Robbery, Assault Are Bulk Of Grand Jury Indictments

By B.A. Heinze

Burglary and theft accounted for the bulk of indictments returned yesterday (Tuesday) by the grand jury, although crimes of violence included two indictments for attempted murder; three for assault; one for wanton endangerment; and two on sex crime charges. Others were indicted for lesser offenses.

Indictments for major crimes included that of Erwin Drew Adkins for criminal attempt to commit murder for shooting Gretta Adkins several times "with intent to cause her death." A second indictment for attempted murder was returned against William David Martin for "repeatedly driving his automobile against the truck in which Brenda Martin was sitting, creating a grave risk of death.

Martin was also indicted for wanton endangerment, first degree, for repeatedly driving a car into truck in which Michael Adkins was sitting. Other counts on which Martin was indicted are theft by failure to make required disposition of property, having in his possession and treating as his own a Uhaul trailer which he had rented and later reported stolen: for receiving stolen property, having in his possession a 1986 Ford Bronco stolen from Alex Branham, knowing it was stolen; receiving stolen property, having in his possession a 1984 Chevrolet Camaro stolen from Bruce Walter Ford; for obscuring the identity of a machine or other property by possessing an automobile and knowing the identification number or serial number had been removed from a 1984 Camaro.

Prestonsburg Fire Department's Chief Thomas O. Blackburn was indicted on assault second degree charges for the July 21, 1987 incident in which the indictment states "he intentionally caused serious physical injury to James Pennington." The Class C felony charge carries a term of from 5 to 10 years. Others indicted for assault are Todd Gearheart, first degree assault, Class B felony, in soliciting a juvenile to shoot Mickey Sizemore and aiding him in the shooting of Sizemore; James Poston, Jr., first degree assault for shooting Danny Anderson.

Paul Howard and Stoney Harmon were indicted on six counts, three for third degree burglary and three on theft by unlawful taking charges. The burglary charges were for unlawfully entering the building of John Compton; the building of Avery Lowe; the building of James Cox. Theft by unlawful taking charges were for taking personal property of James Cox, of John Compton, and of Avery Lowe, each property valued at $100 or more. Also indicted for burglary, third degree, was David Hall for unlawfully entering the Betsy Layne Elementary School, and for theft by unlawful taking or disposition of three VCR's, two cassette stereos, a safe, and $150 from the school. An indictment for burglary, second degree, was returned against Gia Hall and John Grubb, Jr., for unlawfully entering the home of Clara Harris.

Hassell Hall, Jr., who was this week convicted of robbing the Lackey Mi-Dee Mart, was indicted for robbery, first degree, for threatening physical force while armed and in the course of committing a theft at Super America at Martin.

Stumbo's Bill Wins Approval

By Paul N. Allen

A bill sponsored by House Majority Leader Greg Stumbo, which would give coal operators an alternative means of paying into the workers' compensation program, was approved last Tuesday by The House Labor and Industry Commit-

The bill, which would give coal operators the option of paying a flat fee into the workers' compensation Special Fund, is seen as a means of helping small coal operators stay in business.

The Special Fund of the worker's compensation program pays claims for workers with occupational diseases, such as black lung, and all the fund's money is drawn from assessments on employers in the coal business.

Stumbo objects to a plan approved by legislators in last fall's special session to base assessments on workers' com-(See Story No. 5, Page 4)

Super Tuesday Is State's First Presidential Primary

By Paul N. Allen

Newscasts, articles, predictions from seemingly countless polls, and the sight of presidential hopefuls sniping away at each other on any one of a number of political debates-all enough to make Super Tuesday seem, well, not so super after all

For all that, however, next Tuesday, countians and all Kentuckians since, as Deloris Dingus, Floyd Democratic Committee vice-chairman, pointed out this week, "It's the first time in the history of Kentucky that we're having a presidential primary." City Police Arrest Four In Series of Break-Ins

By Joe Porter

Police Department lead to the arrest of one adult and four juveniles, following a string of break-ins over a two-week period. Chief of Police William R. Campbell reported that four burglaries and one purse theft case have been solved as a result of the arrests.

According to police information, four Team work by the Prestonsburg boys entered the Damron home by breaking in a back door, while one stayed outside. Besides 10 collector knives, two boxes of .38 caliber ammunition, a .44 magnum revolver, and 2,400 'wheat'' pennies were stolen. About an hour later two of the boys took the pennies to the First Commonwealth Bank to be converted into paper money, but alert bank employees realized that the collector's pennies, contained in a red Pikeville National pouch, were worth more than face value. When the teller asked for ID, the boy said he didn't have any. Stalling, the teller then asked for the boy's name, address, and phone number. Realizing the bank was on to them, the boys then fled, leaving the pennies time, we have the opportunity to show which Democrat or which Republican candidate we would like to see run," Mrs. Dingus explained.

Of course, this new opportunity for Floyd county is not without its cost, Mrs. Dingus pointed out. Floyd will, in fact, spend $20,000 to conduct this "extra" election. The total expenditure statewide will be enormous.

Winning delegates and winning a state are the important issues on Super Tuesday, and although Kentucky is among the least populated of the 20 states voting, 13 of which are in the South, its results remain important in the presidential contest, according to political analysts.

In Kentucky, Super Tuesday results will be used to apportion 55 Democratic delegates. Only seven of the 20 states involved have fewer Democratic delegates. Kentucky Republicans will appor tion 38 delegates. Of the 16 states which will apportion Republican delegates on Super Tuesday, four have fewer than Kentucky's 38 and one, Alabama, has an equal number. Although the matter of delegates is a major concern for the political organizations of the 10 Democratic and seven Republican candidates, William Schneider, a political observer for the conservative American Enterprise Institute in Washington, D.C., stressed the importance of winning a state. As he commented: "Any candidate who doesn't win a state is probably through.' As far as favorites are concerned, according to the Bluegrass State Poll (yes, another poll), published over the past weekend in the Louisville Courier-(See Story No. 2, Page 4)

Faces Charges in Conn. By Tim Sizemore

A Floyd county man, accused of aggravated assault and suspicion of murder in Connecticut, has been extradited to that state to stand trial.

Lawrence Johnson, 20, formerly of Corn Fork, was returned to Ledyard, Conn., February 23, to face not only a charge of aggravated assault but also suspicion of the murder of his former girlfriend.

Alerted by Connecticut authorities, the state police and sheriff's department arrested Johnson, February 18, at his father's home on Corn Fork as he parked in the driveway.

Arresting officers were State Police Detective James Stevens and Head Deputy John K. Blackburn.

Club Distributes Fish "Attractors"

Members of the Dewey Lake Fish & Game Club took advantage of fair weather and low water levels at Dewey Lake over the past weekend to place fish "cover" at a number of sites, up the lake from the Jenny Wiley Boat Dock. Using a state barge and several private boats, members placed about 250 Christmas trees which they had collected, as well as wooden pallets and concrete blocks for ballast at varying depth levels. Such fish "attractors" have been shown to enhance the quality of sportfishing in reservoirs by providing cover for baitfish and a variety of sport species. Club President Johnny Lafferty said more attractors will be distributed down the lake next weekend.

Raymond Allen, 18, of Prestonsburg, has been charged with first degree burglary in connection with an early morning break-in, February 22, at the home of Phillip Damron on Arnold Avenue. Allen was released on $25,000 bond following his arrest, and all items taken from the Damron residence, with the exception of two collector's knives, have been recovered. Four juveniles were also taken into custody for their part in the burglary and later released to their parents. All five are teenagers between the ages of 18 and 15 years of

Best-Selling Author Tells Of Coalfield Trials, Triumphs

By Joe Porter

Four interesting characters with distinct voices, a vivid recognizable setting, a time of turmoil, and a fierce struggle to organize the West Virginia coalfields; that's what Denise Giardina's new novel Storming Heaven is about

The story spans a 30-year period leading up to the Battle of Blair Mountain in 1921, where 10,000 rebellious coal miners fought mine guards, drunken scabs, and finally, a division of army soldiers, before the uprising was quelled. What happens is told from four points of view: two men, a union organizer and a socialist intellectual; and two women, a nurse, and a Sicilian immigrant maid. These four narrators speak with authentic voices, engaging us with their mountain-rich language, ideas, and honest emotions.

Like our best authors of fiction, Giardina makes us care about her characters. They're important to us, because they're involved in a struggle for freedom and social justice: a fair wage, a safe working place, the land that is theirs. Their fight becomes our fight; their lesson, our lesson. They make discoveries about themselves and their circumstances. "I first began to understand what I have learned since, that there are forces in this world, principalities and powers, that wrench away the things that are loved, people and land, and return only exile," the heroine Carrie says in the first part of the book. Yes, her characters are exiles: they are the uprooted, the homeless, the enslaved; they're searchers cast forth

Denise Giardina, author of the novel Storming Heaven, gave faculty members at Prestonsburg Community College a chance to review her book at a Faculty and Staff Development meeting held February 8 at the home of Professors Laura and Leo Weddle. QUESTION: Twice within the last year I have had attacks which resemble appendicitis: abdominal pain, nausea, slight fever. These go away after a couple of days of bed rest and chicken soup. The thing of it is: I had my appendix out thirty years ago. So?

ANSWER: Offhand, what you had sounds like diverticulitis. This is an inflammation of the small saclike pouches in the wall on the colon, and does indeed resemble the symtoms of appendicitis.

You were lucky. The type of self-treatment you describe can often quiet a case of acute diverticulitis. However, it can occasionally go the other way and cause serious complications. So next time this occurs, you would be wise to have yourself examined and treated by your physician.

Rodney Shane Dutton, seventh grade student at Melvin Elementary, was recently nominated for the Talent Identification Program at Duke University in North Carolina. He was nominated by his principal, Gleason Slone, and his guidance counselor, Bobby D. Jones, when he scored high on the Kentucky Essential Skills Test.

Dutton then took the American College Test at Prestonsburg Community College with high school juniors and seniors in February where he again received excellent scores.

He is the son of Charles and Linda Dutton, of Weeksbury.

Lowe Named Hoover's Chief Patent Counsel

Arnold Burgess Lowe, formerly of Eastern, has been named chief patent counsel for the Hoover Company in Canton, Ohio. He succeeds Gerald H. Kreske who will retire March 31.

Mr. Lowe joined the Company in 1980 as a patient attorney. He had previously been a patent attorney with the General Electric Company in Washington, D.C. and Fort Wayne, Indiana, and prior to that, an engineer with the B. F. Goodrich Company in Akron, Ohio.

A graduate of the University of Kentucky with a B. S. degree in electrical engineering, Lowe earned his Juris Doctorate from the University of Akron, Akron, Ohio. He is a member of the American Bar Association and the Ohio State Bar Association.

He resides in the Canal Fulton area with his wife, Margaret Knight Lowe, formerly of Frankfort, and two children, Jessica Kelly and Daniel Arnold. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Lowe, of Eastern.

RUSSELL BENTLEY STATE REPRESENTATIVE, 92nd DISTRICT KNOTT, FLOYD AND LETCHER COUNTIES

FIFCT

The 92nd District consists of 11 precincts in Floyd County: Rock Fork, Wayland, Lackey, Bosco, Beachgrove, Jack Allen, Middle Creek, Maytown, Rough and Tough, Abbott, and Garrett.

Russell Bently is a graduate of Eastern Ky. University with a degree in Business. He served four years in the United States Air Force during the Vietnam War. Russell worked four years at Alice Lloyd College. He has operated Bentley's Market at Topmost for the past 10 years.

Russell Bentley is an active member of the following organizations:

- 1. Kentucky River Area Development District
- 2. Life Member of Disabled American Veterans
- 3. Knott County Rescue and Fire Department
- 4. P.T.O. Parent Teacher Organization
- 5. Knott County Jr. League Basketball Coach

As the parent of two children and the husband of a teacher, Russell recognizes that a good education is a necessity for our children's future. Education programs are changed every four years, a practice that is not good for education.

As your Representative, Russell Bentley is committed to not taking funds from the Teacher Retirement Fund, Fish and Wildlife Program, and Road Funds. These funds should be used for their intended purposes.

Russell Bentley believes that we must decide where we want to be 10 or 20 years from now and then decide how we want to get there. As we have seen from the past, "quick fixes are not enough."

Russell Bentley is dedicated to serving the needs of our area. We must work together to create a positive image for the coal industry, which is the backbone of our economy. The small coal operators are being forced out of business and Russell Bentley wants to reverse this trend.

Urges Broad-Form Vote

Kentucky's legislators now have the opportunity to correct one of the greatest evils to oppress the people of Kentucky in modern times-the abuse of the broad-form deed to destroy the property of Kentucky landowners. Armed with the recent decision of the Kentucky Supreme Court overturning the Broad-Form Deed Law, some greedy corporations now challenge the basic human and property rights of Kentuckians by threatening them with the forced stripemining of their land. The passage of the constitutional amendment against the broad-form deed will restore the security of Eastern Kentuckians to raise their families, start businesses, and farm their land free of the fear of bulldozers destroying their land and their dreams. Some have raised concerns that the broad-form deed amendment will be forced off the ballot by other issues of a "higher priority." I wonder whose priorities these observers are referring to? Certainly not those whose land is being threatened by the bulldozers and blasting of the companies which use the broad-form deed. Nothing is more important to Kentuckians than our independence and freedom-both of which are hanging in the balance as our legislators decide which constitutional amendments will be allowed on the November ballot.

A genuine democracy can exist only when citizens play an active role in the political process. I urge you to take part in our democratic system by contacting your legislators and asking them to support the placement of the constitutional amendment against the broad-form deed on the November ballot. MAYTOWN NEWS

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Webb, Matthew, Jeremy and Jason, of Springfield, Ohio were the weekend guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Claud E. Webb and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Prater.

Our sympathy to the family of Delmer Blevins who passed away last week following an extended illness.

The Maytown First Baptist Church youth choir and their leaders visited the Mountain Manor Nursing Home last Sunday afternoon. The youth choir presented a delightful musical program for the patients. En route home the group stopped at the Holiday Inn where they performed at the birthday reception honoring Trilby May on her 80th birthday. Following the program, all enjoyed refreshments with the reception guests. Those participating in the events of the day were choir members, Matthew Hagans, Greta Halbert, Nicholas Halbert, LeVon Jacobs, Debbie Leonard, Lana Leonard, Maria Leonard, Adam Marshall, Darlene Marshall, DirAnne Marshall, Denny Marshall, Stephen Marshall, Christy Martin, Jennifer Martin, Sheila Martin, Jimmy D. Patton, Mary Patton, Stephanie Patton, Jeff Scarberry, Matthew Slone, Nicholas Wallen, and Rayna Wallen. Choir leaders are Wilma Wallen, Michael Flanery, Phillip Hunt and Lisa Hunt. Youth leaders, bus drivers and chaperones were Robert Varney, pastor, Brenda Varney, Amber Varney, Linda Crider, Charlotte Hall, Clerissa Martin and Hazel Patton. Mr. and Mrs. Paul Webb, Katina and Marc, of Springfield, O. were the weekend guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Claud E. Webb, here and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Howard at Prestonsburg. Mr. and Mrs. Dane King, of Chillathoe, O. and Mr. and Mrs. Edison Fain, of New Lexington, O. were the weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Spencer. While here, they visited Mrs. Nancy Bailey, Mrs. Rebecca Salisbury at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Claud E. Webb and Kitty Rowland at Riverview Rest Home.

Broad Form Deed Means Devastation

I am sure there are many Kentuckians who don't understand what the term "broad form deed" means. You would need to see the devastation caused by strip mining under the broad form deed and witness the heartbreak and suffering it brings to the surface landowners to really understand.

At the turn of the century, representatives of coal companies persuaded people to sell their mineral rights for a pittance, sometimes for as little as 25 to 50 cents an acre. At that time coal was mined by the deep mining method only. Even though they might have needed the money desperately, had these people known about strip mining and the destruction it leaves behind, they would never have sold the mineral rights to the land they loved.

The broad form deed has been outlawed in every state except Kentucky. In 1984 the Kentucky state legislature passed a law giving landowners' rights procedence over mineral owners' rights. The Kentucky Supreme Court ruled the law unconstitutional.

This year Senate Bill 145 was passed unanimously by the Kentucky Senate and sent to the House of Representatives. This bill would stop abuses under the broad form deed and return to the landowners control of their land. House Bill 228, a companion bill, will be voted on very soon. The bill must then be placed on the ballot in November to be voted on by all Kentuckians as a constitutional amendment. There is only room on the ballot for four amendments. There will be competition from other amendments for a place on the ballot.

To delay this bill only one year will mean that countless people will be added to those whose land has already been destroyed forever. You can write your legislators c/o State Capitol Building, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601 or call them toll-free at 1-800-372-7181 and leave a message for them. Please ask them to place the constitutional amendment against the broad form deed, Senate Bill 145/House Bill 228, on the ballot in November

Seeking Family Information

I am seeking information concerning John and Amanda Jones, who lived in Floyd county in 1870 and 1880. They had two sons, Letcher H. Jones, born October 12, 1872 in Floyd county, and Thomas Jefferson Jones, born November 18, 1882, Floyd county. Could possibly have been other children but names and dates unknown. Amanda died when the boys were real young and they lived in foster homes. Where? And who were their foster parents? On Thomas J.'s marriage certificate it gave his mother as-Amanda Sizemore. On other records, I found it gave her name Amanda Hamilton. Can anyone please tell me which is correct? If you have any information at all on this family please write. I will answer all letters and return postage.

What Is True Freedom? Few words are more misused. Few ideas are more confused. Abut the only certain thing is that "freedom" is a plus word and discipline is a minus word. Everyone wants to be "free.

Yet a moment's thought is enough to remind me that no one is totally freenot in this life. I may hope-in the time to come-to enjoy perfect freedom. In this time, in this history which is my personal life. I am bound by a multitude of chains: job, family, health, citizenship, the speed with which the years pass. They may be heavy iron chains. They may be golden chains. But they are chains nevertheless. They deny me perfect freedom in this life.

"Proclaim Liberty"

When I think about it, accepting the place and the time to which I have been appointed, being an American citizen does not make me totally free. What it does is provide me with a great deal more freedom than I would have as, for instance, a subject of the despot who rules Saudi Arabia or the dictator who rules Panama. And for that I may be truly grateful. It isn't heaven, but it's a great deal better than most of the people on the globe have ever enjoyed.

In fact, most of the world's inhabitants cannot even imagine the blessings which you and I too easily take for granted. Every society must have order. The trick is to find the right balance between order and freedom. No order is perfectin this life. No freedom is complete-in this life. It is a serious mistake to entrust too much power to government, because power is like sea-water: the more you drink, the more you want. Anyone can be occupied if he wields too much unchecked power-American, German, Russian, Chinese or whatever.

Limited government may not provide perfect order, but in this life it turns out to be a more liveable order than those governments with too much power which have sought perfect solutionsgovernments like those running Russia under Stalin, Germany under Hitler, Uganda under Idi Amim, Iran under Khomeini.

To be truly free-in this life-means to accept one's limits and to work to expand freedom for one's self and for others. Between the plus word of freedom and the minus word of discipline there is a golden path: the selfdiscipline which is the only alternative to the jungle on the one side or toopowerful government on the other.

Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis made a strong move into second place behind Gore among Democrats surveyed and Sen. Robert Dole, of Kansas, is a distant second to Bush among Republicans, according to the poll, conducted by telephone, Feb. 22-25.

Gore has the support of 28 percent of Kentucky Democrats, a 10-point gain since last November, when he was the leader in the newspaper's first survey of the field.

Dukakis, who won in New Hampshire and Minnesota but does not have an active campaign in Kentucky, stood at 20 percent in the latest Bluegrass poll, up from 9 percent in January

About one-third of the 473 Democrats who responded said they thought Dukakis had the best chance of winning the presidency, while 14 percent said they thought Gore's chances were best. Forty-three percent of Democrats said they viewed the Rev. Jesse Jackson unfavorably. He and the other Democrats in the race-Rep. Richard Gephardt, of Missouri and Sen. Paul Simon, of Illinois, who is not competing actively in Kentucky-remain far behind the front-runners.

Bush, the GOP front-runner in the newspaper's last three polls, has slowly added to his strength. He was the choice of 41 percent in mid-November and 51 percent last week.

Dole has consistently won the support of about a quarter of Republicans, with 28 percent in last week's poll.

--- 4 ----(Continued from Page One) ing a better life, and it's what they do, and not what's done to them, that turns the plot. Often their decisions are costly. When Papaw Henry refuses to sell his land he's killed for his defiance and his family is forced off. When the prodigal Rondal Lloyd gives up his chance to become a doctor in favor of organizing, to "ride the goat," the movement gains a charismatic leader. And when Carrie, the nurse, leaves her comfortable middle class existence to treat poor, destitute miners and their families, she too, suffers under the ruthless company mining system, where miners and their young sons work in dangerous mines for scant wages, buy their food with company script, and lived in shacks owned by the company

The author makes her scenes and settings vivid and the experience real with concrete details and poetic imagery. 'The wagon jolted us awake when we started down Scary. The sky was punched full of stars. We turned our backs and all of heaven stretched out over us. The mountaintops hung upside down; as the wagon dipped and swayed they reached out and grabbed the full moon, then let it pop up again, like a fish teasing a cork bob.

Irony is used throughout, especially in the fictional names of places and people. Ironically, the story is set in Justice county, West Virginia. The company is American Coal Company. Men arrested for sedition and selling whiskey on Sunday sing the Star Spangled Banner in their cells until they're released. The newspaper is the Free Press; the church in Davidson is Our Lady of Victory; and Carrie and Rondal's son is named Dillion Freeman.

If there is a fault to be found in this fine book, it is that the lines between good and evil are too clearly defined; and the story at moments gives way to melodrama, where complex, three dimensional "good" characters are pitted against flat, despicable characters like the bossman Malcolm Denbigh, who orders the black organizer Johnson thrown into a burning furnace. The scene's brutality stuns, but we never understand what motivates him to be so bad. Nor do we get much insight into the character of Davidson, the coal operator, and his reasons for exploiting the miners.

Giardina, who was born in Bluefield, West Virginia, started writing fiction in 1980 when she was 28 years old. Storming Heaven is her second novel; her first, Good King Harry, was also widely praised and compared to Dickens by the New York Times. She earned a bachelor's degree from West Virginia Wesleyian College and a master's degree from Virginia Theological Seminary

"I thought about this book for years," Giardina says of Storming Heaven. "Everything that happens in the book actually happened in real life." The book, which took three years to write, is based on research as well as on her own experience, having lived for 13 years in a coal camp. It was her method to read extensively about the period and then let her imagination be triggered by the fascinating people and events she read

Mt. Christian Academy High School To Close

By Joe Porter

In a move designed to raise the quality of its preschool and grade school, the Board of Directors of Mountain Christian Academy have decided to close its high school effective at the end of this academic year.

Calling it a difficult decision, Monsignor Ralph W. Beiting, the school's founder, said the decision was necessary because of the high school's great expense and its low enrollment; 39 students are currently enrolled. Beiting said that the high school cost about $100,000 a year to run, and with the money saved from the closing, the school will now be able to pay bills, finish building four new classrooms, enlarge the grade school curriculum, and pay a teacher salary increase of 10%. These changes, Beiting believes, will serve to increase the grade school's enrollment and improve its academic standing.

The Board of Directors also unveiled a 12-point program to enhance the school's educational opportunities. It includes expanding the preschool program (ages 3-4) in both enrollment and curriculum, enlarging the kindergarten program, expanding the Christian Education Program, and extending the science program to the grade school level. The plan also calls for expanding the drug education program to include all grades, setting up a computer lab to accommodate every grade school class on a weekly basis, and the creation of a faculty of volunteer teachers in addition to the regular staff. The board also wants a guidance counselor available, the establishment of a manual arts and crafts program, to work with accreditation groups (ISAACS) and university faculties to provide teacher workshops, to recruit and retain the best faculty, and expand its fundraising.

Mountain Christian Academy opened in the fall of 1983. In 1987 it graduated 10 students in its first high school graduating class, nine of whom went on to college; and of the nine, five received college scholarships.

Beiting called the closing only temporary and said that once the school's bottom structure is as solid as possible," the board will then be able to reopen the high school in two years. "I think we'll end up with a bigger and better high school. This move will result in a betterment." In the meantime, a committee will operate to keep in contact with and offer assistance to the students who will now have to find other schools to attend. "We want them to feel this is still their home," he said.

As difficult and painful as the decision was, Beiting said the temporary closing of the high school was necessary in order for the school to achieve its long-term goals. "This school will always be an experimenter in creative pedagogy-in creating a spirit of excellence in education. And now, we can create the best grade school there is."

Two counts were returned against Terry Rowe and Ava Rowe for receiving stolen property of a 1987 Pontiac Firebird, and for first degree criminal mischief by burning a 1987 Pontiac Firebird.

Also indicted was Carlos Little for possession of a handgun by a convicted felon.

In its report given to Circuit Court Judge Hollie Conley, members of the grand jury made the following recommendations:

The Commonwealth Attorney's office needs new carpet; all windows in the courthouse need cleaning; jail floor needs cleaning; Circuit Clerk's office ceiling needs repair; stairway rails need repair; Courthouse annex building needs cleaning, plug-ins need repairing, and bathrooms in annex need cleaning. The last item listed is becoming a perennial one, listed by this and several other grand juries, the need of repairs to the sidewalk and parking lot at the courthouse.

The report was signed by John Evans, foreman.

breaking into a car. "They just started singing like canaries, one after another. once they realized the seriousness of what they did," Campbell said.

Friday, February 19, two of the boys broke into the lancer VFW club. Using a pallet to climb up on, they gained entry through a rear window, stealing $100 in cash and a quantity of cigarrettes. The following night, three of the boys, including Allen, again broke into the VFW; they entered the same way and stole $10 in cash and cigarettes. For his part in that crime, Allen is being charged with third degree burglary

The boys also admitted to breaking into the vacant Salisbury home on Central Avenue, and two confessed to smashing a window of a car parked on South Arnold Avenue and stealing a woman's purse from it containing $100. Campbell said the boys took the purse under Town Branch bridge, split the money, and threw the purse away.

The police chief credits eight officers for their thorough investigation and team work in solving the cases. First degree burglary is a class B felony, and Allen now faces a possible 10 to 20 years in prison. The other boys' cases will be decided in Juvenile Court.

pensation insurance premiums for all employers and another assessment on the coal industry as a whole. He has argued that the assessments are unfair to small coal operators because they pay higher insurance premiums than large companies, which are generally selfinsured and largely automated.

Instead of paying strictly on insurance assessments, Stumbo's alternative flat fee would amount to 50 cents per ton of coal mined by underground methods and 30 cents a ton for surface mine operators.

Larger companies have argued that such a flat fee would penalize efficient companies and Nick Carter, senior attorney with Mapco, Inc., testified before the House Labor and Industry Committee that Stumbo's plan does not provide all the money needed by the Special Fund to pay its claims.

Stumbo said the plan would raise enough money to keep the fund solvent.

The Committee voted to send the bill to the full House of Representatives with a favorable recommendation.

about. Once she had her characters in mind, she let them take over and spin her plot. "I've always tried to let my characters tell me what they were going to do," she says.

Though her first two books have been based on historical events and characters, Giardina says, "I don't consider myself a historical novelist, because I will write other books that aren't set in the past. Right now I'm working on a contemporary novel that starts in 1960 and carries up to the present day; the characters are the grandchildren of the characters in Storming Heaven. It's a coming of age story about growing up in the coalfields of West Virginia and what that means, with the characters trying to find out if they have any culture or heritage, and whether they should stay and live there.

Giardina, who says of herself, "I always wonder why," is also presently working on a non-fiction book that stems from an article she wrote for the Washington Post on Appalachia. She describes the book as containing historical and political reflection, "a book that says what Harry Caudill didn't say. He tends to blame the victim, and doesn't push the structural problems, like land ownership as one cause of the problem.

Not only has Storming Heaven been praised by critics and fellow writers, but it's been rewarding financially for the author. It was selected by the Book-ofthe-Month-Club and movie rights have been optioned by Columbia Pictures. On top of this, Giardina's work has just earned her a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts.

Storming Heaven is an informative as well as a stirring book; it stirs the heart, seeking its truth in new expression, while reaffirming human values we know are worth fighting for.

Centre Artist Will Appear On CBS Show

Stephen Rolfe Powell, a Centre College art professor who has gained national acclaim for his work in blown glass, will be featured on the March 6 telecast of "CBS Sunday Morning with Charles Kuralt."

The popular 90-minute program airs at 9 a.m. EST.

CBS filmed Powell's work during an exhibition in December at the Joan Robey Gallery in Denver, Colo. Subsequently, a CBS crew, including reporter Robert Pierpoint, visited the Centre campus to film Powell at work in his studio in the Norton Center for the Arts. Powell's distinctive blown glass creations have earned him a long list of awards and growing recognition. His work has been shown in gallaries from coast to coast and is included in numerous private and public collections.

Using figurative forms in his creations, Powell titles each of his works Smith, Jones or Johnson-the result being such colorful names a "Blue Hips Jones" or "Plaid Twister Johnson."

"I try to put life into the pieces," Powell says. "Glass becomes very exciting to make as it responds very directly to every move I make and literally to the breath I exhale. The figurative aspects of my work, along with the seductive nature of color, draws the viewer into my pieces. A piece should be experienced as a life index.

Former Kentucky Gov. Martha Layne Collins purchased one of Powell's works and hand-carried it to Japan to present it as a gift to Mrs. Eiji Toyoda, wife of the chairman of Toyota Motor Corp.

Centre is the only school in Kentucky and one of only a few in the country with a complete hot glass studio. The facilities include a 2,000-degree Farenheit furnace and a 2,300-degree 🔒 Farenheit heating chamber.

A native of Birmingham, Ala., Powell earned a bachelor of arts degree in painting and ceramics at Centre in 1974. He earned the degree of master of fine arts in ceramics from Louisiana State University

From 1976 to 1980, Powell was an art instructor at Indian Springs School in Birmingham, Ala

He joined the Centre faculty in 1983.

They will compete for more than $50,000 in scholarships in the Sweet 16 Academic Showcase finals in Lexington March 23-25. More than 400 students from 40 high schools competed in the regional contest at MSU. The statewide program is coordinated by the Lexington-Fayette Urban County Government.

Education On Gifted To Be Focus Of Meet

Parents of bright children, as well as school personnel involved in nurturing and teaching gifted youngsters, should find many topics of interest at the Conference on Gifted Education in Louisville on March 4 and 5.

Well-known national and area specialists in the development of gifted children will participate in the annual conference at the Hyatt Regency Hotel. The conference is co-sponsored by the Kentucky Association for Gifted Education, which has 5,500 members statewide, and the Kentucky Department of Education

Of special interest to parents, said Doris Mills, executive director of the association, will be presentations on:

-"Fostering Creative Expression at Home" by Ric Hovda, an assistant professor at the University of Louisville. "Cures for the Incurable Perfectionist at Home" (and a companion "at School" workshop) by James Alvino, editor and publisher of Gifted Children Monthly

"Enhancing Personal Growth of Gifted Children and Adults" by Ola Madsen of Lexington, a representative of the Diamite Corp. of Milpitas, Calif.

Dr. Edward Jacomo, an arts educator from the University Liggitt School in Grosse Point Woods, Mich., will speak at the 7 p.m. dinner on March 4. Superintendent of Public Instruction John Brock will be the luncheon speaker on March 5

'87 KEST Results

The Prichard Committee announces the publication of an important research report: "Variation in a Statewide Test of Essential Skills: Meaningful or Misleading?," by Thomas R. Guskey and Edward W. Kifer, professors in the College of Education at the University of Kentucky. The report is available for purchase from the Committee.

In the study, Guskey and Kifer reranked Kentucky's 178 school districts, after adjusting the 1987 KEST results according to the percentage of students in each district who are considered economically disadvantaged and other factors.

As a result, some relatively affluent school districts did not fare as well as when the demographic factors were not considered. Similarly, some less wealthy school districts seemed to be doing a better job of educating their students than originally reported.

Kentucky's largest school district, Jefferson County, moved up from 90th to 80th place after the economic factor was considered. Fayette County dropped from 47th to 62nd.

The greatest increase in ranking was Wolfe County, which moved up from 161st to 55th. The largest drop was Beechwood Independent, moving from 17th to 91st.

Also, the authors point out why any ranking based primarily on aggregate test scores is of little practical value. The test scores used in the Kentucky rankings are aggregates of results from the Kentucky Essential Skills Test given in the third, fifth, seventh and tenth grades. As such, they fail to indicate strengths and weaknesses in particular grade levels or subject areas.

To order send to Pritchard Committee, P.O. Box 1658, Lexington, Ky. 40592.

Send me copy(ies) of "Variation in a Statewide Test of Essential Skills." Enclosed is my payment of $5.00 per copy.

PERFECT POTATOES

From the American Institute for Cancer Research

After generations of being slathered with butter and sour cream, drenched with rich sauces, and teamed with large portions of red meat, potatoes have developed a reputation as a fattening food. In fact, however, it is the accompaniments that add the fat and calories. Potatoes are actually a very nutritious food-low in fat and high in fiber, vitamins and minerals.

Some tips for getting the most nutrition from your potatoes:

· Don't peel potatoes until it's time to cook; they lose nutrients when left soaking in water.

· Bake, boil or steam potatoes rather than frying.

· Use herbs such as basil, chives,

UK Profs. Refute Robinson Is Injured In Mishap

The entrance to Glynview Plaza at the busy intersection of KY 114 and US 23 has been the scene of a number of auto crashes. Most recent of these resulted in injury to Larry Robinson, 38. of Prestonsburg, whose smashed Honda is pictured above. The mishap occurred at about 2 p.m., Sunday when Robinson apparently ran into the rear of a vehicle attempting to turn off 114 toward the shopping center. Robinson was treated at Highlands Regional Medical Center and released. Driver of the other vehicle, Tyra Newman, of Hi Hat, escaped injury. The accident was investigated by Prestonshurg Police Sgt. Gerald Clark.

Tons and Tons of Tomatoes

By MARCIA WOOD

Any home gardener knows that a healthy tomato plant produces a lot of tomatoes, but would you believe the new world record is 100 tons an acre?

Claude J. Phene, of USDA's Agricultural Research Service, says that to his knowledge the 100-ton harvest broke the old record of 75 tons an acre for an irrigated field crop of tomatoes. And he broke the record despite using less water than normal for irrigation.

Employer Fair Slated March 4 in L'ville

Nearly 50 employers will gather next week at the Galt House in Louisville with some 400 college seniors willing to work.

The third annual Employer Fair, sponsored by the 21- member Council of Independent Kentucky Colleges and Hanover College in Indiana, will be from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Friday, March 4, and will take up the entire third floor of the Galt House.

Representatives from 47 companies, where some of it evaporates and never reaches the plant's roots. Phene's method is called subsurface drip irrigation. Water and fertilizer drip out of holes in a plastic pipe, "delivering water where plants need it the most-in the rool zone.

Phene also says that because watering plants underground is more efficient, it will save water. "This will become more important in the future as the demand increases for clean water in the city and on the farm," he says.

Subsurface irrigation also improves the quality of the crop. Because the surface is dry, rot-causing microorganisms don't flourish the way they do in damp conditions caused by surface irrigation.

'It's hard for some growers to get used to looking at dry ground, but as long as the plant roots are being fed, a dry surface is best for many fruits and vegetables," he said. Phene's system is computer controlled and linked to a scale that indicates a crop's current need for water. But, he said, less sophisticated subsurface systems not relying on computers can save farmers money

Cotton and cantaloupe crops, for example, also have larger yields in field experiments using underground drip irrigation. (Agricultural Research Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture)

Lutheran Church Receive AAL Grant

The Indiana/Kentucky Synod of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America (ELCA) has received a $6,500 AAL grant. The funds will enable the newly-created synod to pursue leadership development, team building and strategic planning activities. AAL is an Appleton, Wisconsin-based fraternal benefit society.

The Rev. Ralph Kempski, bishop of the Indiana/Kentucky Synod, based in Indianapolis, Indiana, has developed a plan for how the funds will be used. Each of the 65 Synods of the ELCA received an AAL grant totaling $6,500.

The ELCA was created Jan. 1 when the Lutheran Church in America (LCA). American Lutheran Church (ALC) and Associational of Evangelical Lutheran Churches (AELC) merged.

The grant to the ELCA synods is part of a $750,000 1987 AAL juidicatory program to assist Lutheran church bodies in several specific areas of need. Each of the districts in the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod (LCMS) and Wisconsin Evangelical Lutheran Synod (WELS) will also receive individual grants from this program.

Many of the ELCA bishops will use some of the AAL funds to attend the ELCA's first Conference of Bishops retreat, scheduled March 11-14 in Florida. According to the Rev. Edwin Bersagel, executive director of the Conference of Bishops, "This meeting will be the first time many of the bishops will have a chance to break away from their schedules since beginning their work in late autumn of 1987

At the retreat, bishops will study and worship together, learn to deal with crisis situations, discuss church transition issues and discover how to strengthen their family lives while dealing with the pressures of their new positions.

The AAL support is being provided through provisions of AAL's Church and Educational Benefits programs. The programs provide financial assistance to Lutheran church bodies, Lutheran educational institutions and other Lutheran agencies on behalf of AAL members AAL provides its 1.4 million members in 6,800 nationwide branches with fraternal benefits, while its affiliated companies offer members other financial services. In addition, members are offered volunteer opportunities to help others in their own communities.

Seminar For Nurses Set March 10 at MSU

Morehead State University's Continuing Education Program for nursing and allied health professionals is sponsoring a one-day seminar, Thursday, March 10. The seminar, entitled Nursing Standards, will be held in the Adron Doran University Center beginning at 8 a.m. It is designed to increase the knowledge of the registered nurse in the intent, interpretation and application of Joint Commission nursing service standards.

The training offered in this session will be of special interest to nursing administrators, supervisors and charge nurses. The fee includes handouts and breaks

The faculty will be Shirley Noah, of Lancaster, a nurse consultant on quality assurance and nursing standards.

All participants will receive continuing education units from MSU. Nurses will receive seven contact hours as approved by the Kentucky Board of Nurs-

Additional information is available by calling (606) 783-2635.

