Wheelwright Residents Oppose Proposed Branch Bank Relocation

By Anne Chaney
Editor

Several Wheelwright residents, the city's utility commission and city council are asking a local financial firm to reconsider its decision to move a branch bank from Wheelwright to McDowell.

Additionally, a petition has been signed by a number of Wheelwright residents asking the bank not to move its branch office; however, residents in McDowell are also reportedly circulating a petition asking the financial institution to continue its plans.

In a recent letter to O. Sam Blankenship, president of the Bank Josephine, Wheelwright Utility Commission official R.R. Johnson asked bank officials to reconsider relocating, citing the convenience of the firm's branch bank in Wheelwright. "As a rule," wrote Johnson, "the people in this area don't stop in McDowell on their way down Beaver Creek, but pass through on their way elsewhere."

Johnson noted the utility is non-profit and serves about 400 customers in the Bypro, Wheelwright and Burton area.

The majority are elderly, retired, disabled or single parents, he said, who do not drive. "But even on their small, fixed incomes, they are willing to pay $2 to have someone take them to the bank at Bypro. They simply couldn't afford to pay someone to take them all the way to McDowell."

The bank has applied to the federal government to be allowed to relocate its branch banking office from Highway 122 at Bypro to Highway 122 in McDowell.

According to Blankenship, the bank has decided to seek permission to move the branch for a number of reasons, including limited space at the current location that hinders offering additional services.

The bank leases its current Wheelwright office, a small structure with adjacent parking for only four to five vehicles, said Blankenship.

"We want to offer new services, but we have to have new facilities to do so," he explained. "Currently, our basic service is to cash checks and make deposits. We have enough room for a drive-through behind the building, but it is through a window in the trailer."

The bank president said a new location will allow the firm to offer more services, including a full line of loans, safe deposit boxes and more parking. The new location will cost about $250,000, he said, for the building and equipment. Headed that all employees of the Wheelwright branch will be employed at the new location, and as many as three other positions may be added to handle loan services.

"Any time you relocate a branch, you are going to get a lot of response — positive and negative — from all involved," Blankenship said. "Whatever the concerns are of the Wheelwright community, they are just the reverse in the McDowell area."

Blankenship said the proposed new location for the branch will be next to the road by the McDowell shopping center and McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital.

"There are a lot of people in that area who do the vast majority of their shopping there," he added, noting that the location was chosen in part for its convenience and accessibility.

Economic factors also played a part, he added, noting that the branch "needs a larger support base" to remain open. "We can move it to McDowell, or we can close it," he said. "We hope to attract more people."

Blankenship said the proposed new location is midway between Martin and Wheelwright, and said while he understood the location would "cause hardship with some Wheelwright senior citizens, it will help others in the McDowell area."

Written comment favoring or opposing the relocation will be accepted by the Department of Financial Institutions until Monday, April 10. Comments may be sent to the Kentucky Department of Financial Institutions, 911 Leawood Drive, Frankfort, KY 40601.

Retailers Gear Up For Lottery; Goebel Will Head Local Office

The Prestonsburg satellite office of the Kentucky Lottery Corp. is open this week in preparation for the historic "L" Day—Tuesday, April 4, the day ticket sales begin for Kentucky's much-heralded lottery.

Retailers in Floyd County and throughout Kentucky will offer for sale to the state's gaming population tickets for the two initial lottery games, "Beginners Luck" and "Dreamstakes," at $1 and $2 respectively, with purses of up to $1 million. Lottery ticket sales begin at 7:01 a.m. on Tuesday.

The local office, located at 7 N. Lake Dr., will supervise lottery activities in 21 eastern counties, according to newly appointed section manager William O. Goebel III of Prestonsburg.

More than 40 businesses in Floyd County have been approved as retail outlets for the tickets, said Goebel, who assisted with training programs for the retailers recently in Paintsville and other area locations. The Prestonsburg office will handle a total of 497 retailers, he said.

Goebel, who was recommended for the position by State Representative Greg Stumbo, according to an article in Saturday's Lexington Herald-Leader, spent a week of "intensive training" at lottery corporate headquarters in Louisville, along with other region and section managers.

Goebel, 30, said he brings 10 years of retail experience to the post. Most recently, he was owner of the Porter Paint Store in Prestonsburg. Prior to taking over the downtown store in 1985, he managed the Ben Franklin Store in Prestonsburg.

A graduate of Prestonsburg High School, Goebel attended the University of Kentucky, where he was a member of the football team. Now in his third term on Prestonsburg City Council, he has served longer than anyone on the present council, he said. He was a charter member of the local Rotary Club and has been active in several other community organizations.

Comprising the clerical staff of the local lottery office are JoAnn Adams of Water Gap, who was also recommended by Stumbo, according to the Lexington paper, and Betty Mayo of Paintsville.

Goebel said the local office also supervises the work of three regional Signs are already up in front of the Floppy Mart on North Lake Drive in Prestonsburg in preparation for next Tuesday's opening of the Kentucky lottery. Tickets will go on sale at area retail outlets at 7:01 a.m., April 4.

Floyd Festival Of FACES Activities Being Scheduled

With the spotlight on tourism and family reunions, the Floyd County Festival of FACES is continuing to plan several activities for the Mother's Day weekend (May 12-14), according to James O. VanHoose, festival director.

A primary feature of the festival, which will include arts and crafts exhibits and a parade, will be a Sunday afternoon performance by the Lexington Philharmonic, when the 65-piece band begins its program at 3 p.m. at the Jenny Wiley Amphitheater. In case of rain, the program will be moved to Prestonsburg High School's gymnasium.

Corporate donations to sponsor the Philharmonic's presentation are being sought, and ticket prices will be determined at a later date, said VanHoose.

The festival will get underway Friday morning, May 12, with between 75 and 100 arts and crafts exhibitors displaying their works in a large tent on the Richmond Plaza.

"We have a lot of arts and crafts in our area that are not promoted," noted the festival director, "we have more here than people realize."

With the festival's emphasis on family, arts, culture and education in the spring (FACES), a variety of other activities are planned. Educational activities are planned Friday, including a square dance in the downtown Prestonsburg area.

On Saturday, more than 250 senior citizens from a five-county area will gather for a walk-a-thon, a turnout VanHoose terms "fantastic."

About 9 a.m. the same morning, at least 805K runners will also compete, following a downtown route.

Because part of the festival's emphasis is on family, VanHoose is also asking communities in the county to reserve booth space, advertising their communities and serving as meeting places for visitors to the area.

Saturday, May 13, a parade in downtown Prestonsburg will begin at 3 p.m., and the same evening, the Prestonsburg Junior Woman's Club will sponsor the Miss Floyd County Scholarship Pageant at 7 p.m. at the Prestonsburg High School gym.

"We want to make this a 'we' festival, instead of an 'I' festival," VanHoose noted. "Planning began only five months ago; by next year, we will have had a full year to plan. After the festival, we'll sit down and discuss the do's and don'ts, and everyone will have a say."

VanHoose, who is past president of the state Festival Association, hopes the new festival — the only one in Eastern Kentucky held in the spring — will draw tourists to Floyd County, as well as become a homecoming benchmark for family reunions.

Board To Hear Recommendations, Set DP Hearings

The Floyd County Board of Education will meet in regular session Wednesday, April 5, at 7 p.m. at the Prestonsburg High School cafeteria.

Although not leading the agenda, the night's business will include establishing due process dates, if they are requested, by employees whose positions were abolished by the board at its last meeting.

The board will also hear the recommendations from its Blue Ribbon Panel, which was created in October 1988 to formulate long-term goals and a mission statement for the district, and to identify ways to fund salary increases for classroom personnel.

The board will also consider procedures for purchasing items for which it has received no bids.

Local Attorney Loses License Temporarily

The law license of a Prestonsburg attorney has been suspended for three months by the Kentucky Supreme Court.

An article in the March 17 issue of Kentucky Law Summary said that Albert A. Burchett received the order from the court last month. He was reportedly found guilty of "unethical and unprofessional conduct calculated to bring the bench and bar of Kentucky into disrepute."

Burchett, a former assistant commonwealth's attorney, was also accused of violating rules dealing with excessive fees and with financial assistance to a client.

Justice Dan Jack Combs, who resides in the area, abstained from the voting, which resulted in a 5-1 decision by the court in favor of the suspension.

Council To Erect Signs Decrying Road Condition

What started out as a question asked in frustration took a humorous turn and then reverted to what could be termed an act of defiance at Monday's Prestonsburg City Council meeting.

The condition of the surface of US 23 around its intersection with KY 1428 was raised by Councilman William O. Goebel III near the end of the routine meeting. "Is there anything we can do? Are there any possible strings we can pull or pressure we can use to get something done?" Goebel asked.

"We ought to march on Pikeville," Mayor Ann Latta replied, in jest, referring to the district office of the state Department of Transportation.

Open discussion followed, with council members and the audience expressing frustration over the road which remains deeply rutted, despite state road workers' efforts to patch it throughout the winter.

"It's a shame the state of Kentucky lets our road go that way," said Latta. "It reflects on the city because many people think the road is the city's responsibility. The intersection is

1 Dead, 1 Injured From Suspected Leak

A Spurlock Fork Road man was killed when the heating system in his home apparently malfunctioned last week.

State Police Det. James Stephens discovered the body of Adis Ousley, 50, Saturday at about 11:25 a.m., after concerned neighbors asked police to check the house. Stephens also reportedly found Ousley's wife, Dolly, unconscious.

She was taken to Our Lady of the Way Hospital in Martin and later transferred to the University of Kentucky Medical Center in Lexington. As of press time Tuesday, she was listed in serious condition in the intensive care unit.

Stephens said the couple had not been seen for two days, according to neighbors. The detective also said police suspect a faulty furnace in the death of Ousley, who was found in bed. His wife was reportedly sitting in a chair.

Stephens said a state fire inspector is investigating the house and furnace system.

A coroner's preliminary report listed the cause of death as carbon monoxide poisoning. An autopsy was ordered and the report is not yet in, according to Floyd County Coroner Roger Nelson.

Ousley, who was born April 5, 1938, in Prestonsburg, was the son of the late George Ousley and Julia O. Ousley of Prestonsburg.

A former coal miner, he is survived by his mother and his wife; a son, Ronald Adis Ousley of Leesburg, Ind.; two daughters, Carolyn Flores of Milford, Ind., and Loretta Patino of Warsaw, Ind.; five brothers; three sisters, and seven grandchildren.

Funeral services were Tuesday at 1 p.m. at Spurlock Regular Baptist Church, with burial in the Ousley Cemetery in Prestonsburg under the direction of Hall Funeral Home.

Wayland Man Wins Federal Suit Against Former Martin Lawman

A federal District Court petit jury in Pikeville last week overturned the verdict of a Floyd Circuit Court in a case involving two Floyd County men.

Gary Thornsby, 29, of Wayland was awarded $9,000 from Tommy L. Engle, 30, of Martin, whom Thornsby accused of violating his civil rights.

The case stemmed from a 1987 incident in which Thornsby alleged that Engle hit him in the head with a flashlight after arresting him and taking him to the Floyd County jail.

At the time, a Floyd County grand jury indicted Engle on an assault charge, but the former Martin police officer was acquitted when the case was heard in local district court.

Thornsby's appeal to the federal court system originally included charges against the City of Martin, according to Martin City Attorney Danny Caudill. Thornsby alleged that the city was "negligent in hiring Engle," Caudill said.

Following Caudill's motion for a directed verdict, he said the court dismissed charges against the city.

Caudill said Engle worked for the city for about four months in 1987.

Local Family Sues Lexington Hospital In 'Wrongful Death'

A Lexington court began hearing testimony Monday in a wrongful death suit brought by the family of a Prestonsburg man against St. Joseph's Hospital.

The wife of Sol Sammons, who died at the hospital in 1985, and the couple's two sons have accused the hospital of Sammons' death by a lethal injection of potassium chloride, while the local man was a terminally ill leukemia patient.

A nurse, who was subsequently fired from St. Joseph's, allegedly administered the injection by mistake, according to published reports.

The bottle of potassium chloride was apparently put into a box of supplies used to clean Sammons' heart catheter and mistakenly used by Linda Emery, the nurse.

How the bottle got into Sammons' supplies and why it was not found before it was used are reportedly key elements of the trial.

The Sammons family is suing the hospital for up to $1 million in punitive damages. The hospital has offered to pay compensatory damages for the nurse's mistake, but contends that Emery is to blame for the death, reports say.

Literacy Luncheon Thursday

Kentucky First Lady Martha Wilkinson will be the keynote speaker at Thursday's Literacy Luncheon, sponsored for the second year by the Floyd County Literacy Council and the Prestonsburg Rotary Club.

The luncheon will begin at noon at the Holiday Inn.

Wilkinson, a native of Casey County, is especially concerned about literacy, the GED program, drop-out prevention, the needy, senior citizens and drug abuse. She established

"Martha's GED Army Office" in Frankfort, which serves as a clearinghouse for information on acquiring a GED. The office is staffed solely by volunteers who refer callers to Kentucky Educational Television, which offers the complete course needed to satisfy requirements for the GED certificate.

Wilkinson has also made great strides in involving business and industry in promoting the GED program, which has been endorsed by the AFL-CIO, resulting in GED programs in union halls throughout the state. In addition, the Kentucky County Judges Association adopted her Kentucky Business Council on Adult Education through the GED Foundation.

A limited number of reservations for Thursday's luncheon are still available. For more information, call 886-7323.

Floyd County Teachers Day Proclaimed

Floyd County Judge/Executive John M. Stumbo, signed a proclamation, Thursday, March 23rd, proclaiming March 31st as Floyd County Teachers Day in Floyd County. The Floyd County teachers will be meeting Friday, March 31st for their annual association meeting at the Holiday Inn in Prestonsburg. Pictured with Judge Stumbo is Janice Allen, left, seventh and eighth grade teacher at Prestonsburg Elementary, Jane Spurlock, center, sixth grade teacher at Prestonsburg Elementary, and Roberta Luxmore, right, who is President of the Floyd County Education Association, and teaches at McDowell.

Wayland Is Site Of Stop The Hurt, Child Abuse Prevention Program

The prevention of child abuse is the focus of the second annual Stop the Hurt Day, set for April 7-8 in Wayland.

Sponsored by the Kentucky Council on Child Abuse, Eastern Kentucky office, the activity kicks off at 2 p.m., Friday, with country, bluegrass and Appalachian music at Wayland Elementary School gymnasium. Several area helping agencies, including Floyd County Health Department, Mountain Comprehensive Care and state Social Services Department, will have displays at the school.

Travis Fritsch of the Kentucky Attorney General's staff is scheduled to speak on the state's efforts to prevent and prosecute child abuse at 7:30 p.m. Fritsch is slated to speak again on Saturday.

Music by Bad Branch, a Letcher County folk music band, will follow, also in the gym.

Saturday's activities begin at 12:30 p.m. with an educational show on safety by Ronald McDonald, the spokesperson for McDonald's Restaurants. The program will be followed by song, dance and comedy performances by area children and teenagers, according to Charles Slone, coordinator of the regional office in Wayland.

All events are free, said Slone, except the Friday night concert. For that, tickets are $5 for adults; $2.50 for senior citizens and students, with children under 12 admitted free.

The event is planned around the national designation of April as Child Abuse Prevention Month, Slone said. For information, call Slone at 358-9466.

Kentucky's First Viet Nam Era Vet Reunion Scheduled May 20

Kentucky's first Vietnam Veterans Reunion is scheduled Saturday, May 20, from noon until 10 p.m. at the Belvedere in downtown Louisville.

Titled "L.Z. Bluegrass," the reunion will be similar to ones that have been organized in several other states in recent years, according to Cindy Dumas, reunion spokeswoman.

The Kentucky event is being coordinated by a committee of Vietnam War veterans and other volunteers, and is being funded by Jefferson County, the City of Louisville, various veteran's organizations, local corporations and individuals.

From Floyd County, 1,270 persons served active duty in the US Armed Forces during the Vietnam era, according to statistics recently developed by the Veterans Administration. There were 13 Floyd Countians killed in action.

Billed as "a patriotic celebration honoring Kentucky's men and women who served the nation during the Vietnam War," the reunion will include remarks by local and state officials, a POW/MIA ceremony, helicopter fly-overs, entertainment, veteran information booths, and displays of Vietnam War military equipment.

More than 110,000 Kentuckians served in the US Armed Forces during the Vietnam Era, according to Dumas.

Health Dept. Offers Family Planning Service

The Floyd County Health Department is offering family planning service clinics three days in April, according to officials.

The clinics will be held Monday, April 3, at noon; Monday, April 10, at noon; and Monday, April 24, also at noon.

The family planning program is required to charge fees for services, said officials, based on family size and income. However, no one will be denied services due to inability to pay.

For more information, or an appointment, call 886-2788.

UK Musicians To Perform At P'burg Community College

The University of Kentucky Choral and Vocal Jazz Ensemble will present a free, public concert at Prestonsburg Community College on April 4.

The Tuesday concert, set for 8 p.m. in Pike Auditorium on campus, is sponsored by the Eastern Kentucky Concert Series.

The two groups will perform choral works by Heinrich Schutz, Bela Bartok, and Johannes Brahms, as well as a variety of madrigals, spirituals and folk songs.

The chorale, whose 20 members are chosen by audition, presents UK's annual Madrigal Dinner, depicting a medieval Christmas celebration. The group also forms the center of the choir which presents "A Shaker Worship Service," each fall at Shakertown.

It represents the university at many official ceremonies and is considered the premiere choral ensemble of the UK School of Music.

Formed in January, the Vocal Jazz Ensemble performs historic and contemporary jazz, spiritual and madrigal numbers. Its members come from a variety of academic majors.

Both groups are led by Roger Wesby, director of choral activities at UK since last August. A former music teacher in the US Peace Corps in El Salvador and Costa Rica, he is a graduate of the Eastman School of Music and Westminster Choir College. He was director of the National University School of Music and National Symphonic Chorus in Costa Rica for many years.

Dinwood Structure Burns

A building used for storage (formerly housing D&J Trophy) in the community of Dinwood, near Martin, was totally destroyed by fire last week, according to fire officials in the county. The building belonged to Sadie Hunter. According to Martin Fire Chief Herschel Lester, Hunter had not paid a subscription fee to the department, and as a result, fire fighters did not immediately respond to a call placed by Hunter's neighbors. Subscription fees are required for businesses and residences outside the city limits. Firefighters from Maytown were also called, but because the building is not within their district, were turned back by Martin officials. Personnel responding from the Left Beaver department got mid-way to the fire and were also turned back, officials said. Lester said that after a member of Hunter's family paid the $50 subscription fee, fire fighters responded to the call, and were on the scene about an hour.

Two Minor Accidents Occur

Prestonsburg police report only two minor accidents during the past week.

Sunday, police report that Irene Wicker of Prestonsburg hit an earth wall while backing out of a parking space at Mountain Manor Nursing Home. Losing control of her car, she then backed into a car driven by Margaret Bailey of Prestonsburg. Both cars were severely damaged, police said.

Two Prestonsburg residents were also involved in an accident Friday that involved "no visible damage," according to police. A car driven by Margaret Hunt was hit in the rear end by a car driven by Burl Johnson, while Hunt's car was stopped in traffic.

Guest Editorial

First Presbyterian Church
Prestonsburg

Family spats are the worst! Social workers and others who constantly work with people recognize that this is the case. It's not the people far away across the sea with whom we quarrel the most intensely, but rather those close at hand.

This seems to be the case in the current situation in our county, growing out of hard-fought, closely-contested district and regional basketball tournaments.

This is an intra-county disagreement, so this is logically written for the Floyd County Times, and not beyond. County families and relationships are so interwoven that it's hard to imagine very many people in Prestonsburg who do not have some relationship to someone from McDowell — either through family, work, or as friends.

People who live in McDowell work in Prestonsburg, and vice versa. People who grew up on Left Beaver now live in the county seat, but still feel allegiance to their "alma mater." (More than one person has shared with me their discomfort at having to choose between two schools because of having close connections to both.)

I've served churches in both areas, and both have fine people, good leaders and, of course, a few who make trouble for the rest of the community.

But rivalries run deep with those you are closest to, as in sibling rivalries, even family feuds. The irony of the situation is that ordinarily Floyd County would be jumping for joy that one of its five fine high schools made it to the Sweet Sixteen. (It's been seven years since that happened.) Even when a school in a neighboring county (such as Paintsville in basketball or Pikeville in football) makes it to state, the whole region takes pride in that accomplishment and cheers the best in the region on.

But because the Prestonsburg/McDowell rivalry runs so deep — and let's face it, so does the us/them division between county/county seat — it's hard to recover from two close games a week apart with different final outcomes. Both had good teams, mostly well-intentioned fans, and enthusiasm that became excessive at points.

