Wayland reclamation won't fix creek fill up

by Pam Shingler
Editor

Representatives of the state Department of Surface Mining told Wayland residents Monday night that reclamation work on area slate dumps

Speaking at the regular monthly meeting of Wayland Town Board, Dave Rosenbaum of DSM told board members and other residents that funding for stream channel projects is difficult to get.

Creek and other branches that run through the former mining community.

Board member Jerry Fultz also suggested seeking help from Floyd County Fiscal Court. Webb said he would talk to District 2 Magistrate Jackie Owens, who, Webb pointed out, has put gravel and red dog on some back alleys over the past few weeks.

Rosenbaum and John Smiley, also of DSM, did offer hope for residents whose property was damaged recently when heavy rains caused a sediment pond at one of the reclamation sites to overflow.

The two advised residents to contact the state Board of Claims at 115 Myrtle Ave., Frankfort 40601, with estimates of damage caused by the overflow.

"Submit a reasonable estimate of repair or replacement costs," said Smiley, who added that the project contractor, Walker Construction of Mt. Sterling, will till and reseed yards of residents who were affected.

Rosenbaum, who said settlement will depend on "the extent of the claim," advised residents "to be as detailed and as specific as possible in describing what you believe the damage to be."

"We feel like they (the contractor) have it under control," Smiley said. "I don't think it will happen again."

The sediment ponds in question are designed to provide drainage of the work area at 28 Hollow where mountains of slate deposited over several decades of area mining are being removed and reclaimed.

Rosenbaum said the goals of the Wayland area reclamation project are to stop mine fires and to prevent further erosion and run off.

"Ninety-five percent of the creek is filled up from the gob piles. You can dig and all you'll find is slate or red dog."

Hobert Webb, Wayland Mayor

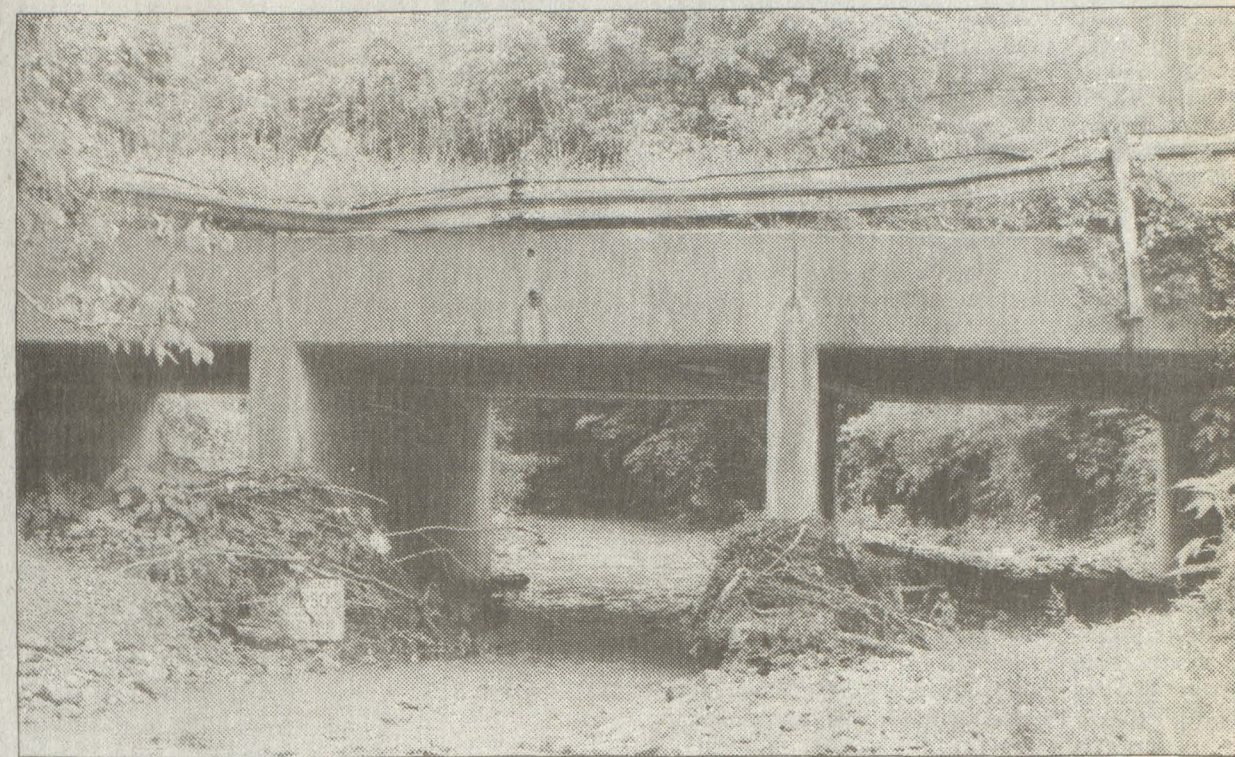

will take another 12 months to complete.

But they could offer no assistance with the continuing problem of filled up streams and clogged culverts that have plagued the city and created flooding in streets and houses for several years. The problem is believed to be caused by runoff from the slate dumps.

Past efforts to fund such projects have been unsuccessful, he said, because a pre-1977 cause has to be proven if federal Abandoned Mine monies are used and because of stringent environmental procedures.

"Ninety-five percent of the creek is filled up from the gob piles (coal mine waste)," said Mayor Hobert Webb. "You can dig and all you'll find is slate or red dog."

Rosenbaum suggested that the town seek help from the US Army Corps of Engineers in clearing Steele

Culverts, such as this one in Wayland, regularly clog up, causing flooding of streets and homes during heavy rains. Residents believe that decades of erosion and run off from slate dumps have created the filling of Steele and Right Beaver creeks. Discussion continues over incinerator

by Tim B. Preston
Staff Writer

Residents of the Auxier Road area gathered Friday night to discuss future action against Medisin Inc., the medical waste incinerator operation at Highlands Regional Medical Center.

This was the second meeting of the group of residents who live near the hospital and the incinerator facility which, along with the hospital, is owned by Consolidated Health Systems, a non-profit, community-based holding company.

The meeting began with an informal announcement that Don Pelphrey had resigned as chairman of the board of Medisin. Residents said that Pelphrey said he had resigned because he was unaware that people were being hurt by the incinerator project. Scott Walker, speaker for the citizens group said that Pelphrey's resignation came only days before a scheduled boycott of his businesses.

The role of the media received much discussion at the meeting. Walker pointed out that a Prestonsburg newspaper received a letter from a Cincinnati, Ohio, advertising firm stating that the firm had advised Highlands Regional Medical Center and Medisin Inc. to consider deferring future advertising in that newspaper.

The firm, Montondo and McColister Co., public relations consultants for the medical center, stated that the paper had shown "journalistic irresponsibility" in a recent story about the incinerator controversy.

Many other subjects were discussed by the citizens, including a plan to demonstrate during Saturday's visit by Gov. Wallace Wilkinson, the perceived threat of a chemical explosion at the incinerator, alleged night time incineration and adoption of the name Floyd Countians In Action.

Jackie Owens, magistrate of District 2 in Floyd County, responded to a statement by one audience member that Medisin's original proposal included a three-year research plan by saying, "We might just be the rats in the lab."

When asked if a tour of the incinerator facility had been conducted by any of the group members, Owens said that a tour of the plant, "wouldn't change our minds."

Medisin Vice President Robert Ford, who was not present at the meeting, responded to the citizens' allegations Monday. "People are really misinformed. No chemicals or radioactive materials are accepted for incineration," Ford said.

"As far as night time incineration is concerned, we only burn late on Saturday evenings at the request of our neighbor Paul Horn, who asked us to burn later so that families might enjoy outdoor activities such as a barbecue without watching our people loading garbage," he said.

Ford explained that he would like for every member of Floyd Countians in Action to attend the facility's upcoming open house.

Governor appoints board

by Tim B. Preston
Staff Writer

Kentucky Governor Wallace Wilkinson flew in to Prestonsburg Saturday morning to announce the formation of the East Kentucky Economic Development and Jobs Creation Corporation.

Twenty elected officials from various Eastern Kentucky counties were named to the board of directors of the corporation, including Floyd County Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo and Prestonsburg Mayor Ann Latta. Those officials will remain on the board only until August, however, when permanent board members will be elected by the group.

The purpose of the agency will be to attempt to recruit and retain small and large business to the area, Wilkinson said.

Members of the temporary board of advisors will meet with corporate representatives in Hazard on June 20, according to the governor. Other projects have not yet been announced. The governor said that one half million dollars in matching funds would be used to initiate the new economic development corporation.

Wilkinson addressed the small crowd gathered at the Prestonsburg Holiday Inn and said, among other things, that he was going to see that all state roads are repaved before he leaves office. "If it is going to have a state number, then it should have blacktop on it," Wilkinson said.

Those named to the temporary board of advisors, in addition to Stumbo and Latta, were Attorney

William "Bill" Weinberg of Hindman, George Evans of the Governor's Office for Coal and Energy Policy, Morgan County Judge-Executive Sid Stewart, Dr. Grady Stumbo of Hind-

Skeleton found near Floyd line

Kentucky State Police reported yesterday that the remains of a human body were discovered at Harmon's Branch near the Floyd/Pike County line.

"Shortly after 1 p.m. Tuesday the skeletal remains of one person were discovered in Harmon's Branch," said Trooper Homer Coleman of the KSP. "At this point there has been no identification of the remains and the incident is under investigation by state police and the FBI."

Coleman confirmed that rumors had been spreading that up to four or five bodies had been discovered, but stated that only the remains of one individual had been found. He also said that police have no reason to believe there are any more bodies to be found.

Police were not saying at press time who found the remains or under what circumstances they were discovered.

Historic Allen house to be razed

by Tim B. Preston
Staff Writer

It was born as a stable during the Civil War. Later it grew into a home. The two-story, white house with twin chimneys, easily seen from US 23 at Allen, has set in the same spot for well over 100 years.

But take a good look. Now it faces the bulldozer.

Originally owned and built by the Martin family as a stable, the place was slowly converted into a home after the Civil War, according to family lore.

"We decided that we wanted something for our kids," said Stella Hall, who has lived in the house with her husband Troy for the last 42 years. "So we leased the property to Coleman Oil for 25 years."

According to the Halls, the company will begin demolition of the home by the end of June. "This old house was starting to be a little hard to keep up," said Troy, "and the people at Coleman were interested in the property so we agreed to lease the place out."

Denzil Hall, who was raised in the house, said, "It is a sad time."

The home's construction is a throwback to a day when workmanship was held in higher regard than speed in building. Like most old homes the structure is joined entirely by pegs instead of nails, as well as

Take a last look

Motorists along US 23 at Allen will be catching their last glimpses of one of the county's oldest houses in the next few days. The wrecking crew is due later this month to raze the structure for a business. The original part of the house is believed to have been built around the time of the Civil War.

Morehead may open Prestonsburg branch

Morehead State University has reportedly selected Prestonsburg as the future site of a branch of that university.

The branch campus will offer third and fourth year programs, with an emphasis on elementary education and business administration, according to a spokesperson in MSU's Office of Extended Education.

The branch operation will also offer expanded classes in paralegal education, according to James Ratcliff, director of continuing education and community service at Prestonsburg Community College.

Officials at both PCC and Morehead refused to confirm or deny any possible sites for the school, stating only that officials had toured several Prestonsburg buildings for use in the project.

An official with Paran Equities, a Cleveland, Ohio, based real estate firm, did say that negotiations were in progress on the former Heck's building, located in Highlands Plaza, near the PCC campus.

"This helps fulfill a need for the people in this area," Ratcliff said. "Morehead will be offering junior and senior classes which many PCC graduates can take advantage of locally, instead of traveling to other colleges to finish their education."

An official announcement of the school's location and classes to be offered is expected within the next two weeks.

