Burning Slag Dump Removed At Stone Coal

It took months, but perseverance paid off for Cherrie Howard and the other residents of Stone Coal Creek near Garrett. Reclamation work was recently completed on a slate dump that had been burning off and on for years, and lately, posed a health hazard.

The situation was near disasterous after a wind-swept forest fire ignited the slate in November. Residents used rakes and shovels to stem it, and for months after, the fire smoldered; and the air, which carried an oily burning stench, was unfit to breath. Worried about their children and families, Howard and Bertha Hackworth and Mrs. Aaron Howard and others, got busy making phone calls, meeting with other residents, and notifying government agencies.

Howard got no help from the county government, but State Representative Greg Stumbo called Willard Stanley. head of the Department of Mines & Minerals. Chris Perkin's office also assisted on the federal level. Finally, after numerous inspections, the state's Division of Abandoned Lands, hired Betsy Layne contractor Randall Blackburn to remove the burning slag. Work ctarted February 15.

Now that the work is done, residents couldn't be happier. Howard lauds the construction company-Coalfields Reclamation-for their work, and the state government for approving the construction money. Darvine Bryant served as foreman on the job, and Grant Derossett oversaw it for the state. "They did an excellent job. Everyone is very pleased," Howard said. "Too see the biggest eyesore on Stone Coal Creek removed is quite gratifying. It seems like no expense was spared.'

Depressed Counties Program Is Topic of ADD Board Meet

Patton Outlines Incentives Aimed At Industry Boost

By Joe Porter

Looking for economic development and a substantial new economy for the area, Pike County Judge-Executive Paul Patton spoke at the Big Sandy Area Development Board meeting Monday night and encouraged support for the Depressed Counties Program.

'If it's going to be successful it's up to the leaders to sell their individual communities to manufacturing industries," Patton said of the program which he developed during his campaign for Lieutenant Governor and lobbied for during the General Assembly.

The Depressed Counties Economic Development Program passed the 1988 General Assembly with the full support of Governor Wallace Wilkinson, who called it, "a landmark piece of legislation-the best part of the legislation is that it will let the counties provide jobs and economic development to enable them to stand on their own feet."

The program will offer lucrative incentives to recruit manufacturing plants into the state. Patton summarized the program by saying that in most cases a manufacturing company could obtain the land and building including utilities to run them at no cost. Tax rebates and a job development assessment fee would be granted the company for the lifetime of the bonds which will be sold to finance the project, but "the company can't get more in rebates than the cost of the

Patton told the meeting that 65 of the 120 state counties qualify as depressed, and comprise 34 percent of the population and 45 percent of the total unemployment; in the state these counties have an unemployment average of 14 percent. By definition a depressed county must have had an unemployment rate above the state average for four out of the last five years.

The program will be administered by the "Kentucky Depressed Counties Economic Development Authority,' which will sell the bonds to buy the land, build the building and put in necessary utilities to get the faculty ready for the company to begin production. The company will then make payments to the Authority to retire the bonds. No state money will be used to make bond payment, but the bonds will be exempt from state taxes and possibly federal taxes. Patton is hoping the five-member authority will be appointed by Governor Wilkinson by July 1. He expects the Secretary of Commerce and Secretary of Finance to be named members and possibly one from eastern and one from western Kentucky. Another aspect that will also have to be worked out is whether the law is constitutional. The Pike Judge-Executive expects a friendly suit will be filed to settle the question, but said, "We think it will hold up."

Patton calls the program a no risk economic incentive package for the state, since it will only give these incentives if the company in fact creates and maintains jobs in the state. "I don't believe it gives us advantage over central Kentucky," he said, "but it gives a chance to be more equal.

FDA Warning Cities Ipecac Mislabeling

WEDNESDAY, MAY 18, 1988

Anyone having bottles of ipecac syrup should inspect them immediately. If the brand name is either Brite Life or Humco, their use could be fatal.

Both are the subject of recalls issued by the federal Food and Drug Administration notice of which was released this week by the agency.

According to the federal warning, the Brite Life-labeled ipecac syrup may contain iodides tincture as a result of mislabeling by the company. The syrup in question is of lot number 004715 with the expiration date of 7-92 and such bottles may be identified by the presence of a plastic applicator.

The ipecac syrup labeled Humco may contain a poisonous amount of eucalyptus oil, which, considered safe in its application in such things as nose and coughdrops and vaporizer compounds, can be fatal in concentrated amounts.

Both medicines are usually contained in one-ounce bottles.

For further information, contact the USFDA, Bob Fish or Sandra Baxter at 615-736-2088, Prestonsburg Fire Chief Tom Blackburn said local residents may call the fire department whose members will pick up suspected ipecac syrup containers.

Races for State Posts, Focus Of May 24 Democratic Primary

If you haven't heard, there's an election next Tuesday. It's the May 24 primary, and although the slate of offices, and, consequently, the number of candidates is relatively few, some im-Portant offices are at stake.

OSM Corrects Slide Threat Near Garth

By Paul N. Allen

After 18 years of watching mud and rock slides threaten and frequently damage her home near Garth, Thelma Bentley could breathe a little easier this week as work, financed by the U.S. Department of the Interior's Office of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement (OSMRE), was being carried out to correct the situation there.

OSMRE announced this week that under contract from the Department of Interior, Goble Mining Co., of Prestonsburg will remove unstable materials, provide rock backfill and build a "surface drainage control structure" to correct the threat of "saturated soil and spoil downslope of abandoned mine portals" which, according to the federal statement, "is slipping toward the residence and garages of Mancie Bentley.' (Mrs. Bentley's late husband.)

Actually, mud, rocks and trees have been not only slipping toward, but onto the Bentley homeplace since around

Stumbo Says Garbage Woes Problem of Courts, Attitudes

By Paul N. Allen

The great deposit of garbage which has created an eyesore and a potential health hazard for years along a lengthy stretch of old KY 114 (it's the pile you can see from Archer Park) has been cleaned up in recent weeks. That's the good news. The bad news is that people have started illegally dumping, there, all over again.

The situation is frustrating for residents who would just as soon not have to drive past mouldering garbage, rusting appliances and decaying bodies of discarded domestic animals. It is particularly frustrating for Floyd County Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo.

Stumbo realizes full well the seriousness of illegal dumping in the county but efforts by the county to thwart or even discourage such activity have brought little result. Referring to the KY 114 dump, Judge Stumbo said the county ecology officer, Cleveland Tackett, has watched the dump site during early morning hours and at night, but those who discard their refuse at such places are wary. "A fellow who dumps illegally is like a thief in the night," he commented.

Stumbo said Tackett "runs the roads" all over the county trying to apprehend offenders "in the act." That's the only way an arrest will hold up in court," he pointed out. "We often get people's names from letters or envelopes in these dumps," Stumbo continued, "but it's not the right kind of evidence for a conviction." He added that it is customary to write residents whose names are found to emphasize that the activity is, indeed, Stumbo said the county had not cleaned up the KY 114 dump and suggested that state highway crews may have accomplished the work. Kirby Ison, chief district highways engineer for the Pikeville District, however, would not confirm whether the state had carried out the work or not. Stumbo said the county had cleaned up the area about a year ago but that "people were dumping again in two or three days.

Floyd Woman's Memories Breathe Life Into Legend

By Tim Sizemore

The guns have long fallen silent on America's most celebrated blood feud: the dark forbidding valleys of Pike county still echo the violent legend that Hatfields and McCoys wove into the fabric of mountain folklore, but for one nursing home resident, here, the legend was

You feel a bit of envy when you talk to Sadie Hatfield Click, 86, a resident of Riverview Manor Nursing Home, For Mrs. Click the Hatfields and McCoys are not unapproachable characters from history, void of emotion, but a vivid memory.

"Tennis Hatfield was a good man but you didn't cross him," she said of her late husband and youngest son of "Devil" Anse Hatfield. "We were married when I was 13 or 14 years old," she said, and added that their first year of marriage was spent at the home of 'Devil' Anse, whom she referred to as "Uncle". Her father-in-law was a good old man, she contends, and she didn't fear him as many did, because in her words, she could "outshoot any of the men and was just as mean as they

"I used to tell Uncle Anse, 'it's no wonder they call you devil, you're so mean,' and he would just laugh. He never got mad at me.

Mrs. Click was born in 1902 at coal camp on Island Creek in Pike county. Her father, Zack Walters, was a road contractor and engineer and she remembers that he built roads all over the region. When she was about seven years old, she became interested in the piano and went to the homes of neighbors who owned them to practice. 'My folks didn't know I could play until everyone started talking about my talent at the keyboard," she recalled. Later in life, she related, "I played for the silent pictures a long time at Beckley, Logan, and Cincinnati.

Tennis Hatfield was three times elected sheriff of Logan county, West Virginia and Sadie recalls that era vividly with a story of a "moonlight killing."

Tennis, whom Sadie describes as being "the meanest man you've ever seen in walking shoes," was warned that two men were going to kill him if they caught him out. "He asked me to take a boat ride with him on the river," she remembered. It was already dark but it was a beautiful moonlit night, so I decided to go, unaware of what was in store. As we rounded a bend in the river, two men were sitting in a boat, and without uttering a word, Tennis drew his revolver, fired twice and the two tumbled into the water." She added that she had asked her husband why he did it and he had replied, "They were out to get me and it was me or them.

Many historians believe the Civil War was the basic cause of the celebrated Hatfield and McCoy feud. During the conflict, "Devil Anse" Hatfield led a group of partisan Confederates or 'home guards," which protected part of Southwestern Virginia, primarily Logan and Mingo counties (now, part of West Virginia). Randolph McCoy, which he shortened to Randall, for a short time, was a member of Hatfield's guards but he soon wearied of Anse's stern

KAHC Speaks Against Corporal Punishment

By unanimous vote of membership present, the Kentucky Association of Homes For Children (KAHC) passed a resolution and changed their by-laws to reflect the group's views on the corporal punishment amendment to recently-passed House Bill 20.

The original legislation, sponsored by Rep. Marshall Long, calls for an increase in the per diem rate to private child caring agencies throughout Kentucky. The current reimbursement rate is 50% of 1984 costs and the $4.5 million monies from the new bill will push that ratio up to approximately 70% of 1986 costs.

In the final days of the 1988 General Assembly, an amendment was attached to House Bill 20 prohibiting any administrative regulations governing services (provided by church-related privately operated child caring agencies or facilities) from prohibiting the use of reasonable corporal physical discipline.

KAHC has gone on record with the statement that "corporal punishment is neither in the best interest of a child nor the child care provider." KAHC membership further said in its resolution "We do hereby repudiate the use of corporal punishment in any child caring facility or program."

The group amended the by-laws that relate to KAHC's code of ethics, which now state: "no member agency of KAHC will permit the use of corporal punishment, including slapping, spanking, paddling, beating, deprivation of sleep, marching or standing rigidly in one spot, or any kind of physical discomfort."

The Association, now 28 years old, which represents 23 private residential agencies, is the professional statewide organization. The KAHC agencies operate 37 residential programs in providing a wide variety of care and treatment services for Kentucky's abused, dependent, behaviorally disturbed and delinquent children and their families.

KAHC vowed in their resolution to cooperate with others to repeal the law which permits corporal punishment to be used in child caring facilities.

Should Parents Buy War Toys?

Rocket launchers, grenades, shotguns and M-16s are not only national defense weapons, they are also some of the many so-called "war toys" available in a typical toy store. The debate over whether or not parents should buy these toys for their children is addressed in the May issue of PTA Today, examines the National PTA's award-winning magazine.

For parents who are undecided about whether or not to buy a war toy for their child, Karen L. Bauer, assistant professor and director of early childhood and elementary education at Villa Maria College in Erie, Penn., suggests considering both sides of the controversy, the child's needs and the opinions of experts.

"However, the decision of whether or not to purchase war toys is even more difficult because experts in child development disagree on the effects war toys have on children," says Bauer in her article "War toys: To buy or not to buy?"

One side of the debate contends that while not every child who plays with war toys will commit a violent act, such play makes violent actions a little more likely. "According to this position, aggressive play increases aggressive behavior," says Bauer, adding, "The rehearsed aggression becomes one way the child learns to respond to conflict."

The fact that war toys are becoming more realistic looking is also a problem. "Some of these toys are so realistic that there have been instances where persons have been injured or killed while using toy weapons in a prank," says the author. She adds that there is current legislation regarding the sale of realistic looking toy weapons, and some cities have banned the sale of such toys.

On the other side of the controversy, some experts believe that children need to get rid of their aggressions, and that symbolic play is one means of doing this. According to Bruno Bettleheim, a noted child psychologist, "Adults need to understand the distinction between encouraging children to be aggressive and allowing them to use toy weapons in ways that are important and meaningful to them."

Bettleheim believes that "playing with toy guns tells nothing about what a child will do and be later in life." He says that a child who plays with blocks does not necessarily become an architect and one who plays with toy weapons does not necessarily become a future killer.

The child psychologist maintains that parental fear that a child will grow into a violent adult is more harmful to the child than any amount of play with weapons. "Many experts believe that having toy weapons is not as important as the way families deal with aggression," says Bauer. Children raised in an atmosphere of cooperation, compromise and caring will learn these values in a natural way, she adds.

Bauer also notes that children engage in mock fighting without the aid of war toys and that many sticks have become "guns" and beanbags have been transformed into "grenades." "A lack of access to sophisticated weapons does not eliminate children's imitation of adult violence," Bauer writes.

JOE W., JUNIOR, and JOEY

As a cloud blots out the sunshine
So Death dealt his dark designs;
Extinguished your life's flame;
So stopped the sifting sands in your hourglass of earth's time.
Yet, in our hearts your memory never wanes

A cloud's shades never drawn remain,
For sunshine sneaks through;
It brushes across the firmament's canvas.
A resplendent arch of varied hues.
So the murky mist moves
And hovers over another's life, with portent as before—
the exit-time

the exit-time
To another's life on this terrestrial shore.
Already you've trod the Valley of the Shadow of Death;

Escaped life's gravitational grip here below.

And as you departed on your journey
The Savior escorted you, I know.

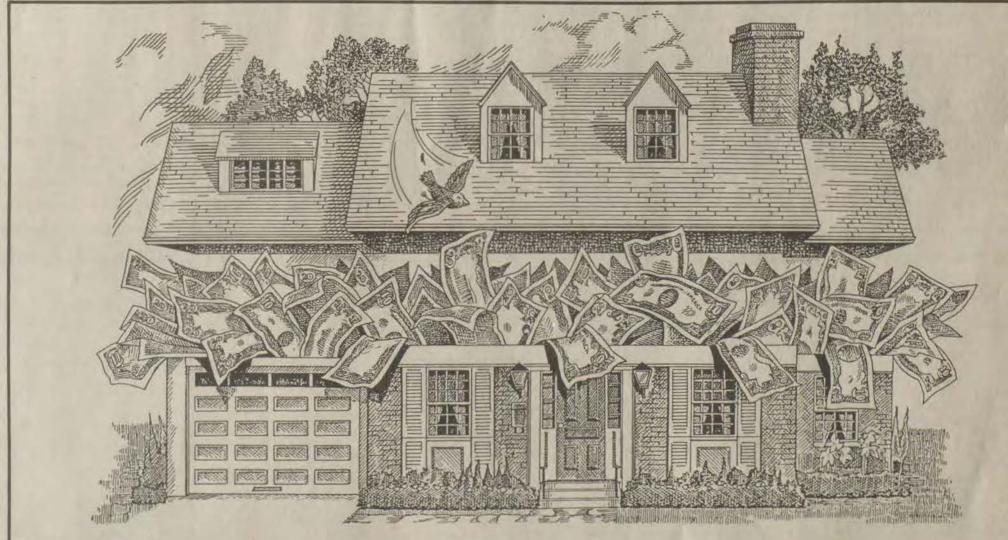

Firmly he clasped your frail hand
And he led you to brilliant Beulah Land.

to that celestial city where the Son forever shines.
There hearts never break, eyes don't weep,
And the eternal soul exists sublime,
In that heavenly realm of infinite, glorious time.

