By Joe Porter

The agenda was full at Monday night's City Council Meeting. Purchases, zoning changes, and appointments were approved; and issues on annexation and the proposed Youth Center were hashed over.

Based on recommendations from the Prestonsburg Planning and Zoning Commission, the council passed two zoning changes. The Dixon Nunnery house at 115 E. Court Street will be changed from an R-3 classification to C-3. The house will be used for the expansion of Francis Kazee & Francis Jaw firm. Also, a corner property on North Lake Road and Jackson Street will be changed from R-2 to C-4. Owner Tom Rose plans to use it for a commercial venture.

The council approved City Administrator Fred A. James's recom-

Deputies and Drought Pinch Pot Production

By Tim Sizemore

Marijuana growers plans for this summer may go up in smoke due to drought conditions and the Floyd County Sheriff's Department.

With state penalties stiffening on marijuana growers, sheriff's deputies have found it more difficult to locate patches of pot because the growers have moved into more isolated areas to cultivate the illegal weed.

This year the sheriff has confiscated more than 500 plants, with the most recent find Friday, when 87 plants were discovered on the Tolers Creek section of Big Mud.

According to Deputy George Hale, the growers are having a rough time this year. "This summer it's backfiring on the growers because of the dry weather. The plants can't be far from water and because of the drought many of them are forced to plant their crops near creeks or ponds" Hale said.

Thursday, the sheriff's department received an anomyous tip that a large patch of approximately 2,000 plants, was located at Toler's Creek. Deputies Rick Thornsbury, Harold Johnson, George Hale, Randy Johnson, Ralph Howe and (See Story No. 3, Page 4) mendation to build an addition onto the city garage at Cliff. James told the council members that there is money left over from last year that could be used for the new construction. He plans to use the additional space for storing the city street sweeper or salt truck. de by the city's Planning Commission. "What we're after is to strengthen collections," said Councilor Michael D. Vance. Rather than hire a Revenue Officer, the council accepted Mayor Ann R. Latta's proposal to spend up to $5,000 to hire a consultant to train city employees and set up a computerized system of tax surveillance. Vance made the motion that passed and added, "employees who assume extra duties will be compensated."

Branham & Baker Coal Company has offered to lease to the city the office building formerly used by Brown Produce Company, located on the corner of Third Avenue and Graham Street. The building will house the proposed Youth Center and cost $100 per year for five years. Councilor William R. Callihan warned the council of the building's state of disrepair; according to Callihan, it needs a new roof and wiring to start with. Still, Mayor Latta urged support and got Vance's backing. "I think we ought to go ahead and lease it," he said. "It's a start. We need to start. I know it's not ideal, parking is a problem, but we feel we've got to go ahead with it." The council agreed and voted to accept the lease offer

The council also briefly discussed the proposed annexation of an area of U.S. 23 that takes in part of Water Gap. A feasibility study was done and approvCallihan requested that a map be drawn of the area to be incorporated and presented at the council's next meeting. Plans are underway to build a gazebo on the Municipal Parking lot. "The commission will pay for the materials if the city will provide the cost of labor," Latta said, referring to the Tourism, Recreation/Convention Commission. A study will be done to ascertain the lot's boundaries and determine where best to situate the gazebo. "I think we could put up a real attractive one and have activities there all summer," the Mayor said. Restrooms are also being planned. James announced that the city has purchased two 1984 LTD State Police Cruisers at auction in Frankfort. The price for both vechicles was $4,925. "Hopefully, they will get us by for a few more months," James said.

The council voted to join the organization—Kentuckians for Better Transportation. The government agency membership is $300 per year; the organization will lobby to promote and improve transportation.

Local businessman Jim Sparks was appointed to the Park Board, and Randy Polk was voted the new Park Board Chairman, following the resignation of Bill Ray Collins, who has agreed to serve on the Tourism, Recreation/Convention Commission.

Greg Barnes, manager of the Prestonsburg's Winn-Dixie supermarket, presented a check for $500 to Mayor Latta. The money will go toward the purchase of a new "Jaws of Life" rescue machine.

Sellards Guilty Following Fracas At Wildcat Lounge

By Tim Sizemore

Does the Floyd county Sheriff's department have jurisdiction in Prestonsburg? The question may have been answered in a verdict handed down by a District Court jury Thursday, after they decided that a local club manager could not exclude deputies from his premises in performance of duty.

James Sellards, 43, of Prestonsburg, was found guilty of A.I. resisting arrest, disorderly conduct and hindering a police investigation, after he tried to throw two sheriff's deputies out of the Wildcat Lounge where they were seeking a shooting suspect.

Deputies Anthony Castle and Rick Thornsbury said that Sellards attempted to forcably escort them out of the club after they refused to pay a cover charge, and in the process used threatening language and grabbed Thornsbury by the arm.

Sellards received a 90 day sentence and was fined $750.50 including court costs.

Attorney for Sellards, Ned Pillersdorf, said that an appeal of the decision would be filed and the court placed the defendant under a $5,000 bond pending a higher courts decision. "I was disappointed with the result," Pillersdorf said and added that it was "unfortunate that Castle can harass businessmen."

County Attorney David Barber, was pleased with the juries verdict. "I think the jury just answered the question of law enforcement agencies, that the citizens of Floyd county won't stand for people interfering with criminal investigations and its a hard enough job without business owners hindering officers work."

country has been below normal.

-Do not leave the tap water running the sub game down, or just before daylight.

 Install water savers in showers and faucets to control the volume of water used.

-Be especially careful to prevent forest fires. Timberland, leaves, and grass holds the water and prevents runoff. Sunday's rain, while it provided a momentary relief, had little effect on the drought. "The rain was so slight it had almost zero effect on the river," Howard said. He gauged that .200 of an inch fell. The head of the City Utilities sees only one way for now to stem the shortageconservation.

Topmost Accident Results In Death

By Tim Sizemore

A wreck near Topmost in Knott county Saturday, claimed the life of a Melvin man, after the truck he was driving overturned and rolled down an embankment.

Billy Gene Vicars Jr., 18, of Melvin, was pronounced dead by Knott county Coroner Danny Terry, after the truck he and passenger Deloris Johnson, 18, of Halo, overturned, hurling the victim from the auto.

Johnson was treated for minor injuries at the Our Lady of the Way Hospital and dismissed.

Billy Gene Vicars Jr. was born in Ohio, November 14th 1969. He is survived by his parents, Billy Gene Vicars Sr. and Betty Sue Mullett Vicars, of Melvin and his grandfather Paul Mullett, of Weeksbury.

Funeral services were conducted Tuesday at 11 a.m. at the Free Will Baptist Chruch of Bypro, with the Revs. Sonny Miricle and Louie Ferrari officiating. Burial was made in the Vicars family cemetery at Melvin under direction of the R.S. Jones and Son Funeral Home at Virgie. NO HOLDS BARRED is the message of the Floyd County Sheriff's Department in their war against pot growers as Deputies George Hale and Randy Johnson display 87 plants recently confiscated.

Kentucky Supreme Court Decision Favors Floyd

By Joe Porter

The Kentucky Supreme Court on May 19 reversed the Kentucky Court of Appeals' decision in the case of Paul Wade vs. East Kentucky Utilities, Inc., Et Al. The decision was a victory for the Floyd Fiscal Court, which owns the gas system and was named in the suit.

Wade was a lineman for South Central Bell, when on May 7, 1986, he sustained serious injury as a result of a gas explosion at Allen. The explosion occurred while he was pumping water from an underground drainage system near a East Kentucky Utilities pipeline. Wade spent three months in the intensive care unit at the University of Kentucky Medical Center. In the last two years, he has undergone eight surgical procedures—skin grafts—and is still unable to work.

After the accident Wade hired Lexington attorney Raymond D. Kirk to sue the Floyd Fiscal Court in Floyd Circuit Court. The action was filed in September 1986. The defendants followed with a motion to dismiss the case on the right of sovereign immunity, which means a governmental body, in this case—the Floyd Fiscal Court—can not be sued by a person it is elected to serve.

Kirk, however, argued in his response that: "the owning and or operation of a gas utility company is not a governmental function and does not take on the characteristics born of legislative or judicial fiber." The plaintiff's attorney also wrote that the gas company. "is a separate creature from the Floyd Fiscal Court and cannot possibly enjoy nor invoke the Doctrine of Sovereign Immunity." Yet Judge Hollie Conley agreed with the defendant's motion and dismissed the case on those grounds. Kirk then appealed to the Kentucky Court of Appeals, which on September 11, 1987 unanimously reversed Conley's ruling and ordered the case to be tried in Floyd Circuit Court. The defendants then appealed to the Kentucky Supreme Court, which in a 5 to 2 vote reversed the Court of Appeals and affirmed Conley's ruling.

In arguing before Kentucky's highest court, Kirk filed a written brief that (See Story No. 1, Page 4) As of last Thursday the river's water level was at 1.9 feet above the water treatment plant's raw water intake. Usually, it is three to four feet above the intake. "This is the lowest I know it's been in 10 to 15 years." Howard said. And to make the situation worse people are consuming more water because of the hot weather. "We're pumping it at near capacity." he said. "People are using water in excess of 2,500,000 gallons a day." The system's capacity is three million gallons a day.

Low river water creates another problem. The likelihood of contamination is greater when the river is lower, and the job of treating the water is more demanding. "More chemicals have to be used to purify it, more observation is required, and the water is harder to clean up," the superintendent said.

Howard said that normally August and September are the county's driest months. "We're now experiencing weather that is normal for the last of August," he said. From the daily weather forecasts, he expects the scarcity of rain to continue on through the summer months. Howard also noted that this is the fourth year in a row

Phyllis George Brown Visits Local Artist

By Joe Porter

Former first lady of Kentucky, Phyllis George Brown, visited the home of Terry and Deborah Ratliff June 14. Ratliff, a nationally known chairmaker, was interviewed by Brown for a book she is compiling on noted Kentucky craftsmen.

Ratliff first met Brown in 1982 at the "Kentucky Wholesale Crafts Market." Her husband, John Y. Brown, was then governor. "She's genuine and straightforward in her striving to promote Kentucky crafts," Ratliff said. "We talked about it, and she feels like she's a vehicle to help crafts people keep these dying traditions alive."

Ratliff agrees with Brown that his art—chairmaking—is a dying tradition. Handmade chairs began going out of fashion with the start of the Industrial Revolution "Instead of trying to make the best chair they could, capitalism took over," Ratliff said. "The goal changed to—how many can we make and how fast can we make them." However, Ratliff makes all his chairs by hand, using age-old methods and hand tools that go back generations in tradition.

The book Brown is compiling, yet untitled, is expected to be published in the fall of 1989 by Crown Publishers in New York. Harmony House Publishers from Louisville is packaging it. It will contain stories and pictures of 45 exceptional craftsmen from across the state. All profits will go to the Kentucky Arts Foundation.

The Kentucky Guild of Artists & Craftsmen juried Ratliff's work and accepted him in 1984; the Guild's purpose it to provide a marketing outlet for its members. Yet Ratliff is also grateful to benefactors like Brown, a crafts collector herself, who also helped him get off the ground by providing him with a market. Brown started the Kentucky Arts Foundation Gallery in Louisville, which now displays his work. Last September Ratliff had a walnut host chair with a carved headboard accepted in the National Wood Worker Show held in Athens, Ohio; he was one of 75 artists selected from 28 states stated, "In 1982, the Kentucky General Assembly specifically and precisely denied county governments the power to operate gas or electric companies through KRS 67.083. This is an express mandate from the sovereign. Movants have ignored and refused compliance since 1982. The statutory enactment at the very least removed the operation of a gas utility from the status of a political subdivision.

Ratliff's success—he'll be the first to tell you—comes as a result of his wife Deborah's contribution. Over the years she has provided endless support and love, and handled much of the business of marketing his pieces, thus freeing Ratliff to concentrate on his art.

County Attorney David Barber, who argued the case before the Kentucky Supreme Court, said, "sovereign immunity has a harsh application. Individual rights are sacrificed, but for the good of all the people. It wouldn't be good if a person could win a million dollar judgement and bankrupt a county government; it would mean county workers would be laid off their jobs and services cut." In regard to whether the non-profit corporation, East Kentucky Utilities, was culpable or not for Wade's injury, Barber added, "It's a tragedy what happened. I feel sorry that Paul Wade got hurt, but I don't feel there was anything we did or didn't do that caused the accident." The County Attorney also said that the county does not have liability insurance because of the prohibitive cost of a policy

Wade, 33, lives on Buck's Branch near Martin with his wife and three children and subsists on a Social Security check. "I feel they were responsible for my accident, but I don't think it was a blatant thing," Wade said. "All I'm asking for is to be compensated for my pain and suffering. I should have a trial at least. I feel like justice is hard to come by."

Kirk agrees and believes his client has been denied due process of law under the 14th Amendment. He has now petitioned the Kentucky Supreme Court for a rehearing. In response to it, Attorney Woodrow Burchett, for the East Kentucky Utilities, Inc. wrote, "There is no merit to the contention that this Plaintiff was denied the equal protection of the law or that his due process has been denied. He may complain about the effect of existing law, but he would have no standing to complain that he did not receive due process or equal treatment

Wade's attorney expects a decision on his petition in August, but he is not hopeful. He is determined though to pursue every legal avenue to afford his client his day in court. If that fails he will file a petition for Writ of Certioria to the U.S. Supreme Court. "Justice has been

Last year Ratliff sold five walnut dining chairs to a whiskey heiress living near Louisville. "The headboard for each chair was hand carved with a different native wildflower," Deborah said. "Terry took each headboard into the woods to sketch the flowers. We delivered them, and she set her chairs under a 200 year old solid walnut French country table. It looked great, and she was just thrilled by them.

His methods have been termed 'purist" by fellow artists, for he fells and splits the trees himself, cures the wood and strips the hickory bark that he uses for seats and chair backs. What elevates his work though is the aesthetic quality he strives for in each piece of furniture. "It's an expression of feeling, Ratliff said. "It's not just a functional object I'm making; it's a statement; there are people who it says something to Ratliff sees his impact as an artist growing as his work becomes better known and demand for his furniture increases. His chairs now sell for over $1,000. He hopes though that his work will encourage other individuals to consider chairmaking as a possible career "The fact that I'm doing it-keeping the tradition alive and making a living from it-could be an inspiration to someone else.

As is often the case he will make a particular chair for a customer, then someone will see that chair and want one just like it. In the last year he has had several commissions for rocking chairs from customers in Connecticut and in Michigan. He was working on one when Brown visited. Before leaving, Brown ordered a mulberry rocker with osage orange rungs and hickory seat and back. Osage orange adapts well to the binding process, but Ratliff will have to travel to Ohio to obtain the wood.

Brown also took the time to visit Lizzie Ratliff, Terry's 84 year old grandmother, who has achieved her own fame as a family quiltmaker "She's know-ledgeable about quilts," Ratliff said about Brown. "She went wild over grandma quilts. She wanted to buy one for her daughter. And Grandma agreed to make her one.

The interview with Brown was recorded on a tape machine, and covered a range of subjects, including Ratliff's woodworking techniques; but Brown was more interested in Ratliff's individuality and lifestyle, or as he puts it, "the window we're looking at the world

Tidbits

tin resident, imparted a bit of Appalachian heritage to our Times staff, Monday, when he used the old saying "Lost in the weeds"

Mr. Porter, who is 81, explained that in his youth, socks were worn until numerous holes prevented their usability. They were then rolled into a tight ball and used by the youngsters for a game of Round Town. Round Town is similar to baseball except runners may be crossed out. (The ball is thrown between the runner and the base he's aiming for.)

