Site selected

Low-income housing to be in McDowell

by Tess A. Whitmer
Staff Writer

During a meeting of the Floyd County Housing Authority Wednesday, a site was selected near McDowell for the proposed HUD, low-income housing project scheduled for completion no later than March 3, 1993.

The Housing Authority, composed of five board members, staff personnel and an architect, advertised several months ago for possible site locations. Members viewed nearly 25 plots, narrowing the choice to four feasible sites: the Drift ballfield, a site near Minnie owned by Carol Likens, a site on Frasure's Creek owned by Carson Akers and an area in Wayland owned by Elkhorn Coal Company and CSX Railroad.

The Likens site was chosen because of its low bid, $85,000, and its proximity to McDowell. However, the location has an additional site cost to raise it out of the flood plain to meet HUD building standards. The additional cost was estimated at $108,000 by architect Nick Feldman.

A motion made by Authority board member Morris Hylton included the possibility of cost overrun, should the land require extensive work, and called for an alternative plot, the Akers land. Hylton also included in his motion that the Akers land only be accepted after negotiations to decrease the bid price of $250,000 were successful.

This motion was passed by a three-to-four vote. Board member Hamilton Lovely was opposed to the site, preferring the Elkhorn/CSX land since it was donated to the project. Although free of actual cost, the land would be appraised by HUD officials and that price would be deducted from the board's budget of $2,967,900.

Lovely said he believes this was acceptable since those monies would go back into the pot and be used on other low-income projects.

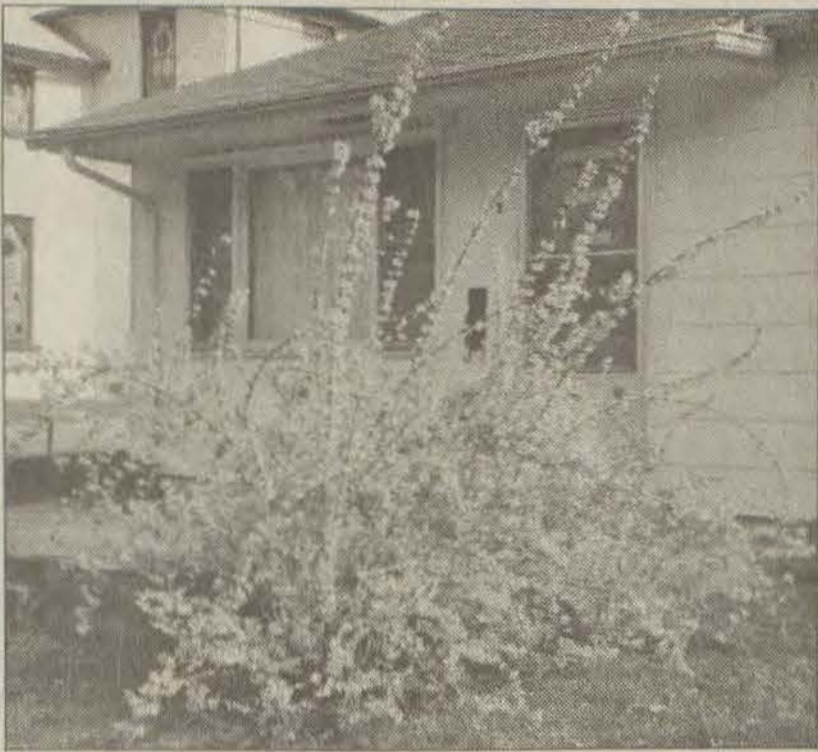

Other concerns over the site were raised, including the fact that an underground fire is present in the abandoned mine nearby. Lovely pointed out that the Mine Reclamation Authority would possibly pay to get this put out, but the other members were not as confident about the results of such efforts.

Board member Ed Patton, who could not attend Wednesday's meeting, later confirmed that he was satisfied with the board's selection of the primary and alternate sites and suggested that the county contact CSX and Elkhorn to see if that land is available for another use. "It was a nice gesture and the county ought to find some way to use that land," Patton said.

The Drift ballfield was disqualified because of its location in a bot-

American father/German son reunited after 43 years

by Frank Clark
Staff Writer

Despite the separation of continents, cultures, and the 45-year-old, now tattered "Iron Curtain", a Wayland father and his East German son were united for the first time in 43 years last week, in a tale pulled straight out of a Hollywood film.

Paul Jordan, 64, a 1943 Wayland High School graduate, and Peter Finger, 43, his East German son, spied each other for the first time from across a Cincinnati airport terminal 11 days ago. They first clasped hands and, as the decades and 4,000 miles disintegrated, hugged each other as father and son, ending a separation enforced by the confused aftermath of a world war and the political isolation of an equally hostile "cold" war.

"I can hardly believe it even now. I'm a fatalist, and I always believed I'd see him. But it's still so hard to believe it's happening."

were coming over to our area, harassing the German civilians."

After four months of Berlin patrols, Jordan was stationed in the small southern town of Bayreuth, West Germany, near the newly formed East German border. After his two years of war, destruction, and living under battlefield conditions, Jordan met a young German woman in the town in May of 1946, and from their relationship, a child was conceived -- unknown to the father.

One month later, in June of 1946, Jordan received orders to return to the US. Not realizing he was to be a father, Jordan said goodbye to his young German sweetheart and left Europe for his Kentucky home. He

Father and son together

Paul Jordan, left, a Wayland native, and his East German son, Dr. Peter Finger, enjoyed a few days together this week in Floyd County, as Jordan showed his son the area where he grew up. The two, who had never met before but had engaged in long years of correspondence, were overwhelmed by their meeting after 43 years. Recent changes in Eastern Europe allowed for Finger's first trip to the US to meet his father.

Coming: a cleaner county

by Tess A. Whitmer
Staff Writer

Most everyone agrees that litter and illegal dumping in Floyd County are a problem, and yet many sit back and hope the solution will be found by somebody else. Consequently, the problem is still there and growing.

The problem has mounted so high that recently a group of community organizations, county officials and individuals have banded together in hopes of finding a solution. Originated by the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce, the first meeting of the group was Feb. 14 at May Lodge.

Representatives from local Rotary and Jaycees clubs, the Chamber, the county attorney (representing members of the Fiscal Court), the county sheriff and others brainstormed feasible solutions to a clean up project, enforcing litter laws and getting more programs started to recycle usable "garbage."

Solutions were as varied as the problem. However, the ultimate solution to Floyd County's waste management problem may be better enforcement of the litter laws, coupled with an education program, it was decided. The group also discussed plans for a big kick off program in which many community organizations and individuals as possible band together and clean up the existing litter.

Currently the county has a mandatory trash pickup and every unit of housing in the county is billed monthly for this service. Unfortunately, some do not utilize this inexpensive ($6 to $8 per month) form of litter control and continue to dump trash over the hillside and river banks.

Hollows, sinkholes and creeks have become popular disposal sites. Not only are these methods illegal and unsightly, they create environmental and health hazards.

Sinkholes are direct routes to groundwater, which is a primary source of drinking water for nine out of 10 rural Kentuckians, reports show.

Open dumps are breeding grounds for rats, flies, mosquitoes and other disease carrying creatures. Twenty-two human diseases have been traced to improper garbage disposal, according to research done by the state.

When trash is dumped into streams, the quality of the water is degraded, which can endanger fish and other aquatic life. The stream's capacity to carry water is reduced and flooding heights are increased. The result is more flood damage to property and an unsightly trail of trash that is obvious for miles downstream as flood waters rise and recede.

The economic damage cannot be discounted. Open dumps and littering impose a direct cost to property owners and public agencies for cleanup. Two years ago the Transportation Cabinet launched a campaign to clean up roadside litter and dumps. In 1989, the agency spent nearly five million tax dollars for pickup and disposal of the trash. ## Winter's still here

If you thought we'd seen the last of Old Man Winter -- Surprise! He's back. Friday will remain mild with clouds and a 70 percent chance of showers and highs in the mid 50s. That evening the chance of showers will decrease to 40 percent with a low in the mid 30s.

Saturday will be partly sunny; high in mid 40s. Saturday night temperatures will drop to the 20s, brrrrr.

Sunday through Tuesday will be warmer each day with a little or no chance of precipitation. Sunday night lows will be in the 20s and Monday night around 30. The highs for those three days will be low 30s, mid 40s and lower 50s for Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, respectively.

KET here Saturday

TV cameras will be back in Floyd County this weekend, but they're not expected to cause the furor of the CBS "48 Hours" crew in December. These cameras are from Kentucky Educational Television, and they'll be here to film activities of Boy Scout Troop 877 of Prestonsburg.

The local scouts will be part of a program on the environment to be aired April 16 on KET channels. The troop was chosen, based on its environmental projects, from troops across the state, according to KET officials and troop leader John Ross.

The young men will be filmed doing some of their regular projects: testing water from Abbott Creek, erecting an artificial habitat for wood ducks, cleaning up litter and planting trees, said Ross, a dedicated and professional environmentalist himself.

Grand Jury update

The Floyd County Grand Jury handed down indictments Monday and Tuesday, and will meet again Monday to finish considering all cases. Once the cases have been heard, the jury foreman will sign the indictments and turn them over to Circuit Court Judge Hollie Conley. Information on all indictments will be released late Monday, and will be listed in Wednesday's edition of The Floyd County Times.

New group beginning

There will be an organizational meeting to create a local chapter of the National Organization For Women at the Prestonsburg Holiday Inn on Sunday, Feb. 25, at 2:30 p.m.

For more information, contact Janie Hall at 886-1260.

Saved by the belt

A fastened seat belt prevented injuries Thursday, when a CSX truck overturned on University Drive in Prestonsburg, near the high school. Bob Chapman, 40, of Louisa, apparently swerved to avoid hitting another vehicle, ran off the road and went over the bank. Prestonsburg police and fire departments responded to the accident. Chapman was uninjured.

Now for the good news

Poor location, cramped quarters don't stymie Harold

by Pam Shingler
Editor

The brakes of multi-ton coal trucks squeal and grunt and cars race by at 65 and 70 miles per hour to beat the traffic light on busy US 23, just a few feet from the chain link fence that encloses Harold Elementary School.

The tiny school is in one of the worst possible locations for a school. It gets a new layer of coal and road dust every day. It is completely hemmed in by roads on two sides, the river in back and houses on the fourth side, so that no physical growth can occur. It also is flooded every time the river backs up.

Yet, its students for the last three years have scored the highest among Floyd County grade schools on standardized tests -- several points above the national average, in fact. They also maintain the highest average daily attendance level in the school system, hovering around 98 percent for the year. Every classroom sports a Tandy 1000, student-friendly computer. And, to top it all, the hallways and walls are spotlessly clean.

"We take what we have and try to do the best we can," Principal David Henchman says, in classic understatement.

Henchman, in his fifth year as the school's chief administrator, says he follows the three "S's" principle. "Safe, secure and sanitary, and every now and then I throw in a fourth one -- silly."

The "silly" part is evidenced in his sometimes unorthodox incentive plans.

In attendance, for instance, he keeps a running competition going among the various classes. Divided into three categories by grade levels, students in individual classes compete for a trophy and certificate denoting "Principal's Award for Best Attendance."

The certificates are displayed prominently outside the winning classrooms, and the trophy is displayed in the winning room until another group claims it. For those classrooms with 98 percent average daily attendance for a month, Henchman buys each student a can of pop.

"I tell them, 'When you see kids in other classes, smack your lips and say ummm,'" he says.

For those with 100 percent ADA, he's been known to do even sillier things -- submitting generally to student requests. For one class, he danced with a broom; for another, he rolled on the floor.

Determined that the students would be exposed to computers from

Floyd teachers seek removal of state's school supervisor

by Frank Clark
Staff Writer

A group of Floyd County teachers, members of the Floyd County Education Association, voted last week to request that the current state supervisor for the Floyd County school system be removed from his position.

Bud Reynolds, president of the teacher's organization, said that the vote came as a result of a memo sent by Robert J. Gover, the state representative assigned by the Education Department to Floyd County, which suggested that actions by certain groups and organizations outside of the local school board were "subverting" efforts to improve the educational system in the county.

The memo was directed to state Superintendent of Public Instruction John Brock and read, in part, "...the maneuvering of those individuals and groups 'out of power' to subvert the actions of those empowered to move the district forward" was crippling the educational process in the county.

"It seems that anyone criticizing the work of the school board is being considered subversive," said Reynolds.

Regional Roundup

Man barricaded in neighbor's home shoots self

MARTIN COUNTY—A Lick Branch man was treated Wednesday for a self-inflicted gunshot wound, after he barricaded himself in a neighbor's home for three and a half hours.

Kentucky State police received a call from Mary Dalton, who reported that her husband, Boyd Dalton, 51, was drunk and was shooting up the house and car. KSP and the Martin County Sheriff's office responded, and found Dalton barricaded in a neighbor's house. The standoff continued for three and a half hours, as occasional shots were heard from the house. At 3:07 a.m., Dalton surrendered, and was found to have a self-inflicted gunshot wound in his right shoulder. He was transported to Humana Hospital in Louisville where he was treated and released. He was then lodged in the Martin County Jail and was charged with wanton endangerment and criminal attempt to commit murder. The case is still under investigation.

Pike gambling raid nets 21

PIKE COUNTY—A two week undercover gambling investigation by Kentucky State Police, assisted by the Pike County Commonwealth's Attorney's office, led to 21 arrests in 12 separate places of operation. All were arrested on charges of promoting gambling, permitting gambling and possession of gambling devices.

Some 40 Draw Poker machines were confiscated, along with an undetermined amount of cash and gambling records and receipts.

Arrested were Earl Hankins, 41, of Pikeville, Greg Clevenger, 38, of Elk Horn City, and Cherri Justice, 31, of Pikeville at Classic Lanes Bowling Alley; Mike Ray Adkins, 39, of Pikeville at Trails Arcade in Mullins; Clifford Daniels, 55, of Pikeville and Kermit Billiter Jr., 54, of Pikeville at Billiter's on Chloe Creek; Mac MacKinney, 47, of Pikeville at MacKinney's on Island Creek; Lisa Ann Gross, 23, of Pikeville and Jean A. Wright, 28, of Pikeville at Dorsie's Dinner in Zebulon; Gary K. Thornsberry, 42, of Meta at Meta Mart; Emmagene Hampton, 50, of Virgie and Henry Hall, 71, of Dorton at Henry's Place in Shelbyana; Donald Adkins, 49, of Pikeville and Larry Joe Stone, 39, of Shelbyana at huddle House in Millard; Jack Coleman, 49, of Elk Horn City and Sarah A. Smith, 38, of Phelps at Phelps Motel and Arcade.

The investigation continues and more arrests are pending.

Tax limits could break city school

PAINTSVILLE—A state task force has recommended to limit what local school systems can raise from property taxes, which could, if enacted, force the closure of the Paintsville Independent School System.

The proposal would reduce the Paintsville systems tax rate by 20 cents per $100, cutting out $170,000 in annual revenue. Such a reduction would put the system out of business, said city superintendent Leon Burchett. (Paintsville Herald)

Harold School

first grade on, the principal purchased the Tandy's with money raised through pop machines and special activities. "I get no pleasure out of fundraising, but it's necessary," he explains, estimating the complete computer system cost about $28,000.

"My goal is to have the computers become student-oriented. It's fine for the teachers to use them for their work, but I want the students to feel free to use them to learn," Henchman, a Tram native, says. "I want to make school a place of fun, as well as academics, to mix both."

With a student body where half qualify for free lunches because of parent income level, Henchman says he puts no stock in theories that "the poor can't learn. I don't buy that."

Heads, "The expectation level of the teacher is the key to academic achievement, coupled with recognition when the job is done. I believe kids can learn. If we give the impression we care as teachers, they'll do well."

Academic trophies displayed on table in the front lobby of the school attest not only to the grade schoolers' success, but also to the level of trust and expectation that surrounds the students. Pride in the students is also evidenced in the rows of pictures of student triumphs that line the walls of the school. Also on the walls are charts and graphs showing the students the high place they hold in the school system.

A small school built in 1960 before the present US 23 was constructed, Harold Elementary consists of two brick buildings (one the lunchroom) and five mobile classroom buildings. Henchman has arranged the classroom assignments so that the younger children are in the most secure building, and the upper grades are in the mobile units.

"Parents are naturally going to be concerned because of our location when they first bring their children here," Henchman says. "Soon they know we strive for the safest atmosphere for their children."

Whenever students must go from one building to another, teachers and staff stand guard to make sure every precaution is taken. Even at the end of the school day, teachers follow a staggered system for bus loading and remain constantly vigilant. The orderliness of the filing out of the buildings reminds of days gone by.

Harold enrolls 352 students — its limit. Needing to transfer a class this year, Henchman opted to give up the kindergarten, now at Betsy Layne Elementary, because that age group is at highest risk considering the school's location.

The academic emphasis is never lost. Academic coach Bonnie Ward will soon take 11 Harold students to Louisville for state competition. (That's 11 out of a county total of 17.) Ward says her job is "a lot of hard work, but we get lots of support from parents and support from other teachers."

