Rash rolls on at McDowell

by Frank Clark
Staff Writer

The McDowell Elementary School rash outbreak stretched into its sixth week Tuesday, as 20 children from grades one through six were sent home, apparently suffering from the now familiar red rash and itching, said principal Frank Pack.

The cause of the outbreak remains unknown. No new reports were forthcoming from the state or local health departments on the situation.

McDowell parents, who said they've been informed of recent air tests for chemicals that were performed in the school, noted that all tests were negative for the presence of any unusual concentrations of chemicals.

"If and when we receive the results of those tests, I'll release them immediately. Right now, the investigation into this rash is like a murder case." —Ronald Hager, Superintendent

Floyd County School Superintendent Ron Hager noted that he had not received any results of air tests for chemicals performed at the school.

"If and when we receive the results of those tests, I'll release them immediately," said Hager. "Right now, the investigation into this rash is like a murder case."

"We've got to trace down each clue we have. We are treating this very seriously. We haven't received any indication that the children are in danger and the health department hasn't recommended we close the school," Hager said.

Concerned parents planned to meet Tuesday evening to discuss the situation and have agreed to ask a local dermatologist, Dr. Ronald Hall of Pike County, to visit the school Saturday to observe children who will be brought for examination.

Pack noted that efforts to provide normal instruction will continue at the grade school and for the displaced junior high students, moved two weeks ago to the McDowell High School, despite the rash disruption.

"We're trying to carry on," said Pack. "But with the rash still here, it's a real problem."

Medical waste, worried neighbors

The placement of a second medical waste incinerator near Highlands Regional Medical Center, designed to complement one currently operating on the same site, has created concern among several nearby residents of the area, who are worried about safety issues and smoke emissions. Operators of the waste incinerator, which disposes of medical waste for a five-county region, say the incinerator meets all federal regulations and provides a needed service in the region. Second incinerator concerns residents

by Frank Clark
Staff Writer

The installation of a second medical waste incinerator behind Highlands Regional Medical Center has ignited safety concerns among some nearby residents, who say they had not been informed or consulted about the project.

The medical waste disposal facility, owned by Medisin Inc. and established last year as a corporation separate from the hospital, began burning waste in April of 1989.

Robert Ford, vice president of the company, says the disposal operation was started to serve medical practitioners and hospitals in Floyd and several surrounding counties including Pike, Johnson, Martin, Rowan and Magoffin, who badly need a medical waste disposal system.

"In the past, hospitals had a problem with infection control," said Ford. "Glass syringes and other items were reused, and there was a danger of passing infection from one patient to another. Today, plastic syringes and other disposable items are used, reducing the danger of infection but creating waste which requires special methods of disposal."

In April of last year, Medisin Inc. began operations in Floyd County to deal with the medical waste disposal problem. A specially designed incinerator was fired up behind Highlands Regional Medical Center.

Capable of burning and then re-burning waste at a temperature of 2000 degrees Fahrenheit, the incinerator was constructed to release minimal amounts of pollutants that, according to Ford, fall well below levels established by federal guidelines.

According to a medical waste handbook published by Medisin, types of waste accepted for burning include needles, medicine bottles, gloves, masks, body tissue, and blood.

Ford noted that the success of Medisin's operations has resulted from the careful regulation of waste that enters the incinerator. No haz-

Funding for different groups, cleanup occupies Fiscal Court

by Tess A. Whitmer
Assistant Editor

The Floyd County Fiscal Court held its April session last Friday, and for the first time in several months, road paving and bridge work were not on the agenda.

In fitting with Earth Day, environmental issues and countywide cleanups were a hot topic of discussion, as was the Mud Creek Clinic, the 1990 Census and the Floyd County Jail.

Herschel Hamilton, a board member of the Mud Creek Clinic, put in two requests to the court. The first was for the court to communicate with the State Transportation Department about the problem the clinic has with high waters.

Hamilton noted that the culvert running near the parking lot is inadequate to accommodate the amount of water in that area. Judge-Executive

John M. Stumbo agreed to contact Secretary Milo Bryant and see if the state can rectify that situation when it straightens and widens the road there.

The second request from Hamilton was that the court consider putting the clinic on next year's budget to help subsidize the small income the clinic receives from patients. That request was also taken into consideration.

Darlene Barber of the Census Bureau in Ashland was on hand to ask the court's help in dispelling any rumors that may be circulating questioning the confidentiality of the Census. Barber noted that the Census was being tabulated on a daily basis and as of Friday had received about a 62 percent return of original forms.

This figure is higher than the 60 percent return rate expected. People still have until April 27 to get those forms mailed back, after which time home visits will begin.

Barber wanted to be sure that her field workers were treated politely and cooperated with when they went door to door.

Judge Stumbo said he understood that the cost of mailing returns was about $1 per household in contrast to $10 per household for those requiring a home visit. "This is money that could be spent in a much more useful way," he said. "I've learned, that for every person not counted by the

Education Reform Bill affects local school board

Part 3
by Pam Shingler
Editor

Facing tough opposition, the Task Force on Education Reform, made up of legislators and governor appointees, managed to maintain a level of integrity in its efforts to change local governance of schools.

Local school boards in Kentucky have historically enjoyed close to carte blanche in personnel matters. In many communities, the school district is the largest employer, lending enormous power to the school board.

Out of power quests or kinship ties or both, Kentucky school systems have been the arenas in which political football has often been played, virtually without referees or game rules.

Horror stories abound of the hiring of unqualified teachers, administrators and support personnel; of retribution handed out for those who follow the wrong political course; of rewards meted out for games playing skill rather than competence.

Finer fines is council aim

Prestonsburg City Council took the first step Monday night to repeal all its traffic fines.

But don't misunderstand. A new fine policy, if it passes, will result in much higher costs to violators of the city's traffic laws.

In an effort to update and modify Prestonsburg's traffic fine structure, council members had to introduce an ordinance that will repeal the current fines. Councilman William O. Goebel introduced the repeal ordinance for its first reading and led the way for a first reading of the revised fine policy.

Among changes the new policy will bring about are: raising the fee for blocking an alley to $20 from a current fine of $10; parking at a fire plug from $5 to $10, and the addition of a fine of $25 for persons parking in a fire lane.

Most dramatic among the changes is the raising of the fine for illegal parking in a handicapped zone from the current rate of $5 to $50 for the first offense and $100 for a second offense.

Concern over illegal parking in spaces marked for the handicapped was originally raised last month by Councilman Jerry Fannin and led to the council's reexamining of its entire fine structure.

Under the new ordinance, which will be voted on at the next meeting, traffic violation fines are: overtime parking on meter, $1; overtime parking in one-hour zone, $5; double parking, $5; parking in a no parking or unloading zone, $5; blocking an alley, $20; blocking a driveway, $10; parking on sidewalk, $10; improper

Recycling efforts not just 'lip service'

by Tess A. Whitmer
Assistant Editor

"All talk and no show" does NOT describe Johnnie Allen of Dwale Allen has been doing a lot of both the past year. He has begun a recycling program that he hopes will expand greatly with the cooperation with local officials.

A local delivery person for The Lexington Herald-Leader, Allen was quite aware of the potential for recycling newsprint. But, what he wasn't acquainted with was the process one went through to recycle the material.

Four years ago, he began collecting newspapers from people on his route who put it out for him. He just stacked in his home until he found out what to do with it.

"It started to push me out of the house there was so much of it," Allen jokes, "although it did save in heating bills with the insulation it provided."

So, with no other alternative, Allen purchased a moving van type trailer and began to load the paper into that. He also expanded his route to include collection from the local printing press and The Floyd County Times.

But, unfortunately, this idea was not a cure all. Allen still had to come up with a place to park the trailer in between trips and find a driver with a tractor to pull the trailer to Lexington where the recycling plants are.

Allen contacted a number of persons who could do this and found one person who hauled mail from Lexington, but that plan fell through.

Finally he contacted a driver who would make the run for $150. That first run went in November and after being paid for the newsprint, Allen was $37 in the hole.

On the second run he went even farther in the red, $23. Finally on the third run he decided to include glass products which bring a higher price than newsprint. He made $35. By the fourth run he had climbed out of the hole by 37 cents, not including the cost of the van or his time.

Allen put a valiant effort into this recycling project, and instead of quitting and getting discouraged by the time overload and lack of profit, he found another route. He contacted

Mayo State Vocational/Technical School and asked if the driver's training program would consider using the trip to Lexington as part of its schedule.

School officials said they would if See RECYCLING EFFORTS, A 11

One man with a purpose

Johnnie Allen of Dwale started a county-wide recycling program on his own this past year and has worked diligently on the project, expanding it to incorporate Kentuckians For The Commonwealth, Mountain Christian Academy and Mayo State Vocational/Technical School. All are recycling paper, glass and plastics to help reduce the amount of waste entering the landfill and help save the environment.

Tax Reform Bill

Reform Act of 1990 — if it works — will end or seriously stymie the most flagrant abuses.

Effective in July, for instance, persons who have relatives employed by the school district cannot run for that district's school board. "Relative," according to Sen. Joe Wright of the task force, means father, mother, brother, sister, aunt, uncle, daughter and son.

"There are nearly 200 board members in Kentucky who will be prohibited from running," said Wright at a recent press briefing on the new legislation.

Some exceptions do exist. One legislator cited an example of a school board member in his 30s whose aunt has taught for 30 years. "Obviously, he had no influence over hiring her since she was teaching before he was even in school," the task force member allowed.

The intent of this section of the Education Reform Act is to rid school systems of nepotism, a philosophy that lends itself to judgment on the basis of who one's daddy is or to whom one is married, rather than qualifications and competence.

The local board's ability to hire school employees is further curtailed under the new act. In fact, it even states that board members cannot be engaged in "attempting to influence the hiring" of any school employee.

The job of hiring, transferring, dismissing, suspending, promoting and demoting personnel is dumped squarely in the lap of the school superintendent under the new act.

The board's hiring responsibility is limited to the superintendent and the school board attorney. And even then, the act expects the board to set up a screening committee to search for and recommend candidates for superintendent. Composition of the screening committee is also legislated: two teachers, one principal, one parent and one school board member.

To fire a superintendent, the local school board must get the approval of the state Commissioner of Education, the chief administrator of Kentucky schools under the reform.

Superintendents are also barred from hiring their relatives, come July 1, 1991, except under special circumstances and under the watchful eye, apparently, of the Commissioner. Likewise, a relative of a school principal is not to be employed in his or her school.

Superintendents must report vacancies in local districts to the state Department of Education and then must post the position announcements for 30 days prior to filling the positions.

When a superintendent dismisses a teacher for cause, he/she must notify the local board of the dismissal. If the teacher appeals, the Commissioner of Education steps in to appoint a three-member tribunal from outside the district to hear the appeal. The tribunal is to consist of one teacher, one administrator and a community member. They, rather than the board, will hear and decide on the appeal.

Appeals of the tribunal's decision will go to circuit court.

The reform addresses the political campaigning for school board slots, as well. For instance, campaign contributions to a board candidate are limited to $100 from an individual and $200 from a Political Action Committee (PAC). Candidates are expressly forbidden from accepting or soliciting any money or services from school employees.

On the other side of the spectrum — and an issue that some teachers say is undemocratic — school district employees are prohibited from participating in school board campaigns.

What does not change in regard to school boards is that they will continue to be elected by county divisions rather than by the county at large.

An interesting side note to the legislation is the new requirement that anyone elected to a local school board must have at least a high school education or a GED certificate. (Perhaps even more interesting is the fact that this requirement has not been in place before.)

The new legislation will obviously have an important effect on school governance at the school board and superintendent levels. But, without doubt, the most profound effect will be felt in the management of individual schools.

The reform requires that within the next few years, all schools in Kentucky will practice site-based management; that is, a principal will share his decision-making and planning responsibilities with teachers and parents. For most principals, teachers and parents, this will prove to have the most radical impact of any section of the reform act.

Next: What is site-based management?

Dangerous U-turn

Watergate conspirator fascinates Morehead crowd

by Dr. Tom Matijasac
Contributing Writer

On Tuesday, April 17, former Nixon aide G. Gordon Liddy addressed a crowd of hundreds at Morehead State University's Adron Doran University Center. While serving as General Counsel for the Committee to Re-elect the President in 1972, Liddy helped to plan and execute the bugging of the National Democratic Headquarters located in the Watergate Building in Washington, DC. He was sentenced to 21 years in prison for his involvement but was released after serving only five years.

Liddy's lecture was entitled "To Survive or Prevail." He began by asserting that survival in and of itself was an unworthy goal. One should strive to prevail in spite of circumstances. He then outlined six characteristics that can be observed in all successful people. They are:

- 1.) Clarity of language which leads to clarity of thought;
- 2.) The use of reason to subordinate instinct and emotion;
- 3.) A concentration on the development of character as opposed to the pursuit of reputation;
- 4.) The use of innovative solutions to solve problems rather than a reliance upon old formulas;
- 5.) Understanding the distinction between real goals and apparent goals; and
- 6.) Not wasting time trying to understand the nature of an infinite God.

Liddy's long presentation was followed by a two-hour question and answer session. During this period he took an opportunity to defend the actions of Oliver North, condemn members of Congress for a variety of reasons, and declare that Richard Nixon was the most competent president since Franklin Roosevelt. The audience, composed largely of Morehead students, was very receptive to Liddy's message and reacted enthusiastically to Liddy's well-timed punch lines.

When asked by a student whether he favored a revision of the US Constitution, Liddy responded "I would just like us to follow the original." Few in the audience seemed aware of the fact that on Jan. 27, 1972, Gordon Liddy outlined a plan to sabotage the Democratic presidential campaign which included the kidnapping of demonstrators, wire tapping the Democratic National Headquarters and compromising delegates at the Democratic convention by using prostitutes to lure them into compromising positions. Once described by author Theodore White as "a gun-loving psychotic," Liddy successfully convinced most of those assembled that he was a witty, patriotic citizen. In a sense, G. Gordon Liddy has prevailed in spite of his numerous misdeeds.

HOW TO SPEND THE VIETNAM BONUS MONEY

by Willie Elliott

Well, it seems we veterans are getting our bonus. Today I received a check for $465. I know it is a bonus, but that is the hardest $465 I have ever earned, so I have to think carefully about how to spend it.

It won't do just to use it wisely. No, regular money will do for that. I have to use it for something special — somewhat like a kid spending it for toys.

Ah, there we are, toys!!! What toys do I have? Just my computer and my tennis racquets. I have the money spent already.

I have talked to Richard and he tells me I can get my computer upgraded to one megabyte (don't you just love these computer terms?) for about $150. I may not necessarily need it, but, by golly, if there is a megabyte out there, I want it. And what good is one megabyte if one doesn't have a program that requires it. So I have to buy at least one program that requires a megabyte. BeagleWrite is a Mac type program. Can get for $75.

Hey, I'm really warming to this task. Let me see, I'm up to $225. On to other toys.

If any of you are into tennis, you know the latest rage in racquets is the widebodies. Well, since I have a wide body, shouldn't I have a wide body racquet? If I play my cards right, I can get one for — say $150.

Where am I now — $375. Now I have my toys, but there must be some kind of celebration. How to celebrate a bonus for spending a year in the jungles of Vietnam?

Ninety dollars for a celebration. Not much, but it can be done. I will find the closest thing to a Vietnamese restaurant and take Ryan and Linda to that. (Our school cafeteria does not count.) We will order water buffalo and rice. They never called it that in Nam, but I'm sure that is what we had sometimes. I will have someone put off a firecracker. When it goes off, I will yell "in coming" and dive under the table. Some Oriental-looking girl will be planted to come up during the meal and say, "Me Mama San. I brush your shoes for ten dolla month."

Thanks must then be given to Uncle Sam and Uncle Wally (for getting the lottery, you know). And a special thanks to all those people who wasted their money on lottery tickets — folks, I just wasted $465 of that money. Then I will make a little disclaimer: Thanks to all, but the next time we have a police action, war, advisory, whatever, I don't think I will go. I gave at the office.

Then I head home where I plan to start a drive for a national bonus. The way those boys throw money around, we could get up to a thousand dollars. Then I give thanks for having reached the highest rank possible — a civilian.

Lauds CAP

Dear Editor,
I am knowledgeable of the film a month or so ago, wherein Dwight Yoakum performed for Appalachia. I read some articles in the Floyd County Times about Yoakum's music, Appalachia and the program.

My point of view is as follows: The Christian Appalachian Project, headquartered in Lancaster, Ky., certainly appears to be striving to help our people.

We need body food, and spiritual food, as well. CAP's seed program is easing some of the hunger among our people. I read where CAP distributed over 2,000 Christmas baskets to our people. In the spring program, I see where CAP is distributing seed, seed potatoes and fertilizer to 1400 families in five Eastern Kentucky counties to be used in CAP's gardening and canning program this year, to help our people.

CAP is doing a number of other charitable (good) things for our people.

Therefore, my fellow mountaineers, if each of us can mail a little check, however small, God will bless us for it! To: Christian Appalachian Project, 322 Crab Orchard Rd., Lancaster, Ky. 40446.

Retired railroader offers advice

Dear Editor,
Re: "Set Dwale Free," Floyd County Times, April 4, 1990. Perhaps I can help. I spent most of my life working for Chessie as a train dispatcher and chief train dispatcher.

If you are successful in reaching the division manager with your complaint, he will call in his trainmaster and ask him for an explanation. The trainmaster will then issue a trainmaster's bulletin telling his crews not to block this crossing longer than a given period. To help the division manager know he's doing his job, the trainmaster gives the division manager a copy of his bulletin.

What happens at Dwale? Probably nothing. At most, a trainmaster's bulletin will help for a few days.

To try talking to the crews that block the crossing is like asking the man who killed your mother what you should do about it. Maintenance-of-Way people are usually afraid to report your complaints.

So, what's the solution? Most states, counties, cities and townships have laws or ordinances to control train movement over road crossings. You should find out what ordinances are in effect in your county, then notify the county sheriff so he can arrest and bring these violators to justice.

