Congressional candidates meet public in PCC forum

by Tess A. Whitmer
Assistant Editor

Voters had the opportunity to meet three of the four Congressional candidates for the 7th Congressional District seat Wednesday evening at Prestonsburg Community College. Cong. Chris Perkins was in Washington and unable to attend.

Present for the Caucus Club coordinated by Dr. Thomas Matijasic were Republican candidates Will Scott of Pikeville and Dr. Larry Leslie of Prestonsburg. Representing the Democratic party were Col. Gerald Cecil of Winchester and Larry Ravenscraft, an aid for incumbent Congressman Perkins.

After a five-minute self-introduction, the candidates fielded questions from the capacity crowd pertaining to issues and personal topics.

Although Ravenscraft was unable to answer many of the questions, stating he "wasn't Chris and couldn't speak for him," he did say he would take the questions to the Congressman as concerns of his constituents.

The first to speak was Scott who ran against Perkins in 1988 and lost, catching 42 percent of the vote. An environmental issue was brought before Scott, and the rest of the candidates, asking what one course of action would he take to improve the environment. A former circuit court judge (1984-88) who resigned to run against Perkins, Scott noted a program which he developed quiet successfully while a judge.

Scott said he implemented a supervised road work program in Pike County, where young men who didn't do a crime deserving of jail time but who still needed to learn a lesson would clean up the roadsides and creek banks eight hours a day. Scott pointed out that this was successful since none of these men ever appeared before his bench again. He believed that a program such as this would benefit many counties.

A veteran and Pikeville College graduate, earning his law degree from the University of Florida, Scott told the audience that since he has lived in the 7th District for 42 years, minus school and army duty, he would remain here should he be elected.

Leslie, who vows he will be a "sober and prudent congressman who opposes abortion," also noted he would remain in Prestonsburg. The local physician professes he would also take a stand for traditional family values, traditional moral values, new federalism (bringing the power back to the states and local government with less control on the national level) and financial stewardship.

"The federal government needs to be made accountable of spending and cut the personal tax burden on the individual," Leslie stressed.

Cecil also took a strong stand on economic issues. "The biggest issue to the people is the federal deficit and the Peace Dividend may be the answer to the budget question," he contended.

Psychiatric hospital on rocks

by Frank Clark
Staff Writer

Plans to develop a 60-bed children's psychiatric hospital in Prestonsburg have been frozen temporarily, following criticism by several health and public advocacy groups.

The groups oppose the hospitalization of emotionally disturbed children.

Children Care Inc., a non-profit citizen's group based in Prestonsburg, requested that the Commission for Health Economics Control defer Children Care's application for the project at a public hearing in Frankfort last week.

According to reports in the Louisville Courier-Journal yesterday, an attorney for Children Care said the citizen's group did not expect the opposition the hospital has received from Mountain Comprehensive Care in Prestonsburg, the Kentucky Youth Advocates, the Department of Public Advocacy, and several other groups.

The attorney noted, however, that her clients still support the project and wish to meet with the project's opponents before any further action is taken.

The intended hospital project, first announced in October of last year, was designed to provide an Eastern Kentucky facility for the diagnosis, care and treatment of mental disorders among children and adolescents between the ages of three and 18.

Sun and thunder

A mixture of sun and stormy weather will grace our mountain county over the next few days.

Friday will be partly sunny with a high in the upper 80s. Clouds will move in Friday night along with a 30 percent chance of thundershowers and lows near 60. Saturday looks to remain damp and mostly cloudy, with an 80 percent chance of thundershowers and a high between 75 and 80. Showers will end Saturday night and lows will drop to 60.

Sunday and Monday look to be mostly fair with highs near 80 and lows again near 60. Tuesday will again bring change, with cooler temperatures and a chance of thundershowers. Highs in the lower 70s are expected, with a nighttime low in the mid-50s.

Ah, Spring!

Spring sing

The Community Chorus of Prestonsburg Community College, directed by Michael Conley, will present its spring concert Sunday, April 29 at 3 p.m. at Mayo Methodist Church in Paintsville.

The program promises to be a musical potpourri, combining music from many musical periods and representing many different composers.

Admission is free and open to the public.

Vet counselor here

Betty Blair, a counselor for the Kentucky Division of Veterans Affairs, will be at the National Guard Armory in Prestonsburg from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. on Wednesday, May 2.

Veterans and their families will be provided counseling and assistance in filing claims for state and federal benefits. This a service provided by the State of Kentucky. There is no charge or fee of any kind.

Perkins to speak

Congressman Chris Perkins will be in Pikeville at 1 p.m. on Saturday with what he calls a "very important message for veterans." He will be at the Courthouse for anyone wishing to attend.

Oops

Maud Dye, whose remembrances of 90 years appeared in Wednesday's edition of The Times, wishes everyone to know that "when I said there were no school houses, I meant there were no school buses." She added, "I just hope people won't think I'm crazy."

No way. Quite a few of us with far fewer years to recollect make worse slips than that.

Site-based management; sharing responsibility

Part 4
by Pam Shingler
Editor

The term points up the jargon that sometimes separates ordinary citizens from the educational system. It has a vague, somewhat stilted tone. But that's not necessary.

Site-based management is a concept that's time has come 'round again. It's a way for teachers to reclaim their role in how their schools operate. It's a way for parents and community members to have, once again, a say in what and how their children learn in the classroom.

Site-based management, or school-based decision making, as it's sometimes called, is mandated by the Education Reform Act of 1990. The legislation requires that all school systems in Kentucky have this type of management in place by 1996.

In some ways, the concept is not new. When Floyd County was dotted with one, two or three-room schools, teachers managed themselves and their classrooms and parents had the opportunity to be intimately involved with the schools.

See ANALYSIS, A 3

Schools selected

Allen Elementary School and Betsy Layne High School will be the two Floyd County schools to begin site-based management next fall.

The two schools had the highest percentage of teachers voting to participate in the pilot program, soon to be required of all Kentucky schools. Results of the voting were announced Thursday afternoon.

More than 94 percent of Allen Elementary teachers voted to try the new management program, the highest percentage of all schools. At Betsy Layne High, 89.2 percent of teachers voted in favor, the greatest percentage among high schools.

A two-thirds majority of teachers was required for their schools to be considered as sites for the management experiment. Beyond that minimum, the grade school and high school with the most teachers voting for the program were selected.

Chemical tests are negative

by Frank Clark
Staff Writer

Results of air tests conducted to check for the presence of chemicals in McDowell Grade School were released Thursday, following a Wednesday picketing of the school by parents, demanding that more action be taken to determine the cause of a six-week long rash outbreak.

"There is nothing in the report that points to the presence of chemicals in the school," said Floyd County School Superintendent Ronald Hager, referring to tests conducted two weeks ago by AMI Co. of Lexington. "The report hasn't given us any new clues to the problem."

Dr. Reginald Finger, director of the Kentucky Department for Health Service's Division of Epidemiology, said that results from tests conducted by the state were still under evaluation and should be released by May 4.

"Our tests have been negative for chemicals, but our results will contain a number of interesting things. I can't release the information now

Company town like little kingdom

by Barbara Ford Ritch
Edited by Paul R. Jordan

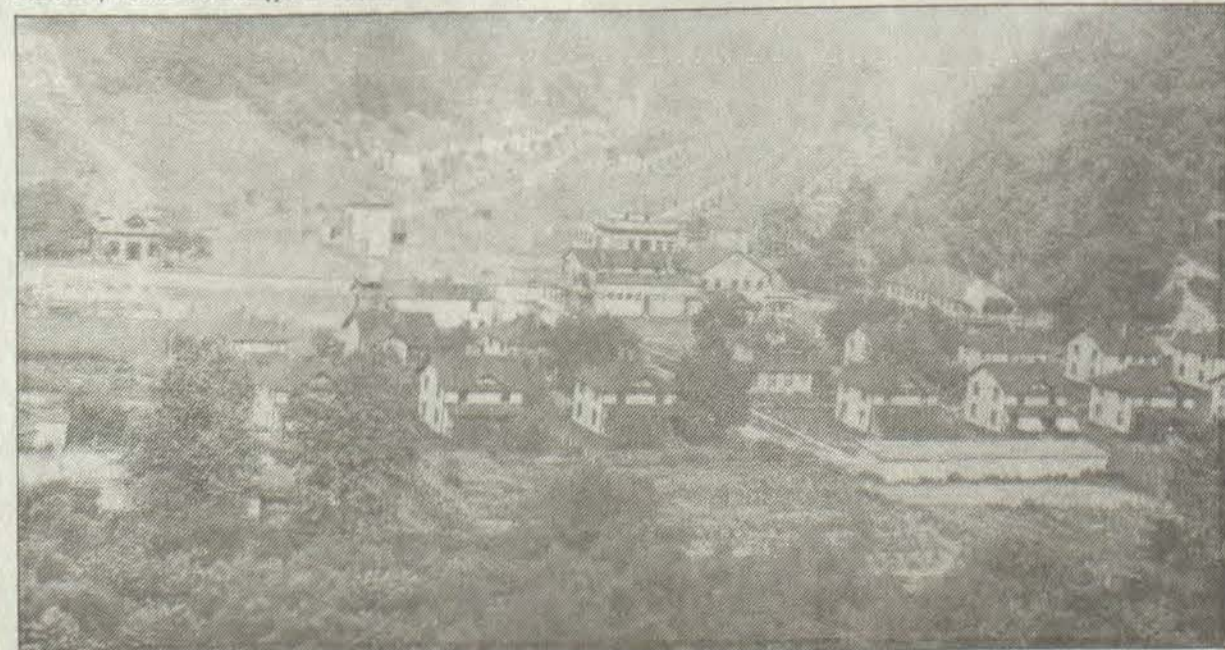

"Now, I look back on it," Eddie Hicks wrote, "the way of life there and my childhood, it's almost like a little fiefdom — where you had the lords, who were the bosses, and then you had the serfs, the miners. As children, we never thought of it that way, but it was pretty much set up in that manner.

"Everything was self-contained — the doctor, the jail house, the show house, a little boys' acre where we could have activities, baseball diamond, barber and beauty shops, company hotel, company pool room (the old pool hall was run by Charlie Graves), company soda fountain, company store, ice house, casket sheds — indeed, it was a fiefdom. There was very little private enterprise except the Cream Pitcher (a beer joint), and maybe a couple of out-of-the-way little stores up Steele's Creek,

Local homeless discussed

by Frank Clark
Staff Writer

Is homelessness a problem in Floyd County?

A panel of local social workers, lawyers, doctors and politicians considered this question Tuesday at Prestonsburg Community College during a forum organized by the Modern Social Problems class.

