County Voters Return Magistrates To Office

In the contested county elections, Democratic magistrates—all incumbents—garnered reelection across the board, defeating Republican and Independent challengers.

In a race expected to be hotly contested, Democrat Gerald DeRossett got the voters' nod for magistrate in District 1. He outpolled Republican candidate Gorman Collins Jr. by more than 600 votes, 2,596 to 1,962.

DeRossett carried 13 of 14 precincts, with Collins winning Abbott by five, 147 to 142. Collins outpolled DeRossett in absentee balloting, 98 to 88.

In District 2, incumbent magistrate Jackie Edford Owens defeated Independent challenger James D. Fitzpatrick by more than a two-to-one margin, 1,555 to 703. Owens carried all precincts in the district except Allen-Dwale.

In District 3, Betty J. Caudill outpolled Republican Curtis Hall in a somewhat narrower race than others in the county, gaining 1,478 votes to Hall's 1,183. Of 12 precincts, Caudill carried seven. Hall took the lead in five (Halbert, Drift, John Ant, Arkansas Creek and Frasure's Creek).

In District 4, Ermal Tackett picked up a 1,365 to 842 vote win over Republican challenger Keith Williams. Tackett carried eight of 10 precincts, while Williams captured two—Prater Creek and Head of Mud Creek. In absentee balloting, Tackett picked up eight votes, and Williams none.

In the constable's race in District 4, Democrat Paul Stilton defeated Republican Astor Hall by nearly a two-to-one margin, 1,039 to 592. Stilton carried seven of 10 precincts, and gained four absentee ballots to Hall's one.

A number of uncontested county races were also on the ballot. Results were: Property Valuation Administrator, Lovel Hall, 6,851; County Judge-Executive, John M. Stumbo, 6,738; County Attorney, Jimmy Martin Hammond, 6,676; County Clerk, Carla Robinson Bolton, 6,902; Sheriff, Paul Hunt Thompson, 7,086; Jailer, Lawrence Hale, 6,609; Coroner, Roger G. ## Stumbo Wins Appeals Race

In a win decided by approximately 4,000 votes, Prestonsburg lawyer Janet Stumbo won a seat on the state Court of Appeals, beating candidate Barkley J. Sturgill, former Floyd County attorney and ex-chair of the state Public Service Commission.

At approximately 9:50 p.m. Tuesday night, Ned Pillersdorf, husband and campaign manager for Stumbo, announced the victory at Sam an Tonio's Restaurant in Betsy Lane, after receiving word that Stumbo had a 4,000 vote lead with approximately 76 percent of the votes tallied. Sturgill conceded the loss at 10:40 p.m. in the Holiday Inn in Prestonsburg.

Stumbo was clearly elated at the announcement.

"I'd want to thank so many of the people who helped us in this effort, particularly my husband. It's been a long eight-month race. We did the best we could with the little we had."

Pillersdorf also commented on the hard-fought campaign.

"We had to use about $40,000 in campaign funds to go up against our opponent's $250,000 in funding. I think this shows that even people without a lot of resources can win elections like this."

Spending had been a contested issue in recent weeks of the campaign, as the Stumbo camp accused Sturgill of trying to "buy" the election with a well organized advertising campaign. Sturgill returned with accusations of deception by Stumbo for using her maiden name in the campaign. In the last days before the election, there

Latta Defeats Joseph For P'burg Mayor's Seat

Incumbent Prestonsburg Mayor Ann Latta was returned to office by voters Tuesday, receiving 58 percent of the 1,625 ballots cast enroute to a 263-vote win over challenger Paul Joseph.

Joseph, currently a member of the city council, received 681 votes.

Joining Latta to lead the city will be five incumbent council members—William R. Callihan, Danny H. Hamilton, William O. Goebel III, Michael Vance and Char'— G. Hale. Gary D.

Brown and Billy Ray Collins, who both served on the council in previous years, were likewise given the nod by the city's electorate. New to the council will be Jerry Fannin, a businessman in the city.

"I am just so pleased over the whole election," said Latta Tuesday night. "All of the incumbent council members were reelected. By returning them, I think that the people have indicated that they are pleased with the progress the city has been making and want to see it continue."

Latta carried Trimble Branch, her home precinct, 218-59. The incumbent mayor also picked up Courthouse, Cliff and Porter. Joseph car-

Rubber Band Used To Keep Furnace Valve Open

by Tess Whitmer and Frank Clark, Staff Writers

A rubber band on a furnace valve at Allen Elementary School was used to keep the pilot light lit, bypassing virtually all safety mechanisms on the unit, the state fire marshal's office has confirmed.

On Oct. 29 a furnace explosion severely injured Principal Daniel Branson and caused approximately $30,000 in damage to school. Children were not present at the time.

"We had reports of troubles with the pilot light after the explosion by people who had to keep the furnace running," said Assistant State Fire Marshal Nick Castanis on Tuesday. "They told us about having to light the pilot by hand, getting flashbacks while they were lighting, and using improper means of keeping the valve on the pilot open. We believe a rubber band was used to keep the valve open.

I saw it on the floor when I inspected after the explosion. Educators aren't mechanics, but that still doesn't answer why the furnace wasn't maintained properly."

Castanis could not fully explain why state inspectors didn't notice the problem during regular yearly inspections, the last conducted on Oct. 5.

"Our people are not that well versed on furnaces. Maintenance specialists are the ones to check on that type of thing. I'm not saying our person missed something during the inspection, but if he saw a rubber band on the valve, he should have reported it."

Anna Bentley, who had been the head janitor at the school for 13 years and retired last June, reported in an interview with the Floyd County Times that, for the past four years, a valve on the furnace had been often held open by a rubber band to keep the pilot light lit. According to Bentley, the rubber band was needed to insure that the furnace would operate.

Bentley also noted that the local school districts' maintenance department was frequently contacted about the furnace problems.

"Every time Mr. Branson would see the rubber band he would yank it off and tell us to call maintenance, and we would, but the repair would only last for three days and then we would be back using the rubber band again," Bentley explained. "It was either use the rubber band or freeze to death. The children have gone without heat for several days in the past."

Bentley also noted that, to the best of her recollection, state inspectors had never examined the furnace.

"They would look at everything else but never had me take them to the furnace."

The furnace in question was installed in 1940, according to Bob So-ronen of Columbus Heating and Ventilation Company, which performed the work. It was converted to gas from coal roughly 24 years ago. There is no record of any maintenance work performed on the furnace in the past 10 years, according to Columbus records.

Superintendent Hager, when asked Tuesday whether he had ever been informed of problems with the Allen furnace, stated that neither he nor any other school board members had been aware of the situation.

"We had regular inspections each year, and I was never told of trouble with the furnace in Allen."

Hager went on to state that all inspections to determine the present safety of the school had been completed Tuesday afternoon and that classes at the school would begin on Wednesday.

"The state fire inspectors, our structural engineer, the engineer hired by the PTA, Fire Chief Compton, and the gas company have all declared the school safe. Structurally, the building is considered safe and it and all schools in the county will be open Wednesday."

An official report on the incident by the state fire marshal has not yet been filed, as investigations continue.

Daniel Branson is currently listed in good condition at Cabell-Huntington Hospital, and is expected to be discharged in one to two weeks.

Why wasn't the furnace safe and is the school safe now?

Ground Broken Friday For Park Convention Center

by Frank Clark, Staff Writer

With a flourish of gold shovels and white hard hats, state and local officials broke ground Friday at the site of a new 500-seat convention center in Jenny Wiley State Park, officially kicking off the construction of what is hoped will be a shining centerpiece for economic development efforts in Floyd County.

The facility, now under construction, will be located in the current outdoor amphitheater parking lot at the park, providing 14,340 square feet of convention space to host local, state, and regional groups, and bringing an estimated $15-20 million in new revenues into the county each year, according to estimates by local officials.

"This center will benefit both the park and the entire area," said Kentucky Parks Commissioner Rapier Smith. "The positive economic impact will be felt by many area businesses, particularly hotels, restaurants, and other service-oriented businesses."

Mary Ray Oaken, secretary of Kentucky's Tourism Cabinet, agreed with Smith's assessment.

"Kentucky has a great need for more tourism facilities. There are cities in neighboring states which have more facilities for tourists than does our entire state. We're now trying to encourage the development of facilities in our parks which can be used to encourage the tourist industry here in our state."

Oaken expressed particular thanks to State Rep. Greg Stumbo for working to get funding approval for the project. Stumbo noted that, while in past Kentucky governors tended to ignore development efforts in Eastern Kentucky, the current administration was actively supporting efforts like the new convention center and the recruitment of industry into the area.

"East Kentucky is not being ignored anymore," said Stumbo. "Aside from the center here, the governor also approved a $1.2 million grant to improve Martin's sewer system. We in the mountains are finally getting the recognition we deserve."

Prestonsburg Mayor Ann Latta noted the need for a larger meeting place in the area to handle large groups that want to hold meetings locally, but who are stymied by the lack of an adequate location.

"We have the hotel rooms to handle all groups, but we haven't had a center to handle groups larger than one or two hundred who want to meet in one place. I want to thank everyone who has supported this project. It's going to make a great difference for our area."

According to Stumbo, in an interview after the ceremony, the new Jenny Wiley convention center project received verbal support from both the Collins and Brown administrations, no action was taken. The first significant support, says Stumbo, came from Wilkinson.

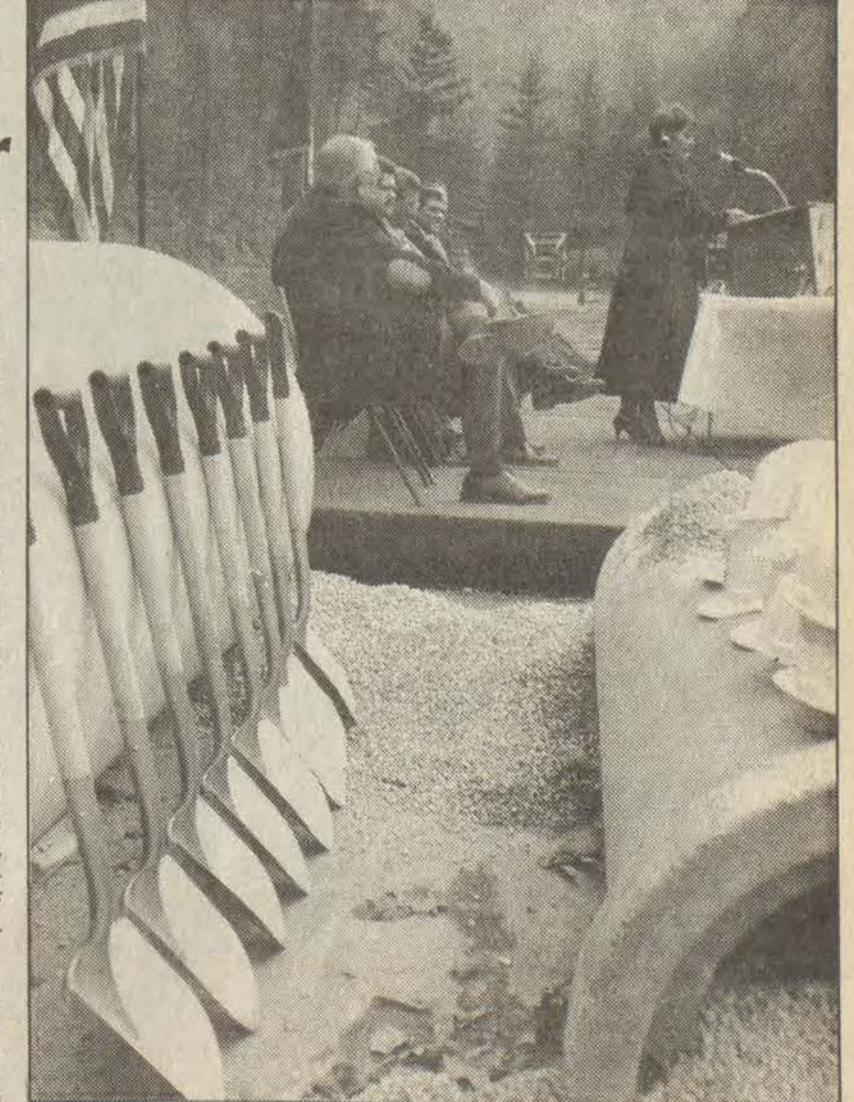

"He (Wilkinson) didn't have a lot of political support from the area during the last election, but he's shown that he cares about and is dedicated to rural and Eastern Kentucky. This convention project really took off when the current Governor came into office."

When asked how the center will economically impact the region, Stumbo was extremely positive.

"There is no facility like this anywhere in the area. It will be able to handle a wide variety of events that most other facilities can't. I consider this center to be one big step on a long flight of stairs that's going to bring this area up to a higher development level."

Construction costs for the convention center have been set at $1,609,400. The center will include park offices, a food preparation area, banquet style seating for 500, a portable dance floor, a tour bus drop off area for the theater, and parking for a minimum of 150 cars. The center will be handicapped accessible.

Dignitaries attending the ground breaking included Parks Commissioner Rapier Smith, State Sen. Bennie Ray Bailey, Stumbo, State Rep. Russell Bentley, Judge Executive John M. Stumbo, Latta, Jenny Wiley Park Superintendent Leon Russell, Big Sandy Area Development District Director Roger Recktenwald, and a group of approximately 40 other officials and spectators.

Convention Center Ceremony

Ground was broken Friday morning for the new convention center at Jenny Wiley State Park. A number of state and local dignitaries were on hand to witness and take part in the event. The 500-seat center will add substantially to the local economy, officials said.

Fatal Accident Occurs Near Auxier

A traffic accident occurring at 8:57 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 2, resulted in the death of Greg Grimm, 21, of Staffordsville, a passenger in the vehicle.

Grimm was listed in critical condition at the University of Kentucky Medical Center and passed away Sunday, according to a hospital spokesperson.

According to Kentucky State Police reports and Officer M.O. Padgett, Kyle Everett Williams, 26, of Staffordsville, was driving north on U.S. 23 at a when his 1987 Dodge Daytona left the roadway near Auxier and hit a cliff with the left front section of the car. Williams told police that he had left the roadway to avoid hitting an oncoming car but when he tried to recover he lost control of the car.

The vehicle struck the cliff at about a 90 degree angle spinning it around and again violently striking the wall popping the hatch, breaking the seats and ejecting Grimm out the back of the vehicle, according to police reports. Williams stated that Grimm was not wearing a safety belt.

The vehicle was flung from the rock wall coming to rest in the south-bound lane. Williams was treated and released from Highlands Medical Center that night. Much of this case is still under investigation by the KSP.

Blood Drives Set Nov. 9 At Two Local Hospitals

Good health seems to be an issue of importance to everyone these days. As a whole, Americans are taking better care of themselves through healthy habits such as diet, exercise, and stress reduction.

Donating blood is another healthy habit, according to Tim Thompson of the Central Kentucky Blood Center.