According to Porter, there was always one big burly kid who was really a power hitter. When he really stepped into it, the sock ball was forever "lost in the weeds"

HAMMING IT UP

Further reminiscing by Foster Porter revealed that he is ham radio operator K4AVY, Ham operators can communicate tremendous distances depending on weather conditions and the amount of power used. Several years ago and late at night when his wife was sound asleep, Foster received a broadcast from California. He immediately ran to his wife, excitedly proclaiming "Hear that signal, that's coming from California." Mrs. Porter uttered an illustrious word and continued her sleep. I can sympathize with the late Mrs. Porter, I am married to N4OYI.

The following morning the deputies returned and with the cooperation of the caller the patch of 87 plants were discovered near a small stream. This week the sheriff's office plans to continue the search of the area where they feel the large crop is located.

Floyd County Sheriff Henry C. Hale, pledged last week to end the drug trade in the county and he told his deputies, "I don't care whose toes it steps on the drug peddlers and growers must be stopped and put in jail where they belong.

The sheriff's department with the cooperation of the Kentucky State Police will continue their efforts to eradicate the illegal crop and they hope their efforts will send a message to would be law breakers that Floyd county is no place to grow marijuana.

Morehead's Summer Enrollment Larger 4

Morehead State University's headcount enrollment for Summer 1 is 2,051 and includes a significant increase at the freshman and sophomore levels over Summer I last year, according to figures released recently by MSU President C. Nelson Grote.

"While the University experienced a slight drop overall, down five students from this period last summer, there is an interesting trend developing with an increased number of freshmen and sophomores taking summer classes, Dr. Grote said

The freshmen headcount is 292 and compared with 230 in 1987 and sophomore student enrollments increased by 22.

"A surprising number of these students are taking classes either to accelerate their college-going career or to lighten their class load during the regular academic year," Dr. Stephen S. Taylor, vice president for academic affairs, noted. "Others are enrolled in summer school to improve their grade point average," Dr. Taylor added.

Graduate enrollment for the first summer term was down but, according to Dr. James Gotsick, dean of graduate and special academic programs, the number of MSU's off-campus classes offered during the regular academic year has increased by 45 percent since 1985. "Not only are we placing more classes at our regional locations in the fall and spring, but we also are more efficiently scheduling specific classes to meet student needs," Dr. Gotsick said. "This means that many graduate students no longer have to make provisions to attend summer school," he added.

"Phyllis asked me who I felt closest to, and I told her the pioneers, the homesteaders, the people who first settled the area," Ratliff said. "She wanted to know why and how I got started in chairmaking as opposed to maybe climbing the corporate ladder. We did it to have direct control over our lives.

"Eight years ago it was just a foggy dream," Ratliff continued. "I dreamed of building a house that I could work in and having a family, and today, that's what I'm doing." Ratliff stopped and looked around his workshop: at the chair he is now making, at the woodchips on the floor, at the tools hanging up. He nodded again. "It's a dream I'm living. On a good day that's what I'm doing."

McAninch Visits Russia To Study Solid Waste

By Tim Sizemore

The United States and the Union of Soviet Socialists Republics, appear to be equal in terms of military power, but in solid waste disposal the Soviets are 20 to 30 years behind according to Robert McAninch, Director of the Floyd County Solid Waste Program, who visited Russia with an American delegation of solid waste managers June 4th thru the 18th.

According to McAninch much of the garbage in the Soviet Union goes for fertilizer, and their system of converting it to fertilizer would not be acceptable by U.S. standards. He says that the trash is delivered to composting plants that use methods employed in 1955 in the United States.

McAninch who is an instructor of political science at Prestonsburg Community College, says he was surprised by the Soviet lifestyle, "The people don't seem to be oppressed but depressed," he said. He was intrigued by the young Russians attempts to imitate their American counterparts. "The girls try to look like Madonna, and American Rock music is heard everywhere."

McAninch says that his delegation was watched by the secret police (K.G.B.) but they were allowed to talk to anyone they liked, "The people were extremely friendly and nice." he said.

The one thing that McAninch expressed displeasure about was the food. "One morning we had cucumbers and sardines for breakfast and had to drink not Pepsi." The food that did catch the educators fancy was the ice cream, "its delicious. In the nineteen-twenties they bought a machine and the process for making ice cream from a firm in Wisconsin and they've made it the same way ever since McAninch said that most of his travels were by train but he was surprised by the number of cars. His delegation toured waste disposal sites in Leningrad, Minsk, Moscow and other smaller communities.

While in Moscow he attended church services in a Russian Orthodox Church and he said that there were several denominations to choose from in the city The thing that caught McAninch's attention most about the Russian people was their continued awareness of World War Two. He explained that during the war more than 30 million Russians died and it still is close in the thoughts of the people. He said that the people of Russia are fearful of the United States starting a war

Though McAninch says he throughly enjoyed the trip, he has no great desire to return. "If I thought I could learn more I'd go back," he said and added that the journey had increased the knowledge he already had of the country.

Entertains Family Members During June

Mrs. Irene Crider entertained several members of her family during the month of June

Attending a cookout at her home Sunday, June 12, were Sidney and Eddie Priselac, of Merritt Island, Fla.; Jodi Blackburn, Melody and Willard Johnson and son, Joshua, Bryan Blackburn, all of Prestonsburg: Astor Ray and Brenda Crider and son, Verlin Ray, of Endicott, Jimmie and Jeanie Crider and Jonathan, Jason and Jimmie Jared, of Clendenin, W. Va.: Liz and John Crider. Jr. and Misty, of Endicott. Mrs. Crider had 19 members of her family present, six grandchildren and one greatgrandchild.

Mrs. Crider's sisters, Mrs. Sidney Harrison, of Beckley, W. Va. and Mrs. Iona Copley, of Belfry, also visited her Friday and stayed overnight

TREE VALUE: Keep in mind that the trees that are dropping those leaves in your yard are also saving you money. National Wildlife magazine reports that trees may cut cooling costs fifty percent or more by shading a house from sunlight. And come winter, trees may lower heating bills by as much as 15 per cent by deflecting winter gusts.

Dairy Goat Show A First, Nov. 5-6

A Dairy Goat Show will be added to the listing of events at the 1988 North American International Livestock Exposition. Harold Workman, Executive Director of the NAILE, has also confirmed that Bill Bell, of Taylorsville, will be Dairy Goat Superintendent, and Judy Schad of Pekin, In., will be Assistant Dairy Goat Superintendent.

The Dairy Goat Show will be one of the first events to take place at the 1988 North American International Livestock Exposition, with dates set for November 5 & 6. The show is sanctioned by the American Dairy Goat Association.

According to Messrs. Workman and Bell, total premium money for the first year will be $4,705. Mr. Bell also noted that several major goat breeds will be represented at the 1988 NAILE, including: Alpine, La Mancha, Nubian, Oberhasli, Saanen, and Toggenburg. Recorded Grades will also be included in goat competition, bringing the total number of breed classes to seven.

The popularity of Dairy Goats has grown in recent years, primarily among part-time farmers and small farmers. According to many producers, goats are inexpensive to keep, perform a very desirable clean-up/companionship function on the farm and produce milk which is highly digestible and nutritious. Supt. Bell said approximately 200 animals are expected to show in November, "Addition of the Dairy Goat Show to the North American International schedule of event is a step forward for our breed since the NAILE is such an important exposition," said Bell. Continuing, he confirmed that Goat Shows in November will include group classes, showmanship classes for young people, and competition for both dry does and milking does.

In addition to the Dairy Goat Show, five other livestock types will be featured at the 1988 North American International Livestock Exposition, including dairy cattle, beef cattle, swine, sheep, quarter horses and draft horses. The giant exposition is the largest of its kind in the world and will be held at the Kentucky Fair & Exposition Center in Louisville, November 5-18, 1988. More than $400.00 in premiums will be awarded to exhibitors at the NAILE, an exposition which is sponsored by the Commonwealth of Kentucky.

Champions Against Drugs Hold Meeting, May 12

The monthly meeting of the Champions Against Drugs Regional Action Group was held May 12 at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park. The meeting was conducted by Mike Vance, Chairperson. Members representing Floyd, Johnson, Martin and Pike counties present were Mike Vance, Karen Petry, Charlie Francis, Russell Hall, Linda Bishop, Billie Peters, Vickie Dye, Sandy Coleman, Rhonda Muncy, Martha Maynard, Ronnie Maynard, Barbara Hale, Norma Kirk, Chuck Register, Margaret Pelfrey, Rose Mary Scott and Paul Braswell.

Champions Against Drugs provides education and support for children in saying no to drugs. Educational programs have and will continue to be provided to schools, church groups, civic groups and many other organizations who have requested information and speakers.

One of the various projects CAD is currently pursuing includes bringing professional baseball players into the Big Sandy area to speak with the local youth teams in a effort to prevent drug and alcohol abuse.

Later this summer, CAD will be sponsoring a Teen Leadership Conference to be held at Camp Shawnee at Jenny Wiley State Park. At TLC, young people will be learning the importance of saying no to drugs and how to help their friends say no. Interested teens should contact Karen Petry at 432-3143.

Plans are being made to begin a CAD county unit in Magoffin County. An informational meeting is being planned for August with the exact date to be announced later.

Anyone interested in becoming a volunteer may contact Mike Vance at 886-8572.

MERILAS war wereaws come to a wade variety of stars, shapes and ages their collective expensions spans two world wars and several foreign collects. They have followed war mules through Flanders Field, dropped from ianding barges onto the beaches of Normandy faced the sy cold of Porkchop Hill and tradged the rice paddies of the Mekong Delta.

But, regardless of differences in makeup and experience, all veterans share a common booda brotherhood of memory and bard won wisdom that helps define their character A veteran is the first man up as the flag passes by on the 4th of July, and the last one down.

A veteraries the first man up as the flag passes by on the 4th of July, and the last one down, for the has been a winness to the blood and tears that make this and all other parades possible. A veterari is a man of peace with spotent skiw to anger, quick to realize that these who talk most about the glory of war are those who know least about its horror. He never jokes about war he's heen there, and still sees on memory's wild screen the wounded and the dying, the widows and orphanes, he knows first-hand that no war is good and that the only thing worse than war is shoere.

He is friend to all races of man, begrudging none, he carries with him the knowledge that it is not die, man who is the entries but evaluation and table ideologies. Those whom he oncefaced across the hostile buttle lines, for now esteems as his brothers.

A veteran is at once proud and humble proud of the fact that in 200 years no foreign enemy has set from on American soil, and humble in the realization that many of his comrades who helped hum make this lofts and a reality never returned. The Price They Paid

By Thomas J. Anderson

Have you ever wondered what happened to the 56 men who signed the Declaration of Independence? Or what kind of men they were, these members of the Continental Congress? Twenty-four were lawyers and jurists. Eleven were merchants, nine were farmers and large plantation owners, men of means, well educated. But they signed the Declaration of Independence knowing full well that the penalty would be death if they were captured by the Bitlish.

Five were captured. They were swiftly convicted of treason, tortured and killed. Twelve had their homes raisacked and burned. All, of course, were affected by the war that was already more than a year old. Two lost their sons in the Revolutionary Army, another had two sons captured. Nine fought and died from wounds or the hardships of the Revolutionary War. Carter Braxton of Virginia, a wealthy planter and trader, saw his ships swept from the seas by the British nawy. He sold his home and properties to pay his debts and died in rags.

Thomas McKean was so hounded by the British that he was forced to move his family almost constantly. He served in the Congress without pay while his family was kept in hiding. His possessions were taken from him and poverty was his reward.

Vandels or soldiers, or both, looted the properties of Ellery, Clymer, Hall, Walton, Gwinnett, Heyward, Rutledge and Middleton.

At the Battle of Yorktown, Thomas Nelson, Jr. noted that British General Comwallis had taken over the Nelson home for headquarters. The owner quietly urged General George Washington to open fire, which was done. The home was destroyed and Nelson died a bankrupt.

Francis Lewis had his home and properties destroyed. The enemy jailed his wife and she died within a few months.

John Hart was driven from his wife's bedside as she lay iil. Their 13 children fied for their lives. His fields and his grist mill were laid waste. For more than a year he lived in forests and onves returning home after the war to find that his wife was dead, his children vanished. A few weeks later John Hart died from extreme physical exhaustion and a broken heart.

Norris and Livingston suffered similar fates.

JULY 4

Such were the stories and sacrifices of the American Revolution. These were not wild-eyed, rabble-rousing ruffians. They were soft spoken men of means and education. They had security but they valued liberty more. Standing tall, straight and unwavering, they pledged. "For the support of this declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of the Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor."

Sciences, (606)783-2635.

Morehead State University's Department of Nursing and Allied Health Sciences has received a grant from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services for a special continuing education program.

The $16,795 grant will fund respiratory nursing workshops throughout the MSU service region. The purpose of the workshops is to provide information for registered and licensed practical nurses in Eastern Kentucky hospitals and health care agencies on ways to promote a higher level of health for coal miners suffering from occupational lung diseases

Dr. Betty Porter, department chair, said that the respiratory nursing workshops were just one in a number of continuing education programs that the University has sponsored throughout the years

A total of 11 workshops, a pilot at the University and 10 others at Eastern Kentucky sites, will be held during the year. The locations include: Ashland, Harlan, Hazard, Louisa, Jackson, Middlesboro, Mt. Sterling, Pikeville, Prestonsburg and Whitesburg.

"Recognizing our commitment to the region means taking the programs out into the area to meet the needs of nurses and that translates into meeting the needs of the people," Pauline Ramey, associate professor of nursing at MSU and author of the grant proposal, said.

There is a documented need for this type of education in the region, Ramey added. By 1990, 1.3 billion tons of coal will be mined each year, a 100 percent increase over 1980 levels. Kentucky is the nation's leading coal producing state and more than 75 percent of the state's coal is mined in Eastern Kentucky.

National Center for Health Services data shows that between 1968 and 1978, the national death rate from respiratory diseases rose by 22 percent, while death rates for most other diseases declined. According to statistics provided by U.S. Rep. Chris Perkins, 7th District of Kentucky, the incidence of respiratory diseases in Eastern Kentucky is 35 times greater than the national average.

In addition, the coal miner's rate of stomach cancer, lung cancer and hypertension is many times greater than that for the general population.

"If you add to those statistics the 20,000 or so people working in Eastern Kentucky coal mines, you see the urgent need for respiratory nursing education," Ramey said.

Despite obvious health risks associated with the coal mining industry, a 1985 survey of nurses in the region showed that the majority of health care professionals have only a minimal educational background in respiratory nursing.

An estimated 418 nurses will participate in the program, though this number does not reflect the health care professionals from adjacent coal-mining communities in Ohio, Virginia and West

Virginia that may attend, according to Ramey

A pilot workshop, held at MSU in early June, drew a larger number of participants than expected, Dr. Porter said. She added that makes her believe that the 418 estimate for the entire project is very low

"From the response we have had already, everyone seems to be very enthusiastic," said Dr. Porter. "Several congressional leaders from the area were very interested in this project being funded and we are appreciative of their support," she added.

In addition to the workshops, MSU will

Medicaid Funds To Local Health Services

Patients of Kentucky's local health departments won't notice a difference, but as of July 1, the federal government will begin picking up part of the costs for preventive health care services provided to Kentuckians eligible for Medicaid coverage.

