

Attorney General Moves To Oust Caudill From Magistrate's Post

By B.A. Heinze

Magistrate Eddie Caudill and former Magistrate Kenneth Roberts have both figured prominently in the news during the past week. They are among those indicted in 1984 on charges stemming from a state police investigation of the county's finances during the tenure of the late Judge-Executive Jerry Lafferty, Jr.

Caudill, who was found guilty of possession of a forged instrument in Pike Circuit Court in July 1985, was the only one of three magistrates tried who was re-elected, and he has continued to serve on the fiscal court just as he has for the past 22 years.

Now, however, the attorney general's office has notified Commonwealth's Attorney Jerry Patton to begin ouster proceedings against Caudill. Why the matter was not addressed in September when Caudill was released from the county jail, here, where he had begun serving a one-year sentence is not clear. At that time, it was said that he was free pending a federal appeal of the case. No decision has yet been made on the appeal.

If the move to oust Caudill could be accomplished by February 27, the district 3 magistrate's office could be voted on in the May primary election. It is thought to be doubtful that his removal from office could be accomplished by this date if at all.

Caudill's conviction and one-year

Roberts Case Settled With Plea Bargain

sentence came on being found guilty of forging the name of county employee Russell Hamilton to a check for $2,000. The long-time magistrate has said throughout that he did so on direction of Judge Lafferty and that the money was owed him by the county for furnishing of a trailer to be used at the mini-park at Minnie.

Caudill's attorney, Ned Pillersdorf, appealed first to the Kentucky Supreme Court, and when this appeal was rejected, took the case to U.S. District Court on grounds that Caudill has the constitutional right to be tried in this county. Pillersdorf maintains Caudill should remain free pending the appeal.

The attorney general's office, however, apparently differs, and in a letter to Patton said the federal case is a "separate and collateral civil matter having no bearing" on the outcome of the criminal appeal.

Following the request to begin measures to remove Caudill from office, Patton asked, Monday, an opinion from the Kentucky Bar Association as to whether a conflict of interest exists because of his acting as defense attorney for one of those indicted along with Caudill in 1984. He said that he had assumed it was the state's responsibility to remove Caudill from office since it had handled prosecution of the case against him.

Last Wednesday in Pike Circuit Court, former Magistrate Kenneth Roberts was ordered to pay $1,500 in restitution after pleading guilty to using county employees to do work on a private remodeling job. Roberts entered the plea of guilty to a misdemeanor theft charge under a plea bargain, and in exchange, six felony charges were dismissed by Judge Will T. Scott, who also ordered Roberts to pay an additional $500 fine.

The former magistrate, of Garrett, held the office from 1973 until 1985 when he was defeated in the primary election by Jackie Edford Owens. In the original indictment, in addition to the charge of using county workers, he was also charged with illegally using county credit cards to pay for a hunting trip in Wyoming. A Pike county jury convicted Roberts in April 1986 on a charge of felony theft in connection with the hunting trip, but jurors were unable to agree on verdicts on other charges.

This conviction and accompanying 2½-year sentence were overturned last DESECRATION OF A CEMETERY has been charged after relatives of some buried in the cemetery above found that a high wall had been cut around it, and that access can be gained only by climbing the mound of earth shown in the front of the picture.

A warrant has been issued naming Gary Branham as responsible for actions that Mrs. Juanita Conn, of Tolers Creek, says have made it difficult if not impossible for her to visit the graves of her relatives. She also maintains that her brother's headstone is missing and that another has been turned around. Plantings of evergreens have been removed and all but one tree cut down, she says.

Excavation work around the cemetery is said to have been necessitated prior to construction of an office building on which work has not yet begun.

Mr. Branham, when contacted by The Times, said he had no comment on the matter. Mrs. Conn is being represented by John David Caudill, Martin attorney.

Former Supt. Here, Ishmael Triplett, Dies in Lexington

Ishmael Triplett, 89, former school principal and superintendent here, died Sunday at the Mayfair Manor Nursing and Convalescent Center in Lexington.

Hundreds who attended Prestonsburg grade and high schools knew and respected Mr. Triplett, who maintained close ties with them, attending as many class reunions of his former students as possible.

Mr. Triplett taught at the Lackey High School from 1925-1927 before becoming principal there in 1928. He then transferred to the Prestonsburg Independent School District where he served as superintendent from 1928 to 1944 when the city school system merged with the county district in 1945, Triplett joined the

Floyd UMW Members Vote Favors Contract, 233-85

By Joe Porter

The vote in Floyd county reflected the national results as the United Mine Workers voted overwhelmingly last week to adopt a new five-year contract with the Bituminous Coal Operators Association. Floyd miners balloted 233 to 85 in favor of it.

"I thought it was a good contract, considering the way things are," said Ivan Gibson, president of Local 1645 at Garrett. Gibson said he voted for the contract because of the provisions for increased job security and raises for pensioners and widows.

Under the new contract, retired miners in the 1950 and 1974 programs will receive increases between $20 and $30 monthly. Surviving spouses of 1974 pensioners received 50 percent of their spouse's pension; now they will receive 75 percent.

Eddie Caudill, president of Local 5899, Wheelwright, had a similar response to Gibson's. "I thought it was a good and fair contract," Caudill said. "The job opportunities and job security was all right. I liked that part of it, that and the program for job training."

The new contract provides that the operators will pay for a jointly administered training and education program for laid-off UMWA members. They will contribute at least $20 million to the fund over the life of the contract.

The agreement also calls for hourly wage increase of $1.05 for the first three years of the pact, bringing the top wage earner to $132.95 a day. Even this modest increase didn't disappoint

Caudill. "The wage increase was not a big issue with me. I wouldn't have wanted to take a cut, but that wasn't necessary. Only thing we hope for is to stay up with the cost of living. With the coal market in the condition it's in and so many people not working, job security was the important thing."

Acting president of District 30 Bobby Roy Justice said that the national results have not been tabulated yet, but that the count was better than two to one in favor of the new contract. In District 30 the results were better than three to one: 1455 for, 456 against. "I think Richard Trumka and the top three officers did an excellent job in negotiating this contract," Justice said.

According to Justice, the contract negotiations began in Washington in the early part of November and the agreement was reached at 5:40 p.m., January 30. The previous contract would have expired at midnight January 31st. And while the negotiations were going on, both sides agreed to a news blackout. "They kept the press out so that they could get the negotiations out of the way," Justice said, "and so that the press wouldn't blow things out of proportion."

McDowell Native Heads Company for Inventors

By Tim Sizemore

An invention is 1% inspiration and 99% perspiration, according to Thomas Edison, and a former McDowell man hopes to decrease the perspiration of other would-be inventors.

S. Franklin Hall, president of Infi-Tech, of Ashtabula, Ohio, a company he organized to help inventors cut through red tape and market their creations, says that he used to be a frustrated inventor. "I found it so frustrating trying to get my ideas on the market, that I determined to develop a corporation to help smooth the way for others," he said.

Two of Hall's inventions that have been successful are, "The Klapper" and "Paint a Pig." The Klapper is a hand held device which amplifies the sound of clapping and has been distributed nationally.

"Paint a Pig" is a piggy bank you can design and paint to suit your own taste. Another invention which he feels will be a success is a water raft with rotary hand operated oars. Hall says the new raft can reach the speed of 25 MPH.

One of the problems Hall faces is that there is a surplus of inventors in need of his services. Although he hopes to expand, he says.

Wife Regains Freedom As Jones Drops Charges

By Megan Corcoran

Eddie Jones, 27, suffered seven knife wounds when his wife, in conspiracy with her parents and her 16-year-old boyfriend from Wheelwright, took their three small children from his home at Martin.

Mr. Jones had been separated from his wife, Mary Jones, 22, for two months prior to the attack.

Arrested and charged in the stabbing and abduction were Mrs. Jones, her parents, Vidal Trujillo, 42, of Gallipolis, O., and his wife, Mrs. Mary Trujillo, 41, of Means. A juvenile was also arrested and is being held in the Regional Detention Center, here. The Trujillos and Mary Jones were lodged in the county jail, here, but Wednesday, Mary Jones was released on two years probation from jail when charges of terroristic threatening were dropped by her husband, Eddie. Under conditions of Mrs. Jones' probation, she is to remain out of Floyd county for the full time of her probation period, according to State Police Detective Danny Stumbo.

Friday morning, however, the Department of Social Services received a call alerting them to the fact that Mrs. Jones was out of jail and living at home with her husband and children in Martin. By noon that same day, the Jones' were ordered to bring their children to the court house where their custody was given over to Mr. Jones' sister, Glenda Pitts, and her husband, Larry.

Investigating officer Det. Stumbo said Friday that although Mrs. Jones is supposed to stay out of the county, Mr. Jones is the only one who can bring charges against her for violating the order. Tuesday, however, Mary Jones was seen at the county court house with her husband and children.

DSS worker Debbie Latta said Tuesday that in cases such as this the custody of the children involved goes to relatives 40 TONS OF COAL were spread over US 23 just north of the highway 80 overpass, Friday. The driver of the 18-wheel tractor trailer, Robert Kestner, working for Whitten Trucking Company, of Paintsville, said he was driving northbound when a black pickup truck pulled out in front of him from the stop sign. When he tried to slow down, his load swung and the fifth wheel connecting the tractor to the trailer was ripped off. The pickup, he said, never stopped.

Judge Directs Arson Charge Be Dismissed

By Joe Porter

Before the case even went to the jury, Circuit Court Judge Hollie Conley decided, based on insufficient evidence, to dismiss the second degree arson charge against the defendant Forrest Mitchell. "The court has the duty that if the evidence is just as consistent with innocence as it is with guilt to give a directed verdict in favor of the defendant," Judge Conley said after the trial.

Mitchell, 51, of David, was charged following the explosion and fire that ripped through his Goble-Roberts home on September 29, 1986. Prestonsburg's arson investigator Larry Adams testified that the explosion was caused when a natural gas pipeline in the furnace room was disconnected; hours later the gas-filled home was ignited by a candle left burning in a bedroom.

The explosion, witnessed by railroad workers behind the house, lifted the roof two feet off its supports, shattered windows, and tore through a brick wall. At the time, Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell were in Ypsilanti, Michigan, and no one was in the house.

The Mitchells divorced soon after the explosion destroyed their home, and due to the fact that Commonwealth Attorney

Topics to be discussed will include the proposed takeover of jail operations by the state as well as other legislative concerns presently before the General Assembly.

...about your Social Security

By JIM KELLY
Social Security District Director
For the Big Sandy Area
Report Name Change To Social Security

People who change their names—whether because of marriage, divorce or other reasons—should be certain to contact Social Security to apply for a new Social Security card, Jim Kelly, Social Security Director for the Big Sandy Area, said recently.

Employers report earnings covered by the Social Security under the name by which employees are known and the Social Security number, Kelly said. If the workers' names are not listed correctly, their earnings may not be properly entered on their Social Security record, and they may not receive all credit due them.

A marriage itself does not have to be reported. Many women continue to use their maiden names after they marry. If this is the case, Social Security need not be informed of the marriage.

Even women who are not employed should report any change so their Social Security records will contain the correct name when they apply for benefits.

To apply for a new Social Security card, which will show the new name and the old number, contact any Social Security office and ask for an Application for Social Security Number card (Form SS-5). Proof of identity under both the old and new names is required, a marriage license for example.

GROW Meet Slated At MSU, Feb. 25-26

Morehead State University will be the host site for the Growth and Research Organization for Women (GROW) Conference on Thursday and Friday, Feb. 25-26.

The conference is designed to provide a network for support and direction for women and to allow women researchers to present their findings, according to Dr. Lynne Fitzgerald, MSU assistant professor of health, physical education and recreation.

"About 50 persons have already registered for the conference," said Dr. Fitzgerald, who along with Dr. Beverly McCormick, assistant professor of real estate, is coordinating the event.

While this is the seventh annual GROW Conference, this is the first time the event has been held on the MSU campus. Registration will begin at 8 a.m. in the third floor lobby, Adron Doran University Center.

Mrs. Wilma Grote, wife of MSU's president, will welcome the group at the opening session which begins at 9 a.m. in the Riggle Room. The hour-long sessions will begin at 9:10 and continue throughout the day. Various breaks will be provided.

Retin-A—Wonder Drug Or Potential Danger?

By Meg Corcoran

Wrinkles from the sun may be smoothed away by the "wonder drug" Retin-A, but many who have used the product in recent weeks have been surprised by some painful, and possibly dangerous side effects.

Retin-A, a vitamin A acid compound, has been prescribed for years as a treatment cream for acne. However, in recent weeks, the product has been the focus of one medical study which produced evidence of the ointment's intense side effects.

