmas setting of candles and red poinsettias at the First Baptist Church in Somerset on Nov. 29. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Chitwood, of Fergusson. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Clemit Damron, of McDowell.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Judy Looney, sister of the bridegroom. Bridesmaids were Angela Jones, cousin of the bride, Julie Bert, Jenna Minton, and Mrs. Kim Tarter.

The bride, escorted to the altar by her father, wore a gown of bridal satin and Venetian lace designed and handmade by her mother. The fitted bodice, lowered waistline, and bateau neckline were designed with pearls and sequins sewn onto patterns of Venetian lace. The slim skirt, with large scallops at the hemline was also designed with patterns of lace and sewn with pearls and sequins. Pearls draped from shoulders of large puffed sleeves onto lace appliques. The sleeves ended in bridal points at the hands. The cathedral train featured patterns of applied Venetian lace and draped pearls from the waist to tip of the train. She wore a cap covered with seed pearls and sequins which held the blusher and veil of sheerest illusion that extended to the length of the train. And she carried a white fur muff with red roses cascading to the hemline.

Ken Damron, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man. Ushers were Randy Looney, brother-in-law of the bridegroom; Rodney Damron, brother of the bridegroom; Don Halbert, of Martin; and Nate Richards, of Richmond. Miranda Looney, niece of the bridegroom, was the flower girl, and Wade Alan Damron, nephew of the bridegroom, was the ringbearer.

After the ceremony, a reception was held in the church fellowship hall. Following a wedding trip to Florida, Mr. and Mrs. Damron are living at Regency Apartments in Prestonsburg.

Apply Early For Next Year's Financial Aid

Applying for financial assistance (including scholarships) is an annual event for those who are receiving aid as well as for students who have not received it before.

Applying each year is necessary because changes in family financial circumstances can affect the amount for which a student is eligible. A shift in family finances might also permit a student who did not qualify one year to receive assistance the next year.

Recently, there has been much discussion about possible reductions in student financial aid by the federal government. This is a matter for concern, but students are encouraged to apply and to do so as early as possible.

Prestonsburg Community College will have a strong financial aid program in 1987-88. In 1986-87, students at Prestonsburg Community College received close to $1,000,000 in various types of financial aid such as grants, loans, scholarships and the college work study program.

It is very important that students apply for aid as early as possible, preferably before April 1. Qualified students who apply after this date may receive assistance, but will probably receive less help because certain financial aid funds will be exhausted.

Students or parents who have questions or need help regarding financial aid for the 1987-88 academic year may contact Brenda Music, Admissions/Financial Aid Officer, Prestonsburg Community College, Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653, telephone (606) 886-3863.

Wiser Food Choices Now Mean Fewer Health Problems Later

By JEAN MARIE DONAHUE
Christian Appalachian Project

In a daily diet of three meals a day, each of the four food groups should be included in each meal to provide the body with essential nutrients. The four food groups are meats, fruits and vegetables, dairy products, and breads. To ensure a healthy life, make better food choices and encourage better eating habits of children.

Milk is an essential calcium source of the body. Whole, low-fat, and skim milk all have the same amount of nutrients. The only difference is the fat content. For women, especially in the teen years and during pregnancy, it is essential to drink milk or provide another calcium supplement such as cheese or yogurt. Not only do females need calcium, but so do males.

Also essential to the body is water. Most of the body is made up of water, sixty-five percent. Hence, seven glasses of water a day help cleanse the body and get rid of wastes. Drinking pop is not the same as drinking water, and should not be used as a substitute for water. Pop is carbonated and contains caffeine. Unless it is a diet pop, pop contains a large amount of sugar, which can lead to dental problems. After drinking pop, brush the teeth in order to prevent cavities and tooth decay.

Vegetables cooked in a steamer retain more vitamins. Frozen vegetables contain less salt (sodium) than canned vegetables. Less salt in a diet reduces the risk of high blood pressure. Broiling or baking meat, rather than frying reduces the fat content, which reduces the amount of calories. By reducing fat intake, the risk of heart disease and obesity is also reduced. Chicken, turkey, and fish contain less fat than beef and pork.