PCC holds summer registration

Registration for the 1990 Summer Session at Prestonsburg Community College will be Thursday, June 7, in the Johnson Administration Building.

Students whose last name begins with the letters A thru K may register from 9 a.m. until noon; last names of L through Z register from 1 - 4 p.m. Open registration will be from 5 - 7 p.m.

Tuition for Kentucky residents is $25 per credit hour for one to five hours and $150 for six or more hours.

The local college is offering 79 classes in the summer session. Classwork begins on Friday, June 8. For additional information call the admissions office at 886-3863, ext. 212.

Tornado touches down in Rowan

FARMERS—According to state police, a tornado touched down in the Farmers area of Rowan county Monday at 2:43 PM, toppling trees, overturning some airplanes, knocking out some power service and damaging a nearby home. The twister moved a vacation home 40 feet off its foundations. The residents were not at home. The tornado then hit the Morehead-Rowan county airport where it overturned planes, destroyed a hanger and an office facility. No injuries were reported. (The Morehead News)

Body of Cincinnati woman found in Buckhorn Lake

HAZARD—The body of Pamela S. Harvey, 30, was pulled out of Buckhorn lake last Thursday after five days of dragging. High water and debris from recent storms hampered the operation. Divers had been unsuccessful because of the muddy water. Harvey was thrown from a boat driven by her brother, Tony Bowling, when the steering cable broke. According to the Kentucky Water Patrol report, she was not wearing a life jacket. (Lexington Herald-Leader)

Pike grocery store robbed

KIMPER—A grocery/hardware store was the site of an armed robbery last Thursday morning, according to Kentucky State Police. According to Betty May, owner of B & B Market, two men wearing ski masks, gloves, and carrying pistols entered the store. The men demanded that she and an employee lie on the floor. One of the men then took an undetermined amount of cash from the register. Two white male suspects are being sought. One is about 5'8" with a speech impediment and the other is 6' and slender. The two left the scene in an orange-colored station wagon. A golden-brown 1978 Chevrolet station wagon was stolen from Adam Estep's Used cars, but it is not known if the incidents are related. (Appalachian News-Express)

Retired teacher found shot after fire

ASHLAND—Firemen discovered the body of Louise Wilcox, retired Fairview High School teacher, when responding to a call Monday. Wilcox was shot once in the chest with a small caliber pistol. Detectives would not say if they found evidence of a forced entry or a burglary. Wilcox was a crusader in her community's Neighborhood Watch program. The police are treating the incident as a homicide. (Ashland Daily Independent)

Services held for crash victim

META—Services were held Monday for a Meta man who died from injuries sustained in a four-car crash on Friday. Johnie Nichols, 66, was attempting to turn into the parking lot of the IGA Store at Meta when the accident occurred. Nichols' vehicle was struck by a vehicle driven by 17-year old Robbie Porter. Porter was hospitalized in fair condition and released over the weekend. Porter's passenger, Darrel Worrix, 15, remained hospitalized and is listed in fair condition. Phyllis Reed, 36, of Sidney was treated and released. No charges have been filed in the accident according to KSP reports. (Appalachian News-Express)

"tongue and groove" boards used to make large wall panels, doorways and stairwells. The bannister of the stairway is also handcarved and custom made for the home.

One item that is a clue to the age of the home is a "barn latch" type closure on the door to the former living room. There is no door knob, just a simple lever which lifts a catch on the opposite side.

What is, at least for the moment, the kitchen and dining area of the home, was originally the smokehouse and storage shed. "We added on the back wing in 1964," said Troy. "What is now New Allen used to be the backyard and the bottoms that the old time slaves worked in."

There is sadness and remorse in the eyes of the Hall family as they carry belongings out of the home they have known for so long.

Although it probably won't be standing when summer has passed and the leaves change color and fall, the old white house at the intersection in Allen will always be the place the Hall family thinks of when someone talks about home.

The ponds will be filled in upon completion of the project, the officials said. Smiley said that the contractor is laying 60-inch pipe from 28 Hollow to Steele's Creek to drain the area. Trash racks will be placed at the ends of the pipe to minimize runoff into the creek, he said.

When one citizen complained that smoke from one of the mine fires was making breathing difficult for him, Smiley replied that about four telephone poles have to be removed before work can be done to douse the fires.

"The phone company (South Central Bell) said last Thursday it would be 90 days before they can start to move the poles," Smiley said.

The issue of requiring residents to keep their property clean was raised by another resident. Board members asked policeman Terry Hill and fire chief Sammy Bentley to check around town and warn residents with trash in their yards that it must be cleaned up.

Incinerator

"The open house will be Thursday, June 28, and I think it will give people a little better idea of what exactly medical waste is. There are some stories that have circulated which simply aren't true, and I think once people come and check us out everything will be fine," he said.

Medisin operates two small incinerators that burn medical wastes from health care facilities in Floyd, Johnson, Pike, Martin, Magoffin and Rowan counties. Ford and medical center officials contend the facility meets all state and federal guidelines, but critics allege it poses environmental hazards to persons who live in the area.

Floyd Countians in Action will meet again on Monday, June 11, at 7 pm at Horn's Chapel on US 23 north of Prestonsburg.

"Homecoming is coming up and we need to start cleaning up the whole town," said Webb.

Another citizen expressed concern that area children have no place to play in the town. Webb said he would check on the possibility of developing the site of the old CSX Railroad turnaround as a possible playground.

Clerk Carol Stapleton reported that the town's financial balance at the end of May was $2087.

Board members agreed to advertise and accept bids for repair and construction of sidewalks.

Board member Robert Stewart raised the question of excessive absences by board member Tommy Robinson. According to records, Robinson has missed three consecutive regular meetings, which, by law, indicates he must give up his seat on the board. Webb said the board would discuss a replacement at the next meeting.

The mayor also reported that four persons have completed application for town policeman. Terry Hill was appointed as a temporary replacement three weeks ago for Mack Stewart who resigned to take a position with the Prestonsburg Police Department.

Present at the meeting, in addition to the mayor, were board members Stewart, Fultz and Gene Mullins.

Barbs & Bouquets

By Marty Backus

There's a member of the Litter Task Force here in Floyd County who needs the help of her neighbors.

Cathern Tackett of Beaver has been active in cleaning the area in which she lives. But this lady has one problem. She says she can't get enough help from other Beaver residents.

During Monday night's meeting, Cathern said there is a 13-mile creek in her area that needs to be de-littered, but she is only one person and more hands are needed to pick up the trash. So, if you're a concerned citizen with pride in Beaver, help Cathern. Her phone number is 587-2524.

Incidentally, Kentucky's Transportation Cabinet has an Adopt-A-Highway program, which works like this.

Any business or public organization can adopt a section of highway, minimum is two miles, and keep it litter free. In return, a sign will be erected at the beginning of each stretch of roadway, giving the name of the group that adopted the section.

Supplies, training and traffic control will be furnished by the Transportation Cabinet.

Floyd County has started off like gangbusters in their district for the adopt a highway program.

Out of all the counties in the district, Johnson, Pike, Letcher, Knott, Lawrence, Martin — Floyd holds down LAST PLACE. Johnson is first, Pike second. Why are we last?

Littering the countryside is as in style now as wife beating, drunken driving through a school zone or burning old glory during the fireworks on the fourth of July.

We've lived around trashed up roadsides, creek banks and hillsides for too many years. Let's get some pride about the area we live in and be concerned. Concerned enough to sic the law on those who refuse to live like humans.

Our image in Floyd County will be exposed to others in the tri-state soon. WSAZ-TV will devote good chunks of air time during the week of June 18 to our county.

Various news stories, including the history of Wheelwright, will be featured. And from what I gather, most station IDs will have something positive for Floyd Countians to see.

I'm really getting sick and tired of reading and listening to those who are tagging hunters as dimwitted jerks.

Most of the hunters I know are responsible, law abiding people who eat what they kill.

But some knee jerk, bleeding heart portrays Bambi being stalked down by a blood-thirsty wild mob pouring volley after volley of rifle fire into the poor helpless animal.

These people were the same ones who blocked thinning out operations of the deer population in the Everglades. This was several years ago, when Florida officials said over population would cause the deer to starve. So hunters were to be used to thin out the deer.

However, there was a group opposed to this shooting of Thumper's friend. They successfully blocked officials' efforts to curtail the deer numbers. So successful were their efforts that months later the same hunters, turned away before, were brought in to kill off suffering and starving deer.

Finally, don't forget June 21 — the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce annual dinner. Judge Roy Corns will be the special speaker. Tickets are $20 each and are going fast.

Should the people decide?
by Don Harker & Liz Natter
Kentucky Local Governance Project

Kentucky is governed by a system which combines direct and representative democracy. In a representative democracy, voters elect representatives to pass laws and fulfill the functions of government on their behalf. Direct democracy is at work when the people themselves decide the outcome of a particular issue through voting. The three basic tools of direct democracy are initiative, referendum, and recall. This letter addresses the issue of referendum. Future letters will address initiative and recall.

Referendum allows citizens to decide, by voting if a proposed or existing constitutional provision, law, or ordinance should be changed or withdrawn. The laws governing referendum in Kentucky are rather complex. Some issues are automatically subject to referendum, some are subject to referendum only through petition by the public, and others are not subject to referendum at all.

In Kentucky, constitutional amendments are required to be put to a public vote. Privatization of sewer and water systems by local governments, annexation of areas by cities, and some laws dealing with taxes are examples of acts that may be subject to referendum as a result of petition.

The procedure for referendum on an action taken by a city government is established by state statute. Any five registered voters of the city may start a petition for referendum if the issue is subject to referendum by law. If the petition is signed by enough registered voters (20 percent of the number of people in the city who voted in the last presidential election), then the issue is placed on the ballot in the next election, and the vote of the majority determines the outcome.

There are ways in which governments avoid referendum provisions. For example, a city or county cannot take on indebtedness in excess of projected revenues without the approval of its residents through a referendum. However, it has the loophole of borrowing excess funds by issuing bonds, without a referendum.

The inability to hold a referendum on some issues has led many citizens to feel that they have been left out of deciding issues that are vital to them. For example, a majority of city officials in Wurtland, Ky., supported the construction and operation of a chemical plant by a company which recently had a similar plant shut down for environmental violations in Ohio. Local citizens complain that the officials are ignoring the will of the majority of the residents, which is against the new plant because of the expectation that it will emit hundreds of thousands of pounds per year of toxic chemicals, just as it has in Ohio. However, the law does not provide for a referendum on the issue.

Citizens of Hickman County took matters into their own hands. Although the law does not allow to hold an official referendum on a proposed massive landfill on the bluffs overlooking the Mississippi River, the citizens, with the assistance of their county judge-executive, organized an unofficial ballot on the issue. Of the citizens who voted (three times the normal turnout), 73 percent opposed this landfill, even though the prospective landfill developer offered $1.25 million per year to county and city government for hosting the facility and the Columbus city commission had previously voted in favor of it. It is clear that many Kentuckians want a say in matters that affect the destiny of their communities.

Many people feel that referendum is desirable, especially at the local level, because it gives citizens more control over the decisions that are made by their governments. Some have suggested that every decision reached by the fiscal court should be subject to referendum. Others feel that it is more appropriate to decide for each issue whether referendum is appropriate, and enact into state law provisions for referendum on important issues. That is how current state law deals with the issue.

The Kentucky Local Governance Project would like to hear your opinions on the issue of referendum. Do you think the tool of referendum should be available on more issues? On all local issues? On all local and statewide issues? What has been your experience with referendum in your community? Has referendum been used to advance the goals of the community? Write to the Kentucky Local Governance Project, 433 Chestnut St., Berea 40403. All ideas will be preserved in an "idea bank," which will be used to help develop a strategic plan for improving local government in Kentucky.