But what if you don't have any such protection from government? If your law says a train may hold a crossing for a period of time without moving — and most of the laws do — forget that law. It's not worth the paper it's written on. By shoving the train back or pulling it up a little, they can hold a crossing all day without being in violation. You want laws that say not more than a certain period of time, and no exceptions. Then, you need the sheriff or police who will enforce the law.

I bounced over that crossing once and I thought for a second while coming down backside I was on a roller coaster at Coney Island.

Remember, your laws can have great effect on the railroad. We must have railroads. In the far past, a train of 45 cars was average. Today, a train of 200 cars is common. It might cause the railroad to raise the speed limits through your area or town. This would force maintenance-of-way forces to make major repairs to the track.

Thanks volunteers

Dear Editor,
In proclaiming the week of April 22-28 as National Volunteer Week, 1990, President Bush writes, "It is with great appreciation and pride that I salute the 80 million Americans who serve as volunteers. These individuals have moved us all by the strength of their convictions; they have greatly challenged us through their example of selflessness and concern for others."

As the director of ACTION, the federal domestic volunteer agency, I would like to take this opportunity to personally thank our more than 50,000 volunteers for their devoted service to others. ACTION's programs include Volunteers in Service to America (VISTA), the Student Community Service Program, the ACTION Drug Alliance, the Retired Senior Volunteer Program, the Foster Grandparent Program and the Senior Companion Program. Serving nationwide through nearly 2000 local, non-profit sponsors, ACTION's volunteers address our country's greatest challenges — illiteracy, substance abuse, homelessness, hunger, senior health care and problems of at-risk youth, to name but a few.

Volunteers supported by the ACTION agency uphold a cherished American tradition, our belief in the ability of the individual to make a difference. The vast achievement of volunteers demonstrates that our is truly a government of, by and for the people. In recent years, our ACTION programs have been able to expand their service, thanks largely to the tremendous support that they have gained locally from citizens who share a commitment to improving their communities.

As President Bush has said many times, "any definition of a successful life must include serving others." All of us know of such "success stories" in our own communities. During National Volunteer Week, please join me in taking time to say thank you to your local volunteers. They are a vital part of what makes America the greatest nation on earth.

Sincerely,
—Jane A. Keeny

Lauds Stumbo

Dear Editor,
I recently sent the attached letter to Rep. Greg Stumbo. I would appreciate it if it could be used in your letters column. I feel Greg deserves widespread recognition for the job he did for Floyd County in the recent legislative session.

Dear Greg:
As the 1990 legislative session draws to a close, I want to thank you and commend you for the job you have done — not only for Floyd County, but all Kentuckians.

This has been one of the most difficult sessions in my memory, but, thanks in great part to your contribution as Majority Floor Leader, it has turned into an historic session whose beneficial impact will be felt for many years.

If nothing more than education reform and the necessary financing for it had been accomplished, you would have served us well. But I am also grateful for your assistance on the road bond program and the Eastern Kentucky Job Development Authority (both of which will help our area); the funds for the new golf course at Jenny Wiley and downtown revitalization of Prestonsburg; and on many other bills, including the compromise you helped work out to let us continue funding Archer Park recreational project.

It is a real pleasure to have a hard-working and effective legislator in Frankfort representing us, who keeps his door open and answers or returns all calls. If I can be of any assistance to you, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Seeks information on Hollidays

Dear Editor,
I live in Spotsylvania County, Virginia. I moved here in 1980. I learned there were so many Hollidays who live here. Since my maiden name is Holliday I became interested in doing my genealogy. I have traced the Hollidays back to 1400 in England. If the Hollidays in Kentucky can be connected here I will have all of it. What I need is the Hollidays in Kentucky. I have them traced back to my great-great grandfather, John H.D. Holliday. (Also known as Johnyse T. Holliday). He married in Floyd County on January 27, 1821, at the age of 19. He moved there from Virginia. We think the William and Nancy of Floyd County may be his parents but can't prove it. My great-great-grandmother lived to be over 100 years old and lived with her youngest son, Walter, who lived in Morgan County. In 1894 he took her back to the Holliday Cemetery where she was buried beside my great-great-grandfather. Her son, Walter, died in 1932.

I was told that newspapers can be very helpful in matters such as this.

'Cheating our children'

Dear Editor,
The recent success of the Honor Choir concerts reminds us of the immense talent and musical ability of area young people. But it also points out a glaring weakness in our school system for which we will eventually pay.

Elizabeth Frazier, director of the choir for more than 10 years, pointed out at the concert that her seniors this year had started in the first grade with musical training and had sung in the Prestonsburg Elementary School's Christmas program.

Unsaid was the fact that since then music programs have been gradually diminished in the elementary school. Ms. Frazier was part-time at both schools (an unworkable situation) and hung on one year after a vigorous protest to the Board (of Education) by the Prestonsburg PTA.

Now, children have gone for at least six years with no formal music training. It used to start in what we call the middle school grades, but that is no more.

The new middle school is a wonderful-looking building, but without all the professional personnel needed to staff it, what improvement will it be? Evidently, there will be no music program provided. You might as well have a stadium for a professional football team, but no team to play in it.

But, can we imagine what a fuss would be created if we told the basketball and football people that they would have to start teaching the sport when youngsters reached high school, that there would be no feeder programs, no games at the elementary school level?

Yet, that is exactly what we have done to vocal music. I'm not expecting the quality of the Honor Choir to drop; people like Ms. Frazier have learned from long experience how to make do with inadequate resources and use the raw materials available. But if there is less interest and the talents less developed, should we be surprised?

We are just plain cheating our children when we deprive them of the opportunity for musical instruction. And worse still, we are wasting talents — in art, drama and dance, as well as music — that will never be discovered because no one cared enough to tap them.

Billie Jean Osborne, long-time instructor of music in this county, longs for a place where local talented young people can be discovered and developed. Yet, if we do not support such an effort by music instruction in each classroom from the earliest grades up, her dream may never come to fruition.

Unfortunately, we can't clone the Billie Jean Osbornes, the Fraziers (mother and daughter), the Carlos Haywoods, and make them serve our needs forever. Some new musical talents will have to be developed, trained, and given jobs in this system. Reform must begin here.

While little is done to cut administrative costs in our system, even after state intervention, it is our children who are losing out, deprived of what they should have. Gov. Bert Combs went to court to end these inequities, but Prestonsburg parents seem content to accept things as they are. My daughter is still waiting to be in her first Christmas musical program at school, and she's almost 12. How about yours?

Haven't we cheated our children long enough?

Supports child care bill

Dear Editor,
Before summer, President Bush will have an opportunity to sign into law a new child care bill that helps the states provide $1.75 billion in child care assistance for low-income families who otherwise have difficulty finding or keeping jobs. He should sign the bill quickly as a major step in taking care of this country's pressing needs after so many years of successfully promoting American-style capitalism abroad.

As American industry increasingly looks to overseas manufacturing, and now considers investing in Eastern Europe, one thing American businessmen find in other countries is more government interest in providing child care assistance for workers. Ask any businessman thinking of opening a new industry and he will say that if his employees can't depend on child care, he can't depend on them. That's no problem in Europe or Japan.

The legislation going to President Bush is distinctly American, however, and has been fine tuned over the past year to comply with his ideas.

It contains the tax breaks the President wanted for low-income families in which one parent chooses to remain at home to care for their children. The bill provides assurances that the states themselves — and not any federal bureaucracy — will be responsible for deciding minimal health and safety protections for child care centers. The bill recognizes that in America churches always have and must continue to play a big role in providing child care services. And the bill gives help to families who choose to leave their children with relatives.

The bill doesn't do anything new except change the odds on getting help and the opportunities for economic self-sufficiency. The sooner Congress can put finishing touches on this legislation, and the sooner the President can sign it, then the sooner America can start taking care of itself again.

Advises taking auto class

Dear Editor,
To Women Drivers: I would suggest that you watch the paper for the next Carter-Hughes Toyota's "For Women Only Car Clinic."

I attended the second one they have conducted this past Saturday, April 21.

I cannot praise enough, Estill Carter, Donnie Bush, service manager, and the entire maintenance crew for the way the clinic was conducted. We saw a safety film and were able to see the latest in technical computer "trouble finding" equipment in action. We were lectured concerning under the hood operation. We were also taught how to gauge the air in the tires and how to fix a flat.

All persons involved were courteous and informative. At the end of the session a drawing was held for three free service jobs.

Thank you, Carter-Hughes Toyota for realizing the need for this type of clinic!

Concerned over DUI law

Dear Editor,
The Governor, the Attorney General, the Senate all have tried to strengthen the DUI law in Kentucky.

After the bill passed the Senate it arrived at the House. Majority Leader Greg Stumbo said, "No, no, no, I'll not allow the legislators to vote." He did not allow the legislation to reach the Floor of the House.

One man kept us from having a stronger DUI (law). So, "the beat goes on." Now, it's April, and a drunk driver has just killed three precious folk at Maysville. The 27 who were killed in a church bus by a drunk driver did not change Rep. Stumbo's mind. What will it take?

The good people of Floyd County elected Stumbo to represent and not become a dictator.

So sad that the powerful, rich liquor industry and Rep. Stumbo have prevailed. Stumbo offers alibis such as "A judge should decide." Why? 0.10 is sufficient evidence. Many judges postpone, file away, etc., etc.,

DUI charges, and the drunk goes right on killing, killing on our highways. One half of traffic deaths (at least) are caused by driving under the influence.

Congratulations, Gov. Wilkinson, Attorney General Cowan, the Senate! Shame, shame on Greg Stumbo for blocking a vote on a tougher DUI law.

I hope and pray that Gov. Wilkinson will call a special session to deal with DUI... costly of course, but who can put a price on the 27 killed in a church bus and all the others since that tragedy.

Mr. Stumbo, did you represent the views of Floyd Countians? What about your conscience?

Once again, the big liquor boys had their "way." Pray for Greg Stumbo as he lives with his "high-handed" way.

Impressed by Stumbo

Dear Editor,
I have had the pleasure of serving with Rep. Greg Stumbo in the leadership of the Kentucky House of Representatives for several years. Rep. Stumbo is truly an outstanding legislator who possesses the leadership qualities to continue to be an effective representative of the citizens of the 95th District.

As a result of working closely with Rep. Stumbo, I know him to be a dedicated legislator who is deeply concerned with the problems and issues facing the 95th District and the Commonwealth. His position as House Majority Floor Leader is evidence of the respect and confidence that the House members place in his abilities and judgment in legislative issues. Rep. Stumbo is a vital member of the Kentucky General Assembly and is a strong voice for the people of the 95th District.

Throughout my years as a member in the Kentucky House of Representatives, I have been extremely impressed with the manner in which Rep. Stumbo conducts his legislative duties. Rep. Greg Stumbo has the experience and leadership to continue to represent the 95th District with dignity and distinction.

ELECT

GREGORY D. STUMBO

State Representative 95th District
Democratic Primary
Tuesday May 29, 1990

The 1990 General Assembly is now over. In the upcoming weeks I will be reporting to you directly as I travel throughout the district about the progress that was made in improving our Educational System, maintain and upgrading our roads, and creating new jobs as a result of legislation that I sponsored. In each of these areas we received significant new increases in funding.

I am also glad to report as a sponsor of The Vietnam Veterans Bonus Bill, that your checks are now in the mail and every eligible Veteran will receive their money by the middle of July.

In the 10 years that you have allowed me to serve you in Frankfort, I don't think our area has ever done as well as in 1990. The big winners are our children, who will now get a truly equal educational opportunity.

It was an honor to represent you for those years but it was a real privilege to participate in the historic 1990 Session because of The Educational Reform Act. Not only will our children go to class in modern school buildings they will also be taught with computer technology and up-to-date instructional materials.

Our goal, 10 years ago, was to improve the quality of life for the people of Floyd County and to enhance the future of our children. We have made great strides but much work remains to be done.

For the past 3 1/2 months I have been in Frankfort doing the job you elected me to do. Now I am asking for your vote and support in the Democratic Primary a May 29th, so we can continue with the progress that has been started.

Your Vote and Support
On May 29th Will be Greatly Appreciated

CHEMICAL CONTROL ACT IS ANOTHER LINK IN US DRUG STRATEGY

Several years ago while conducting investigations into South American drug smuggling, US law enforcement agents discovered a shocking trend: Certain precursor chemicals necessary in the processing of coca paste into pure cocaine were being diverted from shipments made by US suppliers to their Latin American customers. In 1988, Congress moved quickly and passed legislation that requires our chemical companies to keep detailed records on all exports and coordinate those shipments with the Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA). According to the DEA, this has been extremely effective in cutting off the Colombian cartel's access to US chemicals.

In spite of this encouraging news, cocaine continues to flood our city streets. From Ashland in the East to Paducah in the West, cocaine, and its deadly derivative "crack", has made its way into virtually every corner of Kentucky. Because of its geographic location, our state has become a major transshipment point for illegal narcotics. One of the reasons behind this unabated surge in cocaine trafficking is that the cartels are now purchasing precursor chemicals from European firms in massive quantities.

Colombian cartels have taken full advantage of the fact that European firms do not have to keep records that divulge where and to whom their chemicals are shipped. For example, DEA intelligence estimates that West German exports of chemicals that can be used in the manufacture of cocaine have risen 433 percent over the past year! Similar increases in other countries have also been documented.

My bill, the International Chemical Control Act of 1990, is a tough, common-sense response to this problem. This legislation includes provisions that:

- Mandate the keeping of records by foreign chemical concerns detailing transactions of listed chemicals and establishing a procedure for making the records available to law-enforcement authorities for a drug investigation and
- Encourage countries to enact legislation so they can seize or suspend shipments of listed chemicals based on evidence that they may be destined for the production of illicit narcotics.

The punishment for any foreign company that refuses to comply with this legislation is harsh. The president is empowered to permanently ban that company from selling products in the US. The Director of the National Chiefs of Police has told me that "we believe that such measures can effectively curb production sufficiently to reduce the availability of cocaine, drive its price upward, and ultimately reduce user demand...this international precursor chemical bill will ultimately strengthen our united front against drugs."

The war on drugs can be won, but only by attacking the problem at the international level will we be successful in ridding our nation, state and communities of this deadly scourge.

A Health Care Plan for Kentucky and the Nation

One of the key challenges facing our nation in the 90s is health care. The good news is that America has the highest quality of care in the world made possible by the best technology, the best medical professionals, and the best-equipped hospitals and clinics. However, the problem for millions of Americans is that they do not have access or cannot afford the cost of medical services.

The cost of health care has skyrocketed to the point where it is beyond the reach of families, small businesses, and especially those living on a fixed income like senior citizens. As many as 37 million Americans, and nearly a million Kentuckians, simply go without health insurance because they can't afford it.

I am proposing a Comprehensive American Health Care Plan that will:

- provide low- and moderate-income Americans access to medical care through health insurance tax credits, improve and expand rural health care programs, and revitalize federal vaccine and immunization programs;
- control the skyrocketing costs of health care through medical malpractice reforms and preventive health-care practices; and
- provide for seniors' long-term care and catastrophic health-care needs through a long-term care insurance tax credit and restoration of key catastrophic health-care benefits.

The cost of health care now consumes over $500 billion of America's resources. Although high quality, accessible health care doesn't come cheaply, I believe we can solve this problem without bankrupting our country in the process.

I propose using some of our savings from reasonable defense reductions — the so-called "peace dividend" — to fund my health care program.

For example, the Defense Department currently plans to buy more than a hundred B-2 bombers over the next five years, at a cost of $5 to $8 billion each year, or a half-billion dollars per plane. In the safer world we live in today, some of those B-2s could be cut back to pay for better health care in this country.

Alternately, our commitment to protect Europe, which we have kept since the end of World War II, currently costs us a total of $180 billion each year. Over the last year, we have witnessed tremendous changes in Eastern Europe, with the spread of democracy and freedom and the apparent collapse of communism. Now is the ideal time to turn our attention home again, and make quality health care a reality for every American family.

The best health care system in the world is still right here in America. Of course, there are considerable problems which we must address. But the solutions can be found right here as well. All we need is the same American ingenuity and commitment to excellence which has made our health care system — and our nation — the envy of the world.

Maud Dye: 90 years of struggle and triumph

(Editor's note: The Floyd County Times originally planned to write an article about Maud Dye of Arkansas Creek. In order to assist us, she wrote a short reflection about her life on Monday, her 90th birthday, and had it ready when the reporter arrived. After reading it, we saw no way of improving upon it, and decided to print it in its entirety.)

My name is Maud Dye. Today is my birthday. I was born in Pike County, Ky., on April 23, 1900, and today I am 90 years old.

I was born when times were hard, not much work and not much money. My daddy would work for 75¢ per day. There wasn't much work to do, mostly farming. If people didn't farm they would have starved to death. The most of the people had milk cows, raised chickens, hogs and corn to make meal for their bread. And in the fall they would pickle beans, make kraut.

There wasn't any electricity. We never did see a piece of ice except winter time. We had kerosene lamps and there was no water in the houses. Almost everybody had hand dug wells and pulled the water up with a chain or rope. There were no bath rooms except for outside toilets with a burlap sack hung up for a door. No television, no radios, no school houses. We had to walk to school and when the creek was up, my daddy would take me on a horse and come to get me each evening.

There were only six months of school each year. When I was 18 years old I took the County examination and made (got) a certificate. It took us two days to take the test and the county superintendent graded our papers at that time in 1918. Fonson Wright was our superintendent. I couldn't get the home school, someone else had it.

They hired me to teach on Caney Creek, Penny, Ky., was the post office. I only got $60 per month for teaching and paid $10 per month for board and room. And we had bread and milk almost every night for supper, but it was good.

My mama didn't want me to stay away from home. She told my daddy to go see if he could find a place for me to stay where there weren't any boys. Parents were strict on their children then. He found a place near the schoolhouse with only old people. Uncle George Elswick and his two daughters, their names were Monk and Ellen. My daddy would walk across a big hill and go with me on Sunday and come to get me on Friday.

