Only one-third turn out to vote

Incumbents succeed; election holds no surprises

by Tess A. Whitmer
Assistant Editor

As predicted, voter turnout in Floyd County was poor with only 33 percent of those registered bothering to cast their ballot, and the incumbents claimed victory.

Among the closest races in the county was the one between Prestonsburg physician Larry Leslie and Pikeville attorney Will T. Scott for Republican candidate for the US Representative slot, 7th District. Only nine votes separated the two in Floyd County, but districtwide, Leslie lost by an estimated 6,000 votes.

Early in the election tabulations it was clear who would win the State Representative slot for the 95th District. Incumbent Gregory Stumbo walked away with every precinct except Ed Patton's own, Frasures Creek. Even there, it was only 128 to 115 in Patton's favor.

In the 92nd District State Rep. Russell Bentley retained his seat over challenger Bobby Ray Hicks, taking the Floyd County portion of the district, 779-465.

No Republicans were entered in either contest.

In the fight for the Democratic nomination for US Representative, 7th District, Jerry Cecil held his own in the fight against incumbent Chris Perkins. In looking at the recapitulation sheet, Cecil ran close to Perkins in far more precincts than anticipated. And, Cecil took Abbott and Trimble Branch, 51-49 and 105-74, respectively.

The final score was 5393-1855 in Floyd County. With 20 of the 23 counties in the district complete, Perkins had won by about a 2 to 1 margin.

As with two years ago, it will be Scott versus Perkins in the general election in November. If all the Democrats who voted for Cecil, and against Perkins, do the same in the general election, giving their votes to Scott, this could be a close race.

By far the closest race in the county was between Harvey Sloane and John Brock for the Democratic nomination for US Senator. The tally was 3053 for Brock and 4094 for Sloane. With 88 percent of the vote in at press time, Sloane was ahead 144,070 to 107,223 statewide. Still a very close race which could have swung toward Brock if the other 19 counties voted in Brock's favor.

Considering the reported status of Brock's finances during the race, the Superintendent of Public Instruction has nothing to be ashamed of.

Incumbent Sen. Mitch McConnell won the nod from the Republicans in this county and across the state. McConnell took the county nomination from Tommy Klein, 330-47, and by a wide margin across the state.

In summation, the November election will apparently see Sen. Mitch

McConnell vying for the title against Democrat Harvey Sloane, and Republican Will T. Scott competing against Democrat incumbent Chris

Perkins for US Representative. The other non-contested offices on the ballot will be Bentley for State Representative, 92nd District, and Stumbo, 95th District.

Friday's edition of The Times will run the precinct by precinct breakdown in Floyd County.

But, where do you park?

The construction of a new convention center in the middle of the parking lot traditionally used by Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre patrons could hamper the outdoor theatre's 26th season. But state park officials and theatre personnel hope they've worked out a compromise that will allow playgoers to enjoy the productions anyway. The musical season opens next Tuesday. Theater parking problem eased

by Pam Shingler
Editor

As bad as it looks, it's not as bad as it looks.

That's the latest word on the parking situation for Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre which opens next Tuesday at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park.

A trip to Frankfort by theater representatives last week resulted in commitments by state officials to assure adequate parking for theatergoers, despite the construction of a convention center going on in the middle of the parking lot used by the theater.

"They (state officials) assured us they would do everything in their power to make sure the public is inconvenienced as little as possible this season," said JWSMT manager Tedi Vaughan.

The theater manager and other local representatives met Thursday with Mary Ray Oaken, Secretary of the Kentucky Tourism Cabinet; Thomas Engstrom, director of planning, construction and special maintenance for the state Department of Parks, and Bob Bender, deputy Commissioner of Parks.

Solving the parking problem:

- Park ranger to direct traffic.
- Guard rails and lights through construction site.
- Clean up of construction site.
- Boat trailers redirected to other parking places.
- Use of golf course parking lot.
- Drop off lane.
- Some handicapped parking near theater.
- Possible shuttle service from May Lodge.

Vaughan said the state officials agreed to have a park ranger on duty from 5 p.m. to closing during each performance "to direct cars to parking areas."

In addition, Oaken authorized the installation of orange guard rails and lights through the construction site to ease the way for theatergoers and ordered the clean up of gravel and debris around the construction prior to the season opening.

From Parks official Engstrom, Vaughan wrangled two signs. One on the main road through the park is to point to the theater which is virtually invisible behind the cranes, equipment and blocks of the convention center construction. The other is to offer an apology to theatergoers for the inconvenience.

Some Sun

In fear for his life, the weatherman has straightened up his act and predicted some sunshine for the next few days. But, alas, nothing lasts forever.

The good weather should begin today with a forecast of sunny, high 70-75. Wednesday night remains mostly clear, low around 50. Thursday, mostly sunny, high in mid-70s. Thursday night the increasing cloudiness begins with lows in the 60s.

The outlook for the weekend is thundershowers on Friday and Sunday, with a pleasant Saturday (for ducks!).

Camp applications being accepted

The Kentucky State Police, Post 9 in Pikeville, are accepting applications for girls age 10-12 who would like to attend the Trooper Island Summer Camp. The camp, July 28 through Aug. 3, is located on Dale Hollow Lake near Somerset and is designed for children who may not be able to attend other summer camps for financial reasons. Anyone wishing to nominate a girl for acceptance to the camp, contact any KSP Trooper or call 437-7311.

Raising funds

The Middle Creek Community Development, in conjunction with Middle Creek Fire Department, is having a fund raising dinner Saturday, June 9, at the fire department. The cost is $3 a plate for adults and $1.50 a plate for children under 12. Diners can call ahead for carry out or free delivery, 886-9290. Orders can even be called in the day prior to the event if desired.

Citizens gear up for incinerator protest

by Pam Shingler

Anyone would be hard pressed to describe participants in Saturday's meeting at Horn's Methodist Chapel, north of Prestonsburg, as radicals.

Most of the 75 or so who gathered at the small church to air their fears over the medical waste incinerator at Highlands Regional Medical Center on US 23 were average people, looking like everyone's next door neighbor.

Many were retired couples. Some were housewives. Most could be described as working class. Few have ever participated in any kind of organized protest.

There were no emotional outbursts, no lynch mob cries, no accusations. There was, however, evidence that some had distinct opinions on the problems they say have arisen since the incinerator began operation last year. And there was concern over the recent installation of a second incinerator.

But the manager of Medisin, the incinerator company, contends the residents have a lopsided view of the facility and its perceived danger to the community. "Our facility meets all state and federal guidelines for

Coal Camp Kids: Memorial Day, Part 2 Dying in a Kentucky coal camp

By Barbara Ford Ritch
Edited by Paul R. Jordan

Excerpted from Ritch's new book, Coal Camp Kids — Coming Up Hard and Making It. Ritch, a Wayland native, resides in Rabun Gap, Ga.

While we lived at Martin's Branch our first cousin, Junior Wallace, came from Jeffersonville, Ind., to visit us and our many cousins in Wayland. Junior and Uncle Parker's oldest boy, Troy, had gone to Ashland looking for work, recalled Catherine Ford Bergstrom, Troy's youngest sister. Up in Shop Fork, Catherine had pulled a tub of boiling water from the stove and she was badly burned. Aunt Maude sent for Troy.

Neither boy had any money, so they walked the railroad tracks from Ashland back to Wayland. It was a foggy night, but the engineer felt he had no reason to blow his whistle.

Troy heard the train but did not get off the tracks in time to escape head injuries from the cowcatcher; Junior, evidently tried to jump to the left but was struck in the forehead by the cowcatcher and falling back, was pinned under the cowcatcher. His legs were severed at the groin. That Junior lived even a few days was miraculous and that he was conscious those days was unbelievable. Our Aunt Giruda Wallace said Junior told her he wanted to die. At age 17, Junior died.

His wake and funeral were conducted from our house. I have no memory of an undertaker, but doubtless Junior had been attended by one, for everyone remarked,

"What a nice job he did on his (Junior's) forehead."

Four Injured in Tuesday morning accident

A head on collision on KY 1100 at Little Paint left four persons injured Tuesday, two seriously. According to state and county police at the scene, the accident occurred when a car, driven by Dudley Collins, allegedly skidded into the path of a pickup truck driven by Donnie Adams of Johnson County. Adams and his passenger Donnie Wright were transported to a local hospital, along with Collins and his son Dudley Collins Jr. Collins Sr. was transported to the University of Kentucky Medical Center in serious condition, along with his son who was listed in stable condition, according a spokesperson at Highlands Regional Medical Center. Both Wright and Adams were treated and released at HRMC. The Collins vehicle had an Ohio license plate, but no address was available for the family. (Photo by Tim Preston)

Liens placed against riverfill

PIKEVILLE—A law firm hired by the city of Pikeville filed an amended petition in its declaration of rights proceeding against James A. Hughes and Associates yesterday. The petition names Bank One of Lexington and Mewan National Bank, holding additional mortgages on the Pikeville riverfill property, in addition to an original lease of $1.2 million by the 1st National Bank of Pikeville. The City has requested the Pike Circuit Court to void or cancel the lease and each of the mortgages. If the mortgages are ruled invalid, then the three banks will have loaned Hughes money without collateral, said an attorney. (Appalachian News-Express)

But not even the undertaker's cosmetics could cover the darkly bruised and indented spot of Junior's fatal injury.

His casket rested atop a platform of some sort, possibly saw horses, and this pedestal was draped in a deep purple or black skirt. A large candle burned at each corner of the casket and the entire house smelled of bees wax. I remember Father Donovan leading us in the rosary and our Catholic friends came to the house to comfort Junior's mother and my parents, too. Father Donovan also conducted the services at the graveyard.

To my mind, the graveyard (no one called it anything but the graveyard) was quite distant and the pallbearers carried Junior from Martin's Branch to the Martin Cemetery at Wayland, a distance of about two miles.

There was an open air chapel at the graveyard. A vanell Hicks Murray said it was a "memorial chapel", and it resembled a gazebo. It was square and open above the waist-high, lattice-pannelled walls. There was a door in each of the four sides and benches were built along the inside walls. Steps led from each door of this open air chapel into the graveyard.

When the pallbearers and mourners reached the cemetery, Junior's coffin was placed atop wooden saw horses inside the chapel and when family and friends were inside, final prayers for the dead were said. Unless kneeling for the blessing, everyone sat on the benches or, if there were a lot of mourners, stood outside.

I never saw folding chairs nor a green awning or advertising So-and-So's funeral home; I never saw a hearse and, in fact, the graveyard was inaccessible by car or hearse and speaking of this with Avaneil, she said most coffins were carried to the graveyard by the pallbearers, the family and friends trailing behind. Sometimes, the coffin would be carried by mule and wagon, or pickup truck if available but both were scarce in those days.

However, the grave was dug and covered (today's terms, "opening" and "closing" of the grave, were not in vogue at that time) prior to the arrival of the coffin and I'm certain our fathers, uncles and brothers — expert diggers of coal — dug the graves. After the last prayers were said (or preached) family and friends gathered about the gaping, open grave, silently watching as the casket was lowered by men who were friends of the family.

The mourners continued to huddle close to the grave, weeping as it was filled in, shuddering when the dry clods of earth hit the coffin with heavy, resounding thuds. What flowers were put on the grave either came from our own flower gardens or, in winter, were made of crepe paper and dipped into wax for weatherproofing. However, wreaths were sold at the company store.

The saddest funeral for me was that of Theresa (Tessa) Zanzonico. Tessa was about my age and she died shortly after we all made our First Holy Communions. Until locating and speaking with her sister, Gilda, I had no idea what had caused Tessa's death. Tessa, Gilda related, had the measles and though their mother Laurie had sweated the measles out of Tessa, she became very ill and was taken to the hospital at either Estill or Lackey and there, Theresa Zanzonico, aged nine, died. Gilda said the "doctor" never told them what, exactly, caused Tessa's death, only that "It was the measles."

Tessa's death hit us children harder than that of Rosemarie. We knew Tessa and, too, we were several years older at the time of her death.

Tessa was buried in her communion dress and veil and her white rosary beads were intertwined in her small hands. Like Junior, Tessa was also buried from our house in Martin's Branch. I asked Bob and Jane Wallace, friends of our family since 1937, why it was that Tessa and Junior were buried from our house, and Bob replied,

"Bill and Carrie were those kind of people. They helped all of us."

Posing the same question to Father Donovan, he agreed but added, "Another reason such things were conducted at and from your house, Barbree, was because Bill and Carrie were the only American-born and English-speaking Catholic couple. Other Catholic couples making up our parish were either both foreign-born or one, usually the mother, would be American and the father from Europe. They felt comfortable with Bill and Carrie and, many times, their children interpreted for them as your parents explained things."

While we children did not attend his funeral, we again accompanied our parents to a wake at one of the officials' houses on Estill Hill. The deceased, father of John "Jack" Mandt, Superintendent of the Estill Mine, was known to us children simply as Old Mister Mandt.

Old Mister Mandt was laid out in the parlor and as we filed past the open casket we paused. Being a child and curious, I examined the man in the coffin. Old Mister Mandt was a handsome man with white hair and he did not look dead. He was completely dressed, as if for church — dark suit, white shirt, somber tie and, as my gaze traveled the length of the man in the casket I noted a peculiarity. Old Mister Mandt had on black socks, but no shoes!

Dead to me, at that time, had no true definition other than the coffin was closed over the departed, lowered into a hole in the ground, covered up and everybody cried — a lot. In my child's mind, however, I wondered why he had no shoes, to go with his other fine clothes. It never occurred to me that Heaven might have no need of shoes, but naive child's logic told me one simply did not wear fine clothes and fine socks and no shoes!

By today's mortuary standards, especially financial, the burials I remember would be considered economically barbaric — for the mortician. No hearse, no family car, no flower van — poverty had certain advantages — and the pallbearers carried the coffin and often over a three or four mile distance.

Elbert "Vic" Hopper has family buried at the Martin Cemetery at Wayland, but he said, "Most of our people are buried in the Collins' graveyard, about a mile above Wayland. My father donated that land to the people way years ago."

Driving Route 23 south, one cannot help but slow down and look at the family graveyards dotting the hillsides. There are so many, but they are maintained, even pretty, and being so close to the remaining family members, the loved ones' memories are meaningful.

The open air, or memorial, chapel was used a place to hold final services, but Avaneil said it was originally built for memorial services. When deaths occurred in harsh, bitter winter, the dead were buried immediately and when warmer weather came, a memorial service was held in the open air chapel, the date and time of the service announced and family and friends came, just as it were a fresh funeral. But, as pointed out above, in certain faiths memorial services were for religious reasons.

In those early days, the graves were kept clean and Decoration Day was both a festive and a somber event. Mrs. Mabel Frank recalled, "Decoration Day was like the Fourth of July. All of the relatives would cook up food, chickens and cakes and things, and they'd take flowers from their gardens, or make crepe paper flowers, and they'd all go and spend the day, cleaning up the graves. Then, when the sad chore was done, they'd visit and have picnics and it was always an enjoyable day."

And everyone did go to the graveyard. Entire families worked to clean the graves, even the smaller children took an active part. Faded waxed and

Martin man taken on drug charges

Members of the Floyd County Sheriff's Department conducted a raid this weekend at the home of Bill Little of Martin.