Report to Kentucky

By Sen. Wendell Ford

KENTUCKY BENEFITS FROM BREAKUP OF FOREIGN TOBACCO MONOPOLIES

A report from the General Accounting Office proves a point that some of us have been trying to make for some time now. That point is that our moves against foreign tobacco monopolies have started paying substantial dividends to this nation — and particularly to Kentuckians and other US tobacco growers.

This new GAO report shows that our trade surplus from tobacco products has more than doubled from $2 billion in 1986 to $4.3 billion in 1989. It shows that last year's surplus with Japan alone was $1.2 billion.

These positive figures are important to our nation when overall trade deficits with Japan and other nations have made us the world's leading debtor nation. And they are most important to about 150,000 hardworking Kentuckians who are benefiting from recent gains in prices and marketing quotas for tobacco, our leading cash crop.

The GAO study was requested by 11 House members — leading tobacco critics who were interested in probing health issues related to tobacco trade. However, I don't believe that this study contains what they had hoped to find.

In fact, I believe that the GAO report has given us every reason to continue the drive we started about five years ago to work through our US Trade Representative in breaking down unfair barriers to tobacco exports.

The report found that we already "have achieved a measure of success in taking market share from national cigarette monopolies" in Japan, Taiwan and South Korea. And it notes that these efforts are continuing with regard to Thailand.

This drive has led not only to new export markets for tobacco products but also to increased trade in unmanufactured leaf. Foreign manufacturers are being forced to use superior US leaf to compete with US cigarettes now being sold in their countries, according to the GAO.

Rising exports have contributed to a 38 percent increase in US burley production over the past four years, even though domestic tobacco markets declined during this period.

We have moved to overcome

"clearly identified foreign-government imposed trade barriers," the report said. And it found that we have done so without giving any apparent preference to tobacco over other US products and without appearing to damage long-term relationships with trading partners.

If Congress decides that tobacco exports are a trade issue, it should leave our present policies alone, the report said. If it is decided that these exports represent a health issue, the report added, a greater role should be given to the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS).

I believe that HHS Secretary Louis W. Sullivan, a strong leader of the anti-smoking movement, has answered this question very clearly by acknowledging that tobacco exports are a trade issue and not a matter of US health policy.

Every country has a right to set its own health standards. But once these standards have been set, US farmers have right to compete on equal terms with their counterparts anywhere in the world. This is a clear and simple principle of fair trade, and it is one that we should continue to follow.

Defends letter writer

Dear Editor,
In response to the letter appearing in The Floyd County Times Friday edition, directed toward Julianne Rider, concerning the excerpt of Coal Camp Kids, I too agree with Mrs. Rider.

Mrs. Rider's letter was against obscenity being published on the front page of The Floyd County Times. I fully endorse her view.

How dare complete strangers attack an individual such as Mrs. Rider and publicly state that she does not possess a dictionary or that her life is empty with nothing better to do than to scan for filth. In my opinion, this is unprofessional journalism.

In the letter to Mrs. Rider, author Barbara Ford Ritch and editor Paul R. Jordan stated that the word in question is now accepted as slang and is common in daily conversation in Prestonsburg. May I point out that God never said that whatever people deem as acceptable is acceptable to Him. Man shall give account to God for every idle word spoken. The two respondents state that under the Constitution they have freedom of speech. This is true, and so does Mrs. Rider.

I believe it is a disgrace to denounce the name of God in such a manner and then give excuses for their actions.

I pray that God will convict and show them the error that has been made.

God Himself said, "Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain; For the Lord will not hold him guiltless that taketh His name in vain." (Part of the 10 commandments. Exodus Chapter 20)

The Lord is witness for Himself in the matter and His word is His defense.

Thanks contributors

Dear Editor,
The third annual roadblock on Sunday, June 3, on behalf of the Animal Shelter was the best ever! So many gave so generously. Thanks to all of you for making us a success.

Thanks also to the numerous individuals (too many to name) who gave of their time in collecting donations at the various locations.

All proceeds go to the Animal Shelter for pet food, supplies, equipment and upkeep. Once again, thanks to everyone who helped. We couldn't have done it without you.

Praising God

Dear Editor,
He works for us! Through his love, God works for us. There are three ways in which God's gracious work for sinners is made evident. Through his love: we are redeemed; we are forgiven; we are the recipient of God's grace.

Considering these three gifts from on high, it is crystal clear, He (God) works for us.

The new way

Route carriers from the Prestonsburg Post Office are riding in style these days. Lonzo Bowling, Roy Haley and John McIntosh are three of the postal employees who drive the new postal vehicles received by the office earlier this week. The vehicles have several up-to-date features, including seven mirrors that allow the drivers to see all around the vehicle. The trucks are part of a nationwide fleet of modified Chevrolet trucks, referred to as "Long Life Vehicles." Postal employees say the trucks are expected to last 20 to 25 years on the job. Lottery game news

The Kentucky Lottery Corporation has announced that "Kentucky Derby DreamStakes," the first game offered last year, will officially close on June 15 and winning tickets for the game will no longer be cashed after that date.

Under terms of the law establishing the lottery, players have 365 days to cash winning tickets for any game. Tickets for the first instant game which was tied to the 1989 Kentucky Derby went on sale April 4 when the lottery was launched. Sales ended shortly after the running of the famous horse race.

The lottery will officially introduce its latest instant scratch-off game, "Baseball," on June 4. The ticket features nine areas or innings. Players scratch off the entire area as well as the block marked "Your Score." If the players' total score is higher than the block marked "Their Score," the player wins the amount shown in the prize area.

"Our telephone sales staff members are taking orders from retailers now," said Bill Hardy, senior vice president of sales. "Early interest looks very strong."

Hardy said that the game offers a top prize of $1000 with other prize levels of $1, $2, $4, $8, $20, $50 and $100.

Jobless rate lowers in state

Spurts of growth in nearly all areas of employment contributed to lower jobless rates in 71 Kentucky counties, including Floyd, in April.

Higher unemployment rates were recorded in 46 counties, while three held the same figure from March to April, according to a monthly labor trends report of the Cabinet for Human Resources.

This April, Floyd County held the lowest unemployment rate, 6.8 percent, in the Big Sandy area. Magoffin County still came in with the highest at 20 percent.

The monthly sample of claimants of unemployment insurance benefits showed 47.2 percent had worked in mining, 16.9 percent in trade, 13 percent in construction and 12.3 percent in services.

Last March Floyd's unemployment rate was at 7 percent and in April 1989 it was at 9.8 percent, the lowest and second lowest in the area, respectively.

Ed Blackwell, the cabinet's chief labor market analyst, said hirings in most employment sectors, especially 17,600 additional jobs in agriculture, led to April's falling rates across the state.

A PERSONAL NOTE OF THANKS FROM REPRESENTATIVE GREGORY D. STUMBO

Dear Friends:

I would just like to take this opportunity to personally thank you for the confidence and support you have shown in me throughout my campaign. It was a very rewarding experience and I cannot begin to tell you how much it meant to me personally and my family.

Many of you were kind enough to share not only your time; but, your gardens with us and we enjoyed every minute of it.

As we begin preparing to progress toward the future, I dedicate myself to future battles; and any battles which I may win in Frankfort, will be because of and for you.

Your overwhelming support is evidence that our plans to improve education, create new jobs and improve our roads is working and I thank you for the confidence and trust that you have displayed in me as your State Representative.

I certainly wish my opponent and his family the best in the future; and, now that the election is over, it is time for us to put that in the past and pull together to make Eastern Kentucky a better place not only for our generation; but, for the many generations to come.

Prestonsburg Police report accidents

Several accidents occurred in Prestonsburg recently, one resulting in possible injuries and another involving an auto and a building.

On Tuesday, May 22, at 5:30 p.m. Robert D. Castle II, 19, of Auxier, was exiting the Municipal Parking Lot onto Third Avenue when he took the corner too sharply and struck the attendant's building. William R. Callihan, the attendant, was hit on the left arm by a piece of brick that fell from the building. This was reported to Sgt. Sue Blackburn on the following morning.

Two persons were injured in an accident in downtown Prestonsburg last Friday following a collision. Apparently Derek Walls, 26, of Martin was attempting to drive across the intersection of US 23 and North Arnold Avenue and was struck by northbound vehicle driven by William Holbrook, 65, of Prestonsburg.

Walls was cited for failure to yield the right of way, no proof of insurance and operating on a suspended license. Holbrook's car was towed away and he was taken to Highlands Regional Medical Center with a passenger from Walls' vehicle, according to Sgt. Jim Mullins.

Last Wednesday, Rebecca Williamson, 36, of Pliny, W.Va., was making a right turn from Arnold Avenue onto US 23 and was struck by Robert Joseph, 27, of Prestonsburg who was headed north on 23 in the right lane. Sgt. Blackburn reported that Williamson did not see Joseph, possibly due to sun glare.

The next day, Officer M. Conn investigated an accident on Duncan Street involving James Ramey, 62, of Volga and Paul A. Starr, 40, of Chester, W.Va. Apparently both cars were parked and were attempting to pull out when the hit each other, both drivers blaming poor vision.

Another accident occurred on Monday, May 28, when Linda Bradley, 27, of Hueysville was attempting to turn left from Jackson Street onto KY 1428. Bradley stated she did not see the car headed toward her and pulled into the path of Carolyn Keathley, 21, of Galveston who was traveling north on 1428.

Bradley was struck on the rear quarter panel and was pushed into a car parked on the other side of the road owned by Robby Wells of Prestonsburg. Keathley's car was towed away.

The final accident took place on Thursday, May 31 when a car driven by Donald Smith, 25, of Prestonsburg was coming to a stop on Third Avenue and one driven by Lewis Hunter, 24, of Lackey, turning for Court Street, went too wide on the turn and struck the Smith vehicle in the side, according to Officer M. Conn.

The plants, which averaged from eight to 12 inches in length, were pulled from the ground and confiscated. Although no arrests were made, law enforcement officials say that marijuana growers can and will be prosecuted when caught. (Photo by Tim Preston)

Telephone service center now open on Saturdays

Ever wish you had another day in the week to get everything done? If you said "yes," you're probably not alone. South Central Bell has recognized that need by adding another day for you to call with requests for telephone service or with a question about your phone bill.

South Central Bell service representatives are now available to handle customers' service requests and questions from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. (EDT) on Saturdays.

The shift to operating six days a week is part of the company's efforts to be more accessible to customers. "Research has shown that traditional hours no longer adequately meet today's customers' needs for handling home telephone service," South Central Bell Manager Art Willett said. "There are an increasing number of single households and dual-career households, where working people may find it difficult to call the business office during their working hours."

"By extending our weekday hours late last year, and now adding Saturday hours, we're trying to respond to the changing needs of our customers and give them the quality of service they deserve."

Customers can call the service center to establish, transfer or disconnect home telephone service. Service representatives will also assist them with billing questions or place orders for additional features.

In addition, 24-hour service is available for certain transactions through an automated business office service called RightTouch® service, said Willett. By pushing the buttons of a touch-tone telephone, residence customers can get account information, order duplicate bills, make payment arrangements, order Custom Calling services, or disconnect service. To use RightTouch service, customers can dial 1-577-777, toll-free.

The telephone numbers for South Central Bell service representatives are listed in the Customer Guide pages in the front of the South Central Bell telephone directory and on customers' telephone bills.

Wayne Bowser of Fleetwood Homes of Tennessee recently presented Larry and Pat Keene with the company's Award of Appreciation. The Keene company recorded $1 million in sales in 1989.

20,000 Green Pledges collected

Environment is a word today that conjures up images of undersized human and material resources trying to fight Goliath-sized problems. However, around 20,000 more troops have joined the war to protect our environment by signing Earth Day Green Pledges.

As part of Earth Day 1990 activities, the pledges were distributed through newspapers and Earth Day materials. Completed pledges came pouring in to the Kentucky Earth Day Management Team in Frankfort from all over the state signed by Kentuckians from all walks of life — elementary school students to senior citizens.

