Too early, state official says :

Bids for site work called premature

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Advertisement for bids for site preparation and excavation at the new Prestonsburg High School site on Middle Creek are premature, state education officials said this week.

The Floyd County Board of Education began today advertising for the site work, but plans for the work do not have state approval.

In fact, the state Department of Buildings and Grounds had just received the plans Monday, and the required BG-1 form has not been submitted by the local board.

A BG-1 form outlines what work will be performed, a cost estimate of the project and how the project will be funded.

"The board cannot officially advertise for bids until the BG-1 forms have been submitted," said Mike Luscher, associate superintendent with the state Department of Buildings and Grounds. "When plans are approved, the board can officially advertise for bids."

Luscher said he contacted Sam Martin of Martin Engineering, construction manager for the project, and Martin was unaware the BG-1 forms had not been submitted to the state.

"He (Martin) said he would try to contact Mr. (Ron) Hager about the situation," Luscher said.

The bid advertisement states bids will be accepted until 2 p.m. December 19 at the office of project architect Randall Burchett. The ad states a bid opening will follow "as soon as practicable thereafter" for performing and executing contracts for the site development.

Contract documents were prepared by John L. Carman and Associates Inc. of Lexington. John Carman said the board approved preparation of the contracts at its special meeting last week and contacted his office to draft the documents.

The plans include major site preparation, grading and drainage and excavation, Carman said. No detailed cost estimate was prepared on the project.

Although no bonds have been sold for the site development, the local board can choose to spend the funds for the work and be reimbursed after the bond sale, said Woody Barwick director of the Schools Facility Construction Commission. But a bond sale cannot be held until the plans for the project are approved by Luscher.

The board voted 3-2 last week to approve a $7.1 million bond sale which included the Prestonsburg project. Board members Tommy Boyd and Ray "Shag" Campbell opposed the bond issue citing dissatisfaction with the Prestonsburg High School project. Board vice chairman James Duff voiced reservations about the project also, but said the Prestonsburg High School project could be rescinded in January. The bond sale will most likely be held in February.

The board of education re-scheduled its regular meeting date to December 19 on the grounds several members could not be present at the scheduled December 12 meeting. Plans for the site development plan will probably not be approved in time for a vote at the school board meeting on the 19th Luscher said.

"I don't see anyway the plans could be approved in time for the meeting," Luscher said. "The BG-1 would have had to been brought in today in order to get approval. The bids have to be advertised seven days from the date of approval. All I know is that they'll have to re-schedule their bid date."

The board requested the advertisement be placed in the paper December 12, 14 and 19. Luscher said the state only requires the announcement to run one time in the newspaper.

Students favor renovation :

No place like home, school survey says

There's no place like home, and that's where students at Prestonsburg High School apparently would prefer to stay...home at Prestonsburg High.

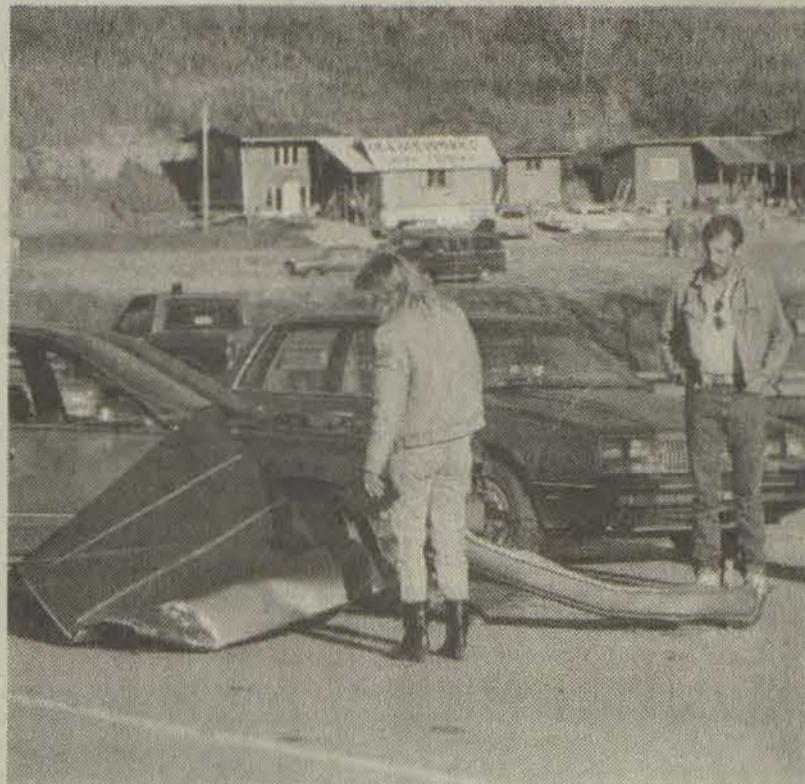

In an impromptu survey conducted Tuesday by Prestonsburg High principal Robert May, students overwhelmingly rejected a proposal to build a new high school, favoring instead suggestions that the existing school be renovated.

May could not be reached Tuesday to discuss the survey, but high school teacher Sharon Sammons confirmed the results. Sammons said the survey was conducted among students and teachers Tuesday during homeroom, adding that choices were limited. She said the survey asked if respondents preferred a new school or remodeling of the present facility.

According to Sammons, roughly 600 students answered the survey with a 2 to 1 margin favoring renovation of the existing high school. Only 22 teachers responded to the question, with 14 showing a similar preference for renovation. Sammons said many teachers did not participate in the poll because the questions offered no options other than remodeling or rebuilding.

Controversy over the proposed new city high school has raged for several months and the matter was an issue in last November's race for school board between long-time incumbent Dr. James D. Adams and political newcomer Eddie Billips. Billips, the eventual winner of that contest, has voiced his dissatisfaction for the new school proposal and he has been joined in that opposition by board members Tommy Boyd and Ray "Shag" Campbell.

Billips does not take office until January, and recent board actions have continued progress on the Middle Creek site.

None injured, one arrested

A two vehicle accident on Rt. 80 near Martin led to the arrest of one person on charges of DUI (drugs) Tuesday afternoon. State police said that the accident occurred when Terry E. Click, 36, of Manton pulled onto Rt. 80 West into the path of a pickup truck driven by Terry D. Hayes, 30, of Hunter. The accident is under investigation by Troopers Leslie Massey and Eddie Crum of the Kentucky State Police. (Photo by Tim Preston)

House leader meets with incinerator foes :

Regulation void surprises Stumbo

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Medisin's medical waste incinerator located at Highlands Regional Medical Center will come under closer scrutiny and may be placed under state regulations in January's special session of the state legislature, which is expected to deal with the issue of solid waste.

State Representative Greg Stumbo discussed the waste incinerator issue at a meeting of Floyd Countians in Action Monday night at Horn Chapel in Prestonsburg. Stumbo told the group he was unaware the two incinerators at HRMC did not fall under state and federal guidelines because less than 500 pounds of waste per hour is burned.

"I sure didn't know that," Stumbo told the group. "I was under the impression the company met all state and federal guidelines pertaining to the incinerators."

FCIA member Barney Walker told Stumbo there are no state and federal guidelines pertaining to small incinerators operating in the state. "They say they are meeting all the guidelines, but there are none," Walker said. "We don't know what's coming out of that stack. The only air tests that have been conducted are visual inspections. The state EPA comes and looks at the stacks and if there's no smoke at that time, they say it's clear."

Stumbo appeared to be concerned that the incinerators are not regulated and said "someone ought to monitor what comes out of that stack."

Members also told Stumbo, that Medisin officials have said they plan to construct similar incinerators across the state.

Bob Ford, Medisin spokesman said the company has no plans at this time to construct any other incinerators.

Residents who live near the incinerator told Stumbo emissions from the incinerator's stack are causing skin irritations, damage to the roofs of their homes and are causing the paint on their cars to peel. Many citizens complained of foul odors and smoke in their homes at times when the incinerator is in operation.

"It's not right to sit in your own home and smother like a rat," said Elizabeth Honeycutt. "They wouldn't Animal owners beware :

City sets fines for desertion

by Tim B. Preston
Staff Writer

People responsible for abandoning animals in Prestonsburg could face hefty fines in exchange, thanks to a city ordinance adopted Monday.

During their regular December meeting Monday, city council members gave final approval to the ordinance, which outlaws the abandonment of domestic animals in the city.

Before the motion to adopt the ordinance was passed, Councilman Billy Ray Collins questioned adopting the measure while the Floyd County Animal Shelter remains on unstable financial ground. Mayor Latta explained that the ordinance establishes a fine, but does not include provisions for pickup or shelter of animals. Animal abandonment in the city of Prestonsburg now carries a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $500.

The Monday night meeting began with residents of the Cliff area requesting the city council to continue efforts to install a "flapgate culvert" for flood control in the area. Prestonsburg City Administrator Sam Campbell said that three property owners in the Cliff area had expressed disapproval for the project, rejecting offers to sign easements for work to be done. Residents said that they had spoken to the property owners and two of the three had agreed to allow work to be done, adding that the third property owner had strongly refused requests for cooperation. Although no action was taken by the council, Mayor Latta directed the city administrator to consult engineers for alternate plans and asked city attorney Larry Brown to research any legal avenues available to the city.

In other business, council members approved a motion to allow the city administrator to seek a loan for December payrolls and other outstanding debts if necessary. City Administrator Sam Campbell and Mayor Latta explained that the acquisition of a loan might be necessary due to the recent education reform act passed by the Kentucky General Assembly which has delayed property tax bill-

The Public Service Commission has granted the company an adjustment that will reflect a $612 increase in wholesale costs from the gas companies supplier. The average increase per residential will be $1.73.

The new rates will go into effect November 30.

D-Day a success, police report

Advance warning doesn't deter some drunk drivers

Prestonsburg Police Chief Greg Hall said that Friday night's D-Day operation was a successful one, netting seven DUI arrests and seven alcoholic intoxication arrests.

"It's a well publicized event," said Hall. "People know about it a month in advance and they still get out and drink and drive. That's what amazes me."

Hall said that the arrests came as a result of regular patrol work and roadblocks. Statewide, police officers made 188 arrests in conjunction with D-Day operations.

Hall also released the November monthly activity report for the Prestonsburg Police Department.

In November, officers investigated 384 complaints, issued 303 citations, investigated 26 accidents, performed 381 security checks, opened nine criminal cases, closed 5 criminal cases and made 175 arrests. Of the 175 arrests made, 39 were for alcohol intoxication, 15 for DUI and 6 were drug related.

Recycling Day is slated Saturday

The Floyd County Chapter of Kentuckians For The Commonwealth will hold another Recycling Day on Saturday, December 15, from 10 to 2.

Area residents are asked to bring their newspapers, glass (rinsed and separated by color, without lids), 2-liter plastic bottles and plastic milk jugs (rinsed, without lids), and aluminum cans to the Bruce Walters trailer truck parked along the Mountain Parkway just past the Glynview Plaza. Call 886-0043 for details.

Late-night shots fired into school

Three shots were fired Monday night at the Duff Elementary School on Route 80, near Eastern, between midnight and 2:30 a.m.

One shot was fired into the school, shattering a window, while two shots penetrated a security guard's van. The incident was reported to the Floyd County Sheriff's Department and is being investigated by county deputy, Lloyd Powers.

Moving Mountains

The view from the top of Abbott Mountain reveals the changing landscape as workers clear a path for new U.S. 23. The road will include a connector to existing Rt. 23 near Highlands Regional Medical Center. Future construction will complete the 13-mile project through Johnson County. (Photo by Tim Preston)

Sex abuse, rape charges top police activity report

A 38-year-old Prestonsburg man was arrested Thursday and charged with first degree sexual abuse in an incident allegedly involving a four-year-old girl.

William (Bill) Woods was arrested by State Police Detective Lee Weddington after a complaint was filed in Floyd District Court by a Social Service worker. Woods was lodged in the county jail under a $20,000 surety bond.

Woods was once a special deputy sheriff with the Floyd County Sheriff's office but he was dismissed with cause less than a month after he was appointed by Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson.

Woods was named as a special deputy because he was in business with his father, who is handicapped, and the sheriff felt the appointment would offer extra security to the business, Thompson said.

After a conversation with Woods in March, Thompson said he made the decision to terminate his appointment. He was dismissed as a deputy on March 14.

In a separate investigation, a Prestonsburg man was arrested December 4 for four counts of first degree rape on a warrant issued from Jessamine County. Roger D. Hunter, 26, was taken to the Floyd County Jail by Deputy Sheriff Lloyd Powers. Hunter was released after posting a $10,000 bond and has a December 17 court date in Jessamine County. He remains free on bond. Police would offer no other details about the investigation.

In other police activity last week, a Garrett man was arrested December 3 and charged with first degree kidnapping, wanton endangerment in the first degree and driving under the influence.

Silver Retirement

CHS names medical scholarships in honor of Chalmer Frazier and O.J. Arnett

Two founding members of Consolidated Health Systems Board of Trustees were presented commemorative silver bowls marking their retirement from the board on October 22. Chalmer Frazier from Prestonsburg and O.J. Arnett from Salyersville were honored for their years of dedicated services to CHS. Consolidated Health Systems, the parent company of Highlands Regional Medical Center, is a professional management corporation. CHS offers services which include strategic planning and management for healthcare organizations, professional recruiting programs, human resources development, and management and disposal of regulated medical waste. An innovative approach was taken by Consolidated to overcome the difficulty in recruiting qualified physicians to the area. Their solution to the problem is to bring back local people who are currently enrolled in medical school. Medical scholarships are offered to qualified student applicants with repayment secured through service for specified periods of time. This helps by allowing the medical students financial assistance for their education and provides the community with a source of qualified doctors to meet future healthcare needs.

The first two annual medical scholarships awarded were named in honor of Chalmer Frazier and O.J. Arnett.

 ing and collection. Before adjourning, council members spent a considerable amount of time studying street names currently on city maps which need to be revised for use in the proposed 911 emergency response system. Council members pointed out that several streets, including Patton, Porter, Scott and Ford Streets, have duplicate names, while other streets have never been named. No action was taken on the issue, but Mayor Latta and council members may be contacted for suggestions and recommendations for street names. Following the council meeting, a special meeting of the Prestonsburg Holding Corporation was called in order to accept the title for a modular home being donated to the city by the Big Sandy Area Development District for use as an adult day care center. City leaders are faced with a dilemma in accepting the building however, as the proposed site for the facility is below city flood plain levels. Several ideas, including permanent attachment of the building to an existing structure, were discussed, but no action was taken.

All council members were present for the December meeting, except Councilman Danny Hamilton. The December 24 meeting of the Prestonsburg City Council has been canceled. The next regular meeting of the group will be 7 p.m., January 14, 1991.

Christmas Concert

Prestonsburg High School band and chorus will present their Christmas concert Thursday, Dec. 13, at 7 p.m. in the school's gym. The band is under direction of Joe Briley and the chorus is under direction of Elizabeth Frazier. The honor choir will also present a concert Friday, Dec. 21, at 7:30 p.m. at the First United Methodist Church.

December 3 and made Gayheart drive him down the road, according to a complaint filed in district court. He was arrested by State Police Trooper Mike Thorpe and was placed under a $10,000 bond. Also arrested last week was Cisco Neely, 35, of Hueysville for terroristic threatening and on a parole and probation detainer. Neely was accused of threatening a Gunlock woman by allegedly saying he would "cut her throat and would watch through her window and blow her head off," according to the complaint.

Neely was placed under a $1,000 bond and ordered to stay away from the woman and her family. In another case, Maxine Adams, 32, of Wheelwright was arrested December 6 and charged with possession of a forged or altered prescription. Adams is accused in a citation of writing the name of Dr. Charles Sowards on a prescription for Tylenol and presenting to the Wheelwright Pharmacy on November 5 or 6. She was arrested by KSP Trooper Lynn Cross. She was placed under a $5,000 surety bond.

let you dump solid waste there and the air is worse for us." The issue of where the ash, a by-product of incineration, is being disposed was also discussed. Stumbo said he was certain the material could not be taken to the Floyd County Landfill. Residents said they had been told it is currently being stored at the incinerator. Ford said the ash is being packaged for disposal and being transferred to a landfill. "Not Floyd County's landfill," Ford said. When asked the location of the landfill, Ford said he was "not sure right now" where the ash is being taken. Stumbo told FCIA members he would attempt to set up a meeting with Bill Eddins with the department of Air Quality in Frankfort to discuss their concerns. He said he hoped to arrange the meeting before a public comment session dealing with proposed improved state regulations dealing with small incinerators. Stumbo also said he would find out where the citizens could send soil samples for toxicology testing. Stumbo told the residents that measures could be taken to ensure the incinerator is operating safely.

Social Security benefits to prisoner prohibited

From time to time, the question is asked is it possible for a person to get Social Security benefits while to jail? The situation usually arises when the worker has been charged with a felony, and Social Security retirement or disability benefits are the family's primary income.

In general, Social Security law prohibits the payment of benefits to people imprisoned for the conviction of a felony. These include childhood disability beneficiaries, as well as people receiving other types of benefits under the Social Security retirement, disability, or survivors insurance programs.

Benefits, however, may continue to be paid to any family members receiving benefits on the prisoner's Social Security record.

The prisoner can reapply after he has served his time and been released, if his condition is still disabling.

Another provision of the law prohibits a person from drawing disability, if his disabling condition occurred during the act of committing a crime.

The criminal offenders would, however, be eligible for Social Security retirement benefits at age 62 if they have enough work credit.

If you have questions about Social Security, Supplemental Security Income, and Black Lung please contact your Big Sandy Area Social Security office, located on U.S. 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville. The telephone number is listed in the telephone directory under U.S. Government.

If you have a Social Security topic that you would like to see appear in this column, send it to us here at the Social Security office.

HRMC seminar shows stroke to be an increasingly treatable disease

Highlands Regional Medical Center hosted another in a series of continuing medical education seminars for physicians. This latest seminar "Selected Neurological and Surgical Problems in Stroke Patients" was held November 6 at the Paintsville Country Club.

Faculty presenting the seminar were Robert J. Dempsey, M.D., Associate Professor of Neurosurgery at the University of Kentucky Medical Center and L. Creed Pettigrew, M.D., Assistant Professor of Neurology at the University of Kentucky Medical Center. Dr. Dempsey is Director of the Stroke Program at the University of Kentucky and Dr. Pettigrew, the Co-Director.

Stroke, a major public health problem, has been shown to be a primary cause of death and disability in ages 60 through 80. A stroke is a sudden disruption of the blood supply to a part of the brain, which in turn disrupts the body function controlled by that brain area and usually leaves lasting disability.

- Warning signs of a stroke are:
- * Weakness or numbness in arm, hand, leg or facial muscle, usually only on one side of the body;
 - * Difficulty speaking, understanding speech or swallowing;
 - * Failing or blurry vision in one or both eyes;
 - * Deafness or ringing in the ears;

* Clumsiness or mild loss of balance, dizziness or fainting (often with double vision);

* Sudden unexplained headache, abrupt personality disturbances, impaired judgment or forgetfulness.

Effective treatment may include the use of anticoagulant drugs, small daily doses of aspirin or surgery. Stroke-preventing operations include surgery to clean out the carotid arteries, blood vessels in the neck that are the main source of the brain's blood supply.

Dr. Dempsey stated, "Stroke is an increasingly treatable disease. With the help of new clinical and basic science research developments we hope to improve the overall care of these patients that were previously thought to be helpless."

Over 35 area physicians attended the stroke seminar. Co-sponsor of the seminar was the University of Kentucky, Office of Continuing Medical Education and a grant-in-aid was provided by Miles Laboratories Pharmaceutical Division.