Your presence we preciously miss,
But deign not deprive you of your joy:
JOY divine,
bliss sublime.
For after all, it won't be long
'Til we hear our names called,
As moves in the murky mist.
The Savior'll tenderly whisper, "Come home;
Time to board my Gospel Ship. Be not afraid.

Dad, since you, and brother, have ventured Beyond,
God, in his mercy, filled our emptiness some—
To lessen our sadness; in His divine grace, I say,
He's blessed us with a baby boy.
Born May 22, 1986, in midday,
Just prior to you being "laid away."
'Twas only natural to name him Joey (Joy)—
So called in honor to you and Junior too, Parents, Sarah and Paul, thus have remembered you; continued you.

The job became larger and more complicated though, once the company got into it. It was thought, when started, the job would require only a couple of weeks' work; it ended up taking a month-and-a-half. They first estimated 6.000 yards of slate would have to be removed; they ended up hauling away 10,000 yards. The fiery slate was also a bigger problem; they had to pump thousands of gallons of water on it to get it down below 100 degrees before they could move it. Then after moving the slag, they graded the slope, covered it with topsoil, and seeded it with grass. "They turned it into a park," Howard said. "Everyone is satisfied with the way it looks.

Three dump trucks stayed busy hauling the slate away, and to make use of it as fill, the company built extended parking lots for the Garrett Volunteer Fire Department and the Old Regular Baptist Church near Wayland. Also, one Stone Coal resident got his backyard filled. "Quite a few people benefitted from their work," Howard added.

Dave Rosenbaum, state director for the Division of Abandoned Lands, said he was satisfied with the work performed at Stone Coal Creek. "We've done a couple hundred of these projects in the last six years, and as long as the funding is available we will continue to do them," he said. It was maybe just work as usual for Rosenbaum, but to the residents of Stone Coal, it's a new environment to raise their families in. It means everyone will be breathing better air. Already, according to residents along 114, an old refrigerator, a couch and other refuse has been deposited.

There is a serious attitude problem, Stumbo believes, one that might change dramatically with a few convictions and a few "stiff" fines. "Where we've got a problem is with the court," he commented. "If a few of these people we catch got a good, stiff fine, I think it would make people think.

Stumbo said along wide places on old U.S. 23 toward Sugar Loaf, the county had piled up dirt to make it difficult to conveniently pull off the road to dump. Even then, however, an occasional, vintage Kelvinator somehow finds its way beside the road.

Although the problem persists, such undertakings as community or countywide clean-up drives help, at least temporarily. On Cow Creek, for example, Stumbo said residents there annually pitch in to improve the roadway and overall look of the area with an ambitious clean-up. Cow Creek residents carried out this year's clean-up about two weeks ago with the help of a county truck. "We try to help out with equipment and encourage these local efforts, Stumbo said.

He also pointed to the Floyd County Area Chamber of Commerce clean-up as a good example of what a coordinated effort can accomplish. An annual, twoweek event, county equipment and personnel are provided in the county-wide effort which is co-sponsored, planned and advertised by the Chamber of Commerce, with additional help of the City of Prestonsburg. In the clean-up, collection sites are advertised and larger items, such as discarded appliances are Newly-elected Chamber of Commerce President Thomas Hereford, III, said plans are under way at present for the annual clean-up which is scheduled to be carried out next month. Hereford said, in addition to collecting larger items, the Chamber already has a commitment for 1,000 garbage bags from area restaurants and stores to facilitate clean-up of smaller debris. Advertisements in this newspaper will outline collection sites.

SIMILIAR NAMES CAUSE CONFUSION

A similiarity in names caused confusion to some when the obituary of the Rev. Eddie Taylor appeared in last week's issue of The Times.

The Rev. Eddie Taylor, of Hunter, who was killed in an explosion at his home is not the Rev. Ed Taylor, of Martin, who is pastor of the Parkway Independent Church which burned at Ivyton recently.

Although rock slides had plagued the Bentleys before, it was at that time that tons of mud and rock slid onto the house, "piling up at the back of the house plumb to the top," according to Mrs. Bentley. She described the slide as creating a loud "roar," and the frame structure was actually displaced by the weight of the material. The incident was repeated barely two years later.

The unstable and saturated soil resulted from coal mining activities of the Peco Coal Company which ceased in the area in 1954. Two mine openings, seeping water, uphill from the Bentley house, and the large scale soil disturbance which had resulted in mine excavation work 34 years ago created the almost constant threat to the family's

"We didn't know about any of this reclamation work," Mrs. Bentley commented, until a local resident suggested such help might be available. OSMRE representatives visited the impacted area last fall and actual work was begun last week.

The corrective action will cost $9,850 and the estimated completion date is set for mid-June, according to a statement of the federal agency.

Although Mrs. Bentley has since moved to another residence across the road, her son lives in the older structure which has been plagued by the slides. Beset for years by environmental problems caused by coal mining, a situation not uncommon in Floyd and surrounding counties, Mrs. Bentley is pleased that the situation is, at last, being remedied.

'I feel like the government is repaying my husband for the time he served in the war in the Pacific," she said.

After his arrest Blondell was transferred to the Knott County Jail where he is being held without bond. Maggard will present evidence to the Knott County Grand Jury on Thursday.

Hatfields and McCoys grew numerous and they intermarried and lived among each other on both sides of the Tug Fork of the Big Sandy River.

Harmon McCoy, instead of sharing his brother Randall's sentiment, was the leader of the Union home guards. The roots of the infamous feud probably began with the discovery of Harmon McCoy's bullet-ridden body. Randall suspected that "Devil Anse" was behind the murder and hard feelings simmered between the families long after the war until 1880 whom a boiling point was reached due to a lawsuit concerning the ownership of a razorback hog.

The Hatfields emerged victorious in the court battle with a judgment in their behalf and the stage was set for one of the bloodiest fueds in Appalachian history. Soon after the court decision, guns barked that would ultimately lead to the death or disappearance of 40 to 50 people and conclude with the bloody confrontation dubbed by the yellow press as 'The Battle of Grapevine Creek When peace finally was restored to the dark hollows of the troubled border, Anderson Hatfield, patriarch of a large family, settled on his 15,000 acres of rich soil and virgin timber and lived the life of a respected farmer. Death came to Hatfield in 1921, outliving his bitter enemy Randall McCoy who preceded him in death by seven years.

In this rugged land with a rigid code of honor, Tennis Hatfield or Tennyson, after the British poet, cut his teeth on a revolver. Sadie Hatfield Click, came to know well the code the youngest son of "Devil Anse" lived by.

Mrs. Click now enjoys entertaining others at Riverview functions, treating them with piano tunes of her favorite ragtime repertoire. She loves to talk to anyone about her past experiences, and she fondly remembers her famous father-in-law and the many years that have passed since he gave her a doll for Christmas.

Jones Addresses Floyd Chamber. Of Commerce at Annual Banquet

By Tim Sizemore

"Education is the basis of everything-we won't have the jobs unless we improve Kentucky's educational system," stated Lt. Governor Brereton Jones as he spoke at last Friday's annual Floyd County Chamber of Commerce banquet, here, emphasizing cooperation as being the key to economic development in Eastern Kentucky.

The Woodford county farmer told the group of business leaders that he believed all Kentuckians should receive equality of treatment in Frankfort and that it is essential if all Kentucky is to move ahead.

Lt. Gov. Jones cited, as an example, the interstate highway system. If it had been built by the counties, he said, some parts would have gravel roads, others two lane or worse. But since such a system of construction would not be practical, the road is built uniformly and to equal standards through rich and poor counties alike.

Jones said he believed the average Kentuckian was ready to invest in better education. Although he favored many of the cuts in the state's budget initiated by Governor Wallace Wilkinson, he believed education should receive top priority and he termed it as "an investment in the future.'

Bill Harvey Howard, 1987 president of the Chamber of Commerce, cited many examples of the county's economic growth during his two terms as president and spoke optimistically about future development and diversification of the area economy.

New officers and directors for 1988 were introduced at the meeting with Thomas Hereford, III, named as new president with Tom Hites to occupy the vice-president's position. The new board of directors includes Sam Blankenship, Delinda Borden, Russell Briggs, Burl Wells Spurlock, Dr. Henry Campbell, Bill Harvey Howard, James E. Vanhoose, Henry Lewis Mayo, Roy Ramey and Prestonsburg Mayor Ann

Awards were presented to new businesses as well as existing businesses that had structurally improved their facilities. Among the award recipients were: Elkhorn Coal Corporation, The First Baptist Church, The House of Flowers, McDonald's, Prestonsburg Community College, Rebel Bowling Lanes, Shell Mart, Taco Tico, Thompson and Litton Engineering and Wilson

Individuals and organizations honored included, James Arthur Hughes, for the Prestonsburg Village and Glyn View Plaza shopping centers; Prestonsburg Community College, for the new Magoffin Building; The Prestonsburg Park Commission; Roger Rectenwald for work in Big Sandy A.D.D., and Floyd County Judge Executive John M. Stumbo for his efforts to improve the facilities at Stumbo Park and the ninehole golf course.

Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Chalmer Frazier summed up the optimistic spirit of the Chamber, in saying: "I feel Floyd county is on a

MCA Presents "Cinderella"

By Joe Porter

The timeless story of Cinderella comes to the stage as the junior class of Mountain Christian Academy presents a new humorous production. The show, directed by Dorothy Howard, will be performed Saturday May 21 at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. in the school's gymnasium.

"It's children's theatre, but something adults will enjoy. The adults will have a blast," said Howard, who also teaches music and dance at the school.

The junior speech and drama class is a requirement for graduation, and in the course of the school year, the students put on one or two productions, with each play being a culmination of what has been learned and accomplished by the students. This semester the class took the children's story, studied several staged versions, added parts and experimented with dialogue and blocking to make the production fresh, light and humorous, as well as satisfying for all

Robin Jones is Cinderella. The Prince is played by Devin Tackett. Slade Stumbo plays the role of the Wicked Stepmother. Sondra Bormes and Melissa Halbert are the mean stepsisters; and Marti Potter and Alelei Singayao are cast as the good fairy godmother and the evil fairy godmother, which is a creative departure from the traditional story.

Other high school students play supporting roles. And dance pieces will be performed by kindergarten and second grade students, who play the mice and white horses. Strauss waltzes will be played during the palace ball scene.

For the production, the students have not only studied their parts but have built the stage and sets and been active in all aspects of the play's development from scripting to lighting to makeup.

Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre contributed costumes and materials to make it possible.

Emma Road Worries Voiced As Floyd Fiscal Court Meets

By Tim Sizemore

A group of concerned Emma residents attended last Friday's meeting of the Floyd Fiscal Court to voice concerns about the condition of roads in their community and seek help in having road work there included in the proposed budget for 1988 to '89, which received its first of three readings at the meeting.

County Judge Executive John M. Stumbo explained to the group the purpose of the meeting and told them that decisions as to how the money will be allotted can't be made until the budget is approved. Although the judge was sympathetic to the plight of the citizens, he could not commit himself or the court to the project until the fiscal court finds out how much revenue it will receive.

Oakley Sparks, an Emma resident, said that the damaged condition of the road was due primarily to coal truck traffic over the last few years. Judge Stumbo explained to Sparks that the county cannot pave coal haul roads since the two inches of blacktop used cannot Sparks told the judge he believed mining was at an end because the mines had shut down adding that the dust is unbearable at times and is a definite health problem.

The judge executive explained to the residents that the county is responsible for 465 miles of roads and that the state takes $177,500,000 in coal severance money off the top before the county receives any revenue. Stumbo went on to explain that the county receives 40% of all monies collected thereafter.

The only other business conducted at the meeting was the transferral of $2,400.00 to the jail fund to meet the $ payroll.

The next meeting of the Floyd Fiscal Court will be May 27 at 10:00 a.m.

GOV. WALLACE WILKINSON, speaking at a recent meeting at Pikeville, told area officials that the completion of U.S. 23 as a four-lane highway through this section of the state would be completed during his term.

Mine Rescue Contest

Saturday morning, May 21, at Wolf

Creek Collieries Mine No. 4 in Martin

County with one goal in mind...winning.

These miners will be participating in Wolf Creek Collieries Invitational

This annual contest is held to help miners develop and sharpen skills needed in the event of an actual mine emergency. Rescue teams of six members are asked to complete a problem in which they explore a mine, conducting any rescue and recovery work possible. During the drill, conditions are simulated to follow as nearly as possi-

Most mine rescue contests are held outdoors, with areas partitioned off to represent the mine and its workings. What is unique about this contest is the fact that it is held underground at a mine at the Wolf Creek site. Underground mine rescue contests are fairly common in Europe, but a rarity in this country.

Bill Prater, safety director for Wolf Creek Collieries, sponsor of the event, says that he is pleased with the way this contest has grown over the past few years. "Because of the time factor, we can only take four teams underground for the contest, but each of these teams will come away with a better understanding of what it is like to go underground following a mine fire or explosion," says

This is the sixth year for the contest.

Participants in this year's contest in-

"Little Strokes" May Signal Major Stroke, Is American Heart Association Warning

May is National High Blood Pressure Month. High blood pressure is the leading controllable risk factor for stroke.

About 10 percent of all strokes are preceded by "little strokes," according to John Fitts, M.D., president of the American Heart Association (AHA), Kentucky Affiliate.

The medical term for "little strokes" is transient ischemic attacks, or TIAs. A "little stroke" is a warning about a possible stroke.

Of those who have had one or more TIAs, 36 percent will later have a stroke, according to the AHA. In about 50 percent of the cases, the stroke occurs within one year of the TIA.

A stroke is a form of cardiovascular disease. It affects the arteries or veins of the central nervous system and stops the flow of blood bringing oxygen and nutrients to the brain. A stroke occurs when one of these blood vessels either bursts or becomes clogged with a blood clot. This causes part of the brain to die.

TIAs result when a blood clot temporarily clogs an artery going to the brain. The usual symptoms are like those of a full-fledged stroke:

 Weakness or numbness of the face, arm and leg on one side of the body. Loss of speech, or trouble talking or understanding speech.

understanding speech.

• Dimness or loss of vision, particularly in only one eye.

• Unexplained dizziness, unsteadiness or sudden falls.

The difference between a TIA and a major stroke is that a TIA lasts 24 hours or less.

"TIAs are extremely important warning signs for a stroke and shouldn't be ignored," said Fitts. Prompt treatment of these symptoms could prevent death or disability from a stroke."

Besides TIAs, the primary stroke risk factors that can be reduced by treatment are high blood pressure (the single biggest factor), heart disease and a high red blood cell count.

