Tourism Group To Meet Oct. 11

The Eastern Highlands-North Tourism Region Committee will meet on Wednesday, Oct. 11, at 11 a.m. at the Landmark Inn on US 23 South in Pikeville.

The Eastern Highlands-North Tourism Region Committee covers 15 counties, including Floyd, Pike, Johnson, Martin and Magoffin. Floyd County's representative on the committee is Prestonsburg attorney Bill Gordon Francis.

The committee, composed of local civic leaders, reviews applications and develops advertising through the Department of Travel Development's matching funds program.

"This is a very good program," said Gordon. "It helps local tourism programs defer some of their advertising costs." Among the applications to be considered by the group Wednesday are one from Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre and another from Highlands Folk Festival.

Sturgill, Stumbo To Present Views

The Caucus Club of Prestonsburg Community College will hold two meetings in October concerning the race for a seat on the Kentucky Court of Appeals.

On Wednesday, Oct. 18, Barkley Sturgill Jr. will address the club. On Thursday, Oct. 19, Janet L. Stumbo will give a presentation.

Due to the nature of the race, neither candidate is allowed to voice an opinion on issues which may come before the court. Both candidates will present their credentials for office and describe the manner in which the court system functions.

Both meetings will be held at 7 p.m. in Room 207 of the Magoffin Building at P.C.C. The meeting is free and open to the public. For more information, contact Dr. Thomas Matijasic, 886-3863, ext. 246.

Youth Psychiatric Hospital Proposed

A newly-formed corporation is working to develop a 60-bed child and adolescent care psychiatric hospital in Prestonsburg to serve the needs of Eastern Kentucky.

According to Mary Sue Martin of Langley, chair of the not-for-profit corporation, the project developed out of a recognition that a serious gap in services for children with psychiatric problems exists in Eastern Kentucky.

"We are fortunate," she stated, "that we have good out-patient services available throughout our region from comprehensive care centers, but at times, out-patient care is simply not enough."

Children and adolescents with serious emotional and behavioral problems who need in-patient care must leave the area to get help, she said. There are many children who suffer serious mental health problems, children with severe depression, anxiety, behavioral disturbances, psychoses and other major psychiatric disorders, Martin explained.

"These children need access to high quality in-patient psychiatric services located in Eastern Kentucky," she added.

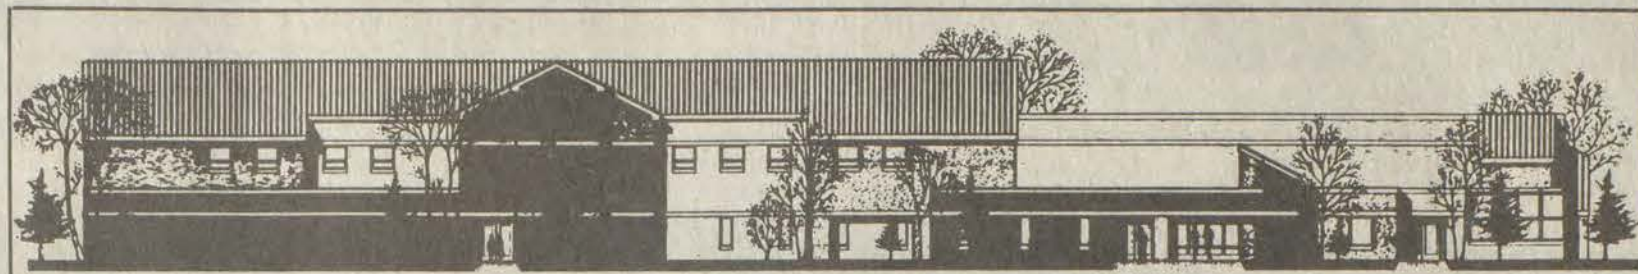

Over the next several weeks, said Martin, those who have frequent dealings with children will be contacted to help document the need for a new hospital specialized in meeting the psychiatric needs of troubled youngsters. If sufficient support exists, the organization will develop a certificate of need for submission to the state.

In addition to meeting an important human need, said Martin, the proposed new hospital will also have a significant economic impact. Construction costs will run approximately $5.5 million. Employment will reach about 130 when the hospital is fully operational with a $3.5 million payroll. An additional $1.5 million will be spent for food, supplies, services and utilities in the local area.

"It is the feeling of Children Care, Inc., that a very real and urgent need exists for a new 60-bed child and adolescent psychiatric hospital serving Eastern Kentucky," said Martin.

Stanville Resident's Standoff Continues

by Frank Clark,
Staff Writer

A standoff continues between Stanville resident Wallace Scalf and Addington Inc., over Addington's coal blasting practices in the Mare Creek area.

Scalf confiscated a seismograph owned by the coal company and placed on his property last week.

Scalf claims that last Thursday, employees of Addington entered his property and placed the blasting sensor without permission. After consulting his attorney, Scalf took the seismograph, valued between $7,000 and $8,000, in an attempt to force Addington to repair damages to his home. The damages are the result, he says, of air blasts and ground vibration caused by blasting performed by the company on a strip mine visible from Scalf's house.

Addington officials initially declined comment, and later did not return several phone calls.

Said Scalf, "When they come after this machine with a warrant, I'll refuse to give it to them. I'll litigate."

Hurricane Hugo Donations Arrive In South Carolina

by Frank Clark,
Staff Writer

Leaving Friday evening for the long southeast trip, Prestonsburg Fire Marshall Larry Adams had little idea what to expect from the hurricane-ravaged town of King's Tree, S.C.

Loaded down in a 44 foot trailer truck volunteered by Brown's Produce of Louisa were locally donated supplies, and Adams represented all Prestonsburg and Floyd County residents in a mission of mercy to help the damaged South Carolina town.

Volunteering his time for the trip was Brown's Produce truck driver Mike Fraley of Louisa, who Adams called a "super guy," adding, "He was a good ambassador for Eastern Kentucky."

According to Officer Roy Roberts of the Prestonsburg Police Department and Prestonsburg Mayor Ann Latta, the outpouring of donations was unprecedented in Prestonsburg.

"We (the Prestonsburg police, auxiliary police and fire department) collected over $2,100 in three hours at a road block on Sept. 30," said Roberts. "Combined with the radiothon, we raised about $5,100 to get food and supplies to send down. It was pretty amazing."

On Friday evening, the truck loaded up and hit the road. Adams says that he and Fraley stopped for rest about 2 a.m. and then continued the trip at 7 a.m.

"About three hours out of King's Tree, we began seeing evidence of the hurricane," stated Adams. "Road signs and billboards were blown down and a lot of trees were topped off."

Contests Sponsored By Times

As part of the Floyd County Times' observance of National Newspaper Week, Oct. 8-14, the newspaper is kicking off an essay contest for high school juniors and seniors and a "Best Idea" contest for first and fourth grade students.

The theme of the essay contest mirrors that of National Newspaper Week—"A Free Press: Democracy's Forum."

"The contests are designed to be challenging and educational, and we hope they can be used by teachers in a classroom setting," said Anne Chaney, editor.

Essay topics should be limited to newspaper journalism and address ways in which the print media contribute to the free exchange of ideas. Entries should be between 400 and 500 words and may be typed or hand written.

Juniors and seniors will be judged jointly; the county-wide winner will receive a $100 savings bond, the second place winner a $50 savings bond, and the third place winner $25. The authors of the two best essays from each school will receive a certificate.

First and fourth grade students will be judged separately in the Times' "Old Newspapers Are Good For..." contest. Each student is encouraged to submit up to three ideas for creative ways to use old newspapers.

One first and one fourth grade winner will be chosen from all entries in the county; winners will receive $25. The student submitting the most innovative idea from each school will receive a certificate.

"We want to give the students a lot of leeway here — while we'd like for the suggestions to be practical, it's the idea that counts," explained Chaney, adding that a number of the suggestions will be printed in coming weeks. The top essays, she said, will be included on upcoming editorial pages.

All essay and "Best Idea" contest entries must be received at the Floyd County Times office no later than 5 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 25.

For more information, contact Chaney at 886-8506.

Prestonsburg To Sponsor School Drug Abuse Program

The City of Prestonsburg has decided to meet Prestonsburg's drug abuse problems head on.

Members passed a resolution Monday night which will set up a Drug Abuse Resistance Education program designed to send specially trained uniformed police officers into Prestonsburg's fifth and sixth grade classrooms to teach children how and why to say "No" to drugs. Based on a nationally recognized 16-week educational program, DARE would require a city police officer to receive 80 hours of specialized training in child drug education methods. According to councilman Mike Vance, DARE has proven to be one of the most effective programs ever developed to educate children to the dangers of drugs, providing a long term impact against drug use.

In other council action, a resolution was accepted to encourage the placement of a children's psychiatric hospital in Prestonsburg (see related story). The planned 60 bed hospital will serve children and adolescents between the ages of 3 and 18, drawing clients initially from the surrounding five county region. The hospital's building costs are estimated at $5.5 million, and will create 130 to 150 full time jobs. The program is expected to begin in the fall.

Hi Hat Man Involved In Fatal Accident

John M. Osborne of Hi Hat was leaving the Department of Employment Services on Lake Street in Prestonsburg when he stepped in front of a northbound vehicle driven by 19-year-old William B. Smith of West Prestonsburg, according to witnesses.

According to Major Mike Wells of the Prestonsburg Fire Department, personnel received the call at 12:57 p.m., arrived on the scene at 12:59 p.m. and were at Highlands Regional Medical Center with the injured Osborne six minutes later.

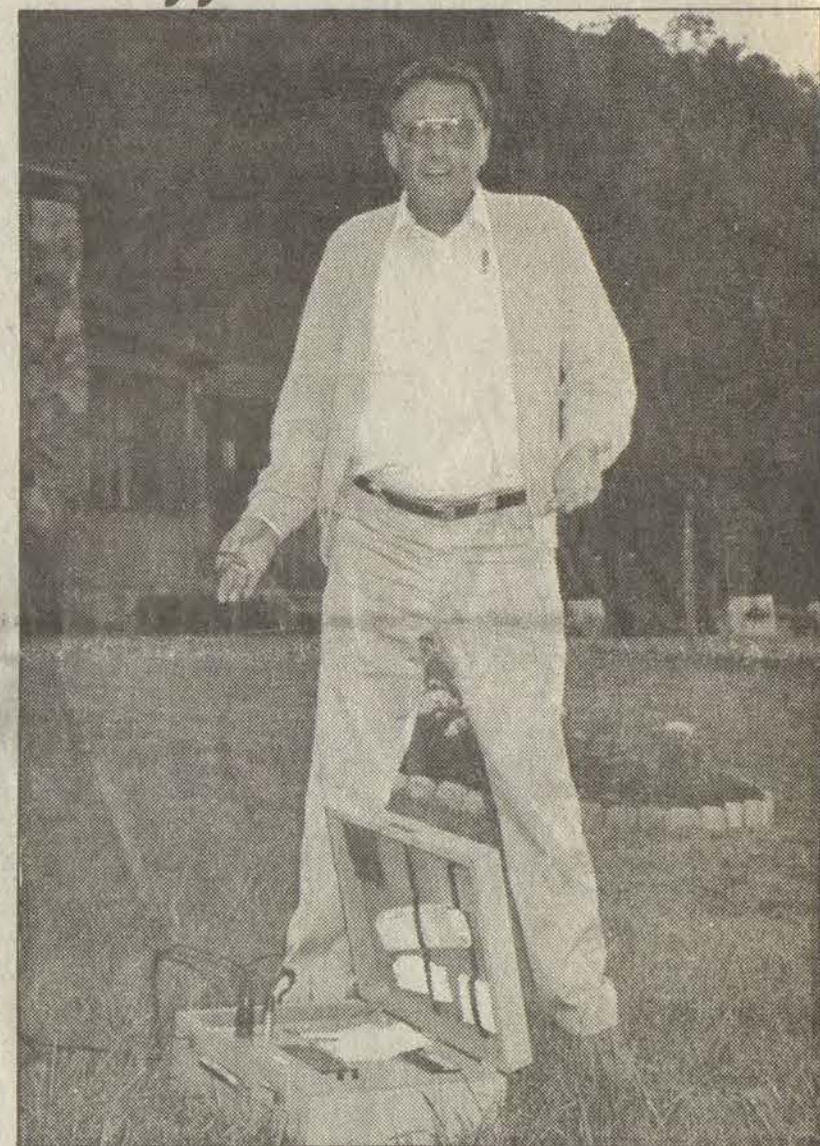

Volunteer firefighter Jim Conley, firefighter Mike Moore and Major Larry Adams responded to the call. Conley and Moore performed emergency CPR on Osborne after being able to register only a very faint pulse and continued the attempt to revive Osborne for another 40 minutes after arriving at the hospital. A HRMC doctor pronounced Osborne dead at 1:45 p.m.

Jim Mullins, the investigating officer, could not be reached for comment.

According to Floyd County Coroner Roger Nelson, the 45-year-old Osborne died of multiple head injuries.

Funeral arrangements are under the direction of Hall Funeral Home of Martin. Services are tentatively set for 10 a.m. Thursday, Oct. 12, at the Little Nancy Regular Baptist Church at Hi Hat. Visitation is from 1 to 2 p.m. Wednesday at the church. Burial will be at the Newman Cemetery at Hi Hat.

A Blasting Area?

Wallace Scalf of Mare Creek, Stanville, explains his discovery of a seismograph machine placed on his property last Thursday by Addington Inc. Scalf has confiscated the equipment until the company repairs damages to his home allegedly caused by blasting.

Hoax, House Ablaze Reported At Left Beaver

The Left Beaver Fire Department reports two separate fires occurring this past weekend in their area.

On Friday about 2 p.m., a house owned by Roberta Luxmore burned until the "interior was mostly gutted," according to Captain Chuck Hall. A passerby reported the fire and 10 firefighters from Stations #1 and #2 were able to control the blaze in about 30-40 minutes, but remained on the scene for two hours.

Luxmore was at work at the time and the cause of the fire is still under investigation, Hall said.

The second occurrence Hall deems as a "Halloween prank." Apparently four or five tires were set on fire on the Stumbo Hollow Bridge at Drift. The burning tires blocked traffic and six men were called from Station #2 to douse them. Hall said it took 15 minutes to put the tires out but a total of one hour was spent to clear away the debris.

"We get a lot of prank calls this time of year," Hall exclaimed. "People don't realize what they are doing. If it is the real thing... you may cry wolf too many times."

Hall also invited the public to the Left Beaver Fire departments open house, which is being held in honor of Fire Prevention Week, on Saturday, Oct. 14, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at both station houses.

Jenny Wiley Legend Celebrates 200th Year

(Editor's Note: Sunday, Oct. 1, marked the 200th anniversary of the capture of Jenny Wiley. Following is the Jenny Wiley Story, as written by late historian, author and playwright Henry Scalf of Mare Creek. Scalf's son, Wallace, relates that the family has Wiley's original spectacles in a bank vault in Pikeville. His father, Henry, a former Times staff member, wrote the original Jenny Wiley play, which has been changed considerably through the years. The play premiered in 1950 at the old school house in Prestonsburg.)

By Henry Scalf

It was dreary, that day of October 1, 1789. Over Ab's Valley hung the dark clouds that herald rain, and towards the turn of the afternoon it began to fall. Everywhere the pioneer families retreated indoors and the women began to weave, card, or spin. Virginia Sellards Wiley, wife of Thomas Wiley, sat down to an old loom — a loom her mother had owned. It had come down out of Pennsylvania when her father,

Getting It Together

Prestonsburg city employees and other volunteers are shown above unloading a truck of donations eventually taken to King's Tree, S.C., to provide assistance for victims of Hurricane Hugo.

Donations Received

Volunteer workers stand near clothes donated by Prestonsburg and other communities in six other states. According to the volunteers, the truck sent by Prestonsburg was the largest and carried more items than any other than had arrived to date. The donations were stored in a school gym in downtown King's Tree, S.C., in Williamsburg County.

"Between Columbia and Sumter, we saw heavy damage. It looked like something out of Beirut. Houses were destroyed. It was a mess."

After pulling into King's Tree, a town roughly the size of Prestonsburg, the truck was quickly unloaded at an emergency center. Those unloading said it was the largest truck and carried more supplies than others arriving since the hurricane ended, and the only truck from Kentucky. In Williamsburg County, where King's Tree is located, damage estimates were set at $323 million.

"No one has exaggerated the amount of destruction," said Adams.

"Twenty-five percent of the town still didn't have electricity. It was bad."

Supplies sent from Prestonsburg were first used to bring relief to the 232 senior citizens which the emergency center served. The rest was distributed to the many citizens who could pick up the supplies.

The response from the people of the town of King's Tree was wonderful, according to Adams.

"They were really overwhelmed that the people of Kentucky were so willing to help. One woman told me that if she ever heard of troubles in Kentucky, she'd do something about it. I'm glad that the people of our area could help out so much."

For Adams, who recently suffered a heart attack, there was an interesting twist to his visit.

"In the rush of getting ready to go, I didn't take enough pills," he relates. He stopped at a King's Tree drug store and explained his predicament, and the pharmacist, Mary Osean, gave him enough pills to last until he got home — and refused to accept any payment.

"I went to help them, and she ended up helping me," Adams noted.

Things are changing at Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Kentucky. What was considered good performance in the past won't cut it in the present. We're working to get better.

In June a new president, Steve Bow, took over the reins. He talked with employees about how to make our company better. He talked to customers: the ones we have, the ones who left, and the ones who never tried us. Now, we've begun turning those words into actions.

"We've got a real challenge ahead of us. It's up to every employee to energize our company...to make it more proactive, more customer-driven than ever before."

That philosophy is sparking a company-wide revolution. We're streamlining claims procedures for more efficient processing. We're breaking our customer service folks into smaller, specially trained teams so they can answer your questions more quickly. And there are more changes coming.

"I want to see this company move back to its original value system, a system of caring for the customer, and a belief that the customer is important. In our rapidly changing, complex and competitive world of healthcare, it is even more important for us to get back to personal service and products designed to fulfill customers' needs.

Changes were needed. Changes are being made. Choose us again, or for the first time. And choose the company that realizes good isn't good enough anymore. Call Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Kentucky or your independent agent.

Good isn't good enough anymore.

Newspaper Week Proclaimed

Mayor Ann Latta signs a proclamation designating Oct. 8-14 as Newspaper Week in Prestonsburg at Monday night's city council meeting. This city observance coincides with National Newspaper Week, also celebrated this week.

Firefighters Are Busy, Busy, Busy

Prestonsburg City Firefighters had an unusually busy day Tuesday, Oct. 3, according to Major Mike Wells.

They went out on four relatively minor calls and two serious incidents. About 9 a.m., Major Larry Adams responded to a call from Mildred Miller who was suffering from an illness while at her home in Lancer. She was transported Highlands Regional Medical Center, no other information was available.

At 10 a.m., Nora L. Holton, 23, of Goble-Roberts suffered a seizure associated with muscular dystrophy and called on the fire department who then had her transported to HRMC by P&B Ambulance Service.

Just before 11 a.m., firefighters were called to clean up a minor gas spill at the Union 76 gas station at Highland Plaza.

At 1 p.m., emergency medical personnel were needed at the scene of a pedestrian/vehicle accident on Lake Street (see story, front page).

A false alarm in regards to another pedestrian being hit by a vehicle turned out to be a automobile backing into an ambulance at the Archer Clinic. "This was a case of serious mis-communication," Wells added. The call was received about 2:30 p.m.

At 4:30 p.m., a fire truck responded to a fire call from Goble-Roberts. Details were not available at press time.

PSC Action

The Public Service Commission recently approved a proposal by one Floyd County utility company to incur additional indebtedness.

The PSC approved Martin Gas Co.'s proposal to borrow $30,000 pursuant to the terms set forth in a settlement agreement between Martin and Columbia Gas of Kentucky. Columbia is selling Martin all facilities, rights-of-way and easements used to provide gas service to the Martin Housing Authority.

Because Martin's rates are higher than Columbia's, customers will see a rate increase, said PSC officials.

Commentary

by Ed Taylor

Football in our Floyd County high schools has been down this season. We have very capable coaches who are trying to put together winning programs. A high school coach will tell you how important it is to have a good grade school "feeder" program and be able to send players into high school who at least know the basics of the game.

Prestonsburg and Allen Elementary have perhaps the best of grade school programs in the county, programs that are consistent winners. Prestonsburg had an undefeated season last year and is a good bet to duplicate that this time around. Allen has suffered only two losses in the past two seasons. Prestonsburg, of course, sends its players to the local high school. Allen has some that attend Prestonsburg, while others may choose to attend Betsy Layne.

Coach Donnie Daniels' Allen Central football program has been without a feeder program in the four grade schools that send students on until this season. A group of parents helped organize a "Little Rebels" football team this year, composed of players from Martin, Maytown, Carrett and Wayland, simply because they were concerned about Allen Central's lack of a feeder program. Before, players coming to the Allen Central program had to learn the difference between offensive and defensive lines. Just the basics, they had to learn as a freshmen, because they had no feeder program.

