Public Good, Not Private Profit Is Promise Made by Grady Stumbo

Now that eastern Kentuckians have dispelled the perception that mountain children wear no shoes, they need to tackle the assumption that no one from here can be elected governor. Dr. Grady Stumbo told about 500 cheering supporters at McDowell on Saturday. Stumbo, 42, had come home to announce formally that the next day he would file papers with the Board of Elections making him a candidate for governor. Noting that the eastern part of the state had not produced a governor since the 1959 election of Clay county native Bert T. Combs, Stumbo brought the crowd to its feet with the rallying cry, "This is our time!"

Saying he was prepared to "fight moneyed interests who've acquired privileges that make the rich richer and the powerful more powerful," the Hindman family physician and former Human Resources Secretary called for a Democratic party that would "work for the public good, not private profit." Under his "new populism" program, he promised for eastern Kentucky changes in Kentucky Housing Commission rules that would make it easier for people to finance homes; public work programs for 18-21-year-olds; venture capital to help small, non-coal businesses get started; and public investment in new technology designed to make coal more competitive.

He would appoint a commission to design a plan by which public and private sectors could work together to improve roads, boost employment, and lift the quality of education in the mountains, Stumbo said.

House Majority Leader Greg Stumbo, a distant cousin of the candidate, mentioned by name only one of Stumbo's four main opponents—former Gov. John Y. Brown, Jr.—but allusions to the others were unmistakable. Of Brown's recent confirmation that he was running, Stumbo said it was "easier to beat four than to beat three."

A quick check-off of disqualifying characteristics—"We don't need a man who sat at the public trough for four years as lieutenant governor and did nothing but campaign for governor. We don't need a man whose integrity can be questioned. We don't need a man who has never been in government"—appeared aimed, respectively, at Lt. Gov. Steven Beshear, former Gov. Julian Carroll, and Lexington (See Story No. 1, Page 4)

McDOWELL NATIVE Dr. Grady Stumbo came home Saturday to launch his campaign for governor. Outlining his "new populism" to a group of around 500 supporters in the McDowell High School gymnasium, he promised a government responsive to ordinary people rather than to special interests and the wealthy.

Judge Dismisses Assault Charge Against Martin

An assault charge brought against a Wayland man in the scalding of his girlfriend's two-year-old son last Oct. was dismissed Monday after Floyd Circuit Judge Hollie Conley ruled that the child and his brother were incompetent to testify in the case.

Charles Martin, 42, who was still at large after pleading guilty to manslaughter in the 1983 deaths of two Estill brothers, was accused of holding Ricky Younce in a tub of hot water, causing burns on the child's feet, legs, back, and face. The child's mother, Connie Younce, was said to have left him at Martin's house and to have been absent at the time of the alleged abuse.

In a competency hearing in the circuit courtroom Monday, Judge Conley closely questioned Ricky Younce, now 3, and his brother Johnny, who is nearly four. The children did not give consistent answers to his questions and the (See Story No. 2, Page 4)

Grand Jury Cites Two Drivers for Murder

A vehicle, rather than a gun or knife, was the "weapon" cited in murder indictments returned against two men by a Floyd Circuit Court grand jury last week. In the third case involving a death, Pauline Goble, 64, of Prestonsburg, was charged with first-degree manslaughter in the shooting of her husband, Dan Goble, on Dec. 18. She acted "under the influence of extreme emotional disturbance," the indictment noted.

Charged with murder and two counts of first-degree assault was Frank B. Stephens, 35, of West Prestonsburg, who allegedly walked away from a car accident in which three of his companions were injured. One of them, C. Winston Fairchild, of Paintsville, died several hours later. Stephens' 15-year-old wife, Lavonda, who also reportedly left the scene of the Feb. 4 wreck without notifying authorities, was not indicted.

Stephens also was charged by the grand jury as a persistent felony offender, due to a 1982 burglary conviction for which he was sentenced to a year in prison.

Glennis Ray Reynolds, Jr., of Rush, was charged with murder and first-degree assault on a Dec. 5 accident in which his coal truck ran a red light at Allen and smashed into a car driven by Brenda Sue Bentley, of Langley. Bentley was killed and her three-year-old daughter, Jerri Michelle Bentley, was seriously injured.

Also indicted for six counts of first-degree assault involving a vehicle was Lewis Crum, 21, of Wayland. Crum allegedly ran a red light on U.S. 23 at Harold, Feb. 5, and plowed into another car, injuring six people including a year-old infant.

Among the 54 other people indicted last week was David E. Bell, Jr., former executive director of Mountain Comprehensive Care Center. Bell, who resigned that post in August 1985 amid accusations of mismanagement and improper spending, was charged with submitting false travel reports in 1983 and 1984 that resulted in a $2,106 loss to the state.

Local Doctor Is Cleared In Lawsuit

After an unusually long deliberation, a Floyd Circuit Court jury decided last week that a Prestonsburg gynecologist was not negligent in treating a woman whose pregnancy he failed to diagnose.

Debra Lynn VanHoose, 29, of Flat Gap in Johnson county, claimed in a lawsuit that the failure of Dr. Stutip Kunajukr to recognize that she had a tubal pregnancy in August, 1984 resulted in her having to have an hysterectomy two weeks later.

The mother of one child, VanHoose claimed compensation for the loss of her ability to have any more children, her medical expenses, and—because a carpet business she operated with her husband folded during her illness—lost earning capacity.

After hearing two days of testimony, the jury deliberated for about five hours Wednesday night—not recessing until 11 p.m.—and about 4½ hours on Thursday. The panel was instructed by Circuit Judge Hollie Conley that, to find in favor of the plaintiff, it would (See Story No. 4, Page 5)

Criticism of Lavish Meeting 'Misses Point,' Austin Says

Criticism leveled at the lavish setting of last week's convention for staffers of a federal poverty program missed the point, said the leader of the Big Sandy delegation, who said such conventions have become "almost a necessary evil."

In a front-page story in Sunday's Courier-Journal, staff writer Robert T. Garrett reported that Head Start conventions are increasingly being held in opulent hotels and appear to be immune from the budget austerity felt by other aspects of the widely praised program.

A convention held last week in the Westin Peachtree Plaza Hotel in Atlanta for delegates from the Head Start Program's southeast region may have cost as much as $500,000, Garrett reported.

The average cost of enrolling a child for a year in the program is put at $2,200.

Sixteen of the 235 employees of the five-county Big Sandy Head Start program attended the convention, including Clifford Austin, a Prestonsburg pastor who is director of the program, and Juanita Stephens, who is health coordinator for the Floyd Head Start unit.

Head Start was introduced in 1965 as part of President Lyndon Johnson's

Local Group Went by Bus, Cut Expenses

"Great Society" program to provide daycare, medical and dental checkups, a daily hot meal, and preschool training to children of poor families. It serves 450,000 children nationwide—including 10,000 in Kentucky, 1310 in the Big Sandy area, and 180 in Floyd county—but is still estimated to reach only 17 percent of eligible children.

Although Head Start teachers generally earn much less than regular teachers and parent groups must often raise supplementary funds, program officials defended the costly training convention, according to the Courier-Journal story. The conferences are an invaluable source of information and motivation for the directors, staff members, parents and community supporters who attend, they said.

Austin said that, were it not for the fact that the $7,000 to $8,000 it cost to send the Big Sandy delegation is money specifically designated for training, he would prefer to spend the money in other program areas—toward the purchase of a bus or staff salaries, for example.

Nevertheless, "it's not that much money." And the two-yearly conventions provide motivation for staff members and help insure uniformity in the way Head Start programs are administered, he said.

Last week's Atlanta convention drew 962 Head Start workers and advocates from eight states, including 66 from Kentucky. Most conventioners stayed at the Westin at its discount rate of $67 a night for single rooms but about a third of the group—and nearly half of the Kentucky delegation—stayed at cheaper hotels nearby.

ADD Groups Join To Buy Plant Site

Members of the Big Sandy Area Development District voted Monday to sow the first seed that they hope will grow into a thriving industrial plant in this part of eastern Kentucky.

The proposal before them was to join with two other development districts, Gateway to the north and Kentucky River to the south, in purchasing a 100-acre industrial site near the Mountain Parkway in Wolfe county. Total cost of the land will be about $105,000, and each district will chip in a third of that amount.

It will be "the first truly viable, multi-acre industrial site in this part of the state," according to Roger Recktenwald, director of the Big Sandy ADD. Acquiring the land will be a "real catalyst," he said, to show the state Commerce Cabinet that this area is serious about industrial development.

The vote came at the annual meeting of the Big Sandy ADD, held Monday at the Holiday Inn. About 40 members of the Big Sandy ADD's board gathered to elect new officers, hear reports of staff activities, and brainstorm about problems with economic development in this area.

Martin county Judge-Executive John B. Callahan was elected chairperson for 1987, while Magoffin Judge-Executive Paul H. Salyer was chosen as vice-chairperson. Frank Morris, of Pike county, and O.T. Dorton, of Johnson county, were re-elected as secretary and treasurer, respectively.

The idea for the joint purchase of the industrial site originated with the county judges in Wolfe, Morgan and Magoffin counties, who were concerned about local unemployment, said Morgan county Judge-Executive Sidney Stewart. "None of us felt that we would have much of a chance on our own," he explained.

The site is located in Wolfe county but adjoins the Morgan county line and is only two or three miles from Magoffin county, he added. The Gateway and Kentucky River ADDs have already approved the purchase, Stewart said, so now "it's just a matter of paperwork."

Floyd Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo said he voted for the proposal primarily because of the impact it would have on the state Commerce Cabinet. Developing an industrial site would help eastern Kentucky generally, he said.

Because of the site's easy access via the Mountain Parkway, he added, it might also offer some jobs for Floyd county workers.

Sheriff, Jailer Seek Aid of Fiscal Court

Sheriff Henry Hale appeared at Friday's Floyd Fiscal Court meeting with a cry for help. The sheriff needs $32,400 to pay the Social Security, unemployment insurance, and health insurance for his employees, he said.

"I need help. That's all there is to it. I need help," the Sheriff said. According to Hale, the problem is caused by the dwindling amount of fees collected by his office. "I don't have the money coming in," he said. License tag fees, once a major revenue source for the sheriff's office, are now collected by the county court clerk.

Yet Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo, facing his own budget crunch, approached the problem with caution. He mentioned money already spent by the county on the sheriff's department, such as $16,000 for liability insurance, and asked the sheriff for an accounting of his costs and revenues so the court could make a determination.

Magistrate Jackie Edford Owens said he would like to see the court help the sheriff. Owens noted the high incidence of burglaries in his district and complimented Hale and his deputies for the (See Story No. 7, Page 4)

Caudill Exhorts Students To Shake Off Conservatism

Eastern Kentuckians need to shake off their "backwoods" conservatism and join the modern world, noted author and lecturer Harry M. Caudill told a packed audience at Prestonsburg Community College last Wednesday.

"Don't do as your parents and grandparents have done for generations," he exhorted about 250 students and others. People here often respond to new ideas by rejecting them outright, without examining the issues, he said. "I've heard that all my life—I'm against it." Let me urge you all to shake off the conservatism of the backwoods."

At the top of his list of attitudes here that need to be changed are those concerning education, law enforcement, and individualism. Mountain people are too easily provoked into violence, he said. They have too little interest in education, don't like to cooperate with each other, and are poor stewards of the land as well.

In spite of the criticism that he leveled at eastern Kentuckians and other residents of the Appalachian south, his comments brought a favorable reaction from numerous students and faculty members. "We thought he would be a bigot, but that wasn't so," said John Osborne, 18, a pre-med sophomore from Eastern. Caudill's ideas seemed "very truthful and very honest," Osborne said, and were aimed at helping people improve their situation by realizing what their problems are.

"My perspective of him is that he paints the pictures that he sees," commented psychology professor Leo Weddle. Caudill's approach is not negative although it seems that way to many people, Weddle said. "What he wants is to see a better educational system. He wants to see our streams cleaned up, less violence—all of those things."

In Caudill's view, people of the Appalachian south have a unique history that "has made us into a different kind of people" from Americans generally. The white settlers of this mountain region, due to the circumstances and timing of their coming to this country, (See Story No. 6, Page 5)

District Judge Reported Stable

District Judge Harold J. Stumbo was reported Tuesday to be "in stable condition and improving rapidly" following his admission to Highlands Regional Medical Center on Monday with pneumonia. Stumbo, who is 58 and has suffered from a heart ailment in the past, has been off work for more than two weeks on account of his current illness. District court cases scheduled for this month have been docketed for March and April, court officials said.

Spread the Word

A dear friend of mine died recently. This fact alone is reason for sadness but it's worse when I didn't learn of her death until the day after she was buried.

I loved her dearly and I respected her. She was a wonderful, wonderful lady who touched and influenced many lives. Her name was Sarah McQueen.

How I wish I had known. I would have certainly sent flowers and I would have attended the funeral.

To the families of the deceased: Please try to remember that we loved them too. Let one person call with the news and let it spread from there. Have it announced on the local news, even if this announcement carries a charge. We want to pay our respects; we want to show our love, but we need to know.

To my dear friend, Mrs. McQueen I'll never forget you. Your beautiful smile will always be in the memories of the Wheelwright High School faculty.

Feels Shortchanged

First of all, we would like to ask the question, is this the Floyd County Times or the Prestonsburg High Times? In the recent issue of the Floyd County Times, we feel that the Academic Team of Allen Central were not given the coverage they deserve.

First, from the Academic Sweet Sixteen, we had two students who were regional winners but they did not receive front page coverage. Instead, two weeks ago, they received one short paragraph in a back section of the paper. Yes, they were in last week's issue, but that was because one of our faculty members supplied the story, which when printed was diminished from two submitted typed pages to two printed paragraphs! It is because winning a regional academic competition is an accomplishment for our county as well as for our school that we bring this to your attention.

Also, the ACHS Academic Team placed second in the Governor's Cup District Competition, but was their picture in the paper? No. However, the third place team of McDowell was there in section one, and Prestonsburg had front page coverage. What happened to a picture of the Allen Central Creative Expression team who took first place in this event? Or the Allen Central Composition winners who placed first, and tied for second and fourth? There were no pictures of Allen Central students for this competition at all, and they won second place in the district.

While this is not written to put down Prestonsburg High or any other school, it is written because we want our students to be recognized for their achievements! At this point, we are wondering, do we need to remind you that we are part of Floyd county?

As we bring this to your attention, we ask you to serve the whole county, not one city.

Principal

Education Must Be Funded

The Lexington Herald-Leader is to be commended for its recent editorial "Is any candidate willing to tell voters the ugly truth about schools and taxes."

Having spent 21 years as an educator, 17 years as an administrator, I can very emphatically attest to fact that more money is needed in the Kentucky schools to procure computers, teaching aids, enough textbooks to insure that each child has a book available to him that he can read and comprehend, more structured learning programs that utilize pupils' learning styles, and the list goes on.

Legislators, members of local and state boards of education, superintendents, principals, business people, and VOTERS it is time that we not only give lip service to "Educational Reforms" but begin to firm up the recommended reforms by generating the needed funds that the youth of Kentucky so richly deserve.

King Kelly Coleman, Basketball Legend

I am a hillbilly from the hills of eastern Kentucky. I lived in Floyd county until my wife and I came north about twenty years ago. It is true to some extent that we hillbillies have a way of stretching the truth. My wife and I both remember a basketball player that played ball for Wayland High School back in the fifties by the name of Kelly Coleman. I think he was known then as "King" Kelly Coleman. We have told different people here about this great basketball player and we get a smile and look like we are telling a big one.

I am writing to ask anyone who has any information whatsoever on "King" Kelly Coleman to send letters or copies of newspaper clippings to me and my wife so that we can prove what we are saying.

We are proud of where we come from, and we are proud to be a part of Eastern Kentucky and its fine basketball history. Send any information to: Taublie C. Tussey, 511 Tarimore Drive, Springfield, Ohio 45506.

Some Give Generously To Blood Center, Here

NURSE GEORGIA SANDERS chats with David Watson II, a Martin electrician, who has just finished donating another pint. Watson isn't 25 years old yet, but he has already donated nearly three gallons of blood, almost twice the content of his body.

Paul Chaffin does it because he sees firsthand how badly his help is needed. Seldon Horne does it because he remembers the time when his family was desperate for help. David Hengstebeck does it because helping people makes him feel good, even when the people are strangers that he will never meet.

All three men share an unusual distinction: they are high-volume donors at the Central Kentucky Blood Center in Prestonsburg. Each has donated between 35 and 40 pints of blood, one at a time, over the years—about five gallons of the precious "red gold."

The average adult body contains between 10 and 12 pints of blood, so each of these three has given away his total body content three times over. Chaffin and Horne will be back to give more as soon as the required 56 days are up. Hengstebeck will have to wait until his health improves and he can stop taking medication, but he too is eager to give more.

Floyd county doesn't have as many donors as most areas do. An estimated 1,500 county residents—about three percent of the population here—have donated at least one pint at the local blood center, while the national average is six percent. But, at least in part, Floyd county makes up for low numbers with high volume. About 240 of the local donors have given one full gallon or more, and that's an unusually high number of high-volume donors, according to Georgia Sanders, a nurse at the local center.

"Maybe it's because we're small and they feel it's more needed here than in other places," she suggested.

Certainly the need is here. Blood center officials estimate that six out of every 10 people will require blood at some time during their lives. That's 10 times the average number of people who will donate blood, and 20 times the Floyd county average.

Paul Chaffin, an emergency medical technician for the Prestonsburg fire department, sees that need far too often.

"I see a lot of people hurt," he said to explain why he always shows up at the blood center as soon as they allow it, about every two months. "We know that they need it."

Chaffin has been donating blood regularly for about 15 years, ever since he was in his early twenties. The first time, when he was new at his first fire department job, Chaffin said he went to the blood center because everybody else was going.

That was 40 pints ago. He is now about to receive a special plaque reserved for five-gallon donors.

Donating blood takes about 25 minutes and "doesn't hurt a bit," Chaffin said. "The only part that hurts is when they stick your finger" to take a drop of blood for testing.

Seldon Horne, assistant superintendent of Prestonsburg City Utilities, remembers his teenage years, before the blood center was established here. His great-uncle suffered from leukemia and needed transfusions often.

"Any time he needed blood, we had to get out and beat the bushes to buy blood at $10 a pint," Horne said. "I could see the desperate need for blood."

Horne has B-negative blood, a somewhat rare type, and he used to be on-call at the hospital in McDowell. That was what led to his first donation, about a dozen years ago: he got a phone call from a family member of a patient who needed B-negative blood. Although the people were strangers to him, Horne went in to have his first pint drawn.

To David Hengstebeck, a McDowell resident who has held many different jobs in his 59 years, donating blood is "just like putting money in the bank." Because he and others make regular deposits, the blood is there to be withdrawn anytime someone needs it.

Hengstebeck also said that donating blood is his way of trying to do a good deed and help people out. When the donation is blood instead of money, he added, he feels sure that it's not wasted. "You give a pint of blood," he said, "and you know that it goes to the victim, the person who needs it."

His first time was more than 40 years ago, but he still remembers the apprehension he felt then. "Nobody likes needles," he admitted. But he's used to the experience now. "Except for the initial prick," he chuckled, "it ain't no problem. It makes me feel good, and I know I'm helping somebody."

Staff members at the blood center try to make sure that all donors feel good, showering them with praise and attention and plying them with coffee, cookies and soda pop. This winter, every donor also will receive a T-shirt. Those who give at least a gallon can get a special numbered key chain that will help route their keys back home again if they are ever lost.

This month, Sanders and her fellow nurse, Denise Queen, also began taking pictures of their one-gallon-plus donors, to become part of a display in the blood center lobby.

People are permitted to donate blood only once every 56 days because it takes two to four weeks for the red blood cell count to get back up to normal after a donation, the nurses explained. The volume of the lost blood is replaced within 24 hours.

Many people don't realize that their bodies are constantly producing new red blood cells whether or not any blood has been lost, Sanders added. Billions of the red blood cells die every day.

When a patient has lost a lot of blood in an accident or an operation, Queen said, the volume of that lost blood can be replaced by intravenous fluids. But if the patient's hemoglobin—red blood cells—gets too low, only new red blood cells will do the trick.

In other words, when a person really needs blood, nothing else will do.

Card Shows How To Read Electric Meter

During the 93 years that the electric meter has been in use, it has proven to be one of the most accurate measuring devices known to man. As a result of its on-going testing program, Kentucky Power Company continues to find this fact to be true.

In 1986, Kentucky Power tested approximately 2,000 electric meters a month. "Test results were well within the standards set by the Public Service Commission," stated W.W. Zoellers, Kentucky Power Company Division Manager.

The importance of meter accuracy is to insure a correct monthly billing to each and every customer. The company schedules each customer's meter to be read on a monthly basis (usually every 28 to 30 days). "More than 99.5 percent of all meters in the company's 20-county service area were read last year," replied Zoellers.

Customers desiring to keep track of their monthly usage of electricity can do so by following a few simple instructions. Reading the meter involves a check of the five clock-like dials within the meter. These dials record the electricity actually used by each customer, and are expressed in kilowatt-hours. A kilowatt-hour is simply a unit of measurement that combines quantity and time or kilowatts and hours, for example, a kilowatt-hour is the amount of electricity used by a single 100-watt bulb burning for 10 hours.

"Start with the dial at the extreme right of the meter. Write down the smaller number the point has just passed. Do this for every dial. Checking these numbers against the reading at a later time will show how much electricity has passed through the meter in a given amount of time," Zoellers said.

"We have cards available to help our customers record their use of electricity. They need only contact their nearest Kentucky Power Company office and request the card entitled How To Read Your Electric Meter," Zoellers said.

AT&T ran into an unexpected problem with its first deep sea fiber-optic telephone cable—shark bites. According to National Wildlife magazine, the company laid the first 72 miles of test cable in the Canary Islands in September 1985. When the cable was hoisted six months later, it had shark teeth embedded in it. Company officials believe that the sharks were attracted by movement of the cable or by the electric current that helps amplify signals.

MAGISTRATE OWENS' Yearly Report

From: Jan. 6—1986-Jan. 6, 1987

(This ad covers the months of July, August and September)

During the June 20, 1986 meeting, one of the key votes was to decide who was going to run the animal shelter. The big dispute came when Judge John M. Stumbo presented the resolution that he, the Judge, and the County Attorney work in conjunction with Mayor Ann Latta to hire the person to run the animal shelter. My argument was that the Magistrates—ALL FOUR OF US—should decide who ran the animal shelter since we put in about $10,000 a year of the county's money on this. The vote went as follows: FOR—Ermal Tackett; AGAINST—

JACKIE EDFORD OWENS and Gerald DeRossett. We won this vote to let the Magistrates decide who would run the animal shelter on this day. Also present for this meeting was Audrey Hudson, reporter for WQHY-95. I didn't know that this was the Mayor of Prestonsburg, Ann Latta's daughter, but I did know that I voted against her mother by 4 o'clock that evening because this was the exact same evening that WQHY-95, where Audrey Hudson, her daughter, is a news reporter, started the argument that went on for weeks between me and Paul Hunt Thompson. WQHY-95 said they got an anonymous phone call from somebody who wouldn't give their name, complaining about the road conditions in my district—that they were impassable. It is funny how these people never left their names or even the road they lived on, but yet it was good enough news for WQHY-95 to broadcast all over the area. I discussed this with Gorman Collins, Jr., and he failed to come up with a name or number for this person also.

GUESS WHAT the first issue of the July meeting was? The same thing that we had voted on the month before and passed—to let the Magistrates have the authority to pick someone to run the animal shelter, but this time with ALL the Fiscal Court members present the vote went as such: FOR—Gerald DeRossett, Ed Caudill, and Ermal Tackett; AGAINST—JACKIE EDFORD OWENS. It wasn't the matter of who run the shelter, it was the fact that they didn't want the Magistrates to have a say-so, because the people chosen to run the shelter have done an excellent job of cleaning it up and running it like a shelter should be run. I don't think they could have found anyone who would have done any better of a job because these people are pet lovers. Also, during this meeting the Fiscal Court agreed to join the KACO Pooled Leasing Program.

In the August 15, 1986 meeting, Ernest Jackson asked the court to check the right of way up Hoover Hollow. Terry Triplett, assisted by Bruce Scott, representing the Floyd County Firefighters Association, came before the court again to ask for the fire trucks to be put on county fleet insurance. I, MAGISTRATE OWENS, made the motion to study the budget to try to come up with the money, but they never. Mayor Joe Stewart of the City of Wheelwright, requested the court's permission to use county properties and rights of way to lay water lines within the city—ALL Magistrates voted for this. During this August meeting the Fiscal Court made the resolution to advertise for the storage of voting machines for two years. I voted AGAINST this because I thought the bid should run for one year at a time—Not two—but it was awarded for two years for the sum of $14,800. At this meeting, the Floyd Fiscal Court voted to appoint John M. Stumbo, Chairman; Delores F. Dingus, Vice-Chairman; and Janet Tackett, Secretary, as Board of Directors over the Juvenile Detention Center. I VOTED AGAINST THIS, but they managed to get this vote passed by the Fiscal Court.

During the Sept. 19 meeting, the Forestry Dept. came before the court to ask for a No Burning ban in Floyd County. I voted NO against this because I thought it would cause problems when people went to clear their gardens as they have done in the Spring for years. I didn't want to see people getting tickets for this, but it did get passed by the Fiscal Court without my vote.

HERE COMES THE GOOD PART, people. This part is where all your property taxes went up about a third or better—WHY?—This is where your school tax was raised to 32.4%. The vote went as such: AGAINST—JACKIE EDFORD OWENS, Gerald DeRossett; FOR—Ermal Tackett, Ed Caudill with Judge Stumbo's vote breaking the tie to INCREASE THE PROPERTY TAX ON ALL FLOYD COUNTIANS.

These are only a few of 43 votes during July, August and September. I was present for every meeting and every vote.

People, you know and I know that some people don't like the fact that I'm printing my yearly report, and they will do whatever it takes to make me look bad and slander my name as you may have already heard. I'm not worried one bit about what people say about me or what the radio station says about me. I think you people are smart enough to know what is going on.

Dear, Dear Harry,

Aw, come on, Harry, you don't really mean all those rotten things you said about us last week, now do you?

Actually, poor white trash is akin to the aristocracy compared with the traits and tendencies you ascribe to us natives of Eastern Kentucky. Whoeee!

And let me see now, was the name of that TV series, "The Wild, Wild Eastern Kentucky," or "The Wild, Wild West?" Just church congregations and family groups settled the West, huh? Where in the world did all those famous and infamous outlaws come from? Surely not all of them were from Eastern Kentucky. And who made those famous lawmen famous? Surely not church congregations and staid family groups. Come on, give us a break.

'Course, we are kind of sloppy—sort of the Moonbeam McSwine of Kentucky—an unbathed beauty. To tell the truth, Harry, it's not easy to be neat without indoor plumbing, without garbage pickup—just without. But we're working on it.

I know you absolutely had to be joshing about Eastern Kentucky people not working together. Have you forgotten what strong union people we are? That takes working together. Have you forgotten that we put the Solid South to shame when it comes to supporting our political party? That's teamwork and leadership—a mixed blessing, perhaps, but still. And if a neighbor is in need, we help, too. Just consider, we don't have any street people.

Oh, yes, you have some valid points, but as usual, you lose them in the shuffle of over-statement. It's not a black and white world, Harry. There are gray and foggy areas even if you do choose to ignore them.

Face it, Harry, you're from Eastern Kentucky, and you can read and write after a fashion. Now, how did that happen? A minor miracle, no doubt.

And you forgot something else, it's no bad thing to be an individual, to feel your own worth, your right to think for yourself no matter what someone at the courthouse, in Frankfort, Washington, or even what Harry Caudill says.

We know we have some appalling faults, but we also have at least as many admirable characteristics. Even though we're put down on every side, often by those who have forgotten their "raising," even though we have a regional sense of insecurity, still, for the most part, we grit our teeth and do what we think is right. And, by gum, most of the time, we have a pretty good batting average.

Don't forget other Eastern Kentuckians who have done fairly well. There's Green Hackworth, an Abbott Creek boy, who sits on the World Court of Justice; Congressman A. J. May, who was chairman of the powerful Military Affairs Committee during World War II; Congressman Carl D. Perkins, whose achievements are familiar to all, and let's add my dad, Norman Allen, a country boy from Salt Lick, who also knew how to read and write pretty effectively.

Don't put us down. We're doing the best we can—and without any appreciable help.

job they were doing. "I don't know about your districts, but up in my area they're carrying the place off," Owens said.

Floyd Jailer Lawrence Hale also asked the court for financial help to pay the salaries of his turnkeys. Hale told the magistrates that the jail has been scrutinized by state inspectors and cited for being understaffed and lacking surveillance devices.

Again, Stumbo was reluctant to commit the county's budget to more spending without further study. As for the state pressure, the judge said, "Those people come here, say do this for the jail, do that for the jail, but they never send any money to do it with."

Not everyone came to the meeting asking for money. County Clerk Carla R. Bolton presented to the court a check for $42,650. The money is a partial payment from fees collected in 1986. She anticipates making another payment of $10,000 after her 1986 budget audit is completed.

Ralph H. Elkins, of Allen, called on the fiscal court for support in making the intersection on U.S. 23 and KY 1428 at Allen safer. Elkins, who in January sent a petition with 500 signatures to Transportation Secretary Leslie Dawson, was not happy with the secretary's reply. "He said it was strictly a law enforcement problem," Elkins told the court. "He said he couldn't do anything about it because it's a federal highway, and he can't reduce the speed limit on it."

Elkins would like the state highways department to set a 35 mph limit for a half mile north and south of the intersection. "One foggy morning a school bus is going to drive out into the intersection and get broadsided, and we're going to have another school bus disaster," Elkins said. "I don't want to be a prophet of doom, but we know these things can happen."

In response, the court passed a resolution directing County Attorney David A. Barber to write a letter to Dawson, asking him what he can do about the "death traps existing at three highway intersections in the county." The others referred to are the intersections of U.S. 23 with the Mountain Parkway and KY 979 at Harold.

At the insistence of Denzil Allen the court tabled a resolution to accept a rerouted road at Johns Creek into the county system. Allen questioned the assurances made by Magistrate Gerald Derossett and called for more study before the resolution is adopted. Allen is concerned that if the old roadway is closed access to his family property will be reduced.

