Loan and CAP labor make for improved home

by Frank Clark
Staff Writer

For James and Norma Butler of Wheelwright and their two children, a little help from the Farmer's Home Administration and the Christian Appalachian Project of Martin is going to provide some much needed room to grow.

The Butlers own their own home in Wheelwright but have had a serious space crunch in recent years, in their single bedroom home with two growing children.

"Our boy and girl have to share the same room, and as they're getting older, they need their own rooms," said James Butler. "But with me driving a school bus and my wife going to school, we had troubles getting the funds together to do the work."

Familiar with the activities of the service-oriented Christian Appalachian Project, Butler talked with Darrell Combs, who manages the Home Repair Program for CAP. Combs' program, designed to assist in repairing the houses of low income Floyd Countians, was also short on funding at the time.

Combs recommended that Butler check with the Farmer's Home Administration office in Prestonsburg to see if a low interest repair loan was possible, and Combs agreed to provide labor if funding for building supplies was available. It worked out just that way.

"They came through with a loan of about $5,200 to do the work and charged only about one percent interest," said Butler. "We qualified for health and safety reasons because of having a teenage boy and girl sharing a room."

Combs and his repair crew began work on adding two rooms to the existing structure a little before Thanksgiving of last year. Despite occasional interruptions, the work has gone smoothly and is now nearing completion.

"Besides busting fingers with our hammers, we only had one accident, when James (Butler) did a little roll off the roof as we were working," said a laughing Dale Baggett, a full-time volunteer from Texas. "He landed on his feet like a big cat, just like he knew what he was doing."

Combs noted that, despite the success of the Butler project, there are still many people in the county who require improved housing or repairs, but are unable to get it or unaware of how to go about getting it.

"Right now, we have about 300 applications from people who need work done," said Combs. "There's just no way to get to all of it. If we were able to get the funds for more building materials, we could make a tremendous impact on the community. I really think if the need exists, people should have access to help."

The FHA in Prestonsburg, however, is also facing a budget crunch, which limits the amount of funding available for home building and repair projects. Phyllis Allen, an FHA county loan technician, said a one year backlog on loan requests currently exists.

"Funds are very tight," said Allen. "In the past, we've had grants available for people over the age of 62 to do repair work. We don't have that any more. The repair loan money is also gone right now. We do have new home building loans that charge an interest rate of between one and eight and three-quarters percent."

While currently restricted by fund shortages, the association has helped many area residents in the past to improve their housing situations. The Butlers are one such success story. If local political leaders concentrated on the housing problems in the area, says Combs, more success stories would be possible.

"We can supply the labor, and it'd be great if we could bring on more employees to work on new projects," said Combs. "It's the politicians who need to work on making decent loans available. People deserve it."

Helping hands

PVA, Fiscal Court pass audit

The Floyd County Fiscal Court and Property Valuation Administrator Lovel Hall were given their yearly reports from the state Auditor of Public Accounts this week, receiving equal measures of praise and criticism from state auditor Bob Babbage.

The PVA office closed the fiscal year on June 30, 1989, with a cash balance of $37,972. Babbage commended Hall for investing PVA funds in order to earn $1,241 in interest over the course of the year. However, the auditor's office questioned Hall's decision to enter into an agreement in July of 1988 to lease a 1988 Jeep Cherokee for $15,480.

According to the report, the lease agreement did not comply with a Kentucky statute that requires that bids be obtained for all purchases of $7,500 or more. Babbage recommended that Hall comply with this statute in the future.

The Floyd County Fiscal Court also received praise for its good fund balance and investment programs, which generated $229,391 in interest income for the year. The report noted that the county received a Community Development Block Grant of $29,838 and water project grant of $4,095.

The sheriff's department collected $781,846 in general fund taxes for the county and the clerk collected $201,060 in tangible property taxes for the year.

The state payment to the county road aid fund was $813,225, while state payments for the coal and mineral severance taxes totaled $1,392,325. The county also received $1,024,076 for refuse and garbage collection.

The single criticism leveled by the state auditor's office toward the Fiscal Court involved the bookkeeping practices used in the Solid Waste Inc. Fund. The report stated, "Minimal accounting records required by the Uniform System of Accounts... were not maintained by the Solid Waste Inc. Fund. These include a receipts ledger and disbursements ledger."

The auditor's office recommended that the board of directors for Solid Waste take action to ensure that at least the minimal accounting records required by the state are kept. This was the second year in which the Fiscal Court failed to ensure that Solid Waste was maintaining an adequate record-keeping system, according to the report.

Spring-time?

With as much rain as Eastern Kentucky has had lately, the mountains are spewing forth. This hillside spring, along US 23 North, makes for a pleasing sight as fresh water cascades over rock. It's enough to turn a mountaineer's heart to mush.

Wayland council collars canines

Dogs were the topic of discussion at Tuesday night's Wayland town council meeting.

According to city clerk Carol Stapleton, council considered the need for stricter enforcement of pet control within city limits. Dog tags and licenses were ordered and will be available shortly from city offices, and the city police officer will begin enforcing Kentucky statutes on dog control.

Owners will be required to keep their animals on their own property, and leash laws will also be in effect around the city.

In other action, council agreed to change council meetings from the first Tuesday to the first Monday of each month.

Present at Tuesday's meeting were Mayor Hobert Webb and councilmembers Tommy Robinson, Gene Mullins, Jerry Fultz, and Robert Stewart.

Recreation group OK'ed by Martin City Council

A new committee, seeking to develop recreational facilities in Martin, addressed the Martin City Council Wednesday night, requesting start-up funds and explaining committee goals.

The Martin Area Community Recreation Organization (MACRO) is circulating a petition of support, according to MACRO president Doug DeRossett, for constructing a park facility to serve the Martin area.

The organization would like to build the park on land adjoining the Grigsby Heights Housing Project. Ideas for the facility include the construction of baseball fields, a walking track for adults, and a playground for children.

"We're here tonight to begin working with the city to get a park for the children."

Not so bad

The mild February Floyd County has been having will continue through the weekend with a bit of precipitation mixed in. Today will be cloudy with periods of showers and thundershowers and highs at 55-60. This evening will be mostly cloudy with a 30 percent chance of evening showers and a low between 30-35.

Saturday will be partly sunny with a high 45-50. Sunday there is a chance of more showers, high 55-60.

Partly cloudy skies will be seen Monday with a little cooler temperature, between 45-55. Tuesday will be about the same but a little warmer, 55-65.

Cholesterol test is free; get it

As a special service to blood donors, Central Kentucky Blood Center will perform a cholesterol test on each unit of blood donated during the month of February, with results mailed to the donor. The National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute recommends that everyone know his or her cholesterol level. Under 200 is ideal; above 200 is a warning sign for a dietary change to less fat and cholesterol and more fiber, starches, fruits and vegetables.

The Prestonsburg Donor Center is located in the Municipal building and is open Tuesday, 11 a.m. to 7 p.m., Wednesday and Thursday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Donors may also go to a mobile site near them.

Invitation is from the heart

Everyone interested in heart disease and rehabilitation is invited to join Chapter 220 of The Mended Hearts Inc., which meets each month at HRMC. Mended Hearts' national motto is "It's great to be alive, and to help others." For more information contact president Maxine Bierman at 886-6155, or attend the next meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 13, in HRMC's cafeteria. Commonwealth's Attorney Jerry Patton will be guest speaker.

DAR to meet

The Daughters of the American Revolution John Graham Chapter will meet Tuesday, Feb. 13, at 3:30 p.m. at the Floyd County Library. DAR Good Citizen Kimberly Horne of Prestonsburg High School will present her essay.

Now for the good news

Technical high school emphasizes 'applied' learning

by Pam Shingler
Editor

Brenda Hamilton is a standout basketball player on the women's team at Betsy Layne High School. Just last week, she was crowned homecoming queen.

But if you were to search the halls and classrooms of the southern Floyd County school, you wouldn't find the star student and athlete — because she doesn't go to school there.

Instead, Hamilton is spending her senior year at Floyd County Technical High School, near Martin, where she gets a heavy dose of business and office classes, along with the traditional academic courses she needs to get a diploma and prepare for college.

The former Garth Vocational School, sometimes considered a step-child of the county system, has this year taken on a decidedly innovative approach to meeting the needs of the system's diverse student population. And the difference amounts to more than a simple name change.

Juniors and seniors from the county's five public high schools can attend the technical high school all day, taking a course load that includes what are considered traditional academic subjects, as well as career-oriented vocational/technical classes. At the same time, they can still participate in the extra-curricular activities of their home school.

The transformation is the result, in part, of the work of Libby Hall, the school system's advisory chairperson for vocational education. Last year she secured a $20,000 grant to implement a curriculum that shows students the practical applications for a variety of traditional academic courses that many students consider irrelevant to their lives and goals.

"Students say 'How am I ever going to use algebra?'" Hall explains. "Now they're learning complicated math without knowing it because the principles apply to their experiences."

The courses meet the standards for a high school curriculum, but most apply directly to what students consider relevant, says Hall.

Lantre Combs, an Allen Central High School student who attends classes at the technical high school, explains that in his English class, for example, writing, spelling and communication lessons recently have focused on the job search.

Students learn to write a resume and cover letter and to prepare for a job interview. In each element, they're learning the principles of good written and oral communication, but they're putting the lessons to what they see as a practical use.

"Students can come here and take the applied approach to classes," says Hall. "The old days of a vocational school as just wood shop, mechanical shop and that's all are over."

Hall's grant covered the practical applications for physics and mathematics and enabled the school system

"It's hard to turn around the idea of this as a dumping ground."

—Libby Hall

to hire a specialist in those areas. Because of the program, the school system was able to lure teacher James Staggs away from a lucrative offer in Ohio.

A Wayland native, Staggs is considered a tremendous asset to the program since he combines a background in math and physics, which according to administrators is quite rare. In addition, he's a computer whiz.

Circuit Court sentences, sets trial dates

Two men received two years in jail and two others received lesser sentences, while Floyd Circuit Court was in session this week.

Timmy Bryant was found guilty of theft by deception and third degree criminal possession of a forged instrument, receiving two years in jail for both crimes.

Garrell Compton was sentenced to two years in prison on two counts of theft of a motor vehicle registration plate.

Alvin Branham Jr., 18, received one year in jail on two counts of third degree burglary and was required to pay $400 restitution, less what had already been paid.

Billy Ray Johnson was sentenced to one year in jail for first degree wanton endangerment, third degree criminal mischief and terroristic threatening. The sentence was changed to two years probation, if the defendant agreed to not bother his wife in the future.

Trial dates were set for the following defendants:

Curtis Howell Jr., first degree sodomy; Barry Risner, theft by deception; Kevin Hutchinson and Alvin Newsome, receiving stolen property; William Spencer, second degree burglary; Chester Adkins, first degree burglary; David Lee Allen, flagrant non-support; Gary Lynn Hall, second degree arson; Gregory Hall and Johnny Keathley, theft by deception;

Greg Martin, Michael Hoover, and Richard Short, theft by unlawful taking; Christopher Meeks, theft by unlawful taking; Lonnie Doug Neeley, murder and first degree arson; Tommy Perry, first degree burglary; Taylor Price, theft by deception; William P. Terry and Thomas Skeens, second degree assault;

Randall E. O'Quinn, theft by unlawful taking (auto); Ballard, Maudie, Jackie, and Tony Crum, and Kathy Jacobs, theft by extortion, first degree wanton endangerment, and complicity.

Regional Roundup

Second fatal accident at intersection

LOUISA — A Lawrence County man was killed Tuesday morning when his car collided with a coal truck at the intersection of US 23 and KY 3 north of Louisa. Police contribute the death of 83-year-old Charlie Bradley to failure to yield the right of way. The intersection has been the topic of considerable debate in Lawrence County and has been the scene of numerous accidents including two fatalities. The question of installing a traffic light is being discussed. (The Big Sandy News)

Martin teacher on trial for murder

PIKEVILLE — The second trial for the shooting death of John Mose Lester began earlier this week. Commonwealth's Attorney Jerry Patton, as special prosecutor, deems the shooting murder; the defense claims the right of self defense for Michael Kessinger, a Martin County school administrator. The shooting took place in the defendant's ex-wife's apartment, at which time "a scuffle began, blows were exchanged and Kessinger managed to pull a gun from under a bed...and a standoff developed," according to Patton. He continued that Kessinger shot Lester twice in the chest and once in the back. (The Appalachian News-Express)

President puts end to US 23 funding

PAINTSVILLE — In President Bush's 1990 budget, he opposed plans to build the highway between Paintsville and Prestonsburg because it has been funded in Congress with general revenues rather than with federal gasoline taxes as are most other highway projects. Similar recommendations for cutting federal funding for the four-laning project in Johnson County were made during the administration of President Reagan. This budget will not affect the $11.6 million in federal funding already allocated, but could set up a battle for additional funding from federal sources for the remainder of the proposed $25 million Johnson County project. (The Paintsville Herald)

Facing down coal trucks cause for jail

HARLAN COUNTY — A Leslie County woman will face trial April 10 in Harlan District Court on charges of obstructing a highway and disorderly conduct in connection with a standoff with about 30 coal trucks on a muddy mountain road. Joyce Osborne, 44, pleaded not guilty to the charges. Osborne was arrested in mid-January because she declined to move into the wrong lane of KY 2009 so that a coal truck could drive in her lane which was safer. Osborne is free on $204 bond and Leslie County Judge-Executive Allen Muncy called for the State Police to severely reprimand Trooper Clark for arresting her. Clark said the court should force Osborne to reimburse the drivers of the 30-40 truck drivers stalled in the standoff for lost wages. (The Mountain Eagle)

IBM gives grant to train teachers

MOREHEAD — IBM recently granted Morehead State University a $150,000 grant to train new and practicing teachers in the expanded use of technology in the classroom. The grant is a result of an effort among the university's three colleges. The grant includes a laboratory of networked IBM Personal System /2 workstations, IBM K-12 educational software and training/technical support. The materials will be used for undergraduate and continuing education courses for K-12 teachers. (The Morehead News)

kids, and everyone in the area," said DeRossett. "It's the kids who really need a place like this."

The group is in the process of establishing a non-profit organization, which will work to collect privately donated funds for the project. A competitive $20,000 federal grant may be available to the group, if it is able to raise matching funds, according to Sam Campbell of the Big Sandy Area Development District.

Campbell noted that only projects with high levels of private contribution receive this type of grant and that MACRO was the only group in the area, as far as he knew, with recreation as its primary focus.

The Martin council voted unanimously to support the organization with start-up funds of $1000. Council also agreed to provide MACRO with space in the new city building under construction, for meetings and records keeping.

Organizational officers of MACRO include DeRossett as president, Rodney Hutchinson as vice-president, Barry Risner as treasurer, and Lois Hutchinson as secretary.

Tom Williams, the contractor responsible for constructing the new Martin city building, reported to council on the progress of the new facility. He requested additional funding of $7,823 to enlarge the facility, construct a water cooler in the building, and bring the structure into better compliance with state fire codes. Council approved the request unanimously.

A request to provide water plant workers with radios was placed before council. The proposal was considered, but no decision was made.

Heated discussion arose between council and citizens attending the meeting over the costs of fire insurance within the city. Citizens requested that efforts be directed at upgrading firefighting capabilities, so that insurance premiums would be decreased.

Mayor Raymond Griffith also proposed that council repeal the ordinance that requires the city to provide fire protection outside of city limits to those paying for such services. Griffith noted that the small number of persons subscribing for this protection was inadequate.

Attending Wednesday night's meeting were Mayor Griffith and council members Johnny Maddox, Joe Simpson, Earrit Hayes, James Robinson, and Denzil Halbert.

Ditch time!

Helen Hammons was driving toward US 23 from Auxier Tuesday evening at about 6:15 p.m. when she apparently lost control of her vehicle and struck a tree. According to Auxier Fire Department reports, Hammons was rushed to Highlands Regional Medical Center. She was treated for minor neck strain and was released Wednesday.

Do I hear $22 million?

Joey Hicks holds up the first auction item of the evening at the Prestonsburg Jaycees Casino Night at the Holiday Inn last Friday. This furry creature is actually a radio, donated by Radio Shack of Prestonsburg, and it went for $22 million in "fun" money at the auction. Also assisting is Jaycee Lisa Meade. Other area merchants who donated were: Trends & Traditions, Verner Smith, Ken's Sport Shop, Prestonsburg Lottery Office, Zeplin's Subs and Yogurt, Wal-Mart, Bookworm Bookstore, The Bank Josephine, Floppy Mart, Readmore Bookstore, Sherry's Shoes, B&L Furniture, Worldwide Equipment, Commonwealth Insurance, J&J Liquors, Gene Crank, Crane Distributing, California Waterbeds, Holiday Inn-Sweet Georgia Brown's and Holiday Inn.

Hundreds of local veterans still eligible for bonus

With less than 30 days left only 622 of Floyd County's 1230 Vietnam era veterans have applied for their state bonuses.

Floyd County has an estimated 608 eligible veterans of a reported 108,000 statewide who can still apply for their Vietnam Era Veterans Bonus between now and Feb. 28. To date, more than 75,000 of Kentucky's veterans have applied with more than 10,000 of these applications coming from out of state.

Arnett.

Nearly every veteran who entered the service from Kentucky and had over 90 days active duty between Aug. 5, 1964, and May 15, 1975, is eligible, he continued.

number is 1-800-223-0713 or veterans may call (502) 564-5137 and (502) 564-5220. Hours of operation are 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

"Bonus applications are really starting to pour in. We have averaged more than 600 per day since Dec. 1, while prior to then we were averaging less than 400 a day. It appears that many veterans have been putting it off and are now being motivated by the approaching deadline. Please don't delay get your application in the mail today," urged Division of Veterans Affairs Director Larry L.

Application forms are available at every county clerk's office in the state, as well as National Guard Armories, Employment Services offices and most veterans organizations. All the veteran needs is a copy of his or her DD Form 214 and a copy of the application form. The application can usually be completed in about 10 minutes. The Bonus Branch toll free hot line

Cable theft lands four in jail

Four men were convicted recently in Floyd County Circuit Court of stealing cable belonging to South Central Bell Telephone Co., according to Art Willett of the telephone company.

The theft took place at the Garrett cut-thru on US 80. Arrested were Gerald Ray Maynard, Rodney Blackburn, Gary Blackburn and Jack Nelson.

Nelson and Maynard pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor charge of theft by unlawful taking and each received 90 days in jail.

Rodney Blackburn pleaded guilty to felony theft by unlawful taking and was sentenced to two years in prison. Gary Blackburn pleaded guilty to felony theft by unlawful taking and was sentenced to one year in prison.

Commonwealth's Attorney Jerry Patton noted that the theft of cable was a serious crime and would continue to be prosecuted rigorously, Willett said.

Open for business

The Dollar General Store has been erecting a building to house their much expanded stock for a couple of months, and yesterday the doors opened on the new location on North Lake Drive in Prestonsburg. The Dollar General Store offers affordable merchandise including clothing, soft goods, shoes, housewares, health and beauty aids, and home cleaning products. Prices are low because the store takes advantage of opportunistic buys, irregular and closeout merchandise, according to executives of the chain, based in Scottsville. Thursday store manager Phyllis Ousley greeted customers who came in for the opening. The store's hours are Monday through Saturday, 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Sundays from 1-6 p.m.

Technical School

The system was also able to coax Tom Hardwick out of retirement to teach English and social studies. Originally from Eastern Kentucky, Hardwick left the area and taught in Michigan for 25 years before coming back to retire. The idea of teaching his subject areas with a practical application in mind intrigues him, as does the quality of the student body.

Because of the stigma that's often attached to a vocational school, Hardwick says friends questioned his decision to teach there. "It's a joy," he says. "Here we have absolutely no discipline problem. The kids are here to learn. The biggest offense is smoking."

"What we wanted to do is to devise a vocational program that would prepare students for either a career after high school or for college," says Hall, adding that the academic classes taught at the school are college preparatory courses.

"For years, I've seen students go off to Morehead or another college for a year and come back because it just didn't work for them. Did you know that the retention rate for freshmen in many colleges is only 50 percent? That's because many students (after completing high school) see no other option but college," says Hall, who wants students to have options.

Brenda Hamilton is one of many students who are covering both angles. Hoping to get an athletic scholarship to college, Hamilton takes her classes in discrete math, English and communication seriously. But, should a scholarship not be forthcoming, she says her business and office training will allow her to get a job right after high school, work and save the money to go to college on her own later.

Keith Exley from Prestonsburg High School fully expects to go to college, first at Prestonsburg Community College and then the University of Georgia. He sees his emphasis in electronics at the technical high school as preparing him for a college major in electronic engineering.

Lantre Combs, on the other hand, goes Monday to take his entrance examination for Mayo Vocational/Technical School in Paintsville. From Hueysville, the Allen Central High School senior is taking machine shop at the technical high school and wants to complete his education at Mayo. Unlike most Mayo students, however, Combs will enter the post-graduate training having had such classes as discrete math, conceptual physics and computer drafting.

Combs, like many of the other students, takes some of his classes via satellite television. Students gather to watch the broadcast of a live class, and though more than a hundred miles from the teacher, they can still interact by phone. Later, if they want to review, they simply take a videotape of the class home and play it over as many times as they like.

Gary Frazier, assistant county superintendent, calls the technical high school "the best kept secret in Floyd County." Frazier adds that the school's program is the only one of its kind in the state. "People are beginning to come here from all over the state to look at what we're doing, instead of to criticize," the administrator says.

"It's hard to turn around the idea of this as a dumping ground," Hall says, referring to the stigma that has been traditionally attached to vocational schools in academic circles. "This school has turned some kids' lives around."

The vocational options include electronics, machine shop, business and office, welding, auto mechanics, carpentry and mine maintenance. Each area emphasizes a hands-on approach.

For instance, carpentry students are now remodeling the reception area in Principal Ronald Turner's office. With a casual, concerned attitude that helps to set the tone for the school, Turner compliments the students and allows them a great deal of freedom as they learn by doing.

Students also often get the opportunity to take field trips to businesses — a frequent stop is American Standard.

Administrators are also setting up a cooperative program where students will have the chance to get on-the-job experience at area businesses. "The plus for businesses," says Frazier, "is that they get a tax break and some really excited employees."

Local businesses have also supported the school by donating equipment. Worldwide Equipment, for example, gave three old computers for electronics students to work on.

Another asset of the school is pointed out by student Combs. "You get to meet students from all over the county that you would not have the opportunity to meet otherwise," he says.

The atmosphere at the technical school is a significant plus, as well. Students, faculty and administrators maintain a casual, but professional relationship and the respect they have for each other is quickly obvious to visitors. "The teachers like the students, and the students know it," Frazier says.

Respect and pride are also evidenced in the appearance of the school. It is, without doubt, one of the cleanest, cheeriest schools in the system. Walls are brightly painted and lively. Halls and classrooms are free of litter and graffiti. And despite the activity in classes such as auto mechanics and carpentry, the building complex is amazingly clean.

Says student Hamilton, "I didn't want to take it easy during my senior year, and this school offers me options. It's a great program."

Bridge collapse/ bad timing!

A county truck delivering gravel to a little used road in Salt Lick, near Hueysville, broke through a wooden bridge Wednesday and was temporarily trapped on what appeared to be private property. The gravel was spread on the roadway located near the homes of Harold and Orey Allen and Buster and Peggy Dudleson. Both couples noted that the county had maintained this section of roadway in the past. According to Jackie Edford Owens, magistrate for District 2 where the truck was operating, the roadway is considered to be an old county road, formerly serving the Salt Lick Community Church. Owens noted that repairs on the damaged bridge are underway.

Congratulations are in order to Carl and Trudy Hicks on the birth of their baby boy last week. Mrs. Hicks is the former Trudy Hunter of Dinwood and daughter of the late Everett and Sadie Hunter.

The flu bug has had and is still having its effect on local residents. We understand McArthur (Mack) Jacobs has been down with the flu. David "Blue Moon" Fitch also has been bitten by the bug. We wish them a speedy recovery.

Our sympathy is expressed to Earnest Hayes of Martin on the death of his wife and mother recently.

We saw Julia Conn the other day and she has been down with the flu also. Julia is feeling better now.

A church fellowship was held Sunday evening following the services at the Parkway Baptist Church in honor of the birthdays of Arnold Griffith, Renea Tussey and Cathy Music. Rue Hager baked the cake and the women of the church furnished the refreshments.

