

Something for everyone at Festival of FACES

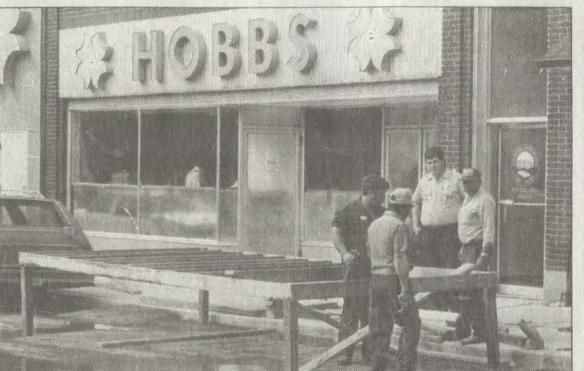

by Tess A. Whitmer Assistant Editor The second annual Festival of FACES began last night with several different activities, including the crowning of the Festival Queen, Ginger Howard of Prestonsburg High School. The acronym FACES stands for Family, Arts, Culture, Education and Spring, and all phases of the theme are being hit through Sunday. Many new events have been added to this year's agenda.

Five young women from the county high schools vied for the crown of queen last night. Also in-cluded in the crowning program was the all-county band concert and presentation of student art awards. The art work of area students will be on display at the old Hobbs building in downtown Prestonsburg today and tomorrow during the festival.

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY The "Arts" portion of this event is also played out through local merchants selling their handmade wares all day Friday and Saturday at crafts booths set up in the Richmond Plaza, Prestonsburg (by the First Baptist Church). About 15 craftspersons from Eastern Kentucky will be featured among numerous food booths run by non-profit organizations.

A new feature of the festival is the Golf Tournaments taking place at Allen Golf Course on Friday and at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park on Saturday. Both competitions begin at8a.m. and again at 2 p.m. with the winner in each of the four divisions receiving a set of irons. The runner up will get a set of woods, with

If the dream of this year's Grand Marshall of the Festival of FACES parade comes true, then every day will be a festival in Floyd County.

Billie Jean Osborne, known throughout the area for her own musical talents as well as for her ability to mold young musicians, is getting closer to realizing her dream of a musical training ground and showcase for area youth FACES Festival participants are getting an indication of what she means this weekend as Osborne parades the musicians she has brought together from throughout the county schools.

She'll take that a step further this summer with a program in music and drama education through Prestonsburg Community College. If her plans succeed, the 30-year veteran music teacher will put together a cooperative effort with Floyd County Schools to create a countywide music education program that will also serve as a tourist attraction for the Big Sandy region. Under the auspices of her nonprofit corporation, Kentucky Opry, Osborne will initiate a music and drama program that will incorporate the county schools. The program, she perform and where big name enterainers can also be seen in concert.

The latter component is by no means far-fetched, since Osborne financed much of her music program at Betsy Layne High School through bringing professional entertainers to perform concerts at the Betsy Layne Fieldhouse.

Among those she has attracted over the years are Conway Twitty, George Jones, Ronnie Milsap, Sawyer Brown, Loretta Lynn, Hank Wiliams Jr., Ricky Skaggs, Keith Whitley and T. Graham Brown.

She has also developed a special relationship with singer Dwight Yoakam, whose family is originally from the Betsy Layne area and who has appeared in concert locally at her behest.

"Dwight said 'Billie, I'll do any-thing to help you that I can," she says of the popular country singer. "He is still upset over the way CBS used him in its '48 Hours' program."

(Parts of an interview with Yoakam and one of his songs were used in a December program that focused on many negative issues in Floyd County.)

Osborne's proposal also has the blessing of Floyd County School Superintendent Ron Hager and Board of Education chairman Dr. James Adams. The two have applied for funding from the state Department of Education for this summer's initial phase of the program.

"It is our strong feeling that this program can regenerate a positive, upbeat spirit throughout the Floyd County System," the two stated in their request for funding.

Osborne is also working with staff the Big Sandy Area Development District to explore other avenues of funding for the total project. This summer's initial phase will include countywide auditions and the presentation of a musical production, called "Fabric of Freedom." group like this," she says.

A multi-talented musician who has performed for US presidents, Osborne projects she needs a half-million dolars to be in a position to seek matching funds from corporate and government sources to get the facility started. She is currently exploring funding from a number of sources.

"When I first approached the people at Big Sandy ADD, I told them If you think I should go home and knit, just tell me," she recalls. "But they agreed that the project is worth pursuing and agreed to help.

Although most of her dream is still just that, Osborne is determined to continue dreaming until the vision is a reality. "I would like to think that in the near future we have the possibility of something great to offer our area. I would like to think that within the next four years, when US 23's four-lane project is completed that the (tour) buses won't just be passing through, but will be making reservations to fill our motels because we have something here worth spending their time and money," she explains.

"My main aim is to give the young people in Eastern Kentucky an opportunity to develop their God-given talents, to further their education and to develop pride in their native homeland, as well as boost the economy of the region," she adds.

"I tried to get back in there to get the truck and some other stuff," said Jarvey Meade, "but by the time I got the car out of the way the whole roof was burn-

"I don't see why we should have to (pay subsciption) when we pay city taxes and have city utilities. There is even a fire hydrant right next door."

Meade said that a second call was placed to the Middle Creek Fire Department, but the family was told that Stumbo Hollow is out of the Middle Creek fire district.

Jarvey Meade stated that the family's home, located only 10 feet from the garage, would have also caught fire if members of a local ambulance service had not lent a hand.

"I have to say thanks to Robbie Joseph, Kevin Slone and Dennis Hammonds of P&B Ambulance," Jarvey Meade said. "They used the small fire extinguisher in their ambu-lance to keep the house from going up in smoke."

Then, when the big to-do come, well, it was all sham. There was a girl walking through the big doings and someone said, We got a lot of men want to see you, and she replied, Well, just tie 'em up, I'll see 'em after a while.'

In response to the family's allegations, Prestonsburg Fire Chief Tom Blackburn explained that the Meade home was not listed as having a fire subscription and is not covered by city fire services. Blackburn said that the home is not in the city limits and that the fire plug near the house does not belong to the city.

There is an ordinance on the city books," said Blackburn, "that states that this department is not to respond to a fire at a home with no subscription for fire services."

Other firefighters added that 500 gallons of water was applied to the ire, in spite of the fact that the home was not covered by Prestonsburg fire service.

Wayland Board calls special meeting

A special meeting of the Wayland Town Board has been scheduled for tonight (Friday) at 7 p.m. at the Town Hall

Purpose of the meeting is to discuss hiring of a new police officer, according to Mayor Hobert Webb.

The move follows the resignation of Mack Stewart, who has resigned to take a position with the Prestonsburg Police Department, Webb said.

Persons interesting in applying for the position may call Webb at 358-3361, or write him at Box 216, Wayland 41666.

house to the family that had lived in it the longest. Jerry Fultz's folks paid $2,200. Mayor Patty Murphy, who cooperated so unstintingly in helping me gather the data for this work, said.