Officers Lindsey Hunt, Lloyd Powers, Rick Thornberry, Danny Jarrell, Roy Compton, Charles Ousley, Larry Short and Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson made the bust at about 9:30 p.m. Saturday and arrested Little on charges of illegal possession of prescription drugs.

The officers confiscated an undetermined number of Carisprodol or Soma tablets, along with a number of Darvocete tablets.

The raid at the Little home is one in a series of drug-related arrests being conducted by the sheriff's department.

"We will be visiting (suspected) drug dealers in the county," said Chief

Deputy Lindsey Hunt. "I want them to know that if they do not stop dealing drugs in this county that they will be arrested and charged for their crimes."

Seminar slated

Child sexual abuse: it's one of the most horrible crimes society has to face. Unfortunately, it's also one of the most difficult and frustrating crimes to investigate and prosecute.

That's the reason the Kentucky Attorney General's Office is sponsoring a training conference, "Effective Prosecution of Child Sexual Abuse," on June 5, 6 and 7 at Eastern Kentucky University in Richmond.

Police officers, prosecutors, investigators and others who track down and bring child sex abuse cases to trial have been invited to attend the conference, according to Attorney General Fred Cowan.

"The sexual abuse of children is a unique tragedy that can leave lifelong scars. Investigating these cases and bringing them through our criminal justice system requires up-to-date technology, modern training and professionals at many levels working together. This conference has been planned to help investigators and prosecutors meet that challenge," Cowan said.

dry wilted flowers were removed; leaves were raked, weeds were pulled up and the men struggled to remove fallen tree limbs and other winter debris. When the graves were clean, fruit jars were filled with fresh cut flowers and, those who had no flower gardens, placed new waxed crepe paper flowers on the freshened graves.

Graham "Canny" Turner said there had not been a death in his large family for 57 years. Yet, they observe Decoration Day. It was a big event.

Myrtle Bentley said, "We made our own flowers from crepe paper, it was cheap and came in such beautiful colors and we had real flowers we grew in our yards about the company houses," and like Josephine Martin, "On Decoration Day we cut all the live flowers in the yard and took them to the graveyard." And, Myrtle's mother always packed a lunch and, though all agree it was sad, Decoration Day became a festive outing.

Mommie always carried a brown paper sack packed with a tablecloth and the ingredients to make our lunch and one of us kids carried the jug of iced tea and another toiled the grate. Mommie would set us to finding rocks, a fire would be laid and the grate placed atop the rocks. Mommie made bannock bread, a form of biscuit dough that she pinched off, flattened between her palms and fried on a little round iron griddle (I have that griddle). The lard, flour and buttermilk to make the bread were in the brown paper sack.

To go with the bannock bread, Mommie had either home cured ham slices, or fried chicken and, always, hard boiled eggs. The salt and pepper would be wrapped in separate little pieces of waxed paper. Mommie would have a gallon jar of iced tea or lemonade (we never had soft drinks or prepackaged fruit drinks, Mommie said they'd rot our teeth).

When the graves were clean, Mommie and the other women would group together and share the picnic-like lunches. I do not remember it as such, but think the women spread the food on the tablecloths inside the open air chapel.

After working to clean the graves, after eating the delicious lunch, we girls would gather in a group to our selves, yawning sleepily but listening to the sounds of our mothers' voices while the boys, hiding their emotions, pretending to be untouched by the event, raced down the steep hillside at the first opportunity, leaving us to be a part of what they called "a mushy, woman's thing." Our fathers would be grouped apart, but all voices were soft, hushed as men and women remembered the dead in reverent tones.

I remember slow, hot tears creeping down Mommie's face; I remember our mothers' faces as being much too old for their young years; I remember them recalling, if an adult, both the harsh life and the good times of the departed; if the departed was a child or infant, faces were averted and the grieving parents' hand or shoulder patted tenderly with murmurs of "There, there, now." Some happy recollections would be mentioned and these evoked muted laughter and tender smiles.

Several times during the spring and early summer months, Mommie took us up to the Martin Branch Cemetery, up on the hill behind Mrs. Ring's house. Though we had no friends or relatives buried there, we cleaned off several graves. I think Mommie disliked the idea of those graves being so terribly neglected, and, too, it was a chance to get us all out of the house and, our chores were always followed by bannock bread sandwiches and iced tea.

I have no idea why some of us coal camp kids had a fear of graveyards—and the casket sheds. As Helen Wallace said, "We kids were scared to death of it (the casket shed)."

Myrtle Murphy Bentley recalled the casket house, "I was scared to death of that place! During the Depression the union took part of the building to dispense food to the mines. My brother and I took a little red wagon to go and get our part, but I got away from there as soon as possible!"

But, every coal camp had a casket shed. The one in Wayland, like the one in Glo, was close to the tippie, a disturbing thought considering the proximity of the mine. Estill had a casket house, and caskets were displayed in the basement of the company store. With a wide grin and much chuckling, Bob Wallace recalled these caskets and the 1937 floods:

"Beaver Creek ran behind the company store and, when the flood waters rose they covered the loading docks at the back of the store and, soon, filled the basement where the coffins were on display. As the water rose higher and higher, the coffins floated out the loading dock doors, bobbing gently on the rushing, swirling water. A group of young miners, higher than kites on 'shine, one of whom was my brother, climbed into the open coffins and began to paddle them like boats!"

Tom Dixon recalls the coffins floating in the basement and said they were moved to the hay house at Shop Fork and were finally sold to Ryan's Funeral Home at Martin.

For whatever reason our parents and grandparents filled our hearts with stories of "haints" and "ghosties", we were terrified of graveyards — after the sun went down. Tony Whitaker and his brother, Dave, decided to play a little joke on one of the Martin girls.

Archie Beverly, a quiet, shy fellow, was dating one of the Martin girls. To get to the graveyard from the Fountain, one angled down toward the baseball diamond. There were, Tony said, two sets of Martins, one that lived across the bridge and then up over the cemetery to get to the other Martins and that was the home of the girl Beverly was dating.

"Archie was taking her home one Saturday night and my brother, Allen, and his bunch decided to play a trick on Archie. Allen went home, got a sheet, and he and his buddies hid behind one of the biggest tombstones they could find. Allen later told me," Tony said, "that there, in the moonlight, came shy Archie Beverly and the little Martin girl, up over the rise of the hill, they topped the hill and they were at the cemetery. Allen let out a big groan, and they stopped. Covered with that sheet, Allen stepped out from behind the tombstone, extended his arms and moaned again.

Allen said, "Tony, I never in all my life seen a gun as long nor a barrel as big around as the one Archie pulled out of his shoulder holster! He cocked the hammer and I think he's still standing there today, 'cause we really took off!"

Tony Whitaker will never forget the caskets displayed in the basement of the company store at Wayland:

"Coffins were stored in the basement. I used to stock meat for Ray Law, and one day, things were slow and they told me to go over to the big store and down into the basement, to go to row so-and-so, aisle so-and-so and get something. I tried to please them, and I stayed a long time, hunting the article they'd sent me after. They turned the lights off and locked me in the basement and — I ran into those caskets! I can't describe how scared I was!"

Mr. and Mrs. Pittman, Nancy's parents, are buried in Martin's Cemetery, Nancy said, "Because my dad always wanted to be buried there, facing the town of Wayland."

There aren't many funerals today at Martin Cemetery in Wayland. Bob Wallace and I talked of this: Mostly, he said, folks are buried at Davidson Memorial, up the river at Prestonsburg, or the biggest one in the county at Ivel, and another at Van Lear. These three have perpetual care and as so many family units have splintered over such great distances, perpetual care has become important.

But through it all, there was the shining beacon of the company store — to shroud you, put you in a coffin, and sell flowers for your burying.

Like Ruben Lafferty said, "The company had you from the cradle to the grave."

Barbs & Bouquets

By Marty Backus

There are times when it seems I have more things to write about than space. Today is one of those times.

Take for instance the possibility that Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre might close if this season doesn't fare better than last. It's not that remote an issue if receipts don't perk up. Heavy debts, rain, parking and lack of local support may just be the ones to pull the curtain down.

To make matters even worse, the construction of the park's new convention center just might be the culprit that unintentionally affects the audience turnout. The construction is on part of the theater's parking lot.

The success of efforts by the theater's backers to find a solution to the expected parking dilemma won't be known until the season is in progress.

What is known is we need to do our bit to save the theater. It's been around for 26 years and has become quite a tourist attraction. Maybe many of us don't know just how big because we've never been to the theater in the first place.

Why not take one evening and attend a performance. There are no snobs there, just a bunch of ordinary folks wanting and providing good entertainment to thousands who visit Floyd County each year. Let's don't let this be the last year we have this opportunity.

On another subject, I'm really ticked off about the title some California group labeled their tour of our section of the country: "Appalachia: Third World in the US."

The tour is supposed to take a few people through Tennessee, Virginia and Kentucky so they might — as they put it — "meet with grassroots organizers and learn about the way they are working to solve their problems, not to stare at poverty." I bet!

This group reportedly has already toured several other places they must think Appalachia compares to, Zimbabwe and Mozambique.

I'm thin-skinned about subjects like this. It makes me feel as if the great white hunter is bringing in a safari to view the natives and buy some of our quaint trinkets.

Oh, well, maybe one of these days I'll call the San Francisco group sponsoring this trip to Appalachia and see if they can arrange a tour for us. A group could pitch in $500 each and travel to the bay city area to study all the fruitcakes they have there.

Quickly, on other subjects. Congratulations to the Prestonsburg Rotary Club for being the most active and best club in their district. Added to this, they came in number two for the zone which takes in every state east of the Mississippi. Not bad for a group from Appalachia.

And if you want an enjoyable evening, make arrangements now to attend the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce banquet. Speaker will be Honorable Judge Ray Corns, the Frankfort judge who started all of the Kentucky school shake up. He is also a great standup joke teller who'll bust your gut.

The banquet will be Thursday, June 21, at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park. Tickets can be bought from the Chamber office at 31 North Lake Dr. in Prestonsburg.

A bunch of fellows I met during the Festival of FACES will have their annual fish fry this Saturday. That's the McDowell Lions Club, who will be putting on the feast at the Minnie Park, beginning at 11 a.m.

Finally, this tidbit from my precinct: At 1:30 p.m., Tuesday, May 29, 108 out of 426 registered voters had cast their votes, or put another way, 75 percent still had not voted.

McConnell's Comments

By Senator Mitch McConnell

OUT-OF-STATE GARBAGE GLUT THREATENS STATE'S ENVIRONMENT

Each day, hundreds of trucks depart cities and towns throughout the Eastern portion of the United States destined for Kentucky. These trucks arrive carrying a cargo that many of us do not want but are forced to take — garbage. Last year, close to a half-million tons of out-of-state garbage was dumped in landfills scattered from Ashland to Paducah. To make matters worse, plans are already in place to construct new, bigger dumps which could easily double or triple the amount of garbage now flooding our state.

These superdumps mean that more New Jersey waste will be contaminating our state's groundwater, more garbage trucks from Pennsylvania will be tearing up our roads, and trash from New York will be polluting our countryside. In spite of the opposition from thousands of Kentuckians, our state is well on its way to becoming the garbage barge of America.

To help Kentucky gain control over this rising tide of waste, I will be introducing a bill that gives the state government in Frankfort the authority to charge haulers a higher fee to dump out-of-state garbage in our landfills rather than the same fee levied on instate garbage. In addition, it will also set up a registration system and database to help local governments keep track of where garbage is coming from and what it contains.

In many cases, counties find it economically advantageous for landfills to accept waste from other states. My legislation recognizes this fact and gives officials the flexibility to impose the fee on whomever they choose and in whatever amount they believe is appropriate. If the state wants to keep garbage out, it can impose prohibitively high tariffs on haulers who bring it in. This will ensure that if other states want to send garbage to Kentucky, the residents of those states, and not Kentuckians, pay the true costs associated with disposing of it.

The revenue that is raised from this fee can be used by the state or counties where the landfill is located to pay for road maintenance to handle the increased number of garbage trucks, help landfill operators meet new, more stringent regulations to protect the environment, or create a trust fund that can be used to clean up any contamination from the landfill.

Giving the state government authority to impose higher dumping fees on out-of-state waste represents the first step in controlling this problem. Left unchecked and without regulation, trash brought into Kentucky threatens to turn our state into a garbage pit for the rest of the nation; we can not allow this to happen. By starting now and developing a long-term management plan that emphasizes recycling and other measures, we will be able to dispose of our waste in a responsible, environmentally sound manner that protects our precious natural resources.

Report to Kentucky

By Senator Wendell Ford

KENTUCKY DESERVES THE RIGHT TO SAY "DON'T DUMP ON ME"

I am pleased to report that I have cosponsored a bill to help Kentucky and other states solve one of our fastest growing problems, the dumping of garbage across state lines.

With Americans now generating 160 million tons of municipal solid waste a year — 30 percent more than in 1970 — metropolitan areas on the East Coast and elsewhere are running out of landfill space. Their totally unacceptable solution has been to try to turn Kentucky and other states into dumping grounds.

This year alone, approximately 488,000 tons of out-of-state garbage will be dumped in Kentucky landfills. On any given day in Northern Kentucky, for example, 50 semi-trailers will be lined up on country roads leading to existing landfills. With more and more landfills being proposed, this problem is recognized as an increasing threat to our entire state.

Gov. Wallace Wilkinson has raised the possibility of calling a special session of the Kentucky General Assembly to consider issues including a ban on out-of-state garbage.

The catch is that Kentucky and other states have never won the authority to impose such bans, according to Supreme Court interpretations. Unless Congress grants that authority to the states, any restrictions on interstate garbage shipments could be overturned as unconstitutional restrictions on interstate commerce. Citizens of Kentucky and other states clearly should have the right to make up their own minds about accepting or rejecting interstate garbage. And this is why I am cosponsoring legislation, introduced by Sen. Dan Coats (R-IN), to eliminate this intolerable gap in state authority.

Our bipartisan proposal contains simple language giving states the right to refuse out-of-state garbage and to impose fees on any solid waste that might be accepted under state regulations.

This bill also requires the Environmental Protection Agency to collect and distribute detailed information on solid waste shipped in interstate commerce. This provision should be helpful in our drive to forge a national policy on the management of municipal solid waste.

The Congress now is considering several bills dealing with environmental standards as well as with recycling and other programs to reduce our ever increasing generation of solid waste, now placed at 1,300 pounds per person each year.

While strongly supporting the broadest efforts to establish a sound national solid-waste policy, I am currently giving the highest priority to our move to allow states to protect their borders from an onslaught of out-of-state garbage.

As worthy as this legislation is, we are going to need a lot of help from concerned Kentuckians and others to get it passed by a Congress already overloaded with critical issues.

We recently tried without success to attach our bill to the Chemical and Biological Weapons Control Act. My reaction is that we will keep coming back with this bill until we do succeed, whether it is in this Congress or the next one. The people of Kentucky, Indiana and other threatened states deserve no less.

Questions progress on Allen school

Dear Editor,
During the May meeting of the Allen Elementary PTO, the same old, repetitious question was asked: When will the construction of the new school begin?

John Brock, Kentucky Superintendent of Public Instruction, during a special meeting of the Allen PTO in November 1989, informed the PTO that construction of the new school should begin in January 1990. Ervin Akers, the school building contractor, told me in February that construction should begin in March 1990.

