CBS Gets Negative Reviews For Negative Views Of Area

"Cosby" and whatever else was on the television tube last night didn't have much of a chance at capturing local viewers. Most sets in the region were tuned to CBS-TV's "48 Hours," which was focused on Floyd County.

Following several weeks of local filming and a week full of enticing network promotions, the hour-long show aired to mixed reviews.

The show featured segments on a poor family in the southern corner of the county, Mud Creek Clinic and its founder/director Eula Hall, Wheelwright High School, cock fighting, a teen marriage, deep coal mining, spouse abuse and the Christian Appalachian Project's home building operation. Intermingled were interviews with country music superstar Dwight Yoakam who was born in Floyd County and has recorded songs about the region.

Tension had been heightened by a story in Thursday's Lexington Herald-Leader which quoted CBS reporter Phil Jones as saying: "(The show's) going to look Third World. It's foreign. It's awful. It's filthy. They're not educated. They get up in the morning and watch television, and they do nothing the entire day."

Jones is further quoted as describing conditions in Floyd County as "outrageous." He is said to have told the Lexington writer, "The people I ran into, they just don't have the spunk and the drive to get out of there and make a new life."

With Jones' words as a lead in, many local viewers expected the worst. Some say they saw it.

Dennis Holbrook, town council member in Wheelwright, expressed his disappointment with the portrayal. "It was the same old stereotype we get placed in. I thought they should have concentrated more on some positive things," Holbrook said shortly after seeing the show. "This type of program will be seen by people outside the state and set us back several years."

Echoing Holbrook's sentiments was sheriff-elect Paul Hunt Thompson, who owns a Wheelwright store. "The sad thing is where we're trying to improve education and trying to interest new industry, they've probably set us back 10 to 15 years with one program."

"To deny those things exist, I can't do that," commented Dolores Smith, businesswoman and education activist, in reaction to the problems depicted in the show.

"I saw some comments that meant a lot to me. For instance, the man who said he wanted to work, the family who wanted to stay in one area, the (Wheelwright) students' comments — there's nothing negative in their wanting to better themselves," Smith said. "The only way it (the show) can hurt Eastern Kentucky is if we let it."

"I hope viewers don't come away just angry, but with the desire to do better," she added. "My hope for this program is that it will enable all of us to do a better job than we have done. We need to work for more jobs and to improve our image. We can do better."

Leon Russell, manager of Jenny Wiley State Resort Park, agreed that some aspects of the show could not be denied, particularly the poverty. "It got to me. It made me want to do more to help. Maybe it will get us to thinking. Maybe people like me, and whoever else, need to work harder for economic development."

Tim Hites, businessman and president of the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce, said the program depiction was "not untrue, but it was totally unbalanced. It was terribly negative and focused on a small segment of our population and our economy. Programs like this set us back in some respects."

"I couldn't believe it," was Linda Wright's reaction to the show. Wright, a Florida native who married a Floyd Countyman, added, in a call to The Times, "I have family (in Florida) who watch this show who have never been here. I'm expecting my grandmother to send money soon!"

Wright termed the show "a shame," adding, "People have worked hard in this area to improve (the area) and the show never mentioned them once. There was not one positive thing said."

Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo, while disagreeing with the thrust of the show, did see some positives. "The people they talked to were happy people, their homes were clean. Drugs weren't mentioned. And I thought the Wheelwright High School students presented themselves well. I was proud of them."

Outside of those aspects, Stumbo said he saw little else positive about the presentation. "Overall, it left a bad impression. Programs such as this do nothing to help us promote industry."

David School director Dan Greene called the show "outrageously one-sided and exploitative. It gave the American people an impression that everything is dreadfully hopeless in Appalachia." Greene said he believes the county was "greatly misrepresented on the national level. The show will further perpetuate the legacy of the age old stereotype of unproductiveness."

Greene added that when he had been approached by "48 Hours" researchers when they first visited the county, he was concerned that the show would "ultimately exploit" the problems of the area.

Rose Price, an administrator with the Christian Appalachian Project, said that in her talks with the network representatives she was told "they wanted to show problems and solutions. But I don't think they stressed the solutions as much as the problems." Price admitted, however, that she didn't think the show was "as bad as I thought it was going to be" when measured against the network. See NEGATIVE REVIEWS, Page 2

Wondering Why?

Maxine and Bill Adams and their sons stand on the porch of their house in Muddy Gut, in southern Floyd County. Maxine, who is a member of the Johnson family featured in Thursday night's "48 Hours" believes that show producers misled her during filming conducted in her house.

Poll Says State Ineffective: But Keep Trying

by Frank Clark
Staff Writer

The state's intervention in the Floyd County school system has not been effective in addressing problems of patronage hiring, political favoritism, or low teacher pay, but the state should continue in its efforts to positively change the system within the county.

So says a survey of 362 Floyd County parents and teachers, conducted in October and November by the Floyd County Education Forum.

Releasing the results of the survey on Tuesday, Dolores Smith, an officer of the forum, noted that the purpose of the five question survey was to provide a chance for teachers and parents to express their feelings about the state's intervention in the county's education system.

The Floyd system was placed under Phase 3 of the academic-bankruptcy law in January of this year. This required that state officials take an active role in revamping the county's educational operations, through retraining of administrators and principals, and the implementation of policy reform.

But, as Smith noted in her analysis of the survey, "People in the county had hoped for better results from the state."

Participating in the survey were 187 area parents and 175 Floyd County teachers. When asked if the state's intervention in the school system was positive, a majority, 196, said no, while 137 respondents said yes, the intervention had been positive.

The most dramatic response came when survey-takers were asked if the state has done what it should have, while intervening in the county. An overwhelming majority — 285 to 48 — said no. Both teachers and parents were in equal agreement on this question.

Despite the expressed displeasure at the state's performance in the county, a significant majority — 217 to 112 — said that the state should not move out of the county. Comments from participants on this question supported the belief that problems in the county's education system would be worsened by the withdrawal of state intervention.

The answers given to this question, involving the withdrawal of the state, showed a significant difference between parents and teachers. Close to half of the teachers — 74 to 78 — said that the state should withdraw. Parents were strongly against the state leaving, by almost four to one — 139 to 38.

The two final questions on the survey required respondents to prioritize reforms the state should take to improve Kentucky schools, as well as prioritize the most vital changes needed in the Floyd County school system.

Within the county, the most important changes required to improve the school system, according to the 362 respondents, was an increase in teachers salaries. This response, said forum members, was influenced by the number of teachers involved in the survey.

Change within the current Board of Education was called for next, followed by the removal of politics from the school system, the improvement of materials, supplies and equipment within the schools, and the creation of better school facilities. This ranking was determined by the number of times each category of change was mentioned.

Considering action on the state level by the Task Force on Education Reform, respondents called for, in ranked order, more accountability within Kentucky schools, increased involvement of teachers, parents and the community in schools, a removal of politics from the system, higher salaries for teachers and an improve-

A Chilly School Board Considers Building Progress, Daycare Center

The frigid temperatures at Wednesday night's school board meeting in Wheelwright High School's auditorium didn't improve the mood of those present, though potentially good news, involving the progress of school construction projects and the creation of an after-school daycare service was announced.

Water was shut off in the high school Wednesday, which prevented the heating system from operating. A meeting-site change was not possible on such short notice, so the meeting went on, with all participants bundled up against the cold.

After quickly passing the minutes of Monday morning's special board meeting, which approved the combining of bond sales for the new Allen Elementary and Left Beaver projects, the board opened the floor to scheduled public comment.

Dolores Smith, secretary of the Floyd County Education Forum, presented results from a recent survey conducted to determine county reaction to state intervention in the county education system (see related story).

Concern was expressed by School Superintendent Ron Hager and Board vice chair James Duff that the survey was not representative of the county's population, because only 362 persons responded. Duff noted that this didn't represent a majority of Floyd County citizens.

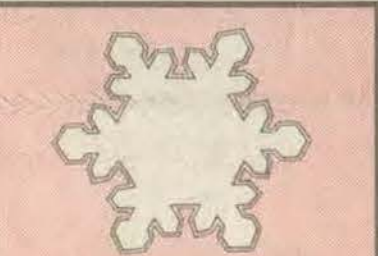

Ernie Johnson, a dropout prevention coordinator at Wheelwright, was recognized by the board and discussed dropout prevention programs for the board's consideration. Hager noted that such programs had been examined in the past, but they were not considered economically feasible. Counselors, currently in the schools, deal with drop out prevention, said Hager.

Jean Rosenberg presented a petition to the board, which would demand Lovell Hall, property valuation administrator in Floyd County, to "correct the inequitable property tax assessments in Floyd County..." and call property owners to cooperate with such an effort. The petition did not generate a visibly favorable response from the board.

The last to be recognized by the board was attorney Steve Sanders of

Time to wax down the skis and sleds.

Santa At VFW Lodge Sunday

Santa Claus will be at the Lance VFW Lodge on Sunday at 1 p.m. to hear from the local children. Lodge members have gathered funds recently to purchase items such as candy, fruit and toys which will be bagged up and handed out to those visiting Santa. The members of the VFW and the VFW Auxiliary expect over 400 children, and have prepared for as many. So bring the kids and bring the camera for some good photo opportunities.

McDowell Nativity: A Gift For Everyone

by Frank Clark
Staff Writer

A little piece of Bethlehem has come to McDowell this Christmas.

If you happen to take a turn up Doty Creek, just past McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital, and wind around up the narrow road for about a mile, you'll come upon the representation of a birthday which happened almost 2,000 years ago. A brightly colored nativity scene, crafted out of wood and paint, graces the yard of the Slone family.

For Sandy Slone, an English teacher at McDowell Elementary School, the surprise for her mother, which she built in her free time, has turned into an artistic gift for the whole community to enjoy.

"I started it about nine and a half months ago," said Slone. "My mom, (Virginia Slone), had always wanted a nativity scene for outside. We saw one in a store when we were shopping together, and she told me I could paint one better. That's when I decided to do it."

After careful consideration, Slone decided to create all of the figures from the biblical scene of the birth of Christ. With the help of brothers and her nephew Brent, she acquired plywood and paint. Her background in the fine arts, coupled with the five years she taught art at Osborne Elementary School stood her in good

The art work of Sandy Slone portrays the reason for the season, displayed in her yard in McDowell. Constructing the 41 piece nativity scene was Slone's hobby for the past nine months, as she cut and painted each figure carefully by hand.

Letcher Man Killed In Mine Car Accident

OVENFORK—Arthur Foutch, 38, was killed Saturday when he was pinned between two shuttle cars at Blue Diamond Scotia Mine in Letcher County.

Foutch was repairing a shuttle car at the time of the accident, when he was struck from behind by the runaway car. Foutch died of chest injuries while being taken to Harlan County Appalachian Regional Hospital.

