On Hand For Presentation

Several Prestonsburg officials and community members traveled to Lexington Thursday for the presentation of the State Chamber of Commerce's Certified City Awards. Prestonsburg received a silver certification; the city has been certified by the group for four consecutive years.

Prestonsburg Gains Fourth State Certified City Award

The City of Prestonsburg was honored with a Silver Certified City Award in Lexington Thursday, marking the local government's fourth consecutive year to earn the award.

Prestonsburg representatives joined those from nearly 70 other cities in the state to mark a record attendance at the ceremony.

Gov. Wallace Wilkinson was keynote speaker for the event.

During the meeting, Leon Huffman of Pikeville was named the Kentucky Association of Chamber of Commerce Executives' Volunteer of the Year; Pikeville received the state's Community Pride Award.

In his address, Gov. Wilkinson said the certified cities showed "a renewal of the competitive spirit we have in this state, and the rebirth of these basic values."

"These cities are not waiting for the state to come in and do something; they are not waiting for someone to come in and hand them something."

"Kentucky is on the move, and business is good in Kentucky today," said the governor.

Wilkinson briefly discussed the recently-passed lottery amendment, unemployment in the state and prison legislation, but directed most of his comments to education reorganization in Kentucky.

"We can't tinker with a system that was designed 100 years ago. We need a complete re-structuring of Kentucky schools. The system does not serve us well today, and it will not serve us well tomorrow," said Wilkinson.

Following the governor's address, Certified Cities awards were presented.

After the presentation, Chalmers Frazier, executive director of the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce, noted, "Being a Certified City does not guarantee success, but it does prove that there is cooperation among the leadership of our people. The mayor and county judge are working in every way possible to bring economic development to Floyd County, and are working with the Chamber of Commerce to bring in new industry and create new jobs for our people."

Attending the conference from Prestonsburg were Thomas

Hereford III, president of the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce; Prestonsburg Mayor Ann Latta; Sam O. Blankenship, chief executive officer of Bank Josephine; Burl Wells Spurlock, chief executive officer of the First Commonwealth Bank; Henry Mayo, Prestonsburg businessman; Anne Chaney, editor of the Floyd County Times; and Jim Reed, Russell Briggs, Betsy Lambert, Nancy and John Howard, Chalmers and Katherine Frazier, George Spiggle, Del Borden and George Stamper.

At Big Sandy Area Meeting

UK President Addresses Alumni

There are two problems facing the University of Kentucky, according to U.K. President David Roselle.

He calls them the two B's: basketball and budget.

Roselle spoke to about 75 alumni at a meeting of the U.K. Big Sandy Alumni Association Tuesday at the Holiday Inn.

Roselle tried to allay fears that the ongoing NCAA in-house investigation and the resignation of athletic director Cliff Hagan are signs of wrongdoing.

One of the rules in the NCAA is that each member school do a self-investigation of allegations made against it, he said. It is done, he said, because if the self-investigation is not done, the school is in violation of NCAA rules, and the investigation done by the school will enable it to defend itself.

Roselle said that the in-house investigation should be completed in December or January, and the NCAA infractions committee should review findings in February or April.

The university president also told the group that Hagan's resignation was mainly a question of management style.

Daniels Creek Residents Request Utility Improvement

The Floyd County Fiscal Court met in a routine business session Friday, Nov. 18.

The court approved the minutes of the last meeting, the treasurer's report, and the electrical inspector's monthly report.

Dallas Justice of Daniels Creek presented a petition to the court requesting one and a half miles of water line be installed in Daniels Creek. The petition was signed by 85 area residents.

Justice said residents who are in the construction business will donate their equipment and time if the county would supply the pipe.

Judge John M. Stumbo told Justice, "the court does not buy pipe, but grants might be available." Stumbo also said he would talk to city officials. Ermal Tackett, magistrate of the Daniels Creek area, said he would also look into the situation.

Paul Howard asked the court to close a road at Stone Coal, called Red Dog Hollow. Jackie Owens, magistrate of the district, expressed concern that county trucks used the road to remove red dog from the area. Owens said the court usually doesn't close roads. "We open roads," Owens stated.

Howard told court members drivers were traveling too fast on the road and he was concerned for the safety of his children.

Owens said residents of four or five homes located in the hollow use the road to gain access to their property. "Only two vehicles use the road—the rest walk," Howard told the court. "It started out as a foot-path, and kept getting bigger and bigger," Howard said.

Judge Stumbo told Howard the court would check into the situation, but before the road could be closed, it had to be advertised in the Floyd County Times.

Owens explained to Howard that residents there had to be contacted to see if they agreed with the road closure. "If one person kicks on it, it can't be done," Owens said.

The court directed Howard to return to the next meeting, Friday, Dec. 16, at 10 a.m., after the residents had been contacted.

In other business, Burl Wells Spurlock of First Commonwealth Bank gave the second reading of the bank bonds. The court unanimously approved the motion to accept the reading. Judge Stumbo directed a Notice of Passage and Summary of Bond Ordinance be submitted to the Floyd County Times for publication.

Residents of Layne Bottom at Harold petitioned the court to take their road into the county road system, though a portion of it is located on CSX property. The court unanimously agreed.

In additional business, the court voided a check to Donnie Hall for $224, issued a check to Andy Hall for $224, and reappointed Fred Goble to the Floyd County Utilities Board. Goble's term expired Monday, Nov. 14.

In conclusion, the court agreed to pay all claims and bills, and signed the minutes of the meeting.

Caudill, Former Magistrate, Granted Probation On Charges

Ed Caudill, former Floyd County magistrate, will be on probation for three years, and barring violations will not serve a one-year sentence he received as the result of a 1985 conviction for second degree forgery charges.

According to Caudill's attorney, Ned Pillersdorf of Prestonsburg, Judge Steven Nick Frazier recently ruled on Caudill's sentence suspension. Caudill, who had represented District 3 for almost 24 years, resigned Oct. 7, citing failing health and being "victimized by a perplexing criminal conviction."

Six appeals of the conviction were rejected by various state and federal judiciary.

Caudill will remain on probation for three years, said Pillersdorf.

Crisp Arrested For Hall Murder

A Floyd County man was arrested and charged with the murder of Ricky L. Hall Tuesday afternoon, according to the Floyd County Sheriff's Department.

Michael Lee Crisp, 24, of Dwale, was arrested around 4 p.m. Tuesday in Allen by Deputy Sheriff Anthony Castle and state police Trooper James Rederick, officials said. He was charged with murder and is being lodged in the Floyd County Jail. Hall, 33, of Prestonsburg, was found dead Nov. 13 beside John's Branch Road by a local resident walking his dog, according to post 9 of the Kentucky State Police.

Hall bled to death from multiple stab wounds to the head, neck and chest, Floyd County Coroner Roger Nelson said.

Mullins Appointed Wheelwright Mayor After Daniels' Resignation

Wheelwright Mayor Don Daniels resigned and the City Commission appointed Larry Joe Mullins as the new mayor at its regularly scheduled meeting Saturday.

Mullins, who was previously a city commissioner, said that he and the Commission will "do everything honestly and above board, and do everything we can for the community."

To fill Mullins' vacant commission seat, the City Commission appointed Joe Stewart. Stewart had been previously appointed by the governor

Hudson Killed Near Dewey Dam During Apparent Domestic Dispute

A man was killed late Wednesday night near Dewey Dam and a woman, reportedly his girlfriend, was charged with murder, according to the Floyd County Sheriff's Department.

James R. Hudson, 39, of Hager Hill, was killed with a .38-caliber handgun, officials said. The bullet went into the right side of his body and exited the left side.

Charged with murder was Karen Couch, 28, originally of Hazard, but now of Prestonsburg, officials said. She was released Monday on a property bond from the Floyd County Jail.

Couch and Hudson were apparently living together and were having a domestic fight at their Dewey Dam residence when Hudson was shot, officials said.

The murder is still under investigation by the Sheriff's Department and the Kentucky State Police.

Community United Methodist Church To Hold Annual Thanksgiving Dinner

In the word "Thanksgiving," giving is the operative word for local churches who give of their energy to prepare a community dinner on Thanksgiving Day.

The dinner, now in its third year, is for anyone who has nothing to prepare, and is held from noon until 4 p.m. Thursday at Community United Methodist Church, according to Kay Willis of Community U.M.C.

"Our church is thankful for what we have, and we realize there is a need in the community," Willis said. "We try to fulfill that need for at least one day."

Although the dinner is at Community U.M.C., First Baptist Church, First United Methodist Church and others prepare food for that day, she said.

Besides feeding people at the church, they will also be feeding Prestonsburg firefighters and police officers on duty and Meals on Wheels recipients, Willis said. They will also deliver to anyone in Prestonsburg.

Those who need a meal delivered this Thanksgiving Day call 886-8087 or 886-2552.

Times' Offices Close For Holiday

The staff of the Floyd County Times wishes all Floyd Countians a happy Thanksgiving holiday, and an enjoyable day of rest.

The Times will be closed Thursday, as will most area businesses. Friday and Saturday, the office will be open, and regular business hours observed.

Floyd Fiscal Court Given Clean Bill

The Floyd County Fiscal Court got a "clean audit opinion" and was commended for its investment programs and success in obtaining community project grants, State Auditor Bob Babbage reported Tuesday when the audit for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1987 was presented to County Judge Executive John M. Stumbo.

All areas of finance looked good for the county, and the Sheriff's office had accounted for all monies, Babbage said.

"Keep it where it is, and we'll be all smiles," he said.

"The county has shown marked improvement over prior years in both its accounting procedures and compliance policies. We wish to commend the county for its efforts and urge that these improvements be maintained," the audit report read.

The county had maintained a good balance in its general fund and in the local government economic assistance fund, Babbage said.

The figures indicate low balances in the road and bridge fund and the jail fund; however, the jail has operated independently of other county funds, he said. Most counties have to rely on general fund monies to operate their jails.

Other points Babbage noted were that although the Federal Revenue Sharing program had been discontinued, Floyd County's funds had only dropped to $156,357 in fiscal year 1987, and the county earned $186,625 in interest that same year.

The county had also received a Community Development Block Grant for $128,778 and an Appalachian Regional Commission grant for $142,574 during fiscal year 1987, he said.

Because the Revenue Sharing Program was ended, Babbage said, it was important for counties to look for other ways to manage resources and continue services.

Voters' Letters Will Be Sent

By L.J. Cooley

In December, the 27,000 registered voters in Floyd County will get letters from the County Clerk's office advising them to re-register if they have changed precincts, according to Carla Bolton, County Clerk.

If a voter has moved and changed precincts, he or she must reregister within 30 days of moving to the new precinct to be able to vote, Bolton said.

The deadline to change precincts and be able to vote in the May primary is around April 23, 1989, she said. Voters can contact the County Clerk's office by mail or go there to fill out the change of precinct form.

Although this is not a new law, the penalties for voting in a precinct from which a person has moved changed, Bolton said.

The penalty used to be "just a slap on the hand, but now you can get fined or put in jail," she said. The tougher penalties began July 15.

Enforcement of the law earlier this month was new to most voters in the state, and most of the counties had problems, she said.

The only way voters could vote in

School Panel Sets Target Date

by L.J. Cooley

A target date of on or before April 1989 was set to make recommendations to the Floyd County Board of Education, and subcommittees were established at the second meeting of the Blue Ribbon committee Monday night, according to Dolores Smith, chairperson of the committee.

The committee elected to move quickly to study and make several recommendations for the Board of Education, Smith said. The committee requested material from the board in order to become familiar with the present system and to make better recommendations.

Three subcommittees were established to review specific areas in the school system, Smith said. These subcommittees and the interim chairpeople are management and personnel, chaired by Anne Chaney; finance, chaired by Betty Rowland; and curriculum, chaired by Jean Rosenberg.

The subcommittees met after the committee meeting to decide tasks and to set meeting times, she said.

The finance subcommittee's goals had previously been set by the panel: salary indexing for teachers, and seeing what revenues are available to do this, Smith said.

The subcommittees, at their own discretion, can hold public meetings and invite resource people to assist, she said.

The full committee also discussed its overall agenda at the meeting, she said. The committee decided at its first meeting to look at the system in all areas and make long-range plans for the system.

The committee includes elected county officials, Floyd County Education Association members, Floyd County Education Forum members, members of civic organizations, businesspeople and the clergy.

The Blue Ribbon committee will have its next meeting Dec. 15, with subcommittee meetings planned prior to that time.

Filing For May Primary Open; 2 Have Registered

Filing for the May primary election is underway, having opened the day after the Nov. 8 general election, and will continue through Jan. 23.

According to County Court Clerk Carla Robinson, only two men have filed for office: Ainis Hall of Drift, for magistrate, District 3; and Derwin Merion, for county coroner.

Races to be contested in May are county judge-executive, county jailer, county sheriff, property valuation administrator, county clerk, district judge, county attorney, county surveyor, county coroner, four magisterial districts and four constable's seats.

Prestonsburg city council members approved an ordinance recently that abolishes preferential primaries in municipal races.

to serve on the commission.

In other business, the council passed a resolution to form a Parks Commission to oversee possible refurbishing of city parks. Commissioners Dennis Harris and Jerry Tackett will head up the Parks Commission.

The commission also agreed to apply for a Land and Water Conservation Fund grant for recreation matching funds.

They also plan to determine ownership of library books now in the Clubhouse and, if the city owns them, put them to use.

The council also passed a resolution to donate $100 to buy Christmas toys and candy for children in the Melvin area.

The commission also officially requested that the Utility Commission mark all inoperative fire hydrants in the city. A provision in the recently passed water grant ordinance says that new hydrants will be installed as part of the water system.

The City Commission also agreed to give the city's two employees Christmas bonuses and officially gave Mountain Housing "no objections" to tearing down the Fountain Building.

The next regular scheduled meeting will be Saturday, Dec. 17, at 10 a.m. at City Hall.

a precinct when the election officials were doubtful that they still lived in, was to sign an oath of voter, swearing that they did live in that precinct, Bolton said. About 82 oaths of voter were signed in the November election.

It is now also mandatory for all absentee ballot requests, oaths of voter and voter assistance requests to be turned over to the circuit court grand jury to examine if they suspect something to be wrong, she said. The attorney general also has the right to examine the requests and oaths.

Scott Walker from Mountain Comprehensive Care Center in Prestonsburg talks with a group of high school students about date rape and family violence at the Champions Against Drugs Teen Leadership Conference Action Day Tuesday.

Teen Conference Held Tuesday

About 88 students from five area counties got intense, day-long training in helping other teens deal with drunk driving, teenage suicide, date rape and family violence during the Champions Against Drugs Teen Leadership Conference Action Day, held Tuesday at Jenny Wiley State Park.

The Action Day is a condensed version of the three-day CAD Teen Leadership Conference, according to Karen Petry, prevention consultant with Mountain Comprehensive Care Center in Pikeville.

"They will learn skills they can use when they get back in school to help other students," Petry said.

The three topics discussed Tuesday were the top three area teens at the state leadership conference wanted more programs on, she said.

Each area high school selected students to attend the conference and then those students will help recruit other students for the area three-day conference to be held next spring, Petry said.

The teens attending Action Day will learn about warning signs with problems of drunk driving, teen suicide, date rape and family violence so they can help others, she said.

"The goal is to seek out the child with the problem, tell them they are not alone, and help them to find resources," Petry said.

"We give them key things they can pick up on," she said about what students learned during the day.

"That's what prevention is."

Arson Suspected In Allen Fire

The Allen Volunteer Fire Department responded to two fires this past week, and arson is suspected in one of those blazes.

Firefighters responded to a fire on Arkansas Creek at 3:20 a.m. Thursday at an abandoned house owned by Jim Walters Homes, according to Todd Gray of the Allen Volunteer Fire Department.

It took nearly five hours to extinguish the blaze, Gray said. The Kentucky State Police Arson Investigation Team was called to investigate that fire and another fire in an abandoned house 20 days earlier near the Thursday fire.

Another fire early Saturday morning burned a mobile home owned by Paul Slone of Allen, Gray said.

The home was engulfed in flames when firefighters arrived, he said. A neighbor said an explosion was heard before the fire began.

Letters To The Editor

Reader Seeks Info On Floyd Ancestors

Dear Editor,
I am working on a Shepherd family genealogy and I have traced our line to Floyd County. They would have left Kentucky some time between 1892 and 1910. Their youngest child was born in Floyd County in 1892, and they are listed in the 1910 Oklahoma State Census. As I understand it, they left Kentucky because of a feud, but I do not know who they were fighting with.

Does anyone in your area know about a John C. Shepherd born about 1850 married about 1870 to Elizabeth (Lizzie) Holbrooks or Holbrooks. Children are born in Floyd County are Ella Shepherd, married a Henderson Richardson; Viney Shepherd married, Alex Dotson; Lynn Body Shepherd, married Jane Hicks; Kelse Shepherd, married Rhoda Hicks; Alex Shepherd, married Susie Hicks; Taulbee Preston Shepherd, married Fannie Hicks; Julie Shepherd, married Bascom Dotson; Oscar Shepherd, married Mallie Hall; and Sulie Shepherd, married B. Prater.

Any information you could give me would be appreciated.

Former Resident Remembers Early Dwale

Dear Editor,
During the weekend of Oct. 21-23, I felt as if I had taken a trip back in time. I returned to Floyd County to visit the many friends and relatives still living in and around Dwale and Allen. As a 17-year-old, I left Dwale in February 1947 and went off to the US Navy. In 1954, I married a young lady in South Carolina, where we eventually established a residence. In 1970, I retired from the Navy and returned from Honolulu to South Carolina.

As I drove from Dwale to Prestonsburg, I remembered how that short trip used to be. There were two ways to go—around the hill to Allen, then across the Big Sandy to US 23 and down river to town (about a 12 mile drive)—or go over Bull Mountain and through Bull Creek by way of an unpaved road that was at times very rough.

This was a drive of about six miles (if you had a vehicle to drive). At the end of this dirt road was a very narrow bridge across Big Sandy to Prestonsburg. Several of my friends and I used to walk to Prestonsburg on Saturday evenings, attend the movies and then walk home again. Once in a great while, someone would stop and give us a ride home. I am amazed at how easy it is to get around in Floyd County now.

On Saturday, Oct. 22, I drove up to Wayland (as far as Garrett on the new Ky. 80). I remember the Wayland of the late 1930s and 1940s. As you entered town, the schools were on your left and then shops and company stores were on both sides of the road. You then turned left up a long street lined with almost identical company houses.

At the upper end of this street on the right sat a large boarding house operated by my Grandmother, 'Ma' Haywood. On the left was the big Princess Elkhorn Mining Company tippie. My older brother said that on a summer Saturday evening a person could walk from the boarding house all the way to the company store and back and never miss a word or note of the Grand Ole Opry since all the houses would have their doors and windows open.

I ran into some of my childhood friends. I had a long, enjoyable talk with Ray of the famous Ray, Roy and Joy—the Clifton triplets. I had not seen Ray since 1947 and Roy (Cricket) made the supreme sacrifice in Korea in the early 1950s.

I talked with Vonda Humble Webb and was shocked when I learned that very few of those who were with us in the eighth grade at Dwale were still living. It seems the class was extremely prone to cancer and heart attacks. How fondly I remember Robert and Evelyn Jones, Bob Clifton, Drake Davis and Frank LeMaster, to name a few.

I visited with Miles and Alma Thomas, who are approaching their 60th wedding anniversary. I hope they have 100 anniversaries, because going back to Dwale without seeing them would be a big disappointment.

I entered the home of Amos Vaughn and family. His mother and father are always among the best memories I have of Dwale.

Finally, I visited the Shepherd Cemetery of Dwale where Mama Jake and 'Papa Jake' Akers are interred. I hope that someday I will be remembered as fondly as these two.

I wish to thank those of Floyd County who shaped my life: Raymond Cooley, Lida M. Laven Thomas, and Buster Cooley as teachers; Lou Laferty, Eulis Elkins, Laura Humble and Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Akers, for setting the example of how to live a full life.

BRUCE AKERS, LT USN (Ret)

Reader Responds To Salary Letter

Dear Editor:
This letter is in response to last week's letter by Sheila Mann. Ms. Mann didn't state her occupation or her educational level. Her response indicates she had an axe to grind against teachers. Never once did she mention administrators' salaries. Apparently, she feels their salaries are well-deserved.

A majority of teachers in Kentucky at this time have a master's degree or Rank I (the equivalent of 30 hours beyond the M.A.). They are fully qualified to teach and they do their job superbly.

