Deny Legislators' Charge

Say Spouse Abuse Shelter Serves Legitimate Purpose

By Louise Houghton

Recent criticism by several state legislators of the services provided at Kentucky's shelters for abused spouses is unfounded, according to officials at the Prestonsburg shelter.

"I'd like to know where he got his information," outreach worker Pam Meyer said of Rep. Willard "Woody" Allen, R-Morgantown, who said at a committee hearing last week in Frankfort that the shelters "recruit" clients in order to justify their continued funding by the state. He was the only lawmaker at the hearing to vote against a proposed increase in funding for some of the state's 13 shelters, but several other legislators joined him in questioning the value of the shelters.

To Recktenwald and Meyer, there is no question that the shelters are desperately needed. "There is no need to go out and recruit people," Recktenwald said. Nor is it true that the shelters accept "anyone that comes there for any reason," as Allen stated at last week's hearing, they said. The local shelter has a strict intake procedure, Recktenwald said, that screens out people who may simply be homeless or angry at a spouse, instead of actually suffering from abuse.

"This place is for abused people," she

The Big Sandy Family Abuse Center can be reached 24 hours a day, every day, at 886-6025.

The center has received many donations of furniture and clothing but would welcome, according to director Eileen Recktenwald, especially a porta-crib and playpens for infants, toys and games for children aged nine through 16. The center's business office number is 886-6345.

emphasized. Callers are asked specific questions about the mistreatment they have experienced. "We can usually tell if they're not telling us the truth on the telephone."

Allen may have been concerned about the "outreach" activities of the shelters which publicize their services in posters, on radio and television, and with school programs, Meyer said.

"We're trying to educate the community so that people know there is help here," she said. "We'll never solve the problem unless people are aware."

The Prestonsburg shelter is a large, but otherwise ordinary-looking, family home whose location is kept secret because abusers often try to beg or intimidate their spouses into returning home. Keeping it secret is not easy with so many clients coming and going, including children who may need to be taken to school.

Doors and windows are equipped with alarms, and clients are instructed not to peek out the windows when they hear a car going by.

The house is furnished modestly through donations and a small black-and-white television is propped up on plastic milk crates. Much of the livingroom furniture is covered with RON GOBLE WAS UP A TREE—several trees, actually—Sunday morning, putting up nesting boxes for wood ducks on the shores of Dewey Lake. The "boxes" were constructed out of five-gallon buckets by members of the Dewey Lake Fish and Wildlife Club, who also have planted more than 50 acres of food plots for wildlife. With Goble were Johnny Lafferty, left, and Stan Jervis.

One Jailed, One Free As DUI Charges Heard

By Ron Marstin

Two Floyd men, each accused of driving with nearly twice enough alcohol in their blood to be presumed drunk under Kentucky law, took their cases before Floyd District Court juries this week, but with markedly different results.

One of the defendants was sentenced to a total of 12 months in the county jail and ordered to pay $2,220 in fines and court costs. The other was acquitted.

State Troopers Lloyd Stapleton and Tina Wermuth said they had just checked out a burglar alarm report at J&J Liquors on Mare Creek last Nov. 21 when Joey A. Hopkins, 28, of Harold, passed them erratically on the Mare Creek road. "He came off U.S. 23 sliding sideways and was still fishtailing when he went by," Stapleton said.

With blue lights flashing and siren sounding, they pursued Hopkins until he came to a trailer, where he abandoned his car and fled on foot, the officers testified. They caught and arrested him but not before the burly prisoner had kicked them both in the groin, they said.

Hopkins was "extremely belligerent" and tore the antenna off his cruiser, Stapleton said. The defendant failed to submit to field sobriety tests but recorded a breath alcohol reading of .19 percent, the officer said. A battery of charges was filed against him.

Hopkins, who conducted his own defense, said he had recently begun working in Indiana when he returned home in November to take care of his ailing mother. He "had a lot of problems," had been drinking at a night-club, and was "in a drunk stupor, I guess," when police caught up with him on Mare Creek, he told the jury.

But by then an unknown other person was also in his car, perhaps driving it, and fled as police approached, Hopkins said. The police officers, and later a turnkey at the county jail, beat him, Hopkins said. "There is no doubt in my own mind I wasn't violent," he said.

The jury apparently thought otherwise, convicting Hopkins on all counts. The panel recommended an eight-month jail sentence and $500 fine on the assault charge; 30 days and $500 for drunk driving; $100 for reckless driving; 30 days and $250 for driving on a suspended license; 30 days and $100 for resisting arrest; 30 days and $50 for attempting to elude police; and $500 for carrying no insurance.

The jail term and fine levied by the jury for drunk driving and the fines for reckless driving and assault were the maximums allowed by law.

In the other case, Larry V. Bentley, 43, of Garrett, was accused of drunk driving after Prestonsburg police officer Mike Meade said Bentley had pulled into the parking lot at Hardee's restaurant, drunk, at 11 p.m. last Aug. 3.

Bentley, a National Mines employee, staggered, failed sobriety tests, and registered .19 on the Breathalyzer, Meade said.

At the request of his attorney, Jerry Patton, Bentley rolled up the legs of his trousers to show the jury surgical scars on both knees—the results, he said, of injuries sustained while he was a paratrooper in Vietnam.

The knee injuries made walking difficult and may have given the police officer the impression he was drunk, Hopkins said.

Patton noted that, while his client admitted to having a couple of beers the night he was arrested, there was no evidence his driving was impaired or his speech slurred, nor was any alcohol discovered in his car.

The jury acquitted him of the charge.

Past Counselor Pleads Guilty, Gets Probation

By Ron Marstin

A former high school counselor drew a nominal penalty in Floyd District Court after pleading guilty last Wednesday to a charge of sodomy with a former student.

Melvin Cooke, 47, who was living recently with a sister in Trenton, Ohio, was a guidance counselor at Betsy Layne High School on May 3, 1985, when he was accused of sodomy with a 17-year-old senior in the counselor's office.

The youth, who is also reported to be living now in Ohio, wrote to court officials to say he was unwilling to testify against Cooke, according to Assistant Floyd County Attorney Julie Paxton. That was the main reason prosecutors agreed to a plea bargain in which Cooke was required to pay only a $10 fine and court costs, Paxton indicated. "The prosecution would have been difficult without a complaining witness," she said.

Cooke was also placed on probation for a year.

Under state law, conviction of sodomy carries a possible penalty of a year in jail, a $500 fine, or both.

Under the agreement worked out between prosecutor and defense counsel in Floyd District Court, the former counselor will not again seek employment in this county.

Attorney Predicts

Supporting Families In Crisis Will Be Easier Said Than Done

By Ron Marstin

Trying to keep together families in which children have been neglected or abused is a policy Steve Sanders can agree with readily enough. It is a position he has often argued as an attorney for impoverished parents threatened with termination of their parental rights.

But before anyone waxes optimistic over the likely benefits of the so-called family-based model now being touted by the state Department of Social Services (DSS) as an answer to problems of malnourished or battered children, Sanders said last week, they ought to take a hardheaded look at what the new policy would take to be effective.

The kind of support needed by families in which children are at risk is typically much more than public agencies have so far been willing or able to provide, said Sanders, an attorney with the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund of Kentucky.

Of the new approach to protective services mandated by last year's General Assembly and embodied in the Uniform Juvenile Code which takes effect this July—changes designed to insure that, wherever possible, abused and neglected children are protected without taking them from their natural homes—Sanders said flatly, "I'll be surprised if it makes much difference."

"Termination" cases like the Floyd case Sanders argued earlier this month before the Kentucky Supreme Court—with the state Cabinet for Human Resources (CHR) urging the court to cancel a parent's right to raise a child and a legal services attorney defending the parent—are likely to continue much as before, he predicted.

The case involves an unwed mother whose infant daughter was removed from the home by social workers, who testified they found the child starving and dirty in a ramshackle, crowded dwelling without running water, frequently without utilities, and smelling of excrement.

Floyd Circuit Judge Hollie Conley granted a Cabinet request to terminate the mother's parental rights, but that judgment was later reversed by the state Court of Appeals, which ruled that no clear and convincing evidence had been produced to show substantial and continuous abuse or neglect—the

Nursing Home Ombudsman There To Protect Residents in Trouble

By Louise Houghton

In her first week of work investigating complaints against area nursing homes, Taunya Shelton was physically thrown out of one home. Two janitors grabbed her, one on each arm, and tossed her out the front door under orders of the home's administrator, who wanted to keep Shelton from hearing the complaint of an elderly resident.

That was 18 months ago, and she can laugh about that day by now. While incidents like that aren't exactly common, her job routinely involves enough shocking accusations, determined snooping, and unannounced "raids" to sound like a television detective show.

"I'm the ultimate snoop," she chuckled in a recent interview.

What she does is no laughing matter, however. Shelton, 24, who is called a "long-term care ombudsman," is in charge of investigating and resolving complaints about care received by the more than 900 residents of nine nursing homes and 23 "family care homes" in the five-county area served by the Big Sandy Area Development District. She keeps a computer file on every resident, and has investigated nearly 500 complaints since she began work in August 1985. Some of them were resolved pretty simply, by talking with the home's administrator, while others ended up involving a "whole shebang" of state and federal officials, including, in one recent case, the FBI.

The idea of providing an ombudsman, or advocate, to stand up for the rights of the often-helpless residents of nursing homes is relatively new in Kentucky, but it has received so much public support, Shelton said, that state and federal officials are expanding the program. The Big Sandy ADD currently is looking for interested people, especially family members of an elderly, institutionalized person, to form an advisory council for its ombudsman program. Also sought for the council are professionals engaged in providing health-care services, except for those with specific ties to the "long-term care" facilities whose residents are served by the ombudsman program.

The advisory council probably will have about 10 members, with at least one consumer and one provider from each of the district's five counties, Shelton said. It will provide support, leadership and advice for the ombudsman program, as well as helping to raise money. Anyone interested in serving on the council can contact the Big Sandy ADD at 886-9402 or 886-2374.

According to Shelton's records, the largest number of complaints about

Cow Creek Coal Co. To Defend Quality of Reclamation Effort

By Louise Houghton

The Little Bit Coal Company, of Prestonsburg, which operated a small underground mine on Cow Creek several years ago, has been accused by state officials of failing to properly reclaim the site, and is in danger of losing its $5,000 reclamation bond. A bond forfeiture hearing has been scheduled in Frankfort for April 1.

A company official, however, claims that the state officials are wrong and that the site has been properly graded and replanted with clover, fescue and rye grasses.

"Sure it has!" exclaimed Burl Johnson, president of Little Bit. "We went way over" the state requirements for reclamation, he added. Johnson said he plans to fight the proposed bond forfeiture, and he expects to win.

two acres of surface land, but its permit file is a thick one, filled with repeated citations for violations of state law. The Little Bit Coal Co. already has been fined a total of $14,300 for operating without a required permit, piling its refuse outside the approved area, failing to return the site to its original contour, and failing to plant a permanent cover crop. The company also was cited in 1982 for allowing polluted water to enter Cow Creek.

In April 1986, about a year after the company's mining permit had expired, a state inspector again cited Little Bit for failing to establish a permanent cover of vegetation on the area. The company was ordered to get rid of the rills and gullies caused by erosion, and to fertilize, seed and mulch the entire area.

A month later, that work had not been

Governor's Cup Sees PHS Amid State Leaders

By Ron Marstin

For a second year, Prestonsburg High School has proven it can take its place among the leaders in high school academic competition in Kentucky.

On Monday, the school's five-member quiz team came in second to Lexington's highly-regarded Lafayette High School in Governor's Cup competition in Louisville.

Lafayette's win in quick-recall competition was convincing, but Prestonsburg had a hard route to the finals—successively beating Pulaski County, Hopkinsville, and Ballard High School, a strong Louisville contender, on the way—and came weary into the last round.

Despite a 25-50 loss in the deciding round, "I think everyone up there knows they're awfully good," said John Rosenberg with reference to the Prestonsburg team, of which his son, Mike, is a member.

Berea College Choir To Honor Miss Kendrick

As part of its annual spring tour, the Berea College Concert Choir will give a concert in memory of Jane Ann Kendrick at First Presbyterian Church, Prestonsburg, on Friday, March 20, at 7:30 p.m.

The program will include Lenten music, spirituals, selections from Haydn's "The Creation," Slovak folk songs, a medley from Rogers and Hammerstein's "Oklahoma" and "Dona Nobis Pacem" from Bach's Mass in b minor. Also performing will be the Chamber Singers, a subgroup of the choir specializing in Renaissance and twentieth-century vocal chamber music.

First formed in 1949, the Berea College choir has made two foreign tours, one through six European countries in 1967 and another to Russia and Poland in 1979. Other notable performances include appearances at the National Cathedral in Washington, D.C., and New York City's Riverside Church, as well as engagements with the Cincinnati Orchestra, the Louisville Orchestra and the United States Marine Band in Philadelphia's Constitution Hall. The choir also has been featured in two film specials for educational television which were aired throughout the mid-South.

The choir and the Chamber Singers are under the direction of Dr. Stephen Bolster, associate professor of music at Berea College. Bolster teaches voice, vocal methods, choral conducting, sight-singing and ear-training, and a freshman course in the arts. He is a native New Englander, born in Cambridge, Massachusetts, and holds music degrees from Dartmouth College, the University of North Carolina, and the University of Colorado. He also conducted major choral organizations at each of the schools before joining the Berea faculty in 1980. Currently, he is the president of the American Choral Directors Association for the state of Kentucky.

Accompanying the choir is organist John Courter, professor of music at Berea. Courter holds bachelor and master of music degrees from Michigan State University, has studied at the North German Academy, and has been named to the American Guild of Organists. He is the director of the Berea Harmonia Society and has performed extensively, both as accompanist and soloist, throughout the U.S., Europe and South America.

Mrs. Caudill To Chair Bike-a-Thon at Banner

The Central Regional Office of St. Jude Children's Research Hospital has announced that Mrs. Janice Caudill has agreed to chair the St. Jude Children's Research Hospital Bike-a-Thon in Banner.

St. Jude Children's Research Hospital was founded by entertainer Danny Thomas. The institution opened its doors to the public in 1962 to combat catastrophic diseases which afflict our children. St. Jude Hospital is non-sectarian, non-discriminatory, and provides total medical care to over 4,200 patients.

At St. Jude, scientists and physicians are working side by side seeking not only a better means of treatment, but also the causes, cures and prevention of these terrible killers.

All findings and information gained at the hospital are shared freely with doctors and hospitals all over the world. Thanks to St. Jude Hospital, children who have leukemia, Hodgkin's disease, the sickle cell anemia, and other child-killing diseases now have a better chance to live.

flowered cloths to hide holes in the upholstery.

The shelter re-opened this month, after a fire gutted its previous site in Martin, last November. Because of the long closing, only three women and three children were staying at the new shelter when Recktenwald and Meyer were interviewed last week. The shelter can accommodate up to 18 women and children, they said, and at times demand for the shelter has outrun its capacity and they have had to send clients to shelters run by other Area Development Districts in Kentucky. "Spouse abuse runs in cycles," Recktenwald explained, with holidays and the summer months being the busiest times.

The shelter, which has eight staff members, received a state grant of $112,000 for its operations this fiscal year, plus an additional $80,000 from other sources. No operational increase has been requested for next year. Recktenwald said, although a three percent inflationary increase is expected.

Between the summer of 1985, when the Big Sandy ADD's shelter first opened, and October 1986, the shelter provided safe housing for 115 women and 162 children. Most of them were from Floyd, Pike, Johnson, Magoffin and Martin counties, though some were sent here from other ADD's in order to get away from abusive spouses who were actively looking for them.

Most stay at the shelter for about two weeks, until they find a place to live with friends or relatives or through public-housing agencies. Quite a few go back to their husbands, and it's not uncommon for these women to make a repeat visit to the shelter when their husbands fall back into abusive habits.

But shelter officials don't hold that against their clients. Many battered women have such low self-esteem and have become so dependent on their husbands that it takes a long time—and perhaps several failed attempts—to break away, they explained.

"If they need our services," said Meyer, "we encourage them to feel free to call us."

Many women show up at the Prestonsburg shelter with bruises, cuts, and even broken bones. Some come there directly from the hospital emergency room. Others, however, are canny enough to sense when their husbands are about to start battering them again, and leave home before it happens.

For some, the problem is not physical mistreatment but emotional abuse, according to Recktenwald. Some women, she said, are practically prisoners in their own homes, with husbands who won't permit them to leave the house or have friends, and who continually tell them how worthless and stupid they are.

Wife abuse is the most common, and the least reported, of all violent crimes in the United States, according to the FBI. It is as common among middle-class and high-income families as it is among low-income families. Nationally, about one married couple in eight will experience "frequent violent episodes."

Spouse abuse also has a profound effect on the children, Recktenwald said. Children who grow up watching one parent beat the other tend to think that violence is normal between people who say they love each other. They often become adult abusers or victims of abuse themselves, and frequently become involved in violent crimes.

In addition, men who beat their wives often take out their anger on their children as well, and women who are abused may vent their frustration on the children. The children frequently feel guilty about the violence in their homes, worry about when it will erupt next, and are torn by the choice of siding with one parent or the other.

Abused women make up the vast majority of the callers to the shelter's hotline here, but they are not the only ones who call, according to Recktenwald. The shelter has received at least one call from a man who had been beaten by his wife, and another from a man who said he was afraid he was about to batter his wife. Other calls have come from elderly people who were mistreated by the grown children they live with.

The Prestonsburg shelter, is set up to accept only women and children. Recktenwald said, but all were referred to agencies that could offer help.

Once an abused woman arrives at the shelter, usually with children, she generally takes a few days to rest and calm the children and herself. Shelter officials then begin helping her find a new place to live and, if needed a job, as well as referring her to other agencies that offer help such as foodstamps or medical or legal aid. Counseling also is available, for both the woman and her children.

But perhaps the most valuable service provided by the shelter is the opportunity to meet other women who have suffered through similar abuse. "That's one of the glories of this place," Recktenwald said. Abused women often are afraid and ashamed to admit the truth about their lives. "A lot of times," she added, "even their own mothers don't know what's been going on."

Besides the quick-recall—a team quiz in the college bowl format—and another team exercise in problem solving, the nearly 1,000 students who filled Louisville's Executive West hotel competed in individual written tests in English composition, math, science, social studies, and language arts.

Unlike last year, when Chris Croot's first place in the written science test lifted the Prestonsburg team to second place overall, none of the Floyd students placed this year in the individual contests. Despite its quick-recall showing, consequently, the team finished 9th overall.

"We would like to have done better in the written assessments," said Coach Nell Lawson later. "But I was pleased with the quick-recall, coming in second. I knew we couldn't beat Lafayette."

A running score was flashed electronically and a clock counted off the seconds as teams solved algebraic equations, translated French phrases, defined a dotted semi-quaver, or identified a Secretary of State in the Roosevelt Administration, often in rooms crowded with spectators. For excitement, it was "worse than basketball," Rosenberg said.

The Prestonsburg squad—seniors Scott Wells, Tony Skeans, and Chris Croot, and juniors David Spiggle and Mike Rosenberg—earned the right to compete at the state level by beating Pikeville High School in regional competition in February.

Skeans was judged also in written math, Spiggle in social studies, and Spiggle and Rosenberg in science. Spiggle placing fifth in both social studies and science.

"Pretty good for a junior," Lawson noted.

The team will next participate in the Sweet Sixteen Academic Showcase finals, a similar competition to be held in conjunction with the boys' state high school basketball tournament in Lexington.

Floyd county will also be represented in the Sweet Sixteen academic competition by two Allen Central High School students—Kathi Keen, who won first place in art in regional competition at Morehead in February, and Serena Thornsby, who placed first in creative writing.

This was the second year of the Governor's Cup, which was open this year to middle school as well as high school classes. The competition, which was inaugurated by Gov. Martha Layne Collins on the advice of a panel she had appointed to study the state's education system, is expected to be opened in future to elementary grades as well.

Here's How To Dispose Of Household Products

Many ordinary household products can turn into dangerous sources of pollution when they are thrown away. But there are ways of disposing of them safely, and Good Housekeeping's April issue lists 55 of the most common products and how to dispose of them safely, in your sink drain, garbage, by collection, or recycling. Here are some examples:

Bug sprays, metal polish, floor-care products, and furniture polish should go out for collection.

Medicines, disinfectants, depilatories, permanent-wave lotions, and alcohol-based lotions (perfumes, after-shave, etc.) can be poured down the drain.

