Clear And Cooler

Okay, so the Weather Service was wrong on last weekend's forecast. That doesn't stop the folks in Jackson from continuing to predict the possibly unpredictable. Today's reading calls for clear skies and temperature highs ranging from 65 to 70 degrees, with a nighttime low of about 40. Thursday, the temperature is supposed to inch up to the lower 70s, dropping to the mid-to-upper 40s at night. Sleep warm.

KSP Thwarts Area Pot Grower

Kentucky State Police officers last Thursday put on a big bonfire — at the expense of a hapless marijuana grower.

According to KSP Officer Les Stapleton, about 170 marijuana plants, ranging from 8 to 14 feet high, were burned by county and state officers in the Endicott area, about 45 feet from the Pike County line.

The crop was "real well taken care of," said Stapleton. "As far as pot goes it was a beautiful plot." The officer said the illegal plants were being grown in 11 rows in a plot about "6 to 8 feet by 30 feet" in bottomland reportedly owned by the federal government. He added there was evidence that some of the crop had already been processed.

Stapleton said the plants were burned by the officers, using diesel fuel and tires. He said a shotgun was confiscated from what appeared to be the beginning of a campsite.

The site had been under surveillance, said Stapleton, who worked the case along with Officers Lee Weddington and Mike Thorp.

Circus Is Coming

The Prestonsburg Merchants Association is sponsoring the Famous Cole Indoor Circus on Oct. 18 at 7 p.m. at Prestonsburg High School.

The circus, billed as "great family entertainment," will feature juggling, balancing, magic, performing dogs, clowns and other acts. For ticket information, call 886-8865.

Electrical Training Class Rescheduled

The electrical retraining class slated for Thursday, Oct. 5 from 6-9 p.m. has been rescheduled for Tuesday, Oct. 9 from 6-9 p.m. at the Coal Building at Martin, according to Arthur Moore, instructor.

Lumber Spill Creates Problem

On Monday, a three-hour traffic problem was caused by a lumber truck overturning and spilling its load across Route 114, according to Edgar Stephens, Mud Creek fire chief.

He and five other firefighters directed traffic through a detour while the spill was being cleared. "It was interesting to see the coal trucks on those little side streets," Stephens commented.

He said the Disaster and Emergency Service responded and was able to control the fuel leakage by shutting it off at the source and spreading sand on the highway. "No fuel leaked into the stream," Stephens assured, "and the driver miraculously escaped without injury."

Jenny Wiley Festival Will Begin Next Week

by Tess Whitner,
Staff Writer

The 8th Annual Jenny Wiley Festival will begin its many activities on Monday, Oct. 9, and the celebration will continue through Saturday, Oct. 14, according to Maxine Bierman, who founded the festival with her husband, the late E.L. Bierman.

On Monday, the Riverview Manor Nursing Home in Prestonsburg is sponsoring a turkey dinner with all the fixings. Serving times are 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 5 to 8 p.m., and a donation of $3.50 per meal will go towards the residents' Christmas fund. Meals can be eaten in or carried out and multiple orders are available for delivery at lunch time.

The Jenny Wiley Bowl between Paintsville and Prestonsburg Elementary A and B teams will be Tuesday at 6 p.m. at the high school stadium. Wednesday at 7 p.m. at the National Guard Armory, children between the ages of infant and 12 years decked in Indian garb will compete for awards and titles.

Miss Jenny Wiley, ages 16-21, and Teen Miss Jenny Wiley, ages 13-15, will be crowned after a pageant on Thursday at 8 p.m. at the armory. The reigning Miss Jenny Wiley, Katy Jo Harmon, daughter of Kevin and Paula Shannon, will present the winners with their crowns.

Friday night in the Municipal Parking Lot the Prestonsburg Volunteer Fire Department will hold a fund raising game and concession stands. Games will begin around 4 p.m. and continue through the evening.

The main events of the festival will occur on Saturday, including arts and crafts booths and concessions in the downtown parking area. A car and truck show featuring Corvettes, Z-28s, antique cars and different types of trucks will begin at 8 a.m. at Music-Carter-Hughes Chevrolet in Prestonsburg. This is a judged event open to the public and the award-winning vehicles can be seen in the parade, which lines up at 2 p.m.

Entries for the parade are still being sought and those wishing to have a float in it can contact Joan Piercey at 886-6101.

Also taking place on Saturday is a "Terrapin Trot" at noon and the annual "Rubber Duck Race" on the Big Sandy River at 1 p.m., sponsored by the Prestonsburg Elementary PTA.

A reception for the Parade Marshal and Floyd County Coach of the Year Gordon Ray Parido, PHS basketball coach, will be from noon to 2 p.m. at the Floyd County Library. Members of the regional champion basketball team will be on hand to hear Parido's welcoming speech at 1 p.m.

Bierman noted that the new and revised legend of Jenny Wiley, "The White Squaw" by Arville Wheeler, will be on sale down town and at the gift shop at May Lodge, and plans are for Wheeler to be present to sign the books.

Allen City Council Approves Comprehensive Insurance Bid

Allen City Council, meeting Monday, chose to accept comprehensive insurance coverage from Penn Co. Insurance of Louisville to provide complete coverage to all city officials and employees in legal suits against the city.

The cost of insurance was set at $5,785. The policy will be administered by Big Sandy Insurance of Martin.

Council members also discussed the need for increased supervision by city council of city police officer Larry Goble to meet city law enforcement needs. Mayor Vern Porter agreed to discuss the question with Goble, who wasn't present at the meeting. In final action, council members voted to turn Beaver Street, in front of the Allen School, into a one way street from 7 and 8:30 a.m. The action was taken in response to speeding problems in the area caused by parents bringing children to school, and by other morning drivers.

Present at Monday night's meeting was city clerk Bill Parsons, Mayor Porter, and council members Billy Rowe, Elmer Parsons, and Larry Castle.

The next city council meeting will be on Monday, Nov. 6, at 7 p.m.

Convention Center About To Be Reality

Construction of the long-awaited and lobbied-for convention center at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park is set to begin "any day now," according to park superintendent Leon Russell.

Employees of the Lexington contracting firm D.W. Wilburn have set up shop in the amphitheatre parking lot and are preparing to begin site work on the $1.8 million facility.

"It's finally a reality," said Russell, who has worked for several years to get approval and funding for the center. "All the talk I've done about the center for the last four years is going to come true."

The center, which will have around 17,000 square feet of "usable convention space," will have seating capacity for 500 people in three meeting rooms. It will also contain a kitchen and the park's business offices.

The one-story building will be constructed of wood, stone and glass to complement the park setting, Russell said. Porches and public areas around the building will enhance the use of the building, he said.

A lighted sidewalk between May Lodge and the convention center is also planned.

Designed by Wilson Bond and Associates of Lexington, the facility should more than double the park's present ability to serve meeting groups. Judy Goble, Russell's assistant, said the need for additional space is already critical.

"I probably turned away more groups than we were able to take during September alone. We have something booked just about every day of the year," she said, referring to the present limited meeting space at May Lodge. The new center will augment the present facilities.

The only negative factor in the construction is that the center will take much of the present theatre parking, Goble said. Park officials originally hoped the center would set into the side of the hill next to the parking lot, but apparently geological factors would not allow that arrangement, she added. Current plans call for paving the grassy area near the park office for parking.

The new center will be used year round, Goble said, adding that she's ready to start booking Christmas parties in 1990 in anticipation of the building's completion.

Floyd Man Killed; Other Fatalities Reported In Area

Kentucky State Police and area rescue workers were kept busy last weekend as six persons died in Floyd, Pike and Johnson counties, five from traffic accidents and one apparently from a shooting.

A 52-year-old Stanville man died early Monday morning from injuries he received in an accident Sunday night at Martin.

Bennie Lewis was a passenger in a car which overturned in a ditch when its driver was attempting to exit the parking lot of Hall Funeral Home onto KY 122 at about 9:10 p.m. Sunday. According to Kentucky State Police reports, the driver, Wilburn Layne, 72, also of Stanville, missed the road and went into the ditch.

Lewis was taken to Our Lady of the Way Hospital and then transported to McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital, where he died at about 12:47 a.m. on Monday, according to the KSP, which is continuing an investigation.

The body of a Pikeville jeweler, Robert Paul Syck, 39, was discovered by his mother, Georgia Syck, Sunday at about 8 p.m. at his home on Ratliff's Creek. Although an autopsy report is incomplete, Syck suffered multiple gunshot wounds, according to the KSP. No estimate was given for how long he had been dead. With his mother, Syck reportedly owned P.M. Pollack's jewelry store in Pikeville. The death is being investigated by KSP Det. Ken Slope.

The collision of a car and a pickup truck on US 23, seven miles south of Paintsville, near the Floyd County line, on Sunday left three people dead and one in critical condition. Dead at the scene were Una Phillips, 77, of Meta; Gene Cantrell, 53, of West Liberty, and his wife Lovell Cantrell, 51.

According to KSP reports, Cantrell apparently lost control of his car after going onto the highway shoulder. Going into the northbound lane, the car struck a pickup driven by Colley Hess, 48, of Kimper, in which Phillips was a passenger. Hess was taken to Paul B. Hall Regional Medical Center and then to Cabell Huntington Hospital. The accident occurred shortly before noon.

A pedestrian accident on rural KY 16 near Myra, Pike County, resulted in the death of a Jonancy woman at about 4:30 a.m. Saturday. Darlene Smallwood, 32, was walking on the narrow road when she was struck by a car driven by Franklin L. Roberts of Myra. She was pronounced dead at the scene by Pike deputy coroner Ray Jones. The accident is under the investigation of Tpr. Van Wright.

Weeksbury Water Worries Continue

by Frank Clark,
Staff Writer

The search for funding has begun in earnest among residents of Weeksbury, Melvin, and Abner, who are attempting to solve the long-term water problems that face them.

The impact of coal mining over the course of this century, combined with the effects of recent gas well drilling, have conspired to drastically reduce the quality of well water in the area, say residents in southern Floyd County. The Beaver-Elkhorn water system, which serves the southern portion of Floyd County, has been unable to reach the 1,000 residents of the region.

Peggy Bradford is one of many Weeksbury residents who have decided to take action.

"We've sent a petition to (State Rep.) Greg Stumbo with 700 to 800 names on it of people who want something done about our water," said Bradford. "We sent it in about a week ago and we're hoping we can tap into the Abandoned Mine Lands Trust Fund to get money to get the Beaver-Elkhorn to enlarge its plant at Allen, and bring the water we need out to us."

According to Roger Recktenwald, executive director of the Big Sandy Area Development District, the cost to implement such an expansion is the major roadblock to residents' efforts to improve their water supply. Recktenwald states that the required expansion would cost approximately $2.8 million.

"We're looking at the Abandoned Mines program for funding and are working with the judge (John M. Stumbo) to see what we can do," says Recktenwald. "It's a big problem and nobody in the county has the money to do it right now. The distances to supply water are long, the terrain is bad, and there's a lot of people to reach. We're waiting for the results of water tests done by the Department of Natural Resources and the Environmental Protection Agency. When we get those back, we're going to run some of our own tests. There's no easy solution here."

Recktenwald estimates that the completion of enlargement work at

Trial Will Stay In Magoffin

SALYERSVILLE — Despite state prosecutors' pleas, the Kentucky Court of Appeals has ruled that the trials of 18 Magoffin County residents charged with a variety of sex-related abuses on children will remain in the county. The cases date to 1986 when the area residents were indicted on combination charges of rape, incest, sodomy, sexual abuse, assault and complicity, involving 23 minors.

State prosecutors have tried since 1987 to get approval of a change of venue for the trials. (The Salyersville Independent)

ARC Reneges On Water Grant

SALYERSVILLE — While the Magoffin County Water District awaited additional funding for its water line extension project on Middle Fork, money promised by the Appalachian Regional Commission apparently dried up. ARC, which had allocated $250,000 for the project, pulled back the funding after the county had not started work by Sept. 1.

Water district officials said the project had been on hold while they waited on additional completion funds from Farmers Home Administration. The entire project cost, estimated at $412,000, will now have to depend on FmHA funding. (The Salyersville Independent)

Cities Get Uplift Grant

PIKE COUNTY — Downtown revitalization is the prescription behind grants from the Appalachian Regional Commission to several Eastern Kentucky cities. Pikeville, Paintsville, Whitesburg and Hindman each received $10,000, and Prestonsburg, $5,000. Funded through the state Department of Local Government, the awards are assigned on the basis of a city's plans for its downtown district. (Appalachian News-Express)

Overdue Raises Prompt Suit

PIKE COUNTY — Pike County teachers, represented by the Pike County Education Association, contend the county board of education owes them some $12 million in back pay, and they're going to court to get it. A utility tax approved by the county Fiscal Court in 1967 was intended for pay raises for the teachers but was not spent for that purpose, the teachers claim. The Kentucky Education Association is supporting the Pike teachers. (Appalachian News-Express)

UMWA Member Injured As Picket Comes To Pike

CANEY CREEK — Bobby Robinson, 53, of Pikeville was struck by a coal truck which was trying to cross a United Mine Workers Association picket line at Mine 29 at Caney Creek Monday at about 8:40 a.m., according to Kentucky State Police. Robinson, one of an estimated 200 UMWA members involved in the picketing of a company said to be filling orders for the strike-ridden Pittston Coal Co. in Virginia, was treated and released at Methodist Hospital of Pikeville.

The driver of the truck was James Hall, 34, of Jenkins. Robinson was advised to seek a warrant against Hall, according to KSP reports.

Waking Up Downtown Prestonsburg

by Tess Whitmer, Staff Writer

Downtown Prestonsburg, Inc., an affiliate of the Kentucky Main Street Program, has hired a new manager, Terri Cutright.

A part-time business instructor at Prestonsburg Community College, Cutright's background in marketing gives her the key element to becoming a successful Main Street manager.

Among her responsibilities are economic restructuring and organizing a revitalization program. Cutright notes that her primary concern right now is creating a visually attractive downtown area. "Since traffic isn't routed through the downtown, outsiders will drive right past it if there is not something there to catch their eye," Cutright explained. Seasonal and holiday banners are planned for the lamp posts and flower barrels will soon be planted to create a more eye-pleasing atmosphere.

Jenny Wiley Festival visitors will see the first of the banners hung to promote that festival. Also, a parking attendant for the downtown area was hired as of last week to alleviate some parking problems, Cutright noted.

The Main Street Program works closely with the Prestonsburg Downtown Merchants Association, and Cutright also hopes to work with the city's Parks, Recreation, Tourism and Convention Commission so as not to duplicate efforts to promote downtown business.

"Many of the business which have recently left the downtown area have done so for expansion purposes," she said. "There are a number of available buildings with a variety of footage and we hope to attract some skilled entrepreneurs to provide services that people would get at a mall.

"The advantage of downtown shopping is the personality and intimacy which can be developed between shop owners and customers," Cutright exclaimed. "More specialized stores will create a variety of clientele, as will the addition of agencies located in the area, which should create more employees needing to eat lunch in the area and hopefully shopping on their lunch hour."

Cutright said that she has had one interested developer contact her looking for an appropriate place to create senior citizens housing. She explained that this program would place residences on the upper floors of a building and a restaurant or shop on the ground level. She added that a project such as this would add considerably to the life of the downtown. Another one of Cutright's tasks as Main Street Manager is to assist the merchants when revamping their store fronts. "We advocate restoration as opposed to total remodeling," she said. Cutright will put the retailers in touch with an agency in Frankfort which will give the retailers free advice on color scheme, textures and design so as to blend in with the total scheme of the area.

According to Cutright, a brochure singing the praises of downtown is planned to be put in rooms at the Holiday Inn and May Lodge. Also, anyone interested in establishing a shop in the downtown area can contact her at 886-3368 or 886-1451 to get a listing of availability. She noted that the "downtown area" refers to not only Court Street, but extends south to Laurel Farms, north to Dairy Queen and east to the Courthouse.

P'burg Police Report Four Vehicle Accidents

Prestonsburg City Police Department reports four accidents, only one resulting in injuries, in the city this past week.