Steel has been ordered for several months. Is business so good that it takes six months for the steel company to make the steel? I understand that steel manufacturers are practically in a recession due to lack of orders for durable goods.

Shouldn't the State Department of Education have stricter control over the building contractors? For instance, Akers said it wasn't in his contract when he was supposed to start the new Allen school.

At this rate of progress, would you like for the Department of Education to manage your assets? Have you, the citizens of Floyd County, ever seen or worked for a company that appears to have no checks and balances? Would you hire a builder to build a new home for you with no starting or finishing date in the contract?

Many parents at the Allen Elementary School now realize their children will not be able to attend the new school. They wonder if their grandchildren will.

A sign has been erected at the new school location which gives the names of the contractor, architect, school board members and others. Is this sign another decoy to appease the irate parents and stall for more time?

We concerned citizens of the Allen PTO feel that the truth has been used with reckless abandon. We would like to see some concrete action — the pouring of concrete.

—Joe Hinchman, President
Allen Elementary PTO

Thanks for the memories

Dear Editor,
On behalf of the FACES Festival program committee, I would like to thank all the players, coaches, cheerleaders, bands, majorettes, referees and former music teachers who participated in the first annual basketball "Games of Alumni." These games were a first for Floyd County athletics, but hopefully the beginning of an annual tradition that could include a Hall of Fame organization that could endow a college scholarship award.

Fun was had by the many players and fans. Old rivalries and friendships were renewed during the four exciting games.

Also, I appreciate the various junior pro and elementary basketball leagues throughout the county for their support for the advanced ticket sales and would like to thank all the newspapers, radio and television stations for their dedicated support.

Anyone interested in helping with next year's celebration, please feel free to contact me or any of the coaches.

No one to the rescue

Dear Editor,
This is in regard to the Prestonsburg and Middle Creek fire departments. Last Friday night my preacher's home burned down. The family called several times to the Prestonsburg Fire Department. The fire department told them that they were out of their district. The Shepard family lives in West Prestonsburg!

They proceeded to call Middle Creek Fire Department only to hear that the Shepard family lived too close to Prestonsburg.

...the house burned to the ground. There also was an elderly woman who was rescued from the house by a teenager.

Isn't it a shame that people's lives could be lost because they don't live in the fire department's district. What is even worse is that they ignored a man of God.

I think the fire departments ought to think of saving people's lives instead of whether you're in their district or not.

PRESTONSBURG

Awaiting pickup

This is just an example of some of the large garbage items that awaited county road crews in Maytown and throughout the county as they made their rounds the last two weeks. Maytown/Langley residents worked long and hard to clean up their neighborhood and send a warning to others who may wish to use their community as a dumping ground, they "are watching for you."

Theater

Vaughan said the park's golf course parking lot will also be available to persons attending the theater performances.

Trucks carrying boat trailers, which have traditionally parked at the lower end of the parking lot for the theater, will be directed to the grassy area next to the park office and marina, Vaughan said. That section of the parking lot, which is not hampered by the construction, will then be available to patrons of the theater.

Four buses, which account for a significant part of the theater gate, will still be able to drive up to the ramp near the theater entrance to unload passengers, she said. About eight parking spaces will be available near the theater for handicapped patrons.

Vaughan also said Park Superintendent Leon Russell is looking into the possibility of a shuttle bus to transport theater guests to and from May Lodge and for persons who may have difficulty walking from a distant parking space. She urges persons who are concerned for health reasons about the walk to have someone drop them at the theater entrance.

Russell attended the Frankfort meeting along with Vaughan, Jenny Wiley Drama Association President Bill Francis and association board member Nancy Sturgill.

"DON'T FORSAKE US"
Vaughan, in her first year as theater manager, appeals to the public "not to forsake us this year, to be patient with us and to accept the inconvenience for this season."

"We're really concerned people will be afraid (when they see the construction) and won't come to see the shows," she said. "We really need support, patience and understanding."

The support is especially needed since the theater is coming off what Vaughan calls "a disastrous season" in 1989.

Unusually heavy rainfall forced the closing of about a fourth of the performances at the outdoor theater last year. A flood in the winter of 1989 also added to the theater's unexpected expenses when the stage had to be rebuilt at considerable cost to the theater budget.

(Ironically, the convention center, the construction of which is causing problems this year, will make rainouts a problem of the past since it will house the musical productions in case of rain in 1991.)

"If the parking situation causes the box office to fall off this summer, we won't be here next year. That's the awful truth," said Vaughan.

Still paying off a debt of close to $200,000 amassed when Virginia Polytechnic Institute ran the theater in the 1970s, Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre will collapse if this season is unsuccessful, Vaughan warned.

She added that members of the Jenny Wiley Drama Association, which oversees the 26-year-old theater, have signed personal bank notes to finance the season. "They cannot be expected to continue to do that," the manager said.

The cost of this year's 72 performances will be about $300,000, she said. Another $20,000 goes toward the debt. "Ticket money doesn't begin to cover that. We need additional support from area residents, and we badly need volunteers to help with fundraising and to serve as ushers and seamstresses," she said.

To help allay expenses, Vaughan said the theater this year is marketing several souvenir items, including mugs, bumper stickers, tee shirts and sweatshirts. In addition, Vaughan, business manager Connelly McCray and board members have spent the last several months speaking to civic groups throughout the region, informing them about the productions and asking for attendance and financial support.

"The theater is very important to economic development in this area. If we lose it, there is nothing to replace it or take up the slack."

Tedi Vaughan, JWSMT manager

Ticket prices for a local production range from $3 to $9, which Vaughan said compares favorably with the cost of professional performances in Louisville and Lexington where more than $30 per ticket is not unusual.

Pointing out that the theater is the Big Sandy region's only cultural tourist attraction, Vaughan said, "The theater is very important to economic development in this area. If we lose it, there is nothing to replace it or take up the slack."

Vaughan applauds the efforts of area business in support of the theater. She is especially proud of the three nights this summer that have been sold out to area organizations.

The Floyd County Chamber of Commerce has committed to having its members fill the theater on June 27. The Pike County Chamber of Commerce has likewise bought all the tickets for June 28 for Pike County Employee Appreciation Night. Wolfe Creek Collieries in Martin County has bought out the Aug. 25 performance for its employees.

Assuming the theater survives this season, the state Parks Department has committed some $500,000 for renovations to the facility next year, the first significant evidence of state support in the local theater's history, which dates to 1964. Vaughan said the state has funded renovations at other drama sites many times over.

The local operation gets about one-tenth of its funding from the state through the Kentucky Arts Council. The other 90 percent has to come from ticket sales and local contributions.

Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre, which employs primarily Kentucky college students, is the only musical theater in the country that does four shows in rotating repertory each summer. Last year, the persons came from 35 states and five foreign countries to view the shows.

"(State officials) assured us they would do everything in their power to make sure the public is inconvenienced as little as possible (in parking) this season."

In Loving Memory Of James Oakley Hall
June 29, 1989

As I walk among the flowers that bloom in May, My thoughts go back a few years to that very special day. On that wonderful day that came now too soon, I realized during our love was in full bloom. Like a flower, it grew more beautiful each day. There was but one difference, our love will never wither or fade. The seasons continue to come and go, but thoughts are still of how I love you so. I heard somewhere "Blessed are they that walk in love, For they also will walk with God above. I have a prayer each day, each night, That the Lord will turn the dark to light. That some wonderful day our unending love, Will bloom again in God's garden above.
Your Wife, Ollie

Church's Pine Car Derby a success

Amid much excitement and anticipation and with the accompanying sounds, the second Pine Car Derby was run Sunday, May 20 at 3 p.m. in the fellowship hall of the Wayland United Methodist Church.

The Derby, which was very popular last year and continues to be a highlight with the young people, had 11 entries competing for trophies this year. The race cars are designed and cut from small blocks of pine and then painted, decorated and numbered by the young person entering the race, assisted by a parent, relative or friend. Two or more persons may enter one car.

Winners in the craftsmanship category were Michelle Corbett, first;

Ryan Owens, second; and Brian Crawford, third. In the race the winners were Michelle Corbett, first; Billy Slone, second; and a tie for third place between Melissa Corbett and Brian Crawford.

Serving as judges in the craftsmanship category were Sandra Turner, Elmer Morrison and the church pastor, Rev. Albert Savage Jr. Judges for the race were Pastor Savage and Morrison. Ray Crawford, Sunday School Superintendent, was announcer, master of ceremonies and scorekeeper, and Beverly Corbett, Church Youth Coordinator and Derby Coordinator, presented the trophies.

Refreshments were available to participants and their families and friends during and after the race.

Drift Woman's Club News

By Linda Elliott

April was a busy month for the Drift Woman's Club with many wonderful events taking place.

The month began with a special called meeting at the home of Linda Elliott, a relatively new member of the club.

The next event was one that the women eagerly await each year, the Interclub Dinner. The dinner was extra special this year because the women had Dr. Mary Pauline Fox as guest speaker. Her talk was of special interest because she spoke about and showed a slide presentation of the wildflowers of Eastern Kentucky.

It came as somewhat of a surprise to find that many of the plants that we normally discard from our garden are really beautiful wildflowers. The club members extend thanks to Dr. Fox for her delightful and educational presentation.

The club also enjoyed a selection of spiritual songs by Debbie Birchfield and her daughters, Wendy and Darla. Through their special selection and their beautiful voices, club members were made to realize just how much the Lord has blessed their lives. Thanks are extended to these ladies who took the time to enrich lives.

There was also an arts and crafts corner where members enjoyed looking at items made by Cecilia Little and Linda Elliott. There were quilts, pillows, dolls and doll clothes. There was also a special display of books written and illustrated by Elliott's first grade class.

The delicious food for the dinner was prepared by the women of the Drift Woman's Club. But the best part of the dinner and the evening was sharing it with friends. The ladies from the Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Woman's Club and many friends and neighbors in the community were invited to share the evening. The friends of the club made the evening very special.

Special guests, in addition to Dr. Fox, were members of the Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Club: LaFay Hughes, Betty Mullins, Alma Souleyrette, Blanch Bammer, Maxine Martin, Libby Martin, Joan Hall, Ina Cooley and Louise West.

Other guests were Helen Stumbo, Violet (Chick) Hall, Chris Kidd, Melvina Thomson, Judy Thomsberry, Juanita Stephens, Vivian Allen, Bonnie Howath, Debbie Birchfield, Darla and Wendy Birchfield, Karen Johnson, Kathryn Youmans and Mrs. Duff.

Club members in attendance were Little, Elliott, Clara Johnson, Anna Sue Stumbo, Mildred Salisbury, Roberta Luxmore, Doris Lawson, Cheryl Hall, Ruby Akers, Karen Slone, Beth Ward and Jerri Turner.

Darla Birchfield sang for the group.

Book spotlights John Deere

"The Toy and The Real McCoy...John Deere Toys and the Real Product They Replicate," a new book which features past and present John Deere toys, is being published by Deere & Company.

In this book, the toys are used to trace the development, growth and diversification of the John Deere product line since the turn of the century.

For over 45 years, the Ertl Company of Dyersville, Iowa, has manufactured the scale-model toys through an agreement with John Deere.

Ralph Hughes, Deere's director of advertising, said the book is written for the thousands of people — both youngsters and adults — who collect scale-model John Deere toys. It features not only farm-product toys, but also toys patterned after John Deere construction and grounds-care equipment.

"Each time a new John Deere toy is introduced by Ertl, collectors ask for more information about the real John Deere product after which the toy was patterned," Hughes said. "The toy carton lists some information; but this book will give the collectors a lot more specifications and performance facts."

The 6x9-inch book will be available at John Deere dealers within the US and from the Ertl Company, Hwy 136 & 20, Dyersville, Iowa, 52040, on July 1. Suggested retail price is $14.95.

Langley residents working hard to clean up

Members of the Langley League continued their cleanup effort this past week, setting out large garbage for the county trucks and even finding an abandoned boat along the roadside.

It is thought by neighbors on Johns Branch-Warco, the road out of Maytown, that this large, run-about fiberglass boat slipped off a truck on a sharp turn. They waited most of the week for the truck driver to return with help to load it back onto their truck and continue on their way.

Apparently, that was not to be so. The boat had been pulled over the embankment, bow-side down, with the stern end in clear sight of motorists who travel this route, becoming a real eyesore.

Residents of Maytown and members of the Langley League brought the discarded boat to the attention of District Two Magistrate Jackie Edford Owens and Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo.

On Thursday, May 24, endloader operator, Bruce Prater of Hueysville, and crew members Arnold Prater and Arnold Daniels of Eastern, stopped long enough at the site to pull the unwieldy boat carcass to the road.

Finally, smashed and leaking water and trash, it was literally put piece by piece into a dump truck to be hauled to the landfill.

"Many people pulled their energies to get the unsightly heap picked up and disposed of properly," said Duna Combs, Langley League member. "The residents of the Langley League also appreciated the cleanup of the illegal dump on the hill near Johns Branch-Warco Road.

"Anyone wishing to continue to dump there must be made aware that Maytown will be on the lookout for illegal dumping," she continued. "Maytown is working hard to remain a clean place to reside and illegal dumping is NOT welcome."

Torn to pieces

This runabout had to be chopped to pieces by the county endloader in order to fit in the back of the county truck and hauled to the dump. Someone had dumped the boat over the side of a hill at Johns Branch-Warco and the residents called Magistrate Jackie Edford Owens to have it removed.

Incinerator

medical waste disposal and it would meet requirements of any state," said Robert Ford in response to what he considers community misperceptions.

Barney Walker, who lives next to the hospital, described, during Saturday's meeting, changes in the environment in the area since the incinerator first fired up. "We used to have all the noises of the night, but now there's deadly silence," Walker said. "There are no frogs in the branch, and I've found dead birds in the yard."

"Is this just a coincidence? I don't know. But I do know we have a problem, a bad problem," he said.

Echoing her husband's concern, Phyllis Walker said, "The creek is dead. When you go to bed, you don't hear any frogs. There are three little girls who live nearby. I'm concerned about them. I'm concerned about my neighbors, my mother, patients at the hospital."

Ford, responding Tuesday to the allegations, asked, "Has anyone seen a dead frog and sent it off for analysis?"

Phyllis Walker also told the group that she had been called by a physician at the hospital "who accused us of trying to shut down the medical center." She added, "That's not our aim at all."

Another local resident, Deborah Johnson, read to the Saturday audience several pages relating to research on the effects of pollution and physical disorders caused by chemicals and typical medical wastes.

Again in response, Ford said no chemicals are burned in the incinerators. The facility deals strictly with medical wastes such as needles, medicine bottles, gloves, masks, body tissue and blood.

Greg Wilcox of Auxier said his primary concern is not related to the burning of wastes from the local hospital. "My primary concern is if the incinerator is strictly for Highlands only. When you go to dragging garbage from out of the county or out of state, you're playing with fire," Wilcox told the audience.

"We have turned down wastes from out of state," Ford said. "We never had any intention of having a large incinerator that would serve needs outside of this area."

Ford added that wastes are accepted from medical facilities in Pike, Johnson, Martin, Rowan and Magoffin counties, where other means of medical waste disposal are not available. "There's not enough medical waste in Eastern Kentucky to merit an incinerator any larger than what we have. It takes five counties to get 1500 pounds of waste," he said. "We then reduce it to 100 pounds, fitting into a 30-gallon waste can."