Betsy Layne is dependent on teams from Betsy Layne and John M. Stumbo to send them knowledgeable players. Wheelwright has only one school, Osborne, which also takes in players from Melvin, and supplies the Trojans with quality players.

Our coaches in the grade system train, motivate and teach these players how to play the game of football, so that when they go into the high school system, they will have at least a basic knowledge of the game.

This year, some schools scheduled teams like a Prestonsburg and Allen and, when they saw how strong the team was, wanted to change the schedule and not play because they were afraid of the embarrassment. Who is cheated in a situation such as this? The coach? No, he has some free time now for other interests. The schools? No, they don't make any money from it anyway. Who, then? The players! Playing against better competition is good and healthy for a player to learn how to play the game. If a team goes out and gets beat 36-0, so what? There is a learning factor even in a game such as this.

Another rub this season is the scheduling of basketball games when the grade school football season is still in progress. Basketball practice is called, a football game is scheduled — which one will a player participating in both sports choose? Basketball, of course. This is, in my opinion, unfair to grade school football coaches who are trying to guide a football program through a season. The next thing that happens is that the coach has lost most of his players to the basketball team.

I'm not against basketball. Sports-wise, it is my choice. But I think if we expect to have a successful football program in our high schools, it is imperative to have a successful feeder system for each high school. Our grade school coaches cannot accomplish what they have set out to do by losing their players to another sport.

I would like to see our school administrators get behind the grade school football program more by delaying the start of the basketball season so that it doesn't affect the grade schools schedules. I know it doesn't bring in the revenue that basketball does. I know that there are not that many fans that will attend the games. But if our high schools in Floyd County don't get the players they need to have a good football program, neither will the fans come to the high school games in years ahead.

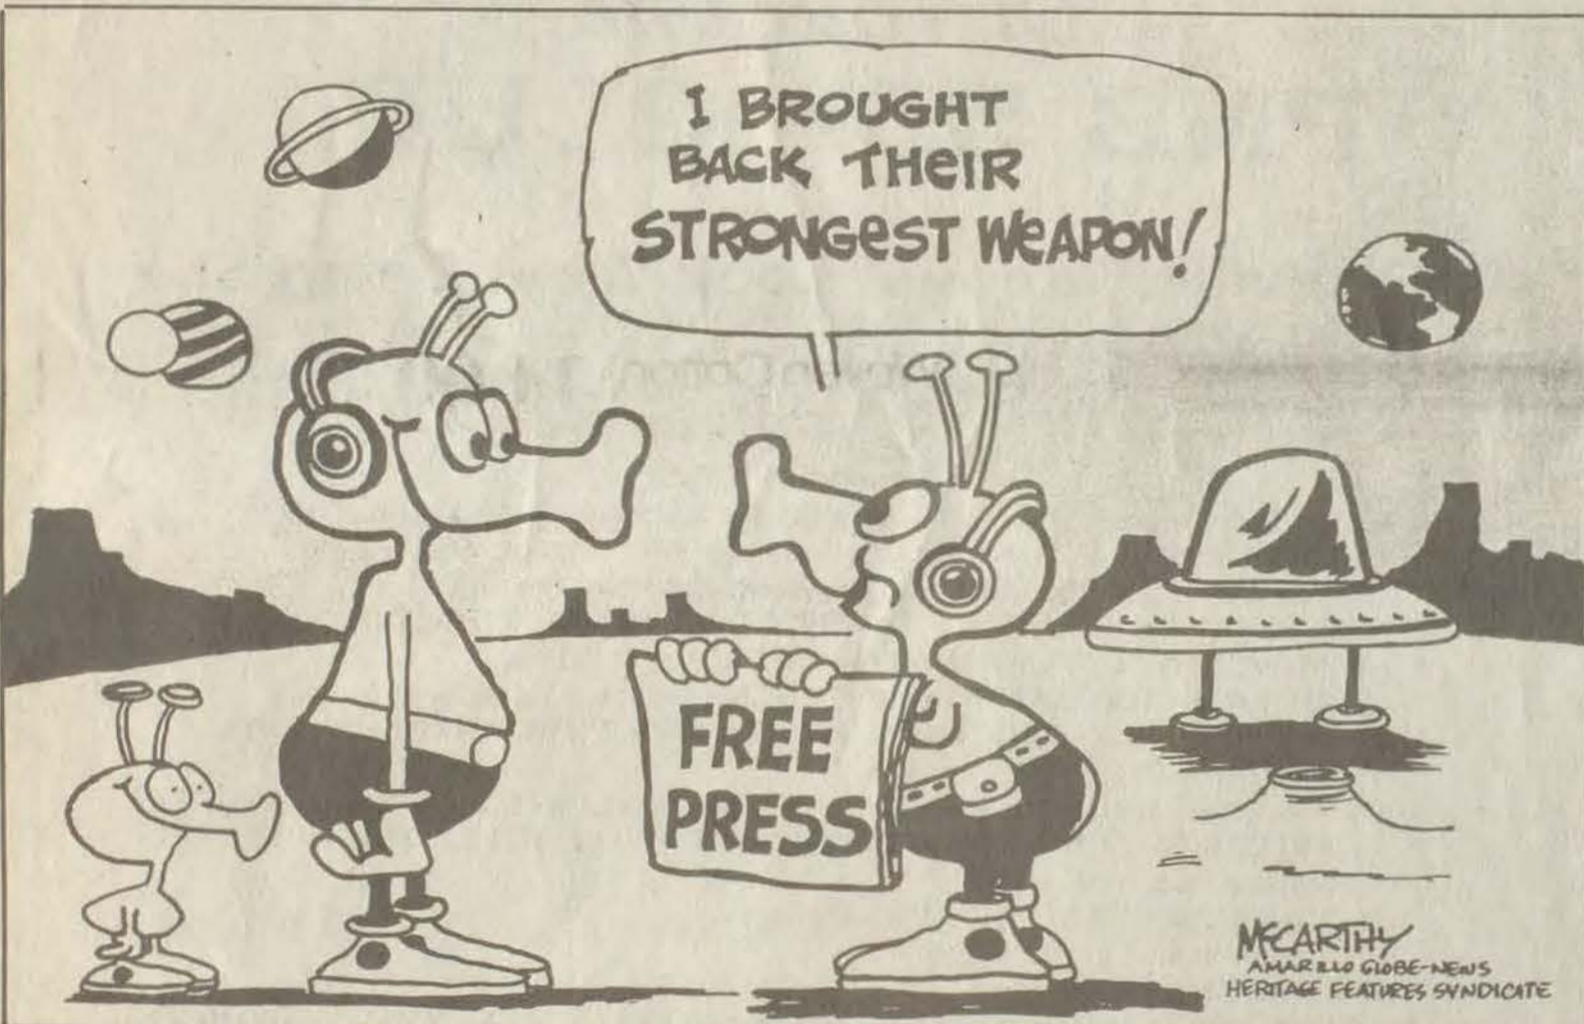

I think we have very capable coaches on the high school and grade school level. They deserve all the support they can get.

Wishes Times Well For Work

Dear Editor,
A free press is the cornerstone of Democracy. That is why this year's theme for National Newspaper Week, Oct. 8-14, "A Free Press: Democracy's Forum" is especially appropriate. National Newspaper Week gives us a chance to reflect on the crucial work of the Floyd County Times and all other newspapers in carrying on the tradition of responsible and vigilant journalism. We at South Central Bell wish you well as the Floyd County Times enters another year of service and leadership in our community. We salute the fine job you do in keeping us informed on events that affect us all. Sincerely, Art Willett, Manager, South Central Bell

Kentuckians Against Assault Weapons Forms

Dear Editor:
The recent tragedy at Standard Gravure in Louisville has brought pain, angry frustration, and a sort of temporary unity to our community. Residents have conveyed their sympathy for the victims and their families by giving blood and making donations to the Standard Gravure Fund. Many concerned citizens, including some of our elected officials, have expressed their outrage at the easy access we Americans have to assault weapons and have urged that they be banned. These responses have been gratifying, but they are not likely to be effective. The effort to ban assault weapons may take years of hard work, and it will require a strong organization along the lines of MADD to sustain it. I am writing to inform you that some Kentuckians have organized. We are Kentuckians Against Assault Weapons. We will be a single-issue citizens' lobby whose purpose will be to persuade our legislators, at the state and federal levels, to ban the manufacture and sale of assault weapons. Assault weapons were invented for military use and are suited only to kill people. And they do that with frightening efficiency. We believe their possession by private citizens is a grave insanity and will lead again and again to mass murder. In the hands of criminals and the deranged they have already taken a huge toll. Assault weapons bought in our country provide most of the fire power of the drug cartel in Columbia. They have become the weapons of choice for drug dealers in our larger cities, and they are being used increasingly by disturbed people to take their sick revenge for imagined offenses. If the guns are available, the murders will go on. We remember the recent tragedy in Stockton, California where school children were mowed down by a disturbed man. We remember the death of more children not too long before that at a McDonald's in California. And, of course, our memory is all too fresh of the unnecessary death of nine of our friends, neighbors and colleagues here in Louisville. Defenders of assault weapons will warn that a ban on such weapons is but a first step toward the confiscation of all weapons and an infringement of their constitutional right to bear arms. But even a total ban on their manufacture and sale is neither of these things. Our rights under the Constitution are not absolute. The first amendment does not permit us to yell "fire" in a crowded theater or to libel; the second amendment has long been limited. We cannot own tanks, bazookas, grenade launchers, 50-millimeter machine guns, or sawed-off shotguns, for example. The Supreme Court has upheld such limits. As our name makes clear, Kentuckians Against Assault Weapons will seek a ban only against automatic and semi-automatic weapons like the AK-47. Hunters, like Dr. Steve Henry who is caring for the victims of the Standard Gravure massacre, and hand-gun owners who understand this have already joined K.A.A.W. We need and welcome such support.

Please join us and help eradicate the horrifying menace of assault weapons. The U.S. Senate will vote soon on a bill to ban assault weapons. Write and call Senators Wendell Ford and Mitch McConnell right away to say you support passage of the DeConcini Bill (S. 747). And then to make sure that this effort does not die with the memory of our recent tragedy please write Kentuckians Against Assault Weapons, P.O. Box 4176, Louisville, 40204. We need volunteers and donations. Please help in any way you can. Thank you. Bruce Adams, Director, Kentuckians Against Assault Weapons, Louisville

Community Response Strong In Wheelwright

Dear Editor,
May I respond to the letter from Gorman Collins regarding the custom of preparing food for the family of the deceased? Yes, it was traditional, Mr. Collins, and in the Wheelwright area, tradition is very strong.

My sister-in-law, Anna Lou Osborne, died Saturday morning, Sept. 30. Within two hours after the body was removed from the home, ladies were cleaning the house and the church. Food was arriving at both the home and the church, and continued until after the funeral on Oct. 2.

The gracious ladies of the United Methodist Church of Wheelwright and other friends prepared dinner for the family when they returned from the cemetery. I just can't tell you how many people gave of their time and money to see that the family had hot meals and that food was always at the church. We'll never forget these people because they gave of love for the family.

Some things may have changed in Wheelwright, Mr. Collins, but the love in the hearts of the people is still strong.

God bless each and every one of them. Sincerely, Doris Osborne, Wheelwright

REFORM SHOULD INCLUDE ALL ASPECTS OF KENTUCKY EDUCATION

I recently was privileged to take part in a gathering of Kentucky leaders, assembled by the Commonwealth of Kentucky Council on Higher Education, to focus on the future of higher education in our state.

We met against the backdrop of the Kentucky Supreme Court's mandate to the General Assembly to reform our system of elementary and secondary education—a mandate that gives us a golden opportunity to improve the entire structure of Kentucky education.

I took this gathering as an opportunity to pose questions that I believe must be answered with a loud and clear "yes" if we are achieve true educational reform:

1. Is our plan fair, innovative and workable?
2. Does it rise above partisanship to end waste and political abuse at all levels of education?
3. Does it improve the troubled parts of our educational system without bringing down those already achieving success?

4. Does it cause us to stop thinking only about today and start thinking about future generations?

5. Does it treat elementary, secondary, vocational and higher education as essential parts of one system?

I believe that Kentuckians will support a sound and comprehensive plan of educational reform, and we must seize this opportunity to create and adopt just such a plan.

We have heard that we should not be so ambitious as to include higher education in the current drive for reform. But endless waiting has led to our current problems. It is time to embark on a bold course of action—phasing in our reforms and resources over a reasonable period of time—to give all Kentuckians all of the educational opportunities they need and deserve.

A lot has happened since we took steps to strengthen the Council on Higher Education when I was governor in the early 1970s. And it clearly is time for Kentuckians to consider more sweeping changes in higher education to keep pace with a fast changing world.

I would like to see our state strengthen basic education and develop a pattern of true specialties to hold down wasteful competition among our regional universities. Eastern's law enforcement program is a good example of what we can do. Our institutions of higher learning can help to fill many other critical needs, including a growing need for pilot education to improve aviation safety in Kentucky and across the nation.

We also should be able to find ways to combine the great strengths of our community colleges with those of our fine regional technical and vocational schools. I believe that this could give us better educated graduates who will not become overly dependent on specific jobs skills that can be made obsolete by continuing technological progress.

Our educational challenges must be met by a partnership of local, state and federal government, private industry and ever other segment of our society. Our nation has created a legacy of debt for future generations of Americans. We must not deprive these same generations of the education they will need to cope with this intolerable problem.

Standoff

suitcase and go to jail if I got to, but it's time to take a stand".

The trouble with blasting in the Stanville area began about a year and a half ago, according to local residents.

"I've had all kinds of damage to my house and I know other neighbors who have problems too," says Greg Walters of Stanville. "I live in the bottom near the Post Office, and I've had cracks in my foundation, a cracked chimney and fireplace, a broken water heater and pipe troubles.

My fire place hearth sits on a four-inch slab of concrete and I've still got quarter inch cracks on it. It's all from the blasting."

According to Walters, the damage is not restricted to property.

"I have a set of four-year-old twins at home, and when those shots go off, they take off running. They're scared, but they can't get away from it, because the sound comes right in the house."

According to regulations set down by the Kentucky Department for Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, adequate protection for people and property must be maintained during mining operations. It is required that "Blasting shall be conducted to prevent injury to persons" and to prevent "damage to public and private properties outside the permit area."

Peter Hackney, area office manager of the U.S. Office of Surface Mining in Prestonsburg, did not seem surprised by reported complaints against Addington.

"I don't know the particulars about this Addington site, but we've had lots of complaints about the company's other operations," said Hackney. "If it's the site I think it is, they've got problems with their blasting. An inspector wrote them up in February on three violations, and that same week, they sent rock through the window of a woman's house."

According to Hackney, the problem in Mare Creek is partly geographical.

"The valley and mountains channel air blast down to the houses and it may be too much. They use an ammonia nitrate fuel oil mixture, called ANFO, and it's powerful. If it's not placed right, you can get a lot of air blast."

Kent Kidd, of Pike-Floyd Hollow in Stanville and who was working on Mare Creek at the time of a blast last Thursday, experienced channeled air first hand.

"I was cutting steel with a torch about 5 p.m.," said Kidd, "squatting down on my heels. A blast went off and knocked me off balance. I had to catch the ground and a piece of steel behind me fell over."

In an attempt to address the problems of Mare Creek, Wallace Scalf requested copies of blasting reports and complaints filed at the Office of Mining and Minerals in Martin, which are, according to Scalf, open to the public. He received copies of correspondence between Addington Inc.

and the Kentucky Department of Mines and Minerals' Division of Explosives and Blasting, which detail a waiver given to Addington from the state, allowing Addington to use more than 40,000 pounds of explosives per blast on site number 836-0184, which personnel at Addington and Peter Hackney at the Office of Surface Mining confirm is a part of the mining operations in the Mare Creek area. The first record of this waiver dates from May of 1987. Without this waiver, no more than 40,000 pounds may be used in mining operations.

Between 1987 and August of 1989, this waiver has remained in effect, allowing for a maximum of between 80,000 to 100,000 pounds of explosives to be used per blast.

On July 3, the waiver was disapproved by the Division of Explosives and Blasting, on the basis of inspectors' reports and the complaints by citizens. However, two weeks later, on July 18, the waiver was reissued, without comment on citizen complaints.

At least nine blasting complaint reports from Stanville citizens were filed during 1988 and 1989 with the Kentucky Department of Mines and Minerals. Complaints included strong house vibration, loss of well water, collapsed walls and flying rock. In most cases, action taken by inspectors involved the setting monitors to measure air blast and ground vibration. At least one citation was issued by the state and several civil suits have been brought against Addington by area residents.

Unfortunately, according to Scalf and other Stanville citizens, the blasting has continued unabated.

"I want this trouble stopped for the community's sake," says Scalf. "The older people are scared to speak up about it a lot of the time. I hope it doesn't take someone getting killed by the blasting to get it taken care of."

time jobs, as well as 300 to 400 short term construction jobs. Positive economic spinoff benefits to hotels, restaurants, and local businesses are expected. The council was strongly in support of the project.

Fire Chief Tom Blackburn honored Mayor Ann Latta and City Administrator Fred James by awarding them the titles of Honorary Fire Chief for their work in making Prestonsburg a safe city. Fire fighters Mike Wells and Kenny Crisp were recognized for their leadership and service to the department during Blackburn's medical absence, receiving certificates of appreciation.

In other fire department action, members of the volunteer fire department requested that council consider improving volunteer pay to meet the standards of other area cities. The personnel committee and selected volunteers will meet to discuss the proposal. The week of Oct. 8-14 has been designated Fire Safety Week.

Council agreed to allow work to begin immediately on a public restroom in downtown Prestonsburg. It will be located near the southeast corner of the municipal building, on Third Street. Handicap access will be provided, and Job Corp will provide labor for the project. Estimated cost was set at $5,000.

Police Officer Roy Roberts and City Clerk Sue Webb were both recognized for their work on the hurricane relief project sponsored by the City of Prestonsburg and received certificates of appreciation from the city. The project, according to Latta and Fire Marshall Larry Adams, who accompanied the supplies to King's Tree, S.C., was a complete success.

A proposal to try newspaper recycling in the city was accepted by council. Mayor Latta stated "We have to look at cutting the costs of disposing of solid waste. Newspaper makes up a significant portion of this waste. Recycling is a possible answer."

Council agreed to designate Thursday, Oct. 26 as Newspaper Recycling Day. All city residents are asked to tie papers into bundles and place them outside. A separate truck will come by to pick them up.

In final action, Mayor Latta declared the week of Oct. 8-14 Newspaper Week in Prestonsburg.

The officers of the new corporation are Martin, chair; Phillip E. Pack of Job, vice chair; and Dana Paul Smith of Hi Hat, secretary-treasurer. Corporate council is Danny P. Caudill of Martin.

John Galt, Inc., will serve as construction management for the proposed facility, while Ross-Feldman Architecture, Inc., of Lexington, is the architect.

The proposed regional facility will be dedicated to the diagnosis, care and treatment of mental disorders in children ages 3 to 12 years, and adolescents ages 13 to 18 years.

Plans call for a building of approximately 49,000 square feet, divided into two levels. The first floor generally includes the "daytime" activities of staff and patients, including administration and passive therapy, active therapy, a life skills center and building support facilities. The active therapy will include an art room, music room, gymnasium, hydrotherapy and greenhouse. The life skills center, meanwhile, will house instructional rooms and a library. The proposal also calls for a second floor to house "nighttime" activities, including the patients' bedrooms, lounges and nurse's stations. The two levels are planned to be connected by an elevator and open stair within a two-story-high central lounge space.

The outside appearance of the building is intended to be non-institutional in feeling and looks.

Concert Series Opens With Jazz Dance Group

by Tess Whitmer,
Staff Writer

The Eastern Kentucky Concert Series opened its 1989-90 season recently with the performance of Jazz Dance Theatre South, an enthusiastic and talented seven-member dance troupe from Atlanta, Ga.

Under the artistic direction of Marcus R. Alford, known for his dynamic performance and creative choreography, the performance drew from all forms of dance, concentrating on the Blues, Hot Jazz, Contemporary Jazz, Classical Jazz and Comic Jazz.

One of their numbers, entitled "The New Adventures of Detective Twilight," featured a spy spoof set to the music of James Bond, Secret Agent Man, Alfred Hitchcock and Peter Gunn.

The performance switched from mystery to romance to comic with a skit named "Undies: A Revealing Tale." The performers detailed the different styles of sleepwear by performing consecutive sets ranging from Baby Undies to Long Johns to Football Undies and more. Comically displayed, the number was entertaining and informative.

A special performance was given by local talent Aaron Girlinghouse, dance instructor at PCC. He was spotlighted in a feature set to the music of Janet Jackson. Girlinghouse's part in this program reflects the goal of the Eastern Kentucky Concert Series — to bring entertainment to the region from all parts of the country while spotlighting the talents and gifts of the Appalachian Region.