"When you donate blood at Central Kentucky Blood Center, you receive a check of blood pressure, temperature and iron level. It's an excellent mini-physical," he said.

During November, CKBC will also perform a free cholesterol test on each unit of blood donated with results sent to the donor. Healthy donors are needed to provide a safe blood supply for the community, says Thompson. Central Kentucky Blood Center is offering the free cholesterol test as a service to make sure donors stay healthy.

Join Our Lady of the Way Hospital at their blood drive on Thursday, Nov. 9 from 7:30 to 11:30 a.m. and get into the habit of donating blood to save lives. That same afternoon the McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital will sponsor a blood drive from 1:30 to 5:30 p.m. No other habit you develop will affect so many people in such a personal and positive way. Martin Druther's is helping to sponsor both drives by providing coupons to all donors," he added.

For more information about the blood drive at Our Lady of the Way Hospital contact Tobi Music at 285-5181 or Mary Anderson at McDowell ARH at 377-3400.

If everyone knew what was happening at Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Kentucky, we wouldn't need this ad.

Things are changing at Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Kentucky. What was considered good performance in the past won't cut it in the present. We're working to get better.

In June, a new president, Steve Bow, took over the reins. He talked with employees about how to make our company better. He talked to customers: the ones we have, the ones who left, and the ones who never tried us. Now, we've begun turning those words into actions.

"We've got a real challenge ahead of us. It's up to every employee to energize our company...to make it more proactive, more customer-driven than ever before."

That philosophy is sparking a company-wide revolution. We're streamlining claims procedures for more efficient processing. We're breaking our customer service folks into smaller, specially trained teams so they can answer your questions more quickly. And there are more changes coming.

"I want to see this company move back to its original value system, a system of caring for the customer, and a belief that the customer is important. In our rapidly changing, complex and competitive world of healthcare, it is even more important for us to get back to personal service and products designed to fulfill customers' needs."

Changes were needed. Changes are being made. Choose us again, or for the first time. And choose the company that realizes good isn't good enough anymore. Call Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Kentucky or your independent agent.

Update: Floyd County Flood Relief

Following four days of operations, the Disaster Application Center at Allen Park closed Saturday as scheduled.

According to officials at the Federal Emergency Management Agency's Disaster Field Office in Prestonsburg, 138 people applied for federal relief last week at the Allen center, seeking to rebuild and restore homes and businesses damaged by the Oct. 16-18 floods. In the 10-county region declared a disaster, a total of 1413 people applied for relief, with the Robinson Creek site in Pike County receiving the largest number of applications at 526.

Knox County also joined the list of counties declared disaster areas in Eastern Kentucky last week, and they and any other residents of the area can call the disaster hotline in Prestonsburg, at 1-800-338-0140 to register for federal help, which includes programs such as temporary housing and casualty-tax refunds. Residents of flood-damaged counties may also be eligible for unemployment compensation if they are out of work as the result of flood damage.

More information is available from the Department for Employment Services located on North Lake Drive in Prestonsburg.

Disaster loan workshops will also be offered on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday of this week at the old Heck's building in the Highlands Plaza in Prestonsburg. The workshops are designed to make sure that loan applicants, who are unable to get credit elsewhere, properly complete their loan application forms. Call the hotline number for further information.

Dear Editor,
Mountain people are among our nation's greatest.

America has come a long way, except for those people nationwide and, in particular, Appalachia, who have been cut off by freeways from society and reality.

For years, they (the cut off people) have survived through the love of God, and a number of fine organizations; for one, the Christian Appalachian Project (CAP) operating in the mountains of Appalachia.

Joe Foley, CAP's emergency assistance manager, in Martin, and Father Ralph W. Beiting, founder of the Christian Appalachian Project, can tell you specifically of the spiritual and material needs of a proud people in the mountains who have been removed from the mainstream by freeways. (Christian Appalachian Project, 322 Crab Orchard Road, Lancaster, KY 40446, (606) 792-3051.)

Note: These precious people live along creeks and in hollers. They are good people, still proud, but needing help. They have been beaten down by circumstances beyond their control.

Our fellow mountain people are in need of help, and are calling out to us today.

These poor folks need a bit of Christmas 12 months a year, not just Thanksgiving and Christmas.

God loves all of us! Jesus loves us, and is coming to claim his own; those who know him as savior and do the will of our heavenly father.

Showing love for one another is one of God's great commandments.

Please consider contacting Joe Foley or Father Beiting concerning the facts about our mountain brothers and sisters. They are our people, and God will bless you real good for helping these great and precious mountain families and people.

Remember always to welcome strangers, for by so doing, some people have entertained angels without knowing it.

In Christ's Name,

Cemetery Work Done At Hi Hat

Dear Editor,
To the people of Hi Hat and other vicinities that use the Newman Cemetery at Hi Hat — if you have wondered where the purchase of grave sites and other donations that were given to me or other members of the Hi Hat Community Club have gone, just take a few minutes of your time to drive up to the cemetery and look at the new fence and the new addition that was donated by the heirs of Ode Newman.

We want to give a great big thanks to Hershel Elswick for donating his time and equipment to clear the new addition. We also wish to thank the Hi Hat Community Club for their help, also Vernal J. Newsome, Diamond Tuttle and Hobert Tuttle for the sowing of grass and spreading of hay.

We are not affiliated with the donations that were given on Memorial Day. Again, thanks for your help.

Appreciates Slone Mountain Festival

Dear Editor,
On Sept. 10 of this year, my family and I traveled to the McDowell area to attend the 10th Annual Slone Mountain Squirrel Festival. We thoroughly enjoyed the entertainment, food, games and crafts, and the hospitality extended to all was the warmest to be found anywhere.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the Slone family and all the others who worked so diligently to organize this most enjoyable event. It was a very wholesome and worthwhile way to spend the day.

Again, thanks to all, and we are looking forward to seeing each of you again next year!

Thoughts From The Road

By Frank Clark

I've often wondered who should hold judges accountable. You hear every day of legal decisions made by the federal and state judiciary which affects thousands and, at times, millions of people. Decisions on abortion and civil rights have changed the lives of so many in this country that it's often difficult to remember that these legal opinions which have become law are usually made by a small group of lawyers who, through appointment or election, have attained legal authority over the lives of all of us.

Even on the local and county levels, the district and circuit judges are powerful figures. They have tremendous discretion over cases which come before their bench. It isn't unusual for two persons, charged with the same crime, to receive very different sentences, depending upon the judge's perception of the individual and the case. Frequently, claims of bias or favoritism are leveled at members of the bench, particularly where judges are dependent upon an election system to remain in office. In this type of system of judicial selection, there seems to exist a greater potential for judiciary decision to be made on the basis of election time practicality rather than on legal precedent.

Last Thursday afternoon, Sheryl Snyder, president of the Kentucky Bar Association (KBA), addressed a large group of area lawyers and law professionals at the Jenny Wiley Lodge. In a brief speech, he laid out the KBA's plans to implement a program in the near future which will seek to evaluate all active judges in Kentucky. It's designed so that the lawyers who try cases before district and circuit court judges will have the opportunity to grade each judge on the basis of legal soundness in decisions, presence of bias against minorities in decisions, and the judge's ability to promptly dispense with cases, among other categories.

It is undoubtedly true that lawyers, as citizens, are not representative of the average Kentuckian in terms of wealth, education and related factors. We may wonder what hidden agendas they will keep from us while conducting their evaluation, but most lawyers are professional in their conduct and it's hard to imagine any other group more qualified to provide the public with some basic information about the quality of our judiciary. Whether we like them or not, lawyers are the ones who spend a significant portion of their professional lives dealing with judges. They see how they operate in the courtroom. They see how they handle the cases of the wealthy, the indigent and minority. They learn what to expect from the many judges before whom they defend the cases of their clients all around the state. While by no means impartial, it is the lawyers of this state who really know the workings of our justice system.

If this evaluation system attempts, as Snyder claims, to act strictly as a public source of information, and not as a process by which certain judges will be targeted for electoral removal by Kentucky Bar members, then the KBA should be strongly supported in its efforts. Kentucky and its citizens can only benefit from having an effective, legally proficient judiciary system. It is the right of all Kentuckians to be dealt with fairly and equally by their elected judges. With the information provided by the KBA's future evaluation, the strength of our system of justice in this state can only be increased.

McConnell's Comments

Sen. Mitch McConnell

NEW COAL PROGRAM WILL BENEFIT SMALL OPERATORS

One of the mainstays of Kentucky's economic structure is the coal industry. From the eastern Appalachians to the western plains of the Purchase thousands of coal miners toil to move mountains and tunnel deep within the earth to help fuel our nation's requirements for energy.

Although big coal mining companies dominate this industry, there are numerous small operators who employ hundreds of workers. Because of their size, these small businesses are operating on the edge of the profit and loss ledger. To help them remain competitive, Congress passed a Small Operators Assistance Program (SOAP) in 1971. Although passed with the best of intentions, SOAP has turned into a lead weight for participants because it has failed to keep pace with changes in the coal industry. Almost across the board, the program's qualification requirements are now a disincentive to participate and are causing SOAP to be grossly under-utilized by those most in need of assistance.

Earlier this month, I introduced legislation with Sen. Wendell Ford that will turn this program around by refining and tailoring it to the needs of small operators. First and foremost, the definition of a "small operator" will be changed from the current 100,000 ton-per-year limit to 300,000 tons. The previous level was unrealistically low and actually penalized an operator who was able to increase production beyond the 100,000 ton cap. The new limit will serve to increase production and encourage competitiveness. The new SOAP proposal will also expand the types of permit services that are available. For example, qualifying operators will be able to draw upon government experts that can cut bureaucratic red tape and assist them in the application process — a very costly up-front mining expense.

Our small coal operators are critical not only to Kentucky's economy but to the nation's economy as a whole. These entrepreneurs are able to go in and mine small veins that would ordinarily be passed over by larger companies.

CO-FIRING OF COAL, NATURAL GAS CAN HELP TO PROTECT COAL-MINING JOBS

Along with many other Kentuckians, I see a growing need to do everything possible to combine two of Kentucky's most important goals — protecting our environment and enhancing the future of our vitally important coal industry.

I am pleased to report that I have introduced a bill — the Co-firing Promotion Act of 1989 — that I believe will be a major step toward both of these goals. This bill calls for stepped-up efforts to develop technologies for co-firing coal and natural gas to control pollution from many coal-burning power plants across the nation.

We know that proposed environmental legislation threatens to adversely affect coal-industry employment in Kentucky and elsewhere. Coal and gas co-firing could help to protect coal-mining jobs while also stimulating employment in the natural-gas industry.

In many cases, co-firing technologies may be our least disruptive and most economical pollution-control option. These technologies could be applicable to some 550 plants making use of coal from operations employing about 16,000 mine workers across the nation.

Co-firing could permit many coal-burning utilities to control pollution without abandoning medium and high-sulfur coal or installing costly and inefficient scrubbers. In my view, it is certainly one of our most promising near-term clean-fuel technologies, especially for retrofitting existing coal-fired boilers.

One reason that co-firing is so promising is that the top 100 sulfur-dioxide-emitting power plants are an average of only five miles from one or more natural-gas pipelines.

In spite of all of these advantages, we are not doing nearly enough to develop co-firing technologies under our existing clean-coal research program at the U.S. Department of Energy.

Our bill, which I introduced with Senator Jeff Bingaman of New Mexico, calls upon the Secretary of Energy to carry out a three-year, $18 million program of research, development and demonstration of co-firing technologies. And it contains a number of other provisions to encourage our energy industry to become actively involved in these vital technologies.

The energy security of this nation is threatened by a rising tide of oil imports. We are sorely in need of national policies allowing us to make full use of every available option in our drive for an efficient domestic energy industry and a clean environment. Coal and gas co-firing is one of our major options, and I intend to do everything I can to see that its great potential is realized as quickly as possible.

Smokers Unite — But Don't Light

As millions of smokers prepare to quit for 24 hours during the Great American Smokeout, Thursday, Nov. 16, the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation is urging pregnant women and women planning pregnancy to stop smoking.

"Cigarette smoking is clearly associated with an increase in stillbirth, miscarriage, prematurity, low-birth-weight and infant death," says March of Dimes Chairperson John Henry Felix. "We hope that pregnant women who smoke will take advantage of the American Cancer Society's Great American Smokeout to give their babies the best chance for a healthy birth."

According to the March of Dimes, smoking during pregnancy doubles a woman's chance of having a low-birthweight baby (less than 5.5 pounds). It also doubles the chance that the baby will be born prematurely.

A low-birthweight baby is 40 times more likely to die during the first month of life than a baby weighing 5.5 pounds or more. Babies born prematurely are often critically ill and frequently have severe respiratory problems. Dr. Richard Morton, March of Dimes vice president for health services, explains that smoking reduces the supply of oxygen and other nutrients to an unborn baby. Nicotine in a mother's blood causes blood vessels to contract, reducing the flow of blood to the baby. Carbon monoxide in the blood limits the amount of oxygen that can be carried.

But he adds that quitting smoking does help. Studies show that women who stop smoking early in pregnancy reduce their risk of having a low-birthweight baby to nearly the same level as women who have never smoked. Even quitting or reducing smoking later in pregnancy can significantly increase the chances of having a normal-weight baby.

"The March of Dimes urges women planning pregnancy to stop smoking before conception," says Morton. "Women who cannot stop completely should try to minimize smoking, particularly during the second half of pregnancy when adverse effects on the fetus seem to be greatest."

More babies in this country die because of birth defects, low-birth-weight and prematurity than any other cause. The mission of the March of Dimes is to improve the health of infants through the prevention of these major newborn health problems. The March of Dimes supports research, education and health service programs that help babies be born healthy.

Highlands Regional Medical Center is observing the Great American Smokeout by encouraging freedom from smoking in the workplace, according to Kathy Rubado, chairperson of the Smokeout committee. This year's event will be sponsored by the cardiac rehabilitation department and will be offering information and tips on quitting smoking and handing out finger foods to their employees who need something to get through the day smokeless.

"If we can just get people to stop smoking for that one day, it may be the first day of a long smokeless life," said Rubado. She added that hospital workers are encouraged to visit the rehabilitation department on their breaks and ride the bikes or walk on the tread mill instead of smoking.

She also said that participants will get information on how to avoid withdrawal syndromes and information on Nicorette gum, along with a phone number to call for help. She said that the program hopes to encourage people to set a date to quit smoking or cut back on their cigarette consumption.

Cupboards Of God's Pantry Are Bare, Reports Amburgey

By Tess A. Whitmer, Staff Writer

Yesterday marked the second anniversary for God's Pantry in West Prestonsburg. Unfortunately, due to the flooding situation, the cupboards are bare.

According to Debbie Amburgey, director, this is the lowest the pantry's supply has been since the program's conception in 1987.