Coffee Break

Congratulations to state leaders for their selection of a director for the new Office of Education Accountability.

If anyone can see to it that schools adhere to education reform requirements, Penney Sanders can.

We've known Dr. Sanders since the spring of 1988 when we became classmates in the state Chamber of Commerce's Leadership Kentucky program and during the course of that year we became well acquainted.

Dr. Sanders, a former administrator with the state Department of Education and a high school principal who juggled her professional career with a passion for our environment and a somewhat more-than-sideline job as a sheep farmer, has all the tools to be successful as the state's top school cop.

The most gratifying attribute Dr. Sanders brings to her new job is an unyielding commitment to put Kentucky school children first.

That's good news for education and bad news for the good old boys.

Education in Kentucky is on the move.

Back to the future.

Those who make such significant decisions as what is to be fashionable in the clothing world, say the trend for the '90s is the '60s.

Oh no, we've already had our Beate Boots bronzed.

Recycling is in, and it may as well extend to fashion. Lucky for us we never throw anything away. Unlucky for us that our '90's waistline is a far stretch, if you get our drift, from our '60's sizes.

Bellbottom blues.

The '60s are in, again, and that's okay. We'll draw the line, though, when the trend-setters start pushing polyester leisure suits.

Never again!

Life with Dick and Jane.

Make that Ted and Jane, as in Ted Turner and Jane Fonda, who are fixing to tie the knot next year.

A marriage made in heaven, no doubt, as Hanoi Jane has a potential war to protest and the back-to-the-60s move leaves TV Ted with hours of Leave It To Beaver reruns to colorize between trips to Moscow.

Made the trip Saturday to Charleston to see Walt Disney on Ice and boy does he look natural.

Hah, just kiddin'.

Seriously, though, we did see the ice capades...a good show...and a good reason to renew our suggestion that a facility be developed locally to handle such entertainment events.

A civic center, strategically located to serve Big Sandy cities, could be a major tourism asset and economy booster. Why should we have to drive two hours to Lexington or two hours to Charleston to have a good time when we can keep our money at home and bring in a little extra, too?

Prestonsburg will soon have the Kentucky Opry. Take that idea a step farther with a jointly-operated civic center and we've got big tourism potential.

On with the show?

Our Christmas tree is up and we expect a thank-you note any day now from Kentucky Power.

They probably had to order a few extra truckloads of coal to keep up with the electrical demand of our 4,000 strings of assorted lights.

When it comes to Christmas tree decoration, you can never have too many lights. That's why we're compelled each year to buy at least five new sets, whether we need them or not.

We have so many, in fact, we've had to contract with the phone company to install a guywire to hold up the tree (it's under there somewhere) and the EPA requires us to post a radiation warning on our front door whenever the lights are in use.

Our Christmases are indeed merry and bright. We can get a tan, too.

Over the years as I have watched all children participate in a sport called basketball here in Floyd County. They play with all hearts content to win, but for some children there is no way possible, when they have to play seven players on a team.

What do I mean by seven players—I mean the referees. It is hard to get a fair game when the referees have been refereeing so long, they don't give one care about the children participating in the game.

These are referees with 15-16 years of refereeing. Others are teachers pretending to be referees when they are not registered in the basketball association booklet.

The reason I ask this to be publicized is because the children—all children of Floyd County—need to be recognized and taught fairness in the games. It doesn't do coaches or children fair when fairness is taught by the coaches, and it is all taken away on a basketball court by referees or so-called referees.

Also we don't need our children to be told that they will have their heads shot off when they are telling a referee after the game that the referees could have done a better job calling the game. When a practically blind child can see this happening in a game, just think of what people that can see really do see. It is not a very pleasant situation to see. There are a very few good—and I mean good—referees left that care about grade school basketball. Also, I think when children in grade school are playing they should—and their games while going on—should be done out of fairness for the children and treated as high school games and tournaments are treated. Because we, the children, are taught to play by these rules and regulations.

I would like to express an opinion on whether we deserve a new high school in the Prestonsburg area or a band-aid on the old one that has had a leaky roof for more than 35 years. It is now proposed that the present high school be "renovated" as a compromise in an attempt to cope with the increasing student population in this rapidly growing area, to say nothing of the anticipated technological advances of the approaching 21st century. It should further be noted that this building has been flooded in the past and will be flooded in the future. I do not believe that this patchwork on an old building would be acceptable to the people in this area, should a survey be made on this issue.

The Prestonsburg High School can be proud of its past accomplishments, but it cannot continue to live in the past. New ground must be broken if we are to keep abreast of the future that is crowding in upon us. This area has the highest school population in the county and consequently receives the highest payment from the State Department of Education, which pays according to the number of students. I believe that the records would show that this area has the highest tax as-essment as well. I submit that the high school students of this area deserve at least equal treatment with the other high schools in the county.

We would like to thank McDonalds and manager, Leo Caudill, for the wonderful birthday parties which they hold once a month at Highland Terrace.

They serve cake and orange drinks to a large crowd. For the ones who are celebrating their birthdays, they present them with special gifts. Everybody gets something.

We play Bingo and listen as a member of the group tells a story. We all have a good time.

We would also like to thank the mother and daughter that does such a good job. We appreciate everything very much.

Tracey and I would like to take this opportunity to extend our warmest thanks and appreciation to all the wonderful people of the Seventh Congressional District, not only for their valiant effort and support on both our behalf and Chris's, but also for their participation in that most cherished of American democratic institutions—the right to vote.

While we were not successful this time, I believe that the people of eastern Kentucky were and will be. But again, I must stress that we must all unite in order to be successful. Remember our Commonwealth's motto: "United we stand—divided we fall." We have fallen too many times in Eastern Kentucky solely because of divisions among ourselves. Strong and able leadership does not come through division—it comes through unity.

Surely we are divided during elections—but after and between we must all stand united together, Republicans, Democrats and Independents. And in the final analysis we must keep foremost in our mind that we are first Eastern Kentuckians and only secondly, something else. With this unity, we can achieve that which rightfully belongs to each one of us—an opportunity to work at a decent wage, to prosper, and to provide our children a bright and hopeful future.

I'm firmly convinced that there is no problem facing this region or Nation, which we together, can not solve. I truly believe this as does our Congressman Chris Perkins—we only differ in our solutions.

But be that as it may, let us now strive to come together once again, as Eastern Kentuckians, to accomplish something good for our homeland and for our children—because it is something worth doing—it is worth living for—it is something worth fighting for.

With kindest regards and best wishes this holiday season.

Report to Kentucky

By: Senator Wendell Ford

Housing Act is wise investment

Kentuckians have always worked hard to achieve the self-reliance and sense of community that comes with home ownership. We have long had—and we continue to have—a high rate of home ownership in comparison with other states.

But home ownership is declining on a national basis for the first time in nearly 50 years, and Kentucky has not been immune to this dangerous trend.

Kentucky's rate of home ownership fell from 76 percent at the beginning of the 1980s to 68 percent at last count in 1988. The number of identified homeless Kentuckians, including a high percentage of children, has risen to 47,167 individuals.

It is no coincidence that these extremely serious problems have developed during a period of inexcusable neglect at the federal level. Federal programs to encourage home ownership have been cut by more than 50 percent over the past 10 years.

I have been among those fighting to reverse this short-sighted approach to one of our greatest national challenges. And I am pleased to report that we took a giant step in that direction by passing the National Affordable Housing Act in the closing days of the 101st Congress.

Our new law is designed to help Kentuckians and others in a continuing drive to achieve the American dream of home ownership. It is designed to promote a cooperative, creative, self-help approach to our housing problems in an era of painful budget cuts at all levels of government.

This approach is well reflected in a provision for block grants to be matched at the state and local levels under the HOME Investment Partnership section of our new act. State and local leaders will play a major role in using these grants for housing rehabilitation along with some construction or rental assistance, depending on the needs of the communities involved.

The act calls for additional grassroots involvement—the key to success in our housing efforts—through the development of five-year housing strategies at the state and local levels.

Another section of the act creates a revolving loan fund and other forms of assistance for first-time home buyers, including young, moderate-income Kentuckians who have been completely shut out of the housing market in recent years.

Our legislation comes to grips with another chronic problem by targeting assistance to struggling rural areas. It also strengthens the Federal Housing Administration, encourages public-housing tenants to buy their own units and initiates other reforms in the long-neglected housing programs of this nation.

The 101st Congress did not stop there. We also reauthorized the McKinney Homeless Assistance Act with increased funding levels. And we included housing provisions, including low-income housing credits, in the final version of the new budget package.

Much remains to be done in the 102nd Congress, starting with a drive to actually make some of the crucial investments authorized by our housing act. Our future depends on the efforts of all Americans to achieve a better life by becoming more productive in a highly competitive world. A lack of decent and affordable housing is an intolerable barrier to many who are struggling to reach that goal.

Legislative Perspective

The recent statewide election reflected a significant increase in awareness of state government policy. In an off-presidential election year, over 50 percent of those registered to vote in Kentucky went to the polls.

To understand this amazingly large turnout of voters, consider the 47.2 percent of the registered voters who turned out at the polls in 1989. Then, compare this with a presidential election year—1988—when 66.6 percent of Kentucky voters lined up to vote.

The 1990 turnout set a precedent when compared with the last decade of off-presidential election years. Even in the gubernatorial race of 1987, only 42 percent of registered voters showed up at the polls. And when U.S. Senator Wendell Ford, a very popular individual in the Commonwealth, last ran for office, only 39.2 percent of the votes turned out.

There is not just one factor that brought Kentuckians to the polls.

Weatherwise, it was a lovely sunny day which is always conducive to voters to get out and vote. And, in addition, there was a controversial U.S. Senate race between Democrat Harvey Sloane and Republican Mitch McConnell. It is perhaps this race that spelled downfall for some democratic candidates running for the state House of Representatives and the state Senate, particularly in districts where the voter registration is equally divided between the two political parties.

A spokesman for the State Board of Elections credits Constitutional Amendment 4, which exempts certain church properties from taxable status, with attracting many voters to the polls. In fact, the Board of Elections reported that many voters turned out to vote only for Amendment 4 and nothing else.

And, unfortunately, there is always a number of disgruntled voters who, following any sort of tax increase, will show up at the polls to vote out any candidate who may have been involved with the increase while not considering any other qualifications of the candidate. Several legislative districts with local governments that opted to increase property or utility tax for education reform did in fact see incumbents beat.

Finally, there is a national anti-incumbent movement aimed at Congress that has filtered down to the state government level. Two states even passed referendums this election limiting the terms state legislators can serve.

As a result of this unusual election climate, Republicans managed to gain three seats in the House and three in the Senate. When the new members take office January 8, the House will contain 68 Democrats and 32 Republicans. Of those legislators, six are women and two are black.

A Christmas Carol brings Christmas to Prestonsburg

by Kathleen Carroll
Contributing Writer

Pike Auditorium at Prestonsburg Community College was filled Friday night for a performance of Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol," and were treated to spirited entertainment by the college's growing drama troupe, The Theatrical Experience.

Director Dean Whitaker stepped into the role of Scrooge as a last minute replacement, and the result was enchanting. Whitaker's skilled performance brought everybody's favorite Christmas villain to life.

The rest of the cast also gave strong performances. Matthew Meek's Bob Cratchit was impressive and touching. The gentleness Meek gave to his character provided a perfect counterweight to Scrooge's misery. David Coleman and Devonna Runyon gave good performances as Scrooge's nephew and his wife (as well as other roles). Evan Shae Sparkman was a charming Tiny Tim.

Supporting castmembers included Katie Harmon, David Smith, Andrea Newsome, Roy Kidd, Scott Burchett, and Brian Blackburn. The troupe's faculty advisor, Alice Adams, narrated the production.

Simplicity was the key for staging and props. Wooden boxes were changed around by the cast to represent furniture in the absence of scenery. Whitaker's clever staging included an imaginary snowball fight Players used their losing tickets to enter each of four separate drawings held between Nov. 22, 1989 and January 3, 1990 for new "home for the holidays" worth $100,000.

Living Wills:

An option to refuse medical treatment

In recent years, medical technology has become so advanced that you can be kept "alive" artificially by remaining hooked up to machines, even when your mind is gone and your body has stopped functioning naturally.

Under constitutional and common law, you have the right to refuse any treatment. But, since you may not be capable of consenting or refusing treatment when it becomes necessary to do so, it is important to draw up a document now, while you're healthy, expressing your wishes. This document is called a living will.

Congress recently passed "right-to-die" legislation that was tucked away in the deficit-cutting package. This new legislation, effective November 1991, requires hospitals, hospices, nursing homes, health maintenance organizations, and other health care facilities that receive money from Medicare and Medicaid to distribute written information to patients explaining their right-to-die options in their state. Among these options are living wills.

What is a living will?

A living will is a statement expressing your directions to both your family and your doctor about receiving or refusing life-prolonging medical procedures when your condition is hopeless and there is no chance of regaining what you consider to be a meaningful life. To be valid, a living will should be signed, dated, and witnessed by two adults of your choice. In some states, notarization and other witnessing procedures are required.

What does a living will contain?

A living will contains a general declaration regarding directions for medical treatment, a place to specify treatments you do now want, a section for additional instructions or comments, and a space to designate someone else to speak for you if you cannot speak for yourself.

In your living will, you may specify which, if any, "life-prolonging" procedures you would or would not want administered. These "life-prolonging" procedures may include: hooking you up to an artificial respirator when you cannot breathe on your own; performing operations or prescribing antibiotics that cannot realistically increase your chance of recovery; starting your heart mechanically when it has stopped beating; or feeding you through tubes. If you do not include specifics, the general directions on the declaration will stand for your wishes regarding treatment under the circumstances described.

The declaration in a living will usually limits treatment to measures to keep you comfortable and free of pain. These comfort measures include medication, nursing care and other treatment administered for the purpose of keeping you as comfortable as possible. In some states, sustenance is considered to be a comfort measure, so it is best to specify whether or not you want to be artificially nourished or hydrated in order to avoid any confusion.

Your living will offers protection by allowing you to designate someone you trust to make medical decisions for you in accordance with your wishes at a time when you cannot make them for yourself. It should say exactly what you want it to say — you can add any direction to it you wish.

What should I do with my living will?

It is important that your family knows exactly how you feel about life-prolonging treatment, and your living will provides an opportunity to open up discussions on the subject. You should give a copy of the signed document to the people who might someday have to produce it on your account.

"It is also very important to discuss your wishes with your doctor," said Milford C. Maloney, MD, president of the American Society of Internal Medicine, which represents America's specialists in adult medical care. "A copy of the document should be kept in your medical file, and if you move or change doctors, make sure your new physician gets a copy," advised Maloney. You should keep the original document among your personal papers in a place known to your family so it can be easily located. You may also want to carry a card in your wallet stating that you have a signed living will and indicating where it can be found. Do not place it in a safety deposit box, where it would not be readily available.

In order to make sure your living will is viewed as an up-to-date document, review and date it occasionally to show that it continues to express your choices accurately. You may make additions, changes, or deletions at any time provided they are clearly initialed and dated. Make sure any changes are reflected on all copies. You can, of course, revoke your living will at any time.

Is a living will legally binding?

You have the constitutional and common-law right to refuse any treatment you do not want. Living wills have been given weight in court decisions as evidence of a person's intent. Currently, 41 states and the District of Columbia have passed living will legislation. If you reside in state without a living will law, you can still protect yourself by signing a standard Living Will document until such legislation is passed.

The laws of states that have passed living will legislation contain the document form to be used by residents of those states. If you live in a state with a living will law, you can obtain the appropriate form along with instructions for its use from the Concern for Dying/Society for the Right to Die — the group responsible for drawing up the first living will. If you live in a state without a living will law, you can request a copy of the society's standard living will document in order to express your personal wishes.

Does a living will affect life insurance?

Nearly all living will laws clearly state that new insurance applications cannot be turned down or existing policies affected by the signing of a living will. Signing a living will, terminating artificial life-prolonging treatment, or not starting a treatment at all is not considered suicide or assisted suicide.

For specific information regarding living wills or to request the correct living will document for Kentucky, contact the Concern For Dying/Society for the Right to Die at (212) 246-6973.

Allen First Baptist to retire debt

The congregation of the First Baptist Church of Allen will complete their mortgage requirements on all church properties in a special services this Thursday.

"Church Debt Retirement at Christmas" was the goal of the Baptist fellowship in 1990. The total property value is estimated at over $500,000.

Ramon Childers, chairman of deacons, said "it is a great day for our church. Many people have given to make this day possible. I am proud of our church and hope that it will continue to grow."

The facility is located on U.S. 23 just north of the stoplight at Allen. In 1978 the church began to build the current building and relocate from its former location in Old Allen. Rev. Earl Waugh was pastor and through his leadership the church voted to move at that time. The trustees and building committee were very instrumental in every phase of the project.

"Without the work of those men of the church the cost would have been much higher. All the members have contributed to make this a special night," said Childers.

Rev. French B. Harmon is pastor of the Allen Church. He reflected, "I know many members sacrificed to make this dream turn into a reality. In these days of escalating building costs and high interest rates our church has a physical plant that will lead us into the next century very nicely.

"But I am most proud of the fact that the church debt was retired three years before maturation. This shows spiritual maturity and fiscal responsibility. A key person in our church is our treasurer, Carolyn Worrix. With her expertise we have had good leadership."

The celebration will be part of a special Thursday service. The "note-burning" will be followed by their annual Christmas Missions dinner.

Former members, friends, and any interested parties are invited to attend. The service begins at 6 p.m.

IRS changes toll-free numbers

Change is a way of life, and it is coming to the Internal Revenue Service toll-free telephone system.

All IRS toll-free numbers in Kentucky changed effective October 1. In most cases the only change was the prefix, changed from 424 to 829, spelling out the word "TAX".

The new number for ordering tax forms and publications is 1-800-TAX-FORM (1-800-829-3676).

Tele-Tax offers recorded tax information on over 100 topics and automated refund information. In Kentucky the new number is 1-800-TAX-4477 (1-800-829-4477).

Taxpayers can still call for help with tax problems. The new toll-free tax assistance number is 1-800-TAX-1040 (1-800-829-1040).

Hearing-impaired taxpayers with access to TV/telephone TDD equipment can get tax and refund information at 1-800-TAX-4059 (1-800-829-4059).

Seaman returns home from Middle East

When Seaman John D. Anderson returned to his home in Geneva, Ohio, after a four month assignment in the Middle East, he was greeted by the sight of yellow ribbons tied around every tree in the yard of his mother, Edna Turner. Mrs. Turner, a former Prestonsburg resident, had even tied a yellow ribbon around the family dog, Buster.

Anderson, grandson of Charlie and Ollie Johnson of Wheelwright, was ordered to the Persian Gulf on August 7, just five days after Iraq invaded Kuwait to serve as a stinger aboard Navy ships stationed there.

The young seaman was surprised by the duty, "My year as a stinger ended July 31. I didn't think I was going anywhere," he said.

A stinger is an anti-aircraft shoulder-held missile. Stinger detachments transfer from one ship to another. Anderson has served aboard three ships in the Gulf, the USS Vandergrift, the USS LaSalle and the USS Blue Ridge.

Anderson said he is happy to have returned to the States, but that he has spent a great deal of time thinking of his fellow servicemen and women serving in the Middle East.

Being exposed to a different culture has been a learning experience for the seaman. "Like women, for example. You can't talk to them. They all wear veils and when you walk past them they look straight ahead. Marriages are set up by their families," he said.

