Fate Of Wet/Dry Issue To Be Decided Saturday

by Anne Chaney
Editor

Voters in eight Prestonsburg precincts will decide Saturday whether alcoholic beverage sales will continue in their neighborhoods, culminating a local option drive that began last year when the Prestonsburg City Council voted to allow sale of liquor by the drink in some city establishments.

"There's no doubt in my mind that if that vote had not been taken, this would not be happening now," the Rev. Steve Hopkins of the committee Voices for Family Values, which opposes alcohol sales. "We wanted the right for each neighborhood to express themselves. . . . The only way to have that voice was a local option election. We researched other alternatives, but legally, our only alternative was a wet-dry election."

Win or lose Saturday, Hopkins feels the committee has already won, in some ways, by giving people the right to make the decision for their own neighborhood.

"That's what we wanted to do," he explains. "In that respect, we've provided the option for folks."

However, Ted Meadows of Prestonsburg's Recreation, Tourism and Convention Commission is adamant that the city has much to lose in terms of economic benefit and tourism dollars.

Meadows contends that more than 40 employees, primarily those in full-time positions, will lose their jobs if the eight precincts opt to disallow alcoholic beverage sales.

"We're estimated 42 to 43, and being conservative," Meadows said Tuesday. Gauging the employees' pay at an average of $4 hourly, Meadows says the direct economic impact could result in a loss of $250,000 to $300,000 annually in wages.

"We're simply going to lose more than 40 jobs, those incomes and those legal establishments," he said. "We will also lose the new budget motel that is supposed to be built by the Holiday Inn. They have stated that they will not build if the precinct goes dry. That's about 40 new jobs that won't be coming in to this city. My question would be, how are you going to replace that?"

Meadows says the issue is also a question of free enterprise. The businesses currently have the right to operate, he notes, adding, "It's kind of ridiculous to tell one guy — who is legally in business — that you don't like what they're selling, and you're going to force them out, or at least try to."

"The coal industry is gone; there's not much hope of it ever being a big industry in this area again," Meadows continued. "The industry we have brought in, the industry we are nurturing and that has been growing for the past several years is tourism. We feel that it is definitely a plus for our area."

Hopkins, however, says that the availability of alcohol as an industrial incentive has never been proven by pro-sales advocates.

"Realistically, it's never been shown," he said. "As a prime example, Toyota built a new auto plant in a dry county. Alcohol has never been an issue for folks who wanted to put an industry in an area."

Neither, says Hopkins, will lack of sales significantly affect the area's tourism industry.

"I don't ever call and see if they are going to be selling alcoholic beverages when I go on vacation," he notes. "People come here to see the beauty of the mountains, the peacefulness, not alcohol — alcohol is not a tourist attraction."

Hopkins also notes that the county's prime tourist site, Jenny

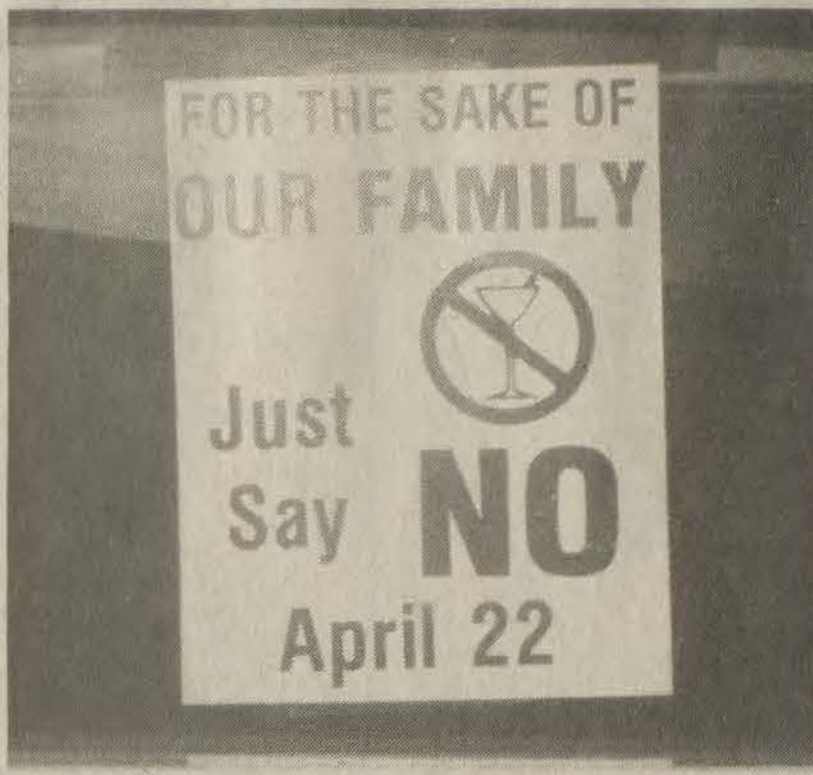

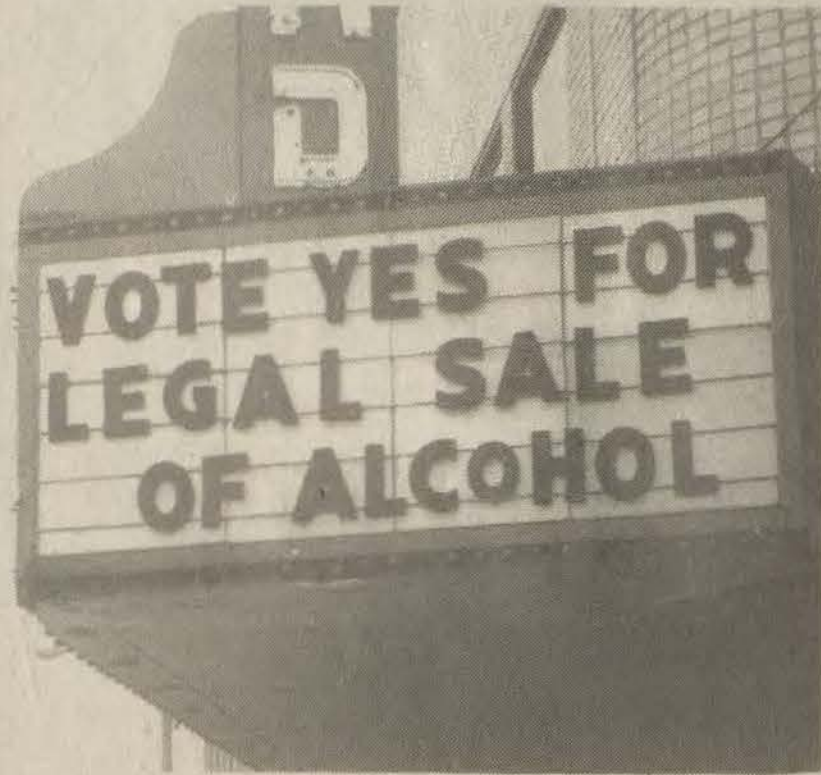

Wiley Summer Music Theatre, is located in a state park, and is prohibited from selling alcoholic beverages.

"We need to capitalize on that attraction, not abuse it and violate it."

"Tourism is definitely an issue," contends Meadows, "as is conventioning." He points to plans for a new convention center at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park that will accommodate 500 people.

"It's pretty much common knowledge that when conventioners look for a place to meet, they look for accessibility of alcoholic beverages, and the opportunity to be able to purchase them. State parks cannot serve alcoholic beverages, but they can be catered by an outside firm. What people do outside of the convention, if we stay wet, is up to their discretion."

Meadows says if the area goes dry, many potential convention custom-

Local Option Election Is Saturday

Voters in eight precincts in the Prestonsburg area will go to the polls Saturday to determine the fate of alcoholic beverage sales in their neighborhoods. Polls will be open from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m.; properly registered voters in the precincts, whether or not they live within the city limits, are eligible to vote. According to officials, precinct officers chosen were finalized this week, and must attend a precinct election officer's training school Thursday, April 20, at 6 p.m. in the Floyd County District Courtroom. Due to Saturday's election, no liquor sales will be permitted in the eight precincts; however, businesses elsewhere in the county may operate as usual.

Wheelwright Council Changes Meeting Date, Considers Altering Sewage Billing Structure

In a meeting charged with citizen input, Wheelwright City Commission voted Saturday to change its meeting time from Saturday mornings to Thursday evenings, beginning in May.

With the second reading of an ordinance, commissioners gave unanimous approval to the date switch which was proposed at the regular March meeting. The change, said Mayor Larry Mullins, should be more convenient for commission members and for citizens who want to attend the meetings.

Commissioner Dennis Harris introduced an ordinance that, if passed, will alter the structure of billing for sewage by customers of Wheelwright Utilities. The ordinance, which received its first reading Saturday, calls for sewage rates to be assessed as 65 percent of water usage, rather than the current flat rate.

In response to citizen concern over higher rates, Mullins said that the new water system, now being installed, should result in less water usage for consumers and therefore smaller sewage assessment. "We don't want people to end up paying higher rates," he assured.

Commissioner Dennis Holbrook proposed considering the new rate scale on a trial basis. "Let's go with it and then review it," Holbrook said.

A second reading of the ordinance will be on the agenda for the May meeting, before it is voted on.

Concern over reopening of the city swimming pool occupied discussion early in the meeting. City clerk Mary Anne Johnson reported that the Christian Appalachian Project, which leases the pool from the city, has not budgeted repairs to the pool for the summer.

Harris requested that a meeting be called for commissioners, utilities staff and CAP official Mike Sanders to discuss the pool. "They're not bidding by the lease," said Harris, alluding to CAP's leasing of the pool and adjacent building for a youth center.

"I'm not giving them down the road," said Harris, "but they're not doing their part. If they can't operate the pool, we have to do something."

Mullins instructed the clerk to "set a date quickly" for a meeting with Sanders.

Local resident Glen Thornsbury requested permission for an easement across the edge of a city park to his residence. Commissioners gave approval for the construction, "as long as it doesn't affect anyone else's property," according to Mullins.

Thornsbury also asked for permission to remove a guard rail that closes off a turn area on a city road near his property. Commissioners postponed a decision until they have a chance to look at the road section.

In each instance, Thornsbury said he would do the work at his own expense.

Illegal parking in certain sections of the town's main street was also of concern to the citizens at the meeting. Policeman Terry Hill was instructed by commissioners to enforce the parking ordinance, issuing warnings and then tickets.

Citizen Hubert Farmer informed the commission of water running out of the mouth of a mine behind his house. The water, he said, has cracked his patio and damaged his yard.

Commission members told Farmer the city has borrowed a bull dozer from the county to ditch trouble spots in the city and would work on his property. Mullins also said the city will try to find out who is responsible for the mine water flow.

Mullins also said commissioners will seek assistance from the utilities staff on clearing several drains re-

What's In A Name?

This week's puzzlers are Wonder, in the northeast section of the county, near Buffalo Creek, and Deadenning Fork, off KY 1426 in the southeast section. If you know how these place names came to be, drop off your answer or send it to the Times office or call 886-8506.

Then Someone Said, 'It'll Be A Real Bonanza!'

Otis W. Hayes and Goldie Johnson of Hi Hat and John Scalf of Betsy Layne all called last week with answers on the origin of the place name Hi Hat. The three agree that the community name came from the Hi Hat Elkhorn Coal Co. which operated in the area in the 1940s.

The previous post office name had been Fed, but Scalf said the name was changed because of confusion with Feds Creek in Pike County. Hayes said that despite the postal name, most area residents referred to the community as Clear Creek before it became Hi Hat.

Disagreement on the origin of the name of the community of Bonanza arises in responses from Scalf and Docia Woods, who was "born and raised at this blessed location."

According to Scalf, when word spread that the community was getting a post office in the late 1880s, a long forgotten voice reportedly said, "Boy, if we get a post office, it'll be a bonanza!"

Woods has a differing version: "The village with two general stores, a school, two churches, boarded sidewalks, IOOF Lodge, grist mill, saw mill, mill dam, and a doctor had about 50 of some of the best people on this earth. It showed great promise, so it was generally agreed that it would be known 'henceforth now and forevermore' as Bonanza, for good luck."

Woods also has a story on the origin of the name of the creek on which Bonanza is located. "Many years ago the creek on which this village was later to be located had not been named," she said. "The late Polk Hill (husband of Jane May Hill and father of Ed, Tom, Jim, Harry and Myrtle) was riding along one day with a neighbor who couldn't speak plainly.

"A rabbit (so the story goes) jumped out of a briar patch near the two men, and Polk's neighbor pointed toward it and exclaimed, 'Abbot! Abbot!' And that's what the creek has remained to this day."

Woods contends that, even though the community has lost many of its citizens, businesses and schools, "Bonanza remains a magic word to anyone who was fortunate enough to have been a part of that memorable community."

Parks Meeting Scheduled

Southeastern Kentucky residents are invited to share their views about state parks in a meeting scheduled Monday, April 24, at 7 p.m., at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park in the lodge meeting room.

The program, "Parks to the People," is one of a series of town meetings to be held at selected locations throughout the state. During the meeting, state parks officials will outline special activities, renovation projects and construction scheduled at Jenny Wiley State Park during the next few months.

"I believe 'Parks to the People' is a positive step toward improving communication between our staff and the people of Kentucky," Commissioner of Parks Rapier Smith commented. "We know how much our state parks mean to Kentuckians and we want to listen to their concerns and suggestions."

Citizens will be asked to comment upon existing facilities and programs, make recommendations with respect to renovations or further facilities development in state parks, suggest additional programs or services and offer any input they feel is important to the future of state parks.

Questions that cannot be answered during the meeting will be addressed through a written follow-up.

"Parks to the people" meetings will be held in areas near all 44 state parks.

Officers for Richmond #4 are Kevin Antle, Frank M. Heinze, Charles Yancey Ferguson and Melva

Brown. Voting is at the office of L & H Used Cars.

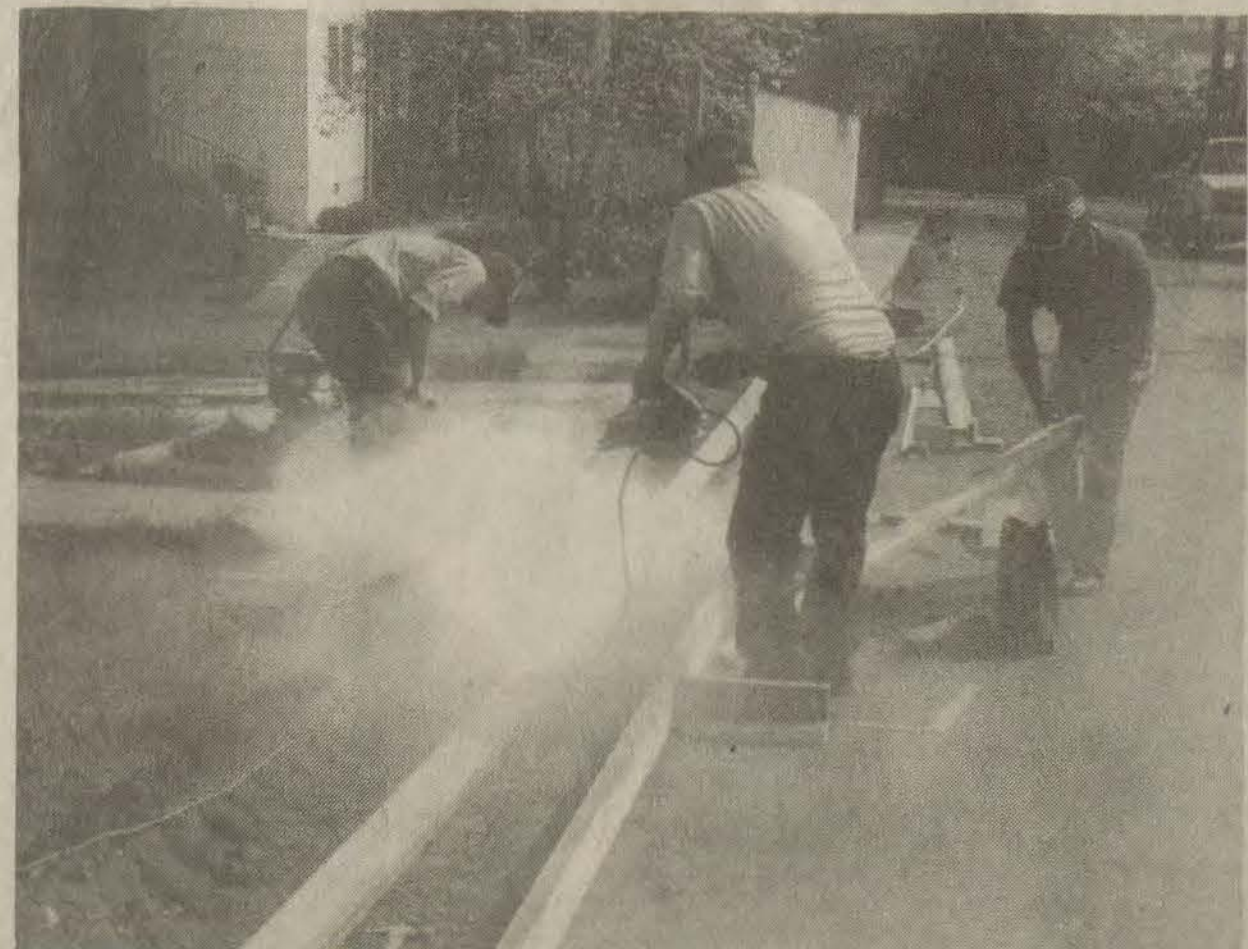

Serving Cliff #5, at Prestonsburg High School, will be Charles Neeley, Oscar Collins, Sharon Lanell Bingham and Art Howard.

At Porter #6 will be Estill Robinson, William Gerald Jones, J. Logan Griffith and Molly Chaffins. Voters in this district will vote at the VFW Club.

Officers for Cliff (2) #45, with voting also at the high school, will be Janet Carroll Tackett, Lloyd M. Daniels, Mary Stambaugh and Doris Boggs.

Porter (2) #48 election officials are Harry McKenzie, Avery Lowe, Greg Johnson and Juanita Goble. The polling place for Porter 2 is also the VFW.

Downtown Prestonsburg Gets New Sidewalks

Downtown Prestonsburg will be difficult to navigate for the next month and half, but there is a reward at the end — new sidewalks. The city is replacing a little over a mile of aged six-inch water mains, and they must tear up the existing sidewalks to get to them. Consequently, new sidewalks must be poured, according to Seldon Home, assistant superintendent of utilities. Above, Robert Hurd, Tom Wright, Bill Goble and Billy Robinson prepare one site for the new sidewalk to be laid.

Cancer Victim Fund Raisers File Answer To Allegations

Four Garrett residents have filed an answer in Floyd Circuit Court to Lucy Samons, also of Garrett, who earlier filed suit against the four, accusing them of misusing money they raised to pay medical expenses for Samons' 3-year-old daughter, a cancer patient.

In the answer filed April 18, Sheila Jackson, Shirley Morgan, Rita Slone and Gary Slone request that the action against them be dismissed.

Samons' suit alleges that the four solicited money for a trust fund for the young girl, Misty Lee Samons, who was diagnosed as having acute lymphoblastic leukemia. The mother also named First Guaranty Bank in Martin as a defendant in her suit.

Represented by Prestonsburg attorney Jim Hammond, the four also ask that the plaintiff, Samons, take nothing from the fund and that a restraining order be issued against her "to stop the harassment of the trustees and protect the funds within the Civil Trust."

The answer alleges that Jackson, Morgan and Rita Slone, as trustees of the fund, used the money they raised only for the purpose of the trust fund.

Attached to the document were 78 pages of copies of bank statements and canceled checks which the four contend represent a "complete and accurate accounting of (the) funds."

Gary Slone, the answers says, is not a trustee of the fund.

The four defendants in the original suit began depositing money in the Misty Lee Samons, Flight for Life Cancer Fund, at the bank in 1987 after the child's illness was diagnosed.

In her suit Samons requested access to the trust fund account and that the four be denied access.

Clarification

Due to a clerical error in a suit filed in Floyd District Court, and an editing error by the Times, John David Caudill of Martin was incorrectly listed as a defendant in last week's story about a suit brought by Lucy Samons on behalf of her daughter against four Garrett residents.

Caudill is legal counsel for First Guaranty Bank in Martin, and was merely served with the suit on the bank's behalf.

We regret the error and any inconvenience it may have caused.

Police Recover Stolen Items, Report Accidents

The case of a series of thefts in Goble-Roberts Addition was solved last week by Prestonsburg police officers Gerald Clark and Roy Roberts.

During the investigation, officers recovered about $2,500 worth of property and traced the thefts to four juveniles, who were not charged by the victims.

According to Clark, the recovered goods included four lawn mowers, a chain saw, weed eater and car stereo equipment.

An American flag stolen from Riverview Manor nursing home was also recovered by the officers last week. The flag, valued at about $500, was taken shortly after it was put up on the lawn of the facility a few months ago, the officers said.

The local police department also reports several accidents in the area in the past week, one involving a pedestrian who was struck by a car at the entrance to the Town Center parking lot on South Lake Drive.

Curtis Hackworth of Prestonsburg was crossing the entrance Monday when he stepped into the path of a car driven by Barbara Prater, also of Prestonsburg, according to Officer Roberts. Hackworth was treated and released in the nearby office of Dr. James Adams.

Also on Monday, a car driven by Jesse Coleman of Honaker pulled out of Hillside Street onto US 1428 at Lancer and into the path of a car driven by Thelma Robinson of Martin. There were no injuries in the accident, which was reported by Officer Clark.

Clark also reported an accident Monday on Central Avenue as two cars collided while backing out of The Floyd County Times parking lot. The vehicles were driven by James Cox of Prestonsburg and Rondel Smith of Paintsville.

No injuries were sustained last week when a car driven by Martha Honeycutt of Mousie changed lanes in front of a coal truck at the West Prestonsburg traffic light on US 23 South. The truck was driven by Michael Auxier of East Point. Clark was the investigating officer.

A two-vehicle accident on North Lake Drive last Thursday involved Amos Caudill of Wayland and Melanie Patrick of Inez. According to Officer Greg Hall, Caudill received an injury to his head and Patrick, who complained of neck injuries, was taken by ambulance to Highlands Regional Medical Center.

Hall also reported an accident last week in which Dr. Tarikene Kumar lost control of his vehicle and struck an earth embankment on KY 1428.

Two accidents were reported on Friday. Officer Ralph Frasure investigated a North Lake Drive rear-end collision, involving a car driven by William Jarrell of Endicott which was struck by a car driven by Darlene Osborne of Hager Hill.

The other involved a vehicle driven by Peggy Bradford of David who was attempting to cross US 23 from Glyn View Plaza Road when her car was struck by one driven by Robert Wright of Inez. According to Officer Jim Mullins, Bradford was taken to Highlands with a head injury. She was treated and released.

On April 12, Officer Roberts investigated an accident on Central Avenue in which Ruby Scott of Garrett was finishing her driver's license road examination with State Police Officer Phil Tucker. Scott reportedly pulled into a parking space and accidentally hit the car's accelerator rather than the brake. The vehicle hit an unoccupied car owned by Thelma Hunt of Stanville who was waiting to take her driver's test.

TO THE FLOYD COUNTY CLERK

Carla and Joe Bolton, you said in your previous ads that there is only one Sam Shepherd, of Hueysville, registered to vote in Floyd County. And you questioned my existence by insinuating that Roger Webb, your opponent in the County Clerk's race, was placing my ads under a fictitious name. Well, I believe that you owe Mr. Sam Shepherd, of Hueysville, and Mr. Roger Webb an apology. As you can clearly see I am a registered voter.

It looks like with all the years of experience you have, Carla, and a helper such as your husband, Joe Bolton, from Lexington, that between the two of you, you could have found my name on the voters' list. Or is it like the alleged $25,483 missing from the clerk's office, no one can find it.

Carla and Joe, why do you keep asking me to call you at home about my questions? Are you trying to hide something from the voters of Floyd County, or are you threatening me?

And about the invoices that Mrs. Delores Dingus gave Roger Webb—well, she may have given him his copies, but she did not give me mine.

Cooperating to Beautify City

If nature cooperates, by summer this strip of Prestonsburg land abutting US 23 will be abloom with wildflowers, providing nourishment for butterflies, hummingbirds and other wild birds. Cooperating in the city's beautification effort Tuesday were Tom Hereford IV, a city firefighter who volunteered his time to turn the ground; Mayor Ann Latta who publicly encourages individual beautification efforts; James Carter, local retiree who donated the wildflower seed and several trees to the city, and Councilman Bill Callihan, who lent his tractor for the endeavor. An account of Carter's individual campaign to spruce up the city is on page one, section four of this week's Times.