The God's Pantry is an affiliate of Second Harvest National Food Bank out of Louisville, and the warehouse in Lexington and Floyd County receives supplies from it, as well as from local donations. The West Prestonsburg God's Pantry is a non-profit organization and serves as an outlet for 79 agencies in a 10-county area in Eastern Kentucky, according to Amburgey. The Lexington outlet services agencies in Central Kentucky.

It's mission is to get food and non-food items to those who cannot get them any other way, Amburgey explained.

They service many more organizations toward the end of the month as needy persons' money supplies dwindle. Although God's Pantry is not affiliated with any church, it does supply the area church's "food box" programs as well as senior citizen's programs, Mountain Comprehensive Care Center, Christian Appalachian Project and other non-profit organizations.

Amburgey explained that not all of the 79 agencies are active year round but, towards the holidays, more and more requests come in. She added that they do continuous service with about 32 agencies. The only charge they have is to cover transportation, so everything in the warehouse costs 12 cents a pound, except for some free items such as bread.

Charles P. Slone, who is a VISTA volunteer with God's Pantry, said that they have tried several programs to get donations, such as from local wholesale houses, but Big Sandy out of Harold is the only one in the area. They have also contacted the retail outlets in Prestonsburg, Paintsville and Pikeville, but all of those have their own reclamation centers and can't contribute.

Presently Amburgey and Slone are coordinating a food drive program with the county schools and Rotary, and Foodlyon, Foodland and Food City. All have set up donation barrels in their stores. They are hoping to enlist the help of other area organizations and businesses in this endeavor.

"Eastern Kentuckians are the recipients, but we are not putting in anything," Slone commented. "Since we are the beneficiaries we should contribute, those of us who can."

Amburgey and Slone both stressed the need for food and non-food items to get through the holiday season. Amburgey said that she is implementing a new program to get monetary donations to purchase hams and turkeys. "After all, what is a holiday with out a ham or a turkey on the table?" she noted.

She added that Frito Lay of Harold and the Pepsi Bottling Company have been very generous with their salvage items. She explained that a salvage item includes such things as dented cans, items nearing expiration date, mislabeled items and generally "things that are no longer available for commercial sale but are still good, nutritional items."

Anyone wishing to contribute can do so by contacting their local school, or anyone who wants to make a monetary donation can send it to God's Pantry East, 401 Happy Hollow, West Prestonsburg 41688. Amburgey did note that she would prefer any checks be hand delivered to her. The hours of the pantry are Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m.

Leaving

Jeff Franklin, WYMT-TV's Big Sandy Bureau Chief, will be leaving that position at the Hazard station later this month. Franklin has taken a news reporter's position with WLEX-TV (NBC, Channel 18) in Lexington. He will be succeeded at the Big Sandy Bureau by WYMT reporter Kevin Myers. Franklin will begin his new job at WLEX on Wednesday, Nov. 22.

Voters Determine Winners Of Mayoral, Commission Seats

A small number of voters turned out yesterday to determine the winner of the mayoral race in Wheelwright and Wayland. In fact the city commissioner candidates individually, except for one, got more votes than the mayor of Wheelwright.

Kenneth Johnson won the race for Wheelwright mayor, narrowly beating Lowell Parker, 88 to 77. The other candidate on the ballot, Allen Taylor, managed to bring in 60 votes keeping him in close proportion to the others. Surprisingly, former city official Elmer Ferguson was written in by 41 of his constituents. A total of only 266 votes for the office of Wheelwright mayor were cast.

The City Commissioners race in Wheelwright had nine candidates vying for four positions, with the top four only surpassing the others by as few as five votes. The top vote getter was Dennis Holbrook with 124 votes and the following three each capturing 120 votes: Jerry Keith Tackett, Larry L. Mullins and David M. Sammons. All will be sworn in as Wheelwright city commissioners in January. The remaining candidates came in as follows: Dennis Harris with 115, Jerry Tackett with 103, Danny Bates with 102, Vence Bates with 92, and Donald Johnson bringing up the rear with 55 votes.

The City Commissioners race in Allen saw a much narrower margin determining the winner of those four seats. Elmer Parsons took the lead with 42 votes, Gary L. Elliott came in second with 36 votes, Billy R. Rowe third with 32 votes and Anna Lee Bentley was the final seat filler taking 29 votes. Edward J. Holman missed being on the commission by only four votes, getting 25.

Hobert Webb Sr. took the position as Mayor of Wayland by more than a 2 to 1 margin, receiving 66 votes over Ernest "Gene" DeCoursey's 26.

One position remains open on the four-seat City Commission of Wayland. Jerry A. Fultz pulled in 72 votes, Tommy Millard Robinson, 54, and Eugene Mullins followed with 50.

Uncontested due to a lack of candidates (six running for six seats) was the Martin City Council election: Earrit Hayes at 116, Joe Simpson at 115, John L. Maddox at 111, Denzil Halbert at 105, James Robinson at 104 and E.P. Grigsby Jr. and 96 votes. The only candidate for the mayor of Allen, Vernon Porter, got 40 votes.

Priority Number One: EDUCATION

Two entities impact every person in Kentucky, each and every day: the weather, which we cannot influence, and higher education, which we must.

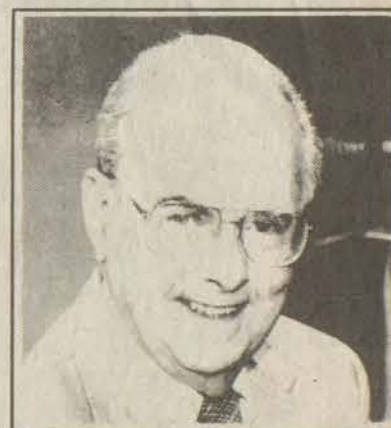

Regardless of whether your home is in the country or the city, the support and success of Kentucky's public higher education system is closely linked to your future... to the future of the nearly four million individuals in the state... and to the future of the Commonwealth itself.

Although Kentuckians sometimes do disagree on major issues, this subject is an exception—nine out of ten concur on the importance of quality higher education.* Here's a sample of what people are saying, state-wide.

*Source: Public opinion survey conducted by Cambridge Reports, Inc., March 1988

"There are obviously two educations. One should teach us how to make a living and the other how to live. Continued strengthening of Kentucky's public higher education system will greatly enhance these goals."

Charles J. Baugh, Mayfield Insurance Agency Vice President

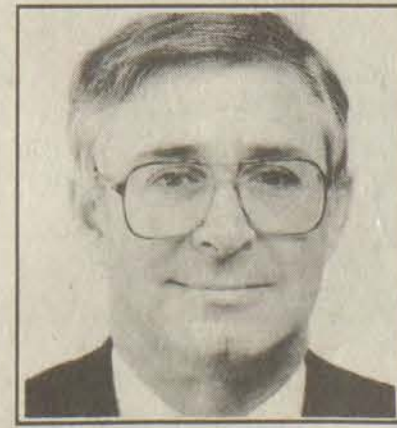

"Higher education is an important step in the development of well-rounded individuals and should be available to more people regardless of their financial status."

Rita Mitchell, Fulton Newspaper Editor

"Our Commonwealth is enhanced by higher education. If we are to continue to prosper, we must heighten our commitment to all of our universities."

William E. McNulty, Jr., Louisville Circuit Judge

"There can be no greater investment for society than to commit substantial funds and personal efforts to higher education. The cultural, economic and social benefits far surpass any alternative use of resources."

to the furnace prior to the explosion have fueled concerns about the current safety of the school.

At two separate meetings held by Allen parents on Monday, fear for their children and anger towards the local board were clearly present in questions asked of school and fire officials.

A group of parents met Monday morning in front of Allen Elementary to determine the progress being made on repairs to the furnace and building. They were under the impression that they would be allowed to tour the school, according to parent Rose Stephens. The parents had entered the school when Ron Hager, school superintendent for Floyd County, arrived and informed them that the building had not been certified as safe by the state fire marshal and they were required to leave.

Outside, several parents said they were concerned about the stability of the gym floor. They claimed that it squeaked and moved when three women bounced on it, and parents asked what would happen when children, who sometimes have two gym classes at one time, were all on the floor at once.

Hager assured the parents that the building was structurally sound and had been inspected by Jerry Fryer, a structural engineer hired by the school board.

"Unsafely is not unsafe, and the state fire marshal will be here to check whether the furnace is operable and that there are no bugs," Hager explained.

Parents said they would not allow children to return to the building until they felt it safe.

"I wouldn't ask you to send your children here if it wasn't safe," said Hager.

Ten years ago, in May of 1979, another explosion caused by a kitchen gas leak rocked Prestonsburg High School. Ronald Hager, who was then an assistant superintendent of Floyd County schools, was a member of a fact-finding board which investigated the incident. Seven workers at the school were injured in that explosion.

Monday night, the Allen Elementary Parent-Teacher Association PTA met at the First Baptist Church of Allen to discuss the explosion and safety of the school. Allen Fire Department Chief Roy Compton addressed parents, describing efforts made to insure the safety of the school. According to Compton, once the new furnace has been installed, state inspectors will examine the building thoroughly before certifying it as safe. He also noted that he would be present for the inspection.

A parent in the crowd asked how they could be sure that the inspection conducted by the state inspectors would be thorough and not influenced by the school board's desire to reopen the school quickly. Said Compton, "If someone signs his name and states that the building is safe, when it really isn't, he'd have to be a goofball, absolutely crazy. There's too much at stake."

Parents decided that money would be allocated by the PTA to hire a private structural engineer to also check the safety of the building. Until this was completed, most agreed to not allow children to return to school.

remained a great deal of uncertainty as to who the winner would be.

As of 11 p.m. Tuesday night, unofficial tallies from reporting counties in the 7th District were as follows:

Martin County (incomplete) 1,121 for Sturgill, 1,048 for Stumbo; final in Magoffin, 2,161 for Sturgill, 1,411 for Stumbo; Johnson (incomplete), 1,944 for Sturgill, 1,876 for Stumbo; Pike (incomplete), 3,612 for Sturgill, 5,490 for Stumbo; final in Floyd, 6,346 for Sturgill, 3,755 for Stumbo.

An incomplete and unofficial district total had Stumbo leading 42,384 to Sturgill's 38,649, with 89.5 percent of the 523 precincts reporting.

Sturgill, while clearly disappointed by the election's outcome, was calm during his concession of defeat to Stumbo.

"If we could have had a better turnout at the polls, there might have been a different result tonight. We fought a good fight, and I'm proud of what we've done."

Stumbo will enter the Kentucky court of appeals as one of two members from the 7th District. She will preside with 13 other members over cases appealed in federal courts within the state.

Religious Viewpoint

By Fr. Joseph N. Muench
Pastor,
St. Martha's Catholic Church
Prestonsburg

One of the myths surrounding Catholics in the Big Sandy area, and in the United States in general, is that we are newcomers. People who believe this myth forget that the settlement of Maryland was the work of Catholics (some of their descendants are friends of mine). Even less well known to the casual historian is the fact that some of the early Indian hunters who came across the Ohio were members of northeastern tribes converted to Catholicism by the North American martyrs in the early 17th Century. Nor would it be unlikely that one of the first white settlers in the Big Sandy was reared as a Catholic in his native Ireland — none other than Thomas Wiley, husband of the undefeatable Jenny. He lived here 30 years after her death, and is buried in the vicinity of River, Ky.

In Floyd County, immigrant populations brought their Catholic faith with them. The idea of Catholicism as a foreign faith probably stems from hesitancy to accept large numbers of immigrants. More than five churches established to meet their needs no longer exist — even though all of them were established in this century.

Sizable Catholic populations have been in Kentucky since the mid-18th Century. It was during that time that the first Mass was offered within our present state boundaries. Later, Father Stephen Badin, the first priest to be ordained in the United States, was sent to be a missionary in Kentucky. At Contrary Creek in Estill County, the descendants of one of the early Catholic families still practice our ancient faith. Their name (Durbin), can be found throughout the state. I have taught members of the family in Northern Kentucky.

Floyd County Catholics are part of the Diocese of Lexington. A diocese is the district in which a particular bishop exercises ecclesiastical jurisdiction. He is the chief pastor of this area; the priests are his "arms," aiding him in the ministry to the faithful. As a successor to the Apostles, the bishop is both a sign and an effective agent of church unity. Catholics are united with him. Through him we are united under the universal guidance and leadership of the Pope (the bishop of Rome), and ultimately, we are united under the Headship and Lordship of Christ through His Body, the Church.

The reason for this short trip through the pages of history is that Monday, Nov. 6, marked the 200th anniversary of the establishment of the Catholic Hierarchy in the United States. Pope Pius VI, by his decree Ex hac Apostolicae, erected the Diocese of Baltimore and named John Carroll its first bishop in 1789. Our bishops celebrated Mass in the original Baltimore Cathedral on Monday.

P'burg Captures Division Title With Win Over Morgan Pirates

Jubilant Crace

Mike Crace (11) shows his pleasure after his Blackcat squad tripped up the Morgan County Pirates 21-7 to take the District 2 title. Crace had three interceptions in the game for Prestonsburg. Kevin Hall (59) celebrated with Crace.

Future Running Back

Mike Hopson (20), a sophomore on the Prestonsburg Blackcat football team, rushes for a Blackcat first down against Morgan County. The Blackcats put together a great defensive and offensive effort in defeating the Pirates 21-7 to move into tournament play. Hopson has been impressive of late for the Blackcats.

by Ed Taylor,
Sports Editor

A successful season for the Prestonsburg Blackcats came down to the final regular season game. On the line was the District 2 championship between the two schools; both entered the game with identical records of 3-1 and 4-6 overall.

The game was played at Morgan County, and other opponents had found it a difficult place to win. Coach Bill Letton's Blackcats played probably their best game of the season in putting together a complete game as the Blackcats stopped the contending Pirates, 21-7, to capture the District 2 title.

The game plan was simple: stop the Pirate's passing game and establish a Blackcat running game. The Prestonsburg team did exactly what they had to do to win — go by the game plan.

Senior halfback Aaron Flannery who suffered a mild concussion in the M.C. Napier game, was in full gear as he rushed for an unofficial 192 yards unofficially on 18 carries. The senior also crossed the goal line, scoring two Blackcat touchdowns. His longest run was a 60-yard romp for a TD in the fourth period that seemed to take the drive out of the Pirates.

The Prestonsburg defense was alert, avoiding penalties that weighed against them in the Napier game a week before. Mike Crace picked off three Jamie Easterling passes that stopped the Pirates on drives that took them into Blackcat territory. Crace was also on the receiving end of several of quarterback Aaron Tucker's passes, one a 19-yard touchdown pass late in the third quarter that put the 'Cats ahead to stay, 14-7.

The Blackcat defense held the Pirates to 204 yards rushing on 42 carries, while Prestonsburg carried the ball 42 times for 454 yards — something the Blackcats had to do to win. Prestonsburg's secondary stopped the passing of Easterling as the Pirate quarterback could manage only 23 yards on four completions. Tucker hit Crace with four passes of 10, 16, 20 and 19 yards, the latter resulting in a touchdown.