"We own the house and one inch of top soil. Elk Horn owns all mineral rights, everything under the top soil. There are restrictions in the deeds, no businesses may be established for 25 years.'

Nora Jean remembers, "The house rent in the duplexes was $8 a month; but the rent in the house we lived in for so long (1505 Stamper's Branch) was $13 a month. When I was 15 years old (1950), the company started selling the houses. Dad bought ours for $1,000. I was sent to town with the last $50 payment. The company sold the houses, they said, because the mine was 'working out' (most of the coal had been removed)."

Pride of ownership almost killed Nora Jean's father:

Dad used a mule and a flat sled to cut limestone and carry it out of the holler to make a stone foundation and concrete steps to our house. He did it one summer and worked full time at the mine. The mule fell dead; Dad had a heart attack! But, it was now our house."

"Two years," Charley Murphy advised, "after Elk Horn sold $7 million in stock, they went into receivership. The stockholders were left holding nothing but thin air. They sold the jail, the post office, the service station and two lots - all at auction."

REPRESENTATIVE Gregory D. Stumbo

For the past 10 years Representative Gregory D. Stumbo has fought in Frankfort to improve the quality of life for the people in his district. He asks us to re-elect him because his qualifications and convictions enable him to adequately protect our interests.

As an attorney he is able to understand the laws that he is asked to vote on. His record of leadership is clear. He believes that public officials should be for new ideas and concepts and not seek office just to be against things.

> A Dream + A Plan = A RoadRep. Stumbo to Sec. Milo Bryant at John M. Stumbo School

ROADS

In 1986, Representative Stumbo sponsored legislation that more than doubled the amount of money spent to repair, maintain and upgrade our state and county roads. The construction of U.S. 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville will begin this year, and the first leg of the Garrett to Harold road is funded in Representative Stumbo's bill at a cost of 11 million dollars.

Resurfacing has already begun and passing lanes for 979 are in the works. Dangerous curves on Route 122 are being removed due to Representative Stumbo's efforts.

For over 40 years the people on Left Beaver and Mud Creek have not had anything done to improve their roads. I'm going to build a road from Garrett to Harold. We've paid enough in severence taxes to pave it in gold, he told Speaker Blandford.

In 1990 the state budget has 11 million dollars allocated for the first leg of that road.

President Lyndon Johnson once said, Any damn fool mule can kick a barn door down, bu you'll never see one who can hold a hammer. That's Representative Stumbo's philosophy.

In 1985, Greg Stumbo proved to us that his ideas work. He became the Majority Floor Leader of the House of Representatives, the highest ranking Eastern Kentuckian to hold an elected office in Frankfort since Governor Bert Combs.

If you don't believe that Leadership makes a difference, just look around and see the progress.

> Our children are entitled to an equal education. Rep. Greg Stumbo Floor Speech March 29, 1990

EDUCATION

Representative Stumbo truly believes that our children are the future. His record on Education has earned him state and national recognition. He sponsored, in 1985, the reform act that increased teachers' salaries, reduced classroom size and built our new schools.

I believe every child in Floyd County should go to class in a well lit, well ventilated classroom with modern instructional material, he told his collegues in Frankfort. They listened.

But the culmination of his dreams occurred with the passage of the Education Reform Act which he sponsored in the 1990 General Assembly. That legislation ensures that every child in Kentucky receives an equal educational opportunity. Greg Stumbo led the battle for children in rural Kentucky and the victory is that there will be more new schools built, more equal opportunities, and modern technology available for every child in Kentucky.

The East Kentucky Jobs Creation Authority sponsored by Rep. Greg Stumbo will be the salvation of the mountains. Speaker Don Blanford

JOBS

In 1988, Representative Stumbo supported the Economic Development Relief Act which has led to the establishment of over 300 new jobs in our area. In 1990, he sponsored the East Kentucky Jobs Creation Authority which is designed to use state and private money to diversify our economy.

"Every Floyd Countian deserves a decent job at decent wages," he said. He has been a friend to the working people of his district and endorsed UMWA * AFL-CIO

KEA * TEAMSTERS * FIREFIGHTERS FRATERNAL ORDER OF POLICE

On May 29, you will have the opportunity to grade this record. If you believe that roads, education and jobs, as outlined here, are important, and that Representative Greg Stumbo has done a good job, then cast your vote to re-elect him. He'd rather hold a hammer than kick a door.

Pre-election time is an interesting time for us aging cynics who long ago ceased to be impressed by those who spend piles of money and are wiling to say whatever they think we want to hear just to win public office.

Most of us were not always so easily put off by the political pandering.

I remember a Paintsville grade school class (third or fourth) where Sharon Castle and I were the only students who wore Adlai Stevenson buttons. Carrying our family ideology with us, we were passionate in our opposition to I-like-Ike-ers, more than a decade before we could vote.

I was enamored of JFK, and I fer-vently believed in Lyndon Johnson's stand on civil rights, even if bothered by some of his other views. I remember standing in the rain for 30 minutes at a small Georgia polling place in the early '70s to vote for George McGovern - or was it Eugene Mc-Carthy. (They start to run together in memory.)

In Pennsylvania I was drawn to an articulate steel worker who won a seat in Congress from my district. He seemed to symbolize the systembucker. But he chose not to run for a second term after seeing the unbuckable system up close. He retreated to the steel mill where union politics seemed tame in comparison.

The last time I truly felt passionate about a political campaign was when Jimmy Carter made his second bid for the presidency. I believed - and still believe—so strongly in the man's integrity and sense of ethics. His straightforward assessment of the national malaise proved prophetic.

Alas, Americans wanted surface thrills, wanted to believe that the national deficit would just go away, wanted to "feel good" surrounded by glitz, wanted to be fooled by the fool's gold. We tried desperately to convince ourselves that the emperor was wearing clothes

Oh, I still vote, but it's that cynical, jaundiced eye I cast at the ballot. I'm rather disappointed at having lost my illusions — in the vernacular of my day, at having lost the faith.

In this business, events occur almost daily where politicians attempt to use -- and abuse -- the media. Those who normally send one missal a month — or much less — now send them twice a week. Those who previously communicated once a week now do so almost daily, I can't forget that's my money they're using — and yours.

Note the frequency with which Frankfort politicos fly in these days, always with commendations for local candidates. Their public relations people call ahead to make sure the media are out in force, as if an end to poverty were going to be announced. It only takes the exchange of a sen-tence or two to realize the "front men" have no inkling of where Floyd County is, let alone what its problems are or who its people really are.

By Pam Shingler

The parade of those testing the waters for statewide office would be amusing, if not so sad. It's as if they've discovered Eastern Kentucky after a lifetime of not knowing it exists. With some, the uneasiness and the ignorance are laughable. I'm torn between the need to be polite, the desire to be rude and the impulse to ridicule.

In all the hoopla, the dilemma for the media person - the ones who still care-is how to share with readers, viewers or listeners the behind the scenes machinations, and still be fair. For all of us in this business, the dilemma quickens with the knowledge of how closely aligned are power and money and the subsequent ability to avenge.