Also at the Parkway Baptist Church Sunday morning, dedication services were held for little Megan Lean Collett, daughter of Lisa Collett of Martin. Charles and Rue Hager were named God-parents for Megan Lean.

By Pam Shingler

When the media and the federal government discovered Appalachia, I was completing high school. Many of you remember that time in the '60s. We sat in front of our televisions and watched in dramatic black and white as the nation was told just how deprived and backward we folks in east Kentucky, West Virginia, east Tennessee, west Virginia, north Georgia and the Carolinas were.

Reporters invaded our unplumbed houses, our unstocked cupboards, our unpaved highways, our unclean coal mines, our unmodern schools. Clearly, we saw, we were un-mainstream, on the fringe of how American society defined itself.

Much as many other Eastern Kentuckians at the time, I didn't attempt to dispute the depiction. After all, I'd read the Bobbsey Twins and Dick and Jane and I knew my frame of reference was somehow different. I'd watched Ozzie and Harriet, the Donna Reed Show and Father Knows Best and I knew that they held few similarities to my own experience.

While my family didn't jibe with the images of the stereotypical hill-folk shown in Huntley and Brinkley or on the pages of Time, I couldn't deny their reality. I'd spent my first 14 years in a house with no bathroom. Most of my clothes were made by my grandmother or were hand-me-downs from cousins or teachers. My grandmother's garden fed us all year long, with supplements from federal commodities. I grew up on tales of hardships of the depression and mining tragedies.

Among my mother's family, where books, newspapers and magazines were always in abundance, open and read, only one had finished high school, and I was about to become one of the first of the cousins to be graduated and the first to go to college.

Though living a somewhat different life, I fully believed the picture of Appalachians painted by the media in those days.

And although I was a hot shot at Paintsville High School, which had always had a reputation for excellence, I doubted not only my region, my school and my family, but also myself. Teachers' compliments, family support, state and national awards, good scores on national tests, scholarship bids from top flight schools—none could allay my doubts. So I was a star, so what? I was still from Appalachia which was so under par by mainstream American standards that my above average here would be below average when I was forced into the larger world.

I entered college in Ohio, terrified that I could not make the grade. I was convinced that my experience in a substandard subculture would find me wanting. I would be competing with the Donna Reed students, those whose education and upbringing were obviously superior to mine—and I would fail.

Of course, those fears were unfounded (though never completely obliterated). I found I could compete successfully alongside students who had attended better funded schools and who lived on sidewalk streets in cul-de-sacs rather than along mud roads in hollows of hills. But it's a lesson I've had to learn many times over. The anxiety still pops up on occasion and I have to grapple with it all over, just as I did at 18.

For this reason, my heart aches for students in Floyd County schools. They're faced with a double whammy of wearing the negative tag that's been put on Appalachia, as well as trying to learn in a school system that's been labeled unacceptable both locally and statewide. They must tackle the onus of being a part of the worst of the worst—or so it would seem. What must that do to their sense of worth, their hopes, their dreams? My experience, I suspect, doesn't begin to compare.

Perhaps it's time we take some steps to make their way easier. Perhaps it's time we start talking about what is good about our area and about our schools. Just glancing at the dean's list notices that come to this newspaper from colleges across the state, I have to believe there are some good things happenings.

That's not to say we should cease criticizing or cease expecting improvements or cease pushing for reforms. But it does mean working together to promote the good. It does mean teachers and administrators and school board members and parents and other taxpayers sitting down together in a spirit of goodwill with one thing in mind: the welfare of our children. It does mean seeing a broader picture and subverting the impulse for narrow, selfish ends. It does mean that all the warring factions should extend the olive branch to each other and work together to further the education of our children.

Only then can we begin to remove the damning stigma of being from Floyd County and from Appalachia. Until that is done, we are cheating our children and condemning them to never know how bright and how special they really are or can become.

Letters To The Editor

Agrees with Collins

Dear Editor,
I'm in agreement with Gorman Collins Jr. The magistrates receive a nice hefty salary a year. Why should taxpayers buy a car for them? Let them set aside part of their pay a year for upkeep on their own cars or trucks like the rest of the working people.

Does the county give all of its employees free cars and insurance to get to and from work? If these magistrates get a free vehicle and insurance, are the county employees going to get one, too?

If the magistrates manage to get a free new vehicle, the next thing you know they'll want a chauffeur, a car phone, a computer, a fax machine, a private office with a secretary, and possibly a chamber maid. This could go on and on. So let's stop here with no free vehicles for magistrates.

The money spent on four vehicles at a cost of $80,000 could improve secondary roads. Example, in district three, south of Hi Hat near the new school across from the tunnel, the road is washed out. If you met a coal truck, you'd wind up in the creek, and the train tunnel at Hi Hat is caving in. Why hasn't that been taken care of? Does the taxpayer have to wait until a child or adult gets trapped in there before something is done?

Also, on Meade Hill, the guard rails are all rotted. Water runs across the road all year long, which in winter could be very dangerous.

This list could go on forever. I'm surprised with the high mileage on the magistrates' vehicles that they don't see this themselves! I guess they are more worried about their prestige and to heck with the taxpayers. You'd think they were dukes and duchess.

If the magistrates don't get their new free vehicle and don't like it, they know what they can do! Why should they be any better than the people taking the US Census.

Keep up the good work, Mr. Gorman Collins Jr. Expose all the abuse of the taxpayers' money.

It appears to me that Gorman Collins Jr. doesn't need a "suck bottle." He's not trying to suck the taxpayer dry like the magistrates. It's time to wean the magistrates. Maybe they should ride a bike to work. It's cheap and the county could afford that.

Contends road is a waste

Dear Editor,
I was reared in Floyd County, Kentucky, and have resided and worked in eastern Kentucky all of my life. I am very interested in the progress of eastern Kentucky and would like to see our communities prosper once again as in the "Coal Boom" days.

I have read, with much regret, of our many roads needing repair and our substandard bridges already unsafe for travel. However, there seems to be no money for these needed repairs.

U.S. 23 needs connecting and completed. The people in Letcher and Harlan Counties need US 119 completed, yet with our petty politicians and "sweetheart" deals, these things can never be.

I am sending you a map with a proposed road marked in red, linking Minnie, Kentucky, on Ky. 122 and the four-lane highway of Ky. 80 at the mouth of Gosling Branch of Beaver Creek in Floyd County. This road project was not wanted by the citizens of both sides of the mountain where this road is projected. The citizens believe this project is a waste of the taxpayers money since there are so many other roads and bridges that are in great need of repair.

All engineers that I have spoken with, can't believe that this road was ever proposed, yet it is well on its way. The proposed road (three-lane) has been surveyed and the right-of-way is now being bought from Minnie to the mouth of Gosling Branch.

The cost when this project was first talked about in 1984-1985, was approximately $13.5 million. The engineers now are talking $35-$40 million. So long as you and I, as voters and citizens of the Commonwealth, condone this type of frivolous expenditure, it will never stop.

I thought you might like to see this bit of information. I am sure there are other political "babies" in our state.

If some of these unneeded (political baby) projects were cancelled, the monies combined would be sufficient for funding for US 119 and US 23.

Concerned over apathy

Dear Editor,

I wish to express my concern for an easily forgotten group in our county: the mentally handicapped. Being the county director for Special Olympics, I have been requested to raise funds for this year's games. The rudeness and apathy with which I have been faced during my quest for contributions has been simply appalling.

Special Olympics is for mentally handicapped persons from 8 to 21 years of age. Most of the participants are our public school students. Many times these students are from underprivileged homes. For these students, Special Olympics may be the only opportunity available to boost self esteem, to simply feel accepted and valued—especially if they progress to the state and national games. Research has also shown that there is a direct correlation between participation in Special Olympics and improved academic performance.

I would like to take this time to ask the area businesspeople that previously declined to donate to please reconsider. If we could receive just $5 from each businessperson, our organization could make leaps and bounds.

Also at this time, I would like to thank the businesspeople who did contribute. I want to assure them that a formal thank you listing the names of their businesses will still be made at the conclusion of the fund drive.

Donations may be sent to Area #16 Special Olympics, Jerome Kanney, CPA, 130 Hibbert St., Pikeville 41501.

Magistrate responds

Dear Editor,

To answer Mr. Gorman Collins Jr.'s letter to the editor last week:

You stated that the magistrates made "over $28,000" per year and "over $300.00" per month expense money. Why don't you get your facts straight you so-called news reporter? Mr. Collins, counting everything, we don't even make $25,000 a year and that's before "Uncle Sam" takes his cut of over $5,800. I noticed that you had a nickname for each Magistrate and the Judge in last week's Floyd County Times. I've got one for you, too, Mr. Gorman Collins Jr.—"THE OLD WHINER". Yeah, I did say that you needed a 7-foot suckbottle in the Floyd County Times, but WHAT I FORGOT to say was that you needed it filled up with your Dad's famous "mare's milk"—"TOOTIE FRUITIE" flavor.

Now GormBob—maybe you can go out here and drag out a few more of those people that are AGAINST ME and put them on the radio so THEY can talk about me. It don't matter "HOW LOUD YOU CRY"—YOU ARE NOT going to change my way of voting on anything.

You talked about The Floyd County Times' credibility on presenting the news. At least they are not out here running up and down the hollows trying to find somebody that is AGAINST us and grabbing them and putting them on the radio on your so-called "NEWS" Broadcast—All it takes to get on your "NEWS" Broadcast is to be AGAINST the Magistrates or the Judge.

It's a good thing for the people of District 1, Mr. Collins, that you didn't get elected their Magistrate IF you think that attending one meeting a month is the only thing a Magistrate has got to do.

—Jackie Edford Owens
Magistrate—Dist. 2

Abolish position

Dear Editor,

Two years ago, I was elected Kentucky Railroad Commissioner by 47,985 votes on a platform to abolish the office of Kentucky Railroad Commissioner.

On Jan. 10, 1990, I delivered a letter to each member of the State Legislature in which I gave the reasons why this office should be abolished.

By abolishing this office, we can save the taxpayers of Kentucky about $100,000 a year which can be used for our schools and roads.

State Rep. Paul Mason of Whitesburg has introduced a bill which, if passed this session, would place an amendment on the November 1990 ballot and let the voters decide if they want this office abolished.

I think there would be very little problem in passing this amendment if it's on the November 1990 ballot.

Another bill introduced this session by State Rep. Ronald Cyrus of Flatwoods, would increase the Railroad Commissioner's salary from $3,000 to $15,000 a year. I am against this pay raise bill because the Railroad Commissioners with no duties are now over paid.

Over the past five years, the Chairman of the Kentucky Railroad Commission, Henry Spalding, a Louisville Insurance Agent, has taken 11 junkets to such places as New Orleans, Orlando, Los Angeles and New York at anywhere from $500 to $1,300 a trip.

Any news stories you can write in your paper concerning this abuse of the taxpayers' money would be appreciated by me.

I would also like to ask that all voters contact their State Representative and State Senator and let them know that they are in favor of abolishing the office of Kentucky Railroad Commissioner and they are against raising the salary of the Railroad Commissioners from $3,000 to $15,000.

If you have any questions, please telephone me at 606/436-3585.

KY Railroad Commissioner

Proud of roots

Dear Editor,

I thank God I'm from Eastern Kentucky. I was raised at Garrett. After I got married, we moved to Indiana so (my husband) could get a job. We have been here since 1951, but it isn't like home. I have got a mother down there yet, and it is still home to me.

I think "48 Hours" should have showed some of the nice homes and other beautiful places to see in Eastern Kentucky. I want 10 of the stickers that ... said I'm from Eastern Kentucky and proud of it.

I have raised seven children and they all love Kentucky, too. You can be sure these people up here love the Kentucky cooking.

I will be proud to put the stickers on both of my cars. My children will be proud of them, too.

Legislative Prospective

By Rep. Greg Stumbo

During this short work week of the Kentucky General Assembly, bill movement increased noticeably. In addition, the Governor again spoke to a joint session of the Legislature, this time in his State of the Commonwealth address.

But, even before legislators returned to the Capitol, the Governor launched a television ad campaign which created serious misconceptions about the state's General Fund and its relationship to the General Assembly.

The advertisements give the impression that legislators use the General Fund for some sort of "slush fund" and possibly use the fund for something other than government-related purposes. Of course, those who are familiar with the operation of state government understand that this is a ridiculous accusation. The General Fund is the largest of seven operational funds through which all government programs are funded, most of which goes to fund elementary, secondary and higher education.

The Revenue Cabinet is responsible for collecting billions of dollars in taxes, of which a majority is deposited into the General Fund. Furthermore, the Kentucky Constitution plainly places responsibility for state government spending to members of the Kentucky General Assembly, the public officials elected by the residents of the Commonwealth to represent their interests in Frankfort.

No decision has been made at this point in the legislative session as to where lottery proceeds are to be utilized.

As members of the House of Representatives, we recognize our role in the budget process and are ready and willing to work with the executive branch to make efficient and effective use of all revenue generated for government programs.

The Governor, most certainly, has an important role in the budget planning process—to propose a budget which the Legislature evaluates and uses as a basis for the final budget bill that is enacted.

Bill action for the week included House passage of the so-called "Living-Will" legislation. According to the bill sponsor, the measure gives terminally ill people the right to die with dignity in the event of illness or injury resulting in irreversible coma by allowing adults to execute a document declaring their wish to forego artificial life supports. The controversial legislation had been introduced unsuccessfully in several previous sessions.

There are many, many people in my district who are deserving of recognition and applause for their contributions to the people and heritage of Eastern Kentucky. This week it was my honor and pleasure to publicly commend two such individuals.

Luther Johnson celebrated his 83rd birthday Feb. 4. Luther has been a distinguished member and officer of the Wheelwright Local of the United Mine Workers of America for 60 years and has achieved the longest record of underground mining in Floyd County. He is a deeply devoted father of 16 children and epitomizes the characteristics of a solid citizen, family man and dedicated worker. House Resolution 80 honors Luther Johnson on his 83rd birthday and the centennial anniversary of the UMWA.

Everyone who has had the pleasure of knowing Father Ralph Beiting, founder of the Christian Appalachian Project, has been concerned for him since he was injured in an automobile accident on Jan. 2. I was heartened to learn that Father Beiting was released from the hospital last week and is making a speedy recovery.

I took the opportunity last week to introduce House Resolution 89 honoring Father Beiting for his selfless devotion to creating a spirit of community among the people of Appalachia through his spiritual guidance.

There are few people whose lives Father Beiting has not touched in some way, be it through his now-famous street preaching, his many educational and employment projects, or his programs on behalf of the elderly, children, teenagers and families in crisis. The House of Representatives salutes Father Beiting and wishes him Godspeed in making a full recovery from his injuries and for his swift return to the many ministries that have made Floyd County a better place to live.

I appreciate the many phone calls and letters I have received from concerned residents of Floyd County thus far in this legislative session. I encourage you to keep in touch with me and to voice your opinions on the many issues I will be considering during the remainder of this session. You may contact me by calling toll-

House Week in Review

By Rep. Russell Bentley

The "living will," annual legislative sessions and a plan to prevent high-school dropouts from obtaining a driver's license were just a few of the issues tackled last week by the House of Representatives and its committees.

In a week marked by the governor's State of the Commonwealth address and action on many high-profile issues, several important bills advanced a step along the legislative process.

The House approved a measure that generated a lot of emotion on both sides—the so-called "living will." Supporters of the measure said it was necessary to give people a degree of control over their final days. Under the bill, adults would be allowed to state their desire in writing that they not be attached to mechanical life-support systems in the event of a clearly terminal condition.

Sponsors of House Bill 113 emphasized the legislation would not permit the withholding of food, water or medicine, and would not apply to pregnant women.

The bill cleared the chamber 69-29, marking the first time such a measure had passed a House committee and the full chamber.

One amendment attached to the legislation would prohibit doctors, nurses or health-care employees from being demoted, disciplined or passed over for promotion if they refuse to comply with a patient's living will declaration on moral, religious or professional grounds.

The measure now goes to the Senate for consideration.

The Elections and Constitutional Amendments Committee last week sent to the floor a measure allowing the General Assembly to call itself into special session if two-thirds of the membership signs a petition.

The bill takes the form of a constitutional amendment, which would have to be approved by voters in a referendum. The current constitution allows only the governor to call an extraordinary session of the Legislature and to set the agenda.

The same committee also approved a second bill to change the constitution. House Bill 16 would allow the General Assembly to establish a legislative mechanism for reviewing, approving or rejecting administrative regulations during or between legislative sessions.

Regulations are not really laws but have essentially the same force. Some of my colleagues feel some state agencies are not following the intent of legislation passed by the General Assembly when regulations are drafted.

Both measures must be approved by the House and the Senate in order to have them placed on the November ballot for voter approval. Up to four amendments may be placed on the ballot at any one time.

Meanwhile, the House Education Committee approved a bill preventing high school dropouts from getting or keeping a driver's license. The bill calls for school administrators to notify the state Transportation Cabinet when a student has had a sufficient number of unexcused absences or has failed to pass four courses.

A bill to secure funding for the purchase of endangered natural areas in the state, including wetlands, also cleared its first hurdle last week. The Appropriations and Revenue Committee approved House Bill 65, which would create the Kentucky Heritage Land Conservation Fund Board. The board would use proceeds from a deed-transfer tax to buy natural areas around the state being threatened with destruction.

Bailey clarifies park issue

Dear Editor,
An article in the Friday, Feb. 2, edition of the Floyd County Times and a letter to the editor in the same edition furnishes some misleading information about a piece of legislation introduced by Sen. Joe Meyer and passed by the Kentucky State Senate on Thursday, Feb. 1.

I received a call from Fred James, Prestonsburg City Manager, on Thursday and was told of his concern about the legislation which he interpreted to harm the monies going to development and renovations at Archer Park. I talked to Sen. Meyer and expressed these concerns to him.

Sen. Meyer told me he had talked to Mayor Ann Latta and assured her that this legislation will not affect the monies the City of Prestonsburg is collecting from the motel and restaurant tax. Sen. Meyer's legislation allows for the expenditure of this tax money on any project "relative" to tourism.

When the legislation was called for a vote on the Senate floor, I asked Sen. Meyer to reaffirm for me the conversation we had earlier that the legislation would not affect the motel and restaurant tax revenues the City of Prestonsburg is spending on Archer Park. Sen. Meyer reaffirmed this.

After the session, I called City Manager Fred James and told him that the legislation would not affect funding of Archer Park from the motel and restaurant tax revenues since the Park encourages tourism in Floyd County and Prestonsburg. Mr. James agreed with Sen. Meyer's and my interpretation of the legislation.

I appreciate Fred James calling my attention to this legislation and invite all Floyd Countians to contact me, 1-800-372-7181, regarding any issue before the General Assembly.

1990 outlook good for state farmers

Economists at the recent Kentucky Agriculture Outlook conference in Lexington said farmers should expect another good year in 1990.

"We are looking at a financial situation that will be stronger in 1990 than in any other time since the early part of the 1990s," said Larry Jones, chairman of the University of Kentucky's agriculture economics department.

Jones said the strength can be linked to cautious investment behavior, effective controlling of costs, increased cash financing, and a continued restructuring and write-off of outstanding debts. He said net cash income for farmers should reach near $55 billion in 1990.

"Still, the government estimates that one out of every 10 commercial farmers is still in financial distress or is at least financially vulnerable," he said.

Jones said farmers can expect to see farm commodity sales exceed $160 billion nationally this year as a result of what could be record crop productions.

The next five years should continue to be stable for farmers because grain stocks are staying at a more controllable level, farmers have learned to control costs, and because of soaring exports.

"The value of the dollar has trended downward since 1985, which means that US commodities are cheaper for some overseas buyers," said Michael Reed, director of the UK Center for Agricultural Export Development.

Library 'programs' for computer fans

Interest in computers has grown in leaps and bounds in recent years, and many people have banded together in computer support groups to make obtaining computer information easier.

But no such support has been readily available in Floyd County, and it was necessary to travel some distance just to meet with other people interested in computers.

This is no longer the case. The Floyd County Library and local area computer enthusiasts announce the organization of a computer user support group, called the Prestonsburg Area Computer Enthusiasts (PACE). The initial meeting was Tuesday, Jan. 30, and was considered a success, though, due to short notice, attendance was not quite as large as was hoped.

At the next meeting, scheduled for Feb. 20, a charter will be adopted, officers will be elected, and membership fees will be discussed.

Formation of a local users' group has been the subject of discussion among many area computer users for some time. But the lack of meeting facility with access to computers for copying files prevented such an organization from forming.

However, last October, local hobbyist Jim Daniels of Auxier was contacted by personnel at the Floyd County Library. They were interested in starting a shareware software collection for patron use. (To those that are not familiar with computers, software is the set of instructions that tells the computer how to do a specific task.)

Shareware is computer software that is copyrighted by the author, but that is made available to anyone to "try before you buy." In other words, a person may take it home, put it in the computer, and see how well it performs the function for which it was intended. Then, if the person decides that the software will be useful, he or she pays for it.

Each software disk contains registration information, including price, as requested by the author. If the user chooses to keep the program, payment of the suggested amount is sent to the author. The author will usually then send the user a more detailed instruction manual, a more recent version of the software, often both of the above, or will at least inform the user when a new version of the product is available.

As Daniels and library representatives discussed computers, the prospect of installing an electronic bulletin board was broached. At a later meeting, it was agreed that, since both the computer users and the library desire to make information available to the public, a joint venture could be agreed upon.

The result was that Daniels agreed to supply the hardware, and David Allen of Alarm Service Company, Prestonsburg, would do the set-up and programming and train library staff in system operations. The Floyd County Library would supply a working area in which the computer could be set up and then install a dedicated telephone line solely for the use of the bulletin board.

In addition, the library will be the location at which the users group will meet, and will allow access to its computer so that members will be able to exchange files.

The PACE/Library bulletin board uses RBBS, the industry standard for bulletin boards, and has been in beta-testing state since Jan. 10. Though not yet in its final form, it is now ready for operation, and many of its functions are already available. Protocols are 1200 baud no parity, 8 bits, one stop bit. The telephone number is 886-8403. This is not a voice number.

A caller may now leave messages, read messages left in his or her name, make comments, join conferences on a variety of topics, read bulletins, obtain information on joining PACE, down-load/up-load files, open doors to various topics, obtain current library notices and information and much more.

If this sounds too confusing, don't worry. The PACE group exists to share information on computers of every type, and each meeting has something for everyone, whether novice or professional user. Experienced users will gladly answer any questions you may have, and will give useful shortcuts and tips for users of all levels. No question will be small, and if not one knows the answer, other groups will be contacted for that information.

Also, from time to time, special speakers will give talks on various topics. Special Interest Groups (or SIGS) will form and will cover many different subjects. These will include groups on various computer types, such as IBM and compatibles, Apple, McIntosh, Commodore, Amiga, Tandy/Radio Shack, and others.

Programming, software and many other topics will be the central idea behind other conference groups. These SIGs will meet immediately after the primary activities of the evening.

The next PACE meeting is set for Tuesday, Feb. 20 at 7:30 p.m. at the Floyd County Library, and is open to everyone. Call 886-2981 for more information. Ask for the Sysop, or leave a message if he is unavailable.

PCC December nursing graduates

The December 1989 graduates of the Associate Degree Nursing Program at Prestonsburg Community College were honored at a Pinning Ceremony, Dec. 17 at the college. The graduates will write the NCLEX-RN examination this month to become registered nurses. Awards presented during the ceremony included: Excellence in Academic Achievement (graduating with a 4.0 gpa) to Clementine Thacker and Excellence in Clinical Performance to Belinda Baker. The graduates, front row, from left, are Tamra Poe Howard, Debra Mayse, Karen Scott, Teresa Caudill, Rhonda Ratliff, Kim Price and Kathy Chaffins; second row: Belinda Baker, Kathy Maldonado, Clementine Thacker, Linda Brown and Joyce Rivera. Absent when picture was taken was Peggy Spears.

Spelling Bee winner

Jared Hall is the winner of the Betsy Layne Elementary School spelling bee contest. He is the son of Dan and Connie Hall of Banner. A student in Mrs. Barnes' fourth grade class, Hall will represent BLES in the countywide spelling bee at Prestonsburg Elementary School today.

Driver's education offered at PCC

A new session of driver's education classes will begin Thursday, Feb. 15, at Prestonsburg Community College.

Open to anyone 16 years old or older who has a learner's permit, the class helps participants learn to operate a car competently and according to Kentucky law in preparation for the driving examination for an operator's license.