While the change won't mean any additional federal or state funds to local health departments, it will free up some state dollars for other services such as child care and vaccines, AIDS education and programs for the elderly. To maximize use of the state funds, Gov. Wallace G. Wilkinson and the 1988 General Assembly moved $1.1 million from the state Department for Health Services budget to the Department for Medicaid Services—a sister agency in the Cabinet for Human Resources.

Kentucky receives $7.23 in federal funds for every $2.77 in state general funds spent for Medicaid. This means the internal transfer will net Kentucky an additional $3 million. That money will be used for higher payments to private agencies caring for wards of the state, to support local emergency medical services, to purchase child immunization vaccines and to boost the state's AIDS education project.

Human Resources Secretary Harry J. Cowherd, M.D., said, "At a time when state dollars are scarce and the cost of medical care has escalated, we've been fortunate to be able to take this creative funding approach. "This will mean we don't have to take away from one vital area—local health departments' services—in order to support growing needs in other areas. We're simply going to get a greater federal matching return for our state commitment," Cowherd said.

State and local funding will continue to cover local health department services for people who are ineligible for Medicaid but also unable to pay. Roy Butler, commissioner of the Department for Medicaid Services, said the extension of medical assistance funds to preventive health areas is important. "Since these services previously were not covered under Medicaid, we're adding another dimension to the medical care provided to our clients. "By doing this we expect to help patients avoid more serious illnesses which often result when patients do not get prompt medical attention," he said.

An estimated 92,000 Kentuckians covered by the Medicaid program are expected to be served by the state's local health departments this year.

MEMBERS OF THE DEWEY LAKE FISH & GAME CLUB have been hard at work at the Dewey Management area. In addition to plowing, disking, and sowing seeds, they have planted Chinese chestnut and bicolor lelspedeza trees, corn, millet, clover, and soy beans. These will provide cover and food for grouse, quail, and turkeys.

Working with the Department of Fish and Wildlife, the Soil Conservation Service, and the Corps of Engineers, Dewey Lake Fish & Game Club members have sowed 45 to 50 acres in food plots at the management area.

The club has also posted a $500 reward for information as to anyone killing deer or turkeys illegally on the management area in Floyd county.

Johnny Lafferty, president of the club, said, "You just can't do too much for wildlife. We invite anyone who would like to help with projects such as these to join the club."

Meetings are held at 7:30 p.m. on the second Monday of each month at the Stratton Branch clubhouse.

Ky. General Fund Receipts Reflect Continued Growth

State Finance Secretary L. Rogers Wells, Jr. has announced that General Fund receipts for May amounted to $196.5 million, an increase of 4.3 percent more than May of last year.

According to Wells, the primary sources of the increase were regular sales and use tax receipts which increased by seven percent and employer withholding which was up by 10.1 percent as compared to May 1987. "Growth in those two areas continues to reflect strength in the state economy," he said. Year-to-date growth going into the final month of this fiscal year is 5.5 percent. June economic growth figures need to be 2.3 percent in order to meet the projected annual figure of 5.2 percent, Wells said.

A $20.2 million difference in tax refunds from the previous year, primarily in individual and corporate income taxes, curtailed the May figures. Corporate income receipts were down 62 percent due to the refunds.

Coal severance receipts were 11.3 percent lower reflecting the use of stockpiled coal rather than new purchases. Property tax receipts were down 25.9 percent which is an adjustment resulting from earlier payments in prior months of fiscal year.

Road Fund collections for May totaled $56.3 million, an increase of 8.5 percent more than May 1987. Growth in motor fuels taxes, including motor fuels use and motor vehicle usage, offset the loss of truck decal fees. Motor fuels increased by 47.1 percent and motor vehicle usage receipts were up by 12.6 percent. The Road Fund has declined 5.3 percent during the first 11 months of the fiscal year.

CONSIDER THE SOURCE

A vitamin by any other name is still a vitamin. A "natural" vitamin which is taken from a food source is no different from one that is synthesized in a laboratory. The only difference that the consumer is likely to see is in the price. As for the tissues of the body, they will perceive a vitamin in the same manner, regardless of where it came from. In addition, anyone taking vitamin supplements should check with the pharmacist to be sure that they will not affect any medications also being taken. Although vitamins are not usually thought of as drugs, they do indeed interact with certain prescription and nonprescription medicines.

Nation's Farm Policy Affecting Cheese Distribution, Say Officials

Three leading agriculture officials in Kentucky charged recently that the U.S. Department of Agriculture was undermining dairy farmers through improper management of the dairy price support program

Agriculture Commissioner Ward 'Butch' Burnette, House Agriculture Committee Chairman Clay Crupper (D-Dry Ridge) and Community Farm Alliance Director Hal Hamilton said they would ask for a Congressional investigation of the dairy program. They said conflicting reports on the nation's dairy surplus were hurting both dairy farmers and those who depend on the distribution of dairy commodities to the needy

Under the nation's farm policy, the price support level for 100 pounds of milk was cut by 50 cents, to $10.33, in January because the USDA estimated that its 1988 purchases of dairy surplus would not fall below the required 5 billionpound level. In February, the USDA announced the termination of cheese distribution to low-income people, saying there was a shortage of surplus dairy commodities.

Beginning in July, no cheese will be available through the Temporary Emergency Food Assistance Program for low-income people. In addition, sharp reductions have been imposed for the school lunch programs and for the Commodity Supplemental Food Program which is geared to disadvantaged children.

Hamilton, a Henry County dairy farmer, is organizing a petition drive in support of a Congressional investigation. His effort has the support of Burnette, who formerly worked in the dairy industry; and Crupper, who currently operates a milk hauling business.

At a Frankfort press conference, Hamilton said the dairy situation had producers "confused and frustrated."

'Milk prices are at a 10-year low in Kentucky because of an alleged surplus problem-and yet the government tells us they don't have an adequate surplus to maintain commodity distribution programs. If we indeed have a manageable surplus, then Congress should work to restore the price support cut. That cut is costing farmers hundreds of millions of dollars, apparently for no good reason." Hamilton said.

In May, Kentucky's average milk price was $11.96 per hundredweight, the lowest since the summer of 1979, according to the Kentucky Agricultural Statistics Service.

The USDA's Commodity Credit Corporation estimates that it will purchase about 8 billion pounds of surplus dairy products this year, up from 6.7 billion last year. Crupper, an outspoken critic of current dairy policy, said it was "ludicrous" for CCC to project increased purchases while reducing the distribution of its stocks.

'They're hurting the farmers and they're hurting the millions who depend on the commodity distribution programs," Crupper said. "Congress needs

The Community Farm Alliance, a grassroots organization of farm activisis, including many small dairy farm families, estimates that more than 200,000 Kentucky families receive monthly distribution nof government-owned commodities. Of the nation's warehouses are empty and people are in need, dairy production should be encouraged to meet that need," said Hamilton.

Crupper noted that dairy farmers had suffered from a series of price support reductions fueled by the 1985 farm bill. The state has lost more than 200,000 dairy farms since 1970, he said.

'We are down to about 4,300 working dairy farms and the government seems to be intent on putting more out of business," Crupper said. "When you lose a dairy farmer, a bunch of others will suffer. The milk hauler, the feed dealer, the equipment dealer, the banker, the downtown merchants in these small communities-it hurts them all.

Contract Awarded For School Project

By Tim Sizemore

A special Floyd County School Board meeting was held here, Monday afternoon to approve, a site preparation contract for the Right Beaver Elementary School Project.

The $139,000 contract for site preparation was awarded to Hays Inc., of Betsy Layne, and work will soon begin to fill the land to meet the architects specifications.

Superintendent Ray Brackett, told the Board that work has already commenced on the site of the Prestonsburg Middle School and he expects completion in the next week or two.

Brackett also gained Board approval to request an additional increase in Power Equalization Funds from the state and said that if approved it could mean an additional four to five hundred thousand dollars to the school systems building coffers. The increase is subject to approval of the School Building and Grounds Commission.

Can File New Disability Claims Recent discovery of duplicate military medical records by the National Archives will enable thousands of World War II and Korean Conflict Army and Army Air Corps veterans to file for Veterans Administration disability compensation payments.

To speed these claims, the VA has introduced special procedures, collectively called Project Expedite, which involves a massive cross-checking of files to determine cases that can be reopened. Using the new records, VA Benefits Counselors now hope to assist many veterans whose claims had been denied because no record was available to confirm medical disabilities that occurred during military service.

Veterans and survivors unsure whether their disability compensation claims are affected should contact the nearest VA Regional Office. In Louisville, call 584-2231 and from other areas in Kentucky, dial toll free 1-800-292-4562.

The National Archives and Records Administration on June 15 advised the VA that it had located a collection of computer tape containing some 10 million Army medical records that partially fill a gap created when a 1973 fire destroyed millions of military files at a federal warehouse in St. Louis. The newly found records cover the years from 1942 to 1945 and from 1950 to 1954.

For certain veterans whose claims for disability compensation were denied since the fire, the VA may now be able to establish documentary evidence to support their claims.

The St. Louis fire destroyed or serious-ly damaged some 18 million service records, making future disability claims difficult and, in some cases, impossible to process. The newly found medical records were provided to the National Archives by the National Research Council, a private organization that had been engaged in analysis of Army hospital records, in the 1950s. The computerized information reflects battle injuries treated in Army hospitals and a sample of hospitalization for other reasons. The records cover personnel who served in the Army and Army Air Corps.

Rev. Jessen Attends General Assembly

The Rev. Timothy Jessen, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, reported Sunday on his recent trip to the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church (USA) held in St. Louis, Missouri. The 200th Assembly of the Church in this country celebrated its history and heritage.

While at the Assembly, Mr. Jessen was privileged to play for a service of worship at which the featured speaker was Mother Teresa of Calcutta. The Presbyterian Church will move its headquarters to Louisville in early August, completing the plans begun by the reunion of its former Southern and Northern branches.

VA Begins Review Of Radiation Claims

The Veterans Administration has begun reviewing disability compensation claims of veterans exposed to radiation while on active duty, and their survivors, under new authority recently conferred by Congress.

Legislation signed by President Reagan May 20 authorized payments to veterans suffering from any of 13 types of cancer, and their survivors.

To qualify for the disability compensation, the disease must be rated 10 percent or more disabling and the veteran must have been exposed in one of three duty situations: participating in a test atmospheric detonation of a nuclear device, serving occupation duty in Hiroshima or Nagasaki, Japan, between August 6, 1945, and July 1, 1946, or exposure while a prisoner of war in Japan.

Claims involving the 13 cancers already on file with the VA are being reviewed for eligibility. Other claims may be filed from among some 300,000 veterans who were in areas of possible exposure.

The diseases automatically assumed by the law to qualify for compensation are the following cancers: leukemia other than chronic lymphocytic leukemia, thyroid, breast, pharynx, esophagus, stomach, small intestine, pancreas, multiple myeloma, lymphomas except Hodgkin's disease, bile duct, gall bladder, and liver except when cirrhosis or hepatitis B is indicated.

The law restricts compensation to those veterans whose disease became evident within 40 years of exposure, beginning on the last date on which the veteran participated in a radiation-risk activity, except for leukemia, which has a 30-year limit.

Monthly compensation payments to veterans range from $71.00 to $1,411.00. Additional amounts may be awarded for certain severe disabilities. For survivors, benefits range from $518.00 to $1,327.00 a month, depending upon the pay grade of the veteran while on active duty.

Veterans or survivors with claims already on file are being considered for disability compensation. Other veterans exposed to radiation should file a claim immediately at the nearest of 58 VA Regional Offices across the country.

Mother Writes Of Dyslectic Child

Editor's Note: The following was submitted by Carrie Maynard Caudill, mother of Edmond Randall (Randy) Caudill and Christy Caudill, who were two of three Magoffin County teenagers killed in an automobile accident on May

For 10 years out of 16 years of our son Randy's life, I've heard from his teachers how he could do his school work but he was lazy. By his classmates, Randy had been called dumb. By me and his Dad, Randy had been pushed, fussed at, punished and grounded from things he enjoyed.

In the Sixth Grade we had him held back a year hoping it would help him. We took Randy to psychologists hoping they could help us find the problem and the answer to the problem if it existed. We got no satisfaction there.

In Randy's first year of high school (which should have been his second) he was failing. I talked to Randy's teachers. They said he could do his work, he had plenty of time to finish it in class. So we pushed him a little harder. No matter how hard he tried, we expected more

One day I picked up the newspaper and saw an ad from the Hindman Settlement School in Hindman where your kid could be tested and if he qualified there was a tutoring program for them. Randy was tested and diagnosed as having a learning disability called dyslexia.

Dyslexia is usually associated among kids with higher than average IQ. These kids are smart. In no way should they be considered dumb or retarded. Many famous people had this disability. Among them are Rockefeller and Einstein.

We began tutoring classes in March 1988 in Floyd County. (Classes were not available in Magoffin County). Thanks to people aware of dyslexia and trained to teach or tutor these children, noticeable improvement can be seen in their learning skills.

On May 24, our last class of the semester, Randy had improved by two points in his reading. That same night we were informed of a school in Mayfield where he could be able, after six weeks, to earn two credits to be applied toward his high school requirements. Randy was willing and eager to go despite the sacrifice of giving up most of his summer vacation having to stay away from home.

My son, full of ambitions and goals, had a girlfriend. He earned his learner's permit, enjoyed being with his friends and had hoped to try for his driver's license on May I and then on to Mayfield on June 5

He never made it to Mayfield. You see. God called him and his sister. Christy, our only two children, on to Heaven on the night of May 27, along with one of Christy's best friends, Venetta Barnett

As parents, we had so many hopes and dreams for them. We were determined that they would achieve the goals they had set for their lives. Randy needed special schooling. The school board advised us that there were no funds

Approves Choice

How proud I was after reading that Ron Hager has finally been appointed to the position of County School Superintendent. I've known this young man for years and know what his capabilities are, and knowing that he has already contributed so much to our schools, serving in different capacities as teacher, vice principal, principal and taking care of the superintendent's office when the former superintendent was critically ill for months. Twenty-four years is time enough to learn what our schools need and especially what our children need.

All children that have profited from Ron's knowledge as a teacher knows what a caring person he is. Floyd County will soon learn that also.

Hurrah! Hurrah! Finally we will move ahead.

Mrs. Helen Hammonds Branham Prestonsburg, formally from David, Ky.

Not Surprised

I was shocked but not surprised to hear that some coal companies filed a lawsuit to keep the people from voting on the broad form deed amendment this fall

This is just another effort to abuse the landowners. I believe I would be ashamed to show myself if I had done the landowners the way some coal companies have:

If everybody would stop and think they would see that they wouldn't want to have someone move in with a dozer and destroy their land against their wishes

I am happy to be a member of KFTC and to work for this amendment. All we are trying to do is support the little guy. So far the courts haven't been upholding the landowner.

It's time for Kentucky to wake up and fight for all the people and not just the big man. The landowners and the common people have to fight for this amendment and we have to win.

Rapid Transit Okay

Once in a while one hears of a new innovative idea and Representative Greg Stumbo has one of these ideas. What a great idea, a Rapid Transit, in Kentucky, especially Eastern Kentucky. One may think at first glance that the idea is preposterous. But not really, many cities have them and I certainly can see the potential of reducing unemployment by being able to "zip" to their jobs in Lexington and other cities.

I hope he can get this idea going and into operation as soon as possible. MRS. LOIS BOND

Protests Coal Rights

I was born in 1919 in old Harlan county. I speak in part from my mind and from my personal experience.

Friends, this world and all therein belongs to God who made it all and gave it all. The one who can make it stay or take it all. It belongs to God.

