Advice To Coal Haulers: Join Weight Watchers

Coal haulers unlucky enough not to get advance word met with an unaccustomed surprise as they drove through Prestonsburg Monday.

At the request of city officials, vehicle enforcement officers from the Kentucky Department of Transportation's vehicle regulation unit were stationed on KY 1428, also known as South Lake Drive, to weigh coal trucks as they attempted to pass through town.

Apparently, many trucks that normally take the shorter route through the city, bypassing busy US 23, got word of the weigh-in over their CB radios and avoided it, but a few were stopped. "Prestonsburg City Police informed us that numerous trucks started down here and turned around when they got word (over the CB) we were here," said Officer J. Cantrell.

Among those stopped was a truck that tipped the portable scales at 129,000 pounds, about 49,000 pounds over the weight limit on KY 1428 and 3,000 pounds over the limit on US 23. The truck was owned by F&F Trucking.

Another coal truck, owned by S&S Trucking, weighed in at 122,000 pounds.

To weigh the trucks, Cantrell and Officer J. Howard place scales under each axle and add the readings together to get total weight.

Cantrell said drivers are supposed to have materials listing weight limits on each road. Truck owners are responsible for informing drivers of extended weights on coal haul roads, he said.

"The drivers come through town to save fuel, but this is not a coal haul road and has a weight limit of 80,000 pounds," Cantrell said. "If they (the drivers) went around and down US 23, they would be legal up to 126,000 pounds."

One driver who was stopped Monday admitted that this was the first time in five years that he has been stopped for being overweight. Prestonsburg city officials have complained to state agencies about suspected overloaded trucks going through the city and have attempted to get state approval for setting a local weight limit.

At Monday's Prestonsburg City Council meeting, Police Chief Dickie Campbell said his department has permission from state authorities to stop trucks suspected of being overweight and retain the drivers until DOT officers arrive with the portable weighing scales.

Betsy Layne Parents Meet, Organize PTO

by Tess A. Whitmer, Staff Writer

The parents of students at Betsy Layne High School held their second meeting Monday, Sept. 25, forming a parent-teacher organization for the school.

Meeting at the Freewill Baptist Church in Betsy Layne, group spokesman Joe Jacobs asked, "Do we want an organization in Betsy Layne to improve our schools, and do we want to act as citizens and bond together whenever the need arises?" The crowd sounded off with an unanimous "yes" for the former, and a PTO was formed.

The group elected officers and collected over $113 in donations from the approximately 50 people in attendance. Jacobs, who originally said he felt the people could "be better served to by someone else," succumbed to pressure from the group and agreed to serve as PTO president. Leonard Hall was named vice president; Diane Harmon took the office of secretary and Beullavene Hall was assigned as treasurer.

Jacobs asked the crowd if it could support the officers and if parents would work to bring about change.

Headed that a major problem in the local school system is the politics which surrounds it, and said he wanted to be assured no parents objected to the representatives selected for the newly formed PTO.

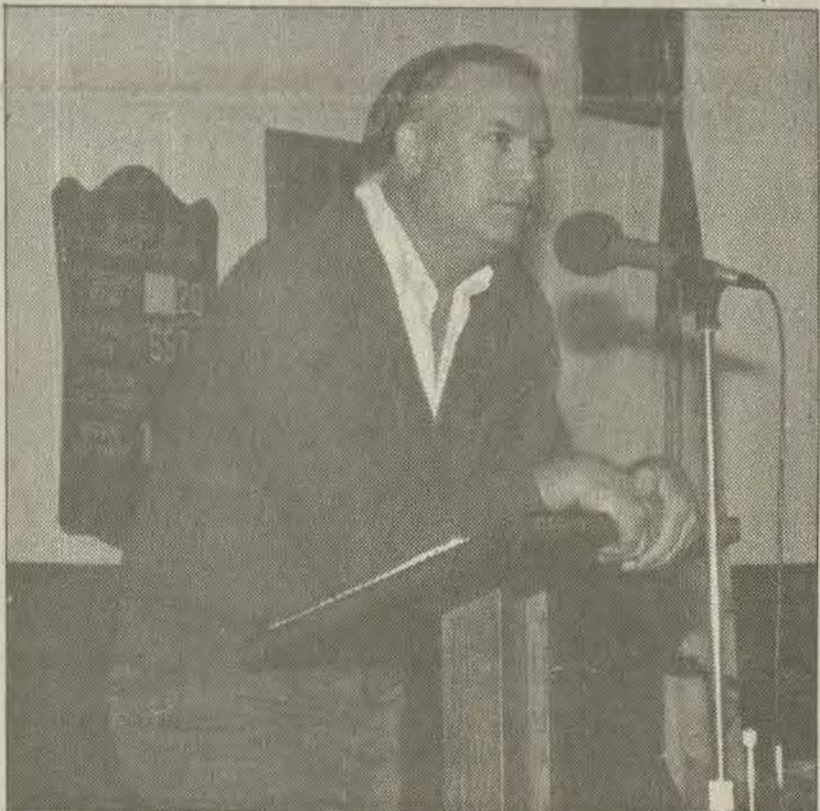

Later when Adrian Bentley, principal at the high school, was asked how he felt about the formation of a PTO, he said "In that I didn't have an invitation to the meeting and no knowledge of it — no comment."

The group decided the Betsy Layne PTO (soon to be incorporated) will meet the first Monday of each month at 7 p.m. the group can, if it wishes, be placed on the monthly school board meeting agenda. The Floyd school board meets the second Wednesday of each month.

Jacobs faulted the board for making parents wait until after midnight to be heard at the board's last meeting.

"What the board could do to alleviate problems in their system is to take care of the taxpayers first and early," Jacobs commented. "If they would listen to the constituents and take care of those folks early, we would be more cooperative."

A Concerned Parent Speaks For Change

Joe Jacobs addresses a crowd of Betsy Layne High School parents Monday night at the Freewill Baptist Church at Betsy Layne. "It's our duty to keep an eye on what is going on (at the school) — it's our tax dollars, and more importantly it's our children," Jacobs told the group. Jacobs, stressing the need for a "political-free" school system, stated, "I want it publicly known that I am not now, nor will I ever be, a candidate for any political office, especially not the school board."

HUD Approves Funding For Local Housing Project

The US Department of Housing and Urban Development last week approved a grant for $2,976,900 to the Floyd County Housing Authority to build 50 units of low income, public housing for families, according to a spokesman for Sen. Mitch McConnell's office.

Julia May, director of the local housing authority, said she has not received official word of the grant yet, but she confirmed that a proposal for the grant had been made.

She said the authority, which now has 109 units, will be looking at sites for the proposed housing project. "We want to build where other housing does not now exist," she said.

May said the development process, once the funds are awarded, usually takes a couple of years. She estimated that construction of the new project may be completed by the fall of 1991.

"Waiting lists for public housing are long — in the hundreds," May said. In addition to the authority's current housing, May said that her office administers more than 400 "Section 8's", in which persons are issued vouchers for rental of privately owned housing.

Kentucky Housing Corporation Members To Tour Local Projects

State Finance Secretary L. Rogers Wells Jr. will lead the board members of the Kentucky Housing Corporation on a two-day tour of Eastern Kentucky beginning Thursday, Sept. 28.

Wells, chairman of the corporation, said that the group, traveling by bus, will visit housing project sites in Clark, Floyd, Magoffin, Pike and Rowan Counties. They will arrive in Prestonsburg at 4:45 p.m. on Thursday and will visit Cliffside and Highland Terrace.

Local and state officials are invited to meet with the board members at any or all of the stops in their area. An official meeting of the board is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Thursday

The Scales Of Justice

Vehicle enforcement officers with the Kentucky Department of Transportation's vehicle regulation unit sent a message Monday to owners and drivers of overweight coal trucks going through Prestonsburg. Here, Officer J. Cantrell uses portable scales to weigh a truck owned by F&F Trucking. The truck was 49,000 pounds over the weight limit on KY 1428.

P'burg City Council Meets, Hears Several Routine Issues

In an unusually short meeting, lasting less than an hour, Prestonsburg City Council Monday night set the date for Halloween trick-or-treat and discussed subjects ranging from parking lots to garbage cans.

Mayor Ann Latta reported she has received several calls from parents asking for the date of the city's Halloween observance. On a motion by William O. Goebel, seconded by Bill Callihan, the council approved Tuesday, Oct. 31, from 6 to 8 p.m. as the date. As in past years, no one over the age of 12 is allowed to wear a mask on trick-or-treat stops that evening.

Latta also explained that the Community Development Block Grant application, for funding of improvements to the Front Street historic district, has been resubmitted to the state. However, she said the paving of a parking lot on the Salisbury lot was omitted on advice from state officials.

Council members agreed to postpone until next meeting consideration of a request by Community United Methodist Church to resurface Neeley Street, along with the church parking lot. Concern over the slope of the street when resurfaced was raised by Callihan.

Mike Meade, superintendent of public works, said he has looked at the area and has found "no problem if they contour (the road). In fact, it will improve the looks of the area." The council decided to consider the matter after members have looked at the area.

Callihan questioned why advertisements for downtown merchants have not been placed on area garbage cans, as he said the city had previously promised. City administrator Fred James said there was evidence the stenciled ads do not hold up well and that the stencils are now being tested before being used widely.

James raised concern over areas at the entrance to West Prestonsburg and Cliff where litter has been a problem. He suggested the city put up a "partial barricade" of picnic tables and garbage cans.

Danny Hamilton informed other members of the council that the city will have to request permission from the US Army Corps of Engineers to put up lights on the West Prestonsburg bridge as previously planned.

James reported on a meeting last week in Paintsville of the Big Sandy Resource Conservation and Development Area (RCD) during which local projects were included in a 1990 "plan of work." Included, he said, were several projects at Archer Park.

Health Care Professionals Gather To Discuss Conditions In Region

Health care professionals from 53 counties in central and eastern Kentucky will meet in Prestonsburg on Thursday, Sept. 28 to discuss the condition of health care in Eastern Kentucky.

The meeting will take place from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Holiday Inn in Prestonsburg. Sponsored by the National Association of Counties and hosted by Jefferson County Judge/Executive Harvey I. Sloane M.D., over 60 people will discuss the financing and delivery of health care services in the region.

Sloane chairs the Advisory Committee of the County Health Policy Center sponsored by the National Association of Counties. The center is beginning a national study into the role of county governments in health care service delivery.

"In a time when the federal government is shifting more and more responsibility for the care of our citizens to local governments, we must find appropriate solutions to the difficult and costly issues we face. Making sure each person in our community has access to quality medical care is a responsibility I have grappled with as County Judge. It's time we devoted adequate financial resources to develop a health care system that is responsive to the needs of every individual," Sloane said.

At the day-long meeting, state and county officials will give overviews of health care programs at the local level. Dr. Vaughn Eskew will present information about primary care programs in County Health Departments and Deanna Severance from the Frontier Nursing Service will talk about health care services in rural counties in Eastern Kentucky.

Dr. Robert Johnson, president of Appalachian Regional Healthcare, will give the keynote address at lunch.

City Commission Hears Complaints

Wheelwright City Commission members heard numerous complaints at their Thursday meeting from citizens anticipating higher water bills.

While they have not yet received bills from metered usage, city clerk Mary Ann Johnson said city residents were concerned about bills received by Burton residents who get water from Wheelwright Utilities and whose new water lines are metered. Johnson said leakage in the newly installed system has apparently led to higher rates and that once leaks have been repaired the bills should reflect more accurate residential usage.

In regular business, the commission heard the second reading of the annual tax ordinance and the first reading of a flood damage prevention measure, required by state agencies.

The next regular meeting of the commission will be Thursday, Oct. 19, at 7 p.m. at the city hall.

Husband Apparently Shoots Wife, Self

PIKEVILLE — A Hellier couple died Monday, the victims of an apparent murder-suicide, according to Kentucky State Police. The body of Joyce Stafford, 46, was found early Monday morning in her car on KY 195 near Regina by KSP officers responding to a traffic fatality call. She had been shot several times by an unknown caliber handgun and was pronounced dead at the scene by Pike County Coroner Charles Morris, said KSP spokesman Chomer Prater. Police are unsure if she was shot before or after the automobile accident.

Later in the day, KSP officers went to the home of her estranged husband, a prime suspect in the murder, according to Prater. They found Raymond Stafford, 47, dead of a gunshot wound, apparently a suicide. Prater said an autopsy report was incomplete and the length of time the husband had been dead was unknown. Officers investigating the incidents included Prater, Kenneth Slone, Tom Underwood and Donny Phipps.

Escapes Back In Jail

INEZ — By last weekend all four escapees from the Martin County jail were back in custody, apparently under additional charges relating to their escape Sept. 18. Charles Kennedy Johnson, Ronnie D. Meek, Danny Keith Crews and Thomas Joseph Grubb were all nabbed while still in the area, Kentucky State Police officials say.

County Has Money For Claimants

PIKEVILLE — Some folks who formerly owned land claimed for urban renewal in Pikeville in the late 1970s may be entitled to settlement money. Pikeville Urban Renewal and Community Development Agency and Pike County Clerk Betty Prater Justice are looking for people who owned in the former Happy Hollow section, now Hames Court, and what was once called the Narrows.

Subjects of the identification attempt are Paul Elkins, James A. Kelly, James Justice, Teaman Bentley, Oral Bentley and Horace Gray. The money resulted from condemnation actions and, if not claimed, will revert to the state. Anyone with information on the location of any of these persons should contact Lawrence R. Webster, attorney for the Urban Renewal Agency. (Appalachian News-Express)

Source Of Rash Determined

MOREHEAD — Tars and pitches apparently stirred up when an asphalt roof was replaced has been identified as the cause of a mysterious skin rash which forced the closing of Clearfield Elementary School last week. About 10 students had been affected, in varying degrees, by acute dermatitis which caused concern to many parents. School officials Friday had the building vacuumed and plastic sheets installed near the ceiling. (The Morehead News)

Taking Position Early

Bob Hackworth, left, became Constable of District #2 earlier than planned, following the resignation of former constable Roger D. Conley. Hackworth was sworn in by Floyd County Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo on Monday, Sept. 25. In his resignation, dated Sept. 20, Conley said, "Since I have been laid off from my job with National Mines, I find it necessary to relocate to another state to find work." He thanked Stumbo and Fiscal Court for the opportunity to serve.

City Council

development of a Lancer park, development of industrial sites, and a recycling program. He said that $200,000 is "potentially" available and the "city has to try to influence RC&D with letters and calls."

In other business, Dr. Gary Brown was appointed to the Youth Advisory Board, and council members agreed, on a motion by Callihan, seconded by Charles Hale, to proclaim Oct. 9-14 as Fire Prevention Week.

Council members also were given an update on the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce's Economic Development Committee by chairperson Anne Chaney. "Prestonsburg has a vested interest in development in the county as a whole," Chaney told the council, as she reported on the committee's Saturday meeting in McDowell. "We are not going to grab a Toyota by the tail and we have to help the industries we have to expand and diversify."

She added that the county has "a desperate need for an economic development director. We don't have anybody to go out and do the legwork that economic development needs."

Absent from the meeting were Adrian Blackburn, Paul Joseph and Jim Yates. The next regular council meeting is Oct. 9 at 7 p.m. at the municipal building.

Company Sponsors Truck Repair Course

Representatives of Loadmaster, a maker of garbage trucks, will present a seminar on how to repair vehicles Friday at the shop of the Floyd County Solid Waste landfill on KY 122, near Martin, according to board member Robert McAninch.

Garbage truck workers in Floyd, Johnson, Pike and Knott counties are expected to attend the one-day seminar, set for 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Health Care

He will talk about the need for a national health care policy, and the need for cooperative planning and program development at the local level.

The Project Team of Bruce Spitz from the County Health Policy Center located at Brandeis University in Boston and Mary Uyeda from the National Association of Counties is visiting Kentucky for three days, Sept. 27-29. The first day of their visit will be spent in Louisville reviewing urban health care systems. Two days will be spent visiting clinics and health departments throughout central and eastern Kentucky to study model programs in practice throughout the region.

