Teachers ask for 20% pay increase, board approves 15

by Pam Shingler
Editor

Representatives of Floyd County teachers Wednesday night requested a 20 percent pay increase from the Board of Education, but board members tempered the request by approving five percent less.

William "Bud" Reynolds, acting president of the Floyd County Teachers Association, said teachers want a 10 percent increase above the 10 percent mandated by the state legislature's education reform bill, HB940.

Reynolds, reading a prepared statement during the public comment segment of the monthly meeting, said that increased taxes this year will take almost all of the mandated 10 percent raise, leaving teachers with one half of one percent extra.

"Other districts have been willing to support their teachers by granting them a pay raise in addition to the mandated 10 percent," Reynolds said. The large crowd present, mostly teachers, applauded.

The board did not address the salary issue until near the end of the two-and-a-half hour meeting. Floyd County Schools Superintendent Ron Hager presented the board with two options for teacher pay raises. Option one, he said, included a 10 percent increase as required by the state, and option two, which he recommended, tacked on an additional five percent.

The 15 percent increase, Hager said, would mean an average increase of $3750 per teacher. That would put the highest paid teacher's salary at $32,760 per year and a beginning teacher's pay at $19,910.

Hager's second option, making the total increase come to 15 percent, is contingent on the board's ability to raise additional revenue through taxes, at which time the state has promised to kick in more money. The recently passed education reform package offers monetary incentives to school districts that generate more money through tax revenues.

"If funds are not there, you can't commit them," Hager told the board and the audience. "If funds are there, you could go greater than 15 percent."

"We should look at the revenue we have coming in and give teachers the highest rate possible," said board member James Duff, who received audible approval by the audience.

Board chairman Dr. James D. Adams said the board has received a letter supporting increased tax revenues from the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce. "This tells me the business community is willing to go to that level to help children in our county," Adams said.

After the meeting, FCEA spokesman Reynolds said that 15 percent is an unacceptable pay increase for teachers in the county. "Other counties have settled, but we're still waiting," he said.

"Teachers are committed to going after more," said Wheelwright High School teacher Carol Stumbo, who also read a statement during the public comment segment. "If we are able to get this (20 percent total), it would do a great deal for our own self respect."

"We have kept this system going for a long time," Stumbo said following the board meeting. "Maybe just going on isn't the answer to our problems."

OTHER SCHOOL EMPLOYEES
The board also approved an average 10 percent increase for non-teaching employees. Pay for substitute teachers, especially, received a boost — almost double previous rates. Hager said the new salary schedule for substitutes will go as high as $84 per day for retired teachers who serve as substitutes and will start at more than $40 for beginning substitutes who have a minimum of 80 hours of college.

The board also gave the go-ahead to next term's recommended calendar. Aug. 15 will be the official opening day, with the first day for students on Aug. 16. Barring major disruption of the schedule, schools will close for the 1990-91 school term on May 20.

Schools will be open during the state basketball tournament, unless a Floyd County team is in the tournament.

Under state mandate, the board approved the search for a person to fill the new position of director of assessment, research and student services. "I don't recommend adding to the central staff," said Hager. "We've had enough criticism on that. But this could be one of the most important positions in a school district."

The board authorized Hager to create a job description, advertise and "see what happens."

On Hager's recommendation, board members voted to require persons planning to retire to notify the board by March 15 of the year in which the retirement is to be effective.

The board also decided to name the new Garrett/Wayland school the James A. Duff Elementary School in honor of longtime board member Duff.

The superintendent asked the board to okay the use of the vacant Wayland school for offices for support services and for storage. The request was approved.

Approval was also given for the low bid, submitted by G&S Construction, for the construction of lights for

One person was badly injured in this two vehicle accident Wednesday morning. Terry Boyd, 24 of Langley was transported to Highlands Regional Medical Center by members of Respond Ambulance Service. Boyd was later flown by helicopter to the UK Medical Center. The accident occurred when Boyd's pickup truck collided with a lowboy trailer near the intersection of US 23 and Route 80 at Watרגap. Tennessee Man Drowns at Dewey

Members of the Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad report that an Ashtabula, Tenn., man drowned earlier this week at Dewey Lake.

Randy Lakins, 22, was reportedly swimming in the lake with a group of friends when the drowning occurred.

Rescue squad members received a call of a possible drowning from park officials at 8:30 Tuesday evening, and found the body within 15 minutes of initiating dragging operations.

Twenty members of the rescue squad responded to the scene and reported that Lakins' body was found in about 15 feet of water.

The Lone Corn Stalk

This lonely stalk of corn was spotted by Prestonsburg residents this week. The stalk is growing in a crack in the pavement at the exit to the Prestonsburg Municipal Building. Workers in the building say they have considered putting a protective screen or other object around the stalk in order to see how much growth the corn plant will achieve. (Photo by Tim Preston)

Longer day for students

Beginning next fall, students in Floyd County public schools will be in class an extra half hour.

The board of education at its Wednesday night meeting voted to extend the school day from the previous six hours to six hours and 30 minutes of instruction.

Six hours of instruction is the minimum required by the state, Superintendent Ron Hager told the board. "We're at the lower end for accreditation," he said, "and we could be in serious trouble for funding."

Hager pointed out that Betsy Layne Elementary School already has six-and-a-half hours of instruction per day.

New changes

Jenny Wiley Story comes to life

by Kathleen Carroll
Contributing Writer

The word is out. Even if you've seen "The Jenny Wiley Story," you have not seen "The Jenny Wiley Story." Many Eastern Kentucky natives and frequent visitors know the legend of Jenny Wiley, and have seen the play which is produced each summer at the Jenny Wiley Theatre. On Tuesday night "The Jenny Wiley Story" opened to the largest audience this season, but with a few changes. The result is stunning.

"I was really excited about it," commented the theatre's general manager Tedi Vaughan, "I thought it was a wonderful show, a much more energetic, exciting, dramatic interpretation of the show we've been doing."

According to Vaughan, the board began discussing the need for changes in the play last fall. "We thought the show was not what it ought to be, considering how often we do it," she added.

Vaughan described some of the changes the board wanted to make, "we wanted more lively moments, more dancing and more singing, especially in the scenes where the settlers gather together." For example, during some of the more exciting scenes, the Indians come pouring out of the woods and tumbling over the

Body Discovered at Goble Roberts

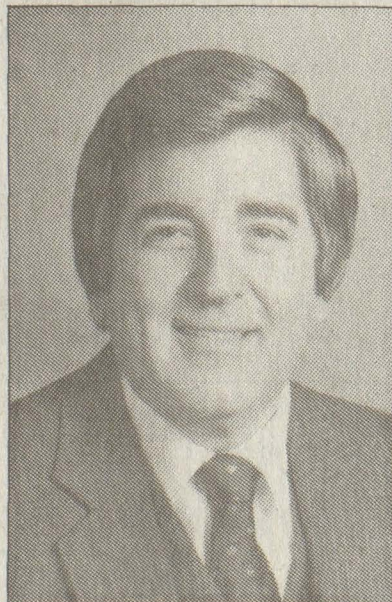

An 18-year-old Goble Roberts man was found dead in his apartment Wednesday morning.

Prestonsburg Police officers had been contacted by relatives of the man who were concerned because they could not contact him. Police Sargent Jim Mullins and Patrolman Mike Conn went to the scene at Highland Heights apartments and discovered the body of Buddy Joe Martin, 18, formerly of Estill.

Prestonsburg Police Detective Sargent Jeff Stumbo said that preliminary reports indicated that the man had been dead for approximately 36 hours before being discovered by the police officers.

The body was sent for an autopsy and the cause of death is undetermined at this time. Martin's death is still under investigation by Detective Stumbo and Coroner Glen Frazier. Foul play is not suspected.

Funeral services for Martin will be conducted today at 1:00 pm at the Hall Funeral Home.

Chamber speaker

Judge Ray Corns, whose Franklin Circuit Court decision led to Kentucky's latest education reform attempt, will be the guest speaker at the annual banquet of the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce on June 21. The banquet is set for 6:30 p.m. at May Lodge of Jenny Wiley State Resort Park. Corns' landmark decision that the state's schools failed to offer equal educational opportunities spurred the state legislature and the governor to initiate and pass House Bill 940, a sweeping revamp of the public school system. Tickets are available from any Chamber member.

Hot Humid Weekend

The weatherman has predicted a hot humid weekend. Today is expected to be sunny and warm with a high in the upper 80's. Tonight look for mostly clear skies with a low near 60 degrees. Saturday is supposed to be very hot and humid with highs in the mid to upper 90's, with the low Saturday night between 65 and 70 degrees. The extended weekend outlook calls for more hot and humid days with a chance of thundershowers on Monday. Low temperatures through the weekend should be in the mid to upper 60's.

Take a look at the book

Floyd Countians have the opportunity to take a look at what this county's own history book will look like by perusing sample copies from other counties at several area locations.

County history books similar to the one Floyd County is producing are on display at Prestonsburg Community College library, Highlands Regional Medical Center gift shop, Bookworm, Archer Senior Citizens Center, and Conley's Kentucky Food Store in Garrett.

The Floyd County Historical Society, which is supervising the publication of the Floyd County history, encourages residents to examine the books. The project is part of this county's participation in Kentucky's bicentennial celebration in 1992.

Let's go to camp There's still time for area young people to sign up for 4-H Camp, according to Willard Knipp, county extension agent for 4-H/Youth Development.

The camp is set for June 25-29 at Camp Diederich at Rush, for ages 9-14. For information, call the extension office at 886-2668.

Perry murder victim had ties in Letcher

WHITESBURG — Police say a murder victim whose body was found near the Perry-Letcher county line was seen in the Isom area the day he disappeared. An autopsy has shown John "Mugsy" Cummings Jr., 64, of Vicco, was probably murdered two to three days before his body was found near an illegal garbage dump in the Leatherwood area. Cummings was killed by a sharp blow to the head. The case is currently under investigation by the Kentucky State Police at Hazard. (The Mountain Eagle)

Ashland workers vow action against suits

KENOVA, W.Va. — About 150 sign-carrying Ashland Oil employees got a firsthand legal briefing Tuesday night when they crowded into a meeting of litigants discussing lawsuits against the company. The majority of the workers said they were salaried employees and not union members. Ashland's employees will retain a lawyer and will organize to challenge the people suing the company, according to Ron Wallace, an employee. (Ashland Daily Independent)

Judge orders picks and shovels for mine reclamation

FRANKFORT — A Franklin circuit judge has ordered two Letcher County men to reclaim a mine site with "shovels, picks and axes," but the men say the judge's order is impossible. John W. Madden, 43, of Blackey and his brother-in-law Randy Shepherd, 25, of Letcher, say there is no way they can comply with the order. Madden has calls in to the American Civil Liberties Union, hoping they will defend him against what he terms "cruel and unusual punishment." (The Mountain Eagle)

Warfield Liberty Festival announced

WARFIELD — June 14-16 are the scheduled dates for the Liberty Festival in Warfield, featuring a Gospel Sing, a street dance, a 2.5 mile fun run, a parade and many other events. Call the Warfield Town Hall at 395-6423 for more information. (The Martin Countian and Mercury)

Officer suspended after investigation

Officers at the Kentucky State Police Post at Pikeville have confirmed that a trooper has been suspended after a woman filed a complaint during the Memorial Day holiday. The woman told investigators that she witnessed an on-duty officer and another man engaged in an illicit encounter in the trooper's vehicle near a cemetery. Both men have denied the allegations, saying the officer was involved in a theft investigation at the time and nothing of a personal nature occurred between them. (Appalachian News-Express)

Carter schools' boss quits

GRAYSON—Carter County schools' Superintendent Dwayne Cross said Tuesday that he will resign June 30 to take a similar position in his native Iowa. Cross' year in Carter County has been marked by construction on three major schools projects, by litigation against the board and by efforts to meet state-mandated changes in the educational program. The Carter County Board of Education says that they expect to hire a new Superintendent before Cross leaves. (Ashland Daily Independent)

Freeburn man killed in W.Va. accident

EDGARTON, W.Va.—A Freeburn resident was the victim of a fatal accident Monday evening at 5:45 p.m. in the West Virginia community. Thomas Lee LaCourse, 23, lost control of his motorcycle after hitting gravel on the roadside and went off the road, striking a steel cable strung between two poles. LaCourse died of head and chest injuries. He was pronounced dead at the Williamson hospital. LaCourse was riding with a group but no one saw the accident. (Appalachian News-Express)

