Prestonsburg Village Auction Fails To Pay Off Creditors

By Louise Houghton

About 40 people gathered near Prestonsburg Village, Saturday morning, for a low-key auction of the unfinished shopping center that creditors hoped would raise enough money to pay off the debts owed by developers John W. Waits and Robert M. Greer, Jr. Many feared it would not raise enough, however, and they proved to be correct.

Top bidder on the largest piece of the property was Prestonsburg Village Associates, a partnership consisting of James A. Hughes, of Prestonsburg, owner of the nearby Glyn View Plaza, and Dr. A.P. Labhsetwar, board chairman of the First National Bank and Trust Co. of Junction City, Kansas, and part-owner of several shopping centers in Kentucky, Kansas and Nebraska. They bid a total of $2,968,500 for about 26.5 acres, including the site of the Wal-Mart and Winn-Dixie stores, and a variety of construction materials that are stacked in front of the unfinished buildings at the center.

Liens against the building materials and property, which was mortgaged to the New York-based Buckingham Kentucky Holdings, Inc., totalled more than $12.2 million, including interest on loans.

A smaller tract, about 14 acres, drew few bids and was sold to The Bank Josephine for $175,000. The property was mortgaged to The Bank Josephine and nearly $400,000 is owed on it this month, including interest on loans.

Bank officials were not available for comment.

Hughes, the successful bidder on the larger parcel, said he plans to develop the center in three phases. Within the next 45 days, he indicated, work will begin on removing the highwall behind Wal-Mart, Winn-Dixie and other shop spaces. Blasting will be done in the early morning so that the stores can remain open.

Phase two will include completion of 65,084 square feet of retail space that Hughes expects will be filled by national and regional chain stores as well as local businesses. The final phase will bring in three fast-food restaurants.

Architectural work will be handled by Randall Burchett and Associates, of Prestonsburg, Hughes said, and engineering will be by Baldrige

List of Grand Jury Indictments Includes Four Charges of Murder

By Louise Houghton

Four people were charged with murder, two of them by shooting and two by involvement in motor vehicle accidents, in indictments handed down Monday by a Floyd Circuit Court grand jury. Among the 59 other people indicted were two married couples, one charged in the recent armed robbery of a Piggly Wiggly manager and the other accused of child abuse that resulted in serious injury to the child.

Orville Tackett, 52, of Grethel, was charged with murder in the June 6 shotgun slaying of Mickey Hall, 19, also of Grethel. According to police, the shooting took place at Tackett's home, on Tackett Branch of Branham's Creek, following an argument between the two, and was witnessed by four people.

Reo Hamilton, 38, of Teaberry, also was charged with murder for the May 9 shotgun killing of Teddy Howell, Jr., 26, of Meta. The shooting occurred at the Blue Grass Festival on Ned's Fork near McDowell, where Howell was working at concession stand, according to authorities. Fifteen people witnessed the incident.

Also indicted for murder was Rodney Brown, 19, of Langley, who lost control of his car near Eastern, March 19, and struck a tree, resulting in the death of a passenger, E. Jefferson Slone, 24, also of Langley. According to police, Brown was driving under the influence of alcohol and his driver's license was suspended at the time. He was thrown out of the car but was not seriously hurt in the accident.

Garrett-McDowell Rd. Construction Funded

Funds have been authorized for two phases of a project to construct the new four-mile Garrett-McDowell road and construction is expected to begin next year.

The Transportation Cabinet approved $200,000 for preliminary right-of-way acquisition and utility relocation activities. The road will stretch from Kentucky 80 at Garrett to Kentucky 122 at McDowell.

In making the announcement, Gov. Collins said the project will provide a shorter, more convenient route for motorists.

All phases of the project are estimated to cost $17.1 million and are being financed with Economic Development Bond funds and state construction funds.

"The Grand Jury during its February term made numerous recommendations, none of which have been implemented," wrote the June grand jury in its report to Circuit Judge Hollie Conley. "When the Grand Jury convenes in September 1987, if these recommendations still have not been implemented the Grand Jury requests that proper parties appear before the Grand Jury to testify as to reasons why."

Among the improvements suggested by the February grand jury were repaving the courthouse parking lot, keeping vehicles off the courthouse lawn, cleaning the public restrooms, keeping the jail cleaner, installing signs at the courthouse and annex to show the location of various offices, adding lighting in the stairways of the annex, and removing "curtain strings in the juvenile detention facility."

The fourth murder indictment was returned against Lloyd Ray Shepherd, 35, of Wayland, for a May 11 collision which resulted in the death of Melissa Kaye Slone, 18, of Hueysville. Shepherd also was charged with first-degree assault of Sarah Leann Duddlestone, a juvenile passenger in the Slone car, who was seriously injured in the accident. According to police, Shepherd was under the influence of alcohol when he drove his Ford Bronco across the center line and struck the other vehicle head-on.

Terry Lee Rowe, 27, and his wife Ava Rector Rowe, 28, of Martin, both were indicted for first-degree robbery in the May 17 hold-up at gunpoint of John Osborne, manager of the Martin Piggly Wiggly store. Nearly $23,000 in cash, checks and food stamps was taken from Osborne as he sought to make a night deposit at the First Commonwealth Bank in Martin, according to police.

The Rowes were arrested June 5 after they allegedly robbed the same Martin branch of First Commonwealth Bank that morning, fleeing with an undisclosed amount of money. While lodged in the Floyd county jail, Terry Rowe confessed to the Osborne robbery, police said, and tipped them that most of the loot—all but the cash—had been put into a plastic garbage bag along with a brick and sunk in Right Beaver Creek. Divers recovered the items last week. (See separate story).

The Rowes were arraigned last week in Lexington on federal bank robbery charges for the June 5 robbery.

The Floyd grand jury also charged Terry Rowe with being a persistent felony offender. He was convicted here of reckless homicide in 1978 and sentenced to five years in prison; in 1982 he was convicted of second-degree assault and sentenced to seven years.

An indictment for first-degree criminal abuse was returned Monday against Tammy and Danny Ratcliff, of Lackey, who allegedly caused serious injury to Beth Porter, an infant in their custody.

Julian Dave Tackett, of Falcon, was charged with second-degree escape for a March 25 incident, here, in which he fled from the custody of deputy sheriff Roy Blackburn, who was escorting Tackett to a local doctor's office. It was the latest of numerous escapes for the Magoffin county man, who was being held here in March for robbery, theft and escape from the juvenile detention center last summer.

Tackett, who was captured May 18 in Ohio and charged with auto theft, also was indicted here this week for first-degree burglary along with Tony Tackett, also of Falcon. Police said the two were armed when they broke into the residence of Harold Adkins, May 5.

Fire Destroys Teaberry Shop

T&T Equipment Co., a heavy-equipment shop at Teaberry, was destroyed by fire, Saturday afternoon. The shop where mining equipment was housed also contained flammable materials such as paint, penetrating oils, and aerosol sprays.

The fire is believed to have started as welding was being done. Members of the Mud Creek Volunteer Fire Department first answered a call around 12:30 p.m. and extinguished a small blaze. Apparently, the fire started again later and spread to the rest of the building. Both the Mud Creek and Left Beaver fire departments helped extinguish the blaze.

Bill Bob Callihan, Area 9 coordinator for Disaster and Emergency Services, was called to the scene which was first reported here as an explosion. He said tires on a loader did explode when they burned through, but there were no explosives as such involved.

No estimate of damage was given though the business was said to be destroyed.

EFFORTS ARE UNDER WAY by a group headed by Johnny Burke, Sr., to restore the Floyd County War Memorial to its former dignity and to establish a perpetual fund to insure that it will remain a memorial worthy of the county's war dead.

Group Organizes To Preserve Floyd County War Memorial

By Joe Porter

The Floyd County War Memorial, located in Archer Park, names Floyd residents who were killed in World War I and II, Korea, and Vietnam. The memorial was once beautiful, but now it stands in neglect; the flags have been stolen and the flagpoles are rusting, bare, and broken.

Yet with the full cooperation of both the city and county governments, a group of citizens, led by John W. Burke, Sr., are forming a committee to raise money to restore the memorial and set up a perpetual fund to preserve it.

Burke said that the money raised will be used to replace 47 American flags at a cost of $35 each, repair the seven flagpoles that have been broken in half, and buy paint, pulleys, and 600 feet of rope. "Any money left over will be put in a bank account and used for a perpetual fund," Burke said. "And the money collected will never be used for any other purpose than for the Floyd County War Memorial."

Contributions will be accepted from any club, VA organization, women's auxiliary, business, or any group or individual. "Anyone who lives in the county who wants to contribute to buy a flag or donate in any way is welcome to," Burke said.

Also named to the committee with Burke are C. Richard Clark and Paul Phillip Hughes. The committee will oversee the restoration and account for all money collected. Burke said that with gates and a night watchman on duty park security has been improved and should prevent further vandalism from occurring.

THOSE OUTSIDE could only stand and wait, Tuesday, as rescue teams worked to free a miner trapped 2800 feet underground by a roof fall at Warco Mining Company's mine No. 1, south of Martin. The remaining roof was unstable and had to be re-secured as the teams sought to locate the miner, according to a spokesperson for the state Department of Mines and Minerals. The body of Bradley Stevens, 26, of Harold, was recovered at about 6:30 p.m., Tuesday.

Charged in Bank Robbery, Rowe Admits May 17 Heist

By Joe Porter

The armed robber tipped the State Police, and the loot was recovered by scuba divers with the Prestonsburg Fire Department.

Terry Lee Rowe, 27, of Martin, confessed to having robbed Piggly Wiggly assistant manager John Osborne outside the Martin Branch of the First Commonwealth Bank, May 17. Osborne was on his way to the bank to make a night deposit when the robbery occurred.

KSP detective Danny Stumbo reported that Rowe admitted the crime June 10 while in the county jail. Rowe told Stumbo that after the Piggly Wiggly robbery he put the loot—checks, food stamps, and coupons—into a plastic garbage bag with a brick. Then he threw the bag into Right Beaver Creek at Maytown behind a house where Rowe's mother and brother live.

Certified scuba divers with the fire department, here, were dispatched to the scene the next morning. Wearing exposure suits, the divers searched in murky 4½-foot-deep water and recovered the bag in 52 minutes. The creek's width was estimated to be between 50 and 75 feet at the point of recovery. Also found in the bag were bank pouches, a ski mask, and one workman's glove that matches a glove found on the bank's roof.

Taking part in the recovery operation were divers Kenny Crisp, Mike Moore, and Bob Carpenter. Fire Chief Thomas Blackburn supervised the operation, and backup assistance was provided by John Hunt and Jim Conley.

According to State Police, $13,636.63 was stolen in cash from Piggly Wiggly, $7,756.92 in checks, and $406.65 in food stamps. The cash taken has not been recovered.

On June 11, Rowe was transported to Lexington for arraignment on a different charge. Rowe and his wife, Ava Rector Rowe, 28, also of Martin, are facing federal bank robbery charges after a holdup at the same Martin Branch of the First Commonwealth Bank, June 5.

No Crime Deterrent

Locking your car, installing a deadbolt lock on your front door and leaving the living room light on when you're gone may make you feel safer about crime.

But people who take such precautions are no less likely to be victimized by crime than people who don't, a University of Louisville study has concluded.

In a project commissioned by the Kentucky Attorney General's office, researchers at U of L's Urban Studies Center surveyed 555 households, asking members what precautions they had taken against crime and whether or not they had been victimized.

The amount of precautions taken did not significantly affect the level of crime experienced, said Knowlton Johnson, who supervised the study.

Improved outdoor lighting, police patrols and neighborhood watches seem to be the best crime deterrents, the researchers found.

HYDROGEN PEROXIDE

Hydrogen peroxide is an old, commonly used antiseptic of very feeble activity. Hydrogen peroxide solution, USP, contains 3 percent hydrogen peroxide in water. When this solution is applied to body tissue, it immediately releases oxygen. Very few germs can live in an environment of high concentrations of oxygen. However, the solution usually does not penetrate below the crusty layer of the skin. Consequently, it does not reach the really critical area of infection. In addition, the oxygen is released all at once from the solution, giving the compound a very temporary activity. However, it does have the advantage of mechanically cleaning the wound with its bubbly release of oxygen.

Our pattern of excellence is always consistent here at COOLEY APOTHECARY. We are a pharmacy dedicated to offering you the finest service available anywhere. We aim to provide quality over the counter products as well as prescription medications to care for your total pharmaceutical needs. We are always available to answer any questions you may have. ## Few Feel Earthquake Here As Tremors Hit Wide Area

By B.A. Heinze

Earthquakes in California have become a pretty common occurrence, but last Wednesday's quake hit closer home. The tremor was felt in Kentucky, Indiana, Ohio, Illinois, Pennsylvania, and on to include 16 states and as far north as Canada.

Seismologists, who study the whole shaky business of earthquakes, say the New Madrid fault—the one we're sitting on is much more dangerous than the San Andreas fault in California. After three small quakes in the last 15 to 20 years, some are beginning to wonder if those scientists could possibly know what they're talking about.

Last Wednesday's quake registered 5.0 on the Richter scale. Few felt it, but Debbie Hackworth, who was taking a nap in an upstairs bedroom of her Van Lear home, was awakened by the tremors. She said, "I didn't know whether to go downstairs and have the house fall on me or go outside and fall to the ground."

There were no injuries or major property damage reported in the state, although the center was in Lawrenceville, Ind., not far from Western Kentucky.

Following this, another quake hit southeast Missouri, Sunday, with its center, appropriately enough, at New Madrid, Mo., about 130 miles south of St.

Louis. This one, measuring only 4.1 on the Richter scale, was felt in only a small area and is said not to be related to last Wednesday's.

The New Madrid fault, where the severest earthquakes of record happened in 1811-12 changing the course of the Mississippi River, is expected within the next 15 to 50 years to come up with a 6.0 to 7.0 Richter scale doozy. The way this works is that a one-point increase means the intensity increases 10 times. Using this formula, a 6.0 quake would be 10 times more severe in ground movement than last Wednesday's, and a 7.0 reading would mean 100 times more ground movement.

There's an old saying in these parts that seems apropos in this situation. It is, "You might as well stand and take it as run and catch it."

Porter Denies Charge He Harassed Park Bd.

By Joe Porter

City Councilor Harry Ray Porter has denied that he harassed Archer Park officials in regard to electrical code violations that resulted in the park being temporarily closed for two days. Porter's denial stems from the June 8 City Council meeting in which Park Board Chairman Bill Ray Collins described Porter's handling of the situation as harassment.