Johnny W. Coleman, 21, of Pikeville, suffered head injuries and was sent the Highlands Regional Medical Center, and his car was towed away after he pulled into the path of a southbound vehicle, driven by Terry E. Gibson, 33, of Hueysville, from Plaza road onto US 23. There was no one to witness the accident, except the drivers. The incident took place on Thursday, Sept. 28, and Officer R.J. Conn was the investigating officer.

Saturday, Sept. 30, was a wet day and apparently that was the cause of Floyd L. Rutherford, 50, of Belfry, being unable to stop his car as he traveled over the bridge on US 23. Mickey R. Sexton, 48, of Hueysville, was stopped in traffic when he was struck by the northbound Rutherford. Officer Roy Roberts cited Rutherford for no proof of insurance.

Captain G. Hall reports a rear ender involving Keith R. Frasure, 33, of Martin, and Brenda A. Hall, 30, of Grethel, taking place on Thursday at 7:50 a.m. Apparently both units were traveling north on US 23 when Hall was struck in the rear by Frasure.

On Wednesday, Jackie Loonie, 35, of Seco, was backing in traffic on Main Street when he hit a southbound vehicle driven by Anna L. Goodman, 30, of Prestonsburg, as reported by Officer N. Stanaford.

The Beaver-Elkhorn plant, once begun, will require at least two years. Other ways of dealing with the problem, says Recktenwald, do exist.

"If the City of Wheelwright agreed to provide oversight on the water supply of this area, we could see some improvement in water quality. This would require a long-term agreement between the cities in the area."

Bradford and other Weeksbury residents are also looking for short-term solutions for dealing with the lack of clean water, while pushing for substantial improvements and expansions at the Beaver-Elkhorn water plant.

"We are trying to see if new pipes from our wells can improve water quality," said Bradford. "We could try to get new filtration systems on the mine water we use. Maybe we could hook into Wheelwright or Virgie's water supplies. Somehow, we've got to get clean water."

lection points have been established at the Municipal Building in Prestonsburg and at the two city fire stations.

Canned food, baby food, large disposable baby diapers, cleaning supplies and sheets and blankets head the list of most-needed supplies requested by hurricane relief workers, according to Sue Webb, Prestonsburg city clerk. Webb asks that no more clothing be donated, as current supplies are adequate.

For those who can't drop off donations, and live within Prestonsburg city limits, the police will pick up the items. For more information, call 886-1010.

Estill Man Alleges Strays Killed Goats

Complaints about stray and unleashed dogs in the Right Beaver Creek area have been voiced for several months, especially to the Wayland Town Council. But Joe Martin got angry enough last week to take his complaint a step farther.

Martin found nine of his 28 Nubian goats dead from what he believes were attacks by stray dogs. In fact, he says he killed one of the dogs and wounded another.

Martin, who lives on Martin Branch in Estill, says his animals have been attacked "several times" by the dogs. His flock of 75 chickens was destroyed by dogs, he alleges.

After discovering the dead goats, valued at $285 each, the farmer went to Floyd County Small Claims Court and filed a petition for a hearing against two area residents who, he says, own the dogs in question. He says he also asked the sheriff's department to serve the papers the people he believes own the dogs that attacked his animals.

Martin also says he checked with the Floyd County Health Department "to see what could be done about stray dogs."

"I want to try to get something done," said Martin, who has been raising goats for 24 years. "It can't go on like this."

Carl Baldrige of the health department staff said later that he was "not sure we can do anything." His department, he said, does not pick up stray dogs.

Nor does anyone else, apparently. Floyd Sheriff Henry Hale said the state has strict laws governing the maintaining of dogs, but his department does not have the responsibility of collecting strays.

According to Kentucky laws relating to animal control, that responsibility rests with a dog warden, authorized by each county's fiscal court. However, Floyd County Fiscal Court discontinued the position of dog warden in the mid-1980s when it approved funding of a county animal shelter, according to Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo's office.

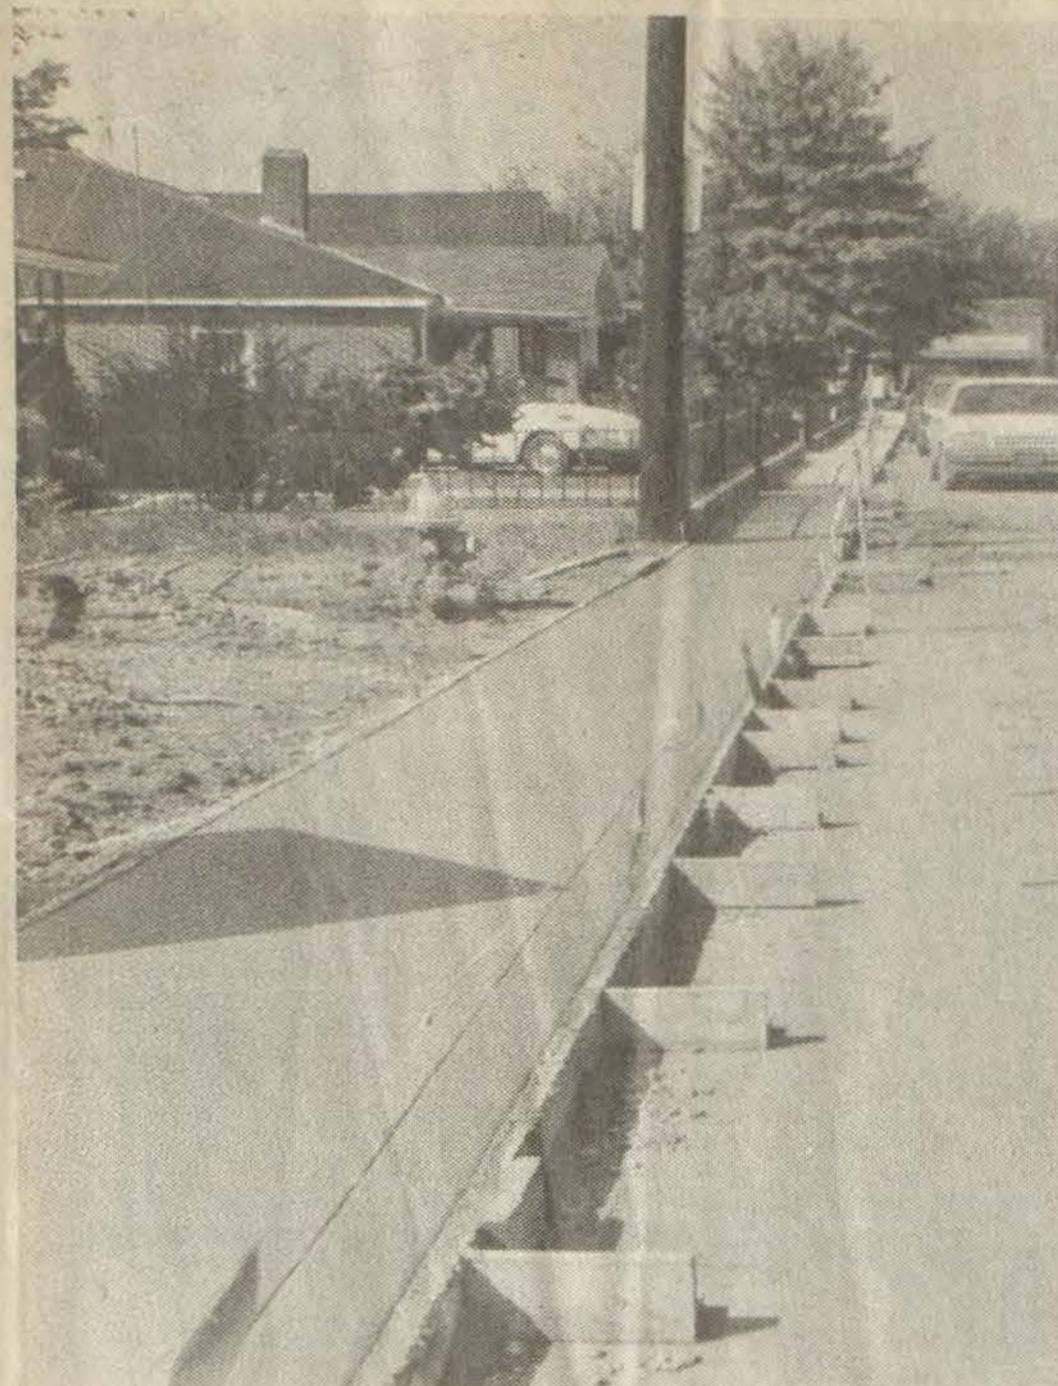

The local shelter, however, is almost literally bursting at the seams. Director Karen Ousley said that the 19-kennel facility is already crowded with animals turned in by owners who can no longer keep them. Normally, from three to four animals are cramped into one kennel cage, she said. The shelter, she said, does not have the staff or the space to round up strays.

Kentucky law is relatively strict, as Hale said, regarding an owner's responsibility for his or her animals.

Contained in Chapter 258, Volume 10 of Kentucky Revised Statutes are specific laws requiring owners to have dogs vaccinated, tagged and licensed. One law states that owners must keep their dogs confined by fence or chain "between sunset and sunrise," with hunting dogs exempted.

Statute 258.235 makes it legal for a citizen to kill a dog he or she sees in "the act of pursuing, worrying or wounding any livestock... poultry... (or) human beings," whether or not the dog is licensed. In addition, Statute 258.275 makes the owner of a marauding dog liable for destruction done by the animal to another person's property.

The law also allows city and county governments to adopt even stricter regulations regarding the control of animals and the enforcement of ordinances.

Walk This Way — On New Concrete

The end of this week will see sidewalks and water line work completed on Third Street in Prestonsburg, according to Fred James, city administrator. Also completed this week is 400 feet of sidewalks in West Prestonsburg. Projects slated for the month of October, as noted by James, are walkways on Graham, Friend, Ford Streets and Highland Avenue. The city plans to continue the work to replace sidewalks through November. The work is being done as part of Prestonsburg City Utilities' replacing water lines that date from the 1950s.

Local Medical Agencies Proposals To Be Heard By CEHC Commission

The Commission for Health Economics Control in Kentucky has scheduled a public hearing on two Eastern Kentucky health care proposals, according to Janet Williams Hoover, Cabinet for Human Resources representative.

Breast Images of Martin and Paintsville, would both establish a specialized medical technology service (mammography screening) with a $91,410 capital expenditure each.

The hearing is scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. on Friday, Oct. 6 in the first floor auditorium, Department for Health Services building, 275 E. Main St., Frankfort. It will be conducted by the three members of the commission which will vote on the project at its Nov. 15 meeting.

"I am pleased to have the opportunity to offer this service to deaf and hearing impaired Kentuckians, and encourage them to take advantage of this opportunity to participate more fully in the political process."

Editorial

It's easy to adopt a fatalistic attitude when news reports are filled with shootings, thefts, drugs, government scandals and other forms of humankind's lack of civility. It's hard to fend off depression when faced with meanspiritedness, exploitation or unfairness.

But every now and then there's a glimmer of hope, a hint that all is not lost where we mortals are concerned.

In the past couple of weeks, persons have stepped forward to say life is not always bleak; goodness and selflessness are yet alive. An out-of-state couple, for instance, had their faith renewed when a passerby found the woman's purse, filled with credit cards, cash and medicinals, and returned it to her intact. In a separate incident, the life of a choking victim was quite possibly saved when a stranger jumped up from a restaurant table and administered the Heimlich maneuver.

The purse finder could have kept what he found for himself or he could have simply ignored the black bag on the roadside. But he did neither. The diner could have refused to get involved in someone else's problem, assuming a rescue worker would have arrived sooner or later. But he did not.

Of course, for every "good" story, there's likely at least one "bad" one. Someone's wallet is stolen and never returned. Someone else suffers injury — or worse — because onlookers are hesitant to get involved.

It's much too easy for us to focus on the sad stories and glide over the uplifting ones. Our faith and optimism are sometimes quite fragile. We allow our bubbles to burst too easily.

We sometimes tend to generalize that if one person — or 20 persons — cheats us, then all people cheat. With such thinking, we cheat ourselves out of the ability to trust, and we miss countless opportunities to share and to replenish our own trustworthiness.

Sure, bad things happen. But so do good things. It's important that we keep our perspective. While we damn the bad, let's not forget to promote the good.

"Why does everybody say we built too close to the ocean? We survived the hurricane OK..."

Letters to the Editor

Appreciates 'Dr. Charlie'

Dear Editor,
I am writing to thank Dr. Charlie for doing a C-section on my daughter-in-law on Aug. 23. My daughter-in-law was in labor 27 1/2 hours, she was sick also and was having a hard time. She was getting weaker and was unable to have the baby normally. With all of the talk recently about all of the C-sections being done by Dr. Charlie, he was afraid to do another. After realizing she was unable to deliver normally, and with the pleading of my daughter-in-law and myself, he did the operation. I think that it is unfair for anyone to sit and judge what a doctor goes through during this time. If a C-section is needed the doctor, no matter who, should have the right to do the operation without fear of being prosecuted by others. I think that we ought to leave the job up to the doctors who went to school and college for this training, and let them do their job like they were trained to do. I don't believe that my granddaughter would be here now, and we might possibly have lost her mother, had the operation not been done.

If you ever had to stand by and watch anyone go through that pain, and knew that a C-section would ease everything, you wouldn't be so quick to judge. I have had three children, two were traditional deliveries and one was a C-section, and if I could do it over I would have preferred to have had all of mine by C-section. It is so much easier on the mother-to-be and the baby. So the next time that you hear about Dr. Charlie, or any doctor doing this operation, think about what the mother and baby are going through and let the doctor do his job; he is the one trained to do it and knows what is the best to do at that moment. So, once again, thank you Dr. Charlie for a fine job.

What Happened To Past Custom?

Dear Editor,
I would like to direct this letter to the people of Floyd County. In the past, for more than 70 years, when a neighbor or friend passed away in our communities, the churches and the citizens always took notice. Food was prepared by the populous and delivered to the home of the deceased to alleviate the cooking and serving all the kin and friends. This is happening less every day. Why is our friendship any less? Has our love for friends and neighbors been replaced by apathy and the attitude of "let someone else do it. Oh, there will be plenty of food for the visitors"? The families in all our communities in the past were neighborly and cared. Will you please start caring again? You will never know when tragedy will visit your home or the home of a loved one. Put a little love in your heart.

Reader Enjoyed Wayland Reunion

Dear Editor,
Maybe Tom Wolfe was right when he said, "You can't go home again," but it would be hard to prove that to the Wayland High School Class of 1941! The weekend of Sept. 15-16 was a homecoming for us. The majority of our class was there — a class of 36 wonderful friends. Since most of us were together from first grade through high school, we are more like family.

Three of our favorite teachers came and brought their "dates" — they were Bob and Jane Wallace, Chalmer and Katherine Frazier and Laurence and Edith Price. Thanks, teachers. You're still wonderful.

Our thanks also to Jenny Wiley Lodge for their hospitality, and thank you Floyd County for always being so hospitable when we just "have" to return to our beloved mountains.

As a subscriber to the Times, I keep up on all the news — even the real estate listings! Keep up the good work.

Sincerely,
Lois Hobbes Gault,
Chattanooga, Tenn.

Reader Clarifies Earlier Comment

Dear Editor,
A clarification on an item in readers point of view. I meant to imply that Coach Halbert has watched over all his students for years. What I meant is I try to keep in touch with all our former alumni. Reunions are good for everyone and what time I have left I hope we have one every year at Martin. It is an awful feeling when you have gone to school with a boy, two years college, and haven't seen him in 35 years, and run up and hug my neck and tell his wife whom I'd never seen before, "This is the guy I talk to you about all the time." Him being from the most athletic family that ever played for the Purple Flash. His dad wanted to raise a baseball team — got eight boys — got killed in the mines. The boy I am talking about is terminally ill, not much longer, but he laughed and cut up like it was the best time of his life. And to see the girl next to me in a wheel chair enjoying herself dancing with her classmates too — she at that time had no handicap. To coach Halbert, Walter Frazier, Grace Allen, all fine people, and always willing to help. This should close the reunion issue, and Glenda, Dolores, Rodney, Freda, Hubert and all of you, get ready for another big one.