Making healthy food choices can help prevent future health problems. Also, by eating three well balanced meals a day, vitamin supplements are not essential. A positive attitude on diet and exercise can lead to a long and healthy life. For more information on nutrition and diet contact the Cooperative Extension Service in Prestonsburg, 886-2668.

Whitaker-Risner

Miss Betty L. Whitaker and Mr. Bill K. Risner were married at the Fitzpatrick First Baptist Church at Middle Creek Dec. 20. The double-ring ceremony was performed by Rev. J.A. Dickerson, grandfather of the groom. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Whitaker, of State Road Fork, Middle Creek. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Emzy Risner, of the Mountain Parkway.

Escorted to the altar by her father and given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a floor-length gown with scoop neckline accented with pearls and puffed sleeves with lace extending into a cathedral train. She carried a silk cascade of royal blue roses accented with white gardenias and baby's breath. The groom wore a gray pin-striped tuxedo with tails.

Traditional wedding selections were presented by organist Susan Compton Newsome. Vocal soloists were Beth Hall and Dale McKinney.

The matron of honor was Marjorie Adams. Bridesmaids were Terri Dickerson, Nyla Ross and Alphonse Marsillett. They wore tea-length royal blue satin dresses and carried roses with baby's breath, trimmed with royal blue ribbon. The best man was Kenton Dickerson, cousin of the groom. Ushers were Timmy Richards, Dwight Slone and Tony Whitaker, brother of the bride. They wore black tuxedos with royal blue accessories.

The ring bearer was James Risner, brother of the groom. The flower girl was Jennifer Nelson and the Bible carrier was Crystal Nelson, cousins of the bride.

The bride's mother wore a royal blue silk street-length dress. The groom's mother wore a royal blue floral design street-length dress.

A reception was held in the church dining room, which was decorated in royal blue and white. A three-tiered cake, topped with a Wilton porcelain figurine, was served along with nuts, mints and punch.

The couple now is residing on the Mountain Parkway.

Other festivities included a wedding rehearsal dinner hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Emzy Risner at their home. A wedding dinner was given by Mr. and Mrs. Carl Whitaker at their home.

Placing Counselors in Every Grade School Is First Step Toward Solving Drug Problem

Kentucky is experiencing a problem which, if unchecked, threatens to undermine the social fabric of our people and to stop our children from achieving their ultimate potential. This problem, drug and alcohol abuse, has been treated in the past rather spasmodically, with little or no success. There has been an emphasis on education, scare tactics, tougher laws, but nothing has stemmed the tide. Perhaps the problem has been one of too many, disjointed programs with emphasis on the wrong part of the problem.

Suppose we approach the problem as one grounded in the earliest years of a child's life. If we can agree that the problem begins in the frustration of an unhappy home, the wrong messages communicated over the airways, or the anxieties experienced by living in a nuclear, unsettled world, then we might consider a different approach in our solution to this malady of society. If this is true, then certainly a coordinated program of education, support, and professional help for our children must begin in pre-school, continue through kindergarten, and be repeated regularly through the elementary experience.

First, educational and attitudinal programs must be developed that follow the educational research on how children learn. We must be persistent in the development of programs and personnel that help children solve their problems by legitimate responses and see their individual worth and dignity. A positive self-image tells a child "I am O.K." That child realizes he has within himself the power to face life and its challenges without artificial "feel good" substitutes.

Schools must involve their personnel and financial resources in this effort. The argument that the schools are asked to do too much can no longer be taken seriously. If we do not conquer this cancer, our very existence as a people is threatened. We have the mechanism in place to begin. That mechanism is the school and its professionals. Children are with professionals on a regular basis, the facilities are there, caring people meet the children regularly. What, then, must we do? Effective programs must be coordinated in every school and by every community. Adequate resources must be found, even if there is additional cost. Everyone, at least intellectually, understands that it is more expensive to prosecute and incarcerate criminals and to pay for the damages than to prevent the problem.