Porter admits that he reported the story to the radio station, but he denies he contacted the TV station. He said he didn't know how they found out about it. Porter also denied the charge that his actions were done to gain publicity for his political campaign. "I did it for the safety of the people," he said. "No other reason."

"My only concern is that the park is fixed," Porter said. "And it has been. And if I had to do it over again I would."

Marshall Awarded Contract To Test Possible AIDS Vaccine

The Huntington Veterans Administration Medical Center, which is affiliated with the Marshall University School of Medicine, has announced that the school is receiving a $1.4 million National Institutes of Health contract to test vaccines that may one day offer protection from the deadly disease AIDS.

Marshall is one of only six centers the NIH has approved to begin testing AIDS vaccines in humans. The other centers are Johns Hopkins University, the University of Maryland, the University of Rochester, Baylor College of Medicine and Vanderbilt University.

"The AIDS problem is a national and international crisis, and we're proud to be among those working toward a solution," said Marshall President Dale F. Nitzschke.

Early testing will focus on people who are not in high-risk groups for AIDS, according to Dr. Robert B. Belshe, who will direct the program at Marshall.

"Huntington is a very typical medium-sized community," he said. "The average person here has not been exposed to AIDS and is not in a high-risk group."

Belshe said researchers hope to find out whether the proposed vaccines will help healthy people develop antibodies to protect them against the disease. If the proposed vaccines show promise, researchers will go on to find out how much vaccine is needed to provide protection.

He said he has talked to several students who have expressed interest in learning more about the vaccine. "For the early studies, we're looking for volunteers who have some knowledge of the way antibodies work," he said.

Belshe cautioned against over-optimism. "Most scientists agree that it will be years before we have a fully approved and tested AIDS vaccine," he said. "Even then, we're talking about something designed to prevent the disease, not something that will cure it. The vaccines we will study are ones that have shown some promise, but we still have a long way to go."

Testing will not begin until the Food and Drug Administration reviews safety data for proposed vaccines and approves them for human testing. This safety data also will be reviewed at the local level, Belshe added. For maximum safety, the proposed vaccines use only parts of the AIDS virus, not the whole virus.

"There is no possibility of getting AIDS from these vaccines," he said.

In addition, volunteers for the study will be carefully screened to make sure their immune systems function properly and that they have not been exposed to AIDS.

"Because AIDS is so serious, scientists are proceeding with the utmost caution," Belshe said.

The government's testing program is divided into three phases. Marshall will participate in the first two:

*Phase One—To find out whether proposed vaccines do help people produce antibodies (only people who are not in high-risk groups will be tested during this phase);

*Phase Two—To find out the proper dosage levels for the vaccines.

The third phase, designed to find out whether the vaccines actually prevent AIDS, will be conducted in major cities with large populations of people in high-risk groups.

The season continues with "The Music Man," "South Pacific" and "Gospel" and runs in repertory through August 23. For tickets and information, call 886-9274.

Ky. Power To Reduce Retail Rate, July 2

Kentucky Power Company is reducing rates to its retail customers by approximately $6.9 million annually, effective July 2.

Earlier this year, the company filed with the Kentucky Public Service Commission for the rate reduction as a result of the 1986 Tax Reform Act. June 11 the Commission issued an order granting the company's request.

C. Richard Lovegrove, spokesman for the company, said Thursday that the company, in its request, had asked to reflect the full reduction in the federal tax rate from 46% to 34% in its tariffs effective July 1, rather than phasing it in in two steps, which had been proposed by some parties. The 1986 Tax Reform Act has a provision that a calendar year taxpayer like Kentucky Power will pay taxes at a rate of 40% in 1987 and 34% in 1988. "We feel an immediate full reduction is more beneficial to our customers, and the PSC agreed with us," he said.

Lovegrove said that a residential customer using an average of 1,000 kilowatt-hours of electricity a month will realize an annual savings of approximately $17.26.

Father's Day: Time To Honor Child-Support Obligations

On Father's Day children honor the man who made arguably the most significant commitment in their lives—fatherhood. Unfortunately for children in almost 10,000 Kentucky families, Father's Day 1987 is a sad reminder of a parent-to-child commitment made but not honored.

The commitment—child support—is an obligation that can create great hardships for children when left partially or completely unfulfilled, according to Pam Mertens, director of the state's Division of Child Support Enforcement.

"The average court-ordered child support monthly payment isn't enough to cover the cost of raising a child," said Mertens. "Even when child support is being paid, it seems there's never enough money to go around to help maintain the lifestyle the children were accustomed to."

"Too often, the bitterness and hurt felt by parents after a divorce interferes with their ability to agree on all issues affecting their children. The problem is complicated when the parent without custody refuses to pay child support, adding financial uncertainty to an already stressful situation."

That's when the state may step in, attempting to locate delinquent parents, enforcing established court orders for payment and collecting the child support, even if the parent lives in another state.

In 1986 the state Division of Child Support Enforcement collected almost $32 million in delinquent child support payments, including $11.7 million for families receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC).

AFDC is a federally-funded program that provides assistance to low-income families with single parents or to families where the children are deprived of parental support.

The division automatically enforces collection of child support in cases where a family is receiving AFDC. However, in non-AFDC cases, an application must be made to request the division's assistance.

"Parents and older children must realize that when a divorce or separation occurs, the standard of living is going to be reduced," said Mertens.

"Take as an example a family of four where the parents earn a combined income of $30,000. If a father earning $20,000 moves out and pays the mother $3,000 per year in child support, it's impossible for her and the children to maintain their former lifestyle on $13,000 per year."

To provide judges setting child support orders with a more realistic view of child care costs as they relate to family income and lifestyle, the division has developed a support cost guideline that has been set to judges statewide.

"Our scale is a recommendation of minimum support allowances based on combined family income and U.S. Department of Agriculture estimates for cost of living and raising a child at the time child support is being set," said

Mertens. "The amounts we've listed would lessen the financial impact of divorce on children and allow them to lead a lifestyle similar to what they were living before the divorce."

Often children are drawn into the fray when a mother who is struggling to make ends meet, even with child support, tells the children to ask their father for money for extras.

"Children are often more perceptive than we give them credit for," she said. "If they're aware that Dad frequently takes expensive trips and drives a late model car while Mom is scrimping to buy them new jeans or pay the bills, they're going to feel rejected or unwanted."

Mertens noted that child support includes concern about the children's emotional as well as financial well-being.

"A parent who is paying child support has demonstrated a concern for a child's financial comfort," she said. "By spending time with the child, that same parent can demonstrate concern for a child's emotional health as well."

Kurt Pickering Explains Personal Preferences, Radio Broadcasting

Some know him as Rick Curtis. Others recognize him as Kurt Pickering, but all Floyd county sports fans are familiar with his distinctive voice and radio broadcasting ability.

Kurt Pickering has painted his word picture for Floyd county fans with both WQHY radio, and WKKZ, his current place of employment.

There is much more to this Ohio native than just his radio personality, as the Floyd County Times sports section found out in a recent one-on-one interview. Following is that conversation exactly as it occurred.

ALTON: Some sports fans in this area may still be confused when they listen to Prestonsburg High School sports. You were Rick Curtis, your air name, and now you are Kurt Pickering. Why the change in name?

KURT: When I came to town for the first time in '84 I was doing two things. Three things really, but two things on the air, and one of the two things I was doing on the air was disc jockeying. When being disc jockey you want to have a short and easy-to-remember name, and Kurt Pickering was neither. When doing sports you want to use your real name because people get to know you out in the public. Not just as some voice in the studio. So I had a problem. Which way do I go? I decided to go with an air name, and Rick Curtis is a name I made up several years ago. I decided to use it, but I didn't think I should use one name doing one thing, and another name doing another thing for the same station. So that's why I used Rick Curtis the first time. Then when I moved away and came back, I felt I should use my real name for the reasons I've already stated. I feel that when you're doing anything in the public eye, like news and sports, you should use at least your real first name because people do get to know you, and I preferred, in doing those things, to start using my real name. So I did at a different station, but in the same market, and I really thought it would work, but you would be surprised at the people who still call me Rick.

ALTON: Do you ever find yourself getting away from Kurt Pickering during the business day, and becoming Rick Curtis as a sporting event in the evening?

KURT: As far as my thinking which name to use it's never been a problem.

I don't know why unless it's having the mike in front of me making me think I was a different person. I've had some interesting things happen when people found out that Rick Curtis wasn't the real name. When I was working at the hospital, of course I was using my real name there, my picture appeared in the paper one week with an award that we had won. Jenny Wallace, Brian's mother, saw me at a regional baseball meeting at Pikeville. "Didn't I see your picture in the paper the other day?" And I said yea, and she said well it sure didn't say Rick Curtis under it. I found myself explaining the whole thing again. I will probably never use an air name again unless I'm disc jockeying, but I never plan on doing that again.

ALTON: You have worked just about every facet of radio there is to work. Do you have a preference in what you want to do.

KURT: Play-by-play sports, no doubt, with jockeying a close second. I enjoy jockeying, but it isn't something I would like to make a career out of. I got reasonably far in a news career that I didn't want. The Kentucky Network is not a bad job. It's a good job. The job I had with the Kentucky Network was one of the best radio news jobs in the state, covering state government for radio stations all over the state. Something of a plum job. I didn't want it. It was the best offer I had coming out of college. That's why I left there. In other words I have a good aptitude for news, but I don't like the work. I'd much rather be calling a ball game.

ALTON: Speaking of play-by-play, you have called all three different sports for Prestonsburg this past year, and before that all three sports countywide. Do you have a preference as to which sport you had rather call?

KURT: I love baseball. No doubt about it. It's my favorite sport, and that makes me somewhat of an anomaly in eastern Kentucky, because basketball is king here, and I recognize that, but I try to work as hard at basketball as I do at baseball. In fact, I probably work harder because I don't know the sport as well. I don't know football or basketball as well as I know baseball, but I know baseball inside and out, forward and backward. The other two sports I really have to grit my teeth and work hard.

It takes more research to do a basketball game. It takes a good color man to do a basketball game. I need someone who knows the sport better than I do sitting beside me. Not to promote the competition, but Jim Frasure was the best color man I ever had, and I knew he would make a good play-by-play man. I don't know what the public thinks of him, but I think he is excellent.

ALTON: What things have to come together to make a good broadcast?

KURT: You've heard the old saying the three most important things in retail business is location, location, and location. The same thing three times, because it's so important. I feel like in play-by-play there are four keys—preparation and concentration, preparation and concentration. You've got to be able to concentrate. You can't have equipment foul ups. You can't have bad equipment. You can't have anything distracting you when you're trying to call a game. But more important than that, you've got to be prepared. You need to know the teams. You need to know their names and numbers. When I see 16, I need to think Goble. I can't stop and convert it in my mind, 16 is Goble. I have to get it to the point where when I see 16 it's John Goble out there. Or 22 in basketball. That's okay, but it's just a start. You need to know in advance what kind of patterns a team runs, how they operate. If they have a history of coming from behind, or conversely blowing leads. It may happen on a case by case basis in any individual game, a team may blow a six-run lead. Is it not more interesting for the fans if when the lead was six nothing, you said watch it—this team blows leads, or has blown leads in the past. It's all research. It's all in getting to know the coaches. Coming under the heading of research is getting close to the players, getting to know them, and getting to the point where you are part of the team, or at least a very close sideline to the team. You can get a lot of color type commentary just by being close to the team.

ALTON: You've told me this story before. Everybody in this business gets flack from that thing called being partial. You were calling a Betsy Layne game against Prestonsburg one night, and when you got back to the station you got one of the best compliments you could have possibly gotten in this area.

KURT: What I got was two complaints, and they canceled each other. In my mind it proved that I was doing an objective job. I got back that night and Phyllis, who was running the board, said you received two calls within 15 minutes, and both were complaints. I said, complaining about what. She said, complaining about partiality. Oh, who was I supposed to favor. She said, that's the funny thing. Somebody called and said why is he so pro Betsy Layne, and 15 minutes later someone called and said why is he so pro Prestonsburg. I've always been aware, like umpires, play-by-play men...people perceive what they expect. If, for some reason, someone thinks I'm going to be pro-Prestonsburg then they will hear me as pro-Prestonsburg whether I am or not. And yet, two different people saying the exact opposite thing gave me a pretty good indication that I was doing it objectively.

ALTON: You mentioned umpiring. You umpire yourself don't you?

KURT: Yea, I do. I got my high school sanction for the first time this year, then because we did every Prestonsburg game I never used it, but I've umpired for, let's see. Well, I started when I was 15 doing Little League. When I got out of college, I hung up the spikes, as they say, and two years ago I got back into the Little League here. I've probably been in it for 10 or 11 years.

ALTON: What do you get personally from umpiring, because the money doesn't make it worth it. What is there for you as far as umpiring is concerned?

KURT: I'm going to quote another person here. Abe Lawson is a baseball man's baseball man. He lives up on Left Beaver and coaches McDowell's Babe Ruth team. He is forever saying baseball is an institution. It was here when we came, and it will be here when we're gone. That's the way I feel about the game. It's not just a game. It's an institution, and I like to be a part of it. Also I like the idea, regardless of what anybody else thinks, I know in my mind and in my heart that I'm objective about who wins and who loses. For one thing, it's hard for me to care who wins and who loses because I'm not from this area. I'm happy to provide an objective umpire. I feel I know the rules pretty well, and it's important to me that the kids get the best quality umpiring available. Now, I'm not going to sit here and say I'm the best umpire in Floyd county, but just like play-by-play, I work hard. I want to know that the kids aren't getting into a situation where a father from one side, or even a coach from one side, and a father or coach from the other side are umpiring. Whether they do a good job or not, it's just not a good situation. I will never call in a league where my son is playing. I'm not just saying when his team is playing. I'm saying period. If my son gets into Little League I will not umpire Little League in this town.

ALTON: Back to Radio. Do you have higher goals than the market you're in now. I guess everyone wants to move up, but is there one certain thing you hope to achieve?

KURT: Still do. You asked me that question when I was with the other guys, and you were with the other guys. That goal remains. I'm getting older and older, and I don't know if it will ever happen. I'm 31 now, but I would still love to call professional, preferably major league baseball, but that's not going to happen tomorrow. I've had some encouragements since we last talked. I went to the winter baseball meetings job hunting. I was interviewed for four jobs, and qualified for second interviews on three of them, but I wasn't lucky enough to get any of them. Everyone was encouraging. They said I should stay with it. I got a nice letter from one of them saying my play-by-play showed confidence, knowledge of the rules, and a pleasing voice, or some adjective like that. They think I can get there if I just get a break, or keep working at it. The catch is that they didn't hire me. It will happen someday, and if it doesn't, I'll just keep working, and bringing in bread for the family. Work is work, but that is a job that wouldn't seem like work to me. Play-by-play baseball would not seem like work to me.

