Medisin spokesman shouted down by demonstrators :

Protestors march on medical incinerator

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Floyd Countians In Action (FCIA) clashed with Medisin President Clarence Traum at a press conference at the site of Medisin's medical waste incinerator Thursday and vowed to keep fighting until the incinerator is closed.

FCIA members marched from the home of Barney Walker wearing gas masks, carrying signs of protest and chanting "Stop Medisin."

When the group of 15 demonstrators arrived at the incinerator site, Clarence Traum, administrator of Highlands Regional Medical Center, followed by a troop of what appeared to be doctors and hospital employees, came out of the rear of the hospital and approached FCIA members.

Traum began reading from a prepared statement and said the incinerator posed no health threat to the Auxier residents. Traum said residents have been "misinformed" about the waste burned in the incinerator.

"This group has made various allegations about hazardous emissions and ash residues from the medical waste incinerator but they haven't been able to prove any of them," Traum said.

Several members of FCIA yelled to Traum to talk to the people instead of reading a statement into the television cameras. They shouted questions concerning alternate disposal methods, how much customers were charged to pick up and dispose of the waste and why he would not meet with the group.

Traum ignored the group's questions and continued to read his statement until he was drowned out by the protestors.

After the conference, FCIA member Phyllis Walker said if the Fiscal Court fails to conduct a second reading of a proposed ordinance to tax waste disposal facilities, a lawsuit could be filed.

"We are discussing filing a toxic tort lawsuit naming the generators of the medical waste, the board of directors of Medisin and Consolidated Health Care Systems and the manufacturers of the incinerator," Walker said. "According to our attorney, all those parties are liable for the toxic emissions from the incinerator."

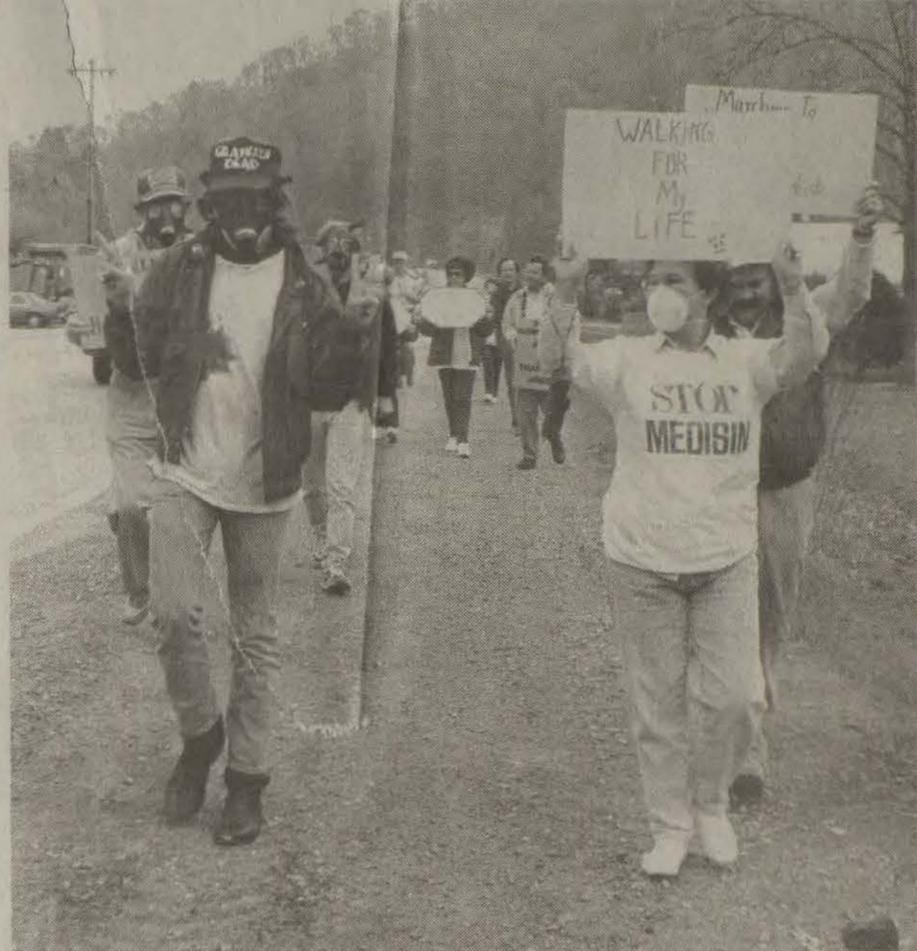

Traum pointed to the fact that medical waste disposal was a real concern for the area and other than "shipping it to someone else's backyard" the problem would have to be dealt with in Floyd County. He stressed the incinerator fell within all state and federal guidelines and air and ash tests had revealed no toxins were being released.

A Medisin employee took two red plastic bags out of one of the waste barrels and passed them down the line of HRMC employees. The bags were then passed to Traum, he directed them toward FCIA members and challenged them to find alternative methods to incineration.

The bags contained crumpled newspapers, which Traum said represented medical waste.

When Traum stopped speaking, he and the hospital employees walked back into the hospital. Traum would not answer any further questions, referring them to a press packet passed out to the media after the news conference.

FCIA members plan to attend Friday's fiscal court meeting and ask County Attorney Jim Hammond to hold the second reading of the solid waste ordinance. If the county refuses, the group will meet at a later date to decide what steps to take.

'Walking for my life'

Floyd Countians In Action held a demonstration march Thursday to Medisin's medical waste incinerator at Highlands Regional Medical Center. The group announced it intends to shut down the incinerator for health and environmental reasons. The group claims emissions from the incinerator's smoke stack are toxic and have caused health problems for residents living near the incinerator. HRMC administrator Clarence Traum met with the group and read a prepared statement. (photo by Susan Allen)

Billips win a signal, school-watchers say

by Scott Perry
Times Editor

No one was more surprised at Eddie Billips' showing in Tuesday's election than Eddie Billips.

A political novice facing a powerful incumbent, Billips was cautiously optimistic on Monday—the day before the polls opened—when he said the race would be closer than most observers thought.

When the smoke cleared Tuesday, Billips was wrong. He had not only upset 20-year incumbent Dr. James D. Adams in the District 1 race for a seat on the Floyd County Board of Education, he had won by an unbelievable margin of 415 votes.

"I still can't believe it," Billips said Thursday of the election outcome. Many observers joined Billips in his disbelief.

"I never in my wildest dreams thought Doc Adams could be defeated six months ago," said Joyce Everly, a Floyd County activist who has been involved in a movement to improve the quality of education locally for the last decade. "But the worm has turned. It's very, very exciting."

Many believe the "worm" began turning last summer when Floyd County teachers walked off their jobs in an effort to gain higher salaries and more input into the educational system. During that period of turmoil, board chairman Adams was considered by many teachers and parents to be the chief obstacle to settlement of their demands.

During his campaign, Billips struck a note of accord with groups dissatisfied with Adams' and other board members' policies, promising to open up the school system to parent and teacher involvement.

"I believe the people have spoken," Billips said Thursday, "and that with this election they are making the children the number one priority in our school system. This election and Mr. (Ray) Campbell's victory should point out that incumbents can no longer do as they please." Ray "Shag" Campbell was re-elected in school District 2, narrowly defeating challenger Franklin May Tuesday.

Adams was in Kansas Thursday on a hunting trip and could not be reached for his reaction to the Tuesday vote.

Floyd County Education Association president Bud Reynolds, a leader in the August teachers' strike, characterized Billips win as a signal that Floyd County voters are "truly interested in what's going on in the classrooms." Reynolds said he was hopeful the vote and enthusiasm would carry over to make the Floyd County system "the best in the state."

Betty Rowland, regional representative for the Kentucky Education Association, echoed Reynolds' sentiments Thursday.

"I think the election indicates people want a change," Rowland said. "I think anytime you are more open with your employees and constituents, it's a good thing."

Billips will take office in January.

Parkway detour set during road work

Four miles of the Bert T. Combs Mountain Parkway will be closed in two weeks due to highway, median and guardrail construction by the state Transportation Department.

The Campton-Jackson-Hazard exit ramp will be closed and traffic will be detoured onto Route 15 at the Pine Ridge Exit south to Campton. The exit ramp will be closed in order to be widened.

The project is estimated to cost $3.9 million and Hinkle Corporation will do the construction work. The detour is expected to be in effect for two weeks.

National chief to visit for Vets' Day

Kimery is scheduled to visit VFW Post 5839 at Lancer at approximately 5:15 p.m. Sunday, when he will participate in a flag-raising ceremony.

Eversole loses battle with cancer

by Ed Taylor
Times Sports Editor

Floyd County lost a friend Tuesday when former Allen Central and Wheelwright coach Judy Eversole died at 8 p.m. at the Vanderbilt Medical Center in Nashville, Tennessee, after losing a long fight with cancer.

