Frazier honored by Chamber, Corns speaks at dinner

The annual Floyd County Chamber of Commerce Dinner at May Lodge Thursday night held quite a surprise for one Chamber member. Chalmers Frazier was shocked when former Governor Bert T. Combs made an appearance in Frazier's honor.

Combs, who has known Frazier for 40 years, began by saying, "Some people dedicate their lives to making money, some strive for power and others crave glory. But, once in a while there is a person who merely wants to be a servant in the house of the Lord, a good neighbor and a good citizen."

He then presented a plaque to Frazier, representing a scholarship set up in Frazier's name at Prestonsburg Community College. "It is a pleasure and an honor to present a plaque that is given because your neighbors and those who know you love you. All is well with a person beloved by his neighbors," Combs said.

Frazier accepted the plaque and the recognition and noted that he "couldn't have asked for a better person (than Combs) to present it."

State Rep. Gregory Stumbo then took the podium and honored Frazier with yet another tribute. Stumbo read a framed certificate with the inscription, "The House of Representatives of the Commonwealth hereby honors Chalmers Frazier for the selfless dedication he has exhibited for Floyd County and its residents."

"For Chalmers Frazier has repeatedly demonstrated his love for Floyd County by acting as the driving force to establish funding for Highlands Regional Hospital; in developing a safe, convenient gateway to Eastern Kentucky by way of the Mountain Parkway; and by safeguarding fine arts and recreational pastimes for Floyd County by supporting the creation of the Jenny Wiley Park and Summer Music Theatre. Chalmers Frazier, the epitome of community spirit and an exemplary citizen, this honorable body commends the outstanding accomplishments of your life."

Frazier said he'd felt like he'd "died and gone to heaven."

"I couldn't have done any of these things without the citizens of Floyd County," Frazier said. "We have a long way to go, but Floyd County is coming to the front."

Following that theme, Judge Ray Corns of Frankfort spoke to the audience of chamber members and guests on the topic of "Kentucky First." Corns was the judge who made the landmark decision that funding of Kentucky schools was unconstitutional and that led to passage this spring of the Education Reform Act of 1990. Corns said that he was told the Supreme Court would never sanction such a decision and the Kentucky Legislature would never approve it.

"I took an oath to call each case as I see it, and I know I'm upholding the law (with this decision)," Corns said. "Being from a four-room school house in Lewis County, I know what it means to be disadvantaged in your formative years."

Corns said that the greatest impact of education reform would be on those who don't think they are going to be affected at all: middle aged citizens. He deemed this the "sandwich generation" — those who have to support their parents who are living longer and need help in their later years, and who simultaneously support their children who are staying home longer.

"When Social Security began it was determined that to make it an economical success there had to be 60 people working to every one retired person. A few years ago that number fell to 30 and today it's at three. Is it any wonder it stands on the edge of financial bankruptcy?" Corns asked.

Without educated youth, the work force within the next 20 years will be too low to support the "baby boomers" who are retiring, Corns said.

Another group who will be affected is the workforce. Corns said that now Kentucky is viewed as an unsuitable place to establish industry because of its reputation of having poor education opportunities.

"If we get the message out that Kentucky is improving this system, we will have an educational and

Incinerator study released

An inspection conducted June 19 by a representative of the state Division of Air Quality reports "0" percent opacity, or clouding, in emissions from a medical waste incinerator operated by Medisin Inc., behind Highlands Regional Medical Center near Auxier.

Prompted by allegations from the citizens group, Floyd Countians in Action, DAQ supervisor Jack Hurt inspected the incinerator for smoke emissions and four odors, according to a copy of his report, furnished by Medisin.

Findings by the inspector indicate Medisin's incinerator is operating within the state's present air quality guidelines, said Robert Ford, vice president of the incinerator company, a for-profit subsidiary of the non-profit Consolidated Health Systems which also operates the hospital.

"In early July, new, stricter air quality standards will go into effect from the state of Kentucky," Ford said. "We have planned for more than a year for these new state regulations and even tougher federal EPA regulations in 1991. Our incinerator will be found to perform substantially within all new and pending air standard requirements into the foreseeable future."

"These new regulations are truly, outstanding because they are far more strict," Ford said. "Our ability to perform within all new compliance parameters will help demonstrate that we're serious about protecting the people and environment of this community. In fact, we are requesting another state inspection as soon as possible after the new regulations become effective."

"The state report indicates that there are no emissions from the incinerator and that the inspector 'noticed no odor standing at the incinerator.'"

The inspector's report, however, noted that the inspection was not an "in-depth inspection."

Many rumors have been circulating about the operation of the incinerator since the citizens' group was formed, Ford said. In response, he said, "I believe that there are three or four people out there fueling this hysteria with crazy statements for their own purpose."

He said an incinerator has been operating at the HRMC site since 1973 and no complaints were registered until the new and improved incinerator was installed. Ford attributed this to the more powerful public awareness of the environment in the 1990s.

"For the size and application, this unit was the best we could find to buy. That's the reason we went with it," Ford said, adding that he challenges anyone to try to find a better one within the state or country. "I think people are just finding it hard to accept that we have a state of the art operation right here in Floyd County."

One of the rumors has been that Medisin built the incinerator behind the public's back, therefore trying to hide something, Ford said. The company, he said, put public service announcements in five different area newspapers, including The Floyd County Times on Aug. 30, 1989.

"We are above board here," Ford said. An open house was planned for last year, he said, but because of television coverage the event was postponed, with officials assuming the television would provide the information desired by the public.

Another rumor that Ford said is untrue is that a house was purchased by the hospital because ash was falling into the pool there. Ford noted that the house was purchased far in advance of the installation of the new incinerator as office space for Consolidated Health Systems.

The ash fallout that people say covers their cars, the administrator said, was proved false by the inspector's report of "0 percent opacity during charging."

Ford said he believes the problem has grown because people are receiving misleading information. For example, he said, the Medisin incinerator is being compared to the one proposed for Paintsville which was to be 400 times as large as the local operation. Medisin is only capable of burning 150 pounds per hour whereas the one for Paintsville was to be able to burn 2000 pounds per hour, according to Ford.

Football players file suit against board of education

by Tim B. Preston
Staff Writer

Seven members of the Elkhorn City High School football team have filed a lawsuit against the Floyd County Board of Education in response to an incident at Wheelwright High School last year.

The lawsuit reportedly alleges that hydrated lime was used to mark the football field at Wheelwright for an Aug. 18, 1989, football game between Elkhorn City and Wheelwright High. The lime apparently caused caustic, chemical burns on several of the players, following a brief rainstorm during the game.

"We noticed our son limping during the fourth quarter," said Nina Aragon, who had two sons burned by the chemicals. "We thought that he might be hurt, but we had no idea he was being burned."

"When kids play football, you expect injuries and broken bones," said Aragon. "but, this is so uncalled for. We (the parents) feel that it was such a stupid, stupid thing that it will take a lawsuit to keep it from happening again."

Elkhorn City football players Shannon Thompson, Shaun Roe, Mitchell Van Potter, Mike Aragon, Mark Aragon, Chris Hunt and Kevin Hunt were taken to a Pike county hospital for treatment of the burns following the game.

The seven students are now seeking retribution from the Floyd County educational system.

The players will be seeking compensatory damages, according to F.C. Bryan, attorney for the football players. Bryan said that no specific amount is being sought in the suit, only that the players who were burned are seeking retribution for injuries from the incident.

Billy Wise, assistant director of the Kentucky High School Athletic Association, said, "Rule one, Section two, article three, of the official rule book states that 'Neither lime, hydrated lime or any derivative of lime shall be used for field marking.' Substances allowed include powdered gypsum, calcium carbonate and liquid aerosol paint containing non toxic materials."

Trial begins in 1989 death

Circuit Court Judge Hollie Conley presided over the completion of jury selection in the trial of Darling Newsome, charged with first degree manslaughter in the 1989 shooting death of Carl Ray "Rady" Martin.

Following an argument on June 4, 1989, Newsome allegedly shot Martin once in the right side with a shotgun. Martin was pronounced dead at the scene by Floyd County Coroner Roger Nelson at a residence on Stamper Branch, just outside Wayland corporate limits.

During opening remarks, Commonwealth's Attorney Jerry Patton read the September 1989 Grand Jury indictment that established the charges of first degree manslaughter and the defendant's alleged intent to cause death. Visibly shaken, Martin's widow, Debbie, listened tearfully as Patton described the circumstances that led to the shooting.

According to Patton's opening remarks, Martin's dog, usually restrained, had broken loose and gotten into a fight with another dog. Patton described how both Martin and Newsome attempted to stop the dog fight, but ended up in a scuffle. Patton declared that the evidence

Reid charges dismissed

Charges of conspiracy to distribute controlled drugs were dismissed Monday against Martin pharmacist Ronald Reid.

Jacqueline Rubemeyer of the US Attorney's office in Lexington confirmed yesterday that a civil agreement was reached in the case and the charges, brought in the winter, were dropped.

Two other men involved in the same set of indictments, Dr. George Sullivan of Knott County and Doug Fleming of Johnson County, have pleaded guilty to charges that they authorized prescription drugs without a license, along with charges of running a criminal enterprise.

Both men are to be sentenced some time in August, Rubemeyer said.

For literacy

State's First Lady to speak at luncheon

Kentucky First Lady Martha Wilkinson will be the guest speaker at the third annual Floyd County Literacy Luncheon tomorrow at noon at the Prestonsburg Holiday Inn.

Wilkinson, expected to be a Democratic candidate for Governor, has been a longtime champion of adult education programs in Kentucky. She also spoke at last year's Literacy Luncheon.

The event will feature recognition of literacy students, volunteer tutors and other local individuals and businesses that have actively supported the efforts of the Floyd County Adult Literacy Council.

The luncheon is cosponsored by the council and the Prestonsburg Rotary Club. Tickets are available from Rotarians or by calling the council at 886-READ.

Sunny and warm

The weatherman says that we should have a nice day today with sunny skies and the high from 85 to 90 degrees. Tonight will be fair and mild, the low expected between 60 and 65 degrees. Tomorrow look for sunny skies again with the temperature between 85 and 90 degrees. Tomorrow night should be fair and mild, but a bit warmer with the low expected from 70 to 75 degrees.

Open house at Medisin

Medisin Inc.'s medical waste incinerator facility will hold an open house and open forum at 2:30 p.m. tomorrow (June 28) at its Auxier business office on US 23 North.

Issues to be discussed will include how safe is incineration of medical waste, who owns and profits from Medisin Inc., how does the community actually benefit from Medisin's operation, and what happens when out-of-state operations move in, according to Medisin officials.

This open house is free and the public is urged to attend.

Chamber hosts theatre night

Tonight is Floyd County night at Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre. Tickets to the production of "How To Succeed in Business Without Really Trying" are on sale at the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce office in the Municipal Building in Prestonsburg.

This is local citizens' chance to show support of the repertory group, the only summer musical theatre in this region. Showtime is 8:30 p.m.

Look inside

Today's edition of The Times features a magazine supplement on efforts by Floyd Countians to stem the rate of illiteracy in the county. The supplement is sponsored by the Floyd County Adult Literacy Council and Prestonsburg Rotary Club.

Take a look at some of the things being done and the people who are playing a part in helping more local residents learn to read. Better yet, become a part of the literacy effort.

Special section coming Friday

Don't miss Friday's edition of The Times which will feature a special vacation supplement that looks at exciting leisure opportunities.

But don't expect to read about Hawaii or France or the Finger Lakes. This supplement focuses on sights to see and places to visit right here in our own region — Eastern Kentucky. Maybe it's time we explored what's almost right under our noses.

Magistrates considering 105% pay raise

MOREHEAD — Saying their increased work load justifies it, Rowan County's four magistrates are considering awarding themselves a pay raise of 105%, which would take effect July 1, if approved. Magistrates raised the possibility of giving themselves a significant raise in pay during last week's fiscal court meeting in order to gauge public reaction to the proposal. The increase in salary would be from $485 to $1,000 per month. (The Morehead News)

Johnson County couple charged with abuse

PAINTSVILLE — A Johnson County couple were arrested Thursday after police and social workers found their 22-month-old son tied to a porch post in a Thelma trailer court. Marty Welch, 24, and his wife Sonya Welch, 22, of Thelma were charged with first degree criminal abuse, a class C felony, and were taken to the Big Sandy Detention Center in Paintsville. (Lexington Herald-Leader)

School board approves new teacher salaries

MOREHEAD — The Rowan County Board of Education decided to stand its ground on its proposed salary increase for teachers in a regular meeting June 19. The board unanimously approved an 11.6 percent increase in previous salaries by using $700,000 of the $1.4 million in new money allocated for school reform. Rowan teachers feel the salaries should be higher. (The Morehead News)

Johnson schools seek court guidance on raising taxes

PAINTSVILLE — The Johnson County Board of Education is seeking help from the courts on alternatives to raising property tax rates by nearly two-thirds to comply with Kentucky's new education reform law. Under the law, school districts must levy taxes to reach the equivalent rate of 50 cents per $100 of assessed property value. To qualify for top-level funding, the board must boost the rate to 55 cents to qualify for $18 million in state construction funds. (The Courier-Journal)

Man accidentally shot in Pikeville

PIKEVILLE — A Shelbiana man received minor injuries last week when a gun he was carrying accidentally went off near Jeana's Restaurant on Division Street in Pikeville. Jeff Adkins, 21, of Little Creek, was treated and released from Pikeville Methodist for the injuries caused by the .25 caliber automatic pistol. According to the Pikeville City Police, no charges are pending. (Appalachian News-Express)

$850,000 collected in delinquent taxes

ASHLAND — About $850,000 in delinquent property taxes have been collected this year by Boyd County and the city of Ashland, and much more is expected. As of last Wednesday, the county had collected $570,000 in back taxes, according to reports filed by Assistant County Attorney Dan King, who has filed 67 lawsuits this year against delinquent taxpayers. "I think I can get $1 million by Christmas," King said. (Ashland Daily Independent)

Jury acquits four charged with abuse

STANTON — Defense lawyers in a sexual abuse case said they believed lack of medical evidence led to their clients' acquittal on all charges. Raymond Gibson, 63, of Burning Fork, and his three sons, Raymond Gibson Jr., 34; Darvin Gibson, 41 and Russell Gibson, 32 were acquitted on charges of sodomy, sexual abuse and rape. The jury deliberated for 5-1/2 hours before returning the verdict of not guilty at 11:53 p.m. last Friday night. (Appalachian News-Express)

Incinerator

Another misconception is that the incinerator burns chemical waste, Ford said. He noted that the waste burned is similar to some household waste that people think nothing of throwing into the trash, such as soiled bandages and insulin needles. "Hospital waste is regulated, household is not. The only items going into the incinerator are patient contact disposable items which is a regulated waste stream," Ford said.

He said that an open house, scheduled for June 28, would help squelch rumors and that those attending "would learn a lot."

Wheelwright council considers mobile homes, sale of buggy

by Tim B. Preston
Staff Writer

The issue of a mobile home within city limits was the main topic of discussion at last week's meeting of the Wheelwright City Council.

Mayor Kenneth Johnson opened the meeting with the statement that he would adjourn the meeting if the public "got out of hand" and went on to read a city ordinance that stated that no mobile home could be permanently located within the city limits unless the structure was a two-part, underpinned and peak-roofed structure.

The source of the minor controversy is a single-wide trailer that was moved onto property owned by Darrell Parks. Parks said he purchased the property and improved it with the mobile home, as well as eliminated weeds and other debris on the lot.

Parks asked that the council consider a temporary waiver of the ordinance because the trailer is being occupied by his mother, who is of poor health and requires extra attention.

"We aren't trying to run people out of town or anything," said Mayor

Johnson. "We just don't know what to do."

Johnson asked Parks to get back in touch with the city after he had an opportunity to speak to legal counsel. "We will try to help you with this," said Johnson.

There was also some discussion on what was the hot topic of last month's meeting — the sale or lease of a mining buggy owned by the town. Residents present at the meeting asked the mayor to try to clear up confusion about where funds from the sale would go.

The mayor attempted to explain that no funds had yet been received, but that the city utility commission would have to decide what would happen to the money when it is received.

Before adjourning, the council voted to write a letter to property owners with dead or dangerous trees on their property and approved funds for the purchase of a fire extinguisher for the city fire truck.

All council members were present for the meeting. The next meeting is scheduled for Thursday, July 19 at 7 p.m.

presented during the trial would establish that Newsome was clearly the initial aggressor in the situation.

Defense attorney Ned Pillersdorf, during his opening remarks, explained to the jury that "Rady Martin was a victim of his own conduct. He assaulted four other people," Pillersdorf continued, "during the same drunken, violent rampage."

According to Pillersdorf, officials measured a .23 blood alcohol level in Martin, who allegedly had been drinking that day.

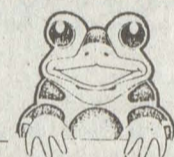

Pillersdorf further stated that during the altercation, Martin was armed and had been threatening several others before attacking Newsome's 15-year-old daughter.

"Darling Newsome," stated Pillersdorf, "fired not only in self defense, but in defense of his own daughter. It's unbelievable this man was ever indicted."

At the conclusion of opening remarks, the prosecution began calling as witnesses representatives of the Forensic Crime Laboratory of the Kentucky State Police. Testimony is expected to be extensive, although the trial may conclude before the end of the week. According to Pillersdorf, Newsome is not expected to testify in his own defense.

economical renaissance in our life time," he said. "Good quality schools mean high quality industries."
Corns also emphasized the effect that poor education has on the penal system, stating that 60 percent of those incarcerated don't have a high school diploma. He cited his "Sentenced to Learn" program as a step in the right direction. The program offers the incentive of a lesser sentence to those who complete a GED program while in jail.

"When we ask 'Would you rather be educated or go to jail?' Oh, they see the light," Corns said. "It's a real good motivator, and when we help these people we really help ourselves. It's a matter of make the investment now in education or pay for it later in prison."

He pointed out it costs taxpayers $20,000 a year to house an inmate.

Noting that he sees numerous positive things coming out of the recently enacted education reform package, he said he would like to invite "48 Hours" back in a couple of years to tell them "the rest of the story."

He closed with a story about his teacher in elementary school who said, "There is a ladder in the middle of this school house called opportunity. You can climb on it as high as you want to go but you have to get on it in a school house."