SHORT SPORTS

Floyd County's senior Babe Ruth squad, 2-1 on the season, will travel to Morehead tonight for a doubleheader with Morehead's American Legion team.

The first game is scheduled to get underway at 6. Nathan Shelton is expected to be Floyd County's starter in the first game with Mark Tipton going to the hill in the second contest.

Coming off a doubleheader sweep of Ashland, Floyd County appears to be showing signs of playing quality baseball, but Morehead has been rumored as having the best amateur program in the state and one of the most successful in the nation.

However, playing tough competition is most coaches top theory of improving themselves.

Floyd County will see their first home action of the summer, Monday night, when Knott County comes calling at Allen Park. The two teams met last week with Knott County taking the first game, 3-2. The second contest was called in the fifth inning with the score tied, 3-3. Roger Horne will probably be the Floyd County pitcher Monday night. Game time is set for 8:30.

Departure time for Morehead has been set at 3:30. The team will collect at Hardee's in Prestonsburg and leave together from there.

Being good is one thing, but being good enough to choose your own team is better than ever. Brian Bosworth may in fact be that good.

The outgoing linebacker from Oklahoma has long said he would not play with teams that didn't promote defense, and Friday night Bosworth reinforced his initial statement.

In the NFL's supplemental draft, the Seattle Seahawks chose Bosworth as the first, and only player selected, but immediately following the draft Bosworth said he would sit the year out before playing in Seattle.

The flamboyant linebacker says he won't play for any teams other than Tampa Bay, Los Angeles Raiders, New York Giants, or Chicago.

Professional basketball's college draft will be held this Monday with the San Antonio Spurs holding the draft's top selection. The Spurs are expected to choose David Robinson, seven-foot center from Navy, even though he won't be available to play for two years.

San Antonio team officials say they have waited a long time already, and two more years won't hurt. Robinson may be the only true first pick in the draft. Locally, Bob McCann, of Morehead, and Pikeville's Todd May, are expected to go in the first two rounds.

Tom Seaver, veteran pitcher in both the National, and American League, should return to the New York Mets starting rotation soon.

Seaver recently joined the Mets for the third time after his American League team found no further use for the 42-year-old righthander.

Earlier in his career, Seaver led the Mets to a World Series championship in 1969, and again had New York in the final series, this time in 1973.

Then Seaver had an overpowering fastball that he blew hitters away with.

Local Talent Evident In East-West Series

Two former county high school baseball players made their vast baseball talents evident in this past weekend's East-West all-star series held in Elizabethtown.

Kelly Nickles, who performed his high school baseball magic for Allen Central, and Bud Newsome, former Betsy Layne star, represented local baseball talent as members of the East squad.

At Allen Central, Nickles earned a reputation as one of the top defensive outfielders in the 15th region, and in the all-star matchups, he proved that reputation was well-earned.

After getting a starting position in the series' second game, Nickles got off to a shaky start in centerfield. In the second inning, Nickles misplayed a line drive off the bat of David Goins, a Davis County regular.

"When I started after the ball it was waist high, but when I got to it, it just dropped," Nickles explained. "The way the wind blows over that fence a lot of balls drop like that."

Nickles was tagged with an error but later made up for his mistakes.

"I knew Kelly had played some second base and outfield so I decided to give him a start in center." East coach Chris Maxwell said. "I think he may have been a little nervous at first. He misjudged that one fly ball, but then he came back and made what I think was the defensive play of the series."

In the fourth inning, once again against David Goins, Nickles tracked down a long drive in left centerfield. With his back to the plate, Nickles robbed Goins of an extra base hit while drawing praise from those in the stands and his all-star coach.

Nickles had previously announced his intentions of attending Alice Lloyd College, continuing his education, and baseball career at the Knott County school, but Marvin Stringfellow may have provoked a change in plans.

Stringfellow, head baseball coach at Georgetown College, expressed interest in the 5'7" 135-pound outfielder. Stringfellow talked with Nickles, who returned the interest, but nothing definite has been decided by either concerned party.

Nickles, battling a slump, kept his usually sound plate discipline, drawing three walks in as many plate appearances, scoring one run while picking up a stolen base.

The Donnie Daniels coached baseball player didn't impress anyone at the plate. He didn't get an opportunity to, but his fellow Floyd county teammate did. Newsome, in nine plate appearances, banded out five hits, drove in six runs, and scored two runs himself.

"I was really impressed with Bud," said Chris Maxwell. "His glove is one of the best I've seen this year. I didn't know much about him before we started. I had him hitting seventh in the order, and here he comes up with two big hits."

Those two hits came Friday night when Newsome collected three of his five RBIs. With two out and Paul Little, Paris High School, on third, Newsome singled, scoring Little and tying the game. Newsome later came around to score on an error.

In the fifth inning, the former Bobcat once again came to the plate with men in scoring position, and once again he delivered. Newsome's one-out single drove home Little, and Rick Norton, of Henry Clay.

Not only did Bud Newsome provide an impressive showing for himself, he also led the East squad to a 7-4 opening game victory over the West.

In the East's 6-4 second game loss, Newsome drove in another run with a sixth inning flyball that scored Henry Clay's Rick Holt.

Providing offensive services as a designated hitter, Newsome led the East to a 15-6 rubber game victory. The former Betsy Layne first baseman-pitcher collected three hits while scoring a run in the fourth inning, and plating two more with a fifth inning single.

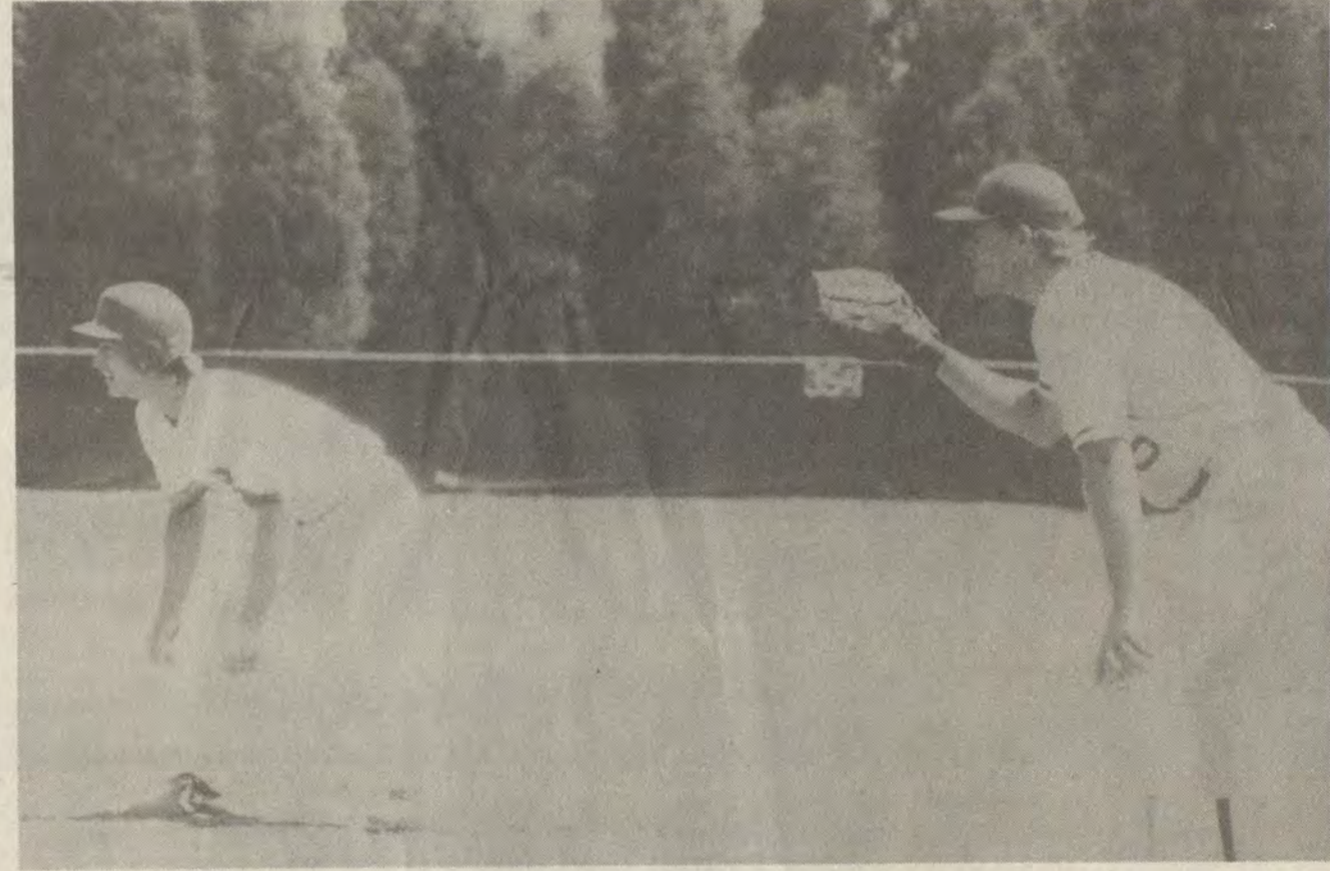

Defensively, where Newsome impressed Maxwell the most, the 5'11" 165-pound diamond star made seven putouts in as many opportunities, all of which came in Friday night's first game.

Although BJ Newsome, Bud's father, says he hasn't firmly committed, the younger Newsome is expected to continue his baseball career and education at Georgetown College.

Coach Stringfellow says Newsome has a solid opportunity to be an immediate starter. If not, Stringfellow says Bud Newsome will at least see considerable playing time.

The East-West All-Star series was designed to get the state's top baseball players together in hope that some players who have not yet been seen by interested college scouts, will be.

The series has been a reality for three years, and during the past two, players in Lexington and eastward own a 4-2 advantage in the six games that have been played.

TAKING A LEAD: Bud Newsome, a former Bobcat, takes his lead during all-star action in Elizabethtown, last weekend. Newsome collected a stolen base, and scored a run in Saturday's final contest.

Horne, Shelton, And Big Offense Leads Locals In Sweep Of Ashland

Roger Horne, in the first game, and Nathan Shelton, in the nightcap, provided complete game performances on the mound as Floyd County swept Ashland in a senior Babe Ruth doubleheader at Ashland, Sunday afternoon.

Horne, a former Allen Central player, struck out nine Ashland hitters in earning his first victory of the summer, 6-3.

The 6'2" righthander gave up seven hits in his seven innings of work while surrendering only two earned runs. Horne, 1-0, also had two hits, and an RBI offensively.

Floyd County, 2-1 with the doubleheader sweep, spotted Horne to a 4-0 early lead. Although those four runs proved to be enough, the situation didn't look exactly perfect in the bottom of the third.

After Floyd county took a 4-0 lead in the top of the third, Ashland rallied with three of their own, one unearned, in the bottom half of the third inning.

But Horne then straightened, giving up only three hits in the final four innings.

Ashland managed only one other scoring threat. In the fifth inning, Jeff Cavin led off with a single but when Cavin tried to score on a Ted Hall flyball, Johnny Ray Harris nailed the Ashland pinch-hitter at the plate.

In the sixth inning, Ashland once again had their leadoff hitter on, this time at second with a double, but Horne then retired the next three hitters before slamming the door in the final frame.

Floyd County did their damage offensively in the third and fifth innings. With two out in the third frame, Brian Hall plated the first FC run, scoring Jeff Crisp, who had earlier singled."

Horne then doubled in Kelly Nickles, and Brad Hall capped off the four-run inning with a single that scored both Brian Hall and Roger Horne.

Horne, two for four at the plate, got Floyd County rolling at the plate again, leading off the fifth inning with a double. The Floyd County pitcher-shortstop scored on an error. Brad Hall, also two for four at the plate, singled and later scored on a Thomas Hall sacrifice fly.

In the 6-4 first game win, Floyd County banged out a total of nine hits of Ashland starter and loser Vanhorn.

Nathan Shelton, another Allen Central product, continued to provide Floyd County with solid pitching, giving up eight hits and three runs in his seven innings of work.

Not overpowering by any stretch of the imagination, Shelton kept Ashland hitters off balance with his usual array of off speed-breaking pitches, and a consistently improving fastball.

Control, another Nathan Shelton trademark, was also an ally. The young lefthander walked only one hitter.

Through seven innings Shelton remained in command, with the exception of one pitch. With a runner on first, Shelton apparently gave Ashland clean-up hitter Mike Johnson what he wanted. Johnson drilled the mistake over the 340 sign in left centerfield, putting Ashland up 2-0 in the fourth inning.

Floyd County, managing only one hit through the first four innings, then measured Ashland's starting pitcher Jeff Cavin.

In the fifth inning the locals tallied seven runs on four hits and four walks to put Floyd County and Shelton up 7-2.

Shelton led the successful scoring frame off with a walk and scored when Johnny Ray Harris doubled. Following a Kelly Nickles walk, his fourth of the day, Brian Hall and Roger Horne collected back-to-back RBI singles.

Brad Hall walked to load the bases, and Floyd County received a gift run when reliever Mike Johnson walked Darrin Conn to force in a run.

With the bases loaded, Tony Kidd and John Crisp each collected RBIs with fly outs to center field. Floyd County plated two more runs in the following inning when Kelly Nickles singled and scored on a Roger Horne double, and Brian Hall singled, later crossing home plate on an error.

Ashland added a run to their total in the sixth inning, but could get no closer than the final 9-3 final. In the nightcap, Floyd County banged out nine hits with Brian Hall, Johnny Ray Harris, and Roger Horne collecting two each.

Shelton, 1-1 in summer action, worked the full seven innings to earn the victory.

Floyd County will be back in action tonight with a doubleheader in Morehead. Nathan Shelton is expected to get the nod for the locals in the first game, with Mark Tipton is slated as the starter in the second game.

Game time is set for 6 at City Park in Morehead.

In Baseball All-Star Series...

East Takes Two Of Three From West

Through the rain and fog they appeared. Like a band of integrated Indian warriors, they had gathered in the East, and came West in search of dominance.

From East Carter to Cumberland, from Henry Clay to Betsy Layne, the top baseball warriors from eastern Kentucky had descended upon Elizabethtown for their first war Friday.

Commanded by Dixie Heights top baseball boss Chris Maxwell, the East exploded with a powerful offensive attack that tore down West defenses.

Although time for a battle plan was drastically curtailed by rainy weather, the East was armed heavily with big guns to be used in both offensive movements, and defensive counter attacks.

Friday night two separate battles were set to be waged, but the East company made the first one over soon, and the weather stopped the second one short.

