

KACo Completes Selling Self-Ins. Revenue Bonds

The Kentucky Association of Counties All Lines Fund (KACo) has announced it has completed the sale of $25,000,000 of Self-Insurance Funding Revenue Bonds which were issued by Pendleton county.

The bonds are backed by an irrevocable letter of credit issued by The Dai-ichi Kangyo Bank, Ltd. This bond issue is the first rated pooled financing for a group self-insurance program, and as a result of the credit enhancement, received a Aaa/VMIG-1 rating from Moody's.

The bonds, which are due July 1, 1997, bear a coupon rate of 6.25% and were priced to yield 6.125%.

Shearson Lehman Brothers, along with First Kentucky Securities Corp. of Frankfort, are the underwriters and financial advisors for the issue.

The proceeds from the bonds will be used to prefund 10 years of excess liability loss reserves for this group self-insurance program. The bonds will replace some of the commercial reinsurance that KACo is currently purchasing to provide excess liability coverage, as well as to provide additional surplus capital for the program. "By using this innovative method of risk financing, we are able to offer member counties even greater stability in their insurance coverage, gather independence from the insurance cycles, as well as providing additional cost savings over the long haul," Fred Creasey, Executive Director, Kentucky Association of Counties, commented.

The financing was structured so as to meet the funding needs of this newly-established self-insurance program which began offering coverage as of July 1, 1987. KACo will initially provide coverage for about 40 Kentucky counties. An additional 39 counties will join the program once their current insurance policies expire. "The fact that our self-insurance group is so well capitalized due to the bond financing has been a big plus in marketing the program to potential members," says Mr. Creasey.

Participating counties are required to make annual cash contributions to KACo under one-year, renewable insurance contracts. Kentucky law does not allow political entities to enter into contracts obligating payments beyond the current budget year. However, despite this annual appropriation feature, potential credit enhancers responded favorably to this proposed financing due to several special security features, according to Christopher Randolph, Senior Vice President of Shearson Lehman Brothers. "This program utilizes and combines the best aspects of self-insurance, reinsurance and bonding programs and provides a unique solution to the insurance problems facing local governments."

Over the past year, a number of public sector self-insurance programs and their members, as well as individual municipalities in California, Illinois, Louisiana, Montana and Texas have raised funds in the capital markets to finance their self-insurance costs. "Self-insurance programs sponsored by municipal and county associations, as well as other public entities across the nation are taking a serious look at bond financing as a fiscally sound alternative to traditional risk funding techniques," noted Mr. Randolph.

Corroon & Black Advanced Risk Management Services is the actuarial consultant for this issue. The Louisville firm of Jackson, Kelly, Williams & Palmore is the counsel to KACo. The law firm of Kutak Rock & Campbell of Atlanta, Georgia is serving as bond counsel. The Louisville firm of Harper, Ferguson & Davis is serving as counsel to the underwriters and financial advisors.

Turner Is Ordained, Assumes Pastorate

Former County Attorney Arnold Turner was ordained to the ministry at a service held Saturday, November 21, at the First Baptist Church of Allen. The next day, the newly ordained minister began serving as interim pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church at Betsy Layne.

The ordination council which did the examination of Mr. Turner included the Rev. Robert E. Cox, chairman and pastor of the host church, The Rev. Ron Kinzel, Sr., First Baptist Church, of McDowell, The Rev. Mark Tackett, Pleasant Home Baptist Church, the Rev. Gordon Fitch, Benedict Baptist Church, the Rev. Jennings West, Lancer Baptist Church, and the Rev. George Akers, Martin Baptist Church. Deacon Gene Davis from the candidate's home church also participated and presented a Bible to him on behalf of the church.

During the service of ordination, Pastor Cox delivered the charge to the church, and the Rev. Doug Lewis gave the charge to the candidate, using as the theme of his message the call of the prophet Isaiah. Mr. Lewis, a native of Floyd county and presently pastor of the Big Creek Baptist Church near Hazard, was a former Floyd County Sheriff and associate of Mr. Turner's when he was Floyd County Attorney. From the local church, Deacon Leo Watts read the Scripture reading.

Also participating in the ordination service from the Turner family were the Rev. Ralph Turner, of Sharonville, Ohio, Mr. Turner's uncle, and Mrs. Joan Chaffins, of McDowell, Mr. Turner's sister, who provided the special music.

Prayers during the service were offered by the Rev. Timothy Jessen, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, of Prestonsburg, and the Rev. DeWitt Furrow, pastor of the Peter Creek and Shepard Memorial Churches in Pike county, who took the place of the Rev. Weyman McGuire, Maytown Methodist Church, who was unable to attend.

Many ordained ministers from area churches participated in the laying on of hands ceremony, signifying being set apart for the gospel ministry. Following the ordination service and personal testimonials to Mr. Turner's ministry during the past five years, the ordinand responded with personal remarks of appreciation. Joined by his wife, Libby, and sons, Brent and Ryan, the Turner family greeted the many family members, church members, and friends who attended the ceremony.

Escaped Juveniles Are Returned Here

Five juveniles who escaped from the Regional Detention Center, here, November 13, have been returned from Fort Wayne Indiana, where they were apprehended. The report in last week's Times that the escape was effected by taking the keys of detention center employee Paul Greene, was in error. Mr. Greene was not in charge of the keys.

Gas Prices Less Since Labor Day

Motorists taking to the roads in central and eastern Kentucky over the Thanksgiving weekend can expect to pay an average of $1.09 per gallon, the Blue Grass Automobile Club-AAA reported recently.

AAA's latest Fuel Gauge Survey compiled this week showed prices for full-serve gas averaged $1.08 for regular, $1.14 for no-lead and $1.25 for premium, while self-serve averaged 94¢ for regular, $1.01 for no-lead and $1.14 for premium, respectively.

Although prices overall are down one cent since Labor Day, the greatest drop was evident in the price of full-serve premium which fell four cents.

The overall average price of $1.09 per gallon is 19¢ higher than the average price a year ago.

AAA's survey includes 30 service facilities throughout 46 counties in central and eastern Kentucky.

Employer Information Hot Line Stays Busy

When a Kentucky employer has a question about training programs, tax credits, unemployment insurance or filling a job opening, the answer may be just a telephone call away.

In fact, several dozen Kentucky businessmen and women make that type of call each week to the state Department for Employment Services JOB NEWS Line.

Employment Services Commissioner James Daniels said his staff answered 2,830 inquiries—an average of more than 54 per week—placed between Oct. 1, 1986, and Sept. 30, 1987 over the department's toll-free line for employers. The total is up from 2,771 calls in 1986 and 2,150 in 1985.

"The sustained high use of the JOB NEWS line continues to support our belief that employers find this a worthwhile service," said Daniels.

While the information hot line is specifically for employers, the largest category of calls registered within the last year—849—came from Kentuckians seeking employment.

"Most of these people are referred to DES placement staff in our local offices," Daniels said, "because they're usually calling about a job in a particular community as opposed to program or policy questions applicable to employers statewide, which represents the desired function of the service."

The greatest number of employer calls concerned the department's annual seminars, prompting 501 (18 percent) calls to 1-800-JOB NEWS (562-6397).

"These seminars cover such topics as the department's interviewing, aptitude testing and job placement services; unemployment insurance laws; tax credits; and training programs, because knowledge about these subjects can help employers keep their operating costs down," Daniels said.

Employers also used the toll-free line to place 448 job orders, which accounted for 16 percent of the calls. Interest in Job Training Partnership Act and tax credit programs led to 363 (13 percent) and 325 (11 percent) of the calls, respectively.

"The number of calls jumped in April and continued through July in response to our campaign to hire workers over age 55," Daniels said. "This promotional effort alone led to 474 calls—204 from employers with jobs to fill and 270 requesting additional information about the Older Workers program."

Promotion of the Veterans Job Training Act generated 76 job orders over a four-month period.

Questions about unemployment insurance accounted for 199 or 7 percent of the calls, and inquiries about support services led to 145 or 5 percent of the calls.

The toll-free line cost $6,239 last year, an average of about $2.20 per call. "This is a nominal cost when you consider the wages of Kentuckians hired as a direct result of a phone call over this line," Daniels said.

Scrubby Bear Is Two

Two-year-old Scrubby Bear poses with prizewinners Nioka Wright, of Arkansas Creek, Amanda Rae Forman, of Bypro, and Adam Hutchinson, of Martin, at the conclusion of Scrubby Bear's birthday party, October 27.

Scrubby Bears have been presented to all children hospitalized at Our Lady of the Way Hospital since October 27, 1985. All 1987 recipients of Scrubby Bears were invited to the party.

The Scrubby Bear program was instituted to promote good handwashing. This year Scrubby Bear ventured outside the hospital to promote handwashing at community events and Camp Shawnee.

Commission Approves 20 Health Care Projects

The Commission for Health Economics Control in Kentucky at its Nov. 18 meeting approved 20 certificate of need applications, representing approximately $19.6 million in capital expenditures.

Among the applications approved was a project that will transfer 102 beds to Louisville's Baptist Hospital East from Baptist Hospital Highlands, which will be closed. Also approved was a proposal to construct a 50-bed replacement hospital in Versailles.

The commission granted permission for proposals to convert medical/surgical beds to intensive care beds in Louisville and Richmond. The commission approved establishment of an adult day health program in Henderson, group homes for adults with mental retardation/developmental disabilities in Lexington and Georgetown, and an air ambulance service based in Huntington, W. Va.

The commission approved applications to establish medical weight loss centers in Ashland, Bowling Green, Edgewood, Lexington and Louisville.

In other business, a certificate of need establishing Reservoir Park Hospital in Bowling Green as an acute care facility was revoked at the certificate holder's request.

Quality Lacking

If it is true that all genius is inconsistent, then it is abundantly clear that our Kentucky Supreme Court can make no claim to such. It is unbelievably consistent in upholding coal interests to the detriment of both the landowner and the Commonwealth.

First, this august group has the dubious distinction of upholding the broad form deed making ours the only state to deny landowners' primary rights.

Now, it seems clear to the court that while surface owners should pay the full tax for whatever assessment is placed on the value of their land, those who own the mineral rights, those who may destroy the surface for great gain should pay what amounts to nothing in taxes.

So, who owns Kentucky? Certainly not the landowners who are merely privileged to pay their full burden of taxes.

Not only is the quality of genius missing among the majority of our high court members, but whatever happened to the quality of mercy, or even justice?

been stocking the library with new books. He said, I have given particular attention to local history, genealogy, literacy material, and literature for young children. These are areas of particular interest."

When asked about mysteries, he was quick to say, "Oh, yes. Those are always in demand."

It is easy to see why Terry Manuel and his staff are proud of the work done and hope all of Floyd county will make use of the library.

A formal opening will be held at 4 p.m., Saturday, December 5. In the meantime, the library is open from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, and from 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m., Saturdays. When the new lighting grid is installed, hours on Tuesdays and Thursdays will be extended to 7:30 p.m.

local people form the core of his management team. He says that he always looks for talent from Eastern Kentucky first. "It would be more convenient to have our main office located in Lexington, but I believe in staying in Eastern Kentucky so I can identify with local concerns and needs."

He feels that the future holds exciting challenges for the area and has plans to diversify into multi-housing units in addition to building more commercial centers. The entrepreneur takes pride in the fact that he and his associates' efforts have created over a thousand new jobs for the area, and he says with a grin, "We enjoy what we do."

Kentucky Aquaculture Association Is Formed

A growing interest among Kentuckians in raising fish for resale and other aquaculture ventures has led to the formation of the Kentucky Aquaculture Association.

Officers for the new group are Marshall Taylor of Campbellsville, president, David Lazar of Port Royal, vice president, and Candace Dwyer of Lexington, secretary/treasurer.

Joining the officers on the association's board of directors are James Gootee, of Finchville, James Samples, of Cunningham, Paul G. Guess and Charles Guess, of Kuttawa, Charles W. Jones, of Paris, Ken Jacobs, of Bowling Green, Dr. Michael Masser, of Kentucky State University and Chris Kring, of the Kentucky Department of Agriculture.

Membership in the association is open to catfish, trout and other fresh-water fish producers, owners of pay fishing lakes, haulers of live fish and anyone who is interested in helping promote the aquaculture industry.

Some of the association's membership will be participating in a Catfish Farming Workshop Monday, Dec. 14, from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. at Kentucky State University in Frankfort.

The day-long workshop covers such topics as commercial catfish farming, state regulations and policies regulating aquaculture in Kentucky, production strategies, water quality, disease management, processing and marketing.

For more information about the association of the workshop, contact Dr. Masser at Box 196, Kentucky State University, Frankfort, Ky. 40601 or phone (502) 564-6152.

CARD OF THANKS

We, the family of Martha Jo Crisp, want to tell each of you how much we appreciated all your loving support in this painful time. Each of you who sent flowers and plants, brought food, and gave us your kind words and warm touches have been of deep comfort to our hearts.

Special thanks to the staff of the Hall Funeral Home, Rev. Kenneth Lemaster, Rev. Jack Howard, Elizabeth Lee Kinzer, Cheri Mullins, Ronald Frazier, Bill Reynolds, Gary Crisp, and the choir of the Christ's United Methodist Church at Allen.

THANKSGIVING

Sometimes we become a bit tired of the day to day grind; the complaints—many well-justified, we must admit.

On the other hand, we are now and then surprised by a word of encouragement, or we hear from old friends who write or call just to compare notes on matters of mutual interest, sometimes to set us straight, or on occasion, to thank us for an item.

And so, for all of you—friends, those who criticize, those who encourage, those who bring us up short and force us to take a hard look at ourselves, we are thankful.

Most of all we are thankful for our family. We will not all be able to be together this year at the Thanksgiving table, but we will be together in spirit.

We count our blessings.

AND NOW, PUMPKIN PIE

If you think you don't like pumpkin pie, try this one. It's my mother's recipe, and it's good, even great.

1½ cups pumpkin (pureed)
1 cup rich milk
1 cup sugar
¼ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. nutmeg
¼ tsp. cinnamon
2 eggs slightly beaten
1 tablespoon butter
Cook pumpkin until thick. Then combine with other ingredients. Mix thoroughly. Pour into lined pie pan, and bake at 425 degrees for 10 minutes until crust is set, then reduce heat to 375 for 45 minutes.

Nothing is certain in this world, but I have been able to work this recipe out to my oven's requirements, so I am confident you can, too.

In District Court

In a preliminary hearing held last week at the Floyd county courthouse, Walt Carroll, Jr., 19, of Martin, was held over by the grand jury on the charge of manslaughter in the death of his brother, Tony Carroll.

The bulk of court cases this week consisted mostly of D.U.I.'s.

Sentenced in Floyd District Court, following pleas or verdicts were: Roy C. Montgomery, 59, Prestonsburg, D.U.I., fine $557.50 and 30 days in jail; William Roberts, 34, Prestonsburg, D.U.I. and disorderly conduct, fine $557.50 and 30 days in jail; Ivel J. Gayheart, 29, McDowell, D.U.I., driving on a suspended license and leaving the scene of an accident, fine $707.50 and 60 days in jail.

Rep. Maggard Urges Four-Lane to P'burg

State Rep. Jim Maggard, D-Jackson, has petitioned Governor-Elect Wallace Wilkinson to support continued economic development efforts in Eastern Kentucky.

Maggard specifically asked Governor-Elect Wilkinson to give top priority to extending the four-lane Mountain Parkway from Hazard and Campton to Prestonsburg.

"In order to recruit industry and business to East Kentucky," Maggard said, "a good network of highways is essential." Policymakers in the Commonwealth have already made a good start with education reform he added.

Maggard has recently intensified his efforts to seek assistance with one of his major legislative goals which is opening up the mountain area to industry prospects. He has obtained a recommendation from the Kentucky Economic Development Planning Commission to four lane several main highways in Eastern Kentucky. Those recommendations will be submitted to Governor-Elect Wilkinson and to members of the 1988 General Assembly, Maggard said.

Other areas of the state are profiting from industry recruitment and Maggard wants Eastern Kentucky's economy to share in the benefits.

Performance Set Dec. 5

Saturday, December 5 at 8 p.m., Roadside Theater will perform its popular dramatic musical, South of the Mountain, at the Appalshop Center in Whitesburg.

Seating is limited so reservations should be made early by calling Jerri at (606) 633-0108, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m.-5 p.m. in addition to the state law is the helmet requirement, with a fine of $15 per offense.

At one point, Fire Chief Tom Blackburn asked council if it was aware that enforcing the existing state law would virtually solve the problem of reckless operation of mopeds, since most of the offenders seem to be 15 and under, Chuck Akers, a city police officer, said police have not been enforcing the age limit because there has not been clear instructions from the council. Pointing out that drivers of autos are not routinely checked for age and license except when probable cause of another violation exists, Akers said, "We've just turned our head. We don't know what to do."

Councilman Thomas J. Tackett offered the motion to pass the helmet ordinance. He explained that he was aware that successful enforcement of the state law would all but eliminate the problem, but he added, "To heck with the state law, I'm more concerned with them growing up and becoming adults." Tackett said some parents are going to let youngsters illegally operate mopeds, that police can't be everywhere at once, and if just one life is saved—"A child's head is worth the whole world," as he put it—then the helmet ordinance is a good idea.

Councilman Harry R. Porter, citing constitutional questions now pending regarding motorcycle helmet laws, abstained. Following the meeting, Porter added that he thought it would be best to simply enforce the existing state law and keep the under-age drivers off the mopeds.

A new ordinance offered for first reading would set up regulations for alarm systems, some 22 of which are currently hooked into City Police Headquarters.

The problems that led to the new ordinance include false alarms, the tying up of telephone lines and the need for a new board to tie incoming systems together.

The ordinance establishes a license, at an annual fee of $120, and specifies that the city will open to competitive bidding the purchase and installation of a new alarm board, to be paid from the license fee receipts. It also sets a false alarm fee, allowing for three false alarms per calendar year, charging $10 for the fourth and $25 apiece for any more in a given year. Several instances were cited of false alarms repeatedly coming in, apparently due to lack of employee familiarity with the system. "It's a dangerous situation," Latta said of the false alarms. "When our police officers have to go to the same place for the third time in a week, they've got to be thinking here we go again. That could lead to being a little bit lax."

The ordinance also bars automatic telephone alarm systems, in which a direct alarm link to the police station is replaced by a system that telephones the police and, using a recorded message, notifies the answering person, presumably a dispatcher, of a break-in. "They can tie up our phone lines," Latta said, adding that she had heard of an instance in which such a system called in and then failed to disconnect, tying up a line indefinitely.

Councilman Tackett offered an amendment to exempt schools and churches from the license fee. The measure will come up for second reading and passage at the next council meeting.

Another measure, up for second reading Monday, was tabled. That would have finalized a bond issue for the purchase of the Prater Creek Water District by Prestonsburg. It was tabled at the request of Bill Harvey Howard of the City Utilities Commission, who said the commission projected the purchase would result in a loss of $10,000 a year based on minimum usage, with the actual figure likely to be more than twice that. Apparently, several people in the district had paid the minimum connection fee to get lines in but did not need the water.

In other action, Council passed a resolution honoring the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce and its members for their work in helping Prestonsburg win a Kentucky Certified City award from the state chamber for the third consecutive year...agreed to negotiate with Jenny Wiley State Park about replacing a faulty sewer line...authorized the city to trademark its logo, with a future eye toward selling souvenir items with most of the proceeds to go to the Main Street program...discussed having an eastern Kentucky version of the Governor's Exposition in Louisville, with a view to bringing new industry to the area...approved keeping a surplus police cruiser for parts...reviewed the work of the first meeting of the Prestonsburg Safe Streets Committee, which is already making plans, highlighted by an awareness week to be held in April.

Mayor Latta notified council she will be out of town for a League of Cities convention during the next scheduled meeting, December 14 and reminded them that the new council, including five new members, will be sworn in January 1.

Members present Monday were Dr. Gary D. Brown, William R. Callihan, Goebel, Margie N. Osborne, Porter and Tackett. Absent were Frank A. Adams and Adrian Blackburn.

Getting the Runaround?

I am a concerned parent with a handicapped child who attends the Thursday, Friday, and every other Wednesday kindergarten class at John M. Stumbo school. We have got a serious problem in our school. We have got 48 children, two teachers, and two teachers aides housed in one classroom.

This is a very dangerous situation for the children and the teachers, and they are doing the best that they can under the circumstances, but there is just no way that these children can learn anything under these circumstances. The Floyd County Board of Education promised us a trailer which was supposed to be here September 25—nearly two months ago—and we haven't gotten it yet. Every time a parent calls or asks about it we get put off with, "It's supposed to be on its way," "we had to get it from down south," "they say it'll be here any day," or "They're sending an architect to measure and see where to set it up." I believe they're just giving us the run around, and they're not even planning on getting us a trailer.

I was under the impression that it was the Board of Education's responsibility to make sure that our children get a proper education. Well, how can they get this when they are being placed in classrooms that are far over crowded. The Board of Education doesn't even seem to care about these children. There hasn't been one of them come to the school to check into the circumstances under which these teachers are trying to teach our children. They just hired an extra teacher and aide and seem to think we parents should be satisfied with this when really all they did was put two more bodies in a room that was already way overcrowded.

PHS Boosters For Education

We are pleased to announce the formation of Prestonsburg High School Boosters for Education. Our purpose is to involve parents, teachers, and graduates of Prestonsburg High School in an ongoing effort to make our high school's academic program and learning environment the best in Kentucky. We want to support all aspects of the high school's academic programs, including vocational education, remedial education, general courses, and the academic team. We plan to engage in fund raising and volunteer efforts. One exciting project we have already agreed to take on is the development of an after-school tutoring program for any students who need help.

We want to enlist all former graduates of Prestonsburg High School as members of our organization. If you have a class list of names and addresses, please send it to us.

Our organizational meeting was on November 17th. Our next meeting will be December 10th at 7 p.m. at the High School. We invite as many of you to come as possible.

See you December 10th.

Barbara Burchett, Pamela Caudill, Jack Crider, Clare Day, Ramona Horne, Nell Lawson, John and Jean Rosenberg, Dolores Smith, George and Nancy Spiggle, Eugene and Linda Weathers, Robert May, Principal, PHS.

New Industry For East Kentucky

Having been in business for over 38 years in East Kentucky, I feel qualified to write this letter to the people in this area.

For years it has been a problem to the businesses of Eastern Kentucky, seeing millions of dollars each year going out of town to Lexington and Huntington. Going out of town to shop, people think that they are getting better prices when actually they are paying more. The sale prices advertised are really not a sale. Most items are marked down about 15 to 20 percent and then mixed in with a lot of merchandise from last year's stock. Then if there is a flaw in what they buy they will have to go all the way back to where they bought it to get it corrected.

This is true for cars, clothing, shoes, CPA's, banks, doctors, dentists, etc. As an example...if the car dealers and salesmen and their families would buy their clothing at home and if the clothing store people would buy their cars at home, and if local businesses would use local CPA's and the CPA's and their people would shop at home and on and on, it would be unbelievable what a shot in the arm this would be for business in East Kentucky immediately. We wouldn't have to wait on someone to build a factory to give people jobs; with more business, local people would be able to hire more help immediately. But our people would have to shop at home before this can happen. You should give your friends and neighbors first shot at your needs before going out of town to look for it. If you really check prices here you'll find the same quality and service at better prices and from people who care for you and want to make sure you get the best and are satisfied with the product. How many business places in Lexington or Huntington have contributed to your high school bands and athletic programs, your grandchildren's programs and schools, to your horse shows, or your softball tournaments or anything in Eastern Kentucky? Really, all the out of town businesses are interested in is your money and not your towns.

Local people do not really think about things like this when they need something, they just seem to like to say "I got this in Lexington."

Just be honest with you, businesses in Eastern Kentucky need your help. You could be the answer to some businesses making it or not. Wouldn't it make you feel good to know you had helped a friend succeed and not fail?

Why not give Eastern Kentucky a quick economy boost by shopping at home before going out of town where you think you can save a little money when really you're not. East Kentucky needs small factories that employ 50 to 150 people. The big factories will come as time goes by, but we have already got a built-in factory in your shopping at home.

Try it, you'll be surprised what a difference it will make in the economy—and fast.

Registers Complaint

My Martin Elementary kindergarten class recently visited WSAZ television station October 22, and were guests on the Mr. Cartoon show. I took a picture to the Floyd County Times office of the class with Mr. Cartoon along with a few words describing the event and naming the children. I was charged $10. When the paper was published the next week, five of my students names were left out and my article shortened. I contacted the Floyd County Times office, told them of their error, and asked for a complete reprint, but was denied. They said that all they would do was to print the names they left out. (Which they did).

Now, I have a problem with the way the situation was handled. First, I feel we should have not been charged $10 for school news, but since we were, it should have been published exactly like I had written it.

The article I gave the Floyd County Times office was written correctly, with all of my students names listed. When five names are left out, a big error was made, but not mine. Everyone makes mistakes but when I pay for something I expect quality or at least the courtesy to correct the mistake.

Last, we are dealing with one of the biggest events in a five year olds life. They were so excited because they were going to be in the paper and pictured with Mr. Cartoon (who wasn't named either). This would tell everyone what they had done. These students can read very little but they do know and can read their names and they look for it under their picture. They don't know why they were left out, they just know their names were not there with the other children's. They had been left out.

Please I ask you again, reprint the complete article and picture.

VICKIE KING PRATER
Martin Kindergarten Teacher

(Editor's note: The Times regrets the omission of these names; however, we cannot reprint pictures and entire articles. News items from schools are welcome and printed free, but because of the growing number of pictures sent plus increasing costs, we must charge for most pictures.)

The Guided Hand

The year was 1939, or 1940. We lived in Pike county on Shelby Creek, at Esco.

I was suddenly stricken with appendicitis.

The family doctor decreed without surgery I would be dead by the following morning.

Communications, roads, and transportation facilities were vintage type, and a test of patience in those days.

Money was scarce or non-existent!

Through God's blessings, and the efforts of many, I received surgery by a guided hand in the nick of time at Lackey, in another county.

Dr. Hall had a steady hand. 'Tis the season to publicly thank God for sparing my life in a special, miraculous way on that day.

It Happens Too Often

When six-year-old Elizabeth Steinberg died from severe beatings, shocked Americans mourned her death, but comforted themselves with thoughts of "but that happened in New York." However, what they fail to realize is that this tragedy can and does happen everywhere. Kentucky is no exception. It has happened here.

During 1986, Kentucky's Cabinet for Human Resources substantiated 4,879 instances of physical abuse and 2,094 cases of sexual abuse. Nearly half of the children were pre-schoolers.

Statewide, three children have died as a result of abuse during the first eight months of this year. Between three and five children die each year as a result of beatings, burning or other violence. One mother took her young daughter to the emergency room to have the child's bruises and swelling examined. Four days later the child died. Her step-father had broken her back. Another child was immersed in scalding water and then put to bed. The child dehydrated. The next morning she was dead.