While several panelists held that the actual number of homeless cases in the area are at a minimum, most expressed concern that factors contributing to homelessness in other areas of the country are present in Floyd and other Eastern Kentucky counties.

"Homelessness is not so much of a problem here in Floyd County," said Rep. Greg Stumbo to a student audience of about 35. "Most people who can't afford their own housing are absorbed into the homes of family or friends. The strong cultural ties in the area help prevent homelessness."

Despite low numbers of homeless people, Stumbo sees regional problems that tend to increase poverty levels in the county. He noted that the lack of emphasis on education in the past, combined with the state's failure to provide aggressive job training and economic development, has crippled Eastern Kentucky's ability to establish a healthy economy.

Improvements in public education and aggressive job training, Stumbo believes, can overcome past negative influences.

"Education is vital," said Stumbo. "If we can educate our people and provide them opportunities to work, poverty can be overcome."

Eula Hall, a founder of the Mud

Creek Clinic, believes the problem of homelessness in Floyd County is far more real than many believe.

"In my definition, yes, there are homeless here," said Hall. "People have been forced out because they can't pay rent and are forced to move back and live in crowded, substandard conditions with their family. Here in Floyd County, we don't have

Wet/Dry vote Saturday in Price area

Voters will decide at a special election Saturday whether alcoholic beverages can be sold in Price (Precinct No. 23 Gearheart), potentially resolving the debate over the sale of alcohol, which has troubled this Left Beaver community.

The precinct election officers for the Gearheart #23 Special Wet/Dry Election will be Anna Moore (Judge), Doris Ann Hall (Judge), Hugh Fugate (Clerk) and Roger Stevens (Sheriff).

These officers must attend an election officers training school on Friday (today), April 27 at 6 p.m. in the Floyd County District Courtroom.

Inspection of the voting machine will also be at 6 p.m. in the District Courtroom today.

LEXINGTON — Three Eastern Kentuckians were sentenced in US District Court April 20, according to US Attorney Louis DeFalaise. Motor-man Oney, 53, of Salyersville was sentenced to 76 months in prison based on his guilty plea to one count of conspiracy to unlawfully distribute marijuana and one count of using and carrying a firearm during a drug trafficking crime. He will also have to serve a four-year term of supervised release upon release from prison. In a related case, his wife Valerie Oney, 27, was sentenced to imprisonment for eight months for one count of unlawfully distributing one pound of marijuana near a Magoffin County school.

Candidates

said he would have no problems cutting the military budget if that is the answer to the deficit. Having served for seven years (four active and three reserves) in the Pentagon, Cecil said he'd worked on budgets in the past. He deemed himself a problem solver because of his Army engineer experience.

Cecil vowed to be the "watchdog" for integrity and public good and to "work diligently, as I have for the past 29 years, in the interest of the people of the US."

Cecil said his platform consists of the four Es: Education, Economy, Employment, and Environment.

Cecil promised to work for a veterans hospital locally located, to bring cellular communications to the mountains and to fight for a north-south highway through Eastern Kentucky.

Ravenscraft, who is a contact point for constituents into "the big world of politics," noted that Cong. Perkins is working hard to solve all the problems in Eastern Kentucky, but stressed that this "took time and required contacts to get the job done." He noted that each year Perkins works to get funds for a highway in Eastern Kentucky, and each year there isn't enough money budgeted for the project, but the $600 million road bond would be a tremendous help.

He said that Perkins has contacts in the Congress and has developed seniority in the House of Representatives. He said that Perkins had maintained Congressional relationships with friends of his father (the late Rep. Carl D. Perkins) and also had favors owed to him through such relationships.

Ravenscraft was questioned about Perkins' voting against the raise in the minimum wage and then voting in favor of a raise for himself. He answered that Perkins was in favor of the increase in minimum wage at first, but after it came out of committee, it was lower than originally billed; therefore, he was against it.

Scott and Cecil agreed they would support the continuation of the B-2 Stealth Bomber until something else came along to replace it.

"Right now the primary delivery system for nuclear warheads is twice as old as the commercial airlines the public uses," Scott said. "That fleet will need to be replaced some time in the future. We may be at peace with Russia, but forces are building elsewhere and we must keep up a deterrent system until there is world peace."

Cecil agreed with Scott and noted that technologies are coming from the program that aren't apparent every day. "Research and Development is how we keep our edge," he said.

Both Scott and Cecil also said that cutbacks should be made in weapon systems and not personnel, unless the public wanted to absorb the cost of hundreds of soldiers being out of work.

Cecil, Leslie and Scott also agreed that President Bush's stand on Lithuania was the proper one, noting that diplomacy, tact and calmness was the right approach to the situation as of today.

On the environmental issue, Leslie said he would work toward a national returnable bottle and biodegradable product bill, as the simplest and most cost effective route.

Cecil said the key was to start in "our own backyards and to wrestle control of JTPA money (the former CEDA money for youths to get employment) back from the states and fight to make sure money is there to supply labor to pick (trash) up."

Ravenscraft also said that Perkins was "110 percent behind cleaning up and the local people need to get involved. The government can't do everything. There needs to be a community effort."

All the candidates agreed they would have also voted for the capital gains tax cut as Perkins did. They said it would stimulate investment and protect the elderly who may be forced to part with their property late in life when they had little income.

"In 1962, John F. Kennedy cut the tax rate on capital gains and almost doubled revenue paid to the federal government. Why? because there was less fear of taxation so people spent more money," Scott said.

Jury returns guilty verdict

A Pikeville man was found guilty of reckless homicide Wednesday in Floyd Circuit Court for the 1988 shooting death of William Lloyd "Bimbo" Hall of Harold, gunned down during a Saturday night bar fight in Toler Creek in 1988.

The reckless homicide charge had been reduced from a charge of murder, following Gary Ratliff's plea of self defense in the incident. He was sentenced to one year in prison and could be eligible for probation in four months.

Ratliff, 33, a Pikeville truck driver, and Hall, 30, allegedly got into an argument at Dottie's Place on the night of June 18, 1988, according to state police reports.

The argument reportedly developed into a parking lot fist fight that ended when Ratliff left the Toler Creek nightspot and went to a friend's house to get a .22 caliber pistol. Ratliff returned to the bar at about 10 p.m., state police said. Words were again exchanged between the two men, and the fight in the parking lot resumed.

Hall apparently had Ratliff down and was hitting him when Ratliff drew the pistol and fired once into Hall's chest.

Witnesses said the shot threw Hall to his feet. He ran across the Toler Creek Road and then back into the bar, where he died a few minutes later.

Ratliff left the scene and went to a friend's house, where he was arrested later that night.

An autopsy revealed that Hall had been shot in the heart and carotid artery.

Hospital

Currently, children requiring hospitalization for such disorders are required to travel out of the region to Lexington, Louisville, or Northern Kentucky to receive treatment.

Local leaders also saw local economic benefits in the project, which has an estimated price tag of $9.5 million and was expected to employ 130 workers.

Despite the alleged mental health needs of area youth, Steve Shank, executive director for Mountain Comprehensive Care, believes the Prestonsburg project would be both redundant in terms of mental health care and misdirected in its focus of treatment.

"It's recognized that inpatient hospitalization is the most restrictive form of treatment and is needed in only a small number of cases," said Shank Thursday. "Right now, Kentucky has as many beds for kids as does the state of New York. They may not be in this region, but statewide, they're sufficient."

Shank believes that a state and national movement toward community-based mental health services and outpatient treatment undercuts the need for a local psychiatric hospital.

"More dollars and attention need to be spent on community-based services," said Shank. "We should deal with children in the least restrictive environment possible. By marshaling together an intensive outpatient program and keeping them in a community setting, we can be more effective in treating kids."

Roger Meece, a consultant for Children Care, says that criticism of the proposed hospital doesn't detract from the real mental health care needs that exist in Eastern Kentucky.

"We've conducted studies over the past two to three years, and all have pointed to the need for a children's psychiatric hospital," said Meece. "We've talked to everyone, from physicians to school administrators, and they all agree. There's no question that outpatient care is required and we're 100 percent behind it, but the area must have the alternative of acute care, which this hospital will provide."

Meece also noted the economic benefits that hospital construction would bring to Floyd County.

"Your talking about 150 or so jobs, which is important to the area," stated Meece.

"I have no problems with the need for economic development," said Shank. "But I still want to have what's best for children. Community-based mental health services could be developed at a lower cost and still provide jobs."

According to Meece, the hospital project was scheduled to begin construction in the fall of this year and would require 12 to 15 months to complete. Children Care representatives plan to meet with opponents of the hospital in the next few weeks to discuss their differences.

Meece said Children Care hopes to reapply for a certificate of need from the Commission for Health Economic Control within 90 days.

City building almost ready

The new Martin City Building is nearing completion, says Martin Mayor Raymond Griffith, and will be open for business by early June. The structure, with an estimated price tag of $90,000, will contain offices for the city clerk, water clerk and mayor, as well as a conference room. Built on metal poles above the 100-year flood plane, the 1600-square foot building will replace the current 40-year-old town hall, to be taken over by the Martin Fire and Police Departments. but by and large it was company. The Elk Horn Coal Company.

"So, when you think about it, it reminded you of the medieval times when the ones who had, well, they encamped the ones who had not, and you were at their mercy. That's not to say we were beaten, for there were many fine men who were referred to as "scotchers" by the miners. Scotchers were the bosses.

"And they lived in the better houses, they usually had telephones, they had lights where the switches were on the wall, whereas we all had the drop cord with a single bulb, and indoor plumbing where we had four rooms and a path and no inside water.

"Where our duplex houses had four rooms, two up and two down — living room, kitchen and two bedrooms upstairs — they might have five or six rooms, plus bathroom. There was a great discrepancy, but hasn't it always been that way?"

Joe Hobbs agreed with Eddie, "Some of the mine superintendents were good and concerned, and some were not. This is about par with most of our present day corporations, i.e., profit is still the name of the game. But, in coal mine towns, there was a definite fence between the 'big dudes' and the coal miners. And, this filtered down to the sons and daughters in school.

"I can remember being barefooted in the sixth grade with black feet and the 'big dude' gals pointing and laughing as they ate their 'nickel' apples. What they didn't even consider was that my Dad hadn't managed any shoes yet and I had been running from one smoldering slate dump to another to warm my feet."

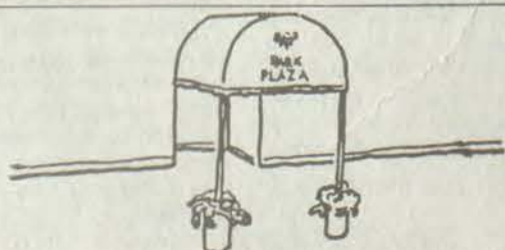

If some were color blind in racial matters, Paul R. Jordan said he was blind to social status. "I had many friends from affluent families, especially at Garrett, but I never thought anybody was above me," he said. "I thought then — and think now — nobody is 'better' than anybody, regardless of money and position.

