L-Tryptophan Users Warned To Stop Use

The Food & Drug Administration has recently alerted consumers taking L-Tryptophan to temporarily discontinue use of the product.

L-Tryptophan is an over-the-counter food supplement sold in tablet and capsule form that is used by for sleeping difficulty and premenstrual syndrome, according to Dudley Conner, manager, food branch.

According to Conner, the alert is being issued because doctors in the past few days have reported more than 30 cases nationwide of a syndrome characterized by intense Rosinophilia, a blood condition.

L-Tryptophan tablets are sold under the name L-Tryptophan and under a variety of other names, but most commonly it is a single entity drug. For more information, call Dr. Andrew Pelletier, Division of Epidemiology at (502) 564-3418.

Work Halted, Some Residents To Be Moved

by Frank Clark,
Staff Writer

Some residents of Rice Branch whose homes are located beneath a ridge where mine reclamation work is underway will have to move, according to William Mossberger of Lexington engineering company of Fuller, Mossberger, Scott, and May.

Last week Johnny and Julie Hall's trailer at Rice Branch, near Banner, was hit by a 1- to 2-ton boulder loosened by workers. All operations on the abandoned mine site of the Triple Elkhorn Coal Co. have since been suspended until the Hall's trailer and a neighboring trailer are moved out of the area. The engineering company has been conducting tests and preparing roads for full scale emergency reclamation work sponsored by the federal Office of Surface Mining (OSM), based in Pittsburgh.

When contacted Wednesday, Mossberger said no additional work would be done until trailers were moved. At that time, he said he was unsure whether houses would be moved as well.

Thursday, however, Mossberger said only two trailers would be moved to allow work to be done safely, adding, "I don't know if others will have to be moved later."

Bob Fleming, chief of abandoned mineland reclamation for the region in Pittsburgh, would not say if persons had to be removed from Rice Branch, but did note that OSM would move people if necessary.

"We will remove people, both houses and trailers, if it's required in order to accomplish the work in a safe manner. Right now, nothing has been finalized. We are considering options such as putting a bench or a temporary wall around the work site to prevent material from going down the ridge. Our office will make a final decision once we examine the situation completely."

The site under consideration has a history of slides and rock falls. Last June, a large slide occurred which destroyed the trailer of Ronnie Anderson, bringing tons of trees and mud down into the hollow. This slide prompted an investigation by local, state, and federal OSM personnel. Engineering specialists hired by OSM to conduct soil and rock studies to determine a reclamation approach for stabilizing the site were building an access road to the site when a bulldozer dislodged a boulder. It was this rock which hit the Hall's trailer and halted work on the ridge.

Gary Francis, program specialist for OSM in Prestonsburg, and the original inspector on site following the June slide, expressed concern about the current situation in Rice Branch.

"I know it's a major problem up there. There's an amazing amount of material that's unstable. There is a lot that you can't see up there that is very loose. I don't know what plan will be implemented, but they might have to remove a lot of material from on top and then stabilize what's left. Drainage will have to be put in."

Fleming, of the Pittsburgh OSM office, believes the situation is under control in Rice Branch.

"No serious damage was done in this (boulder) incident, thankfully. It's important to remember that our purpose is to improve the situation in Rice Branch. We want to protect the health and safety of the people here."

Francis noted that the stabilization process would have to occur quickly in order to prevent further slides.

"There's at least an acre or two up there that is very unstable. Why it hasn't come down already, I don't know. I can tell you it won't stay up there."

Scene Of A Past Disaster

The remains of Ronnie Anderson's trailer continue to stand in Rice Branch, following last June's mudslide which destroyed the Andersons' home. Reclamation work by the Office of Surface Mining (OSM) was halted last week when a boulder from the reclamation site struck a trailer in the hollow. Work is not scheduled to resume until the safety of Rice Branch residents can be insured, according to OSM representatives.

Floyd County Won't Get Another Circuit Court Judge

Many Floyd County attorneys say Circuit Judge Hollie Conley's caseload is too heavy and want to see a second judge's position created to handle the overload.

At least one state representative agrees with this assessment.

"Judge Conley has been, for many years, one of the hardest-worked judges, from the standpoint of caseload," says State Rep. Greg Stumbo. "Some cases in Floyd County have been assigned to other judges because of his excessive caseload."

Julie Paxton, president of the Floyd County Bar Association and a Prestonsburg attorney, concurs.

"I think that it would be a wonderful thing. Judge Conley's caseload is certainly such that it warrants having another judge here. At this time, some cases are being distributed to other judges," said Paxton. "This makes it difficult for attorneys practicing here. You may have a case in Floyd County, but have to go to Johnson County for motions."

Paxton added that because of the number of cases filed in Floyd County Circuit Court, a speedy trial date is difficult to get.

Conley now works with an assigned law clerk and domestic relations commissioner, but because of the large number of cases, it's been necessary to pass some cases to other Circuit Judges in the surrounding area.

"I don't think that dividing (the caseload) between three different judges in two different counties is the best way it could be handled," Paxton said. "It can be very inconvenient under the present system."

However, the person required to support initial efforts to create a new position, Robert Stevens, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Kentucky, doesn't believe that this option is either economically or politically feasible.

In a Nov. 6 letter to Stumbo, Stevens noted that while Conley's caseload is high (the seventh largest in the state — 1,050 per year), the caseloads of other circuit court judges in the region are equally high. Stevens also noted that the cost to the state to add another judge is approximately $125,000, which he believes would not be supportable at the present time.

One alternative, Stephens noted, would be to combine the Floyd Circuit Court with Johnson, Lawrence, and Martin counties, providing three judges for the four-county region.

"That wouldn't really change our present situation," Paxton noted.

Stephens added that because of the political manipulations required to clear such a proposal, including the elimination of one of the two current Commonwealth Attorney's positions, he didn't consider the option politically viable.

County Attorney-Elect Jim Hammond said he sees Stephens' response as ineffective.

"Justice is not being served here in Floyd County," said Hammond. "No judge could handle the number of cases which come before Judge Conley. We definitely require a second judge, not just for Circuit Court, but also for District Court, where the caseload is equally great. Right now, justice is being denied for both victims and criminals by the delays which currently exist."

Stephens said in all probability, the current arrangement — providing the Circuit Judge's Office with an assigned law clerk and domestic relations commissioner — will be continued.

Judge Conley was out of town and could not be reached for comment.

P'burg Post Office Computerizes

Buying stamps may be a new and exciting experience if you stop in at the Prestonsburg Post Office.

An Integrated Retail Terminal (IRT) will greet you there. The computerized postal servant is operated by the clerks behind the counter, who will enter all transactions, weigh letters and packages and keep track of stamps and money orders in the computerized brain of the helpful IRT.

"It acts like a cash register, a bookkeeper and keeps inventory for us also," said Robert Blake, IRT trainer for the U.S. Postal Service. "It does cash books and can consolidate all information from our clerks. It's going to be a real timesaver."

The IRT will also mean better service for the post office customer. All transaction information is displayed. It will insure that proper rates are charged for mail delivery, and it even gives change. Eventually, says Blake, the IRT will be linked with Post Office headquarters in Washington, D.C., speeding communication to our Kentucky postal outpost.

