New high school could be issue in power shift :

Storm clouds forming for January

by Scott Perry

The storm clouds which have been forming for some time over a proposal to relocate Prestonsburg High School could break open in January when a shift is likely in the balance of power on the Floyd County Board of Education.

For the past few months, incumbent board members Ray "Shag"

Campbell and Tommy Boyd have consistently opposed board action relative to the proposed new high school, but their dissent has been in the minority.

In January, political newcomer Eddie Billips will replace longtime chairman Dr. James D. Adams on the board, a move which all but guarantees a shift in the majority position concerning the new high school.

During his campaign, Billips made his opposition to relocation of the Prestonsburg High School abundantly clear, arguing that the existing facility should be renovated and expanded.

This week, Billips continued to question the new high school project and the costs associated with it.

In a letter dated Tuesday, December 4, Billips asked Floyd Superintendent Ronald Hager for a copy of an appraisal on the Middle Creek site of the new school.

That appraisal, which set the site value at $400,000, reportedly established that value based on the worth of surface rights and mineral rights.

The rights to any coal uncovered on the property during the construction of the new school, however, were retained by property owner David May.

Billips questioned that exception this week noting that it was his "understanding that the property was appraised at $400,000, including all mineral, oil and gas" and he also questioned a board decision to pay $400,000 for the land if its value was diminished by the exception of mineral rights.

Billips said the board apparently agreed to pay the appraised value of the land, which included mineral rights, but would take title only to surface rights.

"The board, by excepting mineral rights, is paying far more than the appraised value of the property," Billips said Tuesday. "It would appear that the total price could be $500,000 or more, depending on the amount of coal recovered. This amount would far exceed the $400,000 appraised value of the property, which included the mineral value."

Billips explained that while the loss of mineral rights might not constitute added costs for the property, it would constitute the loss of potential revenues that could offset those costs.

"If the board owned the mineral rights," he said, "any coal removed could be sold with those revenues decreasing the board's actual cost for the property."

The school site appraisal was approved October 11 by the state School Facility Construction Commission.

Woody J. Barwick, executive director of that commission, said Tuesday he was aware of the mineral rights issue, adding that he had been advised of the matter in a July 23

Business as usual for Mother Nature :

The Big One plays hooky

by Scott Perry
Times Editor

The Big One was a big bust.

All remained quiet on Kentucky's far western front Tuesday as the deadline for a projected earthquake along the New Madrid Fault passed without so much as a rumble.

News reports from the area labled

Floyd minister not satisfied with dismissal

Fraud charges against a 47-year-old Galveston man were dismissed in Pike County District Court November 19, after he was arrested November 3 for allegedly altering a prescription at a Pike County department store.

Elmer Keathley apparently tried to fill a prescription for his wife and was arrested by Pike County Deputy Sheriff Paul Mullins.

Keathley, a Church of Christ minister, was questioned by police and later released on a $2,000, 10 percent cash bond, according to Pike District Court records.

In a statement released by Keathley's attorney, Dan Rowland, Keathley said he cooperated with police though he had done nothing wrong.

The warrant was dismissed November 19 against Keathley and all charges dropped.

"I feel they done me wrong," Keathley said in the statement. "And I've suffered a lot for their mistake."

Keathley indicated he was considering legal action in connection with the incident.

At Martin Elementary :

Fund deficit audited

An audit conducted last week at Martin Elementary by the state Department of Education's finance office showed the school overspent funds derived from vending machine sales.

The state audit was a result of the school's activity fund account showing a $14,121 deficit at the end of 1989-90 school year.

Bob Coakley, associate superintendent of the state division of finance, said it was hard to determine exactly how the funds had been spent but cited office and school supplies as two areas where the profits from the vending sales had been used.

"Basically, it is just a matter of overspending for what the needs are," Coakley said. "The report has been turned over to the superintendent and he will be handling it from this point."

The Floyd County School Board will be expected balance the account, Coakley said, and recommendations were made to the board to prevent future deficits. Coakley said he could not recall those recommendations, but said it involved more detailed Monday's seismic activity as "unusually quiet" on the day climatologist Iben Browning had projected a 50-50 chance of a major earthquake.

Brownings projection, which drew extensive coverage from state and national media, led to a wave of hysteria through Kentucky that resulted in the closing Monday and Tuesday of more than 50 state school systems. Most systems, including those in Floyd, Pike and Johnson counties, cancelled classes after surveys projected that high rates of absenteeism could be expected on December 3 and 4. Worries persisted locally despite reports that any earthquake along the New Madrid Fault would have little to no effect on the eastern part of the state.

What the quake scare did do, though, was make for an extra long weekend for Floyd County students, including Laura Neeley and Kimi Nunnery, fourth graders at Prestonsburg Elementary School.

"I did my work for T.A.G. (Talented and Gifted program)," said Miss Neeley Tuesday. "I would have gone to school and I wasn't worried about (the possibility of an earthquake)."

Miss Nunnery, who said she didn't believe there would be an earthquake, spent the extra time off in routine fashion.

"I stayed home today to play with my cousins," she said.

And in Las Vegas, where bookmakers have been known to draw betting lines on almost anything, the quake prediction was a non-event.

"No odds were placed (on the chances of an earthquake)," an odds-maker for Leroy's in Las Vegas said Tuesday. "Ever since that 'who shot J.R.' thing, we haven't been able to do that."

documentation of funds received by the school.

The $8,496 deficit at W.D. Osborne Elementary school was not investigated, Coakley said, because of new school personnel at the school. "We probably won't be looking into that situation," Coakley said.

Coal tax share is less than expected

Gov. Wallace Wilkinson presented Floyd County Judge Executive John M. Stumbo with a check for $46,013.34 during the Capitol to the Counties program held in Pikeville recently.

The revenue is generated from surface mining permit applicants, and this year's amount was half of last year's funding, although Floyd County may yet receive more revenue from these fees at the end of the year, Stumbo said. The county received approximately $87,000 for the Board splits on bond vote

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A resolution to issue $7.1 million in school building revenue bonds to construct additions at James A. Duff Elementary, Left Beaver High School and site preparation for the new Prestonsburg High School was approved Monday at a special meeting of the Floyd County Board of Education.

The measure narrowly passed, with board members Tommy Boyd and Ray "Shag" Campbell voting against the resolution because it included the new Prestonsburg High School site.

"The people (of Prestonsburg) don't want it there and I don't think we should try to force it on them," Boyd said. "It ain't right."

Vice chairman James Duff apparently had reservations on the issue, but voted for the resolution because it included other school projects. Duff said the board would be investigating the possibility of changing the school site if the project had not passed the point of no return.

Board members Duff, Campbell and Boyd said they will seek legal advice on the situation and proceed from that point concerning ways to stop the Prestonsburg project.

In other action, the board set the motor vehicle tax rate at 58 cents per $100 assessed value, doubling last year's rate, until the new property tax assessments have been received by the Revenue Cabinet. The board reserved the right, however, to adjust the assessment after the property evaluations are received.

Superintendent Ron Hager told the board the department of finance with the education department had requested local boards to set the tax rate because property assessments are not expected until early 1991.

"We can't set the property tax rates until we get the new assessments because we don't know the assessed value," Hager said. "But we have to be careful so that we don't have a huge deficit in our budget at the end of the year."

Finance officer Russell Frazier said the 58 cent assessment would produce "just over" $1 million in

Drivers suffer minor injuries in three-car mishap Tuesday

The drivers of two vehicles were transported to a local hospital for treatment of injuries suffered in a three vehicle accident Tuesday morning on North Lake Drive in Prestonsburg.

Emergency response workers from the Prestonsburg Fire Department responded to the accident at approximately 10:26 a.m. Tuesday morning, treating both Susie Marsilett, 22, of Auxier and Sonya Compton, 17, of Prestonsburg for neck and back injuries. A spokesperson for Highlands Regional Medical Center said Tuesday afternoon that both women were treated and released following the incident.

According to Prestonsburg Police Officer Gerald Clark, the accident occurred when the Marsilett vehicle pulled into the path of the Compton vehicle while attempting to make a right turn into the parking lot of the Manpower Services office on North Lake Drive in Prestonsburg. Clark said that the Marsilett vehicle struck a third vehicle, driven by Kevin Goodman of Stanville, before coming to rest.

Goodman was not injured in the accident.

Food, shelter program :

Funds for homeless awarded

Floyd County has been selected to receive $24,046 under Phase IX of the Emergency Food and Shelter program.

A Floyd County board consisting of Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo and representatives from various voluntary organizations, such as the United Way, the Ministerial Association, and the Red Cross, will determine how the funds will be distributed in this area.

The Floyd board is responsible for recommending agencies to receive these funds and any additional funds available under this phase of the program.

Private agencies who will be chosen to receive the funds must be non-profit or an agency of the government; have an accounting system and conduct an annual audit; practice nondiscrimination; and for private voluntary organization have a voluntary board.

Qualifying organizations must apply prior to December 14.

Floyd County was selected by a national board made up of affiliates of national voluntary organizations and chaired by the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA). United Way of America will provide the administrative staff and function as fiscal agent. The board was charged to distribute funds appropriated by Congress to help expand the capacity of food and shelter programs in high-need areas around the country.

Jurisdictions that qualified for the funding were selected on the basis of the following criteria: most current 12-month national unemployment rates; total number of unemployed within a civil jurisdiction; total number of individuals below the poverty level within a civil jurisdiction; and the total population of the civil jurisdiction.

The Emergency Food and Shelter National Board Program (EFSP) has been charged through the Stewart B. McKinney Homeless Assistance Act of 1988 "to supplement and extend ongoing efforts to provide shelter, food and supportive services" for the homeless individuals nationwide.

For more information on the availability of the funds, contact the Rev. Tim Jessen, First Presbyterian Church at 886-2214.

Maytown firemen get state grant for equipment upgrade

A Floyd County fire department will upgrade its emergency equipment as a result of a state grant received from the Area Development Fund.

Maytown Volunteer Fire Department has been awarded a $5,000 grant to purchase and to upgrade radio and firefighting equipment. Local funding of $402.85 supplemented this project bringing the total monies available to the fire department to $5,402.85.

The Area Development Fund is a capital projects program administered by the Department of Local Government in the office of the governor.

letter from Superintendent Hager. In that letter, Hager explained that, while the property had been appraised for $400,000, an option for the property from David May set the purchase price at $500,000. Hager wrote that "Mr. May has indicated that he would consider reducing his asking price for the property, if he could claim the coal on the property that was uncovered during normal site preparation excavation."

Hager added that "this type of agreement is common since it is extremely difficult to place a price on unmined minerals."

At a special school board meeting Monday the rumbling of the expected January thunder could be heard.

Three of the five board members voice their objection to the proposed Prestonsburg school site and a discussion of scrapping the previous plan was held. Board members Tommy Boyd, Ray Campbell and James Duff noted citizens' opposition to the site with board member Boyd voicing the strongest objection prior to the passage of a resolution concerning the Prestonsburg project and others.

"It's all (the Prestonsburg High School project) been put into the same motion where we can't vote on it, unless we vote on all the others," Boyd said. "You (speaking to Chairman James D. Adams) have been trying to push this through all year.

The people of Prestonsburg don't want this." Board member Mary Hall disagreed, asking Boyd, "How do you know the people of Prestonsburg don't want this?" "Mary, I think the last election proved that," Boyd said. "I think more than that was involved (in the outcome of the election)," Hall replied. "It's (Prestonsburg High School) lumped into the motions with all the other projects so you have to vote on it to get anything for your district," Boyd said. "That's not right. You make it where you have to vote on it."

Vice chairman James Duff said he felt the board could rescind the proposal in January.

"I believe we can rescind this part but we shouldn't stop the others, and Left Beaver and Right Beaver (projects) from continuing," Duff said.

Apparently the board has not reached a point of no return concerning the new Prestonsburg High School.

Chairman Adams said it would be "discriminating against the students in the north end of the county" if the board decided to renovate the existing school instead of building a new high school.

"You're dealing with a federal issue now," Adams said. "This is a state of the art program."

Mike Luscher, director of buildings and grounds with the state Department of Education, said the project can be stopped or altered at any point before the sale of bonds for the actual construction of the building. Bonds cannot be sold for the construction until the final plans are submitted and approved by the state buildings and grounds department and bids for construction of the facility are received by the state.

"The local board can turn back at any time before construction of the building," Luscher said. "But, a substantial amount of money could be spent on the project before that point. At this point, I have not even seen the site development package. The local board can stop this project if they choose to do so. So far, for the Prestonsburg High School, they have sold bonds for the acquisition of the property. Nothing beyond that."

Woody Barwick said the commission approved $400,000 for the land acquisition based on the appraisal of the property. That appraisal contained mineral rights to the property. "The board could abandon the site but the commission would have to approve it, we've never had this happen before," Barwick said. "It could create a problem but not any that can't be solved. The board needs to be cautious and deliberate in its actions. It's hard to predict what would happen."

Bond sales for the property acquisition were held in November. The $7.1 million bond sale cannot take place until January or most likely February, according to Bob Coakley, finance officer with the state Department of Education.

"According to my calendar, it's pretty full (dates for bond sales throughout the state) until February," Coakley said.

Terrell Ross, with Ross, Sinclair and Associates bonding agent, said Hager had asked that the bonds be sold in February.

"As far as I know, it will be sometime in February," Ross said. "I haven't got the date set as of yet. It has to be cleared in Frankfort but Mr. Hager indicated he wanted the bond sale to be held in February."

Whitt-Taylor to wed

Margaret Whitt of Pikeville and Ronald Dean Whitt announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Susan, to Greg Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Taylor of Martin. The wedding will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 15, at the First Christian Church of Pikeville on Chloe Road. A reception will follow in the fellowship hall of the church. The custom of an open wedding will be observed.

1989-90 year in permit and acreage fees.

The Floyd County Fiscal Court anticipated receiving $63,000. "Usually in April, they (the state) will tell us what we're supposed to get, but they can miss it either way," Stumbo said.

One-third of surface mining permit and acreage fees are returned annually to the coal-producing counties from which they came. When a permit application is submitted, there is a permitting fee of $375 and an acreage fee of $75 for each acre of proposed surface disturbance.

Gov. Wilkinson distributed more than $461,000 to the Seventh Congressional District counties during the Capitol to the Counties program for the Eastern Kentucky District. Pike County received $110,082.50; Martin County received $31,140; Magoffin County received $22,006.67; Johnson County received $9,540; and Knott County received $53,643.33.

revenue but that figure could be lowered depending on the property tax assessments. Frazier said the board needed to levy the highest tax in order to reach tier one funding under the new Educational Reform Act.

Vice chairman Duff disapproved of the high assessment but said the board needed to adopt a rate to keep the school district in the black.

"I think the people have been hit hard enough in taxes, and not just in Kentucky," Duff said. "We need to go as low as we can to keep the school system in the black. I don't think we need to go the maximum 58 (cents). I don't think the state's going to be able to give us 3-1 (three dollars for every one dollar in revenue generated by taxes for tier one funding). We'll be lucky to get 2 for 1. More than likely it will be 1 to 1."

Superintendent Hager told the board the funding is based on how much money is raised. "The more you send, the more you get back."

Board member Tommy Boyd voted against the tax rate.

Other measures approved were change orders and professional service contracts for Duff Elementary; authorization for the superintendent to enter into agreements for Left Beaver High School modifications, core drilling for a physical education facility at Duff Elementary; core drilling for site plan and excavation at Prestonsburg High School, and engineering services to extend a forced sewer from West Prestonsburg to the site; plus site design and engineering services, and core drilling for Betsy Layne Elementary site plan; and an emergency declaration for Allen Elementary to include the addition of a physical education facility, classrooms, toilets, and storage areas.

The board also changed its regular meeting date to December 19 at 6 p.m. at the Prestonsburg High School Cafeteria.

Kentucky entering the Information Age!

You might not have noticed it -- but for three years there's been a revolution going on in Kentucky.

Some 4,000 men and women across the state have worked long and hard to achieve an objective that, in a few short days, will change Kentucky forever.

Those 4,000 people are South Central Bell's Kentucky employees. And they've spent years of effort and millions of dollars to complete an all-electronic telecommunications network.

Electronic switching - so what?

On Saturday, December 8, 1990, the last electro-mechanical switching center in the state will be replaced -- and our switching centers throughout Kentucky will be 100 percent electronic.

So what? What makes an electronically-switched network so important to Paintsville? It's important because it opens the door for you to take advantage of the full range of new Information Age telecommunications services. And it positions Kentucky to take a vital, active role in the high-tech global economy of the 1990's.

Economic development & the network of the future

Many Kentuckians are concerned about our state's economic prospects as we move toward the 21st century. More and more, we find that successful economic development is tightly linked to the ability to manage and transfer information.

