Wet, then clearing, then wet again!

Rain is in our forecast Friday, giving way to clearing skies over the weekend.
Friday, there's a 70 percent chance of rain with a high of 50. Friday night the rain should diminish, as temperatures turn colder, falling into the lower 30s.
Saturday looks a lot nicer, with partly sunny skies and highs between 50 and 55, and a nighttime low in the lower 30s.
The weatherman in Jackson says Sunday and Monday will be partly cloudy, with highs in the 50s during the day, dropping into the 30s at night.
Tuesday brings back the showers. Highs will again be in the 50s, with lows dropping to 40.
It looks like a rain sandwich, folks, with a dollop of sunshine in the middle!

Local economy may get a boost with co-op project

by Frank Clark
Staff Writer

More jobs and a diversification of the local economy are two goals motivating the start of a joint economic development project between the Big Sandy Area Development District and several Floyd County manufacturing companies.

The project, called the Central Appalachian Market Expansion Project, is designed to provide local metal fabrication companies with improved marketing information, allowing for the companies to bid for contracts outside of Eastern Kentucky.

By expanding the potential markets for their products, local companies could increase their operations, stimulating local economic growth and creating new jobs.

As employment opportunities dwindle and the overall market declines within the regional coal industry, diversification into new economic activities is considered vital for the economic survival of the region.

Support industries, such as local metal fabrication companies building truck trailers and mining equipment, have traditionally relied on the coal industry market in the past. This joint project, it is hoped, will develop new markets, both within and outside the area, in an effort to reduce dependence on coal.

"We're seeking markets in addition to the coal business," said Bob Smith, production planner for Porter Industries in Allen. "We know our markets are changing, and we feel that this program will give us new opportunities and access to markets outside Eastern Kentucky."

"Our company feels that we could bring new jobs and new industry into Floyd County," said Charlie Collins, general manager of R & S Truck Body in Allen. "The idea of this project is to work together with the ADD and other manufacturers in the area in a joint effort to develop new markets. Each company has different specialties. By sharing information, we'll be able to utilize what each company

A new economic direction?

These workers at R & S Truck Body in Allen may be lighting the way for a new economic future in Eastern Kentucky. The Big Sandy Area Development District and several Floyd County metal fabrication companies have united in the joint-effort Central Appalachian Market Expansion Project. The project is designed to expand the markets of participating companies, in an effort to encourage economic diversification in the area.

Autopsy provided new info on murder

Walter Hall, 23, of Letcher County was shot in the back of the head, and not accidentally in the face, as was claimed by his alleged killers.

This fact was made public this week, when Floyd County Commonwealth's Attorney Jerry Patton revealed some of the information discovered during last summer's autopsy of Hall, who was killed on July 21, 1978, in the yard of Hester Slone of Jack's Creek.

According to Patton, it was originally reported, following the killing, that Hall was accidentally shot when he was struck in the face with a pistol, causing it to discharge.

After Hall's death, David Slone of Bevinsville and Danny Meade of Hi Hat were arrested, but were never indicted on charges stemming from the killing.

Last week, more than 11 years after the incident, Slone, 31, Meade, 34, and Wendell Ray Newman, 36, of Jack's Creek, were all indicted by the Grand Jury for the murder of Hall.

The case was reopened by the Kentucky State Police in June of last year, and an exhumation of Hall's body was requested in July. Dr. David Wolf, a forensic anthropologist connected with the Kentucky State Police, conducted the post mortem in Frankfort, where it was revealed that the bullet which killed Hall struck him in the back of the head, casting doubts on the story provided to police by Hall's attackers.

According to KSP Det. Lee Weddington, persons with information on the case have come forward in recent months, apparently strengthening the case against the three defendants. Original police reports on the case indicated that as many as 10 persons witnessed the killing.

Slone, who has a long criminal record, was also indicted last week on two first degree rape charges involving minors and is being held in the Floyd County Jail. Meade and Newman apparently remain at large as of Thursday evening.

Mining accident claims Pike man

A miner was killed Tuesday, following a machinery accident at Jones Branch Coal Co. in Grethel.

According to a report from the Martin district office of the state Department of Mines and Minerals, Dana Howell, 25, of Penny in Pike County, was replacing a hydraulic hose on a bolter, when he apparently hit a lever on the machine, releasing the hydraulic pressure and causing the pinhead to fall on him.

The accident occurred at about 3:10 p.m. Tuesday, 2,500 feet underground. Howell was transported to McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital, where he died of internal injuries and bleeding at 7:45 p.m. No one else was injured in the accident.

Howell, a mine worker for 2-1/2 years, had worked at Jones Branch Coal for six weeks, and had operated as a roof bolter for the past two weeks, said Mary England, a secretary at the Martin office.

An investigation of the accident was completed Thursday. Howell's death was the first mine fatality in the Martin District this year and the fourth statewide, said England.

A new way to get there

Dennis Clay, right, of Martin and Johnny Hall, left, also of Martin, stand beside one of the specially modified vans they will drive, providing non-emergency medical transportation to area residents. Evelyn Blackburn is the coordinator of the program, which will be operated out of the Big Sandy Area Development District office in Prestonsburg. (See story page 3.)

Now for the good news

Teacher is tough, demanding but loved by students

by Pam Shingler
Editor

Her three children were in school when she decided to go to college. Frightened and unfamiliar, she had to have someone interpret the results of her college entrance examination before she knew her best fields were science and history, two subjects she loved.

She earned a bachelor's degree at Pikeville College, commuting daily from Left Beaver and raising a family, to boot. Shortly after moving to the front of the classroom 23 years ago, she began an even longer commute (one evening a week from 3 p.m. until midnight) to Morehead State University for a master's degree and then a Rank One certificate.

Doris Osborne is tough. Her students at Wheelwright High School will verify that—in more ways than one. They will also verify that Osborne is one of the best teachers in Floyd County. Maybe in Kentucky. Maybe even farther.

Steven Johnson provides proof.

The WHS junior opted to stay in Wheelwright with his grandparents rather than go to Indiana with his parents because of Osborne, he says. "She's the best," affirms the student who's been taking her classes for three years and is now a student assistant.

Allen Newman, guinea pig stuffed in his shirt pocket, has Osborne for three classes this semester—his choosing.

"I love her class," simply states Haley Caudill.

A visit to Osborne's advanced biology class will make a believer out of any skeptic. Aquariums and animal cages line the counters in her science lab/classroom.

But they're not decorative. Each is a student project aimed at the teaching of biology. In what students term "the jungle," they study anatomy, behavior, nutrition, reproduction and responsibility.

"It's not unusual to see them in here at 7:15 a.m. or at 8 p.m.," says Osborne, white-haired and elegantly clad. "And students come in on weekends, as well, to tend to the animals."

The students reflect the teaching they receive. A visitor gets a report on each project, a full spiel on what the project is about experiences with the animals and a look at the journal kept for each small habitat—all delivered in correct sentences and bubbling enthusiasm.

"We love our fish," says one student, pointing proudly at the black and gold bodies swimming in a tank. See TOUGH TEACHER, Page 5

BL, AC advance to finals

The Betsy Layne Lady Bobcats, in girls basketball, and Allen Central's Rebels, among the boys, won the right last night to advance to the finals in District 58 Tournament play.

In the first game of Thursday's matchup, the Lady Bobcats won over Wheelwright's Lady Trojans in a hard-fought battle, 64-56. Brenda Hamilton, with 24 points for Betsy Layne, and Jedon Hood, with 20 points for WHS, led in scoring.

Allen Central, behind a 12-point performance of Joey Conn, defeated a stubborn Wheelwright team, 45-32, in boys basketball. The game was much closer than the score indicates.

Both teams struggled from start to finish with many mental mistakes and turnovers in between.

Rick Smith and Mike Hancock each tossed in 11 points for ACHS. Bobby Hood, 10 points, and Harold Johnson, 9, were leading scorers for WHS.

The Lady Bobcats advance to tournament finals Saturday, against the winner of the McDowell/Allen Central girls' game tonight. The Rebels will meet the winner of tonight's matchup of McDowell and Prestonsburg.

See complete tournament coverage in next Wednesday's edition of The Times.

Regional Roundup

Juvenile arrested for bomb threats

PIKE COUNTY—A male juvenile was arrested at 9:23 p.m. Wednesday night, following a series of bomb threats that shut down all Pike County schools on Wednesday.

According to state police reports, the juvenile was a male student at Virgie High School. Four calls had been made from a pay phone in the lobby of the Virgie High School gymnasium over a period of several days, threatening that a bomb had been placed in a Pike County school. Many parents had kept their children at home Tuesday, following the report of bomb threats.

The juvenile has been charged with terroristic threatening and is being lodged in the Floyd County Juvenile Detention Center.

Name change for section of US 23

JOHNSON COUNTY—A strip of US 23 from the Floyd County line to the Powell Addition turn-off in Johnson County will receive a new name, thanks to a resolution by state representatives.

The 3.4 mile stretch has been dubbed the "Loretta Lynn Highway", in honor of the country music legend who hails from nearby Butcher Hollow in Van Lear.

The resolution still must pass the Senate, before the name change goes into effect. (Paintsville Herald)

Chamber formed in Knott County

KNOTT COUNTY—The Knott County Chamber of Commerce was formed last week, following a year of work by local leaders.

The stated purpose of the Chamber will be to attract and create new jobs in the county. Membership dues were established, and the possibility of creating a position for a full-time staff member and clerical help is being considered.

The first meeting of the newly formed chamber will be held next month. (Troublesome Creek Times)

Detention Center opens juvenile wing

JOHNSON COUNTY—A four month wait to open the juvenile wing of the Big Sandy Regional Detention Center ended last week, when the facility was opened to house juveniles.

According to Johnson County Jailor Thurman Tackett, the delay was caused by overcrowding problems at the facility, which required the overflow of adult inmates to be housed in the juvenile section of the jail. Female inmates were moved out of the juvenile section into the 12-bed female section, which had been used to house male inmates, allowing for two Martin juveniles to be admitted. (Paintsville Herald)

Arrests made in BB gun shootings, theft case

Two arrests made last week by the Prestonsburg Police Department may spell the beginning of the end to a rash of window breakings and thefts which have plagued the county over the past six to eight months.

According to Prestonsburg Police Chief Greg Hall, an Abbott Creek man called in a complaint last Thursday of someone shooting a BB gun through the window of his home. Officers responded and stopped a vehicle matching the description given by the caller. Nothing was discovered at that time in the vehicle.

Later that night, the same vehicle was observed parked behind the Archer Clinic in Prestonsburg. Upon investigation, Patrick and Brian Prater were found standing at the front of the clinic. When confronted, they claimed their vehicle was broken down.

The responding officer started the car and the two left. However, after conducting an inspection of the area behind the clinic, a BB gun and pellets were found hidden by the officer behind an air-conditioning unit.

Shortly afterward, a call was received reporting that a window in the Department of Social Services building had been shot out. The Prater brothers were picked up for questioning and were later arrested on charges of criminal mischief.

Hall noted that several more arrests were expected in the case, relating to a number of reports of broken windows and stolen property which have occurred throughout the area over the past six to eight months. Hall also praised Prestonsburg police officers involved for successfully solving the case.

Times to offer newspapers to area schools for NIE Week

The Floyd County Times joins newspapers across the country next week in observance of Newspapers in Education Week, March 5-9.

To show its support of the education system and its role in the community, The Times will provide newspapers for classrooms in county schools.

Teachers can use The Times as an educational tool, thereby instilling in students a desire and ability to read a newspaper, particularly when it concerns their local community. The newspaper can also be used in teaching reading, in general, said Times editor Pam Shingler.