So what should we do? At a time when we need to be coming together and uniting for the common good, in academics, athletics and character-building both on and off the court, should we let this divide us further? Let's not let that happen. Instead, at this Easter season, someone (or ones) needs to offer the olive branch of reconciliation.

It reminds me of the way Kentucky and Louisville used to hate each other — another intra-rivalry, this time intrastate. Nasty words inspired a nastier response, until someone got the idea to let the teams play each other regularly. Now, the competition is still fierce, the games are well-attended and supported, but either team that advanced to the Final Four would have the state's complete support. (And don't we wish now we had one team from our state there!)

Now Kentuckians can devote their energy to defeating a common enemy — like Indiana or Tennessee. Get the idea? Shouldn't Floyd County be glad no team from Pike County or Johnson or Martin went to Rupp, but one of our own? Isn't it a real tribute to our basketball competition that our county had two best teams out of five counties that competed?

Just when we have something to be proud about, something erupts to rob us of our joy and pride in Floyd County — you note I didn't say Prestonsburg or McDowell, but pride in Floyd County. Some of my fellow preachers might call it "the devil," and maybe that's not far off, because the enemy of all that is good would love to have us divided and squabbling, instead of working in unity and common purpose.

So let us fight hard, stick by our club, but when the game is over, support the champion and console the loser. McDowell won the district tournament; Prestonsburg the regional. Seems to me we ought to be doubly proud and put this spat behind us. This ought to be one of the best of times for Floyd County, so let's not let partisan feelings or a few extreme words rob us of a joy we can all share.

Family spats are sometimes the worst, but they are the ones we must solve first and put behind us quickly. Please, let's do that for the sake of all that is good, wholesome and worthwhile in our county. Amen.

Letters To The Editor

'Cats Defend Coach, Team, & Most Fans

Dear Editor,

We would like to express how proud we are of our coaches, team and the vast majority of fans. It is a shame we have to focus on the inappropriate behavior of only a few when there were so many positive accomplishments during the tournaments. Prestonsburg's coaches and team are superior not only because they won, but because of their unquestionable character. We are bursting with pride by the manner in which they achieved their regional title. The victory should be the limelight, not the misconduct of a few fans from most schools represented. The attendance was greater than anything seen in recent years and all schools profited as a result.

While we certainly do not condone misconduct, it is misleading to attribute the bad behavior at the basketball tournaments solely to Prestonsburg.

We are not the "large problem" as Gary Frazier would have you believe. This man speaks from both sides of his mouth. He began his interview by praising the behavior of every high school in Floyd County except Prestonsburg. He further stated that the largest problem seemed to be with Prestonsburg right now. He ended by saying nothing is served by pointing fingers at each other and saying, "You were worse than I was." So what was he doing but pointing his finger at Prestonsburg's fans? His article was extremely biased and self-serving.

Just to point out that misconduct was not uniquely ours, there were fights during the regular season between Allen Central and McDowell fans, and between the McDowell and Wheelwright fans. Also, no vulgar signs were seen until the finals of the district tournament when McDowell fans posted "We came, we saw, we kicked —." Furthermore, it was a McDowell fan who painted blue pitchforks in our parking lot prior to the regional finals. Ice was thrown during many games from various sections during both tournaments. People who live in glass houses shouldn't throw stones.

Could it be McDowell fans, with their presumptuous regional champ shirts, found the unequivocal final score and our overwhelming school spirit too much to swallow? Also, why was the assistant superintendent questioned instead of the superintendent or our principal? Could it be because he was principal at McDowell last year?

Prestonsburg fans and businesses have always supported the winners of the 58th District Tournament and the 15th Regional Tournament, regardless of whoever won. It is a shame that it hasn't been reciprocated this year.

Sincerely yours,
Blackcat Fans Sharon M. Sammons, Ann Stumbo, Brenda Cain, Jerry Lafferty, Carolyn Stout, Lowell E. McCown, Sarah B. Allen, Gary Hopkins, Jeri R. Mullins, Judy Burchell, David Layne and Betty H. Porter
(Editor's Note: Gary Frazier, assistant superintendent of instruction, was interviewed for the article because the superintendent, Ronald Hager, was in Frankfort and unavailable for comment.)

McDowell Fans Respond To Poem

Dear Editor,

We would like to comment on the poem Eula Ferguson wrote. We don't have to write a poem to tell the real situation. Believe it or not, she wasn't the only one to view the ball game. The "little" poem, of which we shall keep a copy, certainly identifies the true spirit of the Prestonsburg fans. We feel sorry for you.

We traveled to Prestonsburg to support our team and when you follow the Daredevils, it's never a wasted trip, win or lose. We will be "Backin' the Daredevils" no matter what happens.

As a group, you can reach us at McDowell High School.

Now, we would like to comment on the "loyal Blackcat fans" which said we have no class. We don't believe the signs that were held up and the fans that presented their abdomens to us before the ballgame have class.

Also, during the so-called "friendly" motorcade, we saw two "full moons" that day. If the motorcade was friendly, why were they forced to wash the obscene graffiti off one of their cars at the McDowell car wash? Also, in the event we had obscene gestures and profanity displayed and shouted at us, which caused some of our fans to retaliate.

We do admit that some of our fans did some things wrong, but Prestonsburg's fans went too far in their support of their team. We fell the only reason they act this way is because this is the only means of communication they know.

Also, we are signing our names because what we write, we believe.

Reader Responds To 'Dry' Viewpoint

Dear Editor,

After reading Pastor Ron Masters' letter to the editor in the March 15 issue of the Floyd County Times, I felt compelled to address some of his comments.

He made reference to William Callihan's need to be reminded that eight precincts out of 48 is not voting the county dry. What Mr. Callihan said was "community," not "county." Mr. Callihan was right: the community will lose tax revenue that will have to be made up in other areas to maintain certain services — taxes which, right now, come from the packaged sale of alcohol. Now do we really need a tax increase in other areas when, at this time, it's not needed? And now, who is misleading whom, pastor?

As for "a very damaging ordinance" which causes public intoxication, it's simple. People are going to drink, period. Why are they trying to take away control? Do we want other businesses to crop up? Does bootlegging sound better? It has been said bootlegging is not an issue; I'm glad they are willing to take responsibility and play Russian Roulette with our community's children.
The additional $30,000 in tax money he called "greedy." The greedy liquor tax is helping to make up revenues lost in the past. Maybe he would have us raise property or utility taxes to compensate for the lost liquor taxes. Pastor Steve Hopkins, in the March 22 issue of the Floyd County Times, said that the liquor taxes do not bring in that much money. Pastor Hopkins and Pastor Master cannot agree on this. No matter, they are both wrong.

"Liquor by the drink is a step backward." Not in a growing community. Plus, liquor by the drink is not the issue on the ballot. Why do they never state the real question? Misleading once again! Who can you trust?

The City Council should represent all of us. They have been elected by the people. Right? The City Council has done a good job for the short- and long-term. We now have control of liquor and the opportunity to decide for ourselves, on an individual level, to go out and have a drink or to not go out and have a drink. This election will not stop drunk drivers.

"We don't want liquor by the drink." The question on the ballot is not liquor by the drink, about which, did you know, there is only one business with a permit to serve by the drink. One. The question is, "Are you in favor of the sale of alcoholic beverages in Floyd County precinct No. ___ in Floyd County, Kentucky?" It involves only the eight precincts in the Prestonsburg area.

Don't be misled. A "no" vote that takes away control takes away jobs, which is something you never hear the dry folk talk about, and it will not take away drinking or drunk driving!

The quality of life in Prestonsburg is better than it's ever been, tourism is up, the state's facts are there to prove it. Floyd County has the lowest unemployment rate in the Big Sandy district, according to recent figures, plus the kids cannot buy alcohol at will. Control is the best way.

Addressing the issue by avoiding the real issue is not honesty, is it?

Fans Embarrassed By Board Of Education?

Dear Editor,

I want to apologize to the Floyd County School Board for the deplorable behavior of the Prestonsburg students and fans during the district and regional basketball tournaments. They were loud and boisterous. They actually screamed "their heads off" for their team.

I am keenly aware of the humiliation associated with the embarrassing behavior in the Floyd County School System. Many of the Prestonsburg fans feel that the board, and the superintendent, and his assistants, are an embarrassment to them. I agree with Assistant Superintendent (Gary) Frazier that it needs "to be dealt with."

I want to compliment Mr. Frazier on his wisdom not to single out any particular school. He showed a lot of character in making this decision and then sticking with it.

Mr. Frazier promises that corrective action will be taken prior to next year's basketball season. I suggest that the local board request the state board send a battery of teachers to teach Prestonsburg's fans "proper behavior." It should take but a couple of sessions. The cost (say $10,000) would be a drop in the bucket compared to what we are paying to have the state board teach the local board "proper behavior."

Sincerely,
Joe A. Burchett,

What Would KKK Do With . . . ?

Dear Editor,

What would the Ku Klux Klan do with a full-blooded Jew, one that looked like a hippie and spoke out against public prayer? No doubt they would love to get their hands on a liberal Jew like that, especially if he said he was against organized religion.

The Jew that fits this description is none other than Jesus Christ, whom the Klan claims to be serving when it burns crosses and threatens citizens. There is little doubt Christ would have a life expectancy of about 10 seconds if he ever ventured near a Klan rally.

Who is the Klan against? Catholics, Jews, Afro-Americans, Indians and people from all other countries. Who is the Klan for? One hundred percent Americans, yet if one would stop to think about it, there can be no such thing as pure American lineage — everyone had an ancestor somewhere down the line who immigrated to this country from somewhere, with the exception of the Native American, another group the Klan finds worthless.

If one is of religious bent and believes in the story of Adam and Eve, then it must be conceded that each individual is somehow related to everyone else in the world. When the KKK marches with the American flag proudly in tow, it is trying to give the impression that it represents the only true Americans; but who among them could count the number of Catholics, Jews, Afro-Americans, Indians and immigrants who have fought and died under the flag in America's wars?

On Sunday, March 18, as the KKK marched for their beliefs in Pikeville, concerned students at Berea College staged a counter rally which promoted racial equality during the weekly prayer gathering held at Danforth Chapel.

One of Berea College's main priorities is the promotion of inter-racial education, which is reflected in our motto: "God hath made of one blood all nations of men." (Acts 17:26.)

As a representative organization of Berea College students and as members of the Appalachian community, it is our obligation to vocalize this priority. However, we are not just writing this letter because our school promotes inter-racial education, but because we personally feel the need to recognize people of all races as our brothers and sisters.

In order to truly achieve what Christ represents and the ideals presented in the Constitution of the United States of America, we must unite in one holy, catholic, and apostolic brotherhood; otherwise, society will never attain that which America promotes, which is the progress of all men towards self-perfection in this, our mechanistic universe, for the good of the commonweal. Humanity: We are the commonweal.

In conclusion, we look to the old adage that has been key in America's survival, as it rings so true in its wisdom: "United we stand; divided we fall."

Amen.

Gary Frazier, assistant superintendent of instruction, is trying to place the blame of the behavior of our children on the principals.

A principal cannot be a child's parent. He cannot change the behavior of hundreds or thousands of children. All he can do is demand our children respect school personnel, property and other students. If they do not, he can place a call to the parents, detain them in detention or suspend them. He is doing all he can in his job capacity. (A mighty stressful one, I might add.)

After the principal calls you, Mr. and Mrs. Parent, the child and his misbehavior is placed in your hands. What do you do about it?

I saw the flurry of activity at some of the schools in Floyd County — Prestonsburg High School, for example. The teachers were waiting for you, Mr. and Mrs. Parent. The principal was there. Where were you?

I also saw the principal of Prestonsburg High School at the tournament games; pacing the floor the whole time, like a real Blackcat. Looking for trouble before it started. Looking in the parking lot; checking things out. Where were you, Mr. and Mrs. Parent? I saw you in the bleachers smelling like a liquor store just opened.

I realize there are a lot of caring parents who are trying with their children. If there weren't, bars would have to be placed on the school windows to keep the kids in. Just think about what I've said. You'll realize that your child is being protected by the principals and the teachers from Mr. and Mrs. Upper, Middle, and Lower Class's children.

Does Anyone Care About Floyd Litter?

Dear Editor,

Has anyone in the Left Beaver area noticed the trash along the highway, or in the streams? Does anyone care? Maybe everyone just thinks the filth is part of our environment. During the past several years, our highways have become sanitation dumps for in- and out-going vehicles. The fines are ignored, and the law does not enforce these particular offenses. Why can't we have clean, scenic roads like other areas in Kentucky?

I don't know how others feel about the litter problem, but as for me, I'm disgusted! I get embarrassed when tourists from other states comment about the trash, and especially the jokes about the overwhelming amount of milk jugs in our streams. No wonder people think our community goes barefoot and wears overalls. The impression our roads give makes it appear that we are uncaring. Of course we are not, but the unhealthy and unsightly filth certainly makes it look that way.

I think it's time Left Beaver and the rest of Floyd County clean up. Let's show people we have pride. With the help of elected officials, and an effort from our community, we could once again make our community beautiful.

Thank you,
Crystal Hall,
McDowell High School

Situated on a 10-acre site, the village will feature 16 two-bedroom villas, a recreation center, an administration building, a swimming pool and a playground.

The accommodations will be used by children with life-threatening diseases and their families.

Armed with the concern, experience, knowledge, understanding and know-how, as your Floyd County Attorney, I will work with local, county, state and federal officials to accomplish and realize the following TRANSPORTATION NEEDS AND OBJECTIVES for ALL THE PEOPLE of Floyd County:

1. The completion of four-lane US 23 from Paintsville to Prestonsburg and from Pikeville to Virginia.
2. The completion of four-lane US 119 from South Williamson to Pikeville.
3. The four-laning of the Mountain Parkway from Prestonsburg and Hazard to Campton.
4. The reconstruction of Ky Rt 122 from four-lane Ky Rt 80 at Martin through Left Beaver Creek to four-lane US 23 south of Pikeville.
5. Reconstruct Ky Rt 979 from US 23 at Harold through Mud Creek to Ky Rt 122 at Hi Hat.
6. A regional mountain-top airport with intersecting runways located in the Prestonsburg-Martin area of Floyd County.
7. The elevation, ditching, draining, blacktopping, and widening of every county road to a minimum of twenty-four feet.

Local, State and Federal Revenue is now available—all we need is a reallocation of these funds from the "Golden Triangle" of Louisville, Lexington and Covington.

Residents Start Clean Up Effort In Own Front Yards

by Pam Shingler
Assistant Editor

Armed with rakes, trash picks, gloves and garbage bags, several residents of Mining Camp Road, off KY 3 near Lancer, decided Tuesday to tackle the garbage problem on their hollow.

"I want people to be able to pass my house and say 'That's a pretty house' and not be disgusted by the trash," said Arthur Thomas, a retired coal miner who has lived in Mining Camp for about 15 years.

Knowing that they are tired of other residents and users of the road throwing trash onto the roadway and into the creek, the homeowners picked up seven bags full of paper, bottles and cans in their first half-hour of collection. They expected to pick up more than 100 bags by the end of the day.

"We're going to watch for license plates and report people who litter and dump," Naomi Thomas warned.

"I remember when this road was clean and sweet smelling," said Thomas, who moved to the area in 1960. "There were roses growing everywhere.

"Before the road was paved, we had to wade the mud, but I believe I'd rather wade mud than see this garbage," said Thomas, indicating that some of the garbage in the quiet hollow comes from non-residents who sometimes park along the road.

Her husband, Arthur, however, contends that much of the garbage is dumped by people who live along the road, who have "no pride in where they live." He acknowledged that "some people will get mad at me for saying it, but it's the truth."

He complains also that many residents of the hollow have open sewers emptying into the creek and roadside ditches. The brackish water that seeps in and around the debris along the road provides some evidence of his contention.

Ann Sammons, who has lived on Mining Camp Road all her life, calls the condition of the road "a shame."

"It used to be a lot cleaner up here than it is now," said Ruby Burns, who has lived in the hollow for 34 years.

Thomas said he hopes the residents who began the clean up effort can inspire some of their neighbors to get involved in making the hollow more attractive. "I'm proud of this hollow," he said, "if it was just cleaned up."

Mining Camp Bag Brigade

State Official Offers Tips On County Development

"If you don't plan, you'll watch industry go on down the road," an official with the Kentucky Economic Development Cabinet told members of the Prestonsburg Rotary Club Thursday.

Russ Slone, director of the Industrial Development and Marketing Division, said communities need the cooperation of local government units, banks and other leaders in attracting new industry. "You have to have local organization and enthusiasm," he said.

While Slone's office works to link Kentucky communities with prospective industry, he said communities cannot expect the state to "do all that needs to be done. We will do all we can to help," he said. "We want to be a partner with you all, but we want you to be a partner with us."

The developer added that communities have to keep his office informed if his staff is to help. "I don't know what's going on in Floyd County unless someone from Floyd County lets me know. We need to be reminded that you're here," he said, alluding to the need for communities to have organized and aggressive economic development efforts.

Slone's staff spends its time trying to interest business and industry leaders in locating new operations in Kentucky. He said his people match prospective developers with communities that best suit a particular industry need.

He said that if a developer expresses interest in a particular community, his staff will take the developer there to look around. "The community must then be prepared to sell itself," he said.

During 1988, Slone said his office witnessed the development of 214 new or expansion projects. Each represented at least a million-dollar investment, 50 or more jobs and more than 20,000 feet of floor space.

Altogether, he said, the new projects resulted in more than 25,000 jobs, created either through the projects themselves or through support industries.

So far this year, he said, 17 new plants have been attracted to the state, creating just under 4,000 jobs. "I'm confident about the remainder of the year," he said.

Kentucky is operating at a disadvantage in attracting new industry, he said, when it is contrasted with neighboring states. While Slone has only five persons on his staff to handle industrial prospects, Tennessee has 23 persons; Illinois, 20, and Ohio, 15.

Because of the competitiveness among the states and because of the small staff, Kentucky is beginning to focus on "targeting" specific industries with potential for development, he said. Among the top industrial targets are companies involved in secondary wood production, food processing and telecommunications, "mostly small and medium-sized industries."

Emphasis is also being placed, Slone said, on support of existing industries. "We need to assist existing companies with retooling and modernization," he said. "This will enhance the retention of jobs, which is as important as creating new jobs."

To do this, he said the Cabinet is creating the position of industrial extension agent, similar to the county extension agent, to work with existing plants on ways to use new technologies.

He also pointed to the creation of a project known as Commonwealth Venture, which is designed to help community-based firms that show potential for development. Most economic assistance these days, he said, is in the form of loans, since "federal grant programs have pretty well dried up."

Slone said the Cabinet is also involved in promoting the sale of Kentucky products in foreign markets.

The impetus for any kind of development must come from the local community, Slone reiterated. "It takes a definite commitment from local leaders," he said. "Communities must take a look at themselves and then provide the initiative for economic development."

specialist Russ Slone, speaking to the local Rotary Club, urged Floyd County residents to remind the state "you're here." Before the state can attract industry, there has to be "local organization and enthusiasm," he said.

One moment of clarity changed his life. Tom, 31, started in junior high, mixing vodka with his fruit punch. But as an adult, mainly drank beer. A case a day. Watched his dad die from cirrhosis. Frightened, switched to cocaine. After a $3,000 "White Christmas", returned to alcohol. Immediately went out of control. Soon needed a pint of bourbon to stop the morning shakes. Finally, on a binge, raised his fist to hit his wife. Suddenly flashed back to his childhood. Realized like father, like son. Broke down, asked for help.

Dislocated Workers To Get More Help In Job Search Through Local Program

A federal grant will allow the Prestonsburg office of the state Department of Employment Services to expand its services to unemployed workers in the region, beginning in July.

More than $850,000 will be used to implement the Economic Dislocation and Worker Adjustment Assistance Act, funded to the local office through the state Cabinet for Human Resources from the U.S. Department of Labor.

The Prestonsburg office will become a "substate grantee," one of 10 such designated areas in Kentucky, according to local director Thomas Hereford III. Floyd County and 22 other Appalachian counties are included in the local region. Hereford said satellite offices, emanating from the Prestonsburg office, are slated for Pikeville, Hazard, Harlan and Middlesboro.

"With the new program, we can do things we couldn't do before," said Hereford. For one thing, the program will allow the local office to have more autonomy. "It shifts training decisions one time made in Frankfort to us," he said.

The program is aimed at helping what is termed the "dislocated" worker, the person who has had a good-paying, responsible, seemingly stable job that is lost because of company slow downs or closings. The dislocated worker has also exhausted his or her unemployment and has limited opportunities in the area for the same occupation.

Hereford said that many of his office's clients fall into this category. "The typical person we see has been earning $25,000 to $35,000 and has worked at the same place for 15 to 20 years," he said.