In most cases, a visible history of bumps, bruises, burns, and lacerations exists. Some cases are reported and some are not. Often steps are taken to protect the child, but in other cases, the abuse, both physical and sexual, continues or ends abruptly in tragedy. The fault lies with everyone including friends, neighbors, doctors, teachers, judges, and the average individual who fail to comprehend, to act or both.

Under Kentucky law, it is the duty of anyone who has reasonable cause to believe that a child is abused to report that suspicion to the Cabinet for Human Resources, to law enforcement authorities, or to local prosecutors. With few exceptions this applies to all citizens including medical personnel and teachers, those most likely to have such knowledge. Note that failure to report is punishable as a Class B misdemeanor.

To Kentucky's credit, we have come a long way in our efforts to protect our children. Local groups throughout the state, the Cabinet for Human Resources, and the Attorney General's Office have worked hard to make people aware of the problem as well as motivate them to get involved.

Though discovery of, and intervention in, abusive family situations is critical, prevention is the key. Today, that message is reaching people and they are taking responsibility for the wellbeing of the Commonwealth's children. However, much more is left for us to do. Parent self-help groups, crisis lines, child care facilities, and new-parent education programs must be made available throughout Kentucky. Cooperation among social services agencies, treatment professionals, law enforcement and the judicial system must exist.

Before Kentucky can make an adequate response to child abuse, people must appreciate the tragedy of this problem. Children like Elizabeth Steinberg are making us do just that. Unfortunately, many are still surprised that cases like hers exist.

Time For A Change

Who needs a vote to know who might get killed next on US 23 between Paintsville and Prestonsburg.

I think it's a time for a change, don't you. Our present senators and congressmen can't seem to get the money to build a new 23. Why don't they drive US 23 six and seven days a week like people of Floyd, Magoffin and Johnson counties do just to get to work and back safely or to the hospital or wherever.

How would they feel to find a mother or dad or brother or sister or friend or neighbor dead on arrival. Think about it just one minute.

Deputies Graduate From Sheriffs Academy

Friday, November 13, the Kentucky Sheriffs' Association graduated 23 deputy sheriffs at the Kentucky Sheriffs' Academy on the Western Kentucky University campus. This was the third graduating class that has completed their 200-hour course over a four-month period.

Guest speaker, Sheriff Earl Marshall, past president of the KSA, said that the three top priorities of the Kentucky Sheriffs Association this year are education, education, and education. A total of 79 sheriffs and deputy sheriffs have graduated from this exclusive Sheriffs Academy which is the only one of its kind in the nation.

Executive Director of the Kentucky Sheriffs' association, Ray H. Stoess, who welcomed the graduates, friends, and relatives, stated, "Sheriffs and deputies are the only law enforcement body in Kentucky not receiving funding to attend school, and they pay their own way at this new Sheriff's Academy. He also stated, "The KSA will attempt to gain funding from the 1988 Kentucky State Legislature."

The next class for sheriffs and deputies will begin January 31, 1988.

Coal Summit II Video On View at Libraries

Energy Secretary George E. Evans, Jr. announced that a video tape report of Coal Summit II has been placed in every county library in the Commonwealth.

Coal Summit II was held in Lexington in April of 1987, and brought together over 400 of the nation's top energy producers, transporters, users, and government officials to discuss the nation's energy problems.

"The views of the participants were made so dramatically and with such feeling that a written report would not have captured the feeling," said Evans. "This video tape allows the viewer to actually see and hear nationally known energy leaders debate such points as an increasing dependence on foreign oil, the role energy plans in our world wide competitiveness, and acid rain. I feel this is an excellent addition to any library."

The VHS tape is available on a loan basis at all county libraries. Distribution of the tapes was accomplished by the Department of Libraries and Archives.

ORDINANCE NO. 10-87

AN ORDINANCE relating to use and operation of Mopeds.

WHEREAS, the City Council of Prestonsburg, Kentucky, has witnessed an increase in the use and operation of Moped motor bikes, which are defined in KRS 186.010 (5), as follows:

"Moped" means either a motorized bicycle whose frame design may include one or more horizontal cross-bars supporting a fuel tank so long as it also has pedals, or a motorized bicycle with a step through type frame which may or may not have pedals rated no more than two brake horsepower, a cylinder capacity not exceeding fifty (50) cubic centimeters, and automatic transmission not requiring clutching or shifting by the operator after the drive system is engaged, and capable of a maximum speed of not more than 30 miles per hour"; and

WHEREAS, Kentucky Revised Statutes Chapters 186 thru 189 contain various requirements regarding the use and operation of Mopeds, including, but not limited to the following:

1. KRS. 186.010 (4): The Moped itself cannot be licensed;
2. KRS. 186.410 and KRS 189.990 (3): The operator of a Moped must be licensed or face a fine of Twelve to Five Hundred Dollars ($12.00-$500.00) and six (6) months in jail;
3. KRS. 186.440: The lawful minimum age of a Moped operator is sixteen (16) years;
4. KRS. 186.010 (5): The maximum safe speed for Mopeds is thirty (30) miles per hour;
5. KRS 189.040 and KRS 189.990 (1): Mopeds are required to have at least one, but not more than two head lamps; and

WHEREAS, due to the hazardous nature of Moped motor vehicles in general, and the increased propensity for serious or fatal injury as the result of the non-usage of helmets or protective eye and head gear while in operation of a Moped; and as a general concern for the care and safety of those persons who operate Mopeds upon the streets, alleyways, roadways, parking lots, or highways within the city limits of the City of Prestonsburg, Kentucky.

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE CITY OF PRESTONSBURG, KENTUCKY, that:

SECTION 1: Any person who operates or uses a Moped motor bike, as defined by KRS. 186.010 (5), upon the streets, alley ways, roadways, parking lots or highways located within the city limits of the City of Prestonsburg, Kentucky, shall be required to wear an approved eye-protective device, in the manner prescribed by the Secretary of the Transportation Cabinet, pursuant to KRS. 189.285 (1) (b), at all times such vehicle is in motion; and shall also be required to wear approved protective head gear in the manner prescribed by the Secretary of the Transportation Cabinet pursuant to KRS. 189.285 (2) (c) at all times that the vehicle is in motion.

SECTION 2: Failure to operate a Moped as specified pursuant to Section 1 above, shall result in a fine of $15.00 for each separate offense.

SECTION 3: This ordinance shall take effect after its passage and upon publication.

Enacted, this the 23rd day of November, 1987.

ANN LATTA, Mayor
ATTEST:
Sue Webb, City Clerk 11-25-21

Wilkinson Says Inaugural Not at Cost to Taxpayer

Hundreds of volunteers are working feverishly planning the inauguration of Wallace Wilkinson as Kentucky's next governor. Traditional inaugural activities are being planned with the addition of some new events.

"The inauguration is an opportunity to celebrate our great Kentucky spirit and pride," says Governor-Elect Wilkinson. "The inauguration is for everyone, and we want every Kentuckian to come to Frankfort and enjoy the festivities." Virtually all of the inaugural activities will be open and free to the public. Those activities include the Inaugural Parade, Swearing-In ceremony, a "Meet the Governor" reception, and the Inaugural Ball.

Also on the agenda is a Young Peoples' Inaugural Ball hosted by the Wilkinsons' sons, Glenn and Andrew, and an open house at the Lt. Governor's Mansion hosted by Lt. Governor Brereton Jones.

"Martha's Supper," hosted by Mrs. Wilkinson is scheduled, Monday night. The supper will honor campaign workers, county chairpersons, and other invited guests.

Inauguration '87 Executive Director Donna Moloney says that the Inaugural Committee and volunteers are working on a celebration that has something for everyone. "This is a day for all of Kentucky," she says. "We are planning on good crowds and praying for great weather."

All inaugural activities are being funded through private contributions. "Governor-Elect Wilkinson told me and the committee that he does not want Kentucky taxpayers paying for the Inauguration," explains Moloney, "nor should it cost any more than is absolutely necessary. We are very conscious of keeping costs down."

FLOYD COUNTY HEALTH NEWS

By JANE BOND

The Health Department will be closed Thursday and Friday, November 26 and 27, in observance of the Thanksgiving Holiday.

Family Planning clinics for December are as follows: Wednesday, December 2, at 8 a.m.; Friday, December 11, Monday, December 14, and Monday, December 21, at 12 noon each date. No appointment is needed for these clinics. For more information, call 886-2788.

There will be pap clinics at the health department, Wednesday, December 2, and Wednesday, December 16. These clinics are free services of the health department and are open to women of all ages. However, those women age 45 and over are especially urged to take advantage of this free service since this is the high risk age for the disease.

A nurse from the health department will be in Wayland, Friday, December 11, from 10 until 2. She will offer the following services: T.B. skin tests, urinalyses, blood pressures, anemia screening, and immunizations. This clinic is a free service of the health department and is open to the public. It will be held at the Wayland Methodist Church.

These same services will be offered at the Vogel Day Methodist Church in Harold, Friday, December 18, from 10 until 2.

Also on the agenda is a breakfast hosted by the Kentucky Democrat Party. The $50 per person breakfast is a fund-raising event for the Democrat Party in Kentucky.

The following events connected with the inauguration are free and open to the public.

10:30 a.m.—Inaugural Parade, Capital Avenue; 2 p.m.—Inaugural Swearing-In Ceremony, The Capitol Steps; 3-5 p.m.—Meet the Governor, Reception The Capitol Veranda; 4-6 p.m.—Open House, Lt. Governor's Mansion; 7 p.m.—Midnight—Inaugural Ball, Capitol Rotunda and Tent (Black Tie Option); 8 p.m.—Grand March; 8-11 p.m.—Inaugural Young People's Ball, Frankfort Civic Center.

Riverview Manor here, received the 1987 Eastern District and State Facility of the Year Award at the Kentucky Association of Health Care Facilities (KAHCF) Annual Awards Banquet October 27, at The Galt East in Louisville.

Riverview is a 121-bed facility, which was selected over 18 other competing nursing homes throughout Kentucky. Professionals outside the nursing home industry judged the competing facilities based on the quality of staff, patient care, physical plant/grounds upkeep and documented facility goals and objectives.

"Our Association is proud to have Charlotte Slone and her staff representing Kentucky's nursing home industry during the upcoming year," said KAHCF President Mary Ousley. "They are truly committed to the teamwork approach in meeting the physical, mental, social and spiritual needs of their patients at Riverview Manor."

The Award was first received by Mountain Manor of Prestonsburg in 1974.

KAHCF is the trade association which represents 232 licensed proprietary and nonproprietary nursing homes in Kentucky.

State Park Lark Set For New York Parade

The Kentucky state park system will be represented in the 61st annual Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade by its new mascot, the Kentucky State Park Lark. The State Park Lark will walk the 2 1/2-mile parade route through downtown New York City with a group of celebrity characters.

Commissioner of Parks June Hudson stated, "We are thrilled that our fine park system will be represented in such a famous parade. The national exposure should prove to be a boost to the Kentucky state parks, as well as to the Commonwealth."

The state park system unveiled its new mascot in a special hatching ceremony at the Kentucky State Fair on Aug. 26. The mascot was the brain child of the division of recreation and was enthusiastically supported by Mrs. Hudson.

Artists throughout the state submitted designs for a mascot for the park system. The park lark design was chosen by a committee comprised of naturalists, recreation field staff, park managers and central office personnel.

The mascot visits schools, attends special events in the Kentucky state park system and goes to travel shows and community events throughout the state.

The Thanksgiving Day Parade includes dozens of floats and props, 10 airborne balloons, hundreds of performers and clowns and 13 marching bands and lasts approximately three hours. Kentucky will also be represented by the George Rogers Clark High School Band from Winchester.

Approximately 2 million people line the streets of New York City to watch the parade and the viewing audience is estimated to be 7.8 million households.

"The State Park Lark was developed in order to promote our park system and its appearance in the Macy's parade is proof that it is succeeding," said Tourism Secretary Wendell Combs. "The State Park Lark is an excellent ambassador of goodwill for Kentucky state parks."

Earthquake Safety Info Is in Demand

Requests have been pouring in for earthquake awareness pamphlets and other information as the result of the 1987 Earthquake Awareness Week in Kentucky, so much so that the supply has been temporarily exhausted according to Susan Olson, earthquake program coordinator with the state Division of Disaster and Emergency Services.

Kentucky schools have asked for 19,000 copies of a special comic book on earthquake safety featuring the cartoon character, Yogi Bear, she said.

An additional 10,000 copies of other brochures have been requested for homes and businesses, Olson said. Earthquake Awareness Week was proclaimed Oct. 12-18, and a small tremor on the New Madrid Fault was registered Oct. 14 south of Paducah in Western Kentucky.

"The response has been greater than we had expected," Olson said. "We have temporarily run out of brochures, and have ordered reprints. We will get the orders filled as soon as possible," she said.

"I think this response clearly indicates that Kentuckians are becoming more aware of the earthquake threat to the region. This could help save lives if a disaster does occur," she said.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MINE

Pursuant to Application No. 836-0069, Amend. #3

(1) In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350.055, notice is hereby given that Branham & Baker Coal Co., 328 North Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653, has filed an amendment to Permit 836-0069 for a permit for a surface mining operation. The operation will affect a surface disturbance of 346.58 acres, located .75 miles north of Hippo in Floyd county.

(2) The proposed operation is approximately 1.0 mile south from State Route 850 junction with Prater Fork Road and located .1 miles west of Prater Fork of Brush Creek. The latitude is 37 degrees 32' 30". The longitude is 82 degrees 51' 06".

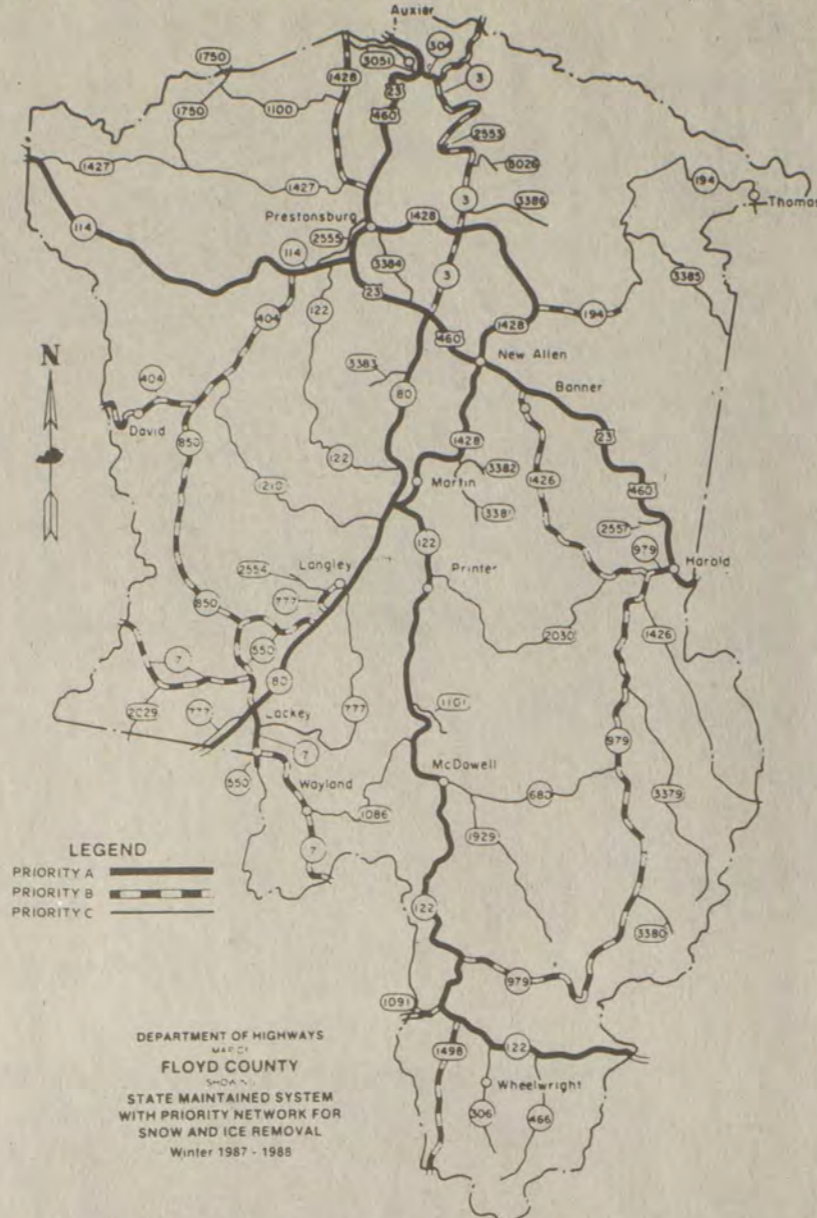

(3) The proposed operation is located on the Martin U.S.G.S. 7 1/2 minute quadrangle map, adding slide areas to mountain top removal operation.

Surface owners are: Tiny Hicks, Branham & Baker Coal Co., Inc., Henry & Adith Morris, Raymond Hicks, Taylor Reffett, Harrison Shepherd, Maurice Allen, Lawrence Howard, Orville Adkins, Elmer Reffett, Carson Reffett, T. L. Reffett Heirs, Wayne Allen Heirs, Madge Casey, Floyd Allen et al., Mont Campbell et al., Murl & Bill Prater, Eugene Howard, Gorman Cooley, Jack Hall, Perry Prater, Gorman Cooley, Donn Chickering, Monroe Vanderpool, Henry Ousley Heirs, Grace Sutherland, Anna Lena Allen, Gladys S. (4) The application has been filed for public inspection at the Department for Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement's Prestonsburg Regional Office, 503 South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653. Written comments, objections, and/or requests for a permit conference must be filed with the Director of the Division of Permits, #2 Hudson Hollow, Frankfort, Ky. 40601. 11-25-87.

The North Pole was flown over for the first time by Richard E. Byrd and Floyd Bennett on May 9, 1926.

Snow Removal Priority Map

State Transportation road crews are prepared for the 1987-88 winter maintenance program so that when snow begins to fall in Floyd county, the roads can be cleared quickly and efficiently.

"This year, again, we want effective snow removal so motorists will be able to travel safely when adverse weather exists," said Gov. Martha Layne Collins.

To help motorists plan their winter driving, the Transportation Cabinet has announced which roads will be cleared first.

The transportation crew will clear U.S. 23, U.S. 460, KY 80, KY 114, KY 122 and KY 1428 first. The next roads to be cleared will be priority B and then priority C, as shown on the attached map.

The roads are cleared as soon as precipitation becomes significant. Crews set out with salt or plows to clear the top priority roads first. The priority system is based on the traffic carried by the road.

Priority A roads include interstates, parkways, urban expressways and other state roads with exceptionally large volumes of traffic. Priority B roads are state primary roads, bypasses and roads with slightly less traffic than Priority A roads. State secondary roads, rural secondary roads and other routes with equal traffic fall into Priority C category.

Remaining state roads are cleared after these categories have been treated.

Four KSP Officers Receive Promotions

Kentucky State Police Commissioner Morgan T. Elkins has announced the promotions of four state police officers, two to lieutenant and two to sergeant.

Sgt. August Knipp, 36, has been promoted to lieutenant. Knipp entered the KSP Academy, Sept. 17, 1972, and upon graduation was assigned to the Ashland Post. In 1985, he was promoted to sergeant and assigned to the Pikeville Post. In 1987, he was reassigned to the Ashland Post. He received the Kentucky State Police Commendation in 1975 for his actions in helping apprehend, without injury, a Carter county man who was firing a weapon at police.

Knipp graduated from Prichard High School and Eastern Kentucky University. His assignment as lieutenant will be to remain at the Ashland Post.

Sgt. Thomas P. Hazlette has been promoted to lieutenant. Hazlette entered the state police academy, Sept. 23, 1979, and upon graduation was assigned to the Pikeville Post. In 1984, he was assigned to the Legal Office and later that year to the Professional Standards Branch. He was promoted to sergeant in 1985 and assigned to the Personnel Branch.

Hazlette, 31, is a graduate of Johnson Central High. He received his associate's degree from Prestonsburg Community College and his bachelor of science degree from the University of Kentucky. His assignment as lieutenant will be to remain in the Personnel Branch.

Trooper John Robertson, 38, has been promoted to sergeant. He entered the KSP Academy, July 14, 1974, and upon graduation he was assigned to the Madisonville Post. Robertson graduated from Hughes Kirkpatrick High School. His new assignment as sergeant will be at the Bowling Green Post.

Trooper Charles Scott Woodard has been promoted. He entered the state police academy, Sept. 3, 1978. Upon graduation, he was assigned to the Pikeville Post.

Woodard is a graduate of Franklin County High School. His assignment as sergeant will be to remain at the Pikeville Post.

Caudill's Renderings Exhibited In Lexington

Just Like Daddy, a colored pencil drawing by Iris Caudill, Martin artist, is included in The Drawing an exhibit of drawings at Loudoun House, Castlewood Park, Lexington, during November.

Caudill also has a card design in The Christmas Message-A Design Competition, Gloria Singletary Gallery, Living Arts and Science Center, Lexington, exhibiting through December 20.

In addition, she has been commissioned by McDonald's Restaurant of Prestonsburg to complete four seasonal paintings of a Prestonsburg landmark.

Alternative sources of energy: Although legumes have enormous potential as sources of food, many of them are overlooked as major crops. According to International Wildlife magazine, many legume seeds are two to four times richer in protein than cereal grain. And one kind of South American legume, called nunas, can be popped like popcorn and provide a highly nutritious snack.

AGE INCREASES RISK

As we get older, regular checkups become increasingly important. Because chances of prostate cancer increase with age, the American Cancer Society recommends a prostate exam as part of regular checkups for men over 50.

McDowell Area Man Jailed in Shooting

By Tim Sizemore

A shooting last Wednesday at Royal Hollow near McDowell ended with a Left Beaver man accused of the shotgun wounding of his ex-wife.

Roland Moore is accused of shooting Verlene Moore at her home near McDowell. Police say that the victim was shot once in the right leg with a 20-gauge shotgun. Sheriff's Deputy John K. Blackburn was dispatched to the scene around 2 p.m., and arrested the suspect at McDowell. The victim was taken to the Appalachian Regional Hospital where her condition is reported as stable.

The shooting is still under investigation by the sheriff's office and the state police with Moore currently lodged in the Floyd county jail.

Bobcat Season Opened Nov. 24

Bobcats may be legally hunted and trapped in Kentucky for the first time in 13 years under an experimental quota season established by the Fish and Wildlife Resources Commission.

The season opened Nov. 24 at the same time as the regular small game and furbearer seasons, and will run till Jan. 31 or until a harvest quota of 400 is reached, whichever comes first.

Tom Edwards, Furbearer specialist for the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, says that the secretive animal is much more abundant than once thought, especially in eastern Kentucky, and that the experimental season will provide additional information on bobcat populations while providing the sportsman with an opportunity to take an excellent trophy.

All bobcats taken must be tagged by special tagging agents who will collect the bobcat carcass at that time. The carcass will be used by wildlife biologists to obtain information on the age, sex and health of the animals harvested. This data will enable the department to better monitor and manage bobcat populations statewide.

The bobcat harvest area is limited to that portion of the state east of and including Lewis, Rowan, Menifee, Powell, Estill, Jackson, Rockcastle, Pulaski and Wayne counties. The season limit will be two bobcats per person for the quota season.

For additional information, hunters and trappers should obtain a copy of the Kentucky Bobcat Harvest Guide available from state conservation officers, wildlife biologists or from the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, #1, Game Farm Road, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601, phone (502) 564-4336.

Morehead State Receives Grants

Morehead University recently received grants from the Kentucky Department of Education.

Dr. George Troutt, coordinator of Morehead State University's regional in-service activities program, has received a $65,640 grant for the University's Beginning Teacher Internship Evaluation Program. The grant will provide salaries for independent observers within the program and will run through June 30.

Dr. Harold Rose, a Morehead State University professor of education, has been awarded two grants totalling $78,817. The grants provide for the establishment of an adult education evaluation program and training for para-professionals tutoring in adult education programs.

The evaluation program is part of a state contract designed to review 30 adult education programs in Kentucky and to provide training for instructors. In addition, the grant provides funds for on-site visits of such programs.

In an effort to train para-professionals for tutoring in adult education, Dr. Rose conducted a conference in Morehead recently for local school teachers and tutors from the Morehead region.

Another training session will be held in Bowling Green, December 18-20.

MSU's program is an extension of a state-wide outreach sponsored through Frankfort.

ASC Committee Election Nominees Announced

The election of members of the Floyd County ASC Committee will be December 7. Ballots will be mailed on or prior to November 27th. Ballots must be voted and returned to the ASC Office, in person or by mail, no later than December 7.

Persons on the 1987 ballot are: Delmas Saunders, Prestonsburg; Joe Edd Slone, Blue River; and Miles Arthur Whitaker, West Prestonsburg. Voters will vote for one candidate only. The person who receives the highest number of votes will be elected to the three term as county committee person. The second and third highest votes will determine the 2nd and 3rd alternates respectively who will serve one year terms.

Anyone who does not receive a ballot and feels that he/she is entitled to one, should contact the Floyd County ASCS Office at 886-3128. The present committee will determine voter eligibility.

ROUGH IT

Some studies suggest that certain dietary factors—such as eating more fresh fruits, vegetables and whole grain cereals—may decrease the risk of colon cancer, reports the American Cancer Society. Eating less fat and avoiding obesity may also lessen your risk of developing cancer of the colon.

Rain, Snow Bring Temporary Relief To Parched Farmland

Soaking rains and snowfall last week gave a temporary break to Kentucky's very dry conditions. Though Kentucky still needs additional rainfall, the precipitation boosted the soil moisture to 10 percent adequate, 33 percent short and 57 percent very short.

"Last week's moisture encouraged many farmers to take down some of their burley," said Agriculture Commissioner David Boswell. "Not much has come in case since the weather dried up again. Only 29 percent of the crop has

Magoffin Gov't. Again at Odds

Magoffin county's fiscal court members are once more at an impasse and as a result approximately half its bills remain unpaid.

During a meeting Friday, a move to pay over $53,000 owed chiefly for road work became an exercise in futility when Magistrates Ell Howard and Joey Isaac opposed it. A similar 2-2 tie vote brought Magoffin county's government to a month-long standstill last summer. At that time, county services were resumed only after Magoffin Circuit Judge John R. Morgan ordered a budget adopted and gave Judge-Executive Paul H. Salyer authority to pay bills needed to end the shutdown of the county's services.

Without a similar order now, some services, among them garbage collection, may be suspended, according to county Treasurer Pat Collins.

Magistrate Howard and Isaac, who are frequently at loggerheads with Magistrate Marvin Ray Adams and Judge Salyer, did agree to accept $68,000 in grant money from the Big Sandy ADD which will be used for a new fire truck, fencing for a park, and an emergency rescue vehicle.

Beef Health Conference Set In Cave City Dec. 2

Reproduction and the reproductive health of beef cattle is the topic for the Kentucky Beef Health Conference and Trade Show scheduled for December 2 in Cave City, Barren county.