One pledge was even mailed from a West Germany resident who received a Kentucky newspaper.

On May 17, the 20,000 pledges were presented to Leslie Cole, director of the Environmental Quality Commission, at a planning meeting for Environmental Watch — a program designed to utilize volunteers who want to protect Kentucky's environment.

According to Cole, the pledges will be presented to Gov. Wallace Wilkinson in the near future.

By signing the pledges, people vowed to do their utmost to recycle, conserve energy, save water, use efficient transportation and try to adopt a lifestyle as if every day were Earth Day.

They pledged to buy and use only those products least harmful to the environment and do business with corporations that promote global environmental responsibility.

They pledged to vote and support those candidates who demonstrate an abiding concern for the environment.

They pledged to support the local, state and federal laws and international treaties that protect the environment.

"These pledges are certainly a sign that Kentuckians care about their environment," Cole said, "and want to be involved in protecting it. They are sending a message to the Commonwealth that the people support environmental programs."

In Loving Memory On Her Birthday

It has been almost four sad and lonely years since the day you went away. The shock still lingers in our heart for we miss you more each day. Deep in our heart is a memory more precious than anyone will ever know. You are not forgotten, Wanda, or will you ever be as long as life and memory last, we will remember thee. Your loving smile and gentle face no one can ever fill your vacant place. We will never forget you no matter how long.

Sadly missed by all of those who loved you.

Card of Thanks

Perhaps you sent a lovely card, or sat quietly in a chair, Perhaps you sent a floral piece, if so we saw it there. Perhaps you spoke the kindest words, as any friend could say, Perhaps you were not there at all, just thought of us that day.

Whatever you did to console our hearts, We thank you so much whatever the part.

We would also like to thank the Carter Funeral Home for kind and efficient service.

Denied AFDC applicants may now be eligible

The state Department for Social Insurance is attempting to find Kentuckians who were denied Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) as long ago as 1977 solely because they were already receiving federal Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefits.

Under a new state policy, AFDC may be extended to eligible households in which the only child receives SSI benefits (due to blindness or disability). It also may mean back payments and Medicaid coverage for families who can demonstrate an AFDC denial related to SSI benefits since 1977.

"Right now, we don't have a handle on the number of Kentuckians who may be affected by this policy change," Social Insurance Commissioner Mike Robinson said. "However, we don't expect a large number of families to be affected."

"We're making every attempt possible to reach these folks and to provide them with whatever current and back benefits for which they may be entitled."

Eligible families are those with one child who is under 18 and receiving SSI benefits, who have no financial support of one or both parents due to absence, incapacity or death and in which the child's responsible relative has little or no income or resources. It is the child's relative who may receive assistance.

The department's previous position — to deny AFDC to families whose only child under age 18 received SSI — was based on a 1977 interpretation of a US Social Security Administration policy. That federal policy stated that, in such cases, AFDC benefits "may" be extended to caretaker-relatives of SSI children.

"Recently the state was asked whether or not the 'may' meant AFDC was optional in these cases," Robinson said. "We checked and the federal government ruled that AFDC benefits are mandatory for these otherwise eligible applicants."

"For that reason, we're sending notices to all Kentucky children who receive SSI and trying to reach other potentially affected households through the media.

"Clients will have to demonstrate that they did apply for AFDC assistance; they have the burden of proof," Robinson said. "However, our agency can do a records search for those who have applied for AFDC within the past three years (the period for which the state maintains active records on file)."

Proof can be in the form of a copy of the application, a copy of the application denial or an official inquiry form (a form that indicates contact was made with a local Social Insurance office regarding AFDC).

According to Robinson, back payments of AFDC benefits will not be disbursed in one lump sum but in a series of small payments.

"As for reimbursement for medical expenses, the medical provider will be responsible for compensating the client and then billing Medicaid. In the case of outstanding medical bills, a medical card will be issued in order to pay for those expenses."

Those interested in applying for reimbursement should contact the Social Insurance office located in their county of residence.

Hood, Stewart, Shelton, Conn, Hall ink letters-of-intent

It is that time of year again where local high school athletes sign letters-of-intent to play either basketball, football or baseball at some other institution this coming fall.

For many of the local students, sports is a way to be able to pursue an higher education. There is still the academic test to pass before entering the college of their choice, but for some a college education may be an impossible dream without the support of sports.

Jedon Hood, Wheelwright, signed a letter-of-intent to play basketball with Kentucky State University recently. Hood was a mainstay in the Lady Trojans offense, averaging 17.8 points per game and hauling down 8.9 boards a game. She hasn't decided on a major as of yet.

How did she come to choose Kentucky State?

"It is a small school and they have a good girl's program there," she explained. "I also liked the coaches at Kentucky State."

"It was entirely her choice," says her mother Saralene Roberts. "I am pleased with her choice and I am glad that she decided to go to Kentucky State. We went down and looked at the school and liked it very much."

Jedon says she liked the people at the school because they seemed so friendly and the atmosphere of the school impressed her. According to Mrs. Roberts, Kentucky State was very anxious to get Jedon.

Bobby Hood, Jedon's brother, hasn't decided on his college choice as of yet but says that Thomas Moore College is very much in the picture. Hood will be attending on a basketball scholarship even though he did excel in football at the Left Beaver school. Hood averaged around 14 points per game and was effective from the three-point range.

Betsy Layne standout Sam Stewart signed to play his basketball at Berea College next season and become part of the great basketball tradition at Berea. The 6' 5" center has been labeled by Betsy Layne coach Junior Newsome as the "best player I have ever coached." Newsome says that Stewart was very coachable player and gave 110 percent on the floor.

Stewart averaged close to 19 points per game this season hauling down 13 rebounds per game. Stewart played close to the basket during the high school season, but also displayed some effectiveness from the three-point range.

"I chose Berea because of the academics," Stewart said. "I like tough coaches, because that's all I have played for here at Betsy Layne, and their coach is tough."

Stewart says he has not decided on a major, but is considering business administration.

Joining Stewart at Berea College will be McDowell's 6' 5" center, Keith Shelton. A very much underrated player in Floyd County, Shelton finally has gotten the recognition he deserves. He came into his own this season and displayed his basketball talents that otherwise had been hidden.

As Shelton's coach Johnny Ray Turner said at the start of the past season, Shelton played with players like Rudy Martin, Henry Webb and Dickie Joe Shannon and did not have to score. However, this year much was expected of him in that department and he came through. What makes Shelton a strong player is that he has very positive attitude toward the game to go along with his skills.

Both Shelton and Stewart will be teaming up with McDowell's Dickie Joe Shannon at Berea next season.

In the football ranks, Wheelwright's Chad Hall will journey to Cumberland College where he

Martin Braves win 2, lose first

The Martin Braves Little League team ran their winning streak to nine straight before they fell to the Garrett Pirates, 6-3, for their first loss of the season.

Martin, the consensus of many of the coaches in the league to capture the Beaver Creek Little League crown, managed only four hits in the game against the Pirates.

T. Bellemy was the winning pitcher for Garrett in striking out eight batters. Thomas Jenkins took the Braves' first loss and finished with seven strikeouts.

Jenkins was relieved by Jason Bevins, who has returned to action after sitting out some earlier games because of an injury. Bevins fanned five batters after coming on with one out in the fifth inning.

Bellemy helped his own cause with a triple in the fifth inning, scoring three runs that put his team ahead to stay. Gary Hunter had a first inning double that scored a run for Garrett.

Brandon Kinzer doubled in the first for the Braves in driving in a run. Bevins had two two-baggers, one in the first for an RBI and a third inning double.

In earlier games, the Braves easily handled the Martin Blue Jays to the tune of 18-7. The Braves collected 18 hits in the contest and the Blue Jays managed eight.

Beau Tackett got the win in relief of Charles Twiss, who hurled the first two innings. Tackett struck out five batters in picking up his first win of the season. Jervis was the losing pitcher for the Blue Jays.

Tackett had a three-run homer in the game, and Jason Bevins belted a solo shot in the fifth inning.

Thomas Jenkins picked up two RBIs in the fifth inning with a double in going three for three. He also tripled in the first frame. Charles Twiss also had an RBI double in the fifth inning. J.P. Sexton tripled in the fifth inning, driving in a run. Brandon Kinzer, Chris Cornett, Twiss, Tackett and Sexton had two hits each in the contest.

Brian Osborne doubled in the Blue Jays' sixth to score a run. Shawn Leslie had an RBI single in the first inning. R.C. Duff was two for three.

P'burg Indians win two, 5-4, 6-0

It was a good week for the Prestonsburg Indians Little League team as the team won two games in the Prestonsburg Little League. The Indians defeated the Braves, 6-0, and the Cubs, 5-4.

In game one, Bennett Allen struck out 15 Braves batters to lead the victorious Indians to their 6-0 win. Allen's only loss was a 2-0 shutout by the Rangers earlier. Allen also went two for four from the plate as he had a big part in the Indians' offense.

Kevin Porter had a good day at the plate with two hits in three attempts and teammate James Taylor was perfect at the plate with four hits in four at bats.

Seth Shepherd and Matt Trusty each had two hits for the Braves. Trusty was the losing pitcher in the game, however, he recorded 11 strikeouts.

The Indians had five extra base hits in the contest. Josh Branham had a triple and a double. Jason Blackburn and James Taylor each had a double. Porter also hit a two-bagger for the Indians.

In the second game the Indians handed the first place Cubs their first loss of the season in the 5-4 Indian win. Bennett Allen was the winning pitcher for the victorious Indians in going the distance. The win ran Allen's personal record to 3-1 on the season. The big righthander struck out 14 Cub batters.

Jason Osborne started for the Cubs and went the first three innings when he was relieved by his brother, Jeremy. Jason struck out seven batters in his three-inning stint, as did brother

Brewers fall, 13-12; put scare into undefeated Reds

The Prestonsburg Brewers of the Senior League came within one pitch of upsetting the top ranked and undefeated Prestonsburg Reds in baseball action at Archer Park. The Reds scored a run in the top of the eighth inning to hand the Brewers a 13-12 loss.

The Reds came into the game as the first place team with a perfect 5-0 record. The win over the Brewers improved their record to 6-0.

With the score tied 12-12 in the bottom of the seventh inning, the Brewers of coach Ashland Gearheart loaded the bases on Reds' ace pitcher Aaron Tucker. Tucker had come on in relief of Jason Spencer who started the game.

Tucker hit Bryan Allen leading off the inning, and James Joseph was awarded first base because of catcher interference. Tucker fanned Greg Jones and pinch hitter Robbie Risner. Tony Bays drew a two out walk to load the bases. David Gearheart then worked Tucker for a full count and then looked at a pitch down the middle for a call third strike and a third out.

The Reds won the game in their half of the eighth inning, but not before they got caught in their third double play. Clint Shutz walked, leading off the inning. Morris then lifted a fly ball to right field where Matt Goble gathered it in. Shutz was off and running on the pitch and could not recover in time to retreat to first base, and the throw to first doubled up Shutz for a double play.

The Reds were guilty of two other such plays that killed rallies.

With two out in the eighth, Jason Crisp singled to center. Ronnie Goodman walked, and Tucker scored Crisp with a base hit to give the Reds a 13-12 lead. Tucker was caught stealing at third to end the inning.

The last place Brewers looked more like a team battling for the top spot in the effort they put forth. Gearheart's Brewers took a 3-0 lead in the bottom of the first on four hits off Spencer. Corey Reitz, Kevin Crum, Jimmy Stratton and Joseph all singled in the inning, with Stratton and Joseph getting the RBIs.

The Reds made it 3-2 with two in the second on an RBI double by Chris Music and a run-producing single by Jeff Hicks.

With two out in the bottom of the second, Reitz tripled to drive in David Gearheart, who had walked. Reitz scored on Crum's single to center for a 5-2 Brewer lead.