The court moved to have Stumbo negotiate with local CPA firms to conduct the Floyd county audit for fiscal year 1985-86. Because of its workload, the state auditor's office, which has been doing the county audits, is unable to do them promptly, it was explained.

Hospice of Big Sandy To Offer Training

Hospice of Big Sandy is offering another series of training sessions for community members interested in working as hospice volunteers. These training sessions offer interested people an opportunity to learn more about hospice and what they can offer to terminally ill patients and their families in our communities.

The training sessions will begin Tuesday, March 3, at 7 p.m. and will continue for five consecutive Tuesdays. The sessions will be held in the large meeting room at the Floyd County Library.

Topics to be covered include a general introduction to hospice and its purpose, general discussions about interested volunteers' perceptions about death and dying, issues involving pain control for terminally ill patients and sessions on how hospice can use volunteers with its patients.

Hospice relies greatly on the contributions of volunteers to help offer a wide range of help to its patients and their families. All interested people are urged to join hospice at its workshop.

If you are interested in learning more about the sessions, you can call 886-2721 or 886-8091. Hospice needs the support and help of friends in the community.

Beginning Photography

Prestonsburg Community College has designed a class to familiarize beginning photographers with the basics of using a 35mm camera. Participants will learn about the fundamental characteristics of the camera such as f-stops, shutter speeds, various lenses and film for black and white photography. Lighting and composition will be stressed. Participants will be introduced to the darkroom where they will process black and white film shots for class assignments. Classes begin March 4. For more information or to pre-register, call 886-3863, ext. 215.

Ten Years Ago

(February 23, 1977)

The energy crisis is far from over for Floyd county schools. In fact, Supt. E.P. Grigsby, Jr., said this week, Columbia Gas now has placed all the schools it serves on an allotment that means an ever sharper curtailment of natural gas than the 35 per cent asked last month. County Attorney Harold J. Stumbo said last week that he has a number of condemnation suits against landowners to be filled in another attempt to get the long-delayed Martin stream improvement and flood control project off the ground. A solution to Mud Creek's water problem is still being sought, and Congressman Carl D. Perkins, who helped get the project funded a few years ago, is among those interested. A relatively new Floyd county manufacturing concern, S. & H. Manufacturing Company, began operation on Brush Creek about a year and a half ago and has been quietly thriving ever since. The vacancy in the office of juvenile judge which was created by the resignation of Richard E. Fitzpatrick has not been filled. Bill H. Howard, superintendent of the Prestonsburg Utilities System, said Monday that he has received from Governor Carroll his written commitment to fund connection of the Allen water system with the Prestonsburg system to the extent of $31,000. There new members to represent Prestonsburg on the Prestonsburg-Paintsville Airport Board were named by Mayor Harold Cooley at last Thursday's meeting of the City Council. After losing three more days to the weather last week and one this week, Floyd county schools had 13 days of lost time to make good. There died: Elizabeth (Lizzie) Boyd, 76, of Betsy Layne, died February 17 at Methodist Hospital, Pikeville; Denver Bartley, 26, of East McDowell, died February 19 at St. Joseph's Hospital, Lexington; Martin Goble, 93, formerly of Floyd county, died February 19 at Scioto Memorial Hospital, Portsmouth, O.; Ben Williams, 88, of Tram, died February 16 at Methodist Hospital, Pikeville; Russell Ward, 65, formerly of Wheelwright, died recently in a Pike county, Ohio, hospital; William Woods Cooley, 83, of Wheelwright, died February 15 at Methodist Hospital, Pikeville; Bertha Marsillett Shepherd, 73, died February 17 at her home in Pyramid; James Edgar Johnson, 50, of Allen, died February 16 at his home; Dr. Joseph E. Triplett, 86, of Softshell, formerly a Floyd county chiropractor, died February 1 at Veterans' Hospital, Lexington; Wayne Conn, 39, of Allen, died February 17 at his home; Carl H. Martin, 56, of St. Mary's O., died February 15 at a hospital there; Grace Vanhooose Watson, 89, a Johnson county native living in Henderson, Nev., died February 14 in Nevada; Larry Douglas Sherman, 29, formerly of Johnson county, died February 20 at his home in Ypsilanti, Mich.; Gary M. Damron, 25, of Honaker, was killed February 15 inside the Maranatha Coal Company mine on Cow Creek while operating a battery-powered scoop.

Twenty Years Ago

(February 23, 1967)

Approximately 1,500 "unemployed fathers" will be dropped from the payroll by April 1, but the Work Experience and Training (Happy Pappy) program will continue in all the 19 Kentucky counties where it now operates, state and federal officials have agreed. A Prestonsburg delegation was encouraged last week by Washington reaction to its application for Office of Economic Opportunity assistance in expansion of the water system here. A giant shovel employed by the coal operation of William B. Sturgill and others on Lott's Creek, Knott county, was destroyed by a dynamite blast last Sunday night at a loss of approximately $90,000, it was learned here this week. Prestonsburg has won the Community Travel Award as the Kentucky community which during 1966 did most to promote tourism in the state. Born: to Mr. and Mrs. Roger Dillion, of Wellington, O., a daughter—Karen Leigh—Feb. 12 at Oberlin, Ohio. There died: Elihu Triplett, 77, Monday at his home at Garrett; Mrs. Myrtle B. Crisp, 76, formerly of Martin, Feb. 9 at Mesa, Ariz.; Allen D. Snyder, 62, of Ashland, formerly of Betsy Layne, Sunday at Ashland; Mrs. Christie Canterbury Childers, 72, of Emma, Friday at Mountain Manor Nursing Home here; Sidney Hamilton, 80, Wednesday at his residence at Teaberry.

Thirty Years Ago

Deputy Highway Commissioner Bert Kiser assured State Representative Lon C. Hill, Prestonsburg, Tax Commissioner Clive Akers, of Drift, and Jerry F. Howell, of Price, last Thursday that the Auxier-Prestonsburg section of relocated U.S. 23 will be let to contract by the first of July. Six persons are taking rabies immunization treatment here this week due to contact with a dog and a cat declared rabid. Flood protection for most of Prestonsburg with work on the project to begin this year, was considered a certainty this week after representatives of the U. S. Corps of Engineers' district office in Huntington, W. Va., conferred Monday night with Mayor Harry Sandige, other city officials and citizens. Application has been filed by Gordon Collins, of Lackey, with the Federal Communications Commission for permit to put into operation here a second radio station. Although a fire in the Magoffin county courthouse at Salyersville was suppressed Tuesday morning of last week after damage to the County Attorney's office, a new blaze on Friday completely destroyed the 64-year-old structure. A Friday evening fire destroyed the 90-year-old residence of the late Dr. H. H. Mayo, near Martin on Ky. 80. Born: to Mr. and Mrs. Clyde E. DeRossett, a son, Clyde E., Jr., Feb. 17 at the Paintsville hospital; to Mr. and Mrs. Dave Morgan Flannery, a son, James David, Monday at the Paintsville hospital. There died: Joseph E. Joy, 73, who pioneered the development of mechanized mining, chief of his inventions being the Joy Loader, and brother of W. R. Joy, Prestonsburg, last Tuesday at Fort Pierce, Florida; Charles Elliott, 38, formerly of Wayland, Friday at Columbus, Ohio; Mrs. Bird Smith, 59, of Justell, last Thursday at Miners Memorial hospital, Pikeville; Mrs. Lou Hollifield Burchett, 78, of Prestonsburg, Friday at St. Mary's hospital, Huntington, West Virginia.

Forty Years Ago

The Floyd fiscal court Saturday formally entered into an agreement with the State Forestry Department whereby the 173,348 acres of forest land in the county will receive fire protection, beginning July 1. Burns suffered Jan. 4 when her clothing was ignited from a gas stove in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Pratt, of Stone Coal Creek, resulted Tuesday in the death at the Beaver Valley hospital, Martin, of eight-year-old Meri Lea Pratt. Silent while teachers in other sections threatened to strike against "starvation wages," 26 members of the Wayland consolidated school faculty joined in a letter to Gov. Simeon Willis, requesting he call a special session of the General Assembly to enact legislation providing a teacher salary increase. Death within the last week claimed at 95 two of the county's oldest citizens. Mrs. Belle Branham died Monday at the home at Allen of her daughter, Mrs. Farris Porter, Saturday, Henry Maggard died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Melvin Frazier, near Martin. Married: Mrs. Sylvia Varney and Mr. J. R. Worland, both of Prestonsburg, Feb. 19. Born: to Mr. and Mrs. David L. Francis, of David and Huntington, W. Va., a son—James Draper Francis—at a Huntington hospital, Feb. 22; to Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers Frazier, of Prestonsburg, a daughter—Elizabeth Lynne—Feb. 26 at the Prestonsburg General hospital; to Mr. and Mrs. William L. Baldrige, Jr., of Little Paint, a daughter, Sandra Lynn, Jan. 21; to Mr. and Mrs. Clarence H. Crisp, of Martin, a son, Clarence Howard, Jr., at the Methodist hospital, Pikeville, Jan. 31; to Mr. and Mrs. Orvil Boyd, of Betsy Layne, a son, Feb. 22; to Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Goble, of Ivel, a son, Kenis Allen, Feb. 17. There died: Dr. Curtis Randolph Slove, 58, prominent Prestonsburg dentist, at his home here, Thursday; Dr. Jacob Allen Wells, 66, first physician to serve the old Pike-Floyd Coal Company at Betsy Layne, Saturday at St. Mary's hospital, Huntington; Mrs. Rosa Mae Skeans Ferguson, 63, at her home at Wheelwright, Saturday; Freda M. Stanley, 22, at home at Garrett, Sunday.

Fifty Years Ago

Plans for the construction here of a 22-room, brick, air-conditioned graded school building to cost an estimated $100,000 have been approved by the bureau of the budget. Washington, it was announced this week by Congressman A. J. May and Mayor A. C. Carter. An eight-inch pipeline, 12 miles long, running from Rock Fork, near Lackey, to the mouth of Possum Trot Creek, near Hindman, was started last week by the Inland Gas Corporation. An estimate from the county clerk's office Wednesday, showed only a small percentage of motor vehicles in Floyd county registered so far this year—248 cars and 106 trucks being licensed since Jan. 1. Duke Griffith, Prestonsburg watch repairman, has invented a "talking clock," one that instead of merely striking the hour—speaks it. James E. Miller, Jr., of Wayland, and Edgar P. Stephens, of Prestonsburg were elected president and vice-president, respectively of their national social fraternity, Epsilon Phi Zeta Chapter of Lambda Chi. Born: to Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Ratliff, of Wheelwright, a son—Wayne Wendell—Saturday, Feb. 13. There died: Mrs. Josie Crider, of German, Feb. 13 at the home of her nephew, Stonewall Cline, on Johns Creek; William J. (Uncle Will) George, 66, of Wheelwright, Feb. 13; the infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Adkins, of Harold, Feb. 14, at the parents' home.

businessman Wallace Wilkinson. One had only to look at the roads, schools, and water projects in western Kentucky and compare them with those we have here to see why eastern Kentucky needs a governor from this section, the state representative said. "If Grady Stumbo is governor and Greg Stumbo is floor leader and Benny Ray Bailey is in the senate, we'll blackout those roads. We'll blackout them four inches thick," he said.

A bluegrass quartet entertained the crowd in the McDowell High School gymnasium where Stumbo played basketball as a member of the Class of 1963. Arriving in the company of Congressman Chris Perkins, the candidate was fanfare by the McDowell High School band's rendition of the Notre Dame fight song. Stumbo was joined there by his mother, Ruth Hall; his wife, Jan; and their four children, Stephanie, Jessica, Marc and Todd.

While the hoopla focused on Stumbo, however, he was not the only politician working Saturday's crowd. Two candidates for Floyd Commonwealth's Attorney—incumbent James R. Allen and Jerry Patton—and two aspirants for circuit court clerk—incumbent Frank DeRossett and David Hereford—were in evidence. So were two candidates for secretary of state—Alma Waddell and State Rep. Jim Maggard. Also there were Pike Judge Executive Paul Patton, who is running for lieutenant governor; Raymond Kirk, a candidate for attorney general; John Brock, running for state schools superintendent; and Brett Scott, who wants to be state treasurer.

This week Stumbo planned to work "doing jobs that Kentuckians do every day"—in a supermarket, at a grain elevator, and at a fast-food restaurant. He chose that method of launching his candidacy, he said in an earlier press release, because his campaign "is being run on behalf of the working people of this state, the ones who feel they have been denied access to their government because they don't have political connections or great personal wealth."

At this time of the year after a hard winter, Stumbo told the crowd, there is little hay left in the barn, the grass has not started to grow, and farmers need to put the cows out in the cornstalks. "For too long in Kentucky we've had monied interests and special interests feeding at the public trough; it's time to turn them out in the cornstalks," he said.

Despite the $391 million worth of coal mined last year in Kentucky, the state spends so little on education, Stumbo noted, that Kentucky is 50th among the states in the percentage of literate adults, 46th in per-pupil expenditures, and 41st in teacher salaries.

Rather than joining those in Louisville and Lexington who are considering cuts in blacklung benefits, "We will keep our obligation to coalminers," said the coalminer's son. Rather than having candidates spend "$6 or $7 million" to campaign, he would seek a cap on spending so that "farmers and working people would have an opportunity to run" for office. In contrast to the money spent by the lieutenant governor on groceries, plane travel and police protection, he would spend money on programs for children and the elderly and to hire more state police, he said.

He would make a priority of marketing coal and putting miners back to work. Stumbo said, "I see a Kentucky where those who want to work are able to work," he said.

He was confident his message would appeal to ordinary people in all sections of the state, said Stumbo, who ran a close third behind Martha Layne Collins and Harvey Sloane in 1983. But he predicted eastern Kentuckians would play a vital role in getting him elected. "Just as the hill country of Texas made it possible for Lyndon Baines Johnson to be president of the United States, it is the hill country of Kentucky that is going to make me governor."

judge ruled they could not reliably give evidence in the case against Martin.

Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen intended to rely on testimony of the children videotaped earlier and, when Allen acknowledged he had no independent evidence to produce in the case, Judge Conley granted a dismissal requested by Public Defender Gary Johnson, who represented Martin.

Johnson said later that Martin should never have been indicted solely on the testimony of social workers who investigated the abuse report. Had the prosecutor himself interviewed the children he would have understood immediately that he did not have a case against Martin, the defense attorney said. "Social workers are not trained to understand legal issues," he said.

The case illustrates the danger of unjustly accusing a person in cases like suspected child abuse, where public sentiment runs high, he said. "Prosecutors should exercise a little more care before they bring a charge like this," he said.

Allen conceded that he should have interviewed the Younce children before presenting the case to a grand jury last November and said he would follow that procedure in future. But the case against Martin broke down not because he failed to interview the children but because they were persuaded to protect Martin, Allen said.

Younce, who initially appeared willing to cooperate in the prosecution of her boyfriend, now appeared reconciled with him and may have influenced the children to protect him, the prosecutor said. Unplanned evidence of the children's relationship with Martin came during Monday's hearing when, after the judge had finished questioning him, Johnny Younce asked, and was allowed to, sit with Martin.

"Children of that age can be easily influenced. I'm sure that's what happened," Allen said.

Martin entered a manslaughter plea last September in the 1983 shooting of Reginald and Walter Lazar and received concurrent 17- and 10-year sentences. An earlier murder conviction had been overturned by the state Supreme Court on account of trial errors. He is currently lodged in the Floyd county jail, pending transfer to the State Reformatory near LaGrange.

At the time of the alleged abuse, Martin was free pending formal sentencing, which had been postponed to allow him to undergo surgical repair of an abdominal hernia, itself a relic of his shootout with the Lazars.

Martin denied he scalded Ricky Younce. He did not know of the mishap until the child screamed and his stomach wound made it difficult for him to respond quickly, he said.

Connie Younce testified Monday that Martin had never harmed the children and she did not believe he would harm them.

While conventioners heard repeated calls for a new attack on the depredations of poverty, Garrett wrote, they were also treated to a "more or less continuous" round of champagne parties, a dance, an awards-night buffet dinner and talent show, and hospitality-suite receptions. The Region IV Head Start Association spent $17,000 on an opening-day luncheon, $1,500 on an honorarium for a motivational speaker, and $700 on a dance band, the story said.

To save the cost of airline fares, the Big Sandy delegates went by Greyhound bus to the convention. Austin said, and stayed at the Atlanta American Hotel, an aging facility that charges a government-employee rate of $37 per night for a single room. Participants were expected to attend training sessions and a sign-up sheet helped insure that they did.

"The regional office (in Atlanta) sets up these meetings and we're not called down there for foolishness," Austin said. "There may be some foolishness on the side, but that's personal." For his part, said Austin, who is pastor of the Highland Avenue Free Will Baptist Church here, he prefers to "read, meditate, and think" during a convention's leisure moments.

In any event, the opulent surroundings of hotels like the Westin Peachtree Plaza are "not really the issue," said Austin. Only the largest hotels can accommodate a crowd of the size that attended the Head Start convention; they invariably offer large-group discounts and may permit people to double up in single rooms; and they customarily offer a cut on the price of hiring banquet and convention halls if a minimum number of delegates stay in the hotel, he explained.

"It's not just Head Start. It's the same with the Free Will Baptists," Austin said. "You have to go to conventions. You have to go to a city and a hotel that can handle them."

While the conspicuous elegance of the Westin Peachtree Plaza left him feeling "a little bit uncomfortable," Austin said it "would be much the same anywhere else. I'm not sure it makes any difference."

"It seems they have become almost a necessary evil," he said.

"It was an experience, it really was," said Juanita Stephens, who was attending her first Head Start convention. "I went to work, to learn, to get new ideas."

"It was interesting," the Floyd staffer added. "You get ideas from different people. It makes you want to do your job better."

Wheelwright High School, and Debbie Hall, former clerk and bookkeeper at the school, were charged with stealing $8,900 from several school accounts during 1984 and 1985. The loss was revealed by a state Board of Education audit in 1985.

Willie Hatfield, of Cliffsides, was charged with wanton endangerment and third-degree assault on an Oct. 13 incident in which he resisted arrest by Kentucky State Police trooper Steve Heath. According to the arrest warrant, Hatfield pushed Heath, hit him with his fist, and let his German Shepherd dog bite the trooper.

Hatfield also is named as the victim in another indictment, charging Fred Johnson, 32, and Donald Gene Johnson, 23, both of Prestonsburg, with first-degree assault on Hatfield last May 4. Hatfield was seriously injured in the incident, according to the indictment.

Others indicted on assault charges were:

Hansel Webb, accused of shooting Terry Moore in the right arm on Jan. 24; James Crabtree, of Hueysville, for cutting Charles Ray Taylor in the face with a switchblade, on Dec. 19, an injury which required 41 stitches to repair; and Devon Prater, of Hueysville, charged with attacking deputy sheriff Anthony Castle with a deadly weapon on Jan. 13.

Crabtree also was charged with second-degree burglary for stealing a $600 video-cassette recorder from Wanda McCown on Jan. 31. In addition, he and two others, Roger Shepherd and Danny Sparkman, were indicted for second-degree burglary of a building owned by Allen and Barbara Bailey, on Feb. 1, and for first-degree criminal mischief for causing more than $1,000 worth of damage to property owned by a Mr. Bank.

Other burglary indictments were:

Morries Gene Gillum, of Melvin, Fred Lowell Rife, of Bypro, and Bobby Hollow, for breaking into the Bypro home of Warren Risner on Aug. 29, 1984, while armed with a deadly weapon; Robbie Dwayne Jones, of Allen, accused of breaking into Big Sandy Wholesale, at Harold, on Oct. 16 while armed with a deadly weapon; and Junior Mullins, Leburn Sizemore, 19, and Mack Campbell, 26, all of Mousie, for entering the Garrett home of Phillip Martin on July 20.

Jones also was charged with one count of theft and two counts of receiving stolen property. Four stolen guns were found in his possession, including a survival rifle and a .38 special Smith & Wesson, according to Kentucky State Police detective Danny Stumbo.

Tony R. Hall was charged with five counts related to controlled substances, including trafficking in cocaine and possessing Percodan, Tylenol No. 4, and Valium. Indicted on two counts of trafficking in marijuana was Tivis "Bo" Neeley, 37, of Hueysville, who allegedly sold a pound and a half of the substance to a Kentucky State Police detective on two different occasions. Larry K. Martin, 24, of Estill, also was charged with marijuana trafficking for having 2.5 pounds of the substance at his home.

Jackie Woods, of Allen, was accused of cultivating 26 marijuana plants for the purpose of sale. Tammy Lynn Stambaugh, of Ivel, was indicted for trafficking in marijuana, being intoxicated by the substance, and possessing a prescription drug without having a prescription. James S. Preece faces charges of possessing cocaine worth at least $100.

Accused of wanton endangerment were:

Jack T. King, of Harold, who allegedly fired a handgun, emptying it twice, at a parking lot owned by Dottie Rogers and occupied by her and several other people on Oct. 18; Raymond D. Mullins, 40, of Weeksbury, who reportedly hit Maryon Hutchinson with his fists, pointed a gun at her, and threatened to "leave her laying" on Sept. 27; and James E. Phillips, 23, of Moore, Okla., who allegedly tried to run over park ranger Jerry Daniels with his tractor-trailer rig on Jan. 1.

Paul Roberts, of Harold, was charged with operating a motor vehicle while his license was revoked or suspended for driving under the influence (DUI).

Teddy Ray Akers, of Hippo, and Teddy Cordial, of Banner, both of the J & L Mining Company, of Banner, were indicted for failing to pay wages owed to Hobart Keathley, George Hall, Lenville Jones, Mack Lewis Bolden, and Ronald Hamilton.

Milford Conn, 39, of Ocoee, Fla., was charged with receiving stolen property. He was allegedly seen Dec. 2 driving a tan 1986 Ford pickup that was stolen from Orange county, Fla.

Indicted for fraud were:

Ronald Blackburn, for receiving $1,340 worth of food stamps in 1984 and 1985 for which he was not eligible; Levi Blankenship, of McDowell, for receiving $420 in unemployment insurance; Cletis R. Gibson, 26, of Prestonsburg, for receiving $2,295 in unemployment insurance; and Oma Hicks, for receiving $1,088 worth of food stamps for which she was not eligible.

Theft indictments were returned against:

Harold Robert Baer, of Betsy Layne, for stealing $600 and a 1980 Chrysler LeBaron from Kathleen R. Sweeney on Sept. 1; Lansing D. Buckley and Earl Patrick, Jr., 20, both of Martin; Jimmy Dean Burchett, of Emma; Gregory Conn, 28, for stealing items from his employer, C & O Railroad; Tracy Hall, 21, of Bevensville, accused of stealing a 1971 Ford pickup from Marvin Little; Bobby J. Harvey, 19, of Garrett, for stealing walkie-talkies from the state Division of Forestry; Luther McCoy, 25, of Martin, and Gregory J. Short, 17, of Lackey, for taking towels and other

Jury Report Recommends Courthouse Improvements

The courthouse parking lot should be repaved and vehicles should be kept off the courthouse lawn, the Floyd Circuit Court grand jury said last week in its report to Floyd Circuit Judge Hollie Conley.

The grand jury complimented the staff of the juvenile detention facility here for keeping that area clean and neat, and also commented on the cleanliness of the jailhouse kitchen. However, "the jail should be kept cleaner," noted the report.

Public restrooms at the courthouse also need to be kept clean, the grand jury noted. Signs should be installed in both the courthouse and the annex, showing the location of all offices, and more lighting is needed in the stairways of the courthouse annex. The grand jury also recommended that "curtain strings in the juvenile detention facility be removed."

items from the Holiday Inn; and Roger Vance, of Hager Hill, for accepting a $2,000 check from Ernest Terry in exchange for blacktopping Terry's driveway, a service which Vance allegedly did not perform.

Accused of passing bad checks were: Cassie T. Adams, of Tram; Harold G. Belcher, Jr., of Elkhorn City; John T. Blair, of Pikeville; Gary Crisp, of Prestonsburg; Ray Holbrook, of Salyersville; Bob Miller, of Betsy Layne; Robin Staats, of Gilbert, W. Va.; Cheryl Stowers, of Martin; and Mark Wesley Wilson, of Pikeville.

need to answer three questions in the affirmative: Did the physician fail to exercise ordinary care in treating VanHoose? If so, did his negligence cause her injury? And, was their doctor-patient relationship still intact at the time?

Eleven of 12 jurors—there were five women and seven men on the panel—answered the first two questions in the negative, recording no response to the third. One juror abstained from voting.

The case centered on a pregnancy test the Thailand-born gynecologist administered to VanHoose at Highlands Regional Medical Center on August 31, 1984, the Friday before the Labor Day weekend. The blood test report—it was positive—was allegedly returned from a Lexington laboratory the following Monday, but Kunajukr—who is generally known to his patients as Dr. Sutip—claimed he did not see it until months later.

VanHoose turned up in the emergency room at the University of Kentucky Medical Center in severe pain on September 13, when she was diagnosed as having an ectopic pregnancy and the hysterectomy was performed.

By failing to check the results of the test he had ordered and to notify VanHoose, Kunajukr "callously abandoned his patient," said James G. Reid, the Lexington attorney representing the plaintiff.

But the physician said VanHoose and her husband, Danny, became angry with him when he was not able to diagnose the cause of Mrs. VanHoose's pain during the Highlands admission and that the husband insisted his wife be discharged. He concluded they no longer wanted him to be Mrs. VanHoose's physician, Kunajukr said.

The physician and the hospital claimed that any injury suffered by Mrs. VanHoose was her own or her husband's fault. Noting that Danny VanHoose had once worked at Highlands as an operating room technician, Pikeville Attorney James Todd, representing Highlands, argued that VanHoose "knew his way around a hospital" and should have inquired what tests were administered to his wife and what the results were.

Jury foreman Charles R. Collins said later that the panel was not convinced that Kunajukr had actually received the results of the pregnancy test he had ordered from International Clinical Laboratory. "There was a lot of speculation, a lot of circumstantial evidence, but we tried to put that aside. We wanted to stay with the facts," Collins said.

The jury also found plausible Kunajukr's contention that he thought Mrs. VanHoose and her husband had taken him off her case the night they left Highlands angry. Kunajukr "left his supper to admit her to the hospital and to order tests. We took that as evidence he was willing to treat her. We felt Mr. VanHoose bore some responsibility for taking her home" from the hospital, Collins said.

Kunajukr, who began his medical practice in 1974 but said in a deposition last year that he had given it up, was represented by David C. Long, of the Lexington firm of Wyatt, Tarrant, and Combs. Two previous malpractice suits against him, in 1978 and 1984, ended in out-of-court settlements.

Florida has become a haven for unwelcome wildlife from other countries, according to National Wildlife magazine. These "exotic" species include rhesus monkeys descended from the stars of early Tarzan movies filmed in the state. Many exotic parrots and parakeets dine on the state's citrus and other crops. Among the most bizarre species is a giant South American marine toad that secretes a strong poison and likes to lay its eggs in swimming pools.

brought "cultural genes" that affect their descendants here today, he said. "Our cultural genes have deposited us as a different people from the nation."

Among the traits that set people here apart from the rest of the nation is a high tendency to violence, according to Caudill. He linked that trait to the experience of the early settlers here, who fought 200 years of continuous warfare with the native inhabitants. "People were practically born with rifles in their hands," he said.

He cited as an example his own county, Letcher, where 14 deputies and four federal officers were shot to death in a four-year period recently. Attacks on law enforcement officers are much less common in the New England states and in the West, he said, where there is a "strong tradition against violence."

Education here also has suffered because of the area's cultural heritage, Caudill said. Unlike the settlers of the northeast and the midwest, the early white inhabitants of this region brought with them no tradition of public schooling. For many years they were too busy fighting to build schools, and later the isolation of this area made them lose touch with the idea of widespread education.

"We did not keep up with the trend," he said. "We're not a trendy people. We were in the backwoods."

Another problem here, in Caudill's view, is "hyperindividualism"—the tendency to resist any kind of cooperative effort or outside authority. The original settlers of the Appalachian mountains often came to this country alone, as "human atoms" accountable to no one but themselves, he said. In contrast, the settlers of the midwest and the northeast often emigrated in family groups or church congregations, moved by religious fervor and a common faith.

Grant Addresses Bias, Caudill Not Informed

His lecture was billed as the second of four in a series on the subject of "sex bias," and some people in the audience were curious to find out what Harry M. Caudill would have to say about that subject. Caudill is well-known for his writings on the history and current problems of eastern Kentucky, but he is not generally considered to be an expert on the problems of sexual stereotyping.

Those who attended his lecture Wednesday learned that he had nothing at all to say about sex bias.

"I didn't ask him to," explained Dorothy Carlson, the faculty member at Prestonsburg Community College who is in charge of the $8,000 state grant that paid for Caudill's presentation. Bringing Caudill here to speak was an attempt to raise local awareness about cultural attitudes in general, she said, rather than about sex-role attitudes specifically.

People of eastern Kentucky are "not as far along" as others in understanding how attitudes can create problems in a variety of ways, Carlson said. The sex-bias series here is aimed at improving that understanding, thereby creating a general climate in which sexual bias can be more easily understood and addressed, she said.

"We became a highly individualistic people," Caudill said. One result has been that people here are "thoroughly suspicious of any kind of land control." This hatred of restrictions on land use has brought the paradox of elaborate mansions sitting next to shacks surrounded by trash, he said.

That tendency to throw trash and garbage out the front doors of homes, often polluting the homeowner's own drinking water supply, is another trait peculiar to this area, Caudill said. Mountain folk are a "people of supreme disorder," unlike those of the midwest who have a sense of orderliness and cleanliness, backed by both law and custom, in his view.

Mountain people also are poor farmers who tend to exploit natural resources instead of preserving them, Caudill said. He traced this trait as well to the original settlers of the area, who came to this country without much knowledge of farming or sense of a "land ethic."

"Mountain people must have been the worst farmers that ever farmed the Garden of Eden," he said.

In spite of the "cultural genes" that have encouraged these attitudes, Caudill believes that people here can change the way they live. He urged the students to put the past behind them and "come out of the backwoods."

"We're in the world now," he said. "National borders are dissolving, washing out. We've got to become modern men and women, or there's no future for us."

