Fun with Vengeance...

County's Students Match Wits In Show of Academic Prowess

Unlike a nicely-executed basket or a scorching touchdown run, academic competition may never bring an arena crowd to its feet. And there are those who wonder whether, in a world already tense with rivalry, it makes much sense to turn learning, too, into combat.

But that is a minority view. A variety of academic competitions have been organized for Kentucky high school students in recent years and, although one Floyd principal characterized them as "trivia contests," many teachers and students hail them as an integral part of the current state push to improve the schools' generally dismal reputation for scholarship.

None is more outspoken on that point than Prestonsburg High School senior Tony Skeans, for whom the 1987 Governor's Cup competition in which he and 15 schoolmates participated here Saturday, was an opportunity to demonstrate that eastern Kentucky students are "a force to be reckoned with."

"It gives us a chance to be recognized academically. People think of us as dumb hicks. We're ready to show them we're not," said Skeans, the acknowledged math champion on Prestonsburg's successful quick-recall team. "It's fun, but it's vengeance, too."

Four Floyd high schools—Prestonsburg, Allen Central, McDowell, and the Mountain Christian Academy—competed Saturday in the opening, district rounds of the Governor's Cup. And, for the first time, the county fielded a grade school team—from Garrett Elementary School—in the competition.

A week earlier, Allen Central, McDowell and Prestonsburg students competed at Morehead State University in the Sweet Sixteen Academic Showcase, a competition organized last year by Lexington Mayor Scotty Baesler as a scholarly counterpart to the annual boys' state basketball tournament.

Prestonsburg competes regularly in a regional academic competition sponsored by the East Kentucky Academic Conference and all five county high schools have appeared on "Scholastic Challenge," sponsored by Kentucky Educational Television.

For Caralita O'Quinn, art teacher at Allen Central, the new emphasis on scholastic games is a means to give schoolwork and intellectual prowess the same prestige among students that athletic skills have traditionally enjoyed. "I'm all for athletics—after all, I'm a cheerleading sponsor," said Mrs. O'Quinn, "but academics are equally important."

McDowell Principal Gary Frazer noted that, for Senior Night, the school orders jackets for its academic team as for its athletes. The actual knowledge that students may glean from quick-recall and written competition, he said, is less significant than the fact that the contests "stress the academic side of school life."

Normalcy, Dignity Goal for Retarded As Search for Residence Continues

"Let them become as normal as they can be. Let's give them the risk of dignity," Chalmers Howard said about his mentally retarded clients. Howard, who is mental retardation director at Mountain Comprehensive Care, plans to buy a house for them in a residential area near Prestonsburg in order to create a living situation as normal as possible.

The house will serve as a temporary home for no more than three mentally handicapped persons. Its purpose is to provide a normal living environment for people who are at high risk of being institutionalized and serve as the core unit in a cluster of homes and support services.

Mental retardation should not be confused with mental illness. Mental retardation is not an illness; it's a condition of below-average intellect, which starts at birth or in early childhood and is usually helped by education and training. There are more than 250 known causes. Some of the more common are prenatal infections like rubella or chromosome abnormalities like Down's Syndrome. Infections such as meningitis and encephalitis can cause retardation, as can malnutrition, neglect, and poisons like lead in paint.

It used to be that when a person was diagnosed mentally retarded they would either stay at home or be sent to an institution. "For too long we put a stamp on them—'retarded'—and shipped them off," Howard said. "They were put in institutions out of necessity and not based on the person's needs."

But that's changing now, according to Howard, due to the "cluster system" of care that Kentucky started in 1983, which works as an alternative to institutionalizing people.

"Institutions create institutional behaviors," Howard said. "They take away a client's liberties and freedoms, their right to dignity and a clean environment. They take away a person's right to choose his own food and clothing. They're treated as a group rather than as individuals."

The benefits of keeping a client in a community far exceed those of institutionalizing him, the director said. It's more humane because it allows a person to be served in the least restrictive environment by putting them in the care of people who care about them. And clients are more productive. "That's the beauty of the cluster system," Howard said. "It raises the quality of lifestyle for these individuals."

The cluster system will serve 45 clients, is funded by Medicaid, and will be an economic plus for the area. According to Howard, 20 to 30 people will be hired, and $900,000 will be spent for salaries and services. Also, it is more cost-effective than institutionalizing a client: $22,500 a year as opposed to $28,000.

The core residence is the center of the cluster system. Residents will stay there

County Escapes Brunt Of Winter's Worst Storm

The second storm of the season arrived Monday, causing widespread school closings and power outages and glazing most of Kentucky in a sheet of ice that led to one death in Johnson county. Floyd county residents, however, fared somewhat better than their neighbors in almost every direction, receiving a lighter dose of the messy combination of sleet, snow and rain that fell all day Monday.

While much of Johnson county was encased in ice and Pike county was covered with snow, the streets of Prestonsburg were mainly puddled with rain.

Diane L. Johnson, 32, of Hager Hill, an accounting instructor at Mayo State Vocational School in Paintsville, died at about 7:55 Monday morning when her car slid off icy KY 2039 in Staffordsville and overturned in a creek. Her sister, Sherry Johnson, 28, a passenger in the car, was not injured. Neither woman was wearing a seatbelt, according to Kentucky State Police.

Floyd county schools were closed Monday and Tuesday. Transportation director Ed Patton said that school would be back in session Wednesday if the temperature would remain above freezing. However, weather predictions for Tuesday night included a high probability of snow and low temperatures. If that happens, Patton said, "you can forget school for the rest of this week."

Prestonsburg Community College held daytime classes, Monday, but cancelled Monday night classes and went to its short-class snow schedule, Tuesday.

Ice build-up and falling tree limbs brought down power lines in Floyd, Johnson and Martin counties beginning at about noon Monday, according to John Howard, of the Big Sandy Rural Electric Cooperative. About 50 homes in Floyd county were affected, mostly in the Abbott Creek and right Middle Creek areas, and electricity was restored to those customers about 10 p.m., Monday.

In Johnson and Martin counties, however, between 400 and 500 were affected by the outage, and some still had no electricity Tuesday morning. The Big Sandy crews had a tough time keeping up with the problems on the lines, Howard said.

"As soon as we'd get the power on, in 10 minutes another limb would fall," he said.

Many lines were still down on Tuesday, even though power had been restored to the homes they served by using alternate lines. "Our men are still working," Howard added. "It'll take probably the rest of the week to repair those down lines."

About 200 Kentucky Power customers in Johnson county also lost electrical service when a pole broke at about 12:30 p.m., Monday, according to company spokesperson Leon Huffman. The power was on again for most by 10:30 p.m., though about 30 homes had to wait until 5:30 a.m., Tuesday.

NO CHIRPS OF JOY were heard when birds that usually feed at this station found it encased in ice after Monday's storm.

Bentley Files Suit Against Truck Driver

The husband of a pregnant Langley woman killed on Dec. 5 when her car was struck by a coal truck at the intersection of U.S. 23 and KY 1428 at Allen has filed a lawsuit against the truck driver in Floyd Circuit Court, claiming unspecified damages for her death and that of her "unborn viable infant."

Named as defendant in the suit is Glennis R. Reynolds, Jr., of Rush in Boyd county, who faces murder and assault charges as a result of the collision that occurred when he allegedly ran a red light and plowed into the Chevrolet Citation operated by Brenda Sue Bentley, who was 36.

The suit was filed Friday by Prestonsburg attorney Jerry Patton on behalf of Jerry Bentley, the widower and executor of Mrs. Bentley's estate. It seeks compensation for the loss of his wife's companionship and that of his unborn child, the money Mrs. Bentley and the child might have earned had they lived, and for the pain she endured during the two hours between the collision and her death.

In addition, it asks compensation for the pain and "disfigurement" suffered by the Bentleys' three-year-old daughter, Jerri Michelle, who sustained a broken jaw and facial lacerations in the accident, for funeral and medical bills, and for the loss of the car. Two other children—Susan Renee, 12, and Tammy Lynn, 9—also survive.

Bentley, 35, an employee of May Metal Products, Inc. at Allen, alleges that Reynolds was "grossly negligent" in the accident and seeks punitive as well as actual damages from him.

(Suits filed in court give only the plaintiff's version of the issues in dispute.)

CAP Will Distribute Commodities Thursday

The Big Sandy Area Community Action Program will distribute commodities to qualified low-income families in Floyd county tomorrow (Thursday) beginning at 8 a.m. Priorities will be given to the elderly and handicapped.

Applicants must show identification displaying a valid Social Security number. Persons unable to pick up their commodities may authorize a representative, who must show a signed dated statement that includes January's total family income, address and number in family.

For further information call the Big Sandy CAP office at 874-2965.

Rover May Wind Up In Experimental Lab

Although police have turned up no evidence of criminal activity, a growing number of area animal lovers are convinced a Johnson county hillside is the hub of a thriving trade in stolen pets.

Nor were their suspicions lessened when members of a group from Floyd, Pike and Johnson counties were driven away Saturday when they sought to question and photograph the man they say is buying household dogs for a Pennsylvania firm that provides animals for scientific research.

Two members of the group had a personal interest in checking out reports that, for several months, a truck with Pennsylvania tags had been loading up to 100 dogs every Saturday morning near the popular stock auction-flea market at Staffordsville. Allen Burton, owner of Paintsville radio station WKLW, lost one of his two dogs from his Hager Hill home last Labor Day weekend. Just over a month ago, Sam Trossky, of Paintsville's Northgate subdivision, lost a purebred Beagle.

Neither of the men has seen his dog at the Staffordsville site, but both say they have seen enough to know that someone is doing a flourishing trade in dogs—and that the bulk of the dogs do not appear to be strays.

"They could be picking strays up," said Trossky, who watched for about 15 minutes early Saturday morning while a man loaded dogs onto the three decks of an enclosed truck. The presence of several out-of-state vehicles bringing up dogs for transfer to the truck made him suspect the drivers were "people in cahoots with dog pounds in other states," Trossky said.

But most of the dogs being traded "looked like somebody's pets. They were looking for big dogs, dogs with good teeth," Trossky said.

PICKUPS, some transporting dogs, surrounded larger, aluminum-sided truck Saturday morning on a hillside at Staffordsville, scene of what some suspect is a trade in stolen pets. The larger truck, near center of picture, is reportedly registered to a Pennsylvania kennel, but state police investigators say they have no evidence the dealer operating near the Staffordsville stock auction is doing anything illegal.

Raise Money By Reading

Participating students in grades K-5 read books over a seven week period. Sponsors of the students made donations as the books were completed.

Students having 10 sponsors and reading 10 books received a certificate and gold medal. These students were: Joey Lee Bailey, Ethan Blackburn, Phillip Butler, Joe Campbell, Dan Chalothorn, Jeremy Gibson, Andy Jarvis, Sally Lambert, Matthew Eli Mayo, Aaron Ousley, Nicholas Richardson, Daniel Risner, Joseph Risner, and Sally Vance.

Students having eight sponsors and reading eight books received a certificate and silver medal. These students were: Samantha Allen, Stephen Allen II, and James Osborne. Stephanie Sexton and Brooke Mullins also participated and received certificates.

The money from the Read-A-thon was used to purchase books for the library and classrooms.

Martin Teacher Chosen

Ruby Jean Mayo, fifth grade teacher at Martin Elementary, is one of eight people selected statewide to provide guidelines for a state policy on split classes in Kentucky's elementary schools.

At a meeting held recently, the group discussed the advantages and disadvantages of splitting classes, the characteristics of the teacher in split classes, guidelines for student placement, and teaching strategies. The information derived from the group's discussion will be used to develop a booklet of guidelines to help elementary principals and teachers as they initiate and conduct split classes.

Civil Engineering Scholarships Open

Kentucky high school seniors who are interested in a career in civil engineering should apply now for four-year scholarships.

The Kentucky Transportation Cabinet has given scholarships to Kentucky students to attend the University of Kentucky civil engineering department since 1948.

The scholarships are valued at approximately $16,000 to qualified students and include a monthly stipend plus summer work assignments. Upon graduation, scholarship recipients will be given a full-time job with the cabinet.

To qualify for the scholarship, a student must graduate from an accredited Kentucky high school and meet both the admission requirements of UK and the UK engineering college. The student should have a high school grade-point average of at least a 2.5, on a 4.0 system, an ACT composite score at or above 60 percent, and an ACT mathematics score of at least 70 percent.

For further information and applications, contact the College of Engineering, Department of Civil Engineering, 606-257-4859.

Among many other rehabilitation services, the Kentucky Easter Seal Society provides diagnostic treatment and services for speech, hearing and related disorders.

Prestonsburg High Academic Team Has Unbeaten Conference Record

Prestonsburg High School's academic team finished the regular season with a perfect 26-0 conference record. In its final meet on January 31 the team defeated Mullins and Johnson Central. Mike Rosenberg placed first in science in the written assessments, and David Spiggle took first in social studies. Chris Croot came in second in science as well as tying his teammate Tony Skeans for second in math. Written assessments are one-hour multiple-choice exams in math, science, social studies, and language arts.

Other students accumulating points in the last conference meet were Dusty Weathers, Scott Wells, David Stanford, Melinda Slone, and Erich Blackburn.

Coaches Nell Lawson, John Patton, and Bob Wells moderated and officiated. On the same day Prestonsburg freshman Byron Crider, Paul Horn, Dustin Haley, and Brian Stewart beat Pikeville's freshmen team in a quick-recall scrimmage.

Prestonsburg continued its domination of the league the following week by winning the Eastern Kentucky Academic Conference tournament held February 2 and 4. Written assessments were taken the first day with David Spiggle placing first in science, Tony Skeans second in math, Scott Wells second in social studies, and Mike Rosenberg finished second in science. The scores on the quick recall competitions were: Prestonsburg 38, Sheldon Clark 21; Prestonsburg 36, Virgie 35, and in the final game, Prestonsburg 46, Pikeville 31.

Governor's Cup Competition will begin with the district tournament February 14. All Floyd county high schools will be competing in quick recall, written assessments, English composition, and creative expression. Teams and individuals who place will advance to the regionals on February 28 at Pikeville. State finals will be held in Louisville March 23.

Book Will Aid Genealogists

Dr. Stuart Sprague, professor of history at Morehead State University, recently published a third book to aid genealogists seeking their Kentucky ancestors.

"Kentuckians in Illinois" is a listing of migrants who moved from Kentucky. Arranged in tabular form, the entries include such information as name and birthdates; parents' names, birthdates and birthplaces (if known), and also the date of migration. The book's index contains references to more than 10,000 people.

Dr. Sprague found his information in such sources as county histories and atlases and traced the indistinct trails left by these migrants. Using the same type of research, Dr. Sprague wrote the first two books in his Kentucky migrants series, "Kentuckians in Missouri" and "Kentuckians in Ohio and Indiana."

Dr. Sprague has been with the University since 1968. He received his bachelor's and master's degrees from Yale University and his doctorate degree from New York University.

A noted Kentucky historian, Dr. Sprague has published several books and many articles for newspapers, magazines and journals. A recipient of the 1985 "Distinguished Researcher Award," Dr. Sprague is known as a pioneer in Appalachian history.

For the same reason, Garrett Elementary School Principal Ralph O'Quinn called an assembly when the school's academic team—including students in fifth through eighth grades—competed in Pikeville last fall. "We introduced the participants, just as we would in a pep rally," he said.

O'Quinn is convinced the competition heightens interest, at least for the participants, in their daily classwork. "It gives the kids a reason to be tucking away facts in their memory banks," he said. "We get a lot of extra work out of them."

As a participant, Mike Miller, McDowell High School senior, agrees. "It has improved my grades; it makes me want to study more," he said. And, as his team was being soundly out-classified by Prestonsburg on Saturday, he noted another benefit. "It teaches you good sportsmanship."

At Garrett grade school Friday, the academic team was having its first workout with a $400 buzzer system just purchased with funds raised from local donors. As the team prepared to compete the following day at Paintsville High School, they were anxious to avoid the mishap that cost them a victory last month in competition at Morehead, when seventh-grader Robby Sexton—the math specialist on Garrett's quick-recall squad—was first to turn a fraction to a decimal but lost the point when he fumbled with the unfamiliar buzzer.

For their part, Prestonsburg's team competed Saturday with the confident camaraderie and easy banter of seasoned trouper. Overall winners in this year's East Kentucky Academic Conference, runners-up in the Governor's Cup state final last year, and easy winners in the district round here Saturday, the group is hungry for victories in regional competition at Pikeville High School on Feb. 28 and in the state finals, March 15-16, in Louisville, where 1000 Kentucky students will match wits in creative expression, English composition, science, mathematics, social studies, and language arts.

For Prestonsburg Principal Robert May, the "broadening experience" gained by students in competition gives an important psychological boost to their education. "They get an opportunity to mix with other kids across the state, to see what other kids can do, and to know that they are not all that different," May said. "It shows them they are not inferior, that they can compete on an equal basis."

Or, as Tony Skeans put it, "They all think they're much better than us guys here in the hills. I'm looking forward to getting hold of a couple of Lexington schools and tearing them apart."

from seven to no more than 90 days. "The client will be there only as long as it takes us to find him a more permanent home in a foster placement," Howard said. While staying there the client will hold a daytime job at MCC's sheltered employment program and get as much support as they need as well as any special medical or therapy services they require. Besides that, Howard said, "they will be monitored by a staff person and provided with structured recreation, taken to McDonalds and the movies."

The core residence has proven to work in other regions of Kentucky. Howard said and, of all 16 regions, the Big Sandy region and Hazard are the only two not served by a cluster system.

Whatever its benefits, however, not everyone in the Prestonsburg area welcomes the idea. Residents of Maple Avenue petitioned the City Council objecting to any zoning variance for the former Lillian Rimmer property, and a petition was circulated in Auxier against Mountain Comprehensive Care's interest in a property there. Howard attributes the negative reaction to fear and a lack of understanding. He is now considering a house in Johnson county.