Alcohol is prohibited in that country, but Anderson said it could be found in a few American establishments.

"You have to be very careful with even your basic mannerisms because you never know when you might be insulting someone," he said.

"I'll tell you one thing, you don't see anyone stealing over there. They have strict laws and severe penalties," he said.

Being in the Middle East has made him value American freedom and culture, Anderson said. He said that many servicemen and women were voicing concern over the reason that the United States is there.

"I can't speak for all of them, but many feel that we don't belong there. What are we fighting for — freedom, oil? What is the real reason?"

"If Saudi Arabia is one of the richest countries in the world why don't they have a better military?"

Anderson said he believes that Saddam Hussein must be stopped, but that he believes Hussein will "back down."

"If we're going to do it, let's do it and get it over with," he said.

Although Anderson spent most of his brief holiday with his mother, he took time out to visit school children in his hometown who had written him letters of encouragement during his tour of duty in Saudi Arabia.

Anderson's mother said she was relieved that her son was back home in the States and that his stay in the Middle East was an emotional experience.

"I just had to put him in the Lord's hands. I had to keep my faith that everything was going to be taken care of. There was really nothing more that I could do," she said.

Members of the community, her friends at work, and her church members helped support her through this time of anxiety.

"One friend of mine put it very nicely when she said, 'we can't hug them with our arms, but we can hug them with our hearts.'"

Anderson returned to Norfolk, Virginia last week where he received orders for his next assignment.

A Look At Sports

NEW RULES NOT SETTING WELL WITH AREA COACHES

The new "two shot" foul rule is not being accepted too well with area coaches, and their gripes are justified. By eliminating the jump ball, the rule was designed to speed up the game, but instead, the rule has slowed down the game.

For some of you have no idea of what I am talking about, the complaint against basketball was that it took too long to play; so the rules committee got together and eliminated the center jump at the start of each quarter—that was to speed up the game.

Used to be before you could get a two shot foul, you had to be fouled in the act of shooting. Anything else was just called a "one and one" bonus—and that only came after the six team foul. Now, on the seventh team foul the victim gets two fouls. The problem is that this also slows down the game; it takes away strategy from the coaches bench and is very boring in a runaway game.

Coach Gordon Parido of Prestonsburg said that he can't wait to vote against it in January. The rule, only temporary, is in the experimental phase. It could become a permanent rule if the coaches desire to vote it in.

Junior Newsome of Betsy Layne is taking a wait and see attitude. McDowell's Johnny Ray Turner feels the rule is not good for the game.

I, for one, hope they vote it out and bring back the old bonus shot. Put some pressure on the shooter at the line in a tight game. Put some more excitement back into the game. Vote it out!

HOW ABOUT A SHOT CLOCK IN HIGH SCHOOL BASKETBALL

I would like to see a 50 or 60 second shot clock put into high school basketball. Of course the way some teams are running the floor, Pitino style, a clock is not necessary. But I would like to see input in the game.

On the grade school level, where is the three-point goal? Let's put the rule in the game here in Floyd County. Other county grade school program has them. If a player is going to go into high school basketball, hey, let him have a fling at in the lower grades.

The argument here is that undeveloped players will try to compete from the three-point line, fail and get discouraged. That is where the coach has influence. If you can't shoot it—don't shoot it. Get the three-point going in grade school. It did wonders for high school and college ball. It will do the same for grade school.

NEEDED AT UK, A POINT GUARD

Rick Pitino was right, the UK Wildcats lack a point guard. I think Sean Woods is a good basketball player, but a point guard he is not. He averages more turnovers than points. In every game the Cats have played this season he has turned the ball over because of poor passing. Now I am not talking about his scoring, but his ability to run the team at the point guard spot.

"Didn't he have 25 points against Kansas?" He sure did. A good outing for the junior guard. But he also turned the ball over and allowed the Jayhawks to get back into the game. Ditto, North Carolina. He is a good player—granted—but no point guard.

POINT GUARD ON THE HORIZON

Next year, Travis Ford, point guard; Dale Brown, shooting guard. Where will that leave John Pelphrey? Pelphrey will not have to worry about playing at Kentucky, said Pitino earlier in the year. I agree. John has done the mountain fans proud. I appreciate this young man. He is a hard worker and seems to warm the hearts of a lot of people. I like his hustle. I like the way he handles himself around the media. Always positive. That's good. I am proud of John Pelphrey.

Until Friday, Good Sports!

Tournament Analysis

Floyd County Grade School Basketball Opens Tonight

With all four sectionals now history, the Floyd County Grade School Tournament will get underway tonight at the Adams Middle School in Prestonsburg. With the use of the Adams school, the problem of having to schedule around the high school teams will be solved.

In years past, the county tournament was always held at one of the county's high school fieldhouses in order to handle the crowd. With the Adams Middle School, the newest facility in the county, a problem could arise as to where to seat everyone.

"If we need more seats we can always put some folding chairs out," said tournament director Thomas Tackett, Principal at the new school.

Tackett also said that a closed circuit TV system will be set up in the school's cafeteria where the concession stand is located. Although drinks and food are not allowed into the new arena, fans can go to the concession stand and still be able to watch the games on closed circuit television.

"We will be able to cover all the boys' and girls' games, and the fans will not have to worry about missing any action," Tackett said.

The tournament gets underway tonight with the Melvin boys facing the winner of the Betsy Layne/John M. Stumbo game. The game is scheduled for 5:30 p.m. as the first of three games. Melvin brings a surprising attack that could help them. Melvin is led by Marty Johnson, who had 34 points against McDowell in the finals of the Sectional 2 tournament. Justin Ray is the floor general for the Cougars and Jason Rogers will provide some fire for the Cougars.

The winner of the Betsy Layne/

Stumbo game will provide plenty of opposition for Coach Tim Eads team. Stumbo has one of the best one-two punches in grade school basketball with Steven Johnson and Derrick Newsome. Add Chris Hamilton and you have a very supportive cast for this game. If Betsy Layne gets the nod, Randy Wallen and Jeremy Rogers can produce as well as any player in the county for Coach Ernie Tackett's team. It promises to be a real bam burner in opening tournament action.

Daredevils Overcome Betsy Layne 68-66 In Conference Road Game

The McDowell Daredevils do not begin playing basketball until they have fallen behind 13 to 15 points in a game. So seems to be the case this season as McDowell pulled out a big, big road victory at Betsy Layne Friday night, 68-66 over Junior Newsome's ball club. This marks the third year in a row that Coach Johnny Ray Turner has taken his team to Betsy Layne and came back from the Bobcats' Den with a win. That's something other clubs only dream about. Betsy Layne is a hard road win.

The Daredevils rallied from a 13 point second quarter deficit to edge the host Bobcats and improve to 2-0 in the Floyd County Conference. The Daredevils are 3-2 overall. Betsy Layne, still trying to get out of the gate, lost for the second time, with one victory, and falls to 0-1 in the conference they are favored to win.

Betsy Layne led 65-62 in the fourth quarter with 1:25 remaining in the game when Keith Hall split a pair of free throws. Junior Barry Hall tied the game with a long three pointer from the left of the foul line with 1:10 to go.

McDowell took the lead for good after two missed Betsy Layne free throws. With :50 showing on the scoreboard clock, Stacy Hall hit a six footer to give McDowell the lead 67-65.

With 14 seconds to go, Adam Gearheart moved to the foul line with a chance to tie the game as he was awarded two charity tosses. Gearheart hit the first and also connected on the second one to tie the game, but the shot was disallowed because of a

Magoffin County Causes No Problems For Bobcats In 61-39 Homecoming Win

Betsy Layne, like many of the other high schools, held their homecoming events early this year as the Magoffin County Hornets visited the Bobcats' lair Saturday night. Danny Adams brought a young and inexperienced team into Betsy Layne to face one of the more experienced teams in the 15th Region this season. Betsy Layne used a full court pressure defense that caused the Hornets to turn the ball over a total of 22 times as the Hornets fell 61-39 to the Bobcats.

The win improved the Betsy Layne record to 2-2 on the season and Magoffin County is still looking for their first win at 0-4.

Phillip King tossed in 22 points to lead the Bobcats in scoring. King had several offensive rebounds that netted him some easy baskets. Adam Gearheart added 18 points while Chris Newsome was scoring 16.

The game wasn't a picture of beauty for either team as both were sloppy in their play. Betsy Layne rolled out to a 21-11 lead midway through the second period, mainly on the strength of King's scoring. The Bobcat forward had nine second quarter points to lead the Bobcats to a 26-17 halftime lead.

Magoffin County came back and cut the lead to five points early in the third quarter, but Betsy Layne pulled back out to a 11 point advantage, 36-25, and led at the third stop, 43-32.

Betsy Layne turned the ball over on their first four possessions of the fourth quarter as a free throw and basket by Chester Humphrey coupled with Jason Hanson's basket cut the lead to six, 43-37. After Brian Holiday's bucket made it 45-39 with 5:01 to go, Betsy Layne scored the final 14 points of the game in posting their second victory.

Blackcats "Shake" Second Half Jinx With 79-71 Win Over Allen Central

The Prestonsburg Blackcats looked great against the Elkhorn City Cougars for three quarters and then faltered in the fourth. Against the McDowell Daredevils, a 51 point first half gave the Blackcats a 13 point lead at the half, only to see it disappear in their second loss. Friday night against the Allen Central Rebels, the Blackcats put together two good halves in subduing a very determined Rebel basketball team, 79-71 behind a very balanced scoring attack led by Jason Crisp's 16 points. John Clark added 13 points while Worthie McGuire tossed in 12. Nine players scored for the Blackcats in the win.

Brian Hall and Stewart Hall combined for 29 points for the Rebels. Brian Hall had 15 points to lead the way while Stewart Hall, off the bench, added 14 in a good outing for the junior.

Prestonsburg rolled out to a 21 point lead, 59-38, with 3:51 to go on the third period. Jeremy Clark hit a basket; Stewart Hall followed with a short jumper and Delbert Goins, also off the bench, hit for two to cut the lead to 15, 59-44. Tony Soler's basket just before the end of the third, made it 62-46 Prestonsburg.

Prestonsburg opened cold in the fourth quarter and Allen Central ran off seven unanswered points to close within eight points, 62-54. Clark and McGuire each hit charity tosses and Clark scored on jumper outside to run the Blackcat lead back out to 66-54. Stewart Hall hit a three-pointer and Brian Hall scored a basket after a McGuire bucket, for a nine point game, 68-59.

The Rebels pulled as close as eight points, 74-66, on a three point play by Stewart Hall and a bucket by Brian Hall. Robert Hammonds went to work for the Blackcats and connected on three of four free throws to give Prestonsburg a 77-66 lead. Ronnie Samons scored on a jumper and Clark followed with a score. Stewart Hall hit his second three pointer of the game to make the final margin 79-71.

The lead changed hands six times in the first quarter and was last tied at 14-14 when Prestonsburg scored seven unanswered points on baskets by Crisp, two baskets and a free throw by John Clark.

Allen Central scored the first four points of the contest on two baskets by Brian Hall. Jason Crisp hit a 16 footer for the Blackcats' first score. The lead went from 9-8, 10-9, 11-10, 12-11 and 14-14. Ronnie Samons scored six points for the Rebels to tie the game at 14-14.

Delbert Goins came off the Rebel bench and tossed in six quick points as the Blackcats held a 23-20 lead at the end of the first quarter.

Lack Of Offensive Boards Spells Defeat For Trojans, 87-81

A big key to winning basketball games is being able to control the defensive backboards. But that proved to be a problem for the Wheelwright Trojans Friday night when the Fleming-Neon Pirates and Trojans met on the hardwood at Wheelwright for a non-district game. The Pirates came into the game looking for their first victory of the season bringing a 0-3 mark to Wheelwright. On the other hand the Trojans had a unblemished 2-0 record, getting off to a good start in the young basketball season. However, the Trojans came out on the short of the score, 87-81, because they failed to control their defensive boards. The Pirates found the ball bouncing their way as they got three and sometimes four shots at the basket. At one point, Neon pulled down seven offensive rebounds before scoring. The Pirates converted six offensive rebounds into points.

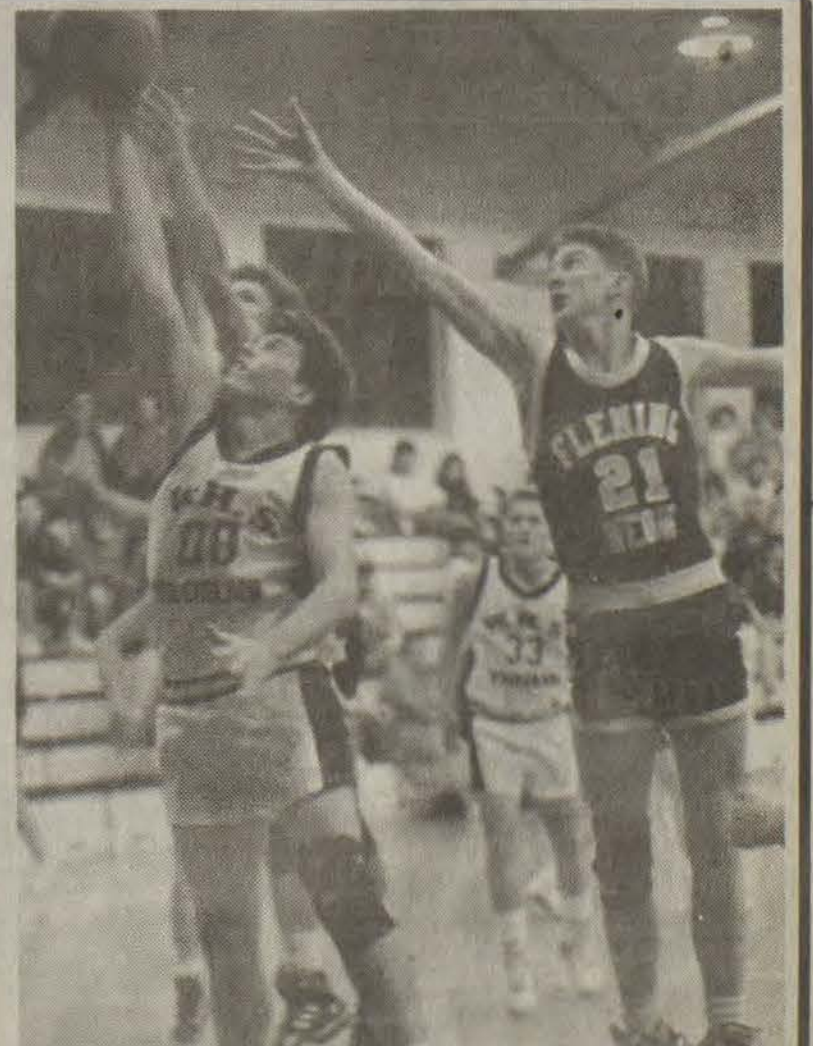

The hot shooting of Greg Hall helped Neon record their first win of the season and hand Wheelwright their first loss. Hall scored a game high 34 points, hitting three three-pointers. Ronnie Phipps added 20 for the Pirates. It was Phipps' play in the second half that sparked the Pirates' comeback.

Wheelwright held a 62-60 lead going into the final period of play. After a Trojan turnover, Phipps drove the lane for a layup to tie the score at the 7:30 mark. Paul Hall tossed in a short jumper for a 64-62 lead before Hall tied the game for Neon. The Pirates took their first lead with 6:51 to go in the game when Arthur Richardson hit a three-pointer to put the Pirates on top 67-65 and they went up seven, 72-65 as the Trojans lost sight of the basket.

With 1:56 to go, Wheelwright managed to cut the lead to four points, 80-76, on a three-pointer by Layne Bailey, who had five treys in the game, and two free throws by Steven Johnson. After a basket by Phipps, a free throw by Harold Johnson, who finished the game with 22 points, Michael Newsome's bucket made it 82-79 with 56 seconds remaining. Wheelwright had two chances to close the lead or tie the game but turned the ball over on their next two possessions. Wheelwright fired up the three-pointers in their attempt to catch the Pirates.

Wheelwright held a first quarter lead of 25-23 and went to the locker room.

Lady Bobcats Hold On To Edge McDowell, 69-58

The D. W. Howard Fieldhouse was the scene of a top Floyd County Conference basketball game between the McDowell Lady Devils and the Lady Cats of Betsy Layne. McDowell brought a 1-0 conference record to the Cat's lair with thoughts of a conference championship "dancing in their heads" after a thrilling come from behind win over power house Prestonsburg last week. However, the Lady Cats put the Lady Devils title hopes on hold with a 69-58 win over coach Cassandra Keathley's Lady Devils.

"It is hard to win a ball game when you miss 22 free throws and about as many layups," said Coach Keathley. "We just didn't play well at all and could hardly tell we were in the game."

Betsy Layne scored eight straight points, erasing a 2-0 deficit, and never looked back in the win. Nancy Shepherd, who led the Lady Cats in scoring with 21 points, started the scoring for Betsy Layne with a foul line jumper. Shelia Hall put in a layup and Jamie Smith added a short jumper. Two free throws by Briana Boyd made it 8-2.

After Lori Bryant hit a short jumper, Shepherd's basket and Hall's free throw made it 11-4. Christy Mullins ended the first quarter scoring with a basket and a 11-6 lead for Betsy Layne.

Betsy Layne doubled the score 22-11 early in the second quarter before McDowell rallied to get back in contention. After Shepherd's basket gave the Lady Cats a 22-11 lead, McDowell outscored the host school 7-2 to climb back into the game. Bryant scored all seven of the McDowell points, starting the run with a short jumper. The senior hit a free throw and later two more free throws and ended the quarter with a jumper to offset Hall's layup with 1:05 left.

Betsy Layne kept adding to their lead in the third quarter, pulling out by as many as 15 points as McDowell had problems hitting the free throws and layups.

Shepherd's 21 points led the Betsy Layne club. Shepherd had two treys in the game to go with her 11 rebounds and three assists. Boyd added 18 points in the win and Smith finished with 15 points and six rebounds.

Bryant led the Lady Devils with 27 points. Mullins netted six points and both Kristi Pack and Carrie Newsome scored five points. Michelle Hall also had five points.

Betsy Layne hit 23 of 38 field goal attempts and pulled down a team total of 36 rebounds. Betsy Layne turned the ball over 14 times.

Betsy Layne is 3-1 overall and 1-0 in the conference.