The conference will be held at the Cave City Convention Center from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. CST. It is presented by the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture and the Cooperative Extension Service. The Kentucky Veterinary Medical Association and Kentucky Beef Cattle Association are co-sponsors of the event.

Dr. Tom Randolph, a veterinary clinician from Mississippi State University; Dr. John Spitzer, a reproductive physiologist from Clemson University, and Dr. Daryl Meyer, a veterinary practitioner from Gothenburg, NEB, will be the principal speakers.

Pharmaceutical, biologics and other animal health products manufacturers will set up exhibits for veterinarians and cattlemen attending the event.

More information and pre-registration forms can be obtained by writing Duane Miksch, extension veterinarian, West Kentucky Research Center, P.O. Box 469, Princeton, Ky. 42445.

Stress Management Workshop Set Dec. 1

St. Claire Medical Center's Outreach Program will conduct a seminar on "Stress Management" for Morehead State University's Job Training Center.

This seminar, which is also open to the public, is scheduled for Tuesday, Dec. 1, at 9 a.m. in the Riggle Room, Adron Doran University Center.

Midge Henderson, a registered nurse and clinical coordinator at St. Claire, along with other Outreach Program staff members will conduct the session.

There is no registration fee, but pre-registration is required and may be made by calling either (606) 783-2379 or (606) 783-2370.

ATTEND ALC HOMECOMING

Homecoming was held at Alice Lloyd College, Pippa Passes, last Friday and Saturday. Among those from Floyd county present were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Haywood, Miss Ruby Akers, Gene Akers, Mrs. Anna Sue Stumbo, Mrs. Terry Manuel, Miss Michelle Roth and her mother, Mrs. Roth. Also from Floyd county were Adrian Hall, of the college's Admissions Department, and Miss Robin Fox Branham, Director of Alumni Affairs. Among the many activities was the presentation of the films, "This is Your Life, Alice Lloyd," "This is Your Life, June Buchanan," and "Stay On, Stranger," all based on the establishment of this unique educational institution.

HOMEMADE FOR THE HOLIDAY

There are lots of things children can make for the holidays. For example, a wreath, suggests the Mother and Child section in Good Housekeeping's December issue. You can use any dried flowers with stems at least 3 inches long. Just stick the flower stems into a wreath form of Styrofoam which is available at craft shops, and add a ribbon bow. Holiday baking is another thing kids can do—they love making cookies and it's easy, even if you start from scratch.

A word of caution: If you use artificial snow sprayed from an aerosol can to decorate your windows or tree, be careful not to let your child breathe the fumes. Several brands contain methylene chloride that is believed to be harmful.

been stripped, while at this time last year 51 percent of the crop was stripped and ready for market. We're a little behind, but have no cause for concern."

According to reports for the Kentucky Agricultural Statistics Service, early stripped tobacco is drier than normal, and the low water percentage is expected to reduce weight. However, many farmers still should have their quotas. Farmers in the dry areas who had late tobacco could be short of their quotas.

The quality of this year's stripped tobacco is rated 5 percent very poor, 4 percent poor, 47 percent fair, 43 percent good and 1 percent excellent.

Soybean harvest is advancing rapidly. Statewide, the harvest is 95 percent complete. This compares with 70 percent of the acreage harvested at this time last year and 68 percent harvested for the five-year average.

Fall weather has been very favorable for the harvest. However, the dry weather has reduced the yield and caused very small bean in many fields.

Ninety-two percent of the wheat acreage has been seeded. This compares with 87 percent of the acreage seeded at this time last year and 78 percent for the five-year average. Last week's rainfall should help germination and growth.

The condition of the fall wheat crop was rated 11 percent very poor, 34 percent poor, 36 percent fair and 19 percent good.

Fall pastures are mostly poor and only limited fall growth can be expected. Because farmers have been feeding hay since the summer, they are concerned about total roughage needs for the winter months.

It's been 50 years since Castle's first opened their doors and that's something to celebrate, thanks to you. So we're giving away a one-half carat diamond cluster ring at our Main Street, Paintsville location on Friday, December 4th.

Come by any time through December 4th and register to win at either the Main Street or Mayo Plaza location. The drawing will be held December 4th in front of the Main Street store at 7:30 p.m. and the winner will be announced on WSP radio.

Refreshments will be served at the Main Street store the day of the drawing. Come join the party. Really, it just wouldn't be the same without you. After all, you've helped make this the happiest anniversary of them all!

CYNTHIA AND CLARENCE CASTLE IN 1942.

GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY HISTORY

1937 - Clarence Castle opens first watch repair and jewelry shop at Main and Church

1938 - Castle's Jewelry moves to College Street

1942 - Castle's Jewelry moves to larger location on Main Street in Arcade Building

1958 - Clarence and Cynthia Castle move their expanding store to its present Main Street location

1978 - Danny and Barbara Castle Pugh add a new location with a gift shop in Mayo Plaza

1986 - Castle's Jewelry and Gift Shops expand to another location in Glyn View Plaza in Prestonsburg

1987 - Castle's Jewelry and Gift Shops celebrate their 50th Anniversary!

50 years ago - in the year 1937 - Clarence Castle opened a modest watch repair and jewelry store at the corner of Main and Church Streets in Paintsville. It was not the best time to launch a new business venture. America and Eastern Kentucky were still in the throes of the Great Depression.

One year (and six months of advertising) later, Clarence Castle moved Castle's Jewelry to a more visible location on College Street, now occupied by Baldrige Barber Shop.

Clarence and Cynthia Castle were in the jewelry business to stay!

Today - 50 years later - Danny and Barbara Castle Pugh have the same commitment and determination. So do their sons, Doug, Darrell and David.

With modern stores on Main Street and in Mayo Plaza in Paintsville and in Glyn View Plaza in Prestonsburg, it is more than just a little appropriate that this regional jewelry store should celebrate its GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY.

Thanks to the support of valued customers in every county in Eastern Kentucky and some in West Virginia, Castle's Jewelry has grown from a small watch repair shop to one of the most respected and reliable jewelry and gift shops in Eastern Kentucky.

Nearly 15 years ago, on the death of Clarence Castle, Danny and Barbara Castle Pugh joined Cynthia Castle in this expanding jewelry business.

Danny and Barbara left the gas fields of southeastern Kentucky and returned to the town where their parents and grandparents had been an important part of the community. Soon, they, too, were an important part of the business, social and civic community. Now, their sons are assuming their own places in the future of Eastern Kentucky and in the future of Castle's Jewelry and Gift Shops.

The years have been golden, not only for Clarence and Cynthia during their active years, but for Danny and Barbara and now for Doug, Darrell and David.

As we celebrate the Golden Anniversary of Castle's Jewelry and Gift Shops, we hope the future will be as bright and promising as the past... for you, as well as for us!

Forest Fires Still Pose Threat to State Woodlands

Kentucky natural resources officials praised efforts in recent weeks to battle forest fires and acknowledged that continued relief from fires depends on more rain and snow throughout the next month.

"By combining indispensable volunteers from local fire departments with National Guard troops and our Division of Forestry emergency crews, we were able to better restrict the damage from fires thus far this fall," stated Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet Secretary Mary Helen Miller. "Hopefully, wet weather conditions will prevail throughout the remainder of the fall fire season so use of our woodlands, including hunting seasons, can continue without interruption."

In the Eastern Kentucky Forestry district, 244 fires burned 29,494 from Oct. 1 to Nov. 10. The Eastern district includes Floyd, Johnson, Lawrence, Magoffin, Martin and Pike counties.

Beginning Oct. 30 and building during the week, fire conditions reached emergency status, Tuesday, Nov. 3, when the Division of Forestry requested that the woods be closed. The emergency declaration made it illegal for most anyone but the landowner and tenants to be in the forests, fields, or brushland of the Commonwealth. Local ordinances banning outdoor burning in 50 counties also helped reduce the occurrence of accidental fires.

Since the first of October, over 113,000 acres of Kentucky's forests have been damaged by 1,431 fires. The damage to the timber has been estimated at $9.6 million. In addition to this, the cost of suppressing the fires has been estimated at over $1 million.

Secretary Miller said that without help of the Kentucky National Guard, numerous fire departments, other organizations, and concerned citizens, the Division of Forestry could not have held the loss to the size they did.

The National Guard provided 10 helicopters that were used to drop water on the fires. The water was dropped on the head of the fire, slowing it down until the ground crews could arrive and build control lines. Over 500 National Guard troops were sent out in 10-man crews to construct control lines on the ground. Each crew was supervised by an experienced crew leader who showed them where the control lines should be built, and at the same time looked out for their safety.

Many local fire departments assisted by protecting houses and barns from fire. This allowed division crews to concentrate their efforts on controlling the fires in the woods. In spite of everyone's efforts, 10 houses, two trailers, and eight barns were reported lost as a result of fire.

Secretary Miller said that arson was a very real problem this fall with one in every three fires was attributed to arsonists. To date, eight people have been arrested on arson charges. If convicted, they could be fined from $1,000 to $10,000 and/or sentenced to jail for up to five years.

In an effort to help bring the forest arsonist to justice, the Kentucky Forest Industries Association offers a $500 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of a person guilty of forest arson.

Good News—Turkey Is Cheaper

Those who are concerned about the price of the holiday turkey this year may be ready to give special thanks. Whole turkeys are cheaper this year than last.

"Turkey production in the first half of this year jumped 20 percent. A large portion of this increased production was stored in commercial freezers, putting stocks at record levels," said University of Kentucky Extension agricultural economist Lee Meyer.

Another factor helping consumers this year is retailers' pricing strategies, he said.

Many retailers are expected to sell turkeys at cost or below cost to entice shoppers to visit their stores.

These two factors, Meyer said, should mean that consumers can put a turkey on their table this year for between 49 and 59 cents a pound—and maybe less.

MAYTOWN HOMEMAKERS NEWS

The Maytown Homemakers met Thursday night, November 19, at 7 p.m. at the home of Marge Sammons.

President Helen Boyd called the meeting to order. Devotional chairperson Alda Gibson gave the devotional, and Peggy Gibson read the minutes and called the roll. Marge Sammons gave the treasurers report.

Each club member donated $10 for their annual Christmas party for Holly Wicker's special ed. children of the Maytown Grade School. This is one of the club's most beneficial projects that they sponsor each year.

Francis Pitts announced that decoration of the Christmas tree at May Lodge will be December 7, also the county wreath workshop will be Nov. 30.

Helen Boyd gave the lesson "Make this an Economical Christmas." The making of bows and boxes were demonstrated to club members, and in return, each club member made one of each for themselves. Mrs. Pitts brought many Christmas gifts and decorations for display that had been made by homemakers.

The Maytown and Martin Homemakers will hold their annual joint Christmas party, Dec. 17, at 7 p.m., in the E.P. Grigsby Senior Citizens' Center at Martin. An auction will be held at the party on items that the club members have made, and money will be divided between the clubs.

Refreshments were served by hostess, Marge Sammons, to Frances Pitts, Alice Hayes, Alda Gibson, Helen Boyd, Ann Crum, Margie Yates, Betty Bentley, Melvinia Scott, Peggy Gibson and guest Marie Patrick.

The Warmth and Goodness Of Hearty Homemade Soup

From the American Institute for Cancer Research
Whether it's borscht from Russia, minestrone from Italy, bouillabaisse from France, or wonton soup from China, virtually every nation on earth has its famous soups. America also has a rich soup tradition, from New England clam chowder to Southern gumbo.
Hearty, homemade soup makes a great main course on a cold winter evening. Soups allow you to cut back on meat (and limit fat) while increasing your consumption of vegetables rich in vitamins and fiber. Be sure to skim off any fat from the surface of your homemade soup. (One easy way is to let the soup get cold in the refrigerator and then lift off the hardened fat before reheating.)

CABBAGE AND CARROT SOUP
1 1/2 tbsp. vegetable oil
1/4 cup onion, chopped
1/4 cup celery, chopped
1/4 cup flour
1/2 tsp. salt (optional)
3 1/2 cups chicken broth
2 cups cabbage, shredded
1 cup carrots, chopped and pared
1 cup frozen peas, thawed

Saute the onions and celery in the vegetable oil until tender. Blend in the flour and salt. Gradually stir in chicken broth; cook over high heat, stirring constantly, until the mixture comes to a boil. Add the cabbage and carrots. Reduce the heat, cover and simmer for 10 minutes. Stir in the peas and cook 3 minutes more. This will make 4 bowls of soup (1 1/4 cups each) with 112 calories and 5 grams of fat per serving.

BLACK-EYED PEA SOUP
Black-eyed peas are a variety of legume—high in fiber, B-vitamins and minerals including iron and zinc. Accompanied by a salad and whole grain muffins, this soup is a tasty way to practice good nutrition.

12 ounces black-eyed peas (about 2 cups)
2 medium potatoes, peeled and diced
3 stalks celery, sliced
2 carrots, sliced
3 tbsp. tamari soy sauce
1 medium onion, chopped
2 cloves garlic, diced
1/4 tsp. pepper
1 tsp. basil
1 tsp. dried dill weed
Rinse black-eyed peas well. Place in a large pot and cover with 1 inch of water. Soak overnight.
Drain off the soaking water. Add 7 cups of fresh water and remainder of the ingredients. Bring to a boil for 2 minutes. Reduce heat and simmer 1 to 2 hours or until beans are tender. Stir occasionally, mashing beans and potatoes against

The "Night of Broken Glass"

On November 9-10, 1923 Hitler and Ludendorff launched the "Beer Hall Putsch," an attempt to overthrow the Weimar Republic. Ludendorff, a military hero from the First World War, was not punished for his treason. Hitler was given six months in jail in comfort, during which he dictated Mein Kampf to Hess. During this time he reached the conclusion that the attempt to destroy the Republic by a coup was mistaken strategy: the solution was to win power by parliamentary tricks, and then destroy the Republic.

On the 15th anniversary of the failed Putsch his Nazi Party activists instigated mob violence against the German Jews. Over 700 synagogues and community centers were vandalized and burnt, thousands of businesses destroyed and 20,000 Jewish men were rounded up and sent to concentration camps.

This year Kristallnacht was remembered in America by two different programs. In West Rogers Park, Chicago, a Nazi group broke the windows and vandalized three synagogues and eight Jewish businesses. In Philadelphia, a conference attended by approximately 500 people was held in the midst of the Freedom Shrines, studying terrorism and how to strengthen liberty and republican principles.

"Behold, I set before you the ways of death and life: therefore choose life!"

Home Care Workshop Offered By Morehead

Morehead State University's Continuing Education Program for Nursing and Allied Health Sciences will offer a workshop for nurses and support staff who work with home care and hospice patients Thursday, Dec. 3, on the MSU campus.

MSU is co-sponsoring this workshop, Home and Hospice Care: Patient and Family, with the McDowell Cancer Network of the University of Kentucky.

The faculty for the one-day workshop will be Linda Lindville of the Lucille Parker Markey Cancer Center of Lexington; Dr. Hunter Black of the Morehead Clinic; Judy Sandler, registered nurse, and Jeanette Lucas, chaplain, of Lexington's Community Hospice of the Bluegrass, and Dr. Dan Thomas, MSU professor of education.

The workshop will identify the roles of the hospice team, discuss spiritual and emotional needs of the patient and family and discuss methods of alleviating caregivers stress.

All participants attending the workshop will receive continuing education units from MSU. Nurses will receive six contact hours as approved by the Kentucky Board of Nursing.

Registration will begin at 8:30 a.m. in the Eagle Room, Adron Doran University Center. The cost includes refreshments and handouts.

Additional information is available by calling (606) 783-2632 or (606) 783-2635.

Toy-Shopping Season Underway; Inspectors Look for Hazards

Dangerous toys could be lurking among the hundreds of playthings on sale during the holiday season, so state inspectors are searching stores for toys that don't meet safety standards.

Ten inspectors from the Department for Health Services are examining toys in 250 retail stores during November. About two-thirds, or $4 billion worth, of the toys bought annually in this country are purchased in the last three months of the year, according to the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission.

While the quality of domestically produced playthings has improved in the past few years, imported toys still create some problems, according to E.P. Conyers of the department's consumer product safety branch.

"Although most of the toys being banned or removed from store shelves these days are imported," Conyers said, "we still check out a wide variety of both American- and foreign-made products."

"In our inspections, we look for items with sharp points and edges, small parts and painted toys with high lead levels. There are tests to determine if a particular toy meets standards. Some can be done in the store, but others, like tests for lead in paint, are performed in our lab in Frankfort," he said.

To find out if a toy or a part passes the "small parts" test, for example, inspectors place the piece in question in a cylinder with a 1.25 inch diameter. If the parts fits inside the cylinder, it's too small and fails the test.

"Something this small might be swallowed by a child or lodged in the child's throat," Conyers said. "The standards we use were developed by the federal Consumer Product Safety Commission."

Other features inspectors watch for are firmly constructed seams and firmly attached buttons, eyes and buckles on soft toys and warning labels on electrical toys.

Parents shouldn't be lured into a false sense of security, Conyers warns. Even if 100 percent of the toys sold met standards, injuries can still occur. In 1986, there were an estimated 2,000 toy-related injuries in Kentucky.

"For example, an electric toy with a heating element may be perfectly safe for a 12-year-old, but if a three-year-old in the house gets hold of it, you could be facing a burn," he said.

"We know that many toy-related injuries are linked more closely with the child's ability to handle the toy than to the toy itself," said Conyers.

Conyers urges parents and others to use common sense and caution when toy shopping. He offers the following suggestions.

Become an inspector yourself. Look for sharp edges, loose parts, warning labels and age recommendations.

Consider the individual child when buying a toy. A plaything labeled for a four-year-old might be too advanced for some children that age.

Keep in mind the ages of all the children in the home when buying toys. A chemistry set might be nice for an older child, but only if it can be used and stored out of the reach of younger children.

Don't let the price tag and appearance be the only guiding factors. Look for toys that will be durable and appropriate for the child.

Check instructions to make sure they're clear to you and, when appropriate, to the child.

Conyers advises checking toys periodically and discarding or repairing those that are broken and potentially hazardous. For more information about toy safety or to report a dangerous plaything, write Conyers at the Department for Health Services, 275 E. Main St., Frankfort or call (502) 564-4537.

SOUTH PRESTONSBURG HOMEMAKERS MEET

The South Prestonsburg Homemakers met Monday, November 16, at the home of Mrs. Mary Lou Horn. The business session was conducted by Mrs. Karen Colvin, president, and Mrs. Joyce Allen gave the devotions. It was decided that the club's annual monetary gift to the Floyd County Rescue Squad would be made this year. The program, "An Economical Christmas," was presented by Mesdames Frances Pitts and Karen Colvin. Several handmade gifts were on display. The group made Christmas gift boxes from used greeting cards and learned a new way of tying bows. The hostess, Mrs. Horn, served refreshments to Mesdames Ora Bussey, Theckley Short, Joyce Allen, Carlos Haywood, Vivian Fraley, Frances Pitts, Drema Miller, and Mrs. Miller's guest, Mrs. Nell Miller.

Books And Things

By: Trisha Morris
Librarian

Prestonsburg Community College
If you take delight in fine dining or just plain cooking, the following books from the shelves of P.C.C.'s library will lead you on a delightful tour through the culinary highways of Kentucky's legacy of cuisine and the historic restaurants which serve the feast.

"Dining in Historic Kentucky: a Restaurant Guide with Recipes"
By: Marty Godby

History is alive and deliciously maintained in buildings once known to such legendary figures as Daniel Boone, George Rogers Clark and Abraham Lincoln and now restored into some of the finest dining establishments in the Commonwealth. Ranging across the state from Winchester to Paducah, the author has personally tasted and awarded her gold star to 47 unique places of culinary pleasure. These restaurants will combine their business in buildings historically important to Kentucky's heritage. Ms. Godby tentativizes both the history buff and the gourmet in us by combining a snip of history and a sampling of the recipes which has made each highlighted restaurant famous. There is Boone Tavern's Jefferson Davis Pie, the Mike Fink Sandwich and the Iron Kettle's Hot Pepper Cornbread to name but a few. Let your fingers do the walking and your imagination do the tasting, and soon you will be looking for your car keys.

"Kentucky Hospitality: a 200-Year Tradition"
Edited by Dorothea Cooper

This book, a bicentennial project of the Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs, brings the reader, through essays, illustrations and many tempting recipes, to the very essence of the state of Kentucky. It has succeeded in reflecting the uniqueness of the foodways of the state which derived its varied taste from Indian hunters, frontiersman and Scotch-Irish immigrants often meshing with each other to create their own culinary heritage. From the individually authored essays, all woven around the history of food in Kentucky, to the recipes, ranging from Green Tomato Pie to Slow-Baked Beans, this book is a delight to read as well as to drool over.

"More Than Moonshine: Appalachian Recipes and Recollections"
By: Sidney Saylor Farr

From a suggestion that he should write a book about his firsthand experiences which would record the way of life of Eastern Kentucky, Mr. Farr has shaped a culinary history that is much more than a cookbook. With chapter headings such as "Biscuits, Cornpone and Cracklin Bread" and "Pickles, Preserves and Turnip Kraut" you know you are in for a delicious journey through good old days yarns and tales of things cooking on the stove. The making of molasses is a good example of Mr. Farr's literary style—"...between sleepy summer and shivering winter, when the nights turn cool, but the sky is blue...mountain people...make molasses, just as their forefathers did in olden times."

Special Christmas Events Set At Highlands Museum

The works of eight regional artists are being shown at the Kentucky Highlands Museum. The "Holidays at the Highlands" events will be held throughout December and include musical productions, December 6 and 13, a student production of "Scrooge" on December 11-13 and a candlelight historic tour and Scottish Walk, December 20. These events are free with museum admission.

Regional artists whose works are hung throughout the museum include Dale Starr, of Columbus, O., Caley Summers, of Jackson, O., Bill Williams, Beth Swartz and Jack Sullivan, of Chillicothe, O., and Ashland's Joy Thompson, Betty Parsons and Bill Kersey.

A.A.R.P. NAMES NEW OFFICERS

The Jenny Wiley Chapter of the A.A.R.P. held its regular monthly dinner meeting at the Highlands Regional Medical Center's dining room, Friday evening, November 20, with the president, James E. Goble, presiding, welcoming those in attendance, and giving the invocation.

Following the dinner, a business session was held. Jack Freed, who was instrumental in the organization of this group, was honored by being made President Emeritus. Delmas Saunders, treasurer, said that dues were payable at this time and the purchase of gifts for the Jenny Wiley Rest Home was discussed. Mrs. Eva Hale will be given an allowance to make these purchases.

Mr. Goble announced the names of the following officers and committee chairmen for the year, 1987-88, as follows: President, Orville Cooley; First Vice President, James E. Goble; Second Vice President, Harmison Hale; Secretary, Sarah Laven; Treasurer, Delmas Saunders; Legislative committee, Miss Ruby Akers; Health Care, Mrs. Mildred (Honey) May; Program, Mrs. Garnett Fairchild; Community Services, Mrs. Eva Allen Hale; Nominations, Mrs. Myrtle Allen, and Publicity, Mrs. Doccia B. Woods.

Mr. Goble presented his successor, Mr. Cooley, with the charter of the chapter, a gavel, and an A.A.R.P. Handbook, and thanked the group for their support during this tenure of office.

The new president, Mr. Cooley, was in charge of the latter part of the meeting. Discussions were held by Harmison Hale, Delmas Saunders, Bradis Goble, and others regarding the '55 Alive and Tax Aide programs, both sponsored by the A.A.R.P.

The next dinner meeting of this group will be held January 6, with members asked to attend a Christmas program at Prestonsburg Community College, in lieu of the December meeting.

Present were Mr. and Mrs. James E. Goble, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Cooley, Jack Freed, Eva Allen Hale, H. E. Hale, Sally B. Goble, Bradis Goble, Toots Parsley, Hager White, Oleta S. Smiley, Mildred Horn, Clifton Horn, Mildred R. Hall, Sarah Laven, Russell Laven, Glenn Anderson, Dorothy Osborne, Rebecca Rasnick, Joanne Edwards, Claude Edwards, Roberta Sloane, Myrtle Allen, Alka Burchett, Edna Saunders, Delmas Saunders, Doccia B. Woods, Garnett Fairchild, L. B. Fairchild, James D. Fitzpatrick, and Carter Hamilton.

KIWANIANNES MEET

The Prestonsburg Kiwanianes held their regular luncheon meeting Thursday, November 19, at May Lodge. Mrs. Barbara Dawson, president, presided. Mrs. Dawson introduced Mrs. Terri Cutright, who represented a cosmetic company. Using as her model, Mrs. Anna May Mellon, Mrs. Cutright demonstrated the application of cosmetics. She presented a door prize to Mrs. Mabel Jean LeMaster.

The Kiwanianne grace was said in unison, the devotions were presented by Mrs. Lucy Regan, and Mrs. Mary K. Roberts led the group in prayer.

The minutes and secretary's reports were given by Mrs. Dorothy Osborne. Mrs. Dawson asked Mrs. Mabel Jean LeMaster to serve as chairman of devotions for the coming year and read a letter from Mrs. Zella Archer, a former member who moved recently to Somerset, thanking the group for the gift which they presented to her during her last meeting with them.

The Christmas luncheon will be held at the home of Mrs. Dawson, December 17. Further details will be announced later.

Enjoying the meeting were Mrs. Terri Cutright, guest, and members, Mesdames Barbara Dawson, Dorothy Osborne, Lucy Regan, May K. Roberts, Dixie Webb, Jane Wallace, Myrtle Allen, Ada Meade, Annabelle Maggard, Hope Whitten, Mabel Jean LeMaster, Maman Leslie, Thelma Music, Garnett Fairchild, Margaret Collins, Anna May Mellon, Mary Margaret Webb, and Doccia B. Woods.

MIRIAM REBEKAH LODGE MEETS

Miriam Rebekah Lodge No. 31 met in regular session Tuesday, November 17, with the Noble Grand, Mrs. Teresa Maynard, presiding. The regular routine of business was taken care of, and those who were on the sick list were noted, with cards being signed to be sent to them. Mesdames Mary Ann Prater and Darlene Belcher were initiated into the lodge.

Members were reminded of the district meeting, to be held here, December 5, beginning at 6 o'clock. A potluck dinner will be held, with each member asked to bring her favorite food. Members are also asked to bring gifts for exchange.

Mrs. Virginia S. Goble, chairman of the program committee, read a letter from Mrs. Lea Lockhart, International Rebekah President, and "Happy Birthday" was sung to Mrs. Mabel Jean LeMaster.

A potluck dinner was enjoyed by Mesdames Teresa Maynard, Lorena Wallen, Beverly Hackworth, Maman Leslie, Nancy Duff, Sue Moore, Venelia Rinehart, Mabel Jean LeMaster, Sue Wells, Paulena Owens, Virginia S. Goble, Helen Omerod, Margaret Baldrige, Mollie Hyden, Dottie Lafferty, Jewell Bayes, Loretta Akers, Norma S. Stepp, Dorothy Osborne, Hope Whitten, Mary Ann Prater, and Darlene Belcher. The next regular meeting will be held December 1 at 7 p.m. at the I.O.O.F. Building.