Oven cleaners, nail polish and remover, shoe polish, and latex paint can go out with the garbage.

Motor oil, old batteries, dry-cleaning fluids/spot removers, and paint thinner/turpentine can be recycled.

nursing homes in Floyd, Pike, Magoffin, Johnson and Martin counties involved a lack of dignity and respect in the way residents were treated. That charge was followed closely, in number, by complaints involving medication—either a shortage of supplies at the home, or the use of too many sedatives for the residents.

But more serious than these, in the ombudsman's view, are the allegations of physical abuse of the nursing home residents. She described one recent case involving the repeated rape of three elderly women by a janitor at one home. In another case, she said, a 17-year-old mentally retarded youth was locked in a suffocatingly hot room without supervision for more than 24 hours. He suffered convulsions and was found with his clothing and bedclothes soaked in blood.

Mental and verbal abuse, as well as neglect, also are high on the list of complaints, as are poor staff attitudes and a lack of training for staff members. At one area nursing home that was desperate to economize, Shelton said, clerical and kitchen help were pushed into acting as nurse's aides. She also cited one administrator of a home, now replaced, who lacked a high school diploma.

Other common complaints included medications that were not given according to the doctor's orders, or were given by unqualified staff members; personal items that were lost, stolen, or used by others; a lack of cleanliness at the homes; and a lack of supplies. Understaffing also was a common complaint, as well as a lack of leisure and religious activities.

Not all nursing homes are the source of all these complaints, Shelton said, and she described the care at one home as "very good." The abuses tend to be concentrated at a small number. Naming the individual homes is not permitted, she said.

Mountain Manor and Riverview

Manor, in Prestonsburg, have been rated "superior" by state nursing home inspectors (see boxed item).

Nursing homes in this area provide four different levels of care, based on the amount of skilled attention needed by the resident. At the top of that scale are homes offering "skilled nursing," such as Riverview Manor. Next in line are the homes offering "intermediate care," such as Mountain Manor, in Prestonsburg, as well as Riverview Manor. Next are "personal care" homes, of which there are none in Floyd county although homes are available in Pike, Magoffin and Johnson counties. At the bottom are the "family care homes" which simply provide a family home for up to three elderly residents.

The qualifications for being placed in a "skilled nursing" home recently have been tightened, according to Shelton, with the result that the available "intermediate care" beds are filled to capacity. "Personal care" beds, on the other hand, are operating at the fairly low capacity of about 40 percent, possibly because most area families are willing to provide this level of care for their own elderly relatives.

Due to increased state and federal support for the ombudsman program, Shelton expects to be able to devote herself to it full-time beginning next summer. That part of her job, which currently is supposed to take about half of her time, actually takes many more hours than that, she said.

Some of the complaints she gets are unfounded, occasionally caused by competition between the nursing homes, Shelton said. But others are regrettably true, and she's glad to see the growing public and official support for her efforts.

"People are recognizing that there's a need for representing these people," she said. "That's what the ombudsman program is all about."

Nursing homes in Kentucky are inspected regularly and ranked according to the most recent inspection, explained Janet Hoover of the state Cabinet for Human Resources. The highest rank is "Superior," followed by "Unrated," which means that a home is in compliance with minimum standards. The lowest rank is "Conditional," which means that the home is not in compliance with at least one state standard. Homes rated "Conditional" are given a certain amount of time to correct violations, Hoover said.

Current rankings for homes in Floyd, Pike, Magoffin, Johnson and Martin counties are:

Home	Type of Care	Ranking
Mountain Manor, Prestonsburg	Intermediate	Superior
Riverview Manor, Prestonsburg	Intermediate	Superior
Mountain Manor, Pikeville	Intermediate	Superior
Mountain View Health Care, Elkhorn City	Intermediate	Superior
Phelps Community Medical Center, Phelps	Personal	Superior
Williamson Appalachian Regional Hospital, S. Williamson	Intermediate	Unrated
Jenny Wiley Health Care Center, Paintsville	Personal	Conditional
Paintsville Health Care, Paintsville	Personal	Unrated
Mountain Valley Rest Home, Salyersville	Intermediate	Superior
Salyersville Health Care, Salyersville	Personal	Superior

done and the inspector recommended that the state Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet take legal action. A hearing was held last July, which Little Bit officials did not attend, and in August the company was ordered to pay a penalty of $3,600 within 30 days.

According to Katie Daugherty, a Cabinet attorney, that fine was never paid and the mining site is still grassless and ridged with gullies. Daugherty said she spoke this month with the inspector here, and was informed that the 1986 violations are "ongoing."

"From my understanding, this is indeed still an uncorrected violation," she said.

Johnson pointed out, however, that one inspection report found that reclamation work had been completed at the site. That report was dated Dec. 15, 1986, six days after Little Bit officials were informed that their bond was liable to be forfeited.

Bond forfeiture hearings are similar to pre-trial hearings, Daugherty explained. They are held at the request of company officials, and their purpose is to bring relevant information out into the open. "If we're barking up the wrong tree," she said, "that's one of the reasons for the hearing."

But the state does not act lightly in deciding to threaten companies with bond forfeiture, she added. "Generally, when we bring one of these cases, we prevail."

The Little Bit mine is located on land owned by members of the Burchett family who live outside the state. Cow Creek residents who live near the site voiced mixed opinions about Little Bit's job of reclaiming the land. "There's a lot of other places eroded worse than that," volunteered Bradis Goble.

However, "they never filled it in the way they were supposed to," said Maxine Burchett, whose husband is related to the landowners. "They left it in pretty bad shape."

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Elizabeth King wish to thank Riverview Manor Nursing Home and staff for the fine care our mother received over the last three years and to J.W. Sutherland and all his staff. Also to P and B ambulance service, and to Whitten Taxi service and to all our many friends and neighbors.

Wins Math Regional

Robyn Williams, an eighth-grade student at the Mountain Christian Academy, has been awarded a $300 scholarship in recognition of her first place finish in the Big Sandy Chapter of the "Math Counts" competition.

The national competition, held Saturday, March 7, at Prestonsburg Community College, is an annual event for junior high students across the county. The contest is sponsored on the state level by the Kentucky Society of Professional Engineers, which awarded the scholarship.

MCA took first place in team competition and, in addition to Miss Williams' top performance, captured second, fourth, and fifth in individual competition. Miss Williams also placed first in the oral portion of the contest.

For the second year in a row, MCA won the Most Improved School award. MCA has taken part in "Math Counts" for the last three years.

By placing first in the Big Sandy Chapter, the MCA team has earned a spot in the state competition in Lexington, April 4. A national competition will be held later this year.

Reports For Duty

Marine Pfc. Michael N. Williams, son of Charles E. and Bobbie N. Williams, of Wheelwright, recently reported for duty at Marine Corps Development and Education Command at Quantico, Va. A 1983 graduate of Wheelwright High School, he joined the Marine Corps in July, 1986.

minimal test required by law to justify terminating parental rights.

The Cabinet for Human Resources appealed that ruling to the state Supreme Court, where a decision is currently pending. If the high court agrees with the appeals court, the child, now three, could be returned to her mother.

In reversing the lower court decision, the appeals court noted that, while sporadic homemaker services were made available to the embattled mother, they were not provided on a regular basis. Nor did the mother receive adequate instruction in parenting skills or health care, the appellate court held.

"Although the record is replete with evidence showing that (the mother's) child care abilities and her lifestyle were not of optimal quality for child rearing, parental rights may not be terminated merely because the child may have a chance for a better home elsewhere," the appeals court concluded.

Attorneys for the Cabinet and the mother differed sharply on whether the mother had later shown improvement in her ability to care for a child.

Of the Cabinet's alleged failure to give the mother the support she needed, attorney Patricia J. Shipman argued before the Supreme Court that "it is not possible for an executive agency to force social service clients who are disinterested (sic) to make themselves available for services."

While declining comment on the present case, Martha M. Hicks, supervisor of the DSS family services office here, agreed that families cannot be helped unless they want to be. "If a family is not there when we make a (scheduled) visit, that says something. It says, 'We don't want help, we don't care.'" Hicks said. "We can't save all families. They have to want to change."

But Sanders, citing a 1977 Kentucky Court of Appeals opinion that poverty alone shall not be grounds for terminating parental rights, countered that the Cabinet "has shown little more than the existence of poverty" in the case in question.

Only six months after taking the child from the home, Floyd social workers abandoned efforts to rehabilitate the mother, he said.

Of the Cabinet's new policy of working to keep troubled homes intact, Sanders said last week, "I welcome the policy. I hope it results in fewer children being removed from their homes. People often fail to realize that removal can have drastic effects for the child and the parents. It can create more problems, and problems that are difficult to resolve."

But the ease he argued this month before the Supreme Court "is a wonderful example of the amount of services needed to make a mother provide a decent home for a child," Sanders said. "The Cabinet said, 'Look at all we attempted to do.' But when I look at what they attempted to do, it seems like a drop in the bucket compared to what was needed."

Hicks does not agree with Sanders' pessimistic assessment of the chances of reform. For one thing, she noted, the reorientation of Cabinet policy was accompanied by a mandatory 25-case cap on the number of clients a social worker may have at one time.

"With caseloads of 50 and 60 in the past we haven't been able to offer services, but I don't think we've ever had caseloads as small as we have now," she said. "It's going to help tremendously."

Moreover, treatment plans now devised for abusive or neglectful homes are very detailed, involve a wide range of actors, and assign specific roles to each, Hicks said. "It's going to take time," she said of the new policy, "but it's going to make a difference."

Children Endangered

I am a concerned parent whose children attend Martin Grade School. I am writing to you in regard to the consolidation of the McDowell and Wheelwright High School. I do not understand why the members of our Board of Education want to endanger children by putting them on a rock cliff with a high wall behind the school similar to the one at Prestonsburg at Wal-Mart. This new school will also have a drop off of 120 feet but the Board is considering a fence around it. There are numerous sites to consider before this should ever be considered. Please don't let politics endanger our kids. I had never attended a Board meeting until Wednesday March 4. I was very shocked at the Board members' reaction to any question that was asked. It was very clear to everyone that the Mitchell family site was Dr. Mary Hall's idea and the other board members were backing her. I assume that the new school will be named Mary Hall High School. The board members were asked numerous questions of why this site was chosen but no definite answer was given. Two months ago an architect was told to inspect three sites—the Minnie site, Mitchell site and another. He rated the Minnie site by far the best, cheapest, and most of all the safest. Let us all who voted for these Board members and supported them not ever make the same mistake again as they are now about to make the worst mistake that could ever happen.

MRS. CHARLES MEADE,
Martin

Safety the Issue

I'm the grandmother of two grandsons. I'm concerned about the location of the new school on Left Beaver that the Floyd County Board is thinking about buying.

The safety of my grandchildren and other children are the reason that I think that the board members should look at another site to build on. The safety of all children should be the issue—not the town where it will be built.

I do not want my grandchildren going to a school where there is a highwall behind it. We do not know in years to come, when a highwall might slide down on a building or a car.

Please let all of the people from McDowell and Wheelwright think about the safety of our children, and ask the Board members to pick a better site—it is better to be safe than sorry in years to come.

Supports Owens

This letter is in regard and in support of our magistrate in District 2, Edford Owens. I live on Bucks Branch and the road up in our holler is in better shape this winter than it has been in twenty years or more. I realize this has been a mild winter but gravel was hauled and the road was worked on last fall before winter came.

I say we should support what this young man is trying to do and quit finding fault where there is none. I did not vote for Edford Owens, but I think we should give credit where it is due.

Honesty—It Starts With You

What has happened to HONESTY pray tell me! There was a time when you could hear spoken. "He is an honest man; his word is his bond; you certainly can trust that person." That isn't the case today. There is so much widespread falsehood, cheating, stealing, fraud, corruption, and other forms of dishonesty in our beautiful world today, it is indeed frightening. Honest people are asking, "What can we do?"

It was over 100 years ago Thomas Carlyle gave us a very hopeful and realistic answer to our question. He said, "Make yourself an honest person and then you can say, 'There is one less rascal in the world!'"

It is true that the greater effort each of us can make to lead an honest upright life, the greater effect we will have in restoring honesty to the world. Each of us must realize that we have in us a built-in sense of what is right and what is wrong. This was instilled in us by our creator, God. If we will uphold his truths and strictly oppose dishonesty each one of our lives will be fuller and richer. It is true we are unable to compel others to be honest, but we can at least force ourselves to be above and beyond all reproach in all our dealings with others. Then it can again be said, "There is one more honest person in the world instead of one less."

The young man in Pennsylvania recently certainly chose the wrong road. Taking his life did not solve his problems but only created more for those he left behind. His fraud, stealing, and embezzling only could have been changed by an honest, upright act of turning the page and living an honest, upright life and returning good for his evil doings? I am sure he knew the road he was traveling. You cannot do wrong and get by. You must pay. Our mission in life should be to spread far and wide the highest regard for honesty as well as to let it distinguish our own behavior. If we will but take a courageous stand for justice and honesty even in the most trivial matters this will be convincing proof that to have an honest world is possible, if one person after another does his or her part.

Several years ago a school maintenance man working in Los Angeles, California, found $240,000 that had fallen from an armored truck. He hurried to return the money—gladly and willingly. Many people over the world were compelled to look to their own hearts by the upright action of this honest gentleman. Many praised him. Some disapproved of his upright, honest behavior: He was surprised by so much widespread praise as well as by the brickbats. He responded to it all in this manner. He said, "Returning that money was no big thing. If it had been more or less, even 50 cents, I would have done the same. This was the right thing to do. Honesty is my policy and it is the best policy."

Let us all stop and think, an honest world starts with you.

Eating Toxic Fish?

The Clean Water Act of 1977 requires that states submit a report to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency every two years on whether our streams meet fishable/swimmable goals.

In the 1986 report, 30.8% of our streams were assessed. Of this sampling, 12% failed to meet the fishable/swimmable standards.

For instance, the Big Sandy River from the locks of Louisa to Ohio River is labeled "waters not supporting fishing or swimming." You can go down to the locks any summer day and find a crowd of people fishing these waters. Some 53.5 miles of Blaine Creek is also listed as non-supporting of these uses and every summer thousands of people fish these waters. The major contributor to the pollution of this stream, according to the state, is oil brine from wells in the watershed of this stream. Keep in mind that nearly 70% of Kentucky's streams were not assessed, such as John's Creek in Floyd county, a popular fishing spot that shares the same problems as that of Blaine Creek.

Why has the Kentucky Natural Resources Cabinet failed to post these streams and warn the public of the danger? The answer by now should be obvious: when it comes to a choice of protecting the health and safety of the public versus exposing the seriousness of our pollution problems and their cause, the Natural Resource Cabinet will choose to protect the oil, gas and coal industries over the welfare of the people. If the people are eating toxic fish, so be it; we don't want the public to know the truth.

This is why it is imperative that local governments which are more answerable to the people, gain more control over environmental issues and plan their own economic development. If we continue to allow state and federal authorities to control these decisions we're all going to be even worse off than we are now.

Questions Architect

I would like to thank the Floyd County Board of Education for their decision regarding the Wheelwright/McDowell Consolidated School site at Hi Hat.

I am pleased that our board is looking at the future education of our children and are ignoring the outside political pressure that is haunting the halls of education. I feel the school site is fair to all children. Future graduates will grow together and should not be haunted with past problems. The education of our children is the main issue.

It appears the future school project is somewhat clouded with misinformed outsiders.

Do our architect's loyalties belong to the Board of Education or to a dying Minnie dynasty?

PAULA BAILEY JOHNSON

Cut All the Fat

Each non-certified employee is being asked to relinquish one hour and 15 minutes of their daily work time so as to shore up the school budget... If we could maintain our school programs efficiently without this time, why were they hired to begin with? Could it be for their votes?

Consider these: Central Office persons conveniently scheduling out-of-town conferences at Lexington to coincide with UK ball games, mileage expenses paid for by the Board of Education; excessive number of long-distance calls for personal reasons, paid for by board; repairs on buses and personnel vehicles by private garages when there is a garage supported by board money for this purpose; four superintendents at approx. $200,000 a year, with one getting approx. $55,000 for observing activities at the bus garage; three bus garage superintendents at approx. $60,000 a year, one with housing provided by the board; $1.2 million lost annually because of student absenteeism.

This cut-back might be a ploy to destroy the attempts to unionize the non-certified workers... Cutting minimum-wage jobs is not the answer. Let's put all the fat on the fire if we're going to render lard.

Site "Fair And Safe"

After attending the Board of Education meeting held on March 4, I would like to thank the board for their firm decision on the new school site at Hi Hat. This site is fair and safe for all the children in the area (not just our own). We have never asked for anything more.

It is sad that this important issue is dampered by controversy and conspiracy. It seems that somebody is still putting their own personal interest and gain above what is the most important and should be the only factor of all, the future of our children.

Just because architect James Ellis is from Pikeville, we do not need the added complication and input of others from that area on this issue. It is the children of the Left Beaver area who will attend this school and live with the results of this important decision. Let's be fair to them.

KIM HALL

Thanks Headstart

I would like to thank all the Big Sandy Headstart staff for what they have done to help me and my child out this year. I would like to let the people know what the Headstart program does for the children in the Big Sandy area.

Headstart arranged a three-day stay at the Kentucky School for the Blind due to his poor vision problem so I could learn what my child would need in the field of education. They also had a dental and medical screening and they detected a hearing problem and immediately sent him to a specialist and provided tests and surgery. Then later they provided him with a new set of glasses. That is letting me know that the program is for the children.

GRETHEL HOMEMAKERS MEET

The March 2 meeting of the Grethel Homemakers' Club was called to order at 6:30 p.m. by president Arietta Hall. Devotions were led by Susan Spurr on the topic, "Fellowship Among Christians."

The lesson, "Small Storage Spaces...Special Places," was taught by Floyd county extension agent, Mrs. Frances Pitts. She used a film for teaching and lessons were distributed to the group.

The club's spring tour to Williamsburg, Va., is scheduled for April 27 through May 1.

March 25 and 26 will be the "Fiber, Fabric, Fashion and Fun Expo." Sewing techniques, workshops, and exhibits are planned.

The meeting was adjourned at 7 p.m.

Take your best shot at taming your taxes. Open your Tax Tamer IRA at First Commonwealth Bank.

The big change in college basketball this season is the 3-point shot. It's had a big impact on the game.

There's been some changes in the tax laws, too. But one thing hasn't changed. You can still get your full tax-deduction on your 1986 taxes with your IRA contribution, not to mention FDIC insurance protection up to $100,000.

For more details on the Tax-Tamer IRA, stop by any First Commonwealth Bank office. But hurry. The deadline for 1986 IRA contributions is April 15.

Federal regulations require a substantial interest and tax penalty for early withdrawal.

Law Is Designed To Secure Funeral Plan

By Attorney General DAVID L. ARMSTRONG
 Pre-arranging your funeral can relieve your family of the stress involved in making plans at the time of need. It can also reduce the strain of paying for your funeral at that time, since you can often pay in monthly installments when you pre-arrange your funeral. In recent years, state and federal laws have been passed to provide you as a consumer with information before you buy which will safeguard your pre-need funeral and cemetery purchases.

If you buy pre-need funeral merchandise or services, all the money you pay to the funeral provider must be placed in a trust account for you. The money will stay there and earn interest until it is needed to pay for your funeral. However, if at any time you decide to cancel your pre-need contract, you can request in writing a refund of your money plus interest.

When you pre-pay for funeral goods and services, find out what bank will hold your money and contact that bank to be sure your trust fund has been set up.

This trust fund requirement does not apply to cemetery merchandise, such as monuments, markers, urns and vases. Instead, only 40 percent of your money must be put in a trust account for these items. If your merchandise is to be delivered within six months or will be stored in a bonded warehouse, none of your money must be put in trust.

If the cemetery does not install the merchandise that has been paid for, you have a right to request a refund of your trust fund money from the bank by submitting an affidavit to the bank after a certain period of time. Kentucky's cemetery and funeral law also provides safeguards to protect your purchase of a mausoleum or other type of crypt that has not yet been built.

You can pre-plan your funeral without pre-paying for it. If you do pre-pay, the law is designed to protect your money to make sure funds are available when needed to pay for the goods and services you purchased.

For additional information, contact the Office of the Attorney General, Division of Consumer Protection, 209 St. Clair Street, Frankfort, Ky. 40601, or call the Consumer Hotline at 1-800-432-9257.

Live From The Met Will Present Bizet's "Carmen"

The "Live From the Met" telecast of the Metropolitan Opera's production of "Carmen" will air Wednesday, April 1, at 8 p.m. on KET.