Kentucky people have become hardened to new "drug programs." In the past, what we have prescribed tended to be quick fixes and not long-term solutions. We must change the mind-set: Because our political offices last four years, new programs must be started, show results immediately, or be cancelled.

One program that will bear fruit and show results, if given enough time, would be to place an elementary counselor in every school.

In approximately one hundred and fifty out of nine hundred elementary schools, progressive communities are meeting the challenge with the best, new hope for our children. Elementary counselors are working with our young people at the time we have the best chance of success—before they experience the problem.

Elementary counselors can work with all children to help develop positive attitudes about themselves. They can begin the internalizing process which takes significant time to bear fruit. However, we must insist on properly trained counselors, and allow them to work with children, parents, and teachers. By doing this, we have begun the prospect for hope that our children deserve and that the people of Kentucky must support.

Our Governor has initiated a "Champions Against Drugs" program to find solutions to the drug and alcohol problems our children face. We must rise to the occasion, and support Governor Collins in this effort to help our children. Indeed, we must all become champions in the fight for our children's future. Our first step should be elementary counselors.

Soc. Sec. Benefits May Be Taxable

Up to half of the Social Security benefits people received in 1986 may be subject to Federal income tax, but mainly only for those who had substantial income in addition to their benefits, Jim Kelly, Social Security District Director for the Big Sandy area, said recently.

In fact, Kelly said, more than 90 percent of the people getting benefits will not have to pay any tax on any part of their benefits.

Every person who received or repaid any Social Security benefits in 1986 will receive Form SSA-1099, Social Security Benefit Statement, before the end of January. The form will show the net amount of Social Security benefits received in 1986, and this is the figure a person should use to figure if any of his or her benefits are subject to tax.

IRS Notice 703 will be included with Form SSA-1099, and this work sheet can be used to see if any benefits are subject to tax.

Up to half of a person's Social Security benefits may be subject to tax if his or her combined income—taxable income plus non-taxable interest plus one-half of the Social Security benefits—exceeds a base amount:

$25,000 if the person files as a single taxpayer;

$32,000 for a married couple filing jointly; or

$0 for a married person filing a separate return if he or she lived with his or her spouse during any part of 1986.

The amount of benefits subject to tax if combined income exceeds the base amount is the smaller of:

One-half of the amount over the base amount, or

One-half of the Social Security benefits. If combined income does not exceed the base amount, no benefits are subject to tax. A free booklet—IRS Publication 915—explains the entries on Form SSA-1099 and how to figure if benefits are taxable. A free copy can be obtained at the Big Sandy Area Social Security office located on U.S. 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville. The telephone number is listed in your local telephone directory under U.S. Government.

Top Spellers At Martin Elementary

When seventh-grader Anna Crum, left, rendered the correct spelling of both "delicious" and "sketch," she captured the championship title of the Martin Elementary 1986-87 Spelling Bee. The second place honor was earned by sixth grader Ronnie Mosley, right, son of Yvonne and Ronald Mosely, of Martin. Anna, daughter of Mrs. Nancy Crum, of Martin, was presented a cash award and trophy by Principal William R. Hughes. She will represent Martin Elementary in the county spelling match to be held in February.

Each classroom finalist, ranging from grades four through eight, was given a gift certificate to Druthers' Restaurant. The contestants, order of elimination, and their misspelled words were: Kevin Stumbo, 4th grade, "health"; Bobbie Dingus, 6th grade, "fuse"; Beth Horn, 7th grade, "elephant"; Glenn Floyd, 5th grade, "share"; Matthew Crum, 5th grade, "thirteen"; Mark Salyer, 7th grade, "ninth"; Jamie Shepherd, 8th grade, "staring"; Robin Bartrum, 4th grade, "indicate"; and Ronnie Mosley, 6th grade, "delicious."

The match was conducted by Martin Elementary reading teachers.

"Snow School Calendar" Has Work To Do At Home

Winter can play havoc with a teacher's schedule. It can be very frustrating to introduce a new concept and then miss the next few days of school because of bad weather.