What counts is in the heart."

"I wasn't too well acquainted with the Wayland officials," Nonnie Caudill Hoffee said, "but on the whole, the ones at Estill and Glo were always nice to me. Of course, their houses had the bathrooms, and we bathed in the old tin tubs. Our house had running water but no bathroom. Some company people were snobbish to others — but never to me." Nonnie's father, I.B. Caudill, was an independent store owner, and in the eyes of the socially conscious officials, Mr. Caudill was an equal.

Rear-ended!

Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson checks on a motorist, following a three-vehicle accident on the Mountain Parkway Thursday. The crash shook up five people and sent the owner of Mountain Parkway Flea Market to the hospital. Barbara Slone was waiting to turn off the highway onto the flea market grounds, said witnesses, when she was rear-ended by a one-ton pickup truck, driven by Brian Halbert of Langley, who was hauling a trailer filled with farm equipment. The impact crushed the rear of Slone's vehicle and pushed it 20 yards up the road, causing it to strike a third vehicle driven by Richard Kimbler of Honaker, spinning his truck around in the highway. Slone was transported to Highlands Regional Medical Center. No report on her condition was available at press time. (Photo by Frank Clark) because the data hasn't been completely analyzed. I do foresee the number of students affected by the rash to go down," said Finger.

About 150 students were reported absent from the grade school Wednesday, said Hager, and school principal Frank Pack said that 20 more left during the school day after complaining of the rash.

"I don't know if people realize these absences will affect funding for the entire district next year," said Hager. "We need patience until we can figure out what this is."

Hager said that all information he has received from AMI Co. will be sent to state health officials for analysis. Testing of substances located on the roof of the school is underway, and Hager is requesting that state health officials return to the school for further investigation.

"We'll continue to do everything that's possible to solve this problem," said Hager. "There is still no medical reason to close the school and I have in writing from state health people that the children are in no danger. We certainly won't do anything to endanger children's lives."

enough appropriate housing, or enough federal housing to take care of the needs in the area."

Hall said that her understanding of problems experienced by poorer residents of the county comes from personal experience. Possessing only an eighth grade education, Hall said that, as a child, she "...wanted an education more than anything on earth, but just didn't have the money."

She strongly recommended that all persons work to get a good education, particularly women who, Hall believes, have not been encouraged to do so in the past.

Ann Mimien, a mental health worker with Mountain Comprehensive Care and a homeless advocate, McDowell parents said they have requested that a Pike County dermatologist be present at the school Saturday to examine children brought to the facility, allowing him to look for potential rash outbreaks.

One McDowell parent said that picketing of the school will continue until the source of the rash is discovered.

warned assembled students that a college education wouldn't guarantee insight into the problem of the homeless.

"Most people from the middle class don't know much about poverty, and a college education doesn't give you expertise on homelessness," said Mimien, a former New York City resident who frequently encountered street dwellers and was arrested in Washington, DC, during a homeless rights demonstration.

"To understand the homeless, people need to see and live with them. Unfortunately, not enough people speak about or support their (the homeless) cause," Mimien said.

Analysis

which were the centers of communities.

Retired teacher Mabel Berger of Melvin related last year that in her early days of teaching in a remote section of the county, parents considered the school the center of their lives. Berger remembers mothers coming to the school to do their wash and fathers stopping by after work to play with their children.

Schools were not cold, intimidating places, laden with bureaucratic hierarchies. Parents and teachers set the tone, rather than being told through layers of hired managers what the tone would be.

Site-based management, sometimes couched as "participatory management," may not restore democracy — if it ever existed — to schools. Certainly, it can't bring schools physically back to individual communities. Bonanza will probably never again have its own school; nor will Drift or Daniels Creek or Wayland.

But the Education Reform Act does require that principals share the running of their schools with teachers and parents.

School-based decision making does not aim to bog teachers down with "ordering toilet paper," said Rep. Jody Richards of the Task Force on Education Reform.

What it is expected to do, contends Richards, is give teachers "input into decisions" that involve them.

Parents are also pivotal in this reform segment. "The whole program anticipates parental involvement," Richards said at a Frankfort meeting on the day the new act was signed into law. "If parents aren't involved, we're doomed to fail."

The radical plan requires that by July 1996 every school must have in place a governing council, composed of parents, teachers and an administrator. (Parents' groups and teachers are to select representatives.) This council will "adopt policies relating to instructional materials, personnel, curriculum, extracurricular programs and other aspects of school management."

Each local board of education must have a plan for site-based management by next January. By the 1991-92 school year, at least one school in every district must be engaged in school-based decision making.

When a reporter at a briefing two weeks ago asked task force members if principals would not balk at ceding some of their authority, Sen. David Karem became visibly angry.

Clinching his teeth, Karem responded, "If a principal has got problems (with site-based management), that's a self-answering problem. Something is wrong if they can't deal with it."

"All of us are afraid of new things," Rep. Richards added. "Once principals get into it, I think they'll be pleased with their new role."

Both Richards and Karem referred to successes in Kentucky schools that are already experimenting with site-based management. Both specifically pointed to Louisville's Fairdale High School.

"Site-based management means teamwork," said Richards.

Floyd County has already made a commitment to the new school management concept. This fall two schools in the county will begin pilot programs, a year in advance of the state mandate.

Assistant Superintendent Gary Frazier said the local school administration began looking at the program six months ago — several months before it was included in the education reform package.

Last week, consultants from the Center for Leadership in School Reform were here to advise teachers and administrators about the new management system.

"Participatory management is an opportunity for people to work together with a common goal," said Bob Cole of the Louisville-based center. "It's not a matter of robbing power from one group and handing it to another. This plan yields better decisions and better results."

Marty Vowels, also of the center staff, said, "Any time I'm involved in a decision affecting me, I do better, I'll support it more." That, she said, is the idea of involving parents and teachers in school management.

Vowels said the areas of decision-making in individual schools are generally these five: space, time, resources, people and curriculum.

Next: What do those involved think about the prospect of site-based management?

Wheelwright to apply for block grant

In preparation to reapply for a Community Development Block Grant, the city of Wheelwright has scheduled two public hearings during May to get input from citizens about the grant proposal.

The first hearing is set for Thursday, May 3 at 10:30 a.m. at the City Hall. At that time, city officials plan to solicit residents' views on housing and community development needs, proposed activities, past use of funds and to inform citizens that assistance is available in developing proposals.

The second hearing, planned for Wednesday, May 16 at 7 p.m. at City Hall, will give citizens a chance to review the proposed applications and make comments.

Representatives of Big Sandy Area Development District will assist with the grant application. Dave Gardner of the ADD staff attended the Wheelwright Council's regular monthly meeting last week to offer assistance.

Copies of the grant application will be on file in the City Utilities office for citizen review and comment during business hours May 17-24. Residents will have until May 24 to comment on the application.

Barbs & Bouquets

By Marty Backus

Why don't we let the "Muddy Gut" issue die a natural death? The Floyd County Times is still getting letters to the editor from irate partisans of Eastern Kentucky. T-shirts and caps poking fun at Muddy Gut are still on sale at a number of locations in the county.

The big city boys are gone. They've made their report, as slanted as it was, and we're left here wondering what's wrong with us. There's nothing anymore wrong with our section of the country than what you'll find up north or across to the west. This is a good county with great folks, and it's about time we take time to point out the positive strokes now taking place.

For instance, we're getting a new four lane highway that'll connect Prestonsburg and Paintsville. This will make traveling much safer, and make it easier to move in and out of the area. This brings in new business.

A new convention center is under construction at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park and is said to be the biggest such facility east of Lexington. And let's don't forget the ever increasing revenue from tourism.

Work is nearing completion on the middle school in Prestonsburg, while at Eastern, the Wayland-Garrett elementary is just about ready for occupancy. Prestonsburg Community College is getting a new science building too.

At Martin, it's rumored a major chain restaurant is looking around the triangle to locate. Just recently, a new grocery store opened less than a mile away from there on the four lane KY 80.

Allen may be getting a combination gas-mart and car wash near the stop light.

In Prestonsburg, a number of people are saying the town's drying up. All you have to do is look at the number of empty stores, they say. P-Burg is not dead, I say all small communities are losing old established businesses, as shopping centers locate on the outskirts of town. We've got three such progressive locations around Prestonsburg.

But things aren't down and out in Prestonsburg. Just look at the new FoodLyon II, now going in at the old Big Lots location. Some 35 or more folks will be working there. A new 150-car parking lot is being built behind the business which will also house a deli.

Look across the street from there, and you'll see Jenny Wiley Florist has occupied one half of the former Druther's location, with reports the remaining space is to be occupied by an insurance agency.

Right in the heart of Prestonsburg, you'll find a number of empty buildings. However, things are stirring.

For instance, Branham and Baker Coal is remodeling and moving into the former Brown's Food building, Mountain Comprehensive is gradually occupying the empty Hobbs building. Floyd Cleaners is now under new management and getting an extensive face lift.

Local attorney David Allen Barber has taken an old building and fixed it up inside and out. What he has done is what some of our other businesses should do. Spruce up the place.

The Floyd County Times has just gone through a major remodeling and expansion program to provide our employees a better place to work and our customers a more pleasant plant to visit.

One business in town has expanded to where it'll more than likely occupy the recently vacated Dollar General Store. Incidentally, the Dollar General moved up the road in Prestonsburg to a brand new building.

One rumor surfacing is about the possibility of two or three physicians taking the first two floors of the Richmond Building and turning that into a clinic.

Granted, Prestonsburg has an industrial site still sitting vacant, but it's ready for some small industry to move in. With the road completed between Prestonsburg and Paintsville, and eventually the section between Dorton and Jenkins, a person could drive from Michigan all the way to Key West, Fla. on a four-lane road. And as we know, at least from all the traffic we fight, Prestonsburg is the hub of Eastern Kentucky.

And finally, don't forget to look up river to Harold and Betsy Layne. Development, which began in Pikeville, is moving this way because there's no other place to go. I see big things.

So if all you can do is carp about the wrong things in Floyd County, why not try giving it a rest and seeing the best of the rest of where we live.

Just a note concerning the environment. As chairman of the Floyd County Clean-up Campaign, I urge everyone of you to do your part in getting our roadways, creek banks and property cleaned up during the campaign this year. We've laid out plans not to clean up just once a year, but to make this a 365-day event.