In addition to the special program honoring Frazier and the speech by Judge Corns, others were recognized for their accomplishments in the past year.

Incoming Chamber President Dolores Smith said that the Chamber's number one priority this year is education. She then introduced the county teachers who were instrumental in coordinating the Mountain Magic Magazine, published by area students.

Those named were Carolita O'Quinn, Carol Stumbo, Shirlene Hamilton, Patricia Watson, Thelma Spears, Willie Elliott, Jerry Lafferty, John Patton and Bonnie Hall.

Tim Hites, outgoing chamber president, introduced this year's new officers. In describing Smith, Hites said it "was like having tiger by the tail. You either go along with Dolores or you certainly want to get out of the way. I'm excited about having her as our new president and you certainly ought to be, too. It's going to be a great year."

One of the newest programs already started by Smith is to coordinate as many organized clubs in Floyd County into one large group. Representatives of groups, ranging from church clubs to Woman's Clubs, from Kiwanis to Rotary and education groups, attended the first meeting June 19.

In describing the reason for the group, Jaycee President Kathy Prater said Smith was interested in adopting the Kentucky State Jaycees motto, "Working together means winning together."

"This group will bring together people and organizations that will identify community needs and with the help of the elected and appointed officials, we hope to meet their needs and make a better life for our children," Prater said. "As we improve each community we move further into our goal to improve Floyd County and prove that working together really means winning together."

A group recognized for its accomplishments was the Floyd County Litter Task Force. Smith, a member of the task force, said it was with the help of all the members of this group that Floyd County would become a place to be proud of.

She then recognized three members present, Marty Backus and Charlotte McFall, co-chairpersons, and Tess Whitmer, public relations person. The idea for the group originated in the Chamber of Commerce.

Baby is SIDS victim

Members of the Prestonsburg Fire and Rescue Department responded to a call for help Friday night at Cliffside Apartments. Rescue workers were told that a baby had stopped breathing at apartment 44.

Upon arrival, firefighter Mike Moore found a neighbor performing CPR on a baby. Moore took over resuscitation efforts until ambulance workers could transport the child.

Members of Respond Ambulance Service arrived quickly and continued CPR while transporting the infant to Highlands Regional Medical Center where the child was pronounced dead.

A spokesperson for the Nelson and Frazier Funeral Home at Martin said that the child was a victim of Sudden Infant Death Syndrome, commonly called SIDS, an unexplained phenomenon where young children stop breathing, often while sleeping.

Letters

Trials of a Hillbilly

Dear Editor,

Re: letter to editor June 15, 1990, "Scheiderich", and allow me to say I left Floyd County that first time in the spring of 1937 for CCC camp in California. I had never heard of the word "Hillbilly" until a young man from Ohio told me Hillbillies were dumber than other people. When he finished telling me what a hillbilly was, I beat him up and made him say hillbillies were smarter than other people.

After returning to my place of birth at the very head of the Bear Branch fork of the Conley fork, of the Spurlock fork, of the Middle Creek fork of the Big Sandy River at West Prestonsburg, I didn't hear much about hillbillies while working in a coal mine at the head of the Bucks Branch fork at Martin and hoeing corn on the hillside as I did almost from birth before leaving for California.

Somebody named Hitler attacked several countries and I became a Paratrooper in the US Army. It took me nearly four years to win WW2 almost single handed. Then I came back to the very head of the Bear Branch... and began again to hoe corn on the hillside and work in the coal mine at the very head of Bucks Branch at Martin.

Six months after my return, I learned I could get a job on the railroad in Chicago making more money for less work. Eight months into that job, I was sent to Willard, Ohio. I soon discovered a lot of people in that little town in northcentral Ohio only knew about three or four words. "Damn KY Hillbilly" (were some).

Arriving at Willard, I had a nearly new car, was 25 years old, good looking and danced well. I also knew how to speak the King's English because of an English teacher in California. I had to tell them where I was from before they could properly identify me.

After a few months in Willard, I met a beautiful young lady, single and a native of that community. We were married and I became "Norma Kenne's Husband," instead of "Ky. Hillbilly." I don't know which I disliked the most.

In the summer of 1984, after all our children had married off, Norma and I retired from the railroad and moved to Venice, Fla., for the climate.

Norma died of cancer Nov. 4, 1987. After several experiences as an old man single, I met a Dr. Iva Lee Potter from Ohio and we were married. It all went well until one day she asked me where I was from originally. I said, "The very head of the Bear Branch fork of the Conley fork of the Spurlock fork of the Middle Creek fork of the Big Sandy River at West Prestonsburg, Kentucky. She screamed, "Why, you are a damned Ky. Hillbilly!" She said that right here in Florida, the solid base of the old south. Our divorce will be final July 3, 1990. NM. Means "No more".

Has advice for FCIA

Dear Editor,

I am writing this letter in regard to the Floyd County Fiscal Court meeting which aired Friday, June 15, on WPRG-TV. It seems that the burning topic dominating the meeting was the new medical waste incinerator (no pun intended) which was built at Highlands Regional Medical Center by Medisin Inc.

A group of citizens calling themselves Floyd Countians in Action (FCIA) seemed quite upset about the fact that Robert McAninch, a member of the Floyd County Solid Waste Board, served on the Medisin board as well. A spokesman for FCIA made the accusation that serving on both boards created a conflict of interest and called for the resignation of Mr. McAninch from the Solid Waste Board.

Of course, this situation created a perfect opportunity for District #2 Magistrate Jackie Owens (our very own self-appointed radical) to jump on the band wagon. He quickly made a motion calling for Mr. McAninch's resignation and coerced District #1 Magistrate Gerald DeRossett into seconding the motion. It appears that in this and in a few prior meetings that Mr. DeRossett has problems thinking for himself. (In fact, the county could probably save itself a bundle given the large raises and new vehicles that some of the magistrates voted themselves in recent years by simply eliminating the job opening in District 1.)

However, Mr. Owens (obviously trying to resolve some personal vendetta) kept insisting that some sort of action be taken against McAninch. Finally, the spokesman for FCIA admitted that conflict of interest was not the reason behind their request for McAninch's resignation, but said that by serving on the Medisin board, McAninch lent the corporation legitimacy. I don't know about anyone else, but to me, this seems like a weak excuse.

I have no problem with people concerning themselves with what takes place in their community. However, this group did not seem to know specifically what they wanted. A few members said they couldn't stand the obnoxious odor from the burning and were afraid it was toxic, while others said they had no problem with the incinerator as long as Medisin burned only waste from Highlands and not from surrounding hospitals and clinics (They seemed to be afraid that someone other than themselves might profit from it). Also, they didn't seem to notice that Highlands always had an incinerator, but only became upset when Medisin built a new one that now meets state standards.

In addition, the group insisted that no ash from the new incinerator should be taken to the Floyd County landfill because it might contain toxins. They seemed uninterested when Mr. McAninch tried to explain that the landfill would not accept toxic waste anyway.

I guess the whole point I'm trying to make is that a group which has a legitimate concern for the good of the community would not try to turn their actions into a sideshow. They used Mr. McAninch as a scapegoat to draw attention to themselves. I feel that they should stop and consider the fact that without people like Mr. McAninch, our county would still be burying itself in its own trash. Instead of attacking the man, we should stand up and give him a hand.

I would also like to give the FCIA a word of advice. If you want to be taken seriously, choose your allies a little more carefully. Practically anything that involves Mr. Owens becomes nothing more than a three-ring circus with him as a self-appointed ring master.

Applauds efforts

Dear Editor,

As the saying goes, there's good news and bad news. The good news is that we, as Floyd Countians, are standing up and starting to take action in cleaning up the environment.

The bad news is that "Floyd Countians in Action" are standing up and trying to undo the good that people like Mr. (Robert) McAninch as Commissioner of Solid Waste have done. The only way to get anything accomplished is to pull together in working toward a common goal — a cleaner, safer Floyd County.

Mr. McAninch, I applaud your efforts both with the Solid Waste Commission and as an advisory board member to Medisin. I wish that more people were concerned enough to become involved.

—Misha Reynolds
Prestonsburg

'A bad rap'

Dear Editor:

I have been a reader of the Floyd County Times for at least the past 15 years. In the past 10 years, Bob McAninch's name has come up many times and each time I get the feeling that Mr. McAninch was trying to help Floyd County, not himself. In the latest incident with the Auxier group vs. Medisin, it seems like Mr. McAninch is getting a bad rap. If someone is not there to represent the people in a situation like this, who will? Mr. McAninch was out of Floyd County Solid Waste for several months under a previous administration and we all know that it got in bad shape. Now that this county seems to be on the move, Mr. McAninch can get on with other tasks.

'First class environmentalist'

Dear Editor,

With all due respect to the FCIA organization which has every right to question, argue against and protest the importation of solid waste into Floyd County, their demand for the resignation of Bob McAninch due to alleged "conflict of interest" is misdirected. I have known Bob McAninch since 1970, and I know him to be a very thorough individual. His willingness to serve on the advisory board of Medisin Inc. attests to that characteristic of thoroughness.

As Floyd County Solid Waste Commissioner, he has proven to be a first class environmentalist dedicated to developing the best rural solid waste program in Kentucky. From the start he has shown that he is knowledgeable in all aspects including financing, planning, implementing and enforcing. Those who know the history of Floyd County Solid Waste recognize the value of Bob McAninch as Commissioner.

As a dedicated environmentalist, Bob McAninch taught public energy conservation seminars for 10 years. He has demonstrated leadership in hiring teenagers to clean up the garbage around Dewey Lake. (I have it on good word that he gathered twice as much as each of them.) He has personally apprehended toxic violators including affluent citizens, contractors, medical institutions, etc. Bob McAninch is a good citizen. For the environmental health of our community we need him as Solid Waste Commissioner.

In closing, I am not challenging the sincerity of FCIA or the meaningfulness of their protest, but to ask for Bob McAninch's resignation is unconscionable. For the sake of the environmental health of Floyd County and the individual health of ourselves and our children, Bob McAninch is the one person we should require to be on the advisory board of Medisin and remain as Solid Waste Commissioner.

'Personal grudge'?

Dear Editor,

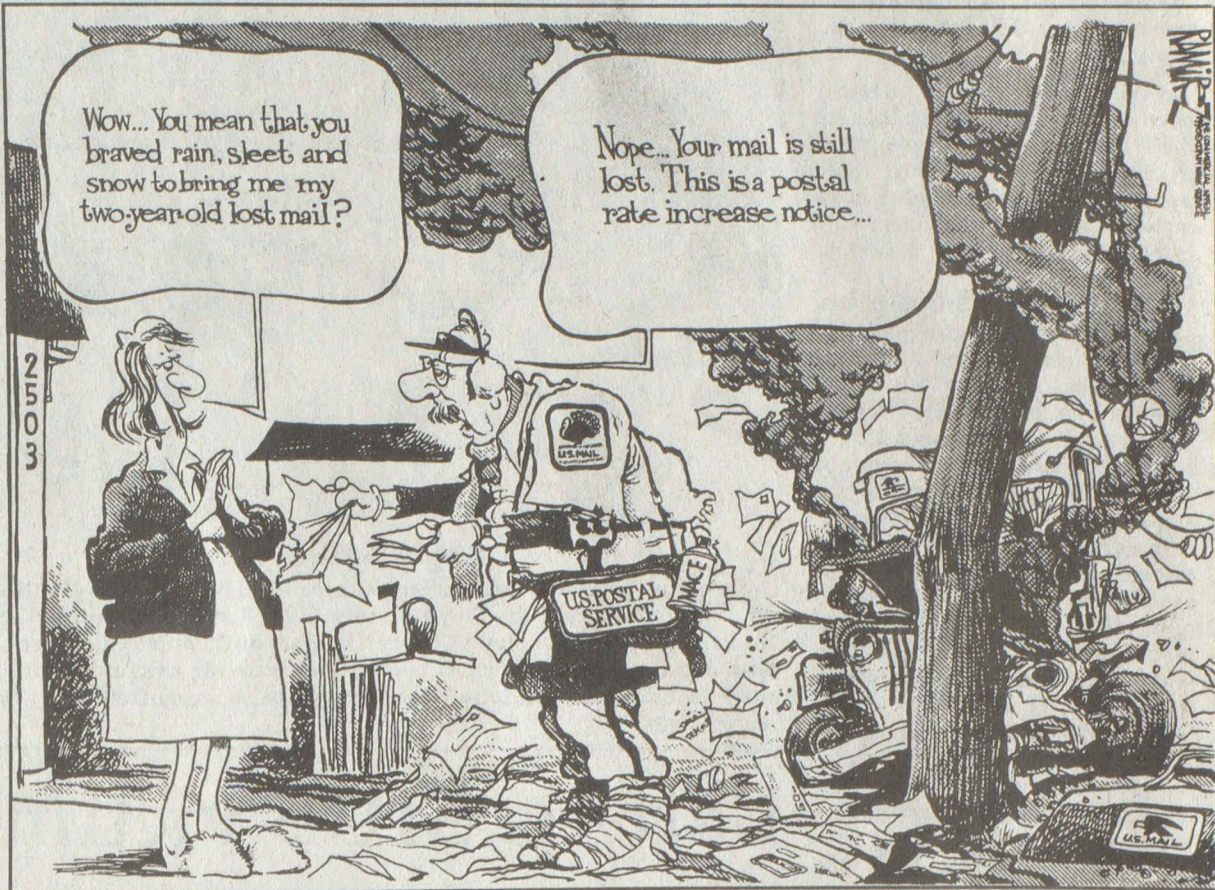

I would like to express my views of the fiscal court meeting held Friday, June 15, at which time the Floyd Countians in Action (FCIA) asked for the passing of a resolution asking for the resignation of Mr. Robert McAninch from the Solid Waste Board.

Firstly, the spokesperson for FCIA stated that there was a conflict of interest because Mr. McAninch also serves on the Medisin Board. However, there wasn't one shred of evidence presented to support their claim. Magistrates Jackie "Make A Motion" Owens and Gerald "Puppet On A String" DeRossett didn't seem to care about the presentation of any evidence. According to them, Mr. McAninch was already guilty and they were ready for his resignation. I feel they were acting on some personal grudge against Mr. McAninch instead of for the well-being of the people of Floyd County.

Secondly, Mr. Owens and Mr. DeRossett, knowing that Floyd Countians would be left "holding the bag" of debts incurred in the creation of Floyd County solid waste, still voted against the acceptance of out of county garbage. Does this sound like they are interested in the people or themselves? I feel they both showed poor judgment and a lack of common "horse" sense.

In closing, I feel that Mr. McAninch is serving the county and community well. He has presented himself as an honest and intelligent man and I think he should be allowed to continue helping us make this county a much better place in which to live.

Guest Editorial

(Editor's Note: What follows is, in part, a response to signed criticism of the Education Reform Act of 1990 that appeared recently in newspapers across Kentucky. It was written by the chairmen of the House and Senate Appropriations and Revenue Committee, and is based on their direct involvement in devising a funding mechanism for those historic reforms.

By Sen. Mike Moloney and Rep. Joe Clarke

As a former US president was fond of saying, facts are stubborn things. You can twist them, torture them, wrap them up in paper and bows, but be careful: Eventually they'll catch up with you.

As chairmen of the Senate and House Appropriations and Revenue Committees, we were at the center of the storm recently when funding was devised for the massive overhaul of Kentucky's system of public education. And we've been distressed in recent weeks to hear criticism of that work that seems to us at best ill-formed, at worst irresponsible and deliberately deceptive.

As veterans of state budgetary wars, we know full well that figures and statistics can be used to prove just about anything. That's why we feel strongly that care and responsibility must be shown in using them, particularly as they apply to education reform.

Unfortunately, opponents of House Bill 940 have no such scruples. They've used confusion and outright deception to "prove" that only 45 percent of the money raised by this year's tax increase will go to education. Further, they've ridden the wind of this outlandish claim to denounce us for passing a tax increase of unprecedented proportions, without cause or need.

Both contentions are fraudulent. Using simple unadorned facts rather than inflated rhetoric — and setting aside the question of the necessity for school reform, which even our opponents concede — let's look at some stubborn facts:

FACT: Total education and education-related spending accounts for MORE THAN 90 PERCENT of the allocation of new tax dollars, that is, money being spent on education across the board.

The exact figure is 94.3 percent.

This is simple arithmetic; it needs no tortured juggling of figures. Just ask two questions:

—How much money is being raised by new taxes?

—How much money is being spent on education?

Set those figures side by side, and see how they compare. The answer:

—The new taxes (a one-cent sales tax increase, a small corporate-tax hike, and changes in the state income-tax code) will raise about $1.267 billion by 1992.

—Spending for elementary and secondary education and related programs is $956 million in that period, spending in higher education is $210.5 million, and spending in workforce development (vocational education and worker retraining) is $27.6 million.

So total spending on education is, in round figures, $1.195 billion, or 94.3 percent of the $1.267 billion raised by the new taxes.

Here's how "truth" was stretched to arrive at the "45 percent for education" figure our foes so cynically cite. They took ONLY the figures for elementary and secondary education — discounting, willy-nilly, the new spending for higher education and workforce development.

Then they ADDED to the tax-increase revenue normal growth projections and lottery proceeds — both of which have nothing to do, really, with new taxes.

Through this budgetary sleight of hand, they cook the books to make a point. But facts remain facts: The money raised through new taxes and new spending for education across the board are roughly equivalent.

As for loose inflammatory rhetoric about the unprecedented scope of the tax increase, we can speak with the authority of experts.

While revenue will rise by about $1.3 billion over the next two years (an increase of about 19 percent) this is a smaller percentage increase than tax measures passed in both 1968 and 1960, and comes after a 22-year period in which broad-based taxes have been seriously eroded.

Numerous exemptions from the sales tax, for example, coupled with the House Bill 44 cap on property-tax rates, cut into revenues throughout the 1970s and 1980s, at a time when inflation raged.

We experienced budget shortfall after budget shortfall — as well as budget reductions totaling more than $1 billion in the last 10 years.

This clear recipe for fiscal disaster led to an inevitable day of reckoning, which happened to coincide with massive Supreme Court-ordered school reform. As the decade of the '90s dawned our financial condition was desperate, not just in education, but in corrections, human services and the environment — all areas where new spending was imperative, and where much of our normal growth revenue and lottery proceeds have been absorbed.