"This target population is growing," Hereford said. "As the coal industry produces more coal with fewer workers, the number will continue to grow."

With the infusion of money to the employment office, Hereford's staff is planning ways to help these types of workers that were not previously available. The bulk of the grant, 62 percent, or more than $500,000, will go toward retraining of the unemployed workers.

Hereford met Friday with representatives from Prestonsburg Community College, Mayo State Vocational Technical School and the Carl D. Perkins Job Corps Center to solicit training program proposals.

In addition to funding retraining for the workers, DES will also take them through a thorough orientation to reentering the work force.

The orientation will begin with an assessment of the worker's skills and interests, said benefits coordinator Sharon Burchett. "We'll administer an interest inventory and aptitude test and then, through computer assessment, we'll get a printout of what jobs that person likes and has an aptitude for and where they are available," she said.

Counseling about the job hunt will follow, said Burchett. Workshops are planned, she said, on how to fill out an application, how to make a resume and "how to sell themselves."

A workshop on dealing with stress is also included. "Many of these workers are bitter about their situation, and we'll try to help them deal with that bitterness so it doesn't show through when they go on other job interviews," Burchett said.

Another component of the counseling step deals with relocation. "We tell them up front that they may have to relocate," the coordinator said, adding that the program includes some financial assistance in helping the worker relocate if he gets a job more than 50 miles from where he now lives.

Also included is some money for emergency financial aid, which will be allocated on an "individual case" basis, Burchett said.

As a result of the interest and skill assessment, employment counselors will help clients pick possible occupational goals and help steer them into training.

Under the program, a dislocated worker may receive up to 104 weeks of training, or two years, which could include community college or vocational programs. The funding allows for up to $3,000 a year for tuition and supplies.

Hereford said the office's goal is that 80 percent of those who enter a training program will complete it. He added money will also be available to help with GED training for those who have not completed high school.

Important to those agencies interested in providing training programs for the workers is the lessening of the red-tape generally associated with government contracts. Hereford said his office can "write on-the-job contracts on the spot," without going through Frankfort.

The Sign Says It All

This sign in front of a local mining company is a depressing sight to many of the area's unemployed. The Prestonsburg office of the state Department of Employment Services has been funded to start a program to help dislocated workers change direction through training and, as a last resort, relocation.

Goebel, who met other lottery workers during the training session in Louisville, said the corporation has assembled "one of the greatest work forces I've ever seen. Frank Keener (lottery president) has done a great job."

The local manager said the lottery is expected to generate $200 million this year in ticket sales. About half of that amount is to go to winners as prize money; 35 percent is slated for state programs, and 15 percent is for administrative costs.

The Prestonsburg satellite office is open Monday-Friday from 8 a.m.-5 p.m., Goebel said. Persons wishing information about the lottery and retail outlets may call 886-9883.

Religious Viewpoints

by Gary Shepard, Pastor,
Zebulon Baptist Church

Not long ago, an individual was setting forth the truth of the gospel to a man who was part of a traditional religious organization. The individual spoke only in the language of scripture, claiming no authority but the Word of God. But when confronted by the truths of the scripture that contradicted the erroneous doctrines that the man and his religious organization held, the man responded with this observation: "I don't see how you who are so few believe these things can be right and so many be wrong who believe otherwise." What he was saying is that the religious majority must be right, and the believing minority must be wrong.

But do not the words of Christ reveal that this man's reasoning is typical in every age, and therefore will produce the result that Christ predicted? "Wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat; Because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it." (Matthew 7:13, 14.)

When we look back to Noah's day we see the majority believing error and the minority believing the truth. Eight souls were saved and all the remaining inhabitants of the earth were destroyed by the flood. It was also Gideon's 300 in contrast with the host of the Midianites. Look back to Mt. Carmel and see one man of truth, Elijah, set against 850 prophets of error. Can one be right and 850 be wrong? Yes, they can and they were!

Notice the radio in the gospel accounts and see the few apostles and disciples compared to the many priests, rabbis, elders and followers of false religions. See one single man, Jesus Christ, who is the truth, despised, rejected, crucified by the religious leaders, government officials and masses of his day. Hear the word of the scriptures: "Many are called, but few are chosen" in Matthew 22:14, and the "not many..." of I Corinthians 1:26-29.

No, the truth of God's gospel does not need to be ratified or approved or voted in by the majority to be true. The Word of God is true even if no man on earth believes it. General acceptance by modern religionists is not required for that which we are to believe. If God says it, we must believe it, regardless of what others think or do. The great masses always have been and continue today to be deceived. The great masses in our day are almost all involved in some kind of religion. In matters spiritual, there is no "strength in numbers" before God.

May we be numbered among the few that believe the truth. Do not automatically assume that in your particular religion you are such! Christ Jesus the Lord alone is the Truth.

Our faith and confidence is not to be the most widely accepted views of men, but in the person and work of the man, the Lord Jesus Christ and what he actually says about himself.

Wee Hunters

The lawn of the Floyd County Board of Education felt the patter of little feet and the squeals of tiny voices last Thursday as members of the Floyd County Library reading group participated in an Easter egg hunt. Pat Dempsey, children's library assistant, is the leader of the Thursday morning preschool Story Hour at the Library from 10 to 10:45 a.m. She also leads a reading group for ages 5 to 8 on Thursday afternoons. The Story Hour participants were joined in the hunt by children from the First Baptist Church day care center.

City Council

Sometime during the discussion, the erecting of signs concerning the road condition was mentioned, and by the time the meeting ended, council had agreed to do just that.

Travelers on the road can look for signs later this week in the area of the intersection that read: "This road is not city maintained. Call the Kentucky Department of Highways, 502/564-4890." "Road conditions provided by your state highway department," and "If you hate the holes on US 23, call 502/564-4890."

Goebel said that while driving in central and western Kentucky "you don't see roads like this. They're building new roads with our (coal) severance taxes."

Besides the signs, Latta also suggested that council send a "strongly worded" letter to state highway officials about the road. "If we could get people to write letters to the state, make phone calls or sign petitions, we might get the job done," she said.

In other business, council heard the audit report for the year ending June 30, 1988, from Steve Allen of Allen, England and Hensley Accounting.

"There has been further improvement in management and control of finances," Allen said in his summary report. "The city is in good shape."

Allen pointed out that the city received more income than it had budgeted for in every budget area except intergovernmental revenues, where revenues were down. He said that the city's revenue from coal severance taxes were down in comparison with prior budgets.

The accountant advised council "to continue to restrain expenditures and look for areas of growth of revenues."

Latta announced that the Kentucky Lottery Corp. has asked for help with security at its Prestonsburg office during its first week of operation. The corporation will pay off-duty policemen, in uniform, to provide security services, she said.

She reminded council that the city agreed to a similar arrangement when First Commonwealth Bank opened. She also indicated that the request for the service did not come from Goebel, who has been appointed section manager of the local lottery office, but rather from the regional office.

On a motion by William Callihan, seconded by Charles Hale, council agreed to allow off-duty policemen to provide the service. Goebel abstained.

Mike Vance reported that the committee on occupational taxes will need more time before recommending changes in the current tax schedule. He said that staff of the Big Sandy Area Development District are assisting council by "finding out averages statewide" for similar taxes. He pointed out that the current ordinance, which determines occupational tax rates, was passed 20 years ago.

Council also passed a resolution of sympathy for Sam Campbell of Big Sandy ADD, whose father recently died.

Councilmen Paul Joseph and Jim Yates were absent from the meeting. The next meeting of the council is April 10 at 7 p.m. at the Municipal Building.

CONCERNED CITIZENS AND YOU SHOULD BE.

It is sad to say that, one female inmate committed suicide Nov. 1983;
One male inmate committed suicide May 1985;
One male inmate suffers death due to a heart attack—while begging and pleading to our current Floyd County Jailer for medical treatment Dec. 1986, but was denied. (Poor negligence & uncaring concern on our jailer's behalf);
Inmates protested jail by going on starvation (hunger strike) due to indecent and cold meals to eat;
One deputy jailer "fired" for assisting a police officer.
Citizens, none of the above should have happened and we can't change that now, but we can prevent it from happening again in the future by electing me, (Junior Joseph), May 23, 1989.

- (1.) I will install remote cameras for security watch on all inmates.
- (2.) I will remove all belts and shoe strings from all inmates to prevent anymore suicidal deaths.
- (3.) I will offer professional counselors and choice of religious guidance to unstable and depressed inmates
- (4.) I will be supportive to our police officers.
- (5.) I, Junior Joseph, will be committed to serving you well and I want to make you feel safe and secure with me first time, every time.

I want to thank you, the Concerned Citizens, for your current and continuous support to help elect me, Junior Joseph, as your next Floyd County Jailer.

Johns Creek Slips Past ACHS In Season Opener

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The temperature was in the low 80's on a beautiful sunny afternoon at the Allen Park, a perfect setting for the beginning of the hardball season. About 100 people turned out to watch the Johns Creek Bearcats, rated among the top five teams in the 15th region, take on the Allen Central Rebels in the opening of the high school baseball season.

John Hamilton struck out 17 batters and allowed the Rebels just three hits as the Bearcats slipped past a good Allen Central team, 2-1, scoring unearned runs in both the first and fourth innings. Kevin Webb started on the mound for the Rebels and pitched a solid game, striking out eight batters and allowing the Bearcats just three hits.

With two out in the first inning, Hamilton reached Webb for a base hit to center. Jim Burchfield singled to right where the ball was misplayed and Hamilton was able to score the game's first run after two Rebels errors. Burchfield was thrown out while trying to go to third.

Allen Central was retired in order in the first inning with Hamilton recording two strikeouts. After Webb struck out the first two batters in the second, Larry Ford singled to right, and Weddington struck out.

Both pitchers settled down until the fourth inning when Webb ran into some wildness in the top of the frame. Hamilton walked and was thrown out at second base trying to steal. Burchfield walked, but was picked off first by Webb.

Ison grounded to short as the ball was mishandled and he reached first on an error. Ison then stole second, Woods walked on four pitches and Ford grounded to short, only to have the ball go underneath the glove of the shortstop for an error. The leftfielder's error allowed Ison to score the Bearcats' second unearned run and to take a 2-0 lead.

In the Rebels' fourth, Mickey Parson singled to left, stole second, and moved to third on a wild pitch. Kevin Spurlock reached first on an error on the shortstop, allowing Parson to score, making the score 2-1. Webb walked, putting runners at first and second with only one out. Hamilton then settled down and struck out Meadows, Gray, and Hall to stop the Rebels' rally.

In Allen Central's sixth, Parson grounded hard back to the pitcher for an out. Spurlock then singled to center, and Webb hit a towering drive to center field that fell in for a double, with Spurlock held at third. Hamilton, again finding himself in trouble, reached back and struck out Meadows and Gray to preserve the Bearcats' 2-1 victory.

Allen Central will play Pikeville Thursday afternoon at 4:30 at Pikeville, and then travel to Millard for a noon encounter with the Mustangs.

Coach Donnie Daniels was pleased with his team's efforts in its first outing.

"The things we did wrong can be corrected. We played a good ball game," Daniels said. "They scored two unearned runs on us. We also made four errors that cost us. Even though we played good the players should never be satisfied with a defeat. We show we could play with anybody in the region."

Local Players To Take Part In Kentucky Mountain Shootout

Eleven-member boys' teams and 10-member girls' teams have been selected for the Kentucky Mountain Shootout, an All-Star basketball benefit sponsored by the El Hasa Shrine Temple.

The All-Star boys and girls games between the 15th and 16th Regions will be played March 31 at Morehead State University, with the girls' game slated to start at 7 p.m. and the boys' contest to follow at 8:45 p.m.

The four teams will meet again at the Johnson Central High School gym on Sunday, April 2 with the girls' game to start at 2 p.m. The boys will play at 3:45 p.m.

Marvin Meredith, who has coached at Russell since 1955 and has announced his retirement, will coach the 16th Region Boys All-Stars.

Bobby Osborne, a longtime head coach at Virgie, will lead the 15th Region Boys All-Stars.

Girls coaches are West Carter's John "Hop" Brown in the 16th Region and Johnson Central's Alvin Ratliff in the 15th Region.

Teams were selected by votes from each region's coaches and media. Blankenship, Phelps; and Mike Scott, Belfry.

In the girls All-Star game, Karen Frasure and Michelle Clemmons, will be the only 58th District representatives. Both are members of the Prestonsburg Lady Blackcats.

Frasure was chosen as the "player of the year" in the 58th District and finished eighth in the state in scoring with a 26 points per game average. She also averaged nine rebounds a game.

Clemmons played point guard for the Lady Blackcats and was the Lady Blackcats ball handler. She is able to hit the three-pointer if left open.

Other players for the girls' team are: Tammy Vipperman and Teresa Grizzel, Belfry; Becky Mullins, Phelps; Autumn Damron, Virgie; Bridgette Harmon, Sheldon Clark; Kristina Bryant, Dorton, and Jenny Witten, Johnson Central.

Tickets for the All-Star basketball game at Johnson Central on Sunday, April 2, are on sale at McDowell, Prestonsburg and Betsy Layne high schools. Prices are $3 for students and $5 for adults.

George Stout, game director of the Kentucky Mountain Shootout, was pleased with the selection process. "I feel like each squad has some outstanding players and, hopefully, some can earn a college scholarship through this game," Stout said.

Local players from the 58th District will be taking part in the All-Star event. The Betsy Layne Bobcats will be represented by 6'0" senior guard Duran Newsome. An outstanding basketball player, Newsome can score from the three-point circle, as well as score underneath.

McDowell's "dynamic guard duo" of Dickie Joe Shannon and Henry Webb will represent the 58th District Champions in the All-Star encounter. Shannon and Webb have been rated the best two guards in the 15th Region this year. Rady Martin was invited but declined the invitation.

Other players selected for the All-Star event are: Jerry Pelphrey, Paintsville; Ray Hall, Virgie; Freddie Bowling, Virgie; Chris Slater, Pikeville; Vince Pack, Johnson Central; Jesse Maynard, Sheldon Clark; Ronnie

Prestonsburg Little League Sign-Up To Be Held April 15

The Prestonsburg Little League met last Thursday night for an organizational meeting for the coming baseball season. Steve Stevens was appointed president of the league for the 1989 season.

According to Ned Pillersdorf, April 15 has been set as the date to sign up for the upcoming season at Archer Park.

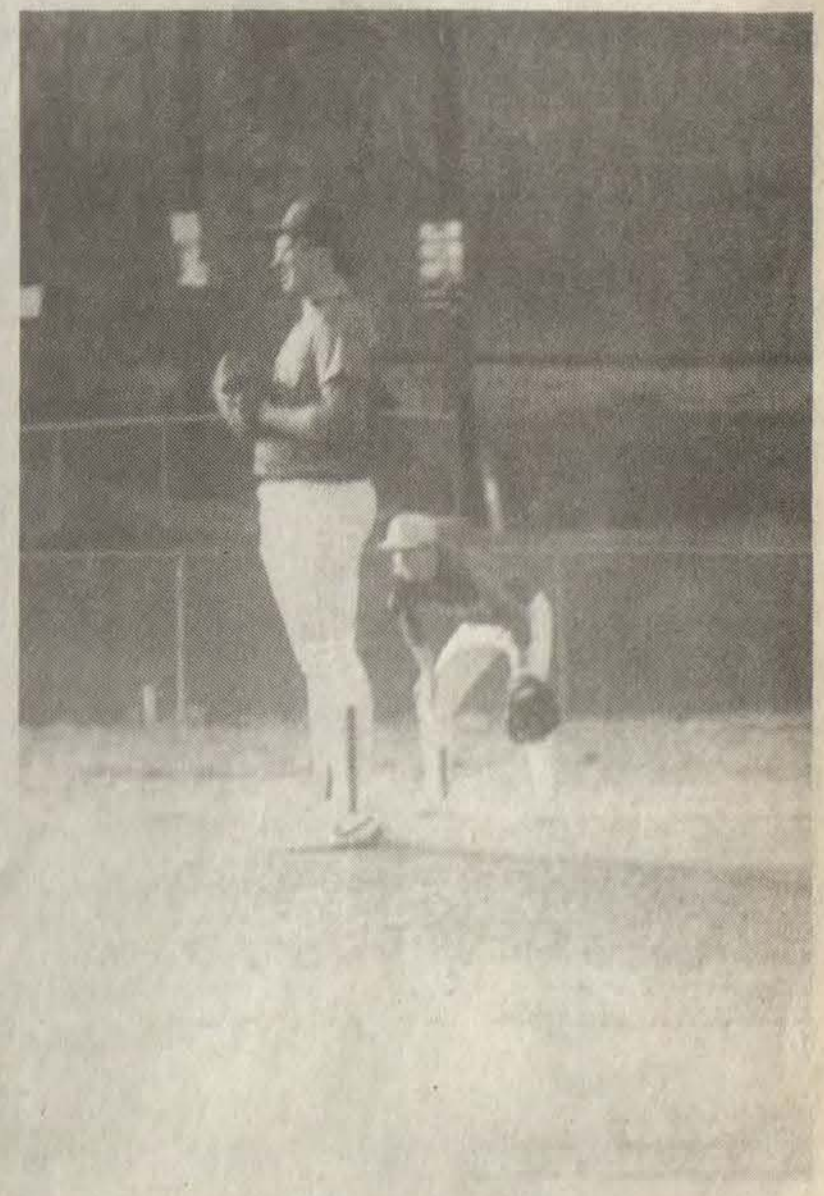

"All players must sign up on this date," Pillersdorf said. "Little League, Farm League, and Senior League must sign up. The time will be at 9 a.m. Also, on April 15th, at 1 p.m., we will have our tryouts for new players," Pillersdorf added. "The Farm League players will be put on teams."

The Prestonsburg Little League will officially open its season on April 29, although the season will begin on May 1.

"We're going to have all the teams get together on April 29 at the park," Pillersdorf explained. "They will start on May 1."

The Prestonsburg league is composed of eight Little League teams, five Senior League teams, plus farm teams.

Mounting the Mound

Kevin Webb takes the mound in the season opener against Johns Creek Monday at the Allen Park. Webb struck out eight batters in losing to the Bearcats, 2-1.

Keepers

By Chris Altman

For anglers in the know, the next month will bring some of the year's finest bass fishing. Already fat with eggs, the big females are now beginning to orient to shallow waters in preparation for the spawn. Unfortunately, the bass are not holding in the shallows just yet, nor will they be for several more weeks.

Anglers who understand the bass' prespawn period are well on their way to fishing success. It's really a simple concept, but one which eludes many anglers. Basically, the bass are eager to move into shallow water and begin spawning, but the water temperature simply is not yet suitable. On warm, sunny days, the water in the shallows will warm several degrees as the day progresses, and the bass will move from their deepwater haunts to the shallows. But once the sun drops and the air cools, the shallow water will lose its heat and the bass will retreat into the comfort of deeper water. This cycle will continue until the air temperature at night and day and the water's surface temperature become more moderated. When that finally happens, the fish will remain in the shallows and begin the actual spawning ritual.

Until that time, however, successful anglers must learn to fish at two levels during the day in an effort to match the vertical movement of the bass through the depths. As a general rule, the bass will start the day in relatively deep water and move progressively upward as the water warms.

What is more, the bass (in a reservoir) are also moving from the old river channel into the creek channels. As the weather and the water warm through the weeks, the bass will move farther up into the creeks utilizing the creek channel as a sort of highway.

In the next few weeks, one of the best structures to focus on will be the first rocky or gravel point on the north side of a creek arm. Bass prefer to spawn in gravel, and since the north side of the lake or creek receives the most sunlight throughout the day, the water here warms more rapidly than the waters elsewhere. The difference might not be more than a few degrees, but it is definitely worth noting.

In the mornings, the fish will be schooled and holding just off of the point, usually suspended over the creek channel. Because the water is still relatively cold at those depths, the bass will be rather sluggish. They will feed, but they won't chase a bait very far. Thus, slow moving lures like Carolina-rigged do-nothing worms, and drop baits like jigs, grubs, and Silver Buddys, will tend to produce most of the bass taken in the mornings.

As the sun rises and the shallow water warms, the bass will begin moving upwards into that shallow water. In early spring, even though the shallow water is warmer than the deeper water, it is still cool and the fish will remain sluggish throughout the day. Therefore, slow moving lures are a good choice. One of my favorite early spring baits is Strike King's Houston Model Magnum spinnerbait. This 5/8-ounce spinnerbait features a gigantic Colorado-style blade (occupied with a smaller one on the tandem model), and might seem rather large for use in cool water. However, that large blade provides tremendous lift and enables you to fish it very slowly while maintaining a shallow depth. As long as you retrieve the bait slowly, the fish will have no trouble catching it. Remember, though, that this bait is for use later in the day after the bass have moved into shallow water.