According to Jim Sieg, Ph.D., Highlands Regional Medical Center's Director of Pharmacy, said Tuesday, "The public needs to be warned of the drug's unavoidable side effects." Dr. Sieg described some of the reactions to Retin-A as "redness, swelling, abnormal dryness, peeling, cracking and scaling of the skin surface when exposed to the drug."

Dr. Sieg stressed the fact that Retin-A is to be used in a 12-16 week treatment, and during this treatment period, the skin is going to show some severe, adverse reactions to the drug. He also emphasized the importance being aware of these reactions, and said use of the drug without knowledge of its side effects can be dangerous.

Retin-A was the focus of the January issue of the Journal of American Medical Association in a study in which the cream was given to 40 adults. In this study, the Retin-A cream was to be spread on forearms and the face. Out of the 40 who participated, 92% showed signs of dermatitis, or a rash on the skin surface. Three patients withdrew completely from the study due to severe skin rashes.

The study described the adverse reactions seen by the drug as a burning sensation to the skin, tingling, and a painful sensitivity to sunlight and cold air. In addition, Dr. Sieg made it clear that the side effects described in the study are unavoidable, and every patient who uses Retin-A will suffer from one or more of the side effects.

Statistics show that the cream does reduce wrinkles caused by the sun. However, wrinkles caused by aging are not affected. And Retin-A has not been approved by the Federal Drug Administration for any use other than acne treatment. More studies must be done before Retin-A may be approved as an anti-age emollient.

Pat Willis, marketing representative at Highlands Regional Medical Center, said that the vitamin A cream is in high demand suddenly. Most pharmacists are either sold out, or just about sold out, and are ordering more of the drug, according to Willis. All the pharmacies in Lexington have been literally sold out, which is enough to make you worry about all those people who are using this potentially dangerous drug without knowing what it can do to the skin, she said.

There are reports of Retin-A being sold in Mexico for a fraction of the price here in the U.S. In Matamoros, Mexico, the ointment is sold for about $1.95 a tube, where here in the U.S., the same tube could cost up to $20, said Dr. Sieg. He also added that in Mexico, there is no need for a prescription, and here, the cream is sold by prescription only. In Mexico, pharmacies are also sold-out and ordering more Retin-A.

Anyone thinking of using Retin-A is advised to see a dermatologist prior to any use of the drug whatsoever. If you are using the drug, be sure to read the insert containing directions and cautions to be sure that the drug is being used under the right supervision, advises Dr. Sieg.

Wants Broad Form Vote

While serving in the military for 20 years, I never imagined that my home state would allow coal companies to strip-mine someone's land without their permission. Although I fought hard for America's freedoms, for the past few years I have been denied the use of most of the land on my farm because of the broad form deed, which allows a coal company to destroy my land to get to their coal.

I don't want bulldozers and other heavy equipment to tear up anyone else's land like they did mine.

I strongly encourage Kentuckians across the state to contact their legislators to ask that they put a proposed constitutional amendment on the ballot in November. I would like the voters to have a chance to decide: Should coal companies be allowed to strip-mine someone's land without the landowner's consent?

The Senate passed a bill 38-0 to put the broad form deed amendment on the ballot in November. I hope that the Kentucky House of Representatives will also pass this important piece of legislation.

Broad Form Deed Bond of Injustice

Sometime around the turn of the century the people of Eastern Kentucky dealt in good faith with speculators who purchased their mineral, oil, and gas rights. Often the agents were friends, neighbors, or even relatives hired to convince the people of honest intentions. The landowners had no real perceived value of the minerals, oil, and gas and knew that the methods of extraction could not possibly interfere with their way of life. The landowners were, for the most part, correct in their assumptions.

Those of us who have followed the original landowners down the years, however, have been victims of the most hideous crime perpetrated on the people of this state since the days of slavery. Every effort to protect landowners' surface rights, homes, and farmlands have been met with a solid block by the courts and coal companies.

A good and honorable law was passed in 1984 to limit surface mining except by landowners consent. The Kentucky Supreme Court in a "non-decision" struck down the wishes of not only the people of Eastern Kentucky, but of the whole state as well. This action is a dangerous precedent and appears as a government by decree instead of a government by representation.

Now we have a constitutional amendment against the broad-form deed being voted on by our legislature and once again we need the support of all Kentuckians. We must reclaim our constitutional government now and release our people from the bonds of injustice.

Broad Form Deed A Shock

I am a newcomer to Kentucky, and as a newcomer had no idea what a "Broad Form Deed" was or how it effected my life. However, as a landowner, I was invited to a meeting of a group acutely aware of what Broad Form Deeds are.

I was shocked to find that United States landowners in general and Kentucky landowners in specific could possibly be treated so shabbily. My shock extended not only to the fact that it happened, but that it continued to happen for so long a period of time.

I gained heart by the passage of legislation in 1984 by the Kentucky General Assembly returning control of the surface of the land to the land owners, however, to have this struck down by the Kentucky Supreme Court in a rather confusing decision absolutely befuddles me.

Thank God the people have reorganized and attacked this problem again.

I'm proud to live among people who have not forgotten what it's like to fight against unjust legal decisions.

Against Hazardous Waste

Kentuckians are beginning to realize that we are targeted by the North as a perfect place to bring their garbage and to burn their chemicals. There is a bill in our legislature right now for counties to protect themselves. Senate Bill 169 and House Bill 506 would give the power to local governments to choose whether or not a hazardous waste incinerator can locate in that particular county.

Lawrence county has been fighting for over five years to keep PyroChem from constructing a hazardous waste incinerator in our county. Even though U.S. Rep. Chris Perkins, State Sen. David LeMaster, State Rep. Rocky Adkins, State Rep. Walter Blevins, County Judge-Executive J.J. Jordan, the Lawrence County Fiscal Court, Louisa Mayor Mike Armstrong, the city council, the water board and most citizens are against the proposed plant, the state is still going through the permit application process. Don't let this happen in your county. We need the local control law.

Please call the toll-free number in Frankfort (1-800-372-7181) and let your legislators know how you stand. Help pass the local control bill on hazardous waste incinerators!

★ Cancer Hopeline

QUESTION: My husband smoked cigarettes for many years, and instead of quitting, he switched to cigars. He says he read that cigar smokers have much lower rates of heart disease and lung cancer than cigarette smokers. I'm not sure this is true. Aren't cigars just as dangerous?

ANSWER: Studies have shown that mortality rates for heart disease and lung cancer are only slightly higher for cigar smokers as compared to nonsmokers. These diseases seem to develop as a result of moderate to deep inhalation of smoke. In general, cigar smoke is more irritating to inhale than cigarette smoke, and therefore, regular cigar smokers tend not to inhale as deeply, if at all.

The issue is more complex for ex-cigarette smokers who turn to cigars and pipes. Ex-cigarette smokers have learned to inhale as part of their smoking habit. This habit is often carried over when they smoke cigars and pipes. One problem with this is that at least four potential carcinogens (benzo (a) pyrene, anthracene, pyrene, fluoranthene) and carbon monoxide are more concentrated in cigar smoke than cigarette smoke. Therefore, the dangers are potentially greater for ex-cigarette smokers who inhale cigar smoke.

Even tobacco smoke that is not inhaled can still affect the sites it comes in contact with such as the lip, tongue, mouth and throat. In fact, the mortality rates for oral cancers among cigar smokers equal or exceed those of cigarette smokers.

The best way for your husband to reduce his risk of heart disease and cancer is to quit smoking.

For more information on pipe and cigar smoking, and tips on how to quit, call the Cancer Information Service at 1-800-4-CANCER or write to the CIS at the Markey Cancer Center, 800 Rose Street, Lexington, Ky. The CIS is a service of the Kentucky Community Cancer Program.

Liability Legislative Package Is Introduced By Lawmakers

The key recommendations of a statewide task force that investigated Kentucky's liability crisis have been incorporated into a comprehensive legislative package introduced by State Representative Bill Lear of Lexington.

More than a dozen lawmakers, including House Speaker Don Blandford, Majority Caucus Chairman Jody Richards and Majority Whip Kenny Rapier, joined in co-sponsoring the legislation. The package, introduced February 1 in the House of Representatives, addresses civil justice reform, Constitutional change and insurance regulation.

The legislation was praised by leaders of organizations involved in the Tort Reform Association of Kentucky, a broad-based coalition of business, trade and government interests that has been active in pressing for legislative relief to the liability problem.

"Businesses, professions and local governments have a serious problem on their hands today in finding liability coverage available at affordable rates," said Jim Wiseman, president of the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce. "While this legislation should not be viewed as an overnight cure, it is a major step in the right direction."

Municipalities across the state have also been plagued by liability problems.

"The legislation proposed is a balance of insurance and tort reform necessary to protect the public and insure the availability and affordability of liability insurance," said Ed Griffin, executive director of the Kentucky Municipal League. "Cities particularly need this legislation due to the large number of citizens who volunteer services to benefit their communities and to guarantee that cities are not forced to pay exorbitant insurance premiums."

"Rising professional liability costs are threatening the availability and affordability of health care across the state, especially in rural areas," added Dr.

Donald Barton of Corbin, the president of the Kentucky Medical Association. "Many physicians are dropping their practice in certain specialty areas because they simply can no longer afford the cost of professional liability premiums."

Highlights of the legislative package are:

Repeal of Section 54 of Kentucky's Constitution, which prohibits the General Assembly from placing any limit on the amount an individual can recover "for injuries to person or property."

Modification of Section 231 of the Constitution to allow cities the same sovereign immunity now enjoyed by counties and state governments.

Modification of the joint and several liability doctrine so that damages are apportioned on the basis of fault.

Modification of the collateral source rule to give juries greater awareness of payments already made to alleviate damages later sought in a lawsuit.

Limits on personal liability for directors and officers of for-profit and non-profit corporations.

A cluster of proposals to give the state increased insurance regulatory authority.

The recommendations that led to the legislation were from the final report of the Kentucky Insurance and Liability Task Force released in December. Created by the 1986 Kentucky General Assembly to examine the state's liability problem, the 26 member task force had representatives of business, consumer groups, local governments, insurance and professional groups, including architects, engineers, attorneys and physicians.

Tooth Decay In Infants Is Preventable Problem

Most people don't know it, but the common practice of putting a baby to bed with a bottle can lead to serious dental health problems, warn Kentucky Department for Health Services officials.

"Bottle mouth," a preventable dental condition that can destroy a baby's teeth, is caused when a bottle with sweetened liquid—milk, formula, fruit juice, sweetened water, soft drinks—is left in the mouth at bedtime. While the baby sleeps, the liquid pools around the teeth, turns to acid and attacks tooth enamel.

Robert Fowler, D.M.D., of the department's dental health program says that decay of baby teeth can cause permanent dental problems.

"If baby teeth are damaged and not repaired," he said, "permanent teeth can come in out of alignment or crooked. And gum disease can result from poor dental hygiene. Bottle mouth can lead to infection and pain for the youngster."

Dr. John Mink, a pediatric dentist and a University of Kentucky College of Dentistry professor, says that repair of baby teeth can be traumatic and expensive.

"We see a lot of bottle mouth cases among children 18 months to 2 years old," he said. "That's an extremely difficult age group to treat, and it's very traumatic for the child to have teeth pulled or crowned at that age.

"Treatment of this type can cost thousands of dollars," said Mink, who characterizes bottle mouth as "common" but "completely preventable."

The first step in prevention, Fowler says, is not giving a bottle with sweetened liquid at bedtime. "If parents want to give the baby a bottle at bedtime or naptime, it should be filled with plain water," he said.