Elevated blood cholesterol, cigarette smoking, excessive drinking, physical inactivity, and obesity are secondary risk factors.

American Heart Association-funded researchers continue to explore ways to prevent stroke. Hundreds of lifesaving medical innovations are directly and indirectly due to the AHA's sponsorship of cardiovascular research.

Book Denotes Covered Bridge Enchantment

Since the early 1800s, thousands of covered bridges have lent a sense of enchantment to the eastern and midwestern landscapes of the United States. Their unusual beamed trusses offer unique patterns for photographers to capture on film. Their various roof lines and side coverings inspire the artistry of sketchers and painters alike.

Covered Bridges Today, published by Daring Books (ISBN 0-938936-72-7), is the only modern pictorial book which pinpoints the locations of these fast dwindling remnants of Americana.

Author Brenda Krekeler, who grew up in Williamsburg, O., near Cincinnati, tells us that Massachusetts, "the cradle of covered bridge building in America," has only five structures left of its briginal 100. Between 1834 and 1923, there were 600 covered bridges built in Indiana...now, 98 remain. Connecticut had 50-60 railroad and highway covered bridges which have dwindled to three in number.

At one time, there were over 200 bridges in New Hampshire. Today only 50 of these historic structures remain. Saving and preserving 25% of New Hampshire's covered bridges is quite an accomplishment in light of the fact that most states have retained less than 10% of their original number.

The more than 400 exterior and interior photographs with documentation found in the book offer historical and technical data which has never before been presented about covered bridges.

Covered Bridges Today emerges as a hand book providing locations and descriptions of bridges in Kentucky,
Connecticut, Indiana, Illinois, Maine,
Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan,
New Hampshire, New York, Pennsylvania, Vermont, Virginia, and West

Virginia.

Each bridge's unique personality is excellently represented. Basic information on the eighteen different designs of trusses existing in the U.S. helps the reader to identify different bridge styles. General information includes the date built, length, truss design, current condition of the bridge, characteristics and access, names of the builders, and the river or stream. The book includes a directional map to the location of each site, and addresses where county maps may be obtained.

Using more than 100 colored photographs, the author intrigues the reader with "covered bridge trivia." For example, Vermont's longest covered bridge holds the distinction of being the longest covered bridge in the United States. Its Cornish-Windsor Bridge is shared with New Hampshire as the 460-foot structure spans the Connecticut River. Pennsylvania boasts of the oldest covered bridge which was built in 1812. A list of covered bridge associations, festivals, and terminology is also included.

EPA-Dubious Protector

Kentucky, like a number of other states, recently passed legislation to place restrictions on the siting of hazardous waste facilities. Kentucky's SB 169 gives local governments a voice in the siting of hazardous waste incinerators. This law was developed with considerable input from citizens. The legislature also passed a waste reduction bill to establish an information center to assist industry with hazardous waste reduction.

In November 1987, the Atlanta regional office of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) began proceedings against North Carolina, which also enacted legislation restricting the siting of hazardous waste incinerators. In January 1988, six members of the U.S. Senate Committee on Environment and Public Works wrote the EPA administrator to point out that federal law guarantees North Carolina (and all states) the right to pass such a statute, and that EPA itself was acting "in violation of the law."

Subsequently, EPA temporarily ceased the North Carolina action until an agency task force could develop a national policy on consistency between state and federal laws on this issue. However, before the task force study was completed, EPA-Atlanta wrote a letter to Kentucky suggesting that EPA might take action against Kentucky as it had against North Carolina. According to the staff of the Senate subcommittee reviewing this issue, EPA-Atlanta wrote this letter without the knowledge of the subcommittee or EPA officials in Washington, D.C.

It is unfortunate that the EPA is resorting to blackmail tactics as it bends to the winds of the hazardous waste industry. It is ironic that EPA should initiate action against North Carolina, which has been a leader in developing waste reduction programs. It appears that EPA is determined to keep the door open to waste handlers bent on delivering the nation's waste to vulnerable areas of the South. It would be far more productive if EPA's limited resources were focused on developing cooperative efforts with the states aimed at permanent solutions to hazardous waste problems. Kentucky has taken a strong initiative in that direction. EPA could do well to learn from our state's example. JEAN ENGLERT TRUE, Chairperson

Thanks Fire Department

We, the members of the eighth grade health classes of Prestonsburg Elementary, would like to thank Major Larry Adams for teaching us first aid and safety procedures and the responsibilities of a fireman.

During the sessions that spanned eight days, he taught us about CPR, shock, broken bones, and bandaging.

On Thursday, April 21, he took us to the Prestonsburg Fire Department. There we experienced the fun side of firefighting as we sprayed the firehose, climbed the ladder truck, and put on breathing apparatus.

The films, on the other hand, showed us the more serious side of life. We saw how fires are extinguished and how people are injured or killed in the process. We also saw films on seat-belt safety and how to treat shock.

It was a unique learning experience and was greatly enjoyed by each and every student.

> Thank you, Eighth grade students Prestonsburg Elementary

Seeks Haws Family Info

It all started in 1978 with my nephew handing me a copy of "Edgar County, II", a history about George W. Haws, who was born in Floyd county, Ky., in 1817. He was my great-grandfather. My grandfather, who came from Edgar county, Okla., died in 1916. I decided to get involved in genealogy and trace Azreel Haws, from Floyd county. It would take me about a month, maybe two (or so I thought).

Since 1978, through the postoffice, I have been to the National Archives about ten times, which had the name on record but no information; the Floyd County courthouse, which provided more information than any other source; the University of Kentucky (newspaper microfilms); Kentucky State Archives, and have consulted many histories of Kentucky. I have 75 sheets of court records from Floyd county court order book of 1803-1813. Samuel Sr., Samuel Jr., Robert and John Haws were judges. Sampson Haws, a constable, resigned in 1811. Azreel Haws showed up the same year. We have marriage records. Most of the marriages were performed by Robert Haws. I have a file cabinet full of data for the subname, Haws, whose descendants are also in search of kin from Kentucky. A Haws descendant from New Mexico is looking for John Haws; and we are looking for our Azreel Haws.

In Floyd county Order Book No. 3, page 26, there is recorded a statement by Samuel Haws, concerning his Revolutionary War pension, which, along with others, was sent to the War Department (no record of this in the National Archives). The search for the information we need keeps coming back to Floyd county. I have sure learned lots about your beautiful Kentucky, but not too much about the Haws clan. But, it seems, everybody's descendants came from or through Kentucky. If someone should know, would they please tell me who the parents of Azreel Haws were? Was his father Robert Haws (Hawes) who was with Captain Mathias Harman? We know they lived somewhere around the Licking River, in the Sandy Precinct. Or were Samuel, Sr., and the others his brothers? Samuel, Jr., died in 1811. Sampson went to Alabama in 1814, we believe. Azreel came to Indiana in 1820. Last record of Samuel Haws, Sr., was in Floyd county in 1824. We would like very much to trade information with anyone in Floyd county whose descendants may have come this way.

Thank you for your interest and your

Shaker's Dixie Belle Launches 7th Season

"Cast the stern! Cast the bow!...Sternline gone! Headline gone! All gone!" The seasoned crew of the paddlewheel riverboat, Dixie Belle, launches her into the seventh full season at the Shaker Village of Pleasant Hill, near Harrodsburg, Kentucky.

A sure sign of spring in the restored village is the activity at Shaker Landing on the Kentucky River. The Dixie Belle crew repairs, paints and swabs the sternwheeler in preparation for Coast Guard inspection and the launching of the six month schedule of daily riverboat rides. The 1988 season began April 23 and ends October 30.

Since 1981, visitors to Pleasant Hill have been able to experience the history, lore and natural beauty of the Kentucky River in one-hour riverboat rides aboard the Dixie Belle.

In 1987, Shaker Village expanded the interpretive program to include River Ventures. These one and one-half hour cruises feature guest speakers and highlight specific aspects of river life and history.

Stretches of the Kentucky River remain untouched and in their primeval state. The dramatic limestone cliffs that line the meandering gorge contain an unequalled collection of plant life, and birds by the thousands nest and feed among the cliffs and trees.

But the serene beauty of the river valley today belies its history. In the 19th century the Kentucky was the Shakers' highway of commerce. By 1814, they operated mills and ferry boats on its course. At Shaker Landing flatboats were loaded with superior products and floated to Louisville, Natchez and New Orleans markets via the Kentucky, Ohio and Mississippi rivers. By mid-century, steamboats plied the winding stream, delivering and loading passengers and goods. A short distance upriver from Shaker Landing is High Bridge, which, upon completion in 1877, was believed to be the highest railroad bridge ever constructed.

River Ventures begin Saturday, May 21, featuring "Paul Sawyier's Kentucky River." Frankfort's Paul Sawyier Galleries owner, William H. Coffey, will speak and lead the discussion.

All riverboat departures are subject to river and weather conditions, and previous charters. Those who plan a riverboat trip should call ahead to confirm times of departure. Reservations will be accepted for the River Venture excursions

The Shaker Village of Pleasant Hill is a National Historic Landmark with touring, dining, lodging and shopping in original 19th century buildings. Located on 2800 acres of Shaker farmlands in the bluegrass region of Kentucky, it is 25 miles southeast of Lexington, and 80 miles southeast of Louisville.

For further information or reservations write: Shaker Village of Pleasant Hill, 3500 Lexington Road, Harrodsburg, Kentucky 40330 or call (606) 734-5411.

Giardina Wins Award

Kentucky authors Denise Giardina of Prestonsburg and Rodger Cunningham of London have won the 18th annual W.D. Weatherford Awards for outstanding writing about Appalachia.

Giardina is the author of "Storming Heaven," the historical novel based on the struggle to unionize West Virginia and eastern Kentucky coalfields in the 1920's. Cunningham's "Apples on the Flood: The Southern Mountain Experience" is a non-fiction study that traces the Appalachian character back to the Middle Ages.

The Weatherford Awards, sponsored by the Berea College Appalachian Center and Hutchins Library, were presented Friday at Boone Tavern Hotel. The annual competition recognizes works published anywhere in the United States that illuminate the problems, personalities and unique qualities of the Appalachian South.

Giardina was born in Bluefield, West Va., and grew up in a coal camp. Her second major novel, "Storming Heaven" was published by Norton & Company and has been a Book-of-the-Month Club selection. In the novel, the issues and events that led to the Battle of Blair Mountain, where 10,000 miners were defeated by U.S. Army troops and coal company mercenaries, are described from the viewpoints of four narrators.

In "Apples on the Flood," published by the University of Tennessee Press, Cunningham finds the Appalachian character rooted in events which occurred in the Scottish border areas during the 12th and 13th centuries. Descendants of the Lowland Scots found themselves first in Ulster, and later in Southern Appalachia. In both locations, Cunningham argues, the settlers were on the outer periphery of a culture and were denied full status.

Cunningham, who also is a West Virginia native, teaches at Sue Bennett College.

In previous years, the Weatherford Writing Award has honored such works as Eliot Wigginton's "Sometimes a Shining Moment." John Ehle's "Last One Home," "Generations" by John Egerton, Ron Eller's "Miners, Millhands and Mountaineers" and Gurney Norman's "Kinfolks." Special Weatherford Awards have been presented to Robert Coles, Wilma Dykeman, Jesse Stuart, Harry Caudill, James Still, Harriette Simpson Arnow and Cratis Williams.

The award was established by A.H. Perrin of Berea to honor the late W.D. Weatherford Sr., long-time pioneer in Appalachian development, youth work and race relations. Weatherford died in 1970.

Food Pantry Opening Set .

FOODBANK WEEK was proclaimed, May 15-21 by Prestonsburg Mayor Ann Latta in recognition of the official opening, tomorrow, of God's Pantry-East Foodbank in West Prestonsburg. Mayor Latta pointed out that the distribution center, here, will help not only Floyd county but surrounding counties and service programs located in those counties. Pictured from left to right are Mary Jo Vortruba, Mayor Latta and Rev. Timothy Jessen.

Dedication and grand opening ceremonies for God's Pantry-East will be held tomorrow Thursday, at 2 p.m. at the Foodbank warehouse in West Prestonsburg.

Judge Executive John Stumbo and Prestonsburg City Administrator Fred James will participate in the ribbon cutting at 2:30 p.m.

At noon tomorrow, Mary Jo Votruba, executive director of God's Pantry will present a luncheon program to the Rotary Club at the Holiday Inn, here. She will explain foodbanking, what programs are eligible to participate, what kinds of food donations are needed and how volunteers are utilized in the God's Pantry-East Foodbank acts as a clearinghouse for food and non-food products from local, regional and national donors that have been overproduced, are nearing expiration date, are partially damaged or mislabeled but are still usable. These products are distributed to non-profit agencies with on-site feeding programs and emergency food box programs that serve needy infants and children, the infirm, elderly and handicapped. Day care centers, nursing homes, halfway houses, soup kitchens, children's homes and emergency food pantries are the principle users of these products. Foodbanking prevents usable food from going to waste and channels this food to hungry people.

The primary warehouse is located in Lexington, but this new site allows us to better serve non-profit agencies in Eastern Kentucky who will use foodbank products in their service to the needy. Non-profit agencies from Floyd, Breathitt, Harlan, Johnson, Knott, Leslie, Letcher, Perry, Pike and Magoffin counties are eligible to obtain product from the Prestonsburg site.

In recognition of the foodbank's opening and its importance to the community land surrounding area, Mayor Ann Latta has proclaimed May 15-21 Foodbank Week in Prestonsburg.

GARFIELD SLONE

STATE REPRESENTATIVE 92ND DISTRICT

Hello Again!

Less than a week to go, so I'll summarize some of what I've been talking about the last couple of months.

My name is Garfield Slone. I am the only son of Elbert and Merkie Slone of Pippa Passes. I have two sisters, Lola Jean Hall of Pine Top, and Anna B. Chaffins of Leburn. My grandparents were the late Vince and Susie Slone of Isom, and the late Green and Rhoda Slone of Hollybush. My great-grandparents were Isom Slone and Sarah Owens Slone, Andy and Nancy Adams Slone, Isom L. and Linda Slone, and Ad and Teney Reynolds Slone.

I am married to Sharon, the daughter of Verner and Layne Bates, of Garner. She is the grand-daughter of Roscoe and Della Hall Bates of Kite and the late Troy Watts and Isie Amburgey Watts of Garner. We have four children, Michelle 16, Shasta 8, Brett 7, and Seth, 3. Sharon has three sisters, Linda Sullivan, Karen Profitt and Sheila Fugate.

I graduated from Alice Lloyd in 1970, when it was a 2-year college and attended Morehead State University in 1971 and 1972. I have sought office only once before and was fortunate to win and serve as Magistrate of District 4 from 1974 to 1978. Shortly after that, my dad retired, so my mom and I have been operating Slone's Grocery at Pippa Passes.