On Thursday, Sept. 28, at 4:30 p.m. the Project Team will visit Highlands Regional Medical Center in Prestonsburg. On Friday the team will visit three other facilities in Salyersville, Ashland and Morehead. Sloane indicated that the Project Team would use the information gathered to formulate a process of evaluating programs throughout the United States.

Parents

Jacobs said that at the school board meeting he specifically asked for an assistant principal to help BLHS principal Adrian Bentley and that until such time when funded becomes available for this position that the board continue to send someone to the high school. "So far, they've kept that promise and I must believe that they are working on that problem. We will still monitor the situation, though," he said.

Jacobs added that he received a "total shock" when their board member, Tommy Boyd, requested "the parents stop patrolling the hallways at the school," stating that he was afraid of a lawsuit. "So far I have respected his wishes, but I don't know why or what prompted his statement," Jacobs said.

Jacobs added that he believed the parents made some positive changes with their presence in the school and said that, in his opinion, "if they (the staff) can take the time to look into the individual problem (of the children) instead of handing out arbitrary suspensions, things will settle down over there." He said 90 percent of the problems at Betsy Layne High School was caused by about 25 kids.

"These children are crying out very loud for help. When you have a persistent problem like that it is a signal that something is wrong," he said. "These children may make the best coal miners, carpenters, auto mechanics in the world, but they are a lost ball in high weeds when it comes to studying MacBeth, Hamlet and algebra." He suggested that students be dealt with individually and be placed in programs where they can be more successful.

Parents attending likewise expressed concerns, citing lack of drug and alcohol education at the school, the need for paint and repairs in the bathrooms and the leaks in the hallways and entrance way, lack of space and alleged reckless driving in the school parking lot and the need for the students to be informed of the proper code of conduct for the school.

Jacobs said members of the newly-formed PTO could address those concerns during regular organization meetings.

Members decided to start a membership drive, asking $5 for a year membership in the PTO.

Before the meeting closed, four members of the Floyd County Education Forum who were present were introduced — Delores Smith, Jean Rosenberg, Marie Conns and Lloyd Hamilton.

"We are working to improve the quality of education in Floyd County, but we can't blame five people for the problem here because it's all of our faults — we sat around and didn't do anything," said Smith. "I am very proud and encouraged by what I've seen here tonight, and we (the Forum) offer any help we can give."

UMWA Representative Speaks In Prestonsburg

by Tess Whitmer,
Staff Writer

Speaking at the Caucus Club on Thursday, Sept. 21, was UMWA District 30 representative Charles Dixon. Dixon was invited by Prestonsburg Community College Professor Tom Matijasic to speak on UMWA's involvement with the Pittston coal strike and how it affects Eastern Kentucky.

Dixon reminded the audience that last year, the UMWA contributed over $10 million to Floyd County in the form of pensions and benefits; Pike County received over $60 million. He said all union mines are affected if Pittston wins and is "able to pull out of the union." He explained that every union mining company contributes to the union pension plan and the UMWA would have "to fill the hole" to support Pittston employees should Pittston no longer contribute to their miners' retirement fund. This includes Eastern Coal Company, which has about 225 employees, according to Dixon.

"The average life of a coal mine is seven to 10 years and companies change names all the time. That's why the union needs to control the pension," Dixon explained.

The UMWA will be celebrating its 100th anniversary next year. But, during its 100 year existence, the organization has seen better times that included higher enrollment and more funds, Dixon said.

"People need to wake up and realize that the union is for the miner — we are the ones who lobby for the protective legislation and the addition of job security and benefits," Dixon noted. "But before any more organizing can take place in Eastern Kentucky, it will take more suffering."

"It's hard to get people to join the union when mine owners threaten to shut down the mine. Mine owners have the luxury of owning several mines and can easily carry out on their threats, shutting a mine down until they can reopen another somewhere else, and still not lose much money," Dixon charged.

"But the union does have power; it can stop mine operations. We are striving to show our peaceful power and still be effective," he said.

Dixon said the UMWA is fighting against "strong odds," saying judges trying the cases come from coal-owning families. He also charged that Pittston's security force intentionally antagonizes UMWA members.

Dixon said that the current labor dispute began when Pittston Chief Executive Officer Paul Douglas took over in 1984.

"The sad part is that the people that are calling all the shots for Pittston own less than 1 percent of the company," Dixon noted. "The real owners are the stock holders and they are the ones who will be punished if this company gets destroyed."

"Douglas and his people have a golden parachute. Even if the company folds, their contract allows them to still receive hundreds of thousands of dollars for the next four years," he said.

Dixon's associate, Rich Kulick, an international auditor for UMWA, said the union is not out to "break companies," but to make sure they "play fair."

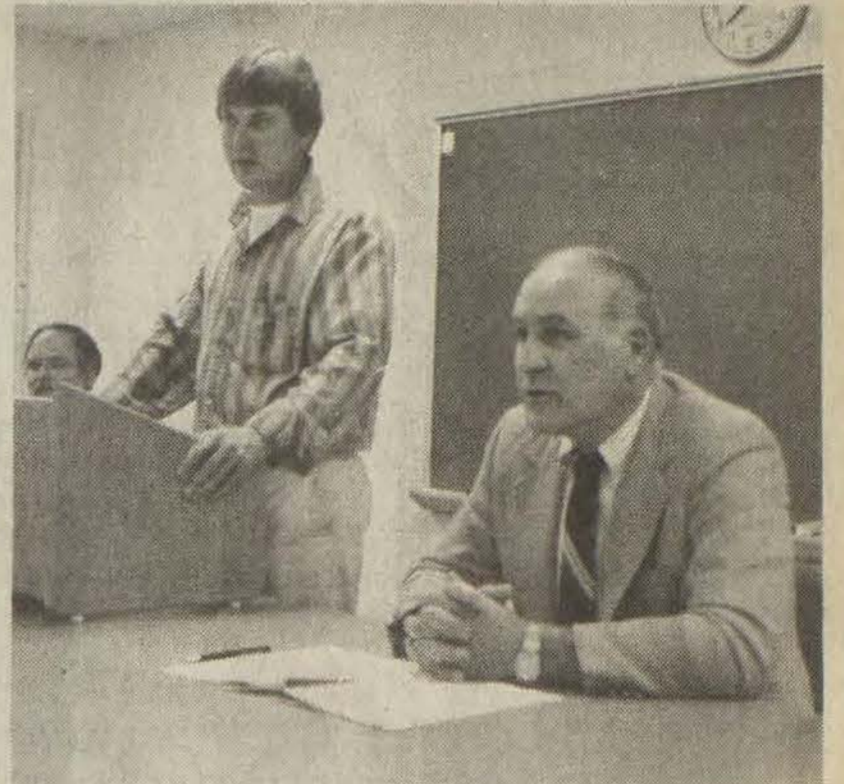

"We will do everything we can to help out companies, but we are not just going to stand by and see our workers taken advantage of."

Kulick read a quote from the Pittston Company explaining that Pittston is "in good financial condition, and (is) pleading neither poverty nor an inability to pay any union demand. To set the record straight once and for all, the books would not disclose a financial justification for concessions." This was in answer to the UMWA's request that Pittston open its books so the union could see why Pittston needed to make cut-backs, Kulick explained.

Dixon and Kulick went into further detail about the situation between Pittston and UMWA and added their thoughts about the future of the union. Several audience members asked questions of the two.

Floyd Group Planning 1992 Bicentennial Bash

The Floyd County Bicentennial Committee is beginning county wide plans for the local celebration of the Commonwealth of Kentucky's 200th anniversary in 1992.

Headed by James O. VanHoose of the Bank Josephine, the committee at its Monday meeting discussed several possible projects for the county's participation in the statewide commemoration of Kentucky's entrance into the union in 1792.

Ways are being explored for the historic May House in Prestonsburg to be renovated and turned into a tourist attraction and storehouse of historic memorabilia. Members of the committee are working with the May heirs and are seeking funding for the effort. The house, said to have been constructed with bricks made on the site, is reportedly the oldest house in Prestonsburg. Committee members have suggested the house as an office for the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce and a meeting place for local civic organizations.

To involve youth, the committee plans to ask teachers at the county high schools to lead students in oral history projects about the history of the county. Directors of senior citizens centers are also being asked to tape recollections of their clientele. Church histories are also being solicited from members of the area ministerial association.

The committee is lending support to Billie Osborne in her effort to establish a country music center at Betsy Layne.

Other ideas suggested include the relocation of an old one-room school building to the campus of Prestonsburg Community College, the publishing of brochures about the county's history and the sponsoring of a Floyd County Homecoming.

The committee has set regular monthly meetings for the last Monday in each month at 4:30 p.m. at First United Methodist Church in Prestonsburg. County residents interested in joining the committee may attend the next meeting, set for Oct. 30.

Mental Health Director In Area

Dixie Kimberlin, executive director of the Kentucky Mental Health Association, will be in the area today and tomorrow (Sept. 27 and 28) to organize local mental health associations in the Big Sandy Region.

Kimberlin will be in the central office of Mountain Comprehensive Care Center, Prestonsburg, on Thursday, Sept. 28, at 10:30 a.m., in the third floor conference room. The meeting is open to the public.

Parents To Meet

A meeting of parents of handicapped children is set for Thursday at 11 a.m. at the Parent Resource Center on the third floor of Mountain Comprehensive Care Center in Prestonsburg.

On the agenda is a discussion of plans for a fundraising road block.

Trooper Fired Upon, Men Charged

Three Floyd County men are out of jail on bond following their alleged involvement in an incident early Friday when a Kentucky State Police officer was shot at while he was parked along US 23 at Ivel.

Marvin Johnson, 32, of Blue River was charged with alcohol intoxication and attempted murder of a police officer. Carl Whitaker, 39, of Prestonsburg was charged with complicity and driving under the influence of alcohol, and Donald Newsome, 37, of Prestonsburg was also charged with complicity.

According to KSP records, Trooper Terry Thompson's unmarked vehicle was parked on the northbound shoulder of US 23 after he had stopped another motorist on a traffic violation at about 12:18 a.m. Shots, reportedly from a car traveling south, were fired on Thompson as he sat in his vehicle.

Thompson said he pursued the vehicle from which the shots came for about two miles, arresting the three men at Stanville. He said he found a firearm and two shell casings in the vehicle, which was driven by Whitaker.

According to Courthouse records, Johnson was released Friday on $50,000 bond, Whitaker on Monday on $32,000 bond, and Newsome on Friday on $25,000 bond.

SPORTS WITHOUT EDUCATION

Sen. Bill Bradley and the other sponsors of federal legislation aimed at protecting college athletes from exploitation probably didn't need more documentation about the pitifully low graduation rates of basketball and football players at certain universities. But the other day, they got it anyway, in the form of a General Accounting Office study that found that of 97 universities with big time sports programs in football and basketball, 35 had graduation rates among their basketball players of 20 percent or less.

That's an appalling number. Only four of those schools had graduation rates that slow for their students as a whole. The record was somewhat better in football — 14 of 103 had graduation rates of 20 percent or less — but hardly something to cheer about.

Bradley and his co-sponsors, all of whom were athletic stars in college, want to make certain that colleges inform prospective athletic recruits about the kind of commitment they make to the academic progress of their athletes. Their bill, the Student-Athlete Right to Know Act, would require institutions to tell prospects what the colleges' graduation rate is by sport, race and gender.

In addition, the colleges also would have to report in which fields those degrees had been earned, along with comparable data on other students. A lot of college athletes dream about going on to pro sports, but very few make it. The colleges owe them something more than four years in a gym.

The bill has been endorsed by high school principals and college admissions counselors, but is opposed by the National Collegiate Athletic Association, which argues that this kind of data ought to be provided voluntarily, and shouldn't be the subject of federal legislation. But so far, such data hasn't been provided voluntarily. Were it not for pressure from the public and Congress, it would never be. The colleges provide every last athletic statistic about their players. But until they start showing similar interest in their academic performance — or at least until they are sufficiently embarrassed to do something about it — the pressure will have to continue.

Movin' Right Along

By Anne Chaney

About the time lawyers and public outcry over everything down to eating peanuts in church on Sunday has got us legislated up to our larynx, along comes the Department of Transportation and enforces the law.

Not quite voluntarily, of course, but they were here — just ask any trucker trying to sneak one of those coalfield critters through Prestonsburg Monday.

Say it ain't so. Why we can't have overweight trucks running our roads is beyond me. We've got an industry to protect, folks. Just because the weight limit is already pretty high, and then went and got itself extended in some parts, doesn't mean we have to run the fellers off.

I've heard complaints about the damage to roads — shoot, we already live in hills and valleys. Why not drive in them, too?

Let 'em rip as loaded as they can get, especially on our new-and-improved US 23. If we can just get the ruts deep enough and keep it raining, we can make the four lane off the Combs Bridge a tourist attraction no one will want to miss: a high-speed water slide/dodge the signs/shoot the gorge combo. Greg Crum could start a "Maniac's Monday" and offer free lottery tickets to anyone who could successfully complete the course, hit the hole in front of his station and do a quick flip to the far side of the gas pumps.

Speaking of enforcing the law, how 'bout those litterbugs? Seems like one or two have ended up in court lately, wishing they had their greenbacks back and garbage bags out.

That's good news for the rest of us. It's time some folks understood that tax dollars — unlike diapers after a heavy rain — do not grow on trees.

The purpose of life, says the inimitable Robert Byrne, is a life of purpose. Hear, hear.

If you're looking for something to do with your spare time, try one of the following:

- Join one of the county's numerous civic or service clubs (Rotary, Kiwanis, Jaycees, the Woman's Clubs, Homemakers, Scouting, hospital auxiliaries, etc.)

- Get involved with the parent-teacher organization at your child's school.

- Work with the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce.

- Teach someone to read.

- Volunteer to work a crisis line.

- Help coach an academic or sports team.

- Take the time to actually sit down and write your public officials and tell them what you think (nicely, please).

Fee Fine For One Flash Fan

Dear Editor,
In response to the Martin Reunion — enough cannot be said about what a wonderful time was had by all due to the dedication of Delores Dingus, Glenda Frye, Rodney Hutchin, Freda Calhoun and all involved.

I graduated 39 years ago and saw people I hadn't seen since then. I have received letters from Alanson, Mich., Toledo, Ohio, etc. thanking me for introducing them to people they had forgotten. As one who probably knows more around there than Coach Halbert, because I have been there on the streets, clubs, ball games, etc., for 55 years and kept in touch with anyone I could, I resent the fact that someone resented the $10 fee.

People my age don't resent it; I wish it could happen every year. How many more years have a lot of us got left that we can hug necks and go over our memories? To the committee: You are champions. To the small group who has petty grievances, political, etc.: Shame on you.

Keep up the good work; some of us may not be able to come in two years. It was the most wonderful experience of my life.

Be Cautious About Diets

Dear Editor,
Members of the Kentucky Dietetic Association are concerned about a new type of weight control diet which is for sale in our community. It is a liquid protein product at a store or from a neighbor, and it lacks some of the important features found in medically supervised liquid diet programs such as the one Oprah Winfrey successfully used.

All liquid protein diets create major adjustments in bodily processes. The medically supervised programs, such as the one Oprah chose, keep constant watch on these changes. Tests and measurements are done including screening for normal heart activity, electrolytes (salt and potassium which affects water balance), anemia, and the cholesterol and triglyceride (fat) levels of the blood.

Using a liquid diet, even on the best program, can create problems such as hair loss, heart problems, gall bladder problems, constipation, light-headedness and psychological stress. People who are at risk for these problems should be under the close observation of a physician. A history is taken in a supervised program, and persons who have had blood clots, strokes, ulcers and certain heart problems are rejected. The program is also not open to the pregnant or nursing mothers or diabetics requiring insulin.

Liquid protein diets that are not medically supervised give the same printed directions for everybody. Obviously, the same amount of liquid diet formula would not be needed for a 170 pound cashier as a 315 pound coal miner. Programs need to be individualized.

