

Jayne Family Meets At Jenny Wiley State Park

Members of the Jayne family, which spans three centuries in America, met June 11, 12, and 13 at Jenny Wiley State Park for a reunion.

Attending were 56 descendants of William and Dorcas Ramey Jayne, the first Jayne in Johnson (then Floyd) county, who settled at Flat Gap around 1806. The Jayne family has a rich heritage and traces its beginning to a Henry deJeanne, a graduate of Oxford University in 1611, a lecturer of theology and divinity at the same university. While there, a son was born on Jan. 25, 1618 and was christened William deJeanne. This William, after having been expelled from Oxford because he refused to subscribe to all the articles of the Westminster Creed, became a chaplain in Cromwell's army. After the restoration of Charles II, William deJeanne sought safety in flight, changed his name to Jayne and came to New Haven, Conn. and later to Long Island, NY. The Jayne descendants came South after the American Revolution and settled in Virginia.

Following lunch on June 13, a lecture and slide presentation was made by Dr.

Benjamin A. Jayne, of Duke University, and a brief historical sketch was given by Clayton R. Cox, of Lexington. Others attending the activities, Saturday, included: Dr. Edgar P. and Jacqueline Jayne, Duluth, Ga.; Leora and Kash Arnett, Clayton R. and Elizabeth Cox, Lexington; Carrie and Arbor Jones, Frances and John K. Pitts, William Gerald and Edith Jones, Carolyn Jayne Jones, Prestonsburg; Bill and Georgia Jayne, Forest Park, Ga.; Dr. Benjamin A. and Betty Jayne, Carey, N.C.; Irene Jayne Gardner, William and Dana Gardner, Charlotte, N.C.; Ernestine Dupey Howland, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dupey, Doug Howland, Malonetown; Nola and Earl Rogers, Owingsville; Anna Lee and Frank A. Wells, Sr., Nell Jayne, John Jayne, Flat Gap; Phyllis (Pucky) and William E. Bradley, Mary Alice Jayne, Morehead; Douglas Jayne, Nathy, Va.; Rex Jayne, Wilmington, N.C.; Ernestine L. Turkey vultures of North America don't deserve their sinister reputation. According to National Wildlife magazine, these shy, inoffensive birds are actually helpful to humans. Not only can they eat food so rotten that it could kill any other creature, they benefit people and the environment by preventing the spread of diseases, such as botulism.

Thanks for Support

I wanted to take this opportunity to thank the people of Floyd county for their good support in the past primary election.

As I said often during the campaign, win or lose, I plan to spend the rest of my life here in East Kentucky and do what I can to make our area better. I think we had a campaign of ideas and we proved that being born and reared in East Kentucky is not necessarily a handicap in the political arena. I tried my best and I hope you are as proud as I am of our campaign.

It appears to me that we need to get together and support candidates who are from East Kentucky—candidates who will help our area grow and prosper and give our young people an opportunity.

Quick Service

Last week I noticed in your paper that a family was thanking numerous persons after a death in their family. I noticed that they included an ambulance company. This started me to thinking about an incident not long back where the fast action of this same company, Respond Ambulance, saved the life of my step-mother. When I called the company I was very excited and told them to come as quick as they could. They were only 12 minutes getting there. When we arrived at the hospital the doctor told me if she had been 10 minutes later getting there she would not have pulled through.

I realize I could send them a personal thank you, but I want everyone to know how we appreciate the quick action and good service from them. I am really glad we do not have to be thanking them after a death, but thanking them for their help in saving our step-mom's life.

JAMES MOORE,

Seeks Information

I am Pearl (Goodman) Skaggs, the daughter of John Morgan (J.M.) Goodman and Mary Hubbard Goodman. My father left Floyd county (Water Gap) around 1909 and settled in Elliott Co. at Ault. I am searching for some information on the Hubbard family, William (Bill) Hubbard and his wife, Sally. My mother (Mary Goodman) father and mother whose name was Morce (or Marsh) and his wife was name Susann (Suse for short); uncle William or Bill lived around Sugar Loaf about 1909. They had to the best of my recollection, daughters Lizzie, married Albert Burchett and Julia married Bill Burchett and a son named Malcom. I don't know who he married. I remember visiting the Hubbards just before my father moved from Floyd county, our last visit to the home. I have lost track of most of the Hubbard generation. If any of the Hubbards or Burchetts can give me any information on this family it will be greatly appreciated. Hammonds are relatives too. Send to:

Callihan Attends Special Training

Bill Callihan, Area 9, DES Coordinator from Prestonsburg, has completed a week-long special training course in how to manage a search for missing or lost persons.

Callihan was one of fifteen persons from a variety of backgrounds to take the course, held at the Capital Plaza Hotel in Frankfort.

Visiting lecturer for the course was James P. O'Brien of Washington, DC. O'Brien is administrator of educational programs for the National Association of Search and Rescue (NASAR).

The course manager was David M. Adkinson, state training officer for Disaster and Emergency Services in Frankfort. Other trainers in the search management course were Doug Becvar, DES area coordinator from Bowling Green and Craig T. Martin, state operations manager for DES.

"Kentucky is making a concerted effort to upgrade our statewide capability to effectively manage search and rescue operations," said Adkinson. "Course graduates are certified by NASAR," he said.

"We recognize that when a person is lost or missing it clearly constitutes an emergency situation," Adkinson said. "We want to train as many individuals from the county level as possible," he said, "and upgrade our chances of prompt rescue, protect lives and respond to these emergencies at the highest possible level of capability."

The search management course will be offered again, Adkinson said. He said interested persons can either contact the nearest DES area coordinator or call him for further information in Frankfort at (502) 564-8632.

Electrolux is looking for qualified individuals to train for management of our local office. Excellent earnings opportunity. Our managers receive $300 per week in salary plus bonus, overwrites and incentives.

Two Seminars Slated Here For Merchants

Two seminars aimed at helping local merchants and their sales people improve their customer service and marketing techniques will be held in Prestonsburg next week.

The seminars are free and open to all businesses and their employees in the downtown Prestonsburg area, Mayor Ann Latta said.

To be held Tuesday, June 30, at the Floyd County Library, each seminar is divided into two sections, one for employees and one for store owners or managers. The full seminar will be held in the morning, from 8 to 12, and be repeated in the afternoon, from 2 to 5.

The first two hours of each session will be aimed primarily at sales people and employees. It will focus on everyday customer service and include a short film, "Remember Me," showing typical service from the customer's viewpoint.

The last hour of each session, from 11 to noon, and from 4 to 5 p.m., will be aimed at owners/managers, and present marketing concepts and techniques.

Merchants are free to attend or have their employees attend, whichever session is more convenient. Store owners who deal directly with customers are encouraged to attend a full three-hour session.

The seminars are being provided as part of an Appalachian Regional Commission grant to the city for downtown revitalization, Mayor Latta said. The same grant is also providing for a new city logo, and a downtown Prestonsburg shopping brochure, which should be completed within a month, Latta said.

The seminars will be conducted by Tommy Preston, president of The Preston Group, public relations and advertising firm, Lexington.

A former Commissioner of the Kentucky Department of Public Information, past press secretary to former Governor and now Senator Wendell Ford, and a reporter, editor and owner of newspapers and magazines for 15 years, Preston has an extensive background in merchandising, marketing and promotional ventures. He formed The Preston Group in 1969.

"We hope the seminars will provide some new marketing ideas and concepts to downtown businesses," Mayor Latta said, "as well as point out areas where employees can help customers more, particularly tourists in the area."

Anyone wanting more information about the seminars can contact Mayor Latta at the Municipal Building.

Charges Dismissed Against Mrs. Goble

By Louise Houghton

First-degree manslaughter charges against Pauline Goble, of Prestonsburg, were dismissed last week at the request of the Commonwealth's attorney, according to documents filed in Floyd Circuit Court.

She was indicted in February following the shooting death of her husband, Dan Goble, last December. The indictment noted that the 64-year-old housewife and mother of six children had acted "under the influence of extreme emotional disturbance."

The order for dismissal, signed Friday by Circuit Judge Hollie Conley, stated that the death apparently was not due to any criminal intent, but rather to unfortunate circumstances "not particularly the fault of any single individual." In addition, it said, the Goble children had asked that the family be spared the further trauma of having their mother stand trial.

The dismissal order also cited the opinions of her medical attendants that she is in poor health and would not be able to endure the rigors of a trial. A trial date had been set for August 24.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Ella Griffith would like to extend their appreciation to all those friends, neighbors and loved ones who helped comfort them during their time of sorrow. Thanks to all who sent food, flowers, prayers and words of comfort spoken by all. A special thanks to the Free Will Baptist ministers and to the Hall Funeral Home for its kind and efficient services.

The Lids On As Pressure Builds From Heat, Humidity

By B.A. Heinze

Floyd countians along with most of the rest of Eastern Kentucky have felt the pressure cooker effect of humidity hovering around the 100° mark combined with temperatures of near 90 degrees for the past week.

Beginning with a storm last Tuesday evening which knocked out power at Prestonsburg Village, Glyn View Plaza, and extended to Salyersville, including an RECC substation on Middle Creek to which Kentucky Power furnishes electricity, the area has been buffeted almost daily by thunderstorms. None, however, have caused any major power outages although electrical service to a half dozen homes at Dana and parts of Left Beaver has been interrupted for a few hours during the week.

Residents of Arkansas Creek, the Allen area, and parts of Route 80 were without electricity yesterday morning (Tuesday). A spokesman for Big Sandy RECC said power was interrupted by a storm around 3 a.m., yesterday, but that service had been restored by afternoon.

Strange things have been happening on the weather front in other areas, too.

Sunday afternoon, a mini twister hit on Potts Branch of Abbott Creek, doing no appreciable damage except to a few saplings in its path.

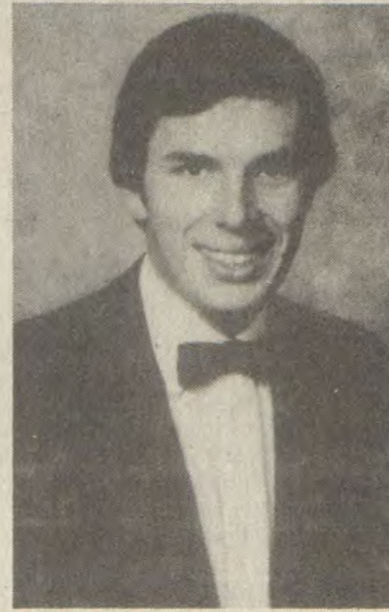

As the daily downpours continue, picnic plans are iffy; cookouts risky, and mowing a hayfield is really asking for it. Ball games have been called because of rain, golfers spend more time seeking shelter than on the greens, and even fishermen have come home early. Weatherwise, that's about as bad as it can get.

According to the weather bureau, more of the same is on the way with rain predicted through the weekend.

Annual Joy Bible Clubs Program

The 26th Annual Achievement Program of the Joy Bible Clubs of Eastern were held recently. Participating in this were children, some of whom are pictured above, from the Right Beaver area and surrounding communities. Included in the program were puppet plays, stories, poems, "The Christians Armor," memory work, Bible Drills, and songs by the children's choirs. Trophy cups for Bible drilling were presented to Larissa Hicks, champion gold cup and silver cups to Jerri Williams, Evelyn Howard, and Angela Castle. Camp awards were presented to Patty Baldrige, Jerri Williams and Vanessa Conley.

Highlighting the evening was the presentation of a special gift to Roger and Karen See, of Haiti. This was presented to them by Larissa Hicks on behalf of all the Bible Club children. The Sees are with the UFM and have worked 10 years in Haiti. They will be returning soon for five more years of service. The audience was delighted with their curios and slides and language of Haiti.

The program was enhanced with special hats from Haiti used as wall decorations, and children's crafts were also displayed. Mrs. Linda Hicks presided at the punch bowl and Miss Sarah Helmentoler served the decorated cakes. The teachers, Miss Barbara Wynsma and Miss Lois Holmquist, welcome new students when clubs resume again in the fall. The Phone-A-Story Ministry is a child guidance tool (358-9500) sponsored by its teachers.

WKU Plays Matchmaker For Teachers and Jobs

A Job Fair to place teachers was so successful at Western Kentucky University this past spring that teacher placement officials plan to have a summer Fair.

Coordinator of teacher placement Robert Rascoe says WKU will offer an opportunity for prospective teachers to interview with Kentucky school system representatives at the Fair on campus Wednesday, June 24.

"The Fair is designed to help students who have not yet signed contracts, and the event is also of benefit to the school systems," Rascoe explained.

Several Kentucky school systems will participate in the in-state-only job fair, which will be in Florence Schneider Hall from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. There is no pre-registration, and applicants should bring interviewing materials, such as resumes, data sheets and applications, Rascoe says.

She will be included in the 1987 edition of Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges, an annual directory of outstanding students first published in 1966.

Nursing Director Is Named As Medical Center Administrator

Debbie Trimble Meadows has been named administrator of Paintsville's Paul B. Hall Regional Medical Center effective June 1, according to an announcement issued last week.

Meadows replaces Sam P. Fowler, who has been promoted and transferred to the position of administrator of Southeastern Oklahoma Medical Center in Durant, Oklahoma. Both Paul B. Hall Regional Medical Center and Southeastern Oklahoma Medical Center are owned by Health Management Associates, Inc., a rural health care company which operates 14 facilities in seven states with a total of 1,249 beds.

Meadows, a 1971 graduate of Paintsville High School, attended Morehead State University before receiving her R.N. degree at Prestonsburg Community College in 1974.

The new administrator joined the staff of Paintsville Hospital in 1974 as a charge nurse. After serving as a floor supervisor she was promoted to assistant director of nursing in 1977. She was named in-service coordinator and director of public relations for Paul B. Hall Regional Medical Center in 1983 and became its director of nursing in 1984. She has held this position for the past three years.

Meadows is the daughter of the late Mayor James S. Trimble and Mary Fyffe Trimble, of Paintsville. She is married to Donnie Meadows, of Paintsville.

Feverfew is a low, hardy plant with white daisy-like flowers. People once believed that it could drive away fever. Its name means to put fever to fight. It doesn't work.

Food For Needy Given

A shipment of food was recently distributed by the Christian Appalachian Project to organizations which work with the needy in Owsley and Pike counties.

The Christian Appalachian Project received 200 units of dehydrated noodles, chicken, beef, rice, spaghetti, and tomato paste from Worldwide Harvest Foods, a non-profit organization in Tulsa, Okla. The food was given as part of Worldwide's Lifesource Program, which provides nutritious food meals to the needy.

Work in Owsley county and God's Food Pantry in Pikeville received allotments of the food. One unit, which includes eight packages of dehydrated noodles, beef, chicken, four pounds of rice, four pounds of spaghetti, and tomato paste, will feed a family of four for eight meals.

Public Libraries Observe Constitution's Drafting

1987 marks the 200th anniversary of the drafting of the United States Constitution. In celebration of this event, public libraries have set aside the week of June 28-July 4 as a time to reflect on the significance of the Constitution to our lives. A special message has been taped by Chief Justice of the Kentucky Supreme Court Robert Stephens for airing on radio stations across the state during the designated week.

Participating libraries will exhibit a replica of the document along with a scroll for citizens to sign reaffirming their support for its principles. Each singer will receive a commemorative bookmark and the libraries will have on hand an extensive bibliography of related materials to help local patrons learn more about their Constitution.

The library bicentennial project is one of a number of activities scheduled throughout the summer culminating on September 17, the official signing date of the Constitution.

For more information about the library bicentennial project, call your public library, or Jill Robinson at the Kentucky Department for Libraries and Archives.

Attends Space Camp, At Huntsville, Ala.

James Meece, of Prestonsburg, went through astronaut training activities this week, leading to a simulated mission in space at U.S. Space Camp in Huntsville, Ala.

The simulated mission used a realistic Space Shuttle orbiter mockup and a sophisticated Mission Control mockup in Space Camp's new, $4.4 million Training Center, which was inspired by NASA's astronaut training facilities.

During the mission, trainees performed experiments similar to those done by astronauts and scientists in space. They also used a space walk simulator in the shuttle payload bay for another "in space" activity.

The simulated mission climaxed a week of scientific learning and adventure for the trainees. They tried on space suits, learned principles of rocketry, and studied the history of the manned space flight program.

The activities were part of Space Camp, which is for youngsters ages 11 to 13. Conducted simultaneously is the U.S. Space Academy Level I program for young people ages 14 to 16. A new Space Academy Level II, for young adults ages 17 to 19, opens in August.

Each trainee worked with the Space Camp computer system; built and launched a solid-fueled model rocket; ate freeze-dried "astronaut food"; and used a moon walk training simulator.

