

Case Before Supreme Court May Affect Many Ex-Miners

In a case that could affect many former coal miners disabled by black-lung disease, attorneys for a Pike county miner have pursued his claim as far as the U.S. Supreme Court.

At issue is whether the money he was awarded in black lung benefits should have been deducted for four years from his social security check.

Robert McCown, who had been receiving Social Security disability benefits since 1966, initially filed for black lung in August, 1970 and was denied. It was a time when three out of four claims were being rejected.

And, even when they were granted, the Social Security Administration then running the program figured that any black-lung benefits awarded should be deducted from any other disability benefits the retired miners were receiving.

Since the Reagan Administration budget strictures of 1981, much the same situation has prevailed, although the program is now administered by the Department of Labor: eligibility guidelines are narrow and miners receiving black-lung compensation are not paid Social Security disability benefits as well.

For a time, however, the black lung program was administered more liberally. That was when black-lung advocacy groups were active and miners and their families had a powerful champion in the late Seventh District Congressman Carl D. Perkins. The Black Lung Benefits Reform Act of 1977 made it easier to qualify for benefits and, for those who had filed claims before 1974, Congress held their black lung benefits should not be counted against their social security checks.

McCown was one of 24,403 claimants originally held ineligible but awarded benefits under the 1977 reform. Since 1966 he had been receiving disability benefits which, his attorneys say, should have been unaffected by his newly-won black-lung benefits.

However, in July, 1979 the former miner received notice that his social security benefits would be reduced by (See Story No. 1, Page 4)

Floyd Miner's Case Also Awaits Ruling

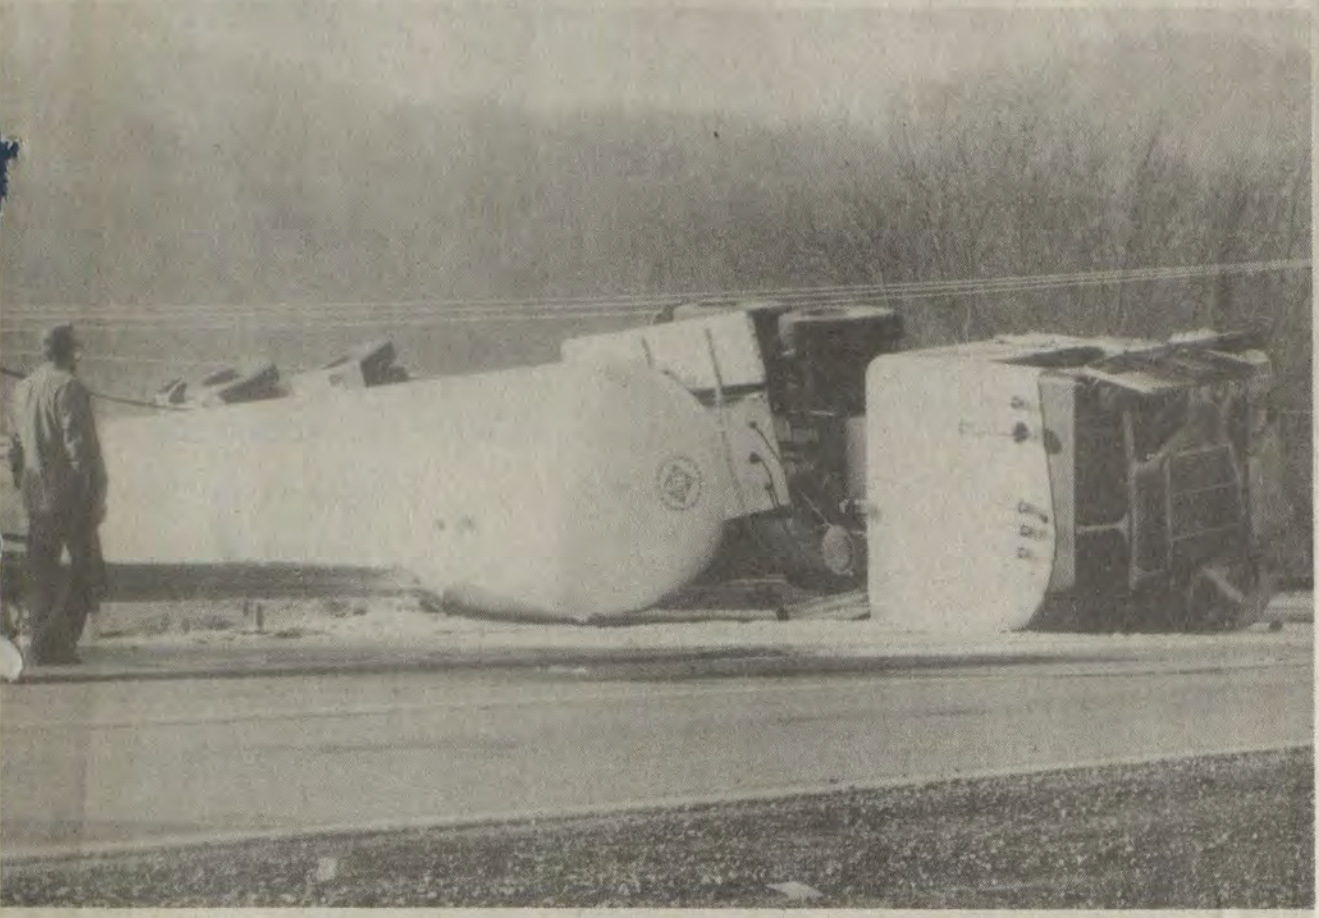

Among the cases postponed or conditionally dismissed pending a Supreme Court ruling on the McCown case, is that of Ray Ward, 62, of McDowell.

A disabled coal miner, Ward applied for black lung benefits in May, 1970 and was at first denied, but was granted them in 1979 under the more liberal 1977 amendments to the Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act of 1969.

In 1984, Ward received notice not only that his Social Security disability benefits would thereafter be reduced by the amount of his black lung check but that he would be billed for the amount that "should" have been deducted during the previous five years.

Among other arguments, Ward's attorneys argued that, as a change in rule, the Secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services was required but failed to publish the offset policy 30 days prior to its becoming effective.

The case was filed in April, 1985 by ARDF attorneys John Rosenberg and Stephen A. Sanders and by Gill Deford, a lawyer with the National Senior Citizens Law Center in Los Angeles.

Court of Appeals To Hear Unmined Coal Tax Question

An issue that has been as warmly debated in this county as anywhere in the state is scheduled to be argued this (Wednesday) morning in the Kentucky Court of Appeals. The question before the court is whether the state's minuscule tax on unmined coal is constitutional.

The appeal has been brought by state and coal industry representatives against a July 10, 1985 ruling by Franklin Circuit Judge William Graham, who said the present tax on unmined coal is so tiny it amounts to an unconstitutional exemption.

While the legislature may classify property for taxation purposes, it may not exempt a class of property from contributing to the cost of government, the judge ruled. He ordered the state Revenue Cabinet to start collecting taxes on coal in the ground at the rate of 22 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

The ruling came as a victory for the Kentucky Fair Tax Coalition, a citizens' group which has had an active chapter in this county and maintained a Prestonsburg office since its founding in 1981, and which now claims members in 66 Kentucky counties. The group urged that unmined coal be taxed at the same rate as other real property instead of at a rate of a cent per $100—the rate set by the General Assembly in 1978.

Graham denied a KFTC request to assess coal at the 22-cent rate retroactively to 1979. Moreover, his order directing state officials to start collecting at the 22-cent rate in 1986 was stayed by the Court of Appeals at the request of the Revenue Cabinet and the Kentucky Coal Association.

If the appeals court hands down a decision this year, that will not necessarily be the last word on the subject. The decision could yet be appealed to a higher court—or the issue could again be taken up by the legislature, which meets again in 1988.

Until 1975, coal was classified with other real property for tax purposes and, even after it was separated by the 1976 General Assembly, it was taxed at the real property rate—then 31.5 cents per $100.

After Revenue Department officials complained it was practically impossible to get fair and consistent appraisals of coal deposits, the 1978 legislature slashed the tax rate to one-tenth of a cent, while raising the severance tax—a levy paid when the coal is mined and sold—from 4 to 4.5 percent. The tax on coal in the ground is so small, it does not even pay the state to collect it.

State Auditor Makes Annual Report to Court

In her annual report to the Floyd County Fiscal Court, State Auditor Mary Ann Tobin made three recommendations to the court to improve the county's financial standing.

First, citing a revenue sharing regulation that requires a county to audit any business receiving over $25,000 in business from the county, Tobin's report called for an audit of Floyd County Solid Waste, Inc. since payments made by the county in the past two years have amounted to $282,500. Yet the recommendation came too late. Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo, aware of the regulation and in an effort to improve the county's bond rating, had the audit done back in the fall. "The audit's been made, and I think it's finished," Judge Stumbo said.

In another recommendation, the State Auditor asked that the Sheriff's County bond be raised from $50,000 to $735,000. (See Story No. 4, Page 4)

Ride on Wild Side Ends As Truck Driver Jailed

1987 got off to a rough start for a 23-year-old Oklahoma man who stopped just short of driving his tractor trailer truck into May Lodge in the early hours of New Year's Day.

James Phillips, of Moore, Okla., driver for an Omaha, Nebraska company apparently missed a turnoff on Rt.

80, and somehow wound up at the lodge, where, failing to negotiate the turn-around, he applied the brakes. Although the lodge is unscathed, a flag pole and garbage can there will never be the same.

Park Ranger Jerry Daniels first sighted Phillips when he passed by the amphitheatre parking lot at an estimated 60-65 miles per hour. When Daniels attempted to arrest him, Phillips, who was barefoot, asked to get his shoes from the truck. This seemed a reasonable request, but upon gaining entry to the cab, Phillips locked the doors, revved up, and according to Capt. Rodney Holbrook, of the park rangers, attempted to run over Daniels.

The saga takes on an even more bizarre aspect at this point. Daniels, who had prudently called for backup, found himself, in Smokey and the Bandit parlance, pursued by the "pursuee" as the chase, in reverse, traveled back over the Lake Road to the intersection of 1428 and US 23, where Phillips took a left turn toward Allen.

In the meantime, both Daniels and Capt. Holbrook, who had answered the call for backup, felt that the situation was rapidly getting out of hand and sent out a call for help.

Prestonsburg policemen Chuck Akers, Darrell Conley, and Greg Hall, seeing the direction of the chase, went ahead to close the intersection at Allen. And a good thing, too, according to Captain Holbrook, who was following Phillips.

"He never even put on his brakes but went right through a redlight, on over into old Allen," Holbrook said. (See Story No. 2, Page 4)

Gas Tanker Overturns, Knocks Out Area Power

No one was hurt, but hundreds of people were affected when a tanker truck carrying liquified petroleum (LP) gas overturned on U.S. 23 south of Hager Hill early Monday morning.

Many commuters on the busy highway were late for work because traffic had to be rerouted onto highways 1428 and 460 for most of the day.

"The truck was blocking part of the road, plus we had a small leak," explained Kentucky State Police Trooper Paul Estep, who was at the scene. "The leak was small, but it was large enough to wipe out a large area if it ignited."

The truck hit a power pole, which caused a power outage for more than 2,700 customers in Floyd and Johnson counties. Service was not completely restored until early afternoon.

A telephone cable also was cut during the accident, and service to about 225 customers along U.S. 23 was knocked out until about 8 Monday night. Some telephone customers in Floyd county also experienced a slight break in service.

Auxier Grade School had to be closed for the day because it lacked heat and electricity, giving about 170 students an extra day of vacation. All of the public schools in Johnson county were closed for the day although only two elementary schools were actually without power.

Due to the power outage, cable television service was cut for about 2,500 customers in the two counties. It was not restored until early Monday afternoon.

The cause of the accident is still under investigation, according to Estep. No other vehicles were involved when the truck flipped over at about 4 a.m. Monday, he said.

The truck driver, Michael Brigner of Beaver, Ohio, was taken to Paul B. Hall Regional Medical Center in Paintsville, where he was treated and released. The truck, which had to be towed from the scene, was owned by Bulk Transit of Plain City, Ohio.

Jury Orders RECC To Pay $1,000 Damages

A District Court jury awarded Debra Gambill of Spurlock Creek $1000 in punitive damages against Big Sandy Rural Electric Cooperative Corporation. The jury trial resulted from a complaint by Gambill after her power was disconnected July 29 following a billing dispute.

Calling it a classic case of corporate arrogance, Ned Pillersdorf, attorney for the plaintiff, said, "I was proud of this jury for awarding the punitive damages against a pushy power company."

Pillersdorf based his case on a tort of outrageous conduct. "Mrs. Gambill and her husband struggle to pay their bills, and when the power company overcharged them, it broke their budget." He said the company then acted outrageously when they refused to accept payment on the bill and immediately cut off their power.

It was the defense's contention, according to attorney William G. Francis, that Gambill failed to pay her bills and that she was given sufficient notice before her power was disconnected. "She was sent two written notices."

New Process Ready to Boost Child Support Collections

Significant changes in the handling of approximately one-third of Kentucky's 175,000 existing child support cases is moving off the drawing board and into implementation beginning in January.

That's when the state Department for Social Insurance will start the final training on new administrative procedures to enforce court-ordered as well as other selected child support obligations.

David Cathers, director of the state Division of Child Support Enforcement, said, "We can use the administrative process directly on the 60,000 or so cases in which we know where the non-supporting parent lives, works or is drawing unemployment benefits."

"In the past, under administrative process regulations, we only had the authority to collect past due child support payments. Through administrative process, we can now enforce current as well as past due support payments."

New laws allow withholding adequate amounts to cover past and current child support payments from wages and earnings, federal and state income tax returns and unemployment insurance benefits.

Administrative process also allows the division to establish a child support order without going through the judicial process in cases where paternity is not an issue or there is no court-ordered support obligation.

Groundwork for Kentucky's new child support enforcement procedures began with enactment of laws by the 1984 and 1986 General Assemblies establishing the administrative process. The division has spent the last six months developing the policies which are now ready for use.

In Kentucky, the new administrative process will augment, rather than replace, the existing system of child support enforcement solely through local county attorneys and the state court system.

A series of 10 seminars on the new administrative process begins Jan. 12 to help familiarize child support enforcement workers and county attorneys who will be dealing with the new rules and regulations.

"This training program will be available to county attorneys on a voluntary basis," Cathers said. "We expect a majority of the larger urban areas will participate in the training. Approximately 75 percent of the affected cases are in the larger urban parts of the state."

The training program should be completed by the middle of March.

Cathers noted that the administrative process would affect enforcement procedures several ways.

"We feel the process will have a positive effect on persons responsible for providing child support payments," he said. "Once it becomes apparent that we are going to enforce obligations through available channels, we hope that many of these parents will voluntarily keep up their payments."

Speeding up the enforcement process will be a major advantage of the new regulations, but it won't make the division's job any easier.

"The new regulations will make our job harder because more of our people will be actively pursuing a larger number of cases," Cathers said. "But that will make it easier for custodial parents to collect child support due them and that's why this division is here."