Howard said that while there is sometimes opposition to setting up a core residence in an area, the opposition dwindles once people give it a chance. "Once you demonstrate the program and give the community a chance to observe it, people begin to see the clients as people with desires and needs just like themselves."

Bits and Pieces

ROMANCING the SUPERMARKET

After spending maybe 30-45 minutes racking the old brain, checking the refrigerator, bread-box, pantry, asking your better half for any wild and impractical suggestions he or she may have to add to the grocery list, do you sally forth only to find that you've left the blasted thing at home?

Then, fairly well demoralized, not to say shook, at finding oneself in the middle of a market armed with cart, cash, checkbook, credit cards, etc., but only the sketchiest of ideas of which three or four dozen items are absolutely essential to holding your family together, do you ever feel that you are taking part in a bizarre ballet created by a wholly insane choreographer?

"Swan Lake" should be heard when in a moment of derring-do, one glides blithely around a corner, cum cart, managing with subtle style to avoid confrontation, if not collision, with an abrupt halt in mid-stride. There follows two apologetic backward steps, with a quicker step forward to avert certain disaster from the rear.

And I swear to you, not long ago, when poked in the back by a sharp object, possibly a knife, but most likely a mop or broom, I executed a leap some distance into the stratosphere with perhaps even a pause in mid-air which could only have been a source of envy and dismay to Dame Margot Fonteyn or Baryshnikov. Nothing like it has been seen since Nijinsky flitted across the boards.

I will admit, under pressure, the return to terra firma somewhat spoiled the effect of the upward flight.

As well, there is beauty, grace of form, and adventure to be found in the most mundane of activities.

MCA's Jones Receives Full College Scholarship

Ross Jones, a senior in the first graduating class of the Mountain Christian Academy, has received a 4-year, full-tuition merit scholarship to Thomas More College in Northern Kentucky. Jones was notified of the college's decision in late January.

Jones has ranked second in overall High School grade point standing, is the captain of the school's quick recall team, and is active in the school's drama productions. He is also on the yearbook staff, and plays on the basketball team.

In recognition of his academic performance, Jones was listed in Who's Who In America. Last year he spent four weeks at Center College as part of his selection to the Governor's Scholar Program. Jones is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Jones, Jr., of Prestonsburg.

Autopsy Report Suggests Victim Beyond Saving

A man who died after his friend allegedly abandoned him in an auto wreck on the Auxier road two weeks ago would have died even if he had received immediate medical attention, according to an autopsy report.

The issue could be important to Frank Stevens, 35, of West Prestonsburg, who has been charged with murder, as well as drunk driving and leaving the scene of an accident, as a result of the Feb. 4 wreck which killed Winston Fairchild, 34, of Paintsville.

According to an autopsy report by state Medical Examiner Dr. John C. Hunsaker, Fairchild died of massive bleeding from injuries to the brain, chest cavity, liver, and pancreas.

"His injuries were irreversible. He definitely would have died," said Floyd Coroner Roger Nelson. The cold weather—it was 36 or 37 degrees at the time—would have slowed the rate of bleeding, prolonging the victim's life by hours, the coroner said.

According to a police report, Stevens was operating a 1974 Chrysler on U.S. 23 when he lost control around 2 a.m. and ran off the road. After the crash, he and his 15-year-old wife, Lavonda, reportedly walked away from the scene with their two sons, aged one and two, and got a ride home.

Left behind were Fairchild, his girl friend, Virginia Fairchild, and her 11-year-old son, who remained where they lay until they were discovered by a passing motorist at 7:45 a.m. Fairchild, who was apparently thrown from the vehicle through the rear window, died nine hours after the crash. Virginia Fairchild and her son were admitted to hospital and released three days later. The Stevens' older son was reported to have suffered a broken collarbone.

National FFA Week Slated Feb. 21-28

More than 430,000 FFA members will promote FFA, high school agriculture and the food and fiber industry during National FFA Week, February 21-28.

FFA members in 8,000 chapters across the U.S., the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, will organize events and activities to create awareness and support for high school agriculture and the FFA.

FFA activities and programs will be promoted by FFA members and through public service announcements on the local, state and national levels. This year's theme is "FFA—Leaders for the New Fields of Agriculture," with emphasis on "Excellence Made in the FFA."

High school agriculture classes stress hands-on practice in many diverse areas of agriculture, and FFA activities provide leadership development, communications training and award incentives for these young people.

Kevin Eblen, national FFA president from Creston, Iowa, said FFA Week is the chance for members and communities to recognize the achievements and activities available through FFA and high school agriculture.

"We're proud of this commitment to young people and agriculture. As FFA members, and students in agriculture classes, we are receiving the business, science and leadership skills we need to prepare for the diverse and challenging careers in agriculture," Eblen said.

Each year FFA Week is held during the week of George Washington's birthday to recognize his leadership and commitment to American agriculture. The National FFA Center is located on part of the old Washington estate near Alexandria, Virginia.

Outlook Good For Brackett After Surgery

Floyd Schools Superintendent Ray Brackett is recuperating in a Lexington hospital this week after suffering a heart attack nearly two weeks ago while eating lunch in a Prestonsburg restaurant.

For days after the seizure, school officials were tight-lipped about the superintendent's condition. A special meeting of the Floyd Board of Education scheduled for last Tuesday was cancelled without explanation and, a week after he was stricken, Brackett's staff gave guarded answers to questions about his health.

Assistant Supt. Ron Hager later confirmed that the meeting, planned for last Tuesday to deal with a looming budget deficit, was cancelled because of Brackett's illness. The meeting, at which staff cuts were expected to be announced, has not been rescheduled, he said Tuesday.

Hager said Brackett, who is 54, was having lunch at the Western Sizzlin' Steak House with schools health coordinator Ned Bush and treasurer Russell Frazier on Thursday, Feb. 5, when he fainted and fell to the floor.

Brackett, who has a history of heart trouble, was taken by his companions to the emergency room at Highlands Regional Medical Center, where he was admitted for tests. Early last week he was transferred to St. Joseph's Hospital and, on Friday, he underwent heart bypass surgery to reroute the coronary blood flow around a clogged blood vessel.

Hager said Brackett was expected to return to his Allen home within a week and may possibly return to work within a month.

Brackett was named acting superintendent of Floyd schools in September, 1985, following the resignation of E. P. Grigsby, Jr. He was appointed permanent superintendent last March.

Dr. Furcolow Is Board Certified

John R. Furcolow, M.D., has completed the requirements for membership of the American Board of Internal Medicine.

Furcolow attended medical school at the University of Kentucky. He received the Dean's Award for his contribution to the medical school upon graduation. He completed his intern and residency programs at UK. While at the University, he created a required medical school course in nutrition and continues to serve as the course director. He also wrote a book to be used with the class. In 1982, he presented a research project about malnutrition in hospitalized patients.

He also has a BA in art from Rutgers University. From 1973 to 1986 he was the film critic for the Lexington Herald-Leader. He taught a course in film criticism at UK, and 1974 he produced and co-hosted the Ingmar Bergman Film Festival on Kentucky Educational Television.

Furcolow is originally from Kansas, but has lived in Kentucky since 1964. He now lives in Paintsville with his wife Melissa and their two sons.

Names Omitted

Missing from the Prestonsburg Grade School's Honor Roll list were the names of Cindy Tackett, with an A average, and Stacy Calhoun, a B average. Both students are in the eighth grade.

Award Winner

The U.S. Achievement Academy has announced that Stefanie Henson is an award winner in biology and algebra. The daughter of Wayne and Linda Henson, of Beaver, she was nominated for the award by Joan Caldwell, her biology teacher, and Lindsay Blackburn, her math teacher, at McDowell High School.

Prestonsburg Day Homemakers

The Prestonsburg Day Homemakers held their first meeting of 1987, Tuesday afternoon, February 10, at Fellowship Hall of the First United Methodist Church, with 30 members in attendance. Mrs. Judy Kittle, president, presided. Mrs. Dorothy Osborne, Secretary, read the minutes, and gave the roll-call. Mrs. Mary Jane Brown presented the devotionals, entitled "The Parable of the Talents," based on Matthew, Chapter 25. Cards, to be mailed to members who had been sick, or in distress, were signed, and the names of persons observing recent birthdays were read.

The president, Mrs. Kittle, welcomed new members, Mrs. Dixie Webb and Mrs. Pat Phillips.

Mrs. Frances Pitts, director of Floyd County Homemakers, discussed with the group the trips planned to Greenbo Lake and Virginia and said reservations should be made soon. She also announced that the Quilt Workshop would be held at the First United Methodist Church, February 24, from 9:30 a.m.-2:30 p.m., and suggested that those attending should bring sack lunches.

The lesson on scherenschnitte (the art of paper cutting), was presented by Mrs. Pitts, who asked that work done by members during this meeting be brought to the next meeting, Tuesday, March 10, at 1 p.m.

The hostess, Mesdames Rebecca Rasnick, Dorothy Osborne, and Lucy Regan, served refreshments to Frances Pitts, Judy Kittle, Barbara Dawson, Myrtle Allen, Mary Jane Brown, Ann Alley, Shirley Callihan, Jane Wallace, Sandy Chandler, Julia Curtis, Mabel Donahoe, Alleen Fitch, Beverly Hackworth, Alice Harris, Phyllis Herick, Eleanor Horn, Gypsy Jones, Maman Leslie, Mary Sue Moore, May K. Roberts, Beckye Short, Otela Smiley, Dorothy Stover, Nancy Webb, Hope Whitten, Dixie Webb, and Pat Phillips.

Hostesses for the March meeting will be Mesdames Mabel Donahoe, Sandy Chandler, and Pat Phillips.

P.R. Coordinator

Kathy Rubado, a native of Paintsville, has been named public relations coordinator for Highlands Regional Medical Center.

Rubado is well known in the Paintsville area for her involvement in civic activities as a member of the board of directors of the Paintsville Apple Festival and the Paintsville Garden Club. As a member of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, she has worked with the Heart Fund for several years.

She has been similarly active as chairman of fund raising activities for Our Lady of the Mountains School and has also served the school as a substitute teacher.

As public relations coordinator for Highlands, she will assist in the hospital's marketing programs, public relations, community relations, internal publications, employee relations, professional recruiting, and fund raising.

Rubado attended the University of Kentucky and lives with her husband, Gary, and their three children in Paintsville.

First Methodist Circle Meets at Church

The Friendship Circle of the First United Methodist Church held its regular monthly meeting, Thursday evening, February 5, at the church. Mrs. Dawn Brown gave the devotionals, and led the program on "Interpreting Prayer." Mrs. Kathy Fitzpatrick, hostess, served a dessert course to Diana Turner, Becky Scholtz, Dawn Brown, Kay Hale, Alice Cole, Rebecca Hereford, Debbie Hicks, and Angel Shepherd.

A rummage sale, to be held May 9, in the church's parking lot, is being planned by this group, with proceeds to be used for the library and nursery.

The next meeting will be held Thursday morning, March 5.

English Teachers To Form Local Chapter

Teachers of English and language arts from 22 eastern Kentucky counties have been invited to attend an organizational meeting for a local chapter of the National Council of Teachers of English, to be held Saturday, February 21, at 10:30 a.m. in room P216 at Prestonsburg Community College.

Faculty members Alice Adams and Monette Sturgill hope that establishing a local chapter will provide fellowship and support for its members as well as an opportunity to learn new and creative approaches to the teaching of writing and language arts through conferences and the sharing of ideas. All interested persons are invited to attend. For more information, contact Adams or Sturgill at 886-3863.

The Kentucky Easter Seal Society was organized in 1923 to help boys and girls overcome physical disabilities.

Archives Dept. Marks Black History Month

February is Black History month in Kentucky, and the Kentucky Department for Libraries and Archives offers a rich selection of research materials through its Archives Research Room. Sparked by the appearance and success of Alex Haley's "Roots", interest in genealogy, family history and ethnic history has grown markedly in recent years. Researchers of the black experience in Kentucky can find a wide variety of public records useful to their investigations.

Of primary importance are federal census records for Kentucky, dating 1790 to 1910. State and local records available include births, deaths, marriages, manumissions or emancipation papers, tax assessment lists, deed books, school census records, will books, and court case files. In addition, there are a few extant ex-slave interviews undertaken by the WPA Federal Writer's Project in Kentucky during the 1930s.

Staff of the department's Public Records Division are happy to assist with questions about sources for black genealogy. Questions should be addressed to the Research Room, Public Records Division, Kentucky Department for Libraries and Archives, Box 537, Frankfort, Ky., 40602-0537. Public service hours at the Research Room are 9 a.m. to 4:15 p.m., Monday through Saturday.

WE WHO KNOW HIM BEST, SUPPORT HIM MOST

In 1959, Bert T. Combs, of Floyd County, became the second person from East Kentucky to be elected to Kentucky's highest office. All of us in Floyd County can see still today the positive results of his administration in our area.

In 1987, some 24 years after Governor Combs left office, we can also see the effects of 24 years of neglect of our area by Frankfort. This time, we have the opportunity to change this.

Grady Stumbo ran for Governor in 1983 and, despite this being his first-ever try for elective office, came within a whisper of capturing the office. In 1987, with a much higher name recognition, a solid campaign organization throughout the state, and an army of small contributors fueling the campaign, we have the chance of a lifetime to elect another East Kentuckian to Kentucky's highest elective office.

This Sunday, February 22, at 2:00 p.m. at the McDowell High School, Grady will announce his attention to seek the 1987 Democratic nomination for Governor of Kentucky. We'd like to invite you to join Congressman Chris Perkins and other notables in this campaign kick-off.

We had a slogan in the successful 1959 campaign of Governor Combs—"We who know him best, support him most." Bring your family and friends out to McDowell on Sunday and let's show Grady that we appreciate what he's doing to bring the concerns of working people to the attention of the people of Kentucky, and that we, here in his home county, support him most.

In Governor's Cup...

Prestonsburg, Allen Central Advance to Regional Contest

Prestonsburg finished first in 58th District Governor's Cup academic competition held here Saturday, ahead of Allen Central High School. McDowell placed third. In district competition held at Inez, Sheldon Clark won over Paintsville High School, Johnson Central, Magoffin County and Mountain Christian Academy.

The top two teams in each district and the top three students in individual categories will advance to regional competition at Pikeville High School on Feb. 28. Winners and second-place finishers in regional competition will compete in the state competition on March 15 and 16.

Students competed in English composition, creative expression, social studies, science, language arts, math, and quick recall.

Placings in individual categories in 58th District competition here:

Math—1. Tony Skeans; 2. Dusty Weathers; 3. Chris Croot, all of Prestonsburg High; 4. Billy Terry, Allen Central.

Social Studies—1. Mike Parker; 2. Scott Wells; 3. David Spiggle, all of Prestonsburg; 4. Dale Slone, McDowell.

Language Arts—1. Scott Wells, Prestonsburg; 2. Libby Gibson, Allen Central; 3. Melinda Slone, Prestonsburg; 4. Dale Slone, McDowell.

Science—1. Chris Croot; 2. David Spiggle; 3. Mike Rosenberg, all of Prestonsburg; 4. Billy Terry, Allen Central.

English Composition—1. Christy Clark, Allen Central; 2. (tie) Leigh Ann Patton, Prestonsburg, and Liz Ousley, Allen Central; 4. (tie) Kelly Nickles, Allen Central, and Cathy Horn, Prestonsburg.

From Mountain Christian Academy, a Floyd school which competed in Inez, senior Clarizza Singayao, who won third place in language arts, will advance to regional competition. Health and physical education teacher Sue Thomas, who coached the MCA team, said the school named Ross Jones and Jennifer Caudill as the team's most valuable players.

Among Garrett Elementary School students, who competed in middle-grades competition at Paintsville High School, eighth-grader Johnny Slone, who took first place in science, and sixth-grader Heather Watson, third in creative expression, will go on to the regionals.

Seven Workshops On Schools Set By Prichard Committee

Wade Mountz, chairman of the Prichard Committee for Academic Excellence, a citizens' group concerned with education reform, has announced plans for a series of one-day Citizen Action Workshops to be held across Kentucky. The workshops will be open to the public and will be held in seven locations this spring. One is scheduled for April 28 at Prestonsburg Community College on the topic, "Making a Difference in Your Schools."

Each workshop will provide training in organizing, leading and planning citizens groups, Mountz said. In addition, each workshop "will focus on one of three topics so we can help people with their special interests." These topics reflect several of the Prichard Committee's priorities—giving preschool age children encouragement and care to be ready for school; helping parents and teachers communicate and cooperate; and helping citizens be more involved in school decision making.

Asked about the need for the new committee program, Committee Executive Director Dr. Robert F. Sexton said, "Deep down we all know that no matter how much state government does to improve schools, good local schools depend upon local interest and initiative. You see good schools in communities where local citizens, parents and teachers care, and where citizens know how to make a difference."

"It's been moving to meet so many people across Kentucky who care so much and who desperately want to get involved in their schools. We found many of these in the Town Forums in 1984," Sexton said. "Many local education groups have been formed since the Town Forums. But many of these groups have asked for help, and people who are not in these groups also say 'How do we make a difference?' and 'What do we do?' They're often frustrated by bureaucracies and complicated

Adah Chapter, O.E.S. Meets Monday Evening

Adah Chapter No. 24, Order of the Eastern Star, met Monday evening, February 9, at 7 o'clock at the Masonic Hall, here. Mrs. Jewell Bayes, worthy grand, presided. The minutes of the last meeting were read by Mrs. Patsy Evans, secretary, who also presented the communications.

Mrs. Bayes discussed the initiation, to take place in March, and asked that all officers make an effort to attend the next meeting, at 7 p.m., to take part in practice for this event.