MY RECORD SPEAKS FOR ITSELF; I ASSISTED IN:

- (1) Getting the Human Services Center and swimming pool. (We voted on this in late 1975 and early 1976)
- (2) Starting and constructing the Knott County Nursing Home. (We voted on this Aug. 21, 1975)
- (3) Approved plans for the renovation of the Knott County Court House (I'm not sure about the exact date; I have a copy where we voted on this but no date appears on the copy.)
- (4) Voted on numerous things for our school children, such as—tennis courts at Knott Central and contributions for baseball (Oct. 1, 1975), pavement at Hindman Elementary (May 5, 1976), gates for Caney Elementary (March 3, 1976), pavement for Beaver Creek Elementary (Oct. 1, 1975), Morton Combs Athletic Center—one of the most important facilities for children in our area, gates at Beckham Combs Elementary (April 21, 1976).
- (5) Helped get building and equipment for Knott County Rescue Fund (April 21 and June 2, 1976).

I could go on and on—but I'm sure you're tired of reading this. The point I'm trying to make—I don't just say I'll do things and then forget them—I really do get things done.

Vote for me next Tuesday and I will do everything in my power to curb the rising cost of all our bills, lower and try to eliminate taxes on truckers, try to stimulate interest in our region's coal and make education a top priority and do everything I possibly can to bring jobs into our area—so we can keep our young people at home.

This vote is very important. You must decide—do you want more of the same or are you ready for our area to move forward?? If you want us to move forward—cast your vote for me on May 24th—I truly believe that, with your help—I can be our "PATHWAY TO THE FUTURE."

Thank You and God Bless You!

What if your child needed emergency care right now.

And no one could reach you.

An accident or sudden illness can occur anywhere, anytime. When your child is at the day care center. At an athletic event. At home with a sitter. Or, at school. What if you were at work or out-of-town and couldn't be reached?

That's why it's good to know that we're nearby and ready to help—24 hours a day, seven days a week. Our emergency care center is staffed by respected, knowledgeable physicians and a team of experienced health care professionals who are always available. And, they're backed by the full resources of our hospital, if ever needed. In our modern, well-equipped emergency care center, you can be sure that your child will receive our very best at any hour of the day or night.

But, we need your authorization to help.

Our Minors Authorization Program allows you to file—in advance—an authorization that would permit designated individuals to act on your behalf if your child needs medical attention while you're away. By enrolling your child, you'll also be providing us with potentially life-saving information that we'd need to know in the event of an emergency. Your child's drug or food allergies. Special medical conditions that exist. Medications your child regularly takes.

Registering your child in the program is easy. Just call. We'll rush an easy-to-complete form to you with all the details.

But do it now. Enroll your child right away. Then, rest easy. Because we're easy to reach in an emergency. Even when you're not.

Social Security

By JIM KELLY Social Security District Director For the Big Sandy Area

Time Limits On Appeals

A person who wishes to appeal a decision on a Social Security or Supplemental Security Income (SSI) claim should make certain that the request is submitted within the specified time limits, Jim Kelly, Social Security Director for the Big Sandy Area, said recently.

If a request for a review is not submitted before the end of the time limit, the person may lose his or her rights to that review and may not be eligible for the next step in the review process. When the last day of a time limit falls on a Saturday, Sunday, or national holiday, the time limit is extended to the next workday. A person may not want to take advantage of all the review steps, Kelly said. But anyone who wants to do so must follow them in order.

You can file your appeal by calling the Social Security office.

Additional information about the appeals process for either Social Security or Supplemental Security Income can be obtained from the Big Sandy Area Social Security office, located on U.S. 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville. The telephone number is listed in the telephone directory under U.S. Government.

QUESTION: My mother had breast cancer five years ago. Last year two tumors were found to have spread to her brain. She had radiation treatments which stopped the growth of the tumors. Now, they are growing again but the doctor says she has had all the radiation possible. He has put her on steroids to reduce the swelling in her brain. When I asked him about giving her chemotherapy, he told me he didn't think it would help because the drugs which help in breast cancer would not reach the brain because of the blood brain barrier. Can you explain this to me?

ANSWER: The blood brain barrier is a network of fine blood vessels and cells which filter the blood entering the brain. These blood vessels allow for the passage of food and oxygen into the brain and for the return of waste products but no not to allow any toxic chemicals or substances which may harm the brain to enter. In most cases, this works to our advantage, but in the case of anticancer drugs (chemotherapy), it will let few of them enter the brain to do their work

Research is currently underway using a variety of techniques to deliberately disrupt the blood brain barrier temporarily to allow chemotherapy to enter the brain. In addition to the limitations of the blood brain barrier, the growth patterns of tumors in the brain may also limit the effectiveness of the drugs once they are in the brain. Therefore, the exact role of chemotherapy in the treatment of brain tumors remains unclear and will require further study.

QUESTION: Now that I am 50, my doctor has recommended a yearly mammogram. I have no lumps or other signs of breast cancer. I'm quite concerned about the risk of radiation in a mammogram. Isn't it true that radiation can cause breast cancer? Can you explain the rationale for a test that might cause cancer for a person who has no signs of a problem? How can I be sure getting mammogram is safe?

ANSWER: We can understand your concern about the value and safety of mammograms (breast x-rays). However, screening mammograms (looking for cancer in the absence of symptoms) are advised for all women over 50, on a yearly basis, by both the American Cancer Society and the National Cancer Institute.

When used as a screening tool, a mammogram can often detect suspicious growths when they are very small, long before a lump forms that a woman or her doctor could feel. If cancer is found before a lump can be felt, it tends to be small and localized and more curable. Small breast cancers which have not spread to the underarm lymph nodes or elsewhere have a 10-year survival rate of more than 90 percent. .

The radiation exposure from today's modern low dose breast x-ray equipment is minimal. There is little, if any, concern that a mammogram could cause a breast cancer to develop. The risk is outweighed by the much more common occurrence of finding an early breast cancer in a woman over 50.

For more information on mammography, call the Cancer Information Service (CIS) at 1-800-4-CANCER. Or write to the CIS at the Markey Cancer Center, 800 Rose Street, Lexington, Ky. The CIS is a service of the Kentucky Community Cancer Program.

VA Policy Change Benefits Pensioners

The Veterans Administration has amended its regulations to allow pension beneficiaries to receive monthly payments if less frequent payments cause loss of other federal benefits.

"For a retired veteran or surviving spouse living on supplemental Social Security, the new VA policy is very important," says John Hagan, Director, Louisville VA Regional Office.

Hagan gave the example of a veteran's widow who received $323 a month from supplemental Social Security and $10 a month in VA pension. Her monthly income could not exceed $360, or her supplemental Social Security Insurance and Medicaid benefits would

Because her VA pension was only $10 a month, a $60 check was issued only twice a year. As a result, twice a year her monthly income exceeded limits imposed by Social Security, making her ineligible for Medicare. In addition to losing food stamp and Medicare benefits for a month, she had to reapply to reestablish her eligibility, he said.

"To prevent other federal benefits from being denied, the new policy allows VA pension recipients to request monthly payment," he said.

"If you need to have your pension checks paid monthly, write to the Louisville VA Regional Office and list the federal benefits that are in jeopardy.

The aggress of the Louisville VA Regional Office is 600 Federal Place, Louisville, Kentucky 40202. For more information, phone 1/800-292-4562.

VA pensions are paid to wartime veterans with limited incomes who are totally disabled or age 65 and older, and to survivors. The amount of pension is based on income and changes in marital or dependency status.

Eastern Ky. Parks Expansion Planned

Several state parks in Eastern Kentucky will be expanding existing facilities as a result of the 1988-1990 Kentucky executive budget passed by the Kentucky General Assembly and approved by Gov. Wallace Wilkinson.

A portion of the capital construction budget will go toward the construction of meeting rooms at Jenny Wiley, Greenbo, and Pine Mountain state resort

At Jenny Wiley, the project includes not only a meeting room overlooking the lake, but also a parking lot with spaces for 150 cars.

The addition at Greenbo will contain a meeting room with a seating capacity of 200 people, office space, an expanded gift shop and a library which will house a collection of Jesse Stuart memorabilia. The library will include space for book stacks, a reading area and a display area. The new Pine Mountain meeting room will be in the lodge adjacent to the Ray Harm Room and will seat approximately 250.

Meeting rooms at state parks may be reserved for events such as conventions, business and civic club meetings, wedding receptions and family reunions.

Plans are underway and monies provided for what will be the 45th Kentucky state park near Yatesville. The Army Corps of Engineers has scheduled the impoundment of a lake at Yatesville in the spring of 1990. The project was authorized for flood control, water quality control, general recreation and fish and wildlife recreation.

The lake will be entirely in Lawrence county on Blaine Creek, a tributary of the Big Sandy River. The Kentucky Department of Parks and the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources will cooperate on a project at Yatesville which includes roads, parking, utilities and a boat ramp at Barker's Run.

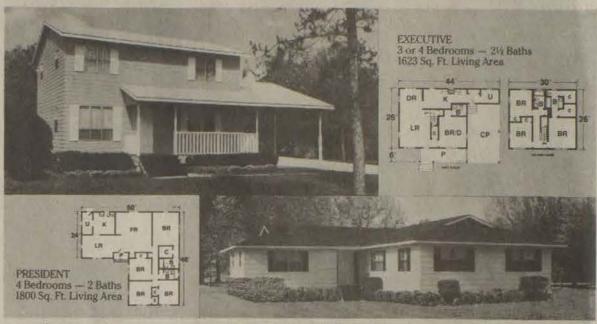

Another construction project at an Eastern Kentucky park is an addition to the dining room at Natural Bridge State Resort Park in the Daniel Boone National Forest near Slade. The expansion at Natural Bridge will feature dining in a solarium atmosphere. The new dining room addition will extend over the hillside and offer a view of the lake and surrounding forest area.

Approximately $3.2 million of the capital construction budget was allocated for each of the next two fiscal years for major maintenance projects in the state parks. This allocation will enable the Kentucky State Park system to maintain services at the current level and to initiate projects such as renovations, expansion of existing park facilities and road improvements and repairs.

MY PLATFORM FOR THE EDUCATION. VIRONMENT AND ECONOMY OF EASTERN KENTUCKY

I have chosen to live in Eastern Kentucky because of my love for the mountains and people of Eastern Kentucky. I have chosen to teach in Eastern Kentucky because of my belief that education is the key to the future of the mountains and people of Eastern Kentucky in the 1990s and into the 21st Century.

I have chosen to run to represent the 92nd District in the Kentucky House of Representatives because of my knowledge of the issues, my experience in Frankfort as KEA President, and my dedication to bring positive change to Eastern Kentucky.

EDUCATION

I pledge to work for the development and adoption of a 1990 to 2000 state education improvement program with sufficient funding that educators, parents, business, labor, and the public can support. Such a program should include pre-school, higher, and adult education. K-12 emphasis should be on basic and problem solving skills, the arts, and on vocational, health and physical education. The program should include professionalizing teaching through a teacher licensure board, professional negotiations, and professional salaries, benefits, and teaching conditions.

ENVIRONMENT

I pledge to work for the development and passage of state programs, coordinated with federal and local programs, to protect and improve the physical and social environment in which we live. Kentucky must promote safe water through county wide or river valley water districts. Kentucky must promote the clean-up of the sewage, garbage, and industrial wastes that pollute our state. Kentucky must support adequate reclamation of our land and protection of our land through The Broad Form Deed Amendment, adopted for coal and expanded to other natural resources. We must promote adequate roads, health and welfare services, and aid to local police and volunteer fire and rescue squads.

ECONOMY

I pledge to work to use our tax dollars to promote the education, environment, and economy of Eastern Kentucky. Power equalization funds must be increased to provide equal education opportunities for our students. The unmined minerals tax required by the Supreme Court must exempt our homeplaces and provide increased dollars for our schools and local governments. Taxes on coal trucking must be fair and earmarked to improve our coal haul roads. More coal severance taxes must be returned to us and earmarked for coal utilization research in our state universities and coal marketing programs through our commerce department. As we work to promote the best use of our coal, we must recognize the declining number of jobs in mining and work to promote agricultural, forestry, manufacturing, and service industries in Eastern Kentucky. We must implement Kelsey Friend's Economic Development Act.

Unusual Viral Disease Threatens Kentucky Wheat

A wheat disease that has been identified in Kentucky only once before now. has been positively identified in a field in Marion county.

Wheat streak mosaic virus can infect a field of wheat and in a matter of days after the first symptoms develop reduce yields, in severe cases, to the point where it is no longer economical to harvest it," said Dick Stuckey, University of Kentucky Extension plant

The disease, he said, has been quite severe in Kansas and Nebraska wheat fields this year.

The confirmed case was reported in Marion county and other suspected cases are being studied, Stuckey said. Initial pathology reports for those fields were inconclusive and serological samples have been sent to Cornell University for further testing.

One of the symptoms of the disease include the vellowing of the top three leaves of the growing plant. The yellowing is the color of a legal note pad. Streaking of leaves may be present in some wheat varieties. In the field, the plants appear in patches at first observation, he said

The viral disease is transmitted by the wheat curl mite, which is about 1/100 of an inch in length and looks much like a speck of pollen. On closer observation, very reduced front legs can be seen. It is found often on the leaf vein of the growing wheat plant. The mite can be carried either by wind or by flying insects, according to Lee Townsend, an Extension entomologist with the College of Agriculture.

We were able to make positive identification of the mite's presence in the Marion county field and in some other fields where the disease is suspected, Townsend said.

The mite also damages the wheat plants, causing curling of the flag leaf, sometimes so tightly that the emerging grain spike cannot break through the curl, Townsend said.

The mite has not been extensively identified in Kentucky before now, although it was found in Ohio in 1969 and 1970, Townsend said.

If the disease strikes a field early, the grain spikes emerge without grain kernels present. If it strikes later, the spikes have only a few kernels, Stuckey

The two scientists hope to make a positive identification of what disease is infecting the other fields. At that time, they will issue a statement concerning what farmers can do about infected

"Fields that have been positively identified as being infected by the disease may need to be plowed under if the infestation is severe," Stuckey said.

The mite can also carry the virus to corn fields and cause disease in the

"Although the cause of the vellowing in the fields is still under investigation, we are sure that it is not a fungal disease that can be cured by use of fungicides,' Stuckey said.

Back Payment Checks Limited, S.S. Says

People who delay applying for Social Security retirement or survivor benefits for some time after they become eligible may miss out on some checks, Jim Kelly, Social Security Director for the Big Sandy Area, said recently

This is because the number of months for which back payments can be made is limited.

in general, people who apply for retirement or survivor benefits after they reach 65 can get back benefits for up to 6 months before the month they apply, but not before the month of their 65th birthday

People who apply for reduced benefits before 65 generally cannot get benefits for any month before the month they

People who apply for benefits because they are disabled-workers, adult children, widows, and widowers-can get benefits for up to 12 months before the month they apply if they are eligible in all other ways.

People can save time when they do apply for benefits if they have the necessary documents ready, Kelly said. This includes the person's Social Security card or record of the number, birth certificate, W-2 forms or self-employment tax return for the past year and marriage and death certificates, if appropriate. They also need divorce and military records.

Indonesian Cooking-

The Flavors of The Spice Islands

From the American Institute for Cancer Research

The trend in American cooking is shifting away from "plain" fare to more interesting, exotic and spicy cuisine. The U.S. now imports nearly 300 million pounds of assorted spices each year, and we grow another 100 million pounds here at home. With this kind of interest in flavors and seasonings, the cooking of Indonesia-home of the Spice Islandsholds a wealth of recipe ideas for adventurous American cooks.