No One Immune To Mental Illness

Dear Editor,
Mental Illness Awareness Week has been designated as Oct. 1-7 in Kentucky. This national public awareness campaign focuses on the facts about mental illness.

Based on national statistics, one in five Kentuckians will suffer from some form of mental illness during any six month period. Over 12 million American children, under the age of 18, will have some form of psychiatric illness in any six-month period. Mental illness directly and indirectly cost society over $249 billion per year.

What we all must understand is that no one is immune to mental illness. No family is immune to mental illness. On behalf of the Kentucky Psychiatric Association, I encourage all Kentuckians to learn more about mental illness. They also should insist on the same medical insurance coverage for mental illness as for other physical illnesses.

We invite our fellow Kentuckians to take time during Mental Illness Awareness Week to learn the facts about mental illness.

Let's talk about mental illness.
Sincerely,
Catherine Martin, MD
President
Kentucky Psychiatric Association

Soapbox

By Tess Whitmer

The definition of progress, according to Webster, is to move forward toward completion of a goal, development, improvement. But I sometimes wonder if progress is synonymous with improvement.

Recently while walking the wooded mountain upon which I live, I took note of the "progress" developing there; half of the hillside was cleared to make room for an electrical line.

The destruction of the beauty was heart wrenching. Trees were bulldozed over and left to lie, temporarily I'm told, on top of the living forest, mud prevailed and the absence of wildlife was noticeable. I realize it's squirrel season, but that certainly was not the only reason for the absence of these creatures.

My mountain has only two households on it, but an invasion of sorts is happening there. The privacy for which the houses were originally noted has been trampled on by progress. The workers inform my family that the area will be replanted, but this is a poor substitute for what existed before. I just know that the hardwoods will be replaced with pines, of course; they don't require the care and time to grow.

And what will be the fate of the living vegetation which is "temporarily" covered by the felled timbers? Not to mention the state of our driveway, which is covered with mud and is a treacherous journey in itself.

Don't get me wrong — I'm not against electricity. I use it daily, and I understand that someone's property has to be cleared to make room for the lines. But if you could see the number of lines which already clutter this rural area, you could understand my disress. There is even a large cut-through area for another high tension line only 150 yards away. It's just a shame that there is not another way for these lines to travel the countryside, possibly tangent to one another, so as to create less of an eyesore and let the trees live.

I hope that when companies ask for easements across a wooded area that all possibilities have been explored and destroying the existing beauty of Eastern Kentucky is a last resort. I also pray that the property owners granting these easements have questioned this and are not just hoping to become richer by sacrificing nature.

I find it very sad that in order to progress something must be destroyed. I guess that is the way of today's world in which we live.

Happy Birthday Seniors!

Jobs For Older Workers Offered Through Program

Applications are now being taken for the Senior Community Service Employment Project through the Big Sandy Area Community Action Program.

The program, open to persons 55 and older, is designed to prepare older workers to compete for permanent jobs by placing eligible applicants in temporary, subsidized jobs, according to a CAP spokesperson.

The federally supported employment and training program is funded by the National Council on Aging. Agencies hiring SCSEP workers at no cost are expected to develop the participants' skills and eventually to hire or release them for permanent jobs.

Kentucky received a $1.3 million federal grant for the program, which is expected to serve more than 250 senior citizens statewide.

The funding is used to subsidize the hiring of low-income Kentuckians age 55 and up who need a job and are willing to work their way up from entry level positions related to services to senior citizens within their local communities.

Most of the 252 employment slots have been filled through previous year grants. The new funding, according to Social Services Commissioner Larry Michalczyk, means those individuals may continue in their positions, and allows the state to fill openings with new recruits as the opportunities arise.

"We will again contract with eight area agencies on aging and two regional community action agencies to administer the program locally," said Michalczyk.

"Based on the average work week of 20 hours at the starting wage of $3.35 per hour, this program can subsidize employment of at least 252 people in the 49 counties covered by these agencies through next June."

For more information, call the Floyd County CAP office at 874-2965.

The contract signing is scheduled Monday, Oct. 9, in Lexington.

Health Commission To Hear Floyd County MRI Proposal

Floyd Countians may soon have access to additional health care services if the Commission for Health Economics Control in Kentucky approves a proposal by a Perry County health care firm.

Starr Medical Services of Hazard hopes establish mobile magnetic resonance imaging services for patients at Highland Regional Medical Center and Potter Medical Center in Floyd County, and at Paul B. Hall Regional Medical Center in Johnson County, as well as other regional locations.

The project involves a $948,040 capital expenditure.

Magnetic resonance imaging (MRI) is a diagnostic tool that allows physicians to see internal, three-dimensional cross sections of the body without using radiation.

The commission will vote on the project at its Wednesday, Oct. 18 meeting.

CBKC Becomes Participant Center For National Marrow Donor Program

Central Kentucky Blood Center in Prestonsburg recently became a participant "donor center" in the National Marrow Donor Program.

The local center joins 53 others across the country to recruit volunteers to be listed on a central registry of possible bone marrow donors. For the most part, says CKBC spokesman Walter Watts, these activities in the US have been based in blood collection facilities.

Marrow donor centers provide information to the public to encourage participation in marrow donations, obtain informed consent from volunteers, perform tissue typing on potential donors and forward information to the National Marrow Donor Program's registry on a monthly basis.

Upon request from the national program, the local center counsels potential donors, arranges for physical exams and marrow collection at a local facility, and transports the marrow to the transplant center.

Judi Baker, R.N., has been named donor center coordinator and will be CKBC's liaison with the national program.

As the blood center patient coordinator, Baker currently coordinates the typing and donation schedules of the center's donors. The appointment as a donor center coordinator is an enhancement of that position, Watts said.

Donors interested in registering for the national registry, or obtaining more information, may contact Baker at Central Kentucky Blood Center.

200 Attend Health Fair At OLWH

A steady drizzle of rain didn't prevent a good number of people from attending the Woman Care and Children's Fun Fair at Our Lady of the Way Hospital in Martin on Saturday, Sept. 30, according to Sister Jean Shalopin, hospital spokesperson.

Neither were spirits damped as people kept time to the strum and beat of two music groups, Sherry Hicks Prater and the Ridge Runners and the Drift Pentecostal Singers, Shalopin added. Participants spent time at the exhibits, mini-presentations and health screenings. Children young and old got their faces painted and were greeted by "Scrubby Bear."

This event initiated formally a new program at OLWH, Woman Care, which will address the needs of women.

Through the cooperation of the Floyd County Health Department and OLWH medical staff, 290 health screenings took place, including blood pressures, pap smears, blood sugars, cholesterol, CBC's, pulse oximetry and hearing and vision for children.

Sponsors of the event included Add-A-Touch, Allen Pharmacy, Archer Clinic Pharmacy, Arrow Printing, The Bank Josephine, Betsy Layne Pharmacy, Blossom Basket, Book Worm Store, Brooks Pharmacy, Dr. Eddie Clark, Christian Appalachian Project, Conley KY Food Store, Cooley

Over 200 Children Now Await Homes In Kentucky

There are more than 200 Kentucky children who are waiting to be adopted. Parental rights have been terminated and these children have been freed for adoption by Kentucky courts, according to Kathy Bohr, Cabinet for Human Resources Department of Social Services representative.

"They are mostly older children or groups of three or more brothers and sisters who need to be placed together," Bohr explained. "They may be handicapped children or black children of any age. These children, through no fault of their own, are without a permanent family in which to grow and mature into adults."

The sibling group pictured is an example of the children who are waiting. Following is a description of them given by Bohr:

Rita, age 14, is the oldest. She in the past has parented the others and still corrects and feels responsible for them. She has a cute sense of humor and is fun to be with. Rita is in the eighth grade.

Millie, age 12, loves swimming, riding bicycles and sports. She is in the fifth grade and makes friends easily.

Betty, age 11, is the quietest of the children. She is in the fourth grade. Betty is also a very active child who enjoys bicycling, playing with dolls and helping around the house.

Jackie, age 9, loves math and computers. She is in the third grade and loves to read and makes excellent grades.

Jessica, age 7, is the baby of the family. She is in the second grade, loves games, bicycles and playing with dolls.

"This beautiful family is looking for a mom and dad who will 'take care of us and love us,'" Bohr stressed.

"An adoptive subsidy is available to help a family meet the needs of the children." Persons interested in adopting this family or other children in the Special Needs Adoption Program, can contact the Social Services Office at 886-8192 or the Special Needs Adoption Program toll free at 1-800-432-9346.

Junk Vehicle Program: Potential As Fund Raiser

Enlow Cammack, coordinator of the Junk Vehicle Recovery Program, has a bulging scrapbook of good news in his small office at the Kentucky Department for Environmental Protection in Frankfort.

He's not in his office a lot, however, because he has to stay on the road to keep a successful program going. And the man labeled "Mr. Clean" by the Kentucky Post newspaper wants to do all he can to make

Kentucky cleaner, and keep it that way.

Cammack loves the job he's been doing since 1974, helping communities collect and sell junk vehicles. He sees the entire program as positive news for Kentucky and the counties that participate.

A civic organization or school group can raise money for important community projects. Their work — finding and collecting junk cars — improves the appearance of the community which, in turn, helps bring in tourist dollars.

The project gives a boost to the local economy by providing jobs. Local drivers are hired to transport the scattered junkers to a temporary storage area. Local people involved in the project see the positive results of recycling.

Besides the money that comes from selling junk cars to a scrap dealer, recycling saves energy and a natural resource. The energy saved by recycling a one-ton junk car — rather than producing the same amount of steel from iron ore — will heat a house for one year and save two tons of iron ore.

The program began in 1973. Through 1988, 37,959 junk vehicles have been removed from Kentucky's landscape and recycled. The sale of scrap metal from the junkers has raised nearly $720,000 for sponsors in 73 counties.

In 1979 and 1980, the last years in which Floyd Countians participated in a junk vehicle collection, more than $13,000 was raised from the 500-plus junkers collected.

A local project is initiated through the county judge-executive, who names a civic or school group as the sponsor. The sponsor then locates the junkers and gets releases signed from the vehicle owners. The sponsor must also furnish a temporary storage area for the collected vehicles.

When a county sponsor finds 150 cars and secures the releases, the state Division of Waste Management sends in trucks with slant beds to load and haul the junk cars to the storage site. The state also hires local persons to drive the trucks and load, transport and unload the junkers.

"It's important to hire local drivers who know the roads well and are really interested in the fund raiser being a success," said Cammack. "If the sponsoring group has a need, if the members have something they need to purchase, the local project is usually successful. It takes some work to get the junkers, but the work pays off. The junkers are out there."

And Cammack is there to help them. "I've done everything there is to do — drive the trucks, load and unload the junkers, talk to the car owners to get releases. I don't ask anybody to do anything I won't do."

Before the project gets underway, Cammack meets frequently with the sponsor's members to give them advice on how to organize the search for junkers. Cammack also meets frequently with the county judge-executive to report on progress.

Seven times since the program began, Pike County has raised more than $6,000. Pike's largest fund raiser was in 1980, when 1,025 cars were collected, producing $24,275. In the seven projects combined, Pike County collected 5,807 vehicles which brought $110,953.

Newsome's Bobcats Continue Winning Ways, Beat EC 30-9

by Ed Taylor,
Sports Editor

The Betsy Layne Bobcats might be better known as "Mudcats" — the more rain and mud, the better they seem to play.

For the past three Friday nights, the Mudcats, uh, Bobcats have found paydirt, defeating Johnson Central 16-12, Leslie County 24-14 and, most recently, rolling past the Elkhorn City Cougars 30-9.

"Our offense is really moving the ball now," Coach Gerald Newsome said of his Bobcat offense. "We just went by our game plan of establishing game control and running our off tackle plays. Our kids played just an outstanding game."

Friday night, Betsy Layne had a chance to put some early points on the board against the Cougars. In the first period, the Bobcats had a 49-yard drive with Chris Bias carrying the ball on three attempts for 11, 20 and 18 yards. However, a penalty against the Bobcats forced them to punt the ball away; the period ended with neither team scoring.

Elkhorn City took a 3-0 lead in the second stanza on a 16-yard field goal. Betsy Layne had the ball and put together another good drive, moving the ball to the Cougar 10 yard line. On first and 10, the Bobcats fumbled the ball and Elkhorn City recovered on its own 11.

Betsy Layne took an 8-3 second quarter lead when the Cougars found their backs to their end zone and little room to operate in. The Cougar quarterback was sacked in the end zone and the ball was jarred loose, with Bobcat defensive ace Tony Lykins falling on the ball for a TD. Bias ran the two point conversion.

"Our defense scored our first six points for us," Newsome said. "That says a lot about them."

The Cougars, frustrated by the Bobcat defense, tried to go over the line with pass plays. But they found the going rough in the air, as Bobcat Dave Recznik intercepted a Cougar pass and Bias scored on a 14-yard run to make it 16-3 after the conversion by Bias.

Betsy Layne quarterback Craig

Hunter, who passed for over 200 yards in the game, put six more on the board with a 49-yard bomb to Chad Mitchell. Bias ran the conversion and the Bobcats were rolling, 22-3.

In the third Betsy Layne's power runner, Morris Adkins (who has been out with a broken foot), scored on a trap up the middle from 22 yards out. Adkins also scored the conversion to make it 30-3.

"Morris scored on leg strength," Newsome recalled. "It was an ideal play for him to run."

Newsome's reserves played the third and fourth periods and turned in a good defensive and offensive game, according to the Betsy Layne coach.

"We put our JVs in and they scored on us in the last period," the Betsy Layne mentor stated. "Our kids wanted to see how many points they could score, and I told them that what goes around, comes around. We might find ourselves in the same situation some day."

"Elkhorn City wasn't stopping our game, so we stayed with it. We passed more than we normally do," explained Newsome. "Craig had a great game for us at quarterback."

"Chris Stewart had a good defensive game. Our defense created a lot of offense for us in the game."

The Bobcats' confidence is growing with each win, according to Newsome.

"The kids have confidence in our coaching staff. They have respect for us and that makes them play with confidence," he said.

"We have no stories to tell our kids how we led this school or that school to a title or a successful season. We have eliminated the outside influence and attitudes have changed. They enjoy being bragged on instead of cussed at. I tell them I am proud of being on the field with them. Even when we were 0-3, I was proud."

The Bobcats have improved their record to 3-3 on the season and will entertain Whitesburg in a District 2 game this Friday night at the Lloyd Hamilton Athletic Complex in an 8 p.m. start.

Allen Central Rebels Splatter Past KSD Saturday, 28-14

Need Help, Ref?

Tim Slone (51) of Allen Central tries to give the officials a helping hand in calling a touchdown against KSD. The Rebels won their second straight game with a 28-14 victory over KSD.

by Anne Chaney,
Editor

The Allen Central Rebels slid and splattered their way past the Kentucky School for the Deaf in Saturday afternoon football action, picking up their second win of the season, 28-14.

Mired in mud, KSD and ACHS kept primarily to ground games after passes early on slid through receivers' wet hands.

Midway through the first period, with both teams scoreless, Tommy Gibson took a KSD punt across mid-field and, on the next play, took the ball to the 40 for a first down. Carries by John Slone, Adam Tackett and Gibson moved the ball to near the 10. A short carry by Gibson made it second and four. Tackett ran the ball into the end zone for the first score of the game, and Gibson completed the two point conversion for an 8-0 Rebel lead.

KSD took the kick at the 34 and gained four on the ground. A 22-yard pass to Joshua Spalding took the squad to the ACHS 39, but KSD couldn't pick up another first down and elected to punt.

Belfry Rolls Past Prestonsburg

by Ed Taylor,
Sports Editor

Coach Bill Letton's Prestonsburg Blackcats lost their third consecutive game in a 34-15 loss to the tough Belfry Pirates Friday. Having to play in the mud for the third straight game, the Blackcats were unable to move the football on the ground.

The losing streak began when Prestonsburg fell to Paintsville 14-6, followed by a 67-13 loss to Danville. Friday's game dropped the Blackcats below the .500 mark for the first time this season at 3-4.