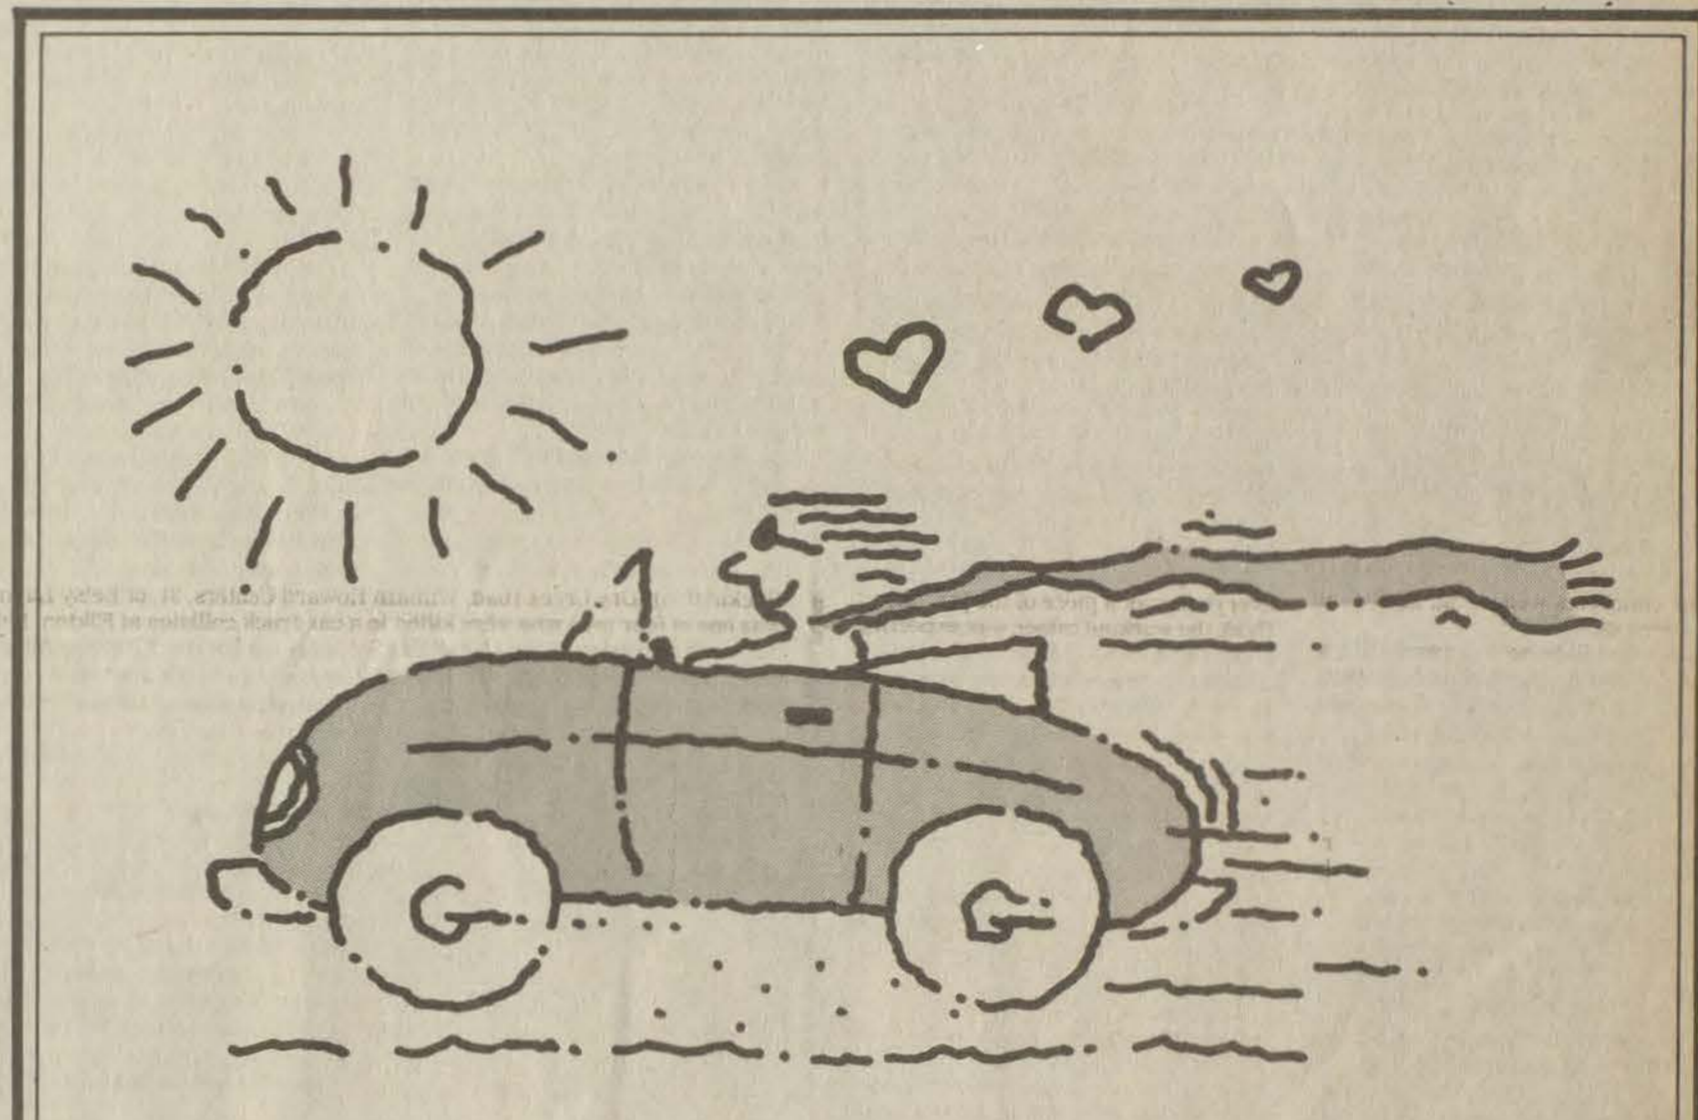

"A good general hygiene rule for all parents to remember is that an infant's gums and teeth should be washed after eating—just as an adult would brush after eating," Fowler said. "Following this rule can help prevent bottle mouth." "Before a child is old enough to brush, parents can take a soft damp cloth and wipe the surfaces of the teeth and gums," he said.

Another important point in prevention is limiting very sweet liquids, such as soft drinks and sugar water, he said.

Mink points out that weaning babies from the bottle at around age 1 will also help prevent bottle mouth.

February is being observed nationally as Children's Dental Health Month.

March 6-12 Is Named Severe Storms Week

Severe Storms Awareness Week will take place across Kentucky, March 6-12, sponsored by the state Division of Disaster and Emergency Services and the Louisville office of the National Weather Service.

Included in events during the week will be competition among county DES programs and a statewide communications and warning drill, Wednesday, March 9.

"The focus of severe storms awareness week is to prevent avoidable casualties, and to mitigate unwarranted property damage," said James H. (Mike) Molloy, state executive director of DES.

Molloy said many factors contribute toward protecting Kentuckians, but that only two tornado deaths have occurred during the decade of the 1980s. "Prevention definitely has been a factor in this good record," he said, "and we must keep working to keep this awareness going."

In the decade of the '70s, he said, 16 killer tornadoes claimed a total of 83 Kentucky lives. The state had five killer tornadoes in the 60s, taking a toll of 12 lives.

Since 1916 there have been 44 killer tornadoes that brought death to 281 Kentuckians.

Backing the severe storms week program as co-sponsors are the state Department of Education and the Kentucky Educational Television Network.

"The severe weather drill on March 9 will take place sometime between the hours of 9 a.m. and noon EST," Molloy said. "We want as many organizations as possible to conduct tests and exercises of their own," he said.

During the severe weather drill, Molloy said, state and local government agencies and many local school systems will be testing their warning systems. The success of the drill will be measured in terms of timing and completed actions.

At a designated moment, which will remain a secret until it is announced, the warning messages will be sent simultaneously statewide over three systems: Emergency Broadcast EBS, National Warning NAWAS and NOAA weather radio.

The EBS works through an established network of Kentucky radio stations which broadcast to their listeners. The NAWAS connects from every Kentucky State Police post to 24-hour warning points at county level. The weather radio is activated by a signal from the National Weather Service and sends warning messages throughout the state.

Nearly all counties have 24-hour warning points, and would be reached by one or more of the warning systems.

Hazardous Waste Sites May Be Voters' Choice

Local citizens would have a say in the siting of a hazardous waste incinerator in their community under the provisions of legislation approved Friday by the Kentucky Senate.

Senate Bill 169 requires local government approval before a permit can be issued for a hazardous waste incinerator. The legislation was developed by the Toxics Committee of Kentuckians For The Commonwealth and introduced in the Senate by David Lemaster, Bill Quinlan, Larry Saunders and Ed Ford.

"This will give the county government the right to decide whether or not they want a hazardous waste incinerator in their community," said KFTC Vice-Chairperson Patty Wallace, a resident of Lawrence county where PyroChem Inc., of Louisville, wants to build a hazardous waste incinerator.

"The county knows more about local geography and siting considerations than anyone else," Wallace continued. "The technical review of permit applications would be left to state and federal environmental agencies which have the expertise to review the proposed design, construction and operation of the plant. But for other considerations, such as local preparedness to handle toxic spills, the capacity of local roads to handle increased truck traffic, the proximity of schools or highly-populated areas to the proposed plant and the location of water supplies and other natural resources, local citizens and governments have the expertise to make the best decisions."

"I believe in the wisdom of the common citizen," said KFTC member Barbara Reich, of Henderson. "I believe that the voter can look at the facts and make good, educated decisions."

Kentucky's senators agreed, passing SB 169 by a 36-0 margin.

Currently, the decision to grant a hazardous waste incinerator permit is solely in the hands of state and federal agencies, which often do not consider or are not aware of local siting considerations. Local citizens are not given a voice in such decisions, unless the county has zoning regulations, which most rural Kentucky counties do not.

Because of the lack of zoning and weak environmental standards, Kentucky has been targeted as a dumping ground for hazardous wastes from other states.

KFTC members say that waste reduction is the better way to deal with the nation's hazardous wastes. The statewide citizens organization is preparing legislation that would establish a Center for Hazardous Waste Reduction at a state-owned university.

SB 169 now goes to the House of Representatives, where a companion bill, House Bill 506 has already been introduced and assigned to the House Natural Resources and the Environment Committee.

Citizens may express their opinions on these and any bills to legislators by using the toll-free message line. By calling 1-800-372-7181, callers can leave messages for as many as three legislators with each call.

More information about local control legislation is available from Kentuckians For The Commonwealth, P.O. Box 864, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653.

Outdoor Show Slated At MSU, Feb. 27-28

Youngsters Help Needy With Basketball Game

More than 90 children participated in the Betsy Layne Training League's first charity basketball game, December 19. The league, started by Allen and Maggie Hill, plans to make this an annual event for which admission is in canned food and toys rather than money. This year, over 300 pounds of food and hundreds of toys were collected and distributed to the needy in the Betsy Layne area through the help of the Betsy Layne Free Will Baptist Church and Santa Claus.

Children enrolled in kindergarten through the fifth grade made up the teams from elementary schools at Allen, Betsy Layne, Garrett, Harold, Martin, Maytown, Mullins, Pikeville, and Prater.

Ky. Housing Loan Source To End on December 31

F. Lynn Luallen, executive director of the Kentucky Housing Corporation (KHC) and president of the National Council of State Housing Agencies, recently announced the start of a statewide campaign to extend the use of tax-exempt mortgage revenue bonds (MRBs). The bonds are KHC's single source of capital for home loans.
 The Corporation has used these bonds since 1972 to provide affordable home loans to over 24,000 Kentucky families and individuals of modest income.
 The Tax Reform Act of 1986 calls for the use of tax-exempt mortgage revenue bonds to expire December 31. "The timing couldn't be worse," noted Luallen. "Housing needs in Kentucky are on the rise. We have more young families than ever being priced out of their first home. And if young families can't reach the goal of owning a first home, the state as a whole will be hurt. Homeownership provides KHC buyers a toehold on the economy."

 KHC will be spearheading a drive to get each of the nine members of the Congressional Delegation to co-sponsor the bills that will extend MRBs to 1992. The Senate bill is S.1522 and the House bill is HR.2640.

92nd Birthday

Mrs. Bill Day (Toad) celebrated her 92nd birthday with church services conducted by Elder John Preece and Elder I.D. Bach and with a potluck dinner at her home Thursday evening, three days before her February 7th birthday.

Attending were her two sons, Earritt Hayes and Earnest Hayes and their wives, Alice and Dorothy, other family members and friends. She received many gifts.

The Smooth Bayou Sounds Of Cajun Rock On KET

Spanning the territory from traditional Cajun music to jambalaya funk, Zachary Richard and the Zydeco Rockers provide a night of unique entertainment as "Kentucky Center Presents: The Lonesome Pine Specials" airs Saturday, February 20, at 10:00/9:00 p.m. CT.

Taped at the Kentucky Center in Louisville last summer, the 10-part concert series represents a variety of musical styles including honky-tonk, ballads, new acoustic, blues, bayou rhythms, western swing, and bluegrass. The series continues throughout the winter and early spring on KET.

About his unique style, Zachary Richard says, "I've called my music 'Cajun Rock' which is just another way of saying 'Zydeco,' but all it really is, is a very personal style of dance music incorporating a host of influences from down on the Bayou."

From Ray Charles to Afro-Cuban and Caribbean music, Richard's sound is representative of a variety of influences. "My roots are rock and roll and rhythm and blues," continues Richard. "I have always wanted to revitalize the tradition, to bring something new and creative rather than to simply interpret the old tunes."