Henchman is quick to point out that last year, Ward put the small stipend she gets as academic coach back into the program.

"I have to give a lot of credit to the teachers here," Henchman insists. "I also have to give credit to the parents and the whole staff, including clerks, cooks and janitor."

Beatrice Jacobs, president of the school's Parent-Teacher Organization, concurs. "This school has good teachers and good leadership. I know my children are well taken care of. It's a fine school."

"If Harold wants excuses for doing a lousy job, they're here — a bad location, no space," says Gary Frazier, who as assistant superintendent for instruction for the school system is knowledgeable of all the schools. "What David and the teachers illustrate is that you can take a bad location and make the best of it."

"These people won't say it, but there's an attitude here that permeates," Frazier adds. "Teachers can come here and teach. The tone is set by the person at the top."

Students in Sarah Barker's third grade class at Harold Elementary School respond to Principal David Henchman's question, "How many like to use the computer?" Through fundraising, the school has been able to put a computer in each classroom.

Labor/ management group says progress is being made

A Tuesday night meeting of the Big Sandy Area Labor/Management Committee in Prestonsburg showed significant progress made by the organization over the past month.

Scott Richardson, program director for BSALMC, reported that he was drafting a survey which will be used to examine the perceptions of labor-management relations in the Big Sandy region held by companies from outside the region. BSALMC directors should receive a copy of the survey in the next week, and Richardson encouraged feedback about the survey from the directors.

A newsletter is in the works for the new organization. Richardson requested input on naming the newsletter. No decision was made at the meeting.

Mick Crum, Labor Co-Chair, requested information about establishing a BSALMC education program. Richardson discussed the possibility of organizing representatives from management and labor to participate in talks with local high schools.

Committee members expressed strong interest in participating in such a program, and it was recommended that a letter of introduction from the committee to area high schools be drafted as soon as possible.

According to financial records, the committee had raised $3,430 toward meeting its total matching funds. A total of $2,976 is still required to be raised by the end of the second quarter, though it was not clear when the quarter ended. Possible fund raisers were discussed by the committee.

Richardson requested that members of the committee send letters to their state house and senate members, seeking support for House Bill 311. This bill would allow the Office of Labor-Management Relations to offer grants to organizations with programs designed to improve labor-management relations.

The next BSALMC meeting will be Tuesday, March 20, at Paul B. Hall Regional Medical Center in Paintsville.

Attending Tuesday's meeting were Richardson, Crum, Don Combs, Management Co-Chair; Russell Briggs, HRMC; Kerry Gillespie, UMWA District 30, and Earl Leondardt, FMCS.

Making learning fun

These two young computer whizzes take advantage of the computers in their third grade classroom at Harold Elementary. The school's teachers and administrator have something else going for them as well, since their students rank at the top among Floyd County schools in both academic achievement and attendance.

state's academic bankruptcy law, under the 1984 Educational Improvement Act. Gover was appointed by Brock to supervise management and financial matters with the Floyd County school system.

Reynolds and members of the county education association say they think Gover exhibits an excessive bias in favor of the school board and puts their and other educational reform groups in a negative light.

"John Brock sent Gover in here to be evenhanded in dealing with the school board and groups concerned with education," said Reynolds. "This memo doesn't reflect such fairness."

Betty Rowland, Kentucky Education Association area director, and Floyd County Education Forum member John Rosenberg agree that Gover's memo to Brock reflects a poor attitude toward citizen education reform groups. "We were all quite shocked by the memo," said Rosenberg. "We feel that our organization has been playing a positive role in the reform process. It seems over the past year that Gover hasn't been directed to deal with community members involved in educational reform and I think this is a big failing of the whole process."

"Perhaps the memo was a Freudian slip," said Rowland. "This attitude that groups outside the school administration should mind their own business seems to be a philosophy with Mr. Gover and school administrators. I don't doubt his ability to deal with financial problems in the system, but we've found him unapproachable. He reports solely to the state and the school board."

Reynolds noted that a letter by the teacher's organization requesting replacement of Gover would be sent to Brock's office early next week.

"Our first preference is to have him removed," said Reynolds. "If not, we hope he will be reprimanded, or at least required to make an apology. I don't know how he could have made such a blanket statement in this memo, but I'd really be interested to know how many classrooms he's been in in the last year, to find out what goes on in our schools."

"He certainly thinks that people in power within the school system should make the decisions and everyone else should be quiet and not 'subversive'."

Gover could not be reached for comment about the memo Thursday, but, according to a Lexington Herald-Leader article, he noted that the memo was intended for Brock only and that he'd been misunderstood by local reform groups.

is twice the amount spent before the cleanup program began.

Open dumps are a major cause of forest fires, and millions of dollars are spent each year in battling such blazes.

Property values are lowered where open dumps are present, and tourism suffers. Unmanaged garbage reflects a lack of responsibility and community pride. This can be a deterrent for new industries and businesses looking to locate or expand in the area.

More and more citizens are realizing the potential for harm to their health and the environment from improperly managed garbage and the economic development costs of unmanaged trash.

As the chairperson of the committee, Marty Backus, publisher of The Floyd County Times and a Rotarian, pointed out, "We all live in this county together and have in some way, shape or form contributed to it being in such a state. The hills have become like 'a beautiful women with a dirty face' and now we must all work together to put the shine back on the face of Floyd County."

Members of the group were assigned the tasks of looking into the proposed possibilities to clean up the county, such as stricter litter laws, existing recycling capabilities, the junk cars as scrap metal program, the "Adopt a Highway" program, and others.

These reports will be heard at the next meeting, Wednesday, March 7, at noon at the Lodge. The meeting is open to the public and representatives from area organizations are urged to attend.

A 40,000-pound grocery delivery

Prestonsburg Job Corps volunteers helped to unload 40,000 pounds of commodities Wednesday at God's Pantry warehouse in West Prestonsburg. According to John Woods, pastor of the Fitzpatrick Baptist Church, where some commodities are distributed, the 20 tons of sweet potatoes, instant potatoes, orange juice, grapefruit juice, pinto beans, peaches, peanut butter and applesauce will be used to supplement the diet of lower income Floyd Countyans. Four other distribution points for God's Pantry operate out of Drift, David, the Mudcreek Clinic and Wayland. Woods expressed thanks to Kentucky Explosives for providing a truck and driver to bring the food supplies into Floyd County.

Flowering plants Need more light

If homeowners want that pretty flowering plant they got during the holidays to bloom next year, they need to make sure the plant gets plenty of light now.

"Flowering plants such as holiday cacti, poinsettias and amaryllis need four hours of sunlight on the leaves each day," advises Bob Anderson, University of Kentucky Extension floriculture specialist. "Put the plant in a window, preferably with a southern or western exposure. It's not enough to put the plant near a window; the sunlight must fall directly on the leaves."

Why does the flowering plant need so much light?

"Plants require an enormous energy build up to flower," Anderson said. "Light gives them energy to manufacture food."

Here recommends watering flowering plants about once a week until summertime, then twice a week.

Flowering plants don't need as much fertilizer when they are not growing vigorously, generally from January through April. In May, homeowners should begin fertilizing every two to three weeks with a houseplant fertilizer.

Guest Editorial

By Charles Pearl

(Editor's note: Charles Pearl is a principal assistant with the Kentucky Department for Environmental Protection in Frankfort. Though he writes about Frankfort, his words apply to the whole state.)

Our capital city, the place where I live (temporarily probably), is a beautiful little town in a lot of ways.

I walk a lot in Frankfort and a favorite time to go is early on weekends, especially on winter days when you can see your breath in the crisp air. It's nice to pass by the old downtown churches and other historic buildings, then walk across the Singing Bridge as steam rises from the Kentucky River.

Evening walks are nice, too. On Capital Avenue, a yellow glow from the Capitol dome welcomes you. A well-lighted military museum reflects in the river.

But there's an ugly side to Frankfort, too. I see it every day while walking to work along Wilkinson Boulevard. Litter. It's nauseating.

It's a little more than a mile from the Department of Environmental Protection, where I work, to my residence on St. Clair Street, right behind the Civic Center.

On the evening of Sept. 5, as I was leaving work, I decided to take along a large garbage bag for the walk. Before getting halfway home, I stopped collecting trash. The bulging trash bag could hold no more.

I've seen some green and white bumper stickers around Frankfort and the state saying: "$500 Fine... Do Not Litter."

The state could take in a tractor-trailer load of money from fines if every piece of litter I picked up was worth $500. And that was just one night.

Later that night, I decided to take a closer look at what I had collected.

Here's some of it: Coca-cola paper cups (7), popcorn box from Wal-Mart, Salem Lights cigarette pack, Frito Lay Cheddars cellophane wrapper, Southern States Gold Label anti-freeze container, Hershey SKOR candy bar wrapper, Doritos Nacho Cheese Flavor bag, styrofoam coffee cups (13), plastic ice bags (3), 16-ounce Pepsi bottles (2), 20-ounce glass Mello Yello bottle, Freeze Pop wrapper, Little Debbie's Pecan Twist Package, 7-ounce glass Tropicana Orange Juice bottle, Frito Lay Cheese Peanut Butter Crackers wrapper, Butterfinger candy bar wrapper.

Frankfort water bill, Barca Lounger Reclining Chair warranty card, dill pickle wrapper, Nestle Chunky wrapper, receipts for auto parts plus carbons (2), plastic straws (5), McDonald's sack, Nutty Bars wrapper, Fiberglass Mat plastic wrapper, fish tackle plastic bag, pint carton of Dean's chocolate milk, Lance Choc-o-lunch Creme Filled Cookies wrapper, Sugar Daddy wrapper, Old Milwaukee Light aluminum can, Snickers candy bar wrapper, 4-pound plastic bag of Stauffer's Animal Crackers, Hostess cupcake wrapper, Paper Trapper Keeper Portfolio Notebook packaging card, Capital Plaza Hotel matches, Burger King paper cup, Pal Bubble Gum wrapper, Combo Pretzels wrapper.

Red plastic cup, Pizza Hut paper cup, Slim Jim Giant Spicy Smoked Snack wrapper, Nestle Crunch vanilla ice cream bar wrapper, shoe box top, styrofoam container for plate lunch, White Castle hamburger cardboard containers (2), Tire American road hazard warranty card, sheet of paper announcing Bag Day at school, quart container of Havoline Supreme 10W-40 Motor Oil, 16-ounce glass Mello Yello bottle, Marlboro cigarette packs (4), Hyde Park Aluminum Foil box, Burger King Whopper with Cheese cardboard container, Reese's peanut Butter Cups wrapper, Little Debbie's Raisin Creme Pie wrapper, Merit Ultra Light cigarette pack, Leonhead candy box.

Squeezit Drink plastic bottles, Wacky Wafers wrapper, Super Bubble Gum wrapper, Cool Candy Cigarettes box, Kentucky Lottery ticket, Thunderbolts Super Charged Bubble Gum Balls wrapper, $2 Turfway Park Am-Tote tickets (2), plastic top to chicken livers container, Big red Cinnamon Gum wrapper, plastic tops to drinking cups (9), WD Brand Franks wrapper, large sheet of yellow graph paper with two half-tones taped to it, Budweiser bottle.

I also picked up several flattened corrugated boxes, several plastic zip-lock bags, a yard sale sign, a crumbling picture puzzle glued to cardboard, several newspapers and a bunch of clear cellophane wrappers. I saw a section of a rusty muffler and hundreds of cigarette butts which I left.

This stuff wasn't in several little piles. It was scattered the entire way.

Walking to work the next morning, I noticed I had missed quite a few items. Some of it was probably new trash.

Wilkinson Boulevard and Frankfort don't have a monopoly on the litter in Kentucky. It's everywhere.

One Sunday afternoon last spring, I hiked a scenic trail in the Red River Gorge area with my family and some friends. The natural beauty was marred by all sorts of human carelessness.

A filthy mattress was left under a blackened rock overhang. Someone had tossed away a partially used loaf of bread. Beer and soft drink cans and bottles were scattered along the way. And candy wrappers. And fish bait containers. And paper sacks. And someone left a long ribbon of toilet paper right in the middle of the trail after using some of it.

Why do we keep trashing our beautiful state? Because we're just not very smart. Is there hope? I'm not optimistic.

Our Yesterdays

Ten Years Ago

(February 20, 1980)

A petition with 2266 signatures has been presented to the State Department of Transportation and others calling for the widening and repair of KY 979 as well as the installation of guard rails after a school bus with 29 children aboard rolled over the embankment Jan. 2. The 95-year-old Big Sandy News, the valley's oldest newspaper, was one of three Louisville businesses which were destroyed by fire early Tuesday morning. Two persons have been arrested on arson charges. Stunned by the failure of the city's water commissioners to appear before the council as directed, Martin City Council voted last Wednesday to take legal action or "other steps" to force the commission's compliance. Before its adjournment last Wednesday the Floyd Circuit Court Grand Jury voted conspiracy to commit murder indictments against four men as a result of trouble between Arkansas Creek neighbors. Named in separate indictments were Buddy Johnson, Darrell Bentley, James Richard Hunt and Ballard Crum, each accused of conspiracy to commit murder by "agreeing with one another that at least one of them would engage in conduct which would constitute the murder of Leonard Hall." Families welcomed home members of the Betsy Layne High School band upon their return Tuesday after participating in this year's Mardi Gras in New Orleans. The band won first place among bands in the Selena parade Saturday, and was named "outstanding" in the Thoth parade on Sunday. There died: Minnie Marsillett, 77, of West Prestonsburg, Saturday, Feb. 9 at Riverview Manor Nursing Home; Raymond Joseph, 55, of Prestonsburg, enroute to Highlands Regional Medical Center Monday; Mary A. Hamilton Howell, 87, of Craynor, Sunday at Our Lady of the Way Hospital; Flara Wilburn, 64, of Harold, Wednesday, Feb. 13 at Good Samaritan Hospital, Lexington; Bess Ratliff, 77, of Langley, Monday at Riverview Manor; Orville Wells, 58, of Auxier, Monday, Feb. 4 at his home; Henry Rose, 74, of Prestonsburg, Sunday, Feb. 10 at Riverview Manor; Floyd Blevins, 82, of Tram, Tuesday, Feb. 12; Jim Prince, 69, of Dwale, Saturday, Feb. 9 at HRMC; Virginia Mills, 86, former Melvin resident, Jan. 5 in Middletown Hospital in Ohio; Billy Joe Meade, four-month-old son of Ben and Anna Collins of Meade of Prestonsburg, Sunday at his home; West Liberty City Councilman Charles E. Campbell, 55, formerly of the county; Ada Gearhart, 70, of Hueysville, Monday at HRMC; Mack Nelson, 53, of Phoenix, Ariz., formerly of Prestonsburg, Friday; Franklin Delano Conley, 46, of Lima, Ohio, formerly of Floyd County, Thursday, Jan. 24 at St. Rita's Medical Center; Elder Mitchell Chaffins, 66, of Minnie, Feb. 2.

Twenty Years Ago

(February 26, 1970)

The only educational activity under way in Floyd County this week was that of the Prestonsburg Community College which was not affected by the teacher strike which closed all other classrooms of the county. The Kentucky Court of Appeals last Friday affirmed the opinion of Circuit Judge Henry Meigs, II, of the Franklin Circuit Court, upholding the ruling of the Water Pollution Commission to the effect that the proposed high school at Eastern would not pollute Beaver Creek, the water supply source of the town of Martin. Supervisors of the Floyd County Soil Conservation District have filed with the Floyd Fiscal Court a request that the court levy a tax of 2 cents per acre on all lands in the county, except for townlots, to finance soil and water conservation activities. PFC Denny Eugene Blevins, 20, was killed in Vietnam, last Thursday, his family has been notified. There died: James Lee Shannon, 72, of Drift, Friday at Pikeville; Lee Hall, 96, of Galveston, last Wednesday at Pikeville; James Allard Dings, 65, of Martin, Friday at Paintsville; John M. Thornberry, 58, of Melvin, Tuesday at Pikeville; Will Baltimore Jr., 75, of Weeksbury, last Thursday at McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital; George W. Hughes, 83, formerly of Wheelwright, last Thursday at McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital; George W. Hughes, 83, formerly of Wheelwright, last Friday at Nelsonville, Ohio; John Fraley, 81, of Wayland, last Tuesday at McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital; Webster Bryant, Jr., 24, Friday at home at Teaberry; Mary F. Boyd, 86, of Allen, Sunday at Mountain Manor Nursing Home here; Alvonda Gay Boyd, 34, Saturday at home at Estill.