The cause for a shuttle car to be running loose is under investigation by state and federal mining authorities. (Mountain Eagle)

Jury Cuts Tipple Value In Lawsuit

PIKEVILLE—A Pike County jury Wednesday reduced the alleged value of a condemned coal tipple by $695,000. The state requires that the tipple be destroyed in order to build a new bridge at Shelbiana.

Public Protection and Regulation Cabinet Secretary Teddy Colley and his partner Frank Ramsey of Pikeville, asked for $1.3 million from the state for a tipple that they paid $150,000 for in 1985. The state filed a condemnation suit to have the value lowered, which it was, to $950,000.

However, after two hours and 40 minutes of deliberation, the 12-member jury decided to further reduce the value to $255,000.

According to jury foreman Derek Potter, the lower award was "...just based on the evidence." (Lexington Herald-Leader)

Feds Find No Illegal Dogs

PAINTSVILLE—A federal investigation failed to turn up evidence of illegal dog sales at a weekly swap meet in Johnson County, and officials plan to drop the case.

According to alleged reports, dogs were being illegally acquired from dog pounds in Ohio and then brought to the Paintsville area for sale. This is considered illegal, only if the animals are not licensed by the Department of Agriculture.

A veterinarian for the Dept. of Agriculture said alleged wrongdoings in this matter could not be substantiated. (Appalachian News-Express)

Merged Government Possible For Boyd

CATLETTSBURG—Politicians and voters in Boyd County are considering a merger between the town councils of Catlettsburg and Ashland, and the Boyd County fiscal court.

The purpose of the plan is to streamline services and growth in the county, and to encourage responsibility of officials to the public. Currently, only Fayette County has such a form of government, which was adopted in 1974.

About 1,000 Boyd County residents have signed a petition calling for the change. (Lexington Herald-Leader) promotions and the reporter's statements in the Lexington paper.

Price coworker and CAP's Eastern office director Mike Sanders expressed that he was "very upset that there was no balance." Sanders, who had also met with the film crew when they were in the county, said, "I was very strong in expressing my concern that the people would not get depicted as the stereotype, and I was assured they would show good things."

"I have no problem facing the problems we have in Eastern Kentucky, but I wish (the show) producers would have shown the good stuff the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund of Kentucky, on behalf of two suspended Prestonsburg High School students. Sanders noted that the students were suspended for being tardy to classes, regardless if they were excused or unexcused, and that there had been no communication with parents from the school about the matter.

Hager requested that the matter be taken through the chain of command within the school system, but Sanders requested that the board formulate a policy to deal with suspensions of this type.

Seven teachers were selected to the board's Subject Advisory Committee. They will be required to assist in curriculum decisions for schools in the county, each assigned to consider a specific subject.

Selected were: Joan Caldwell, science, a chemistry and biology teacher at McDowell High School; Libby Hall, vocational studies, a vocational liaison at Floyd County Vocational School; Jayne Pitts, library, a librarian at Prestonsburg Elementary; Ron Robinson, math, a math and physics teacher at Prestonsburg High School; Carol O'Quinn, fine arts, an art and music teacher at Allen Central; Patricia Watson, language arts, a language teacher at Allen Central; and Connie Tackett, social studies, a teacher at Prestonsburg Elementary.

Following requests from parents, Hager asked the board to approve a grant to establish an after-school day care service within the county. The board approved the proposed grant. According to Assistant Superintendent Gary Frazier, the program will be open to all children within the school system, kindergarten through grade 12. A search for funding for the program will begin immediately.

Building progress reports for Floyd school projects were issued. Prestonsburg Middle School is nearing completion in most areas of construction. Masonry work is 98 percent complete and plumbing is 85 percent finished.

Allen Elementary had its bonds placed on the market Monday, Dec. 11, nine days before the announced selling date.

Right Beaver School is on schedule with construction, though the weather will determine continued progress. It was noted that water was a problem at the site. According to the progress report, Beaver-Elkhorn doesn't want to furnish water. The Francis Water Company is entitled to serve the site, but extra costs will result for the board.

Left Beaver School has a confirmed site and a bid for excavation of the property has been accepted. This is scheduled to be finished by April 15. Bonds were put on the market for the project on Dec. 11.

Milk bid increases were requested by milk suppliers to the county schools. According to company representatives, prices have increased significantly since September and Flavor Rich requested that the price per carton be raised by roughly two cents.

The proposal to place two-way radios into county school buses was also examined. Hager reported that he was working with the Left Beaver Concerned Citizens group to identify the best system for the county. Hager quoted a price of $50,000 to implement the new system. Related to the radio issue was discussion involving the right of individual principals to act in case of emergency in their school. Lenny Cieslak, a representative of the concerned citizens group, asked a series of questions about emergency procedures in the school system. Hager refused to answer specific questions about how the board determines road conditions in the county. He did state that he would support the decision of a principal acting to protect children from imminent danger.

As the meeting ended, Jimmy Hall, a janitor at McDowell, served subpoenas to the board, in a case relating to alleged political harassment by school board officials. (Note: A follow-up to the Dec. 13 school board meeting will appear in next Wednesday's edition.)

Child Support Collections Show 40 Percent Increase

Collections of overdue child support in Kentucky rose by more than $15 million — a 40 percent increase — in the federal fiscal year that ended Sept. 30, 1989.

The annual report by the Cabinet for Human Resources Division of Child Support Enforcement showed collections up from $1.6 million in FY 1988 to better than $57 million in FY 1989.

In fact, tougher child support laws, additional parent-tracking manpower and computer systems, plus a major increase in public cognizance about the impact of delinquent child support, have boosted Kentucky's child support collection nearly 14-fold during the 1980s.

"Since the early '80s many collection and enforcement programs have been implemented, such as automatic wage withholding, consumer reporting and the tax intercept program," said Commissioner Mike Robinson, whose Department for Social Insurance administers Kentucky's child support enforcement program. "And these programs have proven tremendously successful."

For example, the consumer reporting program allows for the notification of child support non-payment to lending institutions, making difficult for the delinquent parent to obtain a car or home loan. Since this effort began in May 1988, the reporting program has garnered over $344,000.

Another example is the program which allows for the interception of federal and state income tax refunds. Tax returns are withheld in order to satisfy child support arrearages. During the 1988 tax year, the tax intercept program rerouted more than $7.6 million into the child support program.

"An increased public awareness regarding the financial responsibility of parents is a major factor in the collection increase," said Maxine Stricker, director of the Division of Child Support Enforcement.

"With implementation of innovative enforcement programs it's much more difficult for parents to escape their child support obligation. And although we've made some terrific gains in the last decade, we still have a long way to go," said Stricker.

A cooperative effort between Southeastern states is responsible for providing an address or the employer of 29,037 absent parents during the last federal fiscal year.

The Electronic Parent Locator Network enable child support enforcement officials in eight states to share information from driver's licenses, unemployment insurance, corrections and wage records as to an absent parent's whereabouts.

The growth from $4.3 million in 1980 to $57 million last year represents a 1300 percent increase in child support collections this decade.

Robinson said, "The ultimate goal — putting financial support into the household where children are being fed, clothed and cared for — is much closer to being obtained."

For additional information on the child support enforcement program, call the toll free child support hotline at 1-800-248-1163.

Editors Note: This is an article submitted by one of our readers who found it in her uncle's home on Steels Creek at Wayland. It was printed in the Courier-Journal Magazine sometime during the 1950s to the best of her knowledge. The Rev. J. C. "Clabe" Mosley was born on Frazier Creek in Floyd County and raised his family on Caney Creek in Knott, which was part of Floyd then. He is the grandfather of Raymond Hall of Topmost, and he lived to be 102, even preached a sermon on his 100th birthday, according to Hall.

The Rev. J. C. Mosley is still an active preacher and moderator in the Old Regular Baptist Church. He's 98.

70 Years In The Pulpit

Story and Photos
By GERALD GRIFFIN
Courier-Journal East Kentucky Bureau

THINGS are a lot different now in the valley of Right Beaver Creek than they were when the Rev. J. C. "Clabe" Mosley was a boy, and they are better, too, for the most part. It has been a long time since Clabe was a boy.

Now in his 99th year, this gentle patriarch with a crystal-clear memory, still is an active preacher as well as moderator in the Old Regular Baptist Church.

A minister of the Gospel for more than 70 years, the old man delivered an hour-long sermon on the third Sunday in April at the Caney Fork Church of Old Regular Baptists. He even remembers his text:

"Behold, I make ye a new sharp, slashing instrument having teeth. Thou shalt thrash the mountains and beat them small and shall make the hills as chaff."

Despite his great age, the mountain preacher is able to read without glasses. All the teeth he has are his own and he doesn't even need a cane when he walks, although he carries one each Sunday when he goes to church. A doctor who examined him recently said he was in perfect health. He expects to live a long time yet.

He has no particular formula for his longevity. He doesn't smoke although he often chews tobacco. He doesn't drink liquor, although he did as a young man. He eats whatever he wishes.

Commenting on his age, the old man said, "I have always been a man, from boyhood up, for putting my faith in the Lord. I believe He has always been with me."

Hospitable and courteous, a true mountain man, the veteran preacher lives a little way up on Roaring Branch of Right Beaver Creek in Knott County not far off KY 7. The church where he preaches is about six miles way, on a gravel road near the Raven Postoffice. The Postoffice nearest his home is named Topmost.

He lives with his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John B. Hall, on a little hillside farm. He takes his meals with them but prefers to spend most of his time in a one-room shack behind the house where he can meditate, doze when he feels like it, and read his Bible with nobody to disturb him.

Not that he doesn't like people. He does. And quite often he goes to Raven to spend a couple of days at a time with his good friend, Jonas Slone, the postmaster and storekeeper.

Not too long ago, the old fellow was recognized as the best rifle shot for miles around, and he loved to hunt. But now that encroaching civilization has chased the game far afield, he finds it too bothersome to go hunting. Besides, it pains his legs.

"But you give me a rifle gun right now," he said, "and I can kill a squirrel as far as you can see it." It wouldn't pay to bet that he couldn't do it, either. He's been hunting ever since he was a boy and his first weapon was his grandfather's old flintlock, the kind Daniel Boone used.

The old man, who likes to be called J. C. Mosley, because at his age it sounds a mite more dignified than just plain Clabe, is a storehouse of knowledge of old-time mountain customs and a way of life rapidly passing away. But he likes things as they are now much better than the violence prevalent in his youth.

People are much better behaved now, he said, recalling the days when often it was impossible to hold church services because of wild, drunken men who thought nothing of shooting up the church.

Then there was the time, 70 or more years ago, when he saw Talt Hall "shoot his first man." Before he was hanged over in Virginia, Talt was credited with killing 13 men, including Billy Triplett. And Triplett was the first man Hall ever shot, the preacher said, but it took him three attempts before he finished the job.