He indicated that having one "state-of-the-art" facility, such as Medisin's, saves several area hospitals from having inadequate disposal equipment. "Paul B. Hall (medical center) in Paintsville and Our Lady of the Way in Martin both shut down their less efficient incinerators to use this one."

Several who live near the incinerator complained Saturday of "gray and yellow ash" on their cars. The problem accelerates during rain or when "the air is heavy," residents said.

Ford contends that the ash does not come from the incinerator. "Our incinerators have been inspected twice by the State Environmental Protection Agency and found to be operating within Clean Air Standards. Stack emissions are virtually nonexistent due to the dual chamber high technology incinerators we operate," the manager said.

Ford also said the steam that residents have reported seeing come from the incinerator stacks is actually coming from the hospital's giant air conditioning stacks, located near the incinerator. He said that the hospital, because of its size and cooling needs, requires an extensive air conditioning system with two stacks.

"When it rains or there's a lot of moisture in the air, more condensation is created in the air conditioning vents" and results in the emission of steam. Because of the location of the incinerator and the hospital's cooling stacks, the steam sometimes appears to be coming from the incinerator but is not, he said.

Johnny Ross of the state Environmental Protection Agency reported that samples of the ash have been taken by the agency and sent to a laboratory in Frankfort. He said he expected to have the results by Wednesday (today) or Thursday.

Friday: Point/Counterpoint continues. Residents question who runs Medisin and why; Ford responds.

A burning issue

Horn's Chapel on US 23 north of Prestonsburg was full Saturday as local residents met to discuss their concerns over a medical waste incinerator at Highlands Regional Medical Center. A spokesman for the incinerator, operated by Medisin Inc., however, says the concerns are unfounded. (Photo by Pam Shingler)

Prestonsburg planning meeting scheduled

Prestonsburg Mayor Ann Latta has scheduled a planning meeting for Thursday, June 7, to discuss how to best appropriate the $250,000 appropriated from the state budget for downtown revitalization of Prestonsburg.

Rep Greg Stumbo was instrumental in securing these funds, making Prestonsburg one out of only four cities in Kentucky to receive the award. The others are Danville, Richmond and Harlan. Danville and Richmond will receive the funding this July, for the 1990-91 fiscal year. Prestonsburg and Harlan will obtain the funds in the second year of the biennium, beginning in July 1991.

"There are very few limitations on how this money can be used," said Latta. "However, it is a one-time appropriation, and we want to be sure it is used as wisely as possible to achieve maximum results."

"In order to do this, we need to start planning now. The Council's Economic Development Committee and I have already discussed some possible uses, but we would like to have the public's input and assistance."

Citizens are invited to attend the June 7 meeting at 7 p.m. in the City Council room of the Municipal Building to discuss plans. Anyone unable to come but having ideas to share, can contact Mayor Latta or one of the Council Committee members, B.R. Collins (chairperson), Mike Vance, Danny Hamilton and Charles Hale, or any other Council member.

"A quarter of a million dollars to spend on our downtown will have a major impact on Prestonsburg for many years," Latta said. "I urge everyone to make an effort to attend this meeting."

"Walk For Life" set for Saturday

Alternatives and Jenny Wiley State Resort Park will cosponsor a "Walk for Life" this Saturday, June 2.

Alternatives is a pro-life crisis pregnancy center, helping women find alternatives to abortion. The event will begin at the Amphitheater parking lot at 10 a.m.

Anyone interested in participating and/or supporting this effort can call 886-2025 and plan to attend.

Telethon: Reaching out to children

Since 1962, the University of Kentucky Hospital has been helping the children of Kentucky. Thousands of those children need specialized health care. Over the years, the hospital has expanded its medical specialists and facilities to meet the complex problems of its young patients. But quality health care is expensive.

For that reason, the UK Hospital is participating in the 1990 Children's Miracle Network Telethon on Saturday and Sunday, June 2 and 3. The telethon will be broadcast live from Disneyland by WLEX-TV (Lexington) and WYMT-TV (Hazard). It will begin at 9 p.m. on Saturday and continue for 21 hours until 6 p.m. on Sunday. During the telethon's local segments, children from across Kentucky will be featured as "miracle children." Specialty programs in pediatrics will be highlighted, along with UK physicians, nurses and other health professionals.

This year's honorary chairpersons are former UK football coach Jerry Claiborne and Faye Claiborne. WLEX-TV co-hosts are Bonnie Krasik, Stuart Shepard and Mike Barry. WYMT-TV co-hosts are Tony Turner and Jay Crawford.

This is the third year the UK Hospital has participated in the Children's Miracle Network Telethon. The UK Hospital is the only hospital to be involved in the national telethon. One of the most important aspects of this telethon is that all money raised in Kentucky stays in Kentucky to benefit the UK Hospital's pediatric program. The success of last year's Kentucky telethon, which raised more than $216,000, demonstrated how much Kentuckians care about the health of children.

Hall marries in Cleveland

The gracious custom of an open-wedding ceremony was observed April 17 at the First Catholic Church of Cleveland, Ohio. The bride, Julie Hall, wore a mint-green gown with a mother-of-pearl necklace and black pumps. Hall and her new husband Mr. Clarke were joined in marriage by Father Dan Fredrico. During the ceremony, Tammy Hurt sang "The Right, Left Hand." Serving as the bridesmaids were Barbara Carter and Melissa Johnson, both of Pikeville. Both were dressed in matching mint-green gowns and black pumps. Attending the ceremony were members of the local bank where the bride has been employed for 32 years. The new couple will reside in Lackey after a brief stay in Cleveland.

Smith to lead chamber

P'VILLE TIGERS CLAIM 2ND STRAIGHT TITLE

Coach Russell Shepherd

P'Burg short of moundsmen

What was a fear at the beginning of the year showed up for the Prestonsburg Blackcats in the championship game of the 15th Region high school baseball tournament — inexperience at the pitching position.

That was a big concern for Prestonsburg High School head baseball coach Russell Shepherd before the first pitch was thrown to start the year.

Prestonsburg found the lack of any consistency in the players who took to the mound in the final game against Kentucky's seventh ranked baseball team, the Paintsville Tigers. The sight was not pretty for Blackcat fans as the Tigers manhandled the Blackcats to the tune of 19-3.

The difference between the two teams can be found in the pitching department. Prestonsburg had to go with its two aces, Tim Watkins and John Clark, in games one and two. Both were ineligible to pitch in the championship game. So Shepherd was forced to go with inexperienced arms in the championship game.

Chris Cavins, a sophomore, got the starting assignment for Prestonsburg and pitched some good baseball for two- and two-thirds innings when he started to tire. The Tigers jumped on the young pitcher, who is going to be a good one, for five quick runs in their six-run third.

With one out, Greg Slone doubled and stole third. Tucker Howard, who drew a lot of walks in the tournament, some intentional, walked behind Slone's two-bagger. Blankenship hit a slow roller to third where Stuart Robinson elected to come home with the ball and Slone was safe at the plate.

After Billy Phelps walked, Todd Porter came through with a single up the middle to score Howard and Blankenship. After Walt Crace walked, Jeremy Holbrook singled, scoring Porter and Crace for an 8-1 lead.

The Tigers got four more in the fourth inning with Slone leading off with a home run over the 380-foot mark in the inning. Howard reached on an error and scored on a base hit by Porter.

Phelps, who walked, came across on a sacrifice fly by Collins. Jeremy Holbrook then singled in his brother, John Holbrook, who was pinch running for Crace at second base.

Paintsville had scored two runs in the first inning on two sacrifice flies off the bats of Slone and Blankenship. Matt Williams had the only hit in the inning.

Prestonsburg scored in the top of the third when, with two out, Ray Collins tripled to right center and scored on a base hit by Clark. Chris Slone singled and Jason Storey struck out ending the inning.

In the Blackcats' half of the fifth, again with two out, Collins walked. Clark grounded to short and the throw to second went astray, putting runners on first and second. Chris Slone got his third hit of the game in driving in Collins. Storey then laced a base hit to right to score Clark. Watkins struck out, ending the inning.

Paintsville took a 17-3 lead with five runs in the fifth inning. Tucker Howard flied out to center, one of the rare times he had to hit the ball, and Blankenship skied to left. Billy Phelps drew a two-out walk, and Porter followed with an RBI single. John Holbrook, pinch hitting in the game, singled up the middle to score Porter. Joe Collins then laced a base hit to left, driving in Holbrook from second base. Jeremy Holbrook finished off the scoring with a two-run triple against Aaron Tucker.

Cavins took the loss for the Blackcats, with Howard notching the win. Mickey VanHoose pitched the bottom of the seventh for Paintsville. Paintsville collected 14 hits in the game while the Blackcats managed just six, with Slone getting three.

Howard struck out 11 batters, including the side in the second inning. Prestonsburg's pitching had no strikeouts in the game.

Prestonsburg stranded seven base runners, and Paintsville left eight on base.

Prestonsburg ends its season at 23-12, and Paintsville will advance to sectional play with a 32-8 record. The Tigers are able to go four deep in the starting rotation with Crace, VanHoose and Tucker being their big three.

The Tigers are also a favorite to win the state championship this year after being runners-up last year. A strong Rowan County team will be a hurdle for the Tigers. In the sectional at Morehead, the Tigers will face the Patriots of Knott County Central (14th Regional), 30-2, in the opening round.

Blackcats score 5 in 6th to oust Pikeville, 5-3

Prestonsburg Coach Russell Shepherd's Blackcats grew accustomed to having to come from behind in several games during the regular season. The game against the Pikeville Panthers was no exception.

The Blackcats went against a good Pikeville team in the semifinals of the 15th Regional high school baseball tournament last week at Pikeville's W.C. Hamby Athletic Complex.

Pikeville held a 2-0 lead on the Blackcats behind the strong arm of Johnny Hale, who had checked the Blackcats on just one hit, a first inning single by Chris Slone. Hale seemed almost unhittable for the Cats, as their bats were silenced.

In the Prestonsburg half of the sixth inning, the Blackcats finally got their bats out of the bag and went to work. John Clark, who was the winning pitcher, drew a lead off a walk against Hale. Slone then tripled to right field scoring Clark. Jason Storey, who seems to like to hit the first pitch, lined the first pitch from Hale to center field to score Slone and tie the game at 2-2.

After Hale ran the count to two balls and one strike to Tim Watkins, Jess Baird came on to relieve Hale, and Baird finished, walking Watkins. Stuart Robinson, who seemed to have his problems at the plate in the tournament, hit a deep drive to right field that was dropped by the rightfielder, loading the bases.

Neil Slone put the Blackcats ahead with a sacrifice fly to right, scoring Storey. Scott Stevens walked with the bases loaded, forcing in Watkins from third. Robinson scored the fifth run of the inning when Ray Collins popped to foul territory and the ball was caught by the first baseman. Pikeville got a break in the sixth inning with two outs. Matt Adkins lifted a fly ball out to short where Collins caught the ball and then dropped it — something very uncharacteristic of him.

That opened the gate for the Panthers, as Jess Bailey singled, Chris Lawson walked to load the bases and Shane Hall followed him with a base on balls to force in Adkins. Hale then hit a long drive to center field that centerfielder Tim Watkins caught against the fence.

The Blackcats squandered a chance to score in the top of the seventh when, with one out, Storey walked and Watkins doubled to right field with Storey stopping at third. Robinson then struck out against a drawn-in infield and Neil Slone flied out to right.

Pikeville went out in order in the seventh inning as the Blackcats closed the game with a picturebook double play. After Jerry Ray struck out, Howard singled to keep the Panthers' hope alive. Baird then grounded to short for a 6-3 double play.

Prestonsburg left eight men on base and Pikeville stranded 10. Clark was the winning pitcher, and Hale took the loss, striking out seven. Clark fanned 12 batters in the contest striking out the side in both the first and second innings while issuing four bases on balls. Clark had eight strikeouts after just three innings of work.

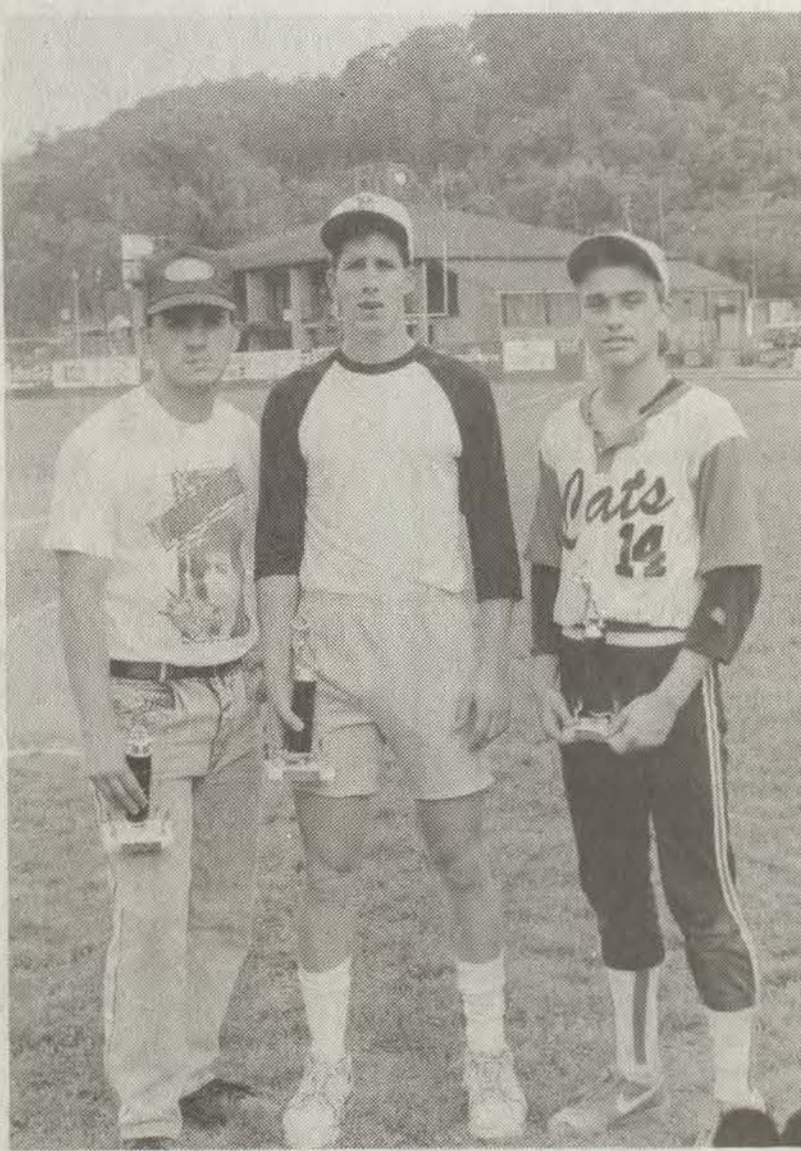

It was another come-from-behind effort for the Blackcats, who had to come back to defeat Belfry in an earlier game.

All-Tourney team: Slone, Clark, Spurlock

After the Paintsville Tigers won the 15th Region high school baseball tournament, the All-Tournament team was introduced to the crowd. Three players from Floyd County were placed on the team by their performance in the annual affair.

