Public forum on education commissioner

Few offer opinions, input on state school superchief

by Tim B. Preston
Staff Writer

Educators from Johnson, Magoffin and Letcher counties, along with other concerned citizens, disclosed their opinions on qualities and criteria for the selection of a new Commissioner of Education Monday when four members of the Kentucky Education Management Selection Commission visited Prestonsburg.

The public forum meeting was the third of four such meetings held around the state. The group's goal is to seek public input regarding the selection of the Commissioner of Education as mandated by the recent education reform act passed by the Kentucky General Assembly.

About 25 people were in attendance for the forum held at Prestonsburg Community College. However, only seven of those present chose to share their opinions with the commission members.

Johnson County Schools Superintendent Frank Hamilton was the first person to address the panel. Hamilton stated that he felt a Kentucky resident or native should be selected for the position and recommended Dr. Dan Branham for the job. Hamilton stated that Branham was unaware that he was being recommended for the job. Branham is an associate of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction and a former Superintendent of Martin County Schools.

Betty Jo Lykens, a Magoffin County teacher, read a prepared statement to the commission wherein she asked that a person with educational experience and high integrity be selected for the job.

Billy F. Caudill, director of curriculum and instruction for Letcher County Schools, said that he would prefer that an educator with background in construction be selected for the job.

Elwood Cornett, director of the Kentucky Educational Cooperative, said that he would like to see a "sober, honest man of God with experience in administration."

Former Floyd County teacher Tommy D. Hall presented one of the more entertaining addresses of the forum. Hall began by saying that he envied the members of the commission because they were responsible for selecting the very first appointed education commissioner in the history of the state.

Hall continued that he would like to see "a David Roselle type" selected for the job, referring to the former University of Kentucky president. He added that a prerequisite for the position should be that the person is not from the state of Kentucky.

Rev. Timothy Jessen, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Prestonsburg, was the last person to address the commission members. Jessen read from a prepared statement that said that the new commissioner should not be a member of "the Old Boy Network." He also requested an appointment with the new commissioner for the people and parents of Floyd County.

Commission members said they were holding no preconceived notions toward the type of person to be selected for the position of Commissioner of Education and that the position would probably be filled between November and December.

The education reform act passed in the spring requires that the commissioner take office by the end of this year in a reorganized state Department of Education.

6 percent pay raise

HRMC employees favor new contract

by Tim B. Preston
Staff Writer

Union workers at Highlands Regional Medical Center approved a three-year contract by an almost unanimous measure Sunday.

A total of 188 members of the Service Employees International Union voted to approve the new contract, while only 13 members voted to turn down the offer and go on strike against the hospital.

The new contract offers employees a six percent increase in salary for the first year, with five percent raises for each of the two additional years, said union president Larry Daniels.

It also carries improved health and dental insurance benefits, as well as improved retirement and pension benefits, and upgrades in employment rankings for both part-time workers and licensed practical nurses, Daniels said.

"Everyone is just so pleased," said Daniels. "I think that both labor and management are happy with the new contract."

"The hospital is very, very pleased with the new contract," said Donald Nunnery, personnel director for HRMC. "The employees were very accepting of the new contract. We are just very pleased and happy to have the whole thing resolved."

Hospital officials and union representatives have been in contract negotiations since April 27. The union represents 232 workers at Highlands Regional.

Allen native shot Saturday

An Allen native was shot and killed at his home at East Point in Johnson County on Saturday. His wife has been charged with murder in connection with the incident.

Michael Dale Wallen, 25, of East Point, formerly of Allen, was found dead in his basement after reportedly being shot five times in the head with a .22 caliber pistol.

Johnson County Sheriff Gene Cyrus said that Wallen and his wife, Lenora Ann Wallen, 25, had been involved in a lengthy argument about a pool game they had played earlier that day. Lenora Wallen had a lump on her head that was allegedly caused by Wallen, Cyrus said.

Lenora Wallen was charged with murder at the scene and has been lodged in the Big Sandy Regional Detention Center in Paintsville.

An investigation of the shooting incident is being conducted by the Johnson County Sheriff's Department and the Kentucky State Police.

Michael Wallen was employed as a lineman for Wallen Communications of Allen.

Funeral services were conducted Monday at 2 p.m. by the Hall Funeral of Martin.

Honaker man killed in mine

A Floyd County man was killed last week in a roof fall at a C&N Coal mine operation at Indian Creek in Pike County.

Lennie Kidd, 38, of Honaker was killed Friday when a roof fall occurred at the mine. An estimated one to one-and-a-half tons of rock reportedly fell on Kidd. The cause of death was traumatic asphyxiation, according to Joe Back of the Hall Funeral Home in Martin.

Kidd was reportedly half-owner of C&N Coal Co. and worked in the mining operation.

Funeral services were Monday at 11 a.m.

Enjoying the fruits of their labor

You don't have to go very far to see what has to be one of the outstanding vegetable gardens anywhere. It's the result of the love and labor of Julia and Frank Tussey of Spurlock Fork. Tomato vines five feet tall, lush red cabbage, green beans trained to teepee frames (inset) — these and the rest of the bountiful crop are evidence of serious gardeners. "You feel like you've really accomplished something when you work a garden," says Mrs. Tussey. "I do all the preparations and she's the one with the green thumb, so I leave the tending to her," her husband assures. (Photo by Kathleen Carroll)

P'burg Council covers topics from garbage to sidewalks

Prestonsburg City Council in its July meeting Monday night moved quickly through an agenda packed with both old and new business.

Council members agreed to hiring a consultant to make recommendations on commercial garbage rates in the city. The consultant would study the present rate structure, review time per worker per stop and other differentials of garbage collection among different types of businesses.

Mayor Ann Latta said the consultant could insure that assigned rates are fair. She advised asking several consultants for proposals for doing the evaluation. Council agreed, based on a motion by William Callihan, seconded by Charles Hale.

Council also approved the city's entering into a contract with Mountain Comprehensive Care Center's Greenhouse to design and maintain a flower garden at the Flood Gate Park Garden at US 23 and Arnold Avenue.

Motion was made by Dr. Gary Brown, with a second by Hale. Mike Vance abstained because of his affiliation with MCCC.

Latta informed council of a grant through Kentucky Heritage Council

More $$ for 23 (maybe)

US Congressman Chris Perkins announced Tuesday that the House Appropriations Committee has approved additional funding for the fourth consecutive year for the expansion of US 23 in Eastern Kentucky.

Perkins said $4 million has been allotted to begin work on the 13-mile stretch of US 23 between Paintsville and Prestonsburg.

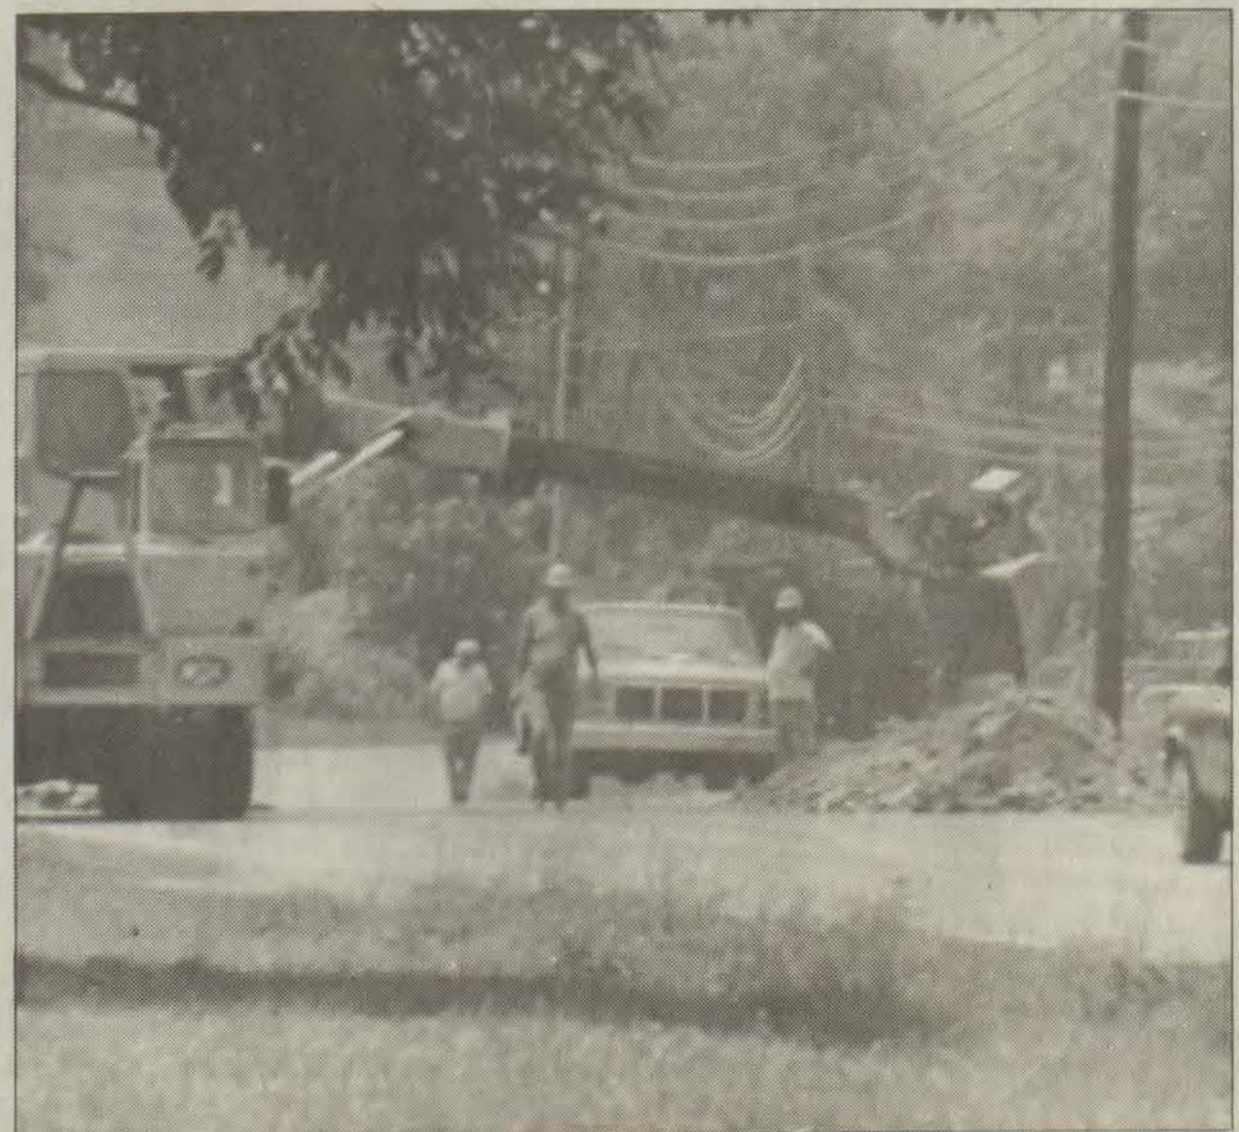

"Eastern Kentuckians are well aware that US 23 is a heavily traveled, dangerous road that is crying out for expansion and refurbishment," Perkins said. "The additional $4 million... is a testament to the commitment on the part of myself and my colleagues to ensure that improvements will be made to its (US 23's) southern end."

Perkins said that the most recent approval raises the total of federal funding for US 23 to more than half the amount requested by the Kentucky Department of Transportation, according to information provided to the congressman two weeks ago.

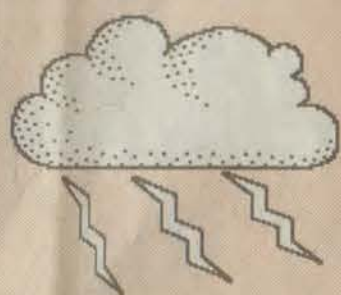

"The four-laning of US 23 is a crucial step to Eastern Kentucky's efforts to improve its infrastructure, its economy and the Seventh District's link with neighboring states both to the north and to the south," Perkins said.

The funding, part of the Transportation Appropriations Bill for fiscal year 1991, is scheduled to go before a House vote tomorrow.

Close to home

State Highway workers began repairs this week on a section of KY 1428 near Allen. Floyd County residents had noted, with some irony, that the bad section of road was located less than 100 yards from the entrance to the State Highway Garage. (Photo by Tim Preston)

Lookin' good

The gardeners should send up a big hallelujah to the man in charge of the weather. The rains are a comin'. By this weekend things may be cooled off enough to be tolerable. Here's the forecast, according to the Jackson Weather Service.

Wednesday, hot and muggy with 90 percent chance of showers and thunderstorms, high from 85-90, light wind. Wednesday night mostly cloudy and mild, with good chance for more showers and thunderstorms, low near 70, chance for rain 60 percent.

Thursday, mostly cloudy and mild with a continued 60 percent chance of more showers and thunderstorms, high near 80. Thursday night, cooler with chance of showers, low in 60s.

Weekend, cooler, chance showers and thunderstorms each day highs in 80s lows in 60s.

Sheriff reports

The Floyd County Sheriff's Department released its activity report for the month of June this week. The department responded to 10 criminal investigations and 12 accident investigations, served 250 court papers, opened 12 cases, assisted 47 motorists, handled 159 complaints, worked 100 special details, did 104 traffic checks, made 98 arrests, issued 135 citations and escorted 51 funerals.

Baesler here

Lexington-Fayette County Mayor Scotty Baesler, Democratic candidate for governor, will be in Floyd County, Thursday, July 19, for a "community meeting."

The meeting is set for noon-12:30 p.m. at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Resort Park. Baesler, in a press release, said he "is extremely interested in hearing what the citizens of Kentucky have to say about their state and its future."

Board meeting tonight

The July meeting of the Floyd County Board of Education is tonight at 6 p.m. at Prestonsburg High School cafeteria. Many items crowd the agenda. Participate in your school system!

Keeping your cool

Hot weather got you down? Beware, these soaring temperatures can do more than just give you a case of the lazies. Heat exhaustion is a very real possibility, especially with the high humidity to accompany the high temperatures.

The phrase "heat index" refers to the temperature plus the humidity, alias "what your body will be feeling." Yesterday's heat index reached about 110 degrees, and that's something to sweat about.

Some of the symptoms a person should be aware of that may be indicating the beginnings of heat exhaustion are dizziness, headaches, nausea, vomiting, some change in mental status and warm, moist skin.

If not interrupted these symptoms could progress into heat stroke, which is quite dangerous. Heat stroke means your body temperature has risen to about 105-106 and hospital treatment is needed. It is basically a severe state of dehydration.

Some simple first aid measures and keeping cool tips can be followed to prevent any type of trip to the hospital, though. First, dress in light clothing and drink plenty of fluids. Try to stay in the shade or cool areas and wear a hat. A quick way to cool down would be to place a cool, wet rag around your neck or run your wrists and elbows under cold water.

Also remember to take it easy and move at a slower pace than normally while resting frequently and drinking more than the usual amount of water.

Be especially aware of the elderly and infants. Both are very susceptible to heat and can become casualties quickly. If you know an elderly person who is without air conditioning, check on him or her frequently and be sure they have a fan and know to drink water.

City Council

for required archaeological work next to the old hospital building on First Street, prior to development of the site for a parking lot.

On a motion by Hale and a second by Vance, council authorized the mayor to seek price quotations for the excavation from three universities with archaeology programs.

Council also gave the nod to re-advertising of bids for blacktopping and sidewalk projects. Previous contracts expired July 1. Included in the new contract would be sidewalk construction in the area of the new middle school on KY 1428.

Jerry Fannin suggested that a blacktopped bicycle lane be built from the middle school into town. Latta reminded that the state highway department owns the right of way along the road.

Following a presentation by Main Street Program manager Rosemary Armstrong, council agreed to waive business permit fees for farmers who will participate in the proposed Farmer's Market at Richmond Plaza parking lot. The motion was made by William O. Goebel and seconded by Hale. Armstrong said she expects the market to open in about two weeks.

Council members also said they will look into a concern raised by representatives of veterans groups about the veterans memorial at Archer Park. Blake Meadows and Millard Hughes of Disabled American Veterans and Eddie Akers of Veterans of Foreign Wars contend the memorial is obscured from view by a waterfall in the park and trash that collects there.

Businessman Ed Music asked council to write a letter to state officials, requesting restoration of the beach and placement of more picnic tables at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park. Council agreed to do so, on a motion by Fannin, seconded by Goebel.

Music also suggested placement of more signs directing state park tourists to Prestonsburg and signs honoring former Gov. Bert Combs and former Congressman A.J. May.

Council also accepted an audit for the Tourism Commission for fiscal year 1989.

In the area of tourism, Fannin moved that council write a letter to state park and Corps of Engineers officials concerning cleaning up trash in and around Dewey Lake and trimming excess foliage around the lake. "When we get people (tourists) here and they have to part the trash to put their boat in or out of the water, they won't come back," Fannin said.

After a second by Goebel, council passed the motion.

Hale raised concern over the unsightliness and danger of a long-time burned out house at the end of the West Prestonsburg bridge. Fire chief Tom Blackburn said he would check with Fire Marshall Larry Adams about the structure.

Hale also cited unstable blocks at the end of the same bridge, graffiti on the bridge and a damaged drain to the river. Public works superintendent Mike Meade said he would check on the items.

Vance asked Meade about the status of long-proposed public restrooms in the downtown. Meade said some changes need to be made in the original plans and asked council's building committee to review the situation.

Latta announced the city's new revenue officer will begin work next Monday. He is Mark Wells of Auxier, an Eastern Kentucky University accounting graduate and employee of the Bank Josephine.

Council also approved a fundraising roadblock by volunteer firefighters on Aug. 4, with an Aug. 11 raindate.

Absent from the meeting were councilmen Billy Ray Collins and Danny Hamilton. Next meeting will be Aug. 13 at 7 p.m. at the Municipal Building.

Circuit jury convicts local man of arson

A Floyd County man was convicted of first degree arson last week and recommended a minimum of five years in prison.