"WONDERWORKS" IN NEW SEASON

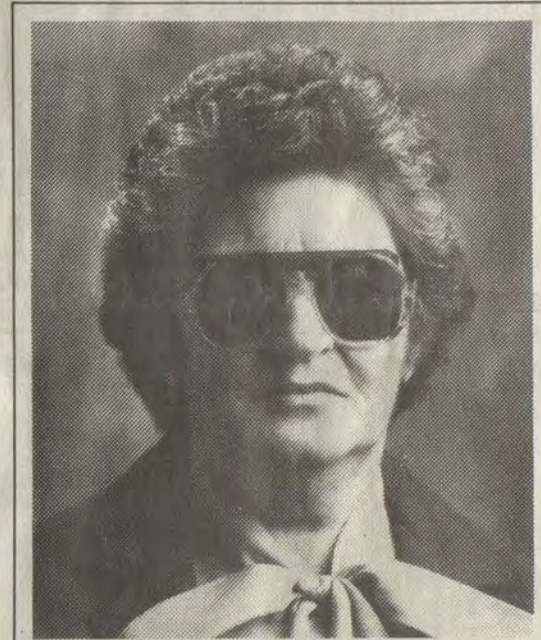

"Wonderworks," public television's highly acclaimed family anthology series, premieres the third season of new productions when "Walking On Air" airs Saturday, January 17, at 8:00 p.m. on KET. "Wonderworks" repeats Sundays at 11:00 a.m.

"Walking On Air" is a dramatization of an original story by famed science fiction writer Ray Bradbury. It tells the story of Danny, portrayed by Jordan Marder, who uses a wheelchair.

Danny discovers the wonderful feeling of weightlessness during a hydrotherapy swimming class. Danny confronts his friends, family—and NASA—to ensure the realization of his dream: to walk in space.

Danny's quest to conquer the odds and prove his own abilities is aided by an unorthodox and slightly eccentric science teacher, Mrs. Hepp, portrayed by Lynn Redgrave. She supports and encourages young Danny in a number of unusual ways which results in a surprise ending.

"Walking On Air" is produced by KCET/Los Angeles. "Wonderworks" is presented by the PBS Children's and Family Consortium headed by WQED/Pittsburgh and including KCET/Los Angeles, KTCV/Minneapolis-St. Paul, South Carolina ETV Network and WETA/Washington, D.C.

the amount he was receiving in federal black-lung payments. His $277 Social Security check was cut to $20.50. Not until he turned 62, four years later, were his social security benefits restored.

McCown was one of a sizeable number in the same boat—miners who lodged black-lung claims before 1974 and were declared eligible only after the 1977 amendments. Lawyers from the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund of Ky. (ARDF), which is representing McCown, have seven similar cases pending in U.S. District Court in Pikeville. All are being held in abeyance pending disposition of McCown's case.

Both the federal district court in Pikeville and the U.S. Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati have upheld the Labor Department decision to cut McCown's Social Security payments. ARDF Director John Rosenberg filed recently to have the case heard by the U.S. Supreme Court and the Labor Department has two months in which to respond to the petition.

The Labor Dept. has argued that McCown's black-lung claim was not approved until 1978, by which time an offset of black lung against social security payments was in effect. Rosenberg contends, however, that the miner's claim was improperly denied in 1970 and that the 1977 reform was enacted precisely because "many seemingly allowable claims involving miners with extended coalmining work were curiously being denied."

"If these claims had been initially approved as they should have been, these disabled miners would be entitled to a prohibition against offsetting their social security benefits," Rosenberg argues in his brief. Not only were miners like McCown improperly denied benefits until the 1977 reform remedied the situation, they were then "subjected to a further penalty" by having their social security disability benefits reduced, he argues.

None of the other 303,631 claimants who successfully petitioned for black lung benefits prior to 1974 had them offset against social security payments, the attorney noted.

Fundamentally, Rosenberg said, the question is one of society's responsibility to those whose health has been destroyed as they mined coal for the nation. When Congress created the black-lung program under the 1969 Coal Mine Health and Safety Act, the memory of a mine disaster the year before in Farmington, W. Va. was still fresh. Two funds—black lung and social security—were now available to take care of disabled miners and, Rosenberg argues, "Congress intended that disabled miners be able to draw from both."

However public and Congressional sentiment may have changed in the meantime, the attorney argued, claims like McCown's were filed at a time when Congress specifically provided that black-lung was to be paid in addition to disability benefits.

which would approximately equal the largest amount of taxes collected in a one-month period.

A revenue bond is an insurance policy against theft or loss of public money. To raise the current bond to $735,000 would cost the county about $10,000 a year, according to Judge Stumbo, and he feels a $50,000 bond is adequate since the Sheriff's department turns over the taxes collected every month and the monthly revenue never reaches a sum that large. Floyd county lost $400,000 in Federal Revenue Sharing funds, and to make up for the lost revenue, the county must economize every way it can. This is one way the county can save money, the Judge said.

The auditor also called for improved purchasing procedures in regard to the way the county purchased gravel from Grayson Coal and Stone Company, but when taken to task by county magistrates and Judge Stumbo over its recommendation, the state official from the auditor's office, admitted it was a minor matter. The report noted that in some cases materials purchased exceeded the purchase order and that weight tickets had inaccurate or no purchase numbers on them. Yet county treasurer David Allen said an error was made by a girl in the Grayson office on a delivery ticket and not by the county. "We're especially careful with purchase orders," Judge Stumbo said. "Now the orders come out of a computer and are matched with the bills we receive, so we won't be overcharged."

The state auditor's report is made to help manage the operations of the county in a manner consistent with effective accounting and compliance controls.

There, he took a sharp right toward the Allen Grade School. Now, they had him! Right? Wrong. Another unexpected move, this time a 90-degree turn, took him onto the railroad tracks. Here, finally, the ride on the wild side came to halt.

The officers were unable to contact C&O officials and, fearing the possibility of an oncoming locomotive, they forced entry into the locked cab and removed the unwilling driver, who, according to Capt. Holbrook, "fought like a wildcat."

Thus ended the New Year's Day ride of James Phillips who remains lodged in the county jail here, facing charges of wanton endangerment, driving under the influence of alcohol, fourth degree assault on a police officer, terroristic threatening, attempt to elude, reckless driving, resisting arrest, and criminal mischief.

Far from home and without friends, Phillips appeared bewildered as he was arraigned, Monday, in district court. He is being held on $35,000 bond and says he cannot afford a lawyer.

Francis said that her check for payment wasn't accepted because her bank would not verify that sufficient funds were in her account to cover the amount. He added that her power was restored the day after she paid her bill.

During the trial, Pillersdorf questioned the RECC's practice of charging its late-paying customers a monthly penalty interest of 10%. The attorney figured Gambill's annual penalty would be about 132%. "What gives you the right to charge this outrageously high interest penalty?" Pillersdorf asked an RECC official on the stand. The Public Service Commission granted them permission was the witness's reply, according to Pillersdorf.

The RECC may appeal the case to the Floyd Circuit Court, the attorney for the power company said.

Bits and Pieces

OUT OF KILTER

The earth must have tilted a little more on its axis; time is out of joint; the old gray mare ain't what she used to be; or, to sum it up, something's bad wrong. I haven't written 1986 even once yet this year of 1987.

That's just not normal.

WINTER'S REWARD

Winter does have its rewards. Chief among them is, in our opinion, an open fire.

Not efficient, you say. Who cares? There is in an open fire a warmth that kindles, if you will, the soul.

THE WINDSHIELD SYNDROME

This is the season that tries men's (and women's) souls. That is to say, it is the time when every morning one sallies forth—early or late—ready to face another day only to find the old jalopy frosted or iced to the visibility zero point.

Now, I have wasted much too much on devices calculated to avoid just this situation. First I bought—not only for myself but for friends and family—a little thing called the "No Frost Windshield Cloth," specially treated to keep frost from forming on same. To my certain knowledge no one ever used it. If not used, it doesn't work.

Then, inspired by my late good friend and neighbor, Jesse Lafferty, who always covered his windshield—another good use for newspapers—and went blithely on his way every wintry morning while I scraped, and scraped, shivering with one frostbitten hand turning blue. (I never have two gloves, having always lost one. So I keep one hand in a pocket. Anyway, you're not supposed to shake hands with a glove on. It works out very well except for windshield scraping.)

Anyway, to return, I think, to what I was saying, I next bought plastic shields with magnets to attach to the car. Now, I thought, that should be easy enough even for slothful sluggards such as yours truly and company. Not so. You just can't help some people.

I finally gave up in disgust, disillusionment, loss of faith, and a sneaking feeling that there is a yawning flaw in the old genes.

But there is nothing as illogical as a mother's love; hope springs eternal, and all that rot. This year, I once again ventured into the vast realm of gadgets guaranteed to ease the pain of windshield de-icing. The latest foray in futurity is a fur-lined scraper mitt. That's for the hand you've lost the glove for—right or left—make no diff.

This is absolutely, positively my last effort to beat the windshield syndrome.

LOOKING AHEAD

We have known, as have many others, sorrow in the past year, and of course, it does not pass easily or with the beginning of a new year. While things cannot ever be the same, still we look back with gratitude for the good things—and people—we have known. We look forward with hope, and we wish for you and for ourselves a better, happier time in 1987.

Lake Shore Cleanup Effort Is Praised

The efforts of Endicott residents to clean up the Dewey Lake foreshore there drew praise last week from W. Dean Murray, resource manager at the lake. "Users of Dewey Lake, the (U.S. Army) Corps of Engineers, and the state of Kentucky will all benefit from their efforts," he said.

The cleanup involved clearing 4 1/2 miles of roadside—from Cow Mountain to the head of Buffalo Creek—of brush and trees. In addition, 100 bags of trash were collected.

The work was done by the Endicott Community Development Club, a group that was organized last July, according to its president, Helen Chaffin. Since the fall cleanup project, the club has been raising money through yard sales and other fundraisers with a view to constructing a community building to double as a firehouse.

Long-range plans also include development of a picnic area and baseball field. Mrs. Chaffin said.

Goble Case Will Go Before Grand Jury

Pauline Goble, charged in the shooting death of her husband, Dan Goble, has waived her right to a preliminary hearing, according to District Court authorities. The case will now go before the grand jury when it convenes the first week in February.

Goble, a well-known and respected citizen of Prestonsburg, was shot in the course of a domestic dispute in his Graham Street home, December 18. His wife, who was arrested following the shooting, was arraigned in District Court, Monday, and freed after posting a $10,000 property bond.

Goble, who was manager of the Strand theatre for many years, had also operated a shoeshine stand for 20 years in Tom Moore's barber shop that once stood where the municipal parking lot is now.

Attorney Cassie J. Allen will be representing Pauline Goble.

$5,000 Is Goal Set For Endowment Fund

Three Prestonsburg graduates of Berea College have joined to initiate an endowment fund in memory of a fellow alumnus, Jane Ann Kendrick, who died last May 8.

Miss Kendrick was a lifelong resident of Prestonsburg and was well-known to local residents because of her work as an announcer for WDOC radio and as desk clerk supervisor at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park. She was a volunteer in many community activities and also served as secretary-treasurer of the Big Sandy Chapter of the Berea College Alumni Association.

"To know Jane Ann was to love her," wrote Kathryn S. Frazier, Harmonism Hale, and Dan Rowland in a recent letter announcing the endowment fund. "Her quick smile, ready wit, and total generosity were a bright light in the world of all who knew her."

In order for the fund to qualify for endowment status, at least $5,000 must be raised within the next three years. The fund will then be self-perpetuating, and the interest from it will make up the Jane Ann Kendrick Volunteer Service Award, to be presented each year to a Berea student active in volunteer service.

Checks for the Jane Ann Kendrick Endowment Fund may be made payable to Berea College and mailed to Tom Arnold, Director of Alumni Relations, Berea College Alumni Association, CPO 2343, Berea, KY 40404.

HRMC Surgery Slates Open House, Sunday

Highlands Regional is offering the public a rare opportunity to look at a frequently used, but seldom viewed area of the Medical Center. Highlands is going to open the entire operating suite, Sunday, January 11, from 2-5 p.m. for public tours.

"How many people have really seen the inside of an operating room while they're awake?" asked Carol Blevins, Public Information Officer at HRMC. "The answer to that question is, not too many," she added. "That's the reason we decided to have an open house in surgery, so people can see what an operating room is really like."

The tour will begin at the south side of the suite and will end in the recovery room with refreshments. There will be several local physicians on hand to answer any questions. Everyone attending will receive a free mini first aid kit.

Survey Reveals Cross Section Of Americans Host Foreign Students

A survey by a leading educational exchange organization has revealed that American families who bring foreign students into their homes and hearts are as diverse as the students themselves. The survey was conducted by the American Institute For Foreign Study Scholarship Foundation, a Greenwich, Connecticut based non-profit educational exchange organization which this year has arranged homestay/high school stays for nearly 800 students with families in 46 states.

Students come from Spain, Germany, Japan, The Netherlands, Brazil and many other countries. Their host families include doctors, teachers, lawyers, coal miners, farmers and many others.

Over 65% of the families surveyed described themselves as professionals, 25% blue collar workers, 7% self-employed.

In another significant finding, although 3% of the families surveyed decided to host a foreign student because they wanted companions for their teenage children, 20% had children of college age who were no longer living at home. For these families, hosting a foreign student satisfies the "empty nest syndrome."

Parents who decide to host a foreign student are generally middle aged. According to the survey, 77% are between 30 and 50 years of age, 13% fifty and over and only 4% between 20 and 29.

Two thirds of families surveyed have traveled outside the United States. They now want to continue their international experiences by hosting a foreign student and "sharing America with the world."

Families also reported that the reason they decided to host a foreign student to learn a foreign language and to share their way of life with fellow world citizens.

The American Institute For Foreign Study Scholarship Foundation is affiliated with AIFS, Inc., a publicly owned educational services company which designs and operates a broad range of educational and cultural programs throughout the world.

The Foundation programs have been reviewed and accepted for listing by the Council On Standards for International Educational Travel (CSIET), a non-profit group which monitors the high school student exchange field.

HEAP Phase Ends, Crisis Phase Opens

The second phase of the 1986-87 Home Energy Assistance program (HEAP) ended yesterday with only two of the state's 15 districts having funds, Department for Social Insurance officials announced.

Remaining funds from the second phase will be carried over to the final or crisis HEAP phase, which begins Jan. 5. The segment is scheduled to run through April 30 or until available funds are exhausted.

"During the second phase, six districts exhausted funds after the first day and all but three of the remaining districts were closed by the end of the first week," said Social Insurance Commissioner Mike Robinson. "We expect to process more than 53,000 applications taken during the six-week period."

The two districts which did not exhaust funds during the phase were the Bluegrass and Northern Kentucky districts, which encompass 25 counties in the central and northern parts of the state.

"Applications for the crisis segment will be taken by the 24 community action agencies across the state," said Robinson. "Each agency will announce locations for all counties in their area where applications will be taken."

During this phase, people who have lost their heating source, are facing such a loss within five days or have received a disconnect notice are eligible to apply for assistance, according to Jesse Amburgey, executive secretary of the Kentucky Association for Community Action.

"In contrast to the first two HEAP segments, help is available not only for heating assistance, but also for blankets, sleeping bags, space heaters, an alternative heat source and minor repairs to a home heating system," said Amburgey.

He pointed out that the maximum benefit allowed will be the minimum amount necessary to alleviate the home heating crisis, up to the limit set by state regulation.

"All payments during this segment will be made directly to the assistance or energy provider," he added. "No payments will be made to clients."

According to Robinson, the department has allocated $6 million in HEAP funds for this phase of the program. A reserve fund from the total amount has been set aside to take care of emergency situations which occur after March 15.

Funds will be allocated to each Community Action Agency according to the percentage of families below the poverty level in the district the agency serves.

Local media in each county are to announce sites where applications will be taken. Persons who miss the announcement or wish to apply at a later date may call 1-800-221-2907 to find the application site in their county.

Food Prices Jump In Latest Survey

Retail food prices in Kentucky moved up sharply during November, reflecting higher tabs on meat, eggs and produce, according to Kentucky Farm Bureau's marketbasket survey.

The 40-item marketbasket cost $62.01 last month, 2.2 percent above the October figure and a full 8 percent higher than a year ago.

The change means that consumers paid about $5 more for the 40 food items during November this year than they did in November of 1985.