Bizet's beloved opera is the third most popular in the Met's repertoire. "Carmen" overflows with colorful characters and rich music. It encompasses many moods—from the evocative songs of the doomed gypsy, the sultry Habanera and the brazen Seguidilla; to Don Jose's tender "Flower Song"; to bullfighter Escamillo's brash salute to his life as a toreador. Subtitled in English, "Carmen" is the third of four presentations in the 1986-87 season of the Emmy Award-winning "Live From the Met" series. Joanne Woodward will host.

The cast features Agnes Baltsa as Carmen, Jose Carreras as Don Jose, Leona Mitchell as Micaela, and Samuel Ramey as Escamillo. Met artistic director James Levine conducts. Paul Mills is the stage director and the production is based on an original Metropolitan Opera production by Sir Peter Hall.

With "Carmen," Agnes Baltsa and Samuel Ramey will be making their first appearances on "Live From the Met." Jose Carreras was seen in the 1982 telecast of "La Boheme," and Leona Mitchell in the 1983 telecast of Verdi's "Ernani."

Retirement Rules for Self-Employed

Although, in general, the earnings test is the same for self-employed people as for wage earners, there are some differences. It's important for people who receive earnings from self-employment to be aware of the differences.

The earnings test places a limit on the amount of money a beneficiary can earn without affecting benefits. In 1987, the limit is $8,160 for people 65 to 70 and $6,000 for people under 65. Benefits are reduced $1 for each $2 earned over the limit. The earnings test does not apply to people who are 70 and older.

The difference comes during the first year of retirement. During the first year of retirement, wage earners can get a full benefit for any month they don't earn more than 1/12th of the annual limit, regardless of their earnings before retirement. However, self-employed people can get a full benefit for any month they don't perform substantial services in self-employment regardless of their earnings in any month.

Whether or not services performed in a business are "substantial" depends on a number of factors. They include the amount of time devoted to the business or profession, including the time spent planning and managing, the kind of work done, and how the work compares with that the person previously did.

The more valuable and highly skilled the work performed, the more likely it is to be considered substantial. A decision is made on the merits of each case.

People who need more information on the retirement test should be sure to call the Social Security office.

Proclaim Liberty!

Private Virtue and Public Corruption

The great American theologian Reinhold Niebuhr wrote a book around one of his favorite themes: Moral Man and Immoral Society. In his sermons and essays, as well as one of his major books, he took up the question: Why are people capable of such nobility and virtue in smaller and more private relations—family, club, church, and the very same people capable of such duplicity and shamelessness in public affairs?

We Americans, among whom team spirit and voluntary good will are still far more prominent than in most countries, seem to be at our best in small groups. An emergency like that which recently hit Laurel, Mississippi and surrounding communities brings out the best in us. A tornado cuts a swath 18 to 20 miles long and 2 miles wide. Seven are killed, 94 injured. Two schools are damaged, one destroyed. 200 homes are lost and 650 families in need of emergency assistance. The Governor declares an emergency. The American Red Cross rushes in teams, sets up two emergency shelters. The doors and hearts of clubs and churches and homes are opened.

That is our strength. It is a great asset in emergencies, and it is an asset in bringing new ideas and vitality to some sectors of public life on a day to day basis.

One of our weaknesses is that we are tempted by the thought that the whole of society—our economics, education, and even government itself—can be left to private interest groups. We suffer talk about selling off the TVA, the Post Office, Amtrak, the public forests and natural preserves. Public tasks—such as the provision of schools, hospitals, prisons, care for the aged and insane and indigent—are let slide into the hands and pockets of small groups whom we do not know and cannot identify.

With the privatization of public life comes corruption. Our forefathers knew better than to trust the kind of power in large situations that we readily grant our neighbors in the small. The difficulty we are in on the national and international maps today is precisely because there were left to the initiative of small groups—outside the due process and structures of the Constitution, outside the alert supervision of a Chief Executive—enormous powers and financial resources that determine the well-being of the American republic and its allies in a dangerous world.

In the intimacy of an emergency situation like a flood or a tornado, the neighbors see each other at their best. They tell the stories later as to who was a hero, who collapsed after long hours of grueling effort, who was most compassionate and generous. In the complex situations of a large society, with a tremendous Federal bureaucracy, with large numbers of anonymous officials wielding the power of life and death over all of us, responsibility can only be guaranteed by strict attention to Constitutional procedures.

The credibility of the Reagan administration has not been shaken by any doubts about the fundamental decency of the President. By common consent, he is a likable companion, a loyal husband, a true friend. The credibility of the administration has been shaken by doubts about whether proper procedures have been followed, whether Constitutional limits have been observed, whether republican principles and the structures of democratic government have been honored.

According to John Tower, "The President, I think, is an inherently honest man. What bothers him most is whether the public sees him as dishonest." This puts the wrong question; Reagan is not Nixon. If the conclusion of Tower's own commission are to be trusted, the question is not whether Reagan is honest or dishonest. The question concerns his attention to his job, with its vast powers and its strict limits.

Advice For Decorating Easter Eggs At Home

It's a lot easier to color Easter eggs, reports Good Housekeeping's April issue, with tablets that dissolve in cold water. Here are some tips on how to do it right:

To empty an egg, use a darning needle or ice pick to make a small hole in one end of the egg and a slightly larger one at the other end. Blow through the small hole and the contents will squeeze through the larger hole.

If you hard-cook the eggs, use enamel, steel or glass pans, not iron or aluminum which could keep the color from adhering properly.

If you plan to eat the eggs later, don't use felt-tip pens or rubber cement for decorating them. These materials may be toxic and can seep through the porous shell onto the hard-cooked egg.

Always use cold water to dissolve coloring tablets, and use tablets made of nontoxic food colors.

Center Offers Summer Enrichment Program for High School Juniors

The Senior Scholars Program, an intensive, three-week course of study for students who have completed their junior year of high school, will be offered June 7-26 at Centre College.

Centre faculty members will teach five courses: Computers and Mathematics, Computers in Chemistry and Physics, International Affairs, Literature and Writing, and Contemporary Art.

The total cost of the program—including tuition, books, supplies, room and board and recreational activities—is $685. Financial aid is available to pay up to the full cost of the program.

Applications received before May 4 will receive preferred attention.

"This is our seventh year to offer this program," Dr. Preston Miles, assistant professor of chemistry and program director of the Senior Scholars Program, said. "It's a challenging experience that will be enjoyable for talented and motivated students. The reason they like it is they find themselves surrounded by an eager group of bright students studying subjects that are challenging and interesting."

This year's courses will be:

Computers and Mathematics—Involves a study of selected mathematical topics including an introduction to calculus and to the computer as a powerful tool for solving mathematical problems.

Computers in Chemistry and Physics—An examination of fundamental concepts selected from the fields of chemistry and physics. Students will learn to write computer programs in BASIC and apply this knowledge to the collection and analysis of data using direct computer interfaces.

International Affairs—This course will focus on such issues as the nature of Soviet foreign policy objectives, ferment and revolution in Latin America, and the causes of instability in the Middle East.

Literature and Writing—Students will read selected works of literature and, in a series of guided assignments, write about how those works relate to human self-understanding.

Contemporary Art—Issues in contemporary art are examined through discussion of art theory and history as well as "hands-on" experience in the techniques of hot glass production. Centre's exceptional hot glass studio is the only such facility in Kentucky and one of the few at any college in the nation.

Admission requirements for the Senior Scholars Program include: completion of the junior year of high school; a strong academic record in a college preparatory program; the name of a teacher or counselor who can furnish a recommendation; submission of a current high school transcript, and, for some courses, high school preparation in certain academic subjects.

For further information and application forms, contact: Dr. Preston Miles, Program Director, Senior Scholars Program, Centre College, Danville, Kentucky 40422, or phone (606) 236-5211 (office) or (606) 236-8209 (home).

Centre, founded in 1819, is the nation's thirteenth-oldest independent liberal arts college. It is coeducational, with a tradition of excellence in the arts and sciences. Centre is the smallest coeducational college in the country to have been selected to have a chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, the academic honorary society.

HOSTS MEETING OF LODGES

Prestonsburg I.O.O.F. Lodge #293, assisted by Miriam Rebekah Lodge #31, served as host to the lodges of District #8, on Saturday, March 14, at 6 p.m. Prior to the meeting, a chicken and dumplin' dinner was served to those in attendance. Presiding over the meeting was the District President, Dr. Wm. D. Blair, of Paintsville. The following Grand Lodge officers were introduced: Dan Ware, Grand Master of Kentucky, Mt. Sterling; Fred Lacock, Deputy Grand Master, Paris; Walter Hammons, Grand Warden, Frankfort; Fred D. Roberts, Grand Secretary, Maysville; H.D. Rice, Jr., Grand Treasurer, Bowling Green; Lynn Baker, Jr., Past Grand Master, Versailles; Bush Hudson, Past Grand Master, Mt. Sterling; Charles McCoy, Grand Representative, Pikeville; Arthur E. Pope, Grand Master, Paintsville, and Frances Fraley, President, Rebekah Assembly of Kentucky, Inez.

The business of the district was conducted, and the group allowed a monetary contribution to the Arthritis Foundation. After speeches were made by some of the visitors, the president ended the meeting with the reading of a poem entitled, "The Bridge Builder," by Will Allen Droomgoole, and dedicated the poem to Brother Arthur E. Pope, of Paintsville, who, at 87 years of age, is probably the oldest member in the district.

Those attending this event in addition to the Grand Lodge officers, were: Marge Thacker, Garnett Reed, Dale Reed, Myrtle Fletcher, Hope Whitten, Myrtle Allen, Earl Compton, Robert DeRossett, Virginia DeRossett, David LeMaster, Jeff Ayers, Earl Daniels, Delcie Daniels, Marie Ross, Blanche Castle, Jean Hickman, Maman Leslie, Mabel LeMaster, Beverly M. Hackworth, Mikie LeMaster, Tom and Mildred Branham, Ostice and Marie Layne, Marvin Hopkins, Pansy Hopkins, Jake and Maxie Bates, Luecher Blair, Shade Ward, Ada Mollette, Jessie Bradley, Everett Bradley, Norma S. Stepp, Virginia S. Goble, James Mollette, Larry C. McCoy, Darlene McCoy, Mary Zemo, Paulina Owens, James B. Goble, John N. Burchett, Mona McKenzie, Bessie Owens, Leander Smith, Pauline Crisp, Virginia "Pete" Roberts, Willard Fraley, Ervin P. Webb, Chester Witten, III, and Dr. William D. Blair.

Door prizes were awarded. The next quarterly meeting will be held June 13, at Inez.

SOME OF THE BEST LAWN EQUIPMENT MONEY CAN BUY FOR NO MONEY AT ALL.

From now until May 31st, your John Deere dealer is giving away free merchandise worth as much as $450 when you purchase a John Deere lawn mower or tractor.

When you buy a riding mower, you'll get a free electric trimmer. With a walk-behind mower, you'll get a free 2-bushel grass bagger.

Buy a lawn tractor and you can choose from these free products: A 6½-bushel grass bagger, a heavy-duty battery charger, a chain saw, a backpack power blower, a gas trimmer, a hedge trimmer or a dump cart.

And when you buy a lawn and garden tractor, the deals are even bigger. You can take home a walk-behind mower, a tiller, a lawn edger, a snow thrower or a heavy-duty gas trimmer. Or you can choose a tractor attachment instead, like a Power-Flow bagger, a lawn sweeper, a dump cart or one of our front blades.

To take advantage of these great offers, just visit your participating John Deere dealer. But do it soon. Because Deere Season doesn't last long, and with deals like these, the Deere won't either.

Recruiting Drive Wins For Chamber 145 New Members

By Joe Porter

The Kentucky Chamber of Commerce brought in 145 new members last Wednesday during its one-day "telebilitz." The membership campaign included Floyd, Johnson, and Martin counties.

Ed Troha, the Kentucky Chamber's membership chairman, called the results "outstanding." "We exceeded our expectation by far. It was the best response and the best one-day event we've had in the state of Kentucky," he said.

Invitations were mailed to businesses to become members prior to the telebilitz. Then more than 15 volunteer members followed up the mailed invitations with telephone calls.

Troha credited the "high caliber group of volunteers" for the event's success. "We had some super people calling," he said. James O. Vanhose, a volunteer caller representing the Bank Josephine, said that about 70 percent of the new members came from Floyd county.

Burl Wells Spurlock, president of the First Commonwealth Bank in Prestonsburg, and Dennis T. Dorton, president of the Citizens National Bank in Paintsville, were campaign co-chairmen. "I was certainly elated by the reception we received," Dorton said. "I think it shows a growing concern of businesses in eastern Kentucky to get behind the state Chamber."

Dorton said that businesses are becoming more aware of the need for economic development in the area and the importance of having an effective spokesman in Frankfort. "A businessman might say for $200 I can't afford to hire a lobbyist and send him to Frankfort, but I can still get my voice heard by joining the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce," Dorton said.

A reception is planned for new members at Jenny Wiley Lodge, Monday, April 6, from 5:30 to 7 p.m.

Anti-Drug Campaign

A national campaign to build awareness of alcohol and drug abuse hazards in the nation's mining industry will be launched on March 26 at 10 a.m. at the Omni Shoreham Hotel in Washington, D.C.

The campaign is the work of a committee known as the Mining Industry Committee on Substance Abuse. The committee is composed of representatives of coal, metal and nonmetal mines, labor unions, and government agencies who have been working for two years developing programs and products to help the mining industry reduce alcohol and drug abuse in the mining workplace.

PRESTONSBURG DAY HOMEMAKERS MEET

The Prestonsburg Day Homemakers met Tuesday afternoon, March 10, at Fellowship Hall of the First United Methodist Church. Due to the absence of Mrs. Judy Kittle, president, Mrs. Barbara Dawson, vice president, presided. Substituting for Mrs. Mary Jane Brown, Mrs. Lucy Regan gave the devotional, the theme of which was "Real Beauty," and she led the group in prayer. Mrs. Dorothy Osborne read the minutes and gave the treasurer's report and the roll call. Mrs. Dolly Pettrey presented a guest, Mrs. Roberta Sloan, who became a member of the club. Among the members reported to have recently been ill were Mesdames Dorothy Stover, Isabel Spotte, Sarah Clay Stephens, and Peg Hewlett. Having recent birthdays were Mesdames Judy Kittle, Dorothy Osborne, Beatrice Collins, Beverly Hackworth, Sandy Chandler, Isabel Spotte, Dixie Webb, and Ruby Young. Framed paper cuttings were displayed and Mrs. Frances Pitts showed slides and discussed ways to increase storage space in the home. Mesdames Mabel Donahoe, Pat Phillips, and Sandy Chandler served a salad course to Frances Pitts, Barbara Dawson, Dorothy Osborne, Lucy Regan, Mary Sue Moore, Dorothy Stover, Gypsy Jones, Jane Wallace, Beckye Short, Maurine Mayo, Eleanor Horn, Roberta Sloan, Ann Alley, Dolly Pettrey, Myrtle Allen, Rebecca Rasnick, Julia Curtis, Docia Woods, Mae K. Roberts, Maman Leslie, Alice Harris, Nancy Webb, Shirley Callihan, Minnie Grace Sutherland, Dixie Webb, Fannie Runnels, and Otelia Smiley.

The next meeting will be at the same location, Tuesday afternoon, April 14, at 1 p.m. The hostesses will be Mesdames Otelia Smiley, Dorothy Stover, and Julia Curtis. The lesson will be "Fiber in Your Diet," with Mrs. Lucy Regan and Mrs. Barbara Dawson as leaders.

METHODIST WOMEN MEET

The March 2 meeting of the Emma United Methodist Women was opened by reading of The Purpose. The program, "Hear Us When We Pray," was presented by Vice-President-Taney Crisp with various members taking part and selections were read from Christian literature.

A discussion of the missions in which United Methodist women participate will be pursued at the group's April 6 meeting.

Hostesses Iuca Hamilton and Mary L. Thornsby served refreshments to Grace Leslie, Sharon Howard, Klora Osborne and Bonnie Walters.

KIWANIANNES PLAN FOUNDERS' DAY

When the Prestonsburg Kiwanians hold their monthly luncheon-meeting on Thursday, March 27, they will be observing Founders' Day of this organization. A staff of the Prestonsburg Kiwanis Club, the Kiwanians held their organizational meeting at the Brown Hotel, here, March 23, 1950, with these charter members in attendance: Ola Anderson, Norcie Burchett, Marie Burns, Nancy Camicia, Judy Clark, Vertner Clark, Mildred (Turp) Combs, Maisie Crace, Margaret Crawford, Jean Francis, Betty Fiedler, Marjorie Francis, Kathryn Frazier, Sarah Goble, Sally Goebel, Edna Carol Greenwade, Geneva Harmon, Gladys Hughes, Alta Leslie, Jessie Mahan, Ruth Moore, Florence Music, Lucy Regan, Frances Rose, Eunice Smith, Flora Spotte, Stella Spurlock, Carmen Strahan, and Gladys White. Mrs. Virginia Davidson Arnold was made an honorary member. Officers of the organization selected at that time were: President, Mrs. William Hugh Smith; Vice President, Mrs. Marie Burns; Secretary, Mrs. Mildred (Turp) Combs; and Treasurer, Mrs. Flora Spotte. The directors were: Mesdames Norcie Burchett, Jean Francis, Judy Clark, and Margaret Crawford. Yellow and green were chosen as the club's colors, yellow roses as their flower, and the motto was "Together We Build." Mrs. Jane Bond, president of this organization would appreciate it if a large crowd is in attendance to help celebrate the Founders' Day event.

In North Africa ashes were considered a sight for sore eyes: the afflicted orbs were rubbed with ashes to cure them.

HONORED ON BIRTHDAY

The First Presbyterian Church was the scene of a birthday party for Roberta Frasure on Sunday, March 8, in honor of her 60th birthday. The table was decorated with a salmon-pink arrangement flanked by matching candles. Cake and punch were served to friends and family members, from whom she received several lovely gifts.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Former Prestonsburg attorney J.D. Bond and his wife, Jennie Crawford Bond, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary March 9, with a party given by their sons and daughters-in-law. The couple was married in Lebanon, Ky. on March 9, 1937. They now live in DeLand, Fla.

VISIT HERE

Capt. Paul Christopher Ackerman and wife, Tracy Lynn Sutton Ackerman, of Clovis, New Mexico, were here recently to visit his mother, Mrs. Margaret Ackerman and other relatives in Huntington, West Virginia.

Capt. Ackerman is currently undergoing training to pilot the F-111 aircraft at Clovis. Mrs. Ackerman is a flight attendant with the Sunworld Airways.

COURSE COMPLETED

Marine Pfc. Joseph E. York, son of Chester R. and Wanda L. York, of Prestonsburg, recently completed the motor vehicle operator course at Camp Pendleton, California. A 1986 graduate of Johnson Central high school, Paintsville, he joined the Marine Corps in July, 1986.

VISIT SISTER AND FRIENDS

Misses Elsie and Linda Stephens, of Lexington, were here recently for a visit with their sister, Mrs. Thelma S. Wallen, and called on several of their friends during that time. Elsie and Linda, who recently moved to Lexington, were entertained at dinner since moving there by long-time friends, Mr. and Mrs. Denver Robertson. They quoted Mrs. Robertson as saying her father, Ishmael Triplett, also of Lexington, who served for many years as superintendent of Prestonsburg schools, was an avid reader of the Floyd County Times, and added that all that's ever necessary to cause Mr. Triplett to make a trip here is to read in this paper that a reunion of Prestonsburg High School classes is scheduled to take place.

RUMMAGE SALE SCHEDULED

The Friendship Circle of the First United Methodist Church met Thursday evening, March 5, with Mrs. Sandra Robertson, president, presiding. The program, entitled "Women in a Changing World," was led by Miss Ann Callihan. The group plans to have a rummage sale on the parking lot there, Saturday, May 9, to finance worthwhile projects of the church. Mrs. Dawn Brown served refreshments to members, Sandra Robertson, Rebecca Hereford, Kathy Fitzpatrick, Callie Carroll, Becky Scholtz, Ann Callahan, Diana Turner, Angel Shepherd, and Debbie Sargent. This organization meets the first Thursday evening of each month.

CLASS OF '57 PLANS REUNION

The Prestonsburg High School class of '57 will hold their 30 year reunion July 25. For further information, contact Verlin Nichols, 33 N. Central Avenue, Prestonsburg, or call her at 886-6286.