The West mounted an offensive early, injuring East with an opening frame tally. A regular East Hardin High School diamond fighter did damage with a double, then came home safely when Lee Tinsley, already recruited by the big scouts, repeated the feat.

Led by Bill Cofer, no stranger to ammunition as he coached Bullitt Central in their regular battles the West found another hole in the East defense, adding an unearned score in the third.

Meanwhile Cofer had rolled his big gun upon the hill, and T.J. Skaggs, East Hardin, mowed down his opposition in rapid fire succession. Armed with a fast ammo, and a mixture of dipping bullets, Skaggs surrendered only one run.

In the second, East hitmen reached Skaggs for a Rick Norton, Henry Clay, two-bagger followed by a scoring blast off the potent bat of Raceland warrior Rusty Cerniglia.

Cofer then decided to switch guns on the hill, bringing on Brian Wethington in hopes that the Apollo righthander could hold the enemy from the East at bay.

This didn't work out. Confer's battle plan fell through, and with it went any hopes the West had of coming out on top of the first battle.

The East rocked Wethington in the fourth. With two free passers, and two single blasts the East dealt the death blow, scoring four runs. The West also played a part in their own destruction, committing an error that allowed two East men to advance home safely.

The East once again came out blasting in the sixth, slashing and driving their way to three more tallies on four single shots.

Down and apparently out, the West could never mount another offensive, especially when Maxwell sent his top cannon to the hill. Paul Little, a Paris gun, surrendered an incredible long ball blast to Emmet Ramer, Trinity, then stiffened to mow down hitters over the fifth and sixth innings. Ramer's shot came in the fourth frame.

Eric Meeks, Simon-Kenton, replaced Little as the East's main defensive protector, and when their first line of defense turned a six to three twin killing, Meeks' fellow fighters secured a first battle victory, 6-3.

After a short rest, and some shared words of advice, the two combatants returned to the battlefield for their second of three contests.

But the East suffered from several holes in their defense, committing six errors, which allowed the West to pull out a 6-4 victory.

Three errors, and two single blasts produced three runs for the West in the second inning. Now holding a 3-2 advantage the West did more damage with a lone run in the third, an unearned blow, and added two more scores in fifth, both coming due to weak defense.

Injured, but not beaten, the East rallied by finding the West's defensive weakspots. Trailing 6-2, the East tallied in the sixth, and seventh innings.

Before the East could get their big offensive guns booming, the West had done severe damage, but that came Friday night.

In the top of the fifth frame of the second battle, flashing lights and thunderous roars announced the rapid approach of worse problems for both sides. All persons included decided to call a halt to action, and each side retreated to their respective hideouts.

Saturday arrived, and with it came blue skies, and hot temperatures, perfect conditions for the continuation of the war's second battle.

"We're not looking very good right now," said Commander Maxwell. "Neither are they, and it's kind of embarrassing, but I think we'll see better performances from both sides."

Maxwell's men from the East did mount an impressive bid for a comeback, but then ran themselves out of a possible second contest win.

After pulling back into contention with a tally in the sixth, the East saw two of their men gunned down at third. Rusty Cerniglia became the first East casualty, nailed when trying to go from first to third on a shot to left.

With Chris Nickles scoring on the effort, the East had moved to within two of their West foes. Later, though, Frank Jacobs, a Newport Central Catholic monster warrior at 6'5", 225, was cut down at third. Jacobs was caught trying to steal, gunned down to end the East's chances.

The final battle would settle the overall war's outcome, and the East eventually proved what Maxwell had been saying, they had the most fire power.

"I've been impressed with the talent," Maxwell stated. "Overall I think we have the most talent, but I haven't seen everyone play, and in a three-game series talent is hard to judge."

Maxwell's talented troops went to war in the final and decisive affair, ripping the West apart 15-6.

Although falling behind 5-1, the East delivered the death blow with a killer eight-run fourth inning. Led by designated hit man Bud Newsome's three single shots, the East banged out 15 hits which proved too much for the West to stand up against.

In the long fourth inning, the East sent 13 men into battle, with eight returning home safely. They added three in the fifth, two in the seventh, and one in the ninth to capture the war two battles to the West's one.

In the three-contest affair, the East scored a total of 26 runs on 30 hits while the West could never mount an equal offensive attack, scoring only 15 times on 18 hits. The only hole in the East's total battle plan was their six miscues in the field during their middle battle.

Although winning may not be a necessity, pride plays a part, and the East continued to hold bragging rights, taking the series 2-1, as they did one year ago.

Maxwell says the important thing is for his troops to attract scouts in higher ranks.

"One of the main things is to get the top players from across the state together, bring them to one spot, and let them play. Hopefully some college scouts will be here, and the ones who are unsigned will get another opportunity to be seen."

DEFENSIVE SPECIALIST: Allen Central product Kelly Nickles (center) watches as his East teammates file onto the field. Nickles sparked in center, making what East coach Chris Maxwell called the defensive play of the series.

The Sporting Times

It's starting to drizzle, but weather forecasters say the rain is supposed to diminish this afternoon.

I would surely hate to drive 200 miles in vain. Then I ask myself; is it worth it anyway?

Sure, it is. My boys are taking yet another step forward down the path of fulfilling their baseball dreams.

Bud Newsome and Kelly Nickles have been named to represent the eastern part of Kentucky in an East-West, three-game all-star series in Elizabethtown. The least I can do is be there, and bring the results back home.

With this in mind, we set out for the west, in search of great baseball, but uncertain of what awaits in between.

Rain rapidly became an intensified and undesired problem. Water came down faster than my wipers could slap it away.

The sign read 16 miles to Lexington. It was only 1 p.m., but the darkness that engulfed us told a different tale, a tale much later, more comparable to late evening rather than early afternoon.

Vision was drastically reduced. Rain was coming down in sheets, and playing baseball on this day looked as bleak as the darkened cloud cover above.

Turning back was now an alternative I seriously considered, but we were halfway toward our destination. Returning to our starting point would be to give up totally.

Being an optimist's optimist, I continued on. Riding the storm out, as the song says, and searching for a weather break of the slightest kind.

Lexington nine miles, the sign read. Big towns intimidate me. Even more so when rain is pouring, and everyone on the road, except me, seems to be in a state of rush.

Somebody is going to get a ticket, I thought aloud. Stupid me. I've been in the mountains too long. The speed limit is 65 on this road here.

Oh well, I'm in no hurry to wind my way around Lexington, or at least attempt it.

Although I've been here for only a few minutes, I've already learned something; AM radio in central Kentucky takes a back seat to the quality we have in Prestonsburg.

A country song would calm my nerves, and provide some entertainment during this tense moment. Where is the Cousin when you need him most? Yea, I know, we left him many minutes and miles ago.

Through the relentless, driving rain I see what I've been looking for; a sign pointing the way to the Bluegrass Parkway. The signs should be easy to follow, but is it all for nothing? The rain is still pouring, and it will probably wash away tonight's doubleheader, even if we can find our correct way through to it.

Half an hour and several miles later. I find myself growing tired of BG. Signs bearing the letters have been more than numerous, and Night Favor is playing on the radio.

Water continues to fall from the sky, but now I have more than a rain out to worry about. My gas hand is pointing east, and I'm headed west with no stations in sight.

When we finally find one, the prices are ridiculous. A $1.14 isn't a fair price, but just like a man trapped, I have to pay the price.

What could happen now? As quickly as this thought came, it went. I remembered those people who were forced to change a flat back on 64. I also remembered those other people who were parked under a bridge. Like it was for a baseball game, this was a bad day for a motorcycle ride.

This has been a terrible day, but up ahead in the distance I see a glimmer of hope. The sky is less dark. The rain has stopped, and just maybe it hasn't rained in Elizabethtown.

Maybe I haven't wasted the paper's money. Maybe, just maybe I haven't made a 200-mile trip for nothing.

With great anticipation I take the first E-town exit. Where is the baseball field? I remember it being down this way. Oh, no! We're lost!

Well, when in doubt keep pushin' on. That's another song.

There it is! Ponthor Baseball Field is beautiful, but most importantly, it's dry. Not giving up was a good idea. The doubleheader will be played tonight, and thanks to my stubborn optimism we are here to cover the proceedings.

I like it here. The land is beautiful, gas prices are cheaper, and the best baseball players in this state are on hand for fans' viewing pleasure.

But something is missing. I know what it is. They don't have hills down here. I feel sorry for these people. Hills are a symbol of power and representatives of conquered obstacles.

The trip was worth it. Kelly Nickles and Bud Newsome were admirable representatives of Floyd County baseball, but now I'm ready to go home.

You can take the boy out of the mountains, but you can't keep him very long. I don't like land spreading out for and wide. Keep Lexington and Louisville. Just give me that mountainside. Eastern Kentucky is where I'd rather stay. And I'll be here forever and a day.

Bassin' With the Pros... Wreaking Havoc With Rapalas

One of the best top water lures to use in spawn, post-spawn and pre-spawn periods is the Original Floating Rapala, the bait discovered and manufactured by Lauri Rapala of Finland, and which has become known as "The Lure That Fish Can't Pass Up."

According to David Wharton, Johnson Outboards Pro Staff member, "Rapalas or that type of bait is probably the first top water bait the bass will hit in spring. It's an excellent bait. You can control the speed and wiggle of Rapalas and that type of lure by the presentation of it."

"The water temperature has a lot to do with the top water bait you throw," Wharton continues. "A quiet top water bait—a Rogue, Red Fin or Rapala-type bait is real quiet and easy moving—that's usually one of the first ones the bass will hit in the springtime."

"Later on in the year, as the water begins to warm and the fish begin to get more active, the bass react to a top water bait that makes more noise such as the buzz, a slush bait (with propellers on both ends) or chugger-type bait."

In the Normark Rapala Fisherman's Catalog, bass sportsman Roland Martin is cited for using the Original Floating Rapala in the spawning and summer periods. His choice is a silver No. 11 which he ties to 10 or 12 pound test line. He casts the lure right on top of the nest and teases the bass to hit it.

For David Wharton, his choices for a top water lure like the Rapala depends on the water clarity.

"Depending on the clarity of the water, a chrome with a black back in water that is clear (of course, 'clear' is a relative term) would be my choice. Gold with a black back is another basic color, and probably one of the best all-around colors you can throw in a Rapala-type bait."

Reds Watch '87

Cincinnati Gets Help From SD To Regain Hold On First Place

The Cincinnati Reds were a team in trouble, having lost their last four games, and a first place position in the National League's Western Division.

The San Diego Padres have one of the worst records in all of baseball. The two teams are on different ends of the baseball spectrum, but this weekend they shared in achieving a common result.

A repeat of a repeating record proved to be the Reds' initial fall from king of the hill in the NL West. Pitching, or lack of it, led to four consecutive Cincinnati losses, and as a result the Reds found themselves in a tie with San Francisco for the divisional lead.

On the heels of two straight home losses to the Giants, Cincinnati fell victim to Atlanta, Thursday night. San Francisco came through with a win, and as a result tied with the Reds.

After Thursday's loss to the Braves, Cincinnati sent starter Tom Browning down to Nashville, and re-called reliever Bill Scherrer, a lefthander who saw big league action a couple of years ago.

Friday night, Atlanta once again beat the Reds, and once again sent a Cincinnati pitcher packing. Jerry Reuss, purchased off the waiver block, dropped his record to 0-5, and as a result was released from his second 1987 team.

Replacing Reuss on the roster was Bill Landrum, another reliever. Landrum worked out of the Reds' bullpen earlier this year, and is expected to fill Guy Hoffman's middle relief role.

Hoffman moved into the starting rotation Saturday night against the Braves, and may have earned a permanent spot there.

Making his first start since April 20, Hoffman worked six innings to record a victory, striking out seven while walking two. The Reds' lefthander surrendered only one run on two hits.

On the strength of Hoffman's efforts, the Reds broke their seven-game losing streak, winning the contest 5-2. Buddy Bell drilled his fourth homerun of the season, a two-run shot in the fourth, and Kal Daniels hit his 15th long ball of the year, a solo shot in the fifth, to lead Cincinnati offensively.

Hoffman's success was the big story for the Reds, especially when the pitching situation had gone from critical to almost hopeless. In their four losses the mound staff had given up 29 runs, which adds up to over seven runs per outing.

Hoffman's arrival Saturday night was a key outing, but Cincinnati also received a boost from San Diego. While Hoffman was taking care of business in Cincinnati, the Padres were doing the same on the coast, beating San Francisco.

With the lift from the Western Division's cellar dweller, the Reds moved back on top of the heap in the west.

San Diego did the same Sunday, beating the Giants, 4-1, and Cincinnati kept up their end of the bargain by beating the Braves, 4-3.

Being lucky is sometimes as important as being good, and with Sunday's good fortune the Reds found themselves leading San Francisco by two full games, a needed lift before traveling to the dreaded Astrodome where Houston awaited.

While Cincinnati was busy playing and keeping an eye on each other, the Astros have been winning baseball games in consistent fashion.

Going into Houston Monday night, the Reds led Houston by only two and a half games. With their ace, and last year's Cy Young winner, Mike Scott, going to the hill, the Astros were in a comfortable position.

Cincinnati didn't do much to disrupt that position.

Missed opportunities, and a wicked Scott performance did in the Reds, as Houston captured a shutout victory.

In the first inning, Tracy Jones, hitting over .360, led the game off with an infield single, stole second, advanced to third on a Kurt Stillwell ground out, but died there as Kal Daniels struck out, and one batter later Buddy Bell did the same.

Cincinnati had yet another golden scoring opportunity in the fourth, but once again Scott whiffed it away.

Terry Francona doubled with one out and advanced to third on a Bo Diaz single, but both were left there when Ron Oester, and Bill Gullickson struck out back to back.

Houston second baseman Bill Doran finally broke the scoring ice for both sides, slamming a solo homerun in the sixth inning, which proved to be the winning run as the Astros beat Cincinnati 4-0.

Bill Gullickson, 7-4, suffered the loss after working six innings, but giving up only one run.

The usually strong Reds' bullpen suffered a letdown with a new cast. With Guy Hoffman and Rob Robinson now in the starting rotation, Pete Rose's relievers are having trouble getting hitters out.

Although Gullickson, the man Cincinnati looks to as their stopper, enjoyed an impressive outing, Mike Scott was more impressive.

Scott, 8-3, struck out 14 Reds' hitters in eight innings before Dave Smith came on in the ninth inning to strike out the side.

With the win, Houston moved to within one and a half games of Cincinnati.

The Reds and Astros will hook up tonight with Ron Robinson going to the hill for Cincinnati while Nolan Ryan, trying to re-claim his league leading strike out total, is scheduled to pitch for Houston.