The first workshop, entitled Pediatric Nursing Assessment I, will be held today (Wednesday) through Friday, March 2-4. It will focus on the nursing evaluation of respiratory and cardiovascular functions of toddler and preschool aged children

Sandra Gibson, nurse practitioner at Children's Hospital Medical Center in Cincinnati, Ohio, will provide the instruction.

The registration fee for this workshop is $90 and includes 15 contact hours of instruction as approved by the Kentucky Board of Nursing. Participants will need to wear clothes suitable for laboratory practice and bring a stethoscope and a small plastic ruler

A one-day seminar for radiologic technologists will be held on Saturday, March 5. Topics to be covered will include radiographic artifacts, basics of ultrasound, in-jection techniques, infection control and human aspects of patient care.

The faculty will include radiologic technologists Ken Addington and Betty Addington, Highlands Regional Medical Center; Susan Enlow, St. Joseph's Hospital; Janet Gross, MSU's Baccalaureate Nursing Program coordinator, and Rae Smith, MSU's radiologic technology program coordinator.

The workshop fee is $42 and includes seven contact hours of instruction. Additional workshops scheduled for the spring semester on MSU's campus are: March 10, Nursing Standards; April 6-8, Pediatric Assessment II; April 8, Legal Aspects in Health Care Education; April 21, Medical Technology Seminar: April 23, Time Management in Health Care; April 28, Pharmacology Update; April 29, Demystifying Nurses Management; May 4-6, Pediatric Assessment III.

The Continuing Education Program is administered through MSU's Department of Nursing and Allied Health Sciences. All participants attending the sessions will receive continuing education units from MSU.

Additional information is available by calling (606) 783-2635.

thyme or oregano as toppings rather than high-fat butter and sour cream.

 Replace sour cream on your baked potato with plain, lowfat yogurt mixed with chopped chives or dill. Or, blend lowfat cottage cheese in a blender and add a bit of lemon juice for tang.

 Stretch leftovers such as stir-fried vegetables or casseroles by serving them atop a baked potato.

· Use a mixture of plain, lowfat yogurt and mustard to replace mayonnaise in your potato salad

· Make a baked potato pizza with spaghetti sauce and part-skim mozzarella, broiled briefly to melt the cheese

The following recipe combines the nutrition of potatoes and vitamin A-rich spinach. The flavor is present and very mild, but can be made more highly seasoned by adding nutmeg, garlic juice or minced fresh garlic, or an increased amount of lemon juice.

TWICE-BAKED SPINACH POTATOES

- 4 medium baking potatoes
- 1 10-ounce package frozen spinach
- 1/4 cup skim milk
- 1/4 tsp. pepper
- 2 1/2 tsp. lemon juice
- Dash paprika

Bake the potatoes as you usually would. Meanwhile, thaw and cook the spinach as instructed on package. When the potatoes are done, cut them in half lengthwise and scoop out. Mash the scooped-out potato with milk, pepper and lemon juice. Add the spinach and mix well. Stuff the mixture back into the potato skins. Sprinkle with paprika and broil for 10 minutes.

This recipe yields four servings, with 117 calories per serving and 0 grams of fat

For other lower fat recipes, order a copy of AICR's "An Ounce Of Prevention" cookbook, winter volume, by sending a donation for $6.00 to American Institute for Cancer Research, Dept. GF9, Washington, D.C. 20069

'Good Food/Good Health'' is provided by the American Institute for Cancer Research, Washington, D.C. 20069. Recipes are reviewed by Karen Collins, M.S., R.D.)

Surveys conducted by, among others, the Michigan State University Placement Office and the College Placement Council in Bethelehem, Pa., indicate that hiring will be up slightly for this spring's graduating class. Although upper management level positions have or will be cut back, there are still plenty of entry positions available, according to the survey respondents.

Employer fairs typically do not result in a large number of offers being extended that day, according to Tony Drapelick, assistant director of career services at Centre College. Rather, they give employers the opportunity to get a feel for the quality of the spring graduates and to promote good will and visibility for their companies.

Students have the opportunity to make some intitial professional contacts and 'to see 400 of their peers dressed for success," Drapelick said,

Ten to 20 percent of the students will actually receive job offers from companies they interview with at the job fair. Each student has two or three prearranged interviews.

Vocational Ed Grants Offered

Federal grants totaling $125,000 are available to private, non-profit community-based organizations in a competitive program administered by the Kentucky Department of Education's Office of Vocational Education.

Organizations such as the Urban League or United Way that can provide pre-vocational training services for economically disadvantaged students are eligible for grants under the program, which is in its second year

Carolyn Hayden, director of research and development in the Office of Vocational Education, said the grants were intended to finance programs to test students' employability skills and assess their vocational education needs.

We want training programs that will give students who may be potential dropouts pre-vocational, pre-employment skills," she said. The department hopes to provide grant funds for about a dozen training projects under the federal program.

The deadline for applications is April 1. Interested organizations should write Carolyn Hayden, Research and Development Unit, 2025 Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Ky. 40601, or telephone her at (502) 564-2890

Roosevelt Seeks Correction In Social Security Benefits

James Roosevelt, Jr., representing by as much as twenty percent for both his father and the five millionmember National Committee to Preserve Social Security and Medicare last week aimed strongly-worded criticism at both the House Ways and Means Committee and the Social Security Administration for creating and perpetuating the Social Security benefits issue known as the "notch"

Roosevelt told the Senate Special Committee on Aging he is convinced that the notch never would have occurred if Congress had been given the facts when Social Security amendments were passed in 1977.

To correct an earlier error in the benefit formula, both Ways and Means and the Social Security Administration urged Congress to adopt legislation they promised would amount to benefit reductions of no more than one percent a year for five years, Roosevelt reminded the Senate. Instead, benefits were cut seniors born after 1917.

"What's worse, instead of admitting that an error in the new formula existed, the Ways and Means Committee and the Social Security Administration have perpetuated the notch by denying that it exists," said Roosevelt. "A mountain of evidence indicates that the notch has caused average benefit losses of $660 a year for about ten million current retirees and that it will affect, to a lesser degree, another ten million retirees in the next five years," he added.

The National Committee to Preserve Social Security and Medicare has no argument with the intent of the 1977 amendments, just with the actual consequences, Roosevelt testified. "The intent of the 1977 amendments was correct and it would have been apparent to all that the formula was flawed and the intent perverted-if there had not been a cover-up of the actual benefit reductions suffered by millions of seniors."

Roosevelt labeled a red-herring the charge by some senior groups that notch victims were "greedy" for wanting to equal benefit levels of so-called "bonanza babies" (those born between 1912-1916). "The Sanford/Ford legislation to correct the notch will not bring notch victims up to the 1912-1916 level but will restore the intent of the 1977 amendments by leveling out benefits for everyone else.

Roosevelt brought charts to the hearing showing that outlays from the Social Security Trust Funds to correct the notch would not jeopardize the surpluses being built up for the retirement of babyboomers. He testified that a correction of the notch would mean a Trust Fund surplus of $1.2 trillion instead of $1.3 trillion by the year 2000.

Roosevelt also criticized other senior citizen groups for not investigating the true impact of the 1977 Social Security amendments. "They have taken as an article of faith, the pronouncements of the Social Security Administration in-stead of listening to their own members.'

Written testimony submitted by the National Committee pointed out that in 1986, delegates to the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) national convention overwhelmingly voted to support a legislative correction of the notch but that their resolution had been ignored by the AARP Washington leadership.

Accompanying Roosevelt at the witness table were sisters, Audrey Webb and Edith Detviler, who came to Washington from Minnesota to testify. Although they started working on the same day at the same company in the same job and retired 25 years later with nearly identical wage records, Edith Detviler receives Social Security benefits 20.3 percent lower than her sister's.

Special Olympics Support Meet Set

Kentucky Special Olympics is a yearround program of physical fitness, sports training and athletics competition for children and adults with mental retardation. The program is unique in that it accommodates competitors at all ability levels by assigning them to "competitition divisions" based on both age and actual performance ability. Ogie Slone is the Floyd County Coordinator

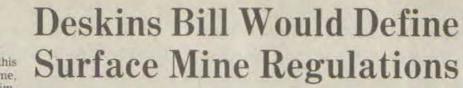

Tonight (March 2) at the Prestonsburg Elementary School there will be a meeting at 7 p.m. of interested people from various businesses, civic organizations, parents, and teachers in the area. Without the help of many, Floyd county's special boys, girls, men, and women will continue to stand on the sidelines.

Girl Scout Week Set March 6-12

March 6-12 is Girl Scout Week and this year's celebration focuses on the theme, "Take The Lead!", emphasizing an important objective in Girl Scouting—to prepare young women to become tomorrow's leaders. This commitment to the development of leaders comes at a time when there is cause for concern, when many young people are disturbed by world events, are involved in selfdestructive behavior, and are insecure about what the future holds for them.

Thinking about the future, filled as it is with so many unknowns, can create anxiety. Yet the Girl Scouts forge ahead. They can be found exploring uninhabited, icy Antarctica or making a historical voyage with the U.S. Coast Guard to celebrate Australia's bicentennial. Or, they can be found discussing global issues with their peers from Third World countries—issues such as women and poverty, hunger and the economy. Or their roles as women in a rapidly changing society can engage their minds and shape their conversation.

The earliest libraries were probably those maintained in the temples of anclent Egypt.

State Representative Herbie Deskins, D-Pikeville, is sponsoring legislation to more clearly define regulations used to monitor surface mining.

The two pieces of legislation, House Bill 656 and 657 have been approved by the House Committee on Natural Resources. They next will be considered by the full membership of the House of Representatives.

Deskins said HB 657's intent is to standardize the bond release procedures currently used by the Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet. "The present bond regulations seem to have been an afterthought when the entire primary regulation package was written," Deskins said. "And, as a result, have led to inconsistent interpretations by the Cabinet and often interpretations that are far more stringent than the Federal Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act," he added.

One important factor this measure provides. Deskins explained, is that a bond may not be forfeited for a permittee's failure to pay penalties or fines.

"The Cabinet has been very inconsistent concerning forfeiture for penalties and their actions are adversely affecting a surety's willingness to write bonds in the Commonwealth," Deskins said.

Deskins also pointed out that the legislation also authorizes the Cabinet for Natural Resources to initiate the bond release process. "This process is consistent with current internal policies of the Division of Enforcement," he said

Deskins summed up the bill, "The legislation allows several activities to begin simultaneously with the filing of the request for bond release, and therefore, significantly shortens the time for processing the release."

He added, "The legislation will standardize bond release procedures across the state and further defines the rules that the permittee, the Cabinet and the surety must play by."

House Bill 657 simply directs that state regulations by which surface coal miners operate be no more stringent than those of states without primacy. "That should provide a consistency to the program," Deskins said.

Government Workshop Set At Morehead, Mar. 3

A Procurement Workshop, designed for area wholesalers and manufacturers interested in selling supplies to the federal government, will be held at Morehead State University Thursday, March 3. The workshop will be held in the conference room on the first floor of Butler Hall from 6 to 8:30 p.m.

Speakers for the session will include Jim Kurz, Kentucky Procurement Assistance Program (KPAP) director; Tim Back, KPAP research assistant with the University of Kentucky; Rudy Hamlin, KPAP contracting specialist for UK, and Ernest Begley II, MSU's Small Business Development Center director who is coordinating the activity. The workshop is sponsored by the U.S. Defense Logistics Agency of the U.S. Department of Defense, U.S. Small Business Administration, Gateway Area Development District, Morehead-Rowan County Chamber of Commerce, and MSU's Small Business Development Center in the School of Business and Economics.

Registration and additional information is available from MSU's Small Business Development Center, (606) 783-2077. Arrangements will be made to accommodate handicapped persons when request accompanies advance registration.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MINE Pursuant to Application No. 836-0188

In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350.055, notice is hereby given that Transcontiental Coal Processing, Inc., P.O. Box 203, Ivel, Ky. 41642, has filed an amendment to an application for a permit for a surface and underground mining operation. The proposed operation will affect a surface disturbance of 215.11 acres and will underlie an additional 324.75 acres located 0.75 miles northwest of Grethel in Floyd county. The proposed operation is approximately 0.25 miles west from CR 1129's junction with KY 979 and located along Tackett Branch. The latitude is 37° 29' 17''N. The longitude is 82° 40' 11''W.

The proposed operation is located on the McDowell U.S.G.S. 71/2 minute quadrangle map. The surface area to be disturbed is owned by Nora Akers, Darcus Hall, Everett Carroll, Charlie Tackett, Elk Horn Coal Corporation, Wendell Stratton, Edford Clark and Sarah Tackett. The operation will underlie land owned by Nora Akers, Darcus Hall, Everett Carroll, Charlie Tackett, Elk Horn Coal Corporation, Wendell Stratton, Wilburn Akers, Thurman Akers, the John Mature Heirs, E.J. Parsons, Anna Meade, Gracie Hall, Sara Bevins, Edford Clark and Sarah Tackett. The operation will affect an area within 100' of Public Road CR 1129 and will involve closure of the public road during the mining and reclamation phase of the operation. The application also includes a proposed land use change from the forestland pre-mining land use to a fish and wildlife habitat post-mining land use. The operation will use the surface contour, area, auger and underground methods of mining.

The application has been filed for public inspection at the Department for Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement's Prestonsburg Regional Office, 503 South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653. Written comments, objections, or requests for a permit conference must be filed with the Director of the Division of Permits, #2 Hudson Hollow, U.S. 127 South, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601. 3-2-31.

Hollywood Legends Features Grace Kelly

Grace Kelly became the most thoughtafter actress of her time and an Academy Award winner at age 24. At the height of her career, she stunned the world by choosing to leave Hollywood and become Her Serene Highness Princess Grace of Monaco.

Her remarkable story is told as part of the Hollywood Legends series when "Grace Kelly: The American Princess" airs Wednesday, March 9 at 9 p.m. on KET as part of TeleFund '88.

This special narrated by Richard Kiley looks at the family girl who lived a fairy-tale life. It follows Kelly's life and career from her privileged upbringing in Philadelphia to her halcyon days as a Hollywood star to her years as Her Serene Highness Princess Grace of Monaco.

An interview with her older sister as well as home movie footage uncover the roots of her quiet confidence and independent spirit.

The program includes interviews with Jimmy Stewart, Alec Guinness, Stanley Kramer, Louis Jourdan, and memorable clips featuring Kelly in High Noon, Mogambo, Dial 'M' for Murder, To Catch a Thief, Rear Window, High Society, and more.

After movies which displayed her cool beauty and majestic screen presence, Kelly surprised Hollywood by shedding her glamorous image for The Country Girl, which won her the Academy Award for best actress.

"Grace Kelly: The American Princess" is produced for Wombat Productions in association with Devillier Donegan Enterprises.

J. E. Combs, the candidate who was elected in the November general election on the platform of abolishing his office, was sworn in before a large crowd at the Perry County Courthouse in Hazard, January 4, by Perry County Circuit Judge Calvin N. Manis as Ky. Railroad Commissioner for District 3.

State Representative, Mark Farrow has introduced a bill to put an amendment on the ballot to abolish the office of Railroad Commissioner. Combs believes if enough voters will contact their State Representative and State Senator during this session on the legislators toll free number. 1-800-372-7181, this bill will be one of four amendments to appear on the November, 1988 ballot.

Combs is convinced, when the amendment is put on the ballot, it will pass by a huge majority and will save the taxpayers over $100,000 a year; money that can be spent on schools and roads.

Should the Kentucky Railroad Commission be abolished, the three commissioners elected in November, 1987 will still serve out the remainder of their four-year term.

Although, according to Mr. Combs, a Kentucky Railroad Commissioner has very little power, the officials of the railroads operating in District Three have offered to work and assist Mr. Combs in any way they can during the next four years.

For problems concerning railroads in District Three, contact J. E. Combs. Kentucky Railroad Commissioner, District Three, 220 Lovern Street, Hazard, Kentucky, 41701 or telephone (606) 436-3585.

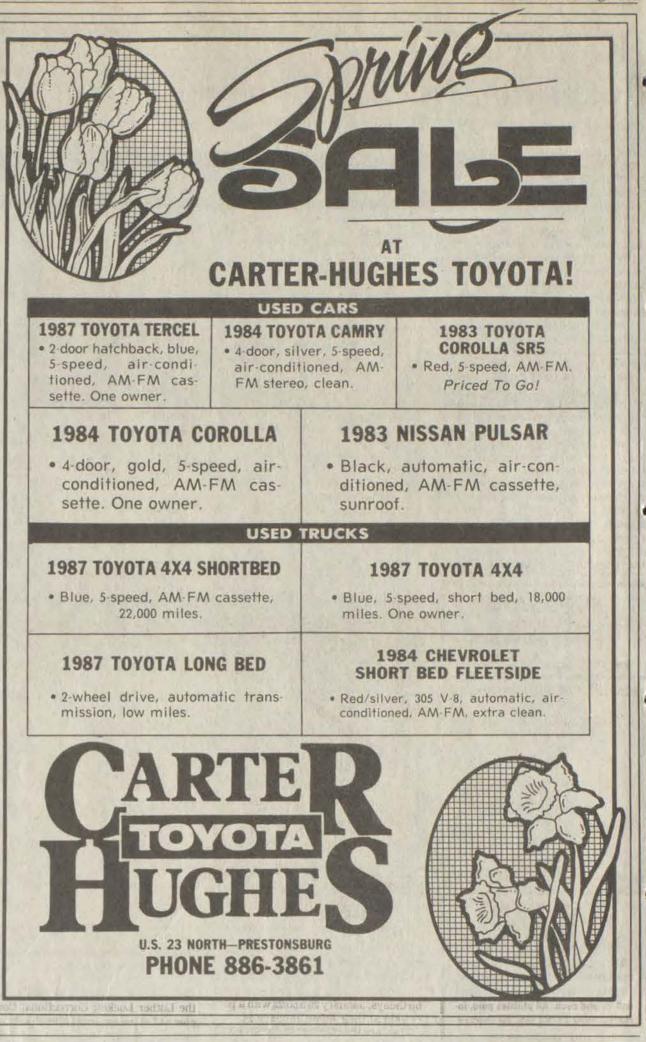

Flood Ins. Seminar Set For Agents and Lenders

The National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP) will conduct a seminar for management and staff of area mortgage lending institutions Tuesday, May 17, and a seminar for insurance agents, Wednesday, May 18, 8:30-12:30 at the Holiday Inn.

Topics to be covered include knowing when flood insurance is required on mortgaged property, servicing flood policies, complying with federal regulations, problem solving, using flood maps, and working with the NFIP. For further information, write the NFIP Regional Office at 5775-C Peachtree Dunwoody Road, Atlanta, Ga. 30342, or call (404) 843-0222.

The training for agents will provide an overview of the NFIP including coverages available, application procedures, recent changes, rating, flood maps and problem solving. Those agents interested may obtain further information and enroll by calling the NFIP Regional Office in Atlanta at (404) 843-0222.

"Kentucky's Psychiatric Institutions: Hospitals, Not Asylums Or Prisons"

Lunatic-a term defined by Webster as "suffering from lunacy; insane."

Seldom heard today, it was used often in the 1800s to describe anyone with a form of mental illness. So it's not too surprising that Kentucky's first facilities for the mentally ill were referred to as 'lunatic asylums.