Kevin Spurlock, senior catcher with the Allen Central Rebels, was named. Spurlock has been like a coach on the field for coach Anthony Moore this year. Spurlock hit 10 home runs this year for the Rebels, with two in the championship series against Phelps. Spurlock has been courted by several colleges, including Louisville and Alice Lloyd.

"Alice Lloyd has already offered him a scholarship," said Moore of his standout catcher. "Louisville has called a couple of times." Spurlock will be a big addition to any college baseball program. He is an excellent defensive catcher as well as a good defensive third baseman. He can hit with power and spray the ball to all fields.

From runner-up Prestonsburg, senior second baseman Chris Slone made the All-Tournament team. A steady hitter, who rarely struck out and always made good contact, was also a steady performer in the field.

Slone always gave 110 per cent in a game. He is a leader and will attend the University of Kentucky this fall as he pursues a career in engineering. Sophomore John Clark, the ace of the Blackcat pitching rotation, made the 11-man All-Tournament team. Clark was the only returning experienced pitcher for coach Russell Shepherd's ball team. The young righthander defeated Belfry in a complete game in the first round of the 15th Regional tournament.

Clark has two more years ahead of him on the Blackcat squad. Rest assured that when it comes time for this young man to graduate, there will be some colleges knocking on the door.

Prestonsburg's other standout senior, Ray Collins, did not make the All-Tournament team, as the players were named because of what they did in the tournament. However, that does not indicate the type of player Collins is. He may not have had the great tournament, but there is no denying the youngster's ability to play the game of baseball.

He has excellent range at short-stop and swings a potent bat. He can hit with power and is a team leader. Several major colleges are interested in Collins.

Others from the region who were named to the All-Tournament team include Mickey VanHoose, Billy Phelps, Greg Slone, Walt Crace and Todd Porter from Paintsville. From Pikeville were Jason Howell and Shane Hall.

Paintsville's Tucker Howard was voted the tournament's Most Valuable Player.

Rebels play Tigers tough in 6-2 Regional loss

Scoring 43 runs in the previous two games would have been enough to intimidate any opponent on the baseball field.

However, the Allen Central Rebels did not feel intimidated, but took to the field believing they could be a "giant killer" in this year's 15th Regional high school baseball tournament played at the W.C. Hamby Athletic Complex in Pikeville.

The Rebels, 15-6, faced state power, Paintsville, 30-8, Friday night in the semifinals of the tournament. The Tigers did not score 20-plus runs against Anthony Moore's Rebels as they had done in their previous games. The Rebels were never out of the game as Brett Meadows, 8-1, lost for the first time this year, 6-2, to the seventh ranked Paintsville Tigers.

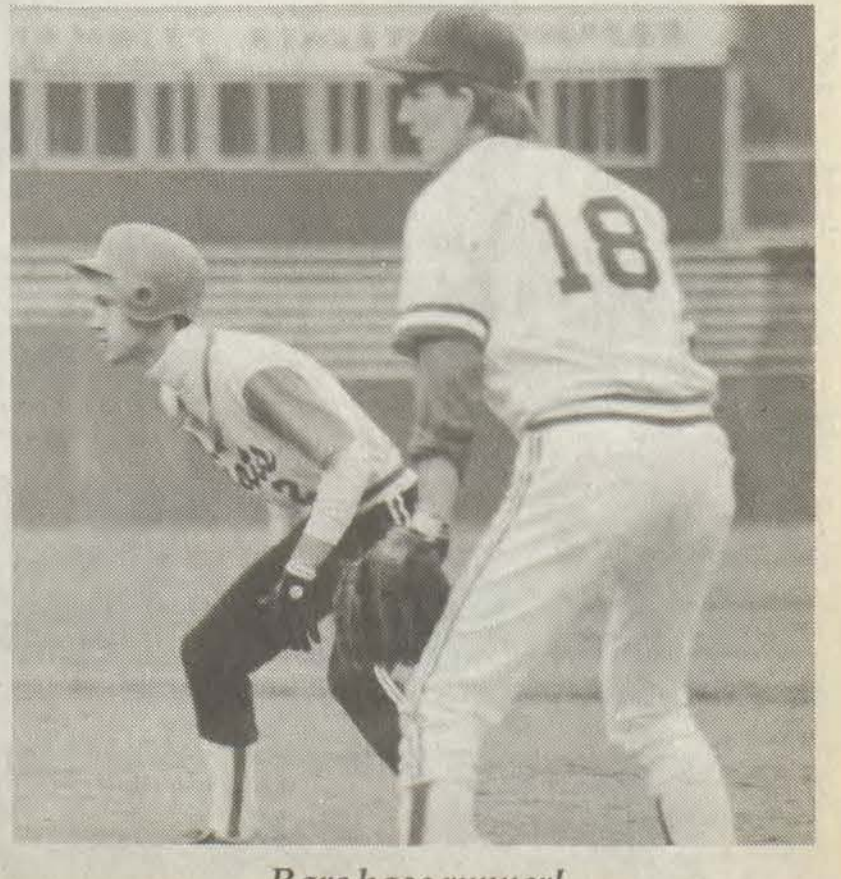

Paintsville scored three runs in the top of the third to take a 3-1 lead over Allen Central. The Rebels held a 1-0 lead up to that point. With one out, Matt Williams reached on a throwing error by shortstop Stewart Hall and went to second on the over-throw. Tiger catcher Greg Slone then lined a triple off the left field wall, scoring Williams with the tying run.

On the play, leftfielder Terry Spurlock was shaken up as he hit the wall hard in an effort to catch the ball. Spurlock tried to stay in the game, but a batter later had to leave. Rocky Blankenship's sacrifice fly got Slone home with the go ahead run. Blankenship then scored on a double by Billy Phelps to make it 3-1.

Allen Central scored a single run in the bottom of the fourth and left the bases loaded in the inning, missing a big scoring opportunity. With one out, Chuck Laferty reached on an error from third baseman Tucker Howard. When Steve Robinson bounced to short, the throw to second to force Laferty was wide of second and all runners were safe.

Hall then struck out, and John Martin, who came on to replace Terry Spurlock, walked to load the bases. Mickey Parsons then reached on an infield hit that scored Laferty. Cotton Parsons then bounced back to the mound to end the inning.

Meadows experienced some wildness in the top of the fifth inning, as he walked Slone and Howard leading off the frame. One out See REBELS, B 2 later, Phelps lined a base hit to center, scoring Slone. Joe Collins was then intentionally passed to load the bases. Todd Porter bounced to short which forced Phelps at second, allowing Howard to cross the plate for a 5-2 Tigers lead.

Paintsville got its final run in the top of the sixth on a sacrifice fly to center field that scored Jeremy Holbrook, who had walked leading off the inning. The Tigers left the bases loaded as Collins struck out ending the inning.

Allen Central scored its first run in the first inning on a base hit by Mickey Parsons, who journeyed to third on an overthrow at first base. On a bouncer back to the mound by Cotton Parsons, Mickey Parsons was thrown out going to third base. Parsons moved up on two passed balls and came around to score on a double by Kevin Spurlock.

Meadows, who normally is a strike out pitcher, fanned just two batters in the game. The big Rebel righthander allowed the otherwise heavy hitting Tigers just five hits. The Tigers' ace righthander, Walt Crace, was the winning pitcher. Crace fanned 13 batters in the game, striking out the side in both the second and third innings and yielding only four hits.

Allen Central finishes the year with a 15-7 record while Paintsville goes on at 31-8.

Tournament play

Blackcats overcome Belfry in eight, 8-5

In the Pirates' sixth, Mark Williamson singled to open the inning—only the third hit for Belfry off Watkins. Chris Phillips flied to center and Shawn Ward laid down a bunt that was bobbled by Robinson at third base that went for a hit.

Williamson and Ward moved up a base on a passed ball by Neil Slone. Designated hitter Scott Blackburn laced a single to center to bring in both Williamson and Ward and give the Pirates a 4-2 lead.

Prestonsburg, coming to bat for what seemed like the last time in the game, did not quit—a quality of this team all season. Pinch hitter Tim Lester hit for Jason Crisp and singled to left field. Ray Collins then hit a grounder to shortstop that got through the legs of J.J. Hylton. Clark scored Lester with a single to make it 4-3.

On a bunt attempt by Chris Slone the Pirate catcher tried for a pick off of Clark and threw the ball away with Collins crossing the plate with the tying run. Prestonsburg went up 5-4 on a sacrifice fly by Watkins. Slone was caught between second and third and tagged out at third base to end the inning.

In the bottom of the seventh inning, the Pirates played a run to tie the game at 5-5. Skaggs drew a lead off walk on a 3-2 pitch after fouling several of Watkins' pitches off. Hylton, who had struck out the two previous times at bat, hit a ball that looked like the game was over. However, the ball hit the top of the fence and stayed in play, allowing Skaggs to score, and Hylton stopped at second.

Watkins then bowed his neck and struck out Williamson. Phillips hit a liner headed for right field and a game winning RBI, but it was not to be, as Storey made a tremendous stab at the liner for an out. Ward then grounded to second to stop the rally.

Prestonsburg broke the 5-5 tie with three big runs in the top of the eighth inning. Stuart Robinson collected his third hit of the game with a line drive to center field. Howell came on to pinch run for Robinson, and Neil Slone hit a gapper to right center field for a double to score Howell from first base.

"You didn't quit," is the way Prestonsburg head baseball coach Russell Shepherd addressed his team after the Blackcats' exciting 8-5 come from behind victory over the Belfry Pirates Thursday evening at Pikeville in the 15th Regional high school baseball tournament.

"We didn't die and we came back," Shepherd said, "and that's a good sign."

Tim Watkins, who pitched a super ball game, was the winner and Pirate starter Mike Gallimore took the loss. Watkins fanned seven batters in the contest, getting back to back strikeouts of the Pirates in the bottom of the third inning to stall a Belfry rally.

The Blackcats played the Pirates tough through six innings when the Pirates scored two runs to break a 2-2 tie and go ahead 4-2 in the bottom of the sixth.

Prestonsburg took a 2-0 lead in the first inning when Ray Collins hit Gallimore's first pitch of the game to left field for a base hit. John Clark then drew a walk, and Chris Slone sacrificed the runners to second and third. Jason Storey grounded to first, scoring Collins, and after the Pirates mishandled the ball trying to get Clark at third, Clark scored on the errant throw.

Belfry scored an unearned run in the bottom of the first without a hit. Shawn Hager grounded to short and then Joey Skaggs laid down a bunt that Watkins fielded and threw wide of first, past Storey. Skaggs circled the bases, and when Storey threw to third to nail Skaggs, the throw eluded third baseman Stuart Robinson and Skaggs scored.

The score remained 2-1 until the bottom of the fifth inning when Belfry scored an unearned run to tie the game at 2-2. With one out, Hager singled to center and stole second. Skaggs grounded out to short and on the throw Hager went to third, where again an errant throw from Storey to Robinson allowed Hager to pick himself up and come home to tie the game.

Gallimore didn't have time to tire in the game as the Blackcats were going to the plate and first pitch hitting for some quick innings. Watkins, by the same token, was not getting enough rest between innings.

David James came on to pitch, relieving Gallimore, and walked Aaron Tucker. Crisp then laid down a good bunt out in front of the plate and when Williamson elected to go to third base to get Brandon Lowe, who was running for Slone, the ball got through the third baseman. Lowe picked himself up and came home. With one out, Clark walked to load the bases, and Chris Slone grounded out to first, scoring Tucker.

Belfry got a two out single from David Finson in the bottom of the eighth, but Watkins got Hager to end the game with a fly ball to right field.

Neil Slone had the game winning RBI. Clark made two great catches in center field to rob the Pirates of extra bases.

Prestonsburg stranded eight runners in the game and Belfry also left eight men on base. Prestonsburg committed eight errors in the game while Belfry was guilty of four.

Turner streak stops at 15

McDowell downs Wayland, 5-2

The McDowell Stars, coming off a disappointing loss to the Martin Braves, rebounded and defeated the Wayland Dodgers, 5-2, in the Beaver Creek Little League last Friday evening.

The big story here is that David Turner's consecutive streak of 15 straight hits ended. Turner came into the game having hit safely in his last 13 times at bat. Turner singled the first two times at bat and grounded out to third base his third time up, thus ending the streak considered to be a record.

"The third baseman went in the hole at shortstop and made the play and threw David out," said his father David Turner Sr.

The Stars seemed down after the loss to the Braves when rain washed out five runs the Stars scored in the top of the fifth inning. However, McDowell scored three runs in the third inning and held the Dodgers scoreless over the final five innings for the 5-2 win.

Wayland took the lead in the first inning, scoring two runs. The Stars came back and tied the game with two of their own in the bottom of the first. Stevens walked in the Stars first and scored on a base hit by Turner. Nick Little reached on an error and the errant throw allowed Turner to score the second run and tie the game.

In McDowell's third inning, Terrance Mullins walked and Turner got his second hit of the game, 15th straight, and both runners came home on a long home run by Brian Adams for a three-run home run.

Pete Dawson was the winning pitcher and recorded 10 strikeouts. The victory improved McDowell's record to 6-2.

THE TOPWATER TWITCH

It's a silvery, shimmering dinner plate, one made of an ethereal china and flecked with glimmers of pure golden sunlight. It is also a boundary separating the air breathers from the gill-equipped, a boundary that often serves as a common meeting ground. For here the fish find food, from insects to frogs, mice to baby ducks, and men find a thrill unlike any other in the world of sportfishing.

Trout sip daintily at floating insects, and bluegill pop most anything falling onto the water's surface. But it is those species of fish that we refer to as bass that smash helpless swimming creatures (or reasonable facsimiles thereof) in explosions of fins and foam and cause our hearts to skip and stutter.

Found for pound, black bass, striped bass and white/striped bass hybrids provide more topwater entertainment than all other freshwater species combined. If you need a quick burst of energy, there's nothing like the eruption of an 8-pound bucketmouth on a Zara Spook, or a 30-pound striper violently engulfing a Red Fin, to get the adrenalin surging.

"Topwater plugs are one of the best lures in existence for catching big fish. But even if that were not true," says angling legend Tom Mann, "topwater fishing would still be the most enjoyable way in the world to catch fish."

Tom Mann, one of the greatest bass fishermen of all time, ranks topwater fishing among his list of favorite techniques. Hailing from Eufaula, Ala., Mann was not only a founding father of modern day bass fishing, but also a leader in the angling industry.

Under his guidance, Mann's Bait Company and Hummingbird became household names (in fishing households anyway), and the Fish World Company, Tom's most recent undertaking, is a rapidly growing tackle manufacturer.

Topwater fishing, more so than any other form, is a learned art. From choosing the plugs to knowing when, where and how to work them, no other angling technique is so seemingly simple yet so covertly complicated.

"The key to topwater fishing," says Mann, "is knowing when to fish different types of plugs. Basically, I use minnow-type twitchers in calm water next to shallow cover, poppers and chuggers when the water is choppy, and a stick bait when I'm fishing open water or relatively clear and deep water. A prop bait is kind of a catch-all topwater plug in that you can use it in place of any of the other three lure types."

"You just have to experiment to see what the fish prefer. And buzz baits are great lures to use when the fish are hitting topwater baits but are scattered because you can quickly cover a tremendous amount of water with a buzzer."