Don Osborne, postmaster for Prestonsburg, does request a favor of customers in the next few weeks.

"We got the IRT's going on Tuesday, and we're still getting to know them. We'd appreciate your patience while we continue to learn how the system works."

Architect Seeks Lower Costs For New School At Allen

by Frank Clark,
Staff Writer

After bids came in $200,000 over budget Tuesday for the new Allen Elementary School, project architect Randy Burchett began a rapid evaluation of current facility plans to determine where cuts can be made to meet budget.

About $2.25 million has been allocated by the state for the project, but when bids from contractors were opened Tuesday, it was discovered that they were roughly 10 percent over budget. Burchett was asked by the Floyd County School Board to look for ways to bring costs in line with the set state budget.

"We're going to first talk to our mechanical engineers and see if we can get costs down," said Burchett. "That might include using generic products in construction rather than more expensive products. Secondly, we're going to look at the architectural plans and see if we can make changes which will reduce costs and get us through this phase of funding. It may be necessary to cut rooms now to make budget. We can then add the rooms back into our plans during Phase Two."

The practice of cutting sections of a school from initial plans and adding the space back when more state funding is received the next fiscal year is a common one, according to Burchett.

"A Pike County school cut about 80,000 square feet off of its plan, or nearly half of the original planned floor space. They were later able to add it back on as they received more state funding in the following year."

However, Burchett questioned the level of funding allocated for the Allen school.

"It appears to me that this project received less funding than other comparable projects," said Burchett. "If we had received the same funding as the new Right Beaver Elementary School, which is going to serve about the same number of students, we'd be under construction now. I have no idea why the funding is different."

If, as Burchett hopes, he is able to bring costs down to meet budget, construction on the school could begin in the relatively near future. Bond sales, he said, would take 30 to 35 days, and construction could begin this winter, "depending on Mother Nature."

A decision on the construction bids and the present design of the new Allen school should be made sometime next week.

Boulder Weighing More Than Ton Crashes Into Rice Branch Residence

by Frank Clark,
Staff Writer

When Johnny and Julie Hall heard the crashing of trees and rumble of rock coming towards their trailer in Rice Branch at Banner, their first thought was "landslide!"

Last week, a 1- to 2-ton boulder broke loose from a bulldozer operator and careened hundreds of feet down the hillside directly at the Hall's trailer. The bulldozer operator had been contracted by the U.S. Office of Surface Mining (OSM) to construct a road on the ridge above Rice Branch, according to William Mossberger, a partner in the company performing the work. Initial work was being done to prepare the ridge for mine reclamation efforts which began following a large slide at Rice Branch in June. The work is sponsored by the regional OSM based in Pittsburgh, according to Bob Fleming, director of the Pittsburgh office.

"When I heard the noise, I ran out to see what it was and where it was coming," said Johnny Hall. "I heard trees falling close by, and I yelled at Julie to get out with the kids. Before I could get back around the trailer to get them, the thing hit us."

Julie Hall remembers most clearly the fear she felt for her children.

"We could hear the rock crashing down over the sound of the radio and T.V. My little girl told me she thought it was an earthquake. I heard him (Johnny) yell to get out and just as I reached to pick up my daughter who was playing near the kitchen, the boulder hit."

The large boulder bounced down off of the mountain and crashed into the Hall's trailer approximately six feet from the spot where the Hall's daughter was playing inside. Apparently the force of the rolling rock was broken by a large tree just up the hillside, so that when it struck the trailer, much of its force was expended. James Boyd and Ilene Bertram, neighbors of the Halls, also heard the crashing boulder. Said Bertram, "I didn't get out of my chair, I was so scared. I thought it was another slide."

The stove and refrigerator which backed the wall of the Hall's trailer where the rock struck were thrown several feet across the kitchen floor. A hole approximately two feet by one foot was punched into the trailer where the wall meets the floor.

According to the Halls, who have had several evaluators look at the damaged trailer, serious structural damage was also done to the frame, making it unsafe to move the mobile home.

The accident forced the Halls to turn off the gas line to their house and stay at a relative's home. Later, a representative of the contractors performing the work for OSM, Hugo See BOULDER, Page 2

Pike County PVA Won't Fight Allegations

PIKE COUNTY — Pike County Property Valuation Administrator Reo Johns was subject of a Lexington Herald-Leader story last Sunday in which he was alleged to have underassessed property, causing the county to lose millions of dollars in tax revenue.

In response to the story, Johns told a local reporter he was not going to fight the newspaper's charges, and that he had every intention of running his office in the interests of the people of Pike County. Johns admitted to making assessment errors, but said that every office does. He has accused the Lexington paper of retaliating for his refusal to allow its reporters to inspect what he calls the private records of the citizens of Pike County. (The Appalachian News-Express)

Man Charged With Rape Of Woman

PIKE COUNTY — A Pike County man has been arrested and charged with first-degree rape after he allegedly attacked and assaulted a woman at Huddy about 2 a.m. last Sunday. Accused in the case is Edgar Ray Varney, 35, of Huddy.

According to Deputy Sheriff Bob Chapman, the 30-year-old victim and Varney went to a nightclub in Williamson, W.Va., separately. The victim had known Varney all her life and when he asked for a ride home she agreed. When they were about 100 yards from his home, near the old Baptist church house at Huddy, Varney allegedly physically overpowered her and forced her out of the car and raped her on the church steps.

He is being held in the Pike County Jail on a $25,000 bond. (The Appalachian News-Express)

Letcher Couple Indicted For Son's Shooting

WHITESBURG — Frank and Lena Godsey of Letcher County pleaded not guilty Wednesday to the charges stemming from a shooting that left their 4-year-old son blind in one eye.

Joseph Godsey was shot once in the face and once in the back with a shotgun on Oct. 24 in the woods behind his home at Haymond, according to state police reports.

The boy's father told a neighbor that he had mistaken the child for a groundhog, said KSP detective Tim Hogg. "The first shot, it could have been an accident. The second shot, no way," Hogg said. (The Lexington Herald Leader)

Martin County's Landfill Closed

INEZ — An active strip mine doubling as a dump site for Martin county garbage has been closed.