Thirty Years Ago

(February 25, 1960)

Bernard Carter, chief of the Division of Fisheries, Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, said this week that he will present to the Huntington district office, US Corp of Engineers, a plea that the level of Dewey Lake be held the year round at its previous summertime conservation level. The Prestonsburg High School PTA gave its approval Tuesday evening to the "Athletic Field Project" for building a football stadium to seat 1970 persons planned by its Building Improvements Committee. Senators John Sherman Cooper and Thurston Morton announced this week that Prestonsburg is one of the 40 communities that will receive federal assistance in their plans for growth and development through a $75,000 grant. Last Thursday's snow storm, second within a week, blanketed the county with six inches of snow, creating hazardous driving conditions and interrupted schools which had been in session only half a day after a three-day vacation enforced by the previous snowfall. There died: Mary J. Hall, 72, of Teaberry, at home; Moses Bryant, 62, of Ligon, at the home of Lee Caudill; Loretta Tackett, 23, of Ashtabula, Ohio, formerly of Hi Hat, at City Hospital, Cleveland; Walter Crider, 50, of Auxier, at the home of his mother.

Forty Years Ago

(February 23, 1950)

It was still "no contract, no work" in Floyd County's mines and in all others over the soft coal fields this week. Purchase price of the City Board of Education's one-half undivided interest in the high school property here is exactly $39,921.68 the agreement prepared by C. Kilmer Combs, attorney for the County Board of Education, the purchaser shows. Unless the differential law in effect during the last school year is re-instated, Floyd County schools stand to lose a total of $81,646 in equalization and transportation aid from the state, figures released by the Bureau of Finance, State Department of Education, indicate. Plans for another church in Prestonsburg were being considered this week as the purchase by members of the Church of Christ of the Central Avenue lot of Kelly Wells, was announced. There died: Claybourne Stephens, 80, at the home of a daughter, Mrs. J. L. Oppenheimer; Oliver Crum, 43, at his home on Arkansas Creek; Jane Hopkins, 77, McDowell, at the home of her daughter.

Fifty Years Ago

(February 22, 1940)

Limited funds restrict nursing services of the Floyd County Health Department to one nurse per 21,000 population, in the face of an apparent need of one nurse to not more than 5000 population, Dr. Marvin Ransdell, department director, states in his report for the year 1939, released last week. Discovery last week of parts of two human skeletons in an abandoned country "coal bank" on the right fork of Middle Creek creates a mystery which may never be solved. The Patty, Prestonsburg's third theatre, opened Monday with the showing of "Charlie McCarthy, Detective" ... A chew of tobacco, which, it is alleged, poisoned the chewer, was the subject of a $40,500 damage suit heard in the Floyd Circuit Court this week. It ended in a $250 verdict for the chewer. The plaintiff contends that a 10-cent plug of Day's Work tobacco which he purchased in West Prestonsburg on December 11, 1938, contained some foreign poisons or decayed matter which rendered him "deathly sick" within five minutes. The trial, begun Monday, and lasting until Wednesday afternoon, introduced two innovations to the Floyd Circuit Court — a fluoroscope for examination of the tobacco for "foreign" objects and a cockroach inserted into the tobacco to show that the fluoroscope cannot detect all kinds of objects. There died: Jeff Jarrell, 75, last Thursday at his home at Justell; Howard Monroe Johnson, 39, of Prestonsburg, last Thursday at Huntington, W. Va.; William Mallory Roberts, 82, Sunday at his home at Dewey.

Letters To The Editor

Whitaker is artist

Dear Editor,

In your Feb. 16 edition, there was a mistake in the coverage of Garnis Martin recognition day at Wheelwright High School.

The print presented to Mr. Martin by the Academic Boosters Club was not painted by Billie Stegall. The painting was done by Tom Whitaker, a well-known artist in the area. These prints are available for purchase.

Thank You,

Distressed by sentence

Dear Editor,

I'm responding to your Jan. 31 Courthouse News article. The DUI listing was particularly troubling to me. One offender's fourth offense brought a sentence of 30 days in jail and $719 in fines. I know of a young man whose second offense took a loving father and mother from five children, leaving also a multitude of bereaved loved ones with an incurable heartache.

I feel that a justice system that could pass such a sentence after the fourth offense should listen to a MADD victims' panel. It's very evident they are not hearing the after effects of such decisions. If the justice system had been more prudent, my sister and her husband may have been alive today.

There is a saying, an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. But what is the worth of prevention, if there is no cure?

My hope is that the reader will consider the worth of prevention. Please don't drink and drive.

Urges support of tough bill

Dear Editor,

Tonight the words echo in my ears. "I thought it could never happen to me. I was every active in my community, and besides, it could never happen to me."

I heard these words Feb. 8 standing in the Capitol Annex building in Frankfort as a group of our representatives silently listened. "I thought it could never happen to me... especially at 4 p.m., that's day time..." and as tears were fighting to run down this mother's face, she told of something worse than a nightmare. Something this mother will carry to her grave.

That precious baby girl she had rocked in the cradle; her first day of school walking down those huge corridors of the elementary school; the night of the first visit by the tooth fairy and that little toothless smile; lost are the faded hopes of graduation, and that walk down the aisle as she would have taken her boyfriend as her husband; and never gather around the Christmas tree with the sparkling eyes of grandchildren. All these normal, everyday experiences can never take place. Why? Someone chose to drink then get behind the wheel, and thus turn a car into a deadly weapon. This was needless.

I stood in an Emergency Room with a brave little boy, and held his small hands as an overworked doctor slowly sutured his wounds, and carefully removed fragments of glass embedded in his face. This little man spent the night over a riverbank, until the next morning at dawn when a passerby saw a strange color in the bottom. This little lad lay hours in a freezing, damp car. His mother was seriously injured and her boyfriend's cold corpse lay in his lap all night. Why? What's it hurt to drink and drive? Another needless tragedy. Why?

Once again I was summoned to an Emergency Room, and there was a young doctor, an outstanding man in our community lifeless on the table. This doctor's dreams of helping his fellowman will never be realized. With tears in his eyes the coroner said, "What might have been?" Why? Someone chose to drink and drive.

My heart is saddened to know a group of tired but joyful children rolled down the Interstate just waiting to tell mom and dad about the thrill and excitement of a day pushed to its fullness at an amusement park.

Those kids were preparing for life ahead and time will be robbed of what might have been, simply because of the thoughtlessness of one man, "I've done this drinking and driving before, so what?" That night has left 27 empty beds, and thousands of wet pillows. Why?

What about the minister that loaded his family in their car, leaving his home with a message burning on his heart, and never arriving at church. His whole family was sacrificed and his message silenced, because of an intoxicated man. Why?

Dante once penned the words, "The hottest places in hell are reserved for those that remain neutral in times of great needs."

Twice in recent weeks my concern has caused me to visit our capital in Frankfort to stand for the tougher DUI bill that is before our legislators. I expected great masses to support and show our legislators we expected this as law, that many other states already have.

We must demand action to stop the needless slaughter of innocent victims. Can we afford to guess "Maybe it could never happen to me?" Or depend on others to do the job. There has been a lack of "a cry from the people to stop this most preventable cause of death that drips the very life blood of our family, humanity."

It's time our voices blend in unity across this great Commonwealth, "Count me in on the tougher proposed Driving Under the Influence (DUI) bill now before our state legislators.

Please call your Senator and Representative and give your opinion. The call is free 1-800-372-7181. And a brief note addressed to them at (Legislator's name), Room 21, Capitol Annex, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601. If you don't know your legislator's name, call your County Clerk's office for the information. Both husband and wife should let Frankfort hear. United we stand, divided we fall.

Solicits opinions on the arts in KY

Dear Editor,

Governor Wallace Wilkinson appointed the Governor's Task Force on the Arts with the intent of having the total arts picture in Kentucky fully studied with a resulting recommendation. The members of the Task Force are all respected citizens in this state, who have a dedication to do the best job possible to fulfill its charge.

On March 7, 1990, the Task Force will meet at Elizabethtown Community College from 1 to 4:30 p.m., EST, for the purpose of hearing from any interested parties concerning their thoughts on the arts in Kentucky and what recommendation the Task Force should make. If persons desire to appear before this committee, please contact me at the address shown on this correspondence and let me know the best time for an appearance. We will be as accommodating as possible.

If persons cannot appear in Elizabethtown but would still like to make their thoughts known, please send those thoughts to me in writing by no later than March 1, 1990. I will make sure that all members of the Task Force receive a copy of the comments.

I want to thank you in advance for your interest and support for the arts in Kentucky.

Kim's Korner

By Kim Frasure

Most mothers wish there were more hours in the day; I'm finding this true for myself. I've realized that setting the alarm for 5 a.m. gives me more time to get the four of us ready and out the door for school and work. This literally adds more time to the day, but unfortunately subtracting from the night.

Thus, once I've arrived at the office I'm on my way to the first stage of exhaustion. Women do not live on six hours of sleep alone. By noon my mind is so bogged, fuzzy and sleepy it can't even decide what my stomach is hungry for. Food of some kind, but what? Oh well, who cares, I'll just eat that greaseburger that was delivered a half hour ago — if it hasn't congealed into something beyond recognition.

Around 2 p.m. I'm yawning so badly my ears feel like they're growing larger and larger. Quitting time arrives and I pick up the girls. Although, too often, at the newspaper quitting time depends on when the work is done. I'm not able to just set it aside and say "I'll work on this tomorrow." Consequently, my girls spend a lot of time at the office waiting on me to finish that last ad.

When we finally arrive home, my second job, as a housewife and mother, begins. After homework, supper, dishes, washing clothes for the next day, seeing to it my children are bathed and in bed by 9 p.m., I'm exhausted. Yet there's more to be done before we mothers can hit the sack. After all a marriage needs time too, and my husband isn't the type to want a part-time wife.

Even at home worries about work persist. With our Fashion Show coming up this Sunday I can't sleep for hoping it turns out okay, and runs smoothly. Every time I've tried to catch some shuteye this week, I'll come up with a thought, get up and write it down.

If only there were more hours in the day. But, then again I'm afraid mothers would just have that many more chores to fill our precious time. No one ever said being a woman in the '90s would be easy, but there must be a better way. Maybe if I had a wife... Dream on.

UK geographer studies elderly migration in area

by UK News Bureau

Elderly people have been moving in and out of Appalachia in record numbers, according to University of Kentucky geographer Graham Rowles.

Rowles recently received a $96,836 grant from the Appalachian Regional Commission to study why and where people are moving and the impact they are having on the area. Rowles is associate director of the UK Sanders-Brown Center on Aging.

Rowles says at least three forms of migration are involved: elderly return migration, including individuals who left the mountains when they were younger in search of work; outmigration of people to join adult children who left the region earlier, and migration of retirees to second home or resort areas.

But a lack of systematic analysis of elderly migration has often left state and local officials wondering whether they should encourage migration, Rowles said.

Some previous studies have suggested that elderly people moving into an area tend to be financially well off and provide a boost to the local economy. A contrasting view is that as these new residents continue to age, they will place a burden on local health care and social service systems.

Rowles plans to use census and other population data to determine county-level patterns of elderly migration, characteristics of the migrants and socio-economic characteristics of the counties that may make them attractive to the elderly, such as tax base, recreational opportunities and service availability.

He hopes to be able to project future patterns and consequences of elderly migration in Appalachia and to develop a set of guidelines that can be used by officials to help develop migration-related policies.

Toward the end of his project, Rowles plans to organize a conference including migration researchers, economic development specialists and state and local government officials to discuss migration patterns and possible policy alternatives.

Floyd County Families: Our Heritage

(3-9-22) Catherine Meade born 1805 married Elijah Canady, April 24, 1828 in Pike County, Ky.

I have had a difficult time getting any info on this family and just through a casual inquiry I wrote to Violet Wells Upton, whose name I acquired from an old inquiry she had made. The following are the results of her very informative letter.

Known children:
#791 Catherine C. Canady, born Nov. 12, 1829, Floyd County Ky.
#792 Elizabeth born 1833, in Va.
#793 Meomia (?) born 1838
#794 Arkansas born 1840 Ky. married Hiram B. Wells.

#795 Andrew J. born 1845
#796 Elijah G. born 1849

The following is the way the letter of consent was written for this marriage. (Pike Co. Ky. marriages file #195).

License issued April 21, 1828 by Jas. Honaker for the marriage of Elijah Kenedy and Katharine Mead. Clerk certified that "necessary certificate has been given from Sal (Sam) Mead father of said Katharine and said Kenedy is of lawful age." Bond in name of Elijah Kenedy and Rhodes Mead Jr. signed by "Eli Ejh" Kenedy (or Canady?) and by Rhodes Mead. Letter: "Pike County Kentucky this is to certify to the clerk of said county I am willing that my date Katharine Mead to inter marry with Eliga Canada given under my hand and seal this the 21 day of April 1828.

Samuel Mead
Rhodes Mead
"Black B(urna?) Kers"—(Note: Possibly Blackburn Akers) letter sworn to by Rhodes Mead Jr., on April 21, 1828. "April the twenty forth—1828 this is to certify the within couple is joined together according to law by me. Wm. Salisbury."

Note: The "Rhodes Mead Jr." referred to above is most likely #17 Rhodes Mead, that married Sarah Richardson, Katharine's brother, rather than the son of Rhodes Mead #7.

There is a funny story relating to Catherine (Meade) Canady, it was sent to me by Violetta Wells Upton, the great-great-granddaughter of Elijah and Catherine.

It seems that Catherine, overheard some of the men out in their yard talking about how high and how far they could jump. One was heard to say he bet that another one could not jump over a wagon that was in the yard (size unknown). Catherine, being an individual that was very self confident, took unto herself to walk outside and say "I can jump over that wagon", the men were quick to respond, "oh, we certainly do not think you can", not having the least idea that she would attempt such a task. Catherine replied "well, I'll just show you", whereon she drew up her skirts pulled them between her legs and over she went!! This incident was still a topic of conversation long after the departure of Catherine, from that area.

The 1850 Floyd County, Ky. census shows at Lot #199:

Elijah Canady 40 Va.
Elizabeth 17 Va.
Meomia Kennedy (Canady) 12 Ky.
Narka (Arkansas) 10
Andrew Jackson 5
Elijah G. 1

For some unknown reason, Catherine Meade Canady and Catherine C. Canady, their first child, is not shown.

(The 1852-1904 Floyd County, vit. stats. lists "the birth of a daughter, Nov. 12, 1857-Catherine C. Canady, to Elijah Canady and Catherine Mead Canady. This date of Catherine Canady has to be wrong. I have found her birthdate as 11/12/1829, in Henry Scalf's, Mead-research).

We next find them in the 1870 Boyd County, Ky. census living next door to their daughter, Elizabeth, (Matilda), that married Hiram Branham.

#792 Elizabeth Cannada, born 1833, married Hiram Branham, Floyd Co.

Hiram Branham 45 Ky.

Elizabeth (Canady) 36 Va.
Charles W. 15 Ky.
O. Elizabeth 13
Green A. 11
Mary C. 7
Rhoda 4
Lousy B. (Louisa) 1 Ohio

#22 Catherine (Mead) Cannada 65 Ky.
Elijah 76 Va.
Catherine Cannada 12 Ky.
Samuel Cannada 10

We can assume that the last two children are grandchildren, and by this assumption we can deduct that there was also a male child born to Elijah and Catherine, other than Andrew J. Cannady, as he was born in 1845, therefore, he would be 25 in 1870, if we take the age of the oldest grandchild Catherine, age 12, and subtract the grandchild's age, Andrew would have been only 13 years old when the child was born. So, until I can find more info on this family I am going to assume there is entered the University of Kentucky in the fall on the GI Bill, studying for a journalism degree and a career in news writing.

In March of 1947, Jordan received a letter written in German. Not able to read the language, he took it to a German language professor for interpretation and discovered that he was the father of a newborn son.

"It was a real surprise, to say the least," said Jordan.

The Wayland man learned that mother and son were living in East Germany. A correspondence developed between the American college student and the German mother, which, after a number of years, grew to include letters from Jordan's German son, Peter.

"The first letters I got from Peter were in German," said Jordan. "But he learned to write English and started typing them."

As the years passed, the letters between father and son continued, along with packages of gifts from America. Jordan graduated from UK, and worked as a news writer for the Paintsville Herald, the Huntington Herald/Dispatch and the Associated Press in both Louisville and Frankfort.

His son, Peter Fenger, grew up in East Germany and developed an interest in mechanics and toolmaking. Prompted by letters from his father to set high goals and strive to reach them, Fenger changed his plans to become a toolmaker and, after serving his mandatory two years in the East German Armed Service, entered Karl Marx University in 1969. He spent the next seven years earning a Doctorate in Mechanical Engineering.

After working for several years at research center and getting married, following his 1976 graduation, Fenger decided to work overseas as Chief Engineer at a project in Iraq.

"We lost each other when I went to Iraq," said Fenger. "I couldn't write to him, and no letters could come in to me."

The two remained out of contact for four years after Fenger's return to East Germany. In 1987, he sought to find his father, who had been working as a public information office chief in Washington and had retired in 1981.

By contacting US government offices, Fenger discovered that his father had retired to Lebanon, Ky. They resumed letter writing, but also began to seek a way for meeting together in the US.