To reserve copies of the March 7 and March 9 editions of the newspaper, principals and teachers can call The Times office at 886-8506. Simply tell the operator how many copies you will need and whether you can pick up the papers personally or will need to have them delivered.

Teachers are also reminded that The Times welcomes tours of its operations by students. To set up a time for a tour (limited to Wednesdays or Fridays), call The Times and ask for the Editorial Department.

Happy reading!

Prestonsburg Attorney named to Bar Association task force

William G. Francis, Prestonsburg attorney, has been named a member of the Task Force on Lawyer Discipline, according to Sheryl G. Snyder, president of the Kentucky Bar Association.

The process by which Kentucky lawyers discipline themselves will be under review by this newly-appointed task force.

"This group will undertake a fundamental self-examination of the process by which the Kentucky Bar Association enforces legal ethics," said Snyder. "I am very pleased that the men and women who have accepted this responsibility are individuals of stature who represent a diversity of professions as well as those who represent the legal profession across the state."

As part of this evaluation, the KBA has invited the American Bar Association to send a team of experts from other states to review Kentucky's process and offer advice.

The task force's goal is to present its report at a public hearing during the 1991 KBA convention. Recommendations will be received by the KBA Board of Governors and submitted to the Kentucky Supreme Court for consideration.

Co-op

A project director will be hired to coordinate the combined effort. The director's responsibility will be to evaluate the capabilities of participating companies, in an effort to determine primary manufacturing strengths.

Using this information, the director will then begin work with the Kentucky Procurement Assistance Program (KPAP) at the University of Kentucky. By matching manufacturing capabilities of local companies with public and private manufacturing contracts listed in the KPAP computer files, each company will be provided with a list of contracts available around the country, and possibly around the world, which they would be qualified to bid for. In this way, new, previously unknown markets could be opened up for local manufacturers.

"My gut feeling is that local manufacturers will act as sub-contractors to larger contractors," said Roger Recktenwald, director of the Big Sandy ADD. "Government contracts are listed in the computer system, also—not just defense contracts, but a broad range of federally funded projects."

Aside from tapping into new markets by linking local companies with the KPAP computer system at UK, the project director of the Central Appalachian Market Expansion Project will also set up assessments for each participating manufacturer with a representative of the UK Center for Robotics Manufacturing. The purpose of this assessment is to determine if the use of robotics could improve the quality and competitiveness of each manufacturer.

"We already are operating with four computer-operated pieces of equipment," said Collins of R & S Truck Body. "This equipment allows us to turn out very precise, fabricated products and, for many operations, is invaluable."

Currently, R & S employs about 140 persons in Floyd County and has already established itself in the Washington, DC, market. Porter Industries employs 35.

Among many economic development planners, it is believed that the economic future of Eastern Kentucky and Floyd County will depend on the vitality of small companies, such as these, as the prominence of coal declines. Despite fears many have of losing coal as the region's economic mainstay, a shifting reliance on smaller, homegrown industry has a potentially strong future.

"Of all of the work we have before us," said Recktenwald, "this is the part that I have the most hope in."

Funding for the project has been assured for one year. Planners hope that the program will receive continued support in the future, providing market information in the long term to area businesses and manufacturers.

City gets archaeology grant

More digging is in store for the Salisbury lot on Front Street in Prestonsburg, according to Mayor Ann Latta, who has been informed of a $9000 grant to the city from the Kentucky Heritage Commission.

The lot, next to the Mountain Comprehensive Care Center, was partially excavated last summer to see if it contained objects of sufficient historical importance to warrant its preservation as a historical site.

Further excavation is now possible before the city goes ahead with plans to pave the site for a parking lot.

A minimum amount of digging will be required, said Latta, before the decision can be made to pave. She said that even if "something significant" is found, the city can have three-fourths of the lot filled in to protect what is there and then pave over it.

The other fourth of the lot, she said, will remain open for future digs. That particular section covers the site of what is believed to be one of the oldest cabins in the region.

Latta said she envisions the cabin site as hosting an annual dig and being turned into an "archaeological, historical, educational park."

Once the parking lot is built, Latta said she would like to see it "dressed up, too." She suggested to City Council Monday night that the city might use the river bank at that location for extended recreation, perhaps by building "a wall to stand on to fish."

Low-cost rides for medical needy available

A program to provide inexpensive, non-emergency medical transportation to Floyd County residents and citizens of the Big Sandy area began initial operations this week.

Three vans, two of which have been specially modified for medical transportation, will be dispatched from Prestonsburg to serve Floyd, Pike, Martin, Magoffin and Johnson counties.

The program is operated out of the offices of the Big Sandy Area Development District and seeks to serve those who have difficulty getting to medical facilities both in and outside of the Big Sandy area.

"While working with the elderly in the region, I saw a great need for this type of service," said Evelyn Blackburn, transportation services coordinator for Big Sandy ADD. "The need is widespread, not just with the elderly, but with many who require medical treatment."

A grant from the state Department of Transportation and donations from Floyd, Magoffin, and Martin counties provided the funding for two of the vans. The third was donated by the Pike County Fiscal Court. Drivers for the vans have undergone CPR and first aid training, and have familiarized themselves in the past week with regional medical facilities, where local residents will be transported.

"We'll be running routes to Ashland, Louisville, and Lexington medical facilities," said Blackburn. "At this point, we're planning two or three runs to these cities each week. We also will transport within and between the five counties in the Big Sandy area. Once we receive state clearance, we'll also transport to Huntington (W.Va.)."

Costs for transportation, while not free, have been kept to a minimum. A fee of 20 cents a mile will be charged, and Blackburn noted that payment for the service can be arranged in different ways.

Those eligible for Medicaid or veteran's benefits may be covered for the transportation costs. Funding from local civic groups are also being solicited to defray costs for those with lower incomes. An 800 number will also be established to schedule pickups within the county.

Blackburn emphasized that the program was designed strictly for non-emergency transport.

"We can't transport emergency cases. Our vehicles aren't constructed for that purpose," said Blackburn. "We aren't trying to compete with ambulance services in the area."

For more information about the service, call Evelyn Blackburn at 886-2374.

On Saturday, March 17, County Mass Conventions will be held. The Convention will take place at 10 a.m. at the home of Dr. Larry Leslie, Prestonsburg.

The purpose of the County Mass Convention is to fill any vacancies in the Precinct offices and to elect delegates and alternates to the district and state conventions.

Bob Gable, state Republican chairperson, encourages all Republicans to participate in the Precinct Conventions and County Mass Conventions. The "re-organization process provides a great way to get involved in the Party at the grassroots level," Gable said.

Carter Funeral Home takes part in planting

Carter Funeral Home of Prestonsburg, along with several hundred other funeral homes affiliated with the Lofty Oaks Association, has completed the planting of 45,000 memorial trees. The trees are planted on public lands in the home state of a family they have served, as a way of enhancing the environment.

Pres. George Bush and the federal government have very recently begun stressing the importance of tree-plantings. "Trees cool the earth, purify air and water, protect watershed areas, enhance wildlife habitats and prevent soil erosion," according to Global Relief, a national program of the National Forestry Association.

Through its affiliation with Lofty Oaks, Carter Funeral Home, with counterparts in other areas of the country, is contributing trees to the state's landscape on a regular basis, for the benefit of all the people of the state.

The Carter Funeral Home recognizes the need for the improvements trees can bring. They are dedicated to the future of their community and to those they serve, and they plan to continue their tree planting program into the 1990s.

PostScript

By Pam Shingler

Let's take a break from the profundity this week. Sometimes you get so bogged down with deep that the time comes when you have to give your emotions and brain (however limited) a timeout. (Some may say my brain is in constant timeout, and they may be right.) So how about a trivia respite — free falling.

In my approaching dotage, I find I'm listening to country music more and more, I certainly have not — and never intend to — give up rock 'n roll. But there remains a warmth and silliness in country music that touches my happy bones.

My favorite Nashville tune these days is a super nostalgic piece by Lionel Cartwright, called "I watched it all on my radio."

In almost stereotypical fashion, the play on words in the title is pure joy. But the gist of the song is sure to conjure memories in anyone who was born before 1960 when television became a fixture in every living room.

Radio is still an important medium, and I listen to it in the car, in the office and at home. But it was a totally different medium way back then. Remember when station programming varied throughout the day.

My hometown station, the venerable WSIP, broadcast something for everyone at some point in the day. For music, you didn't have to switch the dial if you hankered for a different beat. Country music could be heard in the mornings. In the afternoons, there was easy listening. In the late afternoon and evening, it was kids' time with the emerging sound of rock filling the hours. And I can even remember opera coming to the mountains, via network, in the evenings.

Not unusual on Saturdays were live bands, bluegrass or gospel as a rule. They gained a modicum of fame — not always deserved — but they were real.

There was certainly no excuse then for persons never to be exposed to a variety of musical styles. Each person may have a favorite genre, but the others were available and were generally listened to.

An added bonus was the presence of live people — people we all knew — playing the music. For the rock shows after school, the disc jockeys were generally high school kids trying out their new voices. Local personalities, who came as close to being celebrities as we had, tempered all the music shows with folk wisdom and nonsense that tended to endear.

These local personalities often had their own talk shows where people freely called to express opinions, sell refrigerators and request favorite songs. For those of us growing up and testing emotions, the call in lines for the rock shows were most critical. We could call in dedications anonymously for the latest object of our affections, secretly hoping he or she would know who called and respond positively.

Television is marvelous, no doubt. With it, we add the visual dimension and are able to see, to some extent, what the rest of the world looks like.

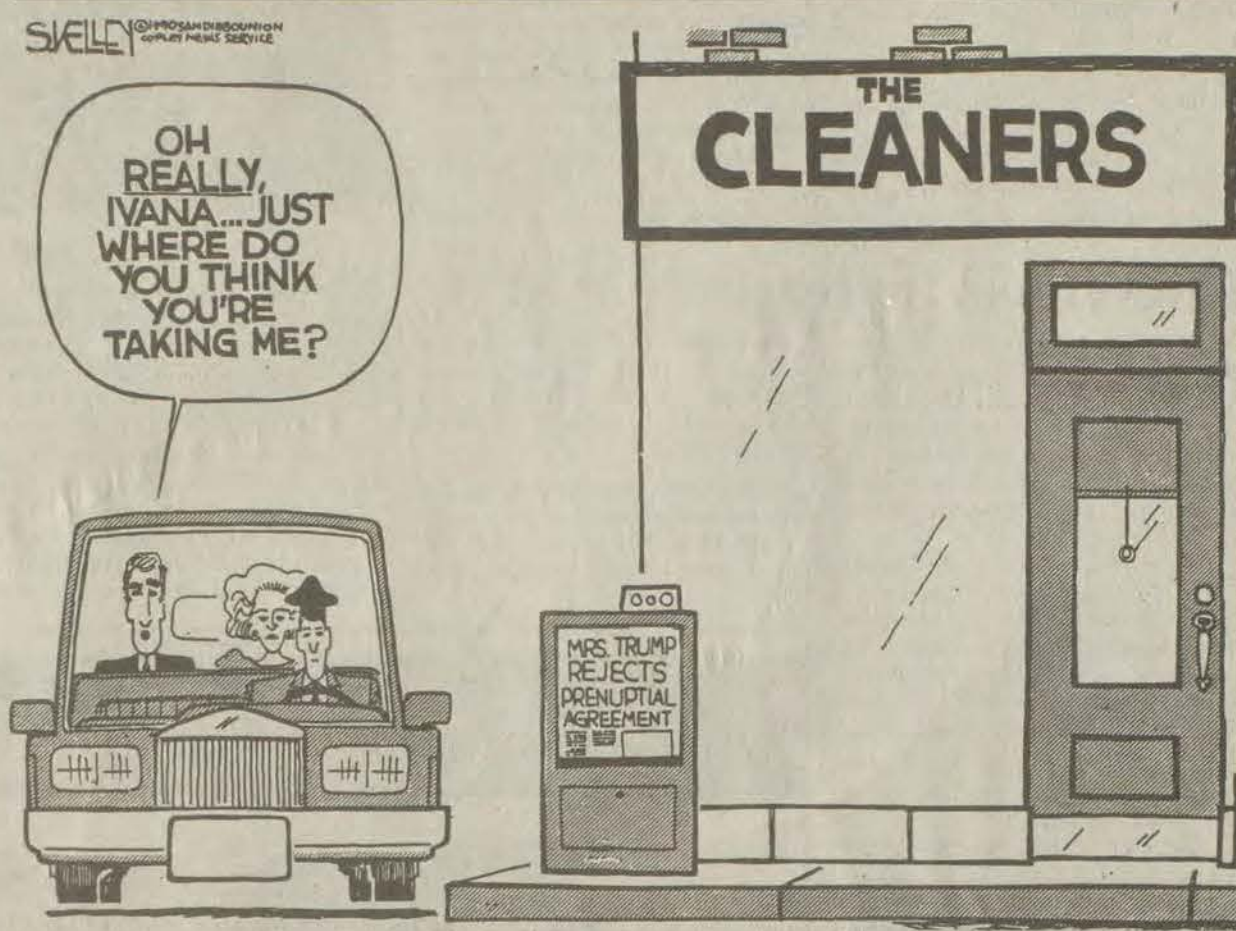

Yet, with old radio the vision was cerebral. Every song was ripe for the listener's interpretation, rather than the one dictated by a video producer. The Lone Ranger's costume was as drab or as elaborate as you could dream it.