During the five-day program, the local trainee was assigned a particular role in either the orbiter or Mission Control. The outcome of the mission depended on how well each team member learned his responsibilities.

The countdown, launch, flight, and landing were monitored by Mission Control on a multi-screen system.

Space Camp sessions began March 8 and continue through Sept. 4, with sessions beginning each Sunday. Starting on June 5, additional camp sessions will be offered from Friday through Tuesday of each week.

Honored at Mother-Daughter Banquet

Mrs. Gertie Watson was named "Mother of the Year" by the Independent Christian Women's Fellowship of Floyd County at the 11th annual Mother-Daughter Spring Banquet held May 15 at the Carriage House Inn at Paintsville.

Mrs. Watson was chosen in recognition of her Christian testimony and her service to home, family, and community. As part of the evening, a biographical sketch was given by her daughter, Patricia, highlighting memorable moments throughout her life. Following this, she was given a commemorative plaque and a silk corsage by the Christian Women's Fellowship. She also received a dozen red roses and a silk arrangement from her family. After receiving the award, Mrs. Watson commented that she could not have been more surprised or more honored. This year, she and her husband, Harvey, will observe their 38th wedding anniversary. They reside on Caney Fork of Middle Creek.

They have four children. Their first son, Windell, and his family reside at Pyramid. He is employed at National Mines as a member of the preparation plant. Their second son, Doug, and his family reside at Walton. He is a vocational agriculture teacher at Simon Kenton High School. Their first daughter, Patricia, resides on Caney Fork of Middle Creek, and is an English teacher at Allen Central High School. Their second daughter, Marcia, resides at Georgetown and is employed at the North Central Kentucky Veterinarian's Clinic.

This year's banquet theme was "Hats Off to Mom," and the decorations were coordinated to the theme with flower decorated hats, pastel candles on the tables, and an elegant backdrop prepared by local artist Mack Martin displaying the theme.

Other events of the evening included the musical glass playing by Leah and Dick Bower; the mother and daughter tributes by Mrs. Grace Clark and her daughter, Mrs. Patricia Lafferty; the recognition of a single Christian worker, Miss Alice Crum; a skit of all the different "hats" that mom wears; and a speaker, Mrs. Karen See, missionary to Haiti.

Attending this banquet were approximately 150 women.

Older Children Eligible For Medicaid Coverage

Kentucky will extend medical and dental coverage to an average 2,500 additional children in low-income households each month under an expansion of the state's Medicaid program beginning July 1, according to an announcement by Governor Collins, Saturday.

Collins said the Cabinet for Human Resources expects to spend approximately $1.5 million during the 1987-88 fiscal year for Medicaid coverage of children up to age 18 in eligible, two-parent, low-income families.

Currently, children through age four are eligible for medical assistance if a two-parent family's income meets Medicaid limits. Children in eligible single-parent homes already are covered to age 18.

"While older children may not require as much care as infants, we feel that this is a group of children at risk—a group needing ready access to medical care," Collins said. "We believe that making preventive health care available during the formative years will prove beneficial to these children, and I strongly urge their parents to make use of the expanded assistance."

"This change also removes an unfair burden on families trying to stay together, but finding themselves penalized because both parents are at home." Human Resources Secretary Al Austin explained, "Prior to Oct. 1, 1984, most children eligible for medical assistance in this country were members of single-parent families. At that time, changes in federal law required Kentucky to extend Medicaid services to pregnant women and to children born after Sept. 30, 1983 in intact families. That coverage would have ended with a child's fifth birthday without the changes we're implementing now."

"This is a step forward as we work to maintain a fiscally sound program and help more low-income Kentuckians presently ineligible for Medicaid coverage," Austin said.

Medicaid Services Commissioner Hughes Walker noted that about 43 percent of the more than 340,000 Kentuckians eligible for Medicaid are children, but payment for their health and dental services only requires 14 percent of the medical assistance program's budget—$80.9 million in the 1986 fiscal year.

"To help us insure that children eligible for Medicaid receive necessary preventive care and that existing health problems are identified and corrected, their parents periodically are encouraged to arrange necessary health and dental checkups," he said.

All newly-eligible children will receive services under the Kentucky Patient Access and Care (KenPAC) system. Under KenPAC, clients are given the option of selecting a physician to assure continuity of health care.

"The expanded services also could ease the financial burden in moderate- and middle-income families when a child has a catastrophic illness," Walker said. "In such a case, if the family income exceeds the ceiling for Medicaid eligibility, when the excess income has been obligated to pay medical bills, Kentucky's medical assistance program can pay additional expenses."

Applications for assistance should be made at the local office of the Department for Social Insurance.

Gov. Collins made the announcement today in Owensboro during a dinner at which she was honored by the West Kentucky chapter of the March of Dimes for her contributions to maternal and child health in Kentucky.

Oh, Jay. In addition to being the tenth letter of our alphabet, the letter J was the last to be added.

Mrs. Ray Brackett suggested that the John Graham Chapter buy one page of advertisement in the National DAR Magazine, and that members hold a rummage sale on August 4-5, to defray the cost of this advertisement. This was approved by the other members.

Mrs. Virginia S. Goble spoke on the topic, "Soar, Always, Flag of the USA," a program honoring Flag Day. She was assisted by Leslie, Eliza, and Lyda Kendrick, who held small USA flags depicting periods of the history of the flag. Mrs. Norma S. Stepp called on Mrs. Margaret D. Collins to read the poem written by a late charter member, Mrs. Bess Leete Stephens.

The next meeting will be held at May Lodge in September and will be a joint session with the Ashland Chapter, Sons of the Revolution, with Mrs. Ray Collins, Constitution chairman, in charge of the program. The DAR will act as hostesses for the Kentucky Highlands Folk Festival on that same date and are asked to wear old-time costumes for this event.

Unlike most mammals, a beaver never stops growing. According to Ranger Rick magazine, the biggest beaver found in recent times weighed over 66 pounds! But that's puny compared to the beavers that lived 10,000 years ago. Some of them grew to be the size of grizzly bears!

Book on Alice Lloyd Lauded by McDonald

Mrs. Alice O. Martin, of Turkey Creek, has received word from Mrs. Alice McDonald, Superintendent of Public Instruction, Frankfort, that the next issue of the publication of EdNews, an educational bulletin for teachers and other school personnel, would contain an item about the book entitled, "Alice Lloyd—Boston's Gift to Caney Creek," by Mrs. Martin's uncle, Robert W. Sloane. Mr. Sloane, who is also the uncle of Mrs. Polly Ann Wiley, Mrs. Leona Fouts, and Marcus Owens, here, is a native of this area, and now resides in Lexington. Mrs. McDonald said of this book, which is now available at the May Lodge Gift Shop, "Knowing how much Alice Lloyd meant to the people of Caney Creek and all of Eastern Kentucky, and what a valuable resource Alice Lloyd College is now to young people of the Appalachian area, I'm sure this book will be of great interest to Kentuckians."

Equine Competition Featured On KET

Experience the excitement as horse and rider combine talent and drive in competition at the Kentucky Horse Park when "Kentucky: The 1987 Ultimate Equestrian Event" airs Saturday, June 20 at 7 p.m. on KET. This month's KET Program Guide cover features scenes from last year's Event.

This 60-minute special highlights the 1987 Rolex Kentucky International Three-Day Event. Tad Coffin, 1976 Gold Medalist and Olympic Games commentator, will host the program. He will be assisted by Pat Trotter, nationally acclaimed equine sports broadcaster.

Among those scheduled to compete in the Advanced C.C.I. Division (Concours Complet Internationale), are 1984 United States Olympic Gold Medal Team members Bruce Davidson, Torrance Watkins Fleischmann and Karen Stives. The Event, one of only two annual C.C.I. competitions held in the United States, will also feature competitors from Canada, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands. This division will be used as a selection trial for the 1987 Pan Am Games.

1987 marks the sixth consecutive year KET has covered this prestigious event. "KET is once again privileged to bring to the nation the wonderful combination of Kentucky and the horse!" says KET Producer Sally Lobaugh-Jackson. "This nationally acclaimed event is an exceptional celebration that combines southern hospitality with equine excitement against the backdrop of the Bluegrass region," she adds.

The special offers an inside look at the demanding exercises of precision by horse and rider, including Dressage, a series of complicated maneuvers; Endurance, pitting horse and rider against a formidable array of obstacles; and Show Jumping, demonstrating a horse's jumping skills as well as stamina and obedience.

Attends UK Health Career Program

Sabrina Gail Curry, of Bypro, who attended an eight-week summer enrichment program at the University of Kentucky Chandler Medical Center, looks over some information of interest with John Wiggs, director of the Health Careers Program. Thirty-six sophomore and junior students from Kentucky colleges are participating in the program, funded by the Federal Division of Disadvantaged Assistance of the Public Health Service.

The program is designed to give selected students a better chance in competing for positions and succeeding in medical, dental, or pharmacy schools. By providing hands-on activities, study skills instruction, problem-solving sessions, and enrichment classes in the sciences, the program works to recruit, admit, and retain minority and rural students in the health professions. The program components include meeting and working with faculty and students, as well as classes in chemistry, biology, and physics.

KET Science Shows Focus On Adventure, Mystery

"Newton's Apple," the multi-award-winning science series, returns for its fourth season Sunday, June 28, at 10:30 a.m. on KET. Series host is Ira Flatow, who has been described as "Television's 'Mr. Science.'"

This season, "Newton's Apple" features a rich mix of topics: What causes hiccupps? Why does the wind blow? What are the chances of winning at gambling? What are the effects of hypothermia?

Series producer Lee Carey says adventure and mystery are the hallmarks of the fourth season. According to Carey, "Viewers this year will see Ira in a hard hat exploring a cave, surrounded by thousands of bats. In other segments they'll see him scuba-diving for sponges, on set with several poisonous snakes, and inches away from an alligator which could, with a single bite, remove his hand from his body. And he'll pilot a Boeing 757, on board a flight simulator."

This season something else that is a bit of a departure from the "Newton's Apple" regular offering will be questions for which there are no apparent answers. "Because science is a process not always complete with answers, this season we're doing segments about scientific questions we just don't have answers for," says Carey. "For example, we really don't know why we dream. There are theories, but not definite answers. So we talk about those theories."

Parks Officials Win Hotel Certification

Twelve Kentucky Department of Parks officials, including Parks Commissioner June Hudson, have been awarded the certified hotel administrator designation by the American Hotel and Motel Association.

The certified hotel administrator is the most prestigious designation offered by the Educational Institute of the American Hotel and Motel Association. To qualify for this distinction, hotel and motel executives must demonstrate academic achievement and industry experience.

In addition to the parks commissioner, other designees are: Jim Goodman, director of customer services; Blueford Rice, director of resort parks; J. W. Young, director of accommodations; Dallas Wade, park manager, Lake Cumberland State Resort Park; Frank Waggoner, park manager, Kentucky Dam Village State Resort Park; Bill Hainesworth, park manager, Kenlake State Resort Park; Dan Glass, park manager, Natural Bridge State Resort Park; Mark Lovely, park manager, Lake Barkley State Resort Park; Kelly Newton, park manager, Buckhorn Lake State Resort Park; Leon Russell, park manager, Jenny Wiley State Resort Park; and Danny Brown, park manager, Cumberland Falls State Resort Park.

These park officials will be honored at the annual meeting of the Kentucky Hotel and Motel Association in September.

Tourism Secretary Wendell Combs said he was pleased with the designations. "The professionalism of the management staff is a major reason why Kentucky has the nation's finest state park systems," Combs said. "Commissioner Hudson and her staff are to be congratulated."

Hubbard Graduates Magna Cum Laude

A Floyd county student graduated with honors from Morehead State University during its 1987 Spring commencement.

The first gold rush in the United States was touched off not in California but in Georgia, where prospectors discovered gold deposits in 1828.

"The treatment is great and people there are just wonderful. Gary and Don and Liz and Lil, they're real good. They make you feel at ease and very comfortable."

Grace Moore

Well, well, well... look who's getting better.

"My little boy broke his leg. I was very impressed with the treatment that they gave him. With the idea of...driving back and forth to Lexington, we opted to stay here and I don't regret it."

Cliff Latta

"I got great treatment, everything went well and I couldn't have wanted better service."

Henry Mayo

Getting better. To our patients, it means recovery or major progress. To us, it is that and something more: Our own improvement and growth.

We keep getting better at what we do. And that affects your recovery. We study, we train, we practice and we push ourselves to get better.

We never stop making strides in medical and surgical care, while advanced technologies help us get better at everything from monitoring your vital signs to processing your paperwork.

And, we keep getting better at being people—considerate and neighborly. Because that's as important to your recovery as good medicine.

We keep getting better to keep you closer to home, closer to friends and family. That's why more folks are choosing us instead of long trips to distant cities. We're working for you, to be the better choice for a growing list of services in diagnosis, treatment, recovery and rehabilitation.

You'd have to go a long way to get better care.

Family Services Member Attends Statewide Meet

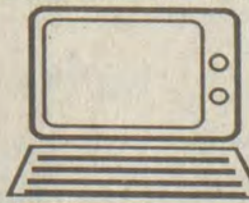

A staff member in the Floyd county office of the Kentucky Department for Social Services recently participated in a statewide conference on ways to strengthen Kentucky families as a means of addressing some of the state's social problems.

Marty Hicks, family services office supervisor in the Prestonsburg office, was selected to attend the three-day "Kentucky Families: Together and Safe" conference held in Lexington. "The workshops and discussions were excellent opportunities for those of us in the state's child and adult protection system to sit down and talk directly and openly with other professionals from other states and other sections of Kentucky," said Hicks.

"Since the department began in 1985 to focus on working with all family members in a troubled home, we've really changed the direction of our services. Now we're spending more time on preserving the family, which itself becomes a means of helping an individual family member with problems."

Approximately 500 social workers, education and legal representatives, mental health counselors and more than 100 of Kentucky's foster parents took part in the conference.

Inmates Earning GED In Literacy Program

"Learning is the key that unlocks heavy prison doors, and the knowledge we attain is the only ticket out."

These words are from a poem entitled "The Key," by Vito Genovese, an inmate at Roederer Farm Center in LaGrange and a tutor in the Kentucky Corrections Literacy Program.

That program was begun in eight of Kentucky's prisons in 1985, and is a joint effort by the Kentucky Department of Education, the Corrections Cabinet, and the Cabinet for Human Resources, financed by the federal Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA).

In its second year, the program is reaching many men like Vito Genovese and offering them a chance to gain not only knowledge, but also self-respect, and consequently, a better chance to succeed when they re-enter society.

Northpoint Training Center in Burgin, Western Kentucky Farm Center in Fredonia, and Roederer Farm Center in LaGrange are planning special June ceremonies to recognize academic accomplishment in the literacy, adult basic education, and GED (high school diploma equivalency) programs and to generate interest among fellow inmates, said Mary Marshall, the literacy correctional coordinator for the state education department.

Thirty-six inmates at Northpoint Training Center participated in the Second Annual Recognition Banquet for the Reading Tutoring Program, June 16.

Both students and tutors, who participate in the program on a volunteer basis, were recognized at the banquet. Guests included the adult education staff at Northpoint and representatives of the Division of Adult and Community Education and the Corrections Cabinet.

In the Reading Tutoring Program, Northpoint literacy coordinator Mike Price recruits and matches tutors and students. Inmates who can read are trained in adult education techniques and then paired with an inmate who cannot read.

The tutoring program assures that each student receives individual attention and progresses at his own rate, without fear or risk of failure.

"These men have known rejection and failure all of their lives," Superintendent of Public Instruction Alice McDonald said. "Recognition and daily encouragement are crucial in helping them develop confidence in their ability to learn and a sense of accomplishment."

June 17, Western Kentucky Farm Center will hold its graduation and recognition ceremony. The program will honor GED recipients, as well as students in the adult basic education and adult literacy classes.

Literacy classes are for inmates whose reading level is below that of the average sixth grader—which research shows is true of one-third of all prisoners in Kentucky.

Adult basic education classes are for those at a reading level between sixth and ninth grade. GED classes are for students at a high school level and are geared toward preparation for the GED test.

Western Kentucky Farm Center had 34 inmates earn GED certificates this year. GED recipients were awarded their certificates during the ceremony on Wednesday, and literacy students received special t-shirts for their academic progress. Daviess County Judge-Executive William Froelich, a member of the Kentucky Literacy Council, was guest speaker.

Roederer Farm Center, selected as the outstanding corrections program in Kentucky this year, will award GED certificates to 39 at its graduation and awards ceremony, Tuesday, June 30, at 7 p.m.

James Leavell, an inmate at Roederer Farm and Corrections Tutor of the Year, will be one of the speakers. Over 60 residents will participate, and each is allowed to invite two guests. The GED graduates will wear traditional caps and gowns.