The preacher was just a young fellow when he went to vote at an election being held at the mouth of Dry Creek, now in Knott County although it was in Floyd County then, a big crowd, including women and children, was there, for election day provided an excellent opportunity in those days for the people to get together.

Young Mosley saw Hall and Triplett get into a fuss over something. Then Triplett kicked Hall in the shins. Hall walked away, snapping his fingers and asked another man to let him see his pistol. With the pistol in his hand, Hall spun around and fired two shots.

"Billy Triplett fell down when the shots were fired," the old man said, "and Talt Hall walked away. Some constable or deputy sheriff started out to get him but he came back in a hurry when Talt fired a shot at him."

The prospect of 49 counties cooperating to attract jobs and economic growth to this region is an exciting one — unheard of, to date, as far as anyone can tell. Let's just hope it's not too good to be true.

This region has a history of splinterism, and there's never been a better time than now for all to pull together to create a forest of unified development. The splinters reflect a weakening of the grain; the forest symbolizes strength and stability.

The Eastern Kentucky Job Creation Authority, which had its initial meeting Sunday, deserves our support and encouragement. It represents a way for folks from this end of the state to attract some of the spoils that keep falling to the Bluegrass — not only through economic development, but also through more clout in Frankfort.

That's not to say that the city or county development authorities that are already in place need to disband or sit idle on their haunches. They should still be active in trying to attract industry and create new jobs in their home spaces. If anything, they should soon be able to step up their work with the added resources a regional authority can provide. The united voice of 49 counties has got to make a loud boom, much more powerful than one or even five. The fact that they can unite for progress has got to say something positive about this region. Maybe this is the big stick Eastern Kentuckians have been looking for.

Letters to the Editor

Reader Praises Concerned Parents

Dear Editor,
I would like to take this opportunity to compliment the citizens of Floyd County. I have been reading the county newspaper lately and am proud to see the people of our county are taking a stand to make their voices heard concerning the education of the children of our great county. It truly delights my heart to see groups of parents going to the school board meeting and addressing the issues that affect the schools in their community. Education is the only escape from the stereotype that has been placed upon us mountain people. For so many years now each and every person that has went outside their hollers and creeks has been labeled an illiterate hillbilly. I'll be the first person to tell the rest of the world, this is not the case. The education I received at my alma mater of McDowell for 12 years was very rich in basic skills, and even richer in traditional values and morals that set children from our area of the country apart from children who grew up in more metropolitan areas of the United States. Being in the United States Army and having traveled to different parts of the USA and the world I can relate some first hand stories to you of how other people view us "hillbillies" of Eastern Kentucky.

The first thing that really sets us off is our accent. Most people don't realize this is a dialect of Scottish-Irish descent that has been in America for over 250 years. I never realized this until I had the opportunity to hear first hand people from Ireland and Scotland speak. The thing that amazed me most after visiting these two countries was the fiddle music they play. It is exactly like the old time fiddle tunes we hear in our Bluegrass music everyday.

Even here in Germany I see some of our customs. In the Protestant churches here in Bavaria the men and women sit on different sides of the church. This is exactly the way I remember it when as a young man and I would go the Pilgrim's Rest church at Price. Did you know the way we sing in the Old Regular Baptist Church is because when our ancestors came to Kentucky from Europe they only had one songbook and the preacher would say the words of the next line of the song and the congregation would sing it out.

The point I'm trying to make is our hills are rich in culture and tradition and if we allow our children not to receive the best education our tax dollars have to offer, we not only do ourselves an injustice but our forefathers as well. I urge each and every parent, who has a child in the Floyd County school system, to go to the concerned parent's meetings and let the Floyd County School Board know that they are elected public officials and will be held accountable for their actions. WE PUT THEM IN OFFICE AND THEY HAD BETTER REALIZE WE CAN TAKE THEM OUT!

Let's make them understand that no teacher in our schools should be afraid to speak out, and be reprimanded when they attempt to change the system to better provide the children of Floyd County the best education possible. Let's show the rest of this country that "hillbilly" children can and will be an educated work force and just maybe industry will see this and locate in Floyd County. No corporation will locate where there is no work force literate enough to work with today's technology.

In closing let me say again, I'm really proud of every concerned parent in Floyd County. Keep pushing and you will achieve every goal you set for yourself. Remember the progress you may all make today will mean an easier tomorrow for your children and their children. God bless each and every one of you.

Sincerely,
William Leslie Mullins
Staff Sergeant, US Army

P.S. I'm a tax-paying citizen of Ligon and I wish everybody in Floyd County a Merry Christmas.

Report To Kentucky

Sen. Wendell Ford

I am pleased to report that recent legislation passed by the United States Senate will significantly reduce the costs of congressional mailings, or "franked mail."

As Chairman of the Senate Rules Committee, I have been helping to lead the reform effort to limit the number of these mass mailings and ensure accountability and responsibility for the use of public funds for these mailings.

The legislative appropriations bill that has passed Congress contains a provision which will certainly ensure this accountability in the use of the "frank." That provision — establishing separate franked-mail spending limits for the House and Senate — will not only reduce the total costs of franked mailings, but will continue to require the public disclosure of how much funds each Senator spends. House members are not subject to individual public disclosure.

Prior to the passage of this measure, the House and Senate shared a joint account for mailings. The Senate had been taking steps to keep spending down, but the House was spending more each year than the Senate was saving. This legislation will bring an end to overspending on mailings by Congress.

An additional provision in the legislative appropriations bill limits the total number of mass-mailings that each Senator and Representative may send from six per year to a total of three in this calendar year. The savings realized by this limit alone may well be in the millions of dollars.

With the achievement of the separate account, the Senate returned to a practice begun in 1986 which further assures accountability and responsibility in the use of public funds for mass mailings.

By passing a resolution that I sponsored, the Senate voted to divide their new mass-mail account among individual senators and other Senate offices, with the senators' allocations based on the populations of their states. Under the amount appropriated this year the allotments will not make it possible for many senators, including myself, to send even one statewide mass-mailing.

The Senate resolution also requires that all Senate franked mail expenditures be disclosed quarterly in the widely read Congressional Record. Another reform will require that all mass-mail be identified as material "prepared, published and mailed at taxpayer expense."

These measures represent the discipline and fiscal responsibility we have worked so hard for in the use of the frank. With their enactment, the abuses of the franking privilege are coming to end, and this means savings of millions of dollars in taxpayers' money.

Rev. Mosley — (Continued from Page 4)

"But Talt didn't kill Billy that time. He got well. Then Talt shot him again some time later, through a window in his house. And even that didn't kill him. Talt finally killed Billy when he shot him as he was climbing over a stile."

Although he never saw any battles, the old man has a sharp recollection of the Civil War. One event in particular stands out in his memory. That was the exciting day—he was about 6 years old at the time—when word got around that soldiers were coming and killing people.

LITTLE CLABE'S mother gathered up her brood of children and was herding them up on a mountain when a "butting sheep" knocked the boy head over heels. His mother made him get up and hurry on with the rest of the family despite his bawling, and she made him hush crying, too.

"And you know," he laughed, "the soldiers never did come."

Life was rugged in the mountains at the end of the Civil War, the minister recalls. "My parents had a hard time raising their children. Everybody in the country where we lived was broke up after the war and it was several years before the people got on their feet."

Turning back the pages of memory, he dwelt on the days of his boyhood with his favorite brother, Linsey, who died at the age of 92. Linsey, the eldest child, was a year older than Clabe. Both of them became preachers.

"When we were about 8 and 9 years old," Mr. Mosley said, "our mother learned us to spin on the old wheel. And also to milk the cows. And wash the dishes. So we both could spin and milk as good as any women."

"Our mother had a hard time keeping the children clothed. I remember how she would card and spin and sing the good old songs, working day and part of the night to keep the children clothed."

"I still love to sing the good old songs my mother used to sing."

Mr. Mosley's father, who came into the hills of Floyd County with his parents from Tennessee no telling how long ago, would take Clabe and Linsey with him to church and have them sing. That interested the boys in preaching.

When the brothers were about 14 and 15, their father let them hire out to other people so as to help provide for the rest of the family. But the only work available was farming. Nobody in that part of the country in those days dreamed that those Floyd County hills were fabulously rich with coal.

Business Committee Recommends Changes In Education System

Sweeping changes in the governance, finance, and curriculum of Kentucky's primary and secondary educational system are recommended in a report on education reform released yesterday by the Business Committee for Educational Excellence.

In governance, those recommendations include a new CEO position for the Department of Education, an independent school monitoring office, gubernatorial appointment of state school board members with Senate approval, incentives to encourage district consolidation and regional service centers to handle purchasing needs and training for education professionals.

Curriculum recommendations include adopting the student performance standards recommended by the Council on School Performance Standards, providing alternatives to the current teacher certification process and instituting performance standards for teachers.

Changes in financing for Kentucky's school system include drastic improvement in the property valuation system, support of Governor Wilkinson's restructuring/incentive plan, and new funding from broad-based sources.

The Business Committee for Educational Excellence was formed earlier this year by leading business people, the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce, and leading local chambers of commerce throughout the state.

"Education is a top concern of Kentucky's business community," said Dan Ash, chairman of the committee and president of Rohm and Haas Kentucky, Inc., in Louisville. "Without a well-educated workforce, Kentucky will be locked out of the future. Our ability to compete in the world marketplace, and subsequently, our economic well being, is at stake."

"We believe that these changes would tell the world that Kentucky has reached educational excellence and tell industry that Kentucky is the place to locate their operations," said Ash.

Ash noted that the committee has not completed its work. "These recommendations address primary and secondary education," he said. "We will release recommendations on higher education as well as vocational education at a later date."

Priorities For Snow Removal Announced

The state Transportation Cabinet road crew are in place to deal with inter conditions so the roads will be cleared quickly and efficiently.

"It is absolutely essential that we clear the roads of snow or ice so motorists will be able to travel Kentucky safely during the winter months," said Gov. Wallace G. Wilkinson.

In order to accommodate Floyd public travelers' winter driving, the Transportation Cabinet has announced that the Kentucky Department of Highways crew will clear U.S. 23, KY 80 and KY 114 first. The next roads to be cleared will be priority B and then priority C.

"Work begins as soon as precipitation becomes significant," stated Angie Siegel, transportation cabinet representative. "Crews will salt or plow the top priority roads first. The priority system is based on the amount of traffic carried by the road."

Priority A roads include interstates, parkways, urban expressways and other state roads with exceptionally large volumes of traffic. Priority B roads are state primary roads, bypasses and roads with slightly less traffic than Priority A roads. Priority C includes roads such as: Rt. 3, Rt.