You know, it's a lot easier to hear visiting folks talk about how much they enjoyed our county, than to hear them knock the bad. Read The Floyd County Times, because we'll be giving you the dates for special trash pick ups from May 14 through 25.

By Pam Shingler

With all the emphasis on the environment of late, I can't help but think of Nannie Castle Ward, the best grandmother anyone ever had and a consummate recycler.

There's sadness in the thought because her children and grandchildren have gone far astray from her example, I among them. She taught all of us who were close to her about wasting not and about reverence for the Earth — teaching that if followed would relieve the planet of much of its enormous glut of garbage and pollution.

Mamaw's White treadle sewing machine is an example of her ways. I have carried it, iron base and all, through move after move. She said she bought it, secondhand, when she married in 1906, and her aura surrounds it.

The drawers, I remember, reflected her very essence. They stored buttons, zippers, pieces of lace, snaps and hooks and eyes. All came from articles of clothing her children and grandchildren had worn out. When that happened, she stripped everything that could be used again. She even recycled the worn cloth into quilt pieces, dust rags or pillow stuffing. Nothing that could be used was discarded.

There's something very special now about seeing a remnant of a favorite dress from fourth grade in a quilt that keeps me warm 30-some years later.

She recycled food, too, as I remember. Food simply was not thrown out. Potatoes, for instance, that started as boiled potatoes on Monday became mashed potatoes on Tuesday and fried potato cakes on Wednesday. Likewise, soup beans became bean cakes after most of the soup was gone.

She always had a garden, no matter where she lived. My job, when my turn came to be her assistant, was to pore a dipper of water into the hole she dug for a young plant (fun) and to pull weeds (drudgery).

From her, I learned the unadulterated pleasure of picking fresh vegetables off the vine and eating them right there in the garden. Even today, few experiences equal the simple joy of plucking a warm cherry tomato (we called them tommy-toes) from the vine I have planted, popping it into my mouth and feeling it ooze inside. And like her, I love to pick a thin, red pepper off the shoot and feel the pungent pleasure-pain on shocked taste buds.

No one ever had to fear pesticides on mamaw's vegetables. She tended the crops so diligently, bugs never had a chance.

Mamaw canned, dried or pickled everything she grew. Nothing was wasted — not even the cabbage stalk for which I searched in every newly opened can of kraut and chow-chow.

Every day I throw away things that mamaw would have saved, and I feel guilty. She made footstools out of large coffee cans, taping five or six together, padding them and wrapping them in a piece of fabric. She saved worn out socks, cut them into strips and knitted throw rugs. She used snagged hose to stuff pillows. She used old newspapers as shelf liners, table levelers and window wipers. She dyed old sheeting and made curtains. She mended and darned clothes, leather goods, tablecloths, dish cloths, upholstery — anything repairable — before giving it up to the scrap pile.

Conservation was engrained in her nature. She turned the gas heater as low as it would go on winter nights and relied on mounds of quilts to keep her loved ones warm. Air conditioning for her meant sitting in the shade and using a funeral home fan. She replenished the air with hundreds of green plants, inside and out, and she shared with anyone who admired her green thumb.

I don't have to wonder how she would have reacted to the waste her literal and figurative children have come to accept and practice. I know she would have been perplexed, disappointed and saddened.

Unlike her, I have not been a very good steward of the Earth's riches. But I've vowed to do better. It's going to be hard because I've grown far away from her example and I'm going to need help and encouragement from everyone else who had a mamaw like mine. But I'm giving it a try for mamaw — and Mother Nature.

Last week, I did muster courage to ask a fast food restaurant clerk to wrap my sandwich in paper, rather than a plastic foam container. I'm sure mamaw nodded approval.

Union seeks stronger law

Dear Editor,
From the very first day mankind put the concept of work into practice, risks and dangers have been present. Through the ages, technological and mechanical advances have made our work more efficient; but, hazards on the job continue to be an ever-present threat.

On April 28, the unions of the AFL-CIO will observe the second annual Workers Memorial Day to honor the memory of our brothers and sisters killed on the job.

Unions have been at the forefront of efforts aimed at improving conditions on the job. Labor led the march that resulted in passage of the Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA) in 1970. Workers Memorial Day is also the 21st anniversary of OSHA.

Unions continue to fight for higher safety standards and stricter enforcement of health and safety regulations. Unions have not settled for merely the health and safety measures required by law. Labor committees have been established to focus on health and safety issues and to encourage even greater changes in the workplace — to demand that workers have safe, healthy job environments.

Many battles have been won in the struggle to ensure workers' safety, but each victory and each injury lead to other challenges.

The labor movement is seeking a stronger OSHA law to give workers a real right to refuse life-threatening work. Before us lie the issues of fair and just compensation for sick and injured workers and new hazards that have arisen with the advent of computers, robotics and new chemicals on the job.

Each advance made on behalf of working people ultimately benefits everyone. Communities realize the necessity of controlling toxic emissions and other threats to the environment. Employers wake up to the fact that optimum productivity depends on a healthy labor force. Government feels the effects of its actions on worker health and safety issues at the polls.

The unions' efforts heighten the quality of life for everyone. On April 28, we invite everyone concerned about working conditions to observe Workers Memorial Day in a special way. "Mourn for the Dead — Fight for the Living!" is both our slogan for Workers Memorial Day and our charge as we continue to strive to ensure every workers' health and safety on the job.

Kim's Korner

By Kim Frasure

How come nobody ever told me growing up happens over night? It sure seems as though that's what has happened to my oldest daughter, anyway.

With temperatures rising in the 90s, we drug out the ol' summer clothes. "Everybody's wearin' shorts, Mom," she whined.

"Okay, okay, we'll find you some in this box, hang loose a minute," I said.

Except there were none. I mean not one pair from last summer that fit. How can this be? I spent a fortune, Mamaws and Papaws spent a fortune, and none of these shorts are fitting this child.

So, off to the store we go. It's amazing too, how much higher a 12 is than an 8 is. I mean, I know this is a new line of summer clothes we're dealing with here, but get real. And these neon colors, I was searching my purse for my shades, I'll tell you. And of course she wanted them all.

As Mamaw Judy and I tried to persuade her toward these adorable one-piece, pastel pinks and yellows she was grabbing our hands and pulling us in the direction of the Bold Blacks and Neons.

As my own mother appeared on my right hand shoulder, like a conscience always does, I decided she knew what was "in" at school, and we came home with blacks and neons.

My favorite remark from her during our shopping adventure was, "Shoo, Mommy, you're just too old!" Which, by the way, has haunted me ever since.

Oh well — out of the mouths of babes.

Cartoonist protests

Dear Editor,
Most of your readers will not know what I am talking about so I will try to update them. I submitted a cartoon to your paper which was to appear Wednesday. When I opened my paper and did not see it, I called you to inquire if there was a problem with it. You told me that there were several phone calls protesting the appearance of the drawing in the paper. You wondered why there was such an outpouring of complaints on a cartoon not yet printed. Some of these people confessed that they had not seen it but objected to it anyway because "it made fun of McDowell." I understand one person was going to "sue."

This brings up several questions. Why was the drawing done? Because the situation was unchanged in spite of efforts by the school board, parents and health officials to solve the problem. I believe the drawing helped keep the issue alive. Because there were several calls made to the paper, I believe it was an organized effort to keep the drawing from the public. I feel sad that these few individuals with "no names" exerted enough influence to keep the drawing from being printed.

As for the charge that "it made fun of McDowell," it was never my intention to "put down McDowell." I live at Price and I love and respect my neighbors at McDowell. My two girls went to school at Wheelwright but we live closer to McDowell than we do to Wheelwright.

It is my hope that the public will eventually see my cartoon in print and be able to judge for themselves if I am biased. I don't think so. Therefore, I am asking the readers to respond to my letter by either calling The Floyd County Times or writing a letter to the editor, requesting that the drawing be printed.

—Jack Martin Price

(Editor's note: This is one of those agonizing situations that makes an editor's job interesting. While it is not The Times' policy to be intimidated by anyone, the ongoing McDowell rash saga presents a puzzle of gigantic dimensions. It is an extremely sensitive issue and not one where blame can be attached to any group or individual. And the other mystery remains how the callers even knew about the cartoon.)

Dear Editor,
About 40 years ago, The Floyd County Times published a comment written by a respected and responsible man, that said in effect it was foolish to try to maintain roads up the creeks of Floyd County because those people were all going to go somewhere else.

When I read the letters to the editor in protest of CBS and the "48 Hours" airing, I wonder if perhaps we aren't really talking about the same thing.

I, too, am proud of my heritage. I was born at the very head of the Bear Branch Fork of the Conley Fork of the Spurlock Fork of Middle Creek, which empties into the Big Sandy River at West Prestonsburg.

When I read of others being educated in Floyd County, I'm reminded of a question I was asked when I was enrolling in a California high school in 1937. My answer was: I attended a school in Floyd County, Kentucky, nine years without ever having a grade or score on anything; that I always told my new teacher at the start of each school year what grade I was going to take—I just picked one; that I had at least one teacher who could neither read nor write, and who sat beside the pot belly stove, snoring while we children played the game of "Rounder" outside.

Of course, we have come a long way from that. But have we really gained on the rest of the country, or are we still miles behind?

The very first thing in solving any problem is the realization that it is a problem. I see most of our problems really as one: Education. What about the children?

I thought I had heard everything until the other day when I read in the Floyd County Times where Kentucky's Railroad Commissioner asked that his job be abolished, because he didn't have anything to do. This man is stupid, so ignorant he not only does not know what his job is, he does not know enough to ask questions to find out. Somebody should ask him to resign so a more qualified person can be put on the job. People in Dwale, I'm sure, would tell him what to do. You need judges who are not afraid to dish out heavy fines to railroads that violate these laws and ordinances.

Your magistrates should be aware of what's happening in their districts. I don't believe Floyd County has had a really good magistrate since my grandfather, George W. Skeans, was magistrate there nearly a hundred years ago. He held meetings wherever he could get more than two people together, to find out what was happening in his district. You can have all the pickup trucks in the world and ride around in them until hell freezes over, and not learn much about what's happening in your district unless you gather with the people. My grandfather did that. He also preached in a Methodist Church on Sundays.

I still can't get up the Conley Fork of Spurlock to visit my mother's grave, because of the road condition. And that means the magistrate cannot get up there either.

Re: CBS "48 Hours" ... It's good that people express their views. I still say that if Kentucky and Mississippi are in a tie for last place in education in the country and Kentucky is threatening to take over the Floyd County school system, because the county can't manage it, where is the future of our children and grandchildren? Why isn't this problem addressed in the Letters to the Editor?