Supporting local industry new group's goal

ASHLAND—Organizers of a new group formed to support local industry in the wake of a $10.3 million verdict against Ashland Oil Inc. in a pollution lawsuit last month say they represent a "silent majority" of area residents. This group, Sound Environmental Economic Development, is being organized to "positively support the existing business and industry" and promote the area as "environmentally sound, pro-business and pro-growth," said Richard Reames, co-chairman of the group. (Ashland Daily Independent)

State raises tuition at vocational schools

ASHLAND—The idea of raising tuition to attract students may seem a contradiction, but it's one reason the state is increasing costs at its vocational schools. The theory seems to be that by charging more for a product, people will think that the product is better. The theory will be tested beginning July 1, when the tuition rates at the state's vocational schools, including Mayo State Vocational-Technical School in Paintsville, rise from $176 to $300. Registration fees will increase from $20 to $35. (The Courier-Journal)

1 dead, 1 injured in Breathitt gunfight

HAZARD—An argument early yesterday in Breathitt County ended in a gunfight that left one man dead and another in the hospital, according to state police. Jesse James Thorpe, 43, and Jerry Johnson, 37, both of Jackson, were drinking at the home of Johnny Salyers Jr. about 4 miles from Jackson. Thorpe and Jackson argued and then began shooting. Thorpe was pronounced dead on the scene and Johnson is in satisfactory condition at the UK Chandler Medical Center. No charges have been filed as of Tuesday. (Lexington Herald-Leader)

Judge defends 911 surcharges

PAINTSVILLE—A surcharge levied against Johnson County residents to help pay for equipment for the proposed 911 emergency telephone system was defended by Judge Executive Gail Gillem last Friday, despite an ongoing dispute between city and county officials over the system's management. Gillem's comments came in response to claims that the 98-cent surcharge included on the residents' monthly bill was illegal. (The Paintsville Herald)

Barger accepts sentence for cocaine charges

HINDMAN—A 28-year-old Knott County woman has agreed to a plea bargain sentence giving her the largest sentence in the county for a drug violation, according to a county prosecutor. Susan Lake Barger of Hindman accepted prison terms of seven years and five years Monday after pleading guilty to two counts of trafficking cocaine. The prison terms are to run concurrently. (Troublesome Creek Times) the football field at Allen Central High School. The bid, which gave two options, was $41,790 for lights with aerial lines and $44,782 for underground lines. Completion is to be prior to the opening of football season.

In his treasurer's report, Assistant Superintendent Russell Frazier said the district's balance as of the end of May was $436,089, plus investments.

In the public comment segment, Delores Smith, representing the Floyd County Education Forum, asked for greater community and teacher involvement in decisions affecting the schools.

"We simply want to see how far this system can go in a working-together atmosphere," Smith said. "We all want to participate. We want to learn about school budgets, we want to learn about site based management, we want to learn about programs that work well, we want to try different approaches.

"I hope you will make every effort to open this system up and let teachers and the community be part of the decision making."

Hager said he "would not hesitate to form a committee of board members, citizens, teachers to insure wisely budgeting funds."

In response to questions about the status of construction of Allen Elementary School, the board authorized Hager to meet with the board attorney to discuss performance bonds and recourse in dealing with contractor delays.

The board will have a special "clean up" meeting for the end of the fiscal year on Wednesday, June 20 at 6 p.m. at Prestonsburg High School.

Carol Stumbo's remarks to Board of Education

The first years that I taught were in old stone building. The room wasn't modern. The chairs were old; the blackboard almost impossible to write on, but some twenty years later, that is not really what I remember the most about that experience. What I remember as important is what happened between the students and myself in that classroom—what we thought we could do together. In the end, that is really all that is important because no matter what people may say or think, education is not buildings, it is about administration. It is not even about this board of education. It is about what happens when a group of students and a teacher sit down together for the purpose of learning. It is about what that teacher believes about her own abilities and what that teacher think students can do.

This past year, I watched students from the high school where I teach win two of the four categories in the writing contest for our county literary magazine. The writing was all judged by outside people. Now that is something that should not have happened, not at the school where test scores are at the lowest in the district. But it did happen and it happened because two teachers at our school believe in what their students can do. Somehow we have gotten things all turned around in this county. Somehow we have lost sight of what really goes on in a school district on a day to day basis. I have listened to so many people this year talk about the welfare of the children in this county—about how everything is being done for the "good of the children".

If this system cares about the children in this district, it must start acknowledging the fact that the welfare of the children is tied in a very real way into what happens to the teachers in this district. For the good of the children in this district:

1. You must seek out the best teachers that you can find and you must pay them accordingly. If you want workers—people who think of themselves in very limited ways, then what you pay them does not matter. You get what you are willing to pay for.

2. Provide teachers with the help and the assistance to continue to grow professionally once those teachers are hired because the work that they do is the most important thing that's happening in this system. Teachers need to be sent to professional conferences. You also need to provide teachers with the very best help that you can find, people who come with a strong knowledge of content and teaching methods. If it takes more money to attract those people, if they truly help us become better teachers, there is nota teacher in this system that would complain about money being spent in that way. We do complain when we see money being spent and nothing coming of the results.

3. Discriminate about the quality of the work being done. Praise those teachers that do a good job. Exercise the responsibility that you have to supervise and evaluate teachers. If weak teachers can not be improved or be helped through this district's efforts, then do not allow them to remain in the classroom. Good teachers suffer when the poor ones are permitted to remain in the classroom without performing. They destroy the credibility of those of us who are working hard. You have the power to make sure that children are not cheated by exercising your responsibilities to supervise wisely so that when a teacher has to be fired, that your motivations are beyond question.

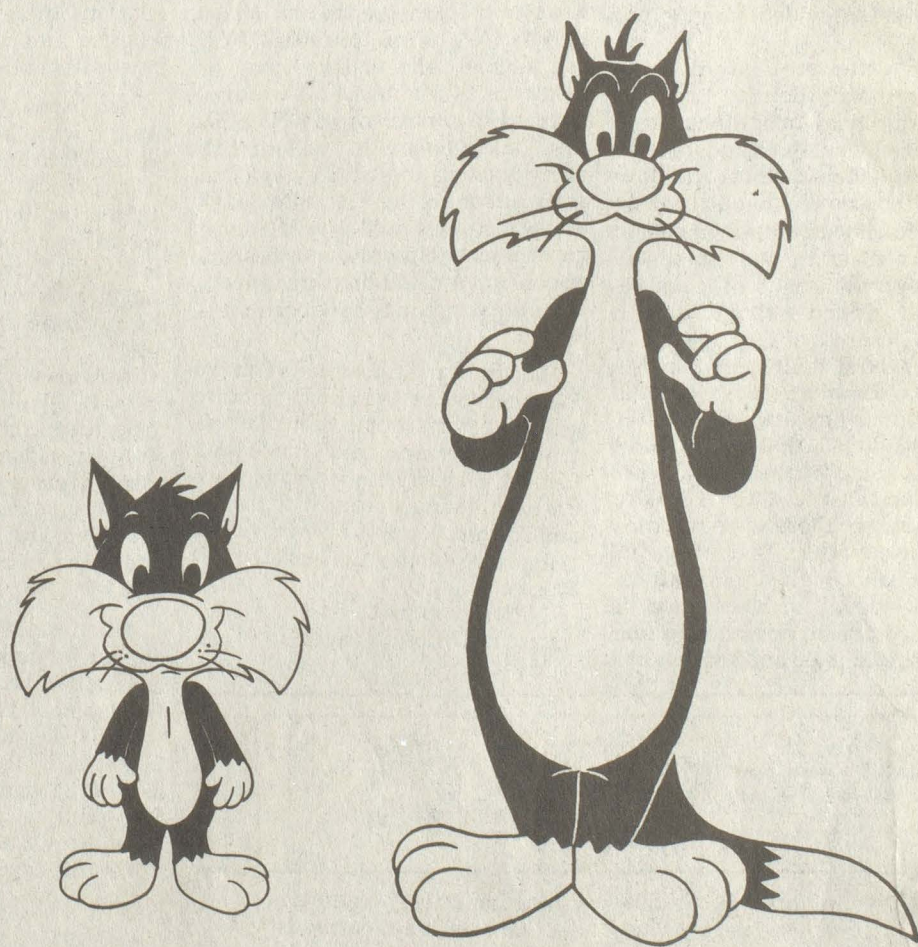

4. Take an interest in what is happening in the classrooms. I have conducted a writing program here in this county for the past four years in part because of Mr. Hager's support, but at not time has there ever been an administrator or supervisor in the meetings that we have conducted for teachers. Kids at Wheelwright last year were engaged in an exciting telecommunications projects. I invited people to come look at what we were doing. No one came. They did go elsewhere though to look at what other teachers and students were

HAPPY FATHER'S DAY
The ideal family is father, mother and kids, something like the Huxtables or the Cleavers or the clan of Father Knows Best or Donna Reed.

Once upon a time I thought those types of families were the norm and most of the folks I knew were abnormal because their families and their parents weren't perfect. Now, I know that if any family came even close to those television images, it was rare. And today, it's increasingly hard to find or to emulate.

More and more kids are growing up without their fathers around to warrant comparison with Cliff Huxtable or Jason Seavers. I was one of those kids, but I was one of the luckier ones. I was fortunate enough to have two uncles who came closer to being a father to me at different times in my life than many blood sires.

One is my blood aunt's husband. He didn't take me to raise, but I'm sure there have been times he thought he had. His youngest son and I were almost inseparable as we grew up, truly as close as brother and sister, and Randall was generous enough to share his dad with me.

Uncle Elmer included me when we all walked — nine altogether — to the Sipp or Royal Theater on Saturday nights when we all were young. There was always room for me when we piled into his car for Sunday outings to Dewey Lake.

Many's the time he reached into his pocket and counted out coins equally for Randall and me. And I guess he never minded all those countless times he came home from the mines to see my smiling face at his supper table.

A shy man, not given to much talk, he was never the type for hugs and cuddling. And sometimes he seemed a little overwhelmed by the rowdiness and loud affection of his wife's extended family. But his love was always known. (How else would he have put up with us?)

More than three years ago when I was considering coming back home after what seemed a hundred years being away, I asked Uncle Elmer if I could move into the little house behind his and my aunt's. I had put the question off as long as possible, fearing he might hesitate in answering.

I'll never forget the reaction of this silent, undemonstrative, unemotional man. There was silence for what seemed like minutes while I regretted the asking. He slowly took off his cap, brushed his hair back, looked to the side, then at me. In a quavering, low voice, he said, "Now, Pam, you know you're as welcome as the flowers in May." And then he brushed a tear from his eye.

This man, who seldom spoke and certainly seldom with emotion, had said the sweetest words I'd ever heard him utter. Back in Pennsylvania when I tried to relay the incident to friends, it was always with tears and always knowing that I could not quite convey how truly special the moment had been.

In the years since I came back, he and I have grown even closer. We've sat on the porch, just the two of us, and he's told me stories from his childhood in Auxier and of his mining work there and in West Virginia and Right Beaver and Breathitt County, talking to me as much probably as he's ever talked to anyone other than his wife. We've taken frequent walks up the holler he was able to buy only after retiring from more than 40 years in the mines. We've worried silently together when my aunt has been sick and the strength we've both relied on has ebbed. We've picked weeds together and have poked our noses under the tractor hood, trying to figure out how to make it purr. We've picked up apples and chopped down cattails. And we've both loved a rambunctious elkhound, two black cats and a wonderful, sometimes unruly, wife and aunt.

If not my father by blood, he is in spirit and I love him.

My mother's brother has likewise, at different times, been as much father as uncle. When I was a sassy, feisty little girl, he and his new wife, Aunt Bea, treated me more like their child than a bratty niece. He still laughs about the time they took me to the carnival and were shocked when I didn't like my first taste of cotton candy. (I still don't like it.) He used to remind me occasionally of the black patent leather shoes they gave me, but which I ungratefully complained hurt my feet.

When Uncle Dan and Aunt Bea moved to Ohio and had three sons, Uncle Dan always found room for me to visit during the summers, even though space and money were always at a premium. When I graduated high school and could not afford the typical college tenure, he let me stay off and on with them to attend the University of Dayton and Wright State University, treating me as his own offspring. He waited up, with Aunt Bea, when I came home from a second shift job, having had to take the last bus of the night. He never had a job worthy of his intelligence or his dedication, but he always had room for me.

I suppose, too, I always felt a special kinship to Uncle Dan because of his generosity, his gentleness and his love of reading. He's always appeared to take life in stride, although, sharing that image, I know he takes it very hard. And one of my favorite memories of him will always be of his total absorption in a book, despite whatever is going on around him. Some would take that as a negative, but to me it's most admirable.