Equally daunting is the task of nurturing that ray of hope that, too often, gets buried under the cynicism. Every so often, we run into someone who buoys us by assuring that there are voters out there who are getting tired of tired political messages, who are sensing that the facade they're generally shown by political practitioners is just that, a facade like the ones on old Hollywood sets where there's nothing behind the deceptive front

I hope the number is growing of those voters who are looking at the big pictures, of those who look beyond their own pocketbooks or their own pot-holed road, and are looking at what is good for all of Floyd County, for all of Eastern Kentucky, for all of Kentucky, for all of the country.

I hope there are some political hopefuls who share that hope. Perhaps some of my cynicism would abate if I could see some real evidence that those in office and those who want to be in are truly working for the greater good of their constituents. I'd like to believe there are some who are running for reasons other than their overwhelming ego, their lust for power or their desire for the monetary gain that too often comes with being in the midst of the dealmaking.

I'd just love to believe in someone who's more concerned with integrity, ethics and doing the right thing than with being reelected.

And, more than anything, I hope that I'm not alone

Criticizes Representative

Dear Editor,

The voters of Floyd County have an opportunity of a lifetime on May 29. They can vote a politician out of office because he has not been a man of his word.

Rep. Greg Stumbo has pulled so many dirty tricks in Frankfort that I am not sure where to begin, so let me give you two examples.

As the current law stands, an oil or gas driller (if they own or lease the mineral rights) can come on your property without your permission and start to drill. They can tear up about a problem. She gave me help whenever I needed it. And she was there the day I took my big GED test, cheering me on. She is a great teacher and knows her way around the education field.

Don't misunderstand me, she taughtmany other students also when I attended her class. But Patmanaged enough time to spend with each of us. I just want to say "Thanks, Pat" and if you are an older person, (such as I am) and think you are too old to go back to school, give Pat and the David School's GED classes a chance. You'll find outit's notas hard as you thought. -Beulah Newsome

Most of the people in upper Left Beaver area go to Pikeville to shop or eat out. The reason being they hate to drive down 122. This is taking money out of Floyd County. Why can't plans be changed and give us thousands of voters a good highway to and from Wheelwright, Melvin and the new

If the leaders we now have can't get us what we want, then I say it's time to get new leaders. And what we want is a four-lane up 122.

Doris Osborne was right when she said we had two Kentuckys. May I add we also have two Floyd counties and it looks like the Left Beaver sec-tion is a forgotten world. your land, and you can't say a word about it!

There was a bill introduced this year by Rep. Clayton Little of Pike County to protect the landowner. What did Greg Stumbo do? Since he helps to assign bills to the various committees, he was part of a dirty deal that sent the bill to the Energy Committee where the chair of that committee had absolutely no intention of every dealing with the matter. The Energy Committee chair just sat on it. Even though Stumbo says he is for the landowner, he was one of the chief engineers in killing the bill and giving up landowners' rights.

As you know, Kentucky is getting bombarded with out-of-state waste. A proposal was presented to the legislature to give counties more say about whose garbage will go in landfills, and whose garbage (like from the East Coast) would not go in our landfills. The measure, known as the "solid waste local control" bill, passed the Senate 36-1. Yes, 36-1.

It went to the House, and again, Greg Stumbo was one of the engineers in killing the bill. How good is Stumbo's word? Not very good. He assured many people that the bill would get a vote on the House floor. All that was asked of him was to let democracy work. Instead, he made sure democracy never happened, and the bill was never voted on.

I just wish I was a registered voter in Floyd County so I could vote against him. I hope you readers will do me (I'm in Leslie County) — and lots of others throughout the state -a favor and tell Stumbo we have had enough of his dirty tricks. He plays to the tune of the big industry, and we don't need that.

Kudos for GED teacher

Dear Editor,

I am writing this letter, in hopes that you'll printit. It's about one great GED teacher. I'm not sure of her last name, but her first name is Pat, she teaches a GED class at Mountain Comprehensive Care Center in Martin for the David School on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

I'm a 39-year-old mom and grandmother, I gave up on getting my high school diploma years ago. Steve Wright sent me to Pat to be tested. I started her class to get my GED back in February. She was patient, she trucks, and, may I add, no passing explained what I didn't understand lanes

Praise for choir Dear Editor

Recently it was our pleasure to host Prestonsburg High School and their director Elizabeth Frazier at the Daytona Beach Festival of Music. We realize that often young people and their adult leadership do not receive the recognition they deserve and we would like to help remedy this situation Rest assured that these students represented Prestonsburg High School in the best possible fashion, both in performance and individual behavior. We know this is a result of the high expectations set by the parents and the community, Prestonsburg High School and Elizabeth Frazier. We wanted everyone in your area to know that these students displayed a model example as your traveling ambassadors.

Please help us acknowledge the accomplishments of these young people and their parents. With the myriad of problems the young people of today are exposed to, it is refreshing, to say the least, to find kids and parents like those associated with Prestonsburg High School. Ron Hager, Robert May, Elizabeth Frazier and the community as a whole can be extremely proud of them all. Bravo for a job well done!

Prestonsburg High School is most assuredly welcome in Daytona Beach any time.

Believes KY 122 should be priority Dear Editor,

We are hearing talk today of a four-lane highway from Minnie to Garrett. What poor planning this is from the leaders in Frankfort. They should think about what I am writing. It is about 15 miles from Melvin or Wheelwright to Minnie. At Minnie we will get on a four-lane to Carrett, I heard; it would be 14 miles from Garrett to Prestonsburg which means a trip from Wheelwright will be 47 miles

The money that will be wasted on a four-lane from Garrett to Minnie should be spent on a four-lane up 122. It takes forever to drive from Wheelwright to Martin. Because of 25 miles an hour drivers and coal

They can resurface 122 all they want to and it will still be a slow trip to Martin. We always hear big talk at

Well, Cow-A-Bonga, Dudes! Have the Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles had an impact on one or more of your children?

They seem to be a daily topic in our household. A couple of weekends ago, my daughters and I were on our way tow Paintsville to see my brother and his date off to the prom.

We're driving along listening to the radio when, lo and behold, this guy comes on and says "Michelangelo" will be at this grand opening in Auxier. My ears were pierced from the screams of my six-year-old. "GO TO AUXIÉR, GO TO

AUXIER," she's shrilling in my ear. "MICHELANGELO, MOMMIE, MICHELANGELO."

So to stop my head from splitting I headed toward Auxier instead of taking my usual Abbott Mountain route. Off to find this place with this Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtle standing in front.

As we approach the business, my car slowly coming to a stop, my daughter had her seat belt off, door unlocked and was out the door dashing off toward this tall, green character yelling "Cow-A-Bonga, Dude!" I stood back in amazement. This child was thrilled to no end to come face to stomach with this large, green thing.

My mind was racing, wondering what happened to Barbie, or dolls that cry, walk and wet. Not for my daughter, no way. This is the '90s, move over Barbie, here comes the Turtle Craze.

With "Operation Grab" in effect, officers from the ABC offices out of Frankfort grabbed two juveniles who were trying to purchase alcoholic beverages at the County Line Liquor Store between the Floyd - Johnson county lines.

