Civic Betterment Aim Of Maytown Residents

A group of Maytown residents, inspired by a history of the small community written by Peggy Jo Allen Vaughan, have decided to form the Maytown Community Association to continue the tradition of civic improvement established by the earliest settlers of the area.

Their first project, completed July 4, was to place concrete planters filled with red geraniums at both ends of the new Maytown bridge. Other ideas are to obtain signs for the streets in the community that are shown on maps, to improve drainage of the streets and repair broken shoulders on various roads, to check soil erosion and to tackle sanitation problems.

Their efforts to improve the community are expected to complement those of the fire department, led by Buddy Robinson, and the Maytown Black and Gold Festival, directed by Joann Osborne and Mr. and Mrs. Mike May.

The group has met several times before at the home of Duna Combs, but it wasn't until they heard Peggy Vaughn's stories of early Maytown life that they were moved to organize for the betterment of the community. Members of the steering committee are Henrietta Hicks, Trilby May, Libby Flannery, Kat Manual, Pam Hensley, Violet Allen, Kathy Halbert and Duna Combs.

The next meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m., July 14, at the home of Duna Combs. Anyone interested in joining the association is encouraged to call any of the above members.

"Maytown, to most of its inhabitants," wrote Peggy Vaughn, "is home where our ancestors settled, built homes, established churches and schools, raised their food, made their clothes and ground their meal at the old grist mill." Reuben May, the first of the May family here, joined the Martins and Allens, who were already settled on Beaver Creek, sometime near the end of the eighteenth century. Daniel Boone is said to have spent a winter in the Beaver Creek valley where Maytown is located.

The history tells of the "fiercely independent" people who came to the banks of Beaver Creek, farmed its lowlands, invested in a Carbon Black plant and discovered the many uses of coal and gas minerals. At Maytown, residents built a Methodist church which later was dismantled board by board and rebuilt in "new Maytown." The town also included a hotel, a depot, a silent movie theater and two general stores.

Dr. J.H. Allen and Townsel Combs led a drive for better schools and teachers, culminating in the construction of Maytown High School. Professor and Mrs. Newell C. Boughton, recent college graduates from Georgia, were hired to design a curriculum that would allow its young graduates to go to college.

In addition to education, the town offered plenty to entertain a youngster of the early 1900's: weiner roasts, picnics, lawn parties, hikes up to the "high rocks" behind Dr. Allen's home, ice skating when the creek froze over, and, in the summer, fishing from the banks of Beaver Creek and swimming in its clear, blue-green waters.

May Jobless Rate Declines In 100 of State's Counties

Jobless rates fell in 100 of Kentucky's 120 counties between April and May as the number of wage earners in the state rose to the highest level reported thus far in 1987.

In the Big Sandy district the jobless rate decreased from a revised 17.8 percent in April to a preliminary 16.6 percent in May. All five counties reported rates above 10.0 percent, ranging from 14.6 percent in Martin county to 22.0 percent in Magoffin county. Floyd county's rate was 15.7; Johnson, 15.2; Pike, 17 percent.

The monthly sample of claimants of unemployment insurance benefits showed 50.1 percent had worked in mining, 14.4 percent in trade, 11.2 percent in construction and 10.3 percent in services.

Seventeen counties recorded higher rates in May, while in Calloway, Perry and Warren counties the rates were unchanged from April, according to figures released today by the Cabinet for Human Resources.

"The decline in unemployment rates between April and May follows an 18-year trend," said state labor market analyst Ed Blackwell. "Usually the main reason Kentucky's employment outlook improves in May is a big jump in farming jobs."

The state's preliminary jobless rate for May was 9.0 percent, down from a revised 9.6 percent in April and the same rate recorded in May 1986.

Nationally, unemployment decreased from 6.1 percent in April to 6.0 percent in May. The state and national rates are not seasonally adjusted.

Sixty-three counties reported jobless rates of 10.0 percent or above during May, compared to 73 in April and 64 in May 1986.

A comparison of the most recent unemployment figures with those for May 1986 showed 61 counties had lower rates, 55 counties with higher rates and four counties had the same rates.

Trimble county's 3.1 percent rate was the lowest in the state in May, followed by Carroll county's 3.8 percent, Calloway county's 4.4 percent and Fayette county's 4.8 percent. Owen and Shelby counties both reported 4.9 percent rates.

Elliott county reported the highest rate, 24.3 percent, followed by Magoffin, 22.0 percent, Morgan, 19.4 percent and McCreary, 18.7 percent.

Agricultural jobs increased by 7,200, construction and state and local government by 2,200 each, services by 1,800 and trade by 1,500. Other increases were in manufacturing, which grew by 1,300; transportation, communications and utilities, 500; and bituminous coal mining, 100.

Education jobs declined by 800, but Blackwell said this is a seasonal loss reflecting fewer hourly jobs at public schools and colleges. The category that includes self-employed people, domestic workers and unpaid workers in family businesses recorded 600 fewer jobs. And finance, insurance and real estate jobs were down by 100.

The federal estimate of Kentuckians working was 1,532,400 in May, up from 1,514,900 in April, but 400 below the May 1986 figure of 1,532,800. "May's employment figure is the highest number recorded this year and is very close to the 1986 average of 1,533,000," Blackwell said. "This indicates continued stability in the economy of the commonwealth."

An estimated 151,500 Kentuckians were unemployed in May, the lowest number recorded this year. This is 9,600 below April's 161,100 and 600 fewer than in May 1986, when 152,100 of the state's civilian labor force were out of work.

The May labor force estimate of 1,683,900 is the highest recorded this year. The figure is 7,900 higher than April's 1,676,000, but 1,000 below the May 1986 report of 1,684,900. The civilian labor force includes non-military people who are working and unemployed people who actively are seeking jobs. It does not include anyone who is unemployed but has not looked for a job for four weeks.

Unemployment statistics are based on estimates and are compiled to measure employment trends rather than to actually count people working.

The Gateway district's unemployment rate fell from a revised 15.0 percent in April to a preliminary 13.3 percent in May. Rates ranged from 8.7 percent in Rowan county, the only single-digit rate in the district, to 19.4 percent in Morgan county.

The monthly sample of claimants of unemployment insurance benefits showed 30.0 percent had worked in manufacturing, 19.4 percent in construction, 11.9 percent in mining, 11.3 percent in services and 10.6 percent in trade.

In the FIVCO district the unemployment rate dropped from a revised 15.8 percent in April to a preliminary 13.0 percent in May. All counties reported double-digit rates, ranging from 10.8 percent in Greenup county to 24.3 percent in Elliott county.

The monthly sample of claimants of unemployment insurance benefits showed 29.0 percent had worked in manufacturing, 21.0 percent in services, 19.5 percent in construction and 16.2 percent in trade.

In the Kentucky River district the jobless rate decreased from a revised 16.2 percent in April to a preliminary 15.8 percent in May. All counties reported double-digit rates, ranging from 13.1 percent in Owsley county to 17.9 percent in Knott county.

The monthly sample of claimants of unemployment insurance benefits showed 51.5 percent had worked in mining, 10.4 percent in services and 9.3 percent each in construction, trade and transportation, communications and utilities.

The jobless rate in the Cumberland Valley district decreased from a revised 13.5 percent in April to a preliminary 12.8 percent in May. All of the district's counties reported double-digit rates, ranging from 10.1 percent in Knox county to 17.2 percent in Harlan county.

The monthly sample of claimants of unemployment insurance benefits showed 31.2 percent had worked in mining, 20.4 percent in trade, 16.6 percent in manufacturing and 10.8 percent in construction.

Bomb Threat, Here, Is Taken Seriously

By Joe Porter

A prankster called Food City in Glynn View Plaza, Friday, and said there was a bomb in the store. Taking no chances the store was evacuated and searched, but no bomb was ever discovered.

The Prestonsburg Fire Department responded at 2:38 p.m. by sending Engine 5 and the Squad 6 truck. Then a 20-man search team led by Paul Chafins combed the inside of the building. "We completed our search of the whole premises in about 45 minutes," said Sergeant Mike Wells, "but we didn't find anything."

Store Manager Bill Potter said that it was a male voice who made the bomb threat, and estimates that about 200 people, customers and employees, were evacuated. "It was done in about two minutes," Potter said. "It was very orderly. People were calm. There was no running."

Most customers returned to their shopping after the bomb search technicians established the fact that there was no bomb and it was safe to go back inside. "They did a very thorough job," Potter said of the search team.

The store manager said he had no idea who might have called. As a precaution the Rite-Aid store next door was also emptied. Police and Fire Inspector Larry Adams are conducting the investigation.

Wells said that the store has been subjected to three or four bomb threats in the last year but that didn't effect their procedure. "We treat all bomb searches alike," Wells said. "We can't take any one of them lightly."

The lee, or sheltered side of a ship, comes from an Anglo-Saxon word referring to the side of a shed that was out of the wind, where a laborer would take his lunch.

Number Passing GED Up 21.8% Over 1986

Kentuckians are continuing to qualify for high school equivalency diplomas in record numbers, Superintendent of Public Instruction Alice McDonald says.

In a six-month status report on the Department of Education's Second Chance program, McDonald said the number of adults taking the General Educational Development test was up 35.7 percent this year and that the number receiving passing scores was up 21.8 percent.

Department figures show that 11,514 people took the GED test through June 24, compared with 8,486 during the first six months of 1986. Of that number, 7,824 passed, compared with 6,422 during the first six months of 1986.

Earlier this year McDonald set a goal of increasing the number of Kentuckians earning GED certificates in 1987 by 8,700. Mathematical projections show that 24,500 adults will take the GED test this year, she said, and that 17,000 will pass. That would be an increase of 4,444 over the 1986 total.

"If that happens, we will have a record year—the best year ever," McDonald said. "But we think we will do better than that. We are stepping up the pace of the program, and we believe we have an excellent chance of meeting the goal."

Because of the department's increased emphasis on adult education, the number of Kentuckians taking the GED last year was up 29.6 percent over 1985, and the number passing was up 25.6 percent.

For that same period nationwide, the increase was only 3 percent in the number taking the test and 4 percent in the number passing it.

McDonald said much of the increase during 1987 could be attributed to the efforts of the new GED Foundation, the cooperation of the business community, the availability of Saturday testing, and Department of Education programs to make people more aware of educational opportunities for adults.

Enrollments are up this year by about 2,300 in GED preparation classes, adult basic education classes and literacy classes, for a total of about 28,000, she said. That figure represents an increase of 8.9 percent over the 1986 adult enrollment.

The GED Foundation will again sponsor Saturday testing this fall and will also continue its incentive grants program, McDonald said.

The Department of Education is promoting Project Second Chance through an informational booth at conventions and meetings, a speakers' bureau and public service announcements.

The department is also offering on-site educational programs at businesses and is cooperating with the Kentucky Literacy Commission and the Cabinet for Human Resources in pilot programs to encourage adults to enroll in basic education and literacy classes, McDonald said.

Information on GED testing and other educational programs for adults is available at the toll-free number (800) 372-7179.

Seek Host Families for Foreign Students

Kentucky families can further the cause of international understanding by hosting an International High School Program student this year attending a local high school as part of The Experiment in International Living's Homestay USA program.

Because of the success of the Homestay USA program in recent years, enrollments are expected to double this academic year. Over 300 young men and women will arrive in the States in mid-August. Between now and early July, participants will be matched with other qualified host families in Kentucky and throughout the United States. Chosen from countries in Europe, Asia and Latin America on the basis of their flexibility, maturity and motivation, these international "Experimenters" offer friendship and warmth to their host families and school and bring part of their world to their host communities.

Families interested in sharing their homes with an international Experiment student provide free hospitality to the participant while learning firsthand about another culture. "Experimenters" bring their own spending money and are fully insured while they are here in the United States. Participant and families are carefully matched by The Experiment through interviews and consultations with families and local volunteers.

The Experiment, headquartered in Brattleboro, Vermont, assists local volunteers and homestay families and monitors each student's stay. Recognized throughout the world as a leader in citizen exchange, language training and academic degree programs in international education, The Experiment originated the concept of learning the culture of another country by living as a member of one of its families.

In recent years, The Experiment has grown into a broadly diversified worldwide organization which promotes international understanding through citizen exchange, career-oriented higher education, language instruction, and projects in international development and training.

More than 300,000 people of all ages from over 100 countries have participated in Experiment programs throughout its more than 50-year history in working towards greater international understanding.

For more information about hosting an international high school student, write Homestay USA, The Experiment in International Living, Kipling Road, Brattleboro, Vermont 05301 or call the Experiment toll-free, at 800-327-HOST.

Substance Abuse School Slated at N. Kentucky U.

Prevention of alcoholism, drug abuse and the spread of AIDS through "dirty needles" of drug users are topics headlining "Communities in Action," the 14th annual Kentucky School of Alcohol and Drug Studies at Northern Kentucky University in Highland Heights, July 19-24.

The school, sponsored by the Cabinet for Human Resources Division of Substance Abuse and the Kentucky Alcoholism Council, is expected to draw more than 500 people from Kentucky and surrounding states. The participants come from a variety of professional fields as well as parents and community members concerned about chemical abuse in today's society.

"An organized community can be very effective in helping its citizens fight the problems of alcohol and drug abuse," said substance abuse director Mike Townsend. "Many of our workshops will focus on how a community can bring together its resources to deal with issues affecting that particular area."

Specific school offerings examine such topics as developing community awareness, family violence and abuse, assessment and treatment of adolescents for substance abuse, student assistance programs and courses in advanced counseling techniques. The school is offering various courses that examine subjects of interest for such professionals as social workers, educators, counselors, nurses and doctors.

"Two new subjects which have gained increasing attention have been added to this year's schedule," said Townsend. "One workshop will focus on the growing connection between AIDS and intravenous drug users. IV drug users have been identified as a high risk group among AIDS carriers."

"We've also added a workshop which will examine drug abuse among the elderly, especially dependency and addiction to prescription drugs."

Several notable professionals are scheduled as faculty members and featured speakers for more than 40 programs and workshops being offered this year.

They include Peter Bell, executive director, Minnesota Institute on Black Chemical Dependency; James Hall, executive director, Up Front Drug Information Center, Miami; Miriam Ingebritson, clinical development director, Personal Performance Consultants, St. Louis; Dr. Henry O. Braddock, holistic education director, Hillside International Truth Center, Atlanta; and Ken Winters, chemical dependency project director, Adolescent Assessment Project, St. Paul, Minn.

To make reservations for the school and lodging or for further information, contact Dionna Burchett, Division of Substance Abuse, Department for Mental Health and Mental Retardation Services, 275 E. Main St., Frankfort, Ky. 40621, or phone (502) 564-2880.