According to instructor John Noakes, after the first class meeting which involves instruction and discussion, six individual driving sessions will be arranged to fit each participant's schedule and goals. The on-the-road instruction takes place in a specially equipped driver's education car.

For more information about this class, call the office of continuing education and community services, 886-3863, ext. 278, at the college.

Prestonsburg Elementary Cheerleaders

The Prestonsburg Elementary Cheerleaders have recently completed a very successful year. Their awards include: First place, YMCA Regional Competition; third place, cheer division, Mountain Classic; first place, Floyd County. They are: first row, Leah Ann Daniels; second row, Dean Lufferty and Jodi Pelphrey; third row, Amanda Leslie, Leigh Billips, Staci Hart and Angelia Neeley; fourth row: Stephanie Wells, Misty Price and Jennifer Walters. The girls are sponsored by Jayne Pitts and Sharon Neeley.

Returns books on time

Recently the children of Martha Damron's first grade class were awarded a party held in the library. The students had consistently returned their books on time, more so than any other class in Prestonsburg Elementary. The party was given by librarian Jayne Pitts and library clerk Rita Tackett.

Local student on WKU list

Lance Arthur Daniels of Van Lear has been named to the dean's list for fall semester at Western Kentucky University.

Daniels, a junior, is designated a President's Scholar, the distinction for students whose grade point average is 3.8 or higher out of a possible 4.0.

Hall makes dean's list

Stephanie R. Hall of Stanville qualified for the dean's list for the 1989 fall semester at Union College, Barbourville, according to Dr. Paul S. Moore, vice president of academic affairs at the college.

In order to be included on the dean's list, a student must have completed at least 12 hours of graded work with a 3.25 grade point average for the semester.

Ashland Oil gives grant for GED training

First Lady Martha Wilkinson and Paul E. Patton, director of the GED Foundation for Adult Education, recently accepted a $25,000 grant presented to the Foundation by Ashland Oil.

Judy Thomas, president of the Ashland Oil Foundation, made the presentation in the state reception room of the Capitol.

The GED Foundation for Adult Education has committed to assisting the undereducated throughout the state in getting their GED and providing opportunities for these individuals to further their education.

The Foundation accepts contributions to fund projects, such as providing testing fees for participants who are prepared to take the test and have a financial need; preparing and distributing a video tape promoting adult education, stressing the importance of the GED and relating education to economic development; providing college and vocational scholarships to GED recipients; and other activities to promote adult education.

Teenage pregnancy: Solutions to a growing problem

(Third in a series)

by Tess A. Whitmer
Staff Writer

You are a high school student and you want an education; you get pregnant and decide to keep the baby. What do you do?

An alarming number of girls throughout the country are faced with this decision every year. To decrease the number of high school dropouts, solutions must be developed. Betsy Layne High School has one solution.

A nursery/day care center has begun at the school, thanks to a teacher who saw the need and applied for, and got, the funding.

In 1988 an alternative school was

1990 Leukemia Society poster child

Six-year-old Joseph Conrad, son of John and Annette Conrad of Louisville, has been named 1990 Poster Child by the Kentucky Chapter of the Leukemia Society of America, according to Campaign Chairperson Martha Wilkinson. "He is such a happy and outgoing person. He is living proof of the effectiveness of modern treatment and research sponsored by the Leukemia Society," Wilkinson said. Joseph is referred to by parents and friends, is a first grade student at Henry Watterson Elementary School. He has a twin brother, John. Young Conrad will be featured in television, radio and newsprint public service announcements throughout the year and will make special appearances at most Leukemia Society-sponsored events.

PHS Academic Team looking to Governor's Cup competition

Prestonsburg High School's academic team has turned in an outstanding academic season thus far. Coming off last year's final record of 26 wins and 13 losses, PHS has an overall win-lose record of 36-12 with the Governor's Cup academic competition still ahead.

The team's expectations run high that they will finish with more than 40 victories.

The PHS Academic Team is still in the running to win WOWK-13's High-Q competition. Prestonsburg has advanced to the High-Q quarter finals and will face Capital High School of Charleston, W. Va., on March 17. PHS will appear on the March 10 taping of High-Q in a match against Portsmouth Clay.

The academic team looks forward to this Saturday's District Governor's Cup to be held at McDowell High School. Hopes are high that PHS will win the District because Prestonsburg will be host to the Regional Governor's Cup on Saturday, Feb. 24.

made a mistake, but it's not worth throwing them on the trash heap and saying 'all right, you made one mistake, now we are not going to give you another chance.' These are fine girls and I'm very, very proud of them."

Huffman said the mothers who come back are top notch students and often face a lot of obstacles upon their return, from their husbands, parents, teachers and the community.

"These girls are very determined. They are real workers, and they don't want to be on welfare. They need a lot of support and need people to tell them this is the right thing to do, and they don't always get it," she continued.

The nursery doesn't cater solely to BLHS students, as Huffman points out. This high school does not have the highest pregnancy rate in the county, and the only reason it was child. The students see them coming to school hauling a book bag in one arm and a baby in the other, and with no money in their pockets and they realize the realities of parenthood."

A specially contracted driver is supplied by the school system to drive these mothers and babies to school and the nursery is staffed with a full-time teachers aide and a part-time volunteer.

Even with all the benefits to the program though, mothers are reluctant to come to Betsy Layne. Huffman cites the school's negative image as the reason, but adds that this reputation is magnified and things aren't as bad as is rumored.

Because of this, Huffman thought of moving the nursery to Floyd County Technical High School (formerly Garth Vocational School). "After some discussion we determined this was not a viable option.

located at BLHS is that she was the only teacher willing to take it.

Huffman has sent letters to girls she knows have dropped out because of pregnancy and invites them to transfer to BLHS. Also other students recruit for her, telling their friends and relatives about the program.

"I think it's having a positive effect on the other students," Huffman said. "These parents, both mothers and fathers, are very vocal and tell the others just what it's like having a

They want to get a regular education from their regular school, and I don't blame them," she said.

Huffman noted that since the nursery was opened, there have been fewer pregnant students at Betsy Layne. This is why she has sent letters to other schools. She feared that the day care could not justify itself for next year. But just this week she was notified from Frankfort that the nursery had operating funds for another

Floyd County Families: Our Heritage

I've been thinking about how dad used to tell about how they were brought up. They always went barefoot all summer. In the Fall granddad would make all of them a pair of shoes. These did them until the next spring when they could go barefoot again.

I can remember my dad saying there was very little work for a young man to do. He hired out to a Martin—to help him raise a crop. He lived on the Simps Martin Branch over around Drift on Left Beaver. He worked all summer until the crop was laid—by in the fall. His wages for the summer were $15.00 and room and board.

He was coming back home. As he crossed the hill he sat down on top and counted his money. His clothes were all worn out and he was trying to figure how to make that $15.00 go the farthest. He needed everything and $15.00 could go just so far. While sitting there, he thought, "there must be a better way to make a living." He had seen in the paper where professor Byington in Prestonsburg was starting a school for boys. He had a big house and was furnishing room and board and letting them pay them when they got through school or through that year. He decided he'd go to Prestonsburg and see about it. He bought a new outfit of clothes and walked into Prestonsburg. He got to the professor and told him his story. The professor agreed to enroll him in school and take him in. If he would study hard enough to pass the exam at the end of the term. They were always given an exam and those who passed were given a certificate to teach and Alex could pay him back that Fall when he taught school. So dad was perfectly willing to do that. He bought another change of clothes and with what was left over he bought some second-hand books.

Dad said, "No one ever studied as hard as I did during that term." He passed the exam and got the certificate. He started teaching school on Big Mud. I don't know what they paid then, not very much. There were only five months of school. He said that every time he got paid he'd walk to Prestonsburg and paid on what he owed the professor. I guess it took about all he made because I can remember when he taught all eight grades in a one room school for $36.00 a month. Then they raised it to $45.00. The last years he taught he got $60.00 a month.

When he went back to school, the next term he took his brother Johnny and three cousins. Charlie and Ike Roberts and Alex Hamilton. They all enrolled. When they took the exam dad made the first class certificate. Charlie and Ike and Johnny passed but Alex Hamilton didn't make it. He dropped out. The rest went ahead and made teachers.

I thought Bud would like to know how his dad got started. I know his name is James but he will always be Bud to me. We always called him that when he stayed with us so much as we played together.

Back then when anyone wanted to make something out of themselves—there were always up-hill struggles because there wasn't much to do to make anything then.

I think I left out some back relatives I didn't tell about Aunt Jane—dad's sister married a Marshall. Son John, married Joyce Carver. Martha, Elizabeth, Tona, Merve, Sally and Mary Jane. I don't know who they all married.

Myrtle (Myrtie) married Bishop Hunter. Mary Jane married Craig Hunter. Elizabeth married Jim Harrington. Uncle Bill's boy Frank married Martie Lawson. They had 3 children. Iris married Burlin Elliott (Green)—Ishmall married Bessie Collins. Margaret—Marty married Betty Gayheart. Aunt Mary's family—married John Ferrell—Joe never married—Cleveland married Louise Howell. Gladys married (1) Susie Harvey—no children—(2) Alice Oney—died of TB—(3) Mable Harvey—Lula married Calvin Moore son, Hillard—(2) Eugene Webb—Charlie married Ellen Hamilton—Estill—Cleo—Katy, married Dayton Duvall.

When the civil war broke upon the country, the Meade family was divided, and their sons served in different armies. Lemuel Meade, son of Rhodes and Sally Richardson Meade, went into the confederate army, serving in the 10th Ky. Infantry. His brother, Rhodes, enlisted in the Union Army March 10, 1864 on Mud Creek, in Floyd County, as a private in Co. K. 39th. KY. INF. Robert, John P. and McDonald, all brothers to Rhodes Jr., served in this same 39th K. INF. Robert was in Co. B, but John P. and McDonald were in Co. K with Rhodes. They were in the battle of Puncheon, April 14, 1864 and were sent to Tug River, in pursuit of the confederate Col. Smith's forces, and later put down the guerrillas on Little Sandy River. Rhodes served as a scout during most of his term in the army. While on furlough in the spring of 1864, he was captured on Beaver Creek by Col. Diamond's Cavalry, and spent two months in prison at Christiansburg, Virginia. Upon being paroled, he rejoined his command at Paintsville, Ky.

He was discharged, September 15, 1865, and returned to his avocation of farmer in Floyd County near Laynesville, the present Harold, Ky.

Pike County was unionist, almost to the man, as was Johnson Co. but in Floyd County, there was cleavage in the Allens, Meades, Strattons, and many other family groups.

Typical of the impending crisis was the election day voting at Laynesville precinct in Floyd County, in the Presidential Election of 1860, when the entire state rejected their native son, Lincoln. He received only 1366 votes state wide. Here lived the Laynes, Meades, Hatchers, and other pioneer families, some adherent to the north, most sympathizing with the south. At the mouth of Coldwater, lived Lindsay Layne, a son-in-law of Moses Meade. Layne was a union protagonist. He was told not to attempt to vote for Lincoln, as guns would bar his way. He went to the polls, accompanied by his son Moses. When Layne entered the voting place he called out to the clerk, "Mark one down for old Abe." Moses did likewise. Thus Lincoln received two votes at Laynesville, two votes cast in the face of unfired guns because men respect courage everywhere. It is interesting now to observe that descendants of the pioneer Meade, who brought slaves into the valley, split in their opinions, as Meade brothers went into opposite camps. Johnson twins arrive

SARAH, REBECCA JOHNSON
Sarah Kaitlyn and Rebecca Kalli Johnson were born Thursday, Jan. 4, to Gary and Karen Johnson of Silver Lake, Ind., at the Warsaw Community Hospital. Sarah arrived at 10:13 a.m., weighing 4 pounds, 7 ounces and measuring 18 inches. Rebecca was born at 10:38 a.m. and weighed 4 pounds and measured 18-1/2 inches. The grandparents are Goldia Johnson of Martin and the late Henry Johnson and Clyde and Ruby Bates of Salyersville. Great-grandparents are Flurinda Tackett of Bevinsville and Pearl Johnson of Martin. The twins join a sister, Kimberly, 15.

New arrival for Castles

VICTORIA ELIZABETH CASTLE
Victoria "Tora" Elizabeth Castle was born at 6:55 a.m. on Thursday, Jan. 18 at Our Lady of the Way Hospital, Martin. She weighed 7 pounds, 11 ounces and measured 19 inches. The new parents are Danny and Elizabeth Fugate Castle of Hi Hat. The baby's father is a PFC serving in the US Marine Corp, now stationed at El Toro, Calif., and will be arriving home Thursday, Feb. 15 to be with his wife and new daughter. Then the family will leave for Cherry Point, N.C., to Castle's new duty station. The maternal grandparents are E. Hugh and Roberta Fugate of Price. The paternal grandparents are Gary and Mary Castle of Sandy Hook. She is the great-granddaughter of Bertha and the late L.G. Frazier of Price, Victoria "Tora" and the late Elder Jerry Hall of Drift and Elaine and the late Woodrow Castle of Printer.

Teen Pregnancy

year, at least. "I don't believe this nursery is letting girls know its all right to get pregnant. I continually stress that this is a temporary project and may not be here by the time they deliver," she said. "The girls who have been through it tell others what it's like and how hard it is not to be able to go to the prom, the ball game, the movies, because they have to spend $15 a week on diapers." Huffman also pointed out that for as many girls who are pregnant there are as many reasons. "Most of the girls I've served have gotten pregnant intentionally. There are very few accidental pregnancies. They do it to get out of the house, to get their parents to allow them to be married, or to quit school." Huffman notes that she also acts as an information and referral source for many students. "A lot of girls will come to me crying, thinking their pregnant. I immediately get them to go to the clinic and get tested and then if they are not pregnant I give them further information on contraceptives, sexually transmitted diseases and the like." As a home economics teacher, Huffman feels her role is to educate the students and be straight forward and to the point about such issues. "Home ec isn't just sewing and cooking any more. It has changed. It is computers, teen pregnancy, family violence, consumer education, how to manage a home, family and job," she stressed. "We don't teach them how to bake cookies because they can buy cookies, and who sews anymore? We also have the highest percentage of boys in home ec in the state, mostly due to the family life curriculum." She noted that the curriculum she uses is the most popular in the country and one that the state can't keep enough of in print. She also instructs the students on what to do after the birth of a baby, proper nutrition, breast feeding, the reality of teenage marriage, spouse abuse, rape, abuse of the elderly and more.

The issue of teen pregnancy is a growing problem, but looking at the statistics in the county on dropouts won't show it. Huffman explained that she tried to get the money for the day care program from drop out prevention funds but was informed that they were two separate issues. "It's not a separate issue. Most of the people who drop out are either a mother or father of a baby. That's the biggest reason people drop out. But teachers don't list pregnancy as a reason because they are afraid of getting sued," she noted. "The year before last only two girls were reported as dropping out because of pregnancy and I reported both of those. So our statistics aren't accurate."

There are 24 programs like the one at Betsy Layne High School throughout the state, the nearest at Sheldon Clark Inez. Prestonsburg Community College has a single parent homemakers program, but no day care, and the Floyd County Extension program offers correspondence courses for those not enrolled in the Floyd County School System who are seeking a high school diploma. Next Week: An interview with two teen mothers.

Dentistry: Moving into the '90s

(The Kentucky Mountain Dental Society brings you this article in observance of National Children's Dental Health Month. It is the first in a series of dental health articles for children.)

Over 40 years of progress in dentistry has resulted in dramatic improvements in the oral health of Americans and enormous savings on dental health care costs, according to the Kentucky Mountain Dental Society.

Scientific breakthroughs, improved dental equipment and techniques, and increased consumer information efforts are responsible for these benefits. Following are among the major innovations which have marked the past four decades and some directions for the future.

FLUORIDE is considered to be the single most effective weapon against tooth decay. In 1948, the mineral was proved to prevent cavities by strengthening tooth enamel. Now it is available in toothpastes, mouth rinses, tablets, topical applications and fluoridated water supplies. Today, about 60 percent of Americans drink fluoridated water and half of school age children have never had a cavity. Currently, scientists are researching a time-release fluoride pellet which would bond to a tooth and allow continuous absorption of fluoride over six months. PLAQUE REMOVAL became paramount in the 1960s, when researchers isolated the bacteria in plaque as the cause of tooth decay and periodontal (gum) diseases. Preventive techniques include physical removal of plaque by brushing and flossing and use of chemical anti-plaque toothpastes and mouthrinses to control infections. Today dentists are also using antibiotics to treat some forms of periodontal disease and dental scientists are seeking a vaccine to prevent tooth decay — similar to vaccines against measles, mumps and polio.

SEALANTS are additional preventive measures that were created in the early 1970s and are strongly recommended by the ADA. Sealants are plastic coatings applied to the tooth's chewing surfaces to fill microscopic pits and fissures in children's developing permanent molars. Recently, sealants have been combined with time-release fluoride to strengthen tooth enamel and remineralize areas which show early signs of decay.

HIGH SPEED DRILLS have been important innovations in dentistry, and when coupled with fast-acting anesthetics, have removed the pain, and accompanying fear, of a trip to the dentist. In 1950, ball-bearing handpieces introduced in 1957 reached 300,000 rpms. Today's drills make quick work of decay, reaching speeds of 800,000 rpms. There are also chemical compounds which can dissolve small areas of decay now in use in a few dental offices. Lasers may replace drills in the future. Experimentally, concentrated laser beams are being used to eradicate decay, smooth pits and fissures and clean root canals.

PATIENT INFORMATION and education have made important contributions to the decrease in tooth decay and are now being employed to fight gum diseases. Programs like ADA's National Children's Dental Health Month, now celebrating its 1st year, have made the public aware of the importance of good daily hygiene and regular professional care, according to the Kentucky Mountain Dental Society.

Today, the majority of Americans understand that teeth are intended to last a lifetime and, with good habits, developed early in life, they will.

Rebels control tempo in 56-42 rout of EC Cougars

Are you watching?

Kevin Spurlock (24) of Allen Central seems to be giving dribbling lessons to Hal Akers of Elkhorn City in Tuesday night's intercounty contest. Spurlock netted 15 points while Akers was held scoreless. Allen Central won over the Cougars, 56-42.

For all the basketball fans who came to the J.H. Campbell Arena to watch a run-and-gun basketball contest between the Allen Central Rebels and Elkhorn City Cougars Tuesday night — there wasn't one.

Both teams have been known to get up and down the floor. Not this time! The Rebels took the ball and controlled the tempo in a slow pace outing as they bested the Cougars, 56-42.

Kevin Spurlock, who hasn't been looking to score much this season from the point guard position, scored 15 points in leading the Rebels in that category. Spurlock hit three three-pointers in totaling his 15 points.

Allen Central took the ball and went to a patient offense that not only netted them a win, but also kept the players fresh.

"I played Joey (Conn) 32 minutes and he never tired. I played Kevin (Spurlock) 32 minutes and he never tired," Rebel coach Johnny Martin said of the patient offense, "and by slowing down the tempo both players never got tired, whereas if we ran with Elkhorn City they would have sat down."

Elkhorn City led only once in the game, 2-0, and the score was only tied once, 2-2. Spurlock hit a three-pointer off the right side to put the Rebels on top, 5-2. Allen Central pulled out by seven, 14-7, and never looked back. Cotton Parsons' rebound putback made it 19-13 at the end of the first quarter.

With 4:36 to go in the second stanza, Allen Central was up by 10 points, 27-17, behind the inside scoring of Conn. The Rebels' patience on offense helped the inside game of Rick Smith and Conn in building the a 30-20 half time advantage.

The Rebels turned the ball over only three times in the first half and had a total of eight turnovers in the game, which brought the praises of Coach Martin.

"Boy, that's good," he said. "Kevin had been averaging eight turnovers a game himself and he had zero turnovers in this game."

Blackcats defeat W'wright in overtime

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Coach Gordon Parido's Prestonsburg Blackcats evened their conference record at 3-3 to tie Allen Central and McDowell for second place in the conference standings, with a 70-67 overtime victory over the host Wheelwright Trojans Wednesday night.

Senior Chris Slone and Worth McGuire combined for 36 points in leading the Blackcats to the come-from-behind victory. Slone had the game high with 21 points and McGuire, who opened hot, added 14.

Prestonsburg, who has been looking to turn things around, got a basket from Kevin Adams with 25 seconds remaining in overtime to go ahead of the Trojans, 68-66 enroute to the 70-67 victory.

Wheelwright placed four players in double figures as the upset-minded Trojans let the game slip out of their hands. Harold Johnson led the Trojans with 15 points. Senior Bobby Hood, returning from a foot injury, added 14 points in a good outing for the Trojans. Brad Compton and Paul Hall had 13 and 12 points, respectively.

"We gave one away," is the way Wheelwright coach Monroe Jones explained the loss. "The back-andover call with 10 seconds to go in overtime hurt us. It was a big turning point."

"We gave one away."

"Our players gave a tremendous effort," Coach Parido stated. "We haven't shot the ball well the last three or four games. Somewhere like 30 percent."

Wheelwright looked like a team of destiny in the first half. McGuire put the Cats up 2-0 on a jumper from the foul line. Johnson responded with a base line jumper to tie the game. Steven Johnson's three-pointer gave the Trojans their first lead, 5-4, and they were off and running in an up tempo game.

Wheelwright ran out to a 16-10 lead and led at the first stop, 18-12.

The Trojans outscored the Blackcats 11-4 to build a 13-point lead at 29-16 with 3:43 to go in the first half. Wheelwright led at the half 33-22.

When the Cats came out of the locker room, something drastic must have happened in the locker room to rejuvenate the trailing Blackcats.

"No," says Blackcat coach Parido. "We were taking good shots the first half and they were not falling for us. That caused the players to become frustrated and it affected their defense. We told them in the locker room to not get down and to keep taking the shots, that they would start falling. We came out the second half and took the same shots and they went in."

Prestonsburg came out in the third period and ran off the first 11 points to tie the game at 33-33 with 5:17 to go in the third stanza. Slone scored seven points in the spurt. The lead changed hands four times in the last five minutes of the third quarter. The third ended in a 41-41 tie.

Chad Hall hit a lay up for Wheelwright to give the Trojans a 43-41 lead at the start of the final period. Jeff Sloan grabbed an offensive rebound and put it back in to tie the game. From that point the lead changed hands with each basket.

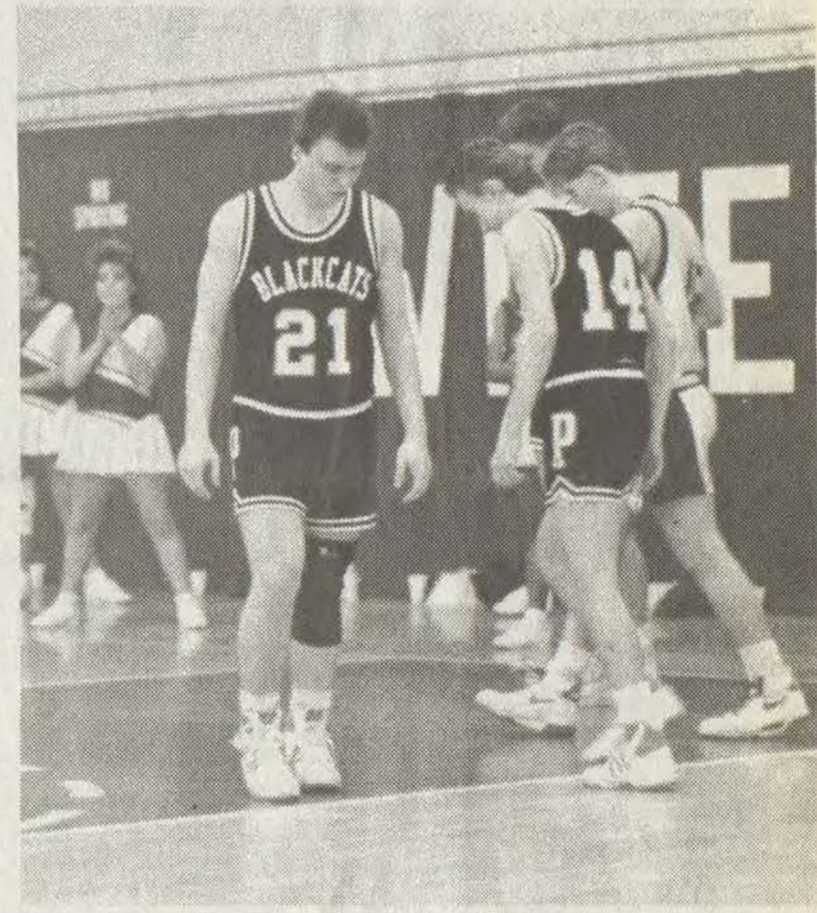

Late in the quarter, Prestonsburg went on top 53-52 on a Jeff Sloan basket. With the score tied at 57-57 Sloan went to the free throw line with 23 seconds remaining and missed the front end of the one-and-one. A desperation shot by Wheelwright missed its mark and overtime ensued.