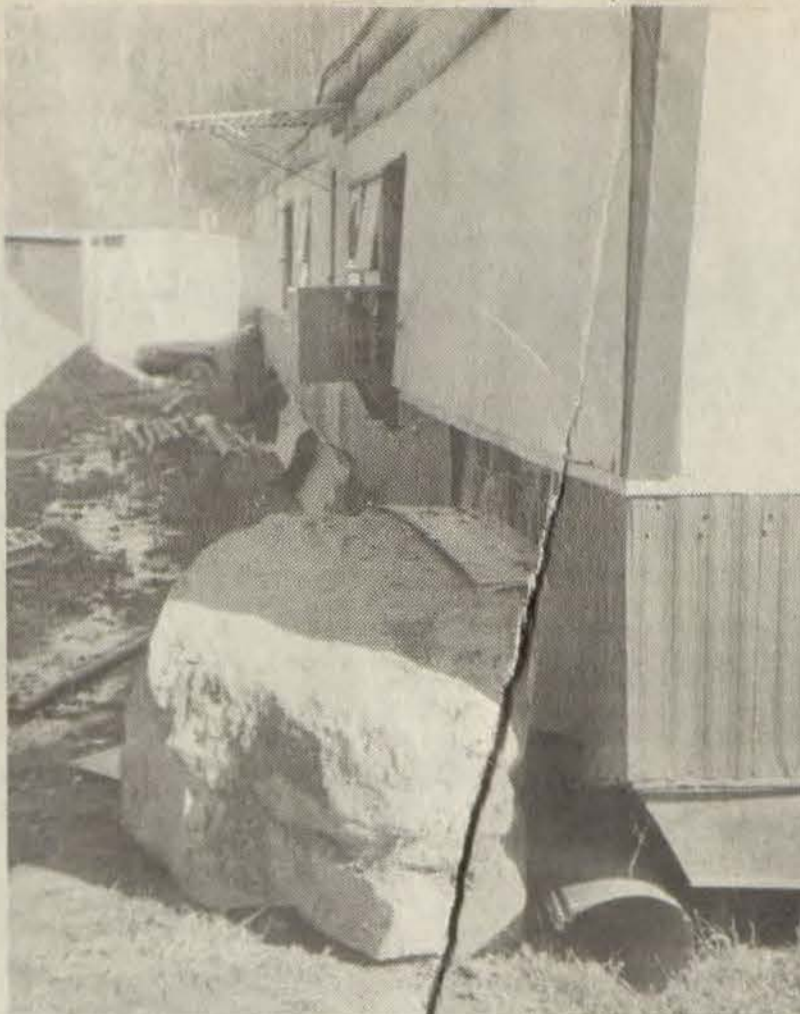

The garbage was covered with mine waste, which included rocks and waste coal from a coal-preparation plant. Martiki was cited for failing to report a refuse area, mixing mine refuse with household garbage and failure to properly compact a refuse pile.

Apparently the mixture of household garbage and mine waste could be ignited by spontaneous combustion, and the resulting fumes would pose a health hazard. Such a fire also would create cavities in the ground that would pose a danger for heavy equipment. (The Courier-Journal)

Knott County Drug Bust Nets 17

KNOTT COUNTY — Seventeen people were arrested Thursday and Friday after a year long investigation by the Kentucky State Police into trafficking of marijuana and other drugs throughout Knott County. It was the largest drug raid in the county's recent history.

KSP detective Jim Riederick of the Lexington drug unit said the undercover marijuana buys "ranged anywhere from two-ounce buys to nine-pound buys." Police also confiscated about three grams of cocaine, a small quantity of hashish and marijuana, a set of scales, cash and some unidentified pills. (The Troublesome Creek Times)

A Dangerous Surprise

This boulder struck the trailer of Johnny and Julie Hall last week, damaging the structure and forcing the Halls to move out until repairs could be completed. The boulder was dislodged by workers hired by the Office of Surface Mining, who were constructing an access road into the reclamation area above Rice Branch.

Abrassio of Fuller, Mossburger, Scott, and May, a Lexington engineering company, contacted them. According to the Halls, Abrassio wanted to settle the damages with them without involving an insurance company. Julie Hall added that a federal representative from the Office of Surface Mining in Pittsburgh visited and asked the Halls to sign a form releasing the government from responsibility for damages which would occur to the trailer if it was moved. The Halls said the OSM representative also stated that if they didn't settle on the damages, work to reclaim the former strip mine could legally continue around them. Abrassio also recommended that the trailer be moved immediately.

Evaluators brought in by the Halls to examine damages noted that the 1973 trailer frame was damaged in two or three places, making the trailer unmovable.

"Some of the people we brought in told us it might be best to just get another trailer," said Julie Hall. "We had a man come in and look at it last night (Tuesday of this week) and he told us he could fix it by cutting out a section of the frame and replacing it. I trust him to do the work right."

On Tuesday, one week after the accident, a local insurance company associated with the Lexington engineering company performing the work in Rice Branch contacted the Halls and agreed to send an evaluator to examine the damage. The Halls hope that they will be able to move back into their trailer in the near future, following a settlement.

"All we want is to get back into our home and have it safe to live in," said Julie Hall. "After everything that happened, I don't think we're asking that much."

Only 471 Of County's 1,230 Vietnam Era Vets Have Applied For Bonus

Floyd County has an estimated 759 eligible veterans who can still apply for their Vietnam Era Veterans Bonus between now and Feb. 28, 1990.

The average bonus payable on applications processed to date is $375, according to Jason M. LeMay, spokesman for the Vietnam Veterans Bonus Branch of the Division of Veterans Affairs.

"The economic impact that this bonus can have on Floyd County is amazing," said LeMay. "When you multiply ($375) by the number of eligible veterans in the county, you get $461,250. When you consider the fact that every dollar circulates an average of four times in the local economy before leaving, then the economic impact on the local economy increases to $1.8 million. This could bring quite a boost to Floyd — or, for that matter, the economy of any county."

To date, nearly 50,000 of Kentucky's veterans have applied with more than 6,000 of these applications coming from out of state.

"I don't understand the apparent lack of interest," said Bonus Branch Chief Ed Gill. "I never imagined that giving away money would be a problem."

Nearly every veteran who entered the service from Kentucky and had over 90 days active duty between Aug. 5, 1964, and May 15, 1975, is eligible, he continued. Application forms are available at every County Clerk's office in the state, as well as National Guard Armories and unemployment offices. All the veteran needs is a copy of his or her DD Form 214 and a copy of the application form.

"The form is very easy to fill out and can be completed in about 10 minutes," said Gill.

HRMC Has Cardiology Seminar For Physicians In Floyd, Region

To help familiarize family physicians in Eastern Kentucky with some of its newest technologies in the diagnosis and treatment of heart disease, Highlands Regional Medical Center sponsored a cardiology seminar on Oct. 26.

The seminar, "Indications for Cardiac Catheterization, Angioplasty and Surgery," was held at the Landmark Inn in Pikeville. Physicians and cardiologists from a 10-county area were invited, and the seminar was attended by approximately 50 physicians and other medical professionals. The host speaker was Dr. Rodney Handshoe, chief of cardiology at HRMC. The guest speaker and main presenter was Dr. David Booth, cardiologist from the University of Kentucky.

Cardiac catheterization is a procedure used in the diagnosis and treatment of heart disease, especially hardening of the arteries. Because local anesthesia and mild sedation are used for such a procedure, the patient is awake and able to help the doctor through proper breathing techniques, coughing to increase the heart rate when necessary, and indicating discomfort, according to Kathy Rubado, HRMC spokeswoman.

Arteries in the groin area or in the arm can be used as the entrance point for the catheterization tube. A local anesthetic is administered, and entry is made with a specially designed needle. The catheter is guided through the artery to the heart. Next, said Rubado, dye is injected that is visible on a TV monitor and recorded on film.