No coal operator has a right, even with a broadform deed, to take what I own, what I have bought and paid for myself and my family's needs. Our land and our home belongs to me and my familynot the coal operators.

And I think all the minerals beneath our land should belong to me and to my family. This is America and we shall defend our justice and our liberty. Remember what a great man once said. Our government is supposed to be of the people, by the people and for the people. One nation under God with justice and liberty for all!

Calls for Bill Passage

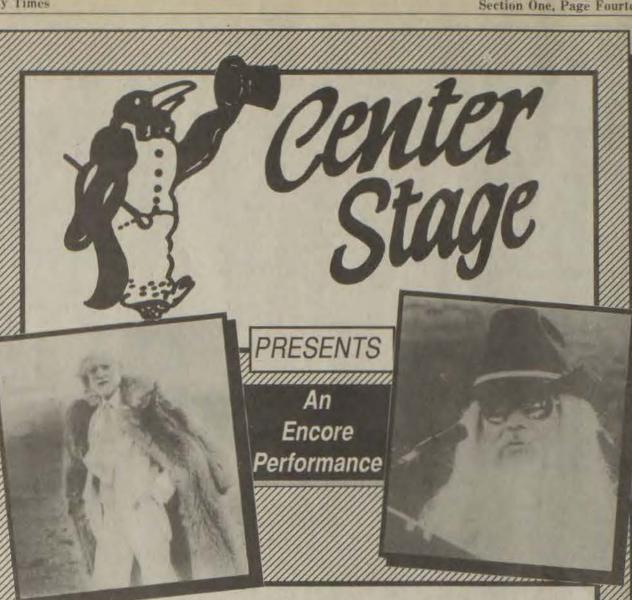

After years of struggle, Kentuckians have an opportunity to improve the lives of many Kentucky's citizens. On November 8, please vote YES on the broad form deed constitutional amendment

This simple act will stop the injustice of coal companies using old mineral rights agreements to strip mine land of current landowners without their permission.

Strip mining did not exist when most broad form deeds were signed and no one could foresee the devastation it would cause. Modern methods of mining can turn a farm into a moonscape. We cannot and must not let pass this

PCC To Offer Teen Programs

Prestonsburg Community College will offer a series of afternoon programs in July and August, designed to better prepare teenagers for academic work and decision making.

Teen Topics, a series of mini-courses, will run from 1:30-3:00 p.m. in room 216 of the Pike Building.

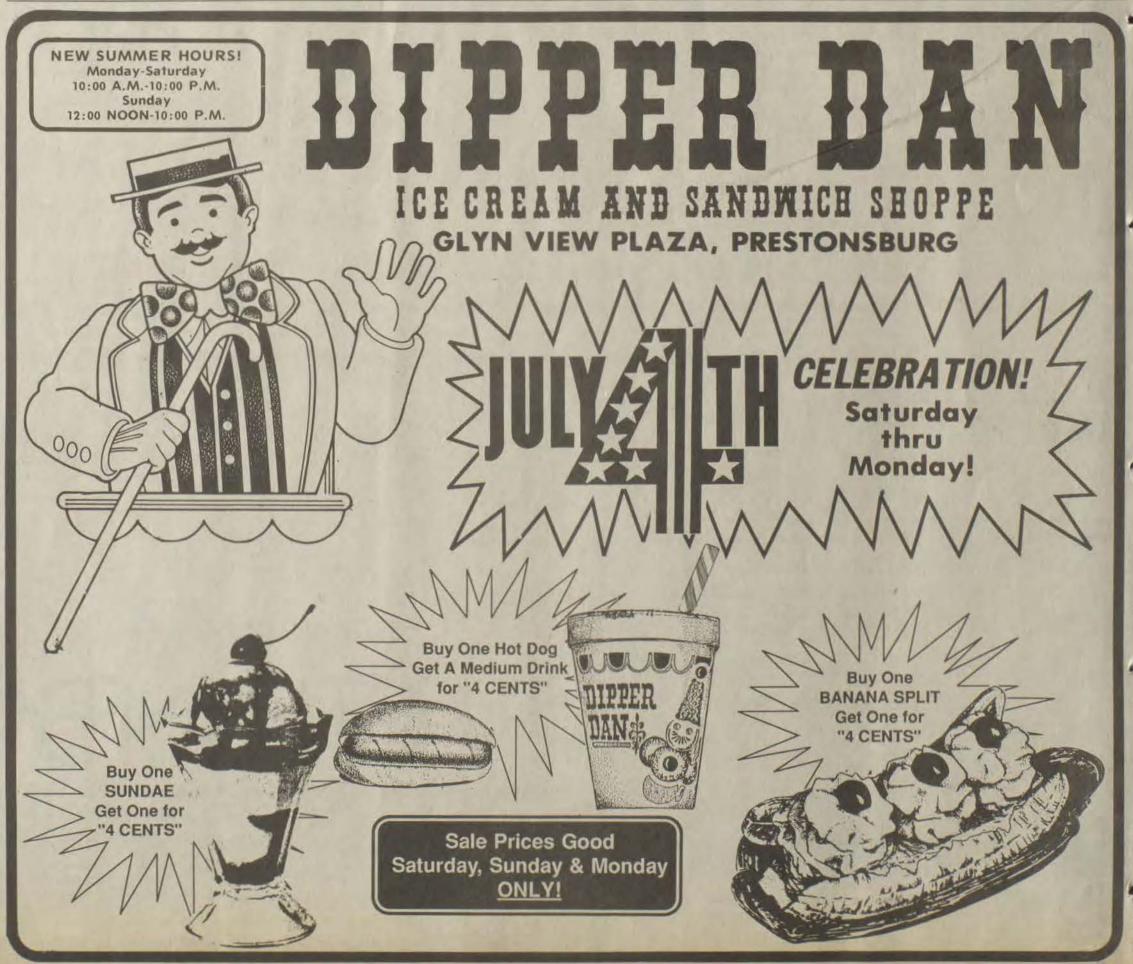

The series begins with a class on Critical Thinking, set July 11-15. The class focuses on problem-solving processes and the ability to look at relationships among problem elements. Many critics of modern education have commented on the need for emphasis on critical thinking practices in the schools.

Study Skills is the topic of the second class, July 18-22. It will include tips on improving reading comprehension, memory, concentration skills and study habits.

The week of July 25-29 will feature a class on Choosing a Career. Teens are generally bombarded by well-meaning family and friends with questions on what they plan to do with their lives, and this class aims to help them make informed, rational decisions about their choice of careers

The fourth class in the series, August 1-5, largets the ACT, the test required of most colleges and universities in the area. The class proposes to help high schoolers prepare to take the ACT. Included will be standardized test-taking skills and preparation for different content areas of the test.

For more information on the program, call PCC's Office of Continuing Education and Community Services at 886-3863, ext. 215.

Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever Parents should carefully inspect their children for ticks after a romp in the woods or high grasses this summer.

Beware the Tick—It May Carry

That old bugaboo, the tick, with its threat of deadly Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever, is back again and in large numbers.

Those parents also should not neglect to inspect themselves too, said Chris Christensen, Extension entomologist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

While children are more likely to be bitten by a tick, because they spend more time in the weeds, the Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever is most severe to adults, especially the elderly,

"Only a very small number of ticks actually has the spotted fever disease, but it's dangerous enough that you don't want one of them on you.

"The disease is transmitted to people through the bite of an infected American dog tick, the most common tick in Kentucky," Christensen said. "Fortunately, it usually is not transmitted unless the tick remains attached for two or more hours.

That's why frequent inspections, especially of the hair and back of the neck, are suggested for children who play outside this summer. Simply pull the ticks off and a person reduces the chances of the disease.

Symptoms of spotted fever include a severe fever beginning from three to 10 days after a tick bite with chills, headaches and muscle aches. A rash resembling measles usually appears on the wrists and ankles after one to three days of fever.

Christensen said anyone exposed to ticks who experiences these symptoms should contact a doctor quickly. Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever can be cured if diagnosed early, but it also can be fatal if ignored.

Christensen said most people can reduce the threat of disease from tick bites by following three simple rules.

"Wear long pants," he said. "If wearing boots, tuck pants legs into them. Also tuck shirts into pants. This helps prevent ticks from getting on the skin.

Second, he said, treat clothing with an approved tick repellent. Aerosols containing permethrin provide excellent protection. Finally, teach children to check periodically and remove any ticks found on their body.

To remove a tick, pull upward using steady, even pressure without twisting or jerking, Christensen said. Be careful not to squeeze or crush the tick's body since that might inject tick body fluids and disease agents into the skin. Then examine the bite area to make sure the tick's mouthparts were removed.

Christensen also recommended that the tick be kept in a container without alcohol or other preservatives for at least two weeks. If symptoms of a disease appear, the identity of the tick helps the doctor diagnose the disease.

Prestonsburg Woman Gets Career Boost

Shirley Thompson, of Prestonsburg, is one of 14 participants in the New Opportunity School for Women at Berea College.

Designed for women who are in transitional periods in their lives, the New Opportunity School, in session from June 6-25 this year, is an educational program that places emphasis on extensive career exploration. Through testing and individual counseling, job skills and interests are identified and all participants are placed in suitable part-time jobs.

Women living in the nine-state southern Appalachian area who have completed high school or have a GED certificate are eligible for the Berea proe gram. There is no cost for attending. Rooms and meals are provided without charge and grants for travel and child care are available.

Through their various job assignments-that range from working in the college library and offices to learning practical nursing skills at local hospitals-participants gain even greater insight into their potential and abilities. Educational and cultural opportunities also are provided through field trips to museums, musical programs, lectures, writing seminars and classes in Appalchian literature.

On-campus study this year has includh ed poetry readings by poets George Ella Lyons and Sidney Saylor Farr, a creative writing seminar directed by author Gurney Norman, and workshops on computer skills, stress and financial management, resume writing, and building self-esteem.

Off-campus study includes field trips to Shakertown in Pleasant Hill, Fort Boonesboro State Park, the Appalachian Museum in Norris, Tenn., and the Cincinnati Art Museum.

Officials Offer Safe Guidelines On Refrigerated, Frozen Food

Is this food still good? If you've ever wondered that question as you've taken food out of the refrigerator or freezer, Kentucky Department for Health Services officials have some tips for you.

"Everybody knows that improperly stored food can make you sick," said John Draper, supervisor of the department's food protection section. "But not everybody knows how to store food so that it stays fresh and safe.'

Draper says that one of the most important factors in preventing spoilage in cooked food is the cooling period after cooking.

'Cooling food gradually is a prime way to promote bacterial growth,' Draper said, "When cooked food remains at room temperature for more than two hours, gradual cooling may allow bacterial growth.

"Refrigerate cooked foods promptly," he said. "If you have a large pot of stew or soup, it should be divided into small containers so that it cools quicker in the refrigerator, which should be cooled to 40 degrees Fahrenheit.

Food should be placed in the refrigerator so that cool air can circulate around it.

'It's best to store meat, milk and leftovers in the coldest part of the refrigerator, which is the area nearest the freezer," Draper said.

Draper advises wrapping food to be frozen in freezer paper, foil or heavy plastic. Packages should be dated and older ones used first.

"If food is held at 0 degrees Fahrenheit or colder, leaving it frozen for longer than recommended won't cause any health risks when the food is eaten," he said. "But the food might lose flavor or some of its nutritional value." Draper offers the following guidelines for refrigerated and frozen food. IN THE REFRIGERATOR

Raw meats, poultry, fish-one to two days; larger cuts of meat, such as roasts, three to four days.

Leftovers and cooked meat-chicken, gravy, meat broth, chicken and turkey pies, chicken or tuna salad, one to two days; roast beef, stew, fresh ham or pork, meat spaghetti sauce, lambthree to four days; lefover canned or cured ham, four to five days.

Students Earn College Credit

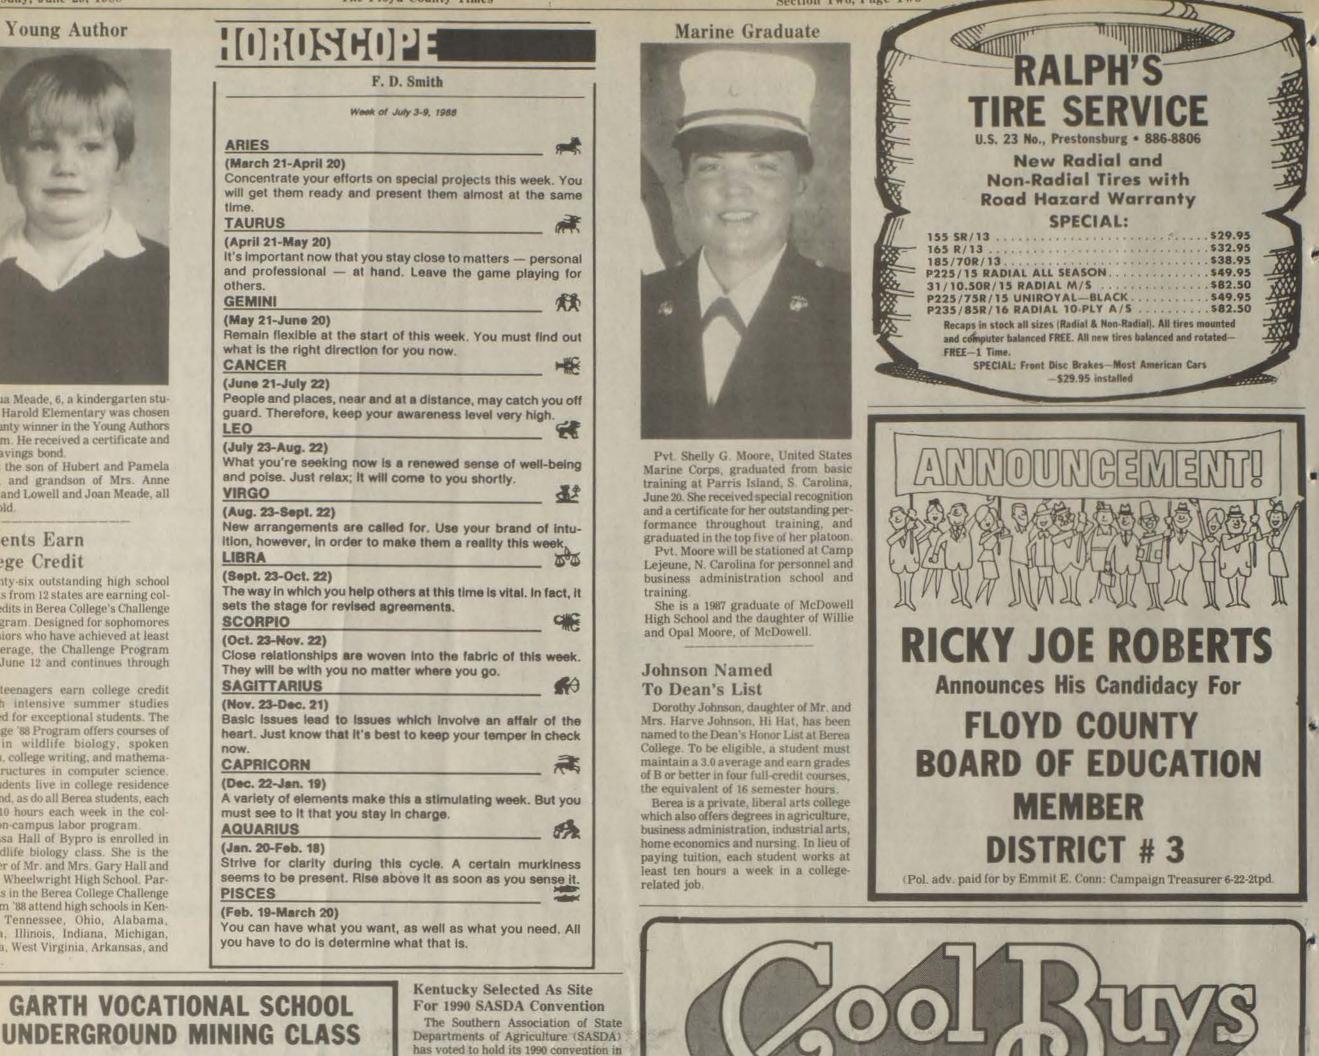

Seventy-six outstanding high school students from 12 states are earning college credits in Berea College's Challenge '88 Program. Designed for sophomores and juniors who have achieved at least a B average, the Challenge Program began June 12 and continues through July 8.