Morgan County took a 7-0 lead in the second quarter of play. Crace had just intercepted an Easterling pass on a Pirate first down with 1:50 remaining in the first quarter. On the first play for the Blackcats, the football was fumbled and recovered by Morgan County on the Blackcat 15. Facing a third and four situation with 11:18 remaining in the second stanza, Easterling hit fullback John Standafer with a 5-yard touchdown pass. Keith Elam added the extra point to make it 7-0 Morgan County.

Prestonsburg tied the game at 7-7 in the second quarter with 5:31 to go when the Blackcats got good field position on a Pirate punt. Flannery carried the ball on second and 10 for 12 yards and a Prestonsburg first down. The senior halfback picked up five more yards on another carry. Freshman halfback John Gobie ran for 25 yards on second and five to put the ball on the Pirate 10 yard line, where Flannery ran for the touchdown. Jason "Golden Toe" Storey added the extra point.

Prestonsburg put together a good drive in the third period after Morgan County punted a ball that ended up on the Blackcat 2 yard line, giving them poor field position and requiring Tucker to work out of the end zone. On two carries, Mike Hopson rushed for 22 yards, moving the ball to the Blackcat 24.

Flannery, on a sweep around right end, picked up nine yards, carrying the ball to the 31 of Prestonsburg. Hopson carried the ball for 30 yards to the Pirate 39 yard line. Prestonsburg drove the ball down to the Pirates 3. On the ensuing plays the Blackcats were unable to reach paydirt and the Blackcats elected to go for a field goal. However, a bad snap from center prevented the field goal try.

Prestonsburg took the lead for good at with a touchdown in the third quarter. After Crace made his second interception of the game, the Blackcats had the football on the Pirate's 26 yard line. On third and two, Tucker found Crace with a 19-yard pass and the receiver took the ball into the end zone for a game-leading touchdown. Storey added the extra point for a 14-7 lead.

Prestonsburg took over the football in the fourth on downs as Morgan County was unable to convert a fourth and three. For the second time in the game, Prestonsburg fumbled on the first play from the line of scrimmage.

On a third and six for Morgan County, Crace gathered in his third interception to set up the final score for Prestonsburg. On second and five from the Blackcat 40 yard line, Flannery broke tackle and raced 60 yards for a touchdown. After Storey's third extra point, Prestonsburg held the final margin at 21-7.

Morgan County's Darlan Finch carried the ball for the Pirates 28 times in gaining 144 yards.

For Prestonsburg, freshman John Gobie, who has looked impressive in the last two Prestonsburg games, carried 12 times for 112 yards. Another Blackcat that is impressing the Blackcats coaching staff, Mike Hopson, carried nine times for 96 yards.

In the Prestonsburg locker room, Coach Letton told his team that he had a speech prepared but forgot it.

"A lot of people didn't give us a chance to win this title," Letton told his squad after the game. "We have proved a lot of people wrong."

Letton told his team how proud he was of all of them. "You are all in on this victory, whether you played or not, and I am proud of all of you."

"There were 55 double A teams when we started now there are 16. Eight are district champions and you are one of those eight," the Prestonsburg mentor told his team.

"We need to go on now as we have Somerset next Friday. All records are See DIVISION TITLE, Page 2

Records Fall In Pikeville Win Over Betsy Layne

by Ed Taylor,
Sports Editor

Coach Gerald Newsome's Betsy Layne Bobcats closed out their 1989 football season on a disappointing note as his squad dropped a 66-18 loss to the Pikeville Panthers Friday night during the "Howard, Bailey & Hale Show."

The loss gave Betsy Layne a 3-8 record on the year.

Betsy Layne enjoyed a brief first quarter lead when, on a bootleg play, Larry Hall hit Tandy Howell with a pass good for 50 yards. The extra point attempt was no good, but the Bobcats led the Panthers, 6-0.

The Bobcat lead did not hold up long, as the Panthers scored four touchdowns in the first period to lead at the first stop, 27-6.

Pikeville's outstanding wide receiver, Johnny Hale took a 38-yard pass from quarterback Jason Howard for a touchdown. Steve Bailey booted the extra point to put the Panthers on top, 7-6.

Betsy Layne was forced to punt the ball on its next possession and the Panthers came right back with another TD, driving the ball deep into Bobcat territory. Steve Bailey crossed the goal line from 3 yards out to give Pikeville a 13-6 lead. The extra point attempt failed.

Pikeville went on top 21-6 after Howard hooked up with Jason Justice on a 19-yard pass play. Howard ran the ball into the end zone on the conversion for two points.

Before the quarter could come to an end, the Panther's Bailey scored his second touchdown of the period when he broke tackle and galloped 57 yards for a score. Pikeville tried for a conversion and failed.

In the second period, Bailey scored his third touchdown of the game when he took a Betsy Layne punt and ran the ball back 65 yards for a Panther touchdown to give them a 33-6 lead. However, Pikeville wasn't through, as Hale scored his second TD on a 53-yard pass from Howard. Jason Blackburn added the extra point. Pikeville closed out the second stanza scoring when Hale took a Howard pass from 42 yards. Blackburn added the extra point to make it 47-6.

Howard made it five touchdown passes when he found Brian Wilson open with a 29-yard pass. Blackburn added another extra point and it was all Panthers, 54-6.

Sub quarterback J.P. Blair kept things going for Pikeville with a 3-yard pass into the end zone to Jason Justice. Pikeville closed out its scoring against the Bobcats on a 69-yard run by Lance Rose.

Betsy Layne put together a good drive, getting the ball on the Panther's 2 yard line, where Larry Hall carried the ball into the end zone. Betsy Layne made it 66-18 when fullback Morris Adkins received a pass from Craig Hunter from 39 yards.

Howard had a total of 248 yards in passing for the Panthers besides throwing for five touchdowns. According to school officials, Howard broke the school record for touchdown passes this season with 23. The big quarterback completed 10 of 12

Stumbo Battles Harold, Earns Slim 65-59 Victory

by Ed Taylor,
Sports Editor

Inconsistency at the free throw stripe was the downfall of the Harold Red Devils in grade school basketball action at John M. Stumbo school as the Red Devils and Mustangs hooked up in a good, old-fashioned barn burner.

The Newsome boys, Jason and Derrick, each scored 19 points in leading the Mustangs to a 65-59 victory over a very good Harold team.

"We're starting to play better basketball," Harold coach Durant Newsome said of his team. "Free throw shooting hurt us tonight."

The game was much closer than the final score reveals, with neither team able to lead by more than five points in the game — and that was with :22 seconds to go in the second period by Harold.

Jason Newsome put the Mustangs up 2-0 with a basket underneath, and from there the lead switched hands 19 times, with Stumbo finally taking the lead for good with :25 seconds left in the game at 61-59.

The two teams were tied at 15-15 at the end of the first period. Harold led 21-19 early in the second stanza. Two free throws by Derrick Newsome made the game at 21-21. Barry Clark pulled down a missed shot and put it back in to put the Red Devils up by two, 23-21. With the score tied at 29-29, Mike Newman of Harold was fouled while shooting. Newman missed both shots, but a lane violation on Stumbo gave Newman another chance. On the next shot another violation on Stumbo game Newman still another try — he missed, and Clark rebounded the missed shot and put it back in for a 31-29 lead. With :07 on the clock, Chris Potter hit a nice lay up and was fouled. Potter converted the free throw to give the Red Devils a 34-29 lead — their biggest of the game. Derrick Newsome tallied two free throws to make it 34-31, Harold, at half time.

Newsome opened the scoring in the second half with a basket to bring the Mustangs to within one. Two baskets by Brian Hunter and two Clark free throws sandwiched around a Derrick Newsome basket, gave the Red Devils their biggest lead of the game at five points, 40-35.

At 42-37, two field goals by Jason Newsome, a bucket by Chad Frasure and two free throws by Steven Johnson put the Mustangs up 45-42. Stumbo led at the end of the third quarter, 51-48.

The Mustangs were up 55-51 early in the final stanza when Harold scored six unanswered points to take their final lead at 57-55. With the score tied at 59-59, Frasure put the Mustangs up for good at 61-59, with a basket and :25 showing on the clock. Stumbo scored the last four points of the game to give them a 65-59 victory over Harold.

Coach Shelia Ortega's Betsy Layne Lady 'Cats had to go into overtime to tame the Lady Blackcats of Prestonsburg and Gay Hatfield in a game played at Betsy Layne.

Prestonsburg held a two point lead, 28-26, with time running out in regulation play. Jamie Ratcliff was fouled with seconds showing on the clock. She hit both charity tosses to tie the game and send it into overtime.

In overtime, each team scored two points to stay tied at 30-all. With about 15 seconds showing on the scoreboard and Prestonsburg with the ball, a Lady Blackcat went for the basket only to have it blocked. Misty Clark picked up the loose ball and hit Becky Kidd underneath the Betsy Layne basket-ball with a pass. Kidd turned and put the ball in, giving the Lady Bobcats a 32-30 hard fought victory over Prestonsburg.

Ratcliff and Clark shared scoring honors for Betsy Layne with 13 points. Kidd ended up with six points as only three Lady Bobcats scored in the game.

Kenni Bradford led Prestonsburg in scoring with 11 points and Jenny Morrison scored seven and Rebecca Leslie added six.

The win improves Betsy Layne's record to 6-4; Prestonsburg fell to 4-3.

Talk To Me

Worth McGuire (8) seems to be talking to the football but instead McGuire is getting ready to put the boot to it. Prestonsburg defeated Morgan County Friday night in a 21-7 victory to capture a playoff berth against Somerset this Friday evening at Prestonsburg.

thrown out the door and they have to come to our house to play us. This is a new season and there is no telling how far you can go."

Letton said that his team played good defense and, even though Morgan County scored first, his team fought back. Letton also was surprised that Morgan County didn't throw more against his team.

"Yes, I was surprised. I thought they would throw more than they did," he said. "I also was surprised they stuck with the wishbone the way they did."

Letton had high praise for his defense after the offense fumbled the ball on their own 20 yard line, turning the ball over to the Pirates.

"Our defense did a great job. It's hard to let a team have the ball on the 20 yard line and then ask your defense to hold them and not expect some kind of score (field goal or otherwise) out of it. Our defense dug in and held them."

Was it hard to get his troops up for this one? "No, they knew that it was a 'do or die' situation. They handled it real well. It wasn't hard to get them up, it was an easy week," he said.

Asked to expound on the statement that he made to his team in regard to people not giving his team a chance to win the title, Letton said

"other coaches and other people thought that we were a fluke as a team. We won big over Betsy Layne and almost beat Bates Creek, and then we went into a losing streak and they thought we were not for real. The five teams that we lost to had a combined record of 45 wins against only seven defeats. I feel that we should have been 7-4 on the season."

"Our kids never got down. When we lost those five games in a row, a lot of teams would have quit, thinking it was hard to beat anybody. Our kids did not quit. They showed a lot of character."

Somerset, which lost to Henry Clay, 20-17, will visit the Blackcat lair this Friday night in a playoff game at 8 p.m.

Lady Indians Wins 10th Game Of Season With Win Over Prater

by Ed Taylor, Sports Editor

The Clark Lady Indians may be having trouble hitting free throws, but the Lady Indians are not having trouble winning basketball games.

Clark picked up its 10th win of the season against one defeat as they downed Prater 38-30 Thursday night.

Clark jumped out in front of the Lady Indians 16-2 after one quarter of play, and seemed on their way to an easy victory. Prater outscored Clark by five points in the second stanza and trailed by nine at the half.

Clark built its lead back to 18 points after three quarters with a 13-4 run in the third. However, the Lady Cougars mounted a comeback and held the Lady Indians to just two fourth period points while they scored 12. But the rally fell short, and the Lady Indians picked up win number 10.

Maria Hicks led the winners with 12 points. Rebecca Webb added nine points to the victory for Clark. Andrea Shepherd tossed in eight. Dana Akers topped the Lady Cougars with 10 points. Shonda Lawson added six.

Clark 16 7 13 2 (38); Christy Little, 3; Andrea Shepherd, 8; Rebecca Webb, 9; Maria Hicks, 12; Jamie Clay, 6.

at Prater 2 12 4 12 (30); Dana Akers, 10; Shonda Lawson, 6; Misty Conn, 3; Heather Nelson, 4; Tammy Conn, 2; Regina Brown, 5.

Brrrrrr!

It was a cold, cold night at Morgan County Friday night as the temperatures dipped down into the 20's to cast a chill on Blackcat fans who followed the Prestonsburg squad to the championship game against the Pirates. The suffering was worth it all, as the Blackcats clawed out a 21-7 win over the host school.

Bess Wins By 50 Seconds In 5K Run At Jenny Wiley

by Ed Taylor, Sports Editor

Martin Bess won the Joe McCauley 5K Run held at the Jenny Wiley Park Saturday afternoon, but he had to keep looking over his shoulder as he was followed closely by local runner Rick Roberts.

Bess beat Roberts by 50 seconds with a time of 15:53. Roberts finished with 16:43 to placed second overall in the race.

Roberts finished first in the 30-34 age group with his time.

"The last quarter mile I was trying to pick up some time and had a side stitch (a cramp where a runner is running too fast and his breathing is not coordinated with his running) and that slowed me down. I looked over my shoulder and saw the third place runner, so I just sucked it in and went on," Roberts explained.

"My time was good and I was pleased with it. A person wants to win all the time but good times are important also," he said. "I had been going back and forth between the 16 and 17 times. I finished third last year in the same race at 17:05."

Joe Weddington of Prestonsburg placed first in the 20-24 age group with a time of 35:16. In the 25-29 group, Dave McQuire finished first with a time of 16:57 that was also good for third place overall.

Other results were: 40-44 age group, Quentin Scholtz of Auxier finished third with a time of 26:27; George Lee took second in the 45-49 age group at 32:00 flat.

Marie Vabourg from Northern

France and running for Centre College took first place overall with a 23:56 time.

"She did not have too run fast because there was no one really pushing her," Roberts stated. "Had there been, she would have run it quicker."

Kathy Addington finished second overall in the women's division with a time of 25:38. Her husband Larry also ran in the race and was second in the 50-55 age group. Janie McQuire of Price took third place overall with a 26:23 time.