2553, Rt. 194, Rt. 1426, Rt. 850, Rt. 7, Rt. 1086, Rt. 680, Rt. 1929, Rt. 979, Rt. 1498 and Rt. 1091.

State secondary roads, rural secondary roads and other routes with equal traffic fall into Priority C category. Priority C roads are those such as: Rt. 2030, Rt. 1427, Rt. 1426, Rt. 3379, Rt. 777, Rt. 1210, Rt. 122 and others.

"The remaining state roads are cleared after these categories have been treated," Siegel explained. "Motorists can plan their trip more safely by using Priority A roads whenever possible during bad weather."

The Department of Highways reports 118,700 tons of salt on hand for the 89-90 snow season. There are 50,600 tons under the immediate control of the twelve districts and 68,000 tons in reserve. The reserve is for release should venter routine resupply breakdown, Siegel noted.

"The Department deploys over 850 heavy vehicles and 2500 workers in response to storm conditions, to clear Kentucky's roads," she continued. "While long range forecasts predict a normal to mild winter, the transportation Cabinet is prepared for a severe one."

Employment Services Recruiting Workers For 4000 Census Jobs

The US Census Bureau needs a lot of good women and men for its decennial population count and now is the time to apply for census jobs at offices of the Kentucky Department for Employment Services.

The department's local offices are taking applications for more than 4000 temporary positions that will be available beginning in March 1990.

"We're recruiting workers for two separate operations," said Employment Services Commissioner Darwin Allen. "Each applicant must take a test that measures reading, clerical and math skills."

"Testing already has begun for 997 positions to be filled before March 1, although few, if any, of the slots have been filled," he said. "Those workers will deliver questionnaires door-to-door. The jobs will last four to six weeks."

The second phase will involve follow-up visits to households that failed to return their questionnaires by the April 1 due date.

"The Census Bureau needs 3000 to 3300 workers in Kentucky for this phase, which will begin the first of May and continue at least through June," Allensaid. "Some people hired for the first phase also may be employed for the second operation, but we think many will not be able to work during both periods."

Successful applicants must meet the following criteria:

- be a US citizen;
- be at least 18 years old, or 16 with a high school diploma or equivalent;
- have an automobile in good working order and a valid driver's license.

Allen said, "Our role is to recruit applicants and refer them to Census Bureau staff, who will administer the tests for the jobs." The bureau plans to have at least one testing site in each county, he added.

Interested applicants should contact the local DES office for additional information.

No Road Test Given

There will be no written test or road test given on Friday, Dec. 22, according to the Kentucky State Police. The written test and road test will resume on Wednesday, Dec. 27 at 8 a.m.

As Shepherds Watched Their Flocks By Night

Each figure in the giant nativity scene created by Sandy Slone displays its own original countenance and characteristics. Slone noted that, unintentionally, some of the figures acquired the features of family members.

stead for her effort. In 1988, she had also created a Christmas scene, of elves and snowmen for her yard, and she relied on this experience to help her in the new project.

"I'd get the sheets of plywood cut into four sections, so I could work with it," said Slone. "Then I'd draw the character on the wood and cut it out with a saber saw. I'd put in an hour here and there, working on the painting, trying to get the right colors. The snow days we had gave me the time to get it finished."

According to Slone, the last baby sheep was finished last Friday. With family help, she was able to set up the elaborate scene of shepherds, wise-men, kings, angels and animals all across their sizable yard in one day, last Saturday. A stereo system provides appropriate music and thousands of lights twinkle from the trees, creating an atmosphere of reverence and awe.

Many have already come to visit Slone's handiwork.

"Last Saturday, they had a tree decorating party down at the hospital and then a hayride afterwards," said Slone. "Everyone came up here, about two hundred people, to see the nativity. It was a real traffic jam out there." Slone was clearly surprised at the attention her nativity scene had received in the last few days.

Said Slone, "All I really wanted was to give this to Mom as a present. I didn't plan on anything else."

From the reaction of the McDowell community, it's clear that Sandy Slone has done much more than that. She has given a Christmas gift to everyone.

Poll

ment in school supplies and equipment.

"The encouraging thing about this survey, is that 362 people chose to express their feelings," said Smith. "While there's still many who haven't expressed themselves, this shows that people aren't apathetic about our schools. It's just that, often, avenues of participation aren't open."

Bud Reynolds, a teacher at Martin Elementary, and acting president of the Floyd County Education Association, a teacher's group, noted that only about half of the teachers in the county completed the survey.

"A number of teachers were intimidated to fill out this form," said Reynolds. "One told me that he was afraid that a hand writing analysis could be done in Frankfort to find out who filled out the survey (all but four of the surveys were unsigned). You may laugh at that idea, but the fear is real among teachers. They're worried about keeping their jobs."

A concern expressed by members of the education forum at Tuesday's conference centered on the state's ability to significantly impact the entrenched system in Floyd County.

Members stated that the state entered the county ill prepared to deal with the realities of a heavily politicized system.

"So far, we have seen only cosmetic changes," said Betty Rowland, Director of the Kentucky Education Association's Prestonsburg office.

"The potential exists, but we haven't seen anything substantial yet. Despite this, the state should continue its course of implementing change."

Information from the survey and on the state's intervention program in Floyd County will be sent to 32 educational groups around the state.

Emerging King Scores 23; Leads Bobcats Past P'burg, 66-47

Watch Out!

Chris Slone (3) of Prestonsburg ties the game on this drive to the basket in first quarter play against Betsy Layne Tuesday night. The Blackcats fell to the Bobcats, 66-47.

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

A big question for Coach Junior Newsome of the Betsy Layne Bobcats — Where has one Phillip King, basketball player, been? What so special about a question like that? If you have been following Bobcats basketball lately you will notice that number 32 that keeps slashing the opposing teams defense and hitting the soft short jumpers is the Phillip King in question. King scored 23 points, had four steals and pulled down 11 rebounds to help the Bobcats subdue a good Prestonsburg basketball team, 66-47.

King, lost on the bench last year, reported to practice this season 25 pounds lighter and with a new attitude and determination according to Bobcat assistant coach Keith Henry.

"I knew he was going to be a good one when I had him on my freshman team," he said. "He told us that he was going to be the best player in the 15th Regional that never played last year."

King is off to a great start in reaching that goal. Against Feds Creek the junior forward tossed in 26 points and had 17 points in his teams lost to Magoffin County.

Ray Collins led the Blackcats in scoring with 14 points. Collins had four three-pointers in the game and Prestonsburg's floor leader, Chris Slone, was held to only five points. Slone was tracked by the Bobcats defense everywhere he went on the floor.

"I thought Larry Hall did an excellent job on Slone," head coach Junior Newsome said. "Right now our strongest point is our defense. Of course this early in the season your defense is always ahead of your offense. But the offense will catch up."

Both teams played close in the first period, with Betsy Layne holding a 16-14 lead. King scored eight of the 16 points in the first period, and six in a 12-2 run. Collins hit a three-pointer with 1:20 to make the score 16-10. Baskets by Kevin Adams and Jeff Slone just by the period end cut the lead to two, 16-14.

Adams' basket in the first seconds of the second stanza tied the game at 16-16, then a 11-2 spurt by the Bobcats opened it up to nine, 27-18. Another three-pointer by Collins and a basket by Stuart Robinson closed it to 28-23 at the half. The long range shooting by Collins early in the third, kept the Blackcats close as the hot shooting guard hit two more three-pointers to draw to within three, 32-29. Betsy Layne then made another run of 16-5 to hold a 50-36 lead at the end of the third stanza.

Robinson got into the three-point act for the Blackcats in the final period, as he opened the fourth quarter with a long 21 footer. Adams then scored on a Bobcats turnover to bring the lead down to nine points. At that point Betsy Layne called time out. After Sam Stewart hit two free throws, Robinson was on target from 21 feet for a "tre." However, Prestonsburg could only manage three points the remainder of the game.

Stewart tossed in 19 points, mostly on short jumpers and some great moves under the basket, particularly a reverse lay-up. Stewart also pulled down 10 rebounds and had three assists. Adam Gearheart hit double figures with 12 points including a three-pointer. Gearheart had also had four assists in the game.

Robinson hit 12 points for the Blackcats as teammate, Adams added eight in a non-starting role. Adams also hauled down nine rebounds for Prestonsburg.

Betsy Layne improves to 2-1 overall and goes to 1-0 in the conference. Prestonsburg loses for the first time and falls to 2-1 and 1-1 in conference action. Both teams have top games coming up as Betsy Layne will travel to Elkhorn City on Tuesday night while the Blackcats will entertain Jody Thompson and the Feds Creek Vikings.

Jamie Smith's 17 Points Leads Betsy Layne Past Lady Blackcats

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

"You didn't see our real team," is the way Lady Bobcat coach Gary Hopkins described the play of his Betsy Layne team, after their 50-34 defeat of a good Prestonsburg team. "Prestonsburg is a good team. They played us tough on defense," Hopkins said. It was a game of running, holding and turnovers as both teams played a scrappy defensive game.

The Lady Bobcats defense keyed on All-Conference candidate, Kathy Slone, as the lefthander was held to only 11 points.

"Nancy Shepherd did a great job on Kathy," explained Hopkins of stopping the high scoring forward.

The 4-0 Lady Bobcats were slow getting out of the gate in the first period. The Lady Blackcats full-court press seemed to bother the Lady Bobcats as they were unable to penetrate the Prestonsburg defense. Missing several easy lay ups didn't help the Betsy Layne attack.

Betsy Layne's outstanding forward, Brenda Hamilton, had an off night as she could only manage nine points in the contest. Hamilton was hurt in the fourth period when chasing a loose ball, she went off the court and struck her knee against a fans "bleacher seat." Referee Jerry Bailey carried Hamilton off the floor. Hamilton is not expected to miss the Lady Bobcats next game.

Betsy Layne held a five point lead at the half, at 18-13. With a lead of 20-15, the Lady Bobcats ran off 18 points to Prestonsburg's two to take a 38-17 lead at the end of the third period. The Bobcats defense held the Lady Cats to only four, third quarter points.

Hopkins says that he was disappointed with his teams effort against Prestonsburg.

"We could have played better," the Betsy Layne mentor explained. "We were flat and wasn't moving our feet. We didn't rebound well in the game. I'm not taking anything away from Prestonsburg. They played us tough and caused us to turn the ball over." The Lady Bobcats were guilty of turning the ball over 25 times in the game.

Jamie Smith led the Betsy Layne team in scoring with 17 points. Smith also pulled down 11 rebounds and the quick forward had four steals. Hamilton's nine points were a season low for her as she has been averaging little over 20 points per game. Hamilton had seven rebounds for the Lady Bobcats. Brianna Boyd came off the bench to spark the winning team, with six points and she had three assists. Shepherd's defense helped her pick off six steals in the game.