Most important of all, the unmonitored liquid diets do not change a lifetime of poor eating habits; they do not reeducate with the food facts about how one tasty hamburger can be 300 calories less than another one, for instance. They don't have the important psychological group support program that helps keep you committed to your diet.

Registered dietitians have a professional interest in the health of the community, especially in healthy eating habits and dependable advice about nutrition. We hope this information will help some of you who are wondering whether to use this kind of weight loss diet, and if so, which kind of liquid diet program to choose.

When Will Teachers Receive Other Pay?

Dear Editor,
During August, many teachers were required to attend a Middle School workshop at the Holiday Inn in Prestonsburg. We were informed, by letter, we were required to attend and would be paid $200 for five days of participation.

At the close of the five-day workshop, Gary Frazier (assistant superintendent for instruction, Floyd County schools) assured us he personally had obtained a grant to pay all expenses of the workshop. No money was to come from the local board.

Mr. Frazier went to great lengths to let us know he wrote the proposal and had received a $50,000 grant to underwrite the entire cost of the workshop.

Today, Sept. 19, those teachers who gave up five days of their summer vacation, and paid their gas to and from the conference, who ate and paid for every meal at the Holiday Inn, who some paid as much as $60 for a babysitter for the time, have still not been paid!

If Mr. Frazier got the money, where is it? If he has it, why haven't we been paid? If they are waiting for the grant money, why can't they pay the teachers from general funds and reimburse themselves when the grant money appears?

Teaching is a business, and until we begin running it like one our system will not improve. No one wants to work and wait two months to be paid. Neither do teachers.

This is business; pay us what is due and pay us now!

Due to fear of reprisal, we ask that our names be withheld.

Barbs & Bouquets

The human race is a tough group of folks to figure out. Here we are, the creatures that have built the computers, put man on the moon and made possible all the comforts our kind would ever want.

We can solve just almost any type of problem, build any kind of structure and create artificial light which can match the intensity of the sun.

But there's one thing the human race has not been able to control, master or even conquer. That's the simple thing of getting along. For example, in Kentucky, we've been outraged at the shooting in Louisville, the hostage taking of a school class by one of the school's students. Every week someone is killing somebody. Why?

Some folks will claim it's the times, or television, movies, the lack of religion in the home and even the availability of gun. I can't buy these or other reasons why people kill each other. Television and the movies haven't been around that long, and people have been killing each other since time began.

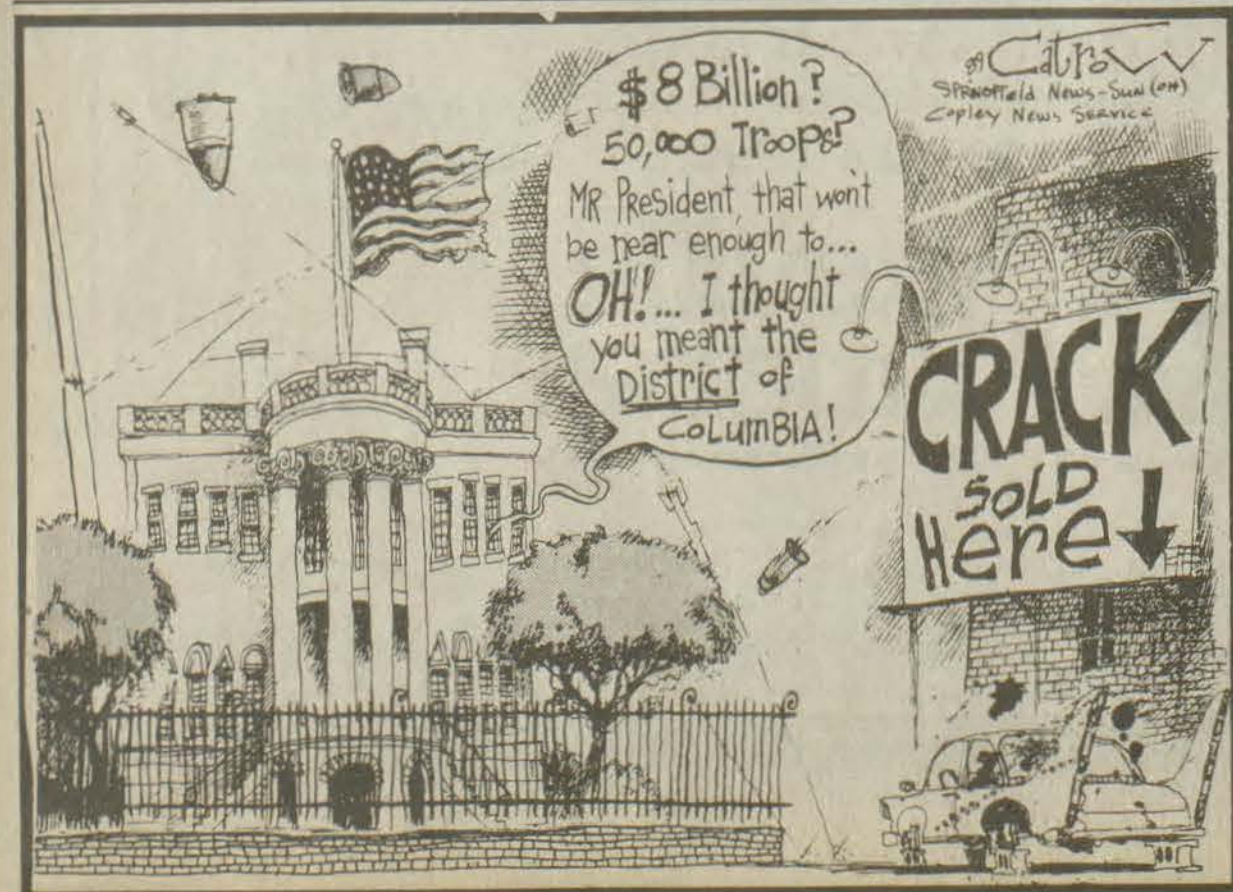

Times haven't changed that much when it comes down to bumping off your neighbor or, better still, a member of the family.

I'm just wondering with all the wonderful things we are capable of doing, why is there something inside us that lets our kind kill for no reason whatsoever.

It's something that's really got me puzzled.

Someone once said that when you're angry you should count to 10 before speaking. When you're very angry, you should count to 100.

Murphy, Wayland Mayor, Won't Seek Reelection

by Frank Clark, Correspondent

After two and a half terms in office, Patricia Murphy believes it is time for a change.

Murphy, mayor of Wayland for the last 10 years, announced at a Sept. 5 town board meeting that she would not run for reelection in November.

A life-long resident of Wayland and a graduate of Morehead State University, Murphy, 49, has combined her public service with a career as an educator teaching history and social studies for 26 years.

Initially, Murphy was motivated to enter city government by a belief in smoking and washouts, and knowing that it could have been improved — that's the biggest disappointment I've had as mayor."

Murphy calls her working relationship with town board members "harmonious."

"I've never had any real trouble among the council members. We're all focused on the same effort — to do anything we can to make the community better."

In her decision not to file for reelection in November, Murphy noted several factors came into play.

"I'm on the Floyd County Education Association's Board of Directors, and I'm involved with Big Sandy Area Development District and the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce. I've found myself doing too many things and not having time with my family. When you try to do too many things, you don't do anything well. Two other people are going to run for mayor, and they'll carry on what needs to be done."

Drawing from her 10 years of experience, Murphy noted some of the issues facing the next mayor of Wayland.

"You've got to deal with day-to-day problems with limited funding. We don't have a lot to work with.

Howe, we have to talk about cutting the responsibility of individual citizens to take part in community governance.

"I got tired of sitting around griping about what was being done or not being done in Wayland," said Murphy. "I decided it was time to get in and do something about it myself."

Murphy recognized before taking office that basic issues such as police protection and street repair would take much of her time. However, she did place one key issue on her public agenda.

"foremost in my mind was that I wanted to get federal grant money to clean up what was left by the Elkhorn Coal Company," said Murphy. "We have major problems with fumes from mine fires and drainage systems blocked by mine debris washouts that cause flooding."

In response to the problem, Murphy, the town board and concerned citizens took action.

"We applied for any funds available and agencies have sent people down here to look at the problem," explains the mayor. "We tromped through mud and took pictures and worked to get those cleanup funds. But then, when we thought we had the funds three different times, there always came something to block it."

"To come so close so many times, and to still have the burning and back on some of our activities. Hopefully a way can be found to keep our policeman and keep our lights on and maintain the streets and get the cleanup done on a major level. That's what the next mayor is going to have to worry about."

Murphy plans to remain active in the community once she leaves of-ice. Her primary interests are directed towards improving local schools and stimulating economic development in the area.

"The children that I teach don't usually stay in Floyd County," said Murphy. "The majority of them have to go somewhere else to earn a living, and they're out enriching other communities. If we don't develop economically, they're never going to be able to stay."

In a final reflection, Murphy added, "It's been time-consuming to serve, but I felt that, as a citizen, you owe something to your community, and I haven't regretted it. Hopefully I can still contribute in the future."

The Hon. Patricia Murphy

Auto Accidents, Good Samaritan Act Top List For Departments

Auto accidents prevailed in Prestonsburg last week, with the city police department covering five separate incidents involving eight cars; in a separate case, a fugitive from Illinois was arrested.

In addition, the Prestonsburg Fire Department assisted with two accidents and responded to a choking incident.

On Saturday, Sgt. Tommy Hereford of the fire department responded to a call from the Western Sizzlin' in Prestonsburg. Apparently Keith Sparkman of Pippa Passes had been dining there when he started choking. Another dinner, identity unknown, performed the Heimlich maneuver on Sparkman, "possibly saving his life," according to Hereford. Sparkman was still having trouble breathing since his airway was partially blocked, according to Hereford, so P&B Ambulance Service administered oxygen and transported him to HRMC.

In a separate case, Edward L. Warren was arrested by Captain Darrell J. Conley and charged with operating on suspended license, no insurance, disorderly conduct and failure to transfer a motor vehicle. A check through the National Crime Information Center (NCIC) showed that Warren was wanted for theft in Illinois, according to Conley. This is the second person in less than a week's time that has been arrested in Prestonsburg by Conley who has felony charges against them and is wanted in another state.

"Warren is not a resident of Kentucky and was doing odd jobs around here," Conley said. "He had in his possession obscene matter that was put on some cars driven by females," Conley explained. "If there is any person that received this matter on their car and wants to charge this person, they can do so by contacting the police department."

Two accidents were reported on Friday, Sept. 22. In one, two 16-year-old Prestonsburg males were traveling east on KY 1428, according to Sgt. Mike Omerod, when they went off the shoulder at Ball Alley curve. The vehicle rode against the guardrail for 73 feet, then traveled 133 feet along and across the street into an embankment.

The vehicle bounced off the embankment, traveled 27 feet and hit the embankment again. The auto finally came to a rest 47 feet from that point and was in the westbound lane.

The driver was sitting in the back of a pick-up truck and blacked out at about the time the fire department arrived, according to Maj. Mike Wells. He was given first aid for a broken arm and bleeding and was transported by P&B Ambulance Service to Highlands Regional Medical Center.

At last report from the hospital, he was scheduled for release on Thursday. The other youth was complaining of back and neck pains, Wells said, and he was also taken to HRMC.

The other accident Friday involved Jesse Johnson Jr., 19, of Fredville, and Carl Baldrige, 60, of Paintsville. Officer R. Roberts reported that Johnson was traveling north on E. Scott Street and failed to stop at the stop sign on Putton Street, which Baldrige was crossing, heading west. Johnson was cited for no proof of insurance and disregarding a stop sign.

Another intersection incident occurred on Saturday night when Oretta Horge, 47, of Garrett, was unable to stop his vehicle due to slick road conditions and ran into the back of Donald Martin, 34, of Hueysville.

On Saturday Lenny Goble, 35, of Prestonsburg, was traveling along KY 1428 when, according to police report, he saw headlights in his lane and swerved to miss them. Jeffrey Collins, a passenger, stated that they were struck by another vehicle.

Sgt. Jeff Stumbo said the roadway was wet and slippery but there was no indication of another vehicle striking Goble's. Goble, who possibly had a broken left shoulder, according to Firefighter Michael Moore, was charged with DUI, no license in possession and no insurance. Moore said Collins had a possible concussion. Both were transported by P&B Ambulance Service to HRMC and were treated and released, according to Stumbo.

A traveling childhood you could say that we had Four girls of different ages moving around with their dad.
We moved for a few years before we settled down from Florida to Virginia before we hit Kentucky ground.
Mom and Dad were reared here in these hills they called home
But my dad, he had a second one the sea is where he roamed.
My dad was a unique man a one of a kind
I was very lucky and proud to say he was mine.
I was kind of the four that Daddy worked hard to raise
He did such a great job with his little smiles of praise
I can still hear him laughing in his beautiful but loud voice
I can hear him singing in church at his time of rejoice.
I vividly remember the day my life so painfully changed
The day my precious daddy would feel no more pain.
Watching him lie there before my very eyes.
Little did I know this would be his last sigh.
I was told to say good-bye on that last September day
But Good-bye seemed so final those words I could not say.
I cried, "See you later Daddy - I love you with all my heart."
"I'll spend eternity with you after we spend this short time apart"
Happy Birthday Daddy
I miss you!
Your lonely daughter, Monette Rene Holbrook

City's Own 'Golden Arches' Make Register

(Sixth in a series)
By Pam Shingler
Assistant Editor

Prestonsburg's nearly-twin bridges are part of a bygone era when public thoroughways were often built as much for beauty as for function. Both the West Prestonsburg and Town Branch bridges were recently added to the National Register of Historic Places.

In recommendations for the listing, the Kentucky Heritage Council evaluator describes both bridges as possessing "a grace that surpasses many other examples of the style. Since many rainbow arch bridges are characterized by a squat, sturdy appearance, the delicacy of the... overall appearance and the slenderness of (their) vertical members is noteworthy. The soaring height of the arches and the sharp radius of their curve are dramatic in impact."

The Town Branch bridge is believed to be the only bridge of its type still used as a roadway in Kentucky. The report does note, however, that the bridge "suffers from deferred maintenance," with chipping concrete, crumbling railings and exposed reinforcing rods.

The West Prestonsburg bridge, on the other hand, has not been used for auto traffic since the 1970s when it was closed because of deterioration. The city has plans to refurbish the bridge for pedestrian traffic.

A third bridge of the same type and same era once existed in the Harold area.