Showing the largest percentage increases were the categories of poultry/eggs and fruits/vegetables. Both groupings jumped better than 7 percent in average price during the month, reflecting higher costs for such items as frying chickens, eggs, potatoes, apples and tomatoes.

Beef and pork showed small average price hikes even though such popular cuts as T-bone steaks and bacon actually dropped. Top gainers were rib eye steaks, up 47 cents to $4.79 a pound, and sausage, up 25 cents selling for $4.55 a 2-pound package.

For the month, gainers, those items which increased in price, outnumbered decliners better than 2 to 1 on the survey.

Retail-farm price comparisons for November show mixed results. USDA says grain prices moved up slightly during the month, but remained very near levels that are the lowest in two decades.

Livestock prices, on the other hand, were slightly lower in November, but well above year-ago levels. Analysts say livestock production is expanding, as more farmers look to replace lost profits on row crops by producing meat animals. That trend could easily lead to lower hog and cattle prices over the next 12 to 18 months, they say.

Richmond was lowest among the local marketbasket surveys in November while Dry Ridge occupied the high spot. Overall, volunteers working through Kentucky Farm Bureau Women canvassed retail food prices in 20 Kentucky communities.

Those local averages were Richmond, 55.22; Georgetown, 55.54; Glasgow, 56.43; Hopkinsville, 56.92; Campbellsville, 57.56; Danville, 57.83; Scottsville, 57.96; London, 58.47; Louisville, 58.76.

Greenup and Lexington, 58.98; Greensburg, 59.29; Owensboro, 61.14; Shelbyville, 61.78; Jackson, 62.09; Tompkinsville, 62.83; Elizabethtown, 63.66; Hazard, 65.43; and Dry Ridge, 67.34.

THE FAMILY 11.

In Memoriam To "The World's Greatest Dad" DAN GOBLE

In remembrance of our father, Dan Goble, he was the most loving man in the world, but with a stern hand.

As a young boy our dad became a man working hard each day shining shoes in order to help his parents.

He always told each of his six children how important a good education was, and let us know how much he wanted all of us to get the formal education he never had, but he was self-educated far beyond most people. There wasn't anything our dad couldn't talk about. I always compared him with Abraham Lincoln. All of his children looked up to and admired him for all his acknowledgments.

Our father was always a religious man. He saw that each of us attended Sunday School and church every Sunday. Just recently he became a messenger for his Lord, letting everyone in his reach know how strong his love was.

Our father loved his child bride with a love so strong he told all of us many times, "I could give up all six of my children before I could give up your mother." Not taking away from the love he had for his children, because he let us know each day how much he loved us, and how proud he was of his children and grandchildren.

On Mom and Dad's 42nd Anniversary our dad made up a poem for Mom.

"All I am and hope to be, the credit is due you and not to me.

You've been my life, my everything and after all these years, I know it's true, you've done more for me than I for you.

My family says that I am great, but I know the one that must really rate.

They say that I work hard, but I've seen you still go when I am tired.

I love you now more than ever."

Dad always told us he hoped he would go before Mom, he loved her so deep.

My dad was to me "as well known as the red light in Prestonsburg" when there was only one, this was the way I always thought of him.

Our Dad was born Sept. 1, 1920, a son of the late James Commodore and Ida Reffett Goble. He passed away Dec. 18, 1986, at the age of 66, after a tragic accident. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Pauline Goble; two sons, Daniel Goble, Jr., of Hopkinsville, Ky., and James Dewey Goble, of Concord, N.C.; four daughters, Patty Chareg, of Centerville, Va., Teressa L. Carr, of Ypsilanti, Mich., Karla Goble, of Auxier, Ky., and Margaret Ann Price, of Shelbyville, Ky.; three sisters, Ann Oliver, of Prestonsburg, Ky., Marvella McCallihan, of Ohio, and Lula Mae Buchanan, of Victorville, Calif.; 14 grandchildren: Danny Goble, III, Jeffery Goble, Rusty Goble, Jason Goble, Kathy Goble, Laila Smith, Adel Chareg, Delmar Carr, Jr., Rodney Carr, Charlotte Carr, Stephanie Smiley, Paul Reffett, John Collins, Terry Price, and three great-grandchildren: Stephania Smith, Kenneth David Smiley, and Kevin Michael Smiley.

His funeral was conducted at 2 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 20, 1986 at Carter Funeral Home Chapel in Prestonsburg by the Rev. Ted Greene. Burial was made in Davidson Memorial Gardens at Ivel.

Our father would have been happy to know that he had enough grandchildren to be his pallbearers, and that all his children and grandchildren attended his funeral.

Every single day I see some wondrous lovely thing he has done or given me. My heart feels that its going to overflow, but by far the most precious gift he has given us all was the over-abundance of love and that we know he's in heaven waiting for us.

Our Father Will Be Sadly Missed By All.

Winter Health Tip:

Heater Maintenance Is Health Maintenance

By JAMES OSBORNE, Plant Supervisor and GWEN HALL, Public Relations Heaters, like people, need annual check-ups and regular cleaning. Proper care and use of your heating system is preventive health care for you. Floor furnaces, really all gas appliances, should be checked annually. Gas leaks and combustion chamber malfunctions can cause fires and carbon monoxide poisoning. Gas company representatives and specialists in heating and air conditioning can perform these tests.

Persons with central heating and air conditioning should change their system's filter every two months. More frequent changes may be required in home systems subject to excess pollen, dust or traffic. Since filter systems are usually located under the floor or outside, filter maintenance is easily overlooked or forgotten. But clean filters reduce air-borne bacteria and prevent allergy and respiratory irritations by keeping the air clean.

Wood and coal-burning stoves and furnaces should not be used to burn trash. Plastics and other trash components produce poisonous gases. Processed woods, such as railroad ties, should not be used for fuel either. Not only do they burn poorly, they also produce noxious fumes. Clean (low-sulphur) coal and hard wood (maple, oak, ash, hickory) burn better and pollute less.

Maintaining your heater can maintain your health.

To receive a free copy of this article or to ask questions about your heater's check-up or maintenance needs, write or call James Osborne, Plant Supervisor, Our Lady of the Way Hospital, Box 910, Martin, Ky. 41649, (606) 285-5181.

African Memoirs Of Extraordinary Woman, Documentary Subject

Free-roaming child of the East African highlands, successful thoroughbred racehorse trainer and pioneering aviator Beryl Markham is the subject of a one-hour documentary, "World Without Walls: Beryl Markham's African Memoir." The special airs Sunday, January 11, at 8:00 p.m. (ET), 7:00 p.m. (CT), on KET.

Featuring British actress Diana Quick (Julia in "Brideshead Revisited") as the voice of Beryl Markham, "World Without Walls" tells not only her story but also the story of the Africa that shaped her.

The program is based upon Markham's long-lost memoir, "West with the Night." Written during the short time she lived in the United States, it is the only book she has authored. Extravagantly praised by Ernest Hemingway, the book was well received upon publication in 1942, but was largely forgotten by the public until it was republished in 1983.

Markham has been described as a "Garbor-esque," non-conformist celebrity. Daring, fiercely independent, Markham grew up barefoot and wild—an Africanized European on the ragged edge of the British Empire. As a child, she spent most of her time exploring and hunting with Nandi Murani, whom she preferred to the European settlers.

Markham learned to fly in the 1930's, delivering supplies to remote areas of Africa and scouting elephants for Great White Hunters such as Denys Finch-Hatton and Baron Bror von Blixen (Isak Dinesen's husband). In the age of record-breaking long-distance flights, Markham was the first pilot to fly solo from England to North America, arriving in New York on September 5, 1936. A sought-after thoroughbred racehorse trainer, she won the Kenya Derby an unprecedented six times.

Beryl Markham died August 4, 1986 in Nairobi, Kenya. She would have been 84 years old on October 26, 1986.

"World Without Walls: Beryl Markham's African Memoir" is an SHG production in association with KQED/San Francisco.

Low-Income Families May Find Cheaper Home Loans Available

Cheaper home loans for lower-income families should be available here in the new year as the result of an agreement now being negotiated, according to Bob Meyer, a housing specialist with the Big Sandy Area Development District.

Meyer said the Kentucky Association of Counties has come to an agreement with an underwriter to sell $56 million in mortgage revenue bonds, some $3 million of it earmarked for the five counties of the Big Sandy ADD.

Because investors are not required to pay taxes on the interest they earn on them, the bonds can be sold—and home mortgage money can be loaned—at lower interest than the going market rate.

Restrictions imposed recently by the federal government mean that the pool of tax-exempt bonds a state may authorize is shrinking each year—and this year's home mortgage bond issue is targeted to a more restricted range of families than in previous years, Meyer noted.

While one-third of the mortgage money may be loaned out to applicants regardless of how much they earn, the bulk of it is reserved for families with a combined income of $31,080 or less. Applicants for earlier mortgage bond issues could earn up to around $48,000 and still be eligible.

Theoretically, the rules will permit purchase of new homes up to $81,180 and existing homes up to $68,640. But Meyer said that, realistically, the loans for which most applicants will qualify will go toward purchase of homes valued at less than $50,000.

Applicants will have to put only five percent down on the 29-year, fixed-rate loans. Interest rates will be determined at the time the loan is approved but are generally expected to be under nine percent—one-and-a-half to two points below the conventional market.

While the bond issue is authorized by the state's fiscal courts—Floyd Fiscal Court and the Big Sandy ADD's other four county governments all agreed to participate—the counties have typically authorized the AD districts to act as their agents in floating the bonds and, in some areas, the ADDs are also acting as the lending agency for homebuyers.

In the Big Sandy ADD, private lending institutions will be relied on to handle the mortgage loans, said Meyer. However, in the event that there are not participating banks in all five counties, the ADD will see that the availability of the loan money is advertised throughout the entire area, he said. As of last week, the Inez Deposit Bank and Citizens National Bank of Paintsville had agreed to participate in the lending program.

Good Riddance To 1986

By Tim Bostic, Editor
The Salyersville Independent

(Editor's note: I had intended to write something along the lines of the following, but when I read Tim Bostic's summation of 1986 in his Scanning the Scene column, I found that he said it all. Some of the particulars may not apply, but overall, I am in total agreement. 1986 was the pits.)

For the first time that I can ever remember, possibly for the first time in my life, I have very little regret about a particular year fading into history and drawing to an end.

It seems as though I am doing no more than echoing what I have heard countless others say, but 1986 hasn't been one of my better years.

There isn't one thing in particular that I can put my finger on that has contributed toward it being an off-year for me.

One could liken it to a lot of things. Athletes have off-years. Their oft-ballooned salaries sometimes seem grossly inflated when an outfielder's batting average or homerun output takes a dip.

Politicians have off-years. If you don't believe me, I wonder if President Reagan agrees with me about 1986. His popularity has obviously taken a thumping since the Iran-arms scam.

Even horses have bad years. 'Ole John Henry, the all-time leading money winner, had a couple of years that weren't exactly up to snuff compared to some of his better years.

If a person can have a bad day, who's to say they can't have at least 300 of them. Again, there's nothing in particular to really complain about. It's more in terms that these weren't really anything to write home and brag about.

Let's be completely honest. Now tell me, has this been a year to remember for Magoffin County? We've had our moments, but then again, I keep getting this impression that a dark cloud stayed around and remained over the entire county almost all year.

It seems like one's political status helped determine whether or not he or she were recipients of any sunlight. I'm dang glad my house isn't solar heated.

And for the first time in the nearly 20 years that I've lived in Salyersville, there have been times during the past twelve months when I've felt if a man wanted a true friend in Magoffin County he would have to go out and buy himself a dog.

Then again, I've had to console myself with that old adage, "The sun doesn't shine on the same dog's backside everyday."

Yes, I've already conceded it easily could be that everyone else is right, and I'm the one who's wrong. I've always been willing to accept that.

I've had my personal high moments since last January 1. Some memorable ones at that. But most have come from my immediate family and children, where good feelings are easy to harvest.

All-in-all, with the way I've felt about 1986, and this is no spur-of-the-moment analysis, I knew back in June that if the second half wasn't any better than the opening half, it was sure to be a bummer, I haven't anywhere at all to go but up.

As I write this column, I'm about 12 hours away from filing these past 365 days away as history. Farewell, good riddance. Adios.

Before anyone starts poo-hooing me, let me remind you that it was my year and I have a right to feel anyway I want to about it.

It stunk.

And with that, I hope everyone who reads this has a rewarding and bright 1987, as I hope to have myself.

After the year I've had, baby, it ain't got nowhere to go from here but up.

WORTH READING

By WILMA Y

The following item, WHY I BELIEVE THE BIBLE, was written by M.H. Duncan, B.A., A.N., (Yale) Fellow in Political Science (Yale) Supt. of Public Schools, Lubbock, Texas, author and educator. He is, or was, only one of many notables who believe the Bible and its divine writer, our creator.

"Persons who doubt that the Bible is the divinely inspired Word of God should note how often the number SEVEN is found in it, as seven is God's perfect number; 7 days of the creation, 7 years of plenty, seven years of famine; seven years Jacob served for Leah really, and seven more for Rachel; seven years Solomon took to build the temple. In Revelation, seven churches, seven candlesticks, seven stars, seven trumpets, seven plagues, seven thunders, seven vials, seven angels, and the seven-headed beast.

"A study of the seventh chapter of John in the ORIGINAL Greek should convince anyone that the scripture was fresh from the hand of God himself, for the following facts about this chapter show clearly that the number SEVEN could not have found its way into the structure of that chapter in the original without its having been placed there by an all-wise being. This chapter has 7 sections, 7 subdivisions in each. The first section has 91 (7x13) words, 406 (7x58) letters, Section 2 has 49 (7x7) words, 217 (7x31) letters, third has 35 (7x5) words, 140 (7x20) letters; 4th is 63 (7x9) words, 259 (7x37) letters; 5th, 70 (7x10) words, 287 (7x41) letters;

"The chapter John 17 has 49 (7x7) sentences, 490 words, (7x70) and 2,079 (7x297) letters. It has 595 (7x85) long and short vowels, 567 (7x81) doubtful vowels, and 917 (7x131) consonants, 2,079 letters in this chapter equal 7x11x the cube of 3; and 3 is the number of the Trinity. The chapter contains 98 (7x14) verbs and participles, 77 (7x11) nouns; 126 (7x18) pronouns, 70 (7x10) conjunctions, 70 (7x10) articles and adverbs, and 49 (7x7) prepositions and double form words. Persons of the Godhead are mentioned 91 (7x13) times in this chapter. Pronouns referring to Jesus 49 (7x7) times.

"Is it not incredible that the number SEVEN and its multiples appear so often in one chapter without divine intervention? Some persons may believe this marvelous arrangement in the scriptures is a mere "happen-so," but it is much easier for me to believe that a higher hand than the hand of man had its shaping. Those who look at the Bible through the clouded vision of others may doubt its origin, but those who get close to it and look into its structure and message cannot doubt that it is a book from God. Its wonders are too many to have come from the mind of man.

"It contains dozens of prophecies about the Jews, (God's chosen people of Israel,) which are being fulfilled this very day in current history. The ark was built on scientific principles, with God, and not man, its architect. In 1919 the U.S. Government launched its first concrete ship, whose dimensions were 300x50x30 feet. Change those feet to cubits and you have exact measurements of the ark Noah built, in the same proportions by the same scientific laws as the modern American vessel, with all the scientific knowledge of the ages behind it, for God was the architect of the ark, just as he is the architect of the Bible, which is thoroughly scientific. It never grows old. Twenty centuries have not improved it. It has withstood the hatred of men. The fulfillment of its prophecy is proof that the Bible is true."