Floyd Carr of Prestonsburg was convicted after he confessed to the 1986 arson of the Tyrone Chaffins home on Westminster Street in Prestonsburg.

Carr attempted to recant his testimony last Tuesday in Floyd County Circuit Court under the contention that he had confessed falsely in order to pressure the Chaffins family into paying him $6,000 that was allegedly owed to him, according to Prestonsburg Fire Marshall Larry Adams. However, the jury apparently did not believe his story and convicted him for the arson.

"Carr was the original suspect in this case," said Adams. "But he denied any knowledge of the fire when he was originally questioned. He called me in June of 1989 and told me that he had lied the first time, and that he wanted to set the record straight. That was when he finally gave his full confession on the case."

Adams said that the fire in the Chaffins home appeared to be an arson case because the windows in the bedroom nearest to the origin of the blaze had been covered in an attempt to conceal the flames from neighbors. "When the call first came in, it was to report smoke in the area. At that time no one had seen any flames," Adams said.

Police disarm attempted suicide

Members of the Floyd County Sheriff's Department had to face down an armed man while responding to an attempted suicide call early Saturday morning at Stratton Branch.

Reports of a man who had slashed his wrist on one arm and was armed with a handgun were phoned in to the sheriff's department at about 2:30 a.m. Officials were told that the man had threatened to shoot any police or ambulance workers who might attempt to stop his attempt at suicide.

Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson said that he located the man's brother and made an attempt to talk to the man, but had no success as the man told the sheriff to get out of the home.

Thompson said that he exited the home and had the man's brother block the line of sight to the back door of the home. Thompson said Chief Deputy Ricky Thornsberry and he then managed to sneak into the back exit and disarm the man without further incident.

The man, whose name is being withheld by the sheriff's department, was treated at Highlands Regional Medical Center before being lodged in the Floyd County Detention Center.

Thompson confirmed that alcohol consumption played a major role in the incident.

Former Magoffin sheriff turns 107

SALYERSVILLE—A host of well wishers turned out last Friday to pay tribute to Will Tom Arnett, who at 107, is the oldest living former sheriff in the United States. Arnett was sheriff of Magoffin County in the late 1940s and early '50s. (Lexington Herald-Leader)

Teen killed in ATV accident

EAST POINT—A 16-year-old Johnson County girl died July 2 from injuries sustained when the all-terrain vehicle she was riding reportedly overturned at Bear Hollow at East Point. Sonda Denise Arms, a junior-to-be at Johnson Central High School, died while being transported by helicopter to St. Mary's Hospital in Huntington. Funeral services for the former high school band member were Friday at the high school. (The Paintsville Herald)

Gas rates apt to soar

PAINTSVILLE—Customers of Paintsville Utilities Commission will probably face higher rates as the commission begins to pay off back debts to Kentucky-West Virginia Gas Co. The local utility will have to pay the gas supplier $2.1 million over the next 10 years. The debt accumulated during a 10-year period of litigation between the gas company and the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. (The Paintsville Herald)

Mandatory pick up for Letcher coming

WHITESBURG—Letcher County Fiscal Court heard first reading last week of a mandatory garbage collection ordinance. If the ordinance passes at the next meeting, Letcher will join Floyd as one of the few Kentucky counties with mandatory collection of garbage. (The Mountain Eagle)

Lexington developers interested in Carr Fork project

KNOTT COUNTY—Donald and Dudley Webb, operators of the state's largest real estate development company, indicate they are interested in developing a recreational area around a proposed lodge at Carr Fork Lake. The Webb brothers are natives of Whitesburg. (The Mountain Eagle)

Morgan authorities nab pot crop

EZEL—Morgan County law enforcement officers recently confiscated and destroyed about 550 marijuana plants near Ezel. Officials estimated the carefully cultivated crop would have been worth half a million dollars at maturity. No arrests were made. (The Licking Valley Courier)

Officials suspect overdose

SALYERSVILLE—A drug overdose is suspected in the death last Wednesday of Gary Gibson, 24, of Lacy Creek, according to Magoffin County authorities. Although an autopsy was performed, identification of the type of drug involved will apparently take several weeks. (The Salyersville Independent)

Teachers unhappy with raise

LOUISA—The Lawrence County Organization of Teachers met last week to discuss their proposed salary increase for the 1990-91 year. They say that, despite a state-mandated 10 percent hike in teachers' salaries, their raises will amount to only 7.9 to 8.6 percent. They say their district ranks 165 out of 177 districts in the state in pay for teachers. (The Big Sandy News)

Kimper man killed in crash

PIKEVILLE—A passenger in a pick up truck that collided with a Ford Bronco last Thursday on KY 194 was dead on arrival at Methodist Hospital in Pikeville. Riley Honaker, 60, of Kimper was apparently killed when the Bronco, driven by Bruce Hunt, swerved into the opposite lane, crashing into the pick up driven by Leura Varney. Hunt and Varney were also injured in the crash. (Appalachian News-Express)

Swimming advisory posted

FRANKFORT—"No swimming" signs have been posted on the main stem of the North Fork of the Kentucky River on a 163-mile stretch from the headwaters near Whitesburg to Beattyville. Officials of state environmental and health agencies issued a joint advisory against swimming in the river because of reported high levels of sewage-related bacteria. (The Jackson Times)

Pedestrian killed in Letcher

SAND LICK—Harvey Sandlin, 86, died Monday shortly after he walked in front of a car traveling on KY 931 in Letcher County. Driver of the car was Donna Sexton, 19, of Whitesburg. State police said the accident was unavoidable. (Lexington Herald-Leader)

Pike teen dies in crash

PIKEVILLE—Michael Phillips, 18, of Elkhorn City was pronounced dead at the scene after the car in which he was riding left the road and crashed into a rock cliff on KY 195 at Lookout early Monday morning. Injured in the accident were the driver of the car, Randy Stafford, 26, and another passenger, Shannon Little, 19, both of Hellier. (Ashland Daily Independent)

Two bankers recognized

Two employees of The Bank Josephine were recognized during the recent Kentucky Bankers Association fourth annual Young Bankers Division Convention in Lexington.

Donna Roope was named an Outstanding PEP Banker for her work with the Personal Economics Program, administered by the association. PEP is a national volunteer public education program of bankers working with teachers to teach young people about banks, banking services and personal financial management skills.

Recognized for her service as a group coordinator was Janie King Salyer.

Winners were chosen by a committee on the basis of number of presentations given, number of students contacted and creativity in presenting the program. During the 1989-90 school year, PEP bankers contacted more than 50,000 elementary, junior and senior high school students in Kentucky through 1600 presentations.

Fire destroys Martin home

The Martin Fire Department had a busy evening on Tuesday, July 3. In addition to covering the fireworks display at Allen Park, firefighters were also called to a fire at the mouth of Cracker Bottom.

At about 10:10 p.m. the fire department was loading up to leave the Independence Day celebration when the call came in about a fire at Mollie Robinson's home, according to firefighter William Petry. Members of the Maytown and Allen departments offered their assistance and Martin rolled with 12-14 firefighters and two pumper trucks.

Unfortunately, the doublewide mobile home was totally engulfed when they arrived. The Robinsons had left their home just shortly before the blaze began, and Danny Stone who was visiting the next door neighbors spotted and reported the flames.

Petry said that the dwelling was a total loss and an electrical problem is expected. The department is investigating the cause of the fire.

School boards, trash and mopeds

A few weeks ago I wrote that local businesswoman Delores Smith would be running this November for the school board seat in district one. Well, those plans have been canceled because of a survey conducted by Smith.

Apparently, the survey showed she would not have the votes to pull out a clear win over incumbent James "Doc" Adams and Eddie Billips.

Billips is the only announced candidate, while Doc Adams has yet to toss his hat in the ring.

Hats off to the Prestonsburg City administration for coming up with the idea of handing out trash bags to the kids who gather on area business parking lots at night.

Seems some of those business owners had been complaining to official about trash found on their lots each morning. So now handing out trash bags hopefully will stop much of the littering.

So far, it doesn't appear to be that great a success. Business folks and city workers are still having to remove trash from the lots.

Just a tip to the kids who enjoy parking on the lots around Prestonsburg. That privilege may be in jeopardy.

From what I've overheard, some businesspersons have asked police to run kids off their property at night. The law says police cannot do anything unless those businesses post "no loitering after closing" signs. Then the police can run the kids off.

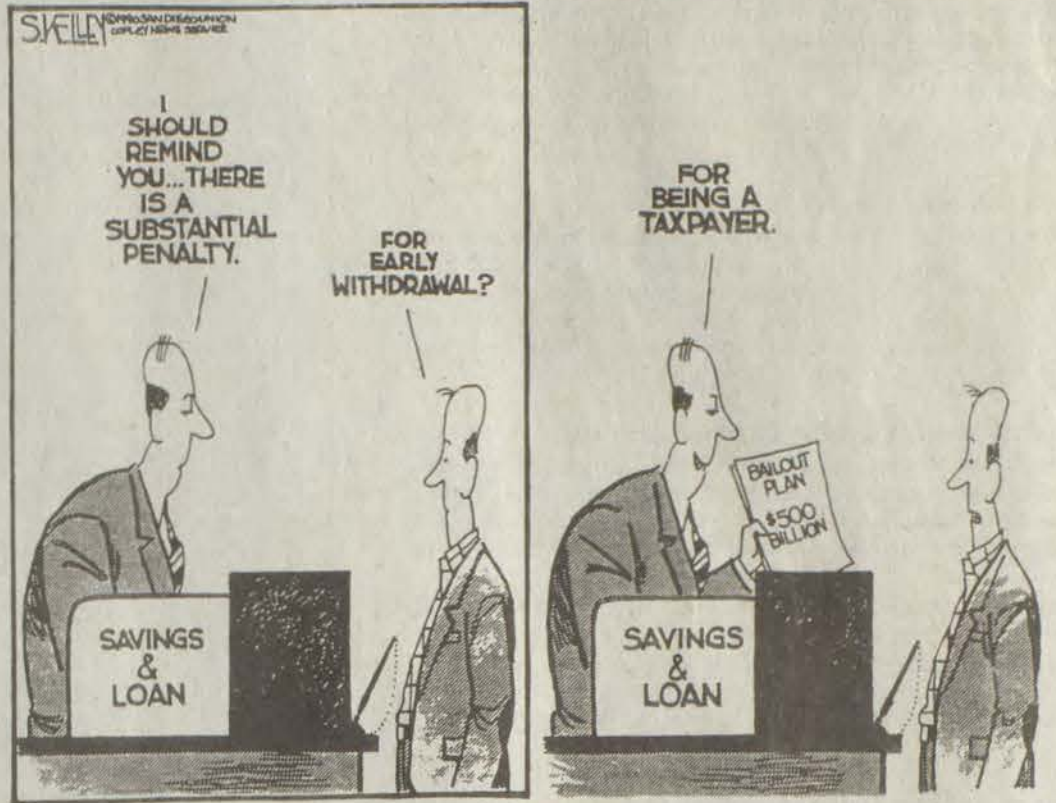

Just a suggestion to the youngsters: No one is against you hanging around at night at the various spots. All they are asking is that you put your trash in containers and not on the ground. If you don't, the signs might just start going up and shutting down your gathering spots.

Several months ago, it was announced the city of Prestonsburg was going to enforce an ordinance pertaining to unlicensed motor bikes and mopeds being driven on public streets.

If the enforcement is in effect, then I have seen none of it. Unlicensed motor bikes, driven by young-looking, unhelmeted people continue to travel the streets. In many, many instances, these drivers have been running stop signs on North Central Avenue and Trimble Branch.

I shall say it again. Nothing apparently will be done until the unspeakable occurs.

'Yes to life'

Dear Editor,
In the 1990s, let's say "Yes to life." You have a choice between two things: to one you say "no," to the other "yes."

When you say no to drugs, you are saying no to a lifestyle which includes drugs, alcohol, school dropouts, run-aways, jobless, prison, poverty, suicide, hate, violence, crime, loss of family, prostitution, teenage pregnancy, AIDS and other birth defects, crack and cocaine-addicted babies, unwanted babies dumped in trash cans, child abuse and parental neglect. We are saying "no" to the conditions we don't want. If you are into the above lifestyle, take control of your life by making a new decision, rehabilitate.

Rehabilitation prepares us to be noble men and women. No effort is too great. Your life is a gift. Life is for living and giving. Make the right choice. A positive lifestyle allows us the freedom to be loving, healthy, successful, happy people that we are created to be.

We all have the ability to lift our vision to see new values, to establish new goals. Say "yes to life" and to what we really want. As parents, we choose to build the new civilization, a healthy, happy and drug-free, peaceful community and country. We say "yes" to health, happiness, abundance, freedom, love, trust, respect, faith, courage, honesty, goodwill, laughter and humor. Say "yes" to developing your talents, "yes" to education and job training, "yes" to sharing, "yes" to good relationships with all people. Do something good for somebody. Volunteer your time and talents; work is fun; friends are fun; parents and grandparents are fun.

When you say "yes to life," you are a "point of light" and you are playing a vital part in creating a new civilization. You are helping to eliminate the cause of human suffering. Life is peace. Life is beautiful. Let it begin with me.

Urges support of Amtrak route

Dear Editor,
I'm sure that there are many people who would like to see passenger train service through Kentucky again.

Amtrak has proposed two routes from Chicago, Ill., to Jacksonville, Fla., that would go through Kentucky. One proposed route would go through Georgetown, Lexington, Nicholasville, Danville, Somerset and Stearns. The other would go through Henderson, Madisonville and Hopkinsville.

I urge anyone in Central and Eastern Kentucky interested in Amtrak's route through this part of the state to write a letter to their Chamber of Commerce or Pam Miller, Vice Mayor, Lexington-Fayette Urban County Government, 200 E. Main St., Lexington 40507, stating that you support Amtrak's route through Georgetown, Lexington, Nicholasville, Danville, Somerset and Stearns and the reason.

Residents of Eastern Kentucky can travel to Somerset or Stearns and board to ride to Florida or ride north to Cincinnati or Chicago and make connections to go to the east coast or west coast.

In my opinion, a vacation by Amtrak would be a leisurely and relaxing way to travel.

Please show your support by writing a letter. Every letter written will show Amtrak that Central and Eastern Kentucky want passenger train service.

Recalling public officials

Dear Editor,
Recall is one of the three basic tools of direct democracy. Another is referendum, which was the subject of the last letter on local governance. Initiative will be addressed in the future.

Recall is simply a provision of the law which allows voters to remove elected officials from office without waiting for the next regular election. Currently, only 17 states allow for recall of elected officials at the state government level. Many states have recall provisions relating to municipal and county offices. Kentucky has no provision for recall.

Under current Kentucky law, elected state officials are removable only by impeachment by the legislature for illegal conduct in office. County officials guilty of misconduct can be impeached by the legislature, or are automatically removed from office upon conviction in court for misfeasance or malfeasance. The legislature has some flexibility in prescribing ways to remove elected city officials; current statutes allow removal for cause after a public hearing by a unanimous vote of the city commissioners or alderman.

In Alva W. Stewart's "The Initiative, Referendum and Recall: Theory and Application," direct democracy is traced back to the ancient Greeks. Stewart suggests that in this country, "The first real surge of interest in direct democracy came near the end of the 19th century. Voters who were angered by political corruption and the strong-armed influence of business interests in state capitols demanded greater control over political and legislative machinery. Among the innovations developed by these 'Progressives' were the direct primary, the initiative and the recall."

For example, Wisconsin adopted recall in 1926. In Wisconsin all elective offices at the state and local level are subject to recall. Recall has been used to remove a number of local officials and school board members over the years. The recall petition must be signed by electors equaling at least 25 percent of the vote cast for the office of governor at the last election, in the state, county or district in which the incumbent was elected. If the petition is successful, a recall election is held to fill the office for the remainder of the term. The incumbent or other candidates can file to be placed on the recall ballot.

Those opposed to recall believe that it disrupts representative government. Those in favor of recall believe that even the threat of its use discourages elected officials from misusing their offices.

In Kentucky, recall could be used to oust corrupt officials, officials who ignore the public and officials who engage in unethical but legal activities. Recall could apply to all elective offices at the state and local levels of government, or only to selected offices. For instance, at the local level county judge-executives can be extremely powerful. Local officials are only required to abide by very limited ethics laws, and many places in Kentucky have a history of a few powerful people controlling local government. For these reasons, county judge-executive might be a good office to make subject to recall.

Kentucky law requires a constitutional amendment to institute statewide recall for all elective officers at the state and local levels. An obvious question is whether the legislature can be persuaded to pass an amendment that would subject it and its fellow elected officials to additional scrutiny and accountability.

The Kentucky Local Governance Project wants to hear your opinions on the issue of recall. Do you think Kentucky should institute recall provisions statewide? Should recall apply to all state and local offices or just to selected offices? Write to the Kentucky Local Governance Project, 433 Chestnut St., Berea 40403. All ideas will be preserved in an "idea bank" which will be used to help develop a strategic plan for improving local government in Kentucky.

Strange Enough

By Tim Preston

This is PRESTON'Sburg, isn't it?

It never fails, as soon as I meet a new face in Floyd County, I know what the next question will be after I introduce myself.

Preston? You must be from Johnson County.

There is no denying that I am from Johnson County. What puzzles me is that I know there are Prestons in Floyd County and I wonder why I'm not simply mistaken for one of them. It must be that Johnson County accent.

In search of the answer to my question of instant recognition as an outsider from another land, I consulted the telephone book.

Can you believe that there are only five Prestons listed in Floyd County? And of the five listed I am relatively sure that I am not related to any of them.

But, I still don't know what tips people off to the fact that I am from Johnson County.

Could it be that the mayor of Paintsville, the Johnson County Attorney and the state representative of Johnson County are all Prestons? Could be.

As far as I know, however, I am not related to any of those guys either. If I am, as any genealogist will explain the processes that would make me a fifth or sixth cousin at least, I will at this point declare my ignorance of the family trees.