Slone led Prestonsburg in scoring with 11 points, as the junior star had to work hard to get the ball. One of her biggest strengths is moving well without the ball. She was held on several occasions and was found picking herself up off the floor frequently. Amy Reed tossed in 10 points for the Lady Blackcats. Carolyn Ref-fit chipped in with seven points.

Prestonsburg coach, Bridgett Clay, says that a lot of positive came out of her teams lost to Betsy Layne.

"We were hurt in the third quarter in our transition game," she explained. "I thought we stayed with them and even outplayed them until the third quarter. We made some mistakes that a young will make and I am sure we will correct those mistakes." "Amy (Reed) and Carolyn (Ref-fit) two freshmen did a great job for us," the Prestonsburg mentor went on to explain. "If we had hit our free

Slow Start Hampers Lady Trojans In Loss 87-57 Loss To Hazard

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Coach Donnie Daniels Wheelwright Lady Trojans got off to a slow start in the first quarter as they dropped a inter regional game with the Hazard Lady Bulldogs. The Lady Bulldogs scored 29 first period points enroute to a 87-57 victory over the Lady Trojans.

C. Fannin scored a game high 28 points in the Lady Bulldogs victory. J. Harris added 25 for Hazard.

"In the first half Jedon (Hood) was playing good for us," Trojan coach Daniels stated, "she had 10 points in the first half. Our mistake was we got into a running game with Hazard and we're just not a running team."

The last lead the Lady Trojans enjoyed was 9-8. Hazard then went on a 21-2 run to take a 29-11 first quarter lead.

Wheelwright, who shot 50 percent in the first half, called time out during the run.

"I tried to talk to the girls and get them out of the running game and back into our half court offense," Daniels remarked, "but they went right back out and ran with them."

In the second half, it was a different game. Trailing by 27 points going into the third period, Wheelwright stayed with the quicker Lady Bulldogs in the quarter.

"We slowed the ball down and set our half court offense. We didn't shoot as well percentage-wise, but we were able to stay with them," Daniels said. "Our girls played hard. I told them they can learn from good teams. It's early in the year for us and we can learn."

Carrie Smith had a good game for Wheelwright with 20 points. Hood added 14 points and Stephanie Little tossed in 11 points. Sharp shooting forward, April Bradford, was held to nine points. Wheelwright shot 75 percent from the free throw stripe making 18 of 24 charity tosses.

Wheelwright will travel to Feds Creek Monday evening for a game with the Lady Vikings.

Trojan Comeback Falls Short In 80-74 Loss To Millard

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

For Wheelwright coach Monroe Jones and his Trojan team, there was not enough time left in their comeback attempt against the Mustangs of Millard last Tuesday night. The Trojan's fell to the Millard team, 80-74, in a game played at Wheelwright.

Millard was led in scoring by their big center, 6' 6", Barry Hopkins. Hopkins scored 27 points and had 11 rebounds, in what his coach Dillard Taylor termed "a low profile showing."

"Barry didn't really stand out in the game like he usually does. His 27 points were a quiet 27," Taylor explained. "He really didn't have a good game. He is the kind of player that can dominate the situation. He didn't against Wheelwright. I'm surprise that he got 27 points."

According to Coach Taylor, the senior leadership of the Mustangs showed in his team's win over the Trojans.

Wheelwright was trailing by 10 points, 59-49, going into the fourth quarter. The Trojans, behind the scoring of Bobby Hood, mounted a comeback in the period.

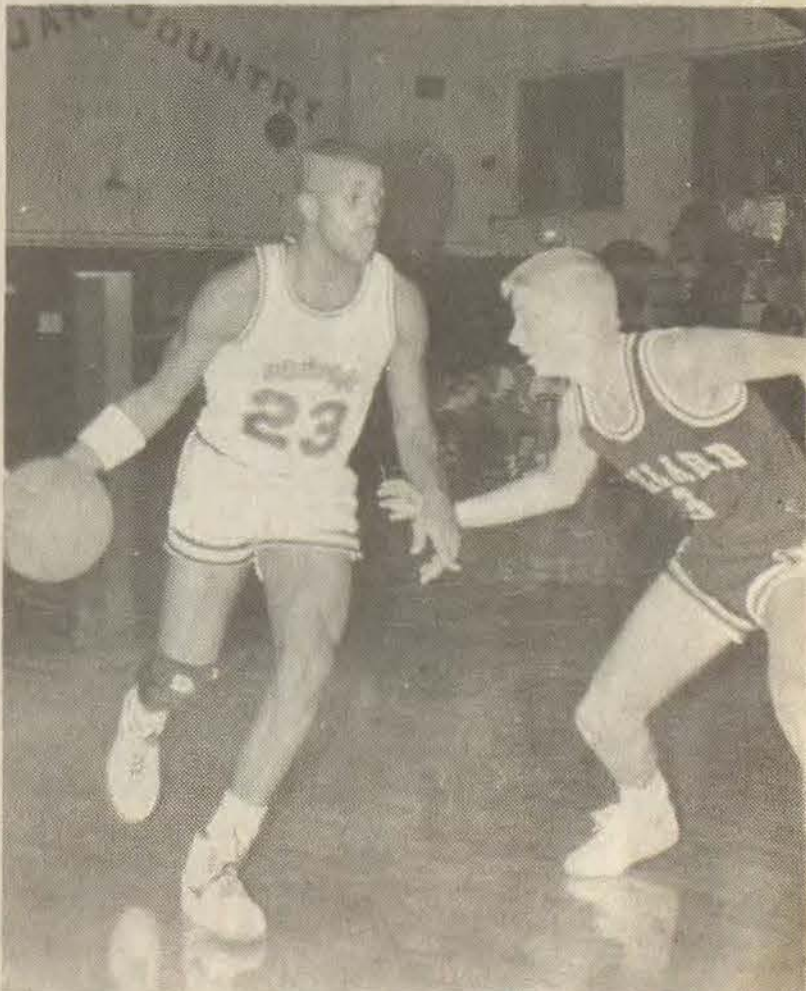

"Wheelwright played a good game against us," the Millard mentor stated, "and they have an excellent guard in Bobby Hood. The game could have went either way, and that is when our senior leadership took the lead."

Wheelwright could not come closer than the final margin of six points.

Hood led the Trojans in scoring with 22 points, his high for the season. Sophomore Harold Johnson continues his hot shooting with 19 points. Brad Compton, Steven

J. Porter To Take Part In "Battle Of Atlanta" Meet

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

James Porter, Allen, will be busy in the months ahead as he prepares to travel to Atlanta for a big battle. Porter, who is a student at the University of Kentucky, will be taking part in the biggest karate meet in the nation. It is estimated that the "Battle for Atlanta" will draw between 2200-2500 participants in late April.

"It's going to be a big meet," Porter explained. "Some of the top karate teachers and students will be there. Also at the match will be some of the top performers and actors in the United States as spectators."

Porter, who works during the summer as a karate instructor, teaches an elective course in karate for children under 16 years of age.

"It's an incentive to get them to stay in school, study and improve themselves," Porter explained. "We had around 100 kids in the program this past summer with 98 percent staying in school. It's for the high risk drop out students."

Porter plans to work extensively in preparation for the upcoming "Battle for Atlanta" match in April.

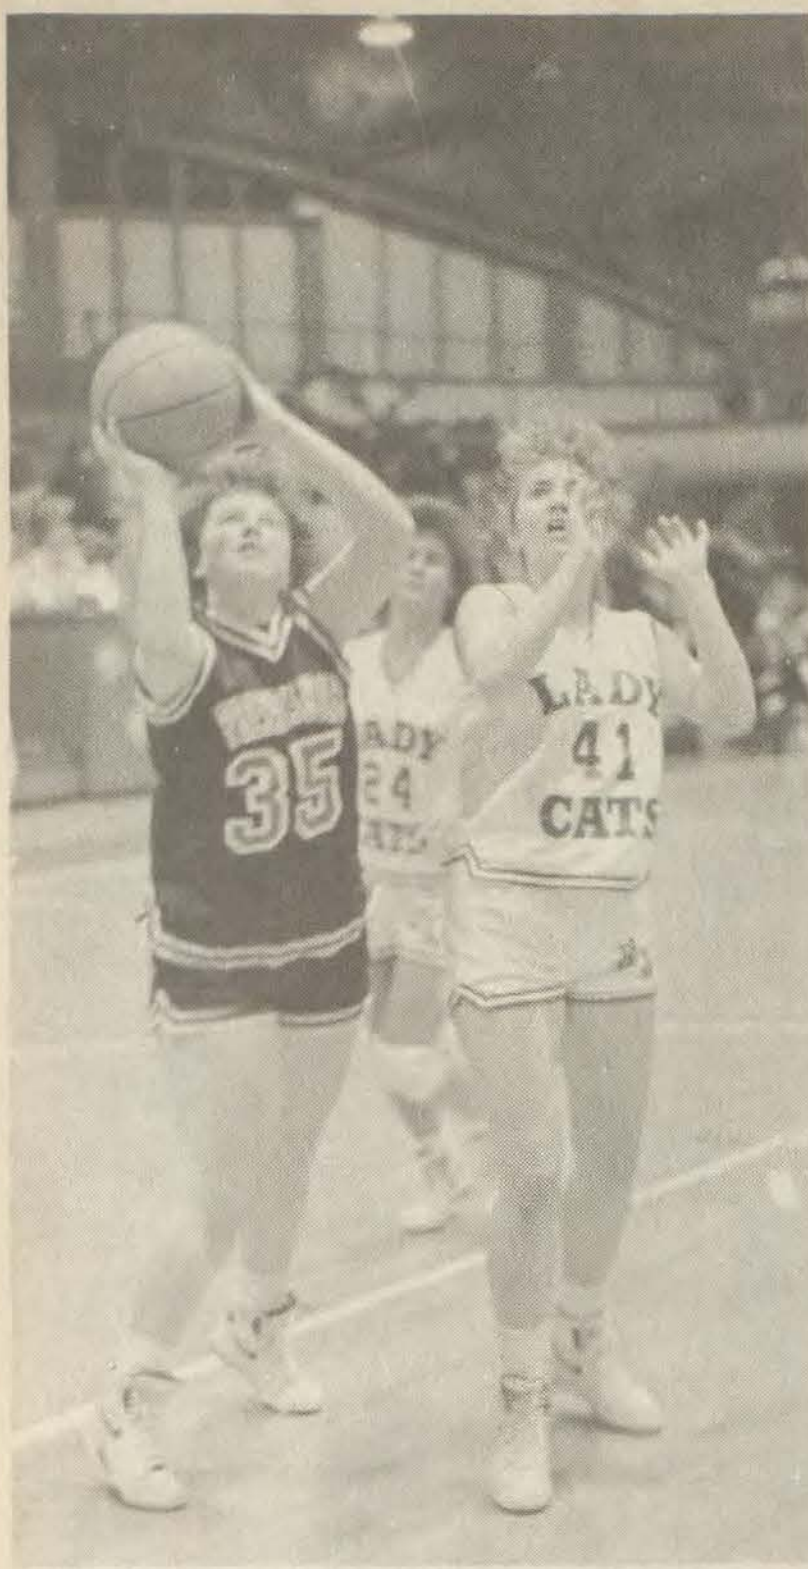

"I'll work out until about the last week before the meet," he said. "I'll be doing some road work, bag work and working on speed and power in the hands and feet."