The teenagers earn college credit through intensive summer studies designed for exceptional students. The Challenge '88 Program offers courses of study in wildlife biology, spoken Spanish, college writing, and mathematical structures in computer science. The students live in college residence halls, and, as do all Berea students, each works 10 hours each week in the college's on-campus labor program.

Malissa Hall of Bypro is enrolled in the wildlife biology class. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Hall and attends Wheelwright High School. Participants in the Berea College Challenge Program '88 attend high schools in Kentucky, Tennessee, Ohio, Alabama, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Virginia, West Virginia, Arkansas, and Florida

Kentucky to correspond with the year that Kentucky Agriculture Commissioner Ward "Butch" Burnette will be president of the group.

Comprised of officials from agriculture departments in 14 southern states Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, SASDA was formed to promote and protect the interest of agriculture in that region. More than 300 people recently attended the association's annual meeting in Charleston, S.C. In his first year as Kentucky's commissioner, Burnette was elected secretary-treasurer of SASDA. He automatically moves up to vicepresident in 1989 and to president in 1990. The Kentucky Department of Agriculture is taking a more active role in SASDA so that it can promote the sale of Kentucky hay to the several southern states that typically import large volumes. The department is preparing to implement a hay grading and marketing program. Cattle and dairy farmers in Florida, Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi and South Carolina have been identified as potential customers for the graded hay.

"Our involvement with SASDA should assist the effort to find buyers for our hay," Burnette said.

The site for the June 1980 convention in Kentucky will be selected in the future. Burnette said.

* BOOKS AND THINGS BY: TRISHA MORRIS, Librarian Prestonsburg Community College

There are two species of the human animal—man and woman—to understand one it is equally necessary to understand the other. The following books from the P.C.C. library examines the world of the male species.

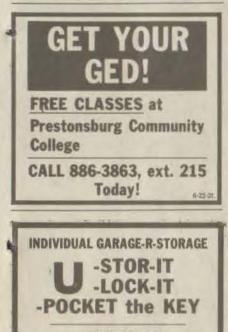

Be A Man

By: Peter Stearns

The advent of industrialization in the 18th century and the feminist movement in the nineteenth challenged some key cannons of manhood. In primitive days man made war and killed animals to survive. In more settled times man wrenched his living from the land, and with industrialization man labored for a third party and received compensation. More recently, men and women share the work field.-So what does it mean to "be a man?" This book represents a history of maleness in the Western world. The author deals with the frontier experience in North America and the argument that Western society provided a balance of functions between men and women. It joins a very slim body of literature on men in society. It's concluding chapter, "Vive une difference," is an attempt to seek a solution for the rapidly changing roles of the species in Western society-and to find what it now means to "be a man."

The Changing Definition Of Masculinity By: Clyde Franklin

This book grew out of a course, taught by the author, entitled "Social Factors in Male Personality." As such, it spends a lot of space discussing conflicting views and is bogged down with statistics. Chapter 1 deals with masculinity in the U.S.; Chapter 2 examines the roles of biology and environment in male socialization; Chapter 3's topic is the male self—etc.—until the concluding chapter which raises the questions and attempts to answer some about the male sex-role in the future and is romantically subtitled, "will Price Charming survive?" That's the chapter I read.

-PERFECT STORAGE FOR-FURNITURE-TOOLS BOATS-SPORTS CAR

Men in Groups By: Lionel Tiger

The author's central theme is the universal phenomenon of male groups, from prehistoric man to the complex social patterns of modern communities. Why do human males form all-male groups? What do they do in their groups? And, what are the groups for? This book extends into religious orders and secret societies as well as games, politics and business. Published in 1969, it is a little dated since the last all-male dominated group is getting hard to find, but, it is an interesting historical study and a fascinating theory.

Changing Boundaries By: Elizabeth Atlgeier

This book grabs the attention immediately—first it is by a woman and second it is about sex—everybodys sex—singles, heterosexuals, homosexuals, and the aging and more. It is an attempt to bring together what is known about the relationship of gender roles with information about sexual attitudes and experiences. It's about men and women living together and working together and how they feel about their relationships and themselves. It's readable, and it's good.

How Men Feel

By: Anthony Astrachan

The author interviewed a diverse population in age, race, income, education and occupation in the seven years it took him to accumulate material for this book. This work is divided into five parts-the most interesting being: 'How men feel about women in a man's job." which spans occupations from the army to the professionals; "How men feel about changes in personal life," covering fathering and sex and the "Men's movement," which is a response to the women's movement. Concluding with "The times we live in," it is one of the few places where economy is mentioned. As a book written in the 80's it admits that few families can comfortably live on one income and deals with the situations from the standpoint thatthere is no going back. Well written and researched, it is one of the better books on the subject.

Men And Abortion

By: Arthur Shostak

Written by two men who have been through the abortion process with their respective partners. This book came from a desire to help other men and women make the "best of an experience

Gas Prices Rise

Motorists traveling throughout central and eastern Kentucky over the Fourth of July holiday weekend will find the average price of gasoline to be $1.09 per gallon, the Blue Grass Automobile Club-AAA reported today.

AAA's latest fuel gauge survey showed prices had risen an average of one penny since the Club's last survey prior which tries them as few others may in their lifetime." Through their ex-periences, studies, and many, many interviews they found that abortion is a far greater dilemma for men than researchers, counselors-and women-have imagined. They state that,"...nowhere are the differences between men and women more clearly defined. Men of all ethnic backgrounds, ages and socioeconomic levels have trouble dealing with abortion." Those of you who watch Phil Donahue might remember the coauthor, Gary McLouth, on his show after the publication of this book. Based on many personal studies and many pertinent statistics, this is a revealing story. Male/Female Roles

One of a series in that most interesting of series-Opposing Viewpoints. This series uses excerpts from magazines, journals, books, newspapers etc. to give its readers all the viewpoints they can find on a popular subject. With such opposing articles as "Tradition oppresses women" to "Tradition uplifts women" and "Men need liberating from masculine myths" to "The dominant male needs no liberating" between the covers of the same book it sometimes gets too hot to hold. A good way to drink in the whole picture of a subject without getting drowned in an entire book on one aspect of it.

Men and Women

Are the species more than just biologically different or have we just been taught to behave differently? Dr. Nicholson has written a refreshingly clear and unbiased book based on scientific research and survey material. His aim was to discover how men and women see themselves and each other, to establish how accurate their perceptions are, and to consider whether it is possible, or desirable, that things should change.

Dark Clouds Over Dixie: Rural Economic Crisis Affects People

The economic renaissance of the 1970s that brought mining and oil-related jobs into the rural South and the optimism that better times were here to stay dimmed as energy prices plummeted and technologies displaced many of the positions remaining.

Manufacturing jobs promised by the dawning of the new South materialized for the urban areas, with only small spill over to the rural areas.

Traditionally, the two Ps of the rural South have been pride and poverty. The people are proud and poor but not proud of being poor. As the 1980s continue, poverty in the rural South increases.

"To most Americans, poverty is an inner city problem," said rural sociologist Louis Swanson, who is with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

"It is in the cities where it is most concentrated and more obvious to the largest segment of the population. But the concentration is misleading. Rural poverty is greater than urban poverty and in no place is it greater than in the rural South."

While the per capita income of the region, including both urban and rural areas, is now at about 88 percent of the nation's, per capita income in the rural South is only 75 percent of the nation's, tucky agricultural economist. In some areas, per capita income actually dropped below that level.

Rural poverty is increasing. In 1986, it was estimated that one in every five rural Southerners lives in poverty, Swanson said.

"Poverty involves more than not having money. Its implications include malnutrition, poor health and a shortened lifespan," Swanson said.

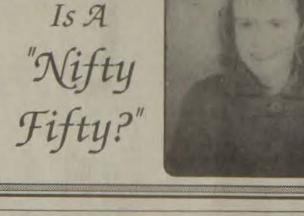

In the rural South, the poor are 65 percent more likely to have diets that are inadequate for multiple essential nutrients. Children of the rural poor are almost three times more likely to be growth-stunted than children from more affluent families.

"A characteristic of rural Southern poverty is hunger, malnutrition and a higher-than-average infant mortality rate," Swanson said. "In this sense, poverty spans the generations."

Behind the statistics, Swanson said, are real people whose lives continue to be plagued by poverty even if they are later able to earn enough money so that they are no longer part of the statistics of poverty.

"Poverty is physically, psychologically and socially devastating and its remnants remain throughout a person's life," Swanson said.

Central to poverty in the rural South

"EPA and others are concerned about lead in drinking water. Too much lead in the human body can cause serious damage to the brain, kidneys, nervous system, and red blood cells. The greatest risk, even with short-term exposure, is to young children and pregnant women. "Lead levels in your drinking water are likely to be highest:

- -if your home or water system has lead pipes, or
- -if your home has copper pipes with lead solder, and
- -if the home is less than five years old, or
- -if you have soft or acidic water, or
- -if water sits in the pipes for several hours."

The Prestonsburg City's Utilities Commission does not have lead service lines or other lead-containing materials in our distribution system. The water in Prestonsburg City's Utilities Commission's water supply is not in violation of the current standards. The water in your own house piping may be. It is the responsibility of the customer to pay for testing for lead in their own house piping.

You can reduce the possibility of consuming water with high lead concentrations by the following:

1. Flush cold water pipes before drinking-10-30 seconds.

 Use only water from cold water pipes for drinking, cooking or preparing baby formula.

3. Lead pipes and service connections can be replaced.

4. Insist that only lead free materials be used in repairs or new plumbing.

The most common source of lead in drinking water is copper pipe assembled with lead based solder. To determine if you have lead pipes or copper pipes with lead solder in your homes or buildings; lead pipe is gray in color and very soft and can easily be scratched with a screwdriver or coin to shine or cut with a knife. Lead solder is also gray, soft and can be scratched shiny. Copper pipe is the color of a penny. The only way to be sure of the amount of lead in your water is to have the water tested by a state certified testing laboratory. KET Airs Up To Date Constitution Debate

What if television had existed in 1788? How would the debates over ratification of the U.S. Constitution have been covered? An Empire of Reason attempts to answer this when it airs Thursday, July 14 at 9 p.m. on KET.

Walter Cronkite reports on events that happened 200 years ago from the studios of the Continental Television Network. Historical figures wear modern dress and use familiar language to examine the debates that took place in 1787 and 1788 in New York State. Phil Donahue and William F. Buckley, Jr. enact colonial versions of their popular public affairs shows; John Chancellor, Charlayne Hunter-Gault, and Robert MacNeil are among the other television news personalities who appear. There are "paid political announcements" from Eli Wallach and E.G. Marshall, a weather report, and commercials offering bargain barter deals

The debates led on the Federalist side by Alexander Hamilton and John Jay and on the anti-Federalist side by John Lansing and Melancton Smith were of great importance in the development of the Bill of Rights. Their ideas, and those of other political leaders of the day, are expressed. Political figures of today such as New York Governor Mario Cuomo; New York Major Ed Koch; and New Jersey Governor Thomas Kean appear as well.

An Empire of Reason was produced by Middlemarch Films and presented by the New York Bar Foundation as part of the Bicentennial of New York State's ratification of the Constitution. is the low educational status of the people. The lack of a sufficient economic base of many rural Southern counties contributes to the perpetuation of the poor quality of the educational system, Swanson said.

"Even where rural schools are funded at the same level as urban schools, the attainment of education of the populace is low. In 1980, only half of the population over 25 living in the rural South had finished high school. Furthermore, adults in the rural South are less likely to have the financial means, educational background and desire to attend college," Swanson said. Brian Ray Alan Collins, son of Greg and Sue Collins, of Kendalville, Ind., formerly of Floyd county, celebrated his first birthday at the home of his grandparents, Thermon and Ruth Collins, of Pyramid.

A Banana Split cake was served to his guests: Great-grandma Maudie Moore, of Pyramid; his cousin, Roger Allen Collins, son of Sam and Ella Collins; his aunts, Ikie Collins and Linda Greer and cousin, Steffanie Myers Book, of Stone Coal.

Another party was given at the home of his great-grandparents, Ben and Suzzie Smith, of Stone Coal by his maternal grandmother, Mae Rawhoof and aunt Lizzie.

Brian received many cards and gifts from his friends and relatives and also a lot of hugs and kisses.

Apricots Start the Parade Of Fresh Summer Fruit

From the American Institute for Cancer Research

Now is the time to start looking for the first of a long parade of fresh summer fruits—the apricot. Grown primarily in California, this luscious fruit can bring a taste of the summer sun even thousands of miles away—if you shop carefully. Apricots are one of the most fragile fruits and must be given the utmost care in shipping and handling.

Apricots are an excellent source of beta-carotene, a form of vitamin A that research studies sponsored by the American Institute for Cancer Research have linked to lower cancer risk. Apricots are also a fair source of the important vitamin C. And, while they taste sinfully sweet, three apricots contain only about 50 calories.

Apricots are at their peak in June. Look for plump fruit with an apricot scent and as much golden color as possible. Soft-ripe apricots have the best flavor, but must be used immediately. Avoid pale yellow or greenish yellow fruit, or those that are very firm, shriveled or bruised.

If the apricots are not fully ripe, group them loosely in a closed paper bag at room temperature and check them daily. When they give to gentle pressure, they are ripe and should be used promptly or refrigerated and eaten within two days.

Apricots can be enjoyed plain or prepared in a variety of ways. Serve slices on cereal or pancakes, or add apricots to fruit, fish or chicken salads. They are delicious stewed or in desserts from pies to sherbet.

Both apricots and broccoli add betacarotene to this delicious main-dish salad. Pork tenderloin, one of the leanest cuts of pork, is cooked ahead and used as the meat in the salad, flavored with a tasty orange-soy dressing.

PORK AND APRICOT SALAD 1 lb. pork tenderloin 10 medium apricots, halved 2 cups broccoli, blanched 1 cup celery, sliced 1/3 cup orange juice 8 tsp. vinegar 2 tsp. soy sauce 1/2 tsp. ground ginger Dash white pepper To cook the pork tenderloin, trim off the visible fat and place the meat on a rack in a 350 degree oven for 30-35 minutes. Remove the meat from the oven, let it cool slightly and cut into thin strips

Big Sandy Alzheimer's Support Groups Meet

Shaker Festival Begins July 15 A new set and a new performance schedule will be part of the 27th annual Shakertown Revisited. The historic musical drama will open

July 15 during the annual Shaker Festival in Shakertown at South Union. Shows will begin at 8:15 p.m. each Friday. Saturday and Sunday through July 31.

The play by Russell Miller traces the history of the Shakers from the time they landed in America in 1774 until the South Union village closed in 1922.