"This enables the physician to observe blood flow through the heart's arteries," explained Rubado. "Throughout the entire surgical process, EKG monitors are used as a precaution to further ensure the safety of both patient and procedure."

The process takes from one to two hours, and patients are kept overnight in the hospital for observation to make sure there are no major complications.

Since the opening of the cardiac catheterization lab at HRMC in April, 83 patients have used the services and no major complications have arisen from the procedures performed, said Rubado.

The Oct. 26 seminar was the second in an ongoing series planned by Highlands. For more information, call 1-800-533-HRMC.

And Then . . .

by Anne Chaney

In Thursday's issue of the Herald-Leader, the Lexington newspaper offered its readers an in-depth article about Floyd County children who raise funds for basic school needs while property tax receipts for the district remain woefully low.

"Floyd adults won't pay for schools, so kids raise money door-to-door," read the headline.

Well, it's true . . . quite unfortunately. And not entirely at the voters' behest. I believe Floyd Countians would support a tax increase to benefit their school district, provided they knew the money would be properly spent.

But that is not what this column is about.

I do not make a practice of publicly questioning another newspaper's decisions. They have their policies and procedures for determining treatment, as I have mine. But this time, I can't clamp down hard enough to keep from commenting.

Prestonsburg Mayor Ann Latta and her husband, Cliff, were singled out as an example of well-to-do folks whose property is assessed at less than its current market value (the assessment is $45,000). No other Floyd residents — politicians or otherwise — received this dubious honor.

And therein lies the rub.

Had the Leader used a school board member, a school official or someone more directly responsible for the problem, it would have been appropriate — even deserved. Had the Leader included other Floyd residents, it would have been a balanced story.

As it is, one family — one public official — was used to illustrate a county-wide problem. That's neither fair nor balanced. In this respect, Latta has the same power that John Q. Public has, and no more: a voice and a vote.

I spoke with one of two staff members who wrote the article, and was assured that additional information is forthcoming. That is to the newspaper's credit. It makes it slightly easier for me to remember that the overall article provided accurate, solid information, and was perhaps poorly handled in only one respect.

However, in the interest of fairness, I offer the following 1989 residential property valuations:

Ronald Hager, superintendent of schools, $76,000; Dr. James D. Adams, chairman of the school board, $70,000; board members Dr. Mary A. Hall, $70,000; Ray "Shag" Campbell, $33,000; Tommy Boyd, $25,000; James A. Duff, $20,000.

Anyone interested in others may obtain the same information from the Property Valuation Administrator's office in the courthouse.

One of the things I think I believe strongly in is luck. How else do you explain a situation where two people have equal intelligence, similar personalities, comparable shares of common sense and the same work habits but wind up so differently?

One achieves outstanding material success, the other barely gets by.

One has the good fortune to inherit a grubstake that starts him on his way; the other has a child who needs intensive health care from birth. One overhears a stock tip that results in a windfall; the other invests in a stable company that crumbles in a hostile takeover. One owns acreage up an isolated hollow that opens up with a new road; the other owns property on the old road. Luck.

Many of us have been given breaks we did nothing to deserve. Many of us have not been given breaks we did deserve. For many, what has happened has had little relationship to what we did or did not do.

Sure, I'm enough of a WASP to acknowledge that each of us is obligated to work hard, to fend for ourselves as much as we possibly can. No matter how many breaks we get, if we don't — or can't — use them, that's a responsibility we have to bear. The onus is on us if we refuse to try, if we ignore our gifts, if we waste our good luck.

Too often, those of us who've experienced good luck like to disdain — look down our noses at — those not so fortunate as we are. We credit ourselves with more intelligence, better genes, clearer foresight than our neighbors, when in actuality we're just plain lucky.

Consider the possibilities for chance that make a difference in our lives. We didn't pick our parents, and, in most cases, they didn't pick us. We had no say over what sex or race we turned out to be. We did not choose the financial or emotional setting into which we were born. We developed with little control over our height or bone structure or skin quality or nose length or shoe size. Generally, we didn't choose the town or neighborhood we grew up in, the school we attended or the teachers we had.

Yet, often, we pat ourselves on the back for what amounts to the luck of the draw when, really, the deck was stacked before we were dealt a hand.

Perhaps we should consider the role of chance in our lives before we deign to judge or to collect our chips.

Has Items To Give Hays Descendants

Dear Editor,
John F. Cox, died Oct. 1, 1940, and wife, Florence, died Jan. 9, 1951. Their grandson, Carl Akers, died Oct. 3, 1928, age 14, and Carl's sister, Garnett Akers Hays, died Sept. 25, 1938. All are buried in the Boyd Bottom Cemetery at Price.

I would like to know whether or not Garnett Hays left any children and, if so, where they may be reached. I have some things that belonged to Garnett's father that I would like to give to any descendants she may have.

THE 1989 AMERICAN REMEMBERS CAMPAIGN

As the holiday season approaches, consider our armed forces stationed abroad. To these troops — some away from their family, friends and familiar sounds of holiday cheer for the first time — the holidays can be a lonely time. As the Kentucky chairman of the 1989 America Remembers Campaign, I invite you to join me in bringing a brighter holiday to those brave men and women who serve in uniform to keep our nation free.

America Remembers is a nonprofit group that works with Dear Abby and USA Today to encourage Americans to send holiday cheer to US troops stationed abroad and at sea. Last year, over 100,000 troops participated in the effort, with each trooper getting a stack of mail. These forces included all US troops stationed in Korea, Iceland, Okinawa and at sea on two aircraft carriers. The effort also included 5,000 soldiers in West Germany and small units in isolated areas worldwide.

I have been honored to serve as a member of American Remembers Honorary Advisory Board for the past five years. This year, I am encouraging schools and groups in Kentucky to adopt two army units stationed in Europe: The 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment in West Germany and the 325th Airborne stationed in Italy.

Your card, letter or package will have a direct effect on our troops' morale abroad. Unit commanders report that past America Remembers campaigns have greatly boosted spirits. Whether you are a veteran, parent or child, or are just interested in demonstrating your support for our troops abroad, I hope you will join our effort. Kentucky can make a difference to those brave men and women stationed abroad.

Your mail should be sent no later than Wednesday, Dec. 6, to reach the troops in time for the holidays. Federal law unfortunately prevents distribution of actual names of servicemen and women. However, mail to these units can be addressed to "Dear Soldier" or "Dear Friend." The addresses for these units are: America Remembers the 11th ACR, C/O Commander, 11th ACR, Attn: PAO, APO New York 09146; and America Remembers the 325th Airborne, C/O Commander, 3 BN, 325 ABCT, Attn: S-5, APO New York 09221.

Again, please take a moment to remember our troops abroad as you prepare to enter the holiday season. I know that concerned Kentuckians will make this a holiday season to remember for these troops!

OUR MINIMUM-WAGE COMPROMISE IS ONE SMALL STEP FORWARD

The persistence of this Congress should pay dividends to all Americans through our new minimum-wage bill, which I see as a very small but important step toward economic fairness and progress for the entire nation.