Present for the meeting were Jewell Bayes, Patsy Evans, Belle Conn, George Elste, Emma Lou Horn, Dorothy Osborne, Pauline Sparks, Wanda Elste, Paulina Owens, Molly Hyden, Rebecca Rasnick, Lorena Wallen, Janie Hicks, and Lillia Mae Price, members, and from the Martin Chapter, Delsy Gearheart and Pam Ratliff, visitors.

regulations." "The citizen workshops," Sexton continued, "offer training and information about organizing and leading, and about programs that can be work."

Sexton added that the workshops are as much about being effective citizens as about education. "We keep in mind Thomas Jefferson's warning that citizens' talents 'will perish without use, if not sought for and cultivated.'"

Unlike the Committee's 1984 Town Forums, which attracted 20,000 attendees in 178 school districts, the workshops do not aim to attract large numbers, Mountz said. "We hope for a few interested volunteers from each county or school district," he said, "those who want to organize others to make things happen."

The citizens' training will be conducted by volunteers and specialists in program areas. Sexton said materials will be mailed to likely participants soon, but that word of mouth and phone calls from committee volunteers will probably be the best way to reach participants. He said he hopes interested people will call the committee if they are interested in the Workshops.

High Bonds Will Hurt

The Knott-Letcher-Perry Independent Coal Operator's Association, Inc.'s technical committee, in our efforts to convince OSM officials that the small operators are paying adequate bond amounts, feels the public needs to be made aware of the economic impact this would have on our local communities.

As you may or may not know, coal operators obtain bonds by cash, letters of credit, or bonding insurance companies.

The most common method for obtaining bonds is obviously through an insurance company mainly because they don't have cash, nor can they produce letters of credit due to the high bond amounts. Therefore, the only alternative is to use bonding companies. If bond amounts are raised to exorbitant levels, bonding companies have no choice but to either pull out of this area or raise the premium to astronomical levels. The end result—the small operator will not be able to purchase bonds, therefore, they will be out of business.

The Bottom Line

The United States Conference of Catholic Bishops is preparing to write a pastoral document titled, "Women in the Church and Society", and to gather information for their document, the bishops are holding hearings all over the nation.

I have attended two of these hearings in the state of Kentucky, and both of them were planned, coordinated, and directed by feminist nuns. All speakers at both of the hearings were for the full participation of women in the Church, including the ordination of women to the priesthood. There was much discussion concerning "discrimination" and "equal rights" in the two sessions, yet in both sessions not one traditional, conservative Roman Catholic was selected for the speaker's panel, and I believe that similar sessions are being staged all over the nation in an attempt to modernize, humanize, and socialize the Church, and to help promote a split of the American Catholic Church from Rome.

There is nothing glamorous and liberating about the infiltration of the women's liberation movement into our Judeo-Christian churches. It is an exploitation of women, and it is perpetrated by pride, rebellion, paranoia, and self-concern. And, the bottom line of the women's liberation movement is Marxism—the overthrow of capitalism, the disintegration of the family unit, and the destruction of institutionalized religion.

Old Glory—A Beautiful Sight

A few days ago, I was travelling west on new Ky. 80 when I passed by Kinzer Drilling Company's new place of business. I noticed some workers installing a huge metal pole, and I assumed they were installing a sign to advertise their new location. That afternoon about 5:30, I was returning to Prestonsburg, and as I came into sight of Kinzer's, the sun was shining bright, and it lit up the most beautiful sight I have seen in Eastern Kentucky for some time—a huge American flag. And it sure did give me a thrill to see this huge flag blowing in the breeze.

I feel sure all Floyd countians will have something to boast about when they see this beautiful flag, and the Kinzer-Drilling Company certainly didn't try to economize when installing this flag pole.

I say, thanks a million, Kinzers. This will thrill many who will be passing your place of business.

Special Prosecutor Named in Goble Case

The report of the Floyd Circuit Court grand jury, which normally would have been issued early this month, has been delayed due to the appointment of a special prosecutor in the Dan Goble murder case, according to Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen.

Attorney-General David L. Armstrong has appointed Boyd county Commonwealth's Attorney Mark Green to handle that case, and Greene has scheduled a meeting with the grand jury for Feb. 18. The grand jury report should be ready soon thereafter, Allen said.

Allen added that he disqualified himself from the case because he was a close friend of Goble and his family. Goble, 66, was shot and killed during a dispute at his home Dec. 18. His wife Pauline, 64, has been charged with murder and is free on $10,000 bond. "I didn't feel that I could handle the case, knowing the family as well as I did," Allen said.

Source of Noise Is Unexplained

Residents of the Goble-Roberts addition, east of Prestonsburg, were startled Monday night by a loud explosion, but an investigation by Prestonsburg police and fire departments failed to turn up any explanation of the boom.

"Everybody heard it," said Police Chief Elmo Allen, "but the police and fire departments looked all over the place and couldn't find a thing."

The noise was reported by several residents at about 7:30 p.m., and was loud enough to shake the windows of several houses, he added.

MSU Opens House For Prospective Students

College-bound students will have an opportunity to visit Morehead State University on Saturday, Feb. 28, for an open house.

Registration begins at 9 a.m. in the Adron Doran University Center. Following remarks by University administrators, students will be informed of the various programs MSU has to offer with faculty members available to answer questions on specific areas of study.

Representatives from admissions, housing, student development, campus organizations will be present. Tim Rhodes, financial aid director, will advise students on the procedure for filing financial aid application forms.

Also included in the four-hour program is a tour of the campus with visits to areas of special interest.

A second open house is planned for March 28.

Information on MSU open houses may be obtained by calling toll-free 1-800-262-7474 (in-state) or 1-800-2090 (out-of-state).

Archeology Takes A Back Seat At Stephens Branch Tipple Site

A prehistoric village might lie buried beneath the mounds of coal and dirt piled at a newly-permitted tipple site at the mouth of Stephens Branch on Right Beaver Creek.

Or it might not. The truth probably never will be known, because Edco Energy Corporation, the California company which is turning the location into a coal-washing and refuse-disposal site, decided to ignore the state's request that an archaeological survey be done before construction began last month.

The loss of a "known archaeological site" of "high potential" points up Kentucky's currently ambiguous position on protecting historic sites that have not been studied thoroughly enough to be listed on the National Register of Historic Places. Under existing state law, the Division of Permits in the Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet can request—but cannot require—that a coal company have an archaeological survey made before beginning operations.

Most companies, like Edco, simply ignore the request. "It was not required," explained Stephen Nestor, of Nesbitt Engineering, a Lexington firm that performed other studies of the site for Edco Energy. "Given the option, you're looking at several thousand dollars worth of work. You aren't going to do something you don't have to do."

Almost a million acres in Kentucky were permitted for stripmining operations between 1983 and 1985. Archeologists estimate that one historic site is destroyed for every 66 acres that are bulldozed.

Some state officials had hoped that new regulations adopted last week by the U.S. Office of Surface Mining would clear up the ambiguity by forcing states to require—not request—a survey when a historic site was suspected to exist. But those who hoped for such a clear-cut mandate will probably be disappointed, according to Robert E. Nickel, director of the Division of Permits.

Nickel said last week that he had just received a copy of the new regulations and had not had time to read them yet. But his understanding was that the regulations do not force states to require a survey. Instead, they merely give states the authority to require surveys.

"We'll have to modify state rules," Nickel said. That process might take four or five months or longer. "It's a pretty hot issue," he added.

According to David L. Morgan, state historic preservation officer, the Stephens Branch site was identified in a "very preliminary" way in 1977 while the Kentucky Heritage Council was doing a general survey of Floyd county. Some flint chips and a piece of "Johnson Plain" pottery were found, indicating that prehistoric people had lived there. More artifacts were found nearby.

But the site's real archaeological significance has not been assessed, Morgan said, and not enough is known about the location to make it eligible for listing on the National Register.

While most places listed on the National Register are old buildings and other structures that date well within recorded history, prehistoric sites may be listed too, he said. Once a site is found to be eligible, it can be protected from mining operations.

Morgan wrote to state Division of Permits officials in August to tell them of the significance of the Stephens Branch site. Floyd county has 47 other known prehistoric locations, he wrote, 35 of which are village sites. Three of them are "unique prehistoric midden sites" that are eligible for the National Register.

Permitting officials subsequently wrote at least three letters to Nestor, the Lexington engineer, warning him of the potential significance of the area. A survey and mitigation plan were officially requested, and in October Nickel warned him that the company could be cited for violations of Kentucky law if historic artifacts were uncovered during mining operations.

No survey or mitigation plan was submitted, however, and the permit was granted on January 7. The permit also was protested by 36 Stephens Branch residents who fear that the tipple operation will pollute their water and increase the danger of flooding. State officials said, however, that the project meets the usual standards for being granted a permit.

Pizzeria Owner Files Suit Against City for Taxes Paid

"I was caught between a rock and a hard place," Hobert Bowens said, "when the city came up and told me they were going to close me down." Bowens, the proprietor of Hobert's Pizzeria in Lancer, and 28 of his present and former employees are suing the city of Prestonsburg for $4,615 in back taxes the city collected in 1984 and 1985.

Bowens' problem began in 1984 when he was informed by the city that the property he was leasing had been annexed and that he had to deduct payroll taxes. Never questioning the order, Bowens began paying the taxes. Things went along like that for two years until May, 1986 when the city's fire inspector found fire code violations in the pizzeria's building and ordered them fixed within 30 days or the city would close him. "It wasn't just electrical wiring," Bowens said. "There were other repairs that I was told I had to make. But I couldn't afford to make them. I would have had to move."

Threatened with closing, Bowens notified his landlady, Hazel Rorrer, and she told him the city had no right to close him because the building wasn't in the city. To verify this, Bowens and Rorrer talked with Prestonsburg Mayor Ann R.

Wetland Protection Meeting Set Feb. 24

The Environmental Quality Commission will hold a public meeting on wetland protection strategies, Feb. 24 at Western Kentucky University, Room 305, Downing University Center, Bowling Green, at 7 p.m. local time.

The public is invited to join the commission, staff from the Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet's Division of Water and other state and federal agencies in discussing the importance of wetland areas and what should be included in a state wetland protection program.

Kentucky's wetlands are disappearing at an estimated rate of 3,600 acres (5.6 square miles) every year. The Division of Water contracted with the Kentucky Nature Preserves Commission, a state agency mandated to protect the state's natural heritage, to develop a strategy that would help protect Kentucky's remaining wetlands. The commission's report has created a great deal of interest from public and private groups. The public meetings will provide a forum for discussing a number of issues about wetlands, including:

How should wetlands be defined: what protection and management policies are appropriate for particular wetlands; what regulatory and non-regulatory options are needed to curtail the loss of wetlands in Kentucky, and what are the impacts if a wetland program is or is not implemented.

The Environmental Quality Commission is an independent seven-member citizen board that advises the governor and the Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet on environmental rules, regulations, policies and plans. The commission serves as a public forum for the exchange of views, concerns and information relating to the quality of Kentucky's environment.

Latta. "She looked on the map and said we were not in the city," Bowens said.

The city's bid to collect taxes from Bowens and other properties in Lancer stemmed from a city ordinance annexing the land in January, 1984 and, although a circuit court decision later struck down the ordinance, the city sent tax bills to the businesses.

Once he had established that his business wasn't in Prestonsburg, Bowens stopped paying city taxes, and he was notified by the city that he would no longer receive any services.

Bowens and his employees are now suing to have the tax money they paid over the two-year period returned to them, contending the city had no right to collect it. The suit lists the amount owed each employee, which varies from $1.21 to as much as $1948.38. "That isn't all of it," Bowens said. "In the two year period there was approximately $9,000 deducted, but the amounts we're asking for is only what we have record of."

City Attorney Larry D. Brown said he has informed the city council of the suit, and that he will file an answer to it as soon as City Administrator Fred James figures the cost of city services delivered to the business in that period. "I will file a counter claim for the amount of city services they received," the lawyer said.

Asked about the services they received in the two-year period, Bowens said, "I haven't gotten a thing from the city; they've never done anything for us. When the girls have called the police for help, they said they couldn't come out here and told them to call the sheriff." Bowens concedes that he receives water and has his garbage picked up by the city like other Lancer residents. "But I pay them for it," he said.

Paintsville attorney John David Preston is representing Bowens and the pizzeria employees.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Polly Hamilton wishes to thank all of those who were so kind and considerate during our time of grief. We want to thank those who sent flowers, food, prayers and spoke comforting words. We especially thank the Regular Baptist ministers for their kind words and the Hall Funeral Home for its kind and efficient services.

Are Winners In Academic Showcase

Serena Thornsbery, left, and Kathi Keen, both Allen Central High School students, won first place titles in regional competition in the Sweet Sixteen Academic Showcase at Morehead State University on Feb. 7. Thornsbery won in the creative writing category with her short story, "Mama's Last Good-bye," about a young mother dying of tuberculosis in the 19th century. It will be published this spring in "Mountain Magic," a literary magazine featuring the work of Floyd high school students. In the category of two-dimensional art, Keen won with a pastel drawing of her cousin, entitled "Mark."

Other Allen Central students competing at Morehead: Libby Gibson, fifth place essayist, Becky Beliter, vocalist, Melanie Patton, trumpet soloist; Serena Thornsbery, speech; Van Jackson, sculpture; Tony Turner, Brent Little, Gary Samons, and Travis Crum, computer team; and Billy Terry, Tommy Craft, Carmel Davis, and John Wohlford, math team.

The students were accompanied by Caralita O'Quinn, art instructor, Patricia Watson, English instructor, and Joyce Watson, academic coach.

1986 Jobless Rate Marks 5-Year Low

Kentucky's annual unemployment rate for 1986 was 9.3 percent, matching the 1984 rate as the lowest annual rate in five years, according to figures released today by the Cabinet for Human Resources.

The 1986 report marked a drop of 0.2 percent from 1985's 9.5 percent rate.

An average 1,533,000 Kentuckians were estimated to be working in 1986, the third highest figure on record. The state's highest average employment figure, 1,554,000, was recorded in 1984, followed by 1,535,000 in 1985.

Meanwhile, the estimate of jobless Kentuckians averaged 156,000, the lowest figure since 1981 and 5,000 below the 1985 figure of 161,000.

"These figures indicate that, despite the downward pressure of increasing foreign competition and changing demands in the workplace, Kentucky's economy remains stable," said state labor market analyst Ed Blackwell.

"Considering the national trend of existing jobs being lost due to modernization and competition, a stable employment base means that growth is occurring. We are attracting and creating new jobs to counter those we lose."

Double-digit rates were recorded only during the first quarter. Rates ranged from a high of 11.4 percent in February to a low of 7.7 percent in October, the lowest rate since October 1981, when it was 7.0 percent. Other revised monthly rates were January, 11.0 percent; March, 10.4 percent; April, 9.3 percent; May and June, 9.0 percent; July, 9.9 percent; August, 8.6 percent; September, 8.1 percent; November, 8.1 percent; and December, 8.5 percent.

Department for Employment Services surveys showed the average number of service jobs in the state increased by 12,500 over 1985. Trade jobs were up by 5,500, education by 5,300, construction by 3,300, finance, insurance and real estate by 2,600, and transportation, communications and utilities by 700.

Bituminous coal mining jobs registered a loss of 2,400, manufacturing lost 2,100 and the average number of agricultural jobs declined by 1,454.

Kentucky's average labor force figure in 1986 was 1,690,000, the fourth highest figure on record.

The 1985 average was 1,696,000, while in 1984 the figure stood at 1,714,000 and in 1983 it was 1,700,000. Blackwell noted that several major employers in Kentucky have offered early retirement to workers and attributed some of the labor force decline to this.

The civilian labor force includes non-military people who are working and unemployed people who actively are seeking work. It does not include anyone who is out of work but not looking for a job.

Labor force figures are compiled from results of surveys conducted by the U.S. Census Bureau, the number of people filling unemployment insurance claims, employment figures provided by employers and an estimate of the number of unemployed who don't qualify for unemployment insurance benefits.

"It's important to remember these are estimates used to measure employment trends," Blackwell said. "Interviewing everyone 16 years old and older in the United States each month would be virtually impossible, and the cost would be prohibitive. So the Census Bureau interviews only a sample of the population."

At the same time, the state Department for Employment Services collects monthly employment and wage data from a sample of all nonfarm businesses in the state and estimates the number of jobs by occupation and business or industry. But a more accurate measure comes from information employers must file quarterly with their unemployment insurance tax payments.

Wage data for October through December of 1986 was due Jan. 31, although some employers are late submitting reports. "By the time a report is developed, the information on October employment may be six months old," Blackwell said. "However, this information is the closest we have to a complete census and is invaluable in helping us provide accurate statistics."

Census Bureau To Collect Employment Data, Here

The Census Bureau will collect current employment and unemployment data for this area February 17-21, according to William Hill, director of the bureau's Charlotte regional office.

The local data will contribute to February's national employment and unemployment picture to be released March 6 by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. The January data become available February 7. The December data showed a national civilian unemployment rate of 6.7 percent. This means that 7.9 million workers out of a labor force of 110.6 million did not have jobs.

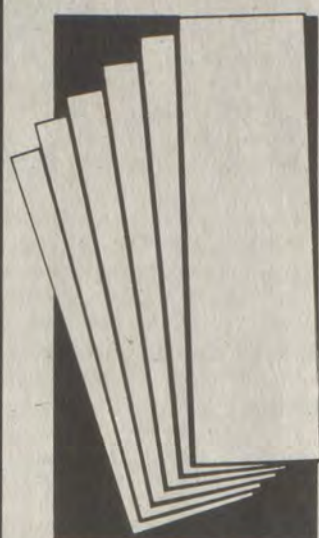

Information supplied by individuals is kept confidential by law. Only statistical totals are published.

1st Baptist Church W.M.U. Circle Meets

Members of the Annie Allen Circle, W.M.U., First Baptist Church (Irene Cole Memorial), held a meeting at the home of their president, Mrs. Patsy Evans, Monday evening, February 2.