To help continue the educational process that can be disrupted due to missed days, KET has developed the Snow School Calendar, a variety of daily educational activities for elementary school children to do at home.

During January and February, KET has developed daily activities which correspond with instructional television programs airing during KET's regular school day lineup.

The calendar suggests a program to watch each day with a follow-up activity involving a critical viewing skill. The activities are designed to be used primarily with students in kindergarten through the fifth grade. The activities, which include topics in math, science, reading, writing and visual arts, were developed by KET Educational Consultant Nancy Edwards.

Calendars and copies of KET's instructional television schedule were mailed to all public and private elementary schools in Kentucky.

If you would like a copy of the Snow School Calendar, write KET/Instructional Television, 600 Cooper Drive, Lexington, Ky. 40502.

Chapter I Program Is Subject Of Remedial Educators' Conference

"Chapter I is more than just a beginning, it is a story that is still being written by Kentucky students—those who are educationally disadvantaged, those who have been neglected or have become delinquent, those who have been placed in correctional institutions and those from migrant families," said Superintendent of Public Instruction Alice McDonald.

Chapter I is the largest federally-funded education program; it is for supplemental programs in the schools. Chapter I and the other programs for students who for various reasons are performing below average, or are institutionalized, are the focus of a Compensatory Education Conference Feb. 23-25 at the Galt House in Louisville.

The conference is designed for all remediation education specialists, teachers, parents and administrators who are involved in compensatory education programs. It is sponsored by the Kentucky Department of Education's Division of Compensatory Education.

Two seventh graders from Frankfort Independent Schools will give their perspective of Chapter I programs during a special presentation.

HOTS, the Higher Order Thinking

Skills program, now being used in 33 schools across the nation, will be introduced at the conference. "HOTS is a dynamic new computer education program which improves reading skills, as well as social skills," McDonald said. Dr. Stanley Progrow, professor at the University of Arizona and director of the program funded by the Ford Foundation, will demonstrate HOTS.

Other conference highlights include eight make-and-take workshops, with lots of take-home ideas and materials, special presentations with puppets, and remediation education specialists from all over the nation.

Superintendent McDonald will present the Compensatory Education Teacher of the Year Award at a recognition banquet Tuesday evening, Feb. 24.

For more information about the conference and registration, contact Joanne Brooks, director of the Division of Compensatory Education, (502) 564-4201.

Freud Legacy "Nova" Topic

Oedipus complex, defense mechanism, death instinct, repression: these are all psychological terms first coined by Sigmund Freud. The idea that personal insight can cure mental illness—now the focus of countless books and therapy techniques—is also Freud's legacy.

"NOVA" explores Freud's complex legacy on "Freud Under Analysis," airing Sunday, February 22, at 9:00 p.m. on KET. The program draws on interviews with noted scholars and scientists leading the debate over Freud's ideas.

Almost 50 years have passed since Freud's death. However, the ideas he developed during his long life still provoke intense debate. Psychoanalysis was considered by Freud to be the universal science of the mind. Is this "science" scientific? Who is Sigmund Freud, a man who has had a profound influence on the way we see ourselves and our relationships with others?

"NOVA" surveys the current battle over the status of Freudian thought. Nobel prize-winning biologist Francis Crick, co-discoverer of the structure of DNA, believes that Freud was wrong in his famous theory of dreams. This theory postulated a psychological origin of dreams as the fulfillment of wishes. Instead, Crick sees dreams as serving a purely biological function. However, other scientists continue to find merit in Freud's theories.

Scientific advances have added enormously to our understanding of human behavior since Freud's day. But even now, it is difficult to say which of his ideas are "right" and which are not.

Scholarship Deadline

The deadline to apply for a 1987-88 Bryden Scholarship from Transylvania University is March 1. Bryden Scholarships are awarded yearly to academically qualified high school seniors from southern Appalachia who might otherwise have difficulty meeting the costs of a college education.

"The past performances of the students who receive the scholarships indicate they will be very successful at Transylvania," said the university's president, Charles L. Sherarer. "The Bryden Scholarship program was established with the hope that, after graduation, these students will return to Southern Appalachia and become the leaders of their generation."