Jenny Wiley 3528 A.A.R.P. Schedules Dinner Meeting

Jenny Wiley Chapter 3528, American Association of Retired Persons (AARP), will hold their monthly dinner meeting Friday evening at 5 o'clock at the cafeteria of Highlands Regional Medical Center.

For the program they will attend the concert by the Berea College choir, which is a memorial to Jane Ann Kendrick, being held at the First Presbyterian Church. The Board of Directors will not meet this month.

BAPTISM PLANNED

Welcomed into the fellowship of the First Baptist Church (Irene Cole Memorial), during services there this past Sunday morning were Jack and Shirley Mathews. Baptismal rites will be administered to them by the church's pastor, the Rev. Steve Hopkins, during morning services on March 22.

RETIRED TEACHERS TO MEET

The "first bell" for Floyd County Retired Teachers will ring at May Lodge, Thursday morning, March 19, at 9:30 a.m., and the president, Mrs. Danese Amburgey, wants retired teachers to be there for the "roll call." In lieu of bringing lunch pails, food will be available at the lodge.

SUPERINTENDENT RECOVERING

The condition of Floyd county Superintendent of Schools, Ray Brackett, who underwent surgery in Lexington, a few weeks ago, continues to show improvement.

HRMC Auxiliary Workers Add Extra Touch To Patient Care

By Joe Porter

If you haven't been a patient or visited a loved one at Highlands Regional Medical Center, you might not know about the work they do, but they serve the needs of patients and visitors and raise money for the hospital. They're the Highlands Regional Auxiliary.

The all-volunteer auxiliary was formed in 1974, a year after the hospital opened. by Chalmer Frazier, the hospital's first administrator. Besides running the gift shop, they serve coffee to family members and visitors waiting while a patient is in surgery or intensive care. Often they relay messages about the patient to the people waiting. "The people waiting are often anxious, and those ladies help to put them at ease," said Dr. William Cook, a surgeon at Highlands Regional.

Mrs. Garnett Fairchild, who works the coffee service on Mondays, has been an auxiliary worker for 12 years and has given over 3,000 volunteer hours. "The messages I carry are more important than serving coffee," Mrs. Fairchild said. "I just try to make them comfortable while they wait. I let them just talk to me to calm them down."

The auxiliary workers also take a cart up on the floors and sell magazines and candy, snacks and house slippers. They deliver mail and sometimes read letters to patients. On occasion they've even written letters for patients.

"The girls will fluff up a pillow and do little things to help," said Mrs. Sarah Goble, the auxiliary's director. "See to things in a quiet way. Some like to take time to talk a little bit because some of the patients don't have visitors." They also oversee the chapel, guide people through the hospital, deliver flowers if necessary, and water the plants in the fourth floor lounge.

"We exceedingly appreciate the work the auxiliary is doing," said Russell Briggs, the hospital's associate administrator. "They're very dedicated people. They make our job easier and the patient's stay more enjoyable."

Because they wear pink jackets, they are called "pink ladies" by some people. Each member volunteers one or two times a week at various times, depending on when and where they are needed.

"It's real rewarding," said Jean Burke, who is the auxiliary's vice-president and has been in the organization since its first year. "If you just smile and ask, 'Can I help you? Do you need anything?' it makes a big difference to someone."

The auxiliary donates to the hospital all the money it makes. Their latest contribution was $50,000 that helped build the entrance and elevator to the physicians' medical complex. Over the years, they've contributed between $35,000 and $40,000 for hospital equipment.

The first thing they bought was an $8,000 mobilizer to move patients with. They bought a portable ventilator for the respiratory therapy department and a fetal monitor for the OB clinic. They bought wall-mounted blood pressure cuffs for all the patient rooms and signs for the corridors.

"Before we buy anything we talk with the administration and get their opinion about what's needed," said Mrs. Goble. The women made a bedspread and drapes for the birthing room and bought a rocker for it and the nursery too. Besides that, they gave toiletries to patients and toys to children in the emergency room and outpatient clinic.

The auxiliary has 21 active members, and they would like to increase their membership and expand their services. With more members they could help transport patients from admissions to the X-ray room and the lab and assist in the outpatient clinic. While the auxiliary has only women volunteers now, they welcome men to join. Anyone interested should call Mrs. Goble at the hospital 886-8511, ext. 122.

"There's so much good to do, said Mrs. Goble. "It's a real blessing to be part of the auxiliary. There is a need. It takes devotion and compassion to give of your time and you feel real good about it."

An extra helping hand. An extra minute of their time. An extra smile. Doing extra is what the Highlands Regional Auxiliary is all about. And as Russell Briggs said, "The work they do exceeds what we're required to do and adds a special touch to the care the patient receives."

Shepherd Promoted, Blair Recognized

Daryl E. Shepherd, son of Ballard L. Shepherd and Ruie M. Shepherd, both of Auxier, has been promoted to the U.S. Army rank of private first class. Shepherd is a combat signaler at Schofield Barracks, Hawaii, with the 25th Infantry Division. He is a 1983 graduate of Prestonsburg High School.

Air Force Sgt. Daniel L. Blair, son of G.C. Blair, of Tram, has been named outstanding noncommissioned officer of the year.

Blair is an electronic computer and switching systems specialist with the 11th Tactical Control Group at Elmendorf Air Force Base, Alaska. He is a 1980 graduate of Betsy Layne High School.

Yeager To Address Marshall Scholars

Aviation hero Chuck Yeager will be in Huntington, today, (Wednesday), to address about 200 members of the Marshall University Society of Yeager Scholars "Ground Crew" and invited guests.

General Yeager, who is honorary national chairman of the Society of Yeager Scholars, will make an important announcement during the 8 a.m. breakfast meeting at the Radisson Hotel, MU President Dale F. Nitzscheke said.

"Chuck Yeager already has contributed a great deal to Marshall University and the Society of Yeager Scholars," Nitzscheke said. "The announcement he will make, today, will be tremendously exciting, both to Marshall and to the entire state and region. We're looking forward to some extremely significant additional involvement on his part with Marshall University."

Yeager, the Lincoln county native who broke the sound barrier in an experimental aircraft in 1947, holds many aviation records. He became a fighter pilot ace in a single day of combat during World War II, downing five German aircraft. His achievements were highlighted in Tom Wolfe's best-selling book, "The Right Stuff," and a motion picture of the same name, and his autobiography has been a best-seller for many months.

Marshall's Society of Yeager Scholars annually will recruit 20 of the nation's most outstanding high school seniors and provide them an intensive, enriched four-year program of study at Marshall, including travel abroad. The first class of Yeager Scholars—designated the Ashland Class—will enter Marshall next fall.

Teachers May Apply For Berea Seminars

Berea College is accepting applications for its Mellon Seminars for High School Teachers, scheduled June 14-26 on the college campus.

Seminars will be offered this year in science, "Field Zoology and Ecology"; social studies, "The American Constitution," and humanities, "Latin American Topics," which will include Spanish language instruction if desired.

The two-week summer program is open to high school teachers in Kentucky and the Southern Appalachian region. There is no charge for attending or for room, board or books. A stipend of $250 will be paid to those completing seminar requirements.

To request additional information and application forms, write Ms. Jackie Betts, High School-College Cooperative Learning Program, CPO 67, Berea College, Berea, Ky. 40404, or call 606-986-9341, Ext. 6507. The application deadline is April 17.

Arts School Audition

Beth Hall, daughter of Dickie and Peggy Hall, of Prestonsburg, auditioned on Feb. 28, for the Governor's School for the Arts in the category of vocal and instrumental music. She was accepted in both categories and will travel to Louisville on March 21 for final auditions. If accepted, she will attend the Governor's School for the Arts at the Kentucky Center for the Arts in Louisville July 5-26.

NSDAR MEET

The regular monthly meeting of the John Graham Chapter, NSDAR, was held Tuesday, February 10, at 4 p.m. at the Floyd County Library, with the regent, Mrs. Carl R. Horn, in charge. Due to the absence of Mrs. Frances Brackett, secretary, Mrs. Olga A. Preston read the minutes of the last meeting.

The Ritualistic service was led by the chaplain, Mrs. J.G. Stepp; the Pledge of Allegiance to the flag of the United States of America was led by Mrs. Olga A. Preston; and Mrs. Eleanor Horn led the American's Creed, with the group reciting the latter two in unison. The National Defense message was given by Mrs. Virginia S. Goble.

The treasurer, Mrs. Olga A. Preston, reported that Mrs. Julia P. Curtis was accepted by NSDAR, February 6, making a total of 33 members.

Robert Rennie, the guest speaker, is affiliated with the Head Start and Day Care programs of Floyd county, and is a former instructor at the Prestonsburg Community College. Mr. Rennie spoke on his book, "Kentucky history entitled 'Place Names and Cities in Kentucky.'"

The regent, Mrs. Horn, announced that reservations for the Ninety-First Annual State Conference, to be held at the Marriott Resort, Lexington, needed to be made by March 2. The conference has been scheduled for March 17-19. Among the guests to attend the Kentucky DAR Conference will be President General, NSDAR, Mrs. Raymond F. Fleck, of Washington, D.C.

Read and discussed during this meeting was John Graham Chapter News, written by Mrs. Frances Brackett, former regent and presently secretary-publicity chairman of this chapter, and published in the "Daughters of the American Revolution Magazine" and in the "Kentucky DAR News."

Mrs. Margaret M. Spradlin was hostess for this meeting. She served delicious refreshments to guest Robert Rennie and members, Mesdames Julia Curtis, Virginia S. Goble, Eleanor Horn, Mae S. Kendrick, Opal S. May, Dorothy Osborne, Olga A. Preston, and Norma S. Stepp.

The next regular meeting was scheduled for Tuesday, March 10, at 4 p.m., at the Floyd County Library, with Mesdames Mae S. Kendrick and Eleanor Horn serving as hostesses, and the guest speaker, Miss Laura Duff, discussing "Our American Heritage and My Responsibility to Preserve It." The meeting adjourned at 6 p.m.

The Preamble to the Constitution of the United States of America: "We the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect Union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America." The Daughters of the American Revolution urges us to study this important document.

Poison-Proofing Homes Would Prevent Many Deaths, Injuries

Poison proofing homes could prevent many deaths and serious injuries, according to Kentucky health and safety officials.

"Almost 95 percent of all poisonings could be prevented by taking some precautions," said E.P. Conyers of the Department for Health Services. "We have poisoning victims of all ages, but the majority of incidents involve small children."

Gov. Martha Layne Collins has declared March 15-21 as Poison Prevention Week in Kentucky and health officials are stressing that all homes should be "poison-proofed."

"We've been conditioned to be careful with household cleaners, gasoline, insect spray, antifreeze, weed killers and other toxic materials," Conyers said, "and it's very important to keep those things out of children's reach. But we have to be careful with other things, too."

Conyers says that everyday products can be poisonous and that families with small children should be aware of these items.

Cosmetics, colognes, mouthwashes, alcoholic beverages, and house plants can be harmful if ingested or sprayed in the eyes, he said.

"Young children are curious, and many will eat almost everything," Conyers said. Conyers stresses that parents are not the only people who need to poison-proof their homes.

"Many poisonings occur when children are away from home," he said. "Oftentimes relatives and friends who don't have small children aren't as careful about storing poisonous products, and children can quickly and easily get their hands on something that can kill them or severely injure them."

One mistake that some parents make is calling medicine "candy" in an effort to persuade children to take prescribed medication, he said.

"Children who associate candy with medicine will believe that grandma's pills are candy," Conyers said. "So they eat the pills like they eat candy. Children should be taught that medicine is medicine."

Adults should avoid taking medicine in front of children, said Conyers, because children tend to imitate adults. Always remember to recap containers with the child resistant caps that come on many types of medication.

"Some elderly people request pharmacists not to put child resistant caps on medication because some senior citizens can't remove the caps," Conyers said. "In these situations, it becomes extremely important to keep these medicine bottles out of the reach of children."

"And on the subject of taking prescription medication, I want to point out that people who take several types of medication should be especially careful about taking the right ones at the right time," he said. "And it's easy for any of us to get up in the middle of the night to take medicine and take the wrong medication or the wrong dosage. We all need to be careful all of the time."

Even when care is taken, poisonings can occur. In the event of that situation, Conyers advises people to call the Kentucky Regional Poison Center or their physician to find out what action to take.

The Poison Center in Louisville operates 24 hours a day, seven days a week, year round. Its staff is trained to handle emergencies and inquiries. The toll-free number is 1-800-722-5725. Louisville callers should dial 589-8222.

FLOYD COUNTY HEALTH NEWS

By JANE BOND
Health Educator

The Floyd County Health Center, in Prestonsburg, will hold a pap clinic on Tuesday, March 19, from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. and from 1 to 2 p.m. Women of all ages are encouraged to attend, but those aged 45 and over are especially urged to do so. The clinic also will include instruction in self-breast examination.

On Friday, March 20, a nurse from the health center will be in Harold at the Vogel Day Methodist Church from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. She will offer tuberculosis skin tests, urinalyses, blood pressure examinations, anemia screening, and immunizations.

Both clinics are free and open to the public.

Garden Choices Give New Meaning To 'Eaten Out of House and Home'

If the cost of maintaining your lawn and shrubs is eating you out of house and home, you might want to consider eating the lawn and shrubs instead.

Lots of people plant vegetable gardens, and most Kentucky neighborhoods are inundated with tomatos and zucchini, but these are plants you can look at and enjoy before you eat them.

"Strawberries are good border plants and can be used for ground cover. Heritage raspberries make a nice border hedge," said John Strang, Extension horticulturist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Chives make a good border grass, and they sport tiny purple flowers if allowed to grow. Sage and oregano also do well in Kentucky landscapes. If you need a fruit bearing shrub out near the mailbox, Strang suggests a highbush blueberry.

The highbush, or rabbit eye blueberry, requires acid soil, so it should not be planted near the foundation of the house where mortar and concrete tend to keep the pH of the soil too high for blueberries. You should have the soil tested and apply enough sulphur at least 30 days before planting to bring the pH down to between 4.5 and 5, Strang said. An added benefit of the blueberry is its bright red foliage in the fall.

People with a deck or patio may want to trellis a hardy kiwi over it. The fruit of the kiwi is said to taste like a cross between a strawberry and a banana. The kiwi plant does require well-drained soil.

"Neither the blueberry nor the kiwi is subject to much pressure from insects. Maintenance would not be a problem from that standpoint. You may have some trouble competing with the birds and rabbits for the blueberries, however," Strang said.

The Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service has several free publications on selecting and raising herbs and berries suitable to Kentucky's climate.

Raise Funds For Fire Dept.

Pictured are the winners of the Southeast Floyd County Volunteer Fire Department Bike-A-Thon. They are: 1st place: Jimmy Woods, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Woods, of Weeksbury; 2nd place: Michael Tackett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Tackett, of Bevinville; 3rd place: Angie Tackett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joey Tackett, of Weeksbury.

Nathan Burger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Smith, of Weeksbury, won a special prize for riding the most miles. He rode 37 miles.

The bike-a-thon event is held once a year as a fund raising event of the fire department.

Earnings Reports Are Due April 15

Annual reports of 1986 earnings must be filed by April 15 by people receiving Social Security benefits who earned more than the annual exempt amount in 1986. Jim Kelly, Social Security District Director for the Big Sandy area, said recently.

The 1986 annual exempt amounts were $5,760 for people under 65 all of 1986 and $7,800 for people 65 through 69.

People who received some benefits in 1986 and earned more than the exempt amounts are required to file a report of those earnings by April 15. Those who received no benefits in 1986 are not required to file a report, but Kelly said, those people should file a report to make sure that any benefits that might be due for the year are paid.

A person who earned less than anticipated, for example, may be due some benefits. The only way these benefits can be paid as if the person files an annual report.

The general rule is that $1 in benefits is withheld for each $2 of earnings above the exempt amount. A person can have substantial yearly earnings before all benefits are withheld. For example, a 65 year old person whose monthly benefit rate is $500 could earn $19,800 before all benefits for 1986 were withheld.

Those who are required to file an annual report should have received a copy in the mail. If they have not, they should contact the Big Sandy Area Social Security office to get a copy. Those not required to file, but who wish to do so, can also get a copy at the office.

The 1987 annual exempt amounts are $6,000 for people under 65 all of 1987 and $8,160 for people 65 through 69. The earnings test does not apply once a person reaches 70.

More information about annual reports and the annual earnings test can be obtained at the Big Sandy Area Social Security office located on U.S. 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville. The telephone number is listed in your local telephone directory under U.S. Government.

Honored For Work

Chris Anna McKenzie, who has helped many who are blind, was almost literally speechless when she received the Downtown Sertoma Club's annual Service to Mankind Award, March 6, in Fort Smith, Arkansas. She said later, "I was really surprised. I was here two years ago to speak, and I thought that was why I was here today."

Miss McKenzie, who is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Troy McKenzie, of Auxier, was chosen for the award because of her work with some 100 visually impaired children and their parents. An employee of the state Division of Services for the Blind, she travels an 18-county area helping others apply for state and federal assistance and teaching them skills to function in a sighted world.

Her parents, Bill and Pearl McKenzie, of Little Rock, Arkansas, were among the audience applauding their daughter.

A spokesman for the Sertoma Club said, "She's an exceptional person. She gives a lot of herself, her time and her money to help the blind."

Miss McKenzie, who lives in Fort Smith, prefers to work with children, because she can relate to their difficulties, having been born blind, herself.

At Harding College, she was a member of the dean's list while earning a bachelor of arts degree in three years, and while earning a master's degree in counseling at the University of Arkansas, she maintained a 3.60 grade point average. At that time, neither school had special programs for the blind.

An inspiration to hundreds throughout Arkansas, Miss McKenzie is quick to give credit to her parents for her successes, saying, "I was fortunate because I've had exceptional parents."

Conductor Ozawa To Be Featured On KET

Enjoy a rare look at the public and private life of one of the world's leading conductors on "Ozawa," airing as part of the on-going series of "Great Performances" Monday, March 30, at 8 p.m. on KET.

Ozawa stands out as a premiere orchestral leader in a world of crashing cymbals and melodic violin movements. He is the music director of the Boston Symphony and has several on going musical projects in his native Japan. "Ozawa" features the intense maestro enjoying some well-deserved rest with his wife and children at home in Boston.

Great orchestras of the world in Tanglewood, Salzburg, Berlin, Tokyo and Osaka are featured following Ozawa's swift baton which slashes the air with apparent wild abandon. The timeless classical works of the great composers Dvorak, Beethoven, and Mahler are showcased in this one-hour broadcast.

"Great Performances" is presented by an alliance of five public television stations: WNET/New York; KERA/Dallas-Ft. Worth; KQED/San Francisco; South Carolina ETV/Columbia, S.C.; and WTTW/Chicago.

Pageant Winner

Angela Renee Ousley, 8-year-old daughter of Johnny and Debbie Ousley, of Prestonsburg, was crowned "Miss Photogenic Queen" in the eight to ten year old category of the Snow Queen Pageant, held March 7 at the National Guard Armory. She also won first place in the most beautiful and prettiest smile categories. Angela is a third-grade student at Clark Elementary.

Usual earnings for women working full time in the fourth quarter of 1986, were $296 per week, 69 percent of the $428 median for men, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the U.S. Department of Labor.

Lorine Rollins

Lorine Rollins, 66, of Wheelwright, Tennessee, died last Thursday at the McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital, following an apparent heart attack.

She was born July 5, 1920 in Bonair, Tennessee, a daughter of the late John D. and Nannie Kirby Rice.

She is survived by her husband, Arthur Lee Rollins; four daughters, Georgia Lee Martin, Loretta Gayheart, Virginia "Jean" Johnson, and Wanda Kay Rollins, all of Wheelwright; a sister, Parzetta Southard, in Tennessee, eight grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted Sunday at the Lower Burton Church of God at Wheelwright, with Darrell Jones and Danny Carr officiating.

Burial was made in the Buckingham cemetery under direction of the Hall Funeral Home.

Active pallbearers were Harold D. Bates, Jr., James Craig Martin, Willie Gearheart, Charles Martin, Bobby Mosley, and Stanley Moore.

Elizabeth B. Ratliff

Elizabeth B. "Lizzie" Ratliff, 96, formerly of Estill and Paintsville and a resident of Centerville, Ohio since 1975, died March 1 at the Kettering Convalescent Center after a lengthy illness.