Though an individual medium, radio fostered a mental joined-ness among listeners, entertainers and on-air personalities that's simply not possible with television. Sure, we can watch Dan Rather alone, but we never escape the knowledge that millions of others are watching him at the same time. Radio could seduce you into the feeling that his predecessors were talking just to you. The same is true of singers, comedians and everyone else who populated the radio airwaves.

Something has been gained by television, but we've lost something, too.

And I did it again. Without intending, I stepped out of the shallow trivia and into the deep water.

David Dance

A Success

Dear Editor,
We are students of the French Class at the David School. We had a dance on Friday, Feb. 16. It turned out very nicely. We had four guys from the Job

Cops who made the dance a lot more interesting: Rick Lidford, Curtis Le McGrone, Kevin Fowler and Marcus. We would like to thank these boys for coming. We would also like to recognize all the students from our school who came. We would also like to extend our gratitude to Colorama and WXXZ for their help.

Hunter bridge still falling down

Dear Editor,
It is the intent of this letter to inform the public that the people of Hunter are being denied a new bridge.

We went to Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo's office about this matter. He was not very cooperative. He was very rude. Mr. Stumbo told us that we will never get a new bridge, even if it falls tomorrow. He informed us that we were wasting our time and effort on this matter. We were told not to come to Fiscal Court, he did not want any harassment.

We went to Fiscal court, and when the TV camera started rolling, Judge Stumbo was totally a different person. He told us he was doing everything he could to get the people a new bridge.

We went to Hazard back in June and met with Kentucky Transportation Department and Governor Wilkinson. We were not promised anything. There were no lies told to us.

Gov. Wilkinson told us that the bridge was entirely up to the Judge-Executive of Floyd County. We were given a telephone number and were told to call them in two weeks. We called Frankfort and were informed that Judge Stumbo had not presented any evidence that we desperately needed a new bridge. He is not pushing this matter.

Five or six years ago the money was appropriated for a new bridge at Hunter. What happened to the money? Who is collecting the interest?

The people of Hunter deserve better. We are taxpayers.

There are so many people that don't vote. They say "They're all crooks in Prestonsburg. You can't get them out." If we all go out and vote, we can put them out. We can change for the better.

Stop the outside garbage

Dear Editor,
Currently pending before the General Assembly are Senate Bill 260 and House Bill 565. These two bills are identical in content and purpose. Some call them the "New York Garbage Bills" because their intent is to put a stop to the importation of out-of-state garbage into Kentucky.

For some time now, many states have been sending their garbage to Kentucky by the trailer load. The most prominent reasons New York and other eastern states send us their garbage are:

1. It is cheaper than keeping it there.
2. No one in our local and state government seems to be paying attention.
3. There is little to no control placed over landfills in this state in terms of location, operation and accountability.
4. We don't seem to mind.

SB 260 and HB 565 will change all of that by:

1. Giving local governments more control of the siting, operation and administration of landfills.
2. Requiring local governments to establish solid waste plans that meet criteria for minimal solid waste capacity assurance.
3. Encouraging garbage reduction through recycling of metals, paper and woods.

SB 260 and HB 565, if passed, will not close down or alter existing industrial-owned landfills or adversely affect the legitimate economy of our state.

For either of these bills to pass, support must be demonstrated by those of us concerned about New York garbage finding its way into Kentucky in ever increasing tonnage.

If you care, please call 1-800-372-7181 and tell your state legislators that you are expecting them to fully support SB 260 and HB 565. Your call will make a difference.

Sincerely,
— Robert A. Roland

Kim's Korner

By Kim Frasure

Not to repeat Tess Whitmer in her Soapbox column Wednesday, but children and discipline in the school system are subjects everyone can relate to.

I recently had a meeting with my youngest daughter's teacher. The child has been having some trouble with her school work since October. Like normal parents, we had questions. For instance:

— Is she just simply not doing as she's told?
— Does she fully understand the directions given to her for the particular subject she's being expected to do?
— Is she asking appropriate questions?

— Is she behind the rest of the class in that area alone, or is she falling behind in other subjects as well?
She does her work at home, but only after her father puts that rough, gruff voice of his into effect.

You have to know this child. She's quite stubborn at times. (The part of her Dad she inherited, ha! ha!) She's gorgeous, sweet and the most loving little girl in the world. But Stubborn! During the meeting with Mrs. Adams I asked her if my daughter was stubborn. "Not at all," she replied. I'm thinking, "Are we talking about the same child here?"

So anyway, the point is: Our children sometimes are much different at school than at home. There're always two sides to every story and don't hesitate, if your child is having trouble, to schedule a meeting with his/her teacher.

Believe me, it helps ease your mind, and as Paul Harvey would say, you'll have "the rest of the story."

Tough teacher

Another is proud of the baby dwarf seahorses, barely visible in the aquarium.

Still another displays a health-looking gerbil she and others operated on to remove a growth.

Across the room, a student explains that a cage of white mice is the setting for an experiment in which she'll study the "learning ability of mice and compare it with humans."

Hermit crabs, parakeets, hamsters, ants, crickets and plants are among other living class projects. A tribute to Osborne's philosophy of "hands on" education, everything in the room has been purchased or donated as a result of the students' solicitations. Students are now raising money for more "experiment" materials and a trip this spring to the Cincinnati Zoo.

In addition to biology, Osborne incorporates writing and accounting. Students enter their research findings in journals that will serve as research materials for future classes, and they publish a newsletter about their projects. Plus, they raise money for projects, decide on purchase priorities and keep account records.

As a bonus, they're learning to make presentations and work with children. This semester, for example, the biology class has hosted visits by more than 160 Head Start, kindergarten and grade school students.

(Not to be discounted, Osborne subtly teaches about relationships too. Her husband Denver is familiar to the students for his assistance. On Wednesday, for example, he showed up to do some carpentry work and set up a video camera to tape Friday's guest presentations.)

If that were all, Osborne's contribution as a teacher would be significant. But she also makes her mark in teaching a college preparatory biology class, anatomy and physiology, American history and sociology. During her 23 years at Wheelwright, she says she has also taught English, speech and drama.

A successful grant writer, the teacher this month is bringing several exemplary professional women to the school to talk to students about the range of careers open to females. Many of the guests — doctors, lawyers, educators, businesspersons — are her former students.

Osborne is staunch in her feelings about teaching. "This old stuff about 'read chapter 9 and answer the questions' is not teaching," she insists.

She demonstrates a belief in "more hands on learning, on letting the student do the work."

"I never did like an all lecture class," says the mother and grandmother. "A teacher should put responsibility on the student to learn, give them work to do and a certain amount of time to do it."

Osborne admits that her no-nonsense approach is not popular with everyone. "I have had lots of parents want me fired," she reveals. Most have challenged the high standards Osborne sets in her classes.

For instance, she's of the school that holds that men should not wear hats, more commonly caps, in class. She tells of a student who violated the rule and took the violation a step further by wearing a cap with an obscene and sexist message on it. Osborne confiscated the cap and told the student he could have it back at the end of the semester.

"His mother called me and threatened to have me fired if I didn't give the cap back," the teacher explains. "I asked her how she as a woman and a mother could tolerate that kind of message. She replied that her baby could wear anything he wanted."

Osborne, who sees her standards as being important to the student's future development, kept the cap and her job.

The biggest negative change she's seen in her teaching career, she says, is in student behavior and "that so many parents condone it."

Her standards extend from academic to behavioral. Yet, serious students still clamor for her classes.

"I have always tried to make class interesting," Osborne says, adding, "I don't miss much school. Substitutes are fine, but I want to be in my classroom."

Doris Osborne is worth cloning.

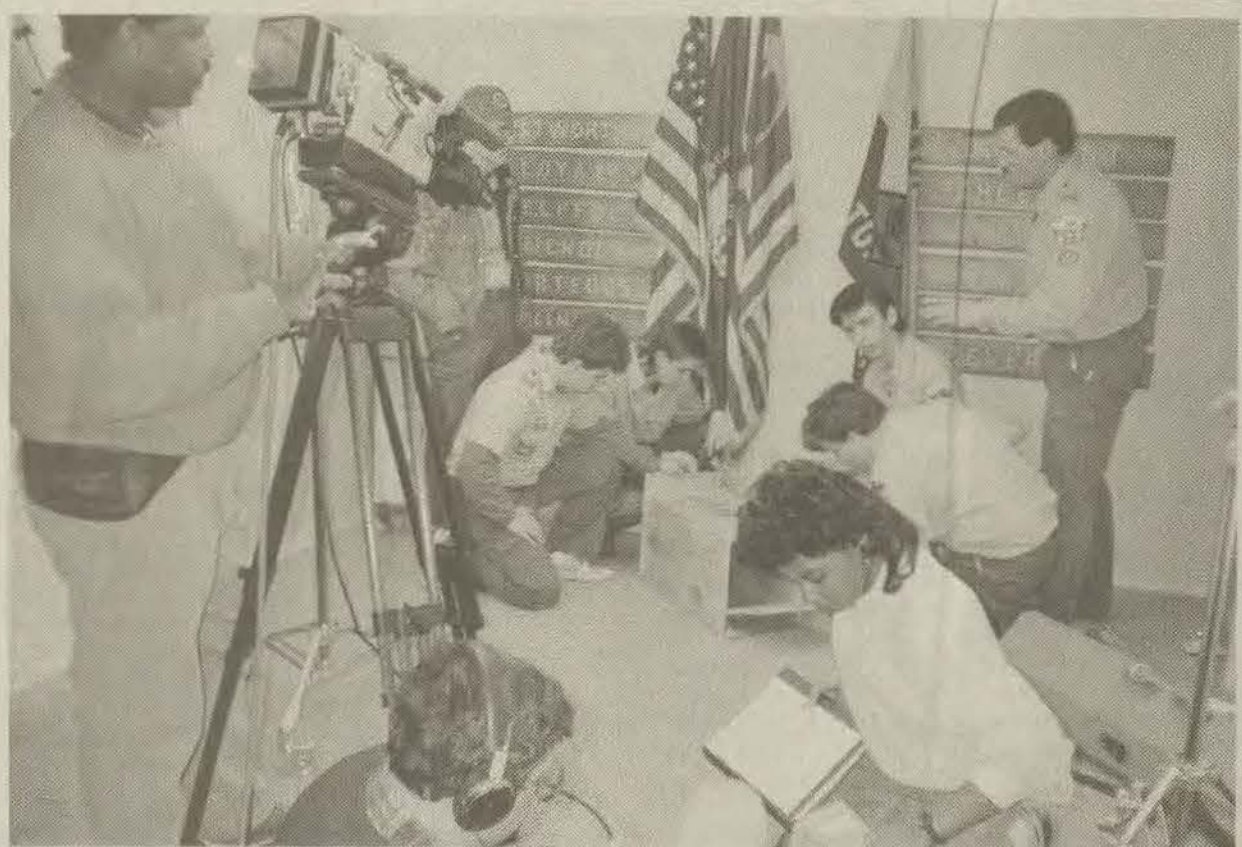

Guinea pigs, mice, fish and learning

Wheelwright High School teacher Doris Osborne talks with advanced biology students about their projects in the class' "jungle." Demanding, strict and competent, Osborne, a 23-year veteran of the classroom, is among the county's most able teachers.