Mann says most anglers believe that topwater baits should only be fished in the morning and evening. "That is a grave mistake, for topwaters are often productive throughout the day. In my opinion, the key to using topwater plugs in the middle of the day is fishing them in shade next to cover."

Mann continues, "All topwater plugs are worked with movements of your wrist, and to be a successful topwater fisherman you need to learn the proper technique to fish each type of lure."

"When fishing for black bass, you should concentrate on shallow water structures if the water is at all dingy. In clear water, switch to a stick bait and work it overtop deeper structures in open water. Also, you should always use long casts in clear water and decrease the size of your line. For all around use, 10-pound test is ideal for topwater plugs, but you should increase the line size when fishing around heavy cover.

"The color of the plug is the last thing you should worry about," Mann states emphatically. "Fish are hitting the bait's silhouette and its movement. Those pretty colors are to catch the fisherman and his wallet."

MINNOW TYPE TWITCH BAITS
Typical black bass baits of this sort include the original Rapala, Storm's Thunderstick, Bomber's Long-A, Bagley's Bang-O-Lure, Mann's Stretch 1-Minus and Fish World's Pogo Minnow.

For the most part, these 4- to 6-inch pencil-like lures are the first topwater baits used in early spring. Cool water means inactive fish, and that calls for a bait with a slow, quiet retrieve — a bait that can be worked at a productive crawl overtop a likely looking spot.

When the surface temperature breaks the 50 degree mark, knowledgeable anglers begin working these lures over hard-bottomed spawning banks, focusing primarily on individual pieces of structure such as stumps and brushpiles.

The basic technique here is to cast the minnow-imitation past the structure, let it sit for a moment, twitch it ever so softly, and then repeat this sequence until the lure is well beyond the structure. As the water warms, the presentation is accelerated. When the fish are aggressive, some anglers will "slosh" the bait over the surface, sometimes moving it three or four feet at a time.

In the spring of the year, these baits are tremendously effective on largemouths, smallmouths and hybrids when worked over expansive shallow water, gravel flats.

Minnow imitations are superb striper baits as well, though larger lures like 7-inch Cordell RedFins, Storm's Shallow-Mac, Mann's Super Stretch 1-Minus, and 7-inch Rebel minnows are typically used. These gargantuan pieces of plastic are most effective when retrieved slowly and steadily just under the surface so that they leave a V-shaped wake like a fleeing shad.

Likely areas include points dumping into the old river channel, shallow flats which are near deep water and crawling with schools of baitfish, and overtop of underwater humps.

Topwater fishing is not a sport for the faint of heart. But if you happen to be fearless and pacemaker free, the sport is undeniably the most exciting in the angling world. For when fish and steel meet on a silvery surface, anything might happen!

Prestonsburg A's slip past Giants on unearned run

Some of the best baseball in the county is being played at Archer Park in the Prestonsburg Little League. The game between the Athletics and Giants was no exception.

A pitching duel developed between Jody Carroll for the Giants and John David Clark of the A's. However, it was Robert Dotson who got the win in relief of Clark.

The Giants scored first in the first inning when Carroll tripled to drive in John Lyons with a run and to take a 1-0 lead.

Neither team could score in the second frame, but the A's tied the game at 1-1 with a run in the third when Russ Music scored on a base hit by Franklin. In the fourth inning the A's went on top, 2-1, plating a run in the inning on a single by Farler which scored Merion.

The game came down to a pitchers' duel until the top of the sixth inning when the Giants tied the game at 2-2.

In the bottom of the inning, Music lifted a pop up behind second base where shortstop John Lyons dropped the fly ball and Clark crossed home plate with the winning run.

Carroll had 10 strikeouts in the game and Clark fanned eight. Dotson struck out one batter.

Turan is new Ranger

ROBERT TURAN

Robert Turan has recently transferred from Fishtrap Lake in Pike County to Dewey Lake as the new Park Ranger, according to an announcement by the Corps of Engineers at Dewey Lake.

Ranger Turan has a long history of employment with the National Park Service in places such as Grand Canyon National Park in Arizona and New River Gorge in West Virginia.

Turan has been working with the Corps of Engineers since November 1989. He is a graduate of Memphis State University in Tennessee, his home state. Turan's hobbies include rock climbing, boating and biking.

Accompanying Ranger Turan are his wife Debbie, also a native of Tennessee, and eight-year-old son Jason. Ranger Turan's family is still in West Virginia, waiting for Jason to finish the second grade.

The Turans are excited about moving to Floyd County and are looking forward to the many outdoor activities and scenic places the state of Kentucky has to offer.

Dugout Dope

I am glad to see a swimming team being organized in Floyd County and the surrounding areas. The teams are for 7-14 year old boys and girls. It is good exercise and loads of fun. Parents, looking for something for your kids to do this summer. Sign them up on June 11. (See related story in sports).

To all the Little League, Pee Wee and Babe Ruth coaches in Floyd County, if you want your games written up in the Floyd County Times, all you have to do is give me a call at 886-8506 between the hours of 8 a.m. till 5 p.m. to report the stats. Or you may call me at home, 886-1237, from 9 p.m. till 11 p.m.

The high school baseball season finally came to a close for Floyd County high school teams as Prestonsburg fell to Paintsville, 19-3, in the finals of the 15th Regional tournament at Pikeville Saturday afternoon.

Seems the high school season went so quickly. It was a good season. An enjoyable time. These young men and dedicated coaches brought us some very entertaining baseball. It was easy to see that the attendance and fan support for this year's games had increased greatly. Still more of the students need to come out in support of their teams.

Pikeville High School and coach Ken Trivette did an excellent job, as always, in hosting the regional tournament. We wish the Paintsville Tigers the best of luck as they head to sectional play this week at Morehead. Coach Charlie Adkins has a tremendous ball team and should do well in the state tournament.

The big thrill for me at the tournament was seeing Judy Eversole, former Allen Central/Wheelwright high schools basketball coach, at the Allen Central/Paintsville game. Judy seemed glad just to be able to get out and stir around. Boy, what a basketball coach she was. With her was another good coach, Bonita Compton. The present and former attending the game together. Judy says that she is just glad to be at the game and still has hopes of returning home and getting back to work. She also said she got to listen to the final three minutes of the girls 58th District tournament over the telephone.

I have had several phone calls and others have asked me at the ball parks if there will be an American Legion baseball team this year for those players who are not eligible to play in the Babe Ruth League. As far as I know, the team started out last season and folded middle ways of the scheduled games. As far as plans to regroup the American Legion team, as of right now there are not any.

Several people have stressed a disappointment in the folding of the team, however, you must remember that a coach and coaches are needed, plus the financial backing to support the team. One of the biggest draw back on such a team is the extensive traveling that must be done which requires financial support to do.

It is easy to want such a team, but another thing to help support it when asked to. If some of the businesses, parents and other individuals showed some interest in supporting the program, I am sure someone would step forward and be willing to guide the program. However, again, you don't just put anyone in there. They will have to be qualified to coach an American Legion team.

This is just another of the many areas in which Floyd County baseball is lagging behind the surrounding counties. We wonder why our teams cannot compete with teams from Johnson, Martin and Pike counties. Just look at the support given the teams in those areas. They have the best of facilities to play on. Their local government stands behind the needs of their teams. Parental support is pleasantly surprisingly.

There will still be plenty of baseball for the summer months as all the Little League, Pee Wee and Babe Ruth leagues will be in full swing. Hope everyone will get out and support the Little League and Babe Ruth programs in the area. Let's not let this die also.

Have a good sports day!

All-Star Classic tonight at Johnson Central gym

Tonight Eddie Ford will bring his Kentucky Junior All-Stars to Johnson Central gymnasium for a battle with the 15th Region All-Stars in a scheduled 7:30 p.m. encounter in preparation for their trip to Europe this summer.

The Kentucky Junior All-Stars will be facing a team that battled the 16th Region All-Stars back in April.

Heading the list of local players who will take part in the classic will be Floyd County's Player of the Year, Allen Central's Rick Smith. Smith had two good outings against the 16th Region All-Stars and will be showcased with some of the best in Kentucky.

Also joining Smith will be Wheelwright's Bobby Hood who had 14 and 12 points in the two game series against the 16th. Hood's long range jumpers give the 15th Region some outside scoring to go with the inside game.

Inside will be Sam Stewart of Betsy Layne, who recently signed a letter-of-intent with Berea to play basketball next season. Chris Slone from Prestonsburg will be in the back court for the 15th Region. Slone will travel to UK this year to attend engineering school.

McDowell's 6'5" Keith Shelton will be in the middle for the local team. Other 15th Region players taking part in the first-ever classic: Steve Bailey, headed for Marshall on a football scholarship, impressed many fans with some of his dunks during the two games. *Joining the 15th Region All-Stars will be Johnson Central's Rick Conley, teammate of Jody Salisbury, who will play for the Kentucky All-Stars. *Magoffin County's Donald Helton will return for one more game representing Danny Adams' Hornets. *Also from Pikeville will be Brian Wilson and Johnny Hale who will attend Pikeville College this fall. *Millard's Barry Hopkins, another Pikeville recruit, will be back for the 15th Region. *Returning from Elkhorn City is Kermit Belcher, the Cougars' "Mr Everything."

The 15th Region All-Stars may not be the main attraction. On the Eddie Ford All-Star team is one Chris Harrison of Tollesboro. Harrison led the state in scoring last year and will be back for his senior year this fall as he has already indicated that it will be Big Blue country for him after his senior year. He has verbally committed to the University of Kentucky. As mentioned, also playing for the Kentucky All-Stars will be 6' 10" Jody Salisbury. Salisbury averaged 16 points per game and 10 boards a game.

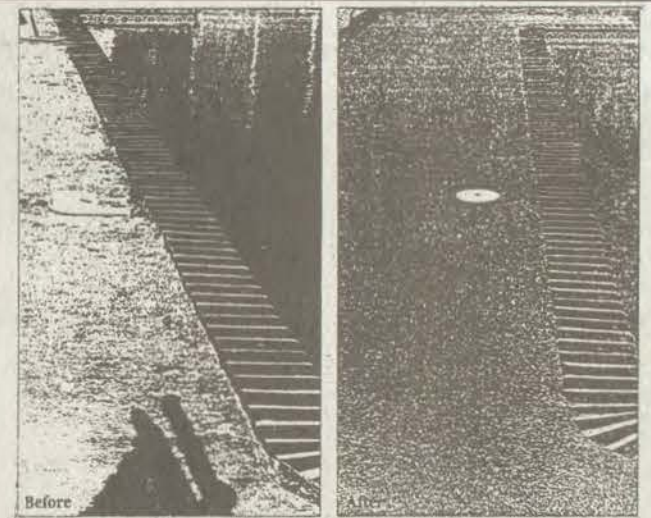

Lexington Bryan Station's Robert Hammonds, whom many fans remember from the round robin games with Lexington schools this past year, will be in action for Kentucky.

Osborne's 7th inning homer seals doom for Rangers, 4-3

The Cubs of the Prestonsburg Little League kept their perfect 8-0 record intact as they defeated a tough Rangers team, 4-3, in seven innings.

Jeremy Osborne put the lights out and sent the fans home with a solo home run in the bottom of the seventh inning to snap a 3-3 tie. Osborne had three hits in the game which also included a double and a single. Adam Baldridge was the winning pitcher for the Cubs in relief.

Osborne started the game for the Cubs and went three innings before he was relieved by his twin brother Jason, who went three innings. Baldridge came on to pitch the top of the seventh and was the pitcher of record when Osborne hit the home run. Jeremy and Jason each had five strikeouts in the three innings they pitched.

Baldridge's win raised his personal record to 2-0. Jason Osborne had two hits in the game with a single and double. He drove in a run in the Cubs' fourth inning. Jason Hackworth got the setback.

Coach Osborne of the Cubs said that Mike Castle, his catcher, was the key to his whole team. "The way he works with the pitchers and keeps the ball from going to the backstop is great."

The Cubs scored their runs in the first, fourth and seventh innings. Osborne's double in the first inning scored Kyle Bellamy. The Cubs then picked up another run in the fourth inning on brother Jason's RBI double. Nathan Fannin made two diving catches in the seventh inning to help the Cubs preserve the win.

The Rangers scored twice in the fourth inning on a base hit by Jason Hackworth with William Marsillett scoring. Another run crossed home plate on a first baseman's error.

In the Rangers' sixth inning, Tim Nunemaker walked with the bases loaded and scored Marsillett. Ricky Lemaster had a base hit in the inning also. Marsillett had two hits in the game for the Rangers, who only managed four. Lemaster and Shepherd had the other two.

Martin Reds score 17-7 mercy win

Martin Reds righthander Kevin Robinson struck out 10 batters as his team came out a 17-7 winner over the Martin Blue Jays in a game called after four innings because of the "mercy rule".

The 10 strikeouts ran Robinson's total for the season to 54 in 22 innings. Robinson also went three for four at the plate including a double in the second inning. Robinson had three RBIs in the game.

Michael McKinney started for the Martin Reds and needed first inning relief help from Robinson, who came on in the first inning with one out. The Blue Jays had scored four runs by drawing seven walks and a single. Robinson came on to strike out the side.

The Reds came back in their half of the first with three runs to make the score 4-3. Robinson had a two-run single in the inning. The Reds' big innings were the second and third. In the second, the Reds pushed across seven runs to take a 10-4 lead. The Reds took advantage of three walks in the frame coupled with Jason Shannon's base hit and a double by Robinson. Phillip Robinson also singled in a run in the inning.

In the third inning, the Reds plated six runs on three walks and a hit batsman. In the inning, Shannon had a double, and the Robinson boys, Phillip and Kevin, got base hits. Sam Bentley also had two RBIs in the game for the Reds.

Phillip Holbrook was the losing pitcher for the Blue Jays. The Blue Jays collected only two hits in the game while the Reds amassed 10. The Reds improve to 5-1 on the season.

Free boat inspections available

In recognition of National Safe Boating Week, June 3-9, the Corps of Engineers at Dewey Lake has invited members of the Coast Guard Auxiliary's Huntington Flotilla to provide Courtesy Marine Examinations to anyone interested.

These free examinations will take place from noon to 5 p.m. on Saturday June 9, at Brandy Keg Marina in Jenny Wiley State Resort Park.

At the conclusion of the inspection, the examiner will give the boat owner a copy of the checklist he/she uses, advising of any problems that prevent the boat from passing. Should the boat pass, a decal will be awarded. Some insurance companies will deduct a percentage off the premiums if a boat passes the inspection.

These examinations are not a law enforcement activity. No report on the boat is ever made to any law enforcement agency. The only record the Coast Guard maintains is a statistical count of the number of inspections made.

Some of the Coast Guard standards exceed other federal regulations or have no corresponding federal regulation. To obtain more information, call or write The Resource Manager, US Army Corps of Engineers, Dewey Lake, HC 70 Box 540, Van Lear 41265 or call (606) 886-6709.

Competitive swim teams to form

Practice June 11

A new competitive sport will be coming to the Floyd County area in the form of competitive swimming for boys and girls ages seven through 14. Director Steve Cummings said the teams will be formed and start practice on June 11 at the Jenny Wiley State Resort Park pool.

"We will limit each team to just 60 participants," Cummings explained of the new sport. "There will be no more than 60 positions available on each team."