It just doesn't make sense. I work in a city whose name is Prestonsburg and yet people know in their hearts that I'm from another county as soon as they hear my last name.

Perhaps this is a mystery that I will never solve. I must resign myself to the fact that, even though I do live in Floyd County, I am always going to be a Johnson County Preston. I guess I can live with that.

There are however a few points to ponder that I found while researching this topic.

There are no Stumbos in Johnson County, there are no Paints in Paintsville and of the Prestons living in Floyd County, only one of them lives in Prestonsburg.

You figure it out.

Report to Kentucky

By Sen. Wendell Ford

CARBON TAX COULD MEAN ECONOMIC 'DOUBLE JEOPARDY'

I want to use this week's report to alert as many Kentuckians as possible to a move now afoot in Washington to enact a devastating fossil fuels tax that could cost our state more than $900 million a year.

I recently joined other senators in calling on President Bush to reject this new tax, which is now being considered by some members of the White House congressional "budget summit group." I did so because this is just one more short-sighted effort to balance the federal budget on the backs of hardworking and hardpressed Kentuckians and Kentucky industries.

Advocates of this approach are talking about a tax based on the carbon content of fossil fuels — $15 per ton on coal, $3.25 per barrel on petroleum and 40 cents per million cubic feet on natural gas. Direct annual costs to Kentucky industries alone could come to $528 million for coal, $314 million for petroleum and $74 million for natural gas.

Such a tax would cost these same industries $30 billion a year or more on a national basis. It also would cause widespread economic disruptions and job losses resulting in an estimated two percent loss of gross national product.

This tax would largely eliminate US coal exports, now worth more than $5 billion a year. It would cause electricity rates to go up as much as 25 percent in some regions. It would cripple railroad, trucking, steel, aluminum, petrochemical and other energy-related industries in Kentucky and elsewhere.

Kentucky and other energy-producing states soon will be hit with the high costs of the Clean Air Act now working its way through Congress. A carbon tax would expose our state to a highly unusual form of economic "double jeopardy" that we simply cannot afford to accept.

I am among those now fighting for a Clean Air Act amendment to assist coal miners who could lose their jobs under this act. These losses could be significant in Kentucky, even with the clean air compromise already worked out in the Senate.

I can assure you that I will do everything in my power to see that the costs of the Clean Air Act are not compounded by a totally misguided and self-defeating carbon tax on coal and other vital energy supplies.

Kentuckians should understand that a carbon tax could not be imposed on energy imports from Canada under our Free Trade Agreement with that country. As a result, we could find ourselves exporting jobs to Canada if this tax is adopted.

As we noted in our recent letter to the President, the added revenues generated by this tax "would be fully nullified by the adverse effects on our economy."

It makes no sense to keep piling burdens on hardpressed energy producers and other targeted industries in Kentucky. We must reduce the federal deficit in ways that are fair to the working men and women of this state and nation. I hope all Kentuckians will join me in strongly opposing a carbon tax or any similar violation of this much needed spirit of fairness.

Educator relies on blood donors

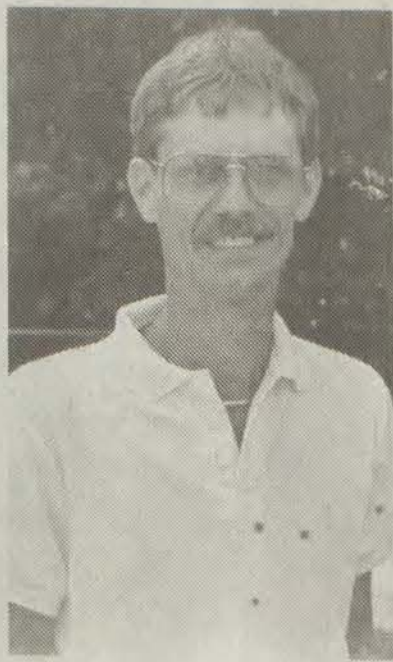

by Kathleen Carroll
Contributing Writer

Enoch Mitchell is but one among the many reasons to donate blood. The principal of Betsy Layne Grade School relies on the generosity of strangers to maintain his health.

Mitchell has a rare health condition that keeps him from producing sufficient levels of certain immunoglobulins ("antibodies") which are necessary to fight infections. As a result, Mitchell must receive plasma from healthy blood donors every three weeks to keep his antibody levels high enough to help prevent the respiratory illnesses that once plagued him.

"It used to be that I got pneumonia three or four times every winter," explained Mitchell, "but since I started this treatment I've only been in the hospital once."

Six years ago, Mitchell began receiving plasma transfusions to resupply the antibodies in his blood. Although the transfusion takes only a short time, there are several precautions the Central Kentucky Blood Center must take.

ENOCH MITCHELL

First, acceptable donors must be recruited. Even though Mitchell's A+ blood type is fairly common, it is not always easy to find a match for him. His plasma donors must have very low levels of the immunoglobulins IgA, because Mitchell could have a very severe reaction if he received plasma containing IgA.

Because IgA-deficient donors are extremely rare, the Blood Center must continually search for new donors while encouraging regular donors to keep coming back.

Once an acceptable donor is found, Mitchell has a skin test at the CKBC Donor Center in Prestonsburg to see if he will have a reaction to the plasma he will receive later that week.

The test, he said, has another benefit. "It desensitizes the body, sort of a warning signal so the body will more readily accept something new."

If there is no reaction, the following Friday evening Mitchell travels 130 miles from Prestonsburg to the Blood Center in Lexington where he receives his unit of plasma. The trip gets tiresome, said Mitchell. "I know every chuck hole in the Mountain Parkway."

If Mitchell does react to the skin test, the Blood Center must find another donor. The search may take up to a week, but this poses no threat to Mitchell.

Ever grateful to the strangers who donate, Mitchell said, "Even though I don't know them, I appreciate them for keeping me out of the hospital."

"Some people don't understand that CKBC collects only donated blood and plasma, unlike some centers that pay donors. That's why I'm always encouraging people to donate," the educator said.

Mitchell may be one in a million, but he is also one among the many who rely on blood donors, whether for an extended illness or for an emergency. All blood types are needed all of the time, for different reasons, for different people.

The Prestonsburg branch of the Central Kentucky Blood Center is located on the second floor of the Municipal Building. For information on giving blood, call 886-1557.

The Business Lifeline,

The Telephone
Robert E. Looney,
Assistant Professor of Communication

For many people it is the annoying device that commands attention no matter what we may be doing at the time. It does not matter if we are just sitting down for dinner, watching the final episode of a 12-week mini-series that we have been following with utmost devotion having never missed the previous 11 installments, or just settling down for a quiet, romantic evening with that "significant other," when this piece of technology signals we turn our full attention in its direction.

For other people it is a lifeline, a method of companionship, a connection to the world outside ourselves. We feel compelled to answer its call no matter what we are doing at the time. It is practically incapable for it is in virtually every home, office, and other place of business.

Annoying to some, salvation to others, the telephone has become a routine part of our lives.

Whether you personally like or hate the telephone, one segment of our society has found it to be an indispensable element in functioning effectively: the business world. Aside from those who call you at all hours of the day and night trying to sell the latest necessary item or magazine for your home, most businesses find it virtually impossible to operate efficiently without a telephone. Sales calls going out, customers calling in, information gathering, complaints, concerns, questions, all these and more go through most business telephone lines every day.

Even though businesses rely on this form of communication one does not have to search long to find customers who have felt frustrated, angry, and/or confused when speaking with a business representative over the telephone. Perhaps the representative speaks too quickly, does not speak clearly enough, or sounds impolite. Maybe the customer mumbles, has difficulty explaining the reason he/she telephoned, or does not know with whom to speak. The most common frustration for both persons tends to be the belief that the other is not listening.

Regardless of the source of the problem there are several things people and businesses can do to improve usage of the telephone, including telephone personality and voice quality.

The telephone looks so easy to use — you talk in one end and listen to the other — but it is a little more complicated than that. For your voice to come across more clearly you should hold the mouthpiece directly in front of the mouth. If it is tucked under the chin or pressed against the lips many letters and words sound muffled or distorted. By having the mouthpiece directly in front of the mouth a person can speak in a normal, conversational style rather than thinking she/he needs to whisper or yell in order to be heard.

One technique in using the telephone that is important, especially for a business firm, is identification of the caller. It takes a listener at least two seconds or three syllables before adjusting to the sound of your voice. So, in answering or making a business call you should always give your greeting ("Good morning/afternoon/evening") before you give the name of your business or company. This will assist the person in remembering your company name.

In several recurring experiments, calling 100 businesses, only seven made their names understandable in the opening of the telephone call. As a business you want your name to be one of the major things the customer remembers.

If you are making a call, plan and organize your telephone call. Jot down the points you wish to make in order of their importance. Look them over and think about them for a few minutes so that you will not forget something important. Also, date the notes of the telephone call in case you need to refer to them in the future. Finally, be brief. If extensive detail is needed make sure it is sent in writing.

When you are getting a call from someone else, be sure to jot down a few notes during the conversation and write down the date. Listen for the general nature of the call, is it a problem, question, or complaint?

If information is requested that is not readily available, do not keep the caller waiting while you look for it. Call him/her back later and have the information well organized. And finally, be brief. Complicated information can often tie up your "lifeline" of the telephone for an extensive amount of time. This can hinder others from contacting you.

When the conversation has come to an end avoid slamming the receiver down onto its cradle or hook. The microphone in the mouthpiece will transmit the "slam" sound as the line disconnects. Press the disconnect button or hook with your finger and then put down the receiver. This is especially important for businesses, for no customer enjoys hearing that loud bang of the receiver cutting him/her off at the end of a conversation with your company.

Once the telephone rings and it is answered, your telephone personality takes over. It is amazing how drastically the personalities of some people change when they get on the telephone. Normally courteous people can become fire-breathing dragons, bullies become meek as mice, and shy persons find the strength to "talk our leg off." The point is that on the telephone we have the luxury of being anonymous, unknown. No one can see what we look like or what we are doing, they know only the sound of our voice and what we say.

For businesses, this is a major part of their contact with the public and for some it may be the first and last contact with a customer. One should speak in a pleasant, normal voice and convey a positive attitude about the business and customer.

You must be certain to be courteous and patient with each telephone call, regardless of what is going on around you and how you feel at the time. If this is a first contact, it can determine how willing the customer is to contact you again.

The final area of improvement comes in the form of voice quality. As stated before, strive to be conversational and natural. Avoid speaking so loud that your voice becomes blurred or indistinct. Speak in a normal voice. If the connection is weak you may either try calling again or, if this is not possible, resort to increase volume. Talk slowly and in short phrases to insure you are being heard and understood. Finally, make sure your articulation is clear. Take great care in forming your words and phrases.

Remember, the listener has only the sound of your voice to receive your message. She/he cannot see you, you must be able to explain what you mean.

The telephone has become an essential element in virtually all businesses and in most homes. Much of our current business is conducted by telephone. Through several slight improvements we can get even better at using this tool. Remember, be patient, pleasant, and clear, and make Ma Bell proud!

FAMILY REUNIONS

Hitchcock Family

The first annual Hitchcock family reunion will be Sunday, July 22 from 11 a.m.-4 p.m. at the historic Mayo Mansion on Third Street in Paintsville.

Descendants of John Hitchcock and Temperance Hitchcock (Conley), married ca 1797, as well as other Hitchcock lines will gather to renew family ties and celebrate the family association.

Children of John and Temperance were: Phoebe who married Samuel Rice in 1815; Margaret "Peggy" who married John M. Ramey Jr. in 1816; John who married Mahala Fitzpatrick in 1822; and Parker who married Elizabeth Shepherd in 1825 in Whitley County.

If you descend from any of these Hitchcocks, are related by marriage or just a friend or acquaintance, please join in honoring and celebrating the family.

A buffet lunch is planned. Participants are asked to bring a covered dish of their family's favorite food.

To learn more about the reunion and the newly organized Hitchcock Family Association, contact Janet Horne at 780-4486 after 4 p.m.

Revival slated

The Zion Deliverance Church at Wayland will hold a revival on Sunday, July 15 at 7:30 p.m.

According to Pastor Ada Mosley, the revival will feature Evangelist Oma Fay Bratcher, granddaughter of the late John and Rosa Sexton. All are welcome to attend.

Everyone's catching the bug

An opinion on progress

by Tess A. Whitmer
Assistant Editor

Here's one contagious bug that will be good for Floyd County. In the past few weeks this paper has highlighted three groups who have each adopted a portion of the county road system and pledged to keep it clean.

The Adopt-A-Highway program affords participants a way to advertise their club or organization free of charge. All it requires is a little time and effort and results in the benefit of all.

Many persons have commented lately on the unsightly accumulation of garbage along the road way. In lieu of getting people to quit throwing it out of their car window, someone must make the commitment to clean up. Obviously the first course of action would be preferable, but long standing habits are hard to break.

Now, thanks to a few good-intentioned groups of individuals, several areas will be freer of the litter. Most recently, R&S Trucking, May Metal and Worldwide Equipment have taken on the old road to Allen, KY 1428. The three companies, all located along that stretch of road, have split the 6.3 miles evenly and plan quarterly cleanup sessions. The first to be this weekend.

Owners of these companies have also compiled a letter to employees and neighbors, asking their cooperation in stopping the outpouring of trash from passing vehicles. One portion of the letter sums up the motivation for such an act: "Our customers use this road and we don't want them to be ashamed of where we do business or where we live. We can't do this job without everyone's help."

The other trend setters in this program are the the First United Methodist Church of Prestonsburg who adopted Watergap Road, the Kiwanis Club who took KY 1428 through Lancer and the Prestonsburg Rotarians who have vowed to keep the Jenny Wiley Road litter-free. Several other groups have expressed interest in jumping on the band wagon, including the Jaycees and Bank Josephine.

Presently, Floyd County ranks last in the portion of roadways in the county that have been "adopted", according to Dan Hall of the Department of Transportation. The Floyd County Litter Task Force hopes to change this. As chairperson Marty Backus put it at the group's most recent meeting, "I hate to get beat by Pike or Johnson County."

The process is really quit easy. Fill out a form from the Transportation Department and pledge your cooperation. The department will put up a sign with the group's name on it.

The state only requires a cleanup twice a year, but as members of the First United Methodist Church have realized, it takes more than that. According to the co-chairperson of that group, Charlotte McFall, not two hours after the cleanup was complete, someone had driven by and re-littered the area.

If more persons took some pride in how their home looked, the job would be easy. Many sport the bumper sticker "I'm from Eastern Kentucky and Proud of It." Now more need to live up to that motto.

Along the same line, the Floyd County Litter Task Force has been spreading out in other directions, in addition to the adopt-a-highway program. Several representatives are planting flowers, reporting litterers, attempting to get ordinances passed, researching a junk car program and promoting a school curriculum that supports the ecology.

Support from the local county government has been strong, especially in the form of Ecology Officer Cleveland Tackett, Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo, County Attorney Jim Hammond, Solid Waste Commissioner Bob McAninch, Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson and District Two Magistrate Jackie Edford Owens.

The many individuals who have taken an interest in the group and worked hard to keep it progressing in the proper direction deserve a big hand. They are looking out for the future of Floyd County.

But more help is needed. It took years to develop this littering habit and to trash the land, so it will take years to clean it up and break those habits.

Anyone interested in learning more about what they can do to help can come to the next meeting on Monday, Aug. 13 at John M. Stumbo Elementary School. Or contact Marty Backus or Charlotte McFall at 886-8506 or Dolores Smith at 874-2151.

Pulling together

Representatives of three local companies stand below the sign denoting their commitment to keeping KY 1428 clear of debris between Allen and Lancer. Delano May, vice president of May Metal (left), Bill Smith, president of R&S Trucking, Charles Collins, general manager of R&S, and Randy Polk, vice president of Worldwide Equipment, have all entered into an agreement to pickup the route that their customers must travel to get to their places of business. Motorists, be sure to watch for persons along the road picking up trash, and give them a honk to show your support. (Photo by Tess Whitmer)

Nursing home moratorium to end; approval of beds tied to budget

Certificate of need actions on Medicaid-eligible nursing home beds between July 1, 1990-June 30, 1992 will be tied to the level of long-term care Medicaid funding authorized in the state budget.

That means Kentucky's 10-year moratorium on expansion of long-term care beds will end during the fiscal year that began July 1 with nearly 1,000 additional beds expected to receive certificate of need (CON) approval.

(Despite an almost continuous moratorium since May 1980, CONs have been granted for 3,668 skilled nursing or intermediate care beds since then.)

To ensure that all applicants wishing to build or expand nursing homes have an equal opportunity to do so, the following actions have been taken:

(1) An executive order by Gov. Wallace G. Wilkinson will extend the current moratorium on new or converted intermediate care, nursing facility, nursing home and skilled nursing beds. The governor's order covers the period from the June 30 expiration date of the moratorium until the annual revision of Kentucky's State Health Plan is final (expected in August).

The limited moratorium includes an exception allowing approval of replacement projects for facilities that fail to meet life safety codes.

A moratorium on new home health services, which began in 1986, ended as scheduled on June 30.

(2) A public hearing on the 1990-92 State Health Plan will be conducted in Frankfort on July 27. Among proposed revisions to the plan are continuation of the long-term care bed moratorium until Jan. 1, 1991, and a set of priorities for cases of competing, acceptable applications for long-term care beds.

The Commission for Health Economics Control in Kentucky (CHECK), the CON review panel, would use the priorities as part of its consideration of the plan in reviewing CON requests.

The recommended priorities, in descending order, are:

(A) An application to delicense beds in a county with more beds than needed under the plan and to add the same or fewer beds to a county with fewer beds than the plan indicates are needed;

(B) An application in a county with no long-term care beds of the level sought;

(C) An application in a county and an Area Development District with fewer beds than the plan shows are needed, or a proposal in which both the proposed county site and every adjacent Kentucky county have a plan-indicated shortage of beds;

(D) An application for beds shown as needed in both the county in question and statewide as a whole.