That was the case on May 1, 1824, when what was then known as the Eastern Lunatic Asylum opened on the Sinking Spring property in Lexingtonthe first such facility west of the Alleghenies and only the second in the Young nation.

"Records tell us that chains, shackles, straitjackets and padded cells were common sights in hospitals for the mentally ill of that day," said Dennis Boyd, current commissioner of the Department for Mental Health and Mental Retardation Services. "Today, however, that type of treatment doesn't exist.

It is Boyd's agency that operates the system that does exist today in Kentucky: four adult psychiatric care facilities which provide a full range of progressive, modern services to acute and chronically mentally ill patients. Three of Kentucky's psychiatric hospitals-Eastern State in Lexington, Western State in Hopkinsville and Central State near Louisville-offer the latest programs in occupational, recreational and physical therapy, psychiatric nursing, and vocational rehabilitation. Each is approved by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Health Care Organizations and certified for Medicare and Medicaid by the U.S. Health Care Financing Administration.

The Kentucky Correctional Psychiatric Center (K.C.P.C.) in LaGrange treats adults facing felony charges who require pre-trial evaluation as well as persons convicted of felony offenses who have psychiatric problems.

A new Central State was completed in 1987, K.C.P.C. opened in 1981 and Eastern and Western State were renovated within the past decade, according to Verna Fairchild, director of the department's Division of Institutional

Hospital rooms accommodate one to four patients with chests and closets for clothes and personal belongings. K.C.P.C. has only private, one-person rooms. Each facility has game rooms, dayrooms with television and woodworking and ceramic shops-all used to help patients develop creative skills.

The programs also have X-ray and laboratory departments, dental offices, food services and beauty and/or barber shops," Fairchild added. Today Kentucky's psychiatric hospital

Brittany Leigh and Joshua Kyle Kinzer celebrated their first and third birthdays, January 26 and 22 with a party held at their home January 24.

They are the children of Jammie and Sherri Kinzer, of Allen, and the grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Kinzer, Esta Cottrell and the late Willis Hall. They are the great-grandchildren of John W. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. James Cole, Zella Taylor and Rosa Kinzer.

system has advanced in areas other than brick-and-mortar. In 1986 the Public Citizens Health Research Group rated Kentucky's system among the top eight states in the nation in quality of care.

Fairchild said, "I think that achievement emphasizes the qualifications and the dedication of our staff.'

In the 1960s and 1970s, psychiatric hospitals nationwide reduced patient populations drastically and began treating more clients through short-term and outpatient services, thanks to community mental health centers and the widespread use of psychotropic drugsmedications which control symptoms of major mental illness and allow the patient to function in the community.

"During this period of time there were fewer admissions because more of the patients were long-term care cases,' Fairchild said. "However, our admissions have been rising since the beginning of this decade, and in 1987 set an alltime record-4,759-and occupancy rates reached 100 percent.

Factors causing higher demand for inpatient psychiatric care are numerous.

"A tighter economy and increased unemployment mean that many people can no longer afford private care, so the patient load at our hospitals expands." she said. "A growing homeless population and overcrowded jails have also contributed to the increase.'

Advances in mental health evaluations and laws against the unnecessary hospitalization of the mentally ill have affected the criteria for psychiatric inpatient admission and discharge.

Boyd noted that full capacity at the hospitals means admissions and discharges, already tightly regulated, must be examined even more closely.

"Under Kentucky law, only someone who meets one of a limited number of specific criteria may be admitted to a state psychiatric hospital," said the commissioner. "A person who is dangerous to himself or others, someone who has a documented need for treatment or for whom hospitalization is the most appropriate method of treatment can be admitted to one of these facilities.'

Some admissions are court-ordered, in which case the patient is to be evaluated and the results given to the presiding judge.

'Most admissions to the hospitals are referrals from the comprehensive care centers, so the patient will have staff familiar with the case providing outpatient services when he or she returns to the community," Boyd said.

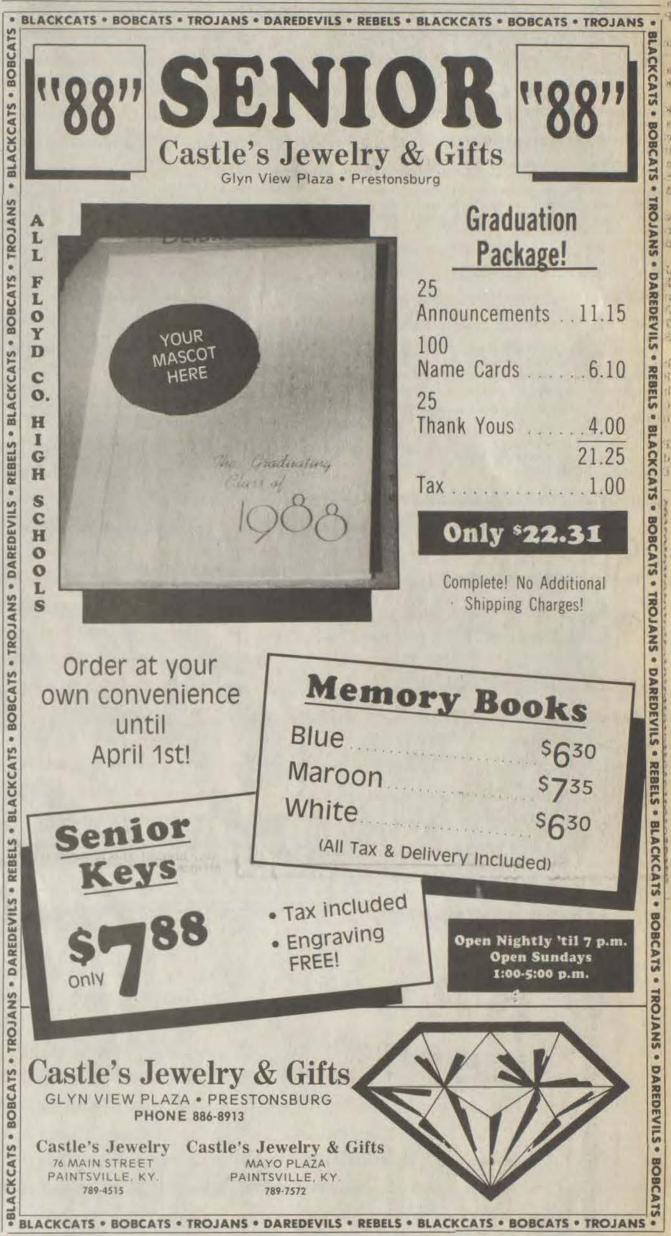

At K.C.P.C., which is located within the Luther Luckett Correctional Complex at LaGrange, most admissions are made for court-ordered pre-trial evaluation or post-conviction treatment. Some patients may be admitted through the outpatient services K.C.P.C. provides to the Corrections Cabinet.

While guidelines for psychiatric hospital admission are different today, time has also changed the frequently misunderstood issue of patient discharges

Animal Babies Featured In March 6 KET Special

A wolf pup and a deer fawn meet face to face. Both are hesitant and shy, not realizing their roles of predator and prey-yet. A newborn barren-ground caribou struggles to stand on wobbly legs amidst snow and ice.

This innocence and vulnerability of the young is shown in an encore presentation of The Best of Wild America: The Babies airs on KET during TeleFund '88. Tune in to this hourlong special Sunday, March 6 at 7:30 p.m.

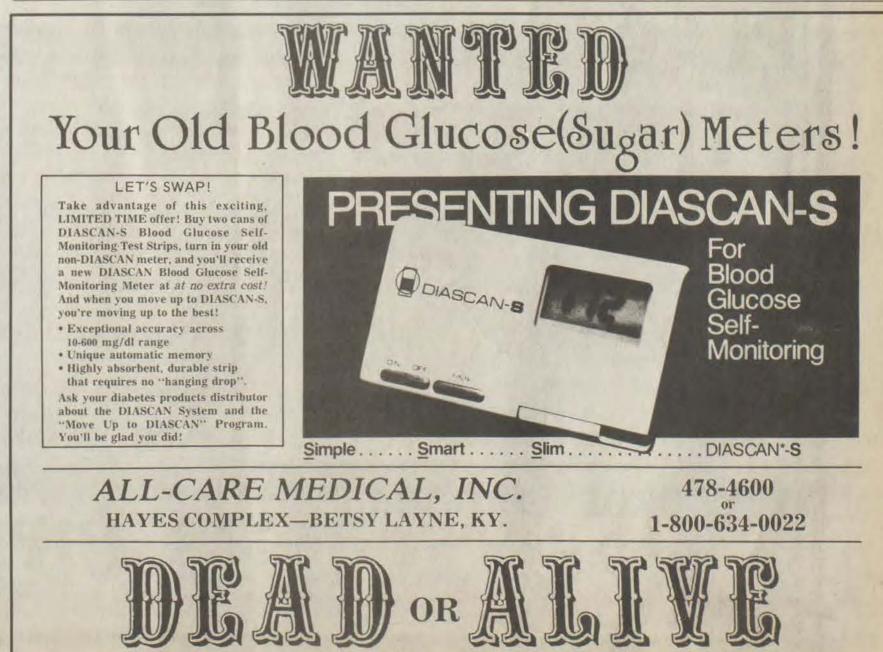

Host for the special is Marty Stouffer, aided by his young daughter, Hannah. This feature draws from five seasons of Wild America and profiles some of nature's most endearing youngsters.

The Best of Wild America: The Babies takes a lighter look at life in the wild, exploring the similarities between animal and human young, especially their love of play.

In one amusing segment, two adopted baby fishers-members of the weasel family-ransack the Stouffer home. Upon watching this, Stouffer remarks, "In the wild, their curiosity has a purpose. In a home, it's a disaster.' The Best of Wild America: The Babies is a Marty Stouffer Production.

"K.C.P.C. and Central, Eastern and Western State are just what their names suggest-hospitals for the medical and psychiatric care of their patients," said Boyd. "Just as these facilities aren't the asylums of old, neither are they prisons for the incarceration of the mentally ill of modern society.

"Today we know that not every form and level of mental illness requires or even should result in institutionalization. In our hospitals, patients are evaluated by a team of professionals on the need for continued treatment at the facility or for outpatient care involving psychotropic drugs and counseling.

Pavarotti Returns To Naples With KET Italian tenor Luciano Pavarotti takes viewers to Naples. Italy for a musical tour on Great Performances on Sunday, March 6 at 10 p.m. on KET-during Tele-Fund '88.

Pavarotti Returns to Naples features the people and the sights of the romantic, seaside city and the Neapolitan songs of his youth that Pavarotti has sung as encores in his concerts around the world.

Pavarotti sings the Neapolitan street songs which evoke the spirit of the city as he tours its streets, markets, neighborhoods, and fishing wharfs. His narration, laced with his sometimes whimsical, sometimes mocking, wit, explains the origin of these characteristics songs that have become traditional for all of Italy. Songs featured include "O Sole Mio," "Santa Lucia," "Funiculi, Funicula," and "Torna a Sorriento," and others.

Great Performances is presented by an alliance of six public television stations: WNET/New York; KERA/ Dallas-Ft. Worth; KQED/San Francisco; MPT/Maryland; SCETV/Columbia, S.C.; and WTTW/Chicago.

The United States Military Academy at West Point, New York, opened for mally on July 4, 1802, with the arrival of the first ten cadets.

Chris Perkins Will Be Featured On KET

Kentucky's 7th Congressional District, where coal is a difficult mistress, is perhaps the heart of Appalachia. It is a mountainous district without large cities, in fact, it is one of the most densely populated rural areas of the country. The 7th district and its United States

Representative Carl C. (Chris) Perkins are the focus of the final installment of Kentuckians in Congress, airing Sunday, March 6 at 7:30 p.m. on KET. Join Producer/host Sally Lobaugh-Jackson as she visits with Congressman Perkins in his Washington, D.C. office.

Historically, the hills of Kentucky were solidly Republican, because they supported the Union during the Civil War. But drives organized by the United Mine Workers (UMW) in the 1930s and the New Deal converted many miners and their families to the Democratic Party.

Chris Perkins replaced his father, Carl Perkins, as 7th District representative after the elder's death in 1984. At the time of his father's death, the younger Perkins was a member of the Kentucky legislature. A native of Washington, D.C., Perkins makes his home in Leburn.

Representative Perkins is a member of the Education and Labor Committee, and the Public Works and Transportation Committee.

Kentuckians in Congress is a sevenpart series designed to give Kentuckians a close, personal look at their representatives in Congress. The series explains how our congressmen divide their time between Washington and Kentucky; how they deal with their constiuents; and how their families handle the difficult division of responsibility.

Kentuckians in Congress features interviews with Senators Wendell Ford and Mitch McConnell, and Representatives Larry Hopkins, Harold Rogers, Carroll Hubbard, and Jim Bunning. (Representatives Romano Mazzoli and William Natcher were unavailable for interview)

Kentucky has a new administration in Frankfort, making the usual rosy predictions about the state's future. The facts make these optimistic forecasts questionable.

If you want to see why trouble looms ahead, take a close look at Kentucky's people. For example:

Kentuckians are getting older. For every person over 60, there were four times as many under 20 in 1900 as there are today. Thanks to the support given by Social Security, pensions and better medical care, people are living longer. Because people are marrying later and having fewer children, the number of births is falling.

Kentucky is going to age faster than most other states, because it has more whites than the average state, and fewer blacks, Hispanics and immigrants, whose average age is lower. As the postwar "baby-boom" group reaches retirement age, the state is likely to have more old people than young people under 20 preparing to enter the work force.

While we now have more older people who are better off, we have more children who are poor. Over 29 per cent of all children entering school are from families living below the poverty level; in families headed

Coal Lab Tech Meet Set at WKU, April 6

The University of Kentucky Institute for Mining and Minerals Research (IMMR) and Department of Mining Engineering, and Western Kentucky University Center for Coal Science is sponsoring a 21/2 day short course entitled, "Coal Laboratory Technician Training," to be held April 6-8.

The primary objective of this short course is to provide an introduction and review of the techniques of coal analysis with emphasis on ASTM procedures. Specifically, the course will address: analytical and applied chemistry, and procedural difficulties. A combination of lecture, audio-visual materials, laboratory demonstrations, and handson laboratory exercises will be used to teach this course.

This course will be directed to those with little or no formal training in coal analysis/basic sciences or those needing a review. It is suggested that laboratory technicians, coal broker, and civil and mining engineers attend.

The instructors will be Henry Francis, chemist in the College of Engineering, University of Kentucky, and Dr. John T. Riley, professor for the Department of Chemistry and director for the Center for Coal Science at Western Kentucky University.

The registration fee includes all handout materials, instruction, and breaks.

The course will be held at Western Kentucky University in Bowling Green, and interested persons should contact IMMR's Office at 201 Porter Building, University of Kentucky, Lexington, Kentucky 40506-0205 or (606) 257-2841 or 257-2847, Connie S. Willingham, Coordinator.

Drug and Alcohol Update ... Drug Abuse Among Women Has Had Long History

When Kitty Dukakis, wife of presidential hopeful Michael Dukakis, admitted recently that she had once been addicted to diet pills, the public was surprised not only because the candid admission was made by a public figure. It probably was somewhat shocked because the acknowledgement of drug abuse was made by a woman.

Despite its increasing willingness to recognize women's equality in many areas, the public still has difficulty accepting that "the gentler sex" could be addicted to substances such as cocaine, heroin or marijuana. But it's a reality that shouldn't be surprising given the history of women and drug abuse.

From the mid-19th century through WW I, female drug addicts outnumbered male addicts by two to one, according to a report in "Women and Drugs, published by the Department of Health and Human Services.

Many were health-conscience, middleclass women who were introduced by their physicians to opium, a powerful mood-altering substance, as a way of relieving pain and anxiety. Women also often used opium, which was readily available in many over-the-counter remedies, as a respectable substitute for alcohol.

While today men are addicted to drugs in greater numbers, women apparently are catching up. But unlike men who commonly abuse drugs as a form of recreation, women usually become chemically dependent for a variety of other reasons. They often use drugs to cope with emotional problems as to relieve stress. They frequently turn to chemicals as crutches to help them in juggling family, job and marriage. The competitive professional women often turns to drugs such as cocaine to give her the energy to outpace her male counterparts.

The following are facts about current trends regarding women and drugs:

Mister Rogers Visits Soviet Union On KET

Mister Rogers visited another neighborhood recently-in the U.S.S.R.-and his Soviet counterpart, Tatiana Vedenneva, returned the visit. The highlights of this special summit are featured on Mister Rogers' Neighborhood March 7-16 at 5:15 p.m. on KET. This children's favorite airs during Telefund '88

Both Mister Rogers' Neighborhood and Vedneeva's Good Night, Little Ones are among the longest-running children's series in their respective nations. Says Fred Rogers, Like Mister Rogers' Neighborhood, Good Night, Little Ones uses puppets and stories to address the needs of young children."

During his 10-day visit in Moscow, Rogers became the first guest ever to appear on an episode of the popular Soviet children's program. The Mister Rogers' Neighborhood crew taped the visit to the Soviet studio for use during the theme week of programs, "Nighttime." Vedenneva's visit to the Mister Rogers' Neighborhood set at WQED in Pittsburgh also airs during the week.

-Cocaine use among women has increased significantly in recent years. The book "Cocaine: Seduction and Solution" quotes a 1975-76 survey which found that 39 percent of cocaine users were women. By the time the survey was repeated five years later, women comprised more than half the users.

-Compared to men, women receive more than twice as many prescriptions for tranquilizers, particularly in the 35 to 49 year old age group. In addition, women consume 71 percent of all antidepressants and four-fifths of all legal amphetamines such as diet pills, according to the Encyclopedia of Drug Abuse.

-A study of women who used tranquilizers found they took sedatives primarily because of the anxiety they felt in relation to the traditional roles of wife, mother and homemaker.

-Women accounted for nearly twothirds of the 18,543 emergency room cases related to tranquilizers in 1985, according to the Drug Abuse Warning Network.

-While men commonly acquire drugs by purchasing them, women are more likely to get drugs from friends, particularly men. A study in the International Journal of Addictions found that, in the case of marijuana, men were more likely to purchase their supply while women acquired marijuana as a gift. Women were also much more dependent on having others purchase marijuana for them.

-Drug use among teenage girls is catching up to that of adolescent boys. A National Institute of Drug Abuse survey found that among the high school class of 1984, 51 percent of the girls had tried marijuana at least once-nearly equal the 58 percent figure reported by boys. A similar survey conducted in 1980 found that 13 percent of girls had tried cocaine compared to 18 percent of boys.

Drug use poses a variety of complications for pregnant women and the developing fetus. Heroin addicted women risk toxemia, postpartum hemorrhage and high neonatal morbidity and mortality. Marijuana use during pregnancy can result in babies born with tremors, vision problems and exaggerated startle reflexes.

-Research indicates the drug use among women will continue to increase. In a study on "Female Drug Use: Some Observations," F. Suffet and R. Brotman speculate that "use of recreational drugs by women will increase as women assert their right to greater freedom in their private lives and rebel against the double standard of personal behavior.'