I have two children of my own who have graduated from the Floyd County School system. One was a National Merit Semi-Finalist, and the other was a Governor's Scholar. They had those teachers she said "have the audacity" to ask for a decent salary.

Education begins at home with the proper attitude and parental support. The fact is, that whether one's children attend public or private schools, parents are also responsible for the education of their children. It is always easier to blame teachers for one's own shortcomings.

Teachers aren't asking for anything they don't deserve and believe me, we do deserve a higher salary and a better insurance policy.

Phyllis Craft
A Floyd County teacher and proud of it!

Education Groups Are Political, Blind To Overall Goals

Dear Editor:
Over the past months I have read and seen many things concerning the education in Floyd County. Some of these things have been positive, others have not, but the most disturbing thing to me is the political factors that exist within our school system.

Instead of educators and citizens working together to improve the education of the county, each group is working toward its own set of goals. These groups are more concerned with getting their candidate into office or getting what their group wants, thus forgetting the most important thing at times—education. A few of these groups are blind to their political involvement, believing they are "apolitical"; others just do not care.

I think it is time the citizens of Floyd County make everyone in the county and state realize the most important factor in the Floyd County education system is not politics, but education.

If this county does not realize the importance of quality education, it will never be able to attract industry. Without new businesses and industry, this county will slowly but surely die. (Name withheld by request)

Pharmacy Footnotes

By HAROLD COOLEY

HARD-TO-SWALLOW NEWS

It is not uncommon for a person to experience difficulty in swallowing a medication in capsule or tablet form. Anyone with this problem should talk to the pharmacist about it if it has escaped mention at the doctor's office. The pharmacist may be able to make a suggestion for changing the medicine to a more accessible form. Of course, a physician's permission must be sought if a prescription change is needed. There are some medications in tablet form which should not be crushed up to be mixed with water. To do so may affect their absorption rate, or may cause stomach irritation. On the other hand, if a tablet can be crushed up, the pharmacist may advise as to which liquid it should be mixed with.

COOLEY APOTHECARY carries what you would expect to find in a well-inventoried drug store. We are very proud to be able to provide families in this area with all their pharmaceutical needs including health and convalescent aids. Our records are fully maintained so that they can be readily available to both you and your physician. You'll find us located at #2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106 and open Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-3. MasterCard and Visa honored plus we welcome all third party payments.

HANDY HINT:
Ask the pharmacist before transferring any medication to a new storage container such as a pill box.

God's Work of Art

By GILL HALSTENBERG

*This face I know so well,
With lines I can't erase.
Life has put them there,
And time has etched them in place.
Sorrow did contribute,
And worry did add its share.
The face shows all the markings
Of a life that's filled with care;
A life with love for others,
Helping, working, doing deeds;
A heart to lift life's burdens
By fulfilling others' needs.
The hair has now turned whiter—
That was a deeper hue;
Hairs replaced with silver
By God's own hands in view.
This face shows all the beauty
A full life does impart,
And it took the great Creator
To make this work of art.*

Words are inadequate to express the thanks and appreciation for the food, love, flowers and prayers, from our neighbors, friends and relatives of both the Dwale and Harold communities during the passing of our mom.

Our thanks go especially to Sister Margaret Jacobs of the Hospice Organization, who was so very near during our most agonizing time of need, both at home and also at the funeral. Sister Margaret, your kindness made a lasting impression on our entire family. May God Bless you.

Our thanks also go to the Nelson-Frazier Funeral Home—Roger and Sandy, aside from the love of a lifetime family friendship, you went above and beyond any call of duty or professionalism, you made our last memory of our mother a beautiful one. Our mom looked 10 years younger. Thanks, we love you all.

Many thanks to Rev. Charles Elswick, Rev. Dan Fredricks, The Vogel Day Methodist Church and the Ladies Society of the Church. Thank you for the food, kindness, use of the church, your prayers and family dinner.

Most of all, for the beautiful funeral service for Mom. Only God knows what was accomplished during that time.

Thanks again to everyone.

THE ETHEL (BE BE) BURCHFIELD FAMILY

Card of Thanks

The family of Sarah Harris would like to thank each and every one of our family, friends and our neighbors who came to our family in time of need. Those who brought food, sent flowers, and those who took time to say a prayer on our behalf, you will never know how it all was so greatly appreciated and we will never forget you.

We want to especially thank the Providence Church and the Hindman Funeral Services, but most of all we thank God for sending His beautiful message through the brothers, as one sister said, "It was just heaven on earth" and our mother would have been so pleased.

God Bless Each One,
THE HARRIS FAMILY

Religious Viewpoints

by Hondel Adams, Evangelist,
First Christian Church
 "Giving thanks always for all things unto God and the Father in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ."
 In Luke, Chapter 17, we read of 10 lepers who were blessed, yet only one who was grateful enough to return to give thanks. "Were there not 10 cleansed? Where are the nine?" Is this proportion right for our day? Only one out of 10 was really grateful for the blessing received.
 A few years ago, when a drought struck the mid-west, a minister called ed the Christian people of the community together to pray for rain. The house was packed. The people united in offering earnest, sincere prayers and rain came from heaven to moisten the thirsty soil. Shortly after, the minister called the people to come and give God the glory and make their gratitude known to Him, as they had made their requests but, to his dismay, the people excused themselves on the basis that they were so occupied taking care of their land that they could not spare the time for such a service.

As we approach the Thanksgiving season, let me say there are many things for which I'm thankful. I'm thankful for God's word, the Bible. We need to respect it and never strive to bend it to fit our own purposes. It is "perfect and will thoroughly furnish us unto every good work" (II Tim. 3: 16-17). In your study of the Word you will come to know the truth and the truth shall make you free (John 8: 32). If I am grateful for the Bible I will study and not neglect it.

I'm thankful for the church that Jesus died to establish. If the church is ever taken from our midst, we would soon be in a deplorable condition. Outside of the church there is no salvation. We can show our thankfulness by attending every service, upholding its leaders, supporting it financially, and praying for one another. It's the greatest work this side of heaven. Don't find fault and criticize but give a word of praise and encouragement. Let us spend more time on our knees giving thanks for the church an more time in the field showing our thanks. Thanksgiving leads to thanksgiving. I'm thankful for each day. "This is the day that the Lord has made. Let us rejoice and be glad in it." "Seek first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you. Take therefore no thought for the morrow for the morrow shall take thought for the things of itself. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof" (Matt. 6: 33-34).

In the locker room of the Pittsburgh Steelers football team hangs a sign, "whatever it takes". This is the slogan that helped make them world-famous. We need to show daily our gratitude for the Bible, for salvation, for the church by spreading the word and by doing whatever it takes to make our calling and election sure.

In Memory of Elmer Reffett

Who passed away Nov. 21, 1985

*The golden gates stood open,
 Three years ago Monday,
 With farewells unspoken,
 You sadly passed away.*

*You suffered much in silence,
 Your spirit did not bend,
 You faced your pain with courage,
 Until the very end.*

*God knows how much we miss you,
 Never shall your memory fade,
 Loving thoughts shall ever wonder,
 To the spot where you are laid.*

*And looking back with tenderness,
 Along the path you trod,
 We bless the years we had with you,
 And leave the rest to God.*

Sadly missed by wife Ruby Jean and Children and Grandchildren

Legislative Perspective

By Rep. Greg Stumbo

By Rep. Greg Stumbo
House Majority
Floor Leader

Adding to Kentucky's financial dilemmas is the overcrowding of the county jails and state prisons.

The most recent court orders dealing with county jail overcrowding involve Campbell, Kenton and Fayette counties. Corrections Cabinet officials estimate possible fines at $4 million. However, some correction experts in the state suggest totals could be much higher.

Jefferson County currently operates under an existing court order, having already gone through one massive relocation of prisoners housed in their facilities. Eight other counties could be facing stiff penalties as court orders are pending decisions.

The maximum security prison at Eddyville experienced a major physical renovation and standard changes as a result of a prisoner lawsuit and a decreed order which followed. Due directly to the decreed order, the state prison system has spent well over $200 million dollars in dramatic physical and regulatory reform since 1980.

Overcrowding and substandard prison conditions are a nationwide problem, not just a situation experienced here in the Commonwealth. To understand how the problem developed, we need to look back into the 1970s when the mood to reform prison systems began.

During the Julian Carroll administration in Kentucky, a class action federal court case set a cap on the number of state prisoners allowed in the system. Because of that ruling, prisoners began to back up in county jails. Consequently, a way was needed to let county jails house state prisoners over a long period of time until they could be transferred into the state system.

In 1980, Jefferson County prisoners sued the county in federal court. They brought many discrimination charges, including lack of specific square footage per prisoner, inadequate lighting, no recreation or exercise facilities and a serious lack of sanitary conditions. As a result of these changing standards and regulations, available county jail space also found itself at a minimum. Because of tightening regulations, many jails that could not meet new standards closed. In addition, the Legislature's progressive toughening up on those who break the law has also contributed to the overcrowding problem. Laws such as the "drunk driving bill," the habitual criminals act and tougher drug laws have placed a premium on jail and prison space.

The legislature began to study the escalating jail and prison problems. We visited several county jails and state prison facilities. Testimony was gathered from experts in the field both inside and out of the Commonwealth. We worked closely with the Corrections Cabinet.

Members of the 1982 session of the General Assembly passed major legislation that radically changed the manner in which county jails operate. The legislation created new jail standards and changed the old "fee system" on how jail financing had been based on a monthly system of reimbursements. The new change also provided a way to provide funding to allow counties to build new jails or let substandard jails be renovated.

A new prison concept appeared in 1986—that being a prison privately owned and operated. The only private prison now operating in the United States is located in Marion County. It is a minimum security facility and is being closely scrutinized by nationwide correction experts.

Revenue was appropriated by the 1986 General Assembly to build a new prison at West Liberty. Initially, it was to contain 500 medium security beds. But even before its completion, the 1988 Legislature provided enough new revenue to more than double that amount.

The public and the Legislature are still looking to alleviate the seemingly ever growing problems of jail and prison overcrowding. There was a move during the 1988 session of the General Assembly to allow state take over of county jails to provide for a consistent management of all incarcerations. It did not pass, which leaves the problem at an impasse, still growing worse with every criminal conviction.

Governor Wallace Wilkinson has appointed a task force to recommend an immediate solution to the swelling totals of fines that seemingly continue to mount every time there is a criminal conviction in this state. The Corrections Cabinet is charged with finding space for 950 state prisoners now held in county jails in violation of court orders. Medium security is the state prison system's greatest void.

Several possibilities are being analyzed by the group, including changing Lexington's Blackburn minimum security classification to "restricted security." But, if approved, this recommendation could cost as much as $17.4 million and take at least six months to carry out.

—Converting the Roederer Farm Center in Oldham County to a 200-bed medium security prison.

—Placing a second prisoner in most cells at the Luther Luckett Correctional Complex in Oldham County to accommodate 210 more medium security inmates.

—Placing 100 minimum security inmates in privately operated facilities.

These are short-term solutions to a long-term problem. Long-range plans must be formulated to assure these court rulings resulting in fines do not become a regular appropriation in our state budget. The main objective must be to create more beds at the most reasonable cost to the state. This critical issue must be addressed by state policymakers soon. But, like many other chronic problems facing the Commonwealth, part of the solution lies in the amount of revenue that can be made available for new beds.

Blaze Damages DeLong Residence

Prestonsburg fire fighters were called out early Tuesday morning to assist the David Fire Department in battling a blaze that heavily damaged the home of Bill DeLong.

The residence, located one mile below 1210 junction, was ablaze when the Prestonsburg department arrived; firefighters continued battling the blaze until 4:30 a.m.

The two-story structure sustained heavy damage, according to Tom Blackburn, Prestonsburg fire chief.

The cause of the fire will be determined by the David Fire Department, with assistance from State Arson Investigator Barry McKenzie.

In a separate incident, Prestonsburg personnel responded to an automobile fire Friday. Upon arrival, Blackburn and firefighter Don Hall found smoke and flames coming from underneath the hood of an auto belonging to Glen Holbrook. Hall extinguished the fire, which was apparently caused by wiring that had shorted out. Little damage was caused.

Personnel also responded to a fire at Hardee's Restaurant, where a deep fat fryer caught fire. Prior to the department's arrival, an employee doused the flames.

On Monday, firefighters were called to Super America, after employees reported smelling smoke in the building. Blackburn said the building and roof areas were searched, and no fire found. Apparently, he said, a build up of dust on the filter system in the heating unit caused the odor.

Squad 6 of Prestonsburg's Station

Two was called to the home of Martin Conn Saturday, marking the first day Squad 6 operated in the Station Two area. Conn, who complained of uncontrollable shaking, was treated and transported to Highlands Regional Medical Center.

Blackburn said the department will now be able to respond to wrecks and emergencies a lot faster, because it is operating two rescue units in the city staffed by EMTs.

Missing Man Found, Says Hale

A David man who disappeared Wednesday night from his home was found Thursday morning by a deputy sheriff at a strip mine site on David Mountain, according to the Floyd County Sheriff's Department.

Blake Meadows, a state auditor at the Floyd County Courthouse, is a recuperating stroke victim, and he apparently wandered out of his home about 10:30 Wednesday night, according to Deputy Sheriff George Hale.

The Floyd County Rescue Squad searched through the night for Meadows. Hale said. Thursday morning, three men who had been four-wheeling on a strip mine site said they saw a man there, he said.

When Hale reached the strip site on David Mountain, Meadows was there with his dogs, he said. Meadows was wet, cold and showing signs of shock. He was taken to Highland Regional Medical Center, and was released Monday in good condition.

We've Performed Over 20,000 Heart Catheterizations. There's No Substitute For Experience.

Before heart disease can be properly treated, it has to be accurately identified. That's the function of cardiac catheterization, a diagnostic procedure that plays an important role in identifying coronary artery disease. No other hospital in Central Kentucky has performed more of these procedures than Saint Joseph Hospital.

That's What You'd Expect From Saint Joseph.

We mean it when we say "our experience makes your experience better." That's why so many cardiologists and open heart surgeons practice at Saint Joseph (more open heart surgery is performed here than at all other hospitals in Central Kentucky combined).

In some cases, we're able to avoid open heart surgery with a therapeutic form of heart catheterization—coronary angioplasty. Our overall commitment to the care of cardiovascular patients is reflected not just in the number of beds devoted to them, but also in our commitment to new technologies. We're now transplanting human heart valves in addition to the mechanical and animal ones used. New drugs, t-PA and Streptokinase, are helping doctors save heart tissue that in the past would have been lost due to heart attacks.

There's Another Side To Cardiology At Saint Joseph.

We recognize that there's more to healing than the technology. Families are an important part of cardiac care—involvement in every step of the planning and decision making. We maintain a good relationship with "Mended Hearts," a support group for open heart surgery patients. And we have an excellent staff, specially trained for cardiac care.

We're glad that by doing more than 20,000 procedures over the past 15 years we've been able to assist so many people. We're glad, too, because of the experience it's provided. Because in matters of the heart, there's no substitute for experience.

College Highlights: Auburn, LSU On Top

HIGHLIGHTS

(for Nov. 24, 25, 26, and Dec. 1)

Auburn and LSU are at the top of the heap in the Southeast Conference, the "A" Tigers 5-1, the "L" Tigers 6-1.

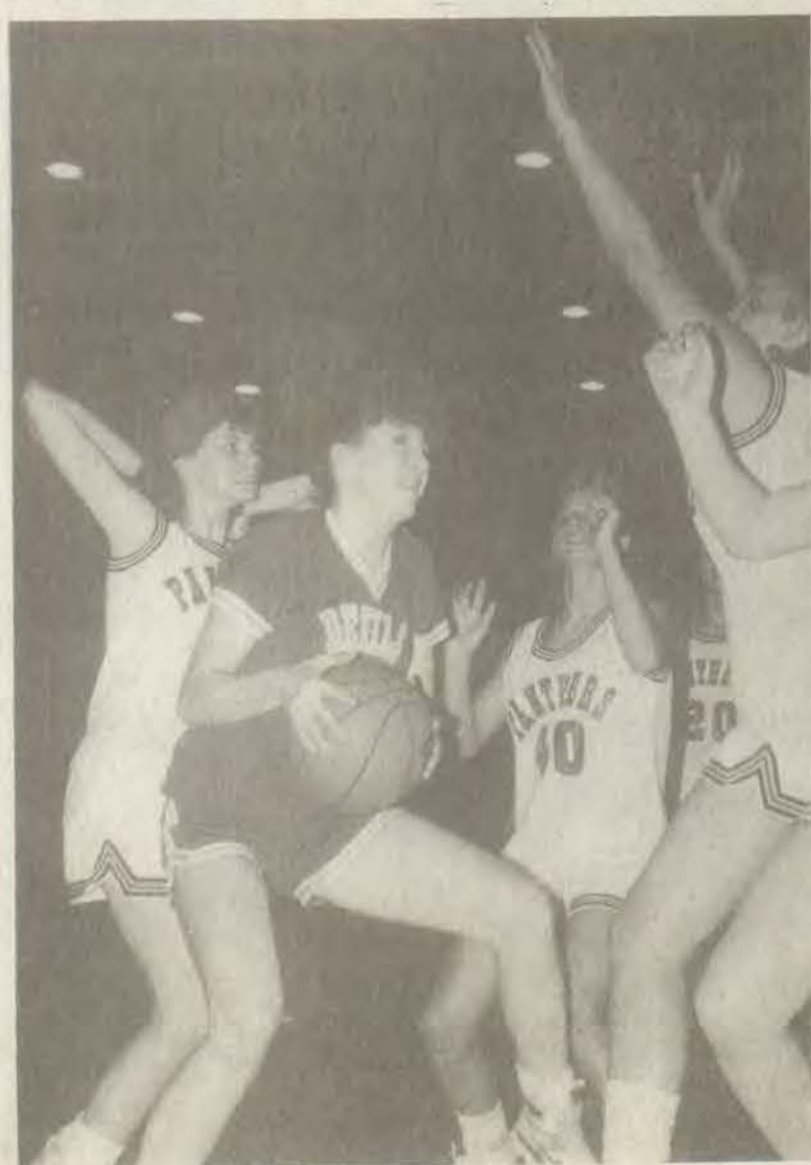

LSU's conference season is over, and it included a big 7-6 win over Auburn. Auburn plays Alabama Friday and the co-championship is at stake for the "A" Tigers. Even if Auburn beats Alabama, LSU supporters will say their Tigers are the legitimate champions, since they beat Auburn. Whatever happens, it's been another tight race in the powerful Southeast. The Tide was upset earlier by Mississippi and lost a 19-18 decision to LSU, so Alabama can only play the spoiler. A Crimson Tide victory and LSU wins the title outright.

Army whipped Navy 17-3 last year in a game that only meant bragging rights for the winner. This year the West Pointers were not only 8-1 prior to their trip to Ireland last week, but are definitely bowl-bound. So, the Midshipmen of Annapolis have something to shoot at. They're sporting a 3-7 season, a perfect description for a team ready to spring an upset in such a traditional game as this one.

Then comes Notre Dame's invasion of Southern California. Last season in South Bend, it was 26-15 for the Irish. This year, both teams are powerhouses. Both not only have outstanding won-lost records, but each has at least one major upset to its credit. The Trojans whipped powerful Oklahoma early in the season 23-7. The Irish shocked last year's national champion Miami 31-30.

In a couple of other traditional games, Texas A & M is favored over Texas on Thanksgiving Day, and Arizona will beat Arizona State.

Hemmed In

McDowell's Tish Slone is hemmed in by Dilce Combs defenders in Monday night basketball action. The Lady Daredevils fell to the Panthers, 59-46, after leading much of the game.

McDowell Splits Games, 2-1

The McDowell Lady Daredevils began their season with a win, but dropped below the .500 mark Monday night with a fourth-quarter loss to Dilce Combs, 59-46.

"We held the lead until the beginning of the fourth quarter," said assistant coach Sheila Tucker, adding the squad's inexperience contributed to loss of momentum late in the game. Four of the Lady Daredevils' five starters fouled out in the final minutes, as did some of Dilce Combs' squad.

"I was real proud of the team," added Tucker.

McDowell trailed by one point at the close of the first quarter, but stretched its lead to 30-25 at the half. In the third frame, Dilce Combs outscored McDowell 16-6, and again in the fourth period, 18-10, to take the win.