The league will consist of Paintsville, Floyd County and Martin County. A fourth team could be added.

Cummings said the season will run for six weeks with qualified coaches handling each team. Requirement to be on a swim team is the ability to swim from one end of the pool to the other.

For those who want to participate in this exciting sport, forms are available at business places around each county and the Jenny Wiley pool as well as the Allen Park pool.

Practice times for the Jenny Wiley pool on June 11 is 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Thursday and from 8 a.m. till 10 a.m. on Saturday. At the Paintsville City pool, the times are 9:30 a.m. until 11:30 a.m. Monday through Friday. Practice times at the Martin County Public pool will be announced at a later time.

Entry fee for each participant is $10 which is not refundable. Each swimmer must have parents' permission. According to Cummings, there will be two coaches present at all times. Deadline for filing an application is June 11.

For more information, contact Kathy Stewart at 886-1990 or Darlene Fultz at 358-3419. Or information can be obtained by calling the Paintsville Recreation Department at 789-2612.

MARTIN PEE WEE LEAGUE

PADRES VS TIGERS

The Martin Tigers scored 11 runs in the third inning and then held off a Martin Royals charge to register a 19-17 win over the Royals. The win ran the Tigers' record to 6-0, good for first place in the league standings.

The Tigers got a home run from Brandon Sizemore, who also had two triples, first and third, going four for four in the game. George Hall and Shannon Sizemore, who has been out because of an injury, also tripled. Sizemore hasn't played since the first game of the season.

With the score tied at 17-17 in the bottom of the fifth inning, George Hall, who collected four hits in the game, doubled, opening the frame for the Tigers, and Brandon Sizemore hit his home run to win the game for the Tigers.

Megan Hyden hit a home run for the Royals, who fell to 4-2 on the season. Heath Scott had four hits in four plate appearances for the Royals. Scott had a double in his four hits. Misty Scott and Rachael Justice also hit doubles for the Royals.

RANGERS VS PADRES

The Martin Rangers scored eight runs in the top of the fifth inning and survived a fifth inning scare as they defeated the Martin Padres, 18-17, in the Martin Pee Wee League.

The Rangers held a 7-2 lead after two innings and were leading 9-2 going into the bottom of the third when the Padres scored four runs to make it 9-6. The Padres took an 11-10 lead in the bottom of the fourth when they scored five times.

The Rangers then scored eight in the top of the fifth inning and had to hold off the on-charging Padres, who scored six runs in the bottom of the inning, that came up a run short.

Jesse Hall had a triple for the Rangers as did teammate John Barnette. Jonathan Thornberry, Shawn Flannery, George Thornsbury, Rene Flanery and Henry Napier each had doubles for the winners.

Desmond Spencer, who was four for four, had a double. Bo Hammonds, Ethan Blackburn and Ryan Manns each doubled for the Padres. Brian Jones, Manns and Dwight McKinney each had Padres triples.

The win ran the Rangers' record to 6-1, and the Padres fell to 5-2.

The Log Cabin, Part 1

Research turns up information on how ancestors lived

by Barbara P. Martin
Contributing Writer

Survival in a wilderness requires all the native intelligence and creativity one can muster. This may also be said for an older student in college. Without a lot of money, I was able to study for two years at Prestonsburg Community College, one year at the University of Kentucky and then work 10 years at the UK Medical Center. The Raliffs, Allens, Martins and many others were able to survive in the Eastern Kentucky woodlands from the 1600s on without a lot of tools, so it must have been in my genes.

My family budded during this time and joined me in Lexington.

Seeing the circumstances, they appeared not to have a lazy bone in their bodies. All worked, cared for the new family additions as they came along and left me when finances permitted them to strike out on their own.

Again, I heard the call of Alice Lloyd College. I needed to complete my education.

My second stint on Caney Creek was a world apart from the first experience. Alice (Lloyd) had appeared on "This is Your Life," and money was being utilized from that venture. New faculty wove the web of modern educational methods, and the food was prepared the same as for hotels and institutions at "off from here" places.

Students still gave an assist to the good cooks from the creek. Thus, I found myself again in the kitchen. This time my job was to dry the silver. For about an hour each day I performed in that capacity, assisted one of the cooks in sweeping out the dining area and helped in minor emergencies in various other jobs.

Among the faculty was a professor who was fairly new to the campus, Charles "Chip" Martin. He taught history by the use of colored slides and cultural geography by field trips, making each a living experience. His teaching methods made dead information come to life. He gave me encouragement to develop literary materials into workable documents. Without his help, I doubt if you would be reading this series of articles.

Chip's wife, Kathy, hired me to help in the Appalachian Oral History department, where my literary efforts were combined with interviewing, to contribute to the taped bank of firsthand experiences in East Kentucky.

My first published materials are in the Mountain Memories Journal, 1982 issue, "Let's go visit Willie." The subject of the article was Willie Frasure of Wilson's Creek.

In a required geography course, taught by Chip, we were to investigate a log cabin of our choosing, research the deeds and mineral maps in the courthouse, bring to life as well as we could the history of the family who had lived there and try to find out who built it.

Now, how would you find a log cabin in this day and time? Certainly not by reading in an encyclopedia. The textbook gave us a pretty good history of that type of domicile. Shelter had been a major problem for colonists in America. Many were still living in holes in the ground as late as 1830 because of the lack of suitable materials available to build with. In their favor was a wilderness of trees. They had to supply the elbow grease to achieve their goal.

As in the making of a dress, a pattern was required to build a cabin, or an attempt might prove to be dangerous. Our textbook for the course said that the log cabin plan was brought to America in the 1630s by Swedish settlers. They were accustomed to the use of log constructed homes, and they built homes of that description on what is now the Delaware River. Germans later adapted the plan, as did the Scotch-Irish.

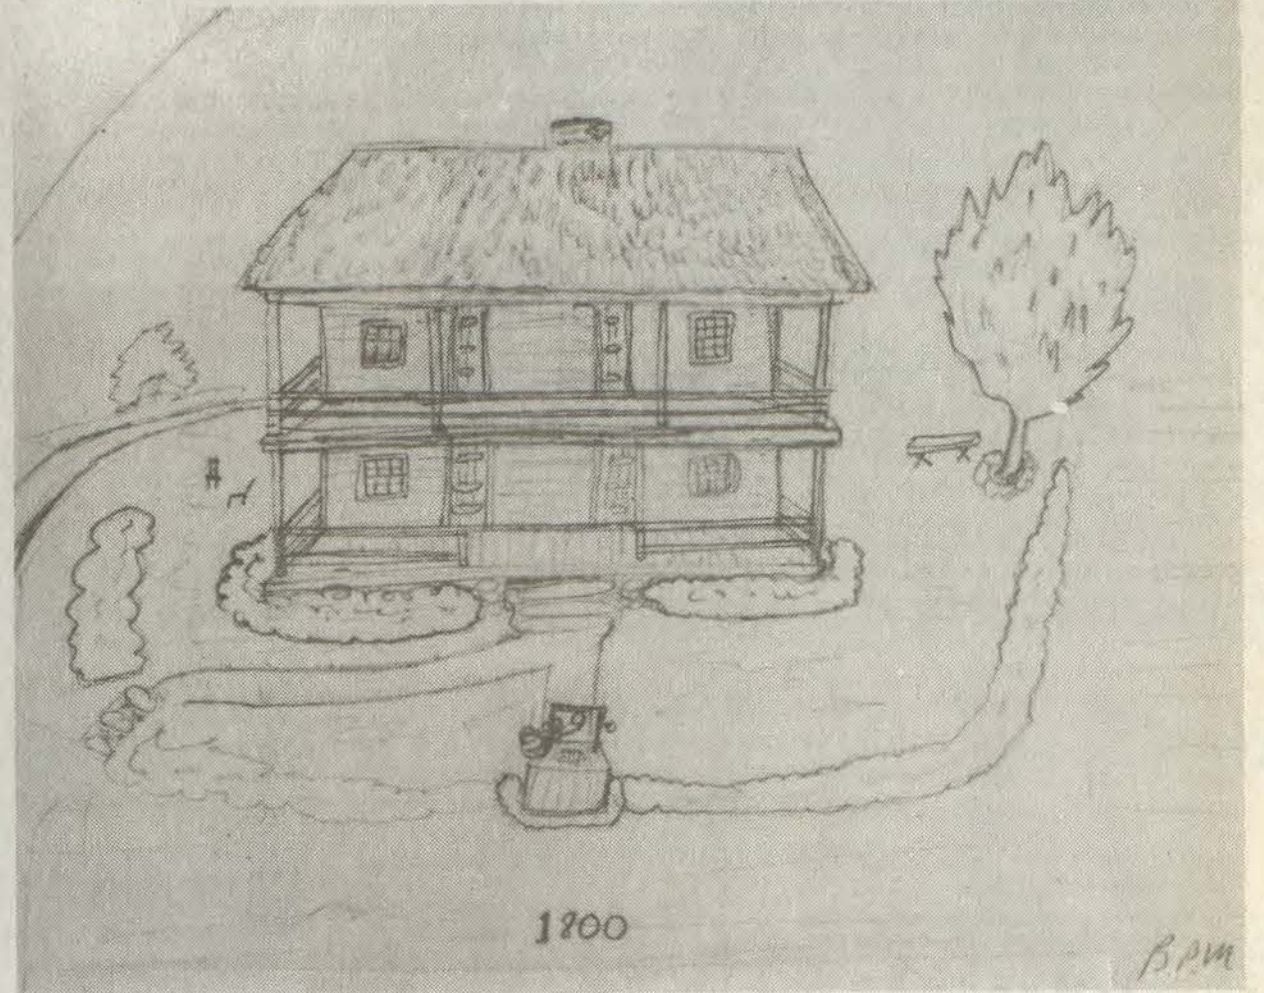

The prototype of a log cabin is a one-room building, made of round or hewn logs, with a chimney at one end. Its availability for enlargement was limited by the necessity of notching the logs at the ends in order to hold them together. Fitting the notches to hold up the walls was a problem, if a larger dwelling was needed. This book information left me feeling inadequate for the job.

My first thought was of a one-room cabin near Eastern, well built, with a lean-to kitchen. It had been such a perfect example, sitting on a little rise at the foot of a high ridge, near the

With the summer come family reunions. And, with most family reunions being a covered-dish style, the question arises of what to bring that not everyone and their brother will also be bringing.

A surefire winner, would be a vegetable and dip tray. These are easy, nutritious, and best of all usually get totally consumed leaving no leftovers to lug home. Vegetable sticks make quick snacks that the family can munch on in between volleyball games, and they won't feel weighted down, just revitalized.

Many of the following recipes can be prepared in a fraction of the time necessary with the use of a food processor. So, whip something up, get out of the kitchen and enjoy the weather, you never know how long it will last.

This is a lowfat version of a middle-eastern appetizer that is sometimes called hummus. Wedges of pita bread are the traditional dipping item, but raw vegetables are also tasty and nutritious.

CHICK PEA AND TAHINI DIP

1 15-oz. can chick peas (garbanzo beans)
1/3 cup Tahini (sesame butter)
1/4 cup onion
2 to 4 cloves garlic
1/4 to 1/2 tsp dried dill
2 Tbsps lemon juice
3 Tbsps water
ground pepper to taste
Mash the chick peas in a food processor or blender. Add the remaining ingredients and blend until smooth. The dip should be somewhat thick. If too thick, add additional water to reach desired consistency.

Serve with raw vegetable or wedges of pita bread. The dip contains about 4 grams and 89 calories per 2 Tbsps.

Arrange cauliflower and broccoli over carrots, pressing to pack firmly; set aside. For sauce, place evaporated milk in 1-1/2 quart casserole. Microwave on High 3 minutes. Stir in cheeses and pepper. Microwave on High 1 to 1-1/2 minutes, or until cheese is melted. Cover with plastic

We Keep Getting Better at Getting You Better...

Last year, over 45,000 people sought treatment at Highlands, more than double the number of 10 years ago.

Many received the more sophisticated kinds of care that simply weren't offered here in 1979, for heart disease, cancer, lung disease and sleep disorders, to name just a few.

We keep getting better at diagnosing—finding out what's wrong—with advanced technologies like mammography, ultrasound, computerized pulmonary diagnostics, C.A.T. Scan, echocardiography, special chemistry diagnostics and pathology services. There's also cardiac catheterization and phacoemulsification (a new procedure for cataracts).

Because we can now detect and identify your problems sooner, we have a better chance of solving them sooner. But that's only one of the reasons we're getting better at treatment, too.

It's the world-class professionals at Highlands, the employees and physicians who make the difference. It's our skills that make the technology work. It's our dedication that serves you 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

It's our commitment to growth that makes us keep getting better at everything we do.

Early detection combined with more advanced treatment programs all add up to saving more lives and saving more Eastern Kentuckians the expense and the stress of long trips to distant cities for the care they need.

Highlands is community owned and serves just one single purpose: To provide more and better care to our own...

Ancestors

head of a short hollow. Inquiry revealed that a coal company had eliminated it many years before.

I ran through my recollections of the cabin. A narrow trail, through a wide meadow, led straight to the door. It was in perfect condition when last I saw it. The squared logs had dried to perfection, the chinking was complete and intact, with a stone chimney at one end. Old fashioned flowers grew outside the door, and inside, the fireplace glowed with a warm fire. The iron beds wore patchwork quilts of black squares, which burst forth here and there with bright red squares.

The walls were papered with traditional wallpaper — catalogs, newspapers and magazines. Visiting there with an aunt, much of my time was spent reading the news off the walls. Since the papers were not always on proper reading plane, you had to turn your head from side to side and tilt backwards, at times, to more easily focus on the interesting articles and advertisements displayed there. Of course, it was old news, but still very interesting. The floors, made of uneven, rough timber, caused me to stumble slightly during this reading process.

A huge cast iron coal and wood burning stove occupied much of the aforementioned lean-to kitchen. Everything had been recently cleaned, and all kitchen utensils were in place. Reusable purchased food containers were stacked neatly in one corner.

Squatty, ladder-back chairs, with woven tree bark seats, allowed us to easily adjust our position to the fire — scoot back when it roared, and move forward when it died down. When a new supply of fuel renewed its fierceness, a backward move was again required.

Maybe others will recall being told to get up, move the chair back, then sit down. If the move is made while in a half-seated position, you might suffer a blow to the back of your head or neck, from the back of the chair. Proper shifting to prevent this banging had to be worked out for short people. Tall people could scoot back by a series of raise ups, scoot backs and sit downs while still holding on to the chair. Just one example of the perfect adjustment of the mountaineers to their environment. Tame it with dignity!

The fact that the cabin no longer existed set me back somewhat. I had felt comfortable with its size and description and believed that I could do a good job describing it to my professor. Now what to do?

Then came the prizewinning thought of the magnificent old Ratliff cabin on Wilson's Creek. Holding my breath, maybe breaking the speed limit a little, I hurried to see if it was still standing.

Standing it was! Objective sighted, now how was I going to get in to see it? This day and time you just do not go running without permission and start investigating — measuring size, closely inspecting each detail of construction, getting pictures, etc. — all the things the professor required to complete the term paper.

(Next week: The Ratliff cabin)

Arts task force solicits input

The Governor's Task Force on the Arts, charged last December with studying the system that delivers the arts to the citizens of Kentucky, has released its draft report and is soliciting citizen responses before submitting its final report by June 30.