In addition to the jazz company performance, Eastern Kentucky Concert Series has packed this season's schedule with a variety of entertainment. November's concert features John Courter, a concert organist who has studied in Germany and published in the United States and Europe.

The Community Chorus of Prestonsburg Community College will celebrate the hanging of the greens with "Holiday Harmonies" in December. The evening's music will feature Robert Shaw's suite, "Many Moods of Christmas."

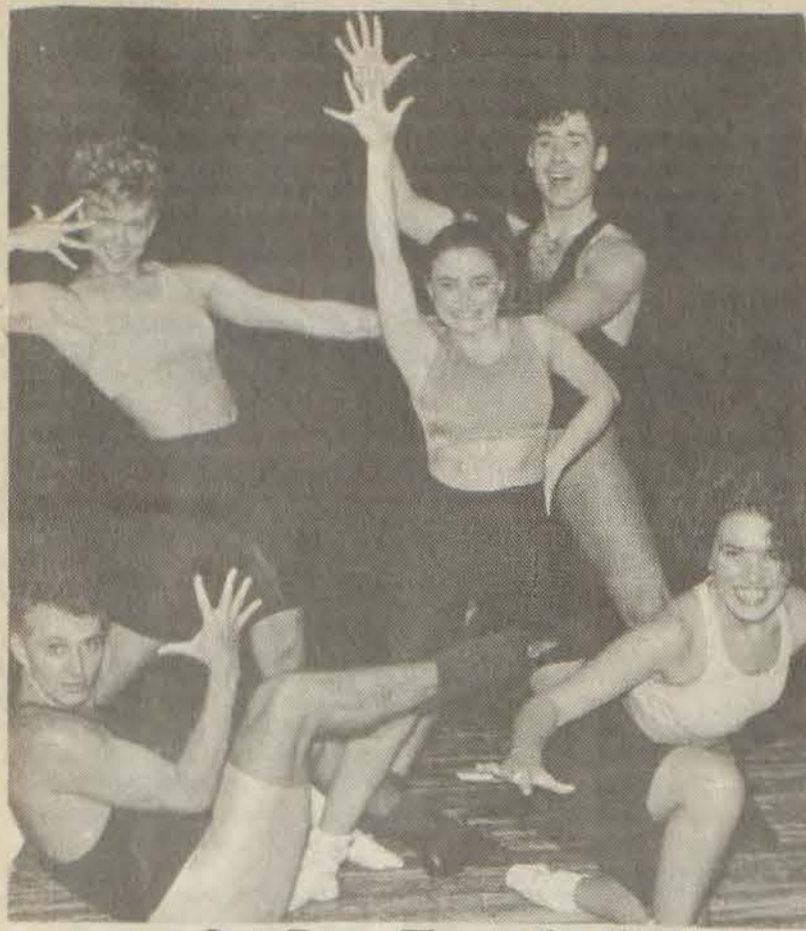

Slated for February's concert is The Chestnut Brass Company, which has earned international acclaim as the only brass ensemble that performs regularly on both historical and modern instruments. This performance will spotlight a variety of jazz music and authentic Renaissance and 19th century brass music.

The piano duo of Joan Yarbrough and Robert Cowan will perform in March for the concert series. Traveling with their own seven-foot Hamburg Steinway pianos, America's premiere husband and wife piano team continue to be internationally acclaimed by audiences and critics.

The season will finish with a second performance of the Community Chorus of PCC with a Spring Sing in April. Also, a regional orchestra is proposed to perform in May.

This is a new season for the Eastern Kentucky Concert Series after nearly an eight-year hiatus. The series has reorganized to revive the tradition of celebrating American Cultural Arts while providing education and entertainment for the entire family. Family subscriptions are $50 for seven shows, and can be obtained by contacting James Ratcliff at PCC, Johnson Building, Room 102. Or call 886-3863, ext. 278. The Eastern Kentucky Concert Series is funded in part by the Kentucky Arts Council.

Jazz Dance Theatre South

The Jazz Dance Theatre South's final number for its Tuesday, Oct. 3, performance featured an energetic aerobics/work out piece. It featured dancers (front) Marcus Alford, Dawn Guthrie, (back) Annie Day, Lauren Orkin and Michael Perez.

Floyd Lottery Sales Top $2 Million Mark

In six months, Floyd County lottery ticket retailers have sold more than $2 million in tickets, accounting for slightly more than 1 percent of the state's total sales to date.

The county has approximately 36 retailers who sell tickets; each retailer has averaged $55,715 in sales, according to Vicki Byrum Dennis, Kentucky Lottery Corp. spokeswoman.

Since the first day of sales on April 4, an average of $65 has been spent on lottery tickets by each person over 18 in the state.

"While sales leveled in September, they have shown growth the last two weeks to keep us among the leaders nationally in instant ticket sales," said Bill Hardy, senior vice president of sales for KHC.

"Kentuckians are naturally very excited about the on-line games that begin on Oct. 16," he said. "But many of our players enjoy the instant games and the thrill that comes with winning on a ticket immediately."

Hardy added that the lottery will definitely continue to offer the instant tickets.

"We have some terrific games planned for the upcoming months and we think our players will really enjoy them," Hardy said.

Halloween Pranks Begin

Garrett Firefighters have been subjected to numerous prank calls about fires as well as intentionally set fires recently, according to Terry Triplett, firefighter. "This type of thing takes the firefighters away from potential life threatening calls and it costs us money every time we run the trucks out," Triplett exclaimed.

Apparently last Friday around 8 p.m. several juveniles were seen setting a dump on fire at Bosco. Four men from the department were sent to douse the flames.

Also on Friday, at 5:15 p.m., a small fire started in the Lackey Body Shop run by Dean Hall. Triplett said that the building was very old and had been used to store hay. He suspects that birds, which have carried the hay into the walls for some time, may have picked up a lit cigarette butt and added it to the collection of nesting items, thus igniting a fire.

"The owners acted very wisely by calling the fire department first and then attempting to put out the fire with a garden hose (at which they succeeded)," Triplett noted. Two trucks and 13 firefighters were sent on the call due to the size of the structure and its proximity to other buildings. "This could have been a major disaster had the flames gotten out of control," he added.

Jenny Wiley Legend

Hezekiah Sellards, emigrated from the upper reaches of the Shenandoah to Walker's Creek. We have no record of her thoughts as she wove. It may have been of the past — of her father, who came from Ireland in 1732, or of her wedding to Thomas Wiley in 1779. Her thoughts may have been wholly of the present — of her four small children — of her 15-year-old brother who assisted with the many chores, or of her husband who had that day gathered a load of dried herbs and gone away to market them.

Of the past we have remembrance; of the present an awareness; of the future, Providence has allowed no vision. If it had been that, we could divine the course of our destiny. Jennie Wiley would have fled her cabin in horror.

She wove on and on as the rain fell. Near dark, while it was still raining, she heard a footstep on her threshold. It was John Borders, who having married her sister Elizabeth, lived only a short distance away. He had come, he explained, to ask her if she was not afraid to be alone. He had heard the host of owls all afternoon and this continued calling of the owls was suspicious. Indians were never too far away on the borderland, and Borders, alert to every sound of the wilderness, thought that Indians were sulking near. Why not come to his cabin with her children and spend the night?

To this suggestion of her brother-in-law, Mrs. Wiley gave some thought. Thomas would, in all probability, be after dark on his return, and if John Borders thought it safer for her to be at his cabin, then it would be well for her to listen. To him she replied that when the cloth now at the loom was finished, she would come over with the children for the night.

Borders went away, and she resumed her weaving. Having done, she arose and began to prepare for the short journey to her sister's home. Picking up her 15-month-old baby, she swathed it in warm woolings for the autumn evening. A figure loomed in the doorway as she turned. There was the suddenness of the savage yells, the rush of the painted warriors into the room. Clutching her babe in her arms, she fell back into the small room until stopped by the wall. There was the crunch of tomahawks as her brother and children fell under the savage blows. She surged forward to save a child — strong arms held her. The first horror ended when the scalps of the children were hanging from the side of her enemies. A new horror was anticipated when an old Cherokee warrior attempted to take her baby. She resisted fiercely. A Shawnee chief watched the tussle for a moment and intervened. He pushed the old Cherokee away. There was talk between them in their savage dialect, and the Cherokee seemed to agree to something, for he did not offer to further molest her or the baby.

The Indians prowled through the house. Soon they were all talking together in earnest debate. Later, she learned the redskins had discovered they were not in the cabin of Mathias Harman, their old enemy, whose family they had come up out of Sandy to destroy. An Indian spoke to her in rude English, asking whose cabin it was. She answered it was that of Thomas Wiley. There was more debate, but when it ended they began to leave. Black Wolf, the Shawnee Chief, pulled her after him, and they entered the forest. It was dark now, and weak from her experiences and she had difficulty in keeping step with her captors, who seemed intent only on putting distance between them and the scene of their crime.

Friday: The saga continues.

Floyd Unemployment Falls

Unemployment in the five-county Big Sandy Area Development District decreased from a revised 9.1 percent in July to a preliminary 8.5 percent in August, the latest month for which statistics are available.

Rates ranged from 7 percent in Johnson County to 10.6 percent in Magoffin County, the only double-digit rate in the district.

The monthly sample of claimants of unemployment insurance benefits showed 39.7 percent had worked in mining and 21.5 percent each in services and trades.

Floyd County recorded a 7.9 percent unemployment rate, while Martin recorded 8.1 percent and Pike 8.9 percent.

Jobs tied to the reopening of schools played a major role in pushing unemployment down between July and August, as 90 Kentucky counties reported a drop in monthly jobless rates.

Meanwhile, rates increased in 25 counties, in some cases as a result of temporary factory layoffs plus the ending of summer jobs. In five coun-

In Memory of Elder J. Paris Music

Departed this Life Oct. 5, 1984

Its been five years ago today, Since God called our Dad away,
It left our homes and hearts so sad, A greater Dad, no one could have.
We've tried to go on with our life day by day, To say we have forgotten you, there's no way,
We remember how you preached and prayed, And taught us in the good old way.
Your preaching Dad, we hear as if yesterday We tried to teach our children the self same way,
So just wait a while on the Golden Shore We will come soon, to be where you are.
Just sleep on in your peaceful state, Time goes on, you won't have long to wait.
You suffer no more from grief and pain, Our loss is surely Heaven's Gain.

Sadly missed by your 2 daughters,

Leslie County Upsets Prestonsburg 'Cats, 28-21

by Ed Taylor,
Sports Editor

Leslie County dimmed the playoff hopes of the Prestonsburg Blackcats Friday night at Prestonsburg when the District 2 opponents scored 17 second half points to come from a 21-13 half time deficit and upset the front running Blackcats, 28-21.

The Blackcats looked like a team destined to move one step closer to a title in the first half. On the opening drive of the game for Coach Bill Letton's 'Cats, Prestonsburg moved to the ball into Leslie County's territory on a pass from quarterback Aaron Tucker. With the ball on Leslie County's 45, facing fourth and one, Tucker took the ball up the middle to Leslie County's 20. The Blackcats picked up another first down at the 8 yard line. After a loss on first down, Todd Goodman took the ball into the end zone from 12 yards out for a touchdown. Jason "Golden Toe" Storey added the extra point for a 7-0 Blackcat lead.

Leslie County, on its next possession, moved the ball up field before being forced to punt on second possession. Prestonsburg took over on their own 40 yard line. On a flicker play, Tucker tossed to Jeff Slone, who hit Mike Crace with a 62 yard pass. Crace took the ball into the end zone, and Storey's second field goal made it 14-0.

On ensuing kickoff, Leslie County got back-to-back first downs on runs up the middle to the Prestonsburg 43.

On the next series of downs, Leslie County reached the Blackcat 23. On a quarterback sneak Leslie was on the 'Cats 11. Greg Couch hit Mike Baker from 8 yards out with a touchdown pass, and Sean Fortney added the extra point to make it 14-7 at the end of the first quarter.

LC opened the second quarter with a kick off, and Prestonsburg got the ball on Leslie County's 37 yard line. On first play from scrimmage, Bill Tom Compton ran the ball 54 yards for a touchdown to give the playoff hopefuls a 21-7 lead after Storey's third extra point of the game. On the kickoff, Leslie County fumbled the football and Prestonsburg recovered on the Leslie County 33.

On third down and seven for Prestonsburg, Tucker was sacked, bringing up a fourth and 12 situation. Tucker's pass was incomplete and Leslie took over on downs. The visitors moved the ball into Blackcat territory to the 40 yard line. After penalties against Prestonsburg, the ball was spotted on the Blackcat 23. When Couch went back to pass, Worth McGuire intercepted a pass and ran the ball back to the Prestonsburg 38. On first down Tucker fumbled the ball on the Blackcats 35 and Leslie County recovered.

On a double reverse, Couch hit Baker with a 43-yard pass for a touchdown. The conversion run failed and Leslie County was trailing 21-13 at the half.

In the third period, Leslie County took the ball deep into Blackcat territory, where the 'Cats defense held.

Leslie County got the ball back on downs and moved the ball to the Prestonsburg 15. On a third and two, Couch hit Asher with a pass on the P'burg 8 to set a first and goal. On third and goal, Couch plunged across

BLHS Bobcat Streak Ends, Team Falls To Whitesburg

by Ed Taylor,
Sports Editor

It was homecoming Friday night for the Betsy Layne Bobcats at the Lloyd Hamilton Athletic Complex, as the Whitesburg Yellowjackets came to town for a District 2 football game.

It was an unusual Friday night game because of the absence of rain.

A large crowd filled the stands on the Betsy Layne field as balloons and other decorations surrounded the stadium.

The end result was not a happy one for the Bobcats, winners of three straight games going into Friday night's contest, as tailback Leonard Holland carried the football 22 times for 105 yards and four touchdowns to lead the Yellowjackets over the Bobcats, 42-0.

The Bobcats played hard, but were unable to get their ground game going. Betsy Layne coach Gerald Newsome, who thought Whitesburg would throw the ball more, was fearful of Friday night's game because of "it being homecoming."

Whitesburg scored with 6:11 to go in the first period, after intercepting a Craig Hunter pass on the Betsy Layne 30 yard line. The Yellowjackets moved the ball to the Bobcat 1 yard line, where Holland carried it into the end zone for a 6-0 Whitesburg lead.

At the opening of the second stanza, Betsy Layne had the ball on their own 18, but could not move it on four downs. They gave the pigskin to the Yellowjackets on their own 26. Four plays later, Holland once again carried the ball to pay dirt, then ran the two point conversion to give Whitesburg a 14-0 lead.

Betsy Layne threatened in the second quarter with 6:13 to go when Chris Bias intercepted quarterback Lenny Bates' pass and returned the ball 44 yards to the Whitesburg 22. However, the Bobcats were unable to move on the ground as the Yel-

Allen Central Falls To Hazard

by Ed Taylor,
Sports Editor

Coach Donnie Daniels' Allen Central Rebels entertained the Hazard Bulldogs Saturday afternoon at the Don Daniels Athletic Complex in a District 2 game. Hazard entered the game 4-3 overall and 2-0 in district competition. Allen Central was on a two-game winning streak and had a record of 2-5 and 0-2 in district action.

The Bulldogs scored 20 points in the second quarter enroute to a 42-6 win over the Rebels. Hazard scored in the first quarter on Anthony Sharpey's interception of Rebel QB B.J. Aldrich's pass; Sharpey took the ball 35 yards for a touchdown. Joey Sims ran the two point conversion to give the Bulldogs an 8-0 lead.

The second period saw the downfall for the Rebels. Early in the second stanza, Sims recovered a Rebel fumble on Allen Central's 6 yard line and ran the ball into the end zone for a touchdown. Hugh Mitchell ran the two point conversion to give the Bulldogs a 16-0 lead.

The Bulldogs didn't stop there. The Rebels were forced to give the ball up on downs and James Williams took a hand off, galloped 31 yards for a Bulldog score, and Hazard owned a commanding 22-0 lead. Bulldog quarterback Steve Sizemore hit Shane Feltner with a pass from 9 yards out for another Hazard TD. Hazard lead at the half, 28-0.

The Rebel defense tightened up some at the start of the third quarter, but the Bulldogs hit pay dirt with 4:12 remaining, when Sizemore found Dwight Hagins in the end zone and threw a TD pass from 9 yards out. John Collier kicked the extra point to put Hazard on top, 35-0, at the end of the third stanza. George Fitz took a hand off from Sizemore and romped 18 yards for the final touchdown for Hazard. Collier's extra point made it 42-0.

Allen Central got on the scoreboard with 2:10 remaining in the game when Rebel quarterback B.J. Aldrich hit Terry Spurlock with a pass from the 8 yard line. The two point conversion failed for the Rebels.

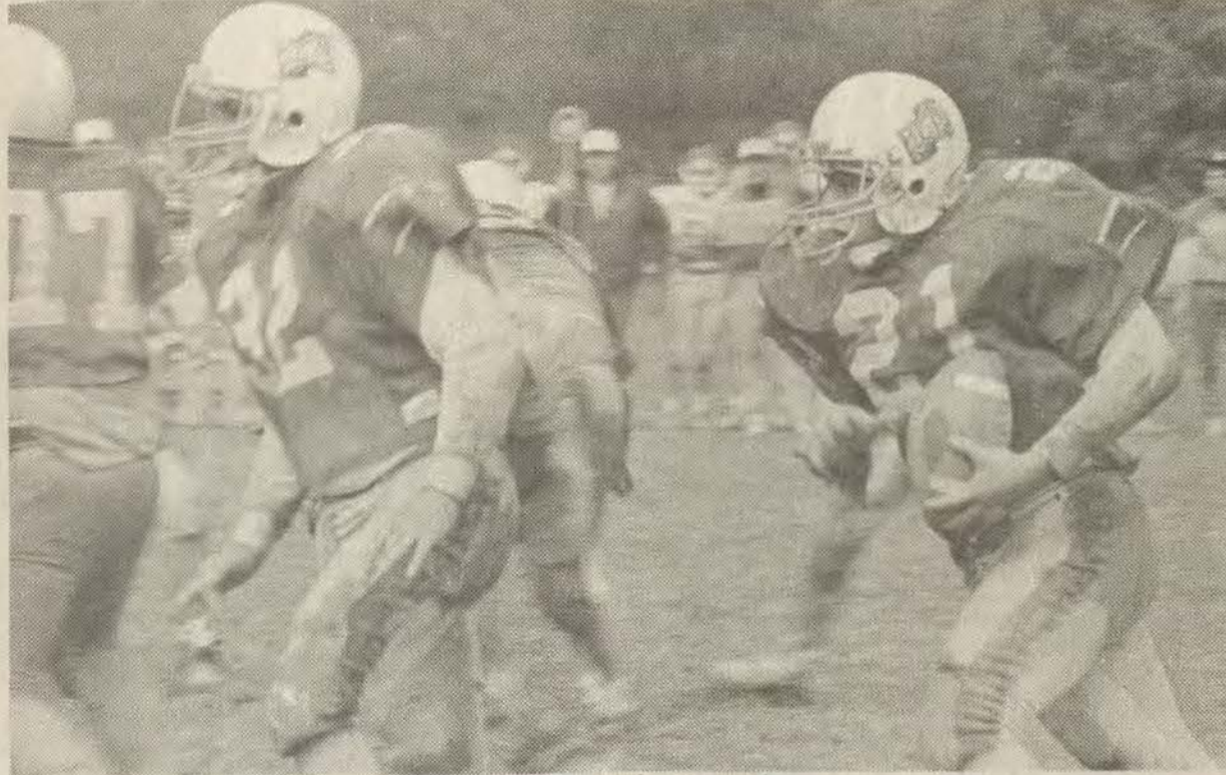

"When you make the turnovers we made in the game you can't beat anybody," Rebel coach Donnie Daniels said. "Overall, our defense was good. The kids put forth a good effort. Offensively, we just stalled ourselves out."

Running back Tommy Gibson carried the ball 21 times for 71 yards rushing. John Slone rushed for 33 yards on seven carries. Aldrich passed the football 16 times and completed seven for a total of 46 yards. Allen Central had two interceptions.

Allen Central will travel to Fairview tomorrow night for an 8 p.m. game in their final road game of the season. The game was originally scheduled for Friday night but, because is no school Friday, the game was moved to Thursday evening.

Allen Central falls to 2-6 on the year and 0-3 in conference play. Hazard improves to 5-3 and 3-0 in district action.

Follow The Leader

Allen Central's Tommy Gibson (21) follows the blocking of John Slone (32) as he carries the ball against Hazard at the Don Daniels Athletic Complex. The Bulldogs won over the Rebels 42-6. Gibson carried the ball 21 times for 71 yards.

Good Gainer

The Betsy Layne Bobcats picked up a first down on this run against Whitesburg Friday night at the Lloyd Hamilton Athletic Complex. The Bobcats were unable to move the ball against the hardnosed defense of the Yellowjackets in losing the game, 42-0.

P'burg Elementary Captures Crown Over Allen Eagles

by Ed Taylor,
Sports Editor

With the grade school football season coming to a close, the Prestonsburg Elementary Blackcats won the county championship with a big 24-0 win over a tough Allen Eagles team.