Some of my students' parents would ask me to go and spend the night with them, so I decided to go to one of their houses and stay the night with them and when they called me to supper, there wasn't anything on the table except a big bowl of kershaw sitting in the middle of the table. I guess that was the best they could do. I never did like kershaw.

In about 1955 I bought a new truck and decided that I would go into the fruit business. I'm proud to say I drove cars and trucks for over 60 years and I never had an accident. I was driving a long time before we had to have operator's licenses, and I never had a police ticket.

I only got the truck with no bed on it. I drove it to Ezelle, Ky., where they made truck beds. I had one made that I could haul different things on. I made a lot of trips to Ashville, North Carolina, Georgia, and one trip to Orlando, Fla., taking a load of furniture for Ed McCoy and he paid me $250 and I said I would load it with oranges and grapefruit, which were cheap there. But I had a few oranges loaded and a man told me I couldn't get through with them.

I had my truck loaded and came to an inspection station. The man came out and said, "What are you loaded with?" I said oranges and grapefruit. He said, "You can only take 8 bushels of each. I told him a hard luck story. I said please let me through with this load. This is my first trip and it sure will be my last one.

He said, there is another inspection station in Georgia and I will lose my job if I let you through. So I went back to a road side market and sold my load and made 75¢. I left out of that section and loaded in Asheville, N.C.

On another trip I drove to Spartanburg, South Carolina. (Shady Adkins and his wife Pearl were with me on all these trips, but they couldn't drive.) and I broke an axle on my truck in Spartanburg. I had to have it pulled to a garage and it took so much of my money I didn't have enough to buy my load.

So, I went to a bank in Spartanburg, called Henry Fitzpatrick at the Bank Josephine at that time. He was the president of the bank. I told him I was in Spartanburg, South Carolina, and I was broke and I needed some money. He asked me how much. I said $200.

In a short time I got the money and I think that time I loaded with peaches.

It was in the night when we loaded the truck and the peaches were big, nice Elberta peaches. But they were overripe. When I got home the juice was running out of the bottom of the truck. The bottom ones were all mashed up. That taught me to get crates to put them in. I would have 5 or 6 tons of fruit on the truck, a lot of mountains to cross.

I remembered Henry Fitzpatrick doing me such a favor. If he hadn't of sent me the money I would have had to drive back empty from Spartanburg. Every trip I made south from then on I put a bushel of peaches in his car or a big water melon or something — whatever I was loaded with. He was a friend in need.

I knew his car. It would be parked near the Bank Josephine. It was a red car. He liked red. His clothes were red, his outside toilet was painted red. He owned a billy goat. He had its horns and tail painted red. I crocheted him a big round red rug. He was a friend to me. He has let me have money on notes but I always paid it back. It sure did hurt me when I heard he had passed away. But that was the Good Lord's will for him to go.

I said in the beginning of this letter that I became a Christian about 25 years ago. Bennie Blankenship (a minister) and his family came to Prestonsburg and he started preaching. I attended the church services and decided that it was time for me to think about my soul and where I was going to spend eternity. So I obeyed the gospel and Bro. Benny baptized me. And I started driving a church bus from Arkansas Creek to Prestonsburg.

Now we have a nice brick building at Lancer, Ky., and the attendance is great. Bro. Bennie is doing a great job of getting people to think about their souls. He has a nice Christian family.

I have two daughters, Mary Ruth Clay and Opal Boyd. I never had a brother or sister and my daddy and mother has been gone for a long time. I have eight grandchildren, 19 great grandchildren, and four great-great-grandchildren, and oh how I love every one of them.

So I give the good Lord the praise for letting me live to be 90 years old and able to attend church services.

May God Bless everyone that reads this paper.

parking, $5; parking at fire plug, $10; parking in a fire lane, $25; parking on yellow line, $10; illegal parking in handicapped zone, $50, and other, $5.

Parking in a fire lane is not addressed in the present fine structure and was added to the proposed ordinance. Asked for his suggestion on a penalty for such a violation, Fire Chief Thomas Blackburn responded, "I guess hanging is out of the question." Council agreed on the $25 fine.

A discussion of a fair system of allocating ambulance calls when the city's Emergency Medical Technicians respond to an injury-accident resulted in a referral to council's Personnel Committee.

Two local ambulance services currently vie for the opportunity to transport accident victims, City Administrator Fred James informed the council. He added that the EMTs do not want to be responsible for deciding which ambulance service to call.

"We have operated on a rotating basis," said Chief Blackburn, "but the council needs to decide who's going to control city policy. I don't want my EMTs to decide who responds. Without a city policy, the EMT is responsible and can be liable."

"When the victim can't make the decision (of which ambulance to call), our employees need to have the decision made for them," said James.

Mayor Ann Latta then asked the Personnel Committee to meet and come up with a workable policy for council review.

Council also heard an ordinance that would restrict through truck traffic on residential streets. Reports of coal trucks and other through trucks using Arnold Avenue to avoid the US23 and North Lake Drive intersection prompted the action.

A second reading of an ordinance naming three streets at Archer Park was unanimously approved by council.

On a motion by William Callihan, seconded by Bill R. Collins, council voted to authorize purchase of a vehicle for $2000 from John Gray in Paintsville. James and Police Chief Greg Hall attested that the vehicle was needed and represented a good buy.

Early in the meeting, council members heard a report from James O. VanHoose, chairman of the Festival of FACES committee. VanHoose said this year's festival promises to be much bigger than last year, and he indicated that a tour group from Cincinnati has already contacted him about coming.

He asked the council for permission to have downtown streets and parking lots closed for use by the festival on Saturday, May 19, and to waive permits on concessions. Callihan made the motion to grant the request, and Dr. Gary Brown seconded it. All council members voted in favor.

Also appearing before council was Kevin Shannon of Gateway Counseling, who informed of his organization's Employee Assistance Program. Under the program, Shannon would provide counseling and/or referrals for city employees with alcohol, drug and other problems.

Shannon said he could provide "the initial consultation free and insurance would pick up the cost of treatment."

Councilman Callihan moved that the city make its employees aware of the service, and council agreed.

Representatives of the local Animal Shelter also appeared to request permission for a fundraising roadblock on Sunday, June 3. Council agreed.

Mayor Latta announced that dates for hearings on cable television service to the city will be set and announced soon.

Public Works Director Mike Meade asked council's Traffic Committee to meet Wednesday (today) at 2:30 p.m. to look at downtown streets to make recommendations on painting curbs for parking. Latta suggested, also, that Meade take a look at the way the city of Paintsville has marked its parking slots.

Collins announced that a planning meeting for the proposed Fishathon is set for Wednesday (today) at 6 p.m. at the Municipal Building. He said that about $30,000 has been raised toward the summer-long event.

All council members were present for the meeting. The next regularly scheduled meeting is May 14 at 7 p.m. at the Municipal Building.

Bill approved by Ag committee

The Senate Agriculture Committee overwhelmingly approved a bill April 19 sponsored by Senators Mitch McConnell and Thad Cochran (R-MS) that will provide for the establishment of rural health and safety education programs.

The bill, titled the Rural Health and Safety Education Act, complements related rural health provisions of McConnell's Comprehensive American Health Care Program that he unveiled recently during a tour through Kentucky.

"The intention of this bill is to provide information to rural residents on health care. It will also make grants available for the establishment of safety programs for those people working in the farm and timber industries," McConnell said. "These are people who are exposed to many potential dangers.

The legislation includes provisions that will:

- * Provide funding for safety education programs related to agriculture and timber harvesting work;
- * Set up programs for training volunteers in health promotion and health care services; and
- * Streamline and coordinate all programs with state rural health offices.

"This legislation will help our rural residents become more aware of the dangers that confront them in the workplace and gain a better understanding of how to lead healthier lives at home," McConnell said.

KSP to assist hearing impaired

The Kentucky State Police has acquired Telecommunication Devices for the Deaf (TDDs), used with existing phone equipment at each post to communicate with the hearing-impaired.

The deaf who have these devices attached to their phones can dial the toll-free hotline or any of the state police posts and communicate with the same device there.

The system begins when a hearing-impaired person calls the Kentucky State Police and lays his or her handset in the cups of the device. When a dispatcher answers, and they will answer by voice first, a tone is transmitted making the receiver aware the device is being used.

The dispatcher also lays his or her handset down in their device and then both can communicate through displayed messages they type to each other on the device's keyboard.

Dispatchers at each state police post and the KSP Headquarters Radio Room are trained to use the TDDs. Headquarters' radio has two TDDs and the hearing-impaired are encouraged to call the toll-free emergency number there, 1-800-222-5555, to report a crime or request assistance anywhere in the state.

If that number is busy and the call is urgent, then a direct call to the nearest state police post would be in order. That post's number would be listed in the front of each person's telephone directory.

 Who passed from this life April 26, 1989

Goodbye

You're resting now, at last,
 All your pain has passed.
 You don't have to hurt any more,
 Because now you're on that heavenly shore.
 We saw you suffer for so long,
 At least now your suffering's all gone.
 It hurt us a lot to say "Goodbye"
 And it's hard not to question "Why?"
 When we remember, we try and smile,
 God knows you walked your mile.
 Maybe it's selfish of us to wish you here,
 But we all held your love so dear.
 So in these parting words we say,
 May we all see you again some day."

EVERYONE INVITED

Legislative accomplishments enumerated by local officials

by Legislative Research Commission Rep. Gregory D. Stumbo, D-Prestonsburg, and Sen. Benny Ray Bailey, D-Hindman, earned high marks in their efforts to bring needed projects home to Floyd County in the 1990 General Assembly.

The Education Reform Act will increase funding for the Floyd County School System, Stumbo said. "Not only will the school district receive additional revenue to pay for reform measures from tax increases, but teachers will also receive substantial pay increases," he explained.

Also featured in the bill are financial rewards for schools showing appropriate academic progress.

Bailey reported that each year of the biennium, 1990-91 and 1991-92 the newly created Jobs Creation Authority will receive $250,000 to use in conjunction with matching contributions from private corporations participating in the economic development effort.

Stumbo said Jenny Wiley State Resort Park will receive $40,000 each year of the biennium for outdoor drama projects. In addition, he said enough money was set aside for expansion of the golf course at the park.

"I am pleased with the appropriations to the state park because it means an improved facility that will attract more and new populations of tourists to our area and that means more tourism dollars for our business community," Stumbo said.

result of budgetary considerations, Stumbo said.

Bailey and Stumbo worked together to obtain $1.4 million to have the Beaver Elkhorn Water District system enlarged to accommodate additional water users. Another $600,000 was appropriated in the budget to extend water lines into stricken communities.

Stumbo said he was particularly pleased with the Weeksbury project because it was so badly needed as an essential service for residents. For several months, some residents have been hauling water as far as 50 miles rather than risk using contaminated private well supplies.

Bailey was instrumental in obtaining $11 million for construction of the McDowell-Gant Road, a key corridor to the vital network of highways in Floyd County.

"These projects are important to the welfare and future of the people of Floyd County. We've made headway toward improving the quality of life and opening up our county for increased economic development," Stumbo said.

Paying Tribute To The Earth

The following pictures represent some of the programs conducted in Floyd County this weekend in Celebration of Earth Day. Efforts are still going on throughout the county to conduct community cleanups. Watch THE FLOYD COUNTY TIMES for details.

Your help needed

A representative of the Floyd County Litter Task Force Tess Whitmer, assistant editor of The Floyd County Times, presented a program on the goals of the Task Force members and what they can do to help to members of the Jenny Wiley Chapter #3528 AARP. Whitmer stressed the 3Rs, Reduce, Reuse and Recycle, as a method every person could use to help with waste management. The members of the AARP pledged their support to the program. (Photo by Tom Matijasic)

Real troopers

Despite the foul weather Saturday, 32 people showed up for the Jenny Wiley "Trash Bash '90" sponsored by the park and the Army Corps of Engineers. Included among those braving the rain were nine-year-old David Rose of Spurlock and 13-year-old Tom Conn of Martin, who came with other students from Martin Elementary School. The students picked up 70 bags of trash with the help of the Job Corps, the Brew-Crew Softball Team, Boy Scout Troop #358 of Harold and other individuals. A cook out topped the day off at the Dewey Lake Downstream Recreation Area. (Photo by Tess Whitmer)

Happy Earth Day!

Children from Allen Elementary School were among many people picking up litter this weekend in celebration of Earth Day. These boys struggled with the large bag of trash they picked up along the road where a large illegal dump lies behind their school. They did what they can, and did it happily, but that dump is too much for a group of children to handle. (Photo by Tess Whitmer)

Supplying oxygen

Most folks know that trees take in carbon dioxide and release oxygen. The students at Prestonsburg Elementary School will be reaping the benefits of the life-giving gas from two newly planted Silver Maples donated by Wal-Mart of Prestonsburg. Coach Charles Collins gives James Webb from Wal-Mart lawn and garden department a helping hand in the planting process as Phyllis Allison's kindergartners watch. (Photo by Tess Whitmer)

Community Cleanup Calendar

The following is a listing of communities that have scheduled cleanup projects in their area. Volunteers are needed. Persons wishing to schedule a cleanup in their area should contact the Times office to get the date on the calendar.

Old Allen will be cleaning up the community on Saturday, May 5. Residents should meet at the City Hall at 9 a.m. to begin the task.

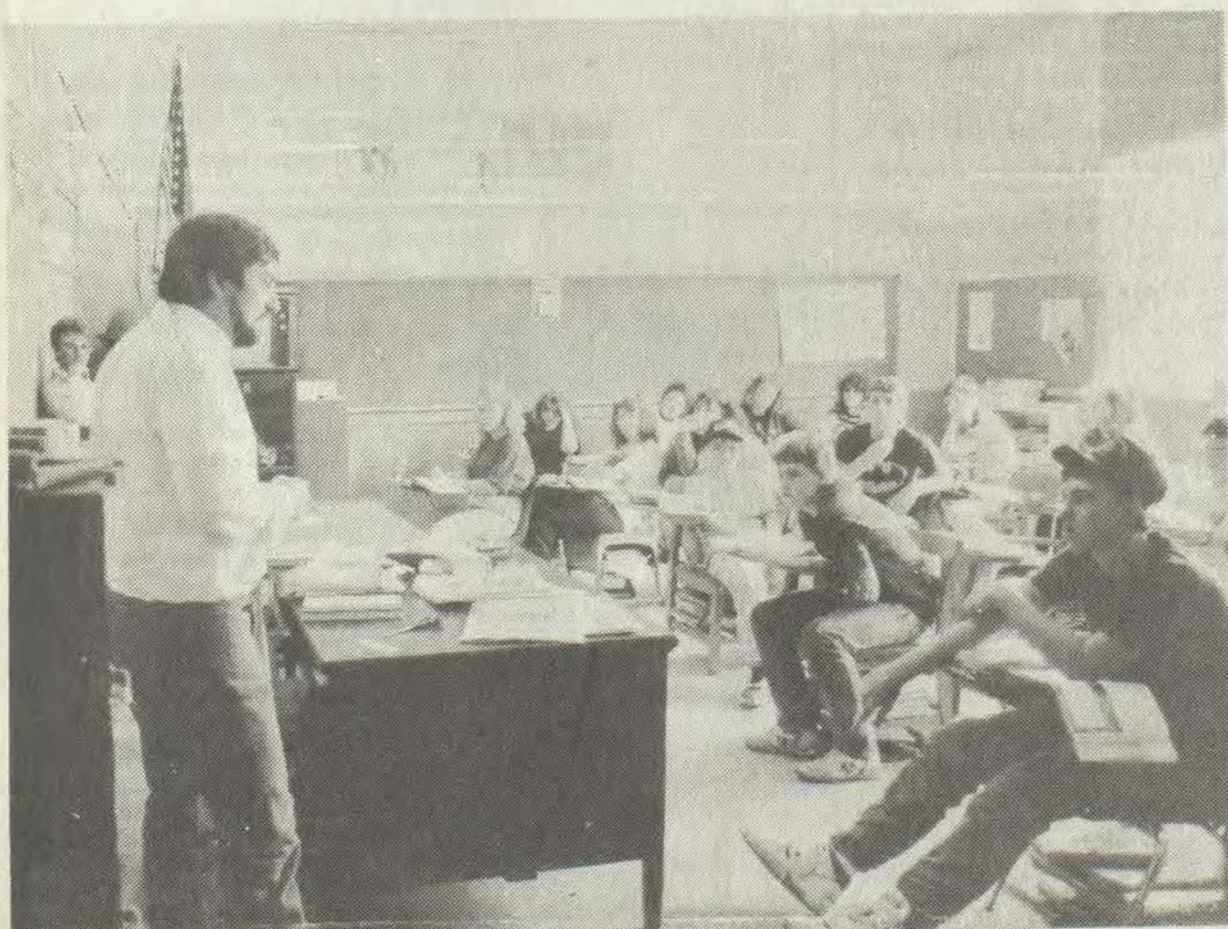

The Langley League is sponsoring a Maytown/Langley cleanup to coordinate with the countywide program on Tuesday, May 15 and 22.

The countywide cleanup will be during the weeks of May 14-25. The county trucks will follow the garbage trucks on their regular route through the county to pick up any large trash items. So set them out with your regular trash on your designated pickup day.

One for you, one for you

Charlotte McFall and Delores Smith of the Floyd County Litter Task Force handed out car litter bags and small pine trees to Mountain Christian Academy students after they gave a presentation on what it means to recycle. They asked if it might be St. Patrick's Day with all the green the students were wearing in observance of Earth Day. MCA is active in recycling products and will accept donations from any resident. Tough on garbage

Magistrate Jackie Edford Owens, well known for his tough stand against hauling out of county garbage into Floyd County's landfill, spoke before a seventh grade class at Allen Elementary School Friday. He answered some tough questions from the crowd of intelligent and quizzical youths. "We are in a bad circle if we don't start saving some of what we have," Owens noted. (Photo by Tess Whitmer)

Student Okie Thompson and teacher Sr. Anita Hayden planted young evergreen trees in front of The David School last Friday as part the school's Earth Day observance. Prior to the planting, students and teachers gathered to sing and recite poetry in praise of trees. The tree planting was part of an afternoon of Earth Day activities at the private school. Recycling Efforts it was a non-profit group they were hauling for.