Caudill, 64, is "one of the most highly-regarded" people in Kentucky, according to Weddle, who introduced the speaker on Wednesday. He has written seven books, the most famous of which is Night Comes To the Cumberlands. Subtitled "A Biography of a Depressed Area," it was published in 1962, caught the attention of President John F. Kennedy, and helped pave the way for many subsequent "war on poverty" programs.

Caudill also spent three terms in the Kentucky legislature, taught history at the University of Kentucky, and practiced law in Letcher county. He lectures often and has been interviewed by national magazines such as Life and Newsweek, Weddle said.

Our word admiral comes from the Arabic phrase "Amir 'a ali," which means a man in high authority.

City Ponders Park Cleanup, Garage Rehab

Improvements for Archer Park are being planned for the spring, and City Administrator Fred A. James outlined them at Monday's meeting of Prestonsburg city council. James plans to do a clean up along the creek area and bring in a bulldozer to do landscaping.

James also proposed moving the city garage from Archer Park to land owned by the city near the Cliff bridge. To accomplish this, the old ice skating rink building will be torn down and the materials used to build a new garage to house the streets and sanitation departments. The same site is now being used to build a firefighters' training facility.

Wasting no time in pursuing its goal of area economic development, the council passed an ordinance establishing a joint industrial development authority between Prestonsburg and Paintsville. Mayor Ann R. Latta expects a similar ordinance will pass Paintsville's city council in the near future.

"The good news is that our $5,000 grant application to the Kentucky Heritage Council has been approved," Mayor Latta said. "The bad news is that we may not get the money." The mayor explained to the council that President Reagan has recommended that 75 percent of the federal funding be slashed for these grants, so that it's possible the city won't receive the money after all. Known as a survey and planning grant, it is necessary to qualify Prestonsburg as a National Historic District and to place the city on the National Register. Property owners would then be eligible for tax credits and other assistance.

The council gave City Administrator James the authority to hire two work study students from Prestonsburg Community College to assist the administration with clerical or communications or data entry work. "We have a lot of data to enter into the computers," James said of one possible job. The workers will receive minimum wage and work up to 15 hours a week and the city will be reimbursed $1.50 per hour. Priority for hiring will go to students who live in Prestonsburg.

Mayor Latta announced the retirement of Bill Potter from the city police force. Potter, who has served the city for 36 years, will now work part-time, and a new police recruit will be hired.

Auto Club Takes Dim View Of New Truck Weight Law

Even as the state Transportation Cabinet awarded a contract for posting new weight-limit signs on bridges in Floyd and 39 other counties, an automobile drivers' group sharply criticized the law that has made the new signs necessary.

George B. Stone Co., of Sharpsburg, received a $60,650 contract to post the bridge signs in the extended-weight coal haul road system. While current law allows an 80,000-pound maximum weight for trucks on designated coal haul roads, a law passed by the 1986 General Assembly and due to take effect in April raises the limit to 120,000 pounds for trucks that pay a special annual fee.

The new signs are necessary to designate bridges that are not eligible to bear the heavier loads permitted under the new law, said Transportation Cabinet spokeswoman Phillipa Craft this week.

Meanwhile, a spokeswoman for the Blue Grass Automobile Club criticized the truck sticker law as "an attempt by the Kentucky legislature to legalize overweight coal trucks at the expense of taxpayers."

Kathy Gross, the club's manager of special services, said the fee schedule designated by HB 978—which sets a $360 per year maximum—"cannot begin to finance repairs needed as a result of overweight coal trucks."

A single truck loaded to 80,000 pounds does the same damage to roads as do 9,600 cars, and a truck overloaded by 10,000 pounds does the same damage as three 80,000-pound trucks, according to figures supplied by the automobile club.

"The significant costs associated with pavement wear and reduced bridge life are borne largely by the motoring public and not by truckers, who...vastly underpay for their use of our highways," Gross said.

Allowing heavier truckloads is also an "unconscionable" threat to public safety, she said.

Banking Courses Offered

Morehead State University, in conjunction with the Kentucky Mountain Study Group, will offer several American Institute of Banking (AIB) courses in Pikeville and Prestonsburg this spring.

Registration is still under way for the classes which began meeting this week (Jan. 26-30). The fee is $140 per student and includes AIB membership and textbook. The courses may be taken for AIB credit, but not for college credit.

The Pikeville schedule will include: "Accounting Principles II," emphasizing current accounting practices and procedures, will meet on Tuesdays, 6-8:30 p.m., in the conference room, Pikeville National Bank. The instructor will be William Bottoms, C.P.A.

"Fundamentals of Bank Data Processing," covering data processing applications to banking in a nontechnical style, will meet Thursdays, 6-8:30 p.m., in the conference room, Pikeville National Bank.

Offered at Prestonsburg are: "Principles of Banking," dealing with such aspects as banking history, economic environment, bank services and regulation, will meet Thursdays, 6-8:30 p.m. at the Prestonsburg Community College, John Blackburn will be instructor.

"Selling Banking Services," seminar devoted to developing positive attitudes toward selling and specific techniques, will meet Tuesdays, 6-8:30 p.m. at PCC. The instructor will be Butch Bradley, marketing director of the First Commonwealth Bank in Prestonsburg.

"Marketing for Bankers," dealing with consumer motivation covering such topics as consumer motivation and public relations, will meet Mondays, 6-8:30 p.m. at PCC. Bradley will be the instructor.

AIB classes are designed to increase awareness of the responsibility that the financial community has in economic development and provide the knowledge to fulfill that responsibility, according to John M. Alcorn, MSU associate professor of accounting and campus AIB coordinator.

Seek Suggestions For Schooling Handicapped

If you have ideas on how Kentucky can better comply with the federal Education of the Handicapped Act, PL 94-142, now is the time to express them. Public hearings will be held around the state this spring to collect suggestions to be incorporated into the state plan submitted to the U.S. Department of Education.

The plan will determine federal funds received until 1990. Hearing dates have not been set. Submit comments or questions to the Office of Education for Exceptional Children, 8th Floor, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

Job Program Seeks To Place Older, Unemployed Workers

Have you retired but miss working? Are you a homemaker seeking your first job or reentering the labor market after a long absence? Have you been laid off after years with the same company? If so, a new program has just started to help you find work.

It's called the mature workers program and is operated by the Big Sandy Area Community Action Program.

Club Calendar

Rebekahs To Meet

The next regular semi-monthly meeting of Miriam Rebekah Lodge No. 31 will be held at the I.O.O.F. Lodge Hall, Tuesday evening, March 3, at 7 p.m., and Mrs. Mabel Jean LeMaster, Noble Grand, urges all members to be present.

WOMAN'S CLUB TO MEET

The regular monthly meeting of the Prestonsburg Woman's Club will be held Thursday evening, March 5, at 7:30, at the Emma Wells May Cultural Center. The hostesses will be Mesdames Dorothy Osborne, Barbara Dawson, and Maxine Bierman. Mrs. Dorothy Stover will be the program leader, and the speaker will be Larry Bailey, director of Alumni Affairs, Eastern Kentucky University, Richmond. Mrs. Susie Poe, president, asks that members of the club's executive board will meet at 7 p.m.

F.C.R.T.A. TO MEET

Mrs. Danese Amburgey, president of the Floyd County Retired Teachers' Association, announces that the next luncheon meeting will be held Thursday, March 19, at May Lodge. The speaker for this event will be Col. Strather W. Hawkins, State Chairman of the A.A.R.P. Mrs. Amburgey urges all retired teachers to attend. Registration will start at 9:30 a.m.

BAPTIST CIRCLE TO MEET

Mrs. Layne Dutton, president of the Mommie Ransdell Circle of the W.M.U., of the First Baptist Church, urges all members and those who may wish to become members to attend the regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Lora Click, Tuesday evening, March 3, at 7 o'clock.

KIWANIANS TO MEET

Mrs. Jane Bond, president of the Prestonsburg Kiwanians, reminds members of the luncheon meeting, Thursday, February 26, (tomorrow), at 12:30 at May Lodge, and urges them to attend.

Jenny Wiley Festival Board Meeting Set

Mrs. Maxine Bierman, director of the Jenny Wiley Festival, reminds members of the board, of the meeting to be held Thursday afternoon, at 4 o'clock, at the Floyd County Library. The public is welcome to attend.

New Report Issued On Knott Gas Production

Natural gas production from Devonian shales in Knott county is the subject of a new report from the Kentucky Geological Survey at the University of Kentucky.

The report is part of a series that will determine the geologic factors that control gas production in Eastern Kentucky. KGS researchers say the knowledge gained will be a valuable tool for developing future gas production and maximizing production from existing fields.

The study is being funded by the Gas Research Institute, a private, Chicago-based organization that promotes research and development in gaseous fuels and their use.

Gas has been produced from the Devonian shale in eastern Kentucky since the early 1900s, and these rocks continue to be a major source of gas production. These shales, deposited about 350 to 410 million years ago, are also known as "oil shales" elsewhere in Kentucky where they occur at or near the surface.

In addition to describing the general geology of Knott county, the new report discusses the history of gas exploration and drilling activity in the county, compares the results of different well-stimulation techniques, and considers the effectiveness of various geologic tools for predicting the occurrence of gas.

The report contains a series of 1:100,000-scale maps showing well locations, structure, shale thickness, and isopotential for gas production. It also includes a series of structural cross sections and a tabulation of data for all 1,134 gas wells drilled into the Devonian shale of Knott county.

Future reports will investigate gas production in Floyd, Martin and Pike counties. A previous report covered Letcher county.

Copies of the Knott county report are available for $15 each, fourth-class postage included. Order from: Kentucky Geological Survey, Publication Sales, 311 Breckinridge Hall, University of Kentucky, Lexington, Ky. 40506.

The Job Training Partnership Act was enacted into law in October 1982 and became fully operational in October 1983, according to the U.S. Department of Labor's annual report for fiscal year 1985. The law is administered by the Labor Department's Employment and Training Administration.

Funds for it come from the federal government's Job Training Partnership Act (J.T.P.A.). It started February 18.

To be eligible, applicants must be age 55 or over and meet requirements for participation in J.T.P.A. You must be a resident of the area, economically disadvantaged, unemployed or underemployed.

"Its purpose is to show older workers how to go about getting back into the work force," said Mike Howell, the program's coordinator. He said applicants have come from various work experiences and some have not held a paying job. "Two ladies have never been in the work market," he said. "They were homemakers. So this is a new experience for those folks."

In the first phase of the program, participants will receive two weeks of classroom instruction in job-hunting skills, like preparing a resume and taking an interview. During that time they will be paid $3 an hour for a 25-hour week.

The second phase will consist of on-the-job training with a private employer or public agency, with ongoing support and evaluation. The program will pay the employer half the employees wages for up to 20 weeks.

"This would be good for businesses that might need part-time workers. Or if they need a fulltime employee we can go up to 40 hours," Howell said.

Howell said the program is needed because of the difficulty older workers have in finding jobs. "Some of the people applying said they had been looking for work but couldn't get a job because of their age." Yet the coordinator thinks that employers should give consideration to the proven reliability of older workers. "I've talked with employers and many of them have less problems with older workers. They take their jobs more seriously. They're dependable and reliable about being on time."

Employers and people interested in the mature workers program should contact Mike Howell at the Community Action Program office in Paintsville, 789-4370.

Aide Course Open To Older Workers

A health-aide training course for individuals who are over 55 and unemployed is being offered at the Mayo State Vocational-Technical School. The course is being sponsored by the state Department for Employment Services. For more information, contact M.G. Tackett at 789-1666.

BAPTIST CIRCLE TO MEET

The Annie Allen Circle of the First Baptist Church will meet at the home of Mrs. Vivian Fraley, Monday evening, March 2, at 7 o'clock. Mrs. Patsy Evans, president, urges all members and prospective members to attend.

Shepherd Seeks Sentence Appeal

Against his attorney's advice, Martin Shepherd last week withdrew a motion for shock probation of his 12-month sentence for wanton endangerment, saying that he only wants to press ahead with his appeal of the conviction. A $25,000 appeal bond was set Friday by Circuit Judge Hollie Conley and Shepherd's attorney, Public Defender Norm Bennett, was permitted to withdraw from the case. Conley held, however, that the state Office of Public Advocacy is still responsible for Shepherd's defense. Shepherd, 40, of David, was convicted last November of shooting into the home of Rady and Bonnie Davis in August, 1984. An earlier trial of the case ended in a hung jury. His brother, Earlie Shepherd, who was convicted of complicity in the shooting, also received a 12-month sentence but was released recently on shock probation.

Bomb Threats, False Alarm Keep P'burg Police Busy

Two bomb threats, a store suddenly plunged into darkness, and reports of a possibly rabid fox kept Prestonsburg police and fire officers busy last week. The Food City supermarket was evacuated on successive nights, Tuesday and Wednesday, after a telephone caller said there was a bomb in the building. Searches turned up no bomb on either occasion. The lights went out Wednesday night at the SuperAmerica market and gas station, triggering an alarm at the chain store's Ashland Oil headquarters. A main switch behind the story had been tripped, apparently deliberately, police said.

It's now of-FISH-all! Hawaii has chosen its state fish. Ranger Rick magazine reports that the Humuhumu won the most votes after an election rally at the Waikiki Aquarium. A figure in early Hawaiian legends, the Humuhumu is known for its strategy of swimming into a small crack and using a special spine to lock itself in place, preventing other fish from extracting and eating it. The Humuhumu will serve as the state fish for five years, after which it must run for re-election.

Tribute To America

From Kentucky's Butcher Holler to San Francisco. "Of Thee We Sing" travels nationwide to capture great moments of music, comedy and human drama in a video collage of America. Clips of everyday Americans and an assembly of stars celebrate the diversity of our American experience. "Of Thee We Sing" airs Friday, March 20, at 8 p.m. on KET.

Hosted by Mike Farrell (from the TV series "M*A*S*H"), "Of Thee We Sing" chronicles the Weavers reunion concert at Carnegie Hall; visits the Father of Gospel Music, Thomas Dorsey, in Detroit; follows Loretta Lynn in a visit to her native Butcher Holler; and profiles thousands of San Franciscans raising their voices together for Handel's "Messiah."

"Of Thee We Sing" salutes the uniquely American sport of baseball with a Little League team and the hilarious Abbott and Costello comedy sketch "Who's On First."

From the exuberance of a small-town parade to a somber remembrance at Washington, D.C.'s Vietnam Memorial, the special shares scenes from recent history. Included are excerpts from "NOVA's" "One Small Step." "Of Thee We Sing" showcases Tim Sample's special brand of Maine humor; shows choreographer Jacques d'Amboise teaching schoolchildren to dance in New York City; and features Bob and Ray's newly published spoof "The History of the United States."

"Of Thee We Sing" is produced by Creative Television Associations.

TeleFund '87 Presents Mystery-Lovers Delight

An evening of "who-done-it" delight for fans of the public television series "Mystery!" takes place when KET presents two episodes of this popular series back-to-back during TeleFund '87.

Continue in the adventures of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's master of deductive reasoning when he investigates two hours of crime Saturday, March 21, beginning at 8 p.m. on KET.

The two cases, "The Priory School" and "The Six Napoleons," are part of "The Return of Sherlock Holmes" series of "Mystery!"

In "The Priory School," a duke's son is abducted. Holmes discovers that the school's German master also is missing. A death on the lonely moors and a startling discovery about the duke's past occur before the boy is returned.

An Italian vendetta becomes strangely irrelevant with the seemingly irrelevant destruction of six busts of Napoleon. However, more is at stake than a lady's honor in "The Six Napoleons" which follows at 9 p.m.

Jeremy Brett, hailed by critics as the "best Sherlock ever," leads the cast with Edward Hardwicke as Dr. Watson. "The Return of Sherlock Holmes" series begins after Holmes supposedly fell to his death in a fight with his archenemy, Professor Moriarty. Public outcry resulted in Doyle's revival of the detective.

"Mystery!" is presented by WGBH/Boston.

Vets' Rep Coming

Jack D. Clark, a representative of the Kentucky Center for veterans affairs, will be at the National Guard Armory here, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., on Wednesday, March 4, to assist veterans and their families in making claims.

Interchurch Prayer Services Scheduled

The Floyd County Ministerial Association will have for the second year an interchurch prayer service to celebrate World Day of Prayer and the Week of Prayer for Christian Unity. The prayer service will be held at St. Martha Catholic Church on Sunday, March 1, at 7 p.m. All area churches and pastors are invited to participate. The Rev. Ron Masters, pastor of Community United Methodist Church, will be the speaker at the worship service. A combined choir composed of singers from the churches will sing under the direction of Gus Galos of the First Baptist Church, with one rehearsal for this choir taking place on Thursday, February 26, at 8 p.m. at St. Martha Church.

World Day of Prayer is celebrating its centennial this year, and has been observed for many years locally under the auspices of Prestonsburg Local Church Women. They will join in the local observance and provide a reception afterwards where members of the various churches can fellowship together. In addition to the combined choir and congregational singing, the Wesley Bell Choir of the First United Methodist Church will present special music.

All Christians in the community are invited to share in this opportunity to come together to express our unity in Christ.

PALLBEARERS LISTED

Pallbearers for the funeral services of Dewey Banks were Scotty Hamilton, Charles Branham, Kyth Banks, Doug Johnson, Zack Rogers, John McIntosh, Roger Tackett, Kevin Meade, Glenn Mullins and John Bradford.

No Funds, No Staff Said To Hamper RR Commission

RAILROAD COMMISSIONER Jimmy Gabe Turner and the Commission's legal counsel, Raymond Kirk, investigate illegal dumping on the Chessie System right-of-way. Complaints by residents of Oklahoma Creek spurred the January investigation.

"No staff, no funds, no cooperation from the other state agencies," is how Jimmy Gabe Turner describes his handicaps as state railroad commissioner.

The Kentucky Railroad Commission, in its annual report to Governor Martha Layne Collins and the General Assembly called for more funding to adequately do its job. According to the report, the commission last year investigated 301 complaints, mostly about non-enforcement of safety regulations, and conducted 62 hearings.

Numerous complaints related to grade crossings, the report said. They varied from ineffective safety equipment, rough and hazardous grade crossing approaches, and a lack of safety equipment at many crossings. The commission estimates that as many as one-third of the grade crossings throughout the state are inadequate or unsafe.

Also cited were unsafe bridge structures within the right-of-ways of rail carriers. Turner said the majority of bridge structures in the state have not been maintained or repaired in as many as 25 years.

Turner, who was first elected to the railroad commission in 1975 and now serves as its chairman, said his problems stem from a lack of money to effectively oversee the nine railroads operating in Kentucky. He said they've been budgeted only $78,400 for the year while they have the job of investigating safety law violations, inspecting 3,354 miles of track and 500-800 bridge structures, besides regulating intrastate tariffs.

The Railroad Commission was created under the state constitution of 1892 and is comprised of a three-member board. It has one fulltime executive secretary and a non-paid legal counselor. Raymond Kirk, a Lexington attorney, has served as the commission's legal counsel for three years. The commissioners are paid $3,000 a year. Turner, as chairman, receives $3,600.

The commission has intervened in rail abandonments before the Interstate Commerce Commission. Turner said that about 50 percent of abandonments are unwarranted and could be denied if additional funding was available for intervention. Based on a survey of county judge-executives, there is a strong correlation between abandonment of tracks in each community and a rise in unemployment, he said.

Turner said the commission attempted to launch a comprehensive tariff regulation program aimed at reducing charges for shippers, especially coal shippers. But a legislative subcommittee vetoed the program, saying the cost—$21,000—was a waste of money.

According to Turner, Kentucky is without an effective hazardous waste rail regulation and the safety federal enforcement of laws has been lax. There has been an increase in hazardous waste shipments, even as railroads are more poorly maintained, Turner said. With utilities building more nuclear reactor facilities, the transportation of hazardous waste material will double within seven years, he estimated.

The commission shares the responsibility of regulating the railways with the Transportation Cabinet's Rail Division yet, Turner said, there is little cooperation between the two agencies and his budget is dwarfed by the rail division's. "The department of transportation spends more on toilet tissue than what we get," Turner said.

The Railroad Commission can't enforce safety laws without the support of the Attorney General's office, Turner said. Last year when the C&O line laid off 16 safety inspectors, the commission ordered them put back to work. The railroad refused and because the Attorney General's office wouldn't sue, the workers were never rehired. "The railroads don't want a watchdog agency over them," Turner said. "They want to regulate themselves."

"We would like to work hand in hand with the other departments, but there's been no cooperation or coordination between the offices," Turner said. He would like to see the commission's authority strengthened and public pressure put on the legislature to increase funding for the panel. "It's our job to protect the health and safety of the people of Kentucky, but we can't do the job without more funding and manpower. And that's all there is to it," he said.

In 1985, about 905,000 Hispanic families were maintained by women. More than half of these families had incomes in 1984 which placed them below the U.S. poverty level, compared with 35 percent of all families maintained by women, according to "Women of Hispanic Origin in the United States Labor Force," a publication of the Women's Bureau of the U.S. Department of Labor.

Grade Schools Aid Leukemia Program

The following elementary schools will participate in the Leukemia Society, Kentucky Chapter, "Pennies for Patients" program by collecting pennies and small change during the months of February and March:

Auxier Elementary School, McDowell Elementary School, Harold Elementary School, Melvin Elementary School, Bonanza Elementary School, Wayland Elementary School, W.D. Osborne Elementary School, J.M. Stumbo Elementary School, Charles Clark Elementary School, Garrett Elementary School, Prater Elementary School, Martin Elementary School, Allen Elementary School.

The "Pennies for Patients" program is designed to allow young children to become aware that even pennies can help other children who are suffering from this devastating disease.

Each elementary school which raises over $25 will receive free coupons from a local fast food restaurant.

With its contributions, the Leukemia Society supports research on new and better treatments for leukemia, and on a cure for the dreaded disease that killed 576 Kentuckians last year. Additionally, the Leukemia Society provides financial assistance and counseling to leukemia patients and their families.

Leukemia kills more children between the ages of two and fifteen than any other disease. It kills more adults than children. People over 60 are most often affected, and more men than women. This year, 64,000 Americans will contract leukemia, or related blood diseases and 37,000 others will die from these diseases. There is no known way to prevent leukemia, but it can be treated effectively.

1986 TAX FILING TIPS

It's tax return filing time once again. Check these often-overlooked deductions, credits, and tax breaks to be sure you do not miss any on your return.

- Choose the best filing status for your situation. Usually that means filing a joint return if you're married, but in some circumstances, separate returns can save you money.
- Make your 1986 IRA contribution and take your deduction for it. The new rules on IRAs don't affect 1986 returns.
- Consider electing out of installment treatment on long-term capital gains sales. You may save money by paying taxes on all the gain under 1986 rules that still have the long-term capital gains deduction.
- If you had more than one job in 1986, watch for overpaid social security tax.
- Don't overlook income averaging if your income jumped in 1986. It's still available for your 1986 return.
- Get the most out of this final year for the sales tax deduction. If you made large purchases, you can deduct the tax paid on these items in addition to the amount allowed in the IRS tables.
- You can exclude $200 of dividend income on a joint return, $100 on a single return.
- If both you and your spouse work, don't miss the marriage penalty deduction that allows you to take a deduction of 10% of the lower earning spouse's income up to a maximum deduction of $3,000.
- Dig out the details on all 1986 charitable contributions. They're 100% deductible this year even if you don't itemize.
- Don't miss any credits. Some examples: political contributions credit, dependent care credit, credit for the elderly.

If you were an early filer and realize now that you've missed something on your return, remember that you can file an amended return for up to three years. You should consider doing so if the dollars involved warrant it.

PC To Host Mine Mapping Workshop

The Pikeville College Coal Center, in conjunction with several state and federal mining offices, will offer a two-day workshop in mine surveying and mapping accuracy on March 4-5. Sponsoring organizations are concerned about hazards due to mining with inaccurate or incomplete mapping information. They offer this workshop at no cost as a step toward improving the information and decreasing the hazards. Although exact data is not available, many mine incidents can be attributed to inaccurate or incomplete mapping. Ben Ward, head of the Pikeville College Mining Technology Program and one of the workshop coordinators, has already confirmed that more than 70 people have already signed up to participate in this conference.

According to John Stephens, Pikeville College mining technology instructor and conference coordinator, there are several objectives for the workshop, chief among them being the need to improve mine mapping and accuracy skills so that there will not be a need for further governmental regulation of the mining industry. In addition, the workshop will discuss industry legal and technical surveying/mapping requirements, provide the opportunity to see state-of-the-art equipment, and to discuss services and information sources currently available to mine engineers, surveyors and operators.

Day one of this two-day workshop will take place in the Armington Science-Learning Center at Pikeville College, with registration at 8:00 a.m. Speakers include Commissioner Willard Stanley and others from the Kentucky Department of Mines & Minerals, Hargis Ison and Jim Shumate from the Mine Safety and Health Administration (MSHA), and speakers from the Kentucky Geological Society, and the Kentucky Department of Surface Mine Reclamation. Topics include "Mine Inundation and Case Histories", "Ventilation Map Accuracy", and "Review of Mines and Minerals Map Requirements." There is also a question and answer period set aside at the conclusion of the day for any additional information required.

The workshop will change locations on the second day, meeting at the Mayo State Vocational-Technical School simulated mine at Betsy Layne, Kentucky. This follow-up will provide a hands-on workshop on underground survey control, and a demonstration on underground mine survey control and equipment.

The mine surveying and mapping accuracy workshop is being presented by Pikeville College Coal Center in conjunction with the following offices and businesses: the Kentucky Department of Mines & Minerals, MSHA, Kentucky Department of Surface Mine Reclamation, Kentucky Geological Society, Mayo State Vocational-Technical School, Chapparral Coal Corporation, Lynn Blueprint & Supply Company, and Johnson Industries.

For more information about this workshop, or for a program brochure, contact John Stephens at the Pikeville College Mining Technology Program office, (606) 432-9364; or Dwayne Hall at Mayo State Voch-Tech School, (606) 478-2644. Pre-registration for this conference is permitted.

Ballet Classes In P'burg, Pikeville

Prestonsburg Community College is offering a series of classes designed for those interested in ballet. Children's pre-ballet will stimulate creativity through movement, strengthen major muscle groups, develop coordination and prepare the dancer for formal ballet training. Classes for 3-5 year olds begin at the Pikeville center on March 10 and on the Prestonsburg campus March 24.

Basic ballet will focus on beginning positions and steps. As the class progresses, jumps, leaps, and short combinations will be added. The classes are excellent workouts for those persons interested in developing posture, grace and coordination.

Intermediate Ballet is a continuation of the study of classic ballet. Pointe Technique is a study of the fundamentals of pointe work.

Classes at the Pikeville center for ages 5-adult begin March 10. Call 432-5694 to pre-register. Classes on the Prestonsburg campus for ages 6 and over begin March 26. Call 886-3863, ext. 215 to pre-register.

H&R BLOCK STARTS GOLD RUSH

H&R Block announced its unique "Gold Rush" program today. Block preparers will "dig" for overlooked deductions, credits and other items on income tax returns of up to three years ago.

Block reports that thousands of taxpayers overpay their taxes each year and are unaware of it. The Block Gold Rush program is designed to find that overlooked money and put more tax dollars back into taxpayer's hands. Because it is possible to amend returns as far back as three years, any overpaid taxes can be regained for those three years.

Block encourages everyone to have their returns checked. If a Block preparer finds an overlooked deduction, credit, etc., he or she will compute your tax savings and prepare the necessary forms (including federal, state and local forms) to claim a refund, for a reasonable one-time fee.

If a Block preparer doesn't find any "gold" for you, there is no charge for reviewing your past returns and have the satisfaction of knowing you haven't overpaid your taxes. Block invites everyone to join the gold rush for tax money.

For a no obligation tax return review, call or stop in, today, at one of our offices at the locations listed below.

English Teachers Form New Chapter, Plan Conference

Twelve language-arts teachers from Floyd county met Saturday, Feb. 21, to organize the first eastern Kentucky chapter of the National Council of Teachers of English, and to plan a writing conference for teachers of this area which will be held at Prestonsburg Community College on April 25.

The officers elected Saturday were Monnette Sturgill, of PCC, president; Patricia Watson, of Allen Central High School, vice-president; Alice Adams, of PCC, secretary; and Delores Reichenback, of Maytown Elementary, treasurer.

The purpose of organizing a local chapter is to improve student writing in this area by holding conferences twice a year where teachers may share their knowledge and techniques, according to Adams. Since the conferences will be held at PCC or at other schools in the 22-county eastern Kentucky area, she said, those who want to attend will not have far to travel. Previously, the only local chapter in Kentucky was the Greater Louisville Council of the national organization.

The new local chapter will begin work immediately by arranging for speakers at the April conference on the subjects of writing, speech and literature. Anyone who wishes to present a workshop or program at that conference may submit a one-page summary of the proposed presentation to Adams, at PCC, by March 21.

Also at Saturday's meeting, committees were appointed to organize the conferences, set up a data file for local teachers of language arts, and arrange a writing contest for area students, planned for next fall.

The local chapter, which will be called the Eastern Kentucky Council, is open to teachers at all grade levels from first grade through college, Adams said. About 20 teachers already have joined, including two from outside Floyd county.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Calvin Reynolds expresses their appreciation to all who were so kind to him during his long illness. A special thank you to the nursing home that took care of him so well, and we thank everyone who brought food and sent flowers. We especially thank the ministers, Johnny Hall and the Hall Funeral Home for their kindness, support and services, and Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Mitchell who helped so much. Thank you all for your kindness and sympathy.

Celebrates 150th Anniversary...
Kentucky Baptist Convention Matures In Conflict

While Kentuckians celebrate the Commonwealth's 200th anniversary, Kentucky Baptists will celebrate another anniversary: 150 years of organized cooperation in Christian ministry. In 1837, the General Association of Baptists in Kentucky, now called the Kentucky Baptist Convention, got started. Since then, the denomination has grown from 500 to almost 2300 churches. Membership has shot up from 35,000 to nearly 800,000. But the Convention had to grow up hard amid great conflict.

In the early 1800s Alexander Campbell, a convert to the Baptist denomination, published a newspaper that was widely circulated in Kentucky. It slowly became apparent that Campbell was using the paper to attack everything practiced by the Baptists which had no biblical mandate, such as Sunday schools, paid ministry and missionary work.