Eversole was highly respected in Floyd County by opposing coaches and throughout the region, and she had the reputation for having an expert knowledge of the game that meant so much to her. She was untiring in her efforts to develop the best team at Allen Central that she could.

"Coach Eversole was coach full of determination and desire," said Kim Shepherd, the starting center for Eversole's 1982 state tournament team. "If coach knew you had talent she would find a way of getting it out of you. Everybody loved her. I wouldn't have gotten what I did had it not been for Coach Judy Eversole."

Eversole guided her 1982 Allen Central Lady Rebs to the 15th Region Girls' basketball crown, a title that escaped her in 1981 when she had what she described "as her best team."

Shepherd who went on to star at Marshall University for two years before transferring to Pikeville, was the only player named All-State under Eversole. Shepherd played for Ever-sole from the time she was in the seventh grade at Maytown.

"When I went to the Kentucky All-Star tryouts Coach Eversole was right there with me," recalled Shepherd. "Upon learning that I had made the team, I came out of the locker room with thumbs up and she had the biggest grin I had ever seen on her."

Shepherd stated that Eversole was the kind of coach who was concerned for her players and showed it, even through all her toughness in practices.

Bonita Compton, Lady Rebels coach at Allen Central now, was very close to Eversole and spent the last three days in Nashville with the former coach before she died.

"Judy fought it as long as she could," said Compton. "She was a fighter and did not give up. Her favorite player was Kristi Frye. When she would talk about her players she would always mention Kristi."

"Judy was more than a coach to me," explained Frye. "She was the best friend that I have ever had. Right now I'm in shock. She was just a lot of fun to be around."

"She was real tough in practices but that was only for our benefit. Very demanding as a coach but everyone loved her."

The one game that stands out in Frye's mind was the finals of the Annual audit is reviewed :

State says fund deficits must be erased by board

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Audits performed on the Floyd County Board of Education's financial statements and school activity funds show a surplus of funds but indicate that two school activity accounts ended last school year with deficit balances.

Martin Elementary was $14,121 in the red and W.D. Osborne showed a $8,332 shortfall.

Kentucky law prohibits year-end deficit balances in any school account.

The audit, performed by Allen, England and Hensley, C.P.A.s, was presented to the board at its regular meeting Wednesday night. Steve Allen, a representative of the firm, told the board no irregularities were found during the audit, and the school district had a balance of $65,204 as of June 30, 1990. No improprieties were noted on the audit.

Robert Coakley, with the state finance department in the state education office, said a deficit in any account at any school at the end of the school year is a violation of KRS 160.550. The state finance office had not received the audit Thursday.

Coakley said the department will review the audit and make recommendations to the local board concerning the findings. He did say the board would be expected to balance the deficits.

"The local district will be expected to get those accounts in balance," Coakley said.

Floyd jobless rate below area average

In the Big Sandy region, the unemployment rate rose slightly from a revised 7.2 percent in August to a preliminary 7.3 percent in September. Local rates ranged from 6.4 percent in Pike County to 13.2 percent in Magoffin County, the only county in the area with a double-digit rate. Floyd County's rate was 7.1 percent.

The monthly sample of claimants of unemployment insurance benefits showed 41.7 percent had worked in mining, 16.7 percent in construction, 15.6 percent in trade and 9.4 percent in transportation, communications and utilities.

Women's gun class called a success

Prestonsburg Police Chief Greg Hall said 18 women who participated in the fourth annual handgun safety class conducted by the police department on October 3 did very well in the class.

"I sure wouldn't want any of them shooting at me," Hall said.

The women participated in over two hours of classroom instruction before gathering at a firing range for actual hands-on firing of weapons. "They all did really well," Hall said. "One lady scored 59 out of 60 possible points, another lady couldn't hit the paper when we started but, when we were done she had a real close shot grouping."

Prestonsburg Police officers covered a variety of topics in the classroom portion of the class, including handgun safety and legal aspects of using firearms for self protection and protection of others. Hall said the women were very serious about the subjects, adding that classroom participation was very good.

The handgun safety class is conducted annually by members of the Prestonsburg Police Department as a public service.

"All they had to bring was the ammo and gun," said Assistant Police Chief Roy Roberts.

Deficits

Coakley said an investigation into the cause of the deficits was possible.

An activity fund audit also showed smaller deficits in specific accounts at Garrett Elementary, McDowell High School and Wheelwright High School. Garrett showed a $61 negative balance in the annual fund; McDowell High School, $271 in the band fund; and Wheelwright High School, $147 in the athletics fund.

Those deficits are also violations of the law, Coakley said.

Accounts payable at Martin include $3,276 owed to Scott Foresman, a textbook company; and $12,483 to East Kentucky Beverage.

A billing statement from East Kentucky Beverage Company dated August 31, showed an outstanding balance of $12,530.37.

The deficit at Osborne was not attributed to any single cause, but showed accounts payable to: Upstart, Educational Center, Educational Resources, Southern School Supply, Steck Vaughn, Oregon Teaching Center, Micrograms Publishing, Highsmith, Lexington Herald-Leader, D C Heath, SRA, Burdett and Ginn, Society for Usual EDC, Tandy Computer Lease, Ashland Office Supply, Central Leasing, McMiller/McGraw Hill, Floyd County Newspapers, Oxmoor House, Specialty Design, USI, Inc., T.D.

Sporting Goods and C & R Office.

School board treasurer Russell Frazier said the exact cause for the Osborne deficit was not known, adding that the former principal had been in a car accident was not at the school for a long period of time.

"I'm sure that had something to do with it," Frazier said. "But I don't exactly why there was such a deficit. But, it will be discussed."

Eversole

1981 15th Regional tournament at Belfry against Sheldon Clark when the Lady Rebels lost by two points in overtime. Frye and Trena Hensley, two outstanding guards, had fouled out. "I will never forget that game," she said. "Coach cried harder than any of us. It really hurt her."

Eversole leaves behind a long string of outstanding basketball players who she personally took under her wings and developed. Players that really had no outstanding ability, but that she molded into great performers.

"She was very demanding of us," said one such player, Bucky Hall, "as individuals. Her program was run like a well organized program should be. However, she was a very caring person. Coach's practices were well structured and her conditioning program was the best. That is why we did so well in '82 because we were in such good condition."

"Even though I had some personal bouts with her, I enjoyed playing for her. She was always wanting you to do the best you could. She kept up with your grades and made sure you kept them up."

"She would take us to the state tournament after our season was over with so we could get a look at how it was there. When we won the regional tournament that year, Judy was in more shock than anyone else. She would tell you that she thought her '81 team was the one that should have gone."

"When we went into the season that year our goal as players was to go to the state tournament. She made that her goal also. We won on determination because she was a determined coach."

One player who excelled for Coach Eversole on the '82 team was Kathy Howard, who took a year off from the sport and returned in 1982 for her junior year.

"Judy was a tough coach, but a great coach," said the former Lady Rebel. "That is what it took to win that year, toughness. I just loved her to death. She and her husband Sam (who was killed in an automobile accident in 1978) were very close to me. She was just a great lady."

"She was always tough on us in practices and would just about kill us," she laughed. "When I was a sophomore I took a year off and went back my junior year and Coach Eversole was real good in helping me come back."

"Everywhere I go everyone is asking me 'have you heard from Judy lately,'" said Shepherd.

"Judy Eversole did an outstanding job of coaching in 1982," said Prestonsburg Lady Blackcat coach Bridget Clay. "She accomplished something no one else has done in Floyd County girls basketball — that is take a team to the state tournament. We came close in 1977 when Sheldon Clark beat us in the finals of the tournament."

Eversole won district titles in 1979, '81, '82 and was runner-up in 1983 her last year at Allen Central. She was Coach of the Year in the same years and was the 15th Regional Coach of the Year in 1982.

Eversole finished her coaching career at Wheelwright High School where she said "I fell in love with the kids at Wheelwright just as much as Allen Central." Eversole surprised the Floyd County basketball world when she took her 1987-88 Lady Trojans to the 15th Regional tournament by winning the 58th District Tournament over McDowell despite a 2-18 record. Eversole had gained the reputation of being a tournament coach and a coach that could get the best out of any player.

Lonnie Slone, the last principal that Eversole worked under had nothing but admiration for the former Wheelwright coach.

"Coach Eversole was a very dedicated teacher," he said. "She was respected by all the teachers and students here at Wheelwright. We considered her our own and the school as well as the county has suffered a great loss."

Slone said that Coach Eversole was just as dedicated in the classroom as she was on the basketball court. "She just taught the kids so much here and that is why things are so quiet today (Thursday)."

Wheelwright took the last few minutes of the school day Thursday to hold memorial services for Coach Eversole. "That's what the kids wanted to do," explained Slone.