You don't go to the rich to investigate poverty. You don't ask the man at the top about reports in his company or government. No, you start at the bottom and if you haven't learned what you came for by the time you reach the top man, forget it and go home. Why aren't any of the letters from the people at the head of the hollows or up the creek? You don't find many of the rich or educated among the poor.

We Keep Getting Better at Getting You Better...

Last year, over 45,000 people sought treatment at Highlands, more than double the number of 10 years ago.

Many received the more sophisticated kinds of care that simply weren't offered here in 1979, for heart disease, cancer, lung disease and sleep disorders, to name just a few.

We keep getting better at diagnosing—finding out what's wrong—with advanced technologies like mammography, ultrasound, computerized pulmonary diagnostics, C.A.T. Scan, echocardiography, special chemistry diagnostics and pathology services. There's also cardiac catheterization and phacoemulsification (a new procedure for cataracts).

Because we can now detect and identify your problems sooner, we have a better chance of solving them sooner. But that's only one of the reasons we're getting better at treatment, too.

It's the world-class professionals at Highlands, the employees and physicians who make the difference. It's our skills that make the technology work. It's our dedication that serves you 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

It's our commitment to growth that makes us keep getting better at everything we do.

Early detection combined with more advanced treatment programs all add up to saving more lives and saving more Eastern Kentuckians the expense and the stress of long trips to distant cities for the care they need.

Highlands is community owned and serves just one single purpose: To provide more and better care to our own...

Where will the children grow?

By Debra Karen Evans

This is an issue that has been bothering me for quite some time. Being lax about changing bad habits for better habits, I was able to ignore this extremely important issue. Until now! I feel the time has come to finally change these bad habits for better habits. Or will we continue destroying our Earth until we simply have nothing left to destroy?

All one has to do is look into an innocent child's eyes and ask yourself what you are doing to save this planet for them, their children, their children's children and so on. Are you going to turn away and ignore this terrifying reality of what we are doing to our Earth?

If you are concerned about saving our environment, a good time to start is this month. Sunday, April 22, was Earth day 1990. This was the 20th anniversary of Earth day. Thankfully, there are considerably more people aware of our Earth's problems today as opposed to 1970. But in my opinion, it is still not enough! It will not be enough until we all face this grim reality.

Here is a list of simple things we can do, organizations we can write, and most important, local recycling centers in our area that can help us save our planet. Remember we, the small communities and towns, are the backbone of America. It is up to us, as individuals in these small communities and towns, to start saving our planet. NOW! Next time you look into an innocent child's eyes, think about their future. I hope we all can see what we are doing to and for their tomorrows. For everyone's sake.

WHAT YOU CAN DO

- * Recycle paper, glass, aluminum, and plastic. Every two weeks American consumers throw away enough recyclable bottles to fill the twin towers of New York's World Trade Center.

- * Write a postcard to your senator or representative urging him or her to support environmental legislation. Several bills are up for discussion this year. The environment has only you.

- * Use environmentally sound products, such as unbleached paper products (bleaches contain dioxin), recycled paper (look for the recycled-paper logo), paper shopping bags (not plastic), and cloth diapers (Americans use 18 billion disposable diapers each year, enough to reach the moon and back seven times).

- * Avoid polystyrene foam products (Plastic foam cups, plates, and fast-food containers contain CFCs that damage the ozone layer), products with excess packaging (one-third of all garbage in America derives from packaging that has limited usefulness), and products made from endangered or exploited species (ivory, reptile skin, tortoise shell, furs).

- * Stop using your car unnecessarily. Walk, take public transportation, car-pool, ride a bike. Emissions from cars driven in the US account for 50 percent of the so-called greenhouse effect.

- * Think energy efficiency when making major purchases—a house, electrical appliances, a car (in general, small cars are more fuel-efficient than big ones).

- * Use compact fluorescent instead of traditional bulbs for lighting.

(They're more expensive but last longer.)

- * Wash with cold water instead of hot as often as possible.

- * Take quick showers (five minutes or less) instead of baths; you'll save thousands of gallons of hot water—and the fuel to heat it—per year.

- * Cut down on the use of your car air conditioner, which releases ozone-depleting chlorofluorocarbons.

- * Don't buy dust removers and cleaning sprays for VCRs and other electronic equipment. These products contain chlorofluorocarbons.

- * If you have a yard, plant trees. If not, nudge your community into tree-planting projects.

- * Eat less red meat. Reducing our beef consumption would mean less deforestation to clear land for cattle grazing in countries that produce the beef we import.

If you would like a free pamphlet on 133 Ways To Save The Earth, contact Judy Schueneman, c/o KPB, Pike County Court House, Pikeville, 41501 or buy "50 Simple Things You Can Do to Save the Earth" (The Earth Works Press, $4.95), available at most bookstores.

Officials praise strip mine farm

by Frank Clark
Staff Writer

Spouting terms like "magnificent", "unbelievable", and "precedent setting", Secretary of the state Resources Cabinet Carl Bradley and Commissioner of Agriculture Ward "Butch" Burnette briefed members of the press Tuesday at Big Sandy Regional Airport about an experimental farm project, operated on a Martin County strip mine.

The concept, they say, could revolutionize the agricultural economy of Eastern Kentucky.

The Martiki-Morehead State University Mountaintop Agricultural Complex, a 500-acre farm located 10 miles south of Inez, has been in operation for the past seven years, refining methods of producing feed grass, cattle, hogs, and laying hens on a former strip mine, said former Gov. Ned Breathitt, who traveled with state Cabinet members to tour the farm.

Directed by Morehead's College of Applied Sciences and Technology, the project has apparently sparked both federal and state interest because of its environmental and economic development potential.

"This trip has been unbelievable for me," said Burnette. "There's more potential in this project than in any I've seen in a long time. I believe this type of project could be used to improve the entire economy of Eastern Kentucky."

The farm currently has about 500 acres under cultivation, growing clover, alfalfa, and other grasses. About 80 cattle graze on the acreage, located on the flat, sheared-off top of a mountain. About 500 hogs are raised on the land each year, and more than 80,000 laying hens produce 6,000 dozen eggs daily.

An initial investment of $2 million in 1983 by the Martiki Coal Corp. and Pocahontas Development Corp. provided capital for the project. Burnette and Bradley believe similar projects could be replicated on other former mining sites in Eastern Kentucky, expanding the agricultural economy in the region and providing jobs for local residents.

Burnette estimates that about 25 to 30 farmers are employed in the Martin project.

"Today, I'm elated by what I've seen," bubbled Bradley, as wind from a nearby helicopter tried to drown out his voice. Referring to Harry Caudill's dark portrayal of Eastern Kentucky in his 1960 book "Night Comes to the Cumberlands," Bradley added, "In a few years, using this project as a model, Caudill will be able to write a new book called 'Rebirth of the Cumberlands.'"

There are currently no plans to implement the Martin County project on Floyd County mine sites. Big Sandy Area Development District Director Roger Recktenwald noted that initial investment costs for such a project were high and said that skepticism exists among development specialists as to whether such a project could realistically be replicated.

No specific time frame for implementing strip mine farm projects in Eastern Kentucky was released by state officials Tuesday, but officials present said that several years of planning would be required before start-up on other farms would be possible.

Lose 7-1 lead in 1st game

Panthers tame Blackcats twice in doubleheader

The Prestonsburg Blackcats played brilliantly in the first game of their doubleheader with the Pikeville Panthers Tuesday afternoon at Pikeville. However, the Blackcats allowed the Panthers to score seven runs in the bottom of the sixth inning to take an 8-7 heartbreaker from coach Russell Shepherd's squad.

Prestonsburg starting pitcher John Clark was in control of the game until the sixth when he seemed to tire.

Pikeville did all of its damage with two outs in the inning. With Prestonsburg leading, 7-1, Jerry Ray got a lead-off walk opening the inning. Johnny Hale struck out, and Jason Howard bounced to short for the second out, scoring Ray.

Control problems set in for Clark as he issued back to back walks to J.P. Blair and Matt Adkins. Both runners moved up on stolen bases and scored on a single by pitcher Bobby Casto, the number nine hitter in the Panther line up.

Jess Baird walked to load the bases and Chris Lawson unloaded the bases with a double to left center to make it 7-6. With Lawson on second, Tim Watson came on to relieve Clark. Shane Hall greeted Watson with a home run over the right field fence to give the Panthers the lead and the game at 8-7.

Prestonsburg's big inning was the fifth when the Blackcats scored four runs to go ahead 7-1. With one out, Watkins, playing with an injured leg, singled to right. Aaron Tucker followed suit and hit to left. Freshman Jason Crisp singled Watson home and Tim Lester roped a hit to left center for two RBIs, scoring Tucker and Crisp. Lester later scored on a wild pitch from Casto.

The Blackcats scored single runs in each of the first three innings. Chris Slone tripled in the first and came home on Clark's base hit. In the second inning, Crisp reached on a third baseman's error and rounded home on Ray Collins single. Tucker picked an RBI in the third inning on a bouncer back to the pitcher, after Clark led off with a base hit and moved to third on a sacrifice fly by Watkins. Clark scored on the play when the pitcher forgot to hold the runner.

Collins and Crisp turned in some outstanding defensive plays at short and third. Several times Collins showed his range at shortstop by going to the middle and taking base hits away from Panther batters. Crisp made a great back hand stop on a grounder in the fifth inning to throw out Baird.

Watkins threw one pitch to Hall and got the loss. Casto was the winning pitcher.

In game two, Pikeville took advantage of some shaky fielding of the Blackcats to post a 7-3 win. In the bottom of the first inning, Baird led off with a long triple. Lawson hit a grounder to short that Collins made a go play on and held the runner.

Hall then bounced to second with the ball, getting a tailor-ordered hop to second baseman Chris Slone, and Slone threw Baird out at the plate trying to steal.

Prestonsburg took a 1-0 lead in the second when, with one out, Watkins walked and was erased on the front end of an attempted double play by Jason Storey. Storey was safe at first and later wild pitched to second. Tucker's base hit scored Storey.

A base hit and stolen base by Howard in the bottom of the inning and a double by Blair tied the game at 1-1. In the inning, with Blair on second base and the scoreboard showing two outs, Hayes Gullett hit a bouncer back to the mound and was thrown out.

The Panthers, supposing that was the third out, walked off the field, and Blair was called out by the home plate umpire for being out of the base lines, which drew the anger of the Pikeville coach who ordered the scoreboard turned off.

Pikeville scored six times in the third inning to go ahead 7-1. Prestonsburg scored in the fourth inning when Storey singled in Collins who had walked earlier. In the fifth inning Slone scored on a fielders' choice by Collins for a final score of 7-3.

Watson, who started the second game, was the losing pitcher, and Madison Helvey was the winner.