Other attractions at the Shaker Festival include craft demonstrations by an oval box maker, basket maker, chair caner, tinsmith and broom maker.

There will be Shaker music and special tours of the museum in the 42-room 1824 Center House. A Shaker picnic lunch will be available on the museum grounds, and reservations for dinner at the Shaker Tavern can be made by calling (502) 542-6801.

Improved Sleeping Habits May Help Reduce Pain of Arthritis

People with rheumatoid arthritis who cannot sleep well because of pain can learn to make sleeping easier. As an added result, they may feel less pain and be in a better mood during the day, according to new research presented this week in Houston at the National Scientific Meeting of the Arthritis Health Professions Association (AHPA), the health professional section of the Arthritis Foundation.

The new study is an outgrowth of research presented at last year's AHPA scientific meeting that found a relationship between people's sleep quality and the arthritis-related pain they feel.

"We've found that people with arthritis have more sleeping difficulties, such as falling asleep and awakening in the middle of the night, than people without arthritis, even if the people without arthritis are experiencing problems such as low-back pain. We've also found that a person with more sleeping difficulties will also have more severe arthritis pain during the day," said Stephen Wegener, Ph.D., leader of the research study conducted at the University of Virginia.

The research presented at last year's scientific meeting suggests that most arthritis-related sleeping difficulties are linked to pain. The new research suggests that there are coping strategies that can be learned to help someone with arthritis sleep better and, potentially, help reduce the pain of arthritis during the day.

After analysis of her sleeping patterns, a woman with rheumatoid arthritis was taught sleep hygiene methods, relaxation techniques and behavioral strategies to change sleep habits. The result was a more rested individual who experienced less pain during her daytime activities. larger study is still being completed, but it is showing similar results. Among the behavioral techniques used to improve the quality of sleep are: * Go to bed and awake at the same time each day

* Participate in regular exercise

 Avoid eating large meals before going to bed
 Avoid caffeine and alcohol before go-

* Avoid catterne and alcohol before going to bed * Try not to use over-the-counter

Try not to use over-the-counte medications to get to sleep

* Learn deep breathing and relaxation exercises

 Imagine a pleasant place on which to focus and count your breaths (such as the beach or in the park)

* If you have persistent problems with your sleep, talk to your doctor

The Arthritis Health Professions Association, the health professional section of the Arthritis Foundation, is composed of nurses, physical and occupational therapists, physicians and other health professionals interested in issues of arthritis care. The Arthritis Foundation is the only national volunteer health agency seeking the causes, cures, preventions and treatments for the more than 100 forms of arthritis-related diseases.

Before learning the behavioral adjustments to pain, it took the woman an average of 95 minutes to fall asleep, with early morning awakenings 67 percent of the time. She received an average 6.3 hours of sleep. After learning the techniques, it took her an average of only 7.8 minutes to fall asleep with no early morning awakenings. She received an average 7.28 hours of sleep. There was also a clinically significant improvement in mood and feeling rested and a decline in the overall amount of pain she felt from her arthritis during the day. The study was conducted under a research grant from the Arthritis Foundation and was expanded to a larger study of more than 25 people using a con-

In Time of Plague, Researchers Find "Epidemics of Fear"

By LINDA ST. THOMAS Smithsonian News Service

Epidemic diseases have been recorded for at least 5,000 years. Still, each disease brings panic and fear, especially for Americans who, until AIDS was first recognized in 1981, had been lulled into believing that epidemics of infectious diseases were a thing of the past. "Not since the polio epidemics of the 1940s and early '50s has fear of infection reached such a high pitch as it has in the 1980s," Dr. Allan Brandt, a professor at Harvard University's Medical School, says.

The virus that causes acquired immune deficiency syndrome is unusually lethal. Of the 4,454 new AIDS patients in the United States reported to the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta in the first six months of 1985, more than 3,000 were dead by late 1987—a fatality rate of 78 percent. This rate is expected to increase as more people die from the incurable disease.

There are striking similarities between AIDS and epidemics of the past. Historians and other researchers say we can learn from these past experiences in order to conquer unwarranted fear, provide comfort to people with AIDS and continue research to find a cure and a vaccine.

The American experience with the tuberculosis epidemic of the early 1900s can be compared to AIDS, says Dr. Daniel Fox, curator of "In Time of Plague," a recent exhibition on the history of epidemics at the American Museum of Natural History in New York City. The exhibition will tour the country next year under the auspices of the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service.

Both TB and AIDS are infectious, often striking people in their 20s and 30s, and both diseases have long incubation periods. Most important, says Fox, a professor at the State University of New York at Stony Brook, "TB and AIDS test our compassion and strength as a society because victims of both diseases need special, long-term care." TB patients were often cared for at nome or in sanitariums. Similarly, many AIDS patients receive out-patient treatment, which has led to an increase in the number of patients requiring hospices and home-care services. How many cases of a disease make an epidemic? There is no set number, according to the CDC, which defines an epidemic simply as "more cases than you would expect to find in a certain population over a certain period of time." Thus, the CDC says, a single case of bubonic plague or polio in the United States would constitute an epidemic because it is more than the normal or expected number of cases. Some responses to epidemics or plagues are predictable-and negative. People often become suspicious of immigrants and travelers, for example, who may carry the disease. The United States, Thailand, Iraq and other nations require immigrants to be screened for antibodies to the AIDS virus. Victims of epidemics are also often avoided for fear of contagion, even in situations where the disease-such as AIDS or syphilis—is not spread through casual contact. One age-old step taken to prevent epidemics is quarantine or isolation. Many Americans can still recall quarantine signs stamped on their doors through the 1940s announcing that someone inside had scarlet fever, diphtheria, chicken pox or measles. Beginning in the Middle Ages, authorities in European cities attempted to prevent the spread of bubonic plague by confining victims and their families to their homes. Doctors and public health officials now know that fleas on rats carried the plague bacterium. In turn, the fleas bit humans. Confining families of plague victims to their homes-which were usually infested with rats-increased the chances that those people would contract the disease. Many historians agree, though, that quarantining ships and towns probably helped stop the spread of rats, and therefore the disease, to entire regions. In addition, people living during the bouts of plague that ravaged Europe from the 14th to the 18th centuries were advised to avoid the sick and their families, public gatherings, religious services and funerals. One British government recommendation involved moving infected people to special buildings and shooting anyone who tried to escape. Explaining the proposal, one official said, "Where the disease is desperate, the remedy must be so too." The plan met with public outrage and was withdrawn.

sex education classes for younger children and including AIDS prevention information and sending pamphlets on the disease to every household in the United States.

The response to another epidemic—syphillis in the early 20th century—also has much in common with people's responses to AIDS. "For decades, there was no curative treatment against syphilis, just as there is no cure or vaccine for AIDS now," says Harvard's Brandt, author of a book on sexually transmitted diseases, No Magic Bullet.

Public education, then, is an essential weapon in the fight against AIDS, just as it was for syphilis before the discovery of antibiotics. Thousands of U.S. military posters once recommended abstinence to guard against syphilis and gonorrhea. Today, posters, brochures and films advise the use of condoms and other methods—including abstinence—to prevent contracting the virus or viruses that cause AIDS.

For centuries, doctors have known that syphilis like AIDS—is sexually transmitted. Many people, however, persisted in believing that casual contact even touching—was dangerous. The U.S. Navy in World War II went as far as removing doorknobs from ships, Brandt notes, in an effort to protect sailors' health.

"The polio epidemic in the United States had nothing to do with sexuality, but the fear it engendered was actually greater than the fear of AIDS," Fox says. Poliomyelitis was a well-publicized disease, which afflicted President Franklin D. Roosevelt and thousands of children and young adults. The epidemic was at its peak from 1942 to 1953. In 1952, 57,879 cases were reported. The virus is passed by direct contact, such as sneezing or coughing on someone. This led to widespread fears about crowded places, and children were kept from swimming pools and summer camps.

Polio has virtually been eliminated in the United States. According to the CDC, the virus has not occurred naturally in this country for eight years, which is why a single case would be considered an epidemic.

In this photo, Dr. Jonas Salk, who developed the killed-virus polio vaccine, inoculates a school girl. The vaccine was first used on April 12, 1955.

This 1721 illustration shows a physician dressed in garb believed to protect against bubonic plague. The leather outfit had a "beak" filled with herbs to filter airborne germs. His wand contained incense to ward off impurities.

Today, some people consider measures designed to stop the spread of AIDS extreme: distributing clean needles to heroin addicts in New York City, starting Another epidemic, far more lethal than polio, was cholera, which struck in this country in the mid-1800s. Cholera still runs rampant in developing nations where water, supplies are contaminated or where infected people handle food with unwashed hands.

Cholera, Dr. Charles Rosenberg, a historian at the University of Pennsylvania, says, is the "classic" epidemic. Rosenberg recently spoke at a public symposium on the history of epidemics at the New School for Social Research in New York City. As with many other epidemics, he says, cholera was first believed to be a punishment sent by God and transmitted in the "miasma"—bad air that supposedly surrounded infected places. Onset of the disease is dramatic, marked by diarrhea, vomiting, stomach cramps and swift dehydration.

By 1883, when the cholera bacterium was discovered, some American physicians were already familiar with the theory that contaminated water, rather than "bad air," caused the disease. They recommended that people boil water and disinfect the clothing and bedding of cholera victims. The response to cholera in the United States was a turning point in the fight against all infectious diseases and the beginning of the public health movement. While scientists looked for cures and vaccines, public health and city officials began working for better housing and nutrition, clean water, proper trash removal and improved personal hygiene.

Artifacts maintained at the Smithsonian's National Museum of American History in Washington, D.C., trace the history of epidemics and the U.S. public health movement. The collection includes such items as samples of AZT, a drug used to treat AIDS; samples of vaccines; polio braces; military posters, and bloodtesting equipment.

While most researchers agree that a vaccine or a cure for AIDS are years away, the history of other epidemics does provide guidance. "Social action during past epidemics may have been more effective than waiting for a triumph of medical science," Fox says. In the last century, death rates in the United States from the most lethal infectious diseases began to decline before vaccines or cures were available. Improvements in education, food, water supplies and housing were major factors in controlling epidemics. "Prevention," Fox adds, "remains the best response to a disease such as AIDS that has brought the past firmly into the present."

During World War II, the U.S. military produced thousands of posters such as this one to control epidemics of syphilis and other sexually transmitted diseases. Before the discovery of antibiotics, the only sure "cure" for these diseases was prevention.

Thailand's Monkey Labor Force

Coconut growers in southern Thailand and neighboring Malaysia have found an unusual labor pool that will never strike and works for nothing-trained monkeys, according to International Wildlife magazine. International Wildlife is a publication of the National Wildlife Federation.

For centuries in the Thai province of Surat Thani and offshore Samui Island, plantations have drafted pfgtail macques as agile coconut pickers. These two regions alone ship some 3,300 tons of copra, the oil-rich flesh from coconuts, to Bangkok each month.

With a few words of encouragement, the owner of a well-trained macaque can send his monkey bounding up the trunk of a palm. Once in the crown, the animal looks for ripe coconuts. Clutching the tree with a hand or foot, it twists the nut on its stem until the coconut falls free. Then it moves on to the next prize. Most trained macaques can pick as many as 500 coconuts a day.

But no monkey collects coconuts of its own accord, and trainers are in demand. One of Thailand's best is Khun Sumporn, who runs the grandly named "Monkey Training College" outside the town of Surat.

Sumporn begins training his macaques when they are six months old. Holding an old coconut in his hands, he shows the novice how to spin it. In time, Sumporn hangs several coconuts from a wooden frame, and the student learns to twist them. Finally, the macaque graduates to treetops. Sumporn stands on the ground below, shouting "Ao! Ao!"-which roughly translates as "Fetch! Fetch!"

Trained macques like Sumporn's are a boon to coconut growers. But others too have found coconut-picking monkeys helpful. Back in the 1930s, the English botanist E.J.H. Corner turned to the animals for help in compiling a book on Malayan trees.

Many of the trees towered a hundred feet or more before sprouting the leaves and flowers needed for identification. With commendable initiative, the botanist got hold of some "beroks," as the coconut monkeys are also known, and retrained them to climb forest trees and twist off small branches. In collecting the evidence that fell to earth, Corner even discovered a new species. The professor freely admitted that without the macques' help he could never have completed his Wayside Trees of Malaya. In one volume, he even provided a tribute, nothing that whoever cared to know Malayan trees, "Upon His Shoulder Sits a Ber k.

Bats Hotter Than Weather As FC Gains Sweep

As the mercury inched toward the 100 degree mark, Floyd County broke out some bats that were even hotter than the weather in a double header sweep of Leslie County, Wednesday on the road.

Floyd County, winners of four of their last six, banged out 24 hits, 12 in each game, to record their first sweep of a twin bill this summer.

But the day didn't belong solely to potent bats. Mark Tipton gave up only one earned run in the first game as FC recorded a 19-6 win, and Mason Slone came through with a similar performance in a 16-3 second game victory.

Tipton, 1-2, gave up five hits in his five innings, complete game performance. He struck out six and walked five in winning his first game of the year.

The righthander from Betsy Layne had plenty of support too. Floyd County enjoyed their biggest run producing game of the season, banging out 12 hits and taking advantage of some costly errors in scoring 19 runs. Of their 12 hits, three were homeruns, and four were doubles

Third baseman Tim Trusty and center fielder Mike McQuate led the offensive explosion, each blasting three-run homeruns and a double a piece.

Trusty, who upped his average close to the .300 mark, opened the scoring in the first when he lifted a Gordon Asher pitch over the 305 sign in left field, scoring Mason Slone and Ray Collins in front of him

Slone had led the game off with a walk, and Collins had followed with the same, putting Floyd County in scoring position, and after Mike McQuate and Kevin Webb went down on strikes, Trusty came through with a two-out blast. Floyd County held that lead until the top of the third when they sent 10 men to the plate in a six-run outburst, building their lead to 9-0. The big blast in the inning proved to be a three-run homerun off the bat of McQuate. Tony Kidd also had an RBI single in the inning, and Brad Hall doubled in two more.

Leslie County attempted to come back in the bottom of the third, scoring four times, all coming with two out. The inning started harmlessly enough as Tipton struck out Jerry Ramey leading off and retired Russell Melton on a ground ball.

But on a grounder to first, Tipton was late covering the base, allowing Tackett Wilson to reach. A walk later Ray Collins allowed a grounder to get under his glove. Those two fielding mistakes opened the gates and four runs rolled out. It didn't take Floyd County long to get the runs back though. They scored six in the fourth, and four more in the fifth, opening up their final 13-run margin of victory

Tipton struck out two batters in the fifth, holding Leslie County scoreless in order to keep the 10-run mercy rule in effect

Brad Hall, Kidd, Trusty, McQuate, and Jeff Lovely all had two hits each in the first game win. Lovely had a homerun as well. Trusty scored four runs, and Collins, McQuate and Lovely crossed the plate three times. Asher, a righthander, suffered the loss for Leslie County. He gave up nine runs on seven hits in only two and two-thirds innings of work. He also gave up two homeruns.

But on this day homeruns seemed to be the order of business for Floyd County. After hitting a total of three in the first game, they came back in the nightcap to crank two more, both of the three run variety.

In similar fashion to the opener, Mike McQuate cranked a three-run homerun in the first, putting Floyd County up 3-0 early. But unlike Trusty's in the first inning of the first game, McQuate's came with no outs.

And Floyd County continued to pound the baseball, scoring five more times in the opening inning to blow the game open.