So Allen next went to Kentuckians For The Commonwealth, and they agreed to be the parent organization for the program. At the present time, recycling newsprint is not paying anything, due to the low market value. But KFTC, Allen, and Mountain Christian Academy are continuing their efforts in collection.

Another person who has contributed to the project is Gorman Collins Sr. who donated a 1-1/2 ton pickup truck to haul the materials to the van. According to Allen, Collins had the truck up for sale. Allen went to him and asked him to donate it to KFTC for the recycling effort. Collins agreed to do just that.

The 58-year-old Allen also credits his wife Debbie, who carries for the Herald-Leader as well, for her contributions. His ideas for the future include getting a site, well in the public view, with good access, where persons can drop off glass, plastic, aluminum cans and paper products for recycling.

"The county could easily break even, if not show a profit, by getting a program started themselves," Allen said. He agreed that the first capital expenditure would be for a building to store material in, but noted that it would be worth the expense.

"Recycling may not be popular now, but as the word is spread and publicity is given to the effort, it will catch on," he was confident. "If the federal government would get involved and subsidize it, we would really get rolling."

When and if KFTC begins to show a profit from the trips to Lexington, officials have agreed to pay Allen for some of his time and also to buy the van from him. "But, first priority for any profits would be toward paying for gas, insurance and other things to keep the project going," Allen stressed.

A 20-year Army veteran who fought in Vietnam, Allen saw the need and did something about it. And, for his efforts he has been recognized with the first ever "Save the Environment" Award from Floyd County Solid Waste.

The plaque, presented by Bob McAninch, Solid Waste director, reads: "For making an outstanding contribution to the task of saving our environment by his constant effort at small scale recycling."

Allen was very grateful for the award and noted "I hope this goes to a magistrate or the county judge, or the group as a whole, next year, showing some effort on their part to keep the spirit alive."

Allen is interested in seeing a Big Sandy Area recycling drive, sponsored by all the county governments.

"The cleanup/beautification effort in Floyd County, as well as in Pike and Johnson Counties, seems to be catching on. And with model communities, such as Cow Creek and Daniels Creek, we are definitely seeing the light at the end of the tunnel," noted McAninch.

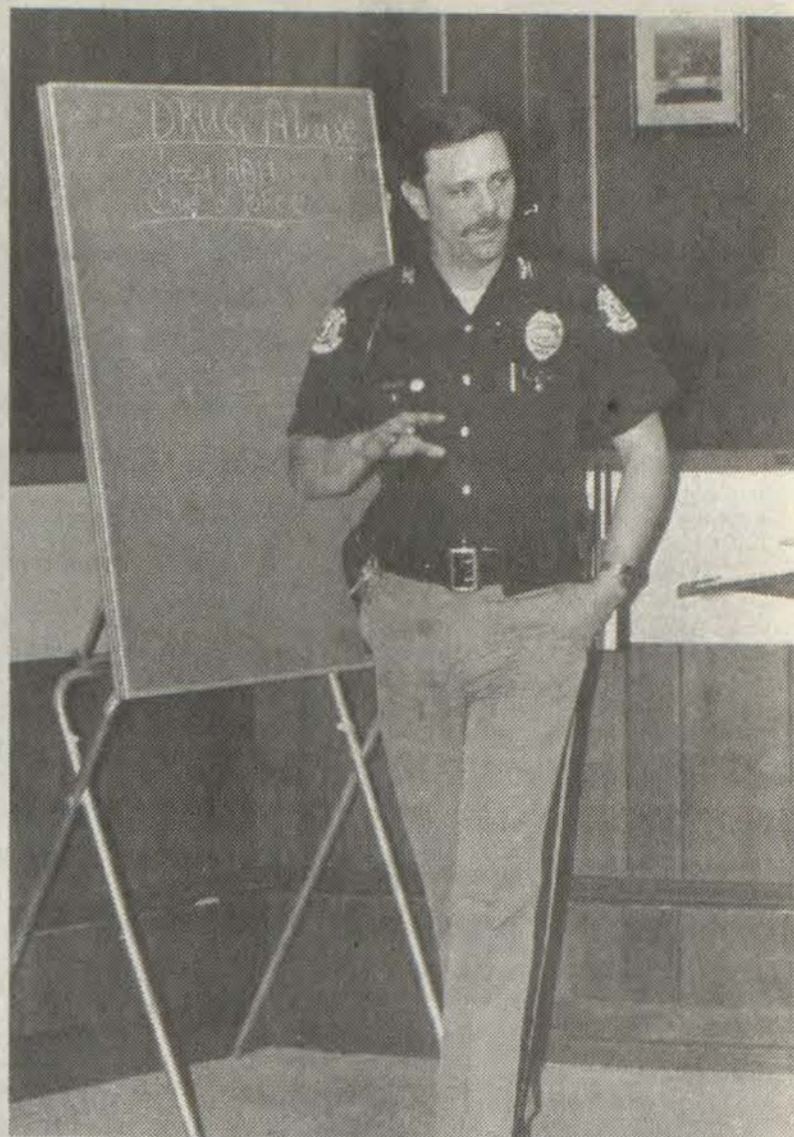

"The more recycling that goes on, the longer the life of the Floyd County Landfill. Johnnie Allen's efforts are quite commendable and he is very deserving of this award."

So, from one man with an idea to a group commitment, recycling glass, plastic, cardboard and newsprint has become a reality for Floyd County. Coupled with the aluminum recycling effort already in progress at the Mountain Comprehensive Care Green House, less and less trash is being taken to the landfill and citizens are starting to see the benefits of recycling.

An award winning idea

Johnnie Allen (front, right) noted he was very honored to be the first recipient of what is to become an annual award by the Floyd County Solid Waste Commission. Allen was presented the Save the Environment Award for his "Outstanding contribution to the task of saving our environment by his constant effort at small scale recycling," by Bob McAninch, (front, center), Solid Waste coordinator. Also present were Judge/Executive John M. Stumbo, and the rest of the Solid Waste Staff (left to right, back), Ecology Officer Cleveland Tackett, Marla Burchett, Myrna Williams, Bernadine Schrader, David Cooley, Kathy Hamilton and Vivian Conn.

Slippery roads equal more accidents

by Tess A. Whitmer
Assistant Editor

The intersection of US 23 and Music Street seems to be a highly dangerous area. With the Department of Employment Services causing higher pedestrian traffic and still other vehicles turning there to avoid the intersection further down, the need for a traffic light is evident.

Tuesday, April 17, Jeri Kinzer, 17, of Allen and Fayette Prater, 28, of Prestonsburg were both transported to Highlands Regional Medical Center with possible injuries as the result of the collision.

Kinzer was waiting to make a left turn from US 23 North to West Music Street. A vehicle had stopped in the southbound inside lane. Kinzer proceeded with her turn, not seeing Prater traveling in the outside southbound lane on US 23. Prater was unable to avoid impact, according to Sgt. Sue Blackburn of the Prestonsburg Police Department who conducted the investigation.

Two other accidents investigated by Blackburn happened on Tuesday. Melissa West, 17, of Prestonsburg and Alfred Adkins, 18, of Pikeville were involved in a rear end accident at about 3 p.m. on US 23. When Adkins slowed in traffic, West was unable to stop in time, due to slippery road conditions, and hit him.

Fred Howard Jr., 30, of Salyersville said he did not see a vehicle owned by Ralph Mullins of Waldo parked beside him in the Prestonsburg Village Shopping Center. Driving a high sitting 4x4 truck, Howard cut the corner too sharply and hit Mullins' vehicle.

A fourth accident occurred Thursday at 5:23 a.m. at the intersection of 114 and US 23 involving Terry Helton, 25, of Wonnies and Ricky Preece, 28, of Pilgrim. According to a report by Officer M. Conn, Helton did not see Preece traveling south on US 23 when he came off KY 114 onto US 23.

Preece got over into the left lane to allow Helton to take the right, but Helton cut over into Preece in the left lane. Preece said he tried to stop but couldn't.

Also on Thursday Stallard Martin, 39, of Prestonsburg was stopped in traffic on North Lake Drive when he was struck in the rear by Edgar Craft, 69, of Prestonsburg. Craft stated he was also stopped in traffic when his foot slipped off the brake and hit the gas, according to Officer Conn.

On Saturday, at about 10:45 a.m. Alvin Little, 19, of Wittensville was stopped in traffic at the intersection of US 23 and North Arnold Avenue when he was struck from behind by Doris Robinson, 59, of Langley. Again, the road was wet and slippery, according to Sgt. Tim Mullins who reported the accident.

Earns certificate

Connie D. Blevins, cardiac sonographer with Cardiologist Rodney Handshoe, MD, has completed the qualifications and exam to become registered with the American Registry of Diagnostic Medical Sonographers.

She is one of 30 registered adult cardiac sonographers in Kentucky.

Blevins trained at Highlands Regional Medical Center with Dr. Handshoe and Sharon Handshoe, RDMS, for three years, and works with Eastern Kentucky Cardiology Services.

Dr. Handshoe said that cardiology relies heavily on echocardiography (ultrasound) to make diagnoses and treat heart disease. "In order to make accurate interpretations, the operator must be highly skilled and properly trained," he said.

Blevins is married to Rodney Blevins and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Daniels of Hager Hill. She is a 1983 graduate of Johnson Central High School and attended Prestonsburg Community College and Morehead State University.

Eastern Kentucky Cardiology Services has two certified adult sonographers and one certified pediatric cardiac sonographer.

Recycling workshop slated here Monday

Those who are concerned about the condition of the environment can learn about developing a local recycling program at a one-day workshop in Prestonsburg on Monday, April 30.

Neil Seldman, a nationally known expert on solid waste management issues, and director of the Institute for Local Self-Reliance, will be the featured speaker at the workshop. Seldman has helped many small towns and rural counties develop local recycling programs.

Participants in the workshop will be addressing issues of solid waste in Kentucky and across the country and methods of starting a recycling program in a rural area. Recycling programs in other states have proven that recycling can reduce the amount of solid wastes that go into landfills by up to two-thirds.

"We're getting more responses to the recycling movement than individual efforts can handle," said Floyd Countian Johnnie Allen, who has become actively involved with recycling in the county over the past year. "What about local governments getting involved?"

Allen, who delivers the Lexington Herald-Leader in Floyd County, recently bought a tractor trailer, which he uses to haul recyclables from Prestonsburg to Lexington. He collects old newspapers from his customers, as well as other recyclables from drop-off sites in the county.

He uses the proceeds to pay for equipment, insurance, gas and other operating expenses. He volunteers his time, as do other people working on the project. Allen said he hopes that his volunteer project can eventually become a citywide, or even a countywide, recycling program.

The workshop will take place from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Holiday Inn in Prestonsburg. It is being sponsored by Kentuckians for the Commonwealth, a statewide citizens group.

The event is open to the public, and a $20 registration fee is required.

KFTC members may attend free of charge. The fee does not include a meal.

Those interested may preregister by calling the KFTC Prestonsburg office at 886-0043 or by writing KFTC at PO Box 864, Prestonsburg 41653.

Handbook for Vets offered

One of the US government's most widely distributed publications, Federal Benefits for Veterans and Dependents, has been updated for 1990.

Prepared by the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA), this handbook contains up-to-date descriptions of the wide range of benefits available to veterans and their dependents. Eligibility requirements for entitlement to benefits, the timetable for benefits and where to apply are described in detail.

Education and training benefits for veterans, including the GI Bill, veterans job training, vocational rehabilitation, and employment assistance administered by the Small Business Administration and other federal agencies, are covered extensively. Other special sections describe VA loans for home-buying vets, disability benefits, insurance, health care, what to do about Agent Orange exposure, death benefits, and benefits for survivors.

In addition, the booklet lists the address and local telephone number of all VA facilities where veterans should go for assistance including VA hospitals, nursing homes, outpatient clinics, VET Centers where counseling is available for Vietnam era veterans, and treatment centers for alcohol and drug dependence.

The location of all Veterans Administration National Cemeteries is also provided along with information on burial, headstones and grave markers, burial flags, and Presidential Memorial Certificates.

Other topics of interest to veterans describe discharge records, medals and awards, and correction of military records. Information on the new US Court of Veterans Appeals is provided.

To order, send a check for $7.95, payable to Federal Reprints to Federal Reprints, PO Box 70268, Washington, DC 20024.

Kidd's slam gives Devils twin bill sweep of Bobcats

Betsy Layne coach Junior Newsome tried to improvise with his deleted pitching staff against Greg Johnson's McDowell Daredevils in a doubleheader of high school baseball at Allen Park Monday night.

The two local schools met for the second time this season, with Betsy Layne winning the first time around.

Betsy Layne was without any of its regular starting pitchers because of their being used on Friday and Sunday in the Pikeville Invitational. Newsome had to go to his "kiddie corps" and start untested freshmen in both games. Barry Collins started the first game with freshman Sonny Johnson relieving in the third. Another freshman, Chris Potter, started on the mound in the second game.

This time the Daredevils took advantage of the short-handed Bobcat pitching staff and won a doubleheader, 19-12, in game one and 16-11 in the nightcap. Jamie Lawson got the win in the route going outing.

Bud Kidd's grand slam home run in the bottom of the fourth inning of the second game completed a nine-run inning for Johnson's team.

The Daredevils are showing people they cannot be taken lightly, proving to be a good hitting team.

Betsy Layne scored seven times in the first inning of game one, the big blow being a three-run home run by Jeff Mitchell. Danny Page drove in a run with a first inning double.

Craig Hunter led off the game by being hit on the first pitch. Hunter seems to be setting a new record for being hit, as he was plunked twice in the championship game of the Pikeville Invitational, giving him three HBP in his last three at bats.

McDowell got its offense in gear early in the first. Kidd walked and came home on Jamie Martin's home run down the left field line. Toby Vance's base hit scored Shawn Newsome who had walked for the third Daredevil run to make it 7-3.

Betsy Layne went ahead, 8-3, on Chris Newsome's RBI double in the second, scoring Chris Bias, who also doubled.

Then the bottom fell out for the Bobcats' starting pitcher Barry Collins. The Daredevils reached the righthander for 10 runs in the bottom of the second inning. With the bases loaded, Shawn Newsome roped a single to center to score Kidd and Martin.

Derrick Akers was hit by the pitch and Shannon Price hit a ground rule double that bounced over the left field fence. Jamie Lawson singled in a run and Martin, batting for the second time in the inning, doubled home two more as the Daredevils went on top 18-10.

Johnson's chargers plated five more runs in their half of the third inning off bases loaded singles by Lawson, Kidd and Martin. Page's single in the fourth inning scored Hamilton and Bias for a 18-12 score.

Lawson gave up nine hits to the Bobcats and did not strike out anyone. The right hander issued only two walks in the outing.

Hall bats, pitches Bobcats past Millard

Saying that "he was trying to go to left field with the ball," Betsy Layne starting pitcher Keith Hall hit a long drive to left field to bring in Sonny Johnson from second base, who was pinch running for Danny Paige, who had singled to open the Bobcats' seventh inning.

The winning run gave coach Junior Newsome's team a 3-2 victory over worthy opponent, Millard. The game was the first game of the second round in the Pikeville High School Hillbilly Days Invitational.

"If you notice, Keith didn't swing hard at the ball," said assistant coach Keith Henry. "He just reached out there and made contact with the ball."

The game was a quickly played game, even though it was late getting underway. Both pitchers seemed to be in control of their pitches and each survived some scares in the contest.

Millard loaded the bases on Hall and the Bobcats in the fourth inning, with Betsy Layne leading 2-1, on two hits and a base on balls. The Mustangs looked as if they were going to break the game open, but could only manage one run.

Steve Deskins opened the inning with a base hit followed by David Little's single. Jamie Damron walked to load the bases. Ronald Adkins then looped a single, or what should have been a single, to centerfield.

Centerfielder, Craig Hunter got the ball and threw to third base forcing Little, with Deskins coming home with the run, to tie the game at 2-2. Damron was tagged out at first base and Derrick Moore lined hard to first baseman Chad Hamilton to end the threat.

Betsy Layne "dodged the bullet" again in the top half of the fifth when Millard put the first two runners on base with the score tied 2-2. Designated hitter, Reed Adkins received a lead off walk and Moore doubled to left field behind him, putting runners at second and third with no outs.

Hall "bowed his neck" and left both runners stranded when he induced Jamie Adkins to ground to shortstop Adam Gearheart as the runners held. Hall then struck out opposing pitcher Terry Thompson and Deskins to end the threat again.

Betsy Layne erased a 1-0 Millard lead with two runs in the bottom of the second inning. Hamilton led off the inning with a 420' drive over the left field fence. The ball went over at the 380' mark and traveled another 40' beyond that. Chris Newsome legged out an infield hit down the third base line and stole second.

After Jeff Mitchell popped to the catcher, Todd Akers hit a bullet off the arm of Thompson for a base hit, moving Newsome to third. Danny Paige hit a sharp grounder to first scoring, Newsome with the second run of the inning.

"I was hoping it was going to go over the fence."
--Keith Hall

Hall struck out five batters, fanning two in the all important seventh inning. "Yeah, I was trying to go to left field with the ball," said the big lefthander. "It was a fastball and I just poked it to left. The way the ball was hit, I was hoping it was going to go over the fence."

Millard scored its first run in the second inning without the benefit of a hit. Deskins walked to open the inning and stole second. He later moved to third on a pass ball and scored on a sacrifice fly to centerfield by Little.

Betsy Layne threatened in the bottom of the fourth by loading the bases on Thompson. However, Hunter struck out to end the inning. Hall was the winning pitcher and Thompson suffered the loss. Hall just gave up three hits in the game and walked five. Betsy Layne committed only two errors in the game while Millard miscued only once.