Allen Central basketball coach and Athletic Director, Johnny Martin summed up his feelings of the passing of a friend. "She was a great friend. An outstanding basketball coach who was a wonderful person loved by all. She was kind and considerate of everyone she came in contact with. She took a personal interest in her players and that was a major factor in her success as a coach."

"She lived a tragic life but never complained and was hopeful to be able to return to coaching someday. She will be sorely missed by me and everyone else who knew her."

Funeral services for Eversole are set for Saturday, November 10, at 1 p.m. at the Robinson County Funeral Home in Springfield, Tennessee.

I don't know about other subscribers to the Floyd County Times, but I, for one, am getting sick of reading a certain board member's campaign rhetoric. It is so blatantly obvious that he ascribes to the "there are two Floyd Counties" syndrome. After some soul searching, I came to the conclusion that my reason for being so disturbed by this suggestion was that it is true.

Yes, Virginia, there are two Floyd Counties—"The north end" and the "a--end." What is more disturbing is that when compared to the human anatomy model, the north end (mouth) gets the chef's top choice and the other end gets the digested discards. "Where's the beef?" would be a reasonable question for you other four board members to ask the chairman.

I have always heard it said that "one monkey don't stop no show," but one monkey can stop the show if the other four monkeys are "flunky monkeys." HB 940 is a joke if the chairman of the board is going to make clowns out of the other board members. I guess what I'm trying to say is this: Doc, we know you are omnipotent in regards to your power over the board, but do you have to FLAUNT it?

As a citizen in opposition to the privately owned medical waste incinerator at Highlands Regional Medical Center, I feel that the people of eastern Kentucky had better wake up and smell the roses instead of air emissions containing toxic substances such as: dioxins, lead, diben-zofurans and pathogenic organisms. The governor's ordered ban on incinerators in spring of 1990 states: Our existing regulations control only emissions of particulate matter, smoke and some toxic emissions, said Russ Barnett, deputy commissioner of the Department for Environmental Protection, and to this I say: "that's a lie" because that's what we live with, as do the patients and all the hospital personnel. We are demanding that the Fiscal Court for once finish what it started the second and third reading on its out-of-county ordinance on waste.

Editorial:

An extra special day

by Scott Perry

Sunday is a special day. It's special for many reasons, but mostly because it's Veteran's Day.

Veteran's Day 1990 is significant not just for remembering the sacrifices of those men and women who have defended our liberties in the past, but because thousands of American soldiers are today facing the threat of war.

Much has been said, much has been written about our presence in the Persian Gulf.

Some say we shouldn't be there at all, arguing that American soldiers are defending all the wrong things—a country (Saudi Arabia) ruled by kings that has a political philosophy diametrically opposed to our own democratic form of government. Others argue that our troops are being asked to sacrifice their blood so that we won't have to sacrifice our driving privileges.

These are narrow views with which we disagree.

Oil is not the issue here.

Saudi Arabia is not the issue here.

Our soldiers are prepared to fight because a fanatic, who values human life with the same indifference many of us would have in swatting a fly, threatens the peace and stability of the entire globe. One man who holds hostage not just innocent men, women and children, but the entire civilized world. He would kill them all for a patch of sand.

Our soldiers are not alone in the Persian Gulf. Many countries have troops involved in the face-off with Iraq's Saddam Hussein.

But the world looks to America, freedom's birthplace, for leadership and we have responded.

So Sunday is an extra special Veteran's Day. A day to fly your flag in honor of veterans past and veterans present.

"Our country," said Stephen Decatur, "in her intercourse with foreign nations may she always be in the right; but our country, right or wrong!"

Amen

McConnell Comments

Senator Mitch McConnell

McCONNELL LEGISLATION WILL BOOST STATE, LOCAL ANTI-DRUG EFFORT

The Senate Judiciary Committee has issued a grim forecast: the nation's murder toll is heading to a record level with the tragic increase due largely to drug-related violence. The Committee estimated that more than 23,000 people will be murdered in 1990, the third year in a row these killings have increased. Although our state has not been ravaged by narco-terrorism like many urban areas, it is a sad fact that Kentucky is a major center for the drug trade.

Earlier this month, 31 people were charged with running what law enforcement authorities say was the biggest cocaine ring in Northwestern Kentucky. Over the past seven years, this group imported from Miami an estimated 88 pounds of cocaine per month with a street value in excess of $3 million dollars.

In Eastern Kentucky, marijuana growers in the Daniel Boone National Forest are boobytrapping fields making it dangerous to hike trails or visit campgrounds. Although our state and local police officers are doing their best, they are faced with limited funds and a lack of equipment to carry out drug-related investigations.

On Aug. 3, the Senate unanimously adopted my amendment to the Defense Authorization Bill which will give state and local law officers access to the equipment they need to carry out drug investigations and give them an important boost in the drug war.

Because of troop reductions in Europe, tons of military equipment will become excess and have to be scrapped, stored or sold. My amendment directs Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney to draw up a list of equipment, including night-vision goggles, secure communications radios, trucks, jeeps and high powered searchlights that can be given to state law enforcement agents, county sheriffs and local police officers for use in drug investigations.

I have made it clear to the Secretary of Defense that only excess equipment be placed on the list so that this legislation will in no way reduce the operational capabilities of our active duty forces in the Middle East.

Local law enforcement officers are often stymied by drug smugglers and dealers who can spend thousands of dollars on equipment to evade detection. Now, Kentucky's drug fighters can get first-rate equipment they could never afford from the Department of Defense for keeping drugs off our streets and putting criminals behind bars.

Funding, election results topics at board meeting

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Difficulty in implementing sections of an agreement signed between Floyd County teachers and the board of education to settle the August teacher's strike was a topic discussed at Wednesday's school board meeting.

FCEA representative Carol Stumbo told board members teachers in several schools were having difficulty getting budget input in their schools.

"Some principals have cooperated with teachers and others are resisting," Stumbo said. "A teacher who willfully disobeys an administrator would be charged with insubordination. Administrators should be treated the same."

A reduction in central office staff in order to put more funds into school supplies was also a request of the teachers.

"Why not abolish those positions and put the money into the schools where it is needed?" Stumbo asked.

Stumbo said teachers need assistance in order to keep the most qualified educators in the Floyd County schools. Stumbo also spoke in reference to board chairman James D. Adams' defeat in Tuesday's election.

"When we were negotiating during the teacher's strike, we told you one day you would have to listen to the teachers in this county and I think that time has come.

"The people of Floyd County have decided we don't want a set of self-serving politicians replaced with another set of self-serving politicians. We will play your political games as long as we can under the law, but not as pawns. We will play the game for the children."

There was no response from the board on the requests and Superintendent Ron Hager thanked Stumbo for her comments.

Tim Jessen, an education activist from Prestonsburg, asked the board to reconsider its decision on the site of the new Prestonsburg High School.

"The election results indicate the voters' discontent with the site," Jessen said. "The people want to have input on the site. The message of the 1990 school board election is that the public wants a say in what goes on. If not, then they can vote anyone out of office. I ask you to reconsider the site."

The board took no action on the request and Hager thanked Jessen for his comments.

Several groups of concerned parents and PTA representatives addressed the board asking for a promise of funding to get certain equipment at their schools.

Delores Nalls, representing Betsy Layne parents, asked that a handicapped ramp at the school be repaired because several children have fallen on it and been injured. Awnings for trailers used as classrooms were also requested to shelter students from adverse weather conditions. An intercom system throughout the school was also requested.

Superintendent Hager said the maintenance department would repair the ramp and install the awnings.

Nalls also asked for new playground equipment because the old equipment "had been pushed over the hill" to make way for more classroom trailers.

"Whoever pushed it over the hill, will buy you a new set of playground equipment," Superintendent Hager said.

Debbie Hayes, Floyd County Parents for Better Schools, asked why schools were short on instructional supplies and why fees were still being charged at some of the county schools. Requests from the group also included having a school nurse at every school, a band program for all children, more security at elementary and high schools.

Terry Ratliff, Martin PTA, thanked the board for having the garbage dumpster moved from near the kindergarten classroom and asked for matching funds to purchase a copier for the school.

Hager said copiers had been placed on bid and, if funds were available, the board could possibly match funds raised by the PTA.

Vice chairman James Duff interjected and told Ratliff to "wait and see if the board can buy you one and you use your money for something else."

Mary Neeley, Prestonsburg Grade School PTA, presented a proposal for new playground equipment at a cost of $29,500. Neeley asked the board to provide a third of the funds for the project.

Chairman Adams said a commitment could not be made until the budget had been set but said he already had a commitment for heavy equipment work to be done at the site. Adams said after a document releasing the board of liability in case of an accident was drafted by board attorney William Francis work could begin on the project.

Since the board does not have a working budget for this school year, because the tax rate has not been set due to property re-evaluation, Hager said he could not promise any of the groups any funds until the budget was set.