Our electronic switching network is designed to meet the needs of any business, from a corner grocery to a large-scale industrial development. For example, today's high-tech telecommunications services can help businesses better manage inventory control, financial data and banking transactions, records access and storage, and communication between different company locations -- to name a few possible applications.

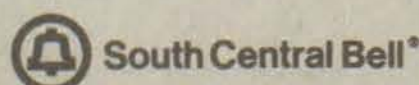

According to Project 21, a coalition of Kentucky business, government and education leaders, "when computers talk with each other through telephones, the result is unparalleled opportunity for economic development." This is the kind of advanced telecommunications network SCB is now completing in Kentucky -- the kind of network businesses look for when choosing a new home.

High-tech services for the home

The opportunities of the Information Age aren't just restricted to businesses. Our Kentucky residence customers also can subscribe to sophisticated Custom Calling services and other service enhancements in their home. The modernized network allows residence customers with the proper equipment to interact with and retrieve information from electronic libraries and data banks. SCB's electronic network offers a wealth of opportunities for growth and development of the entire community.

Ongoing telecommunications research will continue to bring even more options and service enhancements to increase the value and usefulness of your telephone service. And South Central Bell's state-of-the-art telecommunications network not only provides you top-quality telephone service, it also positions Paintsville and Kentucky to leap forward into the 21st century!

Coffee Break

by Scott Perry

As of this writing, the guest of honor for the un-social event of the season had yet to appear, causing more than one quake-watcher to sigh with relief.

The Big One, projected to visit the New Madrid fault on Monday or Tuesday of this week, was either fashionably late or unfashionably rude by its no-show, prompting more than a few Doubting Thomases to take on that I-Told-You-So look.

So, The Big One was a big bust. That's good news...for now. The best news, though, is that people are beginning to take seriously the threat of a major earthquake and preparing for the event as best they can.

The bad news is that the Big One is going to happen, sometime during our lifetimes, and people are going to be hurt by it. We can't call off school or stay home from work for the next 20 years while we wait for it, but we can be ready for it when it comes.

Preparedness, not panic, is the dress code for this party.

"needs to be thoroughly thought out and debated."

On the first point:

If the coal severance tax issue is being turned into a political football, so be it. At least it's in the game now, and that beats sitting the bench. We don't care who carries the ball as long as the points end up on our side of the scoreboard.

On the second point:

We agree that the issue should be thought out and debated.

Now.

Eastern Kentucky's economic future is matter of urgency...just as urgent as solid waste management, vote fraud and drunken driving. To Eastern Kentuckians, economic development is an issue more critical than any of those others but the impact of any improvements will carry well beyond the coalfields.

Garbage is a problem. Vote fraud is a problem. Drunk driving is a problem.

Economic survival is not a problem, it's a necessity.

We can't wait until the '92 regular session to see if we win or lose.

You can't fool Mother Nature. It appears you can't second-guess her either. Or can you?

Of all the methods we've heard discussed for predicting earthquakes, the one we like best is animal-watching.

It's been said that animals can sense an earthquake before it happens and they begin to act abnormally prior to the event.

So we knew early on there was nothing special about this week.

Our dog Odie, an 85 pound mutt of questionable parentage, spent Sunday and Monday doing nothing particularly abnormal, unless you consider raiding the neighborhood trashcans between six hour naps unusual. For Odie, that's life in the fast lane.

We'll start losing sleep when he does.

While most of Eastern Kentucky debates the life and mourns the death of noted author Harry Caudill, we note the loss of another "champion."

For those of us who routinely travel from the mountains to Kentucky's "promised land," the death last week of Pike County's Junior Williamson should not pass unnoticed.

Williamson, whose name is immortalized on the first state-financed rest stop on the Bert Combs Mountain Parkway, was a lobbyist extraordinaire.

Kentucky's "Shoeshine Man" accomplished a feat that more influential, well-placed powers had failed to accomplish time and again. He convinced members of the General Assembly to build the rest area at Slade.

The Louisville Courier-Journal once called the Slade rest stop a $600,000 "outhouse."

While it may be no marble statue or state designated historic site, the Junior Williamson Rest Area is no doubt a monument to a man who championed a cause and won.

If you have no need to stop at the rest area on your next trip along the parkway, honk your horn as you drive by. That's an appropriate salute to a fellow Eastern Kentuckian who won the hearts and captured the attention of our state leaders.

Shine on, Junior.

Editor:

There are many hardships that one must suffer along life's highways.

Perhaps the cruelest is man's inhumanity to man. Often this inhumanity takes place as a direct result of putting persons in high positions of power and having said person or persons betray the trust that is vested in them.

A current case in point is the tax burden now being placed on select counties in Eastern Kentucky. When ownership of land in Eastern Kentucky is shared with mineral owners and the damage from mineral extraction is extreme or can become extreme, there is no justification in placing heavy tax burdens on the surface owners.

What we are getting is uncontrolled spending and outlandish taxation to pay the tab, and we, the landowners, have no choice but to pay up.

Bigoted political leadership has finally devised a method to appease their need to get at the mountain people of Eastern Kentucky. By overtaxing the poorest, the state of Kentucky Revenue Department may now be in position to take land from the people and put the people on the road. Because some people have their homes and little else, little else is what they are going to end up with.

The McDowell lunchroom staff is writing in response to Mr. Scott Perry's Coffee Break article concerning the decision of the Johnson County Board of Education to include cooks, bus drivers, and janitors in site based decision making committees.

We consider Mr. Perry's comments a slap in the face. Does he think that a cook is not qualified to make such important decisions concerning your children? We are also parents, concerned citizens and taxpayers. We care what curriculum our children are being taught, what textbooks are being used, and how our tax money is being spent.

Mr. Perry stated, "We're comfortable," with cooks cooking, bus drivers driving and janitors janitoring.

The McDowell lunchroom staff is comfortable with what our job requires and we're also capable of thinking.

When Mr. Perry stated Johnson County parents should express their "discomfort" at their board's absurdities, did he consider some of these parents may just be cooks, bus drivers, and janitors who are interested in what's going on in "their" school system?

We want Mr. Perry to understand the absurdities of his comments. Whether one is a cook in Johnson, Floyd or any county, they are not mindless clones without the ability to help shape and reconstruct educational reform.

Being a cook, bus driver, or janitor certainly doesn't disqualify us from caring.

It is with great hope that you can help me. My ancestor Daniel Schrader may have been the father or brother of Mary Schrader who married in Amherst County, Virginia, John Hager and moved to Kentucky in 1806, settling at the mouth of Beaver Creek in Floyd County.

John Hager died there February 1819 and Mary Schrader Hager died there in 1847. They had a son who moved to Johnson County.

Anyway, my interest lies in the Schrader connection and I would like any information on Schraders of Kentucky. My ancestor Daniel Schrader moved from Amherst County, Virginia, to Warren County, Tennessee, between 1810-1820 and died here in the 1840's

Do you have anything to help me or the name of anyone I can contact?

Your help is really appreciated. I hope readers of the Times can provide me with some information.

I have just finished picking up four large bags of garbage dumped near my home on Route 7, south of Wayland. As I was doing this, I found a Sears sale book addressed to a particular person in Prestonsburg.

I wonder if that person pays a garbage collection fee. I have been paying to have my garbage picked up since the program was started in Floyd County. It is my opinion that if our solid waste management and our court system would do the job they are paid to do, then everyone would be paying to have their garbage collected.

Thus, people who willingly paid their monthly garbage bill would not be obligated to clean up another person's garbage which was so carelessly discarded in and around their community.

Other Voices

by Robert Allen Ragland

When it comes to legislative policy decisions, results rarely meet initial expectations. This seems especially true with respect to the federal budget and taxes.

In seven of the last nine years, the federal budget has been set by budget summit agreements. The purpose of each of these seven summits was to reduce the deficit. The results have been, in a word, dreadful.

In all seven budget-summit years, new taxes were agreed to in return for a lower deficit agreement. In 1982, for example, Congress promised to cut federal spending by $3 for every $1 in new taxes. When actual data became available, the nation learned that Congress spent every dollar of the single largest tax increase in our history — plus another 16 cents! Long-term results are even worse. The National Chamber Foundation studied tax increases since 1947 and found that the Congress has spent $1.72 for every dollar in new taxes raised. In the two years where there was no summit agreement and no new taxes (1984 and 1987), the deficit fell by $22.5 billion and $71.5 billion, respectively.

Tax legislation enacted in the 1980s vastly changed the texture of the U.S. economy. Our economy shifted from the goods-producing sector to the service/government sector. More Americans are trapped in jobs that fail to pay salaries sufficient to build houses, buy cars, educate children and provide for a secure retirement. The math is easy to grasp. If 100 million American workers are earning $15 per hour "on the line," the country is richer than if the same 100 million workers are in service sector jobs paying $10 per hour.

The actual numbers are compelling. In the Reagan/Bush era, total employment grew by 21.9 percent between 1979 and 1990. But, virtually all of the growth was in the service/government sectors. The goods-producing sector, including mining, construction, durable and non-durable goods production, lost 827,000 jobs in that same period.

The income side of the ledger is even more dramatic. In 1989, the average weekly salary for a construction worker was $506.72 and for persons in retail, $189.01. At the same time, tax increases and inflation allow us to keep less of what we do earn, thus reducing the quality of life. Average weekly earnings in the private sector have declined in seven of the last 10 years and continue to do so. In short, the American worker has less money to spend and a smaller standard of living than in the last year of the Carter presidency.

Bashing business and wealthy taxpayers is always good for a headline, but the real stories are the concerns of the more than 50 percent of us who are locked into jobs earning less than $30,000 and federal policies in place that, left unchecked, guarantee the steady erosion of our standard of the living.

The president and the 102nd Congress would be wise to heed the lessons of the past decade. They should aggressively pursue policies permitting the private sector to produce, expand and compete. Instead of worrying about excise taxes on beer, wine, alcohol, tobacco and gasoline, the Congress should be enacting policies promoting industrial revival. We were flatly wrong to permit the adoption of "neutral" tax policies. We need to develop our industrial sector and the higher quality employment that it brings.

At the same time, we need to tailor social spending to existing federal revenues, which are at an all-time post-war high. Many legislators firmly believe that social spending is the key to the American heart and to political survival. This view persists despite evidence that unrestrained social spending leads to deficits and, as night follows day, deficits lead to new taxes. It also persists despite the fact that tax legislation of the last decade has cut against the industrial backbone of American prosperity—despite the fact that our standard of living has been compromised.

Garbage operators gave Martha Wilkinson campaign contributions

ASHLAND — While Gov. Wallace G. Wilkinson is seeking to block out-of-state waste from coming into Kentucky landfills, his wife is accepting campaign contributions from Northeast garbage operators who want to build a large landfill in Whitley County and import large amounts of garbage. Records show Martha Wilkinson, an unannounced candidate for her husband's job, has taken at least $8,000 in contributions from developers of the landfill and their family members. Tie one on....against drunk driving

The 2nd Statewide Kick-Off for "Tie One On....Against Drunk Driving" will be held Wednesday, December 5, at 11 a.m. at the Kentucky Fair and Exposition Center in Louisville.

This project is an awareness campaign developed by MADD and Kentucky State Police to remind Kentuckians to be responsible by driving sober during the holidays and throughout the year.

Seven hundred students representing 150 high schools in Kentucky are participating in "Project Graduation," a traffic accident prevention program developed to reduce teenager alcohol related crashes at prom and graduation, will be forming a human ribbon which will be a reminder to drive sober through the holidays and throughout the year. Police departments, EMTs, and concerned citizens will be represented.

National "Drunk and Drugged Driving Awareness Week" observed

Driving under the influence, or DUI, is a phrase commonly linked to alcohol intoxication. However, among the 41,000 DUI arrests in Kentucky last year were many motorists who failed to recognize the DUI potential of "other drugs."

Dec. 9-15 is national "Drunk and Drugged Driving Awareness Week." That observance, coupled with the oncoming holiday travel and party season, has Kentucky substance abuse experts emphasizing the fact that drugs, even some legal ones, can impair one's ability to operate a motor vehicle.

Mike Townsend, director of the Department for Mental Health and Mental Retardation Services Division of Substance Abuse, said, "Alcohol is a very powerful drug relative to its effect on a person's physical coordination and reaction time. So, yes, it's important to avoid drinking and driving."

"Yet, other drugs, such as valium, marijuana, Xanax and pain-relievers such as codeine, also possess the potential to alter vision, alertness and capabilities behind the wheel of a car or truck," he said.

"We use this week to encourage people to think about the effect that some drugs, prescription or otherwise, can have on their driving safety."

According to Kentucky State Police records, while the number of alcohol-related deaths decreased from 1988 to 1989 in Kentucky, the number of persons killed in accidents related to "other drugs" increased.

In 1989, Kentucky police cited alcohol as a factor in 7,670 accidents killing 319 people compared to 1988, when 389 persons died in 8,014 wrecks. In 1989, drugs were cited as a contributing factor in 380 Kentucky accidents and 12 fatalities, compared to nine deaths and 383 such accidents in 1988.

"The statistics don't tell the whole story," said Townsend, "because there are many drunk and drugged drivers who just do not get caught."

"That tells me we still have a lot of work to do in educating the public, especially our youth, about the dangers of using drugs and then driving a vehicle."

Marijuana is one popular drug which is sometimes difficult to detect.

"The drunk drivers usually find it hard to cover their condition if stopped by police; however, those using marijuana are usually able to carry on a conversation and avoid detection, unless required to perform a field sobriety test," said Townsend.

Townsend said that violence indicates that pot impairs skills performance, perceptual processes and the ability to pay attention, which are all important in operating a vehicle.

"Everyone needs to be aware of the dangers of driving while under the influence of any drug; we don't want our roadways to become 'high' ways."

Community Calendar

Editor's Note: As a service to the many clubs and committees that meet in our community, the Floyd County Times' Community Calendar will host meeting and public service announcements.

Holiday stress lecture.
Shopping, cooking, working, and decorating — all these activities contribute to holiday stress. To learn how to deal with holiday stress factors, attend a free lecture, "Coping with holiday stress," Wednesday, Dec. 5, at the Methodist Hospital. The lecture begins at noon in the classroom on the eighth floor of the hospital. It concludes at 1 p.m. Drinks will be provided, but participants must bring their own lunch or pick up something in the hospital cafeteria. The lecture is a community service of the Psychiatric Department of the Methodist Hospital of Kentucky.

Warm-a-heart continues
The Floyd County Times, Warm-a-heart solicitation will continue until December 14. Times Advertising Manager, Kim Frasure, asks area residents to contribute coats, boots, scarves, and gloves to the Warm-a-heart box located in the foyer of the Times. Please bring clean, freshly laundered items. These items will be distributed to area needy school children.

DAV meeting time changes
Effective the first Friday in December, the time of the Disabled American Veterans' regular meeting has been changed from 7 p.m. to 3 p.m. This time change will continue until July 1, 1991.

Christmas parade
There will be a Christmas parade December 9 at 2:30 p.m. at Wheelwright. A beauty pageant, car show and auto-audio show are also part of the event.

For more information contact Debbie Hall at 452-4430 or Cathy Johnson at 452-2476 at Wheelwright.

Holiday happenings
Visit Jenny Wiley State Resort Park's beautifully decorated May Lodge for a Christmas open house including gift displays and refreshments. The open house will be held December 9. Santa Claus will be on hand to have his picture taken with children age 12 and under. For more information, call 886-2711.

Rescue squad auction
The Left Beaver Rescue Squad and Volunteer Fire Department, will hold its annual auction on Saturday, Dec. 8, at 6 p.m. at Station No. 2 at McDowell. Merchandise donated by county merchants will be auctioned. Members of the squad will be stopping in area businesses until the auction date to solicit items for the auction. Captain Chuck Hall asks area merchants to please donate.

Portrait picture fee may be refunded
Those individuals who were not notified of the last scheduled dates to have their pictures taken during the

Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad's recent fund raising event, may have their $10 fee refunded.

Send the receipt, ticket stub (proof of purchase) and complete address to: Captain D. Crider, P.O. Box 681, Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653.

Christmas basket goodies
The Middle Creek Volunteer Fire District is collecting clothing, food, fruit, candy, and toys for the needy for Christmas baskets. Articles of clothing donated should be freshly laundered or dry cleaned.

The Middle Creek Community Development Club will help to distribute the baskets and volunteers are needed. Call 886-1706 or 886-1381 to donate your time or Christmas goodies.

Sing-along
Hum to the strains of the Hallelujah Chorus with Pikeville College's Messiah Sing-Along on Friday, Dec. 7 in the college's Christmas Auditorium.