Mrs. Evans' granddaughters, Misses Bethany and Emily Evans, presented members with booklets and bookmarks, upon arrival.

The permanent watchword, "Laborers Together with God," was given, and prayer was held for several persons.

Mrs. Evans reminded members that the Week of Prayer would be March 1-8. It was decided that the goal Annie Armstrong Easter Offering which is churchwide, would be $1,000 this year.

Mrs. Dolly Pettrey, Sunshine chairman, on behalf of the group, sent Valentines, to the shut-ins of this organization.

Mrs. Patsy Evans read from John 3:16, and Mrs. Ruby Garrett presented a program on evangelism. She was assisted by Mesdames Eva Collins, Lucy Regan, and Zella Archer. Mrs. Collins read the names of Baptist missionaries observing birthdays during February, and prayer for them was led by her and Mrs. Zella Archer.

Misses Emily and Bethany Evans served salad and dessert courses to Mrs. Ruth Prater, a guest, and members, Mesdames Patsy Evans, Rella Evans, Lillia Mae Price, Vivian Fraley, Rebecca Rasnick, Docia Woods, Eva Collins, Ruby Garrett, Dolly Pettrey, Lucy Regan, Zella Archer, Ada Meade, Dorothy Osborne, Myrtle Allen, Goldia Williams, Faye Patton, and Maman Leslie.

PLANNING

NEW ALIMONY RULES

The Tax Reform Act of 1986 gives a tax break to those who pay alimony.

For many years the government has been concerned that nondeductible property settlements in a divorce not be disguised as deductible alimony payments.

To assist in this determination, the Tax Reform Act of 1984 compared the payments during each of the first six years after divorce for variations in the amount paid. If the annual payments varied by more than $10,000, the payor was required to recapture the excess as ordinary income and pay taxes on it. If the payor was required to add prior alimony deductions back to income, the recipient was allowed a deduction for a like amount.

The Tax Reform Act of 1986 reduces the six-year test to a three-year test and increases the allowable variation from $10,000 to $15,000.

There are exceptions to the recapture rule. The recapture will not apply if the termination of payments is due to the death of either party or if the payee-spouse remarries before the end of the third year. The recapture rules also do not apply under certain temporary support agreements or if the amount to be paid as alimony is determined as a percentage of the paying spouse's income.

These new rules are effective for divorce agreements that are executed after 1986. Agreements written prior to 1987 may be modified to expressly provide for the application of the new three-year rule. There are also special transitional rules for some pre-1987 agreements.

Prior to the 1986 law, the agreement had to specifically state that payments would terminate upon death, or you were denied your alimony deduction. Under the new law, payments will no longer be disqualified as alimony even though the separation instrument does not expressly provide for termination at death.

While Govt. Funds Shrink...

Tight Management Wins Feds' Trust, Reports Agency Chief

While cuts in federal welfare programs have become a hallmark of the Reagan administration and at least half a dozen primary health care programs in Kentucky have had their budgets reduced this year, a Prestonsburg-based agency reports a six-percent increase in its government subsidy.

For Jim Stewart, executive director of Big Sandy Health Care, Inc., which operates clinics on Mud Creek and in Salyersville, the added funding means federal officials are convinced that public money is being well spent here. "We're doing a real good job; we're supplying a lot of goods and services for the dollar; and they realize it," he said.

As a result of tight management, Stewart said, for the first time in its 13-year history the health agency is itself raising more than half its operating revenue. In the year just ended, collections from patients or their underwriters—including Medicaid and Medicare—amounted to 53 percent of the $1.2 million budget, up from 49 percent the year before, Stewart said.

This year, the federal government will contribute $689,995 of the agency's $1,460,000 budget, leaving $770,005 to be raised locally, Stewart said.

Big Sandy Health Care is one of many primary care agencies established with federal funds in the late sixties and early seventies to provide medical care for those otherwise unable to afford it. Stewart said the agency "turned the corner" this year—raising more money than it received from the government—largely because of more vigorous collections. "We're making sure everything is being billed and we're taking in more money up front. It is not quite so easy now," he said.

Pharmacy services were expanded last year and the addition of an internist to the medical staff has enabled the agency to continue care of patients admitted to hospital, Stewart said.

MAGISTRATE OWENS' Yearly Report

From: Jan. 6—1986-Jan. 6, 1987
(This ad covers the months of April, May and June)

During the month of the April meeting, one issue was to purchase a track loader. The Fiscal Court voted to award the bid to Kentucky Machinery. I lobbied hard against this, hoping to get a piece of Caterpillar equipment because of the large inventory of parts that you can get overnight and the enormous amount of radio-dispatched servicemen that Caterpillar has that is unmatched by any heavy equipment company in this area.

During our May 16, 1986 meeting, Terry Triplett, representing the Floyd County Firefighters Association, asked for the fire trucks to be put on the county fleet insurance policy. I lobbied for this, but this didn't even get off first base. Also in this meeting, the Fiscal Court voted to add to our budget $26,451.67 that we had not anticipated getting from strip-mine fees. The Fiscal Court also voted to accept $20,000.00 from FEMA that we had not anticipated to add to our budget expenditures. The court also voted to hire a new deputy jailer. The Judge presented the Fiscal Court with his 1986-1987 proposed budget for their inspection. I voted against this proposed budget because I didn't think it was good for the people of Floyd County. Closing this meeting, the Fiscal Court voted to pay $2,000 to the property owners adjoining the Mink Branch Bridge for temporary use and damages during construction of this bridge.

During the June meeting, Richard Ousley asked for half on $800 worth of gravel that he had put on the county road during the winter. After having proof that he purchased the stone and the stone had been put on the county road, DeRossett made the motion to pay the man and I, OWENS, MAGISTRATE, DIST. 2, seconded the motion. Vote went as: FOR—OWENS, DeRossett; AGAINST—Ed Caudill and Ermal Tackett with Judge Stumbo breaking the tie with his vote not to pay. Also, during this meeting, the adoption of the 1986-1987 $4,722,074.00 budget that the Judge had presented was voted upon. Vote went as such: FOR—Ed Caudill and Ermal Tackett; AGAINST—JACKIE EDFORD OWENS. The reason I voted against this budget was because I had no input whatsoever as to what went in it. DeRossett was against this budget because it left out the Floyd County Rescue Squad. NOW I ASK—How many of you people have attended a Fiscal Court meeting this year asking for something and been told, "IT'S JUST NOT IN THE BUDGET." I want you to know IT'S NOT MY FAULT that it's not in the budget.

People, these are just a few of the 46 votes voted upon during April, May and June. I was present for every meeting and for every vote. People, I voted more NO VOTES during my first year in office than most Magistrates would vote in ten (10) years. If I don't think it's right or if I don't think it's right for the people of Floyd County, I'M VOTING NO. Most of my No votes were because of not being informed of things on the agenda for the monthly meeting—like being handed the agenda 10 minutes before the meeting and expecting you to go over fourteen pages of things to be voted on. That's why I pushed hard to get the agenda 3-4 days ahead of time now.

P.S.—Coming up in the May Election we have got a lot of important races—Both in STATE and COUNTY governments. It's going to be important to DIST. 2 and ALL of Floyd County that we pick a person that's for the people of Dist. 2 and Floyd County as a whole. WE HAVE GOT TO STICK TOGETHER.

Bobcats Down Allen Central To Earn Conference Title

The Betsy Layne Bobcats got some help from Prestonsburg Wednesday night, took full advantage of it Friday night, and claimed their fifth Floyd County Conference title in the past seven years.

Wednesday Prestonsburg upset conference leader Allen Central, giving Betsy Layne an opportunity to clinch the regular season title, which they did Friday night.

Todd Sturgill scored 19 points, including an important three-point play in overtime, as the Bobcats downed Allen Central, 52-51.

"We won the thing, and that's what is important. It's good for the school, and it's good for the program," Betsy Layne Coach Craynor Slone said.

In winning another conference title, the Bobcats surpassed all expectations. After losing four starters from last year's squad and going to war without much size, Betsy Layne's competition selected them as the number four team in Floyd county.

"I knew that we would be competitive after we went to Morehead last summer. The players showed a great attitude and a great desire to win," Slone said. "We knew that we wouldn't be strong in rebounding, so we just had to be patient on offense, take good shots, and play good defense."

The Bobcats did all these things and more in their Friday night victory. Betsy Layne's offensive play re-described the word patience. It could have been termed as boring, almost a semi-delay at times, but it has worked all season for Craynor Slone, and it worked one more time, Friday night.

Betsy Layne, 16-7, and Allen Central, 13-8, have developed a tradition of close basketball games this season, all three contests have been decided by one point, and the biggest lead of the night was five points, which Betsy Layne held on two occasions.

After taking a one-point advantage into the second quarter, Betsy Layne's Todd Sturgill hit on consecutive field goals to give the Bobcats their biggest lead in regulation play.

This one, however, didn't last long. In fact, less than one minute later, Ronnie Ousley canned a short jumper to give Allen Central a two-point advantage, and this set the tone for the remainder of this fitting championship finish.

The two teams went into the locker-rooms tied at 21, and if it were possible the game would have gotten closer in the second half.

Allen Central twice opened up leads of four points; once midway through the third quarter and again near the end of this unpredictable and unfinished war.

With 2:09 remaining in the game, Allen Central's Joey Conn hit on a jump-shot to push the Rebels to a four-point advantage, but his and his teammates efforts were soon washed away.

Bud Newsome hit on a pair of jumpers within 30 seconds to tie the score, but Betsy Layne once again found themselves down when Roger Horne bombed one in with 56 seconds left.

Betsy Layne, however, has grown to be known as a team never out of striking distance so with nine seconds remaining, sophomore guard Duran Newsome displayed his shooting ability, tying the score and eventually forcing the extra period.

After earning an extra life, Betsy Layne proved they deserved it. The Bobcats tracked down the overtime tipoff, casually went about running their offense, and with 1:46 showing on the overtime clock, went inside to Sturgill who merely proceeded with a basket and a successful free throw.

"That was the key," Craynor Slone said. "When we got the overtime tip, held the ball a long time without shooting, then got the three-point play from Sturgill."

Betsy Layne later opened up a five-point lead when Duran Newsome hit two free throws, not during the same trip. This proved to be too much for Allen Central to overcome, although they made a convincing try at it.

Ronnie Ousley scored four of his 10 points in the final 14 seconds, and with two seconds left had the basketball in his hands but as Ousley's pass sailed out of the reach of Roger Horne, the final horn sounded, echoing the championship message throughout D.W. Howard Fieldhouse.

This year's Betsy Layne Bobcats had proven themselves worthy of the Blue and White. The tradition has been continued, but Craynor Slone isn't a boastful man, nor is he a coach of the past.

The first year Bobcat head man left the celebrating to others. They could have the pride also. What was on Slone's mind was the McDowell Daredevils and the district tournament.

"The most important thing about winning the conference title is that we only have to win one game to get to the regional tournament," Slone said. "Then again, so does McDowell. I'll tell you, they are a tough team. Beating them won't be easy."

INDIVIDUAL SCORING: Betsy Layne: Todd Sturgill, 19; Duran Newsome, 18; Bud Newsome, 8; Jamie Little, 4; Mike Vance, 2.

Allen Central: Stanton Bentley, 14; Rody Martin, 11; Ronnie Ousley, 10; Roger Horne, 8; Joey Conn, 8; Jimmy Stumbo, 1.

FOR DEFENSIVE PURPOSES: Freshman Joey Conn was penciled into the starting lineup for his defensive skills but responded with 23 points in two games. Conn's defensive assignments accounted for 14 points in the two games.

SHORT SPORTS

An organizational baseball meeting concerning Allen Park will be held Monday, February 23, at 7 p.m. near the Allen Park swimming pool.

Park director Oscar Rice says all coaches wishing to play baseball games at Allen Park should attend, or at least have a representative present. Also bring a schedule of your team's games.

Playing dates for high school baseball at Allen Park will be assigned and plans for a 16-18 year old league will be discussed. Also, all Babe Ruth coaches are urged to attend.

The Fighting Irish of Notre Dame are rapidly gaining recognition as the giant killer of college basketball.

In two of the past three Sundays, Notre Dame has upset then number one North Carolina and this past week knocked off 15th ranked Duke, 70-66, in overtime.

In between these two victories, the Irish fell just a few points short of beating Kansas on the Jay Hawks home court.

Being of the independent variety, Digger Phelps' squad plays one of the toughest schedules in the nation and is obviously making the best of a tough situation.

With three laps left in the Daytona 500, Geoff Bodine watched his competition and the race speed by. Nothing he could do, Bodine's car had run out of gas.

Running out of gas may not be the worst thing in the world, except maybe when you're leading one of the richest races in the United States, and a comfortable lead at that, some 25 car lengths.

Bill Elliott took advantage of Bodine's strategic error, winning this year's Daytona 500, Sunday afternoon.

Bodine was the defending champion but failed to earn any money this time around.

Kentucky Wildcat fans are glad that the South Eastern Conference adopted the tournament several years back. The Cats, after their loss to Florida, Saturday, are currently 8-6 in the SEC.

The conference battle appears to now be a two-team affair between Florida and Alabama—two teams that Kentucky has split with this season.

The Wildcats will return to action tonight as well as to Rupp Arena when they do battle with Vanderbilt.

Kentucky will hit the road, Saturday, traveling to Baton Rouge to take on LSU. The game is scheduled for 1:05 and to be aired on NBC.

The high school basketball stars of tomorrow were showing their ability of today in the Floyd county grade school basketball championship played Thursday night.

Betsy Layne's future looks bright as Harold Elementary upended Allen Grade School, 50-42, to earn a county championship while showcasing some definite talent for their area high school's program which is Betsy Layne.

In the girls championship, Martin defeated Maytown to earn their third straight county title for Coach Bide Click.

With one second to go, the basketball out of bounds, and trailing by one, Martin's Jennifer Yates hit a desperation shot to give Martin the win.

For Russell coach Marvin Meridith, a tremendous career may have received its biggest compliment this past week.

Meridith has been chosen to head the Kentucky High School All-Stars when they take on the Indiana All-Stars this summer.

In his 30 years of coaching, Marvin Meridith has won over 600 games, including three regional titles and three runner up trophies. The Russell head man is the winningest coach in the 16th region, of all time, and the winningest active coach in the state of Kentucky

Final County Contest Held Over For Tonight

The bad weather bug has once again bitten Floyd County basketball, and as a result, fans and coaches were forced to wait just a little longer for the final conference outcome.

All basketball eyes were focused on the D.W. Howard Fieldhouse, Monday night, except those of Prestonsburg principal Robert May.

After braving the nasty road conditions in making the trip to Betsy Layne, May phoned a message for the Prestonsburg people to return home.

The game was postponed at the last minute, and now the involved coaches are faced with the problem of getting their players ready to play, again.

This important conference matchup has been rescheduled for tonight (Wednesday) at Betsy Layne.

Especially in the girls matchup, they will be playing for the conference championship, or at least a tie for it.

If Prestonsburg wins, it claims the conference title outright, but if the outcome is reversed then both teams will share this year's title.

With all the hanging on the outcome, Prestonsburg coach Bridgett Clay thinks her players will respond, even though they are playing on the road.

"They've got a good team, but we have responded well to this season," Clay said. "I don't think anyone expected us to do anything this season, and here we are with at least a tie for the conference title."

The Lady Blackcats own a victory over Betsy Layne in conference action, but this time the Lady Bobcats will be playing in front of the home folks.

"I think we play better at home, but we've played well, at times, on the road," Clay said. "We have to play well. We can't play mediocre ball and expect to beat Betsy Layne."

The Blackcat-Bobcat matchup will also play an important part in deciding the conference's final standings, and district tournament seeding.

Not if Betsy Layne continues their winning ways, though.

With a victory, the Bobcats could force Jeff Riley and Prestonsburg to settle for a tie with Wheelwright for third place.

This may not be an easy task, though, according to Betsy Layne coach Craynor Slone.

His Bobcats already know they have the top conference spot, and district seed locked up.

At the same time, the Blackcats need a victory to share the second position. "I figure the kids will be flat, but we need a win to keep our momentum going," Slone said.

"That may be hard to do," Slone continued. "They are the only team that has beaten us in the conference so that might fire the play up."

Betsy Layne may also have an extra fan who is normally not a big Bobcat fan.

Allen Central coach Johnny Martin could gain more from a Bobcat win than Craynor Slone. If Prestonsburg loses, then Allen Central owns the second position in the conference and the district tourney.

If any ties occur, they will be broken by drawing from a hat. This was scheduled to take place today but obviously had to be changed. According to early reports, the meeting could take place Thursday.

Former Players Feted At ACHS Homecoming

Allen Central's 1976-77 teams, coaches, managers, and cheerleaders will be honored prior to presentation of the 1986 Homecoming Court. All Allen Central alumni are invited to attend the ceremony, which will begin at 7 p.m. on Friday, Feb. 20.

Rebels Down Wheelwright, Keeping Second Seed Hopes Alive and Well

Johnny Martin's younger troops gave Allen Central a big boost early, and his seniors took care of business in the second half as the Rebels guaranteed themselves of at least a second place tie in the Floyd County Conference.

Sophomore Rody Martin and freshman Joey Conn proved to be a combined offensive force, Sunday, scoring nine and six points, respectively, in the early going as Allen Central jumped out to a quick 17-11 first quarter lead over Wheelwright.

Both Conn and Martin are new additions to Johnny Martin's starting lineup. Conn mostly for his defensive ability and Martin for his impressive season-long play.

Although Conn's defensive play has proven valuable in the last two games, his offense may have been the savior for Allen Central, Sunday. The 6' 2" freshman finished the game with 15 points, including eight early ones when the Rebels needed a lift.

After Rody Martin, who also finished with 15, opened Allen Central scoring with a pair of field goals, Conn matched that feat with back-to-back buckets.