Some of my affection for and closeness to Uncle Dan, I think, has to do with the stories I've heard my mother and aunt tell of their father, whom they revered. Uncle Dan, it seems to me, is very much like his namesake. All my life I've soaked up stories about the gentleness, energy and bookishness of my grandfather whom I never knew. Uncle Dan is my tie to his image.

Happy Father's Day, Elmer Webb and Dan Ward Jr. Thank you for being my fathers.

Good job Floyd County

Dear Editor,
As the end of the field and office operations of the 1990 Decennial Census approaches, the staff and management of the Ashland District Office wish to acknowledge both the Floyd County Times of Prestonsburg and the residents of Eastern Kentucky for their cooperation and support which was so evident during our operations.

While there were a few instances where minor problems occurred during our field operations, there were many tens of thousands of cases where people demonstrated their love for their country and their patriotism by filling out their questionnaires and returning them in a most timely manner. In thousands of cases, respondents added written notes in order to ensure that the Census Bureau received all the information they needed to compile accurate population and housing statistics.

More than 195,000 questionnaires were distributed in the 23 counties of the Ashland District. Over 128,000 or 65.3 percent of those were returned by mail to our office. That return rate is appreciably higher than the national average. This has helped us keep the cost of our operations under what was budgeted and has resulted in significant savings of our tax dollars.

Especially worthy of note, were the contributions of the Floyd County Times. Your articles about the Decennial Census did much to increase Census Awareness and aided us measurably in our efforts to recruit both field and office employees. In total, more than 1000 people have been employed in the Ashland District.

There are three more operations planned between mid-June and October to help ensure that no one is missed. "Were You Counted?" Will ask anyone who believes they or members of their household were not counted to contact us at 1-800-999-1990. "Field Followup" will recheck every housing unit which was listed as vacant or delete. "Local Review," the last of these will give the local governments (cities and counties) the opportunity to add housing units to the count which may have been overlooked.

The field and office staffs and the managers of the Ashland District are grateful for the cooperation of Eastern Kentuckians and the Floyd County Times. With your help, we are completing the most thorough and accurate Census ever in the 200 years since the first Census.

Sincerely,
—Nick Raybourn,
District Office Manager

Who's a Hillbilly?

Dear Editor,
This letter is in support of Kim Frasure's column of June 1 where she defended "hillbillies" and Eastern Kentucky against whomever the yahoo was who slammed her because of her accent. Accent is not anywhere near the issue, but depth of heart certainly is. Kim and her family certainly have to know that I undoubtedly win, hands down, "the most big-cited northern Yankee" award with stints in Chicago, San Francisco, Los Angeles and what was her Aunt Janet's last home, Detroit.

Yes, I spent the nine best years of my life with Janet Scheiderich, nee Little, of Price and we buried her back in Price this May. I would also like to add that my final resting place will be next to her in the peaceful green hills of Eastern Kentucky as well as state that the most supportive people during my time of need were "hillbillies."

Anyone who wants to take a shot at the "hillbillies" of Eastern Kentucky has to come over me first. Kim's Aunt Janet charmed the socks off of absolutely everyone she ever met. The people at her memorial service here in Detroit, and her dear friends who grieve in Chicago, are testimony to that.

Janet was the most loving and wonderful person on earth, hillbilly label be damned. If Janet is the model, we should all be hillbillies.

Tell the yahoo to go soak his head in the "poo." If "Hillbilly" is as good as it gets, I want in.

Sincerely,
—William A. Scheiderich

Per Dillon's letter, "How dare complete strangers attack an individual such as Mrs. Rider..." Might I remind Dillon that Rider and himself are "complete strangers to Mrs. Ritch, and that it was Rider who fired the first salvo? Might I also remind Dillon that God gave man (and woman) free will; that our God (I don't know about his and Rider's) is a loving and forgiving God, as a good Parent should be toward His children. It is assumed we worship the same God, and we, Paul Jordan, Harry Goodin and myself, did not take God's name in vain."

However, one single protest stands out in Rider's and Dillon's letters: "... front page..." Boris Pasternak's translation of Hamlet, 1946, says it best:

"I am alone; all draws in the Pharisees' hypocrisy..."
And St. Jerome said,
"It is no fault of Christianity that a hypocrite falls into sin."

It is crystal clear that neither Rider and Dillon would have had anything to say if the alleged "obscenity" had been tucked away — somewhere between the obituaries and the used car ads — and not, as both have protested, on the front page. For them, one last word:

"Judge not, lest ye be judged."

Lauds Scholtz

Dear Editor,
I read with interest and agreement the article that Pam Shingler, Editor of The Floyd County Times wrote on the Rev. Quentin Scholtz, pastor of the First United Methodist Church, Arnold Avenue, Prestonsburg.

I have worked with Rev. Scholtz on several projects, clubs, etc. and I must say our loss in Floyd County will be Danville's gain. If only Floyd County had more people of Rev. Scholtz's character, love, drive and compassion!

I wish him God's speed.

Dear Editor,
May 16, 1990: "I am appalled that you have chosen to print an obscenity on the front page of your newspaper..." Julianne Rider.

June 6, 1990: "Mrs. Rider's letter was against obscenity being published on the front page of The Floyd County Times. I fully endorse her view..." Richard Dillon.

It is assumed Rider and Dillon are Christians; per our Constitution, as citizens of our great nation, so far still undivided under one God, it is their right to express their opinions, as it is

Kim's Korner

By Kim Frasure

A couple of nights ago, my husband and I spent a while traveling back and forth from the car to the house packing groceries, books and few other sundry items.

After completing least favorite task of putting away the groceries, we both sat down to read our perspective material.

There he sat with his "MS-DOS Advanced Applications" book, peeking over the top with one of those "you dumb woman" grins on his face, staring a hole through me.

"What's your problem?" I ask.
He began to laugh out loud "Spouse, Spouse, Spouse," he said.

"What already?"
"We made ump-teen trips into this house carrying all these books and there you sit reading 'Soap Opera Digest'"

"Well excuse me," I said. "can I help it, if all our blank VCR tapes are now filled with those ridiculous Star Trek shows."

"Star Trek is good," he says.
"So is Santa Barbara, Another World and Days," I counter.

"Star Trek is adventurous!"
"Oh, and I suppose soaps aren't! I've already missed Cruz and Eden boarding the Orient Express bound for Venice, Italy, unaware that some mystery man is following them. And I can guarantee you, he won't have pointed ears, green skin or come from another planet."

FATHER'S DAY

Many of us will be wishing our dads a Happy Father's Day this weekend. I'd just like to take a few lines here to wish mine a very happy Father's Day. Love You Daddy.

Also, seeing as how Hallmark, as far as I know, hasn't come up with a Father-in-laws Day, I'll just say a Happy Father's Day to you too, Father-in-law!

As for my daughters' father, they would like it if included was a wish for their daddy to have a happy Father's Day, with love from Ashleigh and Tiffany.

A good weekend to you all.

What to know about bicycle safety

By Robert Engelman
Scripps Howard News Service
Even if you never fall off, bicycling can be a pain and a hazard for regular riders.

Which is a shame, because pedaling is one of the best exercise around, burning hundreds of calories per hour and available to anyone with two wheels and a clear stretch of pavement.

Leaving aside collisions and falls, regular biking can spur chronic injuries causing pain in the hands, wrists, neck, shoulders and knees.

The constant pressure of a hard seat on groin and backside can even lead, in extreme cases, to male impotence, according to Dr. Michael Chapman, chairman of the American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgeons' trauma committee. Other hazards are hematuria (blood in the urine) and urethritis (inflammation of the urethra).

The best way to avoid such problems, Chapman advises, is to make sure rider and bicycle fit each other. The seat should tilt slightly downward, and there should be about two inches between the groin and top bar of the frame when the rider straddles the bicycle.

The seat should be high enough so that when a pedal is at the bottom of its stroke, the leg is not straight but slightly flexed (10-15 degrees is Chapman's guideline). The seat should also be far enough from the handlebars that the rider's arms form a right angle with the body.

Other bicycling tips from Chapman, the University of California, Berkeley, Wellness Letter and others:

—Avoid long periods in the racing "drop" position. Despite its aerodynamic advantages, the classic pose cramps hands, shoulders and neck. Shift frequently from that position to riding with hands on the top of the handlebars. Don't lock your elbows while riding. Consider padded gloves or handlebars.

—"Feather brake" on long hills or in wet weather, tapping the brakes with intermittent pressure. If forced to brake suddenly, move your hips backward to keep the rear wheel from flipping up.

—When riding over bumps, raise the buttocks off the seat and keep knees slightly bent for maximum shock absorption.

—Don't wear headphones or a backpack while cycling. You need your hearing and balance.

—Wear shoes with rigid soles for maximum force on the pedals. Watch out for errant pants cuffs that can get caught in the chain or sprocket.

—After a long uphill push, pedal from time to time on the downhill glide without accelerating the bike. This otherwise pointless motion prevents the buildup of soreness-producing lactic acid in the muscles.

—Use reflectors on the bicycle. Wear bright, reflective clothing and, of course, always wear a bicycle helmet. About 90 percent of bicycling deaths involve collision with a car, and 40 percent occur at night, Chapman said.

Kentucky Sampler to be held at Churchill Downs

The infield at historic Churchill Downs will be transformed into a wonderland of traditional Kentucky fare the weekend of June 23 and 24, featuring arts and crafts, food, music and a celebration of horses. The Kentucky Sampler will feature six traditional musical groups, an array of homegrown culinary offerings, displays of four breeds of horses and more than 45 artisans and craftsmen from around the state. These special attractions will be in addition to 10 Thoroughbred races each day.

Back is the popular photo opportunity for children, where kids may dress in jockey silks and have their pictures taken aboard a live Thoroughbred with the trademark Churchill Downs spires in the background.

Other live equine displays include American Saddlebreds, Kentucky's only native breed of horse; Arabians and Miniatures from Berline Farm. There will be pony rides as well as displays provided by the Kentucky Derby Museum and the American Saddle Horse Museum.

Another popular segment of the Sampler is the lineup to traditional Kentucky musical groups, including Bluegrass, Country, Folk, New Grass and a jug band on both Saturday and Sunday. Approximately 15 mascots and costumed characters will be on hand to entertain the children. Also, 40 members of the Silverado Dance Club will demonstrate country western style dancing.

The arts and crafts displays scheduled are the most extensive in any year of the Sampler's existence. Food vendors will be open Saturday and Sunday with barbecue, country ham and trimmings, fish sandwiches, traditional picnic fare, Derby Pie and other homemade desserts.

Admission to the Sampler is $1.50 for adults and free for children 12 and under. Senior citizens over 60 are $.25 with valid ID. Gates open 11 AM Saturday and Sunday.

Dangers await those who wander onto abandoned mine sites

Late last year, a 21-year-old California man was climbing a fence that was installed to keep trespassers away from an abandoned mine site. As he did so, the fence gave way and the man tumbled 400 feet to his death down the adjacent mine shaft.

Each year, according to the US Labor Department's Mine Safety and Health Administration (MSHA), abandoned mines, sand pits and quarries claim the lives of adults, teenagers and children. They have been the sites of drownings, suffocations and head, neck and back injuries.

"Most victims of these tragedies are trespassers, explorers or curious youngsters who usually go to these abandoned mine sites in spring and summer months," said Assistant Secretary of Labor for Mine Safety and Health William J. Tattersall. "The public must be warned that all abandoned mines are potential killers and should be avoided."

"Many potential dangers await persons who venture onto idle surface or underground mining properties," said Tattersall. These include hazards such as slippery slopes, icy waters and unknown water structures at quarries, oxygen-deficient air, explosive gases, and poor roof conditions in abandoned underground mines.

A 14-year-old Missouri boy broke his back and ankle after falling 35 feet into an abandoned sand mine. The boy and his cousin had crawled under a fence in order to play near the mine.

Three Colorado teenagers exploring an abandoned coal mine last summer were overcome by poisonous gas and died in the mine. A fourth teenager was rescued but hospitalized.

A 15-year-old Connecticut youth died of massive head and internal injuries late last year after falling 100 feet into an abandoned rock quarry. The boy and two other friends crawled through holes in a fence in order to get to the quarry.

Over the years, MSHA has alerted mine operators and the public about the potential death traps that await unwary trespassers on mine properties and has worked closely with local mining communities to have abandoned mine openings sealed and fenced off from the public.