The draft represents the last opportunity to give feedback to the task force before the final report is given to the governor, according to task force chairman Thomas C. Meredith, president of Western Kentucky University.

Copies of the draft report are available from the Kentucky Department of the Arts, Berry Hill Mansion, Frankfort 40601; telephone 502/564-8076.

Responses are due by June 8 at Meredith's office at WKU.

SHARING THE RESPONSIBILITY OF EDUCATION

By Etta Cantrell
Associate Professor
Developmental Reading & Writing

School is almost out for the summer, however, learning should not stop with the silence of the last bell of the last class period in May or June.

On April 8, I sat down to quietly relax and read the Sunday Lexington Herald-Leader. Reading the paper proved to be far from relaxing that morning, as I read syndicated columnist Robert Maynard's article on "It's possible that America will commence crumbling, along with communist nations."

The columnist told of a "young man" who asked him "for a newspaper job," an "unrealistic" request, he said, since the young man "was illiterate." Maynard wrote about this young man's request in one of his columns with a discussion of illiteracy following. "The hate mail came pouring in," Maynard said, because of his statement that "the mounting rate of adult illiteracy had alarming consequences for our society and 'somebody in Washington' should get busy." The "theme" of his hate mail was "Why should Washington care? Why should anybody care? If those bums can't get an education, don't use my tax dollars to fix it."

It was several paragraphs later that

I read Maynard's statement: "The public school system is responsible for producing 1.5 million illiterates a year, more than 10 million in the past seven years. Nearly 25 million adults cannot read," wrote Maynard. Once again, someone is blaming the entire US public school system for 25 million adult illiterates.

As an educator for 16 years, I resent hearing how we teachers and public school officials are totally to blame for illiteracy in the US. There are many reasons for illiteracy; not all of them deal with the public schools.

Learning to read begins when children begin to talk, not in kindergarten or first grade. The proper attitude toward school is set in a child's mind before he/she attends Headstart or kindergarten. However, parents expect the school to change all of this in nine-month period over a 12-year span.

Throughout Kentucky, the Say No To Drugs program has been presented to our children in the schools. It appears to have made a lasting impression on some of our five-year-olds. I am told that one child walked up to his parent who was drinking beer and said, "Beer is a drug, say no to drugs." When these children are teenagers or adults, maybe they will still say no to drugs, even though parents are not setting good examples.

Recently, Kentucky initiated a new sex education program in the schools. Many lawmakers, educators and parents debated the question of what is appropriate subject matter and at what grades should we begin this program.

Syndicated columnist Mike Royko wrote in his April 29 article "Tune out, or turn off," that part of the problem with "sex and violence" in our society is "the parents of the kids who average three to four hours a day in front of the tube. And those who pay little or no attention to what their kids watch."

Royko said, "You can trace parents through their kids. Just look for the students who have the shortest attention span and sloppiest study habits." These are the students in whom teachers must instill a sense of direction in a large classroom of many other students with various other needs.

Kill, shoot, blow up, hit, beat — these are words that kids learn early. A friend's child could recognize the words Ghostbusters, Batman and Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles when he was three years old. Children can learn to read long before they start school.

A father sat in my office one day boasting of how he "put his foot down" with his wife about not letting his child attend Headstart that fall. As his young child listened carefully, the father said, "I hated school and I don't want my son to be miserable in school any sooner than he has to, so I'm not letting him go this year."

Now the father is unemployed, divorced and the child hates school. His mother struggled to get the child enthusiastic about Headstart. With the cooperation of his mother and kindergarten teacher, the child's attitude toward school is improving.

We expect our schools to be counselors, pastors and teachers. Brady W. Slone, supervisor for instruction for the Knott County Board of Education, offers a defense of schools in his April 8, "Appalachian Voices" article in the Lexington Herald-Leader. (Ironically, it is two pages over from Robert Maynard's assault on public schools.)

Slone says that the public "asked schools to feed their children breakfast and lunch and our teachers to provide learning delivered in the form of entertainment. The simple love for learning instilled in children by their parents was a thing of the past."

He asserts that teachers are "asked to spend less time drilling students in math and language" and more time "teaching life skills."

Slone indicated that the child "given his own space" has replaced "such values as public service and learning for the sake of learning, appreciation for each other" with a "what's in it for me?" attitude and an "if it makes you feel good" mentality.

Ask yourself these questions. How often did you read to your child before he/she learned to read? Do you know whether your child has homework each evening? Does your child spend as much time studying as he/she spends practicing basketball or cheerleading? Do you sit down to help your child with homework or do you complete the homework for him? Does your child hate to read or work math problems? Do you encourage academic activities in the summer or is school forgotten until you buy school clothes in August?

If you are working on some of these items, pat yourself on the back. There are many opportunities for children to learn in the summer. A local bookstore, The BookWorm, offers many reading and learning activities for children.

Use events to teach reading and writing. My five-year-old "Best Buddy" (his title for me) and I stepped over a Copperhead stretched out in the grass one Sunday afternoon. This incident later led to a learning experience that he will never forget. We talked about snakes, looked at books on snakes, and later he "wrote" a story, titled "A Snake that Cannot Be Killed." There are many experiences, such as this, that we can use to teach kids during the summer.

While your child is out of school, think about what you can do as a parent to help the child want to learn. When school begins in the fall, the teacher's job will be much easier if the students love to learn.

If your child can't read or becomes an illiterate adult, don't blame it totally on public schools.

Mended Hearts had training seminar

by Drema Osborne
What a lift it can be for persons contemplating new heart treatment methods to see and talk with a healthy Mended Heart who has already experienced the procedure. Just by being there, the Mended Heart gives added strength the patient may need to overcome many doubts and fears. Families of patients need a very special kind of help, too.

So The Mended Hearts Inc. has carefully trained visitors from among its members. All Mended Hearts Accredited Visitors must have special training courses in the proper techniques of visiting. They strive to help answer troubling questions and give moral support to patients and their families before and after heart disease treatment.

Chapter 220 of Mended Hearts Inc. held its second annual Visitor Training Seminar at May Lodge on May 12. Training was conducted by Taunya Shelton-Skeens of Lexington.

A native of Floyd County, Shelton-Skeens is associated with Highlands Regional Medical Center's Care Connection at the University of Kentucky Medical Center. Her experiences as liaison between the patient and his family and the medical center's staff and physicians added much insight to Mended Hearts' visiting guidelines.

The training session was from 9 a.m.-2 p.m. Accredited were Larry Adams, Lucille Blanton, William Crothers and Beverly Goble. Charlotte Adams, chairman of the Visiting Committee, and Freddie Goble were recertified.

Persons who wish more information about Mended Hearts Inc. should contact chapter president Maxine Bierman or any other member.

Pine Knob show offers grisly legend

Kentucky's past is filled with notorious characters, some lesser known than others but nonetheless colorful.

Dock Brown may not be well known outside Pine Knob in Western Kentucky, but Honus Shain and the Pine Knob Outdoor Theatre have set out to change that. The production of Brown's story will open its fourth season on June 1.

Dock Brown lived in Pine Knob in the mid-1800s. According to legend, he would victimize travelers who were his guests for the night. He and his brother would take them hunting, then rob them, kill them and bury them in nearby Big Mouth Cave.

Handsome and charming, he was a well respected man in the community. No one knew he was a thief and a murderer.

Even after he poisoned his brother and shot his father, the community could not be convinced of Dock's guilt. In fact, they had such confidence in his innocence that they bailed him out of jail.

Brown reportedly died in 1851, leaving a stash of gold that no one has yet found. Many locals believe it must be buried somewhere in Pine Knob.

Two productions focus on Brown's life and the legends of his wealth: "The Dock Brown Story" and "Down in Hoodoo Holler." Written by Honus Shain, the plays feature local performers, many of them descendants of the people in the true life story.

Also in the area of the theater are a 1938 country store, a 1950s era diner, craft shops, a 100-year-old church and an old schoolhouse. A large picnic area with walking trails and streams is also used by playgoers before the show.

Pharmacy Footnotes

By HAROLD COOLEY
ABSORBING READING

Since 1980, when 890 cases of toxic shock syndrome were reported, studies have uncovered a link between tampon absorbency and the likelihood of contracting this potentially fatal condition. The higher a tampon's absorbency level, the more likely a woman is to develop menstrual toxic shock syndrome. This rare disease causes a sudden high fever, vomiting, diarrhea, dizziness or fainting, and a sunburn-like rash. Until now, a woman's search for the lowest absorbency tampon that is convenient for her has been complicated by a labeling inconsistency among manufactures. However, since March, 1990, the FDA has standardized tampon labeling so that "junior," "regular" and "super" designations exhibit the exact same absorbency levels for all brands. This should make tampon selection easier.

COOLEY APOTHECARY invites you to learn for yourself why your friends and neighbors already rely on us for personal care items as well as pharmaceuticals. We want you to know that if your physician prescribes medication for you or a member of your family that we maintain the highest standards of the pharmaceutical profession. We are located at #2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106. Open: Mon. - Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-3.

HINT: Although there were only 86 reported cases of menstrual toxic shock syndrome in 1988, the disease may be vastly under-reported.

FINAL NOTIFICATION OF FmHA'S FINDINGS OF NO PRACTICABLE ALTERNATIVE TO A FLOODPLAIN IMPACT AND NO SIGNIFICANT ENVIRONMENTAL IMPACT

CITY OF MARTIN

The U.S. Department of Agriculture, Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) has received an application for financial assistance from the City of Martin, SA# KY890424-0429. The specific elements of this proposed action include the construction of a new 0.12 MGD wastewater treatment plant and pump stations, rehabilitation of the existing collection system and pump stations, and the extension of new interceptor sewer lines.

FmHA has assessed the potential environmental impacts of this proposed action and determined that the location of the collection system improvements would impact the 100-year floodplain. It has been determined that there is no practicable alternative to avoid this impact. The basis of this determination is as follows:

—The floodplain will be impacted by the construction of improvements to the Martin wastewater collection system.

—A portion of the proposed improvements must be located in the floodplain because some of the existing sewer lines which will be modified by these improvements are within the 100-year floodplain of Beaver Creek.

—All practicable mitigation measures have been agreed to by the applicant.

—The proposed action will conform to all applicable state and local floodplain protection standards.

—The Environmental Protection Agency and Department of Housing and Urban Development are also participating in this project.

FmHA has also determined that the proposed action will not significantly affect the quality of the human environment and will not prepare an environmental impact statement.

Any written comments regarding these determinations should be provided within 15 days of this publication to Ms. Mary Ann Baron, State Director, Farmers Home Administration, 333 Waller Avenue, Lexington, Kentucky 40504. FmHA will make no further decisions regarding this proposed action during this fifteen-day period. Requests to review the FmHA environmental assessment upon which this determination is based or to receive a copy of it should be directed to the FmHA District Office, P.O. Box 610, Campton, Kentucky 41301.

Real estate brokers' role in mortgage Origination improves home buying process

Real estate brokers' involvement in mortgage origination is part of an evolution in home buying that is making the process quicker, more efficient and more streamlined, according to representatives of the National Association of Realtors.

The role real estate professionals have in providing additional services to buyers, and their right to receive a fully disclosed payment for doing so, was the focus of a session at the NAR Midyear Conference and Trade Exposition. About 6,500 members are attending the April 20-25 conference.

"Twenty-first Century Real Estate Broker: Restricted?" featured Len Druger, vice chairman of Citicorp Mortgage; Tom Griffin, senior vice president, Coldwell Banker Residential Group; Will Schwartz, president, Prudential Real Estate Affiliates; and Richard Schlott, president, Schlott Realtors.

A broker's ability to provide a variety of services, including finding a buyer for the seller and matching the buyer with a mortgage to complete the sale, represents the future for the real estate industry, Griffin said. The concept of "one-stop shopping", achievable through computer technology, is already applied in many other industries, such as the travel industry, he noted.

The consolidation of home buying services, and the perceived threat of lost mortgage origination business, has caused the Mortgage Bankers

Association of America to try to legislatively block the right of brokers to be compensated for their work. In reality, there is no legal or ethical barrier prohibiting real estate professionals from receiving fees to cover the cost of services provided, the speakers said.

MBA's claim that receiving fees for the provision of services is a violation of the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act (RESPA) is baseless, Griffin said.

RESPA does prohibit fees paid for simple referrals to lenders that involve no work on the broker's part; and, NAR's policy supports a ban on such fees, called "naked" referral fees.

However, the law allows the collection of payments for actual services rendered, Griffin pointed out.

Providing the most up-to-date mortgage information available for home buyers—information they expect—requires the installation of computerized networks. Brokers should not be expected to waive all rights to fees to recoup the costs for using the technology, Griffin said.

He discounted MBA's claim that NAR members are trying to charge a fee for mortgage location assistance they have long provided for free. "If we have been providing free advice, then mortgage brokers should not be charging for their services," Griffin said.

If MBA's campaign, being waged at the federal and state level, is successful, then "real estate industry sophistication will diminish to the detriment of the consumer," Griffin said.

Expanded real estate services "is not a big Realtor (versus) small Realtor issue," he noted. "Small Realtors have the right to determine what kind of service they want to offer and not be recognized out of business."

Druger pointed out that the issue has, however, pitted Citicorp, the nation's largest mortgage banker and thus the largest MBA member, against the rest of MBA's membership. "We believe in this (broker-assisted mortgage originations)," he said.

Through computerized home loan originations, real estate professionals are positioned to instantly provide purchasing options, qualify buyers and submit loan applications, cutting the time to closing from one to three months to as little as a few days, Druger said. Citicorp has found that its service results in a higher rate of closings, as well as quicker closings, in addition to customer satisfaction. Mortgage origination represents "a service of real value" to customers, he added.

The collection of fully disclosed fees from the buyer for mortgage assistance does not represent a conflict of interest for a broker receiving a commission from the seller, Druger noted. "It's no disadvantage to the seller for the buyer to get the best financing possible from the Realtor," he said.

Schlott, whose company provides a computerized mortgage origination service, said his network offers a choice of up to 60 lenders—many more than generally are provided to a buyer by a mortgage broker. Originating the mortgage at the point of sale actually reduces costs for buyers, since a step in the home buying process—using the mortgage broker—is eliminated, he said.

"The consumer has to have access to one-stop shopping," Schlott said.

According to Schwartz, the brokers' ability to offer a variety of services, along with their knowledge of local markets, represents the key to the continued success of the real estate industry.

With overall real estate activity expected to be slower in the years ahead, business expansion in the industry will result from the provision of new services, rather than increased sales, he said.

In the face of such an inevitable change, "those in weaker positions try to prohibit functional innovation," Schwartz said, cautioning NAR members not to "get boxed in" by MBA's efforts.

Computerization, used to provide information on neighborhoods and estimated home values, as well as mortgage selection, will enhance the personal involvement of brokers with sellers and buyers, Schwartz said.

"What makes it (the home sales industry) work is local experts, who can use technology to deliver services and products," he said.

Griffin concurred with Schwartz. "Realtors counsel buyers and sellers, and deal with emotional issues. That will not change."

The National Association of Realtors, the nation's largest trade association, is the voice for real estate, representing more than 800,000 members involved in all aspects of the real estate industry.