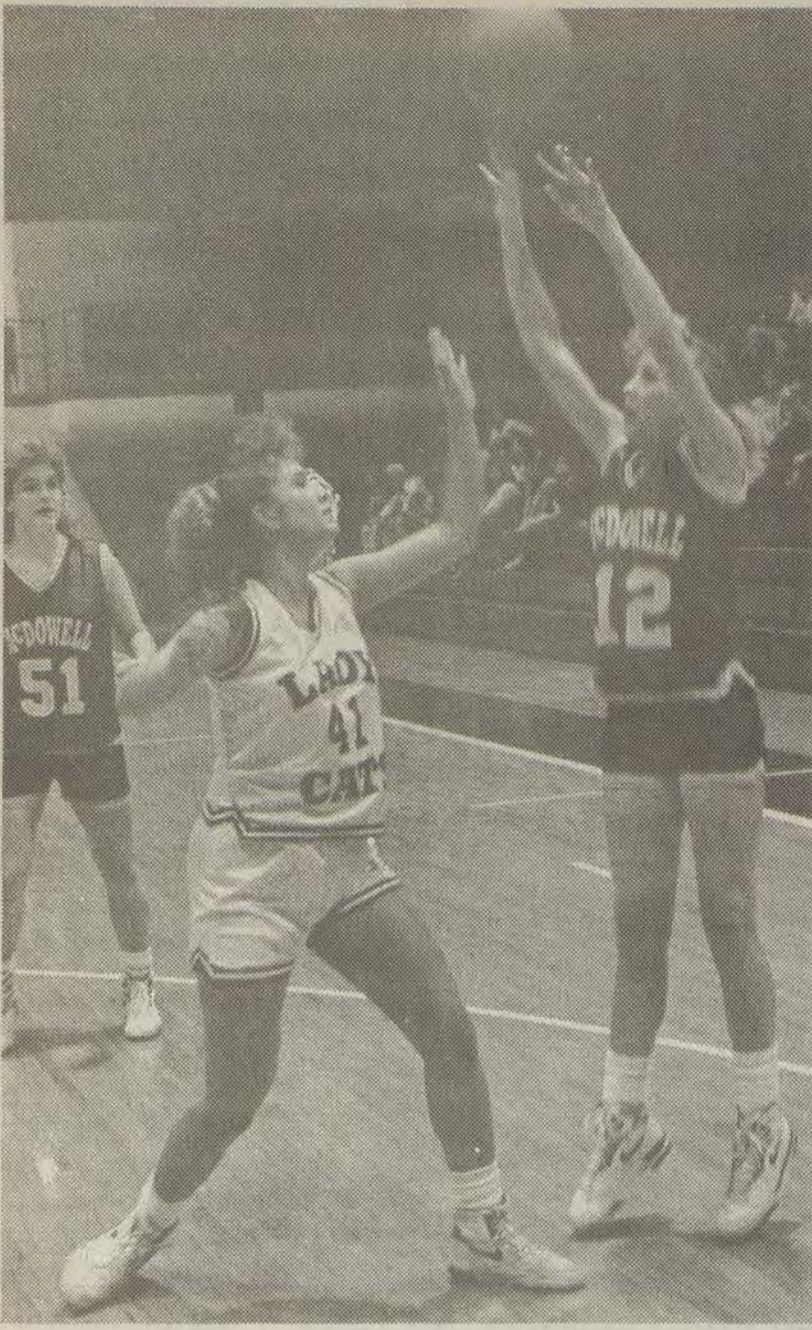

McDowell had a poor night at the charity stripe hitting only 21 of 43 free throws.

Betsy Layne plays at Elkhorn City tomorrow night (Thursday) and McDowell will return to the court Friday night at Allen Central. The Lady Devils are 2-2 overall and 1-1 in the conference.

the first stop. Larry Patton opened the Rebels' second with a bucket to cut it to one, but James Derossett canned two baskets for a 27-22 lead. After another basket by Goins, Prestonsburg ran off 10 straight points for a 37-24 lead as the Blackcat press started taking its toll on the Rebels. Chuck Laferty got into the scoring column for the Rebels with a three-pointer and a two-pointer to close to within eight, 39-31. Cory Reitz hit two free throws and Crisp hit a trey to send the Blackcats back out in front, 44-31. A three-point play by Crisp and a McGuire free throw gave the Blackcats their 48-36 halftime lead.

Prestonsburg's shaking of the second half jinx, continued with their good play in the third period. Allen Central's Todd Lucas was injured early in the third and had to leave the game for the evening. Lucas' injury was thought to be nothing more than a sprained ankle.

Prestonsburg won the game from the three-point range, hitting six to Allen Central's four. The Blackcats converted eight of 11 free throws compared to Allen Central's five of 13.

The Rebels, winners of their first three games, dropped their second of the season and Prestonsburg won for the first time after dropping hard losses to Elkhorn City and McDowell. The Blackcats are 1-2 on the young season and are 1-0 in the all important Floyd County Conference race.

Prestonsburg will travel to Pikeville for a non conference game with the Panthers of Coach Howard Wallen. Allen Central will continue the battle of the conference grind when they host conference leader McDowell (2-0) at Allen Central.

Moore scores 17...

Allen Central Lady Rebels Stun Elkhorn City, 66-55

The fact that the Elkhorn City Lady Cougars advanced to the final four of the Sweet Sixteen girls' basketball tournament last year did not seem to awe the Allen Central Lady Rebels as they knocked off the defending 15th Regional champions 66-55 at Allen Central last Thursday night.

Four Lady Rebs scored in double figures, led by Stacy "Mini" Moore's 17 points. It was Moore coming off the bench that sparked the Lady Rebels in the second half. Darnella Bradley, using some good moves inside, collected 15 points and Teresa Gibson, off to a slow start, rebounded with 13 points. Jenny Yates tossed in 11 points.

Allen Central used a weaving man to man offense in the fourth period to open things up for some easy shots in the final period. The Lady Rebels fell behind at the end of the third quarter 41-39 after leading most of the game. The Rebels got two three-point goals from Gibson as the number two guard came out of a mild slump. The two treys put the Lady Rebels back up by four, 45-41 and a three point play by Jenny Wiley made it 47-41 with 6:13 to go in the third. Allen Central led 50-43 entering the final quarter. The Lady Cougars' outstanding center, Samantha Cook, was forced to leave the game early in the third quarter. Cook was on offense when she turned and fell to the floor. The Lady Cougar center told the attending officials that her ankle just popped out. With the departure of Cook, Allen Central took the ball to the middle to Darnella Bradley who had no problem finding the basket. The injury to Cook, with 4:42 remaining in the third, was just another episode that the Elkhorn City team has had to suffer through.

"We have had key people getting hurt early this season," said Lady Cougar coach B.J. Elswick. "We've had Donna (Deel) and Dana (Deel) out with injuries and another starter that is about to come back. This really hurts when you're trying to get your team to play good basketball. If we ever get them all back healthy, we will be a very strong team."

After Cook went out, Bradley was hard to stop underneath as she scored five quick points.

In the fourth quarter, the Lady Cougars began chipping away at the Lady Rebels lead. Leading 52-43, a three-pointer by Julie Belcher made it 52-46 and, after "Mini" Moore scored a layup on steal, Belcher connected for another trey to make it 54-49.

Moore hit a three-pointer and Yates' two free throws made it 58-49. Two charity tosses by Gibson opened up a 62-51 lead for Allen Central as they realized that victory was theirs.

"Stacey (Mini Moore) is the most improved player we have," said Allen Central coach Bonita Compton. "The win tonight was the effort of the whole team. We were able to go inside and then back outside. We realize with Jo Ann (Conn) gone we have to go deeper on the bench. We can go at least eight deep without hurting ourselves."

"Allen Central is a good ball club," said Elswick. "They are a quick team and they don't make a lot of turnovers."

Protecting the basketball is probably one of the strengths of this year's team. Although young, they look like veterans handling the ball.

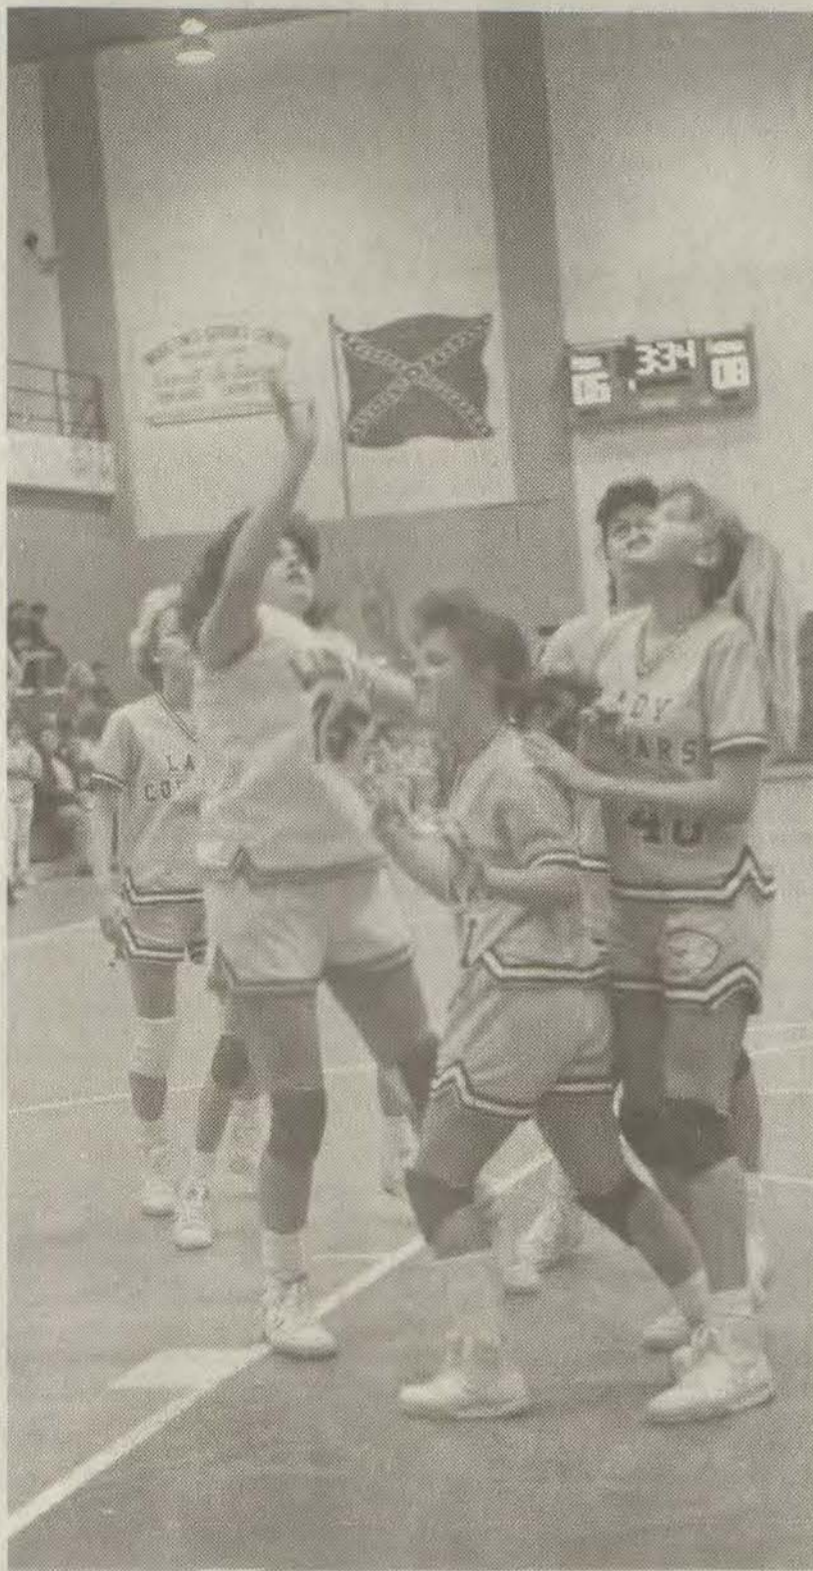

"Our three sophomores looked great tonight," said Compton of her "kiddie corps." "We won with a lot of desire and hustle."

Allen Central never seemed to run out of steam in running the floor with the more experienced Lady Cougars. Jenny Wiley, eight points, did an excellent job at the point guard spot in directing the club. Although sometimes unnoticed, those who come off the bench have contributed. One such player was Rhonda Leedy. Though she did not score, Leedy played a good floor game and rebounded well.

Belcher led the Lady Cougars in scoring with 20 points. Belcher hit five three-pointers in the game. Cook had 11 points before leaving the game as did Amber Francisco. Francisco had three treys in the contest.

Allen Central improved their record to 2-1 on the season and will host the McDowell Lady Daredevils Friday night at Allen Central.

The Goodin Brothers of Lebanon Oak Flooring Co. are accustomed to standing on solid ground. That's why they've kept Blue Cross and Blue Shield since 1953.

A lumber company has stood on this site since the 1890s. Lebanon Oak Flooring Co. itself has been in business since 1919. Today, Charles and Robert Goodin still turn Kentucky Oak into nationally renowned hardwood floors. And they still keep the health insurance company they've kept for 37 years—Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Kentucky.

"We take a paternalistic outlook toward our people. We want to take care of them. We want the best."

Sure, the Goodins have talked to other insurers in the past. Some companies have offered them lower rates than Blue Cross and Blue Shield. But Lebanon Oak Flooring keeps coming back.

"You can take your Blue Cross card and go to any doctor you want, anywhere you want." At one time, there were 13 companies producing hardwood floors in Kentucky. Today, there are only two. Lebanon Oak survived by offering the highest quality products at fair prices.

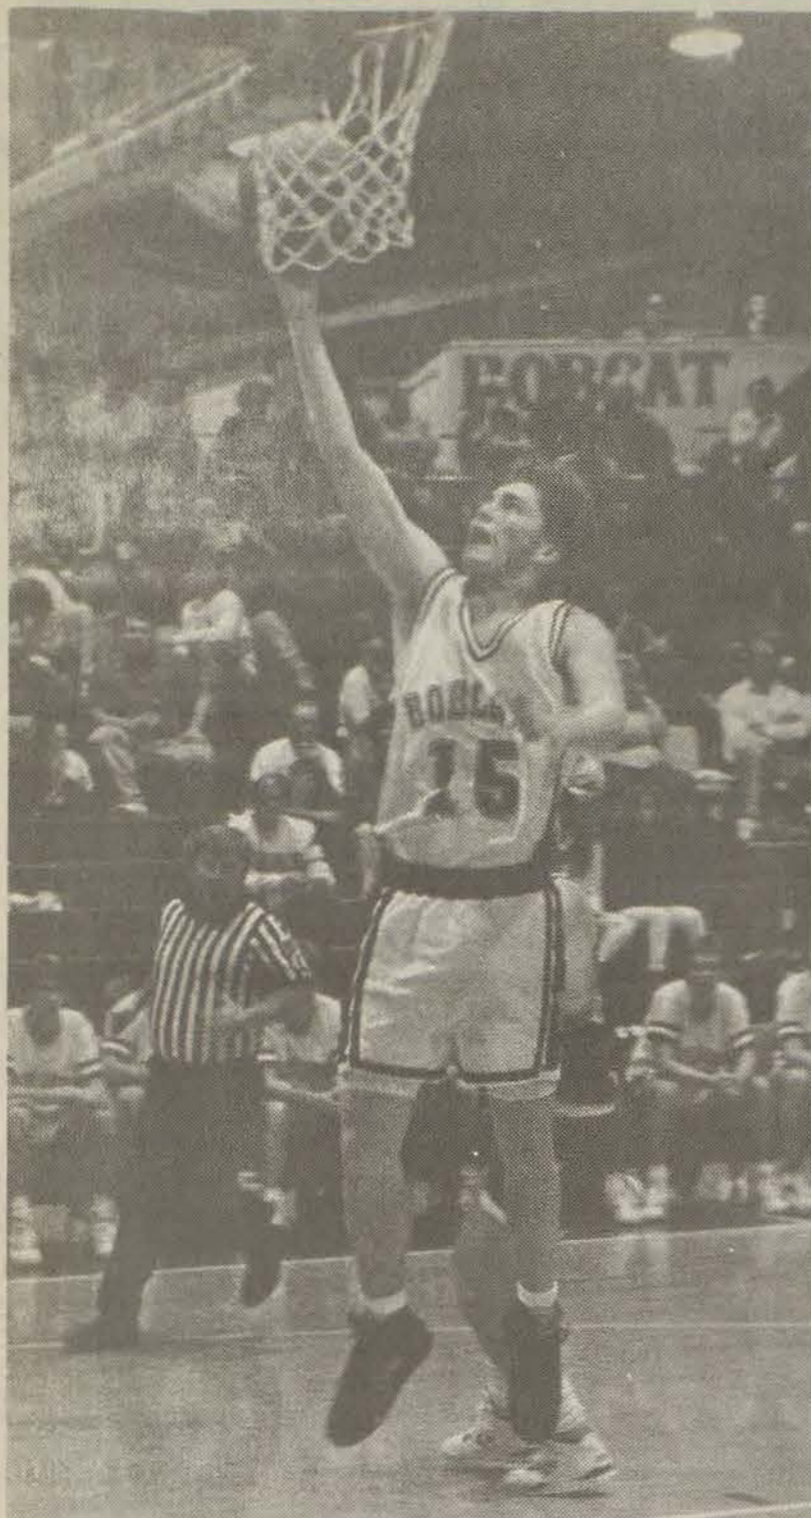

The same is true for Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Kentucky. Health companies have come and gone. But year in, year out, none have been able to match the quality, accessibility and service offered by Blue Cross and Blue Shield for over 50 years.

We're honored to have been the Lebanon Oak Flooring Company's health insurance company for 37 years. We'd be honored to work with your company for the next 37. For more information, call us or your local Blue Cross and Blue Shield representative.

We'll put you on the ground floor of Kentucky's most popular health insurance company.

Good isn't good enough anymore.

Lady Trojans Open With Win Over Millard, 54-41

Coach Donnie Daniels and the Lady Trojans of Wheelwright opened their 1990-91 basketball season on a winning note with a 54-41 win over the Lady Mustangs of Millard. Wheelwright, who was scheduled to begin their season at Mullins last week but saw their debut postponed because of "Earthquake Ernie", got 18 points from Debbie Allen and 10 points from Stephanie Allen in recording their first victory of the season.

Millard came into the game with a 1-1 record and was led in scoring by Salyers with 24 points. Mayo tossed in 11 for the Lady Mustangs.

Wheelwright held a slim two point lead 11-9 at the first stop and led by six at the half, 22-16.

and Hall's lay up. After two free throws by Gearheart at the 6:26 mark ended the Bobcats scoring drought, Hall hit another jumper and Stumbo added a three-pointer to stretch the score to 9-2.

McDowell was called for a five second violation on the inbounds play and turned the ball over to the Bobcats. Betsy Layne, being the gracious host they are, returned the favor and turned over the ball to McDowell.

Betsy Layne took command by scoring the next nine points to go ahead 11-9. Keith Hall put in a short jumper and rebound. Chris Newsome followed with a trey to tie the score for the first time. Gearheart capped off the rally with a layup to put the Bobcats in the lead for the first time.

Once McDowell got the ball inbounds, Doug Hopkins was fouled with eight seconds remaining. Hopkins canned the first and missed on the second.

Hall led McDowell in scoring with 27 points. Hall had one three-pointer and went six for six from the line. Duddleson tossed in 16 points with two three pointers. Stumbo and Barry Hall added nine points. All of Hall's points came on three-pointers and Stumbo also added a three-pointer.

The Bobcats desperation shot was short as the Daredevils held on for a 68-66 win.

Gearheart pumped in 29 points to lead the Bobcats. Phillip King had an off night with 12 points. Phillip was averaging 20 plus points per game. Newsome added 12 points. King pulled down 11 rebounds for the Bobcats and had four assists. Newsome had seven rebounds.

The score was tied six times with last time at 65-all. The lead exchanged hands four times with Hall's basket with 50 seconds left giving the Devils the lead for good.

Betsy Layne was 25 of 57 from the field to go with 28 rebounds and nine turnovers. The Bobcats turned the ball over only three times in the first half.

During the first 31 minutes the Bobcats led by as many as 13 points, twice at 33-20 and 35-22.

The Johnson Central Golden Eagles will host the Betsy Layne Bobcats Friday night at Johnson Central. This will be a big 15th regional matchup. McDowell plays at Allen Central Friday evening.

After Jody Coleman's rebound bucket with two minutes left in the half gave the Bobcats a 35-22 lead, the Devils spurred to move back into the game.

Stacy Hall hit two charity tosses; Mike Duddleson hit a three-pointer and Britt Stumbo capped the rally with two short jumpers to slice the Bobcat lead to 35-31 as the first half ended.