Leading the way for the Floyd County squad was Gloria Mullins, who hit four field goals — including one from 3-point range — and five free throws for a team-leading 14 points. Teammate Lori Bryant hit two field goals and seven free throws to contribute 11 points.

Dilce Combs led the scoring column, however, with an 18-point effort from Kim Gluynn and 17 points from Melissa Morgan.

McDowell, with the loss, went to 1-2 on the season.

Last week, the squad defeated June Bryant, 53-36, but fell to Dorton High School's Lady Wildcats in the Millard Invitational Tournament, 55-43.

Against Dorton, Lori Bryant led the way with 19 points, gained on six field goals and seven free throws. Tish Slone contributed nine points.

McDowell trailed 10-7 at the end of the first period, but outscored Dorton 15-12 in the second to take a 25-19 lead. Bryant accounted for seven of the team's 15 points in the second period. Third-quarter action saw Dorton outshoot McDowell 16-10, and repeat the performance in the final frame, 17-11, to earn the victory.

Against June Bryant on Nov. 15, the Lady Daredevils outgunned the opposition 53-36 to open the season with a win. June Bryant's Gina Hall hit 10 from the floor and four from the line to lead all scorers with 24 points, but McDowell's Gloria Mullins wasn't far behind. Mullins made good on 11 field goals and one free throw to lead her team with 23 points. Also scoring in double figures for McDowell was Gloria Mullins, with 14 points.

Earlier in the pre-season, new head coach Cassandra Keathley set a goal of 15 wins for McDowell. The rookie coach said anything over 15 would be an added bonus. While the squad has struggled the past few years, Keathley says it is likely to change in the near future.

McDowell will be on the road for its next game Monday, Nov. 28, taking on Paintsville, and will remain on the road Wednesday, Nov. 30, when the team faces Dorton.

McDowell's next home game will be Monday, Dec. 5, against Johns Creek.

The Sporting Times

From the Big Blue of the University of Kentucky to the Cardinal Red of the University of Louisville, the colors of basketball are true, deep running, and touching to the souls of fans throughout the Bluegrass state.

A way of life, it has been called by some. Others term it a second religion, a serious part of their spiritual sports life.

Basketball runs deep in the veins of Kentuckians. They love the sport, love to back their favorite team, donating their time and money to the cause.

The college season is back again, creating excitement the die-hard fan thrives on. Nowhere in this broad land is the fever more furious than in Kentucky.

Following is a brief preview into the state's more successful programs, featuring some of the better players.

University Of Kentucky: Buried under the highly-publicized NCAA investigation sits one of the nation's more successful basketball teams.

The University of Kentucky has produced some of the best college basketball teams and players of all time, but that, in the past few months, has been overshadowed by an investigation of allegations against the program.

Kentucky not only enters the 1988-89 season with the dark cloud of the investigation hovering above, they are forced to play without senior leadership, and with untested players.

The Wildcats, 27-6 a year ago, lost three starters to graduation, leading scorer Rex Chapman to the NBA's Charlotte Hornets, and Eric Manuel to an ACT allegation.

Of the returning players, UK has only one — Leron Ellis — who averaged over 20 points per game. Ellis, a 6'10" sophomore, scored at a 4.3 point per game clip, but is expected to post much better offensive numbers this season.

Mike Scott, 6'11", guard Derrick Miller, and sophomore point guard Sean Sutton are the only other Wildcats with game experience from last season.

Kentucky, as usual, enjoyed a tremendous recruiting year, or so it was thought. The Cats landed some of the biggest high school names in the U.S., but only one, Chris Mills, is expected to help this season.

Mills, from Southern California, is involved in some of the allegations.

and may eventually be termed ineligible.

Redshirts John Pelphrey, Deron Feldhaus and Johnathon Davis are available, but all three may be a couple years away from being impact players.

The Wildcats won't be dominating. They can't be found on any top 20 lists, but winning games isn't what concerns UK backers. The investigation will overshadow the season, and the final NCAA decision might be more important than reaching the Final Four.

University of Louisville: The Cardinals, along with Indiana, is the only team to win more than one national title in the 80s, and might become the only one to capture three.

Louisville lost only one starter from a team that finished 24-11, and advanced all the way to the Southeast Region semi-finals before losing to Oklahoma 108-98.

The Cardinals will be led by all-American candidate Pervis Ellison. The 6'9" forward/center scored 17.6 points per game. Ellison, a senior, blocked 102 shots, more than all opponents rejected against Louisville.

Keith Williams and LaBradford Smith, Louisville's starting backcourt, combined to score 22.5 points, eight assists, and 5.2 rebounds. Both are back.

Felton Spencer, a seven-footer, improved last season, finished with averages of 7.4 points and 4.2 rebounds, and displayed what Cardinal fans hope was a preview of the future. In his last two games, Spencer scored 31 points and hauled down 13 rebounds.

Kenny Payne, a sharp-shooting forward, returns for what is expected to be his best season ever. Payne averaged in double figures to go along with a 4.7 rebounding average.

Denny Crum has led Louisville to six Final Four appearances, including four in the last nine seasons, and with a total of 61.4 of last year's points per game average returning to go with over 28 rebounds, he could very well make a return trip.

Western Kentucky University: After a year of rebuilding, Western appears to have the foundation of another successful season solidified.

Four starters from last year's sixth-place Sun Belt Conference team return to provide a solid base to help the Hilltoppers return to power in the SBC.

Senior guard Brett McNeal, an NBA quality talent, returns to head the veteran Western team. McNeal, 6'3", averaged 20 points and three rebounds per game a year ago.

Two other players, center Anthony Smith and guard Roland Shelton, are returning double figure scorers. Smith, 6'8", also averaged in double figures on the boards.

Steve Miller, a 6'7" forward, averaged 9.7 points and 5.3 rebounds last season, and is expected to increase those numbers in his senior campaign.

Western itself is deep in basketball tradition. Before leaving Ohio Valley, the Hilltoppers dominated that conference, and captured titles in their new home, the Sun Belt.

Murray Arnold, entering his third year at Western, has averaged over 20 points a season, and is expected to match that this year. The Hilltoppers have a nice blend of experienced players to go with a talented young crop.

Murray State University: The M & M connection was sweet last year, and continued quality might mean another OVC title for the Racers.

Jeff Martin and point guard Don Mann scored a combined 43 points per game, and their expected success is one reason why Murray has been selected the Ohio Valley Conference's top pre-season squad.

Chris Odgen, 7.8 points and 6.8 rebounds, and Paul King, 6.3 and 2.6, will lend a hand in the Racers' repeat efforts.

Murray, which was eliminated from the NCAA tournament by Kansas in a close game, finished the 1987-88 season with a 22-9 record, including going 13-1 in the OVC.

Eastern Kentucky University: The Colonels return two starters from an 18-11 squad that finished third in the OVC. If they are to better their 1987-88 season Darrin O'Bryant and Randolph Taylor will need to have impressive seasons.

O'Bryant, a senior guard, is the team's leading returning scorer at 10.8. The 6'2" guard also pulled off four rebounds per game.

Taylor, a 6'7" forward, is the team's leading returning rebounder with six per outing. He also scored eight points a game.

The Colonels, in a vote by conference coaches and sports information directors, were selected to finish near the middle of the OVC pack this season.

Going For Layup

Priscilla Crawford of McDowell (15) drives in for the layup against Dilce Combs' Carol Johnson. Crawford scored five points in Monday's game.

Maps Provide Topographical Information Of Use To Anglers

Maps aren't just for lost travelers. They're for bass anglers, too. That's the opinion of Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff member Mickey Bruce, who uses them regularly in professional tournament competition.

"Maps let you eliminate a lot of water on a lake before you ever leave your living room," explains the Georgia angler. "With a little study you can find a lot of potentially productive areas in just a few minutes. If you simply went out searching for them in your boat with nothing but a depthfinder to guide you, you would probably need hours to find them."

What Bruce looks for on a map varies from season to season, but his primary interest is in finding well-defined depth changes, since bass everywhere seem to prefer places where shallow and deep water meet. Channel drop-offs, creek mouths, and even fast-falling shorelines are all things Bruce might circle on his map.

"About 90 percent of the fish I catch are less than 15 feet deep," he explains, "and in the fall months, the depth is more often between five and about 12 feet. With a good map, I can find these depths easily, then go straight to them once I'm actually on the water."

The types of maps Bruce recommends anglers try to obtain are navigation charts, usually published by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. They're extremely accurate in showing depth variations along the full length of a particular waterway. These maps may cost as much as $25 per copy, but if you fish a lake often, or want to learn it well, these are well worth the investment.

"Many marinas and tackle shops around a lake will sell less expensive maps," explains Bruce, "and while these may be good basic fishing maps, they often aren't quite as accurate. The main thing any lake map needs to show is depth changes, which are expressed as contour lines, just like on a topographic map."

The key to locating potentially good depth changes, explains Bruce, is first locating wide flats where the depths don't change. That means the contour lines on your map will be far apart. These areas are potential spawning areas where bass will concentrate in the spring.

"In many lakes," says the Evinrude pro, "bass don't move that far from these spawning bays the rest of the year. They will migrate out to deeper water, often to the first channel break or first major depth change. There they will either suspend or hold right on the edge of the dropoff."

"What you do with your map is follow the flat out to where you see the depth change, where the contour lines suddenly get close together. That means the water gets deep in a hurry, and that's always a good place to find bass."

Once Bruce has several such areas pinpointed, all falling within his 0-to-15 foot range, he heads out on the water to find them. Using a depthfinder he can outline them and see exactly what type of structure or cover is present, and judge how to fish them most efficiently.

"Using a map gives me a sense of confidence on a new lake," explains Bruce, "because I can form a game plan before I start fishing. One of the worst feelings in the world is heading out on a huge lake you've never seen without any idea of where to start fishing."

"Studying a map beforehand stops that feeling and lets me plan a place to start."

Time Is Now For Small Game Hunting

November is an important time for hunters in Kentucky. Several hunting seasons open this month including deer, rabbit, quail, grouse, squirrel, duck, goose and furbearers.

Deer gun seasons opens in most zones November 12 and continues through November 21. (Deer bow season, already in progress, will run through December 31 and deer crossbow will be November 22-December 1.)

Small game seasons open statewide November 22.

If you are a quail or grouse hunter, don't forget to send in wings and tail feathers from harvested birds for the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources' annual survey. Information gleaned from wings and feathers help biologists chart populations and progress of both species.

According to Jeff Sole, upland game coordinator, postage-paid survey envelopes are available from state conservation officers, district biologists or the central office in Frankfort. This year hunters, who participate by sending in wings and feathers along with specific information, will receive a cap for their efforts.

The furbearer season, hunting and trapping, which includes a bobcat harvest season in several Eastern Kentucky counties, opens November 22.

Can't See Forest For The Trees? Try These Fishing Tips

The old saying, "You can't see the forest because of the trees," sometimes applies to bass fishing, too.

Lakes filled with flooded timber look as if they should hold a bass behind every tree, but in truth, such lakes are often extremely difficult to fish. Anglers overlook other factors, such as bottom structure, current or water temperature because they're so busy casting to the trees.

"Sometimes the best thing to do when fishing a lake full of flooded timber is to completely ignore the timber," says Johnson Outboards Pro Staff member Jerry Rhyne. "When everything looks so good you don't concentrate as much on what you're doing, and as a result, you don't accomplish as much, either."

"It's like being a bull in a china shop. You run around without any real direction, casting here and there, hitting stumps and scratching your boat but not catching any fish."

If you're determined to fish the trees, Rhyne offers several suggestions. First, look for different types of wood, such as cedars, pines or oaks. Fish each type carefully, as bass often relate to one specific type of tree on a lake.

Second, explains the North Carolina pro, look for larger trees. Bigger trees frequently have more limbs or debris around their bases, which make them more attractive to bass.

Third, study water depths around the trees. Look for more gradual depth changes, and for underwater features like humps and points.

"It's important to learn how to 'read' timber," says Rhyne, "because the trees can tell you a lot about possible bottom structure. Channels are often lined by big cypress trees, for example, and cedars often grow on flat, gravel bottoms. Oak trees frequently grow in low lying areas where the bottom may be soft and mucky, while pines may signal an underwater ridge or high spot.

"Another thing to look for is anything unusual in the trees themselves. There may be one really big tree in a forest of smaller ones, or a clump of pines in the middle of an oak forest. These places, for whatever reason, are frequently used by bass and are always worth casting too."

A variety of lures can be used to fish flooded timber, says Rhyne, including spinnerbaits, plastic worms and jigs. One of Rhyne's favorites is a 1/2-ounce double willow leaf spinnerbait with size 5 and 7 blades.

"The willow leaf spinnerbait is good in the fall months because it looks like baitfish," explains the Johnson Out-boards pro. "Unless the water is extremely clear, I work a basic depth between five and eight feet, and bump the lure through the trees."

"In the summer, bass may suspend 10 to 15 feet down in flooded timber if the water is deep, but by fall the fish begin to move up closer to the surface and readily hit a spinnerbait. A large plastic worm with a light slip sinker also works well in timber, too, especially if you swim it slowly through the limbs."

Because bass suspended in deep flooded timber are among the most difficult of all to catch, Rhyne also suggests looking for another type of timber that will usually be present in any lake that has standing trees. This is fallen timber, generally referred to as "laydowns."

"A fallen tree offers much more cover than a standing one," says

Rhyne, "and because it does, a bass will often stay in shallow water to use it. These are spinnerbait or jig fish that can be caught, but they're frequently very spooky and require very accurate casting and presentation."

On clear lakes, Rhyne suggests anglers consider using light line testing between six and eight pounds to finesse fish out of the heavy cover.

In dingy water, heavier line can be used.

"It is possible to lead bass out of heavy timber and brush before setting the hook," he points out. "Once the fish bites, all you have to do is keep gentle pressure on the line and gradually pull the fish into open water. Once it's away from the cover, you set the hook."

TIP At Stumbo

The Talent Identification Program is designed for the seventh grade students scoring 97th percentile or above on the national norms of a standardized achievement test. The TIP participants will complete the ACT assessment, a test designed for high school juniors and seniors, scheduled at Prestonsburg Community College on Feb. 11, 1989. Participants from Stumbo Elementary will be Stuart Newsome, Mark Parsons, Jennifer Akers, Stevie Martin, Amanda Hamilton and Emmitt Hamilton.

Holiday Season Good Time To Hunt Duck, Small Game

The Thanksgiving holiday offers a great time to go duck hunting with a four-day season for ducks, coots and mergansers November 24-27. No canvasbacks may be taken and pintails may be harvested only during the four-day season.

Goose season in the Eastern Zone (which comprises most of the state except a portion in far Western Kentucky) also opens November 24 but will run through January 31.

Because duck numbers are down, this year the point system has been eliminated; bag and possession limits are in effect. (See below for how to obtain a copy of the current waterfowl hunting guide which lists specific information.)

All waterfowl hunters age 16 and over must carry a valid federal duck stamp and hunters who are required to have a Kentucky hunting license must also possess a Kentucky Waterfowl stamp. (Waterfowl hunters under age 16 are only required to have a junior hunting license, but neither of the stamps.)

For free informational brochures on Kentucky hunting seasons, please write: Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, Division of Public Relations, #Game Farm Road, Frankfort, Ky. 40601, or call (502) 564-4336.

3rd Annual Millard 5K Race Held; Rick Roberts Wins

The Third Annual Millard Mustang Classic 5K race was held Saturday, attracting a small turnout because of inclement weather.

Rick Roberts of Floyd County won the race in 17:36 over the moderately hilly course. Dave McQuire of Price, was second at 18:20. Mark Miller, a former George Mason University runner, finished eighth overall and second in his age group of 25-29 (21:25). Miller is an instructor in sociology at Prestonsburg Community College.

In the women's race, Miller's fiancée, Tracy Pearce of Winchester, Va., won, upsetting local favorite, Debbie Coleman of Ashcamp. Her time of 25:40 was 24 seconds better than Coleman, who finished second at 26:04.

name of an officer in your area, the phone book won't be much help. But there is a toll-free number that will give you 24-hour access to the fish and wildlife department.

The number is 1-800-252-5378 (just remember 25ALERT). It connects you with the central dispatcher in Frankfort, who is in direct radio contact with the officers in the field. This number should be used to report fish and wildlife violations and request phone numbers for conservation officers—not to request general information.

"Many folks still believe that our conservation officers are assigned to, and work exclusively in, a single county," says Paul Oliver, director of the Division of Law Enforcement. "However, our officers have state-wide authority and are assigned to areas where they are most needed."

Even though the department has lost several officers through retirement under the state's "open window" retirement plan, Oliver says that there will be enough men to provide needed services throughout the state.

Time For Families

Thanksgiving is a special time for families—a time of being thankful for all the many blessings that one has and for the feeling of belonging and caring that we get by being surrounded by loved ones. Not everyone in Kentucky feels that special feeling. There are more than 200 Kentucky children who are still waiting for someone to make a permanent commitment to them. One such child is Jonathon. At age 14, he acts and appears to be much younger. His appearance and personality are pleasing to most of those who meet him. He has a very kind, gentle nature about him. Due to his early childhood neglect and abuse, Jonathon is developmentally delayed. Because he was kept out of school in his earlier years, he is behind in school. Currently he is in the seventh grade. For more information regarding Jonathon or about adoption in general, please call your Local Social Services Office at 886-8192 or the Special Needs Adoption Program at 1-800-432-9346.

Third In A Series Shelter Offers Services

(Editor's Note: Following is the third in a four-part series concerning spouse abuse in the Big Sandy region — Floyd, Pike, Martin, Magoffin and Johnson counties.)

Not all clients of the Big Sandy Family Abuse Center are women, according to spokeswoman Gay Amburgey — although the overwhelming majority are female.

Men have sought help — whether they are abused elderly parents or abused teenagers, the center is there to offer referrals and counseling.

Last year, says Amburgey, the shelter served 211 women and 352 children; men are referred to other locations.

"Every woman who comes in is different, and needs something different — legal aid, emotional help, economic help, something health-wise — there can be completely different things going on with each one," says Amburgey.

The needs of women who come to the shelter are prioritized, with immediate medical care taking precedence. That is followed by psychological counseling, if necessary. Providing a meal can be another major help. Amburgey notes that often, due to violent situations at home, women and their children may not have eaten for a day or more.

Within seven days, women can apply for food stamps, Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) and a medical card, which provides state health insurance and covers glasses and dental work for children.

The staff at the center also offer assistance for the WIC program, operated by the Health Department, which provides infants through 3 years of age with milk, cereal, juices and eggs.

"We also, sometimes, put a child in day care due to problems with the parents, or the mother going to school or working," adds Amburgey.

Education is a large part of the center's services — both personal, in terms of abuse, and formal (clients may take advantage of weekly GED classes). The shelter also has forms available for women to apply for grants to attend college.

Shelter staff also find that many clients need clothing for themselves and their children, and donations of new or used clothing from the public is encouraged.

Children are enrolled in school, says Amburgey, and the staff will assist in the students' transfer from one school to another.

If necessary, the staff will also help clients obtain arrest warrants against their abusers.

"We do not force women to get warrants. If they find that is what they want to do, they can file assault and battery charges. We encourage every woman that comes to the shelter to get an emergency protection order or domestic violence petition to restrict the abuser from further harassment, violations or destroying of property," she explains.

Many abusers believe the staff "forces women to get warrants and EPOs — we don't," says Amburgey. "We leave it up to the woman. She may wait a couple of days, file for divorce, temporary custody of the children, get a restraining order or any other legal document needed."

Amburgey says that after seven days' residence at the shelter, clients can apply for low-income housing. Women who are not working, and who have job skills, are also directed to the employment office to apply for jobs.

Students Express Feelings About Workshop

By Pam Harris

An artists' workshop was held on Nov. 9 at Jenny Wiley State Park for Floyd County students.

The workshop was sponsored by Floyd County Schools and the Floyd County Education Forum and School-Community Partnership Committee. About 150 students listened to guest artists Doug Adams, Gary Akers, Tom Whitaker and Potter Jimmy Sherburne from Lexington.

Student reaction to the workshop was positive. Penny Martin, a student from Prestonsburg High School, joined the pen and ink session with Tom Whitaker. She said she enjoyed it very much. Mike Jones, from Allen Central, was also in pen and ink and said he enjoyed Whitaker's session because Whitaker involved the students in drawing instead of having them just watch him. Whitaker also entertained students with some guitar picking.