Census Bureau To Collect Employment Data Here

The Census Bureau will collect current employment and unemployment data for this area the week of July 20-25, according to William Hill, director of the bureau's Charlotte regional office.

The local data will contribute to July's national labor force picture to be released August 7 by the Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS). The May data, the most current, showed a national civilian unemployment rate of 6.3 percent. This means that 7.5 million workers out of a labor force of 112.4 million did not have jobs.

The Census Bureau's monthly Current Population Survey includes a national sample of some 58,000 households and is sponsored by BLS primarily to gather labor force data. Information supplied by individuals is kept confidential by law. Only statistical totals are published.

8th Indian Art Show Set in Owensboro

The eighth annual American Indian art show is being presented Saturday and Sunday, August 1 and 2, at the Executive Inn Rivermont in Owensboro.

It is the largest show of its kind held in the United States, covering about 21,000 square feet of exhibit space. Collectors and dealers from 30 or more states are planning to be there. It is being hosted by Art and Kathy Gerber, of Tell City, Ind., well-known for their fine collection of prehistoric artifacts.

There is no admission fee to the public. On display will be some of this country's finest collections of prehistoric artifacts. And this year, because of some national advertising, several collectors with historic items will be there as well. Dealers with items including artifacts, rugs, baskets, jewelry, cases, artwork, etc. are planning to attend. Collectors are free to bring any of their collections for display or just come and look.

"There are great educational benefits for children, it's a nice place to bring the family," says Gerber. "There will be security guards on duty with over a million dollars worth of artifacts on display."

The hours are Saturday, August 1, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday, August 2, 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Art Gerber will be presenting a slide show Saturday night for everyone's entertainment.

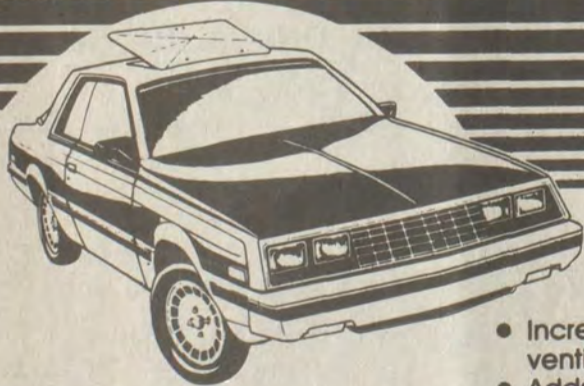

For additional information or table reservations contact Art or Kathy Gerber at Box 7, Tell City, Ind. 47586, or call 812-547-4881.

Roof Fall Deaths Targeted In New Mine Safety Effort

The Labor Department's Mine Safety and Health Administration (MSHA) recently announced a new cooperative effort with industry and labor to reduce underground coal mine deaths due to sudden falls of heavy rock slabs in working areas.

In this county, Bradley Stevens, 26, of Toler Creek, was killed in a roof fall at Warco Mining Company's Mine No. 1 near Martin, June 16, and in neighboring Johnson county, the death of Michael D. Conley, 26, of Tutor Key, was caused by a roof fall at the Mayo Resources, Inc. Mine No. 1 near Stambaugh, June 25. Conley's death marked the 12th mining fatality this year, the fifth due to roof or rib falls.

Historically, the No. 1 killer in deep coal mining has been the collapse of rocky materials from ceilings and sides, called "roofs" and "ribs," of underground passages.

During the national safety awareness campaign now under way, all underground coal miners and supervisors will be asked to sign a pledge that they will not work or travel under roof that has not been adequately supported according to an MSHA approved roof control plan. Employees will take part in safety awareness sessions and will receive "I PLEDGE" hardhat stick-on emblems.

The "I PLEDGE" campaign is part of MSHA's continuing Roof Evaluation and Accident Prevention (REAP) program to enlist all segments of the mining community in roof hazard awareness activities. Coal mine operators, labor representatives, and federal and state agencies have joined in many activities aimed at reducing deaths and disabling injuries resulting from roof falls through improved safety training, technical information distribution, enforcement, and improved technology.

While mining disasters such as fires and explosions get widespread public attention, the day-to-day roof fall accidents that kill from one to three persons exact a much greater death and injury toll each year in the United States.

During the past 60 years, nearly 33,000 underground coal miners have lost their lives in roof and rib falls—a far higher death toll than fatalities recorded for any other single type of underground coal mine accident.

As the attached chart of accident data from 1976 through 1986 shows, deaths of U.S. miners in roof or rib falls averaged nearly one half of all underground coal mining fatalities, and accounted for more than 60 percent of the deaths during 1979 and 1982.

The wide variation in the percentage from year to year (e.g., 37 percent in 1981 followed by 63 percent in 1982 in the chart category showing roof fall deaths as a percent of all underground coal mine fatalities shows how persistent this safety hazard is, even though industry, labor and government have given roof safety a high priority over the years.

The most common last name in the English language is Smith. There are an estimated 2,382,509 Smiths in the United States.

Ancient drawings on stone and bone prove that horse racing is at least 3,000 years old.

*Roof fall deaths have amounted to an average of 46 percent of the total yearly underground coal mine fatalities during this 11-year period, and well over half the underground fatalities in 1979, 1982, and 1986.

**An average of 52 percent of the deaths due to roof falls each year involved persons working or traveling beyond supported mine roof during the 11-year period.

Much of the reason for the persistence of this hazard lies in the inherent instability of pressurized sandstone, shale, coal and limestone layering that has been formed and violently re-formed in coal-rich regions over eons of geological time.

The complex geology of coal mining is better understood than it once was, and such knowledge is put to good use in planning for new mines or opening up new areas of existing operations. MSHA enforces stringent regulations requiring every underground coal mine operator to have a roof control plan approved and continually reviewed by MSHA. The agency also requires compliance with varied standards dealing with mining practices that could result in roof fall accidents.

Mining technology and methods continue to improve, especially regarding use of machines, materials and techniques for roof bolting (installing long, superstrong bolts to support roof); employment of protective cabs or canopies on mining machines; and the growing use of automated temporary roof support systems (ATRS), which hydraulically raise steel support arms or bars against roof. Because the roof drilling and bolting operation has been one of the most dangerous jobs in deep mines, many protective ATRS devices have been installed on roof bolting machines. These have provided excellent temporary support that has saved miners' lives. Records show that cabs and canopies have prevented the deaths of many machine operators who were involved in roof falls in recent years.

Even so, falls of roof and rib continue to take a heavy toll. And a discouragingly high percentage of roof fall victims are found to have been working or traveling under unsupported roof when the accident occurred.

As can be seen in the chart, more than 50 percent of the roof fall deaths in 1985 and 1986 involved miners or their supervisors who were beyond supported roof when they were struck by massive rock falls. During one year—1979—80 percent of roof fall deaths were of this type. The "I PLEDGE" campaign, seeking a renewed commitment to roof safety by all in the mining community, is an effort to sharply reduce the number of potential rock fall victims by reducing the number of workers or foremen to venture under unsupported roof.

Interested persons may obtain more information about the "I PLEDGE" hardhat sticker program from Charles Battistoni, MSHA Coal Mine Safety and Health, 4800 Forbes Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa. 15213. Phone: (412) 621-4500, Ext. 8380.

"I don't know if they just pamper heart patients or not, but I had excellent care."

Walter Snaveley

Well, well, well... look who's getting better.

"I been in the hospital in Florida at Gainesville, Huntington, Louisville and Lexington. I get just as good if not better treatment right here."

Foster Tackett

"I don't see how anyone could have had better care than I did."

Mrs. Carlos Haywood

Getting better. To our patients, it means recovery or major progress. To us, it is that and something more: Our own improvement and growth.

We keep getting better at what we do. And that affects your recovery. We study, we train, we practice and we push ourselves to get better.

We never stop making strides in medical and surgical care, while advanced technologies help us get better at everything from monitoring your vital signs to processing your paperwork.

And, we keep getting better at being people—considerate and neighborly. Because that's as important to your recovery as good medicine.

We keep getting better to keep you closer to home, closer to friends and family. That's why more folks are choosing us instead of long trips to distant cities. We're working for you, to be the better choice for a growing list of services in diagnosis, treatment, recovery and rehabilitation. You'd have to go a long way to get better care.

Coupon Program To Aid March Of Dimes

In a joint effort with the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation, Child Help U.S.A. and Special Olympics International, Gerber Products Company is launching another phase of its coupon redemption program to benefit programs of these organizations.

The coupon program is expected to raise $300,000 for the three organizations, according to Leo Goulet, Gerber president and chief operating officer.

National advertising July 12 will offer consumers a free child safety handbook and $2 in coupons for Gerber products. Gerber will donate 5 cents to the March of Dimes, Child Help U.S.A. or Special Olympics International for each coupon redeemed.

"A unique feature of the offer is that consumers can indicate the organization of their choice when they redeem the coupons," said Goulet, who anticipates strong consumer response.

The promotion is part of a continuing coupon redemption program launched by Gerber in September. All of the coupons offered through the program give consumers the opportunity to designate one of the three organizations to receive a donation.

"We are extremely pleased to be part of this unique program that will help support March of Dimes efforts to prevent birth defects, as well as other worthy programs benefitting children," said Charles L. Massey, March of Dimes president.

The March of Dimes mission is preventing birth defects, the nation's number one child health problem. Birth defects affect some 250,000 babies each year. Funds raised through the coupon program will support March of Dimes programs of research, health services and education.

Child Help U.S.A. is the largest non-profit organization combatting child abuse. More than one million cases of abuse or neglect are reported each year, and about 2,740 children are affected daily.

Special Olympics International is the world's largest program of year-round sports training and competition for children and adults with mental retardation, serving one million athletes worldwide.

The "little red schoolhouse" was often that color because red was the least expensive paint.

Bluegrass State Games Have Grown In Events, Interest

(Reprinted from Rural Kentuckian)
When she announced the formation of the Bluegrass State Games in 1985, Governor Martha Layne Collins said Kentuckians of all ages and all athletic abilities would be able to enter the six amateur athletic events.

Kentuckians took her up on the offer, and the first year's competitors ranged in age from six to 87.

Since then, the games have grown in size and stature, continuing to attract people from every corner of Kentucky, who want to challenge themselves and engage in friendly, but spirited competition with others.

The idea for the Bluegrass State Games was conceived when Collins welcomed Kentucky's athletes home from the 1984 Olympics in Los Angeles.

"I was impressed by the spirit and excitement I saw in those athletes, and in the people back home who had cheered them on," the Governor said. "We began to talk about finding a way to keep that feeling alive and give everyone an opportunity to compete in amateur sports. Our goal was to give all Kentuckians a chance to showcase their talents and be recognized for their efforts."

The games are non-profit, depending primarily on funds raised from private sources. Several corporate sponsors, including Valvoline Oil Company, Coca-Cola, CSX Corporation and South Central Bell, have been with the games since their inception. Additional volunteer efforts come from various state and local government agencies, the regional area development districts, statewide athletic organizations and hundreds of individual volunteers from across Kentucky.

"We count on volunteers at every level—in our communities, where they help organize and oversee the competition, to the board that raises money from private sponsors and provides overall direction," said Collins.

When the first annual Bluegrass State Games kicked off in 1985, participants were invited to compete in bowling, equestrian events, soccer, softball, tennis, and track and field. The games draw a total of 20,000 athletes, with bowling being by far the most popular sport. Two thousand people survived regional competitions to advance to the finals, where they competed for gold, silver and bronze medals similar to those awarded to Olympic athletes.

Participants ranged from seasoned competitors with trophy cases full of prizes, to people who had never held a shot put before, but simply wanted to try. Many people competed in several events, and in some cases entire families signed up for various sports.

In addition to the athletic competition, the Games featured impressive opening ceremonies filled with music, color, pomp and pageantry. Following the Olympic theme, the three-day statewide finals began with a torch-lighting ceremony on the steps of the Capitol in Frankfort, followed by a torch relay to the primary site of the competition in Lexington.

By last year, the program had grown to 25,000 participants with more than twice as many individual and team sports being offered. In addition to the six original sports, athletes competed in archery, canoeing and kayaking, cycling, diving, gymnastics, roller speed skating, shooting, swimming and volleyball.

The 1986 games offered disabled people an opportunity to participate in special bowling, swimming, track and field events, and in several sport exhibitions. The age span also grew as a pair of four-year-olds entered the skating and swimming competitions.

The program's rapid growth necessitated a full-time director to plan and coordinate the overall effort. Sue Feamster, an assistant director of athletics at the University of Kentucky, was hired as executive director in May 1986.

The second annual games grew also in terms of the goals. They were used to strengthen the fight against drug and alcohol abuse by adopting the theme, "Champions Against Drugs."

"Athletes are very influential people," said Collins. "They serve as role models, so we took the opportunity to use the positive influence of sports and sports stars to send a serious message to young people."

Several well-known athletes lent their presence to the 1986 games and to the "Champions Against Drugs" theme. Baseball great Hank Aaron participated in the torch-lighting and opening ceremonies. Wilma Rudolph, the first American woman to win three track and field gold medals at a single Olympiad, was the featured speaker at a "Champions Against Drugs" seminar on the first day of the finals. Peter Vidmar, who in 1984 led the U.S. men's gymnastics team to its first gold medal in Olympic history, conducted a gymnastics demonstration during the opening ceremonies.

Vidmar completed a press tour on behalf of the games in June, 1986, during which he visited three cities, demonstrating his gymnastic skills and sparking interest in meeting entry deadlines.

"It's important for kids to have a goal and work hard for it, and I think the Bluegrass State Games give them that opportunity," Vidmar said. "I think I would have been a better gymnast if California had something like this when I was growing up."

Preliminary competition has begun for the 1987 Bluegrass State Games, and once again, the program has grown. This year, Kentuckians will have an opportunity to compete in croquet, horseshoes and table tennis as well as the 15 sports available in 1986. The croquet and horseshoe finals will be held at a new stadium complex at the Kentucky Horse Park. The croquet courts and horseshoe pits at the complex will be available, for both tournament play and public use.

In addition to the three new sports, the 1987 games will include four festival events: Louisville's E.P. Sawyer Mini-Triathlon; Lexington's Bluegrass 10-K; Kentucky's first statewide Senior Olympic Summer Games for people 55 and over, and the Governor's Pacesetters, a noncompetitive walking program for senior citizens, which will be staged in all 120 counties.

Seventy-year-old Bernard "Skeeter" Johnson has added an extra measure of fun to the Pacesetters program by accepting Collins' appointment of him

"senior ambassador for walking." His assignment has been to travel throughout Kentucky conducting walking clinics and encouraging participation in the Pacesetters program.