As you might know, an earlier minimum-wage bill was vetoed by President Bush in what I saw as a very short-sighted move just a few months ago. But the Congress and the Administration now can share credit for a workable compromise.

By refusing to give up on this critical issue, we have won overwhelming approval of a bipartisan bill that breaks the regrettable pattern of the past Administration, which blocked every effort to raise the minimum wage.

Our new bill raises the minimum wage from the current $3.35 an hour to $3.80 next year and $4.25 in 1991. In a provision designed to help create job opportunities, it includes a lower training wage for a teenage worker first three months on the job, with the possibility of a three-month extension of this wage only if the worker is in a certified training program. The President's earlier position was that the minimum wage should not be increased to $4.25 an hour until 1992. He also had demanded a flat six-month training period, which I felt would have been unfair to many workers.

Our new bill retains sound provisions offering fair treatment to employers as well as employees. It extends the small-business exemption to the minimum-wage law to cover all employers grossing up to $500,000 a year. And it takes account of the problems of food-service employers by raising the tip credit to 50 percent.

We have every reason to help the working poor become more self-reliant and productive citizens. Our new minimum wage legislation is one modest step in that direction, and I hope that it will not be the last.

Churches Unite To Provide Thanksgiving Meals Locally

Those who had planned to see the Thanksgiving holiday through without a proper feast, for whatever reason — work, lack of funds or no access to transportation — can rest assured that a holiday meal is available.

The Community Methodist Church of Prestonsburg will be sponsoring its free Thanksgiving dinner program again.

According to Debbie Burke, spokesperson, those in need of a meal or just looking for companionship can come into the church and enjoy the full range of turkey, dressing, green beans, sweet potatoes, cold salads, desert, rolls and a beverage.

"This is not particularly for people without, but also those who are alone. Our goal is to benefit whoever, however," Burke stressed. "Our biggest handicap is reaching the people that can benefit most."

The workers get the list of people who are regularly serviced by the Meals on Wheels program and deliver to them two meals to cover the long weekend, Burke explained. "We reach the most people through our delivery program," she noted. "But folks are still welcome to come into the church and enjoy the fellowship with the meal." The church is open from noon to 4 p.m.

Since the program's conception three years ago, other churches have become involved. The First Baptist Church is supplying the desserts this year, while the First United Methodist Church is donating the cold salads; the First Presbyterian Church is making the hot rolls, and all are contributing helping hands.

"We have so many caring people in this area, willing to volunteer their time and services on a holiday and come in and help others," Burke commented. "We have had other people who give donations; although we never ask for donations, we don't turn down anyone who cares to contribute."

Those who would like to have a hot Thanksgiving dinner delivered should call 886-2220, 886-3630 or 886-8087. The location of the church is 710 Burke Avenue, which is off of University Drive by FoodLyon. Signs will be posted to help with locating the church, Burke explained. She also requested that people call in advance so the churches would not have many people to expect, but stressed calling first is not required.

Corp Expresses Gratitude To P'burg Police Department

By Tess A. Whitmer, Staff Writer

Two Prestonsburg City Police Officers were honored recently by the Job Corp Center for their "dedication to a drug free society," according to Neil S. Eskildson, center director.

On Thursday, Nov. 2, a three day investigation resulted in the arrest of two people who were charged with drug trafficking — selling drugs to Job Corp members, according to Eskildson.

He praised Capt. Greg Hall and Officer John Hunt for their timely response to the call.

"Captain Greg Hall quickly assessed the situation, carefully thought out a plan of attack, assigned officers to the detail and supervised the entire operation," Eskildson explained. "Officer John Hunt played a major role in this operation. He approached the situation with confidence and wisdom that is unusual in young men.

We at Job Corp can point to him as a shining example for our young people to look up to."

Eskildson, John Hall, center chief of security, and Len Grant, information officer for the center, presented Hunt, Hall and Mayor Ann Latta with T-shirts reading "Job Corp Center 30 Day Survivors." They also gave Hunt an honorary diploma and Hall a plaque expressing their appreciation for the entire department. A letter denoting the center's gratitude was given to Latta.

"Having drugs at the center compounds our situation here at the Job Corps. We, therefore, are on constant watch for indictments of this nature," Eskildson explained. "When we thought that there might be reason to believe that drugs were being sold to our Corps members, we contacted the Prestonsburg Police Department and we are most satisfied with the results."

Expressing Appreciation

Last Second Shot Misses In Clark Loss To Wayland

by Ed Taylor,
Sports Editor

Jason Osborne's last second shot circled the rim and fell out and disappointment followed as the Clark Indians lost to the Wayland Wasps, 33-32, in grade school basketball action Tuesday night at Wayland.

The game was close throughout as Wayland went out in front in the first quarter, 13-7. Clark outscored the Wasps in the second stanza 11-4 to take a one point lead at half time, 18-17.

The Indians played a 1-2-2 zone against the Wasps and held Wayland's high scorer, Jason Martin, to only 11 points.

"We sagged back in the middle on Martin in order to stop him," Clark mentor Dale Hamilton stated. "Mike (Arnett) played a good defensive game on him."

In the third quarter Wayland outscored the visitors 8-4 to lead by three 25-22. With eight seconds left in the game and Wayland leading 33-32, the Wasps had a chance to seal the game with two free throws. The Wasps missed both of them and on the rebound Clark's Jason Osborne got the last shot that rimmed the goal and came out.

"I thought he made it," Hamilton remarked. "I was getting ready to tackle Jason and the ball came out. We're a young, inexperienced team and some days we play well and some days we don't. I'm getting to where I don't like Monday night games because we don't get to practice over the weekend and we play sluggishly on Mondays."

Hamilton said he was proud of his team's performance against Wayland. The Indians start two fifth graders and two seventh graders, along with an eighth grader.

Jason Martin led Wayland in scoring with 11 points. Donnie Combs added eight, while Patrick Craft tossed in six.

Mike Arnett led the Indians with 17 points. Jason Osborne netted seven points.

Clark 7 11 4 11 (32): T-Tom Slone, 4; Jeff Johnson, 4; Mike Arnett, 17; Jason Osborne, 7.

Blackcats Put Four In Double Digits In 74-35 Victory Over Prater Cougars

by Ed Taylor,
Sports Editor

The Prestonsburg Elementary Blackcats placed four players in double figures in their 74-35 victory over a game Prater Cougar team. Chad Caldwell scored a game high 19 points to lead the Blackcats in scoring.

Prater opened the game like determined team that came to take care of the giant. The Cougars scored the first six points of the game very quickly as they were blocking the taller Prestonsburg players off the boards and getting some key rebounds.

Mark Ousley, Adam Roberts and Ronnie Hamilton each scored baskets as Prater went on top 6-0. After a basket by David Gearheart, Roberts hit a free throw for a 7-2 Prater lead. Prestonsburg scored the next eight points to take its first lead at 10-7. A bucket by Roberts made it 10-9 and Dammon Stepp's 14-footer gave Prestonsburg a 12-9 first period lead.