The Eagles and Blackcats both entered the game with undefeated records. Allen was 6-0, while the Blackcats held a 4-0 record.

Both teams played through a scoreless first period of action. In the second quarter, Jason Keathley took a hand off from the quarterback and ran 40 yards for a touchdown. Seth Hyden ran the two point conversion to give the Blackcats an 8-0 lead.

In the third stanza, Keathley again scored, this time on a 20-yard dash to the end zone. Hyden scored on the See P'BURG ELEM., Page 2

Prestonsburg Hand Off

The Prestonsburg Blackcats captured the Floyd County grade school football championship over the Allen Eagles with a 24-0 win last week. Both teams were undefeated going into the game. Prestonsburg is 5-0 on the year and Allen finishes at 4-1.

Eagles Soar Past WHS Trojans, 36-6

by Ed Taylor,
Sports Editor

A big first half helped the Virgie Eagles to fly past the visiting Wheelwright Trojans Friday night, 36-6, in a game played at Virgie.

The Eagles took a 29-0 half time lead over Coach Roger Johnson's Trojans. But in the second half, the Wheelwright made some personal changes on the offensive lines and Johnson liked what he saw.

"We replaced two of our senior linemen with a sophomore and a junior," Johnson explained. "In the second half we moved the ball better."

The defense was better in the second half for the Trojans as well, as they held the Eagles to just seven second half points.

"The Virgie game was like the Everts game," Johnson stated, "we were just getting beat on the line."

"I feel we out-played Virgie in the second half," the Trojan mentor remarked. "We just turned the ball over and it cost us."

After the kick off to begin the second half, the Trojans drove the ball to the Eagle 5 yard line. Sophomore Steven Jackson fumbled the ball and Virgie recovered.

Late in the fourth period, senior halfback Chad Hall ran the ball from 8 yards out for a Trojan touchdown. The two point conversion failed. The Eagles made it 36-6 late in the fourth on touchdown off a pass play.

Caught In A Pocket

Leslie County halfback Jerome Wilson (40) is caught in a pocket of Prestonsburg defenders led by Bill Tom Compton (45) and Kevin Adams (55). Leslie County came from behind in the second half to defeat the Blackcats, 28-21.

the goal line for a touchdown that brought Leslie to within two, 21-19.

Prestonsburg was faced with a fourth and one and decided to punt. Leslie took the ball on the Prestonsburg 49 yard line. Couch hit his wide receiver with a pass on the 15 yard line. Couch then carried the ball for seven more yards, spotting it on the Blackcats 8. On a third and two, Couch ran from two yards out for the score and a 25-21 Leslie County lead. On the ensuing kickoff, Prestonsburg fumbled the ball and Leslie County recovered on the PHS 23. A costly personal foul penalty on the Blackcats moved the ball to the 8. On a fourth and goal from the six, a delay of game penalty against Leslie County moved the ball back to the 11 yard line. Fortney then kicked a 26-yard field goal to give the final score of 28-21.

The Blackcats are now 3-5 on the season after losing for the fourth straight game. Prestonsburg is still in the playoff picture with district games against M.C. Napier and Morgan County coming up after the Pikeville encounter. Letton's club will have next Friday as an open date and will not play.

Leslie County goes to 2-5 overall and 2-1 in district play.

Bobcats

lowjackets defense dug in the trenches and held the host team.

Holland scored his third touchdown of the game as Whitesburg marched 65 yards on 10 plays to take a 22-0 lead after the conversion. Betsy Layne had possession of the football twice in the third period for a total of four minutes.

Holland put six more on the board with a five yard run and his fourth TD to give the Yellowjackets a 27-0 lead. Oliver Gibson scored a TD early in the fourth to make it 34-0 after the field goal. With 3:40 remaining in the game, Whitesburg scored again to win, 42-0.

Coach Tom Searcy of the Yellowjackets credits changes in the Whitesburg offense as the reason his team has turned things around since the Prestonsburg game earlier in the year.

"We moved Holland, who was our opening game quarterback, to the tailback position and put Bates in the quarterback spot," Searcy stated. Since the move, the Yellowjackets have compiled a 5-1 record and now stand at 5-2 on the year.

"Bates is able to make our option game go," Searcy continued. "Our defense is only giving up an average of five points a game, so we have a good defensive team."

Searcy's team has dropped two district games and he doesn't see a title for his team this year, although his Yellowjackets can finish in second place.

Betsy Layne's Chris Bias had a good game in rushing for 63 yards on just seven carries. Halfback Larry Hall carried eight times for 32 yards.

Betsy Layne fumbled the football one time and the ball was recovered by Whitesburg. Each team had one interception. Whitesburg was assessed 35 yards in penalties while the Bobcats were tagged for 30. The Bobcats had only five first downs compared to Whitesburg's 13. Hunter threw the ball 13 times with four completions for 24 yards. Whitesburg went to the air only three times, which Coach Newsome thought they would more often, with no completions.

Betsy Layne will take to the road this Friday night, traveling to Morgan County for an 8 p.m. start.

the way his replacements on the offensive line performed, adding that if the seniors want to play, they will have to "earn it back in practice by working hard." Three positions will be available. Wheelwright is 0-8 for the season and 0-3 in district competition.

The Trojans will play the Raceland Rams this Thursday night at Wheelwright in the team's final home game. The game was scheduled for Friday night but was changed because of a Kentucky Education Association meeting (school will not be held Friday). It will be parent's night at Bracket Field; game time is 8 p.m.

Hyden's 10-yard run in the fourth gave the final margin of 24-0 as the young Blackcats won their fifth game of the season and the county championship.

The Blackcats will go on to play in the Jenny Wiley Bowl at the Prestonsburg High School football field Tuesday night at 5:30.

Allen had a great year, closing the season with a 4-1 record. Allen and Prestonsburg have two of the premiere grade school football programs in the county.

Midnight Madness Coming To Prestonsburg High School

by Ed Taylor, Sports Editor

Midnight Madness is coming to Prestonsburg.

It isn't a big sale. It isn't a "sidewalk give away" on the streets of our fair city. It is a continuation of the "madness" that captured the city this past March when the Prestonsburg Blackcats won the 15th Region basketball crown.

This event as been appropriately sub-titled "The Madness Continues." Midnight Madness is Oct. 14, when Coach Gordon Parido's squad will officially begin practice and get ready to defend its crown.

The Blackcats are not permitted to take the floor until after midnight because Kentucky High School Athletic Association rules do not permit practices until Oct. 15.

However, other activities will take place while everyone waits for the stroke of midnight. At 9 p.m., when things will really get exciting, the Sports Challenge, sponsored in conjunction with WYMT-TV and the Prestonsburg Youth Board, will take place. The Red-White Alumni Game will follow. Players from the 1950s, '60s and '70s will participate in the Red-White Alumni Game. Perhaps a celebrity guest referee will be in on the court. Anyone interested in playing in the Red-White Alumni Game should contact Coach Parido at 886-2252 (after 5 p.m., call 886-8488).

Get out the Ben Gay and all other soothing ointments and shake the moth balls out of the old shoes, come on out and enjoy taking part in the game. If you feel like you just can't motor up and down the court, come out and enjoy watching. Admission will be $2 for students and $3 for adults. Proceeds will go to the Prestonsburg Boosters Club and the Prestonsburg Youth Board. Tickets are being sold in advance by the two organizations.

Other activities planned for the evening will be competition in free throw shooting, dribbling and three-point shooting between the players in the Prestonsburg Youth League. Those 13 to 17 will be able to participate in the three-point competition. Free throw shooting is available for the 35 and over groups (have to make easy on you). For those who think they are the next Michael Jordan, a slam dunk contest is open to everyone. And for the really confident ones, the half court shot will be a challenge for everyone.

People believe if you sprinkle salt on the tail of a bird, you will have good luck.

Other prizes and awards will be given away and refreshments will be available. Don't forget the Sports Challenge and Red-White Alumni Game kicks things off at 9 p.m., Saturday, Oct. 14, at the Prestonsburg Fieldhouse. Fun for all ages be will awaiting everyone who attends.

For further information on any of the events, contact Coach Parido at the Prestonsburg High School.

Where The Bottom Line Is Less!

Looking Down Field

Betsy Layne quarterback Craig Hunter (11) looks down field for a receiver against Whitesburg. The Bobcats fell to the visiting Yellowjackets 42-0 in a District 2 game.

Tripped Up

Bill Tom Compton of Prestonsburg is tripped up by the Leslie County defense as the Blackcats fell to the visitors, 28-21. Compton had a 54-yard run for a touchdown. Prestonsburg was held scoreless in the second half after leading 21-13 at halftime.

Stumbo Opens Season With Win Over Prater

The John M. Stumbo grade school boys basketball team opened its season on a positive note with a 51-38 victory over the Prater Cougars.

Derrick Newsome scored a game high 19 points in leading the Mustangs in that department. Jason Newsome tossed in 10 points for the winners.

The first half proved to be the downfall for the Cougars as they were unable to find the basket.

"We fell behind in the first half and had to play catch up," Cougar coach Zenith Hall stated. "We matched them pretty well basket for basket in the second half. We just opened cold in the first part of the game."

Adam Roberts was top scorer for the Cougars with 15 points. Lefthander Mark Ousley added 10.

Stumbo is 1-0 for the young season while Prater falls to 1-1.

Hamilton Leads Betsy Layne Over Clark Elementary, 62-38

With some good outside shooting and driving the lanes for baskets, Keith Hamilton scored 27 points to lead the Betsy Layne Elementary Bobcats to a 62-38 win over the Clark Indians.

The younger Bobcats outscored the Indians 12-4 in the opening minutes of the first quarter to take an early lead, and never looked back from there. Betsy Layne lead at halftime, 34-19, and extended it by 17 points, 38-21, early in the third period. Clark ran off nine straight points on two baskets by Dale Crum and three buckets from Jeff Johnson, one a three point play, to close to within 10 points, 40-30. Six unanswered points by Betsy Layne gave them a 46-30 lead at the end of three quarters.

Vince Williams added 16 points in the game for Betsy Layne, and Ryan Ortega tossed in eight. He had several assists in leading the Bobcat fast breaks.

Jeff Johnson netted 14 points in leading the Indians in scoring. Dale Crum, Michael Arnett and T-Tom Slone each had six points.

Betsy Layne Overcomes Cold First Quarter, Slips By Wayland

by Ed Taylor, Sports Editor

Coach Ernie Tackett's Betsy Layne Bobcats overcame a cold first period after falling behind 13-4 at the end of the first quarter, and eventually got by the Coach Ronnie Patton's Wayland Wasps 41-37.

The Bobcats outscored the Wasps 23-5 to take a 27-18 lead at half time.

What changes did the Bobcats make to turn things around?

"We changed our defense on Jason Martin. He scored nine of his team's first 13 points. We went to a box-and-one defense. He is a tremendous ball player. We just had a cold first quarter and fell behind," Tackett explained.

Wayland outscored the Bobcats 19-13 in the second half, but fell short by four.

Betsy Layne was led in scoring by its standout player Keith Hamilton, who scored 22 points. Vince Williams added 10 points in the win.

Wayland was led by talented Jason Martin, who sent 26 points through the net. Betsy Layne is 2-0 on the season and Wayland, playing its first game, is 0-1.

The game was close all the way. McDowell lead at the first stop 5-4 and Prater went on top at the half 10-9. The lead changed hands four times in the fourth period. Shepherd scored four straight points late in the quarter to put the Lady Daredevils on top for good. Rhonda Conn led the Lady Cougars with six points in coming off the bench. Shawna Lawson had three points for Prater.

McDowell 3 2 4 10 (19): Susan Stephens, 0 1-2 1; Stacy Shepherd, 2 2-2 6; Jamie Little, 1 0-0 2; Chrystal Newsome, 1 2-2 4; Amanda Roberts, 3 0-0 6.

Roberts Places Fourth In Winchester Fire Run

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Local runner Rick Roberts has been busy these past weeks, taking part in different races in the area. Saturday, Roberts competed in the Winchester Third Annual Fire Run at Winchester.

Roberts finished fourth in the race that drew 70 participants, with a time of 16:50. He finished first in his age group of 30-34.

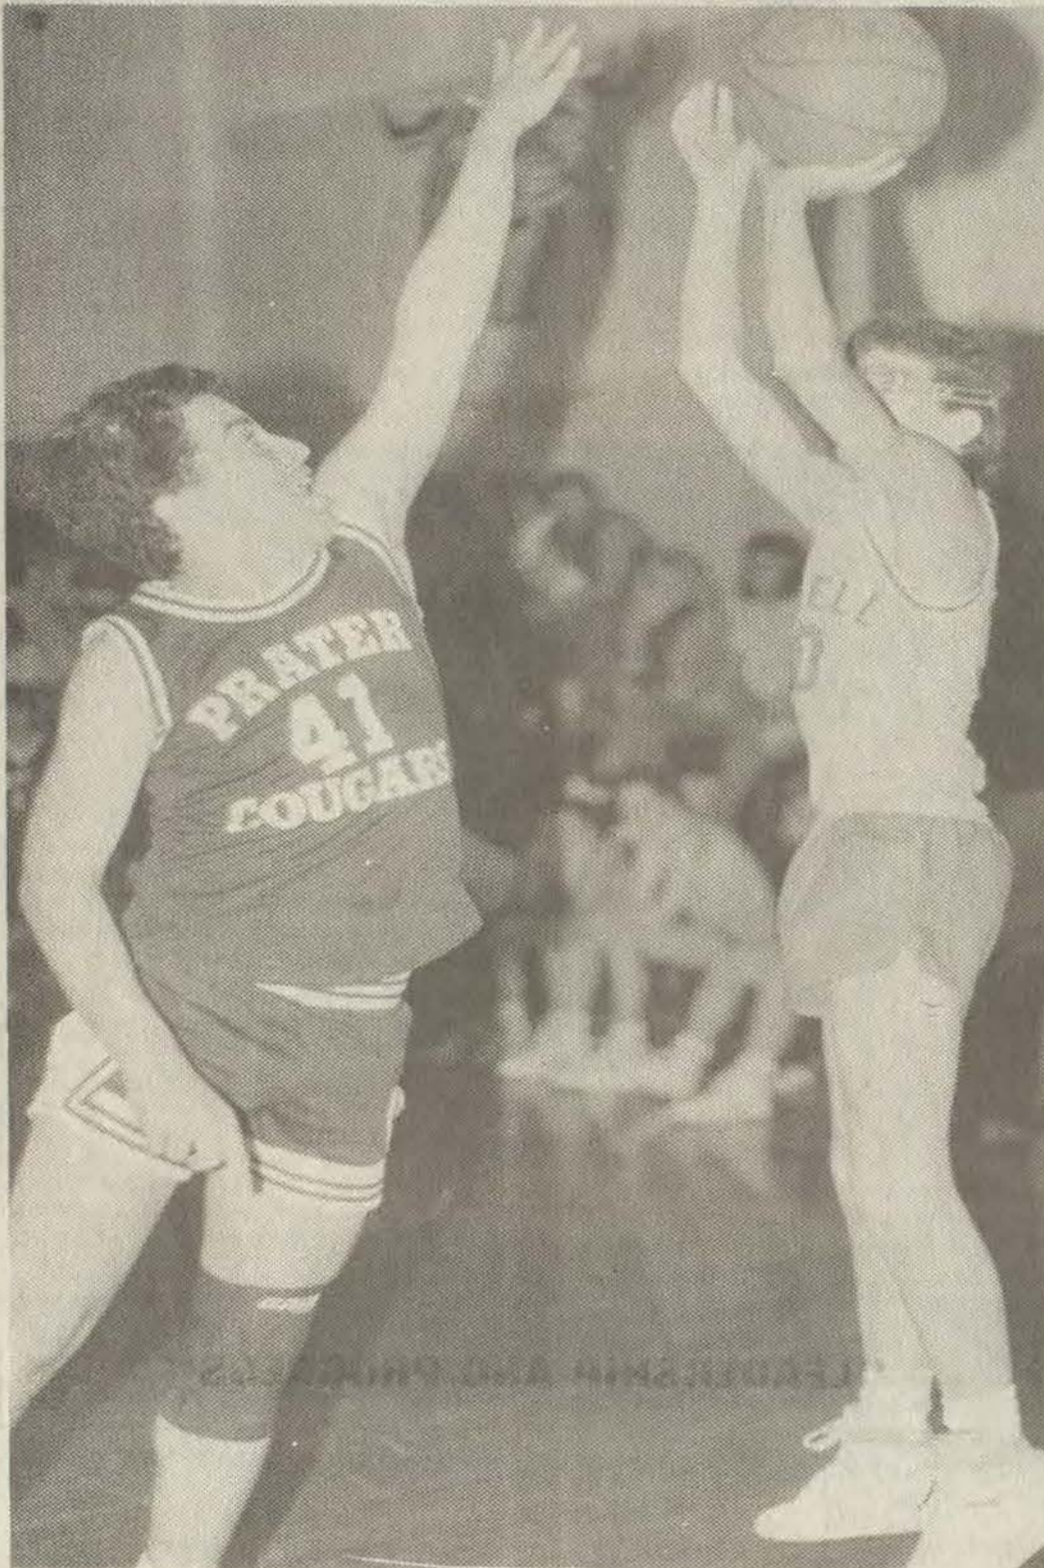

"I was running sixth until with about a half a mile to go," Roberts stated, "and I kicked and passed the two runners in front of me. I wanted to finish below the 17:00 time and I accomplished that."

First place in the run went to Cam Hubbard of Winchester with a time of 15:02. Tim Back took second place at 15:16. Bill Valenzano's time of 15:26 was good for third place.

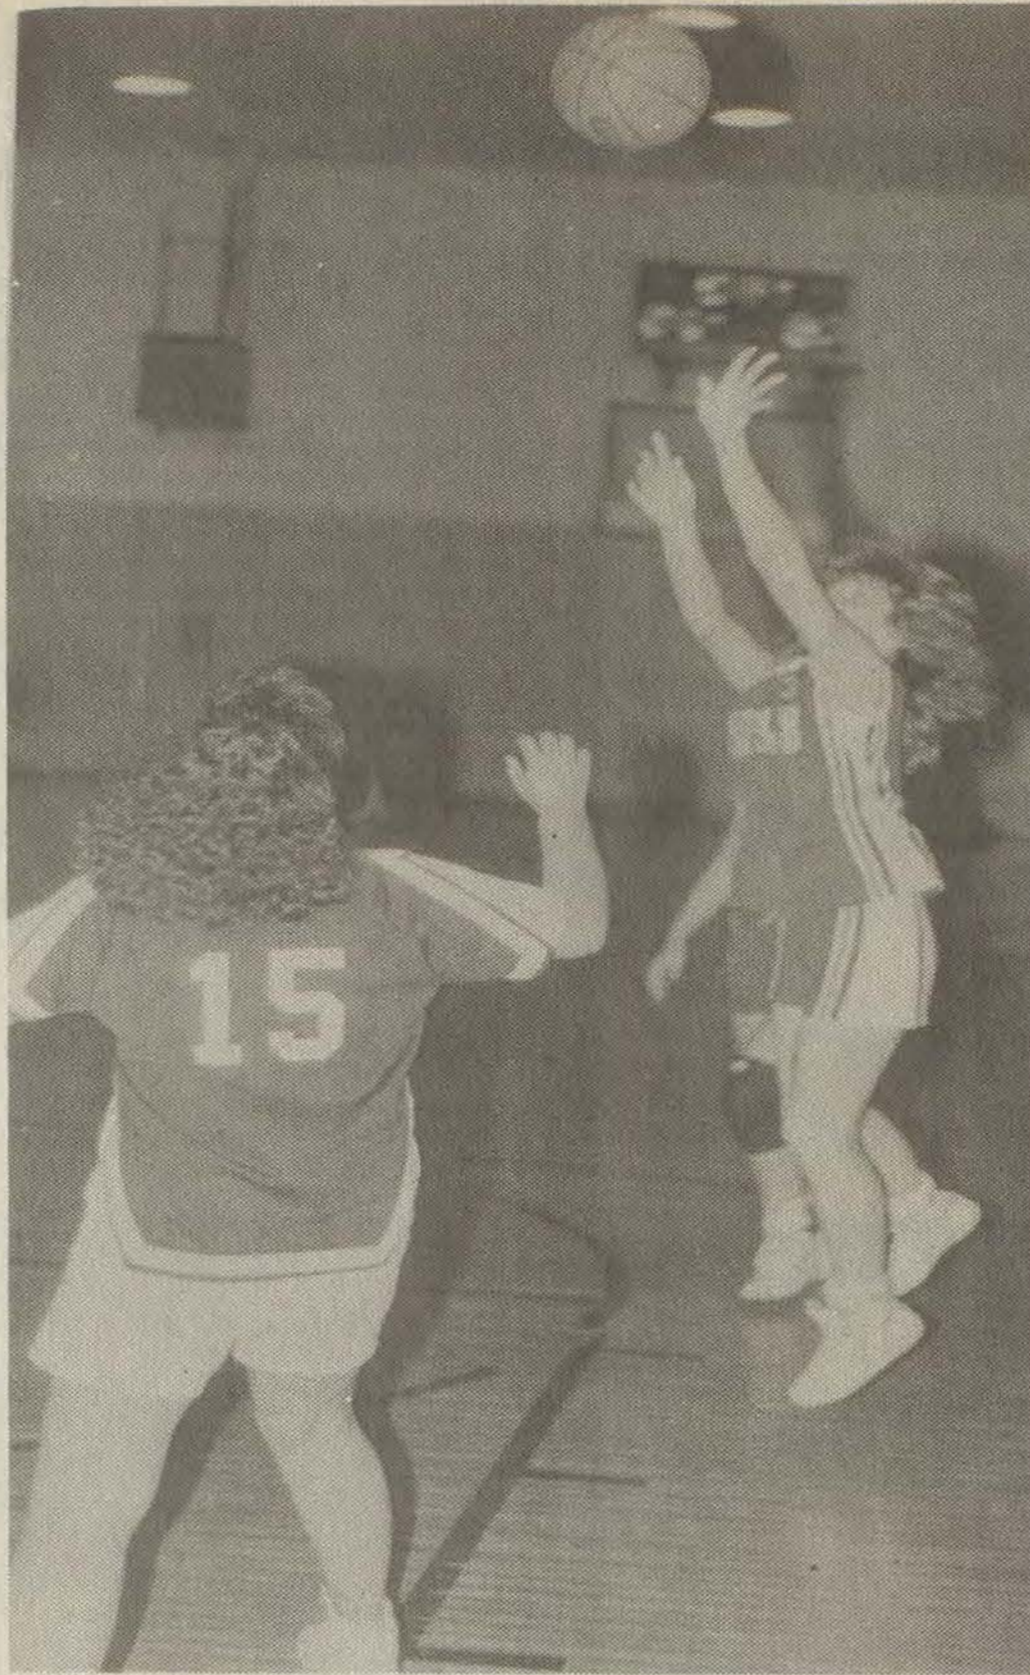

In the women's results, Debbie Biddle, who has been on a winning roll lately, took first place in the women's division with a time of 18:40. Biddle has just ran a 10K race the day before. Lythia Metzmer placed second with 19:45 and Haver Hill, Mass. native Brenda Johns took third with a 19:59 time.