These are the facts of the matter, the stubborn facts, that defenders of the educational status quo — the failed status quo — cannot explain away.

All Kentuckians will be asked to make sacrifices, for the sake of our children and our economic future. We can no longer stand by and watch as the Commonwealth languishes at the bottom, nationally, in education; nor can we tolerate the sad exodus of our best and brightest who leave Kentucky in search of opportunity.

These issues are large ones, and certainly leave room for disagreement and debate. We only ask our myopic opponents to have some respect for the stubborn facts in making their case for faint-hearted change.

Strange Enough?

By Tim Preston

WARNING!!! Explicit Thoughts!

I really don't want to come off sounding like Tim B. Angry or anything but, I definitely disagree with the way some people think.

At the heart of this wrong thinking is an evil that I consider more dangerous than anything the American public has ever been asked to swallow, and the sad thing is we are blindly following this evil like lambs to the slaughter.

Before you read anymore of this column I ask that you keep an open mind. We won't be thinking about sex, drugs or child abuse. We will be thinking about Rock and Roll.

The Electric Church.

That vile evil which is causing our children to commit suicide and creating a generation of disrespectful ingrates. The foul source of devil worship and desecration of values.

On to the issue at hand.

If you have ever agreed with any of the cliches listed above, consider yourself a sheep on your way to having your throat sliced.

There is a certain faction and school of thought that would have us believe that there is always something or someone to blame all the bad things on. I believe this is the heart of the issue.

Stickers and labels. Warning: This material contains explicit language. Allegations and lawsuits. Teens commit suicide while listening to heavy metal music. Devil worship suspected.

Demonstrations and sermons. Local church group demonstrates outside of Ozzy Osbourne concert.

I always disliked Jim Bakker. If I were to have demonstrated and cried foul every time that blasphemous demon came on my television, thousands of people would have burned my home and shunned my name.

I was never crazy about Jimmy Swaggart either.

I use these two men as examples because they are people who have tried, and are still trying to tell us how to think. If only we have faith in their ways and words, then surely goodness and mercy shall follow us for the rest of our lives.

Blind faith in anyone or anything is the most dangerous form of evil known to me. Be true to your beliefs, but don't let them be conformed, twisted or compromised.

When someone, no matter how important that person may be, tries to convince you that there is a great evil abounding in our land and its name is rock and roll, try to remember the lessons taught to us by the Reverends Jim. There is a dollar to be made, there is a following to gather, there is a record to burn.

The wife of a prominent United States Senator recently decided that she simply could not live in a world where musicians are allowed to express beliefs other than her own. With a few words in the right ears, we now have labels on our records which warn us of those views and opinions.

I am a musician. I write music. I think this is wrong.

If I write a song which goes into great lyrical detail about a specific act of kinky sex, it is your right to say that you do not appreciate the song. You have no right to tell me that I cannot write the song, or that the song should not be performed for the public.

If I write an instrumental song and think of the same topic matter, and make my notes and melodies reflect ive of those feelings, I guarantee that you would love the song and go to sleep humming the melody.

The interpretation of anything lies within the mind of the beholder. To me there is no difference between the two musical pieces that I described. To those who lead the sheep, the difference is distinct and sharp.

Where does this thinking end?

Think about it. Don't listen or read. Just think about it. You are the only hope we have.

Archaeologists to study coal mining sites in area

There's digging going on in the coalfields of eastern and western Kentucky these days, but not the kind of digging one would usually expect.

These "miners" aren't after fossil fuels. They are interested in fossils of another variety. They are part of a new program of the state's Department of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement to identify and protect Kentucky's unique cultural and historic heritage.

Last July, the archaeology section of the department's Division of Permits began reviewing all data in the preliminary mining permits to determine if a potential historic site exists.

After consultation with the state historic preservation officer, a decision is made as to what, if any, additional information is needed. If more information is called for, the permittee must then hire a professional archaeologist to prepare a survey of the site.

"Kentucky is a unique state in that the archaeology of the coalfield regions is virtually unknown. What we're doing is very basic research — trying to discern the extent and historical importance of the sites in these areas," said Sara Sanders, senior ar-

Sanders holds an undergraduate degree from Southern Methodist University and a master's degree from the University of Kentucky.

Between the program's inception and March of this year, around 30 percent of the permits submitted required surveys. Whether or not that figure will change depends on continued field work to define the extent of Kentucky's potential sites, Sanders said.

Sanders works with two other full-time archaeologists in the division's Frankfort office. The program is funded 50 percent from state funds and 50 percent from the federal Office of Surface Mining.

"Protecting our historical heritage is important to Kentucky," Sanders said. "It's also federal law under the National Historic Preservation Act. Our job is to see that significant parts of Kentucky's history are preserved for future generations both during and after the mining process. We've made a good start, but we still have a long way to go."

MSU plans business meet

Do you have what it takes to start your own business? Morehead State University will be the site for a "Going into Business? Why — Why Not?" seminar on Thursday, July 5. This is a pre-business planning program, designed to help potential business owners make objective decisions before investing their time and money.

In the session, participants will learn what is needed to start a business and why some business ventures fail. Also included will be a discussion of questions to ask when buying an already established business.

The seminar is sponsored by the School of Business and Economics Small Business Development Center at MSU, Morehead/Rowan County Chamber of Commerce, Mt. Sterling/Montgomery County Chamber of Commerce, Buffalo Trace Area Development District and Gateway Area Development District.

The program will begin at 6 p.m. in the Butler Hall Conference Room. A $5 preregistration fee is required. Arrangements will be made for the handicapped when requested in advance.

Additional information may be obtained from MSU's Small Business Development Center, Butler Hall #24, Morehead 40351-1689. Telephone 783-2077.

The Kentucky Small Business Development Center is partially funded by the US Small Business Administration (SBA).

NOTHING TO LOSE SLEEP OVER

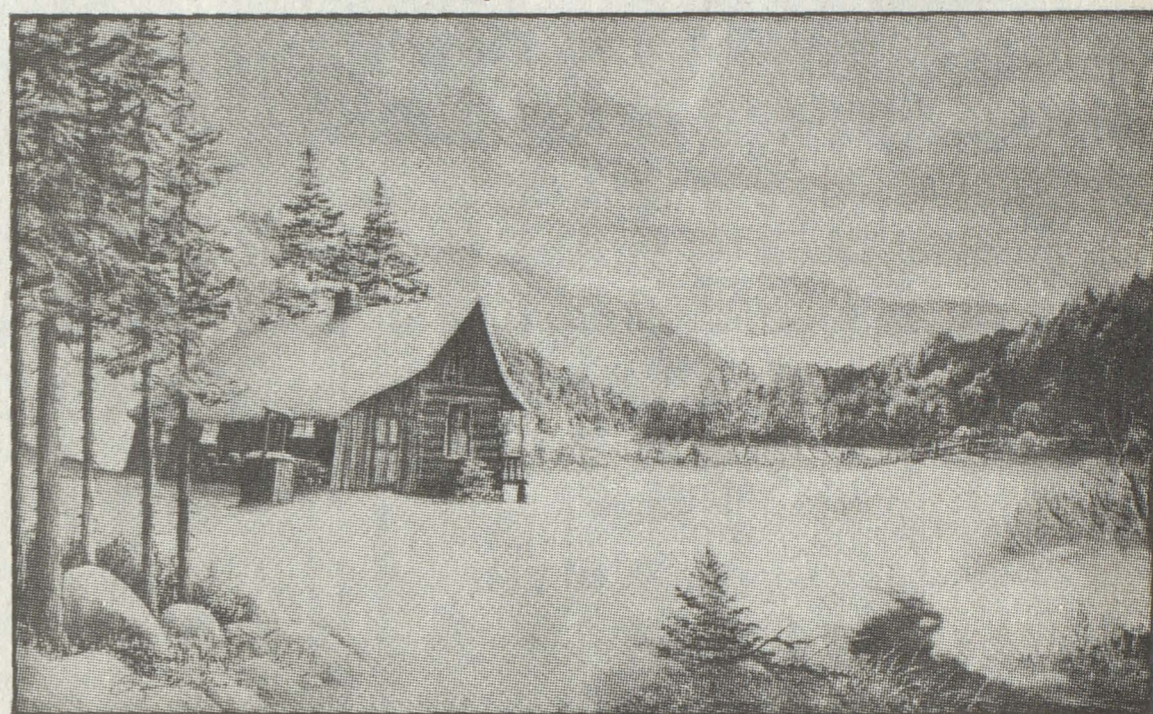

A number of surveys indicate that nearly one-third of the general population has difficulty either falling asleep or staying asleep. Half this number go to their physicians with their problem, and half of these people get prescriptions for sleeping medications. However, in the recent past, many doctors have been reluctant to prescribe sleeping pills on a long-term basis. Many sedatives may be habit-forming when used on a long-term basis, or carry other side effects. Currently, the prescription drugs known as benzodiazepine hypnotics, when used properly, are very effective in helping short-term sleeplessness. As for over-the-counter medications, a recent FDA review found diphenhydramine hydrochloride, diphenhydramine monochloride and doxylamine succinate (all antihistamines) to be safe and effective.

COOLEY APOTHECARY, carries what you would expect to find in a well inventoried drug store, including a full line of over the counter and prescription sedatives. We are also very proud to be able to provide families in this area with all their pharmaceutical needs. Our records are fully maintained so that they can be readily available to both you and your physician. You'll find us located at #2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106 and open Mon. - Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-3. ## Prisoners and parolees get help from Dove House

Every Monday night since 1978, Bible-carrying Jerry Herrmann of Dove House has preached the Gospel to prisoners and juveniles housed in the Floyd County jail.

Herrmann says he does more than preach: "We listen, counsel and befriend prisoners and parolees and their families. Our efforts help to stop the large number of persons who keep returning to the prison system...For every person who gets out of that system and back into society, our state saves $40,000-$50,000 per year."

In addition to visiting the jails, Dove House volunteers give support at trials and hearings, transport family members for visitation and help with food and other needs when able. Dove House is in the process of expanding services to include preventative efforts and is making staff available to speak at groups and to intervene with high risk youth and adults.

Free Bibles, Christian literature and, recently, videos have been available through the efforts of the Dove House Book Store in Prestonsburg.

Evangelist to speak

Evangelist Mike Manuel will preach tonight (June 27) at 7 p.m. at Faith Christian Assembly on South Lake Drive in Prestonsburg.

The evangelist is from Huntington, W.Va.

The public is invited.

The book store was recently closed because, according to Herrmann, "During the past years, the store has

Recital set in Huntington

Roy C. Hoobler, a candidate for the Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in music at Marshall University, will present an organ recital on Saturday, June 30, at 3 p.m. at the Johnson Memorial United Methodist Church in Huntington.

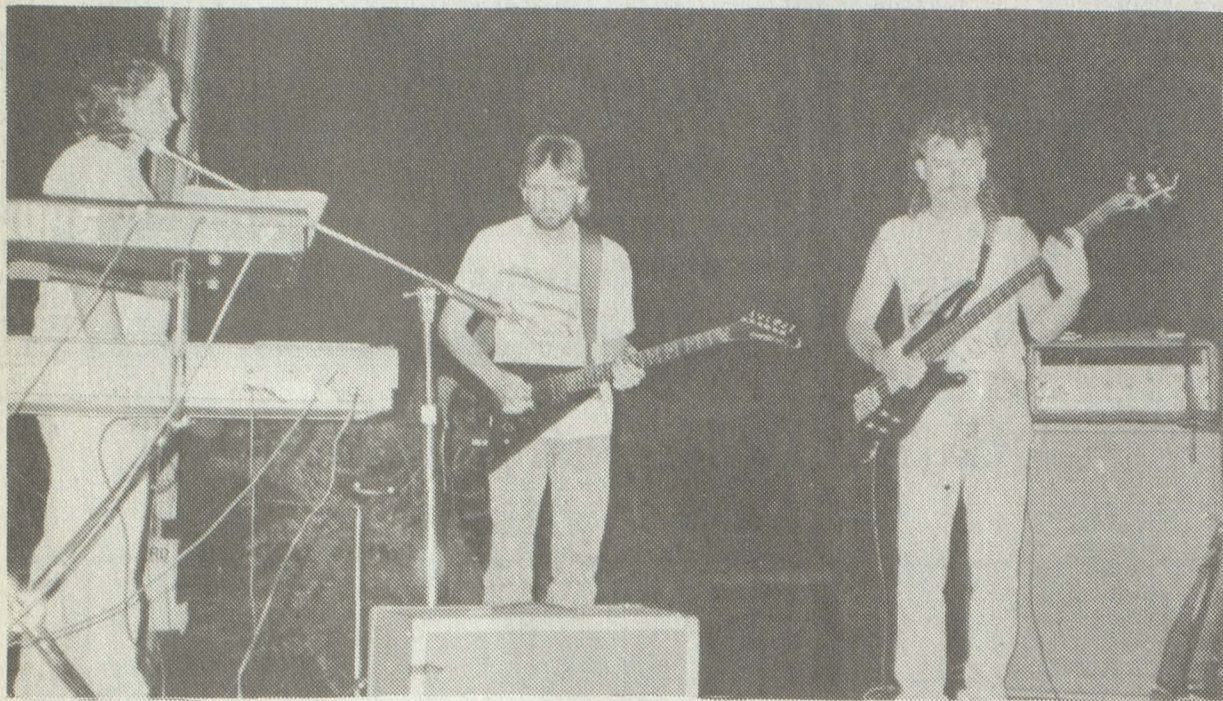

He will perform the Toccata and Fugue in D Minor as well as two other works by J. S. Bach. His recital will also include selected works by Ciguit, Franck, Dupre and Haines.

The accompanist for the Marshall University Choir, Chamber Choir and Opera Workshop, Hoobler is organist at St. Luke United Methodist Church. He also teaches piano in the community and was co-winner of the 1989 Music Teachers National Association piano competition.

The public is invited to the organ recital free of charge.

In Memory of My Daddy

Fred Ousley
Oct. 23, 1919 - June 27, 1989
A year ago our grief begun, Jesus came for you a chosen one. Our lives are lonely, our lives are sad, we miss someone special, we miss you dad.
But God is good, he is merciful too, he took the best when he took you. I was holding your hand when the death angle came, I knew then our lives would never be the same.
With pain in my heart, tears in my eyes, I silently whispered my good-byes. You're free of sickness, there's no more pain, you're our loss but heavens gain.
So Daddy, when the gates of heaven open wide, I pray to God to be inside. I know you'll be there, a grin on your face, To welcome your family in that great place.
Your children, grandchildren, and your wife too, will always cherish the memories of you.
GONE FROM OUR LIVES BUT NOT FROM OUR HEARTS
WRITTEN BY BESSIE OUSLEY

In Memory of My Mother

Eva Hyden Hopson
Sometimes I'd like to be held
In the arms of my mother once more.
The way she held me as a child
When her love made my heart soar.
She knew just what to say and do
To make everything alright.
No matter the need—She was always there
Any time of the day or night.
She taught me right in a world of wrong
So my path would be clear to see.
Of all the mothers in the world
God gave the best one to me.
Maybe if she could rock me now
As she did so long ago,
I could feel the strength she gave to me
And all the answers I could know.
I love you, Mama, with all my heart
For the way you taught me love.
It's the gift that I will gladly share
One of which there is never enough!
Pauline Hyden Sparks

KET features national 4th gala

Music and fireworks take center stage as "A Capitol Fourth 1990" celebrates a new era of freedom and the extraordinary events that have lifted the Iron Curtain, electrifying the world.

The 90-minute concert, to be broadcast live from the West Lawn of the US Capitol in Washington, DC, airs on KET at 8 p.m. on Wednesday, July 4.

Internationally acclaimed maestro Mstislav Rostropovich and guest conductor Henry Mancini will lead the National Symphony Orchestra in an exciting concert of American and European music hundreds of thousands of people gather on the Capitol grounds to picnic and enjoy the music and fireworks.

"This past year, a series of unprecedented events has transformed the political and social face of Eastern Europe and other nations, generating an new found sense of hope, peace, and freedom," says Jerry Colbert, executive producer. "A Capitol Fourth 1990" salutes these newly independent countries and celebrates the remarkable times in which we live.

The concert begins on a high note with Mancini conducting an upbeat medley of American popular music, followed by his solo piano rendition of "Imagine," singer John Lennon's moving homage to world peace.

The celebration continues with a salute to President Vaclav Havel and the people of Czechoslovakia as maestro Rostropovich conducts the orchestra in the last movement of Dvorak's Ninth Symphony ("From the New World").

Rounding out the Independence Day gala is a series of stirring musical works that pay homage to all the heroes of freedom, past and present, culminating in a spectacular fireworks display over the Washington Monument.

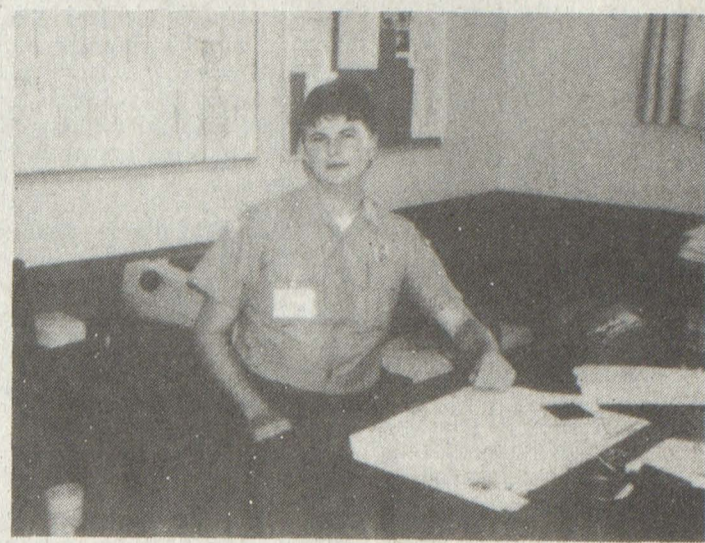

As the bursting rockets light the sky, the orchestra concludes the concert with a round of spirited Sousa marches, including "Stars and Stripes Forever" and "The Washington Post March."

"A Capitol Fourth 1990" is produced by WVIA/Scranton and WETA/Washington, DC.