She was preceded in death by her husband, E. B. Ratliff in 1975 and also by a son, Everett in 1950 and a daughter, Dovie Rose in 1974. She is survived by a son, Cleo Ratliff, of West Van Lear; four daughters, Garnett Dyer and Virgie Gibson, both of Willard, Ohio, May Laney, of White House, Ky., and Gladys M. Connors, of Centerville, Ohio; 17 grandchildren and many great-grandchildren.

She was a member of the Church of God.

Funeral services were held in Ohio with Pastor Roy Gibbs officiating, and at the Jones-Preston Funeral Home in Paintsville, with Buddy Jones and Green Boyd of the Estill Free Will Baptist Church officiating. Burial followed in the family cemetery at River.

Obituaries

Lucretia Boyd Rice Wills

Lucretia Boyd Rice Wills, 92, of Prestonsburg, died last Wednesday, at the home of her daughter, Sina Blanton, at Prestonsburg, following a long illness.

She was born March 24, 1894 at Dana, a daughter of the late Linney and Mary Boyd. She was preceded in death by her first husband, Samuel G. Rice, in 1945 and later by her second husband, Richard Wills, in 1973. She had been a member of the New Life United Baptist Church at Banner, for 69 years.

She is survived by three sons, Elder Willie Rice, of Pikeville, Elder George Rice, of Banner, and Lucian G. Rice, of Goldsboro, N.C.; nine daughters, Madge Mauk, of Jeffersonville, Ind., Sina Blanton, of Prestonsburg, Olga Allen, of Grayson, Lula Wallen, of Pikeville, Darcus Lafferty, of Martin, Hamie Warrix, of East Point, Josie Crick, of St. Louis, Mo., Goldie Calhoun, of Water Gap, and Rubel Fields, of Deland, Fla.; one sister, Josie Akers, of Dana, several grandchildren, great-grandchildren and great-great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted Saturday at 11 a.m. at the New Life United Baptist Church at Dana, with United Baptist ministers officiating. Burial was made in the Gunnels cemetery at Banner, under the direction of the Hall Funeral Home.

Dixie Anna Bond

Dixie Ann Bond died Tuesday, March 10 in San Antonio, Texas.

Born at Virgie on December 25, 1912, she was the eldest daughter of the late Dr. Charles F. and Cordelia Tackett Bond, who lived in Prestonsburg prior to their deaths in 1949 and 1955.

She was a member of the Bar Association of Kentucky, and was among the first women to be admitted to practice law in Floyd Circuit Court. She is survived by a brother, J.D. Bond, of DeLand, Florida, a former attorney in Prestonsburg.

Ollie Blackburn

Ollie Blackburn, 65, of Endicott, died Monday at the University of Kentucky Medical Center in Lexington, following a short illness.

He was a son of the late Thomas and Bertha Burchett Blackburn, and was born February 27, 1922 at Endicott. A retired night watchman for the Brown Produce Company, he was a former tool room clerk with the R & S Body Company at Allen, and an Army veteran of World II. He was a member of the Endicott Free Will Baptist Church and also was a member of the D.A.V. Chapter 128 at Garrett.

Survivors include his wife, Jean Miller Blackburn; a son, Kenneth T. Blackburn, of Endicott; a daughter, Wendy Hite, also of Endicott; a brother, Otto Blackburn, of Prestonsburg; three sisters, May Hunter, also of Prestonsburg, Eunice Blankenship, of Columbus, O., and Lenora Sutler, of Dayton, O., and three grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted at 1 p.m. tomorrow (Thursday) in the Floyd Funeral Home chapel with ministers, James Harmon, Virgil Hunt, and Willis Adkins officiating. Burial will be made in the Blackburn cemetery at Endicott with military rites provided by the D.A.V. Chapter 128 at Garrett.

Bruce Blackburn

Bruce Blackburn, 70, of Rochester, New York, formerly of Prestonsburg, died March 8 in Cleveland, Ohio, following an apparent heart attack. Mr. Blackburn was returning home following a trip to Orange, Texas.

Born April 30, 1916, he was a son of Oliver P. Blackburn, of Rochester, N.Y., and the late Ollie Blackburn. An Army veteran of World War II, he was a member of the Local Union No. 13 and a member of the Catholic church there.

He was twice married; first to Antoinette Giancurcio Blackburn, who preceded him in death, and later to Janice Warfle Blackburn, who survives. He was a retired licensed plumber.

Other survivors include five sons, Roger, Frank, Bruce, Fred, and Anthony Blackburn, all of Rochester; four daughters, Barbara Difilippo, Antoinette Dean, Kathleen LaFleche and Dorothy Blackburn, all of Rochester, N.Y.; seven sisters, Williamae Shepherd, of Prestonsburg, Edith Wilsey, and Ruth Lipari, both in Florida, Lucille Russi, Ruby Mammarello, Mary Virginia Blackburn and Josephine Stefans, all of Rochester, N.Y., and 14 grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Friday at 10 a.m. at the St. Peter and Paul Church there. Burial was made in the Holy Sepulchre cemetery in Rochester under direction of the Bartolomeo Funeral Home.

PALLBEARERS LISTED

Active pallbearers for the funeral of Rev. Henry Harmon Music were Harrison Sparks Jr., Elbert Blackburn Jr., Howard Kenneth Osborne, John Vaughn, Jr., Ken Necessary, Russell Music Jr., Elbert Blackburn III, and Patrick Sparks.

Correction Noted

It was erroneously reported last week that Allen Madison Collett was involved in a shooting and died in his car. In fact, Collett suffered a heart attack in his driveway and was pronounced dead soon after at Our Lady of the Way Hospital. The Times regrets the error.

Neil A. Mulvaney, Jr.

Neil A. (Tony) Mulvaney, Jr., 37, of Lexington, died Monday at his residence following an extended illness. He was a division manager for U.P.S. in Lexington and was formerly a division manager for the Floyd county area.

Born January 21, 1950 at Ashland, a son of Neil A. and Dorothy Wheeler Mulvaney, Sr., of Ashland, he was a member of the St. Elizabeth Ann Seton Catholic Church and the downtown Lexington Lions Club where he had served as a past president.

In addition to his parents, he is survived by his wife, Shirley A. Hicks Mulvaney; two sons, Neil A. Mulvaney III and Edward Ashley Mulvaney, both of Lexington; two brothers, Danny Mulvaney, of Ashland and Brent Mulvaney, of Lexington.

Funeral services will be conducted at 10 a.m. today (Wednesday) at the St. Elizabeth Ann Seton Church with Father Tom Farrell officiating. Burial will be made in the Rose Hill cemetery at Ashland under direction of the W.R. Milward Mortuary, Southland.

Memorials may be made to Hospice of the Bluegrass or to the church.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Lorine Rollins wishes to thank all those friends, neighbors, and family who helped them in any way upon the passing of their loved one. Thanks for the food, flowers, prayers, and words of comfort expressed. A special thanks to the Lower Burton Church of God, the ministers, Darrell Jones and Danny Carr, and to the Hall Funeral Home for its kind and courteous service.

THE FAMILY 11.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Leona H. Greer wishes to express our deep appreciation for the flowers and food that was sent during the passing of our loved one. A special thanks to Elder Richard Crisp and Rev. Jack Derossett, the Third Avenue singers, Bro. Robert Derossett and choir for the special songs. Also thanks to Floyd Funeral Home and their staff for their kindness and the efficient service that was rendered.

RANSOM GREER AND FAMILY

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Rev. Henry Harmon Music extends its deepest appreciation to all those who were so kind to us during our time of sorrow. We would like to thank all our friends and family who sent flowers, food, and words of comfort; Dr. Handshoe and the nurses and staff at HRMC for excellent medical care; Rev. Doug Burkett and Rev. Jack DeRossett for their sermon that brought peace to our hearts; the singers of the Auxier Freewill Baptist Church for their beautiful message in song; and the Floyd Funeral Home for all their assistance.

A special thank-you to the nurses and staff at Riverview Manor Nursing Home and to the many churches and people who donate their love and time to the patients.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Don Edward Prater extend our sincere appreciation to all friends and relatives, who through their kindness provided food and comfort in our hour of need. We would also like to recognize those groups and individuals who played a special part in our time of bereavement. Thanks to the Regular Baptist ministers of the Little Rosa Church, the Hall Funeral Home for their excellent and thoughtful service, Doctors Arnett and Handshoe of Highlands Regional Hospital and the ICU staff, also the Respond Ambulance Service.

We wish to extend a special thank you to our friends, Larry Adams and Rhonda Ousley for their compassion when we needed it most.

Again thank you FROM THE FAMILY OF DON PRATER 11.

FINANCIAL PLANNING

REDUCE YOUR SELF-EMPLOYMENT TAX

A self-employed individual pays his/her Social Security contributions as "self-employment taxes". These are computed on a special self-employment schedule along with the Form 1040 for regular income taxes. But the quarterly tax estimates filed by a self-employed person must take self-employment taxes into consideration.

A self-employed individual may be able to reduce the self-employment tax by hiring his or her spouse, hiring minor children, lumping income into alternate years, or by incorporation and electing S status.

An unincorporated businessperson who hires a spouse will reduce the net profit subject to self-employment tax. The spouse receiving the compensation does not pay Social Security taxes under a special exemption for spousal wages. The same is true if you hire one of your children under the age of 21. Keep in mind that the amount paid must be reasonable compensation for the services performed.

The maximum net profit subject to self-employment tax for 1987 is $43,800. If your net profit is in the $43,000 range, consider shifting your income and deductions so that you pay the maximum Social Security in some years and substantially less than the maximum in alternate years.

If your sole proprietorship or husband-wife partnership is producing a net profit in excess of a reasonable compensation for your time, you could save money by incorporating and electing S status. You're required to take a reasonable wage but no more than that. If reasonable compensation for you or your spouse would be $10,000, for example, there is little point in paying 12.3% of $43,800 for 1987. If you incorporate, the salary you draw will also be subject to federal unemployment tax. This must be computed to determine what savings you would have under this technique.

To the extent you pay less than the maximum self-employment Social Security contribution, you will reduce your benefits. One should take the savings from the reduced taxes and invest them wisely.

IRS To Provide New W4-A Form To Clarify Old W4 Form, Maybe

March 2, the Internal Revenue Service released a short version of the federal income tax withholding certificate—Form W-4A—that has been forwarded to the Office of Management and Budget for clearance.

The IRS also said that wage-income taxpayers will not be permitted if they are underwithheld for 1987 as long as they make a good faith effort to comply with the law and file a new withholding certificate by June 1, 1987.

The new Form W-4A, which would be available four to six weeks after IRS receives approval, is an alternative to the longer version of the federal withholding certificate released last November. The IRS issued the Form W-4 because of changes made by the Tax Reform Act of 1986 and because Congress requested the IRS to make withholding more accurately match taxpayers' income tax liability. According to the IRS, the new form would provide an easier way to figure withholding allowances than the earlier four-page W-4 form.

At a news conference held March 2, the IRS emphasized that employees who have already filed a 1987 Form W-4 with their employers will not need to file again.

The IRS said that the two-page Form W-4A was developed to address taxpayers' concerns that the four-page version was too complicated for many taxpayers who do not have complex tax situations. The front page of Form W-4A includes a worksheet for taxpayers who claim allowances only for personal exemptions, age or blindness or at least $1,500 of child or dependent care expense.

Taxpayers will generally find it beneficial to file the longer Form W-4 if the taxpayer's financial situation is more complicated, including substantial amounts of interest or other nonwage income. Also, taxpayers who wish to claim allowances for tax credits other than the child and dependent care credit allowed on the short form should file Form W-4.

The IRS noted further that taxpayers who want to get a refund or increase a refund amount may compute their W-4A or W-4 to closely match their tax liability and then decrease the number of withholding allowances they claim on the form filed with their employer.

Because some taxpayers may not have changed their withholding before a portion of this year has passed, the IRS today urged them to monitor their withholding carefully to avoid underwithholding or unwanted overwithholding, using IRS Publication 919, "Is My Withholding Correct?" A worksheet in that publication takes into account tax that has been withheld in 1987 and projects revised withholding for the remainder of the year. Publication 919 is available by calling the toll free number 1-800-424-3676.

EAST POINT HOMEMAKERS MEET

The East Point Homemakers met March 10, at 10:30 a.m., at the home of Mrs. Wanda Wells. The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Sharon Watkins; the devotional was given by Mrs. Lorene Horne; and the secretary and treasurer's reports were given by Mrs. Dorothy Harris. Mrs. Horne, who recently visited the Breast Cancer Center at the Highlands Regional Medical Center, shared with the club a report on the progress there. A new member, Mrs. Mabel Hicks, was welcomed. The lesson on "Small Spaces and Special Places" was given by Mrs. Frances Pitts.

It was announced that a Sewing Expo will be held March 25 and 26, at Greenbo State Park, Greenup, Kentucky. Two members of the East Point Club will be attending. It was also announced that Homemakers' Camp will be June 3, 4, and 5, and that registration should be submitted by May 4. A schedule of classes is to be included in the April newsletter. A wall hanging workshop will be held in April. Jean Watson will be the instructor, and supplies will be available to purchase at that time. Mrs. Pitts brought to the meeting two wall hangings for members to see. Winter projects and ideas were exchanged.

The hostess, Mrs. Wells, served refreshments to Mesdames Betsy Baldrige, Priscilla Hager, Dorothy Harris, Lorene Horne, Elsie Leake, Arnita Snively, Sharon Watkins, Frances Pitts, and Mabel Hicks. Mrs. Kathy Lowe will be the hostess for the April 4 meeting. The lesson, "Fiber in the Diet," will be given by Mesdames Betsy Baldrige and Arnita Snively.

George Washington was the commander-in-chief of the military forces of all the colonies. The Daughters of the American Revolution reveres this great general and patriot.

AG Week Honors State's Farmers

In Kentucky National Agriculture Week, March 15-21, will be marked by speeches, demonstrations, essay contests and booths dispensing free samples in events across the state.

Dean Charles Barnhart, of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, said, "National Agriculture Week is a time set aside to honor the men and women who are the backbone of our nation. And here in Kentucky there are many we need to honor."

Kentucky is home to more than 99,000 farmers, placing it fourth in the nation in number of farmers. Those 99,000 farmers together plow, plant and forest more than half the acres in the state.

Cash receipts from the 1985/86 season added more than $2.87 billion to the state's economy—in dollars that often changed hands six or seven times in their local communities.

"Farmers truly form the backbone of this state and nation. They produce the goods to feed and clothe us, and the dollars they bring into the state help support equipment dealers, bankers, grocers, department stores, and a sizable portion of the state government and the services it provides," Barnhart said.

Kentucky has not been untouched by the farm crisis which has beset the agricultural community across the United States. But Kentucky's farmers have done as well as those of any other state in weathering these rough times.

"Our farmers are digging their heels in and hanging on. We're still losing a few each year, but not as many in the past two or three years as in the five or six that preceded them. And this is while the farmers' share of the food and fiber dollar continues to shrink," Barnhart said.

As a nation, we continually ask our farmers to do more and more for us and accept less and less in return, and they have never let us down.

Most of Kentucky's farmers would be classified as small farmers, but those small farmers have combined to make Kentucky the 12th largest cattle producer in the U.S., the 15th largest soybean producer, the 13th largest corn producer, the sixth largest hay producer, and the nation's largest producer of burley tobacco.

"These are small farmers, not small people. Their accomplishments put the people who till Kentucky's soil right up there with some of the biggest people in the world, the American farmer," Barnhart said.

County Extension offices, 4-H clubs, high school chapters of the Future Farmers of America, commodity groups, and farmers associations are planning a wide variety of events during National Agriculture Week, and especially on March 21, National Agriculture Day.

Dean Barnhart urged all Kentuckians to join the celebrations in their communities to let farmers know that we understand and appreciate the role they play in our lives.

CPR Classes Offered at HRMC

In picture, Don Hicks, CPR instructor, demonstrates "baby-saver" techniques at the training course held recently at HRMC.

Highlands Regional Medical Center, in keeping with its on-going courses in community service education programs, conducted CPR courses on Saturday, February 28.

Some of the questions dealt with during the courses were: What is the universal distress signal for choking? If someone is choking, but can cough, should you help? and What do the A-B-Cs of CPR stand for?

The course consisted of lectures explaining the nature of heart problems, signs and symptoms of heart attack, and choking. However, the main emphasis of the CPR course centered on learning the actual techniques of cardiopulmonary resuscitation.

Participants are required to pass written and performance examinations. The performance exam consists of demonstrating rescue breathing and compression techniques used for adults, children, and infants.

CPR instructor, Don Hicks explains, "the majority of deaths (60% to 70%) which occur after a heart attack, happen before the victim reaches the hospital. A substantial number of lives could possibly be saved if more people knew CPR."

Federal Women's Program Will Meet in Huntington

Ada E. Deer, a Menominee Indian and a lecturer at the University of Wisconsin, will be the keynote speaker at the 13th Annual Federal Women's Program Seminar, March 25-27, at the Huntington Civic Center.

Deer is active in many local, state and national organizations, especially those dealing with American Indian Affairs. She teaches in the School of Social Work and the Native American Studies Program at the University of Wisconsin.

Deer's message will relate to the seminar theme "Women in the World On the Move." Deer said, "It (the theme) brings to mind the women who have acted on their beliefs to bring about change beneficial to themselves and others. Having been a part of the women's movement for many years, I hope that I can share a meaningful history with my audience and help them to aspire to an even greater success in the future."

Joining Deer at the seminar, which is sponsored by the Huntington District, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, will be other specialists who will conduct eight workshops in a variety of subjects relating to this year's theme.

Along with the workshops, a luncheon will be held at the Huntington Hotel Radisson March 26 from 11:45 a.m. until 1 p.m.

Registration for the FWP Seminar will take place prior to each of the four workshops to allow those who did not meet the March 12 pre-registration deadline to attend. For more information, call (304) 529-5782.

Committee Appointment

Rep. Herbert Deskins, Jr., D-Pikeville, has been named to serve on the Environmental Quality & Natural Resources Committee of the Southern Legislative Conference by the Speaker of the Kentucky House of Representatives.

Biologist Eyes Algae In Artificial Streams

A University of Louisville biologist is studying algae by "polluting" streams in Bernheim Forest.

Robert Stevenson has begun a two-year research project that will examine the nature of algae and how it adapts to the ever-changing conditions of streams. To simulate the changing conditions of stream life, Stevenson will vary the amount of nutrients and pollutants in 21 artificial streams.

Changes in algae, which provides food for all organisms in a stream, could eventually alter animal life.

"A lot of research has been done on lakes, but this is the first time anyone has seriously studied algae in streams," Stevenson said. "We also want to find out how long it will take for algae to occur after a flood or other violent ecological disturbance."

CONTRACEPTIVE SABOTAGE

Some prescription drugs may actually render a birth-control pill ineffective. A survey of recent research on the interaction of drugs and oral contraceptives shows that some drugs block the action of the pill. The drugs known to interfere with oral contraceptives are: tetracycline-type antibiotics; the antibiotic rifampicin, used in treating active tuberculosis; the anti-seizure drugs phenytoin, primidone and phenobarbital. These drugs stimulate liver enzymes that break down the active ingredients of the pill, preventing it from suppressing ovulation. Low-dose estrogen pills are especially prone to failure since they already approach the "threshold dose" for adequate pregnancy protection.

COOLEY APOTHECARY carries what you would expect to find in a well inventoried drug store. We are very proud to be able to provide families in this area with all their pharmaceutical needs. Our records are fully maintained so that they can be readily available to both you and your physician. You'll find us located at #2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106 and open Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-4. Master Charge and Visa honored plus we welcome all third party payments.

HANDY HINT: Spotting or bleeding between menstrual periods may indicate drug-induced contraceptive sabotage.

Fan Support Picks Up During Regional Tourney Time

They came from every nook and cranny, every hill and hollow in the four county area. With one common purpose in mind, area basketball fans flooded the Virgie Athletic Complex to cheer on their favorite teams.

Teams needed special preparation for the tournament, but it was evident that their fans also did some extra work to ready themselves for this all important event.

From all over Floyd, Pike, Johnson, and Magoffin counties, fans followed their young court performers to Virgie. From the red and blue of Allen Central to the maroon and white of Magoffin County, and everything in between, they sold out every night of the tournament.

Fans came with one purpose in mind, but the way they carried it out varied with each community. Some crowds tried intimidating tactics such as the famous 'you you you' chant. Some worked the officials with the barnyard chant, while others stooped low enough to throw objects onto the floor. Nevertheless, the crowd played a big part in the outcome of some games, especially in the closer contests.