"Everyone works together in the institutions to make these ceremonies very special events for the men involved," Marshall said. "All of the inmates in the academic programs deserve recognition for their dedication and hard work."

Most of the other Kentucky correctional institutions are planning similar recognition events later in the summer.

Award Winner

Anthony Gibson, a ninth-grade student at Charles L. Shedd Research Academy, has just completed his second year at the Mayfield school. On awards day, he received several awards including first-place in math and nutrition, and most improved and mature student. He was one of five students who received the Presidential Academic Award.

He is the son of David and Anita Gibson, of McDowell. His grandparents are Arnold and Annette Turner, of McDowell, and Bertha and the late Selton Gibson, of Langley.

Four Companies Plan To Locate in State

Kentucky's economy received a boost during the past two weeks as four companies announced plans to locate new plants in the state.

Foster Grant, the nation's largest manufacturer and marketer of sunglasses and non-prescription reading glasses, announced that it will locate a distribution and assembly facility in Somerset. Construction on the new plant will begin immediately, and operations are scheduled to start by early October.

The Keebler Co., a nationally known maker of cookies, plans to locate a manufacturing facility in Florence. Keebler already operates distribution centers in Louisville and Lexington, but the new operation will be the company's first production facility in Kentucky. The plant will be located in an existing building in the Florence Industrial Park.

H.B. Fuller Co., a Minnesota-based manufacturer of specialty chemicals, announced plans to locate a plant in Paducah. Company officials expect to begin manufacturing industrial adhesives in the new facility by late 1988. It will be housed in an existing building formerly occupied by Genex Corp.

Allison Abrasives, Inc., of Shelton, Conn., announced plans to relocate its abrasive cutting wheel manufacturing plant from Connecticut to Lancaster in Garrard county. Operations at the new plant, located at the former York Casket building, are expected to be underway by late fall.

Employment at the four new plants is expected to total 355-380.

Kentuckians May Get Higher UI Benefits

Kentuckians who file unemployment benefit claims beginning next month may be receiving a premium, thanks to the continued financial stability of the state's Unemployment Insurance Trust Fund.

Effective July 5, eligible unemployment insurance recipients in Kentucky will find the maximum amount they can receive each week has risen from $140 to $151. Cabinet for Human Resources officials estimate 49,140 claimants will be eligible for the higher benefits during the 1987-88 fiscal year.

The change will affect UI claimants whose earnings were more than $11,814 during the 12 months on which their weekly benefits are based. Benefits for some 25,000 current recipients will remain the same.

"We're pleased that we are able to raise the ceiling on benefits for many hard-working Kentuckians who temporarily find they are out of a job," said Employment Services Commissioner James Daniels. "We are able to do this because labor and management groups have been patient and cooperative as they have worked with us to ensure that Kentucky has a solvent UI Trust Fund."

More than 61,400 claimants qualified for maximum benefits during the 1986-87 fiscal year. However, during the past year the average weekly unemployment payment has been about $102. "Almost two-thirds of the claimants who were qualified for benefits were not eligible to receive the maximum rate," he said.

The increase in benefits, which will cost an estimated $6.1 million during the 1987-88 fiscal year, and a tax decrease for employers, which was effective Jan. 1, were included in legislation enacted by the 1982 General Assembly.

"The legislature froze maximum weekly benefits at the 1981 level because the UI Trust Fund was in debt at the end of that year," Daniels explained.

"State lawmakers stipulated that employers' tax rates could drop and claimants' weekly benefits could increase when our trust fund had an end-of-year balance of $150 million, and we had repaid all our federal loans to the trust fund. At the end of last year, we met both criteria for the first time since the law was passed," he said.

Under state law, employers' annual tax rates are set at the beginning of each year and are tied to the trust fund balance at the end of the previous year. Meanwhile, any increase in maximum weekly benefits changes in July.

"At the beginning of June we started reminding potential claimants that the weekly maximum would rise and gave them the option of putting off filing an initial claim until the higher rate went into effect," said state Unemployment Insurance Director Ron Holland.

"Waiting might help some claimants receive the higher amount," he said, "but it could result in lower benefits to others. The base period we use in calculating the weekly benefit amount shifts forward at the beginning of each quarter, and July is the beginning of a new quarter."

"We've asked staff in our local offices to estimate the amount a client would receive if he or she waited to file a claim, but we can't advise anyone on what action to take. A client must determine individually whether it's economically feasible to wait and possibly receive greater benefits or if it will pose a short-term financial crisis to delay receiving benefits for a week or two."

Holland also noted that when a claim is established, the benefit rate is locked in for 12 months. "For example, if someone is laid off in May, returns to work in June, then laid off again in July, that person's unemployment benefits would be set in May when the initial claim is filed. If a claim is filed in July, it is considered a continuing claim."

Wayland 7th Graders in Frankfort

At the beginning of the academic year, they visited Fort Boonesborough and White Hall on a field trip directly related to their Kentucky history class. To further their knowledge in career education, they also took guided tours of Highlands Regional Medical Center and Alice Lloyd College. Then, in the spring, they visited Frankfort and the Kentucky Horse Farm.

The class expressed its appreciation of support from their principal, Mrs. Gwen Harmon, their parents, and staff members of both Alice Lloyd College and Highlands Regional Medical Center.

No Home on the Range—Bob Evans, Dept. of Interior Join To Find Homes for Mustangs, Burros

Celebrate the Fourth of July at the All American Wild Horse and Burro Expo at the Bob Evans Farm in Rio Grande, Ohio. There will be a free gala celebration Friday through Sunday, July 3 to 5, featuring competitive show events, animal demonstrations, training and handling clinics, entertainment, and 200 wild horses and burros available for adoption.

This is the ultimate event of the year in wild horse and burro show competition in the East and is co-sponsored by the Bob Evans Farms, Inc. and the Bureau of Land Management of the U.S. Department of the Interior. Competitors from many of the eastern states are expected to participate. The historical farm displays of the Bob Evans Farm will also be open to the public.

The competitive show events will be open only to government freeze branded wild horses and burros. There are no entry fees and cash prizes or ribbons will be awarded in each event. The All American Wild Horse and Burro Expo is a unique opportunity for the entrants who have adopted, loved, and trained their animals to show how skilled and talented they can be. Competition classes and demonstrations are designed to show the public how capable these animals are so that other animal lovers may be encouraged to adopt.

The Bob Evans Farm will be showing "Spanish Gambler," a Spanish Barb, which has the characteristics of the Spanish and Moroccan horses brought to America by the Spaniards in the early 16th century. Wild horses are thought to have descended from these Spanish horses and from horses lost or released by Indians, the cavalry, and early western settlers.

Until the Free-roaming Wild Horse and Burro Act was passed by Congress in 1971, wild horses and burros faced starvation and indiscriminate slaughter on the open rangelands of the West. The Act provides for the protection, management, and control of herds. Yet, under the protection of the Act and with no natural predators, the herd populations rapidly increased. The herds faced starvation and competed with native wildlife and domestic livestock for forage, water and living space. The rangelands were over grazed and were deteriorating. The chosen management option was to remove those horses or burros that were in excess of healthy herd population levels.

The first round-ups of excess horses began in 1973 in the Pryor Mountains of Montana. Since then, over 65,000 animals have been adopted throughout the United States. Through the Adopt-A-Horse or Burro Program, the excess animals are offered to the general public. The U.S. Government retains ownership of the animals for one year. During this period, the animal cannot be sold, traded, or given away. If an adopter cannot keep the animal, the government will help transfer it to another adopter. When the year is over, the horse or burro is inspected to assure that it is healthy and has been treated humanely and the adopter is granted full title.

Wild horses differ from domestic animals in that they have not depended on man for their food. Once the horse relates regular feeding and watering to one person, it tends to learn quicker than domestic horses. According to some mustang owners, they are also smarter than domestic horses. But, they do need special handling during training. Until gentled, they must be kept in sturdy corrals and stalls at least 6 feet high. The corral should be at least 20x20 feet and the stall at least 12x12 feet. If outside, the stall needs a covered weather shelter. Pipes, poles, or heavy lumber are the preferred construction materials, but heavy gage, small-mesh wire fencing with a 10 to 12 inch "sight board" along the top is acceptable. Barbed wire and large-mesh fencing are too dangerous to the horses and are not acceptable. Owners and trainers recommend keeping the mustang separated from other horses during the training period so that it will learn quicker. Once the horse is gentled, it may be kept in a regular pasture with other animals.

Mustangs average about 15 hands in height and weigh about 900 pounds. For the most part, horses are solid colors, usually shades of gray. Wild horses are of no particular breed, although some may exhibit characteristics generally associated with a specific breed.

IRS Offers Sneak Preview Of 1987 Revised Forms

The Internal Revenue Service has made available advance draft copies of some 1987 federal income tax forms, which reflect the changes to the tax law under the Tax Reform Act of 1986.

The IRS noted that the forms are intentionally kept as similar as possible to last year's forms, but there are significant changes, especially in the areas of claims for dependents, personal exemptions and the computation of standard deduction.

For example, the 1987 Forms 1040 and 1040A require taxpayers to list the social security number of all dependents claimed on the return who are age 5 or older. This provision was added to the law to prevent erroneous claims for dependents, such as those that occur when both divorced parents claim the same children as dependents, even though only one of the parents is legally entitled to claim them.

The IRS urged people who have not applied for a social security number to do as soon as possible. That can be done by filing Form SS-5, "Application for a Social Security Number Card," with the Social Security Administration.

Changes affecting taxpayers who itemize deductions are reflected in Schedule A, which also was released. The schedule eliminates the lines for the general sales tax deduction and changes the lines for personal interest expenses to reflect that only 65 percent of such expenses are deductible for 1987. Other changes made because of the Tax Reform Act of 1986 include changing the limit on medical expenses to 7-1/2 percent of adjusted gross income; adding a line to reflect that moving expenses are allowed only as an itemized deduction; and adding lines to reflect that unreimbursed employee business expenses and certain other expenses are deductible only to the extent they exceed 2 percent of adjusted gross income.

Other drafts released are Schedule D, for capital gains and losses; Schedule E, for supplemental income; and Form 2106, for employee business expenses.

All employees are required by law to file a new Form W-4A or W-4 with their employer by Oct. 1, 1987. According to estimates from surveys the IRS has conducted, a little more than half the nation's employees have completed a new withholding form for 1987. The IRS encourages those who have already filed a form to check again to be sure their withholding will be sufficient for their 1987 tax liability or will give them the desired refund. This can be done with IRS Publication 919, "Is My Withholding Correct?," which can be ordered from IRS forms distribution centers by calling 1-800-424-3676.

The IRS will release drafts of other forms in the coming months. These drafts will be included in three installments in the Internal Revenue Bulletin with the first installment in Bulletin No. 1987-20, dated May 18, 1987. These bulletins are generally available at public libraries. The draft copies of new forms are also being sent to various tax practitioner groups.

The nation's 78.2 million full-time wage and salary workers had median earnings of $369 per week in the first quarter of 1987. This figure was 4.2 percent above the first quarter 1986 level.

Nine From County Among ALC Grads

Alice Lloyd College conferred sixty-three Bachelor of Arts degrees and three Bachelor of Science degrees in ceremonies Saturday, May 16.

The academic procession was led by the ROTC color guard unit from Hazard's M.C. Napier High School.

Traditionally Dr. June Buchanan welcomes the graduates, families, and friends at baccalaureate and commencement ceremonies. But because of illness, she was unable to attend the ceremonies. In tribute to Dr. Buchanan, following the baccalaureate service Saturday morning, graduates of Alice Lloyd College and The June Buchanan School filed through Dr. Buchanan's house where they paid tribute to the co-founder of the College and the person for whom the high school is named. From a wheel chair in her living room, "Miss June," as she is known by her friends, greeted and congratulated each of the graduates.

S. Truett Cathy was the commencement speaker. Mr. Cathy is the owner, originator, and president of Chick-fil-A, Inc., whose restaurants are located in regional malls in 31 states.

The highlight of the commencement ceremonies was the presenting of the degrees by Dr. Wallace Campbell, dean of the college, and Dr. Jerry C. Davis, president of Alice Lloyd College.

As in past years, Dr. Campbell recognized the two persons earning the highest grade point average during their four years at Alice Lloyd College. Byron Jacobs, of Pippa Passes, earned the award for the highest GPA in the 1987 graduating class and Gwen Hamilton, of McDowell, received the award for earning the second highest average in the 1987 graduating class.

The following Floyd county students received degrees: Dexter Allen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Allen, of Harold; David Tackett, son of Mrs. Kay McKenzie, of Bypro; Alesia Ann Meade, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Meade, of Printer; Reka Wood, wife of Vernon Wood, of Hueysville; Joe Marson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Adams, of Prestonsburg; Coy David Sammons, son of Mr. and Mrs. Coy Sammons, of Banner; Melanie Jane Elliott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Elliott, of Hunter; Gwen Hamilton, wife of Ricky Hamilton, of McDowell, and Ruth Ann Hamilton, wife of Leroy Hamilton, of Minnie.

New Assault Is Made On Gerhig's Disease

Muscular Dystrophy Association (MDA) has launched an unparalleled multimillion dollar program to find a treatment for the fatal neuromuscular disease amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (ALS), announced MDA Central Kentucky Chapter President, Bill Leitsch. This multifaceted program, the most ambitious of its kind ever undertaken, involves hundreds of patients and nine MDA investigative teams in four separate therapeutic trials.

"ALS is a vicious killer that attacks men and women in the prime of life. MDA is declaring all out war against this killer," stated MDA National Chairman Jerry Lewis. "This monumental effort is without precedent and was made possible by the overwhelming response of the American people to my 1986 Labor Day Telethon, which raised more than $34 million in pledges."

Total lymphoid irradiation is one bold new experimental ALS treatment being tested in this multipronged attack. In the procedure, radiation is used to suppress cells that form part of the body's immune defense system. The approach is based on the idea held by some experts that ALS is an "autoimmune" disorder in which the immune system mistakenly attacks nerve cells and destroys them. The treatment is being tested in a two-year trial involving 60 patients by an Association-supported investigative team at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore led by MDA clinic director Daniel Drachman, M.D.

In another effort, provocative results in preliminary studies have led MDA to launch the second phase of a projected million-dollar trial of the powerful immune system-suppressing drug cyclosporine. Some 1200 patients at four of the nation's leading medical centers, in Houston, New York, Madison (Wisconsin), and Rochester (New York), will participate in the one-year study.

In the newest experimental therapeutic approach in ALS, human growth hormone will be studied for its possible benefit in stimulating nerve cell growth and regeneration. Sixty patients will be evaluated in a one year trial involving three centers in Los Angeles, San Diego, and Kansas City (Kansas).

In addition, the association is continuing its million-dollar groundbreaking study of TRH—thyrotropin-releasing hormone—the first drug ever to show effectiveness in relieving symptoms of ALS. An MDA-supported research team at Tufts-New England Medical Center in Boston led by MDA Clinic codirector Theodore Munsat, M.D. is evaluating the long-term benefits of the drug when administered through an implanted group. MDA-supported preliminary studies demonstrating short-term therapeutic benefits of TRH in ALS are being followed up by Abbott Laboratories, the drug's manufacturer. Abbott's studies, spanning 14 cities and numerous MDA clinics, seek to obtain confirmation of the conditions under which TRH is most effective—a necessary step before seeking Food and Drug Administration approval for use of the drug in ALS.

ALS, by destroying the motor nerve cells which control the voluntary muscles, causes progressive muscular weakness and wasting. It generally strikes between ages 35 and 65. There is as yet no specific treatment for the disorder, which causes death by weakening vital respiratory muscles. It is commonly known as "Lou Gerhig's disease," after the baseball great whose career and life were cut short by the disease.

MDA is the provider of the world's largest ALS patient service and research program, in which it invested some $7 million in 1986 alone. The disease is one of 40 neuromuscular disorders, including the muscular dystrophies, myasthenia gravis and spinal muscular atrophies, that MDA strives to defeat through its wide-ranging research, patient care, and public health education programs.

Play It Cool—

Know What To Look For And Avoid Heat Stroke

The recent prolonged period of daily high temperatures around the 90 degree level have Kentucky's public health officials issuing their annual warnings about heat stress and the hazards of overexposure to the sun in particular and to hot and humid weather in general.

Carlos Hernandez, M.D., commissioner of the state Department for Health Services, said there were four heat related deaths in Kentucky in 1986, the same number recorded in the previous year.

"It's rare, but it can happen," Hernandez said, "especially if people heavily involved in outdoor recreation or work fail to take precautions against too much exposure to high heat and humidity." Excess exposure can turn sun and fun into heat exhaustion, or worse, heat stroke which can claim the lives of up to half of its victims.