Johnson is no stranger to walking or to the Bluegrass State Games. He was instrumental in organizing the Lexington Striders Walking Club and the Fayette County Senior Olympics, and at age 68, he ran the first leg of the torch relay in the 1985 games.

A former professor of Health, Physical Education and Recreation at the University of Kentucky, Johnson is a lifelong athlete who believes the Governor's Pacesetters is one of the most important programs to come out of the Bluegrass State Games. He spent the month of April meeting with senior citizens in each of Kentucky's area development districts, promoting walking as a physical, mental and social rejuvenator for older Kentuckians and suggesting that seniors become involved with the games through the Pacesetters program.

The Governor's Pacesetters is one example of an ongoing effort to move the competitive spirit of the games into the local community. In addition to the Pacesetters program, regional competition will be held for five of the more popular sports this year. Competition in bowling, gymnastics, soccer, softball, and tennis began as early as April at more than 146 sites. Organizers hope eventually to conduct regional competition in every sport as a means of increasing participation and giving Kentuckians an opportunity to compete close to home.

The 1987 Bluegrass State Games finals will be July 31 through August 2. The primary site will be Lexington, but some competitions will take place in surrounding counties.

Entry information is available at local banks, Kroger stores, schools, and parks and recreation departments, or by writing Bluegrass State Games, P.O. Box 1405, Frankfort, Kentucky 40602. The toll-free number is 1-800-722-BGSG.

TWO YEARS OF WINNING: The Prestonsburg Senior League all-stars have a 14-15-year-old squad made up of players from two consecutive 13-year-old champions. Prestonsburg may be the tournament favorite, but Paintsville and Magoffin County are expected to be strong.

SHORT SPORTS

Harold Case, a 13-year veteran of Floyd County Babe Ruth, was named the league's new president in a meeting held last Wednesday night.

Case served as a coach for all his previous 13 years, and held down the vice-president's position for the past eight years.

As President Case will no longer be eligible to coach a team, which doesn't present a problem, because he sat out most of this past season after his team folded early in the season.

Case, whose team will run for the next three years, is replacing Ray Flanery. His term as president took effect Wednesday night.

Electing a new president wasn't expected to be taken up until later, but outgoing president Flanery felt the appointment should be made earlier in order to give the local league representation in upcoming district, and other meetings.

The Cincinnati Bengals have entertained high hopes for Stanley Wilson. Talent was never a problem for the flashy fullback, but drugs have been.

In his limited playing time, Wilson has produced. Last year, he gave the Bengals several big yardage outputs, but in 1987, Stanley Wilson will not be a factor.

For the second time in his short career, Wilson has been suspended due to drug involvement. This time the Bengal fullback will have to sit out a whole season.

With Wilson's suspension for the upcoming season, former University of Kentucky running back Mark Logan, a fifth round Cincinnati draft choice, will have an improved chance of making the squad.

Martina Navratilova continued her dominance, the queen of England's tennis, captured her sixth consecutive singles title, and eighth overall, when she defeated Steffi Graf, 7-5, 6-3, Saturday.

With the win, Navratilova continued her consecutive victory march at Wimbledon, now standing at 41, while snapping Graf's 45 straight wins.

Ivan Lendl, for the second time in the past two years, was denied a Wimbledon title, this time falling in straight sets to Australian Pat Cash.

In 1986, Lendl, the number one ranked player in the world then and now, lost the finals in straight sets to Boris Becker.

This year Becker, 19, lost in the second round, opening the way for 22-year-old Pat Cash, who disposed of Lendl, 7-6, 6-2, 7-5.

Coming into the tournament Cash was rated number 12 in the world, and seed (Continued on Next Page)

Defending Title May Be Tough Task For P'burg Little League

Last year the Prestonsburg Little League all-star team captured an Area Two, District Six title, a tournament held at Stumbo Park.

Defending that title this summer may be a tough task for Prestonsburg, especially in light of the fact that they return only two of last year's players.

Most of Prestonsburg's talented 1986 squad graduated on to either Babe Ruth or Senior League, but the defending champs haven't been uncrowned yet. "You really don't know how you'll play until you get there," Phillip Tucker, coach of the Prestonsburg all-stars, said.

"It really depends on pitching," Tucker, who coached the Braves to a 12-1 record, and a first place finish in the regular season, mentioned, "All the teams are capable of scoring runs so it comes down to the team that has one pitcher that is better than anyone else."

Other than Prestonsburg, Floyd County will have three other representatives in the Salyersville hosted, double-elimination tournament.

Harold-Allen-Prater, tournament champions in 1985, is always a strong contender. Hitting has been their trademark in the past, but this year they may have to win with strong defense.

"They're not going to be a powerful hitting team like some we've had in the past, but they should be strong defensively. They'll have to peck away, try to score a couple of runs, and play good defense," Harold-Allen-Prater league president B.J. Newsome said.

The Harold-Allen-Prater all-star squad will be coached by Cecil Newsome, and Jackie Crisp.

Also representing Floyd County is the Little League tournament, beginning this Monday, will be all-star squads from the Wheelwright, and Beaver Creek leagues.

In the past, Paintsville has dominated the Area Two, District Six tournament, but since area Little League personnel voted to alternate the tourney's location in 1984, Paintsville hasn't won.

This year, Commissioner Doug Childers, despite a 7-1 vote not to, moved the event back to Paintsville.

Controversy arose. People complained loudly, and the tournament will now be held in its rotated position, Salyersville.

Harold-Allen-Prater league president B.J. Newsome says host Magoffin County may be a favorite to capture this year's title.

"We've got a pretty fair team, but we haven't seen anyone else to know how good they are," Magoffin County coach Luke Litteral said.

"Pitching will be the key," Litteral continued. "If you've got a good pitcher or two, they can sometimes carry you through. We've got some hard throwers."

Newsome also said, "I like Morgan County. They're always a scrappy bunch."

Magoffin County and Morgan County open the double-elimination tournament, Monday, playing at 5:30. This doesn't make Litteral happy.

"We start the tournament off so we won't have a chance to see anybody before we play. If you play later then you get a chance to prepare better."

Floyd County talent, in the form of Harold-Allen-Prater, will be on display in Monday's second game against Martin County. Starting time has been set for 7:30 at Ramey Park in Salyersville.

Tuesday, July 14, Beaver Creek will take on Paintsville at 5:30, while two Floyd County teams, Prestonsburg and Wheelwright, will hook up in the 7:30 nightcap.

The Little League tournament for youngsters age 9-12 will run through Monday, July 20, and each team has to lose twice before being eliminated.

Host Magoffin County, along with Paintsville and Prestonsburg, according to most coaches, appear to be the tournament's stronger teams, but in the words of Luke Litteral, "we'll just have to wait and see."

Winning, at this age group, isn't a necessity during the regular season, but Phillip Tucker, Prestonsburg coach, says ideas change come tournament time.

"It's not really important to win during the season. We try to emphasize this, and we try to teach the players how to win and lose with grace and dignity. When it gets tournament time the rules change just a bit, and we go out to win. It's stressed more, and more important in the tournament."

Babe Ruth Rosters Set

RAY FLANERY, League President

With the season over Babe Ruth fans are all looking forward to tournament action. With the time and date still to be set for the District. The Regional or Semi-State for the 13 year olds will be held in Somerset with the state tourney to be held at Fern Creek. The state tourney this year will feature the best out of 3 games between the Western part of Ky. against the best from the Eastern half of Ky. The 14 year olds will play their Regional at Dixie of Lexington with the state to be held in Elizabethtown. The 15 year olds play their Regional at Pikeville and the state championship games in Owensboro, Ky.

The 13 and 14 year old represent every part of Floyd County and is truly a Floyd County All Star best. They have an excellent opportunity to become one of the first teams to bring home a State Championship in Babe Ruth baseball. They have the best coaches and managers we have to offer. With P.D. Gearheart finishing first in the league and Ellis Spurlock finishing third. The 15 year olds will be managed by second place finisher Blake Meadows. Good luck. The following is a list of 13 and 14 year old All Stars. Next week we will list the 15 year olds.

The Sporting Times

The celebration of our country's independence has just concluded; major league baseball's all-star game is close, and summer baseball has entered its most exciting stages.

Softball is going strong. The fishing season has peaked, and the time to enjoy all water sports is now.

If you enjoy sports, as either a spectator or participant, this time of year should be your favorite.

No reason to look anywhere else for sports excitement. It's all here. Just lie back and enjoy the festivities.

Good advice, but I can't practice what I preach.

I consider myself a baseball fan in the truest form, but the following few paragraphs may destroy this lifelong theory.

For some odd reason football has been on my mind. Oh sure, baseball is blooming all around us, and at every age group, but I want to talk football.

And I'm talking high school football talk.

It won't be long before the pads will be popping. Sweat will be beading, and those two-a-days make that excess off season spurge disappear.

Once again McDowell will be absent from this conversation, but the four other schools can produce some interesting reflections, questions, and observations.

Looking back to last season, several hurdles were leaped, while others were stumbled over.

One team that overcame their hurdles was Betsy Layne. Bobcat football enjoyed their first ever winning season, the only goal Jack Hall set for his team.

Jack Hall is gone, which produces the biggest question being asked locally: will Betsy Layne reach their full potential with Vince Tucker at the helm?

Tucker isn't the question, although he may feel pressure. Tucker appears to be the pressure-handling type, and his football background is surpassed by none in this county.

Betsy Layne has mega-talent returning, including one of the top tailbacks in eastern Kentucky in Todd Sturgill. Fullback Keith Hall, wingback John Bush, receiver Matt Conn, and either Kevin Spurlock or Dwight Jarrell at quarterback gives the Bobcats a solid crew at the offensive skill positions.

The problem is that several players say they won't play football at Betsy Layne. Hopefully, they do, and hopefully, Vince Tucker enjoys another winning season.

It won't be easy. It wasn't last year, but to make things tougher, the Bobcats have moved up to Double A, and into a district with M.C. Napier, Leslie County, and Prestonsburg.

Prestonsburg is one of those teams that stumbled a year ago. Chuks

Williams, head coach, said that might happen, but no one would listen.

Williams was forced to go to war with a young squad. He will do that again, but the Blackcats have more experience.

The big question here is if Prestonsburg can produce the trenchmen to support a productive backfield trio of quarterback Steve Hyden, and running backs, Johnny Ray Harris and Jimmy Joe Crace.

Both offensive and defensive backfields will be strong, and if the lines develop, Prestonsburg just might return to football prominence.

Unlike the before-mentioned teams, Wheelwright should be strong on the line, particularly with all EKMC performer, Paul Little back.

The Trojans lost talent in their line, too, but is replaceable. Wheelwright also has an explosive backfield duo in Doug Little and Handy Jackson.

Little has started the past two years, and Jackson came on strong late last year. Jackson may be the fastest back of any in the county.

If Roger Johnson can solve his quarterbacking problems, Wheelwright may enjoy their best football season of the 1980's.

The Trojans will also be in a different district, joining Allen Central, Hazard and Russell.

Speaking of Allen Central, they were another team that stumbled through the 1986 season. But you have to crawl before you can walk.

After their first year of varsity football, the Rebels proved they have a long way to go before getting the program on its competitive feet.

Some talent is on hand, Donnie Daniels is a respected football man, and Rebel players now know what to expect.

No one is expecting Allen Central to dominate, but they won't be the exact opposite either. The Rebels were embarrassed last season. That won't happen, much this year.

Practice doesn't start until July 16, on thereabouts, but speculating is always fun. All we have to go on now is the questions we can ask. No one has the answers.

It should be fun to watch these questions being answered on the field, though.

Oh yea, we can't talk high school football without mentioning the Union College crew. John Ross has filled his football fish tank with some prize catches from this county.

Prestonsburg is supplying Union with talent, but Donnie, Pete, and the gang deserve their own article. Look for that, plus features on each Floyd County high school team in later issues.

This is just to get that gridiron blood pumping.

ARMED AND DANGEROUS: Tim Watkins, left, and Danny Hamilton are expected to head Prestonsburg's pitching staff in the upcoming all-star tournament.

Conn Leads Floyd County In Hitting

Rain may have prevented Floyd county's senior Babe Ruth squad from playing this past week, but it also assured Darrin Conn of retaining his number one position on FC's batting average list.

Conn, a three-spot performer at Allen Central High School, has proven his hitting ability this year, finding as one of the Rebels' top hitters, and now leading the local 16-18 year-old squad in average.

The 17-year-old rightfielder-catcher sat out his sophomore season at Allen Central, not playing baseball at all in 1986, but the southpaw player has made up baseball ground in 1987 for what he missed in '86.

Conn, a well-rounded athlete, refined his natural baseball ability this past high school season, and under the knowledgeable eye of Donnie Daniels, developed into a solid contact hitter.

After a slow offensive start this summer, Conn has emerged as Floyd County's top performer at the plate, hitting .435.

In 23 official plate appearances, Conn has banged out 10 hits, nine singles and one double. The versatile performer has hit in all but one of his starts, while reaching base in every game. His on-base percentage is second on the team, .637, to Brad Hall's .667 on-base percentage.

Conn has also driven in four runs this summer, while scoring three more defensively, the senior-to-be has proven solid behind the plate, and in rightfield. He has also seen action in leftfield, but right is probably the defensive position the 6'1" 170 pound Conn is more suited for.

Brian Hall, a former McDowell standout, is second on the Floyd county team in hitting, while leading FC in RBI's.

Hall owns a .433 batting average, 13 for 30 on the season, with 10 runs batted in and 10 runs scored.

In their past five games, Floyd county has scored 33 runs, mostly due to the offensive emergence of Thomas Hall and Tony Kidd.

Hall, who has elected not to play baseball at Betsy Layne thus far, has upped his season average to .375, banging out four hits in his last seven plate appearances.

The senior at Betsy Layne also has five RBIs to his credit.

Tony Kidd, like Hall, struggled early in the summer season, but has now lifted his average to .294. Both Kidd and Hall did not play high school baseball, but have years left in summer league play.

Thomas Hall is 17, having one summer of play left, while Tony Kidd is only 16 years old. The Hall-Kidd combination has developed into the top two Floyd County catching positions, with Conn moving to his natural position of rightfield.

Scoring runs has not been a problem for Floyd County, but pitching and defense have been. Although talent is obvious, the youthful staff needs experience to polish their raw abilities.

Four of Floyd County's most used pitchers will be back next summer, and three are only 16, giving them two more years of summer eligibility.

Righthander Roger Horne, 1-1, is the only pitcher FC loses, but Horne leads the team in strikeouts, 16, and innings pitched with 16.

Brian Hall, if he decides to, will be back next season. Hall has been impressive at times, but his team assistance comes from his potent bat and good defense at shortstop and left field.