"We're doing this more for fun than as a performance," said Jerry Waddell, chairman of the college's education division and director of the sing-along. Anyone who just wants to listen to the Christmas choruses of the Messiah are also invited to attend. Singers should bring their own copies of the Messiah. The group will sing all the Christmas selections from the composition, as well as the Hallelujah Chorus.

Soloists for the event will be Regina Cooley, soprano, Les Ranning, tenor, and Lynn Levy, alto. Marcia Carter will be the accompanist.

Light refreshments will be served. For more information, call Jerry Waddell at (606) 432-9339.

Winterfest court street mall

The Prestonsburg Tourism Commission and the Highland Folk Festival urges corporate advertising sponsor in the Winter Fest Court Street Mall Program. The fee is only $25 for each advertising display. For details call the Tourism Commission for Fred James at 886-2335.

Arts and crafts dealers church bazaar participants

The Prestonsburg Tourism Commission and the Highland Folk Festival wants arts and crafts dealers and church bazaar groups to participate in the first Winter Fest Court Street Mall Program on December 10 through 15 and December 17 through 22. Blankenship studies to build bridges

Phillip Blankenship

Phillip Blankenship of Prestonsburg has a childhood dream—he wants to build a bridge.

A senior in civil engineering at the University of Kentucky, he came close to fulfilling that dream while working in Pikeville this past summer.

"I have a transportation scholarship from the Kentucky highway department," he said. "This summer, while working for the district office in Pikeville, I had an opportunity to observe a bridge being built."

Blankenship went with the engineers to inspect the work and sat in on meetings where various decisions were made about the footings and superstructures.

Now, when he listens to his professors talk about steel structures and reinforced concrete, he has a better understanding of what it all means.

"I like the construction part of engineering," he said. "It's fun to go out with the inspectors and talk to the contractors."

The son of Wanda and Bennie

November lottery winners named

In the past month, Kentucky Lottery players from Floyd County have won thousands of dollars. These lottery players are just a few of the big winners from Eastern Kentucky during the month of November, according to Jeff Riley, regional manager of the Prestonsburg Lottery office.

Floyd County winners, the amount of the winnings, and the lottery game were as follows:

Dewayne Bush of Prestonsburg, $1,500, Bank shot; Ernest Collins of Prestonsburg, $500, KY Cash; Golda Boyd of Betsy Layne, Lotto; Scotty Wright of Martin, $100, Bank Shot; Frank Rudder of Martin, $100, Bank Shot.

Blankenship of Prestonsburg, he is one of four children. His older brother, Darrell, and his father are both ministers in the Church of Christ.

"My mom in an interior designer—she helped me a lot in decorating my apartment in Lexington," he said.

His sister, Diane Fish, is the oldest child in the family and works for Appalachian Research in Prestonsburg. Timothy, the youngest, is a student at Prestonsburg Community College.

"I went to Prestonsburg first and then transferred to the Lexington campus," Blankenship said. "It was a good stepping stone that helped me grow. I didn't have to deal with living on my own while learning how to study and adapt to college classes."

Blankenship's roommate, Shawn Thompson, is a senior in electrical Blankenship. He has a 3.68 grade point average at UK and has applied to be a University Scholar.

As a University Scholar, Blankenship will work on both his master's degree and his bachelor's degree at the same time. "I should have my master's degree by December 1992," he said.

President of the UK chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers, he also is active in Chi Epsilon, the civil engineering honor society, and Tau Beta Pi, the general engineering honor society.

Religion is also an important part engineering from Pikeville. "We met at Prestonsburg Community College," he said. "There are about 20 of us here majoring in engineering. It's great to have a support group to help with studies and to have fun with."

The decision to attend a college close to home proved successful for of Blankenship's life. He meets every Wednesday night on campus with "Cats for Christ," a Bible study group from the Southside Church of Christ in Lexington.

"There are about 40 of us in the group," he said.

A 1987 graduate of Prestonsburg High School, Blankenship misses being in a marching band. "I played trombone in high school, but I don't have time for band now," he said.

A member of the Student Athletic Council (SAC), he makes time to attend UK's home football and basketball games. "I love to cheer the Cats," he said.

He also takes a few weekends off from studying to go home and fish. "Bass fishing with my family is the greatest," he said.

Jenny Wiley's May Lodge to host open house

There will be a Christmas Open House at Jenny Wiley State Park, December 9, at May Lodge.

The event will be conducted from Noon until 3 p.m. Sunday, and will feature arts and crafts from David crafts and the Lodge Gift Shop. The lodge has been specially decorated for the season and children (age 12 and under) will be treated to a free photo of himself and Santa Claus.

During the festivities, a free dinner for two at May Lodge will also be awarded.

All events and displays are free of charge. The public is urged to attend.

In Loving Memory of D.J. Conn

who passed away August 24, 1990

Christmas time is drawing near, we know it will be sad. Because our son will not be here we love you, Mom and Dad.

Four months ago he left us and didn't even say good-bye. It is hard for us to understand just why he had to die.

But when God sent him to us, he said, I'll loan him for awhile And when the time is ready, I'll reclaim my child.

So we'll just live from day to day and pray for God to guide our way. Until he calls for us to come and then once again we'll see our son.

Mom and Dad

To My Dad D.J. Conn

Everyday I feel pain But I can't take it away

Why, I don't know I guess it is because, my dad went away leaving me alone.

Christmas time will soon be here I know it will be sad.

Because I won't see my dad. Maybe someday my pain will go away.

Until then I will say I love you Dad.

A proud tradition

Our funeral home has been responding to the needs of the community for many years. To continue this proud tradition of helping families in their time of need, we now offer the Sunset Security™ Plan.

Sunset Security™ offered by us as a member of the Kentucky Funeral Directors Burial Association, is a plan that lets you reduce the stress your loved ones will experience at the time of a funeral.

Through Sunset Security™, you can pre-arrange a funeral now. The plan offers an inflation-proof feature that lets you save money by freezing the cost of a funeral at today's prices. And it provides special tax-saving advantages. We'd like to give you a "Personal Record Guide" and tell you about the Sunset Security™ Plan. Just complete the coupon below and send it to us.

Handling the holidays is difficult for grieving families

Children opening presents. Kids excitedly telling Santa their wish lists. Families attending religious services together. Little ones helping grandma bake cookies and decorate.

Much of the holiday joy for adults revolves around children and their fascination with the season. However, families who are grieving the death of a child often have a difficult time reconciling their feelings of both grief and happiness during the holiday season.

These natural feelings can be especially complicated when a family has lost a baby to Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS), also called crib death, according to Ida Lyons, RN, coordinator of the Kentucky Department for Health Services SIDS program.

SIDS is the sudden and unexpected death of a seemingly healthy infant whose death remains unexplained even after an autopsy. Each year, about 100 Kentucky babies die of SIDS.

"It's perfectly natural for families to grieve when they lose a child," she said. "But with SIDS, many parents are overcome by unwarranted guilt about being unable to prevent the infant's death."

"The grief combined with the guilt is often paralyzing—especially during a season when everyone is supposed to be happy and having a good time."

Lyons says that families can do a variety of things to help them cope through the Hanukkah-Christmas-New Year's holidays.

"It's important for families to realize up front that their emotions will be like a roller coaster, and that it's best to simply cope with the emotions you're feeling at the moment."

"Expect that the tears will come along with the smiles and don't try to fight either one," she suggests.

"Most importantly—remember to do what feels appropriate for your family. If following the established family traditions is a comfort to you, then do so. If changing things this year will help, try eating at a different time or opening presents at a different family member's home."

"Each family and their grief is unique, so each family must find what best suits them."

Lyons offers the following suggestions for grieving families to consider.

—If holiday shopping is too difficult, use department store and mail-order catalogs or personal shopping services, or ask a friend to go with you. If shopping becomes too overwhelming, go home for a break.

—Some families find that honoring the memory of their child helps. Examples are placing a special ornament on the tree, donating toys and/or clothes to a children's charity, hanging a stocking for the child and decorating a graveside tree.

—Do not try to over-do the festivities. Meeting all holiday obligations can be stressful in the best of times. Families already under a strain should consider carefully choosing the activities they will participate in.

The Department for Health Services has a network of SIDS counselors who can provide counseling and information to families who have lost babies to SIDS. Counselors can be reached through the Floyd County Health Department.

Highlands "I Quit" club celebrates the Great American Smokeout

Among smokers, the death rate from all causes increases alarmingly with the number of cigarettes smoked per day, the number of years the smoker has smoked, and the earlier the age at which smoking started.

Other variables include depth of inhalation, tar and nicotine levels of the smoke, and the number of puffs per cigarette. All of these greatly contribute to the degree of risk involved in smoking.

Highlands Regional Medical Center celebrated the American Cancer Society's Great American Smokeout, November 15. The "Smokeout" is held annually to increase the awareness of the need among smokers to "stop smoking." Highlands sponsors an organized smoking cessation program entitled the "I Quit Club" which teaches the Cooper/Clayton method to stop smoking. Members of the "I Quit" club manned information tables and distributed brochures on smoking cessation recommendations.

New information on smoke related health problems indicates that women who smoke cigarettes have a significantly higher death rate than those who have never smoked. And women who smoke during pregnancy have more stillbirths and more of their babies die during the first month of infancy, than those of non-smoking mothers.

In a new study reported by the American Society of Anesthesiologists shows that smokers take longer to recover from anesthesia, some requiring as much as two additional hours in the recovery room. Smokers also run a higher risk of complications from surgery. Many surgeons now require patients to stop smoking several weeks before and after some

"I Quit Club" members Dola VanHoose, RN, and Dimple Rowland, auxilliarian encourage smoking cessation during the Great American Smokeout on November 15 by helping to distribute literature.

Timber owner teleconference set

Morehead State University will be the host site for a teleconference on "Federal Income Tax Strategies for Timber Owners," beginning with registration at 10 a.m. on Wednesday, Dec. 5, in Reed Hall Auditorium.

Sponsoring agencies for the free program, in addition to MSU's College of Applied Sciences and Technology, will be the Society of American Foresters and the Kentucky Forest Industries Association.

The teleconference and discussion of local forestry activities and wood industry trends in the state are designed for forest landowners, forest managers, forestry consultants, extension agents, financial planners and accountants, according to Robert

Bauer, MSU wood technologist. "It will be especially helpful to anyone involved with forest land management, financial planning and accounting," Bauer said.

The morning session will get underway at 10:30, with the teleconference slated to run from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m., preceded by registration at 12:30 p.m.

The teleconference will originate from the University of Georgia Center for Continuing Education and will feature some of the most widely respected and knowledgeable national experts on the subject, Bauer said.

"The program will give those attending an understanding of the federal tax factors which affect dollar returns on timber land investment," Bauer added.

Topics will include recovery of invested capital, deductibility of expenses, tax incentives and capital gains considerations.

Additional information on the teleconference may be obtained by calling Bauer at (606) 783-2023.

More than 57 percent of adult Americans have blood cholesterol levels above 200 milligrams per deciliter, a level at which the risk of coronary heart disease begins to rise sharply, says the American Heart Association.

Dunn is promoted to superintendent

Cecil Lee Dunn Jr. of Paintsville has been promoted to superintendent at the Wiley Surface Mine of Consolidation Coal Company of Kentucky, a wholly owned subsidiary of Consolidation Coal Company (Consol).

He previously was a mining engineer for Consolidation Coal Company of Kentucky, which is within the Southern Appalachia Region of Consol.

Dunn was born in Boiesvain, Virginia. He received a bachelor's degree in mining engineering in 1971 from Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

He joined Consol as an industrial engineer trainee in December 1970. He was named project engineer two years later and then surface mining engineer, Horsepen and Coalbank strips, in 1974. Dunn advanced to surface foreman at Rowland in 1982, project engineer in 1983, and to supervisor—environmental quality control in 1984.

Dunn was promoted to his most recent position as mining engineer for Consolidation Coal Company of Kentucky in 1986.

He is a member of the Society of Mining, Metallurgy, and Exploration, Inc. (SME), which is a member society of the American Institute of Mining, Metallurgical, and Petroleum Engineers, Inc. (AIME).

Dunn and his wife, Linda, have two children: Audrey and Kristie.

The Floyd County Literacy Council is working to make a difference in the lives of adults who are handicapped by a lack of reading. Volunteers are needed to teach an adult to read.

Training is provided for all volunteers. The next training workshop is scheduled January 18, 19, 25, 26.

One out of five adults cannot read well enough to cope with daily work and living. Help an adult learn to read today. Volunteer by calling 886-READ.

Crum qualifies for Army College fund

Jason Craig Crum, 17, of Inez has joined the United States Army for a four-year term of enlistment qualifying for the Army College Fund worth $25,200 for college or vocational use following completion of his enlistment. He is the son of Carol and James Crum of Inez.

Crum will begin active duty on July 8, following graduation from high school. He will attend eight weeks of basic training at Ft. Benning, GA, followed by advanced specialized training in his chosen career field as an Airborne/Ranger/Combat Signaler.

A 1991 senior at Sheldon Clark High School, he is a member of the Academic Team, the History and Science Clubs, and participates in Tai Kwon Do. He was assisted in his enlistment by Staff Sgt. Jason Pavolko of the Prestonsburg Army Recruiting Station. Anyone wanting information about opportunities available in today's Army can call Sgt. Pavolko at 886-9455 or visit him at 38 Lake Drive in Prestonsburg.

AAA mix-off set for Dec. 7

Blenders will whirl and drinks will flow at the 9th annual No-Proof Mix-Off, sponsored by the Blue Grass AAA Foundation for Safety. The event is scheduled for Friday, December 7, at 11 a.m. on the main level of Lexington Festival Marketplace. The contest enables area bartenders to compete by mixing original non-alcoholic drinks which are then sampled and rated by a panel of judges.

"The event promotes a serious message in a positive manner," says AAA's Kathy Gross. "We hope to encourage party hosts to provide alternative beverages and offer an appealing array of protein-rich or starchy food to divert attention from the bar." According to AAA, such measures can be helpful in reducing the number of alcohol-related deaths and injuries which occur around the holiday season.

As an incentive to bartenders, AAA is offering cash prizes for the top three recipes. The judges are Barbara Bailey, WKYT-TV; Col. Charles Johnson, Kentucky State Police; Ray Larson, Commonwealth Attorney; Sharon Thompson, Lexington Herald-Leader; Sue Wylie, WLEX-TV and Sky Yancey, WTVQ-TV.

The event is open to the public. Beginning December 11, anyone wanting copies of the drink recipes may pick them up at AAA, 155 N. Martin Luther King Blvd.

A Look At Sports
by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

CORRECTION TIME

In last Friday's sports section, I incorrectly listed, underneath the grade school standings, that Martin had lost twice to John M. Stumbo during the regular season. That was quoted incorrectly. Martin won twice over the Mustangs and lost once to them.

Now, lets go on with a look at some of the upcoming grade school stars in Floyd County.

MELVIN COUGARS

OSBORNE EAGLES

DON TACKETT: Just a seventh grader, but plays big. Can really jump. Gets up with the best of them. Needs more confidence and needs to be more aggressive on offense.

ADAMS MIDDLE SCHOOL

THOMAS RATLIFF: Good ball-player. Knows his responsibility as a team leader. Good shot outside and deadly inside. Needs to block out more underneath the boards. RYAN ORTEGA: Quick, quick and still quick. Has good basketball sense. Good free throw shooter and plays above average defense. LARRY MORRIS: Has potential to be a real good player. Can score underneath and is a good shot from eight feet out on in. Plays hard.

AUXIER HORNETS

JASON BURKE: One of the best in the county. Good shooter and runs the court well. Needs to be more alert on defense. Can turn on the speed when needed. Improved a lot from the charity stripe. ERVIN OSBORNE: Good outside shot. Drives the lanes well and gets out on the break real well. Needs to learn to control his emotions on the floor as calls against him seem to bother him. Good player.

MOUNTAIN CHRISTIAN ACADEMY

DAVID TURNER: Has improved tremendously. Can play inside or outside. Corner seems to be his spot for shooting. Good free throw shooter and rebounds well despite his size. A team leader which is important.

TOWEL FOR TARKANIAN MORE THAN JUST TO CHEW ON

Come on Jerry, hasn't the NCAA given into your demands enough? They have given you a chance to defend your NCAA title. That is what you wanted! Now Jerry, you're back into the tournament and you are already working on getting back into it next year. You still say it's not fair that the younger players should have to suffer next season. Jerry, you should have thought about all of this back in the 1970's when you got caught. Use the towel for more than just chewing on. It can be used also for drying tears. I personally think the NCAA (No Count Athletic Association) owes the Kansas Jayhawks an apology. Tark has them in his tank!