Passing the check (not the buck)

Billy Maynard, left, chairman of the Big Sandy Life Underwriters Association, presents a $500 check to Darryll Combs, coordinator of the Christian Appalachian Project's Home Repair program. The money will be used by Combs to purchase materials needed to rebuild a flood-damaged home in the Muddy Gut area of southern Floyd County.

Lights, camera, action!

Prestonsburg Boy Scouts got the feel of the bright lights last Saturday as a KET film crew focused on their environmental projects for a special called "Kids Caring for Kentucky," set for airing April 16 at 9 p.m. The documentary, including youth projects in Henderson, Louisville and Berea, will follow a national educational television production on the environment. Here, local scouts demonstrate the building of a wood duck house which they later placed in an area pond. The scouts and their leader Johnnie Ross also told the cameras of their water watch, tree planting, recycling and litter projects.

Woodrum awarded CDA credential

Cynthia Lois Woodrum, teacher at Betsy Layne Head Start Center, has been awarded a Child Development Associate (CDA) credential by the Council for Early Childhood Professional Recognition in Washington, DC.

The organization represents the early childhood profession through its affiliation with the National Association for the Education of Young Children.

Woodrum is the ninth teacher in the Floyd County Head Start Program to acquire a CDA certification, according to Head Start Director Janie Smith.

Each candidate who wishes to acquire a CDA must complete a portfolio defining 13 competency areas. The candidate is observed working with young children and is evaluated by a team which includes early childhood experts and a parent, Smith said.

Woodrum is the daughter of Ed and Marie Woodrum of Ripley, W. Va.

Giving the gift of words:

A battle against illiteracy in Floyd County

by Tess A. Whitmer
Staff Writer
(First in a series)

In your cupboard there is a can without a label. With a sense of adventure you open the can only to discover it is lima beans which you don't care for. Now, imagine that every time you open a can, you don't have a clue what the contents will be. Rather frustrating, don't you think?

This is only one of the problems facing functionally illiterate people everyday.

Fortunately, commercial marketers have changed the packaging of many products to include a picture of the item contained within. However, such packages can run up to three times as high in price as the containers without illustrations, such as generic products.

Other problems face people who cannot read beyond a grade school level: independent voting, finding employment, reading road signs or using a map, using the phone book or classified ads, reading the Bible, writing checks and much more. These things may seem simple, but they are every day functions that are major hurdles for persons whose reading skill is limited.

One expert estimates that of the 4850 inmates in Kentucky, three-fourths of those lack a high school diploma. About one-third of those read below a sixth-grade level. Thousands of Kentuckians are unable to make the most of their lives because they lack the ability to read, and some turn to crime and waste their lives in a prison cell.

The government spends $1 billion on adult education programs. Couple these statistics with the fact that a person without a high school education is 34 times more likely to wind up in prison, and the conclusion is startling.

Because of the inordinate number of people needing assistance in learning to read, the Literacy Council depends heavily on volunteers. According to Ann Greene, Floyd County Adult Literacy Council coordinator, there are 40 volunteers trained in the county, but only 20 are presently active. However, out of the 12,000 functionally illiterate adults in the county, only 30 have signed up for tutor sessions.

These sessions are free and students, ideally, spend about three hours a week in one-on-one instruction. The council provides the text books and any other materials needed, as well as testing services and matching tutors to students. Several local churches, schools, community centers, libraries, hospitals and businesses have donated space to be used for the sessions, but the ultimate decision for a meeting place lies with the student and tutor.

Operation Read in Fayette County has been working under a three-year federal grant to provide tutor trainers for Eastern Kentucky. That grant expires this December. Consequently, the council has been training tutors locally to provide this service in the future.

Presently there are four fully-trained tutor instructors in the county own checks. "I can do my own grocery shopping." "I can read street signs." "I know what I'm ordering at the restaurant."

The general public can help the goal of "literacy for all" by purchasing the following Lever Bros. products: Wisk laundry detergent, Sunlight dish detergent, All laundry detergent, Snuggles fabric softener and Surf laundry detergent. Cut out these products proofs-of-purchase and send to: Floyd County Literacy Council, Box 24, David, KY 41616.

The proofs will then be mailed to Lever Bros. which will donate 25 cents each toward the fight to end illiteracy. (On March 18 a double page insert which includes cents-off coupons for these products will appear in Sunday papers. A donation certificate will appear in the ad and must accompany the bar codes from these products for the redemption to be valid. Call the council should you have questions. Funds will be split between the Laubach Literacy Volunteers of America, Laubach Literacy Action, PLUS and the Floyd County Literacy Council.)

Erase the words. Which would you buy?

Most people are able to recognize a can of Campbell's Soup, but if you can't read, how do you determine what is inside? Easy. Just buy Chunky Soup and look at the picture. Of course you're going to pay a little more. What about the two cans in the middle? Erase the writing and they look similar. However, Endust has put a little picture of a hand with a dust cloth inside its emblem to deter confusion. The picture of the beef slices on the can on the right looks awfully appetizing, doesn't it? But most people don't care to eat dog food. And most people who are functionally illiterate can't afford to pay the inflated cost of the name brand dog foods vs. the cost cutter brand. Everyday chores can become major milestones if you can't read.

FLOYD CO. ADULT LITERACY COUNCIL

Fortunately, there is hope for these individuals. The Floyd County Adult Literacy Council, an affiliate of the Kentucky Literacy Commission, coordinates countywide efforts for adults in need of basic skills and GED training so that unemployed, underemployed and the career displaced can be helped to improve the quality of their lives.

Floyd County has a problem. Forty-six percent of adults over 25 in the county did not go beyond the eighth grade, or 12,000 persons. That's about one person in three, including the total population. Furthermore, people with less than a sixth grade education are four times as likely to be collecting welfare than those with an eighth grade diploma.

In the nation, the average of functionally illiterate adults is 20 percent. And the United States ranks 48th in the world in education. This costs the taxpayer about $20 billion each year in lost wages, welfare, marketing, etc.

and two more who need additional courses.

This past weekend 13 new tutors were certified. Some of the tutors are housewives, others are retirees, but most are working professionals who saw the need and volunteered their time. Tutors normally handle only one student at a time and commit to that student as long as needed or feasible.

Additional training sessions are being planned. Anyone interested in helping others learn to read can contact Greene at 886-READ between the hours of 8 a.m. and 4 p.m., weekdays. The same number applies to anyone who wishes to learn to read or improve existing skills.

The motivations behind the tutors and students vary with each person. Some students have cited the following ways their life has changed since learning to read: "I can read the Bible." "I read stories to my children." "I can read my own mail." "I can write my

L-G-W Woman's Club Speaker

Libby Hall of McDowell, special vocational liaison for Floyd County Technical School (formerly Garth Vocational School), was guest speaker Monday, Feb. 19, for the GFWC/KFWC Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Woman's Club in the home of club member Marsella Bradley, Garrett.

Hall outlined the subjects taught at the school, namely, English, math, science, business, shop, carpentry and computer technology. She explained that the English course includes applied communication, such as how to write letters of application, resumes and how to act during an interview for employment.

She explained there are cooperative programs between local businesses and the school that allow students to work part time for training, school credit and cash. It is hoped this will help to lower the dropout rate for local students and give some basic training to those who do not plan to go to college.

The speaker also reported that Toyota is interested in recruiting some math, science and computer technology students and may possibly donate some equipment to the school. Hall also advised of the various improvements made recently in the kitchen with new stoves, etc. She reported that the school is accredited along with Mayo State Vocational School.

Prior to the program, devotions were given by Bradley and the Pledge of Allegiance. Club president JoAnn Hall advised that 30 dozen cup cakes had been baked and delivered by club members on Valentine's Day to the Golden Years Rest Home at Lackey. There was a discussion concerning trophies for winners in the Art Contest for high school students held during the KFWC Convention in Lexington in April.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Bradley and Marie Mullins, to Libby Hall, Lula Coburn, JoAnn Hall, Alma Souleyrette, Betty Mullins, LaFaye Hughes, Blanche Bamer, Louise West, Joyce Stevens and Vera Allen.

The next regularly scheduled meeting will be Monday, March 19, in the home of Vera Allen, Garrett. The subject under discussion will be Conservation.

Christopher Glenn Frasure, son of Ronald and Dixie Frasure of Prestonsburg, was the first place costume winner in his second grade class at Prestonsburg Elementary. As part of the Young Authors Book contest the students dressed up as professionals. Frasure went as a doctor dressed in a white lab coat, navy slacks and blue oxfords with a matching tie.

Floyd County Families: Our Heritage

(3-9-15-#28) Samuel R. Meade (Dec. 15, 1829-Sept. 13, 1912) married Mary "Polly" Gearhart, (Feb. 24, 1834-May 7, 1927) they were married on May 15, 1859, in Floyd Co. Ky. She was the daughter of Valentine Robert Gearhart (1810-1873) in Ky. and Susan Justice Gearhart, (1814-ca1900) in Tenn. Valentine and Susan "Sarah" Justice Gearhart, were married in Floyd Co., on April 28, 1833.

The children of Valentine and Sarah Justice Gearhart were: Mary "Polly" Gearhart (1834-1912) married Samuel Meade (above).

#322 John Gearheart (1837-1864-POW Civil War).

#323 Jonathan Gearheart (Dec. 27, 1838-Nov. 25, 1923) married Feb. 16, 1876 Nancy Jane Adkins, in Floyd County, Ky.

#324 George W. Gearheart born 1841 DNM

#325 Allen Gearheart (1844-1858) DNM

#326 Sarah "Sally" Gearheart born 1858 married May 5, 1882 Dick Crabtree

Samuel and "Polly" lived on Toler

Creek until Samuel's death in 1912. Polly moved to Johnson County, Ky., with her daughter, Susan, about 1913.

Samuel died on September 13, 1912, and is buried in the Samuel Meade cemetery, located 1 mile up Toler Creek on Route 1426 off Route 979, Harold, Ky. Also buried in this cemetery are some of Samuel's children and grandchildren. (Those buried there are marked: **)

I have a picture of Samuel's grave marker. It is a concrete marker with his name scratched in while the concrete was still wet. Poured in a wooden form, no doubt. It is a tribute of love, made by an unknown hand.

I also have a picture of Mary "Polly" Gearheart Meade's grave marker. Polly is buried at Whitehouse, Johnson County, Ky. in the Osborne cemetery. The stone was bought from a commercial supplier, as best I can tell. It is in such an eroded condition that her name is barely legible. If anyone wasn't fairly sure of the location, I doubt that it would ever be known who was buried there.