Deep diving crankbaits are also a good choice when fished correctly. The fish will not chase the bait too far, but they will definitely hit it should you run it in front of them. Use a very slow stop-and-go retrieve and try to hit bottom on occasion. The reason you should choose a deep runner is because it will dive almost vertically. When you pause the bait, it will float upwards a foot or two. Then, when you start the retrieve again, a deep diver will hit bottom much more quickly than will a shallow runner, and this will keep your bait in the strike zone for a longer period of time. In relatively clear or slightly dingy water, try a crayfish or shad pattern, and throw a fire tiger in muddy or dingy water.

Another place to look for early season bass is in the backs of muddy creeks and coves. Muddy water absorbs heat more rapidly than clear water, so it warms much faster. Be sure that you have a defined creek channel leading into the area, for pre-spawn bass will not travel far from a channel leading to deeper water. Again, the Strike King Houston Model Magnum is a good choice here as the huge blade provides a slow retrieve, lots of flash, and plenty of vibration which will help the fish locate the bait. In this muddy water, opt for a chartreuse bait.

Incorporate this two-tiered fishing system into your pre-spawn bass fishing and I guarantee you will catch more fish.

Until next week, good fishing!

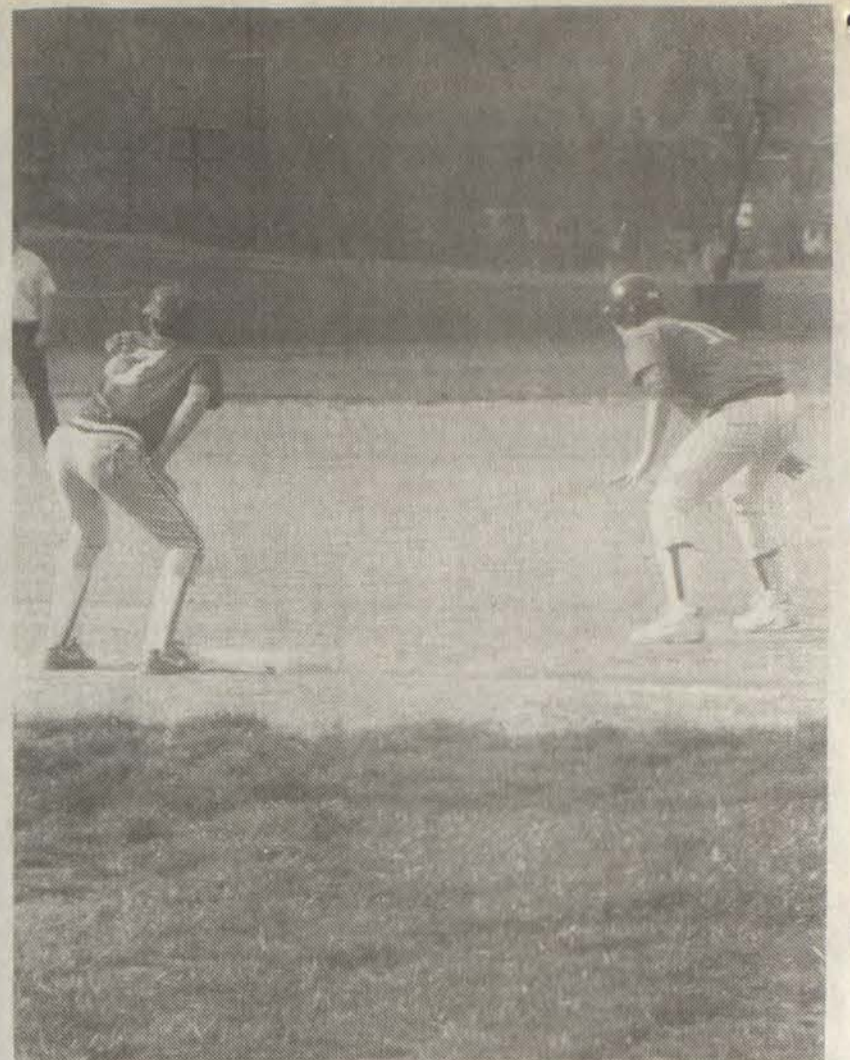

Productive Lure!

Big bladed spinnerbaits are one of the most productive springtime bass baits. Ken Cook, a professional tournament angler from Meers, Oklahoma, hoists a 7-pound lunker pulled from the shallows on a spinnerbait. See "Keepers!" for more information.

EXTRA INNINGS

By Ed Taylor

Allen Central baseball coach Donnie Daniels has set a major goal for his baseball squad this spring—to get back into the regional tournament. Daniels' team is loaded with a lot of new faces, and the team will rely greatly on seniors to show some leadership. But with only three seniors, the team is dominated by underclassmen who must step in and fill vacancies left by last year's graduating seniors.

Close games hurt the squad last year, something Coach Daniels hopes to turn around this year.

"We lost nine one-run games last year," he says. "We began to question our ability in trying to figure out what was wrong."

The Rebels finished with a 10-16 won and lost record and were runners-up in the 58th District Tournament last year. Allen Central dropped their first game of the regional to Paintsville, 6-5.

This year's team promises to be better. One of its strengths is its depth at all positions.

"We will make a lot of mistakes at the first of the season," Daniels predicts. "That's because we are so young. We only have three starters returning from last year's team. We do have two transfers that will help us a lot."

Daniels and the Rebels are hoping once the team gets some experience, especially the younger players, it will be able to make a good showing late in the season.

Coach Daniels sees his pitching staff as being "very deep." Much depends on Mickey Parson, a junior and regarded as the team's best pitcher.

"If Parson has a good year on the mound we will do all right," Daniels believes. Parson will be at shortstop when not pitching.

One of the mainstays this year will be senior Kevin Webb, catcher and a pitcher. Webb led the Rebels in home runs and RBI's last year.

"Kevin is a good team leader," Daniels relates, "He will have to take control of this young pitching staff. We are putting a lot of pressure on him this year, but he is the type of player who loves the challenge, and there is no doubt in my mind he will do the job."

Another player the Rebels and Coach Daniels are expecting a lot from is senior Todd Duff, second baseman and also pitcher.

"Todd gets on base a lot and makes things happen," Daniels said. "Todd's main job will be getting on base in front of Webb and the middle of the order."

The Rebels will be looking to senior Jamie Hall for leadership in the outfield.

Three transfer will help the Rebels this year: Kevin Spurlock who can play any position, Brett Meadows who will fill in at first base, and Brian Meadows.

With only three starters back from last year, a key for the Rebels will be how the young players step in and perform.

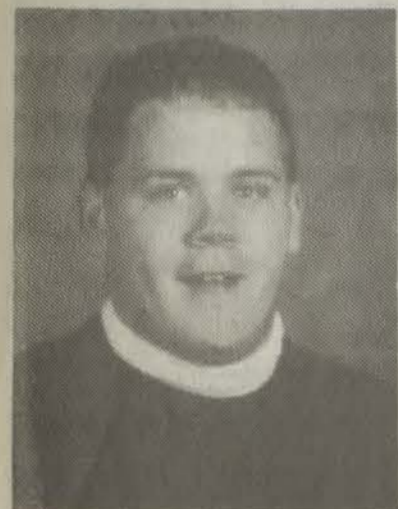

Coach Daniels is optimistic about this year's team.

"They can play with anyone in the 15th Region," he says, pointing out the hitting ability and arm strengths of the current squad. With the leadership displayed by his seniors and the development of his young players, he hopes they can return to the 15th Regional tournament at Pikeville this year.

Good Time Of Year To Fish Pre-Spawn Largemouth Bass

This is the time of year when bass are beginning to move into shallow water to spawn, but even though the fish may appear to be quite vulnerable and susceptible to lures, finding the fish isn't always that easy.

"The most important thing to remember," explains Evinrude Pro Staff member Ken Cook, a well known tournament pro as well as a former fisheries biologist, "is that all the bass are not moving shallow at the same time."

"Some will be shallow, some will be at mid-range depths a little further out, and many will still be in deeper water."

"The timetable not only differs from lake to lake, but even from one end of a lake to the other. Bass on the upper end of a big impoundment may spawn two weeks earlier than bass on the lower end, simply because the water warms faster."

Cook recommends anglers follow a well defined progression from deep water to shallow just as the fish do, in order to determine where they are. "I suggest anglers fish main lake points first," says the Evinrude Pro. "Study these points carefully, because the bass may be suspended, particularly if the water has been unsettled. Use a plastic grub, a spoon or a jug and frog, and work cover and structure like treelines or channels."

From the main lake points, Cook recommends moving to the mouths of major tributary creeks, as well as secondary points within the creeks. Again, anglers should work available cover with a variety of lures and at several depths.

"As you gradually work your way into a creek, begin to look for actual spawning areas," he explains, "especially long points or wide flats. Then, with good map or with your depth-finder, try to locate a channel or treeline leading into that area. That's the path the bass will follow."

"One feature I like to look for is the first true breakline off the spawning area where the depth changes abruptly. The first available cover, such as trees, logs or vegetation, can also attract and hold bass as they wait to move into the spawning area."

"Try to visualize what the bass are doing and how they're moving. Each one of these stopping points is like a hotel where the fish remain for up to several days at a time."

When fishing heavy cover for pre-spawn bass, Cook likes to use a spinnerbait, jig, or plastic grub. When bass are more active, he retrieves the lures quicker, but in colder water when the fish aren't biting as well he slows down his retrieve.

"Remember there are usually more fish not spawning than spawning," he says. "That means you'll find more bass away from the flats at these different staging areas."

"These fish are more active than those on the spawning beds and are easier to catch, so that's where you should try to spend your time fishing."

DAVID ALLEN BARBER

FLOYD COUNTY ATTORNEY

WHAT DOES THE COUNTY ATTORNEY DO?

Since taking office we have handled over Six Thousand warrants in Floyd County from private citizens. Of them, 1,300 were felony offenses. I feel it is important that we take the time to listen and work for all the people of Floyd County.

Complaints range from charges of assault, robbery, harassment, terroristic threatening, and numerous other offenses committed in Floyd County.

In addition, we have handled over 1,000 juvenile hearings. We are especially concerned about the welfare of our children. Charges of child abuse, neglect, or dependency are always delicate and we try to handle them with the interest of the children involved coming first.

As your county attorney, we are presently involved in over 2,500 requests for assistance in collecting child support. Collections of child support payments are up over 300% since I have taken office.

Further, we have handled over 11,000 traffic cases which deal in charges of driving under the influence, no operators license, no registration and others. This does not include the thousands of citations issued for speeding and other moving traffic violations.

Working with the Floyd Fiscal Court we have paved over 100 miles of roads in Floyd County; there have been over Eleven Million dollars of bonds sold for new schools, we have installed 510 new fire hydrants, grants for all seventeen fire departments, grants of money for the Floyd County Senior Citizens, Floyd County Disaster Emergency Service, Civil Air Patrol, Floyd County Library, Animal Shelter, Big Sandy Regional Airport, provided $20,000.00 for a new jaws-of-life truck for the Floyd County Rescue Squad, and $20,000.00 to the Left Beaver Volunteer Fire Department for two new fire trucks.

We have worked hard to handle all these matters. Sometimes it doesn't seem like there's enough time in a day to address all we would like to do. I have worked very hard as your County Attorney. These are not promises, this is what we have been doing everyday for four years.

I won't promise crazy things that I know we can't accomplish. I do promise to work hard as your County Attorney and I do promise to do my best to continue to handle the thousands of matters that come to the County Attorney's office each week.

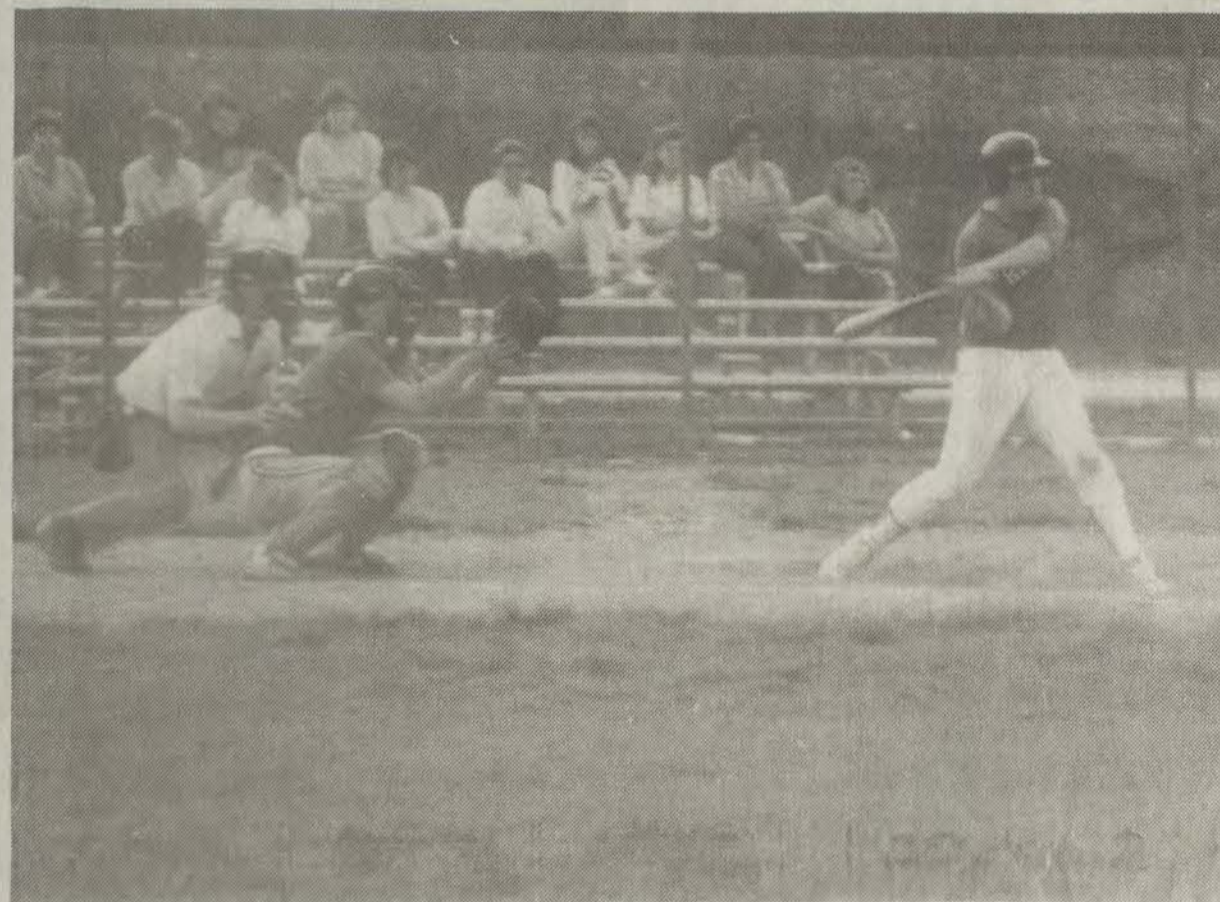

I would appreciate your support for re-election so we can continue to provide these honest and dedicated services to the people of Floyd County.

Free Fishing Set June 10-11

The Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Resources Commission has designated June 10-11 as free fishing days this year in Kentucky.

The special fishing days will be held in conjunction with National Fishing Week, according to Carolyn Lynn, spokeswoman for KDF&W.

"Free fishing means on this particular Saturday and Sunday in June, anyone of any age, whether resident or non-resident, may fish Kentucky waters without possessing a sport fishing license," said Lynn. "However, anglers must observe current size and creel limits and all other regulations governing fishing. Fishermen should also obtain permission before entering private lands."

Lynn said free fishing days are designed to promote recreational fishing by introducing persons of all ages to the sport.

Kentucky's first statewide free fishing days were established last year. Several other states will also observe National Fishing Week by offering free fishing days.

Year's Hottest Lure May Be An Oldtimer

In case you've been wondering what might be the hottest bass lure for 1989, don't be surprised if it turns out to be a soft plastic fish catcher that's been around for more than three decades.

It's called the grub, and it is nothing more than a short, squat, plastic worm measuring two to five inches in length. For some reason, bass fishermen are rediscovering the lure this year.

"Grubs really are one of the best lures available," says top tournament pro Ricky Green of the Johnson Outboards Pro Staff. "It's an old standby that everyone seems to have forgotten, but a grub will catch bass when other lures don't."

Grubs appear to imitate small injured shad, says Green, which makes them visually effective, and because they have no built in action of their own, an angler can really use his imagination when fishing them. Thus, they're versatile lures for a variety of water conditions.

"My favorite places to fish grubs are along rocky points, beside the outer edges of vegetation, or near channel breaks where bass are suspended," Green says. "It's a quick limit lure that doesn't always catch big bass, but it catches a lot of bass."

Green frequently fishes grubs like jugs, hopping them along the bottom. One of his favorite techniques is a double-hop, in which he snaps his rod upward to make the grub jump off the bottom. Before the lure begins falling, he snaps the rod upward again, causing the grub to jump a second time. Then he slowly lowers the lure back to the bottom.

"In that sequence, the lure really does look like an injured shad minnow," says the Johnson pro. "Hits come most often as the lure starts falling after the second jump."

Grubs are sold in two basic styles, those with straight, paddle-like tails, and those with curly, swimming tails. Lengths in both styles range from two to about five inches. The lures are rigged with leadhead hooks of various weights.

Green suggests anglers begin with a three-inch grub rigged with a 1/4-ounce leadhead, and fish it with 10-pound test line with a spinning rod. In colder water he recommends using a straight tail grub, but when temperatures warm later in spring, a curly tail version should be tried.

"In clear water lakes, the fish may be deeper," explains Green, "and a heavier leadhead may be used. When the bass are shallow, such as less than 10 feet, a lighter head may be used."

"The lure is fished with the hook exposed, so you have to be careful where and how you fish a grub, but with accurate casting you can work heavy cover successfully."

Although Green has used grubs for years, he doesn't know why so many other anglers continue to overlook their effectiveness.

"You have to admit grubs aren't very exciting to look at," laughs the Johnson angler. "They don't buzz or whirl or do anything fancy."

"Perhaps the bass, because of all the fishing pressure they're receiving now, are too accustomed to seeing and hearing the other lures. When a small, silent lure like a grub drops in front of them, they may really think it is something to eat."

Fishing Activity Is Light Across Kentucky Recently

Fishing activity over the March 20-21 weekend was light statewide. Crappie, largemouth and walleye were reported active at different lakes. Some ramps remained closed due to high water conditions.

The lake-by-lake report:
Dewey: Catfish were hitting minnows and nightcrawlers 5 to 10 feet deep along creek channel drop-offs; crappie were hitting minnows and tube jigs 5 to 10 feet over submerged trees. Murky, stable at 5 feet below summer pool and 55 degrees.

Paintsville: No report available. Muddy, stable at summer pool and 46 degrees. The new Big Mine Fork launching ramp is now open off Jellico Branch Road.

Cave Run: Only one ramp open at Scott's Creek due to high water. Possibly first of may before lake returns to summer pool; murky to muddy, 19 feet above summer pool and 45 degrees.

Lower Cumberland: Striped bass were hitting minnows and jigs 15 to 20 feet deep in open water; murky, falling, 6 feet above summer pool and 47 degrees.

Dale Hollow: Largemouth bass were hitting spinnerbaits 10 to 15 feet deep over drop-offs; smallmouth bass were hitting crankbaits 15 to 20 feet deep off rocky points. Muddy, falling, 1 to 1.5 feet above summer pool and 52 degrees.

Laurel: Trout were taking spinnerbaits 15 to 20 feet deep in open water; Kentucky bass were hitting spinnerbaits 15 to 20 feet deep in open water. Clear, stable at summer pool and 45 degrees.

Buckhorn: White bass were hitting minnows and jigs 10 to 165 feet in the tailwaters. Clear to murky, falling, 20 feet below summer pool and 50 degrees.

Grayson: Largemouth bass were hitting spinnerbaits and jigs 5 to 10 feet deep along the shoreline and over brush piles; crappie were hitting minnows 5 to 15 feet deep along drop-offs. Murky to muddy, rising, 8 feet below summer pool and 45 degrees.

Kentucky: Largemouth and smallmouth bass were hitting crankbaits and spinnerbaits 5 to 10 feet deep over brush piles and off rocky points; crappie were hitting jigs 10 to 15 feet deep along stump rows and over brush piles. Murky, falling, 3 feet below summer pool and 51 degrees.

Barkley: Crappie were taking jigs and minnows 3 to 8 feet deep in submerged trees; largemouth bass were hitting grubs and spinnerbaits early along the shoreline. Murky to muddy, rising slowly, 3 feet below summer pool and 52 degrees.

Barren River: All ramps are closed due to high water conditions. Murky, falling, 27 feet above summer pool and 45 degrees. Contact US Army Corps of Engineers for ramp opening information.