Other than a Darrin Conn short jumper, Martin and Conn completely carried the Rebel first quarter offensive load.

While these two future stars were proving their worth today, the Wheelwright Trojans were struggling with just about every aspect of their game.

The Trojans managed only two field goals in the first quarter, staying in the contest on the strength of nine Johnny Isaac points, five coming from the charity stripe.

Wheelwright's problems continued in the second quarter, partly because they weren't playing their best game of the season and partly because Ronnie Ousley decided to get into the Allen Central scoring act.

Ousley, who had been shut out for almost 13 minutes to begin the contest, caught fire, scoring eight points in the final 3:12 of the first half.

The third quarter only proved to be more of what the first two had been, except more of it.

Wheelwright had become frustrated with the officials, themselves, and the day itself. Only guard Tommy Jones could find the shooting range in the second half, scoring nine points to finish with a team high 18 points.

Ousley and Allen Central, however, continued their relentless offensive attack. Behind the burly guard-forward's 10 third quarter points, the Rebels built an 11-point lead, and ran away from Wheelwright in the final frame, claiming a 76-51 victory.

Allen Central, now 5-3 in conference action, guaranteed themselves at least a tie for a second place finish in the Floyd County Conference's final standings.

Coming into the contest, Wheelwright and Allen Central were tied with Prestonsburg for that all important second conference position.

With their home victory, Sunday, the Rebels forced Wheelwright to settle with either third or fourth, but nonetheless, both teams will be forced to win two district tournament games in order to earn a regional tournament berth.

This is what Coach Johnny Martin has worried about the entire basketball season, probably since last year's tourney.

Martin's Rebels were forced to play that extra game last season, one of the reasons, according to Coach Martin, why the Rebels failed to advance beyond

Floyd county post season action.

Fortunately for the Rebel mentor, his players took care of business Sunday, but now either need help from Betsy Layne or to pull the right number out of the hat.

Finishing second in the conference also carries with it the number two seed in the district tournament. The second seed gets a first round bye, meaning that only one win is needed to advance to the regional tournament.

All Floyd County coaches have tried to avoid that extra night of work, but two of them can't.

INDIVIDUAL SCORING: Allen Central: Ronnie Ousley, 19; Rody Martin, 15; Joey Conn, 15; Roger Horne, 9; Robbie Click, 5; Stanton Bentley, 4; Darrin Conn, 4; Todd Duff, 2; Mike Collins, 2; Ricky Smith, 1.

Wheelwright: Tommy Jones, 18; Johnny Isaac, 13; Tony Hutton, 8; Steve Cole, 7; Jason Cook, 3; Bobby Hood, 2.

THE SPORTING TIMES

This season has given new meaning to Floyd county basketball, especially the Floyd County Conference. No other district in eastern Kentucky is more balanced, and a fan would be hard-pressed to find a more talented district. Combine these two factors and you have the makings of an exciting year.

Most fans and coaches expected a close conference race as well as a successful out-of-county schedule. Just take a look back, and you can find both of these expectations in full evidence.

The talent in this district is close to awesome, but the talent distributor didn't favor any one school. This, along with incredible coaching ability, has given the fans of Floyd county basketball many exciting and enjoyable moments.

For myself, this year has not only given me an opportunity to watch eastern Kentucky's best in action, but also an opportunity to know several new people and get closer to those already familiar to me. This is what makes my job the best in the world, plus I get in to all the games free.

Now that it is rapidly drawing to a close, I feel compelled to, in my own meager way, try to give back to those who gave so much of themselves during the trying and sometimes difficult times of the past three months or so.

In honor of these participants I have dusted off the ole award sheet in giving Floyd county basketball people their just due.

Well, maybe it won't, but here goes anyway.

THE CLASSY COACH AWARD: This particular award goes out to the coach who showed the most class in the game itself, respect showed to the opponent, but most importantly, the way they handled their youthful players. It's difficult to choose only one. Floyd County has many good coaches, but allow me to CHARGE OR BLOCK? The officials had to decide this one when Tommy Jones' path to the basket was filled by Allen Central's Roger Horne.

Blackcats Beat Pikeville, Rest of County Struggles

Prestonsburg coach Jeff Riley hopes his star forward David Martin will soon recover from a bout with the flu, but the flu bug apparently agrees with David Martin.

All season long, the Blackcat forward has led Prestonsburg in scoring, consistently gaining recognition as one of the region's top big men.

When healthy, Martin is close to impossible to stop offensively, but the 6'6" senior proved this past week that a little illness doesn't slow him much.

Against Pikeville last Tuesday night, Martin scored 18 of Prestonsburg's 44 points as the Blackcats defeated the Pikeville Panthers, 44-42.

The Blackcat road victory wasn't an example of things to come, however. This win proved to be the only one Floyd county teams would bring home in non-conference action this past week.

Martin did continue his fine play, scoring 17 points against Belfry, but the Pirates proved to be the better team this particular night, downing the Blackcats, 69-45. Sophomore Todd Justice added 13 points in the losing cause.

Martin has certainly proved to be the main man in Prestonsburg, but the McDowell Daredevils aren't without a leading man, and like Prestonsburg, they also experienced some tough moments.

Although Coach Rick Hall says his team did a good job against Hazard, the Daredevils fell, 67-53. Losing by 14 points to the Bulldogs isn't exactly the insult of this season.

"They're real tough," Hall said of Hazard. "I look for them to win their region and go a long way in the state, but we played real well against them."

Brian Hall, McDowell's Mr. Consistency, scored 15 points against Hazard while junior reserve Lance Hall matched that output, also scoring 15.

Lance Hall might not be a reserve any longer, though. Starting forward Reggie Hall suffered a broken hand and won't be back in a McDowell basketball uniform, opening the way for the talented Lance Hall to step into the starting lineup, or at least see much more playing time.

In McDowell's other non-conference game this past week, the Daredevils lost, 71-70, to Johnson Central, despite Brian Hall's 27 points.

Dickie Joe Shannon, making great strides toward becoming a young superstar of this county, tossed in 14 points while Lenny Hall added 11.

The Daredevils have experienced a season of disappointments, not winning as much as they expected themselves to, and now with a rash of injuries.

Along with Reggie Hall's broken hand, defensive specialist Scott Tackett will miss several games after suffering a bruised knee. However, Rick Hall has some rapidly developing bright spots, including youngsters Henry Webb, Lance Hall, and Jesse Osborne.

Injuries have played a big part in deciding which team would be successful and which would struggle more than expected.

The Blackcats have played just about every game this season without sharp-shooting senior guard Brian Wallace. Wallace averaged almost 13 points per contest last season and was expected to compliment Prestonsburg's talented inside game, but thus far Wallace's season has been put on injury hold.

Allen Central has also suffered from less than perfect physical condition. Ronnie Ousley has played on a tender ankle all year while Stanton Bentley's injured leg continues to hamper his play.

Now Monroe Jones and Wheelwright have felt the sting of losing a key player. The Trojans' nine-point loss to Sheldon Clark wasn't the worst defeat they experienced this past week.

Sophomore forward Craig Martin who has provided Wheelwright with some solid play, is currently playing the role of spectator.

Martin is out of action, wearing a cast on his wrist. Just when Jones needed a lift the first year Trojan coach is instead dealt a severe blow.

MISMATCH INSIDE: Wheelwright's Jedon Hood shoots over Allen Central guard Tonya Kester in action Sunday.

THE SPORTING TIMES

THE CLASSY TEAM AWARD: Riley read the book aloud to his team and they listened to him. The Blackcats never taunt. They show respect, and they play basketball instead of showing their boxing eagerness.

THE OVER-ACHIEVING AWARD: Obviously Betsy Layne deserves this, but they have to share the honor with the Wheelwright Trojans and Prestonsburg Blackcats.

INTENSITY AWARD: Johnny Martin wins hands down. The Allen Central coach may be small in stature but where intensity is concerned there is no bigger man in Floyd county.

THE CONSTANT BONEHEAD CALL: The defense has to establish position and if the offensive player forces the contact then the foul is on the offense. Coaches teach their defenders to go straight up, but even when they do, the foul is always called on the defense. Something is wrong here. A loose connection somewhere.

HEAT OF THE BATTLE AWARD: During a conference game the Allen Central Lady Rebs were struggling to hit a shot, prompting their coach Bonita Compton to say, "Use the backboard, that's what God put it up there for." With this bit of instruction, she takes this honor, no doubt.

QUOTE OF THE YEAR AWARD: Ricky Hall, when asked how he would beat Wheelwright, said, "We are going to outscore them." Hold on just a minute. Hall later clarified himself. He added that he thought the game would be an offensive one, and his offense could prove superior than that of the Trojans.

FANS OF THE YEAR AWARD: This one is the most important to me. Supporting a team means more than simply going to the game. Giving your opponent some respect, not booing the cheerleaders, for goodness sake. Cheering your team on but not degrading the pride of the opponent. Along with this, plus filling their own gym and the gyms of road opponents is why McDowell Daredevil fans are the group fans of the year.

SINGLE FAN OF THE YEAR AWARD: This is a tough one, but I'll have to give the nod to George Hall. This is probably the only award ole George will ever win, and I hope he appreciates it. Don't let your head swell, though. George, you just barely edged out Delano Conn. If I misspelled your name Delano don't worry about it. I'm the only one who knows you anyway.

MOST VALUABLE SENIOR AWARD: This one may surprise you and once again I've taken the easy way out. This honor will also be shared, but without these two players their teams wouldn't be nearly as competitive as they are with them. Sorry guys, this one goes to LaDonna Parsons, of Betsy Layne, and Shon Burchett, of Prestonsburg.

IMPOSSIBLE TO DEAL WITH AWARD: The local insurance companies. Oops. This doesn't fit. Oh well, with the recent difficulties I've had I deserve to get this one in.

UNDERCLASSMAN OF THE YEAR AWARD: No doubt the most difficult of all the awards given, but I'm not going to wimp out here. I'm standing firm with my choice of McDowell's Lenny Hall. Although Allen Central's Joann Conn will be this region's best player some day, Hall does so many things for his Daredevils, and shows more hustle than any player I've seen this season.

COACH OF THE YEAR AWARD: No way, pal. The district tournament hasn't been played yet, and I'm going to need some material to fill this column at a later date. It could be me, though. Yep. I told Jeff Riley how to beat Wolfe County. Trouble is, he listened to me the second time the two teams played.

MY COMPLIMENT RECEIVED AWARD: Believe it or not, some people have given me compliments. Even though they were parents of players who wished to thank me for saying something nice about their child, I still consider them compliments. However, this honor goes, undisputedly, to WQHY's voice of Floyd county basketball, Jim Frasure. Receiving a pat on the back from another member of the media is quite a compliment, and Jim did this. For your fine words this one is for you Jim. No, it isn't because it was the only compliment I got this season.

Now, I'm sure I have left someone out, but don't be upset. I do appreciate all who have made my job just a bit better. After all, we're talking about a person who claims Spuds McKenzie as his only hero.

By the way, continue your support of Floyd county basketball. Without you, the fan, none of this would be possible. Oh, and how I would hate to have to work for a living.

Question Hunting, Fishing Officials

What new Kentucky hunting and fishing laws have passed recently? What are the most pressing wildlife conservation issues in Kentucky?

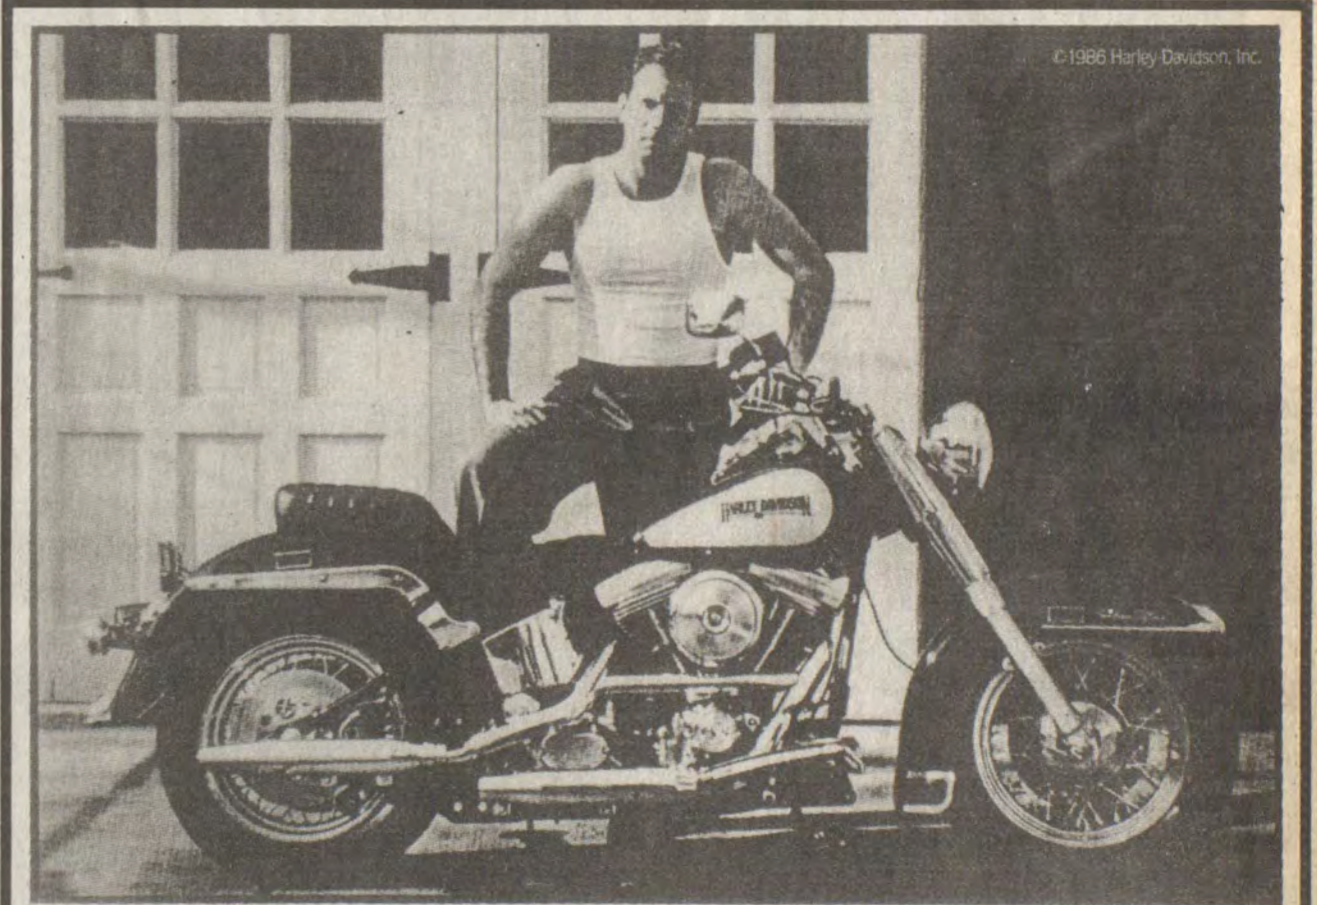

Tune in to "Kentucky Afield" on Wednesday, March 11, at 7 p.m. on KET, and find the answers to these and many more questions. Join host Jeremy Dreier and a panel of wildlife, hunting and fishing experts in considering a broad range of viewer questions concerning the outdoor topics of your choice.

The panel of Fish and Wildlife Department officials include Pete Pfeiffer, director, Division of Fisheries; Don McCormick, commissioner, Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources; Lauren Schaaaf, director, Division of Wildlife; and Paul Oliver, director, Division of Law Enforcement.

On Wednesday, March 18, at 7 p.m. "Kentucky Afield" will have a second call-in specially designed to answer any questions about fishing in Kentucky.

Guests for this program include Pfeiffer. He will be joined by Art Lander, outdoor columnist for the Lexington Herald-Leader, Jim Strader, outdoor columnist for the Louisville Courier-Journal, and Paul Griffith, well-known bass fisherman and president and director of PTR Tournaments Inc., a bass fishing tournament organization based in Louisville.

Floyd County Girls Champions

The Martin Lady Flashes captured the Floyd Co. Girls' Basketball Tournament last week at the Betsy Layne gym. This makes the third year in a row the championship has gone to the Martin girls. They defeated Maytown 40-39 with the last one second shot made by sixth grader Jenny Yates. The team includes:

Injured Troops Return As Lady Rebels Force Fourth Place Tie

This past week freshman sensation Joann Conn and starting forward Becky Rice proved their importance to Allen Central basketball success.

With Conn and Rice out with injuries the Lady Rebs were delt an embarrassing loss at the capable hands of the Betsy Layne Lady Bobcats, but the minor injuries healed by Sunday.

Friday night Allen Central failed to matchup in either size or talent, thus the big Betsy Layne win, but Sunday afternoon the Lady Rebs proved they were a better team than Friday showed, particularly with Conn and Rice.

During first quarter action against Wheelwright Sunday, Conn tossed in eight points while Rice added four as Allen Central took a 19-11 lead.

Conn finished the contest with 18 points but also gave the Lady Rebs strength on the boards and inside defense.

With the Lady Trojans forced to concentrate on Allen Central's returned inside talent, the Lady Rebs found the short outside jumpshot available, and Tonya Kester took full advantage of it. The Allen Central guard hit on four early jumpers to help the Lady Rebs to a 17 point halftime advantage.

Joann Conn added another short jumpshot to open second half scoring and Bonita Compton saw her Lady Rebs hold claim to a 39-20 lead.

However, the 19 point difference wasn't as big as it appeared to be. Wheelwright wasn't impressed, they continued with their game, slowly cutting into the Lady Reb lead.

Behind Jedon Hood and April Reeves third quarter performance, the Wheelwright Lady Trojans outscored Allen Central 25-11 to trim the Lady Reb advantage to only five.