The Zydeco Rockers are Tommy Screve, guitar, Craig Lege, keyboards; Leon Megica, bass; and Dudley Fruge, drums.

The KET production of "Kentucky Center Presents: The Lonesome Pine Specials" is an effort to bring concerts, plays and other Center events to the entire state via the KET network. Other programs in the series include "The Louisville Orchestra in Concert," "The Lonesome Ballet" and The Louisville Children's Theater production of "The Snow Queen."

"Proclaim Liberty!"

Religion And True Freedom

In one of his letters, the Apostle Paul discusses the nature of freedom. His words are instructive two thousand years later.

Paul, of course, had a political standing enjoyed by very few in his own day. In an age of slavery, peonage and bonded servitude, before the Roman emperors in desperation extended "citizenship" promiscuously to satisfy military mercenaries, only a small percentage in Paul's day could proudly say—with him—"I was born free." (Acts 22:28)

Paul was decently proud of his status as an educated Jew and a Roman citizen. Of course no living person at that time, including Caesar himself, enjoyed the measure of freedom that the average American citizen takes for granted. But compared with most of Caesar's subjects, Paul was fortunate, just as, compared with most of the world's peoples today, we Americans are fortunate.

In the 5th chapter of Romans we find Paul thinking about freedom. Over against his tribute to the blessings of freedom, he raises a warning: "only do not use your freedom as an opportunity for the flesh." Paul says: do not think freedom is an ego-trip, a chance for unlimited pleasure and self-indulgence that others will have to pay for. Then, as today, that is what happens when people misunderstand freedom to be the passport to the paradise of unrestrained selfishness.

Today Paul would warn: the "glamorous" world of TV, Hollywood, the movie magazines and the "soaps" is not the world of true freedom.

To be able to decide for one's self is only the form of freedom. The form is important, because it distinguishes a free man from a serf or a slave. But it is not the essence of the matter.

The secret of freedom is to be without anxiety for one's self. The slave or serf or subject of a despot or dictator must always live in emotional insecurity and anxiety that tomorrow will be even worse than today.

And then Paul lets us in on the real meaning of freedom: to be free is "through love to be servants of one another." In sum, freedom is not an end in itself. Freedom is not the goal: the goal is Truth, expressed in service to others.

Freedom which is misused ends in the anarchy of the jungle, where none is free. Freedom which is used as the opportunity for self-discipline and for service to the common good becomes a blessing to the person who is free and to all around him.

Seeking Adoption

This family of seven needs adoption: Stephanie (B/2-9-78); Robin (B/1-8-79); Kathy (B/2-25-80); Langley (B/1-17-81); Larry (B/12-15-81); Rebecca (B/4-26-83); and Delmos (B/4-25-84) would surely fill the empty spaces in any adoptive families' hearts and homes.

As one would expect, these children are extremely active. The insecurity they have known in their short lives has only added to their activity level. The family for these children will need to be committed to family counselling and must have experience with children and support from others.

Stephanie is in the second grade. She responds to affection and attention. Robin is a loveable, bubbly, energetic child who rarely needs discipline. Kathy is a pretty child who needs extra help with learning and retention of information is sometimes difficult. Langley is a sweet child who is obviously sensitive and aware of his past. Larry is a precious six-year-old who appears to be at the appropriate level in all areas. Rebecca is a bright child who loves to be hugged and kissed. Delmos who is three years old is the baby of this family. He appears to be a normal healthy child.

As their picture portrays, all of these children are beautiful. Each is capable and has great potential for the future. On the other hand, each has had life experiences that may create behavior problems for them as they grow and mature. An adoptive subsidy may be available to help a family meet the needs of these children.

There are more than 200 Kentucky children who are waiting to be adopted. Parental rights have been terminated and these children have been freed for adoption by Kentucky Courts. They are mostly older children or groups of three or more brothers and sisters who need to be placed together. They may be handicapped children or black children of any age. These children, through no fault of their own, are without a permanent family in which to grow and mature into adults.

'The Road Back Budget' Asks No Increased Tax

Saying that his budget represented "the road back" for Kentucky, Gov. Wallace G. Wilkinson presented his recommended 1988-90 Executive Budget to a joint session of the Kentucky General Assembly Wednesday, January 27.

Given the financial situation of the state, which the Governor called "miserable" in his State of the Commonwealth Address recently, he acknowledged that the budget was not an easy one to prepare. But, said Wilkinson, "It is a budget that is fair. It is a budget that reorders our priorities and directs our resources where they are needed the most." Wilkinson stressed it is a budget that calls for no increase in taxes.

As expected, Wilkinson's priorities are education and economic development. He has recommended increased spending in both areas.

"The highest priority in the Executive Budget," said Wilkinson, "is elementary and secondary education. We have got to be resourceful and find the necessary funds to continue and build upon the foundations of educational excellence."

Job creation and meeting the economic development needs of rural Kentucky were also emphasized by the Governor.

"Rural Kentucky, including our hundreds of small communities," said Wilkinson, "can only attract economic development when adequate... facilities are available... This budget contains a major commitment to essential infrastructure development."

Total budget for the biennium is estimated at $14.6 billion. Wilkinson stressed again in his budget speech that revenue estimates, which have been repeatedly revised downward in the past, are accurate for the biennium.

"This is the budget that gets us back on track, that gets us moving again," said Wilkinson. "It calls for a year of common sacrifice for a decade of common sense. It is good news for those of us who are tired of being frustrated and tired of being behind. We are moving ahead on a new course with vigor and enthusiasm. When we get through, we will see the emergence of a new Kentucky. Stronger. Competitive. Determined. A Kentucky first for a change."

Baptist Leaders Focus On Laity

For Kentucky Baptists, 1988 means a year of preparation. Many state leaders are preparing for 1989, the "Year of Laity"—a Southern Baptist emphasis on the involvement of lay people in ministry. The Evangelism department, Kentucky Baptist Convention, plans to look toward the Year of the Laity during the annual state Evangelism Conference, scheduled Feb. 22-23, Walnut Street Baptist Church, Louisville.

The theme of the conference, "Equipping the Laity in Evangelism—Year of the Laity in Evangelism," reflects its intention to show ministers the necessity of involving the laity in ministry. Conference sessions begin Feb. 22, at 2 p.m. and 6:45 p.m. and Feb. 23, at 9 a.m., 2 p.m. and 7 p.m.

According to Hal Poe, associate director, Evangelism department, KBC, the purpose of the conference "is not primarily for training or information but is for spiritual inspiration and motivation."

As part of the emphasis on laity, leaders of the conference plan to promote the Lay Evangelism School (LES), an evangelism training program for lay people. "We are encouraging every association to plan a model LES for pastors so they will be trained to lead one in their own church," Poe states. When the Home Mission Board introduced LES in 1972, the Southern Baptist Convention saw its highest number of baptisms in history.

Poe expresses hope that Equipping the Laity "will be more than just a program emphasis. If it is just another program rather than true spiritual conviction of pastors, then lay people will never accept that thrust as part of their Christian lives."

State Receives $75,000 Grant For Older Adoptive Children

Volunteers are being sought on behalf of the District Judge Harold Stumbo, who are interested in participating as members of the Foster Care Citizen Review Board in Floyd county. Individuals having an interest in foster care or child welfare are encouraged to consider volunteering their services to assist the court and the Cabinet for Human Resources in assuring that the foster care children in this area are placed in a permanent, secure and safe living arrangement.

Because they have suffered from physical or emotional abuse or neglect, or for some reason their parents are unable to care for them, over 500,000 children in the United States are living outside their own homes in foster care placements. In Kentucky, 4,500 children have been placed in private foster homes or other child caring facilities, while others are living temporarily with relatives.

While the immediate objective of court-ordered temporary foster care placement is the protection of the child from further abuse or neglect, the ultimate goal is to provide a safe and secure permanent arrangement as quickly as possible. Kentucky's Cabinet for Human Resources, under whose custody such children are placed, recognizes that children who are continually moved from one home to another, from one care facility to another, may be crippled emotionally due to constant uprooting and the resulting instability in their lives. With this in mind, the Cabinet works toward arranging permanent placement for each child, whether it be a change of custody to relatives, adoption, independent living situations for older children, or a return to the home of natural parents.

Because of large caseloads and insufficient agency staff support, too many foster care children get lost in the system and often spend months or years moving from one temporary living arrangement to another.

The 1985 General Assembly special session legislated the establishment of Foster Care Citizen Review Boards in each judicial district throughout the state. The three to five member boards will be comprised of volunteers from the community who will be trained to examine the case file of each child placed by the courts in the custody of the Cabinet for Human Resources. The confidential examination will be done at least once every six months by board members who will then submit their findings and recommendations regarding the child's placement to the district judge. The board will evaluate whether appropriate permanent placement plans for the child are being made and carried out in a timely fashion.

For additional information about becoming a volunteer foster care review board member, contact the Foster Care Review Board Program at the Administrative Office of the Courts, 403 Wapping Street, Frankfort, Kentucky or call (502) 564-2350.

Student's Manuscripts, Photo And Art Needed

Kentucky Writing is issuing a call for students in this county to mail their original manuscripts, art works, and photographs to the literary magazine.

Kentucky Writing is open to prose, poetry, fiction, non-fiction, art, photography, and drama. Originality is strongly encouraged. Manuscripts should be typed. Prose and plays should be double-spaced and poetry single-spaced within stanzas with one poem per page. Photographs should be black and white.

Cover letters should contain name of author, grade student is enrolled, name and address of school. Individual schools are encouraged to gather student works and submit in a single packet. If returns are requested, please enclose a pre-addressed envelope and postage.

Materials for Kentucky Writing are accepted throughout the year.

An unbiased selection committee, composed of three professors, select works that are published.

Please submit all materials to: Ms. Terry Norfleet, editor; Kentucky Writing, Somerset Community College, Somerset, Ky. 42501.

Thanks!

Tonya Lynn Goble, who won the Garrett Elementary School Spelling Bee, expresses her Thanks to her teacher, Helen Martin.

ASK YOUR DOCTOR

TERRY L. WRIGHT, M.D.

"CHRONIC" APPENDICITIS?

QUESTION: For years I have been having these stomach pains and attacks of nausea. After a day or so they disappear and I am fine. Could this be chronic appendicitis?
ANSWER: Very likely it is something else. Appendicitis is generally considered a "one-time disease". This means that from the time the appendix becomes obstructed, and bacteria and infection begin to form, it usually progresses to a serious and life-threatening condition without the periods of remission you describe. In all likelihood, your symptoms are the result of some other disease process. In any event, you owe it to yourself to get a proper physical examination. Any symptoms, regardless of their mildness, should be investigated if they persist for so long.

A STORY ABOUT BRIAN

This is the story of Brian,
 Mr. Cool he was without tryin'.
 The hallways he owned;
 His charms he but loaned.
 Ah my, how he left the girls sighin'.

Then a virus caught our Mr. C,
 A bug with a long history;
 He ached, and he sneezed;
 He coughed, and he wheezed;
 It was flu causing this misery.

Feeling so low was this guy,
 He was set to give aspirin a try.
 But remember he did
 A note on the lid
 That warned of a syndrome called Reye.

Reye is this trouble called Reye
 But permanent it might make you lie;
 Kids with the flu,
 Chicken pox, too,
 May suffer when aspirin they try.

How did Brian reprise his cool?
 Hey, remember this dude was no fool;
 He just took it slow,
 That's the best way to go,
 When they need you so badly at school.

—A message from the Food and Drug Administration

WARNING: Children and teenagers should not use this medicine for chicken pox or flu symptoms before a doctor is consulted about Reye Syndrome, a rare but serious illness.

McConnell, Ford Bill To Return Hatchery Clears Senate Hurdle

U.S. Senators Wendell Ford and Mitch McConnell has announced that their legislation to return the Frankfort National Fish Hatchery to the Commonwealth of Kentucky has cleared the Senate by unanimous consent.

"The Senate's unanimous agreement on this issue brings the hatchery one step closer to being returned to state control," McConnell said.

"This hatchery belongs to the people of Kentucky and returning it to the state is the right thing for the federal government to do," said Ford.

The hatchery, which sits next to Elkhorn Creek in Franklin county, is located on property given to the federal government by the Commonwealth in 1952. The federal government operated the hatchery before leasing it back to the state in October, 1986.

Kentucky has committed over $70,000 to improve the hatchery by upgrading the water-supply system, installing a new deep-well, constructing a new hatchery building, renovating existing structures and repairing fish ponds located at the site. The legislation will now be considered by the House of Representatives, and both Senators have pledged to lobby House members for their support.