LOT OF INTEREST BUILDING FOR THE COUNTY TOURNAMENT

The Floyd County grade school basketball tournament is building a lot of interest compared to the many phone calls I get here at the paper and people I talk to at basketball games. Many fans would be surprised at the crowd the tournament draws. The county tournament is always fun and exciting to watch. You can always depend on finding some very close games.

Allen Eagles are the defending champions from last year. The Eagles have been down some this season in a rebuilding year. They will be in Section IV with Auxier and Adams Middle School this year. Maytown is the defending girls' champions after their startling upset of the undefeated John M. Stumbo Lady Mustangs in last year's finals. You never know who will come out on top. All records are thrown out the window when it comes tournament time.

CARE OF HUNTING DOGS VERY IMPORTANT DURING WINTER TIME

Hunters, be sure to take of your hunting companion this winter. Don't take their health for granted. We have an article you might be interested in reading concerning winter care of "man's best friend." Read it. Some good tips are in it.

Until next time, be good sports.

Disagreement With Officials Causes Problems

If it was your ball the gang was playing with, and they made you mad, you could always take your ball and go home. Well, if you coach basketball and you aren't entirely in agreement with the referee's, you can always take your team and go home.

That seems to be the case in some instances of the past week where we have problems with coaches not being too taken by the officiating in grade school basketball.

Two weeks ago, two of the county's top grade school programs met at the Martin gym for one of the top grade school games. The Martin Purple Flash and John M. Stumbo Mustangs were to meet for the third time this season. The rivalry between the two teams had become very intense after the first meeting in the Right Beaver Classic at Martin to kick off the grade school basketball season. In the game, a Mustang player, Toby Newsome was injured by a thrown elbow and had to be taken to the hospital. Newsome did experience a nasty wound. The accusations began to flow throughout the gym, that the infliction was of the intentional nature. Martin defeated the Mustangs to claim the championship of the tournament.

Game two was played at John M. Stumbo on October 10 in which the Mustangs wore out the Purple Flash by 20 plus points. From the Martin fans point of view the officiating left a lot to be desired as several fans began to mention the old adage of "home cooking." (That is, referees favoring the home team).

Game three: Back to Martin. Stumbo versus Martin. Early in the game and Stumbo coach Paul David Tackett had been whistled for three technical fouls. Rules require any coach with three technical fouls to leave the court as well as the playing area. According to reports of the incident, Tackett refused to leave after the third technical and the referees forfeited the game to Martin.

Coach Tackett could not be reached for his comments on the situation that took place at the Martin school. Neither could we reach Floyd County Athletic Director Frankie Francis.

We would endeavor to take this space and say that it should have never happened. Coaches are mature individuals, out there to show the kids not only the fundamentals of basketball but the rules of good sportsmanship also. Who was at fault, is not the question. The question is, could it have been avoided? And any situation such as this is always unpleasant for any coach's players to have to witness.

Down The Middle!

Hall Scores 24 As Rebels Get Off To 3-0 Start With 94-80 Win Over Cordia

It's still watch and wait in the early going of the 1990-91 high school basketball season. Even for the Rebel's head coach, Johnny Martin, it's just "wait and see." The Rebels, in a rebuilding year, have been playing like an experienced team that has been playing together for a long time. Although that is not the case, the Rebels have been impressive in their first three games and just as recently as Saturday night when they handed a good Cordia Lions team a 94-80 setback in a homecoming game at the Right Beaver School.

"We will have to wait until we play someone like Sheldon Clark and Belfry before we can tell just how good we are," said Coach Martin of his team's 3-0 start. "We do have good quickness. And the more you run the more you are going to score. Whether you can run with the bigger teams is another question."

The Rebels used balanced scoring to subdue a Cordia team that came into the game with a 1-2 record. The Lions had lost to Powell County and Wolfe County while defeating Letcher County. The Lions were a quick team that didn't seem to be too affected by the Rebels' full court defense. As a matter of a fact, the Lions scored several easy buckets by beating the press. Senior guard, Brian Hall had a high of 24 points as he ripped the Lions' defense with some great penetration to the basket. Hall also showed that he was able to connect from the outside. Hall played like a player "possessed" in the first quarter as he fired in 11 points. Hall sat out most of the second period as Coach Martin sent in five rested players. Hall then returned to the Rebels' line-up with 3:40 remaining and immediately hit a two pointer. Three possessions later he drove to the lane and pulled up with a short jumper that gave the Rebels a 45-40 lead. Hall finished the first half with 18 points. "Brian had a good game for us tonight," said Coach Martin. "We really have four players capable of going out there and having nights like they did tonight." The Rebels not only got 24 points from Hall, but senior point guard Ronnie Samons added 19 points in the win and Chuck Laferty tossed in 17 point in a good outing. Todd Lucas, the team's leading scorer against Magoffin County had another good night with 16.

"Our problem is that we are getting beat on the boards," Martin said of his team's lack of height. "Cordia had 13 offensive rebounds against us tonight."

"We're just not blocking out on the boards like we should be," he added. "I am disappointed with the rebounding of some of our bigger men."

The Rebels scored 30 points in the first quarter as they scorched the nets and had no turnovers. Allen Central also connected on eight of eight free throws in the period in moving out to a 30-26 first quarter lead. The Rebels were unable to shake the Lions as they stayed in the game on the strength of some inside play of Tim Toler. Toler had seven first quarter points. Shane Stanley picked up the scoring for Cordia in the second quarter by hitting for nine points. The Rebels

Fourth Quarter Letdown Sinks Daredevils Against Greenup Co.

It was an uphill struggle for the McDowell Daredevils all game long as they battled one of the 16th Region's top teams, the Musketeers of Greenup County. Greenup is coached by a former Floyd County, Randy Ward, who was an assistant coach at Wheelwright at one time under Don Wallen.

Ward has his Musketeers in gear this season as they posted a 67-57 win over host McDowell Friday night before a huge homecoming crowd at the Left Beaver school.

Between the junior varsity and varsity game, Stacy Conn was crowned the new 1990 McDowell Homecoming Queen.

After the homecoming events, all the attention turned to the floor as the Musketeers outscored the Daredevils 16-6 to take a 60-44 lead to break open a close ball game. The fourth period letdown was costly for the Daredevils as they dropped their second game of the season to go 1-2 on the year.

Chris Plummer, the sparkplug guard who makes the Musketeers go, tossed in 26 points to lead Greenup County in scoring. But in the first quarter it was all Tracy Calhoun as the big center tossed in eight points to give the Musketeers a 14-5 lead.

Both teams played sloppy basketball in the second period. Each squad

Second Half Spurt Sends Wheelwright Past Jenkins

Wheelwright is 2-0 on the season. This is a different Trojan ball club. A team that runs and runs and when they get tired they run some more. That's the way they like it. The Trojans showed their versatility against Jenkins Friday night with a 72-61 win over the Cavaliers. Jenkins came to play ball also and challenged the Trojans most of the game.

"We're looking better as a team," said Trojan head coach Monroe Jones of his team's success thus far. "We have made a lot of progress in just the two games we have played."

Wheelwright trailed 12-11 at the end of the first quarter. Both teams scored 16 points in the second period in a dog fight all the way. Jenkins went to the lockerroom with a 28-27 lead. In the third period, Wheelwright got some scoring from their big men and went on top. However, the Cavaliers were not to roll over. At the end of the third, the Trojans were on top 44-41.

"We played a man to man defense against Jenkins," explained Jones. "We have the ability to play a zone, press, or pressure without man to man."

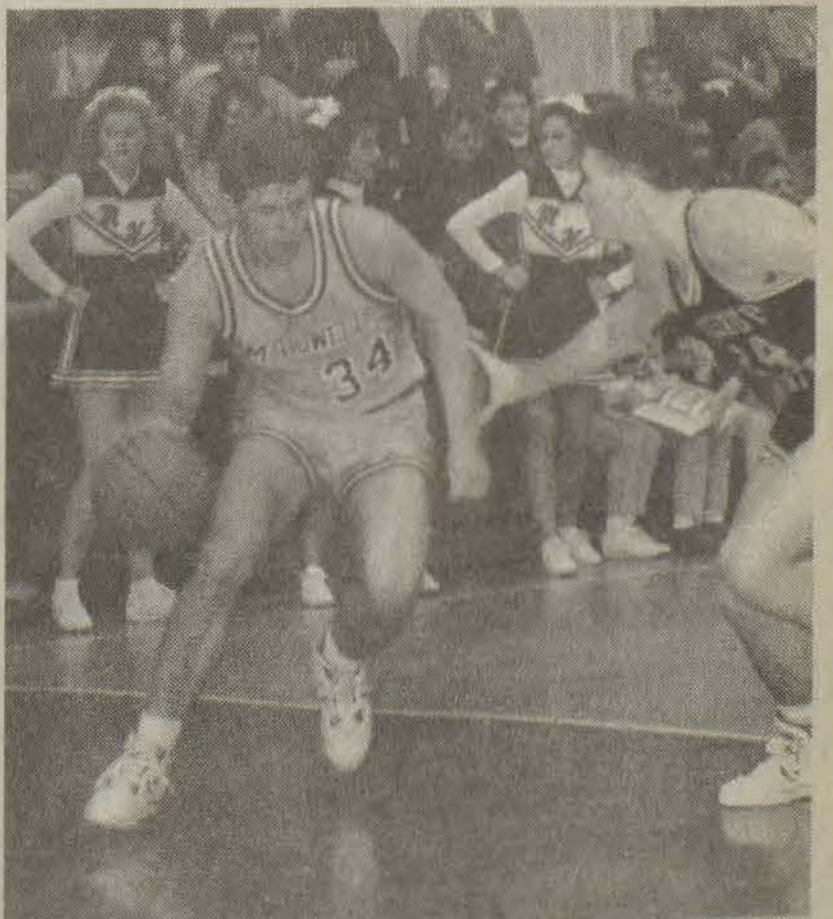

The Trojans outscored the Cavaliers 26-20 in the wild fourth quarter in recording a 72-61 win.

"I believe we will be a decent team as the season goes on," the Trojan coach stated. "We are moving the ball well as a team. Steven (Johnson) is showing some improvement in handling the ball. We just need to get stronger. We can do some different things on defense and that makes us versatile."

Jones lauded the good play of Harold Johnson and Paul Hall thus far this season.

Wheelwright was led in scoring by Paul Hall with 22 points. Harold Johnson finished with 16 and Shane McCoy added 14.

Brian Johnson led the Cavaliers with 22 points and Williams had 14. Wheelwright will entertain Fleming-Neon this Friday night at home.

Daredevils

had problems holding onto the basketball. Greenup County turned the ball over five times in the quarter and McDowell managed eight.

Greenup County held a 16-8 lead midway through the second. A basket by Barry Hall cut it to 16-10. Matt Johnson, who had a good game for McDowell, scored underneath to cut the lead to four, 16-12. The Daredevils turned the ball over on their next three possessions and a trey by Plummer made it 19-12. Britt Stumbo hit a three pointer and canned two free throws to close the lead to two, 19-17. Stacy Hall missed a clean layup, and a chance to tie the game. After Plummer's bucket made it 21-17, a three point play by center Dale Hinkle made it one point, 21-20. Two Plummer charity tosses sent the Musketeers out by three, 23-20.

Doug Hopkins blocked an in-bounds pass on the press and missed a "bunny" underneath. Hopkins retrieved the errant shot and was fouled on the second effort. He connected on the back of the two-shot foul for a 23-21 game. With three seconds left in the half, Greenup turned the ball over and at the :01 mark, Hall hit a "circus" shot to tie the game at 23-23 at the half.

In the third period, Hopkins kept the Daredevils close with some good outside shooting. The junior point guard hit a three-pointer to open the third and gave McDowell a 26-23 lead. After Plummer picked Hopkins pocket on a possession, he laid the ball in for two. Johnson scored from five feet out and Hopkins hit another three-pointer for a 31-25 McDowell lead.

Greenup got baskets from Calhoun and Plummer to come within two, 31-29 as the McDowell defense seemed to relax. Hopkins hit again for a 33-29 lead. Calhoun scored and Hopkins right back with two free throws off of a good pass from Mike Duddleson. The charity tosses gave the Daredevils a 35-31 lead.

Greenup went on a 11-2 tear and took a five point advantage, 40-35 as turnovers were a problem for McDowell. McDowell could never recover the intensity they played with in the first part of the game.

Besides Plummer's 26 points, the Musketeers got 14 points from Jason Blevins and 10 points from Calhoun. Hopkins led the Daredevils with 13 points, all coming in the second half. Hall finished with 11 points and both Johnson and Barry Hall tossed in nine.

McDowell falls to 1-2 on the season and will face a tough conference foe, Betsy Layne, in a road game. The Daredevils turned the ball over 18 times in the game and both Hopkins and Duddleson pulled down five rebounds. Plummer had seven rebounds for Greenup County and Patrick Allison had six.

Lady Daredevils "Blister" Mullins To The Tune Of 88-55 Behind Bryant's 18

In the 13th Annual Pikeville Invitational basketball tournament at the T.W. Oliver Memorial Fieldhouse, the McDowell Daredevils defeated the Lady Tigers of Mullins 88-55 to capture third place of the tournament.

Lori Bryant tossed in 18 points to lead the balanced scoring of the Lady Devils. Shelby Howell, who the Lady Devils need some scoring from, added 16 points while Debbie Fannin netted 12. The win overshadowed the 41 point performance of sophomore Misty Haynes of Mullins. The sharp-shooting guard had five three-pointers in the game for the Lady Tigers.

McDowell scored the game's first four points with Bryant getting the scoring started on a short jumper. Kristy Mullins followed with a rebound put back to double the lead.

Tonja White cut the lead in half with a jumper of her own and the Lady Devils scored the next six points — two jumpers by Lori Bryant and a layup basket by Jenny Slone — to stretch the lead to 10-2.

Haynes hit a trey to cut the lead to 10-5. Bryant and Mullins' Rachel McClenahan traded baskets to make the score 12-7. Bryant's layup made it 14-7 and Haynes hit another three-pointer to make it 14-10.

Jenny Slone's short jumper gave McDowell a six point lead at 16-10. Mullins clawed to within two points, 16-14 on two jumpers by Haynes.

Kristy Mullins, who played a good game, hit a jumper to give the Lady Devils a 18-14 advantage. Haynes hit a jumper and Debbie Fannin's free throw closed the first period scoring at 20-10.

McDowell really opened up the game by scoring 31 points in the second quarter to Mullin's 17. Sabrina Justice's basket early in the second quarter made it 20-16 as the Lady Tigers came back to within four points of McDowell. From that point McDowell responded with seven unanswered points. In the run, Howell had a three point play off of a layup and a rebound basket. Bryant followed with a short jumper which opened up an 11 point lead for McDowell.

The Lady Tigers were not through yet as they crept back to within six points of the McDowell lead, 29-23, on the strength of Haynes shooting. A 22-9 run by McDowell sewed up the game for McDowell as they took a 51-32 lead to the lockerroom at halftime. Fannin had eight points in the drive.