The Reds went ahead, 6-5, with four big runs in the top of the third inning on three Brewer errors. Goodman reached on an error by Joseph at third. Tucker doubled in Goodman and came in to score on Joseph's second error of the inning off the bat of Ben Johnson.

Music followed with an RBI single, and Hicks walked to load the bases. Matt Goble grounded out to third

Reds to hold tryout camp at Ashland for ages 16-22

A tryout camp for baseball players will be conducted by the Cincinnati Reds on Saturday, June 9, in Ashland at the new Boyd County High School Baseball Field at the Boyd County High School.

The camp is open to all boys from 16-22 years of age. High school sophomores and juniors are especially urged to attend.

Reds scouting supervisor, Gene Bennett, will be in charge of the workouts, scheduled to start promptly at 10 a.m. Registration will begin at 9 a.m. and all players participating in the workouts must be registered prior to the 10 a.m. starting time.

Bennett will be assisted by Reds Scouts Don Moyer, Fred Hayes, Jack Bick, Steve Kring, Dave Bennett and Bob Kouns.

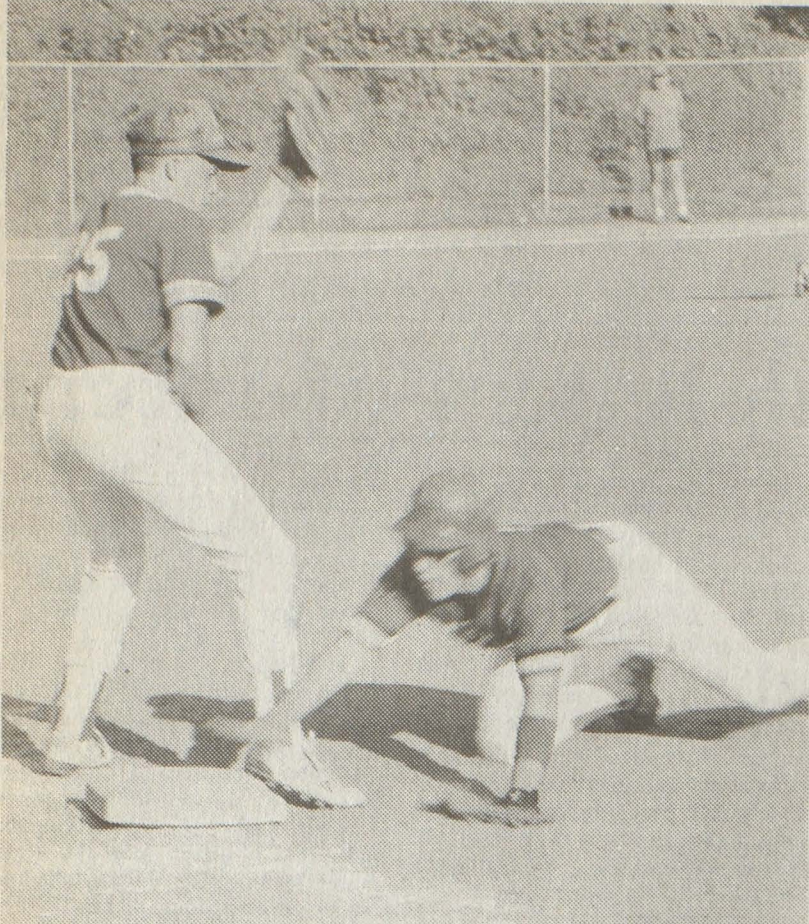

All eligible players are requested to bring their own uniform, glove and shoes. The Reds will furnish all other equipment. In addition, each player will be responsible for his traveling and living expense, if any, unless signed to a contract with the Cincinnati Reds organization.

Players must be 16 years of age to be eligible to participate and all American Legion players must bring written permission from their Post Commander or their Legion Coach in order to try out.

Several of the players now playing baseball in the Major Leagues were first seen at tryout camps such as this one, and any boy seriously interested in playing professional baseball should make every effort to attend this camp.

Close play!

Padres best Rangers, 11-6

Nick Martin had three hits and scored three runs as the Martin Padres defeated a good Martin Rangers team for a battle of second place teams in the Martin Pee Wee League.

The Padres scored six times in the top of the first and went on to record a 11-6 win over the Rangers. The loss by the Rangers tied the two teams for first place behind the Tigers with identical 6-2 records.

Ethan Blackburn had a triple for the victorious Padres. Brian Jones and Dwight McKinney each had doubles.

'Now listen..no more curve balls'

Reds coach Phillip Tucker advises his pitcher Aaron Tucker not to throw any more curve balls. The big righthander was having problems getting the ball over the plate. Tucker threw nothing but fast balls the rest of the way in defeating the Brewers, 13-12, in eight innings. (Photo by Ed Taylor)

Rattlesnakes 'bite' Martin in 11-1 Babe Ruth win

The Harold Rattlesnakes defeated the Martin Expos, 11-1, in Floyd County Babe Ruth action Monday night. Sonny Johnson picked up the win for the Harold team and held the Expos to just one hit.

Johnson had a no-hitter going until the fifth inning when Kenny Scarborough singled for Martin's only hit. Johnson fanned six batters in the route-going performance.

Shawn Newsome had a three-run homer for Harold, as well as a double. Johnson and Chris Potter had doubles in the game.

Potter had three hits in the game. Newsome, Barry Hall, Johnson and James Roberts each collected two hits each.

Harold managed 11 hits in the game and played errorless baseball. Martin was guilty of three miscues. Jeff Kilburn took the loss and needed relief help from Glen Floyd, who came on in the top of the second inning after Harold had scored four times in the first and three in the second. Floyd struck out four batters.

The loss evened Martin's record at 1-1, and Harold improved to 3-1.

PROS ON PORK

Fishermen probably take pigs for granted. After all, they're nothing more than fat, slovenly creatures that wallow in mud while gluttonously dreaming of gorging themselves on such appetizing morsels as snakes, coal, and the all-time favorite, slop.

And think about those delicious, mouth-watering breakfasts of bacon, sausage, or country ham and eggs. And most of the lunchtime favorites that we enjoy while on the water (Spam, Vienna sausages, potted meat, bologna, Penrose hot sausages, pork-n-beans, deviled ham, etc.) come from parts of the pigs better left unmentioned.

But when we stick our fingers into a jar with an opening seemingly designed for toddlers and pluck a chunk of pork rind from a brine solution which instantly reminds you of every hangnail and hook-stick in your fingers, we probably do not think of pigs. But we should.

Of all the things commonly added to fishing lures, none is more popular than the pork rind. And if you're wondering, yes, they are truly made from pigs. Actually, pork rinds are cut from the skin, with the fat intact, along the back of the pig. Strips of this skin are cured for several months, then stamped into various shapes and dyed the appropriate color.

The Uncle Josh Bait Company of Fort Atkinson, Wisc., is the largest supplier of angling pork rinds in the world. The Uncle Josh Company (named for a popular radio comedian of the 1920s) was started by Alan P. Jones and Urban Schreiner back in 1922.

The idea of these port baits

Pork rinds are not only a super trailer for most lures, they are economical as well.

stemmed from a shortage of frogs! Jones and Schreiner had been using live frogs to entice some of the large-mouths on Wisconsin's Jordan Lake. (Live frogs were a popular bass bait in those days.)

But on one summer day in 1920, the fellows could not catch a frog. So they resorted to carving a few fake frogs from a piece of salt pork they happened to have in the boat. And lo and behold, they started catching fish. (Anglers of that era were obviously quite resourceful!)

After experimenting with their creation for a couple of years, the Uncle Josh Bait Company was born. That first frog carved from a piece of saltback was identical to the number 11 pork frog which is so popular today.

A lot has happened since then. Fishing rods are made of boron and graphite rather than bamboo and steel. Tires which were once solid and indestructible are now filled with air and prone to leak. Indoor toilets are now a common fixture of southern houses, and people won't laugh at you for sticking a piece of salt pork on your hook and trying to convince a fish that it is a frog.

Pork rinds are readily available for nearly every species of fish, from tiny bream to boat-sized sharks. But of the three dozen or so patterns of rind, the pork frog series of Uncle Josh baits are by far the most popular. The number 101 is the baby of the bunch and is very popular with smallmouth anglers using a fly-rind.

The venerable number 11 is the most popular of all pork frogs and is the common porcine component of the pig and jig. The Jumbo Frog, number one, is a larger version commonly used when flipping jigs. And the number 10 Big Daddy is a huge hunk of pig favored by saltwater anglers and confident freshwater lunker hunters.

The effectiveness of adding a pork trailer to fishing lures is well known, yet few anglers do nothing more than simply stick a pork chunk on the hook. Not that this is bad, by any means. But those anglers who spend the majority of their time fishing (for lack of an honest job) have developed a few tricks to increase the effectiveness of the pork rind.

Denny Brauer, a BASS pro from Camdenton, Mo., and the BASS 1987 Angler of the Year, says, "When you're using a larger pork frog, fish will often hit the bait so hard that the pork will flip over the hook. Usually it is the legs of the pork that cover the hook point, and this will definitely keep you from hooking the fish. I have found that by splitting the legs of the pork frog, I can virtually eliminate that problem. This also gives the pork a lot more action."

Larry Nixon, winner of the 1982 BASS Masters Classic and all time leading money winner on the BASS Tournament Trail, says, "Put the pork rind on your jig and the fat (or soft) side down. As it rubs against the rock and timber, much of the color in the fat will wear off. If you think about it, every creature that swims in the water has a light colored belly. I think that by presenting your pork with the lighter side down, you are giving the lure a more natural presentation."

Charlie Ingram, a BASS touring pro and three-time national bass champion from Columbia, Tenn., disagrees. "Put the pork rind on your hook so that the fat side is up. Biologists have told me that the top of a fish's mouth is the most sensitive part, so I want the softest part of the pork against the most sensitive part of the mouth."

Jimmy Houston, host of the popular television fishing show, "Jimmy Houston Outdoors," says, "I like to cut part of the fat off of the pork. My favorite way is to start about halfway back on the chunk and cut it at a 45-degree angle up to the very front of the pork. This makes the pork frog wobble up and down on the hook as you bring it through the water."

Pork rinds are not only a super trailer for most lures, they are economical as well. If you will take the time and effort to remove the pork from your bait and put it back into its jar when you are done fishing, it will last indefinitely. I have a few pieces of pork which are older than dirt, but they still catch fish!

So next time you unhook your pig and jig from the mouth of a five-pounder, give the pig a little credit too. Be it a swinely sweetheart of a porcine prince, we fishermen owe that hog a great deal. Until next week, Good Fishing!

June 3-9 designated Safe Boating Week

The Coast Guard announced that in 1989, for the fourth straight year, fewer people died in recreational boating accidents than in the previous year. The fatality count has fallen 36 percent in the past 10 years and has set record lows in each of the past years.

Summertime will soon be upon us and millions of people will be visiting the water recreation facilities and lakes in the state and elsewhere. Most of these people will enjoy themselves and return to their homes safely, but for a few families tragedy will strike.

The fatality count for 1989 was 896, which broke the previous record low of 946 set in 1988. This decline is attributed to an increased boater awareness of the dangers of operating boats while drinking alcohol and the cooperative safety programs of the Coast Guard, the states, volunteer safety organizations and the US Army Corps of Engineers. The number of reported accidents and the number of boats involved in accidents also decreased.

The Coast Guard believes that while reports are made on nearly all fatal accidents, only about 10 percent of non-fatal accidents are reported.

Thinking about water safety is no guarantee against accidents, but it's one of the best defenses available to you.

Drowning can be quick, without a struggle. Many local accidents have occurred in water close to the shoreline and have involved people who have been drinking or have fallen.

The following six rules are safeguards for staying alive.

Stay sober; know your boat; use an approved life vest; don't go alone; watch children at all times; and learn to swim. Follow the six steps to water safety. Your life and the lives of those you care about may depend on it.