One female wouldbe purchaser tried to pass off a false driver's license when ask for proper identification. ### Co-dependency workshop May 25

A workshop on healing of codependency is set for Friday, May 25, at the Holiday Inn, Prestonsburg. Mental health counselor Maudie Peterson of Salem, Ore., will present the workshop, focusing on the recovery/healing of co-dependents.

Co-dependency is a learned pattern of behavior, feelings and beliefs that make life painful. These patterns are learned in childhood, when a child has to give up self in order to survive. Co-dependents have no real sense of who they are even in adulthood. They get validation and selfworth by being what others want them to be. They are caretakers, by taking care of everyone else, except themselves.

Some of the characteristics of codependency are feeling empty, lonely, helpless and unloved; taking care of others and only feeling worthwhile when needed by others; feeling confused about what is wanted out of life; getting into harmful relationships with alcoholics or abusive persons, and staying in these relationships even when harmful physically, mentally and emotionally.

MACED launches project to involve more citizens in government

The Mountain Association for the greatest number of people, new Community Economic Development (MACED) is launching a project which will involve a large number of Kentuckians in formulating ideas for a plan to make local governments more responsive to the needs and wishes of all the citizens they represent

The Kentucky Local Governance Project will address the problem that many people in Kentucky have no influence in their communities in matters which directly affect them. It will be co-directed by Don Harker, former director of the state's Division of Waste Management.

The participation of more citizens in local government will bring greater economic benefits to the state as a whole," said Frank Taylor, president of MACED. "It will result in more new roads and infrastructure being located where they can serve factories being the ones that both create the new jobs we need while also protecting the environment, and the people hired to teach our children and run our schools being the ones most qualified for the job.

The Project will provide a public forum for deliberating and answer-ing questions such as the following:

 Do local governments fully understand their roles and responsibilities?

 Are the public funds spent on roads, schools, health facilities and factories allocated in a way that benefits all local residents?

Do we have too many counties? If public opinion were more fully considered, might we choose development strategies that protect human health and the environment while still providing economic benefits to the community?

 What changes in the local governance structure and process would promote more equitable and sensible development?

 Are there structural and procedural changes that would improve the responsiveness and accountability of local governments?

MACED, a Berea-based, nonprofit development organization, has undertaken the project as a means for stimulating further economic development throughout the state. Since conducted studies on the coal and forest products industries, water quality, housing and commercial finance, and education.

Those studies identified policy issues that have been addressed subsequently by both the public and private sectors in ways that expanded economic opportunities within the state. MACED's study on education in the Fifth Congressional District presented to the Shakertown Roundtable in 1986 led to the creation of the community-based educational reform group Forward in the Fifth.

Elizabeth Ungar Natter, formerly an attorney with the Department of Law, Kentucky Cabinet for Natural Resources, will assist Harker as codirector of the project. "With her legal knowledge, she will be a great help in defining what opportunities exist under current law and what legislation would be needed to carry out the recommendations made by the people of this state," said Taylor.

During the two-year project, Harker and Natter will organize public meetings throughout the state to seek opinions from a wide range of citizens on how local government can bestserve anyone. They will also work with the media to focus attention on the ideas and issues generated by the project.

Sallie Scott, project coordinator for MACED, has established in Idea Bank its founding in 1976 MACED has to register all the ideas offered at these

Insects used for thistle control

The Kentucky Department of Agriculture will administer a unique thistle control program this summer involving the release of thousands of insects that feed on the troublesome weed.

In a cooperative effort with the Virginia Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services and the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, about 15,000 thistle weevils will be collected near Blacksburg, Va., transported to Kentucky and released at selected sites. The weevils (Trichosircalus horridus) feed on the rosettes of musk (nodding) thistles, which have become an increasing problem on Kentucky farms.

Employees of the department's Division of Pest and Weed Control will collect the weevils in June at various sites in southwestern Virginia. UK's entomology department will assist with selecting the release sites in Kentucky. Exact dates for the collection and release have yet to be determined.

Agriculture Commissioner Ward "Butch" Burnette coordinated the program with Virginia Commissioner Mason Carbaugh, who is a fellow officer of the National Association of State Departments of Agriculture.

'Mason was telling meabout their (Virginia's) program at our last NASDA conference, so I asked him if they would help us establish thistle eds in Kentucky," Burnette said. "They have been very gracious in agreeing to allow us to collect weevils in Virginia." Thistles were a major problem in some areas of Kentucky last year, and the spread is continuing. Last year, 34 counties reported either moderate or heavy infestation. The worst infesta-tions were reported in central Kentucky The Pest and Weed Control Divi-sion administers two programs to control thistles via chemical application during the spring, before the thistles bloom and produce seeds. By using the weevils, further control can be obtained during periods when chemicals are ineffective. The musk thistle can be a problem in fall-planted grains, alfalfa or clover if conditions are favorable for seeding establishment and winter survival. The weed is most commonly found along roadsides, railroad rights-of-way, fence borders, wastelands and in pastures.

Studies have shown that moderate infestation of musk thistle reduce pasture yields by more than 20 percent. Livestock usually won't graze infested areas, but occasionally feed on the flower heads.

Field tests in Virginia and Missouri showed that the weevils could reduce thistle numbers by 50 to 95 percent over a five-to-seven year period. The weevils, which multiply rapidly, feed on the flower heads, thereby reducing the spread of seeds. They will not feed on crops.

Department employees will collect the weevils from thistles in Virginia using nets. The weevils will be stored in cardboard cartons and placed in a cooled container for transport. The insects then will be sprinkled at Kentucky release sites at a rate of five to 10 per plant. The recommended starter colony is 200 weevils per site. They are most effective in areas that have not been mowed or sprayed.

"This program can have a longterm impact on thistle control,' Burnette explained. "The results won't come immediately, but we'll see a gradual reduction each year. This will work well in supplementing our spraying activities.

The General Assembly recently pproved additional funding for expansion of the thistle control program. This year the department expects to use control measures on als will be placed in the computer 10,000 acres of Kentucky farmland.

meetings and by telephone and mail. crease the participation of far greater "We will also interview government officials, authorities on local governance, and community leaders for their guidance in what issues we should discuss at the public meetings," said Scott.

Harker and Natter expect several results from the project. "I will give a large number of people their first experience in participating in dialogue, persuasion, and critical reflection, so vital to the democratic process," said Natter. Equally important, their ideas will form the basis for a plan of recommended changes in the way local governments in the state are organized and function.

The modernization of how we receive, record, cross-check and verify employment information is a longrange goal of this agency," Allen said. "These grants will enable us to take a major step forward."

Improved computerization of the unemployment insurance claims process is expected to reduce the time applicants and benefits specialists spend on gathering information, Allen said. "We fully expect this equipment to allow us to process an initial claim faster and with fewer errors.

"It also should make for a better working environment for our staff by reducing some of the repetitious paperwork they now are required to produce."

For example, claims that have a potentially disqualifying issue require hand-written forms to be sent to the applicant and employer, but with the new equipment, the forms will be computer generated.