The Blackcats using a half court zone trap, causing the Cougars problems in the second stanza, and Prestonsburg was able to capitalize on the Cougar mistakes to open an 11 point lead at 20-9. An 8-4 run by Prater cut the lead to seven, 22-15. Caldwell scored the last eight points in the quarter to give Prestonsburg a 32-23 half time advantage.

Prestonsburg scored 31 points in the third quarter alone to open up a commanding 51-32 lead. Stepp had eight points in the period.

Prater scored only three points in the final quarter, all on three free throws. Prestonsburg played the bench in the final period with Jason Spencer getting six points in the quarter. Thomas Ratliff added four in the period.

Besides Caldwell's 19 points, Dammon Stepp added 14 points, Greg Jones had 11 and David Gearheart tallied 10. Thomas Ratliff finished with eight points.

Adam Roberts led the Cougars, as the lefthander scored 17 points. Mark Ousley added 10.

Prater 9 14 11 3 (35): Adam Roberts, 7-3-5 17; Mark Ousley, 5-0-0 10; Ronnie Hamilton, 1-1-2-3; Tony Howell, 1-2-2-4.

Bradford Leads Lady Cats In Win Over Prater, 32-15

by Ed Taylor,
Sports Editor

The Prestonsburg Lady Blackcats of Prestonsburg Elementary School won game number eight as they had a good defensive effort in defeating the Prater Lady Cougars, 32-15, Tuesday night at Prestonsburg.

Kenni Bradford tossed in 12 points for the Lady 'Cats in leading them to victory. The Lady Blackcats used their height to subdue the smaller Lady Cougars.

"We played a good game," Prestonsburg coach Gay Hatfield stated. "Rebecca Leslie had a good defensive effort for us. We are doing well right now."

Prestonsburg opened the game using its height to get second and third shots. It was 16-9 at the half as Hatfield emptied the bench in the second half.

Dana Adkins and Rhonda Conn led the Lady Cougars in scoring with six points each. Regina Brown added three.

Prater 4 5 5 1 (15): Dana Adkins, 6; Rhonda Conn, 6; Regina Brown, 3.

Harold Woes Continue, Team Clipped By Betsy Layne, 39-38

by Ed Taylor,
Sports Editor

Coach Dwight Newsome's Harold Red Devils continue to lose the close ones, again because of a slow start.

Against Betsy Layne Tuesday night, the Red Devils allowed the Bobcats to jump out quickly and lead at halftime by 15 points, 27-12. Once again it was an uphill climb for Newsome's team. They outscored the Bobcats 14-5 in the third period to take a 26-22 lead at the end of three quarters. The Bobcats were leading 37-36 with about 22 seconds showing on the clock. Chris Potter stole the ball and was fouled on his shot. Potter missed both free throws that could have put the Red Devils up. Betsy Layne cashed in two free throws to go up 39-36. A lay in at the buzzer made the final score 39-38.

Chris Hunt led the Bobcats in scoring with 12 points. Keith Hamilton added 11 and Ryan Ortega tossed in nine for the Bobcats.

Brian Hunter was top scorer for the Red Devils with 21 points. Chris Potter tossed in 13 points for Harold.

Betsy Layne goes to 8-4 on the season and Harold falls to 5-8.

Playing without top rebounder Barry Clark, Harold lost a tough one at Allen Saturday, 63-61. The Red Devils allowed Martin to build an early 21 point lead and had to play catch up the rest of the way.

Here I Am

Allison Allen (25) is shown waiting for a pass from another Lady Blackcat player against the Prater Lady Cougars. The two teams met Tuesday night at the Prestonsburg grade school gym. Prestonsburg won, 32-15.

Harold's Heather Keathley scored 13 points and Jessica Hamilton 12 to lead a balanced attack against the Allen squad. But the Lady Devils hit only nine of 29 free throws in the foul-plagued game.

The Lady Red Devils led at the first stop, 6-2, on first period baskets by Keathley and Hamilton, plus two throws. Harold built up a 12-6 lead early in the second period, again on two buckets by Hamilton and Keathley. The Lady Red Devils missed 12 free throws in the second quarter. April Newsome, who had game high honors with 38 points, scored four points to make it 12-10. Allen missed nine free throws in the second period. Harold went to the dressing room with a 15-10 half time lead.

Wild Side

THE PROS AND CONS OF OVERDRAW SYSTEMS

When it comes to accuracy, archers are fanatics. Experienced bowhunters know that only a well placed shot will humanely down an animal as large as a deer. Thus, a responsible hunter will do his or her best to become as accurate as possible. Since we most often get just one shot at an animal, we must make that shot count. Too, the ability to group arrows so that they are almost touching is a source of pride, and a way to show off in William Tell sort of way.

So, it came as no surprise that when overdraw systems were introduced a few years ago, they became one of the most popular add-on accessories for American bowhunters. After all, they help to provide a flatter arrow trajectory, thus decreasing the chance of missing a target—or a giant buck—by misjudging the distance.

An overdraw is simply an extension of the arrow shelf which holds the arrow rest several inches behind the riser, thus moving the arrow rest rearward toward the string. This allows the archer to shoot a much shorter arrow as well as an arrow of lesser spine weight, and both factors drastically decrease the overall weight of the arrow. In effect, this reduction in arrow weight dramatically increases arrow speed and provides a flatter trajectory.

Most overdraw shelves let you use an arrow which is three to four inches shorter than the arrow you were previously shooting, though some will allow you to cut six inches or so from your arrow. That weight reduction alone will add between 15 and 30 feet per second to the velocity of your arrow.

Furthermore, by decreasing the length of your arrow, you can shoot an arrow of lesser spine weight. To keep your arrow or bow limbs from literally shattering upon release, the arrow's spine weight must be matched to the strength of your bow. Basic physics will tell you that a shorter shaft will not bend as easily as a longer one, thus, when using an overdraw, you can lessen the spine weight of the arrow and further reduce your total arrow weight. (Caution: Before purchasing arrows, be sure to consult a knowledgeable archer or a good arrow chart to pick the proper spine weight for the weight of your bow!)

When all is said and done, the addition of an overdraw to your bow will definitely provide increased arrow velocity and a flatter trajectory. The higher arrow velocity is a plus since it lessens the chance of a deer "jumping the string" or jumping when it hears the bow's release and moving enough to cause a miss. That may sound far fetched, but a deer is far quicker than most hunters can believe, and the phenomenon is well documented. By providing a flatter trajectory, the chance of missing a deer because you misjudged the distance is lessened, though certainly not eliminated.

At first glance, a bowhunter might think that overdraw shelves are nothing but peaches and cream—but that is far from the truth.

I added an overdraw shelf to my bow this year, and was able to safely decrease my arrow length from 31 to 26 inches while dramatically increasing my accuracy from distances out to 40 yards. Two weeks ago, I went to Trigg County in Western Kentucky for a few days of bowhunting. The first day, three does walked under my tree stand, and a nice two and half year old buck in the 8- to 10-point range passed by within 40 yards. I felt the distance was too great for a clean shot, so I passed on the buck. The next day, four does walked under my tree stand on the edge of woods and a corn field and began nibbling corn about 15 yards away. Again I passed on the does. Just before sundown, four does and the largest buck (we're talking mega-buck!) I've ever seen crossed the corn field about 200 yards away.