(3) The CHECK panel will revise its annual schedule for consideration of long-term care applications. The new schedule will allow all interested parties to file applications through mid-November. All applications reviewed and deemed complete will be acted upon by the commission on March 20, 1991.

The 1990 General Assembly authorized additional funding for expansion of Medicaid-eligible long-term care in Kentucky equal to the annual cost of Medicaid reimbursement for an additional 675 beds. Beds in these categories will include intermediate care, nursing facility, nursing home and skilled nursing levels of care.

Based on the fact that roughly 71 percent of new skilled nursing and intermediate care beds are certified for Medicaid, state officials estimate that as many as 949 long-term care beds of all categories may be granted CONs during the next two years.

After applications are approved for those 949 beds, no further CONs may be granted until the 1992 legislature acts on the Medicaid budget for the state fiscal biennium beginning July 1, 1992 and the State Health Plan is revised to reflect changes in bed and any additional Medicaid funding for nursing home beds in that budget.

SIMPLE ADVICE FOR WOMEN
Women who experience diarrhea and cramping with the onset of menstruation may want to turn to ordinary ibuprofen for relief. This over-the-counter aspirin substitute may deal with these menstrual-related symptoms faster than any other non-prescription medication. According to researchers at the Women's Medical Center in Bethpage, New York, ibuprofen is so effective because it limits the manufacture of prostaglandins. These are the hormones that cause the smooth muscle fibers in the intestines and uterus to contract. In addition, ibuprofen is effective in combating the nausea, vomiting, and various aches that often accompany menstruation.
With so many products on the market today, knowing which one is best suited for your particular situation is difficult to discern. The expertise of your pharmacist can prove invaluable at this time. Feel free to consult COOLEY APOTHECARY, when in doubt about any over the counter product. We are also very proud to be able to provide families in this area with whatever medications their physician may prescribe. You'll find us located at #2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106, and open Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-3. Master Card and Visa honored plus we welcome all third party payments.
HINT: Those who are sensitive to aspirin should also avoid using ibuprofen.

Dump 'er here

Prestonsburg Superintendent of Public Works Mike Meade showed City Council members the latest in garbage can at Monday night's council meeting. Called a dumper cart, the 90-gallon container can hold five or six bags of household garbage, Meade said. The carts also have wheels for ease in moving. The real plus for Meade's operation is that, with a special attachment to existing garbage trucks, the carts can be mechanically lifted and dumped into the trucks, making them more sanitary and safer for sanitation workers. Meade is examining various company brands before recommending local usage. (Photo by Pam Shingler)

Local man elected

A Prestonsburg accountant has been chosen president-elect of the Eastern Kentucky chapter of the Kentucky Society of Certified Public Accountants.

G. Stephen Pack of Jones Pack and Associates assumed his new office on July 1, following elections during the KSCPA annual meeting in June in Louisville.

Elected president of the 220-member regional chapter was Brian J. Uebelhor of the public accounting firm of Wells and Company, PSC, in Paintsville. Other officers are Edward F. Kinn of Collins and Love in Pikeville, secretary, and Mark T. Baldock of Kelley, Galloway and Company of Ashland, treasurer.

The Eastern Kentucky chapter includes the counties of Floyd, Pike, Johnson, Martin, Boyd, Greenup, Carter, Elliott, Morgan, Magoffin, Knott, Breathitt, Wolfe, Menifee, Rowan, Bath, Fleming and Lewis.

When Woodspoint Geriatric Care Center needed a new health insurance company, they came back to a familiar name.

In 1987, Woodspoint Geriatric Care Center in Florence, Kentucky, left Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Kentucky for another health insurance company. They said our rates were too high.

In 1989, Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Kentucky welcomed a new client — Woodspoint Geriatric Care Center. Now, why would a company who left us want to come back?

Woodspoint learned the hard way that some health insurers lure new business with low rates the first year — often to follow up with steep rate hikes in succeeding years.

So Woodspoint signed up with us again. For a fair price. For value. For service. For the most recognized health care card in Kentucky. And Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Kentucky has taken steps to insure that Woodspoint — as well as companies across the Commonwealth — joins the growing number of businesses that stay with us year after year.

We're concerned about rising health care costs. So we're working with our customers to control claims, cut administrative costs and keep our company on sound financial ground. We want to deliver the best value in health insurance possible — a value that will build strong, long-term relationships with every customer we have.

We have not reached all our goals. Not yet. But we're on our way. Choose us again, or for the first time. And choose the health plan companies all over Kentucky are coming back to.

Good isn't good enough anymore.

They're appreciated

Nine members and volunteers of the Prestonsburg Fire Department were recognized at Monday night's City Council meeting for their response last month in saving the life of local resident Mildred Kendrick. Three others, Assistant Chief Mike Wells, Capt. Ken Crisp and volunteer William Chaffins, were cited by Chief Thomas Blackburn for "heroic efforts during a life threatening situation." Recognized were, l-r, volunteer Gary Crisp, Chaffins, Sgt. Ronnie Burke, Capt. Crisp, volunteer Tim Blackburn, Wells and volunteers president Alan Lafferty. Cited, but not pictured, were Steve Frazier, Mike Blackburn, Thomas Hereford IV, Parker DeRossett and William R. Callihan. (Photo by Pam Shingler)

State cites burning, open dump violations

The Department for Environmental Protection has collected a $22,000 penalty from John L. Beardsley of Bardwell in Carlisle County for failing to comply with a court judgment to clean up an open dump he operated at the former site of Honest John's Used Cars. The penalty collection is the latest in the two-year effort by the department to obtain cleanup and closure of the site. Beardsley was notified in June 1988 to clean up the dump, which contained automobile parts, appliances, scrap metals and drums of unknown substances. In July the dump was burned, and Beardsley was cited for illegal burning.

fine and ordered Beardsley to clean up and properly close the site. The fine was assessed at $10,000 a day for open burning violations and $1,000 a day for operating an illegal disposal site. The site burned for two days.

The department has collected the $22,000 fine, however, efforts are still being made to have the site cleaned up and closed. Motions on the cleanup will be heard in Franklin Circuit Court in September. Judge Ray Corns allowed 75 days before motions are heard to give Beardsley an opportunity to include Honest John's Auto Sales Corp., the property owner, in the court action to share the cleanup cost.

Cable company offers option

The cable television company serving Prestonsburg and environs is now offering a basic service option for less than $10 per month, Prestonsburg City Council was told Monday night.

In a letter to Mayor Ann Latta and council members, CableVision announced its "Budget Basic" plan which includes the three major networks, independent stations and local access television for $9.95 per month. The option was available June 28.

The company also informed of a switch in channel position for two stations. Local access is now available on cable channel 7, and the Family Channel can be received on channel 28.

Home canning can be economical

Home canning is an economical and, if recommended procedures are followed, safe way to preserve fruits, vegetables and meats, according to a University of Kentucky food and nutrition specialist.

"Canning homegrown fruits and vegetables can save up to half the cost of buying commercially canned foods, excluding the value of the time you spend canning," said Sue Burrier, an Extension specialist at the UK College of Agriculture. "The savings are even greater for people on a reduced-sugar or -sodium diet because commercial diet foods are even more expensive."

Burrier recommended the following practices to maintain the quality and safety of home canned foods: start with fresh, wholesome foods; choose an appropriate canner for the type food being canned; be sure jar lids are sealed; and store canned goods properly.

Microorganisms that can reduce quality or cause food spoilage live and multiply quickly on the surface of fresh food and on the inside of bruised, insect damaged and diseased food, Burrier said. Therefore, it is important to can produce and meats at the peak of freshness and quality. Cut small diseased lesions or spots out of food and discard diseased or moldy food.

"For optimum quality, can most vegetables within six to 12 hours after harvest," she said. "Fruits like peaches, pears and plums need to ripen several days between harvest and canning. If you must delay canning other fresh produce, keep it in a shady, cool place."

"Home-slaughtered red meats and poultry should be chilled and canned immediately. Put fish and seafood on ice, eviscerate immediately, and can within two days."

Selection of the correct canner for the food being processed is necessary to maintain quality, she said.

The acidity of foods being canned dictates whether a boiling water or pressure canner should be used to prevent growth of botulism bacteria in heat-processed, home-canned foods, according to Burrier.

"Low-acid foods (red meats, seafood, poultry, milk and fresh vegetables, except for most tomatoes) do not contain enough acidity to prevent growth of botulism bacteria," she said. "Acid foods contain enough acidity to block bacterial growth, or destroy bacteria rapidly when heated. Acid foods include fruits, pickles, jams, jellies, marmalades, fruit butters and sauerkraut."

Pressure canning is the only recommended canning method for meat, poultry, seafood and most vegetables, Burrier said. Using boiling water canners for these foods poses a risk of botulism poisoning. Although pressure canners can be used to process acid foods, boiling water canners are recommended because they are faster.

Low-acid foods, tomatoes and tomato products should be boiled for 13 minutes after the jars are opened to destroy the toxins that cause food poisoning, Burrier said.

Jars of canned foods must be sealed properly to maintain quality and prevent growth of bacteria that cause food poisoning, she said.

"Cool the jars at room temperature for 12 to 14 hours; then remove the screw bands and test the lid to be sure it is properly sealed," Burrier said.

If the lid did not seal, the jar may be resealed (reprocess within 24 hours using the same processing time), frozen (adjust headspace to 1-1/2 inches before freezing), or eaten (refrigerate unsealed jar and consume within several days).

Proper storage helps maintain quality and prevent spoilage, according to Burrier.

"Label and date the jars; then store them in a clean, cool, dry, dark place," she said. "Do not store jars at temperatures above 95 degrees. Storing jars at 50 to 70 degrees will extend food quality."

although accidental freezing usually will not cause spoilage, freezing and thawing may soften food. If jars must be stored where they might freeze, wrap them in newspapers, put them in heavy cartons and cover the cartons with newspapers and blankets, Burrier added.

Domestic abuse strikes home

Here in Eastern Kentucky, most people do not realize the amount of domestic violence that still occurs, according to a spokesperson for the Big Sandy Family Abuse Center.

Domestic violence is any type of abuse, mental, emotional or physical, between two people involved in a family or marital relationship. Although the abuse may be directed toward either partner, 95 percent of the victims are women, the spokesperson said.

The number of abused women in the Big Sandy Area Development District comprises 10 percent of all the abused women in the entire state.

In general, violence may occur at least once in two-thirds of all marriages. An average of 3-4 million women are battered each year by their male partners. Domestic violence occurs among all races, incomes and societies.

There are many reasons women stay in an abusive relationship. One is that frequently women face the most danger when attempting to leave a relationship. The threats of violence or even death are very real and have been beaten into her mind.

Another reason she stays is the abuse may have her emotionally dependent on him by decreasing her self esteem.

Or she may feel it is very important to keep her marriage together at any cost because of religious beliefs or cultural pressures. Many women want the violence to end, not the relationship.

Many women do leave their abusers. But unless there is an alternative, such as a battered women's shelter, many feel trapped into staying.

There are 15 such shelters in the state. The Big Sandy Family Abuse Center serves Pike, Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin and Martin counties and provides many services for the abused women and her family.

One of the most important services is emergency shelter for women in danger. This is very important for a battered woman with no safe place to go.

The center also provide crisis intervention by having a 24-hour crisis line that a woman can call for help or just to talk with someone who cares. Just knowing there is an alternative to the violence is a great relief for some.

Shelter personnel cannot tell the abused woman what to do, but they will help her sort out her feelings and determine a next step in a safe and supportive atmosphere. Counseling is also provided if needed.

The crisis line is 886-6025.

Employers increase use of aptitude tests

Many Kentuckians who have long since graduated from high school and even college are finding out that the anxiety of taking tests is no longer absolutely behind them.

Statistics compiled by the Kentucky Department for Employment Services show the number of people required to take the state-administered aptitude tests as part of their job search process tripled from 1985 to 1989.

Nearly 70,000 Kentuckians took the General Aptitude Test Battery (GATB) from July 1988 to June 1989 (the last statistical year for which complete figures are available) and state officials expect the annual numbers will continue to grow.

"Research and experience show that the GATB is a good indicator of a person's ability to learn and be successful in a job," said John Hodgkin, director of the Employment Services' field services division.

"The GATB should be viewed as a single step — not the sole determining factor — in the hiring process," Hodgkin said. "Employers still need to interview applicants and consider such factors as education, experience and references before making a decision."

For example, tests cover general learning ability, verbal and numerical aptitude and manual and finger dexterity. It is the only aptitude test used by the Department for Employment Services to aid companies with employee selection.

"You can't study for the GATB," said Greg Kring, counseling and testing section supervisor for the division. "Of the 12 tests, only three are school influenced. The rest depend on innate abilities."

The GATB cannot be retaken for five years unless someone attains a GED or has other documentation showing he or she has improved reading or math skills by a grade level, Kring said. "We always tell applicants if they are not at their physical and mental best, to reschedule," he said.

Hodgkin said more employers are using aptitude tests such as the GATB now because US employers are recruiting workers who can learn new job requirements needed to become competitive in a world market. "Employers say the GATB has helped them increase productivity and decrease turnover and time spent training people," he said.

The international test is nearly 50 years old, but before 1982 its use was limited to measuring abilities for about 450 jobs. A new method called "validity generalization" allows jobs to be divided into "families" based on related characteristics, so that 12,000 jobs are now covered.

The expansion of the GATB plus its use by Toyota Motor Corp. as a screening tool for its applicants made the test popular in Kentucky, Kring said. Manufacturing companies, such as General Electric and Philip Morris, are the most frequent users of the test, he said.

"Only 2-3 percent of DES job applicants in the state took the GATB five or six years ago, now about 20 percent take it," Kring said. "It is now a sufficiently practical tool to be used successfully with occupations as varied as doctors, cooks, managers and computer operators."

Although the GATB can help employers make personnel decisions, it is not a cure for all hiring woes and its results are sometimes misunderstood.

"Instead of a pass/fail test, one's ability is ranked in comparison with other people who have taken the test," Kring said. "People often think GATB scores are like the grading system used in schools, but they're not. Instead of percent being a failing grade, in general, it represents a average performance."

Senior League

P'burg survives 10-run 5th by Fleming-Neon; wins 19-11

The sun was hot, the temperatures warm and the evening long, as the Prestonsburg All-Stars took the field against the All-Stars from Fleming-Neon in first round action of the Senior League's 13-Year Old-All-Star Tournament at Paintsville Saturday afternoon.

The game started at 3 p.m. and ended four hours later with each team having big innings.

Thomas Ratliff was the winning pitcher, although he did start to struggle in the fifth inning and needed relief help from Jason Burke to help put the fire out after Neon scored 10 runs in the bottom of the fifth inning to cut a 15-0 Prestonsburg lead down to five runs, 15-10.

Prestonsburg pushed across six runs of its own in the bottom of the fourth inning to take a 10-0 lead.

James Joseph opened the inning with a double that bounced to the fence. Clint Shutz walked and Ryan Ortega reached on a fielder's choice to load the bases.

After Mike Roberts popped out to the pitcher, Robbie Risner grounded a base hit up the middle to score Joseph. Thomas Ratliff walked to force home another run. Jason Burke, who had four RBIs in the game, drove in two with a solid hit to left field. Burke had some great defensive plays in the game also.

Jason Spencer topped off the Prestonsburg rally with a two-run single before Jason Phillips came on for Neon to get Ortega to bounce back to the mound. Phillips came on in relief of Mike Rose who started the game for Fleming-Neon.

Prestonsburg struck for five more in its half of the fifth. Mike Kelly batted for Roberts and drew a lead off walk. With one out, Ratliff lined a pitch off the fence in left field for a double. Ratliff came on to score on Burke's second hit of the game.

After Larry Morris fanned, Spencer got his second hit and third RBI, scoring Ratliff. Spencer scored all the way from first base when the ball was mishandled on the infield and two errors occurred.

Joseph picked up his third hit with a rope to left field. Joseph stole second and came to third when the throw to second was errant. Joseph scored on Freddy Collins' base hit.

Prestonsburg was sitting pretty with a commanding 15-0 lead and Ratliff seemingly having his way on the mound. However, in the bottom of the fifth inning, the big right hander began to struggle since Fleming-Neon had scored 10 times before the third out was recorded.

Ratliff gave up a lead off hit to Bryan Broom, leading off the fifth for Neon. Jason Phillips walked and Broom came on to score the first run for Neon on a solid hit by Matt West, his second of the game.

Mike Maggard popped to Burke at short, and Dave Anderson walked to load the bases against Ratliff who was having problems throwing strikes and continued to struggle with his control. Brandon Hall reached Ratliff for a base hit with the sacks loaded. Phillips scored on the hit.

Ratliff fanned Rose; however,

Spencer dropped the ball, and Rose was safe at first base on the error. Keith Webb then hit a grounder off the knee of Joseph at third base for an RBI single. Ratliff got Broom on strikes for the second out but walked Phillips to load the bases again.

Two runs crossed the plate on John Short's base hit. West walked.

Prestonsburg coach Ashland Gearheart saw enough and brought in Jason Burke, who was scheduled to pitch the second game of the tournament for Prestonsburg. Maggard reached on an error, but Burke got Anderson to hit into a force-out to end the inning.

"I didn't want to bring Thomas out because I never really had anyone to bring in. I was waiting to use Jason (Burke) for the second game. But you have to do things like this at times," said Coach Gearheart.

Morris, who had struck out the previous two at bats, lined a base hit to center field in the sixth inning to score Ratliff, who had singled earlier, to make it a 16-10 game.

Fleming-Neon scored its final run in the bottom of the inning when Rose singled with one out, Webb struck out and Broom reached on an error on Ratliff at short.

Joseph collected his second double of the game, leading off Prestonsburg's seventh. Clint Shutz then tripled to right center scoring Joseph. Shutz then came home on an error at first base off the bat of Ortega, who scored on Ratliff's third double of the evening.