Nolin: Ramps are officially closed due to high water conditions. Murky to muddy, falling, 21 feet above summer pool and 48 degrees. Check with US Army Corps of Engineers for ramp opening information.

Rough River: High water conditions exist, launch at own risk. Clear to muddy, falling, 17 feet above summer pool and 48 degrees.

Swing and a Miss

Mickey Parsons takes a big cut and misses against the Johns Creek Bearcats Monday in high school baseball play. Johns Creek scored two unearned runs to take the opener, 2-1.

Two County Players Named To EKMC Team

Two Wheelwright High School football players, Vic Cotton and John McCoy, are among area athletes recognized as outstanding by the Eastern Kentucky Mountain Conference.

The EKMC is an athletic conference for boy's sports that includes Wheelwright, Jenkins, Whitesburg, Fleming Neon and Allen Central high schools.

Cotton, 18-year-old son of Jackie Cotton, was named to the 1988-89 All-EKMC Defensive Team. Cotton has played four years of varsity football for Wheelwright and has received other honors, including EKMC Specialist of 1987-88 and Floyd County Times senior player of 1988-89.

Cotton hopes to play football for Union College next year at Barbourville.

"I feel privileged to have the opportunity to play college football as I further my education," Cotton said.

McCoy was also named to the Defensive Team, as well as the EKMC All-Offensive Team. McCoy, 18, a senior, is the son of Wendell and Linda McCoy. He has played varsity football at Wheelwright for three years and also plans to play football for Union.

"I hope I can do as well at Union College as I did here at Wheelwright," McCoy said of his sports career.

Both McCoy and Cotton will receive plaques at the upcoming EKMC Awards Banquet at Jenkins.

Pikeville, Ky

MR. SAM SHEPHERD,

Since the Floyd County Times could not give me your phone number or address, due to their policies, and since there is only one Sam Shepherd in the phone book who lives at Salt Lick, and since there is only one Sam Shepherd registered to vote who happens to be the same person on Salt Lick, and you did say that you were a taxpayer, I felt the need to answer your questions, and this is the only way that I can contact you.....

IN RESPONSE TO YOUR AD

MIDDLE ROOM—Marriage License Blood Test Files • Motor Vehicle License Receipts that must be kept for 5 years • Bill of Sales that must be kept for 5 years

KITCHEN AREA—Consists of 1984 Files • Micro-Film cartridge racks for Reader Printers owned by the county • 1986 Daily Check-Out Sheets.

BACK ROOM ON LEFT—PVA office has tax rolls stored • Circuit Judge's office has records stored • Bill of Sales that must be kept for 5 years • Additional receipts that must be kept 5 years BACK ROOM ON RIGHT—County Election Reports and files that must be kept 2 years • Additional Bill of Sales that must be kept 5 years • Daily Check Out Records that must be kept • Office supplies.

This building is owned by A.C. Collins and Rose Collins. Rent of $620.00 per month is paid to A.C. Collins.

Carla has discussed the problem of not enough storage space for the County Clerk's office several times with the County Judge/ Executive and has made several suggestions of buildings available but as of the present time, no solution has been found for the overcrowdedness. The entire courthouse has the same problem, RECORDS MUST BE KEPT, but there is not enough space in the courthouse

To answer the question concerning my business...I do the same type of work for twenty (20) other counties other than Floyd County. I have done this for the past three years. I have my offices and supplies and parts for my business in Eastern, Ky. at my home and in Hindman, Ky. in Knott County.

Since I have been in the business, not only have I saved Floyd County money by doing their elections and by the other supplies that I supply thru my business, I have also donated time and equipment to Floyd County and other counties.

- (1) Floyd County—May 1988—My company gave 9 voting machines.
- (2) For the Wet 'N Dry Election to be held April 1989, my company gave Floyd County 9 more voting machines so it would not interfere with the May 1989 Primary Election.
- (3) I set-up voting machines for various high schools as a service to educate our children at no charge to the county.
- (4) Many other smaller items were given to each of the counties.
- (5) Since March 1986, I have helped my wife in the County Clerk's office, to the best of my ability, at no charge to the county.
- (6) Other Counties-----
 - Wolfe County—replaced old antique voting machines at no charge. Gave them 18 voting machines.
 - Clinton County—Gave 2 voting machines at no charge.
 - Breathitt County—Gave 4 voting machines at no charge.
 - Leslie County—Gave 5 voting machines at no charge.
 - Knox County—Gave 12 voting machines at no charge.
 - Elliott County—Gave Cash Register at no charge.
 - Knott County—Gave Roller Shelving at no charge.

The cost of the election, when the county did election with the other company in the state in Dec. 1983, cost the county $22,000.00. It's in the records of the first court orders book in the county clerk's office if you wish to see it.

It has never cost the county in a year of elections that much with "Kentuckiana Election Service."

- 1984 LAWRENCE COUNTY—Microfilming total cost $23,746.00—Did Not Have To Be Bid Upon.
- 1984 FLOYD COUNTY—Microfilming total cost $12,267.16—Did Not Have To Be Bid Upon.
- 1985 LAWRENCE COUNTY—Microfilming total cost $14,793.52—Did Not Have To Be Bid Upon.
- 1985 HARLAN COUNTY—Microfilming total cost $12,565.00—Did Not Have To Be Bid Upon.
- 1985 GREENUP COUNTY—Microfilming total cost $16,150.00—Did Not Have To Be Bid Upon.
- 1985 FLOYD COUNTY—Microfilming total cost $9,223.52—Did Not Have To Be Bid Upon.

All of which I only received 10% of the total as a commission.

ALL THE MONEY DIDN'T COME FROM THE COUNTY GRANTS; MONEY WAS GIVEN BY THE STATE.

Mr. Shepherd, if you or anyone else, would like to ask any questions of me concerning my business or of my wife, concerning the Floyd County Clerk's office, you may contact us at 358-9183. Our address is HC 80 Box 90, Eastern, KY 41622.

McDowell Students Protest Abundant Litter On Beaver

McDowell High Students Protest

Students in Sally Miller's American Literature class at McDowell High School have been studying protest movements in America, and the role that literature has played in them.

As a result, the class decided to adopt the litter problem on Left Beaver Creek as their target for protest. They have written a series of letters and poems, hoping to prove that the "pen is mightier than the sword."

They have challenged other students, members of civic clubs, church, Scouts and county officials to join their cause.

To the Citizens of Left Beaver Creek:

I am sure that as residents of Left Beaver Creek, you are aware, as I am, of the terrible condition of our section of Floyd County. The various items of litter (plastic milk jugs, discarded furniture, tin cans, etc.) that have "decorated" our hills and streams for 20 years or more have brought an image of filthiness and a feeling of disgust upon us, the people of the Appalachian Mountains.

We, as supposed proud citizens of such a beautiful landscape, should strive for better cleanliness for the hills that have been our homes for so many years. We have the potential for advancement through industry, tourism and other business, but not with every piece of trash that is brought into Left Beaver scattered abroad on our roadsides, hillsides, and in our creeks. I personally challenge every Left Beaver adult, child, and visitor to put their trash where it belongs this week: in the trash can!

Respectfully,
Tim Lawson
McDowell High School
Junior Class

To All Voters in District Three:

In case you have not noticed, our current magistrate has done absolutely nothing to clean up Left Beaver Creek. If the $500 fine for littering was collected for every act of littering in District 3, Floyd County would be one of the richest areas in the United States. Left Beaver Creek is probably the filthiest place in the United States; if not, it is at least in the top 10 of filth. If I were magistrate I would be ashamed to have people know I am in charge of cleaning this area up. I am amazed as to how the voters of District 3 continue to elect the same people, whose apathy shows they are not in office to serve the good of the people.

If the 19 candidates for magistrate would demonstrate their plan to do for District 3 as a whole, and stop promising what they will do for each person who votes for him or her, the voters might become aware of what each candidate plans to do. If the voters would wise up and elect someone who really cares, this area might begin to get cleaned up.

David W. Hall,

To Whom It May Concern:
As most of the people who live up Left Beaver Creek already know, we have a garbage problem in our ditches and creeks. As a concerned citizen of Left Beaver Creek, I want this place to look worth living in. When I travel on Route 122 from Martin to McDowell, I get sick of all the trash I see beside the road in that period of time, and this problem is getting worse every day.

How can we attract industry or how can we attract tourists if this place looks like a garbage dump? This is a beautiful place to live and this is the only flaw on the beautiful landscape. I see people throwing trash out car windows into our ditches and creeks every day, and I am sick of seeing this. I think that it's time we do something about this problem. Let's take pride in our community and in Floyd County by doing something about it. This is a problem and every problem has a solution.

Thank you,
J. Scott Shannon
Junior
McDowell High School

I Am

I am a person about to be covered in trash
I wonder if this place will ever modernize
I hear the sound of sewage running into the creek
I see trash beside the road
I want this place to be cleaned up
I am a person about to be covered in trash

I pretend this place is as clean as other places

I feel disgusted with this place
I touch the mud all over my car
I cry when I run over a huge pothole
I am a person about to be covered in trash
I understand that this place will never change unless the attitudes of the people change

I say I will leave this place one day
I dream this place will be fit to live in one day

I try to tolerate my surroundings
I hope it does not get worse
I am a person about to be covered in trash.

David W. Hall
McDowell High School

To Whom It May Concern:

I am a concerned young adult who is worried about what we of Left Beaver Creek have let our area come to. How have we let this littering problem exist for so many years? Our mountains and streams that were once symbols of beauty and strength are now filthy eyesores. Garbage hangs from tree branches as naturally as leaves would. Beer cans, sewage, and milk jugs can now be found in our streams that were once clean enough to drink from. We can only blame ourselves for this obscenity against nature.

Perhaps if our county police and magistrate would work together to enforce littering laws and collect fines from litterers, our county would have enough money to launch a littering awareness and clean up project. We must take action now, before we have abused nature so greatly that we reach the point of no return and our mountains and streams turn into one enormous garbage dump.

People outside of the Appalachian area think that hillbillies are ignorant and lazy — why reinforce their opinion of us?

Too Litter, Too Late

It was too much litter and too late to pick it up in the Left Beaver area after recent heavy rains flushed two years' accumulation of debris out of smaller creeks and hollows. Students in Sally Miller's American Literature class at McDowell High School have been studying protest movements in America, and the role that literature has played in them. As a result, the class decided to adopt the litter problem on Left Beaver Creek as their target for protest. They have written a series of letters and poems, hoping to prove that the "pen is mightier than the sword." They have challenged other students, members of civic clubs, church, Scouts and county officials to join their cause.

ACHS Students Win Twin Categories Of Art Competition

The Kentucky All-State High School regional competition was held recently at Morehead State University, with Allen Central High School students winning in two categories.

Both Kathi Keen and Michael Collins had pictures selected for the All-State exhibit. Keen also won "Best of Show" from the 350 entries in the region. Her winning ribbons were in the pastel division. Collins won top honors in watercolors. Also placing from Allen Central were Barron Allen, second in charcoal, and Tommy Gearheart, third in pen and ink.

Keen is the daughter of Ernest and Roxie Keen of Wayland; Collins is the son of Lewis and Emma Collins of Langley. Allen is the son of Jimmy Lynn and Gloria Allen of Langley, while Gearheart is the son of Quentin and Luci Gearheart of Martin.

The competition was sponsored by the Kentucky Art Education Association, and is supported, in part, by a grant from the Kentucky Arts Council with funds from the National Endowment for the Arts and the Kentucky Department of Education.

From the regional sites, the All-State High School Art Exhibition was selected. The show will be on display at the Center for Contemporary Art in the Fine Arts Building at the University of Kentucky. A reception for the winning students will be held April 23; the exhibit will continue until May 7.

The slogan for this year's conference is "There's No Business Like Our Business."

Competing at the conference will be Brad Barker, Accounting II; Robin Trimble, Accounting I; Roy Kidd Jr., job interview; Rick Keathley, introduction to business; Michelle Hall, Typing I; Donetta Riley, public speaking.

The chapter competed for the first time at the regional level in the 1986-87 school year and Julie Spears, a junior, won third place in the penmanship competition.

Auxier Class Studies Crabs

Kindergarten students at Auxier Elementary School are studying crabs, using a real crab preserved in a jar from the room's science section.

The students learned that a crab is brown and orange, has a hard shells and claws which can pinch — and that crabs are hard to catch.

The students' interest in crabs was sparked by the mention of one from a story they have been reading.

Hereford Pledges Kappa Kappa Gamma

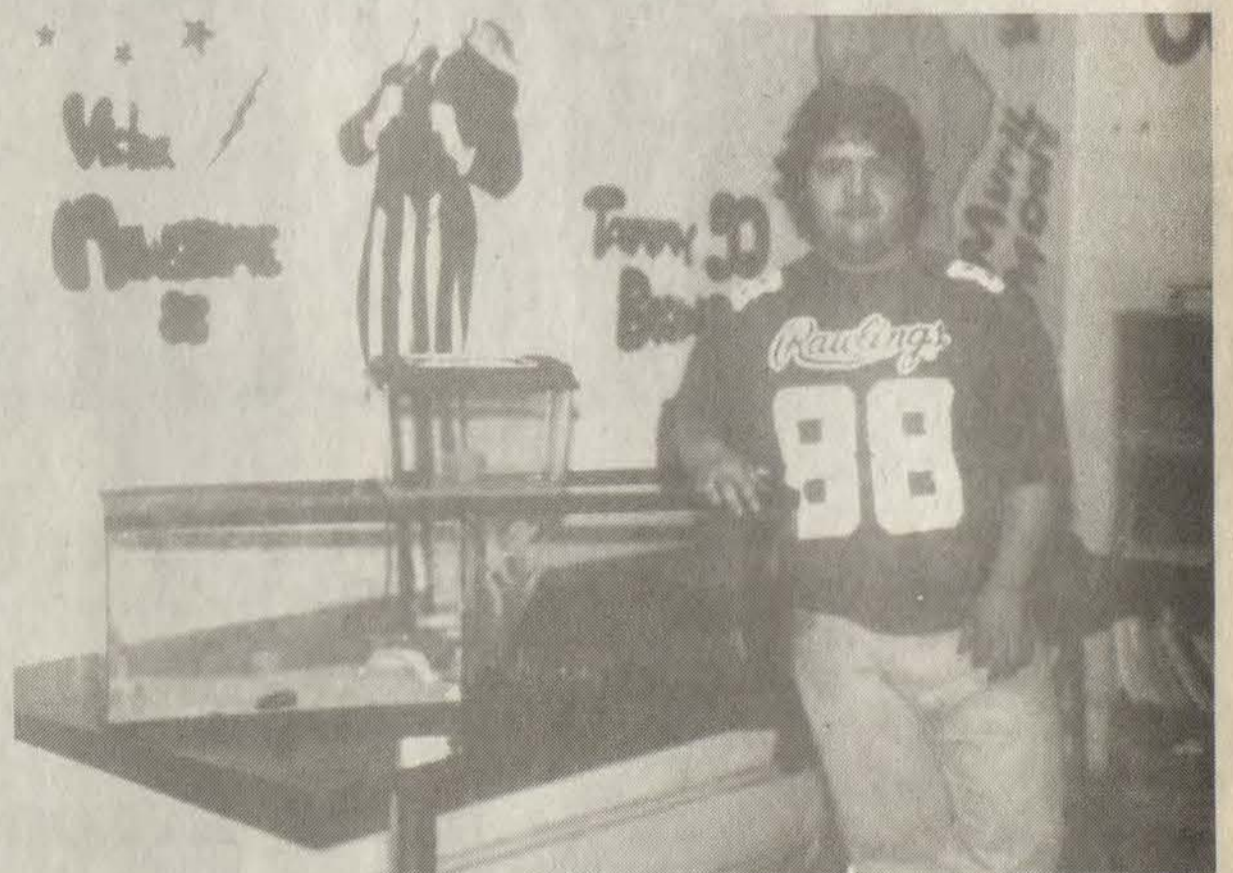

MARY HEREFORD

Mary Hereford of Prestonsburg, a freshman at Centre College, recently pledged Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority.

Hereford is the daughter of Thomas and Mary Jo Hereford, and is a 1988 graduate of Paintsville High School, where she served as secretary of her senior class and participated in athletics, running cross country.

Kappa Kappa Gamma is the second oldest sorority in the United States, founded at Monmouth College in Monmouth, Ill., in 1870. Centre's chapter is nine years old.

Blackburn and Friends

James Blackburn, a freshman at McDowell High School, owns two tarantulas and one scorpion. He first became interested in the exotic arachnids while studying about insects and spiders in science class. He feeds them insects and mice, and keeps them in separate glass cages. He has been bitten by one of the tarantulas, but luckily, he is not allergic to its venom. He brings the pets to school and shares them with his classmates and grade school science classes.

'Drug Buster' Wins Funds For School, Self In Contest

Gerald Gibson II, son of Capt. Gerald and Kathy Gibson of Ft. George G. Meade, Md., recently won $1,000 for his elementary school and a $200 savings bond for himself as one of two grand prize winners in the "Be A Drug Buster" poster contest.

The Gibsons are formerly of Hueysville; he is the grandson of Deanna Martin of Hueysville and the Rev. and Mrs. Dan Heintzelman of Martin. He is also the great-grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Joel Martin of Estill.

There were more than 1,000 contest entrants from Virginia, Washington, D.C. and Maryland in two age categories. A third-grader in Ida Adams' class at West Meade Elementary School, Gibson won the contest for the 8- to 11-year-old group.

Larry Lorton, superintendent of county public schools, and Barbara Mason, elementary school principal, accompanied Gibson and his parents to the award presentation.

Gibson will be a member of a school-based committee that will decide how the school's award will be spent.

Three More Area Students Receive USAA Nat'l Honors

Kim Horne and Kari Gayheart, students at Prestonsburg High School, have been named United States Achievement Academy national award winners in mathematics and history and government, respectively.

Also receiving a USAA award was Amy Middleton, who attends Fairlawn High School and is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milard F. Blanton of Langley and Agnes Middleton of Sidney, Ohio, and the late Carl Middleton.

Following nomination by her math teacher, Ron Robinson, Horne was among those chosen to appear in the USAA official yearbook, published nationally.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Seldon Horne. Her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Demaree of Shelbyville, and Anna B. Meador of Naches, Wash.

Gayheart was nominated by her political science teacher. She is the daughter of Betty and Eddie Gayheart. Her grandparents are Ruby Woods of Prestonsburg and the late Ike Woods, and the late Clay and Amy Gayheart of Prestonsburg.

Middleton, the daughter of George and Loretta Middleton, received an award in science. She was nominated by Todd Yohey, physical science teacher at the school.

"Recognizing and supporting our youth is more important than ever before in America's history. Certainly USAA award winners should be congratulated and appreciated for their dedication to excellence and achievement," said Dr. George Stevens, USAA executive director.

Winners are selected upon the exclusive recommendation of teachers, coaches, counselors or other school sponsors, and upon standards set forth by USAA. The criteria for selection are a student's academic performance, interest and aptitude, leadership qualities, responsibility, enthusiasm, motivation to learn and improve, citizenship, attitude and cooperative spirit, dependability and recommendation from a teacher or director.

Volcanic Eruptions

During the students' study of the state of Washington, Davida Bickford's fourth grade class at Auxier Elementary School also studied the story of the eruption of Mt. St. Helens volcano. The students gathered facts and created their own replica of Mt. St. Helens. Most of the volcanoes were made from flour and water, and were made to erupt with vinegar and baking soda. Bickford said the project was an "erupting success!"

Area Math Teachers' Program On Standards Set Thursday At PCC

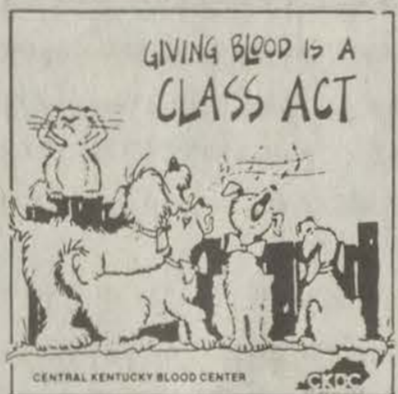

Eastern Kentucky's arithmetic and mathematics teachers will have an opportunity to learn about the new standards in mathematics education at a program Thursday, March 30, at Prestonsburg Community College at 6:30 p.m.

The program is being made available by PCC and the newly-formed Eastern Kentucky Council of Teachers of Mathematics.

The standards were announced last week in Washington, D.C. The National Council of Teachers of Mathematics unveiled 54 new standards for math teachers to use in kindergarten through high school grades.

Dr. Ben Flora will be at PCC to explain the standards to area teachers. All arithmetic teachers are encouraged to attend.

For more information, contact John Samons of Hassan Saffari at PCC, or Joyce O. Watson, 358-9543, after 2 p.m.