Mason Slone made sure it stayed open as the little righthander gave up only one hit, a third inning single, as Floyd County claimed a 17-3 victory.

Slone, 2-2, walked four, two of which scored, and struck out three in his five innings of work. Only one of the three Leslie County runs were earned. Ray Collins led Floyd County's 12-hit attack by banging out three singles, his first three-hit game this summer. Kevin Webb and Jeff Lovely had two hits each.

Floyd County, which scored eight runs in the first, sent 12 men to the plate in the third, adding another eight spot to the scoreboard. Three of the runs came home on Waylon Estep's first homerun. Brad Hall, Steve Miller, and Slone also hit safely for Floyd County. In the double header Collins reached base six of his eight trips to the plate. Jeff Lovely was retired only once in seven trips, and Tony Kidd reached base in all but one of his six plate appearances.

Tim Trusty, in the first game, reached base in all four of his times at bat, and Floyd Compton scored two runs in two official at bats in the second game.

Left fielder Brad Hall was three for six in the two games with three RBIs. He also reached base five out of his seven trips plateward.

Floyd County, with the double header sweep, improved their record to 7-8, and for the first time this summer claimed consecutive victories.

The Sporting Times

ter taste still lingers. The frustration is powerful, and the disappointment has been devastating. And what makes it even tougher is the fact that nothing can be done about it ... itil next year.

The way they flung their fists in the air, flopped and rolled in the floor, and taunted their opponent, it was a disgusting show of Lakerism. Oh, and just think, they repeated as champions. Now every sportscaster can't say 100 times during an NBA playoff broadcast, "the last team to repeat as champions was the 1969 Boston Celtics. "That statement had become as much a part of the game as the free throw

And to a Laker hater such as myself. the win last Tuesday night goes beyond a worded description. It kind of made the stomach try to switch places with the mouth, or some description such as that. 1 woke up Wednesday morning hoping that, in some twist of humor, CBS had played a nasty trick on the viewing

It's been over a week now and the bit- not true, but if others can say Larry Bird is old, I can say Kareem is too. He looked it in the final game, probably because he gave all he had in game six.

Byron Scott is a hot head who has never gotten the most out of his talents, and Magic Johnson is the most overrated player in the NBA. A.C. Green is one dimensional, and Kurt Rambis can't get the job done anymore

So how did this group (Gag) repeat as champions. It's simple-luck, and the officials. LA always gets the breaks, it's a fact of professional basketball.

I can't understand why the CBS announcers didn't pick up on some of these things. Why didn't they curse James Worthy, and criticize the Laker fast break? Why didn't they give credit for the victory to these officials?

Even today I switch on a sports report just dreaming that someone will say, 'the big news in the sports world today is the story from LA where it has been learned that the Lakers actually lost the seventh game of the championship series.

Bad Breaks, Poor Play Leads To Floyd Losses

way, but Floyd County didn't exactly play solid baseball. The two combined together, led to four losses during the recent weekend trip.

Beginning in Morehead and finishing up at Paris, the trip wasn't expected to be an easy one, and it proved to be a disaster, mostly because of mistakes Floyd County made defensively

In the first game Friday night Floyd County left nine runners on base, and allowed Morehead to score three runs on just one hit in the first three innings on their way to an 11-1 loss

Tim Trusty, who limited Morehead to only two hits through the first four innings, suffered the loss. Trusty, 1-3, gave up five runs in the fifth and gave way to Kevin Webb.

Shawn Little went the distance to pick up the Morehead win. He gave up four hits, struck out seven and walked three in six innings of work.

Mason Slone had two of Floyd Coun-In the second game of the double header Floyd County got strong pitching from lefthander Nathan Shelton, but didn't get any breaks in the 7-2 loss.

The breaks didn't exactly go their Morehead put the game away by scoring four more times.

Tim Trusty of Floyd County singled and scored which pulled within one run going into the bottom of the sixth inning.

But they got no closer, and as a result Nathan Shelton was tagged with his first loss of the season. He struck out four and walked four. Only three of the runs were earned.

But Floyd County again failed to make the routine defensive plays, allowing Paris to score three unearned runs, and take a 5-2 lead. FC never got back in the game after that. Paris scored five times in the fifth, and added three in the sixth off Thomas Hall to bring about the 10-run mercy rule. Floyd County committed a total of seven errors in the game. The same thing happened in the second game, especially in the first inning. WATCHING THE FLIGHT: Floyd County outfielder Brad Hall follows the flight of a fly ball he hit this past weekend.

Slone Sets Down Berea

Several calls, all more than a little questionable, figured in at least four Morehead runs. Floyd County errors accounted for the rest.

Morehead, which had only seven hits, scored their first run in the third when Scott Collins singled, went to third on a wild pickoff attempt, and scored on a Mason Slone error, tying the score at 1-1. In the fourth, with two out, and runners on second and third, a balk was called on Shelton. It was the same move he had used, and did use the entire game. To add pain to the call, the next hitter struck out.

Morehead, 28-2, scored an unearned run in the fifth, and when Lorene Frazier was called safe at first in the sixth,

Mason Slone scattered four hits through six innings, and Floyd County banged out 11 hits in an 11-1 victory over homestanding Berea, Saturday afternoon.

The righthander from Knott Central struck out two and walked only one batter. Slone, 3-2, set down the final eight men in order to secure the victory. The one Berea run was unearned.

Floyd County, claiming their first victory in a three day, six game road trip, jumped out early, scoring five times in the first, although they had only one hit in the inning.

Berea, 8-11, committed five errors in the inning. Floyd County's lone hit was an RBI bunt single off the bat of third baseman Tim Trusty. But in the second FC earned their runs, banging out four hits in scoring two more runs.

Nathan Shelton led the inning off by beating out an infield hopper. He stole second, went to third on the throw, and scored when Mike McQuate collected a single Tim Trusty later plated a run, scoring McQuate with his second hit of the game. Leading 7-1, Floyd County scored twice in the fourth, and added two more in the sixth to build an 11-1 lead.

Slone, throwing on only two days rest, set Berea down in order in the bottom of the sixth to keep the 10-run mercy rule in effect

Berea scored their only run in the first when right fielder Tony Kidd misplayed a Jody Creech fly ball. Creech ended up on third, and scored on a solid single to left by Brian Adams.

But Slone toughened, helped out just a bit by catcher Thomas Hall. Hall threw Adams out trying to steal, and Slone got Steve Cruse on a fly ball and retired Scott Thomason on a grounder to first baseman Jeff Lovely.

Berea threathened in the second and the fourth, getting their lead off man to second with nobody out in each inning, but in each inning Slone worked his way out of trouble.

By then, though, Floyd County had built a comfortable lead, getting seven runs in the first two innings.

McQuate, Lovely, and Trusty all had two hits each with McQuate scoring three times. Steve Miller added a sixth inning, inside-the-park homerun to the Floyd County attack

Brad Hall, Waylon Estep, Shelton, and Collins also hit safely for the victorious Floyd County squad.

But in the first game, a 5-4 loss, they didn't exactly enjoy a good offensive outing. Floyd County managed only seven hits, four in the last two innings, in losing the one run affair.

Hard throwing Berea lefthander Jerry Gray silenced Floyd County bats through the first five innings, giving up three hits and one unearned run as his team built a 4-1 lead heading into the sixth inning

In the sixth, though, Waylon Estep drew a one out walk, and Steve Miller, Brad Hall, and Mason Slone followed with singles as Floyd County plated three runs to tie the score.

They also threathened in the seventh, having runners on first and third with only one out, but Tim Trusty, who singled and moved to third on a Tony Kidd single, was tagged out while trying to score on a passed ball.

Floyd County failed to score in the inning, and Berea took advantage of it, scoring once in the bottom of the seventh to claim the victory.

Jeff Lovely, in his first start of the season, suffered the loss. The righthander from Magoffin County gave up eight hits in the six and one-third innings, striking out two and not walking a batter. But he hit two which proved to be critical.

After the first two hitters reached in the fourth, Lovely hit Eric Cruse and Steve Daughterty, both on 0-2 pitches. Both also came on around to score in the inning.

Of the five runs he gave up, only three were of the earned variety. Five of Berea's hits came in the fourth when they scored four times.

Shortstop Ray Collins led Floyd County offensively, collecting two singles. He was the only FC player to get more than one hit.

Floyd County stranded runners in each of the seven innings, and left a total of nine on base. They play their next game on the road, Sunday at Chapmanville. Monday FC returns home to face Ceredo-Kenova in a double header at Allen Park.

That's the ticket. LA losing. Yea. Hate is a terrible word. Its implications are even worse. But I hate the Los Angeles Lakers. I hate their fans, I hate their dancing girls, and I hate their uniforms. I even hate their towel boys. No one in this household watches Terms of Endearment anymore, and

The Tonight Show is totally out of the question. Diane Cannon, I've never witnessed any of your work, but I think it stinks anyway.

The game itself was considered to be a near classic for an NBA final, but unfortunately I will never know. It's hard to tell when all you look for is an LA mistake, when you're hoping Michael Cooper's shooting percentage will fall below the 10 percent mark.

This Cooper fellow is an interesting character. Here is a man who was shooting less than 12 percent from the floor, and not helping his team defensively or on the boards

Of all the lakers, he was probably having the most ineffective series. But, oh, everyone except Cooper himself knew it. After taking a charge, which could have just as easily went the other way, from Vinnie Johnson, he kicked and rolled on the floor in celebration.

And he is all the time trying to pick fights. It looks like Pat Cummings needs to teach him a lesson in physical contact...again. But it isn't just Cooper, being a Laker is reason enough to be hated.

It starts from the coach and runs on down to the water boy. Pat Riley fits into the Hollywood scene, but his greased back hair and Kurt Douglas looks do not impress anyone outside Los Angeles.

Who cares if he is an ex-UK Wildcat? Who cares if he is a Kentucky hero, he coaches the Lakers now and that's enough of a reason to hate.

And Kareem Abdul-Jabbar is two years too late for retirement. Ok, that's

That would make my day, my year, even my life. But the ugly truth is that 🗭 LA didn't lose. Actually they showed the character of a champion in remaining a champion. Just think though, I gave up the Reds-Astros game to watch LA win. It makes a body sick.

Allow me to take this opportunity to say so long to a classy gentleman and a fine basketball coach. For two years Craynor Slone served as the model coach at Betsy Layne.

He is now taking his talents back to Carlisle county, where he coached for five years. Slone is a credit to the coaching profession, and he will be missed even though his style of play may not be. He is a winner though, in every form of the word.

It would also be a good time to welcome William Letton to the county. He was hired recently to replace Chuke Williams as Prestonsburg High School's football coach.

Letton, a newlywed, is attempting to handle a new bride and an initial year as Blackcat football coach. If he can handle both he is certainly a man to be respected.

Cincinnati, you should've known better. Never give one of your own an opportunity for revenge, especially when he gets it for your opponent.

The Reds gave Buddy Bell, a former gold glover at third, to Houston, and this past week he came back to destroy the Reds. Bell enjoyed a more than productive series, including getting a game winning double Wednesday night.

The worst part about the deal wasn't that Cincinnati won't get anything for Bell, it's that the talented veteran has an opportunity to deny the Reds a Western Division title.

Chris Sabo is having a fine rookie year, but he is just that, a rookie. And if Bell had to be traded then send him somewhere far far away, certainly out of the NL West.

After Monday's double header Floyd County takes back to the road for eight consecutive games at Pikeville, Williamson, Ceredo-Kenova, and Flatwoods.

University of Kentucky recruit Shawn Kemp scored 31 points, hauled down 21 rebounds, and rejected six shots in leading Indiana to a 112-100 victory over Kentucky in the all-star contest played Saturday night

Kemp, called by some as the best high school center of 1987-88, allowed the Indiana all-stars to complete a sweep of the two-game event. They beat Kentucky by 20 last Saturday night in Louisville Kentucky, now trailing 51-30 in the series, was led by Louisville recruit James Brewers' 20 points. Mr. Basketball Ritchie Farmer scored 19, but hit only six of 15 shots from the floor.

Indiana's Mr. Basketball, Woody Austin scored 22 points for the Hoosier squad, which shot over 54 percent as compared to Kentucky's 44.3.

Kentucky led the game by three points with just over six minutes remaining, but Indiana, led by Kemp's five, ran off 11 unanswered points in taking command of the contest.

In the girls' contest Indiana earned a split of the annual two-game series by posting an 82-68 victory. They still trail, though, 16-10 overall.

George Steinbreener and Billy Martin are now deciding the latter's fate now fidence, and all of a sudden, popular cinnati this season. Cook also made a deal that sent Dave Parker to Oakland for Jose Rijo.

The latter move had proven to be an even better one, at least until Saturday when Rijo, 8-2 heading into the game, blew a four run lead as the Reds lost to Los Angeles.

Cincinnati blasted three home runs off Dodgers' starter Fernando Valenzuela to take a 4-0 lead after one inning, but LA scored five off Rijo in the second on their way to a 6-4 victory

Los Angeles, still leading the NL West, had already won the series opener Friday night, and came from a 6-5 deficit in the eighth to claim a victory 9-6, Sunday, and a sweep of the three-game series at Riverfront Stadium.

Cincinnati, struggling to stay alive in the race for a division title, continued their losing ways, Monday, falling victim to another of their own traps.

Not long ago the Reds sent pitcher Dennis Rasmussen to San Diego, for a minor league pitcher, and Monday Rasmussen returned to Cincinnati, with something to prove, or at least his good stuff on the mound.

Rasmussen gave up two runs in seven innings of work, allowing San Diego to protect an early advantage as the Padres posted a 9-2 victory.

Rasmussen, 6-6 overall, picked up the win, his fourth without a loss since coming over to San Diego three weeks ago. The win, San Diego's 33rd of the year, allowed the Padres to move to within two games of fourth placed Cincinnati. which dropped eight games below the .500 mark.

The Padres, 33-43, scored seven runs, three on Tony Gwinn's homerun, in the second, and held on to earn the seriesopening win. Rookie Jack Armstrong, 0-2, was tagged with the loss.

Cincinnati, stuck in a six-game losing streak heading into last night's game, reached Rasmussen for two runs in the second, but couldn't do any more damage against their former teammate. And Dennis Rasmussen wasn't the only person who once played with Cincinnati, but was traded away only to take their talents out on the Reds. Buddy Bell, who was given to Houston last weekend, vicitimized Cincinnati twice, and his two-run double Wednesday allowed Houston to break a 2-2 tie in the eighth, powering them to a 5-2 victory over the Reds.

Last Tuesday Bell, a Cincinnati native, enjoyed a productive game when Houston beat the Reds which started the six-game losing streak.

Bell, acquired from the American League three years ago, was one of the most popular players on the Reds' roster, and the fact that Cincinnati didn't get anybody (a minor league player to be named after the season) for Bell, and that he came back to hurt the Reds has added fuel to the protest fire in and against them. Soto was released recently, and has been contacted by Los Angeles, among other teams.

Cincinnati, struggling to keep ahead of fifth placed San Diego, takes on the Padres tonight in a 7:35 start before rounding out the four-game series Thursday. The series finale is scheduled for 12:35.

Then it's time to say goodbye to Riverfront Stadium, and the Western Division. Cincinnati, after finishing up an unsuccessful homestand, plays in Phladelphia and New York before returning home.

The Reds, trailing Los Angeles by 10 and one-half games heading into last night's contest, play the Phillies Friday at 7:35 before rounding out the series with day games Saturday, 2:15, and Sunday, 1:35.