Lex Frieden, executive director of the Institute for Rehabilitation and Research in Houston, Texas, will chair the conference. Frieden is the former executive director of the National Council on the Handicapped.

Other speakers are scheduled to include: Thomas Alexander, director for social affairs, manpower and education, OECD; Martin Gerry, assistant secretary for planning and evaluation, U.S. Department of Health and Human Services; Congressman Steny Hoyer; Evan Kemp, commissioner, U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, and Edwin Martin, president and chief executive officer, Human Resources Center.

The following eulogy for Lucille Newsome, composed by her son, John, was read at the services at her home on June 10, 1990, by Bob McCormick.

Lucille Martin Newsome, was born Dec. 27, 1929, on Branham's Creek, KY. She was the eldest child of John and Sadie Martin. She is survived by her husband, Andy Newsome, two sons, Gerald D. Newsome and John W. Newsome, and two grandchildren, Andrea Newsome and Gerald Brandon Newsome. Her surviving extended family includes two sisters, Mary Ann McCormick and Betty Rucks, two half sisters, Ogie Alley and Clara Hamilton, four brothers, Bobby Gene Martin, Noah Martin, Andrew Martin, and John Paul Martin, and a host of aunts, uncles, cousins, nieces and nephews. She died June 7, 1990, at St. Mary's Hospital in Evansville, Indiana, at the age of 60.

Lucille died of heart failure as a complication of a prolonged bout with endstage emphysema. There can be little doubt that she would have died much earlier had she not possessed an incredible determination to continue living, to cling to the last shred of life available to her. And that was precisely what was left the last year and a half of her life, a more shred, but she took that shred and expanded it into a full and meaningful life. Imagine hanging by a thread for a year and a half, staring death in the face, all the while wearing a serene and uncomplaining smile. Sometimes heroics are not loud. There is a popular injunction that goes somewhat as follows: Change the things you can change, accept the things you cannot change, and have the wisdom to know the difference. No one better exemplified this wisdom than Lucille. She realized that when you are dealt a bad hand by life, you simply play it and get on with things. She spent the last six months of her life on a ventilator. She could have given up, but there was never the slightest indication that the thought had even crossed her mind. In the end the Grim Reaper prevailed, but he knew he had been in a fight, and had only claimed her body. He would never touch her indomitable spirit.

Lucille taught school on Mud Creek for over 30 years. She worked and paid for her own education, getting a degree from Pikeville College. Part of the time during these years she rode a horse to school. And the pay. Forget the pay, the job was practically a donation. However, by the time she retired she was driving to school in air-conditioned comfort and the pay was somewhere above the poverty level. Actually the pay had become quite decent, but her major reward had never been money. It was the satisfaction of teaching hundreds of kids the three R's and of every day doing a job well. Yes, doing a job well. If she had a credo, it was: Work. The word "lazy" was not in her vocabulary. She counted it almost a sin to sit down until just before bedtime.

In 1948, she married a handsome GI named Andy Newsome. When he got out of the service, they made a home together on Branham's Creek and raised two sons. It is often said loosely of someone that they would give you the shirt off their back. We usually discount this as exaggeration. With her it was really true. She would do pretty much anything for her immediate family and close friends.

Lucille was a believing Christian. Her regard for Biblical values was unshakable. Over her life she attended many different services, but her sympathies were mainly with the Regular Baptists. This was not a rejection of any other church, but was simply in keeping with the tradition of her family. Ultimately any person's relationship with God is an individual matter, known only to that person and God. We believe she was on good terms with her Creator.

When the dust finally settles, any thoughtful person will have at some time in his life asked himself: What is it all about? What is my life worth? There is the religious answer and it is of prime importance. But in addition to that, each human being must find his own personal answer. There is no universal prescription, but there are qualities that are almost universally admired. Lucille possessed many of these to a high degree. One could begin to make a list but it would be almost beside the point. Sure she was honest. She was trustworthy. Faithful, certainly she was faithful. She had pride, the good kind. One could go on. But perhaps the greatest compliment she could be paid is the one give the great philosopher, Voltaire. It was said of Voltaire that above all else he was alive, marvelously alive, and that he made life throb to a swifter, stronger beat. Lucille Martin Newsome was marvelously alive and no one came within her orbit without being touched and affected by her. To those who knew her best, her husband and sons, she was, is, and will always be, a hero.

Stumbo Remarks

doing. We went all the way to Louisville to the state technology conference to share our work with other teachers. There are teachers in this county who know a great deal, who are doing wonderful things that others could benefit from but in order for that to happen, people have to know what is going on.

5. Stop making glorified salesmen or clerical workers out of teachers. If you hired a lawyer or doctor, you would not think of asking someone that you have paid your hard-earned money to, to take part of his time to wash your dishes or mow your grass, but teachers throughout this county and this state spend a great deal of their time collecting tickets at ball games or running off copies of teaching materials. Let us spend our time working with the children on what really counts. If that means hiring more aides, then we should be willing to do that.

6. Help us build support in the community for the work that we all do together. The answer does not lie in shutting the community out or allowing them to believe that teachers are not doing their jobs but in finding ways to draw that community in. Help make us allies with the parents, business people of Floyd County. The job that we have to do as teachers can not be done alone. We need the help of parents. We also need to be working with the parents who can't read or haven't had a good education. Let us find ways that schools can reach out and deal with the problems that children encounter in their own lives and that make learning more difficult for them. Our problems and the solutions to those problems go beyond the doors of the classroom.

7. Start asking us for our professional judgment about what will help make things better in this county. We have not really seen the budget that is being prepared for next. We believe that we should have been involved in its creation. If we are professionals, then our judgment and knowledge should count. We have a history in this county and this state of developing programs, then handing them down to be carried out. The history of those programs and how short-lived they are should tell us something about the way they are developed.

8. Give us the materials that we need to teach with/talk to us about those needs. Since December, I have spent $560.47 that I can trace directly to teaching. There are other expenditures that are not even recorded there—the sheets of poster board or tape that I pick up when I go to grocery store. That money went from everything from the development of photographs for the school newspaper and magazine to the purchase of computer paper and disks for my class. If the amount of money I spent between August and December is the same, it cost me $1,120.94 last year to do my job. Maybe all teachers spend far less but I suspect that the majority of teachers do buy quite a few materials. But even what teachers spend is not the real issue here. If all the materials in the world were in our schools, that alone will not do it. A workbook or a computer is not education. You can put all the equipment and all the supplies that you want into a school or classroom and it will do no good unless there is a good teacher who knows what to do with them. What counts is the attitude of those teachers.

The Floyd County educational system has just emerged from trying experience and we have the opportunity to begin again. If we have not learned from what we have been through, it was a tragedy. The children of Floyd County are only harmed if we do not look at our problems honestly and address them. The good teachers in this district need to know that you value what they do. Everything in a school system should revolve around the work that teachers and students do together. If an additional administrative post is added, the question should be asked: "How does this help teachers and students do better work together?" "Good teachers in this district are already working hard. It is important to acknowledge that fact. What you do as a district is of the utmost importance. How you choose to spend the money that is coming into Floyd County states better than any words what you think is important.

Jenny Wiley Story

Director Jim Ligon explained that changes in the play's script also meant changes in the play's attitude. He continued, "there is so much pride in the legend of Jenny Wiley and her courage, and I felt that we needed to respect that." According to Ligon, the original script lacked humor and energy, "so I reworked a few scenes, added some humor. We wanted to make it a respectable, sweeping, emotional theatre piece."

The Indians are depicted more realistically in this year's production. "We looked at the show from a historical point of view," Vaughan explained, "the director and the costume designer researched the traditional clothing to create very authentic Indian costumes." The effect is very successful. The costumes are both savage and elegant, the Indians are frightening, dramatic and very noble.

Probably the most dramatic addition to the play is the thrilling Escape Ballet. Apparently, Jenny's escape had never been portrayed on stage. Director Jim Ligon explained, "we wanted to make it more emotionally effective." Again, the improvement in the escape scene is unmistakable. The audience's imaginations work with the music and with the dance, while the narrator describes Jenny's escape. The audience is swept along as Jenny desperately runs through the forest, climbs rocks and even flings herself into a swollen river.

Motioning in the direction of the trees behind the stage, Ligon continued, "We had this beautiful backdrop of evergreens that had to become a part of the play. It really is effective to see Jenny come running out of the forest, screaming for help."

New music also lifts the play's spirits. "The first thing I did," explained Ligon, "was cut the music that didn't fit. As replacements, I tried to find some period ballads and period music."

According to Ligon, he found most of the music by researching various folk songs and ballads. He found many tunes specific to this region. Two of these tunes found their way into the score. One of these, the "Sourwood Mountain," is used for the hoedown. The other, the "Lover's Lament," is sung by Jenny and Thomas.

The score features new music. Music director Richard Oberacker agreed with Ligon that the original music, consisting mostly of hymns and some mountain songs did not seem to fit the story. Composed especially for this play by Oberacker, "In Every Face" become both the prologue and the finale of the show.

Reflecting a national trend in the musical theatre, Ligon and Oberacker enhanced each scene with musical underscoring. Oberacker now feels that "the music for this production is more organic, which means it comes out of the moment. This makes the production more realistic, more spontaneous."

The music so beautifully enhances the production, that it is surprising that the composition of the score took place in only six days. Oberacker began composing the new music for "The Jenny Wiley Story" when rehearsals began last week. What resulted was a full-scale collaboration between Oberacker and his fellow musicians. Oberacker explained what he wanted, and he welcomed suggestions from the musicians. "We all worked together," said Oberacker. "All the musicians deserve credit for creating the music, the mood, for making it all fit."

This production offers a fresh approach to a cherished regional legend, one certainly worthy of being given another chance. "Even if you have seen this play every time we've ever done it," Vaughan said, "this one you should really come to see because it is quite different. It's an

Concert Series links with NY firm

The Eastern Kentucky Concert Series Inc. announced June 6 that it has affiliated with Community Concerts of New York City, a division of Columbia Artists Management. This affiliation will allow the concert series more diversity of artists for live performances in our area.

This New York based service will supply assistance in conducting an annual membership campaign and act as the booking office for the local association. Community Concerts, in the last 60 years, has assisted over 1,000 towns in the United States and Canada with the organization and operation of a concert series under the concept of the "Organized Audience Plan." Under this plan, memberships in the association are secured during a brief membership campaign and attendance at the concert is open to all members throughout the concert season.

Present at a meeting of directors and members last Thursday was Katherine Clemens, a representative of Community Concerts. She explained the procedure and plans for the membership campaign to be held later this summer. A goal of thirty volunteer workers was established for the campaign.

SPURLOCK, CONN INKS LETTERS-OF-INTENT WITH ALC

Spurlock Signed To Baseball Scholarship

Alice Lloyd College signed one of the top baseball players in the region when they inked Allen Central's Kevin Spurlock to a four-year scholarship Wednesday afternoon in the office of Principal Don Daniels. Present for the signing was Spurlock's parents, Stella and Ellis Spurlock, coach Johnny Martin, principal Don Daniels and Eagles coach John Mills. Spurlock plans to major in math to pursue a career in teaching, Spurlock says that he wants to coach as well.

"We are really pleased to have signed Kevin to a scholarship at Alice Lloyd," said Coach Mills. "Kevin has the leadership ability we look for in young athletes. He is a take charge type of player that should fit right in with our program. We recruited Kevin for his offensive hitting and he needs just a little bit of work on his defense behind the plate, particularly footwork, but it's nothing that a little bit of work won't improve."

Mills says that Spurlock will be used some as a designated hitter also. "Kevin has some good work habits and where ever he plays, it is his hitting that counts and his work ethics will come around."

Spurlock will be joining four other Floyd County players at the Knott County school, Prestonsburg's Todd Justice, Thomas Nairn, Brian Hall and Tim Trusty. Henry Webb plays on the Eagles basketball team.

"In our recruiting efforts we look for players with versatility and Kevin is real good there," said Mills.

"I like the school," said Spurlock of his choice of Alice Lloyd. "It's a nice school and they are getting a new baseball field that will be ready in the fall. I was impressed with the coaching staff at Alice Lloyd. I liked the atmosphere there."

"I had gotten a couple calls from Louisville but I haven't heard from them lately. Lees College offered me a $1,000 scholarship. The best offer was from Alice Lloyd," relates Spurlock.

"The biggest reason of going was to get an education," said the student that placed in the top five in his class at Allen Central with a 4.0 point grade average. "I am thinking of getting into politics and win the magistrate race when I graduate." He was serious!

Spurlock's parents are elated over their son's choice of Alice Lloyd and his being signed by the school.