Jedon Hood, a student from Wheelwright High School, said that she came to the workshop to learn about the art world. She was in Doug Adams' session on watercolors. Jedon also said, "It has been new experience for me." Benji McKay, another student from Wheelwright, said that the workshop was "cool." He went to the workshop because he is also interested in art.

Art teacher Lizzie Hamilton from Betsy Layne High School said, "Basically I think it's important to expose students to different art mediums. Given the time guidelines and structure of classes, it's difficult to offer them everything. We don't have time for all these activities in the school day so the workshop is important."

The artists who participated in this year's workshop were impressive. Doug Adams of Elliotville holds membership in the Southern Watercolor Society, Kentucky Heritage Artists, Kentucky Watercolor and Kentucky Guild of Artists and Craftsmen.

Gary Akers is a nationally-known artist from Union, Kentucky, whose studio is a restored log cabin. Akers has received several awards including the "Mario Cooper Award" from the American Watercolor Society.

Whitaker, who has taught for the last fifteen years at Prestonsburg Community College and has a studio at Middle Creek Road, currently has eleven color prints and fourteen black and whites on the market.

The final presenter at the workshop was potter Jimmy Sherburne from Lexington. Sherburne has his own pottery shop and has served as an artist-in-residence for the last several years. His work has been in festivals and art shows in five different states.

The workshop was organized and planned by art teachers Lizzie Hamilton, Glennora Montgomery, Caralita O'Quinn, B.J. Stegall, and Johnny Stumbo along with representatives from School-Community Partnership Committee and the Floyd County Board of Education.

Floyd County Receives Grant To Continue Writing Program

The premise behind Floyd County's Writing Across the Curriculum Program is a simple one: give teachers and students enough support and money to carry out projects that they care about, and you'll see good results.

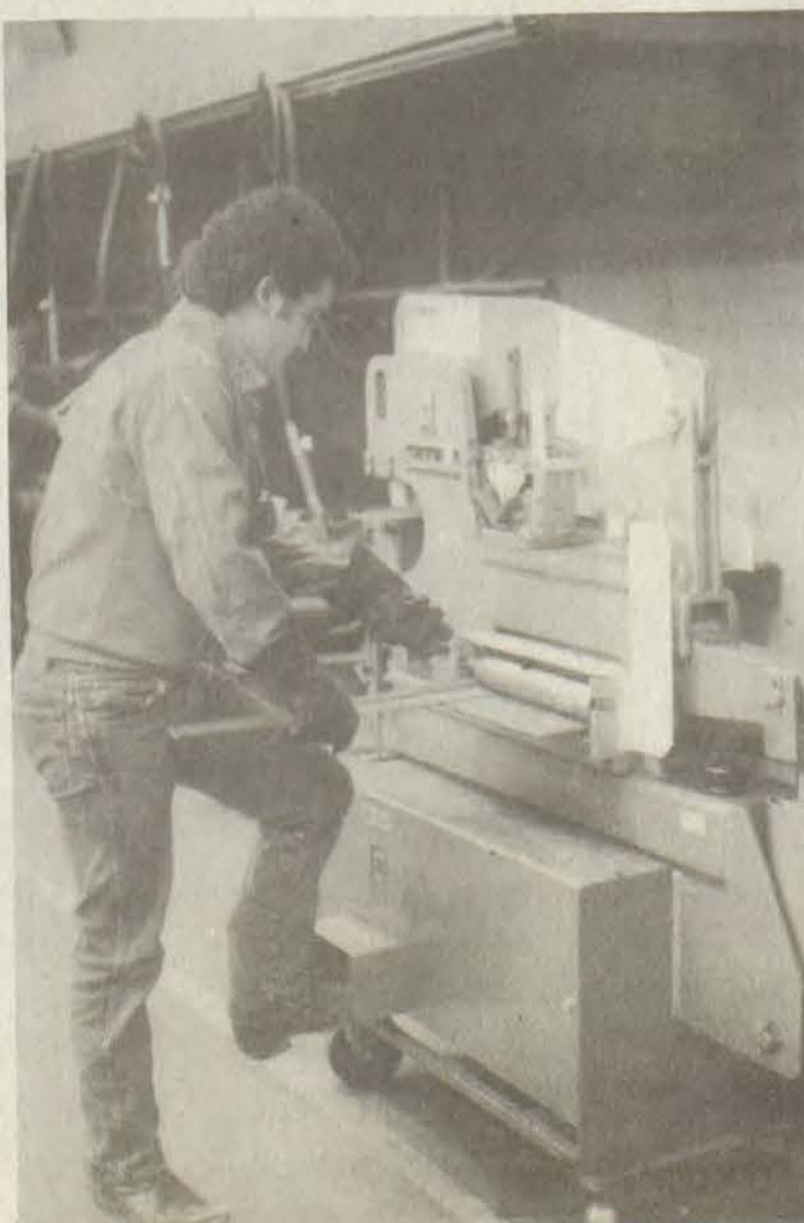

That was the reasoning behind the original writing program that was funded in the county in 1987 and one that seems likely to continue for a while. Floyd County was one of the 56 projects that received notification in November that it has been funded again by Kentucky Department of Education's Pilot Writing Projects.

The $35,000 grant will begin in January and will provide stipends for teachers to be trained in the writing process and for classroom materials.

Floyd County was one of the few Eastern Kentucky counties to receive a continuation grant. The original proposal, written by teachers in the Floyd County school system, resulted in a $45,000 grant in 1986. That funding was used to train 21 teachers in the system and to provide support for projects such as Hills and Hollows, a magazine produced jointly by Betsy Layne Elementary, John M. Stumbo, and Harold Elementary, and Betsy Layne High School's Along the Big Sandy. Approximately 40 counties in the state have requested copies of the Floyd County proposal.

The county's new grant will be used to train teachers, as well as provide last year's teachers with money to continue writing projects at their school. Bud Reynolds, Thelma Spears, and John Patton, members of last year's Writing Across the Curriculum Program helped draft the proposal that was funded in November. Carol Stumbo of Wheelwright High School will continue as program coordinator.

The Cutting Edge

Stoney Dye, a welding student at Garth, demonstrates how to cut strips of metal with a cutting machine.

Garth Welding Course Teaches Basics, Safety

In the welding classes at Garth Vocational School, welding is not the only skill that teacher Terry Mosley wants his students to take out of the class.

What the students also get out of the class are "safe work habits, being able to work with other people and responsibility," Mosley said.

The welding classes at Garth are a combination of first and second year students that, for the most part, want to learn a trade to take with them through life.

"My dad works at a mine and welding in the mines pays good money," said Debbie Rose, a first year welding student from Allen Central High School.

Both Rose and second year student Ricky Blevins agreed that the job market for welders is good.

Blevins, a McDowell High School student, is planning to attend Mayo State Vocational Technical School to study welding further, and wants to get a job at a gas company.

The welding curriculum is a combination of classroom study and hands on learning, according to Mosley.

This particular day the students are working on study questions in the relaxed atmosphere of the classroom.

Students first learn about safety habits, which are essential when working with the white hot arc, Mosley said. Then they learn flat welding and progress to overhead welding, learning most basic things they need to know, he said.

The class has different projects to complete during six-week periods, Blevins said. Sometimes people will bring in things to fix, like trucks, and the class will repair bars and grills on the trucks.

Blevins said he has learned a lot, and the teacher and what the class does in shop makes it fun.

Learning to weld is a very valuable skill to have, Mosley said. It depends on the person and what that person makes of it.

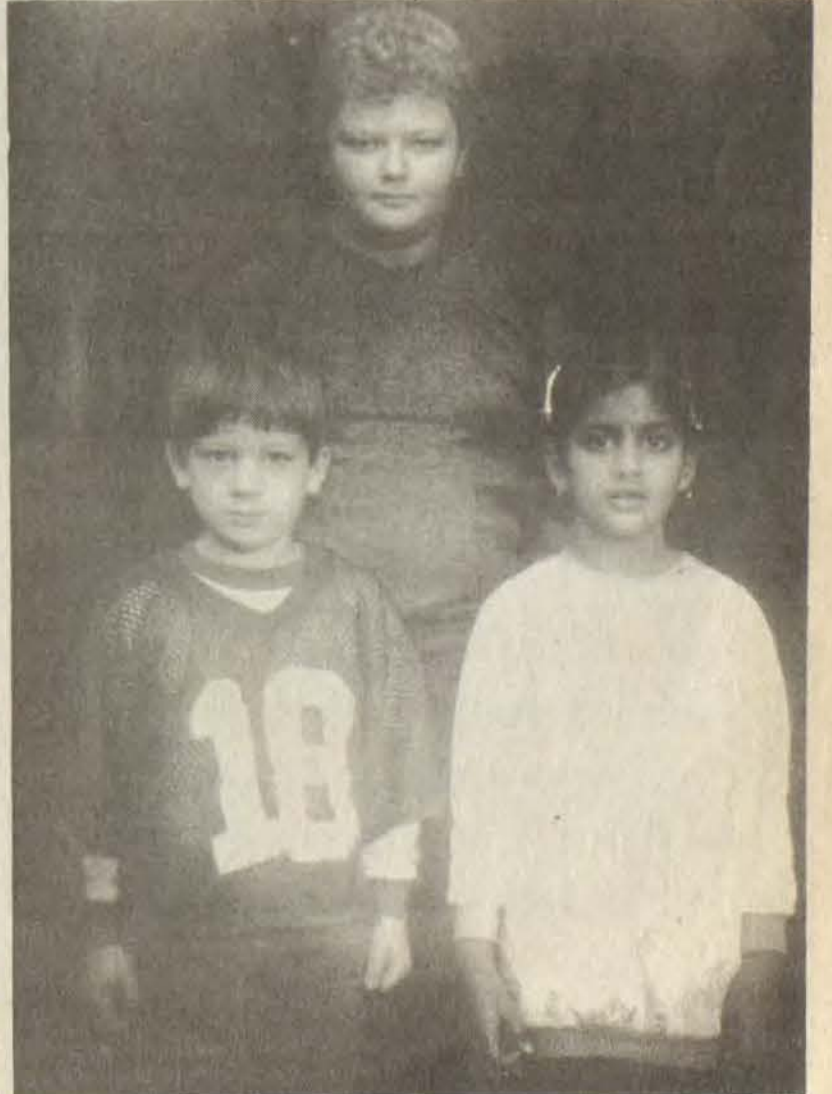

"Even if you don't intend to become a welder, it's nice to know how, so you can work at home on a car or some other project," he said.

Students Pick Bush In Election

In a mock election prior to Nov. 8, the third and fourth grade students of Our Lady of the Mountains School selected George Bush as the nation's next president.

The students, who are taught by Sister Rachel, sent the results of their poll into Scholastic News, whose nation-wide student poll also chose George Bush as the next president.

Sister Halen Louise's first and second grade students also participated in the mock election and sent their results to Scholastic News. They, however, predicted Dukakis would be president.

RIF Contest Winners

J.D. Hatfield, a first grade student at Prestonsburg Elementary, was the first prize winner in the fourth annual Reading Is Fundamental National Poster Contest at Prestonsburg Elementary. His poster will now be in the RIF national competition. Second place honors went to fifth grader Shawn Johnson and third place went to second grader Saleha Badrudduja. Prizes were donated by Ritchie's Hallmark, The Bookworm and Lloyd's Hardware.

Perfect Attendance Record

Students Complete Laubach Program

Laubach Way to reading, a literary program started by Frank C. Laubach, was begun at Betsy Layne High School.

Eleven students and two faculty members completed the 10-hour training session to become tutors for the Laubach Way to Reading program.

The training sessions were conducted by Sister Mary Gervase. This program and all materials are funded by Christian Appalachian Project (CAP).

Students participating in this project were Melissa Harmon, Teresa Spears, Donetta Riley, Brian Justice, Stacy Brewer, Angela Clark, Angela Coleman, Donnie Akers, Michelle Hall, Roy Kidd and Lela Conn. Faculty participants were Patricia Huffman, Home-Ec Teacher and Vicki Ratliff, counselor.

All participants have been certified as Laubach Literary tutors.

Little Miss Representative

Natalie Dawn Cooley, 7-year-old daughter of Carl and Ginger Cooley of Hueysville, was named Little Miss Red, White, and Blue Representative, for Garrett Elementary. She was escorted by Brady Scott, 9-year-old son of Harold and Donna Scott of Garrett.

Rebel Robots

All kinds of creatures ranging from a cute Raggedy Ann and Andy to a crazed Santa with a chain saw showed up at the Halloween Dance at Allen Central Oct. 29. The dance was sponsored by the Beta Club. The winning costume award went to these robots, otherwise known as Tammy Jones and Glen Stone.

Thanks Voters

I would like to take this opportunity to thank all voters in District 4 who supported and re-elected me as your board member. I will continue to work to improve the quality of education in our school system.

'Books Come Alive' Day

Clark Elementary School students and teachers celebrated "Books Come Alive Day" Wednesday, Nov. 16. This annual event at Clark occurs in conjunction with the school's first Reading Is Fundamental (RIF) Day. Students and teachers come to school dressed in appropriate costumes to help make many of their favorite book characters come alive.

Students At ACHS Learn German Using KET Series

"Gott sei dank; es ist Freitag!" "Thank God it's Friday" takes on a new meaning at Allen Central High School for German language students. After four days of grammar drills and translation, the German II students relax and watch television on Fridays. The school has purchased the KET series "Deutsch Direkt," which gives the students a first-hand look at Germany via video. A typical lesson includes geography, culture and—most importantly—actual conversation.

Each of the 20 lessons contrast age-old cultural aspects, such as craftsmanship of glassware with modern-day industry. The country's music, art and architecture are highlighted as they provide background for the characters' dialogues.

Next semester the German I students will view the tapes.

Garrett Pee-Wee Baseball Team

The Garrett Pee-Wee Baseball Team placed third in their league during the past season at the tournament held at Minnie, Ky. Players: Jackie Owens, Ross Goble, John Case, Shannon Bailey, Matthew Moore, Michael Sexton, Ryan Owens, Nathan Sexton, Chris Bailey, Brady Scott, Alan Hicks, and Jeffrey Terry (not pictured). The team was coached by Doc Goble, assisted by Joe Owens and Doug Hicks.

CAD Representatives

McDowell Elementary had an election Thursday, Nov. 10, to select representatives for its "Champions Against Drugs" chapter. Elected were, third grade, Kerrie Patton and Nathan Reed; fourth grade, Brandon Howell, Jamie Price (absent), and David Turner; and fifth grade, Michael Dye, T.T. Pack and Terrence Mullins. They will work as a committee with their sponsors to plan further activities for a drug-free school and society.

Second Graders Work Assembly Line

McDowell Classes Form Assembly Line

Two McDowell second grade classes put in an afternoon's work at a mock assembly line where pizzas were made.

Carolyn Martin and Jerri Turner's students worked in the high school home economics room, assigned to a preparation station at the simulated pizza factory.

Individual stations consisted of dough, sauce, pepperoni, ham, mushrooms, green peppers, onions and cheese. Each child participated in putting the pizzas together by performing their assigned duty as the pizzas were passed along the stations. This gave the students first-hand experience on what working on an assembly line would actually be like.

Turner stated, "I realized we were taking on a noisy and messy project, but it was worth it when we saw the excitement in the student's expressions as they were working together, and again later when they ate their finished products. We have good little cooks, by the way."

Martin added, "It's activities like this that really teach a concept in a way that becomes meaningful to young children."

Stumbo Eighth Graders Take Trip

The eighth graders at the John M. Stumbo Elementary School toured the State Capital Building at Frankfort on Oct. 11, and also toured the Governor's Mansion and saw the Floral Clock.

The trip included a visit to the Kentucky Horse Park in Lexington. The students saw two films and toured a museum which depicted the role of the horse and its contributions in world history and the betterment of mankind. The students also rode in a horse-drawn buggy of yesteryear.

Dinner was at the Capital Annex Cafeteria, where they dined with some prominent state government figures.

The Stumbo P.T.O. financed the trip.

With the Nov. 4 vote on everyone's mind, many schools did some pre-election balloting of their own.

With the assistance of Carla Bolton, county court clerk, Allen Central High School, Wheelwright High School, Prestonsburg High School and Prestonsburg Elementary had voting machines. Martin Elementary used the older method of a ballot box.

At Allen Central High School, Wheelwright High School and Martin Elementary, Mike Dukakis and running mate Lloyd Bentsen won the presidential election; at Prestonsburg High School and elementary, George Bush and Dan Quayle won the presidential election. The U.S. Representative Election also saw a split. At Wheelwright High School and ACHS, Chris Perkins won; but at PHS, Will T. Scott won.

All the schools agreed on two factors: Each had more yes votes for both Constitutional Amendments.

The teachers in each school felt this was a learning experience for all students involved, especially at Allen Central and Wheelwright High School, where the students had to go through the registration process and then sign to vote on Election day.

My educational training that I received at Excel College has benefited me both personally and professionally. It has opened doors that were closed to me before I had any special training. The personalized training that Excel gives, I feel, is excellent and I am thankful for the opportunities it has given me.

I would also like to give special thanks to Jessie Daniel, the Job Search Assistance Officer, without whose help in finding potential employers, I would not be where I am today. Her extra help and time are greatly appreciated.

Eighth Graders Perform Play

The Stumbo eighth grade students recently gave a play to the school's student body to illustrate the dangers that trick or treaters may face on Halloween.

The class gave classic illustrations of trick or treaters being confronted by drug pushers, reckless drivers, and people trying to pick children up. They also showed how to check children's candy before it is eaten.

Stumbo Joins McDowell

By Kristi Paek and Kristina Bevins

Recently, McDowell High School was fortunate enough to get Linda Stumbo as an aide to Mille Martin, the school's librarian.

The journalism class recently interviewed Stumbo about her work in the library.

Journalism Class: What things do you do to help with the library work?

Stumbo: One of the most important parts of my work is to help Mrs. Martin in a way that permits the school to have both libraries open at the same time. In the past "the grade school library would not be available to students at the times she would be in the high school library. Now students in both the grade school and high school have more access time to the libraries.

Journalism Class: Why did you pick this job?

Stumbo: I needed a job that would fit into my schedule at home since I have a child in school. I went to the Board of Education and put in an application. This job was available.

Journalism Class: What qualification did you have to meet?

Stumbo: I had to take a teacher's aide test at Prestonsburg Community College in order to qualify.

Journalism Class: How do you like McDowell, and how do the students treat you?

Stumbo: I like working at McDowell very much. I feel like the students have respect for me and I've grown close to some of them.

Journalism Class: Why did you choose McDowell?

Stumbo: This school was where the job was available, and I am glad it turned out that way.

Journalism Class: How do you like working for Mrs. Martin?

Stumbo: It's a pleasure working with Mrs. Martin. She was very patient in showing me how the library is run. Efficiency would have to be the word to describe Mrs. Martin's work. She is a very pleasant person, and this makes my job easier.

Journalism Class: How long do you expect to work at McDowell?

Stumbo: I hope to work here until the new school is built, and after that who knows?

Journalism Class: What are some of your duties?

Stumbo: My duties include doing inventory, filing catalog cards, processing records for materials withdrawn from collection, and a number of other things. One of the things I like to do is help students find the kinds of materials that they are looking for.

Clark Field Trip

Recently, two Clark Elementary eighth grade science classes went on a field trip to Highlands Regional Medical Center and the Kentucky Central Blood Center. Students were shown the various departments, and how computers and other machines aided the hospital personnel in complicated tests and analysis of test results. At the blood center, the students followed the procedure from start to finish by observing their teacher donate blood. They also toured the Prestonsburg Fire Station and learned about fire fighting.

Eating Plants

To culminate a six-week study of plants, Mrs. Dye's science class at Clark Elementary had a special day—eating all the foods brought in by the teacher and students. Foods were first separated into the parts of plants, such as stems, roots, bulbs, seeds, leaves, fruit, and then eaten by all. The class was also treated to "dirt cake," which was served from a flower pot.

David School Begins Social Topics Program

A new program was initiated at David School this year to address social topics of interest to the students. The program utilizes trained personnel in the area to make monthly presentations on topics suggested by the students.

Recently, Miriam Silman of the Mountain Comprehensive Care Center gave a talk on AIDS and the implications of this disease. This past week, Gay Amburgey of Big Sandy Spouse Abuse Center showed a video and lectured on spouse abuse and date rape. A question and answer period was part of each presentation.

Kathy Hanon and Sue Ernster of the David School staff coordinate the Student Assistance Program. Future topics include drug/substance abuse, career choices and college choices.