Floyd County's mound future rests on the right arms of a pair of Prestonsburg hard throwers, Tim Trusty and Mark Tipton.

Both are 16, as is Nathan Shelton, a talented lefthander from Allen Central. These three pitchers could very well be as talented a trio of 16-year-olds as can be put forward by any team in Eastern Kentucky.

The future of Floyd County 16-18-year-old baseball will not only be in the hands of three talented pitchers, but will be in American Legion rather than senior Babe Ruth.

The Martin Post of the American Legion agreed, in a recent meeting, to allow the Floyd County summer squad to play under their name. The Post also pledged their support in financial fundraisers.

The first project will be to obtain a bus for next season, a much-needed asset with the vastly expanded 1988 schedule requiring more travel.

The immediate future will be this weekend when Floyd County embarks on a two-day, four-game trip to Lexington. A doubleheader is planned for both Saturday and Sunday, but plans and scheduling were incomplete at press time.

The camp will begin at 9:00 a.m. and continue until 1:00 p.m. Any player 16 years of age and older is eligible to attend. By attending, neither the player nor the Pittsburgh Pirates is obligated in any way. It should prove to be a worthwhile experience and could possibly lead to a career in professional baseball.

Players must pay their own expenses to and from the camp. If the Pirates are interested in signing him, the player will be reimbursed for all expenses incurred.

He must also provide his own uniform, shoes and glove. All other equipment will be furnished by the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The camp will be under the direction of Supervisory Scout for the Pirates. He will be assisted by Scouting Assistants or contacts who will be involved.

Senior League Squads Set For Tourney Play

The rosters are completed. Tournament pairings are set, and Prestonsburg Senior League All-Star squads are ready to do battle in next week's district tournament.

Two different teams, a 14-15 team and a 13-year-old squad, will represent Prestonsburg in this year's tournament, held at Salyersville's Ramey Park.

The double-elimination event will kick off Monday evening, July 13, but neither Prestonsburg team will see action until Tuesday.

By virtue of drawing a bye, the local all-star squads will play the winner of Monday's 5:30 contest between host, Magoffin County, and Paintsville.

Both teams will also be playing at the same time Tuesday, 7:30.

This year the 14-15-year-old team is under the capable hands of Estill Collins, and Eugene Blackburn, two veteran coaches who have experienced players to work with.

"This year we've got basically the same group of 13-year-olds that won the district tournament two years ago," Estill Collins said recently.

In fact the 14-15-year-old team has players from two consecutive district champion teams. Prestonsburg won the Area Six, District Two tournament in 1985 and 1986.

"These guys have been playing together for about five years now, and they know how to play together," Collins continued. "They've grown a lot from last year. They're stronger, and they really want to win."

Prestonsburg won the 14-15 division last year, and with nine of those players back, they may be odds on favorites to capture the title this year.

But this tournament is a tough one to win.

"It seems like every year all the teams get beat at least once, so it's a tough tournament," Collins said.

Collins says pitching and defense should be the team's strengths. Tim Watkins, a hard thrower, along with Danny Hamilton, a righthander who saw high school action, is expected to give Prestonsburg a powerful one-two mound punch.

Ray Collins and Chris Slone are also capable pitchers, but Coach Collins says he doesn't want to break up his double play combination.

Ray Collins will play shortstop, a position he handled for Prestonsburg High School, and Slone has been settled on as the regular second baseman.

Estill Collins, Eugene Blackburn and crew will be gunning for their third consecutive championship. As 13-year-olds this group won a district tournament, and again nine of this year's district winning team.

While the older Senior League age group attempts to continue their winning ways, so will the 13-year-old squad.

In this division, Prestonsburg has won the Area 2, District Six championship two years in a row and could just as easily make it three straight.

"We've got a pretty good bunch," Coach Sam Huffman said. "I think they have more talent than the group that won it last year."

"Our first five or six hitters can flat smack the ball, and sometimes they surprise me on how well they can hit," Huffman continued. "They have hit against 15-year-old pitching during the season, and did a pretty good job."

Huffman and Coach Jim Sparks have basically the same squad that captured the Little League tournament last year.

As in all other baseball events, pitching will be the deciding factor, or at least Huffman thinks so.

"I think pitching will be the key, and we've got a pretty good staff. Unlike last year when none of our boys had pitched during the season, we've got about four boys who threw a lot during the regular season."

Prestonsburg's 13-year-old squad may be the only clear favorite of any Little League-Senior League tournaments.

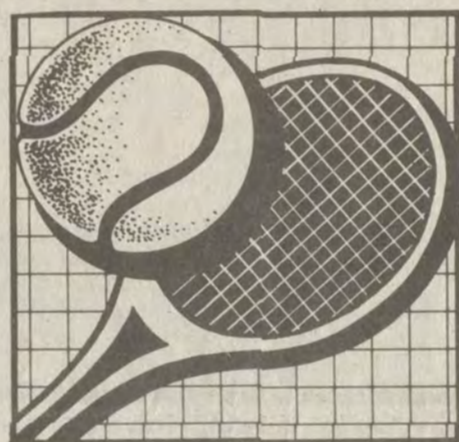

In the 14-15 tournament, host Magoffin County may have the best pitching staff, and according to most coaches, pitching will be the key.

Prestonsburg owned the tournament in 1986, winning both age groups, but this year Magoffin County has a stronger squad, and Paintsville, starting Senior League this year, is expected to be a solid contender.

Both tournaments open Monday with Magoffin County and Fleming-Neon will meet in the 7:30 nightcap.

Tuesday evening at 7:30, Prestonsburg will take on the winner of Monday's first contest, while Monday's second game winner will meet Martin County in the double elimination affair.

The schedule is the same for both the 13-year-old and 14-15 divisions. Salyersville's Ramey Park owns two fields, enabling the tournaments to be held at the same time and dates.

ed 11th in Wimbledon. Lendl was number one in the world, and seeded second in the tournament.

Coaches have been paired with their desired teams as Babe Ruth all-star tournaments rapidly approach.

P.D. Gearheart, after taking his Harold Rattlesnakes to a regular season championship, will, along with Todd Thacker and Terry Isaac, handle the 14-year-old squad.

Blake Meadows, after directing Prestonsburg to a second place finish, will manage the 15-year-old squad. Meadows will be helped out by Ab Lawson.

Ellis Spurlock and Harold Case have chosen to coach the younger squad in Babe Ruth all-star tournament action. Spurlock's Betsy Layne squad finished at 10-4, good enough for third in the league.

If you're looking for an American league rookie of the year then take a peek westward.

Out in Oakland there is a first-year player by the name of Mark McGuire, and hitting homeruns is a favorite past-time to him.

Last Surlay, McGuire, off Boston and Oil Can Boyd, slammed his 30th homerun of the year.

McGuire will hit many more homeruns, but that particular one marked the first time a rookie had ever hit 30 round trippers before the all-star break.

With half of the season gone, McGuire is on a 6-plus homerun pace. The Athletics power plant is also a major reason why Oakland is in a pennant race. A most valuable player award may not be out of McGuire's reach, either.

For most professional baseball players the all-star break means three days with family and friends. For the players who make the event, it is a dream come true.

This Tuesday night in Oakland that dream of playing in an all-star game will be fulfilled or some, while re-lived by others.

Winning Weekend Spoiled When Cincinnati Loses Key Players

The Cincinnati Reds beat New York in three of their four games last weekend, but no one in the Reds organization is calling it a successful series.

Cincinnati did easily handle the defending world champions. The Reds did improve their season record to 46-35, and they did move three and one-half games up on Houston, their biggest advantage of the season.

But still, the Reds lost big. They lost second baseman Ron Oester for the remainder of this season, and they lost Kal Daniels, who underwent knee surgery yesterday, for an uncertain amount of time.

Oester, who had just mounted a productive offensive stretch, was injured in Sunday's 7-5 victory against New York in the ninth inning when Oester was attempting to turn a double play.

At the same time, Mookie Wilson was attempting to break up a double play. With an aggressive slide, Wilson succeeded in not only messing up the play, but also in destroying Ron Oester's left knee.

Oester has undergone a total reconstruction of the knee. The hustling Reds second baseman will not play again in 1987, if ever.

Daniels, however, is expected to be back, but how long the Cincinnati left-fielder will be out isn't known.

Max Venable has been called up from Nashville, and Dave Collins has been added to the Reds' roster, filling the holes vacated due to injuries.

Collins, an important member of Cincinnati's squad in the late '70s and early '80s, has already contributed, but from now until the All-Star break, the Reds will continue needing strong performances from Bo Diaz and Buddy Bell, two players who have carried Cincinnati lately.

After Met righthander Terry Leach shutout Cincinnati 5-0, Thursday night, Diaz and Bell went to work leading Cincinnati to three consecutive wins over New York.

Leach, 6-0, gave the Reds only two hits, facing only one hitter over the limit, but Darling, John Mitchell, and Dwight Gooden didn't enjoy the success Leach did.

Friday night catcher Bo Diaz, putting in his bid for an all-star invitation, picked up two hits, including a two-run homerun, and four RBIs, as Cincinnati defeated the Mets 8-3.

Buddy Bell also enjoyed a two-hit night, but Guy Hoffman proved to be the offensive star, plating Bell with a single in the fifth inning, which proved to be the game winning RBI.

Hoffman, 7-2, also picked up the victory. The little lefthander worked six innings, giving up five hits and one run to post the win.

Eric Davis and Kal Daniels hit homeruns Saturday night as the Reds once again defeated New York, this time, 7-3.

Davis' homerun came in the first inning, his 24th, and Daniels added this, a two-run homerun, in the fourth inning to assist Bill Gullickson in his winning effort.

Gullickson had not won a game since May 30, but the Reds righthander broke that string with a complete game. Gullickson, 8-5, gave up eight hits and three earned runs in recording his third complete game of the season.

The big story of the night came later when all the final scores were reported. Cincinnati had won and received the biggest assist possible when the rest of the West went down to defeat.

The Reds went up three and a half games on Houston, a 9-3 loser to Philadelphia. San Francisco fell to the Cubs, and fell five and a half games back, while Atlanta slipped seven games off the pace.

Cincinnati and Tom Browning maintained that lead Sunday when they drilled Dwight Gooden for six runs and nine hits in three innings.

Gooden, now 5-2 on the year, surrendered four consecutive singles in the second inning to Bell, Diaz, Oester, and Larkin. After Browning laid down a sacrifice bunt that scored Oester, Kal Daniels doubled in Larkin, but re-injured a knee running out the base hit.

Cincinnati chased Gooden after the third inning, and went on to beat the Mets, 7-5.

Tom Browning, in his first start since rejoining the parent club, was credited with the win. Browning pitched seven innings to get the victory, his fifth of the year against six losses.

John Franco came on in the ninth inning to retire New York and earn his 17th save.

Sunday's win may have been the costliest victory Cincinnati, has posted this season, losing two players to knee surgery.

Oester and Daniels will certainly be missed, but pitching was missing Monday night against Philadelphia.

Cincinnati, after the Phillies scored a single run in the first inning, posted starter Ted Power to a three-run lead, scoring four runs in the second inning, but the Reds' righthander couldn't hold that lead.

Lance Parrish, in the third inning, tied the game with a two-out, three-run homerun. Cincinnati gave Power another lead, scoring two runs in the third, but again the Reds' starter failed to protect the lead.

Philadelphia scored two runs in the fourth inning, and took a lead when Glen Wilson hit his 11th homerun of the year, a two-run shot off Power in the fifth inning.

The Phillies went on to record a 9-6 victory. Ted Power, 6-4, suffered the Reds' loss, giving up eight runs on nine hits in just five innings.

With the loss Cincinnati, 46-36, lost a game to Houston. The Astros now trail by two and one-half games.

Cincinnati in the midst of a 13-game homestand, will wrap up their three-game series with Philadelphia tonight. Guy Hoffman, 7-2, takes the mound for the Reds against Bruce Ruffen.

Thursday night the Reds open a four-game weekend series with Montreal, playing night games Thursday, Friday, and Saturday.

The two teams will play Sunday afternoon then take off three days for the all-star break.

Bill Gullickson will throw for Cincinnati, Thursday, against Neal Heaton. Tom Browning is scheduled to pitch Friday, and Ted Power is set to go Saturday. Ron Robinson will go to the mound for the Reds Sunday afternoon.

With the all-star game coming up, Reds fans are gearing up to watch Eric Davis challenge American League pitchers. Davis is the top vote-getter of all National League outfielders. Also Bo Diaz, last week's NL Player of the Week, is expected to go as one of the National League's catchers.

Roberts Celebrates 4th With Two Winning Runs

Saturday, July 4, the first annual Freedom Run was held, beginning in Belfry and finishing in Williamson, W. Va. The 4.2 mile event attracted runners from over the tri-state area. Rick Roberts of Allen, pulled away from Hazard's Kevin Martin to post a 22:56 victory. For Roberts the victory was sweet in that in three previous attempts, he had finished second in Williamson. This time, Martin finished second in 23:46.

Twelve hours later, Roberts defended his title in the Third Annual Moonlight Mile in Paintsville where 61 entrants were on hand for the race. Roberts, running in third place, came from behind on a kick to best Robert Wright, of Flat Gap. Jeff Wright, brother of Robert, turned early in the race and fell back to third after leading the race for over a half mile. The brothers from Miami, Fla. are giving Johnson county strong contention in area road races.

Roberts won the race in 4:43, one second off from his last year's time. Robert Wright was second in 4:50; Jeff Wright third in 4:56. Kevin Martin, of Hazard, was fourth in 4:58. Locally, several area runners finished well. Their names and times are as follows:

Doug Bush, 5:02; Marshall Meade, 5:21; Eric Gray, 5:31; Chris Lucas, 5:33; Kennis DeBoard, 5:57; Tom Salyers, 6:19; Jason Bowling, 6:37; Brandon McKenzie, 6:51; Garry McKenzie, 6:51; Bob Robertson, 7:03; Hobie Whitten, 7:34; Mura Shea, 7:54; Zella Wells, 7:58; Frank Wells, 8:17; Amanda Evans, 10:12; Dan Evans, 10:12; Kim Howard, 11:12; Wanda DeBoard, 11:12.

Deneice Stacey, of Knott county, won the women's title, setting a course record in the process with a 6:03 time. The old record, belonged to Debbie Coleman, of Elkhorn City, (6:44). Top race walker in the male category was Alberto Pascarella, of Betsy Layne, 12:58. Top female runner was Mary Hudkins, of Allen, 11:58.

Hamilton Named AD at MSU

Steve Hamilton, head baseball coach at Morehead State University for 12 years and a former professional baseball and basketball player, has been named the new acting director of athletics at MSU.