The loss dropped Prestonsburg's record to 8-6 on the season. The Blackcats will be on the road tonight at Ashland and will entertain Wheelwright Saturday and Phelps Monday.

Trojans will be no easy win

Wheelwright's first-year baseball coach Meredith Slone says that his team needs to cut down on errors to be a good baseball team this year.

Slone is no stranger to the coaching ranks, having coached at McDowell high in the girl's basketball ranks and handled the softball team at the Left Beaver school where he built a strong program.

"We had a lot of experience coming back this year," the Trojan mentor explained, "until some of them left the team. We are making too many errors and you can attribute that to the conditions of the field."

Slone says the Trojan baseball team needs to work more on the basics of the game and cut down on mistakes.

"We are in good shape as far as pitching goes," he stated. "We have four of five players we could call on. We need to improve our fielding ability and support the pitching staff with less errors and better hitting."

Slone says that there are four players he looks to for leadership.

"Brad Compton is our do everything player," he remarked, "and comes to all the practices and plays hard"

Slone says that Jimmy Helton is an outstanding player who gives 110 percent every time out.

"Jimmy is our best pitcher and is always ready to play," the coach said.

Slone says that he will be looking to Chad Hall for the power the Trojans will need to drive in runs.

Bobby Hood, a late starter because of the all-star basketball tournaments, has good speed. "Bobby needs to work on hitting the ball," said Slone. "He is a good fielder and can steal some bases for us."

"I told the kids that right now we are working toward the district tournament and to go out and play hard and to work on their defense."

The Trojans will be playing in the EKMC tournament the first week of May at Jenkins. The late decision on a coach at the Wheelwright school hampered the Trojans from getting an early start in practices. The Trojans have had to use the regular season to get in shape and learn the basics because of the lack of practice time.

The late start also cut down the number of games the Trojans will play because all the other schools had their schedules completed.

Slone seems to have a knack for molding a team into a late bloomer. By using the remainder of the season for getting things together, come district time there could definitely be some surprises!

Has most hits

Collins named to All-Tournament Team

Ray Collins, shortstop for the Prestonsburg Blackcats, was named to the All-Tournament team in the Pikeville High School Hillbilly Days Invitational baseball tournament last weekend at Pikeville.

Collins, who is being courted by several colleges, continues his torrid hitting. The senior shortstop finished the tournament with the most total hits in tournament play, seven in nine at bats.

The Blackcat standout also drove in six runs and stole four bases. Out of the hits, he had one triple, two doubles and walked twice.

Collins is currently batting at .810 and started the season collecting six hits in his first six plate appearances.

Not only is Collins a standout with the bat, but he also plays the shortstop position as well as anyone in the state, according to his coach.

"Ray has to be one of the best shortstops in the state of Kentucky if not the best," said his coach Russell Shepherd. "He can do it all."

Collins has excellent range for a shortstop and can go to the middle of the diamond to take away hits from opposing batters. He has a strong arm and is accurate on tosses to first base when he has to go deep in the hole.

"Ray also has a good knowledge of the game," said Shepherd. "He knows how the game is to be played."

Collins is around the dugout encouraging teammates and offering a little advice. He has a very positive attitude and will be a big addition to any college program.

P'burg rolls past Rowan in tennis

The Prestonsburg Blackcats men's tennis team won its third straight match by the same score of 9-0. This time the victim was Rowan County. The two teams met at Allen Park Tuesday afternoon.

In singles matches, Joe Burchett won over N. Rudy, 6-3. Tim Martin defeated J. Chaffin, 7-5, and David Thompson was a 6-2 winner over W. Tingle.

Johnny Webb took H. Hortiz, 6-2, while Brian Stewart won over S. Thomas, 6-0. Chris Stewart defeated B. Leitz, 6-2, and Paul Horn was a 6-0 winner over C. Clann.

In doubles play, the team of Johnny Webb and David Thompson defeated Rudy and Tingle, 6-4. Burchett and Martin won 6-1 over Chaffin and Thomas. Stewart and Sturgill claimed a 6-3 victory over Ortiz and Leitz.

The Prestonsburg men's tennis team will face the Paintsville Tigers Monday at 4:30 p.m. at Allen Park.

Blackcat coach Bobby Hamilton said he is very proud of his team this year. Hamilton says that his squad played the best tennis of the year in beating traditional regional power Rowan County. Says Hamilton, "Paul Horn played exceptionally well and the 'duo' of Burchett and Martin in doubles play was the best of the year."

FISHIN' TIPS FROM THE TRACKER PROS

Larry Nelson

Here's a tip to increase performance from your outboard engine. Consider one of the newer designed, four-blade propellers.

Props like the O.M.C. Shooter are designed for better acceleration out of the hole. They get the boat on plane faster than most conventional three-blade props.

Most operators feel they get a more stable ride and have better mid-range acceleration with four-blade props. A combination over and through the hub exhaust design provides much of the performance from the four-blade prop.

The trade off might be a loss of 2 or 3 miles per hour of top end speed for the better hole-shot provided by the four-blade prop.

Fishin' Tips are presented by America's #1 fishin' boat.

PEE WEE PRESIDENT ANSWERS JOHNSON

In last Wednesday's Floyd County Times, we ran an article about the concern of Donna Johnson of Ligon over the lack of bleachers at the Minnie Ball Park. Johnson alluded to the fact that the Martin ball park has bleachers not being used and wondered why the county did not take one of the bleachers to the Minnie field.

We received a phone call from Mrs. Steve Jenkins, president of the Martin Pee Wee League, stating the reason why the bleachers are not moved to the Minnie ball park.

"The City of Martin leases the land from the C&O Railroad where our ball parks are," explained the league president. "Years ago the City of Martin bought the bleachers that we have at the ball fields. They do not belong to the county. If it wasn't for the City of Martin we could never get started with our leagues."

"The City of Martin built the Little League field and the parents built the Pee Wee field that is there now. We have eight Pee Wee teams and four Martin Little League teams. Our bleachers are always full."

Jenkins said that in the winter time the Allen Central football team borrows the bleachers to use at the football field.

"If people want bleachers and parks, let them get out and work for it," she stated. "As for the new park going in at Martin, the citizens of Martin are working hard to raise the funds to put the park in. "As for Eddie Caudill, he is the only one besides the City of Martin that helped us out last year when we were the host of the Little League tournament," says Jenkins. "I called him and told him what we were doing and he sent some gravel and workers down to help us clean up the park because of it being flooded."

COACHES TO BE RESPECTED

I was at a practice of one of the teams in the Prestonsburg Little League earlier this week. Just went to see how things are going in the leagues around Floyd County to pick up some new items.

As I watched this particular coach take his team through certain plays, drills and then batting practice, I couldn't help but remember the days in the late '60s and early '70s, when I lived in Warsaw, Ind., and coached Little League baseball, of the time I put into helping my players to become better players.

We played three times a week and practiced every day we did not play. Over a five-year period the team that I coached won 76 straight baseball games, five pennants and four World Series titles, before we were finally beaten in the City's World Series.

Why were they successful as a team? Simple, because their parents saw that their kids got to the practices. They made no excuses, the kids were there. Some even put their vacations off until after the Little League season.

But as I watched the coach of the Prestonsburg team, I thought of his giving up his evening — when he could be out fishing, mowing his lawn or spending time with his family — to take time to teach someone else's kids how to play the game of baseball. Some parents feel that is his duty as a coach, which in part it is. But when was the last time you went up to your kids' Little League, Babe Ruth or Senior League coach and just said "thank you" for taking time to show your child how to become a better baseball player. Believe me, it is not as easy as it appears!

That's all for now, and remember be good sports!

Wild third inning helps Virgie over McDowell, 14-8

The Virgie Eagles scored eight runs in the third inning to erase a 5-3 McDowell lead and to defeat the Daredevils, 14-8, in high school baseball Wednesday night at Virgie.

For the Daredevils, Derrick Akers hit a three-run home run in the third inning to give the Daredevils a 5-3 lead. Virgie had scored three runs in the home half of the first inning.

In the bottom of the third, Ernie Burke led off with a single to left field. Kenny Bowling then flied to left field for the first out. With one out, Mike Little doubled to centerfield to score Burke. Glenn Salyers then hit a fly ball to centerfield for the second out.

Things then got rough for starting pitcher Jamie Martin. James Reynolds singled to score Little, and Mark Tackett drew a walk. Reynolds and Tackett scored on an error at shortstop off the bat of Osborne. Mike Tackett then doubled to left field, allowing Osborne to cross with the fifth Eagle run.

Shawn Dials walked, and Burke's second hit in the inning scored Tackett and Dials. Burke took second on a passed ball and scored on a base hit by Bowling. Little struck out to end the inning, and the Eagles led 11-5.

McDowell scored three in the top half of the fourth to make it 11-8, with Bud Kidd hitting a solo home run. Shawn Newsome, who was three for four in the game, doubled in two runs. Newsome had two doubles for the Daredevils.

Virgie then plated three more runs in the bottom of the sixth inning to win by the score of 14-8.

Virgie collected 15 hits in the game and McDowell had 10. Dials was the winning pitcher and Jamie Martin took the loss. Dials recorded six strike outs, and Martin fanned seven.

The loss dropped McDowell to 4-7 overall on the season. The Daredevils will host Wheelwright at Allen Park today (Friday) in a 4:30 p.m. start.

Hartel wins 10K

Roberts wins Hillbilly mile

Local runner Rick Roberts took first place in the Citizens Bank One Mile Run in conjunction with the Hillbilly Days over the weekend at Pikeville.

Roberts had a winning time of 5:38, a minute off his run in the same race of 1988. "Shows you that I am slowing down," he stated.

Andrea Dixon took first place for the women with a time of 7:24 which also was good for seventh place overall.

Christy Ward of Paintsville was second with a time of 8:22. According to Roberts, the course was hilly with a 20-30 mile head wind with a 1/2 mile tail wind.

In the Citizens Bank 10K run, "Swag" Hartel of Bowling Green took first place with a time of 32:32. Hartel held off Jeff Tipton of Corbin who placed second at 33:53.

In the women's division, Liz Ervin, Chapmansville, W.Va., placed 12th overall with a time of 40:19. What makes this so unique was that Ervin is in the 48-year-old division.

Roberts placed 11th overall in the race and finished second in the 35-40 age group.

Other times are: David McGuire, Price, 37:11, 8th (first in 30-34 age group); David Wright, Paintsville, 44:37, 29th; Ronnie Robinson, Hager Hill, 46:13, 35th; Kenny Hamilton, McDowell, 46:47, 38th; Wesley Cain, Salyersville, 46:42, 39th; Tony McGuire, Price, 47:55, 43rd; Charlotte Frazier, Salyersville, 51:35, 59th (first in 30-39 age group); Arlin Isaac, Van Lear, 61:22, 75th.