After tonight's contest, the Reds will travel to Atlanta for a four-game series starting Thursday night.

In the past three games Cincinnati pitchers gave up only seven earned runs, but now their bullpen looks to be as weak as their starting rotation was before the recent strategic moves. Robinson and Hoffman aren't available, and Scherrer and Landrum are yet to have effective outings.

Look for a major deal to be made soon as Cincinnati exercises the trade route to good pitching.

Floyd County Drops First Game, Ties Second Against Knott Co.

Knott County managed to get only three Nathan Shelton pitches out of the infield, but still handed Floyd County a 3-2 defeat in senior Babe Ruth action, last Wednesday.

Shelton, the starting pitcher for Floyd County, surrendered only three hits through five innings, while striking out two and walking four.

The 16-year-old southpaw may have pitched well enough to win, but in that final frame, his defense, which had been perfect up until the fifth inning, suffered a letdown.

With the score tied a 2-2, Knott County's leadoff hitter in the bottom of the fifth reached safely on an error. After a walk, a popup, and an intentional walk, Neal Caudill reached Shelton for a single, driving in the winning run.

Caudill, Knott County's rightfielder, collected his second hit of the game, and his second RBI, the final one, proved to be the game winner.

Floyd County had a lead early when Roger Horne singled in Kelly Nickles in the first inning. Shelton protected that one-run advantage until the third inning when Knott County scored two runs on two hits to take their first lead of the contest.

Not until the fifth inning could the local senior Babe Ruth squad cross the plate again. With two out, pinch-hitter Tony Kidd walked, and scored on a Johnny Ray Harris triple. Kelly Nickles and Brian Hall followed with free passes to lead the bases, but with two out Roger Horne drilled a ground ball down the third base line, but Jim Couch, Knott County third baseman, gloved the hot grounder and stepped on third to silence the Floyd County rally.

Shelton, 0-1 this summer, took the loss in Floyd County's season opener, while Waylon Estep earned the Knott County win, working five innings. Estep surrendered two runs on four hits while striking out nine and walking four.

Floyd County stranded five runners on base in that first game loss, a factor that eventually led to a loss in their first game of the season.

Hits, especially the big two-out ones with runners on base, proved to be a rare commodity for Floyd County in the first game loss, but in the nightcap the big bats began to make noise.

After Knott County reached starter Mark Tipton for four hits and eight runs, five earned, in the opening inning, Floyd County began to show their expected strong offensive ability.

Floyd County reached Neal Caudill for a lone run in the second frame when Johnny Ray Harris singled in Jeff Crisp, who had walked and stole second.

Brad Hall had earlier opened the visitors half of the inning with a double, but was erased when Thomas Hall drilled a line drive that was flagged down by Knott County shortstop Mark Stone. Stone easily threw on to second to double up Brad Hall.

In the fourth inning Floyd County rallied for seven runs, four of which came on Roger Horne's grand slam.

With one out in the top of the fourth, Mark Tipton walked, followed by back-to-back free passes to Harris and Kelly Nickles.

Brian Hall was then hit by a Neal Caudill pitch, scoring Tipton. Then up came Horne, who promptly lined a fast ball into the leftfield creek, making the score 8-6.

Floyd County's offensive binge wasn't over either.

With two out in the inning Brad Hall, a Bobcat during the high school season, singled, followed by a Thomas Hall single. Jeff Crisp walked to load the bases, and pitcher Mark Tipton took himself off the hook with a two RBI single that tied the contest.

Tipton, who stood as the Floyd County losing pitcher, gave himself, and his team new life with the clutch two-out hit.

While Floyd County was busy scoring runs in bunches, Tipton was taking care of business on the mound. Although the initial inning was a rocky one, the 16-year-old righthander collected himself, pitching shutout baseball over the final three innings.

With Floyd County hitting in the top of the fifth and final inning, the game was called due to darkness.

Floyd County had two runners on, Kelly Nickles at second and Darrin Conn on first, but the umpires decided the circumstances were not favorable to continue.

Kentucky Afield...

Spring Turkey Harvest Up By 24 Percent Over Last Season

By NORM MINCH

Ky. Dept. of Fish and Wildlife Resources

A total of 683 gobblers were taken statewide during the 1987 spring turkey season, marking another record year for harvesting turkeys in Kentucky.

This season's total shows an increase of 24 percent from the 553 gobblers harvested during the 1986 season, an obvious sign that the turkey restoration program begun in 1978 by the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources is continuing to pay off.

The top counties this year were Christian with 65 birds taken, Harlan with 51 and Letcher with 41. Butler, Hopkins and Nelson counties each reported 20 turkeys harvested. Land Between The Lakes reported 296 birds taken in the Kentucky portion, which also was a record harvest. This is the first season that any single county has reported a season harvest of over 50 birds.

Prior to the start of the turkey restoration program, only 36 turkeys were taken during the 1977 season, when the estimated statewide flock was about 2,000 turkeys. Ten years later, with the aid of an intensive management program, the current statewide turkey population is approximately 15,500 birds and growing.

According to George Wright, turkey program coordinator, over 1,500 live-trapped wild turkeys have been released across Kentucky in the past ten years. About 250 of these birds were stocked in 15 new areas in 1987, while four other areas received stocking to complete releases begun last year.

Counties receiving supplemental stockings in 1987 were Bell, Clinton, Magoffin and Taylor. Newly stocked counties were Harrison, Henry, Hart, Hardin, Carroll, Gallatin, Marshall, McCracken, Graves, Cumberland, Knox and Whitley. Hart, Hardin and McCracken counties received turkey stockings in two suitable areas within each county. "Suitable areas" at this time are those with approximately 20,000 acres or more of good turkey habitat.

Wright said the restoration program is expected to continue for the next 10-15 years to improve turkey populations further. However, he stressed that illegal hunting continues to be a problem and is affecting efforts in several areas.

"Illegal losses of hens during the spring 'gobbler only' hunts can and does significantly slow down population increases," said Wright.

"Hunting out of season, in closed areas, over baited fields and the incidental taking of turkeys by hunters seeking other game is having a major impact on turkey populations in some areas," the biologist added.

The game reverted back to the final completed inning, which was the fourth, and as a result the game was considered a tie.

Although Floyd County lost one, and could only manage to finish even in the second game, senior Babe Ruth baseball enjoyed success in their initial game, playing Knott County, and equally established program.

Led by Roger Horne's four for six performance at the plate, Floyd County out hit Knott County, 14-8, but fell short where it counted, in the run department.

Horne drove in five runs during the double header, while Brad Hall banded out three hits in five plate appearances.

Fifteen Earn GED at Pike College

"It has given me pride in myself," reported Betty Meade, of Nelse, referring to a certificate she received during 'graduation' ceremonies June 8 in Chrisman Auditorium. Meade was one of 15 people receiving high school equivalency certificates at the first GED Recognition Ceremony held at Pikeville College. "Now," continued Meade, "when I go to find a job and they ask if I have finished the GED, I can say, 'Yes, I have.'"

According to Susan Beard, coordinator of the Pikeville College Continuing Education Program, a sponsor of the GED classes, "We're proud of these students. Because they have been out of school and have had actual life experiences they are more motivated to achieve academic success." She continued, "They put forth so much effort in achieving this goal, we felt they deserved recognition for their hard work."

Meade's determination to complete high school requirements is representative of the entire class of 70 students taking GED classes offered by the CE Office. These classes have been taught by Carol Cole for the last eight years.

Ronald Taylor, of Tram, also received his GED.

MARQUEE

THE UNTOUCHABLES (R-Paramount) Starring Charles Martin Smith, Kevin Costner, Sean Connery, Andy Garcia. ★ ★ ★ ½

By J.T. YURKO

"The Untouchables" includes a litany of familiar and legendary names - such as Eliot Ness and Al Capone. This current re-working of the tale is no less formidable in its credit list. The film is directed by Brian De Palma, is written by David Mamet and stars Kevin Costner, Sean Connery and Robert DeNiro.

With these credits, it's no wonder that this is no ordinary cops-and-robbers film. Mamet, in fact, goes out of his way to elegize, humanize and finally mythologize the participants: at least that was his intention. But the clash between Mamet's mythologizing and De Palma's all-too-humanizing touch divides the film - and a great concept is tossed away in an excess of violence and movie references.

De Palma's heavy-handed violence has been evident in films such as "Carrie" and "Scarface," but here he tears out all the stops. While Mamet is interested in the men, their duties, their wives, their lives and their sense of right and wrong, De Palma seems interested only in blowing them away.

Strangely, much of it works, even if the film's power derives in part from a purely visceral reaction to the carnage. And the force of Sean Connery, who plays the streetwise cop Jimmy Malone breaking in the younger Ness, and Robert DeNiro, who gained considerable weight to play the cherubic but nearly pathological Al Capone, is formidable.

De Palma cannot resist stealing from other films, and here he borrows one of the most famous sequences of all time, the "Odessa Steps" sequence from Sergei Eisenstein's "The Battleship Potemkin." He makes the most of it, but one wishes he would come up with something original.

This and other borrowed scenes rob the film of its inherent power and force us into becoming observers when we could be participants. For Mamet, "The Untouchables" are mythical figures of violent times. To De Palma they are playthings.

IN THIS WEEK

Tom Poston has had more than his fair share of hits

By Lynn Hoogenboom

According to Tom Poston, none of the regulars on "The Steve Allen Show," which aired from 1956 through 1961, considered themselves groundbreakers. One thing, however, was obvious. "You can't miss that excitement of a hit show," says Poston. "And although we weren't recipients of it - it was Steve Allen's show and he was the star - we got our reflected stuff. It was terrific."

Tom Poston

Poston also got a 1959 Emmy for Best Supporting Actor. "Well, that was for all of us guys," says Poston. "I just accepted it for everyone. I didn't ever feel that it was just mine."

Poston, 65, has learned a lot more about hits since then. He later played the crotchety neighbor on "Mork & Mindy" (1978-82) and now plays handyman George Utley on "Newhart," which airs Mondays on CBS.

"When I think of the shows that I've done - Steve Allen, Robin Williams. And now Bob Newhart. When Bob gets going and departs from the script, the audience is beside itself. He doesn't do it all the time - he takes it seriously - but usually, something will slip out."

Even the cast has a hard time maintaining a professional demeanor when Newhart gets going. "The look on his face when he's lying and trying to get out of something," says Poston. "He makes me laugh. He almost ruined a scene once because Mary Frann couldn't stop laughing. He was just doing his thing, and poor Mary was playing straight. I'm not even in the scene, and I'm laughing uncontrollably off stage. How they ever got it on film, I don't know. I think he eased up and didn't blink that one extra time."

Poston also spent 10 years as a panelist on "To Tell the Truth." "I thought that was the best," he says. "It used some brains and the audience at home didn't know any more than the panelists. I used to get the right one based on Don Ameche's questions - and he wouldn't. He was like Mr. District Attorney. He would ask the questions like they were guilty of something."

Poston doesn't know what's in store for George Utley. "I want him to teach at Dartmouth," says Poston. "They just laugh, but there must be something he can teach at Dartmouth. And then, as you know, I'm a teen idol and have been for decades. I'd like to see them capitalize on that. I want to take my shirt off, but no chance. 'Vermont Vice' would go, I think."

Edie McClurg has done a little bit of everything

By Wendy Wallace

Edie McClurg has been a familiar face on television for some time. These days she plays Mrs. Poole, Valerie's nosy, but bubbly next-door neighbor on "Valerie," the NBC Monday-night series.

Edie McClurg

Previous TV roles have included being a regular sketch comedian on several variety shows, Wilmae Jones on "Harper Valley, P.T.A.," and a recurring role as the wife of Herb Tarlek, the advertising salesman on "WKRP in Cincinnati."

She also has had movie roles in "Carrie," "Back to School," "Mr. Mom" and "Ferris Bueller's Day Off." When she's asked how long she has been in the business, she'll reply, "If you can figure out the first thing I did, that's how long I've been working."

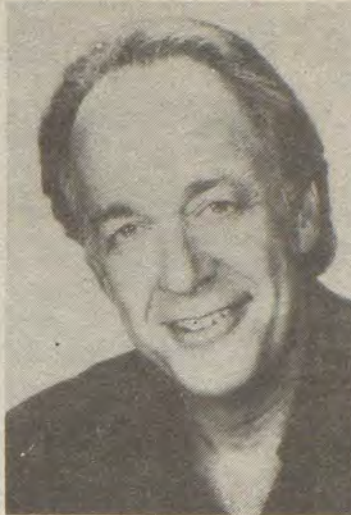

McClurg started off as a production assistant at a small radio station in Kansas City, Mo. There she learned to develop characters for her radio work. She knew she was heading in the right direction when one commercial that she produced and starred in won second place in a National Public Radio competition. "I didn't become an actress until I was in my late 20s," she says. "At the radio station, I worked my way up from operations manager to producing shows."

Before filming starts for the new season of "Valerie," McClurg is filming "Driver's Ed," an upcoming NBC movie about a group of mischievous students enrolled in a summer driver's education class. She plays the mother of a student played by Alyssa Milano of "Who's the Boss?" She'll also appear in a theatrical film, "She's Having a Baby," set for a fall release.

"I love doing everything," she says. "I've done voice-overs. I've done comedy and drama. I won't allow myself to be put in any category. Just give me the right time and condition and I'll be there. Every situation in working is an opportunity."

"I get a lot of exposure from television," she adds. "I was once approached and told, 'You're the funniest thing in the world.' I said to myself, 'This is Hollywood and you have to expect that.' So every day is worth getting up for. You can't mess with your life. You either have a great day or you get out of the situation."

Magnuson, Wimbledon top this week in cable

By Marianne Meyer

It's not a week for big-bang premieres and glitzy events, but a talented performance artist will be taking a bow, and there's enough world-class tennis for the most avid buff. Here's a pick from four spots on the dial.

Ann Magnuson

CINEMAX - Some people call Ann Magnuson a performance artist; others say she's a comedian or an actress. Let's just call her a true new star in the not-to-be-categorized spirit of Lily Tomlin. Catch her on the "Cinemax Comedy Experiment: Ann Magnuson's Vandemonium" Tuesday, June 23, or Thursday, June 25. Fellow downtown artist Eric Bogosian and rock star Meat Loaf make guest appearances, but the show belongs to Magnuson's self-made cast of characters, like biker chick Sweet Pea and TV evangelist Polly Anne.
HBO - Tennis anyone? Sports fans had better stock up on munchies and brew as HBO heads over to England for nine days of exclusive midweek coverage of Wimbledon '87. Beginning Monday, June 22, viewers can catch the action as it happens each afternoon - or tune in for evening recaps of each day's competition with match results and updates. Best yet, you won't get bounced from the stadium for any cheers and boos you aim at the players!