Prestonsburg took the ball on the opening kickoff and held the ball for the first six minutes of the game. After the second series of downs, Prestonsburg punted away and Belfry's Dale Oliver fumbled, with the Blackcats recovering the pigskin. Belfry had the football on the Blackcat 9 yard line when the first period ended, with the teams knotted in a scoreless tie.

In the opening seconds of the second stanza, Russell Carter carried the ball from 4 yards out for a Pirate touchdown. Brad Barker added the field goal to put Belfry up, 7-0.

On Prestonsburg's next possession, Worth McGuire failed to get off a good punt and the Pirates took over on the Prestonsburg 34. Kelly Williamson carried the ball to the Blackcat 14 on a 20-yard run. Carter took it to the 1, where Belfry quarterback Grady Moore carried it into the end zone for a 14-0 lead after Barker's second extra point.

Prestonsburg struck on first down on a busted play, when Aaron Flannery galloped 65 yards for a touchdown. Jason Storey's field goal made it 14-7.

With Belfry leading 34-7 late in the fourth, Prestonsburg scored a touchdown when Allen James, who came in to replace an injured Aaron Tucker, hit Mike Crace in the end zone with 2:48 to go in the game. On the field goal attempt the snap from center was mishandled and Storey nicked up the football and ran it in for a two point conversion to make the final score 34-15.

Dale Oliver ran for 77 yards for the Pirates on four carries, including a 68-yard touchdown run. Dave Pinson carried nine times for 63 yards. Moore had three completions in eight

It was a typical Friday night at Bracket Field in Wheelwright — it was high school football time and it rained. It was homecoming night for the Trojans, and Billie See, daughter of Bill and Geneva See of Melvin, was crowned football Homecoming Queen of 1989.

After the pomp and pageantry had ended, it was time to get serious and play football. The Evarts Wildcats got very serious on defense they held the Trojans to only 101 yards in handing WHS their seventh defeat of the season, 36-0.

Evarts' outstanding runner, Scott Russell, ranked third in the state in rushing and pushing the 1,000-yard mark, totaled 212 yards on the ground for the Wildcats.

The defensive line was solid for the Wildcats as Trojan quarterback Steven Johnson was sacked five times. "Our offensive line stunk," said Trojan coach Roger Johnson in summing up the game. "Our defense was good in the first half. Then, in the second half, we just went down."

It didn't take the Wildcats long to put seven points on the scoreboard. After the Trojans were forced to punt on their first series of downs, Evarts took over on their own 25 yard line. Quarterback Benji Coleman hit wide receiver Don Mills with a pass and Mills went 65 yards for the touchdown. The completed pass kept intact Coleman's average of passing for one touchdown per contest. After the field goal, Evarts was on top 7-0.

Russell's 52-yard touchdown and Luther Posey's field goal with 9:41 remaining in the second period gave the Wildcats a 14-0 half time lead.

On the opening kick off of the second half, Wheelwright tried an off sides kick that Evarts mishandled and fumbled, and the Trojans recovered the football on Evarts' 45 yard line.

The Trojans seemed to be gaining some momentum in the third quarter, putting together a good drive of their own and marching to the Evarts 27 yard line. They fell short, however, and had to turn the ball over on downs.

With 2:44 remaining in the third, Evarts halfback Brad Kirby took the football in from 14 yards out, and Kirby ran the two point conversion to make it 22-0.

Things got worse for the Trojans late in the third when Wheelwright was forced to punt from their own 5 yard line. The punt was blocked and recovered in the end zone by the Wildcats for a touchdown. Frank Davis ran the ball for the two point conversion to make it 29-0.

Kirby topped off the Evarts scoring on a 1-yard plunge to give the Wildcats their final score of 36-0.

"Russell is the best we have seen this season," Johnson said of the performance of the Evarts fullback. "He is like a Timex watch, he takes a licking and keeps on ticking. He gives you those second and third efforts. It's hard to bring him down."

"We weren't looking for the pass from Evarts. The game we scouted them in, they did not pass one time. They come out against us and on the first play they passed for a touchdown. We just weren't looking for the pass, and the second man through killed us also."

Evarts coach Dale Music had high praise for the Trojans. "They could have folded. They are a credit in the fact they came to play. Coach Johnson's kids made a great effort and he has some very good athletes. "We didn't play as well as I would have liked," Music continued. "I think

Archer Park Tennis Courts To Be Refurbished This Week

by Ed Taylor,
Sports Editor

Archer Park's tennis courts will be undergoing a face lift this week, and when refurbishing is completed, the courts will meet United States Tennis Association specifications, according to Ralph Little, park director.

Tennis Tech of Louisville, the low bidder on the project, is overseeing the work.

"We were about to lose them," says Little of the courts, which had fallen into disrepair in recent years. "Sand and grass were coming through cracks on the surface and the court has some dips and rolls in it."

The upper two courts, previously built on a slant, will be level after workers dig down and fill about 10 feet. After resurfacing, the courts will cure for three weeks before color coding and stripes are added.

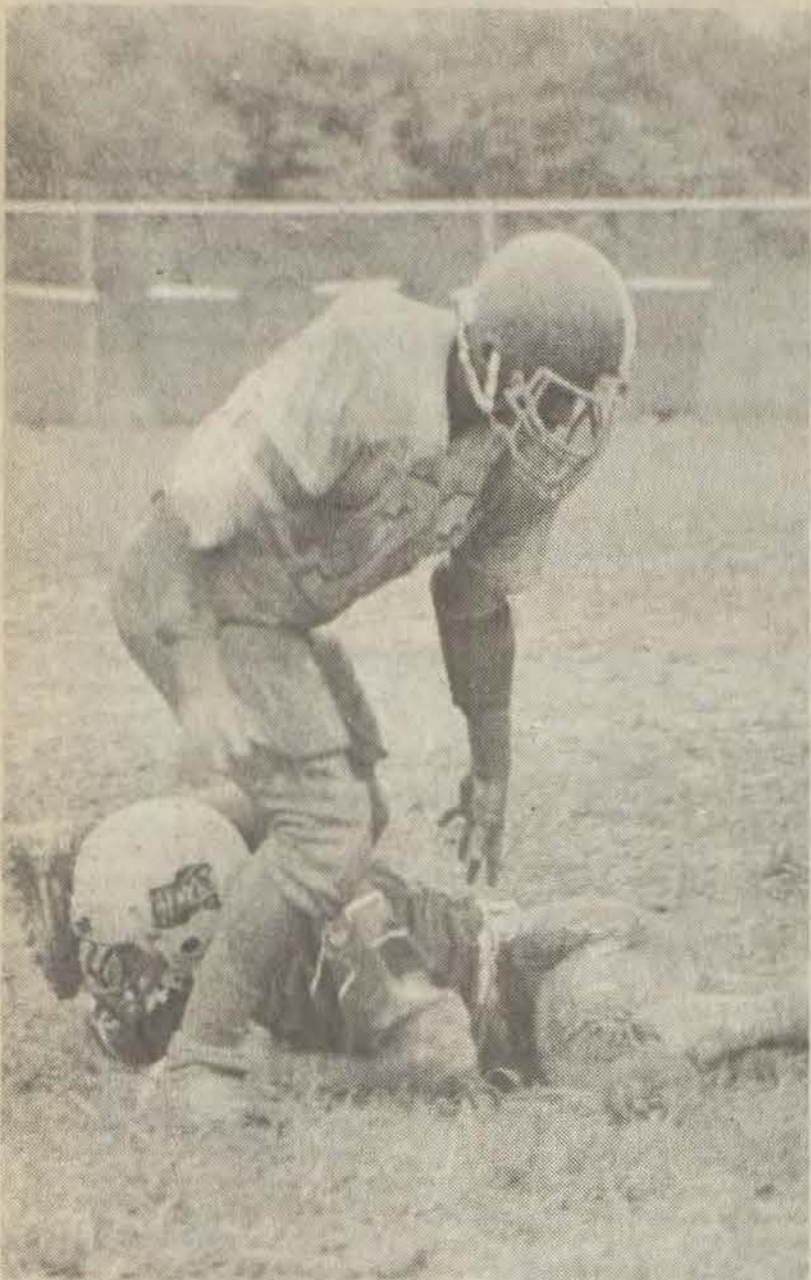

"We feel if we don't refinish them now, we won't be able to do them later. The courts should be completed this fall, around the first week of November," said Little.

Park officials plan to hold an invitational tennis tournament to mark the renovations. "Then, we plan on having around two tournaments a year," Little said. "We have one of the largest tournaments in Eastern Kentucky here at the park, the Branham and Baker tournament that drew around 130 participants.

"The courts will be for public use. We wanted to improve them for the public — and it is being done at a considerable expense," he added.

The two tournaments held this year, headed up by Kay Willis, drew players from the local area as well as out of county and out of state.

Left Beaver F&G Club To Organize October 5

According to Floyd County Conservation Officer Ken Amburgey, the Left Beaver Fish and Game Club will be holding an organizational meeting on Thursday, Oct. 5 at 7 p.m. at the McDowell High School auditorium.

For more information, contact Greg Kidd at 377-1172. All Left Beaver sportsmen are invited to come to this special meeting.

Getting New Courts

Work continues at Archer Park as new tennis courts are being installed. New asphalt will be put down and the court will be permitted to cure before it is color-coded and striped. The courts are expected to reopen this fall.

Some people believe the first frost will be six weeks after a katydid is heard.

Tucker threw the ball four times with no completions. James passed six times and completed two, one for a TD.

Prestonsburg will take on District 2 opponent Leslie County this Friday night at Prestonsburg in a top district game at 8 p.m.

Garbage Is Forever

During my campaign for magistrate 4 years ago, I talked to you about our roadside litter and the garbage crisis in Floyd County. At that time Floyd County was not a "Regional Garbage Dump," but on September 18, 1987 the Fiscal Court voted 3 to 2 to take out-of-county garbage.

According to my information, we are now taking waste at our landfill that would make our roadside litter look like a "picnic lunch." It is very easy to criticize people for their views on issues if they differ from our own. Since Edward Caudill's vote was instrumental in making Floyd County a "Regional Dump" and my opponent offers you "Continued Service," I will give them the opportunity to desend his vote and to explain the current status of our solid waste system—such as:

How many counties are using our facilities? At what price? Where does the money go? Has our fiscal court been approached to take out-of-state garbage? How many tons per day? How many million dollars per year? Are we now taking out of state garbage? Are we now accepting noxious wastes?

Trojan Defense

The Wheelwright Trojans key their defense on Everts' Scott Russell, who is third in the state in rushing, and ran for 212 yards against the Trojans in leading the Wildcats to a 36-0 win. Number 12 is Steven Johnson.

WHS

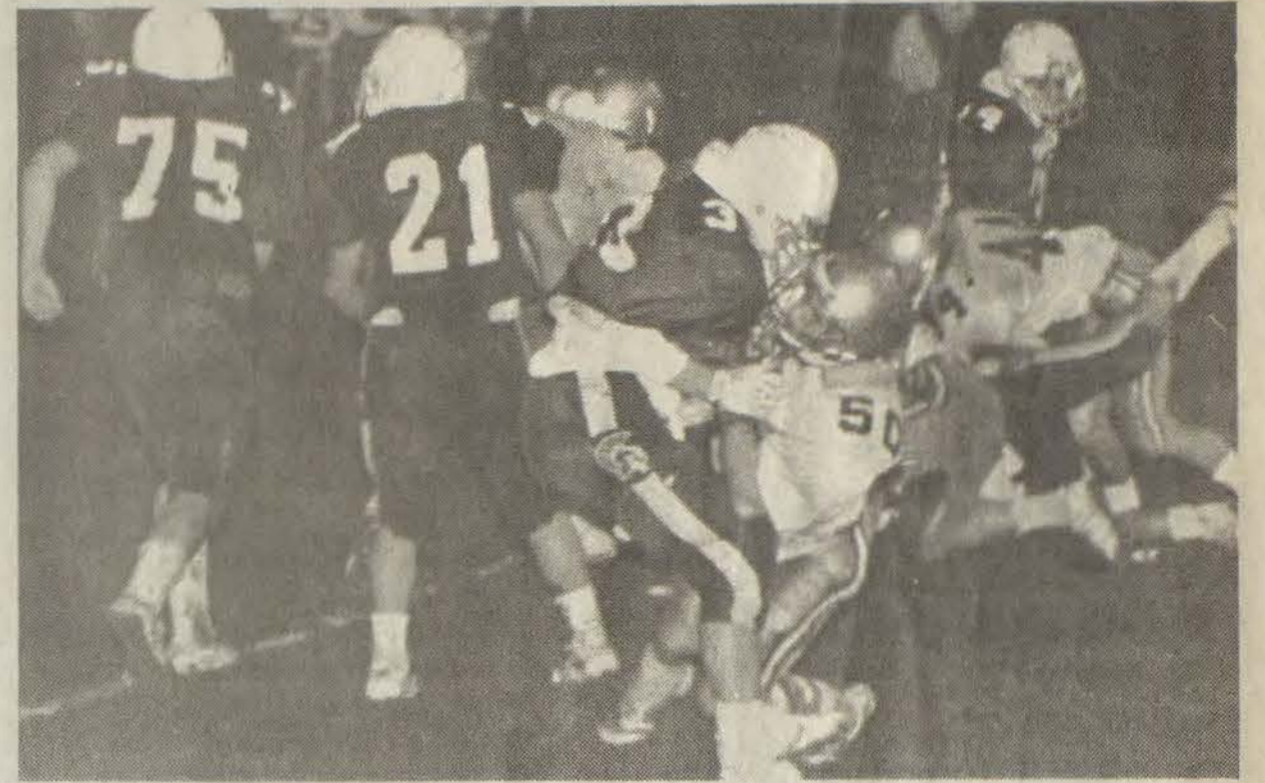

we were a little over-confident coming into tonight's game. We made some adjustments at half time and did much better in the second half."

The Wildcats will take on Pineville in a big district game this Friday night at Pineville. Coach Music says that his troops are looking forward to the contest.

The Trojans had difficult time moving the ball, whether in the air or on the ground. Wheelwright rushed for 140 yards but had a minus 39 for 101 yards total. Senior Bobby Hood carried 11 times for 95 yards. Senior halfback Chad Hall carried nine times for just 30 yards. Mike Justice rushed for 11 yards on seven carries. The Trojans gained only 6 yards in the air as quarterback Steve Johnson hit Hall with a 6-yard pass. Wheelwright was assessed 45 yards in penalties, while Everts totaled 70.

The Trojans will travel to Virgie Friday night to take on the Eagles. Game time is 8 p.m.

Offensive Breakdown

The Trojans' offensive line had some breakdowns in its game against Everts Friday night at Wheelwright. The breakdowns allowed the Wildcat defense to stop the Trojans' running game. Everts prevailed in the game, 36-0.

ACHS

During their possession, the Rebels fumbled and recovered, but likewise could not gain a first down. KSD took over for a brief stint, as their first pass play on that possession was intercepted by Gibson. Gibson injured an ankle on the play and was pulled from action by Coach Donnie Daniels. Replacement Jamie Rister took a handoff plays later to pick up a first down at the 32. Quarterback B.J. Aldrich was hit behind scrimmage for a loss of three, and a fumble on the next play brought up third and 14.

ACHS fumbled again, and recovered, but KSD took over on downs.

KSD tossed three air strikes on consecutive plays, connecting on the last in the series — but to an ACHS Rebel. ACHS took over on the 33, and Gibson got a gain of three. Aldrich threw incomplete to Terry Spurlock, brining up third down. Spurlock made good on the second attempt, falling across the goal line with :02 remaining to bring the Rebs to 14-0. The two point attempt failed, and the half ended.

Although Gibson was out for much of the second stanza, he led the Rebs in rushing at mid-point, with 48 on 10 carries. Tackett churned out 35 yards and a touchdown on six carries, followed by Slone with five carries for 17 yards. Aldrich had completed two passes, including one to Spurlock for a touchdown.