In other actions, the board tentatively approved a $10,000 life insurance policy for teachers with Group American insurance company for $7,932, one of four proposals submitted by Larry D. Newman of Lexington. Approval was given pending a letter of confirmation of responsibility from the parent company, Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance.

See Wednesday's edition for a list of personnel hirings and other actions taken by the board.

Weinandy received a Doctorate in Historical Theology in 1975 from King's College, University of London, England. Since 1976, Fr. Weinandy has been a member and one of the pastoral leaders of the Mother of God Community, which grew out of the Charismatic Renewal and serves families in the Washington DC area. He is a contributing writer to "The Word Among Us," a monthly Catholic publication in both the English and Spanish languages.

Fr. Weinandy has taught theology at Georgetown University, Washington DC; Mount St. Mary's College, Emmitsburg; University of Steubenville and Loyola College of Baltimore. He has had wide pastoral experience working with families and evangelizing college students.

Linda Snelling will direct the youth activities for the renewal. In her third year as Youth Minister and CCD Coordinator at Good Shepherd Catholic Church in Frankfort, Ky., she directs the religious education for 140 to 150 children in the grade school and high school program. Snelling travels extensively to conduct weekend seminars for Confirmation candidates and for high school and junior high school students. A native of Frankfort, she is a member of the Diocesan Lay Ministry Program.

Many activities are scheduled. The introductory session begins with Mass at 7:00 p.m. on Friday, Nov. 9. Saturday, Nov. 10, will be a day of reflection beginning at 1 p.m. and continuing through evening services and a chili supper. Closing sessions on Sunday, Nov. 11, will include the regular 11 a.m. Mass, a pot-luck lunch and a healing service.

at Caney Creek, Lloyd agreed to teach Abisha Johnson's 11 children how to read. Finding herself inundated with other mountain children in need of education, Lloyd turned her cabin into a school.

Because the community was poor, Lloyd wrote friends and strangers requesting donations of funds and school supplies. Using barter with the local men, she would provide supplies and teach their children as long as they would construct the buildings.

By 1920, volunteers from across the country came to Caney Creek for summers and extended visits. One of the volunteers was a young woman from New York, June Buchanan. "Miss June" soon became Lloyd's closest friend, and together, they built the small school into a four-year community college.

Miracle on Caney Creek also includes a condensed version of the Alice Lloyd story in a music video that features the song "Miracle On Caney Creek." Written and performed by Johnathon, the music video has aired more than 2,000 times on national music channels.

Miracle on Caney Creek was produced by Michael Johnathon.

Docudrama features story of Alice Lloyd College on KET November 12

The touching story of how a frail woman from Boston took on the monumental task of educating poor Kentucky mountain children is featured in Miracle on Caney Creek, airing on KET at 10:00/9:00 p.m. CT Monday, November 12.

Written by singer-songwriter Michael Johnathon of Winchester, Miracle on Caney Creek tells the story of Alice Lloyd, who, with the help of June Buchanan, established the college at Caney Creek that bears her name.

In 1916, Boston journalist Alice Lloyd became sick from spinal meningitis and a mild stroke. Her doctor told her she would die in six months unless she moved to a warmer climate. Lloyd's husband refused to move his life and career away from Boston, saying to his wife, "One life wasted is unavoidable, two lives wasted is senseless."

With no money, a broken marriage, and a broken heart, Lloyd traveled by horse and buggy to Appalachia, accompanied only by her mother. They settled in Ivis (now called Hindman in Knott County) at a mission home donated by her Boston church.

Mountain Voices

by Willie Elliott

The other day several of us teachers were talking about the coincidences that occur in our lives. I mentioned that on Frasure's Creek there were four consecutive households owned by people named Pink. First there was Pink Osborne, the Pink Akers, followed by Pink Elliott, and lastly Pink Osborne Jr. Right above them lived Pinky Lee. (No, I just made that last one up.) As I related this story, it brought to mind other aspects of that life separated by a mere few miles in space but several years in time from my present life. I thought we were poor, and it must have been so because everyone else thought we were poor. But as I look back, maybe we were all wrong. I remember that my mother would get up every morning and fix gravy, biscuits, bacon, and homemade jellies or jams for breakfast. No late all of this as if it were going out of style, but secretly I wished that we were rich so we could have cereal just like the other kids. If I could convince Linda how poor we still are, we had to use wood and coal for heat and cooking the. We would use them now, but they're too expensive. We didn't get to go to the movies very often, but we did get to camp out in the hills until our hearts were content. Every summer we made our slingshots out of Cincinnati (synthetic) rubber. For real adventure we would ride small trees to the ground. If boys do this now, it must be on a Nintendo game. At the time I would have given all these activities for a few trips to the movie house. We even made a fun activity of work. I would visit my cousins when it was time to "hoe the corn out." We would work from early morning to late evening, and we thought it was a fine time. It must have been a good time or I wouldn't be remembering it so fondly.

Each day we had our social hour. It was called going to the mail boxes. Irvin Collins brought the mail to the mail boxes in a horse-drawn covered wagon. Each day several of us gathered to discuss the day's events as we awaited Irvin and that day's mail. To this day, I say I am going to the mail box rather than to the post office.

This may sound sacrilegious, but funerals served as a social function for young men and women. The corpses would be brought to the home and kept for two or three days before burial. That meant there was an around-the-clock vigil. Young men and women would sit up all night with the corpse, but many times they had other things on their mind. Somehow, I wish we could go back to those kinds of days again. We didn't worry too much then. We didn't have enough to worry about. Ah, but that is the same things our kids will be saying about the age of the Nintendo and home video.

Strange Enough

by Tim Preston

I'm back. I'm married.

I want to start by thanking everyone who showed up for the wedding. Much appreciation is also given to those who have so generously showered us with gifts. We now have more appliances than electrical outlets, but believe me we are not complaining. Also, I need to thank Ed Taylor for helping to coordinate the ceremony as well as performing it. Thanks Ed, you are one in a million.

Now, back to the honeymoon.

After the wedding and reception, most of us went back to my house and partied for several hours. My band, Grumble Bunny, played for about an hour before turning the amps over to the collection of musicians present. Needless to say, the music went on for hours. My apologies to our neighbors.

Saturday morning we got up and ran off everyone who had stayed overnight, and with no idea where we were going, we headed out. We ended up in Knoxville, Tennessee.

The real highlight of the drive South was a stop at the Hank Williams Jr. Museum and Fireworks Barn. That's right, not only can you buy firecrackers and bottle rockets but you can pay tribute to the living legend of the mighty Bocephus. I guess that it was the Tennessee version of a combination souvenir shop and rattlesnake pit. Who could ask for more?

After arriving in Knoxville, we found the apartment of my brother Mark, who had foolishly offered to let us use the place while he was fishing in Alabama. We found the key under the doormat (a place which is always safe from burglars) and I carried Alys over the threshold.

The whole thing would have been rather romantic had I not stepped on my brother's cat in the process.

After locking ourselves in the apartment for a couple of days (Afterall, this was a honeymoon) we packed the car again and went to Nashville in search of entertainment.

A bit of advice, never look for entertainment on a Monday night in a strange town. After hours of driving in Nashville while lost, we gave up and rented a nice suite at a local hotel. For the romantic touch I asked the clerk if any type of honeymoon suite was available. Well of course there was, and it only cost an extra hundred bucks for the package, (which did include champagne and breakfast). Thrills, chills and excitement!

We attempted a second tour of the city the following afternoon, although we did manage to find a few music stores there really was nothing to write home about.

An odd sidenote to this whole Nashville story is that we attempted to call Rusty May, (local native and percussionist of the far extreme) who is now a Nashville resident, in order to have some input as to where to go for entertainment. Although we left several messages on the answering machine, we didn't get in touch with Rusty until we bumped into him at a Halloween party in Paintsville.

One of the truly enjoyable aspects of the honeymoon was the fact that I didn't have to work on either press day last week. I promised everyone here at the paper to let them know what it felt like to be off work on a Tuesday, so here goes.

OOOOOOOOOOOOOOH, OOOOOOOOOOOH, OOOOOOOOOOOH, this is great! That's about as close as I can get.

Author resurrects the true spirit of Christmas

Gerald Toner will be at the Bookworm in Prestonsburg Saturday, Nov. 10, between 2 and 4 p.m., to autograph his latest publication, "Lipstick Like Lindsay's and Other Christmas Stories." The work is a collection of short stories dealing with the relationship between parents and children in the Christmas season when emotions run particularly high. They are stories for adults but can be read to children. One of the stories, "Remember the Oranges," will appear as the featured fiction piece in the Lady's Home Journal's December 1990 issue.

The stories were written in response to several things that Toner read and heard alleging that the Christmas spirit had become totally corrupted and was, in the sense of all of its old meanings, dead. The title story is tied to the commercial side of Christmas ... the buying of a gift. But it becomes much more when seemingly unsurmountable obstacles are encountered and a parent's love, devotion and a determination not to disappoint kicks in. The commercialism is transcended and old values reveal themselves.