Officials Await Autopsy Report On Baby Born To Lick Fork Girl

Late Tuesday, neither Coroner Roger Nelson nor Commonwealth Attorney Jerry Patton had received results of an autopsy on a baby born last week to a 17-year-old Lick Fork girl.

The newborn baby was found dead April 10 in a shallow grave behind the girl's family home.

Although the girl reportedly said the baby was stillborn, Nelson said that a preliminary autopsy showed there was air in the infant's lungs. The presence of air could indicate that at least one breath was taken, he said.

Patton said the girl could be charged in the baby's death if autopsy reports indicate that the child was alive when it was reportedly placed in a lard bucket in an outbuilding. The girl's father apparently found the infant later and buried it.

The girl's father is reported to have said the family was unaware of the girl's pregnancy. The girl apparently acted out of fear, according to the father.

According to published reports, hospital officials in Prestonsburg informed police and Nelson of the baby's death. Authorities then went to the home and unearthed the body.

The girl apparently gave birth early in the morning in a dilapidated chicken house and left the baby there. When she later suffered from fainting spells, the father reportedly took her to a Langley clinic, where it was discovered she had recently given birth.

Nelson said he does not expect a final autopsy report until later this week.

Patton said that even if the autopsy indicates the baby was dead when it was buried, the father could be charged on a misdemeanor of abusing a corpse.

Cleaning anything involves making something else dirty, but anything can get dirty without something else getting clean.

— Lawrence J. Peter

There's more than a grain of truth to that statement — just ask the members of the Left Beaver Community Service Club. The something getting dirty is the club's membership, while the something getting clean is the Left Beaver roadside.

These folks have dedicated their own personal time to remove years of accumulated debris from roadsides and ditches in Left Beaver, and are offering their assistance to residents in other areas of the county who wish to do the same.

Actions speak louder than words — and especially louder than political advertising. Members of the Left Beaver club, rather than wax eloquent, have spent Saturdays, and plan to spend more, cleaning up what is surely someone else's mess.

There is certainly a merit to the theoretical approach. Stricter laws and stricter enforcement are needed, and, yes, both will do much to provide long-term solutions to an enormous problem. We encourage Floyd Countyans to support stricter laws, stiffer penalties and fines, and whatever else it may take to make our mountains as beautiful as they once were.

In the short-term, however, we're also encouraging residents, no matter what area they live in, to help the folks at Left Beaver, to help others elsewhere, or to begin cleanup drives in their own communities.

Letters To The Editor

Masters Answers

Recent Letter Writer

Dear Editor,
In answer to the letter of Wednesday, April 12, on the local option wet and dry election which takes place this Saturday, April 22, folks, the writer is correct and we need to be truthful.

The writer lifted up the two pastors, Ron Masters and Steve Hopkins, and stated that employees would lose their jobs and children would go hungry. That is not truthful. The facts are that a liquor store or two might be affected, and a local restaurant might be changing its sales of alcoholic beverages. It certainly does not mean they will be closing. There are eight precincts in the limits of this local option election. There is nothing to prevent these businesses from moving to another location to continue business as usual.

The writer spoke of welfare and unemployment and starving. I would respond that we do care for the poor, and over the last three years, it has been my happy privilege and opportunity as part of the Floyd County Ministerial Association to see over $100,000 in real help through local church and FEMA funds distributed to the needy of this community in the form of food, clothing, utilities help and medicines. Our local church women and the Ministerial Association have distributed tracts and Scripture portions to help, too. I don't think that these "forward looking, modern folks" can claim or prove that they have done as much.

We have also found employment for folks, amounting to untold amounts in financial help, as well as giving a dignity to the lives of those we have helped.

Friends, the local option issue is over eight precincts, and the issue is over liquor by the drink in a city that has had a rising driving under the influence in the overall picture since we went wet. The figures show that we have tripled the number since 1982. Those figures don't lie. . . it is the truth. Your "no" vote can help reduce these statistics in our local community.

The writer of the letter last week was right about us becoming more like New York every day — easier abuse of drugs, including alcohol. Let's not wait until we have a bus accident with 27 killed in a head-on crash like they did in Carrollton. We've had enough accidents in this community. We have the vote power to stop it before it ever happens here.

As for Eastern Kentucky being backward, or hillbilly, or bootleg, or lazy, I don't know where that came from. . . certainly not from this mountain boy. I happen to be from the other side of the mountain in Laurel County, East Bernstadt, Ky., is just a small Eastern Kentucky mining community. My grandfather was killed in his own coal mine because a drunken man was asleep at the boiler in the mine and it exploded, killing them both before I could even know my grandfather. I have something against a product that breaks up homes and marriages.

As to bootlegging coming back, well, the same law enforcement that keeps things straight now is still empowered to keep it straight. In this local option election, 40 precincts in this county can still be used for package liquor stores.

Folks, as pastors, we need to speak up like the prophets of old did, whenever abuse and wrong-doing goes on. Those with "vested interest" who are making the money would have you believe that we are not interested in the welfare of the families of our community. I think you know that this is just a smoke screen to boost their cause.

Reader Responds To Letter Concerning Pastors, Election

Dear Editor,
This is a reply to "The City Shouldn't Go Backward."

I am shocked by the virulent attack on two decent citizens and the churches of Prestonsburg made by the anonymous writer of a letter published in the April 12 Floyd County Times.

Mr. or Ms. Anonymous said, "Let's not be ignorant and have a negative attitude." I am neither ignorant nor negative. I have lived in Prestonsburg all of my long life; I know the town and I know the people. I do not know any citizen in Prestonsburg who is ignorant or negative. I have never known a pastor who has interfered and caused trouble in this town. Are you saying the pastors have no right to express an opinion? Are you saying that they are troublemakers because they don't agree with you?

I have always voted in every election — federal, state and local. I make my decisions and I can be changed, but not by threats and half-truths. I have friends, neighbors and relatives who voted differently than I. Because they differ with me, should I point an accusing finger at them as you did when you said, "We cannot support churches who have a lack of concern for our people?" For your information, the citizens of Prestonsburg have always supported their churches and they always will.

It is beyond belief the rash and sometimes stupid statements you made. You said, ". . . these pastors will go after the lottery and the video tapes next." Don't you know that the lottery was made a law by the General Assembly after the voters in the state of Kentucky voted on an amendment to the state Constitution to permit a lottery? It can only be rescinded the same way. Prestonsburg, by itself, can do nothing. Video tapes cannot be outlawed, except smut and pornography. Is that your worry? Don't you know that pornography is already illegal?

I taught in the Prestonsburg Grade School for 30 years. I must say I never, at any time, heard of or saw a student bringing alcohol into the school. I think that your statement is a slur against the teachers, the principal and the school administration. Do you think that any of the above would permit alcohol in the school?

You ended your letter with this statement, ". . . they (the pastors) are more interested in starving people to death. . ." Shame on you! Do you have any idea how much effort is made by the churches, the pastors and the citizens of Prestonsburg to provide food and clothing for the needy?

The franchise to vote is given to all Americans so that the pros and cons of any issue can be settled at the ballot box. Wet and dry elections have been held in Prestonsburg for more than 100 years and, whatever the outcome, the town has continued to progress since its founding in July 1800.

In 1880 such an election was held in Prestonsburg, population 300. The votes were cast and counted. The majority prevailed — dry, and the town continued to progress.

You said Prestonsburg has more everything, more money. If so, the money is not circulating in downtown Prestonsburg. Floyd County voted wet in 1982. Since then, five businesses have closed. There are five vacant buildings in downtown Prestonsburg. Is this progress?

Mr. or Ms. Anonymous, a malignant, spiteful letter like yours can cause bitterness and discord long after the election is over. My town does not need that. Prestonsburg is in an economic struggle, and making inflammatory statements about the churches, the pastors, and the Prestonsburg Grade School, three essential institutions for a growing town, will not contribute to the growth and prosperity that all Prestonsburg citizens want.

Mr. or Ms. Anonymous, you were very brave when you publicly slandered two respectful and respected men. But you weren't brave enough to make your own name public. An anonymous letter stinks!

Reader Defends Hopkins, Masters

Dear Editor,
In response to the letter that appeared in the April 12 issue of the Times: Praise the Lord for the Revs. Masters and Hopkins. How many other pastors in Prestonsburg are willing to take a stand for God? God keeps the records, thank you.

I do not live in Prestonsburg, but I do work there, and as a born-again Christian, I believe it is my duty to give praise where praise is due.

So Prestonsburg is becoming more like New York? Who wants that? Do you know what the crime rate is in New York — due to alcohol, drugs and other things?

God gives us, as born-again believers, the duty to tell others not only how to be saved, but also what is right and wrong in the sight of God. What is wrong is alcohol. Satan is very strongly for alcohol, and if the ones who want it think the Christians are trying to cause hostility, then I think that God's people must be doing something right.

True, people need jobs and we need tourism. But I think family-type tourism would be best. If all we want to attract are drinkers and gamblers, who needs it? I don't. You can't say that legal alcohol is going to keep people from starving. What about those who go out and spend their last few dollars just to get a drink? There are many hungry children, not from lack of jobs, but because their father or mother, or both, would rather use it for a "good" time.

We, as parents, have the God-given responsibility to teach our children and to know where they are and what they are doing. Don't leave it up to a liquor store owner to tell your kids if they can drink or not. If they can't buy it, they'll find someone who will buy it for them. Children learn by what they see others do, and if they see their parents drink, they assume that it is all right to do so. Don't be so naive to think that there are not bootleggers still out there. It can be bought any time. There are numerous alcohol-related accidents involving young people all the time. Legalizing it, I'm sure, does not ease the pain of a dead child.

No where in the Bible does it tell us that if times get rough, you just turn to sin and everything will be great. I'm of the opinion that there are a few too many Sunday morning Christians in this county of ours — righteous on Sunday; do what you want the rest of the week. If they put as much enthusiasm into doing God's work as they do rooting for their favorite sport, God would truly be blessing our county. Sports are all right in their place, but they do not rank above God.

As for me, I do not buy gas or groceries, if at all possible, from any place that participates in the lottery or sells alcoholic beverages. I do not want my money going toward buying more beer or wine. I thank God that there are still some stores here that do not participate in either.

These pastors and other born-again believers are not interested in starving people. We are interested in keeping our families intact and in seeing our family and friends come to know God. We are interested in what God thinks of us, and not man.

As to the hostility again, no one was shown more hostility because of his love for man than Jesus Christ.

And as for the hot summers, I'd rather see hot and dry than hot and drunk.

Saved, sober and proud to sign my name,
Mrs. Noel Gilliam,
David

Jarrells Dispute Fray Allegations

Dear Editor:
(In reference to) the incident at the circuit court March 31 between Woody Gene Jarrell and his father Cecil Gene Jarrell, both were on Russell Jarrell. Woody Gene Jarrell knocked Russell Jarrell down and Woody and Gene both had Russell down on the floor in the hall of the courthouse outside the court room door. Both men were beating Russell.

Jerry Patton was the only court official that has said anything about the fight in the hallway of the courthouse. There was no fight in the court room. Omma Jarrell was not hit by Russell Jarrell.

We still have to go to court about the property. We had offered to settle. Beulah Jarrell, Russell Jarrell, Prestonsburg County Judge-Executive Yvonne S. Jones designates May as "Clean Up and Beautification" month. A landfill site for the county is still under debate, one abandoned stripe mine has been suggested. The counties have until 1981 to have a plan for waste management. The Floyd County Urban Renewal and Community Development Agency are in the process of filing with HUD an application for funding of site preparation for Single-Family housing on 117-acre tract on Abbott Mountain. Floyd county's attempt to impose an utilities tax to help school funds, died recently with a public hearing here at which strong protest was registered. Edward Kallaher of Louisville, has filed in U.S. district court a suit seeking to recover from Adrian Lafferty, Thomas Lafferty, Jr. and six county officials; Sheriff Doug Lewis, County Judge-Executive Yvonne S. Jones and Magistrates, Ray Wilcox, Kenneth Roberts, Eddie Caudill and Hershel Hamilton, a total of $501,000 in damages allegedly resulting from his having been wounded last October 31 at the Plantation Motel. There died: Earman Jones, 41, of Martin at his home; James Clayton Ferguson, 65, of Bypro, at Norton Children's Hospital in Louisville; Rev. Clarence H. The Housing and Urban Development Administration (HUD) awarded to the Prestonsburg Municipal Housing Commission a loan of $1,175,779 for development of 78 low-rent units, it was announced by U.S. senators Cooper and Cook. The new housing complex, Prestonsburg's fourth, will be designed for the elderly. The new housing project will be located in the Goble-Roberts Addition. Before Saturday's deadline for filing for public office had passed 94 Floyd countyans had tossed their hats into the ring and only one incumbent had escaped opposition. The lone candidate who is "home free" without primary opposition and none in sight for the November finals, is Tax Commissioner Harry Gorden Allen. Kentucky West Virginia gas Co. and its subsidiary, Kentucky Hydro-Carbon, last week presented a check for $5,000 to the Highlands Regional Hospital fund which put the fund drive past its $150,000 goal. The Prestonsburg City Council voted Monday night to advertise for bids on street-servicing at Lancer and in the Porter Addition here. The Howard K. Archer is the new president-elect of the Kentucky Academy of General Practice, it was announced in Louisville Tuesday. Discovery by Deputy Jailer Ray Click last Thursday of two hacksaw blades secreted in a hollow space in a cell door may have forestalled a wholesale jail delivery. Representatives of Eastern Kentucky non-union coal operators and United Mine Workers were scheduled to meet in Frankfort today in another attempt to iron out the contract controversy between the two groups. The refusal of many truck mine operators to agree to a wage hike and the terms of the protective wage clause was, in the main, remaining steadfast after 46 days punctuated by two killings and other violence. Telephone service in Prestonsburg has been extended by an expenditure of $44,438 during the past 12 months, officials of the Southern Bell Telephone Company have announced. Progress, Tourism Points Questioned

Dear Editor,
Some of the recent arguments for liquor control would have us believe that Prestonsburg has little to offer without alcohol.

Take tourism, for instance. When was the last time you planned your family vacation around the availability of alcohol? Many people look for a relaxing atmosphere and picturesque views. Prestonsburg has that already.

What about progress? What about luring new business and industry into the area? When we were asked to relocate here from Louisville four years ago, we felt it would be an opportunity to raise our family in a safer, more secure community. So far, we haven't been disappointed in that area.

Although Floyd County has some excellent teachers, our school system as a whole would not be very attractive to prospective newcomers at this time. Good school systems do make an area more appealing, so let's keep that our first priority when trying to attract new industry.

What about revenue generated from these sales? It always costs to keep those who have had too much to drink off the roads. To keep in step with progress and to be fair to our citizens, we may need to develop a good drug and alcohol intervention program (like Louisville and Lexington have). These things cost the taxpayers. Can we afford it and still come out ahead?

What about alcohol control? Does anybody really control this? Even the waitress or bartender is not required to stop serving us until they think we've had "too much." By that time, we probably need a ride home (it takes less than you think for your blood alcohol level to register high enough to be arrested).

As stated in the paper recently, Prestonsburg is already growing. We all enjoy the new shopping centers, bank and Holiday Inn. This progress would probably have occurred with or without the sale of alcohol.

So you see, Prestonsburg can be proud that there is enough to offer here without compromising values or losing identity. After all, is it so important to be another Lexington or Louisville? Progress has its price, and sometimes, it is just too much. Maybe that's why so many tourists choose our area when they want to get away.

It is not a question of who drinks and who doesn't, but whether or not Prestonsburg will truly prosper by the sale of alcohol.

Bootlegging Argument 'Really Silly'

Dear Editor,
We are writing this letter in response to the letter that was printed last week about the pastors in Prestonsburg, and the fact that this person feels that they should leave things the way they are and forget what is going on in our town.

I am certain a pastor like this would have a church full of people because most folks don't like having their toes stepped on, but after all, what does the word Christian mean (Christ-like). I say this because I know for a fact that these liquor outlet stores do not stay in business by the customer who comes in to buy an occasional bottle of booze. They are making a living by selling to people who drink nearly every day. This town is not large enough for all these places to profit unless someone else does without; money spent on alcohol is money not spent on other things, like clothing, food and other necessities.

The statement that bootleggers will sell to teenagers is really silly. How many teenagers do you know who don't have friends of legal age to do their alcohol purchasing for them? Please remember it is not the responsibility of the voters to worry about bootleggers. It is the responsibility of elected officials to enforce the law and put these people out of business. After all, most of us know who they are. You can certainly "bootleg" more than liquor. People that make a living doing this are still doing it. Our children can now buy drugs from these people. We didn't put them out of business by voting "wet."

Another comment the writer made was about the way Prestonsburg has grown. Well, let me remind you of all the businesses that have closed in the past few years: Ben Franklin, Hobbs, Richmond's, Denim Land, Stop & Shop, Thomas Hereford, Burchett's Jewelry, Maloney's, Hecks, Herrin-Johnson, Tamera's, Additional Dimensions, Sharp Photo and Baldrige Restaurant. That is just a few. I am not saying this is because our county is wet, but how can people keep saying our town is growing? We may have a few new businesses, but will they be here next year? The only thing we have now is a lot of liquor stores and beer cans in the ditches. But then again, I guess this is what the new recycling center you mentioned is for.

Voters, remember, bootleggers are the responsibility of our elected officials. After all, you can hire hit men, but I don't see people running out and legalizing murder! I would also like to close by saying I am very proud of pastors such as the Revs. Ron Masters, Kevin Collins, Wayne Burch, Steve Hopkins and John Woods... and other individuals who stand up for what is right!

Businesses Will Lose Investments If Area Votes Dry

Dear Editor,
If the voters vote Prestonsburg dry there will be about nine businesses losing investments, stocks and who cannot pay their debts to the banks. Everyone will feel the effects of this.

There will be more buildings boarded up than what you already see.

Let Mr. Pastor say what he will on the radio. I can't see how the two can sleep at night. Can you?

There must be more to life than hatred, trouble, etc. Do these pastors have a conscience?

What do you think about the way they went about starting this. They were so sneaky, getting up the petition. Big secret!

The alcohol retailers are nice, honest, sociable people. They are working for a living. We must show more regard for the welfare of the people.

When you close about nine businesses, it will be a ghost town. We won't need that big road to take care of the traffic.

People lost interest in the church because of Jim Bakker and Jimmy Swaggart. I have always supported the churches. Mr. Pastor, people cannot relocate. How would you like to relocate?

I respect your ability to be pastor of the church, but I do not respect your radical ways. You two pastors are letting others use you.

The bottom line is, be honest. "Love thy neighbor as thyself."

Thank you for helping let the community get to know you better. Mr. Pastor, you said on the radio no one would lose their job. Here is a list of the businesses: Sam an Toni's, A&C Jiffy Mart, Liquor Locker, Ousley's, Super America, Happy Mart, Holiday Inn, Top Hat and Jenny Wiley Liquors.

Vote yes to save these businesses. Keep everything like it is — legal.

Stumbo Responds To Letter By Carter

Dear Editor,
I read (James J. Carter's) letter to the editor in the April 12 edition of the Floyd County Times, and thought I should respond.

To begin with, let me say that Martin Luther King's birthday is currently recognized as a national holiday and as a Kentucky holiday;

however, in Kentucky, not all state employees are given the day off. This results in some state workers getting to have a holiday while others do not, which is obviously unfair. That, however, was not my major reason for agreeing to co-sponsoring the legislation.

Martin Luther King was a symbol, a man whose life stood for one of the things which I believe makes America the great country that it is. If you think of our nation in broad terms, you must recognize that we are a nation, dedicated to the symbols of freedom, justice and equality. We are ever reminded of the value of these cornerstones of democracy through the prominent displaying of our flag, our Constitution, and various other symbols which are a part of our daily lives.

We, like other nations throughout history, have chosen to give special recognition to leaders whose lives have made a truly historical difference, not only to honor the man or woman, but to remind the citizens of the nation of the symbolic contribution of that particular individual.

We, as Eastern Kentuckians, have experienced firsthand the pain and anguish associated with prejudicial, inequitable and unfair social and governmental attitudes. As an elected official of this area, I have fought long and hard for the equality of our area and our people, and I sympathize on a personal basis with those who are and have been discriminated against because of race, sex, religion or other factors.

Dr. King's life and convictions have been inspirational to me, as I'm sure they have been to others, who struggle for that equality, and I believe that his life was symbolic in that regard. He should be remembered and should serve as a reminder to every Kentuckian that the basic premise of liberty and democracy hinges upon affording social and legal equality to all citizens.

In that sense, Dr. King was more than just a symbol for black Americans; he should be remembered as a symbol to all Americans, to all Kentuckians, who believe that our state and our nation can never achieve the greatness which we all wish to see without sharing the dream of Dr. King: That all people, all children, black, white, rich, poor, be they an Eastern Kentuckian, Western Kentuckian, or Central Kentuckian, shall be afforded by their government, a fair and equal opportunity to participate in society and government.

I hope this answers the questions which you ask and I would end by saying that I share with you a 'agree that there are many others whose contributions to our state and nation are worthy of recognition. By recognizing Dr. King's birthday, I do not think that we are in any way diminishing the accomplishments of Gov. Combs, Sen. Barkley or the other leaders which you have mentioned. Perhaps at some point, their day will come as well. And, if given the opportunity, I can say that I would support any effort to honor or recognize them.

Good luck and best wishes.
Sincerely yours,
Gregory D. Stumbo
State Representative

Area Couple Still Seeking Adoption Of Special Children

Dear Editor,
I would like to respond to the letter about adoption. My husband and I have been in special needs adoption for over two years and we are still waiting for a child.
We were told when we started this program that it wouldn't take as long as if we were to take an older child or two children, but it seems to me that it is going to be as long for an older child as it would be to get a baby. My husband and I love kids, and we think we would make good parents.
Every time we find a child in the papers they send us, they always say that someone else has asked about them. We have sent in, as of right now, about 20 inquiries on some of the children, and they say that they haven't heard anything.
We just wish we would hear something soon.
Thank you,

Writer Resents Mud Creek Litter

Dear Editor,
I am speaking as a concerned citizen of Mud Creek. I have been picking up trash along the roadside and in the creek.
I am asking each and every citizen of Mud Creek and up the hollows that doesn't want to live in filth to help clean up the mess.
I have seen large bags of garbage by the roadside. People that do such don't care for themselves or anyone else. Please quit putting trash in the road and in our streams. I understand it is a $500 fine. If the law enforcement would impose the law and make people pay their garbage bill, we would have a cleaner place to live.
I trust there are enough citizens of good morals to help clean it up. It is a disgrace to the environment.

Proud Of Response To Litter Problem

Dear Editor,
I am writing this editorial to say how proud I was to the response of my first editorial my family and I wrote concerning the litter and filth in Floyd County.
It was really great the way everyone, including the students and teachers at McDowell, responded. It was really great to see the clean-up going on, and how much nicer it looked.
But obviously, not "everyone" felt the same way about our county, as I and so many others did. I have noticed the last several days coming to and from Martin to McDowell how the ditch lines are already filling up with trash from restaurants, etc. I just can't believe people can be so ignorant and so uncaring.
The only help I see for this problem is maybe posting more "No Litter" signs along the road, and then enforcing them, by punishing these people, and also maybe placing garbage containers along the road.
I don't even know if this would help. This is truly a shame. Thanks

Litter Problem Sad, Says Ramey

Dear Editor,
As a former Floyd Countian, I read the weekly comments about the garbage dumps in Eastern Kentucky with much interest. I come back to the mountains regularly since my parents are still there.
It is very sad that nothing is done to clean up this area, which to me was once beautiful, and can be again.
As owners of property in Grayson County, we also had this problem with adjoining property owners. I vowed that it would be cleaned up. I did not write one letter to the area paper, but went directly to the county judge-executive and the magistrate. These are the people elected to govern a county and see that these things are cleaned up—and clean it up they did.
So, people of Floyd County, start at the top. Go to your judge and magistrates. If they talk and don't act, vote them out of office. Don't be afraid to confront them. You gave them the job; if they are incompetent, get them out of office and elect people with the same goals you have. Clean up Eastern Kentucky and put a sign at the county line, "Open for Business," and

OPPOSE A CITY VEHICLE TAX FOR THE CITY OF PRESTONSBURG

FACTS:

The City of Prestonsburg now has revenue from the taxes, licensing and sales of alcoholic beverages in the amount of approximately $75,000 to $80,000 per year. If the sale of alcoholic beverages is banned, Prestonsburg will be required to make up the lost revenue to meet the budget of the police department, for the salaries of our police and to maintain and purchase needed equipment.