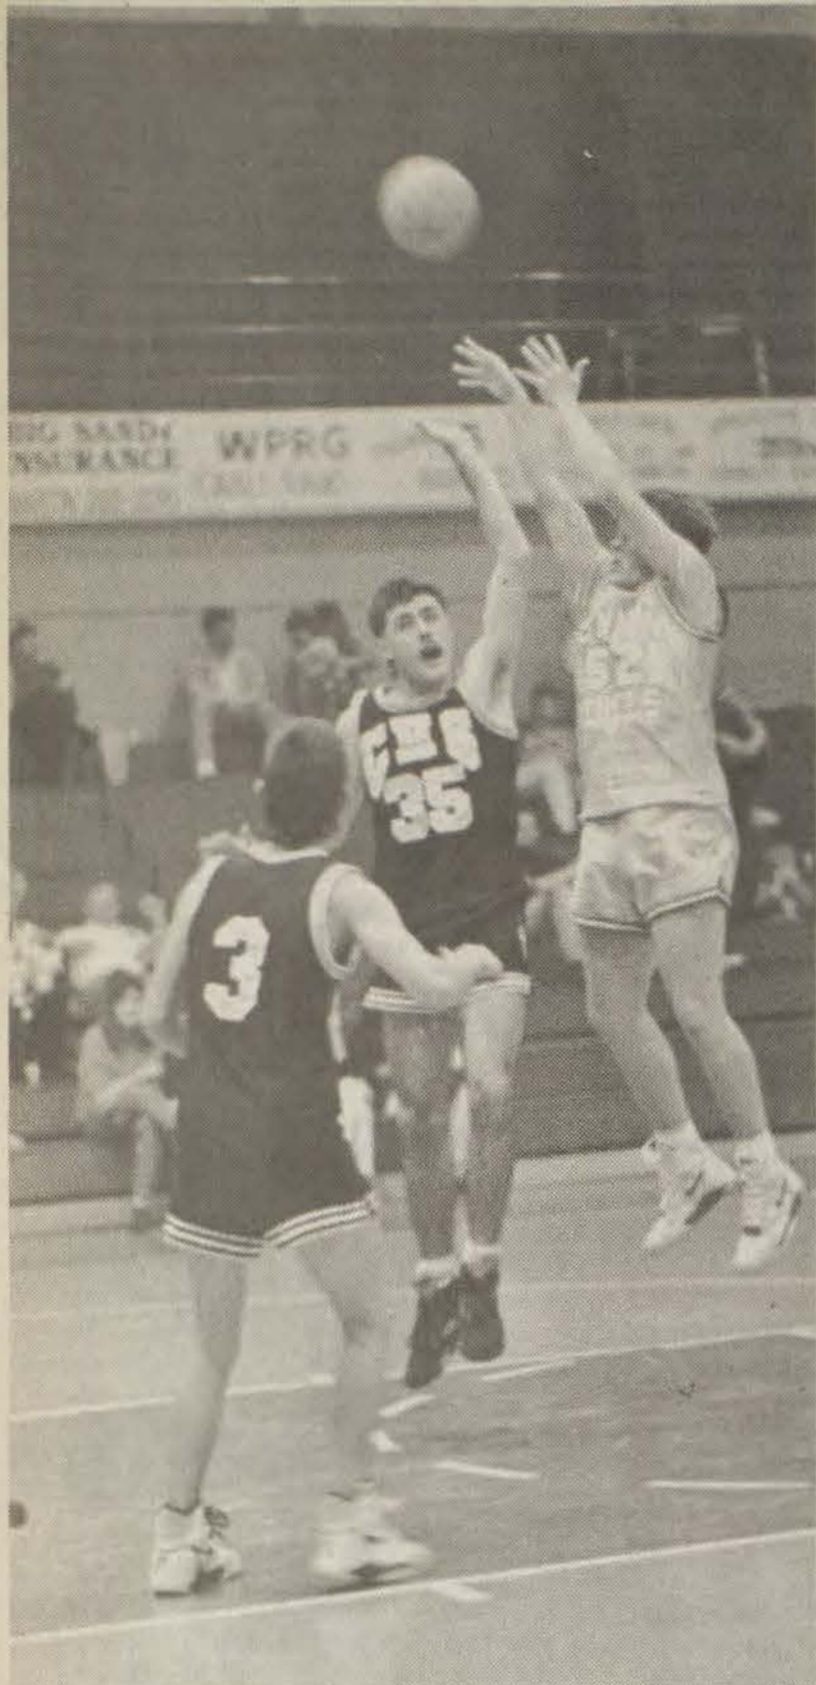

At one point in the fourth period McDowell was ahead by 41 points over the Lady Tigers, 85-44 while coasting to their first win of the season against two losses. Fannin had two three-pointers for McDowell in the game. Michelle Newsome had 11 points for McDowell while teammate Kerrie Newsome added 10, leading five double figure scorers for McDowell.

Haynes had a great game for Mullins in scoring her 41 points. Justice and White each scored six points.

McDowell, 1-2, will travel to Betsy Layne Friday night to face the Lady Bobcats in conference action.

were on top by three 51-48 at the half.

A "rainbow" three-pointer that could have brought rain, by Simon Stacy opening the third quarter, tied the game at 51-51. The Rebels then outscored the Lions 16-2 to open up a 67-51 lead. Lucas hit two three-pointers in the run. Mike Allen took a pass into the middle and hit a nice turnaround. Samons had four points in the run. It was nightmare for Samons, who normally is a good free throw shooter, at the free throw line as he connected on five of nine attempts.

Laferty, who had just two first half points, made his presence known in the second half as he tossed in 15 points. But, the big junior also contributed on the boards for the Rebels and played like a veteran on some of the moves he made. Laferty hit a three-pointer just before the buzzer ending the third quarter to give Allen Central a 73-57 lead.

Tony Soler, who only scored two points, helped on the boards also. Soler is a transfer student from West Virginia. "Tony is a good spark for this club," said Martin. "He really helps us when he goes in."

"Carl (Watson) played some good basketball for us also," the Rebel mentor stated. "Our problem still exists of getting a big lead and then letting the other team back in."

The Rebels held a 79-65 lead but the Lions got a three-pointer from Stacy and two free throws by Chester Patrick to close to within nine, 79-70.

"Our team just lacks maturity and experience," said Martin.

Martin said in this day and time of high school basketball a 10 point lead is nothing compared to the way it used to be. "Used to be if you had a 10 point lead it was a good sized lead, but not anymore with the three-point field goal." Martin said that winning three games in a row will be a confidence booster for his players.

"I believe we can be competitive on the district level," he related. "Now against a Sheldon Clark we will have to play differently."

The crowd wanted 100 points put on the scoreboard before the game ended. However, Coach Martin went to his bench and let all the players play. The Allen Central coach did something that has not been a familiar sight at the Rebel games — he substituted freely throughout the game, giving the players some playing time. Stewart Hall came off the bench and, though he scored just two points, showed his ability to move the ball. Jeremy Clark put in a good game also for the Rebels.

Martin said that it will take blocking out more on the boards and inside defense for the Rebels to have a successful year. "I feel that our perimeter players do a good job," he said, "and we need to defend the fast break better, although I feel we are getting better at that."

Stacy led Cordia in scoring with 19 points. Patrick added 16 as did Shane Stanley. Toler finished with 15.

Allen Central (3-0) will travel to Prestonsburg for their first conference game against Gordon Parido's Blackcats.

Belfry Rights Self For Win Over Betsy Layne Lady Cats

Boyd From Outside

Briana Boyd (22) of Betsy Layne put up a jumper against the Belfry Pirates Thursday night at Betsy Layne. Boyd had 11 points in the game, however, the Lady Cats fell to the Lady Pirates for their first loss. (Photo by Ed Taylor)

Things just didn't start out too well for the Belfry Lady Pirates against Betsy Layne Thursday night at the D. W. Howard Fieldhouse as the two regional powers got together for a top region matchup early in the season.

The Lady Pirates are a high choice of many in the 15th Region to be a contender for the regional crown. However, the Lady Pirates had to "right" themselves after the first quarter and hold off a determined Betsy Layne team.

Turnovers plagued the Lady Cats in the third period as they mishandled the basketball nine times to allow Belfry to build a sizable lead. Belfry led at the end of the third period 45-30.

The story was different in the first period, as the Lady Cats looked like a team that was to serve notice to the rest of the 15th Region that they too were to be a contender. The Lady Cats outscored Belfry 12-4 at one point in the first to take a 17-10 lead. A basket by Julie Blankenship just before the horn sounded made it 17-12. Stephanie Simpson had scored first for Belfry and Briana Boyd hit her first three point attempt to give the Lady Cats a 3-2 lead. Sharieta Joplin, who signed to play for Morehead next year, hit a layup to give Belfry the lead. Jamie Smith's short jumper made it 5-4 Betsy Layne until two free throws by Blankenship put the Lady Pirates back on top, 6-5. Betsy Layne scored the next seven points on baskets by Nancy Shepherd, who led the Lady Cats with 15 points, Smith, Nikki Webb and a free throw by Boyd.

Betsy Layne went on top 18-12 on a free throw by Shepherd. Then the Lady Pirates started righting themselves. A bucket by Blankenship and Joplin made it 18-16. Boyd hit a shot for the Lady Cats for a 20-16 lead. Betsy Layne then missed four charity tosses and a chance to extend their lead. The next six points belonged to Belfry, as they took the lead at 22-20 with 3:30 remaining in the half.

The Lady Cats continued their cold free throw shooting, hitting one of four as they were outscored 8-2 in the last 1:49 of the half. The run gave Belfry a 30-23 lead at the half.

It was "turnover city" for the Lady Cats in the third as they turned the ball over on eight straight possessions. During Betsy Layne's drought, Belfry ran off 12 straight points for a 45-28 lead. Boyd hit a shot at the buzzer to make it 45-30.

Betsy Layne turned the ball over 21 times in the game while Belfry had 11 turnovers. At the charity stripe the Lady Cats hit only nine of 29 free throw attempts. Belfry connected on 13 of 17 free throw attempts.

Nikki Webb and Jamie Smith had seven rebounds in the game for Betsy Layne. Shelia Hall and Nancy Shepherd pulled down six each.

Game scoring honors went to Joplin with 22 points. Joplin used her quickness and outside shooting to lead the Lady Pirates. Christie Stepp added 17 for the winners. Shepherd's 15 points led Betsy Layne. Boyd finished with 11 points and Smith tossed in 10.

Betsy Layne falls to 1-1 on the young season and Belfry goes to 1-0. The Lady Cats will be back in action tonight as they host the Johns Creek Lady Bearcats. Tonight's game will also feature a freshman game. Friday night, Betsy Layne will get their first test in the conference as they host Cassandra Keathley's McDowell Lady Daredevils.

sport has become very, very competitive — even at the elementary level — especially in Floyd County where we have one of the finest grade school programs around. I would hate to see such an outstanding program tarnished by such activities that took place at Martin. When the third technical foul was called, the Stumbo coach should have obeyed the rules of the game and left the floor, allowing the game to continue. Rules are installed to control the game. You can try and defy the rule, but it will cost you if you break it. Good sportsmanship is vital to the game of basketball, baseball, football, etc. It is the one most important principle that needs not only to be stressed but exemplified.

This is not a slap at any one particular person in our county, but to encourage all coaches to set the right example of sportsmanship before our kids. They have enough around them to influence them the wrong way.

I know our county coaches want to win, and they would not be worth their salt if they didn't. But there should never be a "win at any cost" attitude. There are values our kids still need to learn and one person that can teach those kids those values are people they look up to and respect — their coaches.

I know Paul David Tackett and all the coaches in the county. They are competent people with a desire to win. Coach Tackett probably will tell you that it's one incident he regrets in his coaching career. Sometimes the worst gets the best of us and we don't perform like we should. But also the best should be brought out by us so the worst will not be seen.

BOWHUNTING WITH CARBON ARROWS

For as long as most of us can remember, aluminum arrows have been standard equipment for archers around the world. In fact, if you were a bowhunter, you used aluminum arrows; there just wasn't another choice. That, however, is now changing.

Beman, a French company, introduced a carbon-graphite arrow several years ago. Designed for competitive archers, Beman's new shafts were much lighter and straighter than comparably-spined aluminum shafts. In the 1988 Olympic archery competitions, 25 percent of the archers used Beman's new shafts—and they took home 75 percent of the medals! Since that time, competitive archers have traded their aluminum shafts for the new high-tech graphite shafts.

Sensing an unexplored market, Beman wisely developed a carbon shaft designed exclusively for bowhunters and called it the Beman Hunter. Constructed of linear fibers of carbon graphite, these shafts look very much like a short piece of a graphite fishing rod, and they are much thinner and lighter than traditional aluminum arrows.

The chief advantage of graphite arrows is that they are lighter than conventional aluminum arrows. In the field, this means that they will shoot much flatter than aluminum arrows, thereby helping the hunter to compensate for errors in judging distance to targets. As most bowhunters know, an error in distance estimation often means a missed shot.

But because graphite arrows follow a much flatter trajectory than the typical rainbow-like trajectory of aluminum arrows, distance estimation is eased somewhat. Hunters and competitive archers alike will find this a very real advantage.

Because carbon arrows are much lighter than aluminum ones, they offer dramatically increased velocities. This means your arrow will cover the distance between you and the deer much faster than an aluminum arrow, and hopefully before the deer can react to the sound of your bow. By simply switching to full length carbon arrows, most bowhunters can gain all of the advantages of an overdraw without the disadvantages of a shortened arrow. Beman says that their Hunter shafts will give you an increased velocity of 12 to 17 percent over similarly spined aluminum shafts, though I have found that figure to be quite conservative.

Carbon arrows also oscillate less than conventional aluminum shafts, and this means improved accuracy and tighter groups. Though breakable, carbon shafts are unbendable so you will not have to worry about bent shafts. Too, Beman shafts are much straighter than premium aluminum arrows. While the best aluminum shafts are manufactured to a TIR (total indicator reading of shaft straightness) of .004 inches, Beman's Hunter is manufactured to a TIR of .0025 inches, thus making it the straightest hunting arrow shaft in the world.

I began shooting Beman's Hunter shaft back in the spring, and to be quite honest with you, I could not be more impressed. Though my draw length is 31 inches, I use a TM Hunter rest that allows me to shoot a 29 inch arrow. With a 29 inch 50/70 Beman Hunter and a draw weight of 65 pounds, I can pull 248 feet per second out of my bow. For a full-length arrow, that is quite fast. Additionally, my arrow's trajectory is extraordinarily flat, enabling me to use just one sight pin out to 25 yards; from one yard to 25 yards, I can aim with one pin and keep my arrows in deer's vitals. Because most bowhunting shots are at ranges less than 25 yards, this is an extremely advantageous sighting system for any bowhunter.

Because these carbon arrows are a bit lighter than aluminum shafts, I was afraid that they would not penetrate well in a hunting situation. An early season hunt in South Carolina proved those fears groundless, for I was able to make a through-and-through shot on a buck, dropping it in just 43 yards from the point of impact. The tremendous increase in arrow velocity obtained when switching to carbon shafts more than outweighs the lessened mass of the arrow. (Penetration is a product of the arrow's kinetic energy, a value determined through the arrow's velocity and mass or weight.) In fact, Beman's research has indicated that their carbon shafts provide roughly 25 percent greater penetration than comparable aluminum shafts. This fall, while hunting in various states, I have taken three shots at whitetail bucks while using Beman Hunter shafts. All three were through-and-through shots penetrating both lungs, and all of those deer fell within sight of my treestand.

Available in six shafts to fit bows with draw weights of 30 to 100 pounds, Beman's Hunter carbon-graphite arrow shaft is one way to get peak performance from your hunting bow. For more information on Beman's Hunter Shaft, write: Beman Archery Corporation, 1315 West Belmont Avenue, Chicago, Illinois 60657.

Hall and Johnson's Hot Shooting Keys Win For Trojans Over Buchanan, 79-60

The Wheelwright Trojans got their 1990-91 basketball season underway on a successful note with a 79-60 win over June Buchanan. The Trojans, a strong team that will be a contender in the region this year, got 41 points from Paul Hall and Harold Newsome. Hall tossed in 21 while Johnson added 20 points. Newcomer Mike Newsome scored 16 points in the win.

Wheelwright built a 26-12 lead after the first quarter as Trojan coach Monroe Jones used a lot of players against Buchanan.

"We pressed the whole game against Buchanan," said Jones. "We've got eight to nine players that we can go to this year, something we were not able to do before."

Wheelwright, behind the scoring of the trio, led at the half, 39-28. The Trojans used their pressure defense to force Buchanan to turn the ball over several times.

"We moved the ball real well against June Buchanan," said Jones. "Several of our players look real good."

Combs led Buchanan in scoring with 19 points, hitting five for five from the free throw line and two three-pointers. Hall had 11 and Stone 10 as other double figure scorers.

For Wheelwright, Steven Johnson added eight points and Shane McCoy netted six. Both Jimmy Helton and Layne Bailey scored four points.

Buchanan hit 12 of 13 free throws while the Trojans shot four and hitting three.

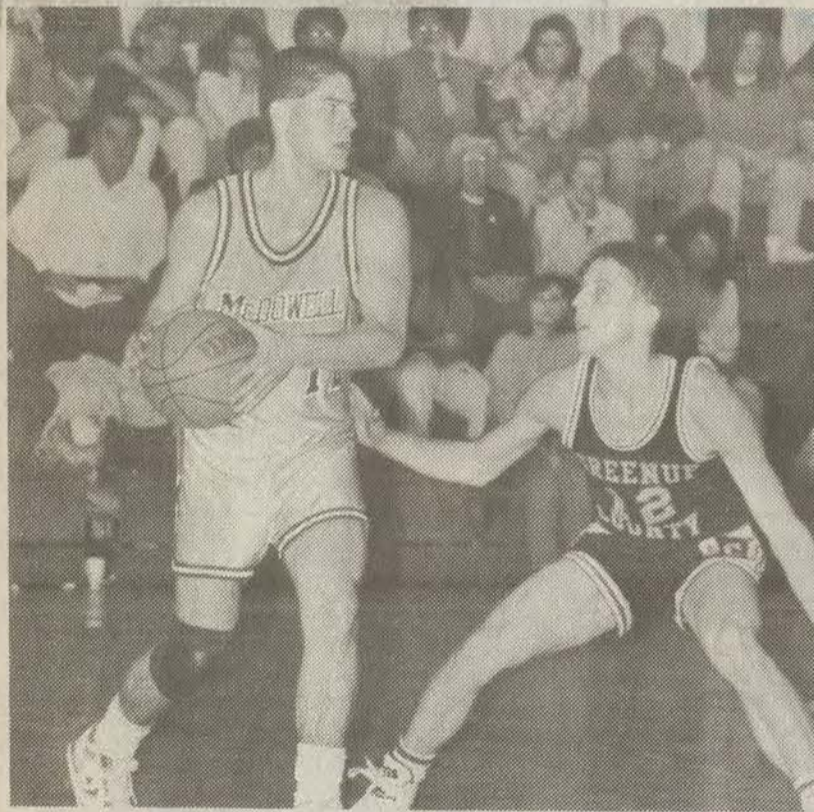

Wheelwright goes to 1-0 on the season.