Storey's 5th inning hit sends Cats past Belfry

Junior Jason Storey singled in the winning run in the bottom of the fifth inning against the Belfry Pirates to help the Blackcats of Prestonsburg to a 6-5 win in the first round of the Pikeville High School Hillbilly Days Invitational.

The score was tied at 4-4 going into the inning. John Clark, who has been on a streak of late, reached Pirate starting pitcher Shawn Hager for a base hit.

Tim Watkins then forced Clark at second base and stumbled as he went to first base, injuring himself. Watkins had to leave the game for a pinch runner. Kevin Hall then worked Hager for a walk. Both runners then moved up to second and third on a wild pitch, setting up Storey's game-winning hit.

Belfry came back in its half of the sixth inning and scored one run on two hits. After Shawn Ward grounded back to Clark on the mound, Hager hit a double over the third base bag. J.J. Hylton followed with a sharp hit to left, holding Hager to third. Mark Williamson then lofted a high fly ball to right field for a sacrifice fly that brought Hager in from third. Chris Phillips ended the inning by grounding to first.

Clark retired the Pirates in order in the seventh inning by getting David Pinson to fly to centerfielder Aaron Tucker. Clark then had back to back strike outs of Scottie Blackburn and Tim Hatfield.

Clark kept Belfry off stride at the plate with a mixture of fastballs and change ups.

Some good heads up base running by Prestonsburg helped the Cats push three runs across in the bottom of the second inning. With one out, Tucker lined a rope to left field. Jason Crisp reached on a "boot" at shortstop that rolled out to short center.

Tucker continued to third base, and Crisp slid into second on the heads up play. Tim Lester picked up an RBI when he grounded to short, allowing Tucker to score.

With two out, Ray Collins hit a scorcher that went all the way to the centerfield fence for a triple, scoring Crisp. Collins rode home on a double

ACHS scores 3 in 5th; slips by McDowell, 6-5

The Allen Central Rebels improved their season record to 5-2 with a 6-5 comeback win over the fast improving McDowell Daredevils in a high school baseball game played last week at Allen Park.

Brett Meadows, playing with a sprained neck, doubled to right centerfield to drive in two runs, to tie the game at 5-5 and Ron Leedy's base hit knocked in the winning run to give the Rebels their fifth win of the year.

Chuck Lafferty picked up his second win of the season without a defeat, and Jamie Martin took the loss for McDowell. Martin is 0-1.

The Rebels held a one run lead until the top of the third when they scored a run off Martin. Stevie Robinson opened the inning with a lead off walk and immediately stole second and moved to third on a Martin wild pitch. Kevin Spurlock walked putting runners on first and second with no outs.

Lafferty then singled to right field scoring Robinson. With Lafferty on second, Meadows hit a shot to second that was caught doubling off Lafferty to end the inning.

McDowell tied the game 2-2 with two runs of their own in the bottom of the inning. With one out, freshman Bud Kidd, who entered the game batting .533, singled and Jamie Martin followed with a double down the left field line, putting runners on second and third.

Sophomore Barry Hall, hitting a .467 clip for the Daredevils, brought both runs home with a base hit to centerfield. McDowell had runners at first and third with two outs when Derrick Akers fouled out to the catcher.

B.J. Aldrich led off the Rebels' fourth with a double. Terry Spurlock's fly ball to right field moved Aldrich to third where he came home on a wild pitch by Martin to give Allen Central a 3-2 lead.

Wild pitch helps Bobcats best Blackcats, 11-10 in 9

The Betsy Layne Bobcats advanced to the finals of the Pikeville High School Invitational Baseball tournament Sunday afternoon when they won over a game Prestonsburg Blackcat squad, 11-10, in nine innings.

However, it took a wild pitch from Blackcat pitcher Jason Crisp for the Bobcats to win the extra inning affair.

With the score tied at 10-10 going into the bottom of the ninth frame, designated hitter Jeff Mitchell reached on an error on the shortstop. Mitchell stole second and was sacrificed to third on a bunt by Craig Hunter.

Prestonsburg coach Russell Shepherd chose to walk Keith Hall and Adam Gearheart to load the bases and set a force out at any base.

With Darren Gearheart at bat and an 0-2 count, Crisp uncorked a wild pitch that got away from the Blackcats catcher, and Mitchell came home with the winning run.

In the bottom of the eighth inning, with Prestonsburg on top, 10-9, Crisp walked Todd Akers with the bases loaded to force in Darren Gearheart with the tying run. Hall flied out to center opening the inning.

Adam Gearheart popped out to third base. Darren Gearheart drew a two out walk and Crisp walked Chad Hamilton and Chris Newsome to load the bases. The freshman righthander then walked Akers to tie it at 10-10.

The game remained scoreless through the first two and half innings when the Bobcats scored six times in the inning. With one out, Mitchell singled to left. Craig Hunter was hit by a pitch. Mitchell was thrown out at third base for the second out.

Keith Hall brought home Hunter with a single to left field. Adam Gear-

McDowell took a 5-3 lead by pushing across three runs in the bottom of the fourth inning. Britt Stumbo singled leading off. Stumbo then stole second and scored on Shannon Price's double. Jamie Lawson hit a base hit down the left field line, and leftfielder Terry Spurlock threw Price out at home trying to score on the hit.

Kidd legged out an infield hit, putting runners on first and third. Martin hit a fly ball to left and an errant throw by Spurlock in left field allowed Lawson to cross home plate with a run. Hall doubled to center, scoring Kidd.

Setting up Meadows' blow in the top of the fifth, Kevin Spurlock reached on a third baseman's error. Lafferty singled to put runners at first and second. Mickey Parsons' sacrifice fly moved the runners to second and third bringing up Meadows' game tying double that scored Spurlock and Lafferty. Meadows was out at third, trying to stretch the hit to a triple.

Martin had five strike outs in the game, striking out the side in the second inning, and Lafferty recorded three. Meadows came in to pitch the bottom of the sixth for the Rebels, striking out Akers and Stumbo to end the game and picking up his third save of the season. McDowell falls to 1-4 on the year.

In game two, Vance hurled the Daredevils to a 16-11 second game victory to complete the sweep of the twin bill. McDowell scored first in the bottom of the first inning, plating three runs on three hits. Derrick Akers had a ground rule double in the frame with Martin and Vance getting RBI producing singles.

The Bobcats took the 5-3 lead with five runs in the second. A throwing error by shortstop Barry Hall off the bat of Craig Hunter, with the bases loaded, let all three runners come home. Hunter, who advanced all the way to third, scored on a base hit by Keith Hall. Hall scored on an error on the catcher.

With Betsy Layne ahead, 11-7, going into the fourth inning, the Daredevils scored nine times to take a 16-11 lead. Hall walked, Newsome was safe on an error in left field and Vance singled to bring in Hall and Newsome.

Greg Hunter came on to pitch for Betsy Layne and promptly struck out Akers. Britt Stumbo singled off Hunter to drive in Vance. After Price and Keith Shelton walked to load the bases, Kidd unloaded the bases with a "grand slam" home run to break the game open.

The double win improved the Daredevils record to 3-4 on the season. Betsy Layne falls to 6-9.

Craig Hunter suffered the loss in relief and Vance got the win.

heart then roped a double to right bringing in Hall. Darren Gearheart picked up an RBI with a base hit to left, scoring Adam Gearheart. Hamilton's base hit made it 4-0, and after Newsome walked, Todd Akers lined a singled to center, scoring Hamilton and Newsome for a 6-0 lead.

Prestonsburg came back with three of its own in the top of the fourth, scoring all three runs after two were out. Kevin Hall reached on a second baseman's error and Jason Storey struck out. Starting pitcher Aaron Tucker bounced back to the pitcher with Hall going to second.

Tim Lester then singled in Hall from second base with a hit up the middle. Ray Collins got two RBIs on a single to right center to make the score 6-3.

Prestonsburg took a 7-6 lead in the fifth inning by scoring four runs on four hits. Stuart Robinson, who has been hampered with a shoulder injury, made a rare appearance at the plate and singled to open the fifth for the Blackcats.

Hall followed with a double, putting runners on second and third. Storey then lined a double to right center, scoring Robinson and Hall. Tucker reached on a third baseman's error and after Crisp and Lester struck out, Collins scored Storey with a base hit.

Jeff Mitchell's base hit with the bases loaded in the bottom of the inning reclaimed the lead for the Bobcats at 8-7. Betsy Layne went up 9-7 with another run, which was unearned, in the sixth inning on a base hit by Adam Gearheart.

Prestonsburg tied the game 9-9 with two runs off the bat of Slone, who doubled home Lester, who had singled, and Collins who walked. The Blackcats went ahead 10-9 on Lester's RBI double in the eighth.

The loss dropped the Blackcats record to 7-3, and Betsy Layne evened at 6-6.

Newsome's double puts Astros over Cubs

Watching it go!

The Allen Astros came from behind to defeat the Mud Creek Cubs, 8-7, in the Harold-Allen-Prater Little League in a game played at Allen Park last Friday night.

Rocky Newsome's double to right field drove in James Jarrell and Wes Sammons with the tying and winning runs. Newsome hit a 2-1 pitch that sailed over the outstretched glove of the rightfielder in a bases-loaded situation.

Gary Elliott led off the inning against relief pitcher Mark Tackett, who came on in the sixth inning in relief of Marcus Hamilton, who started for the Cubs. The Cubs were in front, 7-5, going into the bottom of the sixth.

Jon Burchett then hit a scorcher to third base for the first out. Mike Collins laced a hit to center, and Jarrell and Sammons drew walks to load the bases. John Ortega, who entered the game batting for Spurlock, walked on a 3-2 count, to force in Collins to make the score 7-6. Newsome then won the game with his double to right.

The Cubs had taken a 7-5 lead in the top of the sixth after trailing 5-4. Mark Tackett got an infield hit on a bouncer to shortstop. Lance Jones then roped a hit to left field, and a walk to Chris Newsome loaded the bases.

Newsome, who came on to pitch for the Astros in the third with one out, struck out Marcus Hamilton. Joe Bryant then singled to right field scoring Tackett and Jones, moving Newsome to third base. Newsome came in to score on a sacrifice fly to right field off the bat of Brent Tackett.

The Cubs scored first in the game on a long home run over the right field fence off the bat of Newsome in the first inning. The Cubs picked up another run after Hamilton walked, and Bryant singled him home to give the Cubs a 2-0 lead.

The Astros tied the game as they played long ball with the Cubs. Rocky Newsome reached on an error by the first baseman. Brandon Castle then hit a homerun over the right field fence off starter Marcus Hamilton, to tie the game at 2-2. Hamilton struck out the side to end the inning.

The score remained tied until the top of the third when the Cubs went ahead 3-2 on an unearned run in the frame. Newsome walked with one out. Hamilton then forced him at second base on a ground ball. Bryant reached on an error, and Tackett walked to load the bases with Newsome scoring on a wild pitch.

Keith Marsillett doubled in Newsome and Castle in the bottom of the third to give the Astros a 4-3 lead. Marsillett then was tagged out at home trying to score on a pass ball.

Mark Tackett's RBI single in the fifth inning scored Hamilton, who had walked, with the tying run to make it 4-4.

The see-sawing lead exchanged hands again as the Astros took their 5-4 lead when Wes Sammons scampered home on a pitcher's error.

Sammons had walked, and Eddie Rowe hit a bouncer back to the pitcher, who threw wildly to second with the ball going into the outfield, permitting Sammons to score. The winning pitcher was Newsome and the loser was Tackett, both in relief.

Congratulations!

Chris Newsome (44), Mud Creek Cubs, is greeted at home plate by his teammates after belting a long home run against the Allen Astros in Little League play at Allen Park. Joe Bryant (06) waits to give his "high fives." The Astros won the game 8-7. (Photo by Ed Taylor)

Bassin' with the Pros

Plan Ahead for Rough Water

Bass fishermen need to be wary of the popular saying, "March comes in like a lion..." because the high winds of spring cause rough water and dangerous fishing and boating conditions.

"If you spend a lot of time fishing, eventually you'll get caught in rough water," says professional bass angler David Wharton, "and believe me, it's not fun."

Wharton, a member of the Johnson Outboards Pro Staff and a former guide on sprawling Sam Rayburn Lake in Texas, was once caught in a bass boat on Lake Ontario where the waves towered eight to 10 feet high. The normal 30-minute run back to the marina took him three very scary hours.

"Don't panic and don't try to go too fast," Wharton advises. "Today's bass boats and outboards can handle rough water better than ever before, but you have to know how to drive them. A lot of people get into trouble because they try to go too fast for the conditions."

A basic rule of rough water navigation, says the Johnson pro, is to plan ahead and figure out where you want to go because the chances are you won't be able to drive straight to that spot.

"The worst thing you can do is drive straight into or straight away from big waves," says Wharton. "You should always take them at an angle, just like you were tacking a sailboat. This is why you should always plan where you want to go because sometimes you may actually be heading away from it."

Throttle control is extremely important when driving in rough water, Wharton adds, and demands constant attention.

"You want to keep the bow of your boat up," he explains, "so you throttle up the waves, then back off going down them. This is especially critical when the waves are coming in behind you. A big wave can push you into the next one, and if you bury the bow of your boat in a wave, you're in trouble."

"You want to ride the waves, not out run them."

Sometimes, says Wharton, running the troughs between the waves may be the best way to navigate, especially if the waves are far apart.

"You run the trough in one direction, then cross over and run back like you're making giant z's," says Wharton.

Still another solution to rough water is to beach your boat and wait for the waves to calm.

"Don't hesitate to do it if you don't think you can make it back," says the well-known tournament pro. "I've done it, and so have most of the pros I compete with."

Weather anchor

Former McDowell standout now pitching the weather

Look around Floyd County, we sometimes see things that remind us of someone we've known and have for a time forgotten about. Then we see something that reminds us of that person and we ask ourselves, "I wonder where they are now?"

Such has been the question of Pete Grigsby III. Where is he now? Grigsby, 26, a standout high school athlete, graduated from McDowell High School in 1982 where he was a four-year starter on the varsity basketball team. In his senior year, Grigsby averaged 24.1 points per game and was named to the All-State second team by the Louisville Courier-Journal and the Lexington Herald-Leader.

During his career at McDowell, Grigsby scored more than 2,000 points, was named to the All-District, All-Conference and Ashland All-Tournament team. Grigsby was nominated for the McDonald's High School All-American team in 1981-82.

With these credentials and being from a basketball family, local people assumed that Grigsby would continue his athletic prowess.

"Pursuing a career in sports had crossed my mind," said Grigsby, in a recent interview from Bowling Green. "I thought it would be fun to do sports, but I wanted to pursue something different. I guess I burned out some and although I still play sports, I just wanted to do something different."

Upon graduation from Brigham Young University, Grigsby "walked into an ideal job" at WBKO-TV in Bowling Green.

"It was an ideal situation for me," he stated. "I had graduated in December from school and the job opened up also in December. Most broadcasters who do weather have to work as weekend reporters and work their way up to a weekday reporter. I got the job as a full time weather anchor."

Grigsby credits Dale McKinney of WMDJ radio for giving him his start in the broadcasting field.

"I worked for Dale when he first opened his station," recalls the weather WBKO personality. "Even when he was building his station he was training me to work for him. That was in 1983."

"I remember a quote from Dale. He told me 'once you get broadcasting in your blood, you can never get it out.' And he has been right so far."

Grigsby, before entering college, served a two-year mission for his church. After completion of his mission assignment in Utah, he enrolled in Brigham Young University where he graduated with a degree in communications broadcasting in 1989.

At BYU, Grigsby served as a weather anchor, had his own radio program, wrote, performed and recorded music.

He has just completed his third album, "Getting Closer," which was released in January of this year and is now a top seller in the western states.

"My music is doing well out west," said the recording weatherman. "I am still doing, it but not as full force as before. I have my career to consider and some day, who knows, I may go back at it."

"I love broadcasting," he said, "because it is a new challenge for me and I love challenges. I just love to work."

Grigsby said that a typical day for a weatherman is to be at work at 1:30 p.m. and begin to prepare for the weather report at 6 p.m. "During my preparation I get updates on the weather from around the area, state and nation. I have a weather center in a room here at the studio and that's all I do is the weather. I don't have anything to do with news and sports, just weather. I take the information I gather and begin to calculate it, when it will reach our area and items like that. I also have to prepare my own graphics on the computer, the colors and numbers, etc."

"Nowadays it's much easier than before with all the computers we have," he continued. "I can, in a moment's time, tell the temperature anywhere in the United States."

Grigsby anchors the station's weather at 6 p.m. and again at 10 p.m. "In between newscasts, we have dinner and I just update what needs to be updated. And I try and change some things for the 10 p.m. newscast, so it will be a little different. Sometimes the storm areas will change, and we can announce that on the 10 p.m. program."

WBKO-TV reaches out to areas such as Elizabethtown, Hopkinsville, Owensboro and the stations biggest market, Glasgow. "We cover South Central Kentucky, as well as go into Tennessee."

In Bowling Green just a stepping stone for the former McDowell standout? "Yes, it is," he said. "Western Kentucky University, located here in Bowling Green, offers meteorologist degrees and I will be starting there this fall and it will take me three semesters to get my degree and then I will look at whatever opens up."

The Huntington, Lexington and Louisville areas are of interest to Grigsby.

"I love the Huntington and Lexington areas," he remarked.

"I started out anchoring news in college, and the weather person was sick and I filled in for them and did the weather and fell in love with it. I said 'this is for me.' When you're doing the news, you just read it and you have to be serious and look serious, you can't editorialize."

Grigsby says that he gets to spend some time with his sister Geri (also a standout basketball player at McDowell and in college), a lawyer in Frankfort, and play a lot of racquetball about every weekend.

"She has got me started in playing racquetball now," he stated, "although she beats me to death in the game." Geri was at one time ranked second in the nation in her age group in racquetball.