Baptists took sides on the issue, and from 1830 through 1832, nearly 10,000 of their 45,000 members renounced traditional doctrine to adopt Campbell's views. In many churches, giving to missions was denounced as a breach of fellowship. Many ministers were excluded from their own churches.

Several Baptist associations sprang up throughout Kentucky. They tried to communicate through circular letters and publications, however they found it almost impossible to maintain close contact.

Unity among Baptists was absolutely necessary to withstand the threat of Campbellism. In 1830 the idea of a Kentucky Baptist association began to surface. Auxiliaries formed, the first of which was the Frankfort Association in 1831. The following year, three auxiliaries and several churches sent a total of 34 messengers to Bardstow, to form the Kentucky Baptist Convention. The Convention messengers raised almost $200 and adopted a constitution. Seven months later they met in New Castle, to adopt some rules.

Although several more meetings were conducted, by 1837 the Convention members realized something more was needed to unite the denomination in Kentucky. They saw a need for supplying preachers to areas where they were in short supply, for raising and distributing funds, and for embarking on missionary endeavors. Unfortunately, anti-mission sentiment begun by Campbell had taken its toll. The fledgling Convention faltered and failed.

Undaunted, the Baptists regrouped. On Oct. 20, 1837, they met in Louisville to form the General Association of Baptists in Kentucky to replace the Convention. Twenty ordained ministers, one licensed preacher and 36 laymen representing nine of the 43 independent associations in the state attended the organizational meeting. Despite the low number of associations represented, each major district of the state sent a delegate, with Long Run (Louisville) and Russell Creek (Greensburg/Columbia) showing the strongest representations.

This General Association of Baptists adopted a constitution with 12 articles (later reduced to 10). They also passed a resolution designed to encourage the financial support of pastors, induce harmony among the churches, encourage more preaching in destitute areas, tap into the energy of the denomination, build educational facilities for future ministers, and support foreign missions.

Schisms in the Convention, the lack of emphasis on missions and skepticism about paid ministers created a bleak situation. Of the 500 churches in the state, only 200 had any preaching at all. Of the 200 preachers, a mere one-third preached on a regular basis. Only one church in the entire state had a full-time pastor on a regular salary. Pastors usually held a week-day job to support themselves. They had little energy left on Sundays to preach. One man who pastored four churches reportedly worked so hard he had time to read a chapter in his Bible only once every two months.

At first the association encouraged churches to pay their ministers so they would stay in the area, but the anti-missionary Baptists continued to oppose them. Mission funds decreased from 1838 through 1842.

In 1837, however, a great revival broke out in Louisville. The revival spread throughout the state until 1843. In one church, alone, 637 people were baptized. Due to this revival, the Association survived its crisis years and the mission-minded Baptists carved out a permanent niche for themselves.

A pattern began to form in which independent Baptist movements would undertake a cause; when the work grew too large for the local body to handle, they turned it over to the association. In this manner the work of the association grew while the independent efforts turned to new programs.

The association that so began has since been renamed the Kentucky Baptist Convention. It serves a variety of functions for its 800,000 members who will celebrate 150 years of service in Kentucky, this year.

Number Is Key To Protection

A person's Social Security number is his or her key to future protection against loss or reduction of income because of retirement, disability, or death. Jim Kelly, Social Security District Director for the Big Sandy area, said recently.

This is because future Social Security benefits will be based on the record of earnings kept under the name and number shown on the Social Security card during a person's working lifetime. A person should always show his or her Social Security card to his or her employer when starting a new job to make sure records are correctly kept, Kelly said.

Many people have the same name, but each person has his or her own Social Security number which singles out that record from more than 200 million others.

A person should keep a record of his or her number in a safe place. Then, if the card is lost, there will be a record so the person can apply for a new card. A person can apply for a new card by mail. Just call any office and ask for an application. When it is received, it should be filled out according to instructions and mailed along with evidence of identity back to Social Security. A list of the documents that are acceptable as evidence of identity is included with the application. The evidence will be returned. Immigration and Naturalization Documents should not be mailed.

A new card, with the same number, will be mailed to the person about two weeks after the application and acceptable evidence of identity are received.

A person who changes her or his name should also apply for a new card. Evidence showing both the old and new names is required.

It is against the law to use another person's Social Security number. It is also against the law to use a Social Security number obtained by giving false information on the application.

More information about Social Security numbers can be obtained at the Big Sandy Area Social Security office located on U.S. 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville. The telephone number is listed in your local telephone directory under U.S. Government.

Thunderstorms Can Be Lethal, Costly Is Message Of Storm Awareness Week

The National Weather Service reports that 66 persons have been killed in Kentucky by the lightning associated with severe thunderstorms between the years of 1959 and 1986.

Across the United States each year thunderstorms will kill more than 100 persons and injure about 250, most of them casualties from lightning. Property losses from severe storms nationwide are estimated in the hundreds of millions of dollars annually.

To focus public attention on the dangers of severe storms, Kentuckians are being asked to observe a Severe Storm Awareness Week this year March 2-6.

Throughout the year, several government agencies including the state Division of Disaster and Emergency Services work with local schools and civic organizations to bring attention to ways deaths, injuries and property damage can be avoided.

Part of the educational program rests on an understanding of what causes severe weather and what such storms are all about. The National Weather Service, working through its offices in Kentucky, is constantly striving to inform the public of the dangers of severe storms.

Here is how severe thunderstorms are generated:

Temperature imbalances in the atmosphere cause violent air currents. Warming of an air layer near the earth's surface and/or cooling of the air layer above places warmer, lighter air layers below colder, denser layers.

The difference in air temperature between layers sets up convection currents in the air that become very strong. These are accompanied by the creation of certain very dense cloud formations, called cumulonimbus, or thunderstorm clouds.

In their final stages of growth, thunderstorm clouds may be several miles across at their bases. They often tower to altitudes of 40,000 feet or more, sometimes visible as lonely giants. At other times, while moving several abreast, they occur as what is called a squall line.

Storm cells are formed within the clouds and most last for only about 20 minutes before dying out, but then new ones are formed and the storm may possibly continue for several hours, moving along a path, and reforming itself.

Below and in front of storm cells, strong gusts of cold wind from the downdrafts of air, or heavy precipitation in the form of rain or hail, often occur at ground level. Lightning always accompanies a thunderstorm.

To complicate matters further, a thunderstorm system also may be associated with tornadoes. Straight line winds, downbursts, hail, and flash floods also are produced by thunderstorms and any or all can be brought on by just one storm. All of these occur in all parts of Kentucky.

Hailstones are lumps of ice that form during some thunderstorms. They range from pea size to possibly the size of a grapefruit. They are usually round, but may also be conical, or irregular in shape. Hail is most devastating to crops but can also cause damage to aircraft, automobiles, roofs and windows.

"Flash floods" can result from the locally heavy rain associated with thunderstorms. In 1985 in several locations in western Kentucky, flash flooding caused problems that had not happened in memory. However, the eastern region of the state is particularly affected by flash floods.

Along the leading edge of the thunderstorm system sometimes there are damaging "straight line" winds that may seem to have been caused by a tornado. This is because such winds can be just as great as a strong tornado, and may come with a roaring sound similar to tornado noises.

Downbursts may be of varying sizes, but they occur when the entire thundercloud drops from its towering height, and impacts on one place. If the downburst is a large one, it is called a "macro" downburst, while smaller ones are called "micro" downbursts.

The very real threat of death, injury and destruction makes it imperative that severe thunderstorms be taken just as seriously as tornadoes.

In the average year, tornadoes in the United States can claim about 100 lives and cause millions of dollars in damage. However, although there were 762 tornadoes counted in the United States last year, the 15 deaths nationwide caused by tornadoes is the lowest death figure since 1916.

From 1916 through last year, Kentucky experienced 322 tornadoes. In the same span, the state recorded 101 tornado deaths. In 1986 alone there were 10 tornadoes in the commonwealth, and while no one was killed, the injured numbered 28 statewide.

The worst tornado damage last year occurred March 10 in southeast Lexington and Fayette County. The same day brought a series of damaging downbursts in the counties of northern Kentucky.

The typical path of a tornado is about 50 yards wide and a few miles long. The destructive winds of the tornado can exceed 200 miles an hour.

Lightning always is a greater threat to loss of life and personal injury than tornadoes. From 1959 through 1986, the National Weather Service recorded 66 deaths from lightning, with 159 other injuries, with two deaths and eight injuries from lightning coming in 1986 alone.

The storm season in the commonwealth is a longer one than in many parts of the country, usually beginning about April and sometimes lasting through September.

Kentuckians are reminded to keep a close eye to the sky and monitor daily the possibilities of such a system in their area.

HONORED ON 50TH ANNIVERSARY
 Frank and Audrey Dotson Arnett were recognized on their 50th wedding anniversary, February 15, by the congregation of the Community United Methodist Church. Their four children, Mrs. Minerva Branham, Dr. Charles Arnett, Mrs. Sandi Cooley, and Mrs. Jan Wells, as well as other family members, attended the services with them. A large arrangement of red and white carnations was placed in the sanctuary of the church in their honor from members of their family. Mr. and Mrs. Arnett, who were married on Feb. 13, 1937, and reside on the Abbott Road, enjoyed lunch at May Lodge, following the services.

In Ireland it was once considered a good idea to wear an arrow head as protection against elves. It always worked, too.

Abbott Homemakers Hold Regular Meeting

The Abbott Homemakers met Tuesday, February 10, at 7 p.m. in the church annex, there, with Mrs. Sharon Sparr presiding. In the absence of Mrs. Christine Rose, secretary-treasurer, these reports were given by Mrs. Patsy Brown. The lesson on Scherenschnitte (paper cutting) was presented by Mrs. Frances Pitts, Floyd county home economist. Each member was given a pattern to cut, and return at the March meeting.

Present were Frances Pitts, Sharon Sparr, Jeanie Spradlin, Ethel Ratliff, Exilee Hill, Ruby Hall, and new members, Ruth Wright, Thelma Merritt, Marlene Blevins, and Patsy Brown. The next meeting will be Tuesday evening, March 10, at 7 o'clock with Mrs. Exilee Hill, hostess.

Local Church Women Hold Breakfast Meet

Members of the Local Church Women's organization were entertained with a breakfast, Friday morning, February 20, at the home of Mrs. Eva Collins.

Small tables, covered with pastel cloths, held vases of mixed flowers arranged by Mrs. Gorman Collins, Jr. Seated at these tables and the churches which they represented were Mesdames Eileen Burchett and Mabel Donahoe, St. Martha Catholic; the Rev. and Mrs. Tim Jessen, and son, Chris, First Presbyterian; Jean Burke, Community United Methodist; Julia Stephens, Jane Wallace, Dot Marshall, Mabel Jean LeMaster, and Hope Whitten, First United Methodist; the Rev. Steve Hopkins, Lucy Regan, Rebecca Rasnick, Zella Archer, Julia Curtis, Dorothy Osborne, Myrtle Allen, Dolly Pettrey, Maman Leslie, and Docia Woods, of the First Baptist (Irene Cole Memorial). Mrs. Collins was assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Mary K. Willis.

Following the breakfast, Mrs. Eileen Burchett, president, conducted a business session. The devotions were given by Mrs. Lucy Regan, and prayer was offered by the Rev. Tim Jessen. Mrs. Dorothy Osborne, secretary, read the minutes of the last meeting. The drug problem was discussed, and Mrs. Burchett expressed the hope of getting a film on drugs to be shown to various groups.

Due to the building program at the First Baptist Church (Irene Cole Memorial) the Holy Week services scheduled to be held there the week before Easter will be held instead at the First United Methodist Church and the Methodist Women will be in charge of serving food at that time.

The Loaves and Fishes Food Pantry was discussed at length, with Rev. Steve Hopkins, president, and Rev. Tim Jessen, past president of the Prestonsburg Ministerial Association bringing suggestions from their organization, which co-sponsors this project.

It was announced that a Prayer Service for Christians would be held at St. Martha Catholic Church, March 1, at 7 p.m., and that light refreshments for this event would be furnished by the women of the various churches.

Due to Holy Week Services, the next meeting will be held Friday, April 10, at 10:30 a.m., with the women of the Community United Methodist Church as hostesses.

VISITS GRANDDAUGHTERS

Mrs. May K. Roberts spent Thursday through Sunday last week in Pikeville, where she visited with two of her granddaughters, Misses Elizabeth and Sarah Baird, while their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. J. Baird, III, attended a Christian Athletic Convention at the Marriott Hotel in Lexington.

Jenny Wiley A.A.R.P. Holds Dinner Meeting

Members of the Jenny Wiley Chapter, American Association of Retired Persons, held their monthly dinner meeting, Friday, February 20, at 5 p.m., at the Highlands Regional Medical Center, with the president, James E. Goble, presiding.

Prior to the dinner, members of the A.A.R.P.'s Executive Board held a brief session, during which job training for senior citizens was discussed.

Mr. Goble welcomed new members. Following the dinner, the minutes of the last meeting were read by Mrs. Eva Hale, who, with her husband, Harmison Hale, discussed the New Income Tax forms and gave out pamphlets pertaining to these.

Miss Ruby Akers said that Col. Strather W. Hawkins, State Legislative Chairman of A.A.R.P., would be the speaker at the Floyd County Retired Teachers' meeting, to be held at May Lodge, March 19. Mr. Goble, presented Mrs. Jane Bond, who substituted for Earl Compton, Director of the Floyd County Health Department, as speaker for the evening. Mrs. Bond, Health Educator for the past six years, told of the many services rendered by the health department. She said that, although tuberculosis had for several years been thought to have been abolished, and with no T.B. hospitals now remaining in Kentucky, this disease was presently making a come-back.

A question-and-answer period followed, and pamphlets were made available.

Mr. Goble announced that the next executive board meeting will be held at 4:30 p.m., March 20, at the same location, with the regular dinner meeting following, at 5 p.m. All members and prospective members are urged to attend.

Attending Friday's meeting were James E. Goble, Marie Goble, Harmison Hale, Eva Allen Hale, Dorothy Osborne, Myrtle Allen, May K. Roberts, Lucy Regan, "Toots" Parsley, Sally Goble, Ruby Akers, Roberta Sloan, Jane Bond, Docia Woods, Maman Leslie, Rebecca Rasnick, Anna V. Elkins, Louise Elkins, Pauline Foley, W.T. Foley, Bill Pettrey, Dolly Pettrey, Gladys Cooley, Orville Cooley, Elva Spradlin, Herbert Spradlin, Julia Curtis, Henry Curtis and Grady Spradlin.

VISITS IN BRISTOL, TENN.

Mrs. Elizabeth Ramey was in Bristol, Tennessee last weekend, where she visited her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George McClellan, and their children, Jay and Susan Elizabeth.

VISIT PARENTS

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Spradlin and daughter, Jennifer, of Lexington, were here during the weekend for a visit with her mother, Mrs. T.J. Leake, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Spradlin, and other relatives.

Miss Salyers, Mr. Petry Are Wed

Miss Bridget Renee Salyers, daughter of Mrs. Betty Jo Salyers and the late Paul Salyers, and Mr. Chester Ray Petry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Ray Petry, were united in marriage during a candlelight ceremony November 15, at the Little Paint First Church of God. The ceremony was officiated by Minister Ronnie Hupp of the First Christian Church of Lexington.

Miss Dana Bentley presided over the guest book and greeted guests with wedding programs. Instrumental music was provided by Miss Kim Hughes and Mrs. Terri Brown. Vocalists were Sharon and Wayne May and Steve and Robin Hall.

As the traditional wedding processional was played, the bride was escorted and given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Ralph Elkins. The bride's gown was a feminine look with a classic balance of ivory Alencon lace and organza. The high lace collar and deep v'd yoke governed the molded bodice of lace and beads. The plunging back neckline displayed the tiny buttons of the bodice and tapered puff sleeves which consisted of a swirled layer of beaded blossom design. The gown sparkled by a glitter of beaded appliques on the full skirt of organza that flowed into a full court train.

The matching ivory Alencon lace headpiece displayed a dazzle of beads which rested on the bride's forehead and gave way to the cathedral length illusion veil. The bouquet was of ivory roses, lilies, and baby's breath.

Miss Tammy Kay White and Miss Leslie Goff were maids of honor. Bridesmaids were April Stephens, Sharon Lake, Leshia Matney, Susan Ellis, Paula McGuire and Lisa Dunn, and the junior bridesmaid was Paige Perdue. Train bearers were Kerry Elizabeth Campbell and Amy Jo

Stephens, and the flowergirl was Aliena Nelson. The bridesmaids wore full length dresses of tea satin with square necklines, draped puffed sleeves and a brush train with back pickup bows. Matching hats, accented by a back bow with nylon veil trimmed with sequins, were also worn.

The groom wore a solid ivory tuxedo, and groomsmen wore black tuxedos with matching teal bowties and cummerbunds. The bestmen were Tim Webb and Paul Baker. Groomsmen were Mark Westfall, Joe Campoy, Shawn Stephens, David Perdue, Greg Hicks and Randall Cline. The ringbearer was Justin Campbell.

The mother of the bride wore a full-length, teal-blue dress with matching accessories, and a wrist corsage of gardenias. The mother of the groom wore a full-length, dusty-rose dress with matching accessories, and a corsage of gardenias.

A reception was held following the ceremony in the church fellowship hall. A three-tiered, ivory and teal cake was displayed, with a fountain and four stairways leading to separate cakes extending on each side.

The bride is a graduate of Prestonsburg High School and Transylvania University. She is a member of Phi Mu Sorority and has done graduate work at the University of Kentucky.

The groom is a graduate of Prestonsburg High School, Prestonsburg Community College and the University of Kentucky College of Engineering. He is employed as an Electrical Engineer at David Taylor Naval Ship Research and Development Center in Annapolis, Maryland.

Following a wedding trip to Florida, the couple are residing in Annapolis.

Birdwatchers: Old Hobby, A New Trend

The little old lady in tennis shoes is fast disappearing, giving way to millions of bird watchers, now called "birders," who come in every category of age and profession and are still thrilled at the sight of a sapsucker.

The millions of dollars spent on bird guides, seed, and backyard feeders are testimony that "birding" is one of America's most booming pastimes, according to National Wildlife magazine, published bimonthly by the National Wildlife Federation.

A few facts prove the point:
 *More than 62 million Americans regularly put out seed in backyard feeders, according to a 1980 U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service study.
 *About 600,000 bird guides are sold in the United States each year, grossing approximately $18 million. At Houghton Mifflin publishers, the all-time best selling book on any subject is Roger Terry Peterson's "A Field Guide to the Birds," first published 52 years ago.

*Experts estimate that approximately 1.2 million tons of bird seed is sold annually in the United States.

*The North American Rare Bird Alert offers paying subscribers up-to-the-minute information about sightings of such rare birds as bananaquits, white-collared seedeaters, and flesh-footed shearwaters. A roster of 375 crack birders verifies sightings, and all the information is available via a computerized, 24-hour telephone hotline.

The modern-day birder, as devoted to his hobby as his yesteryear kin, has put technology to work. Optical advances have revolutionized the all-important binoculars. Ornithologist Peterson used four-power binoculars when he began bird watching more than 60 years ago. Today, some birders use Questars, scopes designed for astronomy. With those, according to Peterson, "You can see fleas on a phoebe."

Novices wanting to learn how to identify bird species can watch a 60-minute home video on the techniques of birding. And for the enthusiast with a home computer, specialized software is available to help compile lists of sightings.

Hard-core birders across the United States participate in so-called Big Days and Big Years, finding as many species as possible during a prescribed time. A few attempt "Big Sits," staying in one spot from dawn to dark and counting how many species of birds wing by. Some keep lists of birds seen on television or, as one Florida birder is said to do, of birds seen through the bathroom window.

Birding has even invaded the corporate boardroom. Last year, on an otherwise normal May day in New Jersey, 90 birders (divided into 23 teams with names like the "Bob-O-Links" and the "Sandy Hook Onlies") raced across the Garden State to see which team could spot the most species from one midnight to the next.

They had all gathered for the Second Annual World Series of Birding, and corporate sponsors were aflutter. One team, for example, wore matching windbreakers from the Nikon Company and drove a white Cadillac loaned by an auto dealer. Other birders sped around in a donated Saab Turbo or were sponsored by binocular makers like Bushnell and Zeiss. Proceeds from the event were donated to conservation projects.

Whether birders join their hobbyist colleagues for guided visits to birds around the world or make solo treks into the wilderness, the objective is the same: to see as many species in one year as possible. Although it is theoretically possible to see 836 species of birds in North America, no one has seen more than Benton Basham, an anesthetist from Chattanooga, Tenn., who ticked off 711 birds in his own Big Year battle in 1983.

But records are made to be broken. And legions of birders across the United States are aiming for Basham's benchmark.

Their enthusiasm was voiced by Father Thomas Pincelli of Our Lady of Guadalupe Church in Brownsville, Tex., who, recalling a spring day of birding in the Santa Ana National Wildlife Refuge, said, "We must have seen 70 species today. I was thankful to my Creator for allowing me to experience that."

Morehead State University Tops Off Phil Simms Day

Everyone tried to get in the act, and they almost did.

Martha Layne started the ball rolling by proclaiming Saturday as Phil-Simms Day across the Bluegrass state.

Grady, Chris, and Paul showed up later at Morehead State University, but Mr. Simms proved that football is bigger than politics in this state, and right now Phil Simms is the biggest thing football has to offer, at least in Morehead.

Inside MSU's Ellis T. Johnson basketball arena a large banner read, "Welcome Congressman Chris Perkins, Grady Stumbo, and Paul Patton."

But this was Phil Simms Day. None of these politicians gained any additional support during this night-all eyes were directed toward the Tennessee Tech bench. Not at the Tech bench, mind you, but beyond it.

To be exact, where Phil Simms and his wife were seated.

Twelve years ago, Simms began his Morehead State football career, and now had returned to his alma mater for a much deserved salute.

Several weeks ago MSU football coach Bill Baldrige began a campaign to get Simms' college number retired. Many weeks of speculation, expectation, and hard work had finally come true.

Politics wasn't the only attempted attention getter denied on this night. The first half of the MSU-Tech basketball game had been wished away.

After all Phil Simms was to make an appearance during halftime.

No one paid much attention to the fact that Bob McCann was tearing the goal down with an assortment of his patented monster jams. No one ever cared that the Eagles were off to a great start in breaking their four-game losing streak.

But over 6,500 people knew where Phil

Phil Simms

Simms was at all times. Reportedly three were busy finding out where he was registered.

"I spent five years here. I know that's one more than usual, but I liked it so much that I stayed an extra year," Simms said after it was all over.

"I've got so many fond memories of Morehead State and after returning tonight I know why, because the people here are so great."

"Morehead State will always be a part of me. I will never forget it."

Phil Simms, Morehead State will never forget you either.

After graduating from Louisville Southern High School, Simms elected to attend Morehead State University, maybe because no other schools showed much interest in his football ability, but probably because MSU showed the most.

Regardless of the reasons as to why the two got together, the combination has meant great things for both the school and the man.

Numbers won't tell what Simms has done for the small school of Eastern Kentucky. The Eagles won only 10 games during Phil Simms' four years as MSU's quarterback.

Pride is what the Super Bowl MVP has given to this virtually unknown school, and totally unknown community. Eagle Country has a son who is bigger than any professional athlete, at least in 1987.

Simms' personal numbers won't impress anyone either. Only once in four years did he throw more touchdown passes than interceptives, and only twice completed better than 50 percent of his passes.

Simms wasn't big in stats nor was he big in stature, but talent wasn't missing. The New York Giants were impressed enough to upset their fans and draft him.

Either the Giants knew something no other team knew, or they heard about Simms' junior season. That was his best season as an Eagle, throwing for 2,041 yards and 15 touchdowns.

For this, the unknown from Louisville suddenly became the talk of the Ohio Valley Conference. Simms was named the OVC's offensive player of the year, and all of a sudden wasn't unknown.

His senior season was a major disappointment. Simms threw almost twice as many interceptions as he did touchdowns, 11 and six, while completing only 92 passes.

But the Giants didn't care. Ray Perkins, then New York's head man, wanted Simms. He may have been the only one in the city who did, though.

Giants' fans were in an uproar over the selection. Who is Phil Simms, they all said. The networks and major papers even spelled Morehead incorrectly.

No one knew, but most importantly, no one understood why the New York organization would choose an unknown like this man.

They soon found out.

Phil Simms rapidly proved himself worthy to be a professional quarterback. In his rookie season, the man who came from a place somewhat different from New York City set this city ablaze.

Throwing 13 touchdowns, hitting on 506 of his attempts, and lighting a fire under his teammates impressed and changed many fans' opinions of Phil Simms.

New York City wasn't ready to adopt the new kid in town yet. Simms had a lean year in 1980 then suffered a shoulder injury in '81. 1982-83 weren't any better, knee injuries, limited his playing time thus only 13 passing attempts in both seasons, but Simms recovered. And, boy, did he ever recover.

The babyfaced boy from Kentucky proved to everyone just what kind of talent he had, leading the Giants to the playoffs, and a Super Bowl victory.

The Big Apple was now signing the adoption papers, but legalities stopped the move.

Phil Simms already belonged to someone, and he came home to them with open arms Saturday night.

SHORT SPORTS

The successful but turbulent coaching career of one Bobby Knight has taken an upward turn, of late, toward immortality.

The violent Indiana basketball coach has been recognized for his temper tantrums which have unfortunately overshadowed the fact that he may be college basketball's best coach.

Knight has been the most analyzed, and most criticized coach in college basketball, but all of a sudden Bobby Knight has become one of college basketball's most popular coaches.

A book, with the Indiana coach as the theme and plot, has reached the best-seller list, and Knight is rapidly climbing the all-time Big Ten coaching list.

With Indiana's win over Iowa, Saturday, Knight claimed his 200th Big Ten coaching win.

This number leaves him only 13 wins away from Piggy Lambert, a Hall of Fame coach of Purdue who holds the all-time victory record in the Big Ten.

Not only is Knight inching his way toward immortality, the controversial coach also has his team atop the conference standings and one notch below the nation's top ranking.

"String music in Lexington, Kentucky," made Joe Dean famous, but the next time this popular basketball analyst calls for string music it will be from his office rather than courtside.

Dean, who was known as the television voice of South Eastern Conference basketball, became famous for his call of SEC games but this past week, traded it all in for the Athletics Director position at LSU.

Among his other chores, Joe Dean served as president of the Converse Shoe Company and as a pretty good basketball player in the SEC, and particularly at Louisiana State University.

The curtain has been opened for Act I of the New York Mets' repeat performance from 1986's world series championship.

Southern California, Arizona, and South Florida have been invaded this week as professional baseball players prepare for spring training.

The Mets are baseball's defending champions, and began the first leg of that long journey back to the World Series as spring training officially opened yesterday.

If New York can get their players fully recovered from legalities then Acts II, III, and IV should include an Eastern Division title, playoff series championship, and World Series title.

The North Carolina Tar Heels, Saturday, clinched yet another Atlantic Coast Conference title with their 96-80 victory over 10th ranked Clemson.

So far this season, the Tar Heels are undefeated in ACC play with only two conference games remaining.

With the win, North Carolina also sewed up the top seed in the conference tournament.

Next Wednesday night district tournament action will begin in the 15th region. Both the winner and runnerup in each district will earn a spot in the regional tournament.

This year's tourneys will be held at Virgie and Phelps High Schools. The men's competition will take place in Virgie while the women will play at Phelps.

FIGHT FOR THE REBOUND: The Lady Bobcats and Sandy Flannery, 55, appear to have the better of this battle on the boards.

THE SPORTING TIMES

Throughout the region and all across the state high school basketball will soon take on a totally different meaning and determined purpose.

It's tournament time. The beginning of the second season for some, and the end of a preparatory pre-season for most.

All 64 districts will take to the hardwood next week in their final test as to who will represent them in the state's 16 regional tournaments.

Here in the 15th region, four district tournaments will be held, the 57th, 58th, 59th, and 60th. With 19 teams doing battle for only eight regional positions you can bet that no holds will be barred in these basketball free-for-alls.

Two of the regions four districts have the regular season seeding process which should give the better teams an inside track in the race to a regional tournament berth.

Unfortunately the other two districts have stubbornly refused to ban the draw system, sometimes forcing a first round contest between their district's two best teams.

If you want proof just take a look at the 57th district. Its four teams live and die with the tournament draw, and as a result the two best teams will not advance.

After working hard all season in preparation for the district tournament, Paintsville, Johnson Central, Magoffin

County, and Sheldon Clark hang their hopes not on their basketball ability, but who they pull out of the hat.

Magoffin County coach Danny Adams says he prefers the draw as opposed to the seeding process, and after this season even more.

Adams drew Sheldon Clark for their opening round game. The Cardinals is a team Magoffin County has beaten twice already this season.

On the other hand, the Hornets have lost two games to the Johnson Central Golden Eagles but now have a better chance of advancing to the regional tournament.

The Golden Eagles are faced with the task of beating Paintsville if they are to go beyond district tourney play.

Not all is lost for Johnson Central though. Forget that Central lost to Pikeville, and Paintsville beat the state's number two team, Clay County, this past weekend.

The Tigers are the more talented team, but they always seem to bring out the best in Johnson Central when the two teams hook up. Intensity and emotion is always high in this intown rivalry, and don't let an upset surprise you too much.

The 59th district also exercises the draw, but the situation is different here. Virgie is certainly the best team, but the rest of the district is close to even.

Millard didn't get much help from the

With Strong Mid-Game Show Betsy Layne Ties For First

A strange factor in the sport of basketball is a thing called momentum. Some people call it playing in spurts. When the momentum is going the spurt is good, when the momentum glove is on the other hand then a bad stretch is in order.

This momentum thing affects just about every team. At the same time every team has their spurts. Most teams either enjoy good or bad spurts, but then there is the Betsy Layne Lady Bobcats.

The Lady Bobcats do play in spurts, but instead of good and bad, they play good and better. During Wednesday's conference matchup with Prestonsburg, Betsy Layne demonstrated one of their better spurts.

For a stretch of over seven minutes, the Lady Bobcats held Prestonsburg scoreless while rolling up 12 points themselves.

With 1:56 remaining in the first half, April Stephens hit a short jumpshot to pull the Lady Blackcats to within two points, but that was the closest Prestonsburg would ever come in overtaking Betsy Layne.

The Lady Blackcats didn't score again until the 2:51 mark of the third quarter. During the same stretch, Betsy Layne, on impressive offensive showings from Sherry Parsons and Ladonna Parsons, turned a two-point advantage into a 37-23 bulge.