TEACHERS GROUP TO MEET

Mrs. Norma S. Stepp, president of the Big Sandy Retired Teachers, announces that the next regular luncheon meeting will be Wednesday, December 2, at 10:30 a.m. at May Lodge. Mrs. Stepp urges retired teachers of this organization, which is comprised of Floyd, Pike, Johnson, Martin, Magoffin, and Lawrence counties, to attend.

Mrs. Danese Amburgey, president of the Floyd County Retired Teachers, reminds members of the regular luncheon meeting to be held at May Lodge, Thursday, December 10, at 10 a.m. The speaker will be Frank Hatfield, executive director of K.R.T.A. Mrs. Amburgey urges all members to be present.

PRESTONSBURG WOMAN'S CLUB SLATES CHRISTMAS PARTY

The Prestonsburg Woman's Club will have its annual Christmas party, Thursday evening, December 5, at 7:30 at the Floyd County Library. Hostesses will be members of the club's executive board, Mesdames Boots Adams, Carolyn Traum, Eileen Burchett, Dorothy Stover, Joyce Allen, Maxine Bierman, Elizabeth Ramey, Nancy Martin, and Doccia Woods. The devotions will be brought by Mrs. Orella McGuire, and program leader will be Mrs. Barbara Dawson. Mrs. Adams urges all club members to attend.

Nat'l Adoption Week, Nov. 22-28

McClellan, one of more than 200 Kentucky youngsters awaiting adoption under the state's Special Needs Adoption Program (SNAP), signs a scroll bearing the names of all the children in the program. Looking on are, left to right, Latrece and Delaney, whose names also are on the list; Cabinet for Human Resources Secretary Al Austin; Department for Social Services Commissioner Anna Grace Day; and Chrystal and William, also on the list. Children in SNAP are those who are harder to place. They include three or more children from the same family, youngsters with emotional, mental or physical handicaps, black children of any age and other children over the age of 10. A special effort is being made to find homes for these children as Kentucky observes National Adoption Week, Nov. 22-28.

Pat Collins, Larry Johnson, Pat Turner, Bertie Kaye Salyer, and Jim Guthery are the Family Services Workers in the Big Sandy Area who recruit people to adopt the hard to adopt.

Sunday, November 22, there will be a balloon launch held at the Municipal Parking Lot at 2:30 to mark the beginning of National Adoption Week, November 22-28. The public is invited to attend.

Constitution Expert Guest On KET, Nov. 30

Forrest McDonald, the 1987 Thomas Jefferson lecturer for the National Endowment for the Humanities, is the featured guest on this month's edition of "University Journal." This half-hour public affairs series focuses on events and issues of higher education and airs Monday, November 30 at 9:30/8:30 p.m. CT on KET.

Join host Dr. David Lee, history professor at Western Kentucky University, as he talks with McDonald, professor of history at the University of Alabama. McDonald has written 15 books and more than 30 articles, and was a finalist for the 1986 Pulitzer Prize in history.

McDonald's areas of expertise and the subjects he discusses are the U.S. Constitution and the early history of the American Republic.

"University Journal" is directed by Michael Lasater and is a production of Western Kentucky University.

★ Cancer Hopeline

QUESTION: My cat recently died of leukemia. I've heard that feline leukemia is a virus and is contagious. My two preschool children played with the cat all the time before we knew she was sick. Could my children be at risk developing leukemia from being exposed to our cat?

ANSWER: No. You don't have to worry about your children getting leukemia from being exposed to your cat.

Some household cats carry a virus called the feline leukemia virus (FeLV) which can cause cancers, such as leukemias and sarcomas in other cats. National Cancer Institute scientists have done large scale testing to look for antibodies to the virus or other signs of infection in persons who might have been exposed to the virus. This includes pet owners, veterinarians, research workers who handle the virus, cancer patients with or without pet cats and persons from the general public. Other species of animals have also been tested for the virus.

Despite attempts to detect antibodies against the virus or other signs of infection, none of the groups tested showed any evidence of infection with the virus. Thus, while the feline leukemia virus is highly contagious among cats, it has not been shown to have any effect on dogs, mice, any other animals, or on humans.

For more information about Feline Leukemia, call the Cancer Information Service at 1-800-4-CANCER or write McDowell Cancer Network, 800 Rose Street, Lexington, Ky. 40536. The Cancer Information Service is a program of the Kentucky Cancer Information Service.

Since 1979 nearly 800 "unadoptable" children have found loving, permanent families as part of Kentucky's Special Needs Adoption Program (SNAP). Another 200 Snap children are still waiting this national adoption week (Nov. 22-28).

News that can save you money and enhance the quality of your life

Grayhawk Trace Townhomes are priced at $10,000 below their VA/FHA appraised value. This makes them the best real estate value in Lexington, says Tom Lambuth, president of The Lambuth Group, Realtors.

Located in the prestigious Lansdowne/Shadeland East area, Grayhawk Trace Townhomes offer 1,360 s.f. of beautifully-designed living space with 2 or 3 bedrooms, walk-in closets, 2 1/2 or 3 baths, fireplaces, garden patios, kitchens filled with G.E. appliances, optional garages or basements, and exteriors that are virtually maintenance free.

"But the best news," says Lambuth, "is that these townhomes, which are located in a stable neighborhood where homes are considered to be a good investment, are priced from only $79,500." See for yourself why Grayhawk Trace Townhomes are called the "best value in Lexington." Visit furnished models, open daily from 1 to 6 p.m., at the corner of Turkeyfoot Road and Grayhawk.

7% adjustable rate mortgages available.

Holiday Stress Can Be Avoided

Traditional holiday celebrations such as Thanksgiving and Christmas can be a source of stress for non-traditional families—single-parent households and stepfamilies.

"Families experience stress whenever they undergo change," said Gary Hansen, a sociologist with the UK Cooperative Extension Service. "One growing type of change is the increasing number of non-traditional families being created through divorce and remarriage. Holidays can be especially difficult for some of these families."

Idealized images of traditional families with mom roasting the turkey, dad preparing a cozy fire on the hearth and the whole family gathered around the Christmas tree singing carols are abundant on the television specials and series we watch. Members of non-traditional families may see this as a sharp contrast to their own situation and may in some way feel badly about being different.

"Such feelings are unfounded," said Hansen. "A family is a family regardless of its physical structure."

Children in non-traditional families should not feel like they are alone or the only person experiencing this stress. Thirteen percent of all children under 18 now live in a stepfamily; 17 percent live in single-parent families.

To avoid conflict and stress within non-traditional families this holiday season, Hansen recommends a parent keep the following in mind:

Decide where and how the children and stepchildren will spend their time without placing them in the middle of disagreements among ex-spouses, parents and stepparents.

Remind relatives that children and stepchildren should be treated equally with respect to gifts, family celebrations and ceremonies, pictures and other activities.

Plan entertainment that can involve all members of the family rather than just a certain group of children or adults.

Have realistic expectations about what the holidays will be like. Don't get caught up in the hype, Hansen cautioned.

"Just because your family's holidays are not perfect like those portrayed in the media doesn't mean there's anything wrong with your family," he said. "Relax and enjoy the fellowship you have."

Art Linkletter To Speak In Lexington

Television and radio star Art Linkletter will be the keynote speaker Thursday, December 3, at 7 p.m., at the Marriott Griffin Gate Resort, as Charter Ridge Hospital presents a banquet, "Our Children—America's Future."

Mr. Linkletter will be awarding $100 scholarship prizes to the Charter Ridge Hospital's Poster/Essay contest winners. Hundreds of children and teens from all parts of Kentucky have entered the contest themed "Kids and Teens are Great Today..." The winners will be present along with their parents and school teacher, to receive their awards.

Tickets can be purchased at Charter Ridge Hospital between the hours of 9 a.m.-5 p.m. No tickets will be sold on the evening of the banquet.

Mr. Linkletter has been involved for over 20 years in the fight against drug abuse, and has served on the President's National Advisory Council on Drug Abuse Prevention, the National Coordinating Council on Drug Abuse Information and Education, the McDonald Center for Alcoholism and Drug Addiction, Scripps Institute, the Board of Directors of TARGET (Helping students cope with Alcohol/Drugs), and the National Advisory Council of the American Family Society.

This banquet is the closing of a two day "Children in Crisis" conference sponsored by Charter Ridge Hospital, and the dedication of Charter Ridge Hospital's new Adolescent Chemical Dependency Unit.

CURABLE CANCER

Colorectal cancer will be second only to lung cancer in deaths among cancer patients this year. But when detected early, the 5-year survival rate is 90% for colon cancer and 80% for rectal cancer. The American Cancer Society urges you to see your physician regularly for cancer checkups.

HOW DO YOU EXPECT YOUR KID TO KEEP HIS NOSE CLEAN IF YOU DON'T?

They're the worst kind of hypocrite. Parents who warn their children about using drugs while they themselves are abusing drugs. What parents don't seem to realize is that it takes more than a good sermon to keep kids on the straight and narrow. It takes a good example. Without it, kids are likely to wind up abusing drugs just like Mom and Dad.

If you want your son to be strong. If you want your daughter to have the willpower to walk the other way, practice what you preach.

Because you can't control your children if you can't control yourself.

IF PARENTS STOP, KIDS WON'T START.

Iowa Editor To Speak At Marshall U. Forum

The editor of the Des Moines Register, James P. Gannon, will be the luncheon speaker at a public forum on "Politics and the Press" Saturday, Dec. 12, in Huntington.

Gannon's appearance is part of a day-long series of discussions on the role of the press in news coverage of governmental affairs. The forum is being sponsored by the Marshall University School of Journalism and The Herald-Dispatch of Huntington.

A native of Minneapolis and a graduate of the Marquette University College of Journalism, Gannon has been with the Iowa newspaper since 1978. Before that, he covered a wide variety of assignments, including Congress and national politics, for the Wall Street Journal.

The forum will be held at the Holiday Inn-University Area. It is open to the public for a registration fee which includes a continental breakfast, the luncheon and a cocktail reception after the forum.

Four members of the West Virginia Legislature will discuss press coverage of state government with four state journalists in a morning panel.

The legislative leaders will be House Speaker Robert (Chuck) Chambers; Senate Majority Leader John (Si) Boettner; House Finance Chairman George Farley and Senate Minority Leader C.N. (Bud) Harman.

Other speakers include: State Supreme Court Justice Richard Neely, who will discuss the economic politics of the media.

In North Atlantic Exercise

Navy Seaman Recruit William L. Jarrell, son of Curtis L. and Beatrice M. Jarrell, of Prestonsburg, recently participated in exercise Ocean Safari 87 aboard the ammunition ship USS Suribachi, homeported in Earle, N.J.

The exercise conducted primarily in the North Atlantic Ocean is designed to improve and demonstrate the readiness and effectiveness of all participating national and NATO Headquarters and forces to conduct maritime operations related to contingency and general defense plans.

A 1983 graduate of the David School, he joined the Navy in April 1987. His wife, Robin, is the daughter of Phyllis F. Crider, also of Prestonsburg.

Don Marsh, editor of the Charleston Gazette, who will discuss the topic of privacy for public officials.

A. Michael Perry, president of Key Centurion Bancshares, and Tom Vogel, president of the West Virginia Education Association, will offer their views on the critical issues that face the 1988 legislative session.

Columnist Dave Peyton of The Herald-Dispatch will provide a satirist's look at the press and the politicians.

Secretary of State Ken Hechler will moderate an afternoon panel on political fund-raising and image-making in the Mountain State. Panelists will include James Haught of the Charleston Gazette; James E. Casto of The Herald-Dispatch; Mike Willard of the Charleston political public relations firm Willard and Arnold, and Wylie Stowers, a former county political party chairman in Lincoln County.

Reservations can be made by sending a registration fee to Politics & the Press, School of Journalism, Marshall University, Huntington, W. Va. 25701.

SPEAKING OUT

Terrence Scanlon
Chairman
U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission
Washington, D.C. 20207

"If only someone would put together a list of appropriate toys, games and gifts for Christmas shopping for children!"

Comments like this have echoed among parents and grandparents every holiday season, but fewer consumers will be complaining about the lack of a shopping list this Christmas. The reason: two comprehensive shopping lists compiled by toy safety experts at the Consumer Product Safety Commission to make it easier for you to choose the right gift for a young child, be it for Christmas, birthdays or any occasion.

The booklets in question are "Which Toy for Which Child: Birth Through Five," and "Which Toy for Which Child: Ages Six Through Twelve." With these booklets in hand, Christmas shopping should be easier for you this year.

When you shopped for children before, how did you decide what to buy? Did you choose on the basis of price or was your final decision based on the skills and interests of the child receiving the gift?

Reflecting parental concern for the safety and welfare of young children, these booklets take into account the physical, mental and social abilities, and interests that are particularly relevant to selecting appropriate toys and playthings.

For example, year-old toddlers prefer "action toys" that move or make sounds, toys requiring some action by the toddler, also toys that can be assembled and easily taken apart. Year-old children are best entertained by puppets operated by an adult, but 18-month-old toddlers will benefit from small hand puppets sized to fit their tiny hand. Games and toys that develop motor skills aren't suited to this age group.

Two-year olds prefer social and cooperative play with toys that are more true-to-life and generally of better quality.

Preschool youngsters age three to five exhibit good physical coordination, therefore gym equipment, large balls, kites, double-bladed ice skates, and snow sleds match their abilities and interests. It's in this timeframe that musical instruments first have appeal, crayons and craft materials allow them to exercise their creativity on easels and the like.

The booklets offer specific product suggestions in each age category for active play (push/pull toys, ride-on toys, etc.), manipulative play (construction toys, puzzles and pattern-making toys, etc.), make-believe play (dolls, stuffed toys, puppets, etc.), creative play (musical instruments, etc.), and learning play (books, games).

Parents should consider the following safety practices:

- Look for and read age and safety labels on toys;
- Explain and show the child how to use toys safely;
- Check toys periodically for breakage and hazards, removing damaged toys from children;
- Store toys safely and teach children to put toys away;
- Older children should be instructed to keep their toys out of reach of younger children since these toys may have small parts which could be a choking hazard to them.

Don't delay getting your personal copies of the CPSC booklets: "Which Toy for Which Child: Ages Birth Through Five," and "Which Toy for Which Child: Ages Six Through Twelve."

Single copies are available free to consumers by calling the Commission's toll-free hotline at 1-800-638-2772, or by writing Toy Safety Booklets, Washington, D.C. 20207.

Wins Military Honors

Sp. 4 Michael Shayne Mullins received military honors in October when he was awarded with two Army achievement medals. The first, he received for upgrading the security and standards of his units' arms room, where he is Unit Expert Armorer. The second medal he received was for highly motivated and outgoing duty on a field exercise. He also had the honor of being named Soldier of the Month.

Sp. 4 Mullins is presently stationed with the first and 84th field artillery at Fort Lewis Army Base in Tacoma, Washington. He is the grandson of Virgie and Sherman Puckett, of Melvin, and married to Ramona Kaye, daughter of Darwin and Gwendolyn Woods, of Halo.

Ashland Oil Program Puts Kids On Campus

A Day On Campus, part of the Ashland oil, Inc. educational campaign designed to prevent school dropouts, officially began November 20, according to Dan Lacy, Ashland Oil, Inc. vice president.

The program puts students in grades four through nine on a college or university campus for a day. Schools also are required to arrange local business support to qualify for matching grants from Ashland Oil, which has made $30,000 available for the program.

The program is being coordinated through the Council On Higher Education and the Council of Independent Kentucky Colleges and Universities.

Support for the program has been given by every college and university in Kentucky, and the program has been endorsed by the Kentucky Department of Education and the Kentucky Education Association.

Informational brochures can be obtained by writing "A Day On Campus," c/o Ashland Oil, Inc., P.O. Box 391, Ashland, Ky. 41114.

AAA Opposes Gas Tax Hike

The tumult on Wall Street, fueled by fears of an unmanageable federal deficit, has led Congress and the White House to look again at trying to balance the budget at the gas pumps. It's a bad idea and the public opposes it.

Seventy-three percent of respondents to Washington Post-ABC News poll oppose an increase in gas taxes to balance the budget.

A recent study commissioned by AAA shows a gas tax increase of 10 cents a gallon would reduce Gross National Product, the benchmark of American productivity, nearly $10 billion the first year alone. It would put 80,000 people out of work the first year and 180,000 out of work by 1990. Automobile and housing construction would drop.

A 30-cents-per-gallon gas tax increase, as proposed by some in Congress, would put 520,000 people out of work by 1990, decrease income tax revenues almost $2.7 billion annually, and increase inflation nearly 1 percent.

The poor would be hardest hit by such a tax, because they drive older, less fuel-efficient vehicles.

The tax also would exacerbate regional inequities. Why should residents of Wyoming pay more than twice as much as residents of Washington, D.C. to cut the federal deficit solely because they must drive longer distances?

Taxing gasoline for deficit reduction would seriously erode the American public's support for the successful pay-as-you-go federal/state highway program. How can states justify needed increases in their transportation-related taxes if the federal government usurps this taxing mechanism?

And what would a new gas tax do for the deficit reduction? A sales tax on motor fuel would cut the budget deficit by only 26 cents for every dollar of tax revenue. An oil import fee would do even worse, reducing the deficit 9 cents on the dollar.

Clearly, an additional gas tax should not be considered for reasons of equity and economic impact.

HARD TO SWALLOW

If you find swallowing difficult or if you experience frequent indigestion, don't just explain it away as "something I ate." See your physician, suggests the American Cancer Society.

DeRossett and Staff Attend L'ville Meet

Floyd Circuit Clerk Frank DeRossett and Deputy Clerks Sandra Johnson and Elizabeth Fugate attended the 1987 Circuit Clerks' Fall Conference at Louisville's Holiday Inn-Fern Valley, November 11-13.

The conference, designed to provide continuing professional education and technical training, included a presentation by Doug Jones, a consultant for Employee Assistance Program, on changing personal attitudes and habits to help alleviate on-the-job stress.

The Honorable J. William Howerton, chief judge of the Kentucky Court of Appeals, and John Scott, state appellate court clerk, participated in a panel presentation concerning filing appeals. In addition, sessions concerning court-related legislative issues likely to be dealt with by the 1988 General Assembly and the open records law vs. an individual's right to privacy were also provided by A.O.C. staff.

To Wed December 26

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stewart, of Leburn, announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Sherry Lynn Stewart, to James Orbin Childers, also of Leburn.

A graduate of Morehead State University, she is employed by the Knott County Board of Education.

Mr. Childers, a graduate of Pikeville College, is employed by Consolidation Coal Company.

The open church ceremony will be solemnized at 2 p.m., December 26, at the Wayland United Methodist Church, at Wayland.

Australian Novel Returns To KET

The Australian award-winning novel "1915" returns to KET in a seven-part television adaptation beginning Thursday, December 3 at 9 p.m.

"1915" was the centerpiece for the Australian Broadcasting Corporation's 50th anniversary celebration. "1915" is part of Australia's story; a story of adventure and romance, the "coming of age" of a young nation, and the bitter impact of World War I.

The mini-series tells the story of Walter Gilchrist (Scott McGregor) and Billy Mackenzie (Scott Burgess), two Australian lads longing for adventure. The onset of World War I brings that chance and the two become caught in the rush of patriotic euphoria. The drama recounts the tragic battle of Gallipoli in Turkey.

Billy falls in love for the first time with Diana Benedetto (Jackie Woodburne). Walter falls in love with Diana's best friend, Frances Reilly (Sigrid Thornton). Dreams of glory quickly fade into the harsh realities of war for Billy and Walter. Diana and Frances face no less of a tragedy on the home front.

The actors in "1915" are all popular with Australian audiences. However, Thornton will be recognized by American viewers for her starring roles in two popular Australian productions of "The Man From Snowy River" and "All the Rivers Run."

"1915" is presented to American audiences by Lionheart Television.

Seminar Is Planned By PCC In Pikeville Monday and Tuesday

A seminar on creating an effective business image is planned for Monday and Tuesday evenings, Nov. 30 and Dec. 1, at Prestonsburg Community College's Continuing Education Offices in Pikeville.

The seminar is aimed at owners and would-be owners of small businesses in the area. It will focus on the factors that shape the public's perception of a business and how to project a desired image.

Each session will run from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. at 408 Main St. in Pikeville.

For information on registration, call PCC's Pikeville Offices at 432-4800 or the PCC campus at 886-3863, ext. 215.

Attend National Convention

Agriculture teacher, Ron Hampton, left above, accompanied by three of his students, Cris Henson, Brian Prater and James Johnson, recently attended the National Future Farmers of America Convention in Kansas City, Missouri. Approximately 27,000 students and their advisors attended.

Students received leadership training and were entertained by speakers such as George Bush; Robert Dale; Lee Iacocca; William Bennett, U.S. Secretary of Education; John Black, former U.S. Secretary of Agriculture; Roger Stanbach, former Dallas quarterback; Kaye Lani Rae Rapko, Miss America, and Charley Pride.

Students also attended a World Class rodeo in Kansas City's Kempler Arena, site of the 1988 N.C.A.A. basketball championship series.

Nursing Conference Set At Paintsville

The Blanche W. Hall Women's Pavilion of Paul B. Hall Regional Medical Center, Paintsville, will host a conference of the East Kentucky Nurses Association Wednesday, December 2, on the topic Surgery In The Neonatal Period.

The Conference will feature Dr. Joel Secrest, a representative of the University of Kentucky Medical Center's Neonatal Nurses Staff, and Dr. Kamaljeet Vidwan, Vice Chief of Staff at Paul B. Hall, who maintains a private practice in Paintsville.

A social hour for nursing personnel will be held at 7 p.m. on December 1 at the Carriage House Motor Hotel. Registration for the conference will begin the following morning at 8:30 with the conference scheduled to begin at 9 a.m.

All area nurses are urged to attend.

Dodson Branch Road To Get State Funds

The state will provide funds for the county to reconstruct 1,584 feet of County Road 5058, Dodson Branch Road in Floyd county, Gov. Martha Layne Collins has announced.

"Proper maintenance is the most effective way to inhibit deterioration of Kentucky's rural roads," said Collins.

According to state Transportation Secretary C. Leslie Dawson, the project is estimated to cost $80,000 and is being financed with Rural Secondary funds. Dawson noted that the county will be responsible for all phases of the work.

Kentucky Afield... "Talking Turkey" At Thanksgiving

The Thanksgiving holidays bring many things to mind—too much food, family gatherings, small game hunting and sharing stories about the deer season. And, at some time or the other, almost everybody talks about turkeys.

The wild turkey, the symbol of Thanksgiving since our country was first settled, still stands as a reminder of the good things in life. Today, through an ongoing program, this proud and prized species is once again populating many areas of Kentucky where for many years it had practically vanished.

The Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources' effort to restore the wild turkey is progressing steadily in the forests of the commonwealth. Started in 1978, the restoration program to repopulate the state with wild turkeys has provided a hunting opportunity that had been nonexistent for many years. More counties are opened each year to turkey hunting as stocking continues and natural reproduction occurs.

Approximately 35 counties or portions of counties will be open for turkey hunting during the 1988 spring season. Newly stocked counties usually remain closed for five years to allow the birds to reproduce and provide a huntable population.

According to Turkey Program Coordinator George Wright, a total of 1,570 birds have been released at 89 sites since the restoration began. The result so far has been an increase in population from 2,000 birds in 1978 to 15,000 turkeys in 1987. Harvest figures show an increase from 24 birds taken in 1976 to 683 birds taken in 1987.

"It's a slow process, but the program is progressing well both in terms of turkey population and hunter success ratios," said Wright. "Hunter success has increased from 2.6 percent to 15.2 percent over the last 11 years."

"I think it's entirely possible that we could have 100,000 turkeys in the state in 25 years and that turkey hunting will be available in practically every county in Kentucky," Wright added. The most important factor to a successful turkey restoration program is cooperation from sportsmen.

"Illegally taking turkeys out of season or in closed counties, is the quickest way to stifle the program's effectiveness. If the turkeys are protected and left alone after stocking, hunting opportunities will be available sooner. It defeats our purpose to have birds poached that are stocked to populate an area," said Wright.

The Kentucky Chapter of the Wild Turkey Federation has a standing offer of $500 for information leading to the conviction of anyone who illegally takes a wild turkey. Poaching caused the closure of Crittenden County during the 1987 spring season.

The amount of time it takes until the restoration goal is reached depends on sportsmen's attitudes and the availability of turkeys for stocking. Wright is expecting a good stocking year in 1988 as well as another good turkey season in April.

With sportsmen's cooperation and careful management, turkey hunting may again reach the level our forefathers enjoyed. Bringing home "Old Tom" from the woods instead of the grocery may once again be a tradition and another item for which we can give thanks.

Outstanding Young Men List Hackworth for '87

Benjamin Patrick Hackworth, son of Floyd county native Robie Benjamin Patrick Hackworth, whose father, Robie Hackworth, is a native of Floyd county, has been named one of the Outstanding Young Men of America for 1987 for excellence in civic and professional endeavors.

A graduate of the University of Alabama in 1984, Hackworth was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Air Force and is now an instructor pilot and academic instructor at Vance AFB in Enid, Oklahoma.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robie Hackworth live in Madison, Alabama. His grandmother is Mrs. Alice Hackworth, of the Middle Creek Road.

At one time almost anything written, even a list, was called a book.

THE PERFECT GIFT

What do you get that busy special friend who has everything except time to relax? A gift certificate for a massage, suggests Good Housekeeping in its December issue. It's available at health clubs, spas, hotels, and many Y's. A massage feels great, can limber muscles and ease tension in specific areas of the body. A good masseuse can pinpoint areas that need particular attention—a big help for exercisers or someone about to start a regular exercise program.

ARIES (March 21-April 20) Week of Nov. 29-Dec. 5, 1987

The week opens with a special emphasis on your personal efforts and income potential. Stay close to the late-breaking developments.

TAURUS (April 21-May 20)

After additional review and research on your part, you're able to launch a new close-to-the-heart endeavor.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

A certain degree of concentration must be backed with imagination and style. This will certainly strengthen your position later this week.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

Realize that others may now want what you have. Therefore, take nothing for granted as you consider untried or uncertain methods.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

Nearly everything that you do this week has an effect on your immediate future. Sidestep the inclination to be inflexible.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

Seize the moment and devise the plan. Money is involved as you encounter an opportunity that will affect the work scene.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

Confidence now permeates the week, as you deal with one partnership matter after the other.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22)

Expect to emerge victorious from what could be an enormous struggle. Even your financial affairs must be considered at this time.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)

Love fills the week in a way that is extremely dramatic. And you must guard against scattering your energies now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

See through to the bottom of current conditions and know that present trends are simply passing ones. Work is involved.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

Take the time needed to put together a new financial plan. Then express it to those who matter most to you.

Check Electric Heat Tapes Protecting Exposed Pipes

Mobile home residents and homeowners using electric heat tapes to protect exposed water and drain pipes from freezing over the winter are being cautioned by government safety experts to check tapes for fire hazards.