HOROSCOPE F. D. Smith

- ARIES (March 21-April 20) You're able to establish a different dialogue this week especially in money matters. Study those facts and figures.
- TAURUS (April 21-May 20) By mid-week, you'll feel confident enough to launch a new plan or special project. Leave nothing to chance.
- GEMINI (May 21-June 20) This can be an active week, one in which you learn more about friends, associates and their needs.
- CANCER (June 21-July 22) A cross-section of feelings and ideas are about to invade your working environment and your relationship with close ties.
- LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) This proves to be a banner week, as you lead the way with innovative concepts. Nothing is wasted in the way of sound thinking.
- VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your ability to renew and restore former conditions to their original state is highlighted. You'll relish a new-found opportunity.
- LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) An assortment of new terms is placed before you this week. And you'll be attracted by the resources of others.
- SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22) Pace yourself with attention to detail, as you make your way through partnership matters. This week can be a turning point for agreements.
- SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Love and romance refuse to go away as the week wears on. But you will still have to work, nonetheless.
- CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You'll apply yourself with enthusiasm to several home-related concerns. Then reward yourself with some real fun and games.
- AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) By the end of the week, you'll be ready to enjoy life to the fullest. However, a new arrangement must be arrived at.
- PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Take your time now as you make your way through a variety of highly charged moments. Understanding is definitely called for.

National FFA Week Scheduled Feb. 20-27

The Prestonsburg Future Farmers of America announces the celebration of National FFA week, February 20-27. This corresponds with Washington's birthday and is a tribute to him both as a great farmer and leader. Since its beginnings nationally in 1928 and in Kentucky in 1930, the FFA has prepared students for careers in agriculture. There are over 200 agricultural careers and 28 percent of the work force is employed in agricultural careers.

Free Eye Exam Offered By Ky. Vision Project

The Kentucky Vision Project is planning its fifth Give-One-Day, March 6-12. This week has been proclaimed by President Reagan as Save-Your Vision-Week. All participating optometrists will set aside and donate one day of their time to give free eye exams to those patients who have been approved for the project. In the past over 3500 needy individuals have been provided with $468,000 worth of services. Kentucky optometrists, the Salvation Army, and participating optical labs continue to team up to help provide eye care to those who cannot afford it. No government funds are involved in this program.

Under the Kentucky Vision Project guidelines, qualified individuals will receive an eye exam free of charge (including those who might also receive Medicaid or Medicare). However, each family member who is eligible for the program and needs glasses will be asked to pay a small fee at the time of their examination to get glasses.

To sign up for the Kentucky Vision Project, send name and address to The Kentucky Vision Project, P.O. Box 1422, Frankfort, Ky. 40602. An application form is also available at the Salvation Army office.

IN THIS WEEK
For Raffin, 'Noble House' is just another Far East trip

By Paul Elie

"Noble House," which airs for four consecutive nights beginning Sunday, Feb. 21, is likely to be as long a look at the Orient as most viewers will ever take. The NBC miniseries, an adaptation of James Clavell's best seller about Hong Kong, unfolds over eight long hours.

Deborah Raffin

But for Deborah Raffin, who co-stars opposite Pierce Brosnan, the time spent filming location shots in Hong Kong (interiors were filmed in Wilmington, N.C.) marked her 11th trip to the Far East. "We spent two and a half months there, doing exteriors," says Raffin, who plays American banker Casey Tcholak. "It's a great advantage to actually be there. Your energy level is naturally high. We had to be careful not to be mellowed out by Carolina." Raffin, who starred in the miniseries "The Last Convertible" (1979), "Haywire" (1980) and "Lace II," (1985), seems more interested in describing her involvement with the Far East than her role in "Noble House." With her husband, producer Michael Viner, Raffin heads the American division of China Films, which exports movies to the Orient. "When we visited China as tourists six years ago, we found there was a real absence of American films," she says. "The market was just exploitation films, really. There were very few quality films that the Chinese could afford to import. So we decided to bring some over." Since then, the couple have visited the Far East roughly twice a year, introducing to that market such films as "On Golden Pond," "Sophie's Choice" and "My Fair Lady" - and traveling. They try to explore a new region or culture each time. "We tour, go places," she says. "Mongolia, Beijing, Shanghai, Tokyo. Both Japan and China, although recently I've been concentrating on China." She knows that many people think the two countries share one culture. "The more we go, the more we realize how different they are," she says. "Culturally, historically, physically - they are very different-looking people." She seems to regret the Westernization in which she has played a part. "Japan is far more modernized than China, but China is changing more rapidly than Japan," she says. "I feel fortunate that I was able to visit China before the Western influence began to pervade the country. When you visit, that's part of the appeal - that it's so primitive."

NOBLE HOUSE

On WEDNESDAY, FEB. 24, Pierce Brosnan and Deborah Raffin star in the conclusion of "Noble House," an eight-hour NBC miniseries based on James Clavell's novel about contemporary Hong Kong.

HBO's 'Baja Oklahoma' is a mediocre cable movie

By Denise Gorga

The title of the HBO movie "Baja Oklahoma," which airs Wednesday, Feb. 24, is a term used by Oklahomans about Texas. The Spanish word baja means "below." What the Okies mean is that the Lone Star State is lower than theirs - and not just geographically. The film never explains this, though. And that's par for the course. "Baja Oklahoma" is baja mediocre.

Lesley Ann Warren

The film, based on the book by Dan Jenkins, stars Lesley Ann Warren as Juanita Hutchins, a would-be country songwriter who works at Herb's Bar and Grill and idolizes Willie Nelson. Juanita says things like, "I work in a bar because Prince Charming broke the engagement" and "I've been as entertained by marriage as I care to be." These comments become apparent when, in an awkward flashback, we see her as a pregnant newlywed, stumbling on her husband and his

Putting the Byte on Diets

By MARCIA WOOD

The bytes in a computer's data base are helping dieters keep from taking too many bites of unhealthy foods.

A portable computer will be the key to compiling the reams of data needed to see if Americans are eating nutritious meals, according to Mary J. Kretsch, a research nutritional scientist with USDA's Agricultural Research Service in San Francisco.

"Thousands of pieces of data are taken in a diet study," Kretsch says. She adds that the food that any one family eats can vary widely, from week to week, in carbohydrates, calories, vitamins, minerals and all the other things essential to good health.

"If we can gather more precise data on meals, then we should have a more accurate picture of whether people are getting the nutrients they need to stay healthy and fit," she says.

Kretsch says the computer can help volunteers record everything they eat. It will also help researchers detect unhealthy diet trends.

In diet studies, she says, data are often inaccurate because volunteers forget to record every morsel. Another problem in diet studies—a problem that the computer may not be able to resolve—is that people often report wrong or misleading consumption because they are sensitive about what or how much they ate.

Kretsch and her colleagues expect to begin using the computer in perhaps 10 to 15 homes in 1988. She says that the new system "will be easy to use, even for someone who hasn't worked with a computer," adding that 21 volunteers in two pilot tests readily learned how to use the computer, an electronic scale and a bar code reader similar to those at supermarkets to record what they ate.

Families who volunteer for the study will use the home computer to send data to Kretsch's laboratory for analysis. (Agricultural Research Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture.)

Vice President Of Administration

R.T. Daniel, vice president of personnel, has been elected by the Board of Directors to the position of Vice President of Administration of Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company.

E. B. Jenkins, vice president and general manager of the company said that Mr. Daniel will be directly involved in the overall managerial and administrative activities of the company with specific oversight responsibilities for the accounting department's Kentucky and Pennsylvania Divisions and the Human Resources Department. Daniel will continue to coordinate the company's Labor Relations activities, and consumer services, in addition to becoming involved in regulatory matters with the Kentucky Public Service Commission and the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission.

His primary offices will be located at their main headquarters building in Ashland. He will also maintain an office at the company's Prestonsburg field office.

Daniel is a member of the American Gas Association, National Management Association, American Society of Personnel Administration, and the American Institute of Mining, Metallurgical and Petroleum Engineers (AIME).

Active in civic affairs, Mr. Daniel is a member of the Paintsville Tourism and Recreation Commission, player agent of the Paintsville Little League and a past director of Kentucky Babe Ruth Baseball.

He and his wife, Page, reside at Preston Estates in Paintsville and are the parents of two sons.

Japanese Asked for More Than Ky. Schools Offered

By John Ed Pearce
(for the Shakertown Roundtable)

No man is an island, said the poet John Donne.

Neither is a state, says a report by the Shakertown Roundtable, and Kentucky is no exception. What affects London and Tokyo also affects the factories and farms of Kentucky.

Fifty years ago, with few exceptions, Kentuckians sold to Americans and bought from Americans. Today they aim everything from coal and tobacco to cars, computers and dishwashers at foreign markets. And 70 per cent of their products face direct competition from foreign producers.

Kentucky has also learned it must look outside the country as well as outside the state when seeking new industry. It is not an easy search. Kentucky has to compete with other countries as well as with every other state, and the cost of competing is high. Many Kentuckians think they paid too much to lure the Toyota plant to Scott County.

Even with heavy subsidies, Kentucky has not been able to persuade industry to locate in the areas that need it most - Eastern and Southern Kentucky. This is partly due to the fact that in those regions it is hard to find enough flat land, served by major highways and with a good water supply, to handle a major industrial plant.

But even more important, many counties do not have the people or money to offer modern services and technical expertise to industries seeking plant sites. Few small rural towns offer the amenities business executives expect - good schools, clubs, libraries, hospitals, utilities, entertainment and recreation.

But perhaps the biggest single roadblock to industrial investment in Kentucky is its educational system. One of the first demands by Toyota officials, when they chose Scott County as their plant site, was for special classes for children of Japanese executives so that they would not fall behind their companions back home in Japan. Kentucky public schools were not good enough.

Neither are the public schools designed to educate the kind of people that modern technology needs. As Dr. Ray Marshall, of Austin, Texas, told the Shakertown Roundtable Conference in November, "American management has always taken an adversarial approach; workers were asked to bring nothing to the job but brawn, brains being reserved from management or machines. The Japanese, taught by the U.S. Occupation after World War II, learned that if workers were involved in producing a quality product, and were given a piece of the action, they would take responsibility for quality."

"The trouble is that our educational system is similarly mired in the past, designed to train people for the kind of mass-production economy where managers did not want or expect workers to think. How can the state compete in an internationalized world where quality must come from education and involvement in excellence?"

For decades Kentucky has tried to attract factories by emphasizing its supply of cheap, dependable labor. That won't work any more, Dr. Marshall warns, because we can't compete on a low-wage basis with, say, Korea. If we are going to compete, it will have to be in technology, in the skill of management, and in the cooperation of government and management.

"Everything points to one overriding fact," said Marshall, "our need to pay greater attention to the quality of our educational system and the quality of our work force. We must not look back to some imaginary golden age, but devote ourselves to the creation of the system we need today. The returns of the investments in education are greater than those in any other activity."

Third of a series on the "State of the state" conference sponsored by the Shakertown Roundtable at Pleasant Hill, Mercer County, Nov. 8-9, 1987, Wilson W. Wyatt, conference chairman. Earl D. Wallace, Lexington, is chairman of the Roundtable, a non-profit, non-partisan study group. Al Smith is vice chairman.

From Cellar To Penthouse Daredevils Reach The Top

First came Johnny Ray Turner. Then came a win, and another, and another. Then came love, respect, and all those things associated with winning.

It was a desperate basketball community, desperate for wins-one win. McDowell was the class act of high school basketball in Eastern Kentucky during the late 60's and early 70's.

But the 80's came and the winning tradition went. All of a sudden the once successful, if not dominating, program was stuck in the mud, dwelling in the cellar for each and all to walk on.

They took their lumps, and so did their fans. For the past three years, McDowell barely broke the 10-win column. And that's three years combined.

But during it all some things remained. The dream remained. The hope remained. The fans remained. And it all came together, a success born overnight.

McDowell, like it has for the longest time, held high hopes of a successful season at the beginning of the 1987-'88 campaign.

But something happened. Something came along to change the fate that had been haunting them for the past several years.

They won! And they won again! McDowell opened the season on a successful note and everyone wondered how long it would last.

They continued it by winning the Pre-season Tournament. Everyone still wondered when it would end. But it didn't. And it hasn't, even though some people are still wondering.

Last Tuesday night, they left people wondering, but they were mostly from Betsy Layne. The Bobcats were wondering how McDowell had gotten so good so fast.

After finishing the conference schedule nestled in the cellar a year ago, McDowell has risen from their own obscurity to reap the benefits of the penthouse suite.