Indonesian cooking, which has Indian, Chinese, Arabian and Dutch Colonial influences, tends to be a healthy blend of foods and cooking techniques. Chicken is used much more widely than higher fat meats, and Indonesians have a host of great ideas for serving seafood. In-

Old Roses Come Into Their Own, Again

By INK MENDELSOHN Smithsonian News Service

"Old roses don't need all that much attention. They have to have some sun, and you have to keep the critters from browsing. Of course, you don't have many browsers in Washington, D.C." Bill Welch lingers over that thought ever so tantalizingly and adds, "unless you count the lobbyists."

Dr. William Welch, landscape horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, partisan of old roses and pluperfect practitioner of legendary Texas hospitality, is having a little fun with his guests from the nation's capital. Sent by the Smithsonian News Service to Navasota, Texas, and environs to cover the ninth annual "Old Rose Rustle," this reporter—along with husband Bob, who is handling the horsepower; Pamela Puryear, historian and self-described "lily-in-the-field," and Welch—is bound for Weimar, Texas. Moving across rolling countryside peppered with oaks, pecans and yaupon holly and populated with cattle, fire ants and armadillos, the group is on the trail of horticultural history.

The Texas Rose Rustlers are riding out in all manner of vehicles to "round up" antique roses—many of them around for at least 100 years. Some are descendants of roses that may have been growing somewhere on Earth thousands of years ago. The American Rose Society defines an old rose as a variety introduced before the debut in 1867 of the first Hybrid Tea rose, the seductive, silvery-pink 'La France.'

For much of the 20th century, the popularity of the Hybrid Tea, so familiar in gardens and flower shops to-day, pushed the old rose classes with such names as China, Gallica and Hybrid Perpetual out of sight, out of mind and out of commerce.

"Thousands of varieties have been lost," Margaret Sharpe says. "We know of many that once existed by looking in the old garden catalogs." The chairman of the Texas Rose Rustlers is ever optimistic, however. "Occasionally, somebody comes up with one that's been missing." The lure of coming up with a rare find spurs rose rustlers on.

The Texas Rose Rustlers and other rosarians belong to a nationwide fellowship, the Heritage Roses Group, that aims to preserve, propagate and popularize old roses. Once again appearing in a growing number of nurseries are such favorites of yesteryear as 'American Beauty,' a Hybrid Perpetual t hat "Diamond" Jim Brady sent actress Lillian Russell by the roomful to express his love. 'Old Blush,' a China rose in Europe after 1752 but thought to have been cultivated in China for many centuries, is also popular.

It was love at first sight for Pam Puryear when, in 1969, she first spotted 'Old Blush'—although she did not then know it by name—in front of an abandoned log cabin. 'Old Blush' was, she recalls fondly, "blooming its head off" in the thick August heat of central Texas, "and it hadn't rained for months. At the time, I was being sweet as pie to 'Sterling Silver' (a Hybrid Tea rose), and all I had to show for it was three brown sticks." Puryear dug up her plentifully flowering pink prize and transplanted it to her yard, where it continues its promiscuous blooming ways. Thus the appeal of old roses—"A rose should exist to please you, not you to please it," Puryear advises.

It wasn't exactly the War of the Roses, but in years past, "old rosers" and the American Rose Society folks haven't been on the same side of the garden fence. "Those fellows wanted to grow these exotic things with leaves as big as your hand and blooms like cabbages," Puryear says, describing the ARS emphasis on extravagent Hybrid Teas.

"The ARS was started by nurserymen and growers who were interested in marketing new varieties," Barbara Whitford, the chairwoman of the Society's Old Rose Committee relates. "But times change, and today the ARS is much more accepting of old roses than it used to be. We have the Hudson Old Rose Garden at our headquarters in Shreveport, La., and often as many as 30 old-rose categories in our ARS National Rose Shows."

Sub rosa, however, there remains an undercurrent of partisan feelings. "I plant old and new roses because I like variety," Whitford says, "but there are lots of rosarians who wouldn't have an old rose in the garden."

More and more gardeners are interested in heritage roses, nurseryman Mike Shoup finds. Shoup and his wife Jean specialize in the historic blooms at their Antique Rose emporium in Brenham, Texas. They raise and sell more than 400 different varieties, a number of which they have propagated from cuttings collected by the Rose Rustlers.

"With all the inbreeding and cross-breeding of the Hybrid Teas, trying to get a perfect flower and long stems, such vital qualities as fragrance and disease resistance often have been lost," Shoup explains. Throughout the 19th century, breeders tried to create a yellow rose. At last they succeeded, but with 'Rayon d'Or—the first yellow Hybrid Tea—came an epidemic of black spot that still blights roses today. "Most old roses are hardier, have a true rose fragrance and are easier to care for," Shoup says.

"I water them the first year, and then they're on their own," Raleigh, N.C., horticulturist Charles Walker says of the old roses he grows from cuttings rooted directly in open ground. "Chemicals? I just don't bother with them." Walker's secret for successful old-rose growing is to choose varieties that demonstrably flourish in one's area. "Mother Nature has already done the weeding-out for you."

James Buckler, director of the Smithsonian's Office of Horticulture, agrees. "Grow new England roses in New England and Texas roses in Texas, and you'll have the perfect roses for that place," he says. "Rose breeders are like high-couture designers. They create new roses to keep gardeners interested and excited. Roses come into and go out of fashion. Balancing that is the growing movement to preserve old roses for the sake of research and history."

It is a history that began long before the evolution of homo sapiens. Just how far back into prehistoric time rose roots reach is uncertain, but recognizable roses have been found in 32-million-year-old fossil deposits in Colorado and Oregon. Some roses are native to the United States, but most evolved in the Middle East, Europe and Asia. Over the centuries, species roses—those occurring naturally in the temperate zone—were cross-pollinated by nature's agents: insects, birds, water and wind, creating new varieties. Some horticultural historians speculate that garden cultivation of roses began in China some 5,000 years ago.

European botanists, in the late-18th century searching for worthy garden plants, discovered in China and the Far East roses that, unlike their own once-blooming types, bloomed continuously. Plant sexuality was at this time becoming better understood. Botanists and horticulturists discovered that hybridization—the process by which pollen from one plant is placed on the receptive pistil of another, ultimately creating an "offspring" different from its "parents"—could be accomplished manually, without waiting for nature to take its quixotic course.

The Orientals—Chinas and Teas—were crossed with the European classes—Gallicas, Musks, Centifolias and Damasks. Born were such new classes of roses as Noisettes, Bourbons, Portlands, Polyanthas, Hybrid Perpetuals, Hybrid Musks and the Hybrid Teas.

There were more than 1,000 cultivars—varieties of roses under cultivation—by the beginning of the 19th century. Exhaustive hybridization and technical advances in rose-growing created a seemingly endless rose parade in Victorian nurseries.

Rose petals have marked a colorful trail of American history: the white Damask planted by the Pilgrims in 1621; the red-and-white-striped 'Rosa Mundi' planted by Jefferson at Monticello; the pink rose of Castile brought to California from Spain by a French expedition; the purple, pink and white 'Cherokee' roses planted by that tribe along a Texas trail, and the 'Yellow Banksia'—thought to be the yellow rose of Texas—that made its way from China to Mexico and settled happily in Texas.

Meanwhile, back at the ranch in Weimar, Texas, shears at the ready to clip the slips that might make history, the rustlers are circling about 'Mrs. Dudley Cross,' a Tea rose at the home of Annie Martinez. At Lawrence Rose's cottage, there is a cream-colored rose, perhaps a China-Bourbon cross. Until it can be identified, it gets the study name 'Lawrence Rose'—a true case of 'rose is a rose.' At a dormered Victorian, the dudette from Washington gets her big chance to study-name an unknown. "How about 'Meantime'?" she asks. And 'Weimar's Meantime China' it becomes.

As the sun sets on Weimar, a rose-stated company heads for the local inn for refreshment and remembrances of rustles past. Pam recalls that "first real bonanza"—Bellville citizen Raymond Fisher's collection of roses inherited from his Austin County forebears. Two years later, Mr. Fisher died, and his garden was bulldozed. But the likes of 'Cramoisi Superieur,' and 'Paul's Scarlet' now live on in other gardens.

Legend and the Rose

Everybody knows that an individual standing beneath a sprig of mistletoe is risking a kiss from anyone who happens to be nearby. It is perhaps less well known that someone sitting under a rose is bound to keep a secret.

The origin of the phrase sub rosa has been attributed by an anonymous Latin poet to classical mythology. Apparently, Eros (Love) dedicated the rose—the special flower of his mother Venus—to Harpocrates, the God of Silence, so that Venus' love life might be kept "under the rose." Roses overhead as decorations on the ceilings of confessionals and council chambers were meant to symbolize secrecy. "In Congress, we are bound to secrecy, but, under the rose, I believe that ten thousand men will be maintained in Masschusetts," John Adams, second president of the United States, wrote in 1826 to a confidant.

Fact and fancy, perennial legends surround the rose. "Roses have had a major impact on human life for centuries," the Smithsonian's James Buckler says. Buckler, director of the Office of Horticulture, is currently researching the historical, artistic, medicinal, cosmetic and culinary aspects of the rose for a planned exhibition celebrating America's national flower—a bloom that has flourished in many cultures.

Roman emperors followed a custom of dropping rose petals on the heads of diners after a banquet. Heliogabalus, in the third century, gave roses a bad name for a long time to come when several of his guests suffocated under a shower of the velvety leaves.

Julius Caesar wore a garland of roses on his head—a fashion, it was said, he affected to hide advancing baldness. Had Caesar lived long enough, he might have benefited from the wisdom of the Roman naturalist Pliny, who, in about the year 77, discovered that "Wild Rose leaves reduced into liniment with bear's grease doth wonderfully make hair grow again."

A heady brew made with "old Red Rose water" was recommended by English writer Samuel Pepys "to wash the molligrubs out of a moody brain."

And this bit of advice was offered by the Old Testament: "Come then let us enjoy what good things there are; ... take our fill of the dearest wines and perfumes, let not one flower of springtime pass us by. Before they wither crown ourselves with roses."

A rose revolution swept the Victorian world, as advances in rose growing created "The Passion For Roses" shown in this 19th-century lithograph.

Texas Rose Rustler, Margaret Sharpe, on the annual "rustle" in Weimar, Texas, pronounces the scent of this Tea rose "as tea as tea can be."

Pamela Puryear, a founder of the Texas Rose Rustlers, wearing her infamous fat rose-and-tulle hat, shows off 'Maggie,' a fragrant and everblooming old rose.

'Clinton and Nadine' is a misfit love story

By Denise Gorga

Bringing together two misfits for romantic purposes has always been a film plot booster. The point, of course, is that each of them is so screwed up that only True Love with another loner will bring happiness ever after.

Barkin and Garcia

The HBO film "Clinton and Nadine," which premieres Saturday, May 28, makes this point obvious by pairing its two misfits in the film's title. Clinton Dillard, played by the scruffy, charismatic Andy Garcia ("The Untouchables"), is an exotic-bird smuggler who carts his psittacines across the Mexican border in an old Cadillac. Pouty Ellen Barkin ("The Big Easy") plays Nadine Powers, a former call girl who is trying to make a new life for herself and her baby.

Clinton has After feathered his nest with the bird business, he and his German shepherd head for his lawyer brother Robert's home in Jacksonville, intending to pay back some debts. What he finds is a trio of Spanish-speaking intruders (who soon flee), a cassette tape with a recording of an interrogation and murder, his brother's body, and a purse - left, we learn, by Nadine.

Clinton tracks Nadine down at a local motel and discovers that she was a friend of Robert's who was staying with him until she got back on her feet.

Then the fun begins. Clinton drives Nadine down to Miami, where she resumes her career and gets romantically involved with Clinton, Clinton tracks down his brother's killers, and winds up in Costa Rica, hunting contras - conveniently, at a party "hostby Nadine and company.

'Clinton and Nadine" is a watchable, entertaining love story - mainly because the title characters share those characteristics. Helping out are Michael Lombard, who is suitably slimy and corpulent as James Conrad, Nadine's high-class pimp, and Morgan Freeman, Brad Sullivan and John McGinley as the U.S. government big boys who pull the strings behind the contra operation.

We don't have to tell you that Clinton finds his brother's killers, that Nadine shrugs off the party girl's life for good, and that the two ride off into the sunset in a beat-up old Cadillac. The misfits always find a way.

Rod Steiger holds on with 'Desperado' role

By Paul Elie

"I have to adjust to being an older actor," says Rod Steiger, who stars this week in "Desperado: Avalanche at Devil's Ridge," an NBC movie airing Tues-day, May 24. "It's like Ib-'The Wild Duck': hear a younger generation banging at the door."

Rod Steiger

At 63, Steiger feels old. Nearly 35 years have passed since he supported Marlon Brando in "On the Waterfront" (1954), and two decades since he won a Best Actor Oscar as Sheriff Bill Gillespie in "In the Heat of the Night' 1967). But unlike Sidney Poitier, his "Heat" co-star, or Carroll O'Connor, who re-created the Gillespie role this season on NBC, Steiger is no elder states man. High regard, experience's most obvious reward, has eluded him.

So he is co-starring in "Desperado," the third of NBC's Westerns starring Alex McArthur as swing ing cowboy Duell McCall. Steiger plays Slaten, a domineering rancher and the father of Rachel (Alice Adair), whom McCall will rescue from rustlers. Like previous "Desperado" villains played by Robert Foxworth and Robert Vaughn, Slaten is present chiefly for Duell to dis-pose of him.

Steiger himself feels awfully disposable.

'The trouble these days is that by and large the scripts sent around are for much younger actors," he says. "You go from being the first-billed role to being the third-billed role The best way to explain it is the way it's done in the world of sports - brutally.

'It is easier to hold on in acting, though," he ad-mits. "They always need some older actors to fill

This time next year, we may hear Steiger de scribed as "venerable," "legendary," "a master." He is playing the mayor of York in "January Man," a drama written by Patrick Shanley ("Moonstruck") and di-rected by Pat O'Connor ("A Month in the Coun-") that will be released this fall. But for now, he is living from role to role

"One waits while all the roles are given to younger people," he says. "I'm always hoping to find some thing to fill the spaces between projects."

He feels that his work, at least, has not aged.

"Society's style of living anges, and doesn't match the style of living of say, 'The Ox-bow Inci-dent.' They say that society has advanced, they say a picture has 'dated. But great art surpasses any advances, since advanced to begin with. I don't think anything really good has dated yet.

Ferrigno wouldn't want to return in 'Hulk' series

By Wendy Wallace

"People are generally frightened by my size, says Lou Ferrigno. "But once they get to know me, they learn that I'm really a nice guy

Lou Ferrigno

It's been a decade since the 6-foot-5, 285-pound Ferrigno burst on the scene as the The Incredible Hulk, the huge, greenish comic-book character created by Stan Lee in 1962. Ferrigno and The Hulk became household names during the series' run from 1978 to 1982 on

On Sunday, May 22 Bill Bixby and Ferrigno will reprise their roles as scientist Dr. David Banner and his supernero alter ego in "The Incredible Hulk Returns,' a movie airing on NBC

In the series, an overdose of radiation caused Banner to turn into The Hulk whenever he became enraged. Now, though, he has developed a "gamma ray transponder," which he believes will reverse the damage his life forever.