SOLUTION:

A VEHICLE TAX TO MAKE UP THE LOSS?
Several of our well meaning friends have suggested the possibility of bringing back the city vehicle sticker tax to replace the $75,000 to $80,000 in lost taxes from the 2% tax on sales of alcoholic beverages. This city vehicle tax would require all city residents owning cars and trucks, as well as all of those persons working within the city limits and using city streets, to purchase a city sticker for their vehicles. It has been estimated that there are over 2,500 vehicles the vehicle tax would apply to. Using the vehicle tax to replace the $75,000 to $80,000 would require a tax of approximately $25 to $35 per vehicle per year. A vehicle tax is a totally unfair tax to impose on city residents and city workers. It would tax all residents owning vehicles, whether they are on a fixed income, live in low rent housing projects or in other words, tax everyone whether they could afford the tax or not. Voice your concern about a city vehicle tax to your friends and neighbors as well as to those on the Prestonsburg City Council and those that plan to run for Prestonsburg City Council.

Should Eastern Kentucky Secede From Rest Of State?

by Tess Whitmer
Staff Writer

The secession of Eastern Kentucky from the state was the topic of discussion at the Caucus Club meeting Wednesday, April 12, at Prestonsburg Community College.

The Caucus Club is a panel of guest speakers, invited by history professor Tom Matijasic, to discuss different debatable topics, about once a month at PCC.

The first speaker was Jeff Horne, a student at PCC, who was in favor of secession. Horne's theory? "Pride needs to be restored in the area. Eastern Kentuckians are tired of the injustice and have stopped caring." He said he would "rather serve a just master and live in the depths of poverty and filth than serve an unjust master and live in the depths of poverty and filth."

Scott Perry, editor of the Paintsville

Herald, argued against Eastern Kentucky as a state. "Eastern Kentucky already is an independent state in the way we are treated." Perry doesn't see the idea as probable because "we can rarely get together on anything now when it counts. (There is) too much politicking in this area."

Eastern Kentucky has a large percentage of registered voters, but the problem is the low number of people who actually vote, according to Perry. "Eastern Kentucky should take over the rest of the state. We are to blame for the neglect, not Kentucky, and we have the strength in numbers to change that view."

The third guest speaker was Tim Sizemore, local artist and activist, who said, "Frankfort has eaten off our table and left us the crumbs." Sizemore feels that too much has been taken out of this area and given to the rest of the state, and not enough comes back.

"If there was industry in the area then there would be more incentive for education," he says, "and education is what will put more pride and unity in this area."

Sizemore thinks it would be a good idea to include regions in West Virginia and Virginia, similar to our own, in the proposed state, and that Hazard would make a good centrally-located capitol.

Homer Marcum, former editor of the Martin Countian newspaper, has believed Eastern Kentucky should be independent for about 10 years now. "We need our own voice and a receptive ear to that voice," he says. "The Lexington Herald only looks at us when something blows up, or we shoot each other—never when something good happens. Eastern Kentucky has a bad reputation and it doesn't need to be that way. Hillbilly does not have to be a derogatory word."

Marcum believes that Eastern Kentucky could easily support itself, not only with coal mining funds, but also revenue from forestry and tourism. He said, "if everyone who owned five acres of woods could put a cabin on it, and we could hook up a computer system with all the locations, we would be able to house as many people as wanted to visit Eastern Kentucky."

The panel agreed wholeheartedly that if Eastern Kentucky wished to see any improvement it must start at home. "Politicians must be elected because they are the person that can do the best for the region, not because they are someone's next door neighbor," says Marcum.

"If people would pick up the litter, and take pride in their community, industry would come in and education would be more highly valued," says Sizemore "once this happens things will start to improve."

KFTC To Be Honored At Regional Conference

Three individuals and three organizations from Eastern Kentucky will be honored for their commitments to improve the quality of life in their region at the second East Kentucky Leadership Conference in Hazard April 29.

Among the award recipients is Kentuckians for the Commonwealth, for its organizational efforts at the grassroots level on issues of broad public importance. The organization is headquartered in Prestonsburg.

The award winners will be honored at a banquet at 7 p.m. Saturday, April 29, at the Holiday Inn in Hazard. The banquet will end the conference, open to the public, which begins Friday afternoon.

Leaders from Eastern Kentucky are encouraged to attend the conference to discuss leadership, the problems and challenges facing the region, and to continue the yearly forum to bring all the groups and individuals working on these issues together. Leaders from all walks of life from Eastern Kentucky are invited to attend. Any person or group that aspires to a leadership role in Eastern Kentucky should take this opportunity to meet with other leaders from the region, said a conference spokesman.

The format of the conference will allow everyone to select three different sessions in which to participate, varying from job development, education, health care and leadership to the mountain image.

Registration will be held from 4 to 6 p.m. at the Holiday Inn on Friday, April 28. Bill Deaton, the president of Appalachian Computer Services in London, is the 8 p.m. keynote speaker.

Registration begins at 8:30 a.m. Saturday at the Hazard Community College for the sessions. State Superintendent of Public Instruction John Brock will be the Saturday evening banquet speaker.

For more information, contact Mike Mullins at the Hindman Settlement School, 785-5024, or Linda Gayheart of Kentucky River Area Development District, 436-3158.

The house, a one story brick structure, received substantial fire and smoke damage.

Bevins Hearing Reset To July 12

The hearing to replead the death sentence of convicted Floyd County murderer Oakie Bevins has been rescheduled for July 12 at 1:30 p.m. at Greenup.

Originally set for April 12, the hearing was rescheduled at the request of the Attorney General's office, according to Commonwealth Attorney Jerry Patton's office.

Bevins, sentenced to die for killing five persons in Allen in the early 1980s, is reportedly the oldest inmate on death row in the country. His lawyer is seeking to have the death sentence commuted.

The hearing is to be at the Greenup County courthouse.

City Youth Center Fundraiser Held; Donations Still Sought

by Tess Whitmer
Staff Writer

Prestonsburg's Youth Center opened briefly Saturday, April 15, to hold a fund raising festival that featured games and snacks during the day, and a dance in the evening.

It was also an opportunity for parents to visit the site of the facility and speak to the board members about future plans.

Upon its completion, the youth center is planned to house a dance floor, snack bar, video games, study room, pool tables and ping-pong tables, according to Johnnie Ross, Youth Center director.

Ross heads the youth board, consisting of students in grades six through 12, who are in charge of programming. One of the students, Chris Bailey, an eighth grader at Prestonsburg, Allen and Auxier schools, grades six through 12.

their homework, with volunteer tutors available.

The students for the current board were selected by teacher recommendation. Applications will be accepted soon for future boards, from students at Prestonsburg, Allen and Auxier schools, grades six through 12.

The Youth Center will offer special activities throughout the year to coincide with holidays and sporting events, according to Mike Vance, chairman Youth Center Advisory Board. The center is large enough to provide meeting places for clubs and to offer things such as ballet classes.

Vance says that money is still needed for renovations, estimated to cost about $40,000. The board has managed to raise about $15,000. According to Vance, "Many people have said 'When you get ready to open we'll give a contribution.' But we cannot open until we get the funds to renovate, so now is the time to give. The center will not be a success without community involvement and support."

Vance said the festival was a moderate success. Youths raised $165, and "the children all had a good time," said Vance, adding, "but I wish more parents would have come down to visit the facility." Several of the adults who did visit took home pledge sheets, so Vance hopes to see more funds coming in from the community.

The building in which the Youth Center is located is the old Brown's Produce building downtown Prestonsburg. The building is now owned by Branham and Baker Coal, and is being leased to the program for a small annual fee.

Another festival will be held soon, date to be announced. Anyone wishing more information or to donate funds can contact Mike Vance, 886-6051, or Sue Webb at City Hall, 886-2335.

How Many Do You See?

Local youths try to guess how many coins are in the jar, one of many activities at the Youth Center Fund Festival on Saturday, April 15. The Center was open for a day to allow parents and children to visit the facility and to raise funds for renovation purposes.

Plea Bargaining, Guilty Pleas Dominate Docket

A plea bargaining agreement resulted in a five-year sentence for Jamie Pennington, 19, of Prestonsburg, on a charge of reckless homicide, related to a 1986 incident, last week in Floyd Circuit Court.

Pennington was originally charged with murder in the death of Tammy Hall of Teaberry, who was a passenger in a car driven by Pennington in May 1986 when it crashed on KY 3, Water Gap Road. Special prosecutor Randy Campbell of Hindman said Pennington's blood alcohol level at the time of the incident was above the legal limit.

Campbell said he agreed on the plea bargain only after he found the "arrangement was satisfactory to the victim's parents," Clifford and Dorothy Hall of Teaberry. Campbell was appointed special prosecutor in the case last year to replace Commonwealth Attorney Jerry Patton, who had been Pennington's attorney before Patton's election.

In other court cases, Donald Tackett and Luther Keens, both of Hi Hat, pled guilty to a charge of robbery stemming from a 1986 incident. Charges of bail jumping were dropped, said Patton. The two were sentenced to 10 years each.

Harold Robbie Baer of Prestonsburg also pled guilty on charges of forgery and theft of a truck. He was sentenced to three years on each count, with the sentences to run concurrently.

Pleading guilty to a charge of assault under extreme disturbance was Timothy Hall of Hi Hat. Last April he allegedly shot at Terry Hall, a former Kentucky state policeman, of Price, who was wounded by bullet fragments and flying glass. Sentencing is set for May 5, Patton said.

Roland Moore of McDowell was also sentenced to two-and-a-half years on an assault charge for shooting his wife, Verlene, in November 1987.

In a plea taken Tuesday, Patton said a five-year sentence was recommended for Bruce Moore of Hi Hat, charged last year with trafficking in PCPs.

Getting the Bugs Out

A young birch tree on Arnold Avenue in Prestonsburg gets a spring cleaning spray from Greg Howard of Garrett, who recently earned certification from the state division of pesticide control. Howard and Donna Goble, both affiliated with Laurel Farms Landscaping, completed training and passed the state examination for certification in pesticide application. Kentucky law mandates that persons who apply insecticides, herbicides and pesticides complete training. According to Goble, the purpose of the certification is to assure human and environmental protection "through safe, knowledgeable application of pesticides."

Coal Mining Institute Seminar Set April 20-21

Improvements in mine safety in the mining industry will be addressed at the Big Sandy Coal Mining Institute's 12th annual coal mining seminar scheduled April 20-21 at the Jenny Wiley State Resort Park in Prestonsburg.

The theme for this year's seminar is "Where Do We Go From Here," and will feature T.S. Ary, director of the US Bureau of Mines, as the keynote speaker.

The program will begin Thursday morning with a look at safety in the mining industry. State and federal regulatory agency representatives will lead the talks. Ary will address the group later Thursday afternoon, followed by a technical session on the importance of coal research to the coal industry, subsidence, and a formula for a successful safety program.

The meeting will conclude Friday morning with a technical session on coal mining insurance, a worker's rehabilitation program, mine emergency preparedness, and a Kentucky legislative update for 1989.

HELPING KIDS IS OUR BUSINESS

To You, THE VOTERS of FLOYD COUNTY

It is at this time of any election year that we are all tired of reading the negative political ads and hearing empty promises, and this year even if we refuse to read the paper or turn the radio on, each day as we drive to and from work we are greeted with a new addition to the "BILLBOARD WARS". Won't you be glad when the old familiar Pepsi or Coke ads are back up?

In response to all this, I feel it necessary to speak up and comment on one particular race and, that is, the County Clerk's race. I am sure that there are many of you who don't know me, but those of you who do know that I am not, by nature, a person who gets involved in politics, but when I see an office upgraded and improved, as has been done with the Floyd County Clerk's office, then I feel the person responsible for that deserves our praise and our vote, and that person is Carla "Robinson" Bolton.

You have seen in Carla's ads only a brief summary of the improvement and changes which have been made in the County Clerk's office since she was elected. These aren't promises but reality, and remember that these records are "yours", specifically, your deeds, mortgages, marriages and veteran's discharges, to mention a few. Carla has modernized the manner in which the records are indexed for quick location, and safeguarded, by backup micro-filming. These improvements are invaluable to you, since they are preserving your historical records, "now and for future generations", and your personal records, which have been earned by your sweat and blood, and are simply irreplaceable.

I spend a great deal of time in the course of my work, as an attorney, in this office and the Clerk's offices in other counties in our State, and I can tell you without reservation that you have a County Clerk's office which is "one of the best" and second to none. Since I spend more hours working in the Floyd County Clerk's office than anyone else in the County, with the exception of Carla and her staff, it's been my observation that she and the entire staff are efficient and courteous to anyone seeking information or assistance, whether looking for their deeds or other records.

As for one particular ad ran by one of her opponents, Roger Webb, reprinting a 1983 news article about a former County Clerk, the people of Floyd County are smarter than that. Give us some credit, we don't live in the past, this is 1989. We want a winner with a proven track record, and I'm sure even he would bet on a winner, right, Roger?

I ask you to vote for a proven winner, Carla "Robinson" Bolton, to continue running an office that we, as Floyd Countians, can all be proud of. "Your County Clerk's Office."

To: JIM HAMMOND

Dear Jim,

I've been thinking about you a lot lately. Remember when you gave me a card down at Allen, Ky. stating that you, Jim Hammond, are a candidate for Floyd County Attorney. I gave you my support then and I still intend to keep my word. I have been campaigning for you, and Jim, I always try to maintain a positive and a healthy attitude about anything I try to do.

I admire you so much, especially the way you are campaigning—you're doing a great job of running a clean race. You're a perfect gentleman in every way. I've known you since you were a little toddler in diapers living in Maytown across the road from my family. We all loved you and your family so much.

You have a lot of potential and a great future lies ahead of you. You've got a lot of supporters working for you. I want to encourage all of my friends, neighbors—relatives, the Ousleys, Praters, Bentleys (and you name 'em) to go to work also and help elect this fine young fellow, Jim Hammond, as our next Floyd County Attorney.

Jim, stand tall, shake all the hands you can, "You're a Winner"!

May God Bless and Keep You Always,

KWNA Elects Officers; Floyd County Represented

Marty Backus Sr., publisher of the Floyd County Times, was elected to the board of directors of the Kentucky Weekly Newspapers Association at the group's spring convention at Morehead State University.

Barbara Justice, editor of the Appalachian News-Express, Pikeville, was elected president, while Terry Spears, publisher of the Martin Countian and Mercury, joined Backus on the board of directors.

James Mulcahy, associate editor of the Clay City Times, was named vice president. Carlisle Mercury copublishers Marilyn Bond and Hank Bond were elected secretary and treasurer, respectively.

In addition to Backus and Spears, Ken Metz, editor of the Bath County News-Outlet, was named to the board.

First place winners in the "general excellence" competition were the Clay City Times, with 14 awards in the up to 3,500 circulation category, and the Appalachian News-Express with eight awards in Class II.

Lt. Gov. Brereton Jones said at the KWNA awards banquet that he would campaign for governor in 1991 on the platform of elevating Kentucky's educational system to the top 20 percent in the nation, from the current bottom 20 percent.

The lieutenant governor said that, if nominated for governor by the Democrats in May 1991, he would call legislative and education leaders together to draft a school improvement plan in time for a special session in early December. If the GOP nominates a viable candidate for governor, Jones said he would be willing to involve that person in the drafting process during the general election campaign.

MSU President C. Nelson Grote urged the press group to continue boosting education from kindergarten through college.

There was a new awareness in Kentucky of the significance of education at all levels, Dr. Grote stated.

He credited part of MSU's 24 percent enrollment growth to that factor, noting 78 percent of the university's students come from Eastern Kentucky.

Dr. Grote stressed the need for public officials to work together to increase funding for education.

FOUR GOOD REASONS TO VOTE "YES"

1. Legal Sales Of Alcohol Means Control: No sales to juveniles; no sales to people already drunk; No sales on Sunday or after legal hours; No license granted to anyone with a record of alcohol or drug violations; Police can go on premises at anytime.

2. No Legal Sales Means Bootleggers: Beer or whiskey to kids, drunks or anybody who's got the money; drugs as well as liquor; no license required (but a $200 police radio for protection, so they know when the police are coming and can close.)

3. Tourism Dollars Are Increased By Legal Sales: In 1986, tourists spent $13.1 Million in Floyd County, today tourists spend $18.1 Million and we rank 28th. Nearly 200 new jobs from tourism alone have been established in Floyd County in the last 2 years. We need these jobs and tourist dollars.

4. Taxes Are Increased By Illegal Sales: Bootleggers don't pay taxes and the fines they pay go to the state. Tourists pay taxes, but not unless they're here. Unemployed people who used to work in legal stores can't pay taxes and neither can people who lose all the money they invested to start a perfectly legal business. The City stands to lose as much as $75,000.00 a year in tax revenue if legal sales become illegal sales.

ers will take their business to Hazard and Pikeville, "taking money out that could be spent in the city. Each tourism dollar spent turns over five to seven times, according to the Kentucky Tourism Federation."

The specter of bootlegging has likewise been argued on several occasions by those for and against alcoholic beverage sales.

Hopkins cites three reasons bootlegging is not an issue: assuming all eight precincts go dry, he said, there will still be alcoholic beverages legally available within a half-mile of most residences. Secondly, the same law enforcement agency that controls legal sales is to control bootlegging; and thirdly, he notes, "It's very dangerous to legalize something simply because it's going to be done illegally. If the argument that we should legalize alcohol because of bootleggers is valid, the same applies to crack and cocaine so that we won't have pushers any more. That doesn't make sense to anyone."

Hopkins adds that bootlegging will not be economically profitable. "The only way it is ever profitable is if the bootlegger sells it at twice the price, and he can't do that if it's available a half mile down the road at the normal price."

"Mr. Hopkins wasn't here when there was bootlegging," charges Meadows. "He wasn't around, and he didn't see what it was like when the area was dry. Our kids are safer, law enforcement has the upper hand, they have their own vehicles, they patrol better, keep tabs on establishments, check IDs, and kids can't buy alcohol."

"Also, if a precinct goes dry in this election, that is simply no guarantee that the precinct is going to be dry. Alcohol is going to be there, period. It's better to know who's buying that alcohol and where it's going, as opposed to not knowing." Bootlegging or no, Hopkins maintains that the availability of alcohol is directly related to crime rates.

Half of all Kentucky's fatal accidents in 1987 were related to alcohol consumption, according to a report by Crime in Kentucky, Hopkins relates. "Availability determines consumption — the more there is available, the more there is consumed. The availability also determines the risk.

The more that is sold and consumed, the more drivers will be on the road with the dangers of alcohol and drunkenness."

Hopkins is urging residents of the eight precincts to protect themselves against an increase in crime by voting against legal sales. The FBI, in a 1987 report, determined that over half of all crimes were related to alcohol, says the pastor.

"We need to protect our most valuable resource — our children," says Hopkins. "We need to protect them from the exposure to the problems caused by alcohol. Families are one of our greatest concerns." Hopkins says the Child Abuse Council has estimated that 75 percent of all child abuse cases nationally are related to alcohol abuse.

In one of the few alcohol sales-related areas the two men agree, Hopkins and Meadows both say that Saturday's local option election will allow voters to decide the issues for themselves.

"Each person has the right to say what goes on in their neighborhood. Kentucky law recognized that each neighborhood has the right to determine what is sold and what is not," says Hopkins.

"It's a very personal election," Meadows noted. "People are talking about how quiet it is, and it is quiet. It is a very sensitive issue. I think people are going to vote what they want, and how they feel about it. It's individual choice; an individual deciding whether or not they want to be able to purchase alcohol in their precinct."

Harold Shriners Plan Roadblock

Two Harold Shriners will be collecting money to benefit the organization's efforts to help crippled children today at Harold.

Mont and Gregory Gibson plan to conduct a roadblock at the end of the Harold bridge, off US 23, beginning at about 2 p.m.

Mont Gibson, who must use a wheelchair, said, "It'll be one crippled person helping another."

ported clogged in the town.

The placement of a gate at the entrance to the old basketball court was requested by Robert Hood, whose house is nearby. Hood reported that "drinking and shooting" often goes on at the court site late at night.

Commissioner Holbrook stated that the city needs to purchase gates for several other park areas in the city to deter vandalism and illegal garbage dumping. He suggested money for the gates could come from road aid monies from the state. Fire chief Andy Akers said members of the fire department could install the gates.

Hood also asked for the replacement of a street light near his residence. The clerk said she would call the power company with the order.

Floyd County Court Clerk candidate Roger Webb spoke briefly about his candidacy at the beginning of the meeting.

Commissioners attending the meeting were Harris, Holbrook, Mullins and Jerry Tackett. The next regular meeting will be Thursday, May 18 at 7 p.m. at city hall.

Health Department Advises Of Permits

The Floyd County Health Department reminds residents and business owners in the county of permit regulations required by Kentucky Revised Statutes.

According to health educator Jane Bond, permits are required before installing a new septic system, installing a septic system for someone else, opening a new restaurant or grocery, change of ownership in a restaurant or grocery, set up of temporary food booths for festivals, and construction of mobile home parks. Permits may be obtained through contacting Carl Baldrige or John Bailey at the health department at 21 Front St., Prestonsburg, between 8 and 9:30 a.m. and 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. daily.

Bond advises persons planning to purchase a building lot or business to check with the department to see if the purchase meets minimum requirements. Some building lots in the county, she said, will not support a sewage system and cannot be used for residence or business. For information, call the department at 886-2788.

Galveston Youth Receives 'Odd Bird'

Kenneth Hall, 15, of Galveston, didn't notice anything odd about the 100 baby chickens he received in an order recently, until he saw several biddies continue to pick at one of the yellow, fuzzy critters.

When he looked more closely, he saw the cause of the commotion. The picked-upon chick had three legs—a rarity among normally two-legged fowl.

In addition to two tiny, but functional, legs in their normal position, a third leg had grown out of the baby chick's tail-feather section. The extra limb appeared to be brown and atrophied, a simple freak of nature.

Apparently not destined for a circus sideshow, the malformed creature died over the weekend. Hall said this was the first time he had received a chicken of this type, although he has ordered through the same supplier many times.

BELOW IS A NEWS STORY THAT APPEARED IN THE JUNE 19, 1985 ISSUE OF THE FLOYD CO. TIMES, CONCERNING COUNTY CLERK, CARLA BOLTON (FORMERLY CARLA BOYD.)

Forgery Allegations Against Clerk Told

County Attorney Says Armstrong Statement Due

An explanation is due from Attorney General David Armstrong, Floyd County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. said yesterday (Tuesday), as to why allegations of forgery against County Clerk Carla Boyd were never presented to the grand jury that indicted 16 people, including five county officials, last December.

The fact that the 18-month state police investigation that led to the indictments also resulted in 174 allegations of forgery against Mrs. Boyd was revealed Tuesday in a news story by Lexington Herald-Leader reporter Lee Mueller.

According to the story, case records indicate that between 1980 and 1982, when Boyd was deputy clerk under her uncle, the late C. Ollie Robinson, she allegedly conspired with him to defraud the state and county of funds by typing fictitious receipts for truck registration payments. The state Transportation Cabinet last month asserted a $319,000 claim against Robinson's estate for registration fees it never received from the Floyd clerk's office.

Investigators said Boyd admitted typing the false receipts, sometimes at a rate of seven or eight a day, explaining that "it was her duty to do as she was instructed." The clerk's office was closed here Tuesday—"due to a death in an employee's family," according to a sign on the door.

County Attorney Turner, whose request in March, 1983 led to the state police probe of Floyd county finances, said he was "surprised, number one, that there is some substance, possibly, to the rumors (of wrongdoing on Boyd's part) and, number two, that it wasn't presented to the grand jury."

"If they have any evidence that would have been sufficient in their judgment to win a verdict of guilt, it ought to have been presented," said Turner, who added that he intended to find out why it was not presented and whether a grand jury might yet get to review the evidence. "It seems peculiar if they have a signed admission but did not introduce it," the county attorney said.

"The bottom line is, only one man can explain it — Armstrong — and he needs to do it," Turner said. Armstrong failed to return a reporter's call Tuesday.

Phillip Damron, attorney for some of those indicted in December, told Mueller he was not surprised that the material was not submitted to the grand jury. Damron charged that the "special prosecutors had targeted specific individuals for prosecution while willfully omitting others" and that "the primary purpose of the original indictments was to influence the May elections."

"All I can say is that my request (for an investigation) was not politically motivated—it was made two years before the primary—but, as to how it was handled by the state police, the attorney-general or the commonwealth's attorney, I can't answer for them," Turner said in reply to Damron's charge.

But sources close to the state police investigation let him know, when the indictments were handed down in December, that they were "not totally happy" with the way prosecutors had presented evidence to the grand jury, Turner said. "This was one of the hardest investigations they ever worked in eastern Kentucky. They felt they had hundreds of counts, involving many other individuals (than those actually indicted), that could have resulted in indictments," said Turner, who added that he did not know if Boyd was one of those to whom the investigators were referring. "They felt they had a lot of information that didn't go anywhere."