Cincinnati travels on to the Big Apple for a three-game series with the Mets before returning home Thursday to welcome in the Philadelphia Phillies.

The next 10 days could be a must-win period for not only the Reds as a team. but also for their manager. Rose, after three years of finishing second, has been rumored as a likely candidate to take the Billy Martin exit.

Cincinnati, although still hanging on, is now in a position where they would have to win seven of every 10 games from now until season's end in order to win over 90 games. It's not exactly a comfortable situation for a team that was supposed to win their division.

In the first inning Thomas Hall's twoout line drive fell just foul down the left field line with the bases loaded. Instead of being a scoring hit, the play, which was only inches foul, ended up as a strike, and Floyd County failed to score in that situation.

Floyd County, which had four runs on four hits in the first two innings, trailed 7-4 heading into the fourth, but rallied to score three times to tie the game.

But their eight games in five days finally caught up with them, and when Waylon Estep, who has battled arm problems all summer, had to leave the he set Paris down in the fourth, he looked like a wise choice. But in the fifth, Paris reached Kidd for three runs on three hits, taking a lead they never relinquished.

Bassin With the Pros... Pointing Out Deepwater Bass

The term deep water immediately brings doubts to bass fishermen. It's more difficult to catch bass in deeper water, the fishing is normally not as interesting, and there is frequently the doubt about actually being in productive water.

Randy Fite, a member of the Johnson Outboard's Pro Staff and recognized as one of the nation's most knowledgeable deep water bass anglers, offers some tips on overcoming these difficulties. He firmly believes some bass live in deepwater year-around, and not many anglers ever fish for them.

"The first thing I try to do on a lake is locate what I call an "activity zone," says the Lake Conroe, Texas, guide. "This is a basic depth where I see the most fish activity. Once I determine that depth, I try to locate cover at that depth and begin fishing.'

noticeable on points, seems to generate baitfish activity, and the bass quickly move up from deeper channels and begin feeding on the points, often in water less than 10 feet deep.

It is actually possible to see bass on a depthfinder as they hover in deep channels 18 to 20 feet deep, and watch them begin to move shallow as the current flow begins. The movement is fairly rapid, and on some lakes anglers time their summer fishing to coincide with the hours of power generation.

Fite recommends fishing summer points by positioning his boat in deeper water and casting shallow. He retrieves his lures down the slope, rather than up it. This approach keeps him from spooking any fish that may be shallow, and it allows him to easily move deeper if he needs to.

McCray Joins U of L Basketball Staff

Cariton "Scooter" McCray, a former standout basketball performer for the University of Louisville that helped the Cardinals to two NCAA Final Four appearances, has joined head coach Denny Crum's staff as an assistant coach.

"I think Scooter can do a great job for us in recruiting," said Crum. "He's wellknown and visible through his exposure, as a player, and in recruiting, getting in the door is half the battle. Scooter is good with people and makes a great first impression. He's been through our program and knows our system well. He can recognize talent and knows what we look for in a player

"I've always tried to help the university," said McCray. "This will give meb a chance to help kids like I was helped. U of L is very visible and I think recruiting will be a matter of finding the! right people to fit in with personalities of Coach Crum and the current! players."

A four-year letterman for the Cardinals from 1978-83, McCray was known for his versatility, exceptional passing; and all-around play. His 349 career: assists ranks him ninth among the all-; time U of L assist leaders. McCray also, totaled 991 points, 724 rebounds, 170: blocked shots and 132 steals in his career at U of L.

McCray was regarded as the nation's top prep player his senior year at Mt. Vernon (N.Y.) High School when he averaged 20.6 points and 14 rebounds while leading his team to a 26-0 record. and the New York state title. He contributed immediately at U of L as a freshman by starting all 32 games at center, averaging 10.1 points, 6.5 rebounds and 3.1 assists as the Cardinals posted a 24-8 record.

He suffered a knee injury in the third game of the Cardinals' 1979-80 NCAA Championship season, forcing him to redshirt that year. He returned to the U of L lineup the following year, averaging 7.6 points, 5.6 rebounds and two assists in helping the Cards to a 21-9 season

A severely sprained ankle suffered in the Cards' sixth game slowed McCray for much of U of L's 1981-82 campaign as he averaged 3.3 points and 3.4 rebounds an outing in helping the Cardinals to a 23-10 mark and a spot in the NCAA Final Four.

He co-captained U of L's 32-4 NCAA Final Four squad as a senior with his brother Rodney, who has started five seasons with the NBA's Houston Rockets. Scooter averaged 9.1 points, 6.4 rebounds and a team-leading 3,5 assists while starting all 36 games that season at forward.

His top single game performances included 22 points against Cincinnati (Jan. 18, 1979); 13 rebounds against Memphis State (March 6, 1983); and nine assists against Kentucky Wesleyan (Jan. 5, 1983)

McCray played just over one season with the NBA's Seattle Supersonics after being drafted in the second round. He also played 24 games for the Cleveland Cavaliers during the 1986-87 season and played one year in France. He has been involved in private business in Louisville since completing his playing career. McCray is only the sixth assistant coach that has served under Crum in his 17 years with the Cardinals. Assistant coach Jerry Jones has been on Crum's staff for 16 seasons while associate head coach Wade Houston, a 1966 U of L graduate, has coached with the Cardinals for 12 years.

that Steinbrenner has once again fired Martin as manager of the New York Yankees

Since 1973, when Steinbrenner bought the team, he has made 15 managerial changes, and Martin has been involved in several of them. This past week he was fired for the fifth time as Yankees manager

Martin, who is known for his aggressive nature, admitted that his emotions suffered, and tears were shed over the latest firing. He has a lifetime contract with New York, but said he would never serve as manager of the Yankees again

P'burg Little League Giants

The Prestonsburg Little League Giants finished their season with a record of 7 wins and 7 losses

David Chaffins, a four year player, lead the hitting with a batting average of .670. David played second base/pitcher. Eric Cathers, a first year player, hit two home runs and played first base. Marty Hughes, a three year player, hit one over the fence in addition to being the pitcher. Shawn Spears, three year player, was catcher/first baseman who was also a good hitter. Aaron Bond, a two year player, was a good defensive player at short and pitched 2 games. Matt Goble, a first year player, developed into a very good third baseman/pitcher. The outfield consisted of all 1st year players Kelly Jervis. right field, Rodney Leckrone, centerfield, Billy Collins, left field. These boys did an excellent job. The Giants were coached by Howard Chaffins.

An activity zone, explains Fite, is most easily found by studying a depthfinder. Right after an angler launches his boat, he should turn on the depthfinder, regardless of whether he uses a flasher, LCR, or chart recorder, and idle away from the launching ramp toward deeper water.

Somewhere along the way to the closest river channel or major dropoff, Fite continues, he will begin to notice a certain depth range that seems to hold more fish. These fish can be bass, crappie, or even baitfish; it is simply a depth range the fish seem to be preferring at that particular time.

"This basic activity zone level is not absolute," Fite emphasizes. "In fact, it will be different on opposite ends of a large impoundment, simply because of differences in water clarity, temperature, and basic lake depth. It can also change during the course of a day, but it's a good general starting point for summer bass fishing.

Once this general depth of fish activity is established, Fite feels the easiest way to catch those fish is to find the nearest extending point and fish where its bottom corresponds to that fish activity depth.

A number of variables can and do enter into this simple formula, but generally speaking, this is how the pros attack deep water fishing. Gradually sloping points form natural structure in most impoundments, and provide a variety of depth options that attract bass

During the heat of the day, bass can move down the points into deeper water for cooler temperatures and protection from sunlight. At night, the bass swim up the points into shallow water to feed.

On some impoundments, too, points provide excellent day-time fishing, even during the hottest hours. This occurs primarily on lakes where water is pulled through a dam to generate electrical power. The water movement, most generated due to water releases at a dam, lure retrievers will be more productive if made in the direction of the current pull, which is down and slightly across the slope of the point.

Summer point bass like crank baits, plastic worms, jigs and spoons. Crank baits are the easiest to use because they can be retried quickly. The most effective diving plugs will be those that actually dig along the bottom eight to 12 feet down.

Record Help Provided By Muscular Dystrophy

The audited financial statements of the Muscular Dystrophy Association (MDA) for calendar year 1987 report record expenditures for program services, announced MDA Chapter President, Bob Saunders. MDA's total expenditures for 1987 were $95,067,747, over $7 million more than last year. Of that total, $71,085,176, or 75% went for program services.

Accounting for $37,986,284 was the Association's patient and community services program, MDA's largest area of expenditure during 1987, which increased by more than $1.6 million over the previous year. Among services supported by these funds were some 230 hospital-affiliated MDA clinics nationwide, year-a-round recreation for adult patients and summer camp sessions for young patients 6 to 21 years of age.

MDA's expenditures for its worldwide research program in 1987 totalled $19,044,563. The Association supported some 500 individual research projects during the year, including basic and applied scientific investigations at its university-based research centers. During the closing weeks of 1987, MDAfunded scientists made an historic medical breakthrough: discovery of the protein whose absence causes Duchenne muscular dystrophy, the most severe childhood from of the disease. "This and other landmark advances in research by MDA grantees ensure a healthier future for people with muscular dystrophy and related neuromuscular disorders," said Mr. Saunders.

Rounding out MDA program services was professional and public health education, expenditures for which were $14,054,329 for the year.

MDA works to defeat 40 neuromuscular diseases through worldwide research seeking treatments and cures, comprehensive patient services, and farreaching professional land public health education programs.

The Association's financial statements were audited by the accounting firm of Ernst and Whinney.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Hermie Childers wishes to gratefully acknowledge the thoughtfulness and kindness of friends, relatives, and neighbors in the loss of our loved one. CABLE VIEW 'Don't Just Sit There' stresses participation

By Denise Gorga

You're 15 years old. You're too grown up to watch cartoons and too young to watch "Late Night with David Letter-man." Midafternoon TV is a real bore - soap op-eras on the major networks and transvestite nuns on "Oprah."

But don't despair. Teens can experience their own brand of culture schlock on "Don't Just Sit There," which premieres on Nickelodeon on Tuesday, July 5. The weekly half-hour show conceives of itself as a teen "Late Night," a "Donahue" for the sneaker set. Four teenage hosts - two boys and two girls cover fashion, movies, school, trends, food and music in a talk-show for-mat. "I'm looking forward to meeting people, learning things, just hav-ing a great time," says 13-year-old host Wendy Douglas. Co-host B.J. Schaffer is more succinct: 'I'm interested in meeting girls."

Guests aren't the only element that "Don't Just Sit There" borrows from adult TV. The show has its own all-kid band, and will entertain with talk, comedy and information. Audience participation will be strongly stressed - hence the title - focus-ing on such activities as in-studio scavenger hunts and sculpting with dirty laundry. • Cable hasn't forgot an all-new "Mickey Mouse Club" series. Dis-ney vice president Pat-rick Sullivan says the revamped version aims to be "as relevant and en-tertaining for the chil-dren of the 1990s as its predecessor was for the 1950s." The updated rat pack will make its debut in the fall.

• Hey, hey, hey ... also returning from the graveyard of pre-'80s kids pro-gramming is "Fat Albert and the Cosby Kids." Bill Cosby appears in all 110 episodes of the animated series, which will air on the USA Network begin-

Bill Cosby

Given the success Cosby's style of TV-with-a-lesson on NBC, it was only a matter of time before these junkyard buddies were unearthed again. All the series' characters - Fat Albert, Weird Harold, Rudy, Dumb Donald, Russell, Bucky and Mushmouth are based on people Cosby remembers from his childhood in a Philadelphia ghetto.

Michael Gross (1.) and Michael J. Fox play ever-liberal father Steven Keaton and his brainy archconservative son Alex, on NBC's "Family Ties." 8:00 The series airs SUNDAY, JULY 3. (Rebroadcast) CHECK LISTINGS FOR FXACT TIME Featured: models from the Elite agency; artist Peter Max. B People's Court

WHO FRAMED ROGER RABBIT (PG - Buena Vista) Starring Bob Hoskins.  By J.T. YURKO

Even the most casual film fan will remember the amazing dance sequence Gene Kelly performed with Jerry the cartoon mouse in the 1945 classic "Anchors Aweigh." The mix of animation and live action made for a delightful bit of fantasy. Now such a mix is the format for an entire film, "Who Framed Roger Rabbit." Coming from Steven Spielberg's Amblin Entertainment and Disney's Touchstone Pictures, the $50 million comedy has been an eagerly awaited summer pic

Was it worth the wait? Technically, yes. The film is an astounding blend of live action and animation. But unlike dance uber, which was a brief exercise in visual form, to sustain such a premise for an entire movie requires stories, characters and settings. And these aspects of "Who Framed Roger Rabbit" - the film's software, as it were - are less than perfect. The premise itself is very clever: Cartoon

JAN/ Jackson has made the leap to features

By Paul Elie

In the past two years Victoria Jackson has starred in "Casual Sex?" with Lea Thompson, appeared in "Baby Boom' with Diane Keaton and "The Couch Trip" with Dan Aykroyd and guested on "The Tonight Show" a dozen times - as well as performing with the "Saturday Night Live" rep company. But she says there's only one thing the people who meet her want to know. "They say, 'Do you really talk that way? All the time?"

Victoria Jackson

On "Saturday Night," which has been in reruns since March, Jackson has made a trademark of her voice, which sounds like Betty Boop's after a blast of helium. Whether Jackson intended it or not, it has proven to be a marvelous publicity ploy. While Dennis Miller does cable specials, and Dana Carvey tries to escape being typecast as the Church Lady, Jackson has already made the crucial leap to features.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Floyd County School District has recently prepared an application for the use of federal funds for the education of handicapped children in the Floyd County School District. This application specifies that a free and appropriate public education will be provided to all handicapped children, ages three (3) through five (5), who are residents of the Floyd County School District. PL 99-457 provides priorities for the expenditure of funds. Funds priority is given to those children who are not being given any educational services. PL 99-457 requires that the school district plan for the implementation of identification, location, evaluation and appropriate educational placement of all handicapped children. Guaranteed procedural safe-guards for handicapped children and their parents in decisions regarding educational programs and confidentiality of files of those children identified as being handicapped will continue to be instituted. This application will be on file in the office of the Superintendent of Floyd County Schools for a period of ten (10) days beginning June 29, 1988 through July 6, 1988. Any interested persons may review copies of the application and make comments concerning the application to Mr. Ray Brackett, Superintendent of the Floyd County School District. Consideration will be given to all comments prior to the submission of the final copy of the application to the Department of Education

RAY BRACKETT, Superintendent Floyd County Schools

MANDATORY NOTICE BY ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION AGENCY FOR ALL WATER SYSTEMS PERTAINING TO LEAD IN DRINKING WATER

"The United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) sets drinking water standards and has determined that lead is a health concern at certain levels of exposure. There is currently a standard of 0.050 parts per million (ppm). Based on new health information, EPA is likely to lower this standard significantly.

Part of the purpose of this notice is to inform you of the potential adverse health effects of lead. This is being done even though your water may not be in violation of the current standard.

"EPA and others are concerned about lead in drinking water. Too much lead in the human body can cause serious damage to the brain, kidneys, nervous system, and red blood cells. The greatest risk, even with short-term exposure, is to young children and pregnant women. "Lead levels in your drinking water are likely to be highest:

- -if your home or water system has lead pipes, or
- -if your home has copper pipes with lead solder, and
- -if the home is less than five years old, or
- -if you have soft or acidic water, or
- -if water sits in the pipes for several hours."