Studying Indians

Charlene Darrell's second grade class at Auxier Elementary School recently studied the history of the first Americans — Indians. The class discussed how Indians hunted for food, cooked, made clothing, traveled, provided shelter and traded for goods. After the discussion, the students were so interested in the Native American way of life, they made replicas of tomahawks, knives, bows and arrows and camp sites, said Darrell, adding, "Students came to the realization that Indians lived in trying times."

Students Must Learn Skills 'For Real World,' Says Hall

by Vic Cotton
Wheelwright High School
 "I hope that students can be taught to survive in the real world," Ralph Hall said recently.

He was talking about his Learning Disability classes at Wheelwright High School. Hall wants his students to be able to survive "out in the world," so the students are taught to deal with problems of reality.

Hall taught at Dorton and Virgie high schools before coming to Wheelwright, where he has been one year. He holds a degree in psychology and is certified to teach special education. He entered the field, he said, because he enjoys it.

In his classes, Hall is responsible for teaching his students English, science, math and social studies, making him the only teacher at Wheelwright who teaches all of the different subject areas.

Hall believes the students learn better when they are taught on their particular level and are given individual attention.

"Most of the students are willing and want to learn and try very hard to learn," said Hall. "It isn't because they can't do the work, but because they don't want to do the work, some of the students feel that they don't need school — that school is somewhere to be until they can get out and get some sort of job."

Students have to be tested, referred, screened and observed in the classroom by people that are certified to determine if a child needs to be in the LD class.

Hall added that he is especially proud of his students because of the increase in their English test scores since last semester.

Vickie Brown, of Paintsville, is an interpreter for deaf students, and she has been working with Aiken's class for five weeks. The class learned simple sentences and statements that are integrated into their daily routine, such as, "May we have recess?"

WHS Seniors Visit Pikeville

Pikeville College recently hosted 14 seniors from Wheelwright High School for a day on campus.

"As these students consider entering college in the fall, this day on campus gives them the opportunity to interact with current college students, faculty and staff," said John Sanders, associate dean of admissions, financial aid and continuing education. "It's important that incoming freshmen know what to expect of college life."

WHS Students Interview Noted Appalachian Author

Dr. William Turner, Appalachian author and scholar, was interviewed recently by members of the Mantrip class at Wheelwright High School for the spring issue of the magazine.

Turner, a native of Harlan County, is a visiting professor at Berea College this semester. In addition to his teaching duties in Virginia during the regular school year, he is an author whose writing has appeared in the Lexington Herald-Leader and in his own publication, called Sojourner. Along with Edward Cabell, Turner also edited a book called Blacks in Appalachia, which is one of the few books about the role that black men have played in the Appalachian region.

The spring issue of Mantrip will feature interviews that students have done in Hall Hollow, the black community in Wheelwright, which has been the subject of a two-year research project students have been conducting for the Kentucky Oral History Commission.

Turner talked to students about the "transportation system" and the movement of blacks from the rural South to the coal fields in the early 1900s in America. Turner believes that the Appalachian is an invisible minority in this country, and within that group has been the black man.

Very few people, according to Turner, are aware of the exact role that the black man has played in the region, or even that he is here. Historians have to correct that perception, he said, by writing more about the subject.

Works by students in McDowell High School art classes are on display through this week at the Floyd County Library. About 22 students in Johnny Stumbo's four art classes have works represented in the display. Included is an award-winning painting by Randy Lawson, which took first place honors in the Regional Women's Club competition. The work was done this year by the 9-12 graders, Stumbo said. Viewers who are interested in purchasing any of the student art works may contact Stumbo at the school. The art teacher built all of the easels for the exhibit.

In a Pickle

Auxier Students Use Salt, Pickle In Electricity Studies

Ramona Aiken's fifth and sixth grade class at Auxier Elementary School recently studied electricity, and the conductors of electricity.

To help the class understand conduction, Aiken and her husband, Paul, did several experiments using salt as a conductor of electricity. One experiment, called "the Electric Pickle," was the favorite of the Class. Third and fourth grade students visited Aiken's class to watch the experiments. Paul Aiken first cooked a hot dog by using a wall outlet. He then took a large dill pickle and sent electrical current through it. The pickle actually glowed like a light bulb. For the last experiment, Paul Aiken took a cord from a lamp and put it in water. He took another extension cord and put it in water and plugged it into the wall. When salt was added to the water, the bulb in the lamp began to glow. The more salt that was added, the brighter the bulb glowed.

"The class really enjoyed each experiment and learned a lot about conduction and electricity," said Aiken.

Auxier Academic Squad Observes State Competition

The Auxier Elementary School academic team recently traveled to Louisville to watch the state Governor's Cup competition.

Team members going were Stacy Greathouse, Jeff Williams and Stephanie Johnson, all sixth graders; Jerry Lafferty and Chrystal Powers, seventh grade; Candice Sturgill, Angie Collins and Chris Greathouse, eighth grade.

Chaperones were Cora Greathouse, Debbie Johnson, Helen Williams and Ramona Aiken (coach).

Auxier Students Study Foreign Lands

James Bevins' sixth and seventh gradestudents at Auxier Elementary School have been studying foreign countries, including those in South America and the Middle East.

The sixth gradestudents have been reading about South America; seventh graders have been reading about the people and countries in the Middle East.

Both classes have been given blank maps of the countries they are studying, and will fill them in with the names of the countries and their capitals.

Bevins says the students have enjoyed studying about other countries and cultures.

Osborne: No Such Phrase As 'I Can't' For WHS Teacher

by Malissa Hall
 "If you want to do it, you can do it," said Doris Osborne. "There is nothing impossible."

Osborne has been a teacher at Wheelwright High School for 22 years. Although she currently teaches biology, anatomy and physiology and American History, in the past, she has also taught reading, English, speech and drama, world civilization, American government and general science. Even though she has taught all of these subjects, Osborne says her favorite is biology, because it fascinates her — and the subject matter intrigues her. Currently in her biology class, the students are working with aquariums.

"Mrs. Osborne is a highly respected teacher who prepares you for the future and likes to see students enjoy the work they do," said sophomore Steven Johnson, a biology student. "All around, she is a great teacher."

Osborne came to teaching after she met and married her husband, Denver Osborne, while still in high school. After having three daughters, she decided to go back to school and become a teacher.

"I had three very intelligent daughters," said Osborne. "It just amazed me how much they were learning, and I thought, 'I want to a part of this'."

Osborne attended Pikeville College, earning her bachelor's degree, and went on to Morehead State University for her master's and rank one certification. She was a full-time student in college, as well as a wife and mother. She says her husband has been the biggest influence on her life, and the determination she seems to have. Denver Osborne, a retired mining electrician, has helped her learn that she can do anything she wants, and that there are no such words as "I can't."

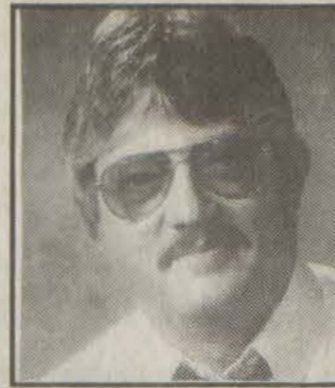

"Doris Osborne is an innovative teacher who works hard and is highly dedicated to the profession," said

Ernie Johnson, a former student of Osborne's and a fellow teacher for the last four years. "She strives for perfection and expects perfection."

Osborne may sponsor the Investment Club at WHS, but her activities are not restricted to the classroom. She spends her spare time singing in a church group, working with the Writing Across the Curriculum program and, most of all, spoiling her four grandchildren.

"Mrs. Osborne is one of the most thorough, informative and dedicated teachers," said senior Amy Payne. "She will bend over backwards to help you, but she won't let you run over her. I like that in a teacher because the way she teaches creates an educational atmosphere, plus a pleasant environment."

Osborne plans to retire after her 27th year of teaching, but until then said she will continue giving the best she has to her students and her profession.

Stumbo Students Present Easter Play

"All the world's a stage, and all the men and women merely players. They have their exits and their entrances, and one man in his time plays many parts." (Shakespeare's "As You Like It," Act II, Scene 7.)

"I couldn't have said it better myself," says fourth grade teacher Harweda Osborne of John M. Stumbo Elementary School. Her fourth grade students presented a narration of the story "The Easter Rabbit," with the class making its own props and costumes in addition to memorizing the lines.

Angela Hall, with her magic star, granted the bunny (Scott Hall) his wish to be an Easter rabbit. He received a new Easter outfit so he could hide eggs for the children at John M. Stumbo Elementary.

"Everyone in the class participated," says Osborne. "There were mice, bees, robins, bluebirds and singers. Many rooms came to see our play, and the class enjoyed performing before an audience."

McDowell High Students Complete Tutoring Program

by Tammi Miller

Several McDowell High School Beta Club members participated in a volunteer tutoring program recently, sponsored by the Martin Christian Appalachian Literacy Project.

The program was established to teach basic reading and writing skills to citizens who lack them.

Through this program, individuals—including dropouts, slow readers and under-educated adults—have a second chance to get skills they need to be independent and successful. These skills are taught on a one-to-one basis. Those tutored learn the material at their own pace in private sessions.

Anyone who would like to take advantage of the tutoring services must be at least 16 years old, and must volunteer to be tutored.

McDowell High School students completing tutor training in reading and writing skills are Shelia Tucker, Annette Hall, Glenna Henson, Margaret Gibson, Alelei Singayao, Marybeth Duddleson and Debbie Page.

Behind the Scenes

Ruby Conn of Banner is one of the "behind-the-scenes" people in the Floyd County School system. Conn cuts mat board each year for the Young Authors program. "She cuts over 4,000 pieces," says Carol Stumbo, coordinator of Writing Across the Curriculum. Conn said it took over 40 hours to cut the boards—providing teachers to spend extra time with students—but says, "If one child goes on to be a writer one day, it will be worth it."

'American Sportsman' returns with outdoor adventures

The American Sportsman, the longest-running network television show devoted to the outdoors and conservation, returns to ABC, Sunday, April 2, when longtime host Curt Gowdy once again travels the globe in search of outdoor adventure.

In this hour-long special, Gowdy finally gets the opportunity to travel to New Zealand, which is recognized as the mecca of trout fishing, in search of the biggest trout catch of his life.

Gowdy and former Chicago Bears running back Walter Payton, the National Football League's all-time leading rusher, will go duck hunting in Mississippi, Payton's native state, during the special.

Also, seven-time Olympic medalist Matt Biondi will take Gowdy to the Florida Keys, where they will view the Atlantic bottlenose dolphin, the mammal Biondi credits with helping him to achieve his record-setting performance at the 1988 Summer Olympics in Seoul, South Korea. Looking for inspiration and technique in his quest for the gold at Seoul, Biondi traveled to the Dolphin Research Center in Marathon, Fla., to learn from these amazing mammals. The American Sportsman will also look at how these dolphins are being used to help children with Down's syndrome.

By Polly Vonetes

Q: Could you give me some information about Michael Knight and the Knight Rider program? My 4-year-old son loves the show. Is there a fan club; is there a toy car to be bought? Have they stopped making the show?
 —Maurice Brown, Buena Vista, Va.

A: David Hasselhoff starred as Michael Knight on the show Knight Rider for four years ('82-'86) on NBC. Hasselhoff was born July 17, 1952, in Baltimore, Md. His first starring role on television was in the role of Snapper Foster in the daytime drama The Young and Restless. During the run of the series Knight Rider, everything imaginable was being marketed, including a toy car, lunch boxes and underwear. To find what, if anything, is available today write to: David Hasselhoff c/o Jonni Hartman, 9000 Sunset No. 601, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069

Q: Could you please give me some information on Shadoe Stevens? Age and if married.—F.G. Martin, Ky.

A: Stevens, 41, says he's very married to Beverly Cunningham, a former model. They have one daughter, Amber.
Q: Can you tell me what became of Jon Provost; he played Timmy on Lassie? How old is he, is he married and does he have children?
 —Carolyn Phillips, Corinth, Miss.

A: Provost, now 38, is married and has two children. He works in real estate in Santa Rosa, Calif., and does promotional work for Purina and Friskies. There are rumors of a new Lassie, which may involve him.

Q: I would like to see a romance develop between Tony and Angela on Who's the Boss. Who do I write to give my opinion?—S.

David Hasselhoff

Knight, Nebo, Ky.

A: My goodness, you are a romantic viewer. Write to the shows creators, Martin Cohan and Blake Hunter, c/o Who's The Boss, ABC-TV, 2040 Ave. of the Stars, Los Angeles, Calif. 90067.

Q: Please print as complete a biographical sketch on Lee Horsley of Paradise as you can. How is the show doing in the ratings? Will it be renewed?
 —Janey Tyner, Martin, Tenn.

A: Horsley was born on May 15, 1955, in Muleshoe, Texas, but grew up in Colorado. He loved singing and acting, and after college headed for New York and the theater. Eventually, he went to Hollywood to audition for Gangster Chronicles, a role he didn't get. But he made an impression on producers and was soon cast as co-star of the Nero Wolfe series. In 1982 he landed the lead on Matt Houston, which aired on ABC until 1985. Lee still plays the guitar, writes music and plans to pursue recording in the future. He and his wife live in a suburb of Los Angeles.

Little White Schoolhouse: Color Changed, Instruction Improved, Otherwise About Same As Years Ago

by Gerald Griffin
Courier-Journal
East Kentucky Bureau

The color of the little red schoolhouse has been changed to white, and the quality of instruction generally has undergone vast improvement. Otherwise, there's little difference between the one-room country school of today and that of generations ago.

One-room schools, where all eight grades are taught by one overworked teacher, are common in Kentucky, perhaps especially in the mountains. Many are in isolated places, approachable by motor vehicles only in dry weather, and then only by jeeps rugged enough to negotiate rocky creek beds.

The little white schoolhouse at Forks of Middle Creek, in Floyd County, is more fortunate than many. Although 47 pupils, ranging from 6 to 16 years old, are crowded into one room there, the school is located just off a black-topped road, and its teacher is a college graduate. Moreover, she loves her profession.

Just four miles west of Prestonsburg on KY 114, Forks of Middle Creek School stands propped up on concrete pillars on a steep hillside. That way, the water running off from the mountain can flow under the wooden building.

A few square yards of almost-level ground provide a place where the smaller pupils can play their childish games, such as "Tidy O" and marbles. Down near the road there's just room enough between the two outdoor privies for the older boys to toss horse-shoes.

Drinking water is drawn from a well in the front yard.

That school, like many another in Eastern Kentucky, doesn't boast the luxury of a real playground; just a rocky big of steep, cleared ground where there's not a sprig of grass to be found.

"Chairs Enough"

Inside the single room, there are chairs enough; and in one corner there's the teacher's desk. A low table in front, beyond the pot-bellied coal stove, is the recitation section. One group, sometimes as many as four grades at a time, will be gathered around that table for recitation and instruction while the other pupils try to work and study.

Instead of having access to a cafeteria where they can obtain a hot lunch, the children in that school remain at their desks to eat the sandwiches and fruit and drink the milk they bring from home.

But just like youngsters in any other school, when the 15-minute recess period rolls around at mid-morning, up they come with candy bars, cookies and peanuts which they have hidden away for the occasion.

School Decorated

Perhaps because their teacher has had some art training, the Forks of Middle Creek pupils have decorated their classroom with color and imagination. For the Easter season, they painted spring flowers on the window panes and a big rabbit on the front door. The walls are covered with murals of their own making — landscapes, ships at sea, an old prospector leading his burro in the desert, Pilgrims going to church, a Bluegrass farm, their concept of My Old Kentucky Home, and even a painting of "outer space," complete with rocket ship.

About the only piece of equipment in that school that couldn't have been found in a similar school half a century or more ago is a good record player with an excellent collection of records. The Floyd County school system provides records for these schools, but they have to dig up the players themselves. In this case, the player was a gift from the Princess Elkhorn Coal Company at David, seven miles away.

There's no Parent-Teacher Association to help look after this school, although the teacher was quick to point out the kindness of people in the community in painting the school building and wiring it for electricity.

Teacher is Happy

Proud of her profession and happy in the job she is doing is the teacher at Forks of Middle Creek, Frankie Sue Best (Mrs. William Marvin Best), who has been with the Floyd County School system for 17 years. A graduate of Eastern State College with a bachelor of science degree, she is working toward her master's degree. Her husband is a coal miner.

That she is an ideal teacher was agreed by two county school supervisors, Ottis Spurlock and Clem Martin, who dropped in for a visit to the school on Good Friday.

"I had rather be a teacher than be a millionaire," Mrs. Best declared during the morning recess. And she added with a laugh, "My husband says he is married to a schoolroom."

Earns Her Pay

Mrs. Best draws a salary of $230 a month for the nine-month term. And she earns every bit of it, teaching classes five days a week from 8:30 a.m. until 3:45 p.m., and working until late at night preparing for the next day and grading papers. But she doesn't mind that. She likes kids.

"Children are happy by nature of you give them a chance to be," she said, explaining how her school day begins.

"The children love to sing. First we have a few happy songs. Next we have a Bible story told or read by a child capable of doing a good job. This is followed by a simple prayer led by some child. Many times the Lord's Prayer is used."

Kentucky Discussed

"Then we will have a three- to five-minute talk on some subject of special interest to all of the groups. This year, our topics centered on an extensive study of the State of Kentucky, such topics as geography, climate, regions, parks, famous people, museums, crops and industries were included."

Mrs. Best went on to speak of the benefits that would occur to schools like hers under the "foundation" plan. It would mean less-crowded schoolrooms, she said, as well as better school buildings, more school buses and better-qualified teachers.

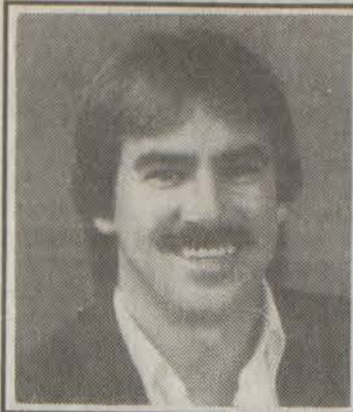

The enrollment of 47 pupils at her school, Mrs. Best declared, is just 20 too many for one room. Perhaps that overcrowded condition has had something to do with the respiratory ailments which affected so many of her pupils this spring, causing them to miss a great deal of schooling.

About half of her pupils ride to school in overcrowded buses, she said, while the others either walk or are brought to school in cars by their parents.

Recess being over, the pupils filed back into the schoolroom and took their places. Despite the number and the eight grades, there was not the slightest hint of disorder. Just a little normal whispering now and then; but Mrs. Best put a stop to that in short order in a friendly way. Just a word or two from her was enough.

At noon, the pupils brought out their lunches. Led by their teacher, they first sang a "blessing." And while they ate in silence, they listened to music from the record player.

Out in front, as it does on every day it's not raining, the Stars and Stripes waved proudly from a slender sapling doing duty as a flagpole.

There are six candidates running in District 3 who say they already have won. I don't think so.

Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Women's Club Has Meeting

The GFWC/KFWC Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Woman's Club met Monday, March 20, in the home of club member Vera Allen of Garrett.

In the absence of the devotions chairperson, Louise West, club president, read a Christian poem with prayer by Libby Martin. The Club Collect was read by JoAnn Hall, followed by the pledge to the flag.

West introduced and welcomed a visitor, Charlotte Hughes of Garrett. She also appointed a committee to make up a slate of names to be presented for election of officers for the coming year at the next meeting. Her committee includes LaFaye Hughes, chairperson; Alma Souleyrette, Joyce Stephens, Marie Mullins and Blanche Bamer.

The club president announced the state federation meeting in April. She then gave a program on community involvement, based on an article in the General Federation Magazine on "Keeping America Beautiful." She pointed out that Theodore Roosevelt once said that "A people without children would face a hopeless future; a country without trees is almost as hopeless." She mentioned all the benefits to be derived from trees, and asked that everyone try to plant a tree. The three action plans for keeping America beautiful are: litter reduction, public lands stewardship, and beautification. She mentioned the necessity of recycling glass, paper and aluminum in order to beautify the environment.

During the business session, it was announced by club treasurer LaFaye Hughes that checks had been mailed to both the Wayland and Garrett volunteer fire departments.

Refreshments were served by the hostess to Louise West, LaFaye Hughes, Blanche Bamer, Libby Martin, Ina Cooley, Elizabeth Duff, JoAnn Hall and her granddaughter Kanessa, and Charlotte Hughes, guest.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Libby Martin in Wayland, with the date to be announced later. The program will be on conservation.

For Easter Egg Coloring Tips, Ask The Floyd County Experts

by Tess A. Whitmer
Contributing Writer

Many customs are associated with Easter, differing between religions, ethnic backgrounds and generations — but one custom seems prevalent among most: coloring eggs.