McDowell's biggest lead during the night came at 9-2 early in the first quarter. The Daredevils went out in front 4-0 on Duddleson's short jumper room holding an 48-41 advantage mostly on the strength of the three-point shooting of Bailey. The sharp-shooting forward hit four treys in the first half. Wheelwright held an 11 point lead — 54-43 — early in the third quarter. A basket by Richardson cut it to nine and the Pirates scored seven straight points to pull to within two, 54-52 with 3:20 to go. Wheelwright stayed in front of the Pirates by six and four points until, with seven seconds left in the third quarter, Greg Hall connected on two free throws to tie the game at 60-60. Paul Hall fired a desperation shot from mid court as the buzzer was sounding and was fouled. Hall connected on both charity shots to take their 62-60 lead into the fourth quarter.

Wheelwright falls to 2-1 and Neon improves to 1-3. Wheelwright will travel to Sheldon Clark Friday night to face the Cardinals.

Committee Names Inductees To College Athletic Hall Of Fame

Seven new names will be added to the Pikeville College Athletic Hall of Fame during Homecoming ceremonies next weekend. The Athletic Hall of Fame Committee made the selections based on the players' athletic excellence and contribution to the sports program at the college, according to committee chairperson Charles Francis.

"This is a great group of inductees," Francis said. "There is a lot of talent represented here, as well as fine examples of good sportsmanship."

Inductee Lynn Perry Cutright, a Pikeville College women's basketball star from 1982 through 1984 and now assistant coach of the women's team, transferred to Pikeville College as a junior from Lees Junior College. She was named to the 1984 Women's All-KIAC team, and was listed in the 1984 NAIA (National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics) Media Guide as having the tenth highest all-time high in field goal percentage, with 64 percent. She averaged 10 points and eight rebounds per game.

Danny Ellis Moses of Pikeville played basketball at Pikeville College from 1974 through 1976. He was named All-KIAC (Kentucky Intercollegiate Athletics Association) three years in a row, and led the team in field goal percentages with 64 percent during his first year. In two and a half seasons at Pikeville College, he racked up 1,260 points, including 26 rebounds in one game against Oakland City in 1975. He is now a teacher in the Pike County schools and president of the Pikeville Independent Basketball League.

Garrett Mullins graduated from Pikeville College in 1959 after an outstanding basketball career. He averaged 17 points per game and as a senior helped lead his team to a KIAC tournament victory, in what was only the Bears' second year in the conference. The team, which averaged 93 points per game that year, was ranked second in the nation offensively.

Mullins joined the U.S. Army in 1960, and in 1965 went to work for Wheelabrator Corp. in Mishawaka, Indiana, where he retired as a product manager in 1987. He lives in South Bend, Indiana.

Raymond Kendrick Ricketts played baseball from 1959 until 1962 at Pikeville College. A powerful hitter, with a 1962 batting average of .359, an intimidating pitcher and a top infielder and outfielder, he and teammate Paul Setser led their team to winning seasons every year they played. "Paul Setser and Raymond Ricketts were the best combination to play Pikeville College baseball," their coach, Paul Butcher, said years later. "One would catch the first game while the other one pitches, and vice versa in the second game." Setser was inducted into the Hall of Fame last year. Ricketts taught and coached at Jenkins High School for four years before moving to North Carolina, where he has worked 25 years for the U.S. Forest Service.

David Rowe Jr. graduated from Pikeville College in 1982 after four seasons on the Bears basketball team. A 6'6" center, Rowe started every Bears game for four years. He was named to all-conference and all-district teams his junior and senior years, and won the team's best offensive player award in 1981. He now teaches business and mathematics at Johns Creek High School in Pike County.

Vern (Pops) Lewis Woods played basketball, baseball and golf for three years at Pikeville College, from 1958 through 1961, but is remembered for his skills on the basketball court, where he scored 1,240 points in three seasons. He was named to the 1960 all-district and all KIAC teams, after a season field goal percentage of 59 percent. Woods now works for the Dayton, Ohio, city schools vocational education-work study program, and lives in Dayton.

One inductee was named posthumously: Steve Benedict, who played basketball and baseball at Pikeville College in 1935 and 1936, died on December 3, 1983 at the age of 67. After a stirring high school basketball career at Virgie, he had turned down an offer by Coach Adolph Rupp to play basketball for the University of Kentucky Wildcats, choosing instead to attend Pikeville College.

After his freshman year, Benedict joined a local coal company baseball team for the summer before he was to report to the St. Louis Browns training camp in San Antonio. Two weeks before he was to leave for Texas, he broke an ankle while sliding into second base, and forfeited his professional baseball career. He returned to Pikeville College and basketball, where he continued to be the team's leading scorer. After graduation and a tour of duty with the Army in Europe, he went to work for Inland Steel Company in Wheelwright. He continued to play baseball with the company team for many years, and served as a basketball referee in several counties.

The inductees will be welcomed to campus with an awards banquet on Friday, Dec. 14, at 6:30 p.m. in the college cafeteria. Alumni and friends wishing to attend may purchase tickets for $7.50.

On Saturday, Dec. 15, President and Mrs. William H. Owens will host a brunch in their home for the inductees, and then, during halftime of the Bear's game at 3 p.m., the inductees will be presented and introduced.

For more information about the Hall of Fame or Homecoming Weekend activities, call Phillip M. Blake at Pikeville College, 432-9326.

LADY FLASHES WIN SECTION TITLE OVER DUFF LADY BULLDOGS

The Martin Lady Purple Flashes did something they have been doing the past seven years — they won the Section 1 girl's championship. Martin had won the title the past six seasons.

Veronica McKinney and Krystal Floyd combined for 24 points — 12 each — to lead the Lady Flashes to a 48-28 victory over the Lady Bulldogs of Duff.

It was all Martin in the first quarter as they rolled out to a 16-3 lead by scoring 10 straight points to break open a 6-3 game. Tiffany Francis and Jamie Webb had first period baskets for Duff with Francis hitting two field goals. Floyd scored four points for the Lady Flashes.

Floyd picked up where she left off in the second period by scoring the first two baskets for Martin and gave the Lady Flashes a 24-7 lead. Martin moved out to a 32-12 halftime lead.

The Lady Bulldogs scored eight straight points in the fourth quarter to close the gap some. Webb's basket made it 44-21. Francis responded with another bucket and Nicole Clark tossed in a shot and it was 44-25. Francis' second bucket in the run made it 44-27. That was as close as the Lady Bulldogs could get in falling 48-28.

Kathy Hall scored four points for Martin with Kathy Conn collecting four. Melissa Mullins tossed in four points. Jennifer Mullins had two as did Jeana Hall.

For Duff, Lucianna Francis led the Lady Bulldogs with nine points and Tiffany Francis added seven. Nicole Clark had four and Jamie Webb finished with three. Charla Hall scored two and Katie Bradley had one.

MCA FALCONS VS DUFF BULLDOGS

A new team has joined the Section 1 lineup as the Mountain Christian Academy Falcons became the fourth team to take part in the Sectional 1 tournament. With the consolidation of Wayland and Garrett grade schools, the tournament field was dropped to three. The Falcons became the fourth member this year.

The initial year in the tournament was not so kind to the Falcons as they dropped a 53-31 game to the Bulldogs of Duff.

Jeremy Hall had 23 points for the Bulldogs in leading his team. Donnie Combs added 14 points and several players ended up with two each.

David Turner led the Falcons with nine points and Brandon Moore tossed in six. Daniel Risner and Slone had four.

Maytown Wildcats

Martin got 32 points from Toby Robinson and Byron Gearheart to defeat the Maytown Wildcats 61-40 in the second game of the Section 1 tournament at Wayland.

Robinson and Gearheart each tossed in 16 points and Jason Bevins added 11 for the Purple Flash. Kevin Stumbo had four points and Clayton Tackett and Brian Conn had two points and one point respectively.

Maytown was led by Nick Hagan's 12 points. Chris Martin added seven and Shawn Robinson had four.

Maytown Lady Wildcats VS. Duff Lady Bulldogs

The Maytown Lady Wildcats entered the tournament as the defending girls' champions in Floyd County. This year they will not be able to defend their title after being beaten by the Lady Bulldogs of Duff, 26-21.

Last year the Lady Wildcats stunned the basketball fans in Floyd County with the upset the highly regarded John M. Stumbo Lady Mustangs, who were unbeaten until the championship game. This year the Lady Cats were not as fortunate as they have had to struggle this season.

Lucianna Francis scored 14 points for Duff in leading her team to victory. Jamie Webb, Tiffany Francis and Amy Crisp each scored four points.

For Maytown, Jessica Prater's six points led them in scoring. Lisa Stumbo had five points and Crystal Martin added three. Drema Kilgore and Angela Castle each scored two points each. Jennifer Prater had one point.

MARTIN DEFEATS DUFF IN CHAMPIONSHIP GAME, 69-55

The Martin Purple Flash placed three players in double figures to offset the 34 point performance of Jeremy Hall and to hand the Duff Bulldogs a 69-55 defeat in the finals of the Section 1 tournament played at Wayland.

Byron Gearheart scored 26 points, Toby Robinson added 18 and Jason Bevins totaled 17 for the Purple Flash.

Hall, after a slow start in the first half, turned things on in the second. The high scoring forward tossed in 27 points in the second half after only getting seven the first.

This was the third meeting of the year for the two schools, with Martin taking two of the three. Duff had beaten Martin 55-52 the last time the two schools met at the Wayland gym.

Martin jumped out to a 8-2 lead on two field goals by Gearheart and Robinson. Jason Osborne scored two for Duff. Donnie Combs connected on a jumper and Jeremy Osborne's basket made it 8-8. Gearheart hit two free throws and Kevin Stumbo's layup gave Martin a 12-8 first quarter lead.

Jason Bevins took over in the second quarter for Martin as the big center hit a field goal opening the quarter. After Combs' bucket kept the lead at six, Bevins powered his way to the basket for a bucket and was fouled. He connected on the charity toss and gave Martin a nine point lead.

Hall scored his first points of the game when he hit a free throw to make it 21-11 Martin. After a layup by Robinson, the big forward hit two more charity tosses and sank a jumper to make it 25-15 Martin. The Purple Flash led by 10 at the half, 29-19.

Martin scored the first two baskets in the third on a rebound bucket by Bevins and a jumper by Gearheart to take a 14 point lead, 33-19.

Duff cut the lead to eight, 44-36, behind the scoring of Hall. Hall had 13 points in the third period as he began to shake the Martin defense. Still, Martin held to a 10 point lead at the end of the third.

A basket by Hall made it 46-38 and Gearheart's basket put Martin back up by 10. Hall hit — 48-40. Robinson's basket made it 50-40 and Hall came right back with another score to cut it to eight. Martin ran out to a 12 point lead, 58-46 on two free throws by Bevins.

Hall scored three points as the lead went to nine, 58-49. A three point play by Gearheart and a Stumbo free throw made it 62-49.

With Duff down by nine, 64-55, Martin ran off five unanswered points to win the contest 69-55

Donnie Combs had nine points for Duff and Jason Osborne tossed in eight. Both Donovan Hall and Jeremy Osborne had four each.

For Martin, Stumbo finished with three. Adam Coleman had two as did Kevin Robinson. Thomas Jenkins scored on a free throw.

Martin will face Auxier, runners-up in Section 4 tonight at 8 p.m. Duff takes on Section 4 winner, Adams tomorrow night at 6:45 p.m.

McDowell ★ Melvin ★ Osborne

MELVIN COUGARS
SECTION TWO BOYS CHAMPIONS

MELVIN BUILDS EARLY LEAD AND HOLDS OFF McDOWELL

The Melvin Cougars scored the first 10 points of the game and rolled out to a 24-4 first quarter lead over the McDowell Daredevils in the finals of Section 2 play Saturday afternoon at McDowell.

Marty Johnson scored 34 points for his team in leading them to victory. Jason Rogers hit double figures for the winners also.

"We have come a long ways,"

Melvin plays the runner-up of Section 3 tonight at 5:30 p.m. McDowell will face the winner of Section 3.

said Melvin mentor, Tim Eads, "and we still have a long ways to go. I am very proud of this group of boys. Everybody contributed and it was a good team effort."

Establishing of early inside dominance made the difference for Melvin. Johnson, once he got the ball down low, was nearly unstoppable. McDowell turned the ball over on three of their first four possessions as they opened nervously. Melvin applied a pressure defense that caused all kinds of problems for the Daredevils.

"We tried to pick up the defense some," said Eads. "The kids worked hard and we wanted to get everyone into the game."

When the large lead was established, Eads began to bring in the bench, giving some of his other players some playing time.

Melvin led at the half 35-12. McDowell started to get in the flow of the game late in the third as they outscored Melvin 16-4 to close to within 19 points, 47-28. Ryan Hamilton triggered the comeback along with Brooks Stumbo. Melvin then hit a field goal and a free throw by Johnson to make it 48-30. McDowell then ran off nine straight points to make it 48-39 with 2:28 to go. A 11-4 run by Melvin put the game out of reach for McDowell.

Besides Johnson's 34, Rogers ended up with 10 points and Justin Ray, who played a very strong floor game, added five. Phillip Johnson, who Coach Eads says gives a 110 percent, scored four.

Hamilton's 16 points led the Daredevils. Stumbo finished with 10 and Scott Little had five. Four points each for Mike Stevens and Terrace Mullins. Darren Combs and Scott Kidd had two each.

McDOWELL SHAKES UPSET- MINDED OSBORNE LADY EAGLES

To tell the Osborne Eagles there was no way to stay with the McDowell Elementary Lady Daredevils, would have been in vain. The Osborne team had McDowell on the ropes and let them get away in dropping a 32-26 game in the championship of the Section 2 finals.

Osborne led most of the way as McDowell found it difficult to find the basket. Osborne held a 16-9 halftime lead over McDowell.

In the third quarter, Candi Hamilton hit a bucket to make it 16-11. Tina Newman came back with a field goal and an 18-11 lead for Osborne. McDowell then ran off seven unanswered points to tie the score at 18-18. Jenny Meade followed with a field goal and Tina Hall intercepted a pass and scored. Meade's free throw gave Osborne a 23-18 lead.

Buckets by Kathy Stumbo and Crystal Newsome closed the gap to one, 23-22, at the third stop.

Crystal Mullins opened the fourth with a bucket to take a 25-22 lead for the Lady Eagles and then McDowell took over and ran off five straight points and took a 27-25 lead they never gave up.

Amanda Roberts led McDowell with 12 points and Crystal Newsome had nine. Nikki Reed and Candi Hamilton scored four each.

Tina Hall led the Osborne team with 12 points and Jenny Meade finished with eight. Crystal Mullins scored four.

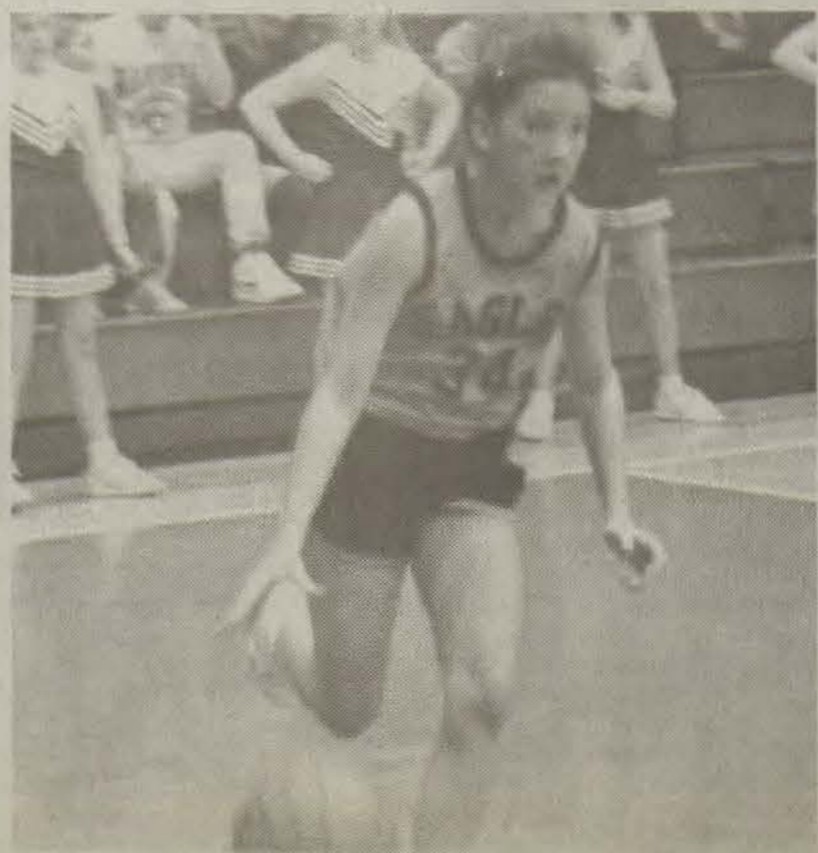

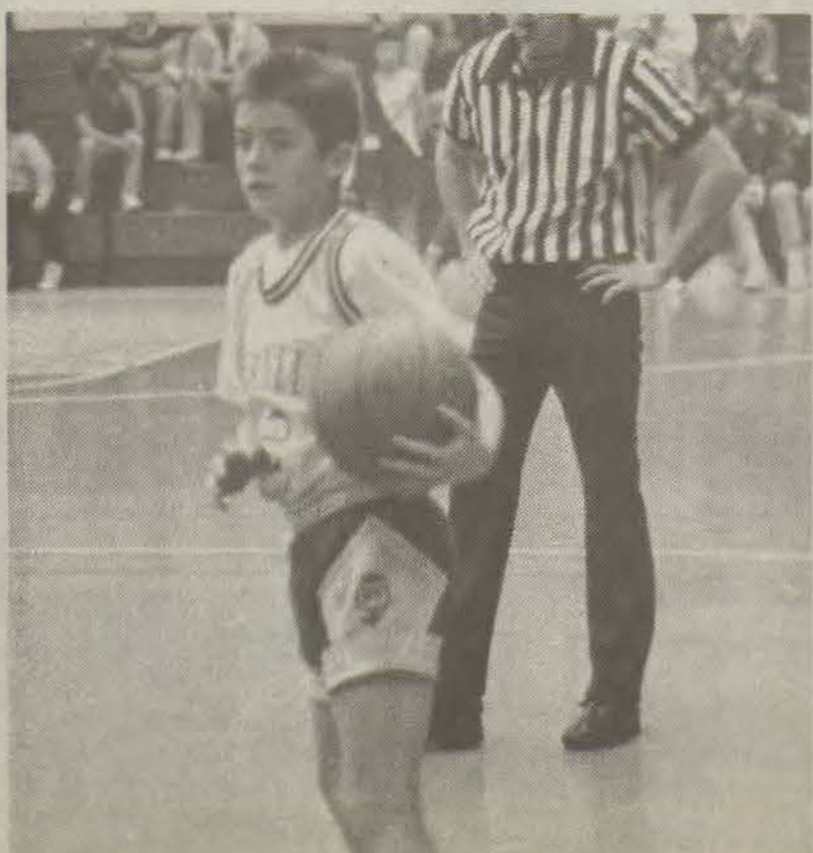

McDowell will face the runner-up of the Section 3 sectional tonight at 6:45 p.m. Osborne will take on the winner of Section 3 on Friday, December 14 at 6 p.m.