Established in 1984, the program is named for John R. Bryden, a Transylvania graduate who served as academic dean for 12 years and is now a member of the university's Board of Curators.

Students interested in applying for a Bryden Scholarship should contact the Office of Admissions, Transylvania University, Lexington, Ky. 40508, or call collect 606/233-8242.

FINANCIAL PLANNING

1986 TAX FILING TIPS

It's tax return filing time once again. Check these often-overlooked deductions, credits, and tax breaks to be sure you do not miss any on your return.

- Choose the best filing status for your situation. Usually that means filing a joint return if you're married, but in some circumstances, separate returns can save you money.
- Make your 1986 IRA contribution and take your deduction for it. The new rules on IRAs don't affect 1986 returns.
- Consider electing out of installment treatment on long-term capital gains sales. You may save money by paying taxes on all the gain under 1986 rules that still have the long-term capital gains deduction.
- If you had more than one job in 1986, watch for overpaid social security tax.
- Don't overlook income averaging if your income jumped in 1986. It's still available for your 1986 return.
- Get the most out of this final year for the sales tax deduction. If you made large purchases, you can deduct the tax paid on these items in addition to the amount allowed in the IRS tables.
- You can exclude $200 of dividend income on a joint return, $100 on a single return.
- If both you and your spouse work, don't miss the marriage penalty deduction that allows you to take a deduction of 10% of the lower earning spouse's income up to a maximum deduction of $3,000.
- Dig out the details on all 1986 charitable contributions. They're 100% deductible this year even if you don't itemize.
- Don't miss any credits. Some examples: political contributions credit, dependent care credit, credit for the elderly.

If you were an early filer and realize now that you've missed something on your return, remember that you can file an amended return for up to three years. You should consider doing so if the dollars involved warrant it.

Arbor Day Foundation Offers Flowering Trees

Ten free flowering trees will be given to people who join the National Arbor Day Foundation during February. Two white flowering dogwood, two American redbud, two European mountainash, two Washington hawthorn and two flowering crab trees will be given as part of the foundation's efforts to improve the quality of life in America by encouraging tree planting. "These trees were selected because they will give a colorful flowering of pink, white, and red blossoms throughout the spring," John Rosenow, the foundation's executive director, said. The foundation will give the ten trees to members contributing $10 during February. The six-to-twelve inch trees will be sent postpaid at the right time for planting between February 1 and May 31, with enclosed planting instructions. The trees are guaranteed to grow, or they will be replaced free by the foundation. To become a member of the foundation and to receive the free trees, send a $10 membership contribution to FLOWERING TREES, National Arbor Day Foundation, 100 Arbor Avenue, Nebraska City, NE 68410, by February 28, 1987.

Real Estate: Still A Good Buy

By JOHN C. WOLFF, JR., Ed. D. Executive Director Kentucky Real Estate Center University of Kentucky

Q. Real estate still seems to me to be a good investment. What do you think?
A. I think so, too. It is a "different" investment than it was before the tax act of 1986 was passed and became effective in January, but it is still good.

Here is a recent example that came to my attention. The property was selling for $57,500. It was rented in several units for $900 per-month. The owner was paying utilities: $200 per-month. Taxes and insurance came to $50 per-month. Property management was $90 per-month. The property was in good shape, but it is worth allowing 5% for repairs and 5% for a vacancy.

The vacancy allowance represents the time units are vacant. Even if you have someone ready to move in when someone moves out, there is some time needed for minor repairs, painting and other clean-up/fix-up. Between the vacancy and repair allowances, add $90 in expense.

What is called "net operating income" was $470 per-month ($900 - $200 - $50 - $90 - $90 - $90 = $470).

The lender required a downpayment of 20% or $11,500. A mortgage on the balance of $46,000 ($57,500 - $11,500 = $46,000) was available at 10% for 20 years. The payment for principal and interest on this amount was $444.36 per month. (Principal is repayment of the loan.)

At the end of the month, you have approximately $24 to put in your pocket. Do not forget, there was a $90 fee for management. You might want to do this yourself and put this money in your pocket also.