The origin of the custom and its association with Easter is not easily determined, but a number of explanations have been suggested. Formerly, eggs were forbidden during the Lenten fast, but could be eaten again at Easter. Thus, decorated eggs could symbolize the end of the penitential season and the beginning of joyful celebration. Eggs, also, as traditional symbols of life and creation, suggest the Resurrection. Likewise, eggs, colored like the rays of the returning sun or the northern lights, symbolize the return of spring.

In any case, it has become customary in many places to decorate and exchange eggs at Easter.

When seeking advice, turn to the experts: in this case, five Floyd County youths who offer tips and tales of Easter egg decorating.

Michael Stephens, 5, explained that the best way to color eggs "is in the light, and yellow is the bestest color." The son of Jean Stephens, he attends kindergarten at Prestonsburg Elementary School.

He says he colored eggs at school and at home, and that eggs are "best kept in a refrigerator in a basket 'cause

I hate warm eggs."

Mathew Bowlds, son of Melissa Bowlds of Prestonsburg, is 5 years old and attends Clea Day Care. His favorite way to color Easter eggs is to color a picture of one, as he did in day care, because he doesn't "like to eat them; they have too much paint on them."

He adds he does like to eat "every candy in the whole wide world," and hoped to find just that in his plastic eggs at the Easter egg hunt at Auxier Methodist Church on Sunday.

If you want to know what the Easter Bunny smells like, just ask Mathew — he'll tell you it's "just like vinegar."

Stephanie M. Dye, 5-year-old daughter of Patricia Dye of Prestonsburg, maintains that Easter egg hunts are the best part of Easter. She said she has hunted all the time, because she and her sister take turns hiding and finding the eggs as soon as they finish coloring them. Her favorite colors, she said, are "red, pink and purple, on one egg." She added that her sister's eggs are "hard to find, but she will help me out if I get stuck."

Stephanie also gets to hunt Easter eggs at church and at her grandmother's house.

Tiffany Lafferty is the 4-year-old daughter of Cindy Lafferty of David, and attends Mountain Top Preschool, where she participated in an Easter egg hunt, finding "real eggs and plastic eggs with candy I didn't like" in them. She lets the Easter Bunny color her eggs for her, and on Easter morning, she said she "heard the door shut, so I knew the Easter Bunny was there, but he was too fast and got away before I saw him."

Seven-year-old Stephen Conley, son of Jim and Chris Conley of Paintsville Elementary, and is another resident expert on decorating eggs.

According to Stephen, "you must have paints and Q-Tips to paint with. Mix your colors, like red and blue make purple, and put them in sleeves with things like bunnies trying to kill snakes on them."

He said his Easter basket is usually not hard to find, adding, "last year, it was in the refrigerator."

The Easter Bunny was seen live Sunday at St. Martha's Catholic Church in Prestonsburg, and answered a few questions.

She is married, and her husband is Mr. Easter Bunny, who was working on the other side of the church (they travel as a team). The Easter Bunny said she is distantly related to the Cadbury Bunny, but only by marriage.

During the off-season, the Easter Bunny spends her time collecting eggs and weaving baskets.

What happens with chickens when they get too old to lay eggs? They 'dye'.

Poet's Corner

Send original poetry to Poet's Corner, The Floyd County Times, P.O. Box 391, Prestonsburg, KY 41653. Sorry, manuscripts cannot be returned unless accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

(Editor's Note: The following poem was written by 13-year-old Jenny Lynn Wiley for her grandmother, America Nichols, of Estill. Nichols submitted the poem, which she felt other grandmothers would enjoy.)

They think the cure for a cold is liquor and honey.
Their breasts sag, their bladders drop,
They see a yard sale and holler "stop!"
My little Nanny in her jogging outfit
Goes off to Ohio lickety-split.
Their legs burn and they get phlebitis.
They go around constipated,
They watch old movies — but not "X-rated".
Even though my Nanny has white hair,
A Nanny like mine is only rare.
— Jenny Lynn Wiley

A Member's Prayer

Lord, it's me again.
I know you're with me each and every day,
Because You said you'd never leave me
And I feel your presence each time I pray.
I have this burden in my heart, and I don't know what to do,
But I know You can help me; only You can get me through.
You see, Lord, I have this burden for our little church:
To see it grow and to see our people work,
For all our loved ones, a place to get saved,
and for all the heavily-burdened, a place to take them away.
I see my sisters, they need a touch from You,
To lead them and guide them and help them make it through.
Then there are my brothers, Lord,
Make them grow strong;
Give them the power to last ever so long.
And Lord, help our Pastor,
Just show him the way.
Give him what Your people need, Oh Lord,
and, Lord, I can't forget the children,
All the little ones we love,
Just keep Your hand upon them,
Send Your guardian angels from above.
Well, Lord, I think I've remembered them all,
I've just got one last plea, Lord,
After You've blessed all of them,
Then would You please, Lord, bless me.
Amen.

Painful Goodbyes

Our love is like a dream,
That is so bright
As a sunlit beam.
We walk along the beach
Hand in hand,
Making footprints in the sand.
As we gaze into each others eyes
I am thinking, "Oh, please don't Let this be goodbye."
He tells me he will be going away,
I bed pleadingly for him to stay.
He says he will be back soon,
I avoid his gaze
And look up at the moon.
He says, "Please don't cry,
My love for you will never die."
Your love for me
And my love for you
Will always be a Dream come true.

Madame Butterfly... Or Is It Sir?

Along with the song of the robin, the flutter of the butterfly proclaims that spring is here. This tiny harbinger of warm days and comfortable nights rests on a twig as it gets the hang of a summer full of flying and freedom—much like the people who enjoy its beauty and envy its ability to soar.

For Digger Of Coal, Rhyme Is The Goal

Miner Fills Retirement With Poetry

by Pam Shingler
Assistant Editor

Willard Ousley is proof that stereotypes of uncultured miners are often untrue. The Spurlock Fork man is a coal miner who turned to poetry writing in his retirement.

Since he "started fooling around with poetry" in the mid-1970s, Ousley has written dozens of poems and won three Awards of Merit and a Golden Poet Award from the World of Poetry organization. His work has appeared in Rural Kentucky magazine, and he has had a small book of poems published.

Ousley draws his inspiration from the world around him. "My poems are usually about something I see or something that happens to me or someone I know or about something in the past," said the 68-year-old whose neat, polite manner and appearance belie a life of hard physical labor.

"One day last winter, I was ready to go to church," he said, giving an example. "The road was slick and cars had piled up at the foot of the hill. I wrote 'The Day the Ice Storm Hit,' about that happening."

When the father of his sister-in-law died after she had taken care of him for some time, Ousley wrote a poem honoring her.

Another poem, titled "Tragedy in the Skies," followed the explosion of the spaceship Challenger.

Even his treatment by a car dealer inspired a poem. "I bought a car in Lexington at Don Jacobs and had some problems with it," he recounted. "When I took it back over there, they were so nice to me, I wrote a poem and sent it to them."

The dealership manager, touched by the customer's thoughtfulness, had the handwritten poem handsomely mounted and framed and sent it to Ousley with a notation that he'd also had a copy framed for the business office.

Visiting in Virginia a few years ago, Ousley met a couple from Florida who publish travel brochures. They were impressed by the Kentuckian's intelligence and talent and offered to publish some of his work. The result is a booklet of 32 poems. The cover illustration depicts the bespectacled author with a Bible at his shoulder and a beam from the mine's lighted hat illuminating three crosses.

Religion plays an important role in Ousley's life. Many of his poems have religious themes said the poet, who celebrates Easter as his spiritual birthday 45 years ago. He is a deacon at Katy Friend Freewill Baptist Church.

Largely self-educated, Ousley quit school in his freshman year of high school. For a time he "hired out" to do farming and clearing for landowners in the area, according to the short autobiography he wrote a few years ago for his children.

At 18, he began his 33-year career in the mining industry. About two-thirds of that time were spent at coal mines in David. He also worked at Martin, Salisbury and Caney. In 1973,

Our Yesterdays

Ten Years Ago

(March 29, 1979)

The Carl D. Perkins Job Corps Center was invited to town by a single vote. The Prestonsburg City Council had earlier responded to "vehement opposition" to the Corps' arrival, and went on record opposing a location here, but reversed itself later, approving, by a one-vote margin, a resolution to invite the Corps here. . . . An explosive was tossed in front of the First Methodist Church parsonage, and the incident was under investigation by the federal Department of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms. . . . The state Department of Transportation planned to open bids April 20 on work on sections of new KY 80 in Floyd and Knott counties. There died: Howard Castle, 53, of Wager Gap; Lawrence James Habern, 57, of Rochester, N.Y., formerly of Tram; Mrs. Artie W. Snyder, 70, of Garrett; Fairy Belle Tuttle, 58, of Topmost; Ronald Sheldon Goble, 18 months old, of Ivel; William Riley Harris, 46, of Springboro, Ohio, formerly of Prestonsburg; Robert Fulton Davidson, 72, of North Ridgeville, Ohio, formerly of Floyd County; Robert E. Pitts, 77, of West Prestonsburg; Lula Bradley Hubbard, 89, of Prestonsburg; Rebecca Hopson Bays, 98, of Prestonsburg; Avery Rice, 63, of Cleveland, Ohio, formerly of Banner; Henry "Bully" Hamilton, 74, of Teaberry; Dorothy Arms Nelson, 69, of Prestonsburg; and Mariah L. Hammonds, 92, of Water Gap.

The Regional Highlands Hospital Development Fund went over the $135,000 mark. . . . The embattled Floyd County Board of Education won on three fronts within the week as construction of the consolidated high school at Eastern was approved in court here, but a decision as to incorporating Martin High School in the Merger with Wayland, Garrett and Maytown high schools into one school at Eastern was left to future adjudication. . . . Formation of the Kentucky Black Lung Association was effected Sunday afternoon in a meeting at Wheelwright High School of miners with Dr. J.E. Buff, West Virginia cardiologist. . . . Forest fires rated out of control last weekend in this county, and only a late Sunday night rain saved a situation that veteran members of the Kentucky Forestry Department termed the worst in their experience. Upward of 5,000 acres were burned over. There died: Henry DeRossett, 77, of Lancer; Ella Jane Allen, 80, of Pyramid; Dennis Ratliff, 80, of Johnson County; Jasper Clifton, 67, of Prestonsburg; and Palma Johnson, 63, of Melvin. . . . Born: to Mr. and Mrs. Edward R. Minns of Prestonsburg, a daughter; Mr. and Mrs. R.L. Shepherd, of Drift, a son; a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Gibson of Garrett; Mr. and Mrs. Ray Ward of McDowell, a daughter; Mr. and Mrs. Ballard Mosely of Minnie, a daughter; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Thompson, a daughter.

Senate Bill 743 to provide US Bureau of Mines regulation of small mining operations as well as larger mines should not become law, say resolutions adopted this week by the Floyd Fiscal Court and transmitted to US Sen. From Coal Pits To Poets' Corner Retired coal miner Willard Ousley writes nearly every day at his desk in his home at Spurlock Fork. Ousley's poems are inspired, he said, by everyday events and his memories.

When the Power Goes Off

It seems to happen on the stormiest night
You turn the switch on and there is no light.
You fumble around and make that call.
You must be careful, or in the dark, you'll fall.
You wake the lineman out of his sleep.
He dreads to get up, he knows the snow's deep.
He's a pretty good man, who's learned to care
About all those people in the cold and dark out there.
So he bundles up, so he won't freeze,
And he knows he'll have to cut some trees
That have fallen on the line.
When they're cleared away, everything is fine.
It must be tough to live a lineman's life,
Especially hard on his children and wife.
They're at home worrying til his return,
Never giving thought to the extra pay he'll earn.
They're afraid they'll get the news, just any time,
That he made contact with a highly charged line.
Experience has taught him many things
Because his safety equipment he always brings.
Insulated gloves, hot stick, safety belt and hard hat.
He would n't forget things as important as that.
He must be a hardy kind of soul
To make his living by climbing a pole.

Tragedy in the Skies

On Jan. 28, 1986, the mighty Challenger started on its flight.
It had stood ready on its pad; ice had formed on it, thru the night.
As it blasted off and penetrated the skies,
A malfunction occurred, and it disintegrated, right before our eyes.
Seven brave people lost their lives.
They left behind a husband, some children, loved ones and wives.
As the world looked on this tragedy, in unbelief,
Their loved ones were awe stricken, and we shared their grief.
The parents of that brave teacher stood gazing from the ground.
The news flashed around the world by the magic of TV
Not just here in America, but to all nations across the sea.
Condolences were sent from everywhere, even behind the Iron Curtain.
For Russia, too, had lost four Astronauts; their people knew how bad the loved ones were hurting.
The Space Program has been disrupted, but I'm sure not for good.
For other brave people will still want to go, if by chance they could.
In this world of disappointments, things sometimes go wrong.
But when they go the right way, it makes our nation strong.
So, to all the families of that fateful crew,
The prayers of all people are with you, and the Space Program too.

County Kettle

County Kettle

"County Kettle," The Floyd County Times, P.O.
Box 391, Prestonsburg, KY 41653

For folks who are on the go — as most are — the following recipes provide fast, simple dishes that can turn meal preparation into a snap.

Instant potatoes are a convenient beginning for many creamy soups. This country style potato soup can be made from start to finish in about 15 minutes. With a few simple additions, cooks can also create creamy broccoli soup, cheese soup or clam chowder.

COUNTRY STYLE POTATO SOUP

3/4 cups instant potatoes
2 tbsp. butter or margarine
1 tsp. instant minced onion
1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. celery salt
1/8 tsp. pepper

Heat milk in a saucepan (do not boil). Add remaining ingredients and simmer 10 minutes on low heat. Makes four servings.

Follow these helpful hints for making soup a year-round favorite:
— Garnish cream soups with toasted croutons, grated cheese, crumbled bacon or sliced green onions.

— Soups are not limited to winter. Many are good served chilled — such as gazpacho, which is an uncooked fresh vegetable soup.

— To make homemade vegetable soups go further, add noodles, barley or rice.

It used to be that muffins were just muffins. It was as simple as that. Then, along came the muffin craze and a muffin wasn't just a muffin anymore. It was a dessert, a meal accompaniment, a party food or an entire meal in a neat little package.

Next came the microwave craze, and consumers wanted the convenience of microwaving muffins.

Following is a way to use the convenient muffin mixes in the microwave to create quick snacks and meal accompaniments. Toppings are suggested for added color and texture.

MUFFIN MIXES IN THE MICROWAVE

Prepare any variety of Martha White (TM) muffin mix according to package directions. Line custard cups or microwave cupcake dish with two paper liners. Fill cups half full. Sprinkle with desired topping. Arrange custard cups in ring, or place cupcake dish on an inverted saucer. Microwave on high two minutes, or until tops spring back.

Remove from cups immediately and peel off outer layer.

Suggested toppings:
— Graham cracker crumbs or crushed corn flake crumbs.

— Streusel topping: Combine 3 tbsp. brown sugar, 1 tbsp. softened butter or margarine, and 1/4 cup chopped pecans.

— Cinnamon-sugar topping:

Combine 2 tbsp. sugar and 1/2 tsp. cinnamon in one small bowl. In another small bowl, melt 1 tsp. butter or margarine. Dip tops of warm muffins in butter, then cinnamon-sugar.

To reheat muffins:
— From room temperature, microwave one muffin 10 to 15 seconds at high; two muffins 15 to 20 seconds; and four muffins, 25 to 30 seconds.

— To reheat frozen muffins, microwave one muffin 20 to 25 seconds on high; two muffins 30 to 35 seconds; and four muffins, 40 to 45 seconds.

For many, the day begins with oranges, usually in the form of a glass of cold orange juice. Oranges are available year round, but supplies are best in winter and early spring.

For a special breakfast treat, serve fresh-squeezed orange juice. And, while squeezing the juice, reserve enough to make frosty orange muffins.

FROSTY

ORANGE MUFFINS
2 cups sifted self-rising flour
1/3 cup sugar
1/3 cup. grated orange peel
1 egg
3/4 cup orange juice
1/4 cup vegetable oil or shorten-

Orange icing (below)
Preheat oven to 400 degrees Fahrenheit. Grease muffin pans. Combine flour, sugar and orange peel in mixing bowl; set aside. In another bowl, beat egg; stir in orange juice and oil. Add liquid ingredients all at once to flour mixture. Stir only until flour is moistened. Fill muffin cups 2/3 full. Bake about 18 minutes, or until golden brown. Remove muffins from pan, cool a few minutes, then spread with orange icing.

Orange icing:
1 pkg. (3 oz.) cream cheese, softened

1 tsp. orange peel
2 tsp. sugar
2 tsp. orange juice

Combine cream cheese, orange peel and sugar; stir to blend. Add orange juice and stir until smooth. Makes about 12 muffins.

— Choose oranges with a thick peel for easier grating.

— Do not grate off more than the bright orange coating of the skin. The white part will be bitter.

— Grate the peel first, then cut in half and squeeze the juice.

— To make juicing easier, first roll the fruit on a hard surface, using pressure.

— Keep oranges at room temperature for a few days, or refrigerate and use them within two weeks.

'Daffodil Days' Underway At OLWH

Area residents have the opportunity today (Wednesday, March 29) to express their support for cancer research and education by buying daffodils at Our Lady of the Way Hospital in Martin.

Daffodils were chosen by the American Cancer Society for this fundraiser because, as the first flowers of spring, they symbolize hope and renewed life, according to Waneta Newsome, hospital spokeswoman.

A donation of $5 will be requested for each daffodil bouquet. Proceeds will benefit the American Cancer Society and Our Lady of the Way Hospital's participation in a cancer registry.

Graduate

Brian M. Jones of Prestonsburg recently graduated from military training at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, and is currently at Chanute Air Force Base, Ill., for his speciality training. He, his wife and daughter will be stationed at Travis Air Force Base, Calif., in June.

Jaycees Officers

The Prestonsburg Jaycees recently elected officers for the newly-established Prestonsburg Jaycees chapter, according to Donna R. Roope, organization spokeswoman.

Elected were Brian Ousley, president; Phillip Elliott, vice president of community development; Cathy H. Prater, vice president of leadership development; Roope, vice president of management development; F. Brennan Dye, vice president of membership; Pam Goble, treasurer; and Jeff Hicks, secretary.

Officers were officially inducted into office in mid-February by the state president, Archie Hicks, at a dinner reception at a Betsy Layne restaurant. The Prestonsburg Jaycees were also joined by Jaycees from Ashland, Grayson, Pikeville and Paintsville.

The group works to meet community needs while offering its members an opportunity to develop skills as they fill leadership roles, said Roope. Jaycee programs and projects are designed to serve the individual and the community.

"Both prosper because Jaycee activities bring about a better way of life," explained Roope. "Activities that the Prestonsburg Jaycees are currently involved in include Muscular Dystrophy, the FACES Festival, and a training session on motivation with the speaker Wayne Martin, general manager of WYMT-TV."

Jerri Turner To Head McDowell Bike-A-Thon

St. Jude Children's Research Hospital officials announced this week that Jerri Turner will be the coordinator of the St. Jude Children's Research Hospital Bike-A-Thon in McDowell on April 22.

The hospital was founded by entertainer Danny Thomas, opening its doors to the public in 1962 to combat catastrophic diseases which afflict children. The hospital is non-sectarian, non-discriminatory, and provides total medical care to all patients.

At St. Jude, scientists and physicians work together seeking better treatment as well as the causes, cures and prevention of fatal diseases.

All findings and information are shared with doctors and hospitals all over the world.

The bike-a-thon program this year is dedicated to Brian McCollister, a native of Louisiana, who was diagnosed with leukemia in October 1984. Since then, he has come to St. Jude every six weeks for treatment, and every 12 weeks for a bone marrow test and spinal tap to make sure his cancer stays in remission. While at home, he receives oral medication daily.

"We sincerely appreciate the concern Jerri Turner has for our work," said hospital officials, "and we hope the citizens of McDowell will support the bike-a-thon this spring to help provide the funds needed to preserve the world's greatest asset—the children."

Hospital Adds Level II Nursery

Pikeville Methodist Hospital recently opened a Level II neonatal nursery to provide care for infants born in the Big Sandy area, according to hospital officials.

Dr. Ruth Ann Shepherd will serve as full-time neonatologist. Shepherd said Level II neonatal nurseries are equipped to handle moderately ill infants with short-term problems.

The nursery is a state-licensed facility serving the Big Sandy Health Services Area, which includes Floyd, Johnson, Martin, Magoffin and Pike counties.

Shepherd attended medical school at the University of Louisville and served her residency in pediatrics at the Methodist Hospital in Indianapolis, Ind. She completed a fellowship in neonatology in Charleston, S.C., and is certified by the American Board of Pediatrics and the American Board of Neonatal-Perinatal Medicine. She has been in private practice in Louisville for the past five years.