"Peter had to request permission from the East German government to visit me for some special occasion," said Jordan. "He requested several times to come over for my birthday, but was denied. Late last year, I contacted Sen. Wendell Ford's office for help, and he talked to the East German embassy, but the Berlin Wall came tumbling down at the end of last year, and he suddenly had the freedom to come."

Jordan's cheeks reddened and he wiped his eyes several times, as he talked about meeting his 43-year-old son for the first time.

"I can hardly believe it even now," said Jordan. "I'm a fatalist, and I always believed I'd see him. But it's still so hard to believe it's happening."

Father and son have spent the last week and a half traveling Kentucky together. On Tuesday, Jordan brought his son to Wayland and Floyd County for a few days. For Jordan, this is still home.

"I've been taking him around to show him where the old man is from," said Jordan. "Some of the friends I have here didn't believe me when I said this was my son from East Germany. They thought I was just kidding around, like usual. We stopped up to Wayland and Peter took a picture of me in front of the old high school. It's meant a lot to me to show Peter my home and roots."

"It's beautiful here, and I'm happy to see everything," said Fenger. "The mountains are what I like, and the freedom I see in the people, to travel and choose among many things."

The two plan to visit Washington, DC, together next week, and Fenger will return to East Germany March 5. He hopes to have his father visit East Germany sometime in the next year, and is going to apply to work at the United Nations in New York as soon as possible.

"I want to bring my family here, and work not for any country, but for all people in the world," said Fenger. "That's what would make me happy."

Judging by the look on Jordan's face, as he stood with his son beside Dewey Lake, having his son living in America after so many years of separation would make him very happy too.

Fluoride:

Closing in on a cavity-free generation

Third in a series
Fluoride is credited with a dramatic and continuing reduction of children's cavities over the past 40 years, says the Kentucky Mountain Dental Society.

Half of the 43 million US school children have no decay in their permanent teeth, according to a 1986-87 study by the National Institute of Dental Research. This is due primarily to the enamel strengthening mineral which is easily obtained in fluoridated water supplies, toothpastes, mouth rinses and topical applications at the dental office.

In contrast, 40 years ago, tooth decay was a major public health problem creating much tooth loss. In fact, missing teeth caused almost nine percent of the rejections of service recruits when the US entered World War II. Military recognition of tooth decay as a serious health concern provided impetus for increased research.

The efficacy of fluoride in preventing cavities was painstakingly uncovered in a 30 year search by Dr. Frederick McKay, a Colorado Springs dentist who puzzled over the mottled stains, but surprisingly little decay, in the tooth enamel of his local patients. Now known as fluorosis, the discolored enamel was caused by high concentrations of fluoride in the region's water supply.

Dr. H. Trendley Dean, a public health dentist, and Dr. McKay discovered that one part per million fluoride in drinking water reduced tooth decay but did not cause enamel discoloration. In 1945, the fluoride-free water supply of Grand Rapids, Mich., was the first to be fluoridated to the optimum level.

Results were quick and positive. The NIDR was established in 1948, and with the American Dental Association, waged a comprehensive public health effort — community water fluoridation. Today, about 60 percent of Americans drink fluoridated water and periodontal disease has replaced tooth decay as the major oral health concern.

Such massive public health programs have an important impact on the nation's enormous health bills, the Kentucky Mountain Dental Society emphasizes. NIDR estimates that the decline in tooth decay has sliced about $2 million annually from dental care costs.

By preserving their natural teeth, Americans also have decreased their need for full or partial dentures, which saved about $5.5 billion between 1974 and 1981.

Fluoride appears to reduce tooth decay in several ways, although the exact mechanism is not known. First, it seems to promote "remineralization" — the natural process by which calcium moves in and out of tooth enamel — to strengthen resistance to tooth decay and to "heal" the beginnings of a cavity. Fluoride also may interfere with the decay process in which bacterial plaque use carbohydrates in food to create decay-causing acids. It may reduce acid production, or actually change the bacterial composition of plaque.

The Kentucky Mountain Dental Society notes that fluoride plays a protective role against dental decay throughout life. Dental researchers believe a virtually cavity-free generation could be achieved if use of fluoride is coupled with daily brushing and flossing, healthful eating, regular professional dental care and use of sealants on children's permanent molars.

ALLEN CENTRAL REBELS

Allen Central: Second season team

Tradition holds true to form for the Allen Central Rebels as they have always been labeled a "second season" team. The Rebels of coach Johnny Martin have been slow in starting at the beginning of the regular season, but when it comes tournament time, the Rebels begin to play their best basketball.

You could safely say that Coach Martin is a tournament coach. Martin has been in the battles for district and regional championships, having won the 15th Region as coach of the Sheldon Clark Cardinals before moving to Allen Central. The fiery coach has taken his Allen Central teams to two 15th Regional finals before losing out to the Todd May-led Virgie Eagles.

Last year in the 58th District tournament, Martin's team came on late in the season (earlier than they did this year) to become a solid challenger for the district championship. The Rebels had a seven-point lead with less than a minute to play against coach Gordon Parido's Prestonsburg Blackcats. The inability to cash in on free throws down the stretch cost the team that was playing perhaps the best basketball going into the tournament a chance to move on to the state.

"I told Coach Parido the team that beats me in the district tournament will go to the state," Martin stated in an interview from last year's tournament. Sure enough the Blackcats marched on to Rupp Arena.

Martin hopes there will be no repeat of last season's tournament since his team once again is playing perhaps the best basketball of any of the other county teams, other than McDowell.

"We are as ready for tournament play as we could be," says Martin. "We are playing the best we have played all year and attitudes are very positive."

Allen Central is led in scoring by center Rick Smith, averaging around 18 points per game. Smith is a hard worker on the boards and sometimes gets a little overzealous which costs him some silly fouls. Foul problems have been a problem for Smith this season and for the Rebels to win, Smith must remain in the game.

At the power forward spot is Joey Conn, a 6'3" senior, who has the inside moves to net some points for the Rebels. Conn is effective from six feet on in scoring. The ability to hit the free throws is a big plus for the senior forward.

At the other forward spot is Cotton Parsons, who hasn't really shown the consistency that he was expected to bring to this year's Rebel team. However, no one works harder on the defensive boards than Parsons. He is a three-point threat from the 19' 9" line. He game solid defense and has the big game occasionally.

Kevin Spurlock at the point guard position, and sometimes the number two guard spot, runs the team on offense. Spurlock, who is a good scorer, must put the basketball up for the Rebels in this year's district in order for the Rebels to win. Spurlock carried the load for the Rebels in the game with Prestonsburg in last year's district semifinals. The point guard tossed in 34 points before fouling out.

The number five position for the Rebels to fill has been a mystery. Recently, the nod has gone to Mike Hancock, while others have had a shot at the spot.

Off the bench, the Rebels have received some much needed help from sophomore Todd Lucas, who seemed to surface in the Betsy Layne game three weeks ago. Terry Spurlock has been able to come in and give some quality minutes for Martin's ball club. Also available are Brian Hall and Ronnie Sammons.

Lady Rebels looking for good things in this round

Chosen as the team to beat in the 58th District the past two seasons, the Allen Central Lady Rebels are hoping there is not a repeat of last season's 58th District tournament. The Lady Rebs were upset by the Lady Daredevils of McDowell in last year's encounter.

Last year the Lady Rebs were playing good basketball and seemed to peak too early and were caught flat-footed in the playoffs. Coach Bonita Compton is wants no repeats.

Allen Central is a multi-talented young team with a very bright future for the next three years. Seasoned veterans, such as Jo Ann Conn and Teresa Moore, add up to 75 percent of the Lady Rebs offense.

But no offense is of any value without a good point guard to run things. That falls into the capable hands of one Stacy Moore who knows how to run a team. Moore is a bona fide scorer in her own right.

Darnella Bradley gives the Lady Rebs some size in the middle, and she knows where the basket is. Bradley likes to reach too much, especially after missing an easy basket, and is subject to getting into foul trouble early. Bradley remains a force under the basket for Allen Central. It is imperative that she remain on the floor instead of the pines.

Two freshmen have been installed in the Allen Central starting lineup. They are one reason the Lady Rebs are playing better basketball.

One of the weaknesses of the Allen Central girls has been lack of quickness. With the insertion of Jenny Yates and Jenny Wiley in the starting lineup, the Lady Rebs have the speed in the back court they have needed. Both are young freshmen but they can give the opposition fits with their defense.

Jo Ann Conn remains the mainstay for the Lady Rebels, averaging almost 16 points per game. On any other team, she probably would have a bigger average. But the senior forward is the most unselfish player you will see in a while. She has the ability to get the assists, as well as points and rebounds. She is definitely a candidate for "Player of the Year" in Floyd County and would be a welcome addition to a college team.

Teresa Gibson is a threat from the three-point range. Opposing teams must concentrate on this deadly shooter from outside. When that happens, it opens things up for Conn underneath. The inside/outside play of these two players will keep any defense honest against Allen Central.

Allen Central has the depth coming off the bench. Again, they are young, but capable. Pam Webb is underrated in the county. Jessica Wade is going to be a good one by the time she leaves Rebel country. Always dependable, Sonia Allen, the only other senior on the team, can provide the Lady Rebs with some quality playing time.

Allen Central must guard against a letdown because they have been playing hard-nosed basketball lately.

58th District Tourney outlook

Hey, basketball fans, it's tournament time again in the 58th District and this year's matchup has the makings of a good one. McDowell, last year's champion, will be looking to defend and repeat as the winners.

All five schools have a legitimate shot at the title since there is not clear cut favorite.

The action gets underway Wednesday night in the girls' bracket as the McDowell Lady Daredevils of Cassandra Keathley battle Bridgett Clay's Prestonsburg Lady Blackcats at 6:30 p.m. The two teams split their home and home series during the regular season. Prestonsburg is led by multi-talented Kathy Slone, who is averaging close to 25 points per game, and a group of talented freshmen as a supporting cast.

McDowell has a scoring duo in junior Lori Bryant and senior Priscilla Crawford. Also junior center Jenny Slone has improved her game over last season.

This will be a good one to start the tournament off. Both teams know what they have to do to win.

In the second game Wednesday evening, Junior Newsome's Betsy Layne Bobcats will square off against Gordon Parido's Prestonsburg Blackcats. The Blackcats, a big winner over Paintsville at Paintsville Tuesday night, will be looking to get back into the regionals and a chance to defend their 15th Region title. Seniors Chris Slone and Kevin Adams will guide the Blackcats. The Blackcats could be tough to handle if Ray Collins and Stuart Robinson can give the needed support.

Tournament play will continue Thursday night when the number one seed Betsy Layne Lady Cats tangle with surprising Wheelwright in a 6:30 p.m. scheduled start. The Lady Cats' win over Virgie Wednesday night help them to snap a five-game losing streak and may give them the momentum to win the title. Brenda Hamilton, Brianna Boyd and Melissa Bailey lead the Lady Cats attack. Hamilton has been the catalyst for the Betsy Layne offense all season. Boyd has come on strong of late and has been a pleasant surprise for the Lady Cats. Bailey is perhaps the most improved player on the 15-11 Cats.

Wheelwright has no doubt had a disappointing season and the Lady

Trojans know that. That is what is going to make them so dangerous to play in a first round game. The talent is there in Jedon Hood, April Bradford, Becky Allen and Carrie Smith. Hood has really come on of late, and Bradford has been a steady performer all season. Allen is a good point guard and Smith is a hard worker on defense.

In the boys bracket on Thursday night, the boys' number one seed, Allen Central, will go against Monroe Jones' Wheelwright Trojans. Perhaps the most improved two teams since the middle of the season, this game will be a barn burner.

The Trojans, used to losing the close ones, have now found out the excitement of winning the close ones. Bobby Hood has been on a roll, averaging 24 points per game since returning from an injury that sidelined him for five weeks. Harold Johnson and Brad Compton added to the Trojan offense. A trapping zone defense has become a big move for the Trojans lately.

Allen Central has lost its last two games in overtime, Leslie County and M.C. Napier. But the Rebels are playing good basketball. Rick Smith is the top scorer for the 10-13 Rebels. Kevin Spurlock, Joey Conn and Cotton Parson give the Rebels the extra needed offense it takes to win a championship. The fifth starter spots filled with Mike Hancock, a three-point shooter. Off the bench, Brian Hall, Terry Spurlock and Todd Lucas will give the needed depth.

Waiting in the wings to take on the winner of the Prestonsburg and McDowell game on Friday night is semifinal action will be Bonita Compton's Allen Central Lady Rebels. Jo Ann Conn and company will be hungry for this one and will be looking to avert the mistakes of last year's tournament play. Teresa Gibson will have her shooting eyes sharpened on the Allen Central goals. Freshmen Jenny Yates and Jenny Wiley are exciting to watch.

In the second game in Friday's semifinals will be McDowell going against the Betsy Layne and Prestonsburg winner. The Daredevils will be looking to win their third straight district title and they have the horses to do it. Marc Hall, Stacy Hall, Keith Shelton and Mike Duddeson are called on to do the scoring for the Daredevils; however, every team needs a good point guard and Dougie Hopkins fills that bill for McDowell.

Finals of the 58th District tournament will be on Saturday night beginning at 6 p.m. for the girls, with awards presentation to follow the championship game. The boys' finals will follow the presentation ceremonies, and after the game the presentation of trophies to the boys will be held. All-Conference and All-District teams will be named, as well as coach of the year and player of the year awards.

'Second season' affords new hope

When the 1989-90 Floyd County basketball season began, all 10 county teams had visions of a winning season and the possibility of a championship year. Optimism ran high with players throughout the camps of the county teams when practice began back in October.

Now the regular season has come to an end. Wednesday night, the 58th District Tournament will begin and offer a "new season" for all 10 teams. A chance to accomplish at least one of two goals — to win a championship — will be possible for all teams as the tournament begins.

Of the five boys' teams and five girls' teams, anyone has a chance to be crowned the county champions.

Floyd County Athletic Director Frankie Francis has gone out of his way to make this the number one district tournament in Kentucky.

"Our goal here in Floyd County is to have the best district tournament in the state of Kentucky," he said. "That can be accomplished by having good sportsmanship, team spirit and governing the conduct of the fans. We want this tournament to be of the highest caliber."

One has to applaud the efforts of the Floyd County Board of Education and administration in their commitment to a top-notch tournament. The "second season" affords another chance.

Betsy Layne Bobcats looking to turn things around

The Betsy Layne Bobcats are looking to turn things around before the district tournament Wednesday night. Betsy Layne has dropped its last three games as of this writing and will close out the regular season tonight (Friday) at always-tough Virgie.

Betsy Layne has had its share of injuries this season. Phillip King went down with an ankle injury. Then followed Adam Gearheart. And now starting guard Chris Newsome has been sidelined. (Newsome may be playing in the Virgie game)

Not only have the injuries been a problem, but lately the offense of the Bobcats has seemed to be missing.

Betsy Layne coach Junior Newsome has stated that the important thing is good defense. "If you

Games Coach Newsome would like to play over

Two McDowell games
Allen Central game

play good defense the offense will come along". The Bobcats are an excellent defensive team. They play a hard-nosed man-to-man and trap out of the zone.

Leading the Bobcats in scoring is Adam Gearheart who is averaging, unofficially, around 18 points per game. Gearheart has been the one who has struggled, of late, offensively. But the junior guard can light up the scoreboard on a good night. Slumps for basketball players are easier to overcome than in baseball and Gearheart is the kind of competitor who will work his way out of a scoring drought.

Center Sam Stewart, whom the colleges are really looking at, is perhaps the best big man in the tournament. Stewart is nearly unstoppable once he posts up underneath and gets the ball. He will either score on you, draw the foul or both. At 6' 5", the Bobcat center can run the floor with the best of them. Stewart averages close to 19 points per game.

Phillip King, the lefthander, has quickness underneath the basket to maneuver for the easy baskets. King possesses a good jumping ability and gets a lot of offensive rebounds for putbacks.

In the back court the offense is run by point guard Keith Hall. Hall doesn't score like the other three players, but he can. Hall realizes he doesn't have to score and concentrates on running the team.

Newsome, if able to play, adds some fuel to an already potent offense. Chad Mitchell is a much used reserve off the bench and senior Craig Hunter has been seeing a lot of playing time lately.

Betsy Layne looks to get well. Prestonsburg will be waiting on court to test the Bobcats' desire.

Memories of Rupp Arena may inspire Blackcats

Last March the Prestonsburg Blackcats were crowned the 15th Regional champions — a crown that earned them a trip to Rupp Arena to participate in the Sweet Sixteen state basketball tournament.

Before they could go to Rupp, they had to win the 15th. Before they could win the 15th, they had to get to the finals of the 58th. And that will be step number one for coach Gordon Parido's Prestonsburg Blackcats as they square off against the Betsy Layne Bobcats Wednesday night at Allen Central.

One motivating factor for the Blackcats will be memories of having played in Rupp Arena. Although the state tournament will not be held in Lexington this year, but rather Louisville, just remembering they were part of the excitement of the Kentucky Boys State basketball action could be a big incentive for winning it all again.