Roberts plans on being in the Pumpkin Festival Two Mile Run at Inez this Saturday.

All Bass Jigs Not Created Equal

They're just hooks with weighted lead heads and skirts of thin rubber strands. They don't look like much, but all jigs do is catch bass by the boat full.

Or do they? Are all jigs created equal?

"Not really," explains top bass fishing angler and Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff member Denny Brauer, who not only fishes jigs regularly but who also designs them.

"Jigs may all look basically the same," says Brauer, "but subtle changes in their design can really make a difference in their effectiveness. Many of these changes have just been developed in recent years, too, although jigs are among the oldest fishing lures used by man."

Because most jigs appear so similar, Brauer offers these suggestions when purchasing one for use this season:

"First, look at the hook," the Evinrude pro advises. "This is the most important part of a jig because it's what catches and holds the bass. The hook should be wide. That is, the gap between the barb and the shaft should be open. My favorite size is 5/0, and it is satisfactory for both largemouth and smallmouth."

"Next," explains Brauer, "make certain the jig has a good weed guard. If you fish a jig without a weed guard, you won't cast it into brush or heavy cover for fear of snagging, but that's where the fish live."

"I prefer a bristle weed guard because it can be adjusted easily and doesn't interfere with hook-setting. Plastic weed guards are not as effective."

Jigs are made in a variety of weights, and Brauer likes a 3/8-ounce size best for overall fishing. A jig this size can be made to fall fast or slow depending on the size of a trailer put on it.

"I always fish a jig with either a pork or plastic trailer on the hook," he notes. "In fact, I can't really remember ever fishing a jig without one. I prefer the pork chunks that are available in tackle stores, because using one seems to transform an ordinary jig into a true big-bass bait."

"The larger the pork chunk, the slower the lure falls," Brauer continued, "and since most strikes on a jig occur when the lure is falling, it's important to pay attention to how fast your jig drops. The colder the weather, the slower you want the lure to fall."

Brauer prefers very basic skirt colors, such as black and brown. He believes the lure imitates a crayfish in the water, which is why bass hit the lure so readily.

"Jig fishing is similar to worm fishing," he continues. "You have to create action by moving your rod tip. Strikes are usually more subtle than with a worm, so you have to stay alert."

6. M.C. Napier	3-4	0-2

Leslie County has surprised the predictors and is in the thick of the playoff picture, causing a three-way tie for the number one spot. Prestonsburg will be off this Friday night as they regroup from their 28-21 setback at the hands of Leslie County. Another team that will be looking to regroup will be the Betsy Layne Bobcats, surprised by Whitesburg 42-0. Powerful Cumberland will visit Whitesburg in a non-district match up. Napier and Leslie County hook up in a good one at Leslie County.

With Paintsville and Hazard tied for the district lead, things could not change until the two teams meet October 27 at Paintsville. Raceland and Paintsville still have a rescheduled game for Nov. 3 at Raceland. Raceland is 2-0 in district play and could be the sleeper in this race. Wheelwright still remains without a win and will be looking at county rival Allen Central, winners of 2 games, for their scheduled meeting Oct. 21 at Allen Central as both will be looking for a district win.

LAST WEEK'S ANSWERS

1. Get ready for a surprise answer! The runner-up is 5' 6" Carol "The Blaze" Blazejowski of the Montclair State College women's basketball team. From 1974 to 1978, the New Jersey Superstar scored a college career total of 3,199 points.

2. Because of his seven-foot height, Chamberlain is known as Wilt "The Stilt" Chamberlain.

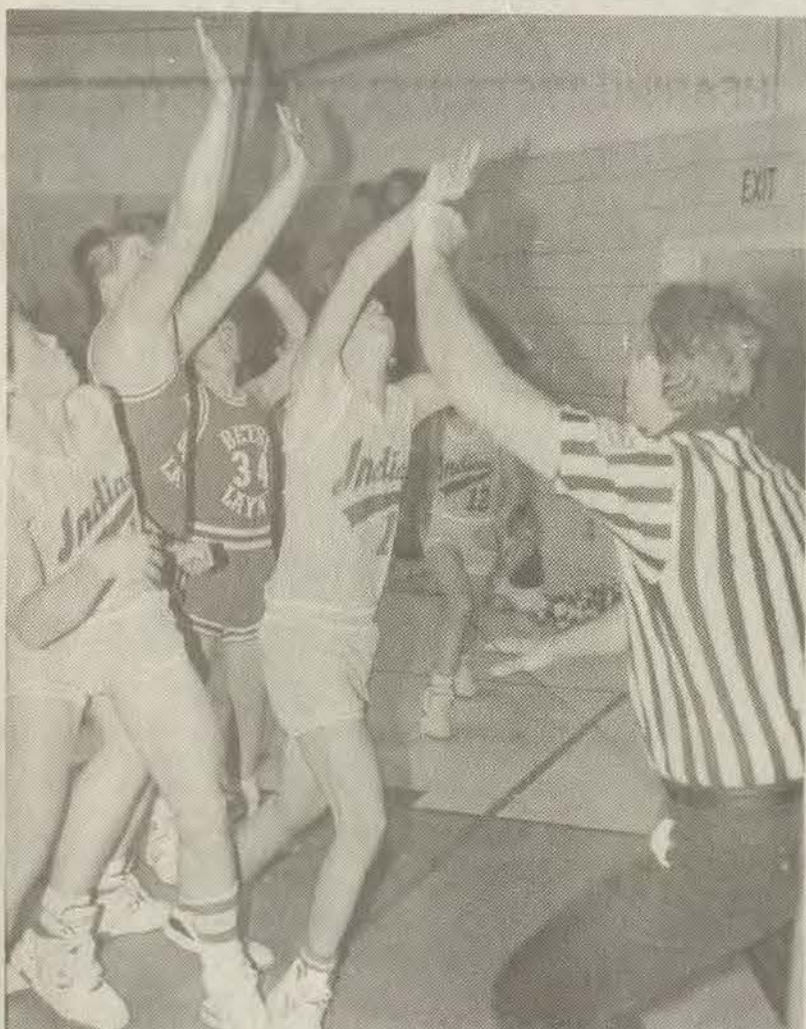

3. Nat Holman's quintet at City College of New York accomplished what no other school had ever done when it won both the National Collegiate Athletic Association and National Invitation tournaments in 1950. This double win is a record which will forever stand unbroken, for a team can no longer play in both tournaments.

Bassin' With the Pros . . .

Being A Fishing Guide Is Not Always That Easy

Randy Dearman remembers a cold, sleeting January day on Lake Livingston in East Texas when the steering cables on his boat froze. He had to splash lake water on the cables to thaw them, but as soon as he'd stop, the cables would freeze again.

All in all, it wasn't the kind of day many people would choose to spend bass fishing.

The problem was, Dearman didn't have a choice. He's a full time fishing guide, and when a client books him for a trip, he has to go.

"Being a fishing guide certainly isn't the glamorous job many think it is," says Dearman, a member of the Johnson Outboards Pro Staff and a full time guide for 18 years.

"The good part is that the job puts you outdoors. The bad part is that the outdoors can sometimes be cruel, such as when you have to fish during those brutally cold 15-degree days."

Before he began guiding, Dearman was a welder, often working the oil and natural gas pipelines that crisscross east Texas. He also enjoyed a reputation as an excellent bass angler, and one day a Lake Livingston guide persuaded him — against his will — to take out some of his extra clients.

They caught fish, and Dearman discovered he could earn money for doing what he really loved to do. That first guide trip led to several weekend guide parties, and within a year Dearman parked his welding truck and went fishing full time.

"If someone really wants to learn how to fish well and perhaps prepare himself for national bass tournaments," says the popular Johnson pro, "becoming a guide is certainly the best way to do it. Being on the water day after day not only improves your mechanical skills like casting and boat handling, it also helps you learn fish patterns and movements."

"The best way to become a guide today is probably to do it on a brand new lake. It's easier to establish a regular clientele on a new lake, and a new lake is usually a lot easier to learn than an old one, so you'll catch a lot of fish."

In his busiest years, Dearman guided between 260 and 280 days per year — the equivalent of about nine months on the water — but even with such heavy bookings, he says, guiding is not a profession that will make you wealthy.

"You don't need a lot of equipment to be a guide," he says, "but you have to make certain that equipment is always in top condition and works properly."

"Ironically, perhaps, today's outboards are usually the most dependable equipment a guide has. Motors that are used a lot seem to give far less trouble than motors that are only used a few times each year."

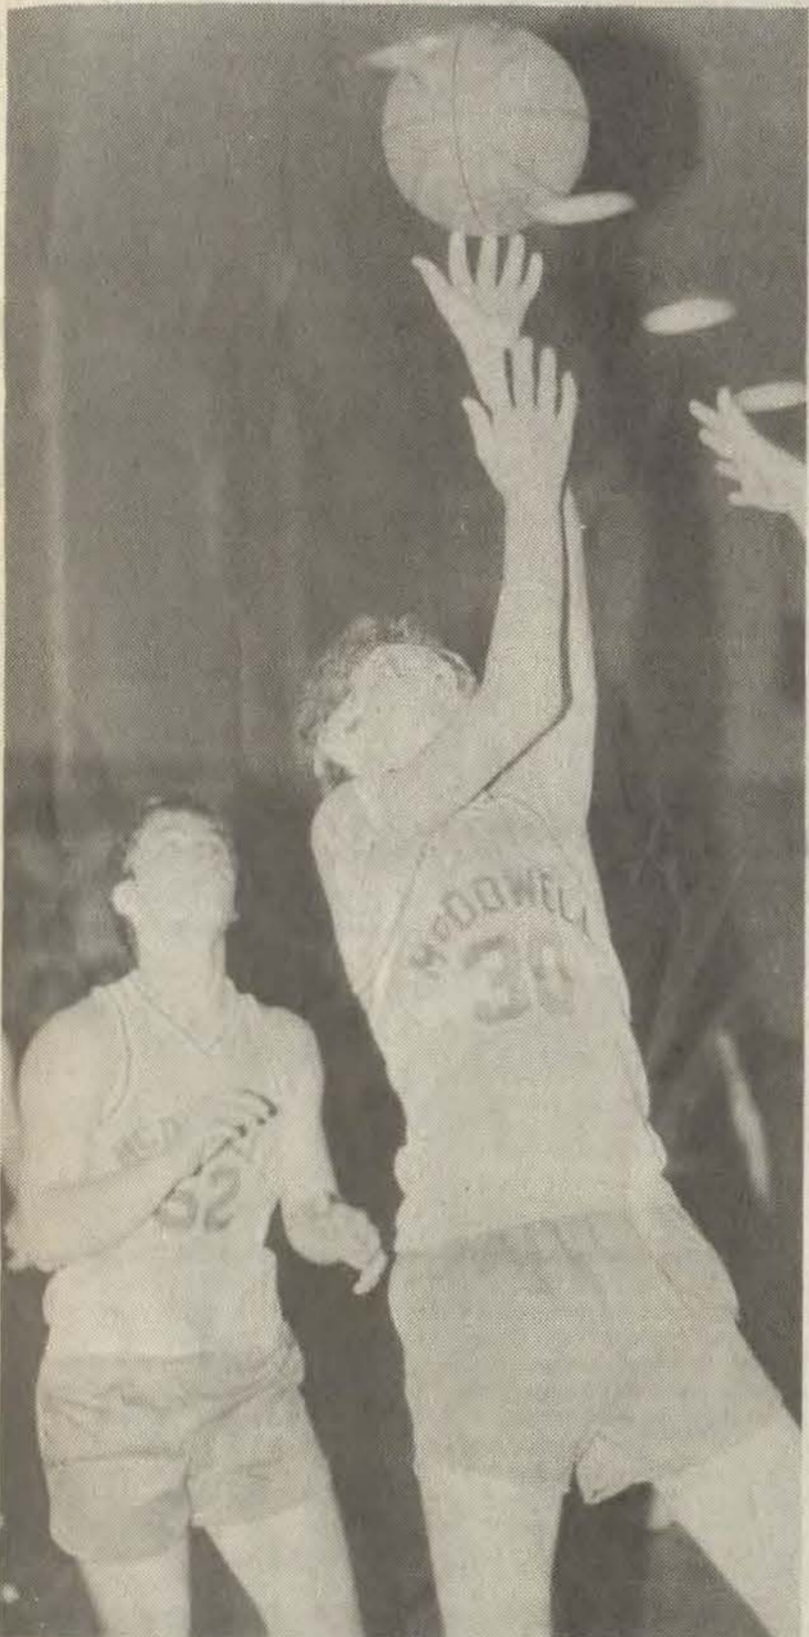

Although every guide will have bad days, says Dearman, the business also offers unmatched rewards.

"My best days are always when I get to take a client, especially a youngster, and help him catch his very first fish. I think I'm as happy as they are when they do."

Aldrich Caught

Rebel quarterback B. J. Aldrich (14) is tackled by the Hazard Bulldogs defense. The Rebels fell to Hazard 42-6. The Rebels are now 2-6 on the year and will play at Fairview Thursday night.

Good For Two

McDowell's Chris Hamilton (30) puts a shot good for two points against Prater. Hamilton tossed in 10 points for the Daredevil's as McDowell won the contest 53-38 to advance in the Maytown Invitational.

Keepers!

By Chris Altman

The following tips for modifying or improving your bass fishing lures are some that I have picked up through the years. Many of them are from some of the finest anglers in America, while some are a few of my own "hard learned" tips. I sincerely hope that they might put an extra bigmouth or two in your boat someday!

— When using a large pork trailer such as Uncle Josh's #1 pork frog, Denny Brauer says to split the legs. Occasionally, the pork chunk will flip over on the hook when the fish hits, and the hook point will simply impale the pork rather than the fish. To reduce that occurrence, simply split each leg longways.

— Basil Bacon says that when you peg your sinker with a toothpick, you should do it before tying on the hook so that you do not crimp your line. Slide the line through the sinker and peg it with the toothpick, then slide the pegged sinker up your line. Cut off the end of the line (since you crimped, and thus weakened, it), tie on your hook, and then slide the sinker in place over the worm.

— On topwater plugs that you normally use around weedy cover, cut off the forward-facing hook on all of the treble hooks. This will literally make your topwater plugs weedless.

— When the fish won't hit your Texas-rigged worm, peg your worm sinker 6 to 12 inches above the worm. This will keep the worm swimming just off the bottom, and that will occasionally make all the difference in the world. To better the effect, switch to a floating worm. Too, this is a fabulous worming technique to use at night. The rig will, however, make strikes just a bit more difficult to detect.

— The next time you use a tube lure (like a Gitzit), slip a plastic grub, a 5-inch curly-tailed or twin-tailed grub, or a Hale's Craw Worm onto the leadhead, lubricate the whole thing with saliva or Fish Formula, and then insert it into the tube lure. These transformed tubes are dynamite lures! Because the hard lead is inside the soft plastic bait, fish will hold them far longer than they will plastic worms or jigs.

— When fishing buzz baits, be sure to use a trailer hook. If the fish are still striking short, add a second trailer hook. I've seen anglers using as many as three stinger hooks! In open water, position the trailer hooks so that one point is up, the next one down, etc.

— Spray your lures with WD-40! I don't do it, but I've been outfished by fellows who do!

— Stuff your tube lures . . . with Alka Seltzer, Berkley's moldable Strike, cotton soaked with Fish Formula, or Fish Formula's new SparkleScales gel.

— Use a Carolina-rigged do-nothing type of worm/worm rig. Many of the pros that I've talked with say that most anglers are hesitant to switch from a Texas-rigged worm. A Carolina-rigged do-nothing worm is a very easy bait to use on points, flats, and humps, and it really catches fish! Too, you can cover far more water with a do-nothing rig than you can with a Texas-rigged worm.

— Rig your tube lures Carolina-style. Paul Elias says that when his deepwater fish stop biting, he switches to a Carolina-rigged tube lure to spark a renewed interest from the fish. Simply rig the tube lure on a 1/0 worm hook with a 3 to 5 foot leader behind a 1-ounce bullet weight, plastic bead, and swivel. Then, either stuff styrofoam into the tube lure to make it float, or attach a small crappie fishing cork onto the leader 18 to 24 inches in front of the tube lure. It really works!

— Insert small pieces of lead into your balsa wood lures to make them neutrally buoyant. Simply drill a small hole in the forward end of the bait, insert a small sinker into the hole and then seal it with epoxy. The idea here is to create a lure that suspends when you pause the retrieve, so you'll have to experiment with the size of the weight used.

— Don't use a sinker with your plastic worms when fishing shallow cover. Most anglers are reluctant to toss a worm without a sinker, but you will catch more shallow water fish if you omit the sinker and fish the worm very slowly.

— Use small plastic worms. At the 1989 BASS Masters Classic in Richmond, Va., most of the anglers were using 4-inch plastic worms. The reason: you'll catch more fish, both big and small, by using smaller plastic worms.

— Experiment with a variety of spinnerbaits. Many anglers simply tie one spinnerbait on the line and use it exclusively. But Hank Parker, the 1989 BASS Masters Classic champ, says you should be continually experimenting with a variety of baits, specifically with different blades. "Sometimes," he says, "the right blade combination makes all the difference in the world."

That's all, folks! Until next week, Good Fishing!

SHADES O' SALEM WITCHCRAFT—IT'S 'AGIN' THE LAW FOR YOU TO DANCE THE TANGO, OR ANY OTHER BLASTED 'BODY-TOUCHIN' DANCE IN P-BURG ACCORDING TO COUNCIL EDICT OF 1915, WHICH HAS NEVER BEEN VOIDED

Shades o' Salem witchcraft!

It's "agin' the law in Prestonsburg to dance the tango, according to City Clerk Jim Davidson, who has yellowed city council records to prove his statement.

An ordinance passed in 1915 by the City Fathers states that any person arrested and convicted for "dancing a tango dance" may be fined $5 to $20.

The ordinance has never been repealed, City Clerk Davidson said, and is just as legal today as it was when first passed.

Not only did the City Fathers of that day prohibit the tango alone, but, unknowingly, practically all modern dances when they defined the tango as a dance that allows one person's body to touch another's.

By that definition, even the sedate, yet modern, waltz is barred. Also banned would be the present-day gymnastic Lindy hop, the fox-trot, the shag, the Lambeth walk—why go on?

The City Pappies of that day "jist naturally" didn't want no part of such "new-fangled carrying-ons"—they barred all holds, and as for such a catch-as-catch-can as the Big Apple, sakes alive!

A study of the records in the city clerk's possession, which go back as far as 1907 and are the oldest available, tell many a tale—but none as humorous as the "tango story"—concerning the town's growth and of the part played by men, many of whom are still taking a leading part in community affairs, others dead and perhaps forgotten by the average person.