Hamilton replaces G.E. (Sonny) Moran who was appointed special assistant to the president for athletics earlier this week.

A two-time graduate of MSU, Hamilton has accumulated a 269-225 mark in 12 years as head baseball coach and will maintain those duties along with his new appointment.

"I have the utmost of confidence in Steve Hamilton. He's highly recognized by his fellow coaches," MSU President C. Nelson Grote praised. "He has excellent people skills and I think his appointment will be well received by both the academic and athletic staffs at MSU."

As baseball coach, Hamilton has guided the Eagles to OVC Championships in 1977 and 1983 and divisional championships in 1976, 1977, 1983, 1985 and 1986. He was named OVC Coach of the Year in 1977 and OVC Northern Division Coach of the Year in 1982, 1984, 1985 and 1986.

As an athlete, Hamilton was a three-sport star playing on championship teams in basketball, baseball and track at MSU. During his basketball career, Hamilton established five rebounding records that stand in the MSU record books and is the fourth all-time leading scorer with 1829 points. He was named All-American in 1957 and All-OVC in 1956 and 1957.

On the mound, the left-hander hurled the Eagles to the conference title in 1957 when he was named Player of the Year in Kentucky.

The Charlestown (Ind.) High School graduate (1952) also played professional baseball for 11 years and professional basketball for two years.

His major league baseball career included stints with the New York Yankees, Cleveland Indians, Washington Senators, Chicago White Sox, San Francisco Giants and Chicago Cubs. With the Yankees, Hamilton appeared in two World Series. His career in the NBA was with the Minneapolis Lakers.

SQUADS FROM SIX FLOYD COUNTY SCHOOLS, Paintsville and Pinson Fork attended a cheerleading camp sponsored by the National Cheerleading Association, Monday through Wednesday (today), at Prestonsburg Community College. Shown above is the squad from Runyon Elementary in Pinson Fork.

The camp was directed by Barbara Hamilton, Richmond, a member of the governing board of the Kentucky Cheerleading Association.

This is the first such camp the NCA has sponsored in Prestonsburg. "We already have central and western Kentucky covered," said Hamilton. "We decided we needed something for the people of eastern Kentucky." She said the response was so encouraging that next year's camp was already in the works.

A competition will be held today with the winning squad eligible to compete in a national tournament in Dallas.

Cheerleaders from Allen, Maytown, McDowell, Clark, and Osborne elementary schools and the Mt. Christian Academy attended the camp.

THIS IS TO ANSWER RANDY MANUAL'S QUESTIONS

One of the reasons the street you're referring to in Maytown that was not ditched was because your junk car was sitting in the right of way. Also, someone filled in the ditch—without a culvert—so that your dad could drive his truck in the yard off the street. Who done this, Randy Manual, concerned citizen? Is it true that the shovel you had, had to be bought at a nearby store so you could have your picture made with a "big ole shovel full of dirt"? I know the backstreet needs to be ditched and some culverts put in and the water needs to be gotten to the creek out of Maytown, but if you'll keep up the good work with that big new shovel, Deak—it won't take me so long when I get to it.
 P.S.—Answer me—Randy Manual. Whose money paid for running the ad last week?

Poison Ivy Said Deceitful Plant

Poison ivy is a devious weed that will change its shape and color as it winds its way up walls and across yards to lie in wait for unsuspecting gardeners and children at play.

Poison ivy can grow as a climbing, woody vine attached to trees, fences and walls; an erect, free-standing shrub a few inches high; and as a creeping, slithering, ground-hugging vine.

In spring, poison ivy sports droopy; reddish, tri-clustered leaves. In summer, the leaves turn green and may take on any number of shapes. They may be hairy or smooth, glossy or dull, pointed or rounded at the ends.

"All this variation makes it difficult to avoid poison ivy," said Mike Barrett, University of Kentucky weed scientist.

Many homeowners are victimized by the terrible weed even after successfully identifying it.

People wrestling with poison ivy should remember two very important facts about it. One: all parts of it are poisonous all year. Leaves, roots, stems; growing or dead—if you're allergic to poison ivy, they'll get you. And that's the second thing to remember: just because you weren't allergic the last time you got tangled up in it, doesn't mean you won't be the next time, Barrett said.

Even the smoke from burning poison ivy is dangerous. People have been seriously injured by inhaling smoke from burning poison ivy.

Killing the noxious weed is no easy proposition. Simply tearing down the vine or mowing over the shrub will not do the trick. To kill a poison ivy plant, the root system must be destroyed.

"You must either dig up the root system, or kill it. Digging requires that you get even the small root ends, as they often are enough to produce new shoots and re-establish the plant. Chemical control with such products as Ammate, Kleenup and Amitrol requires repeated applications," Barrett said.

The root system can be starved by repeated mowing.

"This means mowing so often the new leaves do not have a chance to fortify the root system. That's more than once a week during the optimal growing season," Barrett said.

People working with poison ivy, regardless of whether they believe themselves to be allergic to it, should wear long sleeves and gloves and wash the clothing in a strong alkaline detergent immediately after removal.

JoAnn Johnson, a Princeton pharmacist, had these tips in the event of skin contact with poison ivy. Wash the area several times with lukewarm water and a strong alkaline laundry detergent. This will remove at least some of the poison and help to prevent its spread to other parts of the body.

"There are several over-the-counter products labelled for treating poison ivy, but many of them are simply new combinations of old ingredients. I'd recommend calamine lotion to dry the little blisters that form, and hydrocortisone cream for the itching," Johnson said.

Hydrocortisone is available in creams and ointments. Johnson suggested the cream because ointments tend to hold moisture in, which is not desirable in the treatment of poison ivy reactions.

Monument To Be Dedicated

The General Humphrey Marshall Camp of the Sons of Confederate Veterans will dedicate a new Confederate Memorial to be erected on the Johnson County Court House lawn in Paintsville, Ky., on Sunday, July 26th, 1987. The monument will honor the men who served the Confederacy from the mountains of Kentucky, West Virginia, Virginia and Tennessee, and will be the first memorial of its kind ever to be erected in eastern Kentucky.

The activities will actually begin on Saturday, July 25th, with a living history encampment near the court house. On Sunday, at 1:30 p.m., a re-enactment of Captain Sid Cook's "Paintsville Raid" will be staged and will include a running battle in the streets of Paintsville and the raising of the Confederate flag over the court-house.

After the re-enactment, the unavailing ceremony will take place on the court house steps. It is expected that at least three REAL SONS of mountain confederate soldiers will be present to unveil the monument.

State Wins Recognition For WIC Program Service

Janet Johnson of the Kentucky WIC Program accepted two awards on behalf of the state from the USDA Food and Nutrition Service at a recent meeting of Southeast state WIC directors in Atlanta. Kentucky received the awards in recognition of its continuing progress and improvement in administering the Supplemental Food Program for Women, Infants and Children (WIC). The state had the greatest increase of the eight Southeastern states in the number of WIC participants served in the highest health risk categories from September 1984 to March 1987. This was a result of national efforts to target benefits to those persons most in need.

The WIC Program provides medical care and nutrition education and counseling for low-income pregnant and breastfeeding women and for infants and children under age five who are determined to be at nutritional risk. Program participants receive vouchers which can be used to purchase infant formula and specific nutritious foods to supplement inadequate diets.

Major Cholesterol Research Beginning

Every year, almost one million Americans die from cardiovascular disease. The cost from cardiovascular disease totals an estimated $78.6 billion annually.

Nutrition plays an important role in these staggering figures—contributing to hypertension, hyperlipidemia, obesity, and diabetes.

Recent research indicates that high fiber intakes may protect us from coronary heart disease, diabetes, and other serious illnesses. However, further research is needed to determine exactly what dietary changes are the most beneficial, and how specific dietary supplements react within the body.

A team of five University of Kentucky Chandler Medical Center researchers from various academic disciplines will attempt to answer some of these pressing questions in nutrition and health. Dr. James Anderson, internationally acclaimed for his work in clinical nutrition and health, will coordinate the effort.

The University of Kentucky Cholesterol and Cardiovascular Risk Reduction Program is funded by a $959,000 National Institute of Health grant and other financial support that pushes the total well over $1 million.

There will be two phases of the UK Cholesterol and Cardiovascular Risk Reduction Program.

The first phase will inform the public about the relationship between high blood cholesterol levels and cardiovascular disease. The major goal of the community education process is to conduct widespread screening for blood cholesterol and triglyceride levels and blood pressures.

It is hoped that over the next six to eight months, thousands of Central Kentuckians will participate in the free screenings. Interested individuals between the ages of 30 and 50 will have the opportunity to have their blood pressure measured and cholesterol and triglyceride levels tested and to receive information or advice about lowering that level through dietary changes. To schedule a work site screening or to make an appointment to be screened, call 606/257-4059.

Dr. Jane Kotchen will supervise community education, cholesterol screening, and participant recruitment.

The second phase entails sophisticated clinical research with four major projects. From the large population pool of those screened, a few hundred will be recruited to participate in carefully controlled dietary intervention programs.

In some cases, cooperation will involve a two-year commitment to total dietary supervision. In other cases, for a few months at a time subjects will simply take fish oil capsules daily or supplement their regular daily diet by adding about ½ cup of oat bran fiber.

CITY OF WHEELWRIGHT, KENTUCKY
NOTES TO FINANCIAL STATEMENTS
for the year ended June 30, 1986

1. Summary of Significant Accounting Policies

The accounting policies of the City of Wheelwright conform to generally accepted accounting principles applicable to governmental units. The following is a summary of the more significant accounting policies.

A. Fund Accounting

The accounts of the City are organized on the basis of funds or account groups each of which is considered to be a separate fiscal and accounting entity. Each fund is accounted for by providing a separate set of self-balancing accounts that is comprised of its assets, liabilities, reserves, fund equity, revenues and expenditures or expenses as appropriate.

The following funds are used by the City of Wheelwright:

Governmental Fund Types

General Fund - The general operating fund of the City is used to account for all financial resources except those required to be accounted for in another fund.

Special Revenue Funds

Revenue Sharing Fund - A special revenue fund used to account for revenues received from the U. S. Treasury under the Federal revenue sharing program.

B. Basis of Accounting

Basis of accounting refers to when revenues and expenditures or expenses are recognized in the accounts and reported in the financial statements. Basis of accounting relates to the timing of the measurements made, regardless of the measurement focus applied.

All governmental funds are accounted for using the modified accrual basis of accounting. Under the modified accrual basis of accounting, revenues are recognized when they become measurable and available. Expenditures are generally recognized under the modified accrual basis of accounting when the related fund liability is incurred. Exceptions to this general rule include principle and interest on general long-term debt which is recognized when due.

C. Budgeting

The City did not adopt a budget for the year ended June 30, 1985, as required by Section 91A.030 of the Kentucky Revised Statutes and generally accepted accounting principles.

D. Other Accounting Policies

General fixed asset purchases are recorded as expenditures in the general fund and revenue sharing fund at the time of purchase. Such assets should be capitalized at cost in the general fixed assets group of accounts except streets and sidewalks and drainage systems.

Property taxes are recognized at the date of levy with a reserve for uncollectibles for the portion estimated to be uncollectible.

Grant revenues restricted in use are recognized when eligible expenditures are incurred. Amounts received but unearned are reported as deferred revenues.

Total columns on the general purpose statements are captioned Memorandum Only to indicate that they are presented only to facilitate financial analysis. Data in these columns do not present financial position, results of operations, or changes in financial position in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles. Neither is such data comparable to a consolidation. Interfund elimination have not been made in the aggregation of this data.

2. Reporting Entity

The general purpose financial statements of the City of Wheelwright do not include the Wheelwright Utilities Commission, which is administered by a separate commission appointed by the Mayor and City Council. The Commission operated under the supervision of the Mayor and the City Council and therefore, its financial statements should be included in the general purpose financial statements to conform to generally accepted accounting principles.

3. Note Payable

The City borrowed $2,775 on July 20, 1983 to pay the City's share of pool repairs. The note is to be repaid over 36 months at $96.20 per month. The total finance charge over the 36 months is $686.20.

4. Restatement

Fund balance of the General Fund as of June 30, 1984 has been restated to correct the reserve for delinquent property taxes as follows:

Fund balance - June 30, 1984 as previously reported	$11,873
Increase in reserve for property taxes	9,658
Fund balance - June 30, 1984, as restated	$ 2,215

★ Cancer Hopeline

QUESTION: I am receiving chemotherapy and occasionally I am having some nausea. Do you have any suggestions such as changes in my diet, that might help to alleviate the nausea.

ANSWER: There are a number of ways you can adjust your diet to reduce nausea. Try any of the ideas below that appeal to you, and keep testing until you find the ones that work best for you.

- *Eat small meals throughout the day so your stomach won't feel too full.
- *Avoid liquids at mealtime to prevent filling your stomach with fluid. Instead, have fluids at least one hour before or after eating.
- *Avoid sweets and fried or fatty foods.
- *Eat foods at room temperature rather than hot or chilled.
- *Eat dry foods like toast, dry cereal or crackers. They can often help to ease an upset stomach.
- *Drink cool, clear unsweetened beverages such as apple juice, or light soda such as ginger ale (after letting it go flat).

Be sure to tell your doctor about your nausea. He or she can prescribe or give antiemetics (drugs which help relieve nausea and vomiting) to you before or during treatment. This may prevent the nausea from starting. Continuing antiemetics after treatment may also help.

These suggestions listed above and others appear in the booklet Chemotherapy and You, which is available free by calling the Cancer Information Service at 1-800-4-CANCER write to McDowell Cancer Network, 800 Rose Street, Lexington, Ky. 40536. The Cancer Information Service is a program of the Kentucky Cancer Information Service.

Seek One-Act Plays By Ky. Playwrights

Original one-act plays written by a Kentuckian, or someone attending a Kentucky college or university, are being sought for consideration for the Kentucky Playwrights Festival to be held November 13-15 at Spalding University in Louisville.

According to Iverson L. Warinner, project director, six scripts will be selected for their premiere performances at the Festival and "will be critiqued by a panel of Kentucky humanities scholars and playwrights that includes Horton Foote." Scripts will be staged by Spalding students majoring in communications.

Foote, one of the most successful dramatic writers in America and winner of two Academy Awards for his movie scripts, will be Playwright-in-Residence at the Festival.

Warinner, also director of the University Communications Program and director of the University Theatre Program suggests the following guidelines for submissions:

Try for simple plots and themes; keep the number of characters to a minimum; write for a simple set, putting the drama in words and action; avoid vile language that would leave the audience uncomfortable or distracted; try comedy, a "harder" form, but easier for critical and audience reaction; monologues are acceptable; use Kentucky themes, history, characters and folklore if possible; however all subject matter will be considered; scripts should be typewritten in manuscript form.