The advances will save about $350,000 annually in administrative costs. By eliminating errors and cutting processing time, the system will have an unemployment insurance trust fund savings of $775,000, Allen said.

Allen noted that Kentucky's system of collecting and verifying unemployment insurance claims and paying benefits was first automated n 1977 and updated in the early 1980s. The system's data base, including applicants' work history and benefit

Harker hopes that the plan for change produced by this project will be adopted by state and local lawmakers. "Around the world we are seeing people who have been left out of the political process making their governments respond to their needs and aspirations. It can happen in Kentucky," he said.

Rebels Roll, Daredevils Coach Gets 'Heave Ho'

Coach Anthony Moore's Allen Central Rebels, playing their best baseball of the season, rolled past the McDowell Daredevils, 9-0, in the first round of the 58th District Tournamentat the Allen Park Tuesday afternoon

While the Rebels were on a roll,

The rains held off long enough for the 58th District Baseball Tournament day evening at Allen Park. Played under threatening skies, the game's play. The Prestonsburg Blackcats did everything but scratch for their 26-5 win over the Wheelwright Trojans. Prestonsburg pounded out 22 hits in the game, 10 coming in the top of the sixth inning, as the Trojans had a hard time of putting the "fire" out.

The Blackcats scored 13 times in the top of the seventh as the hit pa-rade continued, despite the Trojans' using three pitchers in the inning.

The game started out like it was going to be a pitchers' battle with neither team able to score in the first two innings. Prestonsburg got a lead off double from Ray Collins.

Collins was stranded on second as John Clark grounded to third, Chris Slone flied to center and Watkins forced Storey who was hit by the pitch at second base.

Wheelwright put a runner on sec-ond in its half of the first when Bobby Hood singled to center and stole sec-ond. Brad Compton popped to the pitcher and Chad Hall struck out to end the inning.

Prestonsburg then struck for three runs in the top of the third to take a 3-0 lead. Clark singled to open the in-ning, and Slone drew a base on balls. Jason Storey then drove the ball deep over the right center field fence for a three-run home run. Watkins singled but was left stranded.

The Trojans tied the game at 3-3, with three runs of their own in the bottom of the frame. With one out, Kevin Johnson singled, and Jimmy Helton followed suit. Hood then collected his second hit and scored lohnson.

Compton then greeted Prestonsburg's starting pitcher Aaron Tucker's, next pitch for a double to right center, scoring both Helton and Hood. Watkins came on to relieve Tucker and retired Hall on a strikeout and got Chad Allen to line to third.

Storey's single in the fourth in-ning scored Collins, who had singled, and Clark, who reached on a walk, with two more runs to help the Black-cats reclaim the lead at 5-3. The hit gave Storey four RBIs. Later in the game Storey injured his ankle while legging out a ground ball to first base and had to be carried from the field.

Watkins fanned the side in the bottom of the fourth inning, and the Blackcats went to work in the fifth scoring seven times on four hits. Collins and Clark picked an RBI by drawingbases loaded walks off Chad Allen who came on to relieve Helton in the fifth with no outs.

Chris Slone doubled to left center scoring Collins and Clark and rode homeon Watkins' long opposite field home run.

Umpire David Maynard, Virgie, listened for a short time and threatened to toss Kidd. Kidd told the umpire to "go ahead and throw me out." Maynard then gave the old "heave-ho" sign and away Kidd went.

Women's Regionals Lady Daredevils fall to Boyd, 11-6

ran up against a brick wall in their semifinal match with Boyd County at Sheldon Clark Wednesday night. The Lady Daredevils fell to the Ashland based team, 11-6, ending their successful season, despite the loss.

Boyd County scored four times in the top of the first inning to take a 4-0 lead after the game was delayed for 40 minutes because of rain.

Errors haunted the Lady Daredevils in the first inning as Boyd County collected only one hit in scoring the four runs.

In the inning, Priscilla Crawford's great throw nailed Cornwell trying to go to third on an error, thus ending the inning.

Boyd County then scored two more runs in the top of the third, this time without the benefit of a hit. Two errors opened the gate for the unearned runs. Jerry walked and Keller reach on a fielder's choice, when the Lady Devils chose to go for a force at second base to no avail.

With one out, Carr grounded to short for what should have been an inning ending double play, only to have the ball mishandled and scoring Keller. Carr came home on a fielder's

The visitors on the scoreboard made it 7-0 with a single fourth inning run with two outs. Hammonds singled and scored on an error at shortstop which resulted in a three base error.

Boyd County loaded the bases on the Lady Devils in the fifth inning with two outs. Wilson then fouled out to the catcher for the final out ending the threat.

McDowell could not get anything going as the first 12 batters were retired in the first four innings. In the fifth, McDowell finally scored with two outs when Crawford hit a home run to make the score 7-1. The first two batters for McDowell went out on a fly out and grounder to short to make 14 straight retired before the home run.

McDowell came back in the bottom of the sixth with four runs to go 7-5. The Lady Daredevils finally got their bats out of the bag and stroked out five consecutive hits. Nikki Mullins singled to open the inning. Lisa Brown got a base hit to put run-

McDowell scored four runs in the bottom of the third inning to break a scoreless tie. Debbie Fannin led off the inning with a base hit. Lisa Henry followed that with a double to right center, putting runners on second and third. Both runners crossed home plate on an error in right field off the bat of Lori Bryant.

There were no RBIs on the error, however, McDowell took a 2-0 lead and stretched it to 4-0 when Priscilla Crawford gota base hit to score Bryant and Crawford scored on a base hit by Nikki Mullins.

One inning later, McDowell loaded the bases against the Lady Cougars on walks to Lisa Hobson and Kristi Mullins and a base hit by Fannin. Lisa Henry sent a fly ball to center field to score Hobson.

Bryant reloaded the bases when her fly ball was mishandled in right field. Crawford drove in two runs, Mullins and Fannin, with a double to make the score 7-0.

Elkhorn City came back in its half of the fifth inning with a four-run frame to make the score 7-4. Stacey Spake singled and Karri Belcher followed suit with a base hit, putting runners on first and third. Spake came home when Donna Deel grounded out to second base.

Mud Creek Pee Wee League

Three games were played in the Mud Creek Pee Wee League Wednes-day evening at the John M. Stumbo School park

58th District resumes after rain delay Prestonsburg vs Allen Central tonight

'I could be fishing'

Allen Central coach Anthony Moore is in deep thought as he coaches at third base during the 58th District Tournament in a game against McDowell Tuesday night. The Rebels defeated a good McDowell team, 9-0.

The title game of the 58th District baseball tournament restarts, after a day's delay because of rain, tonight (Friday) at 5:30 p.m. as the Prestonsburg Blackcats and Allen Central Rebels meet in the championship game. Both teams are automatically in the eight-team regional tour-nament in Pikeville next week.

The scenario is a carbon copy of last year's district tournament when the two schools met in the championship game. Prestonsburg defeated the Rebels last year and won the crown.