J.P. Sexton made a shoestring catch on a line drive hit off the bat of C. Bailey for the Mets, to preserve a 9-7 victory over Maytown with the bases loaded.

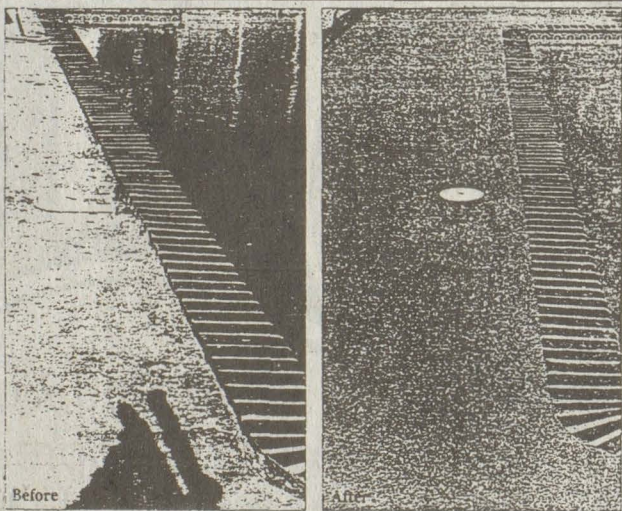

"It was a great catch," says Braves coach Steve Jenkins. "If he misses it, the game is tied or yet we could lose."

Jason Bevins hit a two-run home run in the first inning for the Braves. Bevins also had doubles in the fourth and sixth innings. He had three RBIs in the game.

Chris Cornette got the win for the Braves in relief of Bevins who went three innings. Cornette hurled 2-2/3rd innings, however, Thomas Jenkins came on to record the save. Cornette struck out six batters and Bevins had five.

Brandon Kinzer continued his good hitting with a first inning RBI double. J.P. Skeens had a fourth inning two-bagger for the Braves.

J. Osborne had the Mets' lone hit — a single. C. Martin took the loss and had eight strikeouts.

Bassin' with the pros

Confidence adds to fishing success

The most important ingredient in tournament fishing success is not having the fastest boat, the most modern rod and reel, or an extra tackle box.

Instead, the most crucial ingredient is confidence.

"You absolutely have to have it," says Larry Nixon, a long time member of the Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff and considered by many to be America's most successful tournament angler. His tournament winnings are approaching the $1 million mark, far above his nearest competitor.

"Confidence is one of those hard-to-define abstracts," he says. "You can't really define what it is because it's a combination of a lot of different things, but mainly, I believe it is having faith in your own abilities and decisions. This comes largely from experience, and it grows with success."

One of the most important aspects of confidence, says Nixon, is being able to make a decision to fish a certain area or technique and committing yourself to that decision. Many anglers continually doubt their own decisions, and this in turn influences how they fish.

"This is probably the toughest part of confidence," explains the Evinrude Pro, "because there are literally hundreds of decisions you can make about where and how to fish on any given day."

"You have to decide what you want to do, then do it. You can change later, of course, but you have to change for a reason."

"Naturally, experience is one of the most important teachers in gaining self-confidence. The more fishing experiences you have, the more decisions you have to make, and each time you make the right decision, your confidence grows a little stronger."

Not surprisingly, winning national tournaments helps an angler gain confidence quickly. The most important win in a pro's career, however, is not always the one that brings the most money or prestige, but rather, the very first win.

"This depends, of course, on the angler and the decisions he had to make in winning the tournament," explains Nixon. "If a fisherman wins by making his own decisions, then his first win can really help his confidence."

"If the angler is strongly influenced by other anglers, however, if he doesn't really follow his own instincts and simply gets lucky, then the first win won't be as important to him."

Nixon feels guiding on Toledo Bend helped his confidence because it gave him on-the-water experience, but he also believes anglers who don't guide can also gain valuable self-confidence by simply spending time on the water by themselves.

"Studying fish and how water conditions influence them is extremely important," says Nixon. "The more you study, the easier it is to make the right decisions, the more your confidence grows."

Courts are ready!

The Archer Park Tennis courts received a face lift over the winter and early spring months. The new courts will be open to the public over the weekend and will host First Commonwealth Bank's fourth annual Invitational Tennis Tournament from June 27 through July 8. (Photo by Ed Taylor)

New courts open today

Archer Park to host tennis tournament

According to Kay Willis, the new Archer Park tennis courts will finally be completed and open for business today (Wednesday). The courts were completely refinished, according to the United States Tennis Association standards.

Work on the courts began in the fall of 1989 and because of the heavy rains the work was slowed up. Tennis Tech out of Louisville was awarded the contract and has had problems finishing the courts according to the original deadline because of the heavy rains.

There will be seven courts at the park and Willis says that many people are excited about the opening of the courts.

"We will host First Commonwealth Bank's fourth annual Invitational Tennis Tournament June 27-July 8," she stated.

The tournament will be A, B and C divisions. The B and C divisions will be played from June 27-July 1. The A division will play from July 6-July 8. It will be men's and women's singles in each division and A and B in doubles.

The First Commonwealth Bank Invitational is the largest in Eastern Kentucky, drawing a participating crowd of 140 last season.

"We expect more this year because of the new courts and the fact that people have not been able to play there for awhile," says Willis. "We will play by USTA rules and it will be the best of three matches."

To enter the tournament, call Kay Willis at 886-2552. Entry fee for the tournament is $5 per player. Deadline to enter is June 25 at 6 p.m. for Division B and July 3 at 6 p.m. for Division A.

and Hicks was tagged out at the plate. Spencer walked to load the bases once again, and Tom Wallen followed suit to force in Music. Reitz came on to pitch for the Brewers relieving Crum. Reitz enticed Crisp to pop out.

Coach Phillip Tucker's Reds made it 8-5 with two more runs in the fourth. With two outs, Johnson and Music walked, and both runners scored on a triple by Hicks. Goble struck out, ending the inning.

The Brewers got things a "brewing" in their half of the fourth when they pushed across five runs on five hits. Reitz grounded out to second baseman Goodman, who is going to be a good one. Crum's bouncer back to the mound was mishandled by Spencer. Stratton then singled to left, and Crum scored on a base hit by Allen.

Joseph followed up with a double that scored both Crum and Stratton. Jones then singled for the fourth straight hit driving in Allen and Joseph and giving the Brewers a 10-8 lead.

In the Reds fifth, Spencer walked, and Wallen popped up to the pitcher with Spencer caught off base and doubled up for a double play. With two out, Crisp reached on an error by the shortstop, Goodman walked and Tucker's fly ball to left field was dropped, scoring both Crisp and Goodman to tie the game at 10-10.

The Brewers fell behind, 12-10, when the Reds plated two runs in the sixth inning. Matt Goble reached on an error by David Gearheart and stole second and was wild pitched to third and later to home. Shutz then singled to right and stole second and third. Crisp flied out to center field to score Shutz on the sacrifice fly.

The Brewers were not ready to roll over and quit. With one out, Goble and Bays walked. David Gearheart singled to score Goble. Reitz walked to load the bases, and Bays scored when Stratton drew a bases loaded walk off Jason Crisp to tie the game at 12-12.

Tucker was the winning pitcher and Reitz was the loser. The Reds collected 10 hits and the Brewers 17. The loss dropped the Brewers to 1-4 on the season and the Reds went to 6-0.

will play for last year's 10-0 Cumberland team. Hall, a standout at Wheelwright for coach Roger Johnson, will be a big plus to the Cumberland football program and expects to make an immediate contribution to the program this fall.

Prestonsburg's Chris Slone, although not pursuing a basketball career, will be enrolling at the University of Kentucky pursuing a degree in engineering. Slone has been a leader at the Prestonsburg High School for coach Gordon Parido. Slone helped lead the Blackcats to the Sweet Sixteen last year.

Allen Central's Kevin Spurlock, although not signed as of this writing, is being heavily recruited by Alice Lloyd College and has had feelers out from the University of Louisville. Spurlock is a team leader.

"If someone doesn't get Kevin they are missing the boat," said head baseball coach Anthony Moore.

Spurlock batted .476 for the season with 10 home runs. He is a solid catcher and a good defensive glove man. He is like "having another player on the field," opposing coaches would say of the senior. Spurlock, not only excels in baseball, but is an outstanding basketball player also.

Alice Lloyd College made a good catch when they signed Allen Central's Lady Reb, Jo Ann Conn, who led the Lady Rebels to the district championships this past year, averaging 20 points per game and 11 rebounds.

Her quickness under the basket makes her an almost unstoppable force. She is not only a scorer but can dish off the assists as well.

Rick Conley of Johnson Central will be going to Alice Lloyd on a basketball scholarship. Conley says that he likes the small school and feels that he can get a better education there. "The people there are nice and I like Coach (Jim) Stepp. Also there I won't be just a number."

Conley has tremendous quickness and leaping ability. He is a scorer as well as an assist man. Conley averaged 16 points per game with the Golden Eagles and hauled down 14 rebounds.

Officials camp scheduled for July 8-13 at Pikeville

The first annual Basketball Officials Camp will be held at Pikeville College and Pikeville High School gyms on July 8-13, according to local official and association president Teddy Hall.

The camp will be open to all officials who want to sharpen their skills and fundamentals of refereeing. Hall says that the camp will be geared to help all officials in all phases of refereeing. Positioning, techniques and rules will be the order of the day for all attending the camp.

There will be a 45-minute discussion period at the beginning of each day. Each official will then work with other experienced officials on some weak area of their calling.

The camp will be in conjunction with the Pikeville College high school basketball camp held at the same time.

In the evenings, each official will be assigned games to call at Pikeville High School. Each official will be critiqued by videotape and a private instructor following each game he or she works.

The camp will have some well known speakers, Hall said. John Radjunas, sectional director for the Kentucky High School Athletic Association will be one speaker. Radjunas is also involved with the Kentucky Intercollegiate Athletic Conference as well as the Great Lakes Valley Conference.

Billy Wise, assistant commissioner in the Kentucky High School Athletic Association and a former official in many of the collegiate conferences, will also speak at the camp. Danny Adams, Magoffin County head basketball coach, will be on hand as well as Marvin Moore and Larry Bougher, assigning secretary for the Blue Grass Region officials.

The camp is designed for the experienced and inexperienced referee. If you haven't called any games at all and are interested in officiating, then this camp will help you.

Each official should have a black and white officials shirt, black and white or Navy shorts and black referee shoes. Cost for the week's camp is $30 per official. The hours of the camp are 5 p.m. until 10 p.m. each day.

"We need young referees in our area," says Hall. "Good young officials that's what we are in need of. This may be the last year of volunteer schooling for officials. Next year it will be mandatory. The school will really help a referee. I went last year and I learned more in the week's camp than in five years of officiating."

Hall says the camp will have a bearing on next year's assigned games. "If they have never refereed before, we want them to come to camp," he says. "It is a place they can get their feet wet and not have to worry about a large crowd. It will be a place where they can gain some experience and confidence."

Hall says that the camp will also be a place where new rules and interpretation of rules are discussed.

Jeremy. The Cubs held a 3-0 lead when Jason left the game. However, Jeremy was not able to hold the Indians and took the loss for the Cubs.

Bennett Allen had two RBIs in the contest in going three-for-three. Jason Blackburn and James Taylor were two for three, and Shane Branham also had two hits.

Kyle Bellamy and Jason Osborne had two hits for the Cubs and teammate Adam Baldrige had three hits in three plate appearances. Jason Osborne had a double in the game, as did Jeremy Osborne.

Allen struck out the last three batters in the game in preserving the win. The double win improved the Indians' record to 4-3 on the year.

Dewey Lake to be busy

It's going to be a busy summer at Dewey Lake," says Corps of Engineers Resource Manager Patti Williams, "but we're ready for it." The Corps of Engineers at Dewey Lake has recently opened up recreation areas for the 1990 summer season.