With the tournament being held in Virgie every school, except Pikeville and the host Eagles, were forced to travel a long way to represent their team, but even this didn't affect the turnout. It was huge each night, Magoffin County fans had to trek over 70 miles to cheer for their Hornets, but to hundreds of people the trip was nothing to overcome, especially when their team had made it to another regional tournament.

According to Hornet fan Jim Cheek, who could very well be Magoffin County's number one fan, people who weren't normally loyal followers had found their way to upper Pike County. "I've seen people here tonight that I haven't seen at a Magoffin game in 10 years," Cheek said. "If we win tonight you'll see a lot more here Monday night."

Magoffin County did win, upsetting Belfry on a last second Neil West jumpshot, and Coach Danny Adams said the crowd had a positive effect on his team. "The crowd has been a big factor all season," Adams said. "In the fourth quarter when we started to cut into their lead the crowd got back into the contest. We were tired because this was a physical game, but when the crowd picked up so did we."

Magoffin County supporters greatly outnumbered those of Belfry persuasion, and were probably the most vocal group of any in the tournament. Other than the required ones for cheerleaders, the team, and the band, Magoffin County used four buses to bring their fans.

Jim Cheek says its just simply that Hornet fans are more supportive. This could very well be true, but it wouldn't be hard to find someone willing to question it. Allen Central coach Johnny Martin held high praise for his own fans during the district tournament. And that show of support continued throughout the regional tourney.

Rebel fans prefer to do it differently, though. During the district tourney, Allen Central suffered from spring fever, wearing flowered shorts and short sleeved shirts.

Their crowds weren't as big as some other teams, nor were they as vocal, but they certainly received attention. Every time they rose to cheer they rose together. Allen Central's crowd cheered as one, showing the best unity they had this season.

Allen Central may have been the class act of the tournament. Not only were they colorful, and together, they did a solid job in providing quality representatives of their school.

If the color blue is a favorite of yours then Virgie would have been the place for you Saturday night. All four teams wore blue, and so was most of the standing room only crowd, but after the Virgie-Johns Creek game it became apparent where all the blue had come from.

Paintsville and Betsy Layne are rapidly developing one of the best rivalries, and their supporting fans is one reason why. These two crowds cheer against each other as much as they do for their respective teams. No seats and little standing room were available Saturday night. Big Blue dominated, but which big blue isn't known.

It isn't surprising that the tournament was played before a packed house every night, but the fact that schools outside Pike county, consistently had a bigger show of support is. As did the competitors on the floor, the fans held back nothing. Some colorful, some vocal, and some unkind, they accomplished what they set out to do—all they could to help their beloved teams win.

The crowds also came to see exciting basketball. Their teams made sure of that. Combined with the high emotional factor, and an evenly matched eight team field, the 15th regional tournament proved to be a beautiful sporting event.

Playing on the road can be deadly for some teams, but the crowds didn't realize they weren't at home. They decorated the Virgie Athletic Complex to their liking, they wore their team colors, and they made their teams feel at home.

The tremendous fans showing during this years regional tournament has done a lot to increase the level of competition in area high school basketball, which will no doubt send out a message to the rest of Kentucky, eastern Kentucky basketball is the best supported of any in the state. Fans here think it's just as good too—and someday maybe the recognition will be as widely spread as the support.

THE SPORTING TIMES

Doctors are mystified. Health experts can't find solutions, and all of eastern Kentucky is in a state of confusion.

A new disease, reportedly originating in Arizona and South Florida, has invaded this area. No cure has been found, and according to experts only time can uncover the facts of this strange new illness.

Early symptoms include ringing of the ears, comparable to aluminum striking a hard object. A longing for warmer weather, and a strange desire to hear Harry Cary say Holy Cow, are also strong indications of this new disease.

According to medical history, this illness has cropped up in past years, usually in mid-March. In most cases, the symptoms disappear in about one month.

No question about it, people of this area have once again contracted the harmless, but untreatable disease known as baseball fever.

The only cure known to the medical community is to either watch taped broadcasts of last year's world series, catch a spring training game, or just let the illness run its course.

High school baseball starts in about two weeks, April 1, and could be the best solution, if a victim can survive that long.

The regional basketball tournament just concluded, and the state tourney will begin soon, but round basketball just is no cure for the desire for baseball.

Warm sunshine, a great pitcher's dual, the sound of a solidly hit baseball—these are the medicines for baseball fever.

Here in Floyd county, and all around the 15th region, high school teams hold the answers, great teams, great players, and tremendous enthusiasm.

Last season the 58th district proved to be a talented, and well-balanced district. This year holds all the ingredients needed for another exciting, and interesting race to the regional tourney.

Defending champion Prestonsburg lost several talented players but the Blackcats, under Coach Russell Shepherd, also returned several talented players.

Gone is top pitcher Greg Shepherd. Gone is starting catcher John Goble, and gone is Pete Greene, who played just about every position for Prestonsburg last year.

Russell Shepherd has the nucleus of a good group returning, though. The right side of the Blackcat infield returns intact. Second baseman Brian Wallace may not be up to full form due to injuries, but can handle the position. Basketball star David Martin can also play baseball, especially at first base.

Third base was played last year by Jim Frazier who is back, as is starting outfielder Joey Griffith. Griffith proved last year that he could also be effective on the mound, as can Tim Trusty.

Prestonsburg could very well repeat as district champs, but it won't be easy. The Blackcats struggled with Betsy Layne last year, and Junior Newsome has possibly the best pitching staff of any team in the 15th region.

Led by senior Bud Newsome, the Bobcats return three of their top four pitchers from 1986. Betsy Layne will rely heavily on the left hander's vast talents. Not only is Newsome the best pitcher in the 15th region, he is also one of the best hitters.

On the mound Betsy Layne is as tough as anyone in this area. Other than Bud Newsome, the Bobcats have hard throwing right hander Duran Newsome, and Randall Spurlock. Both pitchers proved they could win last year.

The Bobcats lost a lot of baseball firepower due to graduation, but should prove to be talented enough to challenge for a district title.

Allen Central could be the surprise team of the region. The Rebels were talented last season, but that talent was

Horne Shoots Allen Central To Regional Championship Contest

Roger Horne had one of those games most high school basketball players only dream about. In Allen Central's 73-51 victory over Magoffin County Monday night, the 6'2" Rebel guard tossed in a total of 36 points.

Horne came out of the locker room with his shooting arm cocked. Known as a streak shooter, he obviously experienced the full force of one of his better streaks.

The Magoffin County Hornets also felt the sting of Horne's offensive ability, but the opposition didn't appreciate it the way Johnny Martin did.

"What can I say about him," the Allen Central coach said of his senior guard's performance. "He is a heckuva shooter."

"I coached Jimmy Stepp, who went on to play major college basketball, and I coached Ervin Stepp," Martin continued. "Roger isn't as quick as they were, but he can shoot as well as either of them."

All season long Horne has proven his shooting ability, scoring over 30 points several times, but he may have saved his best performance for Monday's semi-final round of the regional tournament.

After Stanton Bentley opened Allen Central scoring with an early field goal, Horne took control with an array of long range bombs.

The Rebel guard hit three jumpshots in the first period as Allen Central opened up a seven point advantage heading into the second quarter.

Horne scored 12 points in that second period, all coming on outside jumpers, and the Rebels went into the locker room with a 32-24 halftime advantage.

While Horne and company scored almost at will against a confused Magoffin County defense, the Hornets struggled against Allen Central's matchup zone defense.

Magoffin County, who upset Belfry in the tournament's opening round, could manage only seven third-quarter points. Although Horne hit for only two in this frame, the Rebels still increased their lead to 12 points.

After Allen Central struggled with their early second half offense, Rudy Martin gave Rebel fans room to breathe, hitting for six points. Martin, who will weave his basketball magic for two more years at Allen Central, finished with 12 points, eight of those coming in the second half.

Magoffin County, which has a reputation as a team that will never throw in the towel, cut the Rebel lead to eight points early in the fourth quarter.

In their final regular-season meeting, Allen Central led the Hornets by 18 points late, but Magoffin County rallied to trim that advantage to only two points. Johnny Martin was aware of this situation but, thanks to Horne and Ronnie Ousley, their coach didn't worry for long.

Horne answered the Hornet challenge with a patented jumper with 6:24 remaining in the contest. Bentley, 34 seconds later, added another bucket, as Allen Central built their lead back to 12 points.

This is when Magoffin County came completely unraveled. Head coach Danny Adams had seen enough calls go against his club and, after he made his point clear, the officials countered with a technical foul.

At about this time Adams really got fired up. The officials once again had the final say with another technical on the Hornet head man.

Horne took full advantage of the situation—almost. The red hot Rebel guard cashed in on three of the four free-throw opportunities, and nine seconds later hit another jumpshot to put Allen Central up by 17 points.

Ousley also got into the scoring act, hitting for six points in the final frame, ending the contest with a total of 11.

With their team falling apart, their coach showed the exit door after receiving his third technical, and not getting many breaks, Magoffin County fans reacted in drastic fashion. They threw ice, popcorn, and whatever else was available, onto the Virgie playing floor. Rebel players and fans remained calm, proceeding to blow the Hornets away in the final two minutes and 30 seconds.

Forced to the free throw line, Allen Central made the night a complete success, hitting 25 of 33 from the charity stripe, but this was just another layer of icing on a big blue Rebel cake.

Allen Central shot 24 of those 33 free throws in the final quarter. Before that, Magoffin County had gone to the foul line 12 times, four more than the Rebels.

Johnny Martin's team had just completed one of their best offensive showings of the year, living up to their Runnin' Rebel image, but the coach said defense was his team's top strength on this occasion.

"I thought our defense was a big key," Martin said. "We played a matchup zone, and we got some great matchups out of it." "They shot poorly in the first half, but our defense caused a lot of turnovers."

Tough Luck Betsy Layne Eliminated By Paintsville

Craynor Slone, although he may have had a legitimate excuse to complain, refused to comment on the quality, or lack of it, of the officiating.

Slone's Bobcats had just been eliminated from the regional tournament, falling 42-40 to Paintsville, a contest in which Betsy Layne certainly received no breaks.

"No, I don't want to say anything about the officials," Slone said, shaking his head. This comment proved Slone wasn't going to criticize the officiating, but that was as much as he said during the game.

"Honestly, he didn't say a word. All he did was stand up. The referee knew he had made a bad call and, he expected Craynor to say something," assistant coach Tim Rice said.

With four minutes and 48 seconds remaining in the third quarter, Slone was nailed with a technical foul, sending Paintsville's Keith Adkins to the charity stripe. Slone, in his calm and classy style, questioned the official's call, and for an answer was hit with another technical.

Adkins made only two of the four free throws, but the gift did enable the Tigers to increase their lead to four points, and take possession of the basketball.

Despite watching all close calls going the other way, and despite playing one of the state's best basketball teams, the Betsy Layne Bobcats didn't surrender. After falling behind 11-2 early in the first quarter, Betsy Layne fought back, showing the hard play and determination that had enabled them to surpass all expectations.

By the end of the opening period the Bobcats had cut Paintsville's lead to only three points. From that point on Betsy Layne played nose to nose with Paintsville, matching up with the bigger Tigers with a tenacious man to man defense, while running their offense in classic Bobcat style.

"We were kind of nervous and we were doing some things early that we normally don't do, taking bad shots and hurrying things," Slone said of the first minutes of Saturday's contest. "But after that we settled down, and played our game. Unfortunately they had the ball last."

Settling down may have been an understatement. With 2:39 showing on the initial period clock, Paintsville forward John Pelphrey cashed in on a short jumpshot to put his Tigers up by nine points.

In the final three quarters plus Betsy Layne outscored Paintsville 38-31, and actually led twice in the final frame. The Bobcats, entering the fourth quarter, trailed by only two points, and tied the contest when sophomore guard Duran Newsome drilled a 15 foot jumper with 7:06 remaining in the game.

Pelphrey, who led all scorers with 17 points, answered with a field goal of his own to put Paintsville back up by two. A half minute later Joey Couch added a free throw as the Tigers increased their lead to three.

The Betsy Layne backcourt duo of Duran and Bud Newsome answered the challenge, though. With five minutes remaining Duran Newsome put in a jumper, and 46 seconds later Bud Newsome gave the Bobcats their first lead of the contest, 35-34.

After Couch answered on the Paintsville end, Betsy Layne senior center Jamie Little reclaimed the Bobcats' one point advantage. But Tiger forward Joey Couch proved to be the Paintsville key to advancement, especially in the fourth quarter. Couch scored all seven of his points in the final frame, with the last four giving Paintsville a three point advantage.

With that three point lead and the basketball, Paintsville forced Betsy Layne to foul. Mike Minix drew the Bobcat contact but missed the bonus opportunity. Bud Newsome tied the score with 54 ticks remaining on the game clock. The senior point guard connected on an off balance jumpshot from the top of the key. Newsome, who also drew the foul, tied the score with a free throw.

However, as Slone pointed out, Paintsville had the basketball last. The Tigers, with some slick ball handling from Couch who first dribbled with his hand then his hip then with his hand again, called time out with 19 seconds left. The officials were the only two people in the Virgie Athletic Complex who didn't see the apparent turnover.

Paintsville this time took full advantage of the break. After the time out, Tiger guard Keith Adkins penetrated the Bobcat defense and dished off to Pelphrey inside for the winning layup.

Betsy Layne had one last shot at sending the game into overtime, but that last shot hit glass and iron, but no net, and the Bobcats saw their remarkable season come to an end. But they took losing in the same way they had won all season, with dignity and pride. Even though Betsy Layne had come up two points short, no one could say they are losers; Craynor Slone certainly didn't.

"The only people who thought we could do this were the coaching staff and the players," Slone said. "That's all you have to have. Our players thought they had a chance to win, and they did. "I thought our kids played hard all season, with the exception of maybe two games, and that's all you can ask of them, to play hard."

Betsy Layne's hard play, Craynor Slone's incredible coaching ability, and the words "we believe" took the Bobcats much farther than anyone could have asked for or expected.

INDIVIDUAL SCORING: Paintsville: John Pelphrey, 17; Keith Adkins, 10; Joey Couch, 7; Jarred Gray, 6; Mike Minix, 2.

Betsy Layne: Duran Newsome, 14; Bud Newsome, 9; Jamie Little, 8; Jimmy Stumbo, 5; Todd Sturgill, 2; Mike Vance, 2.

SHORT SPORTS

The women's high school state basketball tournament will begin today (Wednesday) at Western Kentucky University.

The 15th region will be represented in the tournament by Belfry. The Lady Pirates earned their state tournament appearance with a victory over defending regional champs, the Johnson Central Lady Eagles this past Thursday night. Belfry defeated Betsy Layne and host Phelps to advance to the finals where they upended Johnson Central, earning the 15th region title and a berth in the state tournament.

Local schools, Betsy Layne and Prestonsburg, failed to survive the first round. The Bobcats fell hard to eventual champion Belfry while Prestonsburg lost 58-42 to Phelps.

All wasn't totally lost for Floyd County, though. Lady Bobcat Ladonna Parsons was named to the all tournament team, Lady Blackcat Shon Burchett won the individual free throw trophy, and the Prestonsburg cheerleaders received the runner-up trophy.

America said goodbye to one of the best college football coaches of all time when Woody Hayes passed away in his sleep early last Thursday morning. The former Ohio State head football coach was best known for his intensity, deter-

Rebels Hold Off Pikeville To Advance In Tournament

When a team is trying to protect a lead late, especially in the regional tournament, any coach likes to see his seniors on the free throw line.

Johnny Martin's Allen Central Rebels proved why Friday night.

After leading Pikeville by as many as 11 points in the third quarter, Allen Central found themselves fighting for their regional lives late in the contest.

The Pikeville Panthers, runners-up in the 59th district, were not about to roll over and play ineffective basketball.

When Panther guard David Sparks hit a jumpshot with 48 seconds remaining in the contest, Pikeville found themselves trailing by only one point.

However, Allen Central did hold the advantage, which forced Pikeville to put the Rebels on the free throw line. The charity stripe hadn't been kind to Allen Central, though.

During the Panthers' comeback efforts the Rebels had missed three consecutive free throws. Those misses came from Johnny Martin's underclassmen. It was now time for senior leadership to take charge, and it did.

With 43 seconds left Roger Horne cashed in on two free throws, and in the final 27 seconds Stanton Bentley hit on four of four from the charity stripe to give Allen Central a 62-55 victory.

"I thought Stanton hit some crucial free throws for us," Martin agreed. "He is a 60 percent shooter from the line during the season, but during the tournaments he has been a lot better than that. It just shows what kind of composure he has."

With the win, Allen Central advanced to Monday night's semi-finals of the Virgie hosted 15th region tournament.

The seven point victory over Pikeville wasn't one of the Rebels best played games of the season, but they played well enough to win, which pleases Johnny Martin.

"We played a heck of a first half," Martin said of his Allen Central team. "I thought they did a good job too. They changed defenses well, and we committed way to many turnovers, but any game you win in a tournament is a big win. I don't care who it's against."

Led by sophomore Rady Martin and freshman Joey Conn, Allen Central came out smoking. Martin, who finished with a game high 19 points, and Conn, a total of 13, combined to score the first seven Rebel points. Senior guard Roger Horne also caught fire early, scoring six points in the first quarter as Allen Central jumped out to a 17-10 first period lead.

Martin continued his offensive efforts in the second quarter, scoring seven points, as the Rebels upped their lead to 10 points going into halftime.

Allen Central's 34-24 halftime advantage didn't last long, though. In the third quarter the Rebels lost sight of the basket, scoring only five points. Pikeville took advantage of Allen Central's poor offensive showing, and before that third period ended the Panthers trailed by only five points.

When Joey Conn, with 3:39 showing on the third quarter clock, hit the back end of a two shot free throw opportunity the Rebels led by 11 points, but saw that lead dwindle down after the Panthers scored the final six points of the period.

Johnny Martin's team built their lead back to eight points when Horne bombed in a long jumpshot with 5:28 left in the game.

Ronnie Ousley kept the Rebels on top with a pair of free throws at the 4:56 mark. At this point Allen Central led 50-43, but poor shooting from the charity stripe allowed the Panthers to make a close battle of it.

In a stretch of two minutes and 37 seconds the Rebels hit on only two of seven attempts from the foul line, allowing Pikeville to close the gap to one point.

However, free throw shooting was eventually what gave Allen Central the edge they needed in capturing this first round regional contest. In the final 43 seconds the Rebels hit on all six of their chances from the charity stripe, pulling out the victory.

On the night Allen Central connected on 20 of 29 foul shots while Pikeville put up only 12, hitting nine of those.

The Rebels didn't dominate the 10-19 Panthers. Some expected them to, but Coach Martin wasn't among them. Allen Central had already lost one to Pikeville earlier in the season, but got the one that counted.

INDIVIDUAL SCORING: Allen Central: Rady Martin, 19; Roger Horne, 18; Joey Conn, 13; Stanton Bentley, 6; Ronnie Ousley, 6.

Pikeville: Tommy Travis, 14; Doug Willett, 14; Chris McNamee, 10; Robbie Right, 6; Jon Blackburn, 3.

BEATING THE DEFENSE: Roger Horne beats Pikeville's defense down the floor in second half action Friday night. Horne finished with a total of 18 points.

Having good athletes to work with, new coach Donnie Daniels will more than likely whip this group into a solid unit. The Rebels have no stars, and no big name diamond performers, but they now have the one single thing that has been lacking in the past—a good baseball man to teach and refine what might prove to be a district champion team.

This is a strong statement to say about a school that has never been a baseball power, but just take a look at how Daniels handles and teaches his players, and how they respond. You will be singing Allen Central praises also.

Wheelwright could be in the same situation. With some obvious ability present the Trojans may respond to Monroe Jones. Jones, in less than one school year, has done something that no other coach in quite some time has been able to do—earn respect from his Wheelwright players.

With Bobby Thornberry, Johnny Isaac, Tony Hutton, Gary McCoy, and others possessing ability, Jones has a solid group to build around. Pitching could be a problem, but if the Trojans play up to their ability, good things will happen up Left Beaver.

Pitching may also be a problem for David Hall's McDowell Daredevils. Last season Kip Kidd carried the throwing load, but Kidd is gone. Brian Hall may be as good a shortstop as he was a basketball guard. Hall plays a well rounded game, and could be the key to McDowell's success.

The Daredevils also own one of the best hitters in the 15th region. Sophomore Mike McQuate hit close to .400 as a freshman last season.

Kevin Hall, another heavy hitter, is back, as is Lenny Hall. Both were starters last season. The Daredevils have made big strides the past two seasons, and could have another winning year this time around.