In typical cases cited by investigators, an individual or firm registering a truck in the clerk's office might have paid a $200 fee and, months later, Boyd would type and sign a phony license receipt indicating they had paid only $50. The case against her was listed as closed on March 18, however "due to a lack of prosecution."

As you can see this case was closed due to a lack of prosecution, NOT A LACK OF EVIDENCE. Shouldn't this case be reopened and the evidence presented to the Grand Jury?

Don't Confuse The Issue

April 22 Is NOT a Wet-Dry election for the county.

NOT a Wet-Dry election for the city.

NOT controlled alcohol sales Vs. bootletting.

DO YOU WANT ALCOHOL SALES IN YOUR NEIGHBORHOOD?

This is a precinct by precinct vote. Only those neighborhoods who vote "wet" will remain "wet" after the election. Those who vote dry will have the greatest possible control of alcohol in their neighborhood - NO ALCOHOL SALES PERMITTED! Each precincts, will determine their own fate.

This will NOT create a bootlegging problem, alcohol will still be available just outside these precincts, therefore not making bootletting profitable.

ONLY YOU CAN PROTECT YOUR NEIGHBORHOOD!

If your precinct votes "wet", and the others vote "dry", your neighborhood could become the alcohol district of the city.

FOR THE SAKE OF YOUR NEIGHBORHOOD –

Justice's Two-Run Homer Lifts PHS Over Rebs, 10-9

Senior Todd Justice connected on a 1-2 pitch and sent it over the center field fence to lead the Prestonsburg Blackcats to a 10-9 come-from-behind victory over the Allen Central Rebels, with a two-run home run in the bottom of the eighth inning.

Tim Watkins started for the Blackcats, and needed relief help from John Clark, who received credit for the win. Kevin Spurlock homered twice for the Rebels.

Mickey Parson was on the mound for the Rebels, and was leading 7-3 going into the bottom of the seventh inning, when the Blackcats scored four runs on three hits and a hit batter. Todd Duff suffered the loss in relief.

Allen Central picked up two runs in the first inning after Duff opened the inning with a double. Spurlock hit a pitch over the left center field fence for a two run homer.

Prestonsburg failed to score in the bottom of the inning. The Rebs struck again in the top of the third. After Parson flew to deep center, Spurlock drew a base on balls, and scored all the way from first base on a double by Kevin Webb. Webb scored on a single by Pete Castle.

Parson shut out the Blackcats the first three innings, but the Cats scored a run in the bottom of the fourth. Justice doubled to right center. Tim Trusty reached on a third baseman's error. Spurlock, playing short for the Rebels, pulled the old "hidden ball" trick and tagged Trusty out at second, but the umpire ruled the pitcher was on the mound, nullifying the out. Nairn sent a fly ball to left that Spurlock went all the way out to catch, and Justice tagged up and scored.

The Rebels scored three more runs in the top of the fifth on four base hits. Parson doubled to center, and Spurlock singled with Parson stopping at third. Webb walked to load the bases, with no one out. Meadows bounced to short to force Parson out at the plate. Castle picked up his second base hit with a single to center, scoring Spurlock. Webb scored on John Martin's single to center. The Rebels lead 7-1 after five innings of play.

Allen Central picked up a run in the top of the sixth on a single by Spurlock, a walk to Bret Meadows, and Castle's third base hit and third RBI.

The Blackcats added two runs in the bottom of the sixth on two hits, one a towering drive over the center field fence by Thomas Nairn. Watkins legged out an infield hit and advanced to second on a throwing error by the shortstop. Stuart Robinson walked and Jason Storey lifted a fly ball to left center to score Watkins from third.

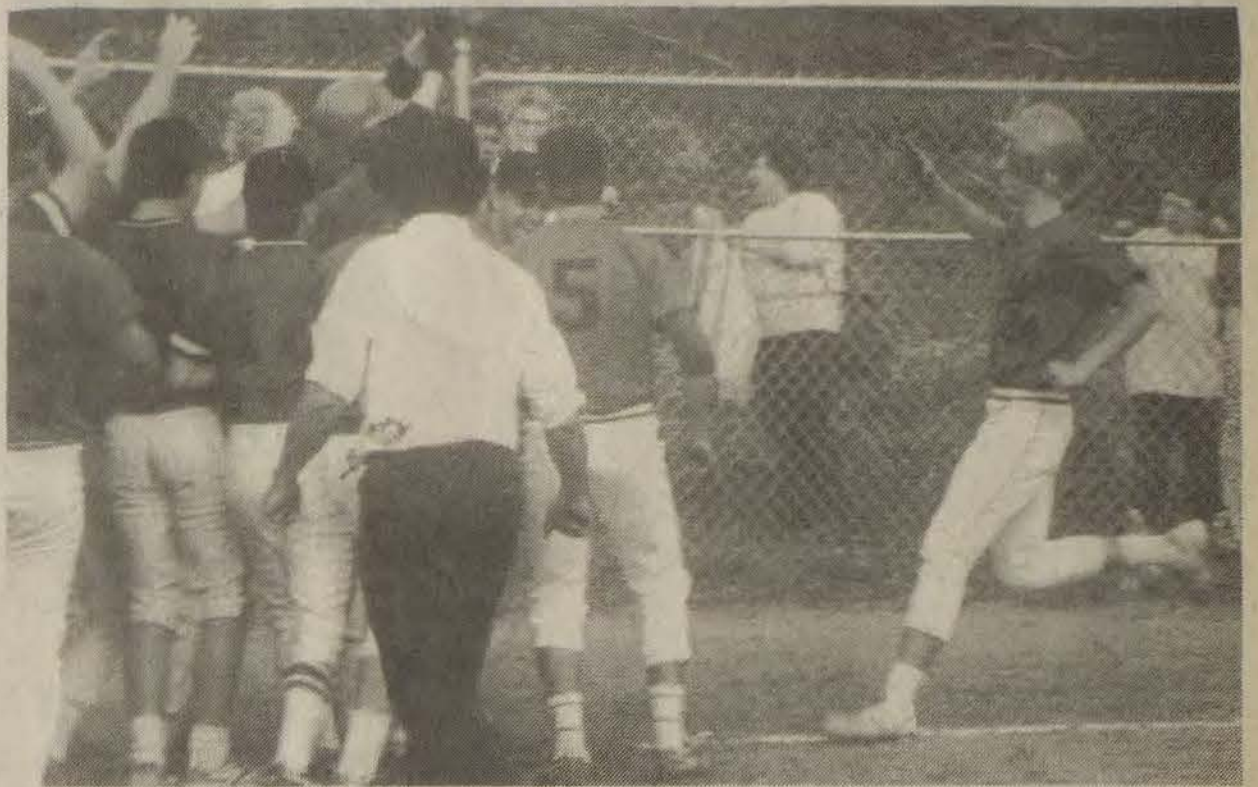

Allen Central held a 7-3 lead going into the bottom of the seventh, and Parson seemed to have things under control. Ray Collins and Chris Slone reached Parson for lead-off doubles.

Justice hit a ground ball that the Rebels' first baseman let get through his legs, allowing Collins to score. Trusty singled to left center, scoring Slone and Justice. Nairn struck out and Watkins was hit by a pitched ball. Robinson grounded to short and forced Watkins at second, and the ball was thrown errant to first, allowing Justice to cross the plate with the tying run. Blackburn lined hard to short to end the inning and to send the game into extra innings.

Spurlock led off the Rebels' eighth with a mammoth drive over the center field fence that hit the trees beyond to give Allen Central an 8-7 lead.

In the bottom of the eighth, Clark grounded to short for the first out. Collins sent a fly ball deep to left that Terry Spurlock made a good play on for the second out. Slone then singled to center. Justice came to the plate and quickly got two strikes on him. Justice hit the next pitch over the fence in center field to bring in Slone and to give the Blackcats a 10-9 come-from-behind victory.

Bobcats Show No Mercy In 15-5 Romp Of Bearcats

Johns Creek, losers of only one game coming into Friday afternoon's game with the Betsy Layne Bobcats, and ranked near the top in 15th Region baseball, paid a visit to Allen Park for a game against the hot-hitting Bobcats recently.

Adam Gearheart took to the mound for Coach Junior Newsome's Bobcats in picking up the win, with relief help from Todd Akers in the bottom of the fifth inning when the Bearcats threatened to extend the game into the full seven, with a 15-5 five inning "mercy rule" win. The mercy rule applies when a team is leading by 10 runs after five innings.

The nullification of Jim Ison's home run in the bottom of the fifth inning kept the game from going the full seven. Ison hit the ball over the center field fence with two men on base and Betsy Layne leading 15-3. As Ison rounded third his teammates came to greet him at home plate. In the excitement of the greetings Ison forgot to go ahead and touch home plate. When he returned to the dugout, the umpire called him out, taking away his run.

The Bobcats scored eight runs on six hits in the bottom of the second. Tommy Hall and Keith Hall each picked up two RBIs apiece in the second on doubles to center. Gearheart and K. Hamilton also knocked in a run in the inning.

Betsy Layne struck for three other runs in the bottom of the third when Chad Hamilton hit a long home run to center field to knock in all three runs. Hamilton had five RBIs in the game.

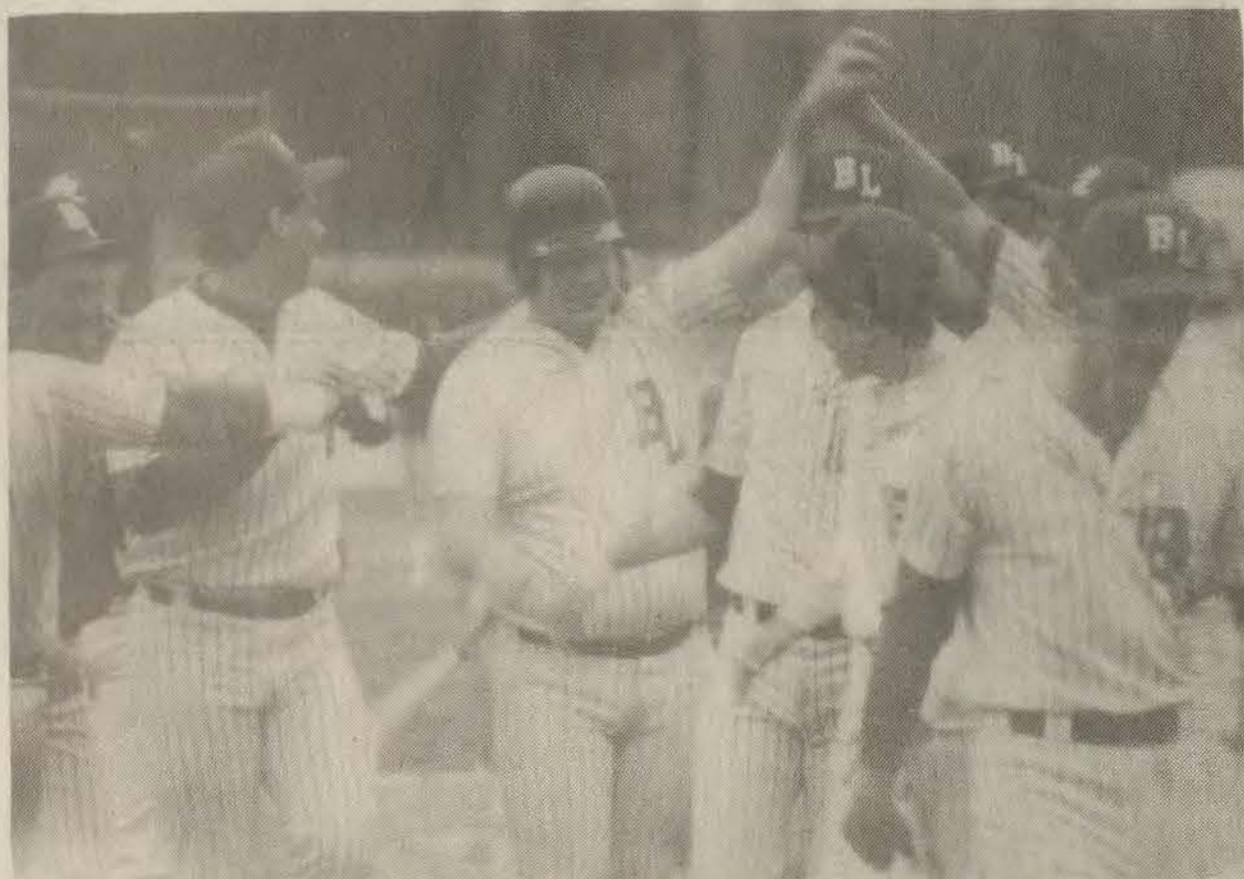

Betsy Layne wasn't through, continuing to batter the Bearcats in scoring five more runs in the bottom of the fourth, to take a 15-1 lead. Bias led off with a double. Barry Hamilton reached on a fielder's choice when, on his ground ball, the pitcher elected to go to third but failed to tag out Bias. Duran Newsome grounded to first, and Tommy Hall reached on an error on the Bearcats' third baseman. K. Hall singled home both Bias and Hamilton. Gearheart's double sent T.

Hall and K. Hall with two more runs, and Gearheart scored when Hamilton singled to left.

Johns Creek began to reach Gearheart when the Bobcats defense fell apart. Ison grounded to third and the ball was thrown away at first. Wood then hit a grounder to third and it also was misplayed. Burchfield singled, scoring Ison. With Wood and Burchfield on first and second, Jim Ison hit a towering drive over the center field fence with what seemed to be a home run, only to have it nullified because he did not touch home plate. Todd Akers came on in relief of Gearheart, and struck out Bishop and Mullins to end the game.

Betsy Layne improves its record to 7-2. The Bobcats will entertain McDowell Thursday at the Allen Park in a 4:30 game, and will travel to Millard Friday.

Keathley & Stegall: Breaking Ground In Floyd County Sports

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Since its inauguration, baseball has nearly always been a male-dominated game. Men have always been the ones performing in the Major Leagues. Men have been the Major League umpires, although in recent years women have begun to make a mark in Minor League officiating. Men have dominated the manager's position in the major leagues, colleges and — until this year — high school baseball as well.

This year, both Wheelwright and McDowell high schools posted vacant head coaching positions, and no one wanted to fill them — no man, that is.

Cassandra Keathley, who just finished her first year as the head mentor of the Lady Daredevils basketball team at McDowell, thought she was going to get to enjoy a break from coaching this summer. But when no male coach wanted the baseball coaching job, the school turned to Keathley.

"Cassandra was our obvious choice for the job," principal Robert Hall says. "She does a great job, and is doing a great job for us. She is a very enthusiastic person. The boys are responding to her real well, and she has the players' respect."

"I hadn't really thought about it — coaching baseball, that is," Keathley says. "I've always like baseball and I've always been a big Reds fan."

Keathley has been playing softball for her church team in Pikeville. If the baseball program was to survive, Keathley — who is extremely popular at the school — was the team's last hope.

"The boys approached me about taking the job," she relates. "I said no at first, and got to thinking about what they said. If I didn't take it there would be no baseball team at McDowell. I was their last hope. I didn't want the school to not have a baseball team, so I changed my mind and took the job."

How have the players responded to her coaching?

"The players have responded great. They have shown that they respect me," Keathley says. "We have no discipline problems."

Albert Lawson of Drift has been helping Keathley with her team. "It's funny how I meet Albert," Keathley relates. "He brought a baseball to me and wanted me to autograph it for him. He told me I had a lot of guts."

"I think she is a great person, and a good baseball coach," Lawson says. "She's my hero."

"I listen to the boys a lot; they have a knowledge of the game, and have some good suggestions," Keathley said. "We need pitching worse than anything. Mike McQuate is an excellent baseball player. Alice Lloyd and Georgetown are interested in him."

"Albert got me to go to the Doyle Brothers baseball clinic for coaches at Pikeville," Keathley explained, "they introduced me and the instructor said he knew it was a coming — women coaching baseball. They treated me real well, and the clinic helped me a lot."

Keathley says she is having fun and really enjoys coaching boys baseball. Like McDowell, the Wheelwright High School's baseball team was also without a coach and no one showed an interest in the position. Principal Lonnie Slone then turned to Billie Jo Stegall for help.

"She loves the game of baseball," Slone says. "We could not have made a better choice than Billie Jo. The kids really appreciate her, and she has already done a good job for us."

Stegall has played and coached softball for 13 years, and in talking with her, her love for the game is evident.

"The coaching position was offered to all other coaches here at Wheelwright with any athletic interest, and they all declined," Stegall explains, "and I really don't know why."

"Interest in baseball began to decline," she went on to explain. "Mr. Slone offered me the job with the stipulation, 'If not you, B.J., then there will be no baseball here at the high school.'"

"I love softball, as a player and a coach, so I accepted this challenge feeling that working with boys instead of girls would be the biggest challenge," Stegall says. "This wasn't a challenge at all, compared to being accepted as a female coach in what is considered a male's sport. So far, my head is above water."

"We had 54 boys come out for the team, and that's outrageous. The practices and rules we laid down eliminated about half of them."

A new coach in a new sport has to have a place to play games. Stegall drove to Bracket Field, and found it in dire need of repair.

"It was then I found the Trojans to be 'winners' in my book during our field clean up day. Together we, along with the parents, friends, neighbors and local organizations, cut brush piles, mowed the grass, removed garbage, painted, built dugouts, installed backstop screening, installed bleachers, painted spirit signs, reopened the concession stand, ordered a scoreboard, and caught poison ivy," Stegall noted wryly.

A new sense of togetherness and closeness, as well as an excitement for baseball, developed between the coach, players and fans. The team got new uniforms, new equipment, new attitudes, and many new faces cheering the Trojans on this season.

"Even though we have yet to collect our first victory (which they have done since this interview, with a win over McDowell) I am very, very proud of these young gentlemen — they are winners," Stegall proudly stated.

"Along with my assistant coach, Keith Smallwood, we would love to be like the storybook team as was the 'Hickory' team in the movie 'Hoosiers' — country boys go all the way," she said.

PHS Women's Tennis Team Loses

The Prestonsburg High School women's tennis team lost for the second time this year to Morgan County Monday afternoon, 5-1, in six matches. The Prestonsburg squad is now 4-2 on the season.

Threat to Steal

Keith Hall of Betsy Layne gets a big lead as the first baseman tries to hold him on in baseball action against the Bearcats of Johns Creek. Betsy Layne won 15-5 in a five inning "mercy rule" game.

McDowell, Wheelwright Split Doubleheader Wins

McDowell and Wheelwright got together for a doubleheader of hardball last week at the Wheelwright Field. The Trojans took the first game 12-9, with McDowell coming back in the nightcap to win 11-10.

Stacy Johnson picked up the first game win for the Trojans while striking out five. Johnson allowed seven hits. Hall was on the mound for McDowell in the opening game, scattering four hits and striking out five.

The Daredevils picked up two runs in the first inning on a base hit by Kidd, and Martin got on due to an error by Hood. Mike McQuate doubled, sending Kidd and Martin home for a 2-0 Daredevil lead.

Wheelwright tied the score with two in the bottom of the inning. Bobby Hood led off with a double to right center, and Isaac walked. After moving to third base, Hood scored on a sacrifice fly by Johnson. Thornsby flew out to left and Isaac scored on the sacrifice fly.

McDowell loaded the bases on the Trojans in the second inning, but was unable to push across a run.

Wheelwright really got on the scoreboard with nine runs in the bottom of the second inning, to take a 11-2 lead. Four straight walks forced in one run, leaving the bases loaded. Hood drove in two runs with a single to center. Isaac got a base hit to bring in Hall and Jackson. Johnson, Thornsby, and McCoy drew bases on balls to walk in two more runs.

McDowell came back in its half of the third inning. After two were out, Stumbo singled. Hall and Kidd walked to load the bases for McDowell. Johnson then walked Martin and McQuate to force in two runs. Shannon lined a base hit to right center to score Kidd and Martin. McQuate scored on a wild pitch.

The Trojans got an insurance run in the bottom of the fourth on a base hit by McCoy and a triple Chad Hall, to make it 12-7.

McDowell pushed across two runs in the top of the seventh to make it 12-9. Johnson walked five consecutive batters to force in the two runs.

Wheelwright won the game 12-9 in picking up its first win of the season.

In the second game, McDowell scored three runs in the first inning to go up 3-0. Martin doubled and scored on McQuate's base hit, who stole second and third. Shannon stole second. Crisp grounded out to short, and the first baseman threw the ball away trying to get McQuate at the plate. Shannon came in on two passed balls.

Wheelwright tied the game in the first, scoring three runs on two walks and two errors.

The Trojans went ahead, 5-3, on two runs in the bottom of the second. Justice singled and Dawson followed with a base hit to right. Hood hit a triple to score both runners.

McDowell exploded for eight runs in the top of the third. Four walks and singles by Rose and Blevins brought home the runs, giving the Daredevils a 11-5 lead.

Wheelwright scored five runs in the bottom of the fourth inning, but came up short in losing to McDowell in the nightcap, 11-10.

MHS Lady Daredevils Sweep Past Feds Creek

Coach Meredith Slone's McDowell Lady Daredevils traveled to Feds Creek last week for a softball doubleheader. Home runs by Kathy McQuate, Gloria Mullins, and Priscilla Crawford led McDowell to a 19-0 first game victory, and the Lady Daredevils took the abbreviated second game, 15-0, to sweep the twin bill from the Lady Vikings.

McDowell sent nine batters to the plate in the first inning of the first game, scoring six runs. Mullins singled after Susan Page popped out to the catcher. Crawford followed with a base hit and both runners scored on a double by Lori Bryant. McQuate singled to drive in Bryant. Judy Fannin walked and Rachael Henry singled to bring in both McQuate and Fannin. Tish Slone struck out, but Miller singled to score Henry with the sixth run. Cathy Hall grounded to short to end the inning.

Slone was on the mound for the Lady Daredevils, and retired the Lady Vikings in order in the bottom of the first inning.

Page opened the McDowell second with a walk, and Mullins singled to left. Crawford singled to drive in both Page and Mullins for two runs, to give McDowell an 8-0 lead.

In Feds Creek's half of the inning, Slone again retired the first three batters, making six consecutive fans.

The Lady Daredevils struck for seven more runs in the top of the third inning, the big blows coming on home runs by Mullins and McQuate. Miller, Hall, and Page were on base in front of Mullins' homerun. Crawford and Bryant were on base as McQuate unloaded a three-run shot in the inning. At the middle of the third inning McDowell led 15-0.

Sally Paulette and Brenda Short reached base in the bottom of the third for the Lady Vikings, snapping Slone's streak. Feds Creek failed to score in the inning.

McDowell score its final two runs in the top of the fourth on a home run by Crawford with Mullins on base, to win 17-0 in the first game.

In the abbreviated second game, called because of darkness, McDowell took the two inning game, 15-0. The Lady Daredevils scored 13 runs in the second inning after scoring two in the first. Feds Creek could mount no threat in losing the second game.

The Lady Daredevils will be at home Friday, April 21 at the Minnie Park to host Virgie in a 5 p.m. game.

Bobcats Roll Past Prestonsburg, 9-3

by Ed Taylor, Sports Editor

Sophomore Keith Hall scattered five hits, and Duran Newsome knocked in three runs with a first-inning homer as the Betsy Layne Bobcats ran their record to 5-1 with a 9-3 victory over the Prestonsburg Blackcats.

Betsy Layne scored in the first inning when Chad Bias reached safely on an error on the second baseman; Barry Hamilton walked, and Duran Newsome drove a pitch over the fence for a home run and picked up three RBIs.

In the fourth inning, Adam Gearheart grounded out short to first, Hamilton singled to left, and Newsome followed with a base hit to center. J. Newsome then doubled to left center to score Hamilton, and Newsome scored on a single by Bias to give the Bobcats a 5-0 lead.

Prestonsburg picked up a run in the bottom of the fourth, after Chris Slone struck out, and Watkins drove a Hall fast ball over the fence for a home run.

Betsy Layne came back with two more in the top of the fifth. Hall singled to right and K. Hall drew a base on balls. Gearheart doubled, scoring both runners and giving Betsy Layne a 7-1 lead.

Prestonsburg mounted a threat in the bottom of the sixth inning. Slone flew to right, Watkins reached safely on a first baseman error and Trusty walked on four pitches. Todd Justice struck out. Thomas Nairn singled to center to score Watkins and Trusty after the ball was mishandled in the outfield. Stuart Robinson was hit by the pitch, but Hamilton struck out to end the inning.

The Bobcats struck for two more runs in the top of the seventh. Gearheart and Hamilton opened the seventh with base hits. Newsome and Page struck out, then Bias picked up both runners with a single to center to give Betsy a 9-3 lead.