After Stephens canned the second quarter jumper, LaDonna Parsons answered with 1:07 remaining in the first half to give Betsy Layne a four-point lead.

Sherry Parsons continued the Lady Bobcat offensive avalanche, hitting on two outside jumpshots just before the second period ended, enabling Betsy Layne to take a 31-23 halftime lead.

The Lady Bobcat guard continued to lead the offensive way for Betsy Layne, opening second half scoring in the same fashion she had ended the first half, with two unanswered field goals.

With 3:05 showing on the third quarter clock, Ladonna Parsons scored her third and fourth points of the Betsy Layne run, upping their lead to 14 points.

From that point on, Prestonsburg matched Betsy Layne's output, but the damage had been done. The Lady Bobcats, in that seven-minute and three-second stretch, put all the distance between them and the Lady Blackcats they would need in walking away with a 58-44 victory.

In less than a fourth of the 32 minutes of playing time, Betsy Layne had done enough damage to turn back Prestonsburg, but Lady Bobcat coach Diane Robinson said several things came together for her squad Wednesday night. "Tonight we played a lot better than we did down there," Robinson said. "We controlled the boards, which we didn't do there. Sandy Hamilton's defense on Shon Burchett was a big key, and we got 14 points from Sherry Parsons, which is a season high for her."

"A combination of things went right for us tonight," Robinson continued. "Right now I think we are playing our best ball of the season which pleases me."

With their convincing win, the Lady Bobcats not only revenged in earlier loss at the hands of Prestonsburg, they also earned a share of the Floyd County Conference title.

Both Prestonsburg and Betsy Layne finished conference play with 7-1 records, thus sharing the title while earning a bye in the district tournament's opening round.

Finishing at the top of the conference standings isn't a position the Lady Bobcats are strangers to. Last season under Diane Robinson Betsy Layne won the title outright, as they did under Paul Tackett in 1984. In fact the Betsy Layne Lady Bobcats have won or shared the Floyd County Conference's title in each of the past five seasons.

The last time Prestonsburg finished first in the conference was in 1979 when Charles Collins led the Lady Blackcats to an outright title.

Although Prestonsburg is forced to share this year's honor with Betsy Layne, the Lady Blackcats surpassed most people's expectations and now have an inside track in reaching their first regional tournament since 1977.

With the first place tie, a drawing was held to determine who would have the tournament's top seed, and who would be faced with the possibility of playing Allen Central.

Whoever received the district tournament's second seed will have to play the winner of the third and fourth position. Most people have predicted a Lady Reb victory, a team, when healthy, that has proven themselves worthy opponents for both Prestonsburg and Betsy Layne.

INDIVIDUAL SCORING: Betsy Layne: LaDonna Parsons, 25; Sherry Parsons, 14; Tammy Hall, 13; Yolanda Keathley, 2; Sandy Hamilton, 2; Sandy Flannery, 2.

Prestonsburg: Paula Harris, 17; Shon Burchett, 11; Karen Frasure, 8; Amy Hicks, 4; April Stephens, 2; Carolyn Short, 2.

Martin's Offense, Vickers' Defense Lift Blackcats Over Betsy Layne

Prestonsburg forward David Martin played his usually strong offensive game, scoring a game high 17 points, and Cory Vickers added nine, plus several key steals late, as the Blackcats downed Betsy Layne, 42-40, in conference action Wednesday night.

With Betsy Layne already having clinched the Floyd County Conference title, Craynor Slone expected a possible letdown but thought his team might respond because of revenge motives.

Prestonsburg represented the only Floyd county team to have beaten the Bobcats this season. Slone said this might be enough to motivate his squad, but when it was all over the Blackcats became the only team to beat Betsy Layne twice this season.

"It's been that kind of year," Prestonsburg coach Jeff Riley said after the game. "People have beaten people they weren't supposed to beat and people have lost to people they weren't supposed to lose to."

Riley had no explanation as to the crazy fate this season has taken, but he can be sure of a couple of things, his team earned a share of second place in the conference, and his big men played a major part in the accomplishment.

Riley's 6'6" senior forward, David Martin, gave Prestonsburg a big offensive boost early, scoring six of his game high 17 points in the first quarter when the Blackcats took a 13-8 lead.

The early Prestonsburg advantage held up through the first half and into the third quarter, until Jimmy Stumbo, who led Betsy Layne with 14 points, hit a jumpshot with 5:07 remaining in the third stanza.

Stumbo's shot tied the game, and 30 seconds later Jamie Little gave Betsy Layne their first lead of the contest. The Bobcats couldn't build on that two-point advantage, however, mainly because of Martin's quick offensive burst.

Kept in check by Little's defensive play inside, Martin failed to score for over 13 minutes, but he caught fire just when Prestonsburg needed it most. After Betsy Layne took the lead, Martin responded with six points in less than two minutes as the Blackcats re-tied the game going into the final frame.

A close game is a rule rather than an exception for Betsy Layne, and Craynor Slone's crew has won more than they have lost in these kinds of affairs.

Slone's competition on this particular night, Jeff Riley, has often said, "keep Craynor in the game, and nine times out of 10, he'll win it."

However, with 6:04 remaining in the game, Stumbo connected on one of his patented jumpshots to give Slone and the rest of Betsy Layne a two-point advantage, but the Bobcats couldn't find the scoring range again until only 45 seconds remained.

On three separate trips down court, Betsy Layne fans watched as the Bobcats worked the basketball inside, only to see Prestonsburg's Cory Vickers force the turnover.

"Oh gosh," were Riley's words to describe the importance of Vickers' late defensive play. "He anticipated real well, and with his size just stepped into the passing lane."

While the Blackcat senior post man was busy playing defense, Prestonsburg was taking advantage of it on the other end of the court.

When, with 53 seconds left, Brent Music cashed in on a pair of free throws, the Blackcats found themselves up by six points.

Free throw shooting gave Prestonsburg their lead, but it also came close to giving them a defeat.

After hitting on eight of their first attempts, the Blackcats hit only two of their last six tries, giving Betsy Layne an opportunity to make a final run.

Sophomore guard Duran Newsome tossed in consecutive jumpers and Little added another to pull the Bobcats to within one point with only 14 seconds left.

Allen Central, Prestonsburg Looking Tough In Non-Conference Action

As Floyd county teams use the final few games to prepare for next week's district tournament, no one is looking better than the Allen Central Rebels.

Led by senior guard Roger Horne and senior center Stanton Bentley, Allen Central captured two wins this past week, and gave Hazard all they could handle for over 30 minutes.

Last Tuesday the Rebels handed a tough Johnson Central team one of their worst defeats in recent years, downing the Golden Eagles 88-68.

Roger Horne led Allen Central, who trailed at the half, with 32 points while Stanton Bentley played one of his better offensive games of the season, scoring 20 points.

Ronnie Ousley also got into the offensive act, adding 12 points, and sophomore Rady Martin hit twin digits with 10. Wednesday night the Rebels ran into some tougher competition in the form of the Hazard Bulldogs. Even so, Allen Central played a credible game, trailing the powerful Bulldogs by only six points with 1:38 left in the game.

About this time Johnny Martin threw on a full court press, and after it proved ineffective, the Rebels were forced to foul. Sending Hazard to the line is about as deadly as having to press them, thus a 81-65 Allen Central loss.

This defeat didn't slow the Runnin' Rebels though. Johnny Martin says his team is playing their best ball of the season, and the Whitesburg Yellow Jackets were the worst for it.

On the strength of Stanton Bentley's season high 27 points, the Rebels earned their second win of the season over Whitesburg. In their first meeting of the season, point guard Darrin Conn set an Allen Central single game assist record, dishing out a total of 19, but this night belonged to Bentley and freshman Joey Conn.

Conn poured in 19 points while Roger Horne scored 14 points as did Rady Martin. In Allen Central's three games, Horne scored a total of 70 points and Bentley showed signs of better things to come, accounting for a total of 61 points.

The Prestonsburg Blackcats is another Floyd county team enjoying success of late. Jeff Riley is still going to battle with some important troops missing, but he and the Blackcats have certainly made the best of a bad situation.

Guard Brian Wallace is missing from action as is Mark Tuttle, but this didn't keep Prestonsburg from defeating Magoffin County, Tuesday night.

Neither did a quick and painful whistle, two of them to be exact. After taking a big early lead, Riley watched as both David Martin and Cory Vickers join their coach on the bench, collecting three fouls each early in the second quarter.

Nevertheless, Vickers finished with a career high 21 points and David Martin scored 17 as the Blackcats downed Magoffin County, 51-40.

Riley has expected big things from Vickers, and lately the 6'4" senior has made his coach proud. In the Blackcats' victory over Powell County, Vickers hit a shot with four seconds left to give his team a 51-50 win.

David Martin scored 27 points in the winning effort as Vickers added 20. With the two victories Prestonsburg upped their record to 15-10.

Other than Allen Central and Prestonsburg, Wheelwright proved to be the only other county team to collect a win this past week.

Sandwiched between two losses to Millard, 43-42, Tuesday, and Middleboro, 57-52, Saturday, the Trojans upended Elkhorn City, 60-41, Friday night.

Johnny Isaac led Wheelwright to the win, scoring 20 points. Tony Hutton helped out offensively, scoring 14 points.

Isaac, Wheelwright's leading scorer and one of the top offensive players in the district, continued his consistent scoring punch, tossing in 21 against Millard and 20 against Middleboro.

After this past week's action, the Wheelwright Trojans drop their season record to 10-13.

Although the Betsy Layne Bobcats have lost three games in a row, they still hold bragging rights to the county's best overall record, 16-10, but the Bobcats fell this past week to strong competition.

Last Tuesday Betsy Layne fell victim to powerful Virgie, 47-45, in overtime, and later in the week lost their 10th game of the season, 64-58, to Belfry.

The McDowell Daredevils didn't enjoy much success either. Rick Hall says he gets the feeling that his team is just playing out the season, probably looking forward to the district tournament.

This could be one reason why the Daredevils lost on the road to Fleming-Neon. McDowell fell in yet another close contest, 67-66.

Brian Hall continued to shine, though. The senior guard tossed in a total of 25 points, while Dickie Joe Shannon added 14, and Lance Hall hit two-column scoring with 11.

As we prepare to say goodbye to another year of high school basketball, action is thin, but some tough non-conference matchups await county teams.

Allen Central will make a trip to Hazard, Friday, for another war with the Bulldogs. Thursday, McDowell will honor their seniors during festivities that night when the Daredevils will take on Millard.

Jeff Riley and the Prestonsburg Blackcats will wrap up their regular season Friday when they travel to Inez for a battle with Sheldon Clark. Wheelwright, Saturday night, will end their regular season plus playing the final game in Floyd county when they entertain Feds Creek.

MSU Misses Opportunity To Tie Middle In Ohio Valley

It is always nice to get much needed help, especially when it isn't expected, but without taking advantage of it, that help is all but non-existent.

The Morehead State University Eagles got some help in their quest of a share of the Ohio Valley Conference regular season title.

Coming into action Saturday night Morehead seemed all but out of the OVC race, trailing Middle Tennessee by two games.

But by the time the night ended the Eagles were in a position to once again challenge Middle's top conference position.

Morehead State did their part in staying in the race, they humbled lowly Tennessee Tech in Morehead. More importantly Eastern Kentucky handed Middle Tennessee their third OVC loss, setting the stage for Monday's Morehead-Middle contest.

Needing only a win at home to move to within one half game of front running MTSU, the Eagles failed to take advantage of their position.

After trailing 44-39 at halftime the Blue Racers took control of the basketball game with 8:37 left in this important conference matchup.

At that point in the game Middle tied the score at 64, then proceeded to outscore Morehead State 14-4 during the next five minutes and 13 seconds.

From their apparent death of Saturday to renewed life back to death, the Eagles took more turns than a ballerina. That final twist, though, was deadly. With the loss Morehead, 14-12 overall and 8-5 in the conference, threw away their final shot at an OVC title.

The win was Middle's second of the season over the Eagles, with the latter giving the Blue Raiders an Ohio Valley Conference regular season title. This is something new to Racer fans. Middle, although they shared the title twice before, had won only one outright title, at least until they defeated MSU 84-74 Monday night.

Middle, who finishes conference play at 11-3, boasts a 21-5 record overall, and should have the right to play host for the Ohio Valley tournament.

The Racers have proven that they were the best team in the OVC during conference play, wrapping up the title this week, but Eastern Kentucky may be the hottest team in this particular conference.

After whipping Middle in Richmond, the Colonels proceeded to destroy Tennessee Tech 111-80 Monday night. In that game Eastern shot 58 percent from the floor to collect their eighth conference victory of this season's campaign.

Thursday Morehead State has the unfortunate task of playing the Colonels in Richmond. The Eagles defeated Eastern 87-82 earlier this season, but that game was in Morehead, and since then MSU has fallen upon hard times.

With that win the Eagles upped their season record to 12-6 but in the eight games since then MSU has won only two games.

At the same time Eastern is riding the crest of a two game winning streak inside the conference, and more than pride will be on the line when these arch rivals lockup Thursday.

Both the Colonels and Eagles are at 8-5 in the OVC, good enough for a third place tie in the conference. In the final seeding process this contest will play a big part in determining the tournament's pairings.

According to the new OVC tournament setup, the league's last placed team, Tennessee Tech, will not play at all, and the league's first place, Middle gets a first round bye.

The other six teams makeup the tourney's first round, with the second third, and fourth positions hosting the initial games against the seventh, sixth, and fifth respectively.

This is where Morehead and Eastern come in. With a four team log jam in the second and third places, either the Eagles or Colonels could be forced to play their opening round game on the road.

Whoever wins will lock up at least a tie for second. The loser could drop all the way to fifth.

At home Morehead State is 11-4 on the season, and playing in their home arena could be the difference in deciding where they will advance to the final round at Middle Tennessee.

The tournament winner gets an automatic NCAA bid, but they will probably be the only OVC team making an appearance in the big tournament.

Opening round play will begin March

Student-Faculty Game Set

The Prestonsburg Jr. Beta Club will sponsor its second annual student-faculty basketball games at Prestonsburg Elementary gym, March 2, 1987, 6:00 p.m.

The Jr. Beta Club will use proceeds from the games for school and community service projects.

Faculty members participating in the game include:

Phyllis "Alleyoop" Allison, Donna "Crowd Pleaser" Collins, Linda "Lay-Up" Gearheart, Gwen "Hook-Shot" Hammonds, Regina "Hoopster" Holiday, Brenda "String-Music" Minix, Clara "Point-Maker" Parker, Debra "Three Pointer" Powell, Carol "Rebounder" Rice, Jane "Sky-Hook" Spurlock, Coach Mary "Play Maker" Scutchfield.

Blackcats Over Bobcats

Betsy Layne actually had an opportunity to win, but when they misfired on a field goal attempt with six seconds remaining, the Bobcats saw their final hope disappear into the hands of David Martin who had claimed the rebound.

Martin, two seconds later, dropped in the front end of a bonus opportunity to give Prestonsburg their two-point victory.

The Blackcats had claimed their second victory over Betsy Layne, earned a second place conference tie with Allen Central, and possibly gained some important confidence.

"I'm sure it's a big confidence booster for our kids, knowing what kind of program Betsy Layne has," Riley said. "It was just another step that we had to take."

INDIVIDUAL SCORING: Prestonsburg: David Martin, 17; Cory Vickers, 9; Thomas Nairn, 8; Brent Music, 6; Todd Justice, 2.

Betsy Layne: Jimmy Stumbo, 14; Bud Newsome, 10; Duran Newsome, 6; Jamie Little, 6; Matt Conn, 4.

Kentucky Afield...

Sport Fishing Faces Fund Cut

By NORM MINCH
Ky. Dept. of Fish and Wildlife Resources
Kentucky would lose approximately $400,000 for sport fishing programs if a proposal to transfer $25 million from the Wallop-Breaux trust fund to the general operating account of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service in fiscal 1988 passes Congress.

The Wallop-Breaux fund was established by Congress in 1984 to collect monies from taxes on fishing tackle and boat motor fuel. Money from this fund is then apportioned to states who provide 25 percent matching funds. Wallop-Breaux money can only be used to improve sport fishing, to construct boat ramps and docks, or to upgrade or acquire boating lakes and ponds.

According to Pete Pfeiffer, director of fisheries for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, there is strong opposition to the proposal from the department, as well as from national organizations and local sportsman's clubs.

"This proposal breaks faith with the Wallo-Breaux supporters and defeats the original intent of Congress in establishing the fund," said Pfeiffer. Wallop-Breaux was designed to channel monies from taxes on motorboat fuel and fishing tackle back into enhancing state sport fishing programs and opportunities. Any deviation of the use of these funds is a breach of contract, so to speak, between Congress and the sportsman.

Since receiving its first apportionment in October 1985, the department has used Wallop-Breaux funds to build or improve 15 launching ramps through a new access development program. Approximately 60 more sites are being considered for future development, according to Bennie Maffet, director of the engineering division for the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

Pfeiffer also said that increased fish production capability and expansion of district fishery activities have resulted from Wallop-Breaux funding. "We've doubled our ability to manage the state's fishery resources at the district level," said Pfeiffer.

Fishermen reap benefits from the increased management and development programs the department is able to provide with the aid of federal funding through Wallop-Breaux. It is difficult to say what projects might suffer from the loss of those additional funds. However, anglers would not want future plans such as additional boating access and technical guidance on fisheries management, or even the construction of a new lake to possibly "go under" from a lack of funds, Pfeiffer says.

Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources Commissioner Don McCormick has sent letters to Kentucky senators and representatives, as well as to Interior Secretary Donald Hodel, about the proposal. Hodel announced the proposal to make the transfer in Washington in early January.

Anglers opposed to this proposal should join the department in contacting their congressional delegates on this issue. Wallop-Breaux funds should be used as designed—by the states to improve fishing for sportsmen. Sportsmen are paying the tax on fishing equipment and boat fuel, thus they should receive the benefits of this "user-pay" fund.

THE SPORTING TIMES

draw, though. They will have to play Virgie in their first game, and beating the Eagles at home during a tournament is close to impossible.

Pikeville and Dorton have a date in the tournament's first round which means Mullins will stay alive at least one game longer than one of those teams.

Other than Virgie, the 59th district has suffered a down year. The other four teams aren't exactly among the region's best, but they are comparable in talent to each other.

The draw probably didn't have much effect in determining the advancement proceedings, but with a bye in the bracket without Virgie, Mullins might benefit most.

The 58th and 60th districts have the regular season setting process which not only makes for a season long interest, but a chance to get the two best teams in different brackets.

Based on their season's accomplishments against each other, teams are positioned accordingly. This brings interest and importance to each intra-district contest.

For example, in the 60th district most people considered the Phelps Hornets and Belfry Pirates to be the top two teams. During the regular season the two proved this to be true, finishing one and two in the district.

By finishing in this order, Phelps was assured they wouldn't have to play number one Belfry, and vice-versa. The two Creeks and Elkhorn City still have an opportunity to advance to Virgie and the regional tournament, but the big two in the district won't have to knock one or the other out early.

The seeding deal also gives the underdog an opportunity to give themselves a much better position. Take Betsy Layne for example. The Bobcats have played themselves into a number one seed, and all of this came after they had been picked as the district's number four team.

In this district the draw was still needed to break a few ties, but at least the top three teams won't be beating each other up early, giving a less talented and less successful team a free ride to the regional tournament.

No one is given a free advancement ticket. They at least have to win one game, but the seeding process truly proves fair for everyone concerned.

All teams in the 58th and 60th districts are given an opportunity to determine their district position through their basketball ability. Unlike the other two, whose teams could make or break their season on one pick from the ever important hat.

The Harold Elementary School boys' basketball team, on February 12, 1987, defeated the Allen Grade School team to become the 1986-1987 Floyd County Champions. The fighting Harold Red Devils have a record of twenty-three wins and no losses for the season. What a great accomplishment! Can you name any other undefeated team in the nation?

In addition to excelling in basketball, these young men are doing great academically. According to the Kentucky Essential Skills Test results, these team members rank far above the average national percentile in scholastic achievement. We, the parents, fellow students, coach, and staff of Harold Elementary School salute the boys (pictured above) for a job well-done!

Early Fishing Excellent

Some excellent winter fishing for crappie and sauger is being reported by district fishery biologists with the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

Kentucky, Barkley and Barren River lakes are producing the best catches of crappie, while Ohio River fishermen have been catching good stringers and several limits of sauger below dams. Good populations of sauger are also present in the Kentucky River system.

The recent warmer weather during the last two weeks has provided many opportunities for fishermen to pursue fish which can be effectively caught from cold waters. Crappie fishing peaks during early spring, but many anglers have found this species can be taken during the winter as well. Most fishermen use jigs to reach depths of sometimes over 40 feet, where crappie school during the colder months.

Warmer weather will bring these fish to shallower water, which should allow anglers to connect with more consistency. Kentucky, Barkley and Barren River lakes have been the three top crappie lakes in the state for several years, according to the biologists.

These reservoirs often produce large numbers of above-average crappie during the latter part of February and early March.

March is also the month when sauger and walleye become active. These closely related species travel upstream to spawn, usually when the water temperature reaches about 45 degrees. Sauger are found in many rivers (and several impoundments), where they congregate below dams which block their migration. Anglers fishing tailwaters below the dams on the Ohio and Kentucky rivers boat good numbers of sauger every year during February and March.

Walleye, the larger of the two species, are making a comeback in several lakes after a decline in the 1970s. While Lake Cumberland is the most notable for walleye fishing, this species is also found in Nolin Lake, Carr Fork Lake and Kentucky's newest reservoir, Paintsville Lake.

Popular lures for sauger and walleye are jigs, slab spoons, crankbaits and spinner/live bait combinations. These fish can generally be found in headwater tributaries along riffles, shoals and sometimes against low-water dams. Creek run-ins and points or flats along river channels are other good spots to fish for walleye and sauger.

These three species, along with trout, provide the first quality fishing opportunities for Kentucky anglers during the year. Other fish can be caught when the water is cold, but most anglers find that crappie, sauger and walleye will bite with much more consistency than warm-water fishes in February and March.

If no more severe cold weather hits Kentucky in the next month or so, the start of the spring fishing season should come a little earlier than usual. Many anglers will take advantage of the warmer days to prepare boats and fishing tackle for the oncoming spring season, but if you're looking for some early action, crappie and sauger are the fish to pursue.

To Appear in Concert at Betsy Layne

Dwight Yoakam, whose latest hit, "Guitars and Cadillacs," with sales of more than 500,000, has become a gold record, hasn't forgotten the folks at home, or where home is. And they haven't forgotten him.

March 2 through March 6 has been proclaimed Dwight Yoakam Week in Floyd county in recognition of the Betsy Layne native who has become a nationally known country music performer. The 29-year-old singer, who was born at Pike-Floyd Hollow, is coming home to give a concert at the Betsy Layne Fieldhouse next Tuesday night.

What is unusual in the appearance is the fact that Yoakam initiated the arrangement. "He's been after me for at least six weeks, wanting to give a concert at the school," said Betsy Layne High School principal, Gene Davis. Both Davis and former Betsy Layne High band director, Billie Jean Osborne, expressed their pleasure in Yoakam's appearance. "Why, Dwight lived just up the road from me," said Mrs. Osborne, "and you know, the proceeds from this concert will be used to buy new band uniforms."

Yoakam's mother, Mrs. Ruth Ann Tibbs Yoakam, still lives at Betsy Layne. In a proclamation issued Friday, Judge John M. Stumbo said, "Whereas, Dwight Yoakam wishes to return to his native Floyd county for a concert for all his family and friends, I...do hereby proclaim the week of March 2-6, 1987 as Dwight Yoakam Week in Floyd county...and urge all Floyd counties to attend the concert on March 3, and give Dwight Yoakam a big welcome home...Show him that we are proud of the accomplishments he has made in the field of country music."

The concert will begin at 8 p.m., and tickets are on sale at Francis Stores, here, at Betsy Layne High School, or at the door.

SEASON HIGH: Guard play was a key to Betsy Layne's win over Prestonsburg. Sherry Parsons tosses in two of her season high 14.

Draw Decides Final Seeding For District Tourney Setup

The Floyd County Conference didn't settle it so local coaches were forced to entertain a draw in order to finalize the district tournament's lineup.

After regular season conference action came to a close, several teams found themselves in a tie. Therefore, the draw was a necessity in determining who would be the number one and number five seeds in women's play, while the second and third positions were unsettled in men's action.

Prestonsburg and Betsy Layne finished the season as co-conference champions while Wheelwright and McDowell wound up in a tie for fourth place.

The Lady Bobcats came away from the draw with the position coach Diane Robinson wanted, first. Robinson, due to the alphabetical determining process, was selected to pick, and pulled the number one seed out of the hat.

The Betsy Layne coach had earlier made it clear that she preferred the top seed as opposed to the number two position, and Prestonsburg coach Bridgett Clay agreed that number one would have been better for her squad.

"We're going to have the play the team that either finished third or fourth in the conference so it may be a bit tougher for us," Clay said. "The best seed for us would have been the number one seed, but we're going to do the best that we can."

Wheelwright and McDowell also finished the conference season in a tie, forcing a draw for the fourth and fifth seeds. The Lady Daredevils probably got the best of the two, having to win only one game to get to the regional tournament, but that one win will have to come over Betsy Layne in District play Thursday night.

Wheelwright and Allen Central will open the tournament, Wednesday, March 4, with the winner advancing to second round play where they will take on Prestonsburg.

On the men's side of things, Johnny Martin's worst basketball nightmare came true Thursday when he pulled the dreaded number three position. All season long Martin has concerned himself with having to play that extra game.

By finishing at 5-3 in conference play, Martin's Allen Central Rebels found themselves in a second place tie with Prestonsburg. This factor forced the deciding draw, and forced Allen Central to get to the regional tournament.

"That makes about the third time we've tied and had to draw and each time we've gotten the worst end of it," Martin said, expressing his displeasure. "We've played ourselves into that position, though. It's just part of it."

"Traditionally the third team never advances. I think the last time was in '77," Martin added. "There is no way Prestonsburg will lose Wednesday night and there is a chance that we might. I had rather be there waiting instead of facing the chance of being eliminated."

Martin's Rebels will open district tournament play, men's division, Wednesday night against Wheelwright, a team they have beaten three times this season. The winner will advance to the tournament's semi-final round on Friday where the Blackcats will be rested and waiting.

Johnny Martin has made no secret that he would rather had the extra day of rest, but Jeff Riley doesn't seem to think that it will either hurt or help his Blackcat team.

"There are both pros and cons about it," Riley said. "Some people would have rather play and get the extra experience and some had rather have the extra night off. Personally I have no preference."

Wheelwright coach Monroe Jones didn't really have much personal feeling as to who he wanted to get the third place seed either. Jones says that if his Trojans are to get past the district tourney they would have to beat both Prestonsburg and Allen Central. The first year coach also added that neither team had a great deal of weaknesses, so to him it didn't make much difference who he opened the tournament with.

No draw was needed to settle the other opening round matchup. Betsy Layne won the conference title which gave them the top seed. McDowell finished fifth so naturally they have the fifth seed.

The Daredevils and Bobcats will hook up Thursday, March 5, with both teams needing only one win to reach Virgie.

Although McDowell failed to win a game during conference play, Craynor Slone says they are a dangerous team, and also capable of getting the job done.

Daredevil head man Rick Hall says he had just as soon play Betsy Layne as anyone else. The second year coach thinks that all five Floyd County teams are quality squads, and playing one isn't much different than playing the others.

The district tournament will begin Wednesday night, March 4, at the Prestonsburg Fieldhouse. This year's event is hosted by McDowell High School.

Both the men and women's tournament pairings are alike. Wheelwright and Allen Central will open play Wednesday. Thursday will find Betsy Layne doing battle, with Prestonsburg and the Wheelwright-Allen Central winner. All survivors will meet Saturday to determine the 58th district champions.

Outdoors With Andy... "Wish List"

Those who follow this column know, from an article a couple of weeks back entitled "Go-Along Guns," that I am an inveterate fan of all things western. Movies, clothes, customs, and, of course, firearms. It should, therefore, come as no great surprise that I am absolutely nuts over single-action (cock before you shoot) revolvers.

Unfortunately, the company that got the ball rolling, Colt, has practically priced itself out of the market for the average enthusiast. Sure, they still offer their "Peacemaker," now listed as the Model P. Its current listed price is something in excess of one grand. Indeed, the Colt 150th Anniversary Commemorative variation goes for $1,595, and the even more lavish Texas Sesquicentennial Variant lists for a paltry $1,836.

Now the good news—there are well-crafted, attractive alternatives to the Colt. Don't get me wrong here, though. If you can afford the Colt Model P, or even if you can't but you are able to talk your spouse into a second mortgage, there is nothing like it. Colt's Model P offers a level of fit, finish and craftsmanship that cannot be found for a lesser price, hence their inflated price tags.

On to the alternatives. Allen Firearms offers a very finely made replica called the Old Model. This jewel lists for modest $299, and is available in almost everything from .22 LR through .45 Colt. The even more lustrous EMF Dakota is available in every configuration from basic, plain-Jane models to chromed, engraved versions. Prices range from $395 to $625. Chamberings range from .22 LR all the way through .45 Colt. Both offer .357 Magnum chamberings as well.

Perhaps the bargain in this category is the Interarms Virginia Gragoon. Going for $295 to $625, these revolvers are accurate, sturdy, and well-crafted.

You get into a different group of single-actions when you ask for ones that have adjustable sights. While some of those already mentioned are also available with adjustable sights, I am partial to Ruger revolvers. Sure, their single-actions tend to have slightly rough trigger pulls, mediocre fit and finish on an absolute scale, but then again, you could buy 10 of them for what one Colt Model P sells for. In addition, Rugers are very accurate short guns, very safe, and practically indestructible. Moreover, they are available in the large Magnums, the .41's and .44's, as well as .22's, .357's, and almost anything else worth having. As if this wasn't enough to send an Old West fan into gyrations of joy, the Ruger Bisley, a recreation of the Colt Bisley Target Model (no longer made), is about to be offered in genuine, old-timey calibers.