ACHS gained little yardage on its next possession, turning the ball over to KSD. The Rebel defense stiffened up, forcing three incomplete passes to return the ball to ACHS hands. After picking up a first down on a draw play, the Rebs picked up three more first downs before the quarter ended.

Ticking only three seconds off the clock in the fourth, John Slone took the ball into the end zone and picked up the additional points to hold a commanding 22-0 lead.

KSD marched all the way down field and picked up a first down on AC's 21 yard line with 9:18 to go. With several Rebel junior varsity members on the field, KSD inched its way to the 10 and picked up another first down. A quick handoff and rush saw KSD sweep around the right for a touchdown. The conversion was incomplete, but KSD was on the scoreboard, trailing 22-6.

Allen Central took the kick on the 38 and gained three first downs enroute to the paydirt end of the field. On fourth down, Aldrich fumbled the ball, picked it up and threw it to Rebel Brett Meadows, who ran it into the end zone for a touchdown. The conversion attempt saw a fumble, but ACHS retained a 28-6 lead with less than a minute remaining in the contest.

KSD, trying until the last, ran a sweep around the right side and found their way into the end zone. The conversion pass was good, and the score stood 28-14 with ACHS leading.

On its last possession, ACHS gained two first downs in 40 seconds, but was unable to make its way to end zone territory.

The Rebels will be coming off the win over KSD and Berea the week prior as they head into Saturday's 2 p.m. contest against Hazard at Allen Central.

Heintzelman played half of a quarter and netted two points against Clark.

Clark was led in scoring by Christy Little with nine points. Rebecca Webb added eight.

Brook Allen led the Lady Blackdevils with 10 points. Chrystal Mullins had three.

Vote For James D. (Doug) Fitzpatrick Magistrate District No. 2

I have been asked this question many times by my friends. Why do you want to be Magistrate?

I want to take this opportunity to explain my reason for wanting to serve the voters and the tax payers of Magistrate Dist. No. 2. I have been dissatisfied for several years as to what the office of magistrate is costing the taxpayers of Floyd County. Taxpayers do you know that the position of magistrate of Floyd County is costing you over $100,000 per year—$400,000 for four years. I think that is an excessive fee for that office. Our present magistrate receives over $25,000 per year for his part time job as magistrate, while he holds down a fulltime job with a coal company as a equipment mechanic.

Back to the expense of the magistrate office, it is costing the tax payers of Kentucky over $1,000,000 per year, and Floyd County ranks third in magistrate pay in the state of Kentucky. The only two counties which pay more money for magistrate's is Leslie County at $36,000 per year, Pike County at $29,000 and Floyd comes in third at over $25,000. Tax payers if you wonder where I got this information, I got it from the office of the Governor, Department of Local Government, Frankfort, Ky. Taxpayers and voters of Floyd County at the present time have been hit very hard with un-employment in our county. The mining industry, has cut back and laid off hundreds of our people. I am deeply concerned about their children being able to attend college when they graduate from high school.

My plan if you voters want to elect me your magistrate: I am going to take 50% of the magistrate salary (less taxes) and put it in a scholarship fund at Allen Central High School to help educate some of the high school graduates that want to attend college or vocational school. If I could help 10 or 12 high school graduates get a college education, then I think I have left some tracks that will last a long time.

If you voters want to elect me, I will assure you that I will be a conservative member of the fiscal court and a guardian of your tax dollars. I will not be one who will go along to get along.

I want to thank you voters for the support that you have showed me in this campaign. I will be on the job full time and I will be honest, sober and dependable.

James D. Fitzpatrick
(Pol. adv. paid for by the candidate)

Voters of District One,

I come to you at this time to ask for your support in the November election. I stand on my record and service to the people of my district and Floyd County. For the past eight years, Floyd County has seen many changes for the better. Our parks, roads, sanitation and sewer systems have all been upgraded. I know that we are headed in the right direction, so with your help, allow me to continue to build a Floyd County we can all be proud of now, and for future generations to come. I will continue to serve all people of the district and cooperate with other county and city government officials to help Floyd County grow in all positive areas.

In closing, I have no mud to sling or arguments to pick. I can only ask you to let me continue to be your voice in the fiscal court. However, this cannot happen unless you, the voter, feels our future is important enough to go to the polls November 7 and cast your vote for continued, honest and efficient leadership. Please go to the polls and cast your vote for Gerald DeRossett and I will continue to serve the people with the utmost honesty and integrity.

Thank you,
GERALD DeROSSETT

Mud Ball

The rains fell all day Saturday as the Allen Central Rebels played the KSD at the Don Daniels Athletic Complex. The game resembled a good game of mud ball. KSD fell to the Rebels, 28-14.

Fair Weather Fans They're Not

Students, fans and parents braved the rain and mud to watch their Allen Central Rebels take on KSD in football action last Saturday afternoon at ACHS. The fans were not disappointed as the Rebs won over KSD, 28-14.

Garrett's Strong 3rd Defeats Clark, 52-40

The Garrett Blackdevils took advantage of a cold third period by the Clark Indians to defeat a game Clark team, 52-40.

"We went to the dressing room at half time trailing by just three points and came back ice cold in the third period," Clark mentor Dale Hamilton stated. "They had a cold second quarter and we could not capitalize on their slowness."

A balanced attack helped the Blackdevils to the victory, led by Jeremy Hall's 21 points. Josh Hansford netted 11 points and Stewart Turner added 10.

Garrett held a first quarter lead of 12-9 and went on top at the half by three 16-13. It was in the third stanza that the Blackdevils outscored the Indians 18-3 to go on and post the 52-40 victory.

T-Tom Slone and Dale Crum paced the Indians in scoring with 13 points each. Jeremy Osborne and Jeff Johnson each added four points.

In the JV game, Clark won in overtime over Garrett, 39-33. Jason Osborne was tops in the scoring department for the young Indians with 12 points. Brother Jeremy Osborne had 10 in the win. Garrett was led by Josh Hansford with eight. Brad Allen, Donovan Hall and Kyle Tucker tossed in six each.

Clark 49321 (40); T-Tom Slone, 37-813; Jeremy Osborne, 20-04; Dale Crum, 4-5-10 13; Jeff Johnson, 04-64; Mike Arnett, 22-56 at Garrett 12 6 18 16 (52); Eric Cathers, 4 0-08; Jeremy Hall, 10 1-121; Burt Stephens, 10-02; Stewart Turner, 50-0 10; Josh Hansford, 5 1-1 11.

Sports Nostalgia

Even in 1989, basketball fans from the '50s era and others who have been told about his feats are still talking about perhaps the best schoolboy basketball player to come out Kentucky—"King" Kelly Coleman. Coleman played for the Wayland Wasps in the mid-1950s and finished his career at Wayland with a personal show in the KHSAA state tournament.

The following is an excerpt from the Floyd County Times dated March 22, 1956.

"King" Kelly Coleman set a new state scoring record for the Kentucky High School Basketball tournament at Memorial Coliseum in Lexington with 68 points against Bell County in the consolation game of the state tournament. Wayland lost to Carr Creek, 68-67 on a last second shot by Freddie Maggard from 30 feet with Wayland leading 67-66. Coleman had previously tossed in 50 points against Shelbyville in the opening game of the tourney, which was a sellout of 13,000 fans. Most of Wayland had come to see their local cager perform.

Wayland and Coleman set state records in their tournament appearances. In 41 games Wayland netted 3,709 points for an average of 90.4 per game, the highest ever by a Kentucky prep team. Coleman had 1,919 points for a personal average of 46.8 points per game.

Wayland became the third team in state basketball history to win 35 games in one season.

Another record by Wayland was that Coleman's teammates, Elmon Hall, Melvin Robinson, Bill Futz and Billy Combs each average in double figures.

Another high school standout that was overshadowed by Coleman's performance was Lowell Hughes of Prestonsburg. Hughes totaled 927 points for an average of 40.6.

When you talk about mountain basketball you have to include Kelly Coleman in your conversation for he was... the best.

RE-ELECT JACKIE EDFORD OWENS

MAGISTRATE-DIST. 2
THE ONLY DEMOCRAT ON THE DEMOCRATIC TICKET
FOR MAGISTRATE!

The Election isn't over until November 7. I have one more race. I have an Independent candidate against me this fall. Since I don't have a "Republican" candidate against me, I am asking the "Republican" party - as well as the "Democrat" party to come out on November 7th and VOTE FOR and RE-ELECT ME - JACKIE EDFORD OWENS MAGISTRATE - Dist. 2. People, I believe in a "two" party system - "Democrats" and "REPUBLICANS". I don't believe in voting for the Independent party or Communist party or WHATEVER - "Two" parties are all we need.

An Auxier player lays in a basket against the Mountain Christian Academy Falcons in an elementary game played Monday evening at Auxier. The Hornets won the game 67-17.

Auxier Defeats 'Undermanned' MCA

The Auxier Hornets won their second game of the season to improve their record to 2-0 in elementary basketball play. The Hornets defeated a gamaged but otherwise small and undermanned Mountain Christian Academy 67-17.

MCA is just revitalizing its basketball program after suspending play for the past two years. The school doesn't have the number of students to choose from like the larger county schools do, and has to play fourth and fifth graders on its varsity team.

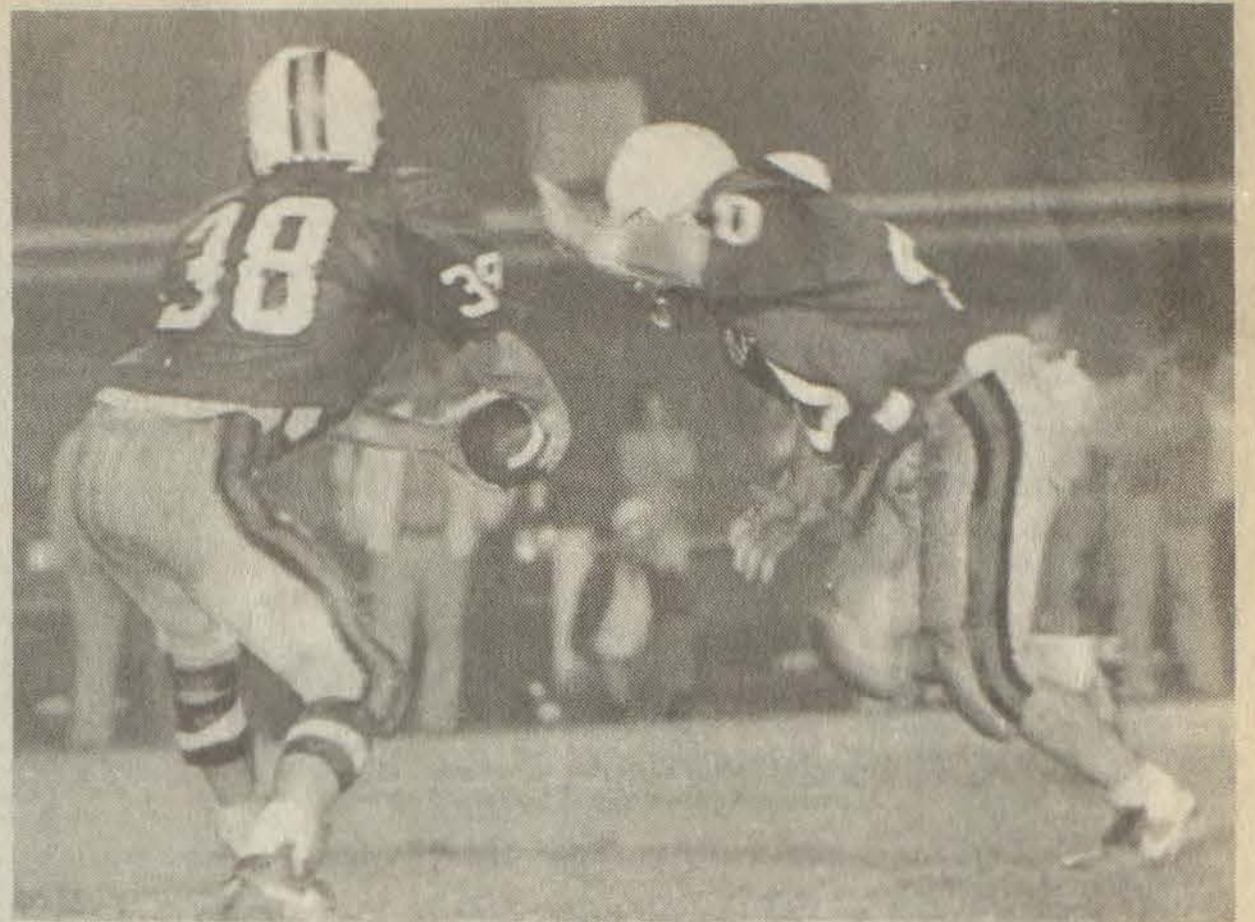

Steve Adkins poured in 20 points to lead the Hornets in the scoring department. Jason Burke tossed in 16 for the winners.

Auxier used its height advantage and ran the up-tempo game, getting a lot of uncontested lay ins. The Hornets lead at the half, 32-9.

Both teams substituted freely in the second half as the Hornets rolled to their second win.

Jonathan Baca led the Falcons in scoring with six points. Joseph Risner added five for coach Harold Tackett's MCA squad.

Bassin' With the Pros

Smallmouth Bass Are Normally More Aggressive Than Largemouths

If you're looking for a fish that acts like it wants — really wants — to take your lure away from you, try going after a smallmouth bass.

"In my experiences fishing around the United States, smallmouth are always far more aggressive than either largemouth or spotted bass," says Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff member Larry Nixon. "It seems as if smallmouths actually attack lures."

That characteristic, says Nixon, allows anglers to work lures faster. His favorite smallmouth lure is a big spinnerbait, but he also likes topwater poppers, jigs and even crank baits.

"Smallmouth are not as ambush-oriented as largemouths," explains the well-known pro. "Instead, they tend to roam more than largemouths do, and they don't use cover quite the same way largemouths do, either."

"Smallmouth love riprap points, rocky banks and hard sand bottom, but instead of holding in one place, the fish stay on the go."

"I've caught a lot of smallmouth in the St. Lawrence River of New York," continues the Evinrude pro, "and there the fish are near vegetation. Instead of fishing the grass slowly and methodically with a worm the way we probably would for largemouth, we reel a white spinnerbait just under the surface and catch all the smallmouths we want."

Not surprisingly, Nixon's favorite way to relax is fishing for smallmouth, but instead of chasing them on the big reservoirs, he likes to wade small streams for them.

"Give me a light spinning rod, 6- or 8-pound test line, and some small hair jigs or spinnerbaits, and I'll be set," he laughs. "I grew up fishing this way for smallmouth in some of the creeks in Arkansas, and I've never gotten over it."

Many anglers enjoy fishing for smallmouth at night during the summer and early fall months, continues Nixon, and again the primary lure is a spinnerbait.

"A lot of nice smallmouth are caught by working a big spinnerbait over some of the shallow flats where there are rocks or stumps in six to 10 feet of water," says Nixon. "At night the smallmouth move into these areas to feed."

"Some anglers will slow-roll a big spinnerbait — a heavy lure with a single size 7 blade — through this cover. Others like to use a slow but steady up-and-down retrieve where the lure climbs off the bottom, then slowly falls back down."

"Strikes from big smallmouth at night are almost scary," laughs Nixon. "It's dark, you've been fishing without a strike for a long time and are starting to get a little sleepy, and all of a sudden it feels like a bomb hits your lure."

"It's hard to believe a freshwater fish can hit a lure so hard, but a smallmouth does."

Keepers

The millions of miles of river systems throughout America often pose bass fishing problems for anglers who spend most of their time fishing reservoirs. But Paul Elias, one of the finest river bass fishermen in the country and the 1982 BASS Masters Classic champion, says anglers need to remember just one factor to be successful river anglers.

"The key to consistently catching bass when fishing a river system is to remember that these bass are current-oriented," says Elias, who has qualified for nine BASS Master Classics.

"In a river system, bass hold just out of the current and watch for food to come washing by. Therefore, I always cast upstream and bring my bait downstream to the fish just like a baitfish would naturally be moving."