In that third quarter turn-around, the Lady Trojans scored 11 points in the final two minutes, but revived Wheelwright didn't stay in contention for long.

Missed free throws hurt the Lady Trojan chances while missed free throws enabled Allen Central to re-claim their big lead, or at least the rebound shots after missed free throws did.

Wheelwright hit on only one of six attempts from the charity stripe in the fourth quarter. Allen Central didn't fare much better, hitting on three of nine attempts, but twice after errant attempts the Lady Rebels claimed the offensive rebound while cashing in on the field goal that followed.

With 7:41 showing on the game clock Becky Rice hit the front end of a one and one opportunity but missed the second try. Fortunately for the Lady Rebs, Teresa Crum claimed the rebound, and immediately hit a jumpshot from the paint to send Allen Central on their way to re-claiming that big halftime lead.

With 6:32 left in the game Michelle Floyd repeated the performance following a missed Tonya Kester free throw.

Floyd, who scored 14 points off the Lady Reb bench, put Allen Central up by 12 points. The Lady Trojans failed to mount another run as they fell to the Lady Rebs 65-48.

With the loss Wheelwright, finishing at 1-7, ends the conference in a fourth place tie with McDowell. A coin flip and picking from the hat will decide who has what seed when the district tournament rolls around.

Allen Central, on the other hand, already knows where they will be. They have that unenviable seed of third. This, along with the fourth seed, is the tournament's worst but it didn't affect Bonita Compton last season.

Her Lady Rebs were forced to play the dreaded extra game and wound up as one of Floyd County's two regional representatives.

INDIVIDUAL SCORING: Allen Central: Joann Conn, 18; Michelle Floyd, 14; Tonya Kester, 12; Donna Robinson, 8; Becky Rice, 7; Jennifer Stephens, 2; Teresa Crum, 2; Stephanie Wallen, 2. Wheelwright: April Reeves, 13; April Bradford, 10; Jedon Hood, 9; Tephania Green, 8; Renee Newsome, 6; Cindy Ward, 2.

Simms To Be Honored

New York Giants quarterback Phil Simms, the hero of Super Bowl XXI, will be honored by Morehead State University here Saturday, Feb. 21, during the halftime of the MSU-Tennessee Tech basketball game.

MSU President A.D. Albright has announced that the former Eagle grider will have his number retired and receive an award from the Alumni Association. Simms and his family will be guests of honor at a private pre-game dinner hosted by Dr. Albright and MSU's Board Regents.

Following the game, Simms will sign autographs in MSU's Len Miller Room. Feb. 21 will be declared "Phil Simms Day" throughout the state by Gov. Martha Layne Collins and the Louisville native also will be honored at other events during that week.

"We have been working closely with the governor's office and other interested parties to arrange an appropriate homecoming for this outstanding young man whose athletic achievements have brought distinction to his home town, his state and this University," Dr. Albright said.

He continued: "The retirement of a uniform number is an exception in college athletics but we feel it is more than justified in this case because Phil Simms has demonstrated that he is an exceptional person, on and off the playing field."

Simms was first-round draft pick by the Giants in 1979 after rewriting most of MSU's passing records. He played earlier at Louisville Southern High School.

Babe Ruth Seminars Set

Four seminars entitled "Headquarters Is Coming To You" will be conducted by Babe Ruth Baseball and Softball International Headquarters on the evenings of February 23, 24, 25 and 26.

The purpose of the midweek evening seminars, according to the Babe Ruth Vice President/Commissioner Bill Rick, is to acquaint current BRL league officers, managers, coaches and umpires, as well as anyone interested in the 37-year-old program, with Headquarters personnel as well as update them of current important happenings of Babe Ruth Baseball and Softball. "These type workshops will also give our Headquarters staff an opportunity to meet personally with those that make the program possible and gain ideas and suggestions from them to further improve the program that has been a great success internationally since 1951," Rick said.

The four scheduled seminars, each which will begin at 7:00 p.m., will be held as follows: Monday, February 23—Hopkinsville Community College, Room 108, Hopkinsville; Tuesday, February 24—Texas Gas Building, Room 170, 3800 Frederica St., Owensboro; Wednesday, February 25—St. Matthews Community Center, Shelbyville Rd., St. Matthews; Thursday, February 26—Kentucky High School Athletic Association Office, Cooper Dr., Lexington.

Additional information can be obtained by contacting Rick at Babe Ruth Headquarters, P.O. Box 5000, Trenton, N.J. 08638, (609) 695-1434.

Urge Conservation, Not Curbs... Proposed Answer To Low 'Coon Numbers Has Floyd, Area Sportsmen Up In Arms

Raccoon hunters in this area don't agree on how to solve the problem of low 'coon numbers, but many of them do agree on one thing—they don't like the solution that state officials have proposed. The state plan is so thoroughly disliked that local hunters voted this month not to even talk to state officials about it.

The Seventh District Wildlife Federation, a hunters' group that covers a 12-county area including Floyd county, is the only district in Kentucky that refused to schedule a meeting with state wildlife officials at which hunters could give their opinions on the proposed "raccoon management plan."

That act of rebellion, as it was termed by district president Ivan Brown, was brought on by the news that the management plan would completely close down the dog training season in eastern Kentucky, where running hound dogs after a 'coon is a traditional sport.

"If you close down the hunting areas to these 'coon hunters," he said, "that's like taking away racing from horse people."

Raccoon hunters in eastern Kentucky have complained to state officials for numerous years that the coon population here is disappointingly low. To mitigate that problem, the state Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources has suggested canceling the dog training season, when 'coons can be chased but not killed, in order to reduce illegal harvest of 'coons. Even competition hunts by established dog clubs would no longer be permitted here. The state plan also would eliminate the "shake-out" season just prior to the regular gun season, a period when hunters are allowed to shake treed raccoons out of their perches for the dogs to catch.

The restrictions would not apply in western Kentucky, where there are currently more 'coons and fewer hunters. The current bag limit of one 'coon per hunter per night also would be lifted in western Kentucky, while it would be kept in this part of the state.

To Robert Moore, that sounds like discrimination. Moore, a competition hunter who likes to show off the picture of his prize-winning 'coon dog that hangs on the wall of his Prestonsburg barber shop, agrees that coons are too sparse in this area. But the solution, he believes, lies in more conservation efforts—the planting of wildlife food plots and the placement of breeding boxes for 'coons.

Outlawing the dog training season would punish all 'coon hunters for the illegal acts of a few, Moore said. He estimated that six to ten percent of 'coon hunters are guilty of illegal harvesting.

Mike Slone, a member of the "460 Coon Hunters" Club near Elkhorn City, also agrees that 'coon numbers are too low, but he offered a different solution: stocking the area with imported 'coons. His group has spent several thousand dollars bringing in 'coons from Ohio, Indiana and Florida, Slone said.

Their efforts have not been entirely successful, however, partly because of the lack of good habitat here. They hope that about half of the imported 'coons survive, Slone said, although officials say that only about 10 percent will survive.

"We've had some luck, but not a whole lot," Slone said. "We're making some headway."

Law enforcement also needs to be beefed up, in Slone's opinion. Too few game wardens are asked to cover too big a territory. Some hunters simply refuse to obey the raccoon harvesting regulations, he said.

About 99 percent of the members of his group are dead-set against the raccoon management plan, he added, because they are wary of state restrictions on their sport. "If you let 'em start, pretty soon they'll take everything away from you," he said.

Ivan Brown agrees that the scarcity of game wardens has contributed to the scarcity of 'coons, but he advocates a different solution. Two measures are needed, he said: the planting of trees on stripmined areas to increase the raccoon habitat, and the setting of trapping limits to decrease raccoon harvesting. Although many hunting clubs stock the area with imported 'coons, he believes their efforts are useless because of unlimited trapping.

"The trapper takes it out as fast as we can turn it loose," Brown said.

Doug Hensley, of Hazard, represents Seventh District hunters on the state Fish and Wildlife Resources Commission, a citizens' panel that oversees the state department. He said he would vote against the management plan if it was presented to his commission, but he doesn't think it will be officially proposed because the plan's reception has been so negative.

Hensley agreed, however, that something needs to be done. "People are tired of not finding any coons," he said.

Hensley thinks that stocking might be the answer, but he believes that it should be tested first. The state should close down dog training and stock raccoons in one area, and see if that works better than other measures in a similar test area. "I think that before you force something down someone's throat, you need to be able to prove it's going to work," he said.

He doesn't give too much credence to the pleas for better law enforcement. "You need to catch me and clean up my act for me—that's what they're saying."

According to Tom Edwards, a specialist on furbearing game for the state department, additional game wardens are simply not an option because the department can't afford them. Greater conservation efforts—trees, food plots and den boxes—would be useful, he said, but the department can't force property owners to take those measures. Stocking raccoons is not a good solution, he believes, because it doesn't address the reason why 'coon numbers are low to begin with.

"If the population is low because there's not enough food, those 'coons would starve," he said. "If it's low because of illegal activity, are you just increasing the potential for illegal activity?" Those problems must be corrected before stocking would be useful, he believes.

Edwards also discounted the possibility of limiting trapping of raccoons. A trapping limit would be too difficult to enforce, he said.

Edwards emphasized that the management plan has not been proposed to the state commission, and probably won't be. In all five districts where public-comment meetings have been held, hunters have voted against the plan. The plan was drawn up at the request of the League of Kentucky Sportsmen, whose members were concerned about low raccoon populations, he said.

A public meeting with Edwards is scheduled for this area, arranged by individual hunters acting independently of the Seventh District Wildlife Federation. It will be held Feb. 28 at 8 p.m. at the Sycamore Grade School in Elkhorn City.

Bassin With the Pros... A Way To A Bass Is Through His Stomach!

Roland Martin best summarized in his book 101 Bass Catching Secrets what I consider a very important rule of thumb: "Actually I find that hunger accounts for maybe no more than a third of my strikes—but that third is a very important part of the bass I catch." Feeding bass are the easiest to catch just as hungry grocery shoppers are prone to buy more "treats" than they really need.

But in order to capitalize on bass' feeding behavior, there are a few fundamental principles to understand about how this instinct really motivates the bass to strike.

"One of the main things to keep in mind," stresses Ken Cook, Evinrude Outboards Pro Team member, "is that the bass is a cold-blooded animal. Its feeding habits depend to a large degree on the water temperature—but not always."

Water temperature affects the bass' metabolic rate, which is a fancy way of saying that the water temperature affects the digestive process. Most anglers realize that fish digest their prey much quicker in the summer months than in the winter months due to this temperature affect on the digestive process. In colder water fish are less active and digest their meals more slowly.

Cook also stresses that bass experience heightened activity in water up to around 85 degrees, at which temperature the bass' activity plateaus. Higher temperatures cause a decline in activity because of the negative influence of very warm water on the digestive process.

"Feeding behavior depends greatly on water temperature," states Cook. "The bass angler should key his lure selection and presentation to the water temperature. So, you fish your lures much slower in cold water and faster when the water's hot."

Next time you wonder about what's the best time to go fishing, you might just want to listen to your stomach—then remember, the best way to catch that bass might just be through his stomach!

Here's a service tip from Outboard Marine Corporation, the Johnson and Evinrude people. Smear a little grease on the tilt tube steering ram to prevent the tube from seizing up during winter storage. The tilt tube should be periodically greased during the regular boating season to keep steering operating smoothly.

Albert Einstein once worked as a clerk in the Swiss Patent Office.

The First Commonwealth Bank of Prestonsburg, Ky. . . . Plaintiff
VS: NOTICE OF SALE
Corbett Howell, Kathleen Howell and Floyd County, Kentucky . . . Defendants

By virtue of a judgment and order of sale of the Floyd Circuit Court rendered at the January 19 term, 1987, in the above styled cause I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Courthouse door in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, to the highest and best bidder, at public auction, on the 5 day of March, 1987, at 10:00 o'clock a.m., same being a day of the regular term of the Floyd Circuit Court, for cash or upon a credit of three (3) months, the following described property, to-wit:

That certain tract or parcel of land, lying and being on the waters of the Right Fork of Beaver Creek at Wayland, Floyd County, Kentucky, and being the same property conveyed to Kathleen Howell and Corbett Howell, her husband, from Charles Thornberry and Annie Thornberry, his wife, by deed dated June 10, 1980, which is duly recorded in Deed Book 248, page 117, in the Floyd County Clerk's Office, and being more particularly described as follows:

GREATNESS

By WILMAY

From my old memory books: There's so much good in the worst of us and so much bads in the best of us/ That it hardly behooves any of us/ To talk about the rest of us. Public worship to have much value should be backed by individual and family worship. Both by Lincoln.

President Lincoln in the darkest hour of the Civil War believed God would save the republic, because at the White House he got on his knees and implored God's help. He rose to his feet with full confidence that victory was assured. Anonymous. It's reported that when Lincoln first heard the new song, The Battle Hymn of the Republic, with its lofty sentiments and several reverential mentions of our God and his Christ, with tears in his eyes he cried out, "Sing it again." Capital Voice.

Washington and Lafayette were talking when a slave passed. The colored man tipped his hat and said, "Good mornin', Gen'l Washington." Washington immediately removed his hat and bowed to the slave, and wished him a pleasant day. After a moment of shocked silence, General Lafayette exclaimed, "Why did you bow to a slave?" The great man smiled and replied, "I would not allow him to be more of a gentleman than I." Selected.

Once General Washington was forced to stay all night in a deserted section of the country. Drawing his horse up to a large farmhouse, he knocked at the door and asked if he might spend the night there. The farmer's wife consented to give him lodging.

After serving a late supper to their guest and showing him to his room, the farmer and his wife prepared to sit up all night lest the strange soldier make an attack on them. Suddenly a strange sound reached their ears. Their guest was earnestly praying.

Their fears gone, the couple went to bed and slept peacefully. Not until he had had a good breakfast and was ready to ride away did they learn that their guest was General Washington. These lonely prayer meetings were one of the things that made our first president the great man that he was. Anonymous.

In Memory Of Sol Crum, Jr.

One year ago dad went away
But he is in less pain today;
We miss you dad ever so much
And long for the day to feel your touch;
Each and every day we always pray
To meet in heaven some sweet day.
Sadly missed by wife, children, family and friends.

IN LOVING MEMORY OF KERMIT JOSEPH,
Who passed away Feb. 24, 1986.

Dear Dad,
There are so many things I'd like
To tell you face to face;
I either lack the words or fail
To find the time or place.
But in this special letter, Dad,
You'll find, at least in part,
The feelings that the passing years
Have left within my heart.
The memories of childhood days
And all that you have done,
To make our home a happy place
And growing up such fun!
I still recall the walks we took,
The games we often played,
Those confidential talks we had
While resting in the shade.
This letter comes to thank you, Dad,
For needed words of praise;
The counsel and the guidance, too,
That shaped my grown-up days.
No words of mine can tell you, Dad,
The things I really feel;
But you must know my love for you
Is lasting, warm and real.
You made my world a better place,
And through the coming years;
I'll keep these memories of you
As cherished souvenirs!
We love and miss you very much.
YOUR WIFE, MOTHER
CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN

Wheelwright Teacher, Sarah McQueen, Dies
Sarah McClure McQueen, a longtime teacher in the Floyd school system, died Saturday at the Mary Chiles Hospital in Mount Sterling. She was 82.
A native of Mt. Sterling, she was born July 23, 1904, the daughter of Lee and Phoebe McClure, and was married to Will McQueen. Her parents and husband predeceased her by many years.
Mrs. McQueen came to Wheelwright in the early 1930s. She served as teacher and later principal at Palmer Dunbar High School and, after the schools were integrated, taught at Wheelwright High School. During her teaching career, which spanned about 40 years, she earned a reputation for urging her students on to college. She was also active in Scouting and in activities of St. Mark's A.M.E. Church, of which she was a member for many years.
On her return last summer for a reunion of Wheelwright's black community, she was honored as one of the community's most respected figures. She had lived with her two sisters in the old home place in Mt. Sterling for about 15 years.
She is survived by her son, John Moran, of Kalamazoo, Mich.; two sisters, Connie and Gonzell McClure, of Mt. Sterling; and three grandchildren.
Funeral services will be conducted today (Wednesday) at 1 p.m. at Kea Tabernacle Methodist Church in Mt. Sterling and burial will follow in the McGown Cemetery, Mt. Sterling, under direction of Haggard and Son Funeral Home.

RADIO DAYS (PG-Orion) Starring Mia Farrow, Julie Kavner, Michael Tucker, Diane Weist. ★ ★ ★ 1/2 ★

By J.T. YURKO

Woody Allen's roots have been the direct source of much of his humor. In "Annie Hall," for instance, Allen (or Allen's character) visits the house where he was raised, which he swears was situated directly under the tracks of the Coney Island roller coaster. Poor, frumpy and Jewish, the family consisted of a mother and father locked in an incessant argument and a short, red-haired boy reading books about death and trying to discover the joys of sex. "Hannah and Her Sisters" was something of a turning point for Allen. By the end of the film, Allen actually resolved some of his neuroses. Thinking he was going to die, he came face to face with life, and emerged a happily married man with a child on the way. "Good heavens," said Allen fans, "now that he's happy, what will he make films about?" Allen has chosen to return to his childhood. He uses the golden days of radio as a metaphor and memory stimulus in "Radio Days."

Allen narrates the film, but the Allen persona is played by Seth Green, a young red-haired boy. Like memory images that often flash randomly into mind, Allen presents a mosaic of places, characters and stories with no single narrative thread. It's a combination of tales of the family household, with Julie Kavner playing the mother and Michael Tucker playing the father, and the radio world. The characters of the radio world include Mia Farrow as a cigarette girl trying to break into radio and Wallace Shawn, who doesn't bear the slightest resemblance to Christopher Reeve, as "The Masked Avenger." Such possibilities existed only in radio, where the imagination reigned supreme and something as potentially absurd as a ventriloquist on the radio was the top show for years. Then there's music, music, with enough Tommy Dorsey, Glenn Miller and Big Band music to bring waves of nostalgia to anyone who lived through those times. This is Allen's own "Brighton Beach Memoirs" — a marvelously witty look at a time gone by.