Toner was born and raised in Ft. Thomas, Ky. He is a graduate of Harvard College and the Vanderbilt University Law School. He is currently a partner in the firm of Ogden, Sturgill & Welch in Louisville where he specializes in civil trial work, specifically medical malpractice defense. He is married, with two children. The oldest, Jennie, is the daughter in the title story "Lipstick Like Lindsay's." She was five at the time of its writing.

Students name best teachers

Six Floyd County teachers are being honored by their toughest critics, their former students, in the inaugural edition of Who's Who Among America's Teachers. Local educators honored in this publication include: Janice Blackburn Allen, Ralph Waldo Dingus, and Bobby Jean Hale of Prestonsburg Elementary School; Patricia Balsley Dye and Edith Hopkins of Clark Elementary School; and Ronald Robinson of Prestonsburg High School.

All of the teachers were selected by their former students who themselves are currently listed in Who's Who Among American High School Students or The National Dean's List, publications which recognize the top 5% of our nation's high school and college students respectively. Paul Krouse, publisher of Who's Who Among America's Teachers said, "There is no greater honor than to be recognized by former students for their excellence and dedication."

The students were requested to nominate teachers who "made a difference in their lives" by helping to shape their values, inspiring interest in a particular subject and/or challenging them to strive for excellence.

Floyd students inducted into honor society

Two Eastern Kentucky University students from Floyd County have been inducted into Kappa Delta Pi, an honor society for students in teacher education. Marina Allen of David and Tanya Walker of Dema were inducted into the ECU chapter on September 25.

To be nominated, a student must maintain at least a 3.0 grade point average and be juniors majoring in teacher education.

Learning the stock market game

by Ramona Aiken

Auxier Elementary School

Ramona Aiken's Eighth grade class at Auxier Elementary is participating in the Stock Market Game sponsored by the Kentucky Department of Education. The game teaches students to become familiar with buying and selling stocks. It also teaches an understanding of how the American economy is centered around the Stock Market.

The game started September 28 and will continue through December 10. During this time, the student teams are each given $100,000 in play money to purchase and sell stock.

Aiken's class kicked off their game by inviting Phillip Elliot from Frist Commonwealth Bank to give a presentation on Stock Market rules and regulations. He discussed terms that were essential in understanding the stock market. Elliot also discussed the availability of stable and unstable stock.

Prizes will be awarded to the team with the most available money when their stock portfolio is liquidated on December 10. Aiken reminds her students, "Good Luck and, remember, BUY WISELY!!!"

Smile Awhile

by Sarah Hopson

By Sara W. Hopson WHO DO YOU TRUST?

For the sixth time in as many years our son, J.R., has lost another jacket. He has misplaced a wool one, a nylon one, a gabardine one, a wool and leather one, a blue jean one - and now - an expensive leather bomber one.

What does one do?

"J.R.," I asked one day last week. "Where is your jacket?"

"I left it at school," he replied, solemnly.

"You haven't lost it, have you?" I nervously asked.

"Of course not," he said, as his eyes averted mine. "It's in my locker."

"Well, you'd better not come home without it," I announced.

"I told you it's in my locker," he shrieked.

"Just bring it home."

The next morning as he was leaving for school, I noticed he wasn't wearing a jacket.

"Where's your jacket?"

"I forgot and left it in Coach Burchett's room."

"You've lost it, haven't you," I asked again for the second time in two days.

"Certainly not," he answered, as he shrugged his shoulders. "You act as if you don't believe me."

"J.R.," I said, calmly. "It isn't as if this would be the first jacket you ever lost. If memory serves me correctly, you are adept at losing that particular item of clothing."

"I hate it when you accuse me of things I haven't done," he crowed. "I'll bring it home this afternoon."

Later that evening I asked J.R. if he'd brought his jacket home.

"Nah, the janitor found it in Coach Burchett's room and took it to the office. I had to go to practice after school so I couldn't pick it up. I'll get it in the morning."

Sweat creased my brow, fire spewed from my nose, and my voice exploded into an A-bomb as I yelled, "You better have not lost that jacket, young man!"

"You never believe me!" he screamed.

"Bring it home tomorrow, or we're going back after it," I growled.

The next evening, I arrived home late so I forgot to ask about the jacket until supper. "Get your jacket?" I asked.

"Shoot!" J.R. exclaimed, as he sat down at the kitchen table. "I knew I forgot something. I promise I'll get it tomorrow."

"You're darn tooting, you will," I said, as I slung mashed potatoes in the direction of his plate. "You will because I'm coming to school to see that you do."

"Fine," he said, adamantly. "You just do that."

The next day, my mother and I went to lunch and found J.R. and some friends walking down the street. We pulled up to the sidewalk and rolled down the car window.

"Got your jacket yet?" I asked.

"No," he replied, smartly.

"I bet some little girl's wearing it," my mother chided.

"That's not true," J.R. said.

"If it is, just tell us," I stated.

J.R. just shrugged his shoulders in that thirteen-year-old way and sauntered on down the street.

"Sometimes he infuriates me," I said to my mother.

"Now you know how I felt," she said, as she smiled knowingly.

"Well, I certainly never lost an expensive jacket," I said.

"No, you and your sister's just lost cheap things such as diamond rings, gold watches, full semesters of colleges..."

"Forget I mentioned it, Mother," I said, angrily. "It's just that he's always losing something."

At that moment, I saw one of J.R.'s female friends walking across the street in a leather jacket. I jumped from the car and tore after her. As I wrestled her to the ground, she glanced up at me with terror in her eyes.

"What's wrong, Sara?" Jennifer Suzanne managed to gasp.

"Is that J.R.'s jacket?"

"No, it's mine. But he can have it if it means that much to you," she answered, tearfully. "Can I keep the money that's in the pocket though? I need to buy some paper."

My face reddened with embarrassment. Not only was Suzanne not wearing J.R.'s jacket, it wasn't even the same color. I offered my feeble apology and slinked back to the car.

"Why'd you accuse Suzanne of stealing my coat?" J.R. asked angrily when he came home that afternoon. "You don't trust anybody, do you?"

"Did you get your jacket?" I asked, quickly changing the subject.

"No," he replied, weakly. "Someone stole it out of my locker, but Bradley thinks he knows who has it."

"I knew it! You've lost it!"

"Chill out, Mom," he said. "I'll ask him tomorrow."

"J.R.'s lost his leather jacket," I said to my husband as I crawled into bed.

"What makes you think so?" he asked, sleepily.

I recounted the entire story and waited for him to offer a solution.

"Trust him," he yawned. "He'll bring it home tomorrow."

"I wearily counted leather jackets until I fell asleep."

"It's gone," J.R. said the next afternoon.

"Did you go ask at the office?"

"Yes," he replied.

"Did you ask Coach Burchett?" I asked as my voice grew louder.

He nodded his head affirmatively.

"Are you telling me it's gone?" I questioned, as I glared into his eyes.

"I think I am," he whispered. "But I sure wish I wasn't."

"And I truly wanted to believe you!" I sobbed. "Why didn't you just say you lost it in the first place?"

"I was afraid you'd be mad," he answered, "and I was right."

I only pray we don't have a terribly cold winter this year.

$1.24 million grant will benefit faculty scholars program at UK

The University of Kentucky's Faculty Scholars Program has received a $1.24 million, five-year grant from the Pew Charitable Trusts to provide professional opportunities for faculty at small colleges in Appalachia.

The grant will enable science and mathematics educators at 34 small private colleges in Appalachian Mountain States to apply for fellowships to study and conduct research on the UK campus in Lexington.

The grant also will fund several related activities from Appalachian professors, including conferences, seminars, summer independent study fellowships, and awards for innovative teaching approaches.

The Faculty Scholars Program was begun in 1980 to give faculty members at small colleges access to resources that generally can be found only at major research universities, such as specialized libraries and laboratories, and the opportunity to interact with world-class researchers. It was originally known as the Appalachian College Program.

The new grant will provide major funding for the program's math and science components for the next five years. During this period, an endowment fund will be established to continue the activities after 1995.

Faculty will be able to compete for one-year fellowships, worth $30,000, and summer fellowships valued at $3,500. Beginning this year, students from the participating colleges and public school teachers from those local communities will be able to apply for grants to participate in the summer projects of college faculty.

"The program makes a difference," said director Alice Brown. "The participants tell us that the experience revitalizes them, by giving them new ideas about teaching and a chance to find areas in the context of their teaching to change and develop."

"The fellowship program is one of the best things UK does to fulfill its commitment as a land grant institution. Our outreach is not limited to just Kentucky," she said. "This is one example of how the university tries to help education in the whole region."

In addition to the programs in mathematics and science supported by the Pew grants, the Faculty Scholars Program receives funding from other sources to conduct activities relating to humanities education.