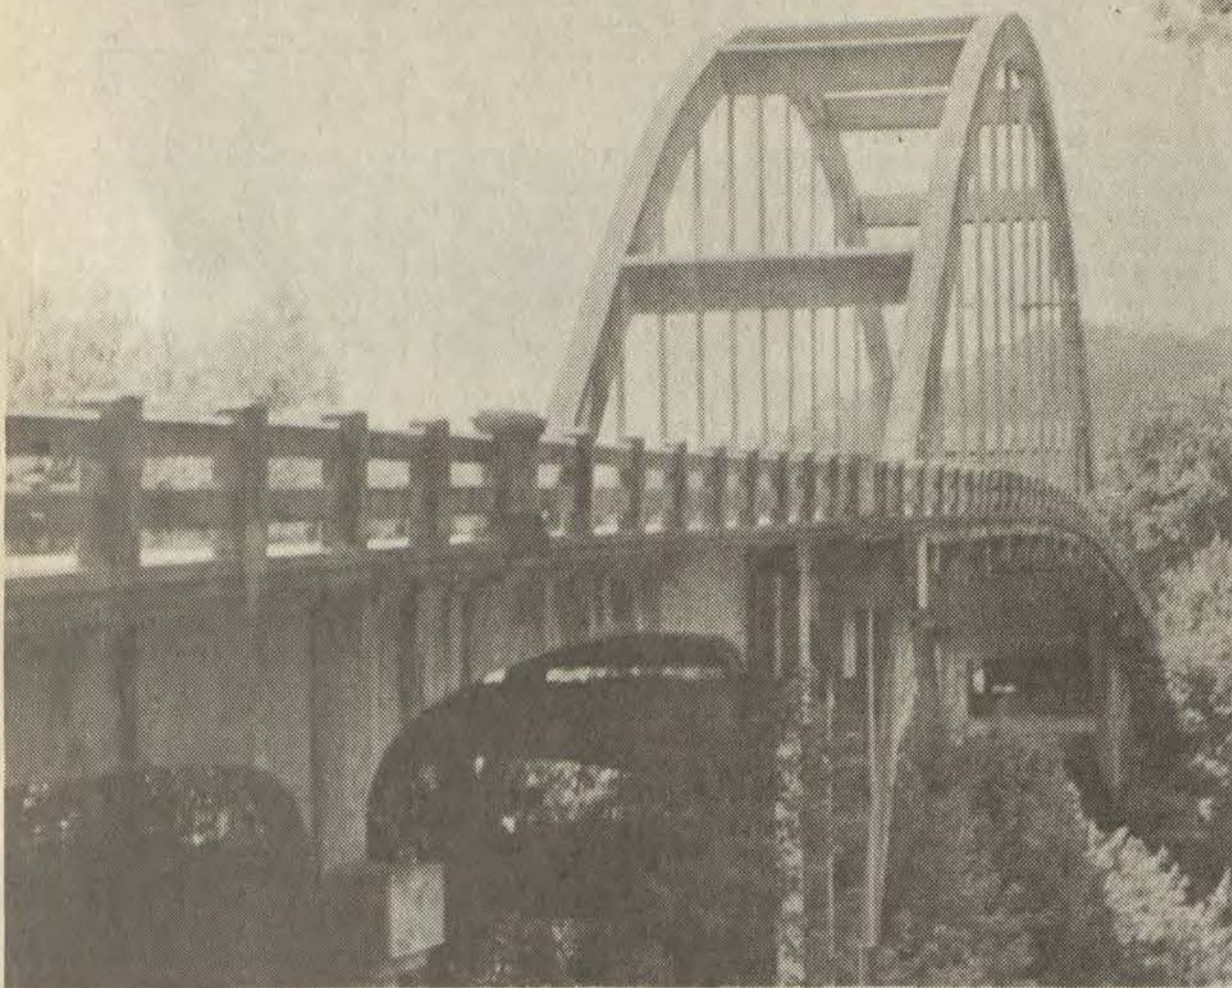

Builder of the bridges was the Steel and Leiby Co. of Knoxville, Tenn. The first to be built was the West Prestonsburg span, completed around 1928. The report states that the bridge was probably commissioned by Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad to permit easier access to its passenger and freight depot on the west bank of the Levisa Fork of the Big Sandy River. The bridge ceased its function in the 1960s when new US 23 was completed.

The Town Branch bridge, constructed around 1932, is surrounded by a bit of notoriety. According to the report, the bridge merited mention in "Ripley's Believe It Or Not" in the 1930s because it originally led nowhere. "As it was being built, its approach was anchored into a hill on the south bank of the river. When the bridge was completed, the road was then built leading up to it," the report says.

The design for the bridges is known as "fixed arch" and was patented in 1912. The concrete arches, unusual in themselves, flow below deck level and are anchored to the abutments. The design calls for steel lattice work as the core of the arch ribs and encasing of the elements in concrete.

Before the construction of these bridges and the similar one at Harold, all bridges in the area were "primitive wire suspension spans," the Kentucky Heritage Council report relates.

P'burg Water, Sewer Rates Are Lower

The message to folks who complain about high water and sewer rates in areas served by Prestonsburg Utilities is clear: It could be worse. They could live in Pikeville or Paintsville.

An independent survey of 86 cities, including the three Big Sandy cities, indicates that Prestonsburg residential rates are lower than the state average and lower or comparable to those of neighboring municipalities, according to local utilities director Bill Harvey Howard.

The survey indicates that while Prestonsburg users pay $10.45 for 5,000 gallons of water, residents of Paintsville pay $11.05 and Pikevillians are charged $17.25. For minimum usage, both Paintsville and Prestonsburg assess a monthly fee of $4.60 for 2,000 gallons, and Pikeville charges $6.90 for 1,000 gallons.

For small commercial (15,000 gallons) and small industry (25,000 gallons), Prestonsburg's rates are lower than the other two cities and only slightly higher than the state average. Small commercial users in Prestonsburg pay $29.95, while those in Paintsville pay $30.85 and Pikeville, $51. In Prestonsburg, small industry users can expect bills of $49.45 monthly, with Paintsville assessing at a rate of $49.85 and Pikeville $84.25.

State averages for small commercial operations are $28.57 and for small industries, $44.51.

Prestonsburg sewer rates are dramatically lower than those of its sister cities, the survey shows. The average residential sewer rate locally is about $7.32 a month, while Pikeville charges $14.65, almost twice as much, and Paintsville, $22.60, more than three times as much.

Taken together, the total average monthly bill for water and sewer for Prestonsburg Utilities residential customers comes to about $17.77, based on 5,000-gallon usage. Similar usage in Pikeville costs $31.90 and in Paintsville, $33.65.

QUESTION: I have been smoking for about 10 years and have tried several times to quit on my own. This time I've decided to try a stop smoking program. What types of programs are available? How do I go about choosing one?

ANSWER: There are many types of programs to choose from but the two most popular ones are behavior modification and hypnosis. No single program works for everyone, so it is important to make sure that the program you choose meets your individual needs.

Behavior modification programs are usually group sessions which examine smoking behavior, and provide strategies for quitting, relaxation techniques for reducing tension, and support. Participants are taught to reduce compulsive needs to smoke and to substitute other behaviors for smoking.

Hypnosis can be done privately or in a group. It consists of deep relaxation or a mild trance to minimize the stress of quitting. The goal is to enhance the smoker's confidence in his or her ability to quit. Some progress provide a cassette tape of relaxation exercises as a follow-up to the formal sessions.

There are several factors to consider when selecting a program. These include:

Cost: Programs range from a few dollars to several hundred dollars.

Method: Which method of quitting are you most comfortable with?

Time: Some programs run over several weeks, others are one time sessions.

Success rates: Good success rates average between 35 and 45 percent. The success rates should be based on the percent of all participants not smoking one year after completing the program.

Your success will depend on the strength of your desire to quit and on selecting a program that's right for you. So, investing your time in selecting a program is important. Call several programs, ask for written information about their program and ask them to answer any questions you have about it. Then select the program that best fits your needs.

QUESTION: I recently read about a new test with sputum that can be done at home and is sent to a laboratory for evaluation. My understanding is that this sputum test would be able to pick up abnormal cell changes before they became cancer or to detect cancer in the lung at an early stage when it can be cured. It seems to me that if doctors used this test, they could strongly advise their patients to quit smoking. Can you tell me if the sputum test works?

ANSWER: Sputum cytology has been studied as part of a screening project in groups of heavy smokers. So far, except in a few cases, it has not led to longer survival rates in this group.

At present, a number of studies are looking at the use of sputum cytology in combination with better chest x-rays to try to detect lung cancer at an earlier stage.

For the sputum test, sputum or phlegm from the lungs is coughed up and spit into a container. Then samples are placed on a slide for study under a microscope.

If abnormal cells are found, a fiberoptic bronchoscope (a thin flexible lighted tube) is used to help find abnormal areas in the lungs. This scope has a small tube through which tissue samples can be taken for further study.

With this combination of methods, some lung cancers may be found when they are very small—perhaps before they have spread. More study is needed to see if treating these small cancers will lead to longer survival.

Child Abuse Office Moves, Acquires New Coordinator

The regional office of the Kentucky Council on Child Abuse has both a new face and a new place. Janie Hall, formerly with Mountain Comprehensive Care Center, is the new coordinator of the local operation, which recently relocated from Wayland to Prestonsburg. The new office is on Front Street, in the office suite above Playhouse Restaurant.

Hall replaces Charles Slone, who resigned to take another job. She said the physical move was made to provide a more central access to the council's services. Among the new coordinator's goals is to "pull together" the area's different resources relating to children's welfare in a task force that, she hopes, will better serve the victims of child abuse. "Right now, we're not pulled together enough to know where the gaps and strengths are," she said. Hall added that such a task force existed several years ago, with funding, and was successful, but it was discontinued after a time. It included, she said, representatives of MCC, Big Sandy Area Development District, Christian Appalachian Project, state social service agencies, hospital social workers, local doctors and the local health department.

The council, she said, wants to play a role in bringing the groups back together. "We could help each other to help the families," she said, adding that task force members, many of whom are in high stress jobs, could serve as support for each other.

Hall notes that some cooperation has already occurred since her desk was donated by CAP and the filing cabinet by Big Sandy ADD.

Hall said the council also wants to strengthen the local affiliate of Parents Anonymous, a self-help group for parents who have abused their children or who need help with parenting. "The group here is one of the strongest in the state," she said. "The reason is that Alice Adams (convener of PA) hangs in there. We need to get a functioning board for that group in order to help her."

Hall said she aims to put "a lot more emphasis" on prevention of child abuse. Activities she is planning include training for local ministers, education programs and a system of referrals.

The coordinator's long term goal is to see more scrutiny of child abuse cases. "The public needs to be aware of how these cases are taken care of in this area and to make politicians more accountable," Hall said. She urged citizens to say, "Good job, judge," when a judgment is made on behalf of children.

"I believe so strongly about the revictimization of children," Hall said. "It's bad enough to be abused by someone they trust, but worse yet when they go into a court system and are slighted. The trust factor is violated. A child looks at the judge, lawyer, jury and thinks, 'These people are here to protect me.' Is that what we're doing and if not what are we doing?"

Hall said the problem of child abuse and how it is handled by the courts is prevalent not just in Eastern Kentucky, but across the state.

"I know that people on the street would be mortified, outraged and saddened by the way cases are sometimes handled," she said. "We have to look at what we can all do to make the life of the child a little less traumatic. Some things we can do are simple: the way we talk to children, the element of compassion and belief in them, letting them know what to expect, things that adults often take for granted."

The KCA office is open five days a week from 9 a.m.-2 p.m. The phone number of the local office is 886-1260, and the KCA Helpline is 1-800-432-9251.

National Child Health Day Monday

National Child Health Day is Monday, Oct. 2, with the theme "First Steps to the Future — Prenatal Care for All."

This theme was chosen because of its significance in reducing infant mortality and in improving the health of mothers and babies, according to Jane Bond, health educator.

"Early entry into prenatal care is quite important in improving the health of mothers and babies, yet almost one quarter of the pregnant women do not enter care early in their pregnancies," Bond said. "As soon as a woman knows she is pregnant, she should begin prenatal care."

The Floyd County Health Department is aware of the need for early prenatal care for all pregnant women as the first steps to healthy children, Bond added. "The Health Department offers a comprehensive prenatal program for pregnant women who qualify by income, and who do not have insurance or a Kentucky Medical Assistance Card," Bond explained.

This program is staffed by local physicians, and the women may choose their physician," she said. "The women receive prenatal visits with the physician, nursing counseling, necessary tests and delivery and hospitalization through this program."

Bobcats Continue To Roll, Defeat Leslie County

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Scheduled for Friday and postponed to Saturday, the Betsy Layne Bobcats took on visiting Leslie County in a top Division 2 game at the Lloyd Hamilton Athletic Complex in Betsy Layne.

"We didn't have a lot of fans out because of the rescheduling," Betsy Layne football mentor Gerald

Newsome said, "but our kids came out to play football and the fans that did show up was treated to some good football."

The Bobcats vaulted into a three-way tie for second place in the Division 2 race by defeating Leslie County 24-14 and evening their record at 1-1 and 2-3 overall.

Newsome's squad has been on a roll since the Magoffin County game.

Some bright spots showed up in the Bobcats' 20-12 loss to Johnson Central; a win over Sheldon Clark, and now a big win over Leslie County, have increased the Bobcats' confidence.

After a scoreless first quarter, Leslie County got a touchdown with 4:53 remaining in the second to take a 6-0 lead. Betsy Layne got the ball on the 50 yard line and managed to get to Leslie County's 45. Senior halfback Larry Hall took the ball on fourth and five for the first down. Hall then, on third and three, got another first down for the Bobcats.

Chad Mitchell took a Craig Hunter pass for a 25-yard gain to Leslie County's 19. Betsy Layne moved to the 1, where Leslie County dug into the trenches and held the Cats to end the first half.

Early in the third quarter, Betsy Layne recovered a Leslie County fumble on the visitor's 43 yard line. Two Leslie County penalties moved the ball down to the LC's 17. The Bobcats picked up 11 yards on the next play for a first down, making it first and goal. Hall took the ball into the end zone for a TD and Hunter ran the two point conversion to give Betsy Layne an 8-6 lead.

After Leslie County was forced to punt from inside their own 5 yard line, the Bobcats took over on the visitors' 35. BLHS pushed the ball down to the 1 yard line, where Chris Bias took it across the goal line for a touchdown. Hall ran the conversion for a 16-6 lead.

On a pass play from their own 40, Leslie County scored on a 70-yard toss for a 16-12 game. The Bobcats added the final score with a 43-yard romp by Bias. Bias also ran the conversion play.

"Even when we were down 6-0, I felt we were still in control of the game," Newsome stated. "Our backs were moving the ball real well and our offense and defense did a great job. David Raczkick, Kevin Parsons, Gary Shortridge, Pat Spradlin and Jackie Jarrell did an outstanding job for us."

"Larry Hall and Chris Bias had tremendous games for us and although they did not carry the ball much, Blaine Depoy and Chad Hunter made some good blocks for Hall and Bias.

"I just can't say enough good things about our lines," Newsome continues. "Our stamina was better than Leslie County's. We wore Leslie County down to a frazzle."

Hall carried the ball 12 times in the game for 105 yards rushing. Bias rushed for 140 yards on 16 carries. Chad Mitchell had two receptions for 26 and 12 yards. Jarrell had one reception for 12 yards.

"We just didn't throw the ball much," the Bobcat coach said. "We were getting good blocking and we let our backfield run it."

Newsome cited the defensive play

Allen Central Rebels Defeat Berea In Six Overtimes, 12-6

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Allen Central Coach Donnie Daniels' chargers traveled to Berea for a regular season game Friday under wet, rainy skies. Commencing on schedule, the game certainly didn't end that way — the two teams battled in the mud three hours and 36 minutes during four regulation quarters and six overtimes before the Rebels wrestled the win from Berea, 12-6.

It wasn't until the third overtime that Berea cleared the scoreboard of the double zeros for both teams, scoring a touchdown to take a 6-0 lead.

"We had chance after chance to win the game in regulation play," Daniels stated. "We should have had 40 points in the game, but we would get close to scoring and turn the ball over."

The multiple overtimes in a single contest may have tied a state record, according to Bob White of the Courier-Journal sports department.

"I can't remember there ever being seven overtimes," he said. "We've had six before. The same night that Allen Central and Berea were playing six overtimes, Christian County lost to Marshall High School out of Tennessee 6-0 in five overtimes."

The Kentucky High School Athletic Association does not keep overtime records.

After four scoreless regulation periods and two close-but-no-cigar overtimes, Berea took the ball on the 10 and began eying end zone territory. On a pass play, Rebel defender

Hall's Three TDs Not Enough As Trojans Fall To Cards, 38-26

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

It's becoming old stuff. Football games and rain. The last two Friday nights have been wet ones and things were not any different Monday evening when the Sheldon Clark Cardinals and Wheelwright Trojans met to make up a game that was postponed from Friday night for one reason — rain.

The rains began an hour and a half before game time and continued throughout the game, causing the field to become wet and muddy.

The Cardinals took advantage of Trojan turnovers and capitalized on them to defeat a game-hearted Trojan squad, 38-26. Cardinal quarterback Chris Goss rushed for 133 yards on just seven carries, one being an 80-yard kick off return for a touchdown, to lead the Cardinals to victory.

Wheelwright took an 8-0 lead in the first period on a touchdown, that took eight plays to march 62 yards, by Chad Hall and a two-point conversion by Bobby Hood.

Goss then put the Cardinals on the board with a 6-yard run to make the score 8-6 Wheelwright.