They have made one of the biggest turnarounds ever in Floyd county basketball, and last Tuesday night at Betsy Layne they simply added another straw in their remarkable 1987-'88 hat.

And it was a chapter that fits perfectly in the McDowell book. They had three players suffering from the flu. It showed in their play. It was probably one of their worst games of the season.

But they once again rose from the depths, somehow finding a way to win. Last season it could have been a great excuse to give up. This season it was an excuse to give it just a little bit more.

Lenny Hall, nursing a high temperature, and reflecting the symptoms in his paleness, his actions, his voice, was one of them hit the hardest.

Lenny Hall is a senior though. He remembered all those hard times McDowell had on the basketball court. In the second half, he wasn't about to let all those memories haunt him again.

Hall, a 6'3" senior, scored 14 points, all in the second half, as his McDowell Daredevils downed Betsy Layne, 61-60, last Tuesday night at the D.W. Howard fieldhouse. The win was McDowell's second of the year over the Bobcats, but this one gave them the title of Floyd County Conference champs of 1987-'88.

Worst Comes Last As Lady Rebs Fall Hard

Their leading scorer and rebounder was sitting out with an injury. The Betsy Layne Bobcats were enjoying one of their patented strong starts, and at the end of the first quarter, Allen Central trailed by 13 points.

It looked as if things couldn't get much worse for the Lady Rebs. Joann Conn, Allen Central's most experienced player as well as their top point and board getter, wasn't available.

Betsy Layne, behind Sandy Flannery, proved unstoppable, especially against a much smaller and inexperienced Lady Reb team.

If there was to be a silver lining in this depressing Allen Central cloud, they would have to figure that the toughest of times had already been weathered.

But when you play Betsy Layne, the worst is never over until the final horn blows. They not only beat people, they enjoy success in humbling their opponents.

A mere 13-point advantage wasn't enough for the Lady Cats, and Allen Central had not experienced the full force of the Betsy Layne storm.

The Lady Bobcats built on their first quarter lead, held a 24-point advantage heading into the final frame, and eventually, won, 82-41.

Sandy Flannery led Betsy Layne in scoring, tossing in a game-high 28 points. Tammy Hall and Jennifer Hunt, two starters that played most of the fourth quarter, finished the game with 18 and 13 points each.

Flannery, a 5'10" senior center, scored 15 of her points in the first quarter when Betsy Layne took control early.

On the game's first score, Flannery made it a three-point effort. She accepted a pass inside the Allen Central zone, hit a turn-around jumper, and drew the foul.

Flannery stepped to the foul line and sank a free throw to polish off the three-point play.

With 7:23 left, Stacy Moore, Allen Central's leading scorer with 12 points, hit a shot from the baseline to pull the Lady Rebs to within one point.

But that was the closest they would ever come to evening the game up. After Moore's shot, the Lady Bobcats ran off six straight points, four off turnovers, to begin their blowout.

Flannery hit two free throws, and Jennifer Hunt, after a Yolanda Keathley steal, hit a layup, and the Lady Bobcats were up by five.

With 6:17 left in the first quarter, Keathley was on the receiving end of tough defense when Tammy Hall picked up a loose ball in Allen Central's end of the court.

The steal led to another layup and was the beginning of a six-point personal scoring streak for Keathley.

When the senior forward finished her six in a row and Flannery followed it with a bucket, Betsy Layne found themselves leading by 10 points. Less than five minutes had been played.

It was merely a stepping stone to their second consecutive 40-point plus Floyd County Conference win. They had earlier defeated McDowell by 42 points, Tuesday night.

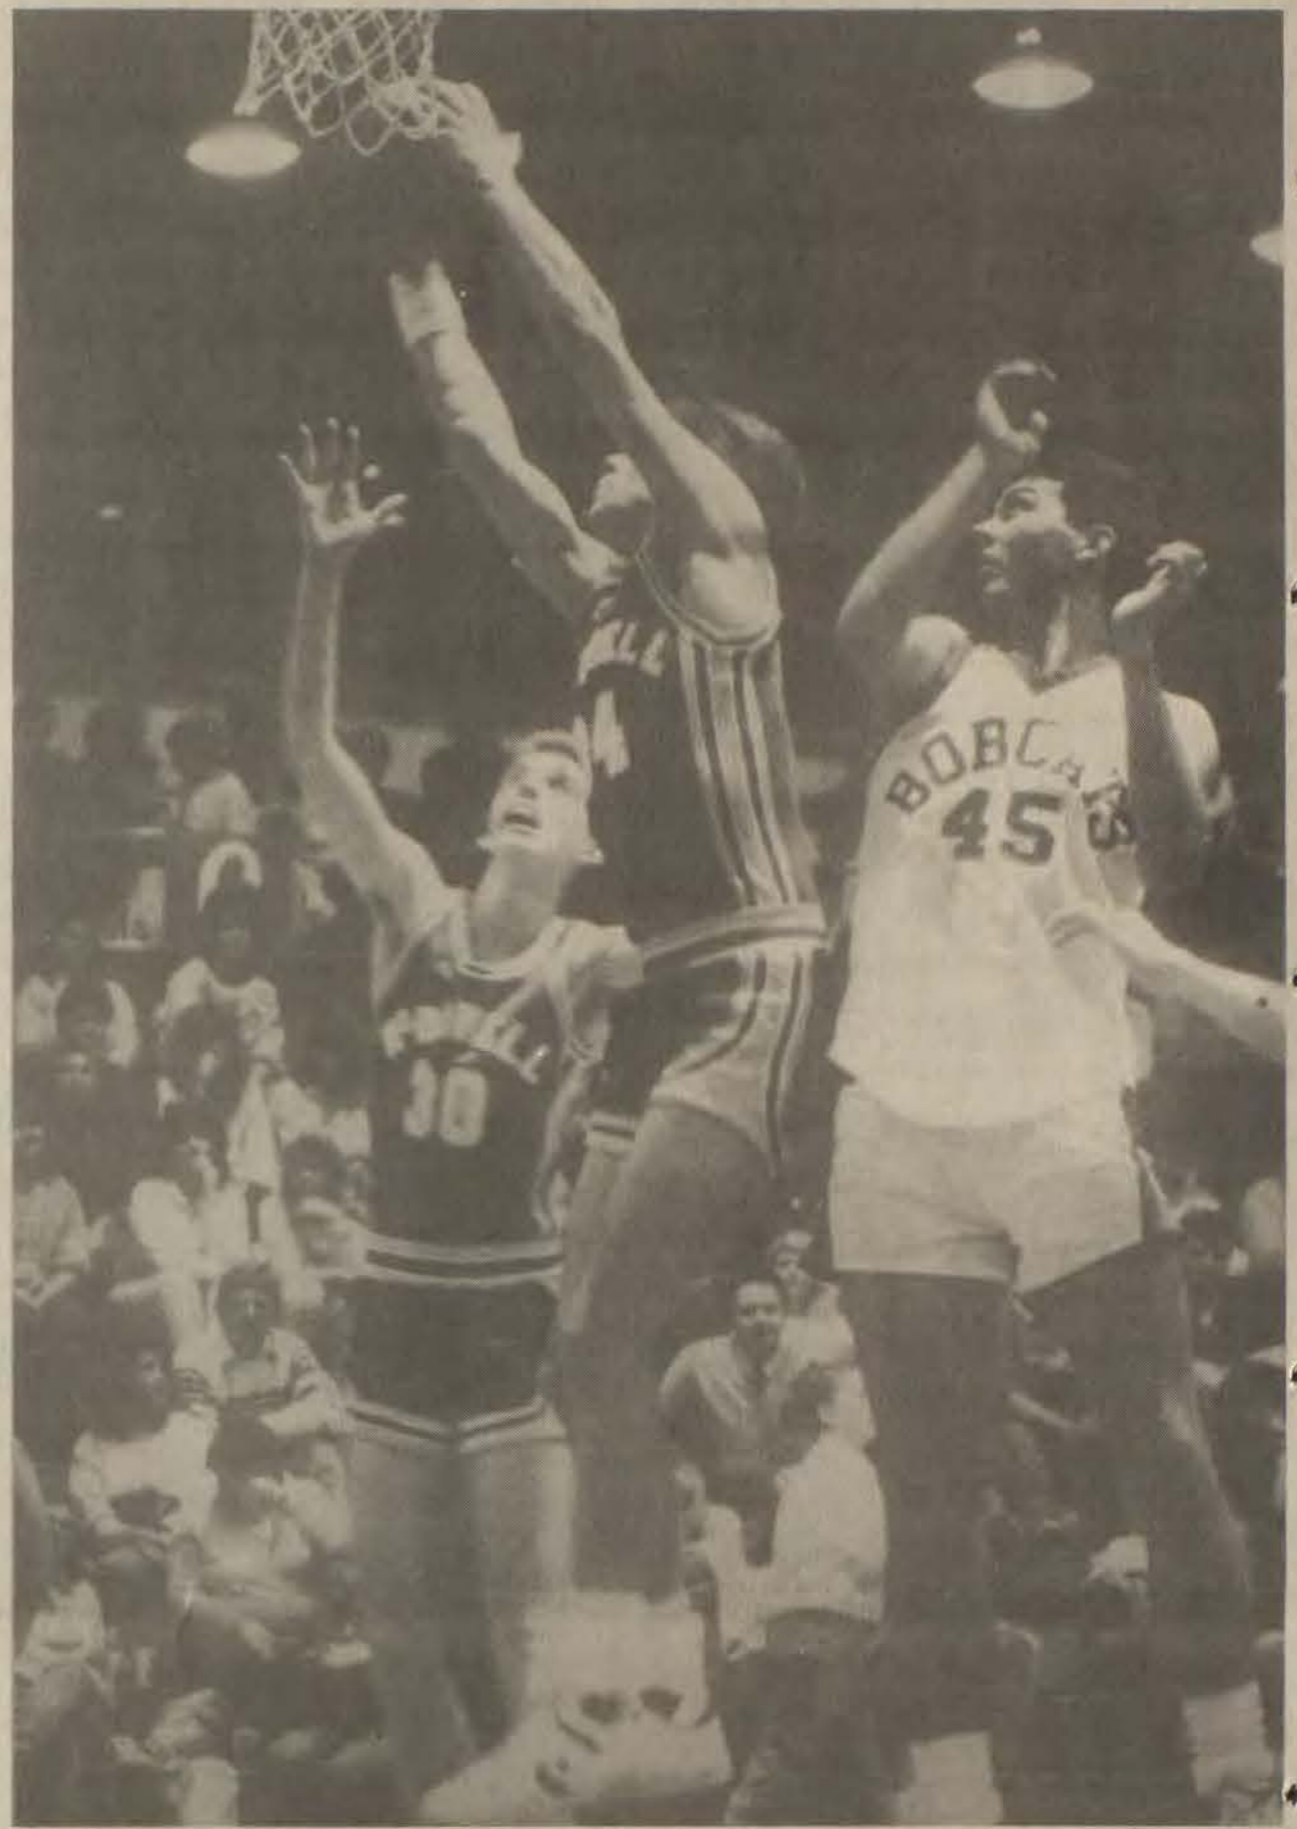

The Lady Bobcats, with the win over Allen Central, finished their conference season undefeated. It was the second time in three years that they have gone 8-0 in the conference. They've lost only one conference game in the last three seasons.

Allen Central, 4-4 in the conference, finished in a second placed tie with Prestonsburg. A draw will now be used to settle who gets the second seed and the bye in the district tournament.

The Lady Rebs were led in scoring by freshman Stacy Moore's 12 points, Teresa Gibson, another freshman, finished in double figures, hitting for 10 Allen Central points.

Individual scoring: Betsy Layne: Sandy Flannery, 28; Tammy Hall, 18; Jennifer Hunt, 13; Yolanda Keathley, 9; Tracy Hall, 7; Danita Johnson, 4; Brenda Hamilton, 2; Bri Boyd, 1.

Allen Central: Tracy Moore, 12; Teresa Gibson, 10; Tiff Click, 8; Michelle Floyd, 6; Stephanie Wallen, 3; Teresa Crum, 2.

DOWN WITH THE REBOUND: McDowell's Lance Hall hauls down this rebound against Betsy Layne last Tuesday. The Daredevils won, and as a result claimed their first Floyd County Conference title since the 1977-78 season. David Turner led them to the championship that season.

Lady Bobcats Humble McDowell To Earn Sixth Straight Title

It was a fitting finale for a conference clinching game. The Betsy Layne Lady Bobcats had dominated everyone in the Floyd County Conference, all season and last Tuesday night, they wrapped up their sixth consecutive conference title with an 83-41 win over McDowell.