"When I tell people where I am from, Floyd County, they look at me strangely," he said. "But I tell them that I am proud of my heritage. There have been other people from Floyd County who have succeeded in working for the media and it is not as the '48 Hour' program portrays Floyd County."

Pete Grigsby III: full time anchor weatherman for television station WBKO in Bowling Green. Grigsby is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E.P. Grigsby Jr. of McDowell.

Small business is big topic for Morehead conference

Mildred Sanders Ruggles, daughter of the late Col. Harland Sanders, will be the guest speaker for a special conference, "Small Business Becomes Big," scheduled for Thursday, April 26, at Morehead State University.

Hosted by MSU's School of Business and Economics and the East Kentucky Small Business Development Center, the conference will begin at 6:30 p.m. in East Room B, Adron Doran University Center.

Cosponsors for the conference are the Morehead/Rowan County Chamber of Commerce, Buffalo Trace Area Development District, Gateway Area Development District and the Mt. Sterling/Montgomery County Chamber of Commerce.

The deadline for registration is April 23. A $5 registration fee is required and may be mailed to the East Kentucky Small Business Development Center, Butler Hall 124, Morehead State University, Morehead, 40351-1689.

Earlier in the day, Ruggles will speak to business classes and address the luncheon session of an International Marketing Conference scheduled that day in the University Center.

The youngest daughter of the man who built the Kentucky Fried Chicken business empire which is now owned by PepsiCo, Ruggles last summer launched her own fast food industry in England with "Miss Millie's Country Fried Chicken." The 70-year-old Kentucky native also is a broker for a well-known custom blending spice company.

Growing up, she learned the fast food business from the ground up and served as the colonel's first representative as he began marketing his product.

Additional information on the conference may be obtained by calling Ernest Begley II, general management consultant and director of the Morehead area SBDC, at (606) 783-2077.

The EKSBD is partially funded by the US Small Business Administration.

Not returning Census is costly

by Tess A. Whitmer
Assistant Editor

Nearly 63 percent of all the Census forms delivered to Floyd County have been returned, according to Nick Raybourn, Ashland District Office manager.

The county is running a slightly greater rate of return than some surrounding counties, Raybourn commented, noting that it was difficult to tell the total number of returns at this point since they are continually coming in.

As of Monday, March 26, both hand delivery of more than 183,000 questionnaires and mail out delivery of more than 14,000 questionnaires was completed in the region, Raybourn said.

Respondents were asked to fill out and mail back their questionnaires by April 1, "Census Day." Anyone who did not receive a questionnaire should call 1-800-999-1990 and one will be delivered.

Every household in the county should have recently received a "Mail Reminder Card" with the toll free number on it. If you received one and had already mailed your Census in, don't be concerned.

Preparations are now being made for a number of follow-up operations, according to Raybourn. Each questionnaire not received back in the district office will require a Census enumerator to make a personal visit to gather the information, Raybourn said. This is a costly and time consuming operation, he emphasized.

In early May, enumerators hired in each county will begin contacting "non-response" households to record the Census data. This follow-up operation could last until the middle of June. The exact length of this follow-up operation will be determined by the number of households which need to be contacted, Raybourn said.

In addition to the enumerator visits, a quality assurance operation will be conducted. Telephone calls and personal visits will be made to ensure that the information gathered has been accurately recorded. This will be done in June and July.

"The Census Bureau estimates that it will cost around $10 in salary and mileage to collect the Census information for each non-response household," Raybourn said.

"If we have 50,000 households not mailing their questionnaires back, it will cost one half million dollars to collect the information. If you have not answered and mailed back your census questionnaire, you will cost the government and your own county more than you think."

Panthers claw Bobcats, 10-2, in championship

The Betsy Layne Bobcats ran out of pitchers and out of runs, falling to the Pikeville Panthers, 10-1, in the championship game of the Pikeville High School Hillbilly Days Invitational Baseball tournament, completed at Pikeville Sunday evening.

The final game of the tournament was scheduled for Saturday afternoon and evening, but was canceled because of rain. The tournament resumed Sunday.

Runs were scarce for the Bobcats as senior Johnny Hale of Pikeville held the Cats to just three hits in the game. The Bobcats' lone run came in the bottom of the first inning on a bases loaded walk issued to Chris Potter.

Pikeville scored two runs in the top of the inning and plated one in the second to lead 3-1.

Pikeville broke the game open in its half of the fifth, getting four runs on five hits. James Baird picked up two RBIs in the inning for the Panthers.

Betsy Layne let a lead off double from Danny Page go awry in the bottom of the fourth inning. Todd Akers struck out, Craig Hunter grounded to short and Keith Hall struck out to end the inning. Hunter led off the seventh with a base hit and was erased on the front end of a double play.

Hale struck out 10 Bobcat batters in the game and issued four walks, all coming in the first inning when Betsy Layne scored the lone run. Hale then settled down and retired the Bobcats in order in the sixth and seventh innings.

The Bobcats committed only two errors in the game while Pikeville was guilty of making three.

Wheelwright Trojans fall to Dorton, 14-7

The Dorton Wildcats scored four runs in the first and sixth innings to go on and defeat the Wheelwright Trojans, 14-7, in a high school baseball game at Wheelwright Monday afternoon.

The skies were clear, the weather beautiful as the two teams took to the field. The day became cloudy for the Trojans as they fell behind 6-0 in the first inning. After the first two Dorton batters walked, Danny Wright doubled down the left field line to score two runs. Wright then came home on Doug Johnson's home run. Don Wright singled and stole second and third and after Rose walked, Doug Johnson lined a double to center field to score Wright and Rose.

Wheelwright collected two runs in the bottom of the inning with one out to make the score 6-2. After Bailey grounded out, Isaac walked and stole second. On the overthrow from the catcher, Isaac continued to third base.

Brad Compton walked to put runners on first and third. Compton stole second and Isaac and Compton scored on a double off the fence by Slone. Slone was thrown out at third base trying to stretch the double into a triple.

After Dorton went out quietly in the second, Wheelwright picked up three runs in its half of the inning to close to 6-5. M. Johnson walked opening the inning and Bobby Hood followed with a base on balls. K. Johnson struck out and Jimmy Helton hit a sacrifice fly that scored M. Johnson from third base. Bailey singled in Hood and later scored on a base hit by Isaac.

Wheelwright had runners on second and third in the bottom of the third but was unable to push the runners across as K. Johnson struck out to end the threat.

The Trojans took the lead for the first time with two runs in the bottom of the fourth inning on a bases loaded walk to Allen. M. Johnson, then singled in another run to make it 7-6 Wheelwright.

It was in the top of the sixth that Dorton did the damage. Three straight base hits loaded the bases for the Wildcats. Ray then singled in two runs to give Dorton an 8-7 lead. An error on the Trojans' rightfielder allowed two unearned runs to cross the plate and it was 10-7. Allen came on in relief to strike out the next three batters to end the inning.

Dorton scored four more times in the seventh inning to give the final 14-7 victory.

Compton took the loss for Wheelwright and D. Johnson was the winner. Wheelwright goes to 1-5 on the year and will be back in action Saturday against Prestonsburg.

third inning and picked up two runs on a base hit by Chris Phillips. Ward walked, Hylton doubled to left and Williamson walked to load the bases. Phillips then lined a base hit to right center to score the two runs.

The Pirates took a 4-3 lead with two more in the fourth on three hits. David James fanned leading off and Ward grounded to Collins at short for the second out. Hager then doubled to left center and came home on Hylton's base hit. The ball eluded the centerfielder and Hylton raced to third where he scored on a Williamson single.

Prestonsburg tied the game 4-4 in the bottom of the fourth with two out. Collins singled and came all the way home on a triple by Slone.

Clark was the winning pitcher in recording eight strikeouts. Hager took the loss for Belfry and fanned just three batters. The Blackcats continued to play good defense as they committed only one error. Belfry mishandled three chances.

"We did a good job tonight," coach Russell Shepherd told his team following the game. "One player did a super job, and that was John (Clark). We are going to be a good team and one of the best in the region. We are hitting the ball good with the exception of two players. That will come.

"How good this team wants to be will be up to you," Shepherd related to his team. The win ran the Blackcats' record to 7-2 on the season. Prestonsburg will travel to Paintsville this afternoon and will face Betsy Layne tomorrow (Thursday) afternoon. Then it will be off to Ashland for a game with the Tomcats on Friday. Wheelwright comes to Prestonsburg on Saturday.

Blackcats, Cards split doubleheader, 11-9, 3-2

The Prestonsburg Blackcats continue to play good baseball, despite having to field a young team. They ran their record to 6-2 on the season with a split of a twin bill at Sheldon Clark last Thursday in high school baseball.

The Blackcats won the first game, 11-9, in a high scoring affair and lost a close one, 3-2, in the nightcap.

Trailing 7-6 going into the top of the sixth, with one out, Chris Slone, Kevin Hall and Tim Watkins drew walks off Nick Watson to load the bases. John Clark lined a single up the middle scoring Slone and Hall. Jason Storey reached on an error at second base, allowing Watkins to come home.

After Jason Crisp struck out, freshman Aaron Tucker singled home Clark and Storey to give the Blackcats a 11-7 lead.

The Blackcats were shut out over the first three innings until the fourth when they plated two runs on three hits to make the score 5-2. Crisp led off with a single, and Tucker followed with a base hit. After Lester and Collins popped to short, Chris Slone's base hit scored both Crisp and Tucker.

The Blackcats made it 5-4 with two more in their half of the fifth inning. Tim Watkins singled to get things started for Prestonsburg. Watkins moved up on a passed ball and scored on Clark's base hit. Clark came home on two wild pitches.

Two errors in the top of the seventh allowed the Blackcats to score two unearned runs. Ray Collins opened with a double and Slone drew a walk. After Kevin Hall popped to second base, Watkins' grounder got by the shortstop for one error and the first baseman could not handle Clark's grounder. Both Collins and Slone scored off the errors.

Collins was two for four in the game as was Clark. Jason Storey was the winning pitcher while Watson suffered the loss. Storey struck out five batters and Watson fanned five.

In the second game, the Blackcats lost 3-2 on an odd situation involving only one batter. Steve Bowen was hit by a pitch leading off the bottom of the fifth inning of game two. When he attempted to steal second the ball was thrown over the head of the second baseman and continued into the outfield where it was misplayed, allowing Bowen to circle the bases with the winning run.

Prestonsburg scored single runs in the first and third innings to take a 2-1 lead. Clark reached on an error in the third and Watkins brought him home with an RBI single.

A homerun by R. Maynard, leading off the Cardinals' fifth, tied the score at 2-2, setting up Bowen's base circling run in the fifth.

Prestonsburg had runners in the top of the fifth on back to back base hits by Clark and Storey. Watkins lined out to first and Tucker struck out to end the inning.

Winning pitcher was Clark and the loser was McGuire. Grayson struck out seven Blackcat batters while McGuire had one

UPSET PARENT WANTS TO KNOW WHY?

Donna Johnson of Ligon called me Monday morning and wanted to know why the Minnie Pee Wee park does not have any bleachers for the fans to sit on.

"If you want a place to sit, you have to bring your own folding chair," she said. "It is not fair for other parks to have seats and the Minnie field not to have any."

"I have been to the Martin ball park and they have bleachers there they do not use. I have never seen those bleachers full. Why can't they take one of them up to the Minnie field and use it there?"

Mrs. Johnson said she has contacted the Judge-Executive's office and was told that the state bought the property. Johnson has a daughter, Sarah, who plays on the Rangers' Pee Wee team at the Minnie field.

"Ed Caudill promised that something would be done about it, but so far nothing has been done. There are not enough fields up Left Beaver to handle all the teams in the area. I see where they are planning to put a field in Martin, when we need one up here."

The complaint of Mrs. Johnson is just one of many that has surfaced over the last two years. At the Pikeville Invitational Friday afternoon, Floyd County parents, while admiring the Pikeville facilities, were complaining of the lack of facilities in our county for our kids to play on.

And they have a legitimate complaint. For high school baseball, in which we have five teams, there are two diamonds, Allen Park and Archer Park. The field at Allen is also used by the Floyd County Babe Ruth league, which has to wait for the high school season to end before starting.

Midway of the high school baseball season, dirt was dumped on the Allen field and left unfinished. While the responsible party is to be commended for their effort, why in the middle of the season? The situation has caused high school teams to cancel some of their games, and with games scheduled everyday, there are no dates to make them up.

There are 63 Little League, Pee Wee, and Farm League teams in the county and a shortage of Little League fields.

The people in Pike, Martin and Johnson counties can be proud of the facilities for their young people to play on. They have showed they care. I believe we have officials in this county who do really care. I would like for them to show the parents in Floyd County that by appropriating funds for construction of new ball fields or reconstruction of some of our older ones.

I would like to see the old Drift ball park made into a ball park once again. This is beginning to become a "sore spot" with our baseball players, parents and fans.

"What we have to sit on at the Minnie Field is near to nothing," said Mrs. Johnson. Come on, magistrates and other responsible persons, let's do something!

Rebels score 10 runs in 2nd; win 13-2 over WHS Trojans

The Allen Central Rebels pushed across 10 runs in the bottom of the second inning en route to a 13-2 win over the visiting Wheelwright Trojans at Allen Park last week.

The Rebels had eight hits in the second inning in scoring their runs. B.J. Aldrich led off the second reaching on an error on the shortstop. However, Aldrich was tagged out for overrunning the bag.

Terry Spurlock then laid down a bunt that went for a base hit. Spurlock stole second and advanced to third on an error. Spurlock scored on another error by the pitcher off the bat of John Martin.

Leedy then singled up the middle, putting runners on second and third. Stevie Robinson doubled to left center, scoring both Martin and Leedy.

Kevin Spurlock hit a rope to left field for a double and Robinson came in with the fifth run of the inning.

The Rebels weren't through, as Chuck Lafferty walked and Mickey Parson lined an RBI single to center to score Spurlock. Aldrich, batting for the second time in the inning, singled in Lafferty. Terry Spurlock walked to load the bases. Martin had a base hit to score two more runs, giving the Rebels a 10-2 lead.

Wheelwright scored two runs in the top of the first inning on a two-run homerun by Chad Hall. With two out, Brad Compton walked, and Hall then parked the ball over the fence for a 2-0 Trojan lead. Kevin Isaac doubled, but Layne Bailey ended the inning by grounding to shortstop.

Allen Central plated one run in the bottom of the first when Hall led off with a triple and scored on a sacrifice fly by Kevin Spurlock to left field. Aldrich singled in Spurlock with a run in the bottom of the third inning to give the Rebels their final margin.

In an abbreviated second game, the two teams agreed to play until darkness fell, and the game ahead would be declared the winner. Allen Central won the short game, 2-0, to complete a doubleheader sweep of the Trojans. The game was a restart of a game washed out at Wheelwright earlier.

The Rebels got their two runs in the bottom of the first inning when Hall singled to open the frame and stole second. Hall moved to third on a wild pitch. After Robinson walked, Spurlock hit a grounder to short that mishandled for an error, allowing Hall to score. Spurlock came around on a double by Parsons to right field.

Allen Central threatened in the second by loading the bases with one out. Robinson grounded back to the pitcher who threw home for the force out and Spurlock grounded out to short stop to end the inning.

Terry Spurlock got the win and Robinson was the loser for the Trojans. The Trojans will travel to Whitesburg tomorrow (Thursday), and the Rebels will be at Jenkins.

Minor's Astros win 3 in HAP

Coach Jackie Day Crisp's minor league Astros Little League team captured the first three games of the season to run its record to 3-0 in a good start for the local team.

In the first game, the Allen Astros defeated the Dodgers, 5-4. In the contest, Sammy Nelson had a good game going two-for-two and picking up two RBIs. Wesley Sammons also had two RBIs and got the save in relief of winning pitcher John Ortega.

Chad Case was the losing pitcher for the Dodgers, going three-for-three in the game. Chris Carter and Brad Kindle were two-for-three in the game.

In a runaway in game two, the Astros mercied the Prater Indians, 21-0.

Billy Mitchell picked up the win, and Anthony Smith was the losing pitcher. John Ortega had a perfect day at the plate going four-for-four. Ortega had a double in his four plate appearances.

Two other Astros had perfect plate appearances: Sammy Nelson and Wesley Sammons. Both had four hits in four at-bats. Sammons had three doubles in the game and Nelson singled twice, doubled and tripled in the game. Mitchell had two doubles in the game also.

In another rather lopsided win, the Astros defeated the Cubs, 17-1, behind the two hit pitching of Wesley Sammons. The Astros collected 19 hits in the game led by Sammons' four hits which included a triple, double and two singles.

Seth Crisp was three-for-three, as was Sammy Nelson. Nelson had three doubles in the game while picking up six RBIs.

Russell Hall and Bret Newsome collected the only hits for the Cubs. Brent Newsome suffered the loss for the Cubs. Newsome struck out three batters in the game.

Tick season: Campers, hikers beware

It is that time of season again when dog and man must face and battle the little pest we call a tick. This being the camping season, as well as the time when you trail hikers like to take to the woods, special care needs to be taken during your romp in the outdoors.

Although dogs are the most likely choice of a hungry tick, man is not excluded from its menu. Many ticks that attack animals also annoy man.

Wood ticks are the ones that often trouble persons hiking and camping in the woods. The tick lays eggs in dead leaves or other ground rubbish. As they gorge on the blood of animals and man, they swell up. Then they cease to eat and begin to molt (shed their outer covering).

The various kinds of ticks have special names, such as chicken, cattle, dog or sheep tick. Spotted Fever ticks transmit a disease of man called Rocky Mountain spotted fever. This disease has been known to cause a few deaths each year.

Although one might think of ticks as insects, they are not. The tick in related to mites, spiders and scorpions. Ticks draw blood from their victims through a beak. The beak has strong teeth that are bent backward. These teeth help the parasites cling tightly to their host.