This year's Blackcat squad, while not as talented as last year's, certainly has the horses to win it all again if the team can put it all together. The Blackcats, like McDowell, have played a tough schedule this season and their record is not indicative of the quality of team they have. It is true they have struggled late in the season offensively. But remember this is a good team that can right itself and with a little extra incentive can become district champions.

Prestonsburg is led in scoring by senior Chris Slone with an 18.5 per game average, unofficially. Slone is a heads up player who knows his role as a team leader. He is like having another coach on the floor. Slone also knows what it is going to take for the Blackcats to win this year — a team effort.

In the middle of the Blackcats is one of the region's most underrated big men — Kevin Adams. Adams is agile and quick for a big man under the bucket, and he knows how to get open. His inside play, coupled with the outside shooting of Slone and Ray Collins, makes the Blackcat offense hard to defend against.

Collins must be a scorer for Prestonsburg for the Blackcats to repeat. When the opposing team's defense keys on Slone, Collins must be there to take his shots.

Stuart Robinson needs to hit the short jumpers he has been getting off late. Robinson is a big, strong player — a work horse on the boards. The senior forward seems to work hard to get his shots, but they haven't been falling for him lately.

Much needed play from Worthie McGuire has been a big asset for the Blackcats offense. McGuire has come into his own lately and has been putting some points on the board. McGuire is effective from the free throw line on in with his short jumpers.

Prestonsburg likes to play a lot of people off the bench and this year is no different. Coach Parido's substituting has given some key players on the bench some quality playing time. Jeff Sloan has been a steady performer all season. Joe Burchette adds some relief to the Prestonsburg front court.

Can the Cats repeat? Desire, determination and delight is the way to enter a tournament. A desire to win, determination to win and the joy of winning are motivation enough.

PRESTONSBURG BLACKCATS

BETSY LAYNE LADY BOBCATS

Smith returns to attempt to turn Lady Cats around

Coach Gary Hopkins' Betsy Layne Lady Bobcats, everyone's preseason pick to capture the 58th District title, have fallen on some hard times. The Lady Cats have dropped their last five games and what was once a sparkling 14-5 record has become a good 14-10 record as of this writing.

Jamie Smith, who had left the team earlier, has returned and will be a welcome-back addition to the team.

Betsy Layne has one of the region's best players in Brenda Hamilton. Hamilton possesses an uncanny quickness, speed and never seems to run down on the court. The senior guard/forward causes a lot of problems for Betsy Layne opponents. Hamilton is averaging around 21 points per game, unofficially, and leads the Lady Bobcats in scoring.

Of late, the senior has tried to take on the whole offensive load herself.

She has scored 24, 17, 19, 24 and 27 points in her last five outings. She is, of course, a candidate for "Player of the Year" honors in the Floyd County Conference.

With the return of Smith to the playing court, Betsy Layne will have the needed rebounding and another scorer who has been sorely missed. Smith plays the offensive boards just as hard as the defensive and gets the second and third shots for the Bobcats.

Much-improved Brianna Boyd gives the Lady Cats a lift in the scoring department. She is a very courageous player, having had knee surgery, and gives it all she has on the court. Boyd is a three-pointer threat in the Betsy Layne offense. She is not afraid to get inside and mix it up, despite her shorter stature. She maintains a positive attitude and plays like a person who really believes in herself.

Nancy Shepherd will give 110 percent in every outing. Shepherd plays with a lot of heart and while she doesn't score all that much, even though she is capable, she draws the defensive assignments on the opposition's best player. She is a determined player and does not give in easily on defense.

Shelia Hall is a dependable player and always knows her assignments. She is a potential scoring threat and plays the good "D" also. Hall works the boards hard and sometimes has the tendency to overplay her opponent on defense which causes her to get into early foul trouble.

A good bench has been a big asset for the Lady Cats this season. Melissa Bailey has shown considerable improvement as a sophomore and will no doubt be a dominating force in Floyd County basketball in the next two years.

Nikki Webb brings size to the Betsy Layne scene. Webb has always been a good scorer, but sometimes is too hesitant to shoot the ball. She possesses some good moves down low on offense.

Other dependable players, such as Susan Conn, have made this Lady Cats team a regional power.

History of the 58th district tournament

The 58th District Basketball Tournament has a history of being one of the state's hot beds of competition. Floyd County has had its share of All-Staters to come out of the tournament since its inauguration in 1932.

Names such as Ed DeCoursey, Wayland, 1947; Pete Grigsby Jr., Martin, 1952; Lowell Hughes, Prestonsburg, 1956; Kelly Coleman, Wayland, 1956; Bob Tallent, Maytown, 1964; Larry Hall, Martin, 1965; Pat Tallent, Maytown, 1971; Steve Smith, McDowell, 1972; Danny Hall, Betsy Layne, 1974; Jeff Riley, Wheelwright, 1977.

Two girls from the 58th District made All-State: Geri Grigsby, McDowell, 1976, and Dee Dee Music, 1979.

Betsy Layne has won more district titles than all Floyd County High Schools — 10 times — winning five of those in the last 10 years, all under the guidance of Coach Junior Newsome.

McDowell has won the title six times, winning its first one in 1968 under coach Pete Grigsby Jr., and the past two seasons under coach Johnny Ray Turner.

Allen Central has captured the coveted crown three times with back-to-back titles in 1981 and 1982. The last time the Rebels won was in 1987 over Betsy Layne.

Prestonsburg was district champion seven times since the tournament's beginning in 1932 — the last time in 1984 over Newsome's Betsy Layne Bobcats.

Wheelwright won the title five times — three in a row in years 1960, '61 and '62.

Out of the former schools, Martin, under coach Denzil Halbert captured the title five times, going to the state tournament in 1965. Garrett was district champ seven times, winning back-to-back titles in 1938, '39 and '40. Three of those titles were under the tutelage of the popular John "Dog" Campbell Jr. Wayland won the district six times, the last two times in 1955 and 1956 through the scoring of "King" Kelly Coleman.

Coaches with most district titles are Junior Newsome with six; Denzil "Hoss" Halbert with five; Pete Grigsby Jr., Johnny Martin and the late John "Dog" Campbell with three titles. Gene Frasure, Tommy Boyd, Johnny Ray Turner and James "Frankie" Francis each won two district tournaments. Ray Heinisch and Estill Hall won one each.

In girls district play which began in 1975, Allen Central has won six titles, the first one in 1975 under Patricia Murphy. The Lady Rebs won back-to-back titles in 1979, '80, '81 and '82 under Judy Eversole. The Lady Rebels went to the state tournament in 1981. The last time Allen Central has won the title was in 1985 under Jerry Fultz.

In the late 1980s, Betsy Layne won the title twice, 1986 and 1988, under the guidance of Karen Henry, but the team has won the title five times since 1975. Under Paul David Tackett, the Lady Bobcats won back-to-back titles in 1983 and 1984.

Bridgett Clay's Prestonsburg Blackcats took the whole thing in 1987.

This year's championship tournament will be a wide open affair that could go to the team that is at the peak of its game.

PRESTONSBURG LADY BLACKCATS

Lady Cats think this could be their year

The girls' 58th District Tournament is wide open this year. Anybody can win it. There is no favorite team. Bridgette Clay, Prestonsburg Lady Blackcats mentor, sees the tournament as just that — wide open.

"Any team could win it this year," says Clay. "There is no dominant team this year."

The Lady Blackcats, like the Allen Central Lady Rebels, are a young team with five freshmen on the squad. Those five freshmen have not had time to be just freshmen; they have had to come out and contribute right off. They have not been afforded the freshmen mistakes. They have to learn how to take care of the ball. This has the season gone for Clay's Cats.

"Sometimes it is hard to tell which team will show up for us," she commented in an earlier interview. "Sometimes they play great, and other times they don't look so good."

Which team shows up for the 58th District tournament Wednesday night at Allen Central can be anybody's guess. But there is one thing for sure, if the right team shows up with its pressing style of basketball and run-and-gun offense, it could be an interesting tournament for the young Cats.

The Lady Blackcats have one of the top three players in the county in junior Kathy Slone, who is averaging 25 points per game for Prestonsburg. She is very quick and has the ability to get a step on her defensive player. She can hit from inside and outside. She has good range from 12 feet in.

Slone has a good supporting cast in Edwinna Hale, the team's point guard. Hale, in her own right, possesses good speed and a scoring touch.

Two freshmen, Carolyn Reffitt and Amy Reed, have been starters all season for Clay's Blackcats. Reed plays more like a seasoned sophomore than a freshman. She possesses good court sense and knows her role as a player. Quite a tribute for a freshman. Reffitt adds some outside shooting to the Lady Blackcats' line up and goes to the boards well.

Another freshman, Raquel Cain, has had her good games as well as her bad. The talent is definitely there for a quality player. Experience down the road will quickly mature this young freshman, and she has just the right drive in her to become an outstanding basketball player before she leaves Prestonsburg High School.

Stephanie Music, another freshman, gives Prestonsburg some added board strength. She has been impressive in some games and holds the future of a solid player. Freshman number five is Kerry Merion, who at 5'2" plays like someone 5'11". Desire to succeed is her biggest attribute.

Lady Devils Coach fears emotional letdown

There are many things that cause concerns and fears in people's lives. But for McDowell Lady Daredevil coach Cassandra Keathley there is only one fear, and that is the fear of an emotional letdown of her basketball squad.

The Lady Daredevils are playing some good basketball and the McDowell mentor wants to see it continue right through the 58th District Tournament that begins at Allen Central Wednesday night.

"I have this fear of a letdown on the team," she said. "We are playing good basketball and I just hope we can continue to do so."

Keathley has reasons for concern for this young team. Putting together two good halves have been a problem. The players have let games they should have won get away from them because of poor play in the second half of the game. But this is a team, although young (one senior), that has grown up of late and knows what it has to do to win.

Top Lady Devil, junior Lori Bryant, leads the McDowell offensive attack averaging 17.5 points a game unofficially. Bryant likes the short base line jumper off the right side as her favorite shot. The outstanding junior is also a threat from three-point land.

Helping out in the back court for McDowell is Priscilla Crawford, the lone senior on this ball club. Crawford seems to have overcome a weakness in her play and that was that she was not shooting the ball. Lately, the senior guard has been taking her shots and hitting them to account for the increase in the number of points the Lady Devils have scored per game.

Good defense has been a strong point for this year's edition of Lady Daredevil basketball. The McDowell squad likes to use the whole court on defense and trap out of the zone half court press.

Bryant and Crawford are not all this young team has in way of scoring. Jenny Slone in the middle has shown some offensive prowess since the beginning of the season at Millard. The junior center knows how to go to the basket once she gets the ball underneath.

Michelle Cook plays the point for the Lady Daredevils and guides the team from outside. Shaky ball handling has been a problem for the young player in the past, but she has shown considerable improvement lately.

Off the bench the Lady Daredevils look to Kristy Pack, perhaps the best free throw shooter on the Lady Daredevil team. Pack adds strength on the boards and also can score from inside.

Shelby Howell, a promising young player for the Lady Devils, gives some quality time for her team.

A combination of things will have to come together for the Lady Devils to win the tournament. Stop the silly fouling they have been guilty of all season — and have shown improvement in. Keep up the team spirit they have finally found. And go on the court with the attitude they can beat anyone. Confidence is very important for this young team.

MCDOWELL DAREDEVILS

Winning third straight district is goal of Turner's Daredevils

McDowell coach Johnny Ray Turner and his McDowell Daredevils will be looking to win their third straight 58th District tournament as they enter the field this Wednesday night at the J. E. Campbell Arena on the campus of Allen Central, site of this year's big event.

The Daredevils won over a good Prestonsburg team in last year's finals and also won the tournament the year before.

"Of course, our goal is to win the district tournament again," remarked Coach Turner in an interview before the season began. "We are the defending champions of the district."

Improved performances in some key players has brought the Daredevils from the league's "cellar dweller" position earlier, to co-conference champions at the end of a hard basketball schedule.

The road hasn't been easy for Turner's chargers. The McDowell team got off to a horrible 0-7 start. After an initial win over Betsy Layne at home, the Daredevils proceeded to lose their next three games to go to 1-10.

When you look at whom they lost to, you quickly understand the 1-10 mark. Two Lexington schools, Virginia Greenup County, Magoffin County, Elkhorn City, Allen Central, Millard. None of these teams are patsies.

On Jan. 20 Greenup County rolled into McDowell, itching for a second win. The Daredevils rolled past the visitors and went on to win seven of nine games behind the inspired play of the Hall boys, Marc and Stacy, and the improved play of Keith Hall.

Throw in a sophomore, Dougie Hopkins, to run the team, and add a freshman, Mike Duddleson, who many believe will be one of the top players to come out of McDowell, and you have a combination that has done the job over the last month and a half.

Scott Shannon, off the bench has given the Daredevils a needed lift many times over during the season.

Marc and Stacy Hall have been the scoring leaders for the young Daredevil team. Shelton has been almost unstoppable underneath the basket for McDowell. Defense and offense seem to be at a high point for the McDowell team.

One of the things that Coach Turner wanted his team to do was to peak right at district tournament time. Good team chemistry, which is very important when trying to work together, is evident.

Confidence is also a bigger factor in the Daredevil team now than it was before the season opener.

"One thing we have is confidence now," said Marc Hall in an earlier interview. "We thought at the beginning of the season after losing some games, whether we could beat anyone. Now we know that we can go out every night and be able to win."

The new found confidence and winning ways have caused practices to be better.

"Going to practice is fun again," Hall continued. "The whole atmosphere is different. We just go out and have fun. Everybody is loose and no one is uptight. The coaches are doing a great job of coaching."

McDowell may have found the magic in time to make the Daredevils a three-time district winner in three years. Confidence, a positive attitude and team chemistry could all add up to a district championship.

WHEELWRIGHT TROJANS

Coach Daniels' Lady Trojans will be defending 1989's district title

Although it has not been the best of years for coach Donnie Daniels' Lady Trojans, one has to remember what these girls did in last year's district outing. They upset tournament favorite Betsy Layne and defeated McDowell in the finals to win the coveted crown last season.

Back are the same players (with the exception of Hutton), and as in the last three years Wheelwright's ladies will face the Lady Bobcats. Wheelwright seems to be a better tournament team. Gone from last year's team is coach Judy Eversole who took a leave of absence from coaching because of illness.

Wheelwright has a very talented foursome in Jedon Hood, April Bradford, Becky Allen and Carrie Smith. When these girls puts it all together, they can compete against anyone in the district.

Hood, sister of Bobby Hood on the boy's team, has been the Lady Trojans' leading scorer all year. Hood goes through periods of not really being in the game, and other times she shows great brilliance. Lately, she has displayed the latter.

April Bradford likes the corner. She cannot be left open 10 feet from the basket. The senior forward can burn a team that concentrates too much on the inside game of Hood. Three-point range is within Bradford's scoring ability.

Becky Allen, who runs the team from the point guard spot, has had her ups and downs as far as scoring goes, but she has been a steady performer as far as running the ball club on the floor. When Allen is hitting, she is virtually unstoppable.

Carrie Smith is the type of player who gets the job done without a lot of fanfare. She quietly assumes her responsibility and role and goes about her business. Consistency in scoring is her downfall. A hard worker on the boards, Smith is not intimidated by the taller players.

Stephanie Little holds down the other spot and can contribute when she needs to. Little does not look to score, although she possesses the ability to do so.

First-year coach Donnie Daniels has seen the ups and downs of his team, but he also remembers what his squad pulled off last year. A return to the regional, an earlier goal of the Lady Trojans mentor, is not impossible.

Heads up basketball and good blocking out on the part of this year's Wheelwright team and it could certainly happen.

Fans say Trojans playing best basketball of season

If you take a poll of Wheelwright Trojan fans, they will be quick to tell you that the Trojans are playing their best basketball of the season. And that comes on the eve of the 58th District basketball tournament Wednesday night at the J.E. Campbell Arena at Allen Central High School, with Wheelwright the host school.

Wheelwright has lost two heartbreakers in conference play in the last three weeks, one to Prestonsburg and a home game against McDowell. The Trojans have shown much improvement in performance over the last month of the season. A break here or there could have netted them at least three more wins.

This is a more determined Trojan team than at the start of the season. The team members come together and play without a lot of mental mistakes, compared to the first of the year.

Consistency has been the biggest ingredient to make the Trojans better. The inspired play of Bobby Hood since his return from an injury hasn't hurt the Trojan offense. Since returning Hood has averaged close to 23 points a game. He is playing with a lot of confidence.

Sophomore Harold Johnson doesn't shy away from the boards or the scoring column. The big forward can hit the short jumper and mix it up underneath. Brad Compton can play the middle, but one problem the Trojans have had of late is getting the ball to him.

Sophomore help will come from Jimmy Helton and Steve Johnson. Johnson has the three-points range down pat, and Helton can penetrate to the basket. Senior Chad Hall brings quickness and a good jumping ability to the Trojan scheme of things. Paul Hall adds to the Trojan depth coming off the bench.