Prestonsburg had taken an early 2-0 first inning run with two out. Risner singled and came all the way around to score on an error in left field. Ratliff singled and went to second on an errant throw to first base in a pick off attempt. Burke singled Ratliff home for the 2-0 lead.

It was 3-0 after the second when Ortega's base hit scored Shutz, who had walked. A single run in the third made it 4-0 after Risner opened the inning with his second hit. Risner scored on a base hit by Morris.

Rose was the losing pitcher, going the first three-and-two-thirds innings for Fleming-Neon. Rose yielded 10 runs on 10 hits and walked four, while striking out three. Ratliff had nine strikeouts while issuing four base on balls.

Burke went the final two and a third innings for Prestonsburg, giving up one hit and striking out three. Burke did not walk anyone and gave up one run.

Prestonsburg stranded 11 runners, leaving the base loaded in the fourth and fifth innings. Fleming-Neon left five runners on base.

One of the defensive highlights of the game was in the third inning when, with two out and a runner on first, Anderson hit a grounder up the middle that Burke fielded, lying on his stomach, and tossed to second for the force on West.

Rain delayed

Allen's bat leads P'burg past Beaver South, 5-4

Heavy rains fell on the Little League ball field in the sixth inning at Inez and delayed the finishing of the opening game of the Little League All-Star tournament Monday between Beaver Creek South and Prestonsburg.

But the Prestonsburg All-Stars rode the hot bat of Bennett Allen to an exciting 5-4 win.

After a home run by T.T. Pack, leading off the sixth for Beaver South, lightning cracked like an explosion that cleared the field. The rains came down hard, and the field was covered in a matter of minutes, leaving doubt whether the game would be finished. However, the rains went away, an excellent ground crew had the field ready for action in an hour, and play resumed.

Pack's sixth inning blast closed Prestonsburg's lead to 5-4 with no one out. After play resumed Prestonsburg coach Rodney Osborne elected to come back with a different pitcher than Jason Osborne, who started the game.

Osborne was lifted because of being struck on the elbow by a pitch from Jason Bevins in the bottom of the fifth inning. During the rain delay, ice packs were applied to the elbow to prevent swelling. However, Coach Osborne changed pitchers.

Chris Moore came to the plate for Beaver South after the delay, hitting for David Turner. Moore struck out for the first out in the inning. Pete Dawson, Matt Marcum and Mike Stephens walked, loading the bases with the one out. Coach Osborne made another pitching change by bringing in Jeremy Osborne.

Beaver South had the top of the order up with J.P. Skeens at bat. Skeens had doubled earlier in the game. However, it was not to be this time as Skeens hit a soft liner to first base and Marcum was doubled off second for a double play giving the Prestonsburg team an exciting 5-4 win.

The game lived up to its billing as having the makings of an outstanding game. Bevins, the ace of the Beaver South team, just did not have the control that he normally has. The hard throwing right hander was consistently wild, uncorking several wild pitches, that led to his downfall. Four of Prestonsburg's five runs were the result of wild pitches.

Another problem for the South squad was they could not get their bats off their shoulders in the first two innings of the game. The Beaver squad were looking at strikes down the middle, not offering to swing the bats. Outside of Brandon Kinzer's first inning single, South could not mount any offense.

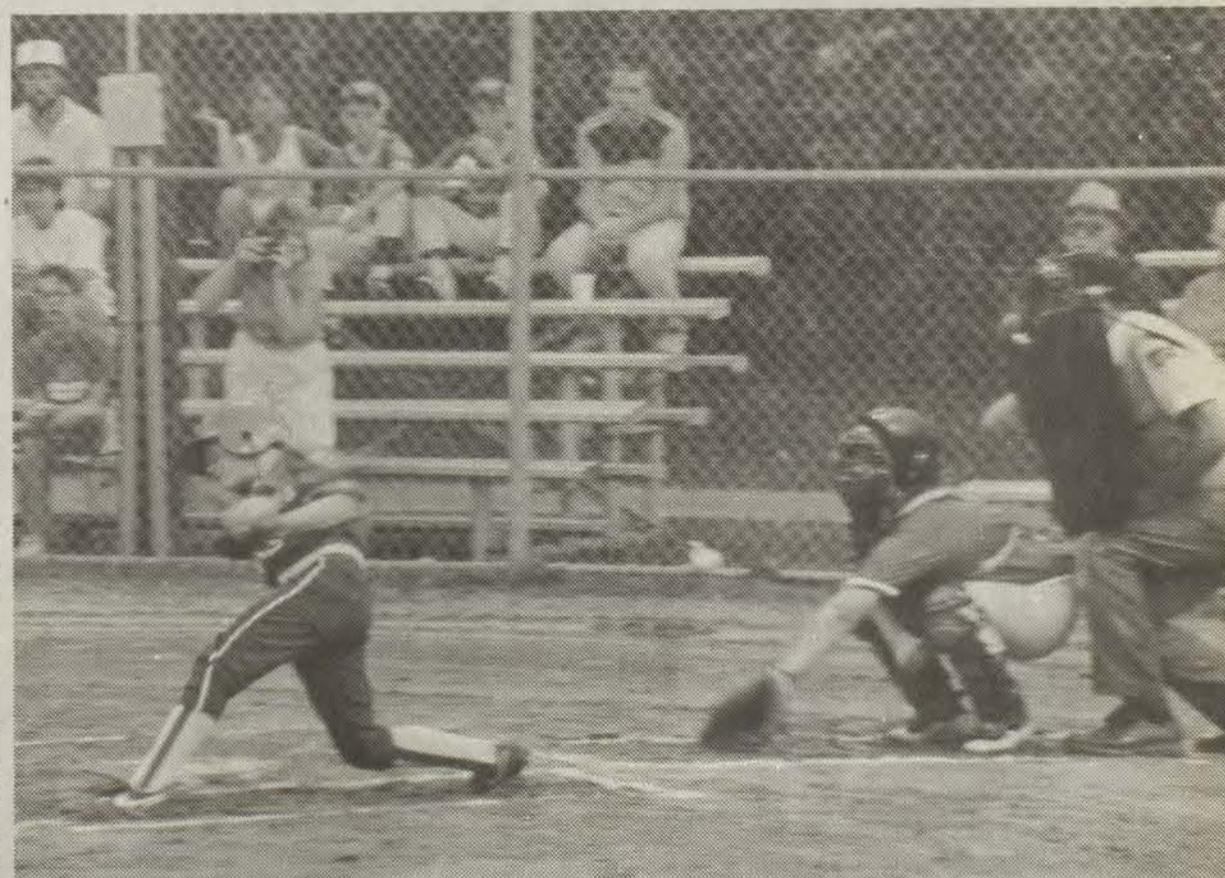

Prestonsburg took a 1-0 lead in the first inning without a base hit. Bevins walked Jeremy Osborne and William Marsillett, opening the inning. Wild-

Paintsville's five home runs send W"wright to 34-4 loss

Inez — For the first two innings the Wheelwright Little League All-Stars played the Paintsville All-Stars tough in All-Star action at Inez Monday evening. The two teams seemed on the shaky side as they took to the field.

Paintsville, traditionally a strong all-stars squad, pounded out five home runs enroute to a 34-4 blitz of the Wheelwright squad.

The game was close, 4-1, until the third inning when Paintsville sent 22 batters to the plate in scoring 17 runs on 15 hits. Paintsville hit four home runs in the third inning, collecting five for the game.

Craig Ratliff had two home runs in the inning. Josh McKenzie had home runs in the first and third innings. Ratliff and McKenzie's came back-to-back. McKenzie's blast was a three-run shot. Alex Ward blasted a shot over the fence in the third inning also.

Paintsville collected 15 hits in the third frame. Gary Roe had bases loaded, double driving in three runs.

Ratliff's second home run was an inside the park homer as the fleet-footed runner circled the bases. McKenzie, batting for the third time in the frame, tripled to drive in two other runs.

McKenzie homered in the first inning with a runner on base. Brandon McKenzie opened the game with a base hit and scored on a single by Tommy Trimble. After Alex Ward struck out, McKenzie parked a pitch over the left field fence for an opposite field home run. Ratliff tripled and was thrown out at the plate on a tremendous play by shortstop Travis Johnson.

Wheelwright had the bases loaded in the bottom of the first inning against pitcher Josh McKenzie, but was unable to push across any runs. With two out, Scottie Johnson and Travis Johnson walked. Rusty Hall was hit by a pitch. Scottie Johnson tried to score on a wild pitch and was tagged out at the plate to end the inning.

Trimble had an RBI single in the second to drive in Roe and give Paintsville a 3-0 lead.

Wheelwright scored a single run in the second when Tim Johnson reached on an error at first base. Allen Akers walked. Kevin Bryant and ness followed, and Osborne came home on a wild pitch. Bevins settled down somewhat and fired the ball past the next three batters, Bennett Allen, Rick Lemaster and Jason Osborne, picking up three strikeouts.

In the Beaver South second, once again the batters stood with their bats on their shoulders as Jason Osborne fanned the side.

Prestonsburg put two batters on base on two one-out walks. Bevins then fanned Jake Poston and Jeremy Osborne to end the threat.

Beaver South tied the score at 1-1 with a run in the top of the third inning. Michael Stephens walked, leading off the frame, and Skeens doubled to left center, scoring Stephens. Terrance Mullins filed to right moving Skeens to third on the sacrifice fly.

Kinzer walked putting runners on first and third with one out. Bevins was caught looking at the plate, and Pack bounced back to the mound to end the inning.

With one out in the Prestonsburg third, Allen doubled to right center and moved to third on a wild pitch. He later scored on another wild toss to the plate by Bevins, which is uncharacteristic of the South pitcher, for a 2-1 lead. Bevins got Lemaster and Jason Osborne both swinging to end the threat.

Beaver South went out quietly in the top of the fourth, and Prestonsburg extended its lead to 3-1 with a run on a lead off double by Chris Hicks. Hicks ended up scoring on a wild pitch from Bevins, the third such run in the game. The play at the plate was closed, causing fans to question the safe call.

Beaver South pushed across two runs in its half of the fifth inning to tie the game at 3-3. Tackett struck out leading off the inning. Skeens hit a liner to right center for a double and stole third.

Terrance Mullins then bounced to shortstop Allen. Allen elected to throw to home trying to nail Skeens, who scored from third base. Mullins went on to second and later scored on Kinzer's grounder to short. Bevins hit a shot to deep short. Allen went deep into the hole, back handed the ball and tossed the would-be base runner out.

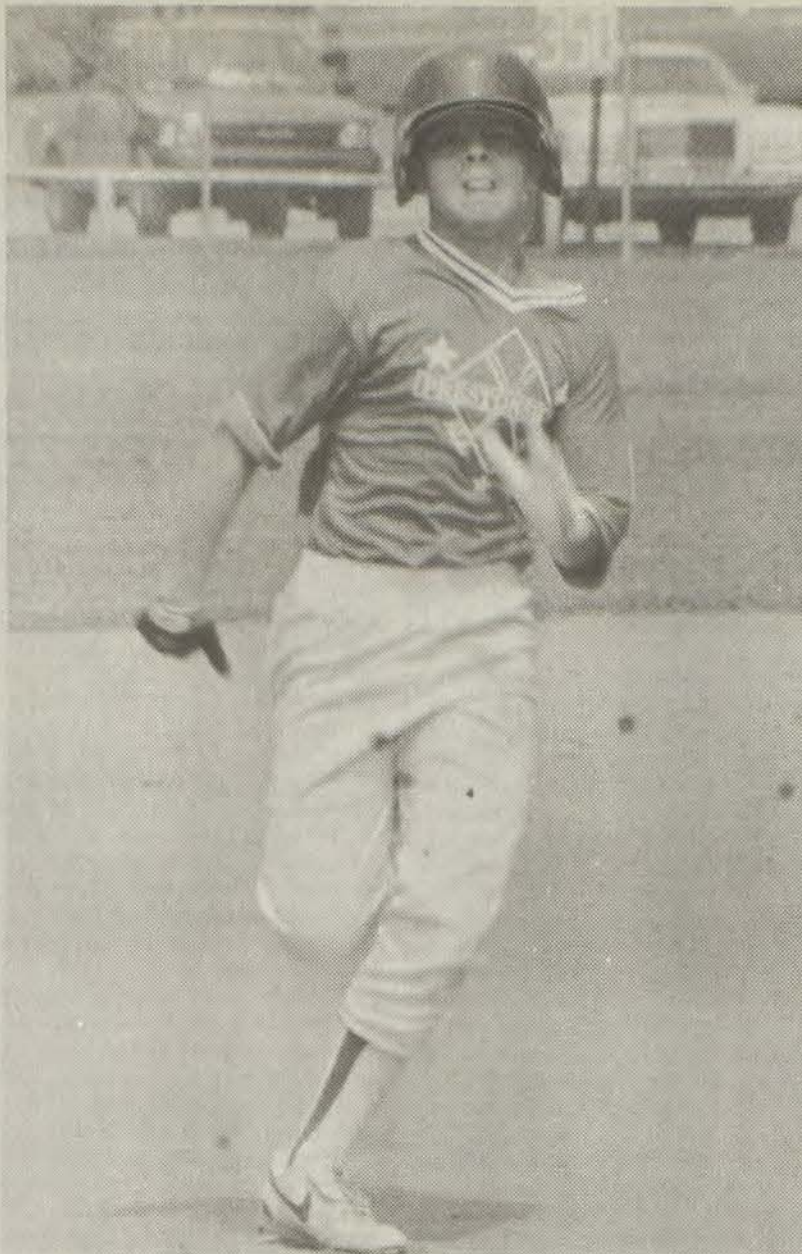

With the skies growing darker in the fifth inning, Marsillett tripled, leading off for Prestonsburg. When Bevins uncorked another wild pitch, Marsillett trotted home. Two pitches later, Allen took Bevins down town for a shot over the right center field fence to give Prestonsburg a 5-3 lead, setting up the tense sixth inning.

Jason Osborne absorbed the win for the Prestonsburg All-Stars. Osborne fanned 10 batters, getting the first six outs of the game by strikeouts. He issued three walks, yielding only four hits.

Bevins took the loss for Beaver South. Bevins struck out 12 batters, getting the first six in the first two innings. He walked six batters and hit one that did not help his cause. He threw 16 wild pitches in the game. Bevins gave up six hits, four coming in the fifth inning.

Both teams will be in action tonight (Wednesday). Beaver South will play Wheelwright at 5 p.m., and Prestonsburg will face Morgan County at 7:30 p.m.

Randy Adams struck out. McKenzie then walked Rusty Hall to load the bases and issued an RBI walk to Shawn Miller.

A three-run third made it 21-4 after three innings of play. Travis Johnson walked, and Hall was hit by a pitch. McKenzie then walked Tim Johnson to again load the bases. Akers forced a run home when he walked, and two runs came across on Wheelwright's first hit of the game, a single by Bryant.

Wheelwright was unable to mount any other offense, falling to Paintsville 34-4.

Wheelwright will face the Beaver

Creek South team today at 5 p.m. in the losers bracket. Paintsville will meet the winner of the Beaver Creek North and Harold-Allen-Prater game.

Bassin' with the pros

THIS BASS PRO IS READY FOR WORLD'S CHAMPIONSHIP

In a few weeks, the 20th edition of bass fishing's world championship, the BASS Masters Classic, will take place, and if a tournament favorite can be established, it has to be Missouri pro Guido Hibdon.

After all, Hibdon has been getting ready for the Classic ever since the location, the James River in Richmond, Va., was announced nearly a year ago.

"The James River has been good to me," smiles the Johnson Outboards Pro Staff member, who won the 1988 Classic on the James, then nearly won again last year in the very same place when the Classic was again held in Richmond.

"You could blindfold me now and I could still drive my boat to that one little slough where I've caught all those fish the last two years. Even though a lot of anglers know where it is now, I'll still go back to it again, as fast as I can get there."

Hibdon can be established as the favorite for another reason. He has just completed one of his most successful fishing seasons ever, winning on major tournament and earning the coveted BASS Angler of the Year title for overall consistency.

The Johnson pro placed second in the Angler of the Year standings last year.

"When I won the Classic in 1988," says the popular Missouri fisherman, "it gave me a tremendous boost in confidence. I really can't describe the feeling, except that now I feel like I can win every tournament I enter."

"I had been close a number of times over the years, but winning is a lot different than being close."

Hibdon's trademark in bass fishing has been to find tiny, secluded creeks, pockets and sloughs other fishermen overlook, then work those areas thoroughly during the tournament. He used this technique to win the 1988 Classic.

"I believe I could have done it again last year," he remembers, "except that I made a major mistake. I felt the little slough I'd fished would have received too much pressure during the year to have many bass left in it, so I didn't go back when the tournament started."

"The spot I did fish produced only three bass, and on the second day when it rained so hard, I felt the slough would become too muddy to fish so I didn't go back that day, either."

Finally, on the last day of compe-dition and well down in the standings, Hibdon returned to the shallow, heavily wooded creek pocket off the main river. When he left that afternoon, he had 20-pounds of fish in his livewell, the second heaviest stringer weighed in during the tournament.

"I caught a six-pound bass there around noon," he remembers with a gleam in his eye, "and there were two more fish just as big right behind it I didn't catch."

"I've been thinking about those bass for a full year now."

Pikeville wins Morgan County Tournament

'...the delivery'

Tim Johnson, Wheelwright All-Stars, delivers a pitch against Paintsville in Little League All-Star play. Johnson pitched good baseball until the fatal third inning when Paintsville scored 17 times to win the game 34-4. (Photo by Ed Taylor)

"We got off to a slow start (2-9)," said Estill Collins of his Pikeville American Legion baseball team. "But now we have got out of the gates and are playing good baseball."

The Pikeville American Legion team has won its last 12 games to run the overall record to 14-9. Six of those wins came over the past two weekends when Pikeville won the Morgan County American Legion tournament.