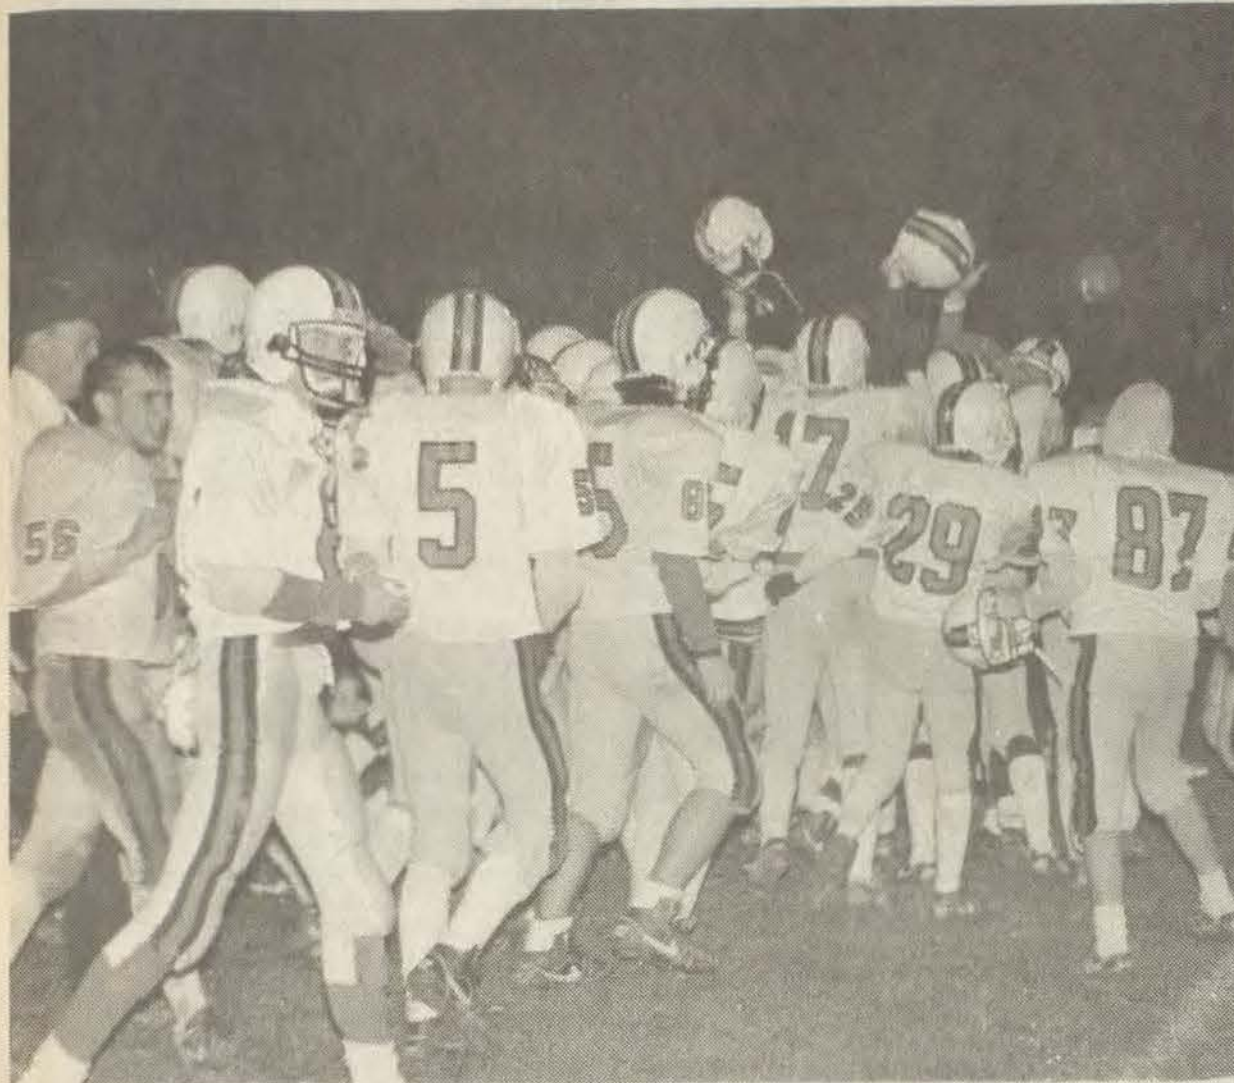

Roberts plans to run in the Harvest Five Mile Run in Lebanon, Virginia on Nov. 18. This will be the first time that Roberts has taken part in the Harvest race.

"I believe I can place in the top five," he stated.

Block That Kick

A Morgan County defender tries to block a field goal attempt by Jason Storey (17) Friday night. The attempt went to the right of the uprights. Mike Crace (11) is the holder. Prestonsburg won the football game 21-7 for a playoff berth.

How Sweet It Is!

A jubilant Prestonsburg Blackcat football team is pictured after the horn sounded the end of the game Friday night against Morgan County. The Blackcats defeated the Pirates 21-7 to capture the District 2 crown.

What Happened To Number 23?

Aaron Flannery (3) seems to have deceived even the Pirate defense in changing jersey numbers in the District 2 championship game against Morgan County. Flannery normally wears number 23. The senior halfback scored two touchdowns for the Blackcats in their 21-7 win.

TUBE LURE TRANSFORMATIONS

The hollow core of the popular tube-type grub presents an infinite number of angling opportunities and possibilities, and creative fishermen from across the country have developed their own little tricks for utilizing that hollow space to their best advantage.

STUFFING THE TUBE

Since Bobby Garland first developed the original tube lure back in 1973, his Bass 'N Man Fat Gitzit has been copied by virtually every soft-plastics manufacturer in the country. The reason is that this simple bait is among the most productive lures in existence. But even Garland notes that a "transformed" version is sometimes more productive than the plain Gitzit. One of Bobby Garland's favorite tactics is to stuff his hollow Gitzit with pieces of broken Alka Seltzer. "Once the seltzer starts to dissolve, it bubbles violently. The bubbling also makes the Gitzit twitch and dart while it's sinking, and that provides an unusual, erratic action. Both actions play on the bass' sense of curiosity and will actually attract fish from quite a distance in clear water.

The hollow space in a tube lure is a natural receptacle for angling scents. O.T. Fears, a three time Classic qualifier from Sallisaw, Okla., stuffs his tube lures with Berkley's moldable Strike. "I just pinch off about a third of a stick, roll it between by fingers and shove it into the tube. The moldable Strike will dissolve very slowly and provide a great scent trail for an hour or so." Paul Elias prefers to fill his tube lures with Fish Formula's new SparkleScales gel, while many anglers simply stuff cotton into the tube to retain various liquid scents.

THE DO-NOTHIN' TUBE

Most often, tube lures are fished in relatively shallow water, but one rigging method transforms these productive little lures into deadly deepwater structure baits. Laurel, Miss., touring pro and 1982 Classic champ Paul Elias developed the rig, which is similar to a do-nothing worm rig.

Elias rigs the tube on a standard Carolina-rig behind a 1 ounce bullet weight/plastic bead/swivel combination. A 3 to 5-foot leader is used between the swivel and the bait, which is slipped on a 1/0 worm hook. In brush-laden areas, Elias switches to a 1/0 weedless hook.

The "piece de resistance" in Elias' rig is a small, round crappie-fishing cork placed on the leader 18 to 24 inches in front of the tube lure. "This helps to pull the tube up off of the bottom. One of the things that makes a tube lure so effective is the way that it falls, and this little cork ball will float upwards when you move the sinker, but it also lets the bait fall when you pause the retrieve.

The cherry on the top Elias' rig is a tube filled with Fish Formula SparkleScales. "I like to fill the tube with SparkleScales. Then, whenever the bait is moving, it leaves a trail of flashy sparkles behind it, and I really think that helps to attract the fish. The new SparkleScales gel formula is best for this because it disperses the scent and flash pattern more slowly and will last throughout several long casts."

THE TUBE CRAW

One of the best tube transformations to come down the pike is a hybrid of the Hale's Craw Worm and a tube lure. The Craw Worm is a 4 1/2-inch soft plastic crayfish imitation. Basically, the forward end of the lure is more like a plastic worm, while the rear section is a stylized crayfish complete with wagging pinchers.

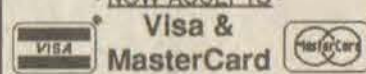

To create the lure, first slide a Craw Worm onto a leadhead of the appropriate size, usually 1/8 to 3/8-oz. depending on the depth at which you will be fishing. To make the lure a bit more compact, smallmouth anglers often pinch an inch or so from the Craw Worm's tail before creating the tube crawl. Next, apply a drop of Super Glue between the end of the Craw Worm and the leadhead, then slide the bait firmly against the base of the leadhead and wait a few moments for the glue to set. Now simply lubricate the leadhead and the base of the Craw Worm with Fish Formula or saliva and slide it into the tube lure. The glue will hold the Craw Worm against the leadhead and keep it from sliding down the shank of the hook when you slip it into the tube lure.

In theory, the tube crawl can be used wherever you would use a pig-n-jig, a plastic worm, or a tube lure. What is more, the tube crawl's leadhead is enclosed in soft plastic, so the fish do not feel the unnaturally hard lead. As a result, bass will normally hold a tube crawl (or any of its variations) far longer than they will a plastic worm or a jig-n-pig, and this gives the angler plenty of time to set the hook.

THE JIGGING TUBE
Tube lures can be used to modify not only soft plastic baits, but metal ones as well. Larry Columbo, an Eufaula, Ala., angler who serves as the public relations director for Humminbird, often slips a jigging spoon into the hollow tube lure. "The tube lure improves the jigging spoon in a number of ways," Columbo says. "First of all, it changes the fall of the lure, the most dramatic change is that the lure spoon falls more slowly, though I believe the tube changes the lure's action as well. Secondly, the tube's skirt flares and undulates as the bait is falling. I have found that once the fish get wise to a regular jigging spoon, I can slip the tube lure over the spoon and start catching fish again. Third, and probably most important, the fish seem to hold the tube/spoon combination a bit longer than they will a regular jigging spoon, and this means more fish in the boat. Tube lures are one of the most versatile baits in your tackle box. If you're not using them — and stuffing them, on occasion — you're overlooking a wonderful lure. Good fishing!"

GRASS CARP LAKES DESIGNATED BY SIGNS

State owned lakes containing grass carp are being posted with signs prohibiting the taking of these fish. Beginning Jan. 1, 1990, it will be illegal to take grass carp from any lake owned by the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

Here is the current list of state owned lakes stocked with grass carp: Beaver Lake, Anderson County; Carpenter and New Kingfisher lakes, Daviess County; Central Kentucky Wildlife Management Area (WMA) lakes, Madison County; Corinth Lake, Grant County; Elmer Davis Lake, Owen County; Greenbo Lake, Greenup County; Marion County Lake, Marion County; Mauzy Lake, Union County; McNeely Lake, Jefferson County; Washburn Lake, Ohio County; and West Kentucky WMA lakes, McCracken County.

Grass carp are used as a management tool to reduce excess vegetation which not only contributes to unbalanced fish populations, but hinders fishing access and success.

Anyone interested in purchasing grass carp for privately owned ponds or lakes may obtain a list of certified suppliers from any fisheries district biologist or by calling the Division of Fisheries, (502) 564-3596, at the central office in Frankfort.

A pamphlet on grass carp acquisition and stocking procedures is also available from the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, Division of Public Relations, #1 Game Farm Road, Frankfort, KY 40601.

BOWHUNTER SAFETY

Falling from a deer stand is the most frequently reported hunting accident involving bowhunters in Kentucky. "If bowhunters would use a safety strap in tree stands, these self-inflicted accidents could be prevented," said Marion Mattingly, who handles statewide hunting accident statistics for the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

Last year's hunting accident report attests to the fact that falling from a tree stand is no laughing matter. One bowhunter died instantly after sustaining a broken neck. Another archer who fell from his tree stand remains paralyzed from the waist down, and in a third incident, a teenager suffered a concussion and broken arm.

Mattingly, who also heads Kentucky's hunter safety program, urges all hunters (not just bowhunters) to use some kind of safety device while in a tree stand. This simple step can prevent serious injury or even death.

A few other cardinal rules for either gun or bow hunting safety are: 1) positively identify your target, 2) know what's behind the target and 3) know where other hunters are.

NUMBER OF CERTIFIED SAFE HUNTERS INCREASES

During the last three months of 1989, an estimated 15,000 people will qualify as safe hunters in Kentucky. Since the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources began its hunter education program in 1977, more than 87,000 have received hunter safety certificate, and of that number, more than 10,000 were issued earlier this year.

The demand for hunter education has increased dramatically this year, mainly because people know hunter training will be mandatory for some in 1991. Beginning that year, anyone born after Jan. 1, 1975 will be required to take a state-approved hunter education course before purchasing a hunting license in Kentucky.

For more information on hunter education classes offered in your area, call the Division of Conservation

Education, (502) 564-4762.

DEER WHISTLES MAY BE HOAX

Whistles sold as deer warning devices on vehicles may not do the job.

According to some advertisements for these warning devices, ultrasonic sound (created from air flow generated by an equipped vehicle in motion) frightens deer away from roadways.

Two independent research teams found at least one brand of deer whistle did not emit ultrasonic sound as advertised, according to an article published in the October issue of "Deer & Deer Hunting" magazine.

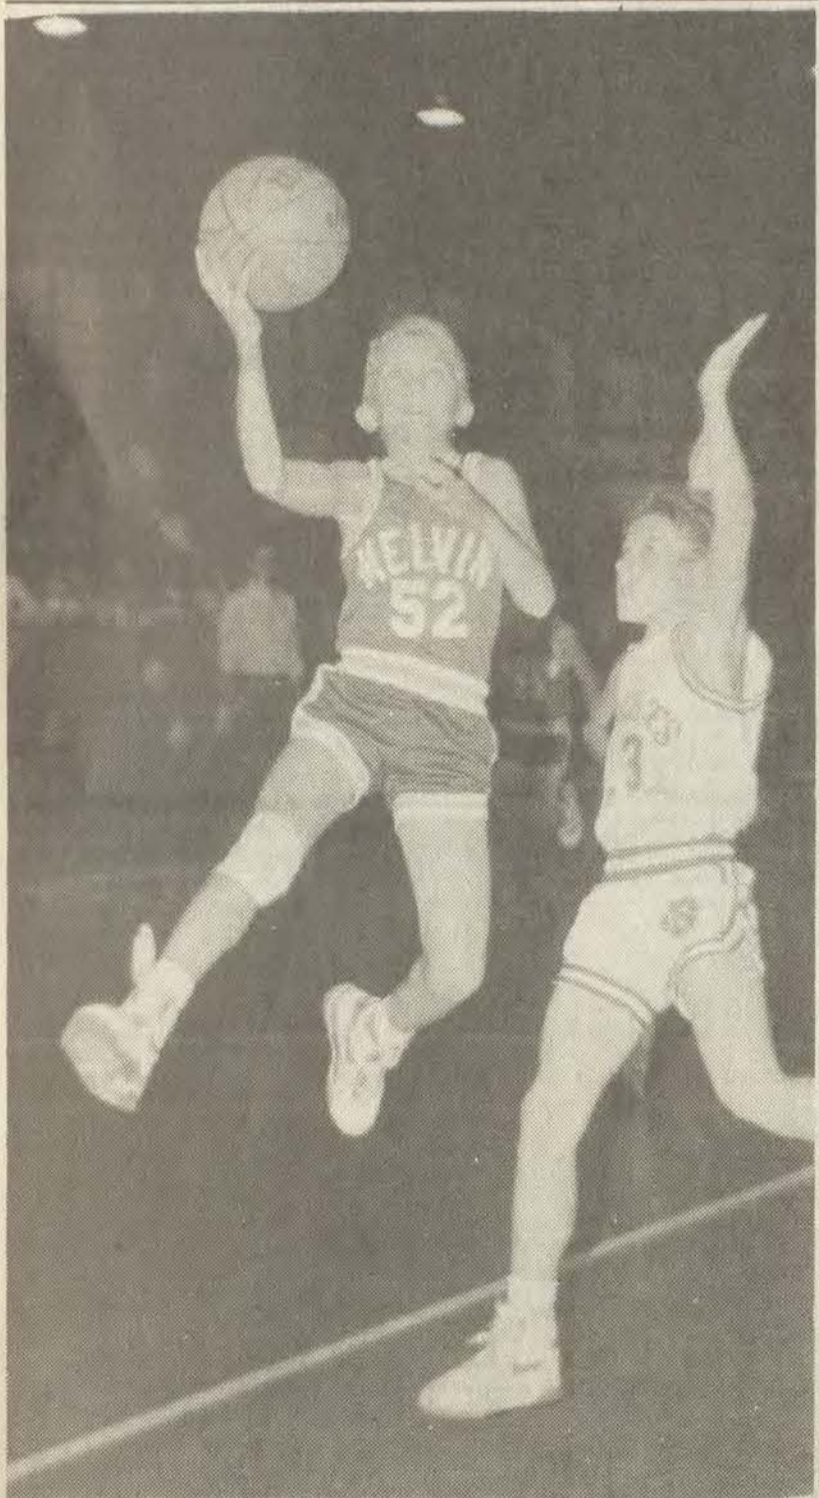

The article goes on to say little is known about the auditory limits of deer, and if deer do hear ultrasound, it is unclear how this would affect their behavior.