I have recently had new ones made for them. I had the names of their children put on the stones so that anyone in the future will know exactly who is buried there.

Doyle Meade, (#1511 son of Willie and Anne Elliott Meade) of Harold, has generously volunteered to erect Samuel's stone. I certainly appreciate his contribution to establishing a permanent record of the Meade family.

The cause of Samuel's death is shown as acute nephritis (infection of the bladder) and uremia. He died at the age of 82 years, 9 months, and 28 days. His death certificate shows he died at their home on Mud Creek, September 13, 1912.

Polly's death certificate shows she died May 7, 1927, age 95 years, 2 months and 12 days, at Whitehouse, Johnson County, Ky. and is buried in the Osborne cemetery at Whitehouse, Johnson County, Ky. (about 10 miles from Boons Camp, Ky.)

After Robert's death, Polly went with Susan, one of her children, to Johnson County, to live out the remainder of her life. She died at the age of 95 years 2 months and 12 days. Her death certificate shows cause of death as old age.

Prior to her death, Polly gave all her children a tract of land so that they would have a home and security after her passing. Some of those gifts of land are listed below:

In Deed Book 76, Page 160, dated 15th day of October, 1901, of the Floyd County Clerks Office, there is record of a transfer of land from Samuel Mead and Pollie (Gearheart) Mead, to William J. Hale, a parcel of land located on Mud Creek containing 40 acres more or less for the sum of $125.00. It is noted that this is property inherited from Robert Gearheart.

Note: The William J. Hale mentioned above, married Samuel and Polly's daughter #110 Louisa Jane Meade.

I find in the 1860 Floyd County census a Robert Gearheart age 49 living 2 lots away from Samuel and Pollie. There are more references made pertaining to Robert, so we can deduct that Valentine, Polly's father, middle name was Robert. The reason for this is that in the 1850 Floyd census the same children and Sarah are listed under Valentine Gearheart and the ages are all correct.

In Deed Book 36, Page 410, dated 5th day of September, 1910, Samuel and Polly sell to George M. Hale, 15 acres with minerals excepted, for $200.00.

It also states that a lien is retained upon the said property hereby conveyed as security for the payment of the said purchase money.

Note in the above described transfer, at the beginning it is worded: "That the party of the first part (Sam & Polly) in consideration of the sum of $200.00 in hand paid the receipt of which is hereby acknowledged" etc. This particular deed has this wording shown twice and is underscored.

In Deed Book 36, Page 27, Floyd County Clerks Office, dated 1st day of October, 1912, a deed is recorded from Polly Meade to add Scott, for and in consideration of the sum of fifteen bushels of corn to be paid on

Costly timeout

Slone's 'trey' at :06 eliminates Betsy Layne in District match

About 3,000 basketball fans filed into the J.E. Campbell Arena Wednesday night as the 58th District basketball tournament got underway. The air was electrifying as students from the schools of Betsy Layne and Prestonsburg came to cheer on their respective teams.

Once the game began, the fans did not leave disappointed, as senior Chris Slone hit a three-pointer with :06 on the scoreboard to give the Blackcats a 51-49 victory over the Bobcats.

the ball game."

The Blackcats fouled, but with just 10 seconds on the clock. The Bobcat targeted to be fouled was missed, and, instead, Phillip King went to the charity stripe. King, like a veteran, sank both free throws to give the Bobcats a 49-47 advantage with 10 seconds to go. Prestonsburg called a time out.

"When we called time out, it was our plan to get the ball into Chris' hands and let him take it as far as he

"I'm not surprised."

The hero of the game saw it a little differently and was surprised!

"Yeah, I was surprised. I figure they would pick me up like they had been doing all night at half court," Slone stated of the Bobcat defense. "I didn't see any white jerseys until I hit the shot."

Did Slone know the ball was going in? "Yeah, this is one time I knew it was going in."

The Bobcats' Kevin Adams, who, like Sam Stewart, was in foul trouble, said the game was a little rough in the middle.

"Just chalk it up to first game jitters," he said. Adams said the game plan was to give the ball to Slone and let him go with it. "It worked."

Parido said that Stuart Robinson came on and did a tremendous job for the Bobcats.

"One time we went to him with the game tied and with 40 seconds to go and he came up short on the shot. But he had hit two earlier off the same play. I hope this gives Stuart some confidence that we will look for him in that situation."

The Blackcats had the ball with 47 seconds to go and the game tied. Instead of holding the ball for the last shot, the Blackcats' attempt failed.

"I'm not much for pulling the ball out with 47 seconds to go," explained Parido. "Anything under 30 seconds, you wait for the last shot. I didn't go for that."

Betsy Layne closes its season with a 13-13 record and Prestonsburg advances to meet McDowell tonight at 8 p.m. with a 13-13 record.

Slone finished the game with 14 points. Ray Collins, who played a good game, added 12.

Adam Gearheart and Keith Hall led the Bobcats in scoring with 12 points each. Stewart finished with 11. The big center had to sit out most of the game in foul trouble. Phillip King had 10 points.

When we called time out, it was out plan to get the ball into Chris' hands and let him take it as far as he could.

PHS Coach Gordon Parido

With 1:43 to go in the final quarter, the score was tied at 45-45. Adam Gearheart hit a base line jumper to give Betsy Layne a 47-45 lead. Kevin Adams missed the front end of a bonus for Prestonsburg, and Betsy Layne rebounded the basketball.

However, on the trip up court, the Bobcats got a little careless with the ball, and Slone stole it and went solo for the tying basket, 47-47, with 55 seconds showing.

On Betsy Layne's next possession, Chris Newsome was guarded by Slone and a five-second call was whistled against the Bobcats. Prestonsburg missed on two shots at the basket, and Betsy Layne rebounded and called time out with 28 seconds to go.

"We wanted to foul immediately," Prestonsburg coach Gordon Parido explained during the Bobcats' time out. "That way Betsy Layne would shoot the ball with 25 seconds to go, and we would have time to get the ball back. I want the ball to be in my team's hands with the chance to win could," remarked Parido of the time out.

Slone took the inbound pass and headed up court with the clock ticking off on every dribble of the basketball. The senior guard pulled up at the 19' mark and launched a three-pointer that hit nothing but net to give the Blackcats a 50-49 lead with just :03 showing.

The Bobcats called time out, only to discover they had no timeouts remaining. They were assessed with a technical foul and Prestonsburg was awarded the ball out of bounds after Slone hit one of the two technical free throws.

Coach Parido said that he was not surprised that the Bobcats' defense allowed Slone to penetrate so quickly to the basket.

"In late game situations, Coach (Junior) Newsome didn't want that. Of course he's in a situation also where he has no timeouts left to talk about it," says the Prestonsburg mentor. "Of course, Chris took it as far as he needed and hit the three-pointer. No

Howell, off bench, sparks McDowell to 53-48 win

The 58th District basketball tournament officially got underway Wednesday night as the Prestonsburg Lady Blackcats of Bridgett Clay faced a confident McDowell Lady Daredevil team in the opening game at the J.E. Campbell Arena on the campus of Allen Central High School.

Freshman Shelby Howell came off the Lady Daredevils' bench and tossed 12 points to spark an otherwise stalled McDowell offense to a 53-48 victory.

All the excitement of tournament play was present as the bands were at their best and the crowd enthusiastic about this year's tournament.

Junior Lorie Bryant scored 21 points to lead the Lady Devils in scoring. Senior Priscilla Crawford added 13 points in the win.

Howell was just what the McDowell team needed as she entered the game in the second quarter with McDowell down, 16-13, and struggling from the field. Howell's basket cut the lead to 16-15 and ignited a 9-0 run to give McDowell a six-point advantage, 22-16.

"She just did it," said Coach Cassandra Keathley of Howell's performance in the game. "Shelby hasn't been playing very much lately because Jenny (Slone) has come a long way, but tonight she just went into the game and played like she always does."

"She got on the offensive boards, something the rest were not doing, and she sort of picked up the other girls a bit."

Both teams struggled in the first quarter as "first game jitters" were evident. Both teams knew the winner goes on and the loser goes home.

Prestonsburg missed its first four foul shots in the first quarter, very uncharacteristic of the Lady Blackcats. McDowell jumped out to a 5-0 lead on baskets by Bryant and Kristi Mullins. Mullins also had a free throw in the spurt. Prestonsburg led at the end of the first quarter, 10-8, and McDowell took a 24-20 lead to the locker room at half time. girls worked as they did turn up the heat on defense and outscored the Lady Blackcats, 12-2, to take a 40-37 lead at the end of the third stanza.

At 42-40, McDowell, in the early goings of the final quarter, Crawford led a 7-0 charge that put McDowell up by nine, 49-40, as the Blackcats fell to the McDowell girls.

Kathy Slone, the junior sensation for Prestonsburg, was limited to 10 points in the game. Normally an excellent free throw shooter, she struggled at the charity line, hitting only four of 13 attempts.

Leading scorer for the Lady Blackcats was junior Edwina Hale with 19 points. Reffitt added seven points in the game.

"We made some silly mistakes in the game," explained Keathley, "things we haven't done in a long time. I hope we got over our first game jitters."

She just did it. Shelby (Howell) hasn't been playing very much lately ... She got on the offensive boards, something the rest were not doing, and she sort of picked up the other girls a bit.

Coach Cassandra Keathley

With McDowell on top, 26-21, early in the third period, the Lady Devils' offense got bogged down. Carolyn Reffitt hit a three-pointer to start a 9-0 spurt for Prestonsburg. Edwina Hale hit an eight-footer, stole the ball and scored on a lay up. Kathy Slone stole the ball off the press and scored to give Prestonsburg a 30-26 lead.

After Bryant's baskets snapped the Lady Blackcats' run, Prestonsburg hit five unanswered points for a 35-28 lead. After McDowell turned the ball on a five-second call, the Lady Devils called time out.