Attorney General sues 'Smart Shoppers Club'

The so-called "Smart Shoppers Club" which has promoted itself to Kentucky consumers as "Grocery Shopping of the Future" is being sued by Attorney General Fred Cowan.

The lawsuit, filed in Jefferson Circuit Court, alleges Unimax Inc. of Schaumburg, Ill., d/b/a/ Smart Shoppers Club, is operating as an illegal buying club, an illegal pyramid distribution plan, and has substantially misrepresented the availability and value of the goods and services offered consumers in connection with the Club.

The lawsuit alleges that part of the Smart Shoppers scheme is the marketing to consumers of certificates, which cost $60 and are supposedly redeemable for $70 in merchandise at the grocery store chain of the consumer's choice.

However, Cowan says an investigation by his Consumer Protection Division has found that no grocery chain in Kentucky has any agreement to honor such "certificates" and that no chain has even been approached by the defendants.

"We are alleging through our lawsuit that Smart Shoppers Club is a deceptive and illegal operation aimed at luring consumers who, quite naturally, are anxious to put food on the table as affordably as possible," Cowan says.

The Club is known to have been marketed to consumers in the Louisville, Lexington, and Bowling Green areas.

One national grocery store chain, Safeway, has sued Unimax in connection with the Smart Shoppers Club. Lawsuits have also been brought by the Attorneys General of Utah and Illinois with investigations underway in several other states.

Cowan's suit seeks temporary and permanent injunctions to halt Smart Shoppers from doing any further business in Kentucky and civil penalties of $2,000 for each violation of Kentucky law. It also asks the Court to establish a special trust account for the purpose of refunding to consumers all fees and other money they paid in connection with the Smart Shoppers scheme.

New health care program aids low-income Kentuckians

Thousands of low-income Kentuckians who qualify for assistance will receive free prescriptions and pharmacy services over the next year through a new program being launched July 16.

The new Kentucky Pharmacy Providers program is a joint effort of Kentucky Medical Association, Kentucky Pharmacists Association, Pfizer Pharmaceuticals and Kentucky Health Care Access Foundation Inc. (KHCAF).

In his role as foundation president, Lt. Gov. Brereton C. Jones said the new program is a vital addition to a voluntary effort begun five years ago to help Kentuckians who live below federal poverty standards, have no health insurance and don't qualify for such programs as Medicare and Medicaid. Eligible individuals already receive free physician and hospital services.

In extending this help to prescription drugs, Pfizer will make its Pfizer Labs and Roerig brand pharmaceuticals available at no cost, and voluntarily participating pharmacists will dispense them without charge to eligible ambulatory patients. The estimated combined value of these goods and services exceeds $1 million.

"We believe this extraordinary gesture by Pfizer, coupled with the free professional services of pharmacists, is unparalleled across the country," Jones said.

Peter G. Tombros, executive vice president of the Pharmaceuticals Group of Pfizer Inc., termed KHCAF and the Kentucky Physicians Care, Kentucky Pharmacy Providers and the Hospital Fair Share programs "inspirational examples of problem-solving through public-private partnerships."

"This program has the wholehearted and enthusiastic endorsement of Kentucky Pharmacists Association," association Executive Director Robert Barnett said. "We will urge all of our members, as well as all other Kentucky pharmacists, to participate."

Under the new program, physicians prescribe for qualified patients any of more than 40 Pfizer Labs or Roerig pharmaceuticals. To qualify, a patient must possess a currently valid Kentucky Physicians Care eligibility form. To learn whether they qualify, individuals who do not have these forms may phone the toll-free Physicians Care hotline (1-800-633-8100) weekdays between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Eligible patients can fill the prescription free through a participating pharmacy by presenting identification, including the currently valid Kentucky Physicians Care eligibility form.

Eyes are prime target with fireworks

Enough is enough, warns the Kentucky Society to Prevent Blindness (KSPB). If you contact them about fireworks safety this Fourth of July, you will be advised not to use fireworks at all.

Instead of passing out advice on how to handle fireworks safely, KSPB strongly recommends leaving them to the professionals.

Statistics indicate that inexperience and mishandling of fireworks play a huge part in the nearly 10,000 injuries suffered each year. The bulk of the incidents occur during Fourth of July festivities.

Studies show more than 40 percent of eye injuries caused by fireworks left permanent damage. Half of those injured were children. In one study, spectators were victims in 25 percent of the incidents.

Following release of its most stringent position to date on the sale and use of fireworks, the National Society to Prevent Blindness, as well as the Kentucky affiliate, discourages private use of fireworks.

Of particular concern are the Class C devices, which are mistakenly thought to be of little danger and thus widely misused. These include firecrackers, smoke bombs, bottle rockets and sparklers. Studies have cited sparklers as being the cause of more than half of all reported injuries, and bottle rockets causing a third of the eye injuries.

For more information on eye safety or a specific eye problem, write the Kentucky Society to Prevent Blindness, 101 W. Chestnut St., Louisville 40202 or call (502) 584-6127, or 1-800-828-1179.

Old movies set for museum

"A Night at the Movies" series continues on Sunday evenings during July in conjunction with the "Glamour and Allure" exhibit on view at the Kentucky Highlands Museum through July 29.

This series will include a movie, refreshments and a gallery talk by local historians and movie buffs and will be free to the public with the usual admission price to the Museum — $2 for adults, $1 for students and senior citizens and no charge to museum members.

Sunday, July 8 at 7 p.m. the movie will be "Jezebel" starring Bette Davis, Henry Fonda and George Brent. The guest lecturer will be James Casto of Huntington, W.Va.

Sunday, July 22 at 7 p.m. the movie will be "Angel On My Shoulder" starring Paul Muni, Anne Baxter and Claude Rains. The guest lecturer is Mike Moran of Ashland.

For more information or group reservations call the Kentucky Highlands Museum at (606) 329-8888 between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday and 1-4 p.m. on Sunday.

Padres repeat: Martin Pee Wee League champs

Bucky Martin's team overcomes Royals, 18-12

Coach Bucky Martin's Padres defended their league crown in grand style Saturday at the Martin Ballfield by handing the Royals an 18-12 defeat in the finals of Martin's Pee Wee League playoffs.

Nick Martin, Ethan Blackburn and Ryan Manns each enjoyed perfect 4-4 trips to the plate. Blackburn had a day to remember by hitting for the cycle (single, double, triple and home run). Brian Jones and Desmond Spencer had three hits each and scored three runs each.

In the top of the first inning, Desmond Spencer and Nick Martin singled, and both runners scored on a double by Brian Jones. Ethan Blackburn doubled home Jones and was thrown out trying to reach third base, but the Padres led 3-0 after a half inning of play.

In the Royals' half of the first, Larry Mullins led off with a base hit. Heath Scott followed with a base hit to put runners on first and second. Misty Scott reached on a fielder's choice to load the bases. Chad Samons singled in two runs. Shawn Newsome singled in Scott to tie the score at three.

April Justice and Jason Holbrook had a run-scoring base hit each, and the Royals led 5-3 at the end of the first inning of play.

Base hits by Ross Samons, Desmond Spencer and Nick Martin loaded the bases for the Padres in the top of the second inning. Ethan Blackburn followed with a bases-clearing triple. Ryan Manns singled in Blackburn for the fourth run of the inning. Brandon Hansford tripled in Manns, and the Padres led 8-5.

The Royals tied the score in the bottom of the third. Heath Scott and Mindy Scott singled to start the rally in the third. Keith Crum singled to drive in a run as did Shawn Newsome. April Justice knocked in the third run with a fielder's choice to tie the score at 8-8.

Nick Martin and Brian Jones singled to start the fourth inning for the Padres. Ethan Blackburn singled to knock in Martin, and Ryan Manns doubled in Jones and Blackburn as the Padres stretched their lead to 11-8.

The Padres broke open the game in the fifth inning by scoring seven runs on eight hits — the big blow coming from the bat of Ethan Blackburn, whose two-run inside the park home run capped the rally and gave the Padres a 10-run, 18-8, lead with the Royals coming to bat in the bottom of the fifth.

The Royals fought back by scoring four runs in the bottom of the fifth on five hits, but the 10-run deficit was too much for the Royals.

Tigers best Rangers in consolation game

The consolation game of the Martin Pee Wee League saw the Tigers regain their winning form by defeating the Rangers, 11-8. The Tigers jumped out to an early three-run lead on a single by Steve Allen, a home run by George Hall and back-to-back doubles by Brandon Sizemore and Ann Hall.

The Rangers answered in the bottom of the second by scoring three runs of their own. John Patton led off the bottom of the second with a single. Shawn Flannery followed with a single, and both runners scored on a triple by George Thornsbery.

Jeana Hall singled Thornsbery home and the score was tied, 3-3.

A six-run third inning for the Royals proved to be the Rangers' downfall. Steve Allen led off the inning with a double for the Royals. Brandon Sizemore scored Allen with a double of his own and scored on a double by Samantha Allen.

Ann Hall singled to put runners on first and third. Trish Hall doubled in two runs and took third base on the throw home. Robert Hall singled home Allen, but was thrown out trying to stretch his single into a double. DeAnna Mullins singled and scored on a base hit by Josh Yates to make the score, 9-3.

The Rangers scored two runs in their half of the third inning. Jesse Hall reached first base on fielder's choice. John Patton followed with a two-run homer to make the score 9-5.

George Hall led off the Tigers' fourth inning with a double to left field. Hot-hitting Brandon Sizemore connected on an inside the park home run to push the Tiger lead to six, 11-5.

The Rangers battled back in the bottom of the fifth inning. Back to back singles by Jonathon Thornsbery and Jesse Hall put runners on first and third. John Patton doubled down the left field line to score both runners.

Patton went a perfect three for three at the plate and knocked in four runs. Shawn Flannery tripled down the right field line to score Patton and make the score, 11-8. The Rangers played hard but their late inning rally fell short, and the Tigers won third place in the tournament.

Braves best Reds, 8-5

Top rated Braves capture Harold Pee Wee title

The championship game of the Harold Pee Wee League pitted the league's number one place team, Braves, against the fourth place Reds. The Reds advanced to the finals by beating the number two team in the league, Dodgers, 8-5, Wednesday night.

Braves coach Randy Kidd sent pitching ace Shannon Williams (with a 13-1 record) to the mound to face the Reds in the championship game while Reds coach Mike Parker countered with Mindy Robinette.

The Reds scored in the top of the second inning when Tyler Puckett slugged a two-out triple in the gap to left center field. Shane Justice followed with an RBI single up the middle to score Puckett, and the Reds led 1-0.

The Reds threatened to score in the top of the third when Mindy Robinette and Kenneth Johnson had back to back one-out singles, but the Braves defense stiffened, retiring Barrett Brooks and Brian Parker on easy pop ups to end the scoring threat.

In the bottom of the third, the Braves' Bengi Kidd drew a two out walk off Robinette. Rodney Rose followed with another walk, and the Braves had runners on first and second with two outs and Anthony Tackett at bat.

Tackett stroked a double down the third base line to score Kidd with the tying run. Rose raced to third ahead of the throw from the outfield and the Braves had runners on second and third with Josh Kidd at the plate. Kidd popped out to third base to end the threat, but the Braves had tied the score, 1-1.

The Reds outhit the Braves, 12-8, in the championship game with Kenneth Johnson going a perfect 3-3. Mindy Robinette, Tyler Puckett and Shane Justice had two hits each for the Reds with Justice having the lone RBI.

Doug Kidd was the only Brave to have two hits as he went a perfect 2-2. Josh Kidd had a triple, and Anthony Tackett had a double and an RBI for the Braves. Bengi Kidd scored both runs for the Braves.

With the score tied 1-1 at the end of five innings, the championship game went into extra innings. The Reds' Robinette started off the sixth inning with a one out single. Johnson followed with his third single of the game. The Reds had runners on first and second, but Brooks and Parker failed to get the go-ahead run across as both batters grounded out to end the inning.

In the bottom of the sixth, Bengi Kidd drew a lead-off walk for the Braves. Craig (Boss) Keathley was sent in to pinch hit for Rose. Keathley lined the first pitch in the hole between shortstop and third base.

The Reds' outfielder tried to force Kidd out at second base, but the throw was high over the second baseman's head. Kidd rounded second and headed for third, Johnson ran the ball down in center field and fired the ball back into the infield for the Reds, but Kidd was too fast and beat the relay throw to home plate for the winning run.

Grand slam powers Astros to B-team championship

The top two teams in the Harold Allen-Prater, B-team Little League, battled each other for the championship Monday night at Allen Park. The Allen Astros beat the Harold Dodgers 8-5 in a close ball game.

Coach Jackie Crisp's Astros finished the season with a sterling 21-1 record. Their only loss was at the hands of the Dodgers in the opening round of the tournament.

Eddie Rose's Dodgers finished the season with a 14-6 record. All of the Dodgers' defeats came at the hands of the Astros.

The Dodgers scored in the top of the first inning when Chad Case reached first base on an error and scored on consecutive singles by Brad Kimbler and Doug Keathley to make the score 1-0.

The Astros answered back in their half of the first inning. Wes Samons singled and scored when Billy Mitchell bounced a double off the left center field fence. Sam Nelson doubled in Mitchell to give the Astros a 2-1 lead. Seth Crisp cleared the bases with an RBI triple and scored as Josh Barnett grounded out to first base to give the Astros a 4-1 lead.

In the bottom of the second inning, the Astros scored four more runs. Jason Roberts and Wes Samons singled. John Ortega followed with a walk to load the bases, and Sam Nelson drilled a pitch down the right field line that the Dodger right fielder could not come up with. Nelson rounded the bases for an inside the park grand slam home run and the Astros led 8-1.

The Dodgers scored a run in the top of the third inning. Chad Case doubled to lead off the inning and scored when Doug Keathley singled up the middle.

The Dodgers scored three unearned runs in the top of the fourth. After two were out, Jason Hall reached first base on a catcher interference and scored when Shannon Potter dropped a bunt in front of the Astros catcher, Nelson. Nelson threw wildly past first and Potter raced all the way to third base.

Chad Case hit a grounder that the second baseman let go through his legs, and Potter scored. Matt Kidd bunted down the third base line that Nelson fielded and threw past first base again, and Case scored their third run of the inning to make the score 8-5.

Said Coach Rose of his young Dodgers, "I am very proud of my kids. They played their hearts out tonight. We just came up a little short."

"We just came up a little short."

Royals outdo Rangers, 8-5

The second game of the double-header featured the Martin Royals against the Rangers. The Royals scored four runs each in the bottom of the first and the bottom of the third innings to take the 8-5 victory and advance to the finals against the Padres.

Chris Damron started the game off for the Rangers with a base hit and scored on John Patton's double to make it 1-0.

The Royals answered back with four runs in their half of the first inning. Larry Mullins led off with a single for the Royals. Heath Scott followed with an infield hit. Misty Scott hit a long fly ball that the Ranger left fielder dropped to load the bases.

Chad Samons had an infield hit that scored Mullins. Keith Crum singled in two runners, and another run scored when Shawn Newsome was forced out at first base. The Royals led 4-1 at the end of the first inning.

Jeana Hall singled to start the second for the Rangers and scored on a base hit by Ross Pavolko to cut the Royals lead to two, 4-2.

In the bottom of the third inning, the Royals scored four runs on six hits to take a six-run lead, 8-2. Base hits by Larry Mullins, Brandy Samons and Heath Scott loaded the bases for the Royals. Misty Scott brought in all three with a bases-clearing triple. Chad Samons' single brought in Scott

Padres pull 12-3 upset

Martin Pee Wee League semi-finals get underway

The first game of the semi-finals in the Martin Pee Wee League saw the Padres, coached by Linda and Bucky Martin, defeat the previously unbeaten Martin Tigers, coached by Cainer Hall, 12-3.

The Padres had their hitting shoes on as they pounded out 15 hits, compared to the Tigers' eight.

In the first inning, Nick Martin doubled for the Padres. Brian Jones followed with another double to score Martin. Ethan Blackburn singled to score Jones and took second base on the throw home. Brandon Hansford singled to score Blackburn, and the Padres led 3-0 at the end of the first inning.

In the top of the second for the Padres, Dwight McKinney led off with a single. Graden Allen singled, and the Padres had runners on first and second. After a groundout and a strikeout, Desmond Spencer singled in both runners for a 5-0 lead.

The Padres scored two more runs in the top of the third. An error by the Tiger center fielder allowed Brian Jones to reach second base. Blackburn followed with an RBI single to center field. Ryan Manns and Brandon Hansford followed with infield singles to load the bases for the Padres.

Bo Hammonds hit a grounder to the shortstop, and he forced Manns out at second base, but the run scored to make it 7-0.

The Tigers got on the scoreboard in the bottom of the third inning. An error by the shortstop allowed Josh Yates on first base. DeAnna Mullins and Steve Allen followed with infield hits to load the bases for the Tigers.

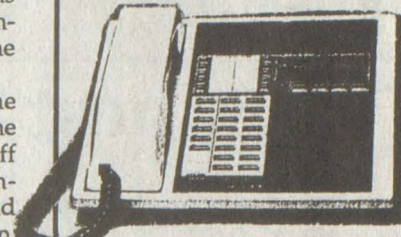

Samantha Allen popped out to the second baseman and Mullins left the bag too early and was doubled off second. However, Brandon Sizemore doubled off the left center field fence to bring home Yates and Allen, and the Tigers trailed 7-2.

A five-run inning for the Padres in the top of the fifth inning sealed the tournament victory for the Padres. Jordan Slusher, Desmond Spencer, Nick Martin, Brian Jones and Ryan Manns all scored for the Padres as they led by 10, 12-2.

The Tigers tried to mount a comeback with a run in the bottom of the fourth, when Shannon Sizemore doubled in Trish Hall, but the 10-run lead was too much for the young Tigers to overcome.

RESIST TEMPTATION TO "RESCUE" WILDLIFE
Wild animals don't make good pets.
Regardless of motives, no matter how well intentioned, it's best to leave wildlife in the wild. Without specialized care by knowledgeable caretakers, most wild animals die after being taken from their natural habitat.
Most of the time, animals that appear orphaned or abandoned are not.
Fawns are particularly vulnerable to "rescue" during late spring and early summer, the time most Kentucky whitetails are born. Many times, people unfamiliar with deer habits assume a fawn alone in the woods needs help. Rarely is this the case. Does normally leave their offspring unattended for long periods while grazing or resting.
Fawns arrive in this world with some built in protection provided by Mother Nature. Several elements, working in combination, help protect the offspring while spots simulate sunlight on the forest floor. This coloration, along with fawns' lack of scent and the ability to lie motionless, helps keep very young whitetails safe from predators.