High Nitrate Levels In Hay Can Be Fatal

Kentucky cattlemen should be careful about the hay they feed their cattle this winter: it may kill them, according to a University of Kentucky Extension veterinarian.

"A cattlemen in western Kentucky recently fed his herd what appeared to be perfectly acceptable sorghum-sudan grass hay. The next morning several were dead from nitrate poisoning," said Dr. Duane Miksch, Extension veterinarian at the West Kentucky Research and Education Center in Princeton.

Drought and other adverse growing conditions this year have caused some hay, particularly those types from warm season annuals such as sorghum-sudan hybrids and sudangrass, to accumulate excessive levels of nitrates, he said.

Although excessive nitrate levels seem to be more common in sorghum type grasses, it also may be found in corn stalks that suffered stress during the growing season. However, silage made from such corn stalks likely will not contain the potentially lethal poison, Miksch said.

"Cattlemen who suspect their feedstuffs contain high nitrate levels should have them tested by a laboratory such as the University of Kentucky Livestock Disease Diagnostic Laboratory in Lexington," Miksch said.

The laboratory will report the level of nitrate found in the samples submitted to them. Forages with nitrate amounts below 0.5 percent of dry matter are generally safe to feed. Forages with less than 1.5 percent nitrate may be fed if care is taken. Forages with more than 1.5 percent nitrate should not be fed, Miksch said.

"Forage with between 0.5 and 1.5 percent nitrate can be fed to cattle if it is mixed with other feeds that have no nitrate in them and if the cattle are fed only small quantities at first to allow them to gain tolerance to the nitrate," Miksch said.

Cattle fed suspect feedstuffs should be watched closely for signs of nitrate poisoning such as rapid breathing, quick pulse, staggering, muscle tremors and dilated pupils. If cattle show any of these signs, cattlemen are urged to summon a veterinarian at once, Miksch said.

Symptoms may appear soon after the cattle have been fed the forage or they may appear as much as two weeks later. Symptoms appearing later include emphysema and abortion in pregnant cows, he said.

New Fire Depts. Need State OK For Ambulances

Kentucky volunteer fire departments and fire protection districts operating ambulance services must still obtain a health care certificate of need and meet all licensing standards, despite omission of those requirements in a law passed by this year's General Assembly.

Inspector General William Gardner of the Cabinet for Human Resources said confusion has arisen over House Bill 670. The legislation allows volunteer fire departments and fire protection districts to use proceeds from a special property tax to finance, maintain and operate emergency ambulance services.

"Just because the new law failed to address the requirements to establish an ambulance service doesn't exempt fire departments from other laws already on the books," Gardner said. "It's the cabinet's position that all ambulance services—including new vehicles purchased strictly for use by volunteer fire departments—must be approved and operated in accordance with state law."

That means that before volunteer fire departments or fire protection districts around Kentucky purchase a new ambulance under HB 670, they must comply with KRS 216B, the state certificate of need law.

Then, prior to operating the new vehicle or service, a license must be granted by the Inspector General's Division of Licensing and Regulations.

"We presently have 47 ambulance services licensed and operated by either volunteer fire departments or fire protection taxing districts," Gardner said. "We've licensed two of those services this year, but only after they cleared the certificate of need process and met the necessary standards."

According to the state Department for Health Services, Kentucky's State Health Plan currently shows a statewide need of only 34 additional ambulances. The Commission for Health Economics Control in Kentucky considers the State Health Plan when it acts upon applications for certificates of need.

"We just want to clarify the issue," said Gardner. "We're ready to work with any fire department or taxing district on the state ambulance standards. However, we felt it necessary to clear up any confusion over what they have to do before they can buy and put into use a new ambulance."

P'burg Academic Team Ranks Third in State

Halfway through the competition season for 1986-87, the Prestonsburg High School academic team has been ranked number three in the state, according to the Kentucky Academic Association (KAA).

The teams are ranked by a vote of academic coaches and KAA board and staff members, taken six times during the competition season. The most recent ranking is the third, and the last vote will be taken in mid-February.

Prestonsburg's win-loss record is 29-2. About 250 high schools participate in the team competitions, which include both quick-recall contests and written assignments.

An invitational meet will be held this Saturday in Pikeville, pitting the state's top teams against each other, including the teams from Prestonsburg High School and Lafayette High School in Lexington, the number one ranked team.

CARD OF THANKS

It is with grateful hearts that we thank all of those who were so kind in our hour of need. We thank the employees and doctors of Our Lady of the Way Hospital for caring for our loved one during his illness. Thanks also to the Hall Funeral Home and pastor Ed Taylor for their support and understanding. May God bless all of those who opened their hearts and sent food, flowers, cards, prayers, or simply an encouraging smile when we needed it most.

Vet. Tech Program At MSU Accredited

The Veterinary Technology Program at Morehead State University has received full re-accreditation through 1988, ending a highly successful year for the program.

Earlier in 1986, a graduate of the Morehead program earned the highest score in the nation on the National Board Examination for Animal Technicians.

The re-accreditation was granted by the American Veterinary Medical Association, following a review by an inspection team which studied the program's budget, faculty members, research projects, and curriculum. The program has maintained its full accreditation status since 1977.

Currently the program offers a two-year, associate degree. The university has asked the Kentucky Council on Higher Education to approve the offering of an additional four-year degree in veterinary technology. If approved, the four-year program would be one of only three in the nation.

The vet tech program is one of the university's finest and has repeatedly attracted national recognition, according to university officials.

Oneida Teacher Is Award Candidate

"It's so wonderful to get an award for something I enjoy so much," Oneida Elementary School teacher Jean Rhodus told the Middletown (O.) Board of Education, recently.

Mrs. Rhodus, who was the district's candidate for the Ohio Education Association's Teacher of the Year Award, was recognized Tuesday by the school board for her selection.

"She has just done an outstanding job with kids," Margaret Edwards, district coordinator of early childhood development, told the board of Mrs. Rhodus who lost out in the state competition to a middle school teacher from the Columbus suburb of Upper Arlington.

"Her energy, concern and love for the kids is just magnificent, and she goes far beyond the normal duties of a teacher, sifting through all kinds of ideas and always coming up with the best ideas for use with her classes."

Mrs. Rhodus, whose students include several economically disadvantaged youngsters, gave thanks for her selection to Superintendent Norman Hayes, Oneida Principal Carel Cosby, Mrs. Edwards, "and all my family and friends."

Mrs. Rhodus, mother of three, has been teaching at the kindergarten level at Oneida the past 19 years and taught the previous five years at Amanda Elementary. She initially taught in Allen, after graduation from Pikeville College, and joined the Middletown schools in 1963. She earned a master's degree in education in 1985 from Wright State University.

Mrs. Rhodus said she has always "loved teaching and feel very positive about all the different experiences" she has had as a teacher.

Hayes, in his recommendation that Mrs. Rhodus be selected as Ohio's Teacher of the Year, said that "Jean has become an institution" at Oneida, and her "love for the children is very apparent."

"She takes some children with no social skills at all at the beginning of the year and develops them into skilled conversationalists with excellent table manners."

"She consistently pushes children to work harder, to do better and be someone very important."

Cosby, in his recommendations, told the OEA that Mrs. Rhodus "has the best community public relations of any teacher in Middletown. Parents are continually coming to her for advice. She not only teaches their children, she solves parental problems also."

Two years ago, noted Cosby, Mrs. Rhodus was asked to work with a pilot program, an all-day kindergarten, "which under her direction became an immediate success." Leaders in the community "have come to her classroom to hear and see the children perform and are amazed to see what is happening."

Other support for her bid as the state's best teacher came from local Realtor Courtney Duff, Lemon Township Trustee Carl Hollon and City Commissioner William Donham, all of whom praised her as an educator and supporter of the community.

Mrs. Rhodus is the daughter of Norman Crider, of Prestonsburg, and Mrs. Effert Reynolds, of Cynthiana, formerly of Allen.

Victims Of Crime May Be Hit Again

Crime victims in Kentucky very likely will be victimized again within a year, according to a two-year study released recently by the Attorney General's Kentucky Criminal Justice Statistical Analysis Center (SAC). "This statewide study on victimization is one of the most important that we have undertaken," said Attorney General David L. Armstrong who established SAC in 1984. "While it has revealed new and useful information about victimization patterns, one of the most startling has been the realization that the crime rate is more than twice as high among households that experienced crime in the previous year than it is for those which did not."

The victimization study was directed by Dr. Knowlton W. Johnson, director of University of Louisville's Urban Studies Center; Dr. Fran H. Norris, director of Urban Studies Center's Public Safety and Emergency Studies Program, and Linda Burgess, project manager at the center. The Criminal Justice Statistical Analysis Center is jointly operated under a federal grant by the Attorney General's Office and the Urban Studies Center.

The study is a result of a two-stage project which began in the spring of 1985 with 557 interviews conducted in a random-digit-dialing telephone survey representing (on a weighted basis) 3,843 Kentucky households. One year later, the survey respondents were reinterviewed about their crime experiences since the time of the first interview. The second interviews revealed that the 1986 crime rate was more than twice as high among households that experienced a crime in the previous year (40.8 percent) as it was among those that did not experience a crime in the previous year (15.5 percent). Among households that experienced a violent crime in 1985, 70 percent reported some type of crime in 1986.

While the study did not indicate the reason for the revictimization, Armstrong said that it is clear that crime prevention services need to be increased for victims. "Obviously, the study shows that we need to focus on recurring victimization," he said.

The statewide study also expanded on information gathered in the 1985 survey on the long and short-term effects of victimization and revealed that victims suffer significant depression and a lasting fear of crime. Data also indicates that most Kentuckians do take some precautions against crime including formal or informal neighborhood watches, locking vehicles when parked away from home and keeping keys in hand when returning to a parked car.

The study also showed that respondents have incorporated body safety programs for their children. Nearly 45 percent of the survey respondents living with someone under age 18 reported that they have had children fingerprinted through a child identification program. "I'm particularly pleased about the response to this question," Armstrong said. "It indicates that Kentuckians are becoming increasingly aware of preventive and educational programs like the Child Victims' Trust Fund. It's imperative that we continue to expand these programs throughout the state to guarantee that children are protected from exploitation and abuse."

McConnell Attendance Is Excellent For '86

In what has become an annual tradition, Senator Mitch McConnell has released his Senate attendance figures for 1986.

McConnell was present for 100% of the votes taken on the Senate floor in 1986. His two-year average ('85/'86) is 99.34% for recorded Senate votes in the 99th Congress.

"Showing up for work was a major issue in my race in 1984. Since then, that issue has become important in almost every state as voters have grown aware that they have a right to expect their elected officials to show up for work and represent their interests. It's a very serious issue. Everyone is forced to miss votes on occasion. But a Senator's attendance record should demonstrate that he takes his job seriously. I preached that in 1984, and I intend to continue practicing what I preach."

McConnell also released his Committee attendance record for 1986—a statistic infrequently recorded or monitored by Senate committees.

As a member of the Senate Agriculture Committee, McConnell attended 80% of the meetings in 1986. He was present for 28 meetings and missed seven.

McConnell is also a member of the Senate Judiciary Committee. He released figures indicating he attended 69 meetings and missed 25—a 73% record. McConnell attended 100% of the Judiciary Committee business meetings in 1986.

"Committees meet at virtually the same time of the day. Since I still haven't figured out how to be in two places at the same time, I miss one committee meeting mostly because I'm attending another one being held at the same time. When I have to choose between hearings, I go to the one that has the most impact on Kentuckians."

SPORTS

By Alton Huff

TOUGH TRIP: David Martin finds the going tough inside against Stanton Bentley but Martin did manage to lead Prestonsburg in scoring, tossing in 23.

Rebels Display Expected Depth In Victory Over Prestonsburg

Some surprises are sweet and some are sour, but Rady Martin gave the Allen Central Rebels and Coach Johnny Martin a pleasant surprise that no one really expected.

The impressive Rebel forward has played solid basketball at times this season but Friday night Martin put his total game in high gear to give Allen Central a much needed lift in their 63-54 home victory over Prestonsburg.

Coming into this season, Coach Martin held his sophomore class in high praise, and against Prestonsburg, the Allen Central youngsters did nothing but increase their coaches belief in them.

Rady Martin, as usual, was the first man off the bench Friday and proved to be a vital ingredient in the Rebels' winning chemistry.

"I thought Rady did an excellent job," said Johnny Martin. "He did a good job on Brian Wallace and just about carried us in the first half."

Indeed Rady Martin did give Allen Central a big boost and just when they needed it the most. Deadlocked at 12 to begin the second quarter, the Rebels appeared to be a level below their previous performance in the Jenny Wiley tournament, but Martin scored 10 points in the second quarter, including Allen Central's first six points, to power the Rebels to a lead they never gave up.

"I was a bit worried about Rady coming in tonight," Coach Martin revealed. "He made all tournament in the Jenny Wiley and sometimes that can affect a kid who is just starting to play. He hadn't played well the past couple of games, and we used him in JV games but he was well rested tonight."

Allen Central received another greatly needed boost from yet another sophomore, Todd Duff. The youthful point guard came off the bench in the first half to spark the offensive end of things as the Rebels solved a tough Prestonsburg defense.

Roger Horne continued his incredible offensive output by pouring in a game high 27 points while Martin finished with 18. Ronnie Ousley and Stanton Bentley finished with eight points apiece and floor general, Darrin Conn, chipped in with two points.

The victory, in which Coach Martin says his team wasn't spectacular but played well enough to win, gives the Rebels their first conference win of the season in their first action.

With the loss, Prestonsburg falls to 2-1 in the conference and didn't look like the same team that swept through the Cardinal Classic just before the break.

David Martin proved to be the only Blackcat who played up to his usual standards, scoring 23 points, and Johnny Martin thinks his own club has something to do with a sub-par Prestonsburg performance.

"They have seen us a lot, and we have seen them a lot, and their two worst games of the season have come against us," Martin said. "I would like to think that we have something to do with that. Defensively, we affect them a lot."

With the big conference victory over Prestonsburg, Allen Central appears to be in a strong position in the early conference race, but Johnny Martin knows what awaits his team and how difficult it will be.

The Rebels have six county matchups this month which doesn't make anyone surrounding Allen Central basketball happy, especially their head coach.

"We have a tough stretch coming up," Martin admitted. "With the schedule the way it is a serious injury could put us out of the conference race."

Martin says he had rather spread games against county competition throughout the schedule instead of playing six games in a 25 day stretch and combine this with all the possibilities that come with harsh weather and what you have is a concerned Johnny Martin.

"With bad weather everyone is off from school. We usually don't have big crowds in bad weather and the kids tend to be flat," Martin said.

Individual Scoring: Allen Central: Roger Horne, 27; Rady Martin, 18; Ronnie Ousley, 8; Stanton Bentley, 8; Darrin Conn, 2.

Prestonsburg: David Martin, 23; Wayne Akers, 9; Brian Wallace, 6; Thomas Nairn, 4; Cory Vicars, 4; David Layne, 4; Brent Music, 2; Mark Tuttle, 2.

Lady Blackcats Continue Surge Toward Conference Championship

The Prestonsburg Lady Blackcats continued their strong challenge for that ever important Floyd County Conference championship with a 53-42 victory over Allen Central, Friday night.

Shon Burchett tossed in a game high 27 points, and Michelle Clemmons added 10 as the Lady Blackcats improved their conference leading record to 3-0.

Although Prestonsburg recorded an 11-point victory, the win didn't come as an easy one. The Lady Blackcats enjoyed great success early, jumping out to an early five-point lead and increasing it to as many as seven early in the second quarter before Allen Central caught fire, coming back to take a 25-24 halftime lead.

Allen Central stayed in the contest from the charity stripe. Not exactly with outstanding quality free throw shooting but a quantity of it.