"I am extremely proud of him," said his mother Stella Spurlock. "I feel that Kevin made a good choice, the right choice for himself. He's happy about his going there and that's what matters."

"It looks real good," said Ellis Spurlock, Kevin's father. "They were tickled to get him. Coach Mills says that he was looking at two catchers in this recruiting class and the other being the Castle boy at Jenkins. Mills said he felt that Kevin had more offensive ability than the boy at Jenkins. He also said that with a little bit of work that he would be better than the Castle boy defensively."

"Coach Mills told us that they were looking for players that could academically last four years at Alice Lloyd," continued Spurlock. "Alice Lloyd had the highest grade point average than any other NAIA District 9 schools. They take a lot of pride in graduating students."

The elder Spurlock was impressed with the new facility that is being built at the Alice Lloyd school. "They are building a stadium that will seat 1500 people. Coach Stepp (Jim) head coach of the basketball team wants Kevin to come out for the junior varsity team next year in basketball. But I don't know if he is going to have time to do that."

Coach Mills is also drooling over the prospective players that will be available next year for recruiting. But this year they captured a prize recruit in one Kevin Spurlock. To echo the words of principal Don Daniels, "the major colleges should have signed him, because he can play."

Conn Signs With Lady Eagles

"Conn Fills Need Of Lady Eagles": Mills

Allen Central Lady Rebel, Jo Ann Conn, signed on the dotted line (or straight line) and officially became a Alice Lloyd Lady Eagle for this coming basketball season. The standout player of the Lady Rebels averaged 21 points per game her senior year and hauled down nine rebounds per contest while handing off four assist per game.

Conn, was named All-District in each of her four years at Allen Central and made the 15th Region All-Tournament this year. She also has been named All-Conference the past three years. Conn also played on the girl's 15th Regional All-Star team against the 16th Region.

"Jo Ann is a competitor," said Lady Eagles coach John Mills upon signing the 5'11" star. She is the type of player we need to rebuild our girls basketball program around. I feel it will take us two years to rebuild it and we need to go out there and get the best we can and I believe we just signed one of the best.

"Jo Ann will be able to play the inside, number three or four position for us," continued Mills.

The Lady Eagles also signed Sheldon Clark's Terri Harmon to a letter-of-intent. Harmon brings a lot of basketball experience to the Lady Eagles and knows what it takes to win. Also in the fold for the Lady Eagles is the state's third leading girls scorer in Denise Stacy of Cordia.

"Hopefully we will be at .500 next year despite going 4-21 last year. We will play a tough schedule and we expect Jo Ann to make a major contribution," said Mills.

"I really like the location of Alice Lloyd in deciding where to go to school next year," said Conn. "I want to coach basketball when I get out of school but I have not decided on a major as of yet."

Conn led the Lady Rebels to the 58th District championship this past season. She was on the Martin Girls Junior Pro basketball team that won the National Championship back in 1984. She was a main stay for the Martin Lady Flashes in capturing the Floyd County Grade School championships, so she knows how to win. In 1989 in a game against Wheelwright the talented basketball player injured her and knee had to sit out the district tournament that year. Sporting a brace on her left knee, she played with a lot of intensity and made the Lady Rebels a winner. This kind of player was the kind that Coach Mills was also looking for to build the Lady Eagles around — competitive.

Another Floyd County player, Brenda Hamilton, Betsy Layne, was also on the Lady Eagles shopping list. "Brenda needs to take her ACT test, and she said that if she scores high enough that she will be coming to Alice Lloyd and we would welcome her there," stated Mills.

With Conn, the Lady Eagles have made a good start on the road to "recovery" of the girl's basketball program at Alice Lloyd. Conn is a very unselfish basketball player and will be a great addition to Lady Eagle basketball at the mountain school.

"Jo Ann makes the Lady Rebels go," said her coach Bonita Compton in an earlier interview during the season. "She is a team player as well as a team leader. All the other girls look to her for the leadership on this team. And sometimes that is a problem in that they look to her to much. But that shows the kind of respect she has on this team."

It should be a great year for Lady Eagle basketball at Alice Lloyd this fall!

JAMERSON NEW FOOTBALL COACH AT ALLEN CENTRAL

Upon the resignation of Donnie Daniels as head football coach at Allen Central, the Floyd County Board of Education moved quickly to name Dewey Ray Jamerson as the new head pigskin coach at the Right Beaver School.

Daniels, who headed up the program at Allen Central the last two seasons, moved to Wheelwright to assume the head coaching job of the girls basketball program there. Daniels resigned the first of June leaving the vacant job at Allen Central.

With the naming of Jamerson as head coach, the football field will also receive new lights thus eliminating the Saturday afternoon games.

"I have the same feelings about leaving Betsy Layne that I had when I left Allen Central before," said Jamerson. "At Allen Central I left 11 kids (speaking of his track program) and at Betsy Layne I will be leaving 30." Jamerson has been instrumental in getting the track and field program at Betsy Layne revived.

"I am really getting pumped up about going to Allen Central as football coach," Jamerson stated. "We have a good group of kids returning and the program looks good for the coming season."

Returning for the Rebels will be Brian Wallen on the defensive line. "When Brian is on I believe he can handle anyone he wants to," relates the new Rebel mentor.

"We will also have Brian Meadows back and he has good hands and is a big kid and a strong blocker."

Mr. Offense, Tommy Gibson, who many have described as the total offense of the Rebels will be back in the backfield for the Rebels. "B.J. Aldrich, last year's quarterback, knows my system because Donnie's and my system are so close," explained Jamerson.

In all, the Rebels will have 13 seniors returning this coming fall and according to Jamerson, "that is going

"Whether we win or lose, I want them to hold their heads up high. I want them to go out and have fun," Dewey Ray Jamerson, ACHS Football Coach to have to help a lot."

The Rebels will have only four home games this season with home dates against Jenkins, Paintsville, Magoffin County and Fairview. Some see the Rebels finishing with a 8-3 record this season, although Jamerson takes a "wait and see" attitude.

"Jenkins will be starting the season off with a new coach just like us," says Jamerson. "Paintsville will be down some this year as they will be trying to rebuild."

Jamerson sees Raceland and Hazard being the tough opponents they have always been and both games will be on the road. Phelps and Magoffin County will be down some this year, according to the Rebel coach.

"Wheelwright will have good speed on their team this season and coming from Betsy Layne as defensive coordinator I should know their weaknesses."

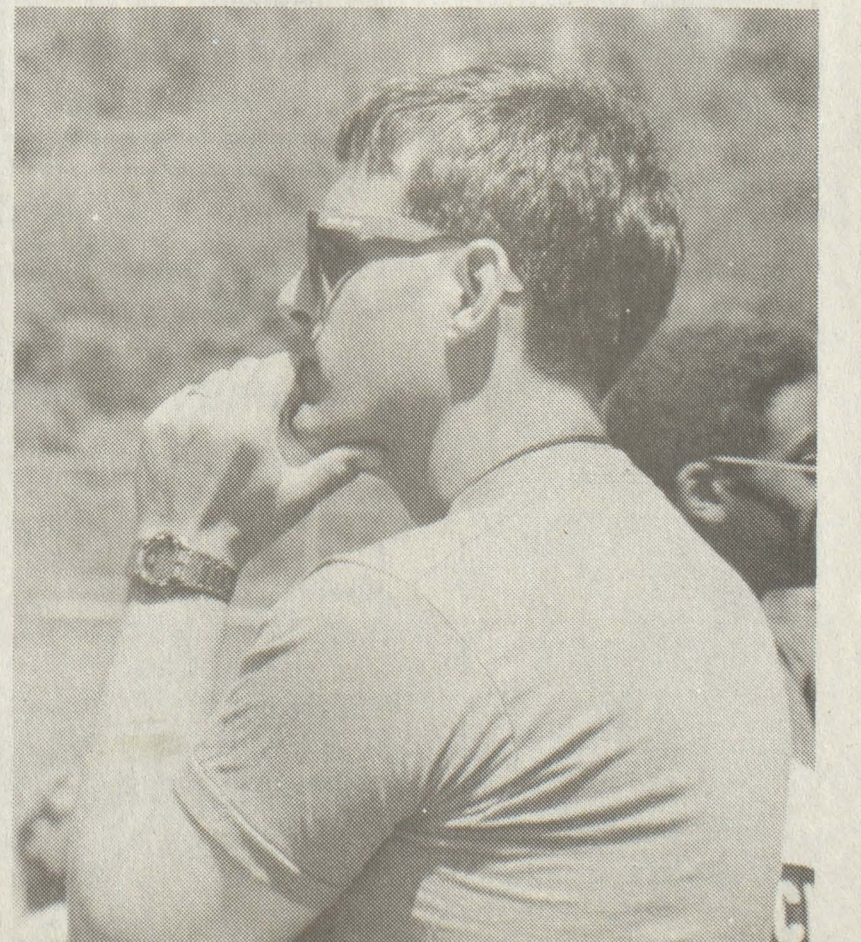

corner is his wife Tracie who is very supportive of her husband's desire to coach football.

"I am very proud of him," says Mrs. Jamerson. "We both love the people at Allen Central because that is where we did our student teaching. We are very fond of the people there."

"I know they will be very happy to have a person like Dewey there as coach. I know it takes a special person to be a good coach's wife in supporting their husband, in making sacrifices. I know I am not that special but I am trying to be. I will be there when he plays and be supporting him all the way because that is what he wants to do. I am willing to make the necessary sacrifices."

In talking with Jamerson, he is like a kid with a new toy, you can just see the enthusiasm that this new coach has for his team. If that enthusiasm carries over to the team the Rebels could have their finest hour ever in football.

Martin's Robinson fans 14 in 10-0 shutout of Giants

It was a billed as a game to beat. To see. To take in.

Two of the top teams in the Beaver Creek Little League were to square off against each other at the Martin Ball Park as the Martin Reds and Drift Giants got their bats out of the bags and took to it in a good game of Little League hardball.

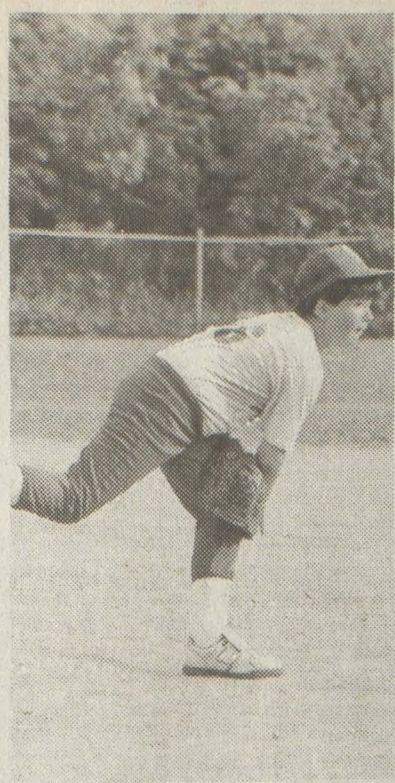

When the sliding was all done and the dust settled the Reds came away a 10-0 victor over the Giants.

Kevin Robinson limited the Giants to just four hits while striking out 14 batters to add to his total of 94 Ks in just 40 innings of work — an average of just over two strikeouts per inning. Robinson struck out the side in the first, second and fourth innings.

T.T. Pack took the loss for the Giants, but had 12 strikeouts in the loss. Pack scattered five Reds hits but walked eight.

The Reds scored five runs in the bottom of the third inning to add to an already 3-0 lead. Jason Tackett had the big hit in the inning with a two-run single. Phillip Robinson drove in a run with a base hit and Pack walked four in the five run inning. The Giants

Mullins hits for the "Cycle" in Win over Martin; Stars win 2

Terrance Mullins hit for the cycle in Little League baseball this past Wednesday night in leading the McDowell Stars to a 30-14 runaway of the Martin Blue Jays. Mullins had a home run, triple, double and single in the win.

The Stars scored 15 runs in the third inning in breaking open a close 8-6 game. The Stars scored four runs in each of the first two innings for a 8-0 lead. The Blue Jays pushed across six in the top of the third to move to within two, 8-6.

Martin scored eight runs in the top of the fourth and McDowell answered with seven in the bottom of the inning.

Mullins hit his home run in the third inning with Mark Walters on base. He tripled in the fourth with two on base. The Star hitter connected for a double in the second inning driving in a run. He also had a single.

Nick Little and Mark Walters each had triples in the contest for McDowell. Brian Adams had a first two run double.

Winning pitcher was Mike Stephens with four strike outs.

R.C. Duff had a triple for the Blue Jays as did team mate J. Bentley. Bentley's was a base clearing triple in the fourth inning.