Much has been made of the Prestonsburg team's lack of experience at the pitching position. How-ever, Coach Russell Shepherd has found a few good young arms to piece together a respectable mound corps. Tim Watkins will get the probable call in a starting assignment in tonight's championship game, and starting for the Rebels will be Brett Meadows, who has yet to lose this season

The Blackcats will call on John Clark, if he doesn't get the starting assignment instead of Watkins, to come out of the bullpen. Clark could have only pitched two innings if the game had been played yesterday. But because of the rain out, Clark has had his required number of rests to start. However, look for Shepherd to go with Watkins.

Allen Central on the other hand will have dependable Mickey Par-sons available for relief if Meadows

Late blooming runs in the family

The typical scenario is the parents get an education, marry, raise their family, the children get an education,

But the Shelby Draughn family of Garrett appears to have rewritten the script. They've jumbled the se-quences, all dropping out, then re-turning successfully to college.

The two Draughn daughters, Pam Collins, in her 40s, and Jan Shepherd, in her 30s, were in Pikeville College's class of 1990. They both received bachelor's degrees in ceremonies Sunday.

They were following in the foot-steps of their parents, both of whom were graduated from the college after their daughters were grown or nearly grown.

Pam, the divorced mother of five boys, one of them in dental school and another in medical school, had a year at Alice Lloyd College in the early 1960s. Disliking the constraints of strict campus living, she talked her mother, Virginia Alice, into enrolling so the two could commute.

Virginia had had a year at Lees College before marrying in 1942. When the two went to register, "I dropped out while mom was in line to register," Pam recounts, with a laugh

The older daughter proceeded to marry and have two sons by the time her persistent mother completed college, graduating from Pikeville in 1966.

While his wife was in college, Shelby, who was in the radio and television business, decided to take up the college education he had abandoned in 1941 at Alice Lloyd.

He took extension classes from the University of Kentucky and Eastern Kentucky University at Prestonsburg Community College, shortly after PCC opened in 1964. In 1967, a year after his wife graduated, he, too, earned a degree from Pikeville Col-

"I always knew I'd go back," says Jan, the mother of two. "I wanted to wait for my kids to get in school. When the youngest started kindergarten in 1987 I went back."

Jan was able to talk her sister Pam into joining her at Pikeville College. "I thought I couldn't afford it," says Pam, an employee of May Lodge at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park. "Thad to work while I went to college. I went straight from classes to work."

All four family members earned education degrees. Virginia, the mother, taught for a while in Floyd County schools and now teaches at Rising Sun, Ind. She comes home to Garrett on holidays and during sum-

Pam's degree is in early childhood education, and Jan's is in middle grades. An honor student, Jan is already planning to start work on a master's degree at Morehead State University this summer. Pam is still undecided about her future.

The two completed coursework for their degree in December, but had to wait until last weekend for formal graduation. Pam has continued her ob at the lodge, while Jan has worked as a substitute teacher.

They all take their out-of-sequence education in stride, laughing at the ironies and poking fun at themselves and one another.

The lesson, though, is clear. "If I can get myself organized, go to school and work, too, anybody else who has any sense can do it," Pam advises.

Education is focus of conference

'Educational Reform in Kentucky: Implementing House Bill 940" will be the focus for a 7th District Leadership Conference in Pikeville Tuesday, May 22, at the Landmark Inn.

More than 500 civic, education, political and business leaders and concerned parents have been invited to attend the sessions which begin at 8 a.m. with registration and continental breakfast.

The conference is sponsored by the 7th District Educational Development Committee with assistance from Morehead State University and the Kentucky Department of Éducation which is the funding agency.

Gov. Wallace Wilkinson has been invited to speak and another key figure in the reform movement, former Gov. Bert Combs, has indicated he will participate.

In addition to exploring the implications of HB 940 for local school districts, the conference is designed to assist those districts in planning for the implementation of the educational reform package in three areas: pre-school organization, site-based management, and student educational standards and assessment.

The conference is a follow-up to a undtable held in November which Mt. Sterling businessman Bill Joe Hall will serve as the moderator for the program which will include a panel discussion on "What Is House Bill 940," featuring state legislators. Among the panelists will be Rep. Russell Bentley of Topmost, Rep. Walter Blevens of Morehead and Rep. Kenny Rapier of Bardstown.

Dr. Dan Branham, state deputy superintendent of public instruction, assisted by other department personnel, will discuss the effect of the educational reform bill on local school districts.

After lunch, participants will be divided into three groups for the implementation planning sessions. Each group will have an opportunity to hear all three presentations.

Robert Harvey, principal of Cen-tral-Hower High School in Akron, Ohio, and the school's faculty senate chair, Julie Struder, will discuss "Site-Based Management."

Dr. Roger Pankratz, associate dean for instruction in the College of Education and Behavioral Sciences at Western Kentucky University, will conduct the session on "Educational Standards and Assessment."

According to Floyd County 4-H/ Youth Development Agent Willard nipp, those who plan on attending should expect a very full week. "We have tried to combine traditional favorites with some new programs."

Examples of traditional favorites include swimming, canoeing, archery, air gun safety and folk dancing.

One of the new programs is a presentation by the Kentucky Department of Natural Resources. "Clean Air for Kentucky" is an educational amthatus hot air balloon to campers will be able to venture up in the balloon, experiencing first-hand hot-air ballooning.

Other items on the program include a Drug A wareness Program by the Kentucky State Police. A class on horsemanship and riding will be presented by the Boyd County 4-H Horse Club. The East Fork Volunteer Fire Department will make a presentation as well.

trip. Students from Osborne, Melvin and John M. Stumbo elementary schools have visited the classroom and learned a little about the varieties of animal life.

Students in the high school class explain to the enthralled grade schoolers why this hermit crab lives on land but this other hermit crab must live in water. They see the octopus eat and move and they hold the gerbils, hamsters and mice. Several have come back with parents and cages to take home new pets.

All projects in this class are fed on weekends by students in the class. The animals went home with the students during Christmas break and spring break. All projects will go home for the summer except two, and by the last day, they may find a summer home also.

"It's been an exceptional year," says teacher Doris Osborne. "We haven't been successful with seahorses, but we will try again. We would like to have a python, but we settled for a garter snake. We have a solar system in progress, and the room looks like a flower shop. It's been a great year."

The Biology II class for 1990-91 has been funded and several new projects are in the planning stage.

Stop polluting me.

If I were a polluted tree... I would tell people to stop polluting me. Quit your polluting, quit your spraying 'Cause my roots are decaying. I shade you when the days are hot, I cool you down and that hits the spot. What thanks do I get, none from you I bet. Pollution is something we're all gonna regret. It's hard to stand here, tall and proud, Looking at the pollution in the crowd. People are throwing garbage back and forth, Not knowing what trash cans are for. Trees clean the air and protect the land, More people should lend a helping hand. But you don't care, your lives are carefree, Won't you please stop polluting me. When I'm gone, you'll think twice, You'd wish you had been so nice. For life will be hard and tough. Yes I'm gone and life is rough. Take care of me while you can. I can't come back by demand. I'll keep you safe, you will see, So please, stop polluting me! -Charlene Cook

HOROSCOPE

May 20 through May 26

By A. Murphy GEMINI (May 21 - June 20) Are you devoting enough attention to your personal spirituality? Spend time alone every day for writing or thinking about what you have and what you have to give.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22) Make a list of the benefits you receive from working on your art. Most importantly, are you fulfilling yourself? Are you satisfied with the work and happy to be doing it?