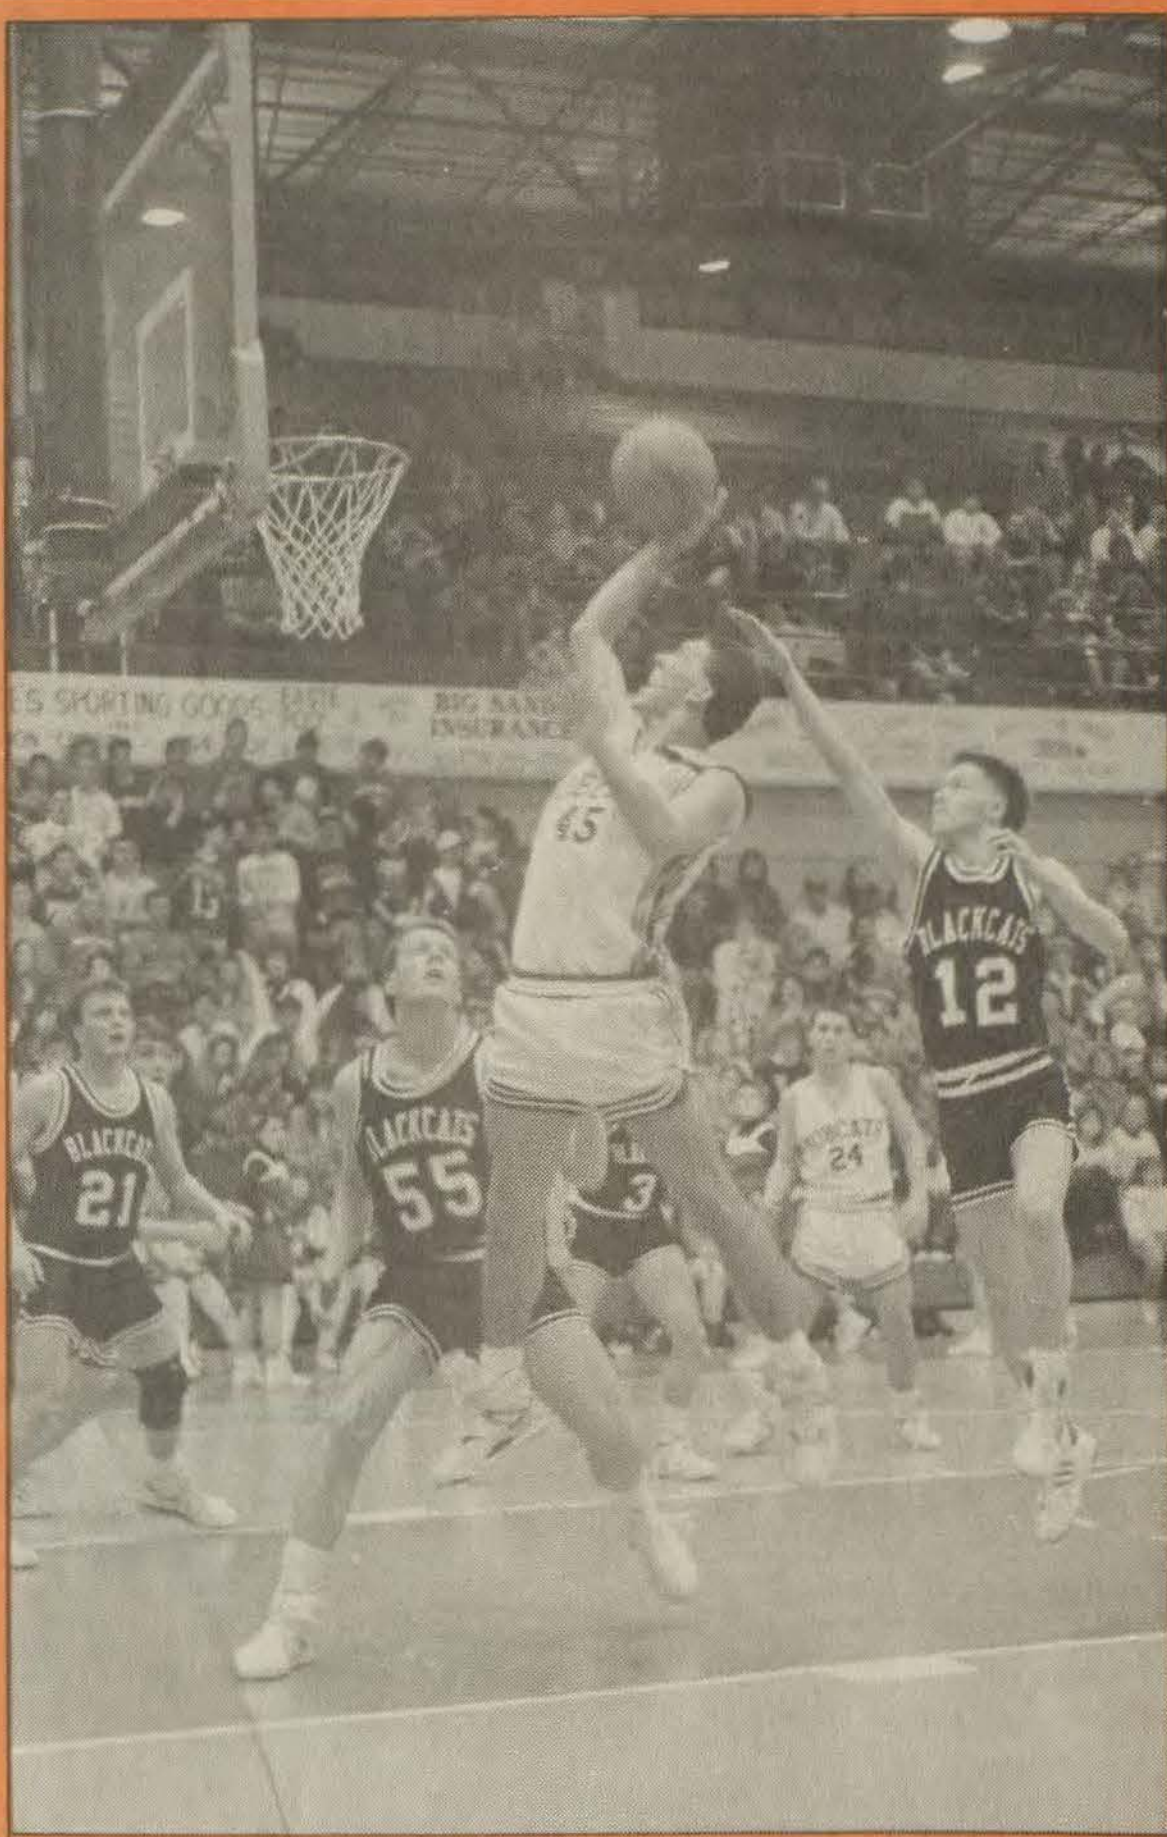

"Prestonsburg's press was both-

Daredevils will test Blackcats tonight

The Prestonsburg Blackcats will come into tonight's game on an emotional high — something Coach Gordon Parido does not want. When emotions are high, there is always a chance of a letdown.

Tonight the McDowell Daredevils of coach Johnny Ray Turner will test that emotional experience of Prestonsburg as they meet in semifinal action at the J.E. Campbell Arena of the 58th District tournament.

The two schools spit their season games, with each team winning on its home floor. But tonight the floor is neutral as the two teams lock up.

Neither team is a stranger to one another as basketball fans from around the county know. The two Floyd County teams met in last year's district finals with McDowell taking the title.

However, the 15th Regional finals found the same two teams with the Blackcats winning the trip to Rupp Arena.

Tonight's match up promises to be every bit as exciting as the previous four meetings, dating back to last year's tournament games. It will be finesse against speed and an up tempo game.

Both teams can boast of star players. The Blackcats will once again look to Chris Slone to carry the brunt of the offense if the Blackcats are to have a chance to defend their regional title. Ray Collins and Stuart Robinson had good outings in the first game

31 years a Trojan fan

JONES PUTS IN 31 YEARS AS TROJAN FAN

When you need to know something about Wheelwright Trojan basketball, you only need to look up Perry Jones.

Who is Perry Jones? If you ask that question, chances are you haven't been here very long. Sometime you may be driving the state highways locally and all of a sudden you see someone with a stop sign in his hand stopping traffic because of highway repairs. That person could be Perry Jones.

But for Jones, who works for the Kentucky Highway Department, that's just his day job. At night during the basketball season, Jones becomes an avid Wheelwright Trojan basketball fan.

"I have been following Wheelwright basketball this makes 31 years," the traffic director says. "I have seen a lot of players and coaches come and go."

Jones says that he began his "career" as a Trojan manager first by just sweeping the floor.

"Yeah, I started sweeping the floor and then I went to score keeping for them or anything the coaches wanted me to do."

Thirty-one years later? "I'm still sweeping the floors, keeping score and taking care of the equipment, uniforms and things. I still will do whatever Coach (Monroe) Jones wants me to do."

"I used to go to grade school," Jones relates, "and I quit and started following the Trojans and have been following them ever since."

Jones says if nothing happens this will be the 31st state tournament in a row that he has attended. He recalls one particular game that stands out more than the others.

"I saw the Newmaus boy, I can't remember his first name, from Lexington Dunbar shoot from the center court and beat Breathitt County in the finals."

Jones has fond memories of some of the great Wheelwright players that he has seen pass through the school. Names such as Bobby Vicars, Jody Sword, Forrest Lee Newsome, Randy Akers, Bud Lewis, Jeff Riley and Bruce Belcher just to name a few.

"I remember going to Georgia Tech and watching Jeff (Riley) play in college," said the Trojan faithful.

The two best players he has seen come out of the Left Beaver school were Jeff Riley and Jim Rose (who is coaching at Knott County Central).

Jones says that the biggest thrill in the 31 years at Wheelwright was when he was helping Frank Francis (county athletic director) and they went to the state tournament and Jones got to sit on the floor with the team in Freedom Hall.

Jones has seen several different coaches come to Wheelwright. Don Wallen, Francis, Jody Sword and Monroe Jones and Danny Johnson.

The style of play has not changed all that much, Jones says. "I like a more up tempo game myself," he explained. "But it's not like it was before. The game seems to be slower."

Jones says that it is anybody's district tournament even though he hasn't got to see all the teams this year. Jones wouldn't go out on a limb and pick a team. "I'm all Trojan," he said. He sees Magoffin County and Pikeville as regional favorites. Dark horse would be McDowell or Allen Central.

Players down through the years at Wheelwright have come to the lifetime manager and asked him for advice on different things.

"Even after the kids graduate, they still write me and I write back to them," remarked Jones. "I still go and watch them play ball in college if I can. I don't drive so I have to ride with their parents."

Jones has some advice for those in the lower grades anxious to make it in high school.

"Listen to your coaches," he said. "Do what your coaches tell you to do. There doesn't seem to be that much interest in basketball like there used to be. The Junior Pro league here at Wheelwright will be a big help."

Jones says a trip out to the University of Wyoming is in his immediate plans.

"I have a good friend, Benny Dees, who coaches at the University of Wyoming. I work for the highway department and I am going to the state tournament. Then I plan on going out and seeing Coach Dees."

Next year Jones plans on being on the scene cheering for the Trojans in their last year of existence. He says that he likes the consolidation of McDowell High School and Wheelwright.

"I think it is a good thing. I have been waiting a long time to see it happen," he says. "I'd love to see it."

Whether he is directing traffic or sweeping the gym floor, Perry Jones bleeds Trojan maroon. He has been faithful to the Wheelwright program for 31 years. Maybe someone in the school system in Wheelwright, before the last hurrah is shouted at the closing of the school, will get together a time of special recognition for a special Trojan Fan. Let's have a Perry Jones Day in Wheelwright.

Lady Rebels hope to avoid repeat of last year's tourney

In tonight's first game of the 58th District semifinals, the Allen Central Rebels match up against a hot McDowell team. The Lady Rebels will have thoughts of what took place in last year's district play. The Lady Daredevils handed the Lady Rebels a tournament setback after they had hopes of a district crown.

The Lady Rebs will place all their hopes on their tight zone defense and trapping full court pressure—something the Lady Devils have had trouble with.

Also weighing on the shoulders of coach Bonita Compton's team will be the performance of one Jo Ann Conn. The senior forward will be called on to exert herself in this one as it will be her last chance for a district championship.

Off the wings will be Teresa Gibson who seems to be playing with more confidence than in the earlier part of the year. Gibson is scoring more and is not afraid to take the three-point shot. As a matter of fact, she is looking to take it!

McDowell, playing the best basketball of the year for them, will bring a five-game winning streak into tonight's game against Allen Central. The Lady Daredevils finished the month of February with a 8-3 record and are already 1-0 in March. The Lady Daredevils seemed to struggle against Prestonsburg Wednesday night having times of playing well and times of loafing, offensively and defensively.

Shelby Howell was a bright spot for the McDowell team as she came off the bench to add some life to the Lady Devils' offense. Lori Bryant is playing well, as is Priscilla Crawford. Shooting the ball more, Crawford has kept a lot of teams' defense honest against the Lady Daredevils as they can no longer key against Bryant.

Allen Central won the two-game set during regular season play over McDowell, although coming from behind at home the last time the two teams met.

McDowell is going to have to be more consistent at the free throw line in order to win this one, for the Lady Rebels will surely put them there with their zone pressure. Mental mistakes must be overcome by the Lady Devils.