Chris Slone took the ball for Prestonsburg in the opening of the overtime and scored and was fouled.

Slone connected on the free throw to give Prestonsburg a 60-57 lead. Steven Johnson hit a three-pointer to tie the game at 60-60. After Jeff Sloan gave the lead back to Prestonsburg, 62-60, Harold Johnson sank two free throws and gathered another basket to put the Trojans on top, 64-62, with 1:22 to go.

Prestonsburg's Kevin Adams scored underneath and was fouled for a three point play and 65-64 Blackcat lead. A Chris Slone free throw made it 66-64. Paul Hall then hit a 12-footer to tie the game at 66-66. A pass underneath the Prestonsburg basket found Adams open for an easy bucket and a 68-66 Prestonsburg lead.

Prestonsburg Lady Blackcats win despite cold free throw shooting

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

It was long road from Prestonsburg to Wheelwright Wednesday night as Bridget Clay's Lady Blackcats tracked their way to the Wheelwright gym to do battle with coach Donnie Daniels' Lady Trojans.

If the trip to Wheelwright seemed long, consider the trip back from a nine-point halftime deficit to a 40-38 victory for the Lady Blackcats.

Wheelwright seemed to have things going its way from the start, battling to get out of the basement of the Floyd County girl's conference standings. Both teams entered the contest with 1-4 records. Raquel Cain's basket with 1:39 left put the Lady Blackcats ahead at 39-38. Kathy Slone, who finished the game with 13 points, made it 40-38 with a free throw.

Wheelwright got out of the gate early. After Slone gave Prestonsburg a 2-0 lead, Becky Allen hit a three-pointer, and two baskets by center Jedon Hood gave Wheelwright a 7-2 first quarter lead. Hood missed six free throws toward the end of the first quarter.

Both teams heated up in the second quarter. Amy Reed's three-pointer made the score 7-5. April Bradford hit a basket and two free throws to put the Lady Trojans on top 11-5.

With Wheelwright leading 15-12 with 3:31 left in the half, Wheelwright ran off eight straight points to take a 22-12 lead. Hood's basket just before the buzzer gave Wheelwright a 26-17 half time advantage.

One of the concerns Prestonsburg coach Bridget Clay had for her team was their inconsistency this year. Prestonsburg is a young team with no seniors and two freshmen starting.

"They have been up and down this year," Clay stated before the start of the game. "I don't really know which team is going to show up when we play. Some nights we can't do anything and other nights we play great."

It may have been the "down" team in the first half for Clay's five, but it was the "up" team coming out of the locker room in the second half.

From the time Prestonsburg was handed the ball, opening the second half, until the smoke cleared at the end of the third, the Lady Blackcats' defense had held Wheelwright to only four third quarter points, and the margin had been cut to one point, 30-29, going into the final stanza.

Prestonsburg hit six free throws down the stretch in the third period. Hood hit a basket and Carrie Smith followed with another one to give the Lady Trojans a 34-29 cushion. Slone hit a basket and was fouled to make it 34-31. Slone missed the free throw.

However, Prestonsburg got the rebound and Reed scored off a good pass from Carolyn Reffitt to pull to within one point, 34-33. Off an offensive rebound, Bradford's basket gave Wheelwright a 36-33 lead. Reffitt and Cain both missed two free throws each and missed a chance to take the lead. Edwina Hale scored from 10 feet out and a driving lay up by Slone gave the Lady Blackcats their first lead since 2-0 in the first quarter.

Prestonsburg was up 37-36. After a Wheelwright score that gave them a 38-37 lead, Cain hit her go-ahead shot. Wheelwright had several chances to win the game but was unable to hit from the field. Prestonsburg missed 11 free throws in the final quarter and five of those were front ends of one-and-ones.

The win improved the Lady Blackcats to 2-4 in the conference and 8-9 overall. Wheelwright falls to 1-5 in the conference and 4-10 overall. Both teams will meet again at Prestonsburg Tuesday night.

Slone led the Blackcats in scoring with 13 points. Cain added 11. Hood

'Hall boys' lead Daredevils to win over Dorton, 77-59

by Ed Taylor

Marc and Stacy Hall combined for 44 points as the McDowell Daredevils continued to do the good things it takes to win in high school basketball. Marc Hall tossed in 24 points and brother Stacy added 20. Keith Shelton netted 14 points in the 77-59 victory Tuesday over Dorton.

The win was McDowell's sixth in the last eight games to improve the Daredevils' record to 7-14. The team was at one time 1-12 on the year.

Kevin Robinson led the Dorton Wildcats in scoring with 20 points. Jeremy Johnson added 15 points.

One of the highlights of the evening was the homecoming celebration at the Left Beaver school. Stephanie Allen was crowned Homecoming Queen of 1990. Allen, a senior cheerleader, she is the daughter of Rita and Stanley Allen Jr.

Both teams played close in the first quarter with the Daredevils holding a four point advantage, 19-15, at the end of the first period and went to the locker room holding on to an seven point lead at the half, 34-27.

The Daredevils scored 26 points in the fourth period to put the game in the win column for McDowell.

McDowell will be at Johns Creek tonight (Friday) and will play at front runner Betsy Layne on Tuesday night. Things don't stop there as the Daredevils have to travel to the Trojans den next week for another all important conference game. McDowell stands at 3-3 in the conference race and has an outside shot at tying for the conference lead.

Wheelwright falls to Jenkins, 77-60

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Wheelwright Trojans took on 14th Region foe, Jenkins Tuesday night at Wheelwright in an inter-county game. Shane Dixon and Brian

Johnson combined for 46 points to lead Jenkins to a 77-60 win over the Trojans.

Dixon tallied 26 points while Johnson hit for 20. Also in double figures for Jenkins was Mike Castle with 11.

Bobby Hood, making a return to the Trojan line up after being out with an ankle injury, led the Trojans in scoring with 14 points. Three other Trojans hit in double figures. Center Brad Compton added 10 points, Steve Johnson had 12, and sophomore

Harold Johnson tossed in 10. Jenkins took an early lead in the game and led at the first stop, 15-9. Wheelwright trailed by only four points at half time, 31-27. It was in the fourth period that Jenkins busted open the game with a 30-21 quarter.

Coach Monroe Jones' team was playing for the first time since playing Phelps tough in the Single Class A regional at Pikeville. Jones had been using his sophomores and playing a more up tempo game as the Trojans became a more pressing defensive team.

The win was Jenkins' 12th of the season against seven defeats. Wheelwright fell to 5-10 on the year, but the Trojans have been playing good basketball of late and could challenge for a district title. Wheelwright is 1-4 in the Floyd County Conference.

Wheelwright will entertain the Mullins Tigers tonight (Friday) in a homecoming game at 8 p.m. and will travel to Prestonsburg on Tuesday for a top conference match up.

Prestonsburg Intramural League

In the Prestonsburg Intramural League, the Red team of James Allen won over Richard Price's Blue team 30-21.

Chrystal Layne scored eight points to lead the Red team to victory. Jenny Morrison added seven points in the win. Allison Allen tossed in six points and teammate Nanna Allen had five. Carrie Francis and Shelly Price each scored two points.

For the Blue team, Carrie Hall had eight points to lead in that department. Kathy Mullins had four while Tina Miller chipped in with three. A trio of players, Rhonda Burke, Jennifer Joseph and Misty Price, each scored two points.

Prestonsburg had the ball and was called for walking with 10 seconds remaining in overtime. On the ensuing in bounds play from mid court, Wheelwright was whistled for an over and back call, and the ball went to Prestonsburg where Ray Collins was fouled. Collins connected on both free throws with seven seconds to go.

A three-point desperation shot by Hall was off target.

Prestonsburg hit nine of 10 free throws down the stretch.

Rebels control tempo in 56-42 rout of ECHS

Allen Central's defense stifled high-scoring center Kermit Belcher, holding him to 10 points. Belcher was fronted and backed by the Rebel defense when he received the ball inside. The big center had to come outside to get the ball and led a mild comeback in the third period as the Cougars cut the lead to 36-29 on three Belcher buckets.

"Our defense was good tonight," explained Martin. "We had our hands in their faces, and blocking out on the boards was excellent. The board work tonight was our best effort of the season."

Allen Central had 23 defensive rebounds in the game, indicating that the Cougars were just getting the one shot at the basket.

Rebel fans may see the same offense again Coach Martin stated, because "it keeps the players in the game."

"We want to run with the ball," he remarked, "but we have experienced foul trouble when we run." The Rebels Smith and Hancock did leave via the foul route late in the game. Smith was in foul trouble all night and had to sit down in the second quarter.

Elkhorn City's scoring guard Hal Akers was held scoreless in the game as some of his three-point attempts were air balls. Conn had five rebounds for Allen Central while Parsons hauled down 10.

The Cougars cut the lead to nine points twice in the final stanza but could come no closer in losing to Allen Central, 56-42.

Rick Smith had 13 points for Allen Central and Conn added 11 in the win.

Betsy Layne comes to town tonight (Friday) for a conference match up with the Rebels. Game time is 8 p.m.

Lady Bobcats and Rebels face off tonight at ACHS

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Will things be different this time around for the Lady Rebels and Lady Bobcats? The two teams meet tonight in a big Floyd County Conference match up at Allen Central.

The last time the two teams met, Betsy Layne came away with a 62-51 victory over the Lady Rebs. Betsy Layne's trapping zone defense caused Allen Central some problems in turnovers.

What changes Lady Rebs coach Bonita Compton will make are not known, but you can be sure she has played this game over in her mind and there will be some changes made.

Betsy Layne will be coming with All-District candidate Brenda Hamilton who canned 31 points in the last meeting between the two schools. Gone from the Lady Bobcats squad is Jamie Smith, the top rebounder for the Betsy Layne team. Smith left the team a couple of weeks ago. She had 14 points and nine rebounds in the previous game.

The Bobcats have much improved Melissa Bailey underneath the basket. She has put together some good games for Betsy Layne. Probably the most pleasant surprise for the Lady Cats has been the emergence of Brianna Boyd at the guard spot. Boyd has become more involved in the Betsy Layne offense and scored 17 points against Belfry, including three three-pointers. Good board work will be important for Betsy Layne in this one.

Allen Central's Jo Ann Conn seems to be playing like her old self of late. Conn does not seem to favor her reconstructed knee as she did at the beginning of the season. Like Conn, Boyd also has had to have reconstructed knee surgery. Both players wear the big knee brace when they play.

Teresa Gibson will be counted on for the outside scoring to keep the Lady Bobcats defense honest. Conn and Darnella Bradley (if she is able to play) will be hard to keep off the boards. Bradley had twisted her ankle in an earlier game. The Lady Rebels have turned up the tempo on offense, something that Betsy Layne will like.

This one will go to the wire. The winner? You pick it.

Game time is 6:30 p.m. Come on out and see this one!

WW to honor Martin

by Marsha Hall
(Marsha Hall is a student at Wheelwright High School. The Times welcomes other sports articles from our high schools in Floyd County. If you desire to run a sports story, contact Ed Taylor at 886-8506.)

Garnis Martin, a former student at Wheelwright High School and a member of the school's basketball, baseball and football programs, will be honored tonight for his coaching achievements in football at the local school.

Coach Martin began his coaching career at Wayland High School where he coached the football team. Martin later went on to Prestonsburg High School where he coached for two years before leaving for Bardstown. He has been a coach and assistant principal at Bardstown since leaving Prestonsburg. He says he doesn't plan on retiring until he reaches his goal of 300 wins. Martin has received various awards for his efforts as a coach. He received the Happy Chandler Award, which has been given to only one other football coach in the state of Kentucky. He was inducted into Kentucky's Hall of Fame last March and has also received an award for being Kentucky's winningest active football coach.

The ceremonies were arranged by Elmer Ferguson, a resident of Wheelwright and a former student athlete. Ferguson, along with a few of his other classmates began the first basketball team at Wheelwright in 1934.

The award ceremonies will be conducted after the Wheelwright girls' game against Mullins and preceding the boys' game. The ceremonies will be aired over WPRG Cable Radio, and possibly WYMT will broadcast as well.

Bobcats, Rebels square off in conference play tonight

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

All eyes will be on the J.H. Campbell Arena tonight as the basketball world in Floyd County looks at a top conference game between first place Betsy Layne and second place Allen Central in an 8 p.m. hook up.

The two teams met at Betsy Layne earlier in the season and required an overtime before the Bobcats overcame the Rebels, 52-51.

The outcome of this game will depend a lot on the ability of Rebel center Rick Smith's staying out of foul trouble early, something he hasn't been able to do lately. The big center is valuable stock to the Rebels offense and he must be in the game for the Rebels to win.

Whether Allen Central will play a slower tempo against the Bobcats is unclear at this time. The Rebels played a patient offense in subduing regional power Elkhorn City Tuesday night at Allen Central.

Kevin Spurlock and Cotton Parsons will have to bring a strong offensive showing to the arena tonight. Joey Conn, who seems to be able to get to the basket even if two men are hanging onto him, will have to help Smith in blocking Sam Stewart and Phillip King off the boards. Good board work for the Rebels is a must in this one.

Shelton chosen WYMT-TV star

Keith Shelton, 6' 5" center on the McDowell Daredevils basketball team was named "Player of the Week" by WYMT-TV in Hazard for the week of Jan. 1-6, according to station manager Wayne Martin.

Shelton received a plague upon being named player of the week. Shelton's play in the Pikeville invitational and his 41 point performance against Sheldon Clark netted him the award.

Lawson receives WYMT scholarship

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

According to Wayne Martin, station director for WYMT-TV, Hazard, Tim Lawson of McDowell is one of eight students to receive a $1,000 scholarship to help in enrolling in a college or university.

Lawson was one of 34 students nominated for the awards. Three other students from the 15th Region were nominated, Kyle Tackett of Virgie, Larry Joe Johnson of Johnson Central and Lawson.

SC tournament to air on WSAZ

The Marshall University Thundering Herd is meeting the challenge of its Southern Conference opponents head on. When first-year head basketball coach Dana Altman and his team travel to the Southern Conference Tourney, fans can watch the Thundering Herd in action on WSAZ television 3!

The Huntington station will follow the Thundering Herd action live throughout the tournament and will also broadcast additional games of special interest to Southern Conference basketball fans.

Pairings may not be available for the Southern Conference Tournament before March 1.

Those who want to know who's up, who's hot, who's hurt and who's not can watch the Dana Altman show from the Southern Conference tourney on Saturday, March 3 at 12:30 p.m.

"We are continuing our commitment to education in Eastern Kentucky," Martin said recently. "Athletics and academics can co-exist."

The $1,000 scholarships came from proceeds from the WYMT-TV Mountain Classic Basketball tournament at Knott County Central earlier. Additional proceeds from the "Classic" tournament were divided among the participating schools.

Each nominee is selected on the basis of their ACT or SAT scores. Each student must file an application and have three letters of reference.

"We also determine from our applicants their involvement in community and school activities," Martin stated. "So with our program people's interest in basketball helps generate money for students to go to school."

Martin reported that not one of the eight recipients was a member of a basketball team.

Last year's winner, Danny Hamilton, played for the Prestonsburg Blackcats.

All nominations come from the 13th, 14th and 15th Regions.

HOROSCOPE

February 11 through February 17

By C.C. Clark
AQUARIUS (January 20 - February 18)
 Don't become paranoid, but be sure to take several precautions if you are walking or traveling somewhere alone this week. Don't take your life for granted.

PISCES (February 19 - March 20)
 A spontaneous outing with a loved one will bring you great joy and happiness. A woman helps you understand something that has been bothering you for a long time.

ARIES (March 21 - April 19)
 It is important to respect specific guidelines set up at your place of employment. This is a good week to buy that special something for you or a loved one.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20)
 Good fortune in many disguises is headed your way soon. You will be annoyed with one who either works closely with you, or lives close to you.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20)
 Following the rules, though not always fun, will bring you to your ultimate goal when dealing with your financial sector. This is a good week for traveling.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22)
 You will feel more comfortable and relaxed than you have felt in a very long time. A crisis at work will be handled easily because of your calm attitude.

LEO (July 23 - August 22)
 Loved ones require great patience. They try to undermine a project you have been working hard on, because they do not understand the importance. Explain it to them.

VIRGO (August 23 - September 22)
 You need to hide your feelings about a family member who is driving you crazy. You will feel quite differently toward this person by week's end.

LIBRA (September 23 - October 22)
 It is important for you to go with the flow this week. Family members and co-workers will seem uneasy and you will be the one to guide them through rough waters.

SCORPIO (October 23 - November 21)
 A young friend makes you feel wonderful. Return the favor by listening carefully to their conversation. They are trying to tell you something of great importance.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 - December 21)
 This would be a great week to have that party you've been thinking about. It would be a good idea to do anything that would get you out of your winter doldrums.

CAPRICORN (December 22 - January 19)
 An illness will be prevalent in your life this week; either yourself or one close to you. Money problems will be solved with some careful planning.

TV PIPELINE

Burgess Meredith considered one of most gifted performers

By Polly Vonetes

Q: I would like to have some information on two Batman villains. They are Burgess Meredith as the Penguin, and Cesar Romero as the Joker. Please give me their ages and addresses. —Shane Ballard, Columbus, Miss.

A: Cesar Romero was born on Feb. 15, 1907, in New York City of Cuban parentage. He played the tall, dark "Latin Lover" of Hollywood films during the '30s, '40s, and '50s. Since the Batman series, he has appeared as a guest on many TV series and had a recurring role on Falcon Crest. Burgess Meredith was born on Nov. 16, 1908, in Cleveland, Ohio. He is considered one of the most gifted and versatile performers of the American stage and screen. He still accepts roles, mainly character parts. Write to him at: 23736 Malibu Colony Dr., Malibu, Calif. 90265. Write to Cesar Romero at: 12115 San Vicente Blvd., No. 302, Los Angeles, Calif. 90049.

Q: After reading your column I have renewed hope in finding a long-awaited answer to a question I have. I am a big fan of Ginger Rogers. Where could I write to her for an autographed photo? It would mean a lot to me. —Janice Collins, Marion, Ind.

A: Ginger Rogers' last address was: 18745 Crater Lake Hwy., No. 62, Eagle Point, Ore. 97542.

Q: Two oldies I have not seen mentioned are The Millionaire and I Led Three Lives, both of which were extremely interesting. Any chance for repeats of these? —E. Moss, Anchorage, Alaska

A: Both series have been in syndication for quite some time. The Millionaire is currently airing in some markets, but maybe not in

yours. I Led Three Lives may have been retired a while. Check with your local independent television station.

Q: In my first letter, which you never answered, I wrote seeking information regarding Richard Tyson of Hardball. How tall is he, is he married and where could I write him? In addition, I've noticed that the time slot on Friday usually showing Hardball has been changed to True Blue. Does this mean Hardball has been canceled? —Sherilyn Kayz, Montrose, Colo.

A: Sorry, I didn't answer you the first time around. Richard Tyson is 6' tall and weighs 180 lbs., has blue-green eyes and brown hair. He is not married! The show had been canceled, but NBC plans to pick it up again in March. Keep your eyes open. Write to him c/o Columbia Pictures Television, Columbia Pictures Plaza, Burbank, Calif. 91505.

Please send your questions about television past and present to: Polly Vonetes, TV Pipeline, P.O. Box 17748, Fort Worth, Texas 76102-0748. Because of the volume of mail, only questions of general interest will be answered. Personal replies cannot be granted. © TV Listing Inc.

Loan and CAP labor make for improved home

by Frank Clark
Staff Writer

For James and Norma Butler of Wheelwright and their two children, a little help from the Farmer's Home Administration and the Christian Appalachian Project of Martin is going to provide some much needed room to grow.

The Butlers own their own home in Wheelwright but have had a serious space crunch in recent years, in their single bedroom home with two growing children.

"Our boy and girl have to share the same room, and as they're getting older, they need their own rooms," said James Butler. "But with me driving a school bus and my wife going to school, we had troubles getting the funds together to do the work."

Familiar with the activities of the service-oriented Christian Appalachian Project, Butler talked with Darrell Combs, who manages the Home Repair Program for CAP. Combs' program, designed to assist in repairing the houses of low income Floyd Countians, was also short on funding at the time.

Combs recommended that Butler check with the Farmer's Home Administration office in Prestonsburg to see if a low interest repair loan was possible, and Combs agreed to provide labor if funding for building supplies was available. It worked out just that way.

"They came through with a loan of about $5,200 to do the work and charged only about one percent interest," said Butler. "We qualified for health and safety reasons because of having a teenage boy and girl sharing a room."

Combs and his repair crew began work on adding two rooms to the existing structure a little before Thanksgiving of last year. Despite occasional interruptions, the work has gone smoothly and is now nearing completion.

"Besides busting fingers with our hammers, we only had one accident, when James (Butler) did a little roll off the roof as we were working," said a laughing Dale Baggett, a full-time volunteer from Texas. "He landed on his feet like a big cat, just like he knew what he was doing."

Combs noted that, despite the success of the Butler project, there are still many people in the county who require improved housing or repairs, but are unable to get it or unaware of how to go about getting it.

"Right now, we have about 300 applications from people who need work done," said Combs. "There's just no way to get to all of it. If we were able to get the funds for more building materials, we could make a tremendous impact on the community. I really think if the need exists, people should have access to help."

The FHA in Prestonsburg, however, is also facing a budget crunch, which limits the amount of funding available for home building and repair projects. Phyllis Allen, an FHA county loan technician, said a one year backlog on loan requests currently exists.

"Funds are very tight," said Allen. "In the past, we've had grants available for people over the age of 62 to do repair work. We don't have that any more. The repair loan money is also gone right now. We do have new home building loans that charge an interest rate of between one and eight and three-quarters percent."

While currently restricted by fund shortages, the association has helped many area residents in the past to improve their housing situations. The Butlers are one such success story. If local political leaders concentrated on the housing problems in the area, says Combs, more success stories would be possible.

"We can supply the labor, and it'd be great if we could bring on more employees to work on new projects," said Combs. "It's the politicians who need to work on making decent loans available. People deserve it."

Helping hands

PVA, Fiscal Court pass audit

The Floyd County Fiscal Court and Property Valuation Administrator Lovel Hall were given their yearly reports from the state Auditor of Public Accounts this week, receiving equal measures of praise and criticism from state auditor Bob Babbage.

The PVA office closed the fiscal year on June 30, 1989, with a cash balance of $37,972. Babbage commended Hall for investing PVA funds in order to earn $1,241 in interest over the course of the year. However, the auditor's office questioned Hall's decision to enter into an agreement in July of 1988 to lease a 1988 Jeep Cherokee for $15,480.

According to the report, the lease agreement did not comply with a Kentucky statute that requires that bids be obtained for all purchases of $7,500 or more. Babbage recommended that Hall comply with this statute in the future.

The Floyd County Fiscal Court also received praise for its good fund balance and investment programs, which generated $229,391 in interest income for the year. The report noted that the county received a Community Development Block Grant of $29,838 and water project grant of $4,095.

The sheriff's department collected $781,846 in general fund taxes for the county and the clerk collected $201,060 in tangible property taxes for the year.

The state payment to the county road aid fund was $813,225, while state payments for the coal and mineral severance taxes totaled $1,392,325. The county also received $1,024,076 for refuse and garbage collection.

The single criticism leveled by the state auditor's office toward the Fiscal Court involved the bookkeeping practices used in the Solid Waste Inc. Fund. The report stated, "Minimal accounting records required by the Uniform System of Accounts... were not maintained by the Solid Waste Inc. Fund. These include a receipts ledger and disbursements ledger."

The auditor's office recommended that the board of directors for Solid Waste take action to ensure that at least the minimal accounting records required by the state are kept. This was the second year in which the Fiscal Court failed to ensure that Solid Waste was maintaining an adequate record-keeping system, according to the report.

Wayland council collars canines

Dogs were the topic of discussion at Tuesday night's Wayland town council meeting.

According to city clerk Carol Stapleton, council considered the need for stricter enforcement of pet control within city limits. Dog tags and licenses were ordered and will be available shortly from city offices, and the city police officer will begin enforcing Kentucky statutes on dog control.