Caveat: Buyer beware.

Betsy Layne Beats Melvin Behind Ratcliff's 20 Points

by Ed Taylor, Sports Editor

The Lady Bobcats of Betsy Layne Elementary rode behind the 20-point performance of guard Jamie Ratcliff to a 46-10 victory over the Melvin Lady Cougars in grade school basketball Monday evening at Betsy Layne.

Both teams were cold in the opening three minutes of the game. Ratcliff broke a long dry spell with three minutes to go in the first quarter with a basket to put the Lady Bobcats up, 2-0. Kristy Osborne got loose underneath for a bucket and a 4-0 lead, and the Lady Bobcats of coach Shelia Ortega never looked back as they led at the end of the first period 8-1.

The Lady Cougars found even the free throw stripe unfriendly as they were unable to connect in the second period, hitting only two of eight free throws. The Lady Cougars' first field goal came with 30 seconds remaining in the first half on a basket by Vanessa Hall. Betsy Layne held a 20-4 lead at the half.

Misty Clark scored six points in the third period to move the Lady Bobcats out to a 26-8 lead.

A 20-2 run in the fourth put the game in the win column for the Lady Bobcats as Ratcliff scored 14 of her 20 points in the fourth period and Betsy Layne won their seventh game of the season.

College Outlook

What a season in college football! Games on tap for this weekend will be good ones. Let's have a look.

Out In The Midwest: Texas v. Houston

This should be a good one. The nation's highest-scoring college football team, the Houston Cougars, will take on the defensive-minded Texas Longhorns. It's been six years since Texas enjoyed the heady atmosphere of the top spot in the Southwest Conference.

In 1983, the then-powerful Longhorns were undefeated at 11-0 and won the league championship. This week they're meeting the high scoring Cougars in Houston. The Cougars have lost to both Texas A & M and Arkansas, but they will be primed for the Texas invasion. Last years contest was one of the Longhorns worst embarrassments, Houston mauling them 66-15.

Out West:

Southern Cal v. Arizona

A big showdown will take place Saturday in Tucson, Ariz., where the Wildcats host Southern California. Arizona started its surprising season by upending Oklahoma in mid-September, and it has continued with particularly big wins over Washington, UCLA and Washington State.

The Trojans have been methodically rolling up Pac-10 victories — the hairiest an 18-17 nipping of Washington State on the road. This game will match the high-powered Southern California offense against a stingy Arizona defense.

Out of the Northland: Michigan v. Illinois

This must be a weekend of big conference games. Illinois is at home hosting the Michigan Wolverines in the number one match up in the Big Ten. Earlier, Illinois was written by many as a contender. However, that was before the Illini upset Michigan State. Each team has been beaten once outside the conference, Illinois by Colorado and Michigan by Notre Dame.

Down South:

Kentucky v. Vanderbilt

Coach Jerry Claiborne's 5-3 Kentucky Wildcats will be needing a win here to insure them of a winning season, their first in three years. The Commodores are only 1-7 on the season, but this game is a toss up. Claiborne's 'Cats are still not aggressive as they should be on offense. The defense is there, except in the Cincinnati game when they allowed the Bearcats to control the football more in time than Kentucky. This cannot happen at Vanderbilt if win number six is to come their way.

In The East:

N. C. State v. Duke

The Atlantic Coast race is not over with yet, as the old saying goes, 'it ain't over until it's over.' Duke is very much still in the title picture. The Blue Devils entertain North Carolina State Saturday, and it may be a high scoring, hair raiser.

In The Back Yard:

Eastern Ky. v. Central Fla.

Wow! Coach Roy Kidd's Eastern Kentucky University number one unit had to bite the dust against Middle Tennessee. No one expected that there was a remote chance of this taking place — no one except Roy Kidd.

It is time for the Colonels to regroup and shake off this upset. Seven turnovers is too many for any football team to make, let alone a number one team, against the quality of a team like Middle Tennessee. A trip to Central Florida may be just what the Colonels need. But it may not be easy.

Just For Fun:

Cincinnati v. Houston

The Bengals seems not to be able to defeat anyone. With Esiason ailing, the Bengals are facing the wrong team to let get well against. But that isn't tall. Running backs James Brooks and Eric Ball were also injured in the first half. The loss was third in four starts for the Bengals, last year's defending AFC champions. Houston should take this one by a TD.

Places First In YMCA Cheerleading Competition

The Prestonsburg Elementary B-Team cheerleaders competed at the Regional YMCA Cheerleading competition held in Richmond and brought home the first place trophy. The squad, coached by Sharon Neeley and Jayne Pitts, will compete for the state title in Frankfort, Dec. 9. Any donations to help pay for the trip would be greatly appreciated, says the squad's coaches.

Basketball Practice In Full Swing

The Prestonsburg Lady Cats are in full swing as high school basketball practice has began all local schools. Be watching the Floyd County Times for our annual basketball supplement with coverage of all the teams, along with special articles of local interest.

A mixture of questions are always good to cover all areas of sports. Sports fans tells me to leave out the Olympic games questions — they are to tough. Well, maybe not for everyone. Since football season is winding down and the high school playoffs are beginning, let's ask some football questions this week. Here goes.

1. Alex Karris, the actor and sports announcer, was a former NFL All-Star. What position did Karris play?
2. Which National Football League quarterback holds the record for completing the most passes in one game?

- a) George Blanda b) Joe Namath c) Y.A. Tittle d) Bart Starr
3. Who made the longest field goal on record? What was the yardage?
4. In professional football, the clock is stopped under five conditions: if a player is injured, if the ball carrier crosses a sideline and goes out of bounds, after a team scores and after a first down. What is the fifth?
5. Which NFL quarterback gained the most yards passing in a single season?
- a) Y.A. Tittle b) Joe Namath c) Bart Starr d) Eddie Sutton
6. In football, what does the term

- offsetting penalties mean?
7. How deep is the end zone on a football field?
  - a) 5 yards b) 10 yards b) 15 yards c) 20 yards
- LAST WEEK'S ANSWERS
1. Kentucky finished first in almost all the national polls as the number one team.
  2. Center Fielder Joe DiMaggio of the New York Yankees, who glided through the outfield like a sleek sailing ship, was nicknamed "The Yankee Clipper."
  3. Defensive lineman Ed Jones was

- nicknamed "Too Tall Jones."
4. Jack Nicklaus was the leading money winner between 1964 and 1976.
  5. True. In 1904, the United States took every gold medal in the St. Louis Olympic boxing competition.
  6. Bjorn Borg defeated Connors to win the 1977 Wimbledon Men's Singles Championship.

Gayle Sayers on Sports

It's not always given the recognition it deserves, but participating in a team sport can be one of life's most valuable experiences. Whether or not a person pursues team sports beyond the high school level, the lessons learned last forever.

Anytime you play a team sport, you pick up certain values. One of the most important is team spirit. From the time I started playing sandlot football, I realized I couldn't do everything by myself. I learned that success was a team effort, not an individual's accomplishment.

Later, I had games for the University of Kansas and for the Chicago Bears where I gained close to 200 yards rushing. Believe me, I knew it was because the team was working together. I developed the attitude that I couldn't do it alone. I knew those linemen, whose names would never appear in a headline on the sports page the day after a game, were just as responsible for my success as I was. And I made sure to tell the guys who were blocking for me that I appreciated the help!

There's nothing quite like the feeling of real team spirit, and teamwork really leads to a winning spirit.

Now, as a successful businessman, the lessons I learned early in life about teamwork are invaluable. My business is doing well because of the hard work of a lot of people. If it weren't for other people doing their jobs, I wouldn't be able to have mine. We have a winning team spirit that makes us winners in business.

Of course it's not always that easy.

Not every team will be a winner. So success also can be a personal goal. One year when I was playing for the Bears, we lost everything. But on a team with a 1-13 record, I tried to make myself feel like a winner by setting personal goals. I tried hard to win the rushing title, the kick-return title and the punt-return title. In a poor team situation, I made myself into a winner, and we were just a little bit better because of it.

I believe if all players on losing teams had a similar attitude, they might not find themselves hacking away with a losing team anymore. A winning spirit can be infectious.

In this day and age, that spirit goes a long way off of the ball field, too.

You see the importance of learning that kind of winning spirit in people trying to make better lives for themselves. I especially admire that spirit in kids who are working hard to get ahead in their studies in schools where everyone else has decided that it isn't worth their effort.

Participating in team sports is one of the best places to learn that spirit. And it's a good feeling to be a winner — especially in life.

Outdoors: Just Right For Deer

by Aaron Pass

If any one subject has been beaten into the ground in countless hot stove conversations and innumerable magazine articles, it is the "perfect" deer rifle. Nevertheless, it always draws hunters' attention. This is because there are many excellent deer cartridge/rifle combinations available, and almost everyone has their own opinion of perfect.

However, there are some parameters, the most important of which is adequate power to cleanly and humanely harvest deer. This "killing power" argument also can go on endlessly. Deer vary greatly in body size — and the hunting conditions and the ranges at which deer are shot vary as well.

In truth, the perfect deer rifle is the one that works for you in your hunting situation. Assuming adequate power, what is perfect for one may be a dud for another.

Of A Day Of A Coal Miner

A coal miner's work is never done
It's money, money, by the ton.
High walls, low walls, scoops and such
All outside for a repairman's touch.
Everything's torn up machines and all
About that time the boss will call.
I guess it's a day, so we'll all go home.
We'll leave a note for the man on the phone.
Since all them guys think their shift.
We'll leave a note for the second shift.
So the boss won't think that we've told a lie.
It's home James, John and Sam
We'll all ride home in our little Dodge Ram.
We'll cash our checks at the local banks,
And raise our eyes and give some thanks,
That all of us are still alive
Except for the scoop that was left inside.
— Jackie Hall,
Holtzshel

Without

Without a heart,
I couldn't love,
Without a tear,
I couldn't cry,
Without a dream,
I couldn't hope,
Without a life,
I couldn't die.
— Mary Sue Meadows,
Prestonsburg High School

Web of Love

Although it has not been long since
we have been apart,
Already you are spinning your web
to catch another heart.
Why must you be so cold, to spin
your web in front of me?
Are you just too blind that you just don't see?
Like another victim I fell to
your prey,
Unable to undo the hold you had woven
I was there to stay.
Caught up in your world of lies.
I didn't suspect any sudden good-byes.
I'll admit I fell into a trap
instead of into love.
Now I watch you
from far up above.
— Debbie Page,
McDonnell

When I Was A Child

When I was a child
I studied by a coal oil lamp
In a cold, cold room often damp,
I lived in a two room house,
With holes in the floor.
The wind came through
A crack in the door.

I slept on a feather bed
My Grandmother made,
And dreamed of a better life
For me someday.
Never enough money,
Food just enough to get by.
When I think back on those days,
I was happy to have them by my side.

My clothes had patches, shoes one pair a year.
In the summer we ate food raised on the farm.
In the winter canned goods from the cellar, beans and corn.
Poor, as poor but proud as could be,
Trapped in a small world,
But somehow free.

For when I was a little boy,
I dreamed that one day a Writer I would be.
For only this would set me free.
— Ralph Hall,
Hi Hat

Black Widow

It is over.
Dance in the moonlight,
Be happy.
Paint pictures on tombstones.
Laugh it up.
Dress for success.
Feed as if you are cannibalistic.
Someone else is dying. Go help him.
Wear Tammy's eyelashes,
Watch a lie in real life.
Pretend ignorance.
You are not strong.
That's what you day.

Anyway,
I know
I saw you in the moonlight.
I heard the jeers.
I saw you pierce the side of Jesus.
Betraying Him.

Again,
Betraying God's own.
In His name.
I pray for you all
to avoid God's wrath.
BUt it will come.
Just as the rain will
And the moonlight.
God sees . . .
He knows . . .
The laughter is empty and hollow.
It doesn't ring true.

Sorry.
He knows you aren't.
Truth will prevail.
Someday — at some point.
Is your life so rotten
That you must feed on others?
So you can laugh?
So you can cheat?
So you can lie?
Plead ignorance.
You always have.
God knows . . .
I know . . .

We know . . .
I cannot point a finger.
For I myself have sinned.
But I do not take life,
I try to give it.
God alone will judge.
I just pray I never see
the back of his hand.

Burning . . .
Till it's all ashes
And all that is left . . .
Is hiding under tables
While Tammy's eyelashes blink.
Take what belongs to others.
Throw away the junk.
And have fun with the rest.
Starve the living.
Feed them dope.
And pretend . . .
Innocence.
It can be done.
It has been done.
It will done.
On earth as it is in heaven?
— Sandy Brookover
Prestonsburg

She Was Young And Beautiful

She was young and beautiful
But that wasn't to last
She went to the lake with
A friend and that was the end.

The dark blue water took
From shore that wonderful
Smiling young girl

She's in heaven now
Waiting for those she loved.
So God bless that wonderful
Smiling, young girl.
She's missed by all
Who loved her.