If you happen upon a fawn in a Kentucky woodland — don't touch. Only the doe can detect her offspring, and your humanscent may cause the doe to reject her young, leading to true abandonment. If this happens, the fawn will probably die from starvation and neglect.

Remember, it's illegal to capture wildlife by any method during a closed season.

MCDOWELL VS MAYTOWN

McDowell defeated the Maytown Giants in a five-inning contest, 22-5. Bud Kidd had a grand slam for the McDowell, and Neil Martin hit a solo home run in the fifth inning as Matt Rose cruised through the Maytown line up for the win.

Earl Cook, Bud Kidd, Matt Rose, Ryan Brown and Chris Hamilton all had two hits each for McDowell.

Kevin Martin and Chris Halbert went 2-3 for Maytown in a losing effort. Martin suffered the defeat.

We've increased the advantages of the most recognized health care card in Kentucky.

To you, the Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Kentucky card may look the same as before. And in some ways, you're right. It's still the one health care card recognized by any doctor, any hospital, anywhere you go. It continues to provide peace of mind for over 900,000 Kentuckians. But your Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Kentucky card is changing. There are new ideas behind it. And a new spirit. We're streamlining our organization in a concentrated effort to cut our administrative costs. Our people are working harder and smarter; thinking of fresh, new ways to make your health insurance even better. Our card's biggest change, however, is not so much something you can see, but something you can feel. Our company is returning to a value system that cares for the customer, that believes the customer is important. We have not reached all our goals. But we're moving forward. Choose us again or for the first time. And choose Kentucky's most valuable health care card...that's on its way to becoming even more valuable.

Good isn't good enough anymore.

'I saw it on the radio'

Radio can pull in distant ballgames

by Mike DeCourcy

Pardon his French. Goose Goslin doesn't know much, aside from pate and maybe a few other words. He knows enough to know it when he hears it, though, and there are Canadian radio stations sending it his way every night.

Sometimes, it gets there. The radio signals carrying major-league baseball games through the summer night can be as unpredictable as the games themselves, but Goslin often spends his evenings trying to pick up what he can.

"Occasionally, I'll get a Montreal game on one of the stations broadcasting in French. It's strange to follow along and see what's happening, trying to figure it out without understanding the language," said Goslin, the former Pittsburgh pitcher and now KDKA-Radio's sports director. "You try to take something out of the context of the voice inflection, or with one or two verbs you know."

"To me, it's part of my job. I tune around and try to pick up what's going on whenever I can. I've picked up Chicago, Detroit, Cincinnati, the Mets. A lot of times I'll pick up something that helps me on my sportscasts the next morning."

The medium is the message for this one, and radio remains baseball's primary voice. ESPN's nightly baseball telecasts have made searching the radio dial for aural glimpses of major-league games seem altogether unnecessary, but here remains a small challenge and fascination to locating distant radio stations, comparing the styles of broadcasters and perhaps even checking out what's happening in the games.

It seems to shrink the world a bit when you can listen to Jack Buck and Mike Shannon debating the merits of the Tom Brunansky-Lee Smith trade on St. Louis' KMOX-AM (1120).

To pick up major-league baseball from different parts of the country, you can buy a new radio, rig up a semi-sophisticated antenna and begin spinning the dial. But the key ingredient in this process is patience. And a low ceiling.

Not in your living room. The ceiling, the one composed of clouds. Cloud cover is the most significant factor for enhancing long-distance AM radio reception.

"It could be like that in St. Louis or Kentucky, but clear here, and you could still get that station well," said Glenn Pawloski, manager of a Pittsburgh Radio Shack. "When it's cloudy, the signal refracts back to the earth and bounces along, instead of sailing out into space."

In his nightly forays across the dial, Goslin is apt to use the radio in his car or another set he described as "very cheap, almost like a pocket radio." To facilitate the best AM reception, however, Pawloski recommends an outdoor antenna that goes for $8 attached to a direct entry/digital AM radio that retails for about $200.

The key with this style of radio is it has an "RF gain" dial that helps the antenna draw in a signal, and the digital function permits the listener to punch in the desired frequency—1210 AM for Philadelphia's WCAU, for example—rather than fidgeting with the tuner and trying to discover what's out there.

So what's out there? The Athletics? The Angels? You can't get them from here—assuming "here" is anywhere outside of California. The signals of their flagship stations (KSFO-AM 560 for the Athletics and KMPC-AM 710 for the Angels) barely escape the state's borders. Even a powerful signal like the one belonging to KABC-AM 790, radio home of the Los Angeles Dodgers, would make it past the Midwest only under circumstances that would require a papal investigation.

WBAP-AM 820 in Fort Worth carries the Texas Rangers with a powerful signal that covers all of the country but the Northeastern corridor. The Houston Astros flagship station is KTRH-AM 740, which is not a clear-channel station and thus sends announcer Milo Hamilton and much of its 50,000 watts into the Gulf of Mexico.

Kentucky's Fishing Report

Fishing activity over the June 23-24 weekend was moderate on most of the major lakes. Water temperatures ranged from 78-86 degrees. Largemouth bass and bluegill were the most consistently active species. The lake-by-lake report:

KENTUCKY

Largemouth bass were hitting crankbaits, spinnerbaits and jig & pig combinations 5-10 feet deep around shoreline cover; striped and white bass were active on minnows, jigs and crankbaits 15-20 feet deep in open water; clear, stable, at summer pool and 85 degrees.

BARKLEY

Largemouth bass were active on crankbaits and plastic worms 5-10 feet deep over drop-offs and along the shoreline; bluegill were taking red worms and crickets 5-10 feet deep over gravel in shallow coves and along the shoreline; clear, stable, at summer pool and 85 degrees.

BARREN

Largemouth bass were hitting plastic worms 10-15 feet deep around stump rows and over creek channels; white bass were hitting jigs and spoons 15-20 feet deep over drop-offs; clear, stable, at summer pool and 82 degrees.

NOLIN

Largemouth bass were active on crankbaits and spinnerbaits 10-15 feet deep along creek channels and over drop-offs; crappie were hitting minnows and jigs 5-10 feet deep over submerged trees and brush piles; clear, stable, at summer pool and 83 degrees.

ROUGH RIVER

Largemouth bass were active on spinnerbaits and plastic worms 5-10 feet deep off rocky points; crappie were hitting minnows and jigs 10-15 feet deep over submerged trees and brush piles; clear, stable, at summer pool and 82 degrees.

TAYLORSVILLE

Kentucky bass were hitting crankbaits and plastic worms 1-5 feet deep over drop offs; bluegill were active on red worms and crickets 5-10 feet deep over submerged trees and brush piles; clear to murky, stable, at summer pool and 80 degrees. (ANGELERS TAKE NOTE: A 15-inch minimum size limit applies to hybrid striped bass.)

HERRINGTON

Largemouth bass were hitting crankbaits, plastic worms and jig & pig combinations 5-10 feet deep along the shoreline; bluegill were hitting wax worms and crickets 1-10 feet deep off steep walls and banks; clear, falling, five feet below summer pool (dam repair level) and 84 degrees.

GREEN RIVER

Largemouth and Kentucky bass were hitting plastic worms, crankbaits and spinnerbaits 5-10 feet deep along the shoreline around stump rows and submerged trees; crappie were hitting minnows 5-10 feet deep over submerged trees and brush piles; clear, stable, at summer pool and 82 degrees.

LOWER CUMBERLAND

(above dam): Striped bass were active on jigs and shad 20-25 feet deep in open water; largemouth and smallmouth bass were hitting plastic worms mainly at night 5-10 feet deep off rocky points and over creek channels; clear, falling, two feet below summer pool and 80 degrees.

DALEHOLLOW

Largemouth bass were hitting plastic worms and jig & pig combinations 20-25 feet deep over drop-offs and along creek channels, bluegill were hitting nightcrawlers, red worms and crickets 10-15 feet deep over submerged trees and brush; clear, falling, two feet below summer pool and 82 degrees.

CAVERUN

The Rangers scored an unearned run in the top of the fourth inning when George Thornsby got on base on an error by the Royals shortstop. Thornsby scored on an error by the second baseman to make it 8-3.

Johnathan Hall and Chris Damon singled to start the Rangers' fifth inning. Errors by the Royals' second baseman and the shortstop produced the Rangers' last two runs of the game as their comeback fell a couple of runs short.

MFLEX CONCRETE TOPPING

Big inning lifts Astros to victory

In the semi-final game of the Harold-Allen-Prater B-team tournament, the Allen Astros defeated the Harold Dodgers, 13-6, Saturday at Allen Park.

Wes Sammons earned the victory, in relief of Josh Barnette, for the Astros while Shannon Potter of the Dodgers took the loss.

The Dodgers were coming off an upset win over the Astros in the opening game of the tournament (the Astros' only loss of the year) and were leading 4-3 in the bottom of the third inning, but the Astros scored 10 runs in the top of the fourth inning to take a nine-run lead, 13-4.

Wes Sammons, John Ortega and Billy Mitchell walked to load the bases. Sam Nelson followed with a bases-clearing double to left center field.

Seth Crisp and Chris Holbrook walked to load the bases again for the Astros. Greg Horn connected with a Potter fastball and singled up the middle to score Nelson and Crisp.

Jason Roberts was hit by a pitch and the bases were loaded again. Sammons, batting for the second time in the inning, lined a single up the middle to score Holbrook and Roberts.

Brad Kidd had a double and a single for the Dodgers along with three RBIs. Shannon Potter had two base hits and one RBI.

The championship game of the double elimination tournament will feature the same two teams, Dodgers and Astros, Monday night at Allen.

MIZE AUCTION

SATURDAY JUNE 30, AT 1:00 P.M.

We have been instructed by signed contract to offer at auction two choice properties on Frames Branch road 6 miles Southwest of Clay City. This property has been in the family for many years, but due to health reasons the owner is offering for sale.

Tract #1 contains of 183 acres more or less and has approximately 1/2 mile blacktop road frontage on both sides of Frames Branch road. This property is excellent for subdividing and presently has electric, telephone, and city water available. There is a tobacco base of 2400 + lbs for 1989 and has already been leased this year. There is an old barn and two frame homes that is in need of repairs.

Tract #2 contains 65 acres more or less and is mostly woodland. Tract 2 joins tract #1 on the north side. Tract #2 has access to both Frames Branch road and Plum Branch on the north. This property would also be ideal for dividing into smaller tracts. There is a one-half interest in the mineral rights reserved from this tract in a prior deed dated January 16, 1950.

DIRECTIONS: Take Mtn. Parkway or KY 15 to Clay City, Ky 1057 (Hardswick Creek Rd.) south 2 miles to Frames Branch road, go 3 miles on Frames Branch. Signs will be posted.

OWNER: Ms. Mildred Mize

TERMS: 10% of purchase price day of sale. Balance upon passing of deed in 30 days.

AUCTIONEERS NOTE: Seldom do we offer for sell this type property. There is some good timber on both tracts and total on both tracts is 248 acres more or less. We will offer separate and as a whole which ever brings highest dollar. We will have an agent on the property Sunday June 24 from 1:00 P.M. until 4:00 P.M. for viewing or call selling agent.

ES MEMBERS RETURN

About 110 Eastern Star members from throughout Kentucky have returned from a Western tour. Those from Adah Chapter #24, Prestonsburg, included Burieta Gearheart, Roberta Sloan and Maxine Bierman. Some of the places of interest which they visited were: the International Peace Gardens (established in 1932 as a symbol of peace between the US and Canada), Yellowstone National Park (where they viewed "Old Faithful"), Mt. Rushmore, the Badlands National Park, Wall Drug Store in Wall, N.D. and the Corn Palace in Mitchell, S.D.

During the trip, which covered 12 states and parts of Canada (about 4,400 miles), they attended services in the Peace Chapel, built and dedicated to the cause of peace by the General Grand Order of the Eastern Star.

DRIFT WOMEN'S CLUB MEETS

The GFWC/KWFC Drift Women's Club met May 21 to install the new officers. The highlight of the meeting came when Ruby Akers, installing officer, presented each new officer with a long-stemmed yellow rose and charged them to perform their duties to the best of their abilities, making each of them feel needed and special.

Akers presented Roberta Luxmore, the outgoing president, with a rose and expressed to her the club's thanks for her leadership for the past two years.

The new officers are Clara Johnson, president; Roberta Luxmore, second vice president; Doris Lawson, first vice-president; Celia Little, recording secretary; Linda Elliott, corresponding secretary; Jerri Turner, treasurer and Anna Sue Stumbo, parliamentarian.

Members hope the coming two years will be as successful and rewarding for the Drift Woman's Club as the past years have been.

WESLEY BELL CHOIR TRIP

Members of the Wesley Bell Choir of the First United Methodist Church, and director Elizabeth Frazier plan to leave Thursday for the National Festival of the American Guild of English Handbell Ringers' Convention in Nashville, Tenn. Persons of the community wish them success and a safe journey.

Proclamation issued

Floyd County Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo presented Ruby Akers, president of the Floyd County Retired Teachers Association, with a proclamation proclaiming June 14 as Retired Teachers' Day in Floyd County. The presentation was made during a picnic meeting on Flag Day at Stumbo Park at Allen. Others present were (left, facing front) Virginia S. Goble, first vice-president and Imogene Caldwell (right), co-secretary of the FCRT.

CAP VOLUNTEERS ARE GUESTS

Marjorie Zolkoski and Dale Baggett joined Mr. and Mrs. John Rodebaugh on Thursday for a visit with Frankie Best, at her home, at Cliff. Zolkoski and Baggett, who have been serving as Volunteers for the Christian Appalachian Project at Martin, left on Saturday for Pennsylvania, where they have been employed. They plan to be married on Sept. 1.

LITERACY LUNCHEON

The public is reminded of the 3rd Annual Literacy Luncheon Thursday at noon, on June 28, at Holiday Inn. Contribution of $10 per person is being asked for the purpose of furthering this worthy cause.

BIERMAN, WELLS ATTEND FUNERAL

Maxine S. Bierman and Ruby S. Wells were in Carlisle on Tuesday to attend services for their brother, Russell Selvage, at the Mathers-Gaunce Funeral Home. Mr. Selvage, a farm manager for the Forest Retreat Race Horse Farm, was the son of the late Dennis and Celia Patrick Selvage of East Point.

CORRECTION

The name of Jane Wallace should be added to the list of members who attended the recent Local Church Women's meeting and represented the First United Methodist Church at St. Martha's Catholic Church.

HARRIS HONORED

Joyce R. Harris was honored on Tuesday evening, June 19, at 6, when her mother, Rebecca Rasnick, and her aunt and Uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Pettrey, entertained some of the family's close friends with a surprise birthday dinner party for her.

Enjoying this event were the honoree, and Joy Messer, Burieta Gearhart, Joyce Allen, Patsy Evans, John Evans, Lillia Mae Price, Lucy Regan, Roberta Sloan, Ada Meade, Eva Collins, Julia Curtis, Docia Woods, and Rebecca Rasnick, and Mr. and Mrs. Pettrey, in whose home the event was held.

Following the blessing by John Evans, a delicious buffet dinner was served, after which the honoree was presented a birthday cake, and many useful and thoughtful gifts for which she thanked those in attendance.

'Rustic' festival extended

The Kentucky Renaissance Festival, located in Shelbyville, has extended its 1990 season through Saturday, June 30, and Sunday, July 1.

"Inclement weather during the first two weekends of the event prevented many of our patrons from attending this year," said festival producer Grant Elliott, "and we wanted to make sure that everyone had a chance to come and enjoy our show."

The annual festival takes the form of a rustic English market fair during the reign of King Henry VIII.

A special admission price will be offered for this weekend only. Adult admission will be reduced from $7.50 to $6 and children 16 and under and senior citizen admission will be reduced from $4 to $3. Children under free are admitted free.

CONLEY REUNION

The Conley family reunion will be held July 1 at the J. M. Conley homeplace, on Salt Lick, in Knott County. All relatives are invited to attend.

MELLON ILL

Relatives and friends of Anna May Mellon, who is seriously ill, are deeply concerned about her, and wish for her the very best.

ALCUMS TO MEET

Alumni members of Alice Lloyd College are reminded of the "get-together" luncheon at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Resort Park, on Saturday, June 30, at noon, and are urged to make every effort to attend this event.

ATTENDS FUNERAL

Eli Schoolcraft of Prestonsburg was called to Charleston, W. Va., to attend the funeral of his brother Ralph Schoolcraft who died last Wednesday. Funeral services were Saturday in Charleston.

REBEKAH LODGE MEETS

The regular meeting of Miriam Rebekah Lodge #31 was June 19, with Beverly Hackworth, Noble Grand, presiding.

The president of the Rebekah assembly of Kentucky, Mary Snowden of Nicholasville, was present for her official visit. As she was escorted into the room by the Conductor, Donna Thomas, Beverly Hackworth sang "He Touched Me." She was then introduced and welcomed by the Noble Grand, who, on behalf of this lodge, presented her with a Monetary corsage.

Others receiving special recognition were Wilma C. Storey, vice president of the Rebekah Assembly; Gilbert Storey, Gr. Patriarch of the Gr. Encampment of Tennessee; David LeMaster, Dept. Commander Patriarchs Militant of KY; Margaret Kelly, assistant conductress; Waldean Hammons, past president; Mabel Jean LeMaster, past president, and Walter Hammons and Bill Howard, both past Grand Masters of the Grand Lodge of Kentucky.

During the course of the meeting, the members of Miriam Lodge conducted a short program entitled "Friendship Lamps." Taking part were Vicki Spencer, Paulena Owens, Mabel J. LeMaster, Claudine Johns, Maman Leslie, Jewell Bays and Beverly Hackworth, who sang "You Light Up My Life."

The meeting was turned over to the president, who presented her program, entitled "Keep Your Friendship Lamp Aglow," which was very interesting and informative. Some of the other visitors and members made short talks.

The Noble Grand reminded members of the visit to the Mountain Manor Nursing Home to be made July 1, at 7:30 p.m.