Allen Central must put together a complete game, two good halves, in order to take McDowell. Stacy Moore, if she plays, will have to be concerned with getting the ball inside to Conn. Staying out of foul trouble will also be the order of the day for Conn. Much depends on her presence on the floor for Allen Central. Good team chemistry is also a must.

Any time you play a team on a five-game streak, you have to be cautious. Game time tonight is 6:30 p.m. Come out and support the girls' basketball program. A good one is in store for those in attendance.

 Congratulations to Virgie Eagles coach Bobby Osborne on his 500th victory as Eagles coach. Osborne will most likely head up a new program at the Shelby Valley High School next season, but leaving Virgie High School will be tough. Coach Hoss Halbert can identify with that feeling after being at Martin for so long and seeing his school closed. The 500th victory was against Betsy Layne in overtime.

Hornets turn season around

The Magoffin County Hornets, under coach Danny Adams, have turned the basketball program in a completely opposite direction than it was going last year. Last year the Hornets lost 21 ball games; this year they are 22-5 and a contender for the 15th Region title.

Thompson to UK — official
 Since the last writing, Jody Thompson has officially announced that he will "walk on" at the University of Kentucky for next season basketball practice. We are glad to see this, however, we hope that it doesn't become a case where all available scholarships are spent before the real recruiting season. Never know when some unknown might emerge. Thompson will be a good addition to the UK team. One has to wonder if James Crutcher of Lexington Lafayette will make the same choice.

15TH Regional Tournament a little different

This year's 15th Regional boys tournament will be a little different from last season. Last year the boys' tournament was Wednesday through Saturday evenings and the girls started and finished on Monday/Tuesday nights. This year the boys will start on March 5 and 6, Monday and Tuesday, and finish on March 12 and 13 also a Monday and Tuesday night. The girls' regional at Elkhorn City will run Wednesday, March 7, through March 10. The girls' state tournament is scheduled for March 14 through 17. The boys' state tournament is set for March 21-March 24. The boys' regional will be played at Johnson Central.

Is it better to draw or seed?

A big question being asked in the 57th and 59th Districts is whether to draw at district tournament time or seed. To draw at tournament time means you take your chances on whom you will be paired against in the tournament. To seed is that the winner of the district conference race receives the number one seed, and the second place team gets the number two seed, etc.

Drawing for a district tournament can pit two of the district's top teams against each other and make for an exciting game. However, the danger is that it eliminates one of the top teams in the regional tournament. Cases in point are the 57th District and 59th Districts. In the 57th Johnson Central goes against Paintsville in the first game. One of those two teams does not make it to the regional tournament. (Johnson Central, it turns out.)

According to Johnson Central coach Alvin Ratliff, he prefers the seeding route. "It adds more meaning to your regular season schedule," he stated. "I am in favor of seeding the teams in district play. But it would take an unanimous vote to get it changed."

In the 59th District where Virgie and Pikeville faced each other last night, one team will not make it to the regional. And here we have two of the top three teams in the region, and one is not going to make it. That is taking away the excitement from the tournament.

According to reports, Pikeville and Virgie favored seeding in the 59th but Millard and Mullins favored the draw. Dorton, which will consolidate with Virgie next year, had no vote. It was a 2-2 vote and the draw stood.

during the conference schedule.

Parido guest speaker at MCA's banquet

MCA players

Mountain Christian Academy basketball players were honored recently at the team's annual basketball banquet. Guest speaker for the banquet was Prestonsburg head coach Gordon Parido. Harold Tackett is the team's coach, assisted by Mike Goins.

The Mountain Christian Academy held its annual athletic banquet Thursday night to honor the basketball players and cheerleaders for the past season.

Guest speaker at the MCA banquet was Prestonsburg head basketball coach Gordon Parido.

Opening prayer was led by Randy Burchett to open the festivities of the evening. School Dean James Bolen welcomed the big crowd that came out for the annual event and spoke of the difficult task that basketball coach Harold Tackett had undertaken.

"Harold took a situation where there was no basketball program and made a class act out of it," the school dean stated. "He receives all the honor for what has been done here. He was able to mold them as he wished and developed a program to be proud of."

After dinner, Eddie Campbell introduced Coach Parido as the guest speaker. Coach Parido began his address with a question, "Who wants to be a great basketball player?"

"There are very few great people at the game of basketball," Coach Parido told the captive audience. "There are 700,000 high school players in the United States and only 50 will be drafted by the NBA. That's a percentage of .0001."

Parido then related three goals that one must have in order to be a great player.

"You have to have a plan," he told the players. "And not every plan will work out so you must have a plan 'B'. Plan 'B' is an education. Not everyone is going to make it in basketball so you need an alternate plan."

Parido related to one of his own players, Chris Slone, who is averaging over 20 points a game and will have the opportunity to use basketball as a way to get an education in engineering.

"Chris, made basketball work for him," the Prestonsburg mentor said.

"The second goal is make a commitment," he said. "Commitments to practice, make sacrifices in avoiding drugs, alcohol. You can't get involved with these because it will affect the way you perform."

Parido related the story of former LSU star basketball player Pete Maravich who never got to play on a championship team. On one particular time in the NIT, Maravich and his team were in the finals of the NIT. The night before the finals, Maravich and some of his teammates slipped out of their motel rooms and bought a case of beer and partied all night. They lost the finals of the NIT because Maravich would not sacrifice for the team.

"The third goal is you cannot make excuses," he said, "because you are responsible for who you are when you grow up. You cannot use other people for what you are or what you become. There are no excuses."

The Prestonsburg coach encouraged the student players to come out and support their favorite team in the district tournament.

MCA assistant coach Mike Goins presented awards to the "B" team following Parido's speech.

"I want to thank all the parents who have helped out this year," Goins stated. "Our kids have gotten tougher during the year and I am proud of them."

Cheerleader sponsor Tammy Gray then presented the cheerleaders with their trophies, stating "what a great bunch of girls she had."

"We learned a lot this year," she said, "and made some mistakes. But we will be better next year."

Harold Tackett, head coach at MCA, came forth to present the boys basketball team with trophies.

"I am thankful that my wife let me come out and play," he said of his wife's support of his program. "She has been a great help to me. She has stood behind me all the way."

Tackett then went on to define the meaning of "winning".

"There are 700,000 high school players in the United States and only 50 will be drafted by the NBA. That's a percentage of .0001."
 Gordon Parido

"Winning means to succeed. We have succeeded here at MCA. It means to give for an effort. We have done that here at Mountain Christian Academy. It also means to please and delight. We have done that."

Tackett said that without the support of the parents the job would have been more difficult. "Without the parents there would be no MCA."

"This is not the close of a season, but the beginning of the next. This year we shook the rafters, next year we will take the roof off. I am looking to next year when we will be a lot stronger and we're on our way."

Plaques were presented to Tackett and Goins in appreciation for their contributions to the basketball program. Gray also was presented a plaque.

For the MCA "A" team, John Baca and Brandon Moore was picked as the Co-Most Valuable Players. Daniel Risner received the award for the "B" team. 110 percent awards went to Joseph Risner on the "A" team, and John Burchett and Stan Goings were co-reipients of the award on the "B" team.

Most improved trophies went to Joey Bailey, Chris Cornette and Josh Lowe. Matt Crum and Joe Campbell received the leadership awards.

KY MAY GET HELP TO PRESERVE NATURAL AREAS

The state legislature is considering a bill to help preserve Kentucky's natural areas and provide more public outdoor recreation sites.

If passed, the Kentucky Heritage Land Conservation Fund, administered by a seven-member board, would allow state agencies to purchase land from willing sellers for wildlife management areas, wetlands, nature preserves, state parks and forests and outdoor recreation/education areas.

Fund monies will come from an increase in the existing land transfer fee which all property sellers pay in Kentucky. The increase would double the current fee (to $1 per $1,000 of property value). Potentially, the land conservation fund could receive as much as $5 million annually to help meet the increasing demand for additional outdoor recreational areas for public use.

Compared to surrounding states, Kentucky is about one million acres behind when it comes to providing wildlife recreation areas for its residents to enjoy. In fact each Kentucky resident has less than .03 of an acre of public lands for outdoor recreation. And as Kentucky continues to grow in economic development, bringing more industries and more people into the state, the demand for quality recreational opportunities keeps escalating.

Currently, no source of money is available capable of funding the kind of land acquisition program needed to provide these recreational opportunities and protect Kentucky's remaining wetlands and natural areas.

The Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources is the primary state agency that purchases land for wildlife conservation and recreation. The agency is funded by hunting and fishing license sales plus some federal monies (related to sports license sales); it receives no general fund tax dollars. This means sportsmen carry the entire cost of operating the fish and wildlife department, an agency whose programs benefit all Kentuckians — not just sportsmen.

The point is the fish and wildlife department has limited dollars to spend on all of its programs, including land acquisition. The agency has identified close to $100 million worth of waterfowl habitat that needs to be set aside for conservation purposes, but these land areas may be lost (converted to agricultural or industrial purposes) before they can be purchased.

All Kentuckians, especially outdoor recreationists, will reap the benefits of the Kentucky Heritage Land Conservation Fund, which in addition to setting aside wetlands and unique habitat areas that support rare and endangered species, will help preserve what's left of the state's once bountiful natural areas.

Consider these facts: Kentucky once had 23 million acres of forest, over two million acres of prairie and 1.6 million acres of wetlands.

Currently, less than half of Kentucky's original forest remains and only 200 acres of scattered and degraded prairie are left. Only 20 percent of the state's wetlands remain to soak up and filter flood waters and provide homes for various plants and animals.

Kentuckians cannot allow this trend to continue. We must achieve a balance between industrial/population growth and the preservation of Kentucky's natural areas, not only for ourselves but for future generations to enjoy.

For more information on the current status of public wildlife recreation lands in Kentucky, contact your district wildlife biologist or any wildlife management area supervisor with the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. You may also call the fish and wildlife department's wildlife division, 502-564-4406, or the public relations division, 502-564-4336 for more information.

against Betsy Layne. The middle is set with underrated Kevin Adams in the middle.

McDowell has proven it can play with anyone in the district as the only team to have beaten each county opponent at least once. The Daredevils, the number two seed in the tournament, will try to counter the strong play of Slone with their own "dynamic duo" of the Hall Brothers (no, not the ones you are thinking about), Stacy and Marc. Marc Hall is averaging right at 20 points per game. Stacy owns a 18.9 points per game average.

This has all the markings of a close one. There will be a lot of scoring in this one with both teams thinking of last season's tournament. Game time is 8 p.m. See you there!

Block that shot

This block attempt by Lori Bryant (51) of McDowell of Carolyn Reffitt's shot was fruitless. Bryant had 21 points to lead the Lady Daredevils to a 53-48 win over Prestonsburg in the first game of the 58th District tournament at Allen Central.

Baseball owners, players cheating hard ball fans

I like the photograph on the sports page of Tuesday's Courier-Journal where it showed a fan sitting on the tail gate of his truck, holding a sign that said, "The owners get the mine, the players get the gold and the fans get the shaft."

That really describes, in a nutshell, the ones who are left out come baseball season. I remember back in the '50s and '60s that no such threat was thought of. The baseball was not held in jeopardy because of some haggling over contracts. You could count on spring training starting on time, the season opener at Cincinnati on time.

Arbitration and free agency have ruined the game that millions of fans have enjoyed for decades. Baseball players are spoiled, greedy people and the owners equally as stingy.

The owners get the mines. They have the resources to produce the big bucks. The owners' mines are very dependent on the market, the fans. One columnist called for the year the "fan" would get his revenge. This could be that year. Let the fans go on strike!

The players get the gold. Reaping more money than they have ever seen and probably would ever see at any other occupation, the players are still wanting more. The President of the United States doesn't make the money the players get. They certainly do get the gold! I find it hard to sympathize with the players. I have tried to. Really I have. But I just can't bring myself to feel sorry of this group of leeches.