Ky. Appalachian Foundation Meets

On Nov. 12, 44 leadership corps members of the Kentucky Appalachian Foundation, parents and teachers were hosted by Morehead State University for their quarterly meeting.

Tim Rhodes, director of enrollment services, conducted a financial aid workshop to prepare the corps members and parents to work with others in their school systems. Rhodes stated he was "very impressed" with the quality of the students that were present. He said he was impressed by the vision the students had, noting they were not only interested in education and community, but were concerned about the pressures on students, about drugs, teenage pregnancy, alcohol, any family and peer pressures.

Don Patrick, IBM marketing representative and president of Business & Agency Services Inc., Mt. Sterling, conducted a work session informing the participants how they could go into business for themselves.

President Nelson Grote welcomed the students to campus and challenged them to develop leadership skills to help all of Eastern Kentucky.

The following actions were taken during the business session:

A logo designed by Jessica Stacey of Bath County was adopted as the official logo for the Corps. Kristen Kelly, who helped organize the Leadership Corps developed a handbook to give guidance to each member. The handbooks were reviewed and adopted.

Students requested that a hot line be established to enable them to secure help and information on specific problems. The concepts were adopted but more information was requested in order to establish the program.

In order to learn more about other schools in the region, the Corps members adopted the concept of a student exchange program between schools. A special task force will be appointed to develop the program.

A task force was appointed to work with the Quality of Life Task Force of the Foundation and a special task force was appointed for Entrepreneur development. The task force is to investigate the possibility of developing businesses by high school students.

Malissa Hall of Wheelwright, president, adjourned the meeting with a challenge to the students to work to improve their local schools and communities.

The longest sermon on record lasted 48 hours and 18 minutes. A congregation of eight was still present at the sermon's end.

Additional information may be obtained by calling 437-5014.

Attentive consideration: "It is not for outward show that the soul is to play its part," Montaigne writes, "but for ourselves within, where no eyes can pierce but our own; there she defends us from the fear of death, of pain, of shame itself; there she arms us against the loss of our children, friends, and fortunes; and when opportunity presents itself, she leads us on to the hazards of war: 'Not for any profit, but for the honor of honesty itself.'"

The Harold Homemakers Club met Nov. 16 at 10 a.m. at the Boldman Church basement.
Vice president Lillian Sturgill called the meeting to order. The 23rd Psalm and Prayer were given by Malta Yates.

Winter's Early Arrival Plays Trick On Residents

During the recent "Trick or Treat" season, an early winter played a trick on area homeowners. October will go down in the record books as the coldest in 71 years, according to Leon Huffman of Kentucky Power Company.

National Weather Service records indicate that this past month, with 485 heating degree days, was the coldest since 1917, Huffman said. Heating degree days are used to estimate energy consumption during a heating season.

"With the colder than normal temperatures, customers should expect their next electric bills to be higher than normal," said W. W. Zoellers, division manager of Kentucky Power Company.

Zoellers added, "We want our customers to remain warm and comfortable throughout this winter season and enjoy all the benefits electricity has to offer, but from time to time we need to be reminded that when we choose to flip a switch or adjust our thermostat, we are making a 'buying' decision. Kentucky Power rates remain among the lowest in the state and nation; however, electricity still comes with a price tag. Today's buying decision will be reflected in next month's bill.

Cost-conscious consumers might consider the following suggestions to cut their energy bills:

—Install weatherstripping around doors and windows.

—Make sure there is adequate insulation in the walls and ceilings in the home.

—Make sure that the heating system is working properly and filters are cleaned or replaced regularly.

—Insulate the water heater. In many homes, the second highest user of energy is the water heater.

—When purchasing a new appliance, check the energy efficiency rating (EER). The higher the EER the greater the savings to the customer.

—Finally, don't forget to turn off lights or appliances when they're not in use.

Another way to "level-out" those winter heating bills is to sign up for the Kentucky Power's Equal Payment Plan. This plan allows the customer to spread his energy costs over an entire year and generally pay the same amount each month.

Customers having temporary difficulty paying their bills should contact the company before their bills become delinquent so payment arrangements can be made.

Federal assistance is available under the Home Energy Assistance Program for low-income families. The WinterCare Energy Assistance Program will also be available this year on a limited basis. This program is sponsored by donations from Kentucky's Power's customers.

Individuals who feel they qualify for either of these energy assistance programs should call the State Department of Social Insurance or the local Community Action Agency office in their county.

"We have employees trained to assist our customers. If customers wish information or assistance, they should call our nearest office and we'll provide them information on reducing energy waste, weatherization or the Equal Payment Plan," Zoellers said.

Winter Preparations Include Complete Furnace Check Now

Preparations for winter have become routine for most of us. We know to make sure the car has adequate antifreeze, the topcoat must be cleaned and the bank account must be in good order to withstand the assault of holiday season buying.

Ensuring that the furnace is ready and able to keep the family warm and safe through those bone-chilling nights should also be a priority, says Jimmy C. Curnutte, manager for Columbia Gas.

"The time to have the furnace checked is now, before the wintry weather really sets in," Curnutte said. "Don't wait for sub-zero temperatures to learn you have a furnace problem."

Furnace owners should not rely solely on their own judgment to decide if their furnace is operating properly, Curnutte pointed out.

"To get maximum efficiency from a gas furnace—including today's sophisticated gas heating equipment—regular inspection and service by a gas heating professional is necessary," Curnutte said.

During an inspection, a heating professional will look at a variety of critical furnace check points such as belts, motors, and the furnace vent system or chimney, said Curnutte.

There also are several items the homeowner can check to assure the furnace is operating in an efficient and safe manner. They include:

Look for signs of water dripping from the flue pipe or any signs of corrosion (white or rust substance at the pipe joints). If signs of water dripping or corrosion are evident, call an installing contractor.

Inspect all flue connections and elbows to ensure they are firmly fitted. Make sure there are no cracks or openings around the flue pipe going into the chimney. If heavy rust is found, particularly on the bottom of the flue pipe or around the vent pipe joints, there may be excessive condensation inside the flue. This can pose a potentially unsafe condition and should be brought to the attention of a gas heating professional as soon as possible.

"Furnaces, like cars, require periodic maintenance to assure their continued efficient and safe performance," said Curnutte.

Ancient Pyramid Mysteries Explored Nov. 29 On KET

Imagine living in ancient Egypt when kings were believed to be gods. The ancient Egyptians believed that the well-being of their state depended, quite literally, on the proper burial and care provided for the deceased king. They, therefore, took great pains to follow elaborate, difficult and expensive rituals.

Enjoy a tour and in-depth look at the elaborate construction of these monuments on Pyramid, premiering on KET Tuesday, Nov. 29 at 9:00 p.m. and repeating Sunday, Dec. 4 at 3:00 p.m.

Author David Macaulay is host for the one-hour special which combines animation sequences with location footage to tell the story of the planning, construction and cultural significance of the Great Pyramid of Giza. The story unfolds around the court of Khufu, or Cheops as he is also known. The Great Pyramid of Giza is a 481-foot-high architectural wonder, about the height of a 40-story office building. Despite the fact that this pyramid would cover seven square blocks, there is no evidence that wheels were used to move the more than 2 million blocks of stone, some weighing up to 15 tons.

The building of these majestic tombs remains a mystery. Few written texts referring to the pyramids and their history have survived. Macaulay sailed the Nile River, explored buried treasures of the Sahara Desert, and visited the sacred Valley of the Kings in search of answers to the mysteries surrounding the tombs.

The ancient Egyptians lived day to day in preparation for the afterlife. A pyramid's burial chamber, Macaulay says, held the mummified king and all the objects, actual and symbolic, that would help his spirit, or ka, survive in the next world.

Besides location photography at important ancient sites, "Pyramid" also contains animated segments which tell the intriguing story of the Egyptian King Khufu for whom thousands of workmen, priests and retainers labored to build his pyramid and funeral complex at Giza.

Drinking And Driving The Toll, The Tears Airs Dec. 8 On KET

Trapped in the painful aftermath of alcohol-related traffic accidents, a teenager, a widower and a prisoner are among those who tell their stories in the powerful documentary, Drinking and Driving: The Toll, The Tears.

The hour-long special will be shown Thursday, Dec. 8, at 3 p.m. on KET.

Drinking and Driving: The Toll, The Tears was produced by Kelly Burke, a Washington, D.C. television reporter, as part of his court sentencing. Burke, driving while intoxicated, crossed into the opposite lane and hit a van. The driver died, leaving behind a son and a wife who was eight months pregnant.

In order to convey the devastating consequences of drunken driving accidents, Burke's personal insights are interwoven with candid conversations with the victims' families, as well as the convicted drunken drivers. They speak about a dead or paralyzed family member, the never-ending feelings of guilt and helplessness, and the struggle to accept the truth.

Banjo Virtuoso Bela Fleck Entertains On The Lonesome Pine Specials

Join banjo virtuoso Bela Fleck and the Blair String Quartet for a musical adventure into the realms of jazz, classical and electronic music when "Kentucky Center Presents: The Lonesome Pine Specials" airs on KET Saturday, Dec. 3, at 10:00 p.m.

The fall season of this popular KET music series offers 10 new shows composing this year's Lonesome Pine Summer Festival held at the Kentucky Center for the Arts and taped by KET. The 11-part series also includes a "Best of Lonesome Pines" 1988 special.

Recognized as a musical visionary from the beginning of his career, Bela Fleck has been appreciated as a "superior musician who just happens to play the banjo"; respected equally as a composer/producer and an instrumentalist.

One stunned critic wrote, "[Fleck] is really a revolution as well as a revelation to the five-string banjo." A Boston Globe reviewer noted, "Nobody plays the five-string like he does... Fleck continues to amaze and defy the bluegrass world by playing every conceivable kind of music on the banjo: rock, jazz, classical, and bluegrass."

The Blair String Quartet includes Christian Teal, first violin; Cornelia Heard, second violin; Grace Mihi Bahng, cello; and John Kochanowski, viola. Also featured are Howard Levy, piano and harmonica; Victor Wooten, bass guitar; and Roy Wooten, synthesized percussion.

"Kentucky Center Presents: The Lonesome Pine Specials" is a co-production of KET and the Kentucky Center for the Arts. The series airs in more than 110 markets throughout the United States. The series is distributed nationally by the Southern Educational Communications Association (SECA).

Funding for this and other "Kentucky Center Presents" series is made possible by the Fund for the Arts, a special program in the KET Fund for Excellence. Members of the Fund for the Arts are The Humana Foundation Inc.; The Mary & Barry Bingham Sr. Foundation; Citizens Fidelity Foundation; Brown-Forman Corporation; First National Bank of Louisville; Liberty National Bank and Trust Co. of Louisville; and Commonwealth Insurance, a member of the Capitol Holding Family.

The KET production of "Kentucky Center Presents: The Lonesome Pine Specials" is an effort to bring concerts, plays and other Kentucky Center for the Arts events to the entire state via the KET network. Other televised productions planned for this year include "Plumblin' and performances by Stage One Children's Theatre and the Lexington Philharmonic Orchestra.

Whole Grains Provide Better Nutrition

Bread has always been one of the basics of good nutrition, and a visit to any modern supermarket reveals a growing sophistication in taste and nutritional knowledge among today's consumers. That good old American standby, enriched white bread, is certainly still there on the supermarket shelves, but it has gotten a lot of new neighbors as consumer demand has increased for both new tastes and better nutrition.

Bleached white flour, which is the basis for our old favorite white bread, has been through processing which has removed the wheat grain's bran and germ, and thus most of its nutrients and fiber. The enriching process adds back a few nutrients, but not all and none of the fiber. A sounder nutritional choice today are breads made from whole wheat flour, or from flours ground from other whole grains. The flour-making process for these grains does not strip off the bran and germ of the wheat, and retains most of the natural nutrients in the final flour, as well as all the natural fiber.

Choosing breads made from whole grains is an excellent way to increase your daily intake of dietary fiber, a nutrient which studies supported by the American Institute for Cancer Research have associated with lower cancer risk. Your key is to read ingredient labels. Pick a bread that lists "whole wheat flour" as its first ingredient. The following homemade bread uses whole wheat flour, plus bran and bran cereal for high fiber content. Requiring no kneading, it's easy to do, and its texture—between that of an angel food cake and traditional hearty bread—will delight your family.

ALMOST HEAVEN BREAD

First Mixture

- 2 1/2 cups sifted whole wheat flour
- 1/2 cup sifted wheat germ
- 1/2 cup 100% Bran cereal
- 1/4 cup instant non-fat dry milk
- 1/2 tsp. ginger
- 2 packages active dry yeast
- 2 tbsp. olive oil
- 1 cup sifted unbleached, all-purpose

white flour
Second Mixture
 2 cups water
 1/4 cup honey
 1 tsp salt

In a large bowl mix all the first mixture ingredients, except the one cup white flour and the oil. Beat with an electric mixer on low for one minute. Blend in the oil.

Mix ingredients for second mixture in a saucepan and heat until just hot (120-130 degrees).

Pour the second mixture slowly into the bowl with the first mixture, mixing constantly and scraping the sides of the bowl. Beat for three minutes on high speed. Then add the reserved one cup of white flour and mix in well.

Cover the bowl tightly and place it in a warm place (85 degrees) for 10 minutes to allow the dough to rise. Press the dough down with a wooden spoon and then spoon it into a loaf pan (9 inches by 5 inches) that has been greased with margarine. Cover loosely with foil and let it rise until almost double, about 30 minutes.

Remove the foil and place the bread pan into a preheated 350 degree oven for about 35 minutes until brown. Remove the bread from the pan when done and cool on a rack. Refrigerate.

This bread contains about 143 calories and three grams of fat per slice.

"Miracle Down Under"

"Miracle Down Under," a special two-hour holiday program set during the Australian drought of 1891, tells the story of a young boy's discovery of the true spirit of Christmas. The "Wonderworks" program premieres Saturday, Dec. 3 at 8:00 p.m. on KET.

Eight-year-old Ned O'Day (Andrew Ferguson) cannot imagine a bleaker Christmas. A drought has parched the land around the family's farm, drying up their wells and threatening the lives of the family's sheep. To make things worse, provisions are running dangerously low.

Just a week before Christmas, Ned spots a man he thinks is Santa Claus. His hopes soar. A mischievous boy by nature, Ned vows to reform, confident that sudden good behavior will guarantee him wonderful holiday presents and restore the health of his sick puppy. The man Ned believed to be Santa is, in reality, a roguish ex-gold miner, back in town to blackmail his one-time partner, landowner Trevor Watson.

At the O'Day farm, the situation worsens. When Watson, their wealthy neighbor, denies Patrick (John Walters) and his wife, Elizabeth (Dee Wallace Stone), the use of his ponds to water the sheep, all is nearly lost. Ned refuses to succumb to the gloom, looking forward to Christmas. But when the day arrives there are no gifts, his dog is near death, a new well yields tainted water, and grass fires threaten their home. The family realizes they will probably be forced off their land. Ned is crushed and concludes that Santa is a liar and a fake.

However, Ned's native belief in the goodness of Santa has been working its magic. In the end, the entire O'Day family sees that Christmas is not about receiving, but giving.

Sunday Afternoon Of Music To Air Nov. 27 on KET

"The Immortal Beethoven With Peter Ustinov" looks at both the mortal and immortal aspects of the life of Ludwig van Beethoven. The two-hour special encores Sunday, Nov. 27 at 1:00 p.m. and will be followed at 3:00 p.m. by "Sixteen Strings: The Alexander String Quartet," which features more of Beethoven's music.

Ustinov paints a picture of Beethoven's life from his early years in Bonn to his long years in Vienna where he established himself as a supreme pianist and composer.

"The Immortal Beethoven" is filled with Beethoven's music: selections from five of his symphonies, the Concerto for Violin and Orchestra in D Major, Sonata for Violin and Piano No. 9, Leonore Overture, two string quartets, and scenes from Fidelio.

A nonconformist in his compositions, yet a master of the musical traditions of his time, Beethoven was constantly trying to find new musical forms. Even though his music was difficult and different, it gained public acclaim during his lifetime and remains part of the standard repertoire today.

"Sixteen Strings: The Alexander String Quartet" is a mix of musical performance and comments by the Quartet members about the specific music selections and about being a string quartet performer. Quartet members discuss the composers, the place of the work in history and culture, and explain how the combination of instruments creates the sound desired.

Since only four instruments (first violin, second violin, viola, and cello) are used, it is easier to follow which instrument is producing which music line. Camera angles and close-ups allow the audience to follow with ease the flow of the compositions.

Selections from Schubert, Bartok, Haydn, Mozart, Copland and Ravel are presented as well as the final movement of Beethoven's String Quartet, Op. 59, No. 3.

The Alexander String Quartet won first prize in the 1985 International String Quartet Competition in Portsmouth, England. Since then, the Quartet has performed throughout the United States and Europe.

Student Opportunities Night

Prospective students from Floyd County and their parents, as well as area alumni, were invited to the Holiday Inn recently for Morehead State University's Student Opportunities Night (SON). Representatives from MSU's academic units and various student services were on hand to answer questions from the students. The SON program is designed to provide current information about MSU and campus life to prospective students. Top right, Dr. Jack Bizzell, MSU professor of government, found a quiet place to answer some questions for Raetta Damron of Betsy Layne, center, and Jamessa Howell of Harold. The students are juniors at Betsy Layne High School. Top left, taking time to check out the latest publication MSU has to offer, were Felicia Robinette of Hunter, Tina Price of Drift and Crystal Hall of Hi Hat, students at McDowell High School. Below left, MSU President C. Nelson Grote "pins" Amy Payne of Bypro with an MSU eagle pin. Payne is a student at Wheelwright High School. Below right, although these Allen Central High School students, Alan Wright, left, and Terry Spurlock of Martin, are only juniors, they did some serious concentrating at the academic services booth.

Receives VFW Life Membership

Boyd Receives Lifetime VFW Membership From Officials

W.B. (Brad) Boyd, 93, of Prestonsburg received a lifetime membership in the VFW from Eddie Akers, commander of VFW post 5839 and 13th district commander, and Harold Baldrige, past district and post commander, on Veteran's Day, Friday, Nov. 11.

Boyd is a veteran of the Marine Corp during World War I. "The Marine Corp is one of the greatest services in the military," Boyd said. According to Boyd, he saw some fighting having served on the front line in France. He also served in Belgium and Luxemburg. He participated in the March to the Rhine, Nov. 17 to

Dec. 12, 1918, and served with the Army of Occupation Dec. 12, 1918 through July 18, 1919. "It was good news when the war ended," Boyd said.

Boyd, a Republican, has never failed to vote in an election including the Nov. 8 election. To become a member of the VFW, according to Akers, veterans must serve overseas during a conflict. Akers said the VFW mission this year is to recognize all World War I veterans in the county. World War I veterans, who have not been contacted by the VFW, should call Akers at 886-9742.

John David Ratliff, Paintsville High sophomore, has been selected as Paintsville's ambassador to the Hugh O'Brian Youth Foundation (HOBY) state leadership seminar.

JOHN DAVID RATLIFF

HOBY State Leadership Seminars, held in the spring, represent the main thrust of the Foundation's programs. The seminars are conducted in all 50 states, the District of Columbia, the Bahamas, Canada and Mexico for high school sophomore leaders selected to represent their schools. These weekend workshops explore the topic "America's Incentive System."

Ratliff is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Ratliff of Auxier. His grandparents are the Rev and Mrs. John Frank Ratliff of Staffordsville, Grace Goble of Auxier, and the late Henry Goble.

Since 1958, HOBY has conducted leadership seminars for high school sophomores at no cost to the student or the school.

The program helps to teach sophomores to think for themselves, said officials. HOBY motivates students by showing them how to think can be just as important as what to think.

Present were Orville Cooley, James E. Goble, Eva Hale, Harmison Hale, Delmas Saunders, Myrtle Allen, Ruby Akers and Docia Woods. Coffee and cookies were served.

On Friday evening, Nov. 18, the regular monthly dinner-meeting of the A.A.R.P., of Somerset, was held at the dining room of the Highlands Regional Medical Center.

Cooley was in charge of the meeting, and gave the invocation. Jack Freed led the Pledge to the American Flag. Cooley introduced Irene Vertrees, state director of the A.A.R.P., of Somerset, and introduced Chalmers Frazier, a new member of the state A.A.R.P., board, of Prestonsburg. He also called on members to introduce themselves, and wished everyone a "Happy Thanksgiving."

HOROSCOPE

November 27 through December 3

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 - December 21)
 Avoid being materialistic; strengthening family ties is much more important. Get all the mileage possible out of an original idea.