Pikeville had to score four runs in the bottom of the sixth inning to handle Knott County, 6-4, in the finals this past weekend. Pikeville was trailing Knott County, 4-2, when Stuart Robinson, who entered the game in the fifth inning for Chris Lawson, tripled to lead off the Pikeville sixth.

Robinson scored on James Taylor's base hit to center field. Taylor stole second, and Jamie Lawson of McDowell bounced out to short. Todd James reached on an error at third base, and both runners scored on John Clark's triple to give Pikeville a 5-4 lead.

Pikeville picked up an insurance run when Clark scored on a grounder to third by Chris Lawson.

Pikeville took a 1-0 lead early in the first inning without the benefit of a base hit. Clark walked to begin the game. With one out, Phillip Birchfield drew a base on balls, putting runners on first and second. Jeff Lovely, Magoffin County, moved both runners up with a sacrifice. Clark scored on a passed ball.

Knott County came back with two in the bottom of the second for a 2-1 advantage. With one out, James Ratliff singled, and Jerry Slone followed suit. On Slone's base hit, the Pikeville defense could not handle the ball, and Ratliff scored with Slone moving to third. Short walked and when Tony Barker hit to short, Slone came in to score.

Knott County plated two more runs in the third inning for a 4-1 lead. After Amburgey grounded out, Smith reached on an error at third base, but he was tossed out catcher to second on a steal attempt. Jacobs then doubled to left where the ball was misplayed, permitting Jacobs to score. Keith Smith then hit a two-bagger and scored on Ratliff's base hit.

The score remained 4-2 until the bottom of the fifth inning when Pikeville crossed home plate with a run. Todd James led off with a triple and scored on a base hit by John Clark. Chris Lawson singled with no out but was left stranded as Birchfield, Lovely and Watkins recorded outs.

James was the winning pitcher for Pikeville. James had eight strikeouts in the contest, and he walked three while giving up just five hits.

Amburgey was the loser for Knott County. Amburgey struck out just one batter and walked four. He scattered five hits.

In the first round game, Pikeville defeated East Carter, 16-1, behind the pitching of James. Chris Slone of Prestonsburg had a home run for the Pikeville team. James surrendered one run on four hits. The East Carter run came in the second inning on a base hit, error and walk.

Pikeville scored seven times in the second and five times in the fourth to take a four-inning "mercy rule" game. In the fourth inning Jeff Lovely cracked a two-run home run. Lovely also had a first inning single. Prestonsburg's Tim Watkins managed two hits in the game. Birchfield had a two-run single in the fourth also.

The next evening Pikeville defeated host team, Morgan County, 15-0, behind the three-hit pitching of Birchfield. John Clark went two for four in the game. Jeff Lovely had a three-hit outing, including a double. Tim Watkins was three for four, with two two-baggers.

Birchfield helped his own cause with a firstinning double that pushed across three runs. The right hander also had a second inning double. Stuart Robinson tripled in the third.

Pikeville spotted Russell Flatwood's four firstinning runs and came back to win 10-4 over the Boyd County opponents. James was the winning pitcher for Pikeville. Robinson was four for four in the game, including a double. Jamie Lawson had two hits in the game with two RBIs.

In the semifinals Pikeville got by Catlettsburg, 15-5, to advance to the finals. Taylor and Lovely had three hits apiece in the game.

7 back from last year

Beaver South brings experience

Perhaps one of the strongest teams in the Little League tournament at Inez this week is the Beaver Creek South All-Star team. The South squad has 13 12-year-olds out of 14 players on the team.

That brings experience agewise. Also the Beaver Creek South team has seven players returning who have had All-Star tournament experience from last year.

"When you have young players, say like 11-year-olds, they have a tendency to blame the other players when mistakes are made. Now our team is loaded with 12-year-olds and they should know better than to do that," explained Beaver South head coach Steve Jenkins, whose Martin Braves team captured the Beaver Creek Little League tournament last week.

"That will be our strongest point in the tournament this year, that we are experienced," he said. "We are going to be an excellent defensive team. We will be strong up the middle (meaning at short, second, centerfield and catcher)," Jenkins explained further. "Our pitching is real good. We can go six deep in the starting rotation if that were necessary. These boys know what they have to do to win."

The Beaver South squad will not only be a good defensive team, it will also "tattoo" the baseball. Several players bring to the South lineup the ability to hit the ball out of any Little League park around the area.

One such player is Jason Bevins, a hard-throwing right hander who has pitched two no-hitters this year. He has the power to drive the ball out of the park because of his size and heavy swing.

"Jason is just an overpowering pitcher," said Jenkins of his big right hander. "There is no ball park around this area that he can not take the ball out of. Jason has experience from last year. As a matter of fact, he won the only game we won last year. Jason is just a real ball player."

When you talk about consistency as a hitter you only have to look as far as David Turner, who may have set some Little League record this past regular season by collecting 13 consecutive hits. Turner is a good contact hitter.

"David is just a good all around player," said his coach. "He has speed and runs the bases very well. He's a good hitter and plays excellent defense."

The only 11-year-old on the South team is Chris Moore, who is "Mr. Versatile."

"Chris can play anywhere you put him," remarked Jenkins. "He can pitch and is a very good hitter. He plays good defense, and with Chris in the game you don't lose anything."

Every team seems to have that one person who always is a hard worker, and on the South team Danny Sizemore Jr. seems to fit the bill.

"Danny gives it all he's got," Jenkins said. "He works hard. He hustles. He is a decent hitter and plays good defense."

A crop of good catchers will not be in shortage for the Beaver South team. Matt Marcum has a good sense of the game and knows how to call a game behind the plate.

"Matt's a good catcher. He has a strong arm and is a heads up player," said the South mentor. "He has decent speed but is a real good hitter."

However, getting the starting nod for the South team behind the plate will be Charles Twiss. No doubt Twiss has the strongest throwing arm of any catcher in Little League in this area. He is an excellent receiver.

"Charles is the best catcher in our league," said Jenkins. "He can move the runners up with a bunt. He can hit the ball past the infielders. He hits with power and he can pitch."

Along with Bevins, another starter will be dependable T.T. Pack, who got a lot of innings under his belt for the McDowell Stars this past regular season and is a smart pitcher.

"T.T. will be one of our starters," said Jenkins. "He is a really good hitter and can hit with power. An excellent defensive player, he runs the bases well although he has just decent speed. Probably he will be our number five hitter behind Bevins."

Every team needs a good lead off man. According to Jenkins, he has just that person in J.P. Skeens.

"J.P. knows how to handle the bat.

He's an excellent lead off man and a good base runner."

A coach looks at the All-Stars.

In Little League a left handed batter is becoming a rare sight nowadays. However, the South squad had Ryan Crum, a southpaw, and he knows how to hit the ball.

"Ryan will be used in short relief. He can hit the ball well, runs the bases well and is an all around good player."

A good defensive outfield is a must in a Little League tournament such as we have seen recently. Mike Stephens has the ability and talent to fill such a role.

"Mike has as much speed as anyone you will see," said Jenkins. "He knows how to use it and uses it well. He is a good hitter. An excellent outfielder. Mike will make plays in the outfield no one else could make. He is just a solid ball player."

It is one thing to have the talent to play the game, but there must also be some "field sense" to go along with the talent. One player who possesses both is Terrance Mullins.

"Terrance will be a starter for us also. He will play shortstop when he is not pitching. He is a good hitter and has excellent speed. Terrance has a lot of sense when he gets on base. He knows how to run the bases," Jenkins said.

The rules are simple: Take a snapshot of you prominently displaying The Floyd County Times at one of those exotic sights you visit (somewhere outside Floyd County). Send or bring the picture to the Floyd County Times office, 27 Central Ave., Prestonsburg 41653. Include an explanation of when and where the photo was taken and any other interesting information you'd like to share. We'll publish the photos we receive in upcoming issues of The Times.

Prizes will be awarded to the most unusual and/or interesting entries. Grand prize will be a solid marble Monument world time clock. The clock lets you tell time anywhere in the world. Five other prizes will also be awarded.

So go ahead and send in your entries!

The Travel with The Times contest will continue through this year, with the deadline of Dec. 31, 1990. Photos become the property of The Times, and the judges' decision is final.

Now that's a good catch. Global Goble and the Floyd County Times.

Global Goble reaches Lake Erie.

Be like the great Goble genius. Take your Floyd County Times with you—& you could win prizes.

Beaver South

The South team will have a steady performer at first base this time around. Brandon Kinzer will hold down the right hand corner of the infield for the South team.

"Brandon can hit the ball. He makes good contact and hits with power," said Jenkins. "He is a good defensive first baseman. He runs the bases well also."

Cecil Maggard Jr. is a player who is valuable to any team. Maggard can play anywhere you put him.

"He gives 100 percent every time out," Jenkins said. "A real good hitter and an excellent glove man, he really hustles when he is on the field."

Another short reliever for the South team will be dependable Pete Dawson.

"Pete's is also a catcher and a good one. He will also pitch some for us. He is a good defensive man and a good hitter."

Every team will have alternates on each squad. An alternate is there in case some boy quits the team or is injured and cannot play. For the South team, Shane Hall fills that position.

"Shane is a 110 percent player," said Jenkins of his alternate. "He is a good hitter, good defensive player and possesses good speed."

Assisting Coach Jenkins this year is McDowell Star coach Terry Mullins, who adds a lot of knowledge to the team. Mullins is the type of coach who likes to see the players give their best and be alert in playing the game.

According to Jenkins, this year's team can be as good as the players want to be. They are talented enough and capable of winning an All-Star tournament.

"Traditionally Paintsville is always a tough team and always brings a good team into the tournament," the mentor of the South squad commented. "Morgan County is also always a good team. Martin County fields a great team. Prestonsburg is going to be tough."

Little League fans around the area will be treated to some great baseball this week at the Inez field. For those in Floyd County, come on out and support all county teams.

Golf tourney to fund scholarship program

The Third Annual Blackburn Memorial Golf Tournament in Pikeville promises to provide a day of fun and top competition, as well as raisemoney for the Pikeville College scholarship program.

The handicap system tournament is scheduled for Aug. 20 at Green Meadows Country Club in Pikeville and will be open to the first 112 golfers who register.

Professional golfers Mike and Woody Blackburn started the tournament in 1988 as a means of honoring their parents, Clyde and Kathryn Blackburn. Mr. Blackburn was an avid golfer and alumnus of Pikeville College. He and his wife were teachers in Betsy Layne.

A $100 tax-deductible donation is suggested for each player, payable to Pikeville College. For more information, contact the Pikeville College office of External Affairs at 432-9326.

Dual Sport Athletes

by Hank Aaron

In high school and college, it's normal for kids to participate in more than one sport, and that's fine.

But when it comes to playing more than one pro sport, I personally don't like it. I think one of the sports has to suffer.

Of course, Bo Jackson is probably the best known professional athlete today who plays two sports, playing for the Kansas City Royals and the Los Angeles Raiders. Bo is a very gifted athlete, and I think Deon Sanders is probably going to be in the same category. The New York Yankees and the Atlanta Falcons are lucky to have Sanders.

Deon may not hit as many home runs as Bo, but with his speed and some of the other things that he can do, I think he will contribute a lot to the major league club.

On the other hand, I don't know how these guys can really put in enough effort in trying to make themselves better athletes — better football players, better baseball players — without concentrating on one sport. Bo Jackson has been able to do it for the last two years, but I think that the older he gets, the more he's probably going to concentrate on one or the other.

Even in playing one pro sport, there's a danger that an athlete will wear himself out. But with two sports, you never give your body a chance to rest during the year. You go from one sport to the other, and each requires a different finesse. In football, you can afford to have huge thighs. In baseball, you can't play built that way. Your need to be a little more streamlined, like Deon Sanders, in order to be a great ball player.

A few athletes in the past have managed two sports. Ron Reed, for instance, played basketball for the Detroit Pistons one season and also pitched for the Atlanta Braves. Gene Connelly of the Milwaukee Braves and Philadelphia Phillies also played in the NBA. There were a few of them through the years, but I still think you have to concentrate on one sport or the other.

Reed, for instance, didn't have a Hall of Fame career, but he certainly had a better career in baseball than he would have had in basketball. He was a dependable major league pitcher for many years.

All sports require different areas of concentration. It's hard to be tops in more than one. And I'm not sure it's fair to the teams you play for. A pro athlete is paid to give his all to his team. I just don't see how that's possible, when one sport is always going to take away something from the other, no matter what.

How advertisers play us for dummies

By Joe Muench
 Scripps Howard News Service
 If the Michael Jordans of this world did not endorse basketball sneakers, would a pair cost only $20 again? Wouldn't that be nice — a world where hype doesn't figure into the cost of a product.

But it's our fault. We allow advertisers to play us for dummies, so they do. We're the people who, studies show, choose our favorite soft drink on the basis of which athlete drinks it. And we'll switch when they switch. Take tennis heroine Chris Evert. Now she likes Diet Coke over Pepsi. It used to be she hawked Lipton Tea, so we drank Lipton tea.

How dumb are we? Well, advertisers think we're real dumb.

Example: How many adults know the difference between one brand of sneaker and another? None do. So we ask our kids. And they say Michael Jordan jumps highest. He's the latest fad, and that's why we pay between $40 and $100 for a pair of his sneakers, because Michael Jordan leaps highest. "I wanna leap high, Mommy."

But they neglect to tell us the commercial is a fake. Really, Michael jumps off the top of a backboard. Then they show us the film clip in reverse slow motion.

It's too bad the "Hey Vern" guy doesn't sell sneakers, then they'd be $20 again. The Hey Vern guy can't jump, and neither can our kids, so $20 ought to be sufficient for a lousy pair of play shoes.

We also let football players sell us our underwear. Steve Largent, the great Seattle Seahawk pass receiver, walks around our TV screen in his white cotton underwear. He and his son roll around and play catch in their white, cotton underwear.

So we buy Steve's brand over the undies with the little fruits.

Why don't advertisers appeal to real America? Why not have a sweaty lineman, sitting on his living room couch, endorse underwear. "It ain't Hanes until Bubba says it's Hanes."

In some instances they fool the kids into fooling the parents. An example is the Jim Rice-model baseball glove. For 15 years, Jim Rice was one of the worst outfielders in the majors. They then had the audacity of putting his name on a fielder's glove.

Kids know Rice as a slugger. So they want a Jim Rice glove. Logical? It is to them. They want to wear the glove of a home-run hitter more than the glove of a hustling fielder like a Len Dykstra.

Advertisers know all this. They know how we think. So pretty soon there'll be a Bo Jackson basketball.

And what do you get for your glove money these days? Figure paying $40 to $100-plus for a real glove and about $24 for an almost-leather glove.

But, be careful. Read the labels, which say things like "real-leather webbing" or "nearly all leather" or "I can't believe it's not leather."

I learned about the "almost-leather" tag when I put some oil on my son's $24 Ron Guidry glove, and it puddled-up in the pocket.

Rosenberg's Rosy Roundball Ruminations and Ratings

by Mike Rosenberg
Editorial Assistant

A couple of weeks ago, my mind, as well as every other basketball junkie's, was on the three-ring circus known as the NBA draft. The latest crop of playground-giants-turned-millionaires had their coming out, and some teams did much better than others.

A consensus exists that this was a good draft, but not a great one. There were no franchise players, no Jordans or Barkleys, who could absolutely turn a team around. However, many of the players chosen will be able to step right in and contribute to their new teams. So, without further ado, I'll get right into my grading of the draft, listing player, size and position, college and pick number.

ATLANTA HAWKS
Rumeal Robinson, 6-2 G, Michigan (10); Trevor Wilson, 6-7 F, UCLA (36). Grade D+. The Hawks, desperately in need of some outside shooting to free Dominique, draft Robinson, a playmaker, and Wilson, a defensive specialist. The major knock on both these players is the lack of an outside jumper. These players will shore up a poor Atlanta defense, but that's about it.

BOSTON CELTICS
Dee Brown, 6-1 G, Jacksonville (19). Grade C+. The Celtics needed a young, quick guard to bring some life to the offense. Brown can run the point and score, but hasn't shown that he can take the punishment that will be dealt out in the NBA.

CHARLOTTE HORNETS
Kendall Gill, 6-5 G, Illinois (5); Steve Scheffler, 6-9 F, Purdue. Grade B-/C+. Gill, one of the best finishers in the NCAA, must improve other facets of his game to be effective. The talent is there. Scheffler, a very intense ballplayer, must put on some beef to be effective.

CHICAGO BULLS
Toni Kukoc, 6-9 F, Jugoplastika, Yugoslavia (29). Grade B. If the Bulls can coax Kukoc to leave his homeland, then the future is bright. A very intelligent and experienced player, Kukoc can create shot opportunities, making him an excellent backup to Scottie Pippen.

CLEVELAND CAVALIERS
Milos Babic, 7-0 C, Tennessee Tech (50, from Phoenix). Grade C+. The Cavs needed a big man and Babic, although a project, showed signs of life at Tennessee Tech. This pick will take a couple of years to pay any dividends.

DALLAS MAVERICKS
Phil Henderson, 6-4 G, Duke (49). Grade B-. A steal. Henderson is a solid performer with good quickness and a smooth jumper. His main flaw is a very slim build, but he has been able to get his shots off in traffic. Besides, he did dunk on Alonzo Mourning.

DENVER NUGGETS
Chris Jackson, 6-1 G, LSU (3); Marcus Liberty, 6-8 F, Illinois (42). Grade B+. Two early entries. If there ever was an NBA team for Chris Jackson, it's Denver. The highest scoring team in the league gets a pure scorer to replace Fat Lever. Liberty, a good athlete, can contribute if he maintains the proper attitude.

DETROIT PISTONS
Lance Blanks, 6-4 G, Texas (26). Grade B/B-. Probably a good choice for the Pistons. Excellent shooter but questionable defender. A good backup for Joe Dumars.