Tammy Hall, a 5'10" senior forward, led Betsy Layne, 7-0 in the conference, with 26 points while senior center Sandy Flannery added 25 as the Lady Bobcats remained undefeated at home.

"They did exactly what they did last night," Betsy Layne coach Karen Henry said, mentioning her team's 20-point win over Knott County Central the night before.

"I believe they're on a roll," the coach added. "In the last two games, they've done exactly what we've asked them to do. We can run when it's there, or we can set up and go inside."

"They walked it down and set it up. They took it inside to Tammy and Sandy, and when we got the offensive rebound, we would bring it back out and set it up again."

Taking it inside was just about all Betsy Layne did in the early part of the basketball game. And it was about all they needed to do.

Until Danita Johnson hit an outside jumper with 2:46 left in the first half, the Lady Bobcats' offensive output had come mainly from their inside duo of Hall and Flannery.

Betsy Layne, as they've made a habit of doing, jumped out to a big early lead, opening up a 23-11 advantage heading into the second quarter.

Of those 23 points, Hall had 13 and Flannery had eight.

The same thing happened in the second quarter. Betsy Layne built their lead to 21 points by half-time as Hall and Flannery scored a combined 10 points.

But just to show some versatility, and give others a chance to get some playing time, Henry went to her bench.

All season long Betsy Layne's second five has come in and built on an already impressive lead. This night proved to be no different.

When the reserve troops came on, the Lady Bobcats led by 16 points. But when Johnson and Bri Boyd got through, they led by 21.

Johnson, one of the better shooters in the district, hit three consecutive outside shots, one from three-point land, and Boyd canned a jumper with one second left on the clock to give Betsy Layne the huge advantage.

Johnson finished the game with 11 points. She hit all five of her field goal attempts. All except one came from long range.

McDowell, finishing the season at 0-8 in the conference, was led offensively by senior Gwen Stegall and freshman Lori Bryant. They both scored 10 points each.

The Lady Daredevils, winless overall, stayed close through the first four minutes, trailing by only five when Stegall hit a shot with 3:46 left in the opening period.

But they couldn't match Betsy Layne's experience, size, and ability. And the difference soon showed.

After Stegall's field goal, McDowell scored only one point in the next three minutes and 16 seconds. At the same time the Lady Bobcats were having their way offensively.

They outscored McDowell 10-1 in that crucial stretch, bolting out to a 14-point advantage. And, of course, Hall and Flannery were the two main reasons why.

With 3:01 left in the first quarter, Flannery checked in with a three-point play. Not to be outdone, Hall repeated the effort with 2:18 left.

They each added baskets before the period ended, and after that the only question remaining was, how much?

How much Betsy Layne would win by, and how much of that would be because of their senior duo of inside players.

They won by a lot, 42 points. Hall and Flannery scored most of them, 51. But it wasn't the best game they had. Not even up to that point, and it was only Tuesday.

The night before when Betsy Layne beat Knott County the two combined for 53 points.

But the latter one was probably sweeter. The victory last Tuesday gave Betsy Layne the regular season conference title.

The trophy will fit nicely right beside all the other ones Betsy Layne has won in this decade. The past six seasons they have either won or shared the conference title. No team came to within 10 points of them during this season's conference run, and they have lost only one conference game in the past three years.

How do they do it? "Talent," Karen Henry said. "I think the basketball tradition has a lot to do with it too. The players work hard all summer, shoot around, and go to camps. I think their being interested enough to work on their own helps a lot."

"We start with about 30 players in the summer, and you just find out who can tough it out. If you can do that, then you can have a good team. Not many schools have that many to choose from so they have to go with whatever they've got coming out."

Betsy Layne apparently had enough to choose from this year. And they had to do some choosing. They had to choose four new starters, and a new coach.

Only one player on this year's squad had a permanent starting position last season. That was Sandy Flannery. None of what was to be their bench saw much playing time last year.

But they overcame those minor details to win a Pre-season Tournament title, a conference championship, and as high as a third place ranking in the region.

The Lady Bobcats now set their sights on a district tournament title, one that escaped them last year. They will play McDowell in their first tourney game.

Yolanda Keathley, another senior, also finished in double figures for the Lady Bobcats. She scored 10 points.

Pick The 16 Contest Entry Deadline Feb. 25

To celebrate the return of the Kentucky Boys' High School Basketball Championship to Louisville's Freedom Hall, The Courier-Journal is once again sponsoring the "Pick the 16" contest. The contest was last held in 1978.

In the contest, fans are asked to select the 16 teams they believe will win the regionals and play in the Sweet 16 Championship in Louisville March 16 through 19. Selections must be submitted on a postcard and mail it to The Courier-Journal in Louisville. Letters will not be accepted. Deadline for entering is midnight, February 25.

The winning person will receive an expense-paid trip for two to Louisville.

SHORT SPORTS

Eric Manuel hit a jumpshot with just over 13 minutes left in the first half to spark a 6-0 run that powered the University of Kentucky to a 22-8 early advantage.

The Wildcats had worked their way to a 42-28 halftime advantage then out-scored Alabama 18-four in the early part of the second half, riding the early lead to an 82-68 win at home Saturday afternoon.

Winston Bennett led Kentucky with 25 points while Rex Chapman and Eric Manuel scored 17 and 12 points, respectively.

Kentucky, 18-3 overall, remained on top in the Southeastern Conference, improving to 19-3 in conference action.

The Cats will put their top position on the line tonight when they travel to Tennessee for a matchup with the Volunteers.

Saturday afternoon Kentucky continues a brief two-game road trip, playing at Florida before returning home the following Wednesday.

The Gators currently hold down third place in the SEC and is one of the three conference teams to hand losses to UK this season.

Florida, without Livingston Chatman, defeated the Wildcats in Lexington. The Gators, 8-4 in the SEC, lost to Georgia last Wednesday as the Bulldogs' Willie Anderson poured in 36 points. The loss forced Florida into third place, two games behind Kentucky and one-half game behind second place Vanderbilt.

Kentucky has five-conference games remaining, four of them on the road. Four of Florida's final six SEC games are at home, and Vandy has four road games remaining on their conference schedule.

The eight-game regular season didn't completely settle it so Allen Central and Prestonsburg will take their battle to the draw.

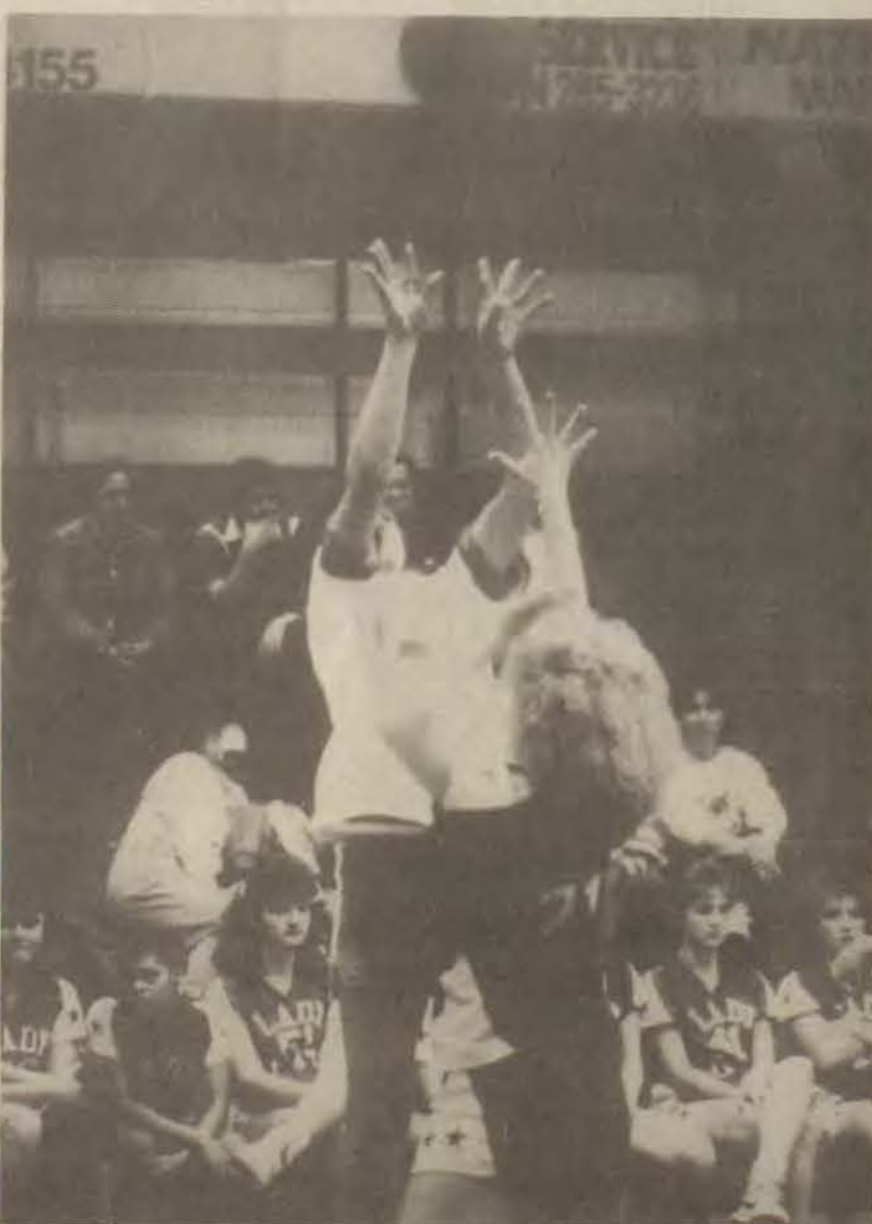

And it is an important draw. The two teams finished with identical 4-4 conference records and in a tie for second place. A draw, to be held Thursday morning, will be used to determine the team that gets a bye and the team that will have to win an extra game to earn a trip to the regional tournament, which will be held at Belfry High School.

The team winning the second seed will get the bye, and the team with the third seed will play Wheelwright, the tournament's fourth seed, in the first round of the district tourney.

Most coaches dread the extra game and Bonita Compton is no different. After the Lady Rebs' loss, Friday, to Betsy Layne, she said she had rather have the second seed.

Prestonsburg is the 58th district's reigning champion, winning the tournament last season. Allen Central, two

70th Birthday Salute For Dizzy Gillespie

As part of Black History Month, KET presents a "Great Performances" celebration of jazz great Dizzy Gillespie's 70th birthday in "Wolf Trap Celebrates Dizzy Gillespie: An All Star Tribute to the Jazz Master." The program airs Sunday, February 28 at 10 p.m.

The 90-minute special includes appearances by Sonny Rollins, Lalo Schifain, Wynton Marsalis, Freddie Hubbard, Carmen McRae, John Faddis, Airto, and Flora Purim. The program also includes film clips of Gillespie with other historic jazz figures including Louis Armstrong and Charlie "Bird" Parker.

John Birks Gillespie, better known as "Dizzy," has been a professional musician for almost 50 of his 70 years. He revolutionized the music world as one of the "bebop" pioneers of the 1940s and influenced generations of music with the distinctive sound of his trademark bent trumpet.

Dizzy helped in mixing the musical styles of Afro-Cuban rhythms and American jazz. He has always remained an entertainer, as well, with such classic songs as "Swing Low, Sweet Cadillac" and "Salt Peanuts." This performance highlights his unique contribution with the help of other jazz greats who came together to form Dizzy's dream band.

"Wolf Trap Salutes Dizzy Gillespie: An All Star Tribute to the Jazz Master" is a production of Maryland Public Television in association with WNET/New York.

Good Food, Good Health...

Cooking Creole-Style

From the American Institute for Cancer Research

Creole cooking is a truly American cuisine; drawing on the cooking methods, seasonings and food combinations of the French, Spanish, Indians and Africans who lived in the Mississippi Delta region. The Africans introduced okra that is featured in many creole dishes, as well as the slow cooking methods and blending of herbs and vegetables that result in the distinctive creole gumbos. The Spanish contributed their love of hotly seasoned foods, and the habit of mixing meat and poultry together and serving it over rice—the basic recipe for jambalaya.

Sauces are an important part of creole cooking. The creole sauce of the following recipe works well with a variety of fish. And the creole sauce also makes an excellent topping for the rice, potatoes or pasta that you might want to serve as an accompaniment. It's flavorful and slightly spicy, but can be made hotter by increasing the tabasco sauce. It can be made ahead and reheated when baking the fish, or can even be made in larger quantities and frozen.

CAJUN COD

1 lb. filets
1/2 fresh lemon

Prepare the sauce first. Then, while the sauce is finishing, heat the oven to 450 degrees, place the filets in a lightly buttered baking dish, squeeze the lemon over the top and bake for 8 to 10 minutes, or until the fish flakes easily with a fork.