Owners will be required to keep their animals on their own property, and leash laws will also be in effect around the city.

In other action, council agreed to change council meetings from the first Tuesday to the first Monday of each month.

Present at Tuesday's meeting were Mayor Hobert Webb and council members Tommy Robinson, Gene Mullins, Jerry Fultz, and Robert Stewart.

Recreation group OK'ed by Martin City Council

A new committee, seeking to develop recreational facilities in Martin, addressed the Martin City Council Wednesday night, requesting start-up funds and explaining committee goals.

The Martin Area Community Recreation Organization (MACRO) is circulating a petition of support, according to MACRO president Doug DeRossett, for constructing a park facility to serve the Martin area.

The organization would like to build the park on land adjoining the Grigsby Heights Housing Project. Ideas for the facility include the construction of baseball fields, a walking track for adults, and a playground for children.

Not so bad

The mild February Floyd County has been having will continue through the weekend with a bit of precipitation mixed in. Today will be cloudy with periods of showers and thundershowers and highs at 55-60. This evening will be mostly cloudy with a 30 percent chance of evening showers and a low between 30-35.

Saturday will be partly sunny with a high 45-50. Sunday there is a chance of more showers, high 55-60.

Partly cloudy skies will be seen Monday with a little cooler temperature, between 45-55. Tuesday will be about the same but a little warmer, 55-65.

Cholesterol test is free; get it

As a special service to blood donors, Central Kentucky Blood Center will perform a cholesterol test on each unit of blood donated during the month of February, with results mailed to the donor. The National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute recommends that everyone know his or her cholesterol level. Under 200 is ideal; above 200 is a warning sign for a dietary change to less fat and cholesterol and more fiber, starches, fruits and vegetables.

The Prestonsburg Donor Center is located in the Municipal building and is open Tuesday, 11 a.m. to 7 p.m., Wednesday and Thursday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Donors may also go to a mobile site near them.

Invitation is from the heart

Everyone interested in heart disease and rehabilitation is invited to join Chapter 220 of The Mended Hearts Inc., which meets each month at HRMC. Mended Hearts' national motto is "It's great to be alive, and to help others." For more information contact president Maxine Bierman at 886-6155, or attend the next meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 13, in HRMC's cafeteria. Commonwealth's Attorney Jerry Patton will be guest speaker.

DAR to meet

The Daughters of the American Revolution John Graham Chapter will meet Tuesday, Feb. 13, at 3:30 p.m. at the Floyd County Library. DAR Good Citizen Kimberly Horne of Prestonsburg High School will present her essay.

Now for the good news

Technical high school emphasizes 'applied' learning

by Pam Shingler
Editor

Brenda Hamilton is a standout basketball player on the women's team at Betsy Layne High School. Just last week, she was crowned homecoming queen.

But if you were to search the halls and classrooms of the southern Floyd County school, you wouldn't find the star student and athlete — because she doesn't go to school there.

Instead, Hamilton is spending her senior year at Floyd County Technical High School, near Martin, where she gets a heavy dose of business and office classes, along with the traditional academic courses she needs to get a diploma and prepare for college.

The former Garth Vocational School, sometimes considered a step-child of the county system, has this year taken on a decidedly innovative approach to meeting the needs of the system's diverse student population. And the difference amounts to more than a simple name change.

Juniors and seniors from the county's five public high schools can attend the technical high school all day, taking a course load that includes what are considered traditional academic subjects, as well as career-oriented vocational/technical classes. At the same time, they can still participate in the extra-curricular activities of their home school.

The transformation is the result, in part, of the work of Libby Hall, the school system's advisory chairperson for vocational education. Last year she secured a $20,000 grant to implement a curriculum that shows students the practical applications for a variety of traditional academic courses that many students consider irrelevant to their lives and goals.

"Students say 'How am I ever

going to use algebra?'" Hall explains. "Now they're learning complicated math without knowing it because the principles apply to their experiences."

The courses meet the standards for a high school curriculum, but most apply directly to what students consider relevant, says Hall.

Lantre Combs, an Allen Central High School student who attends classes at the technical high school, explains that in his English class, for example, writing, spelling and communication lessons recently have focused on the job search.

Students learn to write a resume and cover letter and to prepare for a job interview. In each element, they're learning the principles of good written and oral communication, but they're putting the lessons to what they see as a practical use.

"Students can come here and take the applied approach to classes," says Hall. "The old days of a vocational school as just wood shop, mechanical shop and that's all are over."

Hall's grant covered the practical applications for physics and mathematics and enabled the school system

"It's hard to turn around the idea of this as a dumping ground."

—Libby Hall

to hire a specialist in those areas. Because of the program, the school system was able to lure teacher James Staggs away from a lucrative offer in Ohio.

A Wayland native, Staggs is considered a tremendous asset to the program since he combines a background in math and physics, which according to administrators is quite rare. In addition, he's a computer whiz.

Circuit Court sentences, sets trial dates

Two men received two years in jail and two others received lesser sentences, while Floyd Circuit Court was in session this week.

Timmy Bryant was found guilty of theft by deception and third degree criminal possession of a forged instrument, receiving two years in jail for both crimes.

Garrell Compton was sentenced to two years in prison on two counts of theft of a motor vehicle registration plate.

Alvin Branham Jr., 18, received one year in jail on two counts of third degree burglary and was required to pay $400 restitution, less what had already been paid.

Billy Ray Johnson was sentenced to one year in jail for first degree wanton endangerment, third degree criminal mischief and terroristic threatening. The sentence was changed to two years probation, if the defendant agreed to not bother his wife in the future.

Trial dates were set for the following defendants:

Curtis Howell Jr., first degree sodomy; Barry Risner, theft by deception; Kevin Hutchinson and Alvin Newsome, receiving stolen property; William Spencer, second degree burglary; Chester Adkins, first degree burglary; David Lee Allen, flagrant non-support; Gary Lynn Hall, second degree arson; Gregory Hall and Johnny Keathley, theft by deception;

Greg Martin, Michael Hoover, and Richard Short, theft by unlawful taking; Christopher Meeks, theft by unlawful taking; Lonnie Doug Neeley, murder and first degree arson; Tommy Perry, first degree burglary; Taylor Price, theft by deception; William P. Terry and Thomas Skeens, second degree assault;

Randall E. O'Quinn, theft by unlawful taking (auto); Ballard, Maudie, Jackie, and Tony Crum, and Kathy Jacobs, theft by extortion, first degree wanton endangerment, and complicity.

Regional Roundup

Second fatal accident at intersection

LOUISA — A Lawrence County man was killed Tuesday morning when his car collided with a coal truck at the intersection of US 23 and KY 3 north of Louisa. Police contribute the death of 83-year-old Charlie Bradley to failure to yield the right of way. The intersection has been the topic of considerable debate in Lawrence County and has been the scene of numerous accidents including two fatalities. The question of installing a traffic light is being discussed. (The Big Sandy News)

Martin teacher on trial for murder

PIKEVILLE — The second trial for the shooting death of John Mose Lester began earlier this week. Commonwealth's Attorney Jerry Patton, as special prosecutor, deems the shooting murder; the defense claims the right of self defense for Michael Kessinger, a Martin County school administrator. The shooting took place in the defendant's ex-wife's apartment, at which time "a scuffle began, blows were exchanged and Kessinger managed to pull a gun from under a bed...and a standoff developed," according to Patton. He continued that Kessinger shot Lester twice in the chest and once in the back. (The Appalachian News-Express)

President puts end to US 23 funding

PAINTSVILLE — In President Bush's 1990 budget, he opposed plans to build the highway between Paintsville and Prestonsburg because it has been funded in Congress with general revenues rather than with federal gasoline taxes as are most other highway projects. Similar recommendations for cutting federal funding for the four-laning project in Johnson County were made during the administration of President Reagan. This budget will not affect the $11.6 million in federal funding already allocated, but could set up a battle for additional funding from federal sources for the remainder of the proposed $25 million Johnson County project. (The Paintsville Herald)

Facing down coal trucks cause for jail

HARLAN COUNTY — A Leslie County woman will face trial April 10 in Harlan District Court on charges of obstructing a highway and disorderly conduct in connection with a standoff with about 30 coal trucks on a muddy mountain road. Joyce Osborne, 44, pleaded not guilty to the charges. Osborne was arrested in mid-January because she declined to move into the wrong lane of KY 2009 so that a coal truck could drive in her lane which was safer. Osborne is free on $204 bond and Leslie County Judge-Executive Allen Muncy called for the State Police to severely reprimand Trooper Clark for arresting her. Clark said the court should force Osborne to reimburse the drivers of the 30-40 truck drivers stalled in the standoff for lost wages. (The Mountain Eagle)

IBM gives grant to train teachers

MOREHEAD — IBM recently granted Morehead State University a $150,000 grant to train new and practicing teachers in the expanded use of technology in the classroom. The grant is a result of an effort among the university's three colleges. The grant includes a laboratory of networked IBM Personal System /2 workstations, IBM K-12 educational software and training/technical support. The materials will be used for undergraduate and continuing education courses for K-12 teachers. (The Morehead News)

kids, and everyone in the area," said DeRossett. "It's the kids who really need a place like this."

The group is in the process of establishing a non-profit organization, which will work to collect privately donated funds for the project. A competitive $20,000 federal grant may be available to the group, if it is able to raise matching funds, according to Sam Campbell of the Big Sandy Area Development District.

Campbell noted that only projects with high levels of private contribution receive this type of grant and that MACRO was the only group in the area, as far as he knew, with recreation as its primary focus.

The Martin council voted unanimously to support the organization with start-up funds of $1000. Council also agreed to provide MACRO with space in the new city building under construction, for meetings and records keeping.

Organizational officers of MACRO include DeRossett as president, Rodney Hutchinson as vice-president, Barry Risner as treasurer, and Lois Hutchinson as secretary.

Tom Williams, the contractor responsible for constructing the new Martin city building, reported to council on the progress of the new facility. He requested additional funding of $7,823 to enlarge the facility, construct a water cooler in the building, and bring the structure into better compliance with state fire codes. Council approved the request unanimously.

A request to provide water plant workers with radios was placed before council. The proposal was considered, but no decision was made.

Heated discussion arose between council and citizens attending the meeting over the costs of fire insurance within the city. Citizens requested that efforts be directed at upgrading firefighting capabilities, so that insurance premiums would be decreased.

Mayor Raymond Griffith also proposed that council repeal the ordinance that requires the city to provide fire protection outside of city limits to those paying for such services. Griffith noted that the small number of persons subscribing for this protection was inadequate.

Attending Wednesday night's meeting were Mayor Griffith and council members Johnny Maddox, Joe Simpson, Earrit Hayes, James Robinson, and Denzil Halbert.

Ditch time!

Helen Hammons was driving toward US 23 from Auxier Tuesday evening at about 6:15 p.m. when she apparently lost control of her vehicle and struck a tree. According to Auxier Fire Department reports, Hammons was rushed to Highlands Regional Medical Center. She was treated for minor neck strain and was released Wednesday.

Do I hear $22 million?

Joey Hicks holds up the first auction item of the evening at the Prestonsburg Jaycees Casino Night at the Holiday Inn last Friday. This furry creature is actually a radio, donated by Radio Shack of Prestonsburg, and it went for $22 million in "fun" money at the auction. Also assisting is Jaycee Lisa Meade. Other area merchants who donated were: Trends & Traditions, Verner Smith, Ken's Sport Shop, Prestonsburg Lottery Office, Zeplin's Subs and Yogurt, Wal-Mart, Bookworm Bookstore, The Bank Josephine, Floppy Mart, Readmore Bookstore, Sherry's Shoes, B&L Furniture, Worldwide Equipment, Commonwealth Insurance, J&J Liquors, Gene Crank, Crane Distributing, California Waterbeds, Holiday Inn-Sweet Georgia Brown's and Holiday Inn.

Hundreds of local veterans still eligible for bonus

With less than 30 days left only 622 of Floyd County's 1230 Vietnam era veterans have applied for their state bonuses.

Floyd County has an estimated 608 eligible veterans of a reported 108,000 statewide who can still apply for their Vietnam Era Veterans Bonus between now and Feb. 28. To date, more than 75,000 of Kentucky's veterans have applied with more than 10,000 of these applications coming from out of state.

Nearly every veteran who entered the service from Kentucky and had over 90 days active duty between Aug. 5, 1964, and May 15, 1975, is eligible, he continued.

Application forms are available at every county clerk's office in the state, as well as National Guard Armories, Employment Services offices and most veterans organizations. All the veteran needs is a copy of his or her DD Form 214 and a copy of the application form. The application can usually be completed in about 10 minutes.

The Bonus Branch toll free hot line number is 1-800-223-0713 or veterans may call (502) 564-5137 and (502) 564-5220. Hours of operation are 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Cable theft lands four in jail

Four men were convicted recently in Floyd County Circuit Court of stealing cable belonging to South Central Bell Telephone Co., according to Art Willett of the telephone company.

The theft took place at the Garrett cut-thru on US 80. Arrested were Gerald Ray Maynard, Rodney Blackburn, Gary Blackburn and Jack Nelson.

Nelson and Maynard pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor charge of theft by unlawful taking and each received 90 days in jail.

Rodney Blackburn pleaded guilty to felony theft by unlawful taking and was sentenced to two years in prison. Gary Blackburn pleaded guilty to felony theft by unlawful taking and was sentenced to one year in prison.

Commonwealth's Attorney Jerry Patton noted that the theft of cable was a serious crime and would continue to be prosecuted rigorously, Willett said.

"Bonus applications are really starting to pour in. We have averaged more than 600 per day since Dec. 1, while prior to then we were averaging less than 400 a day. It appears that many veterans have been putting it off and are now being motivated by the approaching deadline. Please don't delay get your application in the mail today," urged Division of Veterans Affairs Director Larry L. Arnett.

Application forms are available at every county clerk's office in the state, as well as National Guard Armories, Employment Services offices and most veterans organizations. All the veteran needs is a copy of his or her DD Form 214 and a copy of the application form. The application can usually be completed in about 10 minutes.

Open for business

The Dollar General Store has been erecting a building to house their much expanded stock for a couple of months, and yesterday the doors opened on the new location on North Lake Drive in Prestonsburg. The Dollar General Store offers affordable merchandise including clothing, soft goods, shoes, housewares, health and beauty aids, and home cleaning products. Prices are low because the store takes advantage of opportunistic buys, irregular and closeout merchandise, according to executives of the chain, based in Scottsville. Thursday store manager Phyllis Ousley greeted customers who came in for the opening. The store's hours are Monday through Saturday, 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Sundays from 1-6 p.m.

Technical School

and is adept at teaching surveying, as well.

The system was also able to coax Tom Hardwick out of retirement to teach English and social studies. Originally from Eastern Kentucky, Hardwick left the area and taught in Michigan for 25 years before coming back to retire. The idea of teaching his subject areas with a practical application in mind intrigues him, as does the quality of the student body.

Because of the stigma that's often attached to a vocational school, Hardwick says friends questioned his decision to teach there. "It's a joy," he says. "Here we have absolutely no discipline problem. The kids are here to learn. The biggest offense is smoking."

"What we wanted to do is to devise a vocational program that would prepare students for either a career after high school or for college," says Hall, adding that the academic classes taught at the school are college preparatory courses.

"For years, I've seen students go off to Morehead or another college for a year and come back because it just didn't work for them. Did you know that the retention rate for freshmen in many colleges is only 50 percent? That's because many students (after completing high school) see no other option but college," says Hall, who wants students to have options.

Brenda Hamilton is one of many students who are covering both angles. Hoping to get an athletic scholarship to college, Hamilton takes her classes in discrete math, English and communication seriously. But, should a scholarship not be forthcoming, she says her business and office training will allow her to get a job right after high school, work and save the money to go to college on her own later.

Keith Exley from Prestonsburg High School fully expects to go to college, first at Prestonsburg Community College and then the University of Georgia. He sees his emphasis in electronics at the technical high school as preparing him for a college major in electronic engineering.

Lantre Combs, on the other hand, goes Monday to take his entrance examination for Mayo Vocational/Technical School in Paintsville. From Hueysville, the Allen Central High School senior is taking machine shop at the technical high school and wants to complete his education at Mayo. Unlike most Mayo students, however, Combs will enter the post-graduate training having had such classes as discrete math, conceptual physics and computer drafting.

Combs, like many of the other students, takes some of his classes via satellite television. Students gather to watch the broadcast of a live class, and though more than a hundred miles from the teacher, they can still interact by phone. Later, if they want to review, they simply take a videotape of the class home and play it over as many times as they like.

Gary Frazier, assistant county superintendent, calls the technical high school "the best kept secret in Floyd County." Frazier adds that the school's program is the only one of its kind in the state. "People are beginning to come here from all over the state to look at what we're doing, instead of to criticize," the administrator says.

"It's hard to turn around the idea of this as a dumping ground," Hall says, referring to the stigma that has been traditionally attached to vocational schools in academic circles. "This school has turned some kids' lives around."

The vocational options include electronics, machine shop, business and office, welding, auto mechanics, carpentry and mine maintenance. Each area emphasizes a hands-on approach.

For instance, carpentry students are now remodeling the reception area in Principal Ronald Turner's office. With a casual, concerned attitude that helps to set the tone for the school, Turner compliments the students and allows them a great deal of freedom as they learn by doing.

Students also often get the opportunity to take field trips to businesses — a frequent stop is American Standard.

Administrators are also setting up a cooperative program where students will have the chance to get on-the-job experience at area businesses. "The plus for businesses," says Frazier, "is that they get a tax break and some really excited employees."

Local businesses have also supported the school by donating equipment. Worldwide Equipment, for example, gave three old computers for electronics students to work on.

Another asset of the school is pointed out by student Combs. "You get to meet students from all over the county that you would not have the opportunity to meet otherwise," he says.

The atmosphere at the technical school is a significant plus, as well. Students, faculty and administrators maintain a casual, but professional relationship and the respect they have for each other is quickly obvious to visitors. "The teachers like the students, and the students know it," Frazier says.

Respect and pride are also evidenced in the appearance of the school. It is, without doubt, one of the cleanest, cheeriest schools in the system. Walls are brightly painted and lively. Halls and classrooms are free of litter and graffiti. And despite the activity in classes such as auto mechanics and carpentry, the building complex is amazingly clean.

Says student Hamilton, "I didn't want to take it easy during my senior year, and this school offers me options. It's a great program."

bad timing!

A county truck delivering gravel to a little used road in Salt Lick, near Hueysville, broke through a wooden bridge Wednesday and was temporarily trapped on what appeared to be private property. The gravel was spread on the roadway located near the homes of Harold and Orey Allen and Buster and Peggy Dudleson. Both couples noted that the county had maintained this section of roadway in the past. According to Jackie Edford Owens, magistrate for District 2 where the truck was operating, the roadway is considered to be an old county road, formerly serving the Salt Lick Community Church. Owens noted that repairs on the damaged bridge are underway.

Congratulations are in order to Carl and Trudy Hicks on the birth of their baby boy last week. Mrs. Hicks is the former Trudy Hunter of Dinwood and daughter of the late Everett and Sadie Hunter.

The flu bug has had and is still having its effect on local residents. We understand McArthur (Mack) Jacobs has been down with the flu. David "Blue Moon" Fitch also has been bitten by the bug. We wish them a speedy recovery.

Our sympathy is expressed to Earnest Hayes of Martin on the death of his wife and mother recently.

We saw Julia Conn the other day and she has been down with the flu also. Julia is feeling better now.

A church fellowship was held Sunday evening following the services at the Parkway Baptist Church in honor of the birthdays of Arnold Griffith, Renea Tussey and Cathy Music. Rue Hager baked the cake and the women of the church furnished the refreshments.

Also at the Parkway Baptist Church Sunday morning, dedication services were held for little Megan Lean Collett, daughter of Lisa Collett of Martin. Charles and Rue Hager were named God-parents for Megan Lean.

PostScript

By Pam Shingler

When the media and the federal government discovered Appalachia, I was completing high school. Many of you remember that time in the '60s. We sat in front of our televisions and watched in dramatic black and white as the nation was told just how deprived and backward we folks in east Kentucky, West Virginia, east Tennessee, west Virginia, north Georgia and the Carolinas were.

Reporters invaded our unplumbed houses, our unstocked cupboards, our unpaved highways, our unclean coal mines, our unmodern schools. Clearly, we saw, we were un-mainstream, on the fringe of how American society defined itself.

Much as many other Eastern Kentuckians at the time, I didn't attempt to dispute the depiction. After all, I'd read the Bobbsey Twins and Dick and Jane and I knew my frame of reference was somehow different. I'd watched Ozzie and Harriet, the Donna Reed Show and Father Knows Best and I knew that they held few similarities to my own experience.

While my family didn't jibe with the images of the stereotypical hill-folk shown in Huntley and Brinkley or on the pages of Time, I couldn't deny their reality. I'd spent my first 14 years in a house with no bathroom. Most of my clothes were made by my grandmother or were hand-me-downs from cousins or teachers. My grandmother's garden fed us all year long, with supplements from federal commodities. I grew up on tales of hardships of the depression and mining tragedies.

Among my mother's family, where books, newspapers and magazines were always in abundance, open and read, only one had finished high school, and I was about to become one of the first of the cousins to be graduated and the first to go to college.

Though living a somewhat different life, I fully believed the picture of Appalachians painted by the media in those days.

And although I was a hot shot at Paintsville High School, which had always had a reputation for excellence, I doubted not only my region, my school and my family, but also myself. Teachers' compliments, family support, state and national awards, good scores on national tests, scholarship bids from top flight schools—none could allay my doubts. So I was a star, so what? I was still from Appalachia which was so under par by mainstream American standards that my above average here would be below average when I was forced into the larger world.

I entered college in Ohio, terrified that I could not make the grade. I was convinced that my experience in a substandard subculture would find me wanting. I would be competing with the Donna Reed students, those whose education and upbringing were obviously superior to mine—and I would fail.

Of course, those fears were unfounded (though never completely obliterated). I found I could compete successfully alongside students who had attended better funded schools and who lived on sidewalk streets in cul-de-sacs rather than along mud roads in hollows of hills. But it's a lesson I've had to learn many times over. The anxiety still pops up on occasion and I have to grapple with it all over, just as I did at 18.

For this reason, my heart aches for students in Floyd County schools. They're faced with a double whammy of wearing the negative tag that's been put on Appalachia, as well as trying to learn in a school system that's been labeled unacceptable both locally and statewide. They must tackle the onus of being a part of the worst of the worst—or so it would seem. What must that do to their sense of worth, their hopes, their dreams? My experience, I suspect, doesn't begin to compare.

Perhaps it's time we take some steps to make their way easier. Perhaps it's time we start talking about what is good about our area and about our schools. Just glancing at the dean's list notices that come to this newspaper from colleges across the state, I have to believe there are some good things happenings.

That's not to say we should cease criticizing or cease expecting improvements or cease pushing for reforms. But it does mean working together to promote the good. It does mean teachers and administrators and school board members and parents and other taxpayers sitting down together in a spirit of goodwill with one thing in mind: the welfare of our children. It does mean seeing a broader picture and subverting the impulse for narrow, selfish ends. It does mean that all the warring factions should extend the olive branch to each other and work together to further the education of our children.

Only then can we begin to remove the damning stigma of being from Floyd County and from Appalachia. Until that is done, we are cheating our children and condemning them to never know how bright and how special they really are or can become.