GOLDEN STATE WARRIORS
Tyrone Hill, 6-10 F, Xavier (11); Les Jepsen, 7-0 C, Iowa (28); Kevin Pritchard, 6-3 G, Kansas (34); Steve Bardo, 6-5 G, Illinois. Grade B+. Golden State got the banger that they needed in Hill. Jepsen is a project, Pritchard is solid but unspectacular and Bardo is a real question mark.

HOUSTON ROCKETS
Dave Jamerson, 6-4 G, Ohio U. (15); Carl Herrera, 6-9 F, Houston (30, both players from Miami). Grade B. Jamerson, a sleeper, could be a surprise. A great jump shooter with nearly unlimited range. Herrera is a hometown favorite with a lot of raw talent.

INDIANA PACERS
Antonio Davis, 6-10 F, UTEP (45); Kenny Williams, 6-9 F, Elizabeth City (NC) State (46). Grade C. The Pacers went for bulk and came up with Davis, a rough player with some skills, and Williams, an ex-Carolina recruit who reminds some people of Shawn Kemp.

LA CLIPPERS
Bo Kimble, 6-5 G, Loyola Marymount (8); Loy Vaught, 6-9 F, Michigan (13). Grade B. Bo knows basketball, but he needs to improve on his revolving door defense. Vaught will probably be lost on a team already heavy with power forwards.

LA LAKERS
Elden Campbell, 6-11 F, Clemson (27); Tony Smith, 6-3 G, Marquette (51). Grade B-. Campbell needs to put on a few pounds and get some concentration to be effective. Smith is a quick guard who can play both the 1 and 2 slot.

MIAMI HEAT
Willie Burton, 6-6 F, Minnesota (9); Alec Kessler, 6-11 F, Georgia (12, from Houston); Bimbo Coles, 6-2 G, Va. Tech (40, from Sacramento for Rocky Sparrow). Grade A-. The Heat got a point guard and two forwards with good talent to go with their young players. This team could be much improved.

MILWAUKEE BUCKS
Terry Mills, 6-10 F, Michigan (16); Steve Henson, 6-0 G, Kansas State (44). Grade B+. Mills can only help the Bucks with his inside strength and soft jumper. Henson is a gutsy player who could provide inspiration.

NEW JERSEY NETS
Derrick Coleman, 6-10 F, Syracuse (1); Tate George, 6-5 G, Connecticut (22); Jud Beuchler, 6-7 F, Arizona (38, from Seattle). Grade A. Who can say enough about Coleman? Simply the best this year. George is a solid point guard who had an amazing senior year after two years of obscurity, and Beuchler is a contributor.

NEW YORK KNICKS
Jerrod Mustaf, 6-10 F, Maryland (17). Grade B. Mustaf, an early entry, can play either forward position. Handles the ball well for a big man and has a consistent jumper up to 17 feet. Needs weight.

ORLANDO MAGIC
Dennis Scott, 6-8 F, Georgia Tech (4). Grade A-. Offense. Offense. Scott can fill it up from anywhere on the court, can play post and a solid defender. Probably the rookie of the year.

PHILADELPHIA 76ERS
Brian Oliver, 6-4 G, Ga. Tech (32); Derek Strong, 6-8 F, Xavier (47). Grade B+. For having such low picks, the 76ers did an excellent job. Oliver is a heady player with no glaring weaknesses, and Strong provides backup to a front line that had nobody coming off the bench.

PHOENIX SUNS
Jayson Williams, 6-10 F, St. Johns (21); Negele Knight, 6-2 G, Dayton (31); Cedric Ceballos, 6-7 F, Cal-State Fullerton (48); Stefano Rusconi, 6-10 C, Ranger Varese, Italy (52, from Cleveland). Grade B. Williams is strong around the basket, and so is Ceballos. Knight is a quick guard who could surprise. Rusconi played against Danny Ferry in Italy and impressed scouts. None of these players should make much of an impact.

PORTLAND TRAILBLAZERS
Alaa Abdelnaby, 6-10 F, Duke (25). Grade B. My personal bias aside, Abdelnaby turned himself into a solid low-post threat. Needs to work on his rebounding. Has strength to be a solid backup to Kevin Duckworth.

SACRAMENTO KINGS
Lionel Simmons, 6-8 F, LaSalle (7); Travis Mays, 6-2 G, Texas (14); Duane Causwell, 7-0 C, Temple (18); Anthony Bonner, 6-8 F, St. Louis (23). Grade A+. Sacramento needed help in all departments and got it. The L-Train can flat out score, and so can Mays. Causwell, although he flunked out of school, has worked hard and can be a force. Bonner led the NCAA in rebounding this year.

SAN ANTONIO SPURS
Dwayne Schintzius, 7-2 C, Florida (24); Tony Massenburg, 6-9 F, Maryland (43); Sean Higgins, 6-9 F, Michigan (54). Grade B+(C+). The grade all depends on Schintzius. If he can control his attitude and play as a backup to David Robinson, the the Spurs have a steal. If not, well...anyway, Massenburg is a banger with a soft 15-footer, and Higgins will be an excellent scorer if he can make the transition.

SEATTLE SUPERSONICS
Gary Payton, 6-4 G, Oregon State (2); Abdul Shamsid-Deen, 6-11 C, Providence (53). Grade B+. The Sonics got the point guard they so desperately needed in Payton, the best point guard in the draft. Shamsid-Deen is a hard worker without much real skill.

UTAH JAZZ
Walter Palmer, 7-1 C, Dartmouth (33). Grade B-. Palmer, the Ivy League Player of the Year, has the tools to dominate, but is a bit of a gamble since he hasn't played against a lot of quality opposition.

WASHINGTON BULLETS
Greg Foster, 6-11 C, UTEP (35); A.J. English, 6-3 G, Va. Union (37). Grade B. Foster can bang with the best, although his scoring needs work. English was the Division II player of the year and is a steal for a player of his offensive skill. The Bullets will need English to step up and replace Jeff Malone.

Success 'looms' for weaver

Sue Sanders is Blue River Handweaving.

The weaver

Sue Sanders of Blue River turns out handcrafted rugs and placemats on loom in her home. As Blue River Handweaving, she is one of about a dozen new craftspersons invited to participate in Berea Craft Festival. (Photo by Pam Shingler)

When one of the most prestigious crafts festivals in the region cranks up Friday, a Floyd County woman will be among the 110 craftspeople displaying their handiwork.

Sue Sanders, who gave up nursing last winter to take up her long-time hobby full-time, will set up shop at the Berea Craft Festival as Blue River Handweavings, her business name.

Now in its ninth year, the festival is expected to attract some 10,000 craft enthusiasts and onlookers. Sanders is one of only about a dozen newcomers whose work was judged good enough to be a part of this year's festival.

Because she's so new to weaving as a business, Sanders has not tried to advertise or sell her work. "I haven't been seeking out markets," the Blue River resident said. "I need a lot of inventory for this show so that's what I've been concentrating on."

She plans to take between 40 and 50 woven rugs to the Berea festival, along with several sets of placemats. Many of the placemats will make the trip unfinished. She will complete the tying of the fringe as part of the demonstration crafts entrants are expected to do as festival-goers pass through.

"Obviously can't take my loom," she said, pointing to the huge, wooden piece of equipment that takes up about a third of her living room.

The weaver is proud to point out that she was given the loom when she graduated from Berea College. Although a nursing major, the petite blond worked with the college's Fireside Weavers as her work/study assignment.

She explained that each year an endowment, funded by a former staff member, pays for a loom for an outstanding weaver at the college, and she won.

Because of her interest in the craft, she augmented her nursing courses at Berea with art classes in weaving.

The craftswoman did use her nursing degree for a time, first at a Richmond hospital and then with Hospice of Big Sandy in Floyd and Johnson counties.

"I always knew in the back of my mind that I would do weaving on a full-time basis," she said. In January, she took the plunge and obviously feels she made the right decision. Being chosen to exhibit at the Berea festival is a validation of her talent.

"It's a nice situation, being at home," Sanders said. "Sometimes I don't go out of the holler for several days."

She does admit that working at home leaves her open for interruptions she wouldn't have with an outside job, such as talking with neighbors or seeing things that need to be done around the house.

Another distraction is the five sheep she is raising, with the thought of one day learning to spin wool and incorporating homespun wool into her weaving. But that's in the future. "Right now, I enjoy the animals just for the sake of having them."

Sanders' work represents a cross between the functional and the artistic. Her rugs, some plain weave and others with double binding, are designed to be used as floor coverings. But her use of color and pattern makes them works of art.

"I like to work with colors," she said, matter-of-factly. Two and three inch bolts of material are stacked to the ceiling on a shelf next to the loom. Most are soft pastels from which she weaves strong patterns.

Sanders buys the cloth, mostly end pieces of sheeting from southern manufacturers, at a store in Maysville.

The craftswoman takes special care with the fringe on her rugs and placemats. "I spend a fair amount of time on fringing so it doesn't get tangled in the wash," she said.

For pricing, she keeps track of how much time she spends on each piece and figures a per-square-foot cost. A 3'x5' rug of solid colors takes an estimated three hours, she said, while a multi-pattern rug adds another three hours minimum at the loom.

Sanders is looking to sell a good bit of her work during the three-day festival, July 13-15, at Indian Fort Outdoor Theater near Berea. Other craftspeople in such disciplines as pottery, carving, quilting, wood-working and jewelry making will come from 20 states for the show.

Representatives from David Crafts comprise the only other local exhibitors.

Along with the crafts displays and demonstrations, a variety of musicians, dancers and regional foods will be featured at the festival.

Festival hours are 10 a.m.-6 p.m., Friday through Sunday, and admission is $3 for adults, with children 11 and under admitted free. For more information on the festival, call the Berea Tourism Commission at 986-2540.

88 years young

SIBLING RIVALRY

The ol' Green Monster has made his rounds into more households than Mr. Clean, usually making his best appearances through children and their siblings. After awhile his appearance can be quite disturbing and can cause great pain and aggravation.

Dealing with this beast and trying to overcome his powers also gets hectic. But after some advice from a friend, I began to practice her experiences as a child with my own.

With three years between mine and both of them girls, I'm often told the jealousy bug must really bite at my house. And I must admit it flies around more times than more common bugs. So, like my friend's parents, I began to put into action my remedy for their arguing, smacking one another up side the head, screaming at one another and just plain fighting.

If and when any of these things occur, I make them stop immediately, hug and tell one another "I love you." To be honest I thought my oldest was gonna toss her chocolate chip cookies.

"How gross, Mom," she always says. For my youngest, she's a hugger anyway, so it's no big deal. The I love you's are what seem to be the hardest. So when they sort of mumble it, I play the role of Sergeant Carter and scream "I CAN'T HEAR YOU!" This really drives them nuts.

By the time all this mushy stuff is over with, they can continue to play for at least a couple of hours before we have to repeat the entire incident yet once more.

But I have to admit it does seem to work a whole lot better than the threats of no TV, no going swimming, no new Reboks or whatever their wants may be.

If only some adults could use such a means of fighting off this green thing, maybe we could all live a happier life. Keeping up with the Joneses, although a cliché, is nothing

To celebrate 50th

Howard and Olga Rice Allen will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary on July 14 from 2-6 p.m. Friends and relatives are invited, but gifts are to be omitted.

MU to present play

Marshall University Theatre will present the play "Night, Mother" July 19-21 at 8 p.m. at Old Main Theatre on the campus in Huntington.

The play was written by Kentuckian Marsha Norman, who won the 1983 Pulitzer Prize for Drama.

but having a bite from this nasty bug. Whether jealousy is hereditary or not I'm not sure. I asked my mother if she ever had any problem with my brother and me. She said never, but there are nine years between us, and when he was born I thought I had a real, live baby doll. And I did. Some say it's got to do with a person's personality, and some say it's how persons perceive themselves and others.

I say jealousy, alias the Green Monster, is the most ugly, cruel, spiteful and aggravating varmint around. So spread the smiles, and spray him with love and maybe, just maybe, he'll go away.

Because one thing is for sure, there's nothing better than the relationship between siblings when it's your brother who's your best friend. Till next week.

192nd Day, 173 to go

National Cheer Up the Lonely Day
Bowler's Day: Born on this day in Bath, England, in 1754, Thomas Bowdler undertook cleansing the works of Shakespeare by removing all words and expressions he considered to be indecent or impious. He also "purified" Edward Gibbon's History of the Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire and selections from the Old Testament. His censorship was so offensive that his name became synonymous with self-righteous expurgation and the word bowdlerize became a part of the English language. He died in 1845.

Day of the Five Billion Anniversary: On this day in 1987 in Yagreb, Yugoslavia, an eight-pound baby boy was proclaimed the five billionth inhabitant of Earth.

Notable Births: Sixth President John Quincy Adams, 1767-1848; singer Debbie Harry, 45; actor Tab Hunter, 59; toothless boxer Leon Spinks, 37.

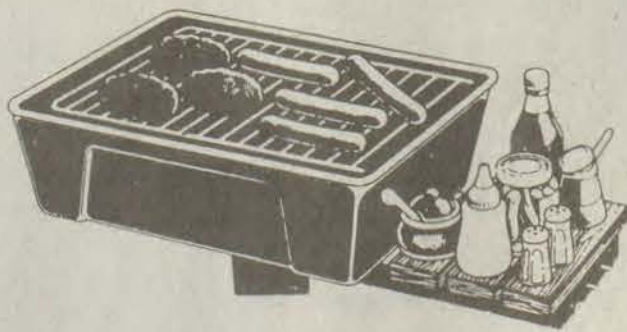

Thursday, July 12

193rd day, 174 to go

Just for Laughs Festival: July 12-22, Montreal, Quebec. International festival devoted to humor and fantasy.

Notable Births: Philosopher Henry David Thoreau (Walden), 1817-1862; English pottery designer Josiah Wedgwood, 1730-95; comedian Milton Berle (Milton Berlinger), 82; pianist Van Cliburn, 56; comedian Bill Cosby, 52; singer Christine McVie, 47; fitness guru Richard Simmons, 42; artist Andrew Wyeth, 73.

When was the last time you tried a new recipe for fish? If it's been a while, you're not alone. Many American cooks find fish and other seafood somewhat of a mystery, and prefer to stick to "tried and true" recipes.

Unfortunately, that often means adding a lot of fat to an otherwise lowfat food — by frying or sauteeing and serving with sauces made with cream, butter or mayonnaise. Since most health organizations these days, including the American Institute for Cancer Research, recommend reducing fat in your diet, keeping fish low in fat is a great idea for nutritious eating.

Instead of frying or sauteeing, consider baking, grilling, broiling, steaming or poaching your fish. Whichever method you use, fish-cooking experts have found a single rule applies: cook the fish 10 minutes for each inch of thickness at the fish's thickest point. This foolproof rule applies to all types of fish except shellfish and crustaceans.

And don't forget your microwave. Most fish will cook on high in a microwave at about 3 minutes per pound. But since the power of microwave ovens vary so much, check your microwave recipe book for exact times. Make sure to let the microwaved fish sit for 5 to 10 minutes to allow for complete heating.

While tartar sauce, herb butters and hollandaise sauce are among the standards for serving with fish, all contribute a heavy dose of added fat. Look instead for lowfat recipes for sauces made with fish stock or bouillon, lemon juice or vinaigrette.

Another way to add pizzazz to fish is by marinating it before cooking. Fish readily soak up the flavors of marinades made with soy sauce, yogurt, orange, lemon or lime juice, or vinaigrette. Practically any seasoning you like will go well with fish; herbs like basil, bay leaf, chervil, cilantro, dill, fennel, mint, oregano, rosemary, sorrel, tarragon or thyme; spices such as cayenne, coriander, cumin or ginger; vegetables including onions, garlic, cucumber or tomatoes; and even citrus fruits.

HEARTY HALIBUT

2 lbs halibut or other fish steaks
2/3 cup thinly sliced onion
1-1/2 cup sliced fresh mushrooms
1/3 cup chopped tomato
1/4 cup chopped green pepper

1/4 cup chopped parsley
3 Tbsps chopped pimento
1/2 cup dry white wine
2 Tbsp lemon juice
1/4 tsp dill weed
Freshly ground black pepper

Lemon wedges

Arrange onion slices in the bottom of a greased baking dish and place fish on top. Combine remaining vegetables and spread over fish. combine wine, lemon juice and seasonings and pour over all. Cover and bake at 350 degrees for 25-30 minutes, or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Serve with lemon wedges.

This recipe yields 8 servings with 127 calories and 1.5 grams of fat each.

POACHED FISH PEKING

2 Tbsps low-sodium soy sauce
6 Tbsps dry sherry or beef broth (low-sodium)
1 tsp sugar
1-1/2 Tbsp peanut or vegetable oil
3 cloves garlic, finely minced
2 scallions, finely minced
1/2 tsp ground ginger
1 lb. fish fillets, fresh or frozen and thawed
2 cups chopped frozen or fresh vegetables (broccoli, carrots, cauliflower, green pepper or almost any combination)

Combine soy sauce, sherry or beef broth and sugar in a small bowl. Mix well. Heat a wok or large skillet over high heat, add the oil and swirl to cover the bottom and sides. When the oil is hot, add the garlic, scallions and ginger.

Stir over high heat for about 30 seconds. Add the soy sauce mixture and fish fillets. Reduce the heat to low and cover. Simmer gently for 10 to 12 minutes, turning the fish once.

Place the chopped vegetables on top of the fish and continue cooking, covered, for another 6 to 8 minutes, or until the vegetables are crisp tender and the fish is thoroughly cooked, but not overdone.

This will produce 4 servings, each with 180 to 205 calories and 5 to 6 grams of fat.

QUICK FOILED FISH

1 lb frozen cod, sole or haddock
Juice of 1/2 lemon
Salt, paprika
3 Tbsps butter or margarine, divided
2 Tbsps flour
1/4 cup milk
1 cup shredded Swiss or fontina cheese
2 Tbsps chopped fresh parsley
1 tsp fresh grated lemon peel

Cooked spinach noodles

Grated Parmesan cheese, optional
With a serrated knife, using a sawing motion, cut frozen fish into 4 serving-size pieces. Place on a large piece of heavy foil. Sprinkle fish with lemon juice, salt and paprika. Dot with 1 Tbsp butter. Wrap securely in foil and place on a baking sheet. Bake at 450 degrees for 30 minutes or so, until fish flakes easily with a fork. Reserve fish liquid in foil.