The most common tick-borne disease in Kentucky is Lyme Disease. If left untreated or misdiagnosed, the disease can result in painful and crippling arthritic conditions, nerve damage, brain disorders, heart malfunctions and, in the most serious of cases, death!

Important for the prevention of Lyme Disease is the proper removal of a tick that has become embedded in the skin. If the pest is pulled out forcibly, the tooth beak often will break off and remain inside the flesh and may cause a festering sore.

Our forefathers swore by some home remedies as cure for ticks. These include placing drops of gasoline or kerosene on the tick to make pulling head and all out safely.

"Not so," says Andy Pelletier, epidemiologist with the state health department in Frankfort. "We do not recommend the home remedies. To treat ticks, tweezers are the best. If you do not have tweezers, a clean cloth will do. Grasp the tick as close to the skin as possible. If you do not correctly remove the tick's head, and end up bursting the tick, it could push the poison in the tick into the skin."

Pelletier says that the state had 21 cases of Lyme Disease reported in 1989, compared to 15 cases of Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever.

"Lyme Disease comes in three stages," the epidemiologist stated. "In the first stage a red rash area appears after the bite. It then begins to expand and becomes a small ring or a 'bull's eye'."

"In the second stage, if it goes untreated, it will begin to affect the nervous system and heart," he explained. "In the third stage, which is months later, if still untreated, it could cause some arthritic problems."

Pelletier says that for prevention of ticks, those camping and hiking should wear long pants and long sleeved shirts. Pants should be tucked into the socks.

"White clothing should be worn also," he remarked, "as ticks are dark in color and can be easily spotted on white clothing."

Pelletier reminds all campers and hikers to inspect themselves after romping through wooded areas. Check hairlines, ears, behind the knees, armpits and groin areas. Do not walk barefoot in grassy areas. Avoid grassy and marshy woodland areas.

"Repellents that contain DEET are most effective," said the health official, referring to Cutter Cream, Musk Ultra. "However, it is a strong chemical and we do not recommend using it very often. Parents should not spray their children with it every time they go outside. It is not to be used all the time."

Products containing 35 to 55 percent DEET have proven to be the most effective.

So this summer when the great outdoors begins to call you, you had better prepare to battle the annoying tick, because with all the rain we have had in our area this spring, the ticks could be more than plentiful.

Just follow the advice Pelletier has given and be safe and not sorry!

By Chris Altman

"TENNESSEE TUFFY" CRANKBAIT

As bass anglers, most of us share a common vice. And that is buying new lures. We just can't pass them up. Especially vulnerable, it seems, are those anglers who enjoy throwing crankbaits. There are more crankbaits and color options than Yankees in New York City, and we want them all (the plugs, not the Yankees!).

Steve Blazer, a crankbait builder from Knoxville, Tenn., is producing a bait that has gained a loyal, if not rabid, following of crankbait connoisseurs. The "Tennessee Tuffy," as Blazer originally named the bait, is a flat-sided plug crafted from balsa wood. And there is similarity to mass-produced baits ends.

Blazer states, "When I bought crankbaits, I would buy a dozen or so of the same model just to get one or two that would catch fish. The reason some crankbaits will catch fish, and others exactly like it will not, is because of the variations in the density of the balsa wood. Plugs constructed of balsa wood of different densities will all produce different vibrations."

"Some will catch fish, others will not. I spent years developing a technique that solves this problem, and I can now produce baits with the same density throughout. All of my baits now run exactly the same way, and they all put out the same vibrations."

Furthermore, Blazer's crankbait runs with a tight wiggle not found on any mass-produced crankbait of its size. Dwayne Horton, a tournament angler from Knoxville, Tenn., states, "The Tennessee Tuffy has a wiggle that is as tight as a small Shad Rap, but the bait is much larger and will run twice as deep as a Shad Rap. I've caught largemouths over 9-pounds and smallmouths over seven pounds on the bait."

Horton credits this bait for nearly $80,000 in tournament winnings in the past few years and says, "It is the finest big bass crankbait I have ever used. I believe that the bait's tight wiggle combined with its flat sides produces a vibration very similar to a small bluegill, one of the favorite foods of big bass."

Horton goes on to say, "In the spring, summer, fall, and early winter, I pull this bait out of my box whenever I want to throw a crankbait. If you'll run your boat parallel to the bank in about 10 or 12 feet of water and make long casts ahead of the boat, you will catch big bass using this plug. I've seen fish come up from 20 feet to hit it."

Blazer's Tennessee Tuffy is equipped with a coffin-shaped bill which, when tossed on 10-pound line, will pull the bait down to 12 to 14 feet. And the quality of this handcrafted plug is impressive. Each receives seven coats of sealer, one coat of paint, one coat of epoxy finish, and four clear finish coats, for a total of 13 coats!

A stout wire running through the bait connects the hooks to the line tie, and insures that a fish will not be lost should the bait happen to come apart. Furthermore, only the finest quality hooks, paint, and hardware are used.

Blazer states, "I guarantee every bait I sell is tunable and will run perfectly. If not, I will replace it. When I started making baits, quality was my primary concern. So I decided to make the best quality lures in the market and sell them at a fair price. After all, every bad plug I sell is a customer lost."

Nearly two years ago, Steve Blazer decided to turn his hobby into a full-time business. Start up took a bit longer than he had expected, and in the meantime, he was not producing crankbaits.

In Tennessee, where Blazer's baits are extraordinarily popular, anglers snatched up the few remaining plugs off their dealer's shelves. Tennessee Tuffy plugs became a hot commodity, and anglers sold them back and forth to each other for two or three times the normal retail price.

Fortunately, Blazer opened the doors to his new bait company last year and, even though his plugs are rolling out the door as fast as he can make them, demand for them still exceeds the supply. Steve has named his company the Tennessee Tuffy Bait Company and now calls his famous plug the Double-T.

He told me recently of several new designs on which he is currently working, and personally I'm eagerly looking forward to their release.

Interestingly enough, I walked into the sporting goods shop over Regina Mine Supply a few weeks ago and there, hanging on a peg board rack, were dozens of Blazer's Tennessee Tuffy plugs. If you want to try one of these original plugs, you might want to consider driving all the way to Regina (on US 23 just before you get to Elkhorn City). Steve's plugs are tough to find, and these older versions are already considered collector's items by many anglers.

Steve Blazer's Tennessee Tuffy Double-T crankbait, which is available in virtually every color combination imaginable, retails for about $6. For more information, write Steve Blazer, Dept. CA, 332 Mountain Rd., Knoxville, TN 37920

If you like to toss Shad Raps, you'll love to toss this plug. In my experience, it consistently catches larger fish, on the average, than a Shad Rap.

Yvonne Crum of Betsy Layne, first of all, stays busy.

Between her duties at Lloyd Hardware in Prestonsburg and other notable pursuits, including flying, you wouldn't think she could find time for dollmaking.

The intricately patterned dolls are exhibited at art shows in the area as often as she can find time to create a series. She makes two types of dolls, one on a permanent form, the other a free standing doll.

"The free standing process starts with a styrofoam form. Then once the doll is formed around it, it is starched with a sugar and water mixture," Crum says. "Then the styrofoam form is scraped out."

The craftswoman manages about eight to 10 dolls per year and also squeezes in handmade flowers, wreaths and Christmas tree ornaments.

New items will be displayed at a crafts show in Huntington in December. She has previously displayed her works at the Lions Club Christmas Arts Show and at the Dogwood Festival, both in Huntington.

Crum says her interest in crafts of this type started when she worked at Maysville's Hayswood Hospital. Several of her coworkers were crocheting and they taught her a simple stitch.

"They were all older than I and probably thought I wouldn't be that interested, but it wasn't long until I got tired of doing that one stitch," she recalls. "I taught myself several other stitches and how to read patterns."

Since she was a young girl, she has liked doing things with her hands. During the evenings while watching television, she crochets. "I have to be occupied all the time, doing something with my hands."

Crum still remembers her first effort as being a "disaster," but she acknowledges that the first effort for any crafts person always falls short of the eventual level of skill attained.

A native of Middletown, Ohio, who grew up mostly in Maysville, she is the wife of businessman Greg

Stories, gatherings abounded

by Barbara P. Martin

During the new ground farming period of the late '30s, there came this story. It could be true, but I will not say that it is true. It was told by Durgan Rowe after supper at Sol D. Martin's home on Goose Creek. (My cousin Nancy and I thought it was the funniest thing we ever heard.)

A man was hired to tend the high cove and gardens for a family. He arose early and sat down to breakfast with the family. When the meal was done, he asked, "Do you have something on hand that I might eat for my dinner, and that way I can be free to work throughout the day?"

The cook looked about the kitchen and brought in a suitable meal for a lunch, which the man commenced to eat. Upon completion of the food, he asked, "Do you have anything I might eat for a light supper, as I do not sleep well after a large meal? I'll have all day to digest it, and you won't have to worry about getting supper for me."

The cook went to the kitchen again and returned again, saying, "All that

Saunders receives AARP award

Delmas Saunders was recognized last week with the 1990 National Community Service Award from the American Association of Retired Persons.

He received the award during Friday's meeting of the Jenny Wiley chapter #3528, AARP. He was nominated for the award by the local chapter's board of directors for outstanding volunteer contributions to the community.

Saunders is a charter member of the local AARP chapter and has served as chapter treasurer for the last five years. He has been involved for the past eight years in the IRS-AARP chapter joint sponsorship of Income Tax Assistance for the elderly and the chapter's "55-Alive" defensive driving classes.

He is also a county committeeman with the Agricultural Conservation and Stabilization Service and a member of the Archer Park Senior Citizens Center board of directors. He is deacon emeritus at First Baptist Church of Prestonsburg and a former Sunday School superintendent. For a number of years he was secretary of Zebulon Lodge #273 Free and Accepted Masons.

The award winner retired in 1978 as supervisor of field accounting for Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company, his employer since 1940.

Following his retirement, he worked part time for five years as a US Census Bureau survey interviewer and for a brief time as collector of delinquent accounts for R.V. May Co.

The Abbott Road resident is the husband of Edna Burke Saunders and father of the late Delmas Frederick Saunders, a Lexington attorney. The elder Saunders is a 1931 graduate of Prestonsburg High School and a 1932 graduate of Boote Business School. He also attended Berea College and Caney Junior College.

The AARP award is presented each year during National Volunteer Week to recognize exceptional volunteer service of one individual or couple from each of the association's more than 4000 local chapters. The group's motto is "To serve, not to be served."

SAR to meet

The Ashland chapter of the Kentucky Society, Sons of the American Revolution, will hold its spring luncheon-meeting, jointly with the John Graham chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, at May Lodge, Saturday, April 28, at noon.

Grits Lover's Prayer
Our Father, watchin' my kitchen,
Please help me understand
Why some folks just don't take to grits
Like I know you planned.

Perhaps it's 'cause they missed out —
Through no fault of their own,
Their mamas served 'em oatmeal
'Til they were nearly grown.

For that I cannot blame them and since it's not too late,
I pray some good soul finds them
And puts grits upon their plate.

I'm sure there are grits in heaven
And angels are eatin' 'em right.
But there are not grits below us
'Cept those burned black as night.
(From Martha White's Southern Sampler Cookbook)

The other day as I was going through some recipes trying to decide what to put together for this week's County Kettle, my editor mentioned that she loves grits and especially Cheese Grit Casserole. So, this one's for you, Pam. Here are all the cheese grits casserole recipes I could find. I'm sure you'll find one you like.

Most folks think grits are for breakfast only — always served with a couple of fried eggs, country ham and redeye gravy.

But give grits a chance — they're great for dinner, too. Just imagine a spicy casserole flavored with sharp cheddar and jalapeno cheeses, fresh jalapeno pepper and a dash of Worcestershire sauce with creamy grits. There's no need to serve any meat with this hearty Southwestern-style casserole. Simply pair with a beautiful green salad and hot, crusty rolls and your dinner is complete.

JALAPENO CHEESE GRITS CASSEROLE

4 cups water
1 tsp salt
1 cup Jim Dandy Quick Grits
2 cups (8 oz.) grated sharp cheddar cheese
1 roll (6 oz.) jalapeno cheese
1/2 cup (1 stick) butter or margarine
3 eggs, lightly beaten
2 Tbsps chopped jalapeno pepper
1 Tbsp Worcestershire sauce
Paprika

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease a 2-quart baking dish. Bring water and salt to a boil in large saucepan, stirring occasionally. Remove pan from heat. Stir in cheeses and butter until melted. Add eggs, jalapeno pepper and Worcestershire sauce; blend well.

Pour mixture into prepared dish. Sprinkle with paprika as desired. Bake for 40 to 45 minutes or until set. Cool for 10 minutes before serving. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Here's another twist on the cheese grits casserole.

CHEESE GRITS CASSEROLE

4 cups water
1 tsp salt
1 cup Martha White Quick Grits
4 eggs, lightly beaten
1-1/4 cups (5 oz.) grated sharp cheddar cheese, divided
1 cup milk
1/2 cup butter or margarine
Dash cayenne

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease 2-quart casserole; set aside. Bring water and salt to boil in large saucepan. Slowly stir in grits; cook 4 to 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat. Stir small amount grits mixture into eggs. Return all to saucepan. Add 1 cup cheese, milk, butter and cayenne; blend well. Pour into prepared casserole. Sprinkle with remaining 1/4 cup cheese. Bake 1 hour, or until cheese is golden brown. Makes 6-8 servings.

* This recipe is very nutritious. Cheese and eggs provide an abundance of protein and the grits are a good source of carbohydrates. The cheese and milk are calcium boosters.

* The casserole may be prepared ahead. Prepare according to directions, but do not cook. Refrigerate until needed; then bake according to directions.

* Menu suggestion: Cheese Grit Casserole, bacon and sausage, fresh strawberries and piping hot biscuits, made from a biscuit mix for convenience.

BOTTOMLESS GRITS, HAM AND CUSTARD TART

2 Tbsps unsalted butter
1 shallot, minced
1 cup diced cooked ham
2 tsps Madeira
1 cup milk, heated
1 cup homemade chicken stock or canned broth, heated
1/2 tsp freshly grated nutmeg
1/2 cup hominy grits
3 eggs, lightly beaten
1/4 cup heavy or whipping cream
1/3 cup plus 2 Tbsps grated Gruyere cheese
Freshly ground black pepper to taste

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Lightly butter a 10-inch glass or ceramic quiche pan.

Melt the butter in a medium-size skillet over medium heat. Add the shallot; cook 2 minutes. Add the ham; cook 2 minutes longer. Stir in the Madeira, and continue to cook until almost all liquid has evaporated, about 5 minutes.

Add the hot milk, hot chicken stock, and nutmeg to the ham mixture and heat to boiling. Reduce the heat, stir in the grits, and cook, stirring constantly, over low heat until creamy in texture, about 10 minutes.

Remove from the heat and beat in the eggs, cream and the 1/3 cup Gruyere. Pour the mixture into the prepared quiche dish. Sprinkle with the 2 Tbsps cheese and pepper to taste. Bake until golden, 20-25 minutes.

COUNTRY GRITS & SAUSAGE

2 cups water
1/2 cup Jim Dandy Quick Grits
4 cups (16 oz.) shredded extra sharp cheddar cheese
4 eggs, beaten
1 cup milk
1/2 tsp dried thyme
1/8 tsp garlic salt
2 lbs. mild bulk pork sausage, brotored and drained
Tomato slices, parsley sprigs (optional)

Bring water to boil in large saucepan. Slowly stir in grits; cook for 4 to 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add cheese and stir until melted. Combine eggs, milk, thyme and garlic salt; mix well. Add a small amount of hot grits mixture to egg mixture. Stir egg mixture into remaining grits. Stir in sausage. Pour into a 13x9x2-inch baking dish. Cover and refrigerate overnight. Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Remove from refrigerator and let stand 15 minutes. Bake 50 to 55 minutes or until set. Garnish with tomato slices and parsley, if desired. Makes 8 servings.

DANDY SWISS GRITS BAKE

2 cups milk
1 cup Gruyere or Swiss cheese, shredded
1/2 cup Jim Dandy Quick Grits
Salt and pepper to taste
1/2 cup butter or margarine
1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Bring milk to boil in saucepan; add cheese, stirring until cheese melts. Add grits to cheese mixture, stirring until thick. Add salt and pepper, as desired. Remove pan from heat. Add butter and beat at high speed with a mixer for three minutes. Pour into greased 1-quart baking dish; sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Bake for 30 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

AARPLEARNS ABOUT LITTER WOES, SAUNDERS HONORED
The Jenny Wiley Chapter #3528 AARP held its regular monthly dinner-meeting Friday, April 20 at 5:30 p.m. at the Highlands Regional Medical Center.

Dorothy Osborne, president, presided. After welcoming those in attendance she gave the roll call, led the Pledge of Allegiance and reminded the members that the motto of this organization is: "To serve—not to be served."

Orville Cooley, former president, gave the invocation. Following the dinner in the cafeteria, the group adjourned to the Floyd Room where the president presented Otela Smiley, program chairperson, who in turn, introduced Tess Whitmer, assistant editor of The Floyd County Times, who represented the newly-formed Litter Task Force of Floyd County, as guest speaker.

Whitmer gave an in-depth report on activities taking place throughout this county in an effort to clean up an abundance of litter and roadside dumps, and cited several examples of outstanding work already being done in this endeavor.

She said that the 3-Rs of this program are: Reduce, Reuse and Recycle, and added that The Floyd County Times, of which Marty Backus serves as publisher, is printed on 100 percent recycled paper. (Backus is chairperson of the Floyd County Litter Task Force.)

The speaker used diagrams and several other visual aids to illustrate the seriousness of this project. Her genuine concern was evident and was carried over to the group, which later in the meeting agreed to make a resolution supporting the Floyd County Litter Task Force. The speaker was accompanied by Tom Matijasik who took photographs of this event.

On behalf of the group, Orville Cooley, presented to Delmas Saunders, the National AARP Award for service this community, citing volunteer services such as the making of IRS tax reports for those who need these services, work with the "55 Alive" Driver's Training Courses, raising money for the purchase of Christmas gifts for a nursing home, and other worthwhile projects, which according to the award, "Embraces the spirit of the motto of the AARP."