Our Yesterdays

Ten Years Ago

(February 6, 1980)

With a $310 million deficit in the state general fund expected over the next two years, and legislators understandably hesitant about imposing new taxes, we should expect at least a more rigid enforcement of existing tax laws. The delinquency rate is presently running at near 20 percent while property value assessments in the county are an average of about 18 percent below fair market value...Told of a proposal by the Floyd Housing Authority to build a public housing project on Mare Creek, residents of that area have made it clear that they will tolerate such a project only if it is limited to the elderly and handicapped...With temperatures near zero the courthouse had further troubles Tuesday when a water jacket in the heating system ruptured, automatically shutting off all the heat in the building. If the service man is unable to repair the job which will get heat to all parts of the building except the circuit and district courtrooms, all court sessions would be canceled and prisoners evacuated...Ashland Howard of David and other residents feel that the town's plans for extensive housing development could be jeopardized unless a way is found to control mining activities in the area, and they are hoping that a bill proposed for consideration by the General Assembly this year will provide them with the tool they need...Enterprise Association of Baptist churches has filed with superintendent of Schools Pete Grigsby Jr. a request that school activities, including basketball games and Board of Education meetings be rescheduled so that they will not conflict with the traditional Wednesday night services of area churches...There died: Elder Mitchell Chaffins, 66, of Minnie, Saturday at Highlands Regional Medical Center; Will Cecil, 90, of Harold, Tuesday, Jan. 29 at Mountain Manor Nursing Home; Lonzo Vanderpool, 53, Monday at his home at Gunlock; Mary Music Brown, 88, of Prestonsburg, Wednesday, Jan. 23 at HRMC; Wilma L. Johns Rohr, 60, of Bloomingdale, Ind., formerly of Floyd County, Sunday, Jan. 16; Blanche Cooley Castle, 65, of Winchester, formerly of Floyd County, last Tuesday at Clark County Hospital; Anna Hunter, 81, of Betsy Layne, Jan. 30 at her son's residence in Sarasota; Charles E. Allen, 87, of Pikeville, formerly of Eastern, Tuesday at Methodist Hospita; Ira J. Hamilton, 70, of Midway, Ohio, formerly of McDowell Friday, Jan. 25; Wilbur "Si" Reynolds, 62, of South Rockwood, Mich., Jan. 26; Bertha Williams Cranford, 59, of Prestonsburg, Sunday at HRMC; Howard J. Perry, 55, Thursday, Jan. 31 at his home on Spurlock Fork of Middle Creek; Ollie E. VanHoose Taylor, 66, of Nora, Va., Monday at the home of a son at Hunter; Dorothy Ann Kephart, 57, of Hagerstown, Md., formerly of Auxier, Jan. 21 at Hagerstown.

Twenty Years Ago

(February 12, 1970)

Congressman Carl D. Perkins said last week he was "greatly disturbed" upon learning that President Nixon's budget as submitted to Congress contained no funds for the Martin local protection project...The Prestonsburg City Council at its meeting last week authorized the borrowing of $117,700 to finance repair of the damaged drain in the vicinity of the Second Street flood protection installation...The contract for construction of the $5.3 million regional hospital on US 23 near Auxier, was signed last Tuesday, and the contractor is now preparing for the beginning of foundation work...Floyd county's teachers are overwhelmingly in favor of following the lead of the Kentucky Education Association in deciding if they shall, or shall not call a work-stoppage in protest against the failure of Governor Nunn and the Kentucky Legislature to provide increased teacher salaries...There died: Mollie Shepherd, 60, Monday at her home at Hueysville; Ezra Mayo, 72, of Martin, last Wednesday at Jenny Wiley Rest Home, Paintsville; Ben H. Tackett, 79, last Thursday at his home at Grethel; Sarah Stone, 89, Mousie, last Thursday at Our Lady of the Way hospital, Martin.

Thirty Years Ago

A recent division of the Kentucky Court of Appeals will probably cost the Floyd county school system $137,715 it was calculated by County Superintendent V. O. Turner. It will put the county revenue back near where it was 12 or 13 years ago unless the present legislature gives relief, he added...A resolution requesting the Department of Education to study the need for a new four-year college to be located in Eastern Kentucky was introduced in the General Assembly, Tuesday, by Rep. Ollie Robinson, of Prestonsburg. Adoption was immediate in the House. The $516,000 tax assessment made by the Floyd County Board of Supervisors against the McDowell Memorial hospital was annulled by order of the State Tax Commission, county officials were notified this week. If Governor Combs' record-breaking general fund budget of $438 million is approved, teacher salaries may be boosted $750 a year...Governor Bert Combs returned home Saturday to be honor guest at an appreciation dinner sponsored by the Floyd County Bar Association...There died: Elsie Layne, 59, of Mare Creek, at Pikeville hospital; Lewis Shepherd, 73, of David, at the house of a son, on the Middle Creek road; Anna Cook, of Adams, in a Louisa hospital; Rosa Griffith, 58, of Pyramid, at Beaver Valley hospital; Jarvey Tackett, 81, of Langley, at the home of a daughter; Molly G. Conn, 68, of Printer, at the home of a daughter; Hester Wilson, 66, of Tram, at the home of a daughter; Lee Johnson, 47, of Garrett, at the McDowell hospital; Sirdy Craft, 88, of Prestonsburg, at the Beaver Valley hospital, Martin.

Forty Years Ago

(February 9, 1950)

Prestonsburg's snarled school situation was untangled Tuesday with the acceptance by the Floyd County Board of Education of the proposal by the Prestonsburg Board of Education to sell its interest in the high school here...For the part they allegedly played in the Kentucky precinct vote fraud at last year's primary election the precinct's four election officers were named in an indictment reported Saturday by the grand jury, charging them with willfully receiving the vote of persons other than qualified voters...John L. Lewis will attempt to get a contract settlement in some way before it gets to a vote of the men on the operators' last offer," predicted David L. Francis, president of the Princess Elkhorn Coal Company, David, in an address here Tuesday evening before the Lions Club...An annexation ordinance to include within the corporate limits of Prestonsburg all that section between the southern city limits and Ball Alley was voted by the City Council at its Monday evening meeting...Tracking it down by following the "trail" of its former locations till the last stand was found, Constable Johnny Caudill and deputies, Enoch Hatfield, Green Johnson and Cain Blackburn, Sunday morning, shortly after midnight, captured a 40-gallon copper still brimful, on the Justice Branch, two miles from Hi Hat...There died: James Conley, 74, Tuesday at the home of a daughter at Garrett; Seymour Mayo, 81, Monday at his home near Allen; Edward Fraley, 40, native of Right Beaver, Wednesday at Albuquerque, N.M.; Isaac Goble, 84, Feb. 1 at his home at Lancer.

Fifty Years Ago

(February 8, 1940)

A wage dispute at the Wayland and Garrett mines of the Elkhorn Coal Corporation apparently had ended Monday as approximately 1,400 miners in the two towns had returned to work...Of the $79.80 realized to date in this county from the "Fight Infantile Paralysis" campaign, $45.88 was contributed from Wayland and only 80 cents was known to have been paid into the fund in Prestonsburg...Claiming that they were damaged in the amount of $7,043.60 as the result of the Turner Elkhorn Coal Company, Drift, to carry out their part of a contract involving the furnishing of empty coal which the plaintiffs say they were able to produce, George Morgan, Russell McCown and Marion McCown filed a suit seeking the recovery of the amount, plus interest...Plans are under way for the entertainment of the 58th district basketball tournament at Garrett Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Feb. 29, Mar. 1 and 2, Lewis Campbell, tournament manager, announced this week. There died: Stella Kazee, 62, of Betsy Layne, at the Beaver Valley hospital; Nelson Hamilton, 84, at his home at Martin; Susan Stephens Allen, 72, of Langley, at the Martin General hospital; Virgil Goble, 26, of Ivel, after being hit by a train.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor,

I'm in agreement with Gorman Collins Jr. The magistrates receive a nice hefty salary a year. Why should taxpayers buy a car for them? Let them set aside part of their pay a year for upkeep on their own cars or trucks like the rest of the working people.

Does the county give all of its employees free cars and insurance to get to and from work? If these magistrates get a free vehicle and insurance, are the county employees going to get one, too?

If the magistrates manage to get a free new vehicle, the next thing you know they'll want a chauffeur, a car phone, a computer, a fax machine, a private office with a secretary, and possibly a chamber maid. This could go on and on. So let's stop here with no free vehicles for magistrates.

The money spent on four vehicles at a cost of $80,000 could improve secondary roads. Example, in district three, south of Hi Hat near the new school across from the tunnel, the road is washed out. If you met a coal truck, you'd wind up in the creek, and the train tunnel at Hi Hat is caving in. Why hasn't that been taken care of? Does the taxpayer have to wait until a child or adult gets trapped in there before something is done?

Also, on Meade Hill, the guard rails are all rotted. Water runs across the road all year long, which in winter could be very dangerous.

This list could go on forever. I'm surprised with the high mileage on the magistrates' vehicles that they don't see this themselves! I guess they are more worried about their prestige and to heck with the taxpayers. You'd think they were dukes and duchess.

If the magistrates don't get their new free vehicle and don't like it, they know what they can do! Why should they be any better than the people taking the US Census.

Keep up the good work, Mr. Gorman Collins Jr. Expose all the abuse of the taxpayers' money.

It appears to me that Gorman Collins Jr. doesn't need a "suck bottle." He's not trying to suck the taxpayer dry like the magistrates. It's time to wean the magistrates. Maybe they should ride a bike to work. It's cheap and the county could afford that.

Contends road is a waste

Dear Editor,

I was reared in Floyd County, Kentucky, and have resided and worked in eastern Kentucky all of my life. I am very interested in the progress of eastern Kentucky and would like to see our communities prosper once again as in the "Coal Boom" days.

I have read, with much regret, of our many roads needing repair and our substandard bridges already unsafe for travel. However, there seems to be no money for these needed repairs.

U.S. 23 needs connecting and completed. The people in Letcher and Harlan Counties need US 119 completed, yet with our petty politicians and "sweetheart" deals, these things can never be.

I am sending you a map with a proposed road marked in red, linking Minnie, Kentucky, on Ky. 122 and the four-lane highway of Ky. 80 at the mouth of Gosling Branch of Beaver Creek in Floyd County. This road project was not wanted by the citizens of both sides of the mountain where this road is projected. The citizens believe this project is a waste of the taxpayers money since there are so many other roads and bridges that are in great need of repair.

All engineers that I have spoken with, can't believe that this road was ever proposed, yet it is well on its way. The proposed road (three-lane) has been surveyed and the right-of-way is now being bought from Minnie to the mouth of Gosling Branch.

The cost when this project was first talked about in 1984-1985, was approximately $13.5 million. The engineers now are talking $35-$40 million. So long as you and I, as voters and citizens of the Commonwealth, condone this type of frivolous expenditure, it will never stop.

I thought you might like to see this bit of information. I am sure there are other political "babies" in our state.

If some of these unneeded (political baby) projects were cancelled, the monies combined would be sufficient for funding for US 119 and US 23.

Concerned over apathy

Dear Editor,

I wish to express my concern for an easily forgotten group in our county: the mentally handicapped. Being the county director for Special Olympics, I have been requested to raise funds for this year's games. The rudeness and apathy with which I have been faced during my quest for contributions has been simply appalling.

Special Olympics is for mentally handicapped persons from 8 to 21 years of age. Most of the participants are our public school students. Many times these students are from underprivileged homes. For these students, Special Olympics may be the only opportunity available to boost self esteem, to simply feel accepted and valued—especially if they progress to the state and national games. Research has also shown that there is a direct correlation between participation in Special Olympics and improved academic performance.

I would like to take this time to ask the area businesspeople that previously declined to donate to please reconsider. If we could receive just $5 from each businessperson, our organization could make leaps and bounds.

Also at this time, I would like to thank the businesspeople who did contribute. I want to assure them that a formal thank you listing the names of their businesses will still be made at the conclusion of the fund drive.

Donations may be sent to Area #16 Special Olympics, Jerome Kanney, CPA, 130 Hibbert St., Pikeville 41501.

Magistrate responds

Dear Editor,

To answer Mr. Gorman Collins Jr.'s letter to the editor last week:

You stated that the magistrates made "over $28,000" per year and "over $300.00" per month expense money. Why don't you get your facts straight you so-called news reporter? Mr. Collins, counting everything, we don't even make $25,000 a year and that's before "Uncle Sam" takes his cut of over $5,800. I noticed that you had a nickname for each Magistrate and the Judge in last week's Floyd County Times. I've got one for you, too, Mr. Gorman Collins Jr.—"THE OLD WHINER". Yeah, I did say that you needed a 7-foot suckbottle in the Floyd County Times, but WHAT I FORGOT to say was that you needed it filled up with your Dad's famous "mare's milk"—"TOOTIE FRUITIE" flavor.

Now GormBob—maybe you can go out here and drag out a few more of those people that are AGAINST ME and put them on the radio so THEY can talk about me. It don't matter "HOW LOUD YOU CRY"—YOU ARE NOT going to change my way of voting on anything.

You talked about The Floyd County Times credibly on presenting the news. At least they are not out here running up and down the hollows trying to find somebody that is AGAINST us and grabbing them and putting them on the radio on your so-called "NEWS" Broadcast—All it takes to get on your "NEWS" Broadcast is to be AGAINST the Magistrates or the Judge.

It's a good thing for the people of District 1, Mr. Collins, that you didn't get elected their Magistrate IF you think that attending one meeting a month is the only thing a Magistrate has got to do.

Abolish position

Dear Editor,

Two years ago, I was elected Kentucky Railroad Commissioner by 47,985 votes on a platform to abolish the office of Kentucky Railroad Commissioner.

On Jan. 10, 1990, I delivered a letter to each member of the State Legislature in which I gave the reasons why this office should be abolished.

By abolishing this office, we can save the taxpayers of Kentucky about $100,000 a year which can be used for our schools and roads.

State Rep. Paul Mason of Whitesburg has introduced a bill which, if passed this session, would place an amendment on the November 1990 ballot and let the voters decide if they want this office abolished.

I think there would be very little problem in passing this amendment if it's on the November 1990 ballot.

Another bill introduced this session by State Rep. Ronald Cyrus of Flatwoods, would increase the Railroad Commissioner's salary from $3,000 to $15,000 a year. I am against this pay raise bill because the Railroad Commissioners with no duties are now over paid.

Over the past five years, the Chairman of the Kentucky Railroad Commission, Henry Spalding, a Louisville Insurance Agent, has taken 11 junkets to such places as New Orleans, Orlando, Los Angeles and New York at anywhere from $500 to $1,300 a trip.

Any news stories you can write in your paper concerning this abuse of the taxpayers' money would be appreciated by me.

I would also like to ask that all voters contact their State Representative and State Senator and let them know that they are in favor of abolishing the office of Kentucky Railroad Commissioner and they are against raising the salary of the Railroad Commissioners from $3,000 to $15,000.

If you have any questions, please telephone me at 606/436-3585.

Dear Editor,

I thank God I'm from Eastern Kentucky. I was raised at Garrett. After I got married, we moved to Indiana so (my husband) could get a job. We have been here since 1951, but it isn't like home. I have got a mother down there yet, and it is still home to me.

I think "48 Hours" should have showed some of the nice homes and other beautiful places to see in Eastern Kentucky. I want 10 of the stickers that ... said I'm from Eastern Kentucky and proud of it.

I have raised seven children and they all love Kentucky, too. You can be sure these people up here love the Kentucky cooking.

I will be proud to put the stickers on both of my cars. My children will be proud of them, too.

Legislative Prospective

By Rep. Greg Stumbo

During this short work week of the Kentucky General Assembly, bill movement increased noticeably. In addition, the Governor again spoke to a joint session of the Legislature, this time in his State of the Commonwealth address.

But, even before legislators returned to the Capitol, the Governor launched a television ad campaign which created serious misconceptions about the state's General Fund and its relationship to the General Assembly.

The advertisements give the impression that legislators use the General Fund for some sort of "slush fund" and possibly use the fund for something other than government-related purposes. Of course, those who are familiar with the operation of state government understand that this is a ridiculous accusation. The General Fund is the largest of seven operational funds through which all government programs are funded, most of which goes to fund elementary, secondary and higher education.

The Revenue Cabinet is responsible for collecting billions of dollars in taxes, of which a majority is deposited into the General Fund. Furthermore, the Kentucky Constitution plainly places responsibility for state government spending to members of the Kentucky General Assembly, the public officials elected by the residents of the Commonwealth to represent their interests in Frankfort.

No decision has been made at this point in the legislative session as to where lottery proceeds are to be utilized.

As members of the House of Representatives, we recognize our role in the budget process and are ready and willing to work with the executive branch to make efficient and effective use of all revenue generated for government programs.

The Governor, most certainly, has an important role in the budget planning process—to propose a budget which the Legislature evaluates and uses as a basis for the final budget bill that is enacted.

Bill action for the week included House passage of the so-called "Living-Will" legislation. According to the bill sponsor, the measure gives terminally ill people the right to die with dignity in the event of illness or injury resulting in irreversible coma by allowing adults to execute a document declaring their wish to forego artificial life supports. The controversial legislation had been introduced unsuccessfully in several previous sessions.

There are many, many people in my district who are deserving of recognition and applause for their contributions to the people and heritage of Eastern Kentucky. This week it was my honor and pleasure to publicly commend two such individuals.

Luther Johnson celebrated his 83rd birthday Feb. 4. Luther has been a distinguished member and officer of the Wheelwright Local of the United Mine Workers of America for 60 years and has achieved the longest record of underground mining in Floyd County. He is a deeply devoted father of 16 children and epitomizes the characteristics of a solid citizen, family man and dedicated worker. House Resolution 80 honors Luther Johnson on his 83rd birthday and the centennial anniversary of the UMWA.

Everyone who has had the pleasure of knowing Father Ralph Beiting, founder of the Christian Appalachian Project, has been concerned for him since he was injured in an automobile accident on Jan. 2. I was heartened to learn that Father Beiting was released from the hospital last week and is making a speedy recovery.

I took the opportunity last week to introduce House Resolution 89 honoring Father Beiting for his selfless devotion to creating a spirit of community among the people of Appalachia through his spiritual guidance.

There are few people whose lives Father Beiting has not touched in some way, be it through his now-famous street preaching, his many educational and employment projects, or his programs on behalf of the elderly, children, teenagers and families in crisis. The House of Representatives salutes Father Beiting and wishes him Godspeed in making a full recovery from his injuries and for his swift return to the many ministries that have made Floyd County a better place to live.

I appreciate the many phone calls and letters I have received from concerned residents of Floyd County thus far in this legislative session. I encourage you to keep in touch with me and to voice your opinions on the many issues I will be considering during the remainder of this session. You may contact me by calling toll-

House Week in Review

By Rep. Russell Bentley

The "living will," annual legislative sessions and a plan to prevent high-school dropouts from obtaining a driver's license were just a few of the issues tackled last week by the House of Representatives and its committees.

In a week marked by the governor's State of the Commonwealth address and action on many high-profile issues, several important bills advanced a step along the legislative process.

The House approved a measure that generated a lot of emotion on both sides—the so-called "living will." Supporters of the measure said it was necessary to give people a degree of control over their final days. Under the bill, adults would be allowed to state their desire in writing that they not be attached to mechanical life-support systems in the event of a clearly terminal condition.

Sponsors of House Bill 113 emphasized the legislation would not permit the withholding of food, water or medicine, and would not apply to pregnant women.

The bill cleared the chamber 69-29, marking the first time such a measure had passed a House committee and the full chamber.

One amendment attached to the legislation would prohibit doctors, nurses or health-care employees from being demoted, disciplined or passed over for promotion if they refuse to comply with a patient's living will declaration on moral, religious or professional grounds.

The measure now goes to the Senate for consideration.

The Elections and Constitutional Amendments Committee last week sent to the floor a measure allowing the General Assembly to call itself into special session if two-thirds of the membership signs a petition.

The bill takes the form of a constitutional amendment, which would have to be approved by voters in a referendum. The current constitution allows only the governor to call an extraordinary session of the Legislature and to set the agenda.

The same committee also approved a second bill to change the constitution. House Bill 16 would allow the General Assembly to establish a legislative mechanism for reviewing, approving or rejecting administrative regulations during or between legislative sessions.

Regulations are not really laws but have essentially the same force. Some of my colleagues feel some state agencies are not following the intent of legislation passed by the General Assembly when regulations are drafted.

Both measures must be approved by the House and the Senate in order to have them placed on the November ballot for voter approval. Up to four amendments may be placed on the ballot at any one time.

Meanwhile, the House Education Committee approved a bill preventing high school dropouts from getting or keeping a driver's license. The bill calls for school administrators to notify the state Transportation Cabinet when a student has had a sufficient number of unexcused absences or has failed to pass four courses.

A bill to secure funding for the purchase of endangered natural areas in the state, including wetlands, also cleared its first hurdle last week. The Appropriations and Revenue Committee approved House Bill 65, which would create the Kentucky Heritage Land Conservation Fund Board. The board would use proceeds from a deed-transfer tax to buy natural areas around the state being threatened with destruction.

Please feel free to contact me on these or any other issues toll-free, at 1-800-372-7181.

Bailey clarifies park issue

Dear Editor,
An article in the Friday, Feb. 2, edition of the Floyd County Times and a letter to the editor in the same edition furnishes some misleading information about a piece of legislation introduced by Sen. Joe Meyer and passed by the Kentucky State Senate on Thursday, Feb. 1.

I received a call from Fred James, Prestonsburg City Manager, on Thursday and was told of his concern about the legislation which he interpreted to harm the monies going to development and renovations at Archer Park. I talked to Sen. Meyer and expressed these concerns to him.

Sen. Meyer told me he had talked to Mayor Ann Latta and assured her that this legislation will not affect the monies the City of Prestonsburg is collecting from the motel and restaurant tax. Sen. Meyer's legislation allows for the expenditure of this tax money on any project "relative" to tourism.

When the legislation was called for a vote on the Senate floor, I asked Sen. Meyer to reaffirm for me the conversation we had earlier that the legislation would not affect the motel and restaurant tax revenues the City of Prestonsburg is spending on Archer Park. Sen. Meyer reaffirmed this.

After the session, I called City Manager Fred James and told him that the legislation would not affect funding of Archer Park from the motel and restaurant tax revenues since the Park encourages tourism in Floyd County and Prestonsburg. Mr. James agreed with Sen. Meyer's and my interpretation of the legislation.

I appreciate Fred James calling my attention to this legislation and invite all Floyd Countians to contact me, 1-800-372-7181, regarding any issue before the General Assembly.

1990 outlook good for state farmers

Economists at the recent Kentucky Agriculture Outlook conference in Lexington said farmers should expect another good year in 1990.

"We are looking at a financial situation that will be stronger in 1990 than in any other time since the early part of the 1990s," said Larry Jones, chairman of the University of Kentucky's agriculture economics department.

Jones said the strength can be linked to cautious investment behavior, effective controlling of costs, increased cash financing, and a continued restructuring and write-off of outstanding debts. He said net cash income for farmers should reach near $55 billion in 1990.

"Still, the government estimates that one out of every 10 commercial farmers is still in financial distress or is at least financially vulnerable," he said.

Jones said farmers can expect to see farm commodity sales exceed $160 billion nationally this year as a result of what could be record crop productions.

The next five years should continue to be stable for farmers because grain stocks are staying at a more controllable level, farmers have learned to control costs, and because of soaring exports.

"The value of the dollar has trended downward since 1985, which means that US commodities are cheaper for some overseas buyers," said Michael Reed, director of the UK Center for Agricultural Export Development.

Library 'programs' for computer fans

Interest in computers has grown in leaps and bounds in recent years, and many people have banded together in computer support groups to make obtaining computer information easier.

But no such support has been readily available in Floyd County, and it was necessary to travel some distance just to meet with other people interested in computers.

This is no longer the case. The Floyd County Library and local area computer enthusiasts announce the organization of a computer user support group, called the Prestonsburg Area Computer Enthusiasts (PACE). The initial meeting was Tuesday, Jan. 30, and was considered a success, though, due to short notice, attendance was not quite as large as was hoped.

At the next meeting, scheduled for Feb. 20, a charter will be adopted, officers will be elected, and membership fees will be discussed.

Formation of a local users' group has been the subject of discussion among many area computer users for some time. But the lack of meeting facility with access to computers for copying files prevented such an organization from forming.

However, last October, local hobbyist Jim Daniels of Auxier was contacted by personnel at the Floyd County Library. They were interested in starting a shareware software collection for patron use. (To those that are not familiar with computers, software is the set of instructions that tells the computer how to do a specific task.)

Shareware is computer software that is copyrighted by the author, but that is made available to anyone to "try before you buy." In other words, a person may take it home, put it in the computer, and see how well it performs the function for which it was intended. Then, if the person decides that the software will be useful, he or she pays for it.

Each software disk contains registration information, including price, as requested by the author. If the user chooses to keep the program, payment of the suggested amount is sent to the author. The author will usually then send the user a more detailed instruction manual, a more recent version of the software, often both of the above, or will at least inform the user when a new version of the product is available.

As Daniels and library representatives discussed computers, the prospect of installing an electronic bulletin board was broached. At a later meeting, it was agreed that, since both the computer users and the library desire to make information available to the public, a joint venture could be agreed upon.