In an earlier game against the Minnie A's, the Stars won 11-3 in four innings. Jeff McGuire had a home run in the third inning with a man on base. Mullins and Adams had triples, with Mullins' coming in the fourth and Adams' in the first. Winning pitcher was Pete Dawson with three strike outs. Minnie picked up three hits in the game and the Stars managed 11.

Osborne Boys Teams With Castle

Jeremy Osborne, left and Jason Osborne, right, teams up with what many consider the best catcher in the Prestonsburg Little League to form a formidable battery for the Cubs. In a recent game, Jeremy started the game and pitched three innings striking out eight batters. He was relieved by twin brother Jason, who pitched the last three innings and striking out nine batters for a combination of 17 Ks in an 18 out game. The other out came on a ground out to first base. committed three errors on the field.

Martin pushed across three in the bottom of the first when Shannon Slone and Kevin Robinson led off with walks. Jason Shannon then tripled to right centerfield driving in Slone and Robinson. Shannon scored on a grounder by Shannon Ferrell.

In the Reds fifth, Ferrell led off with a triple and scored on a base hit by Rusty Young. Young came all the way around on three throwing errors by the Giants. Pack then settled in and struck out the side.

The Giants mounted a first inning threat when they loaded the bases on the hard throwing Robinson. Steve Hamilton doubled, leading off the game. After Justin Hopkins struck out, Patrick Bryant walked. Pack then fanned, and Allen Osborne loaded the bases on a walk. Robinson then struck out catcher Eric Cook to end the inning.

Drift again threatened in the top of the third when Jamie Bowling walked, Hopkins drew a one out walk and Bryant's base hit loaded the bases. Robinson bowed his neck and struck out Pack and got Osborne to line hard to left field where Mike McKinney made a good play.

Matt Marcum, who did not start the game because of a swollen hand, singled in the top of the fourth for Drift, but Robinson struck out the side.

The Giants had to play the game without Chris Moore, who was hurt in an accident. Moore is the leading offensive player for the Giants.

Robinson had 16 of the 18 putouts in the game. Along with the 14 strikeouts, Robinson had two grounders hit back to him. The other two outs were to the outfield.

The Braves held a 4-1 lead going into the fourth inning when the Giants scored two runs. The Giants plated a run in the fifth inning in winning 5-3.

Jody Carroll was the loser in the game. Carroll had nine strikeouts also.

For the Braves, Kevin Nelson was two for three and for the Giants, Matt Lafferty and Ed Prater had two hits each for the Giants.

WILL THE REAL REDS PLEASE STAND UP?

So seem to be the thoughts of many Reds fans around the area of late in light of the recent skid the Reds have found themselves in.

How bad is the skid? As of this writing the Atlanta Braves swept the Reds in a doubleheader at Riverfront Tuesday night. The Atlanta Braves haven't won a road doubleheader since 1986.

What are the Reds' problems? Take your choice. Pitching (bullpen), lack of offense, Eric Davis or overconfidence on the part of the team as a whole.

The Reds, losers of eight of their last nine games, are anxiously looking for a solution to the skid. Reds coach Lou Piniella insists that the ball club is not at a panic stage. Come on, Lou!

Marty Brenaman, on the air for the Reds' first game with the Braves, says that the Reds were not as good as they seemed to be in the early going and at the same time are not as bad as they are playing now.

What Reds fans, as well as all fans, need to realize is that all ball clubs go through a "slump" like this at one point in the season. It is good that the Reds get it out of the way now.

I think the Reds are for real. I believe they are good enough to win the World Series if they can get that far. The problem I see with the Reds is one Eric Davis. The skid started shortly after he returned from the disabled list.

I still don't believe that Eric likes it in Cincinnati even though he got the three million plus contract out of Marge. He is more concerned that his "tobacco" be just right in his mouth than the bat in his hand. He seems to be unsure of himself at the plate.

The rest of the team seems to believe that now that Davis is back in the lineup he will make them a better team. One fan told me that "they should break his leg and put him out for the rest of the season, for the Reds were a better ball club without him in the batting order."

The number four spot in the batting order was being served nicely by Paul O'Neil. Davis moves into the spot and the run production goes down. O'Neil returned to the four spot and homers against the Giants.

Glenn Braggs will still have to prove he can play the game with some consistency. Perhaps a change in uniform will bring on that consistency. How about an outfield of Braggs, Hatcher and O'Neil? Not so cries Reds fans. Keep heart out there. The Reds are still in first place.

Still plenty of good Little League and Babe Ruth baseball left. The Pee Wee's will be starting their tournaments next week. They sure are fun to watch. They give it all they have. Something that seems to disappear when they get in high school.

Floyd County Babe Ruth League

Rattlesnakes Bite Braves, 15-3

The Harold Rattlesnakes scored seven runs in the first and second inning as they coasted to a 15-3 win over the Garrett Braves in Babe Ruth play this week.

Sonny Johnson took the win for Harold and struck out four. Nathan Moore was the losing pitcher.

J. Roberts had a double for Harold and John Newsome, Barry Clark and Shannon Newsome each had two hits in the game.

Yellowjackets Sting Maytown, 21-3

The Garrett Yellowjackets stung Maytown in Babe Ruth play by the score of 21-3. Joey Brown had the big bat for the Yellowjackets with a sixth inning grand slam home run. Brown, who went three for three in the game, also had two doubles in picking up four RBIs.

David Baker had a double for Garrett. John Craft came up in the second inning with the bases loaded and cleared the bases with a double. Craft had a total of four RBIs in the game. Arlen Cathers had two hits and three walks in the game.

Joey Brown was the winning pitcher, Jason Moore took the loss.

Harold Wraps Up Wayland 13-5

Barry Collins drove in three runs with a home run for the Harold Rattlesnakes in his teams 13-5 win over Wayland. Steve Clark of Harold and Brad Scott of Wayland had doubles in the game. Kevin Allen had two hits. Jason Martin took the loss for Wayland. Collins had five strike outs and Martin recorded four.

Martin, Wayland Split Twin Bill

Wayland and Martin played a double header of hardball with each team winning one game each. Martin won the opener 14-9 behind the pitching of Jeff Kilburn. Glenn Floyd had a second inning two-run home run for Martin. Kilburn had a double for Martin and Brad Scott hit a twobagger for Wayland. Scott had four RBIs in the game.

Donnie Combs was the losing pitcher as he allowed all 14 runs in the first three innings. Mike Baldrige came on to put the fire out over the last three innings yielding only one hit while walking none. Baldrige struck out three.

In the nightcap, Wayland defeated Martin 13-9, but not before the Martin team gave them a scare by plating eight runs in the fourth inning. Brad Scott took the win while Glen Floyd was the losing pitcher. Each had four strike outs.

Toby Robinson, Byron Gearheart and Kenny McKinney had two hits in the game. Gearheart picked up four RBIs for Martin. Brad Scott and Jason Clark each had Wayland doubles. Josh Hansford had two hits for Wayland.

Garrett Falls To Wayland 18-10

Wayland scored 11 runs in the seventh inning to defeat Garrett 18-10 in a come from behind effort. Garrett held a 10-7 lead going into the seventh.

Brad Scott picked up the win for Wayland and Joey Brown was the losing pitcher. Josh Hansford, Brad Scott had two hits for Wayland and Arlen Cathers had three for Garrett.

Donovan Hall had a double in the Wayland victory.

Floyd Alumni dedicate memorial to Alice Lloyd College founders

At the annual meeting of the Floyd County Alumni Association, alumni and friends of Caney Junior College, now known as Alice Lloyd College, met to dedicate a memorial to the memory of Alice Lloyd and June Buchanan. Presiding over the meeting was association president Clara Johnson of Minnie.

The monument grew out of a desire on the part of the members of the Floyd County Alumni Association to contribute a memorial commemorating the founders of Alice Lloyd College and the Caney Creek Community Center. At their spring meeting last May, the members thought it would be fitting to build this memorial. It was decided that the memorial should bear an eternal flame symbolizing the "Light into the Mountains" which is the motto of the College and appears on the official seal.

The memorial, which stands in the area between the post office and the "11" Building, was constructed by the Collins Brothers. The monument is built of rock found in this area. Under an arch of rock, there are two granite pieces resembling mountains. Above these mountains is a lamp which will burn constantly. This light symbolizes the light of awareness brought by education of the young people who attend the June Buchanan School and Alice Lloyd College.

According to Robin Moler, ALC alumni director, "The memorial will be a constant reminder of the impact these two women had on education in Eastern Kentucky."

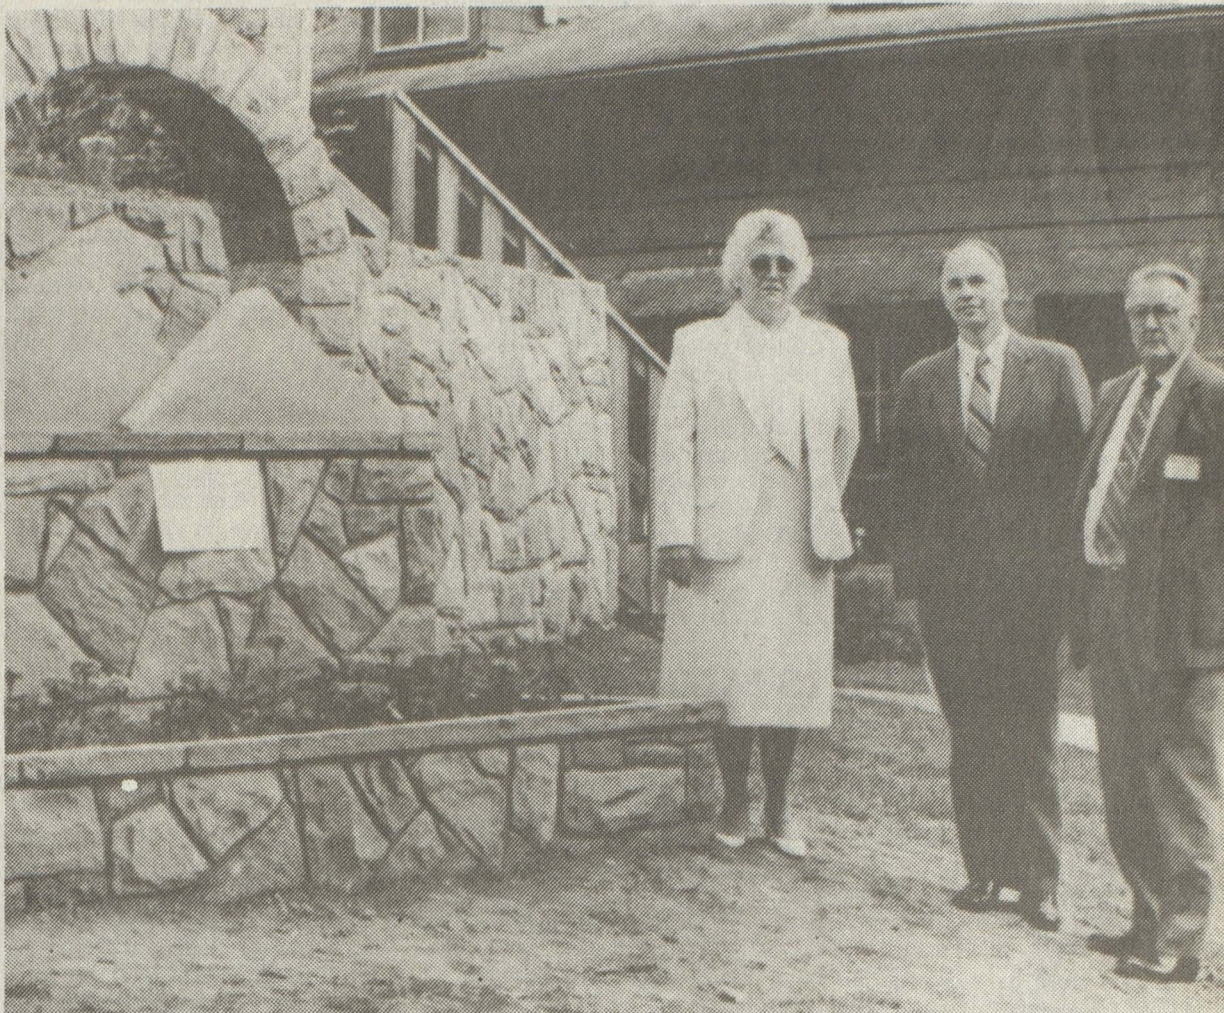

Present at the dedication was Caney graduate Adrian Hall, who said, "I cannot say enough good things about what these two women have meant to me and the people of Eastern Kentucky. This monument represents only a small token of our admiration for Mrs. Lloyd and June Buchanan."