Preston's home run sparks Eagles' six-run second

Derrick Preston's second inning solo home run over the right field fence sparked a six-run second inning for the Johnson Central Golden Eagles en route to an 11-0 win over the Betsy Layne Bobcats.

Betsy Layne, who seems to have settled into somewhat of a batting slump as a team, lost for the 11th time this season with only six wins.

Preston led off the second with his solo shot and George Clifton followed with a base hit to right field. Clifton came home on Herbie Music's double down the left field to make it 2-0. Tim Delong then slashed a triple to right field and came in to score on a one out base hit by Tim Pelphey which followed a walk to Rex Collins.

Jeff Williams hit a sacrifice fly to right field to score Collins, and after pitcher Mitchell Johnson walked to load the bases, Preston got his second hit of the inning to drive in Pelphey and Williams. Clifton's second hit scored Johnson. Adam Gearheart came in to relieve Bobcat starter Todd Akers and got Delong to fly out to end the inning.

Johnson Central scored two more in the fourth inning on a home run by Johnson, with Williams on base, through an error.

The Eagles made it 11-0 with two runs in the sixth inning. Williams reached on an error at second base. Williams stole second base and Johnson followed with a base hit. Clifton flied out to centerfield and Music brought in two runs with a single up the middle.

The whitewash loss dropped the Bobcats to 6-10 on the season. Betsy Layne will play at M.C. Napier today (Friday) in a 4:30 p.m. game.

Garrett sixth grader wins $300 in bank essay contest

Sonya Stephens, 11-year-old daughter of Cledis and Gertrude Stephens of Garrett and a sixth grader in Wava Turner's class at Garrett Elementary, has been selected as "county winner" of the Personal Economics Program's (PEP) statewide essay contest.

PEP, sponsored by the Young Bankers Division of the Kentucky Bankers Association, is a national volunteer effort of bankers working with teachers to educate young people about banks, banking services and personal financial management skills.

Sixth grade students throughout Kentucky were asked to write a one to two page composition, in their own words, on "How Banking Benefits My Community." Stephens' essay was chosen as county winner by local bankers and PEP coordinators based on its content, grammar, spelling and originality.

To support this effort, The Bank Josephine, First Commonwealth Bank and First Guaranty National Bank each awarded Stephens a $100 US Savings Bond, which she said she would save for college. Stephens' essay, along with the essays of the other two finalists, Dustin Ross Jones of Allen Elementary and Tina Pennington of Auxier Elementary, will now advance to the district level of judging. This district encompasses the eastern portion of the state. The state winner of the essay contest will be awarded a personal computer.

According to Janie Salyer, Group 9 coordinator for PEP, this year's essay contest came about through the combined efforts of PEP Bankers at the Bank Josephine and First Commonwealth Bank. Last year, several volunteers from both banks spoke to fifth and sixth grade students in Floyd County and the students were then asked to write an essay on the topic "The Bank: How Does It Benefit My Community?"

One male winner and one female winner were selected from those that were submitted and each winner was awarded a $100 gift certificate to the local business of his or her choice. Due to the great success of this project, the Young Bankers Division of the Kentucky Bankers Association incorporated this essay contest on a state level, Salyer noted.

"Kentucky PEP bankers recognize that young people are the leaders of tomorrow. Therefore, they are going the extra mile to make a difference in the field of education by providing information and service, reaching thousands of students across the Commonwealth on a personal level," Salyer said.

Over the last two years, PEP bankers have reached more than 70,000 students. Anyone interested in learning more about PEP can contact their local bankers.

County essay winner

Sonya Stephens (center), 7th grader at Garrett Elementary, was the winner of the countywide essay contest on the subject "How Banking Benefits My Community." She was presented with a certificate and $300 worth of US Savings Bonds by local banks. At the presentation are (left, front) Sam Blankenship, president of The Bank Josephine, and Brian Ousley (right, front), PEP banker from First Commonwealth; second row, teacher Wava Turner, parents Cledis and Gertrude Stephens; and Garrett principal Ralph O'Quinn; third row, PEP bankers from Bank Josephine, Jeff Hicks, Donna Roope, Pam Herrick, Linda Lenox, Janie Salyer (Group 9 coordinator), and Cathy Prater.

How banks benefit my community

by Sonja Stephens
Garrett sixth grader

(Editor's Note: This is the countywide award winning essay from a contest recently sponsored by the Personal Economics Program (PEP), the Young Bankers Division of the Kentucky Bankers Association.)

Banks in my community provide all sorts of beneficial conveniences and needs. For example: Loans and savings bonds. If you're in need of money for a car or even a house, you should be able to depend on your local bank to give you a friendly and helping hand.

When you usually think of a bank you usually think of lots of money. Banks are more than that. Cashing checks, deposits and withdrawals all play an important role in banks.

When you walk through your town, look around. You may see a new store that was made by a construction loan from a bank, or maybe even see a student that has graduated and who is trying to start a career in this difficult world, which was made possible by funds or saving accounts for him or her.

I also think a bank should be with you through problems (emergencies) and happiness in your family. I also think a bank should be with you when you are really in need of some financial help.

Banks in my community are important to the well-being of my community. In addition, banks make the area a nicer place in which to live.

Exchange student visits 4th grade

The most popular question asked was whether he liked America; however, Magnus Edin expected that as he spoke to Donna Gray's social studies class.

"It's different," the 17-year-old said of the United States, "in many ways, but it's really fun to try something new."

Edin, a junior at Allen Central High School, said he enjoyed speaking to students about his country. Later he visited other classes at Martin Elementary School. He expects to visit Rowan County High School next month.

In late June, he will depart for Sweden after spending this year with the host family, Mr. and Mrs. Joe R. Bolton at Eastern. He explained that he is visiting the state as part of the American intercultural Student Exchange Program.

One student said, "Now I know how to say 'nintendo' and my name in Swedish. It's like learning from an open book. They are people just like us."

"This was an exciting and wonderful learning experience for my students. This was an experience for them to learn of another culture and they'll retain it longer," Gray said.

The students plan to write letters to Edin next school year. All the children had their pictures made with their new-found friend.

Persons interested in being a host family for an exchange student between the ages of 15-18 can contact Joe Bolton at 358-9183 for more information.

A new friend

Adult education proposals sought

As adult education prepares for new responsibilities with the transfer to the Kentucky Cabinet for Workforce Development on July 1, administrators are looking for innovative proposals for raising the academic level of undereducated Kentuckians.

The state Department of Education, through the Office of Adult and Community Education, is accepting proposals through May 15 for regular adult education programs and for special demonstration or training projects for the 1991 fiscal year.

Proposals are also being sought for the establishment of seven new adult learning centers throughout the state next year under funds provided by the 1990 General Assembly.

The $1.4 million in added funds for adult education will provide for the opening of 14 new centers during the biennium and the operation of those and the 30 existing centers for 11 months rather than 10.

The department is soliciting proposals for regular adult basic education, adult secondary education and GED preparation under Section 322 of the federal Adult Education Act and for demonstration or teacher training projects under Section 353 of the act.

Guidelines for the proposals are available from the Division of Adult Basic Education, 20th Floor, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort 40601; telephone 502/564-3921.

Wayland Beta Club growing stronger

During the annual initiation for the Wayland Elementary School Beta Club, nine new members were taken into the club. They include five fifth graders: Katie Fultz, Tommy Conley, Daniel Bentley, Emily Combs and Shonna Hall. Matthew Crawford was the only sixth grade new member. From the seventh grade were Barry Combs and Heather Robinson, and from the eighth grade was Patrick Collins. Presiding over the initiation program were president Bethany Slone, vice president Curt Lee, secretary Jamie Fultz and treasurer Jaime Webb. Jy Shepherd represented the old members and took part in the program. The Wayland Club now has 27 members. They have earned money and plan to take a trip sometimes in May.

Looking into careers

The seventh grade at Wayland Elementary School toured several sites recently to observe different careers. At Highlands Regional Medical Center, they toured the lab, cardiac rehabilitation unit, pharmacy, records and the nursery. At the Floyd County Courthouse and Jail, they visited different offices in the court system and heard Judge Hollie Conley talk about the Circuit and District court systems. The students are: first row, l-r, Judy Thornsbury, Katy Bradley, Christie Shepherd, Miranda Meade, Nicole Clark, Jamie Fultz, Amy Neekamp, Dorothy Poston, Amy Crisp; second row, Mrs. Murphy, Duane Layne, Tonya Griffith, Jy Shepherd, Barry Combs, Dellea Meade, Heather Robinson, Jennifer Hunter, Joell Bentley, Brian Slone, Charla Hall, Jamie Webb and Jill Stapleton.

Excel students take first aid training

How many times have you heard of persons dying from choking or excessive bleeding because medical attention was not readily available? Often, these tragic incidents could be averted if a medically trained person was present to handle the situation.

On Friday, March 16, students from the medical secretary program at Excel College of Paintsville participated in the Medic First Aid Training Program.

The course is a training program that covers primary care, secondary surveys and treatments according to the Journal of the American Medical Association, Standards and Guidelines for Basic Life Support and the American Academy of Orthopedic Surgeons.

Under the direction of Ronald Pope, a lineman and safety coordinator for the Foothills Rural Telephone Company, each student was instructed and certified in the seven basic skills associated with life-saving techniques.

Pope told the group that the Medic First Aid Course was the best program he had ever been affiliated with. "I feel that this training program is better because it makes people aware of the importance of giving medical assistance when needed. It reassures the person giving first aid that they are medically trained to handle an emergency," Pope stated.

Suzanne Porter, instructor of the medical secretary program, stated that "she was impressed with the program because of the visual, hands-on approach that was used." She further stated that the uniqueness of the program's design made it interesting and easy to comprehend.

Any person or group interested in this program should contact Pope at 638-9234.

Beta Clubs sponsor blood drives

Few people would hesitate to save the life of another human being if they were given a direct and obvious opportunity to do so. Most people have had visions of racing into a burning building to save a small child or rescuing a car crash victim from the wreckage that binds him.

However, heroism isn't always displayed in the midst of flashing lights and sirens; there is another act we can perform to save a life...Donating Blood.

"It's a quiet, simple act of heroism that gives life and new hope to those who desperately need it," noted Tim Thompson, donor resources consultant. "You may never know the name of the patient who receives your donation but a real hero needs no praise just the quiet knowledge that they made a difference."

Floyd County high school Beta Clubs are urging their classmates and community members to become "Quiet Heroes" during the 5th An-

Comedian honored at Marshall Univ.