The result was that Daniels agreed to supply the hardware, and David Allen of Alarm Service Company, Prestonsburg, would do the set-up and programming and train library staff in system operations. The Floyd County Library would supply a working area in which the computer could be set up and then install a dedicated telephone line solely for the use of the bulletin board.

In addition, the library will be the location at which the users group will meet, and will allow access to its computer so that members will be able to exchange files.

The PACE/Library bulletin board uses RBBS, the industry standard for bulletin boards, and has been in beta-testing state since Jan. 10. Though not yet in its final form, it is now ready for operation, and many of its functions are already available. Protocols are 1200 baud no parity, 8 bits, one stop bit. The telephone number is 886-8403. This is not a voice number.

A caller may now leave messages, read messages left in his or her name, make comments, join conferences on a variety of topics, read bulletins, obtain information on joining PACE, download/up-load files, open doors to various topics, obtain current library notices and information and much more.

If this sounds too confusing, don't worry. The PACE group exists to share information on computers of every type, and each meeting has something for everyone, whether novice or professional user. Experienced users will gladly answer any questions you may have, and will give useful shortcuts and tips for users of all levels. No question will be small, and if not one knows the answer, other groups will be contacted for that information.

Also, from time to time, special speakers will give talks on various topics. Special Interest Groups (or SIGS) will form and will cover many different subjects. These will include groups on various computer types, such as IBM and compatibles, Apple, McIntosh, Commodore, Amiga, Tandy/Radio Shack, and others.

Programming, software and many other topics will be the central idea behind other conference groups. These SIGs will meet immediately after the primary activities of the evening.

The next PACE meeting is set for Tuesday, Feb. 20 at 7:30 p.m. at the Floyd County Library, and is open to everyone. Call 886-2981 for more information. Ask for the Sysop, or leave a message if he is unavailable.

PCC December nursing graduates

Spelling Bee winner

Jared Hall is the winner of the Betsy Layne Elementary School spelling bee contest. He is the son of Dan and Connie Hall of Banner. A student in Mrs. Barnes' fourth grade class, Hall will represent BLES in the countywide spelling bee at Prestonsburg Elementary School today.

Driver's education offered at PCC

A new session of driver's education classes will begin Thursday, Feb. 15, at Prestonsburg Community College.

Open to anyone 16 years old or older who has a learner's permit, the class helps participants learn to operate a car competently and according to Kentucky law in preparation for the driving examination for an operator's license.

According to instructor John Noakes, after the first class meeting which involves instruction and discussion, six individual driving sessions will be arranged to fit each participant's schedule and goals. The on-the-road instruction takes place in a specially equipped driver's education car.

For more information about this class, call the office of continuing education and community services, 886-3863, ext. 278, at the college.

Prestonsburg Elementary Cheerleaders

The Prestonsburg Elementary Cheerleaders have recently completed a very successful year. Their awards include: First place, YMCA Regional Competition; third place, cheer division, Mountain Classic; first place, Floyd County. They are: first row, Leah Ann Daniels; second row, Dean Lufferty and Jodi Pelphrey; third row, Amanda Leslie, Leigh Billips, Staci Hart and Angelia Neeley; fourth row: Stephanie Wells, Misty Price and Jennifer Walters. The girls are sponsored by Jayne Pitts and Sharon Neeley.

Returns books on time

Recently the children of Martha Damron's first grade class were awarded a party held in the library. The students had consistently returned their books on time, more so than any other class in Prestonsburg Elementary. The party was given by librarian Jayne Pitts and library clerk Rita Tackett.

Local student on WKU list

Lance Arthur Daniels of Van Lear has been named to the dean's list for fall semester at Western Kentucky University.

Daniels, a junior, is designated a President's Scholar, the distinction for students whose grade point average is 3.8 or higher out of a possible 4.0.

Hall makes dean's list

Stephanie R. Hall of Stanville qualified for the dean's list for the 1989 fall semester at Union College, Barbourville, according to Dr. Paul S. Moore, vice president of academic affairs at the college.

In order to be included on the dean's list, a student must have completed at least 12 hours of graded work with a 3.25 grade point average for the semester.

Dorothy Cole

Dorothy Loretta Cole, 30, of Pikeville, died Monday, Feb. 5, at Morehead following injuries sustained in an auto accident.

Born Dec. 20, 1959, in Ohio, she was a daughter of Arthur "Shortie" and Ella Conn Cole of Harold.

In addition to her parents, she is survived by two sons, Jason and Arthur Hartsock of Pikeville; and five sisters, Cora Lorraine Tackett and Ella Marie Cole Thacker, both of Pikeville; Eula Mae Potter of Elkhorn City, Patricia Faye Honaker of Columbus, Ohio, and Delores Bentley of Cave Run.

Funeral services will be Friday, Feb. 9, at J.W. Call & Son Funeral Home Chapel, Pikeville, with Church of Christ ministers officiating. Burial will follow in the Family Cemetery at Betsy Layne.

Ashland Oil gives grant for GED training

First Lady Martha Wilkinson and Paul E. Patton, director of the GED Foundation for Adult Education, recently accepted a $25,000 grant presented to the Foundation by Ashland Oil.

Judy Thomas, president of the Ashland Oil Foundation, made the presentation in the state reception room of the Capitol.

The GED Foundation for Adult Education has committed to assisting the undereducated throughout the state in getting their GED and providing opportunities for these individuals to further their education.

The Foundation accepts contributions to fund projects, such as providing testing fees for participants who are prepared to take the test and have a financial need; preparing and distributing a video tape promoting adult education, stressing the importance of the GED and relating education to economic development; providing college and vocational scholarships to GED recipients; and other activities to promote adult education.

Teenage pregnancy: Solutions to a growing problem

(Third in a series)

by Tess A. Whitmer
Staff Writer

You are a high school student and you want an education; you get pregnant and decide to keep the baby. What do you do?

An alarming number of girls throughout the country are faced with this decision every year. To decrease the number of high school dropouts, solutions must be developed. Betsy Layne High School has one solution.

A nursery/day care center has begun at the school, thanks to a teacher who saw the need and applied for, and got, the funding.

In 1988 an alternative school was

1990 Leukemia Society poster child

Six-year-old Joseph Conrad, son of John and Annette Conrad of Louisville, has been named 1990 Poster Child by the Kentucky Chapter of the Leukemia Society of America, according to Campaign Chairperson Martha Wilkinson. "He is such a happy and outgoing person. He is living proof of the effectiveness of modern treatment and research sponsored by the Leukemia Society," Wilkinson said. Joseph is referred to by parents and friends, is a first grade student at Henry Watterson Elementary School. He has a twin brother, John. Young Conrad will be featured in television, radio and newsprint public service announcements throughout the year and will make special appearances at most Leukemia Society-sponsored events.

PHS Academic Team looking to Governor's Cup competition

Prestonsburg High School's academic team has turned in an outstanding academic season thus far. Coming off last year's final record of 26 wins and 13 losses, PHS has an overall win-lose record of 36-12 with the Governor's Cup academic competition still ahead.

The team's expectations run high that they will finish with more than 40 victories.

The PHS Academic Team is still in the running to win WOWK-13's High-Q competition. Prestonsburg has advanced to the High-Q quarter finals and will face Capital High School of Charleston, W. Va., on March 17. PHS will appear on the March 10 taping of High-Q in a match against Portsmouth Clay.

The academic team looks forward to this Saturday's District Governor's Cup to be held at McDowell High School. Hopes are high that PHS will win the District because Prestonsburg will be host to the Regional Governor's Cup on Saturday, Feb. 24.

made a mistake, but it's not worth throwing them on the trash heap and saying 'all right, you made one mistake, now we are not going to give you another chance.' These are fine girls and I'm very, very proud of them."

Huffman said the mothers who come back are top notch students and often face a lot of obstacles upon their return, from their husbands, parents, teachers and the community.

"These girls are very determined. They are real workers, and they don't want to be on welfare. They need a lot of support and need people to tell them this is the right thing to do, and they don't always get it," she continued.

The nursery doesn't cater solely to BLHS students, as Huffman points out. This high school does not have the highest pregnancy rate in the county, and the only reason it was proposed for the old Mountain Christian Academy, said Patricia Huffman, home economics teacher at BLHS. Originally Huffman sought the funds for the nursery for that proposed school. She received two grants from the Department of Vocational Education: one for a nursery and the second for building students' self-esteem.

Unfortunatly, the Floyd County School Board did not get the funding for the school, so the nursery went "begging," according to Huffman.

No one wanted the nursery at their high school, Huffman noted. The extra work and noise and the fact that many teachers were against the idea played a key role in the decision.

"Many teachers are not interested in teen parents and their problems. They believe the girl should just quit school and go home. I look at it differently. My goal is to get students to graduate, whatever their situation," Huffman said.

So the nursery was located at Betsy Layne High School and has since served 13 parents and five babies. Two mothers graduated in December and one is slated to get her diploma this spring.

"The women who come back are workers and they are some of the best women that Floyd County has for the future," Huffman stressed. "They

—Patricia Huffman
BLHS teacher

located at BLHS is that she was the only teacher willing to take it.

Huffman has sent letters to girls she knows have dropped out because of pregnancy and invites them to transfer to BLHS. Also other students recruit for her, telling their friends and relatives about the program.

"I think it's having a positive effect on the other students," Huffman said. "These parents, both mothers and fathers, are very vocal and tell the others just what it's like having a child. The students see them coming to school hauling a book bag in one arm and a baby in the other, and with no money in their pockets and they realize the realities of parenthood."

A specially contracted driver is supplied by the school system to drive these mothers and babies to school and the nursery is staffed with a full-time teachers aide and a part-time volunteer.

Even with all the benefits to the program though, mothers are reluctant to come to Betsy Layne. Huffman cites the school's negative image as the reason, but adds that this reputation is magnified and things aren't as bad as is rumored.

Because of this, Huffman thought of moving the nursery to Floyd County Technical High School (formerly Garth Vocational School). "After some discussion we determined this was not a viable option.

Floyd County Families: Our Heritage

I've been thinking about how dad used to tell about how they were brought up. They always went barefoot all summer. In the Fall granddad would make all of them a pair of shoes. These did them until the next spring when they could go barefoot again.

I can remember my dad saying there was very little work for a young man to do. He hired out to a Martin—to help him raise a crop. He lived on the Simps Martin Branch over around Drift on Left Beaver. He worked all summer until the crop was laid—by in the fall. His wages for the summer were $15.00 and room and board.

He was coming back home. As he crossed the hill he sat down on top and counted his money. His clothes were all worn out and he was trying to figure how to make that $15.00 go the farthest. He needed everything and $15.00 could go just so far. While sitting there, he thought, "there must be a better way to make a living." He had seen in the paper where professor Byington in Prestonsburg was starting a school for boys. He had a big house and was furnishing room and board and letting them pay them when they got through school or through that year. He decided he'd go to Prestonsburg and see about it. He bought a new outfit of clothes and walked into Prestonsburg. He got to the professor and told him his story. The professor agreed to enroll him in school and take him in. If he would study hard enough to pass the exam at the end of the term. They were always given an exam and those who passed were given a certificate to teach and Alex could pay him back that Fall when he taught school. So dad was perfectly willing to do that. He bought another change of clothes and with what was left over he bought some second-hand books.

Dad said, "No one ever studied as hard as I did during that term." He passed the exam and got the certificate. He started teaching school on Big Mud. I don't know what they paid then, not very much. There were only five months of school. He said that every time he got paid he'd walk to Prestonsburg and paid on what he owed the professor. I guess it took about all he made because I can remember when he taught all eight grades in a one room school for $36.00 a month. Then they raised it to $45.00. The last years he taught he got $60.00 a month.

When he went back to school, the next term he took his brother Johnny and three cousins. Charlie and Ike Roberts and Alex Hamilton. They all enrolled. When they took the exam dad made the first class certificate. Charlie and Ike and Johnny passed but Alex Hamilton didn't make it. He dropped out. The rest went ahead and made teachers.

I thought Bud would like to know how his dad got started. I know his name is James but he will always be Bud to me. We always called him that when he stayed with us so much as we played together.

Back then when anyone wanted to make something out of themselves—there were always up-hill struggles because there wasn't much to do to make anything then.

I think I left out some back relatives I didn't tell about Aunt Jane—dad's sister married a Marshall. Son John, married Joyce Carver. Martha, Elizabeth, Tona, Merve, Sally and Mary Jane. I don't know who they all married.

Myrtle (Myrtie) married Bishop Hunter. Mary Jane married Craig Hunter. Elizabeth married Jim Harrington. Uncle Bill's boy Frank married Martie Lawson. They had 3 children. Iris married Burlin Elliott (Green)—Ishmall married Bessie Collins. Margaret—Marty married Betty Gayheart. Aunt Mary's family—married John Ferrell—Joe never married—Cleveland married Louise Howell. Gladys Married (1) Susie Harvey—no children—(2) Alice Oney—died of TB—(3) Mable Harvey—Lula married Calvin Moore son, Hillard—(2) Eugene Webb—Charlie married Ellen Hamilton—Estill—Cleo—Katy, married Dayton Duvall.

When the civil war broke upon the country, the Meade family was divided, and their sons served in different armies. Lemuel Meade, son of Rhodes and Sally Richardson Meade, went into the confederate army, serving in the 10th Ky. Infantry. His brother, Rhodes, enlisted in the Union Army March 10, 1864 on Mud Creek, in Floyd County, as a private in Co. K. 39th. KY. INF. Robert, John P. and McDonald, all brothers to Rhodes Jr., served in this same 39th K. INF. Robert was in Co. B, but John P. and McDonald were in Co. K with Rhodes. They were in the battle of Puncheon, April 14, 1864 and were sent to Tug River, in pursuit of the confederate Col. Smith's forces, and later put down the guerrillas on Little Sandy River. Rhodes served as a scout during most of his term in the army.

While on furlough in the spring of 1864, he was captured on Beaver Creek by Col. Diamond's Cavalry, and spent two months in prison at Christiansburg, Virginia. Upon being paroled, he rejoined his command at Paintsville, Ky.

He was discharged, September 15, 1865, and returned to his avocation of farmer in Floyd County near Laynesville, the present Harold, Ky.

Pike County was unionist, almost to the man, as was Johnson Co. but in Floyd County, there was cleavage in the Allens, Meades, Strattons, and many other family groups.

Typical of the impending crisis was the election day voting at Laynesville precinct in Floyd County, in the Presidential Election of 1860, when the entire state rejected their native son, Lincoln. He received only 1366 votes state wide. Here lived the Laynes, Meades, Hatchers, and other pioneer families, some adherent to the north, most sympathizing with the south. At the mouth of Coldwater, lived Lindsay Layne, a son-in-law of Moses Meade. Layne was a union protagonist. He was told not to attempt to vote for Lincoln, as guns would bar his way. He went to the polls, accompanied by his son Moses. When Layne entered the voting place he called out to the clerk, "Mark one down for old Abe." Moses did likewise. Thus Lincoln received two votes at Laynesville, two votes cast in the face of unfired guns because men respect courage everywhere. It is interesting now to observe that descendants of the pioneer Meade, who brought slaves into the valley, split in their opinions, as Meade brothers went into opposite camps. (The following history and comments are taken from Henry Scalf's book, "Kentucky's Last Frontier").

SARAH, REBECCA JOHNSON
Sarah Kaitlyn and Rebecca Kalli Johnson were born Thursday, Jan. 4, to Gary and Karen Johnson of Silver Lake, Ind., at the Warsaw Community Hospital. Sarah arrived at 10:13 a.m., weighing 4 pounds, 7 ounces and measuring 18 inches. Rebecca was born at 10:38 a.m. and weighed 4 pounds and measured 18-1/2 inches. The grandparents are Goldia Johnson of Martin and the late Henry Johnson and Clyde and Ruby Bates of Salyersville. Great-grandparents are Flurinda Tackett of Bevinsville and Pearl Johnson of Martin. The twins join a sister, Kimberly, 15.

VICTORIA ELIZABETH CASTLE
Victoria "Tora" Elizabeth Castle was born at 6:55 a.m. on Thursday, Jan. 18 at Our Lady of the Way Hospital, Martin. She weighed 7 pounds, 11 ounces and measured 19 inches. The new parents are Danny and Elizabeth Fugate Castle of Hi Hat. The baby's father is a PFC serving in the US Marine Corp, now stationed at El Toro, Calif., and will be arriving home Thursday, Feb. 15 to be with his wife and new daughter. Then the family will leave for Cherry Point, N.C., to Castle's new duty station. The maternal grandparents are E. Hugh and Roberta Fugate of Price. The paternal grandparents are Gary and Mary Castle of Sandy Hook. She is the great-granddaughter of Bertha and the late L.G. Frazier of Price, Victoria "Tora" and the late Elder Jerry Hall of Drift and Elaine and the late Woodrow Castle of Printer.

Teen Pregnancy

year, at least. "I don't believe this nursery is letting girls know its all right to get pregnant. I continually stress that this is a temporary project and may not be here by the time they deliver," she said. "The girls who have been through it tell others what it's like and how hard it is not to be able to go to the prom, the ball game, the movies, because they have to spend $15 a week on diapers." Huffman also pointed out that for as many girls who are pregnant there are as many reasons. "Most of the girls I've served have gotten pregnant intentionally. There are very few accidental pregnancies. They do it to get out of the house, to get their parents to allow them to be married, or to quit school." Huffman notes that she also acts as an information and referral source for many students. "A lot of girls will come to me crying, thinking their pregnant. I immediately get them to go to the clinic and get tested and then if they are not pregnant I give them further information on contraceptives, sexually transmitted diseases and the like." As a home economics teacher, Huffman feels her role is to educate the students and be straight forward and to the point about such issues. "Home ec isn't just sewing and cooking any more. It has changed. It is computers, teen pregnancy, family violence, consumer education, how to manage a home, family and job," she stressed. "We don't teach them how to bake cookies because they can buy cookies, and who sews anymore? We also have the highest percentage of boys in home ec in the state, mostly due to the family life curriculum." She noted that the curriculum she uses is the most popular in the country and one that the state can't keep enough of in print. She also instructs the students on what to do after the birth of a baby, proper nutrition, breast feeding, the reality of teenage marriage, spouse abuse, rape, abuse of the elderly and more.

The issue of teen pregnancy is a growing problem, but looking at the statistics in the county on dropouts won't show it. Huffman explained that she tried to get the money for the day care program from drop out prevention funds but was informed that they were two separate issues. "It's not a separate issue. Most of the people who drop out are either a mother or father of a baby. That's the biggest reason people drop out. But teachers don't list pregnancy as a reason because they are afraid of getting sued," she noted. "The year before last only two girls were reported as dropping out because of pregnancy and I reported both of those. So our statistics aren't accurate."

There are 24 programs like the one at Betsy Layne High School throughout the state, the nearest at Sheldon Clark Inez. Prestonsburg Community College has a single parent homemakers program, but no day care, and the Floyd County Extension program offers correspondence courses for those not enrolled in the Floyd County School System who are seeking a high school diploma. Next Week: An interview with two teen mothers.

Dentistry: Moving into the '90s

(The Kentucky Mountain Dental Society brings you this article in observance of National Children's Dental Health Month. It is the first in a series of dental health articles for children.)

Over 40 years of progress in dentistry has resulted in dramatic improvements in the oral health of Americans and enormous savings on dental health care costs, according to the Kentucky Mountain Dental Society.

Scientific breakthroughs, improved dental equipment and techniques, and increased consumer information efforts are responsible for these benefits. Following are among the major innovations which have marked the past four decades and some directions for the future.

FLUORIDE is considered to be the single most effective weapon against tooth decay. In 1948, the mineral was proved to prevent cavities by strengthening tooth enamel. Now it is available in toothpastes, mouth rinses, tablets, topical applications and fluoridated water supplies. Today, about 60 percent of Americans drink fluoridated water and half of school age children have never had a cavity. Currently, scientists are researching a time-release fluoride pellet which would bond to a tooth and allow continuous absorption of fluoride over six months. PLAQUE REMOVAL became paramount in the 1960s, when researchers isolated the bacteria in plaque as the cause of tooth decay and periodontal (gum) diseases. Preventive techniques include physical removal of plaque by brushing and flossing and use of chemical anti-plaque toothpastes and mouthrinses to control infections. Today dentists are also using antibiotics to treat some forms of periodontal disease and dental scientists are seeking a vaccine to prevent tooth decay — similar to vaccines against measles, mumps and polio.

SEALANTS are additional preventive measures that were created in the early 1970s and are strongly recommended by the ADA. Sealants are plastic coatings applied to the tooth's chewing surfaces to fill microscopic pits and fissures in children's developing permanent molars. Recently, sealants have been combined with time-release fluoride to strengthen tooth enamel and remineralize areas which show early signs of decay.

HIGH SPEED DRILLS have been important innovations in dentistry, and when coupled with fast-acting anesthetics, have removed the pain, and accompanying fear, of a trip to the dentist. In 1950, ball-bearing handpieces introduced in 1957 reached 300,000 rpms. Today's drills make quick work of decay, reaching speeds of 800,000 rpms. There are also chemical compounds which can dissolve small areas of decay now in use in a few dental offices. Lasers may replace drills in the future. Experimentally, concentrated laser beams are being used to eradicate decay, smooth pits and fissures and clean root canals.

PATIENT INFORMATION and education have made important contributions to the decrease in tooth decay and are now being employed to fight gum diseases. Programs like ADA's National Children's Dental Health Month, now celebrating its 1st year, have made the public aware of the importance of good daily hygiene and regular professional care, according to the Kentucky Mountain Dental Society.

Today, the majority of Americans understand that teeth are intended to last a lifetime and, with good habits, developed early in life, they will.

Rebels control tempo in 56-42 rout of EC Cougars

Are you watching?

Kevin Spurlock (24) of Allen Central seems to be giving dribbling lessons to Hal Akers of Elkhorn City in Tuesday night's intercounty contest. Spurlock netted 15 points while Akers was held scoreless. Allen Central won over the Cougars, 56-42.

For all the basketball fans who came to the J.H. Campbell Arena to watch a run-and-gun basketball contest between the Allen Central Rebels and Elkhorn City Cougars Tuesday night — there wasn't one.

Both teams have been known to get up and down the floor. Not this time! The Rebels took the ball and controlled the tempo in a slow pace outing as they bested the Cougars, 56-42.

Kevin Spurlock, who hasn't been looking to score much this season from the point guard position, scored 15 points in leading the Rebels in that category. Spurlock hit three three-pointers in totaling his 15 points.

Allen Central took the ball and went to a patient offense that not only netted them a win, but also kept the players fresh.

"I played Joey (Conn) 32 minutes and he never tired. I played Kevin (Spurlock) 32 minutes and he never tired," Rebel coach Johnny Martin said of the patient offense, "and by slowing down the tempo both players never got tired, whereas if we ran with Elkhorn City they would have sat down."

Elkhorn City led only once in the game, 2-0, and the score was only tied once, 2-2. Spurlock hit a three-pointer off the right side to put the Rebels on top, 5-2. Allen Central pulled out by seven, 14-7, and never looked back. Cotton Parsons' rebound putback made it 19-13 at the end of the first quarter.

With 4:36 to go in the second stanza, Allen Central was up by 10 points, 27-17, behind the inside scoring of Conn. The Rebels' patience on offense helped the inside game of Rick Smith and Conn in building the a 30-20 half time advantage.

The Rebels turned the ball over only three times in the first half and had a total of eight turnovers in the game, which brought the praises of Coach Martin.

"Boy, that's good," he said. "Kevin had been averaging eight turnovers a game himself and he had zero turnovers in this game."

Blackcats defeat W'wright in overtime

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Coach Gordon Parido's Prestonsburg Blackcats evened their conference record at 3-3 to tie Allen Central and McDowell for second place in the conference standings, with a 70-67 overtime victory over the host Wheelwright Trojans Wednesday night.

Senior Chris Slone and Worth McGuire combined for 36 points in leading the Blackcats to the come-from-behind victory. Slone had the game high with 21 points and McGuire, who opened hot, added 14.

Prestonsburg, who has been looking to turn things around, got a basket from Kevin Adams with 25 seconds remaining in overtime to go ahead of the Trojans, 68-66 enroute to the 70-67 victory.

Wheelwright placed four players in double figures as the upset-minded Trojans let the game slip out of their hands. Harold Johnson led the Trojans with 15 points. Senior Bobby Hood, returning from a foot injury, added 14 points in a good outing for the Trojans. Brad Compton and Paul Hall had 13 and 12 points, respectively.

"We gave one away," is the way Wheelwright coach Monroe Jones explained the loss. "The back-andover call with 10 seconds to go in overtime hurt us. It was a big turning point."