There is another cost you might want to consider: the interest you might be earning on the downpayment if you had it in a certificate of deposit, for example. The current CD rate is 5.85% at a local bank. Therefore, the cost to you would be $672.75 per-year. So what is so great about real estate?

First of all, there are two terms that mean much the same thing: "inflation" and "appreciation." We all know that rising prices, inflation, is bad. We all know that the rising value of real estate which we own, appreciation, is good.

If appreciation is about the same as inflation, then our real estate is increasing in value at the same rate. Right now, this is about 4-5% per-year.

This increase is based on the value or selling price. It is not based on the downpayment. Our example property sold for $57,500, and, if we are correct, it is increasing between $2,300 and $2,875 per year ($57,500 x 4% = $2,300 and $57,500 x 5% = $2,875).

Our investment is not $57,500! Our investment is $11,500, the amount of the downpayment. Therefore, our return on our investment is between 20% and 25% ($2,300/$11,500 = 20% and $2,875/$11,500 = 25%).

No one can guarantee the figures that have been presented anymore than a stock which doubles in value one year can be assured of doubling in value the next. The information, however, makes sense to a lot of people who have made a lot of money investing in real estate. Just as you might have to look for a good investment stock, you might have to look for a good piece of investment real estate.

Finally, the results shown here do not take into consideration any tax savings which might occur. Whatever they may be under the new tax law, they will be in addition to the investment returns suggested here.

MSU Courses Popular

Prestonsburg Community College is able to offer junior and senior level courses from Morehead State University on the PCC campus. Education, business and nursing are the most popular majors at PCC and the response to Morehead's advanced offerings in these majors has been excellent. Interest is also building in Morehead's paralegal program. Jim Ratcliff, regional coordinator for Morehead at PCC, indicates that ten upper division classes are being offered this semester with an approximate enrollment of 200.

W.D. BRANHAM, PRESIDENT of the HBK Corporation, right, is presented with a mine safety award by Wayne Wefenstette, left, manager of the Mine Safety and Health Administration, Paintsville. The award was for the company's outstanding safety record in 1985, when 47,914 employee hours were worked without a single injury that resulted in a lost workday.

Medicaid Budget On Target; Under $300 Million Billed in Six Months

Kentucky's often financially-plagued Medicaid program ended the first half of the 1986-87 fiscal year "on target." Between July 1 and Dec. 31, 1986, the state Department for Medicaid Services paid for health care charges totaling $292.7 million for an average 339,300 low-income Kentuckians monthly. That's 45 percent of the program's $643.4 million budget for the 1986-87 fiscal year.

"Historically, Medicaid expenditures have been higher during the second half of a fiscal year," said Medicaid Services commissioner Hughes Walker. "Flu and other cold weather illnesses result in a surge of visits to the doctor or the hospital. We don't expect this year to be an exception."

"During the last five years, we've spent an average of 47.4 percent of the Medicaid budget during the first half of each year. We're fortunate to have kept expenses a little below that this year because changes in the program are already affecting expenses for the second half of the fiscal year."

In 1985 the Human Resources cabinet reduced payments to medical service providers in an effort to head off a projected $50 million Medicaid deficit in the the 1985-86 fiscal year. Services to clients were not changed.

In 1986, the General Assembly enacted laws to help combat Medicaid fraud and to revise operating costs which providers can charge to the program.

Additionally, there are now more than 200,000 Medicaid-eligible women and children served under the Kentucky Patient Access and Care (KenPAC) system designed to increase preventive health care while reducing medical expenses.

"These and other reforms helped us have a balanced Medicaid budget last June 30," Walker said. "We expect to achieve that same goal this year."

Changes impacting Kentucky's Medicaid program during the last half of the fiscal year include more alternatives to institutional care, expanded pregnancy-related services and a different reimbursement rate for wages for long term care facilities.

"Last October we began offering hospice care for terminally ill patients as a Medicaid benefit," said Walker.

"And effective Jan. 1, we started expanding our home- and community-based services program. By June 30, the end of this fiscal year, we will be offering this optional care in every Kentucky county.