Hall retired the Blackcats in the bottom of the inning to preserve the Bobcats fifth victory of the hardball season.

Prestonsburg Can Say The Same

Alcohol fulfills some of economic promises

Independent News Writer

ASHLAND - Ask officials who favor legal liquor in Ashland if they think it has lived up to its economic promise and the first thing they say is, Ashland wouldn't have the Quality Inn without it."

Ask those who don't think legalizing the sale of alcohol has brought bounty and they say, "Where are the restaurants?"

Although the debate over if and how much Ashland has benefited economically after more than seven years of legal liquor sales is more wide-ranging, the presence of a major hotel and the fact that the number of restaurants in Ashland hasn't blossomed because of alcohol buttress each side's arguments in the discussion.

But before the arguments are introduced, here are some numbers.

- Since the city first began recording monthly sales figures in December 1981, just over $67 million has been spent on alcohol in Ashland through 1988.

- Although sales are generally declining, an average of nearly $9.5 million is spent on alcohol each year in Ashland.

- According to those sales figures, the city should have collected just over $2 million in revenue from the 3 percent tax on the gross sales of alcohol through the end of 1988.

- Although most of the money goes back into the cost of overseeing the sales, City Clerk and Alcohol Beverage Control Administrator Bob Johnson said the city has made money from the tax.

- The liquor industry in Ashland has created 277 new jobs, added $2.2 million in annual payroll, and created $14.6 million in construction, according to a survey completed in January by Ray Graeves, president of the Chamber of Commerce of Boyd and Greenup Counties, which worked to legalize the sale of alcohol in Ashland.

Graeves said alcohol has lived up to its promise. The 4-year-old Quality Inn attracts travelers and business people who would otherwise stay in Huntington, W. Va., or across the Ohio River at the Ramada Inn in South Point, Ohio.

The 157-room, 10 story has contributed millions of dollars to the local economy, according to Graeves, and serves as the city's centerpiece.

Legal alcohol has made Ashland a destination not only for travelers but to the city's residents as well, Graeves said.

"I'd heard it said a few years back that at five o'clock you could shoot a cannon down Winchester Avenue and not strike anything," he said.

"Now there is traffic. There are people going out to eat at some of the restaurants and perhaps not going to Huntington or over to Ohio like they had in the past."

But Harold Cathey, pastor at Unity Baptist Church in Ashland and the leader of the forces who opposed legal sales, points to the erosion of downtown Ashland and the fact that there aren't any more sit-down family-style restaurants in Ashland now that you can have a drink with your meal.

"There has been absolutely no economic boost such as we (were) promised," he said.

Officials acknowledge the city has more liquor vendors than it can support.

Two of the 11 stores initially licensed to sell packaged liquor have closed, and Johnson says some that remain are "hanging on by their nails."

He estimates that the city can support six package stores. Half of the city's 16 available by-the-drink licenses also remain unused. One of the eight that are in use is in dispute, leaving only seven restaurants operating that serve alcohol.

Holders of by-the-drink licenses must generate at least half their revenue from food sales, according to the law allowing legal sales of liquor in Ashland passed by the 1980 Kentucky General Assembly.

The law, tailored to get liquor legalized in Ashland, allowed individual precincts in second-class cities to decide whether to allow the sale of alcohol. Ashland was the only one of nine second-class cities at the time that did now allow legal liquor sales.

Four precincts in Ashland voted to approve liquor sales. Each precinct is allowed three package liquor licenses and four by-the-drink licenses.

In addition, seven private clubs are licensed to sell liquor in Ashland under the law.

Some supporters acknowledge that perhaps the economic impact of the introduction of legal liquor sales has been neither as swift nor as dramatic as might have been expected, particularly in the restaurant business.

But they maintain that the overall effect has been positive and legal alcohol will continue to enhance the city.

"I don't think anybody ever perceived that it was going to happen overnight," said Ray McClure, former owner of the now-defunct McClure's Restaurant and a leader of the move to legalize alcohol.

"We didn't believe that just because of liquor sales that this whole community was going to explode overnight. It's just a long process.

Webb's Three Hits Power Rebs To Victory

by Ed Taylor, Sports Editor

Kevin Webb hammered out three hits, including two doubles, and Randy Watkins allowed the Trojans just five hits while striking out eight batters, to lift the Allen Central Rebels to a 13-6 baseball victory over Wheelwright last week at Allen Park.

The Trojans picked up a first-inning run to take a 1-0 lead as Todd Jackson led off with a single to left and stole second. Kevin Isaac drew a base on balls. Compton hit a grounder to short and reached first on a fielders choice. Jackson scored when Thornsby grounded out to third.

The Rebels came back in the bottom of the inning to score two unearned runs. Todd Duffled off with a single to center and immediately stole second and reached third on a wild pitch. Mickey Parson reached first safely on an error when the first baseman was unable to handle a throw from third. Duff attempted to score from third and was thrown out at the plate. Parson stole second and scored when Kevin Spurlock lined a single to left, and went on to second on an error on the left fielder. Webb then doubled to knock in Spurlock with the Rebels' second run.

Watkins struck out the side in the Trojans' second. Allen Central scored in the bottom of the inning after Pete Castle walked and Chris Kidd singled to left. Castle and Kidd pulled a double steal, and Castle came home on a grounder to first by B.J. Aldrich. The Rebels led 3-1 after the second inning.

Wheelwright tallied a run in the third when Jackson singled to left. Watkins was called for a balk, moving Jackson to second. Jackson moved to third on a wild pitch, and scored on a passed ball. Isaac reached on an third baseman error. He stole second, and moved up to third on a wild pitch. Compton hit a towering drive to center, where Castle caught up with it and Isaac tagged up at third, only to be thrown out at home plate on a perfect throw from Castle.

Allen Central took a 7-2 lead by picking up four runs in the bottom of the third, two unearned. Spurlock reach on a second baseman's error. After the ball got past the catcher, Spurlock went from first to third. Webb doubled to center, scoring Spurlock. Webb scored from second on a ground ball by Bret Meadows that got under the shortstop's glove. Meadows came around to score on a base hit by Chris Kidd. Watkins, helping his own cause, singled to bring in

B.J. Aldrich, who reached base on a first baseman's error.

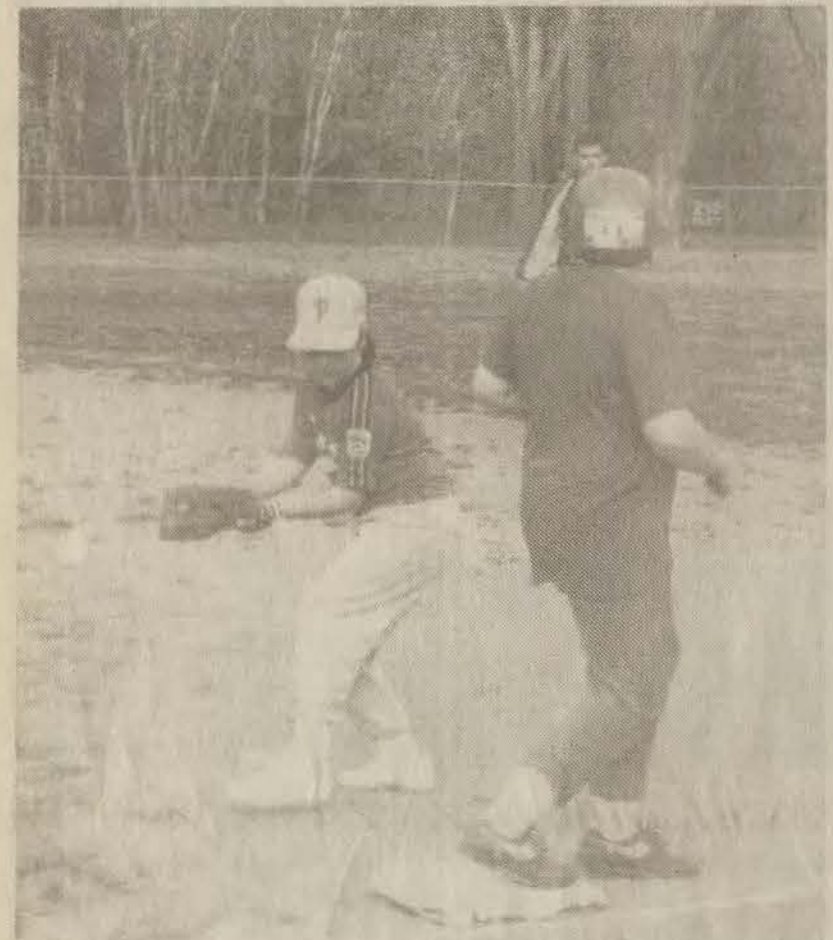

The Trojans scored one in the top of the fourth when Chad Hallsingled, stole third and scored on a sacrifice fly by Vic Cotton.

Parson opened the Rebels' fourth with a triple to right and came home on a pass ball. Spurlock walked and stole second. Webb grounded to first to move Spurlock to third. Castle lifted a fly ball to deep center to score Spurlock and give Allen Central a 9-2 lead.

Wheelwright loaded the bases in the top of the fifth on base hits by Isaac and Compton an walk to Thornsby. Watkins got McCoy to fly out to left. Johnson hit a grounder to short to force Isaac at home. Hall then struck out to end the threat with no runs crossing the plate.

Allen Central put the game away with four runs in the bottom of the fifth, to claim a 13-6 victory over the Trojans.

Walk-A-Thon To Benefit Highlands Breast Center

Coal trucks often sport the slogan, "keep on trucking." Interpretation: keep on going in spite of the perils, weather, etc.

Two men from the Highlands Regional Medical Center staff, Creed Gilliam and Bill Tom Grothers, will use the same slogan come Saturday morning as they endeavor to walk 25 miles from Prestonsburg to Paintsville to help raise money for the Highlands Regional Breast Center.

"Last year we walked from Prestonsburg to Pikeville," Gilliam says. "We raised $1,250, mainly from the hospital employees, for the center. It took us eight hours and 10 minutes to walk it. We had cars following us and they had Gatorade and cookies for and told us just 'keep on trucking.'"

"This year we have gone to the businesses to sponsor us and have raised more money."

Gilliam and Grothers will leave Saturday morning at 6 a.m. from Ed Walters in Prestonsburg, and will take old U.S. 23 enroute to Paintsville, where they will go to Super America and get their legs unwound before the journey back.

Anyone who wishes to contribute to the center may do so by sending contributions to Highlands Regional Hospital Breast Center, U.S. 23 North, Prestonsburg, KY 41635.

Despite Rain, Little League Tryouts Successful

The rain fell Friday night and early Saturday morning, but that didn't dampen the enthusiasm of the Prestonsburg Little Leaguers who came to sign up to play baseball in the Prestonsburg Little League program.

"We've had around 300 kids to sign up so far," said Dick Jarvis, a member of the Prestonsburg Little League board. The league will consist of eight Little League, six Farm League, six Senior League, and four Tee Ball teams.

All teams will get together on Saturday, April 29, at Archer Park for opening day. They will officially start their schedule on May 1, according to Jarvis.

After "sign up," each new player was given a chance to "try out," and show what they could do on the field. Ned Pillersdorf coordinated the try outs, as two players were picked to pass the baseball. Coaches in the league observed each player and rated them for the draft to follow. Younger players that need more training will be assigned to a Farm League team.

Floyd County American Legion Coaches

Left to right, Eugene Blackburn, Jim Sparks and Estill Collins look over the high school players that came out to sign up for the American Legion baseball team. The team will play 40 games this year and will begin play May 31.

Tim Watkins was on the mound for the Prestonsburg Blackcats in high school baseball play last week at Archer Park. Betsy Layne took a 9-3 victory over Prestonsburg.

Miller's Three-Run Homer Leads Paintsville Over Rebs

by Ed Taylor,
Sports Editor

Allen Central baseball coach Donnie Daniels and his Rebels visited the Paintsville Tigers, rated the number one team in the 15th Region, last week, but came away with a slim loss.

The Tigers scored four runs in the bottom of the first inning — three on a three-run homer by Al Miller — to pull out a 9-8 victory over the Rebels. Miller came in relief for Fairchild in picking up the win for the Tigers. Fairchild needed help in the seventh inning as Allen Central scored three runs in a comeback attempt.

Allen Central picked up two first inning runs after Mickey Parson walked and stole second, then moved to third on a grounder by Kevin Spurlock to short. Kevin Webb drew a base on balls and stole second. Parson and Webb both scored on a single by Bret Meadows.

Holbrook got a base hit leading off the Tigers, and stole second and third.

Howard walked and Smith lined a single to center to score Holbrook. Miller then delivered a Webb fast ball over the fence for a three-run home run to give the Tigers a 4-2 lead.

Paintsville scored another run in the bottom of the second without a base hit. Holbrook flew to center and Rice walked and stole second, was wild pitched to third and scored on a pass ball.

The Rebels countered with three runs in the third. Todd Duff walked leading off the Rebels third inning. Parson singled, and both runners scored on a triple by Webb. Webb scored on a base hit by Chris Kidd to tie the score at 5-5.

Williams reached on a Rebel error to left field and scored on Holbrook's home run. Rice and Howard both walked and both scored on Smith's base hit to right, to give Paintsville a 9-5 lead.

Allen Central went down in the top of the fourth. Paintsville picked up three more runs in the bottom of the inning. Blankenship flew to left and Eldridge walked and scored on Holbrook's double. Rice doubled, scoring Holbrook, and then Howard tripled to center to bring Rice in with the third run of the inning to make the score 12-5.

Allen Central mounted a comeback in the seventh inning after Webb struck out. Meadows and Joey Gray drew one-out walks. Pete Castle flew to center. Kidd delivered his third hit of the game with a single to center, scoring Meadows and Gray. B.J. Aldrich walked and Duff singled home Kidd. Parson got a base hit, but

Sign Up Day

Last Saturday over 300 little leaguers showed up to sign up for baseball in the Prestonsburg Little League program. The weather was rainy and cool, but the spirits were high.

Baseball Moms

The stands were crowded with mothers who came to see their sons or daughters play baseball, as the Harold-Allen-Prater Little League opened its season last week. Other leagues will begin play May 1.

Benefit Basketball Game Planned

"It's the family feud of basketball."

That's how Cheryl Shepherd sums up the upcoming games between the Little Chicks and Mother Hens in game one, and the Young Pups against the Old Dogs in game two.

The basketball contests will be played at the Clark Elementary gym on Saturday, April 22 beginning at 6 p.m. The proceeds from the event will go to the Highland Avenue Free Will Baptist youth group. The Little Chicks and Young Pups are members of the youth group.

The real action gets started in the first game when the Little Chicks will do battle against the Mother Hens. The Mother Hens are members of the church's auxiliary, Sunday School teachers, and deacon's wives. Among those playing for the Hens will be Twinkle Toes (Jewel) Tussey, Mighty Myrtle (Chaffins), Sweet Sue (Gray), and Bouncing Bert (Roberta Dixon).

The men's game will conclude the evening's events, with the Young Pups trying to out maneuver the Old Dogs. The Old Dogs include the deacons, trustees, ministers, and male Sunday School teachers. Joey Tussey, who will be playing for the Old Dogs says, "The men are so good they will need no coach."

A basketball game is not complete without cheerleaders, and this one is no exception. Annie Hopson, Erma Lee Craft, and Rina Mae Wallen will toss aside their Ben Gay and cheer their teams to victory, said Tussey. The ladies will be in cheerleading uniforms and will be using pom-poms in their routines. According to Shepherd, the ladies may attempt a few "geriatric gymnastics, cartwheels, and flip flops."

Mike Rodebaugh will officiate. Coaching for the young people will be John "Awesome" Austin, and will be assisted by Shepherd.

"The razzing is all in fun," Shepherd says of signs that have been placed around town — signs such as "dunk that deacon," or "plaster the pastor."

Tickets for the event may be purchased at the door or from any member of the youth group. Tickets are $1 for adults, and 50 cents for children. The games will be videotaped and will be sold for $7.50 each. Refreshments will also be sold at the games.

McDowell Falls To Dorton

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Dorton Wildcats scored all their runs in the first four innings in defeating the McDowell Daredevils 7-4 in a baseball match up last week.

Jim Beverly allowed the Daredevils only five hits in going the distance for the Wildcats. Larry Bryant and Bryan Kidd hit home runs for the Daredevils in the losing cause. Jamie Lawson was on the mound for McDowell and gave up only four hits, but was plagued by walks and errors.

Wright reached first on a shortstop error and Beverly singled to right scoring Wright who had stolen second. Flimdan flew out to center and

D. Wright lifted a fly ball to left that was misplayed by the left fielder allowing Beverly to score. Dorton led 2-1 after one inning.

Beverly sat down the Daredevils in order in the second inning. Dorton, in the bottom of the second, picked up two runs on a walk to D. Rose and a base hit to Johnson that scored Rose from second base. D. Johnson struck out. C. Wright flew to center, and Beverly reached on a first baseman's error allowing Johnson to score. Flimdan flew to left to end the inning.

Beverly had an easy time of it in the McDowell third. Kidd pop out to pitcher, Martin reached on a error on the center fielder, but McQuate and Shannon flew out to end the inning.

Dorton scored one run in the bottom of the third, on three walks and an error.

Beverly struck out the side in the McDowell fourth, as Dorton added two runs in the bottom of the inning. Beverly walked, and Flimdan doubled to center scoring Beverly. A third baseman's error allowed Flimdan to score from second base. Dorton led 7-1 after four.

McDowell made a comeback attempt in the seventh inning. Rose flew out to left to start off the inning. Stumbo singled to center, and Little reached safely on an error. Kidd struck out and Bryant unloaded a home run to score Rose and Stumbo, to cut the lead to 7-4. McQuate doubled and Shannon reach on a shortstop's error to keep the inning going for the Daredevils. Beverly then struck out Crisp to end the game and hold on to a 7-4 victory.

McDowell is now 1-3 for the year. They will play Betsy Layne Thursday afternoon at 4:30 at the Allen Park.

What Do You Think?

The two umpires in the game between Allen Central and Prestonsburg Monday afternoon at Archer Park, discuss the out call on second base of Tim Trusty. Kevin Spurlock hid the ball and tagged Trusty out, but the umpires reversed the call and called Trusty safe.

American Legion Practices To Begin

Eugene Blackburn, Estill Collins and Jim Sparks, coaches for the Floyd County American Legion baseball team, held tryouts over the past weekend for those who were interested in playing baseball on the American Legion team.

"We had about 17 boys come out," Collins says. "We were really pleased — we just about got our team filled for the coming season."

The American Legion team will begin play May 31. They will play approximately 40 games during June and July. The team is still looking for a bus to purchase to travel in this summer.

"We held a practice Sunday evening, and the players sure looked good," Collins stated. "We were surprised they were doing as good as they were. All the coaches are excited about our team, and the schedule we are going to play. We are looking forward to a good year."

According to Collins, four or five players may receive scholarships from different colleges.

The team is in need of donations from business places and individuals. They will be having a road block on April 29 at the red light in Prestonsburg, at the light at the intersection of US 23 and the Mountain Parkway, and in Allen.

The team expects to begin practice Saturday.

Extra Innings

By Ed Taylor

by Ed Taylor, Sports Editor

Memories of the past are many things to many people; ask the residents of Martin which structure they miss seeing, and they will tell you "the old Martin gym" without any hesitation.

The Martin gym held many memories for many people, but the creation of those memories ended in flames in 1968.

The old Drift ball park; the memories many have of either playing or watching baseball there, and the outstanding players performed there.

The bleachers had an overhead roof, a concession stand, lights and a big crowd every game. The park played host to some great games after its construction in 1948. It was frequently used by American Legion, independent, high school, Babe Ruth, and Little League teams. It was big a thrill to sit in the seats one night and watch Bill White, former first baseman for the St. Louis Cardinals, belt a home run over the right center field fence. White played for the Fort Knox post team at that time.

Great high school baseball was played at the old Drift park. Pete Grigsby Jr., who was then coach at McDowell High School, recalls one game:

"We were playing Martin in the finals of the 1968 District Tournament at the Drift park. The game went 19 innings. We won the game when Barry Hall stole home in the bottom of the 19th inning, and we won the game 2-1. Mike Reitz was pitching and Mickey Newsome was the batter and the count was no balls and two strikes on him with two out. It was getting late so we thought we had better try and win it some way," Grigsby recalls.

The district tournament was always held at Drift. It was the ideal place to play baseball. One of the great players to play at the park was Jimmy Goines. He eventually signed with the Reds," Grigsby says.

The old Drift ball park was also the host of the many games played in the old Elkhorn Baseball League, a semi-pro league that showcased many a great hardball player. The league had teams from Elkhorn City, Wheelwright, Drift and other surrounding cities.

The mining companies back in the early '50's always boasted about who had the best workers, and it finally got down to bragging rights on who had the best baseball players. The mining companies went out and hired people to come and work for them and paid them to play baseball as well. The Elkhorn Baseball league became a "Class D" semi-pro league.

Today there are no more cries of "batter up," "play ball," or the cheering of fans for their favorite team, no more selling of hot dogs and soft drinks. There stands only a piece of a scoreboard standing, weeds have overtaken the playing field, and the bleachers are gone. Sometimes no one thinks of preserving a little part of the past, such as the old Drift ball park. Fire, rain and floods never destroyed it, although man has through neglect.

With the need of a baseball field in the Left Beaver area for the McDowell High School baseball team, which has no place to play its home games, let alone practice, it would be a welcome sight to see the old park being used again.

"We tried for three years to have the Drift ball park put back in shape so it could be used again," says Albert Lawson, an avid baseball fan. "We thought we had it worked out, but things just fell through. We really need a place for our kids up Left Beaver to play baseball, and the old Drift ball park is an ideal place."

No cheers, no excitement, no fans, no more ball games — only weeds as spectators in a place that once was a primary gathering place in Floyd County.

THE COW CREEK VOLUNTEER FIRE DEPARTMENT

Will hold their annual road block Saturday, June 3, at the Lancer four-way stop, mouth of Cow Creek, and at the Emma bridge.

My name is JAMES C. REYNOLDS, most people simply call me "Bub". I was born and reared in Floyd County, on Left Beaver Creek, and I have lived there all my life."

I am the son of Mirtie Newsome Reynolds and the late Effort Reynolds. I am married to Sandra Osborne Reynolds, the daughter of Gertrude and the late Bee Osborne. I have two sisters, Faye Reynolds and Freda Hayes, and one brother, the late Bill Reynolds. I have one daughter, Lesa who is a sophomore at Prestonsburg Community College.

I am a candidate for magistrate and like all candidates, I would appreciate your support. However, unlike the others, I have a plan for progress in our district that has developed by my many hours of visiting with you in your home to find out what you think the problems are and what priorities you think should be set by our Fiscal Court.

During the next five weeks, I will outline these solid, progressive plans for you so that you can see before the election, what I will be working for as your representative on the Floyd County Fiscal Court. I would appreciate your consideration and your support and I invite you to compare the other candidates and their views.

Every four years, the people of District 3 are bombarded with dozens of candidates for magistrate who promise everything from blacktop to black lung benefits if they can only be elected. Isn't it time someone outlined for the people "exactly" what a magistrate can and cannot do and speak in plain, understandable language with programs that will work and will make a better quality of life for our people? That time is now!!!

JAMES C. "BUB" REYNOLDS—A different kind of magisterial candidate. As a lifelong resident of our area, Bub has a deep appreciation of our past. As a forward thinking, progressive man, Bub has a plan for our future. An appreciation of the past, a vision of the future—that's Bub Reynolds and that's exactly what we need on the Floyd County Fiscal Court.

GARBAGE....We must look at creative ways to dispose of our garbage. Did you know that for every 10,000 pounds of garbage that we re-cycle into useful items, 36 jobs are created? Think about that. Re-cycling is being done and it works: What we must do is make it work for us. A different approach to an age old problem but one that works and makes sense.

Spring: The Best Of Times, Worst Of Times For Anglers

Spring can be the best or times — or the worst of times — for a bass angler.

The best of times occur when the fish are biting spinnerbaits in shallow water and nothing can go wrong. The worst of times is when the weather turns sour, the fish become finicky and nothing can be done right.

"The thing to remember about spring bass fishing," explains top pro Jerry Rhyne of the Johnson Outboards Pro Staff, "is that the fish are beginning to move shallow. They're becoming more active and aggressive."

"Even when the weather turns really bad, the bass aren't affected nearly as much this time of year.

"The worst that happens," says Rhyne, "is a late cold front that puts a sudden chill on the water. Even this, however, does not cause bass to become inactive. All it does is slow them down."

"I like to fish a jerk bait under these conditions," says Rhyne. "This is one of those minnow type lures that float at rest but dive when you retrieve them quickly or snap your rod tip. Instead of fishing these lures on the surface, I fish them one to two feet below the surface, and I try to keep the lure dancing in the same place as long as possible."