Betsy Layne Homecoming Court

No Knee Problems

Briana Boyd, who underwent knee surgery two years ago, finds playing the game of basketball no problem for her this season. Boyd will be counted to help lead the Lady Cats this season. (Photo by Ed Taylor)

The Betsy Layne High School 1990 Basketball homecoming will be held December 8 at the D.W. Howard Fieldhouse.

The Betsy Layne Bobcats will host the Magoffin County Hornets. Pre-game activities include the introduction of the homecoming court and the crowning of the 1990-91 Homecoming Queen.

This year's court consists of the following senior candidates: Carla Hall, 17-year-old daughter of Carl and Georgenia Hall of Banner; Sheila Hall, 17-year-old daughter of Bobby and Sandy Hall of Galveston; Anita Kidd, 17-year-old daughter of Clarence Ed and Christine Kidd of Harold; Angela Dawn Boyd, 17-year-old daughter of Randall and Donna Boyd of Stanville; Tonya Clemons, 17-year-old daughter of John and Regina Clemons of Prater; Melissa Jacobs, 17-year-old daughter of Paul and Barbara Jacobs of Ivel; Donna Hall, 17-year-old daughter of Don Hall of Grethel; and Wanda Boyd of Betsy Layne and Melissa Coleman, 17-year-old daughter of Kennie and Brenda Coleman of Ivel.

Half-time activities will include honoring the classes of 1961, 1971, and 1981.

Bassin' with the Pros

HOW THE PROS ADD NOISE TO THEIR FISHING

For years bass fishermen have been told noise frightens fish, but now many of the nation's tournament pros are deliberately adding noise to their lures.

Of course, rattles have been put into fast moving crankbaits for years, but no one has ever decided just how important this added sound is, especially when compared to the vibrations such lures produce.

Today, however, rattles are being added to jigs and plastic worms, two lures traditionally fished slowly and methodically along the bottom without much vibration.

"We have learned bass use their hearing system a great deal when feeding," explains Evinrude Pro Staff angler Ken Cook. "I've noticed when I go scuba diving that I can often attract bass close to me by making a light clicking noise, like tapping two rocks together."

Several firms are now marketing lure rattles — tiny steel pellets encased in glass or plastic sheaths — that can easily be pushed into a worm. These same rattles can also be glued to jigs, usually just below the head where they are hidden by the skirt.

A number of jigs are also being sold today with the rattles already in place, and the number of manufacturers doing this is expected to increase.

"In recent years," Cook explains, "bass fishermen, especially the tournament anglers, have been studying the different senses of bass more than ever before. We're looking for ways to make our lures more appealing."

"The most obvious of these has been sight appeal. Manufacturers paint their lures so realistically now it's almost hard to tell them from the real thing. We also add solutions to make the lures smell like baitfish or crayfish, and now we're adding rattles to make them sound more natural."

One of the Evinrude pro's favorite noise making techniques with plastic worms is to thread a small glass bead between the slip sinker and hook. Each time Cook shakes the worm, the sinker taps the bead and produces an audible click. Hew uses brass slip sinkers instead of the more common lead sinkers because they produce a louder sound.

"I believe adding noise like this helps primarily under two conditions," he says, "which are when I'm fishing very deep water and when I'm working extremely heavy cover. Both of these are when visibility is limited and bass would tend to rely more on their sense of hearing."

When fishing a plastic worm in deep water, Cook does a lot of rod shaking rather than steady reeling. This causes the lure to dance and jump — and make noise — in the same spot. Instead of having to search for bass with his lure, Cook uses noise to make bass do the searching.

"I also believe noise can be important when flipping worms into thick cover," Cook says. "When I do this, I tie a small piece of rubber band around my fishing line about a quarter-inch above the slip sinker. This has the same effect as pegging the slip sinker in place, but allows just enough movement for the sinker to click against the bead."

Before storing your boat this winter, apply a thin coating of OMC Triple-Guard grease on the steering cable ram of the remote controlled outboard after thoroughly cleaning the ram. The grease will help the steering work smoothly and easily and keep it from seizing during storage.

LURES FOR COLD WATER FISHING

If you limit your cold water bass fishing strictly to deep water jigs, you're usually missing a lot of alternative opportunities that often yield some excellent action.

Spinnerbaits, crankbaits, even topwater chuggers and poppers can, at times, be used in cold water.

"The overall key is the weather itself, explains Johnson Outboards Pro Staff angler Freda Lee, who fishes year-round, regardless of the weather conditions.

"Very often, winter weather is broken by several warm, sunny days between fronts," she says. "These types of days can cause bass to move into more shallow water and make them more active."

"You still have to retrieve your lures slowly and deliberately, but sometimes the activity level of bass on days like this can be a pleasant surprise."

For example, says the attractive Johnson Outboards pro, bass may be enticed to hit a topwater popper or chugger fished over shallow moss, even in the dead of winter. Likewise, spinnerbaits and crankbaits can often draw strikes around rocky riprap.

"Vegetation usually holds bass year round," says Lee. "It provides cover, warmer water, and food, so the bass don't really need to leave. They're just not as active."

Instead of really popping a plug across the top of a mossbed, work it very slowly with a lot of pauses. You may need to switch to a smaller lure and make repeated casts, but don't ever start thinking a bass isn't there."

Lee works crankbaits in the same deliberate manner. She likes to fish points, stumpy flats, and boathouses with a diving plug that gets quickly to the bottom and then chugs and digs its way back to the boat.

"Stump flats can really be surprising," she notes, "because they may hold winter bass even when the water depth is less than five feet. The most effective flats are those edged by a deeper channel the fish can use when the weather turns cold again."

"On a warm day, bass frequently move up onto a flat to feed, particularly in mid-afternoon after the sun has been out for several hours."

"My lure choice here is a crankbait or spinnerbait worked carefully around the cover and bouncing off the stumps."

The spinnerbait term for this type of fishing is known as "slow-rolling" explains Lee, and does not mean rolling the lure over the cover. It refers to the spinnerbait blades, which rotate or "roll over" more slowly due to the slow retrieve.

Lee's winter spinnerbait choice is a single small willow leaf or Colorado blade model, either of which produces good vibration and flash.

Rock riprap, the stones placed along a shoreline to add support for roadways and bridges, are excellent winter fishing spots, according to the former model-turned-angler. Bass move very shallow and close to the rocks to gain added warmth.

Fish a crankbait or spinnerbait parallel to the riprap," Lee suggests, "and work very shallow depths. Pay particular attention to odd places in the rocks where logs or other cover may be present."

HUNTING POPULARITY ON THE INCREASE

The popularity of hunting has steadily increased in Kentucky over the past five years, according to a recent survey conducted by the University of Louisville's Urban Research Institute (URI).

Interestingly, this upsurge is in sharp contrast to downward trends in other parts of the country.

According to the URI survey, the number of persons purchasing a resident hunting, combination hunting/fishing or a junior hunting license has increased by approximately 10 percent since 1985. (Over the same period, the state's population grew by less than one percent.) The number of hunters between 36 and 55 years old showed the most significant advance, growing by some nine percent.

"The growth in hunter numbers is in direct proportion to improved hunting opportunities," according to Lauren Schaaf, director of the wildlife division for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

Interest in white-tailed deer is very high among state sportsmen, along with growing attention being given to wild turkey.

While nearly 82 percent of Kentucky's hunters enjoy some form of small game (squirrel, rabbit, quail, grouse and groundhog) hunting, the white-tailed deer is the single most popular species, with almost 64 percent of the state's hunting enthusiasts devoting at least some of their time afield to deer hunting. And, as indicated by the huge overlap in percentages, many outdoor sportsmen enjoy both kinds of hunting!

The survey also produced some interesting insights into the attitudes and feelings of those who participate in regulated hunting activities. Eighty-three percent of those surveyed expressed support for any future efforts by the fish and wildlife department to acquire more lands for public hunting and wildlife management, and the vast majority of those favoring future acquisitions (86.5 percent) said they would be willing to pay an additional three to five dollars annually to help finance such endeavors.

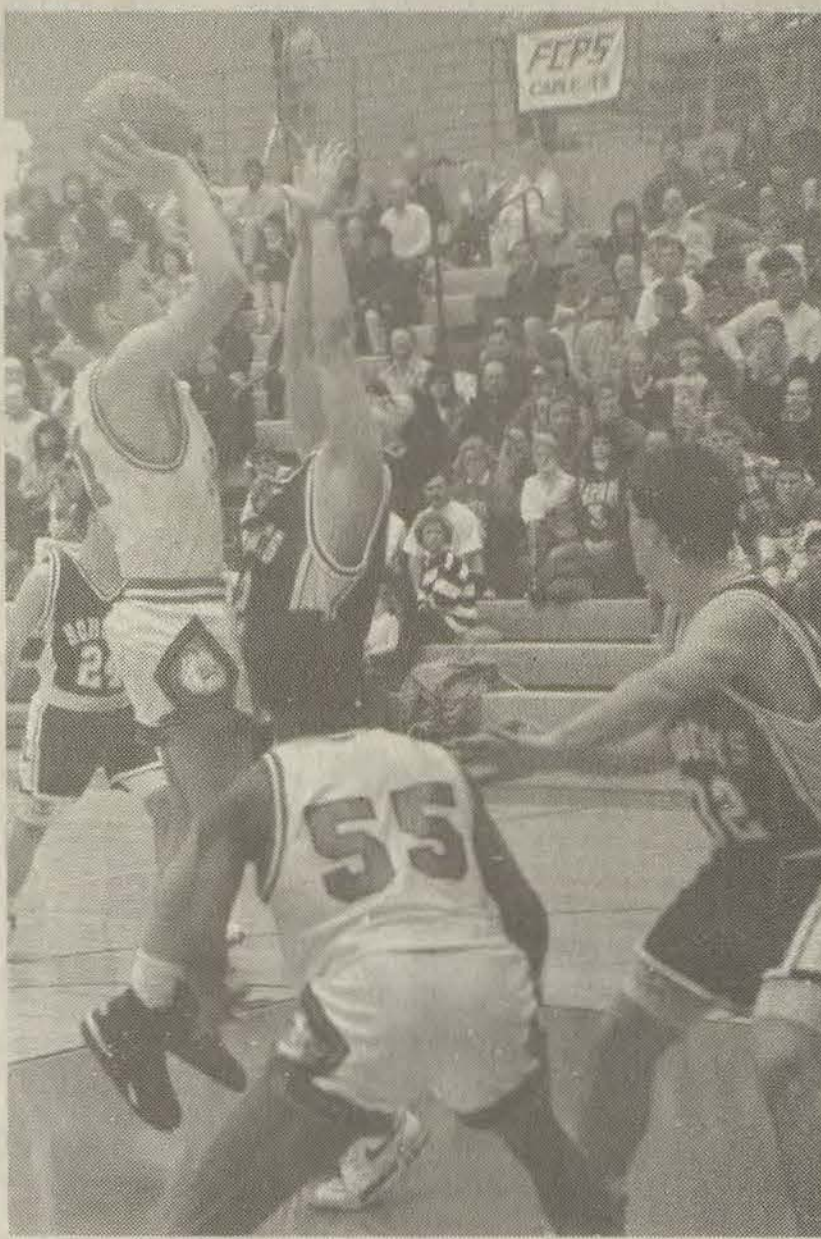

Solid support for efforts to acquire additional public lands was consistent with attitudes expressed in the last department-sponsored survey in 1985. (The Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources sponsors a statewide study every five years to monitor the changing attitudes of the commonwealth's sportsmen and to gauge their responses to wildlife management policies.)

"I don't think there's any doubt that sportsmen are willing to pay the price for additional lands," said Schaaf. "Just as long as they know what they're getting for their money, and what it will cost."

Schaaf estimates that a $5 "habitat stamp" attached to hunting licenses could generate about 1.5 million dollars annually. If the stamps were attached to hunting and fishing licenses for "across the board" habitat improvements, the annual revenue would likely be around five million dollars.

The development and sale of such a "habitat stamp" is only in the "thinking stage" at this time. Currently, there are no plans to initiate such a program.

Hands Up

Bernie Eplin of Betsy Layne holds up his hands on defense as a Paul Dunbar player shoots over him. The Betsy Layne Bobcats traveled to Lexington to face the new Lexington team and came home with a 74-60 loss. Betsy Layne was led in scoring by Phillip King (32) with 20 points. (Photo by Estill Robinson)

New Program Dunbar Kept Record Unblemished With 74-60 Win Over Bobcats In Lexington

Looking for a sure, easy win? Schedule a new program. One that hasn't had time to get started. One that has players who haven't learned the system yet.

Well, some teams like that are not always a pushover. Especially a team like the Paul Laurence Dunbar Bulldogs. You see, this is Dunbar's first year. What has made them respectable in their first year is the arrival of Darnell Burton. Burton was the young man who really wanted to go to Lafayette and not Dunbar. Lafayette was an established school and Dunbar was just getting underway. Lafayette was an established program, Dunbar wasn't. But Burton stayed at Dunbar and luckily for Bulldog fans. The 6' 4" sophomore teamed with 5' 7" scoring whiz, Alonzo Alcorn, to lead the Bulldogs to their second win of the season, a 74-60 victory over the Betsy Layne Bobcats. The Bulldogs have yet to lose.

At the end of the first quarter, Betsy Layne held a 18-15 lead. However, the Bulldogs went to work in the second quarter and outscored the Bobcats 25-10, behind the dunks of Burton and the three-point shooting of Alcorn. Dunbar held a 40-28 lead at the half.

The second half was played pretty well even as the Bobcats could not generate enough offense.

Burton led all scorers with 25 points including five dunks. Alcorn, who had four three-pointers, finished with 17.

Phillip King led the Bobcats in scoring with 20 points and Adam Gearheart tossed in 16.

The loss evened the Bobcats record at 1-1 and Junior Newsome's club will entertain the McDowell Daredevils Friday night in a conference match up.

Lady Cougars Hold Off McDowell In Pikeville Invitational 60-46

It wasn't a good shooting night for McDowell in the first round of the Pikeville Ladies Invitational Tournament over the past weekend as the Lady Devils went up against defending 15th Regional champions Elkhorn City. Three players scored in double figures with Julie Belcher tossing in 18, Samantha Cook getting 12 and Renee Chaney also scoring 12 points as the Lady Cougars held off a good McDowell club 60-46 to advance to the finals.

McDowell took the early lead at 2-0 on a jumper by Jenny Slone, who led the Lady Devils in scoring with 13 points. Elkhorn scored the next six — a layup and rebound basket by Leslie Akers and a short jumper by Cook — for a 6-2 lead they never relinquished.

Bryant hit two free throws to cut it to 6-4 with 4:04 remaining. The Lady Cougars scored the next five points on an Amber Francisco free throw and buckets by Akers and Cook.

McDowell rallied to pull within one point, 11-10 on a put back and layup by Kristi Pack and Kristi Mullins.

Elkhorn City scored the final four points of the first quarter for a 15-10 lead.

Elkhorn outscored the Lady Devils 14-5 in the second period to assume a 29-15 halftime lead. McDowell could get no closer than six points, 19-13 in the second quarter. The Lady Cougars outscored the Lady Devils 10-2 to take the lead at halftime.

In the third period, McDowell showed signs of coming to life as they outscored the Lady Cougars 14-7. Slone scored eight of her team's 14 points to cut the lead to seven, 36-29. After a three-pointer by Fannin made it 42-36, Elkhorn scored the next seven points to lead 49-37 and coasted the rest of the way. Belcher's 18 points, including one three-pointer, led the Lady Cougars. Slone led McDowell with 13 and Bryant finished with nine. Elkhorn City was 13 of 20 from the free throw line. McDowell hit 13 of 23.