The Lady Rebs, after Prestonsburg jumped out to their early lead, shot 11 free throws in the second quarter and with their five successful attempts were able to take the one-point advantage into the locker room.

Allen Central came out in the third quarter with a renewed intensity, scoring the first six points of the second half to increase their lead to seven points, but at this point in the contest the Lady Rebels game plan fell apart as Prestonsburg and Shon Burchett took control.

The Lady Blackcats battled back to take a one-point advantage after three quarters and put another conference game in the win column as Burchett personally outscored Allen Central in the final stanza.

Burchett tossed in 11 fourth quarter points, and the Lady Blackcat defense shut down Allen Central to win their third conference victory against no losses.

In that critical final frame, Prestonsburg cashed in on nine of 12 free throw opportunities. Solid shooting from the charity stripe has been a key to Lady Blackcat success this season. Friday night proved no different as the Lady Blackcats hit on 19 of 32 attempts which proved to be a contributing factor in their win over Allen Central.

The Lady Rebels, on the other stripe, failed to hit on half of their free throws. Allen Central toed the line a total of 29 times but connected on only 14 of those tries.

The break appeared to take its toll on both Prestonsburg and Allen Central as neither squad played up to their 1986 standards but, nevertheless, the Lady Blackcats are in a strong conference position.

Prestonsburg was most people's pre-season choice to challenge Betsy Layne in the Floyd County conference race but with their earlier victories over the Lady Bobcats and Lady Daredevils, find themselves well out in front during the early going.

Friday's contest represented initial conference action for Allen Central and with several county games coming up in the near future the next several days will prove to be critical for Bonita Compton and the Lady Rebs.

Individual Scoring: Prestonsburg: Shon Burchett, 27; Michelle Clemmons, 10; Karen Frasure, 7; Paula Harris, 5; Amy Hicks, 2; April Stephens, 2.

Allen Central: Michelle Floyd, 12; Joann Conn, 8; Tonya Brown, 5; Jennifer Stephens, 5; Stephanie Wallen, 5; Tonya Kester, 2.

THE SPORTING TIMES

In a time where the President has personally admitted that he doesn't have the slightest idea of what our country is doing and drugs seem to be the biggest idea of society, people desperately need someone or something they can believe in.

Foreign ownership of used-to-be American companies has reached an all time high. The Germans have taken over American Motors and the Japanese are gaining strength in our own state.

Fortunately, the people of the state of Kentucky have something a foreign power can never take from us, basketball.

The Bluegrass state has long been king of the hardwood and if we ever needed that someone special to make our basketball even better than before it is now. That someone who represents all which is good about Kentucky and the United States of America is marked American.

Although his lean body doesn't represent superior strength and his baby face doesn't show any scares of tough living, Rex Chapman has rapidly become a hero and role model for most people or at least basketball fans in the state of Kentucky.

At a tender age where most young men fail to even recognize responsibility, Chapman is fulfilling what he expects from himself and surpassing what others expect.

Pressure surrounding University of Kentucky basketball is beyond reality. For some fans it is the most important of life's specialities, but for others Wildcat basketball is a way of life.

For these people Rex Chapman is a hero. A hero because of his basketball ability; a hero because he is a native of this state, and a hero because he is a winner. Most importantly he is a winner at the University of Kentucky.

After Kentucky suffered a rash of injuries before this season began most thought they would fall to the ranks of the average but Chapman has brought renewed enthusiasm to this great basketball program.

The boy from Owensboro has twice scored 26 points in a game, once against Indiana and again when UK did battle with rival Louisville.

In his most recent outing, Chapman rallied the Wildcats to a Southeastern Conference victory over Auburn. The freshman guard tossed in 24 points as Kentucky proved once again that they are as good as anyone in their tough conference. CBS did a special on the talented freshman as did the USA network, and this alone is enough to devastate a young man's composure, but Rex Chapman isn't your ordinary young man.

Chapman's coach, Eddie Sutton, says the Wildcat property is the best guard he has seen in a long time, and this is something for Sutton to say. He coached guards such as Ron Brewer and Sidney Moncrief who are still remembered as incredible college guards.

Chapman's basketball ability is obvious. While in high school he earned the title as Kentucky's best basketball player and also won top honors in a Los Vegas slam dunk contest.

Round ball experts have hailed him as the best guard prospect this state has ever produced and once again this is an almost unbelievable thought, but probably the best complement paid to Rex Chapman is when someone said he was a cross between Pete Marovich and Jerry West.

Making comparisons, however, isn't completely fair to either Chapman or the people he is being compared to.

Before Rex Chapman leaves college, he will prove to be the best player ever at the University of Kentucky. Chapman has no superiors when playing basketball is considered and tries to play like no one before him.

But playing basketball isn't the only thing Rex Chapman has going for him. In almost every interview Chapman has verbally expressed his desire to make the grade. He receives about 200 personal letters per day and personally answers about 200 letters a day.

Former Bobcat Star Continues Success At Pikeville College

Sometimes the transition from high school athletics to the college ranks can be difficult but for former Betsy Layne basketball star Brett Meade the switch has been a smooth one.

In his final season as a Bobcat Meade rolled up some impressive numbers, 19 points per game and 12 rebounds. This was good enough to gain Betsy Layne a regional final berth and Brett Meade some attention from area colleges.

One coach was obviously impressed more than the others and Greg White went out and made Brett Meade a Pikeville College Bear. Since then neither party has had reason to complain.

Coach White received a solid performer who has scored eight points and hauled down six rebounds a game and Meade is playing on a winning basketball team.

"Brett has been a starter for us all year long and has done an excellent job," White said. "He came in well coached by Junior Newsome and was fundamentally strong. Brett knows how to play basketball and he knows what it takes to win."

During his high school playing days Meade grew accustomed to playing inside the point and Coach White says he can still do this even though he is a bit short in stature.

"Brett plays on the inside for us even though he is only 6'3" but he plays a lot bigger than that. Brett jumps better than most boys 6'3"," Coach White said.

As an incoming freshman White said his new product needed to improve his outside play and for Meade this has been one of the more difficult and different tasks, among other things normal to the change.

"Making the transition has been the toughest thing," Meade revealed. "In high school I played inside and now I'm out on the floor more. It's a much faster game too. In high school we took our time and set things up but here we run a lot more."

In most instances the journey to higher education and athletics is a long one but from Brett Meade's home to Pikeville College the distance is only 14 miles. Just another example of how easy Meade has adjusted to the change.

The former Bobcat says he is happy to be a Pikeville College Bear and Pikeville College is certainly happy that Brett Meade is a Bear.

Not many people expected a great contribution from Meade as a freshman, except Greg White and Brett himself, and no one has been disappointed.

As this freshman grows into an upperclassman so will his basketball skills and confidence. Keep smiling Greg White, you have one bright spot at your small forward position.

SHORT SPORTS

The Magoffin County Hornets used a tough defense to turn back McDowell, Friday night, 60-54, in Salyersville.

Daredevil coach Rick Hall praised defensive efforts of Hornet point guard Neal West and center Robert Albright. The McDowell head man said West and Albright did an excellent job in shutting down his top offensive guns, Brian Hall and Lenny Hall.

Brian Hall and Lenny Hall are an offensive force but were held to 14 and 10 points respectively Friday night. In their scoring absence sophomore Dickie Joe Shannon poured in 22 points but even this wasn't enough to help McDowell earn a win.

Coach Hall said that his Daredevil club got off to a cold shooting start and never really recovered but McDowell did cut a huge Magoffin County lead to only three points in the fourth quarter. However, the Hornets had just enough punch to deny visiting McDowell the win.

With the loss, the McDowell Daredevils fall to 4-4 overall with two of their losses coming at the hands of Floyd county foes.

When all the pre-game promotion and hype finally concluded Penn State and Miami got down to what the Fiesta Bowl was intended to do, settle a national championship.

For the Miami Hurricanes they had more fun anticipating the game than participating in it as Penn State came out victorious and will wear the title as college football's best team, at least until the 1987 poll comes out.

Heisman trophy winner Vinny Testaverde didn't fare very well against the nation's number one defense, throwing five interceptions which included one on fourth down and goal with only seconds remaining in the contest.

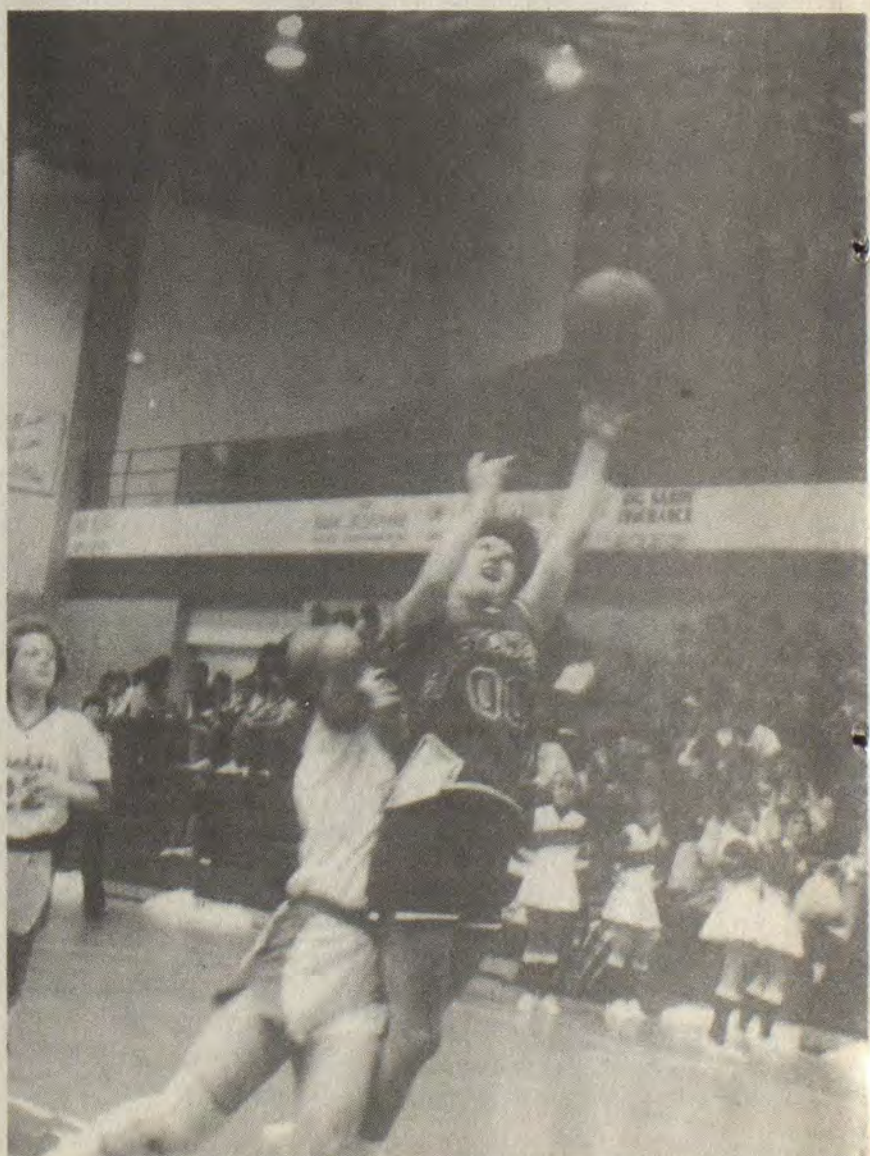

Penn State linebacker Shane Conlan may have increased his NFL worth by picking off two of those five errant throws with the second leading to the winning touchdown.

Miami suffered a total of seven turnovers in the 14-10 loss to now national champion Penn State.

When the 1987 college football season begins the University of Alabama will be under new direction, namely Bill Curry. The former Georgia Tech head man has been chosen to replace Ray Perkins in this position.

The head football coaching job became available to Curry when Perkins agreed to become the new football man in Tampa Bay.

News And Notes From The NFL

They are marching to the Super Bowl in a survival of the fittest war and as of the present New York appears to have the fittest and most feared of them all.

Harry Carson once again experienced the thrill of dunking as the Giant linebacker continued his own tradition of dumping the cooler on his coach, but New York's victory over San Francisco was so impressive that Carson wasn't satisfied with wetting down Bill Parcells, he also introduced his defensive coordinator to the chill of victory.

New York did indeed impress everyone with their 49-3 victory over the 49ers while moving closer to the Super Bowl than ever before.

Gutsy quarterback Phil Simms threw for four touchdowns and Joe Morris ran for 159 yards as the Giants recorded their biggest margin of victory of the 1986 season, and the largest margin of victory ever in the playoffs.

New York is now preparing themselves for an NFC championship showdown against the Washington Redskins, and this will be no easy ride for the Giants although they already own two victories over Washington.

The Redskins were just as impressive in their victory over Chicago, Saturday. Trailing early in the third quarter, the Redskins intercepted a Doug Flutie pass for the second time and later turned it into six points which put them in front for good.

Flutie, however, came back to drive Chicago downfield, but Walter Payton turned the pigskin over on a fumble which denied the Bears a score and a eventually a second trip to the Super Bowl.

Sunday's matchup in New York marked the third time this season that the Giants and Redskins have locked horns on the gridiron.

New York came out victorious both times previously with a Monday night win in Washington during week eight action and came back with a strong defensive showing, six interceptions, to thump Washington in week 14.

All sports fans know what a difficult task it is to beat a good team, especially three times in one season, but the New York Giants may just simply be a far superior team to the Washington Redskins.

All is on the line Sunday because the winner will get to see Pasadena, California as one of the best two teams in all of football.

The NFC winner will face either Cleveland or Denver as both teams advanced to the AFC championship round with victories this weekend.

Denver made it by squeezing by New England, 22-17, Sunday. The victory was the first successful playoff contest for the Broncos in nine years, not since Craig Morton and Haven Moses somehow led Denver to the Super Bowl had they won a post season game.

Now, however, Denver has a new cast of characters that have the ability to get back to the big one but a big one is standing in their way, a stadium of hating fans and the Cleveland Browns.

The Broncos will travel to Cleveland in an attempt to earn a conference title, but the Browns may have fate on their side or maybe just Bernie Kosar.

After trailing by 10 points in the fourth quarter, Saturday, Kosar picked the Browns up and all but personally dug out a win for his teammates.

The 23-year-old quarterback set all kinds of post season passing records such as most attempts with 64 and most passing yardage with 489, but the Browns still needed the leg of veteran Mark Moseley to pull out a win.

The former Redskin kicker drilled a 28-yard field goal in the second overtime period for the Cleveland win and some repayment for his teammates.

Moseley had earlier missed a 23-yarder early in the initial extra period but merely delayed the inevitable, a Cleveland victory.

If anyone is looking for an edge it might come in the form of an extra day of rest for the Browns, but Denver will have plenty of time to prepare, the usual six days between games.

The same holds true for Washington, but this is the playoffs, the time when minor aches and pains give way to a bit of extra effort and the intensity level multiplies on each side of the ball.

Past performances are put aside and tradition plays no part. This is for all the marbles. This is what each and every National Football League player has waited for since July, and you can bet that nothing will be held back when Sunday rolls around.

Washington and New York are set to kickoff at 4 p.m. on CBS, while the Browns and Broncos will begin some three and a half hours earlier on NBC.

MCA Homecoming Queen

Tammy Bailey was selected Mountain Christian Academy's first homecoming queen during halftime at the school's homecoming basketball game, December 23.

Miss Bailey has attended the academy since the school opened in 1983. She is president of the senior class and a member of the drama and debate team, the quick recall team, and the yearbook staff. She is also active in MCA Teens, a community service club.

She is the daughter of Doug and Annis Bailey, and the granddaughter of Viola Bailey and Henry S. Bailey. Her maternal grandparents were the late Pharaoh and Margaret Hall.