"This program will permit some Kentuckians who are ready to enter a nursing home to remain in their own homes with help from family, friends and a local home health agency."

The department also has expanded medical services for low-income women who are pregnant to include two-months of post-partum care. These services are available to women in two-parent families that meet income guidelines.

Walker said nursing home wage rates now are based on state employee wage rates instead of a national index used previously. "We feel this will help decrease turnover, increase staff and stabilize employment," he said.

"All the changes we have made this year are in the interest of patients getting better care," he added.

Now Is Enrollment Time For Medicare Medical Insurance

The general enrollment period for the medical insurance part of Medicare runs from now through the end of March. Jim Kelly, Social Security District Director for the Big Sandy area, said recently.

During these 3 months, people who passed up the chance for this protection or who had it and dropped out can again enroll.

Protection for people who sign up during the general enrollment period will start next July 1.

The Federal Government pays about three-fourths of the premium costs from Federal general revenues. Enrollees pay the rest.

Medical insurance complements the hospital insurance part of Medicare. Hospital insurance helps pay for medically necessary inpatient hospital care and certain followup care in a skilled nursing facility or at home.

Medical insurance helps pay for doctor's services no matter where they are received in the U.S., including surgical services, diagnostic tests and X-rays that are part of the treatment, medical supplies furnished in the doctor's office, services of the office nurse, and drugs that are given as part of the treatment and which cannot be self-administered.

Medical insurance also covers outpatient hospital services received for diagnosis and treatment and other services and supplies not covered by hospital insurance.

On Honor Roll

Lee Ann Bottoms, Georgetown College freshman, from Prestonsburg, was named to the "A" Honor Roll for the fall semester, according to a recent report from the Vice President for Academic Affairs, Dr. Joe Lewis. Students named to the "A" Honor Roll must have a grade point average of 3.75 to 4.0.

Medical insurance pays for 80 percent of the approved costs or charges for covered services and supplies after the patient has met the $75 annual deductible.

Task Force To Study Mine Permit Process

Gov. Martha Layne Collins has named a task force to make recommendations for improving the permitting process for surface coal mining operations in Kentucky.

The 15-member group represents various aspects of the surface mining industry, including industrial operations, professional organizations, financing and public relations.

In creating the task force, Collins said, "We are asking for input from those who are directly affected by the regulations."

Kentucky was granted primacy by the Federal Office of Surface Mining in 1982 to oversee regulation within state borders. While the National Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet has been successful in clearing the backlog of interim permits, the volume of permitting conducted within Kentucky has exceeded earlier projections. As a result, the cabinet is now seeking resolutions to various procedural problems associated with the granting of permits, Collins said.

Among the areas to be considered by the group are the administration of permits, the regulations under which permits are reviewed and issued, and programs administered by other states and the federal government. The task force will be looking at ways to facilitate the permitting process. Final recommendations are to be made to the governor no later than Sept. 1, 1987.

Members of the task force are: James E. Baker, chairman, Western Kentucky Coal Assoc., Madisonville; Jay Barlow, president, Harlan County Coal Operators Assoc., Inc., Harlan; Jack Fitz, president, Knott/Letcher/Perry County Coal Operators Assoc., Bula; Burlin Coleman, Coal Operators and Associates, Inc., Pikeville; Tom Duncan, president, Kentucky Coal Assoc., Lexington; Paul Corbin, Small Coal Operators Advisory Comm., Pikeville; Nick Carter, attorney, MAPCO, Lexington; Jim Rose, president, Interstate Coal Co., London; Ken Hart, Kentucky Coal Journal, Frankfort; Jeff Klinger, Legal Public Affairs, Henderson; Larry Finley, Jim Smith Contracting Co., Grand Rivers; Steve Cawood, Cawood & Fowles, Pinewood; Rep. Gregory D. Stumbo, Prestonsburg; Rep. Herbert Deskins, Jr., Pikeville; Sen. William T. Brinkley, Madisonville.