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission estimates that 3,500 home fires involving heat tapes occurred in 1985. These fires resulted in an estimated 30 deaths, 150 injuries, and $27.4 million in property losses.

Heat tapes are commonly used in crawl spaces and in the substructure of mobile homes, beach houses, mountain cabins and other dwellings where exposed water and drain pipes freeze during the winter. Some heat tapes are plugged in year-round and are activated by a thermostat when the outdoor temperature approaches freezing.

According to CPSC, tapes should be checked now for bare wires or cracks in the plastic insulation. Defective tapes should be replaced.

Homeowners or licensed electricians should also check to see that tapes have been installed properly. Some fires have been started by tape lapped over itself instead of being spread around the pipe according to manufacturer's directions.

The agency said consumers buying heat tape should use the proper tape for the proper pipe. Know the pipe material (copper, plastic, etc.), pipe diameter and length to be protected when shopping for new or replacement tape. Tapes are labeled for specific pipes, diameter and length. Follow manufacturer's directions carefully for proper installation since they may vary, depending upon the type of tape used.

What to feed a Mitsubishi TV

Hooking a Mitsubishi TV to an ordinary VCR is like filling a high performance sports car's fuel tank with cheap gas. Which is why we recommend the Mitsubishi HS-348UR. It features VHS-HQ, V-SCAN picture enhancement circuitry, A comb filter, Digital auto-tracking, And speed search. Its cable ready with 107 channels, plus five-event/two-week programmability and a full-function wireless remote. So come on in and check out the Mitsubishi HS-348UR VCR. And see what a properly fed Mitsubishi TV can do.

Martha Jo Crisp

Martha Jo Crisp, 62, of Allen, died last Tuesday, November 17, from injuries received in an automobile accident on U.S. 23, near here.

Born March 14, 1925 at Allen, a daughter of the late Frank and Thursa Borders Preston, she was a member of the Christ Methodist Church at Allen for 45 years. She was also a member of the John Graham Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, and had served as librarian for the past three years. Mrs. Crisp was a graduate of Louisa High School and attended Marshall University in Huntington, W. Va. and Morehead University. She also did volunteer work at the Mountain Manor Nursing Home, here.

Survivors include her husband, Ray Crisp; one son, Tim Crisp, of Lexington; three daughters, Thursa Williams, of Costa Mesa, Calif., Margaret Hicks, of Auxier, Nancy Jo Cantrell, of Honolulu, Hawaii; one brother, John David Preston, of Paintsville; three sisters, Ella Faye Moore, of Louisa, Francis Brackett, of Allen, Mikell Ann Burchett, of Virginia Beach, Va., and three grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted Friday at 11 a.m. at the Christ Methodist Church at Allen, with Kenneth Lemaster and Jack Howard officiating. Burial was made in the Borders and Preston cemetery at Ulysses under direction of the Hall Funeral Home.

Obituaries

Alex Mullins

Alex Mullins, 82, of Betsy Layne, formerly of Elkhorn City, died Monday at his home.

He was born August 16, 1905 in Buchanan county and was a son of the late Andrew (Andy) Mullins and Clarissa Stiltner Mullins. A retired miner, he was a member of the U.M.W.A., District 30, and was also a member of the Hylton Free Will Baptist Church.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Norma Thomas Mullins; three sons, Leonard and Goble Mullins, both of Elkhorn City, Edward A. Mullins, of Rockhouse; a stepson, Larry Thomas, of Marion, O.; three daughters, Kathleen Benedett, of Pikeville, Ora Jean Bartley, of Ashcamp, Ethel Fern Carty, of Cleveland, O.; a stepdaughter, Nadine Arsenian, of Milwaukee, Wis.; a brother, Charlie Mullins, of Haysi, Va.; one sister, Vestia Swiney, of Pikeville; 18 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted at 11 a.m. Friday at the Justice Funeral Home chapel with the Rev. Homer Lee Mullins officiating. Burial will be made in the Elkhorn City cemetery.

Special services will be held Thanksgiving night at 7 p.m.

James K. Polk Hill

Well-known Abbott Creek resident, James K. Polk Hill, III, 79, died Monday from injuries sustained when a tree he was cutting behind his home fell on him.

The accident occurred around 1 p.m. when limbs of the tree he had cut became lodged in a nearby standing tree. The cut tree, which had a trunk 12 to 14 inches in diameter, fell, crushing him, as he tried to free it, according to coroner, Roger Nelson.

Hill was found at approximately 1:15 by his wife, Mrs. Exilee Stamper Neeley Hill.

A son of the late James P. Hill, II, and Nancy Jane Music Hill, he was born December 26, 1907 at Bonanza. He was a retired supervisor with the U.S. Department of Labor's On the Job Training Services and was a member of the Bonanza Free Will Baptist Church where he served as a deacon for 24 years. He was also a 47-year member of the East Point Masonic Lodge.

He was twice married; first to Muriel Dills Hill, who died March 17, 1984, and later to Exilee Stamper Neeley Hill.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by a son, John Thomas Hill, of Abbott; three daughters, Helen Neeley and Nancy Howard, both of Abbott, and Jane Slone, of Ashland; a brother, Tom Hill, of Mt. Sterling; 12 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted today (Wednesday) at 2 p.m. at the Bonanza Free Will Baptist Church with the Rev. Brian Stratton and the Rev. Clifford Austin officiating. Burial will be made in the J.P. Hill family cemetery at Abbott Creek under direction of the Carter Funeral Home.

Masonic rites were conducted at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, at the funeral home by the East Point Masonic Lodge.

Visitation may be made after 11 a.m. today at the church.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to the church.

Active pallbearers were David H. Neeley, Phillip D. Neeley, Mark R. Neeley, John T. Hill II, Brent Slone, David M. Slone, John M. Howard, Michale Rozovich.

Honorary pallbearers were deacons of the church.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of Ollie Patton, who died Oct. 19, 1983.

Mom, it's been four years since you have gone. It has been tough, but we must linger on. You were always there when we needed you, and we loved you for that. Even though the sad times you would make everything fine. There was always a smile on your face, and believe me, the word isn't the same without you and that smiling face.

We love you mom.

Sadly missed by your husband,
JOE AND KIDS

Patrick Henry Stricklin

Patrick Henry (Pat) Stricklin, 83, of Little Paint, died Saturday at his home following an extended illness.

He was born July 9, 1904 on Johns Creek and was a son of the late Levi and Susan Spradlin Stricklin. A retired construction worker, he was a member of the First Church of God at Little Paint. His wife, Maggie Hatfield Stricklin, preceded him in death.

Survivors include four sons, Albert Stricklin, of Little Paint, Henry Stricklin, of Auxier, Jerry Stricklin, of Prestonsburg, and Lindsey Stricklin, of Greenville, S.C.; a halfsister, Edna Delong, of Scottsville; 18 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

Delphia Hamilton Hall, 73, of Galveston, died Monday at the Pikeville Methodist Hospital following an extended illness.

She was born December 29, 1913 at Beaver, a daughter of the late Mack and Mahala Newsome Hamilton and was preceded in death by her husband, Green B. Hall, Sr.

She is survived by three sons, Palmer, Edgar and Jerry Dale Hall, all of Galveston; four daughters, Dixie Hall Booth, of Lorain, O., Cora Hall, of Harold, Thelma Bray, of Pikeville, Imogene Hall, of Lebanon, Tenn.; one stepdaughter, Roxie Keathley, of Galveston; one brother, Charley Hamilton, of Escob; one sister, Hattie Mitchell, of Beaver; 14 grandchildren and 16 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted tomorrow (Thursday) at the Samaria Regular Baptist Church at Teaberry, with Regular Baptist ministers officiating. Burial will be made in the Greenbury Hall cemetery at Galveston under the direction of the Hall Funeral Home.

A proud tradition

Our funeral home has been responding to the needs of the community for many years. To continue this proud tradition of helping families in their time of need, we now offer the Sunset Security Plan.

Sunset Security, offered by us as a member of the Kentucky Funeral Directors Burial Association, is a plan that lets you reduce the stress your loved ones will experience at the time of a funeral.

Through Sunset Security, you can pre-arrange a funeral now. The plan offers an inflation-proof feature that lets you save money by freezing the cost of a funeral at today's prices. And it provides special tax-saving advantages.

We'd like to give you a "Personal Record Guide" and tell you about the Sunset Security Plan. Just complete the coupon below and send it to one of the funeral homes listed.

Investor Scams:

Coal, Oil and Gas Resources

By Attorney General David Armstrong
 With the recent upsurge in oil prices and unrest in the middle east, energy investments have become a popular investment item. In Kentucky and other states rich in coal, oil or gas, there is a widespread pattern of illegal investment scams. Should you be contacted by a person representing him/herself as an investment company with a tremendous coal, gas and oil deal for you to invest your money with a quick double or triple turnover, be cautious.
 Before investing money in deals which promise you large profits in short periods of time interview the representative offering the deal. Begin the interview by asking how your name was obtained. Force the representative to be explicit by requesting documentation. Find out the exact name of the company, location, phone number and how long they have been in business. If they are a legitimate company, they should not hesitate furnishing you with the information along with a reference list of financial institutions they have transacted with. When asking the representative for the name of the company drilling the well or the name of oil and gas companies buying the product, never assume these are reputable without researching their background. You also may want to ask for a financial statement of the company. If the company refuses or forgets to provide you with your request, this should raise questions to their legitimacy.
 Once you have thoroughly checked the credentials of the company and representative determine the exact type of investment being offered to you. Is it a general partnership, limited partnership or a fractional undivided working interest? To assure yourself of receiving the proper amount of royalties, request oil purchase division orders or with coal companies request access to all production records. Inquire into the exact amount of money that goes for sales, commissions, administrative and management fees. The amount may be too inflated.
 In determining the safe investment of your money, these tips should provide

Blacks Elected in State Decrease Slightly in '87

Forty-six blacks were elected to public office in Kentucky's general election Tuesday, November 3, bringing the number of black officials in the state to 71, a slight decrease from 76 black elected officials in 1986.
 Jefferson county elected the state's first black Commonwealth Attorney. Ernie Jasmin served as Assistant Commonwealth Attorney for 11 years, until he left the job last year to begin his campaign.
 Incumbent Darryl T. Owens was re-elected to serve another four-year term on the Jefferson County Fiscal Court, the only other county-wide position a black won in the general election.
 Forty-four blacks were elected or re-elected to city council/city commission seats throughout the state in 1987, a decline from 50 in 1986.
 Blacks lost five city commission seats throughout Kentucky, and five blacks did not seek re-election to city council seats in Kentucky.
 Four blacks were elected for the first time. They were: Teresa Crony Banks of Hopkinsville; Romell Johnson, of Middlesboro; Charles Tinsley, of Princeton; and Danny Hudspeth, of Murray.
 Lavenia Watkins, of Hopkinsville, won her first election to the city commission, but she had been appointed to the board to finish the term of Russell Sebree, who left the post last year.
 Nine of the black city commission candidates running for office in 1987 in Kentucky were unopposed. They were: Teresa Crony Banks, Rudolph Pettus, Luvenia Watkins, all of Hopkinsville; Reginald Meeks, of Louisville; Patricia Lander, of Princeton; Norris Beckley, of Shelbyville; Paul Wilson, of Somerset; Walter Bradley, Jr., of Midway; and Everett Durham, of Campbellsburg.
 In the Danville city council race, incumbent William Davis was re-elected. Davis was the top vote-getter in that race, and in Winchester, incumbent Carrie Patton was the top vote-getter in the city council race.
 Princeton now has two blacks on the city council. Incumbent Patricia Lander was re-elected and Charles Tinsley won his bid for election. Hopkinsville will have three blacks serving as council members instead of two.
 In Jefferson county, incumbent aldermen, Paul Bather, Reginald Meeks, Arthur Smith and William Wilson will serve additional two year terms.
 Jefferson District Judge Charles Anderson, the first black to hold the post of Jefferson Circuit Court Judge in 1975, lost in his bid for election to Jefferson Circuit Court to Michael O'Connell by a large margin. Anderson will continue to hold the seat of District Judge through 1989.
 Forty-four black city council/city commission candidates were elected in Kentucky in the general election.

Public Higher Ed Yields State Twice Investment

Advocates for higher education often claim that state tax support of higher education is more of an investment than a cost, because the money comes back to the state many times over. But can this claim be backed up with hard facts? According to a study released recently by the Kentucky Council on Higher Education, the answer is yes.

"The Economic Impact of Public Universities and Colleges in Kentucky: Annual Expenditure Impact" indicates that Kentucky gets back at least $2.40 for each dollar of state tax funding put into higher education. In dollar figures, the Kentucky state government invested $479 million in public higher education in fiscal year 1985/86 (the year studied for this report), which resulted in a short-term expenditure impact of $1.16 billion in Kentucky's economy.

The report also found that direct expenditures of $706 million by the institutions, students and out-of-state visitors resulted in the creation of 61,800 jobs in Kentucky. Of these jobs 22,600 were on the 22 campuses of the public system, and 39,200 were in the private sector.

In 1985/86 Kentucky's public colleges and universities received $987.3 million in revenue from all sources. Of this total 49 percent was from state tax revenues, and 51 percent was from federal, private, and tuition sources.

The economic impact of the public institutions included: $233.8 million from goods and services purchased from Kentucky businesses for that year; $578.8 million from the payroll of the public institutions; and $52.4 million from spending for new capital construction.

In the year studied approximately 429,000 out-of-state visitors to Kentucky's public college and universities spent $12.9 million in Kentucky.

Gary S. Cox, executive director of the council, noted that the conservative report presents only the short-term and direct expenditures that can be attributed to higher education in Kentucky. This report, Cox said, "shows the extent to which public and private funds spent through public higher education stimulate business and employment in our state in the short term."

"Although the short-term impact of $1.16 billion and 61,800 jobs was large," Cox continued, "the greatest value of public higher education to Kentucky lies in its long-term benefits, in human capital, the improvement of physical capital, and the general enhancement of quality of life—all of which provide a framework conducive to economic development." Cox said a second study to verify these long-term benefits will be undertaken as soon as possible.

Copies of this report, prepared by Gary Breegle of the council's staff, and the eight public universities, in consultation with Thalheimer Research Associates of Lexington, can be obtained from the Council on Higher Education, 1050 U.S. 127 South, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

To Wed November 28

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Hall, of Galveston, announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Vanessa Lynn, to Mr. James Randall Hunter, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Norman Hunter, of Betsy Layne.

Miss Hall is a student at Betsy Layne High School where she is a member of the Beta Club and was crowned 1986 Miss Majorette of Kentucky.

Mr. Hunter is a graduate of Betsy Layne High School and is co-owner of G&H Oil and Supply.

The wedding will take place at 2:30 Saturday afternoon, November 28, in the Betsy Layne Church of Christ with the Rev. Don Fraley, Jr., officiating. The custom of open church will be observed.

A reception will be held in the Betsy Layne Grade School cafeteria.

Don't Blame Farmer If Food Costs More

Although food prices at the supermarket continue to climb, U.S. farmers are receiving less of the retail food dollar than ever before.

"The reason retail prices are going up even though the farmer is receiving less is that processors between the farm gate and the grocery store are taking an increasingly larger share of the food dollar," said University of Kentucky Extension agricultural economist Forrest Stegelin.

During the 1960s and 1970s, the farmer's share of the food dollar was steady at about 38 to 40 percent of the store price, but since it has continued to erode until it is now at about 30 percent, Stegelin said.

Stegelin said the farmer's share of the food dollar varies across items, depending on how much processing has been done since the raw materials left the farm.

Declines in the farm value of items does not mean that prices in the grocery store will reflect the devaluation, he said.

"Even though the farm value of grains used in cereals fell 20 percent last year, the price of cereal at the grocery store increased by nearly three percent," he said.

Coaches Disagree On Region's Best Team

Although the two have never talked officially, Mike Castle and Bobby Osborne, two veteran coaches of high school basketball, are far apart on discussions of an important issue concerning 15th region basketball.

Osborne, head basketball coach at Virgie High School, says Johnson Central may be the team most likely to capture the 1988 region crown, but Castle, Central head mentor, won't have any of that opinion.

"I don't know about that," Castle said, not wishing to put undue pressure on his team. "We've got some good kids coming back, but from what I can hear, the team to beat is up in Pike county."

That's where Virgie is located. Way up in Pike county.

"I look for Johnson Central to have a real strong team," Bobby Osborne countered. "They have everybody back from last year's team."

Chalk one up for Osborne's argument. Johnson Central returns all five starters from a squad that finished 11-12 last season, but the Golden Eagles should have been better than their 1986-87 record.

"I think Johnson Central will give us our toughest test," Bill Mike Runyon, Paintsville, and regional winner's coach, said before last season tipped off.

Runyon's expectations never materialized, and what had been rumored as a strong Central team stumbled through the basketball year. But they are back, and all grown up now.

Four seniors return from last year's starting five, giving Castle experience and maturity to work with this season.

Bart Williams, six-foot-three guard, led Johnson Central in scoring and assists with 14 and five respectively. The 150-pound Williams will team in the backcourt with Jimmy Daniels, another sharp-shooter who tossed in 13 a game last year.

Johnson Central plays the three-guard offense much of the time, relying considerably on the talents of Vince Pack, a six-foot-three guard who brings back a six-point per game average from 1986-87.

The Golden Eagles are equipped with perimeter players that should provide strong offensive numbers while opening the inside for Wendell Ratliff and Paul Castle, both senior forwards.

Ratliff, 6'5", 175-lbs., scored 12 points and hauled down eight rebounds per contest. His eight boards led Johnson Central. Castle, 6'3", 185-pounds, added five points and five rebounds a year ago.

Talent is obviously in the Johnson Central corner for the 15th region fight, but talent doesn't always add up to winning.

"You have to have eight or nine players who can play," Castle said. "You can't win with just five players to put out there."

"Plus you have to get a little bit of luck," Castle continued. "Anybody you talk to that has won a regional tournament will tell you that it takes a lot of good play and a lot of luck."

How about depth, Coach Osborne.

"We've got two of the best guards in the region," Bobby Osborne said. "I've got about four kids that can play the position. Really we've got depth at every position which should help a lot. We've got eight or nine kids that will play."

Virgie, like Johnson Central, returns talent and experience from last year's team, but the Eagles may have the single common denominator that divides them from the remainder of the region-size.

"We'll have some size. We'll have kids that can shoot the ball, and we should be a good defensive ball club," Osborne related. "I think defense is the key to the thing, which it always is."

Virgie has two players who stand 6'4" and both saw considerable action on a team that finished 22-6 last season.

Roy Honaker could be the only center in the 15th region capable of dominating a basketball game. With an eight-point per game and 11-rebound showing, he occasionally displayed that ability last season.

Ray Hall, 6'4", 175 pounds, scored nine points and claimed nine boards a game last year, and complements Honaker's bruising style with quickness inside.

Then there is Osborne's guards.

A pair of all-district performers return to give the Eagles a powerful one-two backcourt punch that may be the best in the region, if not all of eastern Kentucky.

The newly adopted three-point line was made for some players, but Freddie Bowling and Darcy Adkins were made for the three-point line, born to shoot beyond 19 feet, nine inches.

Bowling averaged 16 points and Adkins tossed in an additional 15 to aid Virgie's efforts. Both Osborne and his opponents think the best is yet to come.

"Freddie Bowling is a middle to major college prospect," Bill Mike Runyon said of the six-foot-one guard. Both Bowling and Adkins are juniors.

"This is possibly the best team I've ever had," Osborne, who is a true optimist, stated. "They have a chance of being that good, and that is saying a lot."

Especially when you consider that Bobby Osborne and Virgie once dominated the 15th region.

Before Paintsville claimed the title last season, Osborne's Eagles had been the only team to claim three consecutive regional titles.

This year Osborne isn't talking as strongly as he did last year, and Mike Castle knows one reason why. "Maybe he wants to wait and let his players do the talking on the court."

Bill Mike Runyon doesn't make any ifs, ands, or buts about it. About the best team in the region, that is.

"Without a doubt I think, and in this order, that the top teams are Johnson Central, Virgie, and Sheldon Clark," Runyon said.

But the region may be one of balance and equal opportunity.

"I think it will be," Runyon said, mentioning the season's expected equality. "You've got anywhere from one to seven teams that could win it all, but I think the team that learns to play defense, learns how to stop the three-point shot will have a better chance come tournament time."

Paintsville, three-time defending champions, are expected to be in the top group despite losing four starters.

The Tigers had Mr. Basketball John Pelphrey leave for the University of Kentucky; starting forward Joey Couch to UK football; Jarred Gray, a starter at the other forward, signed a baseball deal with Western, and guard Mike Minix is playing baseball at Vanderbilt.

This leaves one starter, but believe it or not, he may be the best of the bunch.

"I think Keith is the best player in the state," Runyon said of his 6'2" guard. "I've had a lot of good basketball players here, and as far as doing all the things it takes to be a complete player, Keith may be the best ever, and I do say may

New Prestonsburg Coach Promises Exciting Team

Gordon Parido isn't projecting a great number of wins. He is one of the first to admit that his team isn't exactly loaded with talent. But one thing the new Prestonsburg Blackcat coach is promising is an exciting team.

Nearly paralyzed by graduation, the Blackcats return only two players with much varsity action, and both of those are only juniors this season.

Prestonsburg lost all four of their inside players, their two starting guards at the beginning of the season, and their head coach.

David Martin led Prestonsburg in just about every offensive category possible last season, but he has since gone on to Alice Lloyd College.

The Blackcats also lost their point guard, Brent Music, and their best outside shooter in Brian Wallace. Prestonsburg doesn't return a senior who has experience, and no one that stands over 6'1".

But one thing the Blackcats have is speed. Lots of it, and new coach Gordon Parido plans to utilize that speed to its fullest.

"It's tough to replace a kid like David Martin. He and Brent Music and Brian Wallace, they were the key to last year's team," Parido said. "The experience is the hardest thing to replace, but it's a long season and I think by February we could be a strong team."

But what about the speed, Coach? "It's going to be exciting. We've got eight or nine kids that will play so we'll push it up and down the court and play a lot of pressure-type defenses. I think we'll be an exciting team to watch."

"We're moving the ball real well up and down the court. We've been running a lot in practice, and I think we'll continue that kind of play."

Parido is in his first year at Prestonsburg, coming from Mullins to replace Jeff Riley who left Blackcat Country for Morehead State University this past summer.

With the coaching change also comes the change in style. Last season and the one before that, Blackcat fans were shown the slow paced, work it down inside style that Jeff Riley not only coached but also played.

Parido is quite the opposite. A fan of the up-tempo, the former University of Kentucky graduate assistant plans on running at Prestonsburg, and apparently he has the team that can do it.

"Our quickness might be our biggest asset but I would put depth right up there with it," Parido said. "We've got nine kids that can play, or that I feel comfortable with. We can put five players on the court that are as quick or maybe quicker than anyone in the area."

So maybe quickness and depth won't be absent from the 1987-88 attack, but experience will.

The Blackcats return two players, Thomas Nairn and Todd Justice, who saw considerable varsity action last year.

Nairn, a 5'11" junior, started most of last year's games, especially late when Brian Wallace re-injured his ankle.

Nairn averaged just over five points per game while lighting an emotional fire under his Prestonsburg teammates.

"Thomas is the catalyst for this team," Parido said. "He is doing a good job running the offense. He's got a good nose for the ball. He's always around the ball, and he gives us some shooting range from the point."

Nairn played in every Blackcat game last season except one.

Todd Justice, another junior, saw varsity action last season. Late in the 1986-87 year Justice broke into the starting lineup and enjoyed key double figure scoring performances.

The six-foot-one forward, according to Parido, will be counted on to fill many roles for the Blackcats this season.

Prestonsburg has only one senior who is expected to be relied on to make an immediate impact.

Freddie McCoy is another newcomer Prestonsburg fans are taking a close look at. Like the coach, McCoy made a switch from Mullins to Prestonsburg. Parido has mentioned long-term plans for the Blackcat program, but McCoy will take effect this season.

The six-foot guard averaged 20 points a game for Mullins last year, and he could prove to be the offensive threat outside that Prestonsburg definitely needs.

"He's doing a good job right now," Parido said. "He's basically a shooter, and he should score a lot for us."

McCoy hit 53 percent of his field goal attempts last year.

Inside, the Blackcats are inexperienced and young. Tim Trusty, a junior, spent most of last season playing on the junior varsity level but may be ready to take over underneath.

"Tim is doing an excellent job in practice," Parido boasted. "He's a good jumper, quick inside, and quick off his feet."

Trusty, at 6'1", may get help from Scott Hall, a 6'4" performer who sat last season out but has returned for the 1987-88 campaign.

Parido says Hall is a strong offensive player who needs additional work on his defensive skills. "He's a good offensive player, but he needs a lot of work on his defense, and that comes from not playing last year."

Danny Hamilton and Trusty produced a successful combination during the football season, and the two may be reunited between the free throw stripes in basketball.

Hamilton, a strong inside player, is described as being probably the best Blackcat passer inside and having soft hands for catching other people's passes.

David Layne, John Wright, and Chris Slone, all juniors, are also players Parido mentioned as possibly providing additional team needs.