—WHS coach Monroe Jones

"Our players gave a tremendous effort," Coach Parido stated. "We haven't shot the ball well the last three or four games. Somewhere like 30 percent."

Wheelwright looked like a team of destiny in the first half. McGuire put the Cats up 2-0 on a jumper from the foul line. Johnson responded with a base line jumper to tie the game. Steven Johnson's three-pointer gave the Trojans their first lead, 5-4, and they were off and running in an up tempo game.

Wheelwright ran out to a 16-10 lead and led at the first stop, 18-12.

The Trojans outscored the Blackcats 11-4 to build a 13-point lead at 29-16 with 3:43 to go in the first half. Wheelwright led at the half 33-22.

When the Cats came out of the locker room, something drastic must have happened in the locker room to rejuvenate the trailing Blackcats.

"No," says Blackcat coach Parido. "We were taking good shots the first half and they were not falling for us. That caused the players to become frustrated and it affected their defense. We told them in the locker room to not get down and to keep taking the shots, that they would start falling. We came out the second half and took the same shots and they went in."

Prestonsburg came out in the third period and ran off the first 11 points to tie the game at 33-33 with 5:17 to go in the third stanza. Slone scored seven points in the spurt. The lead changed hands four times in the last five minutes of the third quarter. The third ended in a 41-41 tie.

Chad Hall hit a lay up for Wheelwright to give the Trojans a 43-41 lead at the start of the final period. Jeff Sloan grabbed an offensive rebound and put it back in to tie the game. From that point the lead changed hands with each basket.

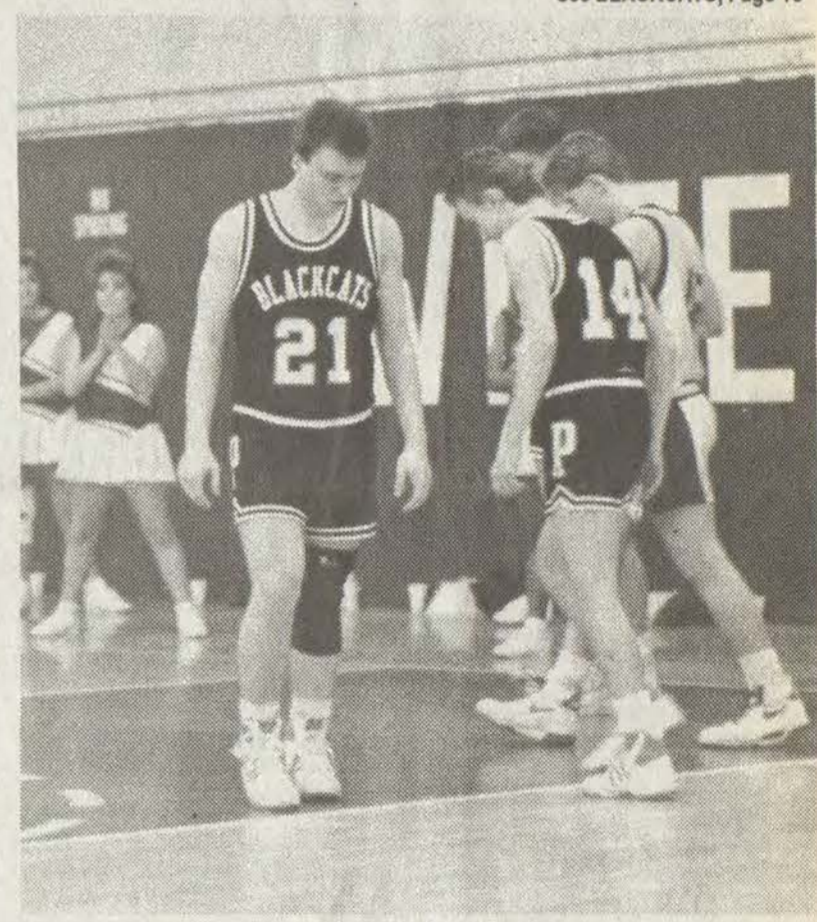

Late in the quarter, Prestonsburg went on top 53-52 on a Jeff Sloan basket. With the score tied at 57-57 Sloan went to the free throw line with 23 seconds remaining and missed the front end of the one-and-one. A desperation shot by Wheelwright missed its mark and overtime ensued.

Chris Slone took the ball for Prestonsburg in the opening of the overtime and scored and was fouled.

Slone connected on the free throw to give Prestonsburg a 60-57 lead. Steven Johnson hit a three-pointer to tie the game at 60-60. After Jeff Sloan gave the lead back to Prestonsburg, 62-60, Harold Johnson sank two free throws and gathered another basket to put the Trojans on top, 64-62, with 1:22 to go.

Prestonsburg's Kevin Adams scored underneath and was fouled for a three point play and 65-64 Blackcat lead. A Chris Slone free throw made it 66-64. Paul Hall then hit a 12-footer to tie the game at 66-66. A pass underneath the Prestonsburg basket found Adams open for an easy bucket and a 68-66 Prestonsburg lead.

Prestonsburg Lady Blackcats win despite cold free throw shooting

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

It was long road from Prestonsburg to Wheelwright Wednesday night as Bridget Clay's Lady Blackcats tracked their way to the Wheelwright gym to do battle with coach Donnie Daniels' Lady Trojans.

If the trip to Wheelwright seemed long, consider the trip back from a nine-point halftime deficit to a 40-38 victory for the Lady Blackcats.

Wheelwright seemed to have things going its way from the start, battling to get out of the basement of the Floyd County girl's conference standings. Both teams entered the contest with 1-4 records. Raquel Cain's basket with 1:39 left put the Lady Blackcats ahead at 39-38. Kathy Slone, who finished the game with 13 points, made it 40-38 with a free throw.

Wheelwright got out of the gate early. After Slone gave Prestonsburg a 2-0 lead, Becky Allen hit a three-pointer, and two baskets by center Jedon Hood gave Wheelwright a 7-2 first quarter lead. Hood missed six free throws toward the end of the first quarter.

Both teams heated up in the second quarter. Amy Reed's three-pointer made the score 7-5. April Bradford hit a basket and two free throws to put the Lady Trojans on top 11-5.

With Wheelwright leading 15-12 with 3:31 left in the half, Wheelwright ran off eight straight points to take a 22-12 lead. Hood's basket just before the buzzer gave Wheelwright a 26-17 half time advantage.

One of the concerns Prestonsburg coach Bridget Clay had for her team was their inconsistency this year. Prestonsburg is a young team with no seniors and two freshmen starting.

"They have been up and down this year," Clay stated before the start of the game. "I don't really know which team is going to show up when we play. Some nights we can't do anything and other nights we play great."

It may have been the "down" team in the first half for Clay's five, but it was the "up" team coming out of the locker room in the second half.

From the time Prestonsburg was handed the ball, opening the second half, until the smoke cleared at the end of the third, the Lady Blackcats' defense had held Wheelwright to only four third quarter points, and the margin had been cut to one point, 30-29, going into the final stanza.

Prestonsburg hit six free throws down the stretch in the third period. Hood hit a basket and Carrie Smith followed with another one to give the Lady Trojans a 34-29 cushion. Slone hit a basket and was fouled to make it 34-31. Slone missed the free throw.

However, Prestonsburg got the rebound and Reed scored off a good pass from Carolyn Reffitt to pull to within one point, 34-33. Off an offensive rebound, Bradford's basket gave Wheelwright a 36-33 lead. Reffitt and Cain both missed two free throws each and missed a chance to take the lead. Edwina Hale scored from 10 feet out and a driving lay up by Slone gave the Lady Blackcats their first lead since 2-0 in the first quarter.

Prestonsburg was up 37-36. After a Wheelwright score that gave them a 38-37 lead, Cain hit her go-ahead shot. Wheelwright had several chances to win the game but was unable to hit from the field. Prestonsburg missed 11 free throws in the final quarter and five of those were front ends of one-and-ones.

The win improved the Lady Blackcats to 2-4 in the conference and 8-9 overall. Wheelwright falls to 1-5 in the conference and 4-10 overall. Both teams will meet again at Prestonsburg Tuesday night.

Slone led the Blackcats in scoring with 13 points. Cain added 11. Hood

'Hall boys' lead Daredevils to win over Dorton, 77-59

by Ed Taylor

Marc and Stacy Hall combined for 44 points as the McDowell Daredevils continued to do the good things it takes to win in high school basketball. Marc Hall tossed in 24 points and brother Stacy added 20. Keith Shelton netted 14 points in the 77-59 victory Tuesday over Dorton.

The win was McDowell's sixth in the last eight games to improve the Daredevils' record to 7-14. The team was at one time 1-12 on the year.

Kevin Robinson led the Dorton Wildcats in scoring with 20 points. Jeremy Johnson added 15 points.

One of the highlights of the evening was the homecoming celebration at the Left Beaver school. Stephanie Allen was crowned Homecoming Queen of 1990. Allen, a senior cheerleader, she is the daughter of Rita and Stanley Allen Jr.

Both teams played close in the first quarter with the Daredevils holding a four point advantage, 19-15, at the end of the first period and went to the locker room holding on to an seven point lead at the half, 34-27.

The Daredevils scored 26 points in the fourth period to put the game in the win column for McDowell.

McDowell will be at Johns Creek tonight (Friday) and will play at front runner Betsy Layne on Tuesday night. Things don't stop there as the Daredevils have to travel to the Trojans den next week for another all important conference game. McDowell stands at 3-3 in the conference race and has an outside shot at tying for the conference lead.

Wheelwright falls to Jenkins, 77-60

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Wheelwright Trojans took on 14th Region foe, Jenkins Tuesday night at Wheelwright in an inter-county game. Shane Dixon and Brian

Johnson combined for 46 points to lead Jenkins to a 77-60 win over the Trojans.

Dixon tallied 26 points while Johnson hit for 20. Also in double figures for Jenkins was Mike Castle with 11.

Bobby Hood, making a return to the Trojan line up after being out with an ankle injury, led the Trojans in scoring with 14 points. Three other Trojans hit in double figures. Center Brad Compton added 10 points, Steve Johnson had 12, and sophomore

Harold Johnson tossed in 10. Jenkins took an early lead in the game and led at the first stop, 15-9. Wheelwright trailed by only four points at half time, 31-27. It was in the fourth period that Jenkins busted open the game with a 30-21 quarter.

Coach Monroe Jones' team was playing for the first time since playing Phelps tough in the Single Class A regional at Pikeville. Jones had been using his sophomores and playing a more up tempo game as the Trojans became a more pressing defensive team.

The win was Jenkins' 12th of the season against seven defeats. Wheelwright fell to 5-10 on the year, but the Trojans have been playing good basketball of late and could challenge for a district title. Wheelwright is 1-4 in the Floyd County Conference.

Wheelwright will entertain the Mullins Tigers tonight (Friday) in a homecoming game at 8 p.m. and will travel to Prestonsburg on Tuesday for a top conference match up.

Bowhunters to hold banquet Feb. 24

In the Prestonsburg Intramural League, the Red team of James Allen won over Richard Price's Blue team 30-21.

Chrystal Layne scored eight points to lead the Red team to victory. Jenny Morrison added seven points in the win. Allison Allen tossed in six points and teammate Nanna Allen had five. Carrie Francis and Shelly Price each scored two points.

For the Blue team, Carrie Hall had eight points to lead in that department. Kathy Mullins had four while Tina Miller chipped in with three. A trio of players, Rhonda Burke, Jennifer Joseph and Misty Price, each scored two points.

the first of the two shot foul but connected on the second to make it 68-67.

Prestonsburg had the ball and was called for walking with 10 seconds remaining in overtime. On the ensuing in bounds play from mid court, Wheelwright was whistled for an over and back call, and the ball went to Prestonsburg where Ray Collins was fouled. Collins connected on both free throws with seven seconds to go.

A three-point desperation shot by Hall was off target.

Prestonsburg hit nine of 10 free throws down the stretch.

Rebels control tempo in 56-42 rout of ECHS

Allen Central's defense stifled high-scoring center Kermit Belcher, holding him to 10 points. Belcher was fronted and backed by the Rebel defense when he received the ball inside. The big center had to come outside to get the ball and led a mild comeback in the third period as the Cougars cut the lead to 36-29 on three Belcher buckets.

"Our defense was good tonight," explained Martin. "We had our hands in their faces, and blocking out on the boards was excellent. The board work tonight was our best effort of the season."

Allen Central had 23 defensive rebounds in the game, indicating that the Cougars were just getting the one shot at the basket.

Rebel fans may see the same offense again Coach Martin stated, because "it keeps the players in the game."

"We want to run with the ball," he remarked, "but we have experienced foul trouble when we run." The Rebels Smith and Hancock did leave via the foul route late in the game. Smith was in foul trouble all night and had to sit down in the second quarter.

Elkhorn City's scoring guard Hal Akers was held scoreless in the game as some of his three-point attempts were air balls. Conn had five rebounds for Allen Central while Parsons hauled down 10.

The Cougars cut the lead to nine points twice in the final stanza but could come no closer in losing to Allen Central, 56-42.

Rick Smith had 13 points for Allen Central and Conn added 11 in the win.

Lady Bobcats and Rebels face off tonight at ACHS

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Will things be different this time around for the Lady Rebels and Lady Bobcats? The two teams meet tonight in a big Floyd County Conference match up at Allen Central.

The last time the two teams met, Betsy Layne came away with a 62-51 victory over the Lady Rebs. Betsy Layne's trapping zone defense caused Allen Central some problems in turnovers.

What changes Lady Rebs coach Bonita Compton will make are not known, but you can be sure she has played this game over in her mind and there will be some changes made.

Betsy Layne will be coming with All-District candidate Brenda Hamilton who canned 31 points in the last meeting between the two schools. Gone from the Lady Bobcats squad is Jamie Smith, the top rebounder for the Betsy Layne team. Smith left the team a couple of weeks ago. She had 14 points and nine rebounds in the previous game.

The Bobcats have much improved Melissa Bailey underneath the basket. She has put together some good games for Betsy Layne. Probably the most pleasant surprise for the Lady Cats has been the emergence of Brianna Boyd at the guard spot. Boyd has become more involved in the Betsy Layne offense and scored 17 points against Belfry, including three three-pointers. Good board work will be important for Betsy Layne in this one.

Allen Central's Jo Ann Conn seems to be playing like her old self of late. Conn does not seem to favor her reconstructed knee as she did at the beginning of the season. Like Conn, Boyd also has had to have reconstructed knee surgery. Both players wear the big knee brace when they play.

Teresa Gibson will be counted on for the outside scoring to keep the Lady Bobcats defense honest. Conn and Darnella Bradley (if she is able to play) will be hard to keep off the boards. Bradley had twisted her ankle in an earlier game. The Lady Rebels have turned up the tempo on offense, something that Betsy Layne will like.

This one will go to the wire. The winner? You pick it.

Game time is 6:30 p.m. Come on out and see this one!

WW to honor Martin

by Marsha Hall
(Marsha Hall is a student at Wheelwright High School. The Times welcomes other sports articles from our high schools in Floyd County. If you desire to run a sports story, contact Ed Taylor at 886-8506.)

Garnis Martin, a former student at Wheelwright High School and a member of the school's basketball, baseball and football programs, will be honored tonight for his coaching achievements in football at the local school.

Coach Martin began his coaching career at Wayland High School where he coached the football team. Martin later went on to Prestonsburg High School where he coached for two years before leaving for Bardstown. He has been a coach and assistant principal at Bardstown since leaving Prestonsburg. He says he doesn't plan on retiring until he reaches his goal of 300 wins. Martin has received various awards for his efforts as a coach. He received the Happy Chandler Award, which has been given to only one other football coach in the state of Kentucky. He was inducted into Kentucky's Hall of Fame last March and has also received an award for being Kentucky's winningest active football coach.

The ceremonies were arranged by Elmer Ferguson, a resident of Wheelwright and a former student athlete. Ferguson, along with a few of his other classmates began the first basketball team at Wheelwright in 1934.

The award ceremonies will be conducted after the Wheelwright girls' game against Mullins and preceding the boys' game. The ceremonies will be aired over WPRG Cable Radio, and possibly WYMT will broadcast as well.

Bobcats, Rebels square off in conference play tonight

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

All eyes will be on the J.H. Campbell Arena tonight as the basketball world in Floyd County looks at a top conference game between first place Betsy Layne and second place Allen Central in an 8 p.m. hook up.

The two teams met at Betsy Layne earlier in the season and required an overtime before the Bobcats overcame the Rebels, 52-51.

The outcome of this game will depend a lot on the ability of Rebel center Rick Smith's staying out of foul trouble early, something he hasn't been able to do lately. The big center is valuable stock to the Rebels offense and he must be in the game for the Rebels to win.

Whether Allen Central will play a slower tempo against the Bobcats is unclear at this time. The Rebels played a patient offense in subduing regional power Elkhorn City Tuesday night at Allen Central.

Kevin Spurlock and Cotton Parsons will have to bring a strong offensive showing to the arena tonight. Joey Conn, who seems to be able to get to the basket even if two men are hanging onto him, will have to help Smith in blocking Sam Stewart and Phillip King off the boards. Good board work for the Rebels is a must in this one.

Shelton chosen WYMT-TV star

Keith Shelton, 6' 5" center on the McDowell Daredevils basketball team was named "Player of the Week" by WYMT-TV in Hazard for the week of Jan. 1-6, according to station manager Wayne Martin.

Shelton received a plague upon being named player of the week. Shelton's play in the Pikeville invitational and his 41 point performance against Sheldon Clark netted him the award.

SC tournament to air on WSAZ

The Marshall University Thundering Herd is meeting the challenge of its Southern Conference opponents head on. When first-year head basketball coach Dana Altman and his team travel to the Southern Conference Tourney, fans can watch the Thundering Herd in action on WSAZ television 3!

The Huntington station will follow the Thundering Herd action live throughout the tournament and will also broadcast additional games of special interest to Southern Conference basketball fans.

Pairings may not be available for the Southern Conference Tournament before March 1.

Those who want to know who's up, who's hot, who's hurt and who's not can watch the Dana Altman show from the Southern Conference tourney on Saturday, March 3 at 12:30 p.m.

"We are continuing our commitment to education in Eastern Kentucky," Martin said recently. "Athletics and academics can co-exist."

The $1,000 scholarships came from proceeds from the WYMT-TV Mountain Classic Basketball tournament at Knott County Central earlier. Additional proceeds from the "Classic" tournament were divided among the participating schools.

Each nominee is selected on the basis of their ACT or SAT scores. Each student must file an application and have three letters of reference.

"We also determine from our applicants their involvement in community and school activities," Martin stated. "So with our program people's interest in basketball helps generate money for students to go to school."

Martin reported that not one of the eight recipients was a member of a basketball team.

Last year's winner, Danny Hamilton, played for the Prestonsburg Blackcats.

All nominations come from the 13th, 14th and 15th Regions.

The first baby to be born in the White House was James Madison Randolph, born Jan. 17, 1806. He was a grandson of then President Thomas Jefferson.

HOROSCOPE

February 11 through February 17

By C.C. Clark
AQUARIUS (January 20 - February 18)
Don't become paranoid, but be sure to take several precautions if you are walking or traveling somewhere alone this week. Don't take your life for granted.

PISCES (February 19 - March 20)
A spontaneous outing with a loved one will bring you great joy and happiness. A woman helps you understand something that has been bothering you for a long time.

ARIES (March 21 - April 19)
It is important to respect specific guidelines set up at your place of employment. This is a good week to buy that special something for you or a loved one.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20)
Good fortune in many disguises is headed your way soon. You will be annoyed with one who either works closely with you, or lives close to you.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20)
Following the rules, though not always fun, will bring you to your ultimate goal when dealing with your financial sector. This is a good week for traveling.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22)
You will feel more comfortable and relaxed than you have felt in a very long time. A crisis at work will be handled easily because of your calm attitude.

LEO (July 23 - August 22)
Loved ones require great patience. They try to undermine a project you have been working hard on, because they do not understand the importance. Explain it to them.

VIRGO (August 23 - September 22)
You need to hide your feelings about a family member who is driving you crazy. You will feel quite differently toward this person by week's end.

LIBRA (September 23 - October 22)
It is important for you to go with the flow this week. Family members and co-workers will seem uneasy and you will be the one to guide them through rough waters.

SCORPIO (October 23 - November 21)

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 - December 21)
This would be a great week to have that party you've been thinking about. It would be a good idea to do anything that would get you out of your winter doldrums.

CAPRICORN (December 22 - January 19)
An illness will be prevalent in your life this week; either yourself or one close to you. Money problems will be solved with some careful planning.

TV PIPELINE

Burgess Meredith considered one of most gifted performers

By Polly Vonetes

Q: I would like to have some information on two Batman villains. They are Burgess Meredith as the Penguin, and Cesar Romero as the Joker. Please give me their ages and addresses.

—Shane Ballard, Columbus, Miss.

A: Cesar Romero was born on Feb. 15, 1907, in New York City of Cuban parentage. He played the tall, dark "Latin Lover" of Hollywood films during the '30s, '40s, and '50s. Since the Batman series, he has appeared as a guest on many TV series and had a recurring role on Falcon Crest. Burgess Meredith was born on Nov. 16, 1908, in Cleveland, Ohio. He is considered one of the most gifted and versatile performers of the American stage and screen. He still accepts roles, mainly character parts. Write to him at: 23736 Malibu Colony Dr., Malibu, Calif. 90265. Write to Cesar Romero at: 12115 San Vicente Blvd., No. 302, Los Angeles, Calif. 90049.

Q: After reading your column I have renewed hope in finding a long-awaited answer to a question I have. I am a big fan of Ginger Rogers. Where could I write to her for an autographed photo? It would mean a lot to me.

—Janice Collins, Marion, Ind.

A: Ginger Rogers' last address was: 18745 Crater Lake Hwy., No. 62, Eagle Point, Ore. 97542.

Q: Two oldies I have not seen mentioned are The Millionaire and I Led Three Lives, both of which were extremely interesting. Any chance for repeats of these?

—E. Moss, Anchorage, Alaska

A: Both series have been in syndication for quite some time. The Millionaire is currently airing in some markets, but maybe not in

yours. I Led Three Lives may have been retired a while. Check with your local independent television station.

Q: In my first letter, which you never answered, I wrote seeking information regarding Richard Tyson of Hardball. How tall is he, is he married and where could I write him? In addition, I've noticed that the time slot on Friday usually showing Hardball has been changed to True Blue. Does this mean Hardball has been canceled?

—Sherilyn Kayz, Montrose, Colo.

A: Sorry, I didn't answer you the first time around. Richard Tyson is 6' tall and weighs 180 lbs., has blue-green eyes and brown hair. He is not married! The show had been canceled, but NBC plans to pick it up again in March. Keep your eyes open. Write to him c/o Columbia Pictures Television, Columbia Pictures Plaza, Burbank, Calif. 91505.

Please send your questions about television past and present to: Polly Vonetes, TV Pipeline, P.O. Box 17748, Fort Worth, Texas 76102-0748. Because of the volume of mail, only questions of general interest will be answered. Personal replies cannot be granted.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MINE Pursuant To Application Number 836-5204 Amendment No. 1

In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350.055, notice is hereby given that Koch Carbon, Inc., P.O. Box 727, Martin, Kentucky, 41649, has filed an application for an amendment to an existing underground coal mining and reclamation operation. This amendment proposes to add an additional 3.57 acres of surface disturbance and underlie an additional 2.25 acres for a total proposed permit acreage of 319.25 acres located 1.0 miles southwest of Orkney in Floyd County.

The proposed amendment area is approximately 0.30 miles west from Moore Branch Road's junction with KY Route 122 and located 3,000 feet north of the Pilgrim Rest Church. The latitude is 37-25-36. The longitude is 82-44-42.

The amendment is located on the McDowell and Wayland USGS 7 1/2 minute quadrangle maps. The surface area to be affected by this amendment is owned by Elk Horn Corporation. The proposed amendment will underlie land owned by Elk Horn Coal Corporation.

This amendment proposes to add surface area to incorporate a slide in the permit boundary and to add a fan entry for the underground area.

The application has been filed for public inspection at the Department of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement's Prestonsburg Regional Office, 503 South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653. Written comments, objections, or requests for a permit conference must have attached a copy of the newspaper clipping and must be filed with the Director of the Division of Permits, No. 2 Hudson Hollow Complex, U.S. 127 South, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601. 2-7-4t.