Arrange fish on cooked noodles; keep warm. In a saucepan, melt remaining 2 Tbsps butter. Remove from heat; stir in flour. Gradually add fish liquid and milk. Cook over medium heat, stirring until thickened.

Add Swiss cheese, parsley and lemon peel, stirring until cheese melts. Serve over fish and noodles. Sprinkle lightly with grated Parmesan cheese.

Paula McHargue of Richmond will represent Kentucky in the National Beef Cook-Off in Seattle, Wash., in September. Her winning recipe in the Kentucky contest is printed here. For other winning recipes, send a self-addressed, stamped business size envelope to Kentucky Beef Cattle Association, 733 Red Mile Rd., Lexington 40504.

SKILLET FLANK STEAK AND SPINACH

1-1/2 lbs. beef flank steak
2 tsp. cornstarch
1 Tbsp. soy sauce
1 Tbsp. white wine vinegar
2 tsp. sugar
1 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp fresh ground black pepper
1/4 cup peanut oil
6 medium green onions, chopped
1 medium lemon, cut into 10 very thin slices, then cut in fine slivers
1 bunch fresh spinach (about 10 oz.) washed, drained and chopped medium
Garnish with Lemon Carrotwheel Twists

Slice steak diagonally across grain into 2 x 1/4-inch strips. Toss meat with cornstarch, soy sauce, vinegar, sugar, salt and pepper. Cover and marinate in refrigerator for 2 hours. Heat peanut oil in large heavy skillet over medium heat. Add beef and stir fry just until browned, about 5 minutes. Remove beef from skillet, set aside. To skillet, add onions and lemon; stir fry until onion is tender crisp; add spinach, cook; turning until spinach begins to wilt. Return steak to skillet. Toss mixture until steak is heated. 4-6 servings.

MIRIAM REBEKAHS HOLD MEETING

The regular meeting of Miriam Rebekah Lodge #31 was held July 3 with the Noble Grand Beverly Hackworth presiding.

Those on the sick-list were recorded and cards to be mailed to them were signed.

Reports were given by Beverly Hackworth and Myrtle Allen on the visit made by some of the members on July 1 to the Mountain Manor Nursing Home, where they enjoyed visiting and singing with the patients.

Virginia S. Goble, who represented Miriam Lodge at the Literacy luncheon at the Holiday Inn on Thursday, June 28, reported on that event.

The noble grand stated that the date of Aug. 7 had been set for the next initiation at this lodge.

Goble made a brief talk regarding the Floyd County Bicentennial Book committee. She urged all members to write the history of their families and the officers to write the history of this organization. This history is to be preserved for future generations.

Present for this meeting were Hackworth, Paulena Owens, Donna Thomas, Goble, Myrtle Allen and Mabel Jean LeMaster.

The next regular meeting will be Tuesday, July 17 at 7 p.m. at the IOOF Hall.

HONEY MAY BID FAREWELL

Honey May, who is moving this week from Prestonsburg to the home she recently purchased in the Atlanta, Ga., area, has been the recipient recently for several honors: On Friday, July 6 at 6 p.m. the South Arnold home of Roberta Sloan was the scene of a going-away dinner party for her. The table was covered with a pink and white linen cloth and had for its decoration a bouquet of fresh zinnias and daisies with crystal candelabra holding tall, pink, lighted candles on either side.

Enjoying this occasion were the guest of honor Honey May, Maxine Bierman, Ruby Lamping, Jean Burke, Lois May, Burieta Gearhart, Joyce Allen and Lida Howard, all of Prestonsburg, Christa Akers of Harold and the hostess, Roberta Sloan.

The honoree was presented with a picture of the Jenny Wiley State Resort Park, painted by the late Kentucky Heritage Artist, Russell May, as a memento of this occasion.

On Thursday, July 5, Jean Burke and Dorothy Harris honored Honey May with a dinner at May Lodge. Following the dinner all of them attended the presentation of "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying," at the nearby Jenny Wiley Theatre.

On Saturday evening, July 7, Ethel Hale entertained May with dinner at Jerry's Restaurant.

And, during the past week, the Highlands Regional Medical Center Auxiliary, of which she had been a long time active member, presented her with a grapevine wreath.

HAYWOODS VISITED BY GRANDDAUGHTER

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Haywood had with them through the 4th of July holidays, their daughter, Rebecca Haywood, of Falmouth. They were joined for dinner on Wednesday by Phyllis Ranier, Betty Hale and Mr. and Mrs. David B. Leslie and small son, Davy.

During the weekend the Haywoods had as their guest, their granddaughter, Melissa Haywood of Morehead, who was enroute home from Morehead State University where she and her father Philip Haywood had attended summer school classes, while her sister Jacquelyn Haywood had been a member of the NCAA Camp on the Morehead campus.

WALLACE FAMILY GATHERS FOR DINNERS

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wallace entertained with a luncheon at May Lodge on Friday of last week, having as their guests, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Rose and Elbert Stephens of Stanton, Mrs. Doug Jackson of Waco and Mrs. and Mrs. Frank Wells of Paintsville.

Joining them later for a desert at the Wallace home was Dr. Gabriel Wallace of Huntsville, Ala., who came here on that date for a visit with his parents.

On Saturday, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace and Dr. Wallace were entertained to dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Wells in Paintsville.

And on Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Wells Sr. of Flatgap and their granddaughter Sarah Wells of Tennessee were here for a visit with the Wallaces.

BIGGS RETURN FOR VISIT

The Rev. Taylor Biggs, former pastor of the Community United Methodist Church of Prestonsburg, and Mrs. Biggs, who now reside at South Shore, were here on Sunday. Enroute here, Rev. Biggs was the guest pastor at the Inez United Methodist Church on Sunday morning, and on Sunday evening he delivered the message at the local church. Both Rev. and Mrs. Biggs enjoyed the renewal of friendships and fellowship here.

MOORE RECOVERING

Gordon Moore is recuperating at his home, following three operations during the past month at St. Joseph's Hospital in Lexington. His many relatives and friends wish him well.

VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL UNDERWAY

Vacation Bible School began at the First Baptist Church here on Sunday, July 8 and will continue through Friday, July 13. Classes for preschool children through the sixth grade will be held from 6-8:30 p.m. A special "on location" program is offered this week for grades 7 through 12. The Rev. Steve Hopkins, pastor, Danese Hopkins, Sunday School Superintendent, and Tom Foy, Youth Minister, extend a welcome to attend.

Crafts workshop set for Ashland

A workshop for Kentucky craftspeople interested in expanding their businesses is set for July 27 at the Ashland Plaza Hotel.

Titled "Product Development and Dealing with Growth," the workshop is for intermediate-level craftspeople and is sponsored by the Kentucky Art and Craft Foundation, Kentucky Craft Marketing Program and Kentucky Guild of Artists and Craftsmen. It is funded through a grant from the Gheens Foundation.

Keynote speaker will be Curtis Benzle, a ceramic artist from Hilliard, Ohio, and co-owner, with his wife Susan, of Benzle Porcelain Co. Benzle, whose work has been exhibited internationally, will address issues, problems and ways to deal with expanding a crafts business.

Also on the program will be Louisville ceramicist Sarah Frederick, fiber artists James and Deborah Greene of Louisville and Pat Gerhard of Lexington.

The workshop is being held in Bowling Green on July 25 and in Frankfort on July 26.

Fee for the workshop is $10 and includes lunch. Reservations are required and can be made by contacting the Kentucky Art and Craft Foundation at 502/589-0102.

The Log Cabin, Part 7

Continuing the tour of the past

by Barbara P. Martin
Contributing Writer

It was the custom to take guests around the homeplace to show off possessions. A new calf, or a newly purchased mule or horse would take the menfolk to the barn where they might also remark about the yield of corn last year and the expectations this year.

A fattening hog for fall slaughter was always of interest. They might remark as to how it was fattening, slowly or rapidly, and the contents of the feed it consumed.

Among the hogs' favorite food was the dishwater and scraps from such feasts as we are discussing. Dishwashing aids had to be chosen with care. Steel wool pot scrubbers could not be used in water destined for hog slops, for pieces dislodged from the scrubber could become stuck in the throats and intestines of the animals.

Middlings or some other food supplement was added to the water and scraps to supply sufficient nutrition for the animal. Horse weeds were also cut and carried to the fattening hogs in huge amounts. They loved them.

Meanwhile back in the house, the lady is taking her guests from room to room disclosing the handiwork that she has done since their last visit. Quilts, embroidered dresser scarves, pillows and hand-crocheted laced items were brought out and displayed with pride.

If the guest liked the items displayed, she asked for the pattern and a brief description of how she may create a similar item. Variations in color would change the appearance of the original to match the decor of the proud worker who successfully reproduced an object from seeing a coveted model.

Older ladies turned over serving and clearing duties, reluctantly, to a daughter-in-law or daughter. They then joined the conversations and assisted in simple instructions regarding needs of the guests while on the place. Talk about some good stories, just sit and listen to those old ladies tell about their young days or discuss how things have changed.

It was the practice to place valued items on the walls. Old dolls, dressed beautifully, that may have belonged to the hostess or an older daughter, were most common. Not willing to discard the prized possession, they hung it on a nail on the wall, placed just so, to add to the appearance of the room. New dolls were also placed on the walls to escape destruction by younger children.

If I recall correctly, the Clicks had a red pillow, shaped like a heart, on the wall. It was trimmed in wide, white lace, with a short message written in needlepoint on it. (Their wallpaper had also been purchased from a store.)

Stern-faced ancestors stared down at you, with their eyes never leaving you; they looked at you no matter where you were in the room.

Their old fashioned clothes were probably their very best, worn to enhance their appearance for the picture.

Various types of frames were also interesting to observe. Most pictures still had their glass covers intact. Though not in color, they were still fascinating. Generally, those pictured had already passed on, a fact that did not help the goose bumps caused by staring eyes.

cutting up cauliflower, cabbage, cucumbers, onions, sweet peppers, celery and carrots which she had purchased at the supermarket. (This may be a solution for other nongardeners.)

Susie had the house smelling good from boiling the pickling solution. She was good enough to give me the recipe.

Combine 2 cups sugar, 2 cups vinegar (red or cider) and one cup of water. Place on the stove, bring to a boil. Pour over cut vegetables which have had celery seeds added and have been mixed well. (Susie had cut hers in large chunks in a dishpan, one half full.)

Place all on stove with a small bag of pickling spice. (Make the bag from a clean rag.) Bring to a boil. Boil slowly for about 10 minutes, or until the vegetables begin to get a little soft. Do not overcook, or they will be mushy. The odor which filled the house was quite pleasant to smell.

For about an hour, we sat in her living room recalling the old days on Wilson's Creek. Her most vivid memory was that she had to walk out of the creek to work. No matter what the weather, she showed up for work.

The wage then was $1 a day. At that time everyone did their work the hard way, which really made it work. To escape, she got married.

This story has been told to me by many ladies of that day. If they were not needed at home, they were expected to "hire out" (work for others) until they were married.

Next: Susie's log cabin.

The Children

One of my children's favorite activities when they found themselves spending a lot of time under such conditions was to go out to the branch, find a shaded section and dam it up with small stones. They worked diligently until the water began to rise. The ultimate was when it became deep enough to wade in to cool them from their labors, the big meal and the warm day.

Sometimes they constructed crude boats to sail. Their imaginations ran rampant as to what type of ship it was and what it was used for. Paddle wheels placed in these small streams proved the skills of the builder. If it did not work or tore up easily, he would have to return to his work area and make repairs.

Older children, instructing the younger, were able to build quite amazing "flutter mill" working models. Some proud producer had carried his plan to college, as I saw quite an impressive model working in Caney Creek.

Celebrating 40 years together

Irene and Millard Gibson observed their 40th wedding anniversary on June 15 with a get together at Betsy Layne Senior Citizens Center. Refreshments were served by their daughters to all the guests. They received many nice gifts for the occasion.

Couple united in Stanford

MR. & MRS. JEFFREY KENT (TERESA GAYHEART) BAY '85

Teresa Gail Gayheart and Jeffrey Kent Bates were married May 26 at Stanford Baptist Church in Stanford with the Rev. Larry Burcham officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Gayheart of Michigan City, Ind., formerly of Floyd County, are parents of the bride. Dr. and Mrs. Rod Bates of Stanford are the bridegroom's parents.

The bride's white taffeta gown, with re-embroidered lace accented with pearls and sequins, featured a fitted basque bodice with a sweetheart neckline, short puffed sleeves and a bow at the waist of the princess skirt that flowed into a lace-edged, cathedral-length train.

Kamela Krousos of Clearwater, Fla., was matron of honor. She wore a pink and blue floral print chintz tea-length gown with a fitted bodice, puffed sleeves and a low back adorned with a bow.

Bridesmaids were Diane Wilson of Louisville; Sheila Banks of Leburn;

Mindy Bates, Hilary Bates and Betsy Bates, all of Stanford and sisters of the groom. They were attired like the matron of honor.

Dr. Rod Bates was his son's best man.

Groomsmen were Chuck Coulter of Lexington; Allen Nicholson of Ashland; and Todd Faulkner, Joe Shelburne and Bob Johnson, all of Stanford.

Rebecca Ballard of Lexington was flower girl, and Logan Baker of Lexington was ring bearer.

A reception for 250 guests was held at the home of the bridegroom's parents. Scott Johnson provided music.

The bride is employed by the Bank of Lexington and attends Eastern Kentucky University. The groom is employed by the Fayette County Health Department in Lexington.

After a Caribbean honeymoon cruise, the couple resides in Lexington.

Group to host reception Friday

The Kentucky Coalition Against Rape and Sexual Assault plans to host a reception Friday, July 13, to show appreciation to legislators who played key roles in the passage of HB 38 which removed the spousal exemption from prosecution on sexual assault charges.

The reception is set for 1:30 p.m. at the State Reception Room of the State Capitol in Frankfort.

"It's about time the Commonwealth of Kentucky recognized that violence is violence whether the parties are married or not," said Rep. Marshall Long of Shelbyville, primary sponsor of the legislation.

The Coalition is also celebrating the passage of HB 603, sponsored by Lexington representative Bill Lear, which broadens the mandate for participation in sex offender treatment.

For information, call 502/625-5088.

To wed Saturday

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Hale of Blue River announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter Edwynna to Robert C. Paugh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Paugh of Bridgeport, W. Va. The vows will be exchanged Saturday, July 14 at 7 p.m. at First Baptist Church of Prestonsburg. The custom of open church will be observed. A reception will follow at May Lodge at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park.

Nurse certified

Furnell Rife, RN, supervisor of the obstetrical ward at Paul B. Hall Regional Medical Center in Paintsville, has been awarded certification as an in-patient obstetrical nurse.

To receive the designation, she successfully completed the recent national examination for nurses in the OB/GYN and neonatal specialties.

Rife received her nurses training at Pikeville College and earned a Bachelor of Arts degree at Eastern Kentucky University. In addition to her latest certification, she is a certified childbirth educator.

Wedding date set

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth D. Brown of Prestonsburg and Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Setser of Millville, N.J., announce the engagement of their daughter Jennifer Lee to Aaron DeWayne Flannery, son of Carolyn Crisp Butler of Allen and Raybon Flannery of Martin. The wedding ceremony is planned for Aug. 11 at 6 p.m. at Community United Methodist Church.

Getting ready for school

All children in the Floyd County School System must be immunized against measles, rubella, polio, diphtheria and tetanus and must have immunization certificates on file at the school.

Also, according to the Floyd County Health Department, all children entering school for the first time must have a TB skin test and a physical, in addition to their immunizations.

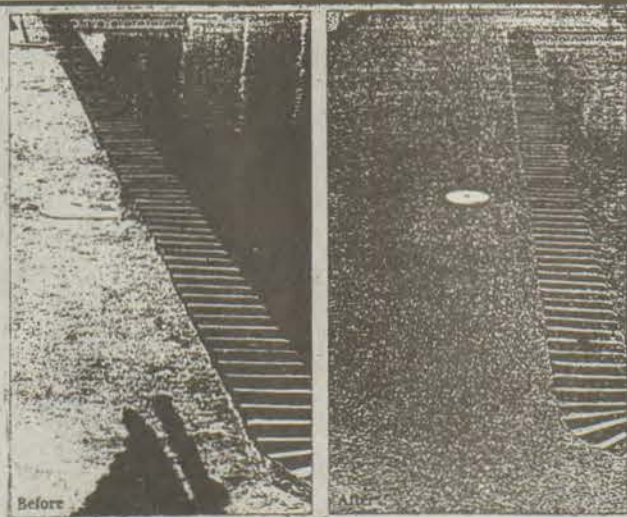

Children entering the sixth grade this fall must also have a second measles, mumps and rubella vaccination before school starts.

These immunizations and TB skin tests are available from the health department. Call 886-2788 for an appointment to avoid a last minute rush.

Q. I have a small, two bedroom house that I would like to rent. Since I do not live in the area, I would like to hire a real estate agent to manage the property for me. Can you tell me what is required?

A. Kentucky Real Estate Commission Regulation 201 KAR 11:095 (2) states, "All rental management agreements shall be in writing in order to avoid controversies."

The commission has, in its library, an approved management agreement contract that consumers and licensees may execute. This contract addresses issues such as the rendering of monthly statements; necessary repairs to property; authorized charges to the owner; payment of bills, taxes, insurance, etc.; compensation to the agent for performance of the rental services; termination of the contract; and the responsibilities of both the owner and the licensee with regard to the property.

The real estate license law requires all property managers to hold a real estate license unless:

1. He/she is a regular employee of the owner;
2. is under the supervision of a principal broker, or
3. receives the use of a rental unit as primary compensation.