"It's important that people know the difference between the two conditions," Hernandez said, "because although symptoms for each should be attended to, a possible case of heat stroke must result in immediate action by bystanders and a call for medical help."

Heat stroke is a breakdown of the body's ability to carry off heat through perspiration. The victim's skin feels very hot and dry to the touch, may appear flushed at first and then turn gray.

Heat stroke victims may seem confused or even delirious prior to losing consciousness. Fever will be evident as the body's internal temperature rises rapidly, in some cases, to above 110 degrees.

Hernandez said, "Two things are critical in the survival of a heat stroke victim. Emergency medical attention must be summoned at once. But before the professionals arrive, bystanders can make the difference between life and death by working to lower the heat stroke victim's body temperature."

This can be accomplished through several methods, including bathing the victim in water or other cold liquids, covering the body in ice or even wrapping the body in wet sheets and fanning the surrounding air. Arms and legs should be rubbed vigorously in order to get the colder blood circulating throughout the body.

Should convulsions occur, a towel or some other soft object should be placed between the victim's teeth to prevent injury.

Although heat stroke represents a more immediate threat from overexposure to the sun, Hernandez said heat exhaustion strikes with greater frequency.

"Heat exhaustion leaves one's skin feeling moist, yet clammy with perspiration," he said. "The victim may be nauseated, develop a headache or feel dizzy or confused."

Gaitskill Mound Named Landmark

The Gaitskill Mound, owned by David Gaitskill, of Mount Sterling, was recently recognized as a Kentucky archaeological landmark by the Kentucky Heritage Council. This is the eighth site to be recognized in this way by the Heritage Council's new Kentucky Archaeological Registry Program.

"Kentuckians owe a debt of gratitude to Mr. Gaitskill for preserving and protecting one of Kentucky's most important archaeological sites," noted Gov. Martha Layne Collins.

The Gaitskill Mound is a large, oval earthen mound built by people who lived in central Kentucky between 400 B.C. and A.D. 200. These people, named Adena by archaeologists, hunted animals, gathered wild plants for food, and built mounds throughout central Kentucky. The Gaitskill Mound is significant because it is so well-preserved, which is due to the efforts of three generations of Gaitskills. This site was listed in the National Register of Historic Places in 1975.

Gaitskill will receive a certificate signed by Gov. Collins in recognition of his preservation commitment.

The Kentucky Archaeological Registry Program is aimed at protecting significant archaeological sites not protected by federal or state environmental, preservation, or antiquities laws. The program recognizes the significance of the designated archaeological sites, as well as the important role of the property owner in its continued preservation.

Landowners who participate in the program agree to preserve and protect their sites and to notify the Kentucky Heritage Council of any threats to a site or their intent to sell or transfer ownership. The Heritage Council provides assistance in site management and preparation of stronger protection measures at the owner's request, as well as periodic communications regarding Kentucky archaeology and preservation developments.

Heat exhaustion victims should be moved to a cool place and given liquids containing small amounts of salt. As the body's water and salt losses are replaced, the symptoms of heat exhaustion should ease gradually. However, if the victim lapses into a coma, vomits repeatedly or cannot drink the liquids, that treatment should be discontinued and medical assistance should be called.

Avoiding the hazards of heat stress takes nothing more than a little attention and common sense, according to Hernandez.

"If you're working or playing outside in hot weather, take frequent break periods inside or in a cool, shaded area," he said. "Drink plenty of liquids, but not alcoholic beverages. Consumption of alcohol, including beer, may increase urination, offset any advantage that the intake of the liquid provides and boost the possibility of dehydration."

In other words—play it safe; keep cool.

During McKenzie's eight-week training cycle, he studied general military subjects designed to prepare him for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 basic fields. His studies included seamanship, close order drill, Naval history and first aid. Personnel who complete this course of instruction are eligible for three hours of college credit in Physical Education and hygiene.

A 1981 graduate of Prestonsburg High School, he joined the Navy in March, 1987.

Pickering's Tips, Opinions On Radio Broadcasting

Climbing up that radio ladder of success is a common goal shared by all of those who have spent time talking to an audience through the imagination created by a microphone and themselves.

The common goal shared is not always a common goal reached. The ladder isn't always easy to climb, and somewhere along the way a much-needed step is missing.

Reaching the top always means coming all the way from the bottom. Kurt Pickering may not be as high as the position he is ultimately striving for, but his story is no different than the other thousands that make up radio broadcasting.

Following is Pickering's start, present position, and future hopes. He shares tips with those who have visions of entering the enjoyable world of radio, and tells of various problems that come with the spot on the dial.

ALTON: You were born in Ohio, right?

KURT: Uh huh.

ALTON: How did you work your way from there to here?

KURT: When I was 19, I didn't quite know how to get into radio. Even in the small markets, and I grew up in a small market, a city of about 6,000. It was difficult to break in. I pumped gas for a year. I kept telling people I was trying to find out what I wanted to do with my life. I already knew, but I didn't know how to get it done. Finally I decided I needed to get some experience going in, instead of just knocking on doors. That meant probably college, but we didn't have enough money to put me through college. My father had just put my sister through college and was still paying for it. So then my next logical step was enlistment. The GI Bill was the old GI Bill where they paid you a lump sum per month when you got out. You didn't have to save anything toward it like you do now. I went into the Air Force. The tech school for broadcasting was in Indiana. I wound up being roommates with a guy named Ray Keaton, and anyone who gets Channel 27 on their cable system knows who Ray Keaton is. He and I got to be pretty close friends. I took him to my home one weekend, and he took me to his home in Morehead. That weekend I took one look at the campus and fell in love with it. He showed me the radio equipment and so forth and what the school had to offer me. I made up my mind then and there that if I went to college, which was the purpose of going to the military in the first place, it would be Morehead State. Then when I got to Morehead, it just seems that you find jobs in the general region in which you're located. If I had gone to Arizona State, I would have probably gotten a job in Tucson.

ALTON: Morehead State has a reputation as having one of the nation's top radio and TV programs. Would you agree with that?

KURT: That's a well-deserved reputation. The reason is simple. A lot of other schools, and I looked at other schools before I initially chose Morehead. The way I just told the story sounded like I saw Morehead, and bam, decided to go there. When I was a senior in high school, I looked at several schools, and Morehead wasn't one of them. I had never heard of Morehead State then. But I visited several different ones, and their theory is theory, and I don't agree with that. Many universities give you book learning at the undergrad level, and to get any hands on experience you have to go to graduate school. I don't think that's the right way to do it—and who am I to say—but Morehead State doesn't think it's the right way to do it, either. They give you a lot of hands on experience, both in the classroom, and if you are lucky enough to work with WMKY, which is the classiest radio station I have ever worked for. Did you work for them?

ALTON: (Shrug) I was up there. How do you think they helped prepare you for what you do now?

KURT: WMKY or Morehead State?

ALTON: Either or both.

KURT: Don Russell was still the sports director at MKY when I was there. He is now assistant sports information director at Louisville. He is the one who taught me what I spouted a while ago—preparation, and concentration, especially the preparation part. When I said I learned more about radio in the Air Force than in college, that was before we rolled the tape. Sorry about that. I wasn't referring to sports. I already had a lot of things in the bag that I had done. I had done some play-by-play, a lot of it actually, but the difference in what I knew going into Morehead State and coming out was night and day. And I learned most of it in one class under Don Russell. Away from sports they teach you a lot about how to structure and prepare a newscast. And again you can be taught that, and it may go in one ear and out the other, but if you do it three or four days a week it will stay with you. You can learn more of what you are taught if you actually do it rather than if you just read about it.

ALTON: You worked at Highlands Regional as their public relations director. Why did you leave there to join WQHY?

KURT: Re-join. I had worked at WDOC. That was what I was doing when I first came to town. I went to the hospital, because things were not working out the way I had expected. Why did I leave there? It was probably the best job I ever had from a normal human being's standpoint, but it wasn't radio. They did allow me to continue doing sports on the side. I came to know that I wasn't going to be happy if I wasn't doing radio, or something involved in radio. That was only a limited involvement with radio. If someone called up, and asked for a condition report I might give them an answer that might be recorded, and reported, but how many times does that happen? I was interviewed by YMT, and a clip of that appeared on the air, but that happened once in a year, and some odd months. I forget how long I worked there. It was a good job. See, when I went there I thought it was a change in career direction. I thought I was giving up radio, and do play-by-play with QHY as a hobby. I don't think I could ever be happy out of radio.

ALTON: I hear a lot that journalism ink gets in your blood. Is there something about radio that when it gets there it stays?

KURT: It's a bug. It bites you on the arm, or the leg, or some other part of your anatomy, and it gets in your blood, and it stays there, and it will not leave. I enjoyed newspaper work. At Morehead I did that. I had two part-time jobs when I was going through school. One was MKY, and the other was at Morehead News, and I enjoyed the heck out of both. If I hadn't been bitten by the radio bug, I would have probably been bitten by the newspaper bug. You're right about journalism getting in your veins. My mother was a journalist, and if you get into it you had better be successful at it, because you're never going to be happy if you aren't. If you don't stay in it, it's impossible to be happy.

ALTON: Regardless of whether it's newspaper, or radio, you're going to get complaints, and sometimes without good reason. How do you deal with the public and their complaints?

KURT: Not very well. It bothers me when people say I'm not objective. It bothers me when people complain to management rather than coming straight to me. That really gets my goat. In the district tournament this past baseball season...The station never

Nickles Signs With ALC

Former Allen Central High School baseball star Kelly Nickles signed Monday to play baseball at Alice Lloyd College.

Nickles, recognized as one of the best defensive outfielders in the area, also received ALC's academic scholarship, which gives the former Rebel a free college education.

As a member of the East all-star squad this spring, Nickles impressed Georgetown coach Marvin Stringfellow, but Kelly's dad, Shannon Nickles said that the free Alice Lloyd education may be hard to pass up.

"I was supposed to call him back (Stringfellow) for an appointment, but all they would give me was a 1,000 dollars for baseball, and maybe another thousand for academics so I never called him back," Nickles said yesterday.

"I'm getting a full scholarship at Alice Lloyd, and that takes a big financial burden off my parents."

Alice Lloyd is known for its academics, but their baseball program has made strong strides toward respectability.

"Mainly I want an education, work on my engineering degree, with baseball as a second thing," Nickles continued. "Baseball is important to me, and that's probably why I decided to go there. They are giving me a chance to play, and get a free education."

Baseball is also important to Coach Ward, head baseball chief at Alice Lloyd. Coaching is one of the things he gets paid for, and in his first season at the Knott County school, Ward showed knowledge and interest, something Alice Lloyd baseball hasn't had in the past.

Improving team quality is also important to Coach Ward. That is why he signed Kelly Nickles.

"On paper, or when you look at him he isn't the type that many people would call a major prospect, but he gets the job done," Ward said. "Kelly is a scrapper, and I like the way he plays."

At Allen Central Nickles was used at both second base, and centerfield. Ward isn't ruling out any positions, but says left field may be his new recruit's true spot on the field.

"We're not ruling out the possibility that Kelly will play some infield. I really think his best position would be left field because of his arm. He doesn't really have the arm for center field, but we're not ruling out the possibility that he will see action there. It really depends on who else we sign, and where they can play."

In his final season at Allen Central Nickles finished with a .328 batting average in what several people said was an off year offensively for the Rebel product.

"He's a hard kid to pitch to, Ward said. We're not looking at him as a big RBI man, but he has quick hands, he handles the bat well, and he can move runners along. That is where he can help us most at the plate."

Among other aspects of baseball that Ward has brought to Alice Lloyd is the wide open aggressive base, running style. Right up Kelly Nickles baseball alley.

"We do a lot of running here, and when Kelly gets on base he can help us in that area. He isn't really fast, but he has good feet."

Not only is Alice Lloyd known as a strong academic school, it is also known as a strict, tough academic school. Getting baseball talent there isn't a problem. Keeping it there is.

"One of our problems is keeping players in school," Ward stated. "We've had a lot of good baseball players come here, but they can't seem to make the grade."

"Of the nine players they signed last year, only one played this spring. That's the good thing about Kelly. I know he will be here as a student too."

"He can be here for four years, and contribute to the team three, if not all four of those years."

Four years may be over doing it. Nickles says he may transfer after two years at Alice Lloyd to pursue his engineering degree at the University of Kentucky.

"If I decide to transfer after two years they have agreed to help me. That was another big reason why I decided to go to school there," Nickles said.

ALTON: Morehead State has a reputation as having one of the nation's top radio and TV programs. Would you agree with that?

KURT: That's a well-deserved reputation. The reason is simple. A lot of other schools, and I looked at other schools before I initially chose Morehead. The way I just told the story sounded like I saw Morehead, and bam, decided to go there. When I was a senior in high school, I looked at several schools, and Morehead wasn't one of them. I had

Morehead's Longball Power Sets Floyd County Down In Two Games

Led by Charles 'Chopper' Gambill, Morehead's American Legion baseball team slammed seven homeruns on their way to a doubleheader sweep of Floyd county, Wednesday.

Gambill, a Magoffin county product, drilled four of these homeruns, while driving in a two-game total of nine runs on a perfect six-for-six at the plate.

Known as the best catcher in the state of Kentucky last year, Gambill is now set as Morehead State's number one backstop and proved why Wednesday evening.

With two runners on and one out in the first inning of the first game, Gambill slugged his first homerun, a towering three-run shot over the leftfield wall.

In Morehead's 4-1 first game victory, Gambill drove in all four Morehead runs, collecting his fourth RBI with a solo homerun off Brian Hall in the fifth inning.

Hall, who had relieved Nathan Shelton, Floyd County starting pitcher, in the second inning, had shut powerful Morehead down until that at bat.

After Shelton developed arm problems, Hall began his work in the bottom of the second inning. Over the last five innings, the former McDowell star held Morehead to only one hit and one run. Hall struck out two and walked four in his first outing of the season.

Shelton, 1-2, suffered the Floyd County loss, going only one inning, but giving up three runs on five hits.

Vic Adams, Morehead starting pitcher, received the win, pitching all seven innings. In his complete game performance, Adams surrendered four hits and one unearned run.

Floyd County, trailing 3-0, scored their lone run in the second inning when Big Brad Hall reached on a Kip Crager error, advanced to second as Darrin Conn singled, and later scored when Gambill, trying to pick Conn off second, threw into centerfield.

Over the final five innings, Floyd County could manage only three base hits—a Brad Hall single in the fourth, Johnny Ray Harris' one-bagger in the fifth, and a Thomas Hall single in the final frame.

Floyd County, 2-3-1 with the doubleheader loss, could never get a runner past first base in the final five innings, falling 4-1.

In Wednesday's second contest Floyd County woke their bats up, but unfortunately for the local squad, so did Morehead.

Led by Kelly Nickles' three singles, Floyd County banded out a total of nine hits, scoring nine runs, but fell victim to Morehead's awesome offensive attack, losing 15-9.

Charles Gambill once again evolved as the major villain, enjoying a four-for-four offensive performance. With two homeruns, and two singles, Gambill drove in four runs to top Morehead's plate showing.

Off starting pitcher Mark Tipton, Morehead scored three unearned runs in the first, added a David Gray homerun in the second, and chased Tipton in the third inning.

Daniel Click led the third inning off with a single, and was followed by yet another 'Chopper' Gambill long ball. Tipton was replaced on the mound by Roger Horne, who experienced a defensive letdown that Tipton had suffered in the opening inning.

Two errors and two outs after Horne took the mound, Jason Blair turned a pitch around for another Morehead homerun, proving to be the Floyd County backbreaker.

Floyd County had cut the Morehead lead to one run in the third inning, scoring three in the top half of the frame, but Blair's shot put distance in between the two teams.

With two out in the third, Kelly Nickles drove in Tim Trusty with a single and later scored when Brian Hall doubled. Hall later scored on the play as the throw back to the infield eluded third baseman Jason Blair, and rolled into the Morehead dugout.

Floyd County rallied once again cutting the lead to 9-5, but was once again denied their comeback effort.

Brad Hall, regular Betsy Layne first baseman, got one run back himself, when, in the fourth inning, he exploded on a Greg Cole fastball.

Hall took the Morehead righthander deep, driving a shot well over the 345 sign in left centerfield. In the doubleheader, Hall was three for seven with three RBIs and three runs scored.

Floyd County edged one run closer in the top of the fifth when Kelly Nickles singled and later scored on a Roger Horne groundout.

But staying close didn't last long. Morehead, 18-3, on the season padded their lead with five runs in the bottom of the fifth inning, and eased to the 15-9 final score. Greg Cole, another Magoffin county product, worked six innings to gain the victory.

Although not much good can come from two losses, Floyd County, in its first year of existence, provided the county with solid representation.

Playing against what most baseball people say is the best amateur program in the state, the youthful, local squad proved that they belonged on the same field with the best this state has to offer.