Named To Dean's List

Three Floyd students at Transylvania University have been named to the Dean's List for the past term. They are junior John Patrick Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Anderson, of Prestonsburg; sophomore Grover Mark Tussey, son of Marie R. Tussey, of Allen; and freshman William Kevin Fleming, son of Juanita Boatwright, of Prestonsburg. All are Prestonsburg High School graduates.

One Year Old

Kyle Brandon Hoover, born on January 22, 1986, celebrated his first birthday at his home in Hueysville. He is the son of Sheila Jan and Melvin Hoover, and the grandson of Herman and Bessie Marshall and Johnnie and Maudie Hoover, all of Hueysville. Attending his party were: his parents and his brother Mark; Timothy Adams; Bessie and Herman Marshall; Kay Ousley, of Allen; Susan and Alan Crum and their daughter Sheila Lynn, of Martin; Frances Stephens and her children Marie and Christopher, of Hueysville; and Sheri Hoover, Thelma Hoover and Lurey Hoover, all of Hueysville.

Stumbo Backs Noe For Superintendent

Majority Floor Leader for the Kentucky House of Representatives, Gregory D. Stumbo, last week announced his endorsement of Rep. Roger Noe, D-Harlan, for State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

The Prestonsburg Democrat said that Noe has been his life-long friend and colleague in the support of east Kentucky and they have continued their friendship while in the Kentucky House of Representatives.

"Representative Noe has been one of the major forces behind education reform that has occurred in Kentucky thus far. This outstanding legislator was a key figure in writing and passing the education reform package of the 1986 Special Session," Stumbo said.

New Project Designed to Reduce Premature Births, Infant Deaths

The Kentucky Department for Health Services in conjunction with the March of Dimes has initiated an eight-county program designed to help prevent premature births, the leading cause of low birth-weight babies, the department announced recently.

"Too many Kentucky babies are born in a crisis situation—too dangerously small or too early to survive," said Health Commissioner Carlos Hernandez, M.D. "Since low birth weight is the leading cause of infant mortality, we believe that if we can do something about premature deliveries, we can slowly but surely lower Kentucky's infant mortality rate.

"This is one of several efforts to expand and enhance the state's prenatal care programs," he said.

The state's 1985 infant mortality rate was 11.2, which means that out of every 1,000 live births, 11 babies die before reaching age one. Statewide, 6.9 percent of all babies are of low birth weight, which is less than 5.5 pounds. Among health department clients, the figure is 7.4 percent.

The project, which starts this month in health departments in Jefferson, Hopkins, Bell, Harlan, Boyd, Lawrence, Kenton and Campbell counties and which eventually will be expanded statewide, attempts to identify prenatal patients with a high likelihood of delivering prematurely.

These patients will attend prenatal clinics weekly rather than once a month and are taught signs of premature labor, according to Maternal and Child Health Director Patricia Nicol, M.D. They also meet with a nutritionist to learn the best foods to eat during pregnancy.

"We hope that by providing more intensive medical care and by educating expectant mothers that we can prevent many premature births," said Nicol. "For example, subtle signs or changes in a woman's condition can be detected early in the game if she is seen every week.

"And a woman who can recognize premature labor symptoms can go to the health department or hospital for immediate medical attention," she said.

"This type of prenatal care is more expensive than for a woman who has a problem-free pregnancy," said Nicol, "but it is much less expensive than the specialized intensive care that a premature infant demands."

The department has worked closely with local hospitals, physicians and health departments and the March of Dimes in implementing this program in Kentucky. The March of Dimes designed the pre-term labor program, which has been successful in Florida, according to Shana Funk, regional program director for the March of Dimes Ohio Valley Region. Several other states are implementing the program, she said. The organization supplied Health Services with educational materials and has paid for travel and training for physicians, nurses and nutritionists.

"This system ties the prenatal clinics and hospitals closely together," Nicol said, "so we met with hospital and health department personnel and physicians—we wanted everyone to understand the project.

"We've had some physicians express an interest in using this system of premature labor prevention in their private practices in addition to their health department patients," she said. "We would love for this to catch on in both the public and private sectors."