An aspiring sportswriter who was fired from the Marshall College student newspaper for spending too much time cracking jokes and dancing in the Student Union will receive an honorary doctorate at Marshall University's 1990 Commencement, May 12.

The would-be sportswriter went on to win fame throughout much of the world as comedian Soupy Sales. And 41 years after receiving his Marshall degree in journalism, he's still making people laugh.

Responding to MU President Dale F. Nitzschke's invitation to attend the Commencement ceremonies, Sales declared "I'll be there with bells on. And if it's cold, I'll wear something warmer!"

Perhaps best known for his first network television show, "The Soupy Sales Show," the comedian has starred in other television shows, radio, motion pictures, television dramas, nightclubs and comedy clubs, a Broadway play and record albums. His list of show business credits covers more than four typewritten pages and his first book "Soupy Sales's Did You Hear the One About?" has been so successful a sequel is being prepared.

Commencement ceremonies begin at 11 a.m.

Any group of five or more people between the ages of 12 and 18 with an adult sponsor is eligible to apply. Organizations such as YMCAs, Scouts, Boys or Girls clubs, community groups or recreational centers are also invited to submit grants.

This is the 11th year Metropolitan is offering the grants. They are intended as start-up money for projects that could involve the youth in meaningful activities. Metropolitan also responds to community needs through its own employees who do volunteer work for nonprofit agencies, and through corporate donations to these groups.

A book for every Kentucky child

by Tess A. Whitmer
Assistant Editor

What is surely one of the most promising long-term projects ever undertaken by Jaycees began with an offhand remark by one woman to another.

"Wouldn't it be good," said Jane Beshear, "if we could provide every child in Kentucky with his or her own book?"

It was January 1987, and the occasion was a meeting of the Governor's Commission on Literacy, held in Frankfort. Beshear, the wife of then-Lt. Gov. Steven Beshear and chair of the Literacy Commission, made her contemplative comment to Judy Thomas, a member of the commission and president of the Ashland Oil Foundation.

As the story is told, Beshear's remark stuck in Judy Thomas' mind. During the two-hour drive back to Ashland after the meeting, it occurred to her that not only would it indeed be a good thing if every child in Kentucky could own a book, but also that only one organization she knew of could turn that idea into reality: the Jaycees.

She approached Jeff Eger, then state president of the Kentucky Jaycees. He liked the idea. And that was how the Jesse Stuart Book Project began.

For the third year, the Kentucky Jaycees and the Jesse Stuart Foundation are distributing copies of a Jesse Stuart book to sixth graders throughout the state, including every sixth grader in Floyd County. This year, the First Lady of Kentucky, Martha S. Wilkinson, is helping the Jaycees with the project. The Kentuckians of Michigan have contributed, also.

The purpose of the 1990 Jesse Stuart Book Project is to put a copy of "The Beatinest Boy" in the hands of as many Kentucky sixth graders as possible, in the hope that the story will encourage them to read for pleasure and thus help them to stay in school. It will also promote interest in Kentucky history and literature.

"A love of books and reading is essential to both academic success and a successful career," Mrs. Wilkinson said. "I hope this project helps turn reading from a chore into a joy for all of Kentucky's sixth-graders."

Mrs. Wilkinson will also introduce a statewide essay contest concerning the Stuart book, where students will be asked to write up to one page about what they learned from "The Beatinest Boy." Awards will be given for the best essay in every class, county and even Congressional District. The statewide winners will be announced during a special program to be broadcast May 11.

According to Brian Ousley, president of the Prestonsburg Jaycees which contributed 725 books to the students of Floyd County, the following members of the Chamber of Commerce donated money to the effort:

Action Petroleum, Auxier Road Gas Co., The Bank Josephine, Barber and Paxton, Big Sandy Health Care, Brandeis Machinery and Supply, Branham and Baker, CCG Cablevision, Cooley apothecary, East Kentucky Explosives, Harold Telephone Company, Highlands Regional Medical Center, Highlands Surgical Association, Hylton Homes, Paul and Ella Litz, Meade Construction Company, Mountain Metal Company, Mountain Pipeline Construction Company, Perry Distributors, River City Insurance Agency, William and Janet Smith, Triple B Corp and Winn Dixie.

Kindling the desire to read

One of the state's best known authors will soon become familiar reading for all of Floyd County's sixth grade students thanks to the efforts of the Prestonsburg Jaycees and the area business who donated funds. Prestonsburg Jaycee member Cathy Prater, individual development vice-president, and Brian Ousley, president, present Ron Hager, Floyd County Superintendent of Schools, with a copy of "The Beatinest Boy" by Jesse Stuart. County schools recently received 725 copies of this book which were given to each student in the sixth grade to keep for their own.

Riding for St. Jude's

A bike-a-thon at Archer Park April 7 netted $804.50 for St. Jude's Research Hospital, according to coordinator Wanna Stephens. Participants, ranging from four to 13 years old, rode 323 miles. They are Kyle Wicker, Brandon and Brooke Hicks, Jared and Jessica Hale, Paul and Miranda Stanley, Sam Shepherd, Lana Goodman, Gabriel Shepherd, Jarred Stephens, Lori McGuire, Seidena Adams, Ashley Stumbo, Nathan Tussey, Brian Stephens, Valerie Stratton, Melissa Barrowman and Traci Robinson. Assisting the coordinator, who extends thanks to the children, parents and sponsors, were volunteers Bridget Clay, Ninena Snavelly and Kenneth Stephens.

Little ones celebrate Easter

Mrs. Johnson's kindergarten class at John M. Stumbo Elementary School celebrated the Easter holiday with an egg hunt, treats and baskets the students made.

Knowing to say "No"!

The Kiwanis Club of Prestonsburg presented a drug awareness program to Prestonsburg Grade School students Wednesday, singing songs and playing games designed to help children avoid experimentation with illegal drugs. The presentation was given in coordination with the Prestonsburg Police's DARE project.

Singing (bunny) celebration

Kindergarten and first grade schoolchildren of Melvin Elementary School sang and acted out songs in celebration of the season for parents last week. Bunny ears and cotton tails lent a frisky touch to the children's performance. (Photo by Frank Clark)

Peter Cottontail?

The Allen Elementary kindergarten class had a visit from the Easter Bunny (aka Bud Ferrell) recently. Mr. Bunny gave out bunny cups filled with candy which was enjoyed by all the children.

HOROSCOPE

April 29 through May 5

By A. Murphy

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20)

Before indulging in a luxurious vacation, pay off any debts you have. There is rest and relaxation right around the corner. You don't have to travel somewhere exotic.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20)

Don't be pulled down by ill moods around you. Take a one-day trip to escape stress. You don't need a lot of money for romance; a flower and a walk in the park will do.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22)

Quick decisions are exciting until commitment begins. Take time and consult with others first. Opportunity may get away, but more are around the corner.

LEO (July 23 - August 22)

When disappointed, go for a brisk walk or jog. Do not speak before you have thought clearly through the situation. Physical exertion will aid in the sorting-out process.

VIRGO (August 23 - September 22)

Get up with the sun this week and really see the morning. Find something new every day. Treat visiting travelers with your specialty dish and your best china.

LIBRA (September 23 - October 22)

Meditate carefully about what is beyond the superficial in every situation. Declare your independence from the emotions that imprison you.

SCORPIO (October 23 - November 21)

Do not let yourself become involved with dishonest schemes of any sort. Always be honest in every area of your life, especially with yourself. Watch your health this week.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 - December 21)

You have the power to forgive and forget. Be sure that your actions back up your words. Look for the advantage in every situation. Your personal growth will reward you.

CAPRICORN (December 22 - January 19)

Great enthusiasm can enhance every part of your life. Even when insulted, grasp your opportunity to show your amazing strength and intelligence.

AQUARIUS (January 20 - February 18)

Plant trees, vegetables, and/or flowers in order to celebrate the gifts of the earth this week. Consider the treasures that surround you that no money could possibly buy.

PISCES (February 19 - March 20)

Practice your art every day if it brings you peace and pleasure. Get in touch with an old friend you haven't heard from lately. Always avoid empty and vicious rumoring.

ARIES (March 21 - April 19)

Be giving and loving to relatives and friends. Make a list of the benefits you receive when you volunteer to help those less fortunate. Personal growth surprises you.

TV PIPELINE

Hank Williams Jr. wasn't too young for movie about dad

By Polly Vonetes
Q: I sure hope you can settle an argument that my uncle and I have recently had. The movie Your Cheatin' Heart about Hank Williams Sr. was recently shown on TV. I say the movie came out in the early '60s and had Hank Williams Jr. doing the soundtrack. My uncle insists the movie came out in the mid-'50s shortly after Hank's death, and that Hank Jr. was too young to do the songs. Who wins this "family feud" of ours? —Danny Vaughn, Gaffney, S.C.

Hank Williams Jr.

A: I hope your uncle is a good loser, because Danny, you win. Your Cheatin' Heart was released in 1964 with Hank Williams Jr. dubbing in the soundtrack. Born in 1949, he was 15 years old at the time.

Q: I hope you can answer two questions for me. My husband and I disagree on them both. Could you tell me how old Angela Lansbury is and her date of birth? Also, I would like to know about the best comedian in the world, Red Skelton, date of birth and where he was born. —J. Clough, Hillsdale, N.Y.

A: Angela Lansbury will be 65 years old on Oct. 16. She was born in London, England in 1925. Red Skelton will celebrate his 80th birthday on July 18. He was born in Vincennes, Ind. in 1910. I hope you are right on at least one of these dates.

Q: Could you please help me? I would really like to know more about Nicole Eggert who plays Jamie Powell on Charles In Charge. I would like to know her age, her fan club and her address. Any information about her would be terrific. Please answer my letter. —Jerry Olesen, Grass Valley, Calif.

A: I bet you thought I'd never answer your questions. I am sorry it took so long. It all began for Nicole when she was five years old and entered the "Miss Universe Petite Division Pageant," where she stole the hearts of the judges and the title. She also caught the eye of a well-known casting director who advised she should sign with an agency immediately. She did, and before she knew it she was appearing in television commercials. With more visibility she has kept working steadily ever since in films and on television. In her free time, 18-year-old Nicole enjoys a healthy, southern California lifestyle. She enjoys biking to the beach in the summer and skiing in the winter. She is also an accomplished tap and jazz dancer. She plans to attend college, preferably the Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts in London. Write to her c/o Charles In Charge, MCA-TV, 100 Universal City Plaza, Universal City, Calif. 91608.

Please send your questions about television past and present to: Polly Vonetes, TV Pipeline, P.O. Box 17748, Fort Worth, Texas 76102-0748. Because of the volume of mail, only questions of general interest will be answered.