The nursery provides services for moderately ill infants, who may receive care including IV therapy, radiant warmers, oxygen therapy, neonatal ventilators, continuous oxygen monitoring, diagnostic blood tests on micro-samples, and full x-ray services including head ultrasounds, kidney ultrasounds and CT scans.

Miner's Poetry

under doctor's orders, he took a disability retirement.

During his years as a miner, Ousley said he took advantage of every training program available, took correspondence courses and "always liked to read."

Ousley writes at a desk in a bedroom of the house he built 47 years ago. When the last of his and wife Kathelene's five children left home, he "improvised" the office. "I do most of my writing at night," he said, seated at the tiny desk. "I can go to bed and then get something on my mind, and I'll get up and write."

Not at his desk or involved in a church activity, the poet likes to work outside. His 50 acres on the creek side offer "a continuing job." He keeps a couple of cattle and each summer raises a garden. "I plant it, pick it, bring it in and help can it," he said of small plot.

"You're healthier, I believe, when you keep going," he contends.

Memories of Days Gone By

I often think of my boyhood days.

I can almost see the animals on the hillside as they grazed. There were eight of us kids, on that hillside farm. We loved each other, and would do each other no harm.

We had to walk a mile each way to school.

When school was out, we helped our dad, as he worked that mule. We worked all summer, to raise that corn, Then at gathering time, we'd put it in the barn.

We hauled it in with the mule, in that big old sled.

We looked with pride on those fat hogs that my dad fed. He would butcher them for our winter's meat. He'd hang the hams in the old smoke house, in a row so neat.

From the shoulders we'd make sausage, from the head we'd make sauce.

From the sage and herbs was that good aroma, all thru the house. We were "pore" folks, we enjoyed life, we didn't have a care. Mother would make overalls and shirts for us to wear.

She would patch our breeches, when they became worn.

She made all our quilts to keep us warm.

I look back over the years with sadness in my heart.

As she helped her children in life get their start.

I remember her before her hair turned grey.

I'm sorry for the worries I caused her along the way.

I'm proud of my raising, though it was hard.

They taught me to be honest, and to fear the Lord.

The old home has been torn down, to make room for the new.

The family are scattered, both far and wide.

But when I think of my childhood, I remember it with pride.

The Heat of Summer

I remember the summer of 1930, when the crops began to die. One could see the land drying up as the long days passed by. 1988 could be another drought of the same magnitude.

People have forgotten God and never show their gratitude. God is still in control of the earth, the elements, the clouds and the sky. Sometimes we feel our unworthiness as the rains pass us by.

The earth has become so thirsty it could really soak it up. Many people might have a problem finding food in their cup. We witnessed a famine in Africa a couple of years ago.

This could be the beginning of one in our land, no one can foretell or know. Our children ask when we were young how we endured the heat. We had no electricity nor air conditioning and very few had shoes on their feet.

When the heat became unbearable, we sought refuge in the shade of a tree. There wasn't much comfort in the house, outside was the place to be. Some folks would sleep outside under the wide open sky.

For pastime they listened to the sound of the wild, as the night hours slowly passed by.

It would be hard on people to live as we did back then. I'm afraid we'd never make it, if we had to live like that again.

Pharmacy Footnotes

By HAROLD COOLEY

READING YOUR RX

A working knowledge of Latin is not necessary to understand your doctor's prescription. Anyone can master the terms most frequently used. Two words that almost always appear on your prescription are Disp. (Dispense), an instruction to the pharmacist to dispense a certain medicine; and Sig. (Signa) which indicates the instructions that are to appear on the label. Among the abbreviations that the patient ought to know and check are those that indicate how often and under what conditions the medicine should be taken. These include SID (once a day), BID (twice a day), TID (three times a day), and QID (four times a day). These instructions may be further qualified by PC (after meals), AC (before meals), PRN (as needed), SOS (if needed), STAT (immediately), and HS (at bedtime).

COOLEY APOTHECARY can provide you and your family with your total prescription needs as well as any over the counter remedies you require. Our entire staff keeps up to date on the latest developments in our industry here at #2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106. Watch this column in the weeks to come for many more interesting topics related to your health. Master Charge and Visa honored plus we welcome all third party payments. Open: Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-3.

Books and Things:

For Beginning Artists, PCC Provides Step-By-Step Tips

by Trisha Morris
PCC Librarian

The redbuds will be blossoming soon, daffodils and forsythias are already adding color to the winter-worn landscape—if I were an artist, I'd be getting my easel and paints ready to meet the promised burst of summer color. The following books from the Prestonsburg Community College Library offer step-by-step instructions for painting or sketching trees, flowers, mountains or complete landscapes in pencil, watercolor, oils or acrylics.

Drawing Landscapes in Pencil, by Ferdinand Petrie. In this elegantly-illustrated book, Petrie explores all the possibilities a lead pencil offers the artist for drawing outdoor subjects. With step-by-step instruction on how to draw almost every element of the landscape—trees, mountains, hills, rocks, buildings, boats and harbors—Petrie guides the reader through creating finished drawings that rival the beauty of works in any other media.

In 12 detailed demonstrations, Petrie explains how to select a subject, begin delineating the drawing, proceed from the first lines and values, vignette the drawing for special compositional effects, and add the essential finishing touches.

Petrie's ability to transform nature with a simple lead pencil is an inspiring process that could appeal to any artist or beginning enthusiast.

Painting Nature, by Franklin Jones. For an artist, most of the fascination and challenge of painting scenes from nature lies in its continuously changing aspects. The same vista varies from hour to hour and from season to season. Obviously, there cannot be a single or simple answer to how to paint a tree, or water, or rocks, or any part of the natural environment. It is the author's belief that to understand nature, one should sit before it with easel and paints, for here, in the field, the effects of light, weather and color can be felt as one feels the warmth of the sunlight change from noon to dusk.

In this book, Jones is concerned with ways of using paint and brush to produce the various effects that will be confronted in nature.

Painting Flowers with Watercolor, by Ethel George. A respected painter and teacher, George shares in this book the fascinating details of effective flower painting using watercolors. It is filled with useful information on techniques that will help capture the spirit and character of numerous flora. With friendly, down-to-earth talk about composition, color and special effects, George will inspire prospective artists as she has her hundreds of studio students.

The author clearly demonstrates how to paint flowers including delphiniums, lilacs, iris, lilies, hydrangeas, peonies, narcissi and many more. This is a truly useful book for anyone interested in painting flowers in watercolor.

The Oil Painter's Guide to Painting Trees, by Allyn Schaeffer. How does one capture the spidery delicacy of the redbud's branches, outlined against a brilliant sky? How does one detect the subtle color shifts as a grove of pines is veiled by fog? The Oil Painter's Guide will show how to confront these and other difficult challenges of landscape painting. The 50 informative demonstrations in this book provide invaluable clues to bring paintings to life. Each lesson presents a different problem as it encourages the reader to try what he or she has learned in their own paintings.

With this book, readers will be able to create the dazzling blaze of color that invigorates hills in autumn, experiment with the variety of greens that enliven dense summer foliage, and explore the subtle tones that spring brings to the mountains.

The Oil Painter's Guide to Painting Skies, by Allyn Schaeffer. Beginning landscape artists often get lost in the wealth of detail that greets them when they begin to work on a painting. This book will single out, for seasoned artists and beginners alike, the most important element in the landscape—the sky.

The book contains 50 step-by-step lessons, each singling out a problem of painting skies. First the problem is presented, then the solution is discussed. For example, what color is the sky? It isn't blue, and clouds aren't white—both are made up of a wealth of color, of which blues and whites are only two.

There is no simple or right way to paint a sky—this book will awaken readers to the challenges that painting this element of the landscape presents.

The Sketch in Color, by Robert Oliver. New colored pens, points and markers allow artists to add a vivid dimension to sketches. Starting with the traditional black line sketch, done with a variety of pens and points, professional artist Robert Oliver demonstrates how to achieve a variety of effects by adding color media to different surfaces.

Step-by-step instructions on fundamentals such as perspective, composition, shades and shadows, tones and textures will help readers sharpen their sketching skills.

The Color Book, by Wendon Blake.

Here is a truly comprehensive book on color. With 450 illustrations, The Color Book explores and illustrates every basic fact about color and then demonstrates 10 different painting techniques in three different mediums—oil, watercolor and acrylic. The book begins by training the reader to observe the color of nature—the values, perspectives and changes that take place at different times of day and in different kinds of weather. Then, readers learn how to observe and record these varied color effects in each medium.

For the beginner who wants a complete course in color, or for the experienced painter who wants to broaden his or her command of color, The Color Book is an encyclopedia on the subject.

How to Draw Plants, by Keith West. This comprehensive and authoritative handbook is intended for people who want to portray plants and flowers with botanical accuracy. The author, an experienced botanical artist, gives detailed advice on working in pencil, pen, watercolor and acrylics. He explains taking measurements and understanding plant structure, collecting, handling and preserving plant material, and the use of the hand lens and dissecting microscope.

A lavish book with over 100 illustrations of the works of well-known artists both from the past and today, this is a picture book for the botanical print connoisseur, as well as an instruction manual for the artist.

THE CHANGE HAS BEGUN

If you voted in the last election, you witnessed the beginning of a new tradition in Floyd County. Voting was actually a simple and pleasant experience. This is a step in the right direction. I would like to see Floyd County continue on this path towards progress.

I have often wondered if people really want a change. From the response I have received while campaigning, the answer is YES! No. 2 on the Ballot

TO THE VOTERS OF DIST. 2:

When you go out to vote on May 23rd—VOTE JACKIE EDFORD OWENS—MAGISTRATE, DIST. 2—if you believe in fighting to keep out of state and out of county garbage out of Floyd County and out of our county landfill and if you believe in more blacktopped roads, better bridges, and better maintained dirt roads, I think you should vote for me—JACKIE EDFORD OWENS—a man that has got the nerve to stand up and fight for the people of Dist. 2 (although it causes me a lot of trouble at times).

When you're voting for someone for any office, shouldn't you choose the best qualified man? I think with my 11 years experience as heavy equipment operator and 1st class diesel mechanic and being YOUR MAGISTRATE for the LAST 3 YEARS that I HAVE PROVEN that I AM THE BEST QUALIFIED MAN FOR THE JOB.

P.S.—Due to many complaints with ditching and drainage problems in Dwale, I will be holding a public meeting for Dwale, Old Allen, and New Allen at Rita Davis's store parking lot in Dwale, Saturday, April 8, 1989 at 2:00 p.m.

Supt. Brock To Attend School Board Meeting

John Brock, state superintendent of public instruction, will attend tonight's Floyd County School Board meeting to discuss alleged politicking in schools during work hours by E.P. "Pete" Grigsby, administrative assistant, who is a former superintendent of the Floyd school system.

Brock and other state officials, including four who recently came to Floyd County to investigate the allegations, are expected to address the board in executive session.

The meeting will be held at 6 p.m. tonight (Wednesday) at the Prestonsburg High School cafeteria.

Grigsby reportedly sought support for incumbent County Attorney David Barber during the May primary, and is alleged to have intimidated at least one district employee.

Jimmy Hall, a maintenance worker at McDowell Elementary, has said Grigsby discussed the race with him. Hall, who supported Barber's opponent, said Grigsby told him a list of Barber's supporters was being compiled, and would be used in hiring decisions for the coming year.

According to state officials, Brock is also expected to discuss the state's six-month-old takeover of the local district under the academic bankruptcy law.

The board will also consider Superintendent John Hager's recommendations to hire certified teachers, principals and central office personnel for the coming year.

State officials, in one of 17 recommendations to the local board, have urged that the central office staff be reduced by three positions. In hearings earlier this year, the local board opted not to demote three central office staff.

In early May, following the local district's failure to reduce central office staff, Brock sent a letter to Hager and board members citing the academic bankruptcy law, and warning that state officials expect the local district to present a balanced budget for the coming fiscal year.

The law includes a provision for removing board members and the superintendent from office as a last resort.

Action may also be taken on:
— Considering the superintendent's recommendation to hire Chapter I certified and non-certified personnel, other non-certified personnel, maintenance personnel, transportation personnel, youth program personnel, summer cooks and janitors.

— To appoint a board attorney for 1989-90;
— To award bids for transportation and maintenance supplies for the coming year.

Arson: Increasingly Common, But Hard To Prove

by Pam Shingler, Assistant Editor

The ashes are cold. Amid the charred, exposed beams lie remnants of a television, a couch, beds and chests, kitchen appliances and the outline of a child's melted Big Wheel.

Oddly, when the fire inspector steps into where the closets once were, he can find no evidence of shoes or clothing, no simmering leather or singed clothes hangers.

Were the residents able to grab the clothing before the flames overtook the house? Or was this a planned fire where the occupants carefully gathered up their personal belongings and keepsakes before the "accident" actually began?

The planned fire has become common enough in some parts of Floyd County that several major insurance carriers will not sell policies in those areas, according to local agents.

Fire losses in the county during 1987, the last year for which the state fire marshal's office has completed records, totaled more than $2 million. The average loss per fire was more than $36,000.

For Henderson County in western Kentucky, with a similar population, losses amounted to about half of those locally, according to state figures.

Barry McKenzie, arson investigator for the Kentucky State Police, Pikeville post, estimates that 90 percent of the fires he investigates in a five-county area that includes Floyd are intentionally set. He emphasizes that the figure comes only from fires local authorities ask him to investigate, not all fires.

Roy Ramey and Denzil Allen, two area insurance agents, estimate that more than 20 percent of fire insurance claims they pay result from arson.

The rub lies in proving that arson occurred and getting a conviction from a jury. McKenzie figures that of 10 cases he might investigate, only about three are ever brought to trial. Of cases tried, he sees convictions in about half; meaning about one of every 10 arson suspects is actually penalized.

"Juries, in general, hunt for reasons to say not guilty," said McKenzie, who has worked with arson cases for 12 years. "You have to have a really good case. Arson is like sex abuse, it's almost impossible to try."

McKenzie recounted examples of finding the remnants of gas cans inside burned out houses. "A five-gallon gas can in the living room is not normal," the investigator said. Yet, even with that kind of evidence, a guilty verdict is difficult to obtain.

Commonwealth Attorney Jerry Patton concurred. "Arson is not like assault or murder. There are generally no witnesses and no victims to testify," Patton said. "To get a conviction, you ordinarily need a confession or someone who witnessed the crime and will tell."

Patton said that since he took office in 1988, only two indictments on charges of arson have been brought by the grand jury, and both of those are awaiting trial.

McKenzie, who said arson plays a "major part" in the total number of fire losses in Eastern Kentucky, described arson as a crime that has become "tolerated" in this area. But it is still a crime, he emphasized.

made, takes arson seriously, said Patton. First degree arson, in which a

Today holds a slight chance of showers, according to the US Weather Service at Jackson, with the temperature near 80, dropping to the 50s tonight. A 30 percent chance of showers is on tap for Thursday with the high around 80.

Thunderstorms are forecast for Friday and Saturday, with highs both days in the mid-to-upper 80s.

Sun-day promises to be just that, according to the weather service, although some clouds will be spotted. The good news for the end of the weekend promises less humidity, with temperatures ranging from the 60s at night to upper 70s or mid-80s during the day.

Graduations . . .

Three sets of Floyd County seniors continue to look forward to commencement exercises.

On Thursday, June 8, at 8 p.m. Betsy Layne High School seniors will receive their diplomas, while on Friday, June 9, at 7 p.m., graduation exercises will be held at Wheelwright High School. On Saturday, June 10, at 7 p.m., Allen Central High School seniors will graduate.

Census Begins . . .

Census workers are traveling throughout the region to collect mailing addresses of all residents in preparation for the official 1990 census. Coordinator Frank DeRossett says the workers wear tags for identification, and he asks citizens to cooperate, especially by "leashing their dogs."

Arrest Made, Bond Set In Betsy Layne Death

A Betsy Layne man remained in the Floyd County jail late Tuesday, unable to post bond on a charge of second degree manslaughter.

Harbit Hall of Betsy Layne was arrested Saturday, after a Floyd County grand jury indicted him for his alleged contribution to the April 29 death of Christine McKinney.

Indictments do not indicate innocence or guilt, but only that sufficient evidence exists to proceed with a case.

Hall allegedly chased the 17-year-old woman onto US 23 at Betsy Layne and into the path of a tractor trailer truck. McKinney died at the scene.

Bond was set at $25,000 on the manslaughter charge.

Hall was also indicted on a separate charge of operating a motor vehicle while his license was suspended or revoked for driving under the influence on a third or subsequent offense. Bond on that charge was set at $10,000.

Kentucky State Police Trooper Lynn Cross is investigating the case.

'Break A Leg'

Two cast members of the classic musical "Camelot" rehearse a fight scene in preparation for Friday night's opening of Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre. About 25,000 playgoers are expected for the theatre's 25th season at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park. Also in the summer's repertory are "Funny Girl," "The Jenny Wiley Story" and "Drood."

'Camelot' Opens JWT's 25th Season On Friday

The demise of King Arthur's peaceful, magical kingdom of Camelot will be on public view Friday evening as Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre opens its 25th season at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park.

Cast, crew and administrators, working since mid-May on the season's first of four productions, anticipate a record-breaking summer. Advanced sales of tickets have already surpassed last year, according to manager Jim Deaton.

With a gate of more than 21,000 last season, Deaton is hoping this year for 25,000 playgoers through Aug. 26, when the season ends. The figure, he said, will help herald the theatre's quarter-century.

Directing Friday's opening performance of "Camelot" will be Joe Conger, who directed last year's surprise hit, "The 1940s Radio Hour." "Camelot," an award-winning theatre classic, was written by Alan Jay Lerner, with music by Frederick Loewe. Among its most notable songs are "If Ever I Would Leave You," "What Do the Simple Folk Do?" and the title song.

The second musical, "Funny Girl," also a classic, opens on June 21. Its director is Homer Tracy, a professor at Eastern Kentucky University who directed last year's productions of "Jenny Wiley Story" and "West Side Story."

The show includes such tunes as "People" and "Don't Rain On My Parade." The production, set just after World War I, focuses on the life of comedienne Fannie Brice and the Ziegfield Follies.

A local favorite, "The Jenny Wiley Story," begins its run on June 28. Also

Knocking Wayland's Lights Out: Short Funds May Cause Cutbacks

A financial crisis that is expected to be temporary and concern over the government clean up of a slate dump were the focus of Saturday's meeting of the Wayland Town Board.

Board members learned from clerk Carol Stapleton that town workers did not get paid last week because of the lack of money in the town treasury.

The deficit is the result primarily, Stapleton said, of the town paying for police protection while Chief Mack Stuart was in training during the winter. Stuart was paid while in school and payment for his replacement had not been budgeted.

Also not budgeted was money for a replacement cage for the police cruiser. The cage was heavily damaged by a prisoner and had to be scrapped.

Mayor Pat Murphy suggested having some of the town's street lights shut off and letting a half-time police officer go.

Stapleton reported that the town's electric bill, which runs about $300 a month, could possibly be cut by a third by taking out selected lights. Board members Gene Mullins and Gene DeCoursey agreed to check on the lights and make recommendations. The board also agreed to file suits in small claims court against delinquent taxpayers whose assessments remain in arrears after June 15.

"We shouldn't let them get away, especially when several older people who are legally exempt (from taxes) continue to pay," said Mullins. "We have to generate money. We can't run on empty."

Stapleton said checks from the Department of Mines and Minerals and other sources are expected in July. She also said she expects tax

Sunday Shooting Results In Death of Wayland Man

An argument apparently led to the shooting death Sunday evening of a Wayland man and the arrest of another on charges of first degree manslaughter.

Carl Ray "Rady" Martin, 39, was pronounced dead at the scene by Floyd County Coroner Roger Nelson at a residence on Stamper Branch, just outside Wayland corporate limits, shortly before 9 p.m., according to Kentucky State Police reports.

Darling Newsome, 40, also of Wayland, was charged with the shooting and taken into custody Monday. Bond had not been set Tuesday afternoon and Newsome remained at the Floyd County jail.

Martin reportedly was shot once in the right side with a shotgun outside the residence of Will Bryant.

Tpr. Joel Newsome of KSP is investigating the shooting.

An employee of National Mines Corp. at Raven, Martin is survived by his wife Deborah Webb Martin and two sons, Cary Ray and Jason Alvin. Funeral services are set for Thursday at 11 a.m. at Hall Funeral Home at Martin. Burial is to follow in the Martin Cemetery at Wayland.

Scare(?)crows

If one doesn't work, the other one probably will. This pair of scarecrows, standing guard in the same garden on Spurlock, could be seen by area residents earlier this week — the scarecrow at right, however, melted with rains that began Monday afternoon.