LEO (July 23 - August 22) Honesty should be foremost on your mind in virtually every situation. Remain true to your own feelings and let them be known unless serious danger could come of it.

VIRGO (August 23 - September 22) Don't let the season bypass you without your ever smelling a rose. Take a walk around the neighborhood. Smell the rain. Sit in the shade and watch people walk by.

LIBRA (September 23 - October 22) It may be time to consider a job change if you are unhappy where you are. List your qualifications and visualize yourself where you want to be. You deserve better.

SCORPIO (October 23 - November 21) Plan a relaxing vacation that will relieve you of the stress from your job. Let those working around you know that they are appreciated.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 - December 21) Instead of letting suspicions turn into colorful rumors, ask for a frank account of that which involves you and set the record straight. Respect for you will grow.

CAPRICORN (December 22 - January 19) That job you have been putting off doing cannot wait much longer. You and all involved will feel great relief when it is done. Personal satisfaction will rise.

AQUARIUS (January 20 - February 18) An education is not always fun and easy, but the benefits will last for the rest of your life. Study hard and pay attention to what is before you. Learning never ends.

PISCES (February 19 - March 20)

Look closely and carefully at what you are eating. The more simple and natural, the better. Take adequate time for thinking and try to make wise decisions.

ARIES (March 21 - April 19)

Look for meaning immediately around you. Remind yourself often of what you truly want and work toward it every day. Don't ever forget to appreciate the natural world.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20)

Do not put off medical exams. Carefully evaluate your financial situation and live accordingly. Listen attentively to the problems of loved ones in need

CABLE OVERVIEW

Mystery, macabre and drama highlight week's cable movies

By Shelia Odak

Fans of that master of the macabre Stephen King will want to tune in to HBO on Sunday, May 20, for Pet Sematary, starring Dale Midkiff, Mary Lambert and Fred Gwynne.

The film, which is based on the King bestseller of the same name, deals with a young couple who have just moved to a rural home. Their new life seems idyllic until they come under the spell of a mysterious pet cemetery near by. They soon learn that sometimes dead is better.

King scripted this horror extravaganza which is definitely not for the squeamish. Leave the lights on and put the kids to bed for this movie premiere.

Also on May 20 on Showtime, the Mickey Rourke film Homeboy premieres.

The film, which is based on an original story by Rourke, chronicles an aging boxer who gets one last chance at the big time. However, that chance could cause him permanent brain damage or death. Christopher Walken also stars.

On Wednesday, May 23, Showtime will present the premiere of the teen drama Lost Angels, which takes a look at how modern parents are unable, and sometimes unwilling, to try and cope with their children.

Adam Horovitz (of the rap group The Beastie Boys) stars as a teenager who, when interferes with his he mother's new marriage, is sent to a psychiatric home for troubled youths. It soon becomes obvious that he doesn't belong in this place which houses many much more troubled than he.

caring psychologist (Donald Sutherland) tries to help him reconcile with his family, who don't seem to care what happens to him. Also on Wednesday, USA

Fred Gwynne

Network features the premiere of the original film

Dead Reckoning. Three people, trapped on a lighthouse island, find themselves involved in a love triangle that has become entangled with murder. Cliff Robertson, Susan Blakely and Rick Springfield star. On Thursday, May 24, Showtime will feature a film that, though it is not a premiere, is well worth mentioning for the fine young actors it showcases. The film is Racing With The Moon, and the actors are Sean Penn, Elizabeth McGovern and Nicolas Cage.

The film was made in 1984 and is interesting to compare to the actors' more recent films. See this film backto-back with Penn's Casualties Of War and you begin to understand what a broad range this young man has. Play Johnny Handsome and see how McGovern has grown away from the wideeyed innocent in Racing. Rent Moonstruck and see how Cage has changed; or better yet wait for the release of the new David Lynch film which features the actor. I'm sure that performance will be light years away from Racing With The Moon.

Quotes and Quibbles Coordinated by Sandra Robertson, PCC Director of Library Services

PCC LIBRARY HAS MAJOR BOOKS ONFUNDAMENTALISM by Douglas Herman

Assistant Professor of History Since many Floyd County Times readers are interested in religious fundamentalism, I know they will be as pleased as I was to discover that the Prestonsburg Community College Library contains several studies of fundamentalism's history

When I came to Kentucky two years ago, I did what many academic people do when they are on a particular college campus for the first time — go to the library to look for the books in their specialty area. I was happy to find that the PCC Library held at least four major accounts of portions of fundamentalism's dramatic history. I wrote my doctoral dissertation at Ohio University on Fundamentalism in the 1930s, and I continue to research the general sub-ject. I was impressed with PCC's col-lection on fundamentalism.

One of the leading disputes among historians of fundamentalism is how, in the first place, to define "Funda-mentalism." Older interpretations have a sociological cost to them, but I support the now-dominant focus on theological principles as the essential way to understand this particular type of conservative American Protestantism. The term "fundamentalist" is often used, especially by journalists, to describe many political as well as religious groups, but I apply it in its original doctrinal sense. This goes back to 1920, when the word was coined by a Baptist newspaper editor during maneuvers before the annual Northern Baptist Convention, now the American Baptist Convention).

A frequent confusion even among historians is whether or not to separate fundamentalists from other conservative Protestants. Again, this is best done in the realm of doctrine, where a meaningful and helpful distinction can be made. I contend that a list of six specific beliefs identifies Fundamentalism, which I highlight with a capital "F," and divides that position from other conservative Protestantism, which is more vaguely or loosely fundamentalist in the popular understanding. The key Fundamentalist dogma, to which the others are corollary, is that the Bible is inerrant. This is based on the assumption that the Word of God would not be given in a document containing errors.

The 1920s is the best-known period in Fundamentalism's history (whether in the capital-F or small-f sense), and this is the subject of two of the oldest book-length studies of the movement. The PCC Library has both: Stawart Called The Princeton Theology, which most directly brought inerrancy into Fundamentalism. Stewart Cole's "The History of Fundamentalism," published in 1931; and Norman Furniss' "The Fundamentalist Controversy," published in 1954. Cole's work is essentially his doctoral dissertation, written two years before at the University of Chicago. He was a liberal seminarian who adopted the prevalent academic view that Fundamentalism should be considered as a consequence of sociological forces. Furniss held a Yale PhD in American history, and to some degree he cast his volume as a re-sponse to McCarthyism, the communist-hunting hysteria that peaked in the year that Furniss' account was published. Both books are more use-ful today as reference works.