CAPRICORN (December 22 - January 19)
 Spouse or partner needs extra attention. Tunnel vision causes you to overlook a viable option. Positive attitude wears off onto others.

AQUARIUS (January 20 - February 18)
 Secondary source of income may be needed now to help through rough times. Interaction with others is overshadowed by melancholy feelings.

PISCES (February 19 - March 20)
 A break in the routine serves to maintain a sense of sanity. Beware of the person at the helm; their leadership qualities may be misleading.

ARIES (March 21 - April 19)
 Missing out on a formal affair has little impact on others. Mechanical gadgets become a source of frustration. Seize a business opportunity.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20)
 The coziness and security of home has a hypnotic effect. Lighten up on professional acquaintances. Demonstrate a more mellow personality.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20)
 A chance meeting helps spark a romantic relationship. Keep a close watch on paranoia; your suspicions may prove embarrassing.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22)
 Invest spare funds despite the urge to spend them. An invitation could put undue strain on family members. Avoid major compromises or changes.

LEO (July 23 - August 22)
 Economize on flexible expenditures. Sudden change in your behavior throws others for a loop. Gullibility is at a high point.

VIRGO (August 23 - September 22)
 The order you are accustomed to is disrupted by an unexpected visitor. Bend a little to make accommodations. Pump co-workers for information.

LIBRA (September 23 - October 22)
 As the reins of supervision tighten, make a concerted effort to pull your weight. Concentrate on maintaining the status quo at home.

SCORPIO (October 23 - November 21)
 The kind act of another makes an impression on you. Try not to second guess events you cannot control. Keep exercise and diet in check.

TV Q&A

Ava Gardner is indeed a talented actress

By Polly Vonetes

Q: I recently watched a movie on TV, The Long Hot Summer, starring Don Johnson and Ava Gardner. It is the best show I have ever seen. Please tell me all about Don Johnson (age, family, kids and other movies). Also has Ava Gardner been in many movies? She's also very good.

A: You must be very young or have lived most of your life out of the USA. Don Johnson, who stars as Detective Sonny Crockett on NBC's hit series Miami Vice, has been one of America's heartthrobs for the last five years, although he has been in the business for 15 years. He was born on Dec. 15, 1949, in Flat Creek, Mo. Johnson has been married three times so far, and has a six-year-old son with his former live-in love, Patti D'Arbanville. (He is currently seeing Barbra Streisand). His TV films include Elvis and Me, Revenge of the Stepford Wives, The Rebels, Beulah Land, Amateur Night at the Dixie Bar and Grill, The Two Lives of Carol Leitner and the series From Here to Eternity. His feature films include Zacharias, Return to Macon County and The Hallel Experiment. Ava Gardner, the smoldering film beauty of the '40s and '50s, was and is a legend of her time. Having been married to such notables as Mickey Rooney, Artie Shaw and Frank Sinatra, she has starred in films with Clark Gable, Burt Lancaster, Richard Burton, Humphrey Bogart, Gregory Peck, Robert Mitchum, Robert Taylor and etc., etc. Yes, I would say she's also very good!

Q: I would like to know what ever happened to Spanky and Darla that played on The Little Rascals.

Ava Gardner.

—Phyllis Kester, Muse, Okla.

A: George McFarland, who appeared as Spanky, is retired from show business and is a successful businessman in Texas. As for Darla Hood, she continues her theatrical career, utilizing her unusual voice range to dub commercials and films.

Q: I loved the series Starman and was very sad to see it was not renewed. There is a rumor it might come back on TV, is it? What has Robert Hays been doing since?

—Hilda Johnston, Abilene, Texas
A: I'm sorry, but Starman has disappeared to television's Never Never Land. However, Robert Hays has been pursuing his favorite hobby with a vengeance—auto racing. He and his team have participated in the U.S. Endurance Cup, and other six-, 12- and 24-hour races around the country. Last year he starred on CBS' made-for-television movie, Murder By the Book.

Michael Gross breaks out of fatherly mold

Michael Gross demonstrates his acting versatility in In the Line of Duty: The FBI Murders, Sunday on NBC.

'Family Ties' star portrays murderer

By Anne Wheeler
Michael Gross, who plays ever patient family man Steven Keaton on NBC's Family Ties, breaks out of the fatherly mold when he stars as a vicious killer in In the Line of Duty: The FBI Murders, Sunday, Nov. 27, on NBC.

Gross portrays Bill Matix, a bank robber and ruthless killer who, with his partner in the robberies, engages in the most violent shoot-out in FBI history. In the fact-based drama, he and his partner, Mike Platt (David Soul), are pursued for six months by a group of top FBI agents as they randomly rob banks and armored cars, and terrorize the people of Miami. The final confrontation is the bloodiest shoot-out in FBI history, a reenactment of which is now used as a training film for agents.

Gross said as an actor he cherished the opportunity to show he could play the heavy. "My agent called and said I was being offered the role of a villain, and right away I was fascinated," he said. "I wanted the role because Matix is so different from Steven Keaton, and also because he's so different from who I am in real life."

He said the role is, in fact, so violent and such a switch for him that some Family Ties fans may be genuinely upset to see him in the role of a murderer.

But he stressed that neither that concern, nor his disdain for violence kept him from wanting the part.

"As an actor, I find that bad guys have more fun. I enjoyed playing this role, but I don't believe in doing work that glorifies violence. Matix and his partner are definitely losers.

"If these men were portrayed as winners, I might not have done this movie," he continued. "In the film, they are rather nasty men who resort to violence because they aren't good at what they do. They're not even good at robbing banks."

A supporter of handgun control for many years, Gross developed a new respect for guns while preparing for the role. To become comfortable with guns, he took lessons at shooting ranges in California and Florida, learning how to handle the semi-automatic weapons his character used.

"In the beginning I was afraid that if I stared at the gun too long it would go off," Gross admits. "Then something strange happened. I enjoyed target practice so much I came home one day and asked my wife how she'd feel if I bought a handgun—just for target shooting. She couldn't believe what was happening to me."

His gun control views are still strong, however. "I think guns are as dangerous as the person using them," he said, "but I now believe that owning a target shooting gun, which is kept under lock and key at home, is not incompatible with handgun control."

Teens Confront Problems On KET Show Nov. 26

Comedian and youth counselor Michael Pritchard uses humor to help teens tackle their problems in "The Power of Choice," a new 10-part series which airs Saturdays at 7:00 p.m. on KET, beginning November 26.

Pritchard visits 22 high schools from San Francisco to Boston. "The Power of Choice" features Pritchard's comic monologues and small group discussions to help teens explore the issues they confront during adolescence. Such topics include sex and dating, self-esteem, depression, alcohol and drugs and peer pressure.

Pritchard begins each school visit with his comic monologues. In the small group sessions he creates hypothetical situations and encourages the participants to draw from their own feelings, experiences and beliefs and to think critically about themselves, their society and their future.

Pritchard's message is that young people, with support from friends and family, can make a positive difference in their own worlds, and in the larger world around them.

Winner of the San Francisco International Comedy Competition in 1980, Pritchard has appeared with some of the biggest stars in the entertainment business, including Diana Ross, Kenny Rogers and Robin Williams. However, much of his comic style and material developed out of his 13 years as a juvenile probation officer. Through his work with maximum security juvenile offenders, Pritchard found that humor provided the most effective means of counseling wayward youth.

Kids Special About Aids Airs Nov. 23 On KET

"What's it like to have AIDS?" "Is it scary?" "How can you catch AIDS?"

Sixteen-year-old Ryan White of Arcadia, Ind., answers these questions from students casually and frankly during a half-hour special on KET.

"I Have AIDS—A Teenager's Story: A 3-2-1 Contact Extra" airs Wednesday, Nov. 23 at 9:00 a.m. The special was produced to answer some of the questions children are asking about AIDS, says program producer Susan Schwartz Lynn.

"There's quite a lot of information on AIDS, but almost nothing for younger kids," Lynn said. "But we know children have a lot of questions about the disease and this program explains what AIDS is and how you can—and cannot—contract it."

In addition to the segments featuring White, the special uses animation and models of the AIDS virus to ensure that clear messages are communicated.

According to KET Youth/School Services Director Liz Hobson, this special is a natural extension of the AIDS teleconference KET aired last August. "We hope to continue these opportunities in order to help teachers deal with classroom questions about AIDS," she noted.

Research May Lead To Better Surface Mine Reclamation

A team of University of Kentucky researchers has received a grant to study ways to reduce soil compaction—a problem which can stand in the way of successful surface mine reclamation.

The solution, is to inject a quantity of mulch or other organic material deep into the soil while the soil is being loosened mechanically, researchers said.

The grant, from the Office of Surface Mining, is for $74,995 the first year. A second year will also be funded, and third year funding is likely to be approved, bringing the total to nearly $225,000, said project director Lee Saperstein.

Saperstein, chairman of UK's department of mining engineering, will be working with three other family members: Richard Sweigard, mining engineering; Richard Barnhisel, agronomy; and Larry Wells, agricultural engineering.

Natural soil, Saperstein explained, is "structured" in that it has spaces that allow air and moisture to reach plant material and provide for good growth.

However, when soil is moved, piled and spread out again, as is the case in most surface mine reclamation projects, it can lose this natural structure and become compacted, making it difficult for new plants to establish. The soil can be loosened mechanically, but it tends to recompact.

The UK researchers believe that adding mulch or other organic materials to the soil would keep the structure open until plants are able to establish. Saperstein said a key goal of the project is to design machinery to loosen the soil and correctly mix in the mulch, and to interest the private sector in developing and marketing the technology.

Full scale studies will be performed in campus laboratories, which are designed to simulate soil surfaces several feet thick, Saperstein said.

'Growing A Business' Begins A New Season

A profile of Maine's L.L. Bean, a mail order company with catalogues in more than 60 million American homes, will be featured in the season premiere of Growing A Business.

Growing A Business airs on KET Thursdays at 7 p.m. beginning Nov. 24.

A strong commitment to value and quality at a reasonable price is the main reason L.L. Bean has maintained a loyal following of well-educated customers. Paul Hawken, creator/host of Growing A Business says, "Permission in the marketplace is many times more important than capital." He adds that no company has stronger permission in the marketplace than L.L. Bean.

The corporate culture at L.L. Bean is distinctly employee oriented. Phone representatives who take orders and handle inquiries are "plain folk"—people who live in the area, rather than trainees from sales-driven telemarketing schools. Employees know just about everything about the products through extensive information provided on their computer terminals. Staff members test workout clothing in the company fitness center and use new outdoor products on Outward Bound trips.

In addition to phone representatives, an information specialist is available to answer a variety of questions about Bean products, as well as general inquiries about outdoor activities. Clinics on a wide range of topics also are offered at the retail store which is open 24 hours a day.

L.L. Bean has a strong identity with the state of Maine which is evidenced by Bean's involvement in the community. The company provides considerable support to the school system which in turn gives the state, as well as the company, better access to a well-educated workforce.

Upcoming episodes of Growing A Business will feature profiles of Stew Leonard's, known among customers as "the Disney World of supermarkets"; and Quad Graphics, a Milwaukee-based organization that offers high quality, full-service printing capabilities to more than 100 different national magazines and catalogues.

To Air Dec. 4 On KET Light Of the Gods

Light Of the Gods explores the early stages of Greek artists' lengthy pursuit of "the truth of nature" from the 9th to 5th century B.C.

Light Of the Gods, which was filmed on location in Greece, airs Sunday, Dec. 4, at 10:30 p.m. on KET.

Actress Colleen Dewhurst narrates the program, which tracks the evolution of Greek representational art. It begins with the geometric period, characterized by ritually stylized stick figures, and explores the exquisitely carved and painted human forms of the early classical era.

The program also tells the story of the long, and ultimately triumphant, effort of Greek painters and sculptors to portray the human body as nature created it.

Players Leaving May Hurt The Worst

As much as it may pain Johnny Martin, Allen Central High School is rapidly gaining a reputation as a major producer of enemy basketball talent. However, the latest in a long line of players who have left the Eastern school may hurt the worst.

Although this one was brought about by an unexpected disaster, the disappointment of losing Rudy Martin isn't lessened by uncontrollable circumstances.

Martin, a 6'3" forward and one of the 15th region's better basketball players, transferred from Allen Central to McDowell High School this year because a fire forced his family to move out of the ACHS school district.

"Any time you lose a player like that, it's going to hurt you—somebody that's capable of scoring 25 points every time he goes out," Martin said earlier in the fall semester. "You just hate to lose him."

Losing good basketball players isn't a strange occurrence for Martin, who has coached more consecutive years than any other head coach in the region.

Henry Webb, now a senior at McDowell, played freshman basketball at Allen Central, and Sam Stewart, a junior at Betsy Layne, played junior varsity basketball as a Rebel when he was in the eighth grade.

In the late 1970s, Ervin Stepp, a former Mr. Basketball, transferred to Phelps to play for his brother, who coached there. He was another player Johnny Martin would have loved to have had for the duration.

Players come and players go at Allen Central. The one thing that seems to survive is Martin, and a winning tradition.

The year Stepp left for Phelps, Martin directed the Running Rebs to the finals of the regional tournament. In eight years at Allen Central, Martin has taken the Rebels to three regional tournament finals, and in what will be his 11th season, he has an opportunity to capture his 20th career victory.

Rady Martin's leaving may have reduced the chance of that (the coach needs 22 wins to reach 200), but Johnny Martin says Allen Central will not be without some talented and experienced players.

"I think we've still got some good players coming back," he said. "Kevin Webb, Todd Duff, Joey Conn, Bear Halbert—we've got some talent returning."

All four players were starters last season, and with the extra year of physical growth and mental maturity, the coach expects better things from the powerful foursome.

Although not quick, Allen Central may be physically the strongest team in the 15th region, or even in the area.

Webb, a 6'2" 230 pound forward, averaged 6.5 points per game last season, and about that many rebounds. Although his lack of height will sometimes put him at a disadvantage, added point and rebound production is being counted on.

"He had some good games for us last year," Martin said of Webb. "He had two or three great games. He was hot and cold."

"It seems like he's more dedicated this year than he's ever been before," Martin continued. "He's working harder and seems to be looking forward to playing this season. He needs to have a good season for us."

Webb, who will join Joey Conn, Bear Halbert and Rick Smith underneath the basket, served as a starter last year in Allen Central's 10-16 season.

Conn is expected to be the biggest offensive threat for Allen Central under the basket, and he can nail an occasional 12-foot jumper. The 6'2" center/forward averaged just over 15 points per contest last season, and may be the man Martin needs to assume the leadership role for what will be a senior-dominated Rebel squad.

"Somebody is going to have to step forward and take the leadership role for us," Martin said. "He's a good high school player, there's no doubt about that. He can carry the load, and he might have to this season."

In addition to his 15 points per game average, Conn, a junior, hauled down almost 10 rebounds an outing. Martin says the third-year starter doesn't enjoy being the spotlight but with his performance and playing at Allen Central, he will be more than just a little visible.

The only problem Conn might have this season is getting lost among Allen Central's huge paint players.

Bear Halbert, who is causing concern due to a knee injury suffered during football season, checks in at about 245 pounds, and Rick Smith is a solid 205.

Halbert, despite his size, is deceptive and quick. In his first high school season Halbert averaged nearly 10 points per game late in the year.

"He came on really well for us late in the season. I'm hoping for a good year from him, but we don't know how much he'll be able to play, or if he'll be able to play at all, because of a knee injury he got in the first football game of the season," Martin said.

Smith, a junior, was one of Allen Central's top inside players early last season, but quit the team due to personal reasons. He has returned this year, and will no doubt battle for a starting position. He can also provide Martin with depth on the bench, something the Rebels didn't have last year.

Smith checks in at just under 6'4", while Halbert, an offensive lineman for the football Rebels, is 6'1".

Allen Central has the possibility of starting a front line which would average almost 6'3", and weigh in at over 210. As much of a bruising bunch as they might be, they will be just as slow.

"We'll have to play a much slower paced game than we would have liked to," Martin said. "We don't have much speed or quickness. We'll just have to wait and see."

The Rebels, as they have been in the past, will more than likely show their past tendencies (with the exception of Roger Horne) of a ram-it-down-inside team. However, they are not without a couple talented shooters.

Todd Duff is one of the district's best three-point shooters, hitting

Conn To Lead Lady Rebs

When you talk Allen Central Lady Reb basketball, the conversation must begin with Joann Conn, but this season the conversation doesn't stop at the multi-talented forward.

Last year, which coach Bonita Compton sums up as a disappointing one, Allen Central was forced to use several young players in an attempt to combat injuries and the loss of two players who left the team early in the campaign.

Conn suffered most of the season with a variety of ankle injuries, and others were forced from action due to physical reasons.

In the meantime, players such as freshman Tiffany Click, Teresa Gibson, Stacey Moore and Darnella Bradley saw considerable action, even as starters on the varsity squad.

"I'm hoping a year of varsity ball has helped them," Compton said of her sophomore foursome. "They all played varsity ball last year when actually they should have been playing junior varsity."

"I think the whole thing is how much they've matured. We're still young, but they've got that one year of varsity play, which should help them."

Last year the Lady Rebs had only two seniors on the squad, but neither were in the starting lineup at the end of the season. The current roster includes three seniors, as well as Conn, who Compton says is ready to accept the leadership role.

"I've noticed in practice that she's showed more leadership." As an eighth grader, she had the seniors to lead her around. Her freshman year she was just too timid, and last year she was hurt a lot, but this year she has shown leadership qualities.

"With that senior leadership, and Joann, I'm hoping it will help our younger kids," Compton mentioned.

Conn, who has played on the varsity squad the past three years, is one of the area's better underclassmen, and could develop into the region's top player. Last season she averaged 19 points and 12 rebounds per game, despite playing much of the season on a sprained ankle.

Her efforts earned her honorable mention all-state honors, and Compton thinks there is no limit to what Conn could accomplish in the next two years.

"I think she can play at any major college she wants to," adds the coach.

As for now, Lady Reb fans are hoping for a full, healthy season from the 5' 11" forward. With some help from her talented teammates, Allen Central might just reach its goal.

"We want to get to the regional tournament. That is our goal. We don't want to get beat out in the first round of the district," Compton said.

The Lady Rebs were eliminated in the opening round of last year's 58th district tournament, losing to a youthful, but talented, Wheelwright team.

This year, Allen Central has depth, size and solid shooting ability from the outside. They will probably play as many as nine people, giving the Lady Rebs a strong bench, something they didn't have last year.

Across their front line Allen Central will average just over 5' 11", making them one of the tallest teams in the region. Stephanie Wallen, a senior, and Darnella Bradley, a sophomore, are being touted as important inside players for the Lady Rebs.

Last Season, Wallen averaged six points and six rebounds per outing, and Bradley, at 6' 0", gives the team extra height inside. She also enjoyed strong offensive outings near the end of last season.

"She really came on strong for us in the last three or four games last season," Compton said of Bradley. "With Conn being out, she stepped in and had some good games."

Bradley scored 15 points in one game and 12 in another. She is part of the sophomore class that Allen Central is counting on for major contributions.

Tiffany Click played three different positions last year as a freshman, starting out as point guard and finishing at a forward spot. She averaged five points a game, but enjoyed several double figure outings.

Sophomore guard Teresa Gibson is the Lady Rebs' second leading returning scorer, and is expected to team with Stacey Moore in the Allen Central backcourt.

over 43 percent from 19 feet, 9 inches a year ago.

"I thought he had a pretty good year for us last year," Martin said. "He's our best outside threat, and I'm hoping he'll have a big year for us."

Duff, a senior, scored 13 points a game during the 1987-88 campaign, and teamed most of the season in the backcourt with Mike Collins, who will also be a senior. Collins showed last year that he too could bury the three-point shot with frequent success.

Ronnie Sammons, who will be a sophomore, impressed Martin last year as a junior varsity player, and his coach calls him the Rebels' best ball handler.

"He may be the best ball handler we've got right now," Martin said of the 5'8" guard. "I'm hoping he'll come along really fast and surprise some people."

Last year was Johnny Martin's worst finishing record, and the coach says he hopes to better the 10-16 because he figures he may not be able to handle a repeat performance. The Rebels are ranked fourth in the district.

Gibson averaged 10 points per game last season, while Moore, also a sophomore, scored eight per outing. Moore, a slick ball handler and passer, led the team in assists.