Submit scripts to Iverson Warinner, Project Director, Kentucky Playwrights Festival, Spalding University, 851 South Fourth St., Louisville, Ky. 40203. Scripts that are to be returned must include a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Kentucky playwrights who wish to attend the Festival may request a registration form from the same address. Lodging is available in the University dormitory for an additional fee.

Scholarships, Grants May Now Be Taxable

Under provisions of the 1986 Federal Tax Reform Act, funds received by students through scholarship or grant programs in excess of tuition and course related expenses must be reported as taxable income on 1987 tax returns.

Students are now responsible for maintaining records of tuition payment, school fees, books and required supplies or equipment. These records will be necessary to verify any tax exclusions.

Vocational school financial aid officers should have received IRS Form 1099 for reporting the total amount of grants and scholarships awarded to students and former students for the applicable tax year.

Dr. Charles Wade, Director of School Services for the Office of Vocational Education at the Kentucky Department of Education, said the federal IRS Form 1099 will be mailed to all students receiving grants for vocational education. Vocational school financial aid officers should have received information about this form for reporting grant and scholarship awards.

Approximately 4,000 students in Kentucky will receive around $3.5 million dollars in grant money this school year, the Office of Vocational Education reports.

Old Photographs Shed Light On Roosevelt's New Deal

By David M. Maxfield
Smithsonian News Service

Thousands of documentary photographs found in picture files at the Library of Congress and the National Archives by a Smithsonian Institution team researching a forthcoming book and exhibition present a newly detailed and diverse image of American life during the New Deal.

The federal government during the 1930's was a rich source of documentary photos taken throughout the depression-wracked country to win national support for public programs initiated by the Roosevelt administration. The photos became the visual equivalent of FDR's fireside radio chats.

Taken by amateurs, anonymous professionals or such great names of photography as Dorothea Lange and Walter Evans—for either local or national use—the photos vary in terms of technical proficiency, artistic sensibility and political acumen. Yet they share one characteristic: The pictures usually captured the constituency and policy objectives of the agency they represented—an alphabet soup of organizations as varied as the CCC, FSA and USDA (Civilian Conservation Corps, Farm Security Administration and U.S. Department of Agriculture).

Of all the federal New Deal photos, those of the FSA are the best known. Now housed at the Library of Congress, the 75,000 prints are organized for easy use by the public. But the great drama of many of the images has long accounted for their popularity with picture editors. For many Americans, in fact, views of dust storms, migrant workers, sharecroppers and breadlines have come to be the mental images of the Great Depression. Photo icons, such as Lange's sorrowful, "Migrant Mother," rank in the history of the era alongside the novels of John Steinbeck and the songs of Woody Guthrie.

Although the Smithsonian team of photographic historians looked again at the FSA photos as a shared point of reference, research in other agency files often presented a picture of New Deal life that differed substantially from the dramatic FSA images.

In an earlier Ackerman photo, a well-dressed young Maryland man is shown leaving home. The caption material provides few details, and there is nothing in the picture itself to suggest that the man fits the mold of the desperate migrant. A third Ackerman image is a peaceful 1938 picture taken in Vermont of a roadside stand bountifully stocked with apples, pears and cider.

"In none of these photographs does any hint of the depression emerge," says Pete Daniel, Smithsonian curator of agriculture and natural resources and a member of the research team. While FSA work showed the despair unleashed by dislocation, USDA photographs focused on more prosperous farmers who had benefited from government programs and had adapted mechanization and scientific methods to their land.

"By presenting a positive image that stressed recovery and stability," Daniel says, "the USDA avoided dealing with some of the serious problems set in motion by the depression and by agency policies. What you don't see in the USDA photos is disruptive change."

These images uncovered by the Smithsonian team are helpful in piecing together a more representative picture of life during the New Deal. "Obviously, the FSA and USDA photos are going to show two different Americas," Daniel says, "but if you put the collections together, then you're going to get a more complete view of America."

In addition to the USDA, CCC and FSA photos, the team examined files of the National Youth Administration and the Federal Art Project. From the study comes a new book and a National Museum of American History exhibit to open July 1, both titled "Official Images: New Deal Photography." Daniel and the other members of the team feel they have just begun to explore the New Deal photo resources. Archives of the Tennessee Valley Authority, Army Corps of Engineers, Soil Conservation Service and the Social Security Act "seemed to us especially rich prospects for further work."

The use of documentary photos in the '30s came as Americans shifted their attention from books to a new world of sight and sound. Radio and the movies had won wide audiences in the '20s. Ten years later, Life and Look magazines transformed the public's "reading" priorities.

Paradoxically, in an era of sacrifices, "photographs tended to be treated as a necessity," another team member, Sally Stein, says. The reason could be that people, deprived of material goods, were attracted to those images that resembled things, she suggests. Or perhaps in an insecure world, they were comforted by a photo's apparent matter-of-factness. "Most likely," Stein says, "the appeal of photography contained contradictory impulses: to document and transform, to gain familiarity and distance."

Exceptional documentary photos, both commercial and government, often looked candid, intimate and non-intrusive. Yet they were usually skillfully crafted, and in the case of New Deal agencies, designed to promote unprecedented federal programs.

Dorothea Lange's "Migrant Mother," taken for the FSA, is a case in point. It often is held up as a model of spontaneity, free of manipulation. The fact is the photo was obtained after careful study and posing the subject, historian James C. Curtis points out in a study of Lange's work in Winterthur Portfolio (Spring 1986). Lange and other photographers, he notes, "had to produce images of technical distinction and aesthetic merit in order to communicate effectively with their audience."

That audience included the press, Congress and a public often uninformed of the suffering of other Americans during the depression. The FSA's Roy Stryker masterminded scores of photo projects that made the agency's images of the displaced and the destitute so famous, according to the team's Maren Stange. By 1938, FSA photos had appeared in Look and Life, a dozen or so books and the Museum of Modern Art.

Photos of migrant camps in the West were matched by images from other areas showing how farmers were funneled into the hearts of large cities or scattered in outlying shantytowns, lured to the hot noisy rooms of textile mills, to oil field camps and eventually to war-time boomtowns.

Stryker insisted on a strong central photo operation. In 1935, he called in all professional cameras on loan to area offices by Washington. He demanded "dramatic picture coverage" from his staff and by other agencies as well. Regional offices at first complained that Stryker had lost touch with small-town operations and that local newspapers were "inclined to ignore artistic value." The FSA operation became a success, Daniel says, because Stryker "had a great vision" in his work.

Though most USDA photos presented "idyllic images" of rural life before and during the New Deal, there is the occasional image made of stronger stuff. One photograph found by Daniel at the National Archives shows a black farmer in Pulaski County, Ark., casting a vote in a 1938 cotton referendum on the question of limiting crop production. As a result of planting cuts—which seemed preferable at the time to the vagaries of supply and demand—Agricultural Adjustment Act policies tended to reduce the number of sharecroppers and tenants working the land.

But "by voting in AAA referendums, blacks got their first taste of democratic participation," Daniel comments. "By insisting on the participation of black farmers, the AAA subtly challenged Southern disenfranchisement laws."

New Deal agencies often faced a choice between a good "candid" shot of existing race relations or an idealized image of harmonious race relations. From Stein's research, it appears that Mary McLeod Bethune, head of the National Youth Administration Division of Negro Affairs, decided that candor was a luxury that could not yet be afforded. Numerous file photos show Bethune in stately command on one regional NYA stage or another—often flanked by two NYA participants, one black, one white.

Berenice Abbott, the noted photographer and a Federal Art Project participant, commented in 1937 on the significance of photography. Her words seem tailored to the findings of the documentary team. Photography has a double range of communication, Abbott said, "speaking to the present, but speaking also to the future and telling what sort of world it was."

The great tide of change flowing from the Depression was suggested by this 1940 Farm Security Administration photo of a mother and children at an agriculture worker's union meeting in Taber, Okla.

Mother and daughter, Japanese agricultural workers, pose in 1937 for Farm Security Administrator photographer Dorothea Lange in California.

This Agriculture Department photo captures an Arkansas farmer voting in a 1938 cotton referendum, the first taste of democracy for many blacks.

MARQUEE

ROXANNE (PG - Columbia) Starring Steve Martin and Daryl Hannah. ★★

By J.T. YURKO

Romantic comedies are out of favor in Hollywood these days, but with "Roxanne," Steve Martin has written a pretty darn good one. He has, of course, had a little help. The film is Martin's retelling of "Cyrano de Bergerac," Edmond Rostand's classic 1898 play about a military leader with an outrageously oversized nose.

Martin has the good looks and charm to be a leading man, but usually plays against type. In "The Lonely Guy," his closest encounter with a romantic lead, love was overruled by farce. And his characters in "The Jerk," "Pennies from Heaven" and "Little Shop of Horrors" were no lady-killers either.

Here, he plays his straightest romantic role yet. Wearing a perfectly fashioned makeup nose, Martin portrays C.D. Bales, a small-town fireman who falls for a beautiful astronomer named Roxanne, played warmly by Daryl Hannah. Working alongside him is fellow fireman Chris, played by Rick Rossovich. Chris is a hunk, but beneath his good looks he lacks talent as a lover. So he enlists the aid of Martin as the ghostwriter for his courtship.

Anyone familiar with "Cyrano" will recognize the story, and Martin has adeptly adapted the old to the new. Instead of a sword, Martin parries with a walking stick. The famous balcony scene is made hilarious by a noisy police scanner that rudely intrudes on the courtship. And while Cyrano would have found drinking wine through his nose utterly disgraceful, Martin won't let good taste stand in the way of a gag.

The film also stars Shelley Duvall as an amiable barkeep and Fred Willard as the town mayor. It's easy to spot who will pair off with whom at the film's end. Martin has altered the original "Cyrano" story and supplied a happy ending that no doubt will offend purists. But this show is Martin's, not Rostand's, and the comedian irreverently, uproariously makes the most of it.

ASK TONI

Who was Janssen? What was he running from?

By Toni Reinhold

What was the title of the TV series that starred David Janssen as a man on the run? Why was he running? - S.K., St. Petersburg, Fla.

David Janssen

This series was "The Fugitive," a drama that aired from 1963 to 1967 on ABC. Janssen played Dr. Richard Kimble, who had been wrongfully convicted of his wife's murder and sentenced to death. When the train bringing him to prison derailed, Kimble escaped and began his search for the real killer.

Unlike most series, which end their runs without wrapping up the story, "The Fugitive" was resolved in its last two episodes. The real murderer, a one-armed man, was identified and killed, and Kimble was exonerated.

Were there two TV series called "Matt Houston"? I seem to remember seeing one in the '70s. - B.L., Austin, Tex.

"Matt Houston," featuring Lee Horsley in the title role, aired from 1982 to 1985 on ABC. You may be confusing it with two other ABC series with similar titles. "Matt Lincoln," which aired from September 1970 to January 1971, starred Vince Edwards as a swinging psychiatrist. "Matt Helm," which starred Anthony Franciosa as the fictional detective, aired from September 1975 to January 1976.

What was the title of the karate series that starred an actor who played in a lot of Westerns? - K.D., Cleveland, Ohio

"The Master," which aired from January to August 1984 on NBC, starred Lee Van Cleef, who appeared in such classic Westerns as "High Noon" (1952), "The Man Who Shot Liberty Valance" (1962) and "The Good, the Bad and the Ugly" (1967).

When did "Tombstone Territory" air? Who played Clay Hollister? - L.B., North Vernon, Ind.

This Western aired on ABC from October 1957 to October 1959. Pat Conway played Sheriff Clay Hollister and Richard Eastham portrayed newspaper editor Harris Claibourne. Eastham was also the show's host and narrator.

IN THIS WEEK

Brooks enjoys comedy, charity, 'My Sister Sam'

By Wendy Wallace

"My Sister Sam" is a happy half-hour," says Joel Brooks, who plays hard-pressed photo agent J.D. Lucas on the CBS Monday-night series. "And it's a much better job to laugh than to cry. So I consider it an attractive way of working."

Joel Brooks

This week, Brooks can be seen in another TV project. On Wednesday, July 15, he jumps networks to star in "The AFI Comedy Special." This NBC vehicle for developing writers presents four sketches created at the American Film Institute's Television Writers Comedy Workshop. Dick Van Dyke hosts.

Brooks stars in "Gwendolyn," written by Delle Chatman. He and Susan Ruttan ("L.A. Law") play married therapists who wonder whether to tell a colleague (played by Telma Hopkins) that the man of her dreams has gone back to his wife. Other sketches feature John Larroquette, Jean Kasem and Jason Bateman.

Brooks, a New York native, earned his Master of Fine Arts degree from the University of Minnesota. His first prime-time role, in a 1980 episode of "Three's Company," led him to one of his strongest influences. "John Ritter was a great introduction to working on sitcoms," he says. "Watching him work was a very rewarding experience."

Since then, Brooks has worked as a regular on such series as "Hail to the Chief," "Teachers Only," "Private Benjamin" and now "My Sister Sam."

"My life has changed a great deal since 'Sam,'" he says. "Once, one of the most often-asked questions was 'Don't I know you?' But now people recognize me from TV. It's flattering, because they invite us into their living rooms every week, and have accepted us."

"It's very difficult to do comedy without an audience," he adds. "The energy is lower without them there, and you can feel the difference."

Lately, Brooks has spent his off-camera time fashioning "wearable art" - colorful, outrageous jeweled pins and bolo ties - to raise money for AIDS research. At a recent fundraiser, sales of Brooks' designs netted nearly $6,000.

"It's not really a hobby, it's therapy," says Brooks of his jewelry-making. "It's some small thing I can do. It's selfish if you don't lend your name to something, or try to be generous."

Wife of Larry Flynt Buried in Magoffin

Althea Leasure Flynt, co-publisher with her husband, Larry Flynt, of Hustler magazine, was buried Sunday in the Flynt family cemetery at Lakeville in Magoffin county. She was found dead, June 27, in a bathtub at the couple's Los Angeles mansion.

At least six members of the funeral party, including Larry Flynt and his bodyguard, spent the weekend at the Prestonsburg Holiday Inn, according to the hotel's manager. They arrived Friday evening and left Monday afternoon, he said.

Services at the Dunn and Kelly Funeral Home chapel were conducted by Rev. Bob Harrington, of Clearwater, Fla., and Rev. Luther Edwards, of the First Missionary Baptist Church, Salyersville. Harrington, also known as the "Chaplain of Bourbon Street," said he had married the couple in 1976.

Larry Flynt, 44, has been confined to a wheelchair since a 1978 murder attempt. Althea Flynt, his fourth wife, ran the magazine business after he was shot, according to a Salyersville writer who is working on his biography.