This 38-year-old professional tournament angler depends heavily on his knowledge of rivers to show him where bass should be holding. "If you're going down a long clay bank in the river and suddenly notice a sandy spot amidst the clay, then that sandy area should indicate a shallow water break on the edge of the bank," Elias notes. "Usually, where those shallow, sandy regions drop off into deep water, you'll find stumps and logs under the water which the bass will relate to."

"You also need to watch for areas where small creeks and ditches run into the main river. Oftentimes, bass will lie in the mouths of these ditches or creek cuts where they'll be out of the current but can still feed on baitfish that are moving with the current. By reeling a crankbait from the shallow water down into the ditch, you may trigger a strike by a bass. At other times of the day, the bass may move up into the shallow water to feed. At still other times, they may be holding in the creek channel below a sandbar."

When Elias is river fishing, he relies heavily on three types of baits and three river tactics to find, and then catch, his bass.

"Sometimes I cast a crankbait on top of a sandbar and crank it down into the ditch," Elias says. "The key to fishing the crankbait correctly is to be able to get the lure down quickly and have it stay down and work slowly. That's why I use Quantum's Crankin' Reel. It's 3.8:1 gear ratio allows me to retrieve the lure more slowly and at deeper depths."

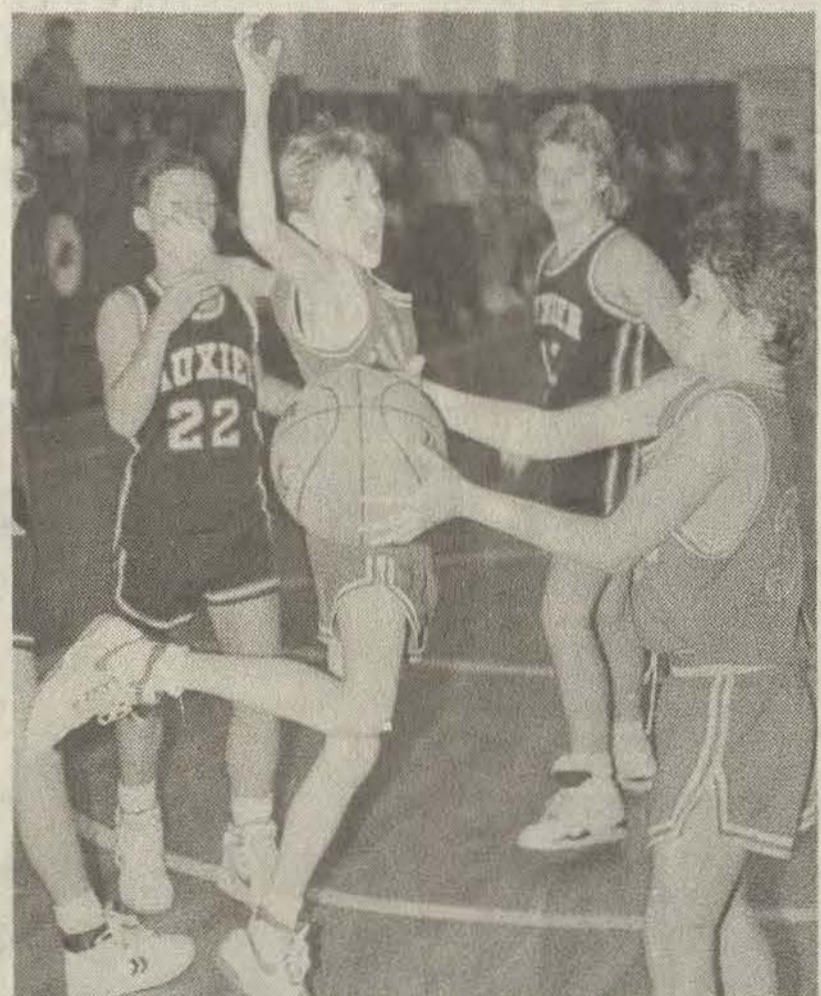

"I'll also fish a Carolina rig with a 1-ounce bullet sinker, a barrel swivel below the sinker, three to four feet of leader off of the bottom, and a Mann's Limit Finder worm." These baits are worked along river points, sandbars, the ends of islands, and most other structures which might hold a river bass.

The third technique Elias utilizes is fishing a lead-headed tailspinner like Mann's Little George. "This lure is heavy enough to stay close to the bottom and in contact with the cover, even if the current is swift and you have to fish fairly deep," Elias says. "When I'm fishing this bait, I'll also use a ripping technique to snatch the lure up off the bottom to give off a different vibration which might trigger a strike."

Paul Elias is noted for "not following the crowd" when he is tournament fishing. "If you can do something different than everyone else, I believe you stand a better chance of catching more fish" . . . and winning the tournament! While most river anglers will be casting plastic worms and spinnerbaits, Elias concentrates on crankbaits, do-nothing worms, and tailspinners. "If you can master these lures when fishing rivers," Elias states, "you can become a successful river bass angler."

Until next week, Good Fishing!

Drop Kick

Joseph Risner of Mountain Christian Academy seems to be drop kicking the basketball instead of rebounding against the Auxier Hornets. The Hornets won their second game, 67-17 over the Falcons.

Auxier JV Slips Past MCA, 22-20

In a game that went down to the final seconds, the Auxier Hornets JV defeated the Mountain Christian Academy JV in a close one, 22-20.

The Hornets held an 18-11 lead going into the fourth period when the younger Falcons outscored the Hornets 9-0 to take a 20-18 lead. Auxier tied the score at 20-20 on a basket by Ervin Osborne. With 16 seconds showing on the clock, Catrell Farler hit a 15-foot jumper to win the game for the Hornets, 22-20. The Falcons had a chance to tie the game but lost the ball on a turnover.

Osborne lead all scorers with 16 points. Jonathan Baca topped the Falcons in scoring with seven points. Joseph Risner added six points.

MCA 2945 (20): Risner, 110-46; Moore, 12-13; Baca, 24-37; D. Risner, 20-0-4. at Auxier 8644 (22): Wright, 20-0-4; Osborne, 80-0-16; Farler, 10-0-2.

Pocket billiards have come a long way from the smoke filled pool halls of the past. Things have changed in the past few years as the game has now become a sport and is no longer referred to as "pool," but pocket billiards. It is estimated that between 35 and 50 million people in the world play pocket billiards, making it the second fastest growing sport in America today next to bowling. Bowling activity has increased by 27 percent, whereas pocket billiards has increased by 26 percent.

Since the early days of pocket billiards, the game was related to shady characters and dark back rooms. The sport has changed and so have the halls it is played in. Today's billiard halls in larger metropolitan areas are lavishly decorated and have plush lounges and refreshment bars. They are well lighted and are catering more to the family as they try to lose the image of the past.

One man who has been traveling since 1982 to promote the sport of pocket billiards is Gene "The Mighty Glove" Catron from Baton Rouge, La. A native of the Grundy, Va., area and familiar with Appalachia, Catron has been playing pocket billiards ("pool," when he started) since he was eight years old.

"I went with my dad to a pool hall for the first time when I was eight years old and I told my dad that I wanted some big marbles like those," the touring pro explained. Catron has been playing ever since. However, he isn't as active in tournament play as he would like since he is in demand for trade shows, conventions and television shows.

Catron has appeared on some of the world's top rated programs. Here in the United States, he's been on Johnny Carson's Tonight Show to demonstrate trick and fancy pool shots. He has traveled to Japan and

England and appeared on the top television shows in each country and has made commercials for national leading products.

He has appeared with such celebrities as Charlton Heston, Angie Dickinson and Clint Eastwood.

His greatest feat was when he appeared on "That's Incredible" and knocked in 49 billiard balls with one shot. He is currently working on trick shots using illusions with mirrors and wants to be able to make 125 balls in one shot. He has made video tapes on 51 different trick shots.

Catron has been nicknamed "The Mighty Glove" because he never plays the game without wearing a glove. But it isn't a glove for baseball players, bowlers and golfers. Not according to Catron.

"The cue stick slides better on a glove than it does on the skin," he says. "Others (players) are picking up on it."

"When I was 12 years old I was beating everyone," remarked Catron.

"I turned pro at the age of 18 years old. I played in my first tournament at 20. That was the New Orleans Open in 1976. I joined the pro tour and have been in shows in Alabama, Florida and throughout the East coast.

Catron wants to work something out with HBO for a five minute spot between programming to televise some pocket billiard tournaments. He is determined to promote the sport that has been good to him over the years.

A positive image of the game is important to Catron. "We have dress codes at all the shows we do and at tournaments the pros play in. It's suit and tie, no t-shirts and jeans.

Even though he is busy making personal appearances and doing trade shows, Catron said he misses another favorite pastime, fishing. "I love to fish," he said. "But I don't have time to go like I want to. Maybe when I retire I can get caught up with my fishing."

What is a touring billiard pro doing in Prestonsburg? He is slated to put on a show at the Cue Palace in the Highlands Plaza tonight at 7:30. Everyone is welcome to come and watch some Trick and Fancy Shots by this touring pro.

KENTUCKY'S FALL FISHING
Autumn in Kentucky is a great time to wet a line and try for muskie, trout, black bass and crappie along shoreline cover.

As days shorten and colorful leaves lose their hold on woody branches, cooling water temperatures bring fish into shallow water to feed.

Muskie anglers can find toothy lunkers near points, bars and humps and in timbered coves adjacent to deep water. Normally a deep-water fish, muskie will spend more time in shallow-water feeding areas throughout fall, searching for bait fish.

This offers the muskie angler an excellent chance to connect with this species on large medium-running crankbaits and bucktail spinners. At times, top water plugs will also draw a smashing strike from this often-ferocious game fish.

The minimum size limit on muskie is 30 inches, and only two may be creel per day.

Cave Run Lake, near Morehead, and Green River Lake, just south of Campbellsville, are home to Kentucky's top two muskie fisheries; in fact, Cave Run is considered one of the top muskie lakes in the nation. Buckhorn Lake in Perry County is another spot where fall anglers can find muskie fishing opportunities.

Whether cooked over a campfire or on the kitchen range, crappie sizzling in a skillet appeal to just about everyone, and Kentucky anglers can take home a mess of crappie any time of the year.

In early fall, try fishing minnows around submerged trees, stickups and brush attractor sites. As water temperatures falls into the 60-degree range, crappie start feeding more actively in preparation for winter's leaner times.

Although crappie can be found in all of the state's major lakes, Kentucky's top crappie lakes are Barkley, Barren, Kentucky, Nolin, Rough River and Taylorsville.

The statewide creel limit for crappie is 60 fish per day. However, a special creel limit of 30 crappie is in effect for Barkley, Barren and Kentucky lakes. Crappie kept on Barren Lake must also be at least 10 inches long.

Tips for engaging the popular largemouth bass during autumn at any of the state's reservoirs include twitching minnow type surface lures along creek shore cover and casting plastic worms to rocky points. Crankbaits and spinnerbaits further receive a warm welcome from hungry largemouth during frequent fall feeding sprees. Fall months are also a great time to try farm pond bass with both live and artificial baits.

One other species that really gets "cranked" up in autumn in trout. Don't forget your trout stamp when going for trophy rainbows or browns below Wolf Creek Dam in the Lake Cumberland tailwaters. There is no size limit on these trout species, but no more than eight rainbow and brown trout may be kept per day.

Using natural baits for trout such as small nightcrawlers, worms, corn or cheese are most effective when fished along the fringes of swift current riffles or over rocky bottoms and near submerged rock ledges.

Several times a year, the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources stocks Kentucky lakes and streams with rainbow and brown trout. For a complete list of Kentucky's trout waters, a current copy of the fishing digest, a pamphlet on muskie, or other free materials regarding fishing in the Bluegrass State, contact the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, Division of Public Relations, #1 Game Farm Road, Frankfort, KY 40601; phone (502) 564-4336.

In old Norway, it was believed keys in the fields protected the crops from hail.

Roberts Takes First Place In Harlan Classic

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Local runner Rick Roberts captured first place in the 5th Annual Harlan Fall Classic 5K Run last Saturday at Harlan. Roberts' winning time was 17:37, a minute off the record he set in the inaugural run of the Harlan Fall Classic in 1984. Roberts won the first Classic with a time of 16:30.

"I've won the event three years now," he said. "The race had been discontinued for a year and they brought it back last year, but I was running in a marathon and couldn't compete in the last run."

Rain over the weekend kept the number of runners down with around 30 runners participating.

Marvin McFaddin of Paintsville placed fifth overall in the Classic with a time of 19:22, and he finished first in the 55 and over age group. Gary McKenzie, also of Paintsville, placed 10th overall and won the 30-50 age group with a time of 21:20.

In the Apple Day 10K race Sunday afternoon, Bill Valenzano, a Morehead State University student, won the 12th annual race with a time of 32:25. There were 57 runners in the Apple Day run, sponsored by the Paintsville High School Sports Boosters.

Local runner John David Ratliff had a time of 39:25 good for the 15th spot.

Roberts says his next race will be the Winchester Fire Run 5K this Sunday at 3 p.m.

Cancer Hopeline

QUESTION: My young nephew has been diagnosed with testicular cancer. The doctor has reassured us that he has an excellent chance of being cured (around 90 percent), but we are concerned about the quality of his life after treatment. How will he respond emotionally to having had testicular cancer. How will it affect his future plans?

ANSWER: Over the past few years, advanced medical procedures (including surgery, radiation therapy, and chemotherapy) have improved the survival rates for many cancers, including testicular cancer. With these successful therapies, more and more attention is being devoted to the emotional well-being of the recovered cancer patient. For instance, patients sometimes need support during the initial stages of diagnosis and treatment or they may need assistance in returning to their "pre-cancer" lifestyles.

Testicular cancer strikes mainly young men between the ages of 19 and 34 years of age and has an extremely high cure rate. Unfortunately, as a result of the disease and its treatments, these individuals may be infertile or experience sexual dysfunction for an indefinite period of time following treatment. This can be a significant psychological burden for a young man just starting (or trying to start) a family. In addition, the trauma of having survived a life-threatening disease at a young age can have a delayed emotional impact. Psychosocial effects can occur as long as two to five years after treatment.

One research study looked at the long-term outcomes of patients with testicular cancer. Specifically, the impact of the disease and its treatment on intimate relationships, sexual functioning, employment and psychological well being were considered. Studies consistently report that the majority of survivors recover their psychological well-being and life functions.

The researchers also found that disrupted relationships occurred in only a small number of patients and that the divorce rate for the patients in this study was less than the national average.

These men were able to return to work. In addition, they did not report any serious difficulties on the job as a result of the cancer of its treatments nor did they feel there was much workplace discrimination against them.

Support groups specifically for men with testicular cancer are rare; however, general cancer support groups are available in many areas. If needed, professional help is available through the social service department of the hospital where he was treated; the social worker will also be aware of any support groups in his area for cancer patients and their families.

Psychosocial support should help the patient to confront these feelings and to understand the connection between lingering emotional problems and life changes resulting from the traumatic cancer experience.

For more information on testicular cancer, its diagnosis and treatment, cancer support groups and to receive a free booklet, call the Cancer Information Service at 1-800-4-CANCER.

Retirement Life Is Abuzz For Former Floyd Resident

By Pam Shingler
Assistant Editor

When William Conley was growing up "in the head of a holler" at Bonanza, he never dreamed he'd become an engineer for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, and he certainly never imagined that in retirement he'd be an official bee inspector for the state of Ohio.

In fact, when Conley was growing up, even a high school education often appeared to be no more real than a dream.

"There was no high school close when I was young," says Conley, who lived at Bonanza until 1931 when he was 15. "At that time, there was no way a kid from up there could get to a high school, except for some who rode a mule or a horse."

Luckily, Alice Lloyd, the pioneering mountain educator, took an interest in the area, and Conley was able to get the start of an education which has never stopped.

Miss Lloyd, he recalls, sent three teachers to Bonanza to teach first through 12 grades. "I'm certain those ladies worked for little more than room and board," he says.

Today, semi-retired and living in Berea, Ohio, Conley is trying to pay back some of the opportunity he was given by those teachers. He sends the money he makes as Ohio's state bee inspector for Cleveland's southwestern suburbs back to Alice Lloyd College.