If the Trojans can keep the "party" going, it could be interesting for Coach Jones' team come regional time. Quickness, speed, three-point shooting and just good old fashioned hustle make the Trojans a real threat to win the 58th District.

Weaknesses? Inability to protect a lead and missed defensive assignments. But that seems to also describe a lot of other county teams. The Trojans will make their presence known.

Winner of only one conference game (over McDowell at McDowell), Wheelwright holds up the rest of the conference but that in itself is not indicative of the talent this team possesses.

The Trojans know it's do or die time as the tournament approaches for a Thursday showdown with Allen Central.

Homecoming heartbreak

Rebels blow 13-point lead; fall to M.C. Napier, 70-63

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

It was homecoming at Allen Central High School Tuesday night as a big crowd gathered to see four lovely seniors vie for the title of Homecoming Queen of 1990. Michelle Meeks took the honor as the student body-elected homecoming queen.

The sad news was that the Allen Central Rebels lost to the Navajos of M.C. Napier and their beleaguered coach, 70-63, in overtime.

Danny Fugate, coach at Napier, has been under fire allegedly for conduct unbecoming of a coach and his use of an illegal player earlier in the season. Fugate has drawn parent and players' support as a boycott of the Perry County school was held Monday.

Fugate, perhaps coaching his final game, looked like a master of coaching as his team trailed the home standing Rebels by 13 points, 56-43, with 2:56 remaining in the game. After a Napier time out, the Navajos went to a full court press, something that Fugate says they are not good at, and caused the Rebels to turn the ball over on four consecutive possessions on which the Navajos capitalized and scored.

"We are not a pressing team," said Coach Fugate of his team's comeback in the fourth quarter. "We went to it because we didn't have anything else to try."

A three-point play by Shannon Hoskins made it 56-46 after an Allen Central turnover. Joey Conn hit one of two free throws to make it 57-46.

Then things began to come apart for the Rebels. Hoskins connected on two free throws, a basket and a three-pointer coupled with Donnie Stacy's basket to close the lead to three, 58-55, with 53 seconds showing on the clock.

Conn then missed a front of a one-and-one and Calvin Johns fouled for Napier. Johns hit both charity tosses, and it was 58-57.

Ronnie Sammons entered the lineup for Allen Central and hit two free throws for a 60-57 lead with 27 seconds to go. Hoskins' basket made it 60-59 as the sophomore sensation found holes in the Rebel defense. Napier sent Sammons back to the free throw line where he hit the first one and missed on the second try for a 61-59 lead with 11 seconds to go.

Napier elected to keep the ball in Hoskins' hands for the last shot. Hoskins slipped inside the Rebels defense for an acrobatic shot that missed the mark. However, with no blocking out on the Rebels' part, Johns gathered in the garbage rebound and stuck it back in to tie the game at the buzzer 61-61.

Allen Central could only manage two points in the overtime as Hoskins got things started with a three-point play to make it 64-61. Smith, who was begging for the ball in O.T., made a great move to the basket for a score and pulled to within one, 64-63. Napier triple-teamed the ball and forced the Rebels into some silly mistakes.

"It wasn't so much our press," said Fugate of the Rebel turnovers. "I believe the players became rattled and committed some silly turnovers."

Allen Central could not score any more in the overtime as the Navajos held on for the 70-33 win.

"Hoskins is the best player in the 14th Region," said Fugate of his player's 39-point performance against Allen Central. "He is one of the top five in the state of Kentucky and he is just a sophomore."

Besides Hoskins' 39 points to lead Napier, Johns tossed in 21. Cotton Parsons led Allen Central with 17 points. Parsons also pulled down 15 rebounds. Rick Smith added 15 points in the loss, and Kevin Spurlock tossed in 11. Conn finished with nine, and Mike Hancock with eight. Sammons had three.

Allen Central only connected on 19 of 35 charity tosses. The Rebels will host Hazard, another 14th Region team, tonight (Friday) in an 8 p.m. start on Senior Night.

Three-point attempt

Kevin Spurlock of Allen Central tries a three-pointer late in the game against M.C. Napier. Spurlock finished with 11 points in the game, but the Rebels blew a 13-point lead and lost in overtime 70-63 to the Navajos.

Hood's 25 points lead Trojans over Fleming-Neon in overtime

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

This was one that did not get away! The Wheelwright Trojans have grown accustomed to letting the close games get away from them of late. But the Trojans turned the tide against Fleming-Neon Tuesday as they came back from a 15-point half time deficit to defeat the host school in overtime, 84-81.

"We were flat coming out in the first half," Wheelwright coach Monroe Jones stated. "They (Fleming-Neon) hit everything they put up against us. They only missed two free throws in the game (24 of 26)."

Once again it was the rejuvenated play of senior Bobby Hood that led the fighting Trojans to victory. Hood tossed in 25 points to lead Wheelwright in that department.

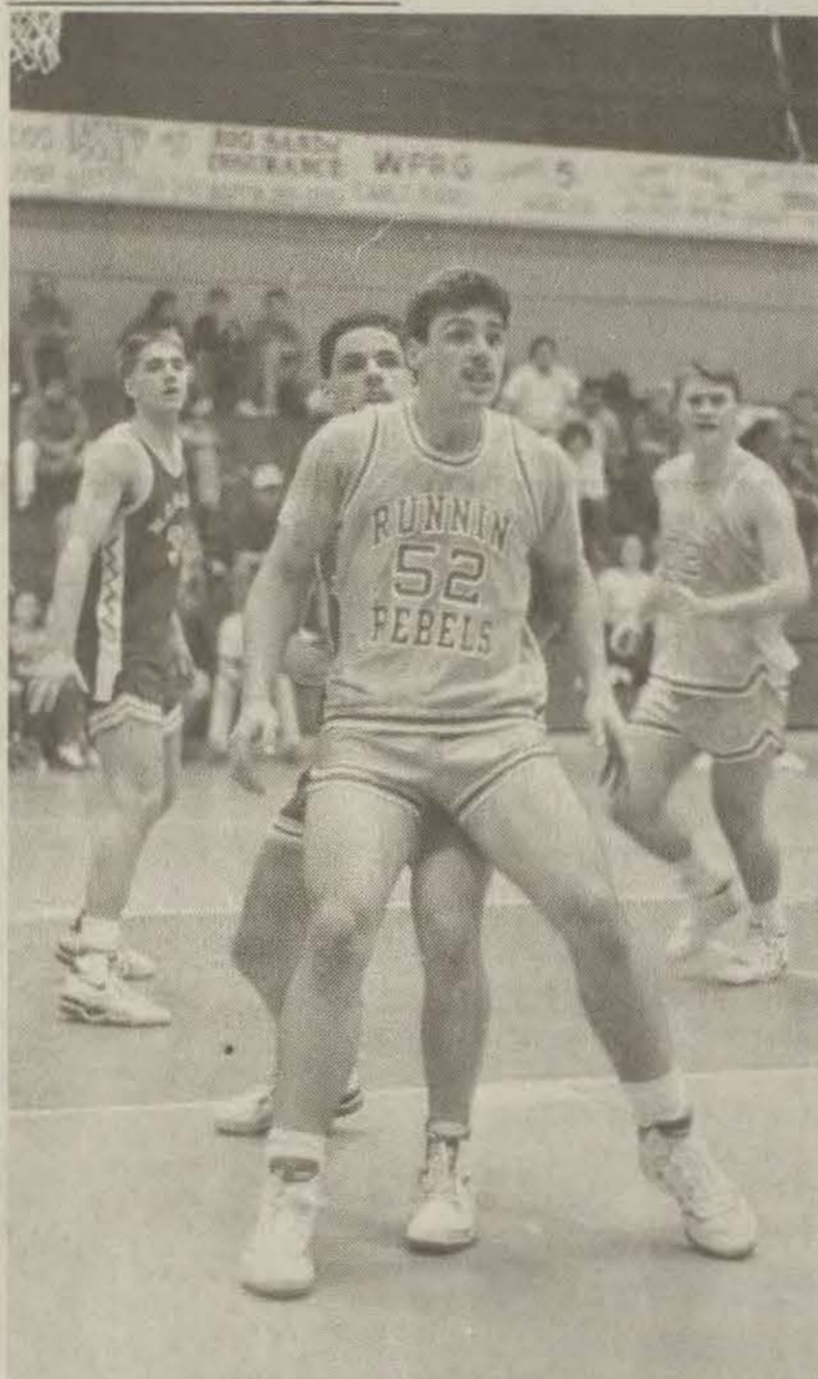

Sophomore Harold Johnson wasn't to be denied his points either as he netted 22. Senior center Brad Compton tossed in 11.

Wheelwright fell behind in the first quarter and trailed at the first stop, 19-16. Fleming-Neon pounded the boards and scorched the nets in the second period to take a big 15-point lead, 44-29, to the locker room at half time.

In the second half, it was catch up time for Jones' Trojans as they began to chip away at the Neon lead and cut

Did you see that?

Rich Smith pushes for position against an M.C. Napier defender in non-conference action Tuesday night at Allen Central. Smith tossed in 15 points for the Rebels who lost 70-63 in overtime.

Lady Daredevils down Johns Creek, 60-55

Lori Bryant and Friscilla Crawford combined for 37 points to help the Lady Daredevils of McDowell to a 60-55 win over visiting Johns Creek Monday night. Bryant tossed in 19 points and Crawford added 18.

There were some anxious moments for the Lady Daredevil team as Bryant twisted her ankle, causing some concern at first. Bryant was able to reenter the McDowell line up and continue to play.

"Lori's all right," McDowell mentor Cassandra Keathley stated. "She just twisted it some."

McDowell used a full court press against the Lady Bearcats that caused the visitors some problems. Despite the press, Johns Creek was able to stay close to the host team, trailing only by one at the first stop, 16-15. In fact the Lady Bearcats held a seven point advantage in the first period only to see McDowell come back and go ahead just before the stop.

"We played a lot of our freshmen in the game," explained Keathley. "Our press bothered them a lot, and overall we played well."

McDowell went up by 12 points in the second half and went on to record

Patient move

Joey Conn of Allen Central makes one of his patient moves to the basket against M.C. Napier Tuesday night. Rebels held a 13-point lead with 2:56 to go and lost in overtime, 70-63.

Panther press takes toll on Lady Blackcats

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Pikeville Lady Panthers used full court pressure in subduing the visiting Prestonsburg Lady Blackcats, 56-41, at Pikeville Monday night. The Lady Cats won over the Lady Panthers at Prestonsburg earlier in the year.

Cindy Tackett led the Lady Panthers in scoring with 16 points, six coming in the first quarter. Sandy Ford tossed in 15 points, and Chonda Harris added 14 points in the win over Prestonsburg.

Prestonsburg had two players in double figures, led by Kathy Slone's 15 points. Amy Reed tossed in 10 points, while Carolyn Reffitt accounted for seven points.

The Lady Blackcats could not get their offense going in the first two quarters as Pikeville used full court pressure to disrupt what the Lady Cats wanted to do. It was 12-6 at the first stop and 27-13 at the half.

Things didn't get any better in the third stanza as Prestonsburg could only manage seven third-period points and fell behind, 41-20, going into the final period. Prestonsburg did mount some offense in the final stanza outscoring the host team, 21-15, but it was too late as the Lady Panthers got revenge for the earlier loss, 56-41.

The loss dropped the Lady Blackcats to 9-12 on the season as they await the McDowell Lady Daredevils on Wednesday in district tournament play.

In the junior varsity game, Sandy Ford hit a bucket with four seconds to go in leading the JV Lady Panthers to a 27-26 victory over the visitors.

Prestonsburg (41) Kathy Slone, 15; Amy Reed, 10; Carolyn Reffitt, 7; Carrie Merion, 4; Stephanie Music, 4; Raquel Cain, 3.

Lady Bobcats drop sixth straight, 81-66

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Things didn't get any better for the Betsy Layne Lady Bobcats as they entertained the Lady Eagles of Johnson Central Monday night. The Lady Cats lost their sixth straight game and fell to 14-11 overall this season.

Betsy Layne, at one time, was 14-5 and regarded as one of the region's top five teams. The Lady Bobcats are still an explosive ball club that is going through some adjusting.

Emma McCarty poured in 26 points to lead the Lady Eagles to a 81-66 win over the Betsy Layne team. Teammate Lisa Blevins scored 22 points, and Melissa Butcher added 18.

Brenda Hamilton led Betsy Layne in scoring with 27 points in taking game scoring honors. Brianna Boyd and Susan Conn tossed in 10 points apiece.

The Lady Bobcats enjoyed a 21-14 first quarter lead, but the Lady Golden Eagles cut the lead to two at the half, 36-34.

A bad third period was harmful for Betsy Layne, with the team falling behind 11 points in the period and allowing the Lady Eagles to take control of the game at home as they built a 20-point advantage, 61-41, going into the final quarter. The Lady Cats could not mount any kind of serious attack to catch the Lady Eagles.

In the six-game losing streak, the Lady Bobcats have lost to two county teams, Allen Central and McDowell.

The game saw the return of Jamie Smith to the Betsy Layne team. She will be a welcome addition. Smith had four points in her return, seeing limited action.

Thursday night Betsy Layne, the number one seed, will face the Lady Trojans of Wheelwright in first round tournament play.

In the overtime, Fleming-Neon went on top, 79-77. Hood's three-pointer put the Trojans on top, 80-79, and Brad Compton hit two free throws to make it 82-79. Layne Bailey hit a field goal after Fleming-Neon had scored to make the final score of 84-81.

The Coaches' Wives*

Linda Turner, wife of Johnny Ray Turner, McDowell

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Having been a cheerleader for the Martin Purple Flash and bleeding purple and gold, Linda Turner has become an avid Daredevil fan. She has good reason for it: her husband, Johnny Ray Turner, coaches the McDowell Daredevils.

Mrs. Turner is also the cheerleader sponsor for the Left Beaver school.

"This is my first year as sponsor of the boys' cheerleaders," she said. Turner has two daughters who are cheerleaders at McDowell: Marge Lee, a cheerleader for the boys' team, and Melissa, a grade school team cheerleader.

"Our whole lives are centered around basketball," she said recently. "We never have time to eat together and we become more nervous with the season. But we love it!"

"If it was basketball season alone, it wouldn't be so bad," explained the cheerleader sponsor, "but with cheerleading, it keeps us busy.

"Johnny Ray is gone four nights out of a week during the basketball season," she continued, "and when he is not having a game, he is either at practice or scouting another team."

Turner says her husband is not a real moody person and takes winning or losing pretty well.

"I am proud of the way he conducts himself," she stated. "The only time he brings the game home is on video tape where he will watch it again. It does not affect our home life."

Turner says that she attends all the Daredevil games and even goes on the long road trips with them.

"With Marge Lee cheering, I probably would go anyway," says the McDowell mentor's wife. "I have missed only one game and that was at Pulaski County last year when I had the flu."

Turner says that the children are very supportive of their coaching father.

Lady Trojans fall to Napier

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Lady Navajos of M.C. Napier got a lot of scoring out of their squad as they posted a lopsided 85-29 victory over the visiting Wheelwright Lady Trojans.

Susan Baker tossed in 34 points to lead the balanced attack for the Lady Navajos. Pam Collins added 11 points in the win.

It just wasn't a good outing for the Lady Trojans as they had problems in finding the basket in Navajo country. Only four players scored, led by April Bradford's 10 points. Jedon Hood totaled seven and Becky Allen managed four. Carrie Smith had eight.

It was 44-14 at the half with Wheelwright scoring only seven points in each of the first two quarters. The fourth period was not too kind to the Lady Trojans, as they scored only four points while M.C. Napier was pouring in 26.

Wheelwright finishes the regular season at 5-13 and will face Betsy Layne in the 58th District tournament Thursday night.

Wheelwright (29) April Bradford, 10; Jedon Hood, 7; Becky Allen, 4; Carrie Smith, 8. at M.C. Napier (85) McIntosh, 9; P. Collins, 11; C. Collins, 3; Brewer, 9; Baker, 34; Gadbury, 4; Chaney, 2; Fugate, 6; Meyers, 2; Watts, 5.

"They enjoy it. They give him a lot of support," she said. "It gets them more involved and they just love it that their dad is a basketball coach."

While Coach Turner may not look like a big eater, his wife says that he is.

"Win or lose he stills eat. It doesn't affect his eating at all," she remarked. "It just doesn't affect Johnny."

Turner says that after the Wheelwright game, the Daredevils drenched her husband and assistant coach Jimmy Hopkins with water at a restaurant where they were eating. Again, he didn't seem to mind, she said.

With the Turners, basketball is a way of life and they are all involved and support Coach Turner and his team. Why? Because as the coach's wife said — they love it!

HOROSCOPE

February 25 through March 3

By C.C. Clark

PISCES (February 19 - March 20)

You could lose the confidence of a friend by mishandling a specific situation. Take time to understand the needs of an elderly person close to you.