On paper Prestonsburg and Betsy Layne appear to have the upper hand, but that hand certainly isn't held as high as it was last season. Unlike years past, this year's district will be a five team affair, or at least more competitive than fans are accustomed to.

Link Does Exist Between P'burg And Pro Baseball

It is a long trip from Prestonsburg, Kentucky to Bradenton, Florida, but this road isn't as rough as the one from high school baseball to the pros.

Carletha Thompson Shepherd, a 1962 graduate of Prestonsburg High School, has made both trips possible, though. Carletha Shepherd may have never picked up a baseball bat, or done no more with a glove than pick one up while cleaning house, but her son has. Carletha holds the Prestonsburg link—her son Keith completed the trip by signing a baseball contract with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Keith Shepherd, a Wabash, Indiana native, signed with the Pirates last season after being taken in the 11th round of the June 1986 free-agent amateur draft. After playing two months in the Gulf Coast Rookie League last year, Shepherd expects to see action with the Pirates' Class A Macan, Georgia team this summer.

The hard throwing 20-year-old reported to spring training last Monday, and reportedly is regarded as a hot prospect, but getting into his current position hasn't been an easy trip for Keith Shepherd.

Before his senior season of high school baseball, Shepherd suffered injuries in a motorcycle accident which affected his mechanics, and also lessened his pitching effectiveness.

"I got down there and they said my mechanics weren't very good," Shepherd said of his first professional season. "Because of the mechanics I was having some control problems. I've switched my windup back to the way I did it as a sophomore and junior in high school."

According to an article appearing in Wabash's Plain Dealer, Shepherd used a full windup, including bringing his arms over his head, but after the accident limited arm extension, Shepherd lost a considerable amount of velocity on his fastball. This factor, among others, could have explained his disappointing first professional season in the Pirate organization.

"It was difficult last year because I went down in the middle of the season,"

Shepherd revealed. "There were about 30 pitchers and they were making cuts when I got there. I'd only get to pitch an inning here or there, and I seemed to struggle most in the first inning," Shepherd explained. "By the time I settled down, I'd be taken out."

Shepherd soon put last year behind him, and used the off-season as a time to better prepare for bigger things to come.

Bill Bryk, Pittsburgh scout, visited Shepherd at his Wabash home this past winter, and was happy with the fact that his hot young prospect had spent the winter improving his physical abilities.

"He was impressed with what I'd been doing. 'I'd been throwing about three times a week, doing a lot of running, playing some basketball, and lifting weights,'" Shepherd said. Not only did the possible major leaguer keep in top physical condition, he also added some key pitches to go with a good fastball.

In high school the fastball proved to be enough for Shepherd to lead his Wabash team to the Indiana state championship, but with the pros he soon found out that a variety of pitches were needed.

Shepherd has improved his curveball while learning to throw a change-up, and experimenting with the reckless knuckle ball, a pitch he could throw earlier but never found much use for it.

"I'm getting the change-up to where I can control it," Shepherd said. "I've known how to throw the knuckle ball, but coach wouldn't let me use it in high school. I didn't really need it."

The Pittsburgh Pirates organization is expecting big things from Shepherd, and Keith expects this season could be the year he proves his capabilities. "I'm ready to go," Shepherd said of the unexpected season. "I've learned more pitches, and we won't have as many pitchers. I know what to expect this season."

Prestonsburg has no former baseball players in the professional ranks, but thanks to mother Carletha, and son Keith, the city does have a bonafied link to professional baseball.

Hayes did come out on top—most of the time. In 28 years of coaching Woody Hayes won over 200 games, while losing only 61. The strong willed Buckeye head man also led Ohio State to 13 Big Ten titles and two national championships. Woody Hayes coached until the 1978 season when he was fired by Ohio State University. In a post season bowl game Hayes punched a Clemson player, after the Tiger linebacker intercepted a pass, spoiling the Buckeyes' chances for a comeback.

If you played for Woody Hayes there was a price that had to be paid, if you played against Woody Hayes an even bigger bill was sent out. The university demanded the coach to apologize, something Hayes never did. He believed in playing hard, and playing for keeps. Hayes did it his own way, and he wasn't sorry for that. One week ago Woody Hayes was a living legend, now he is just a legend, someone who will never be forgotten by anyone who has ever followed college football.

Dexter Manley, defensive tackle for the National Football Conference's Washington Redskins, is set to enter a rehabilitation center in an attempt to correct his off the field problems. Manley, away from football, struggled with his private life which caused the defensive lineman to repeatedly show up late and miss several practices. This past week Manley admitted his problem with alcohol abuse, and announced intentions to enter a correctional center.

Dexter Manley may have had personal problems off the football field in 1986, but on the gridiron he made life miserable for opposing offensive players. The Washington lineman led the league in quarterback sacks, proving he was one of the best at his position in the National Football League.

The NCAA Division I basketball tournament field has been narrowed from an original 64 teams to 16, and that number will be cut in half as regional finals are scheduled to begin this week.

The tournament has had few upsets. With the exception of Austin Peay's defeat of Big Ten power Illinois, and Southwest Missouri State's success, games finished as expected.

Wyoming could be termed as a surprise final 16 member, but the big teams survived. North Carolina, Georgetown, Indiana, and Depaul were among the nation's top teams, and now all except one have an opportunity to make it to the final four.

Eight solid matchups will highlight this week's college basketball slate, and CBS will kick it all off Thursday night with prime time coverage of the East regional.

Even though the field is evenly balanced, look for Alabama, North Carolina, Indiana, and Iowa to end up as the four survivors to see New Orleans.

Roger Clemmons, after enjoying one of the most successful seasons of any in the 1980s, may not even take the mound this season.

The Boston Red Sox right hander, who won 24 games last year, walked out of camp this week, and then made it clear that he would sit out this season if Boston doesn't meet his expected salary.

Red Sox management has fined Clemmons 1,000 dollars for every day he is absent from spring training. The hard throwing pitcher's agents countered with a request of an additional 1,500 dollars per day.

DARVIN REED, of Endicott, is pictured beneath the trophy of an 8-point deer he killed last Nov. 8.

Rebels Fall In Regional Tournament Finals

For the fourth time in nine coaching seasons Johnny Martin found himself in a 15th Region tournament final.

Martin's Allen Central Rebels gave their coach his fourth regional finals appearance by defeating the Pikeville Panthers Friday night, in opening round action, then blowing away Magoffin county in Monday's semi-final matchup.

In his previous three appearances, two with Allen Central, one with Sheldon Clark, Martin went up against a tough customer in Bobby Osborne and the Virgie Eagles.

All three times Osborne came out on top, but the fourth time Martin stayed away from playing the always tough and talented Eagles.

Allen Central, by advancing to the finals, earned the right to play Paintsville, not only the 15th Region's top rated team, but one of Kentucky's top clubs.

Martin once again found himself facing a tough customer. Paintsville coach Bill Mike Runyon. But with his success and coaching style Johnny Martin has proven he belongs among the area's better basketball leaders, while also earning some hard-to-gain respect.

With a position in the state's Sweet Sixteen basketball tournament hanging in the balance of Tuesday's outcome, the pressure could have been termed as tremendous.

But Martin has relieved his youthful Rebels of most of that pressure. Full of fire, and always working hard during the season, the Allen Central head man has toned down his intense coaching style.

From the coach to the players, intensity has made its transfer, and no one in this area can question the basketball job that has been completed at Allen Central High School.

"I've preached to these kids all season long, some of them for four years," Martin said about his coaching tactics during tournament play.

"We used the season to prepare for the tournaments. The players know what to do, the intensity is there, and there is no use in me screaming at them now."

Allen Central, with their five district and regional tournament wins, went into last night's game with a 22-10 record.

Paintsville's basketball success was widely known to everyone throughout Kentucky, but Tiger Coach Bill Mike Runyon wasn't looking past Allen Central.

Runyon has won the 15th Region title the past two years, but the young Paintsville mentor didn't want to end it at two just because of overconfidence.

"I kind of feel like the team that wants it the most will get it," Runyon said. "I don't think there is one thing that you could call key. Johnny Martin knows what I know and I know what he knows. We're not going to change a lot for this game."

Paintsville's trip to the finals has been a bit tougher than that of Allen Central, or at least closer contests. Fatigue could have played a part, but being tired isn't an excuse for Bill Mike Runyon.

"I think in a regional tournament you put that tiredness in the back of your minds and go out and play as hard as you can."

Runyon also said his Tigers weren't playing up to their full potential, but now winning is the important thing for him.

"We're not playing as well as we can, but we're playing well enough to win, and that's what counts now."

The Paintsville coach may have thought his team wasn't playing good basketball, but Runyon probably isn't saying that today.

After Allen Central played the Tigers tough early, trailing by only five points at halftime, the Rebels soon found themselves down by as many as 17 points in the third period.

Paintsville continued to roll in the third and fourth quarters, riding their big lead to another regional title and a berth in the state tournament.

The Tigers defeated Allen Central 76-54 Tuesday night to earn their third consecutive trip to the Sweet 16 tournament.

John Pelphrey led Paintsville in scoring, with 29 points while Mike Minix added 22, and Keith Adkins finished with 16 points.

Topping Allen Central, and the entire tournament, offensively was Roger Horne who scored 68 points in three games.

Stanton Bentley finished with 15 and Rady Martin added nine points in the losing effort.

Baseball Part II Examination Set

The 1987 Baseball Part II Examination will be given at 6:30 p.m. Monday, March 23 at Pikeville High School. All baseball umpires with a rating of Registered or Approved should take this Part II Exam to advance their rating. Only those umpires with a rating of Approved or Certified are eligible to umpire District and Regional Tournaments. Only those umpires with a Certified rating are eligible to umpire in Sectional and State Tournaments.

The Part II Exam will not be given again this year. All umpires in the 15th Region are encouraged to attend and take their exam. For further information, please contact Layne Tackett, 15th Region Assigning Secretary, at Pikeville High School, 432-0185 or at home 437-7541.

OFFENSIVE BOARD WORK: With strong rebounding Ronnie Ousley kept Allen Central's scoring efforts and regional advancement alive.

Kentucky Fishing Report

Editor's note: This is the first fishing report for 1987. The report will continue through October.

Frankfort, Ky., March 16—Fishing activity for the March 14-15 weekend was reported light to moderate statewide. Angler success was fair for early in the spring season. Warm days are raising water temperatures in creeks which are attracting fish to these areas to feed. The lake-by-lake rundown, as reported by conservation officers or creel clerks at each lake:

KENTUCKY: Crappie were hitting jigs over submerged creek channels 13-17 feet deep; black bass were hitting crank baits on the western end of rocky points about three to seven feet deep; murky to muddy, falling slowly, four and one-half feet below summer pool and 50 degrees.

BARKLEY: Crappie were taking minnows and jigs over tree tops, brush piles and drop-offs in five to 12 feet of water; white bass were hitting white jigs in the mouths and backs of tributaries; murky, stable at five feet below summer pool and 52 degrees.

BARREN: Crappie were hitting minnows over stump rows 10-15 feet deep; black bass were taking jig-and-rind combinations over steep bluffs three to six feet deep; crappie were hitting minnows and jigs in the tailwaters; clear to murky, falling, 13 feet below summer pool and 49 degrees.

NOLIN: No report available.

ROUGH RIVER: Crappie were active on minnows over submerged cover six to 15 feet deep; black bass were taking crank baits off rocky points 10-15 feet deep; murky to muddy, falling, 12 feet below summer pool and 52 degrees.

TAYLORSVILLE: Black bass were striking crank baits along the bank in six feet of water; muddy, stable at 15 feet below summer pool and 47 degrees.

HERRINGTON: No report available.

GREEN RIVER: Crappie were hitting minnows over brush piles eight to 15 feet deep; black bass were hitting crank baits and jigs off rocky points in five to 12 feet of water; murky, stable at six feet below summer pool and 48 degrees.

CUMBERLAND: Rockfish were hitting early and late on live shad and large jigs off shallow points about 20 feet deep; black bass were striking crank baits off shallow banks two to four feet deep; crappie and white bass were hitting jigs about eight feet deep over submerged creek channels; clear to murky, falling, nine feet below summer pool and 50 degrees.

DALE HOLLOW: Black bass were hitting minnows and medium runners off rocky points in 6-8 feet of water; crappie were taking minnows over tree tops about 15 feet deep; clear, stable at summer pool and 48 degrees.

LAUREL: Trout were hitting crank baits trolled in open water 10-30 feet deep; clear, stable at two feet below summer pool and 48 degrees.

CAVE RUN: Muskie were hitting spinner baits and jigs in the backs of coves over heavy cover about three to five feet deep; black bass were hitting spinners and jigs along the shoreline of creek channels; clear to murky, falling, three feet below summer pool and 45 degrees.

PAINTSVILLE: Trout were hitting wax worms, red worms and corn along rocky banks on the bottom; clear, falling, three feet below summer pool and 45 degrees.

BUCKHORN: Crappie were taking minnows and flies over submerged cover four to eight feet deep; black bass were hitting jigs, nightcrawlers and spinner baits off rocky banks along the shoreline; some muskie were being taken in the tailwaters; clear to murky, stable at winter pool and 49 degrees.

GRAYSON: Black bass were hitting jigs in coves and along inlet bays in three to five feet of water; crappie were hitting minnows over submerged cover about four feet deep; clear, stable at winter pool and 47 degrees.

DEWEY: Crappie were taking minnows over brush piles about one to two feet deep; black bass were hitting crank baits over creek channels in two to three feet of water; crappie were hitting minnows in the tailwaters; murky to muddy, stable at five feet below summer pool and 52 degrees.

FISHTRAP: No report available.

UP AND IN: Jamie Little gets two of his eight points with this rebound shot over John Pelphrey.

J.F. HORNE GOLD BOWL LTD

J.F. Horne Gold Bowl Ltd, a Nevada corporation, has announced the inauguration of the largest and richest bowling tournament in history. The tournament is called Gold Bowl™ and is open to amateurs only. The guaranteed prize fund is $925,000.

The five rounds of tournament bowling will be conducted in the bowlers' home bowling centers. The semi-finals and finals will be held at Bally's Reno Hotel bowling center August 24th through August 30th.

Unlike previous national tournaments, Gold Bowl™ will feature eight different individual categories and four team categories—all for amateurs only. The tournament organizer, James Horne, stated, "Previous tournaments were almost exclusively for the high-performance bowlers or a very limited number of handicap bowlers. Gold Bowl™ is designed for bowlers of all ages and all skill levels—for the casual bowlers as well as the league bowlers, for the handicap bowlers and the scratch bowlers, for the teen and the senior bowlers. Just about anyone can enter this truly national tournament."

The tournament entry fee is only $10 per category. There is no travel required until the semi-finals and finals. Gold Bowl™ has been specifically organized to be enjoyed by the greatest number of participants. Besides the huge prize fund, the sponsor will award a 10 lb. pure gold bowling ball to any individual who bowls a perfect game of 300 pins in the televised finals of the eight individual categories. In addition, the sponsor has incentive programs for the bowling center owners/managers and league secretaries. There will also be 72 expense-paid trips for finalists in all categories. The equivalent prizes and trip expenses for youth bowlers will be put into trust for their college educations.

The spectacular Gold Bowl™ Sunday, August 30, 1987, at Reno's Bally Hotel will be the richest single payday in bowling history. Registration begins in local bowling centers across the country on March 7, 1987 and will continue until April 10th.

Kenny Rogers hobby is turned into a CBS special

By Wendy Wallace

"Photography was something I'd do during the day when I was on tour," explains singer Kenny Rogers in the opening of Working America, the CBS special he hosts on March 27.

Kenny Rogers

"When I set out with my camera, I went looking for America. But it soon became much more than that. Familiar places that I had seen a hundred times before became new again for the camera. ... I realized that this country isn't only natural beauty, spacious skies and amber waves of grain. I made a discovery about the unlim- ited variety of work and the people who are willing to share it with me."

The singer's hobby has become a way of meeting people in his travels — a way of trying his hand at other things.

"Working America" presents a warm and entertaining travelogue featuring America's workers and a vast number of occupations in the United States. Rogers brings his camera to visit with and film some of these people

Hits Lip-synced songs include Peter Gabriel's "Big Time" and Tears for Fears' "Shout".

VIDEO SCENE

Artists look to the past for video inspiration

By Barton Weiss

A lot of videos seem to be looking back — rather than forward to a bold new future.

Dave Edmunds

The Dave Edmunds Band looks back with its music, doing a nice version of Dion's 1962 classic "The Wanderer." Musically, the Edmunds unit doesn't add anything to the song. Visually, scratchy black-and-white film is used to make the clip seem old and familiar, like the tune.

The band's performance is competent — and about as memorable as last night's Chinese dinner.

Recreation

Peter Wolf (former lead singer for the J. Geils Band) borrows an idea from one of Bobby Van's movie dance pieces — the one in which Van bounces around interacting with just about everyone in a small town for a little over three minutes — all without edits.

Wolf re-creates this sequence in "Come As You

Are," but manages to hide three cuts. Still, the clip re-creates the best moments of the original. The video starts out with Wolf slowly getting out of bed. Once he's out of the door, he goes into bounce mode, until he gets to the bandstand, where he joins the band, with the song already in progress, and sings the last line.

It's a nice clip and a thoughtful recreation.

Horrors

The most interesting clip of the week also looks back at movies. "Shakin' Shakin' Shakes" is the latest from Los Lobos. The video is black-and-white, except for references to the album's title, "Full Moon." It starts and ends with Alfred Hitchcock showing us key images (the house and the shower) from his movie "Psycho."

As the song begins, the camera follows a little boy chasing a girl on an eerie eve. Suddenly, this is intercut with chase clips from old horror films. What we see specifically are the reactions to the horror and monsters. In "Phantom of the Opera," for example, first we see a woman scream, then we see what made her scream.

Thus, the clip focuses not on the horror itself, but on our fear of it. And yes, in the midst of all this, we see the band play. That, by the way, is somewhat important, since Los Lobos are not your average pretty boys.

DEADLY CARE

Pressures mount in the Cardiovascular Intensive Care Unit, and they start taking their toll on Nurse Anne Halloran (Cheryl Ladd). She compensates with tranquilizers and alcohol and soon is unable to discriminate between her need for relaxation and her need for the drugs themselves, in "Deadly Care." It airs SUNDAY, MARCH 22, on CBS.

Power Struggle Within Church Called Motive for Prosecution

By Ron Marstin

Charges brought against a Salyersville man grew out of a power struggle within a Middle Creek church. Public Defender Norm Bennett told a Floyd District Court jury Monday.

Darvin Ray Cole, 36, was charged with assault, disorderly conduct, and public intoxication in the wake of a Jan. 10 incident in which he was said to have prevented several persons from entering the Dotson Pentecostal Assembly church for the Saturday evening service.

Oakie and Cassie Shepherd, of Langley, usually lead the congregational singing at the church where they have been members for 28 years. They arrived late on Jan. 10, however, and found their way barred by Cole, who was accompanied by two other men, they said.

Bertha Prater, of Little Paint, is Oakie Shepherd's brother and a 36-year member of the Dotson church. When she tried to enter the church with her brother and sister-in-law, Cole grabbed her arm, she said. He smelled of alcohol, she added.

For his part, Cole admitted he had drunk a few beers when he picked up his nephew and another man and stationed himself outside the church house. But he was "a long ways from being drunk," he insisted, and he took up his position at the church door only to "keep down trouble" at the pastor's request.

The pastor is Herman Baldrige, Cole's brother-in-law. He was expecting some kind of trouble from the Shepherds and Praters that Saturday evening, he said, because some months earlier Kenneth Prater, Bertha Prater's husband, and their son, Kenneth Jr., had scuffled with him even as he was presiding over the church service. Moreover, he heard the father say to the son, "We'll get him later," Baldrige said.

Wavel Lee Baldrige, the pastor's wife, said Cole was minding the church door because she was "tired of the pastor and members being run over by this cruel family." She was referring to the Shepherds and Praters, she said.

Last December her husband was in the pulpit leading a song when Kenneth Prater, Sr. lunged toward him threatening, "I'll run the mike down his throat," Mrs. Baldrige testified.

Baldrige, a school janitor, was re-elected last week as pastor of the church. Oakie Shepherd admitted he was among those who had not wanted Baldrige to continue as minister, but he said he knew nothing of his brother-in-law's alleged altercation with the pastor.

Bertha Prater denied suggestions by the defense attorney that she wanted her son to be named preacher at the church or that they had tried to oust Baldrige from his pulpit. Neither Kenneth Prater nor his son was called to testify in the case.