"I didn't appreciate it (the opportunity) at the time," he says. "I enjoyed it, but I didn't appreciate it until I got out into the knocks and bumps of the world."

Conley's father and mother, the late Lennie and Liza Baldrige Conley, packed their family up and left Floyd County during the Depression. "During that time, we just about starved to death and we had to get out," says the tall, straight-backed, coal miner's son.

The family moved to Silver Lake, Ind., and began farming. "They learned the lesson of hard times," he recalls. "My parents kept saying, 'You're going to school.'"

After serving as a weatherman in the Air Force, Conley went to work for the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, which evolved into NASA. He grabbed for additional education wherever he was located, for a time at the University of Chicago, and then at what is now Cleveland State University where he earned a degree in electrical engineering.

With NASA, he was in on the ground floor of space science and was involved in the early stages of jet and rocket research. "To work for NASA was the most wonderful thing in the world," he explains.

Realizing that he was working evenings and weekends, he began to search for a hobby that would take his mind off the office and prepare him to ease into retirement. That's when he took up beekeeping, an avocation he's developed over 25 years.

"I was trained in how to take data, and that fit right in with the beekeeping," he says. Maintaining his own hives and reading everything he found about bees turned him into an expert on the subject. Since retirement he has taught beekeeping at a community college near his home and has been featured on PM Magazine, a syndicated television show.

A year after his retirement from NASA in 1974, he was offered the regional bee inspector's job by the Ohio Department of Agriculture. His job entails regular inspection of bees on about 120 acres of land, nearly all of it in suburban areas.

Part of his job is also settling disputes among neighbors when one neighbor feels threatened by another's swarms of busy bees. Conley says he never considered his "people" skills to be very well developed, but he sometimes surprises himself by his ability to mediate arguments over bees.

The former Floyd County resident's own hives, which he has kept for about 25 years, have produced as many as 2,000 pounds of honey in a year.

Having a full and successful life, Conley says he is saddened when he sees young people, either here or in the Cleveland area, drop out of school. "Just from the flip of a coin, I could have been one of those people," he says.

The father of two successful children credits his own parents with pushing him to become educated. He also offers a bit of advice for parents of today's young people: "Parents have to get interested in their kids and say, 'Hey, you've got to stop goofing off.' When the children start talking about dropping out of school, simply say, 'You can't.'"

Though well established in northeastern Ohio, Conley regularly visits his two aunts who still live in Floyd County, Julia Stephens and Docia Woods.

Wayland, Right Beaver Senior Citizens Center Officially Open

The director is developing the transportation route. Transportation for shopping, to the doctor and pharmacy, to the post offices and to the court house, as well as to the local center, will be arranged. Senior citizens needing information about SRI, Medicare, Food Stamps, home care or other related services may call 358-4161. Halbert and volunteers will continue to do outreach in the community.

An activity calendar, to include recreational activities, health promotion and other educational programs, will be publicized each month.

Several senior citizens in the Wayland and Right Beaver Creek area are excited about the new senior citizens program in their area.

These seniors have been busy this summer initiating the program. During a June public hearing, a board of directors was chosen to begin the process of incorporating and assessing the needs of the elderly in the area.

With technical assistance from the staff of Big Sandy Area Development District, by-laws were adopted, a budget prepared, a van purchased, and a site for the center selected.

The program director, Mildred Halbert, was hired in early August to begin canvassing the area to determine the needs of the elderly, and to explain the services available through the local program.

After negotiating with Elkhorn Coal, a building previously used as the company's office in Wayland was purchased in late August. The center is being equipped with items donated by several individuals and Christian Appalachian Project.

Services presently offered by the program include transportation, information and referral, outreach, friendly visiting, recreation, health promotion and education.

Seniors' Center Opens

Few foods are more comforting on a chilly autumn evening than a steaming chowder, chock full of vegetables, seafood or chicken, in a hearty, buttery milk base.

Ladled into oversized bowls from a large pot or tureen, a thick soup-stew is a wonderful way to fortify the family against the raw winds and plunging temperatures of fall and winter.

Served with a tossed salad and thick slices of a robust whole grain bread, chowder makes an easily-assembled meal which is satisfying to both body and soul.

The following recipes demonstrate both the delicious variations which have evolved through the years and the traditional fish-based stews which were their predecessors.

SCALLOP OR MUSSEL CHOWDER (from Dominique's)

Serves 6

- 3 Tbsps butter
- 1/2 cup diced onion
- 1/2 cup diced celery
- 1 1/2 cup sliced mushrooms
- 2 medium potatoes, peeled and diced
- 3 3/4 cups clam juice
- 1 cup milk or light cream
- 1/4 cup dry sherry
- Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
- 1/2 cup freshly grated Parmesan

- 2 Tbsps cornstarch, dissolved in 4 Tbsps clam juice
- 3/4 pound drained raw scallops or mussels, cleaned, beards removed, and removed from shells
- French garlic bread, toasted

Melt the butter in a large frying pan. Add the onion and celery and cook over medium heat for 5 minutes. Add the mushrooms, potatoes and clam juice. Bring to a boil, cover and simmer gently until the potatoes are tender, about 15 minutes. Remove the cover and add the milk or cream, sherry, salt, pepper and Parmesan and stir to blend. Add the dissolved cornstarch, bring to a slow boil, then add the scallops or mussels. Simmer about 5 minutes, or until the fish is cooked through and tender. Taste and adjust the seasoning.

Serve with toasted garlic bread and pass around additional cheese, if you wish.

CLAM CHOWDER (from Malachi McCormick's Irish Country Cooking)

Serves 6 to 8

- 12 large chowder (Quahog) clams
- 6 cups water
- 2 Tbsps unsalted butter
- 3 garlic cloves, sliced
- 2 medium onions, sliced
- 1/2 tsp cayenne pepper

- 2 Tbsps fresh chopped basil, or 3 tsps dried basil
- 2 medium carrots, scraped
- 1 large potato
- 1 large parsnip, scraped
- 1 large leek, thoroughly washed (both white and green parts)
- 1 Tbsp fresh thyme, or 1 tsp dried thyme
- 6 Tbsps heavy cream

Wash the clams, put the water in a large steamer and steam the clams open. Set the steamer aside.

In a large saucepan, melt the butter. Add the garlic and, 1 minute later, the onions and fry for 3 minutes, until the onions are translucent, but not brown. Add the cayenne and basil and stir in with a wooden spoon. Chop the clams, add in, and fry for 4 minutes, so the clams absorb a strong garlic flavor.

Add one-third of the clam liquor from the steamer, bring to a boil, and then reduce heat to a quietly bubbling simmer. Coarsely chop vegetables and add to saucepan. Add the remainder of clam liquor. Bring to a boil, and again reduce heat and simmer quietly for an hour, or until vegetables are soft but not mushy.

Take the chowder off the heat, add the thyme, and stir in the heavy cream. Serve immediately.

CORN AND KIELBASA CHOWDER (from Dinner's Ready)

Serves 4

- Cooking time: 5 minutes
- 4 Tbsps butter
- 3/4 lb. smoked kielbasa, cut into thin rounds
- 1 medium-size onion, finely chopped
- 2 13 3/4-ounce cans regular-strength chicken broth
- 1 cup mashed potato flakes
- 1/2 cup milk
- 2 10-oz. package frozen corn

Melt the butter in a soup pot over medium-high heat. When the bubbling subsides, add the kielbasa and onion; stir and saute for about 5 minutes, or until the kielbasa rounds become rosy and begin to pucker slightly. Add the remaining ingredients and heat slowly, until the corn thaws and the potato flakes dissolve to smoothness. Let the chowder simmer for 1 minute and remove the pot from the heat. Either serve the chowder immediately or let it cool, uncovered, to room temperature; then cover and refrigerate until ready to use — for up to 3 days.

CORN AND POTATO CHOWDER (from Foods of the Sun: Cooking of the West and Southwest)

- Serves 6
- 2 small red potatoes, about 6-ozs., scrubbed, or 1 sweet potato, about 6 ozs., scrubbed
- 6 ears fresh corn (about 3 1/2 cups corn kernels)
- 2 cups heavy cream
- 3 cups chicken stock, preferably homemade
- 1 1/2 Tbsps unsalted butter
- 6 scallions, sliced thin
- 1 red bell pepper, finely diced
- Pepper
- 1 cup smoked sausage or bulk chorizo, cooked and crumbled

Put the potatoes in a saucepan of lightly salted water and bring to a boil. Boil until tender, about 10 minutes. When cool, peel and dice into 1/4-inch cubes.

Cut the corn kernels from the cobs and set 1/2 cup aside for finishing the soup. Heat the remaining kernels, the cream and chicken stock in a medium-high heat for 5 minutes.

Put the corn and cream mixture in a blender and blend on high speed to liquefy. Strain into the same saucepan, pressing to extract the liquid from the kernels.

Heat the butter in a skillet over medium heat. Add the scallions, reserved corn and red pepper and saute until soft, 5 minutes. Add to the cream

Dozens Of Seniors Take Part In HRMC, AARP Health Fair

Despite heavy rains and cold temperatures left over from Hurricane Hugo, more than 60 participants came out Saturday, Sept. 23, to participate in the fourth annual American Association of Retired Persons Health Fair sponsored by Highlands Regional Medical Center and the Floyd County chapter of AARP.

Health fair participants received blood glucose and cholesterol tests, blood pressure and pulse oximetry tests, eye exams and glaucoma tests, dental exams, EKGs, foot care exams and physician evaluations, according to Kathy Rubado, public relations coordinator for HRMC.

Local health care professionals donating their time were Dr. Ira Potter, Dr. John Boswell, Dr. Steve Vogelsang, Dr. Thomas Alan Smith, dentist Edford Clark Jr., dentist Garland Godsey, dentist Andy Elliott, optometrist Kenneth Cottrell, optometrist Lee Majaake and podiatrist

Jess Songer.

HRMC personnel volunteering their time and services were Delores Preston, medical records director; Elaine South, billing supervisor; Kevin Yeager, controller; Don Hicks, laboratory director; Stephanie Harris, EKG technician; Sheila Berger, ward clerk; Kathy McGuire, ward clerk;

Rick Roberts, respiratory therapy director; Denise Queen, breast center nurse educator; Larry Daniels, medical technologist; Vicki Ousley, lab assistant; Rhonda Delong, lab assistant; Larry Perdue, assistant director of lab; Nelva Lewis, auxiliary; Sina Blanton, auxiliary; Kathy Rubado, public relations coordinator; and Kimberly Scott, public relations assistant.

The Big Sandy Chapter of the Alzheimers Support Organization provided an information table and a volunteer, Mary Lou Holbrook, to answer questions and give out brochures concerning Alzheimers Disease.

Information concerning cholesterol, blood pressure, low sodium and high fiber diets and good nutrition in general were given to all health fair participants.

Each year, as a part of its commitment to community service, Highlands provides area senior citizens with this free health fair, said Rubado. The health fair is open to anyone age 55 or older.

"Its goal is to encourage better healthcare among seniors, to spot possible medical problems and to refer patients to their family physicians for further diagnosis and treatment," said Rubado.

Approximately 10 questionable test results were detected at this year's health fair, and those patients were advised to see their family physicians as soon as possible.

AARP Health Fair Held

The Floyd County chapter of American Association of Retired Persons, in conjunction with Highlands Regional Medical Center, recently held a health fair for area residents 55 years of age and older. Above, Dr. Ira Potter explains test results to a health fair participant.

Extension Service Has New 4-H Agent

Willard Knipp, a graduate of Elliott County High School and Asbury College, has been named the new University of Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service agent for 4-H, replacing Jack Friar, who retired earlier this year.

Knipp will work in the Floyd County Extension Office.

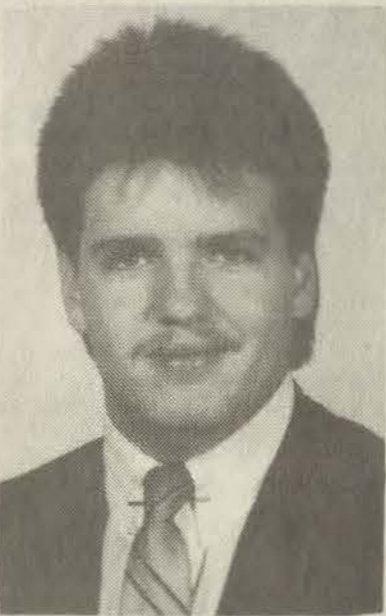

He has worked as sports director at the Diederich 4-H Center with the Floyd County camping program for five summers.

"I am really thrilled to be here. Floyd County has an outstanding tradition in 4-H, and I certainly want to see that continue," Knipp said.

Plans for this year's 4-H program are underway, and Knipp says he is impressed by the reputation that 4-H has in the county. "I am amazed to see the reaction of principals, teachers and students alike," he said. "I think the excitement can do nothing but be a plus for the whole program."

"Jack (Friar) has done a terrific job and following him would be difficult for anyone, but I'm going to give it my best shot," Knipp added.

It was suggested that each member bring a prospective member to the October meeting.

LeMaster said her daughter's school is collecting labels from Scott paper products, for the purpose of purchasing a computer, and asked that members save these for her through September 1990.

It was decided that new projects would be adopted by the club and that new-by-laws would soon be available.

National Register of Historic Places

'Comfortable' May-Latta House Merits Nat'l Register Designation

(Seventh in a Series)
By Pam Shingler
Assistant Editor

The May-Latta House at 33 N. Arnold Ave. in Prestonsburg has been little altered since it was completed in 1918 and represents "a comfortable home of the World War I era," according to the report of the Kentucky Heritage Council in recommending the residence for inclusion in the National Register of Historic Places.

The house is one of 12 sites in the city to be added to the register this year.

Built of wire-cut brick, the 2-1/2-story dwelling has a Spanish tile roof and large wraparound porch. The council report says it is designed in the American Foursquare style and influenced by the Craftsman style, both popular in the early part of this century.

With four large rooms on each of the first two floors, the house, according to the report, has a gas-burning fireplace in each room, with each fireplace topped by a hand-carved man-tepiece and surrounded by glazed tile. Floors and woodwork are oak, which was widely used at the time. Other noteworthy features, the report indicates, are a "Mission oak" staircase and brass chandeliers.

Remaining in the same family since it was built, the house was constructed by Andrew Jackson May, a prominent local attorney in the first half of the century. He served as Congressman from this district from 1928 to 1946 and reportedly gained a bit of notoriety for his opposition to the Tennessee Valley Authority, contending that damming the Tennessee River would increase flood damage to Eastern Kentucky. During World War II, he was chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee.

During the disastrous 1957 flood when water reached almost to the second floor of the house, May reportedly was ill in his bed and provisions were brought to him by boat. At his death, his daughter Olga May Latta inherited the house, which was later passed to her son Clifford B. Latta.

Flood water also played a part in the beginning of the house, according to the report. Construction of the house is believed to have begun in 1917, but was interrupted when a flood washed away much of what had been done.

The name of the builder is not known, but the family believes its design came from plans ordered by mail. The art glass and furniture, much of which remains, are reported to have come from Cincinnati.

"Although the American Foursquare mode was popular in Prestonsburg during c. 1900-1919, the May-Latta house's large scale, high quality materials and aesthetic qualities distinguish it from other examples," the Kentucky Heritage Council states. "It illustrates better than any other property in Prestonsburg the influence of the Arts and Crafts movement on architecture of the early 20th century."

The report continues, "Although other residences in Prestonsburg exhibit typically Craftsman details, the May-Latta House is the only one whose inspiration is clearly derived from landmark examples of the style... The house has been well preserved and has survived virtually intact inside and out."

The May-Latta House

Impairment-Related Work Expenses Sometimes Are Deductible, Says Kelly

A person who continues to work while receiving Social Security or Supplemental Security Income (SSI) disability payments may deduct certain impairment-related work expenses when Social Security or SSI payments are figured.

The cost of such items, according to Jim Kelly, district director of Social Security, may be deducted even if they are also used for daily living—such as a wheelchair. However, he cautions, Social Security must approve each deduction and the amount.