"In January I'll get some sparing partners and practice against them," stated the karate enthusiast.

According to Porter, the sport is a rough one to be in.

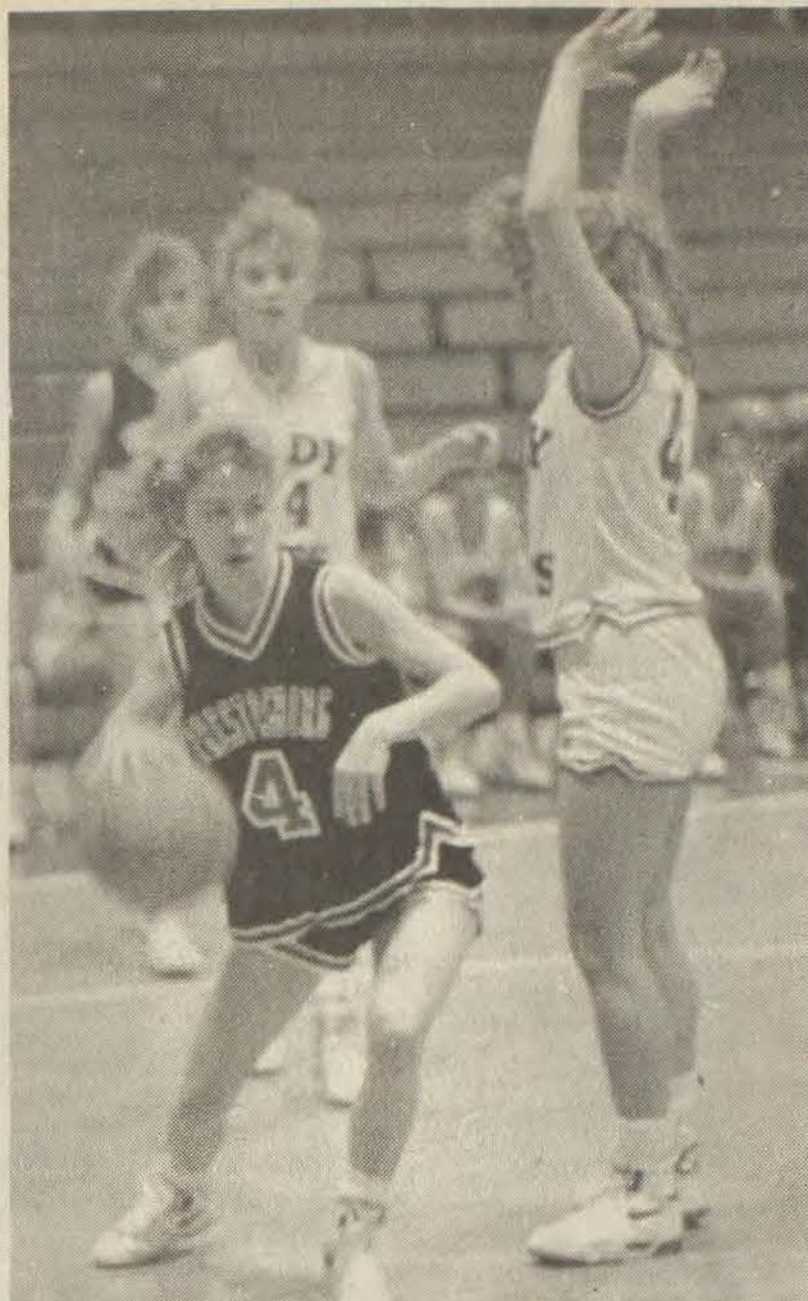

"It is a contact sport (to say the least)," he said, "and I have seen some noses broken and loss of teeth. Temper some times get out of control also."

There may have been a battle for Atlanta in "Gone With The Wind", there is another on the horizon, as over 2000 karate experts converge on the southern city.

Balanced Scoring Leads Martin To Opening Tournament Win

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Floyd County Grade School basketball tournament finally got under way Wednesday night at the Betsy Layne gym after being canceled because of snow.

The defending county champions, Martin Purple Flash, opened the tournament with a big 52-39 win over a good McDowell Daredevil team.

Martin placed three players in double figures with Glenn Floyd leading the way with 13 points. Ronnie Sammons added 12 points and teammate Hubert Likens tossed 11.

Both teams opened cold in the first quarter with McDowell holding a two point, 8-6 advantage. The Purple Flash improved their shooting in the second quarter to lead at the half, 22-20. "Being defending county champions you have a lot to lose if you get beat," Martin coach Jim Hopkins stated, "and McDowell came into the game with nothing to lose and they played loose basketball and stayed close the first half. They played us close in the two previous games we played earlier in the year. McDowell played as good as they could in the first half."

Martin returned to the court in the third period and outscored McDowell 15-4, to take a 37-24 lead into the final stanza. Both teams played even in the final period, as the Purple Flash took step one in defense of their county title.

"We stood around offensively in the first quarter," said Hopkins. "We made some adjustments on defense at the half. Our defense caused McDowell to make some mistakes and we took advantage of their turnovers and scored off them. We started moving on offense in the third quarter."

Chris Hamilton led the Daredevils in scoring with 15 points. Allen Moore tossed in 10 and Shannon Newsome was held to just eight points. Ryan Hamilton chipped in with six.

Martin advances to the semifinals on Tuesday, going against the winner of the John M. Stumbo and Prestonsburg game. Martin won twice over Stumbo and their only loss came at the hands of the Blackcats.

Top Games On Tap For Tournament Tomorrow

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Six games will be the order of the day, tomorrow, when 12 teams will converge on the D. W. Howard Fieldhouse at Betsy Layne to pick up where they left off as the Floyd County Grade School basketball tournament resumes.

Martin's boys and girl's teams have already advanced to the semifinal round with earlier victories Wednesday night. The semifinals will be held Tuesday evening, Dec. 19, with Martin scheduled to play the winner of the Prestonsburg and John M. Stumbo game. The Martin girl's will also be in action on the same night against the winner of the Stumbo and Clark girl's contest.

In the first game tomorrow, scheduled for a 10 a.m. start, the Stumbo Lady Mustangs will encounter the Lady Indians of Clark. Stumbo, champions of Section III is undefeated on the season. Clark, runners-up in Section IV, had a good season losing only three times. Stumbo is strong team with size and quickness. Dee Dee Martin leads the Lady Mustangs scoring attack. Clark will be looking to Jamie Clay and Christy Little for their offense.

In the second game of the day, John M. Stumbo boy's, winners of Section III, will go against perennial power Prestonsburg. The Blackcats lost in a close one to Allen in the finals of Section IV play. The Dynamic Duo of Derrick and Jason Newsome will be a threat to the Blackcats. However, Blackcat coach Ashland Gearheart has his own chargers to look to in Chad Caldwell and Damion Stepp. Prestonsburg probably fields the biggest team in the county.

After an hour's break, action will continue with the McDowell girl's, winners of Section II, squares off against Section I runners-up, the Maytown Lady Wildcats. The big order for the Lady Daredevils will be how to stop the onrush of one Marsha Brown. Brown is quick and knows where the basket is. Game time for this one is at 2 p.m.

The only undefeated boy's team, Osborne, will take to the court at 3:30 p.m. against the Wayland Wasp. Osborne is also a big team with some double figure scorers in John Hall, Charles Johnson and Chad Slone. Wayland will counter with one of the best grade school players in the county, Jason Martin. Supporting Martin will be Todd Hansford and Donnie Combs.

After the second break of the afternoon, the tournament will continue at 6 p.m. when Christina Compton's Allen Lady Eagles will charge onto the court to do battle with the Lady Bobcats of Betsy Layne coached by Shelia Ortega. Allen has a dynamite player in April Newsome, just a sixth grader. Ortega's team has a trio of players in Becky Kidd, Jamie Ratcliff and Kristy Osborne that can rebound and score.

The evening will conclude with perhaps the best match up of the first round, when David Mosley's Allen Eagles will go against the Harold Red Devils for the fourth time this season. Both teams have more than just one individual scorer. Allen has a good one in Cory Reitz a little lefthander who can shoot and at the same time run the team at the point guard position. Throw in Phillip "Snake" Patton, 6' 2", and you have rebound strength. But that is not all, Matt Porter and Eugene Blackburn along with Joe Howell rounds a pretty balanced attack. But before you start feeling sorry for the Red Devils, just look at who heads up their potent offense. Brian Hunter, who possesses some good moves underneath the basket and is not afraid to get in and mix it up under the basket, is a consistent double figure scorer. But that's not all, Chris Potter and Barry Clark teams with Hunter to form a very potent scoring threesome. The Red Devils have won two of the first three meetings of the two teams. This should be a good one to end the evening with.

Come out and support your local grade school team and cheer these young men and women on. See you there!

Bobcats To Face Young Mullins Team Tonight

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Coach Junior Newsome and his Betsy Layne Bobcats, fresh off a big conference victory over the Prestonsburg Blackcats, will entertain Greg Napier and his Mullins Tigers tonight. The Bobcats won over a good Prestonsburg team, 66-47 Tuesday night.

A desire to win and team quickness is one of the Tigers strengths this year. The Tigers also can go deep off the bench this season. Mullins returns their leading scorer from last year, Russell Clark. Clark is also the lone returning starter for Mullins. The Tigers were 10-18 last year and took Pikeville to the wire before losing in the district tournament, 61-60. Keith Justice will also be among some of the inexperience returnees this time around, although Justice was the sixth man on the Tigers squad last season.

The Bobcats have been led by Phillip King, a 6' 2" junior. King has brought some consistent scoring to the Bobcat attack along with Adam Gearheart to go along with All-Conference candidate Sam Stewart. Defense is the name of the game of the younger Bobcats this season. Veteran coach Junior Newsome has his team playing a strong "D". According to Newsome, the offense will catch up with the defense in time.

Game time, 8 p.m.

In Quest Of Fifth Straight Title Lady Flashes Rolls By Osborne

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Doug Derossett's Lady Flashes of Martin are in pursuit of their sixth straight Floyd County Girl's basketball championship. The Lady Flashes opened the defense of their own crown with a 54-38 subduing of the Lady Eagles of Osborne.

"It wasn't the best game we played this year, but we got the win," says the Lady Purple Flashes mentor, Doug Derossett.