Kevin Patton Wins Indiana Invitational

Kevin Patton, McDowell, and a student at the Kentucky School for the Blind (KSB) recently won the Indiana Invitational Wrestling Tournament by defeating S. Johnson of Washington High School in a fall of 2:54. "This is the third year that I have tried to win this tournament and this time I did," said Patton of his victory.

Patton defeated Damon Love of Indiana School for the Blind (ISB) in his first match with a time of 1:48. The Floyd County then defeated S. Love, Sheridan High School, 10-2 in the second match of the tournament.

Patton owns a person record of 4-0 for the year and is one of the top high school wrestlers at KSB.

Family Pet

Our family has a little dog named Zip Code. He's a miniature, long-haired dachshund, sometimes described as being two dogs long and half-a-dog high. He has little short legs that look somewhat like the rollers they put on some pieces of luggage, but he's very aware of his masculinity and seems to think he's ten feet tall. Not long ago he wandered off in the neighborhood to where a female dog was having company. The other dogs there were much bigger than him. They were already fighting among themselves and one bit a hole through Zip's ear. I don't know if he bit the dog back but, unless it knelt down, he could have only gotten its foot. The ear was about healed when granddaughters Candice and Kelly came visiting. They asked my husband if they could take Zip for a walk, and he said it would be fine. I went on an errand and when I returned I found a doll dress lying by the back door. "Where did this come from?" I wanted to know. "When the children brought Zip home," Walter told me, "he was wearing the dress and a little cap with a ribbon tied under his neck." "Was he terribly embarrassed by that?" I asked. "He didn't seem to mind too much," he said. "But I took it off because his little short legs kept stepping on his dress tail."

Bad Luck Blues

Handsome young Keith Casebolt

whose voice is a familiar sound on area radio and television, and who now serves as a sales representative for WYMT-TV in Hazard, must have been getting up on the wrong side of the bed. He has wrecked three cars in the past six weeks. The last upset involved a sharp new Honda Accord that he was very proud of. He was at Layne Brothers Ford in Ivel where he'd bought the car, and where he was directing a television commercial, when his own camera man backed into the pretty little Honda, smashing it good. As if that wasn't bad enough, when he went home for the day he saw that his cat had been run over and killed. A bit exasperated, he put his key in the lock and leaned his head on the door—in the exact spot where his mother had driven a nail to hang a long wreath. He looks as if someone tried to nail him to the wall. Except for that, things are going pretty well for Keith.

Argument

Kenneth Hall of Stanville tells about two little boys he heard arguing about the pronunciation of a word. The first one insisted the word was "whip," but his buddy said he knew better; the word was "whup." After a bit, the third little fellow came along and they asked him to decide which of them was right. "That's easy," the friend agreed. "You're both right. A whip is what you whup with."

Johnson-Newport to wed:

Couple find happiness through media match

Mel Johnson, 46, of Beech Grove, Kentucky, and Final Frasure C. Newport, 55, of McDowell, are not just another happy couple announcing a December wedding. Cupid's arrows were flung from the western end to the eastern end of the state in the guise of the media. The couple found love through the pages of the Floyd County Times and, inadvertently, through the airing of CBS's 48 Hours' Muddy Gut program. When the Muddy Gut program was broadcast, Mel Johnson said the story "broke his heart." Johnson thought women in Eastern Kentucky were different than Western Kentucky. "They seemed more down to earth," he said. Johnson, who has a 13-year-old daughter from a previous marriage, has been searching for the right person to wed for the past 10 years. His description of his perfect soul mate is "someone unspoiled—a good Christian woman," and he hoped he would find her in the hills of Eastern Kentucky. Johnson placed in ad in the Floyd County Times this past summer that said he was searching for a "good Christian woman." He received numerous responses, but Johnson said something clicked when he talked to Final Newport and he knew he'd found the person he'd been seeking. Final Frasure Newport almost didn't respond to Johnson's ad. It was some time before she decided to answer the advertisement. The letter remained in her purse for several more weeks until she happened to come upon it while she was at the post office mailing out her bills. She just slipped the letter into the slot along the rest of her mail. After the couple had letters crisscrossing in the mail, Johnson contacted her by telephone at her father's (Wade Frasure) house. "I felt as if I had known him all my life," she said. "God brought us together." Both Johnson and Newport say they have much in common, including a sense of humor and their Pentecostal faith. When her husband died six years ago, Final Newport had a stroke. She said she couldn't have recovered without the assistance of her son, Tavis Floyd Colley. The serene widow has 10 children and just recently became a grandmother again with the birth of her grandson, Charles Noble. Johnson is a reading tutor at University of Kentucky's Longfellow Adult Learning Center at Owensboro. He is an antique dealer and a retired veteran of the Coast Guard where he served as a cook. The couple will wed sometime around December 26 and will make their home in Beech Grove.

Kim's Korner

Frequently, I am told by the Times' editor and publisher, Scott Perry, that he's going to have to hire a proof reader for this column and for this column only!

WHY? Tessa Whitmer used to badger me constantly over dangling participles. Now Scott, and everyone else has joined in the fray. For fear of looking like a fool and feeling down-right stupid, I held back the obvious question. Well, I can't take it anymore. Ms. Stumbo, HELP! What on earth is a dangling participle? I discussed this topic Sunday night with my mother-in-law and my oldest daughter overheard our conversation. She proclaimed she knew what a dangling participle was. Figuring she probably did and seeing as how she can do circles around me in her fourth grade math, I replied eagerly, "Well, Ashleigh, what is it?" "Mommie, Mommie, Mommie," she said, "Mamaw has them hanging on her tree." Well, as I tried to compose myself, I thought, "Wait a minute, maybe she's got the right idea here. That icicle is just dangling from the tree—just hanging there all by itself. From what I can gather, my participles are just hanging from my sentences all by themselves, with no attachments." I'll try to keep my daughter's "dangling part-icicle" in mind when I write this weekly column, and maybe I won't be badgered anymore over those dangling modifiers. Till next week, see ya!

Tom Whitaker holds annual exhibit at PCC

by Kathleen Carroll

Artist and teacher Tom Whitaker opened his annual exhibit at the Prestonsburg Community College gallery Wednesday. Whitaker's work will be displayed through Friday. In addition to some of Whitaker's trademark works, he exhibited several new paintings and prints. A new self-portrait, according to Whitaker, is "a chance for me to find out what's going on in my life, it helps me to regain my focus—It's not just because I want another pretty face." The most fascinating work Whitaker displayed in this show is entitled "Fear of Becoming the Circle." This painting demanded more attention than any other work in the room. Whitaker combined simplicity of line with striking color to deliver a powerful message that is both full of wonder and fearful of the finality of death. Whitaker discussed his work and addressed some of the problems Appalachian artists face. "Part of the problem is identity. I am often asked if I consider my art Appalachian. I don't, necessarily, but I think it's a reflection of Appalachia. At the same time there are so many subjects that are universal whether you're in Wheelwright or New York City or China. Even color and arrangement are universal." Whitaker considers exposure the most pressing problem faced by Appalachian artists. Like many of his colleagues, Whitaker spends most of his weekends traveling to festivals and shows to display his work. "That's the frustrating part of this profession. When you paint something, it's art. The minute you sell that painting, it's promotion—it's a business." And, Whitaker said, that business confounds the efforts of most Appalachian artists. "We have not been strong in marketing. We don't like to brag on ourselves. We think somebody else is going to do it, and they are not. So we, as an artistic community, need to develop a network that will help Appalachian artists gain more attention." A native of Magoffin County, Whitaker started working as a professional artist about 20 years ago. "But, in a sense, that's a lie. You start as a child by being perceptive, by being sensitive, by being aware; and drawing is as much about awareness and sensitivity as it is taking up a pencil and drawing. So in a sense I started as a very young child." Generally, Whitaker looks for "things that move my emotions, like a black cat in the snow, and certainly things I remember from my childhood. As an artist, you combine what you have known with what you feel and come up with a painting." "I've never been able to limit myself to one theme; it's too confining. It's subjects that say something, that have meaning to me; like the sunlight hitting a white house at dusk or a curtain blowing in the breeze," Whitaker further explained. Whitaker has taught art at Prestonsburg Community College for nearly seventeen years. He usually offers classes in art appreciation, drawing and painting, and art education. "I enjoy teaching, I enjoy people. I think it's easy to become lost and bored working in isolation, so I need contact with people to stimulate my interest." His work at the college has another benefit. "Teaching has been a good patron. I may be stronger as an artist by not having to paint what is popular or what the patron wants. It takes a genius to please a patron and please yourself, too." There are also drawbacks. Whitaker continued, "my teaching can be quite demanding upon my time and that may mean I don't progress, mature, and attempt new methods and subjects as often as an artist who paints, maybe, sixteen hours a day. I always need to find more time to express myself." The secret of his success? "To be good," said Whitaker, "you have to create out of need, you don't have any choice and you feel like it's more important than anything else on earth." Whitaker is currently preparing for an Appalshop exhibit that will be touring in the area, "Images from the Mountains". The exhibit is scheduled for the PCC gallery for the month of April. "It's a good show, a strong show. It shows the different levels, the different forms of art that we find in our area." An opening night lecture and reception are planned. A new exhibit, "Computer Graphics," will open on Wednesday, December 5.

Tid Bits

A lot of shaking goin' on When someone mentions earthquake, I usually smile and say, "It will happen some day, but we don't know when," and I simply ignore the warnings of dire peril that my family and friends impart. Being a busy housewife, mother, student, and Times employee, I usually don't have time to take care of all the duties involved in all my various capacities in life, but this weekend was different—I finally made it to the grocery store. I had to go on Sunday and I thought sure the grocery store would be empty. How wrong I was! It was one day before the projected earthquake and the grocery store was crowded to capacity. As I slowly made my way through the aisles, I overheard comments about the earthquake and everyone was stocking up on canned goods. Sue Compton paused alongside my buggy for just a minute and asked me if I was ready for the earthquake. After traversing all those aisles and listening to all those earthquake comments, I stopped to think of the consequences of not being prepared. Sue, if you happened to glance at my buggy in the checkout aisle, it was filled with nonperishable canned foods such as Viennas, Treet.

A Real Down-To-Earth Diet

When I was a little boy growing up in Muddy Branch, I knew another little boy who used to wreak havoc with the little girls in Society Row because he'd always sneak and eat the mud pies they'd left baking on the pump rock in front of Virgil Green's house. As a matter of fact, I still know this fellow—except how, he's a 50-year-old man who appears to be as healthy as a bear. So, I suppose the mud didn't hurt him any. Anyway, he's the only person I'd ever heard of to eat dirt on a regular basis—until now, that is. Thanks to my sister Mary, who lives in Georgia, my horizons have been broadened. She sent me a clipping the other day that she'd taken a while back from the "Atlanta Journal and Constitution" about some folks in Lexington, Mississippi—grown people, now, not kids—who not only eat dirt, but eat it as a special treat. The practice is so common that it apparently prompted a study by the University of Mississippi's Rural Health Research program, headed by medical anthropologist Dennis A. Fraite, back in the 1970s.

One woman, described as a slender, attractive, mother of three said, "I've even put dirt over ice cream. I know it sounds crazy, but I like the taste of it. At one time, I was eating up to four glasses a day." Wow! She must be a . . . a dirtaholic? By now, though, you're probably saying to yourself, "This is a joke, right? This is that crazy Clyde Pack writing something stupid again, right?" Well, as Waylon would say, "Wrong!" This honest-to-goodness article, entitled "Mississippians Really Dig This Meal" (clever, eh?), even explains that the most favored dirt in Homes County, Mississippi is a "finely textured, slightly sour-tasting soil found in the upland region about one and one-half feet below the surface, where it is usually free of parasites." Well, that's a relief! I mean, heaven forbid that someone would eat a nasty, old parasite. Believe it or not, they even have a name for the practice of eating dirt. So do we all I suppose, but scientists call it geophagy. (It's a real word, folks. I looked it up.) From the article I also gathered that women more than men eat dirt. Mr. Fraite explained that "in a typical dirt-eating ritual, two middle-aged women will gather on a front porch an hour or two before sunset and will nibble from a bag or bowl of freshly dug earth set on a table between them." "The practice is generally no unhealthy," Mr. Fraite said, "although, there is a slight risk of impacting the colon if excessive quantities are eaten." As a matter of fact, the practice of dirt eating may be the result of early folk medicine. The article stated that "the commercial anti-diarrheal medication Kaopectate is made from Kaolin, a white clay mined in central Georgia and prized by earth eaters there."

Now, don't get the idea that since this geophagy occurs in rural Mississippi it's only practiced by poor, uneducated people. The clipping also reported that a public health nurse with a master's degree admitted that she ate dirt too. Not to worry, though. It seems that dirt eating is becoming socially unacceptable and many of those folks who did are switching to a commercial substitute: a mixture of baking soda and corn starch. Come to think of it, that kid I knew that ate the mud pies did seem to always have a big smile on his face. Perhaps he knew something the rest of us didn't.

County Kettle

These special moments are a rare treat to be savored and appreciated — if only to rest and rejuvenate the spirit and the mind.

The body can be tempted with warm beverages that soothe the psyche right down to the toes or exhilarated with something cool and sparkling to tickle the tummy. Luscious taste sensations can be created for yourself to sit-a-minute and gather your thoughts or for those friends and neighbors who steal a moment to rush by to exchange a hearty hello and warmth of the season.

Customarily, both hot and cold beverages are offered to guests upon their arrival whether they just dropped by for a visit or if they were invited to share a meal. Tea, quite simply, has long been considered a symbol of togetherness, a sharing of something enjoyable and even a way of showing respect for visitors and guests. In some parts of the world it is even considered disrespectful to turn down an invitation to take tea — if only a small sip.

Home for the holidays

The hustle and bustle of the holiday season puts us all in a whirlwind of activity. The combination of work, an increased social schedule and shopping for those special details makes us yearn for comforting foods, delicious drinks and time set aside for relaxation.

Tea is quite versatile, too, because it can be served hot or cold and prepared for one, two or quite a few guests with very little effort. It is almost always on hand in the pantry and can quickly be turned from a proper "cup-a" into an exciting holiday punch. The following taste-tested recipes from the Lipton Kitchen will tickle your fancy and delight your

Holiday Tea Punch

- 1-1/2 cups water
- 6 Lipton regular or 2 family size tea bags
- 10 whole cloves
- 2 cinnamon sticks, broken
- 2 cups cranberry juice cocktail
- 1-1/2 cups unsweetened grape juice
- 1/2 cup brown sugar

In medium saucepan, bring water to boil. Turn off heat, then add tea bags and spices; cover and brew 5 minutes. Remove tea bags. Stir in juices and sugar; heat through. Remove spices. Garnish, if desired, with clove-studded orange splices. makes about eight (5 oz.) servings.

Tea au Lait

- 2 cups boiling water
- 8 Lipton Flo-Thru tea bags
- 2 cinnamon sticks, broken
- 2 cups milk
- 1/4 cup brown sugar
- 1/8 ground nutmeg

In teapot, pour boiling water over tea bags and cinnamon; cover and brew 5 minutes. Remove tea bags. In medium saucepan, combine milk, brown sugar and nutmeg. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until sugar dissolves. Add tea to milk mixture; heat through. Makes about four servings.

Tea Twister

- 1 cup cold water
- 2 Lipton Regular or decaffeinated Flo-Thru-Tea bags
- 1 cup chilled grapefruit juice
- 1 cup chilled cranberry juice cocktail
- 2 tablespoons sugar

Microwave directions: In a 2-cup glass measure, combine water with tea bags. Microwave at high (full power) 1-1/2 minutes or until very hot. (Tea should not boil) Let stand 5 minutes. Remove tea bags. Combine tea with remaining ingredients. Serve in ice-filled glasses and garnish, if desired, with wooden skewers threaded with fresh cranberries.

Makes about two servings.

Spiced Tea

- 2 cups sugar
- 3 quarts water
- 2 sticks cinnamon
- 2 tsps whole cloves
- 3 Lipton regular tea bags
- 1 (12 oz.) can frozen orange juice concentrate
- juice from 3 lemons

Combine sugar, water, cinnamon, and cloves in large cooker. Boil 5 minutes. Remove from heat. Add tea bags. Allow to steep for 5 minutes. Remove spices and tea bags. Then add orange juice and lemon juice. (Do not use bottled juice) Allow to cool and refrigerate until ready to use. When ready to serve, heat — do not boil.

The Goodin Brothers of Lebanon Oak Flooring Co. are accustomed to standing on solid ground. That's why they've kept Blue Cross and Blue Shield since 1953.