But his experiment is interrupted by scientist Donald Blake (Steve Levitt), who has accidentally become the psychic channel for Thor (Eric Kramer), a Nordic superhero. And while Thor's presence in Banner's lab reawakens The Hulk power-hungry industrialists hijack the equipment and kidnap Banner's girlfriend Maggie (Lee Purcell). The Hulk and Thor combine forces to rescue the transponder, jeopardizing Banner's hopes of resuming a normal life.

Although I was happy to work with Bill again, I don't know if I'd want to do a weekly series," Ferrigno says. "But what I wouldn't mind doing is a series of movies, like they've done with Perry Mason.

Ferrigno, 35, was the youngest Mr. Universe ever, and the only man to win the coveted bodybuilding title two years in a row (1973 and 1974). It was while he was training for the Mr. Olympia competition in 1977 that he was signed on the spot to play The Hulk. Later he starred in the series Trauma Center (1983) and the films "Hercules" and "Sinbad." And in the upcoming "All's Fair," he plays a mercenary.

"In the future, I'd like to make more feature films," he says. "Acting is much more emotional, and takes more time than weight training. Bodybuilding is a physical thing. You need more

May, June Designated SADD Months In Ky.

Gov. Wallace G. Wilkinson has proclaimed May and June "Students Against Driving Drunk" months in Kentucky. The proclamation was issued at the request of more than 125 SADD chapters throughout the Commonwealth. Students Against Driving Drunk. established in 1981, was created to improve young people's knowledge and attitudes about alcohol and drugs. SADD programs provide series of lesson plans presenting the facts about drinking and driving, encouraging high school students to seek alternatives to driving

One alternative for students is a program created by the Department of Education, the Kentucky State Police. and SADD. 'Project Graduation' is a chemical-free party organized by students. Conferences are held at interested high schools by the Kentucky State Police prior to graduation or prom explaining Project Graduation and offering ideas and advice for successful parties. Project Graduation parties provide students with a place to stay after prom and graduation, decreasing the chances of having teenagers drinking or driving on those nights.

Books. We read them for pleasure and information, and professionals use them every day in their work. They fill school bags and shelves, but it's rare when we get to meet an author whose book we've Major Larry Adams, Prestonsburg's arson investigator, had that opportunity not too long ago when Charles L. Roblee author of "The Investigation Of Fires" stopped at the Prestonsburg fire station May 3. "It was overwhelming that the author of this book would walk into the station and say where's Larry Adams?" Adams said.

The two men had never met before, but Roblee, now semi-retired and on his way to Florida, knew Adams from seeing his name in a publication, "International Journal Of Arson Investigators.' In conversation, Roblee asked Adams if he had heard of the book. Certainly Adams knew of it; he had read it and referred to it often in his work.

'I have several different textbooks, but that's a primary book when I testify," Adams said. He uses it when he teaches ever year at the State Fire School in Lexington. "When I'm talking about fire behavior. I'll tell my class: if you want some good reference material. here's a good book," Adams said.

Roblee, who is from Wisconsin and a veteran of 28 years in the fire service. still works as a consultant and keeps in touch with other arson investigators. Recently, a new edition of his book was published with a new chapter on safety for the fire investigator. "There are only a few recognized experts in the field like Mr. Roblee," Adams said.

That night Roblee invited Adams over to his motor home parked at the Jenny Wiley Campgrounds. Later on, the two men parted as friends, but not before Roblee gave the Prestonsburg investigator a copy of the book's newest edition. It was signed: "To Larry Adams with sincere appreciation for his efforts to suppress the crime of arson in his community-Chuck Roblee.

HRMC Introduces Cafeteria Discount

Highlands Regional Medical Center is introducing a "55 Plus Cafeteria Program" beginning Wednesday, May 25. The program allows individuals 55 years old and above to purchase their HRMC cafeteria meals at a 10% discount.

The 55 Plus Cafeteria Program is a direct result of the demand HRMC's cafeteria receives from area citizens. Sue Wilkerson, director of Food Services, said "Many people eat in the cafeteria, not just those who are visiting patients. Some people make special trips just to eat in our cafeteria, and we wanted to do something to show them our appreciation.'

Individuals 55 and older may enroll in the program on Wednesday, May 25, during a special kick-off dinner. HRMC personnel will distribute enrollment cards (at no cost) at cafeteria entrance from 11:30 to 2 on this day. After May 25, cards will be available in the Public Relations Department located on the second floor of the hospital.

The cafeteria will feature a Hawaiian Luau menu for the program's opening.

Game Had All Including Championship For BL

The 57th district saved its best for last, and Thursday evening's championship game offered a whole lot of everything.

Good pitching early kept the game offensiveless, but bats on both sides soon got warmed up and base running became a hot topic of action. A questionable call also brought about some excitement

Good defense was produced by Betsy Layne, and Allen Central provided some errors. A full scale brawl erupted in the final inning, and Bobcat coach Junior Newsome says an error by his left fielder may have saved the game for them. Betsy Layne, though, found themselves in front when the final out was recorded, and won their second consecutive district championship by defeating the Rebels 8-7. Thursday at Allen Park

"It was a wild one," Bobcat coach Junior Newsome said. "They're a good team and we were lucky to hit the ball the way we did off Shelton. He's one of the best around.

"We haven't hit very well off him in the past," Newsome said, continuing his comments on Allen Central starter Nathan Shelton. "But we showed a lot of patience at the plate, and we hit a lot of good pitches.

SHORT SPORTS

Five players from district champion Betsy Layne and four from runner-up Allen Central headed the 15-player alltournament team announced after Thursday's championship game.

Two pitchers, Brad Hall and Duran Newsome, along with third baseman Kevin Spurlock and catcher Todd Sturgill, were named to the team from Betsy Layne. Hall won the championship game and got relief help from Newsome. Newsome won the opening round game against McDowell, and got help from Brad Hall.

Jamie May, who pitched in both of Allen Central's games, was named to the all-tourney team, along with Darren Conn, Mickey Parsons, and Rady Martin, representing the Rebels.

McDowell, Prestonsburg, and Wheelwright had two representatives on the team. Scott Tackett and Dickie Joe Shannon from McDowell, Blackcat players Joey Griffith and Craig Tucker, and Chris Thornsberry and Brad Compton of Wheelwright also made the team.

Betsy Layne won the district tournament Thursday night when they defeated Allen Central in an eventful contest, holding off the Rebels 8-7. It was the second straight title for the Bobcats. Last year they defeated Prestonsburg for the title.

Rex Chapman didn't necessarily break the back of the University of Kentucky's basketball program, but he certainly did major damage to the hearts of all Wildcat fans.

Recognized by many as one of the best Kentucky guards of all time, Chapman dropped a bomb on the world known as UK basketball by announcing that he was giving up his final two years at the school in favor of an early trip to the

Chapman, the Wildcats' leading scorer the past two years, announced Friday, only weeks after he said the NBA wasn't in his immediate plans, that he was leaving Kentucky.

The 6'4" guard from Owensboro said he decided to move on to professional basketball because of business reasons and that the current problems surrounding the UK program did not influence his decision.

Chapman became the first freshman ever to lead Kentucky in scoring, and averaged over 18 points per game this past season. He has been compared to Jerry West and Pete Maravich, and some fans even wanted to rename Lexington in honor of him.

He drew praise from his supporters, and heat from foes of the UK program. In only two years Rex Chapman placed himself among the all time Kentucky playing favorites.

Now though, Chapman, 20, is faced with the challenge of playing against equally talented, stronger guards who are more mature and experienced.

All NBA scouts agree that Chapman is a highly-regarded prospect, but most agree that he is not a lottery pick. The lottery, which will be determined this Saturday, is made up of the seven teams that failed to make the playoffs. At least five other big guards are rated higher than the Chapman, which could lead to a lower position in the draft, and a lower initial contract. But Chapman is expected to become an impact player in the future. He is only the second player ever to leave UK early.

What else can Michael Jordan accomplish this season? Jordan, nicknamed "Air" because of his high flying aerial dunks, led the NBA in scoring this season, and Thursday he was named as the league's best defensive player.

The Chicago star, known for his scoring ability, became the only player to ever record over 100 blocked shots and Betsy Layne, which didn't score until the third, reached Shelton for 11 hits and eight runs, only two earned, in four and two-thirds innings. Shelton, 3-4, was the losing pitcher for the Rebels.

Shelton got relief help from Jamie May in the fifth. May, who picked up the win against Prestonsburg that put Allen Central in the championship game, held the Bobcats scoreless and hitless the remainder of the way. That allowed the Rebels, who trailed 8-2 heading into the bottom of the fifth, to mount a comeback that eventually made for an interesting situation

Allen Central, 9-14, scored two times in the fifth, and could have had more had an initial call stood as signaled. They added two more in the sixth and another in the seventh to pull to within one run of Betsy Layne.

After the Bobcats struck for five

WINNING FORM: Brad Hall was the winning pitcher in Betsy Layne's championship victory over Allen Central in the district finals last Thursday. Hall pitched five innings to earn the win.

The Sporting Times

Baseball season has come and gone, and with the leaving of the diamond sport comes time for those long-awaited seasonal awards

They may not be anticipated with enthusiasm, but at least one person, me, looks forward to them. No money changes hands, and no one is better off because of them, but our awards try to give justice to those deserving it. Good or bad, they are handed out in a fashion that only I understand, and they are based on totally biased opinions.

With that in mind, allow me to jump right in with some nominations, opinions, and an occasional serious look at the season gone by

PLAYER OF THE YEAR: Why not start with the toughest and work downward? It would be nearly impossible to pick the best player in this county because several are about equal in both ability and style. Four of the better performers all play center field, and they all throw and run well. But leadership certainly plays a part, as does enthusiasm for the game. With that in mind, Darren Conn would be a logical choice for this award. He hit over .400 this year, and showed why senior leadership is a avlued commodity. But go ahead and put Joey Griffith and Dwight Jarrell high on the list of this county's top baseball players

UNDERCLASSMEN OF THE YEAR: From the frying pan to the fire, or almost. As talented as this senior class is, the junior group could be even better. There is Kevin Webb, who hit eight homeruns this year and drove in 19 runs. He also scored 18 times. His defense behind the plate is unequaled in the district, and maybe the region. How, though, do you count out a player like Tim Trusty. Probably Prestonsburg's top pitcher, Trusty is another of those who can combine good speed with a great arm to impress all those who watch him. And Mike McQuate, the fastest player in the district, carries a strong arm with him, as well as a potent bat. Mickey Parsons hit over .400 for Allen Central, and Duran Newsome enjoyed a good year on the mound and at the plate for Betsy Layne. But when you talk about leadership, and enthusiasm for the game you have to talk about Kevin Webb. He is one of the few high school catchers capable of calling pitches himself, and next year he could very well set several records as far as offense and the district is concerned.

COACH OF THE YEAR: Winning is what we base most of our successes on, but any time a coach loses 26-4 and continues to show up for games deserves anybody's vote. Monroe Jones and Wheelwright didn't exactly burn the district up this year, but Jones took it on the chin and came back for more. Toughness counts, and he proved he had some this season. But in all seriousness, Donnie Daniels did a masterful job of keeping his team in tact, especially after losing so many close games. It would have been easy for Allen Central to fold after any of those losses, but when crunch time came Daniels had the Rebels doing all the crunching. Also, in only his second year he has done what no other coach has done since 1982—take Allen Central to the regional tourn-

FANS OF THE YEAR: They didn't flock to the games in big numbers, but anyone who needs a quick emotional lift should pay a visit to the McDowell side of things. Although their team didn't enjoy much success this season, Daredevil fans had plenty of fun. It's hard to determine where all the puns and jokes come from, but just about everyone, especially the students, from McDowell can roll off quite a few. They showed some enthusiasm, but more importantly, they showed a lot of class. As far as numbers are concerned, Betsy Layne produced a large showing at most of their games. Allen Central had a consistent large backing. It was nice to see at least the sport has some fan support.

FAN OF THE YEAR: I don't know where she gets her positive attitude, energy, or enthusiasm, but on a cold April night Goldie warmed up what was otherwise a more than nippy evening. The game was a blowout, but when she came over to visit with one of her McDowell buddies, Goldie seemed to raise the temperature by at least 10 degrees with her entertaining stories. Roll on Big Blue and I love ya baby have become as commonplace as the games themselves, and without Goldie it just wouldn't be the same. They may have been more dedicated fans, but there certainly isn't any more popular ones.

BIG BOOST TO THE GAME: This is a new one created just to say thanks to WXKZ for carrying high school baseball games. The station, located in Prestonsburg, broadcasted Blackcat games on a delayed bases this season, and here's hoping others will follow. All the local stations fall over each other in an effort to carry basketball and no one can complain because that's where public demand lies, but WXKZ made the effort to give baseball an equal opportunity. Thanks fellows. And Captain, we salute you.

STATEMENT OF THE YEAR: Jesse Osborne, who stayed in shape for basketball by keeping McDowell's baseball scorebook, rattled this one off! 'Mary had a little lamb and the doctor fainted." Think about that one. It's deep.

unearned runs in the top half of the fifth inning, Allen Central began their comeback in the bottom half of the fifth.

Todd Duff, who went two for three, opened the fifth with a double and scored as Rady Martin singled to left. Kevin Webb drilled one on a hop to second baseman Barry Hamilton. Hamilton threw on to shortstop Duran Newsome for the force of Martin, but the return throw to first was wild, allowing Webb to advance to second.

Mickey Parsons followed with a single, sending Webb to third. He later scored on a Brad Hall balk. With Parsons at second and one out, Jamie May lifted a deep fly ball to right field. Matt Conn hauled the ball in, but dropped it before making the throw back toward the infield. Base umpire Joe Pelphrey first called out then signaled safe. A long discussion followed, but the end result wasn't exactly pleasing for Rebel supporters. May was called out.

Allen Central, now down 8-4, cut the lead to only two in the sixth when they took advantage of some Duran Newsome control problems. Newsome, in relief of Betsy Layne starter Brad Hall, walked four in the inning, and gave up another run as Kevin Webb grounded out to second.

After May held the Bobcats scoreless in the top of the seventh, Allen Central continued their efforts to catch up, and they almost did.

Newsome continued to struggle with his control, walking leadoff hitter Jamie May. Robbie Click followed with a single to left that got through Keith Hall and rolled all the way to the fence.

May came all the way around to score, and when the throw home got through catcher Todd Sturgill, Click headed toward the plate

Sturgill tracked the baseball down, and threw to first baseman Brad Hall, covering the plate, to nail Click. A nudge, a bump, and all of a sudden both benches emptied onto the field. They rolled, wrestled, and punched for a few minutes, but order was soon restored.

'Two good ball clubs going head to head. It was just something that happened in the heat of the battle," Newsome said of the exchange of attempted abuse. "These guys are all good friends. If they were to meet on the street the same thing wouldn't happen.

But the out prior to the fight proved to be damaging for Allen Central. Newsome, though, said Hall's error in left paved the way for that.

'You never like to see an error, but that one helped us," the coach said. "If he would've made the play they would've had two on and no outs. The way it turned out they had one out and nobody on base.'

And nobody got on base. Newsome, who had defeated McDowell Tuesday afternoon, struck out Randy Hansford, and retired Nathan Shelton on a popup to short as Betsy Layne secured the win, and the district championship.