All Corps-operated recreation areas — the dam site, picnic hollow, downstream recreation area, shoreline campgrounds and picnic areas — opened on May 1, except for German Campground is due to open May 25.

In preparation for the summer season, improvements have been made in the recreation areas. A new volleyball court has been installed in the downstream. Men's and women's regulation horseshoe pits and disposal pits for hot charcoal can be found in the downstream and picnic hollow areas.

Security lighting for night fishing near the spillway below the dam has been installed, and all playground equipment is now centrally located.

Future improvements planned include additional security lighting in the downstream for night fishermen and walkers, additional parking and handicapped accessibility to the picnic hollow restroom.

The Corps is presently constructing an additional restroom in the downstream near the playground. According to Manager Williams, "With all the use the downstream recreation area gets, one restroom was not adequate. This second restroom will be closer for the children in the playground and the fishermen."

Once completed, the restroom will be accessible to the handicapped. The restroom should be open for use by July 15.

The Corps has also initiated a ban on beer and alcoholic beverages at the damsite, downstream recreation area and picnic hollow. "The majority of people using Dewey's areas are family or school groups, and we don't want to lose our best resources," says Manager Williams.

The Floyd County Sheriff's department is assisting the Corps Rangers with enforcement.

Corps of Engineer Resource Manager Williams and the Dewey Lake staff are anticipating a busy season. They're gearing up to make sure that the summer is a safe and enjoyable one.

Lady Topper hoops camp offers innovative instruction

Western Kentucky University Lady Topper basketball coach Paul Sanderford has been conducting summer basketball camps on the Hill for seven years.

Tennis tourney is July 30

Young tennis players have the opportunity to participate in a tournament that has become a tradition. The Kentucky Central Life Open Junior Classic will celebrate its silver anniversary in Lexington the week of July 30.

Sponsors for the entire quarter-century have been Kentucky Central Life Insurance Co. and the Bluegrass Tennis Association.

"We feel like we have contributed to junior tennis in Kentucky," says tournament director Brent Clay. "Tennis programs for youngsters weren't very far along when our tournament was started."

The tournament annually attracts boys and girls from throughout the state, with a good blend of novices and tournament-tested players.

Points are awarded for ranking purposes with a sanction from the US Tennis Association.

There is a consolation for the 14, 16 and 18-year old age groups, allowing everyone to play at least two singles matches, plus doubles if they want. Under a recent rule change, 12 and under players now compete on a round robin basis.

The deadline for entries for this year's event is July 16. Entry forms may be obtained by contacting Brent Clay, 798 Glendover Rd., Lexington 40502, or call 606-266-2326.

The majority of matches will be held at the University of Kentucky courts near Commonwealth stadium. Lexington-Fayette County Recreation Department courts may also be used.

Each year, Sanderford and his experienced staff hold week-long sessions for individual campers and varsity teams. This year is no exception, but in addition to an individual camp (June 24-28) and two weeks of team camp (July 1-5 and July 6-10), Sanderford has added a new concept to his schedule, a shooting camp, set for June 29-July 1.

"We're excited about offering a shooting camp for the first time," Sanderford commented. "It will be like a 'shot doctor-type' camp. Each camper will be videotaped when she arrives at camp and then again at the end of the session," Sanderford explained. "They will get an evaluation checklist to continue working on their shooting, plus a copy of their videotaped shooting skills."

The camp is limited to the first 100 applicants. The cost for the week-long shooting camp is only $95 per camper.

According to Sanderford, both sessions of the team camp are already full, however, some spots are still open for the individual camp.

For more information on the Lady Topper basketball camps, or to reserve a spot, contact the WKU Lady Topper basketball office at 502-745-2133.

Bleachers still needed!

The fans at the Minnie Pee Wee park are still waiting the arrival of new bleachers said to be on order. Some of the parents have become upset over the lack of seating at the Pee Wee field. "If you sit down, you have to bring your own seat," said one concerned fan. (Photo by Mike Click)

Kiwanis Club River run to benefit kids

Contestants in this year's running of the East Greenup County Kiwanis Club's Run-by-the-river will be competing for $100 prizes. Runners finishing first in either the men's or women's 10,000 meter race and breaking the TAC certified course record for that event will be prize winners.

The men's record, 31:57, was set by Tom Cherkuck in 1984. The women's record, 39:35, belongs to Melanie Trimble for her effort in the 1988 race.

This year's race will mark the 13th anniversary of the Run-by-the-River, making it one of the oldest races in the Tri-State.

Both the 5,000 and 10,000 meter races will start in front of the Russell Central Elementary School in downtown Russell at 8:30 a.m., June 9. Race day registration will open at 7 a.m. Winners and the first two runners-up in each of 22 age groups in both races will get trophies.

Every entrant will get an all-cotton tee shirt and will be eligible for drawings, including one for a $250 certificate for tires from McKinney Tire Warehouse. Walkers are welcome in the 5K but will not be eligible for trophies. Entry fees are $8 for preregistered runners and $10 on race day.

Major sponsors include Adding-ton Resources and Ashland Petroleum. Proceeds are used by the Kiwanis Club to help underprivileged children. Additional information and entry forms are available from Grant Jensen at (606) 329-5591 or (606) 836-8594. Success of the event is dependent upon how many entrants the race attracts.

Roberts places 7th

Victor Ngubini of South Africa, running for Western Kentucky University, held off Georgia Tech's Brian Crumbo by three seconds to capture the 3.1 mile Glasgow Highlands event.

Ngubini, an All-American at WKU, is but one of the many foreign runners on the crosscountry team. Valerie Vaughn of Dublin, Ireland, won the women's title in 17:52. Vaughn is also a runner on the WKU women's team.

Locally, Rick Roberts, who was in ninth place most of the race, came on strong at the end to finish seventh overall and win his 35-39 age group. The race began as a huge thunderstorm with high winds and lightning rolled in on the runners. Ironically, Vaughn had been struck by lightning as it glanced off a tree the week before.

Has 64 Ks on season

Robinson fans 15 for Reds win over Pirates

You would expect to hear of a high school pitcher with 64 strikeouts in just 28 innings of pitching. Or even a pitcher in the senior leagues or Babe Ruth leagues. But not in the Little Leagues.

That is just what Kevin Robinson of the Martin Reds has accomplished thus far this baseball season. The righthander has fanned 64 batters in 28 innings of work. That averages out to just a shade over two strikeouts per inning.

Headed to his total with a route-going outing against the Garrett Pirates when he recorded 15 strikeouts in his team's 8-4 win over the Pirates. Robinson allowed the Pirates just three hits. Robinson recorded all the outs for his team as he retired 15 of the 18 batters he faced in the six inning game.

Jason Shannon supplied the home run power for the Reds as he hit a solo shot in the fifth inning. Robinson had a double for the Reds in the fifth inning also. Shannon went four for four in the game with two singles, a double and home run.

B. Scott had one of the Pirates' hits and R. Owens tripled with two men on board for two RBIs in the sixth inning. Gary Hunter had a good outing for the Pirates, although he lost the game. Hunter struck out 12 Reds batters in going all the way.

Martin will play the McDowell Stars Thursday in a big league match up. The Pirates will face the Garrett Cubs on Friday evening.

EASTERN KENTUCKY IS SITE OF NEW LAKE

Yatesville Lake, near Louisa in Lawrence County, is currently under construction by the US Corps of Engineers.

Sporting 2,250 surface acres, Yatesville will be twice as large as most of the public recreation lakes in Eastern Kentucky. Impoundment is scheduled to begin in spring 1991.

The lake will be leased to the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

Establishing a largemouth bass fishery is the goal for Yatesville, says Ed Carroll, district fisheries biologist for the fish and wildlife department, and according to the biologist, 15 fish attractors are already marked and in place.

A 350-foot fishing pier will be built on the lake this summer. Designed as a fish attractor itself, the pier will be lighted, paved and accessible to the handicapped.

FISH & WILDLIFE MAGAZINE: DON'T KEEP IT SECRET

Someone recently said "Happy Hunting Ground magazine is Kentucky's second best kept secret." (Apparently, the Game Farm gets top honors.)

The Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources wants you to know about its quality fishing and hunting magazine filled with top-notch color photos and interesting, informative articles about Kentucky's wildlife and the outdoors. (When most people find out about Happy Hunting Ground, they're hooked for life. The Kentucky magazine travels the world with several subscriptions going to servicemen stationed overseas.)

Happy Hunting Ground is quite a bargain at $5 for six issues a year. The popular Kentucky Outdoor Calendar alone, which is the July-August issue of the magazine, is worth the annual subscription cost. Full of wildlife recreation information, the Calendar runs from July through June the following year.

To subscribe to Happy Hunting Ground magazine, send complete mailing information along with a check or money order to Happy Hunting Ground, #1 Game Farm Rd., Frankfort 40601.

FISH & WILDLIFE PANEL TO MEET

The Fish and Wildlife Resources Commission will hold its next quarterly meeting June 11, in Frankfort. Proposals on mandatory hunter education certification and early migratory bird hunting seasons are on the agenda.

The Log Cabin, Part 2

Researching a log cabin on Wilson Creek

by Barbara P. Martin
Contributing Writer

I recall sitting in my car on the Wilson Creek narrow dirt road, looking across the tiny creek at the huge log cabin and hoping it would not burn to the ground, or suffer some such fate until I could find the owner.

In a few days I had found the present owner, Bob Isaac. He granted permission to use it as the subject of my paper. A geography major, Bob showed great interest in my project. The earliest known occupants of the cabin was the S.P. "Doc Bogue" Ratliff family. Bob Isaac is a great-grandson of S.P. His great-grandmother was Becky Allen from Middle Creek. We might be relatives, as my grandmother, Susannah Allen (Howard and later Acree) was from Middle Creek.

My grandmother first married Jack Howard, an evangelist. When he died, she married my grandfather, Samuel Thomas Acree, MD, who has been described as a fine medical internist from Wrigley. But that is another story, much of which has not been investigated yet.

With Bob Isaac's permission, I went to Prestonsburg to research the deed, a beautiful, huge, handwritten document, which states that the place was known as the Polly Ratliff farm. After Polly came Jim Ratliff, then Emery Ratliff (brother to Robert), Robert Ratliff (brother to S.P.), then S.P. "Doc Bogue," who received it upon the death of Robert.

Susie and Johnny Adkins heired it upon the death of S.P.'s wife. Corbin and Lula Adkins purchased it from his mother, Alice Adkins Isaac bought it from her brother, and Bob Isaac bought it from his mother.

The date on the old deed was the 15th day of November, 1897. Located on Wilson's Creek, a tributary of Right Beaver Creek, it touched the property lines of Elizabeth Patton, William Ratliff, William Pratt and James Ratliff. Witnesses were Ferd (spelled F-e-r-d, not Fred), C. Stephens and T.J. Osborne. It was documented before the use of typewriters had become widespread.

Since my stories star Allens, Ratliffs and Martins, it might be practical to interject here that the first typewriter patent was given in 1714 to an engineer in England, but R.T.P. Allen built a model that gave the design to today's machines. He used toy build-

'OR Express' transports tiny cargo

The wheels are turning at Highlands Regional Medical Center and they're rolling in the form of a little, red wagon known as the "OR Express" (operating room).

Parked in a "reserved spot" in the outpatient surgery department at Highlands, the little, red wagon is equipped with a fluffy, soft pillow and warm blanket, all the amenities needed to ensure youngsters of a pleasant and unfeared trip to the operating room, hospital officials say.

The brainchild of Willie Barrowman, CRNA (Certified Registered Nurse Anesthetist), the "OR Express" was implemented for children to lessen the fears that often exist in young ones before they enter surgery.

Nervous children scheduled for surgery procedures experience an immediate transformation when the "OR Express" arrives at their rooms. As the little, red wagon rolls up to their beds, tears are quickly replaced with smiles.