Donna Robinson, who was also hampered by an injury in 1987-88, will battle for a starting guard position, and proved herself a valuable commodity coming off the bench last season.

"She's a streak shooter," Compton said of her senior guard. "When she gets hot you can look out. In the McDowell, game she came in and literally won the game for us."

Compton hasn't made any promises about this version of Lady Reb basketball, but the coach fully expects to top the effort of last season. So far, the players have responded to that task.

"They're still sophomores and juniors, and it depends on how much they improve. They're looking good in practice. As of right now, we're looking pretty good," said the coach.

Newsome Among Welcome Returnees

The Betsy Layne Bobcats return five players who, in one game or another, started on the 1987-88 varsity basketball team.

While they join several others who saw considerable varsity action, probably the most popular returner hasn't dribbled a basketball or taken a shot in many years.

Junior Newsome, back from a brief break, will reassume his role as head coach at Betsy Layne. If past records are any indication, Bobcat round ball fans are in for a sweet treat.

Newsome, who retired two years ago, came back this season when Craynor Slone left his Betsy Layne position. He is no stranger to area basketball. In fact, he might be too familiar for opposing coaches.

From 1975 to 1986, Newsome coached Betsy Layne teams to 270 wins, an average of just over 24 a season to go with only six losses every year. He also won two regional titles, and took the Bobcats to the 15th region tournament 10 of his 11 years.

Newsome, due to personal reasons, retired after the 1985-86 season, giving way to veteran coach Craynor Slone. Slone continued the Bobcat tradition, taking them to the regional tourney twice before returning to Carlisle County.

Slone inherited a team in his first season which had lost four starters, and six of its top eight players. Newsome, though, should find a more experienced squad awaiting him, if not a more talented one.

"The experience will be their strong point," Newsome said of the 1988-89 team. "We're not going to be able to out-talent a lot of people, so we'll have to play smart basketball."

"We won't be that big, so we'll have to block out well, and we'll have to play fundamental basketball," he added.

The Bobcats, winning half of the 58th district tournaments played in this decade, return their top three scorers, their leading rebounder, and their starting point guard. The team returns all but one player, starting forward Todd Sturgill, who saw much playing time.

Duran Newsome, 6'0" is the team's leading offensive performer, averaging 18 points per game from his off-guard spot. Newsome, possessing a tremendous vertical leap, hauled down five rebounds a game.

He also saw action at point guard, and may again this year, but Coach Newsome, player Newsome's father, says playing him on the point seems to take away from his scoring output.

Last year Barry Hamilton, along with others, served as Betsy Layne's floor leader, and Newsome says a good year from Hamilton (or whomever plays the point) is a must if the Bobcats are to enjoy a successful season.

"In order for us to have a good season, we have to get good point guard play, as does any team," he said. "You've got to have good play from that position. You can have everything else, but it won't do you any good if the point guard isn't doing his job."

Hamilton, figured to handle that all-important chore, was an all-Floyd County Conference selection last year, scoring six points and hauling down three rebounds a game.

Sam Stewart is expected to be the Bobcats' threat in the paint, and after the year he had in 1987-88, the threat may be impossible to deny.

Stewart, a 6'5" junior, averaged 16 points a game last year, and his work habit is another reason why this season is expected to be a big one for him.

"He's really worked hard all summer," Newsome said of the Bobcats' leading rebounder last year. "He's one of the hardest workers we've got, and just a pleasure to coach.

"He's worked hard, like I said, and I think people will see a big improvement in his play this season over last year."

Stewart, who paced the team with 11 rebounds per contest last season, earned all-district, all-conference, and all-regional honors. Newsome was the only other Bobcat player to do so. He can add honorable mention all-state honors to his list of credits.

Betsy Layne, which finished with a 19-12 record, was eliminated in the semi-finals of the regional tournament. They expect a big season from forward Keith Hall, the team's most physical player and its best three-point shooter.

"He came on pretty strong last year. He had several games where he scored in double figures, and of course he scored 18 in the first game in the regional tournament," Newsome said.

Hall, who wasn't inserted into the starting lineup until about the 10th game of the season, scored just over nine points per game. The 6'1" forward is the team's second leading returning rebounder. He brought down five a game last year.

Kevin Spurlock, a junior, was another who started some games last season, but is expected to see increased playing time this year. The 5'11" guard plays both backcourt positions, and can slide down and fill in at a forward spot.

Betsy Layne will be hoping for a major contribution from a trio of performers who saw most of action on the junior varsity level.

Steve Parsons, a 6'2" junior, and Larry Hall, a junior point guard, enjoyed solid JV campaigns, but Newsome is looking for some varsity help from them during the trip through the 1988-89 season.

"We're looking for a lot of playing time from him," Newsome said of Parsons. "He'll have to be a heavy contributor to this team, especially inside." Newsome also said that Hall, a 6'1" guard, will play a key role in the Betsy Layne backcourt.

Earl Lawson suffered a broken arm last year and lost valuable playing time needed to continue his progress, but the 6'5" senior is a valuable commodity, according to Newsome.

"He played sparingly last year because he broke his arm, but he looked good in spots. We'll have to have him for some inside scoring and rebounding."

Betsy Layne was once termed by an opposing coach as the University of Kentucky of high school basketball in this area. Their tradition is as rich as Grandma's chocolate pie, and this season is expected to add just a bit more richness to it while making the present a little wealthy as well.

The Bobcats are always a contender for a district title, as well as a regional crown. They have been ranked in the top five in the 15th region's pre-season poll.

Betsy Layne, in 1987-88, finished as runners up to McDowell in the now defunct Pre-Season Tournament, and the 58th District Tournament, and now Newsome figures that the Daredevils may again be the team to beat in the upcoming season.

The transfer of Rady Martin from Allen Central to McDowell did nothing but bolster his opinion.

"That gives them what amounts to four starters back," Newsome said of the transfer and the Daredevils. "They have to be considered as the favorites in the district, if not the region."

Experienced Players Key For Lady Bobcats

For Betsy Layne women's basketball coach Karen Henry, the intervening months since the close of last season have not been good.

Five senior squad members from last year graduated, and a sixth probable starter for the 1988-89 season, Briana Boyd, fell by the wayside due to a severe knee injury over the summer. Boyd, a sophomore, would have filled in at the point guard position, said Henry.

However, all is not lost for the Lady Bobcats. Henry is quick to mention that while her team is young (one senior, one junior, six sophomores and four freshmen), most members gained substantial playing time on the varsity level last year.

"Often, our starters would be ahead 12 points, and I'd put the B team in, and they would pull the lead out to 20 or 25 points. They've been playing varsity, and I've got a lot of confidence in them playing against the county teams this year," explained Henry.

The second-year coach took her squad to the semi-finals of the regional tournament last year, the team played its way, undefeated, to the district championship.

"We won all of our conference and district games," notes Henry, who posted a 25-5 record in 1987-88.

Returning to the Lady Bobcat squad as a senior will be Danita Johnson, a wing guard, and junior Brenda Hamilton, who will start at the wing guard or point position.

Jaimie Smith, a 5'8" sophomore, will line up at the center spot. The remaining positions are up for grabs, says Henry, and will likely go to two of four contenders: Sheila Hall, Nikki Webb, Nancy Shepherd or Latonya Anderson.

"Our team has got real hustle, and they are scrappy," said the coach. "They won't give it to anybody."

"We lack experience, and we'll have to overcome that. By the end of the year, I'm hoping we'll be pretty competitive," Henry comments.

The squad's 24-game schedule is tough, and the head coach says her two returning upperclassmen must show leadership on the floor.

The team's inexperience will probably lead to foul trouble — often, and early in the game. "That will probably be the worst trouble they will have," Henry says of her young squad. "They are eager to be aggressive; it's not a lack of hustle, it's over-hustle. They'll just have to hold their composure."

Henry says defense will be "the whole game" for her squad; the Lady Bobcats will operate a man-to-man half-court defense, and expand to full-court whenever necessary.

Outside shooting will be a problem for the Betsy Layne squad, and as a result, says Henry, the team will play the middle and outside, be patient and work for shots. "We're medium-sized — not small or tall; sort of in between," she says.

Will the Lady Bobcats play again in the district finals? "If we are," says Henry, "it will surprise a lot of people, but I expect to surprise people. We can compete in the county, and try to be competitive in the region."

Henry tags Allen Central as the top district team in the talent department, and Prestonsburg as the top team in the coaching department. On the regional level, she said Belfry and Phelps will be the teams to beat.

McDowell's Encore: Hoping To Win District, Region, Attend State

It was a success that only Kentucky high school basketball could have written. It took a small school, marred in a prolonged basketball slump, and made a champion of it—and all in one season.

The McDowell Daredevils had talent, but couldn't seem to apply it toward a winning season.

A coaching change brought about renewed enthusiasm to Daredevil followers, but it was a conservative enthusiasm because no McDowell fan had forgotten all past hopes which had been bashed by a less-than-expected season.

But they came out early, enjoyed several strong showings, and kept their momentum going all the way to the semi-finals of the 15th region tournament.

McDowell, winning more games last year than in the previous three combined, claimed a pre-season championship, a conference title, and won its first district tournament of the decade.

What can they do for an encore? Second year coach Johnny Ray Turner is looking beyond that, and to the ultimate goal, according to him, of area high school basketball teams.

"We want to win the conference again, and we want to win the district again," Turner said. "We want to win as many games as we can, but our ultimate goal is to play in the state tournament."

"I think every high school coach and his team would like to play in the state tournament. I think that's the goal of all coaches. Of course the ultimate goal is winning it, but around here, (the goal) it's getting there."

According to pre-season indications, the quality of returning players and McDowell's new-found winning attitude, the "getting there" part is certainly within their grasp.

McDowell returns eight players who saw considerable varsity action last season, including three of its top four scorers, and added another huge offensive threat when Rady Martin, a two-year starter at Allen Central, transferred just before school began.

With proven talent, and a bench that will rival many teams' starting units, the Daredevils were a favorite target of pre-season ratings, appearing number one on many lists.

"Those don't mean a thing," Turner said of being ranked first in the region. "I think last year proved that. They can rank you number one, but you have to play like you're number one."

During the 1987-88 season, McDowell averaged over 70 points per game. They played offense with their defense, and utilized a full court press to completely stymie several opponents. Turner is promising the same pressure team, and an eagerness to run offensively.

The Daredevils return close to 60 points of last year's offensive output, and with Martin they can produce even better numbers.

Their offense is expected to be based around point guard Henry Webb, and is backcourt running mate Dickie Joe Shannon. Together, they form what is considered to be the 15th region's best guard tandem.

The two combined for 40 points per game last season nine rebounds, and eight assists. Webb hit for 18 per game while hauling down six boards and dishing out six assists.

Shannon, one of the better three-point shooters in the region, led the team with 22 points a game. He and Webb both hit over 40 percent from the three-point line. They received co-conference players of the year; both were all-district and all-conference.

Marc Hall, a 6'2" junior forward, started most of the season. He averaged almost 10 points a game, while hauling down five rebounds per outing.

Hall is expected to pair with either 6'3" senior Jesse Osborne or Martin to form the McDowell forward duo. Osborne, as a part-time starter and key reserve, averaged four points and three rebounds a game. He is one of the team's better defensive players.

Martin, a 6'3" 180-pound senior, can also sink the three-point jumper. After recovering from a broken ankle suffered last summer, Martin averaged in double figures scoring for Allen Central.

The 1988-89 McDowell Daredevils

McDowell has at least six players who are effective beyond the three-point line, and the guard position is expected to be the team's strong point, but Turner says the most important position might be under the basket.

"Our improvement is going to come from our inside people. How much they improve will go a long way in determining how far we'll go," the coach said.

In the paint the Daredevils will have 6'5" 175-pound Keith Shelton, a backup last year who averaged three points and two rebounds per game, but enjoyed much more success near the end of the season.

Brent Rose, a 6'2" senior, will also see action on the inside for McDowell. He spent last season in a backup role, and will probably see more action this season.

"We'll count on a lot of help from our bench," Turner said. "We've got eight seniors, and we'll expect help from all of them."

John Meade and Darren Sparkman are two more upperclassmen who are expected to produce a major contribution to the Daredevil cause.

McDowell, 23-7 last year, has talent at every position, along with depth, and experience. The Daredevils have as much offensive talent as anyone in the area, but one often-asked question is whether they satisfy every player's desire to score. "I haven't experienced any selfishness," Turner said. "They know who can score, and they got the ball to them."

"This is an excellent group. They work hard. They go out in practice and fight and scratch, and when it's all over they come away friends."

McDowell lost two starters from last season, but Martin, who transferred after his home burned during the summer, is expected to help ease the loss.

"Rady is working into the program real well. He's learning our system, and I think he'll be a tremendous help to us," Turner said.

Turner says this year's team will be of the fast paced, running variety, and if this campaign is like last year's, McDowell could get off to a fast start, and keep running all the way the ultimate goal, the Sweet 16.

Keathley Plans 'Fresh Face' For Team

The last time the McDowell Lady Daredevils found their way to a 15th regional tournament, Ronald Reagan had barely finished his inaugural speech for the first four-year term, and America was embarking on a brand new decade.

Since that 1980 district final loss to Allen Central and Judy Eversole, McDowell High School girls basketball has struggled with a bad case of mediocrity, and suffered through several years of single digit wins.

The last coach to take them beyond the 58th district tournament is now the men's coach. Johnny Ray Turner took over last season as the men's coach and turned a team which had won 20 games the previous three seasons into a bonified regional contender.

Since the days of late November when the Daredevils entered the season red-hot, and never cooled off until the semi-finals of the regional tournament, their fans have been overjoyed.

Now Lady Daredevil fans are hoping a fresh face on the coaching staff will create a new attitude, and some different outcomes.

The attitude may not be a problem, but new coach Cassandra Keathley might find the going a bit tough, and the wins slow in coming— but she doesn't think in those terms.

"Their attitude seems better," Keathley, a 1988 graduate of Alice Lloyd College, said. "They seem to be developing a winning attitude."

An eagerness to work hard toward more acceptable conclusions is another aspect of McDowell's game that should help. "There has never been anything but 100 percent effort from these girls, and when the effort is there, everything else will fall into place," the rookie coach added.

The 1988-89 Lady Daredevil team is expected to rely heavily on the offensive talents of senior guard Gloria Mullins and sophomore forward Lori Bryant.

Mullins, a fourth year starter, has been one of McDowell's leading scorers the past three seasons, and averaged near 10 points per outing last year while taking care of most of the ball handling chores.

Bryant is one of the county's more talented younger players. She saw considerable varsity action as an eighth grader, and served as a part-time starter and key reserve on last year's squad.

"The only thing is that she's very inexperienced," Keathley said of Bryant. "She needs to settle down.

Sometimes she gets out of control." That could also, according to the coach, be said of the entire team's offensive shortcomings.

"All the players are having trouble running set plays. They all need to settle down, and learn how to play as a team," she said.

Pricilla Crawford, a senior, is expected to team with Mullins to form the Lady Daredevil backcourt, which will be a veteran tandem. Crawford saw action last season as both a starter and a reserve.

Tish Slone, a senior, also played during the 1987-88 season in both starter and reserve roles, and is expected to fill the other forward spot this year.

A pair of sophomores, Christy

Pack and Jenny Slone, will probably share the post position chores. As freshmen, they both saw varsity action.

These six are among McDowell's most experienced players, and are being counted on to carry much of the team's load this year.

"We're pretty young on the bench after that," Keathley said. "We'll have a couple sophomores and one or two freshman, but after that we'll dress several eighth graders to fill out our roster and give them some experience."

Tradition is not of the deep variety where women's basketball at McDowell is concerned, but Keathley says things might change for the better in the near future. "I've been telling the girls that they can win 15 games this year. Anything after that will be an extra bonus," she said. "I think people will be surprised after they see them play one time."

"The biggest thing is their attitude. They think they can win now," Keathley added. "A team that thinks it can win will eventually. It's just a matter of time."

Keathley, in her first year as a head coach, averaged 12 points and six assists for Alice Lloyd last season, and was a key ingredient to Betsy Layne's winning chemistry during the early 80s. She graduated from that school in 1984.

PHS Men Set Sights On Region Tourney

Early last December, the Prestonsburg Blackcats, in the finals of the Jenny Wiley Tournament, were blown away 81-48 by regional power Sheldon Clark.

Sitting by himself in a silent Prestonsburg locker room, Blackcat head coach Gordon Parido, with his head held low, explained the loss as "a roof falling in kind of thing."

But from that disappointing moment of solitude, through a tough Floyd County Conference schedule, and on into the district tournament, Prestonsburg continued to improve on its disappointing beginning.

After a win in the opening round of the district tournament, the Blackcats entered D.W. Howard Fieldhouse on a Friday night with the chance of earning a regional tournament appearance.

Again, though, they were faced with the task of defeating a regional power, the Betsy Layne Bobcats.

Although the final outcome was a loss, the Blackcats enjoyed much more success against a top-five region team. They lost by four, but not before Prestonsburg had toyed an upset.

In the Sheldon Clark game three months earlier, they shot 29 percent. In the district semi-final, the Blackcats hit 60 percent of their field goal attempts.

"Last year, with a young team, we set out to improve with every game, and be competitive by the end of the season. I think we did that," Parido said in a recent interview.

"This year we want to go a little higher. We want to go to a regional tournament."

Prestonsburg, which has not reached the 15th region tournament since the 1984-85 season, returns four starters, and all but two players that were on the varsity roster last season.

Gone is guard Freddie McCoy, the team's leading scorer at 22 points per game, but the Blackcats should find enough balance offensively to combat the loss.

"We've got a few players, four or five, back that we can count on to score seven or eight points a game," the coach said. "That was a nice compliment to Freddie's 22 or so."

"Our biggest problem right now is finding someone we can depend on to score 16 or 17 points a game. I can sit and speculate on who might do it, but we can't tell until someone steps forward and assumes that role," Parido added.

The Blackcats will count heavily on the offensive talents of senior post man Scott Hall, their leading scorer.

Last season, his first of high school basketball, Hall, 6'3", averaged 12.4 points per game after a slow start. He began the year on the bench, but had assumed the starting duties by the middle of the campaign.

Todd Justice, a 6'2" senior forward, is the team's second leading returning scorer. He tossed in nine points a game as a junior.

Prestonsburg has a trio of guards that are expected to share them in the backcourt. Thomas Nairn, last year's starter at point guard, returns with a seven-point and five assist-per-game average.

He and David Layne will control that spot Chris Slone, 4.6 points and 2.3 assists, is a possible candidate for the off guard position. He is the team's quickest player.

The forward positions will likely be manned by Justice, and either John Wright or Danny Hamilton (both seniors).

As of this writing, Wright was among Prestonsburg's starting lineup, according to Parido. He held that position partly due to his ability, and partly due to injuries.

Hamilton, a 6'2" 215-pounder, started most of last season, averaging six points and four rebounds, but has missed a major portion of pre-season drills due to an injured knee he suffered during football season.

Hamilton is the more physical of the two, but Wright is considered a quicker player with longer range on his jumpshot. Both are expected to see considerable action at a forward spot.

The Blackcats also have a pair of juniors, Kevin Adams and Joe Burchett, that are being counted upon to lend a helping hand on more than just one occasion.

Adams, a 6'5", is, according to Parido, battling for a position. "Kevin's not as mobile as Scott, but he's a big kid (215 pounds). He knows his limitations, and he's willing to do what it takes to help the team."

Parido says Burchett, a 6'4" forward, has enjoyed a strong shooting pre-season, and also says he accepts whatever task the team might need accomplished.

Prestonsburg, 10-17 last season, compiled a 4-4 mark in the conference, which Parido was happy with but now the second year coach is wanting more.

The Blackcats have six seniors, all of whom will play, and they have the luxury of a strong bench when the injured return to health.

"We should have a good bench the way things look right now, barring any further injury," Parido said.

"Sometimes an injury at the first of the season can help you later on, if there is ever a time that an injury can prove helpful. It's given some of these kids a chance to get some extra work," he added.

Hall, in addition to Hamilton, missed a considerable amount of practice time. He suffered a broken hand earlier in the fall, but is expected to return by the beginning of the season.

With its talented reserve corps, and the experience they gained last season, coupled with the extra attention during practice, Prestonsburg is expected to play at least nine players during the course of a game.

The Blackcats, last season, were an up tempo team, when the circumstances allowed it, and this season is expected to be no different.

"That's what we're planning on doing as of right now. We want to run up and down the court, but if we keep getting people hurt, we might have to slow it down, and walk it up," Parido said.