"I use a six foot spinning rod with a light tip, and I cast parallel to the shoreline in three to five feet of water. I make a long pull back with the rod to make the lure dive, then I just twitch or jerk the rod to keep lure darting around in that same spot."

Rains are common in the spring, and while many anglers groan at the sight of a soggy sky, Rhyne actually enjoys fishing in the rain.

"Because spring rain water is usually warmer than lake water, bass often get just five or six inches below the surface," says the Johnson Pro. "I like to fish a floating plastic worm, swimming it slowly around any type of floating debris, even a wad of leaves or pine needles."

"Water depth has no effect on the fish under these conditions. You can fish the back of a cove or pocket where the depth may be 20 feet, but the bass will be just under the surface. After a heavy spring rain, you can check the water temperature, and it may be 10 or 12 degrees warmer in the top six inches."

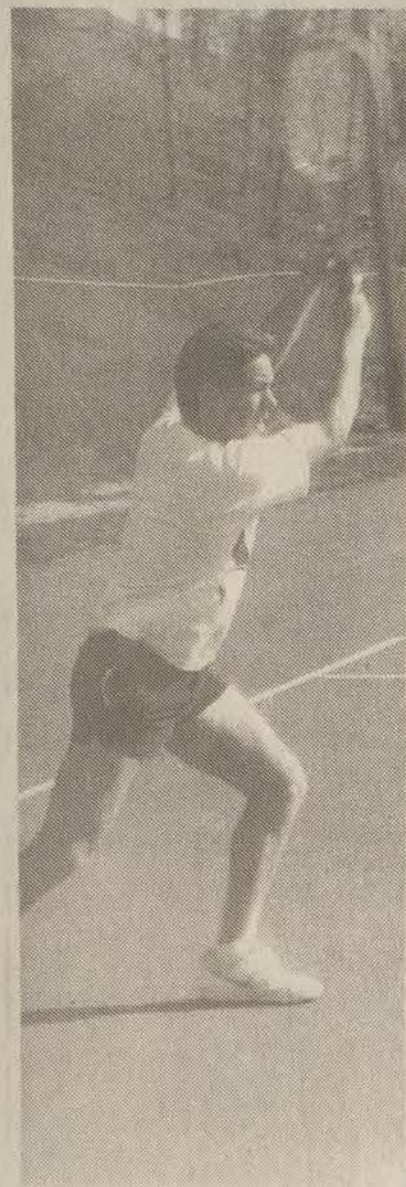

Rains often bring mud, but again Rhyne has a solution. He advises anglers to try to fish under the mud.

"In the spring, the warmer muddy water will separate and stay near the surface," the Johnson pro explains. "You can fish a crankbait that dives to four or five feet and often catch bass because the water at that depth will be clear. Use a slow, stop and go retrieve, and parallel the bank with your casts."

Still another weather hex that plagues anglers this time of year is wind.

"If you can, fish windy banks," says Rhyne. "Bait gets blown against the shorelines, and bass follow. Use a crankbait or spinnerbait, and cast toward the shore at about a 45 degree angle."

"If you catch one fish, work the area thoroughly because you'll nearly always find more bass nearby."

Score for Atkins

Mike Atkins scores on this return in a tennis match last week against Leslie County. Atkins lost, 7-9, as the men's team lost its match, 1-7.

FLOYD COUNTY CLERK

During the past 5 1/2 years as being your Floyd County Clerk, we have gone through many changes in how the County Clerk's office must be ran.

(1) Years ago we could go out into the communities and license your vehicles. This changed when state went to computers. NOW, every vehicle transaction must be done the the County Clerk's office in the computer system. The problem we have now is if the computers aren't working, then we cannot license or transfer a vehicle.

(2) Voter Registration is now on the same computer system as the vehicle licensing. All in all, this has made Kentucky #1 in the voter registration program in the United States. Sometimes, we have hit a snag especially when there are several different things happening at once in the clerk's office concerning elections.

(3) Absentee voters that are going to be out of town on election day must now vote their ballot inside the County Clerk's office.

(4) Motor Vehicle Lien Statements. There has been many changes in filing liens on vehicles.

(5) Additional books are now required for Fixture Filings that must now be recorded in the County Clerk's Office.

(6) The County Clerk's office operates on fees taken in the office, AFTER EACH GOVERNMENTAL AGENCY GETS THEIR AMOUNT DESIGNATED. These fees have varied from year to year. These fees pay the salaries of the employees, pays all county benefits, except for a life insurance policy and except for matching retirement fees. (When I first began as your County Clerk, the Fiscal Court paid more on employees deductions and also paid all medical insurance for employees)

These fees are used for improvements in your county Clerk's office and used for the purchase of office equipment (typewriters, calculators, copiers and any other necessary office supply.)

(7) The County Clerk's office is constantly recording your valuable documents. We make sure that these records are recorded on the quality of paper that is required by Libraries and Archives. We have standards set by each branch of government that regulates what the Clerk's office must do and when it must be done.

Six Floyd County Students Named Governor's Scholars

Six Floyd County students are among 665 outstanding juniors selected as 1989 Governor's Scholars.

They are Gregory B. Dye of McDowell, who attends McDowell High School; Jack B. Crider of East Point, Michelle D. Mullins of Prestonsburg, Dustin C. Haley of Prestonsburg and Ernest S. Croot III of Bevensville, all of Prestonsburg High School; and Stephen D. Damron of Weeksbury, who attends Wheelwright High School.

The record number of scholars will attend the five-week Governor's Scholars Program, at Murray State University, from June 18 to July 22, and at Centre College from June 25 to July 29. Students will be evenly divided between the two campuses.

"Competition grows heavier every year for admission to this non-traditional academic program that offers no credit and gives no grades," Gov. Wallace G. Wilkinson said.

"That sends me a message that Kentucky has plenty of ambitious, highly motivated young people who are eager to commit a major part of their summer to the kind of educational program that stimulates them intellectually and helps them grow mentally and personally," said the governor. "It means that more Kentuckians are placing a high value on quality education that challenges

Wilkinson said the Governor's Scholars Program in Kentucky has established a national reputation for excellence, adding, "I am pleased that we have been able to increase, substantially, the Governor's Office financial support of this program."

Free of charge to students, the Governor's Scholars Program is supported by a partnership of state government, principally the Office of the Governor, and many private businesses and foundations. A number of donors, such as Ashland Oil, Humana, South Central Bell and Texas Gas Transmission Corp. have contributed annually to the program since its inception in 1983. A fund drive to increase private donations is underway.

The 1989 Scholars will represent 115 of Kentucky's 120 counties. Nominations are allotted to school districts based on the size of their high school junior classes.

Scholars must meet standards established by the Governor's Scholars Program that encompass academic achievement, test scores, character, talents, interests, and a number of personal qualities that range from intellectual curiosity to leadership. Students must also submit two essays and receive strong teacher recommendations. Scholars are selected on merit from nominations submitted by the school districts.

Scholars remain in residence on each campus during the entire span of the program, including weekends. Each student chooses one major course of study from the 15 subjects offered. Courses range from mathematics to philosophy, and this summer the program is offering three foreign languages—Japanese, French and Spanish, each taught by a native speaker of the language.

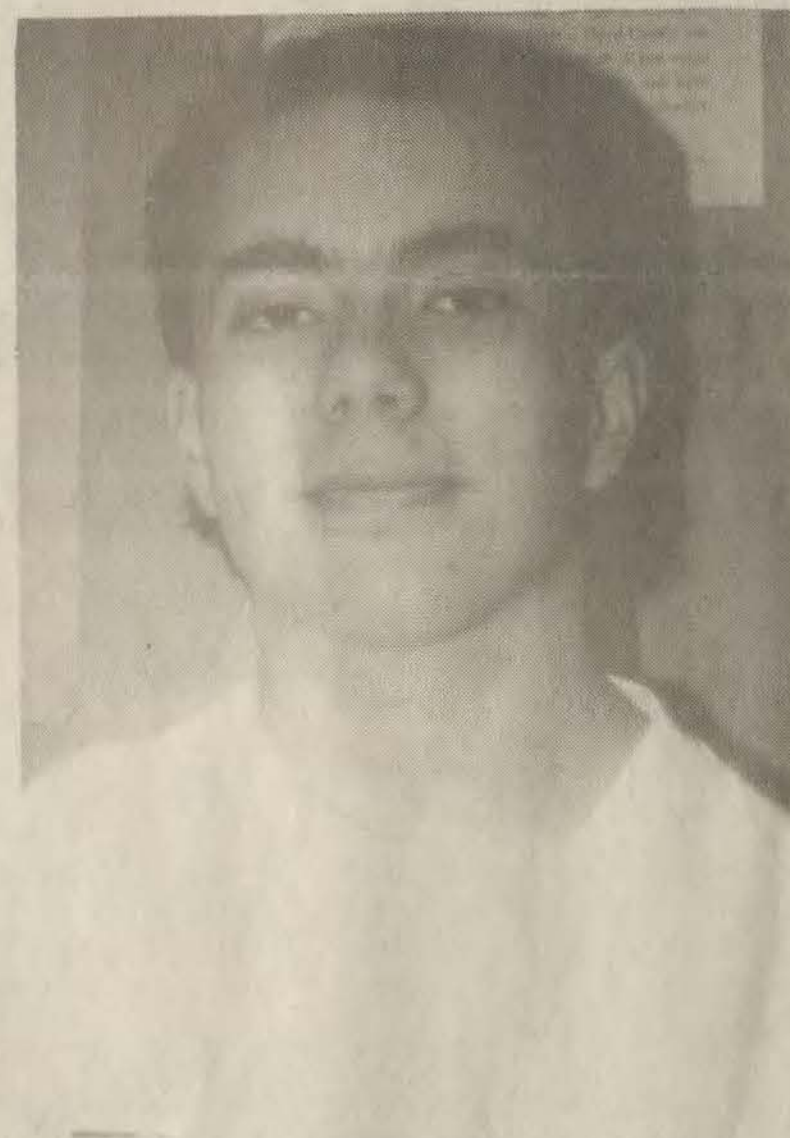

Students also elect minor courses and attend seminars. In addition to classes and extra-curricular activities offered, nationally known speakers and performers meet with students on each campus. There will be a number of field trips, including a "Saturday with the Arts" in Louisville, scheduled for July, in which many of Louisville's art groups participate.

Faculty members and residence hall counselors are involved in activities with the students; faculty is drawn from Kentucky high schools and from colleges and universities.

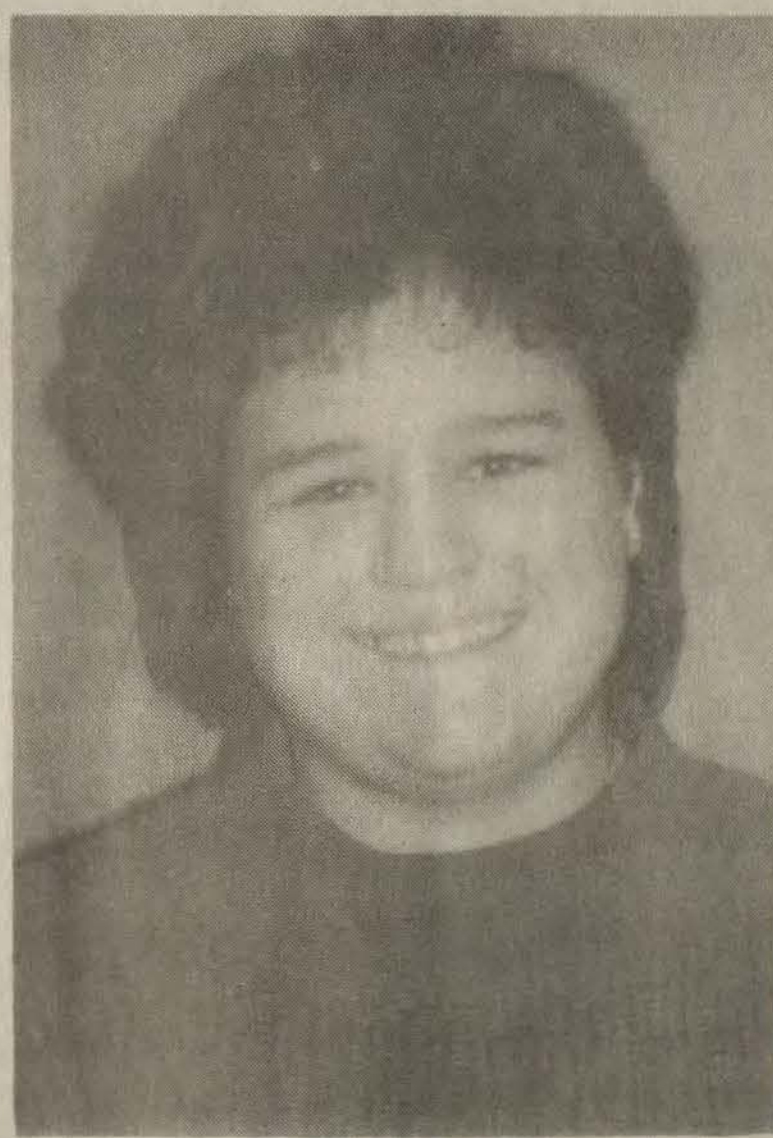

Lillian Press is the executive director of the program. Each campus is headed by a Governor's Scholars Program dean: Dr. Milton M. Reigelman at the Centre campus and Dr. Kenneth H. Wolf at the Murray campus.

Abbott Woman Gets GED At Home, In Front Of TV

By Pam Shingler
Assistant Editor

When the time came for Judy Hopson's class every Tuesday and Thursday morning, she didn't have to worry about getting dressed, fixing her hair or putting on makeup.

In fact, all she had to do was gather her books around her, curl up in a comfortable chair and turn on the television in her Abbott Road home. Through the Kentucky Education Television network (KET), Hopson, who dropped out of high school in 10th grade, was able to study for her GED diploma.

Although Hopson had the option of enrolling in a local group class, she opted for the KET program. "I liked the one-on-one approach," she explained, "and following the program on TV didn't make me as nervous as a class would."

Hopson said she first learned of the television-based GED program through an article in The Floyd County Times last spring when it was first beginning. She called the Frankfort office to express her interest and received a pretest, which she had to complete on her own within two weeks. She returned the test, was accepted into the program and received four books to study along with the televised lessons.

"I had to call Frankfort every so often to let them know how I was doing," she said. "If I had a problem, they had a teacher there who would help."

With discipline and determination, Hopson progressed well through the course. Learning algebra was her primary problem, she said. Some engineer friends at her church, Highlands Freewill Baptist, helped her with that subject.

Last August, just a few months after entering the KET program, Hopson took the GED examination at Prestonsburg Community College and passed. She later received a large certificate from Kentucky First Lady Martha Wilkinson, who last year started Martha's GED Army which works with KET.

"I wouldn't advise any kid to drop out of school," she said. "I've wished many times I'd stayed in school."

When she dropped out of Prestonsburg High School, Hopson said she "thought I was doing something big, but now I know I was doing something really silly."

She went to work as a nurse's aide at the old Prestonsburg Hospital, got married and had a family. In the back of her mind, she knew she wanted to be a nurse. "But I realized that without a diploma I couldn't go to nursing school," she said.

Now armed with the diploma equivalent, she plans to enroll in the nursing program at Mayo State Vocational Technical School in August.

The televised GED classes fit Hopson's personality and needs. "That time in front of the television was my time," she said. "I told my family to leave me alone during that time, and they were very supportive."

For her, Hopson believes the KET classes were better than going to a regular class. "I was more relaxed," she said. However, she added that the local group classes may be better for other people.

The only drawback to the television program, she said, is that "sometimes I missed having someone to talk to about the class." That, however, was not a significant disadvantage, she said.

Now Hopson is trying to get her husband to enroll in the program. His protests that he's too old fall on deaf ears. "When I took the GED test, there were some ladies in their 70s taking it," she said. "I thought that was fabulous."

Proud of her accomplishment, the high school dropout turns philosophical. "Education is something nobody can ever take away from you."

KET's classes in GED preparation can be seen locally on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 10:30 a.m. and at 6 p.m. on Channel 5 through Cablevision of Prestonsburg.

Gray Named USAA Nat'l Award Winner

Officials of the United States Achievement Academy (USAA) announced this week that Hope Ann Gray has been named a national award winner in English.

The award is presented to less than 10 percent of all high school students.

Gray, who attends Allen Central High School, was nominated for the award by Patricia Watson, an English teacher at the school.

Gray will appear in the USAA official yearbook, published nationally.

"Recognizing and supporting our youth is more important than ever before in America's history," said Dr. George Stevens, executive director of the academy. "Certainly, USAA award winners should be congratulated and appreciated for their dedication to excellence and achievement."

USAA winners are selected upon the recommendation of teachers, coaches, counselors or other school sponsors and a student's academic performance, interest and aptitude, leadership qualities, responsibility, enthusiasm, motivation to learn and improve, citizenship, attitude and cooperative spirit, and dependability.

Gray is the daughter of George Jr. and Donna Gray. She is the granddaughter of Mary Branham of Langley and the late Lyman Branham, and Stacy Gray of Prestonsburg and the late George Gray.

RECC Offers Scholarships

Big Sandy Rural Electric Cooperative Corp. is offering scholarships to area high school graduates who want to further their education.

Eligible students will be those whose families use electric power from Big Sandy RECC, and will attend a Kentucky college or vocational school. Applicants will be selected on the basis of academic performance, financial need and availability of other funding to the student, according to Bill Wells, RECC manager.

"Hopefully, our program might benefit someone who falls in the middle — who doesn't qualify for assistance based on income, and who isn't quite at the top of the class."

For more information, Wells said, students should contact their high school counselors.

There's No Place Like Home

Judy Hopson of Abbott Road, Prestonsburg, studied for her GED at home in a cozy chair in front of the TV. She is one of hundreds of Kentuckians who have worked on their high school equivalency diploma through classes on Kentucky Education Television, seen locally on cable Channel 5.

There has been much to-do about litter on our highways and in our streams. I am 100% against litter and I would like to make that very clear, but there is more to the problem than just litter. The problem is attitude. Until we change our attitudes and become proud of where we live, then there can be no change.

For example look at the highway up Left Beaver Creek. How can we have pride in a highway that has been neglected since it was first built? The culverts have long since been covered over and the water cannot drain. The same pot holes are still there. Every now and then someone comes along and spreads a thin layer of black top, but it only lasts awhile. The same dangerous curves are there as are the slides that are held back by steel rails driven into the ground.

I'm talking about a road that has had millions of dollars worth of coal hauled over it. Think about the millions spent on taxes, by the truck drivers, coal operators, and the citizens of Left Beaver Creek!

We Need A Good Road Up Left Beaver Creek!

We need a well-built road to haul our coal over. We need a safe road to transport our children to school, and our sick to the hospital. A road that we can be proud of, free of litter and pot holes.

We do not need to spend 30 or 40 million dollars on a road from Minnie to Garrett. We need that money spent upgrading the Left Beaver Creek Road.

I pledge to you, if elected Magistrate, that I will devote my time and energy to influence the Fiscal Court, on your behalf, to get the funds needed for this project. It can be done, it must be done, and as your Magistrate I will do my best to get it done.

I will be your leader. Elect Me,

DALE HALL

Freshman Orientation Held

Eighth grade students from Melvin and Osborne elementary schools recently got to look at their future — they were brought to Wheelwright High School, where they will be incoming freshmen next academic year. The students were given explanations of school rules and acceptable conduct by the principal, Lonnie Slone. Bobby Jones, counselor at WHS, explained the curriculum and scheduling possibilities. Dani Smith, Student, Teacher and You (STAY) coordinator, encouraged students to continue their education, and explained the attendance policies of the school system. Afterwards, students were divided into groups and taken on tours of the school grounds by teachers and the counselor. The tour allowed students to meet all teachers and see where lockers, the library and other things were located. The students were allowed to ask teachers questions, if they wished. School officials said they hope that the high school orientation will help the eighth grade students better adjust in August, improving attendance.

WHS Orientation

Eighth grade students from Osborne and Melvin elementary schools recently participated in an orientation session at Wheelwright High School, meeting school administration, faculty and staff, and learning about course offerings at the freshman level.

Jones Attends Conference

Janie Jones, librarian at Wheelwright High School, recently attended the 22nd annual literature conference sponsored by the University of Kentucky College of Library and Information Science. Featured speakers were authors Patricia MacLachlan and Haldrick Pitts Walker. The meeting offered a new book selection preview from UK's McConnell Center, as well as film selections.

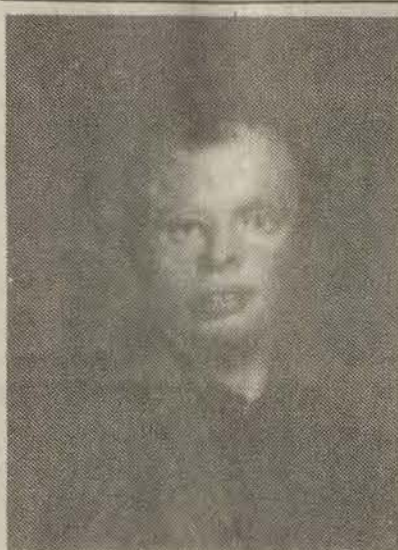

Area 'Rodeo' Winners Announced

A Prestonsburg High School bus driver took top honors at the fifth annual School Bus "Rodeo" held recently at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park.

William "Neil" Clevenger accumulated 276 points in the nine-event competition which attracted 72 drivers.

Other top drivers were Anthony Conn, Betsy Layne High School, 273 points; Ricky Hancock, Allen Central, 263 points; and James Collins, Allen Central, and Tivis Johnson, Wheelwright, 254 points each.

Competitive events included railroad crossing, stop line, curb line, serpentine, offset alley, straight line, diminishing clearance, back up and elementary student loading. A total of 375 points were possible.

'Who's Who'

Prestonsburg High School senior Hayden W. Milligan has been named to Who's Who Among Students in American High Schools. He is the son of H.K. Milligan and Sue McIntyre of Prestonsburg. At PHS, he has been involved in the Academic Team, yearbook staff and the Beta, pep and biology clubs. Milligan said he plans to attend Prestonsburg Community College, before transferring to the University of Kentucky as a pre-law major.

PCC Art Exhibition Slated

An exhibition of art works by Prestonsburg Community College art students will be on display April 18-28 at the new gallery in the Magoffin Building on campus.

A reception with the artists will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. April 24, according to John Herald, spokesman for the college.

The exhibition includes several watercolors or drawings from students taking professor Tom Whitaker's drawing and watercolor class. Whitaker expressed appreciation to students for the high quality of the work.

"Painting serves as therapy for many people, but usually after watercolor, people need therapy because it is such a demanding medium. Because it is basically transparent and very spontaneous, many students want to over-work watercolor," says Whitaker.

The gallery will be open Monday and Thursday from 5:30 to 8 p.m. and Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 12:30 to 1:50 p.m.

Students from Floyd County who will participate include Bobby Branham, Randy Bentley, Stephen Calhoun, Gretchen Duff, Eunice Hall, Terina Hall, Suzanne Reynolds, Andrea Stephens, Terra Lee Stone, Joe Sutton, Alberta Wills and Susan Wills.

Five young Floyd County women have been chosen by their respective schools to compete in the upcoming Floyd County Music Festival Queen pageant.

They are Crystal Eve Fitzpatrick of Allen Central High School, Beth Hall of Prestonsburg High School, Jeannie Hamilton of Betsy Layne High School, Gina Lynn Johnson of Wheelwright High School, and Jill Suzanne Stumbo of McDowell High School.

The 'Eyes' Have It

Dr. Lee Majakey, a Prestonsburg optometrist, visited students in Audreyetta Lawson's second grade class at Garrett Elementary School recently. A 30-minute presentation was given, during which Majakey drew a picture of the eye and named each part, explaining how each helps a person to see. He also cut open the eye of a pig to reveal the lens and optic nerve, as well as the remaining parts of the eye. Students were given a brochure issued by the American Optometric Association, and a brief question and answer session was held.

Glenda Blackburn: 'Respect Students, & They Respect You'

When one looks into Glenda Blackburn's eighth grade classroom at Allen Elementary School, it looks like most other classrooms.

But once inside, visitors quickly notice a creative and respectful atmosphere. Blackburn's students' artwork is posted on walls, and students often debate and discuss topics from the past, present and future. Each time the students debate, Blackburn helps students to learn how to use their minds, to think and say how they feel, not merely what they have been taught.

Blackburn teaches the students to be creative, and also helps teach respect—for the student as well as the teacher.