The oldest minutes available are of a council meeting held August 7, 1907, in the law office of the late Walter S. Harkins, father of Attorney Joseph D. Harkins, and who was mayor at that time.

Councilmen were the late Isaac Richmond, the late Harmon Harris, Will H. Layne, B. M. Spurlock and O. P. Powers.

In this meeting the council ordered a 25-cent tax upon each $100 worth of property—far less than the 75-cent rate, the highest allowed by law for a town the size of Prestonsburg, now in effect.

The council of that day set September 15 as the time limit for the completion of sidewalk pavement on the lower side of Upper Cross street—and as for paved streets, why, they weren't even dreamed of until more than a decade later.

In 1907 Prestonsburg had no gas lines, no water works, no street lights. The horse and buggy ruled supreme, and the man with a torch was a common sight at night. Even Diogenes with his lantern wouldn't have surprized folks of that day.

Also pertaining to sidewalk construction then underway, was the council's extension of time to William Dingus for the completion of sidewalks in front of the lot of J. M. Weddington on Third street and in front of the lot of the late James Goble on Main street.

(It was explained that the council had let contracts for the sidewalk pavement and assessed each property owner his share of the cost).

Minutes of this meeting proclaimed the installation of Councilman Harmon Harris as city attorney and the installation of Jo M. Davidson as councilman to fill his vacancy.

Postponed for future consideration was the late John Hunley's request for permission to build a suspension bridge "across the Big Sandy river within the corporate limits of Prestonsburg" to intersect with a part of Fifth Cross street.

The council declared the office of town marshal vacant because one of the late Marshal James Sizemore's bondsmen had moved from town. (The office was filled in a subsequent meeting, August 14, 1907 by the appointment of John Hunley, records showed).

Later records reveal that street lights were secured for Prestonsburg in 1911. A water plant was installed in 1917-18 simultaneously with the installation of gas lines.

Prestonsburg was growing up! Why, the population was almost 1,750!

And early in the 1920's street paving was started, and the horse and buggy days began to wane. Already gone was the man with the pine torch—and if Diogenes had appeared, the poor man would have been the subject of derision.

The records available reveal that only one man, Will H. Layne, has held every city office, being councilman, mayor, clerk, city attorney and police judge at various intervals.

According to City Clerk Davidson, only one person, the present police judge, Alex Spradlin, is close to Mr. Layne's record. Police Judge Spradlin, he said, has held every office but that of mayor.

City records prior to 1907 are unavailable, being lost during the tenure of the late police judge, (but better known as teacher) D. O. Harmon, when his office burned near the site of Bailey's restaurant, the clerk said. Also lost by fire, it is claimed, are city records of the present decade.

The late "Uncle" Bill Mellon, father of W. T. Mellon, is the first Prestonsburg mayor the city clerk said he could remember.

The C&O Railway building in Martin, erected in May 1931, is pictured above. The photo was taken April 1, 1982, by John Wesley Hall, who worked in the building 38 years before retiring Dec. 1, 1965. The building burned April 28, 1983. Hall's offices were located in three rooms at the north end of the building (under the sign "Martin").

Former Miner Recalls Pre-Mining Days In David

by Pam Shingler

Long before David Francis opened the coal mines and built the town he named after himself, Ashland "Hawk" Howard lived and worked on Lick Fork of Middle Creek. "It was just a swamp," says Howard, referring to the bottomland in the winding valley. "You had to walk around the hill or in the creek. There was no farming where David sat now. People cleared the hillside and farmed there."

As a young man, Howard went to a one-room school at Goodloe. Some of his teachers, he remembers, rode out on horseback each day from Prestonsburg. He estimates the trip, which today takes about 10 minutes, amounted to about an hour back then.

Howard, who is 74, made his living by hauling cross ties before going to work for Princess Elkhorn's new David mines in 1941. "They made cross ties on the other side of the hill and then rolled them down this side," he says. "Then I'd take a wagon and team of mules and haul the cross ties to West Prestonsburg. I could make one trip a day."

The job netted him 25 cents a tie. For hauling eight ties per trip, he earned a grand total of $2 a day for his labor.

"Anybody who went in or out of here had to either walk or ride a horse," he says. "On a pretty good stretch of road, you could speed up, but going through the swamp or alongside the hill slowed you down."

When Princess Elkhorn opened its modern mining operation at David, Howard was among the first wave of workers. "It was a good place to work," he says. "The company was pretty nice. Every once in a while, though, they'd take a stubborn spell and we'd have to strike."

Howard was one of the miners who gave their time to building the town's showcase swimming pool, which has since been filled and paved over. "I don't remember why, but we were only getting about three days a week of work in the mines, so we worked on the pool," he recalls. "My children all had lifetime pool passes."

When the David mines closed in 1968, Howard found a mining job in Pike County where he worked until he retired in 1972. Typical of many miners who raised their families in David, the father of eight bought the company house his family had previously rented, when the David Community Development Corporation bought the town.

Later he built a brick house at the mouth of Schoolhouse Hollow, where rows of mining camp houses have been replaced by a modern housing development.

During his long lifetime, Howard has witnessed the community of David in all its phases.

Highlands' Breast Center Observes Awareness Month With New Service

October has been designated National Breast Cancer Awareness Month. There is an increasing awareness in this country of breast cancer and the fact that the earlier such a problem is detected, the greater the chance there is for full recovery.

According to Kathy Rubado, spokeswoman for Highlands Regional Medical Center, mammography is a low-dose x-ray of the breasts to detect a lump in its earliest stages, even before it can be felt.

"One out of every three women will experience a breast lump in her lifetime, and one in 10 women will develop breast cancer. These odds are high enough to understand why 11 major medical organizations, including the National Cancer Institute, agree that women should have a mammogram at least every other year beginning at age 40, and even earlier if breast cancer has been found in another member of the family."

"In addition, the same organizations strongly recommend an annual physical breast examination. At age 50, both exams should be done annually," Rubado explained.

To make mammograms more available to women in Eastern Kentucky, Highlands Regional Medical Center offers mammograms for $50. While there must be a doctor's name given so the Breast Center knows where to send the report, no initial referral is required.

For more information about mammography and facilities in this area, contact the Breast Center at Highlands Regional Medical Center at 1-800-533-HRMC, or 886-8511, Ext. 160, or the Cancer Information Service (CIS) at 1-800-4-CANCER.

LGW Woman's Club Plans Inter-Club Dinner

The GFWC/KFWC Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Woman's Club met Monday, Sept. 18, in the home of club member Alma Souleyrette, Wheelwright, for a business meeting, with Betty Mullins, also of Wheelwright, assisting.

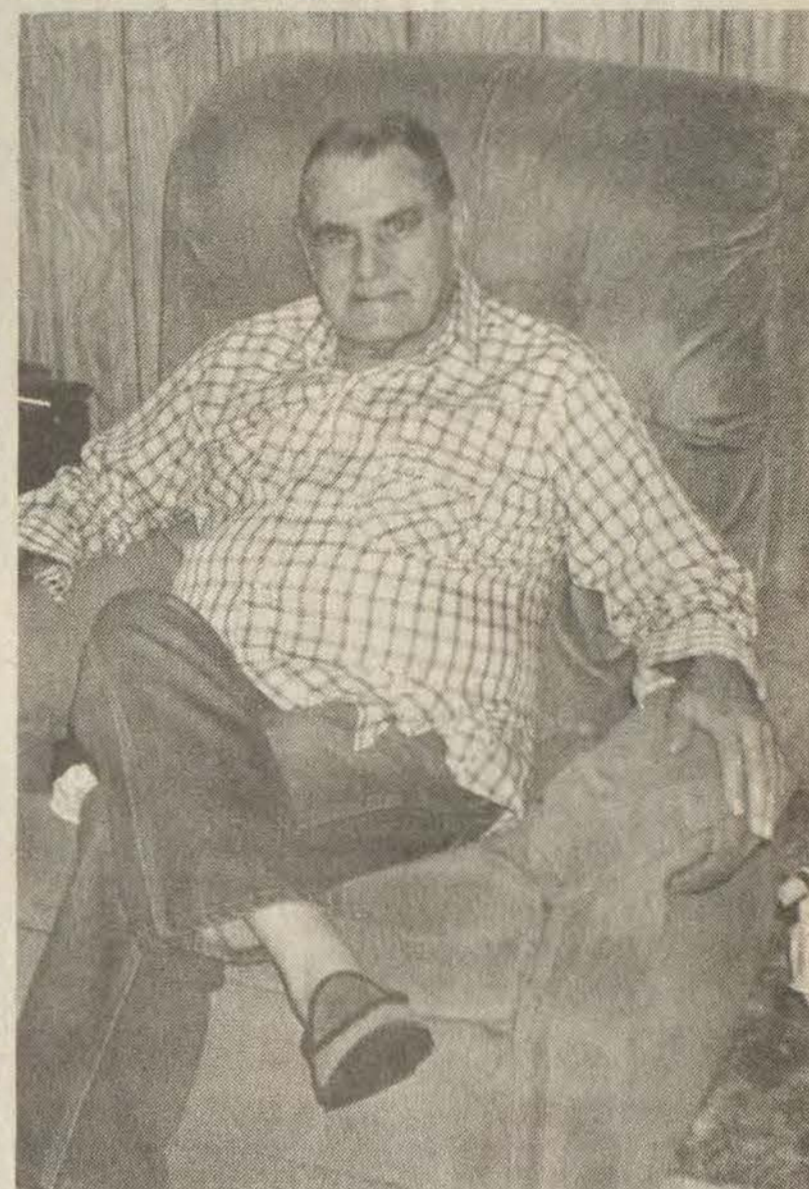

In the absence of the club president, the vice president, Marsella Bradley, presided. Bradley also conducted devotions. Betty Mullins led the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag.

The main topic of discussion was preparations for the inter-club dinner, which will be held in the fellowship hall adjoining the First Baptist Church in Garrett at 6:30 p.m., on Oct. 23. Volunteers were listed for the various items of food planned for the menu. An invitation has been sent to the Seventh District Governor of the KFWC and it is hoped she will be able to be present to speak at this time. Also, an invitation has been sent to the Drift Woman's Club, which is a daughter club of the Wayland group.

There will be another business meeting to be called by the club president sometime before the Oct. 23 dinner meeting in order to finalize plans.

Present were Marsella Bradley, Marie Mullins, Lula Coburn, Maxine Martin, Libby Martin, Betty Mullins, and the hostess, Alma Souleyrette.

Poet's Corner

Spring

A time to rejoice, when all things look new
Our Father alone
has brought us through;

A dreary winter
that was hard for us all,
but will soon be forgotten
when we hear the birdie call.

The gentle breeze
and sunshine bright,
brings calmness and peace,
makes everything right.

Lets ask God's blessings,
as we start each new day,
and strive to be like Him,
He will lead the way.

The Coon Hunter

Restless, moody, never sure about anything,
A hunter at heart he does it day and night
No kind of weather stops him
Not rain, snow or the darkness of night.
Never time to stop and talk, always on the run.
Mind on a hound dog hunting and a gun.

Wading through rattlesnakes,
Running into trees, falling over rocks,
Shoes killing his feet,
Wearing holes in his socks.
Gotta catch the coons boys.

Lost my dog last night,
Up there on the ridge.
Early this morning he,
Came walking across the bridge.

Caught one last night boys,
He weighed thirty pounds.
So today I am the proudest,
Coon hunter for miles around.

Summer's End

The Summer is past and Autumn is here—
Listen closely and you will hear—
The crunch of the leaves
As the fall from the trees—

We see them drift down—so red, yellow and brown
And crunch under our feet as they rest on the ground.
The frosty bright mornings so crisp, cool and clear,
The beautiful fall colors, it's the best time of year.

The squirrels rush around, stocking their nest—
With nuts to last the long winter's rest,
Soon Jack Frost will be on his way,
He'll arrive now most any day—
He will nip our nose and sting our toes—
Then off over the hill he goes.

Old Man Winter will follow close behind,
He will paint the meadow with lacy designs.
He will cover the hills with a blanket of snow,
But Spring will soon come and new flowers will grow.

The long Summer days so sunny and bright—
The star-lit sky so beautiful at night,
These are the things our heart holds dear—
We look around and know God is near.

All this beauty comes from God above,
He holds our lives in His hand and our souls in His love.

The Very Special Place

In the brightest corner of my heart
I have a secret place
A place where all my special thoughts
Are crammed into one space.
The place I put my memories of love, you and me,
the place I like to visit
So very frequently.
The thoughts that make you seem so close
When you are far away,
The thoughts that help cheer me up
Every single day.
The brightest corner of my heart
Has just one thing to do:
To store up all my special thoughts
Of times I've shared with you.

Losses & Gains

A poet with no time for writing,
Caught up in his own tragedy.
His father is slowly dying.
Soon his body will be free.

To me this man is a stranger,
I've no knowledge of how he feels,
But somehow I feel his anguish,
The pain, it seems so real.

I wish I could comfort his sorrow,
But in his eyes I see
The comfort, it is forthcoming,
When his father is finally free.

Though his heart may burn
with a torturing pain,
One day he may realize
That his loss was actually his father's gain.
The night he closed his eyes.

The Grand Emotion (the one true ocean)

Welcome to the Grand Emotion:
Step inside, if your soul has the strength and ride the waves of lifelove that flow around the and about our feet in the puddles of infancy.

Feel the magic in the air between your heart and my soul
and my heart and your love and lovebeats
and heartsouls
and so on
and so on.

Together in the unity of a gelatin capsule's seam, we fall together
at each other's hands.

Emotional flux
alternating direct current with golden light shining in the eyes of the beholder

Continue
Continue
Continue into the wolf's lair (or are you afraid of what you might find, or incite?)

Beat down the darkwalls of analytical sensibilities and be be be
be
be togetherone
with the light that shines around the flame that becomes the form of the two of us.

Welcome to the ocean of the Grand Emotion:
Sail with me.

Trees of Life (or death?)

It happens everyday—
This torture of our woods,
Torn down by careless hands—
Right from the very roots.

People say it's necessary —
We must build, expand, produce.
But what about the air?
These trees are our juice.

The children are our future—
The trees of life you see.
But what have we left for them?
There's no room to succeed!

Our land is so corrupt.
Our morals swept away.
Will we ever really see—before the final day?

From A Friend

Dear Friend,
How are you? I just had to send a note to tell you how much
I care about you.

I saw you yesterday as you were talking with your friends. I waited all day hoping you would want to talk with me, too. I gave you a sunset to close your day and a cool breeze to rest you — and I wanted. You never came. It hurt me — but I still love you because I am your friend.

I saw you sleeping late last night and longed to touch your brow, so I spilled moonlight upon your face. Again I waited, wanting to rush down so we could talk. I have so many gifts for you! You awoke and rushed off to work. My tears were in the rain.

If you would only listen to me! I love you! I try to tell you in blue skies and in the quiet green grass. I whisper it in leaves on the trees and breathe it in colors of flowers, shout it to you in mountain streams, give the birds love songs to sing. I clothe you with warm sunshine and perfume the air with nature scents. My love for you is deeper than the ocean, and bigger than the biggest need in your heart!

Ask me! Talk with Me! Please don't forget me. I have so much to share with you!

I won't hassle you any further. It is YOUR decision. I have chosen you and I will wait — because I love you.

Your friend,
JESUS

RETIRED TEACHERS HOLD CALLED MEETING
Members of the Floyd County and Big Sandy Retired Teachers' Association held a called meeting Wednesday, Oct. 4, at the Stumbo Park, Allen, for the purpose of discussing membership in these two organizations.

Ruby Akers, president FCRT, presented Russell Boyd, president of Kentucky Retired Teachers' Association, and H.C. Dutton, past-president and Imogene Salyer, president, both of BSRT, who discussed the importance of membership in retired teachers' organizations.

It was brought out in the discussions that Kentucky retired teachers are facing the possibility of their pensions being taxed on a state level, and that within the next few years, they may (once again) be asked to have deductions taken from their checks to supplement their insurance policies.

According to the consensus of opinion among members of the retired teachers, there is "strength in numbers." Therefore, it is deemed highly necessary that membership in these organizations be increased by the time the next Kentucky Legislature convenes.

A covered-dish luncheon was enjoyed by Russell Boyd and H.C. Dutton of Johnson County; Imogene Salyer of Magoffin County; Edith Roberts of Pike County; and Ruby Akers, Virginia Goble, Alice Martin, Alma Lowe, Delphia Hicks, Docia Woods, Norma Stepp, Danise Amberguey, Mike Auxier, Opal May, Sarah Laven, Anna Stumbo and Melvina Thompson of Floyd County.

Angie, 38. Found houseware parties the ideal excuse to mix a blender of margaritas. But in a few years, it went from women friends to lowlifes and losers hanging around her home late into the night. Sometimes, her husband had to load up the kids and go midnight bar-hopping to find her. Finally, he nailed up doors and windows to keep her out. In desperation, feeling she'd be dead within a year unless she got control of herself, Angie turned to CareUnit.

"I learned more about myself than I'd learned in a lifetime. For the first time, I feel good about myself."

Angie is now sober, and is rebuilding her relationship with her husband and two daughters.

Newspaper Career Directory: Published with the cooperation of the American Newspaper Publishers Association Educational Foundation, this is an entry-level book focusing exclusively on the fast-paced newspaper business.

Written by 25 of the top people in newspaper publishing today, the book offers an insider's view of the profession. It includes articles and advice on every aspect of the business, a detailed job search process, listings of major publishers; with names of who to talk to, trade unions to contact, and the trade magazines to read.

A most comprehensive guide to newspaper publishing for the entry level job hunter.

The Termination Trap, by Stephen Cohen: Written by a psychiatrist with a broad range of experience in dealing with management and employee behavior in the workplace, The Termination Trap was conceived to help employees overcome hurdles to advancement, save their job if threatened, cope with losing it, make a "lousy" job into a better one, or move on to a more suitable career.

When Apples Ain't Enough, by Jean Miller and Georgianna Dickinson: This book could be entitled a "survival kit" as its purpose is to help teachers, counselors and librarians make the transition from the education to the business world. Written by two teachers who made that change, the book is a sharing of their techniques.

It covers the following areas: Determining values, identifying and assessing marketable skills, focusing, networking, organizing a resume, writing a cover letter and interviewing techniques.

The Relocating Spouse's Guide to Employment, by Frances Bastress: Here is a comprehensive resource that addresses the unique career challenges confronting the men and women who accompany relocating employees.

Whatever the reason for relocating, the experience is likely to be especially trying for the accompanying spouse who also works outside the home. They sever valuable networks, their skills might not be in demand at the new location or employers might be prejudicial against hiring someone who might leave if their spouse is again relocated.

The purpose of this book is to enable relocating spouses to overcome the strikes against them and even surpass the native job seeker in the employment market.

Magazine Career Directory: Working professionals like George Grune, chairman of the Reader's Digest Association, and Owen Lipsten, publisher of "American Health" magazine, give information and advice on breaking into every specialization of magazine publishing. With information on internships and training programs, a listing of magazines throughout the United States and examples of winning resumes and cover letters. This book answers all the questions of anyone thinking of entering the world of magazine publishing.

Developing a Career in Sports, by Greg Cylkowski: Being a player is only one way of working in the field of professional sports. Written by a professional from the sidelines of athletics, this book is intended as a guide to the many professions which are necessary to bring the action to the field.

Nylons: An Invention Marking Sheer Success For Original Maker

By Vicki Moeser

Smithsonian News Service
There was cause for optimism in 1939. Despite the growing war in Europe, the Great Depression was winding down, and it appeared that prosperity was just around the corner. Hollywood had released "Gone with the Wind" and "The Wizard of Oz." The Nobel Prize in physics was awarded to Ernest O. Lawrence for his development of the cyclotron, a crucial step in the production of a nuclear reaction.

Millions of visitors flocked to two world's fairs to catch a glimpse of the wonders of the future. At the fair in New York, Franklin D. Roosevelt became the first U.S. president to appear on television. And at the San Francisco fair, nylon stockings made their public debut.

At the Du Pont Co.'s exhibition, nylon's raw materials—coal, air and water—were inserted into one end of a simulated machine and a pair of sheer stockings miraculously emerged from the other end. Spectators were dazzled. But it would still be months before anyone could buy nylon hosiery.

That day came in the autumn of 1939. Sales were limited to a few retail outlets near Du Pont's headquarters in Delaware. A headline in the Oct. 25 edition of the Wilmington Morning News tells the story: "NYLON HO-SIERY SCORES SELL-OUT, 4,000 Pair Sold in Wilmington Debut; Customers Line Up Three Deep at Counters." While nylon hosiery "was given a clamorous reception," the article reported that sales of silk stockings slipped to practically nothing. The nylons were priced from $1.15 to $1.35 a pair, and were offered in a dozen fashionable shades.