In the second period, the Trojans' outstanding halfback, Hall, scampered 16-yards for a TD, and the extra point attempt failed as the Trojans

Danville Slips, Slides & Runs Past P'burg Blackcats, 67-13

by Ed Taylor,
Sports Editor

For the second straight Friday night, high school football experienced monsoons as the rains came and played havoc with the gridiron teams; some of local area teams were forced to postpone their games.

One game that didn't get canceled was the Danville-Prestonsburg contest. Danville, the top team in the single A class, and ranked fourth in the state overall, had an easy time with the Blackcats as they rolled to a 67-13 win.

The mud was no problem for the Generals, as they ran through the Blackcat defense at will. Danville scored two touchdowns in the first quarter on a 2-yard run by Joel Gray. The two point conversion by Ron Rodmier failed as Danville went up 6-0.

Danville made it 13-0 with :35 left in the first period when PHS quarterback Aaron Tucker's pass was intercepted on the Prestonsburg 31 yard line and run in for the TD. The field goal was good and the Generals were up 13-0 at the end of the period.

The host school wasted no time in the second stanza in placing eight more points on the board. After Prestonsburg was forced to punt, the ball went out of bounds on the Blackcat 42, giving Danville excellent field position. On first play from scrimmage, Joe Ganns ran 42 yards for the touchdown. The conversion was good to put the Generals on top, 21-0.

On the Blackcats' next possession, Tucker's pitchback to Allen James was mishandled and Danville recovered the turnover. On fourth and 12, Ganns carried the ball 33 yards for a touchdown. The field goal was good for a 28-0 lead.

By the time half time rolled around, Danville had built a commanding 35-0 lead. Things didn't get any better for the Blackcats in the third period. On kick off, Jason Storey's kick was run back by Ganns for an 85-yard touchdown.

Prestonsburg lit up the scoreboard in the third period. With 2:33 remaining, Allen James took over at the quarterback spot and moved the ball 59 yards on 10 plays for a touchdown, coming off a 2-yard run by Aaron Flannery. Storey's field goal made it 61-7.

After the Generals ran out of downs and were forced to punt the football, the Blackcats took over on their own 44 yard line. On first down, James' pass to Crace was incomplete, but Danville was called for pass interference and assessed 15 yards, giving Prestonsburg a first down. James pick up another first down with a 22-yard run. Facing a third and 13, James hit Jeff Slone with a 23-yard touchdown pass to make it 61-13.

Noel Gray took the ball 68 yards for the final score of 67-13.

Danville carried the ball 29 times for 530 yards rushing. They touchdown had runs of 70, 68, 41, 36 and 78. Joe Ganns carried just three times for 159 yards. He scored three touchdowns on 41-, 33-, and 85-yard runs. Danville did not throw the football much, gaining only 13 yards passing. Danville fumbled the ball twice and recovered both times. The Generals were penalized 100 yards in the game and had no interceptions.

Prestonsburg carried the ball 24 times for 93 yards on the ground, but

Daniels Athletic Complex Gets New Stands, Press Box

By Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

It all started as a swamp area. Then a concerned principal, along with some concerned parents, started filling it in. With the help of the county judge-executive's office, a football field started to take shape. Baseball diamonds were added — complete with dugouts.

Four months ago, Allen Central High School principal Don Daniels began overseeing construction of new bleachers; a new press box has been constructed, with concession stand underneath it.

According to Daniels, all the work and some of the materials have been donated by concerned parents in the area.

"Donnie Horn donated the cement for the concession stand," the Allen Central principal stated. "Money-wise, not counting labor, we have around $5,500 dollars in what we have done here so far. If we had to hire it done, it would have cost us around $20,000."

Most of the labor was donated by Randy Martin, who did the back hoe work in digging trenches to pour a cement foundation for the stands. Carpentry work was furnished by Johnny Chatworthy, Jimbo Bailey, Sid Bailey, Buck Roope, Stan Osborne, Charles Martin, Rick Hancock and Ray Chatworthy, as well as Daniels.

The Floyd County Board of Education paid to have the electrical work finished.

"The school board gave us $2,500," says Daniels. "That paid for the blocks and having them laid. We had other monies come in from the boosters club. The school hasn't had to pay anything. The labor has all been donated."

"Pepsi Cola bought the scoreboard for us," the Rebel coach added. "Pipe to build the goal posts was all donated. If the money comes available we want to put around three inches of top soil on the field and slope it from the middle out, and then have it hydro-seeded.

"It will take around 50 to 60 coal trucks of top soil to do the job," the school's principal explained. "If we can find someone to haul it for us without breaking us up, we could get it done."

Lights are in the future for the Don Daniels Athletic Complex — hopefully for next year's football season.

"The board has says they are going to get us four poles of lights," said Daniels.

The school currently has to play its home football games on Saturday afternoons because of the lack of lights. The field is a hard clay that doesn't make being tackled on any fun — but then, is being tackled on any dirt fun?

New Stands

The Don Daniels Athletic Complex has new stands for the fans to sit on at the school's home football games. The stands were a project of school principal Don Daniels and are the result of voluntary labor on the part of concerned parents.

No Place To Go

Chris Bias of the Betsy Layne Bobcats finds no place to go against the Leslie County defense. The Bobcats are on a roll, having won their last two games — including a 24-14 win over Leslie County.

Eagles Remain Undefeated With 16-0 Win Over Osborne

by Ed Taylor,
Sports Editor

Coach David Mosley's Allen Eagles remain undefeated in four starts this season, most recently as his Eagles soared past the Osborne Eagles 12-0 in a game billed as a top grade school contest.

No one left the Don Daniels Athletic Complex disappointed by the play of either team. Osborne came into the game with a 2-0 record. Size-wise they seemed to have the upper hand, but the speed of the Allen Eagles presented second half problems for the visitors. Both teams played excellent defense in a game that was closer than the score indicates. The Allen Eagles have yet to be scored against this season.

On the first series of downs, it looked as if Allen was going to score early as fullback Joe Howell ran for 55 yards on the first offensive play from scrimmage and into the end zone. The TD was called back because of a personal foul and Allen was penalized 15 yards. On first and 15, Osborne was whistled for face masking, giving the Allen Eagles a first down.

Allen quarterback Cory Reitz, faced with another third and 15, threw the ball and was intercepted by Chad Slone.

In period number two, Allen had moved the football to Osborne's 2 yard line for a first and goal. After Reitz was sacked for a 5-yard loss, on the next down Reitz handed off to Matt Porter, who broke free and, with no one around him, fumbled the ball just as he was about to cross the goal line. Osborne recovered the fumble to save the score.

"I was trying to switch the ball from one arm to the other," explained Porter to his coaches, "when the ball hit the padding on my side" and was knocked loose.

The Allen Eagles finally touched pay dirt early in the third period when Porter ran from 12 yards out for a touchdown. The two point conversion attempt failed and Allen was on top, 6-0.

Late in the fourth period with time running out on Osborne, Porter had to be carried from the field as he suffered an injury to his knee. On the next play, at third and eight, Howell broke tackle and ran 26 yards for the final touchdown as the Allen Eagles over Osborne, 12-0.

Porter carried the ball 15 times for 122 yards, and scored one touchdown. Arnold Adams, Osborne's outstanding running back, carried 13 times for 64 yards. Reitz was sacked seven times by the Osborne defense.

Osborne was penalized 85 yards, while Allen received 25 yards in penalties. Both teams had one interception each. Allen fumbled twice and recovered once. Osborne fumbled one time and recovered their own.

Allen is 4-0 on the season, while Osborne falls to 2-1.

According to Allen Assistant Coach Mike Click, the Eagles "were getting lost in the first half on offense."

"When we had the touchdown called back that kind of got us down," Click stated. "We made some adjustments in the second half that helped us."

Allen head mentor Coach Mosley, described Osborne as the biggest team his squad has played this season.

"We're not playing as well as expected," Mosley said. "We expected to be 4-0 at this time, but I am surprised that we are. I was disappointed in the line blocking in the first half and the defensive ends. We had to move people around in the second half. Osborne's sweeps were killing us."

Strong Backfield Big Plus For Eagles

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Coach Meredith Stone in his first year as football coach for the Osborne Eagles has a talented football team returning this season, especially in the backfield. Stone returns four eighth graders to this year's squad.

Charles Johnson will be at the quarterback position for the Eagles this time around. Johnson also can run the football with better than average speed. He has a strong throwing arm, and for grade school football he is very accurate.

At the halfback position is Arnold Adams, who is a bona fide high school prospect. He has speed and good perspective of the football field. He reminds you of a young Chad Hall of the Wheelwright Trojans. He knows how to read the opposition's defenses, as well, which is a key to being a good running back.

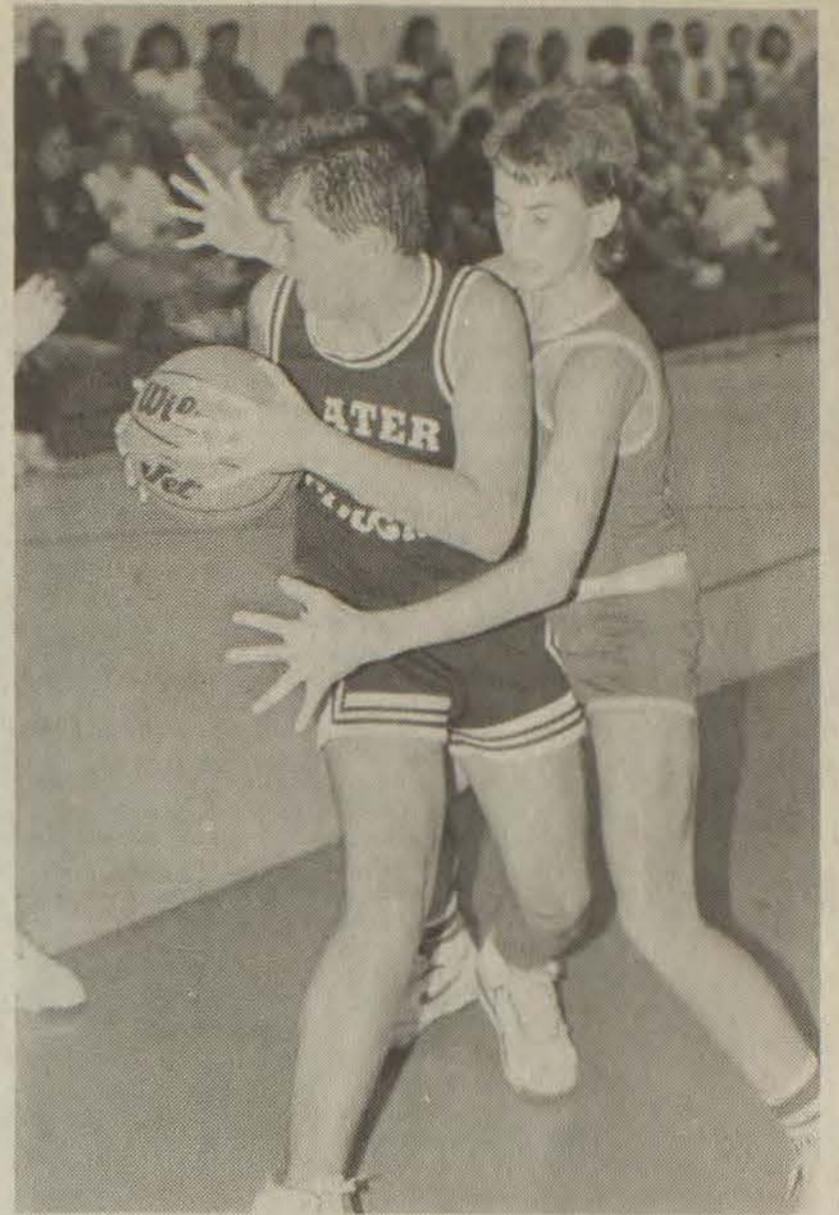

Cruse Caudill and Allan Tackett round out the Eagles' backfield. The Eagles' defensive line is led by Kelly Lackey, Timothy Bryant, Mike Crager and Matthew Johnson. They did not give up a point in their first two games.

According to Coach Stone, with some improvement in tackling and a slight improvement in the passing game, the Eagles could be in for a winning season. The future of Eagles football remains on the bright side with a talented array of fifth and sixth graders on the team. The Eagles are, as of this writing, 2-0 on the year with tough games coming up against Allen and Prestonsburg.

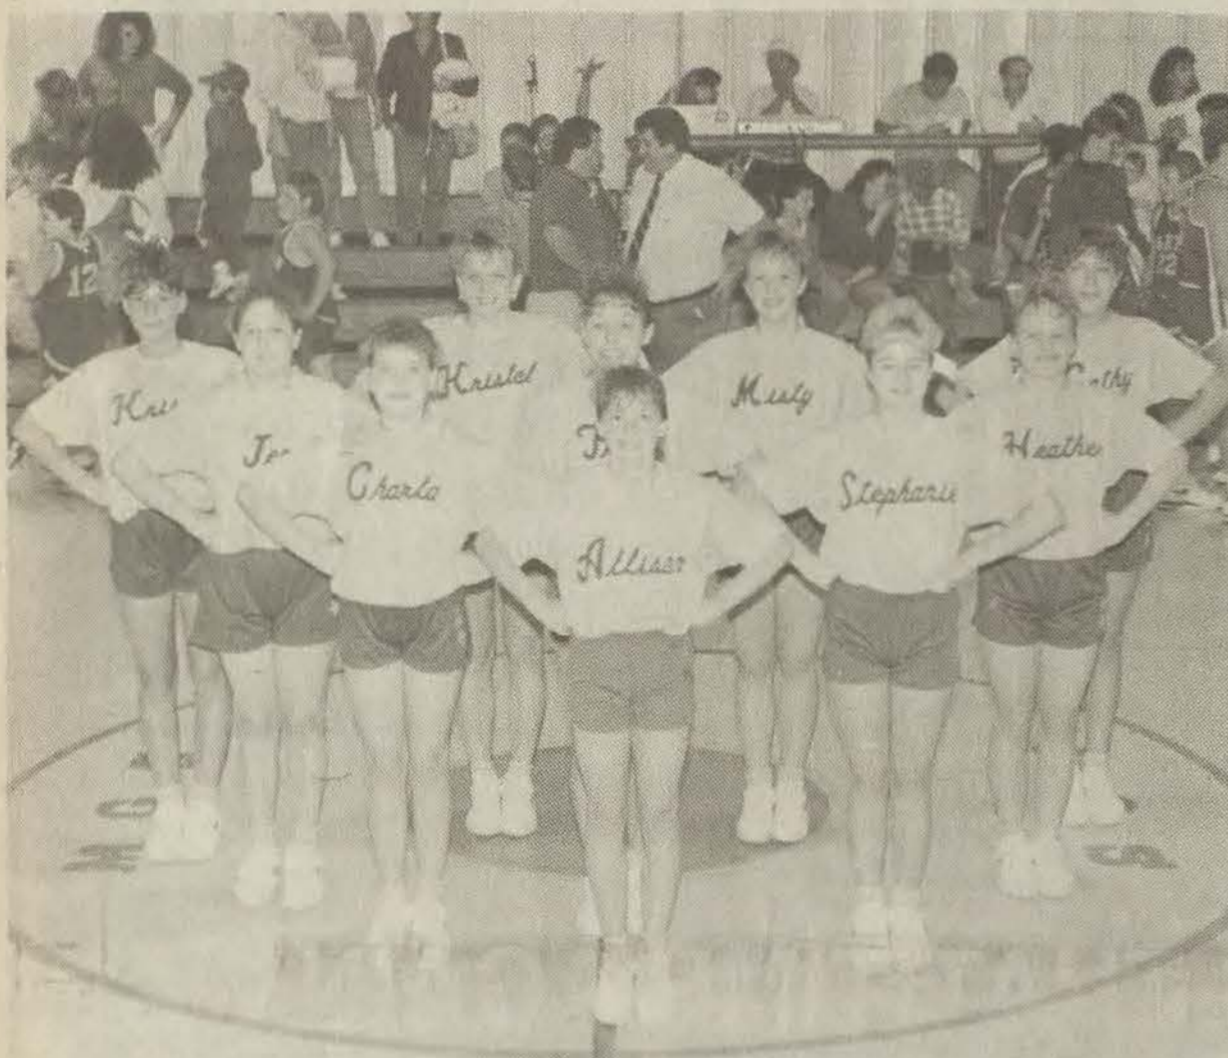

Osborne Eagles

Not necessarily in order, team members are Kelly Lackey, Michael Crager, John Jamie Caudill, John Preston, Matthew Johnson, Willard Johnson, Charles Johnson, Arnold Adams, Timothy Bryant, Ruben Hall, Patrick Tackett, Christopher Johnson, Cruse Caudill, Brian Johnson and Allen Tackett, all eighth graders; Chad Stone, Kenny King and Jarrod Compton, seventh graders; Jason Johnson, Oscar Little, Timothy Newsome, Aaron Hall, Shawn Miller, sixth graders; Daniel Miller, Travis Johnson, Alberto Pineda, Brian Triplett, Kevin Bryant, Mike Faine, Stacy Little, Jason Woods, Scotty Johnson, Heath Hall and Jesse Little, fifth graders.