ARIES (March 21 - April 19)

Don't worry about your immediate money problems; things will ease up soon. Someone close to you will seem selfish and unloving, but the opposite is true.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20)

A sexual attraction to that specific someone could cause havoc in your life. Financial planning should be a main priority right now. Plan for your future.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20)

Co-workers will treat you differently this week. A friend needs an ear to listen to problems from the recent past. You will feel free and youthful.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22)

A spontaneous gathering will bring great joy. You will most likely be the initiator of this event. A young male will help in handling a relationship.

LEO (July 23 - August 22)

You will rise above that low self-esteem that has been bringing you down the past few weeks. An older friend will teach you an important lesson.

VIRGO (August 23 - September 22)

You will seek a change in your career direction and may find what you are looking for this week. Avoid acting foolishly with loved ones; there could be repercussions.

LIBRA (September 23 - October 22)

Some youthful friends will give you the spark you need to delve into new ventures. Look for a reunion with an elderly friend or relative.

SCORPIO (October 23 - November 21)

The work environment will seem less stressful this week. It will seem that many close to you are terribly unsympathetic, but you rise above it all and are strengthened.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 - December 21)

You will butt heads with one who opposes you and is wrong. It is important that you look out for No. 1. Be more flexible this week than usual with loved ones.

CAPRICORN (December 22 - January 19)

You will find a certain peace within that has been lacking as of late. Talents will be rewarded greatly. One who annoys you will become your friend.

AQUARIUS (January 20 - February 18)

A difference in status or income could cause problems with loved ones. It is important that you follow rules exactly this week. Calm your anger with happy thoughts.

An Evening To Remember...

PROM

PRESENTED BY THE FLOYD COUNTY TIMES
FASHION SHOW SUNDAY, FEB. 25 AT THE HOLIDAY INN, 6 P.M.

Prom night!

Celebrate smart, the best is yet to come

by Tess A. Whitmer
Staff Writer

Prom and graduation are two of the most special events in a person's life. Cherished as the last times that the graduating senior class gets together before going their separate ways, both should be joyful and memorable occasions that can be treasured for years to come. The reality of prom and graduation nights, however, is not always pleasant.

Last year more than 3000 young adults, ages 15-19, were killed in alcohol- or drug-related traffic crashes. Many of these tragic deaths occurred during the prom and graduation season, when students were celebrating the beginning of the end of their high school career. Many of them made one fatal error. They didn't celebrate smart.

SADD, Students Against Driving Drunk, and Champions Against Drugs programs in local high schools begin their biggest projects at this time of the year. Some of the ideas that have been tried in the past include a Key Bowl at Betsy Layne High School where every couple dropped their keys into a fish bowl as they entered the prom, giving the school official who handed back the keys the opportunity to judge the sobriety of the potential driver upon their return. An added incentive was the fact that a set of keys was drawn from the bowl during the evening and the owner won a $250 stereo.

At Wheelwright High School, the students handed out garters and boutonnieres to those who pledged to stay sober during the evening and also displayed banners promoting the theme of safe prom.

Another idea is to hand out cards with quarters taped to them instructing the bearer to use the coin to call home should they find their ride is not fit to drive.

Lola Brashear and Russell Hall of Mountain Comprehensive Care work closely with the students in these programs to help with ideas and funding for the projects.

One of the key elements to a successful Operation Prom/Graduation is the local business community. Donations from local merchants can provide plenty of food, non-alcoholic beverages, prizes, decorations and entertainment.

As the prom and graduation parties begin this spring, remember the 3000 young adults who will never make it to their 10-year reunion because they were needlessly killed by someone who chose to drive impaired. Don't let this happen to the class of 1990. Make this the decade of difference, and remember to drive smart and sober.

For more information on Operation/Prom Graduation or about setting up a SADD program in your school, contact Brashear or Hall at 886-8572.

TEEN ALERT*DID YOU KNOW?

— the major public health problem for teenagers in the United States is injuries associated with motor vehicle use.

— Drinking and driving is the most violent crime and a significant cause of death among our youth.

— According to the National Highway Traffic Administration the most significant drop (in death due to drinking and driving) of any age group is among the youth 15-19.

— Drinking and driving is the number one cause of death for Americans up to age 30.

— SADD's history parallels the reduction in drunk driving deaths among youth.

Go for the FLASH on Prom Night

For prom nights and evenings on the town the Merle Norman Studio in Prestonsburg suggests you "go all the way" with your makeup.

"Evening and holidays are the only times you can really play it up for a smashing look. We at Merle Norman believe the more dramatic and different your makeup is at night from your regular daytime look, the better!" say Merle Norman Beauty Advisors.

And why not? "With so many fabulous products available now from highlighters to glitter to sensational eye shades, there's no reason not to go for a look that is totally glamorous and exciting."

But what makes all the difference between disaster and a truly beautiful look is an understanding of what is right for you and knowing how to apply the makeup. "You can have the best products in the world, but if you don't know how to use them, you won't be able to create the effect you want. At Merle Norman we'll show you how — step-by-step — to achieve the look that's right for you."

For a free consultation, contact your local Merle Norman Studio at 8A Richmond Plaza, 886-8321.

Students contrast modern proms with those of the past

by Haley Caudill and Amy Allen

Wheelwright High School

You listen to the roar from the engine of the '57 Chevy parked outside while your date walks up to your door in his light blue tuxedo with ruffles around the collar and greased down hair. You listen to the last of your mother's "what respectable young ladies don't do" speech and your father's lecture to your date on bringing you home at a decent hour.

You finally arrive at the Community Hall after the banquet in the school cafeteria. Since this is your first date you pray that the dance steps your mom taught you the night before aren't out of style yet.

In the 1950s the Prom started with a banquet prepared by the home economics department in the cafeteria from money raised by the junior class. The actual prom was held in the Community Hall. Not all the home economics students helped with the prom, only the freshmen and sophomores. The underclassmen who helped received a free ticket to the prom as a reward.

Exile, a now famous country band, once played at a prom at Wheelwright in the 1960s. Although Exile wasn't famous then, they are now. Could you imagine having someone like Milli Vanilli play at your high school prom?

What is the tradition of prom today? To begin with, it is really expensive. The prom itself costs somewhere between two and three thousand dollars and that's merely for decorations, appetizers, entertainment and rental of the prom site! All that money for a mere four hours?

If you think that's outrageous, what about spending anywhere from three to five hundred dollars for a gown covered in colored sequins and beads. You have already spent from $200 to $500 and that's not even the complete attire. You also have to buy satin shoes so they can be dyed to match the dress and this costs anywhere from $50 to $100. And that's just the average cost! Some people spend thousands of dollars for that one night.

for a mere four hours!*

The guys don't get by very easily either. Tuxedo rental ranges from $60 to $100. This cost, added to the cost of flowers and dinner, can take quite a chunk out of the old wallet. You also need to consider the average miles traveled to get to the prom site: nearly 35 miles.

Why has the tradition changed so much in the past years? Is it because of inflation or is it because everyone is trying to outdo everyone else? Instead of going to enjoy the prom and having a good time, people are busy worrying about who's going to look the best or whose gown cost the most. Come on people, let's put the true meaning of the prom back into "Prom Night 1990".

Corsages: Today's choices are more exotic

by Tess A. Whitmer
Staff Writer

Over the years, the flowers chosen for the prom have developed from the simple nosegay to the wild and exotic crescent styles and everything in between. Gone are the days of limited options; today's "corsaging" is truly a creative endeavor.

"Last year was probably the toughest year yet in getting the girls what they wanted," noted Clara Conley, owner and operator of Clara's Flower Shop, Wayland. "They were the wildest colors I've ever seen, mostly real deep colors, like deep purple with emerald green."

The use of silk flowers has helped add a variety of colors to the selection. "I think the versatility of silk flowers, plus the girl's wanting to keep her bouquets, has added to the popularity of silk arrangements," Conley said.

She explained that some girls will keep the bouquets they've had over the years and take them apart or add to them to create new looks for other occasions. An economical decision, these flowers can be used for the bouquet a bride tosses or for hair pieces at future events.

According to Lena Brown, co-owner of Add-A-Touch Florist of Martin, tropical flowers, such as orchids and lilies, were popular last year. "The new crescent style (a semi-circle, hand-held bouquet) is our most popular choice," she said. "The use of the crescent allows us to create truly unique designs, using things such as Ting Ting, which is a dried, colored stick, to get that perfect match."

Both Brown and Conley said that couples are coming to the florists together to pick out the arrangements. "All the girls bring their dress in and we spend a lot of time and patience coordinating the colors and styles to match," Brown said.

Most florists are very concerned with customer satisfaction and will explain costs and different styles to their clients and usually will create matching boutonnieres for the men.

Brown said her arrangements begin at around $25 and go up, and Conley noted that the average corsage she sells cost about $35. She noted that a traditional round bouquet of fresh flowers will run about $25.

Arm lays seem to be the trend of the day in arrangements. Usually one, two or three long-stemmed flowers, fashioned with complementary ribbon (similar to a spray), these blossoms are hand carried. Also, with the prevalence of strapless dresses, the wrist corsage, or one worn at the waist, is also quite popular.

But, due the intricacy of "body flowers," both florists recommend ordering three to four weeks ahead of time, to ensure time to complete the perfect complementary design for individual couples. Silk flowers can be picked up any time before the prom, but fresh flowers should be picked up the day of the dance or a day or two earlier and kept refrigerated.

Floral styles

CORSAGE: A design of one or more flowers fashioned with complementary ribbons or other decorative touches and attached with pins to the dress or evening bag.

EPAULET: an elongated arrangement of flowers designed to fit comfortably over the shoulder.

SPRAY: Usually, one, two or three long-stemmed flowers, fashioned with complementary ribbon and intended to be hand-held.

WRISTLET: Flowers attached to a flexible bracelet-type band and worn on the wrist.

HAIRPIECE: Blossoms usually fixed to a comb or headband or made into a small wreath.

NOSEGAY: A small bouquet, usually surrounded by tulle and lace, and designed to be carried.

CLIPS: Yes, tiny blossoms can even be worn on the shoes!

BOUTONNIERES: Men's flowers, usually a single blossom, always pinned to the left lapel of a jacket.

Good manners make for successful prom evening

The prom could very well be the most memorable event in a young person's life. Today, proms require quite a bit of expense and hours of planning. Just shopping for the perfect dress and coordinating accessories can take weeks.

Therefore, why not make it a true night to remember by being on your best behavior and by exerting an extra amount of self control. Good manners never go out of style, and preparing for unexpected circumstances could be the act that saves the evening.

Here are a few pointers, beyond the standard "please and thank you" that may come in handy on that special evening.

BEFORE PROM

— With the amount of effort that goes into preparing for a prom, most young people will already have asked their dates months in advance of the actual date. Unfortunately, things happen and this couple may not be as close come one month prior to the event.

If both partners agree, it could very well be a good decision, both economically and emotionally, to go ahead and attend as friends. Another solution could be to each go stag, or with a group of friends.

Whatever the decision, the mature way to handle an awkward situation is to talk it out and come to a conclusion together that satisfies both parties.

— Be prompt and don't keep you date waiting, especially a nervous date or someone who has never meet your parents.

— Parents can be embarrassing, it's true, but your prom means as much to them as it does to you. Seeing their children dressed in adult clothes evokes memories of the past and could stir emotions about their baby growing up. So a tear or two can be expected, and possibly acknowledged with a hug, but definitely not fussed over.

And most couples today can expect a lot of pictures. Be cooperative with your parents about it and maybe even arrange the details about the session in advance. A spat as you're going out the door will be a bad beginning.

— Your date will no doubt ask you about the color of your dress so as to coordinate corsage colors. Be sure to tell him if you plan to wear a strapless dress and would prefer a wrist corsage. This could avoid a very awkward situation. However, should this not be taken into consideration at the time of purchase, a group of flowers can just as easily be worn at the waist or pinned to a handbag.

Corsages are generally pinned on by the date, but if he can't manage it, defer the chore to mom. Although it's true flowers can be worn on either side, most often the right side is chosen so the arrangement is not damaged while slow-dancing.

— Even if you consider yourself a steadfast feminist, allow your date to open doors for you and hold your chair out at dinner. It'll make him feel like the perfect gentleman.

— Make all entrances and exits with your date, not ahead or behind. Don't try to upstage each other by racing to the door.

TABLE ETIQUETTE

— When dining out, women walk to the table first, and behind the waiter. Ladies may choose whatever seat they like and should be helped with their chair by either the maitre de or her escort.

— Don't fuss over the prices. Yet realize that your date is probably on a budget, and be a little conservative. But the fact that he chose the restaurant should indicate that he can afford it.

— At fancier restaurants, there may be quite an array of flatware. Don't panic, just remember to start with the fork or spoon farthest away from your plate and work your way in.

— If the dinner is a buffet, you and your date should go through the line together, ladies first.

— Makeup touch-ups should be done in the ladies room, not at the table.

— If your date is paying for the dinner, don't ask about the check or give advice on figuring the tip.

— Should you spill something on your garment, ask the waiter for a glass of soda water and a clean cloth and dab the soiled spot with the wet towel. If the stain cannot be totally removed, but is only minor, don't make a big deal about it; maybe nobody will notice. Should someone point out the mark on your outfit, just acknowledge knowing about it and change the subject. Their rudeness should not spoil your evening.

AT THE PROM

— Above all, treat others like you would like to be treated. Ladies have the option to turn down gentlemen who ask them to dance, but they should do so politely and not immediately accept a dance with another man.

— The first and the last dance should be reserved for your date. Other than that, ask your date's permission should someone else request your presence on the dance floor.

— The cutting-in custom means the lady may not refuse the new partner. And, the partner cut in on must not cut back in, but may cut in on someone else.

— Be sure to be wise in your choice of shoes and select something you'll be able to dance the night away with. Often women discard their shoes as the evening wears on, but this really distracts from the total look of the outfit, and the shoes may get damaged or misplaced.

— Leave petty differences behind, and avoid gossip. These two offenses will only spoil somebody's evening and don't reflect well on the user.

— If your date should become terribly embarrassing, unruly, or exhibits unacceptable behavior, you may call a cab, or your parents, and go home. But, even then, don't make a scene which could make you the topic of ugly gossip as well.

AFTER PROM

— If there is a get-together at a friend's house or reception hall, be sure your parents know where it is and when to expect you home. If they insist on your timely arrival on the doorstep, don't argue; after all, who's paying for this event.

— Don't be afraid to tell your date you're tired or that you don't want to go anywhere alcohol is being served. If that's how you feel, he/she should respect that and either change the plans or take you home and then do whatever he/she pleases.

— Don't shed your good manners even at a casual after-prom event. Dress appropriately and remember the proof of "real class" is in behavior, as well as appearance.

Pounds prompt prom panic

Most women, young and old, begin to panic over extra pounds when special occasions draw near and they know it's important to look their best.

Looking through magazines filled with slender models or picking over prom dresses labeled size 3 or 5 can make many a young woman resolve to take off some of the pounds that often pile up around the waist and hips during the slow winter.

Too many tend to wait until a few weeks before prom time and expect to drop five, 10 or 20 pounds overnight, so they can fit into that special dress that cost a small fortune and is guaranteed to bowl the young men over.

"There are many myths about dieting that people accept without question," says registered dietitian Audrey Blumenfeld, "and following these myths may actually sabotage weight loss efforts."

Even the smartest high schooler may have a low "diet IQ." Blumenfeld offers this quiz to measure yours. Mark each question TRUE or FALSE, to see if you can separate diet fact from fiction:

1. T/F The best diets allow you to lose weight quickly.

2. T/F As long as you stick to a certain calorie total, it doesn't matter if the calories come from fat, carbohydrates or protein.

3. T/F Starchy foods (pasta, potatoes) are fattening.

4. T/F If you lose weight and gain it back, you'll gain mostly water and it will be easier to lose.

5. T/F Fasting is a good way to lose weight.

ANSWERS:

1. False. "Many people who lose weight quickly gain it back nearly as fast," says Blumenfeld. "As soon as they stop dieting, they go back to their old eating habits and regain the weight. Slow but steady weight loss is more likely to be permanent." Her tips for dieting: aim to lose one or two pounds a week; eat your favorite foods, but less often and in smaller amounts; exercise daily, and change your behavior. (If you like to snack, chew sugar free gum instead. It can curb your urge to chew.)

2. False. One gram of fat has nine calories, while protein and carbohydrates have only four calories per gram. So given the same amount of calories to "spend," you would actually get to eat more food if you chose protein and carbohydrates.

"Fats are found in gravy, salad dressing, butter, margarine and mayonnaise," says Blumenfeld. "They add flavor and texture, but they can't be chewed. Eating carbohydrates will give you greater oral satisfaction."

3. False. The best way to lose weight is to eat more carbohydrates, such as breads, pasta, cereals and potatoes. Just avoid toppings such as butter or sour cream. A healthy diet should be 50 to 60 percent carbohydrates, 12 to 20 percent protein and 30 percent fat.

4. False. If you lose weight and gain it back, the extra weight is added as overall body fat (not water), and proportionately less lean body mass (muscle). So the weight you gain back will be even harder to lose.