Robert Ellison, owner of one of the half-dozen stores that first sold the hosiery, recalls that hectic day 50 years ago. "Hundreds of women lined the downtown streets waiting for the shops to open so they could buy nylons," says Ellison, who today lives in suburban Wilmington. "Du Pont had tested the stockings on its employees, and word had gotten around about how well they fit, how sheer they were and how well they wore. We sold our entire inventory of 600 pairs in about an hour. We had customers from all over—Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York and Washington, D.C. It was something!"

The development of nylon—the world's first synthetic fiber—had been announced only the year before. It was the outgrowth of a research program started in the 1920s at Du Pont laboratories in Wilmington. The project, led by Dr. Wallace H. Carothers, was "fundamental" in the purest sense. Scientists were not trying to create a specific product, Du Pont officials note, but were simply attempting to add to basic chemical knowledge. Their research centered on the study of polymerization—how and why small molecules unite to form "giant" molecules a millionth of an inch long.

In 1930, polymer research indicated that certain synthesized molecules could be elongated to form thin, fiberlike strands. Five years later, a polyamide—a man-made proteinlike chemical product—derived from two chemical compounds, each containing six carbon atoms, was synthesized and named "66."

The first commercial uses of nylon were for toothbrush bristles, fishing lines and surgical sutures, but textile fiber held the most promise. Nylon offered hosiery manufacturers a new material, freeing them from the wild fluctuations of the Japanese-controlled silk market. "Nylon had a certain stability in terms of price, supply and quality," says Katherine Dirks, a conservator in the textile division of the Smithsonian Institution's National Museum of American History.

"Since nylon was a synthetic fiber," Dirks points out, "manufacturers did not have to worry about pestilence, floods and other disasters that could greatly diminish the supplies of fabric made from such natural fibers as silk, cotton, linen and wool."

In the early days, nylon's raw materials were a hydrocarbon obtained from coal, petroleum or natural gas; nitrogen and oxygen from the air; and hydrogen from water. Nylon was resistant to such nuisances as insects, mildew and bacteria; another plus was that it could be tailored, with scientific precision, for specific jobs in terms of strength, weight and elasticity.

Eager women nationwide were finally able to buy nylon stockings on May 15, 1940. The near-pandemonium that struck the stores in Wilmington just a few months earlier was repeated at hundreds of hosiery counters across the country. But women hardly had a chance to get used to the differences between nylon hosiery and stockings made from silk, rayon and cotton, when nylon was classified as an essential material and "went to war."

With all nylon production being funneled into the war effort, patriotic women were urged to turn over their old stockings to the scrap drive so they could be converted into yarn for military use. Nylon yarn was used for making ropes, parachutes, tents and tire cord for heavy bombers and fighter planes. Nylon was also used to filter blood plasma and as sewing thread for shoes and garments.

Since nylon was impervious to the deteriorating effects of heat and humidity, it was a boon to soldiers in the Pacific. Nylon was used in shoes, mosquito netting and specially constructed flight suits.

Because of their scarcity, nylon hosiery often enlivened War Bond auctions at home. Movie star Betty Grable's precious stockings were auctioned for $40,000 at one rally. A New York department store auctioned off 200 pairs—one pair to each buyer of a bond—at another rally attended by celebrities Frederic March and Zero Mostel.

After the war, nylon production for civilian uses was reinstated. Comedian Bog Hope, writing in a September 1945 syndicated column, noted that nylon stockings were due back in stores by Christmas. "I won't say the women are anxious," he added, "but this is the first time Congress ever got 50 million letters petitioning it to abolish October and November."

However, because of technical delays, nylon hosiery wasn't back on the market until early 1946. In Philadelphia, 15 patrolmen and five mounted police were on duty at one store the day they went back on sale. "Women Risk Life and Limb in Bitter Battle for Nylons," ran a headline in the Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle. In Indianapolis, a headline blared: "Nylons Cobbled Up By Throngs." That story mentioned a member of the Women's Army Corps who admitted being AWOL to get in on the first sale.

Many of the military applications for nylon were easily converted into postwar uses. Sheer nettings were not so different from sheer window curtains. Du Pont built additional plants and, with increased production facilities, began to offer a wider variety of apparel, including men's socks and women's lingerie and foundation garments.

In 1947, nylon began to be used extensively in carpets and upholstery both in the home and automotive industries. Engineered as a plastic, nylon was known for toughness in industrial gears and bearings and drapery hardware.

By 1951, Du Pont had licensed the rights to manufacture nylon yarn under its own patents to the Chemstrand Corp. Today, at least four other U.S. companies manufacture nylon or its basic ingredients, and about 8 billion pounds of the fiber are produced each year.

Contrary to popular belief, the textiles used in space suits were not all invented specifically for the space program. Neoprene, a synthetic rubber, was developed in 1932. Teflon was discovered at about the same time as nylon. "There was a spurge in textile development after World War II," Lillian Kozloski, a museum specialist at the National Air and Space Museum, says. "That's when Mylar was introduced, followed by Lycra spandex in 1959 and Nomex in '63. All of these materials—including nylon—were used in the Apollo space suit. Even with 21 layers, the suits were comfortable, durable and flexible."

There are several members of the nylon family, reinforced with various materials that increase stability and strength. Today, in one form or another, nylon is used in a myriad of common items, from car body parts and interiors to ski boots, and from conveyor belts to tool and appliance handles. Nylon products also range from wheelchair rims to bicycle wheels and from lawn mower blades to ship propellers.

Nylon is the most widely used fiber for carpeting and upholstery and remains one of the most widely used fibers (behind cotton and rayon) in apparel, of which stockings make up a good chunk. "As long as there are women," says one textile executive, "there will be demand for nylon hosiery." That was certainly the case back in the 1940s, when 60 Tulsa, Okla., women were surveyed about what they missed during the war. Twenty said they missed men the most; 40 said nylons.

NEW HOPE FOR ARTHRITIS SUFFERERS

Approximately two million Americans suffers from severe rheumatoid arthritis that renders even the simplest movements quiet painful. This chronic disease causes stiff swollen joints, bone destruction, and inflammation of body organs. Now, the Food and Drug Administration has approved a drug for the rheumatoid arthritis sufferers whose conditions do not respond to other drug therapies. The new drug, methotrexate, taken on a weekly basis, was shown to relieve joint pain, swelling, and stiffness by about 30 percent on 24 test patients. This beneficial affect transpired over a three to six week period. Side effects included mild nausea, diarrhea, and appetite loss. There also lingers the potential for more potent side effects, such as liver damage. However, this drug of last resort is still expected to help many of those with severe pain.

Vote For James D. (Doug) Fitzpatrick

Magistrate District No. 2

I have been asked this question many times by my friends. Why do you want to be Magistrate?

I want to take this opportunity to explain my reason for wanting to serve the voters and the tax payers of Magistrate Dist. No. 2. I have been dissatisfied for several years as to what the office of magistrate is costing the taxpayers of Floyd County. Taxpayers do you know that the position of magistrate of Floyd County is costing you over $100,000 per year—$400,000 for four years. I think that is an excessive fee for that office. Our present magistrate receives over $25,000 per year for his part time job as magistrate, while he holds down a fulltime job with a coal company as a equipment mechanic.

Back to the expense of the magistrate office, it is costing the tax payers of Kentucky over $1,000,000 per year, and Floyd County ranks third in magistrate pay in the state of Kentucky. The only two counties which pay more money for magistrate's is Leslie County at $36,000 per year, Pike County at $29,000 and Floyd comes in third at over $25,000. Tax payers if you wonder where I got this information, I got it from the office of the Governor, Department of Local Government, Frankfort, Ky. Taxpayers and voters of Floyd County at the present time have been hit very hard with un-employment in our county. The mining industry, has cut back and laid off hundreds of our people. I am deeply concerned about their children being able to attend college when they graduate from high school.

My plan if you voters want to elect me your magistrate: I am going to take 50% of the magistrate salary (less taxes) and put it in a scholarship fund at Allen Central High School to help educate some of the high school graduates that want to attend college or vocational school. If I could help 10 or 12 high school graduates get a college education, then I think I have left some tracks that will last a long time.

If you voters want to elect me, I will assure you that I will be a conservative member of the fiscal court and a guardian of your tax dollars. I will not be one who will go along to get along.

I want to thank you voters for the support that you have showed me in this campaign. I will be on the job full time and I will be honest, sober and dependable.

How Nylon Got Its Name (Or, Why Women Don't Wear Duparoods)

By Vicki Moeser
Smithsonian News Service
Executives at the Du Pont Co. had quite a task on their hands when they decided to come up with a non-technical, generic name for the world's first man-made fiber.

During the early stages of development, the substance was known simply as "66"—an abbreviation for the number of carbon atoms in the two chemical compounds (six each) that made up the fiber.

The executives, figuring that most women would probably resist ordering their stockings by the official chemical name, polyhexamethylenedipamide, formed the "Name for Fiber 66 Committee." Because hosiery made of 66 did not easily snag, the name "norun" was repeatedly proposed—and repeatedly rejected. "Klis," or silk spelled backward, was another popular offering. "Nuron" (norun spelled backward) was suggested, but the committee agreed that that sounded like a tonic for nerves.

Among the more far-fetched ideas: "Duparood" for "Du Pont pulls a rabbit out of a hat," and "Delawear...Like the First State it is the First Synthetic Textile." The latter is said to have come from Lamot du Pont, then president of the company.

There was a feeling that because the names of two commonly used textile fibers—cotton and rayon—ended in "on," the commercial term for 66 should follow suit.

The committee fiddled around with nuron some more and came up with "nulon," but the legal department rejected that name since it was too close to a registered trademark. The suggestion was made to change the "u" to an "i," producing "nilon." The committee liked that, but there were fears that the word would be mispronounced. Eventually, the "i" was changed to a "y."

More than 400 words were considered and, after a two-and-a-half year search, the name "nylon" met with the approval of Du Pont's naming committee, the legal department and, apparently, all stocking-wearing women of the world.

After standing in line for hours to buy nylon stockings when they went on sale after World War II, this woman couldn't wait to get home to put them on.

Officials gather in front of Wheelwright City Hall; mining officials are also pictured.

Clark, Keene Exchange Vows

Glenda Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hershell Clark of Pikeville, and Pat Keene II, son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Keene of Pikeville, were united in marriage at 1:30 p.m. Saturday, July 8, at the Immanuel Baptist Church of Pikeville.

Brother Bob Norman performed the double-ring ceremony. Dena Gibson provided the selection of wedding songs which were sung by Marty Childers and Penny Stratton. Photographs were provided by Steve Porter.

The altar was decorated with candelabras weaved with ivy and accented with bows. Magnolia leaves decorated the back of the church and windows, along with brandy snifters in each window.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father and given in marriage by her parents. She was dressed in a white satin gown with re-embroidered French lace and a Queen Ann design neckline. Hand sewn sequin and pearls highlighted the inverted drop waist design of bodice. Re-embroidered French lace accented the keyhole open back dress. The sleeves were long, fitted and accented with French lace. The full skirt of satin flowed into a cathedral train trimmed with scalloped lace. The headpiece had a pearl pointed front halo with silk flowers and pearls in flight trimmed with rhinestones. The pouff, decorated with scattered rhinestones, highlighted the double tiered illusion veiling. She carried a cascading bouquet of white roses and baby's breath, accented with satin ribbon and pearls.

Rita Slone served as maid of honor and Melissa King, Lara Mullins and Bonnie Mullins were bridesmaids. They wore a tea length gown of royal blue satin featuring a Sabrina neckline tapering to a V-back. The short puffed sleeves were accented with a small bow and a large satin bow with center rosette accented the back.

The flower girl was Darnella Slone, daughter of Greg and Rita Slone. She wore a long, satin royal blue gown with short puffed sleeves and a bow accented the back.

The bridegroom wore a black full dress tuxedo from Lord West Crown Collection with a pique vest and matching bow tie. He wore a single white carnation for boutonniere.

Larry Keene served as best man, and the groomsmen were David Keene, Russell Clark and Todd Case. They were attired in black single breasted tuxedos from Lord West Crown Collection with black diagonal pleated cummerbund and black bow tie.

The ring bearers were Jordan and Jarrod Mullins, sons of Eric and Lara Mullins of Kimper. They were also dressed in single breasted tuxedos, black cummerbunds with matching bow ties.

Mrs. Clark chose a beautiful teal green skirt and blouse with matching shoes for her daughter's wedding. The mother of the bridegroom wore a cream tea length, straight dress trimmed in lace with matching shoes. Both mothers wore corsages of white roses accented with satin ribbon.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony in the fellowship hall of the church. The bride's table was laid with white lace table linens. The four-tier wedding cake featured a waterfall fountain and the top single layers were connected with stair cases. The cake top was centered with heart of pearls and doves. The cake was placed in a beautiful gazebo trimmed with white net and blue satin ribbon and was built by brother of the groom, David Keene and Christian Coleman.

The food was catered by Clara Ann Martin and Georgia Allen of Allen, along with the help of Georgia Naylor of Harold.

After the ceremony, the couple left for a seven-day, seven-night cruise in the Caribbean. They currently reside in Pikeville.

WHERE TO FIND A SUPER DELUXE RACING STEED

Four Natural Habitats:

First - Soupl! Mashed Potatoes! Yuk! The best place to find your trotters is on the worst possible inaccessible curve on your local highway. It's nearly impossible to collect (or save) one of these guys amidst the honking of horns and screeching of tires as you nimbly dash out in front of two tons of factory-made machine. BE CAREFUL!

Second - The second place is your prized vegetable garden. Critters are found nibbling away glorious hunks of tomatoes, lettuce, melon, etc. Save them, though, they may pay you back.

Third - From your kid, baby brother, sister and/or family dog! These are the real aggressors - the real fighters. Don't be alarmed should these fellers not be "all together". Remember, a three-legged hoss won a race a couple of years ago! At least, you did it again. You saved HIM!

Fourth - NOWHERE! Good. Rent one of ours. $5 per turtle. Available at track racing day.

National Register of Historic Places

Colonial Revival Mode Distinguishes Combs House

The B.F. Combs House

(Eighth in a Series)
By Pam Shingler

"A dignified and well preserved example of Colonial Revival style" is the way the Kentucky Heritage Council begins its description of the B.F. Combs House at 41 N. Arnold Ave. in Prestonsburg. The house is one of 12 local sites recently included in the National Register of Historic Places.

The distinctive home was built in 1922 for Bert French Combs, a successful local attorney during the early 20th century. His firm of Combs and Combs, originally including sons Leroy and Paul, remains today. The elder Combs served as Prestonsburg city solicitor and Floyd County Attorney, and the family was active in local politics. He was a cousin to Bert T. Combs, the first Eastern Kentucky resident to be elected governor of Kentucky.

The house, according to the council report, was designed by the Ashland architectural firm of Tyson and Foster. Combs apparently did not like the "rather pretentious" porch designed by Foster and commissioned the design of the more modest, present porch in 1931 from the firm of Archer and Dean Associates of Louisville and Huntington.

The Heritage Council recommendation indicates that house's construction is "unusually well documented" with original blueprints still intact.

Among the Colonial Revival features of the 2-1/2-story house, according to the report, are its symmetrical composition, formal center passage, pedimented portico, fanlighted doorway with sidelights, and multi-pane windows.

The garage, the report notes, also carried the Colonial Revival motif.

Built of orange-pink pressed brick, the house sports a side-gabled roof and flanking one-story wings. An ell at the rear of the house features a screened porch on the first floor and enclosed porch above. Two brick pillars set off the front of the yard.

The Combs house, the report states, "is unique in its stylish interpretation of the style and in its fine craftsmanship."

RE-ELECT JACKIE EDFORD OWENS

DEMOCRAT FOR MAGISTRATE-DIST. 2

My opponent on the "Independent" ticket was talking about the Magistrate's salaries in last week's paper. Since I have been in office as magistrate for the last 4 years, the Magistrates have NEVER taken a raise – NOT EVEN a cost of living increase that comes up the first of every year. We've turned that down for 4 years in a roll. The Magistrate's job is not an 8-5, 40 hr., 5 days a week job – It's 24 hours a day 7 days a week. You've only got 5 men trying to take care of approx. 10,000 people. YOU'RE always behind – You just do the best you CAN DO. My opponent on the "Independent" ticket says he is so concerned about the "taxpayer's dollars" and how they are being spent NOW. Doug, why don't you tell us HOW MANY YEARS that you sat in an office and the "taxpayer's dollars" paid YOUR salary? You wouldn't too concerned THEN about the "taxpayer's dollars". Maybe you can tell us why approx. 3 hours before filing deadline you suddenly quit running as a "DEMOCRAT" in the May primary and switched to the "Independent" Party. Did you do this on your own OR are you already just "GOING ALONG TO GET ALONG"? As your Magistrate for the last 4 years, I HAVE PROVEN that I'm not a "YES MAN" or a "PUPPET ON A STRING". Now I can't speak for my "Independent" opponent. The only ones that I am obligated to (to vote the right votes) are the people of District 2. I don't have the "POLITICAL MACHINES", such as "SCHOOL BOARD MEMBERS", etc. on my side like the "Independent" candidate does, so their side will be at the polls to vote. – I NEED ALL THE "GOOD PEOPLE" of District 2 to COME OUT ON NOVEMBER 7, STAND UP and BE HEARD once again. YOUR VOTE DOES COUNT –

VOTE FOR And RE-ELECT – OWENS – MAGISTRATE – Dist. 2

P.S. – In the May Primary, the "Democrat Party" CHOSE ME to represent them in the November Election. I AM A "DEMOCRAT" and I'm asking ALL THE "DEMOCRATS" to Come Out and Vote For Me. Don't VOTE for the "Independent" ticket – a guy that QUIT THE "DEMOCRAT" TICKET 3 hours before filing deadline and went to the "Independent" ticket – Let the "Independents" vote for him.

QUESTION: My wife and I are expecting our first baby so she has decided to quit smoking. I know quitting is hard and I'd like to be a supportive as possible. I want to give her incentives and rewards, but we're on a tight budget. Any suggestions?

ANSWER: The most important thing you can do is to be a nonsmoker also. Your support will be very important to your wife while she's trying to quit. Just expressing your support and your confidence in her ability to quit should be a big help to her. Rewards don't have to be expensive. Use your unique knowledge of your wife to think up special treats. Here are some examples of inexpensive rewards from the American Lung Association.

* Make a change for the better in your life—like wearing seatbelts or starting to exercise. This may make your wife feel less alone and glad that you too feel a need to improve yourself.

* If you want to give her a more concrete award, a monthly dinner in the nonsmoking section of your favorite restaurant might be a good idea. A more immediate reward for another day of not smoking might be something like fixing dinner and washing the dishes while she relaxes and reads the newspaper.

* Finally, help her to avoid situations that you know trigger her urge to smoke. For example, a suggestion for a walk together after eating may help her to stave off the urge to smoke after a meal. Your system of little rewards may go a long way to a bigger reward for both of you, a healthier wife and baby. Good Luck!

QUESTION: My daughter is going to be receiving chemotherapy for Hodgkin's disease and she is upset about losing her hair. Is there anything we can do to keep this from happening?

ANSWER: Hair loss can be a distressing side effect for some patients receiving chemotherapy. Anticancer drugs attack any rapidly dividing cells in the body. Since hair follicle cells (like cancer cells) divide rapidly, they are particularly sensitive to these drugs. As a result, scalp and body hair are often lost during treatment. The amount of hair loss depends on the drug or combination of drugs administered, the dose given, the time the drug circulates in the body, and the patient's individual reaction to the drug.

QUESTION: I am 55 years old and my doctor has recommended that I have a mammogram. I have heard it is painful and I am afraid to have one. Should I let my fear of pain keep me from having the mammogram?

ANSWER: No, you should definitely make an appointment for the mammogram. The mammogram, or breast x-ray is the most accurate method for detecting early breast cancer. After the age of 50, women are encouraged to have a mammogram every year. Your worries about pain should be discussed with your doctor and the mammogram technologists, but a recent study suggests that most women experience very little, if any, discomfort during the test.

In a study conducted in the greater Boston area, over 1800 women were surveyed immediately after undergoing the mammogram. The women rated their experience on a six point scale ranging from "no discomfort" (1) to "severe pain" (6). Information about age, menstrual status, stage of menstrual cycle and expectation of discomfort was also recorded.

The results of the survey showed that the overwhelming majority, 88%, of the women experienced no discomfort or mild discomfort. Only 9% experienced moderate discomfort; 1% had severe discomfort and 1% moderate pain. No woman in the study had pain so severe that it would make her reconsider having a mammogram again.

Within the study, two factors seemed to play a role in the degree of discomfort women reported. First, women who reported moderate or greater discomfort were more likely to have breast tenderness within 3 days prior to the mammogram. Women who have significant breast tenderness prior to the beginning of the menstrual period may want to schedule their mammogram at a different stage of the menstrual cycle. In general, women do not need to be scheduled for mammography around specific weeks of their cycle.

Second, women who expected more discomfort tended to experience more discomfort. Frequently, our fears and anxieties about any medical test are much worse than the reality. A sensitive technologist can help to relieve a woman's anxiety by thoroughly explaining the procedure and enlisting her cooperation. Compression of the breast is essential to an accurate mammogram. A good technologist can achieve the necessary compression without undue pain.