Martin's girl's program has been a successful program down through the years and are a heavy favorite to repeat. Standing in the path of the Lady Purple Flash will be the Lady Mustangs of John M. Stumbo, who defeated Martin twice during the regular season.

Tracy Dingus scored a game-high 18 points to help the Martin girl's to victory. Kristel Floyd added 11 points in the win.

Martin jumped out in front, 15-5, after one quarter and never looked back. A Martin versus Stumbo match up seems to be evident as Martin will face the winner of the John M. Stumbo and Clark Lady Indians game. Stumbo is the only undefeated girl's team in the tournament.

For Osborne, they were led in scoring by Candance Holbrook with 12 points. The Lady Eagles also placed two other players in double figures with Crystal Isaac and Crystal Martin each added 10 points for Osborne.

Martin (54) Tracy Dingus, 18; Jenny Robinson, 4; Roni McKinney, 6; Krisel Floyd, 11; Angel Hancock, 2; Eula Robinson, 1; Kathy Conn, 5; Jen Mullins, 5; Amanda Waddle, 2.

Kentucky Afield

By Carolyn Lynn

DEER HARVEST SLIGHTLY UP, SMALL GAME HUNTING GOOD

Nearly 65,000 deer were taken by Kentucky hunters during the 10 day season in November, according to preliminary reports from the state's nine wildlife districts.

The figure shows a slight increase over last year's total deer harvest.

Deer populations were reported up in districts comprising Central and Eastern Kentucky. In remaining portions of the state, deer numbers were either up or about the same as last year.

The increase in both harvest and population levels seems to indicate two things — that deer restoration in Eastern Kentucky is paying off, and deer herds across the state are recovering from the effects of 1988's drought.

During the first six days of reopening of small game seasons, hunters took 1,661 rabbits, including 42 limits, while quail hunters bagged 813 birds with 12 limits.

Grouse hunters are reporting fewer birds but better hunting this year. According to Jeff Sole, wildlife biologist for the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, grouse hunters are flushing an average of one bird per hour while in the field.

Grouse hunting is limited to the eastern half of the state.

48 Hours Visits W'wright High School, Interviews Student For CBS Program

by Charlene Cook
Student at WHS

A film crew from CBS's "48 Hours" came to Wheelwright during November to film a segment about WHS which was aired last night. Linda Martin, the producer of the series, followed three students during their daily activities.

LISA ANN JOHNSON

According to Martin, 48 Hours came to Wheelwright to adapt on how the educational level is at WHS. Some students from WHS were upset at the filming because they felt that the program would present them as "ignorant Hillbillies."

The article in the TV Guide describes as "a forgotten corner in America," Muddy Gut Hollow, a rural Floyd County locale that's beset by poverty and isolation. Including how strong family bonds have helped some survive the decline of the local coal-mining industry.

"It was scary to think that the whole nation would see my daily activities. I was really nervous not knowing what to say, and how to say it. I was afraid that I would say something that would sound stupid," said

Lisa Johnson, one of the students interviewed.

They asked Johnson if she would send her children to WHS, and she replied, "Yes, I would because Wheelwright is a great school. They have excellent teachers who care for us and how we feel."

Johnson thinks that the reason they picked her was because she lives in Muddy Gut Hollow. "They told me that the reason they picked me was because of my grades (3.55 gpa). According to the TV guide, it seemed to me that they picked me because of my hollow. If I had known that they were going to do that, I would have never agreed to it. I would never hurt anyone on purpose. I may not have a lot of money, but I have enough love and understanding from friends, teachers and my family to replace any amount of money in the world."

The crew followed Johnson through her classes, the camera was on her the whole time, and she said it really began to bother her. "I couldn't turn around unless the camera was there. I don't know what the TV show will be about, but I hope that everyone will look at me for what I am, not what they say I am. I'm not poverty stricken nor am I isolated. I have a nice home, nice clothing, a nice car and a GREAT LOVING FAMILY!"

A Gift Of Love

Ruth H. Webb's first grade class at Auxier Grade School are working on a project entitled "A Gift of Love—One Which Money Cannot Buy." The students design holiday packages using wrapping paper and ribbon and insert Gift of Love Story Booklets in which they have written what they would like to give and these are displayed under the Christmas Tree. Webb believes this hands-on activity will promote creativity and enhance critical thinking skills.

Five Local Students In Duke Talent Program

Three students from Melvin Grade School and two students from Osborne Elementary School will be participating in the Duke University Talent Identification Program this year, according to Bobby Jones, school counselor. This program identifies bright seventh graders from a 16 state region in the southeast United States. To become eligible, students must have scored at the 97 percentile on an in-school achievement or ability test.

These five students are: Brandon Holbrook, son of Dennis and Linda Holbrook of Wheelwright; Justin Ray, son of Debbie and Ricky Ray of Melvin; Phillip Johnson, son of Kathy and Ricky Johnson of Wheelwright; Kelly Bates, daughter of Doras Bates of Bevinville and Bud Gates of Lexington; and Doug Caudill, son of Rita and Michael Caudill of Bevinville.

These students took the ACT on Saturday, Dec. 9 at Prestonsburg Community College to qualify for further advancement in the TIP, according to Bobby D. Jones, school counselor.

What's Going On At Auxier Elementary

The children at Auxier Elementary School have been very busy recently with interesting hands on activities to enhance their learning curriculum. The following is a synopsis of programs in which the students have recently participated, and where submitted by each class:

Mrs. Stambaugh's seventh and eighth grade class at Auxier Elementary recently completed a unit on propaganda. The class was divided into groups. Each group had the responsibility to write and produce a television commercial. The commercial subjects varied from clothing, food, cleaning supplies to substance abuse. This activity was video taped and presented to the class.

Mrs. Aiken's fifth grade class has been enjoying the newly adopted science textbooks and experiments. The unit they're studying now is sound. Recently the students performed three different experiments with sound: The first was using drinking straws to create musical instruments, the second was using plastic rulers and the edge of a table to make different tones, and the third used glass bottles filled to different levels with water to emit a variety of notes.

The TMH class recently traveled to Press to see the holiday decorations and they went to The First United Federal Savings Bank for an open house.

Auxier Elementary students in Ms. Sublett's seventh grade class completed paper mache models of the planets which will be used for the construction of a learning center in the classroom. In addition, after some research, each student presented a written report on the various planets which will also be a part of the learning center.

The students in Miss Darrell's first and second grade class have decided to collect clothing, toys and food to be distributed to children or families who are in need. Students realize that some families are not as fortunate as their families, Darrell said. "We have decided that Christmas should be a time for giving and sharing. These items collected will be taken to the Rescue Squad in Prestonsburg for distribution.

Linda Hall's third grade class at Auxier has been learning about poetry in English class. They have learned that they can listen to poetry for enjoyment. The students have been learning all the different forms of poetry, such as couplets and tercets. The students are also writing poems, some with art work, which are on display in the classroom.

Mrs. Buckford's fourth grade class performed a Thanksgiving play for grades K-2. The play was entitled "Turkey Hunt," and the plot involved various animals trying to protect the turkey from the pilgrim which in end just wanted to invite him to Thanksgiving dinner. The students also put on a pilgrim style, song and dance number.

4-H News

In days to come this column will address many of the questions about 4-H that have been asked over the past few weeks. The inquiries have been good and hopefully the answers provided will satisfy.

Over the past few weeks 58, 4-H clubs have reported officer results for publication. Those clubs that have not done so, need to do so quickly.

Results have been returned from seven clubs this week. With these returns Allen, Garrett and Wayland are close to having all of their clubs reporting. These three schools are lacking only one club for completion.

This week's results are as follows:

Class Cooking: Chocolate Candy Cane Cake

by Mark F. Sohn

I didn't want fruit cake for Christmas — I wanted chocolate. Chocolate with peppermint — I wanted and craved it, and so I created this cake. I have baked it twice. This Chocolate Candy Cane Cake combines a Minnesota Fudge Cake from The New York Times Cook Book, by Craig Claiborne with Evelyn Dawahare's Marshmallow (Seven Minute) Frosting. It is decorated with candy canes and chocolate mints.

ABOUT SEVEN MINUTE FROSTING: An old classic, most cookbooks say to beat all the ingredients over boiling water and when it forms stiff peaks, replace the hot water with cold and beat until it is cool. The method given below is far easier and give excellent results.

DIFFICULTY AND YIELD: Difficult. With 15 ingredients and several steps, this cake will take some time to prepare. If you are watching your calories, it serves 16, or if you want to celebrate, it serves eight.

INGREDIENTS:

- For the Cake
 5 eggs, at room temperature
 2 1/2 cups granulated sugar
 4 1/2 squares of unsweetened chocolate,
 1 3/4 cups milk
 3/4 cups butter, at room temperature
 1 1/2 tsps vanilla extract
 1 1/2 tsps baking powder
 3 cups sifted cake flour
For the Frosting
 2 egg whites, at room temperature
 1/2 tsp cream of tartar
 1 pinch salt
 1/2 cup sugar
 1 tsp vanilla
 3 drops red food coloring
 1/2 tsp peppermint extract
 1/2 cup boiling water

- For the Decorations
 4 ozs. small candy canes crushed into pieces 1/4 inches long
 8 small candy canes
 16 French chocolate mints (Fannie Farmer mints are the best I know but Russell Stover are available in many stores and they are quite suitable.)

Steps: Several hours before starting the cake, take the eggs, milk and butter out of the refrigerator and let them come to room temperature.

Place the baking rack in the upper 2/3 of your oven. Preheat the oven to 350 degrees and grease three 9-inch round cake pans. For best results use non-stick pans or line the bottoms with waxed paper, greasing both the pan and the paper.

In a small sauce pan beat one egg and combine it with 1 cup of sugar, 3/4 cup of milk and all the chocolate. Place this over medium heat and cook, stirring constantly, until it thickens like a custard sauce. Cool to room temperature — I place the pan in a larger one with water and ice.

Place the butter in a large mixer bowl. Beat on high for a minute. Add the remaining sugar and beat on high until the sugar is white and fluffy. Add the vanilla and eggs — the eggs go in one at a time, beating well after each addition.

Sift and measure the flour. Mix the baking powder in and add this to the butter mixture alternately with the milk. After it is smooth blend in the chocolate mixture. Pour equal amounts (I use a scale) into the three baking pans and bake for 25 to 30 minutes. When a toothpick inserted into the center of the cake comes out clean or when the center of the cake is firm to the touch, remove it from the oven and cool.

At this point I could not resist the cake, so I served one layer with vanilla ice cream. That left me with two layers to frost and decorate. I froze them to make the job easier — I would ice them for Christmas Dinner.