THE DISNEY CHANNEL - It's the very last "Prairie Home Companion" ever - sort of. On Saturday, June 27, The Disney Channel offers an edition of Garrison Keillor's small-town tribute, which was taped in February and has never been seen on TV. And for those who shed a tear when Keillor said his goodbyes on "Prairie Home Companion" earlier this month, he'll be back again - sort of - when Disney repeats the entire series later this year.

MTV - Every year, the town of Montreux, Switzerland, is overrun with rock stars and pop fans as the Golden Rose Festival takes place. On Sunday, June 21, MTV presents six hours of highlights from the music-biz blast and tops off the evening with a special presentation of the IMMC Awards Show that concluded the festival. Among the artists to be featured are Cutting Crew, Crowded House and Boy George.

PCC Service Award Winner

By Joe Porter

It's a tradition at Prestonsburg Community College to give a Faculty Assembly Service Award each year to an outstanding member of the community for their contribution to the college. This year's recipient is Jim West, general manager of the Prestonsburg Holiday Inn.

Jim West, General Manager of the Holiday Inn, stands with his Faculty Assembly Service Award. The award was presented at the May graduation ceremony by Dr. Charles Robertson, Chairman of the Faculty Assembly.

The award is presented to someone not affiliated with the college, and according to Dr. Charles Robertson, chairman of the Faculty Assembly, the nominee is voted on by the faculty after nominations have been taken.

"He's been very helpful to provide students in our business classes with experience on how to operate a hotel," Robertson said of West.
West conducted tours of the Holiday Inn for marketing and economics classes and held question and answer sessions for students. During a tour, West would break the hotel's operation down into its four profit centers: the rooms, the restaurant, the banquet and meeting rooms, and the lounge. Then he would describe how each is managed. He might also talk with students about advertising or how to utilize the computer at the front desk or marketing.

Marketing, West said, is basically determining who your customers are, finding out what they want, and then delivering those products and services to them. He also stresses to the students the importance of providing first-class service. For example, if the Holiday Inn can't accommodate someone for a night they will call other lodges and motels in the area and find a room for them.

"It's interesting," West said of his work with the classes. "I like sharing information and talking with students. I enjoy working with the college."

Students often ask West what he is looking in prospective employees. "I tell them you've got to like people to work in this business," West said. "You've got to be a people-oriented person. That's what we're looking for. Someone with people skills, because that's difficult to teach."

Parents' Support Group Meets

The Support Group for Parents of Children with learning, emotional or physical handicaps, and staff who work with them met May 18, at Martin. The people attending talked about helping children with handicaps, whether they are unable to walk or talk, have serious behavior problems, or cannot see, hear or learn like other children, to be better able to do things on their own. Members also talked about how to best help our children become educated, trained, and to have a normal social life.

Several people at the meeting had heard Norb Ryan, a professional educator from Lexington who has cerebral palsy, speak about what his life was like growing up in a world of non-handicapped children. He believes it's very important to allow children to take risks, and make mistakes in order to grow. He explained that it is helpful for handicapped children to fall down sometimes in life. Mr. Ryan believes that's how they learn. Everyone agreed it is painful and scary for many parents of children with any kind of handicap to let their children move out into the world of school, playgrounds, and other places where they mix with children whom most of us call normal. Parents are worried sometimes that their children will be laughed at, ignored, or will not be safe.

The parents also talked about their concerns with what happens when their children grow to adulthood. They need a social life and often there is nothing for them. Also, they need apartments and homes where they can live with their friends, get married, and be helped however they need it with such things as shopping, laundry, housekeeping, taking care of their money, staying healthy, and other activities. The group will continue to discuss these large needs and concerns.

The next meeting of the support group will be at 6:30 p.m., Thursday, June 25, at Mountain Comprehensive Care Center's Clinic, Old Mormon Church, Martin, across the street from Our Lady of the Way Hospital.

Call Rita Conley or Eileen Schepers at 886-8572 by 4:30, Wednesday, if you will be bringing children to the meeting so care can be arranged. For information about the group, feel free to contact Rita, Eileen; Charlene Atkins, 358-9962; Diane Light, 377-1141; Betty and Harmon Leedy, 886-1723; Wanda Nelson, 874-9573; Brenda Vance, 587-1096; Chris or Audrey Gayheart, 587-1034; Perlene Cooke; Linda and Eugene Weathers, 886-1447.

Music, Dance, Crafts On Celebration Agenda

Whether it's quilting, clogging or the sound of Kentucky bluegrass that draws you to the 11th annual Appalachian Celebration, the down-home warmth that you receive at this weeklong event will make you want to stay.

Hosted by Morehead State University, June 21-27, the event is designed to emphasize the rich cultural heritage of the region through exhibits, demonstrations and workshops.

To kick-off the celebration, MSU's Department of Art will sponsor a reception and exhibit in the Claypool-Young Art Building on Sunday, June 21, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Along with the exhibit, there will be live music from mountain musicians.

Various bus tours will be offered during the week to local places of interests. Not only can visitors see Jesse Stuart's W-Hollow home in Greenup County and covered bridges in Fleming and Mason counties, but also tours will be given to Blue Licks Battlefield State park and the Natural Bridge/Red River Gorge Area. Pre-registration is required for all tours.

Music will play a major role in the festival with noon concerts daily featuring traditional groups on Camden-Carroll Library lawn. The McLain Family Band from Berea will be in concert, Thursday, June 25, at 7:30 p.m. in the Crager Room of Adron Doran University Center. A public dance will follow with the McLain Family Band providing the music. Wrapping up a week full of music will be an outdoor stage concert Saturday, June 27, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on the Laughlin Health Building Lawn.

As a finale to the numerous crafts exhibitions, demonstrations and workshops, an Arts and Crafts Market will display goods for sale from over 100 artisans. Wares from the Market will be on sale all day Saturday, June 27, in Laughlin.

The 11th Celebration will end with a dance in the Crager Room, ADUC, at 7:30 p.m. The dance will be hosted by national clogging champion Scotty McKee.

Additional information or registration may be obtained from Pete McNeill, Office of Regional Development Services, MSU, Morehead, Ky. 40351. Telephone: (606) 783-2077.

★ Cancer Hopeline

QUESTION: My teenage son has cancer. I take him to the clinic once a week to have his chemotherapy treatments. In the beginning he was getting sick right after the treatment. More recently he's been getting sick even before he receives the treatment. Have you ever heard of this problem? Is there anything I can do to help him?

ANSWER: The problem your son is experiencing is not uncommon for cancer patients. It is called "anticipatory nausea and vomiting" or "ANV." This problem results from anxiety about receiving treatments and the expectation of being sick afterward.

Some patients begin to feel ill from just thinking about their treatments. Other patients feel ill at the sight of places or things they associate with their treatments. For example, just the sight of the clinic or hospital, or riding a familiar route to the clinic week after week can induce nausea.

Patients have used a variety of methods to relieve this anxiety that you might try with your son. For example, he might find it helpful to lie down in a quiet place for 15 to 40 minutes before chemotherapy. Just before receiving the chemotherapy have him place a cool washcloth over his eyes. Making conversation with him can help to keep his mind occupied with other thoughts and thus relieves the feeling of nausea. Some patients have used stereo head sets with relaxing music to distract themselves. If he begins to feel ill on the way to treatment, try changing routes to the clinic once in awhile. If these methods are not helpful, your son's doctor might consider prescribing anti-nausea medications. In some cases, these medications can be taken before the drugs are given to help control nausea.

For more information on coping with chemotherapy treatments and a copy of the free booklet, "Chemotherapy and You: A Guide to Self-Help During Treatment," call the Cancer Information Service at 1-800-4-CANCER or write Cancer Information Service at McDowell Cancer Network, 800 Rose Street, Lexington, Ky. 40536. The Cancer Information Service is a program of the Kentucky Community Cancer Program.

David McPeck is the grandson of Alma McCoy and the late Dackie McCoy, of Bypro.

The bride-elect is a 1984 graduate of Westerville South. She is employed by Bob Caldwell Chrysler-Plymouth in Columbus, Ohio.

Mr. McPeck is a 1979 graduate of Watkins Memorial High School in Pataskala. He is assistant manager of Graceland Odd Lots in Columbus.

The wedding will be held July 18 at 8:30 p.m. at Grace Chapel in Westerville. A candlelight service will be performed by pastor Wayne Booth.

The couple plans to honeymoon in Myrtle Beach, S.C.

When Lightning's Near You Can Help Yourself

Lightning crashed throughout the farmland where the old, bewhiskered farmer hunkered down trying to shelter his grandson from the raging storm. "What can we do, Grandpa?" the young boy cried. "That lightning is going to get us!"

"Just pray, son," the older man replied. "That's about all we can do. If the lightning is going to get us, there's nothing we can do about it."

Most of us might feel that way if we were caught out in an electrical storm where crashes of lightning bolts seem to hit all around us, but according to Larry Piercy, Extension agricultural specialist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, there are some things you can do to maximize your chances.

"It's true," he said that lightning kills more Americans annually than tornadoes, hurricanes, or floods."

He added, "Since 1959 an average of 100 people have died each year and 250 have been injured as a result of lightning. While the danger of lightning cannot be ignored, you can minimize the risk of becoming part of these statistics by following these simple precautions."

If possible get inside a home or large building when a thunderstorm threatens, he said, and do not use the telephone. If that's not possible, get inside an all metal vehicle—but not a convertible. If you're in the field, a metal tractor with a cab will provide protection—but get away from tractors without a cab.

Do not stand underneath a natural lightning rod such as a tall, isolated tree in an open area.

Get out of and away from open water. Get out of and away from motorcycles, scooters, golf carts and bicycles.

Put down golf clubs. Stay away from wire fences, clotheslines, pipes and rails.

In a forest, seek shelter in a low area under a thick growth of small trees.

If you are hopelessly isolated in a level field or parking lot and you feel your hair stand on end, indicating lightning is about to strike nearby, drop to your knees and bend forward putting your hands on your knees. Do not lie flat on the ground.

"Practice, Practice" Could Be Bad Advice

Practice doesn't always make perfect. In fact, uncontrolled practice can cause "overuse syndrome," a painful tendon inflammation in the arms of musicians, says University of Louisville neurologist Jonathan Newmark.

Instrumental musicians are more likely to develop the syndrome when returning to a regular practice schedule after vacation, or when they practice intensely before a recital, Newmark said.

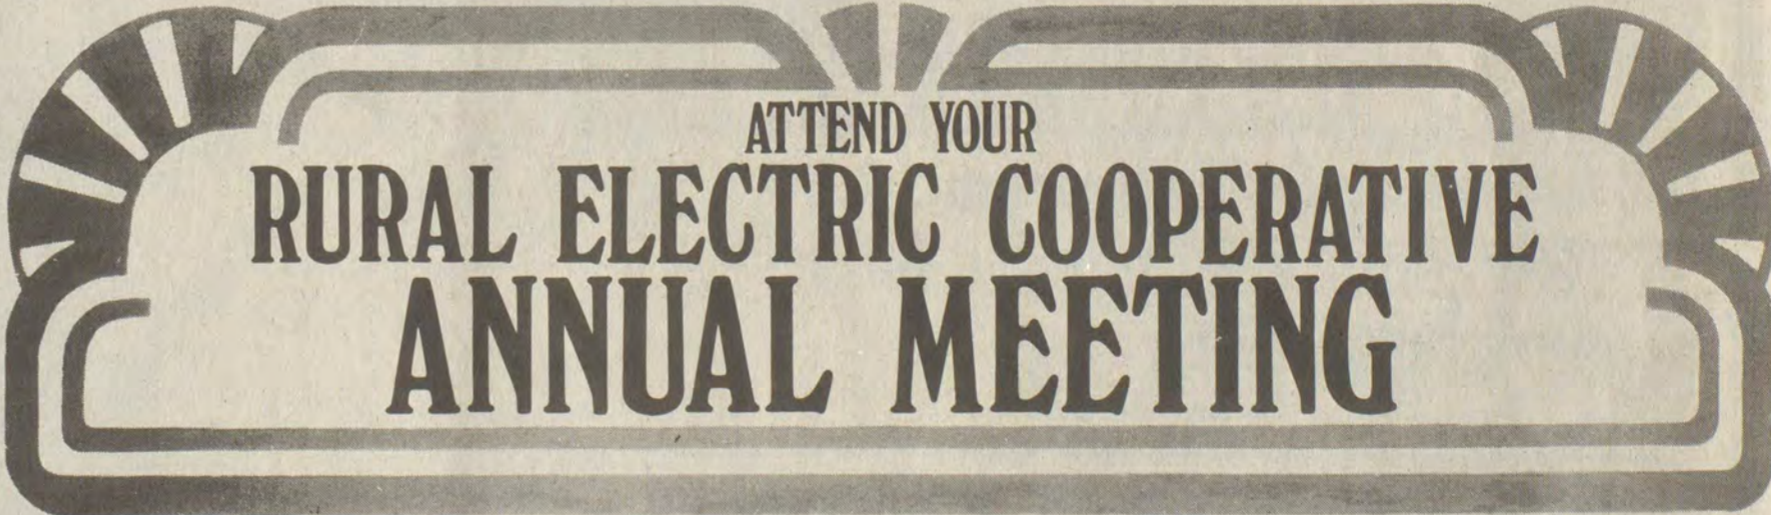

"In the past, some musicians have thought 'Oh good, it hurts. I must be getting somewhere,' but that isn't true. I tell my patients, 'If it hurts, don't do it.'"

Children May Suffer From "Don't Touch" Warnings

Have you hugged a child today? If you work at a kindergarten or day-care center, probably not. Recent court decisions about child abuse have made child-care workers wary of touching their young charges, according to Mary Ann Fowlkes, an early childhood specialist at the University of Louisville.

Studies have shown that physical nurturing, including hugging and cuddling, is essential to the healthy emotional development of children.

However, Fowlkes thinks people have overdone "don't touch" warnings in an effort to protect youngsters.

FLASH FLOOD threatened the Bank Josephine and a home in Allen, recently, following an afternoon thunderstorm. Members of Allen Volunteer Fire Department spent three hours pumping the excess water into nearby Beaver Creek.

Acid Rain:

Science Outpaces Politics

For years, opponents of acid rain controls have denied two claims made by conservationists: that acid rain causes widespread environmental damage and that the chief culprit is sulfur dioxide emissions from coal-fired power plants, smelters and factory boilers. Today, mounting scientific evidence is proving conservationists right on both points.