The next morning, I hunted from my tree stand placed in a small, three-acre patch of woods between a corn field and a soybean field. About 10 minutes after sun up, I heard a buck rubbing in a small thicket behind me. I was literally sweating bullets while trying to sit quietly and calmly, knowing that a buck was just 30 yards away yet still out of sight. Five minutes later, the buck, a nice 6- or 8-point, emerged from the thicket and followed the trail under my stand. Something (another deer, I suppose) caught his eye, and he stopped just about seven yards away from my tree and looked away from me. From my tree stand vantage about 15 feet high, I could not make a clean shot at his vitals. Shooting downward, I aimed high on his shoulder so that the arrow would angle through the shoulder and clip the lungs. The shot was perfect, and the buck darted off with my arrow dinging the trees.

An hour later, I exited the stand and quickly found my arrow just 30 yards away. The arrow was bloodied just three inches up the shaft, and a day spent combing the small patch of woods and the neighboring crop fields turned up just one tiny splotch of blood. Obviously, my arrow did not penetrate the thick shoulder muscle, and certainly did not hit a single organ or large blood vessel. Though the buck will have a sore shoulder for a while, he will survive relatively unharmed and a little wiser for the experience.

I fully believe that this unfortunate mishap was caused, for the most part, because of my overdraw. Again, basic physics tells you that force equals mass multiplied by velocity. In other words, the impact of the arrow striking an object is determined by the arrow's weight and speed, and the force of that impact determines penetration. Even though an overdraw system will increase your velocity by roughly 10 to 20 percent, you must decrease the weight of your arrow by a third or so to accomplish that. Thus, the force of your short, light overdraw arrow will be less than that of a standard arrow, and penetration will suffer.

The best bowhunters that I know do not use overdraw systems because of this. David Hale, co-owner of Knight & Hale Game Call Company out of Cadiz, says, "As overdraws become more popular, the numbers of wounded and lost deer are increasing because of the poor penetration inherent in overdraws. The only place I would use an overdraw would be in Mississippi, where the use of poisoned arrows is legal. Then, even if your arrow misses the vitals, you can still capture the deer."

Another problem with overdraws is that they are potentially hazardous to the archer. If your arrows are too short, they may fall off of the arrow rest and impale your hand or arm. Or, if the overdraw does not feature an adequate handguard, placing your hand too high on the handle may result in a sliced hand.

And finally, shorter arrows do not stabilize in flight as well as longer arrows. If your bow is not tuned properly, an overdraw will magnify the negative effects and accuracy will actually decrease. Furthermore, a mechanical release is virtually mandatory for this same reason.

If you are using an older bow, it is quite possible that the use of short, light arrows will cause the limbs of your bow to crack or even shatter. Basically, it's just like dry-firing your bow.

So who should use an overdraw? If you are into competitive field shoots, an overdraw will definitely give you an edge. Simply put, an overdraw will improve any bow's performance, and lessen the effects of misjudging the distance between you and the deer—the most common cause of missed bowhunting shots. Should you decide to use one, be a bit more selective in your hunting shots, and remember that your arrow penetration will, in all likelihood, decrease to some degree.

Good shooting, and good hunting!

Floyd Students 'Meet Morehead State'

To familiarize students with the programs available on its campus, Morehead State University hosted "Meet Morehead State Night" at the Holiday Inn in Prestonsburg on Thursday, Nov. 9. A number of area high school students, their parents, representatives of MSU and other organizations attended. Above, Clyde James of Morehead, left, Melanie Dedden of Job Corps, middle, and Paula Dailey of MSU, right, discuss student concerns. At left, Jim Morton of Morehead State University discusses financial aid options with prospective students. Representatives from MSU also provided information on admissions, academic programs, campus housing, athletics and student life. Morton's comments came during a special session on student financial aid options for financing a college education.

A large crowd was on hand for Morehead State University's "Meet Morehead State" night held Nov. 9 at the Holiday Inn in Prestonsburg. Representatives of various areas of study at MSU were available to answer questions from parents and prospective students. Information on financial assistance was also provided. High school juniors and seniors and their parents from Floyd County were invited to attend, as were superintendents, principals and guidance counselors from area high schools.

Floyd County Families: Our Heritage

Samuel Meade Jr., (3-9-14), born 1792, married Fanny Acres (Akers), August 5, 1813 in Floyd Co., Ky.

The 1820 Floyd Co., Ky. census shows Samuel and Fannie, had the following persons living at their household: 1 male under 10 yrs. old, 1 male 26 not over 45; (Samuel Jr. would be 26 yrs. in 1820), 3 females under age 10. 1 female 16 to 26 yrs. (I do not know the birth date of Fannie).

I have found a Samuel Meade, born 1792, in North Carolina in the 1870 Pike census, that is living with John Mead, born in Virginia 1831. Could this be Samuel Jr. (#14) and a son born in Virginia after he left Kentucky, around 1828????

The 1870 Pike census shows: Lot #88, John Mead, 39, born in Virginia (1831); Charlotte, 27, Virginia; Celia, 14, Virginia; Samuel Mead, 78, North Carolina, (1792).

This is the only record of this particular family, as the records I have does not list them after the 1870 listing.

In Joe R. Skeens, "Floyd County

Kentucky marriages" is listed Samuel Meade, age 48, second marriage, farmer, born Floyd Co. Ky., married Lizzy Milam, age 27, second marriage, born in Virginia. To be married at home of Samuel Mead, on February 11, 1876. (Bond date February 10, 1876), Book 5, Page 198.

This Samuel, was born in 1828, so it is quite possible that this is the son of Samuel Jr. (#14).

In Richard and Louise Hardiman's "Greenup Co. Ky. marriages-1803-1853" there is a Samuel Meade listed as marrying Jane Osborn, May 9, 1849, -D/O Jesse and Mahalia Osborn. This is all the info shown.

Robert A. (Big Bob) Meade, (3-9-15), born in Virginia, Jan. 29, 1796, and died in Johnson County, near Oil Springs, on March 7, 1863. They were married in Floyd County, Ky., on July 6th, 1823, Susan Clark, born February 15, 1808 in Scott County Virginia. She died March 30, 1893. Daughter of Samuel and Sarah Clark.

They are buried in the Meade cemetery, on Old Ky. Route 580 near Oil Springs, Ky. Many of their children are also buried there. The cemetery is grownup and totally surrounded by trees and bushes. The stones are preserved nicely on Robert and Susan's graves, but there are many that are badly eroded and in bad state of repair.

A copy of the marriage consent was signed by Samuel Clark and Robert Mead, dated July 5th, 1823. They were married in Floyd County by Owen Owens, July 6, 1823.

NOTE: The dates of birth and death of Robert and Samuel, were taken from their headstones by Mr. Pat Pelphrey of Keaton, Johnson County, Ky. and sent to me.

After a long and fruitless effort to find the burial place of Susan and "Big Bob", I have just this day (August 16, 1988) found the cemetery where both are buried.