It was announced that a Driver's Training Course would be offered from May 25 - June 10, if enough people showed an interest. It was asked that those wishing to enroll contact Saunders.

Brief discussions concerning matters relating to this organization were heard from Dorothy Osborne, Otela Smiley, Rebecca Rasnick, Gladys Allen, Doug Fitzpatrick, Orville and Gladys Cooley and others.

is really appropriate is this 1/4 of a butterscotch pie."

He said, "That will be just fine," and he proceeded to eat the pie.

When the last of the dessert was eaten, the family expected the man to leave for his duties in the fields, but instead he went out to the porch, and sat down contentedly in the swing.

The head of the household asked, anxiously, "Are you going to your work?"

The hired hand replied, "Sir, I am not accustomed to work after supper."

The menfolk in this area were the ultimate word of authority, but the woman pulled the wool over her man's eyes when she felt strongly in the opposite direction.

She was devoted to him and if there was only one piece of chicken left at supper, she would save it for his lunch bucket, which she packed the next morning.

Most of the men would seek employment in public places. The gas and coal companies were main sources of their employment, but many were in business for themselves, helping others with their skills. With the men working away from home, the women had control of the homeplace. Some men boarded away and were gone all week.

Our family males were carpenters and some were well diggers, who were also stone masons. There were no manmade building block in the older days. Brick was too expensive for the average family, so native stone was the major material used in masonry. Wells were walled up with precision matched rocks.

Female senior citizens were called Granny or Aunt. They were expected to wear dark-colored dresses with long sleeves which came to their ankles. Their untinted, long hair was piled high on their head or collected in a knot at the back of their neck. The very old wore bonnets with light colored aprons.

In the pocket of their very clean apron, many carried a five-cent box of matches and a clay pipe which was gray in color. They lit up while resting or visiting with others.

The church times were arranged so that several communities would be served one Sunday each month by the same ministers, and the brothers and sisters of the church visited the other churches, in turn, making a huge gathering at the church houses each church time.

Since they were held all day both

Saturday and Sunday, outside toilets were in frequent use. Sometimes crowds gathered around them, and long waits were common to enter the building for relief.

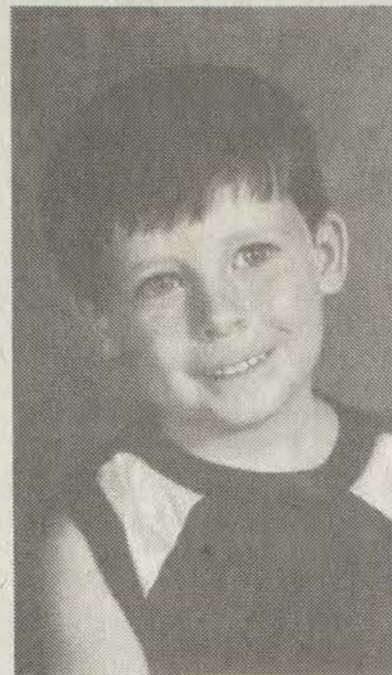

On one such occasion when I was about 12 years old, my little sister and I joined such a line behind two ladies fitting the above description. They had waited for 15 minutes with no end in sight for their turn to enter.

They expressed concern for being absent so long from the meeting, as the most important observance was about to occur without them. They debated as to what they should do and decided they had to take a particular course of action — we didn't understand what at the moment.

We heard them mention picking a time when the wind was still to prevent messing up their dress skirts. Then they began to laugh and we heard the sound of water pouring onto the ground and saw it splatter on their high top shoes. At the time, I thought they had poured out their drinking water, which they carried in a huge handbag. Later, we realized they had simply spared themselves further waiting in the toilet line.

Along with churchtime came preparations for many visitors in the members' homes, with huge amounts of delicious food being prepared. People enjoyed the companionship of others so very much that they made elaborate plans and preparations to feed and bed down visitors.

Their food was raised on their place and was quite plentiful. Missing people at meal times were saved large servings of food on the back of the cookstove, which they appreciated greatly when they did arrive home.

Dual birthdays

They also received cards and gifts from family members from Lexington, Georgia and Alabama.

When the Great Depression came, many people were saved by their practice of preserving food. During the '30s our can closet was filled with nourishing home-raised and canned foods.

In the spring, it was my practice to gather wild greens. In the many fields and along the creek grew mustard, narrow leaf dock and blue thistle, and poke sallet was along the railroad tracks. Young potato tops, cabbage underleaves, lamb's quarter, plantain, and many other wild salad greens tasted even better when a can was opened in the wintertime to go with fried potatoes and soup beans.

My mother purchased a 14-quart pressure canner for our use. My family required 30 quarts of green beans, 30 quarts of corn, 20 quarts of tomatoes and 20 quarts of cucumbers, pickled many ways.

We bought peaches from the fruit man when he brought a truck around in the spring and put up 30 quarts of peaches. Apples grew on our trees, and we enjoyed them fried in season and put up 30 quarts for winter.

Green pepper were ground up to make pepper relish, and pimento peppers to make sandwiches from ground cheese.

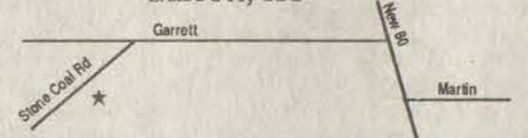

Today our can cupboard has been replaced by a smaller shelf closet that holds the last of the home canned goods. A rack holds the commercially canned goods, which I have picked from grocery shelves with price in mind. Having seen the lean years and how they affected the unprepared, I cannot help but feel a little frightened because I do not have the old security of a full pantry. Many are not able to garden, and some are not willing to

Head Start enrolling handicapped

The Big Sandy Head Start Program is recruiting handicapped children to take part in the program. Many people are unaware that Head Start services extend to handicapped children, according to program officials. Children with special needs are eligible under the same guidelines as other children. Head Start provides individualized care and guidance to children, helping them to fulfill their developmental potential. Each child is considered a unique person with previous experience, current needs and potential for future growth. The preschool program's approach is well suited to helping children with special needs — those who are seriously emotionally disturbed, mentally retarded, visually handicapped, hearing impaired, speech impaired, crippled, deaf or other health impairments requiring special education. For information on enrolling a handicapped child in Head Start, write Floyd County Head Start, 552 S. Lake Dr., Prestonsburg 41653, or call 886-1986.

Crum, whom she met during the 1970s when he was a certified respiratory therapist. The couple lived in Ashland before moving back to his native Floyd County. The artist says she tries to make her crafts as unique as possible. "When someone comes to my display table, they're going to find something different to look at," she stresses. "I don't like craft shows when it just turns into more of the same on ahead." She advises newcomers to the crafts field to not make what everyone else makes. "Dare to be different," she says. Her artistry is often on display at Lloyd's Hardware, and viewers can recognize the intricate work involved. Her dolls are finely detailed with Victorian-style attire.

Besides her interest in crafts, Crum holds a private airplane pilot's license and tries to get in as much flying time as possible. Time is a major inhibitor in Crum's life. She admits she would be more seriously involved in crafting dolls, wreaths and other handmade items if time would permit. (This interview will be featured on WXXZ's Living in East Kentucky on Wednesday at 12:20 p.m. and Thursday at 7:20 a.m.)

Pharmacy Footnotes

By HAROLD COOLEY FOR ADULTS ONLY

By the time adulthood is reached, most people expect acne to have been left behind. However, acne rosacea is a skin condition that affects men and women beginning in their late twenties. It usually starts as a red patch on the face, which is followed by visible red blood vessels and skin eruptions. Fortunately, a new tropical medication, recently approved by the Food and Drug Administration, has been shown to effectively combat acne rosacea. When applied daily over a nine-week period to the skin of 100 test subjects with acne rosacea, nearly all showed a two-thirds reduction of skin eruptions. The new drug, metronidazole, offers temporary relief and should not be considered to be a cure. It carries few side effects.

COOLEY APOTHECARY is your local pharmacy where a registered pharmacist is always on duty to fill your prescription requirements quickly and accurately. Our pharmacy is well known throughout this area as truly the "Drug Store with a Difference". Take advantage of our every day low prices at #2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106. Open: Mon. - Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-3.

HINT: Metronidazole, for acne rosacea, is an anti-bacterial and anti-inflammatory compound.

AFTERWORD

For the third year, the Kentucky Jaycees and the Jesse Stuart Foundation are distributing copies of a Jesse Stuart book to sixth graders throughout the state. This year, the First Lady of Kentucky, Mrs. Martha S. Wilkinson, is helping us with the project. The Kentuckians of Michigan have contributed, also. The purpose of the 1990 Jesse Stuart Book Project is to put a copy of The Beatinest Boy in the hands of as many Kentucky sixth graders as possible, in the hope that the story will encourage them to read for pleasure and thus help them to stay in school. It will also promote interest in Kentucky history and literature. Jesse Stuart once remarked that "If the United States can be called body, Kentucky can be called its heart." He was speaking metaphorically, of course. But the Jaycee's work on the Jesse Stuart Book Project certainly adds another dimension to the word "heart," and also exemplifies Stuart's own statement, "No joy runs deeper than the feeling that I have helped a youth stand on his own two feet, to have courage and self-reliance, and to find himself when he did not know who he was or where he was going." If you would like to contribute to the Jesse Stuart Book Project, please send your check to Mrs. Sherry Pyles, 301 Bellefonte Drive, Ashland, KY 41101. Every $1.50 that you contribute places a treasured book in the hands of a Kentucky child. Ms. Judy B. Thomas, Chairperson, JSF Contributors to the Jesse Stuart Book Project: 1990

Who's College Material? by V. Gay Herrin Associate Professor Developmental Writing

"I'm sorry Jane, but your high school grades and college entrance tests indicate you're not prepared for college," says an educator, counselor or parent. "College is just not for everybody."

Yet, Kentucky Governor Wilkinson has declared that every Kentucky citizen is entitled to access to higher education. He has even suggested a tuition free guarantee that would make two years of post-secondary education a possibility for all Kentuckians. The reality is, however, that not all would-be college students are prepared for the academic rigors of college; therefore, the chasm between possibility and reality must be addressed before an academically underprepared student can succeed at college.

This is not a new problem for Kentucky's community colleges because they are open admissions institutions; however, the problem has heightened recently since the state's universities have become more selective in freshman admissions.

Recognizing that not all students are prepared for college, for various reasons, and refusing to weaken traditional course content to accommodate such students, the community colleges have established developmental courses in English, reading and math that prepares students for a traditional college curriculum.

Without these classes perhaps achievement tests and past academic performance could better predict a student's chances of succeeding in college, but with the availability of developmental classes in basic skills and with no tests that adequately measure motivation, determination or willingness to learn, students must not be denied admission to higher learning because of past academic performance. After all, situations change, people change and learning is change.

Generally, developmental classes in college are individualized, self-paced and mastery based. The course content is individualized according to the student's academic need; therefore, diagnostic testing and student/teacher conferences are an integral part of any developmental course. Since each student in a class may be doing something different, students may progress at their own pace, depending on how quickly they master the subject.

Often students who have not experienced much academic success in the past do not seem to have a sense of how well or even how poorly they are doing, but frequent mastery based tests help them to develop this metacognitive awareness, which, in turn, develops academic self-confidence.

Many developmental students come to the classroom as weak in self-confidence as they are in academic skills; therefore, one of the developmental educator's first roles must be that of a motivator. Also, the educator must cultivate an atmosphere that encourages the student to take risks, to be willing to try again and again in order to reach an established goal. And, since success usually breeds success, it is equally important that developmental students start at a level, not too easy and not too hard, where they can begin to experience the feeling of academic challenge and accomplishment.

Once goals are set and the student gains metacognitive control, the educator becomes more of a resource person. At this stage, a successful developmental educator may wait for the student to approach him/her for further direction, for questions and for reinforcement. This way, students assume more of the responsibility for their own learning; then they are on the way to discovering how to become educated.

Using this approach, developmental classes can start students on their way to success in college. These classes are particularly helpful to students whose motivational levels have improved since high school or to students who have been out of school for several years.

This past week such a student came into the writing lab and asked me to look over a paper she had written. She said, "You probably remember me. I couldn't write a correct sentence when I first came here."

I did recognize her, but from her statement she could have been one of hundreds of students I have worked with over the past years. As I read through her paper, I commented, "You've become a fine writer."

"Thanks to all the teachers here at PCC," she said, but I could tell from the look on her face she knew that she was responsible for the change in her writing skills and she was proud of it.

I finished reading her paper, and we talked about her plans for the future. As she was leaving, she turned back and said, "By the way, I'll be graduating in May."

"I'll be watching for you!" I thought of the wonderful smug feeling I'm going to have as I see her reach for the coveted diploma and I remember she, a high school dropout years ago, wasn't traditional college material.

Physicians discuss breast cancer treatment

To familiarize physicians in Eastern Kentucky with some of the newest technologies involved in the diagnosis and treatment of breast cancer, Highlands Regional Medical Center conducted an Oncology Seminar, "Advances and Changing Strategies in the Treatment of Breast Cancer" on March 29 at the Prestonsburg Holiday Inn.

Physicians from a 10-county area were invited and over 40 physicians and other health care professionals attended. The seminar was sponsored by Consolidated Healthcare Systems.

John Furcolow, MD, internist from HRMC, was the host speaker. Other guest speakers were John Boswell, MD, HRMC pathologist; William Cook, MD, HRMC surgeon; William John, MD, oncologist/gastroenterologist from the University of Kentucky Medical Center; Denise Queen, RN, nurse educator in the HRMC Breast Center; and Linda Omer, HRMC physical therapist.

Because breast cancer is a disease affecting one out of every 10 women, it is one of the most studied diseases in modern day medical research. New methods of early diagnosis and improvements in treatment are constantly being sought.

During the seminar, risk factors for breast cancer were defined and diagnostic techniques (mammogram, needle biopsy and excisional biopsy) were reviewed. New developments in the medical treatment of breast cancer through surgical options, changes in chemotherapy and radiation were discussed.

Support services available to patients in the Breast Center at Highlands were also reviewed. Services covered were "Reach to Recovery," a self-help support group made up of women who have experienced and survived breast cancer; education on the correct way to perform breast self-exams and physical therapy aids to help prevent post-surgery swelling in the breast cancer patient.

GFWC celebrates hundred years

Phyllis Herrick, president of the GFWC/KFWC Prestonsburg Woman's Club, noted that Tuesday, April 24, was the 100th anniversary of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

"The GFWC was founded on April 24, 1890, to improve the quality of life of its members, their communities and their nation at a time when legal and social constraints severely limited the scope of women's interests and activities.

"In the Commonwealth of Kentucky, organizations have affiliated with the GFWC since 1894. While joining in the national and international activities of the GFWC, the clubwomen of Kentucky have continually contributed to the betterment of their city and its residents through such achievements as education, conservation, public affairs, international affairs, home life and the arts."

Such read the proclamation from Governor Wallace Wilkinson, who added, "We all have benefited from these activities through the years, and we look with confidence toward a continued mutual achievement in the future."

PHYLLIS JOSEPH

HRMC volunteer loves job

"One of the most important things in life is to feel that you're needed. That's why I decided to become a volunteer at Highlands Regional (Medical Center)," said Prestonsburg resident Phyllis Joseph.

"I spent 10 years as an employee at Highlands in the PBX and information department. At that time our department was located between admissions and the emergency room," Joseph said. "We answered all the calls as they came in and we were 'right in the middle of all the action.'"

"When I retired in 1988 (for medical reasons), I really missed the hospital. I missed my friends I had worked with and I missed the patients. Having lived in Floyd County for over 40 years, I felt as if I knew most of the patients or at least someone in their families."

The volunteer said that she soon became bored with soap operas and game shows on television and decided to go back to the hospital as a patient escort volunteer.

Her job entails transporting patients, keeping wheelchairs on hand in the emergency room, running errands, and doing paper work.

"My doctor had advised me to get more exercise by walking, so I thought I might as well do it constructively," Joseph said. "This way I can walk in the winter and stay warm and walk in the summer and be cool."

She added that she likes every part of her volunteer job.

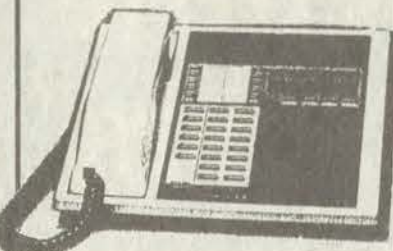

"We feel very fortunate having a volunteer like Phyllis," said admissions supervisor Ilene Stewart. "She is caring and has compassion and gives of her own time to help others."

New contests added to State Fair

Quilt-making is about to join cookie baking, amateur singing and other state fair contests in a bid for national fortune and fame.

Better Homes and Gardens Books has added Kentucky to 19 other state fairs which will compete for "Blue Ribbon Quilt Awards."

New quilts will compete in one of two categories, including hand applique and patchwork. Better Homes and Gardens will present $100 to the winners at each state fair. Later in the year, the company will select the two "grand prize" national winners and award them $500 each at the Houston Quilt Festival in November.

Quilts still can compete in other categories at the Kentucky State Fair, Aug. 16-25 in Louisville.

Bread-making with low-calorie sour cream could be worth as much as $100 on Aug. 21. At 7 p.m., the Culinary Department will present the "Land O' Lakes Light Sour Cream Dairy Blend Quick Bread Contest."

On Aug. 22, The Cookbook Cottage of Louisville will open its doors to anyone who hasn't won a ribbon in the State Fair's Culinary Department within the past three years.

Like the Land O' Lakes contest, prize money is $100 for first place, $50 for second and $25 for third.

Catalogs, including rules and entry forms, will be in libraries and county extension offices throughout Kentucky around May 15. Free catalogs will also be available on request. Write Entry Department, Kentucky State Fair, P.O. Box 37130, Louisville, KY 40233. Phone (502) 366-9592.