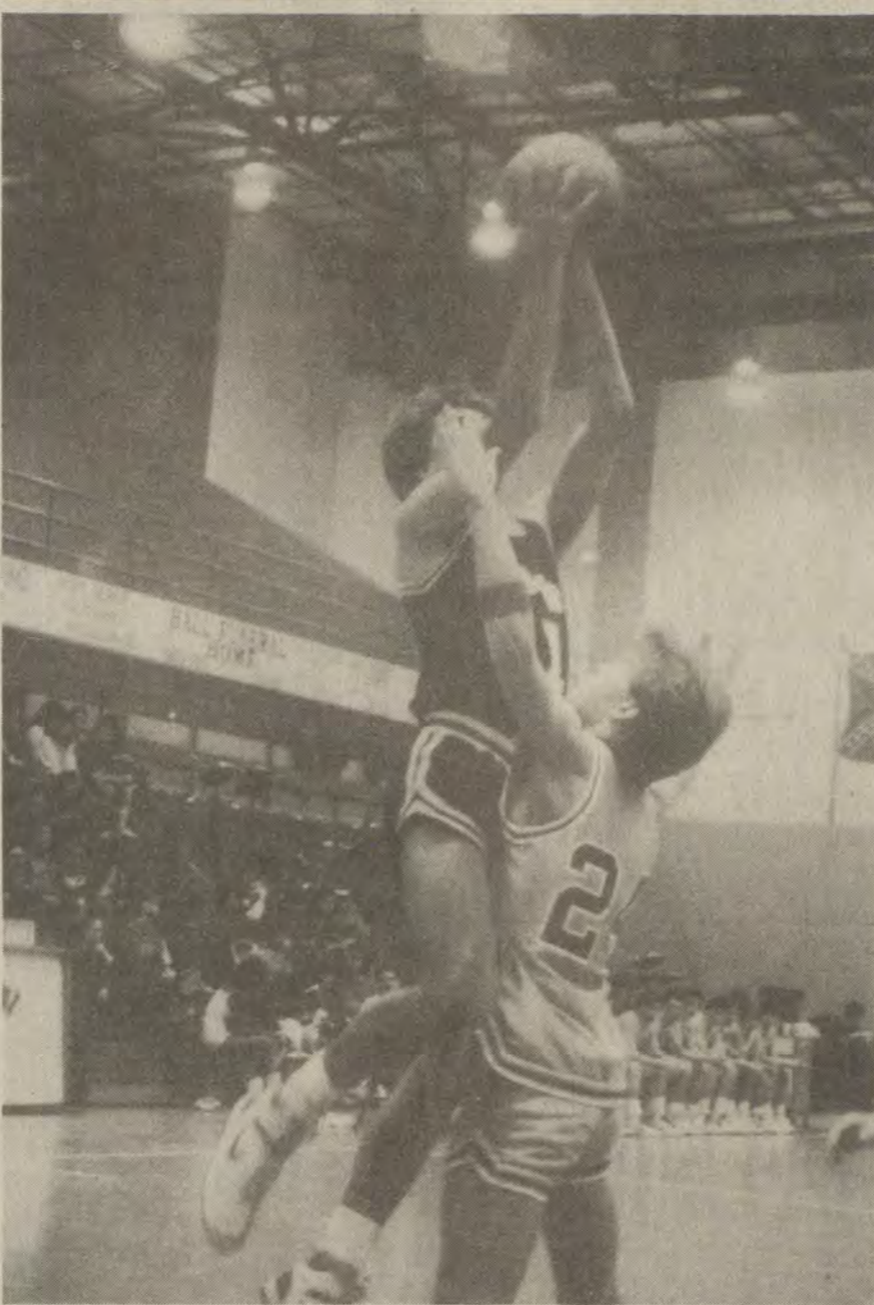

According to Parido, "David is a good penetrator who dishes the ball off real well." Chris Slone—"He played in 14 games last season. He's an excellent shooter and will be counted on to give us some scoring." John Wright "could be a strong outside scorer for us."

All three players are juniors who can play the perimeter.

Prestonsburg is quick, and has several interchangeable parts that add up to a well-balanced team. Parido doesn't expect to dominate opponents during the upcoming season, but building on his long-term goal may be easier than expected.

When he was first hired last summer, Parido mentioned the possibility of winning a regional tournament for Prestonsburg, someday.

That is a long-term objective, but by starting four juniors, and having three more come in off the bench, Parido's dream may be realized sooner than anyone expects.

HIGH EXPECTATIONS: Senior guard Tommy Jones (shooting) is Wheelwright's leading returning scorer. Jones averaged over 10 points a game last season and is expected to be both a scoring leader and floor leader for the Trojans this year.

Grigsby Named To Charter Members of Hall of Fame

As a player Pete Grigsby, Jr. thrilled large crowds and humbled huge opponents with his basketball ability. In his playing days Grigsby captured the hearts of all Martin High School fans, earned all-state honors, and spent time as a Kentucky Wildcat under Adolf Rupp.

As a coach Pete Grigsby, Jr. thrilled large crowds and humbled huge opponents with his basketball knowledge and style. During his coaching days Grigsby led McDowell High School to district titles, regional titles, and straight to the hearts of all McDowell basketball fans.

For his efforts Grigsby earned a spot among Floyd County's elite, those whose names bring memories of gold and sounds of magic.

But it doesn't remain. Fame is fleeting and regardless of how good you were, there is always someone somewhere just a bit better, poised to replace your name with theirs.

It doesn't matter that Pete Grigsby, Jr. is one of only a handful of all-staters from Floyd county. It doesn't matter that Pete Grigsby, Jr. was one of the most successful coaches in the county.

This week he takes a back seat to another former roundball wizard. This week Pete Grigsby, Jr. is not the county's top sports figure.

In fact, he plays second fiddle in his own family, in his own sport, to his own daughter.

Friday afternoon Geri Grigsby, a former basketball player at McDowell High School, was named, along with 25 other former athletes, to the 26-member charter group to be inducted into Kentucky High School Athletic Association's Hall of Fame.

The KHSAA announced plans for the Hall of Fame, Friday, as well as the 26 members who will be inducted in a ceremony this March before the Boy's State Basketball tournament tips off. Geri Grigsby was one of only three women chosen to the group, and the only former Floyd countian.

Grigsby, now residing in Louisville, scored 4,385 points during her McDowell playing days. That is still the all-time KHSAA record, and she holds two others.

In 1975 Grigsby tossed in a total of 1,871 points, an all-time Kentucky high school record. That season she averaged 49.8 points per game. Grigsby also scored 81 points in one game. That too, is a record.

A three-time all-stater, Grigsby was honored as an All-American in 1977, the same year she was named Miss Basketball in Kentucky.

The McDowell native also holds the scoring record for a single game in the Kentucky-Indiana series. Her 30-point performance still stands as the most points in one game, and her 54 is the most ever in a two-game effort.

Grigsby played one year at Western Kentucky University, and three years at the University of Kentucky. Of those four years, she started three.

Grigsby, an attorney in Frankfort, is also the women's state champion in racquetball, a title she recently captured.

The Hall of fame, which will be in the KHSAA building in Lexington, will receive 15,000 dollars a year for the next 10 years from Dawahares of Kentucky. An addition to the Hall, which will contain a museum and library, will be added soon.

Others being named to the Hall include: Ralph Beard; Russell Williamson; Mary T. Meagler; Peck Hickman; Ralph Carlisle; Stephanie Hightower; Letcher Norton; Joe W. Ohr; Clem Haskins; Garnis Martin; Homer Rice; L.J. Charmoll; Paul Hornung; Wah Wah Jones; Blanton Collier; John Bill Trivette; J.W. Thurman; Frank Litkenhouse; Roy Kidd; William Kean; Morton Combs; Ralph Dorsey; Cliff Hagen; S.F. Roach; and Ted Sanford.

Quickness Depth Has Trojans Thinking Big

Only once in this decade have they done it. And only four times since 1962 have they done it. Wheelwright High School hasn't exactly made a habit of reaching regional tournaments, especially since James Francis and the 1970s.

Francis, a successful coach in the 70s, led Wheelwright to three regional tourneys in that 10-year span, while claiming two district titles.

But since Francis left in 1978, the Trojans have advanced beyond the district tournament exactly one time, that as a runner-up team in 1986.

Last year, a rebuilding one in Wheelwright, the Trojans found themselves with only two seniors who played and under the direction of a new head coach, Monroe Jones.

Jones, a former guard at Wheelwright, directed his former team to a 12-14 record that included victories over strong teams such as Wolfe County and Prestonsburg. The Trojans captured an Eastern Kentucky Mountain Conference championship and gave ample playing time to many underclassmen.

From last year's squad, Monroe Jones loses only two starters. With adequate talent on hand to replace those missing bodies, team quickness, depth and a senior-oriented squad, the Trojans could make a run toward a regional tournament.

"We're looking pretty good for it to be this early," second year coach Monroe Jones said recently. "With a lot of hard work and a positive attitude, we should be a strong club."

"We've got some potential," Jones continued. "We've got some good athletes, some boys that can run, some that can shoot, and some that can jump. With some time, hard work, and a good attitude, it should all come together."

That hard work and positive attitude were possibly two things absent from Wheelwright's program in the recent past. Pride was one of the first items Jones tried to reinstate within the program.

And apparently it rubbed off. Wheelwright fan support increased, improvements were made on their gym, and the total program rallied around the renewed enthusiasm.

Now, with five seniors expecting to see many minutes of playing time, and a nice supporting underclass, Wheelwright is expecting to reap benefits of their hard work.

Tommy Jones, Jason Cook, and Steve Cole, all seniors, return from last year's starting five.

Jones, a 6'1" guard, is the Trojans' leading returning scorer, tossing in just over 10 points per game. Jones is a proven long-range shooter and could be one of the many Wheelwright players that have the ability to take advantage of the three-point shot.

Jones is expected to play both the number two guard and share time with sophomore Bobby Hood at the point guard position.

Hood, a quick 5'10" performer, saw action last season as a defensive specialist, but Monroe Jones has expressed confidence in both his guards' complete game.

But it may be inside where Wheelwright shines the brightest.

Hurt by inexperience and injuries, the Trojans were pushed around under the basket last season, but Jason Cook and Steve Cole have matured physically during the off season.

"He's improved a lot," Jones said of Cook. "His biggest problem last year was that he was weak. He lifted weights this year. He's stronger and that should help him a lot."

Cook, a 6'5" 165-pound senior, was the Trojans starting senior last year and will serve the same purpose this season.

Steve Cole, at 6'2", is another returning starter. Cole possesses strong leaping ability, a solid 180-pound frame, and good enough offensive abilities, according to his coach, to be a three-point threat.

"We've got three or four guys that can shoot it," Jones said of the three-point shot. "Tommy, Bobby, Steve, and Tony Isaac can all shoot it but knowing when to shoot it is the key."

Although the three-point shot could be an ally of Wheelwright's, Jones isn't sure it will be a major part of their, or anybody's game.

"Defensively, if you're slow and all you can play is a two-three zone, it might hurt you. We've got some guys back who can hit it, but no team is going to shoot 20 and hit 15. I don't think it will have that big of an effect."

One thing Jones is hoping will have a big impact is forward Craig Martin. Of all the Trojan players, Martin may have the best jumping ability and at 6'1", he is expected to fill many roles for this year's team.

Martin, a junior, was Wheelwright's sixth man a year ago until an arm injury slowed his progress, but he is healthy and able now.

With a backcourt of Jones and Hood, with Martin and Cole at the forwards, and Cook as the center, Monroe Jones is comfortable with his starting five, but also likes complimenting his bench prospects.

"Todd Bailey will be strong underneath and not many people can out-shoot Tony Isaac from 25 feet," Jones said. "Brad Compton is six-three, and he's improved a lot. He's got long arms, so he's really like a six-five player. He should help us inside."

Jones says he has a quality sub for each situation.

"Different situations will dictate who we'll go to first. If we need someone inside, Todd will probably be the first one we go to. If we need an outside shooter then Tony may be the first to come in."

Jones also expects reserves Shawn McKenzie, Vic Cotton, Chad Hall, and Randy Boyd to lead a helping hand to the upcoming season's efforts.

With this type talent and depth, Wheelwright is expected to take advantage of it through full court, fast tempo play.

"We've got all boys that are quick and can run so we'll take the break when it's there," Jones mentioned. "We'll mix it up some, but we'll run a lot."

One key to a fast-breaking team is their rebounding ability. Jones says his Trojans need some additional board work and find a way to keep their turnovers to a minimum.

The foundation for the Monroe Jones era at Wheelwright High School was firmly laid last season, and the Trojans are expected to continue their upward trend this season.

"Potentially we could be a lot better team this year than we were last year," Jones said. "I can tell already that we've got a better chemistry this year. The guys are working well together."

Wheelwright will open their season December 1 on the road against Johns Creek.

NFL News And Notes

A sign hanging in Seattle's Kingdome read: 'Wake up Cinderella. It's 12 and you haven't been to the ball yet.'

Cinderella, on this day, was the San Diego Chargers. And yes, on this day, the clock struck midnight before San Diego wanted it to.

The glass slipper still might fit, but after their 34-3 loss to Seattle, the Chargers may have to work harder for the proper and desired fitting.

Possibly the surprise team of the decade, San Diego has gone from a losing 1986 campaign to an 8-2 record this season and a first place standing in the AFC's Western Division.

The Chargers, perhaps, were living the Cinderella dream, enjoying the carriage ride after driving the pumpkin across the NFL last year, but Dave Kreig and Seattle reminded San Diego of their humble beginning.

Kreig threw for 246 yards and three touchdowns as the Sea Hawks moved to within one game of San Diego. Kurt Warner ran for 119 yards for an extra added attraction.

Playing without quarterback Dan Fouts, San Diego was limited to only six first downs. Fouts did make an appearance, entering the game in the third quarter with the Chargers trailing 24-3, and even he had little effectiveness against the Sea Hawk defense.

San Diego has yet another intra-divisional battle on their hands. The Chargers will play Denver, running a close third in the West, this Sunday in San Diego.

Monday night the Sea Hawks will try to repeat their performance of this past Sunday when they play the Los Angeles Raiders in the Kingdome.

Only one and one-half games separate the Western Division's top three teams, and in the five remaining games only Denver and Seattle have an opponent left that doesn't have a winning record or is on top of their division.

Both teams play Kansas City. The Chargers have the toughest schedule of the three, and even though they lead the division, San Diego's dream season may soon turn into a nightmare.

But don't feel sorry for the Chargers. Unless, of course, you have a lot of sentiment to pass out.

More than one Cinderella story was re-told Sunday, and others were being written. Two teams tied for division leads that weren't supposed to be this late in the season, suffered defeats at crucial times.

Indianapolis and Houston were tied atop the East and Central divisions, but the Colts lost to New England and the Oilers lost to Cleveland.

Eric Dickerson ran for 117 yards, but Indianapolis still lost, 24-0, to the Patriots. The final score signified the first time the Colts had been shutout since the 1980 season.

The Patriots, with the win, moved into a first place tie with Indianapolis, and the Jets, and the Bills, and the Dolphins.

Every team in the AFC East is in first place, but with their superior record within the division, Indianapolis is officially the divisional leader.

The Buffalo Bills, the latest success chapter in the ongoing Cinderella story, broke a seven-game losing streak against New York by defeating the Jets, 17-14, despite Freeman McNeill's 103 yards.

The Bills haven't enjoyed the pressure of a playoff race since Furgerson and O.J. Simpson. Now, though, at 5-5, Buffalo is tied for their division's top spot. And they have their own destiny in hand.

Three of Buffalo's five remaining games are with divisional foes. Starting next week with Miami, the Bills will play the Dolphins, Indianapolis, and New England in the next four weeks.

Houston not only suffered a blow to their first place tie, they suffered a blow to their collective ego, football pride, and physical well-being.

Cleveland intercepted four Warren Moon passes, three by Frank Minnefield, in route to a 40-7 thumping of puncheoness Houston. As a result the Browns took over sole possession of the Central division.

Kevin Mack rambled for over 100 yards in the winning effort.

Houston, a team absent from the playoffs after Earl Campbell left four years ago, will either improve its standing on the Cinderella ladder while lowering the Colts'. Or the Oilers will fall two games behind Cleveland, and Indianapolis will be allowed to keep pace.

The two teams meet in Indianapolis this Sunday.

One success story didn't suffer this past weekend. It's alive and well and poised to write its final few chapters.

The New Orleans Saints, a team that has never had a winning season, defeated the New York Giants, 23-14, Sunday. The Saints, 7-3, forced six turnovers in handing the defending Super Bowl champions their seventh loss.

The Saints have won three games in a row and have a golden opportunity to catch San Francisco this Sunday. New Orleans will be doing battle with Pittsburgh, a 30-16 winner over Cincinnati this past week.

The 49ers, 8-2 and the leader in the West, play at home against Cleveland. The Browns, 7-3, are the AFC Central's top squad.

With a New Orleans win and a San Francisco loss, the Saints and 49ers would be tied for first in the NFC West. New Orleans, with a win, will also secure the club's first-ever winning season.

In the NFC East Dallas continues to look up in order to see Washington, the division's leader. The Cowboys lost to Miami, Sunday, and fell to 5-5 on the season.

Dallas, in an effort to stay alive for a wildcard spot, takes on Minnesota, Thursday. The Vikings used three quarterbacks in a not-so-impressive 24-13 victory over Atlanta.

But the Vikings are 6-4 and in the running for a playoff berth. Minnesota trails Chicago in the Central by two games.

The Bears, despite having their quarterbacks sacked eight times, survived Detroit, 30-10, Sunday. Chicago plays at home against Green Bay while the Vics play in Dallas.

In other games last Sunday, Green Bay improved to 4-5-1 with a 23-3 win in Kansas City. The loss was the Chiefs' fourth in a row.

Neil Lomax, St. Louis quarterback, threw three touchdown passes as the Cardinals upset Philadelphia, 31-19. The Cards are 4-6 and still alive for a playoff spot.

The Los Angeles Rams, at 2-7, took advantage of their defense and specialty teams to defeat Washington, 30-26, Monday night.

Los Angeles was given a touchdown on a fumble return and another on a 95-yard kickoff return by Ron Brown. The Rams also blocked a punt that set up a Charles White two-yard touchdown run.

White ran for over 100 yards, the fourth time this season he has done that and passed Eric Dickerson in the run for the NFL rushing title.

Jim Everett, in the third quarter, passed to Ron Brown for a 24-yard touchdown, and the Los Angeles defense survived a late Doug Williams rally to capture their third win of the season. Washington fell to 7-3.

The Redskins had the football on the LA 14-yard line with only 24 seconds left, but Leroy Ervin picked off a William pass in the end zone to snuff out the late rally.

With the Los Angeles win, the total of road teams posting victories during week 11 rose to nine. In the past two weeks, home teams in the NFL have posted a 10-18 record.

Adkins may have played second fiddle to the bigger band members last season, but his talents were showcased in Kentucky's Junior All-Star series this past summer. He is expected to battle Clay County's Ritchie Farmer for Mr. Basketball honors this season.

But Adkins isn't the only talent Runyon has at his disposal.

Junior guard Chris Collins led an area sophomore squad against Adkins' Juniors last summer, and poured in 21 points against the tough competition.

Freddie Bowling and Darcy Adkins finished as the second and third leading scorers for the sophomore crew.

Jerry Pelphey, a six-foot-three junior forward, is another diamond in the rough that Runyon expects to become clean out this season, giving Paintsville an opportunity to improve with the age of the year.

"I don't think we're going to be a real good team early in the year, but later on I think we'll be in contention for another regional title," Runyon predicted.

The Tigers first must get out of the tough 57th district. This means that either Paintsville, Johnson Central, or Sheldon Clark, three of the region's top four teams, won't be in the bigger tournament.

This is what concerns Mike Castle. "The first thing we have to do is get out of this district," Castle said. "This is certainly a tough district to play in."

This may not be a major problem for teams like Phelps and Betsy Layne. Phelps has highly touted guard Brian Charles to rely on, and possibly not a harsh district to do battle with.

Last year's 60th district representatives, Belfry and Johns Creek, were hit hard by graduation, giving Phelps the avenue they need to return to the regional tournament.

The Hornets will be led by Charles, who scored over 24 points per game in 1986-87. The 5'11" guard averaged over 21 points per game two seasons ago, and Hornet fans are hoping for an even better showing this season. Mike Fannin, a six-foot-two forward, is expected to give Charles a needed relief underneath.

Betsy Layne, of the 58th district, could be the surprise team of the region, especially with veteran coach Craynor Slone calling the shots.

Recognized as one of the top coaches in the state, Slone came to Betsy Layne last season and performed the impossible, taking an inexperienced Bobcat team to the regional tourney.

With two starters back, forward Todd Sturgill and guard Duran Newsome, Slone will at least have experience to work with.

The Bobcats' biggest challenge in the 58th district should come from McDowell, which is under the leadership of first-year coach Johnny Ray Turner.

The Daredevils have one of the region's top forwards in 6'3" Lenny Hall. The strong leaping senior averaged in double figures in both points and rebounds last season while blocking four shots per game.

Hall is a defensive specialist who has made himself a strong inside scoring threat. He scored 15 points per game last season.

Dickie Joe Shannon, a sharpshooting junior guard, scored in double figures last year, and with the three-point line, could very well top the district in scoring.

The Daredevils have struggled the past three seasons, but with size, four players with experience over 6'1", speed, and shooting ability, could finally return to exciting days of yester-year.

Allen Central, of the same district, was expected to have another strong season after advancing to the regional finals last season, but injuries have already hit Johnny Martin and crew.

Rady Martin, a 6'3" forward who averaged nearly 15 points per game, suffered a leg injury in late September that could have ruined his whole junior season.

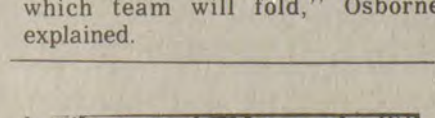

Without Martin, Allen Central could be in trouble. They do, however, return three players with considerable playing experience.

According to last year's results, returning players, and coaches pre-season polls, several schools are in the running for a 15th region title.

But it's still pre-season. "I think there are probably six teams that have a chance of winning it," Bobby Osborne said. "You never know until the very end. You never know until you get them under fire how they will react."

"You can say this team will do this and that team will do that. You base an opinion on what you had last year, and what you have coming back, but you never know which team will gell, and which team will fold," Osborne explained.

Calvin Coolidge was the only President of the United States to be born on the Fourth of July.

Calvin Coolidge was the only President of the United States to be born on the Fourth of July.

The Sporting Times

Somebody somewhere opened the flood gates and a wave of number one teams surfed out. They rode in from the East. They rode in from the South.

And only one thing is certain, there are no certainties where pre-season number ones are concerned.

Sport Magazine named Florida as it's top team. Sports Illustrated listed Syracuse as the nation's best team. Others have said Purdue is the number one pre-season squad while Kentucky appeared in that slot on at least one poll.

All these differing number one choices tell us that either the experts to not use the same set of critiques in selecting a pre-season poll or that the upcoming college basketball campaign should be one of parity, equality, and excitement.

Polls do not always tell a total tale, especially pre-season ones, and SI's has already fallen on untrue times.

In Saturday's Kickoff Classic, North Carolina defeated Syracuse. The win didn't come as a major surprise, or on a normal day it wouldn't have. The Tar Heels have been touted as one of the nation's best teams, but Saturday they were playing under different circumstances.

North Carolina went to war without sophomore sensation J.R. Reid and Steve Bucknell. Both had been suspended for the one game.

Still, the Tar Heels had enough talent to turn back the nation's best team, or at least one of them.

Reid, the top freshman last season, averaged over 15 points per game, and when he joins Jeff Lebo, Lorenzo Smith, and the gang, North Carolina could be looking at another undefeated ACC season, and a number one ranking before this year is out.

Syracuse, on the other bench, is still a solid national contender despite the loss. Unlike football, college basketball's national champion can have more than one loss.

The Orangemen have three of the top players in the country. Led by talented, and tall, center Rony Seikaly, Syracuse advanced to the NCAA's championship game before being outsmarted.

Three of last year's starters are back, including the 6'11" Seikaly. Sherman Douglas, a top-notch point guard, is back as is another sophomore sensation, Derrick Coleman.

Coleman, a six-foot-nine forward, developed into the nation's second rated freshmen last season by enjoying a tremendous tournament.

The biggest problem facing the Orangemen is trying to find two other people that are capable of doing more than just fill out the starting five.

Three men can't win a national championship. If they could, then Indiana would be the odds on favorite to capture the title.

The men of Bobby Knight sneaked away with a title last year when Keith Smart hit a winning jumpshot against Coleman, Seikaly, and the boys.

Smart is back and should be better than ever. Also Dean Garrett, Knight's top inside warrior, returns to provide some paint strength.

Smart hit over 51 percent of his field goal attempts last season, and with Steve Alford gone, he will be the key ingredient in Indiana's offensive chemistry.

Garrett, at 6'10", was the Hoosiers tallest player last season. A juco transfer, Garrett averaged 11 points a game while leading his team in rebounding. Ricky Callaway scored over 12 points a game, hit 53 percent from the floor, and improved as the season proceeded toward it's championship climax. He is back, too.

No team has repeated as national champion since John Wooden and UCLA accomplished the feat back in 1972 and '73. Indiana, with the addition of co-Indiana Mr. Basketballs Jay Edwards and Lyndon Jones just might. Both are 6'4" and both play the guard position.

But who knows, Knight may use one at a forward position.

If the freshmen, or either Steve Eyle or Joe Hillman, both of which enjoyed solid tournament games, can fill the bill then the over-achieving Hoosiers could achieve a championship.

It may be in their own conference where Indiana finds it's toughest challenge. Purdue and Michigan are both talented, if not proven.

Purdue finished last season with a 25-5 record and return guard Troy Lewis and forward Todd Mitchell. Both have received all-American mentions and along with experienced players such as Everette Stephens and Melvin Mecants, should make the Boilermakers a Big Ten contender if not a national power.

But even Purdue may not be the Big Ten's best squad.

In probably the most talented conference in America, the Big Ten holds at least three teams that could win it all, if not more.

Michigan is good on paper, but their players have yet to prove their worth on the court as a winning team. New additions this season might change all that, though.

Gary Grant may be the nation's best guard and will have some additional help this year. Last season Grant averaged 22.4 points per game and five assists.

This year, Michigan will finally get use out of guard Rumeal Robinson and Terry Mills. Both were forced to sit last year out because of Proposition 48.

Mills is a 6'11" forward who could start immediately and Robinson was recognized as one of the top point guards in the country two years ago. Both are former high school all-Americans.

The question still remains, though. Who is number one in the country?

Certainly not Syracuse. They have a losing record. Probably North Carolina. They have a perfect record.

Or how about Pittsburgh, Kentucky, and Wyoming?

Pittsburgh returns the best front line in college basketball. Charles Smith averaged 17 points a game last year, and forward Jerome Layne led the nation in rebounding, over 13 per contest.

To make things even stronger under the basket, the Panthers landed Brian Shorter, a 6'7" power forward who was recognized as one of the top prep players last year.

Pittsburgh's recruiting class, ranked second only to Kentucky's, also landed two top-notch guard prospects in Sean Miller and Jason Mathews.

And speaking of that terrific UK incoming class.

The Wildcats lost John Pittman, a seven-footer, but did get 6'11" Leron Ellis. Ellis could be the answer to Kentucky's inside problems.

Bennett, a power forward, is a fifth year senior, and could prove to be a man playing with boys this year.

But then again, the 6'7" power forward hasn't played in almost two years and is unproven after a severe knee injury. Kentucky's freshmen, although talented, are also unproven and to rate question marks high in pre-season is, well, a question.

Panorama Set At Betsy Layne

A six-team panorama is scheduled for tonight (Wednesday) at the D.W. Howard fieldhouse in Betsy Layne.

The panorama will feature both the Bobcats' and Lady Bobcats' 1987-88 basketball teams. The Lady Bobcats will take on Elkhorn City at 6:00, in the opening game, and the Bobcats are scheduled to play Morgan County in the nightcap.

In the middle game Johnson Central, the top-rated team in the region, will play Elkhorn City. The Eagles, in their own panorama, defeated Betsy Layne, Saturday night.

Morgan County, rated as one of the top 16th region teams, feature one of the area's top scorers from a year ago. Mark Hopkins, the Cougars' center, tossed in 23 points per game last season.

Betsy Layne is considered to be one of the top five teams in the 15th region.

Western Meets Eastern In Playoffs, Saturday

Western will be going to Eastern, and Eastern will be going for its third national championship in eight years when the two Kentucky schools kickoff Division 1AA playoffs, this Saturday, at Hanger Field in Richmond.