The Pew Charitable Trusts, a national philanthropy based in Philadelphia, consist of seven individual funds established by the sons and daughters of Joseph N. Pew, founder of the Sun Oil Co. Grants are awarded to nonprofit organizations working in the areas of education, culture, the environment, health and human service, public policy and religion.

Military Memos

Collins awarded Navy Achievement Medal

Five members of Helicopter Anti-Submarine Squadron Light (HSL) 36 were recently awarded the Navy Achievement Medal. Lt. Tim Collins received the NAM, his second, from Commander Navy Recruiting Command for his efforts as the enlisted programs officer at Navy Recruiting District, Louisville, Ky., from August 1987 to January 1990. As a result of Collins' actions, NRD Louisville attained 106 percent of their goal for fiscal year 1989, and was selected as Recruiting Area Five's "Most Improved District" of the year. Lt. Collins and his wife, Sheila, presently reside at Mayport, near Jacksonville, Fla. He is the father of two sons, Tim Collins II and Wesley Collins of Dana. He is the son of Rose Collins of Prestonsburg and the late Scott Collins.

Slone serving in Sinai

Army Pvt. 1st Class Dennis K. Slone, a ground surveillance systems operator, is a member of the 1st Battalion, 17th Infantry Regiment, Fort Richardson, Alaska, participating in the multinational peacekeeping force and observers (MFO) as the primary U.S. military contingent in the Sinai.

The MFO, an independent agency responsible to the governments of Israel and Egypt, was established as a result of the 1979 Egypt-Israel peace treaty. The mission of the unit is to operate checkpoints and observation posts, and conduct reconnaissance patrols along the Sinai Peninsula.

Slone is a son of Ernestine Slone of Prestonsburg and Gene A. Slone of Prestonsburg. He is a 1986 graduate of Prestonsburg High School.

B. L. High students "trick or treat" for U.S. troops

Students "trick or treat" for troops. Students at Betsy Layne High School spent their Halloween in a different way. They selected this day to salute the nine former students who are currently serving in the Middle East.

More than 300 of the school's 600 students arrived for the day dressed in army fatigues. A special display featuring photographs of service members was prepared for the entrance hall of the school.

A special ceremony honoring our service members and the ten crew members of the USS Iwo Jima who had been killed the previous day was presented by the Betsy Layne chapter of the Disabled American Veterans. The Pledge of Allegiance was led by Shelli Hunter Nunemaker, a 1987 graduate of Betsy Layne High School, a veteran of the U.S. Army, and the wife of Kenton Nunemaker who is currently serving in Operation Desert Shield.

A short presentation by James Stratton discussed "Problems in the Middle East." Stratton led the students in a moment of silence in honor of the Navy personnel who had been killed—a moment particularly poignant because Dale Spurlock, a 1988 BLHS graduate, is presently serving on the Iwo Jima.

The "Star Spangled Banner" was sung by Kimberly Carter, who was accompanied by Marty Harris.

The Betsy Layne chapter of the Future Homemakers of America, sponsored by Patricia A. Huffman and Elizabeth M. Jones, planned and organized the day's events. Activities to honor service personnel will continue with letter writing and Christmas card projects. Shirley Harmon's history classes have already been writing to the BLHS graduates in the Middle East for several weeks.

Those former Betsy Layne graduates currently serving Operation Desert Shield are: PFC Terry D. Stapleton, Kenton Nunemaker, April M. Steffy, Keith Hall, MM3 Stephen Branham, GMGSA Michael Rose, PFC Bryon Sturgill, LCPL Dale Spurlock, and PFC James "Jimmy Fudd" Parsons.

Blackcats Travel To Corbin In District Play

Redhounds Await Blackcats Arrival In District Playoffs Tonight At Corbin

Tonight the Prestonsburg Blackcats will head to Corbin in a quest to keep their 1990 football season going. They face a tough, 7-3 Corbin Redhounds football team.

When you mention Corbin football you naturally think of All-State candidate Corey Reeves, a 6-2, 232 pound senior tight end. Reeves has been ranked among the state's best at the end position as he is being courted by several major colleges that are eager to sign the sure handed stand-out. Among the schools that are trying to ink Reeves are Notre Dame, Florida, Tennessee, Georgia and, of course, the University of Kentucky. According to reports out of Corbin, Reeves could very well end up at UK because of the need next season for some ends. The other end position will be filled by Trae Pennington a 5-10, 196 pound junior. Pennington is also a stalwart on defense.

Perhaps the best athlete on the Redhound team is quarterback Brent Canady (6-0, 170 senior). Canady was an All-State defensive back last year in Kentucky. He was second in the state in 110 hurdles and won the state as junior. Canady has uncanny speed, but does not possess a strong throwing arm. When he does throw he is accurate, but not with a lot of distance.

The Redhounds can run six different players out of the backfield. Darian Jackson (5-7, 172) is the leading rusher for Corbin, collecting over 100 yards in his last four games. Chuck Selvy (5-11, 185) will also be in the backfield for Corbin. Other players coach Larry Adams can bring into the backfield are Brian Mulberry (5-11, 177) and Aaron Schuhmann (5-7, 145).

Corbin will average 250 pounds on the offensive line with Derrick Rains, at 258 pounds, leading the way. Chris Judd (6-0, 269) also will be an immovable force.

Defense is the strong point of this year's Corbin Redhounds. Corbin has not been scored on except on turnovers they have committed. Because of the size of the Redhounds' defensive line, opposing teams shun the run.

Corbin is a 60-40 team. They will run the ball on most offensive plays, but will put it in the air if necessary.

The Redhounds lost to Highlands, 27-14 in the opening game of the season in the Thoroughbred Bowl at Tates Creek on August 18. They fell to Bell County at home 32-6. Their third loss was a heartbreaker to Cawood, 17-14 in October. Corbin owns victories over Henderson County (41-12), Cumberland (41-0), Wayne County (13-0), Russell County, (37-20), Hazard (36-8), Somerset (30-0) and, most recently, Middlesboro (27-6).

The only team with any connection to the two teams is Whitesburg. Whitesburg defeated Cawood 21-19 in a wild one earlier in the season. Corbin lost to Cawood and Prestonsburg lost to Whitesburg.

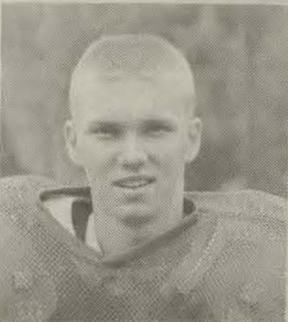

The winner will face the winner of the Wayne County and Whitesburg game.

Coach Bill Letton "...at full strength"

Blackcats Look To Clark-McGuire To Lead Them Past Corbin

Tonight the Prestonsburg Blackcats will not be at home hosting an opponent in the first round of the state football playoffs as they did last season against Somerset. Instead, the Blackcats of Coach Bill Letton will be on the road as they travel down I-75 to face the Redhounds of Coach Larry Adams.

Prestonsburg (6-5) tied Napier and Leslie County for second place in the District 2 standings. The Blackcats had to defeat Morgan County (37-14) last Friday night in order to get the second playoff berth on the point system. Last year the Blackcats won the District 2 title in the final game of the season.

Prestonsburg is a type of team that can mix up their offense well. In the air, quarterback John Thomas Clark (5-11, 144) has found wide receiver Worthie McGuire (6-3, 150) to his liking. Consistency has been the positive note on this hook up. Against Morgan County, Clark hit McGuire and Aaron Tucker (6-1, 163) for 103 yards passing with McGuire gathering in five receptions for 91 yards. McGuire has scored nine touchdowns this season, seven on passes from Clark. Tucker provides Clark with another receiver with the agility to catch the football. Tucker and Clark connected for a 16-yard TD pass against the Navaho's last Friday night.

Passing the football does not constitute all of the Blackcats offense. The backfield is set with some very talented runners. John Goble (5-9, 155) leads what is considered a very balanced backfield. Goble scored two touchdowns against Morgan County Friday night in some limited playing time. Also coming out of the backfield will be Mike Hobson (5-11, 205). Letton can bring in a very talented Todd Goodman (5-9, 165) along with Jonathan Leslie (5-10, 150).

As Coach Letton said after the Morgan County game, it probably was the first time that his team has been at full strength all year. The Blackcats are a much improved team since several players have returned from injuries.

The offensive line for Prestonsburg is anchored by such heavyweights as senior guard Trevor Blackburn (5-10, 221) and Aaron Stepp (6-0, 249). Outside tackle Mike Ramadan (6-0, 183) has been a force on the line for the Blackcats this season also.

On defense, enough can not be said of Todd Goodman who loves to make it miserable for the opposing quarterbacks. Goodman hits hard and could be the key to the Blackcats' defense tonight in the running game of Corbin quarterback Brent Canady. Stepp, Howard, Ramadan and Jonathan Leslie will make their presence known on defense also.