An article in the February/March issue of National Wildlife magazine reports on a plethora of scientific studies that document acid rain's extensive damage to the nation's lakes, forests and buildings and confirm a connection between smokestacks in the Midwest and acid rain in the Northeast. National Wildlife is a bimonthly publication of the National Wildlife Federation.

Recent studies by the Environmental Protection Agency reveal that more than 9,000 lakes in 15 eastern states and nearly 7,000 lakes in the West are sensitive to the continued deposition of airborne acids. Sensitive lakes have a limited ability to buffer or neutralize acid rain and are therefore subject to sudden shifts in acidity which can harm aquatic life.

Acidic pollution also has been identified as one of the probable causes of the decline in the nation's forests. On some northeastern mountains, more than half of the red spruce trees have died during the past 15 years.

The scars that acidic air pollution leaves on buildings, monuments and statues are even more obvious. A study conducted for EPA estimates that in 17 states east of the Mississippi, acid rain and the deposition of dry sulphate-containing particles are corroding buildings to the tune of $5 billion a year. The recent face-lift given the Statue of Liberty was necessitated in part by the acid corrosion of her copper skin.

Scientists also have assembled compelling evidence linking acid rain to sulfur dioxide emissions from smokestacks. Michael Oppenheimer, an atmospheric physicist at the Environmental Defense Fund, was among the first researchers to show the link. He compared the patterns of emissions from copper smelters in the Southwest to the concentration of sulfate falling in the Rockies 600 miles away. His finding: the sulfate levels closely mimicked the emissions patterns.

Oppenheimer's study, however, did not actually follow the emissions from tall smokestacks to mountain lakes. Atmospheric chemists Kenneth Rahn and Randall Borys of the University of Rhode Island firmly established the connection between smokestacks and dead lakes by "fingerprinting" air pollutants.

For 18 months in 1983 and 1984, the researchers took air samples at sites in the eastern United States, ran them through a vacuum pump and a cellulose filter. The particles collected on the filters were then made radioactive so the trapped chemical elements could be identified by their radio-emissions.

Rohn and Borys found that half the sulfate present in such Northeastern locations as Underhill, Vermont, originated in the Midwest and traveled East. The new evidence has piqued the public's interest in acid rain and created a new sense of urgency in solving the problem. A poll conducted last year for the National Wildlife Federation by Opinion Research Corp. found an overwhelming majority of Americans believe acid rain is a serious national problem that is not being adequately addressed by Congress or the Reagan Administration.

Acid rain, indeed, has risen in public consciousness since 1980, when a mere 30 percent of Americans indicated an awareness of acid rain and its effects. By 1985, nearly 94 percent were aware of the problem, according to pollster Louis Harris.

As public concern has mounted, the political winds have begun to shift. Last year, for instance, the Acid Deposition Control Act of 1986 became the first acid rain control measure ever approved by a House subcommittee. Although the bill languished in committee, it gained close to 170 cosponsors by the year's end.

Nonetheless, the political wrangling continues. Those in favor of protecting the environment for future generations believe emissions are a deadly force. Those motivated by economic concerns will keep arguing for more research. And while the debate continues, the problem gets worse.

Red Mites Are Fruit Tree Threat

Fruit growers, beware! The European Red Mite is rampaging through Kentucky. Homeowners, too, should be concerned if they have either apple trees or vegetative ornamentals they're especially proud of.

According to Doug Johnson, University of Kentucky Extension entomologist at the Research and Education Center at Princeton, the tiny mites (each is about the size of the dot over a letter "i") pose a problem that is worse than average this year because of hot, extra dry conditions. Commercial growers, especially, should make at least weekly inspections to detect the critters.

"There are a lot of them around now," Johnson said. "They've been here since spring, but it takes a while for large populations to grow."

Most people don't notice the tiny mite, Johnson said. A thousand of them could sit on a quarter. They notice the damage though—a dark yellowish-bronze tint speckled across once green leaves after the mites have sucked the chlorophyll and other cell contents away. If too many leaves show those symptoms, several things can happen to stressed-out apple trees, and none of them is good.

"The stress which these little buggers can put on apple trees can affect the quality of the apples," Johnson said. "It can affect the quantity of the apples. If the damage is very severe, it can affect the ability of the trees to survive another winter."

What can you do about it? Just find them, Johnson said. Once found, Red Mites can be treated effectively with commercial sprays, and despite their small size, their bright velvet red color is not difficult to see. Johnson recommends orchard growers inspect each week through August for the pests.

"If you're a commercial grower, you'd better find them when there are only one or two on the leaf," he said. "The standard is if there's an average of 10 mites per leaf you have problems."

When looking for the mite, look at green leaves, not the already damaged ones, he said.

"A lot of people look at damaged ones and don't see any mites," Johnson said. "The reason for that is the mites have already gone to the grocery store. They're on the green leaf nearby."

While the European Red Mite poses the biggest commercial problem to apple and peach growers, Johnson said, the pest has an extremely wide host range. They thrive on a lot of vegetative ornamentals such as pyracantha which many homeowners find decorative.

Commercial growers use special miticides to treat them which generally are not available to most homeowners. Since the mite is not an insect, not all insecticides work, Johnson said, but some do. The homeowner, wanting to protect his ornamentals or the backyard apple tree should carefully check the insecticide label to make sure the mite is listed as controllable.

Counties Become Smaller As Numbers Increase

In our last column we dealt with the formation of Estill county, the 50th formed in the 17th year of this new Commonwealth, 1808.

For sixteen of these years John Logan remained as the state treasurer. In his first three years, he served also as the elected senator representing Lincoln county. His dedication to the development of Kentucky was such that thousands of acres of rich land were lost to his family by his inattention to his personal matters.

For the first 59 years, the treasurer was appointed annually by the joint ballot of both houses of the General Assembly. Kentucky's constitution, adopted in 1851, provided for the election of the treasurer for a two-year term only. Our present constitution, adopted in 1891, lengthened the term to four years, but prohibited succession.

In 1809, Caldwell became the 51st county formed in this state. Caldwell was taken from Livingston county and was named for General John Caldwell, a native of Prince Edward county, Virginia. Caldwell moved to Kentucky when it was still part of Virginia and settled near where Danville is now located in then—Mercer county. He was active in the militia efforts in Indian conflicts and rose through the ranks to the status of major general.

Caldwell served with General George Rogers Clark. He was also active in political matters and represented Nelson county in the constitution conventions held at Danville in 1787 and 1788. When Kentucky achieved statehood, he was elected state senator from Nelson. Caldwell was elected Lieutenant Governor in 1804 and died at Frankfort that same year while the legislature was in session.

Rockcastle county was formed from the counties of Lincoln, Pulaski, Madison and Knox and received its name from the Rockcastle River.

SALMONELLOSIS
COPYRIGHT 1987 KVMA

Salmonellosis is one of those tricky words—it looks pretty on paper and it sounds pretty when you say it, but the disease it represents is devastating.

Affecting all species including man and sometimes called paratyphoid, salmonellosis is caused by any of more than 1,200 species of Salmonella.

Three distinct levels of salmonellosis are recognized: chronic, acute and peracute.

Peracute occurs primarily in young animals, and is a septicemic (blood-poisoning, rapidly fatal disease that may be difficult for a layman to diagnose. Calves, foals, piglets and lambs show similar signs: high fever, dullness, depression and death within 24 to 48 hours.

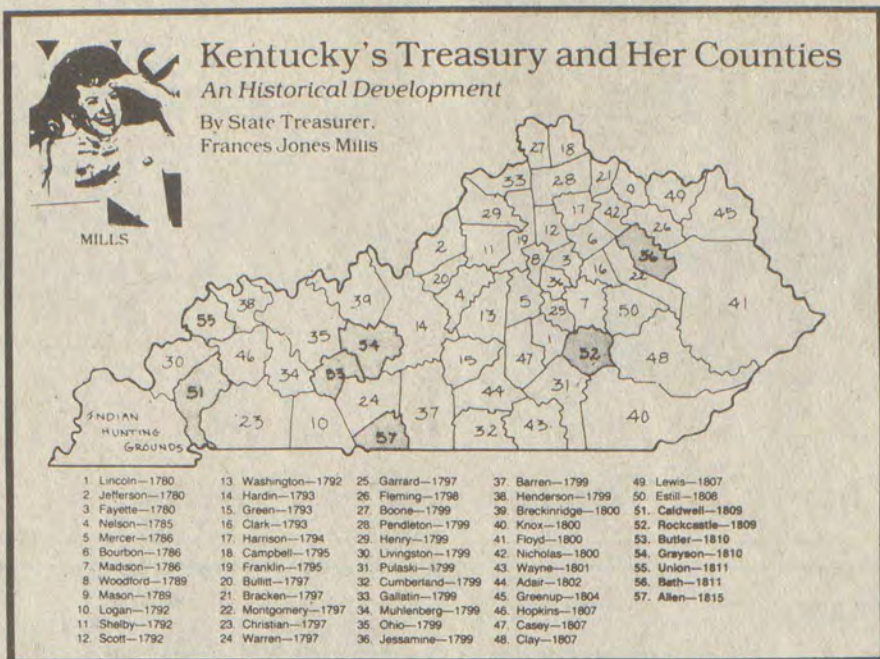

The acute form usually affects adult animals and man and shows up as an acute enteritis or inflammation of the small intestine. Onset is sudden with fever, cramps and diarrhea. It can cause abortion in all species.

The disease can become chronic after the acute stage, usually in swine and cattle. It can occur at any age.

The organism which causes salmonellosis is primarily spread through the feces of the infected animal and can spread not only from animals to people but from people to animals. The younger animals are generally more at risk.

Treatment generally includes broad-spectrum antibiotics for the septicemia, nitrofurans for the enteric condition, fluids to replace those lost by the rapid dehydration which accompanies the condition and correction of electrolyte imbalance. Early and correct diagnosis is necessary, however, therefore the wise choice when your animals show the symptoms is to call your veterinarian immediately.

He is not only well-trained in methods of treatment, but can also recommend changes in management of animals which will reduce or eliminate the chances of transmission. Scrupulous sanitation is probably the best preventive measure.

Butler county was taken from Logan and Ohio counties and was named for General Richard Butler, a Pennsylvanian. An officer in the Revolutionary War, Butler served under General St. Clair in the disastrous conflict with the Miami Indians in the Ohio territory. He was wounded early in the conflict and before he could be removed from the field of battle, one of the Indians broke through the ranks and tomahawked him. He died instantly.

Grayson county was formed in 1810 from parts of Hardin and Ohio counties. The county was named for Colonel William Grayson, a native of Virginia, who was a member of the convention called to ratify the U.S. Constitution. Grayson opposed adoption, but was later elected to serve in the U.S. Senate. He died in 1790 while on his way to Congress.

Union county was formed out of Henderson county and the origin of the name of the new county is in doubt. Generally accepted opinion holds that the local people were in such accord at its formation that they named it "Union".

Bath county was formed from Montgomery in 1811 and was named for the "medicinal" springs within its boundaries. Olympian Springs, eight miles from Owingsville, the county seat, boasted three such springs—salt, sulphur and chalybeate.

Allen county, the 15th in order of formation, was taken out of Barren and Warren counties. This county received its name from Colonel John Allen, a native of Rockbridge county, Virginia. His father moved to Kentucky before statehood, in 1780 to Lincoln county, about two miles from the present town of Danville. In 1784 his father moved to Nelson county where young John was schooled with such men as John Rowan and Joseph Daviess, both of whom would later have counties named in their honor, also.

In 1791 Allen began his law practice in Staunton, Virginia, and four years later moved to Shelbyville, Kentucky, where he practiced until the War of 1812. Allen raised a regiment and served under Harrison in the northwest. He was killed in the battle of the River Raisin.

Kentucky Included Among States With Tax Filing By Computer

The Internal Revenue Service has announced a major expansion of its electronic filing project which will speed refunds to taxpayers in many new areas of the country next year.

Beginning with the 1988 filing period taxpayers will be able to file electronically through participating tax return preparers in Alabama, Arizona, Indiana, Kentucky (the entire state), Nebraska, North Carolina, Utah, Virginia, Washington and Wisconsin. In addition, IRS will offer electronic filing in areas served by IRS districts in Albany and Buffalo, N.Y.; Sacramento and San Jose, California; Cincinnati, Ohio and Dallas, Texas.

Taxpayers who file their income tax returns electronically in these areas also will be able to have their refunds directly deposited to their checking or savings account.

Electronic filing cuts the waiting period for a tax refund by up to three weeks by eliminating manual processing of tax returns submitted on paper. Because costs are reduced for processing, storage and retrieval of tax returns, electronic filing could save the government in excess of $200 million over the next ten years.

In a notice published in the Federal Register on June 8th, the IRS invited applications from return preparers and service bureaus interested in qualifying to transmit returns electronically. The IRS also plans to schedule open meetings with trade associations and firms interested in providing computer hardware, software and telecommunications technology suitable to the electronic filing system.

The electronic filing system, which is expected to largely replace paper form filing in the future, transmits return information directly to computers at IRS processing centers over telephone wires from the offices of participating tax return preparers and service bureaus. Although only refund type tax returns can be filed electronically at present, future technology may make it possible for taxpayers who have a balance due instead of a refund to file electronically. The IRS is studying the feasibility of electronic transmission by home computer operators but technical problems—compatibility of equipment, security and privacy of tax data, transmission of signatures—need to be resolved.

Kentucky preparers, software companies or communications services who might be interested in electronic filing of tax returns may get more information and/or application materials from the District's Electronic Filing Coordinator. In Louisville you may call 582-5376, or from outside Louisville you can call toll free 1-800-424-1040 and ask for the Kentucky Electronic Filing Coordinator on extension 5376.

Honor Graduate

Jodi Ann Bauers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Louis Bauers, of Peoria, Ill., and granddaughter of Agnes Bauers and the late Louis L. Bauers, of Prestonsburg, was a member of the 1987 graduating class of the Academy of Our Lady/Spalding Institute, in Peoria, recently.

She received one of the Prescott E. Bloom Service Above Self awards from the Peoria North Rotary Club. The awards consisted of $50 checks, plaques for the students, and recognition on permanent plaques for the school.

She was especially recognized for having been a volunteer in charity drives and for her dedication as a Sunday school teacher. She expects to enter the University of Wisconsin in the fall, where she plans to major in pharmacy.

Mills Participates In Marine Exercise

Marine Private Jerry R. Mills, son of Clark and Annette Mills, of Wayland, recently participated in exercise "Team Spirit '87" with the Second Battalion, Fourth Marines of Camp Lejeune, N.C.

About 26,000 Seventh Fleet sailors and marines were part of the exercise, conducted in and around the Republic of Korea and designed to increase the defensive capabilities of the Republic and the U.S. Seventh Fleet. Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps units from both countries were involved and worked together to improve understanding and cooperation between all participants.