The Hilltoppers, 7-3 on the season, have won five of their last six games, including two season ending victories that saw Western outscore their opponents by a combined 75-42 score.

The Hilltoppers, ranked 12th in the nation, are in the Division 1AA playoffs for the first time.

Eastern is quite the opposite. No stranger to national championships, the Colonels captured titles in 1979 and 1982 and finished second two other years, 1980 and 1981.

Under Roy Kidd, Eastern has compiled a 188-70-8 record. The Colonels are 8-2 this season and may have their best team since 1982 and a 13-0 final record.

Led by a talented backfield duo of Elroy Harris and James Crawford, Eastern features an explosive, but yet controlled offense and a stubborn defense.

Harris, a 5'10" 218 pound tailback, rushed for 1,152 yards this season and running mate Crawford added 1,060 yards to ECU's rushing efforts.

In the past six games both Harris and Crawford have each ran for over 100 yards. The two backs, in 1985, ran for over 1,000 yards each and this season, by repeating the feat, became the first Division 1 backfield combo to each rush for over 1,000 yards in two different seasons.

Eastern was averaging 291 yards per game rushing and only 42 through the air. They did little to change those numbers last Saturday against Morehead State.

The Colonels gained 288 yards on the ground and 28 via the pass while defeating Morehead 23-0 to earn their 12th Ohio Valley Conference title.

Eastern had to share the conference title this year with Youngstown State, but earned the automatic playoff bid because of an earlier victory over the Penguins.

Defensively, ECU has finally lived up to its pre-season billing. With eight starters back from last year's team, the Colonels' defense was receiving high praise even before the 1987 campaign began.

Eastern proved that the reputation was well-deserved Saturday when they shut the Eagles out in Morehead. Held to 175 total yards, Morehead State's offense was completely shut down. The Eagles were held to minus three yards rushing and only eight first downs. Four of those came as a direct result of Eastern penalties.

Shutting out Morehead may be easier than stopping Western, though. The Eagles, for the season, averaged just over 300 yards per game.

But Western, they tell a different offensive story.

The Hilltoppers have scored at least 20 points in nine of their 10 games and feature one of the top passing games available to Division 1AA fans.

Jeff Cesarone, Western quarterback, completes over 50 percent of his passes and has thrown for nearly 200 yards every outing. Cesarone is behind his 1986 pace, but has enjoyed a successful season.

On the ground, Western is averaging 4.1 yards per rush and 158 a game. The Hilltoppers have outgained their opponents 329 yards to 268 per outing.

But what can that offense do against Eastern's defense? Not much, according to past head-to-head battles.

On October 3, Western traveled to Hanger Field with hopes of continuing their domination of the Colonels, but this time the Hilltoppers were shot off the mountain.

Eastern slowed down the Hilltoppers' high flying offense and recorded a 20-10 victory. In that game Eastern quarterback Lorenzo Fields broke lose for a 69-yard touchdown run to pace the Colonels.

Fields may be slowed this week by a bruised thigh suffered Saturday against Morehead. The Colonels also suffered injuries to all-OVC defensive back Danny Copeland, sprained knee, and defensive end Tim Tomaszewski, who injured a finger. Copeland is the conference's top kick returner, also.

Western's defense, although not dominate, is credible. In 10 games they have allowed their opponents to score 20 or more points only three times. They surrender an average of 17 points per game.

In their October battle, the Hilltoppers limited Eastern to only four of 10 passing and 40 yards.

But Eastern isn't a passing team.

Their strength lies offensively in their backfield. If the legs of Harris and Crawford don't get the job done then it rarely gets done.

Western has held their opponents to a 3.0 average and 133 yards rushing a game. The long run against them this season belongs to Fields.

The Hilltoppers lead the series with Eastern, 35-23-3. The two schools have played each other since 1914, and have met each year since the 1934 season.

This is one of the series' more meaningful matchups. The winner advances to the Division 1AA quarter-finals next weekend and the loser waits until next year.

HIGH SCORER: Dickie Joe Shannon led McDowell to a 77-66 victory over Dorton last Tuesday night. Shannon scored 16 points to back the Daredevil scoring attack.

SHORT SPORTS

The McDowell Daredevils, led by Dickie Joe Shannon and Henry Webb, made their season opener a victory last Tuesday night by defeating Dorton, 77-66, at home.

The Daredevil guard combination of Shannon and Webb combined for 29 points, and McDowell got double-figure scoring performances from Lenny Hall, 12, and Jesse Osborne, 10, in winning their first game.

McDowell, picked as one of the top teams in the 58th district, played their second game last night at Mullins but no final score was available at press time.

The Daredevils return home this Saturday night to take on Jackson County. Game time for the varsity contest is scheduled for 6:30.

The junior varsity game will tip off at 5. Saturday's game will be McDowell's last before the Floyd County Conference's pre-season tournament, December second through the fifth.

McDowell's next home game will be December 11 against Betsy Layne.

The regular season for Western Kentucky University and Eastern Kentucky University ended on positive notes, but Morehead State and the University of Kentucky suffered disappointing losses this past week.

Eastern, headed for the Division 1AA playoffs, defeated Morehead State, 23-0, Saturday. Eastern's backfield combination of Elroy Harris and James Crawford ran for a total of 272 yards.

Both finished the season with over 1000 yards rushing each. With the win, the Colonels captured their 12th OVC title, but this year they have to share the honor with Youngstown State.

Morehead State finished the season winning only two games, but the Eagles return 19 starters for next season.

Western Kentucky University closed out its regular season with a 45-27 victory over North Carolina A&T, Saturday. The win upped the Hilltoppers' record to 7-3.

Western's winning campaign represented their first of such since 1981.

In small college action, Georgetown had their season brought to a sudden halt by Westminster College. Westminster handed Georgetown a 24-17 defeat in NAAI Division 11 playoff action.

The University of Kentucky finished their season with a loss also, falling two points short to Tennessee. The Wildcats led most of the game, and with just over two minutes remaining, the Vols held UK on a fourth and goal from the one-yard line, snuffing out UK's upset efforts.

Kentucky, with the loss, finished the season with a 5-6 record. The Wildcats haven't had a winning season since 1984.

A panorama, featuring four of the area's top basketball programs, will be held tonight (Wednesday) at Allen Central High School.

In the evening's opening contest, M.C. Napier, considered one of the 14th region's top five teams, will do battle with Sheldon Clark.

The Cardinals, considered one of this region's top teams, have been rated as high as third in the 15th region.

In the nightcap, Allen Central will tangle with the Knott County Central Patriots. The first game is scheduled to tip off at 6:30 with the second affair following at 8.

Both games will feature the regular four quarters but are viewed as pre-season and will not count on the team's final records.

The University of Kentucky unveiled its 1987-88 basketball squad last night in a pre-season game with the Soviet National Team, and this Saturday they will do it for real against Hawaii.

The Rainbows were 7-21 last year and do not figure to pose much of a threat to Kentucky in their home and season opener.

The Wildcats are scheduled to play again on Wednesday night, taking on Cincinnati at home. Then the 'Cats play Indiana and Louisville in consecutive games.

Elsewhere in Bluegrass basketball, Morehead State, in its year under Tommy Gaither, opens the season at home against Tennessee Wesleyan. The Eagles will play Tuesday, also, remaining at home to take on Ohio University.

Western Kentucky, a team facing rebuilding chores, opens the 1987-88 campaign, Friday, against Kentucky State, and Eastern will play their first game, Tuesday, at home against North Carolina-Ashville.

Andre Dawson, the hard-hitting, strong-throwing rightfielder of the Chicago Cubs, was named the National League's most valuable player this past week.

Dawson, easily out-distancing St. Louis shortstop Ozzie Smith, hit 49 homeruns and drove in 137 runs, the most in the major leagues.

Dawson was named the NL's MVP soon after George Bell of the Toronto Blue Jays won the award for the American League. Bell, a slugging outfielder, finished ahead of Detroit's Alan Trammell and Minnesota's Kirby Puckett, who finished second and third.

Cave Run Lake Outdoor Show

The Tackle Buster's Bass Club and the Morehead Tourism Commission announce the Morehead-Cave Run Lake Outdoor Show will be held February 27-28, 1988 at the Morehead State University's Wetherby Gymnasium and adjoining gymnasiums in the Laughlin Health Building.

Seminars will be offered both days by nationally known sports figures Woo Daves, a professional angler from Chester, Pa.; 6-time B.A.S.S. Classic qualifier and currently 3rd place Angler of the Year; Penny Berryman, professional angler from Dardanelle, Arkansas on Lady Bass and Bass 'n Gal tournament circuit; Shag Shahid, professional fisherman and World Speed Team Trick Casting Champion with Lew Childre and Sons, Foley, Ala.

The Cats have probably the best backcourt in college basketball. Rex Chapman, UK's leading scorer last year, Ed Davender, and Derrick Miller led Kentucky to the NCAA tournament last year, and if Bennett and Ellis fill the bill, then UK fans could be staring at another national championship.

And then there is Fennis Dembo. Possibly the most popular player in college basketball, Dembo has already sold himself, body and soul, to the press. Newspapers and television have brought the highly publicized Wyoming forward into homes of all Americans, and at the same time Dembo has earned all-American honors.

Dembo plays as well as most say he does, and with Eric Leckner, the Cowboys may ride the crest of Dembo to the final four.

Last year, Dembo scored 22 points a game, and Leckner, a 6'11" center, is being touted as a number one draft choice. The Cowboys have been picked in the top ten by many polls and if their supporting players improve, then Wyoming may develop into the nation's best team.

Kansas has Danny Manning, the best player in the country, and Duke has Danny Ferry. Individual performances don't cut it though. Remember Navy and David Robinson?

Florida has all-American guard Vernon Maxwell and one of the best centers in the nation in Dwayne Schintzius. They could make a run too.

So could Louisville, the nation's most underrated team. Pervis Ellison, Herbert Crook, and gang won it all as freshmen. With key additions such as LeBradford Smith, the Cardinals will improve from last season. Smith, and seven-foot-one Felton Spencer may be the keys, but without them Denny Crum will return to power in the Metro, if not the nation.

Georgia Tech also has talent back in the form of Tom Hammonds and Duane Ferrell. The two combined for 44.1 points per game last year.

As many as 12 teams appear near even in pre-season. Some will suffer injuries, and some will simply fall apart in the run for Kansas City.

But while they battle it out, we, the fans, will benefit most from this abundance of talent and equality.

If you're looking for a dark horse then turn to Notre Dame. Digger Phelps returns all-American guard David Rivers to run the show. He is the best in the country at doing that. Gary Voce averaged five points and six rebounds a game last year. The 6'9" center is expected to improve on those numbers.

Mark Stephenson, a 6'6" forward, averaged over 10 points a game and is back. The Fighting Irish have added key members to their squad that could just carry them farther than anyone expects.

Bring on the cheerleaders and strike up the band. The show is about to begin. It promises thrills, chills, spills, and some good basketball.

Hunting: An American's Right Is A Rare Privilege In Europe

Religious and political reforms were not the only changes American settlers sought in leaving Europe. They also wanted the right to hunt.

Although much of Europe today reflects a strong American influence on forms of government and policies of religious tolerance, the opportunity to hunt in Europe is still available only to a privileged few.

Fred Servello, Extension wildlife specialist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, said the early settlers very quickly established the right of the public to take game, even on privately owned land.

"And almost as quickly, things got out of hand. Rhode Island imposed the first hunting season in 1946. It restricted the taking of deer," Servello said.

In Europe, wildlife belongs to the owner of the land it inhabits. In colonial times there was no such thing as public land in most European countries. All land not owned by individuals belonged to the king or queen. Although portions of the crown's land were occasionally opened to public hunting, the game in those areas was quickly exhausted.

In the beginning, American settlers had to hunt to survive. As cities grew along the Atlantic seaboard, the colonies crept over the Appalachians and slid down the western slope to spread across the Ohio and Mississippi River valleys. There was always a frontier, a leading edge of our developing nation, where hunting for survival was necessary. Hunting as a right became an American tradition.

By the mid-1800s hunting for personal survival had been replaced by commercial hunting to provide large markets from New Orleans to Chicago, to Boston and New York. The removal of vast forests to build those great cities, and hundreds of smaller ones, and extensive farming of poor sites combined to magnify the damaging effects of commercial hunting.

Servello said game laws, made necessary by the rapidly disappearing native species, became common in the late 1800s and early 1900s.

"But unlike Europe, we never limited who could hunt. Instead, we limited everyone as to when and what they could hunt. That's a primary distinction between hunting in Europe and hunting in America," Servello said.

By the 1930s, scientific wildlife management began to develop. Sportsmen and scientists began to realize that importing exotic species was not going to replace the dwindling supply of native species. Reclamation and management of wildlife habitat were the keys to restoring deer, turkey and other native species to desirable levels.

In 1940, for example, there were probably fewer than 1,000 deer left in Kentucky. Today, as a result of scientific management of wildlife, and their habitat, there are an estimated 295,000 deer in Kentucky, supporting an annual harvest of 5,000. And that number is increasing, Servello said.

More than 308,000 Kentuckians bought hunting licenses last year—165,000 were deer licenses. Together, those hunters paid fees of more than $4 million into state coffers.

"But what's important to the local merchants is the more than $12.5 million those hunters and hunters visiting from other states paid for food, lodging, and hunting supplies. That money goes straight into the local economy in many of Kentucky's rural counties," Servello said.

Today, federal, state and local governments, and dozens of private organizations work to promote all sorts of wildlife. That's another distinguishing feature between European and American traditions.

"The Europeans have imposed upon themselves an intensive system of game management. Those who claim the privilege to hunt also accept the responsibility to provide for the game and to protect their habitat," Servello said.

In Europe, governments play only a small role in the management of game. It is mostly private land that is carefully managed to support game. In the United States the opposite is often the case. Only public lands are managed by government agencies. It's private land that's not well managed.

Kentucky Trout Stamp Competition Announced

Artists throughout the United States are invited to submit original artwork for the 1989 Kentucky Trout Stamp competition.

Issued by the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, the Kentucky trout stamp is a license which sells for $3.50. Revenue from the sale of the stamp is used to fund Kentucky's trout stocking program and trout management research.

Entries for the 1989 competition will be accepted from December 15, 1987 until March 15, 1988. Artists wishing to submit an entry should request complete rules, entry requirements and procedures by writing: Trout Stamp Contest Coordinator, Kentucky Dept. of Fish and Wildlife Resources, #1 Game Farm Road, Frankfort, Ky. 40601, or call (502) 564-4336.

Tillage Alternatives Are Noted for Small Grains

For small grains, residue management remains crucial for reducing soil erosion, but problems differ in small grains areas from those of the Cornbelt.

In the Plains, protecting soil from wind erosion is often more important than preventing water erosion. Moisture conservation becomes increasingly important as inches of annual rainfall decrease. On the steep hillsides of the Pacific Northwest, stopping sheet erosion and gullying is essential.

Farming techniques and equipment to tackle these problems vary. Despite these differences, small grains farmers share the same overall tillage goals with other farmers: retain soil in place, keep soil and groundwater free of chemical pollution, make fertilizers available to crop roots, maximize use of soil moisture for grain production, integrate tillage with other inputs to develop a low-cost system.

Severe soil erosion occurs on less than half the cropland in the United States. On problem fields, conservation tillage (that is, tillage that leaves at least 30 percent of the old crop residue on the soil surface at planting) can help reduce soil losses.

Surface residue at planting time not only can cut water-caused soil erosion but can also effectively limit wind erosion. If residue is insufficient to control erosion, roughness created by tillage can help reduce it.

There are many ways small grains farmers can maintain crop residue on the soil surface. However, there are situations when maintaining heavy residues on the surface is not a good idea, according to Glenn M. Olson, manager of cultivation and planting equipment planning at Deere & Company, Moline, Illinois.

"In fields with no real erosion problems, switching to conservation tillage may be an economic mistake. Research in the Plains states and Canadian prairies suggests that increased surface cover and soil roughness can be counter-productive to meeting agronomic and profitability goals," he says.

"Maintaining previous crop residue on the soil surface can increase crop disease susceptibility and lead to more losses from larger populations of insect pests," Olson says. In many situations, he adds, conservation tillage also contributes to slower crop growth in early spring because of cooler, more moist soil conditions.

Also, annual grasses such as downy brome (cheatgrass) can easily get out of control in fall seeded small grains grown under conservation tillage, Olson warns. "Entire wheat fields can be wiped out by infestations of these hard-to-eliminate weeds when reduced or no tillage is used exclusively.

"Chemical control of annual grasses in small grains can be expensive and risky because grassy weeds such as downy brome share many genetic characteristics with small grains. Chemicals that kill the grasses can also easily damage wheat or barley, especially if application conditions are less than ideal," Olson says.

"Clean tillage is a safer way to eliminate grassy weeds in small grain fields. Downy brome, for example, germinates only when it is close to the soil surface. Moldboard plowing, along with crop rotations that allow spring tillage, will control most annual grasses that plague small grain fields. Chisel plowing, one-way disking or sweep plowing do not seem to be as effective as moldboard plowing, since all of these methods leave at least some weed seeds close to the soil surface."

One controversy surrounding conservation tillage and small grains production is soil moisture management: storing and retaining water in the crop root zone.

Olson says, "You often hear the statement that each tillage pass will cause the loss of one-half inch of soil moisture. Without really investigating to find out if the statement is true, some people mistakenly use this argument to justify chemical fallow in place of tillage operations, particularly in summer fallow areas.

"But in recent years, researchers have been finding that the situation is much more complicated than previously supposed. In many cases, tilled fields actually retain equal or more soil moisture than non-tilled fields."

Sorting through all the conflicting data, Olson has found a few universal rules to follow in choosing tillage systems for small grains.

Any tillage decision must be site-specific. Soil types, weather patterns, cropping rotations, erosion problems all vary from field to field. Don't assume that tillage data from other places apply to your farm. Only on-site tillage trials can supply valid answers.

Concentrate on how tillage techniques affect crop yield, not on how they affect soil moisture. Many factors other than soil moisture contribute to the success or failure of a tillage program. Broadleaf weed populations, insect infestations, annual grasses, crop emergence, seedling vigor, winter-kill of fall-seeded grains, fertilizer utilization, scheduling of farming operations are all related to tillage system choices. All are important.

The constant measuring stick for choosing a tillage system is economic. Always ask, "Will a change increase profitability?" Generally, any tillage system that significantly reduces crop yields will probably cut profits, regardless of input cost savings.

"As we move to the future," Olson says, "I think we'll get some of this conflicting data cleaned up through use of improved tillage tools that will give both better erosion control and reduced costs per acre.

"Electronics will play a central role. There will be significant technical applications for electronic control of tillage and planting equipment. Linked monitors and controls will be able to measure factors such as tillage depth and flow rate of applied materials. Tool adjustments will be made automatically.

"In small grains, increased use of semi-dwarf varieties will make electronic control of seeding depth ever more important. Differences of soil firmness, residue levels, and soil type all have to be taken into consideration. If the planting depth is automatically adjusted for the changing conditions, significantly higher crop yields could result.

"These developments will increase farm profitability while answering public concerns about soil erosion and potential groundwater pollution from farm chemicals," Olson predicts.

Wild Burros Ready For Adoption In Tennessee

A shipment of 70 wild burros rounded up from the Mohave desert of Arizona are available for adoption at the Bureau of Land Management's Wild Horse and Burro Adoption Center in Cross Plains, Tennessee. The burros, jacks and jennies (male and female), can be adopted by persons willing to give them a good home and with the proper facilities. An adoption fee of $75 is required.

These burros are wild and must be confined in a sturdy corral until they are gentled. They are basically afraid of humans. Once that fear is overcome and the burros have become dependent on the owners for food and water, they become devoted pets. Although most people keep burros as pets, some are used as pack animals, to pull small wagons or buggies, and for light farmwork.

"Burro" is the Spanish word for donkey. The burro has played an important part in the settlement of the West. They came to the New World as animals of burden with the Conquistadors and early Spanish missionaries. They were later put to use by prospectors during the gold and silver rushes in the western United States. When the mines played out, the burros were turned loose to fend for themselves. The burros took to the deserts and the populations expanded and spread throughout the West. They began to damage their environment. So, in 1971, the Wild Horse and Burro Protection Act was passed by the Congress after a strong grassroots movement against the indiscriminate slaughter of the wild herds. Under the Act, these historic animals are protected from harassment and slaughter and the populations are managed as a part of the natural environment. To maintain healthy herd populations and to assure humane treatment, the excess animals are rounded up and offered to the public for adoption.

While the burros are being gentled and trained, they must be maintained in a sturdy corral. The corral should be a minimum of 20 by 20 feet and at least 4 1/2 feet high. Fencing must consist of round pipes, poles, wooden planks, or similar materials that will not pose a hazard to the animals. Once gentled, they may be kept in large pastures.

Anyone interested in adopting a burro may contact the Wild Horse and Burro Adoption Center at Carr-Couts Road, Route 2, Cross Plains, Tennessee 37049 or call (615) 654-2180. To get to the adoption center, travel Route I-65 North from Nashville. Turn west at Exit 112 and drive about 4 miles to Cross Plains. Continue 1 mile past the town and turn right at Carr-Couts Road. The center is on the left 1 mile ahead.

Holiday Specials Highlight KET

Stories of the early pilgrims, songs of Thanksgiving, do-it-yourself holiday crafts, and other educational programs highlight KET's holiday programming Wednesday, November 25, Thursday, November 26 (Thanksgiving Day), and Friday, November 27.

Some of the Thanksgiving programs included in the three-day schedule are "Draw Along: Thanksgiving," a primary art program featuring simple Thanksgiving drawings; "Children of the Mayflower," the story of the famous Atlantic crossing and how the children occupied their time; "Holiday: An International Holiday Feast," a discussion of why Americans have Thanksgiving and what foods are served; and "The Draw Man," an intermediate art program showing an artist creating Thanksgiving scenes.

Holiday programming also includes "Pocahontas," a program tracing the childhood of the Indian princess, her contributions to Colonial Virginia, and her later life in England; "John Billington and Squanto," a program introducing Squanto as a friend of the Pilgrims; "The Pilgrims: How the Colonies Grew," a two-part program giving a historical look at the Pilgrims and the early development of the Colonies; and "Sometimes It's Turkey. Sometimes It's Feathers," a favorite children's story by Loma Balian illustrated for viewers.

Veterans Administration Questions and Answers

Q.—My ex-husband says I am the beneficiary of his National Service Life Insurance policy. Can I verify this? A.—Verification is possible only with the husband's permission in writing. This does not preclude a change in beneficiaries at a later date.

Q.—My husband died of a service connected disability and I have filed a claim for Dependency and Indemnity Compensation (DIC). My husband was a military retiree and was contributing to a monthly annuity for me under the Survivors Benefit Program (SBP). May receive DIC from the VA and SBP from the military? A.—No. You may not receive both benefits. For every dollar of DIC you receive, you must waive a dollar of your SBP benefit. Should your monthly SBP benefit exceed the monthly DIC benefit, you will be entitled to receive the difference. The premiums paid into the SBP fund during your husband's lifetime which represent that portion of the SBP benefit which you must waive in order to receive the DIC benefit will be refunded to you in a lump sum. You are not required to elect the DIC benefit. You may elect to receive the total SBP benefit; however, SBP benefits are fully taxable whereas DIC benefits are exempt from taxation.

Q.—Does the new GI Bill, which was started July 1, 1985, have an ending date for participation by active duty military personnel? A.—This program was made permanent on June 1, 1987. It was redesignated the Montgomery GI Bill with no termination date.

Q.—I was denied reimbursement for a privately purchased headstone because I purchased it prior to my husband's death. Is this correct? A.—Yes. Reimbursement may only be paid for a headstone or marker purchased after a veteran's death. If a headstone or marker was purchased prior to a veteran's death, an allowance may be paid for separate charges for engraving the existing headstone or marker following the death.

Q.—Is there a maximum VA-guaranteed home loan? A.—Depending upon the income of the veteran, lenders will approve a loan up to four times the maximum VA loan guaranty of $27,500, with no down payment. Beyond that amount, $110,000, lenders usually require a down payment.

COMMON SENSE SAFETY

COPYRIGHT 1987 KVMA Kentucky Veterinary Medical Association

Did you know your mechanic can be a part of your animal health team? If you think not, ask a horse owner whose trailer floor gave way and allowed the horse's legs to fall through the floor and drag on the highway. Or the one whose trailer door latch came open and allowed a horse to fall out, then be dragged by the neck down the highway.

Movement of animals by mechanical means—trucks, trailers, railroad cars—removes many of the natural defenses an animal has against injury and places additional responsibility on the animal's owner.

Each year, Kentucky veterinarians will see one or two such incidents as a horse falling through a trailer floor. Often, the accidents are preventable. Wooden floors in trailers should be checked periodically for weakness. Sometimes you can see rotting wood, sometimes not. You can, however, usually see a rotten plank sag under the weight of an animal.

Latches should be checked periodically as well. Some types of latches can be secured against accidental opening by simply fastening a harness snap into the ring of the hasp over which the tongue of the latch closes.

Adequate ventilation should be provided in hot weather. Temperature rises dramatically on highways and inadequate ventilation can cause heat stroke. During winter weather, persons transporting animals should be aware of possible wind chills factors affecting animals in trailers with open slats for sides.

If you're transporting valuable animals, or animals with emotional attachment such as show horses or pets, allowing a groom or handler to ride in the van with the horses is a good idea. Be sure he has communication with the driver.

If that is not possible, be sure sight lines to the trailer are clear and that you can see the back doors swinging open, if they come open. Also, open a ventilation window near the front of the trailer so you can see if an animal disappears.

Check animals at every stop. Also, check latches and other hardware. Ask your veterinarian for advice on safety precautions when moving animals. It's one of those off-beat things on which veterinarians are kept well informed. And they don't mind sharing safety information: prevention is an important part of any kind of medicine.

Engineer Says Quit Smoking

Jim Osborne hasn't smoked a cigarette for more than two years. His decision to quit coincided with the 1985 Great American Smokeout.

Osborne, who is a Prestonsburg native and Chief Engineer at Our Lady of the Way Hospital, says he began smoking when he was 15 years old "to act big and feel important." In those early days a pack of cigarettes lasted "two, three or four days." Thirty years later a carton of cigarettes lasted the same amount of time and Osborne says he felt old, not important.

The old feeling was coming from Osborne's lungs. Shortness of breath and difficulty in breathing were smoking's major influences on his life. Osborne says he never noticed while he was a smoker that smoking caused a mess nor that he was always picking a place to smoke.

Osborne says he tried to quit "at least once" before but he made an excuse to start back.

Health reasons finally helped him to quit.

"A friend had just had open heart surgery on the 12th or 14th (of November)," explains Osborne. "I quit on the 15th. I just threw them down. That's it. The surgery kind of scared me. The Smokeout happened at the same time."

Osborne says determination helped him manage to stay quit.

"I was determined," says Osborne, "and after a while, I realized how foul they (cigarettes) smelled. I wasn't going back to them—they just stunk!"