BETSY LAYNE BOBCCATS VS. PRATER COUGARS

Derrick Newsome—Stumbo Mustangs

Betsy Layne outscored the Prater Cougars 6-2 in the final 2:39 seconds of the game to defeat the Cougars 38-35 in semifinal action. Prater held a 33-32 lead after Brent Akers had given Prater its first and only lead on two free throws.

Betsy Layne answered with four straight points to take a 36-33 lead with 1:09 to go. Randy Wallen swished a short jumper and then followed that with two free throws with 1:09 left. After a Prater time out, Ronnie Hamilton tossed in a bucket to make it 36-35 with just 30 seconds on the clock.

After both teams traded turnovers and a pair of Prater fouls, both teams used a timeout. Betsy Layne in-bounded the ball and Jason Hall clinched the win with a rebound basket with three seconds left in the game.

Betsy Layne held a six point advantage with 4:19 to go but the Cougars did not quit as Hamilton's basket made it 32-28. Hamilton then connected on the front end of a two shot foul and then scored again with 3:21 to go to make it 32-31 Betsy Layne. Then Akers hit the two free throws for their first and only lead.

Betsy Layne held a 6-2 first quarter lead on baskets by Wallen, Jason Hall and Jeremy Rogers. After a Hamilton basket at the beginning of the second quarter to make it 6-4, Mike Hunt hit a shot and Akers answered for Prater. Hunt scored again and Hamilton answered. Hunt hit a jumper for his sixth straight point and Hamilton hit one of two free throws for a 12-9 game. Betsy Layne went five up on a field goal by Rogers and Ryan Newsome followed with a basket for a seven point advantage, 16-9. Betsy Layne was on top 18-11 at the half.

Leading 22-16 early in the third period, Betsy Layne saw the determined Cougars come back and tie the game at 22-22 on three field goals by Hamilton. Wesley Frazier connected from outside and Rogers followed with a field goal to put the Bobcats back up by four, 26-22. Akers scored and Rogers came back with a goal to give Betsy Layne a 28-24 lead going into the final quarter.

Rogers led the Bobcats with 12 points. Hunt finished with eight and Hall had six. Wallen netted six points in the game for Betsy Layne. Frazier, Newsome and Timmy Parks each had two points.

Ronnie Hamilton's 20 points led the Cougars. Akers tossed in 13 points and Brandon Combs added two.

Stumbo And Betsy Layne To Battle In Section Finals

With the Section 3 finals scheduled for Tuesday night (last night) the results were unavailable at press time. In the finals of the tournament, John M. Stumbo and Betsy Layne were to square off against each other. The winner of Section 3 was to face McDowell, runner up of Section 2. The loser would face a good Melvin team, winners of Section 2.

In what could be the best girls' game in the county, the Betsy Layne Lady Bobcats went up against a very good Harold Lady Red Devils team. The winner will face Osborne in the bottom bracket of the county tournament and the runner up is pitted against McDowell, winners of Section 2.

Other previously played games through Monday night:

HAROLD LADY DEVILS VS PRATER LADY COUGARS

The Harold Lady Red Devils scored 11 points in the first quarter as they held the Prater Lady Cougars scoreless and went on to post a 40-25 victory in Section 3 tournament action at Betsy Layne Monday night.

Kelli Stanley tossed in 12 points to lead the Harold girls to their win and Jessica Hamilton added 10 points.

Stanley got the scoring underway for Harold with a field goal and Melena Gearheart followed with a score for a 4-0 lead. Hamilton hit a bucket and the front end of a two shot foul for a 7-0 score. Gearheart scored and was fouled on the play. Gearheart missed the free throw but Stanley hit just before the buzzer for a 11-0 lead.

Harold scored the first 11 points of the second quarter to go on top 22-0 before Heather Nelson broke the Prater drought with a field goal. Hamilton had four points in the second period and Jennifer Damron added two. Jessica Johnson finished with eight points for Harold and both Gearheart and Donita Kidd had two points.

Nelson took game scoring honors with 16 points. Christine Boyd added five for Prater. Myra Akers had one point and Carrie Music scored three. Prater hit only seven of 20 free throws while didn't do much better with six of 19.

In the first round of the Section 3 grade school basketball tournament, the Stumbo Lady Mustangs fell to the Betsy Layne Lady Cats 29-12.

In the second quarter, a basket by Misty Clark and two free throws by Clark put the Lady Cats on top 10-4. Jamie Ratcliff scored her eighth point and Clark tossed in a field goal as the Lady Cats took command of the game and led 14-4.

Each team turned the ball over on their next two possessions and Tackett hit again for a 14-6 game. Neither team could hold on to the basketball as a comedy of errors followed and the half ended with Betsy Layne on top 14-6.

Betsy Layne rolled out to a 23-8 lead early in the third to put the game away.

Ratcliff led the Betsy Layne team with 11 points and Clark finished with 10. Jessica Hamilton scored four points as did Tara Kidd. Betsy Layne hit seven of 18 free throws.

Allen ★ Adams Middle ★ Auxier

Adams Overthrows Auxier For Championship

Adams Middle School was the site for this year's Section 4 Elementary basketball tournament. The Middle School, in its first year of operation, has one of the finest facilities in Eastern Kentucky. Four games were played at the Middle School, with the Adams Blackcats coming away with a convincing 72-25 win over the surprising Auxier Hornets coached by Jerome Greathouse.

Adams placed four players in double figures in taking the championship game. Thomas Ratliff paced the winners with 18 points and Jason Spurlock tossed in 13. Larry Morris and Jason Spencer each added 10 points. Brett James scored nine points off the bench for Adams.

Adams outscored the Hornets 26-4 in the fourth period to put the game away.

It was all but over in the first with a 16-6 first quarter lead for Adams, where Spurlock scored eight of his 10 points. Adams held a 32-13 lead at the half.

Adams coach Jack Goodman began emptying his bench as he played all the players. In the fourth period, James came in to score eight points and T. Tom Slone tossed in four. Robbie Risner had four points and Bennett Allen netted three in the final stanza.

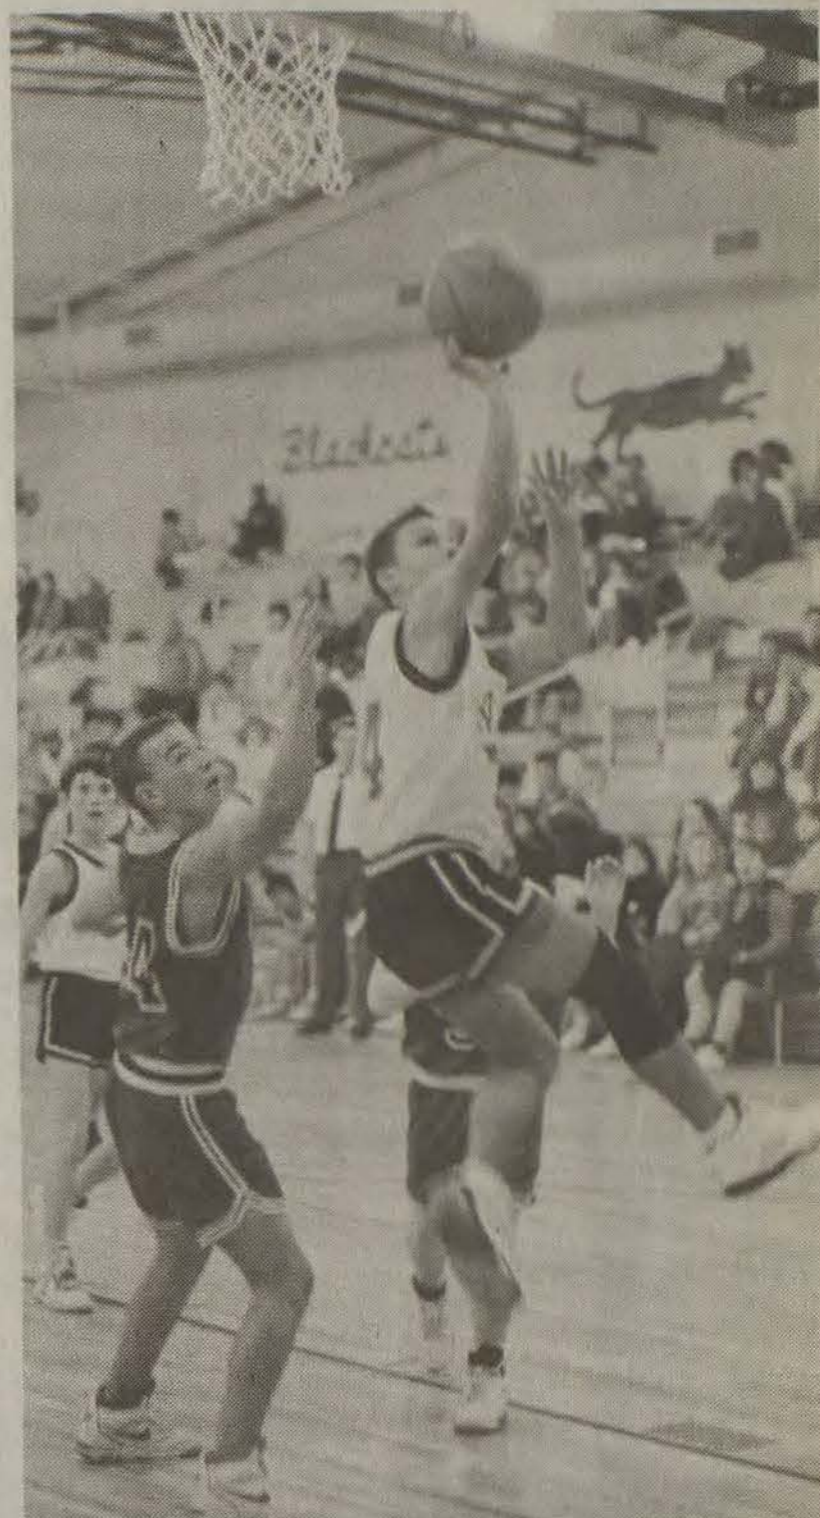

Jason Burke led the Hornets in scoring, as he has done all year, with 15 points. Ervin Osborne added six. Catrell Farler and Kevin Slone added two each.

Adams will advance into the County Tournament to face the Duff Bulldogs on Thursday, December 13 at 6:45 p.m.

Auxier will take on the Purple Flash of Martin on Wednesday night (tonight) in a scheduled 8 p.m. start.

Allen Lady Eagles vs. Adams Lady Blackcats

In the championship game in the girl's division, Gay Hatfield's Adams Lady Blackcats rolled past the Allen Lady Eagles 40-17 to win the Section 4 title.

Jamie Clay scored 15 points to lead the Lady Cats to their victory. Maria Hicks had a good outing by scoring 11 points and Jenny Morrison had six. Both Allison Allen and Crystal Layne tossed in four points.

Allen was handicapped due the absence of Jana Bates, their leading scorer. The Lady Eagles got into some foul trouble early with Jennifer Hunt and Amanda Spurlock fouling out.

Adams used their height advantage over the smaller Lady Eagles and coasted to the win.

Adams held a 17-6 halftime lead and outscored the Allen Lady Eagles 17-6 in the third quarter to take a 34-12 lead.

Jennifer Hunt led the Lady Eagles in scoring with eight points. Clodeen Prater added four and Shalena Lewis scored three. Tiffany Warrix had two points.

Adams will face the Duff Lady Bulldogs Friday, December 14 at 7:15 p.m. Allen goes against Martin, winners of Section 1, in a 8 p.m. game on Thursday night (tomorrow night).

Auxier Hornets vs. Allen Eagles

In what was a barnburner, the Auxier Hornets got 21 points from Jason Burke and 16 points from Ervin Osborne to post a 49-46 victory over the Allen Eagles.

Auxier, 10-7, held a slim, two-point lead at the first stop, 13-11 and led at the half, 24-17. The 11-6 run in the second period proved to be the difference for the Hornets as the Eagles pulled together in the second half and played some tough basketball. Matt Goble, who had just seven points at the half, tossed in 12 second half points to lead an Allen comeback. Goble finished with 19 points. The Eagles were the defending county champions, but will be replaced with another team as they end their season with two wins and nine losses.

Tyron Wright had eight points for Auxier in the win and Kevin Slone added four.

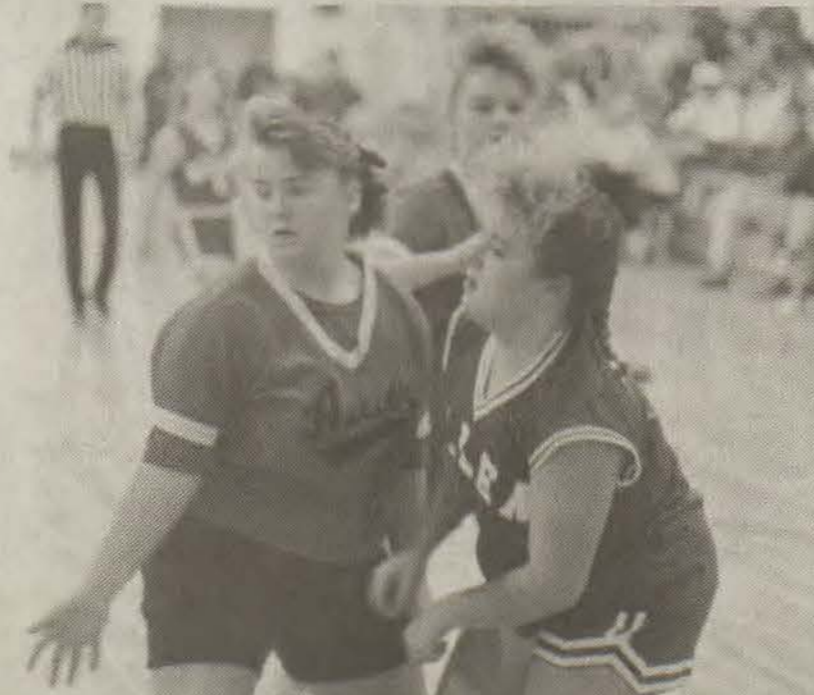

Besides Goble's 19, Cory Patton tossed in eight and Tim Lewis added six. Wesley Samons had five and Jason Williams four. R. Lafferty scored two for Allen.

How To Make Your Tube Jigs Float

For several years tube jigs—those short, hollow plastic worms with the stringy squid-like tails—have been among the most productive bass lures available. They have accounted for several major tournament victories, and are now part of every pro's fishing arsenal.

Former world champion Charlie Reed, a member of the Johnson Outboards Pro Staff and an avid user of tube jigs, has perfected his own method of fishing them: he floats them on a Carolina rig.

"It's just something a little different to put in front of the fish," laughs Reed. "The Carolina rigged lizard certainly catches a lot of bass, so I experimented with a tube jig rigged much the same way, and it catches bass, too."

The Carolina rig normally consists of a lure tied on a four to five foot leader behind a heavy one-ounce slip sinker and a swivel. While the weight bounces along the bottom, the trailing lure, often a worm, grub, or lizard, crawls or floats behind it.

Such a rig is particularly effective in grass or current. It's also very easy to fish, for all that's required are simple casting and reeling.

"When I fish a tube jig this way," explains the Johnson pro, "I want it to float up above the bottom where it looks more like a minnow."

"I push a small half-inch piece of Styrofoam up into the head of the jig, which gives it the flotation I want.

Then I insert a light wire 1/0 hook through both the head of the jig and the foam.

"I put a one-ounce slip sinker on my regular fishing line, tie on a swivel, and then use a four or five foot leader of light four, six or eight pound test line for the jig."

The result, says Reed, is an extremely natural-looking lure that is also weedless. He fishes it around vegetation, rocks, brush, points and channels.

"The tube jigs are basically clear water, light line lures developed for fishing in the Western states," explains Reed. "Of course, they work well anywhere, primarily because they're very slow-sinking, worm-like lures that look natural in the water."

"They can be rigged many different ways, and I'm sure we'll think of new ways to rig them in the months ahead. I'm not the first to rig one Carolina style, but I probably use it that way more often than most anglers."

Reed doesn't do anything special when fishing his tube jigs this way. He usually moves the lure with a lot of rod tip action so it jumps and darts around cover.

"If you're fishing broad flats and points, you don't even have to do that much," he says. "Just cast and slowly wind it back. The lure and the bass generally do the rest."

Fishing clubs and other groups can get free-loan films from Solana Studios, the film distribution office at Outboard Marine Corporation.

Adams Middle School cheerleaders won first place in section four and traveled to Frankfort to the state competition to place fourth.

Small World

by Aileen Hall

The lecture

The Methodist Hospital Department of Psychiatry in Pikeville is sponsoring a series of seminars intended to help us cope with the everyday perplexities of life. They are free to anyone interested and planned for the noon hour so that working people may bring a sandwich and eat a bite of lunch as they listen. You might call it mind and body nourishment.

The most recent session was held Wednesday, Dec. 5, with Linda Gies, program director of Psychiatric Services for the hospital, serving as speaker. Since the title was "Coping With Holiday Stress" it seemed imperative that I go. In fact, had it just been "Coping," I would have tried to find a front row seat.

Linda talked about "The Twelve Pitfalls of Christmas" and number one was waiting until the last minute to shop. I should have had that advice weeks ago. It was a little like closing the barn door after the horse was gone, but hopefully there will be other Christmases and other opportunities to apply this truth.

Even while she was still talking, I decided that as soon as Easter is over next year I will begin my Christmas shopping. At least I'm early with a New Year's resolution.

Another topic mentioned was overspending, and I found myself wondering if the leopard can change its spots. If we've waited too long to shop, we'll likely wind up paying any price we can dig up to have some suitable gift for that special person — but the wish to please will be more important than the gift itself.

Linda said, "If you remember your most favorite Christmas, chances are it wasn't the one when you got the most expensive present. She was right on target about that one.

I have many favorites but a special one from my childhood occurred when I was in second grade at Prater Creek Elementary School. Caney Creek College had sent gifts to all the children in school and mine was a little celluloid doll. I was happy with it and on Christmas Eve Santa left an identical one in my stocking.

"Oh boy!" I thought, "Now I've got twins." It took many years for me to figure why I couldn't find the matching doll, but our family was together and it was great fun.

The topic of overeating was one I could really relate to, for Thanksgiving is almost a month in the past and I still can't take a breath. For the first time in months we had our family together and, for three evenings in a row, we had a dinner with twelve people at the table. How could I not eat?

For times like that we always eat too much, but no matter how good it tastes or how much we enjoy, as soon as we've swallowed the last bite the guilt sets in. When I put a pat of butter on those delicious hot rolls my mother-in-law makes, it's like pure ecstasy — at least while it's in my mouth.

The nearest comparison I could make to that is having a soft cool breeze blow across your face, while all the time your toe is caught in a mousetrap. It's such a mixture of pleasure and guilt.

Linda's advice on overeating was the best part of the lecture. She said, "Don't be too hard on yourself. Just realize it's going to happen and that you can diet another time." I decided to pass this little gem on to you. Now, doesn't that endear me to your heart?

Linda's lecture included twelve points and I meant to comment on them all. I've only mentioned three but my typewriter ribbon is wearing thin — which is more than I can say for myself.

What's right? What's wrong?

Not to drive this earthquake deal into the ground (pardon the pun), but on Friday before the quake was predicted to hit, our children were shown a video tape at their school of an actual earthquake occurring and the damage it wrought.

Our youngest daughter, Tiffany, has since refused to sleep alone; the laundry room light stays on; her questions are endless.

During the daylight hours this quake doesn't seem to enter into her mind, but, boy, when 9 p.m. rolls around, the questions erupt like a volcano.

Thank the Good Lord above the earthquake did not hit.

We all want to be prepared for these things, but let's face it, who knows but the Lord when this quake is really going to hit.