Deductible expenses include the cost of medical devices, such as wheelchairs, braces, prostheses, hemodialysis equipment and medical supplies (such as catheters). Payment to an attendant for help in getting to and from work is also deductible, although there are special rules when these services are provided by family members. Likewise deductible is an interpreter for the deaf.

"Certain unusual transportation costs, such as modification to a vehicle, are deductible," explains Kelly. "The same applies to work-related equipment, such as typing aids, telecommunication devices for the deaf, and special tools needed for work. Modifications within the home, including the construction of ramps and railings to improve mobility, may also be deductible."

Kelly says drugs and related medical services may qualify as a deductible expense. These include anticonvulsant and antidepressant medication, as well as drugs used in chemotherapy.

Persons receiving SSI disability benefits and receiving vocational rehabilitation services are affected by new laws that permit them to work and still receive SSI benefits.

For more information, contact the local vocational rehabilitation counselor or the Social Security office.

A DRY EYE IN THE HOUSE

Those who suffer from dry eye often select over-the-counter drops to bring relief. However, it is possible that a popular eyewash may contain a decongestant that could actually aggravate the dryness. The proper course of action a dry-eye sufferer might take is to consult an ophthalmologist. He can diagnose the condition and suggest proper treatment. Part of his prescription may include the use of "artificial tears." Far from being synthetic tears, these solutions are actually moisturizers that help trap any tears that the eye produces. Anyone who uses these products must bear in mind that they only relieve the symptoms of dry eye. They should be used only under a doctor's supervision.

COOLEY APOTHECARY meets the highest level of professionalism in our business and would be honored to become your pharmacy. If you have any questions about how to use a particular medication or about possible drug interactions, don't hesitate to ask. We are located at #2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106. MasterCard and Visa honored plus we welcome all third party payments. Open: Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-3.

HINT: A person should never try to self-medicate any eye condition.

Meade, Hayes, Exchange Vows In Candlelight Ceremony, July 15

Traci Hayes, daughter of Teresa Hayes of Prestonsburg and Pete Hayes of Wellston, Ohio, and Casey Meade, son of Granville and Peggy Meade of Hager Hill, were united in marriage on Saturday, July 15, at 1 p.m. at the East Point Church of Christ by minister Billy Ford, uncle of the groom.

Carol Hall, soloist, and Susie

Davis, pianist, provided the nuptial music consisting of "We've Only Just Begun," "The Wedding Song" and "Lost in Your Eyes."

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Pete B. Hayes of Prestonsburg. The groom chose his father as his best man, while the bride had Kay Skeens of Prestonsburg as her maid of honor. The flower girl was Leah Anne Daniels of East Point, cousin of the bride, and her bridesmaids were Kim Daniels Blackburn, cousin of the bride, Nicole Weinstein and Kristi Hall, all of Prestonsburg.

The candlelight ceremony took place next to a brass candelabra flanked by potted ferns. The bride wore a white satin gown that featured an off-the-shoulder Basque bodice with brocade motifs. The bouffant skirt was embellished with beaded lace and swept into a train of satin ruffles. She carried a silk cascade bouquet of white roses entwined with English ivy and accented with white ribbon streamers.

Her attendants wore tea length blue taffeta dresses with scooped sweetheart necklines and puffed sleeves. They carried a single white silk rose accented with trailing blue and white ribbon streamers. The maid of honor carried a bouquet of blue and white rosebuds with matching streamers, and the flower girl carried a blue and white basket bouquet.

Groomsmen were Steve Estep, Kirby Bowling and Frank Ratliff, all of Johnson County.

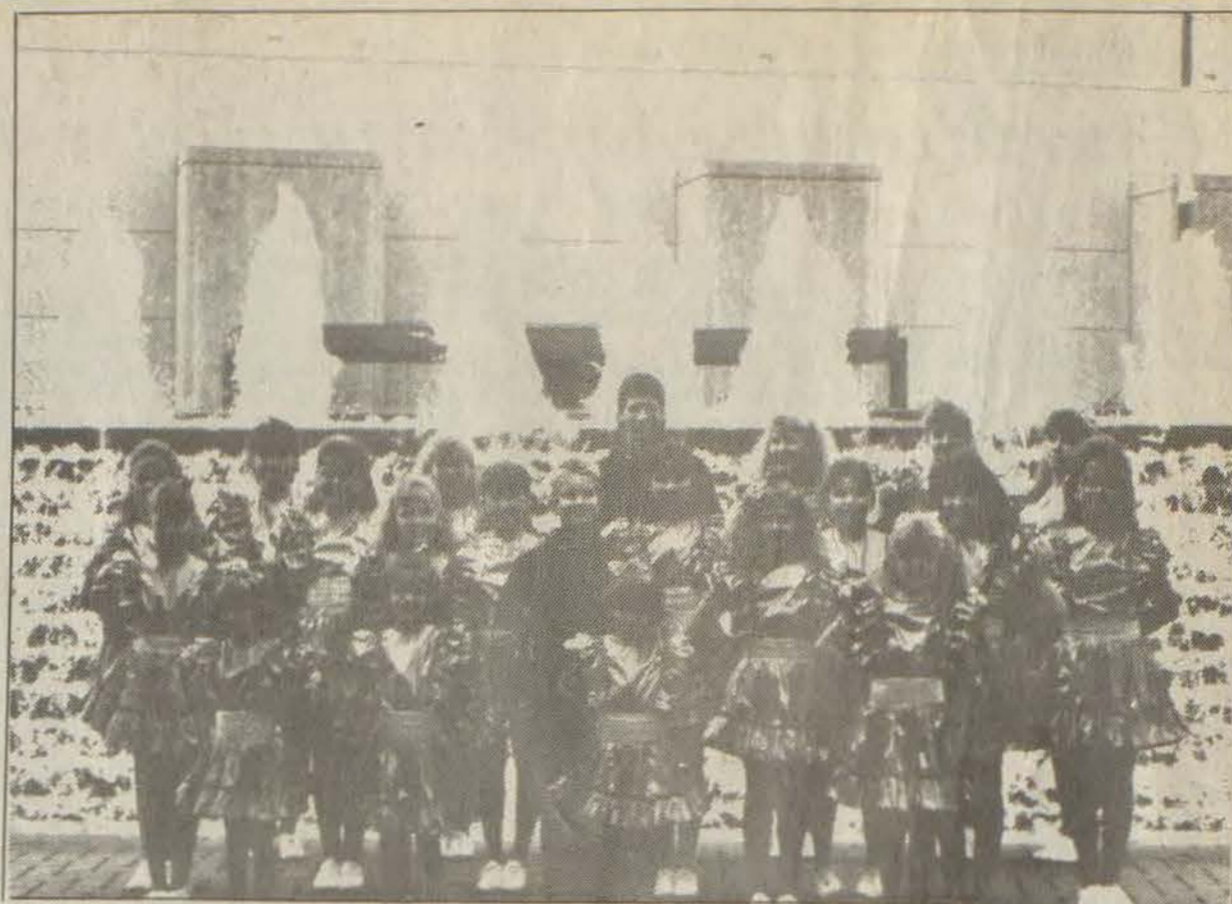

The reception was held in the church annex immediately following the wedding. The reception table was covered by a white cloth decorated with blue and white ribbons and flowers, and centered by a two-tier wedding cake also decorated by blue and white flowers and white wedding bells. It was baked by Brenda Coleman of Allen. The top tier featured a heart-shaped ornament surrounded by blue and white lace with wedding bells in the center.

Serving at the reception were Zoe Daniels and Ann Stratton, both of East Point, Judy and Dustin Thornberry of Topmost and Sally Porter of Prestonsburg.

Angela Potter and John Matthew Daniels of East Point registered the guests. The couple is currently residing in Waukegan, Ill., at Great Lakes Naval Training Base.

Two Garrett Classes Have 99 Percent Attendance Rates

As an incentive for attendance, Garrett Elementary School offered a reward to students with good attendance, according to principal Ralph O'Quinn.

During the first month of school, Neil Stanton Watson's seventh grade class and Sharon Sexton's first grade class had 99 percent attendance. O'Quinn congratulated the students and their parents for the near-perfect attendance rate.

Childers Named Abuse Counselor At Lees College

Robin Childers of Prestonsburg has been appointed counselor for Lees College's new substance abuse program, according to Doris G. Sutton, dean of student affairs at the college.

Childers has 10 years of experience working with students, spanning individual counseling to long-range planning with professional leaders of students.

"Mr. Childers' position requires that, in addition to working with the students at Lees, he engage in a considerable amount of interaction in the community," Sutton said. "I believe that more contact with high school students and educators in Breathitt and surrounding counties will be a breath of fresh air at our college."

Lees College was one of 100 colleges and universities across the nation to receive a federal grant to establish a substance abuse education and prevention program on its campus. The grant, which amounts to $75,510, will fund 52.5 percent of the program for two years. The college will finance the remaining costs of setting up the program and, after two years, support of its operational expenses.

science degree in religious education from Cumberland College in 1975. He earned both a master of religious education and a master of divinity from Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in 1978 and 1980 respectively.

In his previous job as a counselor in the student support services program at Pikeville College, Childers was a personal counselor as well as a trainer of student peer counselors and coordinator of cultural enrichment events.

He served as a leader of five student groups, assisting them in creating a program tailored to the unique persons and needs of each group. Additionally, he counseled campus leaders during decision-making and program implementation, organized planning meetings to calendar and budget for activities and chaired or served on long-range planning committees.

An ordained minister, Childers has also served as chairman of a 15-church youth committee. He is an instrument-rated pilot with 220 hours of pilot-in-command time and is currently preparing for commercial rating.

His awards and activities include first place in a college talent contest for original song, playing the guitar and singing, teaching Sunday School, serving as a resident assistant in a college dormitory, scuba diving (certified) and refereeing intramural sports.

BLHS Journalism Students Attend Richmond Workshop

by JoElla Jones

In spite of Hurricane Hugo's threat of causing cancellation of the trip, the staff of the Betsy Layne High School "Bobcat Journal" traveled to Richmond to attend various journalism workshops.

The seminars were held at the campus of Eastern Kentucky University on Friday, Sept. 22. The bus left about 8 a.m. and returned shortly after 4:30 p.m.

The trip helped students gain further insight on what can be done to improve the style and manner of writing produced by student journalists. It was the second time the BLHS journalism class had been invited to the annual event.

The turnout was larger than expected. Workshops such as Apaishop and the Eastern Kentucky University seminar help the Betsy Layne High School English Department promote better writing, both creatively and in a journalistic style, in the school.

Impetigo is a bacterial infection, usually caused by staph or strep, which invades the upper layer of the skin. This disease begins with a break in the skin caused by insect bites or scrapes and cuts which become infected.

The most characteristic features of impetigo are the honey-colored and red scabs that cover all or part of each sore. These crusts are easy to pick off or rub off, but usually some bleeding occurs when this is done. The sores may be single or isolated, about half an inch in diameter, or several may coalesce and form a larger, irregularly-shaped sore. Sores are common where children always scratch themselves — on the face, on the fingers and around the nose.

If treated early, impetigo can easily be cured. In some cases, oral antibiotics must be given. Generally, washing four times a day with Dial or other antibacterial soap and applying antibiotic cream will cure it in three to four days. Since many children have impetigo and it is usually only contagious on direct contact, if there are only a few sores they can be treated and covered with an adhesive bandage, allowing the child to remain in school. A child with many exposed, visible lesions may have to be sent home. If impetigo is found on your child, you should immediately contact your family physician.

It is important to treat impetigo because the sores can continue to spread. In rare cases, the germs may find their way into internal organs and cause abscesses (boils) to form in such vital organs as the brain and lungs.

SCABIES (ITCH)

Scabies is an infectious disease of the skin caused by a small mite whose penetration is visible as papules or vesicles, or a tiny linear burrow containing the mite and its eggs. The mite goes under the skin to lay eggs, causing the infected person to itch. It is commonly known as the seven-year itch because without proper treatment, it is hard to get rid of.

It is commonly found on the backs of the hands, the webs between the fingers, the inner side of the wrist and forearms, and the chest and abdomen.

Itching is intense, especially at night. If your child develops a rash and is scratching, see your family physician immediately. Prescription lotion must be obtained and used as directed. Also, cleaning the home and bed clothes is mandatory. Pets should also be treated with a specific shampoo since they are carriers; the mite can cause mange in dogs and cats.

New Class Available At WHS

by Amy Allen
and Haley Caudill

David Damron is the only student enrolled in probability and statistics, a class Wheelwright High School is offering with the help of the Kentucky Educational Television network.

The advanced math class is taught using computers, telephones and a satellite dish. Damron is behind in work because WHS was late in getting a satellite; the satellite dish was installed Sept. 4, and class began Sept. 5.

"This class offers above average students new activities and experiences that they would not have in the usual classes," said counselor Bobby Jones. Students, through interactive learning, use a keyboard and can answer and ask questions.

"It is an advanced class that has not been available to many people. It can help you to understand geometry and prepare you for calculus in college. It also gives you experience with computers," said Damron.

With only 225 students, the Wheelwright High School curriculum is limited, but KET — through its statewide approach — has helped additional classes to be available. The Star Channel can make advanced courses available at schools where they otherwise could not be offered. Math and science courses are offered now, but KET hopes to add a foreign language class soon.

KET is offering probabilities and statistics with the help of the Floyd County Board of Education. Each class receives a computer, telephone, printer, cabinet, television and VCR. The cost of the items and the class itself totals more than $6,000 per school. The class is free for students, but the Floyd County Board of Education pays half of the $6,000. There is an additional $300 charge that the board must pay for each student taking a class.

The KET network has also begun a project called "Learning Link," a telecommunications program offered to Floyd County teachers. The system involves telephones that are hooked up to the KET network. The program allows teachers to get information on curriculum, copy software and post messages for other teachers. The new program, like the Star Channel, is geared to help students and teachers work better together.

Applications Being Taken For Science, Mathematics Summer Research Positions

For more than 25 mathematics and science teachers, the summer of 1989 offered more than a much-needed vacation.

Teachers from Tennessee, Florida, Pennsylvania, Georgia, South Carolina and Kentucky spent eight weeks working with some of the nation's leading scientists as part of the Science Teachers Research Involvement for Vital Education (STRIVE) program.

STRIVE is sponsored by the US Department of Energy and the National Science Foundation.

Teachers selected for next summer will become fully integrated members of research teams at facilities such as Oak Ridge National Laboratory, Oak Ridge Associated Universities and the University of Tennessee at Knoxville, all in Tennessee; the Pittsburgh Energy Technology Center in Pennsylvania; the Savannah River Laboratory and the Savannah River Ecology Laboratory in South Carolina; and other research facilities in the eastern United States.

As part of the program teachers will attend workshops one half-day per week to explore ways to integrate their research experience into teaching activities back in the classroom. Emphasis, said program spokeswoman Pam Hackler-Bonee, is placed on developing innovative methods to more effectively communicate the nature of scientific research and its role in finding solutions to national problems.

The STRIVE program is administered by Oak Ridge Associated Universities, where applications are now being accepted for the summer of 1990. Applicants must be certified to teach science or math, must have taught full time for at least one year in a public or private junior or senior high school (grades six through 12), and must be committed to the teaching profession.

Selection is based on academic records, recommendations, teaching excellence, background and scientific interests. Participants will receive a weekly stipend of $500 and reimbursement of inbound and outbound travel expenses for participants who must relocate for the appointment. STRIVE participants may also earn graduate credit from nearby universities at some of the sites.

For more information, contact the Science/Engineering Education Division, Oak Ridge Associated Universities, P.O. Box 117, Oak Ridge, TN 37831-0117, or call (615) 576-2310.

Flanery is the daughter of Jack Stumbo of Printer.

Also honored by the department at a recent conference in Louisville were Peter and Agnes Stobbe of Hindman, volunteers of the year; Roberta Brown of West Liberty, adult education student of the year; Elaine Shryock of Woodford County, most improved program, and Marlene Haney, supervisor of the adult education program at Somerset Independent School District, program of the year.