— Thelma Hall,
Pocatello, Idaho

The Big Man

I once knew a man rather large in size.
He was mean to look at with dark brown eyes.
He had a tenderness he kept in disguise.
Oh! He'd been through things,
We have all been through honky-tonks, bars, and wild women, too.
He often thought his life was going great,
Until he wrecked his car into another tail gate.

The wreck had torn his leg into a shred.
I guess he sometimes wished he was dead.
You would think this would put a damper
On the big man's life,
Lying in a hospital bed with little strife.
The big man's family, who loved him so dear,
Seemed to him so far away,
But their prayers kept them near.

Hopeless, restless, near the verge of death,
The big man had but one chance,
He hadn't seen yet.
While back at the church,
A request for prayer was made,
For the big man lying
There in despair.

But little did he know
That later that day,
The preacher would call on the phone,
With news on the way.
He never thought this would be
His happiest day.

He answered the phone with doom on his mind,
Not expecting a call at this time.
The preacher said, "Big man let me tell you a thing.
God loves you, so I gave you a ring."
This simple call gave the big man courage
He had not had for a while,
A touch from God
That made him so glad.

Well, since that time,
The big man has become a preacher,
With a whole lot to say,
But still a big man, with a rough outside.
The big man — my Uncle Glenn.

Recommendations For Improving Local School Districts Submitted

Schools in Floyd County may benefit from State Auditor Bob Babbage's recommendations for changes in school management procedures.

"Areschools wasting money willfully? No," Babbage said.

"Can schools set stronger standards and control money better? Definitely," he added.

Babbage made his suggestions in a report requested by the Legislative Research Commission which was presented Nov. 1.

Babbage said his recommendations were positive and could be used by any school district in Kentucky.

"We have identified ways to improve accountability and management practices in school districts," Babbage said.

He noted in his report that local school administrators "are doing a commendable job of managing their operations considering the limited resources available to them." The report states that no cases of intentional waste or mismanagement were found in the districts reviewed during the study.

Babbage suggested that small school districts may save money by contracting with larger districts for some of their administrative costs like accounting, purchasing, cash management and data processing.

"By contracting for services, local school boards would continue to maintain direct control over their own business," Babbage explained.

The report also suggests that the local school districts be able to assign the duties of the director of pupil personnel. Those duties are now mandated by law.

Kentucky spends $10 million annually for salaries for pupil personnel services, Babbage explained. Those funds might be better used if their management and the duties of these positions were defined at the local level, he explained.

Purchasing and the authorization of purchases should be done by different people, Babbage recommends. Allowing the same person to perform both functions is "like having the fox guard the hen house," he noted.

The auditor recommends that school districts place all possible funds into interest-earning accounts.

Planning is another important recommendation contained in the report, Babbage noted. School districts should develop and follow plans for maintenance of facilities, equipment and vehicles. He also suggested plans and criteria for other areas, including custodial staffing.

In the area of tax collection practices which comprise the second part of Babbage's report to the legislature, he suggests that the collection of real estate taxes would increase if they were collected by the state's Revenue Cabinet after the Sheriff's tax settlements were approved.

Babbage also contends that the collection of delinquent real estate taxes would be quicker if the current three-year redemption period was changed to one year.

The auditor also cites that real property revaluations should be improved and conducted annually at fair cash value as is required by both existing law and the state Constitution.

Babbage added that not all assignments given local officials can be fully carried out with the limited resources they have.

His report contains 26 recommendations in school management procedures and 10 recommendations in the section which deals with tax collection practices of local officials.

Babbage was requested to make the study following Franklin Circuit Judge Ray Corns' decision that Kentucky school finance was discriminatory and unconstitutional.

Students Set Up Fund To Assist Each Other

Students at The David School are adding another dimension to their education this year. They are offering financial help for special projects through a fund established from sales of last year's student publication, Yesterday's Memories.

Students who wrote and published the magazine set up the fund to give financial aid to classes that work on projects that are not in the regular curriculum. Grant proposals are written by the applicant classes and reviewed by the students on the grant fund's Approval Board, according to publication advisor Cathy Hanon.

This fall eighth graders have been awarded money from the fund for dissection materials in science class, and seniors have received money to purchase supplies needed to design a community ball field.

Funding Field Work

The eighth grade science class at The David School recently got a boost in the form of a grant from upperclassmates who are members of the publication staff, represented here by senior Kevin Nelson (right). At the check presentation were, from left, Kathy Smith, Glenda Holbrook, junior James Hall, Shane Hicks, Joey Ousley, senior David Hamilton and junior Susan Robinson.

WHS Biology Class Continuing Projects

During Greg Stumbo's recent visit to Wheelwright High School, he showed considerable interest in the advanced biology class.

In the class are juniors and seniors who are trying to create an environment for representatives of various phyla of the animal kingdom.

These juniors and seniors presently have 10 phyla that are in progress. The plant kingdom is well represented also, with 12 different species.

The class has sole responsibility for the feeding, care and growth of the newborn (eight to date), and the budgeting of funds so that all projects can be realized. Students are also responsible for the care and feeding on weekends.

Plans for the future include a tank for invertebrates, a working solar mobile, the making of cheese and numerous other projects. At the same time all this is taking place, extensive study on comparative anatomy and taxonomy will be included.

Rep. Stumbo seemed very impressed with the class and the individual work of the students.

4-H AREA TEEN COUNCIL HOLDS FIRST MEETING OF SCHOOL YEAR

The 4-H Area Teen Council is an activity for high school students in this area of the state, known as Northeast-South, including Floyd, Johnson, Pike, Martin and Magoffin counties. Floyd County played host to the first area council meeting on Sunday, Oct. 29.

The setting was the Prestonsburg Holiday Inn and the Prestonsburg Rotary Club's safe Halloween program.

Floyd County's representatives were Brian Boyd of Betsy Layne High School; Chantel Reed, April Reed and Jennifer Reed of Allen Central High School; and Nora Stephens of McDowell.

There were 35 members present, along with Glenda Penex and Novella Froman, 4-H agents from Johnson and Pike counties.

Officers elected for the school year area-wide are Andrea Alley of Pike County, president; Marcella Trimble of Johnson County, vice president; Chrystal Phillips of Pike County, secretary; Tara Murray of Johnson County, treasurer; and Rebecca Lyon of Magoffin County, reporter. After their meeting and refreshments, most of the group proceeded to assist in the safe Halloween program as guides and safety personnel at stairwells and other possible points of congestion, according to Willard Knipp, county Cooperative Extension Agent for 4-H. Some of the group helped count the number of people participating.

After the program, the group went to a local restaurant and ate pizza.

Boyd and Chantel Reed were appointed to the activities committee for the year. The group expressed thanks to Carla Robinson Bolton who served as liaison between the Rotary Club and 4-H Council.

The council also thanked Arby Bush and the staff at the Holiday Inn, and those at Pizza Hut.

Self Employed? Ability To Afford Mortgage May Not Be Enough To Qualify

"[The] assumption that anyone who can afford a mortgage will get one is perhaps the one misunderstanding that leads to more wasted time and money than any other circumstance involving residential mortgages," states Carmine Lunetta, whose article, "Be Safe, Not Sorry, with Self-Employed Prospects," recently appeared in Real Estate Today, the official publication of the National Association of Realtors.

Before beginning to look at properties, the homebuyer and the real estate agent should meet to discuss the facts about self-employment and mortgages. "The prospects may think they can afford the loan, but particular and definite qualifying rules may sometimes lead to an entirely different conclusion," the author states.

Lunetta, a former mortgage loan officer, is a salesperson with Schlott, realtors in Morristown, N.J.

"First," Lunetta advises sales agents, "you must determine which prospects are self-employed according to the rules of mortgage underwriting." This entails more than simply asking. "Most likely, they have no idea how the mortgage industry determines that, so their responses may not be correct," says Lunetta.

Determining whether prospects receive a W-2 or a 1099 form for income tax purposes is generally a good test. "In almost all cases, those who receive a W-2 are employees, and those who receive a 1099 are self-employed," the author states.

This test, however, is not always conclusive, as in the case of individuals who receive a salary as employees of a small corporation and also own a certain percentage of that corporation's outstanding stock. Such ownership will cause mortgage underwriters to classify them as self-employed.

Mortgage underwriters have special rules for self-employed individuals applying for a loan. "Generally, for their self-employed income to be considered as qualifying income for mortgage underwriting purposes, self-employed prospects must have been self-employed in the same line of business for at least 24 months preceding the mortgage application," says Lunetta.

"In addition," she continues, "most lenders want to determine not only that the prospects' income is sufficient to repay the mortgage loan but also that the business is a sufficiently viable entity and can reasonably be expected to continue to support the prospects' future obligations."

It is also important to know that not all income currently being earned by self-employed people can be used in a mortgage qualification calculation. The income of self-employed prospects is not what they're earning at the time of the application or even what they earned in the previous year. "Rather, it's the monthly average of the amount earned for the 24 months immediately preceding the application," states Lunetta.

Similarly, in a situation involving ownership of a percentage of stock in a small corporation, retained earnings of the corporation that have not yet been distributed to the shareholders cannot be included in the qualifying income of the shareholder.

Finally, the qualifying income is not the total income that's actually earned. Business expenses claimed on federal income tax returns must first be deducted. "Generally, subject to certain "add-backs," the amount at the bottom of Schedule C on the 1040 form will be used as the self-employed income," according to the author. Add-backs are items that are deducted as expenses on Schedule C but that may be added back to obtain the real net for mortgage qualifying purposes.

"This is the area in which the greatest problems involving the mortgage qualification of self-employed prospects arise," concludes Lunetta. "That's because it's apparently an American tradition to place very possible personal and quasi-personal expense within the category of legitimate business expenses."

Books And Things

A Variety Of Books Available On Appalachia & Kentucky

By Trisha A. Morris, PCC Librarian
The Prestonsburg Community College Library has always tried to collect the best books concerning Kentucky and region of Appalachia. The following is a sampling of some of these titles.

Apples On The Flood. By Rodger Cunningham. Cunningham's work is a sociocultural analysis of Appalachian culture as hereditary and regional rather than racial. He analyzes the Celtic and Scotch-Irish origin of the people and examines the cultural stereotypes which have been applied to them. He points out that following the Civil War, both the North and the South viewed the mountaineer as a version of the other one, with disastrous effects upon the Appalachian.

In the minds and press of the dominant American culture, the Appalachians replaced the American Indians as "Children of Nature," called "Mountain People" and "Barbarians." Appalachians were perceived as violent and falsely stereotyped as Anglo-Saxon and Elizabethan with colorful "folk culture."

With a bibliography and index for serious research, Apples on the Flood is destined to become an Appalachian classic.

Kentucky Courthouses, by William Scott and John Carpenter. With over 300 photographs of current and historic county courthouses and accompanying text by a leading architectural historian, the book provides historical perspective and today's actuality of the "temples of justice" in every county of the state.

The Kentucky courthouse has traditionally been the focal point of each county. The symbol of the community, the courthouse is designed to reflect an image of security, prosperity and stability. As a result, the courthouse is usually the best or one of the best buildings in the county.

This book tells about all five of the Floyd County courthouse buildings. The first log structure was destroyed in April 1808 before it was completed. Two more followed in 1809 and 1921. The fourth Floyd County courthouse was the first to be located at the present site but was demolished in 1963 to make room for the present structure, which was completed in 1964. The book contains pictures of the fourth and present building.

Intended to provide information regarding the architecture, style, date of construction and names of architects and builders for every courthouse that has been built in Kentucky, the book is a mammoth example of research and an important tool for historians.

A Compendium of Kentucky Humor, by Jon Ed McConnell. A lively book of jokes and amusing anecdotes from a famous humorist. The jokes are on many subjects grouped by category so the reader can pick and choose stories on such subjects as fishing, horses, wives, dogs, religion or drunks. Accumulated over 50 years from the author's speeches and private joke file, McConnell graciously gives readers permission to use any entry they might find useful.

Good for two or three hearty laughs per page, the book is fun to dip into when a good laugh would lighten the day.

Sense Of Place In Appalachia, edited by S. Mont Whitson. This is a collection of papers presented at a symposium held at Morehead State University in 1987. "Belonging to a place is multidimensional," says the editor, and hence the presenters whose papers appear here come from a variety of fields — history, literature, religion, art, music, sociology, psychology, geography and communications.

The authors include such familiar figures in Appalachian writing as Ron Eller, Jim Wayne Miller, Loyal Jones, John Stephenson and Thomas D. Clark. Overall, they address themselves to the tension between a sense of place on the one hand, and, on the other, the modernization and pluralization of the world.

These writers do not commit themselves to any sense of nostalgia. They don't all agree on the revered and symbolic "sense of place" that outsiders and writers have tagged as a tract of Appalachians. It is an interesting and provocative book.

Encyclopedia of Southern Culture, edited by Ann Abadie and Mary Hart. The American South is a geographical entity, as a historical fact, a place in the imagination, and the homeland of an array of Americans who consider themselves southerners. The region is often shrouded in romance and myth, but its realities are as intriguing, and as intricate, as its legends. This 10-year project, involving more than 800 scholars and writers, offers an extraordinary portrait of one of the nation's richest cultural landscapes. In telling its stories, the book ranges from grand historical themes to the whimsical, and from the arts and high culture to folk and popular ways of living.

The Encyclopedia's definition of the south is a cultural one; the south is found wherever southern culture is found. Although the focus is on the 11 states of the former Confederacy, the volume also includes southern outposts in mid western and middle-Atlantic border states, the southern pockets of Chicago, Detroit and Bakersfield and a special section on Appalachia.

An oversized volume, not designed for bedtime reading, it will be invaluable for picking at for bits and pieces of information.

Art And Medicine:

A Creative Combination For McDowell Artist

by Frank Clark,
Staff Writer

According to Lola Mosley, it all started with an old milk churn.

"My husband found this old churn and we thought it'd look nice in the kitchen, so we whitewashed it, and I painted some mushrooms on it. It turned out so well, I decided to try some other painting."

Mosley, 42, a lifetime resident of Minnie and a registered practical nurse for the past 25 years, took up the artist's palette only four years ago. It was her first experiment in the world of art.

"My father was a miner and my mother was a nurse's aide," said Mosley. "They never did any painting. I was the same. Except in high school, where I did a little drawing for science class, I never took any art classes or anything like that."

Sitting in the library of McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital, where 11 pieces of her artwork are displayed, Mosley quietly explained her artistic beginnings.

"I watched a T.V. program by an artist named Bill Alexander, and he explained how to use the 'wet on wet' technique for painting with oils. I bought paint and canvases, and just got right into it."

Mosley, who graduated from

— Lola Mosley

McDowell High School, and attended Mayo State Vocational School before beginning her career in nursing, found painting to be an enjoyable and relaxing hobby.

"I really liked to see these pictures come out of the canvas, from nothing. I guess I wanted to do something that no one else was doing. I'd look for photos in books and magazines that I thought were interesting, and I'd try painting it. Soon, people started coming to me to paint their old family house or barn and things like that."