"She had a tremendous effect on him compared to his other wives," said Magoffin County Attorney Teddy Flynt, a cousin. "They were a couple who shared almost everything in life, their work and their personal affairs."

Born November 6, 1953, in Marietta, Ohio, she was a daughter of the late Richard and June Osborn Leasure. In addition to her husband, she is survived by a brother, Richard Leasure, of Pustin, Calif.; and three sisters, Debbie Leasure, of Marysville, O., and Marsha Rider and Sherry Maynard, both of Columbus, O.

Vision Project Schedules Free Eye Care Day

"God bless you! We can see a whole new world! I am so happy!"
Just as Alice and Herb Morehouse were able to "see a whole new world", many other Kentuckians have been aided by the Kentucky Vision Project. The Kentucky Vision Project has indeed been proven to be a valuable resource for the residents of Kentucky. This eye care charity, sponsored by Kentucky's optometrists, has provided eye care services and glasses free of charge for over 2500 Kentuckians since July 1985. The value of services donated by optometrists, optical manufacturers and laboratories has amounted to over $377,500.

On July 22, the second anniversary of the Kentucky Vision Project, the Fourth Give-One-Day will take place. A Give-One-Day is a day in which the participating optometrist sees only those patients who have been approved for the Kentucky Vision Project. Over 100 optometrists will be participating in the Give-One-Day and at least 600 individuals who have been approved for the project will have an eye exam on that day.

The Kentucky Vision Project was formed to provide free, full-scope eye care for Kentucky's working poor, those who are making enough to cover the bare necessities of life, but without anything left over for eye or vision care. Nor can they afford private health insurance that might cover the cost of eye examinations. The participating optometrists continue to provide all their professional services at no charge. However, due to the tremendous number of applicants, those whose exam shows the need for glasses will now be required to pay $20—still a great bargain for eye glasses.

The Salvation Army is still donating their services to do the eligibility screening for the project.

Anyone who is in need of an eye examination and who feels that they might qualify for the project, can write to the following address and request an application form to be returned to their local Salvation Army office or to the Kentucky Vision Project office: The Kentucky Vision Project, P.O. Box 1422, Frankfort, KY 40602.

Planters Now Decorate New Maytown Bridge

A group effort by the Maytown community resulted in the July 4 installation of concrete planters filled with red geraniums at the ends of the new Maytown bridge. Inscribed on a brass plaque mounted on one of the planters are the names of those who made the installation possible: Mr. and Mrs. Dona Willis, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Prater, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Reid, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Gibson, Mr. and Mrs. David Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Bentley, Mr. and Mrs. Stephan Halbert, the Molley Owens family, Hollie Robinson, Curt Lovins, Bill Patton, Mr. and Mrs. Eralm Hicks, and Larry Robinson and his son, Sean Robinson. Other members of the community who helped install the planters were Randy Manual, Charles Patton, Duna and T.A. Combs, Hubert Halbert, Violet Allen, Harriet Allen, Trilby May and Mitch Prater.

Police, Social Workers Join To Combat Family Violence

By Louise Houghton

On one side of the aisle, almost by themselves, sat nine Kentucky state troopers in uniform, their belts laden with beepers and other equipment. On the other side were about 25 well-dressed women and two or three men, most of them professionals involved with different types of social service agencies.

Although the seating arrangement at last week's Family Issues Conference was not consciously chosen by the participants, it seemed to exemplify what has been the relationship between law enforcement and social workers on the issue of domestic violence. That relationship is becoming more cooperative now, according to participants, as police have begun to recognize that violence between family members is a crime and should be prosecuted. But more needs to be done, they said.

The conference, held Tuesday at the Prestonsburg Holiday Inn, focused on rape, sexual assault and substance abuse as well as domestic violence. Those problems all are interconnected, participants said, and also are linked with teenage pregnancy, delinquency, and runaway children. The all-day meeting was presented by the governor's office at the request of the Big Sandy Family Abuse Center.

Too many people within the criminal justice system still believe that victims enjoy the abuse they get, or deserve it, said Travis A. Fritsch, an aide to Gov. Martha L. Collins on family violence issues.

In addition, according to Fritsch, one out of three people in a recent survey said they think violence improves the family relationship. A frightening number of young men believe they have the right to sexually assault their dates, or won't be punished for doing it, she said.

That finding was echoed by Pat Huffman, a home economics teacher at Betty Layne High School, who said that during a class discussion one male student admitted that he held similar views.

The boy's statements made some of the female students quite angry, the teacher said, but it probably was good for them to hear the male perspective. "I think that fellow would have had a hard time getting a date for the prom," she added.

Huffman and a co-worker, Beth Jones, also noted the need for more guidance counselors in the schools to help students deal with family violence. Their class on contemporary issues, which apparently is unique in this area, has touched a raw nerve in many students, Jones said, and those students need someone to talk to. With one guidance counselor for 750 students, the teachers said, real counseling just isn't possible.

Ron Ellis, an Illinois police administrator and former sheriff's deputy, told the audience that as a regular officer he hated domestic violence calls because of his own abusive childhood that included alcoholism and physical violence. "Those things haunted me when I went on these calls," he said.

He was given very little training about family violence, Ellis said. The emphasis was not on arresting the violent person, but rather on separating the disputants for a few hours and spending as little time as possible responding to the call.

Many police officers don't enjoy dealing with "social worker types," he added. Responding to an armed robbery is more interesting than untangling a domestic dispute.

Social workers are not blameless, however, when it comes to denying the truth about family violence, according to Jan Stanton, a specialist on missing and exploited children for the Illinois state police. She described a case in which a 13-year-old girl reported being sexually abused at knifepoint by her step-brother and physically abused by her father, but a social worker told the child her story wasn't believable.

"At that moment, the system started to fail that child," Stanton said. The girl survived years of further trauma and now is about to enter college, because, she told Stanton recently, of "one person who believed me. One person can make a difference."

Most people fear being mugged or assaulted by strangers, Fritsch told the group, but in truth they are more likely to be harmed in their own homes, by family members. She cited a well-known line from a motion picture, "Network," to describe what she believes should be the response to domestic violence: "I'm mad and I'm not going to take it anymore. This is the stage we need to be in," she said. "The family and the home is where we should have a sanctuary."

Mrs. Clay To Head Dwale Bike-a-Thon

The Central Regional Office of St. Jude Children's Research Hospital has announced that Mrs. Drema Clay has agreed to be the coordinator of the St. Jude Children's Research Hospital Bike-a-Thon in Dwale.

St. Jude Children's Research Hospital was founded by entertainer Danny Thomas. The institution opened its doors to the public in 1962 to combat catastrophic diseases which afflict our children. St. Jude Hospital is non-sectarian, non-discriminatory, and provides total medical care to over 4,200 patients.

All findings and information gained at the hospital are shared freely with doctors and hospitals all over the world. Thanks to St. Jude Hospital, children who have leukemia, Hodgkin's disease, sickle-cell anemia, and other child-killing diseases now have a better chance to live.

The Bike-a-Thon program this year is dedicated to Brian McCollister. Brian, a native of Louisiana, was diagnosed with leukemia in October, 1984. Since that time, Brian has come to St. Jude every six weeks for treatment, and every 12 weeks for a bone marrow test and spinal tap to make sure his cancer stays in remission. While at home, Brian receives oral medication daily. Brian is a living example of the progress and success of the research, patient care, and educational programs of this internationally recognized hospital.

Drift Woman's Club News

The GFWC/KFWC Drift Woman's Club met June 16. Due to the absence of Mrs. Cheryl Hall, president, Miss Ruby Akers presided. Mrs. Cecelia Little presented the devotion and led the pledge to the flag.

Mrs. Geraldine Ward reported that $450 was collected from the bike-a-thon and sent to St. Jude's Research Hospital. Lora Chaffins won the bicycle donated by the club. Brooks Stumbo and Robert Moore won the trophy for riding the most miles. Two tote bags, 10 t-shirts and 14 certificates were issued.

Mrs. Anna Sue Stumbo presented honor certificates from the Kentucky Federation of Woman's Clubs for being a 100 percent Score Card Club, with emphasis areas in education and hazardous waste management, for which the club was named district winner. Also, all club members subscribe to the GFWC Clubwoman magazine.

Plans were made for the 19th annual Drift Woman's Club Horse Show to be held at Archer Park, Prestonsburg, August 19. Refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Mildred Salisbury, and Mrs. Doris Lawson.

The next meeting will be July 20 at 7:30 p.m.

May Food Prices Moved Up Sharply

Food prices in Kentucky took a sharp turn upward during May, jumping 2.4 percent, mostly on the strength of higher meat and grain staple costs, according to the Kentucky Farm Bureau market-basket survey.

Forty selected food items cost shoppers an average $62.03 in May, compared to just $60.56 the previous month, and $57.75 a year ago.

A price surge at the meat counter had the most impact in this month's survey. Nine of thirteen meat items exceeded their last month's price level, with such favorites as T-bone steaks, sausage and bacon posting increases.

Beef cuts moved 2.6 percent higher and pork jumped nearly 6 percent, more than offsetting the 1.5 percent decline in prices for poultry and eggs.

Among individual items, bacon was 18 cents a pound higher, costing $1.86 on average; sausage prices moved up 41 cents to $4.22 for a two-pound package; and T-bone steaks jumped 27 cents, costing $4.66 a pound.

Two grain-based food staples, meal and flour, showed unusually large price hikes during May. Rounding out the survey's six food categories, fruits and vegetables were up 3.7 percent for the month, while dairy products dropped just over 2 percent. Lower costs for milk and cheese fueled the dairy price drop.

Most of the retail food price movement in May tracked closely with farm-level changes, according to Kentucky Farm Bureau market analyst Jeff Hall. Over the past month, cattle and hog prices boomed to 1987 highs, while long-depressed grain prices experienced a resurgence based mostly on early-season hot weather in much of the Midwest corn belt.

Hall noted that early-season weather trends seldom set the long-term pattern for grain prices. Climatic conditions in late July and early August are much more critical to crop development and pollination. More favorable temperature and moisture levels at that time would indicate a larger crop, and thus less favorable prices, he said.

Summer Enrollment Is Up at Morehead

Enrollment for Summer I at Morehead State University shows a 9 percent increase over Summer I of 1986.

Announcement of the first summer term enrollment figures was made recently by MSU President A.D. Albright.

According to University records, 2,049 students are registered for Summer I classes as compared with 1,879 students at this time last year.

"It is interesting to note that MSU has seen increases in enrollment over the previous year at every academic session since Summer I of 1986," Dr. Albright said.

Floyd Countians Named To Chair Bike-A-Thons

The Central Regional Office of St. Jude Children's Research Hospital has announced that the following individuals in Floyd county have agreed to chair the 1987 Bike-A-Thons in their community.

Mrs. Debra Goble for Weeksbury and Mr. and Mrs. Leo Music for Auxier will each chair separate Bike-A-Thons this year. St. Jude Children's Research Hospital was founded by entertainer Danny Thomas.

Teachers Receive New Credentials

Long, Hot Summer May Be Expensive

The National Weather Service is predicting a "long hot summer" with above normal temperatures for June, July and August. And those long hot summer days may result in higher than normal electric bills.

According to Gil Russell, National Weather Service officer in Jackson, the forecast for June, July and August is for above normal temperatures. "Our records indicate May 1987 was 33% warmer than May a year ago and even though June's total aren't complete, it looks like June will also be above normal," said Russell.

During the summer cooling season electric bills are most affected by increased usage of air conditioning. "We all want to keep cool—it's become a way of life. However, there is a cost associated with the use of air conditioning. When one chooses to remain cool, he is choosing to use more electricity," replied W.W. Zoellers, Kentucky Power Company division manager.

The company suggests that customers wanting to reduce their summer electric bills might consider these money-saving suggestions. Set the thermostat on your air conditioning unit as high as comfort permits. If you are planning to be away from home several days, set the thermostat even higher, or better still turn the unit off until you return.

For maximum air conditioning efficiency, clean or replace the filter monthly and make sure the vents are not blocked inside your home and outside units aren't covered by plants or grass clippings.

Close draperies or install blinds or shades to block the hot afternoon sun. The higher the room temperature the harder the air conditioning unit has to work, resulting in higher electrical usage. Also keep windows and outside doors closed as much as possible.

Summer is a good time to check insulation levels. Adequate insulation can reduce not only your summer cooling costs, but winter heating bills as well.

When purchasing air conditioning or heating equipment, water heaters, and other electrical appliances consult the Energy Guide attached to the appliance. The Energy Guide indicates the annual energy cost, allowing the buyer to compare units and select the most efficient.

Even though long hot summer days can cause higher than normal electric bills, the wise consumer can keep this energy usage to a minimum. For more information, contact the nearest Kentucky Power Company office and ask for a marketing and customer services representative.

Pharmacy Footnotes

By HAROLD COOLEY

ACTION FOR POISONING

Every family should have Ipecac syrup handy in the medicine cabinet at all times. It is to be used when someone swallows a non-corrosive poison and is still conscious. One half to one teaspoon will induce vomiting within fifteen minutes in a child less than one year old, especially if the dose is followed by one or two glasses of water. Everyone else can tolerate one to three teaspoons of Ipecac. If after twenty minutes vomiting has not occurred, a second dose may be administered, but no more after that. Additional doses can be toxic. Once vomiting has been successfully induced, a mixture of two tablespoons of activated charcoal in eight ounces of water will absorb any residual poison left in the stomach. Seek immediate attention.

This is one of the jobs of your pharmacist, keeping you informed about the many and varied over the counter remedies and medications available to you. He or she is always available to answer any of your concerns. You'll find COOLEY APOTHECARY located at #2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106 and open Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-5. Master Charge and Visa honored plus we welcome all third party payments.

HANDY HINT: If a corrosive such as acid, alkali, or a petroleum product is swallowed, do not induce vomiting. Drink milk instead.