VIDEO SCENE

Bruce Springsteen's 'Fire' clip burns with raw energy

By Barton Weiss

Among many other things, Bruce Springsteen has been credited with redefining and bringing back the ballad as viable pop-music form, and "Fire," a Springsteen composition that was a major hit for the Pointer Sisters a few years back, is one of Springsteen's best.

Bruce Springsteen

Video viewers currently are being treated to a live Springsteen version of "Fire." And what a live video!

Springsteen is in top form. Instead of using the full band, he goes acoustic, using two guitars and — the brilliant stroke — an accordion. The accordion doesn't sound that different from an electronic keyboard, but its presence ties the song to the balladeer tradition.

Then there's Springsteen's performance itself. This is the best he's ever been on videotape. The clip has passion, control and raw sex appeal. What else could you ask for in three minutes?

MAGNUM, P.I.

The Hawaiian sunshine and star Tom Selleck (r.), as Thomas Magnum, might have coaxed singer Frank Sinatra to make a rare acting appearance as Michael Doheny, a retired New York detective sergeant who seeks the private investigator's help on a routine missing-persons case, on "Magnum, P.I." It airs WEDNESDAY, FEB. 25, on CBS.

Taxpayers Enjoy Choice of Forms

When taxpayers file their Federal income tax returns this year, they can choose from three different forms—Form 1040, 1040A, or 1040EZ—depending upon their circumstances, the Internal Revenue Service said.

Form 1040EZ is the easiest form to use. It only has 11 lines. Single taxpayers without any dependents may be able to use the Form 1040EZ if they do not itemize or claim any tax credits, have taxable income of less than $50,000 a year from wages, salaries and tips, and have interest income of not over $400. However, taxpayers with dividend income, unemployment compensation or taxable social security benefits cannot use Form 1040EZ.

Taxpayers who cannot use Form 1040EZ may be able to use Form 1040A. Unlike Form 1040EZ, Form 1040A can be used by taxpayers who deduct certain contributions to an IRA, or who claim the earned income credit or the credit for child and dependent care expenses. Married taxpayers and those who file as head of household also can use Form 1040A. Taxpayers cannot use Form 1040A, however, if they itemize deductions, have taxable income for the year of $50,000 or more, made 1986 estimated tax payments or have income from sources other than wages, salaries, tips, interest, dividends, and unemployment compensation.

Some taxpayers must use Form 1040, either because of the amounts or kinds of income received, their filing status, the need to file certain additional forms and/or schedules, or the need to pay other taxes that can be shown only on Form 1040. In addition, taxpayers may choose the Form 1040 because they want to itemize deductions, make certain adjustments to income, or claim credits not allowed on Form 1040EZ or Form 1040A.

Taxpayers generally receive the tax package, containing Form 1040, 1040A or 1040EZ, which meets their needs according to the form they filed in the previous year. Additional forms and schedules are available from IRS by calling the IRS Tax Forms/Publications number 1-800-424-3676. This is a toll free number. In addition, forms are available in many local banks and post offices, and many libraries also carry copies of reproducible tax forms.

With Aerobics, Determination, Mrs. Tackett Is Going Strong

DETERMINATION SHOWS on Elizabeth Tackett's face as she labors through one of her thrice-weekly workouts at a local fitness spa. The workouts have made a world of difference in her health, she says.

Last summer, Elizabeth Tackett's doctor told her she would be confined to a wheelchair by this winter. The Ivel matron, who is in her late sixties though she won't say exactly how late, was overweight and suffering from rheumatoid arthritis that got worse every year.

But she fooled him. Today, instead of rolling through the rest of her life, she is as much on her feet as ever. When she saw the doctor for her last check-up in December, "he told me, whatever I was doing, to keep it up and stay away from doctors," she chuckled. "He said, 'You're doing real well.'"

It's obvious that she gets a good deal of pleasure out of telling the story. What's her secret? Mrs. Tackett is one of the oldest students enrolled in regular aerobics classes at a local fitness spa. Three times a week, she spends about two hours working out on an imposing array of machines and moving with the music and other students in a carpeted, mirror-lined classroom.

Surrounded by young women in pink tights, striped leotards and jogging shorts, she puffs away at her own speed on the long row, the pec deck, the abd machine, the lat pull-down and the leg press. The other students know her well, and jokes and greetings fly back and forth when Mrs. Tackett enters a room.

Aerobic exercise is designed to make a person's heart beat as rapidly as is safe, depending on the person's age and health according to Barbara Whitt, who is her teacher.

After one to two months of exercise that pushes up the heart rate, a person's heartbeat rate while resting will actually slow down, Whitt said. The person's blood pressure will drop, the lungs will become stronger, and the veins and arteries also will be strengthened. "That's why the heart can beat slower," she said.

About two dozen men and women, most of them between 16 and 40 years old, participate in the aerobic classes, Whitt said. The spa has several other customers in their sixties, "but none of them is doing as much as Mrs. Tackett."

Mrs. Tackett hasn't exactly been lazy all her life until last year. The Floyd county native, along with her husband Mack, raised nine children—"all grown and all healthy," she said with pride—and she also spent more than 20 years working at their family business, Tackett Furniture in Allen. Now that they are both retired, she and her husband regularly take long walks at the Pikeville track.

She began coming to the spa "off and on" about four years ago. Her visits became much more frequent after her doctor's wheelchair prediction of last summer.

"I decided I didn't want that," she said. "So this year I've been more regular."

In spite of the rigorous routine that her visits entail, Mrs. Tackett said she never has to force herself to make the trip. Instead, she said, it always makes her feel good to come in for a workout.

"If I didn't," she added, "I wouldn't be here."

Four Roads Included Under State Program

Gov. Martha Layne Collins has announced the approved 1987-1988 Rural Secondary Program for Floyd county.

"This program provides funds for both maintenance and improvement projects on state roads," said Collins. "This year Floyd county has been budgeted $412,750 for maintenance of its 127 miles of state roads."

As part of the program, Collins said the state will resurface 2.5 miles of Kentucky 1428, the Prestonsburg-Lancaster-Alan Road; one mile of Kentucky 1498, Jack's Creek Road; and 1.4 miles of County Road 5043, Buffalo Creek Road. The state will also place bituminous patching on 1.7 miles of County Road 5364, the Auxier-East Point Road.

State Transportation Secretary C. Leslie Dawson said the Floyd County Program is estimated to cost $602,900. He added the projects are expected to be accomplished by contract and will be advertised for bids as soon as possible.

Gov. Collins explained that Rural Secondary funds are made possible through collection of the state motor fuels tax, and that distribution of funds is based upon each county's land size, population, and rural road mileage.

Students Compete for Governor's School

Heather Bailey and Kathi Keen, students at Allen Central High School, recently submitted their portfolios to the review board for the Governor's School for the Arts. Bailey, left, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Bailey, of Hippo, and Keen is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Keen, of Wayland.

Both students traveled to Morehead State University for the regional competition for the honor of being named a Governor's Scholar. Those selected at the regional level will go on to Louisville to compete with students from across the state. Finalists will attend the Governor's School for the Arts, to be held July 5-26.

Founded in 1986, the Kentucky Governor's School for the Arts seeks to develop the artistic skills and creativity of talented youths in the state by giving them the chance to study with outstanding artists and art teachers. It is administered by the state Department of the Arts and the Kentucky Center for the Arts.

At the regional competition held at Morehead on January 31, each student presented of six to eight works which will be evaluated by a panel of judges. Participants also toured the campus, viewed exhibits of photography and folk art, and attended a workshop. The decision of the judges will be revealed before the state competition next month.

Bailey and Keen were selected to represent Allen Central High School on the basis of their artwork, grade point average, and previous performance in competition. The entries were submitted by art instructor Caralita O'Quinn.

Horse Breeding Time Starts In February

Anybody who has lived in Kentucky for long knows that February marks the beginning of "the breeding season" for horses. It marks the date, even though natural physiology might indicate otherwise.

The reason is the birth date of horses. All horses born in the same year are considered to be the same age, regardless of day of birth. This means that until full maturity, a horse born Jan. 1 will have considerable advantage over a horse born Dec. 31 of the same year in any competition for two-year-olds or three-year-olds.

A mare's gestation period is about eleven months; therefore, the ideal time to breed a mare is in February, so that her foal arrives in early January.

But the mare is seasonally polyestrous, which means that she will be receptive to breeding on a regular basis only during certain seasons. This seems to be a function of length of daylight, and normally a mare will cease coming into heat in early winter and resume in spring as days get longer. In northern latitudes, a mare shows signs of heat every 16 to 25 days beginning in late March and continuing into the fall, if not bred.

This, of course, is the opposite of what breeders of race horses and other sporting horse want. Hence, they adopt several practices to fool mother nature.

One is the use of artificial light to extend the hours of daylight, usually in connection with a management practice called "teasing," in which a mare is brought near a stallion without contact.

It usually accelerates the onset of estrus. Prostaglandins and other hormones are sometimes used to induce estrus and ovulation, as well.

Breeders worldwide have developed a technology in order to fool mother nature, using not only genetic knowledge, nutrition and modern medical knowledge, but old standbys such as artificial lighting and teasing. The high prices usually commanded by Kentucky horses, and the outstanding performances turned in by a disproportionate number of them, indicate the degree of success they have.

Your veterinarian can fill you in on the details, whether you're breeding horses yourself or just interested.

Backpacking, Camping Class Will Meet Again

The second of five seminars on backpacking and camping will be held next Wednesday, February 25, at 7 p.m. in room 217E of the Pike Building at Prestonsburg Community College. Led by history professor William Graves, this meeting will focus on equipment. Attendees are encouraged to bring their own equipment and to ask questions. The seminar classes are about one hour long and are held once a month at PCC. They are free and open to the public.

Fine Feathered Friends

Kentucky Veterinary Medical Association

"Polly wants a cracker!" is the old joke associated with parrots but the truth may well be that if Polly could talk she'd say "Polly needs some understanding!"

Veterinarians estimate that half of the 22 million pet birds in the United States are sick or suffering from some deficiency, most of which could be simply prevented or treated if recognized.

Several diseases routinely threaten birds. The most common may be a thyroid disorder common to goiter in humans. Others include respiratory diseases in degrees varying from conditions similar to a cold to airsacculitis, which is life threatening; digestive disorders including intestinal parasites (usually round, capillarid or cecal worms); systemic diseases, the most serious of which is Newcastle disease, caused by a virus and which involves the respiratory, enteric and nervous systems; urogenital disorders, and disorders of the skin and feathers.

A fairly extensive body of information has been accumulated to diagnose and treat the various disorders, but the owner needs to know what to look for. Common sense is a good guide.

Body temperature of most pet birds is between 105 and 106 degrees Fahrenheit (41 degrees C). Variation may indicate sickness.

Finches, canaries and parakeets have short digestive tracts and high rates of metabolism and should have from 25 to 50 or more droppings a day. Less than 25 may indicate insufficient food intake and that the bird is using body reserves for simple daily maintenance.

Caged birds should not be subjected to sudden changes in temperature, and seem especially susceptible to heat, particularly when combined with prolonged low humidity.

Watch for a decrease in the amount of water consumed, a decrease in the degree of talking or singing, a change in food consumption, prolonged molting or ruffled feathers, unusual wheezing or heavy breathing, development of any growths on the body.

The above are just a few things to watch out for, if you want an early warning of an impending sickness. There are other symptoms and your veterinarian can instruct you on the things to watch for with your particular bird.

For a number of reasons, more birds are being used as companion pets today than previously, and veterinarians have become more expert in diagnosing and treatment of avian disease.

Your veterinarian can also advise you on the special feeds you'll need. He'd rather help you prevent problems, than to be forced to dramatic, and sometimes not successful measures once problems develop.

State To Clean, Paint Two County Bridges

The state Transportation Cabinet has awarded a contract to clean and paint two bridges in Floyd county. Seattle Painting, Inc. of Campbell, Ohio received a $8,202 contract to clean and paint the following:

—The bridge on Kentucky 550, the Garrett-Bosco-Eastern Road, over Right Fork of Beaver Creek one-half mile southwest of Kentucky 850.

—Twin bridges at the U.S. 23 and U.S. 460 Interchange, over Levisa Fork of Big Sandy River and C & O Railroad.

The project is part of the state's continued effort to improve Kentucky bridges.

Meeting Supports Breastfeeding Moms

The Big Sandy Family and Childbirth Education Association is sponsoring its monthly meeting of breastfeeding mothers and their preschool children on Tuesday, February 24, at Prestonsburg Community College in Building A, Room 1 of the Magoffin Complex. At this informal meeting, literature covering many aspects of breastfeeding will be available. Breast pumps, both manual and electrical, will be available for rent. For more information, contact the Big Sandy Family and Childbirth Education office at Prestonsburg Community College 886-3863, Ext. 213.

A Story of Courage

How does a deaf woman cope when raising three severely handicapped boys? "Do You Hear The Rain?," a half-hour documentary profiling a courageous woman and her unique family, explores this question when it airs Tuesday, March 3, at 9:30 p.m. on KET.

Marian Aiken is single, 34 years old, and completely deaf. She uses a hearing aid to help maintain an awareness of her environment, yet it has not restored her hearing. Because her hearing loss was gradual, Aiken is able to lip read and can use her voice to communicate.

Aiken grew up in an oil town in Pennsylvania. She was considered a slow learner in school, until a hearing test revealed that she had been born with a partial hearing loss. Aiken became completely deaf in her 20s.

Aiken moved to Romney, W. Va., to take a teaching job at the Romney School for the Deaf. Although she enjoyed her job, Aiken felt a need for something more. She began the process of adopting children and successfully gained custody of three severely handicapped boys: Rusty, 6; Ben, 5; and Derek, 4. All of the boys have cerebral palsy; none can speak and each is confined to a wheelchair. While aware of their limitations, Aiken also sees their potential as individuals and their ability to love and be loved.

Show Of The Year Award

Dearl Faye Holbrook, at left, president of the Eastern Kentucky Horse Show Association, presented Rita Allen, 1986 show manager of the Prestonsburg Honor Choir Horse Show, the show of the year award, recently. The award is determined by membership vote.

Floyd Students Win ALC Honors

Twenty-six Floyd county students have been named to the Dean's Lists for academic achievement during the Fall Semester at Alice Lloyd College.

MSU Will Test New Fuel Source

A project at Morehead State University will test a new energy source—wood waste—in the hope of also boosting the forest products industry in Kentucky.

Kentucky Energy Secretary George E. Evans, Jr., announced a $25,000 grant to MSU to be combined with $40,000 in University funds to carry out the project mandated by the General Assembly.

"We want to show industry that Kentucky offers a large array of options for efficient, economical, environmentally acceptable fuel. Coal and wood waste mixtures can increase the options," Secretary Evans said.

Boilers on the MSU campus will be modified to burn the mixture in an attempt to provide low-cost, environmentally-acceptable fuel and to solve environmental problems of waste wood and sawdust the area.

The commerce and natural resources and environmental protection cabinets also are assisting MSU in the development of the plan.

The cost of converting Morehead's boilers to use coal-wood waste is estimated to be $200,000 to $300,000. It is hoped that the cooperative project will demonstrate a market for wood wastes found throughout eastern Kentucky. University officials estimate $40,000-$100,000 a year may be saved in fuel costs.

MSU Graduates

Morehead State University's December graduates included four Floyd residents who completed degree requirements during the fall semester. They were: William A. James, Harold, AAS; Jane A. Wallace, Auxier, A.M.E.; Earl W. Thompson, Auxier, A.M.E.; and Carole L. Rice, Prestonsburg, A.M.E.

Talk To Your Dental Hygienist

(Third of three-part series on preventive dental health care, presented by Kentucky Mountain Dental Hygienists' Association.)

The next time you have your teeth cleaned, don't let the dental hygienist do all the talking. By asking your hygienist the right questions, you can learn a lot more about maintaining your dental health. Commonly asked questions are:

Q. How often should I replace my toothbrush?

A. A worn-out toothbrush will not clean your teeth properly. Replace your brush every three to four months.

Q. What type of toothbrush should I use?

A. Generally, a brush with soft, rounded or polished bristles should be used.

Cattle Numbers Down

Kentucky now has its lowest cattle inventory since 1966, when it numbered 2.445 million head, according to the Kentucky Agricultural Statistics Service.

Kentucky's cattle inventory as of Jan. 1 totaled 2.45 million head. "Cattle numbers peaked about 1975 and have tended to go downward since then," said Agriculture Commissioner David E. Boswell. The total cow and calf inventory puts Kentucky 12th among the states.

Cows and heifers that calved on Kentucky farms, at 1.22 million head, were up 1 percent from Jan. 1, 1986. Beef cow inventory was up 2 percent from last year, while milk cows, at 223,000 head, were down 5 percent. This is the lowest inventory of milk cows on Kentucky farms since 1869, when there were 220,000 head.

Beef replacement heifers on Jan. 1 were up 5 percent; milk heifers were down 9 percent. Total heifer inventory was fractionally lower than a year earlier.

The 1986 calf crop in Kentucky totaled 1.16 million head, up 5 percent from 1986. Cattle on grain feed for slaughter were estimated at 25,000 head on Jan. 1, down 5,000 head from a year ago.

188 billion telephone calls are made in the United States per year.

Hard bristles can injure your gums. Children need smaller brushes than those designed for adults.

Q. What type of toothpaste should I use?

A. Use a fluoride toothpaste. The fluoride in the toothpaste unites with the tooth enamel, making it more resistant to decay.

Q. Is it necessary to rinse after brushing and flossing?

A. You can rinse your mouth with plain water every time you brush and floss. A fluoride rinse can also be used after brushing. Rinsing is not a substitute for brushing and flossing.