Just because a patient receives a prescription for medicine, it does not necessarily follow that it will produce the desired results. The fault does not lie with the medicine itself, in most cases, but with the patient. The fact is that as much as fifty percent of all prescription medicines are taken incorrectly. Common failings include ingesting an incorrect dosage, taking the medicine at wrong intervals, not taking the medicine at all, stopping medication too soon, or not even filling the prescription in the first place. Patients must take the responsibility for asking questions of the physician of pharmacist regarding their medication. Prescription medicines simply will not work if taken incorrectly, or worse yet, if they are not taken at all.

Here at COOLEY APOTHECARY, we aim to offer you the finest professional service available. We're in the business of helping you stay healthy. We are always readily available to answer any of your concerns and look forward to being of service to you in the near future. Complete patient profiles are maintained so we can further safeguard your health by checking for side effects, drug interactions and for possible allergic reactions. These records will also be of great help to you for insurance purposes and at income tax time. We are located at #2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106. Open: Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-3. HINT:

"Tatiana and all the others involved in the production of Good Night, Little Ones could not have been kinder to us,' says Rogers. "Our hope is that both visits can help build a little bridge on behalf of children. Children all over the world need to know that they can be loved just as they are.'

GARFIELD SLONE Candidate For REPRESENTATIVE DISTRICT 92

Announcing

Hello, everyone! My name is Garfield Slone and I'm taking this means of announcing my candidacy for State Representative of the 92nd District. (This includes all of Knott County and portions of Floyd and Letcher Counties.)

I was born on Feb. 8, 1949 to Elbert and Merkie Slone of Pippa Passes. My grandparents were the late Vince and Susie Slone, of Isom, and the late Green and Rhoda Slone, of Hollybush. I have two sisters, Lola Jean Hall, of Pinetop, and Anna B. Chaffins, of Leburn.

I am married to Sharon, the daughter of Verner and Layne Bates, of Garner. She is the granddaughter of Roscoe Bates and Della Hall Bates, of Kite, and the late Troy Watts and Isie Amburgey Watts, of Garner. We have four children, Michelle, 16, Shasta, 8, Brett, 6, and Seth, 3.

I granduated from Knott County High School in 1968, from Alice Lloyd College in 1970, and attended Morehead State University in 1971 and 1972. I have sought office only once before and was fortunate to win and serve as Magistrate of District 4 from 1974 to 1978. My parents owned and operated Elbert Slone's grocery for many years. After Dad retired, Mom and I took over the family business. I am also a partner in the Knott Funeral Home.

Since I was very young, I've always loved people of all ages and from all walks of life. As I grew older, I dreamed of ways to improve the living conditions and financial conditions of the people in our area. (and when we're paying our monthly bills-utilities, insurance, etc., we know there is plenty to be improved on-Right?) I finally came to this conclusion: what better way to help than to be elected to a position where I am able to make sure that our part of the state isn't forgotten. You can be assured if you go out and vote for me on May 24, 1988, you will be casting a vote for a brighter "Pathway to the Future" for all our people and not just a few.

Cozy Fireplaces Are Appealing But Beware of the Hidden Cost of heat, you probably should stop doing it during the cold, sub-freezing temperatures much of Kentucky experiences at this time of year.

It's costly, and it's inefficient.

According to Bill Murphy, housing and energy engineer with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, most people are better off to not use their fireplaces once temperatures drop below 40 degrees.

Fireplaces with forced heat exchangers can be used when it is somewhat colder, and systems with a separate outdoor air intake can be used effectively in colder weather, he said.

"When you open the damper in traditional fireplaces, it's just like opening a door to the outside," Murphy said. "The cold air from outside will spill into the room. Yet the damper needs to be opened for combustion.

Murphy said a fireplace at best is not very efficient. An ordinary open fireplace has an efficiency of about 10 percent. That means only 10 percent of the fuel energy in the wood actually makes it into the living space of the

"By adding some sort of blower to the fireplace, the efficiency rate can be raised to 20 percent or so," Murphy said. "That means the net efficiency of either of these fireplaces may actually be negative on a cold day.

He explained that if 5,000 Btu's are required normally to warm 40 degree outdoor air which seeps in around the doors and windows to a desired 70 degrees, twice the energy (10,000 Btu's) will be needed if the outdoor temperature drops to 10 degrees. That's because the frigid outdoor temperature will need to be warmed twice as much, 60 total

If you're using a fireplace as a source degrees rather than the 30 needed when the outside temperature is 40.

Now suppose we decide to open the damper on the fireplace and start a fire," he said. "Even more cold air will spill into the room. It could double the air infiltration rate.

The room surrounding the fireplace may be comfortably warm by direct heat radiation from the fireplace while the rest of the house becomes chilled. There is nothing like a cracking fire to give a person a sense of warm coziness on a cold winter night," Murphy said. "Economically though, you probably should not use an open fireplace anytime it gets below 40 outside.

Guidance Counselors Tour Ky. Industries

Guidance counselors from eastern Kentucky recently spent two and onehalf days touring businesses and industries in Kentucky. Mr. Bruce Stephens, chairman of the Education Task Force of the Kentucky Appalachian Foundation stated that, "The purpose of the tour is to acquaint the counselors with career opportunities for their students." "Specifically, the group will be looking for ways to counsel potential dropouts to encourage them to stay in school," he further stated. Mr. Stephens hosted the tour group.

The tour was sponsored by the Kentucky Appalachian Foundation, Appalachian Regional Commission and the State Department of Education.

Drama Competition Open To Ky. Fourth Graders

Young Abe Lincoln, Indiana's professional outdoor drama, is sponsoring a drama competition for fourth grade students in Kentucky and Indiana in an effort to enhance their Social Studies curriculum and intensify their learning experience of the life of Abraham Lincoln.

Fourth grade classes in both states will have the opportunity to develop, write and produce a short scene or sequence of scenes concerning the life of Lincoln, and then act out the story using dialogue, movement, music or a combination of all three.

Classes will be required to register in order to participate in the Young Abe Lincoln Youth Theatre Festival. The performances will be video taped and submitted for judging by a selection of teachers, threatre professionals and at least one nationally prominent personality. Ten finalists, five from each state, will be selected to travel to Lincoln State Park to present their productions on stage at the Amphitheatre there. Two winners, one from each state, will then be selected to receive special coaching and direction by professional actors and directors and will perform their presentations before an audience prior to the Saturday evening performance of Young Abe Lincoln June 25. Entries will be judged on content, originality and dramatic impact.

All class members and teachers of the finalists' classes and a limited number of parents will receive free and special seating for the June 25 performance.

Young Abe Lincoln is Indiana's only outdoor historical drama which will open its second season June 17 at Lincoln State Park, Lincoln City, Indiana. The musical play depicts the 14-year span Abraham Lincoln lived in Southern Indiana.

Legislation Will Give Local 'Gov't Control Over Wastes

Legislation to give local citizens a say in the siting of a hazardous waste incinerators in their communities has been approved by the General Assembly and sent to Governor Wilkinson.

The House approved Senate Bill 169 by a 95-1 vote February 18. Just two weeks earlier, SB 169 was approved by the Senate, 36-0. Governor Wilkinson has 10 days to sign the bill into law, let it become law without his signature or veto the measure.

"We're very happy that legislators have given such strong support to this important measure," said Patty Wallace, vice-chairperson of Kentuckians For The Commonwealth (KFTC) and a resident of Lawrence county where PyroChem Inc. of Louisville wants to build a hazardous waste incinerator.

SB 169 requires local government approval before a permit can be issued for a hazardous waste incinerator. The legislation, developed by KFTC, applies to pending incinerator permit applications as well as future ones. If SB 169 becomes law, it would allow fiscal courts in Lawrence and Jefferson counties, where hazardous waste incinerators are proposed, to decide if they want such a facility in their communities. The Legislation to give local citizens a say Lawrence Fiscal Court has already voiced its opposition to the PyroChem plant. Related legislation would bring a proposed nerve gas incinerator in Madison county under the provisions of SB 169. House Bill 638 would classify nerve gas, such as that stored at the U.S. Army Depot near Richmond, as a hazardous substance. This measure was approved by the House Natural Resources and Environment Committee February 18.

Several other bills designed to give more local control of solid waste also were passed by the House on February 18. House Bills 429, 430 and 432 are designed to upgrade the standards for landfilling solid waste and allow local governments more participation in the regulation of landfills.

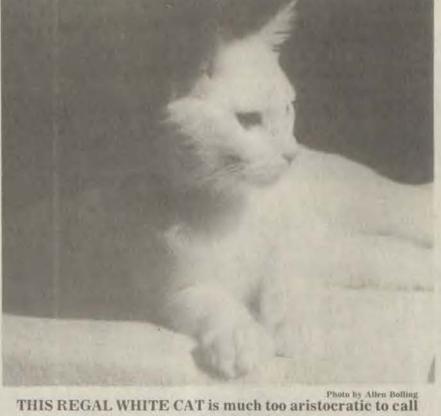

HB 429 would require public notice in the local newspaper and to the county fiscal court when the state receives an application to construct or operate a landfill, or to modify an existing landfill. The bill also would allow the state to require documentation of where the waste is coming from.

HB 430 would allow local governments to adopt a license fee of up to 50 cents a ton for waste disposed in any landfill in the county, with additional fees possible on waste originating outside the solid waste planning district (the state is divided into several solid waste districts). Revenues from the fees can be used to defray government costs related to local solid waste programs or for the general revenue requirements of a county. HB 430 would also allow counties to hire local solid waste inspectors, and would require that the state respond within 72 hours to a complaint from the inspector.

HB 432 would ban the disposal of "limited-quantity" hazardous waste (defined as less than 100 kilograms per month) from disposal into anything but a contained landfill, which is one that is properly lined, has a leach collection system and monitors groundwater quality. Any new landfill in the state would have to be a contained landfill, under the provisions of HB 432, and any existing landfill receiving out-of-state wastes would be required to demonstrate that it meets the containment standards or accepts no limited-quantity hazardous waste.

These bills are neutral concerning the acceptance out-of-state wastes, but do provide more control of those in-state and out-of-state wastes which are disposed of in landfills. HBs 429, 430 and 432 have been sent to the Senate, where they are expected to be assigned to the Agriculture and Natural Resources Committee.

Two other bills before the General Assembly also deal with hazardous wastes. House Bill 547 extends a levy on hazardous waste generators and transporters until 1990. Revenues from this tax go to a state fund to clean up existing hazardous waste sites. HB 547 passed the House on February 18 and has been sent to the Senate

Writers', Artists' Contest at MSU

Inscape, Morehead State University's student literary/art magazine, is sponsoring a contest for student writers and artists.

First place awards of $50 each and second place awards of $25 each will be given to winners in each division— Poetry, Short Story and Art Work. The awards are funded in part by the University Honors Program, the Department of English, Foreign Languages and Philosophy and the Department of Art. Winning entries along with those gaining honorable mention status will be published in the Fall 1988 issue, according to Michelle Boisseau, associate professor of English and magazine sponsor. All competitions will be judged by professionals and winners will be recognized at a Fine Arts Showcase in April.

The competition is open to all MSU students, whether full or part-time. "We also encourage entries from our students taking classes off-campus at our regional centers," Boisseau said.

Literary entries must be received by noon, March 4. They may be mailed to Boisseau, UPO 779, Morehead State University, Morehead, Ky. 40351 or hand-delivered to Combs 103.

Art works submissions should be delivered to MSU's Claypool-Young Art Building, Room 211, no later than noon March 4.

Biggest Assets Point Toward Lady Bobcats

Meridith Slone is talking maybe, saying hopefully his team will put on a good show. Karen Henry is talking probably, saying she expects her team to win.

But the two coaches are simply putting their teams in perspective, summing up past results and future expectations in their pre-tournament attitudes.

Hope, though, is about all Slone, McDowell girls' basketball coach, has, The 1987-88 season hasn't been one of great success, and probably their biggest challenge is yet to come.

Tomorrow night, the Lady Daredevils take on Betsy Layne in an opening round game of the 58th district tournament. In three previous meetings, the Lady Bobcats have defeated McDowell handily each time.

"They've beat us by several during the season so we'll have to have our best game," McDowell coach Meridith Slone said of playing Betsy Layne. "Hopefully one can put on a show and come up with a win.

The Lady Bobcats, in the three previous meetings, recorded wins by 52, 31, and 42 points. In each of those games, Betsy Layne was led offensively by Tammy Hall.

Hall, a senior forward, scored a combined 58 points against McDowell. The Betsy Layne senior averages 20 points and eight rebounds per game.

Sandy Flannery, a 5'10" center, also averages 20 points, and is close to double figures in rebounding. The inside duo of Flannery and Hall proved to be the biggest trouble spot for McDowell.

Flannery scored a total of 48 points in the three games. But against the Lady Daredevils, Betsy Layne was anything but two-dimensional

In the Pre-season Tournament, Betsy Layne beat McDowell 76-24. In that game, Hall scored 21, Yolanda Keathley had 16, and Flannery scored 15.

The first regular season game saw the Lady Bobcats earn a 69-38 win. After leading by 12 at halftime, they got 20 points from their bench with second half to blow the game open Danita Johnson, a reserve guardfoward, came in during the final game, an 83-41 Betsy Layne, to hit four of four shots from the outside.

In three games Betsy Layne had taken the basketball inside at will. They had shown a strong bench, and had enjoyed solid outside shooting. McDowell hadn't shown much at all. Their first two games were without Gwen Stegall and Lori Bryant, two projected starters before they suffered injuries Stegall and Bryant both played in the final game. They scored 10 points each, but the Lady Daredevils still lost by 42 points at Betsy Layne. Billie Hackworth proved to be McDowell's top offensive performer against the Lady Bobcats. She scored 22 points in two games.

22-4, and have been ranked as high as second in the 15th region.

They are undefeated against Floyd county competition, won the Pre-season Tournament, and Floyd County Conference, and have humbled McDowell three times

What does a coach do to prepare his players for a challenge as difficult as

"I'm telling them that we're just going out and do our best, play as hard as we can, accept whatever happens, and go from there," Slone said. "There's plenty of attitudes that we can take, but we're looking at it in a positive way.'

Right now though all the positives seem to be favoring Betsy Layne. But could the Lady Bobcats be too positive.

"I don't think they're going to overlook anybody in the tournament," Lady Bobcat coach Karen Henry said, doubting that her players would take McDowell lightly

"They're all seniors, and they want to have a good last year. We're playing for trophies and for personal reasons, too. I don't think they'll overlook anybody,' Henry added.

And will the pressure offset Betsy Layne early. After all, they are expected to win the tournament, especially since it's being played in the D.W. Howard Fieldhouse.

"I kind of put pressure on them myself," Henry said. "I tell them that they are good enough to win and that I expect them to win.

What concerns me the most is their health and their emotions. Emotion plays a big part in it. The last game we played we had a big crowd and we just fell apart. The tournament will have big crowds, so we'll have to handle that."

'If their minds are in the game then they'll be all right. The talent is there, but they need to have their minds on the game.

The Lady Bobcats have proved more talented than their district foes, finishing at 10-0 against district competition. Their experience-five seniors make up the starting lineup-is expected to be an added plus in the tournament.

The winner of Thursday's 6:30 contest will earn an appearance in Saturday's championship game, and an automatic trip to the regional tournament.

"Prestonsburg likes to get it up and down the court. Even if we slow it down on offense, we'll have to get back on defense. All that running will take it's toll, and foul trouble is a big problem for us. We can't afford to get into foul trouble.

In Tourney Opener... Allen Central Battles Lady Trojans Tonight

If history does in fact repeat itself, Judy Eversole hopes she gets a favorable return of the past tonight. The Wheelwright girls' basketball coach would especially like to re-kindle an old flame that warmed her heart about a year ago.

By

Eversole, in her first year at Wheelwright, was lonely-for wins that is. Her Trojans were young, inexperienced, and unfamiliar with the ways of winning.

They weren't expected to be a factor in the district tournament. But they factored pretty well, and put together a solid basketball performance in sending Allen Central home.

The game was on Wednesday night, the opening night of the 58th district tournament. Allen Central had already defeated Wheelwright three times.

Tonight at Betsy Layne's D.W. Howard Fieldhouse, the Lady Trojans will open district play. They take on Allen Central, a team they have lost to three times this season.

"We hope it's a repeat performance," Judy Eversole, a former head coach at Allen Central said. "It's the same situation. They've beat us three times. We've come close, but we've not been able to beat them yet.

After last year's win over the Lady Rebs, Wheelwright lost to eventual district champion Prestonsburg. Wednesday's winner will once again play the Lady Blackcats. That game will be played Friday.

One thing different this season is age. Wheelwright, with only one senior last season, is a year older. But the Lady Trojans are still young.

Their leadership comes from a pair of sophomores. Jedon Hood, a 5'9" foward, has developed into one of the district's top inside players. She averages 16 points per game and close to 10 rebounds

April Bradford, another sophomore, plays all over the floor. Her main strengths lie in the form of a soft jumpshoot and good ball handling. She scores at a 15-point per game clip.

"We're playing pretty good ball at this point," Eversole said, "probably better than we have been. We've matured a lot as a team since the first part of the season.'

But one thing has been missing from depends a lot on how Joann plays, but I think it will be a close game. Conn, a sophomore, suffered a sprained ankle three weeks ago against Sheldon Clark, and is still feeling the effects. In the last two games, she has played a total of 20 minutes, but isn't at full strength.

Allen Central will also be without sophomore forward Michelle Floyd. She has battled ankle problems all year, and will not be available at all again Wheelwright.

But that isn't all Allen Central has to overcome. Jedon Hood, April Bradford, and Wheelwright's offensive rebounding ability are high priorities for Compton and her team to contain.

"Jedon Hood is a real good player inside, one of the best in the district,' Compton said. "And if Bradford gets hot, look out. We have to stop her from getting the ball in to Hood, too."

"We've got to block them out," Compton said, continuing what her team must do to remain alive in the district chame pionship race. "We can't let them get three or four shots every time or they'll kill us. They go to the boards as well as anybody in the county.'

The winner advances to Friday's championship game where they meet Prestonsburg. The loser waits until next year

"We're going in with the attitude that we are as good as they are," Eversole said. "Hopefully we will win, and if we don't we'll let the air out of it and wait 'till next year.

But you are as good as anyone else aren't you?

"The way I feel is that whoever is playing the best ball at the time will come out of our bracket. Any one of the three is capable of reaching the finals," Eversole said.

'Whoever gets on a roll will win the bracket," Compton said. "But Prestonsburg is playing real good ball, though.

They tore Mullins apart last night." The Lady Blackcats, with Karen Frasure pouring in 30 points, defeated Mullins, Thursday night. Frasure, after suffering from a back problem earlier in the season, has started proving why she is considered one of the 15th region top juniors.

Carolyn Short, a deadly outside

The Lady Daredevils have won only one game this season. Betsy Layne is and Hall early in the game. Those two players are the Lady Bobcats' top two offensive players, but Yolanda Keathley also scores in double figures

Another Betsy Layne trait developed this season is their pressure defense. With the quickness of Jennifer Hunt and Tracy Hall out front, the Lady Bobcats have wreaked havoc with opposing ball handlers.

McDowell has four players who provide balanced scoring. Stegall, Bryant, Gloria Mullins, and Billie Hackworth are the main cogs in the Lady Daredevils' offensive wheel. They all average near 10 points per game.

final outcome is thought of, but their Prestonsburg's forwards and centers, well, they resemble basketball players. And quick ones at that.