Brad Hall picked up the win, working the first five innings. Hall gave up five hits and four runs, three earned, while walking five and striking out two. Hall also had two hits and an RBI at the

He singled and scored in the third when Betsy Layne scored two unearned runs to tie the score. The Rebels had taken a 2-0 lead in the second when Darren Conn trippled in Jamie May and Nathan Shelton. Both runners had earlier drawn walks.

Betsy Layne took the lead for good in the fourth when Glen Hammond led off with a single, and scored as Dwight Jarrell doubled. The Bobcats struck for the killing blow in the fifth when they scored five times to open an 8-2 lead. Four of their runs were unearned.

"We didn't play that well offensively," a somber Donnie Daniels said after the game. "We had some errors that hurt us

"We played hard," the Rebel coach continued. "I don't think we have anything to be ashamed of.'

Allen Central committed a total of five errors. They had only six hits as a team. Todd Duff collected two of those.

The Bobcats banged out a total of 17 hits, all against Shelton. Dwight Jarrell, Todd Sturgill, and Brad Hall all had two hits each. Sturgill and Hammond scored

Defense Causes Problems As Trojans Fall To Betsy Layne

Not many times can a coach compliment his pitching performance when it surrenders over 20 runs, but Monroe Jones was quick to point out that his pitchers hadn't done a bad job against Betsy Layne, Wednesday evening.

Jones, after he was forced to find relief help for Brad Compton, Wheelwright's second pitcher, said, "Brad didn't do a bad job." The coach threw a few positive comments his pitchers' way, but his team's defensive effort didn't get any good compliments.

Ten Wheelwright errors contributed heavily to Betsy Layne's offense, and the Bobcats added pain to Trojan mistakes by banging out 10 hits. They were also helped along with nine walks in defeating Wheelwright, 21-5, Wednesday in the district tournament's semifinal round.

The win, Betsy Layne's second in the tournament, put the Bobcats in Thursday's championship game against Allen Central. It also gave them an automatic bid to the regional tournament.

The win, Betsy Layne's second in the tournament, put the Bobcats in Thursday's championship game against Allen Central. It also gave them an automatic bid to the regional tournament.

The game, which took two hours and 24 minutes to complete, was called after the fifth inning. No mercy rule applies in tournament play, but all concerned agreed to invoke one anyway.

Glen Hammond, who pitched the first four innings, got the Betsy Layne win. Hammond, a senior righthander, surrendered only two hits, a second inning homerun by Chris Thornsberry and a third inning single from Jimmy Helton, in his four innings of work.

He struck out six and walked only one. Hammond faced only two hitters over the limit. Both of those were in the se-

Watkins, Ison Win Local Bass Tourney

Over 150 fishermen participated Saturday in Dewey Lake Fish and Game Club annual bass tournament. Fishermen casted for a first place prize of $1500 dollars and total winnings of over $3600

First place went to Tee Watkins and Delbert Ison with four fish weighing 4 lbs. 8 ozs. Second place paid $750 dollars, and was won by Eddie Collins and Don Collins with four fish weighing 4 lbs. 4 ounces. Third place paid $450 dollars and was won by Darren M. May and his partner. Fourth place paid $300 for Don Pack and Mitch Atkins. Don Pack also won big fish honors and collected $625 dollars for the biggest largemouth weighing 2 pounds 8 ounces.

Fifth place was a die hard battery valued at $100 which went to Jeff Burchett and Alvin Hall.

The tournament was sponsored by Sears, Roebuck and Company of Prestonsburg. All proceeds were retained by Dewey Lake Fish and Game Club, which has several conservation projects, related to Dewey Lake now underway.

The club wishes to thank all the local merchants, that participated, for their

the second when they scored eight times The big hit off Thornsberry was a first inning three-run homerun to right field off the bat of shortstop Duran Newsome. After Dwight Jarrell led the game off with a walk and Barry Hamilton reached on an error, Newsome lifted a 2-1

That lead proved to be enough to keep the Bobcats in front, that is until the fifth inning. Thornsberry's homerun was the only run Wheelwright could muster off Hammond, who was relieved in the fifth. Matt Conn, a starter in right field, came on in the bottom of the fifth to do the pitching, and Wheelwright found the fresh arm much to their liking. The Trojans scored four runs on four hits, the big blow being a two-run single by Thornsberry, in the fifth, but by that time, they trailed by 20 runs. Betsy Layne sent 13 hitters to the plate in the second inning, and scored eight runs to produce a blowout early. Wheelwright was never in the game from that point on, and in the fourth inning the Bobcats added four more runs to their already huge advantage. In the fifth inning, Betsy Layne scored six times, but had only one hit. Three Wheelwright errors and another trio of bases on balls helped Betsy Layne up their lead to 20 runs.

The Bobcats' biggest inning came in

It was also their most productive inning hit wise. They had a total of four. All but six of Betsy Layne's 21 runs were unearned. All of those came against starter Chris Thornsberry. Brad Compton, a sophomore, relieved Thornsberry in the second. He worked three and one third innings, giving up 10 runs, all unearned, on five hits. Jimmy Helton pitched the final one-third inning of the game in relief of Compton.

Wheelwright had a total of six hits in the game, four in the final frame. Thornsberry had two of those to go with his three RBIs. Helton, the Trojans' left fielder, also had two hits, a pair of Chris Bates, pinch hitting in the fifth, and Kevin Isaac also hit safely for the Trojans. Both hitters collected singles.

Todd Sturgill and designated hitter Adam Gearheart led Betsy Layne offensively with two hits each. Sturgill, two for four, had a single and a double, scored a run and drove in another. Gearheart, hitting for Matt Conn.

scored two times and picked up a pair of runs batted in. He also banged out a single and a double.

Duran Newsome, with the first inning homerun, drove in three runs, and Barr Hamilton picked up three RBIs as well.

Cincinnati Moves Above Even As Browning Defeats Atlanta

It had been a long time since the Cincinnati Reds found themselves above the 500 mark. It had been even longer since the Reds could lay claim to at least a three-game winning streak. Now, thanks to pitcher Tom Browning, and a big base hit off the bat of rookie third baseman Chris Sabo, Cincinnati has both. Browning, a left hander, threw eight innings of five hit, two run baseball, and Sabo collected a two-run double in the seventh as Cincinnati defeated Atlanta 4-2 Monday to go one game above .500. The Reds, 19-18 heading into last night's contest at Riverfront Stadium, had not been above the break even mark since the opening days of the season. It was also their first three-game winning streak of the year. Their longest previous streak had been a modest twogame stretch.

Browning, 2-0, had a shutout until the eigth inning, but Ron Gant smashed a two-run homerun to left, denying the bid for a scoreless outing. Both runs were earned off Browning, but he still lowered his earned run average to 3.33. That is second among Reds' starters, and sixth

Sabo, a substitute for the injured Buddy Bell, cracked a double in the seventh inning that scored Kal Daniels and Barry Larkin. Both had singled earlier in the inning. Sabo later crossed the plate when Ron Roenicke laid down a perfect suicide squeeze bunt that went for a single thanks to a defensive mixup that left first base uncovered.

The three run outburst put Cincinnati up 4-0, but in the eighth the Braves cut that advantage in half with Gant's blast, and had the tying run at the plate in the ninth. Rob Murphy, in relief of Frank Williams, walked the first hitter he faced but got Gerald Perry to bounce into a game ending double play

Murphy, who came on after Williams had retired the ninth inning leadoff hitter, earned his first save of the year.

With the win Cincinnati moved to within four games of first place, trailing Houston and Los Angeles who are tied for the top spot in the Western Division.

The Reds also played error free baseball, something they weren't able to do in Pittsburgh. In winning two of the three games in Three Rivers Stadium, Cincinnati committed four errors in one recording his fifth save. game and lost another due to poor defense late.

Friday night Barry Bonds led off the ninth inning with a single, and scored on two Cincinnati errors as Pittsburgh defeated the Reds 6-5. The Pirates, the surprise team of the NL East, had rallied from a 4-1 deficit to earn the Cincinnati scored three times in the third when Eric Davis, showing signs of shaking a season-long hitting slump, doubled in two runs and scored on a Paul O'Neill single. But the Pirates kept pecking away. After the Reds took a 5-2 advantage, Pittsburgh tied the score with three runs in the sixth, and pulled out the win with the unearned run in the ninth.

Bonds led the inning off with a single, and scored on a misplayed sacrifice bunt. Jose Lind, trying to move Bonds along, laided down a bunt that eventually wound up getting by center fielder Eric Davis.

First baseman Dave Collins fielded the bunt, but threw wildly into center. Davis let the baseball get by him, and Bonds came all the way around to score the winning run. Jeff Robinson, acquired in a deal last year for Rick Reuschel, got Rob Murphy, who pitched the ninth, was tagged with his third loss of the season. Murphy had the best ERA of any Cincinnati pitcher, 1.37, but after the loss dropped to 0-3 without a save.

problem for the Reds this season. Timely hitting and consistent defense are two things missing from the Cincinnati

Saturday Mario Soto provided some of that good pitching, combining with John Franco to limit the Pirates to only three hits in a Cincinnati victory

All the runs, four by the Reds, three from Pittsburgh, except one were scored in the first inning. Eric Davis blasted a homerun in the ninth for an insurance run as Cincinnati toppled the Pirates 5-3.

Soto, 2-2 with the win, gave up three hits while walking four in his seven and one-third innings of work to collect his 99th career victory. John Franco came in to retire the last eight hitters while

Franco, the ace of Cincinnati's talented bullpen, added a win Sunday to his efforts in Pittsburgh as the Reds took two of three, defeating Pittsburgh 7-6 in 12 innings

The Pirates jumped out to an early 5-0 lead in the second when they roughed up Reds' starter Danny Jackson. Coming off successive two-hit performances, Jackson, suffering from three errors. was hit hard early

But Jose Rijo and John Franco followed Jackson with shutout relief, each throwing three innings each as Cincinnati rallied. After taking a 6-5 lead on two-run hits from Daniels and Sabo, the Reds, committers of four errors, allowed Pittsburgh to even the score with an unearned run.

Franco, who followed Rijo, worked the final three innings to record his first win of the year. Cincinnati scored the goahead run in the top of the 12th when Eric Davis crossed the plate on a Bo Diaz sacrifice fly to left field.

It was the Reds' ninth extra inning game this season. They are now 4-5 in games lasting more innings than they are scheduled for.

Cincinnati, rounding out their series with Atlanta tonight, will try to cut into the four games which separate them from first place while doing battle at home with Chicago. The Cubs roll into Riverfront Friday to begin a three-game weekend series

The two hook up Friday night in a 7:35 Good pitching, though, hasn't been a start, and play Saturday at 7:05. Sunday's game is scheduled to begin at 2:15. Then it's off to St. Louis and the beginning of a three-game series with the Cardinals.

TAKING A SWING: Darren Conn shows off his swing that made him Allen Central's leading hitter this season.

UMPIRE OF THE YEAR: With the abuse they take, all umpires should be honored just for taking the field. But if one has to be chosen lets choose Greg Kidd. He calls most of his games for McDowell so all of the county hasn't had an opportunity to see much of him. Take my word for it, though, he is competent. So is Dale Conn, if he's survived the district tournament. Conn took an unusually high number of foul tips in the tournament, and with every one he let the crowd know he had been hit. Joe Pelphrey gets the nod for the best dancing ump. He can call balls and strikes pretty well also.

week's article on our high school senior players, Jamie May's name was ommitted, but not on purpose. May, a talented left handed pitcher at Allen Central, wasn't listed among those of college quality simply because I thought he was a junior. Nothing personal, just the fact that Donnie Daniels told me he was a junior. That was at the beginning of the year though, and May was new to the Rebel coach. Everybody knows him now, mostly because of hits performance last Tuesday against a good hitting Prestonsburg team.

SUPPORT FOR THE SPORT: Gary Frazier probably does more for baseball at his school than any other principal at any other high school any where. He appropriates the proper financial support, but he also attends the games, letting the players know they are not forgotten. Ab Lawson is also a great supporter of baseball, in both the summer youth leagues and high school. Lawson is working hard in an effort to keep baseball growing in the county, and here's hoping some more join his effort.

Wallen Wins Regional Seven Advance For AC

Forrest Hughes said last week that his school's biggest hope for a regional winner rested on the broad shoulders of Brian Wallen.

At a school where the sport is still in its infant stages, the hopes of a team advancement hadn't been held highly, and Wallen was their biggest threat heading into Saturday's regional meet at

It isn't hard to understand why Hughes felt fear and despair when Wallen showed up with a bad case of the flu. "It really scared us when he showed up sick," Hughes said. "He had the

But Wallen, a freshman, rose to the occasion. The burly youngster recorded a discus throw of just over 108 feet, some 20 feet shorter than he threw earlier in the year, but it was good enough for a first place finish, and a position in next Saturday's sectional event at Boyd

"He won the regional. He had an off day, probably because he had the flu. He didn't perform as well as he's capable of, but he still won the regional," Hughes said. Wallen threw the discus 108 feet, seven inches, three feet further than Ronnie Moore of Menifee County, who took second place.

At a meet in Jenkins earlier in the season Wallen recorded a toss of 128.5 feet. That throw is only 12 feet shy of the state's longest this season.

Hughes says the field conditions, and the flu contributed to Wallen's shorter than normal distance. "We practiced after the meet and he threw 118 feet. He told me he just didn't feel like competing," Hughes said.

flat," the coach said.

But Hughes expects Wallen to enjoy better throws Saturday, which should power him to the state tournament, "I think Brian can win or finish second if he gets over the flu," Hughes said about the upcoming sectional competition.

"I think if he gets his steps he has a good chance of going on to the state," he continued "He's young and sometimes he's got his steps down right and sometimes he doesn't. I don't want to put pressure on him but I do think he's got a chance of winning.

The sectional tournament will have eight competitors in each event and will feature the top four finishers from two separate regions. Hughes expects the competition to be tough, even more so competitive here soon.

"We're really proud of the way our kids performed," Hughes said of Allen Central's showing at Pikeville. "The competition was extremely tough up there. Our kids performed better than they ever had before, but the competition was just so tough.

Allen Central, which didn't even score at last year's regional meet, placed sixth out of eight boys' teams, and the girls' 440 relay team qualified for the sectionals, as did runner Kenny Keens. The team, consisting of seven boys and five girls, had seven members advance to sectional competition, and the boys' relay team set a new school record, but managed only a sixth place finish.

"That shows you what kind of competition we faced, when you set a school record and get only sixth place.

Keens, who also holds individual school records, finished third in the 800-meter run. Keens, also qualifying for the sectional meet, finished in 2:19.82. The winning time was 2:09.

"It's going to be tough for him to qualify for the state," Hughes said of his runner. "Kenny ran real well at Pikeville, but they've got some runners down there that can fly. The competition was tough at Pikeville, but it will be even tougher down there.

The girls' relay team, made up of seven seventh graders and a junior, finished third and qualified for the sectional tournament. The team of Regina Ison, Rachael Hunter, Nicole Fitch, and Lisa Hicks ran a fraction over one minute to advance beyond the regional

'The girls may finish sixth and get a 'The track up there is up hill, it's not medal, but they'll have a hard time qualifying to go on," Hughes said, appraising the relay team's chances at a state appearance. Although Hughes' honesty tells a tale of doubt, the veteran track and field coach has only praise for the qualifiers at Pikeville, and his team's performance this season.