Recruiting from all across the mountain area, Don Harden, Morehead coach, owns rights to talented players from Raceland to Magoffin county—from Paintsville to Montgomery county.

The Floyd County senior Babe Ruth squad is made up of only those players from Floyd county, but so far so good with homegrown talent.

Knott County Hands Locals 7-6 Defeat

Playing before their home fans for the first time, Floyd County failed to impress anyone, falling 7-6 to Knott County, Monday night.

After jumping out to a 6-2 early lead, the local Senior Babe Ruth squad committed four errors in the third and fourth innings, allowing Knott County to sneak out the one-run victory.

Floyd County, after Kevin Webb put KC up 2-0 with a two-run homerun in the top of the first, rallied with a three-spot in the home half of the first inning.

Leadoff hitter Johnny Ray Harris opened the Floyd County first with a double to right centerfield. After stealing third, Harris rode home on a Brian Hall double.

Brian Hall scored when Brad Hall drilled a double. The latter Hall came home on a wild pitch.

Floyd County built their lead to four runs with another three-spot in the second inning, thanks to Tony Kidd and Brad Hall's back-to-back singles, an error, and Brian Hall's two-run double.

Defense once again proved to be a problem. This time Brian Hall, 0-1, suffered from a lack of steady play.

Hall, after walking the ninth hitter, surrendered a single to Mason Slone. With one out, Hall hit Chris Nickles with a pitch to load the bases.

Upstepped Kevin Webb, and again the Allen Central diamond star hurt his home county opponents.

Webb, Knott County's catcher, bounced a ground ball through the middle, scoring two runs. On the play, Nickles and Webb both advanced an extra base, on an error, allowing Nickles to trot home on Neal Caudill's flyout.

Knott County added two unearned runs in the fourth inning, with the last one eventually proving to be the game winner.

Floyd County, 2-4-1, failed to do any further damage after the second inning.

Following two innings of six-hit, and six, run baseball, Floyd County buckled under the ability of righthander Waylon Estep.

Estep, winning pitcher in Knott County's other victory over Floyd County, gave up two hits over the final three innings, and held FC scoreless.

Floyd County left two runners on in the third inning and missed a golden scoring opportunity in the fifth.

After Roger Horne opened the final frame with a single, the Floyd County shortstop was gunned down trying to steal.

With a Darrin Conn single sandwiched by two errors, Floyd County loaded the bases, but failed to score as Tony Kidd struck out, and 'Little' Brad Hall flied out to centerfield.

Hitting in the top of the sixth, the game was scheduled for seven innings, Knott County scored two more unearned runs, but the rains came, washing out play.

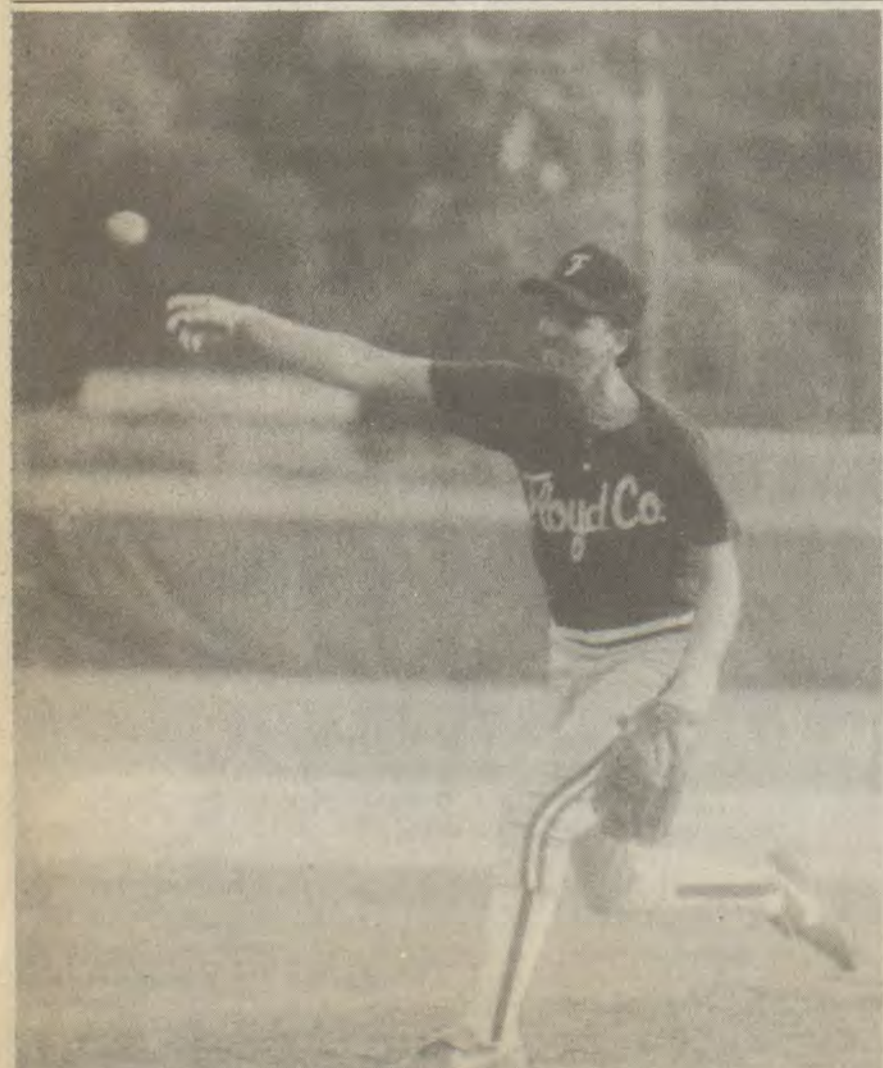

The damage had been done, though. Floyd County, with the loss, went down to defeat for the third consecutive time, falling twice to Morehead before losing the error fest Monday night.

The local squad has another chance to redeem itself in the eyes of Knott County, and local fans.

Floyd County will take on KC this evening in a scheduled doubleheader at Allen Park.

Roger Horne will take the hill in the first game, set to begin at 6. Other than Nathan Shelton, Horne is the only Floyd County pitcher possessing a victory.

Righthander Mark Tipton, if healthy, will work the second game for the local squad.

SOLID PERFORMANCE: Brian Hall, former McDowell standout, turned in a solid pitching performance against Morehead. In five innings Hall gave up only one run on one hit, walking four and striking out two.

Pickering Explains Radio...

mentioned it to me so apparently it wasn't taken too seriously, or the general manager heard the game and didn't agree with the lady. I don't know. But some lady was telling a story one night at Stumbo park when I was umpiring. You should hear him on the radio. I called the station and complained about him. I was aware of the conversation, but not really listening, as an umpire should do, but I was talking to someone after the game who was there, and I said, what was she talking about. The first it was that she had called the station after the Allen Central-Betsy Layne game to complain that I was pro-Betsy Layne. If that lady would talk directly to me then I could find out why she thinks that way. We sat here and did a whole schedule of Prestonsburg games, and if I'm going to be pro-anybody, I'm going to be pro-Prestonsburg. Now, why I would be pro-Allen Central, or pro-Betsy Layne is beyond me. Your question is how do I deal with that, and the answer is not very well. It bothers me, and I would like to talk directly to people who have a problem like that for two reasons. One is that I can find out why they think that it is that they think, and the other reason is that maybe they are right. Maybe I am doing something that isn't right, and there is nothing like constructive criticism that helps you find a flaw and straighten it out. Maybe I was pro-Betsy Layne in that game. But in my heart I wasn't. I didn't care who won it. Maybe I came across like that. I would like to find out why she thought that way, but she didn't talk to me, and I don't even know who she is.

ALTON: On the other hand, a lot of people have told me that they have been impressed with what you do, quality-wise, and are glad that you're doing it. Does this, in some way, offset the complaints?

KURT: Like any human being I love to get compliments. I've had a lot of positive feedback on the play-by-play. I've had people tell me I'm talented, and I try to explain to them, but it comes off as not taking a compliment well. I don't really agree with them. I don't say thank you, period. I say, I'm not talented. I work hard. It's really all it takes. Play-by-play is a skill made not born. If you can talk and chew bubble gum. Or talk and walk down the street, or however you want to put it. You can do good play-by-play if you have a reasonable depth of knowledge about the sport you are doing, and if you prepare.

ALTON: You have taken the route

most people in radio have to take. Start at the bottom and work your way up. What would be your advice to a high school senior that was interested in getting into radio?

KURT: Go to college. Do not major in journalism or radio. Minor in either. Take all the courses in the one that you don't minor in. Major in English. That is so important if we're talking news, sports, copy, any of that stuff. Disc jockeying is a skill that I don't think you need college for. You will probably get farther in the bigger markets if you have a degree of some kind. I wouldn't want to advise anyone on how to get into jockeying, because I've never been in it fulltime, but I suspect AA would be a sufficient bit of education for disc jockeying. It's a hard job. It's a fun job, but if you do it right, it also takes a great amount of preparation. A lot of people think a disc jockey sits there for three minutes while the record is playing then when the record stops playing they come on and talk for 10 seconds, and that is the amount of time he works per hour, ten seconds every three minutes. It's just not true. I don't think education is as important as your personality, your ability to entertain an audience. We've got some excellent disc jockeys. I don't know which have degrees and which don't. I think you will be more realistically looked at for a job coming if you have a degree of some kind, if you are looking for something in news and sports. As a disc jockey, I don't know if that is important.

ALTON: Thanks for talking with me. In keeping with tradition some people will like it, and some will criticize.

KURT: Uh huh.

ALTON: Thanks.

KURT: Okay. You're welcome.

The Floyd County Times sports section would once again like to thank Kurt Pickering for his time and for sharing his experience and vast knowledge of the radio industry. His voice has brought county sports into the homes of many parents and fans. We, along with many of you, appreciate his talents.

Also, two questions were edited from the conversation. They had no significance to either radio broadcasting or county athletics, but in one comment Pickering said, "If you want to see a shiver go up my spine just mention the name Dick Vitale."

The interviewer in this instance felt the same as did the interviewee. Pickering doesn't enjoy Vitale, and the feeling between the two people listed throughout the conversation is certainly the same.

SHORT SPORTS

Tom Seaver, only a short time after re-joining the New York Mets, announced he would retire from baseball, Monday.

Seaver was recently released by the California Angels and signed by the Mets for the third time, but the veteran right-hander has apparently hung up his spikes for the final time.

In 1969, and again in 1973, Tom Seaver teamed with Jon Matlack and others to lead the Mets to the world series. When Seaver was brought back to New York, he didn't sign any contract, but said he would be ready to go somewhere around June 22. June 22 rolled around, and Seaver went.

During his early career, Tom Seaver was recognized as one of the hardest throwers in baseball. Armed with a rising fastball, he brought home three CY Young awards.

As the years took their toll on his legs and arms, Seaver changed his style, developed a curve, and changeup, and left New York for Cincinnati.

There Seaver picked up a no-hitter, among many other big victories. The incredible major league career of Tom Seaver spanned almost two decades and a total of 311 wins. Of those are some of the most memorable of baseball history.

The Detroit Pistons may have filled their only void this past week when they traded for center William Bedford.

Playing without a true post man, the Pistons advanced to the conference semi-finals. Now they have a seven-footer to bang the boards.

Detroit obtained Bedford from the Phoenix Suns in exchange for the Pistons number one draft choice in 1988.

Bedford, 7'1", was a first round pick by the Suns this past year and a former star at Memphis State.

Firing your manager doesn't always guarantee a turnaround. Just ask Philadelphia Phillies management.

They gave John Felske the ax last week, but Lee Elia isn't a savior. He isn't even staying close.

The Phillies, after obtaining Lance Parrish in the off season, and with their young talent aging, thought they had the team that should challenge in the NL East.

After 50 games of the season came and went, Philadelphia management felt John Felske was the reason why they were fighting for the cellar, instead of upstairs.

Felske was sent packing, and coach Lee Elia was moved up to making out the lineups. Elia has served as manager before with the Chicago Cubs.

He is expected to finish this season, but Philadelphia hasn't shown any signs of keeping him around long. Winning has a way of assuring a manager longer life, but bad play always falls back into the manager's lap.

Major League baseball laid one of it's finer family members to rest, Sunday. Funeral services were held for former Kansas City manager Dick Howser.

Howser, who passed away Wednesday, lost his battle with brain cancer, and family and fans paid their last respects to Howser, Sunday.

In 1985 Howser led Kansas to a World Series title, but during the 1986 season Howser checked into a hospital, complaining with headaches.

Less than a year later he surrendered to brain cancer, a condition he was pronounced with last year.

In 1985 the Royals battled back from a 3-1 deficit to capture the series. Howser was a main influence in their never-say-die attitude.

Howser was known as a fighter, and he did fight up to the bitter end, but this time his opponent was unbeatable.

The Kentucky all-star basketball team is hoping home court advantage will hold true this Saturday in their return bout with Indiana.

Made up of seniors from all across the state of Kentucky, the Bluegrass squad fell victim twice to Indiana's all-star teams.

The girls lost 91-76 while the boys' team was upended 104-92, Saturday in Indiana.

This week both teams will face off in a return bout with the enemy from across the line. The girls game is set to begin at 6:30 in Freedom Hall, with the boys contest following the conclusion of the opening matchup.

Floyd County's senior Babe Ruth squad will give Morehead one more try this Friday night with a scheduled doubleheader.

The local squad fell to powerful Morehead, 4-1, and 15-9 this past Wednesday.

The first game is scheduled to begin at 6 with the second following 30 minutes after the conclusion of the opening contest.

Pitching matchups are not set as of yet, but Nathan Shelton is expected to start one game for Floyd county.

The Sporting Times

Sports prognosticators are those of a different breed. They, because of minute knowledge, put their necks, and reputations on the chopping block.

Some call themselves professionals while others turn their prognosticating into entertainment, a sort of amusing wrongness.

The wheelers and dealers of Las Vegas odds making utilize high tech computers, and years of statistical information in order to determine an outcome. Who plays well on grass, and how well this team plays against the other team all enters their final point spread, and winners.

Lenard Poststie, of radio fame, picks losers instead of winners. His comparisons, and witty one-liners have attracted a huge audio following. Most people forget where his prediction hit the intended mark, or miss horribly.

Jimmy the Greek has been posting his football predictions for several years on CBS. The Greek isn't flashy, but he has earned an audience due to his effectiveness.

Prognosticators are a dime a dozen. They come with varying styles and results. Even though their purpose, predicting the outcome of a sporting event, is rarely achieved, they are all professional prognosticators.

Every sports fan is a prognosticator. The word means to predict, or foretell. We all can do this, but how many true prognosticators do we have among us?

I have battled with myself in trying to determine if I am a prognosticator or not. I have predicted the outcome of season's winners before the campaign even begins. The problem is that I never ever choose the correct winners.

The main question is, do your predictions have to be on the money, or can you get some change back? Not everyone can hit the jackpot all the time, but shouldn't a prognosticator be able to put forth the correct prediction on one occasion or the other.

The memory of last year's football season is a bitter one. I remember raving about how the Los Angeles Raiders were going to dominate, and they didn't even win their division.

I did have three of the six divisional winners tabbed correctly, but who didn't. Anyone with the knowledge of a jarfly picked Chicago, the New York Giants, and Cleveland. Still, this has to count for something.

Last year was a disappointment from top to bottom. I was the one, but not the only one, who had North Carolina as the NCAA basketball champ. They should have won it. They had the most talent, but this is what makes this selection process so difficult. The best teams do not always win.

Oh, but I love a challenge.

That is why I chose Dallas, and Milwaukee as my NBA finalists. This is the kind of challenge that I can live without.

Anyone could have picked Los Angeles, and Boston. Logic told us this, but I'm not Doctor Spock. Emotion is what I go by, plus some instincts.

It may be time for a doubletake on these two.

Milwaukee gave good showing of themselves. They made me think I had picked an underdog with good cause, but those thoughts faded rather quickly.

The Mavericks are who disappointed me. They bailed out early, and to make things worse, not to the best team.

To have anyone except LA, and Boston in the finals is kind of like talking baseball without the Yankees.

To simply pick the Lakers and Celtics would be to conform to professional basketball society. This would have been the correct solution, but sharing it with a whole country would take something away from the meaning of being right.

Why not be different? Sure it was the wrong decision, but I was one of the few who chose Dallas and Milwaukee. At least my decision stood out. It got recognition, and sometimes even bad recognition is better than no recognition at all.

I'm still sticking to my predicting guns. The jury is still out because baseball results haven't been tallied yet.

The last time I checked the standings my predictions were faring well. At least I'm not out of the running yet.

Cincinnati is still fighting for that NL West lead, and if they ever get some starting pitching, the Reds will run away and hide from the rest of the west.