After completing the exercise, Mills participated in five weeks of training with the Korean Marines, which included live fire, rappelling, mountain warfare training, and other individual and unit skill training. A 1980 graduate of Allen Central High School, Eastern, he joined the Marine Corps in May 1986.

Lawns Threatened By Lack of Rain

Lawns across Kentucky are being threatened by rainfall deficits of 50 percent and more.

Tom Priddy, meteorologist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, said rainfall across the state has been considerably less than normal in most areas, and A.J. Powell, UK Extension turf specialist, said the reduced rainfall should have homeowners dragging out the hoses and sprinklers, "especially if their lawn is highly fertilized."

Lawns in dry areas should be given two-thirds of an inch of water twice a week, Powell said. Watering more frequently and more lightly can increase disease problems.

"There's been no irreversible damage so far, but if this dry spell continues lawns will need to be watered to keep them green and growing. Lawns that have not been fertilized may simply brown over and go dormant. But if the lawn has been fertilized it is going to try to keep growing, and if it doesn't get any water it could be permanently damaged," Powell said.

Put a can or cup in the area being watered to monitor how much water the area has received. When the can or cup has two-thirds of an inch of water in it, the area covered by the sprinkler has received that much water.

As of June 7, Paducah had received 10.7 inches of rain since January 1. That's less than half the usual 22.2 inches for that area. The national weather station in Evansville, Indiana, adjacent to the Owensboro area, reports 14.3 inches of rain this year, 5.6 inches below normal. Jackson is 6.0 inches behind with only 14.5 inches. And the Lexington area has received 12.9 inches compared to the average 20.8 inches of rain, Priddy said.

Powell said the storm system that moved through much of the eastern half of the state on June 9 provided no lasting relief.

"That water will be gone in a few hours," he said.

THIS HANDSOME FELLOW, who looks to be Irish Setter mix, is good-natured and would make a nice pet and companion. He is available now for adoption at the animal shelter. For more information, call 886-3189, or stop by to see him.

The Automatic Dishwasher An Appliance With A Past

Considering the microchip-controlled marvels that now wash our dishes, it's interesting to note that dishwashers had a very humble debut 137 years ago, reports the Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers (AHAM).

The first dishwasher, a hand-cranked wooden contraption that splashed water onto dishes, was invented by Joel Houghton in 1850, but it took a woman, Josephine Cochrane, to provide the significant refinements. Her 1880 dishwasher was such a hit at the 1893 World's Fair that she founded a company to manufacture it and proved—40 years before suffragettes won the right to vote—that a woman's place is in the executive suite.

In 1911, several competitors introduced gas motor-driven models. Unfortunately, the still-primitive machines had to be filled by hand with water heated in pails on the kitchen stove.

The first electric dishwasher, introduced around 1913, and the first models with permanent plumbing, introduced in the 1920s, are reminders that indoor plumbing and electrical wiring were still new-fangled inventions until well after the turn of the century.

Not until the 1930s did reliable dishwasher detergents become available, and it wasn't until the 1940s that automatic timing devices were developed to regulate washing and rinsing cycles. Before then, operating a dishwasher required over a dozen individual operations—not exactly a hands-off process.

More than a century passed after the issuing of the first dishwasher patent before the appliance began to find favor with homemakers, and then only after engineering discoveries of World War II were applied to dishwasher development.

With today's high-tech electronics, dishwashers have become a must-have appliance in about 47 percent of American homes.

If you think you have a roach problem...During the Carboniferous Period, some 240 million years ago, the soggy swamp forests swarmed with roaches. They left their fossils everywhere. According to International Wildlife magazine, there are about 3,500 species of these pesky creatures around today. The majority inhabit the tropics, where some grow to whopper size—as long as a human hand!

AIDS, Other Diseases Force New Precautions On Dentists

"We see infection control as another public service program for the Commonwealth's dentists and other dental professionals," says Dr. Robert Calmes, associate professor of oral biology, University of Kentucky College of Dentistry.

A new program offered by the UK College of Dentistry and developed through the department of oral biology has been created in response to the dental profession's rising awareness of transmissible infectious diseases. The program is known as Infection Control for Dentistry.

One of the most important aspects of the program is a monthly newsletter which is sent to dentists, dental hygienists, dental assistants, community colleges and other training programs for dental professionals statewide. "This monthly newsletter relates important, up-to-date information on infection control, along with state-of-the-art methods, procedures and new products' information designed to help practicing dental professionals," says Calmes.

In the spring of 1986, the American Dental Association (ADA) convened a national conference addressing infection control in dentistry. Experts discussed the elevated risks that dental professionals face for hepatitis B, herpes simplex, AIDS, and other infectious agents. The legal ramifications of cross-infection in dentistry were discussed. New standards of care for infection control in dentistry were recommended by the ADA and the U.S. Centers for Disease Control.

According to Dr. Emmet R. Costich, acting dean of the college, "The changes recommended for infection control add up to one thing—prevention—a word previously reserved for diseases of teeth and periodontium, but now broadened to include prevention of cross-infection between dental professionals and patients."

These new standards of care include the use of barrier methods, such as gloves, masks, and eye protection for all dental professionals, and rigid protocols for instrument sterilization and operatory disinfection between patients.

Appalachian Celebration Scheduled At Morehead

An Arts and Crafts Market with an estimated 100 booths will highlight the final day's events at Morehead State University's Appalachian Celebration, June 21-27.

The market will be open from 9:30 a.m. until 6 p.m. Saturday, June 27, in the Laughlin Health Building.

A wide variety of arts and crafts will be represented, including quilting, fabric crafts, weaving, wood-crafts, pottery, painting and basketry. New to the market this year will be stained glass and hand woodcarving.

According to Georgia Sammons, coordinator of the market, more than half of the expected vendors will be returnees. "We strive for variety and four quality in the arts and crafts we showcase during the market," Sammons said.

Other activities Saturday will take place on the Laughlin lawn. There will be Granny Toothman's "Sheep to Shawl" demonstration. Toothman will weave continuously and shearing will take place at 10 a.m., noon and 2 p.m. An open stage concert with various bluegrass bands will be held from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Authentic Appalachian food, including ham and biscuits and cornbread and soupbeans, will be sold.

Now in its 11th year, the Appalachian Celebration is an event designed to emphasize the rich cultural heritage of the region through exhibits, demonstrations and workshops.

Calmes say these are only a few of the recommendations, "but they will forever change the way that dentistry is practiced."

Calmes says that many dentists are reluctant to change because dentists think it is difficult to practice wearing gloves. They are also concerned about how to explain to their patients why they are using the barrier techniques. "I tell them to be straightforward in their approach and state 'I am wearing gloves, mask and eye protection for our mutual safety. Physicians wear gloves, so should dentists.'"

Since January 1987, all faculty, students and other dental professionals practice infection control in the UK College of Dentistry through the use of barrier techniques. These techniques supplement the existing sterilization and disinfection program the college has had for several years.

Continuing education courses on infection control for dental professionals are offered by the Commonwealth Dental Continuing Education Network statewide. In addition, Calmes speaks to many groups on the issues of infection control.

Calmes says he welcomes dental professionals' questions on the issue of infection control and will strive to keep them current on new information regarding infectious diseases and prevention of occupational hazards in the dental practice.

June Health Tip... Coping Skills Can Prevent Stress-Related Illnesses

By SHARON MAY, Materials Management Supervisor
 Research estimates that 85% of all mental and physical ailments are stress-related.
 Stress is a complicated health problem because it is not a disease. But stress can cause ailments such as headaches, constipation, chronic depression, drug and alcohol addictions, and heart disease.
 If you suffer from any of these ailments, you need to consult with and be treated by a physician. But you can prevent the occurrence and re-occurrence of stress-related health problems by learning to cope with the daily stresses in your life.
 Not all stress is destructive. Stress causes us to realize that we have problems and motivates us to seek their solutions.
 Stress becomes destructive when we allow it to control us. To control stress, we must understand its causes and how to deal with them.
 OVERLOAD is the most common cause of stress. Overload happens when we try to do too many things in one day or promise too much of our time to other people.
 A simple way to prevent overload is to make a schedule. Try making a list of everything you plan to do the next day before you go to bed. If your list reveals too many projects and unrealistic goals for yourself, avoid stress by revising the list.
 Help yourself by deciding what has to be done and why. Rank your activities according to importance. This is called prioritizing.
 Now take a second look at your list. What projects can be combined? For example, if you need to shop for groceries, see what other errands can be completed in that trip.
 Any project which is not a priority or which can't be easily accomplished along with a priority, should be set aside for another day.
 Don't let your list become a source of stress. Your schedule is a changeable plan. Unexpected events can and will change priorities. Good plans anticipate the unexpected phone call or visitor and schedule the meals, rest, relaxation, exercise and communication necessary for good health.
 RESPONSIBILITIES TO OTHERS can be another source of stress. We have our own plans and goals but we also have to deal with the plans and goals of children, mates, co-workers, friends and bosses. We have to set our priorities in relation to others when making our plans.
 Stress occurs when we have to say "no" to one of these persons. We get upset because we are afraid of making them angry or of hurting their feelings. But no one can please everyone; each of us has limited time and energy. Therefore, it is important to learn how and when to say "no" to the requests of other people.
 When you must refuse a job or favor request, tell the person early enough so he or she can make other plans. This will lessen the stress the other person feels and is less likely to strain your relationship. It's never easy to say "no" to others, but doing so will allow you to realistically schedule your time and energy. It can also free you to respond better to requests you don't want to refuse.

 UNEXPECTED EVENTS also cause stress. Some are unavoidable. Even though we can't control or prevent the stress caused by a loved one's death or illness, we can control our reactions to unexpected events by choosing to do only what must be done. Other tasks should be put off until we are emotionally ready to deal with them.
 Most unexpected events, however, are caused by our own poor decision-making. Frequently we take on jobs or projects without knowing what is expected of us. Stress occurs when we realize that we are spending time and energy on things we didn't anticipate.
 To avoid this kind of stress, find out everything you can about a project before committing yourself to it. Then you can either plan realistically to accomplish it or say "no" before you start. Projects are harder to stop after you have spent a lot of time on them; jobs are harder to refuse once you have promised to do them.
 Help yourself deal with stress by acknowledging that stress is part of life. Then enhance your coping ability by changing your reactions to stress and avoiding self-caused stress. Plan your time and energy. Set realistic goals for yourself. Study new jobs or projects prior to committing yourself to them. Establish your priorities and adjust them when unexpected events occur.
 If you need additional help to cope with the stresses in your life, ask your physician, clergy member, mental health worker or other confidant for assistance.

"Kentucky Kingdom" Promises Thrills, Spills and Pure Fun

By BOB BAIRD

An antique-style "Crystal Carousel" whisking riders on a whirl of lights, mirrors and hand-painted scenes of Kentucky. A 6-story high enclosed roller coaster plunging daring souls into utter terror at 50 miles per hour. A fifth-mile long log flume channeling riders through a watery maze. Singers and dancers recreating the Foster era, Dixieland, Broadway and bluegrass. Plus cotton candy, popcorn, ice cream, corn dogs and pizza by the slice!

If there's one place promising "pure Kentucky" fun, it's Kentucky Kingdom, a new family-style theme park at the state fairgrounds in Louisville, making its debut Memorial Day weekend.

Bringing to fruition a dream that's been in the works the past decade, Kentucky Kingdom kicks off a new era in entertainment for the Bluegrass State, offering amusement-park pizzazz laced with Kentucky heritage and charm.

Showcased in a "fun village" of simulated frontier and turn-of-the-century architecture, graced with fountains and landscaping native to Kentucky, the $12 million, 12-acre theme park is to feature 15 amusement rides, including six for children, plus four theaters, seven food outlets, and gift and specialty shops.

Star attraction among the enticements is a Venetian-style two-story carousel made in Italy—of which there are only eight of its kind in the world—featuring ponies patterned after Kentucky Thoroughbreds, Disneyland-style "turning teacups" and a dazzling array of lights, mirrors and oil-painted landscapes of Kentucky.

Kentucky Kingdom is situated near the west wing of the Kentucky Fair & Exposition Center in Louisville, the first amusement park in the city since Fontaine Ferry Park, an 80-year-old tradition, closed its gates in 1969.

The theme park is projected to draw more than 400,000 visitors a year during its regular season, Memorial Day weekend through August, in addition to the half-million visitors who see the Kentucky State Fair each year.

The midway at the fair will be operated under contract with the developer of Kentucky Kingdom, Leisure and Recreation Concepts, Inc. (LARC, Inc.) of Dallas. The company has developed 500 similar theme parks and retail projects throughout the world, including Dragon Lake Park, the first water-style theme park in the People's Republic of China. LARC president Michael A. Jenkins was an executive with Six Flags Over Texas, Inc. during its early years.

Visitors to Kentucky Kingdom are in store for a panorama of sensory delights, thrills and taste treats. Six musical shows are to be presented daily, including a Frontier Theater featuring country-western and bluegrass music and a parade of country-western stars; a "Steppin' Out" Broadway revue at the Pepsi Plantation Playhouse; and a 2,000-seat amphitheater offering a daytime "Red Hot Blues" show and a nighttime "Movin' to the Music" revue running the gamut from Stephen Foster to Broadway.

An amusement arcade features various skills games and bumper cars, including a game called "Derby Race," which was "a natural" for Kentucky, said Joy Johnson, marketing director for Kentucky Kingdom, "because of the emphasis on horses and horse racing" in the state. Another game, "Up, Up and Away," recalls the Great Balloon Race during the annual Kentucky Derby Festival. Road signs in the bumper-cars pavilion give the distance in miles to points in Kentucky with colorful names: Monkey's Eyebrow 161; Summer Shade 150; and Strawberry 49.

Taste experiences at Kentucky Kingdom are to range from familiar snack foods to moderate-priced gourmet burgers, chicken and barbecue dinners offered at the Brass Rang, a family-style restaurant near the park entrance within full view of the Crystal Carousel.

In addition to the Carousel, roller coaster, "Ohio River Adventure" log flume and bumper cars, rides are to include a "wave singer," antique cars, "Red Baron," an airplane ride for children and "Venture River," a miniature-canoe course for children. The children's rides are to be featured in a tree-covered play area.

Kentucky crafts get top billing at two outlets, including a gift shop near the entrance.

Admission to the theme park is one set price—entitling visitors to all rides and attractions. Children two years and under are free. However, during the state fair, individual ticket prices apply for various rides and attractions.

"Kentucky Kingdom is a definite asset to the fairgrounds that we hope will bring people back again and again," said Jeff Blosser, executive vice-president of the state fair board.