The coach called it 'amazing' that Allen Central enjoyed their much improved showing over last year. He also expects the improvement to increase next season. With only one senior on the squad, Rebel track and field certainly has its best still awaiting the program.

"It takes a long time to build a successful program," Hughes said. "It took us about five years to become competitive at Prestonsburg, and we hope to be

Campbellsville Man Named Fourth Ky. Master Angler

David Hayes, 32, of Campbellsville. has become the fourth fisherman to earn a Master Angler achievement award from the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources

The Trophy Fish/Master Angler Program recognizes anglers who catch exceptional specimens of fish from Kentucky waters. Haves attained the award within six months of his first qualifying catch, a 42-inch, 34-pound striped bass (rockfish) from Lily Creek at Lake Cumberland. The minimum size limit to qualify for a trophy striped bass is 36

The angler, who works for the Hayes Printing Company in Campbellsville, has been fishing since the age of five and is a member of the Green River Bassmasters sportsman's club.

Hayes trophy striped bass was caught in December, 1987 using a live, nine-inch shad for bait. Interestingly, the master angler learned about the program from Allen Collins, Jr., who has earned recognition for four trophy striped bass he has taken from Lake Cumberland.

"We were fishing a particular point one day when another boat pulled up beside us and Allen began fishing," said Hayes. "In swapping information and methods, I learned about the program and a new way to catch rockfish," add-

After Hayes caught a trophy striped bass, he then committed himself to working towards earning a Master Angler award. In March, while fishing for striped bass at Cumberland, Hayes hooked a 23-12 inch, six pound, four ounce largemouth bass that gave him two of the three species of trophy fish needed to be recognized as a Kentucky Master Angler

Hayes' third trophy fish, a Green River Lake smallmouth bass, weighed five pounds, 15 ounces and measured 21-1/2 inches. This superb specimen was taken on April 23 during a bass tournament using a chartruese 3-12-inch grub.

The Trophy Fish/Master Angler program was begun in January, 1987 to promote the sport of fishing. Since that time, approximately 175 trophy fish have been accepted. The program is based on a list of 25 common species of fish, for which a minimum trophy size limit has been established by Kentucky state fisheries personnel.

Anglers are permitted to submit an unlimited number of trophy fish applications for any species, but to earn Master Angler recognition, they must catch three different species of trophy status. Accomplishing this feat is no easy task, especially given the minimum lengths of each species needed to qualify.

For his achievement, Hayes received decals and certificates for each of his trophy fish. In addition, he will receive a Master Angler decal, certificate and an 8x10 plaque designating him as a Kentucky Master Angler.

The Trophy Fish/Master Angler Program also presents annual awards for the longest trophy fish of each species submitted during the calendar year.

Applications for and complete information about the Kentucky Trophy Fish/Master Angler Program can be obtained by writing: Trophy Fish Program, Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, No. 1 Game Farm Road, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

KET'S Nature Explores Human, Animal Wonders

Nature explores the plight of the African elephant in "The Elephant Challenge." This episode airs on KET Sunday, May 15 at 8:00 p.m. Under siege, the African elephant has to compete with man for land, space, and food in a country where the traditional rangelands are rapidly shrinking. Extremely high prices received for the mammals' tusks also have created a serious poaching problem, one that is more threatening to the existence of the elephants than the loss of land. "The Elephant Challenge" sheds some light on conservation efforts that range from highly successful to completely inadequate. The three-part "In the Shadow of Fujisan" begins May 22 with "See No Evil." This episode highlights the Macque monkey and other earth-bound creatures which roam the Japanese landscape. The film is so titled because the Macaque is the model for the three symbolic monkeys of "see no evil, hear no evil, speak no evil." The broadcast explores the social life of a troop of wild Macaques who seek warmth during northern Japanese winters by sharing hot-springs baths with humans. "Bird of Happiness," part two of "In the Shadow of Fujisan," centers on the Japanese Red-Crowned Crane, or Tancho. This bird, seen everywhere in Japanese culture, was given the name "Bird of Happiness" for its spectacular, leaping mid-air dance, and because this graceful bird mates for life. During a series of long, hard winters, these birds were saved from extinction by school children and farmers who ensured they were fed. The Tanchos are now 300 strong and have become yet another symbol-one for the fight for survival that faces many other animal species in Japan. "Bird of Happiness" will air on Sunday, May 29.

"In the Shadow of Fujisan" concludes June 5 with "Long Live the Turtle." This episode explores sea life around the island country. Japan has a troubled history with environmentalists' concerns regarding the protection of sea

PETROLEUM PREDICTIONS

A 15 year old study of America's energy needs had presented a sobering vision of the future. It predicted the nation's energy use would rise almost 20 percent by the late 1980s. But according to International Wildlife magazine, energy use in the U.S. has actually fallen. The effects of energy conservation are being felt worldwide as well with savings totaling some 250 billion

INSTEAD OF BUILDING their own nests, female European cuckoos lay their eggs in other birds' nests. According to Ranger Rick magazine, the female cuckoo usually lays her eggs in the nest of birds with eggs that look like hers. The other birds are often tricked into raising the cuckoo babies just as they would their own.

BOOKS AND THINGS Miss Starburst

By: TRISHA MORRIS, Librarian, Prestonsburg Community College

Kentucky is her people, her land and her resources. The following picture books from the P.C.C. library richly depict the aspects of this land of

The Unforeseen Wilderness By: Wendell Berry

The rocky dells of the Red River Gore is one of the prettiest areas in Kentucky. Here, enthralled in a romantic essay and captured in 48 breathtaking photographs is nature at its finest. Creative photography of gnarled trees, bubbling brooks and rocky pathways together with streaming sunlight and panoramic views makes this hiker's paradise an irresistable invitation. Gene Meatyard, the photographer, calls the Gorge "...a place of contrasts, of surprising alternatives of light and dark

Appalachia: A Self Portrait Ed: Wendy Ewald

This book of haunting scenes of mountain people and their daily routines was created by seven photographers working in Kentucky and West Virginia collectively called the Mountain Photography Workshop. A result of a year and a half of their time, this picture album is a personal view of a people and a landscape which they profess "...nurtured them as photographers and individuals." Their work reaches out and touches the viewer-reminding him or her that others, different in many ways, are fellow human beings, struggling as all of us do with life's uncertainties, complexities, assorted hurdles and fateful circumstances.

Appalachia Byways By: Jack Jeffers

Through the medium of his lens, Jack Jeffries has created a series of stunning photographs depicting the descendents of some of America's hardiest pioneers. For over five years this photographernaturalist backpacked with his camera through remote mountain hollows, beside roaring cascades and along quiet streams to capture the pictures which this book preserves. Accompanied by short essays, Jeffers divided his book into: Virginia's Little Switzerland, Mountain Folk and a Passing Life, Mennonites and Amish, Old Country Water Mills, Old Logging Railroad and Farms and Valley Byways.

Appalachia History: Eastern Kentucky By: Stuart Sprague

The author, a professor of Appala-chian and Kentucky history at Morehead University, presents us with a picture book of history with just enough text to identify the actors and to tell about the action. The reader can be enthralled as a child while turning the pages of this well-documented book as he recognizes scenes from his own history. What a painless way to take in the history of a region. From miners shift change at Wheelwright to the Hindman High School's 1926 basketball team to the dedication of the Prestonsburg High School, this is a book of pictures which could easily be a personal album of a person who had lived in Eastern nuicky

Historic Kentucky

By: J. Winston Coleman

The main street in Lexington never looked like that. But, yes, there it ismud up to wagon axles and horses and carriages nosed into the sidewalks, chuck wagons pulling loads to market and a few citizens walking the board sidewalks. The photographs of Mr. Coleman brings back to us the history of the state in graphic descriptions so that we say, "so that is how it looked." Winston Coleman portrays in words and pictures the people and places of yesteryear in the Blue Grass state. Here we find their homes, their churches, and even their daily lives revealed in timeless photo-

The Appalachian Photographs of Doris Ulmann

Miss Ulmann's straightforward por traiture, with its somewhat wistful tones of reverie, distinguishes her photographs. Her ability to convince an farmer's wife to have her picture take in her kitchen gown peeling potatoes or a barefoot boy sitting on his home porch is what will mark Doris Ulmann's hundreds of prints of Southern Appalachians as their date and time in history. To look at the lined, weathered faces of Miss Ulmann's subjects is to be reminded of the humanity and rooted communal life of the Southern Americans who once lived on this land

The American Coal Miner

Hundreds of pictures of men and women at work in the coalfields-going down into the mines, coming out of the mines, having lunch hunched over in the dark, standing in the strike line. Besides the pictures of them at work are those of them at home, at recreation, at care facilities, at school and at funerals. The book, published in 1980 for the President's Commission on Coal, concentrates on employed miners-because of this it is not a true picture of mining in America-no unemployment line, no restless men without work, no black lung victims-but still it is an interesting photographic study of a way of life.

Kentucky, a Pictorial History Ed. J. Winston Coleman

Pictured here is Kentucky as the pioneer West, where rampaging frontiersmen with ax and long rifle assaulted the wilderness and the Indians, and two centuries later-Kentucky as an emerging agrarian culture. Portrayed in 620 photographs, paintings and drawings, the state emerges as a land of dramatic contrasts and contradictions. From the flourishing bourbon whiskey industry to religious fundamentalist to flamboyant politicians and world famed horses, this book reflects the flavor and zest of this legendary land.

NO TAMPERING WITH STATISTICS

Prior to the introduction of the child-resistant bottle, accidental ingestion of aspirin accounted for most accidental poisonings among children in this country. According to the National Center for Health Statistics, ninety-two children died of aspirin overdose in 1967. By the time aspirin bottles were outfitted with tamperresistant caps in 1972, that figure had dropped to fortysix. Everyone's hopes were finally met in 1985 when it was reported that not a single child under age 5 died from accidental aspirin poisoning. This hopeful statistic is bolstered by others. Between 1972 and 1984, childhood deaths from other drugs has declined by more than twothirds. This is wonderful news for us all, and a tribute to the drug industry's commitment to safety.

YOUHAVE A CHOICE MAY 24th!

Electing a good state representative that you can be proud of is very important to Knott, Letcher and Floyd counties. Your state representative is a good-will ambassador for East Kentucky. In addition to the governmental accomplishments your representative makes, the rest of the state judges you by the person you send to Frankfort.

You don't want to send someone down to Frankfort to "whoop it up with the boys" and to satisfy their own personal political ambitions. You don't want to send someone down there who will lose contact with the people and forget them.

You don't want to send someone down to Frankfort who is afraid to speak on the floor of the House of Representatives. If they won't speak for Eastern Ky., then we'll never get anything. And of course, you don't want to send someone who, if he did get up and say anything, would embarrass us. So we cannot afford to vote for someone just because they are a little kin to us—because it will come back to haunt us. Remember, we all are going to be judged by our next state representative.

We feel that one candidate has clearly distanced himself from the rest of the candidates. This is not to say the other candidates are not decent people—they are, but the question remains: how good a representative would they be? We've tried one candidate and he just didn't work out—so we voted him out.

The other candidates have been afraid to talk about issues. And issues is what being state representative is all about. These candidates, if elected, are going to have to talk about issues to fellow legislators. Remember, if they can't talk about issues to their local people, how can they talk about issues to the other legislators who are strangers to them and us? A lot of the legislators are attorneys and well-educated people. We don't want to send someone down there who will be just a vote for a certain block of legislators, to be led around like a pony with a rope.

One candidate clearly outshone the rest of the candidates in the candidates' forum in Hindman May 6. Two didn't even show up—we wonder if they would show up for a committee meeting or a General Assembly vote.

If you saw the debate or heard about it, you know that Russell Bentley of Topmost in Beaver Creek was the candidate you were most proud of.

We like Russell Bentley for a lot of reasons.

Russell is a hard working fellow who is sober and responsible. Russell is a decent, intelligent person, and easy to talk to. But you know the reason we probably like Russell the most—he's running for the right reasons. He's not running to further political ambitions or because he wants a job. He really believes he can make a difference in our lives.

You've read all the political advertisements. Has another candidate talked about issues more or is another more informed than Russell Bentley? Obviously not. In fact, the week that Russell's ads appear, the other candidates have ads the following week with similar messages. Russell is a leader and not a follower.

Russell Bentley doesn't promise a quick fix to our problems. A candidate who has never done anything constructive to create jobs can promise jobs. Russell won't lie to you.

The key to a better quality of life here and the key to jobs is "economic development." In order to have conomic development you must have a good infrastructure to attract new industry and to expand that industry or commercial trade already here. That infrastructure consists of education, water and sewage, housing and recreation. If you don't have these things you won't have economic development and you won't have jobs.

Russell has been working on economic development issues for years. Economic development is a priority in the Kentucky River Area Development District executive board. While other candidates talk about it, Russell has been working on it.

Russell Bentley has given you a choice. He represents the future of Eastern Ky., not its past. You won't have to worry about your vote for Russell Bentley. You can go to bed Tuesday night knowing that you voted for the candidate who would represent your interests and that would not be an embarrassment to Knott, Floyd and Letcher counties.

Russell Bentley will speak for you and represent you. Vote for Russell and tell your friends and family to do so.

ELECT

Stumbo Discusses New Road Tax

Because of a recent Kentucky Supreme Court decision concerning the current decal fee placed on trucks traveling in the state, the Legislature was left to find a comparable substitute. As a result of this court decision and the action taken by the General Assembly, I thought a discussion of the new road tax in my second legislative article would be appropriate.

The court decision declared the decal tax unconstitutional and thus limited the General Assembly's options for other fees. After a considerable amount of study and discussion between members of the legislative committees on transportation and appropriations and revenue and the Transportation Cabinet, a form of the weight distance tax was adopted.

The weight distance tax was the method for taxing trucks traveling on Kentucky highways before the decal statute was intiated. Its formula is based on the weight of the vehicle in addition to the miles traveled within the Commonwealth. The reinstituted weight distance tax requires truckers in excess of 59,000 pounds to pay $2.85 per mile traveled in the Commonwealth. For example, if a truck travels 50,000 miles of highway yearly in the state, the fee would be $1.425.

An additional $1.15 per mile has been added to the fee to assist the state in the cost of paychecks relating to the ill-fated decal fee.

Under the new provision, truck registration fees for the three highest weight classifications increased from $588 to $882 yearly for trucks weighing between 55,001 and 62,000 pounds. For trucks weighing 62,001 to 73,280 pounds, the new registration fee would be $1125. And, vehicles weighing 73,281 to 82,000 pounds would have a $1260 registration fee.

The fiscal estimates show the Commonwealth receiving $66.26 million as a result of this new law. County governments stand to receive $2.59 million.

The only exemptions included in the new legislation is the motor vehicle usage tax for vehicles located in enterprise zones.

Although members of the East Kentucky delegation worked hard to exempt coal truckers from the law, we could not secure the needed votes for a majority.

It is my hope, and I am confident it is shared by most state legislators, that although the weight-distance tax was not our most popular option, it is workable and a mechanism by which we can maintain our state highways.

If you have questions or comments on this issue, please feel free to contact me at home. Write or call: Rep. Gregory D. Stumbo, Capitol Building, Room 304, Frankfort, Ky. 40601 (502) 564-7460.