Kevin Henry, son of Ken and Priscilla Henry, of Minnie, was Miss Bailey's escort.

Football League and no stranger to smart decisions. He is the man responsible for the Giants' fans having Phil Simms but maybe Perkins misjudged the talent he was leaving behind or that he was inheriting.

Alabama has long been a power in college football and was good enough to get Perkins out of New York but now Perkins is leaving the Crimson Tide for a team that has an overall record of 4-28 over the past two seasons and the future doesn't look any better.

Tampa Bay does have the first draft choice but a strong rumor has blown in on a tornado that a Hurricane isn't coming into northern Florida.

The Bucs are apparently thinking of trading their option on Vinny Testaverde to someone who is willing and can afford to give up the farm, or at least that patch out back for the first college selection.

The 1986-87 basketball season hasn't exactly been nice to Morehead State University. The Eagles were selected to bring up the rear in the Ohio Valley Conference and for the first eight games MSU didn't show much promise of doing any better.

The Eagles struggled to a 4-4 mark and somewhere along the line they got mad about something. Clinch Valley of Virginia knows just how mad the Eagles were. MSU beat visiting Clinch Valley 106-42 this past weekend to prove it.

The NCAA will be holding their annual meeting this Friday and according to reports one thing on the schedule is to discuss the eligibility of freshmen to play basketball.

With Proposition 48, the NCAA did its best to stop freshmen from playing but now wants to end it all together.

Since 1972 incoming players have been allowed to take part in varsity competition and people close to college basketball feel that the NCAA will fail in passing this proposal.

People are calling him the savior and the franchise for University of Kentucky basketball. All that can be said has been said about this young man but not all has been done.

In his brief Wildcat career, Chapman has given basketball fans a reason to smile and if drugs and political ignorance don't close in upon us quicker than expected, he will give Kentucky a reason to smile for three more years.

Rex Chapman is a normal Kentucky boy with an incredible talent and what an ironic talent it is, a great ability to play basketball and playing basketball in the state of Kentucky.

Japan may own Georgetown and Martha Layne Collins, but Rex Chapman owns basketball fans in the Bluegrass state, totally, heart and soul.

But this goes both ways. Basketball fans own Rex Chapman, but the pressure of this love affair won't spoil what a baby-faced teenager and a struggling but hard working state share.

Rex Chapman is Kentucky and Kentucky is Rex Chapman and we all can stand proud because we are a part of it. Long live the king of basketball and our teenage hero.

License Fees Up Slightly For '87

The start of another year marks the time hunters and fishermen across the state usually head to the county courthouse or a sporting goods store to purchase hunting and fishing licenses for the new year.

During the March 1986 meeting of the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Commission, fees for resident hunting, fishing and combination licenses were increased $1 over last year. A 1987 hunting license costs $8.50, fishing license $8.50 and combination license $15.

A few changes were made in the types of licenses offered by the department, especially to non-resident sportsmen. A non-resident annual hunting license will cost $75 for the 1987 season, an increase of $35 from the 1986 fee of $40.

Instead of a three-day hunting license for non-residents, however, there will be a five-day hunting license available to non-residents for $20. This will allow sportsmen from other states to visit Kentucky and hunt for a week instead of just a weekend on this type of special license. Many times five consecutive days may be better than three simply because one day of bad weather can ruin a three-day trip, yet with a five-day trip a sportsman can usually salvage a decent hunting experience.

The five-day hunting license will be handy particularly for those four-and five-day weekends at Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's. Hunters who live out-of-state and take their two-week vacations in Kentucky during a specific season will find purchasing two five-day licenses both more convenient than the three-day and less expensive than an annual license.

Fishing licenses for non-residents have received some similar changes. In place of three-day and 15-day fishing licenses, there will be only a 10-day license for sportsmen who do not want to purchase an annual non-resident

Program Is Focused On Other Wildlife

Kentucky has long been recognized for its abundance of game animals and the efforts put forth to manage and conserve our wildlife resources for the enjoyment of its sportsmen.

What some sportsmen and wildlife enthusiasts may not realize is that Kentucky also has a program to preserve our "other wildlife." The term "wildlife" is not strictly defined to mean animals hunted or harvested by man, but includes any species not human or domesticated.

Nongame animals, like songbirds, snakes, owls, hawks, salamanders and practically anything not hunted or harvested by man are an important part of nature. These animals provide a balance of wildlife for other types of enjoyment in addition to hunting and fishing, such as birdwatching, wildlife art and photography.

At the present time, John MacGregor, wildlife biologist and nongame program coordinator for the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, is in charge of correlating efforts between several parties to ensure the preservation and cultivation of this category of animals throughout the state.

Some of the work involved in the program include the preservation of federally endangered species, which MacGregor says number approximately 24 in Kentucky at given times of the year.

Much work is done with bats and bald eagles. Population surveys and habitat protection and enhancement are two areas MacGregor works with landowners on as a part of this program.

Keeping track of rare or unusual animals in Kentucky (some 230 different types) also comes under the nongame program. Of the species considered "in trouble," the overwhelming majority are not game animals.

Instead, about 160 are vertebrates and 70 invertebrates (mussels, crayfish, snails, etc.). Population surveys, investigations of sightings of unusual animals and record keeping of the distribution of such animals are other responsibilities of MacGregor in this program.

A few of the animals MacGregor comes in contact with are extremely rare in Kentucky, like the Wehrle's salamander, found only on a single cliff face in Letcher county. Ravens, likewise, are known only to nest on a cliff side in Letcher county.

Other aspects of this program include wildlife restoration, environmental reviews, environmental education and technical guidance (lectures, slide shows, articles for publications and the media).

MacGregor also spends time helping to identify unusual plants and animals found by Kentuckians, while working with several agencies such as The Nature Conservancy, The Kentucky Society of Natural History and The Kentucky Academy of Science.

Kentuckians interested in helping support the efforts being made throughout the state to ensure the protection of our nongame species can contribute at tax time by checking off a donation on their tax form.

Other ways to be involved are to report unusual sightings of animals or vegetation to the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, or call for information on how to enhance your property to help sustain this type of wildlife. A donation or enhancement of the habitat for these animals is a small way to help make sure nature's beauty will remain for us to enjoy.

license. The 10-day license costs $10.

Hunting and fishing have always been bargain pastimes. Residents can enjoy either or both for the entire year for about the same as it would cost to go out to dinner and take in a movie just one time. There aren't too many leisure activities we can engage in over a year's time for under $20.

Hunting, fishing and the simple pleasure of the outdoors are things every person should have the opportunity to experience. However, the management and regulation of these resources is necessary to help assure the continued availability of opportunity for the sportsman and outdoor recreation lover. The Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources is the state agency responsible for managing and regulating hunting and fishing, yet its activities would be practically impossible without the aid of sportsmen.

When anglers and hunters purchase licenses, or commercial fishermen buy gear tags or musseling licenses, they are in effect paying for conservation and management of the resources they use for either enjoyment or a livelihood.

The opportunities for either sport can be as good or bad as sportsmen make it. Kentucky has long been considered the sportsmen's paradise—a Happy Hunting Ground, if you will. It is through the sale of hunting and fishing licenses we are able to help continue what nature began many years ago.

RABIES

COPYRIGHT 1987 KVMA

Kentucky Veterinary Medical Association Seven members of a Kentucky family were treated for exposure to a rabid dog during the final weeks of 1986.

This should serve to emphasize that rabies is not a "summer-time disease" and also as a reminder that the reported incidence of rabies in Kentucky in 1986 was more than twice that reported the year before.

In the closing days of 1986, a total of 106 instances of rabies had been reported to health officials. At the same time in 1985, only 42 cases had been reported. Heaviest incidence seems to be in Christian and Madison counties, and the main reservoir in wildlife seems to be skunks. Seventy rabid skunks have been reported, ten dogs and a few other animals.

Rabies is a viral disease which is spread by animal bites. The virus is present in high concentrations in the saliva of infected animals, and while it can enter the body through mucous membranes or open abrasions, this is rare. It is almost always introduced through bites, where it invades the nerve channels and then make its way to the central nervous system.

Once rabies symptoms appear, the disease is incurable in both animals and humans, and usually fatal.

In animals, rabies is seen in two forms—"dumb" and "furious." Most people recognize the "furious" form, which is the typical "maddog" syndrome in which the animal salivates copiously and attacks anything in sight as it hallucinates.

More difficult to detect is the "dumb" form, in which the jaw may hang open, the animal's disposition changes and the animal may attempt to withdraw and hide, wanting to be left alone.

The virus itself is not affected by cold weather, only the movement of some of the wild animals which may carry it and that not to any significant degree. The only effective barrier between wild animals and humans is vaccination of pets and awareness on the part of people.

Various vaccines are now available and are highly effective if properly used. There is one type for dogs, another for cats, still others for farm animals and some exotic animals. Your veterinarian is qualified to prescribe and administer the proper dose of the proper vaccine for your animal. He is also kept informed of the rabies cases reported in your community, and can give you the best advice on whether to vaccinate your farm animals.

While vaccines may sometimes be available in drug stores or on the black market, you should not attempt to give the shots yourself. Improper dosage or use of the wrong vaccine may harm your animal, and you will not be legally protected if you give the shots yourself.

Your veterinarian is trained in proper diagnosis and vaccination. He gives you valid legal certification that your animal has been vaccinated. Rabies prevention is one of several contributions he makes to the field of public health.

Bassin' With The Pros...

Winter Jig Fishing Tactics

One of the most valuable skills to have in winter—whether you're down South or up North—is the ability to jig fish. But the scope of this column will focus on winter jigging in the southern portion of our country.

There really isn't much to jigging. It's vertical fishing and it's deep. But there are several keen insights that some pros offer here which may prove beneficial for you.

"The (jigging) spoon is a bait that you can catch a whole lot of bass with in a hurry," states Dave Wharton, Johnson Outboards Pro Staff member. "It's probably one of the baits that you can catch a limit on faster than probably any other bait built, when conditions are right for it."

Prestonsburg Wins Conference Game

Coming into Tuesday night's contest with McDowell, the Prestonsburg Lady Blackcats had earned the reputation as a good free throw shooting squad.

Unfortunately for Coach Meredith Slone and the Lady Daredevils, Prestonsburg once again enjoyed solid shooting but to make things doubly tough, the Lady Blackcats did their sharp shooting out on the floor.

After missing their first field goal attempt, Prestonsburg proceeded to connect on four in a row to jump out to an early advantage.

Meanwhile, McDowell was experiencing just the opposite. Coach Slone's squad was having a tough time with themselves and a tough Lady Blackcat defense, thus the 18-2 first quarter difference.

From that point things were all down hill for the Lady Daredevils. Prestonsburg upped their lead to 34-3 in the second quarter, en route to another conference win.

The Lady Blackcats exploded to a 40-6 halftime lead and cruised to a 62-35 victory in front of the home folks.

Paula Harris led Prestonsburg with 19 points while Shon Burchett accounted for a total of 18 points.

The McDowell Lady Daredevils were paced offensively by Gwen Stegall who tossed in 18 points.

With the win Prestonsburg improves to 4-0 in the conference while McDowell dips to 0-3.

"Go-Along Guns"

By A.G. SPENCER

This piece was going to be about coonhunting, but my scheduled hunt fell through due to weather. It certainly wasn't the first time inclement conditions had forced a cancellation!

As I tried to while the evening away cleaning my guns (when I would much rather have been chasing after a bunch of hyperactive hounds), I came to a favorite little twenty-two caliber revolver that had been my companion on many outings. The well-worn Ruger Super Single-Six has provided some squirrels and sitting cottontails, as well as not a few groundhogs to both the freezer and the campfire spit. Moreover, small-bore though it be, the scarcely noticeable presence of the little trail gun riding on my belt had calmed my jangled nerves more than once when this inveterate old woods-loafer couldn't identify what was circling around his sleeping bag in the dark. No doubt company was something on the order of a curious fox or coon, but it was still nice to have the reassurance of the Ruger's heft.

Without question, a great part of the Ruger's appeal, at least to this late night T.V. fan, was its carefully stylized resemblance to the Colt "Peacemaker" that "The Duke" and other heroes of old westerns carried. That got me to thinking. The real cowboys of the old west had carried sidearms as an essential, practical tool. Rarely was it used in gunfights. More often it was called upon to dispatch a steer with a broken leg or supply game to augment the camp cook's larder.

A sidearm is just as practical for today's outdoorsman as it was for the hardy adventurers of yore. Small game often provides shots so close that a shotgun or a flat-shooting varmint rig would practically disintegrate the animal. A sidearm can be used to provide dinner here.

If carefully selected, a pistol or revolver can be both light and accurate, going unnoticed until it is needed. In warm weather, I have stumbled across copperheads and timber rattlers more than once! In the springtime, rabies is especially bad, and friends and relatives have had to terminate an errant skunk or fox that charged right at them when they waved their hands or shouted.

Also, these guns are often called into service when expensive rifles or shotguns jam. A good pistol or revolver can save a hunt. Don't scrimp on one, or you'll get just what you paid for. Buy the best you can afford!

Although the few black bears and cougars that roam this area (and there are a few, despite what some game personnel would have you believe), they hardly constitute a threat. Because of the dearth of grizzlies and maneating lions in our immediate vicinity, I lean toward a twenty-two. I learned a long time ago that even a .44 Magnum will wound with a poorly placed shot. .22 Long Rifle ammo is much, much cheaper, allowing more practice and, subsequently, more skill.

Yep, I thought to myself as I stared at the little Ruger, memories of past hunts, camping trips and photographic expeditions came floating back, a go-along gun is a good thing to have. A High Standard Trophy .22 target pistol, recently acquired in a trade and soon thereafter sent to a firm in Florida for a satin chrome job and some trigger work, also rests among my collection, begging to be tried on the next coon hunt. I knew from practice sessions that it would shoot a whole lot better than I could hold.

Of course, the Ruger would continue to see duty. You don't simply discard an old friend! Until next week, happy hunting!

Okay, squirrel season is over, and you're trying to figure out what to do with the ones you've stashed in the freezer. Try this recipe from an old friend in Bator Rouge.

SQUIRREL CASSEROLE—DIXIE STYLE

Ingredients: two squirrels, cut into serving pieces flour, seasoned with salt and pepper three tbsps. of fat 1/4 cup of wild rice two green peppers, finely diced one small onion, finely chopped one cup of diced celery one cup of diced green apples

Directions: About an hour before preparing the casserole, cover the portion of wild rice with scalding water and place it aside. Roll the cuts of meat in seasoned flour and brown in a covered deep fryer of hot fat. Place the squirrel pieces in a well-buttered casserole, drain the rice and rinse in cold water. Sprinkle the rice, chopped vegetables, and apple over the squirrel. Top the casserole with boiling water containing dissolved bullion cubes and sprinklings a basil to cover the ingredients. Cover with casserole dish lid and bake at about 300 degrees for an hour or until the meat is tender.

Drake Hogestyn started off as a pro baseball player

By Marie Michaels

Drake Hogestyn, who plays Roman Brady on "Days of Our Lives," is one of daytime television's newest heartthrobs. He became an actor in a round-about manner and was a professional baseball player before he became an actor.

Drake Hogestyn

"I was drafted by the New York Yankees after graduating from a pre-dentistry program from the University of South Florida," says Hogestyn, who now plays third base on the Hollywood All-Stars softball team, which plays for various charities.

Hogestyn's acting career began after he entered a contest in which 30 winners were taken to Hollywood as part of a national talent-search program.

"A lot of the ballplayers entered the contest as a joke," says Hogestyn. "But Joshua Shelley, who ran Columbia Pictures at the time, made me an offer, and I moved to Los Angeles where I became in-

VIDEO SCENE

Bruce Springsteen gets his message across in 'War'

By Barton Weiss

While we were counting down the best and worst of 1986, we missed a few great videos that came in around the end of the year. It's time to catch up.