Why this fascination with single-actions and replicas? Simple—they are mechanically more reliable than double-action revolvers or semi-automatics, there is a sense of history and romanticism about them, they are easily and inexpensively customized, they tend to be quite accurate, they tend to be less expensive...did I mention that last one already? Well, you get the idea. Shop around—you won't have to sell the family farm for your first-born to add this useful piece of ordinance to your collection.

Hard to believe, but the hunting season for rabbit and quail went quietly this past Sunday. Grouse season will remain "in" until the 28th of this month.

Assessments? Rabbit populations seemed to be off badly, due mostly to normal biological fluctuations and an inordinately late hunting season. Let's hope that the game department doesn't yield again to public pressure and is this time serious about changing the dates for small game seasons.

Quail were up in most areas, down in a few, according to farming practices such as clearcutting, maintenance of hedgerows, and pesticide use. The western part of the state is still your best bet for Gentleman Bob.

Grouse seemed to be doing well this year. However, more than had been the case in some recent seasons, you had to know where to look.

Although squirrel season went out with the old year, it also bears mention here. Simply put, this was one of the poorest squirrel harvests in my memory. The reasons for this dearth of bushytails are numerous: poor mast from late freezes, highly cyclic small game populations which tend to operate in 10-year patterns, poaching, and a season that begins so early that many female squirrels that are taken are still nursing.

Here's hoping for a better year. As for myself, I guess I'll have to be content with pass shooting crows until the female groundhogs cease nursing their young. Until next week, happy hunting!

Still trying to figure out what to do with those deer ribs your butcher returned to you when you went to pick up your trophy? DO NOT feed them to the dogs, or hogs, or whatever! They are just as tasty as beef ribs at the finest restaurant.

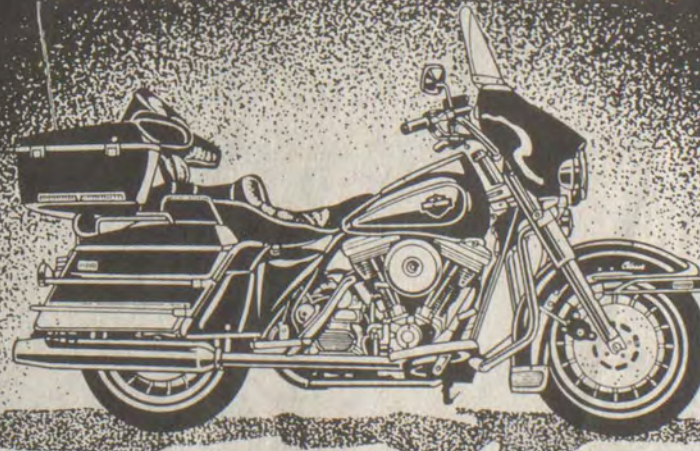

Simply take the rib sections, spice to taste, and put them on an outside broiler, preferably with the lid closed, when the ribs are about half-way done, baste them repeatedly with barbecue sauce, then give them a final smothering of sauce and wrap tightly in sheets of aluminum foil, place on a flat pan such as you would use to fix pizza on, and cook in the oven at 300 degrees for 40 minutes. Why the oven? It keeps you from burning the sauce, saving this commodity to cook slowly into the succulent meat. As Julia Child would say, bon appetit!

Urban pollution fighters are taking to the trees in their battle against dirty air, according to National Wildlife magazine. Recent research has demonstrated that some trees absorb huge amounts of pollutants. Red maple and white birch, for example, seem almost to thrive on sulfur dioxide, while white oaks are especially good at absorbing ozone. Los Angeles city planners say that by the year 2000, the million trees planted for the 1984 Olympics will remove 200 tons of dust and smoke from the air each day.

Legend has it that before a swan dies, it sings a beautiful farewell. And in the case of North America's tundra swan, the legend may be true. According to National Wildlife magazine, scientists have found that tundra swans utter a plaintive "departure song"—a prolonged musical note—just before they take to the air. That song is sometimes repeated when one of the birds dies.

In Finland it was once considered a sign of piety to shoot arrows at trees.

FAME

Lynne Griffin's unusual look in 'I'll Take Manhattan'

By Lynn Hoogenboom

Like every other actress, Lynne Griffin is used to being made up to look her best. So working on "I'll Take Manhattan" was a very different experience.

Lynne Griffin

She plays Candice Alexander, the drab, unhappy wife of Cutter Amberville (Perry King) in CBS's elaborate eight-hour miniseries (which airs Sunday through Wednesday, March 1-4), and instead of being made up, she was "made down."

But playing an unattractive character had its compensations. "It's a huge responsibility to try to play somebody glamorous," she says. "You've got to go to bed early, you've got to eat right, and you're always worried that you have bags under your eyes. This role was great, because it allowed me the luxury of really letting everything hang out."

It was a little rougher on her husband, cinematographer Steven Poster, who served as director of photography on "I'll Take Manhattan." "We met on a picture where he was

Antony Ponzini's back, and 'All My Children' has him

By Marie Michaels

For Antony Ponzini, returning to New York City to accept the role of Detective Victor Borelli on "All My Children" is like coming home again. Ponzini was born and raised in Brooklyn, N.Y., and his longest previous soap opera role (as Vinnie Wolek) was on the New York-based "One Life to Live."

Antony Ponzini

Ponzini has lived in California for the past 11 years, and it was the role of Borelli on "All My Children" that lured him back.

"Everything happened very fast," says Ponzini. "I didn't even have a hotel room to stay in when I got back to New York. I went to work right away."

As Vinnie on "One Life to Live," Ponzini shared several "firsts" with the daytime soap audience. He was the first daytime soap actor to bring out the humorous side of his character, and he was one of the first to play an ethnic character (Vinnie was Polish) on daytime.

Ponzini hopes that Det.

Borelli will also be an innovative character.

"First of all, I hope they'll keep Borelli on forever," says Ponzini with a laugh. "I hope they keep him different. I also hope to show sides of Borelli that haven't been shown about a police officer on a daytime soap. I'd like to see him demonstrate the effects his profession has on his home life."

"In his job, Borelli doesn't follow all the rules," adds Ponzini. "He'd just as soon kick the perpetrator in the shins to get an answer from him. He doesn't go for all the new laws in which the criminal is protected. I'd like to see him called on the carpet once a month, a la 'Starsky and Hutch.'"

"Borelli is a very honest, hard-working police officer who takes his job seriously," Ponzini concludes. "He's a lot of things that a daytime soap opera detective doesn't get a chance to demonstrate, because most soap opera cops come in, ask a few questions and then disappear. That's not what Borelli is about."

During the time he lived in California, Ponzini appeared on numerous nighttime series, such as "Three's Company" and "The Jeffersons." He had roles in the feature films "Grey Lady Down," "The Other Side of Midnight," "Friday the 13th Part IV: The Final Chapter" and "Desert Heart."

SPIES

By-the-book agent Ben Smythe (Gary Kroeger, l.) is assigned to act as nursemaid to the legendary master spy Ian Stone (George Hamilton). His job is to keep him out of trouble — and early retirement — in CBS's new series, "Spies," premiering TUESDAY, MARCH 3.

Best Cancer Treatment Available Here At Home

Big Sandy cancer patients may be taking on unnecessary travel, expense and inconvenience in their search for the best treatment or cure of their conditions.

Dr. Gan Maddiwar, M.D., who was reapointed this month by the American College of Surgeons for a three-year term as Field Liaison of the Commission on Cancer at Our Lady of the Way Hospital in Martin, says...

Components of the cancer care available locally include up-to-date surgical, radiation and chemotherapy treatments. But the plus is the no-cost services of the Big Sandy Area Tumor Board.

"Each time a patient is told they have cancer, the family gets scared," says Maddiwar. "They think they only have a few months to live. When I first came here in 1977, we found patients who had been given cancer treatments who didn't have cancer..."

These experiences and the lack of established cancer treatment protocols in eastern Kentucky prompted Maddiwar to form the Big Sandy Regional Tumor Board with the help of the University of Kentucky...

Since January, 1981, the Tumor Board has been meeting monthly at Our Lady of the Way, Pikeville Methodist, Highlands Regional, and Paul B. Hall on a rotating basis. Patients' cases are presented by their physicians and reviewed by the doctors in attendance.

Patients and physicians thereby receive much more than a second opinion. These services are rendered free of charge.

Maddiwar says his involvement gives him "satisfaction... a feeling of doing the right thing."

Physicians voluntarily participate in the Tumor Board. There are no officers or funds, so neither competition nor politics are involved.

"These services have been available for the last six years," says Maddiwar. "For most patients, the complete cancer treatment can be given here. If patients have to go elsewhere, we can outline their care and direct them to the appropriate facility or specialist."

Maddiwar has been chief surgeon at Our Lady of the Way Hospital since 1977. He has been a fellow of the American College of Surgeons since 1970 and the ACS's Field Liaison of the Commission on Cancer at Our Lady of the Way Hospital since 1978.

Arlo Guthrie, Friends In Spotlight On KET

Folk singer Arlo Guthrie takes the stage with friends Pete Seeger, David Bromberg, Bonnie Raitt and Jerry Jeff Walker for a rousing folk-style jamboree when KET airs "The Arlo Guthrie Show," Tuesday, March 17, at 9:30.

The Austin, Texas performance begins with one of Guthrie's most famous hits: "The City of New Orleans." Guthrie's personal songwriting style and humor shine throughout the show with songs like "Oh, Mom," which tells what today's kids think about their Woodstock-generation parents.

Other highlights include singer/songwriter Walker's performance of "Mr. Bojangles" and Seeger's now legendary song, "If I Had a Hammer." Raitt sings "Angel From Montgomery" and Bromberg leads the group in a hand-clapping, foot-stomping rendition of the blues number "Testify."

"The Arlo Guthrie Show" is a production of the Southwest Texas Public Broadcasting Council.

An application for a place of entertainment license has been filed by Karen Lynn Hall, of Box #103, Melvin, Ky. The nature of the business will be selling and monogramming of sports apparel and arcade.

The County Attorney's Office is required to file a written report to the County Judge Executive's office reflecting if the person applying is "not of good moral character or who will not, in the judgment of the Court, (County Judge Executive) obey the laws of the state in the carrying on of the business."

Any interested citizen having information relative to said applicant's lack of "good moral character" or willingness to obey the laws of the state in the carrying on of the business is requested to file the same in writing, with the County Attorney's office. Said written information shall be signed, dated, and reflect the current address of said citizen, and must be delivered to the County Attorney's office no later than the 18th day of March, 1987.

DAVID A. BARBER, Floyd County Attorney 2-25-2t.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC SALE

A public sale will be held by Paul Little on March 9th 1987 at Paul Little Property, Melvin, Ky. Time of sale: 10:00 a.m. Purpose of sale: To settle account on 1978 Ford truck Ser. #5GTBT75276. Terms of sale: "CASH." 2-18-3t.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC SALE

Under the terms of a installment contract dated September 19, 1986, signed by Doyle Collins, HC 77, Box 2390, Grethel, Ky. 41631, the undersigned will on March 13, 1987 at 11:00 a.m. sell at public auction to highest bidder for CASH a 1977 Duke Mobile Home, 14'x70', serial #5578, at the First Guaranty National Bank, Martin, Ky. to satisfy the unpaid balance on the said mobile home. The mobile home may be inspected prior to the sale at the above mentioned premises. The undersigned reserves the right to bid.

FIRST GUARANTY NATIONAL BANK Collection Department Martin, Ky. 41649 2-25-3t.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MINE

Pursuant To Application No. 836-0162, Revision #2

(1) In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350.055, notice is hereby given that Branham & Baker Coal Co., Inc., 328 North Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653, has filed a major revision to an application for a permit for a surface coal mining and reclamation operation of approximately 304.5 acres located 3/4 miles north of Hippo in Floyd county.

(2) The proposed operation is approximately 0.75 miles south from State Route 850 junction with Pitts Fork County Road and located 0.2 miles south of Reffitt Branch of Pitts Fork of Left Fork of Middle Creek. The latitude is 37° 33' 03". The longitude is 82° 51' 30". The surface area is owned by Maurice Allen, Harrison Shepherd, Bill & Viola May, Taylor Reffitt, and Tiny Hicks.

(3) The proposed operation is located on the Martin U.S.G.S. 7 1/2 minute quadrangle map. The operation uses the surface, contour, and auger method of mining. The application also includes a proposed land use change from the steep slope forest land pre-mining land use to a gentle and flat scope hayland and pastureland. Postmining land use (with A.O.C. variance request) on Maurice Allen and Taylor Reffitt. The application includes a proposed method of operation change from area mining to contour and auger mining with a borrow area.

(4) The application has been filed for public inspection at the Department for Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement's Prestonsburg Regional Office, 503 South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653. Written comments, objections, or requests for a permit conference must be filed with the Director of the Division of Permits, 6th Floor, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Ky., 40601.

This is the final advertisement of this application; all comments, objections, or requests for a permit conference must be received within thirty (30) days of today's date. 1t.

ANNEXATION ORDINANCE

The City of Wayland at the City Council meeting of February 7, 1987 does ordain the following:

SECTION 1. The City of Wayland Council by unanimous vote, annexes the surrounding area of Route 1086 (land lying on each side of Rt.) from the City boundary to the bridge above Stamper Branch.

SECTION 2. The boundary line will include the Stamper Branch hollow and the surrounding area of location.

SECTION 3. The increased annexed boundary will be an additional 1.2 mile of the corporation limits.

SECTION 4. Route 1086 will be incorporated on each side of the route, with the exception of Shop Fork Hollow and the surrounding area across the Steeles Creek banks.

SECTION 5. By the request of the Stampers Branch residents for the annexation of the hollow for the purpose of fire and police protection for the residents.

Motion made and passed for the process of annexation on the 7th day of February 1987, by the City Council of Wayland.

PATRICIA MURPHY, Mayor ATTEST: Mary Bradley City Clerk 2-25-3t.

PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE: The Commissioner's of Beaver Elkhorn Water District will hold their regular monthly meeting, Wednesday, February 25, 1987 at 6:30 p.m. at the office at Wayland, Ky.

BEAVER ELKHORN WATER DISTRICT Box 309, Wayland, Ky. 41666 1t.

The Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA) is operated on the basis of a program year, beginning on July 1 and ending on June 30 of the following year, according to the U.S. Department of Labor's annual report for fiscal year 1985.

PUBLIC NOTICE

TO: The heirs of Frank and Isabelle Moles RE: Floyd B. Moles, et al., VS Gertrude Moles, et al.

The undersigned attorney has been appointed Warning Order Attorney by Floyd Circuit Court in the above styled matter to warn you that a Complaint for Partition has been filed in Floyd Circuit Court and that you are named the defendants in this matter.

The nature of this Complaint is one for partition by sale or division. You have fifty (50) days from and after the date of this order, February 11, 1987, in which to file an answer to this Complaint. If you fail to do so, the relief demanded in the Complaint may be awarded to the plaintiffs.

This may be a matter for which you want to consult an attorney. FRANCIS, KAZEE & FRANCIS C.V. Reynolds 2-25-1t.

Plan Will Provide Coverage Overseas

G. Douglas Sutherland, President of Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Kentucky, has announced that an agreement has been made with the Internal Claims Center, operated by Blue Cross and Blue Shield of the National Capitol Area, to provide hospital benefits for Plan subscribers who live or travel abroad.

By utilizing the International Claims Center, subscribers will have the opportunity to get needed hospital care in locations around the world more expeditiously and without the large advance deposits normally required. To date, the ICC has paid over 300 claims totalling more than $650,000. Hospitals in France, Mexico, and Scotland are among the many health providers that accept the Blue Cross and Blue Shield card for inpatient care through the International Claims Center.

In addition to this service, subscribers who live or travel abroad, may also utilize the services of the International Assistance Center. The Assistance Center is available to help subscribers who encounter health emergency problems that may not be resolved by the overseas hospital network. Services include a 24-hour hotline staffed by multilingual assistance coordinators who can refer subscribers to appropriate local doctors and hospitals anywhere in the world, arrange for advance deposits required by hospitals that don't participate with us, translate between our physician advisors and foreign-speaking medical personnel treating our clients, and even arrange for air ambulance services if we determine that the subscriber can't get appropriate care where they are.

"We are happy to have the opportunity to provide this invaluable service. The International Claims Center will enable the Plan to meet the health care needs of our subscribers."

L&H USED CARS

The Big Bang and More... Broadcast From The Cosmos

By Joyce Dall'Acqua
Smithsonian News Service

In the middle of a field edged with trees, a large structure looking for all the world like a burned-down trailer home sits on a circular track. A vintage 1930s Ford sedan pulls up and a man in plus fours jumps out and pushes one end of the structure so that it rotates a few degrees.

This scene is from "State of the Universe," a new planetarium show at the Smithsonian's National Air and Space Museum in Washington, D.C. Who is this man, and what is he doing?

In the early 1930s, a young telephone company engineer set out to find the source of static on trans-Atlantic telephone calls. To aid his quest, Karl Jansky built a crude-looking, 29-meter radio antenna on a circular track that could be moved around to face any direction.

After tedious months of record-keeping and research, Jansky came to the remarkable conclusion that the source of the static was the center of our Milky Way galaxy. When the discovery was announced to the world in 1933, the New Yorker magazine quipped, "This is believed to be the longest distance anybody ever went to look for trouble."

Jansky thus created, accidentally, the world's first radio telescope and launched the field of radio astronomy—proving in the process that there's more to the universe than meets the eye. Radio telescopes today allow scientists to "see" objects billions of light years away, detect energy left over from the big bang—the giant cataclysm that formed the universe 10 billion to 20 billion years ago—and even search for extraterrestrial life forms.

"Radio astronomy introduced the idea that the universe is not the tranquil haven it appears to be from the Earth," says James H. Sharp, chief of the Albert Einstein Planetarium at the Air and Space Museum. "In fact, the universe is in a constant state of change and even violence." Sharp wrote and directed the museum's new planetarium show, which presents many of the latest scientific findings about the size, structure and possible future of the cosmos.

Yet Jansky's discovery was barely noticed by the astronomical community of his day and his employer, Bell Laboratories, did not encourage him to pursue his study of galactic radio waves. It was not until World War II that a concerted research effort was applied to developing radio astronomy technology.

Two of the few scientists of the 1930s to follow up on Jansky's work were Dr. Fred L. Whipple, now a famed comet expert and director emeritus at the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory in Cambridge, Mass., and Dr. Jesse L. Greenstein, an astrophysicist at the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena. In 1937, the two Harvard graduate students co-authored a paper in which they attempted to describe the structure of the Milky Way galaxy, based on the assumption that the radio waves detected by Jansky were caused by heat concentrated at—and emanating from—the galactic center.

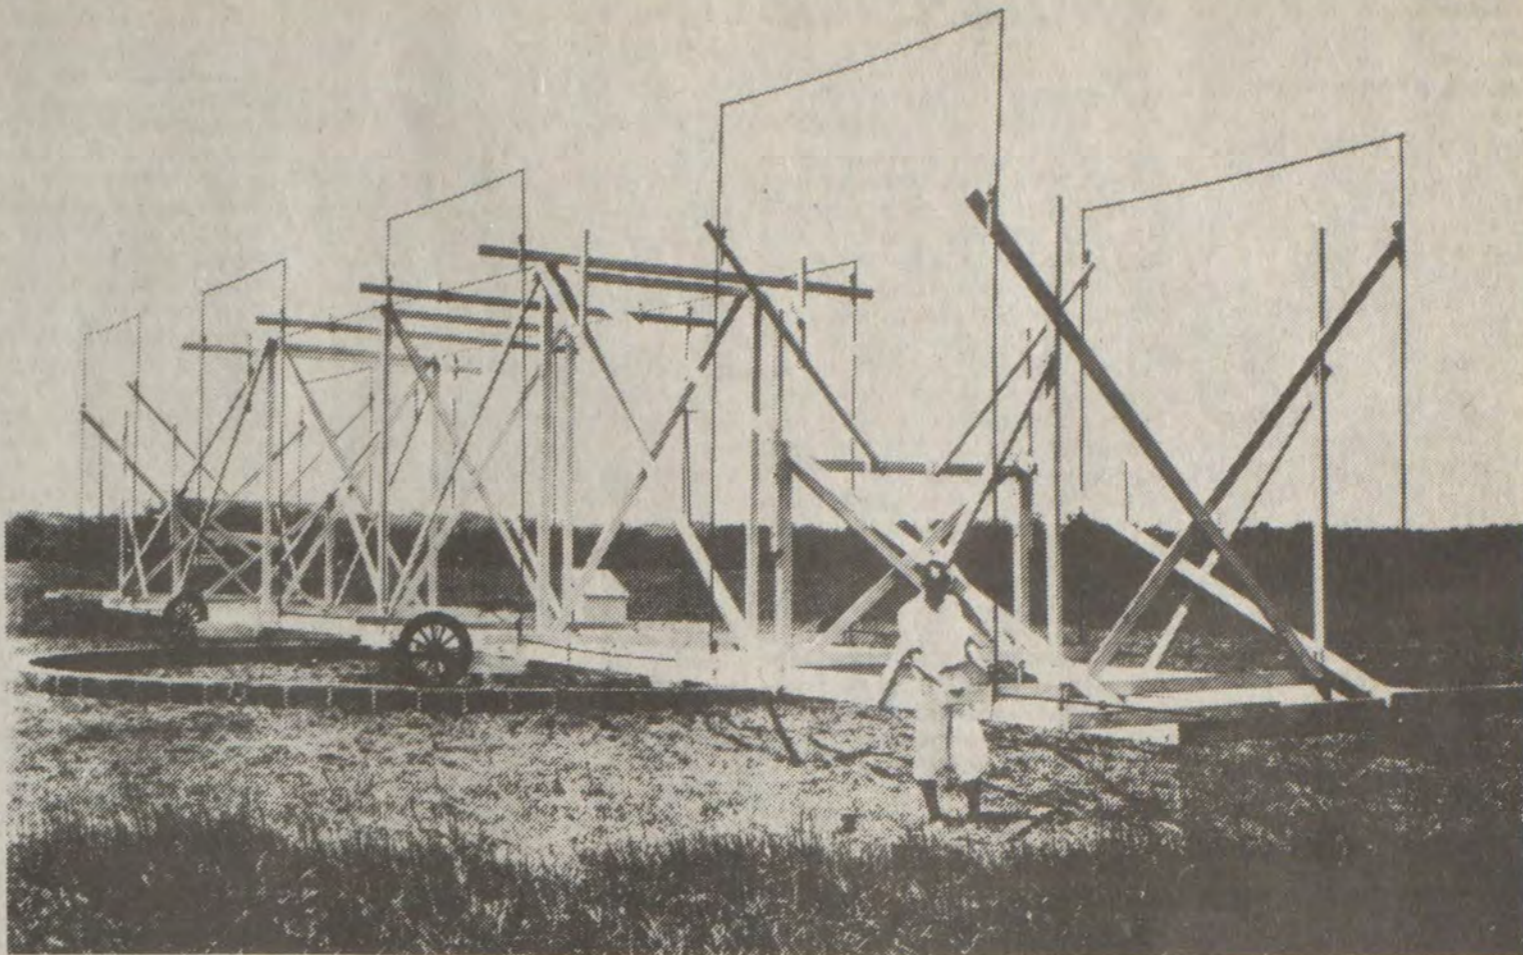

Their theory of the origin of radio waves turned out to be a moot point, however, when another pioneer discovered an even stronger source of cosmic radio waves outside the Milky Way. Grote Reber, an electrical engineer and amateur radio operator (now retired and living in Tasmania), built his own dish-type radio antenna in 1938 in his Wheaton, Ill., backyard. With this telescope—which served as the model for today's radio telescopes—Reber picked up strong radio signals from the Cygnus A galaxy. This very distant galaxy is located, from Earth's perspective, far from the center of the Milky Way, yet it is one of the strongest sources of radio waves in the sky.

Explaining the early lack of interest in radio astronomy by the astronomical community, Reber recalls, "Astronomers of the time had a nearly complete lack of knowledge of electronic apparatus, viewing it as black magic." On the other hand, he notes, most engineers were ignorant of even simple astronomical principles. "I was in the middle of two groups not speaking the same language," he says.

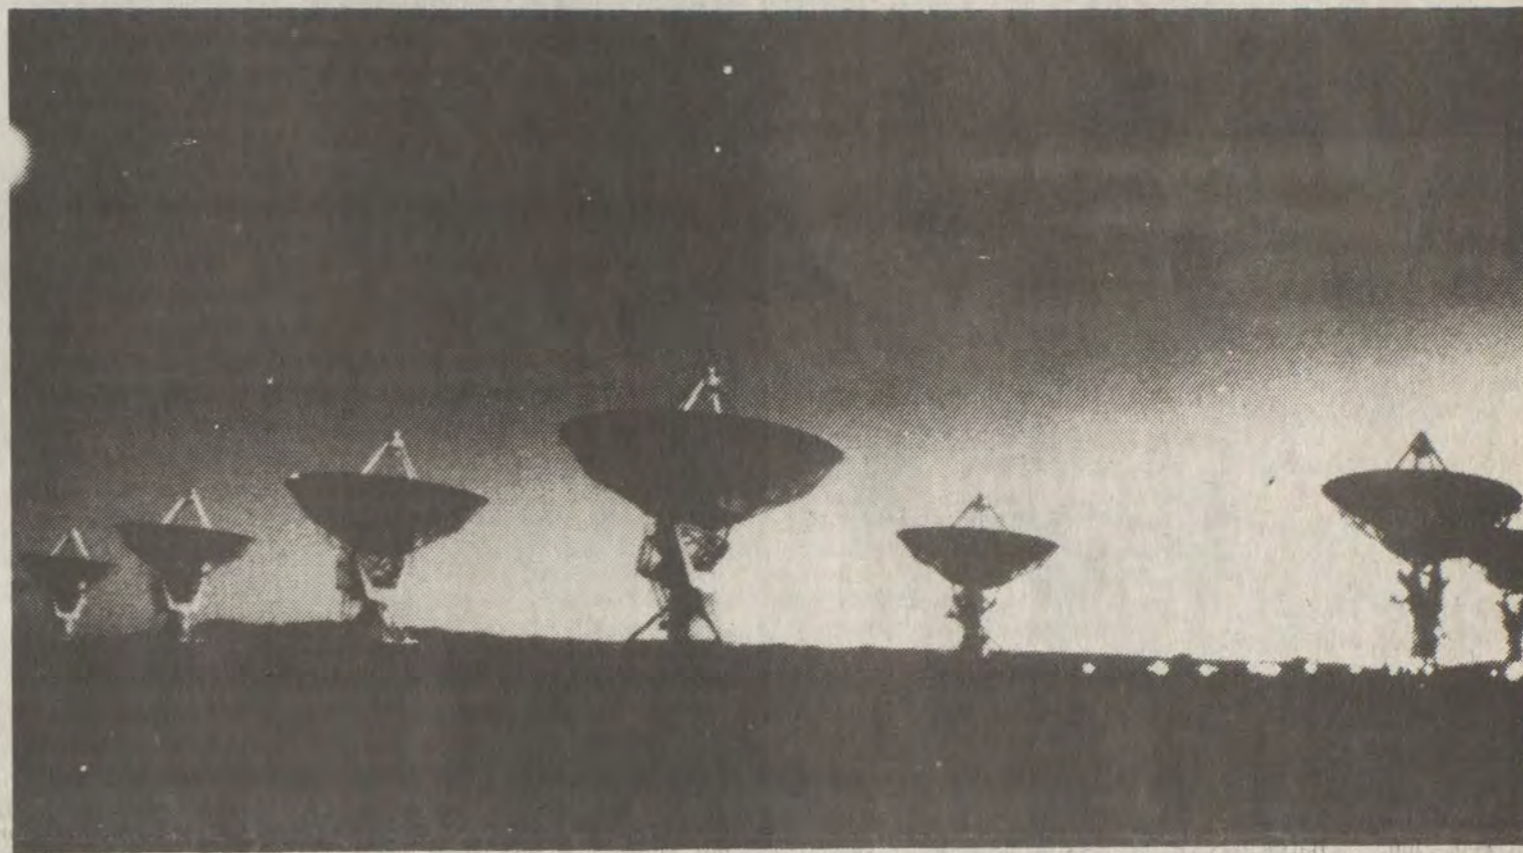

Solar astronomer Leo Goldberg, former director of the Kitt Peak National Observatory near Tucson, Ariz., adds, "In the 1930s, everyone had trouble getting money, including astronomers. Federal funding for research was scarce and highly competitive, and a 'speculative' project like radio astronomy had little chance of getting support."

Goldberg, who recently completed a one-year tenure in the Martin Marietta Chair of Space History at the Air and Space Museum, also says that "the astronomical community tended to be very conservative about venturing into new techniques. For four centuries, astronomy had been inextricably linked to the optical telescope. In the past, it was usually the non-astronomer who developed a new field—this was true of ultraviolet, X-ray and infrared astronomy as well as radio astronomy."

At the same time that Reber was trying to get his findings published in scientific journals during the 1940s, intensive research in radio technology was being conducted at defense laboratories in the United States and Great Britain.

The Very Large Array combines the power of many radio telescopes to study very distant objects in space.

"The Allies thought that the Germans had figured out how to jam their radar," says Dr. George Seielstad, site director of the National Radio Astronomy Observatory at Green Bank, W. Va. (Reber's original telescope and a full-size replica of Jansky's instrument are now located at the Green Bank facility.) "They learned that they were picking up signals from the sun. But that information was kept classified until the end of the war."

Coincidentally, two other Bell Laboratory employees—following Jansky's example—first discovered physical evidence of the ultimate cosmic event—the big bang. In 1965, physicists Dr. Arno Penzias and Dr. Robert Wilson were investigating the cause of noise in their radio receiver. After carefully removing the suspected culprit—pigeon droppings—they eventually learned that the instrument was picking up the background radiation that exists everywhere in the universe, remnant of the big bang. For their discovery, Penzias and Wilson won the Nobel Prize in physics in 1978.