Looking To Pass

A Prater player is looking to pass the ball against a Clark defender in the Martin Panorama recently. The Cougars won over the Indians in overtime, 27-26. Five grade school teams took part in the Panorama that drew a large crowd.

Martin Boys 'A' Team Cheerleaders

The Martin cheerleaders were on hand Saturday at the Martin Elementary gym to cheer on the boys basketball. Members of the cheerleading team, sponsored by Mickey Dingus, are Tracy Dingus, Heather Barnette, Jennifer Wade, Allison Hall, Kristel Floyd, Charla Bartrum, Misty Jenkins, Stephaine Samons, Krissy Barnette and Kathy Turiss.

Stumbo Beats Allen Central Grade, 22-2

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

John M. Stumbo captured his first football win of the season with a 22-2 win over the newly-formed Allen Central Grade football team Wednesday evening at Allen Central.

On the first offensive play for the Mustangs, David Clevenger, playing his first game, ran 80 yards for a touchdown. The two point conversion made it 8-0, Stumbo.

With the Stumbo deep in their own territory, Mustang quarterback Lonzo McGill was tackled in the end zone for a safety to make the score 8-2.

In the second quarter of play, Jeremy Rogers broke tackle and ran the ball into the end zone from 35 yards to up the score to 14-2. The conversion attempt failed.

McGill hit Rogers with a 40-yard touchdown pass in the third period for a Mustang touchdown to put Stumbo up 22-2 after the conversion.

Stumbo is 1-1 on the season. Allen Central is 0-4.

picked up 123 yards by the air. PHS passed the ball 22 times and completed nine. Tucker was two for six and James connected on seven of 22. Prestonsburg was penalized 25 yards and fumbled the ball five times, with Danville recovering three. Prestonsburg was intercepted one time. Prestonsburg's record evens out at 3-3. However, the Blackcats are still perfect at 2-0 and in first place in the all-important Division 2 race. The Blackcats will entertain the Panther killers, Belfry, this Friday night at home at 8 p.m.

Auxier Slips By Garrett, 52-47; Garrett Girls Win

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Auxier Hornets entertained the Garret Blackdevils at the Auxier gym Wednesday night in grade school basketball play.

Jason Burke tossed in 26 points in leading the Hornets to their first win of the '89 season, 52-47, over Danny O'Quinn's Blackdevils.

"I have a lot of respect for the Auxier basketball program," O'Quinn stated. "They have come a long way in the last three years."

At the end of the first period, the Hornets held a one point lead at 14-13. Garrett picked up the tempo in the second quarter and outscored the Hornets 9-4 to take a 22-18 halftime lead.

Comstock Takes Helm At Pikeville College

Pikeville College recently named its new head men's basketball coach after taking several applications for the job. He is Mark Comstock, 35, a native of North Adams, Mich. Comstock replaces Greg White, who resigned in July to take the position of assistant basketball coach at Marshall University, where he was a standout player for the Thundering Herd.

Comstock was selected from more than 30 applicants for the job.

Pikeville Still On Top

The Pikeville Panthers remain number one in Class A football, according to the ratings released through the AP High School Football Poll. The Panthers, 4-0 as of the poll, collected 16 first place votes. Trigg County, 4-0, collected the other four for second place. The Panthers spoiled their 33-straight win record when they fell to Belfry last weekend.

Volleyball Team On Roll

The Morehead State University Lady Eagles Volleyball Team took a six-match winning streak into a Tuesday (Sept. 19) night home match against Xavier. The Lady Eagles lost their first two games of the season to Kentucky and Louisville before running off the six consecutive wins.

Should Colleges Pay Athletes?

A survey of college fans, conducted by Media General Associated Press, earlier this year produced some thought provoking results. Fifty-four percent of those polled agree that sports are overemphasized, academics are neglected and improper payments are common.

Seventy-six percent of the respondents believe colleges should not be allowed to pay money to student athletes.

More than 55 percent in the survey believe schools and booster clubs make payments under the table.

Louisville Lady Cardinals To Play At Convention Center

The Louisville Lady Cardinals basketball team's new head coach Bud Childers has announced the new 1989-90 schedule with some of the games to be played at a new home site—the Commonwealth Convention Center.

"We are very excited about playing at the Convention Center," said Childers. "Of course, Freedom Hall has the wonderful basketball tradition, so it is a great home court also."

The Lady Cards open their regular home season Dec. 6 when the Dayton Flyers visit.

Excitement Keynotes Purple Flash Panorama

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Martin Purple Flash held their first annual boys basketball panorama Saturday afternoon at the Martin Elementary gym with Wayland, Prater, Clark, Harold and the host school taking part.

The gym was packed to capacity and the games were exciting to watch as future high school prospects showcased their talent in the one-day event. Three schools — McDowell, John M. Stumbo and Betsy Layne — had to withdraw from the panorama because of questions about a new rule concerning insurance for the players.

Each game consisted of two 11-minute halves. Game results are:

CLARK V. PRATER

In the first game, the Clark Indians dropped a heartbreaker to the Prater Cougars in overtime, 27-26. With three seconds left in the overtime, Clark held a 26-25 lead. The Indians lost the ball on a turnover under the Cougar basket. The ball was jarred loose from a Clark player into the hands of Mark Ousley who laid the ball in the basket at the buzzer.

Ousley led the Cougars in scoring with 12 points, and Adam Roberts netted six. Dale Crum tossed in eight points to lead the Indians in scoring. Tom Slone scored seven for Clark.

Clark 13 13 (26): Tom Slone, 3 0 1-3 7; Jeremy Osborne, 2 0 0-4; Dale Crum, 3 0 2-5 8; Jeff Johnson, 1 0 2-8 4; Mike Arnett, 0 0 2-4 2; Jason Osborne, 0 0 1-2 1.

Prater 18 9 (27): Adam Roberts, 3 0 0-2 6; Ronnie Hamilton, 1 0 2-4 4; Mark Ousley, 6 0 0-1 12; Tony Howell, 1 0 0-2; Craig Akers, 1 0 1-2 3.

PRATER V. WAYLAND

Prater faced a tough Wayland Wasps team in game two and dropped a 31-27 game. Wayland held a slim two-point lead at the end of the first half, 13-11.

Wayland was led in scoring by Jason Martin with 18 points. Palmer Craft added seven points for the winners.

Martin, who has all the moves to be an outstanding high school basketball player, is the brother of Rady Martin, who was a standout at Allen Central and last year at McDowell, and currently attending Lee's College.

Adam Roberts netted 13 points in leading the Cougars, while Mark Ousley added six.

Prater 11 16 (27): Adam Roberts, 5 0 3-6 13; Ronnie Hamilton, 2 0 0-4; Mark Ousley, 3 0 0-6; Tony Howell, 1 0 0-2; Craig Akers, 0 0 2-2 2; R. Kidd, 1 0 0-2.

Wayland 13 18 (31): Jason Martin, 8 0 2-6 18; Todd Hansford, 2 0 0-2 4; Palmer Craft, 3 0 1-2 7; Donnie Combs, 0 0 2-4.

WAYLAND V. HAROLD

These two teams are an example of what grade school basketball will be like this season — talented and well-coached. Both have size and speed and can shoot the ball. In this one, Wayland came out on top with a close 44-36 win over the Red Devils.

Wayland led at the half, 20-18 and outscored Harold, 22-18, in the second half. Jason Martin hit the nets for a game-high 24 points in leading the Wasps to victory. Donnie Combs canned 10 points in the win.

Harold was led by a trio of players, Chris Potter, Barry Clark and Greg Hunter, with 10 points each.

Wayland 20 24 (44): Jason Martin, 12 0 0-3 24; Todd Hansford, 0 0 0-0 0; Palmer Craft, 4 0 0-3 6; Donnie Combs, 5 0 0-1 10; Eric Hall, 2 0 0-4.

Harold 18 18 (36): Chris Potter, 5 0 0-1 10; Barry Clark, 5 0 0-1 10; Brian Hunter, 3 0 0-6 6; Brian Hunter, 3 0 0-6; Greg Hunter, 5 0 0-2.

MARTIN V. CLARK

Last year's Floyd County Grade School champions, the Martin Purple Flash, rolled past the Clark Indians, 50-36. The Martin team used full court pressure defense and their running game to put the Indians away. Martin at one time had a 22 point lead in the game.

Ronnie Sammons led a Martin's balanced scoring with 10 points. Tony Robinson and Glen Floyd each netted eight points. Kelly Stephens and Brian Gearhart tossed in six points each.

Tom Slone was high man for the Clark Indians with 10 points. Jason Hackworth had eight points for the Indians.

Martin 31 19 (50): Chris Wade, 1 0 0-1 2; Glen Floyd, 4 0 0-8; Kelly Stephens, 3 0 0-6; Brian Gearheart, 3 0 0-3 6; Ronnie Sammons, 5 0 0-1 10; Tony Robinson, 4 0 0-1 8; Shawn Howard, 1 0 0-2; Kevin Stumbo, 2 0 0-1 4; J. Kilburn, 1 0 0-2; Trevor Fitch, 1 0 0-2.

Clark 16 18 (34): Tom Slone, 5 0 0-1 10; Jason Osborne, 3 0 0-6; Jason Mitchell, 2 0 0-4; Tim Lane, 2 0 0-4; Matt Cline, 1 0 0-2.

HAROLD V. MARTIN

In the final game of the panorama, Martin defeated the Harold Red Devils 59-50. Martin led at the half by seven points, 25-18. At the start of the second half, the Purple Flashes pulled out to as much as a 22-point lead. Martin inserted the bench and Harold came back to within the final margin.

Hubert Lykins led the Martin squad with 15 points. Ronnie Sammons added eight, as did Kelly Stephens. Glen Floyd and Shawn Howard had seven and six points respectively.

For Harold, Barry Clark's 22 points led the way. Chris Potter tossed in 14 and Brian Hunter added 12.

Harold 18 32 (50): Chris Potter, 7 0 0-14; Barry Clark, 9 0 4-7 22; Brian Hunter, 4 0 4-8 12; Greg Hunter, 1 0 0-2.

Martin 25 34 (59): Chris Wade, 2 0 0-4 4; Glen Floyd, 2 0 3-3 7; Kelly Stephens, 3 0 2-2 8; Brian Gearheart, 2 0 1-3 5; Ronnie Sammons, 4 0 0-8; Tony Robinson, 0 0 0-2 0; Hubert Lykins, 7 0 1-2 15; K. McKinney, 2 0 0-4 4; Shawn Howard, 3 0 1-4 6; Kevin Stumbo, 0 0 1-2 1.

of freshmen Ashley Lykins and Tony Lykins as keys to the win. Keith Mulkey had a key interception on defense and Nick Arquette was also a defensive standout, said the coach.

Now that the Bobcats are still in the Division 2 race what about upcoming games with Napier, Morgan County, and Whitesburg?

"We're not looking beyond Elkhorn City (Betsy Layne's next opponent) right now. As far as we're concerned Elkhorn City is a strong football team and we will need to play our best to beat them. We'll just take them one at a time. We're going to look at some films on the Cougars and plan our strategy."

Newsome doesn't take all the credit for the turn around of his team.

"I am surrounded by one of the greatest coaching staffs around," Newsome remarked. "Dewey Jamerson, Joey Cecil and Howard Wallace are tremendous coaches. We have a lot of fun together. We get along good. They are a great bunch of coaches."

The Bobcats will entertain the Cougars of Elkhorn City this Friday night at 8 p.m.

Keepers

Twelve to 14,000 years ago, the people that we call Indians first traveled into the United States. Traversing a land bridge exposed by lowered ocean levels, these people of Mongolian descent traveled by foot from what is now Russia into Alaska.

From Alaska, they migrated down into the United States, where they quickly crossed the country from west to east, then down into South America. At that time, the paleo Indians were nomadic bands of hunters and gatherers who followed the migrations of their favorite game (woolly mammoths, giant bison, etc., all of which are now extinct).

As the large game animals became scarce, the Indians became increasingly dependent on agriculture, thus prompting the birth of large, permanent, settled communities.

Fish became a popular staple with the Indians, primarily because they were so abundant and easy to catch. Through the ages, these creative aboriginal Americans developed a multitude of fish gathering techniques, many of which are still in use today.

The first American fishing hooks were crafted by Indians of the South from the toe bones of whitetailed deer. The middle section of these oval bones were removed, leaving a doughnut-shaped ring. Then, the Indians cut out a section so that the bone closely resembled our modern fish hooks. The top of the bone was grooved so that they could be attached to a line. Though most commonly utilized on trot-lines, they were, on occasion, used on a pole/line combo. I have one of these bone hooks which was excavated from a dry cave on the shores of the Ohio River near Maysville. The age of my hook is estimated at about the time of Christ.

Before developing the "J" shaped fishing hook, Indians used a tool known as a "gorge" to catch fish with a line. Basically, a gorge was a piece of bone or stone which resembled an elongated football with sharply pointed ends. The middle was grooved for the attachment of a line. The gorge was slipped longways into a bait of some sort, and the fish was allowed to swallow the bait. Then the angler would give a sharp jerk on the line which turned the gorge sideways, thus lodging in the fish's gut. The gorge was removed when the fish was cleaned and, like all ancient tools, was used again.

Indians also used bone gigs, spears, and harpoons to gather fish, as well as the bow and arrow. Often, a float and line would be attached to the arrow so that when impaled, the fish would eventually tire itself and could then be easily located and retrieved.

Surprisingly, American Indians utilized night fishing techniques. Using large dugout canoes fitted with a fire pit on one end, a team of anglers would journey into the night. A few Indians paddled the canoe, one tended the fire, and two or three would gig the fish attracted to or illuminated by the light.

These native Americans also constructed elaborate V-shaped rock fish traps in Southern rivers, many of which may still be seen today during periods of low water, especially in the Tennessee River system. Coastal Indians constructed traps of cane and reeds which would trap fish at high tides.

One of the most unusual traps was a fresh buffalo skin held in a cylindrical shape with green branches. One end was sewn shut, while the other was fitted with a drawstring closure. The Indian operating the trap would lower it into the water, where the fresh blood from the skin attracted catfish.

Personally, I find the fishing techniques of the American Indians extremely fascinating. Using the most primitive implements imaginable (and no depthfinders!), they were able to gather enough fish to feed their villages each day, while I have trouble catching just a few fish with the most advanced tools available to modern man! Maybe I'll start using sticks and stones and bones.

Good fishing!

Holthouse Wins Football Contest

Maranda Holthouse of Hueysville is the second weekly winner in the Bob Harmon Football forecast contest sponsored by the Floyd County Times. Maranda got nine of 11 games correct. The Wheelwright game with Sheldon Clark was omitted because of the postponement of Friday's game.

Holthouse won $25 for being this week's winner. She is the 6-year-old daughter of Jack and Martha Holthouse, who also were entrants in the contest.

"Maranda picked the teams; I just wrote them down for her," her father Jack explained. Maranda said she was going to buy a dress with her prize.