"Kids are people, too," believes Blackburn, adding that if teachers respect students, they will be respected in return. Because of her belief, she makes it a point to get to know her students academically and personally. Blackburn believes that by respecting and personally knowing her students, she can sometimes help when a problem arises.

"If a student is having a problem, he or she then has difficulty learning," points out the Allen Elementary instructor. "I try to know my students so I can help."

Blackburn is also involved in extra-curricular activities at her school, serving as cheerleading sponsor for a number of years; she recently switched to coaching the academic team, something she sees as a challenge to herself and her students. She is also co-sponsor of the Allen Elementary School Beta Club Chapter.

"Glenda Blackburn was one of the teachers in this county who taught me to think and be creative," says Dani Smith, the school district's "Students, Teachers and You (STAY) coordinator and a former student of Blackburn's. "She was among the first to respect me for what I thought, even when we disagreed. That is something I will never forget."

Casey Jones, a student currently enrolled in one of Blackburn's classes, adds that his instructor makes learning interesting.

If one could sum Blackburn's approach to her profession, it may have best been said by Gary Frazier, assistant superintendent of Floyd County Schools: "Glenda Blackburn is an outstanding, highly-motivated teacher."

Tackett May Attend Two-Week Program

Patricia Tackett, a senior at McDowell High School and daughter of Donald Ray and Shirley Tackett, has been invited to attend a two-week program for people interested in some aspect of medicine.

The Professional Education Preparation Program (PEPP) is a precollege program offered to graduating seniors who plan to attend medical or dental school. Program representatives choose 65 students from counties that are lacking in physicians. This year, said school officials, the University of Kentucky, University of Louisville and Kentucky State University will house the program.

PEPP's purpose is to better prepare premed students for the demanding schedule of chemistry and mathematics. The participants will work in hospital and medical centers.

Tackett plans to attend Berea College this fall, majoring in premed. She later plans to attend the University of Kentucky Medical School. Tackett said she would like to pursue a career in pediatrics in Eastern Kentucky.

April Showers - Green Lawn - May Flowers Landscaping with Laurel Farms

LAWN WEED CONTROL

Weeds are simply plants that are growing in the wrong place. You can eliminate most weeds easily. Mowing at the right height, fertilizing adequately, and watering sensibly goes a long way in achieving a weed free lawn. A healthy lawn is not troubled much by weeds.

Get control over your weed problem by mechanically removing them or using a pre emergent or post emergent herbicide. If your problem is small simply remove the weeds by hand. However most people prefer a little easier task. Pre-emergent herbicides (weed killers) are effective against germinating seeds - it kills the plants before they emerge.

If you are late with your weed control efforts you may want to use a post emergent herbicide, meaning those weed killers that eliminate the weeds after they have emerged. They are absorbed into the root system of the plant interfering with nutrition needed for it to survive.

You may want to consider using a combination product which will also fertilize your lawn while it is removing the weed problem.

Johnson Wins Osborne Contest

GINA JOHNSON

Gina Johnson, an eighth grade student, recently won the spelling bee competition at Osborne Elementary School.

She is the daughter of Russell and Alpha Johnson of Wheelwright.

The second place winner was Shoneque Lanae Oden, fifth grade, who is the daughter of Duane and Kalawese Oden of Wheelwright.

Third place went to Crystal Dawn Martin, daughter of David and Kathy Martin of Jacks Creek.

In the county spelling bee, held at Prestonsburg Elementary School, Johnson won third place.

Reading Council May Be Revived

An organizational meeting for reviving the Jenny Wiley Reading Council is set for April 27 at 7 p.m. at Clark Elementary School.

Phillip Cassaday, chairperson of the state organization, is to be the special guest at the meeting.

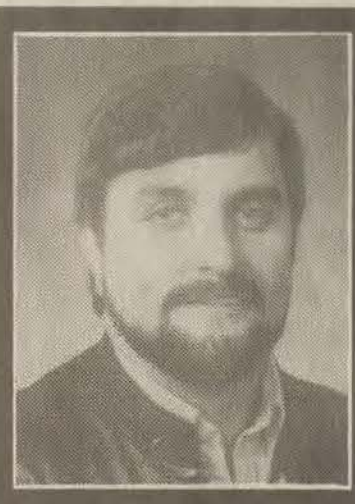

Affiliated with the International Reading Association, the original reading council began locally in 1971, according to Nadine Hicks, who said the former organization was recognized at local, state and national levels.

Members of the original council taught classes, organized displays, sponsored workshops and served as consultants for school in-service programs, Hicks said.

"These activities were carried out to give members and the educational community at large the opportunities to know and share the latest findings in the field of reading," Hicks said, "and to be motivated and inspired by active involvement."

She also credits the council with strengthening relationships among school administrators, teachers, parents and consultants.

Hicks and other former members of the council met last month to make plans to reactivate the organization.

RE-ELECT

JACKIE EDFORD OWENS

Magistrate, Dist. 2

☑ NO. 2 ON THE BALLOT—
NO. 1 FOR THE PEOPLE

TO THE VOTERS OF DISTRICT 2:

I'M GOING TO TELL YOU LIKE IT IS. I was informed by a friend a month before filing deadline that I was going to have SEVERAL candidates from the upper end AGAINST me running as cutters in order to try to get a candidate in from the lower end. This plan was overheard at a local restaurant. Since I AM YOUR MAGISTRATE and I am so busy, it is IMPOSSIBLE to try to get to see everyone. I WANT TO TAKE THIS TIME TO ASK EVERYONE FOR THEIR VOTE on May 23rd. The main reason the "BIG WHEELS" and some of the "POLITICIANS" are fighting me is because THEY SAY I let the people know too much about Fiscal Court matters. The way I see it—IT'S THE PEOPLE'S MONEY. IF you want to vote for a YES MAN—Vote for someone else. IF YOU WANT TO VOTE FOR SOMEONE WHO STANDS UP and GETS THE JOB DONE—Vote JACKIE EDFORD OWENS. I've fought to keep garbage out of Floyd County. fought for more blacktopped roads, better dirt roads, and better bridges.

P.S.—In last week's paper I noticed in the Letter To The Editor about the road in No. 6 Bottom at Garrett. I invite anyone in my district to go up and travel this road. It's been graded, graveled, ditched, and bushhogged for the last 3 years. It's in better shape now than it has ever been in. I think it was PRETTY BAD the way that Jeff Scott got some of his neighbors to sign HIS PETITION telling them it was a petition to get their road blacktopped when it was only to go down and gouge me in the Floyd County Times. Scott—Why don't you go back and see IF YOU CAN GET THESE SAME PEOPLE to sign YOUR PETITION again? You CAN'T get ALL of the same ones to sign it, because THEY KNOW WHAT YOU DONE—YOU USED THEM.

(Pol. adv. paid for by the candidate, 11pd.)

McDowell High Student Meets President, Others View Government

When Mary Slone went to Washington, D.C., with 20 other McDowell High School students, she didn't really expect to meet President George Bush.

But thanks to an informal lottery, the Floyd County student did just that. Slone and 75 other students from 10 states were chosen, by lot, from thousands of high schoolers participating in the Close Up Foundation week in Washington, to visit with the nation's president in the Gold Room of the White House.

"President Bush is a very personable person," said the McDowell student. "He made you feel at ease."

Despite the excitement of an audience with the president, however, there was one disappointment. Prior to the meeting, Slone said, the students were told they would be able to ask questions of the new president.

"We all had questions prepared," she said, "but he only wanted to talk about education." The student questioners, she said, had hoped to talk about a range of issues.

While in the nation's capital, March 26 to April 1, the students were treated to a close look at how the government operates, as well as a visit to colonial Williamsburg. The Close Up Foundation, a non-profit, non-partisan organization, annually plans the study trips for youth.

Seventh District Congressman Chris Perkins gave the McDowell students the flag which flew over the Capitol on Jan. 13. Back at the school, student Derrick Akers presented the flag to principal Robert Hall.

In addition to Slone and Akers, other McDowell students who participated in the trip were Gary Mullins, Vicki Frasure, Margalee Turner, Erin Hall, Lisa Horvath, Michelle Cook, Lisa Henry, Jenny Slone, Monica Gates,

Kristi Pack, Christie Ousley, Liz Dawson, Jose Ilagan, Richard Hamilton, William Marcum, Brad Kidd, Roger Martin, Jena Stumbo and Tracie Stewart.

McDowell High School Orientation

Parents of McDowell Elementary School's eighth grade students recently returned to high school. They were invited to attend an orientation session for parents of incoming freshmen. J.O. Dingus, counselor at McDowell High School, explained different course offerings to parents, and discussed extra-curricular activities available. He also discussed the school's code of conduct, and encouraged all parents attending to remain actively involved in their child's education.

Patterson Returns Home

Ruth Patterson recently returned home after attending four days of activities at her hometown school in Jaeger, W.Va.

She attended an alumni banquet, held by the All-County Band, and attended the Honor Society Banquet for alumni. She also attended the All-County Band Concert, where her granddaughter, Nellie Pruitt, performed a solo on the bass clarinet from the musical, "Shenandoah." Pruitt is a former student at Prestonsburg Elementary School, where she was a cheerleader.

FBLA Visits Morehead

by Missy Thornsbury and Jeff Mullins

Eleven students from Wheelwright High School's Future Business Leaders of America (FBLA) Club visited Morehead State University recently for a Region 5 competition and meeting.

Members went to MSU to see the competition first-hand, and to try to build interest in their own club.

Four students participated in the competition. The students, and the division in which they competed, were Haley Caudill, in Typing I; Diane Burke, in business English competition; Danny Collins, introduction to business; and Brad Hall, business math. Other WHS students attending were Angie Cavins, Veronica Tackett, April Patrick, Kim Mullins, Layne Bailey, Chris Mullins and Stacy Younts.

Sponsors Madeline Gibson and Terry Henisch said they are excited about the club because they see it as an opportunity to build responsibility, good leadership and good characteristics in their students.

FBLA members are expected to be able to speak in front of groups and to project a business-like image.

The sponsors believe FBLA membership will benefit the students, noting, "Members will get to travel and may compete for scholarships, but maybe the most important goal is to build self-confidence in our students."

"NATIONAL TREASURE": For the past 190 years, the United States Marine Band has struck a chord with millions of Americans. Made up of 143 musicians (29 of them women), the band has become "a national treasure," said President Reagan. Presidents have used its musical talents in many ways, according to the July Reader's Digest. After dinners, Rutherford B. Hayes used to have the band play "Home, Sweet Home," hoping his guests would take the hint and leave. President Warren G. Harding, who played several instruments, liked to join the band during rehearsals.

Dedication Held

The American Vocational Association is building a new headquarters in Alexandria, Va., and one room in the facility will be named in honor of the late Carl D. Perkins. Perkins served in the US House of Representatives for 36 years. During that time, he placed vocational education high on his legislative agenda, sponsoring and steering to passage the Vocational Education Act of 1963. The vocational schools throughout Kentucky were asked to be responsible for $3,000 each to pay for the cost of the room. The contribution that retired the region's debt was made by the Mayo Chapter of the Vocational Industrial Clubs of America, which chose this as one of its service projects and paid the final installment of $383, according to Lillian Wheeler, spokeswoman for Mayo Vocational School.

HEATH WILEY

Heath Wiley, a sophomore at Allen Central High School, recently had a poster he designed selected for use on a program for Kentucky Educational Television (KET), according to his art instructor, Caralita O'Quinn.

Wiley created the poster for use in public awareness of child abuse. "Stop the Hurt" was a program presented at Wayland April 6-8. Wiley's poster was selected by KET to appear in animated form on television May 29 at 10 p.m. The poster itself will be used in the campaign.

Wiley is enrolled in the special art class at ACHS. His poster was one of the special projects assigned to students to help them develop their individual abilities.

He is the son of Rod and Pam Wiley of Hippo.

Elect Thomas D. Lafferty

#7 on the Ballot.

As your next magistrate, I pledge to work in harmony with all members of the Fiscal Court to help improve the quality of life of our citizens. County government can improve the way we live by improving roads, expansion of public utilities, and more support for community projects such as senior citizens' centers.

ROADS: I propose regularly-scheduled maintenance on all roads in District 1. By keeping roads properly graded and ditched, water is kept off the roadway to prevent the destruction of the road bed. Planned road maintenance would eliminate major road reconstruction every four years or putting gravel in mudholes that will only last a few months. Roads can be kept in good condition and the savings can be used for other projects.

PUBLIC UTILITIES: I helped organize and secure funding from Farmer's Home Administration for the Bullcreek/Watergap Water District. I also helped in obtaining grant funds from the state to complete the Spurlock, Middle Creek and Bucks Branch water projects. As your magistrate, I will work to secure funding for expansion of existing water and sewer lines throughout our district.

COMMUNITY PROJECTS: There are many community projects in our district which need and deserve consideration from our government. I propose budgeting funds annually to be set aside in a district account for projects that benefit our community. Senior citizens' centers, volunteer fire departments, recreational boards, and other community-oriented, non-profit organizations would then be able to request funds for specific projects or emergency situations. Government can be responsive to the community it serves.

As your magistrate, I will be concerned about how you live and what government can do for you.

Pictured with me is my father, Thurston Endicott. Many of you know him because of his job. He has been working for the City of Prestonsburg's Sanitation Department for the past 22 years. He's the big guy that drives one of the City's two Sanitation trucks. You probably also know him for another reason, his personality. He's always friendly and helpful. He's always willing to help you out in any way that he can.

My friends this is exactly the kind of person I am. I think that the Magistrate that we elect should also have this same quality. We in District No. 1 need someone like this to represent us. We need someone who will be there when we need them. Things don't get done by themselves. Bridges don't get built, roads don't get paved, and ditches don't get pulled by just promising it done.

We in District No. 1 need more than just promises. We need a dedicated, full-time, accessible Magistrate. We need someone who is Honest, Dependable, and Qualified for the job. You see, it takes more than just being able to run a piece of equipment to be a good magistrate.

A good magistrate should also be a good manager, economist, and accountant all in one. Before you vote, ask yourself, "Don't the people around me and I deserve the most qualified person for the job?"

'Big Ben' — To Some

Benjamin Franklin, portrayed by Nathan Frisby, watches over a group of first graders from Prestonsburg Elementary as they choose from the wide selection of books available to them from the RIF Program.

Oliver Poem Published In Magazine

Linda Oliver, an Allen Central High School senior, has had a poem published in the nationally-ranked Freedom magazine — quite a feat, considering Oliver's poem is written in German.

Oliver is enrolled in German II and will be representing Allen Central in the regional foreign language festival this Saturday. As a German II student, Oliver represented the region at the University of Kentucky in extemporaneous prose reading, in which the student is given one minute to scan a written message. The student then reads the message orally and answers questions concerning the prose.

At Allen Central, Oliver is active in several school clubs and organizations. She is a member of the school's broadcast team, which airs each morning. She is also a member of Students Against Driving Drunk, and has broadcast messages from WQHY encouraging area residents not to drink and drive.

She is co-editor of the school's literary magazine, Freedom, and has assisted with the layout of Mountain Magic in previous years.

Oliver serves as a teacher's aide as part of her daily routine. She has also been active in the school's math, art, poster, pep, German, FHA and 4-H clubs.

She is the daughter of Douglas and Annette Oliver of Garrett.

RIF Program Continues In Floyd County Schools

RIF stands for "Reading is Fundamental," and that is the message Doris Hyden hoped to spread when she started the program in Prestonsburg schools in 1981.

At that time, all one needed to do was request the federal funds and they could get a RIF program at their school. Today, no more funds are available. There are only 80 RIF programs in the state, and Floyd County has two of them, according to Hyden.

"RIF has three distributions of books a year at Prestonsburg Elementary school. Approximately 800 students receive books per distribution. The students have a wide choice of books, retail value between $1.50 and $4.95," says Debbie Stumbo, local RIF parent-volunteer.

gram are in kindergarten through sixth grades. "The students are all very enthusiastic about receiving books. Some of them have favorite titles and authors that they look for at each distribution," says Stumbo. "We want to let the children know reading is fun and you can learn more from books than television."

Benjamin Franklin, portrayed by Nathan Frisby from CableVision of Prestonsburg, attended the book distribution at Prestonsburg Elementary on Thursday, April 13. He was there to promote a poster contest, for grades kindergarten through three, and an essay contest, for grades four through eight.

The poster contest winners will be awarded a Franklin Spelling Ace

Also, CableVision will donate a set of World Book Encyclopedias, 1989 edition, in the name of the winners.

RIF receives 75 percent of its funds from the federal government, but the rest must be raised locally. The PTA is the primary sponsor of the program. The Kiwanis and the Rotary clubs also contribute regularly. The program is run solely by volunteers.

"Volunteers are needed to contribute three hours, for one day, during the next distribution week. Hopefully the parents will get involved," says Stumbo. Anyone wishing to donate any time or funds can call the PTA at Prestonsburg Elementary School, or Debbie Stumbo at 886-9953.

Gun Safety Class

Captain Rodney Holbrook, area supervisor for Park Rangers, conducts a class on "Gun Proofing" for seventh and eighth graders Prestonsburg Elementary School. Anyone desiring to learn more about weapon safety should contact the local park ranger at Jenny Wiley State Park, 886-2711.

Seventh, Eighth Graders Learn About Gun Safety

"A well regulated militia being necessary for the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms should not be infringed."

Second Amendment Bill of Rights

The second amendment to the Bill of Rights gives every citizen, except convicted criminals and those declared mentally ill, the right to own firearms.

However, anyone choosing to exercise that right should be trained in the proper handling of weapons, according to Onda Hunt, teacher at Prestonsburg Elementary School, who invited Capt. Rodney Holbrook, area supervisor for Park Rangers of Eastern Kentucky, to speak to his seventh and eighth grade class on the importance of gun safety. He also showed them a film, "Rifle and Shotgun Safety: A Family Guide," donated by the National Rifle Association.

Holbrook is a Department of Firearms instructor, has had training from the FBI, and is certified by the NRA. He is a graduate of Prestonsburg High School and Eastern Kentucky University. He says his job as a Ranger is "to provide law enforcement and public relations for the Kentucky State Parks."

Kentucky State Park Rangers must qualify with firearms every two years or forfeit their jobs, according to Holbrook. "Although police officers will only use their weapon an average of two times in their career, they still need to be knowledgeable and respectful of the weapon," he said.

Holbrook instructed the children on the three golden rules of firearm safety: Never point a gun at anyone, or anything, unless you intend to shoot. Never play with any gun. If you find a gun, don't touch it, and tell an adult.

Holbrook also told the students, "If you've been taught how to be safe with a gun, and are with an adult, it's all right to touch it. But if you haven't been trained, then it's dangerous. Guns are only as safe as the person holding it. Guns only hurt people if some person is messing with them. If you want to play cops and robbers then get a toy gun; that's what we (park rangers) train with."

There are 70 million households with firearms in the U.S., an estimated 200 million firearms in the country, and 8,000 accidental shootings per year, according to Holbrook. In his opinion, "there is no such thing as an accidental shooting. Someone was either acting negligent or was untrained in the proper use of weapons."

Holbrook showed the students three different weapons: a semi-automatic, a .357 revolver and a police shotgun. He told them to treat every weapon as if it were loaded.

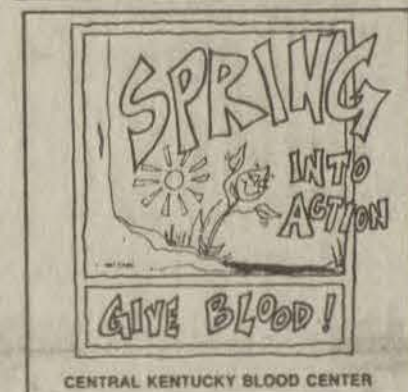

Anyone desiring to learn more about weapon safety should contact the local park ranger at Jenny Wiley State Park, 886-2711.

Participants in the Personal Economics Program, left, Debbie Hoskins and Clydia Heintzelmen, both of the First Commonwealth Bank, visited Miss Pitts' library class at Prestonsburg Elementary recently. They gave the students an up-to-date description of all the banking services available; how these services can be used for their convenience and the benefit in money management. PEP representatives will visit a kindergarten class soon to show a Walt Disney film on money aspects. PEP is a service provided by local banks at no charge, is designed for any age level, and covers many different topics concerning money management.

YOU KNOW WHAT THEY SAY ABOUT THE PRESTONSBURG POLICE?

They say you can't drive through Prestonsburg if you've had a few drinks, because the Prestonsburg Police will get you. They say the Prestonsburg Police arrest more people for DUI (Driving Under the Influence) than any place else – not because we've got more drinkers, but because our police are tough on Drunk Drivers.

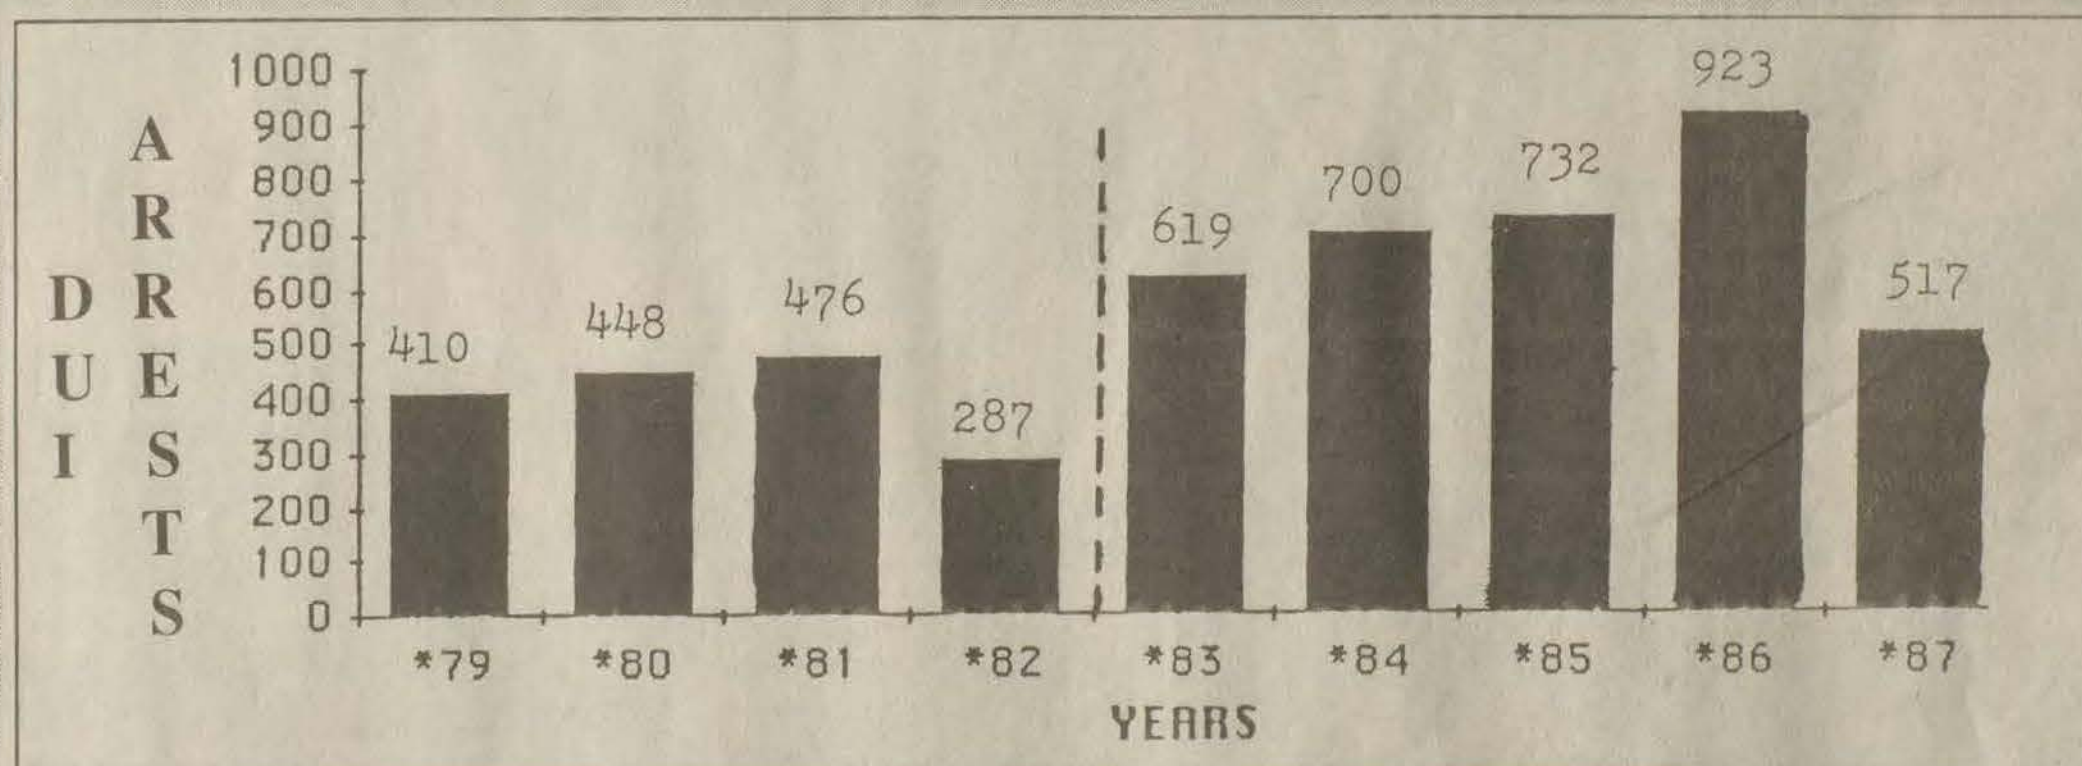

They say it doesn't even matter who you are or who you know, if you drive with one too many in Prestonsburg.