First-rate Springsteen
 Bruce Springsteen's first video from his super-hot live compilation, "Bruce Springsteen and the E Street Band Live/1975-1985," is a cover of "War."

Bruce Springsteen

His long opening monologue — about not being able to trust our leaders anymore — is accompanied by a series of stills that effectively drive home the point. His live video performance doesn't have the energy and the mystical quality of actually being there, but it's still much better than what viewers get in most live videos.

Jackson takes control
 Another live-plus video is Janet Jackson's "Control." The rather long intro about leaving home probably rings true to her own life. (Jackson, if press reports are to be believed, has been trying to put some professional distance between herself and her famous family.)

After she leaves and goes to the concert hall, she really whips it up with a good mix of Prince's and brother Michael's styles.

Weird Al gets serious
 Something really odd has turned up, a serious clip from Weird Al Yankovic. "Christmas from Ground Zero" blends the atomic imagery we've seen so much of since the film "The Atomic Cafe" with the usual Christmas stuff.

Politicians as stars
 Viewers can usually expect something extraordinary from Frankie Goes to Hollywood, and "Warriors of the Wasteland" proves to be no exception. This time around, the group offers a fully animated clip that shows our political leaders as nothing more than pop-culture stars.

More bits, less structure
 "Big Time," Peter Gabriel's second video from his album "So," follows the dense 3-D animated style of "Sledgehammer." Here, however, there are more bits and ideas and less overall structure. It will take about 20 viewings before viewers will be able to catch it all.

Patriots all
 The KBC Band is the latest incarnation of Jefferson Airplane alumni Paul Kantner, Marty Balin and Jack Casady.

The KBC Band's first video effort, simply called "America," tries to reach the epic proportions that the title implies. Lots of bucks were spent trying to catch everything American. The clip has its critical moments, but in the end, the band is almost blindly patriotic.

New Season Of "Wild America"

Join host Marty Stouffer for a fifth season of "Wild America" on KET. The season premiere, "Pennsylvania White-tail," airs Monday, January 12, at 7:00 p.m.

The White-tailed Deer is one of the most beloved and familiar symbols of the wild—and it is the nation's number one big game animal. In states such as Pennsylvania, the White-tailed Deer's popularity also makes it one of the wild's most controversial animals.

Two of the world's most beautiful ducks, the Wood Duck and the Hooded Merganser, are native to the North American continent. These native quackers are followed by Stouffer when "Woodies and Hoodies" airs January 19.

The exquisitely marked Wood Duck, or "Woody," dabbles on plant life near the surface of lakes and ponds. The elegant Hooded Merganser, or "Hoody," makes its living diving for fish. This difference in lifestyles leads to some amusing and revealing events when territories overlap and female Woodies and Hoodies lay eggs in each other's nests.

The January 26 episode, "King of Snakes," examines the indisputably reigning monarch among reptiles, the Kingsnake. In a confrontation with a Rattlesnake, the Kingsnake will win. After conquering his opponent, the Kingsnake, immune to the venom, will swallow the Rattler.

DRUTHER'S OWNER, JOHN CAREY, at left, and manager, Bonnie Prater, were presented a check by Johnny Dutton, on behalf of the Prestonsburg Rotary Club, to assist the restaurant in its Mitten Drive for needy children, recently.

Members of the Rotary Club, a community service organization, commended Carey and Prater for their continuing commitment to community needs.

Among certain peoples it was grounds for divorce if a man's shadow fell on his mother-in-law.

KIWANIANS DISCUSS DISTRICT MEETING HELD IN LEXINGTON

Discussion of the Kiwanis district meeting held in Lexington this week was made at last week's meeting of the Kiwanis Club, with Joe P. Tackett in charge of the program for the evening. Dr. John Barbour and Dr. M. J. Leete attended the Lexington meeting this week as representatives of the Prestonsburg club. A number of new songs were learned by the club during a song practice session, which was led by Miss Edith Fitzpatrick. Miss Fitzpatrick also rendered several charming vocal numbers to her own accompaniment.

CHILD PNEUMONIA VICTIM

Millard Simpson, Jr., 16-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Dock Simpson, of Emma, died Thursday, October 6, of pneumonia. The body was prepared for burial by E. P. Arnold and Company, and was shipped to Whitehouse, former home of the child's parents, for burial Saturday.

ATTEND FUNERAL

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lawson returned Monday night from Owenton, where they went last week to attend the funeral of Mrs. Lawson's grandfather, W. M. Rankin, who died at the age of 78 years from infirmities attendant upon old age. Funeral services were conducted Sunday.

Large Stone Tears Away Part of Home

Hueysville, Ky., Oct. 11. (Spl.)—The widow of "Uncle" Sammy Handshoe, who died some time ago, lost part of her little house a few days ago, when a huge rock was dislodged above her home by a tractor hauling casing for use in the large pipe line now being laid up Salt Lick.

According to accounts of citizens living near the place, the tractor dislodged the rock from its bed while pulling a load of casing up the mountain. The rock at first started in a direction which meant no injury to the little home, but when it plowed into a ravine near the house, its line of travel was changed directly toward the house. The rock ripped away part of the kitchen and plunged on into a hollow, where it stopped.

The old lady had just left the kitchen and gone into the porch, it is reported, when the accident happened. The act saved her life, in all probability. The company is having the house repaired, it is reported.

HURT IN FALL

William Huff, 80 year old man of this place, was considerably injured a few days ago, when he fell while trying to assist in getting a hog back into a pasture from which it had escaped. Members of his immediate family had tried to prevent his undertaking such an act, but he insisted on helping. His neck and back were sprained, and he is suffering much pain.

PERSONALS

Mrs. William Sexton, of Salt Lick, was visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Huff, of this place, Wednesday. Mrs. Ellen Gearheart, of Raccoon, Salt Lick, was visiting Bosco Thursday. Her daughter, Annis, was also along. Misses Blanche Allen, Gola Huff, Irene and Esther Foster, were visiting Bosco Theatre Sunday night. Brode Duke, employe of the C. and O. Railway Company, has been visiting his uncle, Dr. R. W. Duke, of this place.

Crops of this section have improved wonderfully during the past month. It was recently thought by many farmers of this place that the corn crop would be a failure, due to much rain and cool weather. However, the late improvement in weather conditions have wrought remarkable changes. Just recently, several farmers here have garnered splendid crops of cow peas and soy beans. The outlook is much better.

CHILD SERIOUSLY ILL

Joyce Duncan, small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Duncan of this place has been in a critical condition, following an attack of cholera infantum or a similar disease. Mrs. Duncan, the child's mother, was recently operated on at General Hospital, Ashland, and is recovering very slowly, probably due to worry over her little daughter's illness. It is thought that the child is slightly better, but her condition is yet serious at the time of this writing. Dr. Mark Dempsey, of Lackey, is attending physician.

"Jim" Reed, and his son, Joe Reed, this place, recently employed by Beaver Mining Company, have changed jobs and are now working for Stover-Elkhorn Coal Company, of Lackey. Prices for work of the nature which they do, are better at Stover's, they say. They are expert machine men, having followed the trade for some years. Their families are yet staying here, but they contemplate moving soon.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

A large crowd of children attended a birthday dinner given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Gearhart in honor of the seventh birthday of their daughter, Maxie Louise. Those present were: Leona Hays, Clemence Hays, Kathleen Hays, Marietta Hays, Mildred Mullins, Grace Mullins, Billa Wright, Norma Gayheart, Olive Rose Turner, Wilma Schumate, Loretta Schumate, Hazel Patrick, Mildred Allen, Buster Patrick, Harold Allen, Herman Allen, Clarence Hays, Joe Gayheart, Baird Conley. PAINTSVILLE

TO SURFACE GARRETT HIGHWAY Tuesday the State Highway Commission let to contract to the Wilmore Construction Company for hardsurfacing the Garrett Highway from the mouth of Mud Lick to Salyersville. The contract calls for native stone base with surface for the top dressing.

We are informed that work will start immediately and be rushed to completion. Construction work on this character of road will not disturb traffic, it is understood. This type of road can be built at any season of the year. The completion of this section of road closes the gap between Salyersville and Paintsville and will give the people of the two towns an all-year road.

MRS. STAFFORD DIES

The death of Mrs. H. M. Stafford, which occurred at the home of her son, Dr. Don Stafford in Cincinnati last Tuesday afternoon, was a great shock to the people of Paintsville, and the news was received here with much regret. She had been very ill for the past three months. Three weeks ago she was taken to a Cincinnati hospital for treatment, but was later removed to the home of her son. Mrs. Stafford died from a complication of diseases which defied the best medical skill of the country.

The remains were received in Paintsville Wednesday and the funeral services were held Friday. Services were in charge of the Reverend H. G. Sowards, pastor of the Mayo Memorial Church.

She is survived by her husband, one son, Dr. Don G. Stafford of Cincinnati, one sister, Mrs. Tom Brown, and two brothers, Dan E. and M. G. Preston, of this city.

Mrs. Stafford was one of the best known and highly respected women of Paintsville. Her pleasing smile and kind words will be missed by her many friends.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS CHECKED

Since the quarantine of the town of Van Lear against infantile paralysis no new cases have developed. This fact shows the importance of close quarantine of any epidemic of communicable disease. If no new cases are reported the quarantine will be lifted Wednesday. With the coming of cold weather, there is little likelihood of any new cases developing as this disease is exclusively one of summer and early fall.

PAINTSVILLE HI WINS

The Paintsville High School Tigers, exhibiting the finest type of football seen on the local gridiron in many a day, knocked Van Lear for a row of chalk marks and forty-three perfect points while officially opening the 1927 gridiron season at Riverside Park on Saturday, September 24. The game was a thriller from start to finish and fans went away well satisfied that they had been given full measure for the half-wheels deposited with the gate keeper.

EASTERN STARS INSTALL OFFICERS

At a regular meeting of the Eastern Star held Monday evening in the Masonic Temple, the installation of officers for the ensuing year, was held. A large number of members were present and an interesting meeting was held. Degrees were also conferred upon Mrs. Virgil Picklesimer, Mrs. Henry Ziegler and Mrs. Harper Preston. The meeting was presided over by Past Worthy Ma-

Science warns against improper refrigeration. Danger as great in winter as in summer, survey shows

FRIGIDAIRE is rapidly supplanting the old make-shift methods of food storage, formerly so widely practiced between fall and spring. This modern, sanitary, care-free refrigeration is now regarded as essential in cold weather as in warm.

For here is constant, cold storage temperature that guards against the risk of food contamination. In this cold, dry atmosphere, foods stay fresh and wholesome—no matter how hot or cold it is outside.

Santa presented gifts to each of the students who were unable to spend the holidays at home, and Dr. J. Rodney Chambers, Center director, conveyed season's greetings. IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Ted Miller who passed away January 10, 1982. Your gentle face and patient smile, With sadness we recall. You had a kindly word for each And were beloved by all. Your voice is mute, and Stilled is the heart That loved us well and true— So bitter was the trial to part From one as good as you. You are not forgotten, our loved one; Nor will you ever be. As long as life and memory last, We will remember thee. We miss you now; our hearts are sore. As time goes by, we miss you more and more. Sadly missed by your wife and children.

Home Resale Market Good

Mortgage interest rates are now at their lowest point in eight years and are expected to decline further in 1987, making the home resale market "very favorable," according to the National Association of Realtors.

At the same time, home prices have been rising and will probably continue to increase this year and in 1988. Nevertheless, existing single-family homes are more affordable now than they have been in years, and in November, sales of these homes reached their highest level since 1979.

"The homebuying power of the typical family is very strong—a reflection of today's lower interest rates," said William H. Moore, president of the association and a Realtor from Denver, Colo.

The average interest rate on loans for existing homes dropped to 9.86 in November 1986, according to the association's calculations. It is expected to decline to as low as 8.5 percent by mid-1987.

FINANCIAL PLANNING

AGE 55—RESIDENCE SALE

The federal income tax law allows you to sell a residence and pay no income tax on up to $125,000 of gain, if you qualify. In addition to being at least 55 years old before the sale, you must have owned and used the property as your principal residence for a total of at least three out of the last five years. You may elect the $125,000 exclusion only once in your lifetime.

Note that the exclusion is on $125,000 of gain, and not $125,000 of sales price. In other words, a residence purchased for $100,000 and sold for $225,000 would go untaxed if you otherwise qualify.

You are also entitled to use this age-55 exclusion in conjunction with the replacement of residence tax provision. This is very useful for people who want to sell their larger family residence and purchase a smaller home.

The following example illustrates how a residence costing $50,000 can be sold for $200,000 without creating a current tax liability.

Example:
Selling price of residence	$200,000
Less: Fees and expenses	12,500
Amount realized (adjusted selling price)	187,500
Less: Cost of residence	50,000
Gain realized	137,500
Less: Over-55 exclusion	125,000
Gain recognized (taxable)	$12,500

The $12,500 gain will not be taxed if you purchase a new residence for $62,500 or more ($12,500 gain plus $50,000 cost of old home) within two years.

Don't apply this tax information to your specific situation without professional assistance.

As with all tax laws, there are other considerations which need to be reviewed before you enter into any binding agreements.

Easy Cooking Can Lower Cancer Risk

There is a common misconception that healthful cooking means complicated recipes, strange ingredients, and a final result that might not be very tasty. The newest edition of the American Institute for Cancer Research (AICR) cookbook, An Ounce of Prevention, should lay such notions to rest. This recently published last volume of the four-volume series offers a variety of tasty, easy-to-prepare recipes, all of which have been tested to meet the Dietary Guidelines for Lower Risk recommended by AICR.

With recipes for a full range of foods from appetizers to desserts, the cookbook provides a wide variety of entree suggestions, including a section on meatless main dishes. Following the Institute's dietary recommendations for less fat and higher consumption of fruits, vegetables and whole grain products, the cookbook offers many suggestions on how to take favorite recipes and revise them to lower fat, and therefore, lower calories.

The results, such as Baked Onion Rings, Scallops in a Pocket, Chicken with Currant Sauce, Spinach-Ricotta Lasagna or Spiced Pumpkin Frozen Yogurt, offer a healthy menu variety with a focus on less fat and lower calories, as well as increases in fiber and vitamins A and C. It is a cookbook of recipes which are generally easy to prepare, yet sure to catch the attention of even picky eaters.

The American Institute for Cancer Research is a national cancer organization which provides educational programs to teach consumers how to lower cancer risk through proper diet and nutrition. The Institute also funds cancer research at hospitals and universities across the country on the relationship between diet and cancer. Since current scientific knowledge suggests that virtually all cancers are in some way related to the kinds and amounts of foods we eat, there is strong incentive for everyone to make the simple dietary changes this cookbook recommends in order to reduce cancer risk.

An Ounce of Prevention has been published as a 4-volume cookbook series, with each spiral bound volume offering recipes for foods most readily available in each season of the year. The recipes provided each include a listing of fat and calorie content, as well as preparation time and convenient symbols for costs, entertaining and time needed. The recently published "Fall Volume" now completes the set of Winter, Spring and Summer volumes previously published.

Copies of any of the four volumes of An Ounce of Prevention are available for a donation of $6 per volume. Volumes may be ordered by writing to the American Institute for Cancer Research, Dept. CB, Washington, D.C. 20069.

Jackson Firm Named To Use New Product

Professional Services, of Jackson, has been named one of the nation's first certified applicators of a new carpet odor and stain control product from Dow Corning Corporation. They were certified after completing a special training program on how to apply the treatment for extended carpet freshness.