Mammography is potentially life-saving. Fear of pain should not cause women to avoid it.

Local Students Selected For State Rotary Program

Nineteen Floyd County students will participate in the Student Program on Kentucky Enterprise (SPOKE) in Louisville, Oct. 14, sponsored by Kentucky Rotary clubs.

Two of the students, Stacey Hall of McDowell High School and Jennifer Ousley of Prestonsburg High School, will also participate in VOTREK Friday.

The SPOKE conference, which attracts several thousand high school students from across the state, promotes the free enterprise system through a variety of educational seminars, according to Mark Thornburg, manager of Sears and coordinator of the program for the Prestonsburg Rotary Club. The local club is sponsoring the participation of county students.

The VOTREK program, restricted to a limited number of students from each Rotary district, allows students to visit three Louisville businesses that might be of interest to them as possible career choices. The acronym stands for Vocation, Occupation, Training, Research, Education and Knowledge.

Students participating in the VOTREK program will get to spend the evening on a cruise on Summer Wind, a party boat operated by the Bonnie Belle group. They will attend the SPOKE conference the following day.

Attending the SPOKE conference from Allen Central High School are Chris Ousley, sophomore, daughter of Gary and Bonnie Ousley of Langley; Marcia Denne, junior, daughter of James and Cindy Akers of Watergap, and Rontona Martin, junior, daughter of Ronald and Sylvia Martin of Dema.

From Betsy Layne High School are Sabrina Cooley, senior, daughter of George and Teresa Cooley of Banner; Jessica Damron, senior, daughter of Emmitt and Brenda Damron of Harold, and Elaine Hunter, senior, daughter of Roger and Patty Hunter of Printer.

McDowell High School students selected to participate are Larry Brian Addis, junior, son of Larry and Kay Addis of Hi Hat; Brent Morgan, sophomore, son of Don Morgan of Minnie, and Stacey Hall, junior, son of Katie and Lanny Hall of Emma.

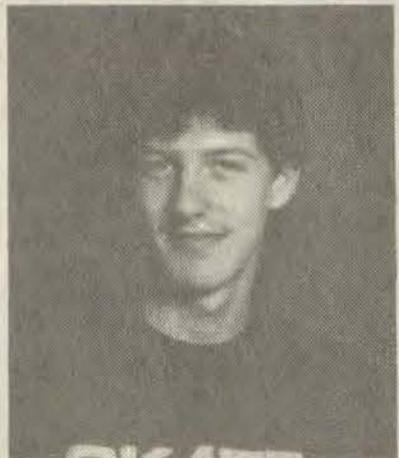

Those attending from Prestonsburg High School are Debbie Griffey, senior, daughter of George and Linda Griffey of East Point; Eddie Joe Sammons, senior, son of Ann and Eddie Sammons of Prestonsburg, and Jennifer Ousley, senior, daughter of Roy and Charlene Ousley of Watergap.

From Wheelwright High School are Brad Compton, senior, son of Denver and Judith Compton of Weeksbury; Adam Hall, senior, son of Tony Hall Jr. of Halo and Alma Sue Thrans of Colon, Mich.; Danny Lee

Collins, sophomore, son of Dan and Charlotte Collins of Weeksbury, and Brad Hall, sophomore, son of Ronald and Ruth Hall of Weeksbury.

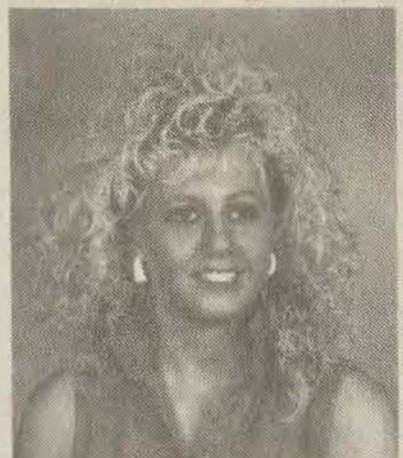

Students attending from The David School are William Marsillett, senior, son of Billy Ray and Evelyn Marsillett of Watergap; Kevin Nelson, senior, son of Ronnie and Judy Nelson of Middle Creek; and Sean Shepherd, senior, son of Cheryl Tusset Shepherd of Prestonsburg.

Parent's Rights

By Joyce Everly

Lynch's Law: When the going gets tough, everyone leaves.

Have you ever heard of Public Law 94-142? No? You aren't alone! A lot of people — even those who are or may be directly affected by this law — don't know it exists.

This federal law, known as the "Education for All Handicapped Children Act of 1975," was written especially for special or exceptional children.

The preamble to the law, as written by our federal lawmakers, states: "To assure that all handicapped children have available to them a free, appropriate public education and related services designed to meet their unique needs."

The children covered by the law are those who are mentally retarded, emotionally disturbed, physically handicapped, hyperactive, and other children with behavioral problems. This law also includes children who, for some reason, cannot learn in a regular classroom.

So, what does this mean for parents of a special child? It means that your child has a right to a public education, and that right was given to you in 1975 when Congress passed this law.

Every school system in this country must make school facilities available for the "special/exceptional" child. Not only must the school system develop a plan that fits into that child's present level of school performance, it must also do it with input from the parents of that child.

Your federal and state tax dollars are supporting this school program. You are not asking your local school system to do anything other than what they have been told to do when the law was written in 1975.

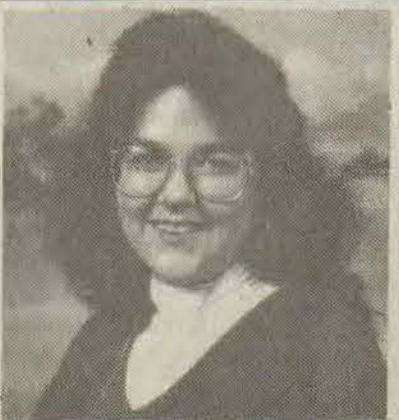

If your child is eligible for classes from kindergarten through high school, then he or she is also eligible to participate in the special education programs that are to be provided by our school system.

You can find out more about the law by calling your local board of education at 886-2354, extension 34, and asking for Ogie Slone. She is the administrator directly in charge of the exceptional child program for this school system.

Some other resources include the Floyd County Parent Resource Center, 886-8572, extension 52, Harmon Leedy (he can also be reached at home after 5 p.m. at 886-1723); Kentucky Protection and Advocacy Office, State Office Building Annex, Frankfort, KY 40601, 1-800-372-2988; or you can call me, Joyce Everly, at 886-8243.

This law is vitally important and is in place to benefit special children. Parents who have these special children have every right to demand that their child receive the same educational opportunities available to other children. Please take advantage of this right given to you by law. Your child's future may depend on it.

Academic Achiever

For the second consecutive year, Robin L. Robinette has been selected for "Who's Who Among American High School Students." Her picture will appear in the "Who's Who" 1989-90 yearbook. She is the daughter of Rosetta Collins of McDowell and Jerry W. Robinette, who is in Alaska.

Read All About It At PES

Although the new Prestonsburg Middle School has not been realized as of yet, four enterprising eighth graders have started the Junior High Journal, covering events and news of the seventh and eighth graders at Prestonsburg Elementary School.

Tonia Hale, Emily Damron, Shea Leslie and B.J. Tussey, all members of the Academic Team, decided to take it upon themselves to report the happenings at the school, and so enlisted the help of English and pre-algebra teacher Janice Allen as their editor. The idea originated when Hale received as a gift from her parents — the computer program "News Room."

Hale and Damron utilize this software to create the paper, full of graphics and special sections, including interviews, recipes, a gossip column, book reviews, sports page, local movies, weekly top 20 record hits and much more. September made the second issue of this newspaper and the October issue is scheduled to run this week.

The staff of the Junior High Journal conduct interviews during school time and write the stories after school and during free periods. Ideas and suggestions, stories and editorials, as well as birthday announcements and submissions for the soon-to-come advice column "Dear Bocephus," are solicited from other students by the use of "The Box," which is placed in the hallway of the school. A regular monthly feature is "Friendly Facts," which is a full page, featuring facts about several seventh and eighth grade students, which the staff collects at lunch time.

According to another teacher at the school, Onda Hunt, all the members of the newspaper's staff are "excellent students, and showed a lot of initiative in starting the paper." All four students received straight A's on their recent grade cards. As well as being high academic achievers, they participate in many other extra-curricular activities.

Damron, 13-year-old daughter of Martha and Phillip Damron, is a majorette and takes dance lessons at Prestonsburg Community College.

She is also on the Prestonsburg Teen Board and belongs to the Co-ed Y Club. She won awards in the Young Authors Competition in the sixth and seventh grades for her poetry, and hopes to be a lawyer or a dancer in the future.

Leslie is the 13-year-old daughter of Bennett and Debbie Leslie, and she is also a member of the Co-ed Y Club and is on the basketball team. She is a cheerleader and was a county winner for her illustrations and stories in the Young Authors Competition in the sixth grade. Leslie has aspirations to be a marine biologist or a doctor.

Hale, 13-year-old daughter of Bonnie and Durward Hale, is in the Gifted Education Program at the school. She participated in the State Governors Cup, an academic competion, and is acting president of the Co-ed Y Club. She also is president of the United Methodist Church Youth Group, a cheerleader and a member of the Prestonsburg Teen Board. Hale plans to seek a career in photography or archaeology.

Tussey, 13-year-old son of Ballard and Ruby Tussey, plays the piano for the Katy Friend Church and will soon be performing at weddings. He is also a member of his church's youth group and hopes to be a veterinarian or teacher some day.

Aspiring Journalists Or Creative Kids?

It's hard to believe that these four students are only 13 years old and in the eighth grade; (left to right) Emily Damron, B.J. Tussey, Tonia Hale and Shea Leslie compose a very professional school newspaper.

Sweet 16 Entry Forms Sent To High Schools

Sweet 16 Academic Showcase entry forms have been sent to all Kentucky high schools, and students have until Dec. 1 to enter one of the 12 categories of competition.

Interested students should ask their academic coach or school principal for entry forms.

According to Mary Wathen, Showcase spokeswoman, each school may enter one student in each competition. The categories are: English, two-dimensional and three-dimensional; music, vocal and instrumental; journalism, feature writing; English, essay writing and creative writing; speech; chess; and in team events, computer, mathematics and journalism (advertising/promotion).

High school students have an opportunity to win college scholarships to any Kentucky college or post-secondary school if they place in the top four at the state level. However, first the students must compete on a regional basis.

Four regional competitions are held at different locations throughout the state. The regions have been grouped differently this year.

The top four finishers in each event at the regionals are invited to the state finals. The state final competition will be held March 14-16, 1990, at Transylvania University in Lexington.

Since the program began four years ago, 255 individual scholarships have been awarded to students from 44 different counties.

In addition to individual scholarship awards, schools receive $1,000 for each first place state winner from their school. The schools may use the money to enhance their academic activities.

Lexington Mayor Scotty Baesler originated the program in 1985 to spotlight and reward academic skill and enterprise. The program is based in Lexington and coordinated by the Lexington-Fayette Urban County Government. Funds are raised through a televised auction held in January, said Wathen. Corporate donors include the Ashland Oil Foundation, developers of Meadow Creek Subdivision, and several others.

Hamilton BLHS Homecoming Queen

Jeannie Hamilton, 16, was chosen homecoming queen at Betsy Layne High School Friday night at the Lloyd Hamilton Athletic Complex. She was the winner among six other senior contestants. Hamilton has been a majorette at Betsy Layne for four years. She was last year's Music Festival Queen and has done some modeling for Watson's Department store. She enjoys water skiing and "talking on the telephone," which her mothers says she can testify to. She is the daughter of Vivian Conn of Ivel and Rex Hamilton of Pikeville. Her escort is Craig Hunter, 17, of Honaker. Hunter is quarterback on the Bobcat football team.

KET To Air Live, Call-In Education Reform Forum

National and local education experts will join National Public Radio's Bob Edwards for "The Shape of Tomorrow: What is Educational Reform?", a call-in program airing on KET at 8 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 12.

Louisville native Edwards, host of NPR's "Morning Edition," will moderate live discussions on educational reform ideas from the local, state and national perspectives, according to Ellen Ballard, KET spokeswoman.

Guests will include Dr. Regina Kyle, chairman and president of the Kyle Group, a Washington, D.C.-based education consulting firm; former Gov. Bert T. Combs; Dr. Theodore R. Sizer, chairman of the Coalition of the Essential Schools; Dr. Donald Ingwersen, superintendent of Jefferson County Public Schools; and Terry Brooks, executive director of the Gheens Professional Development Academy, which assists Louisville-area educators with ideas and new methods of instruction.

The 90-minute program will be divided into three segments, Ballard said. The first part will examine education in the United States with emphasis on history, followed by a presentation on the activities of the Gheens Foundation. Finally, the program will focus on Kentucky's Education agenda in the wake of the Combs decision, which led to the Kentucky Supreme Court's ruling that the state's system of funding education is unconstitutional.

Goble Recently Named To KRTA Executive Board

Virginia Goble of Cow Creek has been named a new member of the Kentucky Retired Teachers Association Executive Council.

Goble retired in 1979 after 34 and a half years teaching in Floyd County. She began at the McGuire School, a small rural school of less than 40 students, where she also began her formal education.

Goble attended Alice Lloyd College in Pippa Passes for one year, transferring to Morehead State College in 1937 and receiving her AB degree in 1952.

Goble taught elementary school, mostly at the primary level, and spent her last nine years teaching in the remedial reading program.

Since 1944, she and her husband of 44 years, James B. Goble, have lived in the Cow Creek Community. They have one daughter, a third year law student at the University of Louisville.

In addition to KRTA, Goble is active in the Homemakers, the Volunteer Fire Department and the Baptist Church, where she is an active Sunday School teacher. She also served the Daughters of the American Revolution as state organizing secretary from March 1986 to March 1989. Goble has served on several local committees in Floyd County and is presently vice president and program chairman.

In her spare time, she gardens and cares for her fruit trees.

She has two sisters who also retired from the Floyd County school system; together they have a total of 117 years of service. The three, plus an aunt and uncle, began teaching in the same school. The land for the school was gotten from her grandfather.

Goble replaces Luther Wright on the KRTA Council, representing the Big Sandy District.

Watson's Hotline

This year at Allen Central High School, educator Joyce Watson has a new class third period — Probability and Statistics. The 12 students in the class learn via satellite, with 50 schools (including ACHS) communicating with teacher Tom Graviss. Joyce Watson serves as the facilitator. "The best thing about this class is that it uses the most up-to-date technology that exists," Watson said. "Plus the fact that the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics has recently released new standards of math education. According to the new standards, Probability and Statistics is the most significant class for the upper level student in preparing them for the 21st Century." Students in the class include John Slone, Laurie Conley, Kelly Hairston, Carla Coburn, Robyn Williams, Matt Elliot, Krystal Scott, Kellie Griffith, Delbert Goins, Kim Robinson, Darnella Bradley and William Wohlford.

'Day On Campus' Offered

School principals are again receiving information packets about one of the most popular "field trips" in Kentucky: a special day on the campus of one of the state's 43 colleges and universities.

In the first two years of the program, created and sponsored by Ashland Oil, Inc., over 10,000 Kentucky students from the fourth through ninth grades have taken part. Gary S. Cox, executive director of the Council on Higher Education, said that Ashland Oil, Inc., developed the idea for "A Day on Campus" in 1987 and has contributed $30,000 a year to it. Under this program, Ashland Oil guarantees that up to $100 (to be matched dollar-for-dollar by a local business or businesses) per school to pay for a class to visit a campus and take part in activities specially tailored to their interests.

"A Day on Campus" is designed to give children an experience of what college is really like, and an understanding of how important it is to prepare academically for college while still in grade school and high school, said Cox.

All of Kentucky's 43 public and independent colleges and universities have prepared special programs for the children and their teachers to select from. The Council on Higher Education coordinates the planning and operation of the program, with the Council of Independent Kentucky Colleges and Universities serving as the financial agent. The program is endorsed by the Kentucky Department of Education and the Kentucky Education Association.

To be eligible for "A Day on Campus," the school must get a local business sponsor to match the gift of Ashland Oil, and must apply through the Council on Higher Education.

Reader's Digest Seeking Nominations For 1990 Heroes In Education Awards

The Reader's Digest Association, Inc., is seeking nominations for its 1990 American Heroes in Education Awards, a national program to honor educators who are making a difference in US schools.

Winning educators from 10 schools will share $150,000.

Individual teachers and principals, or teams of up to six educators, will receive $5,000, with an additional $10,000 going to their schools to support the activities that earned them national honors.

In September 1988, Reader's Digest

launched the American Heroes in Education Awards to honor teachers and principals. Among the first award winners was Daniel J. Greene, founder of The David School at David, a 1989 winner. Established in 1972 for families of Appalachian coal miners, The David School has been recognized statewide for its exemplary program to prevent students from dropping out of school.

"Thanks to the Reader's Digest award, we made a down-payment on property to build our own private school. Then we challenged the community to match the $10,000 award with their own contributions so we could pay the balance of the loan. And you know what? They did," said Greene.

Some 100,000 nomination forms have been sent to public, private and parochial schools across the nation. Any teacher, principal or administrator may nominate a fellow educator. The deadline for entries is Dec. 1.

Nomination forms are available from local and national offices of the National Education Association, National Association of Secondary School Principals, American Federation of Teachers and National Association of Elementary School Principals.

Nomination forms are also available from The Readers Digest Association, Inc., American Heroes In Education Awards, c/o Bruce Trachtenberg, Pleasantville, NY 10572.

Tapp Award Promotes State History Projects

Teachers across Kentucky should consider submitting entries for the fifth annual Hambleton Tapp Award.

Sponsored by the Kentucky Historical Society, the award provides $1,000 for a teacher to develop a Kentucky history project for the classroom. Winners in previous years have used oral history, photography, drama, music and classroom exchange programs to stimulate interest in Kentucky history. Entries are judged by an independent panel.

According to Susan Hughes, spokeswoman for the Kentucky Historical Society, teachers may enter by submitting to the society a proposal outlining educational goals, student involvement, a schedule of activities and an estimated budget. The application deadline is Dec. 15; the winner will be announced March 15, 1990. Presentation of the award will be at the American Heritage Award banquet on April 22.

The competition honors Dr. Hambleton Tapp, teacher, author and former state historian. Information about the Tapp Award is available from Educational Services, Kentucky Historical Society, P.O. Box H, Frankfort, KY 40602-2108; (502) 564-2662.

Can You Tell A Difference?

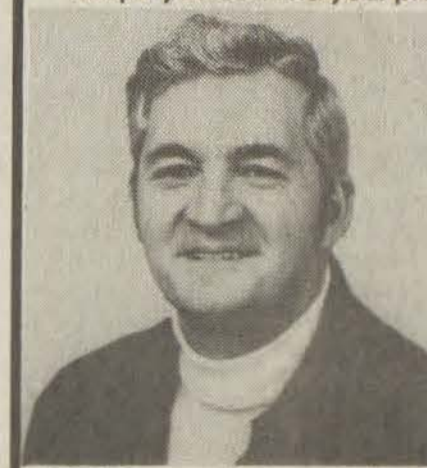

On June 30th, 1983 I was appointed (by state board of elections) to serve on Floyd County Board of Elections.

I have worked very hard to "clean up" our Elections. We have made progress, but much more needs to be done. I am proud of my work record. I have never missed a meeting, or recount, and on Election day I have never left the courthouse until the last vote, including absentees had been counted.

I hope you can find your precinct a better place to vote than it was six years ago.

I will give you the same dedicated service as your magistrate.

If you are ready for a change—I'm ready to serve on Nov. 7th you have a choice.

Curtis Hall
Magistrate, Dist. 3

Lower Interest Rates Expected To Keep Home Sales Steady, NAR Outlook Reports

With mortgage interest rates leveling off after declining in June and July, home sales likely will remain steady the rest of the year, although no surges are expected, according to the latest monthly "Outlook for the Economy and Real Estate" from the National Association of Realtors.

The September outlook does not anticipate significant drops in interest rates. Continued strong economic growth appears to have headed off any potential for a recession. The slim likelihood of an economic slowdown as taken pressure off the Federal Reserve Board to further loosen its monetary policy, the outlook notes.

"While the Fed has not taken any direct credit tightening action, it has also made it clear that it does not intend to make any further interest rate cuts in the near future," the outlook says.

Any increases in sales of existing and new homes or housing starts in coming months are expected to be modest. For instance, the sales rate of existing homes is expected to average 3.43 million units for the second half of 1989, compared to 3.40 million units in the first half.

The outlook notes that the price gap between existing and new homes appears to be narrowing. The national median existing-home price rose 3.2 percent from June to July to $96,400, while the counterpart new-home price fell 3.7 percent to $118,800. Although new-home demand is expected to be steady, buyers probably will not continue to demand larger and larger homes, the report says. "We expect that increases in new-home prices will fall more in line with that of existing-home prices in coming years," the outlook says.