Before we go any farther I would like to remind everyone that Sports Illustrated had Cleveland as winning the American League's Eastern Division. Woah!

Now, back to the top of the AL East. Toronto is the team I selected, and watch those Jays go. They have the best record in baseball, or at least they did when I started this thing, and they are all mine. Yep, I chose them to win the East.

Over in the AL West, my Royals have dipped lately, but George Brett is back, and I'm feeling good about KC's chances. Baseball lost a great man when Dick Howser passed away, and I still expect the Royals organization to rally around his memory.

Oh yea, the National League East. I almost forgot, and by design.

How about those Mets? They are the surprise team of the '80s, but in the wrong direction. In an attempt to gain some prognosticating respectability I conformed, and selected to the favorite Mets.

Never again. Although they have the best team ever assembled since the Big Red Machine, New York can't seem to avoid injuries, physical and personal.

Dwight Gooden was hurt by cocaine, and Roger McDowell was just hurt. I haven't given up on this pick, but if St. Louis continues to play the way they have, no one is going to catch the Red Birds. They may be what's wrong with the Mets.

Webster's New World dictionary tells me I am a prognosticator. But it also tells me that anyone can be. A professional prognosticator? I do get paid, and being paid makes you a professional at whatever you're being paid for.

The question may be; am I a quality prognosticator? Not so far, but remember that I'm only in my second year. Also remember that I don't claim to be good, but rest assured that when I hit one you'll hear about it.

The 10th Annual Rail City Run by the River 10K race was held recently at Russell attracting 175 entrants from the tri-state area. Chris Parsons, of Barboursville, W. Va., won the race over a hot and humid 6.2 mile course in 33:17. Frank Stanley, of Paintsville, finished fourth in 34:08, while Rick Roberts, of Allen, was seventh in 34:47. Marvin McFaddin, of Paintsville, finished second in his age group in 39:22. Roberts and Stanley also were second in their age groups, and all three runners received awards.

Basebrawling In Atlanta While Cincinnati Holds On To First

Fighting for first place in the NL West took on a different meaning this past weekend in Atlanta. More was on the minds of Braves' and Reds' players, something other than baseball.

Homerun pitch came to fastball in the back. Verbal battles came to shove. Bill Gullickson, and Andres Thomas fell together on the Fulton county turf. This was born the first of two Atlanta-Cincinnati basebrawls.

Following back-to-back Dale Murphy, and Ken Griffey longballs, Gullickson hit Thomas in the back with a fastball. When the fight was finally broken up, Gullickson and Thomas experienced the ole heave-ho.

Fighting isn't what Gullickson does best, but neither was throwing a baseball Saturday. Cincinnati, on the strength of opening inning homeruns by Kal Daniels, his 16th, and Tracy Jones, posted their big righthander to a two-run lead.

Gullickson, 7-5, couldn't hold the lead though, as the Reds fell victim to Atlanta, 8-6. Ron Oester and Kurt Stillwell also collected homeruns for Cincinnati in the losing effort.

One night before Cincinnati had enjoyed longball success, two homeruns and four RBIs from Nick Esasky, but rookie Pat Pacillo had already given up four Atlanta runs in the bottom of the first inning.

The Braves led 7-2 in the fifth inning when Barry Larkin sailed a pinch hit homerun out of the launching pad, but Cincinnati still fell short, 16-5.

The 16 runs represented the most Cincinnati has given up this year and is a single game high for the Braves, the biggest output of its kind since 1985.

Paul O'Neil, reserve outfielder, pitched in the latter innings for the Reds, and now the latest rumor has O'Neil going to Nashville to improve his mound ability, possibly for a future position change.

Cincinnati could need him, or any fresh arm on the hill.

Thursday night Guy Hoffman, formerly a reliever, worked long enough to get his sixth victory of the season, but the little lefty gave up four runs in just over five innings.

The Reds, behind Eric Davis' three-run homerun, dumped Atlanta 8-4. At that time they led second place Houston by two games and a half.

But back-to-back losses allowed both the Astros, and San Francisco to regain lost ground. Reds' pitching surrendered 24 runs in two losses Friday and Saturday. Nothing changed Sunday, but Cincinnati did manage to out-slug Atlanta.

Tracy Jones collar whipped Jim Aker, and the Reds beat the Braves 6-5. In a repeat performance of Saturday, Eric Davis hit his 22nd of the year to tie him with Dale Murphy as the league's number one longball hitter.

Dave Parker, now playing first base, followed with another solo homerun in the opening inning. Like Bill Gullickson the day before, Ted Power, Reds starter, failed to hold Atlanta.

Trailing 5-4 in the top of the ninth inning, Kurt Stillwell singled in Bo Diaz with the tying run. With Bill Landrum—six hitters faced with six outs, doing a number on Braves' bats, Buddy Bell gave Cincinnati the lift they needed.

Bell, hitless in four appearances, drove a 10th inning Gene Garber pitch into the leftfield stands. Landrum proceeded to set Atlanta down in order, enabling the Reds to gain a four-game split on the road.

Homeruns weren't the only order of the day. Tracy Jones, after being hit with a pitch in the eighth inning, collared pitcher Jim Aker, threw both him and catcher Ozzie Virgil to the ground. Jones was then thrown from the game.

The Reds didn't gain any ground on either Houston or San Francisco as both teams won easily to keep pace. Cincinnati, while they rested, Monday, enjoyed a half game lead over the Astros.

Going into San Francisco, the Reds

sport a different look. Saturday the long anticipated move was finalized.

Dave Parker, a long-time righthander, moved to first base, opening the outfield for both Kal Daniels, and Tracy Jones. The two had been sharing the leftfield spot.

Apparently this was supposed to help the Reds offense, but pitching is where Cincinnati suffers most.

Releasing Jerry Reuss has been proved a mistake. The veteran lefthander, released recently by the Reds, won his first game of the season, Sunday.

Now pitching for California, Reuss beat Kansas City, 8-0, Sunday.

The Reds continue their desperate search for starting pitching. Most expect Nick Esasky to go somewhere for someone. Esasky says just get it decided one way or the other.

Barry Larkin, even though he is a Cincinnati native, may also be expendable. Stillwell is producing, and as a result Larkin's talents are going to waste on the Cincinnati bench.

Ron Oester has shown signs of hitting line drives, but the Reds, if they are to win the Western Division, will have to give up some talent in order to obtain a pitcher who can get through five innings consistently.

Marlo Soto is still south of the border, and Cincinnati people say he probably will never fully recover. The Reds can score runs, but they don't have anyone to prevent the other team from scoring more.

Cincinnati will continue their series with San Francisco tonight before packing up camp Thursday night.

Allen Batting Cage Installed

By OSCAR RICE

Thanks to the generosity of the Kinzer Drilling Company, the local baseball teams now have a major league style batting tunnel installed at the Allen Ball Park.

The batting tunnel is used by the Babe Ruth and Little League teams for more intensified batting practice, and even as little as two players can now take batting practice without having to chase foul balls and long hits.

Pre-game batting practice is creating quite an interest as coaches are using this "training tool" to give more personalized batting instruction to their players. One recent day saw two Little League and one Babe Ruth team use the tunnel for practice.

Coaches or individuals can see park manager Oscar Rice for a bucket of baseballs to help with practice.

Thanks to dad Willard, and sons Terry and Jerry and their families, we can point with pride to our spring and summer baseball programs and this invaluable teaching aid.

The Kinzers' pride in eastern Kentucky was very evident, as they asked for no publicity for this gift to the park, but merely wanted to help our youths.

So if you see Willard, Terry, or Jerry, just say thanks from all our ball teams; also park manager Oscar Rice wants to thank park co-worker Estil Mullins for his idea on the framework which saved the county approximately $400 dollars by using old discarded pipe for the framework.

Charity Golf Classic

The 6th annual Children's Charity Golf Classic was held at the Greenbrier Golf and Country Club, in Lexington, June 20th. All proceeds from the event benefited the Children's Fund of the Bluegrass.

Some of this year's celebrities were Congressman Larry Hopkins, Kyle Macy, Jose' Ferrer, Alex Trebek, Lloyd Bochner, Ed Nelson, Robert Morse, Ken Anderson, Eddie Sutton, and Joe B. Hall. During the first 5 years of the Children's Charity Classic, almost 1/4 of a million dollars has been distributed to various Children's organizations in the Central Kentucky area.

Kentucky Afield 10 Streams To Stock Brown Trout, June 30

Ten creeks and several of their tributaries in the southeastern portion of the state will be stocked with brown trout for the second consecutive year on June 30 in an effort to establish wild brown trout fisheries in these waters.

Approximately 40 workers from the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, U.S. Forest Service, U.S. Parks Service and Trout Unlimited will carry 9,000 three-inch brown trout in backpacks and release the fish into the streams. Approximately 200 will be stocked per mile to distribute the fish over as much of stream as possible.

This final brown trout stocking is expected to provide 80 miles of wild brown trout fishing water by 1990, when there should be a large enough wild population from natural reproduction to open these waters to carefully regulated fishing. The names of these streams will not be released until then.

In addition to these "self-sustaining" brown trout streams, browns will also be stocked annually on a put-grow-and-take basis in other waters. This stocking program will begin next year, after a statewide stream rating study has been completed.

The streams under consideration are already stocked with rainbow trout, and Axon says the brown trout stocking should make trout fishing even better.

"Trout fishing will be available in a larger area of these streams because brown trout will use a wider range of habitat," said Axon, "and since browns are heartier, bigger, and more difficult to catch, they should also remain in the streams much longer than rainbows and will grow up to several pounds in size."

Brown trout can withstand warmer water temperatures and will occupy deeper pools in streams, which gives anglers not only more trout water to fish, but also a chance to use a wider variety of methods to catch these fish.

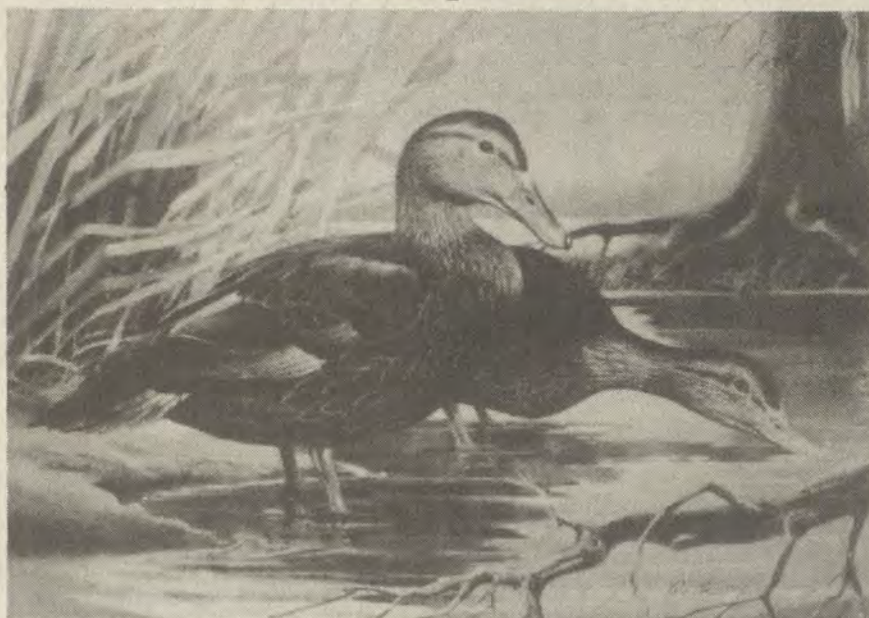

The trout that will be stocked annually will be three inches long when released, and will grow to a harvestable size and eventually provide a better opportunity to catch trout other than immediately after being stocked. The names of the streams will be released after they have been determined and a stocking schedule prepared.

Developing these wild brown trout fisheries is one phase of Kentucky's overall trout program, which has as its goal to establish trout fishing in as much suitable coldwater trout habitat as possible, according to Jim Axon, assistant director of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resource's fisheries division.

Wild brown trout streams will provide an addition to the put-and-take rainbow trout program familiar to most anglers. The put-and-take program consists of releasing harvestable sized fish into streams and tailwaters, where most of the fish are usually caught shortly after being stocked.

Trout anglers are required to obtain a trout stamp before fishing. Trout stamps are available at county clerk offices and many sporting goods stores.

1987 Duck Stamp Commissioned

The Kentucky Ducks Unlimited Waterfowl Committee has commissioned wildlife artist R. J. McDonald to produce the image for the 1987 Kentucky Duck Stamp and Print.

This year marks the third year for the Duck Stamp program in Kentucky. It also marks the 50th anniversary of Ducks Unlimited, which has done so much for waterfowl development and conservation throughout North America.

The Kentucky State Committee of Ducks Unlimited and other conservation groups were instrumental in persuading the Kentucky State Legislature to establish a waterfowl stamp program as a means of financing the acquisition, protection, maintenance and improvement of waterfowl habitats. The Kentucky Waterfowl Stamp Bill was passed in 1984 and signed by Governor Martha Layne Collins.

R. J. McDonald is one of the most collectible limited edition print artists in America today. At least 90% of all his prints published within the last 15 years have been completely sold out.

Since 1969 he has specialized in wildlife paintings. McDonald's years of art school and experience as a professional illustrator are supplemented by meticulous research. He never touches a paint brush without adequate preparation. Days are spent in the field, followed by hours of reviewing notes and photographs before the idea is conceived. He has an insatiable curiosity about the subjects he paints and an uncanny ability to visualize extraordinary, dramatic compositions from everyday life.

His down-home appeal, with his background and subject matters, has garnered McDonald some of the top honors that could be bestowed on a wildlife artist. He was named Ducks Unlimited Artist of the Year (1981-82); "Wildlife Artist and Sculptor" of Tennessee for 1979; First Deer Unlimited Stamp 1980; commissioned to paint the state bird of Tennessee and the state animal of South Carolina.

McDonald has shown in the prestigious Waterfowl Festival at Easton, Maryland and is a charter member and exhibitor at the Southeastern Wildlife Exposition in Charleston, South Carolina. He is slated to be ARTIST OF THE YEAR IN 1988 for the EXPO.

Frame House Gallery, Inc., of Louisville, Kentucky, publishers of limited edition prints, will be publishing the 1987 Kentucky Duck Stamp Print.

The stamp print image depicts a pair of Black Ducks resting at water's edge. The design will be reproduced in a signed and numbered edition of prints. The image of the print will be 6 1/2" x 9", printed in full color on high quality, acid free paper using fade resistant inks.

The print may be purchased from local art dealers. The name of an art dealer in your area can be obtained by writing to Frame House Gallery, Inc., 110 East Market Street, Louisville, Kentucky 40202 or by calling (502) 587-7424.

Russell's Raiders Win Tourney

Russell's Raiders, the top ranked Weeksbury Softball League team, swept through this past weekend's Melvin Boosters Club sponsored softball tournament.

The tournament champs defeated Tri-County TV 9-2, then thumped Buckingham Coal 29-3 to advance to the finals.

In the championship Russell's Raiders again turned back Tri-County TV 6-2, this time claiming the tournament title.

The first polo game in America was played indoors at Dickel's Riding Academy in New York City in 1876.

HBO airs benefit concert for Vietnam veterans

By Marianne Meyer
During the last decade, movies, books and television have documented the trauma and depression that have plagued many Vietnam veterans. But despite the attention that has been paid, many vets still don't know how to find help - or are unable to.

John Ritter

With that sobering reality, actor John Ritter drove home the plight of Vietnam vets - the reason behind HBO's presentation of "Welcome Home," a benefit concert airing Saturday, July 4. Ritter and actor Jon Voight joined members of the veterans' support group Welcome Home Inc. at a press conference to announce plans for the show, which is both a tribute to Vietnam veterans and an effort to raise funds for medical and mental health services for them. "Welcome Home" will be held at Robert F. Kennedy Stadium in Washington, D.C., on Saturday afternoon, then edited for broadcast that evening. Because the event is a benefit, portions of the show may be "unscrambled" (as was last March's "Comic Relief" benefit for the homeless) to enable those without HBO to watch it. But you don't have to subscribe to HBO to make a contribution to the cause. Just call 1-800-USA-1987.

Among the acts scheduled to appear are Crosby, Stills and Nash, James Brown, Linda Ronstadt, the Four Tops, James Ingram, John Fogerty, Anita Baker, George Carlin and Kris Kristofferson. The program also may include dramatic readings and short documentaries. "I've been involved in some of the poorest of television," Ritter said with a self-effacing laugh as he recalled his days on "Three's Company." It's clear that "Welcome Home" aims at being a quality show, and no laughing matter.

• On Sunday, June 28, WTBS's weekly National Geographic series "Explorer" presents "Tornado Alley," which focuses on that fascinating, often devastating weather phenomenon, and on the "tornado chasers" who track them. It's a science segment that's well worth watching.