Osborne is supportive of Our Lady of the Way Hospital's participation in this year's Smokeout.

"If people bear with it, it'll work," he says. "People have to support one another."

Osborne thinks ex-smokers and non-smokers can give important support to the smoker who is trying to quit.

"...Like alcoholism, it's a habit that can be broken," he says. "...But you have to be ready before you can quit. The desire has to come from within."

"The bottom line," concludes Osborne, "is when you quit, don't start back. Life is precious; don't throw it away on a cigarette."

Safety Belt Use Laws Major Public Health Advancement

Buckling up saved the lives of 1,300 Americans between 1985-86, according to a study released by the University of North Carolina (UNC), and seat belt laws are now believed to prevent 100,000 injuries annually.

The study was presented in Winston-Salem, N.C., November 9, at the 20th anniversary meeting of the National Association of Governor's Highway Safety Representatives.

"Seat belt laws are an outstanding success and certainly rank as one of the most effective single steps the United States has ever taken to prevent highway deaths," said Dr. B. J. Campbell, director of the UNC Highway Safety Research Center and principal investigator in the study. "In virtually every state where a seat belt law has taken effect, belt use has at least doubled and in some cases tripled," he said.

Thirty states plus the District of Columbia now have safety belt use laws on their books which means that more than 186 million people live in states with belt laws. According to the UNC study, 48 percent of them are wearing their safety belts.

The estimated 1,300 lives saved in belt law states is based on the change in fatality trends compared to the period before the laws went into effect. The overall trend was 6.6 percent below forecast. Projected for the entire nation, the predicted savings would be about 1,700 lives at current belt use levels, according to the study.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration reports that the total number of traffic fatalities have increased from 1985 to 1986 and from the first part of 1986 to the first part of 1987. Dr. Campbell was quick to point out that "although the total number of fatalities grew by nearly five percent from 1985 to 1986, most of the increase occurred in the states that did not have a safety-belt-use law. The same is true when comparing the first part of 1986 and the first part of 1987. Although the total number of fatalities increased by 3.5 percent, the fatality rate actually dropped in the 13 states that changed from no enforcement to enforcement of a safety-belt-use law."

Armstrong Disagrees With Supreme Court

Attorney General David Armstrong recently submitted a motion to the Kentucky Supreme Court for discretionary review in the case of William V. Gross v. Commonwealth. The Kentucky Court of Appeals recently reversed Gross's conviction of first-degree wanton endangerment.

Gross was suspected of having cocaine and an arsenal of weapons at his residence. On March 2, 1986, officers with the Lexington Police Department attempted a surprise-entry of his home after obtaining a search warrant. During the attempted entry, Gross shot a Lexington police officer. He was subsequently convicted on the endangerment charge.

According to Armstrong, the Court of Appeals seized this case as an opportunity to formulate what it described as a "bright line rule," forbidding all nighttime execution of search warrants, and imposing strict guidelines for daylight execution of search warrants.

"We feel the court overlooked the important circumstances which justified the unannounced-entry and nighttime-entry of this search warrant," Armstrong said. In the motion, Armstrong also says that police officers did, in fact, loudly and continuously identify themselves as they began their surprise entry into the defendant's house.

Campbell said it was impossible to complete a national analysis of the effect of belt laws on motor vehicle crash injuries nationally because no national data base exists. Injury estimates in the study are based on data from Illinois, Michigan, New York, North Carolina and Texas.

Researchers need to identify the characteristics of people who resist wearing belts, Campbell added. Reaching that group is important, he said, "because evidence suggests that the hard-core non-user is at the highest risk for a crash."

The UNC study was funded in part by a grant from Traffic Safety Now, Inc. (TSN), a national, non-profit organization dedicated to encouraging safety-belt use laws. Charles L. Spilman, president of TSN, said the study shows the unquestionable impact of safety-belt-use laws. "We have saved a lot of lives over the past few years and we can save money, many more if everyone learns to buckle up regularly," he said.

Participants in Traffic Safety Now, Inc., include Chrysler Corporation, Ford Motor Company, General Motors Corporation, Volkswagen of America, Inc., Honda North America, Inc., the National Automobile Dealers Association, the American Seat Belt Council and the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association.

For Tracy Nelson, playing a nun is a personal victory

By Wendy Wallace

"You're always defined by the last part you play," says Tracy Nelson, who stars in "Fatal Confession: A Father Dowling Mystery," an NBC movie airing Monday, Nov. 30. "And lately I've gotten roles where I've been suffering from eating disorders or running around in heels. So this role was a personal victory for me."

Nelson plays Sister

Tracy Nelson

Steve, a nun and assistant to Father Dowling (Tom Bosley), a parish priest with a knack for solving murders. The pair become convinced that the apparent suicide of a wealthy young member of their parish (Kevin Crowley) was, in fact, a murder. They eventually learn that a senator (Leslie Nielsen) and the widow of an organized-crime leader (Sada Thompson) are linked to the crime. "The story is a mystery on the order of 'Murder, She Wrote' - it's convoluted, but it moves quickly," Nelson says.

"The great thing about the role of Steve is that I finally get to play someone tough, someone street," she explains. "There's something nice about not having to look glamorous for a change."

Nelson, 24, grew up around show business. Her father, the late actor and singer Rick Nelson, and her paternal grandparents, Ozzie and Harriet Nelson, starred in the classic series "The Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet." Her maternal grandfather is sportscaster and football great Tom Harmon. And her uncle is actor Mark Harmon ("Summer School," "After the Promise").

She first came to prominence in the series "Square Pegs," which aired during the 1982-83 season on CBS. Since then she has appeared in the films "Maria's Lovers" (1985) and "Down and Out in Beverly Hills" (1986). Her TV movie credits include "Tonight's the Night," "Kate's Secret" and this season's "If It's Tuesday, It Still Must Be Belgium."

"Originally, this was Tom's show," Nelson says of "Father Dowling," which was first conceived as a series. "The character of Steve was incidental. But once she's rescued from the streets by Father Dowling, she becomes his sidekick, and follows him everywhere. So Steve becomes very critical to the movie."

"Nothing is worse than being involved in a project you dislike, or playing a character you despise," she adds. "But when you play someone likable, it's great. So doing this movie was a labor of love."

ASK TONI

Loyal viewer wonders how Edith Bunker died

By Toni Reinhold

I watch every rerun of "All in the Family" that I can find, but I never seem to catch the one in which Edith dies. Would you please recap this episode and tell me how the writers handled her death? - S.E., Brockway, Pa.

Jean Stapleton

"All in the Family" aired from 1971 to 1979, was revamped for the 1979-80 season, then aired as "Archie Bunker's Place" until September 1983. Jean Stapleton portrayed Edith Bunker from the show's inception until 1980, when she departed, saying she was tired of the role. In the first episode of the 1980-81 season, a grieving Archie (Carroll O'Connor) revealed that Edith had died as the result of a stroke.

What is the title of the 1970s horror film that starred Karen Black? - B.D., Columbus, Ohio

I'm sure you're thinking of "Burnt Offerings" (1976), which starred Black, Oliver Reed, Burgess Meredith and Bette Davis. The film had the familiar touch of director

Dan Curtis, who rose to prominence with the horrific '60s soap opera "Dark Shadows."

Did Jamie Rose play one of the sisters on "The Waltons"? - J.B., Montrose, Colo.

No. Rose was never a regular on that series. You might have seen her on "Falcon Crest" or in the short-lived series "Lady Blue."

What's the name of the movie that starred Jimmy Stewart as a man with a glass eye? - V.F., Cincinnati, Ohio

Methinks you mean "Fool's Parade" (1971), which also starred George Kennedy, Anne Baxter and Kurt Russell.

When did "Sweet Hostage" air? - H.C.C., Lehigh, Pa.

This TV movie, which starred Linda Blair and Martin Sheen, aired in 1975.

I think Jane Pauley is one of the most gorgeous women on TV today. Where can I write to her? - J.P., Goldsboro, N.C.

The "Today" co-host, as you may know, is married to "Doonesbury" artist Garry Trudeau. Write to her in care of the show at NBC-TV, Room 307, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, NY 10112.

(Send your letters to Ask Toni, United Feature Syndicate, 200 Park Ave., Room 602, New York, N.Y. 10166. Due to the large volume of mail, personal replies cannot be given.)

JAKE AND THE FATMAN

On CBS's "Jake and the Fatman," airing TUESDAY, DEC. 1, a victim blinded in a robbery (guest star Amy Steele) tries to even the score with her attacker and at the same time get revenge on her unfaithful husband.

SOAP BEAN

Irizarry wants to avoid playing Lujack again

By Marie Michaels

"I didn't want to go on 'Santa Barbara' and do Lujack again," says Vincent Irizarry, who plays Dr. Scott Clark on the NBC soap. "Scott is the complete opposite of Lujack. I was very careful about that."

Vincent Irizarry

Irizarry first came to the attention of the daytime audience in 1984, as gang leader Lujack on "Guiding Light." But after two years on "GL," Irizarry left the soap and headed for California, seeking prime-time TV and film roles.

He has succeeded on both counts. He had a featured role in the Clint Eastwood film "Heartbreak Ridge" (1986), and appeared in the recent CBS miniseries "Echoes in the Darkness." He'll also be seen next month on "Hotel."

With his career going so well, why is Irizarry doing another soap?

"I missed working on a regular basis," he explains. "My biggest problem has been dealing with the time in between jobs. It's very frustrating to do a job, feel great about it, and then have to go out the next day and look for another one."

Lots of "GL" fans would like to see Irizarry return as Lujack, but he says it won't happen.

"I had a voice in having Lujack killed off," he says. "The show asked me if I'd return to play Lujack, and I told them I didn't think I'd do it. I felt that I gave the first breath to the character, and I wanted to give the last. I didn't want to do the same role again."

To avoid being typecast, Irizarry made sure that Scott would be nothing like the rebellious Lujack.

"Scott is a doctor who is very devoted to his work," Irizarry says. "I think he has high morals and high standards in general. He comes from a blue-collar background - his dad worked on oil rigs off the coast of California - and he's very conscious of it. He's the type that would someday open a free clinic for people who can't afford medical bills."

Scott will become romantically involved with the resident "SB" villain, Gina Capwell (Robin Mattson).

"Becoming involved with Gina will cause a conflict for Scott because she's everything he's hated in life," Irizarry says. "She's manipulative, for instance. But she has something that's very attractive to him."

'Rich Hall Show' offers offbeat observations

By Denise Gorga

Where did you last see Rich Hall? Spouting "sniglets" on HBO? Pushing Pizza Hut pizza on his cross-country commercials? Guesting on "The Tonight Show" or "Late Night with David Letterman"?

Rich Hall

Now comedy purveyors who want longer exposure to the lispng, apple-cheeked Hall get their wish. "The Rich Hall Show" airs Sunday, Nov. 29 and Tuesday, Dec. 1 on Showtime.

Hall spends much of this half-hour special on stage, although skits are interspersed throughout. There are disappointments, such as a "heckler" in the balcony who's dressed up as Abe Lincoln but who behaves more like Statler and Waldorf from "The Muppet Show." But Hall's idiosyncratic observations and offbeat associations should keep you interested. To coin a sniglet - a word that doesn't exist, but should - this special is vidiocre: could stand improvement, but has enough laughs to keep you watching.

• On Tuesday, Dec. 1, The Movie Channel presents a middle-aged sex symbol in his only Oscar-winning role. "The Color of Money" (1986), Martin Scorsese's sequel to "The Hustler" (1961), stars Paul Newman as "Fast Eddie" Felson, an aging but still-sharp pool shark. Baby-faced sex symbol Tom Cruise plays his protege. Splendid camerawork and a stellar soundtrack assembled by former Band-leader Robbie Robertson enhance the poolroom ambience.

• The USA Network is also angling for money - albeit for a good cause. The six-hour "Thanks for Giving" special, which airs Sunday, Nov. 29, will raise funds for the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation. Scheduled guests include Bob Hope, Mary Tyler Moore and Frank Sinatra. Gloria Loring and Michael Landon, whose participation should reinforce his nice-guy image, will co-host.

• What's the only animated Christmas classic to feature Tiny Tim? Step aside, Snoopy, Grinch, Frosty and Rudolph. The diminutive Dickens character and his love of razzleberry dressing are featured in "Mr. Magoo's Christmas Carol," which airs on the USA Network on Thursday, Dec. 5. Jim Backus provides the voice of Scrooge. Baby boomers and Magoo mavens will remember this special from the '60s.

Last Rites For Holiday Turkey

You did it! Preparing the holiday meal for your entire family was no easy task, but even Aunt Sally had to agree that yours was the juiciest turkey ever. Now that the plates are cleared and the guests gone, you plo down on the couch to rest. (Whew!) Wait! Where's the turkey?

For safety's sake don't leave your turkey or any other food item sitting at room temperature for longer than two hours. Take a few minutes before you rest to store it and the other foods properly in the refrigerator or freezer. Foods left on a counter top or in the oven are havens for bacterial growth that can spoil leftovers from even the best of meals.

Use your leftovers as creative food budget stretchers for a next-day meal that's more than reheated plates of the same thing or just sandwiches of cold turkey slices. The following are a few ideas you might consider.

FRUITED TURKEY POTATO SALAD

- 2 large red potatoes
- 2 tablespoons low calorie salad dressing
- 1 cup (6 ounces) diced cooked turkey
- 1 apple, unpelleted, diced
- 1 stalk green onion sliced
- 2 ribs celery, diagonally sliced
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon ground ginger
- 1/4 cup non-fat plain yogurt
- Salt, to taste

Cook potatoes in boiling, salted water until tender, about 30 minutes. Cool slightly. Peel and coarsely chop potatoes. In a medium-sized bowl, mix potatoes with salad dressing. Cool. Add turkey, apple, green onion, celery, sugar and ginger. Stir in yogurt. Season with salt, if desired. Chill well before serving on a bed of fresh lettuce. Makes two servings.

TURKEY CREOLE

- 1 cup chopped onion
- 1/2 cup chopped celery
- 1/2 cup chopped green pepper
- 2 tablespoons oil
- 2 cups cooked or canned tomatoes
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon chili powder
- Pepper, to taste
- 1/2 cup instant nonfat dry milk
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1/2 cup water
- 2 cups chopped cooked turkey
- 1 cup shredded cheese
- Hot buttered rice or noodles

Cook onion, celery and green pepper in oil in large skillet until tender, about five minutes. Add tomatoes, salt, chili powder and pepper. Cover and boil gently for 15 minutes.

Mix dry milk and flour. Add water slowly, stirring until smooth. Add milk mixture to tomato sauce. Cook and stir over medium heat until thickened. Cook two minutes longer. Add turkey, cover and heat slowly until hot, stirring occasionally. Stir cheese into mixture until melted.

Serve over hot buttered rice or noodles. Makes six servings.

TURKEY ENCHILADA STACK

- 2 cups cooked shredded turkey
- 2 cups low calorie sour cream (recipe follows)
- 1 1/2 cups shredded cheddar cheese, divided
- 1/2 cup chopped green onion
- 1/4 cup chopped green chilies (from a 4-ounce can)
- Salt, to taste
- 3/4 teaspoon ground cumin
- 2 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 12 corn or flour tortillas
- 1 (10-ounce) can enchilada sauce

Combine cooked turkey, sour cream, onion, 1 cup of the chilies, salt and cumin. Blend together, and set aside.

In a medium skillet, heat oil over high heat. Cook tortillas one at a time for 10 seconds in hot oil. Remove from oil with tongs; drain well on paper toweling.

Pour enchilada sauce into a pie plate. Dip one side of tortilla into the sauce then place it, sauce side down on a baking sheet.

Spread 1/3 cup of the filling over the tortilla. Repeat procedure with remaining tortillas, sauce and filling, stacking one tortilla on top of another and ending with a tortilla.

Pour any remaining enchilada sauce over top of stack, then sprinkle with remaining 1/2 cup of cheese. Bake at 400 degrees F for 20 minutes. When tortilla has finished baking, cut it into wedges and serve on individual plates. Garnish with tomatoes, lettuce, chili peppers and guacamole, if desired. Makes six to eight servings.

Low Calorie Sour Cream: Combine 3 tablespoons milk or buttermilk and 1 tablespoon lemon juice in container of electric blender. With blender on low speed, gradually add 1 cup low fat cottage cheese. Cover and process on high for two minutes. If necessary, thin with additional milk. Makes one cup. Store excess in refrigerator.

Miss Porter, Mr. Hansford To Wed

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Porter, of Allen, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Pamela Lynn Porter to Mr. Byron E. Hansford, son of Berniece Hansford, of Wayland.

Miss Porter, an alumna of Georgetown College, is employed by the Floyd County Board of Education and is presently teaching at Allen Central High School.

An open church ceremony will be held December 26 at 6:30 p.m. at the Irene Cole Baptist Church, Prestonsburg.

Cooking with Cranberries

From the American Institute for Cancer Research

The crisp autumn flavor and colors of cranberries make them a natural for nutritious cooking this time of year. In years past, the first big frost marked the end of the regular harvest and the start of the "crimson harvest" of plump, juicy cranberries. Fresh cranberries are most readily available from September through December, so now is a good time to take advantage of them.

Too often we tend to think of cranberries only in terms of a jelly or whole berry sauce to accompany a roast turkey, but cranberries are much more versatile than that. North America's native berry makes luscious pies, cakes and breads, not to mention jams, relishes and sauces. Cranberry drinks, cranberries in vegetable dishes and cranberries in zesty fruit salads—the list seems endless. And their distinctive, tart taste goes particularly well in hearty main dishes of meat, fish or poultry.

Cranberries also store well, either in the refrigerator or the freezer. To freeze, simply rinse the berries, drain well, and pack them fairly tightly into a plastic freezer container and freeze. Here's one new and tasty way to enjoy cranberries:

CRANBERRY SOUP

Served hot or cold, the sweet-tart-spicy flavor of this soup will start any meal on a good note. Although it's rich in taste, the use of evaporated skim milk means it's not high in fat.

- 1 pound fresh cranberries (4 cups)
- 1 large cinnamon stick
- 1/2 to 3/4 cup sugar (depending on tartness of berries)
- 2 cups evaporated skim milk
- 1/4 cup plain lowfat yogurt nutmeg
- Place cranberries and cinnamon stick

It's High Time To Prepare For Cold Weather Driving

The Thanksgiving holiday signals not only the beginning of a season of festivities, but also a time to "winterize" your vehicle and prepare for winter driving.

There are three general rules to remember about your vehicle in the winter: It won't start the same way, steer the same way or stop the same way. The roads, visibility and even drivers are different too. So be prepared. Have the following things checked:

Brakes—Have them balanced, adjusted if necessary.

Fluid levels—Battery, brake, clutch, radiator, transmission levels full.

Battery—Test for full charge and good connections.

Tires—Put on snow tires and be sure treads are deep enough to grip snow well.

Exhaust system—Have muffler and exhaust systems checked for leaks.

Windshield—Put windshield antifreeze in washer; are wipers, defroster working?

Oil—Change to lighter, winter weight oil.

Lights—Double-check headlights, brake and turn signals. Keep them clean.

Tune-Up—Get a complete engine tune-up for easier starts and smoother running.

On ice or snow, before you go: Clear windows of ice and snow—completely; warm up the engine a few minutes; turn on heat and defroster to prevent fogging; put low beams on when it's gray or snowing and use turn signals; back in when parking for added momentum to get going later.

What to do when you're in a skid? Take your foot off the gas and off the clutch in a car with standard transmission. Take your foot off the brake until you control steering again. Never jam on the brakes—squeeze brakes instead. Turn the steering wheel in the direction you are skidding as gently as possible.

Keep emergency essentials in your car. These items include tools (such as a jack with spare tire), long-handled shovel, sand, rock salt or traction mats in case you get stuck, tire and two chains, booster cables, snow brush and ice scraper, flashlight and flares. Also, several blankets may be kept in the vehicle in case your vehicle breaks down and you have to wait for help.

Finally, allow yourself extra time to get to your destination, check the weather forecast before you leave, and if you're caught by snow or sleet and the visibility is poor, get off the road. Using your safety belt is never out of season and neither is abstaining from drinking and driving.

During the Thanksgiving holiday, the Kentucky State Police will increase their patrols. The high-speed pursuit vehicles will also be enforcing the speed limit and watching for drinking drivers as well.

Officers will be enforcing the 65 mph speed limit on the interstates and the 55 mph speed limit around the three metropolitan areas of Louisville, Lexington and northern Kentucky.

Anyone who spots a suspected drinking driver is encouraged to call the Action Rap-ID toll-free hotline 1-800-222-5555. You can call anonymously and just give a description of the vehicle, its license number if possible and the direction it was last headed.

Last Thanksgiving, nine people were killed in eight accidents. Eight of the nine did not have on safety belts; six were completely or partially ejected from their vehicles; and two were alcohol-involved drivers. Out of 1,370 accidents, 480 people were injured during the Thanksgiving season.

The Kentucky State Police again are participating in a C.A.R.E. (Combined Accident Reduction Effort) holiday, in a cooperative endeavor with other states to promote safety on our highways.

The official Thanksgiving holiday period this year will run from six p.m., Wednesday, Nov. 25 through midnight, Sunday, Nov. 29.

Applications Open To School For Arts

The Governor's School for the Arts is now accepting both student and faculty applications for the second annual session planned for July 3-30 in Louisville.

Established last year by Gov. Martha Layne Collins and the Kentucky General Assembly, the school is a joint program of the Kentucky Department of the Arts and the Kentucky Center for the Arts.

"Our goal is to develop the artistic skills and creativity of Kentucky's talented youth," said David Thurmond, the school's director. "The classes provide them with an opportunity to study with outstanding artist-teachers. The students also attend performances and see the works of leading artists at the Kentucky Center for the Arts and other cultural centers while they are attending the school," he said.

The Governor's School is a residential program for 120-150 students from across the state who have been identified as artistically gifted and have completed their sophomore or junior year of high school. The residential host for the program will be Bellarmine College, a private, liberal arts college in Louisville. Classes, performances and activities will take place at both Bellarmine and at the Kentucky Center for the Arts.

Instruction will be offered in visual arts, creative writing, dance, drama, instrumental and vocal music. History, aesthetics, criticism and theory of the arts will also be offered, and career and college counseling will round out the program.

For applications, write Governor's School for the Arts, Kentucky Center for the Arts, Five Riverfront Plaza, Louisville, Ky. 40202.

THE TIE THAT BINDS

Some drug interactions can be avoided by spacing the two drugs far enough apart so that they are not in the stomach at the same time. For example, the antibiotic effect of tetracycline can be decreased if a person takes an iron supplement at the same time. The iron pill binds with the tetracycline and prevents some of the tetracycline from being absorbed from the stomach. With this interaction, it is not necessary for the person to stop taking one of the drugs. This drug interaction can be avoided by simply taking the iron supplement at least three hours before, or two hours after, the tetracycline. A long-lasting iron supplement must not be used because the drug interaction can still occur.

COOLEY APOTHECARY carries what you would expect to find in a well-inventoried drug store. We are very proud to be able to provide families in this area with all their pharmaceutical needs. Our records are fully maintained so your doctor can check for drug interactions and allergic reactions. They can also be readily available to you for insurance and income tax purposes. You'll find us located at No. 2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106 and open Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-4. MasterCard and Visa honored plus we welcome all third party payments.

HANDY HINT:

Rockwell Special Airs Today On KET

Artist Norman Rockwell captured the essence of America's fond memories, high aspirations, golden childhoods, and bright promises for the future.

"Norman Rockwell, An American Portrait" airs today (Wednesday), November 25 at 8 p.m. The hourlong special repeats Thursday, November 26 at noon.

Commentators, including Frank Deford of "Sports Illustrated," and syndicated columnists Ellen Goodman and Erma Bombeck, offer their interpretations of Rockwell's perspective of life. They discuss the effect his portraits had on the American people.

During World War II Rockwell departed from light-hearted subjects. His covers dealt with the wounded, the bombings, and young G.I.'s trying to make friends with children of other countries.

In a popular series of "Saturday Evening Post" covers from 1941 to 1946, he led the reader on the adventures of Willie Gillis, the G.I. who was never shown fighting, but had his hands full protecting a food parcel from home from hungry buddies, battling his way through the hospitality of the USO, and attending church services.

"Norman Rockwell, An American Portrait" is a production of WQED/Pittsburgh.

Essay/Poster Contest Deadline Draws Near

The deadline for the Conservation Essay and Poster contest is drawing near. Floyd county schools should turn in their top three essays and posters as soon as possible after December 1 and no later than December 4. This allows judges time to read and look over the entries before the final December 15 judging.

Principals' reports should be turned in no later than December 4.

Fort Boonesborough Site Of Archaeological Digs

Grids, shovel probes, sieves and a dirt-encrusted rifle ball from a muzzleloader are the stuff of which archaeological digs are made. The search for the original site of Fort Boonesborough is underway under the direction of Nancy O'Malley, an archaeologist with the department of anthropology at the University of Kentucky.

Commissioner of Parks June Hudson stated, "I feel this is a unique opportunity for visitors to Boonesborough to see an archaeological dig in progress. It is certain to be an economic boost to this area, as well as an important source of historical information."

Preliminary digging to determine the exact location of the original Fort Boonesborough began in October. Grids were laid out and soil samples were taken from each point in the grid.

Volunteers helped Ms. O'Malley screen the soil samples for artifacts. Gunflints, a lead rifle ball and a cow or bison bone were found buried within the soil layers sampled. Volunteers also found stacked stones, which indicate a chimney or the foundation of a building may have been on the site.

Another site on the park that will be excavated is a fresh water spring located on the south end of the park. Ms. O'Malley believes this spring may be the same one that is marked on an early town plat of Boonesborough.

Other features on the park that are of interest are a sulfur well, a tobacco warehouse and Sycamore Hollow, which was once the location of a salt lick. Licks were places where animals went to lick the saline, brackish earth around springs.

The project is funded by contributions from the Kentucky Department of Parks, the Madison County Historical Society, the Fort Boonesborough State Park Association and the Kentucky Heritage Council.

The ground-breaking ceremony for the Fort Boonesborough State Park archaeological dig will be held Nov. 17 at 1 p.m. at Fort Boonesborough State Park. Commissioner of Parks June Hudson, Jim Kurz of the Center for Business Development at the University of Kentucky, Ms. O'Malley and local dignitaries will participate in the ceremony.

"This archaeological dig is another step toward improving and understanding our historic sites. It is a part of the ongoing commitment of the Department of Parks in particular and the Tourism Cabinet as a whole to preserve our unique Kentucky heritage," said Tourism Secretary G. Wendell Combs.

KIDS AT GROWN-UP PARTIES

You've been invited to a holiday party and you can't find a baby sitter. Do you bring your children to the party? No, says Elizabeth Post, quoted in the Mother and Child section in Good Housekeeping's December issue, not unless the children are specifically invited, and if the invitation isn't clear, check with the hostess. Don't ask "May I bring the children?" Rather say, "We weren't sure if children are included."