Cole's is generally structured around Fundamentalist organiza-tions, particularly those opposed to teaching Charles Darwin's theory of biological evolution in public schools. Furniss has interpretive chapters, but more chapters deal with Fundamentalism by denominations. A third PCC holding with important material on Fundamentalism is Kenneth Bailey's "Southern White Protestantism in the Twentieth Century," published in 1964. It is an expansion of his Vanderbilt disserta-tion on the anti-evolution movement. Fundamentalism is treated mostly in a chapter on the 1920s. Bailey is more even-handed than Cole and Furniss.

In 1970 a watershed publication in Fundamentalism's historiography appeared, and the PCC Library owns it, too. Ernest Sandeen's "The Roots of Fundamentalism" was the first book-length scholarly study to give primary, almost sympathetic attention to Fundamentalists' beliefs. The coverage is from the mid-1800s to 1920, with an epilogue-like chapter on the 1920s that hints at the work's deficiency. While many have applauded Sandeen's focus on theology, we felt that his thesis is too narrow. He contends that Fundamentalism was formed by the union of two 19th century doctrinal systems, dis-pensationalism and the Princeton Theology. But Fundamentalism contains many additional roots and influences, so Sandeen's interpretation was a useful beginning but not the definitive conclusion.

Alas, when I first looked at the PCC collection, I did not find the best book on Fundamentalism. Fortunately, the situation was easily remedied, because the leading volume was still in print, and the PCC Library today has a copy of George Marsden's "Fundamentalism and American Culture," published in 1980 by Ox-ford University Press, the top publisher of histories of conservative American Protestansim.

In Part Three, Marsden discusses the most important years in Fundamentalism's history: 1917-1925; from World War I to the Scopes Trial. The war era heightened the influence of premillennialism, a prophecy-oriented theology of which dispensationalism was a subpart.

After the war, Fundamentalism moved on two fronts. In several maor denominations, notably the Northern Baptists and Northern Presbyterians, Fundamentalists attempted to take control of denominational ma-chinery. Secondly, they carried their opposition to teaching evolution into the political arena under the leadership of William Jennings Bryan; the Kentucky legislature was one of their first stops. In 1925, in both denomina-tional assemblies and the Scopes Trial, the Fundamentalist offensive began to fall apart.

Part Four is a different kind of section, composed of four brief inter-pretations of Fundamentalism as ypes of phenomena; social, political,

The author is the son of Fundamentalist pastor in Pennsylvania and holds a divinity degree from a Fundamentalist seminary. But his other graduate degrees are from Yale, whose Press published his first book, an expansion of his dissertation. He taught for two decades at Calvin College, a Christian Reformed school in Michigan, and he now is at the Divinity School of Duke University.

"Fundamentalism and American Culture" is a brief and somewhat sketchy account of the interactions between Fundamentalism and its social context from 1870-1925, with an epilogue to 1940. Twenty-five short chapters are divided into four parts. An assumption underlying the first part — one worth emphasizing to those who think that Fundamentalism is an old set of dogmas - is that the Civil War era was a time that predated Fundamentalism's existence. The evangelicalism that domi-nated prewar America diverged in two major directions by the 1970s, and a different intellectual climate emerged for American Protestantism. Part Two shows how numerous elements forming both sides of the split came together to form a new coalition, later to be called Funda-mentalism. Included were revamped revivalism, headed by the giant fig-ure of Dwight L. Moody; dispensationalism, a novel system of understanding the Bible that depended on its being inerrant; the holiness movement; and that variant on Calvinism

Seatbelts save two lives

by Kathleen Carroll Contributing writer

A miracle happened a couple of weeks ago in Floyd County. A small miracle, like most miracles these days. The scene could have been from the script of any action movie, only this happened on the David Road. It had just begun to rain at 12:45 p.m. on Tuesday, May 1, when Annie Rosenberg, 16, approached the Crow's Nest curve on her way to the David School. She and her passenger, Shawn Johnson, 18, were surprised by a speeding red truck that had crossed the center line onto her side of the road.

She swerved to miss the truck and lost control of her car. As Rosenberg struggled to regain control of the weaving car, "the back wheels went off the road, the car flipped four times and landed on its top."

Rosenberg said she watched as the car rolled and felt the metal of the car crunch, "but I was confident I wasn't gonna die. After the first time the car flipped and the seatbelts held us in place, I felt secure."

Once the car stopped, she said she "felt numb kinda." Johnson recalls that he knew he "was all right and wanted to check to see if she was all right.'

"There we were, hanging upside down by our seat belts," says Rosenberg, still shaken by the experience. "We were jarred around quite a bit, but we lived," added Johnson.

'Our first thought," Rosenberg explains, "was that we were trapped inside the car.

"We were afraid the car would blow up or something, like in a movie when you see a car flip, it always explodes," she said. The fear of explosion was foremost in their minds. "I've got 10 seconds to get out" is how

Rosenberg describes the "time clock that went off in my head."

According to Johnson, the two had to unbuckle their seatbelts and position themselves because they "had to push the doors open with our feet." It took several minutes to exit the car.

Once out of the car, the two were surprised to find that they were alone on a road that is usually heavily traveled at that time of day. "You know how you expect 10 cars would stop, and there was no one," Rosenberg

By the time they had climbed up to the road and caught their breath, a car stopped.

Both smile as they explain that the passengers of the car rolled down the window, pointed to the wreck, and asked "Are they alive? Are they all right?"

Rosenberg giggles brightly, "Boy were they surprised when they realized we were the ones from the wreck!'

Johnson explained that he usually didn't wear a seat belt - until a month or so ago when Rosenberg started driving.

"simply wanted Shawn to wear his seatbelt and he complied. I kept thinking, what if we wrecked and he died but I lived? I just couldn't bear that."

Rosenberg says that wearing seatbelts was a habit she learned from her parents. Johnson said that his parents wear seatbelts only occasionally. "If people knew ahead of time that they were going to wreck, they would buckleup," Rosenberg said. Johnson nodded in agreement, "I've been driving for a couple of years and never wore a seat belt. Now it feels like EVERY time I get in a car I will put one on.'

Betsy Nahm, violinist and 1989 Concerto Competition winner, will be the soloist featured by the Cincinnati Youth Symphony Orchestra performing at Prestonsburg High School gymnasium on Sunday, May

A sophomore in high school, Nahm began violin study at the Cincinnati College of Music Preparatory Department at the age of five. She has been a Cincinnati College of Music Preparatory scholarship winner seven times for the violin and six times for the piano.

She performed with the Cincinnati Junior Strings from 1982 to 1988 and was concertmaster for the last two years with CJS. In the summer of 1989, she attended the Cincinnati Youth Symphony Orchestra's Sum-mer Chamber Music Program.

Nahm is in her second year with the Youth Symphony Orchestra. At school she is an honor student, peer counselor, tutor and member of the school literary magazine.

The Cincinnati Youth Symphony Orchestra is composed of about 85 high school musicians from ages 14 to 18. Participants learn the value of excellence and discipline, and cultivate an appreciation for the arts that translates into everyday success and added vitality for their school music programs.

Students graduate to become professional symphony orchestra members, music educators, non-professional musicians and active art advocates who are a cultural asset to their communities.