Prepare the Frosting: In a warm mixer bowl (I use the copper liner that fits my Kitchen Aid mixer) mix the egg whites, cream of tartar, salt, sugar, food coloring, peppermint extract, vanilla and boiling water. Beat this one high until it is stiff enough to use as a frosting. Frost the layers and sides of the cake. Thanks, Evelyn, for this recipe.

Decorate: Take the crushed candy cane in your finger tips and press it into the side of the cake. Then, as shown in the photograph, add the 16 mints. Place the candy canes inside the mints, pushing them into the cake.

Serve and enjoy. It is a chocolate candy cane cake and you read about it in Class Cooking.

Lesson/Activity: Art. Christmas Tree Ornaments, Grades 3 to 6. Bring your family together, add some glue, paint, cotton and glitter and you too can make some tree ornaments.

Activity 1: Hanging Egg Shells. When you make this Chocolate Candy Cane Cake, blow the egg out of its shell and save it for a tree ornament. On one end of the egg make a small pin hole. On the other end, make a larger hole. Blow through the smaller hole. Decorate with fringe, glitter, etc. Cover the larger hole with a ribbon — loop to hang the egg.

Activity 2: Gourd Ornaments. Dry, spray paint, and decorate the gourds you have left from Thanksgiving. (I save this year's gourds for next Christmas, it takes that long to get them dry.)

Activity 3: Nut Shell Ornaments. Glue two walnut shell halves together, placing a looped ribbon between the halves. Decorate. Or, use half a walnut shell for a baby cradle.

Activity 4: Paper Snowflakes. Using white paper, fold and cut symmetrical designs. Hang the snowflakes on your tree.

Activity 5: Copper Imprints. Cut bells, balls or stars from copper flashing. Use small nails to add designs.

Until next time... I hope you enjoy this cake, the decorations and your Christmas. Merry Christmas and Happy Cooking.

Yum Yum

Not very rich, this chocolate and peppermint flavored cake looks great, is fun to make, and will delight your Christmas guests. It is a Minnesota Fudge Cake combined with Evelyn Dawahare's Marshmallow Frosting, it is decorated with candy canes and chocolate mints. For some Christmas fun, see the Lesson/Activity: Christmas Tree Ornaments.

Homeowners Warned To Check Wood-Burning Stoves

Homeowners should check their wood-burning stoves for creosote residue before use because it poses a fire hazard, an Extension specialist said.

Resulting from wood tar distillation, creosote, a sticky, oily liquid with a pungent odor occurs anytime wood is burned and is especially dangerous during the first few fires in the stove.

"Creosote is a natural by-product," said Gene Ball, Extension safety specialist with the Floyd County Extension Agency. "When the temperature of the chimney falls below 250 degrees, creosote tends to accumulate on cool surfaces."

If there's a really hot fire burning during the first cold days, "creosote can ignite and cause a chimney fire," Ball said.

Creosote builds in chimneys from slow, smoldering, smoky fires; airtight stoves; cold, oversized chimney; and creosote build-up from previous years.

Ball said homeowners can check for trouble signs in wood-burning stoves by looking for sluggish burning and black smoking while re-fueling.

"You also can check the stove for creosote by tapping the stove pipe," Ball said. "If there's a dull thud when it's tapped, that's a good sign that there's build-up."

Floyd County Families: Our Heritage

In Deed Book N, Pages 256 & 257 is a deed that is barely legible. I would insert a copy, but I think its best to type it here, so that it can be read as I think it is one of many deeds that is conveying the assets and other things pertaining to the estate of Robert. It is as follows: (Spelling and no punctuations as it is shown).

Whereas in the action of Susannah Mead and other plaintiffs against Nancy C. Cannard defendant then pending in the Johnson County Court an order was entered at the August term 1870 directing Richard Davis, Isaiah Conley and Wm. R. Wheeler a commissioner of said court to make division and allot dower in the hereafter described and whereas report of division of said property was made in accordance with said order on fifteenth day of February 1871 and whereas the report of said division and allotment was confirmed by the said court at the April term 1871 and at the same term one order was entered directing the commissioner to execute a deed of conveyance of said property to said parties respectively as divided and laid off by said comm. now therefore this indenture and entered into this 1st day of Sept. 1871 between Susannah Mead, Catherine Branham, Turner Branham, Robert Mead Jr., Samuel Mead, Mahulda Wynn, Robert Wynn, Rhodes Mead, Leash Mead, Alexander Williams, Samuel P. Williams, Columbus Williams, Polly A. Reed, Daniel Reed, Catherine Williams, Suckey J. Williams, John Williams, Sofrana Williams, Joseph Williams, Margaret Williams, Margaret Hamilton, Wm. Hamilton, Mahulda Williams, Martha Williams, Frances Williams, Estila Williams, Susan xxxxxxx Mead (the name Williams in this name is struck through and the name Mead replaces it) Lucinda Mead,

Louisa Mead, Corda Mead, and Nancy Catherine Canard all parties to the aforesaid suit by James E. Stewart commissioner of the said court of the first part and Robert A. Mead of the second part. Witnessed that for and in consideration of the premises and for the further considerations of the full payment of the purchase price aforesaid the receipt whereof is hereby acknowledged the part of the first party by himself James E. Stewart as commissioner aforesaid has sold & by this writing do convey to the party of the second part and his heirs and assigns forever the following described property to wit:

In testimony whereof said James E. Stewart as comm. aforesaid has herewith subscribed his name this 7 day of Sept. 1871.

James E. Stewart Comm.
Commonwealth of Kentucky SCF
Johnson Circuit Clerks Office
I C. J. Howes, Clerk of the Johnson Circuit Court do hereby that this deed from James E. Stewart Comm. of said county to Robert A. Mead was on the 1st day of Sept. 1871 presented in open court by said James E. Stewart Comm. and was by him duly acknowledged to be his act and deed and the said deed having been examined by the court was approved and confirmed and so endorsed by the judge and ordered to be transmitted duly certified to the clerk of Johnson County Court for record which I have now done accordingly.

Witness my signature this 1st day of Sept. 1871

Attest C. J. Howes, Clerk Johnson Circuit Court.

In the 1880 Johnson Co. census we find Susan (Clark) Mead, widow, age 70, listed as a boarder, living with a family named Thomas J. Penley, and wife, Mahulda M., and their child, Flora, age 7 months, and a 16 year old girl, named Easterly Williams, listed as the sister-in-law of Penley's, could this be Mahulda Williams, a granddaughter of Susan's, because 2 of her children married a Williams. This Flora Penley, later married James A. Williams who was very active in the Johnson Co., political and educational scene as well as judge of the county in 1920.

I have found the grave marker of this same Thomas J. Penley (Aug. 23, 1845-April 14, 1923). He is buried in the #24 Meade cemetery.

(Known) children of Robert and Susan:

#25 Peggy Margaret Meade born 1828, married 1846, James Williams.

HOROSCOPE

December 17 through December 23

By C.C. Clark
SAGITTARIUS (November 22 - December 21)
Examine thoroughly how you feel before making major decisions. Those who hurry you are not worth your time. With research, you reach victory.

CAPRICORN (December 22 - January 19)
Enjoy your time alone. Recognize the ways of those who are mature and prophetic. Practice techniques which lead you to your goals. You are above meanness.

AQUARIUS (January 20 - February 18)
You can learn even without trying. Keep a schedule, but allow for occasional laziness. Spiritual strength comes from deciding who, if anyone, can anchor you.

PISCES (February 19 - March 20)
You are recognized and admired in public. Take time alone to think, and rely on those who are mature for advice and help. Always have a goal in mind.

ARIES (March 21 - April 19)
You have good control over work, and should respond wisely to a fool who wastes your time. Strive to connect with the charming companions around you.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20)
Listen to the voice of experience in order to improve your work. Get up early and seek those who are wise for protection. Don't waste time on losing battles.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20)
Use your sense of humor in work and relaxation. Don't spend too much time in analysis; go to a party and talk to a friend. Be alert for wishes coming true.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22)
You are funny and entertaining to others, but make sure you balance all moods to enhance inner harmony. Concentrate on improving self-esteem.

LEO (July 23 - August 22)
Give in to the love and the ways of others for a while. Listen to another and learn. You can build your character from interaction with a colleague.

VIRGO (August 23 - September 22)
This week you may feel as if your life is in high gear. You are playful, adventurous and popular. Enjoy yourself, but keep your feet on the ground.

LIBRA (September 23 - October 22)
After hard work, free yourself for luxuries. Remember that you are still impressive even if you are not perfect. Accept help from others.

SCORPIO (October 23 - November 21)
With your partner, discuss family, career and financial matters, and consider deeply what to you is a treasure. Set your goals and enjoy getting there together.

TV PIPELINE

17-year-old film, big cast keeps family in stitches

By Polly Vonetes

Q: I have waited for some of my family to help track-down a movie we watched some 15 years ago. My three children are now adults and this movie still gets discussed at family gatherings. The name of the movie is Evil Roy Slade starring John Astin, Mickey Rooney and various other well known stars. I thought my prayers were answered when a video store appeared on every corner—but alas nothing! Can you help? I need a good laugh. —Sharron Meyers, Clark-son, Ky.

A: The movie you seek was produced for NBC and telecast Feb. 18, 1972. This feature-length film was the second pilot to an unrealized series called Sheriff Who? It is very doubtful the movie will ever be put on video tape but you are right, there were 14 other stars featured: Milton Berle, Edie Adams, Dom DeLuise, Henry Gibson, Dick Shawn, Pat Morita, Penny Marshall and John Ritter, to name a few.

Q: I am curious to find out if the man's voice on the new Stouffer's commercial is that of the man who portrays John Abbott on The Young and the Restless. —Kathy Isnak, Soldotna, Alaska

A: Sorry, Kathy you have the wrong man, John's voice is not the one you hear.

Q: I was wondering if you could provide information on actress Nancy McKeon, such as: birthplace, birthdate and where she lives now. Also, is she working on any new programs now? Where can I write to her? —P. Wooley, Atascadero, Calif.

A: Nancy was born on April 4, 1966, in Westbury, N.Y. She lived there until her family moved to Los Angeles in 1980 after she landed the role of Jo in The Facts of Life. She is currently living in Los Angeles, where she continues to develop and produce projects under the banner of her production company, Forest Hills Entertainment. Write to her c/o The Greg Sims Co., 10201 W. Pico Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif. 90035.

Q: I was wondering what happened to the show Nightingales? I miss watching it, and you know, they took it off at a bad time. Do you know if they are going to put it back on? —Mellisa B., Anchorage, Alaska

A: Everybody wants to know about the Nightingales series. NBC literally yanked it off the air, even though it was doing fine in the ratings, because of the storylines. Nurses were upset by the way their profession was portrayed. You may see it come back if new series that are currently airing fail and if producer Aaron Spelling can convince NBC executives the show has improved. I wouldn't bet on it coming back.