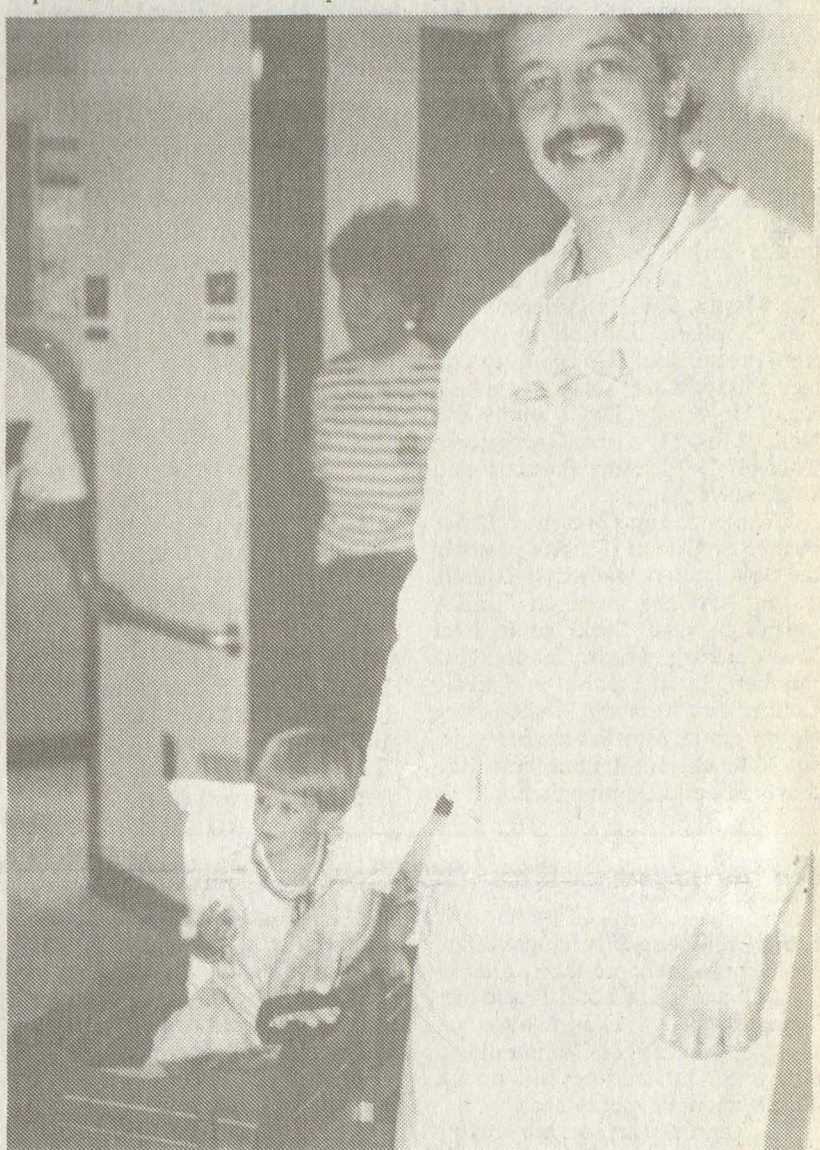

After the surgical procedure is thoroughly explained, the excited youngster is invited to "climb aboard" for the ride to surgery. Then, laden with its small, happy cargo, the "OR Express" slowly winds its way through the hospital corridors in transit to its destination.

Ask anyone who has undergone surgery, and they will tell you what that an operation can be a frightening experience. This is particularly true whenever a child is involved. And, often times, the trip to the operating room is just as traumatic for the family.

Any parent who has experienced the stress associated with their child's fear of surgery, realizes the necessity and importance of a good medical support team in relieving these fears.

Through the initiation of the "OR Express," Barrowman has helped to alleviate this anxiety by reassuring young ones before they have surgery.

On his way

Willie Barrowman, CRNA at Highlands Regional Medical Center, transports patient J.P. Patton to surgery via the "OR Express."

The sizzle of beef filled the air during the Kentucky Beef Cook-Off on April 21. The event, held at the University of Kentucky Home Economics kitchens, brought the top five beef finalists together for a cook-off. These five were selected by the National Livestock and Meat Board Test Kitchens' home economists from 120 entries from across Kentucky. Each entry was judged on taste (40%), ease of preparation/practicality (30%), originality (20%) and appearance (10%).

The impact of three major consumer food trends was evident in this year's Cook-off recipes. The most evident trend was the emphasis on healthy ingredients such as leaner beef cuts. The second trend by consumers is the preference for simple and quick recipes. Generally, today's consumers prefer 10 ingredients or less. Another trend reflected in some Cook-off dishes was the prominence of ethnic flavoring. This year's recipes include two ethnic dishes—one from Indonesia and one from Mongolia.

Plans are to make this a periodic, based on need, project for the club.

Log Cabins

ing blocks for keys.

This newspaper, The Floyd County Times, was begun by Uncle Alex Allen with a toy typewriter, at Allen, Ky., about 1926. The first issues were a page or two in length. They may be seen at Alice Lloyd College's Appalachian Room.

S.P. owned a small portable typewriter which was still in the house at the time of my investigation.

The land boundary was still traceable. The narrowness of the valley allowed me to get a pictorial record of the land. A few subdivisions had been made, but not enough to prevent the viewer from easily seeing the lines. The cabin sat almost exactly one-half way between the beginning and the end of the land. A picture taken at the beginning of the property, where it adjoined the Patton farm, and another at the far end where live the heirs of Allen "Little Doc" Ratliff, gave the pictorial record. Jim Ratliff's land adjoins it at the far end.

Jim was the grandfather of Willie Frasure, whose home is built around Jim's one room cabin. Across from the cabin lives present day Jim Ratliff, a descendant of S.P., being the son of Allen "Little Doc" Ratliff. Jim is one of my old classmates from Maytown Grade School.

The parcel ran from hill top to hill top with the creek in the center. This appeared to be the best way to transfer huge amounts of land in the hills. Sounding like the London Company's grant, alleged to have been given to the Allens, the fact that the Allens appear in the history of the farm leads one to believe it may have been a part of the original grant at one time.

The creek was named for a Mr. Wilson, who I assume was the surveyor for mines and minerals, as the courthouse materials were signed by a Wilson. Word of mouth has it that he was the sole owner of the entire creek until he decided to sell it and leave. Who he was and when that was, no one knew. So we just have to guess.

To really get into the story, I looked for old maps of Kentucky to see what information I could gather there to get the feel of the times. The best reference was an atlas of Kentucky compiled by members of the geography department at the University of Kentucky. Made with the aid of a satellite in space, a photograph of the Appalachian Mountains helps us to understand just how much these early arrivals into our area had to withstand.

Running parallel to the ocean, the mountain ridges look all but impossible to travel.

The settlers could determine the direction in which to go, I am sure, with navigational information and instruments of their day. Traveling was not easy by any mode available — walking, riding horseback or riding in a wagon. Boats were limited in their use; streams deep enough to be traveled did not reach all areas.

Many of the earliest settlers became discouraged because of the perilous trails and turned back, but the sturdy, the determined and the inspired kept on. These were the people whose names we hear when we speak of the old timers in this area.

Such was the case with the Ratliffs. They did not leave the creek because of bad roads. They owned the land, were dug in and they stayed. Today, a blacktop road goes to the end of the Ratliff land.

A map, in the Kentucky atlas, of the earliest Indian and explorer's trails, shows that the trails blazed by the settlers were added to the warrior paths. The drainage map for Eastern Kentucky helped me the most with my assumptions. These out-flowing rivers and streams — the first roads in — did not have the names we know them by today, but they were the same, so was the direction of flow.

The fact that the streams flowed out was an advantage when you did not wish to have trespassers. Information gathered by word of mouth related that intruders into the Beaver Creeks were turned back at gunpoint. Maybe that explains why the map of 1790 reveals only an entrance to the Beavers at present day Allen.

Another interesting fact is that the drainage map which helped the most was compiled by Wilford A. Bladen, who was on the committee that passed me for teacher training at UK. He felt that I should pursue writing also. To my surprise he was an Allen descendant and indicated that his middle name, for many reasons, was exactly that. He is a valuable member of my support group.

Next week: What the cabin looked like. (Editor's note: In last week's installment, a statement on settlers during the 1600s should have read "in the Eastern US woodlands," not Eastern Kentucky woodlands. The author and the editor know this area was not settled until the 1700s. The author was not in error.)

Julia Spears was maid of honor. She wore a pink tea length satin dress with lace overlay. Bridesmaids were Julia Pullium, Linda Settles and Jessica Damron. Junior bridesmaid was Stefanie Damron. They all wore tea length aqua satin dresses with lace overlay to complement the maid of honor. Brittany McKinney served as flower girl. She wore a pink satin dress with lace overlay.

Ushers were Greg Stanley, brother of the bride, Tracy Jones and Elmer Hamilton. Jamie Newsome was junior usher and Justin Akers, who wore white shorts and shirt, was the ringbearer.

The best man wore a black tuxedo with pink bow tie and cummerbund. The ushers wore black tuxedos with aqua bow ties and aqua cummerbunds.

Matthew and Adam Stanley carried the train of the bride's dress. They were dressed in white shirts with black ties and black pants.

KENTUCKY'S WAITING CHILD

Twelve year old Chris likes to spend his free time building models and taking electrical appliances apart - with moderate success in getting them back together! His greatest wish is for a family and home to call his own.

Wee Miss Tri-State

Sheena Marie Williams, three-year-old daughter of Darrell and Valerie Williams of Harold, recently competed in the Miss Tri-State Pageant where she was crowned for beauty and won Miss Sophisticate and photogenic, making her eligible for the state pageant in Lexington. She is the granddaughter of Fred and Barbara Kidd and Ray and Dollie Williams, all of Grethel.

Kentucky has over 275 children waiting for an adoptive family. Like Chris, these children wait in foster homes, if they are lucky. Kentucky has a shortage of foster and adoptive homes for older children.

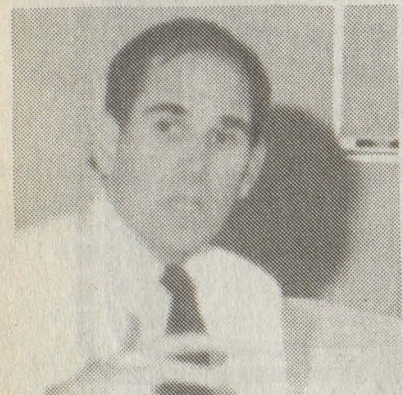

The Department for Social Services is looking for people who can make a commitment to children. You can be single, an apartment dweller, or have a moderate income. There is no fee charged for services.

If you want to make a difference in the life of a child, consider fostering or adoption. For information call:

Breast cancer group learns of options during HRMC program

DR. RALEIGH ARCHER

The "Can Survive" Breast Cancer Support Group from Highlands Regional Medical Center sponsored a presentation on May 10 on "Breast Surgery." Guest speaker was Dr. Raleigh R. Archer, Board Certified Plastic Surgeon from Lexington.

Dr. Archer spoke to a group of women from Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin and Knott counties on the latest techniques in reconstructive breast surgery for post-mastectomy patients and breast augmentation. He discussed the different types of materials such as gels, silicon and urethane used in breast prosthesis and explained the controversies concerning their safety.

Dr. Archer stressed the vital need for regular mammograms of the post mastectomy breast, even after reconstructive surgery. Proper techniques, such as those used in the Breast Center, can obtain a clear picture of the remaining breast tissue, nipple and muscle wall to insure the absence of any new malignant cells.

Over 25 women attended the program presented jointly by the Can Survive Group and the Breast Center at Highlands. Presentations such as this one, are part of the Breast Center's educational services on breast cancer.

For more information on breast cancer, the support group or the Breast Center, contact Denise Queen, RN, nurse educator in the Breast Center at Highlands, at 886-8511, ext. 160, or 1-800-533-HRMC, ext. 160.