Also present at the dedication was Anne E. Tackett, the oldest living Floyd County alumnus. Tackett, known to many as "Ma England", was a student at Caney from 1928-1933. Now living in McDowell, Tackett began her teaching at Spewing Camp. After 33 years of service to the people of Floyd County, Tackett retired from education. At 93, she is still active in her support of the college.

In a message to those at the dedication, Tackett spoke of her days on Caney with fond regards for Mrs. Lloyd, Mrs. Geddes, and June Buchanan. Tackett feels that Mrs. Lloyd and her mother were the greatest thing that ever happened to this country. She cherishes the times she had with the ladies and constantly praises them for their guiding hand.

According to ALC president Fred Mullinax, "One year ago, this memorial was a vision of the members of the Floyd County Alumni Association. Today, their vision has become a reality. We are grateful for their faithful dedication and support of this institution. This monument will be a constant reminder of the impact Alice Lloyd and June Buchanan had on education in Eastern Kentucky."

Student projects on display at Berea

The Eastern Kentucky Teachers Network is sponsoring an Exhibition of Student Directed Projects at Berea College Student Center on Monday, June 25 from 2-4 p.m.

This showcase of student work will feature students from various grade levels and subject areas displaying and discussing their work from the past school year. Students have produced magazines of local history and their original writings, videotapes in science, ecology, and history, cassette tapes of mountain music and radio programs, school newspapers, and plays based on community history.

For example, a TMH class from Benham Elementary School in Harlan County will be present to promote their publication "Tapestry", a collection of writings by the students, peer tutors, and parents about how it feels to be or work with a special child. High school students from David School in Floyd County will show their video and explain their involvement in a pond cleanup project while meeting their skills and content requirements in earth science.

This is an opportunity for the students to display finished products and to share with visitors how the process of the project was accomplished. Ten or more exhibits will be featured.

This showcase of student work is the direct result of Eastern Kentucky teachers being trained by Eliot Wigginton, founder of Foxfire Inc., Rabun Gap, Ga., and staff of Eastern Kentucky Teachers Network.

Wigginton and his high school students have spent the past 25 years publishing Foxfire magazines and books on subjects of Appalachian heritage through a method of student directed, community based, academically sound teaching practices.

Eastern Kentucky teachers have joined together for support and resources into a professional network promoting experiential learning in the classroom. Teachers who have attended a Foxfire workshop during the past five summers at Berea have returned to their classrooms and with the students' direction initiated local community based projects.

The Foxfire methodology engages school children in hands on, active participation in meeting the academic requirements of their subject area.

The students were given freedom of choice to design, execute, and evaluate classroom activities which result in finished products for an audience beyond their teacher.

The methodology also involves peer teaching, group work, community involvement, and seeks to relate classroom work with the outside daily world of the student.

The public is invited to participate in this showcase of student productions. Eliot Wigginton and other Foxfire staff plan to be present at this event.

For further information contact Jenny Wilder (606) 885-7876, 323 Strawberry Lane, Nicholasville, 40356 or Doris Miller (606) 785-4858, Eastern Kentucky Teachers Network, PO Box 452, Hindman 41822.

Boyd, Conley elected to FHA posts

Delana Boyd and Hershell Conley of Betsy Layne High School were recently elected to represent Kentucky's Region 11 Future Homemakers of America as secretary and historian.

The two students will represent all Future Homemakers of America members at all high schools in Floyd, Pike, Johnson, Martin and Magoffin counties. As preparation for their year-long terms, the two will attend FHA Leadership Camp in Hardinsburg this summer.

Boyd will begin her junior year at Betsy Layne this year. She has been an active member of the Betsy Layne

FHA for two years and has represented the chapter on the state and national level. She was a junior varsity cheerleader for two years and will represent her school this year as a player for the Betsy Layne Lady Bobcats. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby D. Boyd of Harold.

Conley will begin his senior year at Betsy Layne in the fall. He has served the chapter in various capacities for the past three years. He represented BLHS at the 1990 state meeting in Lexington. After graduation in 1991, he plans to attend Mid-American College for Funeral Services in Jeffersonville, Ind. He is the son of Legotha Lewis of Banner.

Consolidated Health donates analyzer to MSU

Consolidated Health Systems Inc. donated a Dupont ACA II/60 chemistry analyzer to Morehead State University on May 22.

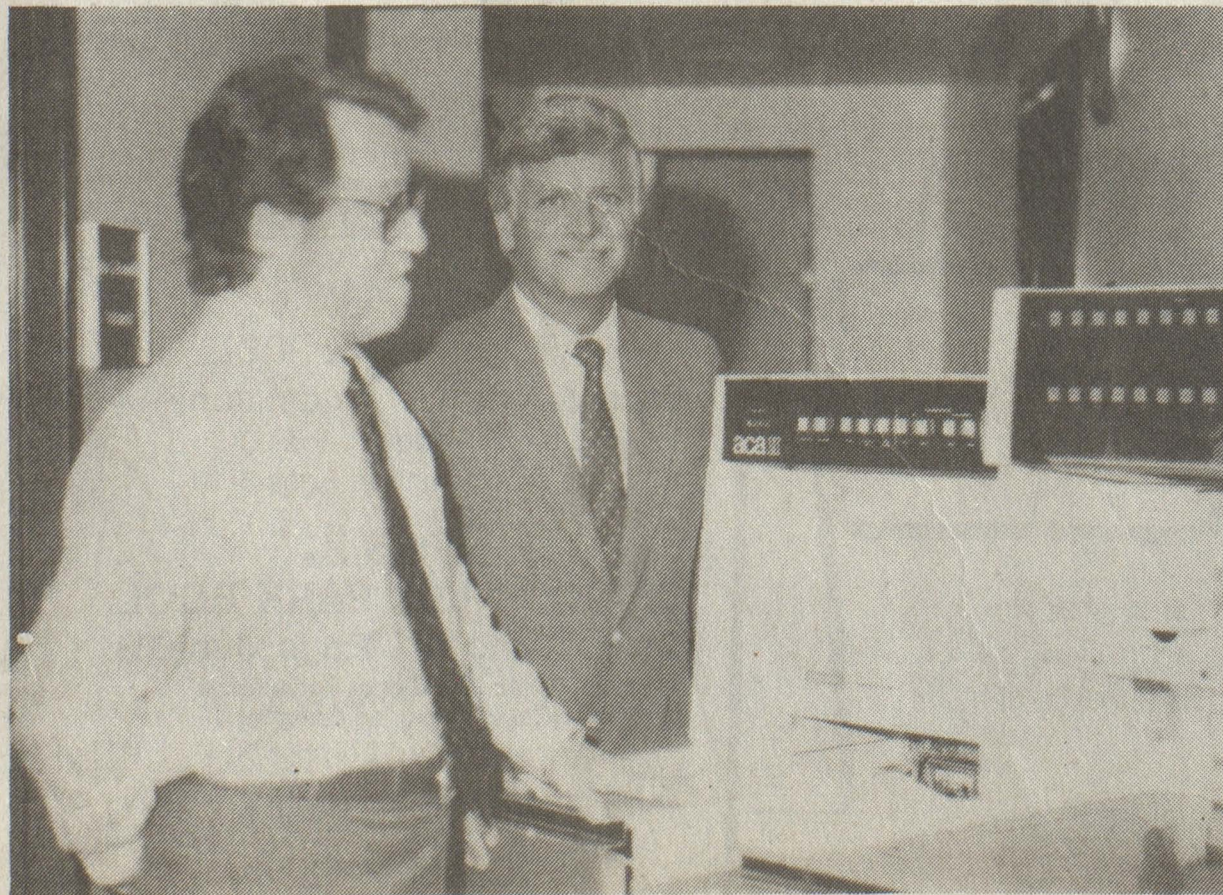

The analyzer is a piece of equipment used to perform various types of blood testing procedures. It was replaced by Highlands Regional Medical Center's medical laboratory in 1989 with the newer model Dupont Dimension Analyzer, a more sophisticated piece of equipment needed for high quality patient services.

However, the Dupont ACA will be a valuable teaching tool on a college level, according to a hospital spokesperson.

Highlands Regional participates in Morehead's Area Health Education System which places medical technology students in three-week internships in the hospital's medical laboratory. This on-site educational preparation in medical technology provides the students with instruction and clinical experiences that are not part of their regular course of study.

Consolidated Health Systems Inc., the parent company of Highlands Regional, has been the provider of other educational programs this year including a breast cancer seminar for area physicians, sponsor for the local "Can Survive" breast cancer support group and sponsor of a scholarship program for medical students.

Consolidated Health Systems president Clarence Traum presented Dupont ACA analyzer to Dr. Ted Pass, professor of microbiology at MSU.

What young people need to know . . .

By Judith Clabes

Scripps Howard News Service
Commencement season heralds a new beginning for everyone. For students, it is the beginning of claiming their lives as their own. For parents, it is the beginning of a new relationship with a near-adult child. Parenting doesn't end; it evolves.

There is still plenty to be said, and much we want to be sure has been said. Among the things We Haven't Finished Saying Yet are these:

1. We love you.

Simple enough, but we want it on the record in case you haven't listened lately.

2. Do your own laundry.

Yes, we know you don't want to hear that, poised as you are on the verge of this great adventure. But the life-lesson is two-fold. One, you cannot know yourself fully unless you clean up your own messes. Whether you do that in the laundry room or the kitchen or the office or the boardroom or on the job site or in your personal relationships, you have to pick up after yourself before you can understand yourself, live independently and call yourself adult. Two, it reinforces the reality that living is work just as a job is work.

3. Look. Listen. Think. Think, then argue.

Yogi Berra said, "You can observe a lot by just watching." Just watch. Pay attention to what's going on in the world around you. Listen to what others are saying. Get in touch with your own thoughts. Stand up for what you believe, after you've thought it through.

4. Practice makes perfect but not always. It's OK.

Put another way: Anything worth doing is worth doing badly. You won't be great at everything. In the beginning you may be lousy at it. Keep trying and maybe you'll get it right. Maybe not, but you didn't fail by trying. Move on.

5. Value is not the same as price.

Most of the things you will eventually value most in life will have nothing to do with money. Keep your perspective.

6. Follow your heart as much as your head, at least.

Listen to your heart as much as your head, at least.

Listen to your heart as you make choices about how to invest your life. Find work you love, as it is too much a part of you to be something dreaded. Do your best not only because your work is worth it, but because you are.

7. Love yourself first.

When everything else is wrong, it is our good personal relationships that make everything else seem not so bad after all. But to have such relationships requires a respect for yourself. Develop a healthy self-respect in order to really love someone else.

8. Don't be in such a hurry.

There is a tomorrow. There's always a what's next? in life.

9. Hard work doesn't always pay off, but it's the only thing that ever does.

Nothing good happens that isn't the result of hard work. Sometimes things still don't work out quite right but if they're going to work at all, it's because we worked at it.

10. Be of good cheer.

Good humor makes all things tolerable. You are in great danger of taking yourself too seriously in the next few years. Remember to take time for a good laugh now and again, especially at yourself.

11. Be convinced of your priorities.

An elderly Kentucky woman put it this way: "If I had my life to live over, I'd like to make more mistakes next time. I'd relax.... I would start barefoot earlier in the spring and stay that way later in the fall. I would ride more merry-go-rounds. I would pick more daisies. Don't come to the end of your life wishing you had picked more daisies."

12. Seek a balance.

Success is not a goal; it's something that happens on the way to a goal. Lasting personal relationships are a necessary part of the balance. Your pension will not keep you warm in your old age.

13. A mind is a terrible thing to waste in self-pity, self-indulgence and selfishness.

Remind yourself that if attitude isn't everything, it's most of it.

14. Forget the management jargon that tells you to be nice to secretaries to get ahead.

The first rule is: Be nice to everyone. The second: To get ahead, you have to do good work.

15. If ever you believe you're the only one in a traffic jam, it's time for a break.

Stress kills. Before it kills, it maims and numbs and makes you believe you are put-upon or alone in your frustration. Know when to pick those daisies.

16. You can come home again. Remember the jubilant Mole in "Wind in the Willows" who returned after long absence and much anguish to his humble home to find things which were so glad to see him again and could always be counted upon for the same simple welcome? He realized there was much attraction to the larger, wonderful world and he didn't want to give that up but it was "good to think he had this to come back to... You do have something to come back to, and there will always be those things and people glad to see you again."