"It's a lot that way," Gordon Parido said of the strength versus quickness comparison. "We're quicker than they are, but they're a lot stronger than we are.'

And so, which wins? Is strength more overpowering or can quickness avoid a physical encounter? A little of both has happened already.

With us and Allen Central-you call it," Parido said of the unpredictable matchup. "We beat them by six here, and they beat us by four up there. On a neutral court, what is it-a tie?'

'In the game they beat us, we didn't utilize our quickness. The Conn (Joey) kid had a big game on the inside, and Rady Martin had success taking it to the basket.

Joey Conn, a 6'2" sophomore, is Allen Central's leading scorer, averaging 13 points per game. In the 67-63 win at Eastern, Conn scored 20 points. Rady Martin added 17. Since coming back from an injury, Martin has led the Rebels in scoring several times while averaging nearly 13 points per game.

In the first meeting held at Prestonsburg, the Blackcats bolted out to an 8-0 lead, and managed to salvage a win after Allen Central came back to lead by as many as five in the third quarter.

Conn and Martin led Allen Central in that game, scoring 10 and nine points respectively

Freddie McCoy, Prestonsburg's leading scorer for the season, topped the Blackcats in each of their games against Allen Central. In the win, McCoy scored 15. He got 14 in the loss.

But in each game Prestonsburg has held huge leads early. In the defeat at Allen Central, the Blackcats owned a 10-point halftime advantage

'It seems like when we get behind by a lot, we always come back, but when we get a big lead, we always let the other team come back," Rebel coach Johnny Martin said. "We like to play them close. Most of our games have been within five points.

Allen Central, suffering one of their worst seasons ever, seem to have most of their problems against quick teams. Prestonsburg is a quick team, and they enjoy utilizing their bench.

"That's definitely a problem right now," Martin said. "They play a lot more people than we do so we'll prob-

Of the first 12 players Allen Central started with this season, only five are left. The only player other than the starting five with any varsity playing experience is guard Mike Collins.

They do not have a senior on the team, and their bench is made up mostly of freshmen

'We've got pretty balanced scoring, but our depth is a problem right now,' Martin said. "Jamie May, who had been coming in and doing a good job for us, had surgery on his knee, and he's out for the season. That hurt our depth a lot, especially with the grind we face nowhaving to win three games in four days."

Todd Duff, a deadly outside shooter, is also a double-figure scorer for Allen Central, and Bear Halbert, since becoming a starter, has averaged in double figures.

Kevin Webb, whose strong suit is offensive rebounding, has also had several games where he surpassed the 10-point per game plateau.

Prestonsburg is a bit different. They look to senior guard Freddie McCoy for a majority of their points. He averages 20 points a game, and has had outbursts that netted 32 against McDowell and 45 against Johnson Central.

But Prestonsburg is by no means a one-man-show. Five other players, Todd Justice, Scott Hall, Tim Trusty, Thomas Nairn, and Chris Slone have all enjoyed big offensive games this season.

'We've got four or five more kids that may not be averaging in double figures, but they have consistently scored in double figures this season.

And a couple games of getting them all together would make for a good climax to a not so good season

'They're capable of doing it," Parido said of his players. "If you can get past that first game you can get the momentum. Even if you struggle and win, everything can pick up because of the win

"The way both teams have been playing a win for either would be a big boost.

The team getting the win will advance to Friday's semi-final round to play Betsy Layne. The Bobcats have split with Prestonsburg and swept Allen Central.

Meeting For Coaches Set

A meeting of all county high school baseball coaches has been set for Monday evening, 7:00, at the Allen Park pool building.

All coaches of schools wishing to use the Allen Park baseball field for spring games must attend. Each coach should also bring their school's schedule.

Wheelwright's arsenal-the ammunition needed to beat Allen Central.

The Lady Rebs have recorded three victories over Wheelwright, including an 11-point decision in their last meeting. Joann Conn, Allen Central's leading scorer, had 22 points in the Lady Reb 44-33 win at Wheelwright.

But this game is expected to be a closer contest, especially since Conn won't be at full strength, probably 60 percent, says Lady Reb coach Bonita Compton.

"It's definitely an even game," Compton said of tonight's matchup. "It shooter, added 17 points in the win. Since her return, Short has added a dimension, the outside game, that had been missing from Prestonsburg's offense

The Lady Blackcats have the best record of the three, but during the season, they split with Allen Central, and won two games over Wheelwright, one in overtime and another on a free throw with one second left.

But before the Lady Rebels or Lady Trojans meet Prestonsburg, they first must survive the other. Tipoff to decide that matter is set for 6:30 at Betsy Layne's D.W. Howard Fieldhouse.

IMPORTANT PERFORMERS: Tammy Hall (54) and Sandy Flannery each average 20 points and eight rebounds per contest. They are two reasons why Betsy Layne is considered as one of the region's best teams, and the favorite to capture the 58th district tournament.

The Sporting Times

I liked the Boston Celtics. My roommate favored Los Angeles. My favorite player was Larry Bird. He was a fan of Magic Johnson

Our basketball tastes were as different as our backgrounds. He was from the city. I had been raised on a farm.

But although we walked different paths, our trails eventually met at Morehead State University. A kid from the city met a country boy, and their two lives collided in a Wilson Hall dorm room

Purple met blue. Hank Williams, Jr., battled Prince. But white and black, it never became an issue.

We shared more than sleeping quarters. We shared life styles. We shared heritages. We shared races. We didn't clash, nor did we make an issue of who could do what because of who or what we were.

Sometimes rap music woke me up in the morning. I hated it at first. I merely disliked it later. He didn't care much about country music. But at times I could have sworn he was starting to get into it

I remember the first time I met Skip. I was in my room alone when a knock sounded on the door. He informed me that the dorm director was consolidating all the one-person rooms, and filling the recommendation demanded by MSU.

Skip was looking for a roommate, because he had to have one. I was pretty much going with the flow

'I've got another guy to talk to before I decide. I'll check with ya later," he told me

A short time later the knock returned. It came from the same person, and he was carrying a more certain message. "It looks like you're the winner."

The question of what had I won ran through my head a couple times. "You're my roommate," he said, not giving me time to say ya or na. 'I smoke, will that be a problem?'

That was the only thing I could think of. 'Maybe," he answered. "But we can work it out It was more than a little different to me. Here I was, never even meeting a black person before, but yet I was going to move in with this stranger, who happened to be black

You remember when Skip said we would work the smoking deal out? We did. I smoked. He hated it.

But we didn't let that stand in our way. We got along. He played his music, and I listened. I played mine, and he got depressed.

'No wonder you all get down. That stuff depresses me," he would say about Waylon and Willie, or whomever.

He wore my sweaters and I wore his polo. We shared mutual friendships. We shared each others lives.

But we had our boundaries. My fraternity wasn't overly excited about pledging blacks. He understood that, and went to all our open parties.

His fraternity didn't have any whites. I respected that, and never thought of it as any inconvenience.

We were roomies for two years. We beat all odds, broke all rules, and crossed the color barrier. A white boy from Stinson Creek and a black kid from Louisville became as close to brothers as bloodless would allow

One fall day we were going up campus. The sun was unusually warm, and he was saying I shouldn't wear black because it attracted heat. I turned and looked at him. With a finger pointing at me, he said with a smile, "don't say it."

A few days earlier he had proudly shown off his summer tan. Oh yea, he informed me that black people could get a tan

Trojans, McDowell Fight For Regional Appearance

In 1977 Wheelwright defeated what it takes to win the game." McDowell 71-70 in the 58th district championship game. The tournament belonged to the two Left Beaver schools that season, but since then the Trojans and Daredevils have survived the district tourney twice-combined.

The following season McDowell won a district championship, and advanced to the regional tournament. But 1978 was the last time the Daredevils made it to the 15th region tourney

Wheelwright, as district tourney runners-up in 1986, found their way to the regional tournament.

Only once in the past 10 years. That's not exactly in keeping with tradition. From 1968 through 1977 Wheelwright or McDowell were in seven regional tournaments.

Through the 1960s the two schools chiseled out a proud basketball tradition for themselves. The 70s brought on a drought that has extended through his decade

But this year Left Beaver will have a regional representative. That was guaranteed when McDowell won the Floyd County Conference title and Wheelwright finished last

The exact representative will be determined Thursday night. The two eams meet in the opening round of the district tournament with the winner advancing to Saturday's finals, an assured trip to Pikeville and the 15th region tournament

And although McDowell has won twice as many games, beat Wheelwright two games, and is regarded as one of the regions best teams, the game is considered to be anyone's for the taking.

"You can't overlook any team in Floyd county," McDowell coach Johnny Ray Turner said of playing Wheelwright. "They have good talent, and if They can put it all together they could give us a lot of trouble.

Trouble isn't something Wheelwright has given the Daredevils yet. It seems as if this heated rivalry brings out the best in McDowell. The Daredevils defeated Wheelwright in both of their regular season meetings, convincingly in the first one

"I think we took them by surprise. We pressed them," Turner said, explaining the first win. In that victory, McDowell scored numerous points off turnovers in earning a big 108-82 win.

The second contest, played at Wheelwright, started out in the same fashion. The Daredevils, with a full court pressing defense, scored points off their defense, and blew out to an 18-point halftime lead.

But what transpired in the second half of that game has Turner considering the possibility of a change. The Trojans apparently solved McDowell's defensive mystery, they lost by only two, and the Daredevils may throw in a different look

"We may have to try a different game plan this time around," Turner mentioned. "We'll just have to wait and see what happens, make adjustments, and do

And Turner expects the game to be different as well

"I do expect it to be a better game than the other two were. I expect Wheelwright to be ready. If they could beat us it would make their whole season.

At least it would be better than what the Trojans have accomplished this season. Wheelwright failed to win any games against county competition, and won only 11 games during the regular season

But this is a team capable of better things. They have size, 6'5", 6'2", and 6'1" up front. They have experience, starting four seniors, and they have two good shooters at the guard spot. So why haven't they been winning?

'It kind of amazes me at times, Monroe Jones, Wheelwright's coach, said after a recent loss. "I don't know if they're waiting for that one chance at McDowell, or what it is. It just seems like they don't want it bad enough.

But there is a more positive side to Jones' perspective of his basketball team. After Wheelwright's final conference loss at Prestonsburg, Jones explained that not all was lost.

'We have to get the message across to our kids that we can get the job done," Jones said, talking of the upcoming tournament. "We have to get it together, play well, and hit our free throws."

Free throws may certainly be an important part in deciding the final outcome. The Trojans lost no less than three conference games due to poor free throw shooting. In the two-point loss to the Daredevils, they missed 19 foul shots. McDowell is one of the district's top free throw shooting teams.

The Trojans, without sophomore guard Bobby Hood who suffered a broken foot recently, will look to forward Craig Martin and guard Tommy Jones to pay the offensive bill.

Martin, a 6'1' junior, has proven to be Wheelwright's most consistent scorer, averaging near 13 points per game. Jones, a senior, also averages above the double figure mark.

Jason Cook, a 6'5" center, has scored above 20 points on several occasions, but he has scored under six others. Brad Compton, a 6'3" sophomore, is Wheelwright's top reserve, and Tony Isaac is their best three-point shooter. Cole is considered as their top defensive player.

McDowell appears strong in every category. They are led by their junior guard duo, considered as the best in the region. Dickie Joe Shannon scores 22 points per game, best in the district, and Henry Webb hits for 16, does most of the ball handling, and hauls down six rebounds per game.

Lenny Hall, a defensive whiz, scores 12 points per game and gets close to eight rebounds a game. Marc Hall, a sophomore averages near 10 points per contest, and scored 22 in a game last week. Senior center Lance Hall blocks shots inside and gives McDowell added rebounding strength.

in the 58th district, averaging 22 points per game. Thursday Shannon leads his McDowell Daredevils into tournament action against Wheelwright.

He also taught me a lesson about minorities. I spent a weekend at his house, and during a family gathering, they got a kick out of my blushing ability.

When I graduated from Morehead, Skip was the last one to say goodbye. He said it with a hug and a tear. I shared the same with him

We had been through so much together. He had taught me so many things-things I wish the rest of the world would learn.

I got a strong urge to remember skip the other night. It was a funny situation, too. Seattle was playing Chicago, and I wondered what it would be like to watch the game with him.

In one exchange of baskets, while players scored each time. I could have said something about that

And he would have said, "yea, but wait till Michael gets started. Elat 'em up Michael!

I would have said something like, "but I like the X-man more than anybody. And he would have said, "and Tom

Chambers ain't bad, not for a white After the game, we both would have been happy, going to sleep in a united world, knowing that we were different, and accepting it, but agreeing that we were equal

But all of a sudden, I'm jerked back to reality. I see a story in a major newspaper about blacks and whites in Lexington. All it does is promote racism. Jesse Jackson speaks publicly, and does nothing but promote more prejudice. The KKK does more of the same, and to a greater extreme. So does the likes of Jimmy 'The Greek.

The problem doesn't lie within two roommates at Morehead State University, or in John Doe White and John Doe Black

The problem does exist, but is accellerated by the press, and those campaigners within the public eye. Opinion polls are not the answer. Maybe nothing

There are differences between the races. Different likes, different dislikes, different wants, and different needs.

Trouble will last as long as the two races do. But maybe you can take a lesson from roommates. He didn't try and make himself seem superior, and he had enough self-confidence to know he wasn't inferior.

SHORT SPORTS

The Allen Central Rebels and Prestonsburg Lady Blackcats will be out to defend their titles this week in the 58th district tournament which tips off tonight at Betsy Layne's D.W. Howard Fieldhouse

The Lady Blackcats, with a win over Betsy Layne, claimed their first district title since 1977. They do not play until Friday when they face the winner of tonight's Wheelwright-Allen Central game. Prestonsburg finished with a 4-4 conference record and the second best overall record in the district.

The Rebels, after finishing third in the conference race last year, beat Wheelwright, Prestonsburg and Betsy Layne in the finals to win the championship. This season Allen Central finished with a 10-16 record, but has won three of their last four games.

The tournament opens tonight with the Allen Central Lady Rebs taking on Wheelwright at 6:30. Allen Central will also play in the nightcap, going up against Prestonsburg. The second game is scheduled for 8:30 with the winner advancing to Friday's semi-final round where they play Betsy Layne.

Thursday brings an end to the tournament's opening round. Betsy Lavne plays McDowell in the girls' contest at 6:30, followed by McDowell and Wheelwright in the boy's game. The winners advance to Saturday's championship games.

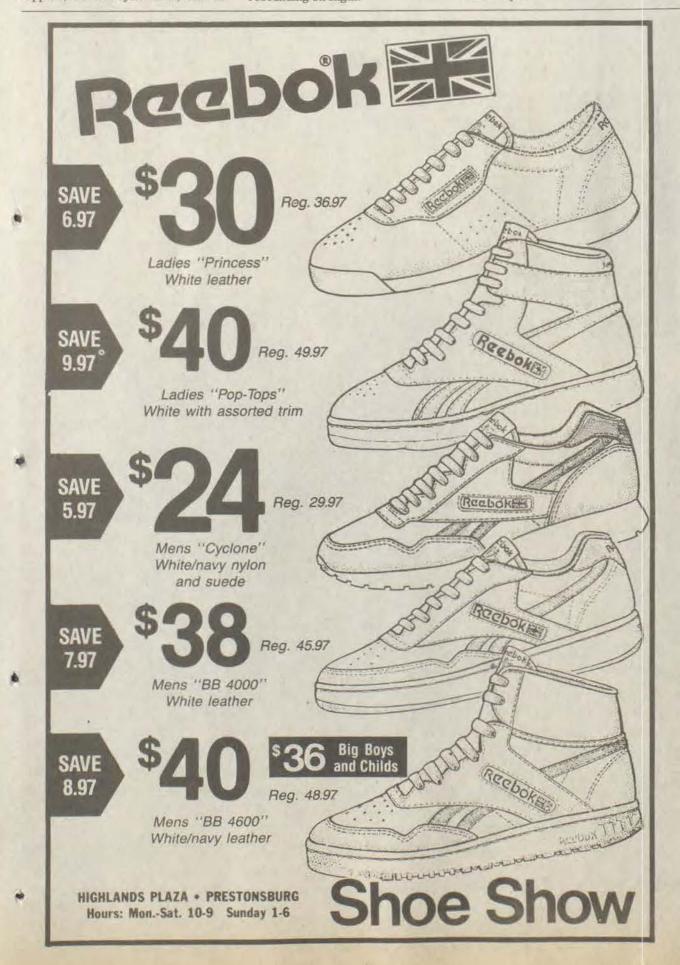

The Chicago Cubs have seen the light. At least they will this season when they play night baseball for the first time ever at the National League baseball club's home park.

Rebels Prepare With Win Over Hazard

It's the time of year when most coaches would trade a win for just some solid play. Hope overcomes reality, and the future could bring relief for past failures

It's the end of regular season basketball play, and a time for all teams to prepare for that journey toward tournmanent torture. The second season, most people call it, is about to begin.

Winning those last couple of games don't count for much, but you might not be able to convince Johnny Martin of that. Of course, the regular season doesn't count for much to him. It's the tournaments that mean the most.

But last Friday night Johnny Martin's Allen Central Rebels may have earned their most important victory of this season. And maybe ever.

It didn't matter that it assured Allen Central of bettering their worst season ever under their present coach. The fact that they have won three of their last four games didn't count for a whole lot.

The most important thing for the coach was a win, an impressive one in front of the home folks. The most telling factor for the players was that it came against Hazard.

Hazard! This is the best team in the 14th region, or so most people say. They had lost only one game the whole season But did a 62-58 win suprise Johnny Martin?

'Really I think we should have beaten them twice," Martin said. "We lost to them by two up there, but we led that game by four points with 30 seconds left.

Allen Central, 10-15 on the season, has played Hazard as tough as anybody in this as well as over the past three seasons. It may be a spell they've cast over the Bulldogs, but Martin thinks in more conventional terms.

"Some teams you just play better against," he said. "We match up real well against them and they have trouble with us. I think that has a lot to do with it.

A balanced scoring attack and a late Rebel rally had a lot to do with it Friday night

Rady Martin scored 19 points to pace Allen Central, but the junior forward had plenty of help. Bear Halbert, playing in his first year of organized basketball, scored 13 points, and sophomore Joey Conn added 12.

The Rebels trailed by three points going into the fourth quarter, but outscored Hazard 18-11 in that final frame to pull out a four-point win.

"That's a good way to end up," Martin said of finishing the regular season with a win over the Bulldogs. "We played a pretty good game.

And Martin, like all coaches, is looking to build some momentum for the district tournament.

"It's a good way to get ready for the tournament. We've played them the last game of the season the past three years and I think it has helped us a lot.'

Hazard, 21-2, outscored the Rebels 19-10 in the second quarter and took a five-point halftime lead. After inching closer in the third, Allen Central hit eight of 13 free throw attempts in the final frame to pull out the victory.

The Bulldogs were led offensively by David Alexander's 20 points. Senior forward Greg Napier added 19. No other Hazard player reached double figures.

Allen Central closed out their season at 10-15, after going to the regional finals one year ago. They have no seniors on the team, and have used several different lineups this season due to players leaving the squad.

'We've had some difficulties all season long," Martin said. "We've had to shuffle our lineups and it's hard to get a roll going when you're doing that.'