A lumber company has stood on this site since the 1890s. Lebanon Oak Flooring Co. itself has been in business since 1919. Today, Charles and Robert Goodin still turn Kentucky Oak into nationally renowned hardwood floors. And they still keep the health insurance company they've kept for 37 years — Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Kentucky.

"We take a paternalistic outlook toward our people. We want to take care of them. We want the best."

Sure, the Goodins have talked to other insurers in the past. Some companies have offered them lower rates than Blue Cross and Blue Shield. But Lebanon Oak Flooring keeps coming back.

"You can take your Blue Cross card and go to any doctor you want, anywhere you want."

At one time, there were 13 companies producing hardwood floors in Kentucky. Today, there are only two. Lebanon Oak survived by offering the highest quality products at fair prices.

The same is true for Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Kentucky. Health companies have come and gone. But year in, year out, none have been able to match the quality, accessibility and service offered by Blue Cross and Blue Shield for over 50 years.

We're honored to have been the Lebanon Oak Flooring Company's health insurance company for 37 years. We'd be honored to work with your company for the next 37. For more information, call us or your local Blue Cross and Blue Shield representative.

We'll put you on the ground floor of Kentucky's most popular health insurance company.

Directors meet

The board of directors of the Wayland Area Senior Citizens met Tuesday, November 20 at 4 p.m. at the center with Chairperson Elmer Morrison presiding.

Bonnie Hale with Big Sandy ADD passed out copies of financial statements with a brief explanation concerning the information. The center director, Mildred Halbert, reported that at a recent covered dish dinner an inter-generational project was discussed, and Hale will check on regulations concerning it before the project can be implemented.

The board chairman reported on his recent trip to Frankfort with representatives from each county in the Big Sandy Area Development District, where such subjects as consumer fraud, solid waste, measured telephone service, insurance, taxation and the recycling of tires were discussed. He advised that Lieutenant Governor Brereton Jones spoke on health services with plans for precautionary insurance to keep people out of the hospital instead of treating them after they are ill.

Directors voted unanimously to purchase earthquake insurance on the center in view of the predicted earthquake for December 3 or 4.

Bonnie Hale advised that a Christmas party will be held December 10 at the Landmark Inn in Pikeville from 1-3 p.m. for senior citizens from each center and at 6 p.m., a dinner for all board members and center directors.

The center director advised that 43 had attended the Thanksgiving covered dish dinner and it was also reported that "Wonder-Under" decorations are being placed on sweat shirts and jogging suits at the center.

The next board meeting will be December 15 at 4 p.m. at the center.

Those present were: Elmer Morrison, Shirley Martin, Libby Martin, Hobert Bates, Odis Perry, Lula Ratliff, Ernestine Hall, Dewey Hall and Ena Mills.

Calhoun anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Dode Calhoun of Watergap celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary on November 24 at their home. Those attending to wish the Calhoun's happy anniversary were their children, grandchildren, great-grandchildren, relatives as well as many friends.

Harold Homemakers display handmade gifts at meeting

The Harold Homemakers met in the Freewill Baptist Church basement with vice president Lillian Sturgill opening the meeting. Devotion was given by Opal Henton and Sylvia Allen gave roll call and each member answered by naming a new or different food they would prepare for Thanksgiving.

Mrs. Allen also gave a report on the sale of pecans. Minutes were read by Carma Sturgill and approved by the club.

The November lesson given by Frances Pitts was on holiday gifts. Mrs. Pitts had many homemade gifts on display. An ornament made by Ruby Conn was chosen as the best by the club.

The homemakers Christmas party will be at the home of Mrs. Ruby Staton at 11 a.m. on December 19.

Hostesses for the November meeting were Mrs. Sylvia Allen and Elizabeth Little.

Members and guests attending were Eva Roberts, Lillian Sturgill, Carma Sturgill, Emily Akers, Opal Heaton, Elizabeth Little, Ruby Staton, Frances Pitts, Ruby Conn, Sylvia Allen, Rose Ann Akers and guest, Betty Easter.

Each member was asked to take a small gift to the December meeting and a can of fruit. Visitors are welcome and call any member for information about the club.

Couple united in holy matrimony

Teresa Ann Duff and Gordon Frank Stewart, both of Chesapeake, Va., were married November 3, 1990 at the Wedding Chapel in Virginia Beach, Virginia.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger G. Duff of Timberville, Va. and a granddaughter of Eda M. Goble of Prestonsburg and the late George A. Goble, and the late Mr. and Mrs. Farmer Duff.

The groom is the son of Navy Chief Warrant Officer Paul C. Stewart, stationed aboard the U.S.S. Wisconsin, and Frances K. Fulbright of Virginia Beach, Virginia.

Rev. Clark A. Wyly performed the ceremony. The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She wore a full-length gown of ivory satin with an interwoven floral design. The gown was styled with Venetian lace and sequin and pearl applique, and featured a chapel length train. She wore a profile headpiece of flowers and pearls and carried a cascade of peach and white roses and white orchids.

Renna Akers of Abingdon, Va., friend of the bride, was the maid of honor. Kimberly Duff, of Timberville, Va., sister of the bride was the bridesmaid.

John George, of Chesapeake, Va., friend of the groom, was best man. Tony Stewart of Virginia Beach, Va., brother of the groom, was an usher. A reception was held at the Olive Garden Restaurant in Virginia Beach, Va.

The couple will reside in Chesapeake, Virginia.

The bride, who studied industrial engineering at Virginia Tech and who is currently studying mechanical engineering at Old Dominion University, is employed by Huntsman Chemical Corporation as a junior engineer.

The groom, who graduated from Old Dominion University with a Bachelor of Science degree in electrical engineering, is employed by Contel of Virginia as a management employee.

What candidates for governor should talk about "What should the candidates for governor be talking about?"

That is the question the Kentucky Center for Public Issues posed on its publication, "The Kentucky Journal". Readers were invited to outline what they believe are the major issues confronting the state...and the choices policymakers face.

The November issue of "The Journal" is devoted to 22 of the replies which run the gamut of public issues: education, environment, economic development, agriculture, timber, tourism, health care, housing, prisons, declining population, constitutional revision, campaign finance, women and children in poverty, integrity in government and leadership.

Leon Boothe, president of Northern Kentucky University, wants to see gubernatorial candidates address a number of problems including alternative crops for farmers and the need for research and development to enhance Kentucky's role in the international marketplace.

Prichard Committee Chair Lois Weinberg asks, "Will our gubernatorial candidates exhibit the leadership necessary to implement (education) reform? Can they resist the easy political backlash of tax reduction? Will they encourage citizens to be involved in school decision-making or will they move to stamp out the reform program for their own political gain?"

"The key to continued state economic development is 'going global'," writes John Stempel, associate director of the Patterson School of Diplomacy and International Commerce at the University of Kentucky. "To be successful, governors and legislatures have to court investment without stimulating backlash."

Stempel also focuses on the need to stimulate trade and develop an energy policy in his article.

Gordon Garner argues that new solutions to economic development needs of Kentucky's small towns and rural areas are needed. Better planning and implementation of regional solutions are essential, Garner said. Garner is executive director of the Louisville and Jefferson County Metropolitan Sewer District.

"How can the 1991 gubernatorial candidates ignore the fact that almost one in three Kentucky children are poor?" asks Debra Miller, deputy director of Kentucky Youth Advocates Inc. She points out that successful programs to help children have to be intensive, comprehensive and flexible and that the challenge to candidates is not more talk but implementation of real solutions.

Take bold actions and "initiate genuine change at the fundamental roots of the problem" in health care is what Don Coffey would like to see Kentucky do. "We have some choices...it is fully as important to Kentucky's future as is education reform," Coffey said.

Judy Clabes, editor of "The Kentucky Post", writes, "Leadership itself is an overriding issue, pervading all of the (other issues). It is a matter of style as well as conviction, and an understanding that Kentucky needs most of all a vision for the future, and ability to embrace change in a positive way, a sense of pride in what is really good, a conviction to address what isn't, and a determination to claim the potential that is ours."

Tony Sholar, vice president of government affairs for the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce, agrees.

"Leadership for the next decade and beyond can begin with the 1991 gubernatorial race if the candidates are willing to accept the challenge of being statesmen and not mere politicians that are led by the public and the polls."

Many are unaware of Social Security benefits for those under 62

There is more to Social Security than benefits for persons over 62 years-of-age. Consumer Education Research Center, a national non-profit consumer group has been researching the Social Security system and the benefits it provides since 1972. One finding is that, of the 50 million persons now collecting benefits, more than 15 million are under 62 and, surprisingly, the average age is only about 30.

Robert L. Berko, consumer writer and executive director of the center, says the organization has been publishing and updating a complete list of available benefits (and how to qualify for them) for the past 18 years. The guide offers consumers of all ages an awareness of the benefits they are entitled to under the latest laws. The 12th update (a complete revision) is now available.

The book contains a form to get a copy of your Social Security account showing all credits to your account and an estimate of the amount you will get upon retirement or disability. Workers must check their Social Security accounts frequently since any errors more than three years old will not be corrected. Often, the study found, workers have had too much deducted from their wages and were due a refund. In other cases, employers had not sent the correct amount to be credited to accounts. If you have records of the amount earnings and deductions, you will be credited with that money and the employer's share whether or not he ever sent the money to the government.

The 240-large-page Consumers Guide to Social Security Benefits Including Medicare is available for $9.95 (plus $2 P&H) from Consumer Center, 350 Scotland Rd., Orange, NJ 07050 or by calling 1-800-USA-0121 (with credit card).

"Billions of dollars go unclaimed," says Mr. Berko, "because many workers do not realize they are eligible for benefits." Among the findings of the study group and included in the Guide are:

* In some cases parents of a deceased worker are eligible for benefits even if they never paid into the system.

* Many children are eligible for benefits even though their parents never paid into the system.

* Minor children and surviving spouse of a person who has worked under the SS system for as little as one day in each of six annual quarters can collect benefits.

* Income from investments, interest, annuities, rentals and royalties are not considered in determining eligibility—nor is income from a business in which the person was owner or partner if payments are made as a retirement benefits, purchase of equity or any of the above. Only income listed as payment for actual work will affect retirement benefits. And after age 70, even that restriction is lifted.

* A divorcee (either sex), 62 or older, who was married 10 years or more is eligible for benefits when the ex-spouse starts collecting retirement or disability payments if the divorcee was later married and that marriage ended in death or divorce, this will not affect eligibility.

* The Supplementary Security Income (SSI) program provides benefits go aged, blind, physically disabled and ever those with language handicaps. Even if these recipients own cars, homes or other assets. No lien is taken against the assets and a person cannot be disqualified because relatives are financially able to support the recipient.

* Some benefits, such as SSI, do not require any work record by the recipient or his or her family.

Recognizing the problem of millions who were missing out on agency-administered programs, Social Security Commissioner Gwendolyn S. King, said in a recent interview, "I believe very strongly that we need to do more by way of outreach."

Commissioner King's statement was applauded by Ron Pollack, executive director of the Families USA Foundation because, he says, "a good number of people do not know about the program." Many people, he found, "try to make inquiries, but do not get through or receive erroneous information. And there are many who go to an office to apply but don't get the assistance necessary to fill out their applications."

Mr. Berko tells us that, "Even if you are eligible, you will not receive checks unless you apply." For that reason Consumers Guide to Social Security Benefits tells you how to apply and what to say.

Strangely, the agency does not publish a comprehensive book for consumers that would inform them of all benefits due under Social Security and who is eligible. In past years, there were many pamphlets available which described various phases of the program. Now, under the present austerity budget, many of these have been discontinued and plans for new booklets scrapped. To make things worse, no office has a complete set of the few pamphlets that are supposed to be available.

13th amendment is celebrated

The 125th anniversary of adoption of the 13th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, which abolished slavery is being celebrated this year. This marks a century and a quarter of freedom for all people in our country, regardless of race, sex or religion.

The amendment was ratified on December 18, 1865, soon after the Civil War ended and two years after Abraham Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation. It took the question of slavery out of the hands of the individual states and proclaimed, "Neither slavery nor involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime whereof the party shall have been duly convicted, shall exist within the United States, or any place subject to their jurisdiction."

The 13th Amendment was soon followed by the 14th, which granted full citizenship to black Americans.

Cabbage Patch

By Marie Harmon

Every year thousands of poinsettias are given as gifts at Christmas. Every year 99 percent of these beautiful plants are discarded because people think they won't bloom again. About this time, you will read somewhere that the flower can be kept because it will bloom next year. Very few plants actually do.

The best way to get them to bloom next year is simple—treat them well. Don't worry about them or pamper them too much. Just hope for the best.

When the ground and the weather has warmed up next spring and all danger of frost is gone; cut your plants back to 5 or 6 inches and plant them, pot and all, outside in a sunny spot. Burying the plant and mulching cuts down on the need to water so often.

As the plants grow through the summer, keep an eye on the shape. If they start getting too tall and leggy, pinch out the top to force side branches. Better yet, cut off about 4 inches from the top and root them for new plants.

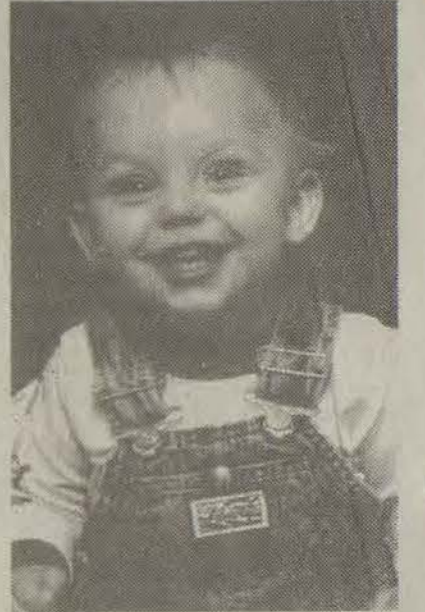

Cut above a leaf joint to prevent a stub on the parent plant. Then make a slanting cut just below the next leaf joint on the cutting. Discard the end of the cutting along with the lower leaves. Drop the cutting in cold water for five minutes to stop the milky sap that is oozing out. Place the cuttings in vermiculite or perlite. Keep inside on a windowsill until rooted about three weeks. A plastic bag placed over the cuttings will keep in the humidity and speed rooting.

Bring your poinsettias inside before cold frosty weather sets in. Poinsettias need ten weeks of short sunlight—no artificial lights—to bloom. A bedroom windowsill is ideal as lights are not turned on for as long in this room as others. An unused bedroom is also ideal. The plants will get all the light needed from the day's sunshine and from the moon.

Blooms that set by the first part of December will still be as fresh and lovely in February.

Not all poinsettias can be fussed over as is the case with all house plants. Over pampering, watering and fertilizing is a sure way to lose them. We all have a tendency to overdo on our favorite plants, and more times than not, we kill them by misplaced love and water.

First birthday

Gregory Stephen Clifton celebrated his first birthday Saturday, Nov. 17, at his "Granny Kay's" house with his family and friends. He is the son of Greg and Sherry Clifton of Allen.

His maternal grandparents are Kay Parsons and the late Delmer Parsons. His paternal grandparents are Cline and Helen Hale and Johnny Clifton, all of Allen.

He and his guests were served a clown cake.

Real Estate roundtable

Q. What is an adjustable rate mortgage? Can it save me money over the life of the loan?

A. An adjustable rate mortgage (ARM) is one that fluctuates up and down with the market conditions. Generally, the initial interest rate is a little lower than the rate for fixed-rate mortgages.

Most ARM's have a cap or ceiling in place which will not permit the interest rate to go up or down more than a set percentage. For instance, one ARM may be set up with a 2% ceiling and reviewed every two years. This means that there is a possibility that the monthly payment may go up or down every two years, but at a rate not more than 2% per review period. This possibility should be taken into consideration when you apply for the loan so that you have an idea as to how much the payment can increase at one time. You must also take into consideration other factors such as other possible debts you may incur for a car, college tuition, etc. and whether your income will increase accordingly.

Lenders tie the increase in rate to several types of indexes. Among the indexes most commonly used are those tied to rates on treasury securities, the average cost of funds to savings and loans, or the lender's own costs.

Another type of ARM is one where the payment remains the same. In this type of loan, the additional interest costs that occur when the review is done are added to the balance of the loan. This means that you may end up owing more money than you originally borrowed for the home, thus increasing the life of the loan.

As you can see, there are many factors to consider before choosing this type of mortgage. Be sure to weigh these factors against a fixed-rate mortgage.

Before you apply for any loan, be sure to ask the lender for all the information that is available on the type of loan you are considering. Be sure that you understand all of the requirements fully.

If you have other real estate questions, please contact the Kentucky Real Estate Commission, 10200 Linn Station Road, Suite 201, Louisville, Kentucky 40223; (502) 425-4273.