To The Voters of Magisterial District #3:

When I announced my candidacy for magistrate before the May primary, I told the eighteen Democratic candidates that I had no intention of participating in "mud-slinging" or personal attacks but that the issues would be discussed openly. I believe a campaign can be effective without being offensive.

Issue #1: Why Do We Need a Two-party System and November Elections? In the May primary there were 4,621 votes cast for Magistrate in District #3. My opponent received 963 votes or 20.8%. There were 3,658 votes or 79.2% against her. Is this Democracy? Should the "Minority" rule or should we wait until November and let the "Majority" rule?

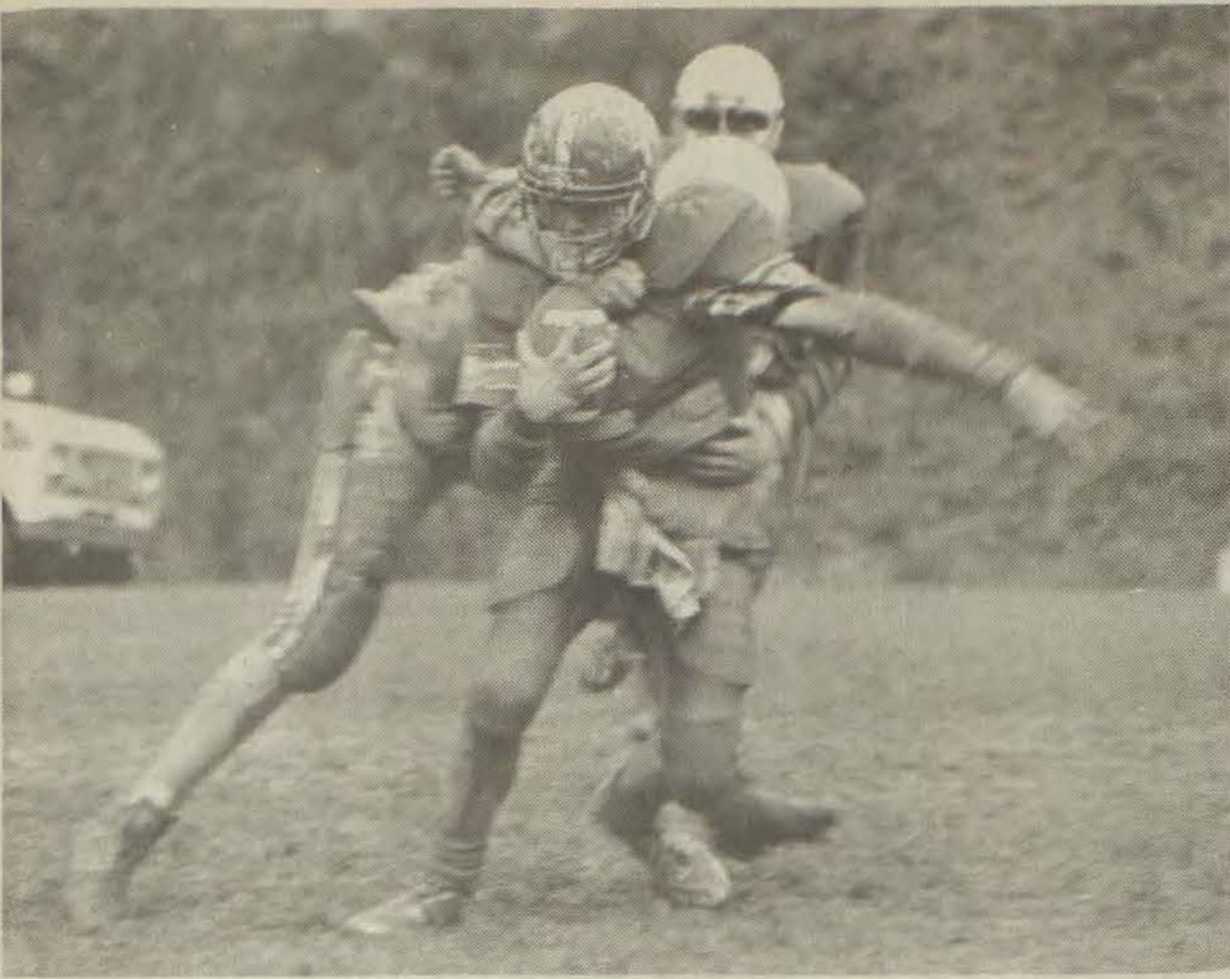

Issue #2: Since it is a felony to do work on private property (such as gravel in private drives, etc.) punishable by up to 5 years in prison and $10,000 fine on EACH COUNT, I assume that whoever is elected will be limited to the duties of Magistrate.

More issues will be discussed in future issues of the Floyd County Times. I offer you CHOICE. I promise you CHANGE!

NATIONAL HUNTING, FISHING DAY SEPT. 23

The 18th anniversary of National Hunting and Fishing Day will be observed Saturday, Sept. 23. President George Bush has called on all Americans to support sportsmen's conservation efforts in "the fight to keep our streams clean and to preserve our fields and forests."

The nation's hunters and fishermen have contributed over $7 billion for conservation programs, and this year alone, another $1 billion will be added — to the tune of $3 million per day.

National Hunting and Fishing Day, traditionally observed the fourth Saturday in September, was established by congress in 1971 to recognize sportsmen's vital role in conservation.

Bassin' With the Pros

Fishing Dixie's Best Bass Lake

If you ask many of the bass tournament pros to list their five favorite lakes, chances are Alabama's Lake Guntersville will be on that list. Many, in fact, rate this 69,000-acre impoundment as the best overall bass lake in America because of the huge numbers of quality fish it produces.

Daily 20-pound stringers are normally required to win tournaments on Guntersville, and trophy-class bass in the 10- to 12-pound range are not uncommon. Best of all Guntersville is not difficult for a visitor to fish.

"Everything is keyed to the milfoil," explains Evinrude Out-boards Pro Staff angler Burma Thomas, who lives on the lake and has been fishing it for 21 years. "The only thing that changes through the year is how you fish the milfoil."

The milfoil is a thick water weed that grows from the bottom and by mid-summer begins matting on the surface. It forms excellent fish habitat and is generally considered the reason Guntersville continues as a top fishing lake. It is not as thick as hydrilla, but it spreads rapidly and today covers several thousand acres in Guntersville.

In late summer and early autumn, Thomas recommends starting a day on Guntersville with a buzz bait or topwater popper, working the edge of the grass along the shoreline. The fish will be in this shallow water as long as there is deeper water nearby. The northern end of the lake from South Sauty Creek to the U.S. Highway 35 bridge is her favorite area this time of year.

"About mid-morning I usually change from a buzz bait to a plastic worm," says Thomas, "and flip the edge of the milfoil. The milfoil will be growing in a long line, and you simply work your way along this edge. "I normally use a seven-inch plastic worm and 20 or 25-pound test line."

Another technique often practiced on the Guntersville milfoil is called "rat fishing," in which a floating plastic frog or rat is retrieved right over the top of the greenery. Bass explode out of the milfoil to hit the lure, even during the heat of midday.

"Rat fishing is certainly some of the most exciting fishing I know," says the well-known Evinrude pro. "It's a good way to catch big fish, too."

Once the sun slips behind the surrounding mountains, says Thomas, it's time to try a buzz bait again. Crank baits can also be worked along the deeper edge of the milfoil; Thomas caught her largest Guntersville bass, 8-pounds, 13-ounces, this way.

Lake Guntersville is the largest lake in Alabama and the northernmost impoundment on the Tennessee River in the state. Motel accommodations, restaurants and launching ramps are readily available, especially in the cities of Guntersville and Scottsboro.

Junior Tommy Gibson rushed for 200 yards in leading the Rebels to a 12-6 victory over Berea in six overtimes. Gibson also scored the tying touchdown. Junior quarterback B.J. Aldrich, on a quarterback sneak, scored the winning touchdown for Allen Central.

Flannery ran for a touchdown for the Prestonsburg team.

Senior Chris Bias ran for two touchdowns, one a 56-yard romp, and scored a two point conversion in leading the Bobcats to their second straight win over Leslie County. Senior Larry Hall scored a touchdown.

WHEELWRIGHT TROJANS

The Trojans' outstanding running back, Chad Hall, scored three touchdowns in Wheelwright's 38-26 setback at the hands of Sheldon Clark. Mike Justice topped off the Trojans' scoring with a 6-yard run for a TD the Cardinals.

Tommy Gibson batted the pass up in the air, but a Berea receiver caught the ball in the end zone anyway for a 6-0 lead.

The ball was spotted on the 10 yard line and the Rebels had four downs to score. Gibson took the ball over for the tying TD on third down play, but the conversion attempt failed and the score remained knotted.

Throughout the fourth and fifth overtimes, Allen Central knocked Berea back on the field, at one point moving them from the 10 to the 45—all in lost yardage. The Rebs fumbled away one scoring opportunity when the mud-slickened ball popped loose on the one yard line.

Allen Central field marshal B.J.

Aldrich scored on a quarterback sneak in the sixth overtime to win the game for Daniels squad, 12-6.

"We put Brian Meadows (6'7", 305) on the left side and lined up behind him for the score," the Rebels coach said, "but we should have never gone into overtime anyway."

The victory was the season's first for the Rebels as they go to 1-5. Gibson carried the football 51 times for a total of 200 yards rushing.

"Tommy carried the ball for all the overtimes," Daniels stated. "He carried the ball about 25 times in the first half alone."

Allen Central will face the Kentucky School for the Deaf Saturday afternoon at the Don Daniels Athletic Field in a 2 p.m. encounter. It will be homecoming for the Rebels.

Insurance Issue Delays Elementary Basketball

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The grade school basketball season barely got underway before the brakes were put on it until questions about insurance are settled.

According to Floyd County Athletic Director Frankie Francis, more insurance is required is being carried on each player. Currently, players are individually covered with a $15,000 policy; with the upsurge in medical costs, the local school board feels that additional insurance is needed.

Because of the concern by the board on the insurance question, games have been postponed and practices have ceased. The board will meet tonight to decide who will pay for the extra insurance.

"There was a mix up in communications with the school principals over the insurance question," Francis stated. "The board will meet to decide who will pay for the extra coverage."

If everything goes all right, games could resume with Thursday's schedule. In the recently held Martin Panorama, three teams, McDowell, John M. Stumbo and Betsy Layne did not take part, although they were scheduled to play.

Trojans

took a 14-6 lead.

Late in the second stanza, Sheldon Clark marched 59 yards for a touchdown by Goss. Mike Cooper ran the conversion to tie the game at 14-14 at half time.

Wheelwright received the kick off from the Cardinals in the opening of the second half. The Trojans took the ball 67 yards on 14 plays for a touchdown by Hall (his third). The extra points were no good, as the Trojans led early in the third period 20-14. Momentum seemed to be going with Wheelwright.

On the kick off, Goss took the ball for an 80-yard return and a touchdown to tie the game again, 20-20.

"The 80-yard touchdown hurt us," Wheelwright mentor Roger Johnson explained. "We had the momentum and, when that happened, it just changed things all around."

Late in the third quarter, Sheldon Clark took the lead for good. After the Cardinals had moved the ball deep into Trojan territory, Cooper fumbled the ball on the Trojans' 11-yard line, only to have Steve Hinkle scoop up the football and take it in for the TD to give Sheldon Clark a 26-20 lead.

With the score 38-20, Wheelwright went 71 yards on 10 plays for the final score by halfback Mike Justice to close out the 38-26 loss.

Wheelwright carried the ball 64 times for 256 yards rushing. Sheldon Clark gained 339 yards on 29 carries.

Wheelwright was penalized 35 yards and the Cardinals were set back 75 yards. Each team fumbled four times in the contest.

Goss carried the ball seven times for 133 yards. Hinkle moved the ball up field on seven carries for 98 yards. Cooper had 95 yards rushing on 13 attempts.

Hood managed 80 yards on 14 carries. Hall rushed for 63 yards on 19 attempts.

Wheelwright will entertain Everts Friday night at Bracket Field at 8 p.m.

Melvin Gets By Clark, 60-56

The Clark Indians entertained Melvin in grade school basketball Monday night at the Clark gym. The Indians fell to the visitors in a close game 60-56.

Clark held a two-point lead going into the final stanza. With the score tied at 56-56 with :46 seconds left on the clock, Nathan Berger sank two free throws to give Melvin a 58-56 lead. Melvin then stole the inbounds pass and scored again to win 60-56.

Berger led all scorers with 23 points. Jeff Tackett netted 12 for the winners. Jeremy Osborne, a fifth grader, tossed in 19 points to lead the Indians in scoring. Jeff Johnson had a good game with 16 points.

Clark is a young team, playing fifth graders, but has shown some steady improvement since opening practice. The Indians had three starters leave the game via the foul route.

KET Receives Record Response To GED Special

Nearly 800 Kentuckians picked up their telephones Monday, Sept. 18, to make a change in their lives. At the urging of country star Waylon Jennings, Kentucky First Lady Martha Wilkinson, and radio personality Ralph Hacker, they took the first step toward earning a GED.

"Ged Call-in '89," the most successful call-in program ever produced by KET, received 798 calls from Kentuckians from Betsy Layne in Floyd County to Clinton in western Kentucky. From 98 counties, people who didn't have the opportunity to finish high school took Waylon Jennings' advice: "It's a shame you don't have your high school degree — but it'll be a bigger shame if you don't do anything about it."

According to a program spokeswoman, 11 persons from Floyd County called KET.

Jennings, whose country hits include "Good Hearted Woman," "Amanda," and "You Put the Soul in the Song," said he "felt a little twinge of shame" when he admitted at his benefit concert he'd never finished high school. But he encouraged all the "hairy-legged good ole boys" who listen to his music to "turn loose of that macho image" and do something to better themselves by getting a GED.

GED ON TV is aired three times a year. The fall session begins Oct. 10, with classes at 9 a.m. Classes are repeated at 6 p.m. each Tuesday and Thursday and again at 4 and 4:30 p.m. on Saturdays. The winter/spring session begins Feb. 22, 1990 and the spring/summer 1990 session begins April 5. Broadcast times are the same.

For more information, call the KET student center at 1-800-KET-4-GED (1-800-538-4433).

MSU Record-Setting Enrollment Includes Several Floyd Students

With a record-setting fall enrollment of 7,917 students, Morehead State University's student body has increased by 39 percent since fall 1985.

"We've shattered all past records," MSU President C. Nelson Grote said in announcing the enrollment figures. "Morehead State has experienced continuous growth since fall 1985 when the enrollment was 5,695.