Many of Mosley's works focus on older buildings, set in sweeping scenery of mountains, ocean shores or open fields. The play of colors brightens the rooms where they're hung. Early works also captured animals on canvas, such as cats and wild raccoons, subjects close to Mosley's heart.

An agreement between Mosley and the McDowell Hospital developed, and some of Mosley's paintings were placed in public areas and private rooms, displayed with the pride of a community from which has sprung a talented artist.

"We were very happy to have local art that's so good here on display in the hospital," said Judy Hall, assistant administrator for the hospital. "It's not often that you can get original artwork to display. We show it to visitors who come to us and I know it inspires pride here at the hospital. We really appreciate it."

Hospital workers and visitors are not the only ones who enjoy the work. For patients, who spend many hours a day confined to their rooms by illness or injury, the paintings can provide an uplifting focus of color.

"I've spent a lot of time looking at that picture over the last four days," said Brookie Mullins, 61, of Galveston, referring to a colorful still life of a thistle plant hanging on her hospital wall. "This room would be pretty empty without it. My daughter wanted to know who did it, because she liked it so much. I'm glad it's here."

To Mosley, this appreciation and the satisfaction of creating something beautiful from nothing are the best rewards for her work.

"I don't make big money from these paintings, but I don't mind. I may get $40 a picture, and that's fine. I think the reward is a personal one."

In August, disaster struck the Mosley home, where Lola, her husband Ballard, and three children lived. A fire burned their house in Minnie, destroying most of Mosley's paintings and her work studio.

"All we could do was stand and watch it burn. I cried for about a week, and then I realized I'd just have to start over. There wasn't anything else to do."

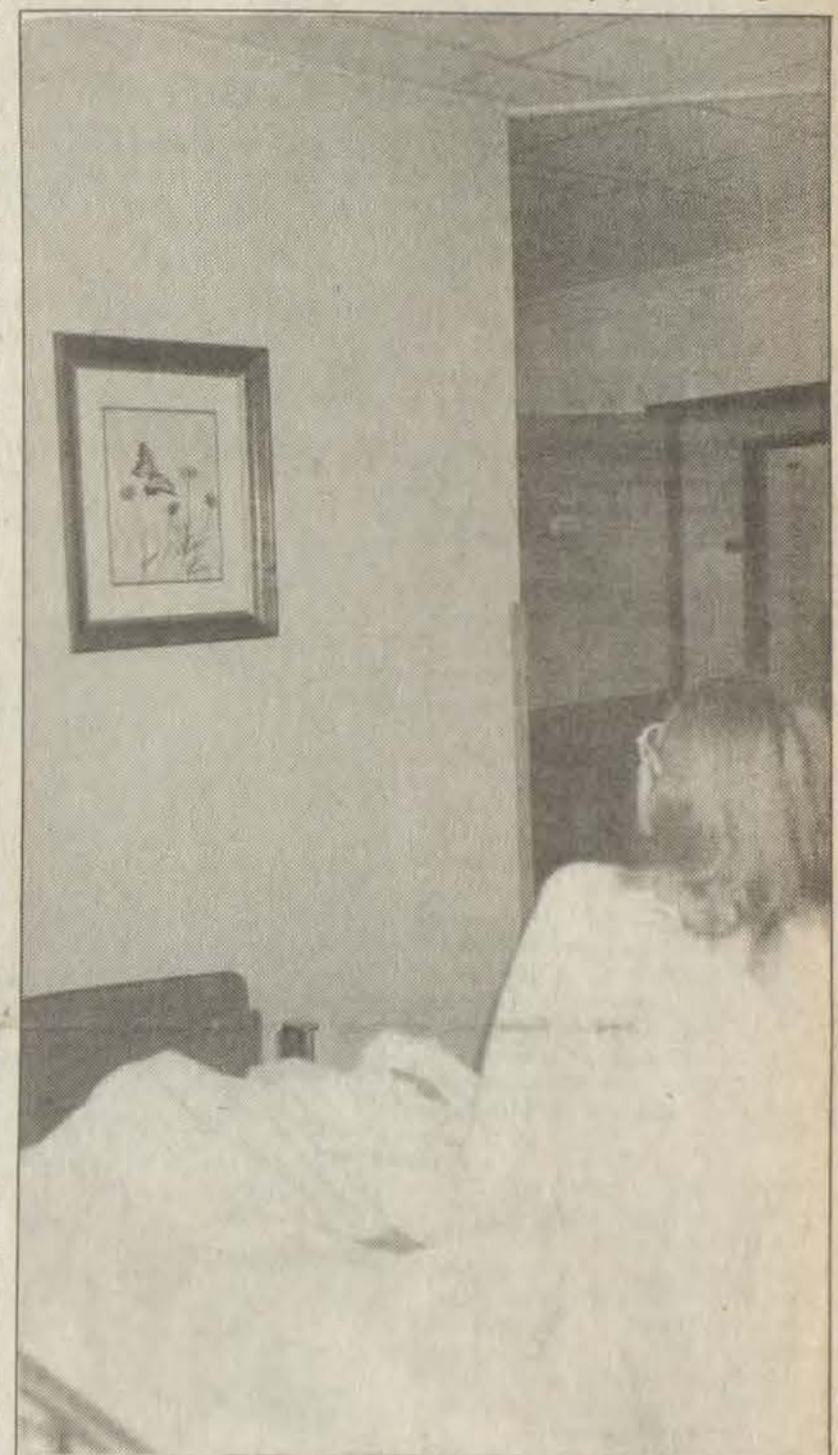

Since the fire, Mosley has started working more with woodburning and charcoal drawing. She hopes to learn more about creating portraits, relying on Prestonsburg artist Russell May for occasional advice. For the future, she sees plenty of activity.

"I made a list of things I wanted to do before I died. One was to write a book (The Lonely Sidewalk, new York: Vantage Press). Another was to be an artist. I hope to be working on these kinds of projects for a long time."

An Artist and Her Work

Lola Mosley examines one of the many paintings she has completed in the course of her four years of painting, and one of nine canvases hanging in McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital. Many of her ideas are drawn from photographs taken by herself or from magazines, which she organizes in a collage, and then uses as a painting model.

A Welcome Sight

Brookie Mullins of Galveston, a patient at the hospital, admires one of Lola Mosley's paintings which brighten her room. Several other oil paintings can be found in patient's rooms on the second floor of the medical facility, adding a touch of life and home for inpatients.

Holidays mean many things to many people: religious celebration, a family homecoming, a chance to "catch up" with loved ones, an annual expression of thanks for the past year's blessings, even a special football game. But Thanksgiving means one thing to everyone: as Herbert Hoover might have said, "a turkey on every table."

For the past nine years, the Butterball Turkey Talk-Line has helped hundreds of thousands of cooks bring a picture-perfect roasted turkey to the holiday table.

The Butterball Turkey Talk-Line is a toll-free hotline available to callers nationwide who have questions about cooking their holiday turkeys. Forty-four specially-trained home economics and nutritionists are available with answers to any and all turkey preparation questions, from how much to buy to what to do with leftovers. A collectors cookbook, new each year, is available free for the asking to all callers.

Talk-Line Dates and Hours: Now through Nov. 22, Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.; the weekend prior to Thanksgiving, Nov. 18-19, 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 23, 6 a.m. to 6 p.m.; and Nov. 24 - Dec. 22, Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. The number to call is 1-800-323-4848.

Featured in County Kettle this week one preferred method of open pan roasting for turkeys, and some other not-so-traditional recipes for traditional Thanksgiving side dishes.

OPEN PAN ROASTING:

— Thaw turkey in refrigerator or cold water. When ready to cook, remove wrapper.

— Remove neck from body cavity and giblets from neck cavity; refrigerate. Rinse turkey and drain well.

— Stuff neck and body cavities lightly, if desired. Turn wings back to hold neck skin in place. If untucked, return legs to tucked position. No trussing is necessary.

— Place turkey, breast side up, on flat rack in open pan, about 2 inches deep.

— Insert meat thermometer deep into thickest part of thigh next to body, not touching bone.

— Brush skin with oil to prevent skin from drying. Further basting is unnecessary.

— Roast at 325 degrees. When skin is golden brown, shield breast loosely with lightweight foil to prevent over-browning.

— Check for doneness. Internal 185 degrees; center of stuffing, 160 to 165 degrees. Thigh and drumstick meat should feel soft. When thigh is thigh temperature should be 180 to 190 degrees, juices should be clear, not pink. Let turkey stand 15 to 20 minutes for easier carving.

BULGUR STUFFING

Bulgur stuffing can also be prepared ahead and reheated in a lightly greased baking dish at 350 degrees for about 10 to 15 minutes.

This recipe with yields eight servings (1/2 cup each). Each serving will contain 2 grams of fat and 120 calo-

P'BURG WOMAN'S CLUB EXECUTIVE BOARD, MEMBERSHIP MEET

The executive board of the G.F.W.C./K.F.W.C. Prestonsburg Woman's Club met Thursday evening, Nov. 2, at 7 o'clock, at the Arts and Crafts House at Archer Park, with Phyllis Herrick, president, presiding. Others attending were: Orella McGuire, Lee Boswell, Elizabeth Ramey, Lida Howard, Dorothy Harris and Docia Woods.

Since these board members will serve as hostesses for the club's annual Christmas party, much of their time was spent making plans for this event.

The president discussed with these members the possibility of holding open house at club house during the time that Archer Park will be decorated for the Christmas season.

The regular meeting of the club followed, at 7:30 p.m., with the president in charge. She welcomed those in attendance, and led in the salute to the American flag.

The devotions were given by Fannie Runnels, who chose as her topic, "Semper Fidelis" (meaning Always Faithful). She read one poem, recited another from memory, and led the group in prayer.

Nan Arnett, program chairman, presented State Rep. Gregory Stumbo, who gave an update on recent legislative actions.

Stumbo, who serves on a number of educational committees, discussed the recent Supreme Court decision regarding equal education for all children.

He advocated the use of computers in classrooms.

Along with his discussion of road bond issues, he also discussed the matter of the safety (or lack of safety) of the bridge that leads from Prestonsburg to West Prestonsburg, and prophesied that this bridge may soon fall.

Following a question-and-answer period, Nan Arnett, on behalf of the club, presented the speaker with a gift.

During the business meeting, the minutes were read by Lida Howard, the treasurer's report was given by Dorothy Harris, and the corresponding secretary, Elizabeth Ramey read a letter from Lorene Salyer, governor of the 7th District, thanking the president and others of the club for hosting the 7th District Fall Conference at May Lodge on Oct. 17.

The president expressed her gratefulness to members of the local club who participated in this event, in these capacities: Boots Adams, co-chairman; Linda McGuire, hospitality; Orella McGuire, Turp Combs, Nan Arnett, and Elizabeth Ramey, registration; Roberta Sloan, page; Dorothy Harris, reservations; Kathy Lowe, entertainment; Lucille Nunnery, rebate help; Judy Kittle and Lois George, exhibits; Turp Combs, Ditty Tackett, and Lucille Nunnery, door prizes; Garnett Fairchild, and Eileen Burchett, favors and decorations; and she expressed her thanks to Elizabeth Frazier and members of her P.H.S. Honor Choir, for the beautiful music furnished, and to the May Lodge of the hospitality shown.

It was decided that open house at the Arts and Crafts House would be held sometime during the Christmas season; the date to be announced.

Reports on various phases of club work were given by Orella McGuire, Linda McGuire, Lee Boswell, Eileen Burchett, Mable Brown, Judy Kittle and Dorothy Harris.

The hostesses for Thursday's meeting were Mable Brown, Eileen Burchett, Lisa Parlier, Jane Wallace, Edie Greer and Ethel Burke.

Pumpkin cake and coffee were served from a table covered with a white imported linen cloth, centered with a bowl of mixed fall flowers, to Rep. Greg Stumbo, members of the executive board, and other club members, including Nan Arnett, Myrtle Allen, Judy Kittle, Dorothy Osborne, Beverly Hackworth, Wonnell Godsey, Alice Harris, Fannie Runnels, Maman Leslie, Roberta Sloan, Burieta Gearhart, Dorothy Stover, Sarah Goble, Sue Martin, Ruby Lamping, and Earlene Daniels.

The next meeting will be the Christmas party, at the home of Lucille Nunnery, on Thursday evening, Dec. 7, at 7:30. The devotional leader will be Alice Harris; the program leader will be Kathy Lowe, and the program will be furnished by Elizabeth Frazier, and members of the Prestonsburg Honor Choir.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a formal white satin gown designed with a

DISCUSSING DIETARY HISTORY

Patients with cardiovascular diseases are often treated with anticoagulants if they run a high risk for clot formation. These drugs work by compromising blood platelets' ability to stick together to form a clot. As effective as anticoagulants may be, however, there are certain foods that can alter their action. For instance, the omega-3 fatty acids found in deep-water fish can compound anticoagulant effectiveness. If there is too much fish in the diet of a patient taking anticoagulants, he may tend to bleed too easily. On the other hand, eating too many foods rich in vitamin K may neutralize an anticoagulant's effect. Eating large amounts of broccoli, for instance, may undue the drug's anti-clotting properties. Obviously, those patients taking anticoagulants should discuss their dietary habits (as well as other medications) with their physicians.

COOLEY APOTHECARY carries what you would expect to find in a well-inventoried drug store, including a full line of prescription products. We are very proud to be able to provide families in this area with all their pharmaceutical needs. Our records are fully maintained so that they can be readily available to both you and your physician. You'll find us located at #2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106 and open Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-3. MasterCard and Visa honored plus we welcome all third party payments.

HINT: A recent study of elderly patients taking more than two prescribed drugs showed 66 percent faced possible adverse drug/nutrient interactions.

COMMENTS:

In addition to the above statement, in a letter February 3, 1989 to the officer in question. Commissioner Don R. McCormick, stated:

You had not been drawn for the Two day hunt on December 3, 4, 1988. Your name had not been substituted for someone who had been drawn nor did you have a permit to hunt on the area.

The records show that the officer swore out a criminal complaint and served a citation on another man to coverup his own act of illegal killing of a deer.

This brings up the question, why has the Department of Fish and Wildlife not filed any court action against this officer?

Why Colonel Paul Oliver issued a statement stating based on the evidence of the investigation of the said officer did not violate the law. Would the Department of Fish and Wildlife be trying to sweep this situation under the rug to protect one of their own?

If the Department of Fish and Wildlife will protect a game warden when he violates the law, how can we trust them on our property?

Angie, 38. Found houseware parties the ideal excuse to mix a blender of margaritas. But in a few years, it went from women friends to lowlifes and losers hanging around her home late into the night. Sometimes, her husband had to load up the kids and go midnight bar-hopping to find her. Finally, he nailed up doors and windows to keep her out. In desperation, feeling she'd be dead within a year unless she got control of herself, Angie turned to CareUnit.

"I learned more about myself than I'd learned in a lifetime. For the first time, I feel good about myself."

Angie is now sober, and is rebuilding her relationship with her husband and two daughters.