5. False. When you fast, your body interprets it as starvation and lowers its metabolism to conserve energy. So you may eat less food and still be unable to lose weight.

The truth of the matter, according to Blumenfeld: If you're serious about losing weight, eat healthier foods, consume less calories and exercise more.

For photographer, proms are a snap

by Pam Shingler
Editor

He doesn't claim to be a Don Juan, but Steve Porter does manage to be the center of attention at all local high school proms year after year. In fact, he even hits most of the training camps — the increasingly popular eighth grade dances.

Porter is a photographer who literally gets to preview all the dazzling gowns and spiffy tuxedos of the thousands of local students who deck out each year for the fanciest dress ball of school.

"I loved proms when I was in high school," says the Prestonsburg High School graduate.

"But I hated the pictures with a passion," he adds slyly.

On the other side of the camera now, Porter claims the standing in line to have pictures made is the worst part for prom couples. "Everybody gets tired and edgy about missing out on the fun," he says.

For that reason, he's in favor of schools scheduling the picture period much earlier than the gala and staggering appointments. "At Wheelwright, for instance, we've done that and the whole thing is much smoother."

At the Left Beaver school, he explains, he sets up his equipment in front of the prom backdrop between 3:30 and 4 p.m. on the day of the prom. Couples come in, have their pictures taken and still have time to go out to eat before going to the prom.

Magoffin County High School is going with an early scheduling plan this spring, and Porter expects everyone to be happier with the arrangement.

From his experience as a prom photographer, Porter has another suggestion for making couples' pictures worth keeping. "Think of the prom theme when choosing a prom dress," Porter advises female prom-goers. "Choose colors based on the theme and backdrop, so you don't fade into the background or clash."

Porter also advises couples to be realistic when ordering picture packages. "Lots of times couples will break up before the pictures come back, and one of them picks up all the pictures and the other is left without the remembrance," he says.

Unrealistically perhaps, he advises couples to try to stay on friendly terms and be fair if the romance fizzles during the two or three weeks between the prom and the picture return. Another possibility is for each person to order separate sets of pictures.

The owner of Porter Photography Studio also suggests that students consider carefully how many photos they want before ordering. Reordering generally takes longer and costs more. Porter says that some students will order five or six packages of photographs to cover requests from parents, grandparents, friends and extended family members.

Pictures are not limited to prom dates. The photographer insists it's not unusual for several students to want their pictures taken together.

"A bunch of guys or girls who are friends will want their pictures taken as a group," Porter says. "Some guys or girls have their pictures taken with several different girls or guys, almost as if they were dates."

Among the funniest prom incidents Porter has witnessed was when one girl's slip fell down just before she was to have her picture made. The girl, dressed in a "southern belle-type" dress, kept her cool, however. "She just picked the slip up and walked off," he laughs.

The saddest prom he ever covered was also last year. "A young man had been killed in an accident the day before the prom," Porter explains. "The kids came in, had their pictures taken and left. It was a time to be festive, but there were no smiles."

Taking pictures on the night of the prom is just one part of Porter's job. "There's lots of work afterwards — paperwork, sorting, checking names, delivering."

Prom time is a time of great stress for the photographer. "For several weeks, it's just rush, rush, rush," he says.

But he still manages to be calm, soothing and cheerful when he's taking the picture. He keeps in mind, he says, that he's doing something for the students that will help them remember this time of their lives for the rest of their lives.

Say "cheese."

Learn to enjoy proms again

by Nolan Newsome

Wheelwright High School

Every year in the month of May, Wheelwright High School has its junior-senior prom. Every year we have it at the May Lodge in Jenny Wiley State park. It is a nice place, but is too small for a high school prom. There is no room to sit down or to dance. Usually half the people there have to stay out in the lobby.

I don't propose that we rent a night club or a place like the Carriage House. I propose that we have a lock-in prom at the Wheelwright High Gymnasium. It would be wonderful to have a great banquet before the actual prom begins. There could be a poll on what was the favorite food served at the banquet. Then the formal affair could begin.

Once you go into the gym, you can't come out until morning. Everyone could bring comfortable clothing to change into after the formalities. There would be many activities that appeal to everyone including games, contests and prize drawings. We could order loads of pizza and canisters of pop to snack on all night long. In the morning some cooks could prepare breakfast with all the works: biscuits, gravy, ham, sausage, bacon, eggs, hash browns, you name it.

I think this idea should be brought before the prom committee. The prom should mean more than a few hours spent dressed up like royalty. We need to learn to enjoy our proms again.

For men only

Tips for hair care

American men spent about $1.3 million on grooming products in 1989. Yet, rather than appreciating the array of hair care choices available, many men are overwhelmed.

To guide men in making product selections that will help them better manage their individual hair care needs, hair growth experts Thomas Nigra, MD, of the Washington (DC) Hospital Center and Paul Glick, Chicago-based image consultant, offer the following tips:

1. Be skeptical when reading product label claims. Every product has a promise or an offer of hope in addressing a self-image concern. To avoid disappointment, set realistic expectations and don't be afraid to ask questions. If the salesclerk is unable to help, ask for the store manager or product buyer.

2. Be aware that, by and large, all conditioners accomplish the same thing. Conditioners simply add protein and other agents to hair to improve manageability.

3. Be careful when buying dandruff shampoo. Make sure the shampoo you choose has one of the five ingredients cited by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) as safe and effective in controlling dandruff. These are salicylic acid, pyrithione zinc, sulfur, coal tar and selenium sulfide. Because dandruff shampoos are highly toxic, they should be used sparingly and kept away from children.

4. Be conscious of your hair type when buying shampoo. Men with thinning hair, for example, frequently have oily hair and should use a shampoo for oily hair or one specially formulated for thinning hair that won't leave unwanted residue. If men use a shampoo designed for dry hair, they may develop the scaling and itching problems of aggravated shampoo.

5. Be realistic about shampoo additives. Herbal, lemon and egg shampoos smell good, but they offer little or no cleaning benefit. Often additives reflect the perceptions of marketers more than the needs of consumers.

6. Differentiate between over-the-counter hair thickener products and a prescription hair growth treatment. Hair thickeners use ingredients such as trisaccharide chemicals to add body to hair and make it appear fuller. A new FDA regulation, effective Jan. 7, 1990, prohibits companies from claiming that nonprescription products actually grow hair or prevent hair loss.

Those who donated gowns were, Della Hitchcock, Tess Whitmer, Carolyn Ramey and Pamela Paige. Tea-length fashions with plenty of lace and crinolines under the skirt were the rage of the 50s, as this picture from 1956 illustrates. However, the mothers who wore fashions such as this to their proms will be buying sequins and satin for their daughters of the 90s.

THE WONDER OF BOOKS

Memories of proms past, a nostalgic look back

by Tess A. Whitmer
Staff Writer

Ah, Prom Night! Boy, do I remember what a thrill that was. As a young lady who normally dressed only in jeans and sweaters, the opportunity to wear an evening gown and be escorted by a gent in a tuxedo was something to cherish. Actually, as I recall, the preparation for the big evening was as much fun as the event itself.

We used to have our proms in the school gymnasium and spent weeks decorating with cardboard and paint to match the theme. The junior class did the work as a graduation present for the seniors, and the gym was kept locked so as to be a surprise.

My first prom was as a freshman, one of two to attend the junior/senior prom. My best friend was the other underclassman, and with her date being on crutches, we had to double, which made it that much more fun.

The theme that year was "Go West" from the then popular song by the Village People. And the gym was miraculously turned into an old western town complete with hitching posts and hay bails. After the formal dance, everyone went home and changed into casual dress for the "after-prom party." Most people wore western wear and cowboy hats and enjoyed the more popular music.

Other themes in the next few years were "New York, New York" and "Sailing." Back then you always picked a song to model the decorations on. We never even considered renting a hall or hotel, although some area schools did; nothing could be more memorable than the thoughtfulness of the junior class, with all their work and dedication.

The shopping trips to find the perfect dress and accessories were also quite exciting. Getting the full attention of my mother and having that special time together is something I'll always remember.

At that time I felt fortunate that my mother was willing to purchase three prom dresses, one for each year I attended, although the last year I had to make a concession and use my dress to double as my maid of honor dress for my older sister's wedding. I used to think spending $80 on a gown was monumental, but after pricing dresses these days, I guess we were fortunate.

I wouldn't want to be a teenager trying to budget expenses for the prom this year, or worse yet a parent coming up with the funds. My younger sister has informed me that she wouldn't go to the prom. I was totally awestruck.

"What do you mean — do you want to miss what could be your most memorable night in your whole high school career?" I asked her.

She informed me that proms these days are just a "society event" and all the people did was price the others' gowns and gossip, and she didn't want to be part of that. "Plus, it's silly to spend that much money on one night, when I could be saving for a car or college," she said. Her logic was good. I couldn't argue with her.

When I offered to lend her one of my old dresses she said they were beautiful but about 10 years out of date; not sequined enough, I guess. I really feel for the girls who will miss out on this special evening solely because of finances. After all, prom is supposed to be a way to say goodbye to your friends in a gala way, not a debutante's coming-out party.

When my brother went last year his prom, he gave me a ticket. "Why do I want to go to a high school prom?" I asked.

"To see everyone dressed up," he said. "A lot of parents and former students come to see the grand march, and then leave."

I realize that prom is a derivative of promenade, meaning grand march, but this is taking things a bit too literally, I think. But, I guess if parents are spending thousands of dollars on gowns they should be able to see what they look like in the right setting.

Another thing I found rather humorous during my brother's prom was the amount of picture taking he had to go through. I lent him my car for the evening and when he returned it he had added about 150 miles to the odometer reading. Since he had two dates that night, one his former girlfriend whom he had originally planned to take before they broke up, and the other her cousin who didn't have a date. (Aside: I believe my brother liked the cousin better anyway.) This made three sets of parents who wanted pictures, plus grandparents. When I went, my mom took pictures and had multiple copies made for my boyfriend's mom. Much simpler then.

I guess the pictures at the prom are quite elaborate as well, with the photographer offering numerous copies. Even I got a copy.

After all this glamour, I asked my brother where he had taken his dates for dinner, thinking the Holiday Inn or Carriage House or even the lodge, but he shocked me and said they went to Western Sizzlin'.

"Well, that's pretty ritzy, big spender," I joked. He said that was where they wanted to eat. Whatever trips your trigger. Personally I would hate to go through a buffet line in an evening gown. When I went we had the choice of attending the dinner the school PTA sponsored or going to a nearby restaurant. My date and I always opted for the fancy eatery to make the evening special.

The day after prom was also a day of celebration and fun. One year, my boyfriend's parents allowed him to have an all-nighter, and then we went to a state park to canoe the next day. Some couples went to amusement parks and spent the day there. We were quite tired but couldn't have had more fun, splashing each other with water and picnicking out in the open air. I don't know what kids do now, but with the availability of nearby Jenny Wiley State Resort Park, I can imagine it could be much the same.

Even with all the hubbub attached to going to prom these days, I'm sure that those who do attend will have a special and romantic evening. With a little planning, young people will be able to create memories to last a lifetime. I just hope someday a cap will be put on the ever increasing price of prom and students will go back to the older and simpler days.

Prom Night: One male's perspective on who to ask

by Frank Clark
Staff Writer

For me, the actual night of senior prom remains a hazy, pleasant memory. I was the kid wearing cowboy boots and spurs, for reasons I no longer care to remember (though they did look good with my silver tuxedo) dancing wildly to songs by Bruce Springsteen, the B-52's, and Devo. The only problem was the spurs, which kept catching on my date's gown, causing some ill feelings between us and a great deal of laughter from my friends.

The night went by quickly, my friends and I thinking we were saying goodbye to youth and carefree days in the swirling dances and talk of future plans. The only spoiler to the evening was when my date asked me if I would have rather been there with someone else that night, causing an unpleasant flashback to two months of agonizing over who to ask to the prom.

In March of my senior year, all the graduating "men" in my class began biting their fingernails. "Who should I ask to the prom in May?" More importantly, "Who would say "yes" if I asked them to prom?"

For those lucky dogs who had a regular girlfriend, this was an easy question. For my friends and I, nerds and outcasts all, this required a great deal of thought and sweat. No one wanted to be humiliated by a turndown, particularly if it occurred in a public place, accompanied by fake gagging sounds and loud screams of "No, no, never."

Slowly, date commitments began falling in line for my buddies. Bobby, who began shaving in third grade and always looked a lot older than he was, set himself up with a girl from a church youth group, who didn't know him well enough to be scared. Joe snuck underage into a western bar, and asked a woman who thought he was 22 to the prom. Surprisingly, she said yes.

Even Danny, who'd never dated in his life, was sitting pretty. A girl from his neighborhood agreed to accompany him, despite his grumbling to us that he hated the whole thing and was only going because we forced him into it.

So there I was, three weeks before prom, with no date in sight. Secretly, I still had hopes of getting up the courage to ask Meg Fox, the cheerleader I'd yearned for over the past two years. But it didn't look good, after I heard some "college man" was taking her.

I then screwed up my nerve, and shakily asked Donna, the pretty girl who always looked confused and who sat next to me in my English class, if she'd go with me. She said maybe, but after a week of waiting, I found out she had a serious relationship with a large jock in a nearby town, and I, valuing my life more than one lousy night of dancing, withdrew my invite.

It was two weeks before prom, and I was sitting around with a bunch from school at a local burger joint, pondering my bleak situation. I'd ditched Bobby, Joe, and Danny for the last week, as accusations of being a wimp and consideration over which girl in school would be desperate enough to go to prom with me filled our conversation. I was fed up with it, and figured that spending the night at home, watching TV with the dog, might not be so terrible after all.

"No, I won't be going because I don't have a date."

I looked up from my Pepsi at Diane, the girl who'd just spoken, a long time friend of mine who'd taken school sponsored roadtrips to Washington and New York City with me in the past. I made some rapid calculations and decisions. I hustled her out into the parking lot thinking, "Yes, there is a God", and popped the question. "Sure", she said, and the rest was history.

A week later, and five days before the prom, I met the first "love of my life" at a weekend retreat for high school juniors and seniors. I still went to the prom with Diane and had a terrific time, but ever since, I've been amazed at the mysteries and paradoxes of life.

What to do if you don't have a date for the prom

The statement "it will never happen to me" may be fresh on everyone's lips, with prom still two and a half months away. But, God forbid, the inevitable could happen and two weeks before the prom you could find yourself without a date. Well, that's not so tragic you know. There are a multitude of solutions for such a predicament.

The staff at The Floyd County Times, with only a little arm twisting, came up with the following ideas for getting a date or excuses to use should you find yourself not going to the prom.

— You can go alone. After all, it's cheaper, and you can enjoy everyone else's dates without obligations. Nowhere is it written in stone that one needs an escort to go to the ball.

— You can stay at home and watch TV with the dog. That's really inexpensive.

— Find another couple and go with them. That will make the guy or girl feel like he/she was really special and required two dates.

— Make like an ostrich and bury your head in the ground. That won't solve much, but if it makes you feel better, go for it.

— If your a female, find a girl friend and go with her, one of you could wear a tuxedo and make a joke out of it. We don't recommend the opposite solution for the guys though.

— You could always feign illness or death, either of your date or yourself. "Gee my date was on her way over her from France when she came down with this terrible disease which kept her quarantined for the weekend."

— Say your limousine never arrived, and so as to not ruin your ruby studded shoes, you danced on the patio under the stars instead of walking to the prom location.

— Blame your parents and say they ran off all 50 of your selections for a prom date, by just being themselves.

— Don't graduate and try again next year. Also not one of the top ten, but we thought it might be worth mentioning.

— Say you have to study for finals, after all what's more important. Sure, everyone will believe that.

— Hit up former graduates or students on the college campus who are dying to come back to high school for a night.

— Develop a quick taste in literature, selecting a hefty, serious book from the local library. "Gee, I was just so engrossed in the latest Pulitzer Prize winner, I completely forgot it was prom night."

— Make a big stink about how cool it is not to go to the prom. "I figured with the money I saved by not going I could buy myself that new Camaro I've had my eye on."

— Ask an underclassman; they're always anxious to attend an event with the seniors and juniors.

— Recall any big favors people still owe you. "Yeah Suzy, remember that time you borrowed that piece of paper from me, time to pay up... How about getting yourself a formal and taking me to the prom."

— There's bound to be other people in the same predicament as yourself. Ask around, find out who they are and make a Dutch date with no strings attached.

— Advertise in The Floyd County Times. After all, our Classified Ads get results.

— Post public notices throughout the school, advertising an evening to remember for one lucky person who enters this contest. Presto, instant date.

— Check out if your school has a dating service. Usually there's one person who is always trying to fix people up.

— Look around at church, where there just may be Miss or Mr. Rightsitting in the pew right behind you every week.

— If you have enough money for bribes, you might be able to get a cousin or your sibling to go with you. Pretend like they're from another country and can't speak English and you won't have to worry about any embarrassing secrets being told.

What ever you choose, don't sweat it...it's not the end of the world. Good luck and have a great time searching.