Jason Storey (6-1, 184) will handle the kicking duties for Prestonsburg. Storey kicked four extra points and a field goal (his second of the season) against Morgan County. McGuire will do the punting for the Blackcats as well as be on the receiving end when Corbin is forced to punt.

Game time for this one is 8 p.m. at Corbin. Both radio stations, WKKZ and WQHY will have the game live if you are unable to attend.

Burke Fires In 41 Points As Auxier Romps Past Harold

Calling it a complete team effort, Auxier Hornet coach Jerome Greathouse was more than pleased with the performance of this team against the Harold Red Devils Wednesday night at Auxier. Jason Burke scored a career high 41 points to lead the Hornets in scoring and to a 87-45 win. However, Greathouse says that it was a "complete team effort" on the part of all of the players.

"We had good balanced scoring against Harold," he explained. "There was a lot of unselfish play on the part of all the players." Unselfish? Greathouse said even though Burke scored 41 points he also dished off 12 assists and pulled down 18 rebounds. "I had to get him to shoot the ball on several occasions. He was passing off and not shooting," said Greathouse.

Auxier burst out to a 23-3 first quarter lead and held a 20 point lead at the half, 40-20. Burke only scored eight points in the first half. A 29-11 blitz in the fourth quarter put the game in the win column for Auxier, which goes to 3-4 on the season.

"I believe the one-point loss to Prater the other night woke this team up," said the Hornet mentor.

Ervin Osborne tossed in 16 points in the victory as did Tyron Wright. "Wright is really playing some good basketball for us," said Greathouse. "He has improved 100 percent since the season began. He is a very talented ballplayer who has been overlooked by previous coaches."

Greathouse said that Catrell Farler, who tossed in 10 points, played one of the best defensive games of the season for the Hornets. "Catrell has come a long way and has become a big asset to this team."

Willie Meade led the Red Devils in scoring with 15 points. Kevin Keathley added 14 in the loss for Harold while Joe Stevens put in six points.

In scoring his 41 points, Burke had 15 field goals and hit 11 of 11 freethrows. As a team Auxier hit 19 of 29 charity tosses. Farler had 12 rebounds in the game and picked up five assists.

HAROLD 3 17 14 11 (45): Joe Stevens, 2-2-2-6; Willie Meade, 7-7-11-5; Dwayne Akers, 2-2-0-4; Kevin Keathley, 6-4-2-14; Shawn Rose, 0-2-1-1; Nick Newsome, 1-2-1-3; Brian Pugh, 0-2-1-1; Mike Gillespie, 0-2-1-1.

at AUXIER 23 17 18 29 (87): Jason Burke, 15-11-11-41; Ervin Osborne, 7-5-2-16; Tyron Wright, 5-11-6-16; Catrell Farler, 5-0-0-10; Greg Richmond, 1-2-0-2; Tony Honeycutt, 1-0-0-2.

Lady Hornets Slip Against Prater In 21-12 Loss

Playing perhaps their best game of the season, the Auxier Lady Hornets have shown a lot of improvement since the season started but against the Prater Creek Lady Cougars, the Lady Hornets slipped a little in losing to Prater 21-12.

Heather Nelson scored eight points and Myra Akers tossed in six to lead the Prater team to their third win. The game remained close throughout, with Prater holding a slim, one-point lead, 8-7 at the half. In the fourth period, Prater outscored the host team 9-4 to open up the lead.

Crystal Blackburn led the Lady Hornets in scoring with four points while Stephanie Johnson and J.

Honeycutt scored three points each for the Lady Hornets. Crystal Vanover tossed in two points.

Other scorers for Prater included Patricia Kidd with three points and Amanda Rowe with two. Carrie Music and Christine Boyd each had one point.

PRATER 3 5 4 9 (21): Heather Nelson, 3-6-2-8; Myra Akers, 2-8-2-6; Carrie Music, 0-4-1-1; Patricia Kidd, 0-8-3-3; Christine Boyd, 0-10-1-1; Amanda Rowe, 1-0-0-2.

at AUXIER 2 5 1 4 (12): Stephanie Johnson, 1-6-1-3; J. Honeycutt, 1-2-1-3; Crystal Blackburn, 1-10-2-4; Crystal Vanover, 1-0-0-2.

FLOYD COUNTY LOSES COACH, TEACHER AND FRIEND

Wednesday evening at the Vanderbilt Medical Center former Allen Central and Wheelwright coach Judy Eversole died after five years of fighting cancer.

Judy was a fighter never wanting to give up. I can remember the last time I talked to her as she expressed that someday she planned on returning to coach a sport that she loved and dedicated her life to.

"I can see now, Ed where I made a mistake leaving Allen Central," she told me back last winter.

Judy will always be remembered, not only for her coaching abilities, but her contribution into lives that she had touched. I remember the first time I met Judy, when she came to Allen Central in 1978. I refereed a junior varsity basketball game for her and there I also met her husband Sam. Judy was a sweet lady who was very thoughtful and willing to go out of her way to accommodate you — until she got on the basketball floor. She was very knowledgeable of the game and could relate to her players in a special way.

Many of her former players will always have their memories of a coach that showed she really, genuinely cared for them. As Ramona "Bucky" Hall put it, "she cared about you and your grades."

Lonnie Stone said, "she was not only a great basketball coach but she excelled as a teacher in the classroom as well."

Judy finished her coaching duties at Wheelwright where she was immediately accepted as one of them. She was well respected by students and fellow teachers and won the hearts of many Floyd County's when she guided her underdog Lady Trojans (2-18) to a district championship. In my interviews with Judy during those days, she often talked about her physical condition. Judy was going through a lot of pain but she never complained, just kept fighting it, determined to come out the winner as she has always strived to do in the sport of basketball. Well, she may have lost this bout, but in the hearts of all of us who knew her she will always be remembered as a winner and one who cared for her fellow man.

Judy gained the reputation of being a tournament coach. Records didn't matter when it came to playing the Lady Trojans during the 1987-88 season. Wheelwright struggled with a team that was 1-16 until a conference game with McDowell. Judy told me before the game that "tonight we will win our first conference game and it will turn our season around." The prophetic saying became a reality when the Lady Trojans upset the Lady Daredevils of McDowell for their first conference win. From that point on, Eversole's squad began to play good basketball as the coach said, "we're getting ready for the tournament." The Lady Trojans responded with wins over Betsy Layne and again over McDowell in the finals of the 58th District tournament. Her response to me was "see Ed, I told you we would turn it around." Even then she was not feeling well but managed a smile of victory for everyone.

I am glad that I had a chance to know Judy Eversole. She was friend and a very wonderful person who was kind and considerate to all. Judy will be missed, but her memory will live on when we think of Allen Central Lady Rebel and Wheelwright Lady Trojan basketball and we will always remember the lady that made it happen at both schools.

I would hope the entire basketball season will be dedicated to the memory of Judy Eversole. I hope that Allen Central and Wheelwright will erect some memorial to the outstanding basketball coach. The Floyd County Times sports department dedicates this edition to her, just a small thing we can do here. Thank you Judy for the memories.

Got you!

There seems to be no escape for this Betsy Layne runner as an Allen Central defender grabs the arm. The Rebels and Bobcats met at Betsy Layne in the final game of the season for the two clubs. The Lady Blackcats held a 13-4 first quarter advantage and went to the lockerroom with a 25-9 lead. Prestonsburg had the distinctive height advantage as they held the smaller Lady Hornets scoreless in the third period.

Jenny Morrison and Jamie Clay each tossed in six points. Donna Hall added four.

Stephanie Johnson was the leading scorer for Auxier with nine points. Crystal Marsillett chipped in with five. Jennifer Blackburn added two.

Lady Bobcats Roll Past McDowell, 37-16

The Betsy Layne Elementary Lady Bobcats continue to have a good basketball season as they rolled past the Lady Daredevils of McDowell Elementary Monday night at Betsy Layne.

Jessica Hamilton scored 12 points to lead the Lady Cats in scoring and Jamie Ratcliff added six points.

McDowell scored the first two points in the first quarter and Betsy Layne then ran off 12 unanswered points to take a 12-2 first quarter lead. Ratcliff, Erin Baker and Hamilton each scored four points in the decisive run.

The Lady Cats had a big third quarter, scoring 19 points in the period to open up the game and winning going away.

Crystal Newsome led McDowell in scoring with 10 points and Amanda Roberts scored the other six.

Robinson Creek Hands Maytown A 68-57 Loss Despite Hagans' 28

The Maytown Wildcats went on a scoring spree in the fourth quarter but the comeback fell short as Robinson Creek held on to defeat the visiting school 68-57. Mike Richie, (6' 4") scored 21 points to lead the host team to victory. Nick Hagans, Maytown's standout player, scored 28 points to take game scoring honors. Chris Martin, another Wildcat standout, tossed in 17 points in the outing.