Three people who started at one point or the other, quit at one point or another during the season. But where they left off, others have picked up and as a result Allen Central comes into the district tournament fresh off their best fourgame stretch of the season.

The Cubs will play eight night games of Wrigley, and 18 each season afterwards. The lights are said to cost five million dollars to install. With the lighting system the Cubs will be permitted to host the 1990 all-star game.

After jumping outside the SEC to hand Syracuse a four point loss, the University of Kentucky will resume it's conference schedule tonight in Rupp Arena. Kentucky, who trailed by nine points with eight minutes left, got 14 points in the final seven minutes from Winston Bennett and Eric Manuel to uproot number 10 Syracuse, 68-64 in Lexington, Sunday

Manuel, a freshman who was filling the offguard spot left void when Rex Chapman suffered an injury Wednesday, hit a jumpshot with 54 seconds left in the game to give UK a one point lead.

With 15 seconds left Sherman Douglas missed a shot, Manuel got the rebound, and drove the length of the court for a slam dunk. The Orangemen had one opportunity left, but Rob Lock suffered that out by stealing the inbounds pass.

Kentucky, 20-5, plays Georgia tonight in Lexington before closing out the regular SEC schedule at Ole Miss. The Cats currently hold a one-game lead over second placed Vanderbilt, and could clinch the conference title by winning their final two games. They are heavy favorites in both.

Chapman, Kentucky's leading scorer, is expected to play tonight if needed. The 6'4" sophomore guard injured his back Wednesday in the Wildcats' win over LSU

THIS DEER (STILL ALIVE IN THE PHOTOGRAPH) was recently killed by dogs on Dewey Lake. The hindquarters have been destroyed-typical action by domestic dogs who hunt not for food, but for sport.

A Threat To Wildlife In Floyd County

By Wildlife Biologist Richard Pais

Why don't we have more wildlife in Floyd county? We have plenty of habitat for grouse, turkey, deer and black bear, yet in most places these species are rare or absent. Is poaching the only reason, or is there something more?

Recent research in Eastern Kentucky has found that free ranging dogs are, by far, the greatest threat to wildlife in the mountains. These dogs are not "wild dogs" as many might suppose, but rather, are our own well-fed house pets which are allowed to roam free.

Many will argue with this saying "We could have more, if we could just get some stocked." But does stocking work? Raccoon hunters have stocked thousands of raccoons in Eastern Kentucky over the last 20 years, yet there are no more raccoons then before. Why? Because we have failed to address the reason why we have no raccoons in the first place-illegal raccoon hunting.

Similarly, we could look at deer stocking. Five hundred deer were recently stocked in Knott county. Radiotelemetry studies have indicated that over 20% of these deer were killed by free roaming house pets. Sixty percent of the females which died during the first year after their release were killed by dogs. It was only with an exerted effort by almost every individual in Knott county to (1) control their own pets, (2) eliminate unwanted pets and (3) push for a strong, well-equipped animal shelter that the Knott county deer stocking worked. Last year the Knott county deer harvest was almost triple that of Floyd county

"Who cares?" you might ask. Sportsmen care, as well as motel owners, gas station operators, sporting good stores, etc., because each deer harvested means almost $1,000 to the local economy. Soon, Floyd county sportsmen and their children may only have to go to Knott county with their money, but when will others come to Little Paint Creek, Abbott Creek, McDowell, Weeksbury or Mud Creek, for example?

The problem doesn't end with deer. Other research has shown that dogs are the number one nest predator on wild turkey (which were recently stocked on the Dewey Lake Wildlife Management Area and at other Floyd county locations) and the number one predator on ruffed grouse.

Some people believe our dogs have a right to roam free; others are afraid to ask their neighbors to chain their dogs up; others dump unwanted pets along the roadside. These people may never experience seeing a doe and fawn on the edge of their yard as the sun breaks over the horizon and the dew settles with the morning mist. They may never hear the thunderous roar of a wild turkey gobble as he wakes the woods behind the house on a cold spring morning, or feel the mystical sound of a ruffed grouse as he drums deep within us.

Don't let these people deny us these experiences as well. Take an active role in conserving Floyd county's wildlife: Chain or fence in your pets, never dump unwanted pets, support your animal shelter and join a local sportsmen's club.

Midwestern farm magazine now prints its pages with ink made from soybean oil

Biotechnology can make these alternative uses of corn and soybeans more viable, according to John C. Sorenson, Ph.D., Research Head of Experimental Plant Genetics at Asgrow Seed Company

"We can use biotechnology to improve the raw materials chemists use to make various products." he says.

quire chemical modification, which is often expensive. Through biotechnology, corn genetics can be altered so that appropriate starches and accompanying enzymes are incorporated within a kernel to be used for a particular plastic. Sorenson says that plastic manufacturers will probably enlist the help of plant breeders to develop hybrids specially suited for specific processes. Then those manufacturers will contract growers to produce the special corns. Soybean oil has five major fatty acids that vary in volume, depending on bean variety. Manufacturers may want only one of these five fatty acids, so they must run the soybean oil through extensive and expensive processing to remove the undesired fatty acids. Through biotechnology, Sorenson says, the genetic makeup of soybeans could conceivably be altered so that the plants produce beans that contain up to 95 percent of the desired fatty acid. Oil from such beans would be considerably more economical to process.

Such developments won't happen soon, but they are currently under investigation. Sorenson says that conventional plant breeding techniques have already yielded a sunflower that produces up to 85 percent of one fatty acid. Altered starch and oil composition will likely occur as demand for specialty crops increases. As researchers succeed in developing alternative uses for corn and soybeans, biotechnology will be called upon to make their novel products economically viable.

IN MEMORY OF DON EDWARD PRATER PASSED AWAY MARCH 2, 1987

Your gentle face and patient smile I, with sadness recall my dear brother How very much I miss you calling my name

It's so very hard to lose you my dear brother to see you pass away.

Your sweetness and kindness gone, while others are left to stay But, if I had a garden with roses fair and bright I'd often pick the prettiest one and think it to be right

And so it is with Jesus, in His heavenly garden here,

He often picks the fairest flower, the ones we love so dear,

The flowers that are picked by Him will never fade away.

We know they live forever, and we will see them some sweet day.

Sadly missed by his sister. CAREN PRATER SHEPHERD

IN MEMORIAM In memory of

Our Loving Mother, Polly Hamilton Born-Nov. 12, 1887 Passed Away-Feb. 14, 1987

It's been a year now mom, since you were called away, but the memories of you get stronger with each passing day. Our hearts are very weary and saddened with pain, but we know our loss is Heaven's gain. Mom, you are thought about often by family and friends in many ways because you were with us 99 years, 3 months, and 2 days.

They say with time the hurt goes away, but to all of us it seems like only yesterday

It's hard to forget you, mom, because we miss you more and more. But we all hope to be together again on Heaven's bright shore.

Kentucky Veterinary Medical Association Though Kentucky has only 13 swine herds known to be infected with pseudorabies, the presence of the disease in the state is a serious matter

Nationally, pseudorabies costs the swine industry about $22 million annually, and the swine population in this state is extremely vulnerable

Now comes the announcement that a new, bio-engineered vaccine for pseudorabies was approved by the United States Department of Agriculture Dec. 8, 1987. The vaccine should be available in Kentucky in the not-toodistant future, and while it will not be generally available it may be used to help clean up those infected herds.

Pseudorabies, also known as Aujeszky's disease, is a viral infection that infects the central nervous system. Caused by Herpesvirus suis, pseudorabies (so named because the symptoms mimic some symptoms of rabies) may appear in sheep, dogs and cats but is usually restricted to swine, which are the reservoir for the virus

Abortions, high rates of stillbirth and weak newborn pigs are the primary economic loss. Generally the severity of the loss is age related, with fatalities much higher in newborn pigs than in weanlings.

There is no effective treatment for the disease, the only control has been to limit spread of pseudorabies by effective herd management.

Infected herds are guarantined, and owners are allowed to sell hogs from those herds only to slaughter.

Kentucky regulations allow vaccination for pseudorabies only within infected herds and only with permission of the State Veterinarian. Some infected herds have been quarantined for several years.

Use of the new vaccine, when it becomes available, may allow infected herds to be tested until they are free of the disease

Your veterinarian can best explain the mechanics of the new vaccine to you, but generally speaking two gene deletions were made to create the vaccine-one gene that causes the disease and one that makes possible a test to differentiate between vaccinated and infected pigs. The genomes of the field virus were altered to render it incapable of reverting to virulence.

Your veterinarian has been brought up to date concerning the new vaccine and knows when it will likely be available, as well as what restrictions apply to its use. He is your best source for further or more detailed information.

BOOKS AND THINGS

Prestonsburg Community College The press in Kentucky has a history of 200 years-the following are some books from the P.C.C. library which depict that rich heritage.

The Pioneer Press of Kentucky By: William Perrin

The first newspaper west of the Allegheny Mountains was established in Lexington, two centuries ago. Its origin was political-Kentucky was debating for its independence from Virginia and the convention resolved that a printing press be established to allow public access to its proceedings. On Aug. 11, 1787 the first edition of the "Kentucke Gazette" was published by John Bradford

And so began the history of the pioneer press in Kentucky. The chronical of these early years are filled with names as the "Mirror," the "Palladium," the "Farmers Library," the "Guardian of Freedom," the "Dove," the "Globe,' the "Luminary" among many moreand the men who published them-Samual Vail, Shadrach Penn, George Prentice, Thomas Benning, James Stewart, Col. William Hunter and many more. This Filson Club publication, penned in 1888, is not only a history of the press and the men who published it, it is a history of the struggles and glories of the times. Life was lived with care and a constant struggle. Newspaper publishing was confronted with little or no consistant transportation facilities and the uneven temper of the frontier folk. Papers had to be delivered by horseback, type and machinery often arrived battered or broken after months of delays and an editor's stinging pen could easily get him shot.

Mr. Perrin's history is unique because of his late 19th Century vantage point. His step away from Kentucky's pioneer history isn't as long as ours so lends a familarity to the times.

The Newspaper Press in Kentucky By: Herndon Evans

This chatty little book relates the usual tale of press and editor but, it also generously quotes from their pages-as when Bradford stated one of the objectives of the "Kentucky Gazette" was to .teach us when we are to prepare for foreign wars; when we are to admire the successful Hero, the generous Patroit, and the wise Statesman; or to treat with abhorrence the betrayor of of his country"-so that the reader can listen to the tone of the times. It expands on other histories by telling obscure and related stories-as the saga of the "True American," a press launched in 1845 by Cassius Marcellus Clay to give voice to his antislavery views; the attitude of the newsmen of Kentucky which compelled them to join together in 1869 in the Kentucky Press Association; and a chronical of the Henry Watterson period of Kentucky journalism when editors and writers alike competed to see who could compose with the most extravagent and flowery language.

Written by a newspaperman whose career spanned 50 years, this book of the Kentucky Bicentennial Bookshelf series depicts the early years of the Kentucky press from the pen of a person who obviously greatly admired the ancestors of his chosen profession.

Understanding Your Teens... "First Love Can Be Traumatic Time for Teens" *

Like many parents, Miranda's mother and father had regarded her infatuation with a boy at school as a harmless crush. After all, he'd never even asked her for a date.

So they were stunned one evening when they came home from dinner to find their hysterical 15 year old sitting in the living room with a rifle on her lap. The boy had been suddenly cool and distant to her that day in school, Miranda sobbed, and she couldn't go on without him. In subsequent sessions with a family counselor, Miranda's parents realized there had been warning signs that their daughter's crush was really an obsession that had gotten out of control.

They realized that when Miranda recounted every detail about how he smiled at her or fantasized about how he'd take her to the prom, they should have intervened to help Miranda put her relationship with the boy into perspective. They, like many parents, had forgotten that while first love can be one of the most wonderful periods of adolescence, it also is among the most painful.

It's a fact that's hard for parents to accept when it seemed like yesterday that a youngster cavalierly selected a socalled boyfriend or girlfriend based on who he or she played with that day at school.

As they mature, adolescents become far more discriminating in choosing a love interest. Their feelings are far less fleeting; their emotional attachments far deeper.

Often a first love is someone who basically is unattainable-a rock star, a teacher, the boy or girl three grades ahead, the star quarterback or cheerleader admired by every other kid in school.

While their feelings often are equally intense, boys and girls differ in how and when they express their emotions. A girl generally has her first love earlier. usually at around 13 or 14, compared to a boy who typically is about 16. She is usually far more effervescent about expressing her feelings. She'll confide in friends about a crush even when a boy hasn't shown the slightest interest in her. She'll be less inhibited about showing her feelings by writing a fan letter to a favorite television personality or hanging up a photo of a rock star with whom she's infatuated. A girl will also cry on a friend's shoulder when a relationship doesn't work out.

The adolescent boy, on the other hand, is desperately trying to assert his manhood and is more guarded in showing vulnerability by saying he cares for someone. Even if he does admit he's disappointed that a girl he's asked out has turned him down, his friends will casually dismiss him with, "Don't worry. There are plenty more where she came from.

While parents can't shield a teenager from the emotional pain that is an inevitable part of forming relationships, discourage it without making that person more appealing as forbidden fruit. But you can regulate the amount of contact they have by continuing to enforce rules you already have that, for instance, may forbid dates on school nights or limit the amount of time he or she can spend on the phone with friends.

When your teenager dates someone you don't like, you also risk drawing them closer together if you express your displeasure. First, think about why you don't, like your child's boyfriend and girlfriend. Are they legitimate concerns, or do you simply not care for the way that person dresses or wears his or her hair? If, on the other hand, you're concerned that the person uses drugs or could hurt your child in some way, you must protect your child by discouraging contact.

While you're probably reviewed the physical aspect of sex, this is the time to talk about the emotional componet as a way of helping your teenager to develop good judgment in current and future relationships.

Remind your teenager frequently that you love him or her and that you're there to listen whenever he or she needs you?

Fact Sheets Available On Nursing Home Care

Nurse aide training and the nursing shortage highlight a packet of six new nursing home fact sheets developed by the Kentucky Association of Health Care Facilities (KAHCF)

KAHCF is the trade association that represents 235 licensed proprietary and nonproprietary nursing homes in the Commonwealth.

"Nursing homes are one of the fastest growing industries in Kentucky," said KAHCF President Mary Ousley. "It's very important that lawmakers, government officials and consumers understand key issues which influence patient care services.

The IRS said that homeowners who have taken out home equity loans or second mortgages or who have recently refinanced their mortgages should begin now gathering certain records together. Though many of these taxpayers will not have to complete Form 8598, they need to know if the cost of their home plus cost of improvements exceeds the total of the balances of all debts on their home in 1987. Monthly statements from lending institutions will be helpful in determining these balances.

To assist homeowners in understanding the new rules, the IRS has developed Publication 932, New Rules for Home Mortgage Interest Deduction, which will be available by mid-December at most IRS offices or by calling 1-800-424-3676. In addition, the publication will be available in many financial institutions by January 1988, or it may be obtained by writing the IRS Forms Distribution Center, P.O. Johnson & Wales College at Charleston, S.C., has recently announced that a total of 145 students have been named to the Dean's List for academic achievement during the Winter Trimester. Among them is John T. Howard, son of Mr. and Mrs. O.R. (Pete) Howard, of Prestonsburg.

Students must earn a cummulative grade point average of 3.49 or above to receive a Dean's List Commodation.

Johnson & Wales College, founded in 1914, is a private, non-profit, coeducational institution. Based in Providence, R.I., the college offers undergraduate and graduate degrees in teacher education, business, food service, and hospitality at its providence campus. Ranked as America's largest and leading food service educator, Johnson & Wales College opened its Charleston Campus in September, 1984.

The following students in your area have made the Dean's List: John T. Howard, son of O.R. "Pete" and Hattie Howard, of 203 Maples Avenue, Prestonsburg, Ky.

The Southern Country Editor By: Thomas Clark

When the confederate troops struggled home from Appomattox only 182 tattered weekly newspapers had survived to meet them. This is the story of the Southern country press and the country editor who, after 1865, chronicled the rise of the new South. This press was born in an age of social political reconstruction and it assumed as one of its many responsibilities the guardianship of the Southern Tradition. There was history to be remembered and recorded, there were weighty issues to be aired and there was country humor to be shared. The pages of those presses show that the people enjoyed snake stories, adventures that bragged on their region and comic paragraphs about the indecorous happenings in church meetings. Mr. Clark, a noted historian of the South and Kentucky in particular leads us gently through the humor and the plight of the turbulent times of the South after the Civil War as seen through the eyes and the pages of the country editor and his weekly journal.

DEAR BETTY CROCKER

Q. What's the difference in fat content between a serving of bacon and a sausage patty? E.G., Little Rock, Ar. A. Little or none. Two medium slices of bacon have about a quarter-ounce fat after cooking. One brown-and-serve sausage patty has about a third of an ounce of fat.

Q. Does cream cheese icing need to be refrigerated? S.H., McConnelsville, Oh. A. A cake frosted with cream cheese icing may be left at room temperature for up to 12 hours. But for best keeping quality, refrigerate.

Q. What's the difference between whole wheat flour and graham flour? A.S., Fort Atkinson, Wi.

A. None. Whole wheat and graham flour are different names for the same thing: flour milled with the complete wheat kernel left intact including the bran, germ and the endosperm. It's valued for the nutty flavor and chewy texture it lends to baked goods. When whole wheat or graham flour is used for making yeast breads, smaller loaves may result because the germ and coarse bran may interfere with gluten development.

there are some things they can do to help him or her handle the hurt:

Don't belittle a teenager's feelings as cute or puppy love. A teenager's first real love is an important symbol of his or her transition from a self-centered child to an individual capable of unselfishly caring for another.

If your teenager has formed a relationship with someone you like, show your support by asking about his or her new friend. (But be careful that your interest doesn't seem like an interrogation.) Encourage your adolescent to invite a boyfriend or girlfriend over to your home on a regular basis.

If you're concerned that your teenager is becoming overly involved with someone, there's little you can do to say so. Don't be a cheeriu phony. SHARE FEELINGS

At times everyone feels sad, hurt or hopeless. You know what that's like-share your feelings. Let your friend know he's not alone.

Two Are Sought Solution to Sewage Woes In David Holdup Eludes Garrett Residents The David School Service Station on Route 404, was robbed last Wednesday

By Tim Sizemore

Lack of a culvert is causing a big stink at West Garrett as sewage from several residences is backing up in a ditch and running over the road.

Lona Green, a resident there, said at times the smell of raw sewage is simply unbearable. "I have lived here since 1956 and have never had this problem before," she commented. According to Mrs. Green, the sewage seeps out of a retaining wall in front of her home and others. Since the road was blacktopped in front of her home, she said, most of the sewage drains toward her property. She also contends that she and family members have quit using the well in their yard due to fear of contamination.

Mrs. Green reported that although she has attended two meetings of the fiscal court to voice her concern, so far nothing has come of her efforts.

District Two Magistrate Jackie Edford Owens said that a culvert has been approved by the court, but he has been shorthanded since two of his men were laid off for the winter. Further, he explained, that besides having a backhoe down, his three remaining employees have had their hands full trying to keep up roads for school bus travel. Owens said that the installation of the culvert is top priority on his list, but added that the pipe will not solve the problem. Owens said West Garrett needs an adequate sewage system, and that adding the culvert will only divert the pollution into the creek.