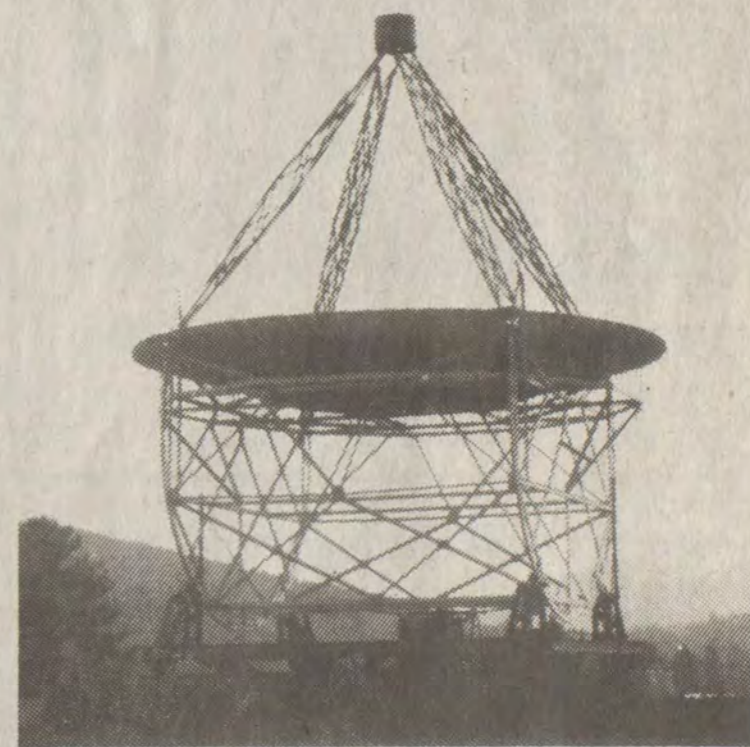

Radio telescopes have aided astronomers in furthering our understanding of such turbulent objects as quasars, exploding supernovas and black holes, which devour all nearby light and matter, as well as binary stars locked in a gravitational clinch so close that matter passes from one to the other. Radio signals from distant galaxies confirm that these galaxies are racing away from our Milky Way, suggesting that the universe is expanding.

Today, many radio observatories combine the "viewing" power of several telescopes to focus on very distant objects in space, a process called radio interferometry. For example, at the Very Large Array in the New Mexico desert, a set of 27 movable antennas is distributed in a Y-shaped formation covering 20 miles. When the radio signals are combined and correlated by computer, the resulting "images" are as sharp as though they came from a single antenna the size of the entire array.

Last summer, astronomers actually created a temporary radio telescope nearly one and a half times the size of the Earth's diameter, by correlating signals from two ground telescopes and from the Tracking and Data Relay Satellite in space. The resulting images of certain very distant objects, including a quasar, were twice as clear as the best earlier images.

Radio astronomy has also revealed the presence of complex organic molecules throughout the universe. "We're a long way from seeing anything else in space that is another civilization or form of life," Seielstad says. "But it seems possible that life may exist elsewhere when we see the same chemicals that originally endowed the Earth."

"More than any other single factor," he says, "Jansky's serendipitous discovery of radio waves made astronomy a multidisciplinary field. Today, the universe is studied by physicists, engineers, biologists, chemists and computer scientists, as well as optical astronomers." Appropriately, the radio-wave unit of measurement—the "jansky"—is now used not only by radio astronomers, but by other scientists as well.

Radio emissions in the Milky Way were found in 1933.

Mary Jane Frazier

Mary Jane Frazier, 86, of Spurlock Creek, died Tuesday at the University of Kentucky Medical Center in Lexington.

She was a daughter of the late John and Frances Moore Givens, and was born August 11, 1900 at Dock. A member of the Regular Baptist Church, she was preceded in death by her husband, Willie Frazier, May 17, 1953.

Survivors include two sons, Chester and Bill Frazier, both of Spurlock; three daughters, Lucy Ousley, of Water Gap, Velma Rose and Kathryn Frazier, both of Spurlock; 18 grandchildren, 17 great-grandchildren, and five step-great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted at 11 a.m. Friday at the Hollybush Regular Baptist Church on Spurlock with Woody Pack and Jerry Manns officiating. Burial was made in the Bobby Ousley cemetery at Spurlock under direction of the Floyd Funeral Home.

Sybel Cooley

Sybel Cooley, 79, of Water Gap, died Thursday at the Riverview Manor Nursing Home.

Born May 22, 1907 at Knotley Hollow, near Prestonsburg, she was a daughter of the late Frank and Angie Burchett Blackburn and was a member of the Pentecostal Church, Wright's Chapel, at Water Gap. She was twice married; first to Lee Garrett, who preceded her in death, and later to Arnold Cooley, who survives.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by two sons, Charles Garrett, of Culvert City, Calif. and Chester Garrett, of Water Gap; a daughter, Betty Jo Craft, of Apopka, Fla.; 15 grandchildren and 19 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted Sunday at 2 p.m. in the Floyd Funeral Home chapel with the Revs. Claude Goble and Elmer Davis officiating. Burial was made in the Mayo cemetery.

Obituaries

Chester E. Hamilton

Elder Chester E. Hamilton, 66, of Teaberry, died last Thursday at Our Lady of the Way Hospital following a short illness.

He was born February 29, 1920 in Floyd county, a son of the late John B. and Lula Jane Hamilton. He was a retired employee of McGraw Edison and a member of the New Salem Regular Baptist Church.

He is survived by his wife, Opal Johnson Hamilton; five sons, Aaron Hamilton, of Grethel, Ishmael Hamilton, of Columbus, O., Daniel Hamilton, of Teaberry, Randall Hamilton, of Columbus, O., Amos Hamilton, of Jackson, Mich.; three daughters, Barbara Keathley, of Lurie, O., Joyce Akers, of Grethel, Helen Hamilton, of Springport, Mich.; three brothers, Raymond Hamilton, of Ligon, John West Hamilton, of Detroit, Mich., Palmer Hamilton, of Marshall, Mich.; three sisters, Pauline Hamilton and Nadine Ray, both of Ligon, Priscilla Hamilton, of Waverly, O.; 17 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted Sunday at 10 a.m. at his residence with Regular Baptist ministers officiating. Burial was made in the Frank Hamilton cemetery at Grethel, under direction of the Hall Funeral Home.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Chester Hamilton express their appreciation to all family, friends and relatives for their help in our time of sorrow. Thanks to those who sent food, flowers, and words of kindness given by all. A special thanks to the Regular Baptist ministers for their inspiring words and to the Hall Funeral Home for their kind and efficient service.

THE FAMILY 11.

Rev. Henry H. Music

Rev. Henry Harmon Music, 89, of Prestonsburg, died Tuesday at the Highlands Regional Medical Center.

He was a son of the late Sam and Ellen Griffith Music, born at German, December 30, 1897. A Floyd county school teacher for 11 years, he was also a water treatment operator for the City Utilities Commission for 20 years. He was a minister of and member of the Free Will Baptist Church.

Surviving are his wife, Hazel Martin Music; a son, Russell Jefferson Music, of Prestonsburg; three daughters, Opal Vaughn, also of Prestonsburg, Sylvia Sparks, of El Paso, Tex., and Oma Blackburn, of Paintsville; a sister, Minty Crider, of Prestonsburg; eight grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p.m. tomorrow (Thursday) in the Floyd Funeral Home chapel with the Revs. Doug Burkett and Clifford Austin officiating. Burial will be made in Davidson Memorial Gardens at Ivel.

Everette Collins

Everette Collins, 68, of Weeksbury, died Sunday on Rt. 122 at Melvin, following an apparent heart attack.

A son of the late Garfield Collins, he was born April 22, 1918 in Knott county and was a disabled miner. He was a veteran of World War II and a member of the D.A.V., Chapter 128, Garrett.

Surviving are his wife, Ollie Little Collins; a daughter, Jeannie Phillips, in North Carolina; three stepsons, Danny Johnson, of Martin, Randall Johnson, of Wayland, Richard Johnson, of Weeksbury; three stepdaughters, Linda Patton, of Moorral, O., Brenda Conley, of Corning, O., Lorna Wallen, of Garrett; four sisters, Lisa Johnson, of Weeksbury, Maggie Hall and Dina May Spears, both in Michigan, and Mertel Ward, in Ohio; two grandchildren, nine step-grandchildren, and two great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted at 10 a.m. today (Wednesday) at the Joppa Old Regular Baptist Church at Melvin. Burial will be made in the Buckingham cemetery under direction of the Nelson-Frazier Funeral Home.

Graveside rites will be performed by the D.A.V., Chapter 128, Garrett.

Fred Gibson

Fred Gibson, 64, of Garrett, died Tuesday at St. Rita's Medical Center in Lima, O., while visiting relatives in Delphis, Ohio.

A retired miner, he was born April 12, 1922 in West Virginia, and was a son of the late Taylor and Lula Dolden Gibson.

Survivors include his wife, Ima Jean Stewart Gibson, of Delphis, O.; three sons, Amos and Frank Gibson, both of Garrett, Jimmy Gibson, of Delphis, O.; two daughters, Patly Diltz and Dorothy Breneman, both of Delphis, O.; three sisters, Liza Lawson, of Wayne, Mich., Julia Taylor, of St. Marys, O., and Mae Martin, of Garrett; 21 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted Friday at 1 p.m. at the Rock Fork United Christian Baptist Church near Garrett with Sterling Bowling and Bethel Bowling officiating. Burial will be made in the family cemetery at Garrett under direction of the Nelson-Frazier Funeral Home.

Visitation may be made after 10 p.m. today (Wednesday) at the Funeral Home and at 10 a.m. tomorrow (Thursday) at the church.

ARTIFICIAL SWEETENERS

They have virtually no calories and can be helpful to dieters when used as part of a weight-control program. So why did a recent study show that long-term users were more likely than nonusers to gain weight? Good Housekeeping in its February issue suggests that would-be weight-lossers may think that if they substitute a sweetener for sugar in their coffee, they can have a doughnut, too. Another study found that aspartame, one of the most popular sweeteners, did not suppress appetite, but in some cases actually increased it.

IN MEMORY

Of Ballard Thompson

Daddy, you have been gone 10 years now and you are still missed by your family and friends as if it were yesterday. Our hearts still ache for you, but we know you are with God. Your love is always with us.

When you left us, the light went out of our lives. But, thank God, we still have mommy. She is always there for us to turn to. You would be proud of your wife. She has kept our family together and close to each other. She is our anchor now.

Daddy, we will always love and miss you, and hope we will all be with you again someday, and see your smiling face.

You are sadly missed by your wife Josephine, your children Burlow, Delmar, Earl, Magaline, Kathern, Bernice, and all your grandchildren and many friends.

Thomas Meade

Thomas Meade, 67, of Hi Hat, died Thursday, February 12, at his residence following a long illness.

He was born September 27, 1919 at Hi Hat, a son of the late H.F. and Laura Hall Meade. He was a retired school bus driver and coal miner. He was a member of the United Mine Workers of America Local No. 5899.

He is survived by his stepmother, Mada Meade; his wife, Virginia Kitchen Meade; one son, Ronnie Meade, of Hi Hat; one daughter, Paula Blackburn, of Louisville; four brothers, Earl, Cecil and Rush Meade, all of Hi Hat, Vernon Meade, of Melvin; one stepbrother, Paul Pratt, of Houston, Tex.; two sisters, Ruth Hall, of Lincoln Park, Mich., Goldie Johnson, of Bevinville; and three grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted Saturday, February 14, at 10 a.m. at the Hall Funeral Home chapel with John Adams and Glenn Hayes officiating. Burial was made in the Newman cemetery at Hi Hat under direction of the Hall Funeral Home.

Elizabeth White Keathley

Elizabeth (Lizzie) White Keathley, 90, of Harold, died Sunday at the Pikeville Methodist Hospital following a long illness.

She was born September 7, 1896 in Floyd county, and was a daughter of the late Isaac and Melinda Akers White. Preceded in death by her husband, Bert Keathley, July 7, 1967, she had been a member of the Little Salem Regular Baptist Church for 65 years.

Surviving are one daughter, Edna Keathley, of Harold; three sons, Levi and Walker Keathley, both of Ashland, Kermit Keathley, of Williamson, W. Va.; one sister, Octavia Akers, of Jackson, Ohio; five grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted today (Wednesday) at the New Salem Regular Baptist Church, Harold, with Regular Baptist ministers officiating. Burial was made in the Keathley family cemetery at Harold, under direction of the Hall Funeral Home.

Mary Collins Ratliff

Mary Collins Ratliff, 81, of Ivel, died Saturday at the Methodist Hospital in Pikeville.

Born in Johnson county, October 24, 1905, a daughter of the late Jack and Ann Collins, she was a member of the Tom's Creek Free Will Baptist Church.

She is survived by her husband, Elbert Ratliff; seven sons, Ronald Conn, of Pikeville, Roy, Clyde, and Houston Ratliff, all of Ft. Wayne, Ind., Eugene Ratliff, of Trenton, Mich., and Claude Ratliff of Chile, Ind.; three daughters, Barbara Edmonds, of Pikeville, Madie Alice Osborne, of Ivel, and Ernestine May, of Ft. Wayne, Ind.; a brother, Red Collins, also of Ivel; a sister, Sally Spradlin, in Ohio; 22 grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted at 1 p.m. Tuesday in the J.W. Call Funeral Home chapel with the Rev. James Harmon officiating. Burial was made in the Stratton cemetery at Ivel.

IN MEMORIAM

OF

HETTIE BRANHAM

A tribute of love and remembrance to my mother, who passed away one year ago, March 2nd.

I don't need a special day to bring you to my mind. The days I don't think of you are very hard to find. When in my store of memories, you hold a place apart. No one else could ever be more cherished in my heart.

So Lord, please take a message to my mother up above. Tell her that I miss her and give her all my love. They say time heals all sorrows and helps us to forget. A year has only proven how much I miss you yet. There is a tie that death can't sever—love and memories last forever.

Love and missing you.
Daughter, DELPHIA
Grandson, DAVE

CARD OF THANKS

We, the family of Hiram R. (Buddy) Couch, express our heartfelt thanks to all our many friends, neighbors and relatives who gave us love, support and prayers during the passing of our beloved husband and father. We were so thankful for the beautiful flowers, food and comforting words.

A special thanks to Dr. Mary Hall, Dr. Francisco Rivera and staff at the McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital who tried so hard to give him life.

A special thanks to pastor Louis Ferrari, Goble Zeller, Sonny Miracle, Ellis Holbrook, Jimmy Dale Sanders, Hillis Reedy, Green Boyd, Roy Harlow, James Couch, Bill Smith, John Adams, George Hansford, deacons and singers who gave comforting and inspiring words through preaching and songs.

A special thanks to Johnny Hall and the Hall Funeral Home staff for their kind and courteous services.

God bless you.

SAYINGS

By WILMAY

These come from an old girlhood collection, the majority by unknown writers. Beautiful poetry is like music or scripture in the ears/ The more we learn of all three/ The fewer will be our fears.

Two big favorites by Dwight L. Moody follow:
Give God your life. He can do more with it than you can.

Not what we get but what we give/ Measures the success of the life we live.

A favorite of favorites:
Happiness is like rare perfume inside you on a shelf/ When you rub some on the other fellow/ You spill a lot on yourself.

True greatness does not lie with those who strive for world fame/ It lies instead with those who choose to serve in Jesus' name.

Man's Hall of Fame is only good as long as time shall be/ But keep in mind God's Hall of Fame is good for eternity.

Guard against success that leaves God out.
I do not ask for mighty words/ To leave the crowd impressed/ Just grant my life may ring so true/ My neighbor will be blessed.

A bigger place than this to fill/ For that I do not pray/ I just pray to be big enough/ To fill the place I have today.

This is my prayer, kind Father/ So direct me from above/ That I may live a life for you/ And reflect my Savior's love.

The foremost profession on earth is to be a fisher of men.

Christians are often the only Bible sinners see or read.

When we take up our cross we should remember the Bible says to deny ourselves.

I went outside to find a friend/ But could not find one there/ I went outside to be a friend/ And found friends everywhere.

Kindness is the greatest language on earth. It's one every mortal can understand.

It pays to remember that actions speak louder than words.

People who really love much do much. Often real love is helping someone who can never return the favor or kindness.

A good leader is one who knows the way, goes the way, and shows the way. Caring Christians make more progress than others.

More than anything Christians can do is to give God faith and obedience. He rewards both wondrously. Try Him for yourself.

God wants every child of his to enjoy the abundant life, but there are requirements for it. He makes qualifications sometimes.

To help a babe in Christ grow/ You have to pay a price/ It takes the giving of yourself/ And that means sacrifice.

Perhaps the greatest secret of prayer is prayer IN secret. The more one studies and prays the more others see Christ in him.

Fret not for want of earthly things/ They'll never satisfy/ The secret of contentment is/ To let the Lord supply.

A sure remedy for jealousy or covetousness is to think of something to give another, instead of something to get.

LISTS PALLBEARERS

Active pallbearers for the funeral of Dewey Salisbury recently were Terry Eplin, Ronnie Damron, Johnny Scott, Larry Roberts, and Jerry Roberts.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Herbert Prater, a loving and devoted husband, father, and grandfather, who departed on February 25, 1986.

Dad, it's been almost a year. Since God called you home from here. Sometimes, I think I speak for all We feel your presence very near.

Our lives will never be the same. Oh, how we long to hear you call our name.

The pain and emptiness will never leave. But perhaps we will learn to trust and believe.

I know God had a reason for calling you home that night.

But the loss of our Dad just didn't seem right.

It's with your memories at night I pray, That God will help us find peace some way.

Your thoughts are with us night and day. We love and miss you more than words can say.

I know your days of pain and suffering are gone.

And that we must face the burden of being alone.

Dad, I know, you would say, life must go on.

But, it's really hard since you are gone. Our special days have been sad and bare. Without all our loved ones for whom we care.

You were with the maker above—The one that made possible—Christmas, a day of love.

Dad, you'll always live on within our hearts and dreams.

And, I pray someday we'll see you again.

Sadly missed by wife, children and grandchildren.

Kentucky Craft Market

The spring Kentucky Craft Market, sponsored annually by the Kentucky Department of the Arts, will be held Sunday, March 8 from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. in Heritage Halls East and West at Lexington Center in downtown Lexington.

Due to the large number of new craft businesses entered, the '87 market will be "our biggest and best market ever," according to Fran Redmon, crafts program manager.

Some 120 craft businesses, everything from quilts and quilted items, baskets, toys, furniture and wearables to charming stuffed toys, corn shuck flowers and jewelry will be available—all the finely crafted items that have become favorites at the prestigious New York International Gift Fair.

In addition to the splendid collection of Kentucky crafts, there will be a fashion show, music and entertainment as added attractions to the colorful Sunday market. Admission will be $2. Persons under 12 and over 60 years of age will be admitted free.

KET Plans Salute To American Music

"Great Performances" will salute American music when "Baryshnikov on Broadway" airs Monday, March 16, at 8 p.m. Baryshnikov is followed by "Great Performances: Irving Berlin's America" at 9 p.m. as TeleFund '87 continues on KET.

"Baryshnikov on Broadway" is a special one-hour salute to the American musical theater. Joining the world-renowned ballet dancer are guest stars Nell Carter and the cast of "A Chorus Line," and special guest star Liza Minnelli.

In a high-spirited romp through a selection of Broadway show stoppers, Baryshnikov makes a major departure from classical dance in the excitement of Broadway rhythm.

"Broadway dance fascinates me," Baryshnikov said, "because it is unique. Broadway dancers sing, dance, act all at the same time. They're wonderful. The whole American tradition of Broadway dancing should be absolutely universal."

Following Baryshnikov, "Great Performances: Irving Berlin's America" is a light-hearted and lively look at how the music of the most cherished and memorable songwriter in the history of American popular music has captured and affected the American spirit.

Through interviews with Berlin headliners including Alice Faye and Ginger Rogers, archival news footage, vintage television performances, and 50 years' worth of film clips, "Irving Berlin's America" illustrates how Berlin's music has always held a mirror up to our times: from turn-of-the-century immigration, through World War I, the Great Depression, World War II and the post-war boom.

"Irving Berlin's America" also showcases the stars of yesterday and today who brought Berlin's music to life on the stage, in the movies and on television. The special includes memorable performances by Ethel Merman, Bing Crosby, Fred Astaire, Judy Garland, Donald O'Connor and Mitzi Gaynor.

Highlighting the program are excerpts from three Fred Astaire/Ginger Rogers movies which brightened the Depression years in America.

The History Corner...

"More On Things That Go Bump In The Night"

By A.G. SPENCER

Since last week's column came out, a lot of people have come up to me and asked me if I knew anymore ghost stories. Even more offered tales handed down through their own families. Such yarns tell a lot about the character and imagination displayed by our pioneer ancestors. They also speak volumes on the lack of television and other forms of entertainment to which we have become accustomed. It is quite easy to visualize entire clans gathered around the hearth fire, spinning yarns and sharing camaraderie, especially after a lot of area families did the same thing during Monday's power outages. Here are a few additional tales from our region and our past.

Not all stories are of a serious note (surprise!). However, some such tales tell us a great deal about basic human nature. Take the incident concerning Uncle Jedidiah, for example.

Uncle Jed had always been afraid of the dark. He never 'coon hunted for fox hunted at night—not even in the company of his daytime hunting buddies. Even after he got married, or perhaps for that very reason, Jed was still awfully bad to sleep with the covers over his head.

One night, he heard a terrible ruckus out in his yard. "Jed," cried his wife, "something's eating up every one of your chickens." Jed just pulled the covers further over his ears and shivered. "Jed, get up and see what's the matter," commanded the wife. Still no response. Finally being about twice his weight and having the disposition of a bag full of angry wildcats, she booted him out of bed.

Thus encouraged, Jed grabbed his revolver out of the bureau drawer with shaking hands and started down the stairs.

Halfway down, Jed heard a creaking, groaning sound that seemed amplified by the rising windstorm outside. Now thoroughly frightened, he gulped and proceeded down the stairsteps, perhaps fearing whatever hobgoblins that awaited him out of doors less than his surly wife indoors.

When Jed opened his front door, the sound became almost unbearably loud to his jangled nerves. Whooh, screech, it cried and moaned through the leaf-filled air of pitch dark night. This motivated the old hound that slept under the porch to add his baritone serenade. Chickens that had been roosting in the barn were running around the yard as if possessed.

Completely unnerved, Jed ran back into the house, up the stairs, and dived headfirst into bed. A similar incident such as had previously occurred with his spouse transpired, with the same predictable result of Jed lying on the cold wood floor. Protestations that the second coming was underway failed to melt the icy stare of his true love.

Jed went down the long stairway again. This time he ventured out into the yard, and, lo and behold, there was the barn door blowing in the wind. Wait a minute, thought Jed, I can't go back in

Holler Joins PCC Nursing Faculty

Dr. Henry Campbell recently announced the appointment of Nancy Holler to the Prestonsburg Community College nursing faculty. A former director of Pediatric Nursing at Wausau Hospital in Wisconsin, Holler specializes in pediatric nursing. The new faculty member received her BSN from Mount Senario College in Wisconsin and her MSN from the University of Kentucky.

The country with the greatest length of railroad is the U.S., with 204,696 miles of track!

with a story like that. Why, I'd never live it down.

Jed fired two shots into the chilly night air with his .38 Special and went upstairs and back into bed. What was it? asked his wide-eyed spouse. Jed took a draw on his cigarette and drawled, "Why, 'tweren't nothing but an old black bear, trying to put on a little winter fat."

That story is reportedly true and has been handed down through four generations!

Equally as embarrassing is the story of old Uncle John, who, when he was a little boy, liked to visit an elderly couple over in town as the lady baked excellent cookies and the old man spun grandiose yarns about hunting and fishing. One evening, the little fellow stayed longer than he had planned and did not leave until well after dark on a moonless night.

As he walked along a patch across the mountain to his home, a whispering sound began following him. Shaking in his boots, the boy stopped several times and peered back down the darkened patch, but could see nothing. Even more disconcerting, the sound would stop everytime he did, making the lad suspect that whoever was following along the path could see him, and was stopping when he did to avoid detection.

Finally, when his nerves could no longer stand the strain of this cat-and-mouse game, the boy picked them up and set them down as fast as he could. As his parents' house loomed larger, so too did the whispering sound grow louder and louder. Just as the young fellow could practically feel the creature's cold claws raking the back of his jacket, he bolted through the door, slamming it shut behind him.

As he walked exhausted into the living room, he froze. He had heard that sound again, whisk, whisk, whiiiiisk! Then it hit him—he was wearing the new corduroy pants his mother had bought and hemmed for him!

Unfortunately, not all such stories have a comfortable basis or explanation. More on those incidents next week. Until we talk about knocking spirits and other frights, health!

Emma United Methodist Women's Club Meets

The Emma United Methodist women held their monthly meeting February 2 with the vice-president presiding due to the absence of the president.

The program was presented by Tincy Crisp, a commentary on the Lord's Prayer. The next meeting will be held March 2, an observance of Day of Prayer, Hear Us When We Pray. Hostesses will be Luca Hamilton and Mary L. Thornsby.

Refreshments were served by hostesses, Ann Sizemore and LaDonna Patton, to Sharon Howard, Klora Osborne, Luca Hamilton, Mary L. Thornsby, Grace Leslie, Tincy Crisp, and Bonnie Walters.

A NOTE OF THANKS AND CONGRATULATIONS

I would like to thank and congratulate the following schools who participated in World Book's "Partners In Excellence" Read-A-Thon program to earn products for their school:

Mountain Christian Academy, Maytown Elementary, Martin Elementary, Charles Clark Elementary, Bonanza Elementary and Auxier Elementary. Also, congratulations to the children who participated and earned certificates and medals.

Thank You and Congratulations!

"Miracle of Life" To Encore On KET

In 1983, critics were nearly unanimous in their praise for "NOVA's" remarkable documentary of human conception, "The Miracle of Life." Tom Shales of The Washington Post wrote that the program "did more than make television history. It showed that there's virtually no subject too delicate or magnificent for television to tackle. One runs out of adjectives rather quickly in trying to describe this broadcast."

The first film ever to show the meeting of human sperm and egg returns to public television when "NOVA's" "The Miracle of Life" encores Sunday, March 15, at 9:00 on KET.

In footage that is miraculous itself, "NOVA" follows the progress of sperm and egg, records their encounter and watches as a human being slowly develops out of a glistening sphere of cells.

Alfred Meyer of Science '83 hailed the "dazzling" photography, much of it done inside the body, that captured this microscopic drama. He noted: "The final ride (of the sperm) up through the urethra is a dizzying cinematic trip."

Among other awards and distinctions, "The Miracle of Life" won a National Emmy Award, a George Foster Peabody Award, an Ohio State Award, an American Film Festival Blue Ribbon and a Special Jury Award from the San Francisco International Film Festival. During its premiere in 1983, the program received one of the highest ratings in the history of the "NOVA" series, and it continues to generate wide viewer interest.

"NOVA" is produced by WGBH/Boston. "The Miracle of Life" is a co-production of "NOVA" and Sveriges Television, Sweden.

Thanks...

I want to thank Magistrate Owens for giving gravel for the church when they had Bertle Bailey's funeral.

Are You Listening...?

Not Necessarily, Says Researcher

How well do you listen? A study at the University of Kentucky indicates that we recall only some 25 percent of the factual data we hear.

"Sometimes listeners listen poorly because they have a bad attitude about the speaker," says Robert Bostrom, a professor of communication at UK. "But some listeners have real problems with the listening process."

Bostrom and his colleagues have been conducting listening research for the past 10 years, trying to find out why we listen the way we do.

"People listen differently in different situations," says Bostrom. "A good listener in a conversation might not be a good listener in a lecture or a sermon."

Furthermore, good readers are not necessarily good listeners, he says.

Gender of the listener can mean a difference in how well the message is accepted, the UK study indicates. Males listen better to messages on audio tape or delivered face-to-face and females do better with messages on videotape.

"Notetaking doesn't always help," says Bostrom. "With some good listeners taking notes hinders their performance."

Good listeners sometimes perform well because they are skilled at semantic encoding—relating words to one another—and sometimes because of good memory skills. The two are not always the same, says Bostrom.

One way to improve our listening is to listen to "hidden messages in tone of voice, nonverbal cues and inflection," he says. "Often, persons say one thing and mean something else quite different."

One product of the UK communication research is the Kentucky Comprehensive Listening Test, a standardized test which is now in use around the country as a research instrument and gauge of diagnostic skills.

Several consultants for business and industry have used the test experimentally as a tool with which to assess their personnel for listening skills, says Bostrom.

"Upstairs, Downstairs" In Repeat Performance

The longest running drama series in public television's repertoire, chronicling the intrigues of the Bellamy family and their servants at 165 Eaton Place, endures when "Upstairs, Downstairs" airs Thursdays at 8:00 beginning March 19 on KET.

The "Upstairs, Downstairs" story starts in 1903 with the Edwardian Age and spans the time from World War I through 1929. The Emmy Award-winning dramas depict society—both upstairs and downstairs—with a meticulous eye for the period and a keen sense of detail.

New York Times television critic John J. O'Conner wrote that the series' writers "developed a marvelous gallery of characters...touching on manners and morals, the passing of kings and the advent of world wars."

The "upstairs" residents of 165 Eaton Place are David Langton as Richard Bellamy, head of the household and member of Parliament; Rachel Gurney as his wife, Lady Marjorie, who disappears with the sinking of the Titanic; Simon Williams as their arrogant, rakish son, James; Nicola Pagett as the Bellamy's daughter, Elizabeth; and Meg Wynn Owen as Hazel Forrest, who becomes James' wife. Later episodes feature Lesley-Anne Down as Lady Georgina Worsley, Richard Bellamy's ward; and Anthony Andrews as the Marquis of Stockbridge.

"Downstairs" the cast includes Jean Marsh as Rose Buck, the pragmatic parlormaid; Gordon Jackson as Hudson, the butler; Angela Baddeley as Mrs. Bridges, the cook; Pauline Collins as Sarah, the cheeky parlormaid; and Gareth Hunt as Frederick, the ambitious footman. Joining the cast later in the series are Christopher Beeny as Edward, the footman; Jacqueline Tong as Daisy, the parlormaid; and Jenny Tomasin as the dull-witted scullery maid, Ruby.

"Upstairs, Downstairs" is a presentation of WGBH/Boston. The series was conceived by Jean Marsh (Rose) and Eileen Atkins and is a production of London Weekend Television.

Hale Is Featured
North Fork Teacher

Denzil Hale has been named North Fork's Featured Teacher for January. He teaches health, physical education, and a special living-skills course called Quest at Utica Senior High School.