I had called two different people I had chosen at random from the Big Sandy Telephone book, and one of them gave me a gentleman by the name of Pat Pelphrey, I called him and to my astonishment, he knew some of the Meade descendants of Robert's. He made the statement that he might know the area in which they were buried. He said when he got the opportunity he would try to locate the people I was interested in.

Lo and behold, tonight he called and gave me names, dates and the cemetery where Robert and Susan were buried as well as some of their children, namely: Rhodes (#32) and his wife Eliz. (Conley)-Jacob Meade, (?)-Elizabeth Mead (Williams #37 ?)-Joseph Meade (#34) that served in the Civil War in Co. "K" 14th Ky. INF.-John Meade (#30)-J.K. (James #33) Meade and Isabell Meade. (Of which I know nothing).

Mr. Pelphrey was absolutely right. He did know the location and he thought that this is quite possibly the Robert Meade family cemetery. He was good enough to say that he would try to find out more about this cemetery and stay in contact with me.

The cemetery is located in Johnson County in the Big Paint Creek area, approximately 4 miles out of Oil Springs, off of U.S. 60, 1/4 mile on Ky. Route 580.

I believe this is part of the old Meade Farm described in one of the deeds I have included in this family history.

I want to express a special word of thanks, to Mr. Pelphrey, for his time and trouble to help a total stranger accomplish a task that was so helpful and important to me.

NOTE: In reviewing Skeens, book, "Floyd County Cemeteries volume III", on Page #54, it shows an S. Meade who died March 25, 1885.

Also a T. Meid, who died in 1852, (Sandstone marker) buried in the "Sammy Clark Cemetery". The location of the cemetery is located at the Mouth of Little Mud Creek, and Sammy Clark Branch, on Route 1426, 1 mile from Harold, Ky. There are about 100 to 150 graves with only sandstone markers.

I ask anyone with any knowledge of the identity of either of these two Meade's, to please contact me so that I can tie him into their family lineage.

Highlands Regional Medical Center's Quality Assurance department and local merchants joined together to make Halloween a little nicer for children in the pediatrics unit at the hospital. On Halloween afternoon, Billie Goble, social services coordinator at HRMC, and Mary Lou Holbrook, social services intern, surprised pediatric patients with candy, toys, ice cream and cupcakes. The hospitalized children, who would otherwise have missed out on the Halloween festivities, were delighted with the treats. Cartoon films were also shown. The quality assurance department staff expressed thanks to participating merchants Wal-Mart, Hallmark, Super America, Foodlyon, Food City, Druthers, Hardee's, Long John Silvers, Prestonsburg Dairy Cheer, Jenny Wiley Florist and National Video.

Christmas Carolers Here Already

Thanksgiving may not be here yet, but Prestonsburg citizens will be hearing the voices of carolers singing Christmas songs Tuesday, Nov. 21. The Parents Who Care group is attempting to raise money to buy its children Christmas presents. "Parents Who Care is a group for parents who are having trouble with their children, who want to have a better, more efficient relationship with their children, or who have been court-ordered to attend due to child abuse," according to Janie Hall, director of the Child Abuse Council. "Many of the parents are indigent and the children get very little for Christmas. Christmas can be a hard time emotionally and we are trying to provide a little merriment for these children and show them that we care." Hall said about 12 children who will be at their annual Christmas party at which time the gifts will be presented. Anyone interested in joining the group to go caroling can meet at the Floyd County Library at 6 p.m. Tuesday. Anyone interested in making a tax deductible donation can make checks payable to Parents Who Care, 10 First Avenue, Prestonsburg, KY 41653, or phone 886-1260 or 1-800-432-9251.

Organizational Spotlight:

Auxier Historical Society

Auxier Historical Society, located in the Mary Luck Coal Company Building, was organized in 1986 to collect and preserve the records and the historical site of Auxier. It began in September 1986 when the records of the North-East Coal Company were acquired and several leaders of the community wanted to preserve them, as well as any other information they could gather pertaining to the history of Auxier, Floyd County and Eastern Kentucky. The present seven-member board of directors also works to preserve historical sites in Auxier. Some of the major projects so far accomplished by the society include teaching an Auxier history class at the Auxier Elementary School, restoring the Mary Luck Coal Company Building and creating a museum, marking and preserving the Tram Road and other historical sites in Auxier, and a Sadie Hawkins town celebration every fall. The group has managed to collect and catalog all of the existing records of the North-East Coal Co. It also publishes a quarterly magazine of called "The Trestle." An oral history of the older residents of Auxier has been recorded on video tape for the library in the museum, as has an historical documentary of Auxier. The society is associated with the Kentucky Confederation of Historical Societies and the Kentucky Historical Society. Its current officers are Robert D. Castle, president; Charles Music, vice president; Stella McCown, secretary; Linda Jefferson, treasurer; Claude McKenzie, director; Clara Harris, director; and Josephine Hopson, director.

CABLE OVERVIEW

Ricky Van Shelton's rise to music success chronicled

By Shelia Odak
 On Saturday, Nov. 25, The Nashville Network will take a look at the success of one of country music's newest superstars. Ricky Van Shelton: From Grit to Gold chronicles this singer's rise from laying pipe and singing in local clubs in his hometown of Grit, Va., to being named the Country Music Association's Male Vocalist of the Year for 1989.
 In an interview with Van Shelton, before the CMA awards, he had expressed his gratitude at being nominated. He had also stated that he especially was hoping to win in one of the four categories in which he had received a nomination. "When I'm nominated, I want to win the Male Vocalist, even over Entertainer (of the Year), because, I don't consider myself an entertainer. I think of an entertainer as Dolly Parton. I'm just a singer. I just stand up there and sing and have a good time. I don't strive to put on a show, I just strive to get up there and sing. There's a difference," He said.
 Well, Van Shelton got his wish. This honor can only pave the way to an even bigger success for his next two albums, which are being released in the coming months. The first is a volume of traditional Christmas songs that Van Shelton says he poured his heart and soul into. The singer stated that having this idea come to fruition was not as easy as it might sound. "Every song that was sent to me wasn't about Christmas. It was about, for example, a love that went wrong at Christmas time. It was not a Christmas song. I wanted it to be about angels and shepherds... Christmas. We did it like the old Bing Crosby stuff, like the White Christmas album he did." He added, with obvious pleasure in his voice, "It's my pride and joy."

 Also coming out, either at the end of this year or the beginning of 1990, will be an album called I Still Love You. This work will contain at least one song that Van Shelton himself wrote. The singer wants to contribute more of his writing talents to his upcoming albums, but he claims that self-pride will never affect his judgement on these songs. "I can say this, I'll never put a song on an album if it doesn't stand up to what my producers found for me to cut. I won't put it on there just because it is mine. It has to be good."
 With a prestigious award under his belt, and two new albums coming out soon, Van Shelton will no doubt be called upon to do more touring. Even though this takes him away from his home and his wife quite a bit, it is still an aspect that the performer accepts. "We stay on the road constantly. You're not home much. It's kind of like this, if you're home too long, you kind of get fidgety, and you can't wait to get in here, and if you've been in here a while, you can't wait to get home."