Last, we love you.

What goes 'round comes round. And we love you first, last, always and forever.

BL student attends conference

On June 1-3, the Kentucky East Leadership Conference was held by the Hugh O'Brian Youth Foundation (HOBY) at Transylvania University in Lexington.

Betsy Layne was among the Floyd County schools represented. Each high school could send one sophomore representative, or ambassador. The BLHS ambassador was Stephanie Biliter, daughter of Steve and Gail Biliter of Grethel.

She is a member of the student council, academic team, SADD club and the literary committee.

Among the activities at HOBY were panel seminars followed by Q & A sessions, a "barter bar" where students traded goods such as pencils, keychains and shirts from their areas, a walking tour, a talent show and graduation ceremonies.

Students were encouraged to think for themselves, be enthusiastic and to do their best in all situations.

EKU graduates nine locals

Nine Floyd County students received degrees from Eastern Kentucky University on May 12.

The spring's commencement address was given by John Hall, chairman and chief executive officer of Ashland Oil. Following the ceremonies, graduates were invited to receptions sponsored by the university's nine colleges.

The new graduates are Angela Jane Blair of Allen, science; Jeffery D.W. Campbell, Lexington, middle grades; Brian Curtis Conn, Hippo, biology; Rita Lynn Hall, Pikeville, nursing; Sharon A. Harris, Lily, special education; Michael Lafferty, Martin, marketing; Chris Jerome Moore, Garrett, industrial technology; Nancy L. PC awarded $35,000 grant

The Charlotte W. Newcombe Foundation of Princeton, N.J., has awarded $35,000 to Pikeville College for need-based scholarships, according to College President William H. Owens.

"The Newcombe Foundation has been a wonderful supporter of Pikeville College for many years," Owens said. "A great many students have been able to attend college because of the foundation's generosity to our scholarship program."

Pikeville College was one of 17 Presbyterian-related colleges which serve large numbers of minority or economically disadvantaged students to be awarded Newcombe scholarship grants this year. Pikeville's grant was the second largest of the 17 awarded.

Student athletes' progress is subject of federal bill

The US House of Representatives recently passed HR 1454, "The Student Athlete Right to Know Act." Included in the final passage was an amendment introduced by Cong. Chris Perkins that would require all post secondary institutions eligible to receive federal assistance to disclose to prospective students the graduation/completion rates for their institution.

"The passage of "The Student Right to Know Act" represents a significant step toward helping students and their families make more informed decisions about postsecondary education. All students, not just athletes, deserve access to graduation rates and other pertinent statistics."

The Perkins amendment has two specific parts to it. The first requires the disclosure of completion/graduation rates for degree-seeking, full-time students by July 1, 1992. Perkins said that to eliminate the confusion and concern about the part-time student, part-time students were removed from the measure. As it now stands, only full-time students' graduation progress will be measured.

An interim status report will be due from the schools on July 1, 1991. "This will ensure that we have some practical information on this matter during the reauthorization period."

The second part of the legislation will require the Secretary to develop, in conjunction with the higher education community representatives, definitions and methodologies for the disclosure of the following:

- Graduation/completion rates, broken down by program or field of study;
- Graduation/completion rates, broken down by individual school or academic division within the institution;

— The rate at which graduates of the institution pass the state required tests to be employed in various professions; and,

— Placement rates. Perkins said that the second part is "not to be implemented but is to provide us with the needed information that is necessary to make practical decisions during the reauthorization."

Outstanding feat

Stephanie Dawn Allen, McDowell High School class of 1990, recently completed 2092 days of school without missing a day. She had perfect attendance for 12 years, between 1978 and 1990. The daughter of Stanley and Rita Allen of Minnie, she will attend Morehead State University this fall.

Pike College gets $250,000 for science/math center

Pikeville College has been named one of five colleges in the United States to receive grants of $250,000 from the Teagle Foundation of New York.

The grants, payable over five years, are the first in a program initiated by the foundation in 1989 to support small colleges serving significant numbers of low-income students.

The Pikeville College grant will be used to fund a new resource center in physical science and math for Pike County teachers and students. The grant will cover half the cost of the program; the college must raise matching funds by the end of the five-year grant period.

The resource center is an effort to alleviate the shortage of trained physics, chemistry and mathematics teachers in the region, said President William H. Owens.

Its services will include workshops, special lectures for county teachers and students, summer institutes, science fairs, a science information hot-line, workshops on equipment purchasing and repair, technical advice for teachers and a physical science and mathematics teacher training program to prepare new teachers for these fields.

"This program is something we have been wanting to do for some time," said Owens. "We are grateful to the Teagle Foundation for helping to make it possible with this grant."

The other colleges receiving grants under the new Small College Grants Program were Clarke College in Dubuque, Iowa, College of St. Scholastica in Duluth, Minn., Northland College in Ashland, Wisc., and Xavier University in New Orleans.

The Teagle Foundation is a private foundation established in 1944 by Walter C. Teagle, longtime president and later chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, now the Exxon Corporation. Teagle died in 1962. The foundation's assets, which now total over $85 million, are derived from bequests from Teagle, his wife, Rowena Lee Teagle, and their son, Walter C. Teagle Jr.

Remember
FATHER'S DAY
 JUNE 17TH

Behind Time

This kindly, old man, his face withered with time
 Smiles and says hello, are you a friend of mine
 The sun would be shining, and eighty degrees
 He'll say if this snowing don't stop
 They'll be an awful big freeze.
 You smile and assure him, it's a wonderful day
 He tells you he wishes you were able to stay.
 He doesn't know you not even your name,
 He can't see that your eyes are the same.
 It's said to see the tears in his eyes
 But, just as fast you see that they're dried.
 He shows you his chair that rolls with wheels,
 Is this my chair, is this where I live.
 Yes you say, and it's time to go.
 Back to a room he doesn't even know,
 Maybe one of these days they'll come up with a cure,
 and then he'll know who I am, I'm sure.

A Letter to Daddy

Dear Daddy:
 We've never been able to talk.
 School and work have always kept us apart.
 So I want to say on paper
 What I've always felt in my heart.

I know we argued on and on.
 It seems it was constantly.
 I guess I never understood
 All the things you did for me.

But now as I grow older,
 I begin to understand,
 All the responsibility you had Just being a man.

I know you worked on and on Till you could hardly stand.
 I see these things now, Dad,
 Because I, too, am a man.

You walked with God both day and night.
 You taught me to do the same.
 I know when God comes to get his children
 He won't forget your name.

I remember the night I had the car wreck
 When everybody thought I had lied.
 Nobody believed a word I said,
 But you stood by my side.

Well, Daddy, I swear
 What I said was true.
 I really couldn't remember,
 I didn't lie to you.

I hope you're as proud of me
 As I am of you.

I Love You, Daddy.

Marvin Tuttle
 Happy Father's Day!

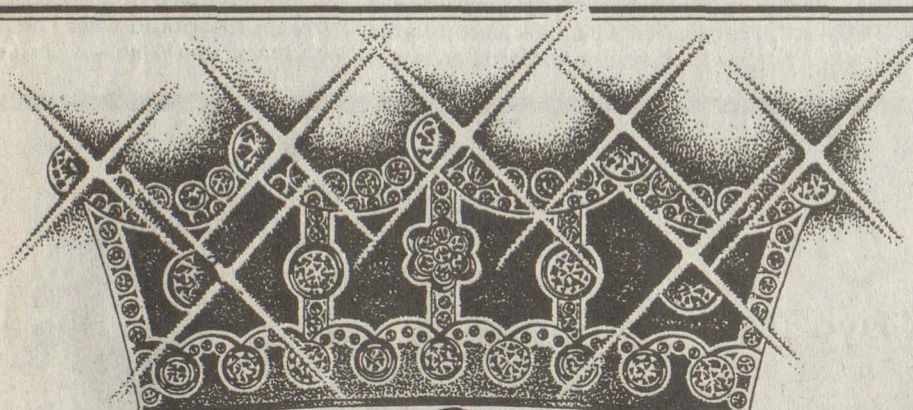

Dad,
 It's so hard
 Not having you near.
 When I think of you so far away,
 I shed a little tear.

I remember us doing little things
 That meant so much to me.
 I wanted to be your little girl forever
 But I know now, I can't be.

Now that I'm married,
 And have moved away.
 There's just one thing,
 I have to say...

I love you, Dad, and I'll always be your "little" girl.

Happy Father's Day!
 Love,
 Michelle Carver

HOROSCOPE

June 17 through June 23

By A. Murphy

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20)

It is the first impression that you make today that may stick with those just met, so make it a positive one. Listen more than you speak. Show that you have done research.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22)

Even if it seems like the best deal, do not make a purchase until you have looked elsewhere or you have slept on it and still feel strongly that it is right.

LEO (July 23 - August 22)

Remember that it is not your job to point out the shortcomings of others. Rather, concentrate on being your best, and celebrate what you like about your partner.

VIRGO (August 23 - September 22)

This is a good time for self-improvement activities. Set up an exercise plan, take an art appreciation class, examine your own thoughts, ideas and motives. Read a book.

LIBRA (September 23 - October 22)

When your emotions are upset, thoroughly examine your feelings and the reasons for them before moving on to recovery. In this way, you will learn more about yourself.

SCORPIO (October 23 - November 21)

It is often on those dull, dreary days when something surprising and wonderful may happen. Don't rule the day by planning to have a bad time. Be open to any possibilities.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 - December 21)

Do something pleasantly unexpected one night for yourself and/or for your partner. Keep the television off. Try a new recipe that your partner can help with. Eat outside.

CAPRICORN (December 22 - January 19)

To deal with that major problem you and your partner cannot agree on, set a time limit, discuss it honestly and reach an agreement in that time. Dwell on it no longer.

AQUARIUS (January 20 - February 18)

Make the best of being stranded indoors because of the weather. Clean those places you have only been thinking about. Relax in your favorite chair.

PISCES (February 19 - March 20)

You have the power and the compassion to give second chances, but only when you are certain that you are not being taken advantage of. Make decisions based on wisdom.

ARIES (March 21 - April 19)

Transitions are not so bad if you work hard on mentally preparing yourself for it. Don't fear new places, people or jobs. Take each event as it comes.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20)

Make sure you are properly reading the words and actions of your partner. Are you listening as you wish to be listened to? If the relationship is confusing, have an honest talk.

Robert Downey Jr. began career in movie by Dad at age 5

By Polly Vonetes

Q: Can you tell me something about Robert Downey Jr. who starred in the movie Chances Are with Cybill Shepherd? —E.S., Anchorage, Alaska

A: Robert Downey Jr. was born in New York City, April 4, 1965. He made his acting debut at the age of 5 in the motion picture Pound, produced by his father, avant-garde filmmaker Robert Downey. Since then he has worked steadily. On television he was signed as a regular on NBC's Saturday Night Live and had a featured role in the NBC miniseries Mussolini: The Untold Story. His film credits also include America, Back To School, Greaser's Palace, Tuff Turf, First Born, Weird Science, The Pick-Up Artist and Less Than Zero.

Q: I was wondering while watching Sergeant York on TV if Gary Cooper is still alive and where was he born? Also, is Joseph Kearns, who played George Wilson on Dennis The Menace still alive and his age? —Pete Roy, Mountain Lake, Md.

A: Cooper was born in Helena, Mont., on May 7, 1901. He died of cancer in 1961. An interesting sidelight about the film Sergeant York concerns Alvin York, the most decorated soldier of WWI. He had been courted for years by movie studios interested in filming his life. He only agreed to sell the rights to his life if he had casting approval, and the only actor he would approve to play the title role was Cooper. Joseph Kearns, who played the first George Wilson in Dennis The Menace, died on Feb. 17, 1962 before filming was completed for the 1961-62 season. He was replaced in May by Gale Gordon.

Q: Can you tell me what has become of Mark Stevens?

Robert Downey Jr.

I have seen him recently in 1940 movies with Joan Fontaine and others. You seem to be the only person who has information on all the stars. —Marian Fain, Ladington, Miss.

A: Richard Stevens was born Dec. 13, 1915, in Cleveland, Ohio. Trained as a painter, he began his acting career in Canada, on stage and on radio. He returned to the States in the late '30s where he served as an announcer and production manager in an Akron, Ohio, radio station. His film career began in the early 1940s, billing himself, at various times, as Mark Stevens, Stephen Richards and Paul Mark Stevens. During the '60s and early '70s he owned and operated an exclusive restaurant in Majorca, but then returned to Hollywood to resume his career. After several guest appearances on television, he has retired.