Pictured above with his wife Linda and children David, 12, and Margaret, 3, Hale is the son of Wornie and Clara Hale, of Hueysville. He has been employed by the North Fork School District for 14 years, beginning in 1969 when he taught driver education. He served three years in the U.S. Army as a medic and EEN&T specialist.

Hale received an associate of arts degree from Alice Lloyd College, a B.A. degree from Morehead State University, and a master's degree from Xavier University. He belongs to several professional education associations, including the Ohio Physical Education and Recreation Association. He enjoys playing chess, guitar, and all types of sports.

Kentucky Crop Values Down

At $1.2 billion, Kentucky crop values for 1986 were the lowest since 1975, when crops were valued at $1.02 billion. The total crop value is down 27 percent from 1985.

Kentucky's 1986 crop value ranks 18th among the states, according to figures from the Kentucky Agricultural Statistics Service.

"The $433.3 million decline in value from 1985 was due both to lower prices for all major commodities and to fewer acres harvested and lower yields. This is a sad commentary on the state of farming," said Agriculture Commissioner David E. Boswell.

Tobacco again ranked first in value among Kentucky crops and is projected at $514 million. It accounted for 43 percent of the value of all crops. The $514 million value is down 24 percent from 1985 and reflects an average price of $155.40 per hundredweight, compared with $158.30 per hundredweight in 1985.

Corn for grain ranked second to tobacco in crop value with a total of $238 million, compared with $393 million in 1985. Price per bushel for the 1986 crop is expected to average $1.70 for the marketing year of Sept. 1, 1986, to Aug. 31, 1987. Hay ranked third, with a value of $233 million, followed by soybeans at $183 million. Grain sorghum value registered the biggest decline, falling 74 percent from the 1985 value.

Researchers Crossing Fish With Soybeans To Add Cold Tolerance

A fish doesn't look much like a soybean plant, but if you delve deeply into the makeup of their genes, the differences are small. In genetics, similarities are more real than apparent.

The fact that the chemical composition of genes is universal means that University of Kentucky agronomists may be able to splice a gene from an Arctic fish called the Winter Flounder into the cell of a soybean plant. They hope the result will be a soybean plant that has increased tolerance to cold snaps.

A specific gene in the Arctic fish gives it the ability to live in extremely cold water. If that same gene could be put into a soybean plant, it might be better able to withstand cold temperatures late in the growing season. Farmers could plant the crop later, after they have already harvested wheat, with less risk of freeze damage in the fall, said Mitchell Altschuler, one of the agronomists working on the project.

"Genes are genes are genes. Since genetic research in the 1950s allowed us to identify the genetic code, we've known that all genes are made up of the same material and that the only difference is the sequence of the nucleic acids making up the genes," Altschuler said.

The practical implications are still hypothetical. Although it's likely that researchers can splice the "antifreeze" gene into soybean and other plants, how the plants would react in other ways is unknown, he said.

"Because one gene may affect a large number of traits, we might find that splicing the "antifreeze" fish gene into plants makes them unsuitable in other characteristics. We will have to wait until we can do field testing to find out," Altschuler said.

If the gene splicing for frost tolerance can be accomplished, the possibilities for other improvements in soybeans and other plants may be close at hand. Already, Altschuler and his colleagues are working on putting genes that would complete the amino acid balance in soybeans.

Soybeans are one of the highest plants in protein content, with about 45 percent protein in their seeds. However, the soybean is low in methionine—one of the essential amino acids that make up what nutritionists call complete protein. That deficit means that when soybeans are used as human food, a supplement that is high in methionine needs to be added in the diet.

Other possible uses for gene splicing in soybeans include adding a gene to modify the polyunsaturated fats in soybean oil, which may have positive implications for human health; increasing herbicide resistance so farmers can use a wider variety of herbicides to control weeds without injuring the soybean plants; and increasing the natural resistance to insects and diseases.

Gene splicing into soybeans is a three-step process. First, the researcher must locate the desired gene in another plant, animal or other organism; then, he must transfer the gene to a specific type of soybean cell. Finally, he must be able to grow the altered cell into a plantlet that can be grown to produce seed that carries the new gene.

"It's not too difficult to put foreign genes into a soybean cell. We use a common soil-borne bacteria, Agrobacterium tumefaciens, to do that. What we need to do now is develop a technique so that once we put the gene into a soybean cell, we can then grow that altered cell into a plant," said David Hildebrand, another researcher working on gene splicing at University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Already fellow researchers Glenn Collins and Wayne Parrott have been able to grow altered cells into fully grown plants in other species, such as tobacco, but the soybean plant still resists regenerating a whole plant from a single cell.

"We just need to hit the right growth medium so that the cell will continue to divide and grow into a fully grown plant," Hildebrand said.

Although the techniques genetic engineers use are new and quite sophisticated, he said that in just a few years, the techniques will likely become routine and be put to wider uses.

"It's only been about three years since the technique of using bacteria as a carrier of the genetic material from one plant to another was used successfully," he said.

Even with improved techniques, a few years may be required before any genetically modified plant is commercially available, Hildebrand said.

"Before a genetically altered plant can be made available for commercial use, it first must be extensively field tested under controlled conditions to make sure it lives up to its promise. In addition, it must be found that it won't cross with other species that would pick up the new genetic material," Hildebrand said.

Such testing rests, in part, on research first conducted here at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture in the 1930s. One of its scientists, William Valleau, documented that plant diseases can spread from one plant species to another through a hybrid that has common genetic material to the unlike species. Because adding genetic material to a plant may have that same bridging effect, there are stringent rules that make controlled field testing mandatory, he said.

"The likelihood that a genetically modified plant would pose any threat to other plants is unlikely, yet, we must make sure that there is no chance that it would," Hildebrand said.

Even when a genetically altered plant is found to pose no threat to the environment, it may be found to be unsuitable for commercial use, Hildebrand said.

"We might find, for example, that our cold tolerant soybean plant falls over before harvest, making it a dud for commercial production. But, even if we come up with a few misses we eventually will find one that lives up to our expectations," Hildebrand said.

Task Force Appointee

Phyllis Stanley, of Prestonsburg, has been appointed to the Senior Olympics Task Force by Human Resources Secretary Al Austin. The Senior Olympics Task Force will develop recommendations for the state's involvement in the Senior Olympics program and report to Secretary Austin by September 30. Mrs. Stanley is director of programs for the elderly for the Big Sandy Area Development District.

Tax Help Is Available For Those Who Need It

Free tax assistance on federal and state tax returns will be available to elderly and low income taxpayers in Floyd county through April 15. Sessions will be held at the county library on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Volunteers from the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) have participated in an income tax training program sponsored by the IRS. They will prepare tax returns for elderly, low income and handicapped persons in the area.

Taxpayers coming for assistance should bring their tax packages received in the mail, records of income such as Forms W-2, "Wage and Tax Statement", Form W-2P, "Pension Statement", information on deductions or tax credits, and copies of last year's tax returns.

"IT'S EASIER TO SELL A HOME WHEN IT HAS MORE BENEFITS PEOPLE LIKE... LIKE THE COMFORT AND SAVINGS OF GAS HEAT AND APPLIANCES."

Holly Perry
Holly Perry, Realtor

"It's as true today as it's always been. Families prefer natural gas in their homes. Gas heat gives the warmth that makes the whole house comfortable, no matter how cold it gets outside. It's reliable, too. A gas furnace hardly ever needs service, which means real cost savings compared to other systems. And with today's lower gas costs, the savings are even greater. If the home has other gas appliances—like water heater and range—so much the better. So when I'm asked about the features of a home, I'm always glad when I can say it has gas heat and appliances. The people almost always are, too."

Natural gas can add comfort, convenience and value to your home. Just ask realtors like Holly Perry, and the families in gas-equipped homes.

Bruce Friend, Lisa Kidd Are Wed

Miss Lisa Kidd, of Harold, and Mr. Gary Bruce Friend, of Kinnikinnick, exchanged wedding vows at the Sammy Clark Freewill Baptist Church on Dec. 6. The double-ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Tommy DeHart.

The bride is the daughter of Russell Kidd, of Harold, and Agnes Jean Kidd, of Harold. She is the granddaughter of Lee Kidd, of Harold, and the late Della Kidd and the late Johnny and Rhoda Kidd. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Friend, of Kinnikinnick. He is the grandson of Ruth Friend, of Kinnikinnick, and the late Bruce Friend.

The bride, escorted to the altar by her father and given in marriage by her parents, wore a floor-length gown of white satin, tapered long sleeves that ended in bridal points at the hands, a basque waist and a semi-cathedral train trimmed with lace. She wore a crown of pearls which held the veil of sheerest illusion accented with seed pearls, which extended to the waist. She carried a fresh cascade of poinsettias accented with decorative greenery. The groom wore a white tuxedo with tails and red accessories.

The matron-of-honor was Phyllis Ann Hale. She wore a floor-length gown of red chiffon. She carried a cascade of poinsettias accented by decorative greenery and white lace ribbons.

The bridesmaids were Christy Hale, Tammy Kidd, Diana Friend and Pam "Sue" Williams. They wore floor-length gowns of red satin with a second skirt of white lace. They carried white lace fans decorated with red poinsettias and red ribbons. The flower girl was Jill Akers. She wore a white circle skirt dress and carried a red basket containing rose petals.

The best man was Bill Hays. The ushers were Johnny Kidd and Brian Kidd. They wore matching white tuxedos with red accessories.

The traditional wedding march was played for the bride by pianist Loriane Smiley. Special selections were performed by vocalist Rayetta Damron. After the ceremony, a reception was held in the church's dining room.

First of Four Planned Tech Centers Set To Open in Fall

The first of four advanced technology centers planned across the state should be open for students by this fall term. The first center, for two-year programs in automated manufacturing technology and specialized computer applications will be on the Bowling Green State Vocational-Technical School campus.

The centers, with later ones to be developed at Louisville and in northern and eastern Kentucky, were announced Tuesday (Feb. 10) by State Superintendent of Public Instruction Alice McDonald.

The planned centers will "move Kentucky's vocational education program into advanced manufacturing technology, and into the 21st century," McDonald told business and government leaders at an announcement breakfast co-sponsored by the Bowling Green-Warren County Chamber of Commerce.

The centers will meet a crucial and fast-growing need for sophisticated post-high school training for existing industries and for Kentucky's aggressive pursuit of high-tech firms, McDonald said.

"We have had wonderful support and assistance from businesses and from the community in developing this center, and we are delighted to mark national Vocational Educational Week with this announcement," McDonald said.

The advanced technology center represents a move from specific crafts training toward cross-training in a problem-solving approach, she said. It will offer math and physics and core courses in computerization covering a range of technologies, plus the hands-on experience that prepares vocational students to immediately enter the workforce as trained technicians.

Students will be recruited from throughout the state, and will pay $20 for registration and $16 per month.

The center's initial cost will be $850,000, with $650,000 of that amount going into state-of-the-art equipment and building modifications.

Advanced technical centers had been recommended by the Governor's Commission on Vocational Education and endorsed by the State Board of Education and the 1986 General Assembly, but no money was appropriated.

"Through careful management, we found the money from a variety of sources," McDonald said. The sources include agency receipts, regular vocational education appropriations and earned interest on bonds, plus a small amount of federal money.

The Bowling Green location was recommended by a nationally-recognized technical training firm, CORD (Center for Occupational Research and Development) of Waco, Tex.

Bowling Green is one of the state's fastest-growing manufacturing communities, and offered strong support from businesses and from Western Kentucky University. The Department of Education had earlier developed short courses in the use of programmable controllers for employees of area companies, and there was space available on the Bowling Green vocational school campus.

"We had a base and the space, and great support from the Chamber of Commerce and regional industry, so we could get the first center started more quickly here," McDonald said.

"When we demonstrate that we can do the job for Kentucky's industries here, I believe we will have the support to implement the statewide plan for advanced technology centers," State Supt. McDonald said. "We cannot afford NOT to make the investment in the future economic development of our state."

Film On Japan Has Premiere

"Japan: The Living Tradition" premieres Tuesday, March 3, at 7:30 p.m. on KET. The programs, part of the "Cambridge Forum Presents" series, are a sequel to last year's "Japan: The Changing Tradition."

Japan is the United States' close ally. The country is no larger than Montana. However, Japan is a growing global power and a pacesetter in solving the nonmilitary problems of a postindustrial age.

These programs reveal the visual, literary and performing arts experience of the country. Additionally, "Japan: The Living Tradition" explores cultural and religious experiences of the Japanese.

"The Living Tradition" includes sequences filmed on location throughout Japan, as well as footage assembled from Japanese and American archives. The series mixes historical film with contemporary locations.

Japanese Teachers Intern in Schools

An internship program bringing Japanese teachers to Kentucky highlights this week's edition of "Education Notebook," a television production of the Kentucky Department of Education.

Last October, five teachers from Japan began internships in Daviess, Fayette, Jefferson, Kenton, and Nelson counties. Each has a specific area of interest, including math, history and English.

The interns will live with host families until July. Organizers of the internship program believe this project will foster greater understanding of Japanese culture and education methods, and is especially beneficial as Kentucky prepares for the arrival of Toyota Motor Corp. and other Japanese firms.

In March, "Education Notebook" will celebrate black history with a special program of interviews and features on the important contributions of blacks in Kentucky.

"Education Notebook" airs at 6 a.m. Sunday, Feb. 15, on WLEX-TV in Lexington, and at 3:30 p.m. Friday, Feb. 20, and 9 a.m. Saturday, Feb. 21, on KET. Check local listings for additional air dates and times on cable channels.

State Seminars To Aid Business Recordkeeping

The Kentucky Labor Cabinet's Division of Education and Training has begun a series of seminars in record-keeping requirements pertaining to occupational safety and health. The three-hour seminar, which is designed to assist those who actually maintain the records, is being presented in 15 cities.

All public sector employees, those private sector employers with more than 10 employees at any time during the calendar year, and a random sampling of smaller businesses who are normally exempted, must maintain records of work-related injuries and illnesses each year. Small businesses participating in the 1987 random survey received their recordkeeping forms prior to the end of 1986.

The schedule, which includes as many locations as possible due to the number of businesses affected, will conclude on March 25. For information concerning the seminar to be held in this area, phone the Division of Education and Training at (502) 564-6895.

NELL MOORE BENDS OVER HER SEWING MACHINE at the refurbished factory in West Prestonsburg newly occupied by Mountain Laurel, a local children's clothing company now in its fourth year of production. The company moved out of its two rooms downtown and into its new location, with 3,600 square feet and "room to grow," according to owner Lynn Tucker, in January. The on-site staff has grown from five to 15, and the company's line of handmade clothing and other items has doubled since the move, Tucker said. A grand opening is scheduled for early April.

"Frontline" Probes Private Adoptions

Two million American couples want babies and cannot have them. Discouraged by the long waits for infants through local social services, many of these couples turn to private adoption agencies. Sometimes, they get a new baby and a happier home; sometimes hearts are broken.

"Desperately Seeking Baby," a "Frontline" episode airing Thursday, March 5, at 9:00 p.m. on KET, examines the private adoption business. The program focuses on couples who use private agencies to fulfill the dream of a family. It also looks at birth mothers and the people who bring the infertile couples and pregnant women together.

Eighty percent of all infants adopted in California are placed privately. "Frontline" profiles Marc and Bonnie Gradstein, a San Francisco couple who match pregnant women with hopeful couples.

The Gradsteins' clients send a picture and letter describing themselves to obstetricians, pregnancy clinics and high schools across the country. The couples are urged to send this information to everyone they know; maybe someone knows a pregnant woman who is thinking about giving up an unplanned child.

There are serious drawbacks to this system, as illustrated by what happened to Vic and Molly Catanzaro, clients of the Gradsteins. The Catanzaros are the parents of 16-month-old Kendall. They never met their daughter's natural mother, but brought Kendall home from the hospital the day after she was born. Eight months later, Kendall's mother wanted her back.

Fourth Graders Meet Reading Goal

Mrs. Kitty Frazier's 4th grade class of McDowell Elementary School recently participated in a read-a-thon organized by the World Book Encyclopedia Co. Students read books and received 50 cents a book from sponsors. The World Book Co. then matched money raised by the students.

The class was awarded a 1987 edition of World Book for their room. In addition, for meeting the goal, they were awarded a supplemental set of science books.

Students participating were: James Campbell, Lyla Akers, Thurman Paige, Shannon Hall, Brent Osborne, Crystal Newsome, Susi Cooper, Scotty Hall, Mandy Roberts, Spring Vanderpool, Tommy Hicks, Teresa Spriggs, Chris Rocky, Crystal Wright, Chris Cornett, Val Vance, Philip Castle, Jaime Shirt, Bobby Hobson, Kim Meade, Mike Allen, Michelle Martin, Kelly Prater, Amanda Roberts, Aaron Osborne, and Jennifer Isaac.

To Chair Bike-A-Thons

The Central Regional Office of St. Jude Children's Research Hospital has announced that the following have agreed to chair the 1987 Bike-A-Thons in their community: Mrs. Melissa Nelson for Lancer and Mrs. Reba Harvey for Martin. St. Jude Children's Research Hospital was founded by entertainer Danny Thomas. The institution opened its doors to the public in 1962 to combat catastrophic diseases which afflict our children. St. Jude Hospital is non-sectarian, non-discriminatory, and provides medical care to over 4,200 patients.

At St. Jude, scientists and physicians are working side by side seeking not only a better means of treatment, but also the causes, cures and prevention of these terrible killers.

All findings and information gained at the hospital are shared freely with doctors and hospitals all over the world. Thanks to St. Jude Hospital, children who have leukemia, Hodgkin's disease, sickle-cell anemia, and other child killing diseases now have a better chance to live.

The Bike-a-Thon program is dedicated to "Jaime". Jaime is from Ohio and was diagnosed with leukemia in May of 1983, and began treatment at St. Jude Children's Research Hospital. Today, her cancer is in remission and she is doing quite well. Jaime is a living example of the progress and success of the research, patient care, and educational

Funds raised in the event will help assure the continuation of the work at St. Jude Children's Research Hospital.

The concern which these chairmen have for the work being done at St. Jude Hospital is greatly appreciated. We also feel assured that the citizens in their communities will support the upcoming events as generously as possible.

Need CPA Services? Referrals Available

Kentucky taxpayers who want professional advice on taxes or other financial matters, but aren't sure how to choose a certified public accountant, can get help from a free referral service sponsored by the Kentucky Society of CPAs.

Anyone needing the services of a CPA for individual, corporation or partnership income tax preparation, personal financial planning, or accounting and financial statement services can call the CPA Referral Service toll-free at 1-800-292-1754 Mondays through Fridays, between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Callers will be given the names, addresses, and phone numbers of three CPAs in their area who have agreed to provide a free, preliminary half-hour consultation. Callers are not obligated to engage the services of the referred CPA, and the initial call is free.

To be eligible for referrals, a CPA must be a member in good standing of the Kentucky Society of CPAs, show proof of professional liability insurance, and pay a $50 annual fee which covers the administrative costs of the referral service.

Easter Seal donations have made possible scholarships and fellowships for advance study by doctors, therapists, and other professional workers to serve the handicapped.

Magazine Seeks Writers, Poets

Inscape, Morehead State University's student literary magazine, is sponsoring a contest for student writers.

First place awards of $100 each and second place awards of $50 each will be given to winners of both the poetry division and the short story, play or essay division.

Winners entries will appear in the Fall 1987 issue and all entries will be considered for publication. The awards are funded in part by the University's Honors Program and the Department of English, Foreign Languages and Philosophy.

The competition is open to all MSU students, whether full-time or part-time, according to Dr. Marc Glasser, MSU professor of English and magazine faculty sponsor.

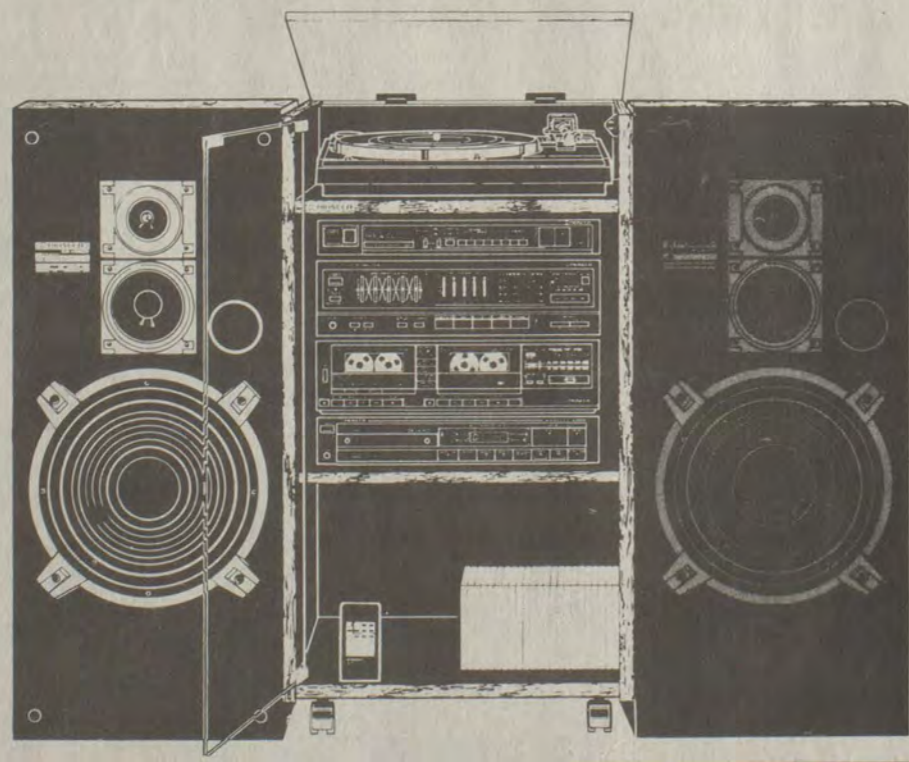

"In fact, we really would like to have some entries from MSU students attending classes off-campus at our regional centers," Dr. Glasser said. "Students may submit up to five poems and an unlimited number of stories."

"We are looking for well-written, fresh, exciting and thought-provoking manuscripts," Dr. Glasser added.

Entries must be received no later than March 20 and may be sent to Dr. Glasser, UPO 1274, Morehead State University, Morehead, Ky. 40351. Additional information is available by calling Dr. Glasser, (606) 783-2201.

GRASS TETANY

COPYRIGHT 1987 KVMA
 Kentucky Veterinary Medical Association
 The textbooks on animal husbandry all too often explain grass tetany as occurring when "animals are grazing lush pasture early in the spring."
 If you live in Kentucky, better not count on it being only a spring-time condition. Ideal conditions for grass tetany to develop are lush growth of cool-season grasses; high levels of nitrate, potassium and moisture in the soil; soil temperature between 40 and 60 degrees; cows that are calving or have calves.
 All these conditions are seen in Kentucky between October and April. Cows calve the year round, the ground tends to be wet in the winter (and may be more so this year because of heavy fall rains) and ground temperature frequently warms to 40 degrees or more in mid-winter.
 Grass tetany is a disorder primarily of cattle (occasionally sheep and goats) that results from an extremely low level of magnesium in the blood. Mostly it affects cows at calving or those with calves up to a month old, and robust cows with big calves and high levels of milk production seem most vulnerable. Other cattle may also be affected, including yearling stocker cattle and bucket fed calves, but are not as likely to develop the condition.
 Signs of grass tetany include excitability, convulsions, incoordination such as a cow attempting to get up but can't. Once symptoms are seen, treatment must be started immediately, will be costly and may not be successful.
 Prevention is the treatment of choice, and is really a simple procedure.
 Cattle don't store magnesium in their bodies and must eat the needed amount daily. This may be as much as two ounces per day of magnesium oxide or some other magnesium compound. Apparently it is distasteful, so a mixture is usually fed which disguises the taste and may or may not include other needed elements.
 Magnesium deficiencies may have other adverse effects, including failure to breed back on schedule.
 Your veterinarian is your best source of information regarding magnesium deficiencies, how to prevent them and how to detect if it is occurring. He is also expert in all areas of nutrition and can instruct you in creating a custom diet for the animals on your farm.

Bone Up On Bulk Meats Before Buying Bargain

Consumers considering a bulk meat purchase should ask several questions and get answers they understand before signing anything.

Warrie Means, Extension meats specialist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, said most meat cutters are honest, but that there are always one or two who intentionally mislead customers.

The principle area of misunderstanding in many bulk meat purchases is in the difference between the weight paid for and the weight delivered. Sales of this type are usually made based on carcass weight. That's the weight of the animal minus its skin, hooves, head and organs.

"Carcass, or slaughter, weight is the weight of the entire side or half of beef. It includes all the excess fat and bone. Retail weight, the weight of the wrapped packages of meat, usually is between 60 and 80 percent of the carcass weight," Means said.

At a yield of 70 percent, a 300 pound side of beef would produce 210 pounds of meat. About 70 pounds of that will be steaks or high quality roasts. The remaining 140 pounds will be ground beef, lower quality roasts and stew meat.

"Almost all meat cutters add a cutting and wrapping fee to the price quoted for the side of beef, the less than scrupulous meat cutters are not always candid about that added cost," Means said. "Some may even add a storage or delivery fee."

Even though a contract may have an agreed upon amount filled in at the bottom, wording within the contract may allow for various fees and service charges to be added to that amount.

Another tactic common among dishonest butchers is to promise extras, such as chickens or hot dogs, as part of the deal, and then not deliver them. If they are not specifically mentioned in the contract there may be little the consumer can do.

"The key to making a sensible purchase is to look for the things that dishonest people don't do, such as stay in business in the same place for several years," Means said.

Kentucky's attorney general recently obtained a court order to stop Butcher Shop Meats in Louisville and Perryville from doing business. But he's having trouble locating the owners of the company to question them, according to a release from that office.

"Most butchers are honest, and currently advertised prices for good quality carcasses are economical buys, if you can use all the cuts you get. But the lower quality carcasses some not-so-honest people are selling are not good buys at the same price," Means said.

Here are some things Means said to watch for:

—Know the weight you're paying for.
 —Know the quality grade. Most grocery stores offer USDA Choice beef. USDA Good or USDA Standard should cost less.

—Know the yield grade. This tells you how much of the carcass is going to be waste. Yield grade 1 is rare, grades 2 and 3 are most common, grades 4 and 5 have the most fat, and will yield fewer retail cuts.

—Know any additional costs, such as cutting and wrapping fees. Currently in Kentucky cutting and wrapping fees, together, range from 15 to 25 cents per carcass pound.

—Be certain any bonuses (hot dogs, chickens, bacon etc.) are spelled out in the contract.

Lenders May Not Discriminate By Reason Of Gender, Divorce

By Attorney General David L. Armstrong

When you apply for credit, your sex, race, age and marital status should not matter. The Equal Credit Opportunity Act (ECOA) prevents creditors from considering these factors in determining your creditworthiness.

Consumers have equal rights in every phase of the credit application process. Keep in mind that even though creditors cannot discriminate in those areas, they may use your income, expenses, debts (including child support), and credit history as factors to determine whether you may get credit. You can still be turned down for other reasons.

According to the Equal Credit Opportunity Act, a creditor cannot:

—Discourage you from applying for credit for such reasons as your age, race, religion or because you receive any type of public assistance income;

—Ask whether you are divorced or widowed. In fact, they can only ask about your marital status if you are asking for a separate account from your spouse and you ask the creditor to consider his/her income in your application; and —Ask if you have children or if you plan to have children.

One of the biggest problems faced by many women applying for credit is that they have never had credit in their name. Without a credit history, it is very difficult to get credit. The ECOA allows a divorced or widowed person to use her past spouse's credit rating as her own. If the credit rating is good, the woman must show how she helped. If the rating is bad, however, she can show her husband handled all the finances if that was the case. This would insulate her from his poor credit rating.

After June 1, 1977, the ECOA has required that creditors reporting credit histories to bureaus or other creditors must report information on accounts in both names of a married couple. Therefore, if you are currently married, you may want to contact the local credit bureau to make sure they have used both names on the accounts you had before that date. This insures both spouses have the same credit history.

If you suspect you have been discriminated against in violation of the ECOA, complain to the creditor first. If that does not help, you may decide to seek legal help. You may recover actual damages, a penalty paid by the creditor, and possibly reasonable attorney's fees should the attorney have to sue the creditor for being in violation of the law.

MIXING ANTACIDS

More than half a billion dollars are spent each year in the U.S. on antacids. That makes these products among the most popular over-the-counter (OTC) drugs. The tablets and liquids are gulped down for the relief of heartburn, sour stomach and indigestion. Although many consumers take antacids rather casually, these drugs are not as harmless as they may seem. For one thing, antacids can affect the way other drugs behave in the body. They can speed the absorption of some prescription drugs, and slow it for others. Anyone who uses antacids should be familiar with the label warning of those that contain aluminum, calcium or magnesium. Such antacids should not be mixed with any form of tetracycline.

COOLEY APOTHECARY carries what you would expect to find in a well inventoried drug store. We are very proud to be able to provide families in this area with all their pharmaceutical needs. Our records are fully maintained so that they can be readily available to both you and your physician. You'll find us located at No. 2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106 and open Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-4. MasterCard and Visa honored plus we welcome all third party payments.

HANDY HINT: Always tell your physician about your antacid use before he prescribes a drug.

Learn to Knit Sweater?

Join Elizabeth Zimmermann and learn to knit a sweater when KET airs a "Knitting Workshop Special." Tuesday, March 17, at 7 p.m.

Zimmerman, author of three books and a regular knitting newsletter, will be teaching how to knit a seamless yoke sweater in this one hour special.

Zimmermann is an advocate of circular knitting and the use of unusual yarns.

In 1958, she began selling her designs to knitting magazines. Shaped in unique and simple ways, her sweaters were an "instant success."

Seek Students For UN, New York Tour

The State YMCA of Kentucky is now accepting applications for its 1987 UN/Big Apple Tour to be held April 8-12. Students in grades 8-12 are invited to participate in this program aimed at exploring the cultures that make up this country and the relations between all the nations of the world.

A special United Nations workshop and tour will enable students to learn first-hand about the intricacy of international relations and to meet world leaders. Many other fascinating sites and attractions will be visited as well.

For more information about this unique program contact District Director Theresa Lubke, at the State YMCA district office, 900 Kentucky Parkway, Owensboro, Ky. 42301 or phone (502) 684-1418. Information may also be obtained from the state office by phoning (502) 227-7028/7030.