One thing that turned me against the players in past years was a statement that Larry Bowa, then shortstop for the Philadelphia Phillies, said when the Phillies signed then free agent Pete Rose. "We have a spot reserved for you on millionaires row."

Now you know and I know that millionaires need no financial sympathy. I can sympathize with them if they are sick. If they have family problems, I can sympathize with that. But I refuse to sympathize with the ones who are getting all the gold.

The fans get the shaft! I can sympathize with this group because I am one of them; so are many of you. Who pays the players salaries? The fan. Who puts the big bucks into the owners' mines? The fan. Who is being deprived of America's favorite pastime? The fan. You! Me! Who is getting the shaft? The fan!

Sometimes I think the representatives for each party are a lot to blame for the mess the sport is in. Donald Fehr, the players union chief, and management representative Chuck O'Connor could, if they wanted, settle this sour situation quickly.

I, for one, am tired that every three years we (fans) have to go through this. I am beginning to like high school, little league and, yes, pee wee baseball more than Major League Baseball. The admission is free and there are no overinflated prices to worry about.

Now once this scenario is settled, both sides are going to come to us (the fans) and tell us (the fans) how sorry they were for interrupting our (the fans) season. And they will hope that we (the fan) will forgive them and come back out and play with them. The owners who have the mines and the players who have the gold will continue to give the fans the shaft.

Baseball season — I can't wait! I know it is still basketball time and the tournaments are just getting underway, but I somehow can't wait till the bats start cracking and the gloves pop with the sound of baseballs. I suppose I think that by writing about baseball it will hasten the season.

Last year the high school season got underway on March 28. I remember walking out of the newspaper office heading to Allen Park to cover the game between Allen Central and Johns Creek. The temperature was 82 degrees and not a cloud in the skies.

It was rough, but someone had to do it. It was great!

Last of this month the high school season will get underway and we will be there to bring you the stories of all the games.

A little dippy-do

Adam Gearheart of Betsy Layne flips in this shot over the outstretched arms of John Clark of Prestonsburg. Gearheart had 12 points in his team's 51-49 loss to Prestonsburg.

Prestonsburg Intramural League

BOYS Red vs Black

Chad Caldwell poured in 35 points as the Red team defeated the Black team, 71-62. Bret James added 18 points in the win. Dwayne Garza and Kevin Vaughn tossed in five points each. John Stout scored four points while Jody Cornette and Matt Trusty netted two.

Jason Spencer tied Caldwell for game scoring honors with 35 points also for the Black team. Teammate Nathan Johnson had 13 points and Greg Jones tossed in 12. James Dixon scored two.

White vs Gold

Ashland Gearheart's white team remained undefeated in intramural play as squeezing out a 72-70 win over Gordie Ratliff's Gold team. The White team led most of the game until the final minutes when the Gold team made a run that fell short.

David Gearheart had 30 points to lead the White team. C.D. Poston posted 14 and Seth Hyden hit for 12. Martin Newberry had 10 and James Joseph netted six.

The Gold team was led by Thomas Ratliff's 28 points. Mike Goble tallied 22. Eight points were scored by Brian Allen and Tom Wallen, while Jason Blackburn had four.

The U.S. is the country with the greatest gold reserve.

HOROSCOPE

March 4 through March 10

By C.C. Clark

PISCES (February 19 - March 20)

With a clear direction in mind, you can polish your talents and rise above minor upsets. Explore that which is unusual; open your mind to new ideas or technology.

ARIES (March 21 - April 19)

When tempted along a wrong path, remember who you are and what is important to you. Total avoidance of all unfamiliar areas leads to its own dangers, however.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20)

Watch yourself at work this week. You could make a major mistake if you don't check things carefully. Don't let the foolhardy distract you even when bored and alone.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20)

Hard work has earned you the right to coast once in a while. Keep an open mind; by listening carefully, you can achieve worldwide understanding.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22)

Always be fair and generous concerning the needs of those who are loyal to you. You will always have that happy place where family gathers.

LEO (July 23 - August 22)

Give your friends and partners credit for their brilliance. Remember that pain is not only tragic, but can also be an opportunity for positive growth.

VIRGO (August 23 - September 22)

Divide your loyalties carefully. You'll feel like you're walking a thin line. Be realistic; recognize limitations, distances, loves and selfishness.

LIBRA (September 23 - October 22)

Stay with techniques and rules with which you built your career. It is normal to be sad over losses; recognize those feelings and then look toward what you treasure.

SCORPIO (October 23 - November 21)

Intuition and good advice will get you where you want to go. Before getting angry, ask to hear things explained. Patience runs thin, but try to remain calm.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 - December 21)

It is through stimulating conversation that you will realize new ideas and knowledge. Calculate carefully before spending money. Hold off on frills.

CAPRICORN (December 22 - January 19)

Resentments will undermine and ultimately destroy the dreams for your future. Disagreements do not have to be heated to successfully express your point of view.

AQUARIUS (January 20 - February 18)

You are at your best when you are loyal, responsible and loving to your friends. With changes in family or friends, think first not of your own welfare.

TV PIPELINE

Was it David Naughton who wanted to be a Pepper?

By Polly Vonetes
 Q: Please settle an ongoing dispute between my brother-in-law and me. Who did the Dr. Pepper "I'm a Pepper..." commercial, Barry Williams or David Naughton? If it was David Naughton, besides Sister Sam were there any other TV series he was in?
 —Carol Nagi, Mantca, Calif.

David Naughton

A: You didn't mention if you had picked David Naughton as the lively "Pepper" in that famous commercial, but if you did, you win! Naughton's television credits include Makin' It and he also recorded the title song. He appeared in the television movies I, Desire and Getting Physical. His feature film roles include An American Werewolf in London, Other Side of Victory, Midnight Madness, Hot Dog: The Movie and Separate Vacations.

Q: I keep hoping for reruns of a TV series that ran in the late '60s, I believe it was called The Great American Adventure. It told the life story of people like Wild Bill Hickok and Buffalo Bill Cody and was very accurate. Can you tell me anything about this series and if it is being played anywhere now?
 —Ernie Gottschalk, Vale, S.D.

A: The series, called The Great Adventure, premiered on CBS on Sept. 24, 1963 and aired for about a year. Van Heflin hosted the series, which was produced by the late John Houseman. All of the plays were historically accurate and produced with the cooperation and assistance of the National Education Association. I have not heard about or seen this series listed on any schedules for quite a while. Call your local channels for information on its availability in your area.

Q: Could you please give me some information on Lou

Diamond Phillips? His birthday, marital status and movies he's made? —Tara Russell, Galva, Kan.

A: Lou Diamond Phillips was born in 1962 in Subic Bay, Philippines, to an American Navy man and a Filipino mother. He grew up mostly in Corpus Christi, Texas, where he graduated from Flour Bluff High School. He is a graduate of the University of Texas. He was married to Julie Cyphers on June 27, 1987. His theatrical movies include Disorganized Crime, Dakota, La Bamba, Stand and Deliver, Young Guns, Waiting for Salazar, Lakota, Angel Alley, Trespases and Walking on Water. His TV movies are The Three Kings and Time Bomb. When not acting, Lou spends his time writing. He has several scripts in development. He and his wife make their home in Laurel Canyon, Calif.

Clark students tour HRMC department

Clark Elementary seventh graders learned about cancerous lung tumors and lungs diseased by emphysema and black lung when they toured the respiratory therapy department at Highlands Regional Medical Center, Tuesday, Feb. 20.

Raghu Sundaram, MC, board certified internist and medical director of Highlands' respiratory therapy department, presented an educational program for the students on the lung and damaging effects to lung tissue resulting from smoking cigarettes.

Dr. Sundaram showed the students sections of diseased lungs that had been surgically removed from patients having lung cancer. He explained that air capacity in the lung also decreases proportionately to the amount of cigarettes smoked over a period of time, thereby causing an increase and sometimes debilitating shortness of breath.

Students also learned about a diagnostic test for lung disorders known as Pulmonary Function Test. This diagnostic procedure measures lung volumes and indicates restrictive/obstructive lung disorders such as asthma, bronchitis and emphysema.

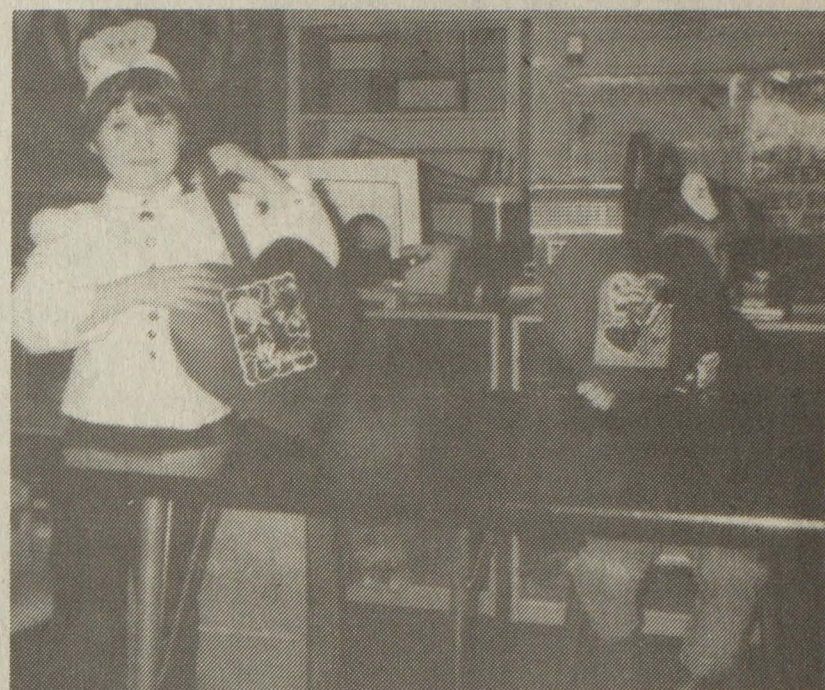

It can also detect early airway disease related to cigarette smoking or certain work associated disorders.

As part of its community service program, Highlands hosts tours of the Medical Center for schools or other civic organizations. For further information call HRMC's Public Relations department at 886-8511 or 789-6548, ext. 286.

Learning about the lung

Footprints to the heart

Mapping it out

Local businessman hosts amateur radio class

Terry Stewart, a physical science teacher at Betsy Layne High School, is teaching a novice amateur radio class as part of the science curriculum. Amateur radio is a hobby involving communication and electronic skills.

Just recently, 41 students, Stewart and former teacher Thelma Spears were treated to a field trip to Tel-Com Inc., WPRG Channel 5 Television, and Harold Telephone Company facilities.

President Paul R. Gearheart began the tour by showing the class a huge wall map which he used in pointing out the vast cable system of the region serviced by the companies. He discussed with the class such subjects as sunspot cycles, microwave repeaters and job opportunities about which the students asked many questions.

Afterwards, Dr. Don, a communications professional at WPRG, took the class on a tour of the radio studio where he and some students made a commercial using the "cart" machine to be aired on Channel 5 Radio.

Then, Dr. Don and Kathy Newsome demonstrated video mixing, tape editing, and computer message generation in the Video Mixing Studio. In the grand finale, the students made a video (which was later aired on Channel 5 TV), while Gearheart personally guided Stewart and Spears through the main central office switching station which houses all of the high technological equipment that provides telephone service to the area.

Stewart said, "I didn't realize we had such a complex communication facility so close to home."

Senior student Doug Martin said, "It was some good trip. I'd like to go again!"

The class was appreciative to Paul Gearheart, Dr. Don and Kathy Newsome for their help.

The tour was filmed and will be aired on Channel 5 TV, Tuesday, March 6 at 3 p.m.