Prior to the meeting those present enjoyed a covered-dish dinner in the dining room, there.

Before the closing of the meeting, officers of Miriam Rebekah Lodge performed the drill routine of the lodge, and later gathered around the altar, where they sang "Blest Be the Tie that Binds."

The next regular meeting will be July 3, at 7 p.m. at the Lodge Hall.

SETSERS VISIT

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Setser, of Millville, N. J., spent last week visiting with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas LeMaster, her grandmother, Florence Reynolds, and other relatives here, and with his mother, Mrs. J.D. Newberry, and Mr. Newberry of Auxier.

New Woman's Club officers

We Keep Getting Better at Getting You Better...

Last year, over 45,000 people sought treatment at Highlands, more than double the number of 10 years ago.

Many received the more sophisticated kinds of care that simply weren't offered here in 1979, for heart disease, cancer, lung disease and sleep disorders, to name just a few.

We keep getting better at diagnosing—finding out what's wrong—with advanced technologies like mammography, ultrasound, computerized pulmonary diagnostics, C.A.T. Scan, echocardiography, special chemistry diagnostics and pathology services. There's also cardiac catheterization and phacoemulsification (a new procedure for cataracts).

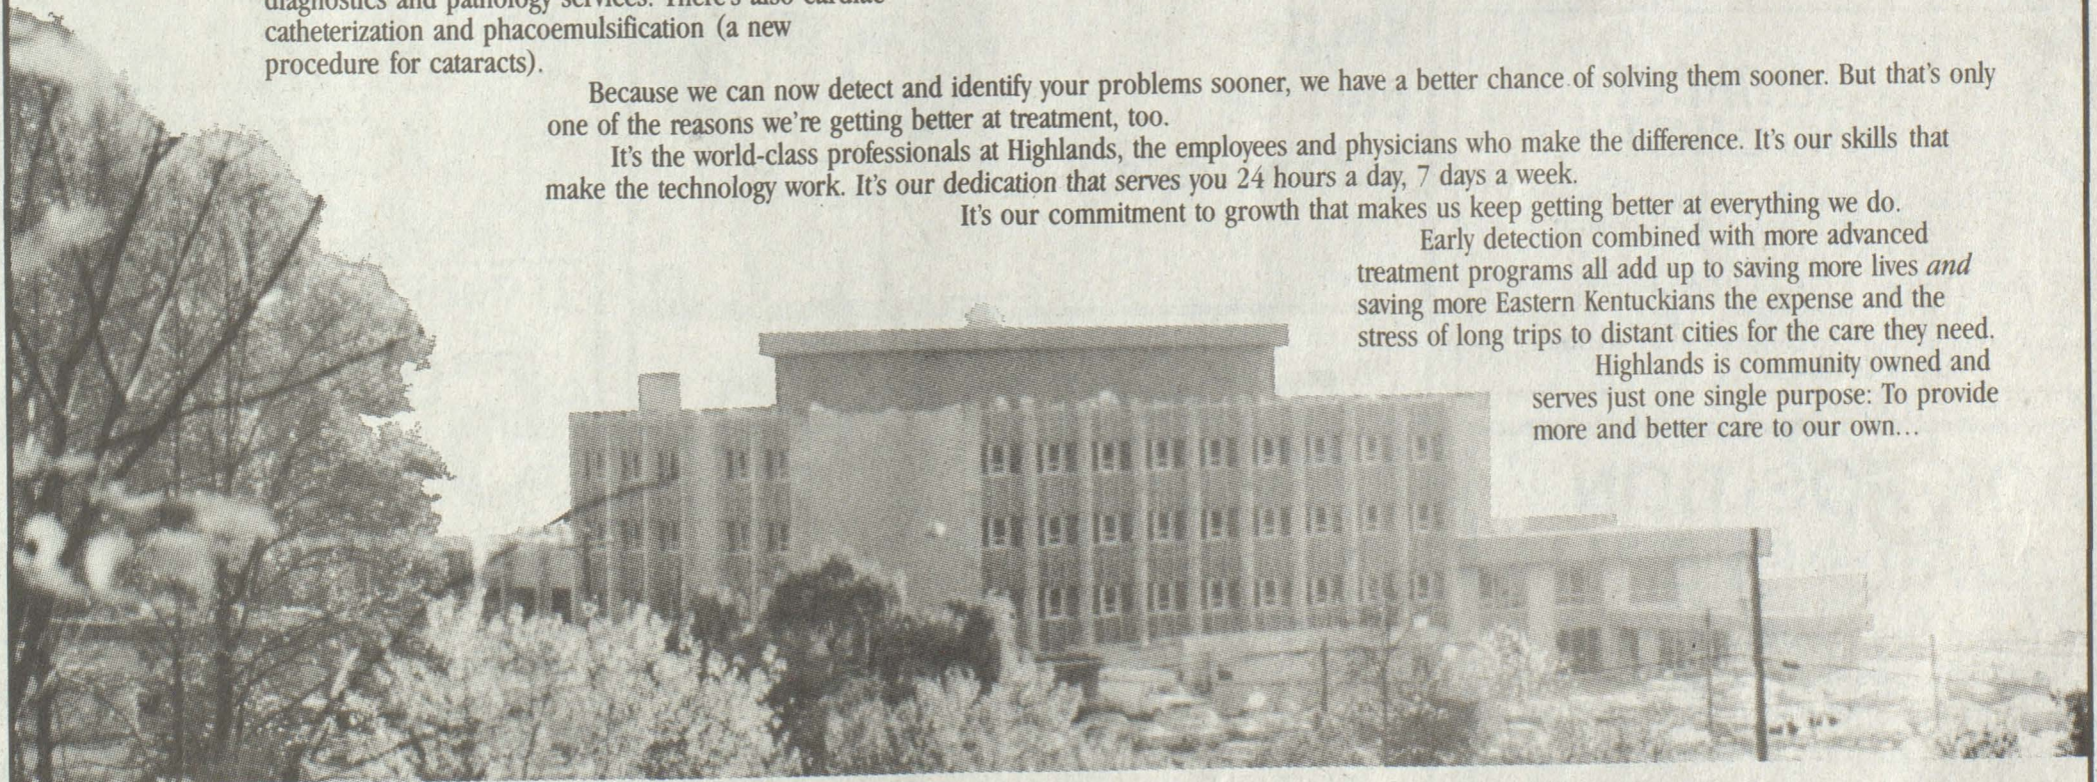

Because we can now detect and identify your problems sooner, we have a better chance of solving them sooner. But that's only one of the reasons we're getting better at treatment, too.

It's the world-class professionals at Highlands, the employees and physicians who make the difference. It's our skills that make the technology work. It's our dedication that serves you 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

It's our commitment to growth that makes us keep getting better at everything we do.

Early detection combined with more advanced treatment programs all add up to saving more lives and saving more Eastern Kentuckians the expense and the stress of long trips to distant cities for the care they need.

Highlands is community owned and serves just one single purpose: To provide more and better care to our own...

Renewal rites planned by pair

MR., MRS. STEVENS

Millard David Stevens and Susan (Bullins) Stevens of Betsy Layne will renew their wedding vows on June 30 at 4 p.m. at the Vogel Day Methodist Church at Boldman.

The Rev. Cohen Campbell of Stanville, who united the couple in a private ceremony on March 16, will also preside on June 30.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Stevens of Betsy Layne and the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Hobert Hoskins of Hurricane Creek and the late Mr. and Mrs. Millard Stevens of Betsy Layne. He is a graduate of Mullins High School and is an employee of Branham and Baker Coal Company.

The bride is the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Bill Bullins of Beckley, W. Va. and the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Ray Malone of Newark, Del. and the late Mr. and Mrs. Auther Bullins of Beckley, W. Va. She is now attending Pikeville College.

Celebrates #5

Emma Lou Boyd, daughter of Andy and Ardenna Boyd of Wayland, celebrates her fifth birthday, July 2. Her paternal grandparents are J.B. Boyd of Allen and the late Beth Boyd. Her maternal grandparents are Walker and Gorment Hamilton of McDowell. She is the namesake of her great-grandmother Emma Jones of Frasure's Creek. She will celebrate the occasion with a Care Bear birthday party.

It's a boy

Jonathan Wayne Hackworth, 8 pounds, 4 ounces, was born May 31, at Our Lady of the Way Hospital. He is the son of Carolyn and Donald Hackworth of Estill and the brother of Keshia Dawn Slone. He is the grandson of Reda and Buford Slone of Wayland and Don and Loretta Hackworth of Prestonsburg. The attending physician was Dr. Chandra Varia.

Family Reunions

Shell, Snipes

The Shell and Snipes Reunion will be held this year at Paintsville Lake on Saturday, July 7 at 10 a.m. Those attending are asked to bring a covered dish. For more information contact Okie Shell at 886-8013. Shell said there would be signs posted for persons to follow to the picnic area.

Clark Family

Mr. and Mrs. Kenis Clark are to be the host family for the first K.F. and Mary Elizabeth Clark reunion to be held at Clark Field at the mouth of Frog Branch on Little Mud Creek, Honaker. There is a shelter located there in case of rain and the date is Saturday, June 30 from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Persons attending are asked to bring enough food and drink for their family and they will be able to bring a tent or camper should they wish to stay overnight. Family members are also encouraged to bring photo albums and old letters and cards to the reunion.

Tackett Family

The 32nd annual Tackett Family reunion will be held July 8 at the George F. Johnson Elementary School at Longfork Road, Virgie. This year's speaker will be J.D. Bond, a retired judge and university professor now residing in Deland, Fla.

There will be a genealogical discussion at the Landmark Inn in Pikeville on Saturday evening, July 7, at 6:30. Persons who have done family research will be available to consult. Anyone desiring information on your family line may check with these consultants. These consultants will also be available on Sunday afternoon.

This year's reunion will have an added feature, an arts and crafts show on Sunday afternoon. Anyone wishing to display arts and crafts, please bring whatever you will need to display these items. Campsites will be available about 1/2 mile from the reunion site. For further information on camping, please call 639-2335 or 639-9726.

Celebrates first

Erica Michelle Osborne celebrated her first birthday on June 15. She is the daughter of Gary D. and Leatha Osborne of Eastern. Her grandparents are Vertis and Myrtle Pitts of David and Billy J. and Sue Osborne of Eastern. She is the great-granddaughter of Rhomer Osborne of Eastern and Roxie M. and Robert L. Pitts of Middle Creek.

To wed Saturday

Michelle Lee Tatman, daughter of Wendell and Glenda Sue Goble and the late Monte Tatman, and Tony Randall Goble, son of Frankie and Phyllis Goble, have announced their wedding plans. The wedding will be Saturday, June 30 at 2 p.m. at the Church of Christ in Martin. The bride-elect attends Prestonsburg Community College, and the prospective groom is employed by White Cloud Mining. The gracious custom of open wedding will be observed.

Young Thomas

Arnold and Tammy Thomas of Wildflecken, West Germany, announce the birth of their first child, Aaron Arnold. He was born Monday, May 21, in Fulda, West Germany. He weighed 7 pounds, 8 ounces and was 20 inches long. Aaron is the first grandson of Foster and Ruby Tackett of Grethel and Jan Justice of Raccoon. He is the great-grandson of Butler and Ethel Evans and Ellie and the late Joe Tackett of Grethel.

Exhibit honors retiring teacher

In her 27 years of teaching art at Russell High School, Patricia B. Shope has had many of her students continue with art studies after graduation from high school.

These former students live and work in various parts of the US. They are illustrators, architects, photographers, sculptors, graphic artists, portrait artists, animators/cartoonists and potters as well as a vice president of design and a restoration project manager of the Kentucky Heritage Council.

"Celebration 27" at Kentucky Highlands Museum in Ashland is an exhibition of the works of these successful former students. It marks the retirement of Shope and serves as a reunion for her students. The works will be on display through July 30 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday and 1-4 p.m. on Sunday.

Admission is free for members, $2 for non-member adults and $1 for non-member children and senior citizens.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MINE

Pursuant To Application Number 836-5014, Revision #1: In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350.055, notice is hereby given that Square Circle Coal Co., Inc., 151 Walnut Avenue, Paintsville, Kentucky 41240, has filed an application for a major revision to an underground coal mining and reclamation operation. This major revision proposes to add no additional acres for a total permitted acreage of 201.3 acres, located 2.0 miles South of Printer in Floyd County.

The proposed revision area is approximately 0.1 miles West of St. Rt. 2030's junction with Spurlock Creek Road and located 0.1 miles south of Spurlock Creek. The latitude is 37 degrees 30' 45" and longitude 82 degrees 43' 07".

The proposed major revision is located on the McDowell USGS 7 1/2 minute quadrangle map. The surface area to be disturbed by this major revision is owned by Elkhorn Coal Corp., P.O. Box 310, Wayland, Ky. 41666.

This proposed major revision is proposing an AOC variance for remaining of an existing highwall.

The revision application has been filed for public inspection at the Department of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement's Prestonsburg Regional Office, 503 South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653. Written comments, objections, and/or requests for a permit conference must be filed with the Director of the Division of Permits, #2 Hudson Hollow Complex, U.S. 127 South, Frankfort, Ky. 40601. 6-27-4tW.

Author Examines Assistance For Housing Financing

The challenge for most homebuyers in the next decade is overcoming the initial financial barriers to the housing market.

"Finding sources for a down payment, qualifying for a mortgage, and meeting closing costs — the basic mechanics of home ownership — remain the major obstacles," says William Cahill Jr., an author in a recent issue of Real Estate Today, the official publication of the National Association of Realtors.

Cahill addresses the state and local government assistance programs available for first-time buyers. Specifically, he discusses down payment assistance programs, mortgage revenue bonds (MRB), mortgage credit certificates, and innovative new programs designed to offer exceptionally low interest rates to potential homebuyers.

"States have been able to develop some innovative programs by combining their own resources with MRB proceeds," writes Cahill. Current MRBs, the primary vehicle for assisting first-time homebuyers, are set to expire in December.

"The ultimate goal," Cahill states, "is to make more mortgage finance programs accessible to, and affordable for first-time buyers."

EQUAL HOUSING OPPORTUNITY

All real estate advertising in this newspaper is subject to the Federal Fair Housing Act of 1988, which makes it illegal to advertise "any preference, limitation or discrimination because of race, color, religion, sex, handicap, familial status or national origin, or make any such preference, limitation or discrimination."

We will not knowingly accept any advertising for real estate which is in violation of the law. All persons are hereby informed that all dwellings advertised are available on an equal opportunity basis.

Illiteracy

Learning to read is fundamental

One person who is living proof that literacy programs work is Harold Ray Moore, an employee of R&S Truck Body in Allen. Moore began as a literacy student last year when R&S launched an on-site employee educational program. Progressing with his reading, Moore then went into a GED instruction program and expects to take the GED exam soon. Perhaps the most important thing he's learned is that he can learn, according to employer/tutor Delores Smith. Moore is just one example of the difference learning to read can make in the lives of non-reading Floyd Countians.

Getting a chance: Big Beaver man learns to read

by Pam Shingler, Editor
The Floyd County Times

Charlie Bentley's experience is probably not a lot different from that of many other people in Floyd County.

He grew up in a rural area where he had to walk a good distance to school. Behind his classmates in school, he dropped out in the sixth grade.

He then took a job in a coal mine during one of the occasional booms in the continual "boom and bust" cycle. After 10 years, he was out of a job, along with thousands of others.

Just as many of his contemporaries, he headed north to Detroit to work in a steel mill and then moved down to Dayton where he worked in a plant that manufactured aluminum doors and windows.

On one trip home, he was in a car accident and decided just to stay at home. But jobs were no easier to come by than when he had left, so he had to resort to assistance.

Here, however, the scenario changes slightly. Now Bentley is involved in an activity that could change his life and set him apart from many others like him.

At the age of 36, Bentley is finally learning to read.

The Big Beaver man

was one of several hundred local persons who last year were required to enroll in an educational or job training program to maintain their state aid. But the experience became more than just a state mandate for Bentley. Even though his required time was up last October, he opted to continue with the quest that, he's convinced, will enlarge his opportunities.

"At first, I was a little bit nervous," said Bentley, a large, quiet man, "but I felt pretty good when I started catching on to things."

He's also looking at the present opportunity through different eyes. "When I was in school before I didn't pay attention. I never did like school, getting up to go and staying all day."

Bentley also admits he "felt lost in the crowd" of grade school. "Most of the time, when I'd get it right, I'd put it down wrong. We didn't have teachers who cared what you did."

Now he gets individual attention in learning to read from Sr. Pat Glaab who meets with him one day a week in Wheelwright, through The David School's literacy program, one of the component programs of the Floyd County Adult Literacy Council.

"She's a tough teacher. I don't get by with anything," he said of his teacher. "You get plenty of help when you come to something you don't know."

Bentley also gets a great deal of support from home. His wife Barbara and their 10-year-old daughter Ginger encourage him.

"My family feels good about this," the husband and father said. "They want me to learn how to read and write."

"I'm proud of him," beams Ginger.

Bentley echoes the statements of non-readers nationwide when he talks about what it was like not being able to read. "I'd fake it," he said, describing how he managed when he was unable to read. "I'd make sure I'd get someone who could read before I'd sign anything."

He remembers having an uncle fill out the job application for him when he went after jobs in the North.

"It's hardest, though, when you go shopping, not being able to read the labels on cans. Also, it's hard to get around when you travel if your can't read the signs," Bentley said.