The Sylgard (TM) treatment works by checking the growth of mold, mildew and other germs caused by food spills, pets, high humidity and tracked-in dirt. The treatment is similar to that used on hospital operating room linens, sportswear, hosiery and new carpeting.

George Hatherill, of Professional Services, said the treatment is invisibly bound to carpet fiber and remains effective for one year after application.

Most felt is made of wool, but in some parts of the world felt is made of camel or rabbit hair.

May 5, 1986
 To the People of Kentucky
 Honorable Martha Layne Collins, Governor
 Honorable John M. Stumbo, County Judge/Executive
 Members of the Floyd County Fiscal Court

We have examined the statement of assets, liabilities, and fund balances arising from cash transactions of Floyd County as of June 30, 1985, and the related statement of cash receipts, cash disbursements, and changes in fund balances for the year then ended. We also examined the Sheriff's settlement—1984 state taxes for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1985. Our examination was made in accordance with generally accepted government auditing standards and, accordingly, included such tests of the accounting records and such other auditing procedures as we considered necessary in the circumstances.

The Sheriff's 1984 tax settlement for all taxes other than state taxes were examined by Stephen R. Allen, Certified Public Accountant.

The county does not maintain a general fixed asset group of accounts. Therefore, our examination could not include this group of accounts.

We did not conduct a study and evaluation of internal accounting control as we concluded that the audit could be performed more efficiently by expanding substantive audit tests. Therefore, we placed very little reliance on the internal accounting control system.

As recommended by the State Local Finance Officer, pursuant to Kentucky Revised Statute (KRS) 68.210, the accompanying financial statements are prepared on a cash basis. Consequently, certain revenues and the related assets are recognized when received rather than when earned, and certain expenses are recognized when paid rather than when a liability is incurred. Accordingly, the accompanying financial statements are not intended to present financial position and results of operations in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles.

In our opinion, except for the exclusion of the general fixed asset account group, the accompanying financial statements present fairly the assets, liabilities, and fund balances arising from cash transactions of Floyd County at June 30, 1985, and its cash receipts and disbursements, and the Sheriff's 1984 state taxes charged, collected, and distributed during the year then ended, in conformity with the accounting system described above, applied on a basis consistent with that of the preceding year.

The accompanying additional information, provided on Schedules A through C, is not necessary for a fair presentation of the financial statements, but is presented as additional analytical data. This information has been subjected to the tests and other auditing procedures applied in the examination of the financial statements mentioned above and, in our opinion, is fairly stated in all material respects in relation to the financial statements taken as a whole.

We also conducted tests of compliance with state and federal laws and regulations including federal revenue sharing requirements enumerated in the Commentary on the Audit Requirements of the 1980 Amendments to the State and Local Fiscal Assistance Act issued by the Office of Revenue Sharing. Unless otherwise noted below, the tested items were in compliance with applicable state and federal laws and regulations. During our examination, nothing came to our attention to cause us to believe that the untested items were not in compliance.

As in prior years, we found the County Treasurer's records in good order. We wish to commend the Treasurer for his effort and urge that similar efforts be made in the future.

FINDINGS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

Our comments are intended to be constructive. The purpose of each is to point out areas for improvement. The absence of extensive comments of a complimentary nature does not imply the county's accounting and compliance procedures are deficient or unsound. Accordingly, we offer the accompanying comments and recommendations:

Prior Year
 In the prior year audit report, we reported the county had contributed Revenue Sharing funds in excess of $25,000 to other agencies without obtaining audits from the agencies. We also reported the Sheriff's county revenue bond was insufficient. These noncompliances have not been corrected and are commented on in the current year audit findings.

Current Year

1) Floyd County Solid Waste, Inc., Should Be Audited
 During the year audited, Floyd County contributed $125,000 of Revenue Sharing funds to Floyd County Solid Waste, Inc., and over the past two years the total contribution of Revenue Sharing funds amounts to $282,500. The county has not obtained an audit of this agency. Revenue Sharing Regulation 51.103 requires an audit of a secondary recipient when the amount contributed is in excess of $25,000. We recommend compliance with this regulation.

2) Sheriff's County Revenue Bond Should Be Increased
 The Sheriff's county revenue bond is set at $50,000 which is inadequate to cover the taxes collected; and as a result, the county is not protected from possible loss. We recommend the bond be raised to $735,000 which would approximately equal the largest amount of taxes collected in a one-month period.

3) Purchasing Procedures Should Be Improved
 During the course of our examination of expenditures, we noted several weaknesses in the county's purchases of gravel from the Grayson Coal and Stone Company. The weaknesses are as follows:
 a) The amount of materials purchased exceeded the amount authorized by the purchase order.
 b) Purchase orders were used that had been authorized 60 days earlier.
 c) Weight tickets did not have a purchase order number.
 d) Weight tickets had purchase order numbers that did not exist.
 We recommend that stricter controls be implemented over the purchase of materials and the use of purchase orders.

We are confident the above findings and recommendations will be useful to you in managing the operations of the county in a manner consistent with effective accounting and compliance controls.

Yours for a better Kentucky,
MARY ANN TOBIN

More Job Seekers, Fewer Tobacco Workers Boost State Jobless Rate

An annual combination—increased applicants for temporary holiday jobs coupled with reduced agricultural employment at the end of the tobacco harvesting season—pushed Kentucky's unemployment rate up in November following a three-month decline.

The state's jobless rate for November stood at 7.9 percent, up from 6.9 percent in October, according to figures released today by the Cabinet for Human Resources.

The November jobless rate remained well below the 9.0 percent recorded in November 1985. Prior to the higher rate for November, Kentucky's unemployment rate had fallen steadily since reaching 9.2 percent in July.

"The loss of 14,900 jobs in Kentucky's farming industry was mainly due to the winding down of the tobacco harvest season," said state labor market analyst Ed Blackwell. "In other areas, the picture was brighter."

Another factor affecting November's unemployment rate was the influx of new job seekers applying for temporary positions for the holiday shopping season.

"People begin looking for these jobs in November," Blackwell said. "Our employment placement offices across the state process a high number of applications for seasonal work during November and December."

"Unfortunately there are always more people looking for a job for a few weeks than there are temporary positions opening up."

Nationally the jobless rate stood at 6.6 percent for the second month in a row. The comparable Kentucky and U.S. unemployment rates are not seasonally adjusted.

An estimated 1,581,600 Kentuckians were working in November, down 33,200 from October's state record of 1,614,800, but still 25,100 above the November 1985 figure of 1,556,500.

The estimate of jobless Kentuckians rose from 119,700 in October to 135,400 in November but remained below the November 1985 level of 153,400.

The Department for Employment Services monthly survey of non-farm employers showed 900 more people are working in manufacturing jobs, including 500 in textiles and apparel. Other job gains included 900 in transportation, communications and utilities, 800 in trade, where employment was up in department stores and groceries, 600 in education and 300 in services.

The survey showed losses in bituminous coal mining (300), construction (100) and finance, insurance and real estate (100).

The category that includes domestic workers, self-employed people and unpaid family workers registered a loss of 2,000 jobs.

The state's civilian labor force estimate was 1,717,000 in November, 17,500 below the October report of 1,734,500, but above the November 1985 figure of 1,709,900. The civilian labor force includes non-military people who are working and unemployed people who actively are seeking jobs. It does not include anyone who is jobless but not seeking work.

Unemployment statistics are based on estimates and, therefore, are compiled to measure employment trends rather than to actually count people working.

Child Abuse Groups Merge For Strength

Parents Anonymous of Kentucky and the Kentucky Chapter for the Prevention of Child Abuse merged to form a new organization, the Kentucky Council on Child Abuse, January 1.

Vernon Wiehe, future president of the Kentucky Council on Child Abuse Board of Directors, said "the merger of these two agencies will enhance efforts for the prevention and treatment as it has in many states and will give us an even stronger base from which to fight child abuse."

This merger will provide local community groups with many options for prevention and treatment through the strong relationship with the National Council for the Prevention of Child Abuse and added expertise at the state level.

The Kentucky Council on Child Abuse will continue the community-based programs of Parents Anonymous self-help groups, Adults Sexually Abused As Children, and information and referral programs including helpline and telephone assistance to parents, volunteers, and professionals.

State, Medicaid Offers Nursing Home Substitute

The Kentucky Cabinet for Human Resources received a welcome gift this holiday season—permission from the federal government to expand the special Medicaid program that offers an alternative to nursing home care.

The home- and community-based services program offers some low-income elderly and disabled people a chance to live at home if they also have the right kinds of care and support from family and friends.

"While some Kentuckians need the round-the-clock care provided by nursing homes, others can live at home with the extra help our program offers," said state Medicaid Services Commissioner Hughes Walker.

Offered since July 1983 in Bluegrass Area Development District counties, the program is scheduled to be expanded in phases. "In January we will begin offering home- and community-based services in Buffalo Trace, Gateway, Kentucky River and Cumberland Valley area development districts," Walker said. "In March we will extend the services into Barren River, Lincoln Trail, Lake Cumberland and Northern Kentucky ADDs. The service will be offered in remaining counties July 1.

"In the last year alone we served 302 residents in Bluegrass ADD counties, either postponing or preventing their entering a nursing home," he said. "All these people were eligible for intermediate or skilled nursing care. They preferred to participate in our program and remain at home."

That choice saved money for the Medicaid program. "Last year the average length of stay in this program was 154 days at an average cost of $1,452 per person. This compares to 129 days in skilled care at an average cost per person of $6,498 and 263 days in intermediate care at an average cost of $7,449 each," the commissioner noted.

Local home health agencies provide services under this program in the Bluegrass ADD counties. The Medicaid Services department expects to have the same arrangement to provide services statewide.

Kentuckians interested in participating in the program may contact the local Department for Social Insurance office, a local home health agency, or, if they are in a hospital or nursing home, the staff in charge of planning a patient's discharge.

Volinda Walters, coordinator of the program, pointed out that participants in this special program must be Medicaid-eligible, but they will be allowed to have a higher monthly income than under the regular Medicaid program.

Program services include homemaker services, personal care, respite care, adult day health care and minor home adaptations. "These are in addition to the traditional home health services that have been covered by Medicaid for many years," Walters said.

"The services we provide under this program are meant to enhance existing community and family support, not replace it. We're building on the support that already is there."

Commissioner Walker expects this new program to complement the Department for Social Services' in-home services program, which currently provides similar services. "That department now will be freer to serve more people above the Medicaid income level. With both programs, we will be able to serve a greater number of people in need."

Wintercare Program Shares The Warmth

Every winter thousands of Kentucky residents suffer from the cold. Many area residents must choose whether to buy food or to heat their home. The WinterCare Energy Fund feels that this is a choice no Kentucky resident should have to make. WinterCare does not want anyone to suffer from the cold.

To combat this problem, the WinterCare Energy Fund begins its fourth season of aiding low-income area residents with utility payment assistance. The statewide Fund is a cooperative effort between 27 Kentucky utility companies and 22 community action agencies and it helps low-income residents in 119 counties.

Last year, WinterCare raised almost $300,000.00 and assisted 1,221 households statewide. This year WinterCare would like to double its contributions and double the number of households assisted. This cannot happen without your support. The Fund relies on contributions from local individuals, organizations, and businesses. To contribute to WinterCare, simply add $1, $5, or more to your utility payment check. Every penny of your contribution will help local residents stay warm.

If you need to apply for WinterCare assistance, contact your local community action agency.

Utilities participating in the program in this area include Columbia Gas, Big Sandy RECC, and Kentucky Power Co.

An Ordinance of the Fiscal Court of the County of Floyd, Kentucky, providing for the issuance of $4,325,000 principal amount (which may be increased or decreased by the amount of $430,000) of County of Floyd School Building Refunding Revenue Bonds of 1986, dated November 1, 1986 (the Refunding Bonds) in accordance with sections 162.120 through 162.300 and sections 58.010 through 58.140 of Kentucky Revised Statutes, for the purpose of refunding at our prior to their respective maturities all of the outstanding County of Floyd School Building Revenue Bonds, dated November 1, 1980, (the Prior Issue) through the deposit and investment in escrow of all of the net proceeds of the Refunding Bonds; providing for the payment of the principal of an interest on said Prior Issue as same mature or by redemption in advance of maturity; providing for the creation of certain funds to effect the defeasement of the rights of the holders of the Bonds of the Prior Issue and the transfers of certain amounts into certain funds; providing for the payment of said Refunding Bonds and the interest thereon, providing for the rights of the holders of said Refunding Bonds and the enforcement thereof; and providing for an advertised public competitive sale of said Refunding Bonds.

The Ordinance authorizes the issuance of $3,885,000 of County of Floyd School Building Refunding Revenue Bonds of 1986, dated November 1, 1986, (the "Refunding Bonds") pursuant to the provisions of KRS 162.120 through 162.300 and KRS 58.010 through 58.140 and KRS 58.440.

The proceeds of the Refunding Bonds, together with required funds of the Board of Education, will be escrowed and invested to pay at or prior to the stated maturities thereof the outstanding County of Floyd School Building Revenue Bonds, dated November 1, 1980 (the "Prior Issue").

The principal amount of Refunding Bonds actually issued was adjusted upward to $4,260,000 in order to obtain maximum interest cost savings to the County and Board of Education as permitted by the Ordinance.

The Refunding Bonds mature as to principal on November 1 in each of the years 1987 through 1999 and are to bear interest from their date at rates established by Resolution on December 19, 1986 following the advertised, public, competitive sale of said Refunding Bonds.

The Refunding Bonds do not constitute an indebtedness of the County but are payable only from revenues derived from the lease of the school improvements constructed from the proceeds of the Prior Issue Bonds to the Board of Education of Floyd County, Kentucky, in accordance with the terms of a Contract, Lease and Option, dated as of November 1, 1986, by and between the County and the Board.

Safety Precautions Can Prevent Tragedy

Space heaters and wood stoves can provide life-saving heat during winter's most severe months, and they can cause life-threatening fires and injuries if not handled properly.

The consumer product safety branch in the Kentucky Department for Health Services offers the following tips for safety using space heaters and wood stoves.

For space heaters:
Keep heaters clean and have them inspected and serviced once a year.

Ventilate the room if you smell gas from a space heater. Alert the gas company. Never light a gas heater or touch electrical switches if you smell gas.

If you smell fumes from a kerosene heater, check the fuel level and the wick adjustment.

Don't allow children to play near a heater.

Don't use heaters to dry clothes.

Don't stand close enough to a heater so that clothes come into contact with it. Position heaters so that they are away from upholstered furniture, draperies or other combustible materials.

Don't use frayed or light-weight extension cords with electric space heaters.

Make sure heaters are properly installed and vented. They should be balanced to avoid easy tip-over.

Read labels and follow all precautions and instructions.

For wood stoves and fireplaces:
Wood stoves, vents and fireplaces should be inspected annually. Chimneys should be inspected more often.

Keep a fire extinguisher near wood stoves and fireplaces.

Install smoke detectors.

Collect ashes in a metal bucket with a metal cover. Ashes that appear dead may contain live coals.

Don't burn paper, cardboard boxes or other light, fluffy material in a wood stove or fireplace—this can lead to chimney fires.

Don't burn plastic or foam materials because they can generate toxic gases.

Using combustible liquids to start a fire can cause an explosion or an uncontrollable fire.

A fireplace should not be left unattended unless there is a screen or glass front to protect against coals popping onto a combustible surface.

Another important point to remember about gas space heaters is that carbon monoxide poisoning can occur if heaters are not properly vented. Symptoms of carbon monoxide poisoning resemble those of the flu at first—headaches, dizziness and nausea. Continued exposure to high levels of the gas, which is colorless and odorless, can cause unconsciousness or death.

Kerosene heaters should not be used for long periods of time in small enclosed spaces. Some types of ventilation should be used with kerosene heaters.