Deputy Sheriff Anthony Castle said he answered a complaint that "some drunks were causing trouble" at the church. When he arrested him, Cole smelled of alcohol, staggered, was uncooperative, made threats, had slurred speech, and failed sobriety tests, the officer testified.

Bennett told the jury the case was one of "folks on the outside who wanted to be folks on the inside." Moreover, while his client had been drinking, "there's no law against drinking three beers and then going to church," the defense lawyer said.

But Assistant County Attorney Julie Paxton asserted that peaceful citizens bent on worship had been threatened and obstructed. Freedom of worship is a basic right, she noted. "That is why the Pilgrims came over."

Special Judge Bayard Collier heard the case in place of District Judge Harold Stumbo, who is recuperating from pneumonia. The judge instructed the jury on charges of disorderly conduct and public intoxication, the assault charge being dropped.

They could recommend a jail term of up to 90 days and a fine of up to $250 if they convicted the defendant of disorderly conduct and a fine of up to $25 on the intoxication charge, he said.

The six-member panel acquitted Cole of public intoxication but found him guilty of disorderly conduct, recommending that he pay a $50 fine and court costs of $57.50.

GRETHEL NEWS

Elmer and Eileen Martin, of Grethel, recently returned from an enjoyable trip through southern states. They visited their daughter, Ruth, in Reidsville, North Carolina, and watched her coach the Community Baptist School girls' basketball team's last game of the season. Next they traveled to Madison, Ga., to visit Eileen's former missionary worker, Mary Lou Rhodes, who is on the staff of Source of Light Mission. While there, they toured the mission facilities.

The next stop was in Jacksonville, Fla., to visit Elmer's aunt, Pearl Smith, who is a retired school teacher. Their itinerary also included Brooksville, Fla., where they visited Eileen's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Jack, and attended the Bible Conference in session. They journeyed on to Ft. Pierce, Fla., where they visited Eileen's New York high school friend, Helen Finney, and her husband at the Spanish Lakes Country Club Estate.

HRMC Honors Long-Time Employees

In picture, Clarence Traum, Administrator at HRMC, presents Lora Hall with 15-year service award.

Highlands Regional Medical Center held its fifth annual employee recognition banquet February 21 at Jenny Wiley State Park's May Lodge. The event honored employees with five, ten, and fifteen years of service at Highlands.

Lora Hall received an award for her fifteen years of continuous service as an obstetrical nurse aide. "The thing I enjoy most about my job is working with the patients. I am pleased with my award and look forward to my 20-year pin," Hall said.

Those honored for ten years of continuous service were Betty Calhoun, Nancy Campbell, Helen Chaffins, Teresa Collins, Vickie Daniel, Cora Derossset, Charlotte Endicott, Jeannie Newsome, Lisa Parlier, Sandra Roberts, Marie Skeens, Lou Sparkman, and Ellis Stevens.

Honored for five years of continuous service were Libby Anderson, Selbie Banks, Valerie Barnett, Sheila Berger, Dana Borders, Greta Branham, Toni Briggs, Leslie Caudill, Michael Childers, Elizabeth Coleman, William Crothers, Ben Crum, Doris Flannery, Robert Ford, Pansy Goble, Linda Griffey, Diana Hackworth, Sandra Harlow, Paul Hutchison, Margaret Hyden, Blanche Justice, Lilly Laudermit, Bonnie Leedy, Wilma Leslie, Veronica Moore, Tammy Morris, Sheila Nelipowitz, Deborah Newsome, Margie Spurlock, Teresa Stafford, Kenitha Taylor, Lewis White, Nadine Wireman, Ellen Woods, and Sherry Wright.

Highlands Regional annually honors its employees. According to Administrator Clarence Traum, "the wealth of our resources lies in our employees, they are the heart of our hospital, and we appreciate each and every one of them."

Campbellsville College Plans Football Program

The Campbellsville College Board of Trustees has approved a non-scholarship football program, according to college president W.R. Davenport.

Plans for 1987 include fielding a team and playing a limited schedule. The college will become a part of a newly-proposed conference of schools throughout Kentucky, eastern Indiana and northern Tennessee.

The presidents of all interested schools will meet March 28 to determine criteria of the conference and those schools participating in it.

"I'm thrilled," said Don Bishop, athletics director and assistant professor of physical education and athletics. "This has caused adrenaline to flow and added new excitement at Campbellsville College."

The college, affiliated with the Kentucky Baptist Convention, offers 23 academic majors and 25 minor programs. It is a private, four-year liberal arts school located in central Kentucky.

Soar With Eagles When You File Your Tax Forms

There's a popular saying which has made the rounds over the past few years which goes something like this: "It's hard to soar with eagles when you work with turkeys."

And here's another proverb you can take to the bank: "It's hard to soar with eagles when you're filing your income tax form." But if every Kentuckian who has a tax refund due them this year will share a few dollars with Kentucky's Nongame Wildlife/Natural Areas Fund, they'll not only be soaring with eagles, they'll be doing it right here in the Bluegrass state. And they'll not only be able to soar with eagles, they'll be able to help them set up housekeeping.

Last February a pair of bald eagles began what biologists hope will become the first successful eagle nest in Kentucky in almost 40 years. The nest is located on the Ballard Wildlife Management Area, a public hunting area owned and operated by the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. Biologists with the department's nongame wildlife program, which is funded by contributions from tax refunds, took immediate action to protect the nest and a large area immediately surrounding it from human disturbance.

This February the eagles have returned to continue nest construction, and thanks to the nongame wildlife program and the Kentucky taxpayers who support it, these pioneer eagles have a better-than-average chance of producing the first native-born eagles in Kentucky in nearly half a century.

But Kentuckians have purchased more with their tax refund contributions than eagle protection—they've bought eagle real estate. A few years ago the Kentucky Nature Preserves Commission (which receives half the money donated to the fund) purchased Metropolis Lake, a major West Kentucky wetland located not too far (as the eagle flies) from Kentucky's pioneer eagle family. These dwindling wetland areas are important as eagle feeding areas and as rest stops during eagle migration. Thanks to generous Kentucky taxpayers, Metropolis Lake is one eagle rest stop which will last forever.

One of the best things ever to happen to the American bald eagle was the banning of the pesticide DDT and its subsequent removal from our wild food chain. This has allowed their numbers to slowly recover. One of the best things ever to happen to the "Kentucky-American" bald eagle is the Nongame Wildlife/Natural Areas Fund. Wildlife biologist John MacGregor coordinates the nongame wildlife program for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources and he believes that with our help there could be more adult eagles building nests and rearing young in Kentucky.

"With any luck we may have additional pairs of nesting eagles at Swan Lake and Ballard Wildlife Management Area within the next 5-10 years," states MacGregor.

And he's right, but luck is only part of the story. The rest of the story is told on your Kentucky tax forms. If every Kentucky taxpayer receiving a refund will share part of that refund with Kentucky's pioneer eagles, it will be a wildlife story with a happy ending.

Sociologist Predicts Less Corporate Giving

Fund-raising organizations are going to have to become more sophisticated in asking corporations for money because of recent changes in tax laws.

"Corporations are still going to give, but they are going to be more selective," said University of Louisville sociologist Lillalyce Akers. Non-profit organizations "are going to have to become more knowledgeable about fundraising, and know all of the accounts within an organization that can be tapped for contributions."

Akers suggests that non-profit organizations should lobby legislators for repeal of the law before it has an adverse affect on their quest for dollars.

Receives Promotion

Harry L. Burchett, P.E., has been promoted to vice-president of engineering for Codell Construction Co., Inc., of Winchester. He served as a field engineer, estimator, and finally chief estimator before being named vice-president.

Burchett received his bachelor of science degree in civil engineering from the University of Kentucky in 1981. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Burchett, of Prestonsburg, and is married to the former Sandra D. Goble, of Allen.

Drug Prevention Group Will Attend Conference

The Regional Action Group of Champions Against Drugs in the Big Sandy area met Feb. 27 at the Prestonsburg Holiday Inn, where the group elected officers and showed an interest in having local students attend a Teen Leadership Conference next summer.

Group members also were informed by Dionna Burchett, of the state Division of Substance Abuse, that all of them will receive scholarships to attend the Kentucky School of Alcohol and Drug Studies at Northern Kentucky University in July. While there, the members will have a luncheon with Governor Martha Layne Collins.

Officers elected, who will be installed at the group's next meeting, were: Chairperson, Judge Dan Jack Combs, of Betsy Layne; Co-chairperson, Michael D. Vance, of Prestonsburg; Secretary, Carolyn Isaac, of Salyersville; and Sergeant-at-Arms, Ken Frost, of Pikeville. Members who attended the February meeting were Patricia Watson, of Floyd county; Karen Petry, Charles Francis and Ken Trivette, of Pike county; Susan Howard, and Carroll Burchett, of Johnson county; and David Gardner, of Magoffin county. Guests included Vicki Dye, of Pikeville, and Burchett, from Frankfort.

The group discussed a "Be Smart, Don't Start" campaign to prevent drug abuse, and decided to ask Pikeville High School and Sheldon Clark High School to select students to attend the Teen Leadership Conference which will be held in Jamestown this summer. The conference will bring together about 100 high school students from across Kentucky to organize local efforts in drug and alcohol awareness.

Next meeting of the Regional Action Group will be held Wednesday, April 8, at 5 p.m. at May Lodge. All interested citizens are invited to attend.

In old France it was believed crawling under an arch of brambles would cure rheumatism.

★ Cancer Hopeline

QUESTION: I have read many articles telling of early warning signs of cancer but nowhere have I read about early warning signs for cancer of the cervix. What are they?
ANSWER: There are no early warning signs of cervical cancer. Unfortunately, symptoms often do not appear until later in the disease, when more extensive treatment is needed.
When symptoms do appear the most common is vaginal bleeding. This includes bleeding that starts and stops between menstrual periods, or bleeding that occurs after intercourse or a pelvic examination. An increased vaginal discharge can also be a sign of cancer. These symptoms do not always mean that a cancer is present, but they do suggest the need for further tests.
Fortunately, it is now known that cervical cells may go through a series of precancerous changes before turning into cancer. The cells may change from normal to abnormal (dysplasia), to very early cancer (also known as carcinoma in situ), to invasive cancer. The Papanicolaou, a simple test that takes cells from the cervix to be studied under a microscope, can detect these changes long before symptoms would appear. When treated promptly at this stage, cervical cancer is almost 100% curable.
For more information on cancer-related subjects, call 1-800-4-CANCER. The Cancer Information Service is a program of the Kentucky Community Cancer Program.

PUBLIC NOTICE

County Road Aid Proposed Use Hearing
A public hearing will be held by Floyd County at the Courthouse Annex on April 17, 1987 at 9:00 a.m. for the purpose of obtaining written and oral comments of citizens regarding possible uses of the County Road Aid Funds. The County currently has $30,000.00 in carry-over funds from fiscal year 1986-1987 and estimates it will receive $686,005.00 during fiscal year 1987-1988, for a total of $716,005.00.
All interested persons and organizations in Floyd County are invited to the public hearing to submit oral or written comments on possible uses of the County Road Aid funds. Any person(s), especially senior citizens, who cannot submit written comments or attend the public hearing but wish to submit comments, should call the office of the County Judge/Executive by April 16, 1987 so that the County may make arrangements to secure their comments.

The History Corner...

"Knocking Spirits and Other Things That Go Bump in the Night"

For the last several weeks we have been taking a look at some of the folklore born in this region and drawing our own conclusions about how these tales reflect on the lives and make-up of our ancestors. Bizarre best describes some of these stories, while others are frightening or even comical. I found a new category of such tales, though, when my research for these columns first introduced me to a phenomenon called "knocking spirits."

"Aunt Betty" up on Middle Creek used to be pestered by these noisy manifestations of supernatural activity whenever anyone in her or her husband's family had been injured. Tables would begin to jolt erratically against the floor, chairs would tip over, anything that would create a bumping or knocking sound. No apparition would appear, but the racket that occurred was ample presence enough.

One night the knocking spirits began their activity as Aunt Betty was quilting by a gas lamp in her living room while her husband was caring for his horses out at the barn. After a few moments of this, Betty rose to tell Uncle James about the sign of impending disaster when a rider pulled up in her front yard and told her that her husband's brother, who was just 13, had been shot down by a stray bullet from a gunfight (things used to be pretty lively here in Floyd county). This was the most serious sign of trouble from the knocking spirits, and they never again manifested themselves to her.

Others interviewed suggest that one does not necessarily have to wait for some chance, unlikely appearances from the knocking spirits, though. One woman, who shall remain nameless here, lived up around Langley shortly after the turn of the century and nearly fell victim to her own evil. She was a strange old bird anyway, and most folks only saw her at church on Sundays or in the town store.

There had always been a great deal of suspicion about her because of her remoteness and her liking for black clothing. Finally, curiosity got the better of some of her fellow parishioners, and they snuck around the hill after dark to peek in through the windows of her little cottage.

They saw the old woman performing some kind of ritual, which got the response of knocking spirits, the latter evidenced by the sudden knocking about of various furniture and by thumping sounds from under the floor and front porch.

Frightened, the churchgoers fled. When they confronted her at church some days later, the woman broke down and confessed that she had been fooling with the occult. Worse still, the very knocking spirits which she had cultivated and nurtured had turned against her and were keeping her up twenty-four hours a day with their noisy thumping and banging.

The preacher there attempted to cast the spirits out of the modest wood dwelling, but to no avail. Finally, the congregation, with the old spinster's permission, took all of her valuables out of the home and burned it to the ground. They then built her a new house, and her troubles, along with her experimentation with the supernatural, ceased.

Not all of the tales I was told were so chilling, however. Take the one about the automatic butter-churner. A mother and teenaged daughter lived by themselves and were reputed to be quite involved in occult rivals and the like. There must have been some truth to this rumor, as no young male visitors came a-calling, this despite the daughter's reported beauty.

One day, a young fellow worked up the courage, despite all of the tales about the family's reputed strangeness, to call on the sweet young thing.

When he got to the house, the mother had a churn full of milk on her porch. She bade the daughter to go down to the creek and fetch "the frog." A few minutes later, the girl reappeared carrying a humongous bullfrog. She promptly deposited the creature into the milk, closed the lid, and took the lad for a walk.

Astonished that the mother, rather than reprimanding the girl for this behavior, seemed to be expecting it instead. His curiosity got the better of him as they returned to the house, and he waited impatiently for the woman to remove the lid from the churn. When she finally did, there sat the frog, looking content atop a mound of butter.

The girl then took the frog and returned it to the creek until its services were needed again.

Next week we will return to more serious fare, as we will examine the economic factors responsible for the disappearance of slavery from Kentucky. Health!

MAYTOWN NEWS

A large crowd of friends, neighbors and family members attended a baby shower given in honor of Sidney Jane Bailey Smith held at the Holiday Inn, Prestonsburg, on Saturday, Feb. 21.

As the hostesses arrived, each received a corsage of pink and blue carnations which carried out the theme of the shower: "It's a Girl? It's a Boy!" Fresh pink and blue carnation and balloon bouquets were placed on individual linen-draped tables throughout the room.

The main serving table was draped with white linens and accented with baby-pink and blue bows. Two large pick and blue carnation centerpieces flanked the assorted cakes, pies, finger sandwiches, truffles and cream mints served by the hostesses and Holiday Inn staff.

Miss Verna Cole, Mrs. Nicky Tripplett, and Miss Bonnie Hayes were in charge of games, using the individual table centerpieces as prizes.

Mrs. Edith Hopkins, song leader, and all the hostesses led the guests in singing "Rock-a-Bye Baby" in tribute to the new Smith baby.

Corsages, floral arrangements, bows and individual table centerpieces were by Add-a-Touch Florist, of Martin.

The afternoon was filled with friendliness, happiness and laughter. Everyone enjoyed viewing the many precious gifts that were proudly displayed by the honoree, Janie.

Hostesses for the shower were Marina Lafferty, Juanita Stephens, Ruth DeRossett, Betty Meade, Toni Ann Bailey, Diana B. Turner, Rita Henson, Verna Cole, Patty Elliot, Audrey C. Martin, Bonnie Crisp, Minnie Howell, Sharon Caudill, Karen Duff Hall, Bonnie Hayes, Nicky Tripplett, Urabane Thompson, Pamela Sue Justice, Viola M. Allen, Edith Hopkins, Kloria Osborne, Sue Milligan, Cleo Smith, Dorcas Music, Fannie Baldrige, and Marcella Bailey.

A Week For The Imagination

By Cong. Carl C. Perkins
In Washington there seems to be a week for everything. I have found that we become calloused to them after a while. However, in April there is a week that has the potential to make the future of our nation truly exciting.

For the third year in a row the National Science Foundation, an education oriented organization, has planned a national week for programs and celebrations in order to promote science and technology. This year, National Science and Technology Week is April 5-11. This event is sponsored by many large corporations, and is designed to increase awareness and understanding of science and technology through programs and activities started in our own towns and schools. A large part of the effort is emphasized in precollege involvement—especially elementary through middle/junior high—along with the involvement of teachers, parents, workers, employers, and lay-people. That takes in most people, young and old.

Kentucky itself depends on science and technology. Although medicine, space, and computers are most often thought of when these words are mentioned, it is other forms of science and technology that get us through each day. Kentucky's tobacco industry is based in science. How plants grow, development of better crops, and use of pesticides and herbicides requires knowledge of botany, chemistry and physics—Science. Technical knowledge is required in order to keep the equipment, plows and tractors, running.

The coal industry is another area which requires scientific and/or technical knowledge. From the engineering of mine shafts, to the use of highly advanced machinery to mine, haul and ship the coal; from clean coal technology to new and innovative energy uses for our end product, science and technology play an essential roll.

Our electricity, our telephones, our cable systems, and TV dishes are just a few things we live with each day—industry and advances that we will pass on to our children. That is why it is so important that they learn from an early age about the science and technology that makes Kentucky run. Before our children can make the discoveries that will help improve our nation and make us the technological leaders of the next century, we have to get them interested in subjects like science, math, engineering, and technology. That is what National Science and Technology week is for—to give them and us a starting point.

The National Science Foundation has sent out packets containing teaching activities with hands-on experiments designed to help students explore important science and technology concepts. Every elementary and middle/junior high school in the country received one of these packets. Some of the activities suggested are art contests with a science theme, a national weather balloon launch, invention contests for elementary school kids, science fairs, tours of local industries, talks and demonstrations.

These young people need all of the help and encouragement we can give. Our time, energy and ideas will help our children get excited and enjoy the technologies that will take us into the future. We in Congress know that National Science and Technology week will be a great success and that the interest generated will continue throughout the year. Join with us and get involved. It truly is a week for the imagination.

BETSY LAYNE UNITED METHODIST WOMEN MEET
The Betsy Layne United Methodist Women held their annual "Quiet Day Service" at the church Monday evening at 7:30 p.m. Jonell Robinson called the meeting to order and Peggy Wallen was the program leader. The lesson dealt with the equality and development of women. June Brace closed with prayer. Refreshments were served to Mrs. Mae Newberry, Dr. June Brace, Mrs. Della Williams, Mrs. Jonell Robinson, Mrs. Cheryl Meade, Mrs. Peggy Wallen and Mrs. Billie Osborne.

SWING INTO SPRING!

GREAT DEALS and LOW FINANCING!

ON MOST VEHICLES IN STOCK

Spring is just around the corner. It's time to start thinking about buying that new car! At ED WALTERS we want to sell you that new car!

WE HAVE SEVERAL PROGRAMS TO FIT YOUR NEEDS:

FIRST TIME BUYER PROGRAM:

All you need is job stability and enough income to justify paying back the loan. No previous credit is necessary.

COLLEGE GRADUATE PROGRAM:

If you have graduated within the past year or are about to graduate, you may qualify for this program.

NO MONEY DOWN FINANCING:

With special rebates the factory has available it may be possible to apply this toward the down payment. Good credit and job stability is the only requirement to own that new car with NO MONEY DOWN.

LOW INTEREST RATE FINANCING:

In lieu of factory rebates most of our GM cars can be financed as low as 3.9% A.P.R.

GOOD 'OLE' CASH DEALS:

If you are paying cash expect BIG DISCOUNTS and high trade-in allowances.

*All you pay extra is $595 for the Ed Walters Protection Plan which includes Rustproof, Undercoat, Fabric Guard, Wax and Gas.

TAKE ADVANTAGE OF OUR GREAT SELECTION!

STOP BY TODAY!

We Have The Selection And Financing To Put You In That Vehicle Of YOUR CHOICE!