John Bailey of the Floyd county Health Department, has inspected the area several times and acknowledges the waste is a health hazard but contends that there is little his department can do. Mrs. Green also pointed out that, according to her doctor, the sewage has been the cause of numerous health problems which have plagued her recently.

Don Dixon, of the Food and Sanitation Branch of the Department of Health Services in Frankfort, inspected the situation Friday but doubted that any grant money would be available to help. He said the only viable solution to the problem is the installation of a central collection and disposal system.

So the residents of West Garrett will have to continue to seek help in solving

Competency Hearing Continues In Case Of Clawvern Jacobs

By Paul N. Allen

Clawvern Jacobs, charged in the 1986 beating death of an Alice Lloyd College sophomore, may be incompetent to stand trial, according to a state psychiatrist who testified Thursday during a competency hearing in Knott Circuit Court.

Morgan ruled last fall that Jacobs was incompetent to stand trial, Morgan ordered a second psychiatric evaluation at the request of the prosecution after it was learned that the original evaluation was conducted by a psychiatrist who has since been indicted for sodomizing a 15-year-old boy.

Jacobs is accused of the Sept. 17, 1986

Dr. Walker, who was called as a witness by public defenders Gary Johnson and Neal Walker, also commented during more than three hours of testimony, that she did not think Jacobs would become competent. "I do not believe his competency can be restored because he did not respond to treatment," she said.

According to Dr. Walker, Jacobs described a "vision" in which the earth becomes inverted on its axis while the White House burns. Jacobs also is convinced, apparently, that presidential candidate Pat Robertson, who he believes is the Antichrist, is elected president and the end of time begins.

Cross-examination by prosecutor Barbara Whaley attempted to demonstrate that Jacobs may be faking his psychosis the problem.

According to Dr. Candace Walker, a staff psychiatrist at the state's La Grange prison facility, the 40-year-old Pippa Passes man has an "organic delusional syndrome" and is a drug abuser.

Labor Department

Sheriff Henry Hale, with search and arrest warrants in hand, struck hard Friday and busted three suspected marijuana traffickers. The sheriff, who was assisted by five deputies, said the raids were made on the suspect's homes and followed undercover buys at the homes a day or two earlier by an informant for the department.

Arrested and charged with trafficking in marijuana were Jerry Rowe, 30, of Maytown, Randy "Rat" Bell, 31, and Sugar Wade Osborne, 41, both of McDowell. All three were released later that day on a $2,000 unsecured bond. The offense is a misdemeanor and carries a maximum sentence of one year in county jail and or $500 fine.

For the sheriff's department drug raids are becoming routine and a set procedure is carried out with each one. We like to go to a suspect's house with at least three men," said Deputy George Hale. Upon arriving, one deputy guards the back of the residence while two approach the front door. Then, once inside, Hale said, "We tell them what we're there for. Then we cuff them, read them their rights, and sit them down in a chair. We don't want them loose while we're searching the premises." While combing the house, the deputies are also on the lookout for illegal weapons and contraband. Friday's raids netted an undetermined amount of marijuana at Rowe's house and also at Osborne's.

Acting on an anonymous tip Friday night, Sheriff Hale also raided a suspected unlicensed bar on John Hall Branch of Mud Creek. The bar, owned by Charles Compton, was operating without a license. "He thought he was legal, but he wasn't. We told him we would have to close him down," said Deputy John Blackburn, who assisted the sheriff along with deputies Anthony Castle and Harold Johnson. Two pool players, Emmitt Williams, 45, Teaberry, and Walker Newsome, 36, of Grethel, were arrested at the scene and charged with disorderly conduct, interfering with a police officer, and alcohol intoxication. Two 12 packs of beer were confiscated.

Asked if there were any drug raids planned for the near future, Deputy Hale said, "I'm not going to say when or where, but-yeah, boy. There sure will be." And with a grin, Deputy Anthony Castle added, "The dope dealers better be watching out, because we might just be knocking on their door next.'

Hall Pleads Guilty To Lackey Robbery

and she said she planned to present testimony from another psychiatrist to back up her position.

Dr. Walker contended that faking psychosis to such a convincing degree was probably beyond Jacobs' background and level of sophistication.

A psychiatrist entered a lengthy testimony Monday on behalf of the prosecution and refuted claims of Jacobs' incompetency. Additional testimony is expected Thursday.

KET Program Highlights National Geographic Years

National Geographic celebrates 10 years of introducing television viewers to interesting people, extraordinary places, and unusual animals with an hourlong special hosted by Hal Holbrook.

Geographic airs Monday, March 7 beginning at 8 p.m. on KET as part of Telefund '88.

viewers include polar bears overcome with curiosity by a man in a cage; four intrepid men on a handmade raft braving the waters of the Yukon River; a giant gray whale playfully nudging a boatload of startled scientists; a montage of unusual types of sharks; a young springbuck playing while a deadly cheetah lurks nearby; and a lovely young woman, deaf from birth, jubilant as an electronic ear implant allows her to hear for the first time the sound of her own voice.

This special focuses on unforgettable scenes from the dramatic to the hilarious. Along with footage from the original specials, viewers will see new material updating some of their favorite subjects. Great Moments With National Geographic is coproduced by the National Georgraphic Society and WQED/Pittsburgh.

man's relatives advised him to have a jury trial. After some confusion, in which the relatives were asked to remain silent or leave the courtroom, the judge called on the attornies and the accused to approach the bench. Commonwealth's Attorney Jerry Patton recommended that Hall receive a 12-year sentence for the robbery, and the state would then drop two counts of wanton endangerment. Judge Conley explained that the Commonwealth Attorney's recommendations were not binding on the court.

After asking the Left Beaver man twice if he understood what a guilty plea would mean, Judge Conley told Hall he had waived his rights when he pleaded guilty

FLOYD CIRCUIT COURT 86-CI-872

The First Guaranty National Bank ...Plaintiff

VS: NOTICE OF SALE Mickey Darrell Mullins and Nora Lou Mullins Defendants By virtue of a judgment and order of sale of the Floyd Circuit Court rendered at the January 19 term, 1988, in the above styled cause I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Courthouse door in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, to the highest and best bidder, at public auction, on the 18 day of March, 1988, at 10:00 o'clock a.m., same being a day of the regular term of the Floyd Circuit Court, for cash or upon a credit of three (3) months, the following described property, to-wit: That certain tract or parcel of land, lying and being on the waters of Big Mud Creek, Teaberry, Floyd County, Kentucky and being the same property conveyed Mickey Darrell Mullins and Nora Mullins by William R. Collins and Clara H. Collins, his wife, by deed dated September 28, 1984, recorded in Deed Book 288, page 458, in the Floyd County Clerk's Office, being more particularly described as follows:

Beginning at an acorn tree on the creek bank; to an ash tree; running along the road to a poplar tree; to another poplar tree; to a hollow to another little hollow; thence back to the beginning. Will be marked by concrete markers.

That certain tract or parcel of land, lying and being on the waters of McUrwy Branch, Price, Floyd County, Kentucky, and being the same property conveyed Mickey Darrell Mullins and Nora Mullins by Jerry Mullins by deed dated May 10, 1983, recorded in Deed Book 275, page 524, in the Floyd County Clerk's Office, being more particularly described as follows:

Beginning at an elm tree near the branch; thence up a small drain, to a white walnut tree; thence with the drain to a marked apple tree; thence up the same drain to a marked white walnut tree; thence farther up the drain to a marked maple; thence up the hill a straight line to the top of the hill and a marked sugar tree; thence up the main creek to end of garden, at a bridge; thence across to the pump house; thence straight up the hill to a yellow poplar and a V line to the sugar tree, so as to include all in said boundary. These two tracts will be sold

The gull is fast becoming the number one pest in urban areas around the Great Lakes and throughout the eastern United States and Canada. According to International Wildlife magazine, the birds threaten flight safety at airports, damage crops, create a health hazard with their droppings and generally make a nuisance of themselves at parks and other recreational areas, Controlling the birds will be tough. Experts say the birds aren't easily gulled.

CHILDREN AGES 4-11 are invited to help design the 1988 Sears Wish Book catalog cover to "cover" their college education. The grand prize is a college annuity fund guaranteed at $25,000 when the winner turns 18. Trips to Disney World and cash prizes will also be awarded. Entry blanks are available from Sears catalog order desks and the 1988 Spring General catalog.

"Draw our Christmas catalog cover and we'll help cover your college education." is the announcement made by Mike Levins, manager of the Sears store, here

The 1988 Spring General Catalog, released this month, contains a contest challenge for children ages 4-11 to design the cover of the 1988 Christmas Wish Book. The grand prize winner will receive a college annuity fund with a guaranteed value of $25,000 when the winner turns 18.

Entry blanks, available in the Spring General Catalog and at all Sears catalog order desks, must be returned to a Sears catalog order desk by March

Sears will acknowledge all entrants with special letters of appreciation. declaring each a "Sears Wish Book Artist" and giving them a special iron-on decal to prove it.

Judging will be in three age groups-4 to 5, 6 to 8, and 9 to 11 years.

Every state will have a winner in each age group, for a total of 150 state winners. All winners will receive $25 Sears gift certificates; see their names and hometowns printed in the 1988 Wish Book, and have their art displayed in the Sears Tower in Chicago during the 1988 holiday season.

From the state winners, three national prize winners will be chosen-one in each age group-and receive trips for themselves and their families to Disney World plus $1,000 cash.

In addition to the $25,000 annuity fund, the winner will receive a total of $5,000

cash-and their winning art will be used to help design the 1988 Wish Book

The grand prize winner will be selected from the three national winners.

Legislators Seek Jurors' Pay Raise

Representative Herbie Deskins, Jr., D-Pikeville and Raymond Overstreet. R-Liberty, are co-sponsoring legislation to raise the jurors fee.

House Bill 603 filed recently by the legislators would substantially increase the fee of jurors from $5 to $25 in circuit court civil cases.

Currently, jurors also receive travel compensation in addition to their fee making their absence from work worth $12.50 a day, the legislators said. Deskins and Overstreet hope the increase in fees will make serving on a jury more appealing to the general public. The legislators said most people look at current jury duty as a loss of a day's pay.

KET Special Explores Marilyn Monroe Legend

More than two decades after her death, Marilyn Monroe remains one of the most intriguing, talked-about stars ever to appear on the silver screen.

glamorous image' Find out when KET airs "Marilyn Monroe-Beyond The Legend" Tuesday, March 8, at 9 p.m. CT. The special is part of the Hollywood Legends series airing during TeleFund '88.

But who was the real woman behind the

The special narrated by Richard Widmark provides an intimate look at the minous star who spent her life looking for love and a safe haven. The program includes interviews of friends such as Robert Mitchum, Shelley Winters, Joshua Logan, Susan Strasberg, as well as memorable film clips such as The Asphalt Jungle, The Seven Year Itch, Bus Stop, Some Like It Hot, and The Misfits. "Marilyn Monroe-Beyond The Legend" traces Monroe's bleak childhood and credits her lifelong loneliness and insecurities to her early years. The program also chronicles her highly publicized marriages to baseball star Joe Dimaggio and respected playwright Arthur Miller, and emphasizes the inner radiance Monroe skillfully projected onto the screen. "Marinlyn Monroe-Beyond The Legend" is produced for Wombat Productions in association with Deviller Donegan Enterprises.

GABLE VIEW Dennis Miller's HBO special is unusually funny

By Denise Gorga

With his subdued delivery, comic Dennis Miller has more or less managed to uphold the legacy of Chevy Chase and Bill Murray at "Sat-urday Night Live" 's 'Weekend Update'' desk And with the same mono-tone, Miller demonstrates his aptitude for stand-up in "Mr. Miller Goes to Washington," which airs Thursday, March 10 on HBO title doesn't accurately describe what follows. Aside from the venue, George Washington Uni-versity, "Dennis Miller Goes to Washington" has nothing to do with the na-tion's capital. And, no, smart-aleck film buffs, doesn't play off the 1939 classic "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington.'

Another key is to skip the first three minutes. Here's what happens: Miller is in New York's Parker Meridien hotel having a nip with news-

One key to watching this "On Location" special is to assume that the man Edwin Newman. Newman urges Miller to "get on that plane, go to D.C. and kill them." Miller boards an Eastern jet in the middle of Manhattan, busses the flight attendant and disem-barks on stage.

What follows is unusual for a cable comedy spe-cial: an hour of consistently funny stand-up. No gimmicky flashbacks, no props, no dream se-quences. Just Miller talking. Which is all you need to hear. He calls the pope's formal getup "neo-Duran Duran," and dubs Sylvester Stallone "the quintessential thes-pian." On West Virginia, he says: "It makes Mayberry look like a think tank." On Publishers' Clearinghouse Sweep-stakes winners: "A genetic bouillabaisse. You thought there were a lot huh?" On "Cannonball Run II": "... that clever Reynolds subtext. You Reynolds subtext. You know, the recurrent use of DeLuise as a Christ-figure." On "armed and dangerous" bank rob-bers: "When are they

gregarious?" Finally, here is a come-dy special where you can

AFTERNOON

Rollins remakes 'Night' without preconceptions

By Paul Elie

At first, Howard Rol-lins' portrayal of Virgil Tibbs in NBC's new version of "In the Heat of the Night. which airs Sunday, March 6, seems like an inspired choice of roles.

Rollins, 35, is the best black actor of his generation, having garnered an Oscar nomination for 'Ragtime'' (1981), about a Oscar black's quest for racial justice in 1906, and praise for "A Soldier's Story" (1984), about a murder of a black officer at a Southern military post in the 1940s.

The character of Tibbs, a Philadelphia detective who returns to his Southern hometown, was creat-ed by Sidney Poitier, now 61, the best black actor of his generation - and one who, like Rollins, came to prominence in films that dramatized race issues: "A Raisin in the Sun" (1961) and "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner?"(1967), as well as "In the fleat of the Night," which won four Oscars in 1967. And because the focus

'In the Heat of the Night" is racism, namely, the conflict between Tibbs and a bigoted sheriff (played here by Carroll O'Connor), a new version would seem to be a chance to compare and reflect, to see what has changed and what has remained in the 20 years since the original. But Rollins can't make such comparisons.

I'd be doing this, did I?" Moreover, he suggests, the new movie addresses regionalism, not racism. "I play Tibbs as a Philadelphia man," he says, "a man who, on coming back to the South, decides that he has missed some as-pects of home." The NBC movie is the pilot for a weekly series, often considered a step down for an actor with an Oscar nomination.

"I was provoked to do this situation for two reasons," Rollins says. "One was working with Carroll O' Connor, which has been wonderful - although I haven't seen it, I don't watch the dailies Apparently there's a real chemistry between us. "The other was, I was interested in something that would help me ad-vance my career. You know, pragmatic considerations. For example, if someone's interested in me for something else, they've got to get me dur-ing the hiatus. This alleviates a lot of headaches.

"I plan to do a film a year while I'm doing the series," he adds. "I hope people won't expect any similarities. I hope this doesn't decrease my prestige."

Third World Women Become 'A New Conservation Force

In many developing countries, women often bear the highest costs of environmental problems. Deforestation, for example, causes soil erosion, depletes the supply of firewood, and exposes springs to sunlight, causing the water to evaporate. Since women traditionally raise crops, collect firewood, and carry water, the burden of deforestation thus falls most heavily on them.

Now, according to International Wildlife magazine, women in the Third World are taking matters into their own hands, and are scoring some remarkable conservation successes. International Wildlife is a publication of the National Wildlife Federation.

* In Ghana, a women's group decided to change a system for smoking fish that wasted huge quantities of wood and emitted harmful fumes. The women developed a safer smoker that consumes one-tenth as much wood, and the technology has spread to five West African countries.

* Back in 1974, local women in the Himalayan region of India threw their arms around trees to stop loggers from cutting down an ash forest. The incident sparked a national environmental movement called "Chipko," or "Hug a Tree." In the 1980s, the Chipko women suc-

Sweet 16 Winner

Melanie Park, junior at Johnson Central High School in Paintsville, won first place honors, Saturday, February 20, in the regional Sweet Sixteen Academic competition held at Morehead State University. This is the second time Miss Park has won the vocal music category, this time with a performance of the German classic, "Auf Geheimen Waldespfade.'

Approximately 446 students from 45 high schools competed in the regional competition leading to the 1988 Sweet Sixteen Academic Showcase to be held limestone mines that were destroying hillsides

* In Jamaica, women have started a non-polluting, solar energy saltextraction project that brings income to rural women and offers a model solution to the country's dependence on imported salt.

Women have a prominent role in the management of natural resources in Kenya as well as in the rest of Africa. Eighty to 90 percent of African farmers are women. In addition, African women face the daily challenge to provide fuel for their homes' open hearths.

In Kenya, where 90 percent of the indigenous forest has been razed in the last century, the biggest and best-known project that involves women is the Green Belt Movement. Founded in 1977. the project has been responsible for the planting of nearly five million trees. Miniature forests have sprung up on school and church grounds; more than 500 communities have their own tree nurseries; and 25,000 households now have thriving woodlots.

The Founder of this vital effort is 47-year-old Wangari Maathai, a biologist and pioneer of both the environmental movement and the struggle for women's rights. The daughter of a farm laborer, cessfully filed suit to shut down she became the first Kenyan woman to earn a Ph.D., and she was acclaimed at the U.N. Decade for Women Conference in 1985 as one of four women with the greatest positive impact on the environment > Maathai became an environmental activist out of necessity. "When I would visit the village where I was born, I saw whole forests had been cleared for cultivation and timber," she recalls. "People were moving onto hilly slopes and riverbeds and marginal areas that were only bush when I was a child. Springs were drying up. I was shocked to find children suffering from kwashiorkor (a form of malnutrition), because my community was supposed to be a rich, coffee-growing area. It was an eye-opener to learn that malnutrition was connected to a lack of fuel. People were eating less of the nutritious foods, like beans and maize, and were opting for refined foods like rice because they require less cooking.

So Maathai founded the Green Belt Movement in 1977, symbolically planting seven trees in Nairobi. At its simplest level, the movement is a tree-planting project. But its long-term goals are more ambitious, everything from making rural populations self-sufficient in fuel wood and reversing desertification to educating people and improving the image of women.

Maathai's most important goal was to raise environmental awareness, and she first needed to interest women in Kenya's villages to plant trees.

'Our bait was firewood,'' says Lillian Njehu, a local leader in the project. "We told the women that if they plant their own trees, they won't have to walk sixteen kilometers for firewood. At first we did a lot of promotion, but now people come to us and say, 'Where are our seedlings?'

Local women's groups hear about the movement, mostly by word of mouth, and then apply to start a nursery. The Green Belt supplies the equipment and trains and pays an attendant chosen by the women themselves. When the nursery is under way, Green Belt helps distribute trees and educates the women on the best ways to take care of them.

Once the trees are given out, the movement also organizes "Green Belt Rangers"-again, chosen by the women-to make sure the seedlings are being cared for.

The United Nations Environment Program is sponsoring training seminars to encourage similar projects elsewhere. The Green Belt Movement succeeds, development experts say, because local people run the show from the very beginning. And in the Kenya countryside, says Njehu, "Everyone is now speaking the language of trees. I think we have changed something here.