Sr. Citizens Warned Of Lobbying Efforts

By Attorney General David L. Armstrong

Older Kentuckians should be alert for direct mail solicitations targeted at them by lobbying groups asking for donations. The lobbying groups try to raise money by using scare tactics that governmental benefits will be reduced or eliminated without strong lobbying efforts. Some organizations may use envelopes resembling U.S. governmental documents to get the consumer's attention. The literature asks for "investments" of $25-$50 or more so that the organization can continue the lobbying efforts to preserve and enhance Social Security and Medicare benefits. Consumers should be aware that administrative costs may be deducted from the donations, therefore, the money actually available for lobbying activities may be very little. Before donating, you should: —Get background information on the organization. Never give to programs you know nothing about. Request additional literature and ask questions if you need more information. Contact the Better Business Bureau or the Consumer Protection Division to check for reports or complaints concerning the organization. —Avoid appeals that use scare tactics that pressure you to donate money. —Ask what percentage of the donations will be used for the lobbying efforts and what will be used for administrative expenses. If at least 50 percent of your dollar is going for fund raising and administrative costs, you may want to reconsider. If you have questions or concerns regarding your Social Security benefits, contact your local Social Security office. If you have a complaint, write Consumer Protection Division, 209 St. Clair Street, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

He played a leading role in organizing the club's concession stand at Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theater, a project that raised $6,000 for the theater and $7,000 for the club's charitable and civic activities. Strip-Mine Settlement
Is Near, Officials Say

Lawyers for the state, the federal government and two environmental groups reportedly are on the verge of signing a court settlement that would bring $13 million into Kentucky over the next three years to help regulate the strip-mining industry. The money would be used to investigate thousands of alleged violations between 1978 and 1982, as well as to inspect current strip mines with helicopters, create a computerized system to track enforcement efforts, and to begin developing a program to protect underground water in the coalfields.

Funding for the settlement would have to be provided by Congress, but officials expressed confidence that Congress would do so.

If signed, the settlement would end a lawsuit against the state brought last September by the National Wildlife Federation and the Kentucky Resources Council. The groups charged that Kentucky has experienced "a systematic breakdown" in enforcement of strip-mine regulations.

Woes of Argentina, Wilds of The Amazon

Explore the steaming jungles of the Amazon and the woes of the once wealthy Argentine nation when "South American Journeys" presents "The Frustrated Colossus" and "Heaven, Hell and Eldorado" Sundays at 8 p.m. on KET.

Argentina, the focus of "The Frustrated Colossus," airing Sunday, July 19, is labeled "a land of impossible dreams." Once the 10th richest nation in the world, Argentina today is a nation that has fallen to its knees. Host Jack Pizzezy begins his study in Buenos Aires as he explores what went wrong with the stricken nation.

In "Heaven, Hell and Eldorado," airing Sunday, July 26, Pizzezy explores the Amazon jungle, which is seen differently through every man's eyes. For some, the jungle is a paradise. Many find it to be a hell with its uncertainties and dangers. Others still see the Amazon as "Eldorado," a source of great wealth.

"South American Journeys" is produced by the Australian Broadcasting Corporation and is presented by WHY/Philadelphia.

Completes Advance Course

Captain Gary D. Dotson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Dotson, of Middle Creek, recently completed the Infantry Officer's Advance Course at Ft. Benning, Ga., which prepares officers for command assignments. He is a 1976 graduate of Prestonsburg High School and a 1980 graduate of Eastern Kentucky University.

Most recently, he completed the Battalion S-1 course at Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind. He is being assigned to the 6th Infantry Division, Ft. Wainwright, Alaska. There he will serve as the adjutant for an infantry battalion, the 5/9th. As adjutant he will be the commander's principal staff assistant for personnel matters and the liaison between the companies and headquarters.

His previous assignment was as chief of the Operations Branch, Directorate of Plans, Training and Mobilization, U.S. Army Armor Center, Ft. Knox, Ky. While there he was awarded the Meritorious Service Medal.

Horse Park Draws Student Visitors

More than 10,000 students from various school districts throughout Kentucky have visited the Kentucky Horse Park so far this year. Total student attendance at the park for 1986 was just over 2,800.

Horse Park Executive Director Lee S. Cholak said, "The response of Kentucky's school districts has been overwhelming and heartwarming. It is a pleasure to introduce these young citizens to an important part of their own history and heritage. And we appreciate the youth, enthusiasm, and promise that each of them brings to the Kentucky Horse Park. We are looking forward to more students this fall when the new school year resumes."

School groups begin their day at the Horse Park with the films "Thou Shalt Fly Without Wings" and "All the King's Horses." The students then are able to trace the history of the horse from prehistoric to modern times in the International Museum of the Horse. The museum also offers the Horse in Sport gallery and the Calumet Trophy Collection.

Students have the opportunity to explore the day-to-day activities of a working horse farm on the Walking Farm Tour, including stops at the farrier, the harness maker, and the carriage builder. At the "Big Barn," various breed associations tell their unique stories, and Kentucky Equine Institute students train to enter careers in the horse industry. The visitors are also able to see the cultivating and plowing of fields using horse-drawn equipment.

Two highlights of a student group's day are the Parade of Breeds show and the Hall of Champions, where John Henry, Forego, and Rambling Willie are stabled. More than 30 breeds are housed at the Breeds Barn and 12 to 15 different breeds daily parade at 10:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. shows. This show gives the students insight into what makes each breed unique besides the colorful showmanship of the costumed rider.

"I bring the children to the park while teaching a unit on 'Transportation in America,'" said Nancy Isacs, an elementary teacher from Maxwell Elementary School in Lexington. "Our transportation began with the horse and buggy so what better place to show the importance of the horse in our history than the Kentucky Horse Park. We use the park to expand the children's knowledge of not only horses, but the state of Kentucky."

The Kentucky Horse Park is currently open daily from 9 a.m. until 7 p.m.

Discounts Offered For 'Stephen Foster Story'

"The Stephen Foster Story," the state's longest-running outdoor drama, is offering three discount plans to Kentucky residents this summer.

One, a group discount to senior citizens, is a long-standing policy; the other two, discounts to scouting and school groups, are new this season. All discounts require advanced reservations and payment for tickets in a lump sum. These discounts are available only to Kentucky residents.

Information about all the discounts are available by calling (800) 348-5900 or writing Stephen Foster Story, P.O. Box 546, Bardonia 40004.

"The Stephen Foster Story" opened in 1959 and has played each summer since. Evening performances are held in an amphitheatre on the grounds of My Old Kentucky Home State Park. The matinee is held indoors in the air-conditioned auditorium at Nelson County High School.

Polaroid Will Give Schools Free Kits

Superintendent of Public Instruction Alice McDonald, state chairperson for the Constitution Bicentennial observance, suggests that Kentucky teachers explore some creative ideas over the summer recess for the nationwide teach-in on the U.S. Constitution scheduled on September 16.

All elementary schools can receive a free Polaroid camera, film, posters and other teaching materials through a special licensing arrangement with the Bicentennial Commission, McDonald said.

Polaroid Corporation will ship the Constitution Education Kits to arrive September 1 so teachers and students can prepare to document their own "Celebration of Citizenship," as the teach-in program is called.

Elementary principals or their coordinators should write to Polaroid Constitution Camera Program, P.O. Box 153685, Irvin, Texas 75015, or call (toll-free) 1-800-527-1771.

Summer Heat Poses A Threat To Many

The uncomfortable summer heat can be dangerous, and sometimes life-threatening, says Dr. Henry Baughman, coordinator for emergency care instruction and associate professor of health at Western Kentucky University.

Heat stress claims more lives than any other natural disaster, including floods and tornadoes, says Baughman. In 1980, when record high temperatures hit 20 states, 15,000 people died from heat-related causes.

Baughman cites as high-risk groups the elderly, overweight, alcoholics, people with hidden heart trouble and patients on certain medications such as anti-depressants and anti-psychotics.

Temperatures above 90 degrees Fahrenheit are dangerous for these groups and potentially lethal when the humidity reaches 65 percent. This combination of environmental factors impedes the body's process for cooling off by perspiring. The body overheats and experiences heat stress syndrome: heat stroke, heat exhaustion or heat cramps.

Heat stroke, the most serious of heat-related conditions, is characterized by a flushed appearance, deep labored breathing and a rapid, strong pulse. Dizziness and nausea may also occur in the sufferer.

Dr. Baughman cautions the heat stroke is a true medical emergency and advises that its victim be cooled immediately by fanning and by pouring cool water on the victim to stabilize his body temperature at 98 degrees Fahrenheit.

Baughman also advises the victim to drink this solution: one teaspoon of salt and one-half teaspoon of baking soda in one quart of water.

Get the heart stroke victim under professional observation immediately, advises Baughman. First aid is just that—measures taken to hold the victim over until he receives professional attention.

Heat exhaustion is likely to occur after over exertion. The victim sweats profusely, has a weak but rapid pulse, is slightly dizzy or nauseated and may collapse. The condition is less serious than heat stroke, and the victim will respond to rest, elevation of the legs, and the salt solution. His temperature should also be stabilized at 98 degrees Fahrenheit.

Heat cramps, the least serious of the heat-related stresses, are painful but seldom life-threatening, and sometimes occur along with heat exhaustion. Activity with muscles should be stopped, and the spastic, knotted or cramped muscles massaged. Elevate the victim's legs and apply wet compresses to the affected muscles.

Baughman says that the best defense against heat stress is a sensible lifestyle, a nutritionally-balanced diet and the common-sense avoidance of over-exertion in hot weather.

Acclimate the body gradually to work and climate, says Baughman. Work during the cooler part of the day, taking hourly rest breaks and frequent cool showers. Eat light, cool lunches, eat plenty of fruit at all meals and drink water frequently. Baughman also advises that loose, white clothing and a wide-brimmed hat be worn for work or play in the heat.

Crowned Miss Big Sandy RECC

Heather Hitchcock, 16, was crowned the new Miss Big Sandy RECC, Wednesday, during the annual meeting of the Big Sandy Rural Electric Cooperative Corporation at Prestonsburg High School.

Selected from a field of seven contestants, Miss Hitchcock will now represent Big Sandy RECC in the Miss Kentucky Rural Electric Beauty Pageant, August 3, in Louisville. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Hitchcock, of Cliff. First-runner-up honors went to Marina Lynn Allen, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice C. Allen, of David.

Other entertainment was provided by Floyd county native, Linda Kay Sliski, in the persona of Flower Seed the clown, and South Carolina-based gospel singers, the Singing Americans.

During the business session of the meeting, reports were given by cooperative-president John E. Shepherd, Don Norris, president and general manager of East Kentucky Power, Winchester, and Big Sandy RECC manager, Bill Wells.

Wells estimated attendance at over 1,500, including the 750 members who officially registered before the meeting began. Big Sandy RECC provides electricity to 9,700 member-owner households in Floyd, Johnson, Martin, Lawrence and Knott counties.

Kentucky Milk: Better Than It Used To Be

The quality of Kentucky's raw milk has improved greatly in the past three years, thanks to farm and manufacturing plant improvements, according to information compiled by the state Department for Health Services.

This assessment is based on sampling batches of raw milk used by the 12 milk manufacturing plants in the state. These plants buy raw milk from Kentucky farms, pasteurize the milk and make cheese, evaporated milk, butter, dried milk and whey.

"Since 1984, batches of raw milk in Kentucky have shown tremendous improvement in the amount of bacteria we have found," said Leon Townsend, milk control branch manager. "Bacteria counts have consistently been below the U.S. Department of Agriculture standards even though these standards have been toughened."

As of January 1987, federal standards stipulate that the bacteria count not be more than 3 million per milliliter of raw milk. The standard had been 10 million. In 1984, the average bacteria count for all Kentucky plants was 2.5 million. In 1987, that number had decreased to 920,000.

"While pasteurization will kill all disease-producing organisms in raw milk, it's important to have a clean supply of raw milk for several reasons," Townsend said. "The higher the bacteria content of raw milk, the less efficient the pasteurization process becomes."

"The better the supply of raw milk, the better quality product you'll get in terms of taste and shelf life," he said. "All of Kentucky's plants meet the federal standards."

The improvement in bacteria count is due mostly to farm improvements and indirectly to manufacturing plant improvements, Townsend said.

"The raw milk supply is better because farm production has been upgraded," he said, "things such as better milking procedures, healthier cows, better general sanitation and new equipment."

"The state's 23 inspectors work with farmers to help improve their operation," he said. "Industry field workers also offer suggestions and support to help milk producers."

Improvements in plants—better cooling and sanitation systems, for example—can have an effect on bacteria content, as well, he said.

Kentucky farms produce more than two billion pounds of milk every year, ranking the state 17th nationally in milk production. State inspectors across Kentucky examine milk at various stages from the farm to the grocery shelf.

4th Of July Travel To Be Higher This Year

Nearly 15 percent of the population, 35 million Americans, will take a trip 100 miles or more away from home by auto, light truck or recreational vehicle during the July 4 holiday weekend, the Blue Grass Automobile Club—AAA reports. The motoring federation said another 6 million Americans will travel by all other modes of transportation during the three-day weekend.

Auto, light truck and recreational vehicle travel will be 6 percent higher this year when compared to the same holiday weekend last year. Travel by all modes of transportation is expected to register an 8 percent increase over last July 4.

Regions of the country expected to produce the greatest numbers of Independence Day travelers by motor vehicle are the Southeast, with 9 million people planning to travel, and West, where some 7.3 million will take a trip during the holiday.

Attends Space Camp

Brandon Scott II, a sixth grade student at Martin Elementary School, recently attended the U.S. Space Camp, in Huntsville, Alabama. He participated in a five-day mission, and he was launch and landing director on Space Shuttle Mission Day. Astronauts Alan Shepherd and Wally Schirra were guest speakers during the camp. Brandon also visited the training site for Kentucky astronaut Storey Musgrave.

Brandon is the son of Burl and Grace Scott, of Martin.

Cleanup Campaign Is Target on KET

Cleanup and beautification efforts resulting from Governor Martha Layne Collins' Pure Kentucky Cleanup Campaign will be the focus of an hourlong viewer call-in program airing July 13, at 9 p.m. on KET. "Pure Kentucky Cleanup Campaign" will be hosted by "Kentucky Afield's" Jeremy Dreier. He will be joined by state Natural Resources Cabinet Secretary Mary Helen Miller.

In addition to soliciting calls from viewers about how they can get involved in local efforts, the program looks at outstanding cleanup efforts from selected sites around Kentucky. KET travels to Livermore (pop. 1500) in McLean county where Mayor Amber Hinton, a member of the national board to Keep America Beautiful, annually organizes a massive cleanup effort.

At Breckinridge county's Rough River State Park Lakeside Cleanup, see how more than 1,000 citizens participate in a cleanup effort co-sponsored by Kentucky State Parks and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. In 1986, this cleanup activity won a national award from President Ronald Reagan's "Take Pride In America" program.

"Pure Kentucky Cleanup Campaign" also will feature footage from Pike county where Judge-Executive Paul Patton has been instrumental in mandatory solid waste collection, proper landfills and taking necessary steps to prevent illegal dumping.

In Louisville, Mayor Jerry Abrahamson has spearheaded "Operation Brightside," an ongoing effort offering a wide variety of cleanup activities available to citizens and the business community.

"Pure Kentucky Cleanup Campaign" is a production of KET.