Was it wrong to prepare, call off school, show our children what could happen? Was it right?

Well, for what it's worth, I believe it was right.

Although it can't be predicted when or where this fault line is supposed to crumble, we are somewhat more knowledgeable of what may happen and what we can do.

What now, do we carry our flashlights with us daily? Do our pictures stay on the floor instead of on the walls?

Do we, as Susan says, "wear our quake clothes in case we have to run for higher ground?"

No, I don't think so.

Every person is different in their belief of wrong and right. If I had the chance to prepare my children again for this December 3rd prediction, I believe that I would have chosen to only tell my seven-year-old in words of what may or may not be, instead of having her view the destructive power of an earthquake that occurred somewhere else.

Let's face it, this thing is scary enough for adults.

At any rate, I'm glad it's over. Maybe, the old cliché "out of sight, out of mind," will take over her thoughts and soon she'll be back in bed snug as a bug.

On a lighter note, I feel that I have to share my thoughts on turning thirty.

UCK!

I never really thought birthdays actually affected a person until now. I've always heard 30 is the rough one, but I really never expected it to be. Then it happened. Only two weeks ago, Susan, Trena, and I went to lunch, and as always with this gang, we laughed constantly.

I was driving back to the office, listening to these two carry on as usual, laughing till tears came to my eyes.

It hit! I felt them, they're here, whatever you want to call them, crows feet, wrinkles, they both sound gross, but they're here.

Trying to inconspicuously hold the wrinkles down, as I laughed hysterically, it wasn't working.

Wow, this is 30. It hit me like a size 10 and a half men's Army boot right smack dab in the face.

Then I began to nit pick, my hands don't look like mine anymore. Oh, No! they look more like my Mom's, (Sorry Mom).

My daughter even looks older, she is. Oh my goodness, she's 10. I actually have a 10-year-old daughter.

As the week progressed, I became less cheerful and more hateful, (just ask Jeff).

What happened with, Like a fine wine, you improve with age?

I'm falling apart here. My hair doesn't want to do anything. My bones don't want to get up at 6 a.m. either. My eyes open, but my feet won't move.

I'm dreading this. I'm afraid I'm going to have to replace my Colgate with Polygrip, my Skin-So-Soft with BenGay, and give up my Pepsi's for Metamucil.

Oh well, Thank God it's all available, even Loving Care.

I've decided I'll just stock up on Oil of Olay and enjoy it. Till next week, Happy Holidays.

Adventures on the Eastern high rocks

by Barbara P. Martin

The Eastern High Rocks have always been of great interest to the people in our town. Each one of us feels as if he personally owns them. Some even climb back to the rocks to have annual adventures.

Easter Sunday and Christmas are dates for our family pilgrimages, since that is the time when most of the family is home.

The pilgrimage began when we were taken there by our parents. When we grew older, we invited others to go with us.

Married couples took food to feed the teenagers. Once, we cooked chicken on a fire made from wood gathered on the rocks. It was delicious! The wood smoke blended into the chicken and flavored it extra special.

Sidney and Marcella Bailey with Marcella's brother, Elmer Rowe and his wife, were the chaperons that time. They cooked the food, and supervised the climb.

In recent years, some concern has been expressed about children going to the rocks alone, but as far as I know, there has never been any accidents from visits there.

Once, my brother, Creed Lafon

Acree, Sr., and a few of his friends went back to the rocks to spend the night. During the night someone in the village of Easter, thought they heard screams from that direction, and was quite upset until the boys came home about daybreak. They had only been having a bit of fun by letting out yells of pleasure.

My great rock adventure occurred when I once led a group of five girls to the rocks to visit a cave located about 15 feet up the side of a cliff on the Eastern side. We made the mistake of leaving at 3:30 p.m. Up on the rocks the sun was still shining, while the shadows grew in the valleys. We were having too much fun to see that it was getting late.

Since it was too dark to return the way we came which was straight up through the underbrush, we decided to go straight down on the Goslin Fork side where a path was kept clean by workers who tended gas wells in that area. It was a much longer way, but we would not be in any danger of getting snake bit.

It did not take long to get off the rocks, but it was a long walk down Goslin Fork to Goose Creek, then down either the railroad tracks or down the highway. We were delayed because we kept meeting people on the road and stopped to talk with them. First we met Garland and on the road and stopped to talk with them. First we met Garland and Nora Martin, and their family of eight: Daphene, Chalmer, Glema, Tommy, Dana, June, Joan, and babe-in-arms, Gaylord. The children arranged themselves in order of age and formed stair-steps. We had to stop and admire them for several minutes.

As we passed by Cola Allen's home, we were glad, for once, that we did not see anyone to talk to. We really were getting to be very late in getting home.

Then we met Lona Elliott Martin going to milk the cows as the old Susan Allen place, where Bud Elliott and his family lived. Of course, we had to stop and speak a few words with them — everyone was very friendly in those days.

By the time we reached the Mouth of Goose Creek, where the new school is, it was almost dark. The railroad track was a longer trip home from there, so we went the old Highway 80 route, risking being abducted by some horrible person in our imaginations.

When we finally got home, the whole town was alarmed at our absence. Lafayette Gayheart had already gathered his mining lights and gear to begin the search for us. My father was at work and my mother was walking the floor, ready to start crying over her two lost daughters.

Susie Adkins, who was very excitable when a child's safety was at stake, said that she heard screams for help in the direction of the rocks. Susie lived at the foot of the hill, so a search party was formed rapidly when she imparted this information.

We arrived home at dusk, just in time to prevent them from leaving to find us. Lafayette heard us coming down the highway, so the search was dismissed. Sounds seemed to echo loudly in those days.

The next time I saw Susie, she hugged me and told me how happy she was that we were okay. We had not felt that we were in any danger; we just knew that we needed to get home fast before we got in trouble.

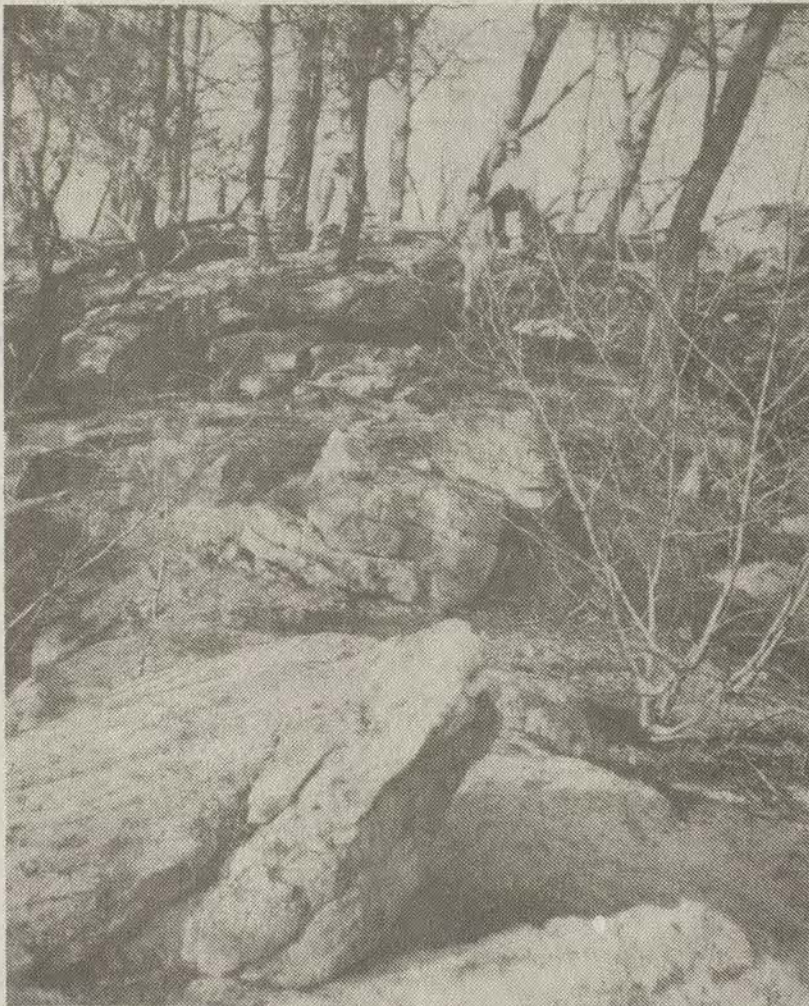

When I was 10 years old, Juanita, Willa Jean and Agnes June Waddles (daughters of Lawton and Lora B. Waddles) joined my sister, Wanda Gwenneth, and me for a trek back on the hill for a picnic.

We often went "over on the hill" across from W.H. (Hoosh) Martin's house to play and picnic.

We took things that were easy to carry and nothing we would have to bring back home. Once we wanted to take a watermelon from the Waddles' melon patch, but did not want to carry a big one. So we took one about the size of a soccer ball. When we got ready to eat it, we cut it to find that it wasn't ripe! An example of bad judgment to prevent work.

After eating we explored the ridge and around the sides of the hill, a beautiful long hill with a stately oak tree near the point. There grew "life everlasting"! In the fall the leaves of the plant turned silver and became very dry. We picked the leaves, put them into a small piece of brown paper bag, used to carry our lung, and lit up! Many a child's first experience at smoking cigarettes was probably this way.

Eastern beauty

The rocks at Eastern are more approachable from the west side. Here the rocks are strewn out with dirt in between which allows an easy climb to the top. The rocks offer a magnificent view of the valley below. When Highway 80 is glimpsed from the mountaintop, it is seen as a small white ribbon meandering along the valley. (photo by Cecil R. Caudill)

Annual trek

Besides the view, climbers enjoy eating a sack lunch — a can of pop, a bologna sandwich, and a Little Debbie cake — standard lunch fare of the hikers since it is easy to carry and very little is left to dispose of. This photo was taken Easter in 1989. Pictured are Pam Pinson, daughter Beverly, Tommy Martin and son, Alan Craig. (photo by Cecil Caudill)

Poison Oak

by Clyde Pack

If it Helped My Old Granny, It'll Surely Help Me

At this time of year, I receive more old-time cures for you "Poison Oak" and "Country Folk" cartoon that pertain to colds and flu and runny noses, than just about anything else.

The problem with some of them, though, is that enduring the remedy just might be worse than suffering through the affliction. It's almost as if those who came up with these old home remedies were bound by some unwritten law that said if it didn't taste or smell bad, it couldn't be effective.

For example, I received one once that suggested that a mixture of goose grease and camphor made an excellent poultice for chest congestion.

(No doubt, it'd do wonders for you sinuses, too.)

Another reader suggested that drinking brine from a jar of sauerkraut would knock a cold in the head, and another man submitted a cure for a cold that involved breathing into a cooker of steaming onions.

I've noticed, too, that a primary ingredient in many of these old cures was whiskey. One lady sent us a recipe that included yellow root and whiskey for a cold, while another recommended adding whiskey to a tea made from butterfly weed.

An old gentleman told me a while back about rock candy. What he suggested was to drink the whiskey and throw the rock candy away.

Of course, there are the suggestions of things to do, rather than things to swallow or rub on.

"To cure a sore throat overnight, wrap a dirty sock around your neck and sleep on it," and "During cold weather, dust sulphur on your shoes before you go outside and you won't catch cold," are prime examples.

I particularly liked, too, the one that suggested "To cure a sore throat, put Vick's salve on the bottom of your feet and sleep with a hot rock against them."

Now, I've never done that, but Vick's salve sure was a staple in my Mom's medicine chest when I was a boy growing up in Muddy Branch. I suffered silently through many a sore throat, and near-pneumonia symptoms before I'd risk her grabbing that little blue jar.

Anyway, for whatever reason, these old remedies apparently work — or at least those who submit them are convinced they do. An interesting letter from a reader in Appalachia, Virginia offered possible reasons why.

First, he suggested that there are actually some healing properties within one or more of the ingredients that would prompt a cure. I suppose that this probably true to a certain extent because many old cures contained some of the same herbs and spices found in modern medicines.

The reader also suggested that perhaps the old "placebo" thing comes into play here. This theory likely has a certain degree of validity, too. I suspect that many a dose has been taken that contained absolutely no medical ingredients whatsoever. However, "If it helped my old granny, it'll surely help me." Many times it no doubt did.

Thirdly, he suggested that some ailments would just get better by themselves, whether the sufferer did anything or not. Since folks generally are of the opinion that doing anything is better than doing nothing, though, we start looking for a dirt sock or some whiskey with a little yellow root in it, just as soon as we feel something coming on.

Anyway, you can't blame folks for starting to think about some of these old hand-me-down cold remedies, with what snow and sleet and hail and I don't know what all about to return to these mountains. I mean, we're bound to catch something, so we might as well prepare ourselves for everything from the sniffles and sore throat to sinus congestion and post-nasal drip.

So, whether your choice of cure is store bought or home grown, good luck.

Cabbage Patch

By Marie Harmon

Today I read, "if you have a dry summer you will have very little snow." As I stated before, I do read a lot.

The thing that has me puzzled is: was our dry spell in the late spring or was it in the summertime? Is this why we have had so little snow the last two or three years?

Now is the time to get those bird feeders filled and hung outside if you haven't already done so. Hang some suet balls up high away from any cats for the anti bug birds that winter in our area. The suet balls will draw them into the trees where they will rid the borers and cocoons that are concealed in the cracks and crevices in the tree bark. A handy briar or brush pile will furnish shelter for the birds also.

Save your Christmas tree this year and after all the needles have fallen off, anchor it to the corner of your house. If your neighbors ask why, and they will, think up some far out excuse like you became so attached to it at Christmas time you couldn't part with it. Come next spring sow some seeds around and under it. Morning glories, ornamental gourds, or scarlet runner beans, or any other vine you prefer. I prefer the scarlet runner bean as they have a heavy foliage to hide the tree, they also furnish good eating beans and food for our humming birds, the prettiest of all our birds in my book.

This month is the ideal month for starting some of your houseplants. Flowering plants that can be started now (if you can find the time) include impatiens, begonias, double petunias, and pansies. Try to germinate as near to 68 degrees as possible. Seedlings will tolerate temperatures as low as 55 degrees. Most these will bloom by April.

Let your children get in the act with their own plants if they wish. They can plant beet tops, cabbage cores and carrot top in shallow containers surrounded with pebbles. Keep moist. Bingo! They will have their own conversation pieces, plus the joy and pride of a job well done by themselves. How about letting them have an avocado seed. Stick three toothpicks in it, and place over a container of water with the bottom part only touching the water. In a very short time they will have their very own tree. Give them a chance to get off the telephone and away from the TV. They'll love it.

Eastern

On one side of the hill grew a huge tree. Onto one of the limbs someone had hung a swing, an old car tire. It was great fun to swing far out over the hillside.

When the Ira Hales' family moved into the house at the foot of the hill (the Bascom Stephens house of the Log Cabin series), Ira Jr. did not know us, and tried to scare us. Later when we were all acquainted, the Hale kids joined us there on picnics and in play. Junior Hale had a magnificent feat that he was trying to perfect — blow out the kerosene lamp and jump into bed before the room got dark! He swore that he reached his goal.

The Hales had a "pol parrot." My little sister took a liking to it, so they let us take it home with us for a few days. One evening my mother was busy making supper on her coal stove with the parrot sitting in its cage on the kitchen floor. We all admitted that we were a little afraid of it but could tolerate it because it was in a cage.

Mother looked around and saw that it was coming out of the cage and was walking toward her. She screamed in fright.

The bird fell backwards onto the floor laughing!

Mother felt that she had let an animal make a fool of her. She wondered how she would ever get it back into its cage, but it walked back laughing as though it had planned the whole thing!

County Kettle

by Judith Maynard

If you've ever been a child, you know that nothing is as distasteful as lunch in the school cafeteria. When given a choice, most children prefer to pack a lunch. Brightly colored plastic and metal lunch boxes with cartoon characters and super heroes on the lids were designed for just this purpose. However, many children don't eat the lunches they take any better than they do the cafeteria meal.

Homemaking magazines are constantly publishing tips on packing a more enjoyable lunch for children. I've tried every tip in the books. Over the years, I've devised my own system that works nine out of ten times with my children. This is a simple, easy to follow guideline for packing lunches any child will eat.

Supplies:

- child's lunch box and thermos
- Zip-loc sandwich bags
- flexible drinking straw
- napkins or paper towels
- knife or cookie cutter
- Post-it note pad and pen

FOOD:

- sandwich materials (bread, cold cuts, peanut butter, jelly)
- fruit — (banana, apple, orange, seedless grapes, raisins)
- snacks — (cookies, chips, pre-packaged jello or pudding)
- drinks — (milk, fruit juices, Gatoraid)

Note: The foods listed are only the author's suggestions. You may choose your own menu alternatives/ variations.

Once you have assembled the necessary equipment and made your food selections you are ready to begin. You need only follow these five quick steps.

Step 1:

On a table or counter top place the open lunch box so that the handle faces you. Use a napkin or paper towel to line the bottom. This will soak up any excess liquid if the child forgets to tighten the thermos lid when lunch is over.

Proceed by making the child's favorite sandwich. Using a knife, cut the sandwich diagonally to make two halves or use a cookie cutter to cut out bite size portions in fun shapes. Put the sandwich pieces into a Zip-loc bag, seal and lay aside.

Step 2:

Wash and dry the fruit. (If you use seedless grapes, you may want to put them in a Zip-loc bag also to prevent them from rolling around.) Now place the fruit in the back right hand corner of the lunch box. It will act as a support for the sandwich once the lunch is fully packed.

Step 3:

It is now time to put the snack in the lunch box. No matter what sort of snack you have chosen, make sure you don't go over board. This is usually the first thing the child will eat. If you are using cookies, put only three or four into a bag. If you are using a prepackaged jello or pudding, remember to include a small plastic spoon.

Place your snack choice in the back of the lunch box beside the fruit.

Step 4:

Fill the thermos with a cold beverage. If the weather is very hot or lunch is a long time off, you should place the thermos in the refrigerator for a few minutes before you pour in the liquid. This will help the thermos to maintain the cool temperature of the beverage. Next, place the thermos in the left side of the lunch box so that the lid is facing you. It will stand up straight when the lunch box is being carried.

At last it's time to put the sandwich prepared in Step 1 into the lunch box. Place it in the open area in front of the fruit and the snack.

Step 5:

Place the flexible drinking straw beside the thermos. It's much easier and cleaner for the child to put a straw down through the thermos' snap-up spout than to put it in the lid.

Then write your little darling a cheerful note and stick it to the inside of the lunch box lid. A rhyme, riddle or joke also works very well. It's such a simple way to make lunch time more pleasant. Now you can snap the lid shut and send the child off to school secure in the knowledge that they'll be eating all of their lunch.

If you follow this general guide to packing a lunch, your child will be excited about lunch time. The key to success is not to put the same thing in the lunch box two days in a row; be creative. Imagine yourself opening that lunch box.

A new baby in the family means a new family schedule

by Barbara H. Morris
Public Relations
Alliant Health System

Every family has to expect to go through a period of trial and error adjusting to the newborn baby. The reason for this is that family routine is pretty well established, but the new baby wants to set his or her own schedule of eating and sleeping. The physical needs are simple. These include food, sleep, warmth, cleanliness and protection from infection. Most important, he or she needs much tender, loving care. The newborn has definite personality traits. Almost immediately the child begins to react to surroundings. Most babies cry when they are hungry. Some cry when they are wet or uncomfortable. Some seldom cry—others cry a great deal. A baby gets a lot of satisfaction and comfort from being held and cuddled. This attention won't spoil them. They need it to make them feel warm, loved and secure.

frequent small feedings will be necessary during this period. By the time he or she is a month old, the baby can usually wait three hours between feedings. However, that three-hour period should not be a rigid schedule for day and night. This schedule will vary depending on whether the baby is awake or asleep during the three-hour period. By the time he or she is three months old, a regular feeding schedule will be established. It will probably be about four hours between feedings during the day and six to eight hours during the night. Whether you breast or bottle-feed your baby, always hold the baby in your arms.