ASK TONI

Look for Jamie Lee Curtis in upcoming movies

By Toni Reinhold

I love Jamie Lee Curtis. How old is she? Is she married? Does she have any children? What is she doing? - S.P., Cincinnati, Ohio

Jamie Lee Curtis

Curtis, who first made her mark on moviedom in the horror flicks "Halloween" (1978) and "Halloween II" (1981), is 29 years old. She is married to actor Christopher Guest, and they have a 6-month-old adopted daughter, Annie. Curtis is currently starring in "Amazing Grace and Chuck," an anti-nuclear film also starring Gregory Peck. Watch for her in the forthcoming films "Dominick and Eugene" and "A Fish Called Wanda."

Who plays Lacey's husband on "Cagney & Lacey"? - F.C., Baton Rouge, La.
John Karlen portrays Harvey Lacey, the hard-working husband of Detective Mary Beth Lacey (Tyne Daly). Karlen fans will remember his portrayal of Willie Loomis in the gothic soap opera "Dark Shadows."

One of my all-time favorite TV shows is "Gunsmoke." What happened to its stars? - B.F., Peoria, Ill.

CBS has a treat in store for fans of this classic Western series, which originally aired from 1955 to 1975. James Arness, who for all 20 seasons portrayed Dodge City Marshal Matt Dillon, and Amanda Blake, who for 19 seasons played Miss Kitty, will re-create those roles in a new TV movie scheduled to air during the 1987-88 season.

Who played Fred Gwynne's partner in "Car 54, Where Are You?" - E.N., Bethlehem, Pa.

This sitcom, which aired from 1961 to 1963 on NBC, starred Gwynne as Officer Francis Muldoon and Joe E. Ross as his squad-car partner, Officer Gunther Toody.

How old are Ryan and Tatum O'Neal? I say he's in his 50s, because she looks so old. But my sister says he hasn't turned 50 yet. Who's right? - T.K., Chester, Vt.

Sis is right on this one, T.K. Ryan O'Neal was born on April 20, 1941, which makes him 46 years old. His daughter, Tatum, who is married to tennis star John McEnroe, is 23. She was born on Nov. 5, 1963.

C.A.T. SQUAD

Joseph Cortese (seated) heads a special government tactical unit in "C.A.T. Squad," airing TUESDAY, JUNE 30 on NBC. Steven W. James (l.), Jack Youngblood and Patricia Charbonneau also star.

Winfrey keeps busy with two ABC specials

By Wendy Wallace

Talk-show host Oprah Winfrey has a busy week ahead of her. This week, the star of the syndicated "Oprah Winfrey Show" hosts two specials, both airing on ABC.

Oprah Winfrey

On Tuesday, June 30, she will host "The 14th Annual Daytime Emmy Awards," airing live from the Sheraton Centre in New York City. Winfrey has herself been nominated as Outstanding Talk/Service Show Host.

The awards recognize excellence in soap operas, game and talk shows and children's programming. Programs eligible for this year's competition aired between March 6, 1986 and March 5, 1987.

CBS's "As the World Turns" leads all shows with 20 nominations, including Outstanding Drama Series. NBC programs earned 37 nominations, with "Santa Barbara" and "Days of Our Lives" accounting for 21. "Santa Barbara" garnered nominations in 14 categories, including three major ones - Outstanding Drama Series, Outstanding Actress and Outstanding Actor. Among "Days of Our Lives" 's seven nominations is one for Outstanding Lead Actress (Frances Reid).

ABC programs received 32 nominations, with six going to "All My Children," including Outstanding Drama and Outstanding Lead Actress (eight-time nominee Susan Lucci). Surprisingly, "General Hospital," which most weeks is the highest-rated show on daytime, received only one nomination, for makeup.

On Saturday, July 4, Winfrey continues her hosting duties in "A Star-Spangled Celebration," a special saluting the Fourth of July and the efforts of Project Literacy U.S. (PLUS), a campaign launched by Capital Cities/ABC and the Public Broadcasting Service to combat adult illiteracy.

The three-hour special, originating from St. Louis, Mo., features concerts in Busch Stadium and under the Gateway Arch, as well as musical performances broadcast from around the country. Peter Allen and the Rockettes, Tony Bennett, Loretta Lynn, Barbara Mandrell, Bernadette Peters and Suzanne Somers are among the performers joining Winfrey.

The telecast will also kick off PLUS's "civic literacy," "literacy and the workforce" and "literacy and youth" campaigns for 1987-88. And celebrities will deliver brief personal messages about the devastating consequences of illiteracy.

SOAP BEA

Comings and goings dilute the daytime soaps

By Marie Michaels
 Once daytime television viewers get hooked on a soap opera, they depend on seeing their favorite characters (and the actors that play them) every week, if not every day.

Tristan Rogers
 But during the past couple of years, it has become common practice for an actor to leave a program, then reappear a few months later with a completely different story line. This usually dilutes the drama of the program, and often the new story line is discontinued after a few months.
 Anthony Geary and Genie Francis (who played Luke and Laura Spencer on "General Hospital") could well be credited with starting the "drop in, drop out" trend. Francis left "GH" in 1982, returned in 1983, left again, and then returned in 1984. Geary left "GH" in 1984, but he made a couple of return appearances before departing for good to pursue work in films and TV movies.

 When "As the World Turns" resurrects the character of James Stenbeck, the appearance of Anthony Herrera in the role won't surprise the show's longtime viewers. This will mark Herrera's third stint as the evil James, who can be expected to clash with any number of "ATWT" characters this summer. The only problem is that the Stenbeck story line has become so convoluted that no one even remembers why the character has been on the run.
 Some "GH" viewers are loudly protesting the constant comings and goings of Tristan Rogers and his once-beloved character, Robert Scorpio. The first time Rogers left the show, there was an outcry from viewers who wanted him back. But when Rogers returned for the third time a few weeks ago, viewers weren't so thrilled. They suspected - correctly - that Rogers will be around only for a limited run.
 Soap viewers are not readily inclined to give a lot of their time and attention to an actor, or a character, that isn't going to reward their loyalty with a long-term commitment and an interesting story line.

CARD OF THANKS

We, the family of America Newman Johnson, of Prestonsburg and formerly of Bevinville, would like to extend their appreciation to all those friends, neighbors, and loved ones who helped comfort them during their time of bereavement. Thanks to all who came to visit at the funeral home, sent food, flowers, prayers and spoke words of comfort. A special thanks to the ministers of the Old Regular Baptist Church and their comforting words and singing.

A special "thank you" to Johnnie Hall and staff of the Hall Funeral Home for its courteous and efficient services.

Should we have failed to give credit to anyone who helped and stood by us, we would like to say:

Perhaps you sent a lovely card, or sat quietly in a chair.

Perhaps you sent a floral piece, if so we saw it there.

Perhaps you spoke the kindest words, as any friend could say.

Perhaps you were not there at all, just thought of us that day.

Whatever you did to console our hearts, we thank you each and every one. May God bless you all.

The Value of Handwashing

Our Lady of the Way Hospital sponsored a handwashing lesson for 60 campers at the Christian Appalachian Project's Camp Shawnee, June 15. Here Naewana Nickles helps Leah Hamton use the "Scrubby Bear Glo-germ Indicator" while Heather Stumbo bashfully accepts her contract from Scrubby Bear.

Scrubby Bear was among the 60 youngsters who appeared at Camp Shawnee opening day, June 15. Unlike the others who packed a week's worth of clothing, Scrubby brought five culture plates of germs, a flip-chart, the "Scrubby Bear Glo-germ Indicator," three friends and boxes of soap, puppets, pamphlets and contracts. The campers came to camp; Scrubby came to teach good handwashing.

In one-hour sessions with each of the four units of campers, Scrubby helped Judy Hamm, R.N., Our Lady of the Way Hospital's infection control coordinator, teach "germ-busting" with soap and water. Campers learned about germs and their prevalence from a flip-chart and culture plates of germs taken from dirty hands, clean hands, a sneeze, a hair and a table.

"Most germs are spread by our hands," explained Hamm, "that's why proper handwashing is still the number one way to prevent the spread of infection and disease." She then explained the proper way to wash hands while Scrubby mimed the actions.

Hamm emphasized her point by shaking hands with each of the campers. The handshake transmitted "Glo-germ," an orange fluorescent dust, to each of them. By peering into the Scrubby Bear Glo-germ Indicator, the campers could see the pretend germs contracted by shaking Hamm's hand.

The campers then washed their hands and returned to the Glo-germ Indicator for an inspection by Our Lady of the Way Hospital's Education Coordinator, Naewana Nickles, R.N. Only a few had to scrub again. All were awarded Scrubby contracts, pamphlets and puppets when their hands were clean.

The program concluded with the singing of the Scrubby Bear Camp Song, a handwashing song with the same tune as "Oh My Darling, Clementine."

Owsley Family Reunion Held in Miamisburg, O.

The 24th Isaac N. and Millie Jane Owsley family reunion was held at Miamisburg Mound Park in Miamisburg, Ohio, June 13, with 126 members and 12 guests attending.

The ideal sunny day with no rain showers permitted the family and friends to enjoy the fellowship picnic lunch, games, and business meeting under the reserved pavilion and surrounding grounds. The president, Bill Owsley, from Franklin, Ohio, was responsible for organizing and donating the prizes for the games. Through his leadership of all events, this reunion was fun for all.

Pictures of the floral wreath that was placed on the grave site by Bill Owsley prior to the reunion were available for all to view. The grave site of the late Isaac N. and Millie Jane Owsley is in the DeRossett cemetery near Prestonsburg, and it is the custom that a wreath with streamers bearing the words "The Owsley Family Reunion" be placed every year in their memory.

Bill Owsley, president, officially opened the reunion at 1 p.m. with a welcome to family and guests, and it was officially closed at 7:30 p.m.

Mrs. Eugene (Opal Jean) Nance, Mrs. Jerry (Martha) Owsley, and Kelli Morand each received a special award of an Eisenhower silver dollar. The awards were for the eldest child, eldest member, and youngest descendant of the late Isaac N. and Millie Jane Owsley, respectively.

The membership approved of next year's reunion to again be at Miamisburg Mound Park in Miamisburg, Ohio. The date will be June 18, 1988.

Benefits Involve Responsibilities

By JIM KELLY
Social Security District Director
In this column, I regularly explain your rights under Social Security. It is important for you to know about monthly disability, survivors, and retirement benefits and how to get them. And you should be aware of what Medicare provides if you are 65 or older.

But there's another side to the coin. It is also essential that you clearly understand certain responsibilities you have under Social Security. Here are some prime examples:

When you file a claim—Benefits are not paid automatically when you become disabled, retire, or after your death. An application must be filed with Social Security and certain evidence submitted. It is up to you to find out what is needed and to cooperate fully in providing needed proofs or information.

When you get benefits—You must promptly report events that may affect your payments. For example, notify Social Security when you: change your address; expect earnings from work to exceed the allowable limit (or any amount if you get benefits due to disability); or you marry while getting dependent or survivor payments.

There may be other responsibilities involving Social Security, too. For instance, the Tax Reform Act of 1986 requires you to have a Social Security number for each dependent age 5 and over whom you list on Federal tax returns due after December 31, 1987.

People who would like more information about estimating benefits should contact the Big Sandy Area Social Security office located on U.S. 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville.

Duke Program Qualifier

Paraag Maddiwar is one of 262 Kentucky seventh grade students who qualified for the Duke Talent Identification Program (TIP). His score of 560 on the SAT math test earned him this honor.

Along with others, he was honored at a ceremony held at Western Kentucky University, May 29. All students invited to the ceremony had earned scores on at least one section of the Scholastic Aptitude Test equal to or greater than the scores obtained by 50 percent of college-bound high school seniors.

Because of the great number applying for Duke University's camp for verbally and mathematically talented children, Paraag and his brother, Neeraj, will attend a camp at Western Kentucky University.

Paraag, a student at Paintsville Middle School, has been a participant in the EKEA spelling bee and of the Washington workshops. His brother attends Paintsville High School, where their sister, Leenata, valedictorian of the school, received a four-year Thomas Jefferson Scholarship from Transylvania University. They are the children of Dr. and Mrs. G.L. Maddiwar, of Martin.

Cost On Increase For Auto Vacation

Family vacationers traveling by car this summer will spend approximately $157 per day for meals and lodging, plus $21 for 300 miles of daily travel, the Blue Grass Automobile Club-AAA reports.

AAA's suggested vacation budget, based on a family of two adults and two children, rose nearly 8 percent of $13 per day when compared to AAA's 1986 vacation cost estimates. Most of the increase resulted from higher costs for 1987.

The estimated vacation budget includes $80 for meals, $77 for lodging and $7 per 100 miles (7 cents per mile) for gas and oil with the car averaging 23 miles a gallon.

Two adults traveling without children should deduct $10 per night from lodging costs and an additional $23 per day from meal costs.

Vacation expenditures depend on a family's preference and means, and costs will vary by area. Higher rates can be expected in large metropolitan areas and at resorts in season.

To help reduce family vacation costs, AAA suggest that vacationers:

Put the car in top mechanical condition; avoid traveling through urban rush hours; make advance lodging reservations; reduce meal costs by scheduling a picnic along the way or eating at fast-food restaurants; have the main meal at mid-day to take advantage of lower lunch prices at restaurants.

In addition to these items, a family should budget for incidentals. A reserve fund for emergencies also should be included, especially if the family does not carry credit cards, AAA says.

22 Agencies Receive Improvement Grants

The Cabinet for Human Resources plans to spend more than $7.3 million during the next fiscal year to make weatherization improvements to homes of low-income families. Priority will be given to residences of elderly and disabled Kentuckians.

The $7,356,027 will be distributed to the state's 22 community action agencies, which serve 118 counties, Louisville and Jefferson county governments, and the City of Ashland, which also serves Boyd county.

"Allocations are based upon the number of low-income families in each area compared to the statewide total," said Employment Services Commissioner James Daniels, whose department administers the program.

"We expect to serve about 12,400 people in 4,775 homes," he said. Work that may be performed on a home includes caulking, weatherstripping windows and doors, reglazing windows, repairing walls, insulating ceilings, pipes, ducts, walls and under floors, wrapping water heaters and placing skirting around foundations.

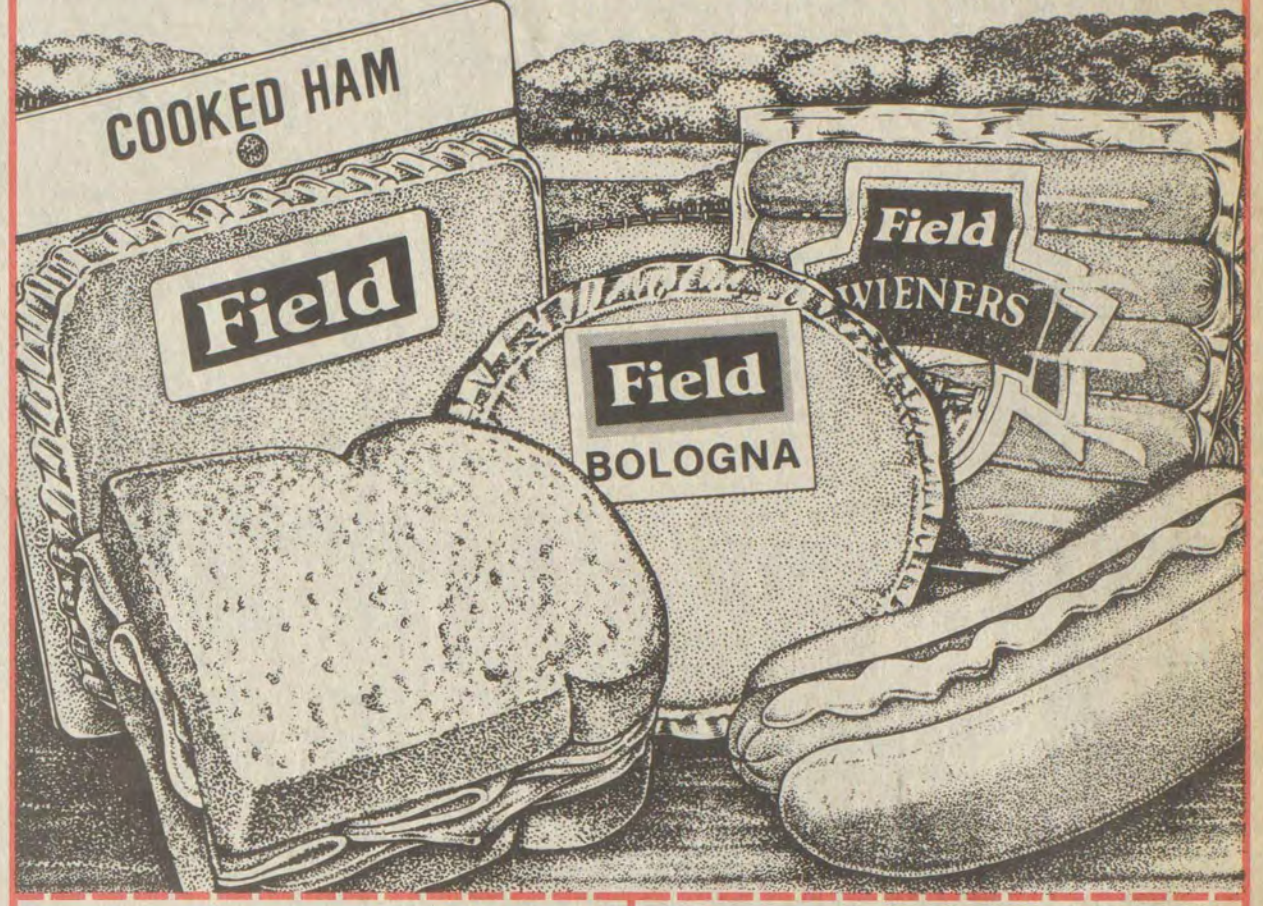

"The type and amount of work performed is based on the condition of the home," Daniels said. "While an agency is limited to spending an average of $1,600 for improvements to each residence, at least we are able to make these homes more comfortable and reduce energy costs."