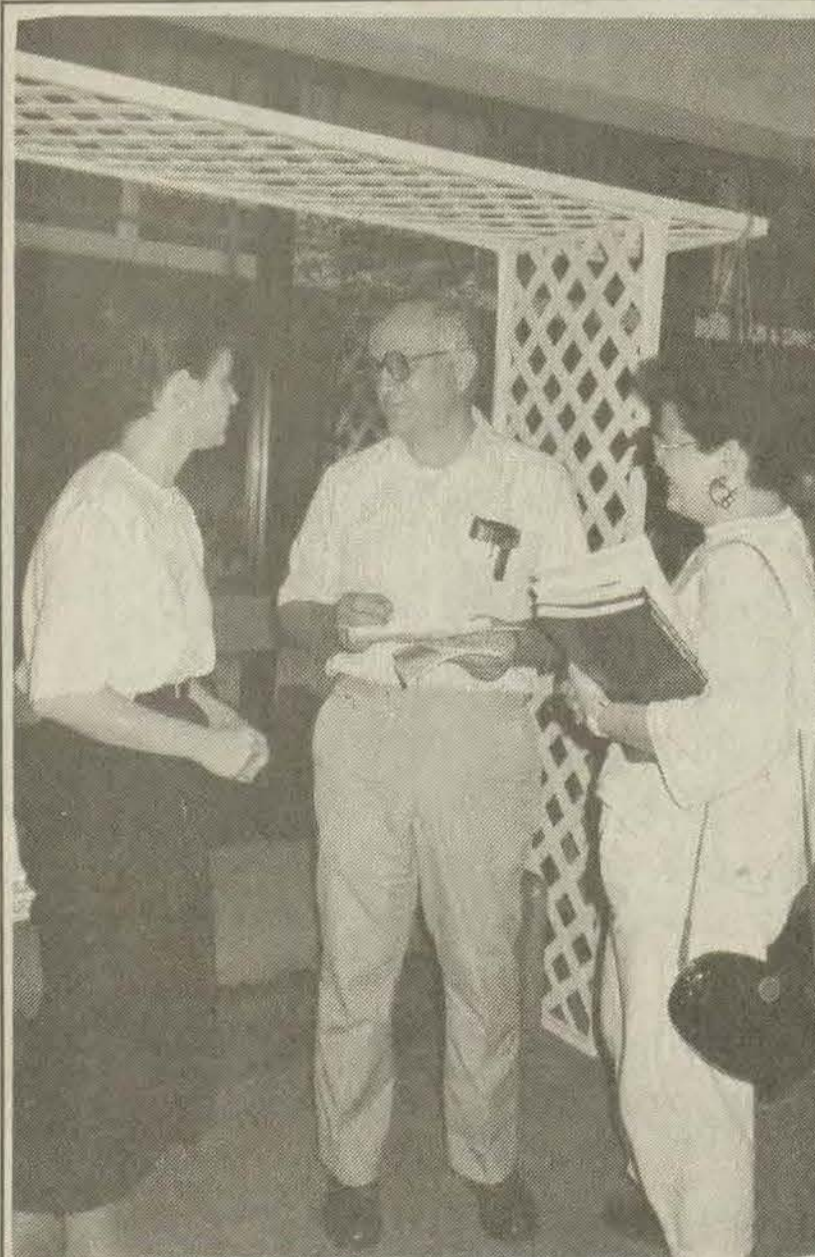

"Even more significant is the dramatic 9.5 percent increase in full-time student this semester as compared with last fall," he said. "And last year's full-time student enrollment set a new school record at that time," Dr. Grote added.

Lafferty Named To CC Dean's List

Martie Lafferty of Prestonsburg has been named to the winter/spring dean's list at Centre College.

Lafferty, daughter of Jerry and Anita Lafferty, is a 1988 graduate of Prestonsburg High School. A Centre sophomore, she has been named to the dean's list before.

Center issues two dean's lists each academic year, one based on grades during the fall term and the other based on grades during the winter and spring terms combined. A grade point average of 3.6 or better is required to be named to the dean's list.

Preview Night

Representatives of the University of Kentucky recently held a preview night for prospective students and their parents in Prestonsburg at the Holiday Inn. Quite a few students attended and visited several of the booths providing information about the university. Above, Regina Wink of UK admissions speaks with Kelly Bentley and James Bentley. At right, students and parents are shown listening to various speakers during presentations about the school.

Coleman: An Historian's View Of Kentucky

by Trisha A. Morris
PCC Librarian

From the time the Indians first called this region "Kentucky" to the present, the mix of humanity that has walked its varied landscapes has lived the stories and legends that historians immortalize. One of the most noted and prolific of these immortalizers was J. Winston Coleman Jr.

Trained as a mechanical engineer from the University of Kentucky in 1920, legend has it that Coleman read his father's leather-bound copy of Lewis Collins' Historical Sketches of Kentucky (1847) and his "fate was sealed." Before his death, "The Squire" was famous for having amassed the largest private collection of Kentuckiana in existence. His collection of over 3,500 books, pamphlets and Kentucky regalia were donated to Transylvania University.

Known as a historian, Coleman's writings can be organized into four categories: Literary histories (Slavery Times in Kentucky, Masonry in the Bluegrass, etc.); reference works (A Bibliography of Kentucky History, Kentucky Rarities, etc.); photographic histories (Historic Kentucky, The Squire's Sketches of Lexington, etc.); and his autobiographies (An Autobiographical Sketch, The Squires

Reviewed This Week:
Books by J. Winston Coleman:
Slavery Times in Kentucky
Famous Kentucky Duels
Kentucky: A Pictorial History
Three Kentucky Artists
The Springs of Kentucky

Memoirs, etc.).

The library at Prestonsburg Community College has a sketched collection of the different types of The Squire's writings.

Slavery Times in Kentucky (1940): Referred to as The Squire's "magnum opus" and having the distinction of being selected as one of the 22 books on the institution of slavery to be republished as part of the "Black Afro-American Library," Slavery in Kentucky qualifies as a definitive work. Slavery was never as profitable in Kentucky as it was in the lower south.

Lacking the large plantations and the need for many field hands, slavery first grew in Kentucky as a domestic institution. But with the advantage of its border position, the state soon became noted as the favorite headquarters for slave dealers who collected slaves and held them in Kentucky for sale to the large plantations in the deep south.

Famous Kentucky Duels (1953): J. Winston Coleman combines history and exciting confrontation as he tells of the "code duello" in early Kentucky. The divergence of family ties, the clash of politics, affairs of the heart and lesser reasons often led the gentleman of the day to a challenge to defend his honor.

Describing 32 duels, Coleman shows himself an undaunted researcher, turning up facts concerning "hushed-up" conflicts the contemporary press frequently disregarded. The actions of Henry Clay, Andrew Jackson, John Rowan, Humphrey Marshall and Cassius M. Clay on the field of honor are facets of these men's lives that often never reach their biographies.

Kentucky: A Pictorial History: As you turn the pages of this book you pictorially turn the years of Kentucky history — from the Shawnee, Cherokee and Chickasaw Indian tribes of an early Kentucky through the pioneer the wars, the coal mines and all that reflects the flavor and zest of this legendary land.

The Squire has depicted two centuries of history in 620 photographs, paintings and drawings. Here are the world famous bourbon distilleries, fundamentalist religions, flamboyant politicians, derby winners, sports figures, parks and rivers, but, most of all, here are the people who have lived the history of Kentucky.

Three Kentucky Artists (1974): Written for the "Kentucky Bicentennial Bookshelf" series, this book depicts the lives of three artists — Joel Hart, Samuel Price and Edward Troye — who, although little known today, enjoyed considerable fame in 19th century Kentucky.

Coleman researched his subjects to sketch for his readers "the careers of the artists and their relationships with those of their contemporaries who played roles of some significance in the history of the Commonwealth."

The Springs of Kentucky (1955): The places that animals watered and

"licked" the salt-enriched earth also drew the pioneers, and later the fashionable, when the "watering-hole" of old became the luxury spas of the privileged.

Coleman describes many of the one-time 125 Kentucky watering places that were turned into resorts and rendezvous for fashionable folk. His purpose, he states, is to leave a record of how our forefathers lived and how they played — the "comedy, tragedy and romance of their fashions, frailties and flirtings."

Pharmacy Footnotes
By HAROLD COOLEY
LIGHTEN UP!
A person who purchases an over-the-counter (OTC) "skin bleach" to lighten concentrations of melanin pigment in the skin should have a realistic expectation of results. OTC skin-lighteners will not erase dark liver spots or freckles. The active ingredient found in most over-the-counter preparations is hydroquinolone. It works by disrupting melanin production, thereby causing the skin to lighten. OTC preparations contain two percent hydroquinolone, a concentration that is deemed to be safe. The cream or lotion should be rubbed into the affected area twice a day. At this dosage, it usually takes several weeks for the cream to do its work. The best results are often enjoyed by those with light skin and lighter-than-average spots. Those who do not get the results they desire should consult with a dermatologist who may prescribe an alternate treatment.
At COOLEY APOTHECARY, we want you to know we care about your total health and we are doing all we can to provide you with the highest level of pharmacy services and savings. Whenever you need a prescription filled, just ask our pharmacist for help. Your prescription will automatically be screened against your medication history for potential drug interactions and allergic reactions. We carry what you would expect to find in a well-inventoried drug store including a full line of over-the-counter remedies. You'll find us located at #2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106 and open Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-3.
HINT: Pigmentation slowly returns if a person stops using skin lighteners with hydroquinolone.

AARP DISCUSSES CATASTROPHIC INSURANCE

The Jenny Wiley Chapter AARP chapter 3528 met Friday evening, Sept. 22 in the dining room of the Highlands Regional Medical Center, with Orville Cooley, president, presiding. He opened the meeting with prayer, presented the new members and led the group in the Pledge of Allegiance to the American Flag.

Following dinner the president presented Blaine Hall, Prestonsburg insurance agent, who used a recent copy of the U.S. News and World Report in his discussion of such matters as the Catastrophic Coverage Act of 1988, and stated that this act was "riddled with catches and loopholes," and added that it would affect more than 40 percent of the elderly. Hall said that, according to this article, most older people want true, catastrophic, long-term nursing home coverage.

The president presented Chalmer Frazier, a member of the State Legislative Committee of AARP, who also discussed the act. He said that a meeting for the purpose of discussing these and other matters of importance to retired persons would be held on Wednesday, Oct. 18, from 12:30 to 3:30 p.m. at the First United Methodist Church here. He said the state president of AARP is scheduled to be at this meeting, and he stressed the importance of attending.

It was stressed during Friday's meeting that "Jenny Wiley Chapter AARP number 3528 go on record as being in favor of the outright repeal of the surtax charge on catastrophic insurance."

The president called on Patsy Evans, who read selections from one of the poetry books authored by Blaine Hall. These included, "Beside an Autumn Lake," "My Daughter," "To Ruth" (his wife), "Kentucky's Green Hills," "October," "A Mountain Farmer," and others.

Delmas Saunders discussed with the group the possibility of selling Christmas tree decorations. More information will be available at the next meeting.

Saunders also said that the "55 Alive" program sponsored by this organization would need 15 members in order to sponsor its next class. Interested persons should contact him. The next regular dinner-meeting will be Friday, Oct. 20 at 6 p.m. at this same location.

Rape Victim Center Added In Corbin

The state's 10th regional rape crisis center has been opened for victims of sexual abuse and assault in southeast Kentucky at Corbin, according to Eileen Recktenwald, director of the mountain region's Rape Victim Services Program, located in Prestonsburg.

The new center is operated by Cumberland River Comprehensive Care Center, that region's counterpart to the local Mountain Comprehensive Care Center. State and federal funding for the centers comes from the Kentucky Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation Services.

According to state statistics, the nine centers that are already in place aided 3,229 child and adult sexual assault victims and family members and acted on 3,453 crisis calls during fiscal year 1989.

Recktenwald shared several points for persons who are raped. She said they should, first of all, get to a safe place. They should not destroy evidence by bathing, douching, changing clothes or rearranging the scene of the crime. Also, they should call police or the local service's helpline, 1-800-422-1060, and they should get medical attention immediately.

"Four reasons to buy an electric Heat Pump."

Compare the facts starting with efficiency. The heat pump is as much as three times more efficient* than any conventional heating system. In winter, the heat pump delivers clean, even heat -- not the hot blasts and cold drafts you get with a gas furnace. And in summer, the heat pump offers the bonus of high efficiency central air conditioning. Also because it's flameless, it's cleaner and safer, too. Let us prove it to you. For the full story call us today at 000-0000.

One moment of clarity changed his life. Tom, 31, started in junior high, mixing vodka with his fruit punch. But as an adult, mainly drank beer. A case a day. Watched his dad die from cirrhosis. Frightened, switched to cocaine. After a $3,000 "White Christmas", returned to alcohol. Immediately went out of control. Soon needed a pint of bourbon to stop the morning shakes. Finally, on a binge, raised his fist to hit his wife. Suddenly flashed back to his childhood. Realized like father, like son. Broke down, asked for help. "I went into the CareUnit dead inside, beaten. They gave me unconditional love. They gave me my life." Tom's been sober 2 years, has kept his family together, and says his life has completely turned around.

Lawson, Harris Wed In Pikeville Ceremony

On Saturday, June 24, Kathy Ann Lawson became the bride of Michael Harris in a double ring ceremony at the Immanuel Baptist Church in Pikeville.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. & Mrs. Fred H. Lawson of Pikeville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. & Mrs. Roy Harris of Stanville.

The program of wedding music was provided by Libbi Hall, pianist, of McDowell. Soloists were Patricia Lawson Cieslak, aunt of the bride, who sang, "My Treasure," "Hold on to the Years," and a duet, "There Is Love," with the pianist, and Glenda Lawson, aunt of the bride, and Robert Hardee, cousin of the bride, performed "Wind Beneath My Wings," accompanied with a guitar.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Cohen Campbell before an altar of greenery, peach satin bows, and baby's breath. The two candelabras contained with candles with the unity candle in the center. The mothers of the bride and groom each lit a candle to represent the two families, then the bride and groom lit the center candle to represent the joining of the two families. The Rev. Campbell presented the couple with a Bible at the close of the ceremony.

Escorted to the altar by her father, and given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a formal gown of white satin with embroidered French lace. The round neck was decorated with beaded French lace and bugle beads draped in a V shape and highlighted the drop of the V shaped bodice. The scoop back yoke was highlighted with a triple strand of pearls. The long illusion sleeves were decorated with beaded French lace and the full organza skirt was decorated with motifs and highlighted with ruffles, as was the cathedral train. The banana clip headpiece was adorned with satin flowers and pearls in flight with three-tier petal-shaped shoulder length illusion veiling. She carried a bouquet of hand-painted magnolia flowers decorated in the Victorian style with baby's breath and pearls.

Kim Lawson, cousin of the bride, served as maid of honor. She wore a tea length peach taffeta dress with a crisscross back and a candy box bow, scoop neck and Basque neckline. She carried one single magnolia flower adorned with baby's breath and pearls. The bridesmaids were Carol Williamson, Shelly Hall and Heather Hall, who wore matching peach tea length dresses and carried a single long stem rose. Leanna Furnish, cousin of the bride, served as flower girl, dressed in a white tiered lace ruffled dress with puffed sleeves and a satin ribbon sash.

Even with the convenience of the microwave, prepared foods, fast food restaurants and all the quick cooking box mixes, cooking is not a lost art. Being a good cook is still considered a desirable quality in both men and women. To impress a date or give a special treat to a loved one, may be among the first things that come to mind — a candlelight dinner with matching table settings and soft music is still romantic, and shows that time is not too valuable to spend on loved ones.

Creating a special dinner also requires some visual skills. Combining the right colors and textures adds tremendously in the visual appeal of the dish. The following recipes lend a variety of tastes as well as nutritional values to select from.

SCALLOPS CREOLE

(From The Best of Gourmet, Volume IV)

- 2 cups minced onions
- 1 cup minced celery
- 2 Tbsps unsalted butter
- 1 1/2 cup chopped green bell pepper
- 2 tsps minced garlic
- 1/2 tsp dried thyme, crumbled
- 1/2 tsp dried basil, crumbled
- 1/2 tsp cayenne
- 1/2 tsp black pepper
- 1 bay leaf
- 2 cups peeled, seeded and chopped tomatoes
- 1 cup canned tomato sauce
- 1/2 cup dry white wine
- 1 tsp sugar
- Tabasco to taste
- 1 1/4 pounds sea scallops, halved, if large

In a saucepan, cook the onion and the celery in the butter over moderate heat, stirring occasionally, until the onion is golden. Add the green pepper and cook the mixture, stirring, until the pepper is softened. Add the garlic, thyme, basil, cayenne, pepper and bay leaf and cook the mixture, stirring, for 1 minute. Add the tomatoes, tomato sauce, wine, sugar and Tabasco and salt to taste and simmer the mixture, stirring occasionally, for 20 minutes. Add the scallops and cook them over moderate heat, stirring, until they are opaque and are just firm to the touch. Serves four.

STEAMED OKRA

(From The Best of Gourmet, Vol. IV)

- 1 pound okra, trimmed, leaving the stem ends intact
- 2 Tbsps unsalted butter, softened
- 1 Tbsp white-wine vinegar if desired

In a steamer set over boiling water, steam the okra, covered, for 10 to 12 minutes, or until it is tender. Transfer the okra to a bowl and toss it with the butter, the vinegar, and salt and pepper to taste. Serves four.