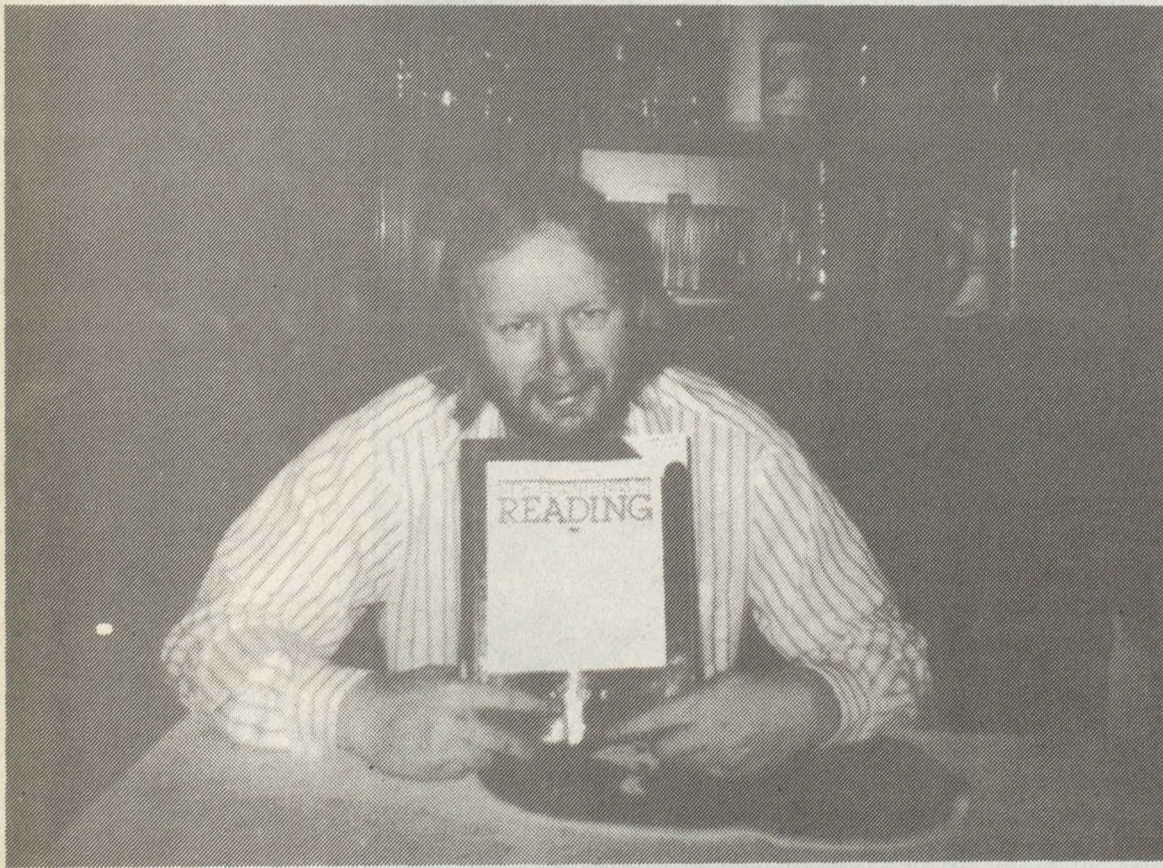

If he had it to do over again, the new reader said he would make some changes early on. "I'd go to school and make something of myself. Now I see what I missed by leaving school. Many times when I'd get up to go to school, I'd head for the hills and hide out. I'd get whipped when I got caught. I wish I'd gone now."

In between his lessons, Bentley raises a few hogs and chickens on a small farm. He doesn't allow himself to think too much about the future. He said he just wants to become a better reader before plotting the next step.

"Anyone who can't read and write, it's good to get into (a program). You can't lose anything by trying," he advises. "You don't know what will come up until you get in and try."

The important thing is that Bentley is taking advantage of this latest opportunity he's been provided. "I feel like I might have a chance now," he added hopefully.

It's in the book

Charlie Bentley of Big Beaver proudly displays his workbook, now that he is learning to read. At 36, Bentley decided that he would give reading a try once more. Like many Floyd Countians, he did not learn the vital skill while in school. Literacy programs throughout the county now make it possible for adults to learn to read near home and at their own speed.

The Floyd County Times

In your cupboard there is a can without a label. With a sense of adventure you open the can only to discover it is lima beans which you don't care for. Now, imagine that every time you open a can, you don't have a clue what the contents will be. Rather frustrating, don't you think?

"I can do my own shopping."

This is only one of the problems facing functionally illiterate people every day.

Fortunately, commercial marketers have changed the packaging of many products to include a picture of the item contained within. However, such packages can run up to three times as high in price as the containers without illustrations, such as generic products.

"I can read street signs."

Other problems face people who cannot read: independent voting, finding employment, reading road signs or using a map, using the phone book or classified ads, reading the Bible, writing checks and much more. These things may seem simple, but they are every day functions that are major hurdles for persons whose reading skill is limited.

One expert estimates that of the 4850 inmates in Kentucky, three-fourths of those lack a high school diploma. About one-third of those read below a sixth-grade level.

Thousands of Kentuckians are unable to make the most of their lives because they lack the ability to read, and some turn to crime and waste their lives in a prison cell. Statistics show that a person without a high school education is 34 times more likely to wind up in prison.

Furthermore people with less than a sixth grade education are four times as likely to be collecting welfare than those with an eighth grade diploma.

Fortunately, there is hope for these individuals. The Floyd County Adult Literacy Council, an affiliate of the Kentucky Literacy Commission, coordinates countywide efforts for adults in need of basic skills and GED training so that unemployed, underemployed and the career displaced can be helped to improve the quality of their lives.

Floyd County has a problem. Forty-six percent of adults over 25 in the county did not go beyond the eighth grade — 12,000 persons. That's about one person in three, including the total population.

In the nation, the average of functionally illiterate adults is 20 percent. And the United States ranks 48th in the world in education.

This costs the taxpayer about $20 billion each year in lost wages, welfare, marketing, etc. The government spends $1 billion on adult education programs. Couple these statistics with the fact that a person without a high school education is 34 times more likely to wind up in prison, and the conclusion is startling.

Because of the inordinate number of people needing assistance in learning to read, the Literacy Council depends heavily on volunteers. According to Ann Greene, Council coordinator, there are 40 volunteers trained in the county, but only 20 are presently active. However, out of the 12,000 functionally illiterate adults in the county, only 30 have signed up for tutor sessions.

books and any other materials needed, as well as testing services and matching tutors to students. Several local churches, schools, community centers, libraries, hospitals and businesses have donated space to be used for the sessions, but the ultimate decision for a meeting place lies with the student and tutor.

Operation Read in Fayette County has been working under a three-year federal grant to provide tutor trainers for Eastern Kentucky. That grant expires

Presently there are four fully-trained tutor instructors in the county and two more who need additional courses.

Recently, 13 new tutors were certified. Some of the tutors are housewives, others are retirees, but most are working professionals who saw the need and volunteered their time. Tutors normally handle only one student at a time and commit to that student as long as needed or feasible.

and 4 p.m., weekdays. The same number applies to anyone who wishes to learn to read or improve existing skills.

The motivations behind the tutors and students vary with each person. Some students have cited the following ways their life has changed since learning to read: "I can read the Bible." "I read stories to my children." "I can read my own mail." "I can write my own checks." "I can do my own grocery shopping." "I can read street signs." "I know what I'm ordering at the restaurant."

"We have many people working on this project, but the real cogs are the volunteers," commented Mimi Fox of Operation Read, when she was instructing a group of more than 25 people who wished to become tutors or tutor trainers recently in the county.

The training was a 10-

"I read stories to my children."

hour, marathon workshop occurring over two days, Thursday, Feb. 22, and Saturday, Feb. 24. The purpose of the seminar was to pinpoint basic everyday techniques and teach the tutors how to use them.

Also incorporated into the training were lessons on sensitivity, characteristics of adult students versus children, and the opportunity to observe, practice and discuss three methods of teaching.

"When working with adult students, you have to constantly keep in mind what led to their inability to read. Each is an individual and each case is different," Fox stressed.

"Many adults have a 'live for today' attitude and education is not something that pays off right away. It is a long term investment. Sometimes that's too long for our students, they need bread on the table today."

Fox emphasized the need for tutors to personalize their lessons and give the student small goals to reach and practical, everyday type reading to master.

For every tutor learning to teach another adult to read, there were as many different motivations. Some were there because it was part of their job.

"I've been tutoring for sometime now, but I never took the formal training and I have learned many new techniques I am anxious to try with my students," said Marjorie Zolkoski with the Christian Appalachian Project.

Others felt a sort of kinship with those who never learned to read and wanted to help as someone had helped them.

"I just recently got my GED, and I thought if I could just help one other person achieve a valuable goal like learning to read, it would all be worth it," noted Annette Hall, who also brought her high school-aged daughter to the workshop.

"I may not have got my education at the right age, but I have it now, and I always stress to my children the importance of that wonderful opportunity to learn," Hall said.

Still others were there for work and club related reasons. Arby Bush is a Rotarian and an administrator at Pikeville Methodist Hospital. She noted that she hoped she would be able to put this training to use in giving one or more of her employees the gift of words. One of the international projects for the Rotary club is the battle against illiteracy.

"I can read my own mail."

Scott Richardson of the Big Sandy Area Labor/Management team said he wanted to become a tutor so he would be able to encourage businesses in the area to begin programs of their own to assist their employees.

Mountain Comprehensive Care Center is already in the process of establishing trained tutors among its staff. MCCC does GED training and, in the process, has run across numerous clients who cannot read. "We want our employees to be sensitive to this problem and be able to know how to handle such a situation should it occur," explained Darlene Starnes, MCCC representative.

There is no age requirement to become a tutor as one young girl from an area high school demonstrates. This young lady is in the 10th grade and has hopes to be a medical doctor in the future. But right now she is a tutor for a senior at her school.

"I have always enjoyed reading and just felt that this boy needed a little individualized help, and he too could enjoy it," she said, adding that he is in a special class. But, still, the instructors don't have enough time to contribute to one student, so this sophomore takes her free period and one class period, when she can, and helps him out.

Although there are textbooks and other materials to assist the tutors in their training efforts, the instructor recommends that only 50 percent of the class time be spent in these books to add interest and vary the reading each class. So the instructors are charged with and determine whether it is an improvement he/or she needs to make in the teaching method or whether the student is responsible.

"Losing a student can be rough, and you may tend to take it personally. But if you did everything you could to make the classes what we have learned in these lessons, it's not your fault," assured Fox.

"I can write my own checks."

"There is no one answer, and you have to use a variety of tools. I can't promise you shining successes, but I can promise you a very exciting and interesting experience. It is often rewarding, but sometimes not."

Although tutoring may sound like the perfect pastime for someone who is retired or working on a teaching degree, Ann Greene, coordinator for the Floyd County Adult Literacy Council, notes that most

the responsibility of collecting what is termed "supplemental reading," anything from a newspaper, to a comic book, to grocery labels.

Each student's lifestyles and life characteristics differ, and each has a specific goal to achieve by being able to read. The tutor must have the ability to be sensitive to these factors and generate enough interest to keep the student coming back. Unfortunately, some don't, and the tutor must be able to realize the reasons of the local tutors are working professionals.

"We can always use tutors. Sometimes we train them and something comes up and they can no longer participate. We understand that. After all, these are volunteers. All we ask is that people give it a try to see if it's right for them," she said.

Anyone interested in becoming a tutor can call Greene at the Literacy Council and find out about the next training session. The number is 886-READ.

Computers have role in literacy education

by Carolyn Formsma
Continuing Education
Facilitator
Prestonsburg Community College

The traditional picture of literacy instruction with one student and one volunteer tutor working together with work books, controlled readers and other "paper and pencil" materials is changing in many locations today.

High technology has come to adult literacy instruction with the advent of computer-assisted instruction and the availability of materials designed specifically for adult learners.

What are the advantages of using computers for instruction with adult learners?

PRIVACY — The adult and his or her tutor are the only ones who know what level the student is working on. Once the adult student is comfortable using the computer, he/she can work independently.

FEEDBACK — The computer tells the student immediately whether the response is correct or not. Students like the immediacy AND the nonpersonal nature of the response. Success is not determined by teacher approval but by a task completed correctly.

INDIVIDUALIZATION — Technology allows the instructor to individualize materials automatically and quickly. The programs used in adult literacy instruction permit repetition of key concepts when necessary without flipping through a variety of textbooks or waiting until "next week" to get the appropriate materials. Students are able to work at their own speeds.

CONTROL — The computer places control in the hands of the learner, not the teacher. For many adult learners this is the first time they have been in charge of their own learning situations.

Does this mean there are no problems with computer assisted programs for adult learners?

Of course not. Computers and the software necessary to run an adult literacy program are expensive. Technology is constantly changing and materials need periodic upgrading. Most materials on the market are designed for children and are inappropriate for adult learners. Tutors and teachers can feel displaced by the technology as learners become more independent and self-directed. Taking the tutoring to where the students are is more difficult but not impossible with computer assisted instruction.

THE LOCAL SCENE
These and other concerns probably mean that the possibility of providing fully computerized instruction for all adult literacy students in Floyd County is remote at this time.

But it is possible to implement computer use at a management and instructional support level immediately.

Using computers and data management systems located away from tutoring sites to maintain student and tutor records and to generate mailing lists and student/tutor matches would be of immediate benefit to the Literacy Council and its students.

For the business or professional person who would like to volunteer but who does not have the time or desire to tutor, perhaps data management would be a perfect way to help break the cycle of illiteracy in Floyd County.

Another use of computers could be in the design and printing of supplemental teaching materials. There are software programs that convert word lists into word search puzzles or crossword puzzles. Flash cards can be printed in large type using poster making software. Student stories can be quickly "published" to use in individualized reading instruction.

With a little imagination and the continuing help of volunteers, the Floyd County Adult Literacy Council and the citizens of Floyd County can bring technology to the battle to eradicate illiteracy in our part of Eastern Kentucky.

Counselors become tutors

Mountain Comprehensive Care Center is extremely appreciative of Ann Greene and her staff's recent efforts in training MCCC staff to teach individuals with severe psychiatric disabilities to read. They are equipping this center's staff with skills that will assist psychiatrically disabled individuals to have options available to them never before explored.

Region XI MH/MR Center has intensified efforts in providing services to individuals with severe psychiatric disabilities. Most technology in psychiatric rehabilitation reinforces an approach involving focus on the uniqueness of the individual, as well as the entire environmental factors impacting on the individual's functioning.

One such area of many limitations concerns individuals with severe psychiatric disabilities who cannot read. As these individuals increase their functioning in their specific environments, the ability to read, as with all individuals, is a crucial skill in our society today.

I want to thank Ann Greene and her staff for their dedication and persistence in their concern with literacy.

Floyd County Adult Literacy Council

Purposes:

**To increase public awareness of adult illiteracy in Floyd County and to keep the community aware of adult illiteracy programs by sponsoring a variety of activities to disseminate information and promote literacy activities.

**To participate in any local, state or national campaign to create an awareness of the problems of adult illiteracy and recruit students and volunteer tutors.

**To identify and obtain resources that will ensure the maintenance and expansion of the adult literacy efforts.

**To work with local, state and national governments and legislators to further commitments to support literacy programs.

Literacy in Kentucky

Much has been done; much remains

by Pam Shingler
Editor,

The Floyd County Times
The Kentucky Literacy Commission recently issued its annual report for 1988-89, and the news is both good and bad.

The good news is that 113 Kentucky counties, including Floyd, are receiving state funds for coordinating literacy programs. Floyd is also among 27 counties where the Department for Employment Services and Department for Social Insurance encourage food stamp recipients to enroll in basic adult education programs.

Also good news is that the number of businesses supporting adult education has increased significantly, according to the report, which cites more than 45 Kentucky businesses and industries with on-site programs for employees.

In addition, state government agencies, corporations and foundations have stepped up efforts to provide appropriate reading materials for new adult readers and have funded programs to encourage parent-child reading.

Importantly, more than 2,000 Kentuckians are volunteer tutors for literacy students. Together, they donated 450,600 hours to teaching adults to read last year.

The bad news is that much remains to be done. More than 400,000 Kentuckians, 25 years old and older, are believed to be functionally illiterate, and 1.2 million Kentuckians need basic education, according to report figures.

There's more bad news. More than 650,000 adults in Kentucky, 25 years and up, have less than an eighth grade education. More than 9.7 percent of Kentucky adults report completing less than five grades of school.

In addition to the loss of human potential because of undereducation, the report alludes to how the number of non-readers affects all Kentuckians. A University of Kentucky survey of adults enrolled in literacy programs lists several pocketbook-related findings. Keep in mind that these findings relate to adults who have had the courage and drive to learn to read.

—44 percent of non-readers are unemployed.

—25 percent have been employed less than half-time since leaving school.

—25 percent have an annual family income under $5,000.

—20 percent receive Medicaid/Medicare or food stamps.

—22 percent received disability income.

—42 percent have incomes inadequate to cope with emergencies.

—7 percent receive Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC).

The UK survey also reflects a distressing family pattern among the persons just now learning to read. The median education for their fathers is 5.9 years of school and 8.4 years for their mothers. On the plus side, almost 50 percent said they enrolled in a reading program because of family encouragement.

Demographically, the survey records that 63 percent of those enrolled in literacy programs are male and 37 percent female; 79 percent are white, 18 percent black, and the median age is 37.6 years.

The median number of years of school completed by the literacy students is 8.6, with 40 percent having less than an eighth grade education. Apparently, about 16 percent completed high school without being able to read.

"There is no agency, group or organization that can conquer the challenges Kentucky faces as we strive to remain competitive in national and world markets, since it is not always the lack of jobs, but rather a lack of skilled individuals to meet the economic demands," says Literacy Commission Director Audrey Tayse Haynes in her introduction to the annual report.

"There was a time in our history when literacy was a point of personal pride," Haynes says. "Today, it is a matter of survival."

For a copy of the report, which includes information on how business and government are combining to attack the state's literacy problem, contact the Kentucky Literacy Commission, 110 US 127 South, Frankfort, 40601.

by Charles Collins
General Manager
R/S Body Co., Allen

From a beginning 21 years ago, R/S Truck Body Company has grown from sales of $1,200,000 to a yearly sales level of nearly $20 million in 1989, from a company that was totally dependent on coal related sales to a manufacturer that distributes products through all states east of the Mississippi River and several foreign countries.

Diversification has led R/S from coal bodies and coal trailers to construction equipment, truck and trailer suspensions, demolition equipment, farm equipment and waste management equipment. With such a wide array of products it became nearly impossible to make all parts by hand and be consistent with each part.

To eliminate the problem of inconsistency, R/S has added four pieces of fabricating equipment that are computer controlled.

R/S has recognized three factors that control our growth: changing technology, the people working at R/S and competitiveness in the marketplace. These three factors have led management to focus on education as the primary problem facing our future growth and the growth of Eastern Kentucky.

Besides our efforts at trying to improve the local public school system, R/S has pursued the idea of getting as many of our employees involved in getting their GED as possible and we have also adopted a policy of not hiring anyone who does not have a high school diploma or a GED equivalent.