Funding for Kentucky's weatherization program is expected to come from almost $2.3 million from the U.S. Department of Energy and almost $3.2 million from the Home Energy Assistance Program. The Low-Income Energy Assistance Trust Fund, created when the state received a court-ordered rebate from Exxon Corporation, is expected to yield another $1.9 million. (State lawmakers directed that the rebate be invested, with interest on the account to be used for weatherization programs.)

The Big Sandy Community Action Agency, which serves Floyd and surrounding counties, will receive $481,329 for the weatherization program.

REFILL POLICY

Many times, the public is confused over policy concerning refilling prescriptions. Basically, a patient is entitled to as many refills as his doctor has authorized. There are exceptions, however. By law, prescriptions for drugs that may cause dependency such as amphetamines and morphines cannot be refilled under any circumstances. Other medications are refillable only within certain limits. Many sleep-inducing and pain medications containing codeine fall within this group. For instance, the doctor may indicate that a patient may have five renewals of his pain medication. This means that the prescription can be renewed five times, or it can be refilled within a six-month period only, whichever comes first.

Whether dispensing the prescription your physician has ordered or advising you about over the counter products everyone at COOLEY APOTHECARY will serve your needs with the utmost professionalism and friendliness. Complete patient profiles are maintained so we can further safeguard your health. We are located at #2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106. Master Charge and Visa honored plus we welcome all third party payments. Open: Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-4.

HANDY HINT: Do not store medications in the refrigerator unless you have been specifically instructed to do so.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. D. Ed Prater, formerly of Prestonsburg, announce the forthcoming marriage of their son, David Edward, to Aggie Louaine Gunnels, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Gunnels, of Mentone, Ind.

The bride-elect will be a senior at Tippecanoe Valley High School. The groom-elect is a 1986 graduate of Prestonsburg High School and is employed by Morton Thiokol, Inc., of Warsaw, Ind.

The wedding is planned for the afternoon of July 11, at the Full Gospel Tabernacle, in Claypool, Ind., with the Rev. Ralph Dotson officiating. The custom of an open ceremony will be observed.

Bumper Crops Seen For Wheat, Peaches

If expert's predictions hold true, Kentucky's winter wheat harvest will exceed 11 million bushels this year, surpassing the harvest of 1984, according to forecasts by the Kentucky Agricultural Statistics Service.

Meantime, Kentucky Agriculture Commissioner David Boswell notes that this year's peach crop in the Commonwealth may reach a six-year high with more than 10 million pounds, the largest since 1981, when 16 million pounds were harvested by Kentucky peach producers.

"Mild winter and higher-than-normal temperatures during the late spring have contributed to what we believe is going to be an excellent peach harvest," said Commissioner Boswell. "On the down side, though, an ice storm in late March may have resulted in some freeze damage in some orchards, and we're concerned that recent dry weather may cause some sizing problems in some areas of the Commonwealth."

Kentucky's winter wheat yield is expected to average about 36 bushels an acre, which is up two bushels from the forecast in early May and three bushels an acre more than last year's harvest.

On June 5, the winter wheat crop was rated 50 percent good, 6 percent excellent, 39 percent fair and only 5 percent poor. Dry conditions, however, may hurt the harvest in some areas.

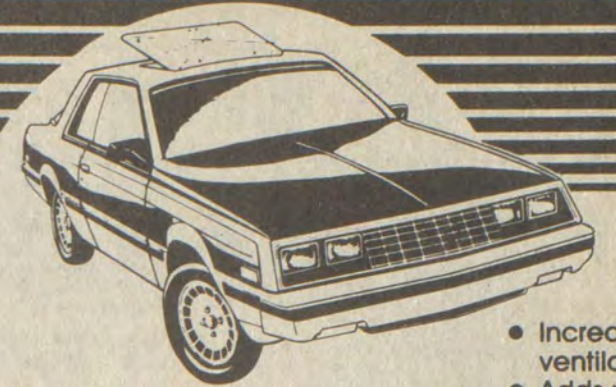

Juvenile Case Worker Hired

Debra Latta has been hired as the court designated worker for Floyd county, effective July 1, 1987. She will work with District Judge Harold Stumbo in the processing of many juvenile court cases.

The Court Designated Worker Program is a three stage intake process for children under the age of 18 who have public or status offense actions brought against them. The first stage involves the court designated worker's availability to assist and receive complaints against children from citizens and police officers. In the second stage, the CDW will assist the court in making placement decisions for children who have been detained by police officers. In the third stage, the CDW will conduct preliminary inquiries to recommend which cases are to be referred to a judge for a formal court hearing, and which cases can be handled informally through such options as diversion agreements. Diversion agreements may include conditions such as restitution, community service work programs, or counseling.

The court designated worker office is located at the Floyd County Annex in Prestonsburg.

CITY OF MARTIN, KENTUCKY
NOTES TO FINANCIAL STATEMENTS
for the year ended June 30, 1986

1. Summary of Significant Accounting Policies

The accounting policies of the City of Martin conform to generally accepted accounting principles applicable to governmental units. The following is a summary of the more significant accounting policies.

A. Fund Accounting

The accounts of the City are organized on the basis of funds or account groups each of which is considered to be a separate fiscal and accounting entity. Each fund is accounted for by providing a separate set of self-balancing accounts that is comprised of its assets, liabilities, reserves, fund equity, revenues and expenditures or expenses as appropriate.

Governmental Fund Types are those through which most governmental functions are financed. The governmental fund measurement focus is upon determination of financial position and budgetary control over revenues and expenditures. Proprietary Fund Types are used to account for operations that are financed and operated in manner similar to business enterprises - where intent of the governing body is that costs of providing services be financed or recovered primarily through user charges.

The following funds are used by the City of Martin:

Governmental Fund Types

General Fund - The general operating fund of the City is used to account for all financial resources except those required to be accounted for in another fund.

Special Revenue Funds

Revenue Sharing Fund - A special revenue fund used to account for revenues received from the U. S. Treasury under the federal revenue sharing program.

Proprietary Fund Types

Water Fund - A proprietary fund used to account for the water utility services provided to the residents of the City of Martin, the operations of which are financed by user charges.

Sewer Fund - A proprietary fund used to account for sewer utility services provided to the residents of the City of Martin, the operations of which are financed by user charges.

B. Basis of Accounting

Basis of Accounting refers to when revenues and expenditures or expenses are recognized in the accounts and reported in the financial statements. Basis of accounting relates to the timing of the measurements made, regardless of the measurement focus applied.

All governmental funds are accounted for using the modified accrual basis of accounting. Under the modified accrual basis of accounting, revenues are recognized when they become measurable and available. Expenditures are generally recognized under the modified accrual basis of accounting when the related fund liability is incurred. Exceptions to this general rule include principal and interest on general long-term debt which is recognized when due.

Proprietary funds are accounted for using the accrual basis of accounting. Their revenues are recognized when they are earned, and expenses are recognized when they are incurred.

C. Budgeting

The City follows the procedures established pursuant to Section 91A.03 of the Kentucky Revised Statutes in establishing the budgetary data reflected in the financial statements. Budgets for all funds are adopted on a basis consistent with generally accepted accounting principles.

Budgeted amounts in the financial statements are as adopted by ordinance of the City.

D. Other Accounting Policies

Investments are stated at cost.

Utility plant in service is stated at cost, except as described in Note 2. Depreciation has been provided using the straight-line method.

General fixed asset purchases are recorded as expenditures in the general fund and revenue sharing fund at the time of purchase. Such assets should be capitalized at cost in the general fixed asset group of accounts except for certain improvements including roads, bridges, curbs and gutters, streets and sidewalks and drainage systems.

Deferred revenues represent grant revenues received but unearned. Revenues are recognized when eligible expenditures are incurred.

Total columns on the combined statements are captioned Memorandum Only to indicate that they are presented only to facilitate financial analysis. Data in these columns do not present financial positions, results of operations, or changes in financial position in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles. Neither is such data comparable to a consolidation. Interfund eliminations have not been made in the aggregation of this data.

2. Fixed Assets

The City has not maintained an adequate record of its general fixed assets, therefore the combined balance sheet does not include the General Fixed Assets Account Group, as required by generally accepted accounting principles.

The City has not maintained a record of its fixed assets. The proprietary fixed assets consist of the existing water and sewer systems which are considered fully depreciated and the financial statements reflect the original systems with offsetting accumulated depreciation. As disclosed in Note 3, the City is in process of constructing improvements to the water system and is applying for grants and assistance to improve or replace the sewer system.

3. Construction in Progress

The City is in process of completing construction of waterworks improvements consisting of new water distribution lines, storage tank and conversion to a new source of supply. The project is expected to cost $1,443,000 which is funded as follows:

Table with 2 columns: Source, Amount. FmHA loan proceeds $ 279,000; FmHA grants 564,000; EDA grants 500,000; CFDAP grant 100,000; Total $ 1,443,000.

4. Revenue Bonds Payable - Sewer

The City issued $164,000 of "City of Martin, Kentucky Sewer Revenue Bonds" dated May 1, 1965 for the purpose of constructing a sewer system. The bonds bear interest at 4.25%, 4.50% and 4.75% per annum payable semi-annually on November 1 and May 1. The bonds mature in varying amounts on each May 1 through May 1, 2005. The City is required to pay $808 per month to a trust account at First National Bank of Cincinnati for debt service. The trustee pays all bonds and coupons as they mature. At June 30, 1986 the trust account balance was $33,140 which constitutes the bond and interest reserve.

5. Revenue Bonds Payable - Water

The City issued $279,000 of "City of Martin Water System Revenue Bonds, Series of 1985" dated January 23, 1986 for the purpose of constructing major improvements to the water system. The bonds were issued as a single fully registered bond bearing interest at 5% per annum. The U. S. Department of Agriculture, Farmers Home Administration holds the bond. Principal maturities begin on January 1, 1987 and continue through January 1, 2024 with interest payable semi-annually on January 1 and July 1 each year.

"Art is a human activity," wrote Leo Tolstol. Obviously he never read National Wildlife magazine. According to a recent article, elephants also have an artistic bent. One elephant at a Syracuse, New York zoo, for instance, has created more than 200 drawings and paintings since being given paper and pens in 1976. Experts say that the fact that the elephant's productions are reasonably centered on each page and that each one is "finished" indicates that the elephant does have some sense of art and good form.

South American History, Culture, Politics Examined

The culture, history and people that make up our neighbors to the south will be explored in a new summer series premiering on KET Sunday, July 5, at 8 p.m. "South American Journeys," a series of eight programs hosted by Jack Pizze, travels to seven countries and visits with presidents and peasants.

The premiere episode, "Tyrants Will Rise From My Tomb," examines the political ferment which continues throughout the continent after more than 150 years of dictatorial rule. The core of this political turbulence is traced back to Bolivia and Chile.

The second installment of this series focuses on the Inca civilization which was brought to its knees from its height of greatness by a handful of Spaniards. "Inca Cola," airing Sunday, July 12, at 8 p.m., visits the ruins of the once mighty Inca Empire and tells of its people who have left traditions behind and are trying to make it in the modern world.

50th Wedding Anniversary

Earl and Eulamae Jones, of Dema, recently celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary at their daughter's home with a surprise anniversary dinner prepared by the family. Got Pink Tile Blues? Brush Them Away

If the 1950s baby pink tile in your bathroom makes you feel old because you were there when it was the style nearly 40 years ago, update it with a little paint.

Nostalgic color schemes and furnishings currently are a popular decorating combination, a romantic link to the past. But if all they do for you is make you count grey hairs, leave the pink behind and opt for something a bit more modern.

Ceramic tile can be painted successfully if it is prepared properly, said Linda Reece, home furnishings specialist with the Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service. Choose colors such as grey, a cool neutral that's easy to work with; black which is stately and elegant; or sunny yellow, a sure pick-me-up.

"Surface preparation of the tile is a time-consuming job, but definitely the key to best results," said Reece. "First, make sure the tile is clean. Dirt, grease and other residue on the tile will interfere with adhesion of the paint."

Reece said to rough each tile, and the grout between tiles if you plan to paint that too, with sandpaper or steel wool and tack cloth, or wash it with pumice which cleans and roughens the surface in one step. The surface needs to be roughened so that the paint will adhere to it. Finish the surface preparation by vacuuming or brushing away the dust and grit produced by sanding.

If you don't want to paint the grout between tiles, either paint very carefully or cover the white grout lines with tape. A variety of tape widths is available from art supply and hardware stores. The tape can be removed easily after painting is completed.

A primer is essential to ensure adhesion of the topcoat. After applying the prime coat, let the surface dry overnight before applying the topcoat. "Whether working with primers or topcoats, always follow the manufacturer's directions," Reece suggested. "When choosing a brand, be sure to purchase recommended solvents at the same time since using another type could ruin your paint. Clean up spills and spatters as you go. Otherwise, you'll have a tough time cleaning up drips once they dry."

The two types of epoxy topcoats available to consumers are epoxy-ester base and two-package epoxies. Epoxies give better adhesion to tile than other paints, dry to a hard finish and are resistant to chemical and other abrasions. For most household uses, it's best to choose the two-package epoxy.

Combine the two parts in a large mixing pot, follow directions carefully. You usually will need to stir the two components vigorously for several minutes to be sure they are thoroughly mixed. Then wait at least 30 minutes, or the length of time designated by the directions, before painting. This allows the chemicals to react and results in faster drying. The results will be a stronger film and longer-lasting surface.

Once mixed, the two-component epoxies tend to thicken within several hours, so be sure to mix only the amount you think you'll need. If you have some paint left, it's possible to extend the "pot-life" by storing it in the refrigerator. This slows the chemical reaction for a short period of time, but not more than a few days.

When working with epoxies, make sure your brush is clean. Apply the epoxy as you would any alkyd paint. Opt for several thin coats instead of a single, extra heavy coat. The surface will start to dry within 15 to 20 minutes and will be hard enough to touch in about an hour. It should harden enough for practical use overnight.

The paint will continue to cure and harden for about a week. If you paint ceramic tile in a high-use area, such as a shower stall, wait at least four days before using the area.

Computer Aids AG Crackdown On Odometer Rollback Fraud

Americans lose billions of dollars each year due to odometers on motor vehicles being rolled back and then sold to unsuspecting consumers for inflated prices. Attorney General Dave Armstrong announced last week that his Consumer Protection Division has taken a major step in increasing its continuing crackdown against odometer rollback in Kentucky.

"My Consumer Protection Division has been responsible for investigating and prosecuting cases of odometer tampering and rollback for some time," Armstrong said. "However, we have been hampered by the lack of ready access to vehicle information maintained by the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet. My office has now obtained direct access to the Automated Vehicle Information System (AVIS) through the installation of a terminal in the Consumer Protection Division. This will allow staff to access vehicle information without leaving their offices."

The AVIS allows authorized personnel to input a vehicle's registration or identification number into the system and obtain a complete history of the vehicle, including previous owners. Such information is vital in tracing back the history of a vehicle and determining whether the odometer has been rolled back.

The system will help with the task of tracing back the history of motor vehicles which in turn will allow faster and better service to consumers.

If you suspect that the odometer on a car you have purchased or are considering purchasing has been rolled back, contact the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division, 209 St. Clair Street, Frankfort, Ky. 40601 or call the Consumer Hotline toll-free 1-800-432-9257.