Q. What are the basic rules of good dental health?

A. Clean your teeth thoroughly with a brush and floss at least once a day. Eat well-balanced meals and limit snacks; use fluoride toothpaste or mouthrinse, and visit your dental hygienist and dentist on a regular basis.

Deadline Approaches For MSU Essay Comp.

High school seniors in Morehead State University's 22 county service region are reminded of the March 1 deadline for the University's first Constitutional Essay and Scholarship Competition.

"How Does the Separation of Powers Help Make the Constitution Work?" is the topic for the competition which is endorsed by the Kentucky Bicentennial Commission, according to Dr. William Green, MSU assistant professor of government and contest director.

"Students must submit their 1,000 to 1,500 word essays on this topic no later than March 1 in order to be eligible for the award," Dr. Green said.

The author of the winning essay will receive the MSU Constitutional Scholarship valued at $5,520 over four years along with a certificate and book on the Constitution.

The winner's sponsoring teacher will receive a certificate and the choice of free tuition for a three-hour course at MSU or a trip to the 1987 Kentucky Council for the Social Studies meeting.

Joining MSU in sponsoring the competition are the Kentucky Council for the Social Studies, Kentucky Historical Society, Kentucky Political Science Association and the Southern Social Studies Quarterly.

Additional information may be obtained from Dr. Green, Department of Geography, Government and History, Morehead State University, Morehead, Ky., 40351, or by calling (606) 783-2128 or 783-2090.

Academic Showcase Participants

Surface Mining Seminars

To foster understanding of regulation and enforcement actions of the Kentucky Department for Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, three locations across the state have been selected for a one day seminar where administrative aspects of the Department's inspection, reclamation, and enforcement procedures will be discussed.

Coal industry operators and supervisors as well as members of the engineering, legal, technical, and regulatory coal industry community are encouraged to attend. The public is also invited to attend the sessions.

The agenda for the one day event will cover: preliminary permit walks; inspection procedures; notices of non-compliance; remedial measures and extensions; penalty assessment determinations; patterns of violation; hearing procedures; certification requirements; bond release requirements and procedures; and post-mining land use consideration.

Experienced personnel from the Frankfort office and the regional offices of the Division of Field Services will make presentations and will answer your questions. A lot of straight talk and frank discussion of Department procedures and industry concerns can be expected.

Identical seminars will be held on the dates and at the locations listed below: February 26, 1987, Owensboro, Executive Inn; March 5, 1987, Prestonsburg, Holiday Inn; March 12, 1987, Corbin, Cumberland Falls State Park.

Pre-registration for the seminar is due on the following schedule: February 18, 1987 for Owensboro, February 25, 1987 for Prestonsburg, and March 4, 1987 for Corbin. Seminar check-in begins at 8 a.m., and registration may be made at the door.

Eye International Student Exchange

The State YMCA of Kentucky is hoping to facilitate an International Student Exchange with Kentucky students (17-21 years old) this summer, for three weeks during the latter half of July and early August. At the moment, due to extensive contacts with the YMCA in these countries, it is considering an exchange with the Philippines, Japan, West Germany, and the Republic of Ireland. The pursuit of any of these exchanges depends upon the interest expressed by students of this age.

Those interested should contact the organization by March 4. No commitment or money is necessary now, only expressed interest. For more information, contact State Program Director, Tricia Burke in Louisville at (502) 583-8370. Information may also be obtained from the State YMCA of Kentucky, P.O. Box 577, Frankfort, Ky. 40602, phone: (502) 227-728/7030.

Pharmacy Footnotes

ALCOHOL AS A DRUG

Whether regarded as a food or a drug, assume that alcohol does not go along with medication unless your doctor says otherwise. Alcohol dampens activity of the central nervous system. This means that it can increase the sedative effect of a long list of medicines that also act on the brain. Alcohol increases the potency of two of the most commonly prescribed of such medications, anti-anxiety and anti-depressant drugs. This means that when a tranquilizer is circulating in the body, one drink can have the effect of two or three. Swallowed on top of an anti-diabetic drug, alcohol can cause blood sugar to dip below target levels. Alcohol also interacts unfavorably with anticoagulants and drugs that control high blood pressure.

COOLEY APOTHECARY meets the highest level of professionalism in our business and would be honored to become your pharmacy. Our records are fully maintained for all drug warnings, drug interactions and personal drug allergies here at No. 2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106. MasterCard and Visa honored plus we welcome all third party payments. Open: Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-4.

HANDY HINT:
 Even moderate doses of alcohol can cause birth defects in animals that simultaneously get 50,000 I.U. of vitamin A daily.

Counselors Link Between Home, School

Wilted. Every teacher has seen students looking as if they were about to shrivel: the boy with his feet planted under his desk, his head drooping like long-forgotten ivy; the quiet girl enfolded by her pod-like coat.

Although 20-some other children are learning a harvest of subjects to their parents' satisfaction, often one or two students in a class just don't thrive on the same care and feeding.

School counselors can be a link between home and school, the life-giving water that keeps young plants from drying up and blowing away into Kentucky's dropout statistics.

"So many parents are working, kids are left to raise each other. Counselors must teach coping skills," said Lucy Clausen, the counselor at Saffell Street Elementary in Anderson County.

"In schools that have elementary counselors, vandalism goes down. Learning improves. Attendance goes up. Dropouts go down. Elementaries are where we are making a difference. By middle school, the kids have had too many years of missing classes, too many years of falling behind, too many years of failing," she said.

"Counseling is a major part of the total education program for every student. If you want them to be successful, you must have intervention in the early years. If children are successful at early ages, they will be successful throughout their lives," said Charlotte Reid. She is the social worker at Hattie C. Warner Elementary in Jessamine County.

Although Kentucky high schools have had counselors for about 30 years, there are only 166 in elementary schools. Like Clausen and Reid, the child guidance specialists are financed with local money.

If the General Assembly were to require one counselor for every 500 elementary students, Kentucky would need 432 more, a total of 598, at a cost of $18 million to $20 million annually.

Justifying that expenditure isn't easy. "Guidance is developmental. It helps kids grow. It is preventive in nature. It's hard to measure," said Gary Steinhilber, director for guidance services in the Division of Student Services.

"If we can make a change in a child's life at the elementary stage, it will make a dramatic change in his future," said Max Workman, the principal at Saffell. "When you look at the cost, divided by the number of students, you can easily justify the gains. The students in this building are better served by a guidance counselor than an assistant principal." At least seven states already require guidance counselors in elementary schools.

Elementary counselors are necessary, said Jane Woellner, the guidance counselor at Harrodsburg High School. "Kids who drop out at 16 have decided to drop out long before that."

At a forum sponsored by the Harrodsburg Education Association, every school board member supported providing local money to pay elementary guidance counselors, Woellner said.

Reid took it upon herself to justify a counseling position at Warner Elementary. Principal Richard Williams made her realize she had to prove the value of counseling statistically. She needed something concrete to present to the school board.

Reid could see and feel students' growth in self-esteem, happiness and attitudes, but that wasn't measurable. So she developed a pilot program targeting 60 first-through sixth-graders at risk of dropping out.

Once a week, small groups plant themselves on the couches in Reid's room. Through games, they learn coping skills and realize they aren't alone, that others have similar problems. She visits with parents at their homes or by phone.

Soon students began to bond, and their attitudes toward school improved. Attendance incentives took hold. After missing a total of 1,313 days in 1984-85, the 60 students missed 722 days in 1985-86. One boy who missed 47 days the year before only had six absences last year.

"Even with a terrible flu month," she said, attendance statistics had improved schoolwide from 93 percent to 95 percent, meeting the 2 percent goal Williams and Reid originally set. The effort had increased the school's funds based on average daily attendance by $10,000 in less than a year.

Some children enter school with such negative self-concepts, coupled with poor academic entry skills, that they have thoughts of quitting school as early as first grade, Reid's research showed.

For students to succeed, it is crucial that they be performing grade-level skills by third grade, Reid discovered. To meet that goal, she uses volunteer aides as tutors; narrows skills to reading, writing and math, using social studies, health and science as reading topics to fulfill requirements; offers workshops for teachers; and provides special classes.

Reid is now counseling 630 students at Warner Elementary full time. And the seeds she sowed resulted in full-time counselors at the other three Jessamine County elementaries.

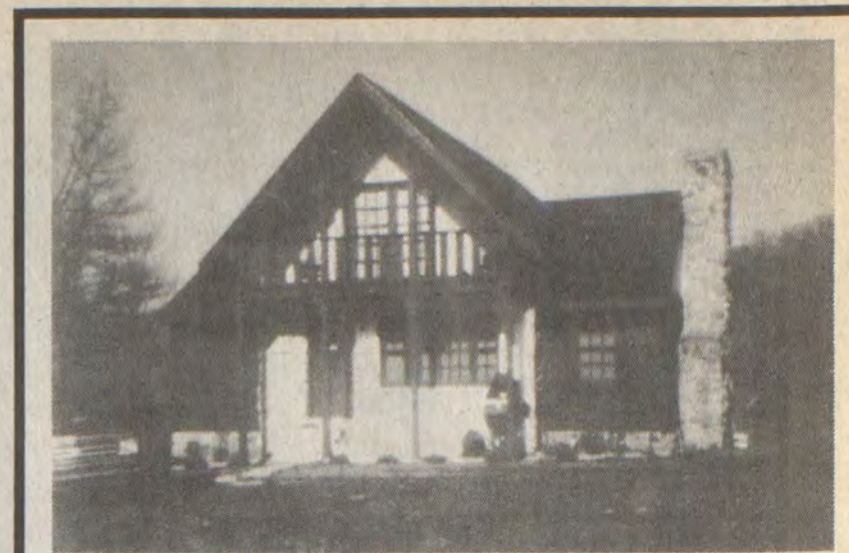

Positive Attitude Aid to Good Health

Health can be viewed holistically. Meaning that an individual's physical, mental, emotional and spiritual parts are related to each other. When a person is upset about something this may have an effect on their body. They may catch a cold or feel rundown. The mental state has an influence on physical health.

When happy, the immune system is stronger. When depressed, it is weaker. Hence, having good, loving relationships improves physical health. Positive reinforcement increases self-worth and therefore health.

Human touch is important to human beings. By touching someone on the hand, or giving a hug, a person helps improve the self-esteem of another. Which leads to good physical health.

Medicines and drugs are good ways to treat illnesses. However, one of the best preventive health measures to fight off all illnesses and diseases is to have a good, positive attitude.

Debbie Conn Jackson and Phillip Jackson, Plaintiff VS: NOTICE OF SALE Teresa Tackett and Obie Tackett, Defendants

By virtue of a judgment and order of sale of the Floyd Circuit Court rendered at the October 10 term, 1986, in the above styled cause I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Courthouse door in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, to the highest and best bidder, at public auction, on the 23 day of February, 1987, at 1:00 o'clock p.m., same being a day of the regular term of the Floyd Circuit Court, for cash or 10% down on the day of sale, and the balance due and payable within sixty (60) days from the date of sale, with sufficient surety required on the purchasers bond to bear interest at the legal rate from the date of sale until paid, the following described property, to-wit:

That certain tract or parcel of land, lying and being on the waters of Tolers Creek in Floyd County, Kentucky, and being the same land conveyed Teresa Tackett and Obie Tackett on September 3, 1985 by deed from Debbie Jackson and Phillip Jackson, as recorded in Deed Book 154, page 295, Floyd County Clerk's Office, and being more particularly described as follows:

Beginning at elm tree on east side of County Road at Robert Meade's line; thence northeast course with Robert Meade's line up hill with fence to center of point; thence around hill with said Meade's line to Melvin Conn's line; thence 300 feet across top side to pine tree down to twin poplars; thence straight down drain to State Highway No. 1426; thence 165 feet across bottom back to the beginning.

This property is being sold, subject to property taxes due for 1986 and thereafter.

The amount of money to be raised by this sale shall be in the principal sum of $12,000.00 with interest thereon at 12% annually from the 10 day of October, 1986 until satisfied and the costs of this action, including costs of advertising of this sale and the fees and commissions for conducting this sale.

For the purchase price the purchaser must execute bond with approved surety or sureties, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid and having the force and effect of a judgment with a lien retained upon said property as a further security. Bidders will be prepared to comply with these terms.

Given under my hand, this 31 day of January, 1987.

MARSHALL DAVIDSON, Master Commissioner 2-4-31.

FLOYD CIRCUIT COURT 86-CI-577

Robert Akers, Plaintiff VS: NOTICE OF SALE Alvis Johnson, Charlie Johnson, The Heirs of John S. Johnson and The Heirs of Columbia Gillespie, Defendants

By virtue of a default judgment and order of sale of the Floyd Circuit Court rendered at the December 18 term, 1986, in the above styled cause I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Courthouse door in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, to the highest and best bidder, at public auction, on the 19 day of February, 1987, at 10:00 o'clock a.m., same being a day of the regular term of the Floyd Circuit Court, for cash or upon a credit of three (3) months, the following described property, to-wit:

A certain tract or parcel of land situated in Floyd County, Kentucky, on Keathley Fork of Tolers Creek, bounded and described as follows:

BEGINNING at a chestnut tree at the "Old Coal bank;" thence running a westerly course across the branch and up the opposite hillside to the top; thence up the ridge to the line of a tract of land allotted to Nancy Iris' heirs; thence with the line of same down the hill across the West fork of the branch and up the opposite hill to Joseph Keathley's line; thence with said line down the hill across the East fork of the branch and up the opposite hill to the top; thence down the ridge to (Keathley, Kelly) line; thence with said line to the beginning.

Being the same tract of land conveyed to C. C. Johnson and Ida B. Johnson, his wife, during their natural lives, with remainder to Daniel Johnson, Herbert Akers, Robert Akers, and Frank Akers, by deed bearing the date April 25, 1930, which is duly recorded in Deed Book 138, page 187, Floyd County Clerk's Office, containing 20 acres, more or less.

This property is being sold to settle the Johnson and Gillespie estates.

The amount of money to be raised by this sale shall include the costs of this action, including costs of advertising of this sale and the fees and commissions for conducting this sale.

For the purchase price the purchaser must execute bond with approved surety or sureties, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid and having the force and effect of a judgment with a lien retained upon said property as a further security. NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MINE

Pursuant to Application Number 836-0117

In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350.055, notice is hereby given that Coal Mac, Inc., P.O. Box 3428, Pikeville, Kentucky 41501, has filed an amendment to an application for a surface coal mining and reclamation operation. The proposed operation disturbs approximately 162.3 surface acres and will underlie an additional 131.50 acres. The operation is located 2 1/2 miles north of Galveston in Floyd County.

The proposed operation is approximately 3 1/2 miles south from KY 979's junction with Branham Creek and located 0.1 miles east of Branham Creek. The latitude is 37° 27' 15". The longitude is 82° 37' 33". The surface area is owned by Therman Newman, Howard Martin, Clark Heirs, Ruby Martin, Osborne Heirs, and Harold & Olga Conn. The operation will underlie land owned by Therman Newman, Howard Martin, Clark Heirs, Ruby Martin, Melvina Gillis, and Osborne Heirs.

The proposed operation is located on the McDowell and Pikeville U.S.G.S. 7-1/2 minute quadrangle map. The operation will use the contour strip, area mining, auger, and deep mining methods of mining. The application also includes a proposed land use change from the forest pre-mining land use to a hayland/pasture land or wildlife habitat.

The application has been filed for public inspection at the Department for Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement's Prestonsburg Regional Office, 503 South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653. Written comments, objections, or requests for a permit conference must be filed with the Director of the Division of Permits, 6th Floor, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

This is the final advertisement of this application; all comments, objections and/or requests for a permit conference must be received within thirty (30) days of today's date. 11.

Grant Will Provide Training For Adoptive Family Workers

Kentucky has been awarded federal funding to develop a training program for mental health counselors, social workers and others who work with many of the state's estimated 22,000 adoptive families.

The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services is providing $86,750 to be used with $31,726 in state funds from the Cabinet for Human Resources. The cabinet's departments for Mental Health and Mental Retardation Services and Social Services are to design and implement the program across the state.

Human Resources Secretary Al Austin said the project will bring together professionals who now may be working separately toward the same goal—a stronger adoptive home.

"As tough as it is to be a natural parent these days, there are unique stresses and situations that face an adoptive parent," Austin said. "Today more and more adoptions are for older children and children with mental, emotional and physical handicaps, and these families need special help."

"Social workers prepare adoptive parents and children for the placement and help the family with the challenges until the adoption is final. Therapists and support groups are also available as these families begin to cope with the special questions and answers singular to the adoptive home."

"By educating the counselors together with our caseworkers on the issues of adoption, we should be better able to assist and to prepare parents and other family members for the trials as well as the opportunities that lie ahead," Austin said.

The project will get under way in March with a series of one-day workshops across the state for adoption caseworkers, counselors from the regional comprehensive care centers and private therapists. Later in the spring, more in-depth sessions will be scheduled, featuring out-of-state specialists.

Professionals completing the training program will be placed on a list available to state adoption workers and new adoptive families for referrals.

Jenny Wiley Theatre To Hold Auditions

Jenny Wiley Theatre will hold auditions for the 1987 summer season, Sunday, February 22, in the Pike Building of Prestonsburg Community College from 1:30 to 4 p.m.

Four shows will be produced for the theatre's 23rd season—The Jenny Wiley Story, The Music Man, South Pacific and The 1940's Radio Hour. The theatre encourages men and women of all ages to audition. Children, ages 8-14, are needed for The Music Man and South Pacific.

Those interested in auditioning should prepare a one-minute song and a one-minute monologue. Children auditioning should prepare a short song. An accompanist will be provided, or taped accompaniment is acceptable.

The summer season will run from June 9 through August 23, and rehearsals begin May 25. For further information, call the theatre at (606) 886-9274.