During this past year, six people at R/S have received their GED, three employees are being tested at this time, one employee is ready to be tested, six people are attending GED classes at different locations and four employees are planning to attend classes in the future.

R/S cannot take all the credit for these accomplishments. The David School played a very large part in organizing, promoting and, above all, giving our employees the confidence they needed to follow through and not give up. The David School should be commended for not only helping our employees and the future growth of R/S, but also for improving the education level of the people of Eastern Kentucky, which we believe will ultimately improve the lifestyle of everyone in this area.

Education becomes a family affair for local couple

by Shari Pesce
Tutor,
Christian Appalachian
Project

Maxine and Carl Goble dropped out of high school after their junior year in 1977 to get married.

Twelve years later, Maxine went back to school, and just two months ago, Carl did too — with Maxine as his teacher.

Maxine enrolled in GED classes offered by the Christian Appalachian Project in February 1989. Along with her sister, Zeta she attended class twice a week at CAP's Garrett Attic.

In that class, Maxine learned about fractions, percents, algebra, and writing an essay. In April, Maxine and Zeta took the GED test at Prestonsburg Community College. Zeta passed, but Maxine did not.

Undaunted, Maxine retook the English portion of the test, and this time she earned the certificate.

Noting his wife's success, Carl decided just this past February that it was time for him to go back to school, too. He explains that he didn't do well in school when he was younger. He believes his inability to read well stems from the lack of quality teachers years ago.

"It seemed like the teachers didn't care whether kids learned or not," he stated. "Some of the teachers back then were good. They spent time helping you and explaining things more than once. Most teachers weren't so great though."

"You'll never learn anything if you don't try."
Carl Goble

Carl also believes that a lot of parents didn't have the time to help their children with school work. Other times, it was the kids who didn't care about school.

"At first, I wanted to learn to read and spell," he says, "and then it got to the point where it didn't make any difference."

Not being able to read, Carl says he couldn't take certain classes in school, such as chemistry, biology and geometry — classes that require good reading comprehension skills. "I couldn't take the classes I was interested in because I couldn't read."

Carl and Maxine now work together on his studies. She tutors her husband in reading almost every day. Since he began studying just a few weeks ago, he has worked through two books and eagerly works on the third.

Now he says he feels like a kid with a new toy when he reads something new. Maxine says watching her husband read something new is a great feeling for her.

The couple and their 11-year-old son Michael have lived in Floyd County all their lives. Carl, who worked in coal mining for 12 years and is now disabled, would like to study plumbing at Mayo State Vocational Technical School and even has dreams of being a supervisor.

It may be a while before that happens, but Carl says he's determined this time around. "You'll never learn anything if you don't try."

Learning to read

Sometimes literacy becomes a family affair all around. Debbie Williamson, right, for instance, is the daughter of a tutor. Here, she works with student Celia Layne. Sometimes, a wife will volunteer to teach someone to read, and her enthusiasm extends to her husband who also trains to be a tutor. At the other end of the spectrum, a man may enroll in a literacy program, hoping to learn to read and to provide a better living for his family. His wife may then decide that she, too, would like to become a reader. Their success spills over into the lives of their children, who then are turned on to learning and begin to perform better in school. The family grows closer as a unit as they all study together, supporting and helping one another. And the importance of education takes on new meaning for all involved.

Local businessman's commitment recognized

If an award existed for Literacy Advocate of the Year, Homer Wells would have won hands down in 1989.

Wells, who managed Prestonsburg CableVision until a near tragic accident last winter, was perhaps the county's leading supporter of literacy programs.

Every time his operation won a national award -- which it often did -- Wells passed it along to the Floyd County Adult Literacy Council. Last year, he contributed some $1000 toward the advancement of literacy training.

In addition, he and his staff promoted reading in the elementary schools, as well, giving time, money and supplies through the Reading Is Fundamental program. He also promoted televised GED instruction.

It all may sound a little paradoxical at a time when we hear so much about how television negatively affects reading. For Wells, reading remained fundamental, something everyone needs to be able to do, regardless of the extent to which television fills our lives.

Temporarily downed by an on-the-job accident during a December blizzard, Wells is recuperating at a Tennessee rehabilitation facility. The Literacy Council wishes him the best and encourages him to get well soon. His energy and strong advocacy are greatly missed.

Hurry home, Homer!

Receiving and giving

Last August, Prestonsburg CableVision manager Homer Wells presented a check for $750 to Floyd County Adult Literacy Council Coordinator Ann Greene. The check represented the local company's winnings from its parent company for having the top promotional campaign nationwide during National Cable Month the previous spring. Wells' thrust in the promotion was reading and education. The gift brought CableVision's contributions to the council to more than $1000.

Imagine being blind half your life to the things we take for granted.

Imagine you have never seen a spring morning, or you have never seen a robin catch a worm.

Imagine you have never seen a bass walk on water as it tries to get off a hook.

Imagine you have never seen a fluffy white cloud float through the sky.

Imagine you have never seen a fall day in the country as the leaves turn to their bright colors.

Imagine you have never seen the first snow fall in the winter.

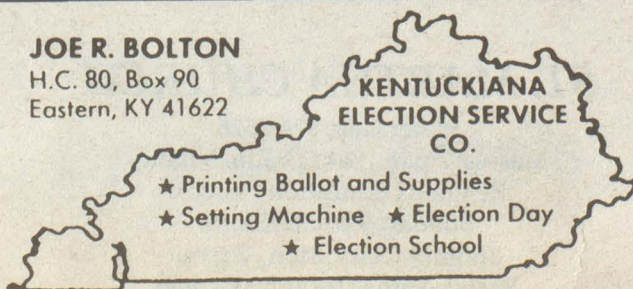

Imagine you have never read a book or a poem, a card from someone you love, or you have never read a book to a child in your lap.

These are some of the things a blind person has never done.

But imagine you are not blind, and you have never read at all.

Businessman reaps personal rewards from volunteering to be a reading tutor

by Don Combs
Director, Big Sandy Rural Electric Cooperative
Chairman, Big Sandy
Labor/Management
Council

Until six years ago, I thought that 99 percent of people went through school pretty much as I did, graduating from high school, then getting a job or going on to college.

And, of course, I thought everyone was able to read.

I accepted the challenge of being a tutor six years ago without giving it much thought, because it seemed like an admirable thing to do with some spare time.

It wasn't long before I realized what a monumental task I had so casually undertaken. Having no previous teaching experience, I was petrified at the thought of going ahead with my commitment.

And, of course, I thought everyone was able to read.

My first training session made it sound so simple — too simple. The material used was very structured and there was no need to be creative. After a few years of tutoring, I realized that everything needed to guide the student along was provided. All that was required of the tutor was to be supportive.

Without realizing it, this experience was providing valuable lessons.

1) I realized that reading is fundamental to an education which is fundamental to freedom — it provides the opportunity to do anything you desire.

2) I acquired the ability to better interact with people. I don't take nearly as much for granted. I admire those students who have gone through much of their life without the ability to read, accomplishing much, and realize they can accomplish more by learning to read.

3) I acquired the ability to manage a business (people) more effectively. Much of management involves teaching new ideas and new ways of doing things. To many people, this can be as traumatic as learning a new language or learning to read. By using the methods I have learned while tutoring and the experiences, I feel that I am better able to manage a business.

I consider myself to be fortunate to have had parents who valued education. I realize now that many people do not have this advantage. The Literacy Program is an effective way to meet the needs of one person, but hopefully this positive experience will be passed on to future generations. This may or may not happen, but the feeling one gets when a student truly appreciates your efforts, and they all do, is something money can't buy.

"By using the methods I have learned while tutoring and the experiences, I feel that I am better able to manage a business."

(Editor's note: When Combs turned in this piece, he said, "I feel passionately about literacy and helping a person to learn to read. I wish I could put into words how strongly I feel about it." We think he did.)

Learning to read and write by Student Linda Hall

When I started the program, learning to read and write, it was hard for me to get back in touch with the words and spelling. It was very hard for me to spell. I couldn't hardly spell at all. I learned to read more. I learned how to write sentences. I've learned that I'm not the only one who has a problem in reading, writing and spelling. I'm glad that I started the program. I like to tell you that the program has helped me. Maybe the program can help you, too, if you have a problem reading, writing and spelling.

Hospital supports adult education efforts of employees

by Sr. Mary Fanning
Hospital Administrator

"When I got my notice, I felt like I had won the Nobel prize. I told everyone I knew about it. I was so proud."

Dolly Carroll, an employee of Our Lady of the Way Hospital, thinks that everyone who has not finished high school should get a GED and that everyone would benefit from knowing how to read.

One of the most important results from achieving a GED is the feeling that the person has about himself. It gives him or her a sense of well-being and accomplishment.

But the other important benefits of being able to read and write have to do with being able to function well in today's society.

For example, knowing how to read helps one provide a safe environment for the family because labels on products can be understood and directions can be followed. A mother will know how to administer medications properly for children.

Because one of the statements in OLV's operating philosophy is "a commitment to provide opportunities for personal and professional growth of employees," the hospital is very proud that it achieved the distinction recently of being one of the first local corporations to provide employees paid time off to attend classes at the hospital.

If ever we were able to put "our money where our mouth is," paid time off for adult education classes is it!

While not all employees have taken advantage of this opportunity and despite the fact that the tutor who had been teaching at the hospital has since left the program, the hospital continues to promote the personal growth of each employee.

Because literacy is such an important part of this personal growth, the hospital will continue to support efforts to ensure a 100 percent literate workforce. And beyond that, the hospital will look for ways to provide employees opportunities to continue to pursue their education.

Illiteracy in the US

Problem is a serious national one

News USA

More than 23 million Americans are functionally illiterate — unable to read a street sign or a headline in this newspaper. Another 37 million people are marginally illiterate, unable to read instructions in a workplace manual.

The trends are among the major social forces discussed in a new United Way of America report, "What Lies Ahead: Countdown to the 21st Century."

The report presents the implications of illiteracy and many other significant trends affecting our society.

Although all 50 states have adopted some type of education reform since 1983, much more needs to be done to insure Americans are prepared to become productive and competitive members of the workforce.

The national high school dropout rate continues to hover around 30 percent. Dropping out of high school is strongly linked to social problems: 62 percent of all prison inmates are dropouts, and more than half of all welfare families are headed by high school dropouts.

Educators estimate that nearly a third of the nation's children entering school deal with a serious socio-economic problem:

they live in a single-parent household, or have a poverty-level family income; have non-English-speaking parents; or are members of a minority group with a pattern of undereducation.

For these students, school is likely to evolve into community social-service centers.

Clearly, the dimensions of the issues cut across every aspect of American society. Finding new ways for government and business to work together with health and human service organizations to address the human impact of these trends is imperative.

To develop successful models to solve the illiteracy problems, local literacy programs across the country are developing many innovative programs. One program supported by a $700,000 grant from United Parcel Service will develop models to teach adults to read using the latest technology.

Seniors can get into act

Not too old to tutor

by Thelma Spencer

When I retired I wanted to give some of my time to helping the handicapped. Then I realized that a person who can't read or write is handicapped. So I became a tutor.

Just four hours a week can really improve the student's lifestyle — better jobs, managing the home, keeping the kids in school.

If you are retired or a senior citizen and can give a few hours a week to help someone, you can make a difference. You can make your own life richer just knowing that you helped someone who really needs you.

Executive takes beliefs in education to work

by Dolores Smith
Co-owner, R/S Body

I would encourage any business who has employees without a high school diploma to get involved in a literacy program. I have experienced a great deal of satisfaction through my participation with our program.

I know it makes people feel better about themselves when they know they can still learn at any age. I have watched the time and effort our employees have put into working on their GED and I tutored one of them part time.

I have watched them become more confident in themselves, and if this is all that happens, it is well worth it.

I think it also sends a very positive message to their children — that education is important.

We are all proud when one of our employees receives his GED because we know the time and effort they are putting in after work hours.

State funds computers for literacy instruction

The Floyd County Adult Literacy Council has received $18,000 in computer and video equipment to help fight the battle against illiteracy. The grant was one of 80 received by community programs throughout the state.

"The money is divided up according to number of students the program has," said Ann Greene, council president. "We did really well with the amount of funds we received."

Presently the local program has 40 active literacy students and about 20 tutors.

The program purchased five Tandy lap-top computers and two IBM PC2s, as well as a TV/VCR combination and video materials and software.

"We had a choice of what equipment would be best for us. Since many of our tutors don't come to a central location and tutor from local churches, schools and businesses, we thought the lap-tops would work best," Greene said.

According to Greene, the two IBM units will be at the office to assist in filing and record keeping, "Right now we have everything on filing cards and ledgers. This will be a great improvement."

She also noted that the lap-tops will assist the tutors in handling more students each. The trainers would be able to have one student using the computer while he/she worked hands on with another.

"We should be able to reach more people with the computers and it will make it a little easier on the tutors as well," Green said. Training sessions will begin in June for those tutors who will be using the computers.

About $438,000 in federal funds are being made available to the state's local literacy programs to purchase computer hardware, video cassette recorders and monitors and related equipment to be used in training eligible job applicants whose reading skills are below levels required by many employers.

The equipment purchased is part of an $829,870 contract between the Kentucky Literacy Commission and the Cabinet for Human Resources for reading skills services provided to Kentuckians eligible for assistance under the federal Job Training Partnership Act.

Kentucky First Lady Martha Wilkinson, who heads a statewide drive to encourage non-high school graduates in Kentucky to pursue general equivalence diploma (GED), was cited by program officials as being instrumental in the development of the contract.

Literacy Commission Executive Director Audrey Haynes said the computers and other equipment will have an almost immediate effect on the literacy programs.

"Our overall goal under the JTPA contract is to advance eligible clients by one full grade in reading and comprehension," Haynes said. "The computer software is specifically designed to increase reading capabilities, test the student's comprehension of what is on the screen and help them learn by practicing their own developing skills."

Human Resources Secretary Harry J. Cowherd, MD, said the joint effort is aimed at meeting a primary demand of Kentucky's employers.

"When we screen job applicants, the very basic qualification most employers are looking for is a 12th grade education or GED reading and comprehension level," Cowherd said.

"Many of our JTPA-eligible clients fall far short of that level, and require remedial assistance before any effective job training courses can be of benefit to them.

"Our joint work with the Literacy Commission and local programs should help as many as 1200 clients to advance their skills and employability this year.

"The goal is to make Kentucky's workforce book and trade manual literate. It is a pure, but important bonus to be able to add more computer literate job applicants to that workforce," Cowherd said.

Husband-wife team finds enrichment through tutoring

by Shari Pesce
Tutor,
Christian Appalachian
Project

"The first time I think I realized that many people can't read was when I heard the story of the man who brought cat food for lunch because he thought it was tuna," says Jim Reed.

That realization occurred when Reed attended a Kiwanis Club meeting in Salyersville in 1988. It was at the meeting where he heard the cat food story, and he decided he could no longer sit idly by as undereducated people walked in and out of his office.

Reed, who works for the Department of Employment Services, learned that it takes ordinary people such as himself to help others learn and take action against illiteracy in Kentucky.

He and his wife Lula then attended a Laubach tutor-training workshop in November 1988. The workshop, presented by the Christian Appalachian Project, taught Jim and Lula how to tutor an adult in reading.

After some time, Jim times twice a week. But their time together is not always spent studying. The two men have something which transcends the tutor-student relation-

"I get the feeling that I'm helping someone who really needs my help."

Jim Reed

was matched with a student. Remembering the first few sessions, Jim says his student, Jack, was ill at ease and not very confident. However, through patience and persistence, both tutor and student are now more confident.

Jim and Jack work together weekly, some-ship. Jim says they are able to share problems with each other. The end result of this teaching relationship is a true friendship.

The benefits of being a tutor are numerous. "I get the feeling," says Jim "that I'm helping someone who really needs my help."

Investment Tip

Literacy is the best investment Americans (and Floyd Countians) can make in our future. A more literate population means a more productive workforce, a healthier populace, a more fulfilled and responsible citizenry. An investment in literacy today means fewer people on public assistance and fewer people in prisons tomorrow.

Rotary International

Rotary International, the world's largest service club, recently completed a campaign in which Rotarians from across the globe raised money to purchase polio vaccine with the goal of vaccinating every child in the world and eradicating this dread disease. The campaign was tremendously successful and all goals surpassed. Many Rotarians in the health care professions went a step further and volunteered to take the vaccine into the farthest reaches of the earth, giving their time and talent to inoculate children.

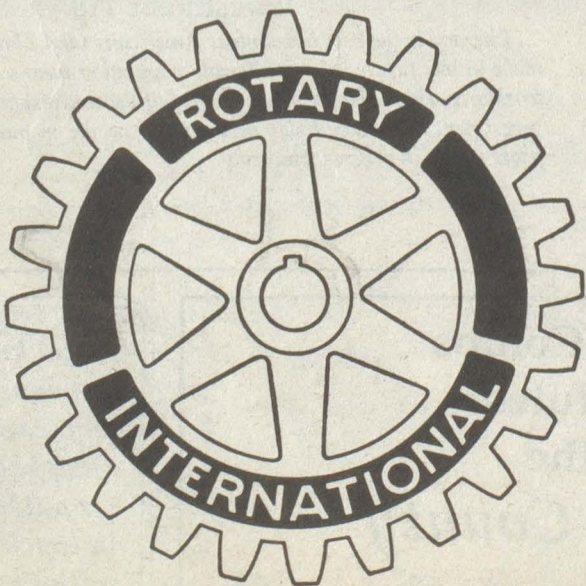

The Rotary campaign for the 1990s is to erase illiteracy from the face of the earth. Rotary Clubs throughout the world are, again, banding together for this important goal. Rotarians with their tradition of service are volunteering their time and talents to promote literacy efforts, either as tutors themselves or in raising funds to support literacy programs.

The Prestonsburg Rotary Club is proud to have been in the forefront of this campaign. For the third year in a row, the Prestonsburg Rotary Club is pleased to cosponsor the
Floyd County Adult Literacy Luncheon,
Thursday, June 28 at noon at the Prestonsburg Holiday Inn.

Perhaps the highest service any of us can perform is to teach another person to read. We all gain.

Please join Prestonsburg Rotary Club and Rotary International in our efforts to eradicate illiteracy. Together we can make a difference.