This care, this feeling of closeness, is as necessary for the baby's growth as any thing you can do. Also, especially in hot weather, offer your baby a drink of water. If he or she is fussy between feedings, a sip of water may help to quiet him or her. Other foods and juices will be suggested by your doctor.

The amount of time your baby will sleep is pretty much up to him or her. Some babies sleep up to twenty hours a day. Some babies have a way of turning night into day. Irregular sleeping patterns are to be expected during the first month. The baby is simply adjusting to new surroundings. By the end of the month, a schedule of sleeping will have developed.

Your baby should sleep alone in its own bed. Many prefer to sleep on their stomach. Others sleep on their side or back. The important thing to remember is to change the baby's position often. Do not use a pillow in the bed. If you wish to support the baby on its side, place a rolled diaper or small blanket behind its back. The mattress of the bed should be firm and covered with a waterproof material. Cover the baby with a cotton blanket. If it's very cold, a light-weight wool blanket may be added.

Your baby should be kept clean by changing the clothes and bed linen every day, and more often if they become soiled. Change the diapers whenever they become wet or soiled. The number of bowel movements will vary and be irregular at first. Gradually, he or she will set a pattern that may average two or three bowel movements a day.

Whenever you change the diaper, always wash and dry the baby's bottom thoroughly before putting on the clean diaper.

Before the navel or belly button has healed, the baby can be given a sponge bath. In about ten days to two weeks, the navel will heal completely, and you can then give him or her a tub bath. The time of day of the bath can vary according to the family routine. Pick a time that is convenient for the family.

It is better to try to keep that schedule as the baby will adjust patterns of eating and sleeping around the bath. If the father wishes to help, it would be best to set bath time when he is available. Before starting the bath, have everything you need within reach. If you find you need to get another item, pick up the baby and carry him or her with you. Never leave the baby alone on a bath table or in the tub. Soap, rinse and dry thoroughly. Dress in clean clothes and put in a safe place or in bed before you begin to pour out the bath water or to put things away.

It is important to protect your baby from infections. If members of your family or friends have a cold or an infectious disease, keep them away from your baby.

And so, in conclusion, enjoy your baby. Do not be confused by all the advice of "do's and don'ts" that you will receive. Each baby is different, and will set his or her own schedule of eating and sleeping. Growth patterns will vary with each baby, so don't make comparisons with others as to what different babies can and cannot do. Once again, always hold your baby during its feeding. The tender, loving care that you give is as important as the food received. Keep your baby clean and protected against infections. Understand your baby's needs and take care of them promptly. If you do, your baby will be happy, relaxed, and well on the way to a well-adjusted personality.

For the answers to health care questions, 24 hours a day, seven days a week, call ASK-A-NURSE, 1-800-443-1616, (562-7060 in the Louisville area). Specially trained nurses are available to listen to your questions and help you make an informed decision about what to do. Ask-A-Nurse is a free service provided by Alliant Health System.

The easiest and simplest way to feed your baby is breast feeding. Most healthy women are able to nurse their babies. While some mothers may not have quite enough milk for the baby at first, they should not give up trying to breast feed. The act of nursing promotes the secretions of milk and the sucking stimulates the flow of milk. It's easy to feed the baby by nursing. Also, the mother and baby both benefit from the baby being held close while feeding. However, if the baby must be bottle fed, he or she can do well on the proper formula. Your doctor will suggest a formula for your baby and can also give you instructions on how to prepare it. Naturally, a mother is concerned about the best way to feed her baby. If she feels secure that her baby is receiving proper care, she will be more relaxed and confident.

The baby's hunger is the best guide on how often and how much to feed him or her. For the first few weeks he or she can't take enough food into its small stomach to last very long, so

The Mail Ego

We have a shiny new mailbox. It is the talk of the neighborhood. Our old mailbox, too, was the subject of much discussion.

When we moved to our home, the mailbox was in pretty bad shape — rusty and dented. But we soon learned that mailboxes often were the targets of youthful shenanigans in our new neighborhood.

We heard tales from our neighbors and saw the evidence firsthand: steel boxes bashed in, mutilated posts laying on their sides. It was not a situation that made us want to rush out and purchase a new box.

But then we began receiving notices from the U.S. Postal Service. The notices were not exactly threatening, but they did inform us that we were in violation of some code or other and contained helpful diagrams showing what a proper mailbox should look like.

It was about that time that our old mailbox was egged, bashed and rendered doorless. I was afraid to let the children retrieve the mail for fear that contact with a rusty bolt would require tetanus shots.

It was time, we decided. However, we discovered that purchasing a new mailbox would be more difficult than we had anticipated.

For one thing, my husband and I found that we had radically different philosophies about mailboxes. I was thinking in terms of something aesthetically pleasing, possibly with a sleek pole rising from flower boxes. Jim, on the other hand, insisted on an oversized pole to support an oversized aluminum box.

My husband, you see, likes his mail flat. Unfolded. A large box, he reasoned, would allow the carrier to place the many important documents we receive — namely, magazines — neatly in the box. Flat.

To make a long story short, Jim won what has come to be known as "The Great Mailbox Debate." We now have a mailbox large enough to hold a year's worth of mail. Unfolded.

Neighbors have been gathering around our new box, oohing and aahing and, I believe, smirking. Cars slow down when they pass our home, and I see arms pointing out windows in the direction of our box.

We received a notice the other day that the city is raising our property assessment because of the new room we added.

Jim has taken all the teasing good-naturedly, but he is not happy with the post office.

Yesterday we received a bundle of mail — folded in half, with a rubber band around it. lol

Traveling with The Floyd County Times

Cassie Justice of Martin traveled to Jericho with her "Times" by her side. Cassie and husband Charles visited several areas in the Middle East during September and faithfully displayed the hometown paper at several interesting areas.

1st Lt. Tess Whitmer (Assistant Editor of the "Times") never misses a week of her favorite newspaper. Here Tess is pictured at Ft. George G. Meade in Maryland just before leaving for Saudi Arabia.

Wilma Mayo was sharing her "Times" with the David Mayo family this summer in Frankenmuth, Mich. Wilma, a resident of Martin, is pictured here in front of the famous Zehnder's Restaurant.

On a recent business trip to Denver, Colorado, Brenda Maynard discovered a "golden" opportunity to get caught up on the latest with her "Times" at the Coors Brewing Company in Golden, Colorado. Brenda is now living in Pikeville but is a native of Middle Creek and Prestonsburg.

Towering above all the "Times" vacationed with Scarlette Nalle, Judy Hall Tanner and Terre Haute to Sanibel Island in Florida. Scarlette and Judy are formaleys from McDowell and Daughters of the late Langley and Maude Hall.

Standing Guard with the "Times" is Priscilla Moore and the Palace Guard in London England. Priscilla and husband Dr. James Moore, (behind the camera) are residents of Wayland.

Making merry at home

Parlor pastimes from Christmas past

by Mary Combs
Smithsonian News Service

Poet William Harrison was in a grim mood that winter of 1832, grieving for the old Christmas traditions. "Where is Snap-Dragon? All extinguish'd, vanish'd/ Where mystic Mistletoe? Unfairly banish'd/ Where's Blind Man's buff? ... old Hunt the Slipper? ... Where Forfeits paid ... in cunning Cupid's current coinage, kisses? Despatch'd to Coventry to modern misses."

The Industrial Revolution was in full swing, and there was little room for merrymaking in the average laborer's 60-hour work week. "The genius of the present age requires work and no play," lamented carol-collector William Sandys. There were still celebrations, of course, but the once-glorious 12-day holiday had become a shadow of its former self, and the centuries-old traditions had become a subject for antiquarian curiosity.

Harrison need not have worried. If he could, like Scrooge in Charles Dickens' A Christmas Carol, have been spirited into Christmas future, he would have seen all his beloved traditions restored. Peering ghostlike over the shoulder of a Victorian mama searching Cassell's Family Magazine for party ideas, he would have read "the same sports which were common 150 years ago are enjoyed today; the only difference is that they are carried on in a more refined fashion."

In fact, Cassell's particularly recommended Snapdragon, "played from time immemorial," in which people take turns trying to snatch brandy-soaked raisins from a flaming dish, a feat requiring "nerve and agility" and provoking much laughter. All the lights were put out, the better to enjoy the weird glow.

In the days before TV, VCRs, boom boxes and high-tech games, families made their own fun," says Shirley Cherkasky, public programs coordinator at the Smithsonian Institution's National Museum of American history in Washington, D.C.

"They didn't have our elaborate equipment, and that made it easier to be creative and enjoy each other." Most parlor games could be enjoyed by young and old alike, "a wonderful way for the generations to interact," she adds. There were dozens of variations to choose from; a guest could delight his hosts by sharing a new one.

"Games come and go," Cherkasky says. "Some are fads, and others seem to last forever." Blindman's Buff is one of the latter. In medieval times, the blindman was "buffeted" or struck. In the version enjoyed by the Victorians, the blindman was supposed to catch a member of the party and identify him or her without looking. Of course, a certain amount of cheating was possible — and expected. As the narrator of A Christmas Carol, Dickens draws a familiar picture for his readers, as Scrooge eavesdrops with the Ghost of Christmas Present on his nephew's party:

"I no more believe Topper was really blind than I believe he had eyes in his boots ... The way he went after that plump sister in the lace tucker ... Knocking down the fire-irons, tumbling over the chairs ... smothering himself among the curtains ... He wouldn't catch anybody else ... She often cried out that it wasn't fair; and it really was not. But when at last, he caught her ... his pretending not to know her; his pretending that it was necessary to touch her headdress ... and a certain chain about her neck; was vile, monstrous! No doubt she told him her opinion of it, when, another blindman being in office, they were so very confidential together, behind the curtains."

Romance blossomed at this time of year. As the Illustrated London News (1849) put it, "the shyest lover becomes eloquent, and the most coy fair one becomes kind; every heart dilates with good-will, love and tenderness on Christmas evening." If an enterprising lover could not lure the lady — or ladies — of his choice under the "kissing bough" of mistletoe, he simply plucked a sprig and carried it to his intended victim. If that failed, he could still hope for one or two kissing games, like Postman's Knock or Drop the Handkerchief.

Forfeits were an important and virtually inescapable part of the fun. Any number of mistakes during a game — including talking or laughing at the wrong time — demanded a forfeit. You might be told to recite a particular verse; to "kneel to the prettiest, bow to the wittiest and kiss the one you love best"; or anything else your friends might devise, including such impossibilities as "bite an inch off the poker." In the early 18th century, folks "too stubborn to submit" could buy their way out with a coin, but a kiss soon took the place of the silver. Whether or not the kiss was bliss depended on the ages and affections of the players.

Some games, like Musical Chairs, Statues, 20 Questions and Charades, are still played. Others, "too well-known to need a description" in the pages of Cassell's Magazine, now sound exotic: Dumb Crambo; Boz, or the Game of Seven; and I Apprenticed My Son. Some were competitive, with winners and losers; others were simply fun.

A good many boisterous games, like Blindman's Buff, Puss in the Corner and Fox and Geese, come under the heading of "indoor tag." The descriptions dispel any lingering image of staid and proper Victorians seated stiffly in the parlor. Indeed, in some games, the object is simply to keep a straight face. In Poor Pussy, one person imitates a cat — the other players must reply "Poor Pussy," no matter what he or she does. laugh, and you are out.

When energies flagged, folks could settle down to pencil-and-paper games or games that taxed the memory. Kim's Game, from the popular novel Kim, by Rudyard Kipling, involved briefly unveiling a tray full of intriguing items. The one who best remembered the contents of the tray won. The familiar son "The 12 Days of Christmas" started out as a Christmas game. The unlucky player who confused the "pipers piping" with the "lords a-leaping" had to pay a forfeit.

Word games like The Minister's Cat and I Love My Love with an A demanded quick thinking and a wide vocabulary — or some advance research in the dictionary. The Girl's Own Book (1876) helpfully gives examples for the more difficult letters of the alphabet: "I love my love with an X because he is a Xylographer ..."

The Victorians believed in cultivating family talents, so home-grown entertainment included music and son, reading and recitations, and other more or less skillful demonstrations. Like sundry other Victorian fathers and uncles, Charles Dickens was an accomplished amateur magician. He wrote to a friend about preparations for a holiday party: "...if you could see me conjuring the company's watches into impossible tea caddies, and causing pieces of money to fly, and burning pocket handkerchiefs without hurting 'em, you would never forget it as long as you live."

For folk with dramatic flair, amateur theatricals added to the fun. In Louisa May Alcott's Little Women, the March sisters entertain their friends on Christmas night with an original "operatic tragedy" replete with homemade props and costumes and the triumph of virtuous lovers over a mustachioed villain. Those who found acting too demanding could join in Tableaux Vivantes,

"living pictures," and dress up and pose in a scene representing a famous work of art or an episode from literature, history or the Bible, which the audience was to guess. Access to a liberal supply of dressing-up clothes and odd props seems to have been assumed.

The winter darkness encouraged shadow plays, with the actors performing behind a sheet stretched between a lamp and the audience, creating eerie shadows. Surgery was a gruesome delight of this sort, in which all kinds of untoward objects were removed from the shadowy "patient" — saws, lamps, pieces of furniture, strings of sausages. In the game of Shadow Buff, the blindman guesses the identity of the shadows on a wall; of course, players made every effort to disguise themselves.

Some Victorian games might be difficult to play nowadays. You need a sizable house for Sardines, a game of hide-and-seek that ends with all but one person crammed into the same hiding place. You need a sizable knowledge of Proverbs to play that version of Charades. And some of us would be hard-pressed to find a thimble for Hunt the Thimble. But most of the games will move easily from the parlor into the family room. As the Smithsonian's Cherkasky says, "One of the wonderful things about games is the way people reinvent them."

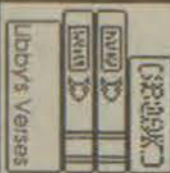

Hide a little plastic dinosaur or a Teen-age Mutant Ninja Turtle instead of a thimble, and tell the hunters when they are "hot" (close) or "cold." Act out a scene from a TV show; clear away the breakables and indulge in a good old-fashioned game of Blindman's Buff. With a little patience and a lot of laughter, you may find what the reformed Scrooge discovered at his nephew's house on Christmas Day: "Wonderful party, wonderful games, wonderful unanimity, won-der-ful happiness!"

Thoughts on Christmas, family, and traditions

by V. Gay Herrin
Associate Professor

Traditions give families a feeling of continuity. They connect the years, mark the transitions, and bond the people.

Take Christmas traditions, for example. Each family is unique, and a new family affords the opportunity to create new traditions and to blend old ones.

As a young December bride, I can remember very consciously contemplating what I wanted "our" first Christmas to be like. I was soon to find out that my husband Eric had ideas of his own, as did our parents.

Our first major peace-threatening decision was where to spend Christmas. Naturally, both sets of parents made claims to the newly-wedded couple, so we decided to spend our first Christmas at "our home," thus establishing a Christmas tradition we have continued for 28 Christmases. We have had extended family and friends in our home for Christmas, but for 28 years we have stayed home.

Over these years we've celebrated Christmas in four cities and six homes, but some things have remained the same.

We always decorate our house "tacky" (our daughter Kristina's description) with bright colors and lots of lights and glitter. We put Christmas decorations out after Thanksgiving and put them away after New Year's Day.

On Christmas Eve we serve Christmas dinner, take a family picture around the table or tree, read the Christmas story aloud, and sing songs (off-key.)

On Christmas Day we wear our pajamas most of the day, open presents, telephone extended family, play games, and eat leftovers.

These things may not sound very special, but they're what we have come to accept as Christmas traditions in our family.

Not everything has remained the same, but I've noticed that changes in tradition usually mark changes in the family. For instance, our traditional fresh-cut Christmas tree was replaced with an artificial tree on our youngest son Jon's first Christmas because he had a severe allergic reaction. Then, our traditional Christmas ham was replaced with a Christmas turkey when our son Rick's Jewish fiancée, Sharon, began to join our family holiday.

You see, traditions are not iron-clad; they're just vehicles to support family unity. These two traditions were changed, without a second thought, for the comfort of new family members.

I have noticed over the years we have kept religiously those traditions that bond us as a family and quickly discarded any that separate a member from the unit.

Traditions also connect generations. When Eric and I began to create our family traditions, about the only thing he was adamant about was that on special holidays, like Christmas, ginger ale was to be served in wine glasses.

We have kept this odd tradition even though I believe Eric is the only family member who even likes ginger ale. He explains it by saying drinking ginger ale out of wine glasses is just something his family has done on holidays.

I never really understood this unusual custom until we celebrated at Thanksgiving holiday in his sister Jeanne's home.

As we were making the final preparations for a beautifully prepared table, my eyes froze on the beautiful, delicate, crystal wine glasses Jeanne was filling with Canada Dry ginger ale. She explained that the stemware was her grandmother Herrin's, and as far as Jeanne knew, the ginger ale tradition started with grandmother.

For me, the tradition finally fell into place. Grandmother Herrin was a coal-miner's wife, and she raised her family in a coal camp house. A staunch Southern Baptist, Grandmother would never have allowed alcohol to be served in her home, so she substituted ginger ale.

Somehow, though, these wine glasses didn't fit the setting. Hiding beneath her harsh, humble, mountain lifestyle must have been an elegant, aristocratic lady who made special entrances on holidays, creating this tradition. I imagine that for a few minutes each holiday grandmother and her family transcended their stark surroundings as they sipped ginger ale from the finest of crystal wine glasses.

I felt warm and connected as Jeanne and I stood over the sink, she washing and I drying grandmother's crystal, preparing it for storage until the next holiday.

I sometimes wonder if I have created any tradition as special as grandmother's tradition of serving ginger ale in crystal wine glasses. I hope so, but, like grandmother, I'll probably never know if someday, somewhere, someone says, "this was Grandmother Herrin's, and she always..."

PUBLIC NOTIFICATION

NOTICE TO THE Teachers, Parents and Students of Melvin Elementary and W.D. Osborne Elementary School.

In July 1987, federal regulations were adopted that require monitoring for eight volatile synthetic organic chemicals and 51 unregulated contaminants in public water systems. The first year of this monitoring is conducted by the Kentucky Division of Water with the assistance of the Division of Environmental Services.

The volatile synthetic organic chemicals have maximum contaminant levels, or standards over which action will be taken to protect your health. Currently, no maximum contaminant levels have been established for the unregulated contaminants because sufficient information is not yet available. Please be assured, however, that you will be notified if contamination is detected and determined to be a potential health threat. This monitoring will aid in setting standards by indicating how widespread these contaminants may be in public water systems and at what levels of concentration they may be occurring.

The FLOYDCOUNTY BOARD OF EDUCATION now has available for public review the analytical results for unregulated contaminants for the monitoring program conducted by the Kentucky Division of Water for 1989. These results cover the first, second, third and fourth quarters of the year long program. The results may be reviewed at our office at James Francis during regular business hours of 8:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. Monday through Friday.

For more information, please contact James F. Francis of Floyd County Board of Education at 886-2354. Drinking Water Branch of the Kentucky Division of Water at 18 Reilly Road, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601, or at (502) 564-3410, ext. 516.