They say the Prestonsburg Police get all the tax money that the City takes in from the legal sales of alcohol to "beef up" their force and that this police department is "the best" in Eastern Kentucky and the only one in Eastern Kentucky where each officer is assigned their own vehicle – so they just seem to be all over the place.

KEEP PRESTONSBURG A SAFER PLACE TO LIVE AND DO BUSINESS

Former Coroner Concentrates On Gift Of Living Memorials

by Pam Shingler
Editor

After dealing with the finality of death for close to 40 years, James Carter now concentrates on contributions to his hometown that are living memorials.

The former owner of Carter Funeral Home and former Floyd County coroner has taken as his personal project the blossoming of Prestonsburg. Over the past year he has planted about a dozen trees in public areas and has plans to sow blooming flowers around the town.

"I decided if they couldn't remember me by anything else, they would remember me by the trees," says the 67-year-old who served as coroner for 30 years.

"Trees last a long time," he adds. At the mini park near First Commonwealth Bank in Prestonsburg, Carter has had two pear and three crabapple trees planted. The purple leaved flowering plum tree in front of the post office is his gift, along with two pear trees on the courthouse lawn. He points out that he originally planted four trees at the courthouse, but only two have survived.

This year, he plans to add a plum tree to the mini park and a dogwood to the city hall lawn. "I've got a capital pear on order, but I haven't decided where it will go yet," he says with a chuckle that shows he thoroughly enjoys playing the role of a modern day Johnny Appleseed.

He also has on order four cans each of hummingbird, butterfly and wild bird "meadow", the term applied to wildflower seed, which is gaining popularity with naturalists. He hopes to strew the "meadow" along the riverbank in town.

Also on his mental list of plans is the planting of 30 phlox settings at the city's mini park.

Carter, who is paying for the trees and shrubs "out of my own pocket," admits that one of the reasons he's doing what he's doing is because "I enjoy looking" at the growing plants. "I thought somebody ought to be taking a little pride in the city," says the retiree.

The project also helps occupy some of his time since his health has forced retirement and a sedentary lifestyle. The slowdown has been a hard adjustment for the man who was active in business and politics for most of his life.

A member of a military surgical team during World War II, Carter attended Eastern Kentucky University and the Cincinnati College of Embalming before joining the old Carter and Callihan Funeral Home in the 1940s.

As coroner, he says he gained the respect of state police, medical examiners and other state officials. His service earned him the first honorary life membership in the Coroners Association of Kentucky and the only life membership in the International Association of Coroners and Medical Examiners.

He has won citations from Kentucky departments of education, state parks and agriculture, as well as numerous other agencies. He has also been recognized by agencies in Arkansas, Texas, West Virginia, Georgia and North Carolina.

Out of the limelight, he took on the planting projects to keep from concentrating on his inactivity. Appropriately, he remembers an adage someone once told him: "Worry is like a rocking chair; it gives you something to do, but it doesn't get you anywhere."

A few months ago, Prestonsburg City Council publicly commended Carter for his work.

"When he came up with the idea, he called me to ask if he could do it (the planting)," said Mayor Ann Latta. "I knew it would be an enormous contribution to the city."

"That a private citizen would undertake his own personal beautification project is wonderful," said the mayor. "Mr. Carter obviously cares about the city." Latta added that the city would welcome similar efforts by other citizens.

A 'Pear'fect Project For Retiree

Former businessman and coroner James Carter is dwarfed by Bradford pear tree, one of four he gave to the city last year for the Floyd County courthouse lawn. Carter's personal beautification program is resulting in the flowering of the city.

Floyd County Craftspeople May Join Marketing Program

Floyd County craftspeople are invited to apply for participation in the Crafts Marketing Program of the Kentucky Department of the Arts.

To be considered, applicants must submit slides for the jury process to be conducted in May. The deadline for application is May 31, according to Frank Redmon, crafts program manager; an October jury session will also include samples.

"The Kentucky Crafts Marketing Program has become a model throughout the nation for states who have realized the cost effectiveness of state-supported technical assistance," said Redmon. "The assistance enables small craft businesses to generate millions of dollars in a state's economy, as well as add prestige to its image."

Participants juried into the Crafts Marketing Program are eligible to participate in the crafts marketing events, which include an annual wholesale/retail market, national gift and trade fairs, Governor's Derby Day breakfast, Rolex Three Day Horse Event, and other special exhibits and projects. The department continues to work cooperatively with Kentucky State Park gift shops, said Redmon.

To register and receive an application packet, contact the Crafts Marketing Program, Kentucky Department of the Arts, Berry Hill Mansion, Frankfort, KY 40601, telephone (502) 564-8076.

County Kettle

Is a feature offered by the Floyd County Times.
Send all recipes, kitchen tips and suggestions to "County Kettle," The Floyd County Times, P.O. Box 391, Prestonsburg, KY 41653

Tips and questions abound in the world of cookery, and fortunately, there are folks who can provide ready answers as well as nutritious recipes.

Following are tips from General Mills' a la Betty Crocker.

— To prevent a baked pie shell from shrinking, roll pastry to an even (1/4 inch) thickness and to a diameter two inches larger than the edge of the pie plate. Then, handle gently to avoid stretching pastry, and place it in pie plate. Press pastry from center toward the edge, lightly, with fingertips to remove air bubbles. Trim pastry within an inch of the plate rim. Fold pastry even with plate, flute edge, prick sides and bottom of crust with a fork, and bake.

— To prevent marks on cake layers from the cooling rack, cool cakes in pans on wire racks for 10 minutes.

Cover rack with a towel and place it towel sided down on top of layer. Then, turn rack and pan together. Remove pan. Place rack on bottom of layer, turning both racks so the layer is right side up. Allow layers to cool completely on the racks.

— If cholesterol is found only in animal fat, what's the concern about tropical oils (palm and coconut) and heart disease? Saturated fats, such as those found in coconut and palm oil, can raise blood cholesterol levels in some people. Some physicians may advise patients to reduce the amount of saturated fats eaten, including foods containing significant amounts of palm oil, coconut oil, and other fats which are primarily saturated.

— To make sauteed mushrooms, it is not necessary to boil the mushrooms first. Just before sauteeing them, rinse mushrooms in cool water and dry with a towel.

— What makes homemade noodles crumbly? Too little liquid or too much flour. Noodle dough should be soft and pliable for rolling.

— What's the best way to prepare pans for brownies? Grease only the bottom of the pan, using solid shortening instead of butter, margarine or oil. To avoid brownies becoming too hard use the correct pan size and bake them for the amount of time recommended in the recipe.

— When cooking cauliflower, add a teaspoon of lemon juice to the water to preserve the white color.

Spring usually means green, and it's a good color to keep in mind when looking for foods to add good nutrition to a diet.

"Greens" is the generic term that covers several different leafy vegetables which offer not only good taste, but also the type of nutrition that can mean good health.

Greens are exceptionally high in vitamin C and beta-carotene (a nutrient our bodies convert to vitamin A). Two vitamins that have been linked to lower cancer risk. Add a good amount of iron, folacin, vitamin E, magnesium and vitamin B-6, and its not hard to see why greens are known as nutritional powerhouses.

Greens can offer a variety of taste additions to the menu. The mildest are chard, collard, dandelion and romaine. Arugula, sorrel and watercress fall in the semi-mild category, and mustard and turnip greens offer the sharpest bite.

Due to their high water content, greens wilt easily and are hard to revive, so look for bunches that have the greenest, freshest leaves, and avoid those with yellow or discolored leaves. It's best to eat fresh greens right away, but they can be stored unwashed in the refrigerator for several days. Just wrap them lightly in a damp paper towel inside a plastic bag that is punctured to allow some of the air to enter.

Here's a simple spring green soup that is basically a mild-flavored potato soup. The watercress adds both flavor and color.

WATERCRESS SOUP
1 1/2 quarts water
1 bunch of watercress
3 medium potatoes
1/2 cup evaporated lowfat milk
1 to 2 tsp. wine vinegar (optional)

Place the water in a saucepan, salt lightly if desired. Peel and quarter the potatoes, add to the pot and cook until almost tender (about 15 to 20 minutes).

Remove the stems from the watercress and wash the leaves. When the potatoes are ready, add the watercress to the pot and cook for an additional 10 minutes.

Remove from the heat and place the potato and watercress mixture in a blender. Puree and then add the evaporated milk. Taste and add the vinegar if desired. Reheat, if necessary, before serving.

This will produce four one-cup servings, each with 97 calories and 1 gram of fat.

CONCERNED CITIZENS AND YOU SHOULD BE.

- It is sad to say that, one female inmate committed suicide Nov. 1983;
 - One male inmate committed suicide May 1985;
 - One male inmate suffers death due to a heart attack—while begging and pleading to our current Floyd County Jailer for medical treatment Dec. 1986, but was denied. (Poor negligence & uncaring concern on our jailer's behalf);
 - Inmates protested jail by going on starvation (hunger strike) due to indecent and cold meals to eat;
 - One deputy jailer "fired" for assisting a police officer.
- Citizens, none of the above should have happened and we can't change that now, but we can prevent it from happening again in the future by electing me, (Junior Joseph), May 23, 1989.
- (1.) I will install remote cameras for security watch on all inmates.
 - (2.) I will remove all belts and shoe strings from all inmates to prevent anymore suicidal deaths.
 - (3.) I will offer professional counselors and choice of religious guidance to unstable and depressed inmates.
 - (4.) I will be supportive to our police officers.
 - (5.) I, Junior Joseph, will be committed to serving you well and I want to make you feel safe and secure with me first time, every time.

I want to thank you, the Concerned Citizens, for your current and continuous support to help elect me, Junior Joseph, as your next Floyd County Jailer.

Tips Given To Apply For Social Security Benefits

Those planning to retire before reaching age 65 should apply for Social Security benefits no later than the last day of the month they want benefits to begin, according to Jim Kelly, Social Security district director in Prestonsburg.

"Benefits payable for the months before you reach 65 can start no earlier than the month in which you apply," explains Kelly. "However, a widow or widower who is under 65 can apply during the month after the worker's death and still receive a benefit for the month of death."

A person who applies for Social Security retirement or survivors benefits after 65 can receive back payments for up to six months before the month the application is filed, but not before age 65. "The best way to assure payments are received on time," says Kelly, "is to apply three months before you want the benefit payments to begin."

The application can be expedited if the applicant brings his or her Social Security number card, proof of age, a marriage certificate if the application is for spouse's, widow's or widower's benefits, children's birth certificates, and W-2 forms for the past year.

A person applying for disability benefits should have the name, address and telephone numbers of doctors, hospitals or clinics at which he or she was treated.

A person applying for benefits as a dependent parent should bring proof that he or she was being supported by the worker.

For more information, contact the Big Sandy Area Social Security office, located on US 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville.

HRMC Gift Shop Hours Extended

The Highlands Regional Medical Center Auxiliary is extending its gift shop hours, according to Kathy King Allen of the hospital's volunteer services division.

New hours are 9:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Friday, and from 1 to 5 p.m. Saturday.

"The gift shop is a service provided by the HRMC Ladies Auxiliary," said Allen. "Their dedicated time is volunteered and the proceeds from the gift shop are donated to the hospital. This is the auxiliary's way of helping Highlands to maintain the quality health care it provides in the Big Sandy area. Extending the gift shop hours demonstrates this dedication to quality patient service."

The world's largest landowner is the United States Government. It owns over 730 million acres.

GROVER SAMONS

I sincerely believe the good people of Dist. #3 wants a change in our Magistrate's office. We can and will win if you will unite behind my candidacy. Four years ago I received 1,300 votes. As you well know our present Magistrate would like for every candidate to receive a few votes in order to divide the opposition.

We simply can do better in providing services of better roads and cleaning up our district. The game they like to play is to hold up your tax money for 3 1/2 years and then start spreading black-top and gravel six months before the election. You have had enough tricks played on you in the past. I promise you will not suffer for lack of services for 3 1/2 years before the election when I am elected your Magistrate. I will stand up for you and will oppose wrong doings wherever they begin. I agree with many of your statements that it is time we start calling that which is Black—Black and White—White.

Would you please join with me in a solid front for victory in District Three? I am your friend and a man you can depend on to serve all sections of our district.

Your vote will be appreciated.

HOROSCOPE

April 23 through April 29

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20)

Life isn't as bad as you think. You have a lot to be thankful for. Those worrisome thoughts from the past few weeks should subside; fun is just around the corner.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20)

You may have health problems to deal with this week. Take care and get plenty of rest. A child will make your world a little brighter.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22)

Forget your money problems for a while. If you really want something, you are industrious enough to get it. Don't belittle others this week.

LEO (July 23 - August 22)

Take a look at those around you and say hello. You have become extremely anti-social. Your problems are not that bad in the scheme of things.

VIRGO (August 23 - September 22)

You will make great strides toward improving your personal appearance this week, and it will pay off. Be frugal because something great is just around the corner.

LIBRA (September 23 - October 22)

A promotion or some type of recognition at work will happen in the next few weeks. Family members feel neglected. Take them on a short trip.

SCORPIO (October 23 - November 21)

Don't be surprised if someone gives you something special this week. Remember, flattery will get you everywhere. Take preventive health measures.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 - December 21)

Losing a few pounds and buying some new clothes will cheer up your dour disposition. Don't let others get you down. Stand up for yourself.

CAPRICORN (December 22 - January 19)

Give people a break. Your attitude needs some major adjusting. Your family cares about you; don't take advantage of their kindness.

AQUARIUS (January 20 - February 18)

You will have a great night out with a loved one this week. Get ready for some really great news over the next few weeks.

PISCES (February 19 - March 20)

Think before you speak this week at work. Money problems are not as bad as you think. Things will straighten out soon.

ARIES (March 21 - April 19)

This is a good week for you to re-evaluate priorities and find out what is really important to you. Health matters could get out of hand if you don't take care of yourself.

SYNDI-NEWS

Viewers get sneak preview of upcoming series

By Shelia Gillilan

Ah yes, spring is in the air. Children's minds are turning to the summer ahead, lovers' minds are turning to romance, and the television industry is looking ahead to the fall schedule. For those of you who can't wait until then to find out what's going to be on in syndication, here's a sneak preview.

The successful show Fun House will have a spin-off called College Mad House. The late-night, weekend show is geared toward college-age viewers and is scheduled to begin in the fall.

The new Joan Rivers talk show, titled The Joan Rivers Show, will make its debut in September. The show is distributed by Paramount.

Head of the Class star Brian Robbins will host the pilot for the new game show Pictionary. The youth-oriented half-hour show is based on the popular board game and is set to premiere in the summer.

The Byron Allen Show, a weekly talk show headed by the former Real People star, will begin in the fall. It is being produced for CBS and ABC affiliates to air against NBC's Saturday Night Live. The show will feature four guests, including a musical performer, a comedian and an actor or actress.

An old favorite will also be revived in September. Lassie will return as an all-new adventure series. The show will feature Dee Wallace Stone in the June Lockhart role as the mother, and her real-life husband, Christopher Stone, as the father.

By Polly Vonetes

Poet's Corner

(The following poem, written by the Rev. Ralph Hall of Hi Hat, is about the old schoolhouse on the hill at Weeksbury. Hall relates that he spent many happy days there as a child.)

The Old Empty Schoolhouse

Quietly she set upon a hill
Empty now which was once filled.
There was a time, when laughter was heard.
But now the air is filled with silence,
For there are no words.

Broken windows and empty seats.
A giant teacher now sets in defeat.
There are no children in her halls, who now play.
She has nothing to do all the live long day.
Math, reading, and writing she once taught.
Teachers, doctors and lawyers she brought.
It's for the old days the schoolhouse now yearns.

And the highest of honor,
The old schoolhouse deserves.
"A fine school she was"
Oh! how she taught us to think,
And those who never tried always got spanked.

They say she served her purpose,
And for her there is no need.
That in her time she did her good deeds.

So lonely and sad she sets upon the hill.
Her roof is caving in, her doors have fallen down.
But she was a great teacher in a small country town.
Now students are bused to a place far away,
But for we who can remember,
We still love the old schoolhouse of yesterday.

So old schoolhouse lonely, empty, silent and still,
Please don't be sad and mourn all day.
But look to the past, when laughter was heard in your halls.
For history will prove
That you will outlast us all.
I love you, old schoolhouse,
That sets upon the hill.

— The Rev. Ralph Hall,
Hi Hat

The Cat Chase

I saw a cat chasing a rat
I said to the cat
Why do you do that?
The cat said to me
I have a great need
To chase the rat Because I'm a cat.

age 8, Maytown

Happiness

A little bird is building her nest
In the branches of a tree top so high,
She seems so very happy
Working under a cloudless sky.
She's been so busy carrying straws
Held so tightly in her beak
She isn't bothering anyone Ever so busy and seems so meek.
When her work is all finished
T'will be the softest bed you'll ever see
There with her family she'll be so happy
Perched so high in a giant oak tree.
Her satiny bed will be warmed
By the rays of sunlight on her door
There her neighbors can come visit
And they'll sing praises forevermore.
If the people on this earth
Would try a little harder to get along,
They, like the little birds,
Would be singing a happier son.
If their neighbors they would visit
And show them a little love,
Their lives down here would be more peaceful
While giving the praise to God above.

Untitled

Today you're here,
Tomorrow you're gone.
My tears flood my heart
Until the break of dawn.
Knowing in my heart
We were meant to be,
If only your heart
Would lead you to believe.
For you, in my heart,
There is a place.
But I see my absence
In your face.
The rumors of others
In our lives,
The frequent arguments,
And the silent cries.
Now the days
Are turning old,
And without you here,
My heart is cold.
I try to understand
That I have to let you breathe,
But I am afraid if I do
That you will want to be free.
So try to understand
That I am trying to get through,
I don't want to have freedom,
I just want to live you.

Street Folk

Times couldn't be any worse than today
Walking these back streets of L.A.
Been years since I've seen my family,
Don't tell them what really happened to me.

I've been living just outside of town,
Thank God I can lay my body down.
I've heard folk call me lazy trash
You know, once I lived high and fast.

Now everybody calls me street folk,
Most just laugh and make a joke,
They're all the same, them crazy street folk,
They're all insane, them lazy street folk.

Stand by the fire built in a can,
Lord I wish I could feel like a man.
Been years since I've had a shave,
Nobody sees me when they walk my way.

Sunday morning, tears poured from my eyes
On my knees, I saw a hazy blue sky.
Lord, if you're the one who stops the pain,
Tell this world I've still got a name.

PCC Librarian

The history of a state can often best be told in a record of the lives of its people. The following books from the PCC library tell of teachers, politicians, coal miners, authors and pioneers of Kentucky.

Jesse, by H. Edward Richardson. Jesse is about the best known and most widely read Kentucky author, Jesse Hilton Stuart. One of the most prolific and diverse 20th Century writers, Stuart was equally noted for his poetry, short stories, essays, children's books and novels.

The emphasis in this book is on his life, with authentic and sometimes surprisingly intimate insights into his thoughts towards his family, growing up, school days, college life, friendships and his years on W-Hollow.

John C.C. Mayo, by Carolyn Turner and Carolyn Traum. This is the story of the life, struggles, achievements, and influence of Eastern Kentucky's first native capitalist — John C.

Music, Anderson To Marry July 22

Music-Anderson

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin E. Music Jr. of Prestonsburg announce the engagement of their daughter, Tia Rene Music, to John Patrick Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Grant Anderson of Prestonsburg.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Prestonsburg High School and the University of Kentucky. She is employed by the Fayette County Board of Education.

Anderson is a graduate of Prestonsburg High School and Transylvania University. He is a member of Kappa Alpha Order. He is employed by the international accounting and consulting firm of Ernst and Whinney in Lexington.

An open wedding will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday, July 22 at the First Presbyterian Church in Prestonsburg.

Alice Lloyd, by Robert Sloane. Called "Boston's gift to Caney Creek," this little lady traveled from Massachusetts to the rugged mountains and pucker valley of Pippa Passes in 1916. Looking for a place to recuperate from a dreadful stroke, she zig-zagged her horse-drawn buggy over rocky creek-bed roads, penetrating deeply into the heart of the hills. Here she found a shy, but friendly people who had been locked away in the isolation of their mountains. She soon became determined to bring education and enlightenment into their lives.

The story of Alice Lloyd, the founder of the college which was named in her honor after her death, is a legend in Eastern Kentucky. It is a story of one woman's open-hearted determination and of a people's response to that effort.

Kentucky's Governors, by Lowell Harrison. Tracing the governorship of Kentucky from Issac Shelby to Martha Layne Collins, this book contains contributions from 33 scholars, writing about the 51 men and one woman who have filled the executive seat of the state. Some names have become famous; one was assassinated in office, and one fled the state under indictment for accessory to murder.

With an overview by state historian Thomas D. Clark, tracing the historical development of the governor's office under Kentucky four constitutions, this volume is a rich source of Kentucky's political history.

House of Dreams, by Marie Brenner. One of the first families of American journalism, the Bingham, of Louisville, lived charmed, public lives through three generations of literary fame. In House of Dreams, readers find out "the rest of the story." Marie Brenner tells in mesmerizing detail the inside story of the rise and fall of this very public family. A story of scandal and denials, of majestic ideals and sordid compromises, of silken courtesy and spite, of grand illusions and greed, and of splendid achievement and tragic happenings.

The Bingham family saga has all the elements of compelling fiction: a great love affair and a grand marriage, a vast fortune shadowed by a mysterious death, and the star-crossed children and their bitter quarrels. The author has recreated the closed world of a uniquely privileged and tragic dynasty.

Welcome the Traveler Home, by Jim Garland. To much of America, coal miners remain a mysterious group of workers, known only from nightly newscasts — striking over working conditions, rejecting contracts, or being killed in mining disasters. Jim Garland gives his readers a vivid and intimate account of life as a Kentucky coal miner in the 1920s.

A mountain man, bred and born in these hills, Garland came from a family of coal miners. Forced to leave his native state after union trouble, Garland settled in New York, where he became a performer and composer of the folk and protest songs of the '30s.

Through this book readers can see the mountains of Eastern Kentucky through the eyes of one who grew up a part of them, and experience the struggles and hopes of working men during the trying decades of the '20s and '30s.

The Life and Adventures of Daniel Boone, by Micheal Lofaro. Born in Pennsylvania, on what was then the western edge of civilization, Boone heard the call of western expansion and left his farm for the adventure and hunting opportunities it offered. In 1769 he made his first exploration of Kentucky, and brought back tales of that "hunter's paradise" that had many begging to follow him. Boone was a natural leader, and is credited with escorting the first party of settlers into the state through the Cumberland Gap.

In this highly readable account of Boone's adventurous life, Lofaro distinguishes facts from myths, and places the adventurer firmly in the context of his historical period.

Calhoun Mayo. Called "Kentucky's First Business Genius," Mayo organized and participated in at least 76 different companies — the most famous of which were the Northern Coal and Coke Co., the Elk Horn Fuel Co. and the Kentucky River and Coal Co..

Best known through history as the author of the broad form, or Mayo, deed,

The life and activities of John Mayo read like an adventure story off the pages of Kentucky's industrial past. Complete with pictures and bibliog-

Pharmacy Footnotes

DECODING CODEINE

Of all the prescription pain-killers that the doctor might order, codeine is one of the most frequently used, either alone or in combination with aspirin, Tylenol or another analgesic. Codeine is a narcotic and, like morphine, is a derivative of opium. The drug shares most of the pharmacologic characteristics of morphine although it is considerably less potent. Codeine is a frequently prescribed medication for treatment of mild to moderate pain and is also an effective agent for suppression of cough at lower doses. Even in small doses, it often causes constipation and drowsiness. Codeine is addictive, capable of producing physical and psychological dependence and tolerance when continued over a long period of time.