PHS Coach To Rely On Young Squad

The Prestonsburg Lady Blackcats, a team hoping to improve on last year's losing season, will be relying heavily on a trio of sophomores in 1988-89, but the heart, soul, and success of this year's team might rest on the talents of a couple talented seniors.

Prestonsburg, according to head coach Bridgett Clay, will probably start three sophomores. Although they are young, the trio is experienced on the varsity level.

Headed by forward Kathy Slone, the threesome will be a major part of Prestonsburg's success or failure. But the team, possessing only three seniors, will count heavily on the various and bountiful abilities of a pair of fourth-year performers, forward/center Karen Frasure and guard Michelle Clemmons.

"We've got a good nucleus back, and we're hoping that some of our younger players will improve as the season goes along," Clay said. "Right now we're just trying to find the right combinations that will give us the best team."

With Frasure, the Lady Blackcats have a potent offensive player, a good rebounder and an effective defensive player on the inside.

The 5' 10" senior has started for three years, and during that time she has earned herself a spot among the region's top performers. Last year Frasure, who was sometimes seen out front running the offensive show, scored 18 points per game while hauling down 10 rebounds.

"She'll probably play the center and power forward positions for us. We'd rather have her at the forward position, but that depends on how our younger players develop," Clay mentioned.

"They've got experience," the coach added. "We'll be a young team with Kathy, Edwinna, and Stephanie, but they saw a lot of action last year, so they know how to play."

"Then we've got Karen back. If she's not the best player then, she's one of the best players in the district."

Frasure, along with Michelle Clemmons and Flo Jervis, are the only seniors on the Lady Blackcat squad, but in last year's 12-13 season, Prestonsburg's young players were given an opportunity to gain valuable experience.

Slone, according to Clay, is a much improved player. She started all of Prestonsburg's games after the first couple weeks of the season, and enjoyed plenty of success.

"She is a very improved player from last year," Clay said of her sophomore forward. "She came on real well at the end of last season."

Slone, as a freshman, scored just over eight points per game, and grabbed six rebounds per contest. More is expected from her this year.

Edwinna Hale was another freshman who contributed heavily last season, splitting her time between starting and coming off the bench. She is expected to play the point guard position, handling the chore of running the Prestonsburg offense.

Clemmons, who saw considerable action at the point last year, is expected to move into the off-guard slot in order to take advantage of her shooting ability, according to Clay.

Stephanie Allen, yet another sophomore, is expected to be the Lady Blackcats' starting center. Allen, 5'11", saw some varsity action last season.

"We're going to have good team speed and team quickness," Clay said of this year's squad. "We won't be very tall, but we should be quick."

The Lady Blackcats have what could prove to be the 58th district's quickest backcourt with the duo of Hale and Clemmons on the court. Both players utilized that part of their game last year, especially on defense where they created turnovers and converted them into Prestonsburg points.

"I'm hoping to have a stronger bench this season than I had last year. Our bench wasn't strong last year, and that hurt us in a lot of games," the coach said. "We've got some good players returning, and hopefully some of the younger players will improve to the point that they can help us."

The Lady Blackcats are considered to be one of four teams expected to battle for a district championship, and although Clay makes no predictions, she thinks her team will hold its own.

"I think we'll be competitive. Right now I can't really tell until I see some of our young kids play some more, but I think we will be," she said, adding that the 58th district should prove to be a balanced one.

"I think a lot of teams made big strides in improving themselves last year. I think we'll have a pretty strong, balanced county," said Clay.

The Lady Blackcats failed to reach the regional tournament after winning a district title two years ago. Their 1988-89 squad may not rival some of their better teams, but Prestonsburg is expected to challenge for another 58th district title.

Chemistry Is Key For WHS Trojans

It hasn't been what one would call a successful decade for Wheelwright High School basketball. The Trojans, in the last 10 years, have advanced only once beyond the 58th district tournament, finishing as runners-up to Betsy Layne in 1986.

Last year they struggled through one of their worst seasons ever, finishing at 7-19. Although optimistic about a better performance in the 1988-89 season, Monroe Jones isn't expecting a complete turnaround immediately.

"I'm looking forward to the season," said Jones, in his third year as head coach. "I'm optimistic, but I guess if I wasn't I wouldn't be here. Every coach is optimistic at this time of the year."

Pre-season does give each school, despite size and realistic prospects, an equal opportunity to dream. But Jones takes a realistic look at his team's situation, and what he sees in the future is a huge amount of hard work. He also mentions that ever-popular basketball term, chemistry.

"As far as competing this year, if we work hard and have the right kind of chemistry, we might be a pretty competitive team," Jones said, stressing the chemistry part. "You can have all the talent in the world, but if you can't pass the ball to each other, or play well together, it doesn't help you a bit."

Jones, when asked to assess his team's pre-season possibilities, admits Wheelwright won't have the type talent needed to dominate everyone, but he expects, if they find a quality player to fill their point guard needs, that the Trojans will possess the ability to challenge most of the 15th region teams.

Wheelwright returns two starters from last year's squad, along with the first two players off the bench.

Led by 6'2" forward Craig Martin, the Trojans should prove to be a potent offensive team. Martin, a senior, averaged 14 points and 6.2 rebounds per game during the 1987-88 campaign.

Martin, along with junior forward Brad Compton, is expected to supply ample ability inside. Compton, as the Trojans' sixth man, had an 8.3 point per game average a year ago, while hauling down 5.5 rebounds per contest.

Jones says Martin should prove to be one of the district's top performers, and Compton, although described as unproven by his coach, enjoyed productive outings last season.

Wheelwright's inside game could receive a big assist, from transfer student Adam Hall, a 6'3" junior from Knott County Central.

Hall plays on the offensive line for the football Trojans, and his size should prove valuable in efforts inside. "He's got some potential," Jones said of Adams. "He hasn't played much, but he's got this year and next year, so we've got some time to work with him."

Shawn McKenzie, a senior, and junior Chad Hall, are two other players Jones mentioned as providing help on the inside, mostly at a forward position. Both saw varsity action in reserve roles last season.

But it is his outside game, and particularly the point guard spot, that worries Jones the most.

A good passer, a quality ball handler and floor leader are what the Trojans of past year lacked, and according to their coach, it might prove to be just as big a problem this time around.

"Last year we were hurting at the point guard position," Jones said. "We had trouble passing the ball and handling the ball."

"This year we need someone to stop forward and take over the point guard position," he continued. "We've got five or six guys who have a shot at it. With that kind of competition, maybe it'll prove to be one of our strong points."

Wheelwright

Jones, a 1980 graduate of Wheelwright, says the all important position will fall into the hands of seniors Vic Cotton, Todd Jackson, Handy Jackson or Dennis Johnson. Junior Bobby Hood and sophomore Steve Johnson are also competing for the position.

Hood, a starter until a broken foot ended his season, averaged over 10 points per game last year, but is figured to fill the off-guard slot.

"If one of those guys does come through, then we can move Bobby to the second guard, where he's more comfortable. He likes to penetrate and drive to the basket, so he's more suited for that position," Jones said.

Hood broke his foot 10 games into the 1987-88 season, but with his outside shooting ability and high vertical leap, is expected to be a valuable cog in Wheelwright's basketball wheel. Jones, though, puts him in the category with Compton, saying they both have the talent, but still have to prove their worth on court.

Of the other guards mentioned, Cotton is probably the most experienced. He moved into a starting role last season after Hood went down with his season-ending injury.

Tony Issaac, who scored just over four points per game a year ago, might be the Trojans' best outside shooter, especially from the three-point range. The six-foot senior guard is slated to fill the shooters' role for this year's Wheelwright squad.

The Trojans, although they feature several seniors on the roster, will depend on several younger players for major contributions, some even in starting roles.

"We'll have quite a few seniors, but it seems like we're still a young team. We'll probably start some younger players," Jones said.

He also mentions that much could change before the season ends. "We've got so much competition at different positions that a lot could change," Jones added.

Not to say, though, that competition and change in the starting lineup would be a bad situation. "We should have a little depth," he continued. "But the quality of our starters may be the question."

Wheelwright probably won't be as talented or experienced as some of the teams they have on their schedule, but Jones has taken a more conservative approach to the season.

Jones, a former member of the University of Georgia's basketball team, says the Trojans have a quantity of quality, but says the players must prove themselves, and find another big thing involving that class everyone wants to avoid—chemistry.

One thing he did establish, more as a wish than as a goal, was the hope of a better win-loss effort this time around.

Rebounding is one thing he lists high on the list of importance where winning is concerned. Defense is another key, according to Jones, and the point guard/leader.

But the Trojans, still averaging less than 6'1" with it's pre-season probable starters, might be the district's quickest team.

Coach Says Team To Be Competitive

"I have a lot more confidence going into this season than last year; the kids have more experience," says Wheelwright women's basketball coach Judy Eversole.

In her third year at WHS, Eversole had an excellent season last year. Despite a misleading 11-13 season finish, the team placed second in district competition and traveled to the regional tournament.

This year, Eversole returns several players from her 1987-88 team, including two seniors: Gina Johnson at forward, and Talitha Hutton at point guard. Two juniors who return in tandem as the team's top scoring combination are forward April Bradford and center Jedon Hood. Starting her first season will be freshman Becky Allen, who had a lot of playing time last year as an eighth grader. (Allen, in a hint of things to come, garnered the individual free throw trophy last year at the district level, and her coach says she's improved even more over the summer.)

In addition to her returnees, Eversole has six freshmen on the squad, players, she says, who will "have to hang in there for me."

Johnson, a 5'7" forward, may be the team's best defensive player. "I don't look for a lot of scoring from her, but she's a real hustler, plays excellent defense and rebounds pretty good," says the WHS coach.

Hutton, at point guard, is showing more confidence in her ball handling abilities, and should score more than she did last year. Eversole said Hutton is an adequate outside shooter, but most importantly will be the floor leader.

Returning junior April Bradford, at forward, is an excellent outside shooter, a smart player, and one who will unselfishly dish out the assists. Hood, her counterpart at the post position, may be the most improved player on the team, said Eversole.

Standing about 6'0", Hood is "very aggressive inside, and has good moves. I look for her to be one of my top scorers — she'll be my bread and butter," said Eversole.

As a team, the Lady Trojans will mix it up defensively, running both zone and man-to-man coverage. "Everyone is pretty quick," comments the coach, "and we can run the floor. I had to spend a lot of time last year building our confidence to break the press; we folded a lot."

Offensively, the squad will probably score more points than it did last season. Emphasis will be on team play, rather than individual stats, says Eversole.

"I'd like to run it more this year," she emphasizes. "I want to work for a good shot, but still run it a little more."

Allen will be a good shooting guard, adds Eversole, and some of the squad's players are capable from 3-point range.

Playing a tougher schedule this year than last, Eversole is hoping for a lot from her Lady Trojans. "We'll work for the end of the season. We've been to the district tournament, and both years it's been good to us. We're hoping to make it back to that final game," she adds.

In the district, Eversole picks Allen Central as the team to beat, and tags Belfry as the top squad in the region.

Men's Teams In Region: An Overview

The rich get richer and the poor get poorer, but it would be hard to find anyone in McDowell who feels sorry for Allen Central.

The Daredevils, who last season won their first 58th district title since 1978, already had three starters back, but if that wasn't enough, they now own rights to Rady Martin, an all-Floyd County Conference and all-district performer last year.

Martin, who averaged in double figures after his return from a broken ankle, transferred from Allen Central to McDowell when his house was destroyed by a fire.

"It's tough to lose a player like that, someone who is capable of scoring 25 points every time he goes out," said Allen Central head coach Johnny Martin, who will not continue his program's rebuilding process without one of its best players.

It may be hard for anyone in the 15th region to feel sorry for Martin and the Rebel basketball team. Martin has taken the Rebels to the regional finals twice this decade, but the loss of Rady Martin coupled with last year's worst record in the coach's 11-year career adds up to a bleak immediate future for Allen Central.

McDowell, though, won't express much pity, and what will be one team's loss will be another's gain; as a result, the Daredevils are most people's choice to capture a regional tournament title.

"That gives them what amounts to four starters back," Junior Newsome, Betsy Layne's coach said. "They have to be considered as the favorite in the district, if not the region."

Newsome, who won two 15th region titles (one in 1978 and another in 1980), returns as the Bobcats' coach after taking a two-year break. The veteran coach averaged over 24 wins in his 11 previous seasons, and claimed six district titles.

Although he has a talented cast returning, Newsome may find a seventh championship tough to come by in the upcoming campaign.

McDowell, winners of 20 games in three previous years, exploded on the regional scene last season, taking new coach Johnny Ray Turner all the way to the semi-finals before falling to eventual champion Phelps.

The Daredevils, finishing with a 23-7 record, won both the Floyd County Pre-Season Tournament and the district tournament, while capturing the Floyd County Conference title.

But as good as the 1987-88 season was, this one is expected to be even better, especially with Martin, who brings both size and good shooting range to an already-explosive offensive team.

Martin, who suffered a broken foot in the summer of 1987, was slowed considerably last year, but enjoyed several 20-point plus games late in the season. The 6'3" forward is also a strong rebounder.

McDowell though, was planning on a successful season anyway, and considers Martin just some icing on the basketball cake.

They have probably the best backcourt in the region, if not all of Eastern Kentucky, and they have size in 6'5" Keith Shelton and two 6'2" forwards, Jesse Osborne and Marc Hall.

Henry Webb and Dickie Joe Shannon, co-players of the year in the conference, bring back an average of 40 points per game between them, and Webb, one of the best point guards in the state, averaged six rebounds and six assists per game.

As a sophomore, Hall scored close to a 10-point per game clip with a five rebound per-game norm. Shelton, a junior, and Osborne, a senior, saw considerable action in reserve roles and both enjoyed impressive summers.

McDowell will also have a strong bench with guards John Meade and Darren Sparkman and forward Brent Rose. All could push for plenty of playing time, if not starting roles.

"We should be a fast team that will run," Turner said. "We are aggressive on defense, and we are good three-point shooters."

McDowell hit over 40 percent of its three-point tries last season, and have no less than five players who are consistent shooters from that range. The only problem the Daredevils might have is finding enough to go around.

I'd have to think McDowell would have to be one of the top teams, and Virgie is another of the top ones," Belfry head coach Raymond Justice said. "I really think they have to be the number one team. If I was picking a pre-season list, I would put them number one."

Justice, himself, is supposed to be a regional contender, and with the transfer of Matt Casey, the Pirates could prove tough to beat.

"Matt Casey transferred here from Matewan (W. Va.) and he ought to help us a great deal," the coach said. "I don't know that much about him because I haven't seen him this year. The only time I ever saw him play was last year, and he scored 36 and 32 points in the two games against us."

Casey, a 6'2" 200-pound senior, led his high school in both scoring and rebounding last year, with 20 and 10 averages respectively.

But like McDowell, Belfry was thinking it would have been competitive without the transfer, but no one was quick to ask him to leave.

The Pirates, defending 60th district champs, returns three starters from last year, and a freshman who saw considerable action as an eighth grader.

Mike Hatfield, 6'1" 170, Mike Scott, 6'0", and Chris Rattliff, 6'0", were all starters last year, and between them averaged 45 points and 25 rebounds per contest. The Pirates aren't big, but Justice says their quick leaping ability makes up for the lack of height.

J.J. Hylton, a freshman, is expected to break into the starting lineup this year. He averaged close to 10 points an outing last year. At 6'1", Hylton is regarded as one of the region's top young prospects.

Justice says Belfry is loaded with young prospects. "We had a good young AAU team, a 15-and under team that finished third in the state, and we're looking for some of those players to help us."

Freshman Chris Phillips and sophomore Paul Stafford, along with Timmy Kinser and Brad Barker, are some of the youngsters Justice thinks will be big contributors, especially in future years.

Virgie is another team many coaches cite as a possible region champion, and with returning players such as Ray Hall and Freddie Bowling, who could argue?

Hall, who Coach Bobby Osborne says has grown an inch and half while adding 25 pounds to his once-slim frame, averaged 15 points and 10 rebounds a game last season. He, along with Keith Hale of Sheldon Clark, are expected to be the region's dominant inside players.

"He has good hands and a soft touch," Osborne said of Hall. "He can jump out of the gym, too." Hall should get considerable inside help from Mike Rowe and Greg Newsome, both of whom stand over 6'3".

The Virgie offense revolves around sharp-shooting guard Freddie Bowling, who brings back an average of 16 points per game. His backcourt mate from last season, Darcy Adkins, will not play this season.

Brian Johnson and Gary Roberts (both starters last season) return, bringing with them a combined scoring average of 15 points. Osborne is also expecting guard help from sophomore Mitch Harris.

"If the kids play hard and do the things they're supposed to, I think we'll contend for a title. We've contended for a few years, but you never know from one year to the next," Osborne said. "You never know where the kids are going to come out with that positive attitude needed to get the job done."

The Eagles, no strangers to region titles, will get a stern test in their own district, because Pikeville now is no longer just a football school, which had been the trend in the 1980s.

The Panthers, 19-10 last year, will be under a new coach as athletic director Ken Trivette replaces Howard Wallen, who retired due to personal reasons.

"When I came here five years ago as athletic director, one of our goals was to get our program back to where it once was, or at least back to a competitive level," said Trivette, who is recognized as one of Kentucky's top high school athletic directors.

"It's taken a lot of hard work, but I think we've done that. Maybe this year we can reap some of the benefits."

The Panthers return three players who provided the bulk of their scoring last season, and have some decent size as well.

Trivette feels Pikeville has one of the region's better point guards in Chris Slater, 23 points per game last year, and the Panthers have 6'4" Doug Willett to team up in the backcourt.

Slater is probably one of the region's quickest players, and Willett, a junior, averaged 12 points and four rebounds per game while splitting his time between big guard and small forward. John Hale is in the same mold as Willett, and he averaged in double figures offensively as well.

Trivette figures his Panthers are in a position, along with several other teams, to battle for top regional honors, but the first year coach, who spent three years at Cumberland College as head coach, and five more at Morehead State under Wayen Martin, thinks McDowell may be just a bit out in front in the pre-season polls.

"It's going to be one of those years where any one of a number of teams could get hot and win it all," he said. "It depends really on who peaks at the right time."

That might be where Betsy Layne comes in. They have developed a reputation as a tournament team, and guard Duran Newsome, 18 points per game, and 6'5" center Sam Stewart, who averaged 16 points and 10 rebounds as a sophomore, give them the talent to do it.

Sheldon Clark, with Keith Hale, the region's tallest player at 6'7", and 6'3" Jesse Maynard, could also figure in the final outcome.

Another Team that will challenge for the 15th region title according to Raymond Justice, is Prestonsburg. The Blackcats, Justice said, had an excellent summer. They lost only one player from last year's team, but play in the same district as Betsy Layne and McDowell.

The Habit of Winning

By Vince Lombardi

Former Coach of the Champion
Green Bay Packers Football Team

Winning is not a sometime thing. You don't win once-in-awhile. You don't do things right once-in-awhile. You do them right all the time. Winning is a habit. Unfortunately, so is losing. There is no room for second place. There is only one place in my game and this is first place. I have finished second twice in my time at Green Bay and I don't ever want to finish second again. It is, and always has been, an American zeal to be first in what we do, and to win, and to win, and to win.

Every time a football player goes out to play, he's got to play from the ground up. From the soles of his feet right up to his head. Every inch of him has to play. Some guys play with their heads. That's okay — you've got to be smart to be number one in any business; but more important, you've got to play with your heart. With every fiber of your body. If you are lucky enough to find a guy with a lot of head and a lot of heart, he's never going to come off the field second. Running a football team is no different from running any other kind of organization — an army, a political party, a business. The problems are the same. The objective is to win; to beat the other guy. Maybe that sounds hard or cruel. I don't think it is.

It is a reality of life that men are competitive and the most competitive games draw the most competitive men. That's why they're here — to compete. They know the rules and the objectives when they get in the game. The objective is to win — fairly, squarely, decently by the rules — but to win. And in truth, I have never known a man worth his salt who in the long run, deep down in his heart, did not appreciate the grind — the discipline. There's something in good men that really yearns for, needs, discipline and the harsh reality of head-to-head combat.

I don't say these things because I believe in the "brute" nature of man, or that men must be brutalized to be combative. I believe in God and I believe in human decency. But I firmly believe that any man's finest hours, his greatest fulfillment to all he holds dear, is the moment when he has worked his heart out in a good cause and lies exhausted on the field of battle victorious.