CREOLE SAUCE

2 tbsp. margarine
3/4 cup onions, chopped
3/4 cup green pepper, chopped
1 cup tomatoes (fresh or canned), peeled and chopped
3/4 cup celery, chopped
1 1/2 tsp. garlic, minced
1/2 tsp. black pepper
2 whole bay leaves
1/2 tsp. cayenne pepper
1/2 tsp. dried thyme leaves
3/4 tsp. dried oregano leaves
1/2 tsp. white pepper
1/2 tsp. sweet paprika
1/2 tsp. dried sweet basil leaves
1 1/4 cups chicken stock
1 cup canned tomato sauce
1 tsp. sugar
1/2 tsp. tabasco sauce

Melt the margarine in a large skillet and stir in the tomatoes, onions, green peppers and celery. Add the garlic and spices, and saute until the onions are transparent, stirring occasionally.

Stir in the stock, tomato sauce, sugar and tabasco and bring to a boil. Reduce the heat to a simmer and cook until the vegetables are tender, about 20 minutes. Remove the bay leaves before serving.

Place the baked fish on a warm platter and cover with the sauce. This will yield about 4 servings, each containing 145 calories and 6 grams of fat.

Legislative Phone Calls Set Record

The first month of the 1988 legislative session prompted a record-setting 44,947 calls to the Legislative Research Commission's toll-free message line. This represents an increase of almost 16,000 calls as compared to January of the 1986 session.

The greatest number of calls was placed during the week of Gov. Wallace Wilkinson's Budget Address. Of the 22,900 calls made that week, roughly 17,000 were made the day of the address and on the two days that followed.

The message line was implemented in 1978 in an attempt to make lawmakers more accessible to the public. By calling the toll-free number, constituent questions, comments and complaints can be relayed to any senator or representative. Legislators receive messages and return telephone calls throughout the day.

The toll-free number is: 1-800-372-7181 and is operated year-round.

Stress Need For Prison Planning Now

Citing a need for long-range solutions to Kentucky's serious corrections problems, Attorney General Fred Cowan and Senator Ed O'Daniel have joined forces on legislation aimed at getting a handle on the state's prison crisis. "We've been in a cycle of reacting from one crisis to the next with no direction, no control and no foresight," said Cowan.

Cowan drafted and O'Daniel has introduced two pieces of legislation designed to work hand-in-hand to improve corrections policy. Senate Bill 222 would create the Kentucky State Corrections Commission, which would develop a five-year plan for state corrections. The eight commission members would include the corrections secretary, law enforcement officials, a jailer, a circuit judge, criminal justice experts and the Attorney General. The five-year plan would cover the corrections spectrum from prison programs to the urgent need for additional cell space.

Aiding in that decision-making would be a one-time task force created by Senate Resolution 42. Its 20 members, representing individuals and agencies with strong concerns for state corrections, would review trends that impact corrections. The task force would, among other things, propose related legislation to the 1990 General Assembly.

"This would not be just another study," according to O'Daniel. He notes the many sentencing and parole changes made in recent years that affect both the number and nature of Kentucky's prison inmates and those felons under community supervision programs. "We are looking at projections of Kentucky needing over 10,000 more prison beds by the year 2000 at a cost of over half a billion dollars," said Cowan. "It's time to adopt a common sense and cost efficient solution to one of our more serious problems." The cost of establishing the corrections commission and the special task force would be minimal according to O'Daniel.

Attorney General Cowan and Senator O'Daniel have both advocated better corrections planning for some time. They worked together during Cowan's six years as a state representative when he chaired the Budget Subcommittee on Justice, Judiciary and Corrections, a position O'Daniel currently holds in the Senate.

As Attorney General, Cowan has targeted corrections and specifically prison crowding as a top legislative priority. Other key issues Cowan is involved in are election reform and child support enforcement.

EAR INFECTIONS

COPYRIGHT 1988 KVMA Kentucky Veterinary Medical Association

That cartoon that shows up once in a while of a cat or dog sitting there with a bow around its neck scratching its head and looking up at you might be heart-warming and appealing. At the same time you might remember that the scratching can also indicate a common problem seen in pets and one which is all-too-often ignored until well advanced—ear infections.

Ear infections are particularly common in dogs and especially in breeds with floppy ears. Cocker spaniels and miniature poodles seem especially susceptible to the point where routine ear care is recommended for them.

Causes of ear infection are many, but most seem to be started by an excessive accumulation of dried wax which blocks the ear canal, or by water trapped in the ear canal after bathing. Some, of course, begin with injuries to the ear and other by foreign objects such as seeds or briars being trapped in the ear canal.

Matted hair at the entrance to the ear canal can be a cause, especially in poodles. The most common cause in cats is ear mites, which are extremely common in Kentucky. In general, anything which blocks the ear canal and reduces circulation of air can cause an infection.

Symptoms including scratching the ears and shaking the head. Usually the ear is painful to touch and it may appear reddened. Often an infected ear will have a black or brown discharge with an offensive odor.

An untreated infection can cause the animal to lose its sense of balance and can result in a punctured ear drum. Treatment should begin promptly, and the initial treatment is best done by a veterinarian because the ear may be so sore the animal will need to be tranquilized for treatment. Also, it may be necessary to develop a culture of the infecting agent to determine which drug is effective against it. Routine cleaning of the ears with a good ear washing solution is recommended preventive action, as is the removal of any half that may be growing in the opening of the ears. Your veterinarian can effectively treat ear infections. But more like, your veterinarian would rather teach you how to prevent them by good grooming and health maintenance—the kind of instruction you can easily obtain with routine and regular examination and inoculation programs.

Food Prices Rise At End of 1987

Retail food prices in Kentucky closed out 1987 with an upward jolt, climbing 3.4 percent in December, according to Kentucky Farm Bureau's marketbasket survey.

Fueling the rise were price increases among a broad selection of basic food items, including such staples as ground beef, bread, milk and lettuce. Only pork and poultry items were less expensive than their reported levels in November.

With 30 of the 40 marketbasket items reflecting higher tabs, the state's food index stood at $61.90 in December, compared to $59.86 the month before. Even with the jump, however, the market-basket average remained well under the high mark for 1987, the $65.32 level measured in June.

Fruits and vegetables led the December price surge, jumping 8.4 percent over the 30-day period. Grain-based foods were 7 percent higher, dairy products up 5 percent and beef cuts were 4 percent more expensive.

The lettuce price explosion, which has since abated, saw the December average price of a head of iceberg soar to $1.30, 34 cents above the November level. Those prices reflected a sharp drop in supplies of the product which was traced to weather and insect problems in producing regions of California and Arizona.

Other foods showing notable price increases included cottage cheese and American cheese, both up 17 cents a pound, to $1.04 and $2.31 respectively. A loaf of white bread vaulted 11 cents to 80 cents, while whole-wheat bread rose 16 cents a loaf, selling for an average of a dollar.

Rib-eye steaks climbed 34 cents, to $5.07 a pound, and ice cream was up 12 cents to $1.77 a half-gallon and sirloin tip roast was 13 cents more, bringing $2.51 a pound. Whole milk climbed nearer the $2 mark, jumping 8 cents a gallon to $1.96.

The much shorter list of price decliners saw pork spare ribs and sausage down, by 12 cents and 8 cents apiece. Chicken breasts dropped 12 cents to $1.57 and egg prices moved down by some 20 percent, with large eggs declining 11 cents a dozen, selling at 59 cents.

State Receives $75,000 Grant For Older Adoptive Children

Kentucky has received a federal grant of $75,000 to strengthen the state's efforts to locate permanent families for older children awaiting adoption, Gov. Wallace G. Wilkinson recently announced.

The governor said the funds from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services will be paired with $29,200 in state money dedicated to the Special Needs Adoption Program (SNAP) in the Cabinet for Human Resources.

"Providing for human needs is one of the highest priorities of this administration," Wilkinson said. "When we can use state dollars to generate three times as much in federal funds, that's not only a good investment for Kentucky but also a good investment in people."

Human Resources Secretary Harry J. Cowherd, M.D., said, "This is going to be an important boost to Kentucky's SNAP system because more than half of our 200 special needs children awaiting adoption are 12 years old or older, and unfortunately the older the child, the longer it takes to find an adoptive home willing and able to meet that child's unique needs."

Currently in Kentucky, a child in need of adoption who is near or in his or her teenage years may be in foster care an average of 18 months before a suitable, permanent family is identified.

Brooke Darrow, who manages the cabinet's SNAP network, said the lengthy wait occurs for two primary reasons.

"By far most Kentucky couples interested in adoption initially want a healthy, white, pre-teen child," Darrow said. "In the cases of our special needs children, it's still easier to make a successful placement of a younger child, even those with emotional, physical or mental disabilities or siblings."

"The second issue arises from adjustments necessary due to the introduction into a home of an older child, often coming from a family background of abuse or neglect, who may have developed some teenage behavior patterns that require patience, careful and loving discipline—and more patience," Darrow said.

The new funding for Kentucky's SNAP work will be directed at both problems.

"We can't just wait around for couples or families to become interested in a teenager who needs a permanent home life right now," Darrow said. "This grant will enable our staff to spend more time getting the word out about these children and the importance of finding a good, caring, stable family for them."

"For example, there is a growing awareness among Kentucky's news media that they have a role to play here. Though generous allowances of newspaper space and public service programs, the message is being delivered. We simply need to spend more time in this area of educating the public."

At the same time, a portion of the new funding will go for the training of professionals who will be working with adoptive families of older children, both before a placement is made and during that adjustment period.

"We will develop, in effect, a curriculum for the caseworker, therapists and teachers whose help will be needed for this newly blended family to get over any rough spots that crop up," Darrow said.

Anyone interested in adopting a special needs child or wishing to have a presentation made to an organization on Kentucky's Special Needs Adoption Program should contact an adoption worker in the local office of the cabinet's Department for Social Services in any of the state's 120 counties.

COMMUNITY METHODIST TO HOST DISTRICT MEET
The Community United Methodist Church will host the Ashland District Hillcrest Bruce Ministry Meeting, Saturday, March 5, with lunch to be served there by the Women of the Church.

1ST BAPTIST AT ALLEN HONORS PASTOR COX
Members of the First Baptist Church, at Allen, honored their pastor, the Rev. Robert E. Cox, his wife Mary, and their children, Gene, Jimmie, and Elizabeth at the church, following services Sunday. Rev. Cox has been the pastor of the church for a year. Also honored were Arlen and Lizzie Lewis, of the Daniel's Creek Mission, who, under the direction of Leo and Pearl Watts, attended the longest period in Sunday School there. The Valentine motif was carried out in the decorations. This was under the direction of Mrs. Fannie Goble, assisted by Mesdames Gertrude Bevins, Myrtle Childers, Eleanor Crum, Pat Branson, Eleanor Martin, and others of the Food Committee.

Deacon Ramon Childers gave a brief speech, telling what the honorees meant to this church. Fellowship and food were enjoyed by the large crowd attending.

To Be Coordinator Of Bike-A-Thon In W'wright
St. Jude Children's Research Hospital has announced that Ms. Bethel Bryant has agreed to be the coordinator of the St. Jude Children's Research Hospital Bike-a-Thon in Wheelwright.

St. Jude Children's Research Hospital was founded by entertainer Danny Thomas. The institution opened its doors to the public in 1962 to combat catastrophic diseases which afflict our children. St. Jude Hospital is non-sectarian, non-discriminatory, and provides total medical care to over 4,200 patients.

At St. Jude, scientists and physicians are working side by side seeking not only a better means of treatment, but also the causes, cures and prevention of these terrible killers.

All findings and information gained at the hospital are shared freely with doctors and hospitals all over the world. Thanks to St. Jude Hospital, children who have leukemia, Hodgkin's disease, sickle-cell anemia, and other child-killing diseases now have a better chance to live.

The Bike-a-Thon program this year is dedicated to Brian McCollister. Brian, a native of Louisiana, was diagnosed with leukemia in October, 1984. Since that time, Brian has come to St. Jude every six weeks for treatment, and every 12 weeks for a bone marrow test and spinal tap to make sure his cancer stays in remission. While at home, Brian receives oral medication daily. Brian is a living example of the progress and success of the research, patient care, and educational programs of this internationally recognized hospital.

We sincerely appreciate the concern that Ms. Bethel Bryant has for our work, and we hope the citizens of Wheelwright will support the Bike-a-Thon this Spring to help provide the funds that are needed to preserve the world's greatest asset... "Our Children."

For more information, contact Ms. Bethel Bryant (Wheelwright chairman) phone #606-452-2680.