Robinson placed three players in double figures in the win. Bryan Noble had 16 while G. Miller added 17.

"We played good basketball," said Maytown mentor Rick Hancock. "We were scared going into the game of the big boy they had (Richie). We played the first period with no determination." Robinson Creek outscored the Wildcats 24-10 in the first period. After the first quarter, Maytown dominated the game but just couldn't get closer than six points.

"I thought we were going to win the game," said Hancock, "after we came back to within six points in the fourth quarter. Then we started doing some of the things that we've done all year and that's make the foolish mistakes like trying to force the ball and bad passes."

The Wildcats went to a full court press in the third and fourth quarter that caused the Robinson Creek team some problems. "Our press hurt them because they were weak at the guard spots. We got several layups off the press. Richie is going to be a good high school player some day. He is a little clumsy right now, but he is going to be a good one. Some of the big high schools are trying to get him."

For Maytown, Gary Webb had five points and Shawn Robinson added four while Chad Martin scored two.

Bassin' with the Pros

CRANKBAITS CAN WORK WELL FOR SHALLOW WATER BASS

Bass tournament pros normally choose spinnerbaits for their shallow water fishing around stumps, fallen logs, and rocks, but if you want larger bass from this same water, use a crankbait.

"For some reason, big crankbaits really attract bigger bass," explains Johnson Outboards Pro Staff angler Charlie Reed, who used this very tactic to win the 1986 Bass Masters Classic on Tennessee's Lake Chickamauga.

It takes some nerve to cast a lure with two treble hooks into a area full of brush and snags," continues Reed, "but many times I've seen larger bass hit a crankbait thrown into the very same spot a spinnerbait had just been fished."

Crankbait choice is important when fishing shallow water, according to Reed. The lure needs to have a long, slanted bill as well as high flotation.

"The crankbaits designed for really deep diving are the best for shallow water," notes the Johnson pro, "because the long bill not only gets the lure down quickly, it also helps bounce the crankbait over limbs and other obstacles that would snag it. The bill is what helps make the lure weedless."

"The high flotation also helps bring the lure over snags," Reed continues. "If you stop reeling the instant you feel the lure hit a snag, the crankbait often floats free up and over it. Then you start reeling again."

Reed recommends using a fairly light action rod for this type of fishing, and using the rod tip to help guide the lure through brush. He also prefers to use lines testing 20 or even 25 pounds.

"It's really amazing how you can bring a crankbait through thick cover by carefully controlling how you reel and how you raise and lower your rod tip," he says.

"You want the crankbait to bounce off the different pieces of cover, or dig into the bottom so it looks like a crayfish. Bass most often hit right after the lures ricochet off something, or right after it starts moving again after it's been stopped."

Fishing crankbaits in shallow water offers another advantage over spinnerbaits, according to Reed. The diving lures will continue to explore underwater cover out away from the shoreline as you retrieve them; spinnerbaits tend to be fished only around visible cover and then retrieved quickly for another cast.

"Don't ever think you've caught all the fish and from a certain spot, either," cautions Reed. "During the 1986 Bass Masters Classic, I caught a limit of seven bass from a small, milfoil lined ditch about 10 feet deep."

"Then I switched to a crankbait and caught three more bass from the same ditch on three consecutive casts. They added more than a pound to my total weight and won the classic for me."

HANDLED CASTING RODS

Style preferences change, even in bass fishing. Two decades ago, pistol-grip handles were standard on casting rods; today, straight handled rods are more popular. In the past, a rod length of 5 1/2' was standard, but now 6 1/2' and 7-foot rods are common.

"It's an example of rod specialization," explains Johnson Outboards Pro Staff angler Jack Chancellor, who has used the longer straight handled rods for years.

"We've learned that longer rods help us present many lures more efficiently, or are better suited to our personal styles of bass fishing. I definitely believe the longer straight-handled rods are worth considering by any bass angler."

Chancellor likes the longer rods because he often fishes a Carolina rig style worm with a heavy sinker and along leader. It's difficult to cast, but the task is easier with a longer rod.

"The long rods also make fishing the deep diving crankbaits easier," explains the Johnson pro. "Those lures have a lot of drag, and you can brace the longer rod handle against your arm as you retrieve them. It takes away a lot of pressure on your wrist."

Longer rods offer another definite advantage, adds Chancellor, which is in hook setting. With their extra length, more line is taken up as the rod swings upward. The hook set is both faster and stronger.

"The longer, straight-handled rods first gained popularity when the technique of flipping was originated," says Chancellor. "This is a specialized type of lure presentation in which line swings from the rod tip in a pendulum motion. A longer rod was necessary not only for accuracy but also strength because fish are caught right beside the boat."

"Later, anglers began using the longer rods for casting, because with both hands on the handle they could achieve much greater casting distance."

"I use the longer straight-handled rods for all my fishing, including spinnerbaits. In fact, the shortest rod I use is 6 1/2-feet in length."

Chancellor notes that achieving casting accuracy is more difficult with the long-handled rods, but with practice an angler should be able to put lures right where he wants them.

"The thing to remember about choosing a longer, straight-handled rod is that they're available in light, medium and heavy actions just like shorter rods. Many fishermen tend to think of the long rods as heavy action only, but that's not true."

"Before you purchase a long, straight-handled rod, decide what you want to use it for, then choose an appropriate action for that type of fishing."

Nelson Leads Lady Cougars To 19-15 Win Over Maytown

When the Prater Lady Cougars and Maytown Lady Wildcats get together for a good game of basketball, the score may not be the highest, but you can count on a lot of excitement.

Wednesday night's game was no exception at Betsy Layne as the Lady Cougars scored their second win of the season over the Lady Wildcats, 19-15, with the winning margin coming in the fourth quarter. The two teams battled it out at Maytown with Prater coming from behind in the final minute to capture a one-point victory.

In Wednesday night's game, with the score tied at 13-13, Heather Nelson hit a freethrow in the fourth period that gave Prater a 14-13 lead. Carrie Music followed that with a basket of her own to put the Lady Cougars up 16-13. Lisa Stumbo scored two points to cut the margin back to one, 16-15, but a charity toss by Christine Boyd and a basket by Myra Akers wrapped up the scoring and clinched the victory for Prater Creek.

Nelson finished with nine points for Prater and Music had five. Akers netted four points and Boyd had one. Maytown was led in scoring by Stumbo's 10 points. Drema Kilgore had 2; Angela Castle scored two and Melanie Hagans hit one free throw.

MAYTOWN 4 4 5 2 (15): Lisa Stumbo, 5 0-4 10; Drema Kilgore, 1 0-0 2; Melanie Hagans, 0 1-2 1; Angela Castle, 1 0-0 2.

PRATER 3 2 8 6 (19): Heather Nelson, 4 1-3 9; Myra Akers, 2 0-3 4; Carrie Music, 2 1-2 5; Christine Boyd, 0 1-4 1.

Balanced Attack Leads Stumbo Past Betsy Layne, 71-36

The John M. Stumbo Mustangs ran their basketball record to 13-1 with a 71-36 win over Ernie Tackett's Betsy Layne Bobcats, behind the scoring of Derrick Newsome and Steven Johnson. Both Newsome and Johnson tossed in 20 points and Rocky Newsome added 15 points in the victory. Joe Bryant had a good outing with 10 points.

The game was close through the first half with Stumbo holding on to a slim, one-point lead, 11-10, and led by just four at the half, 16-12.

"We came out cold in the first quarter," said Paul David Tackett, Mustang coach. "We missed some easy shots in the early going. At halftime we changed our defense to a 1-3-1 instead of the 2-3 we were playing. Betsy Layne likes to penetrate the middle on you and so we had to stop that."

The changed defense worked as the Bobcats could only score 14 second half points.

Jeremy Rogers led Betsy Layne with 16 points. Anthony Kiser and Mike Hunt each scored six points while Randy Wallen added four.

Misty Clark took game scoring honors with 14 points and Jamie Ratcliff and Jessica Hamilton scored 10 each. Amanda Eplin had six points and Erin Baker and Fitzer had two points each.

Ashley Tackett led the Lady Mustangs in scoring with eight points and Selena Bell added seven. Amanda Hall and Shanda Hall each scored two points.

Stumbo Leads Martin Comeback In 77-62 Win Over Melvin

Kevin Stumbo scored 13 of his 16 points in the third quarter to lead the Martin Purple Flash from a 39-31 halftime deficit to a 77-62 win over the host Melvin Cougars Wednesday night at Melvin.

Byron Gearheart led the Purple Flashes in scoring with 17 and Toby Robinson added 16 points. Jason Bevins scored 13 points and had a good night on the boards.

Martin held a 21-17 first quarter lead but fell behind behind in the second to trail at the half. "We had a good first quarter," said Jimmy Hopkins, Martin coach. "In the second quarter we played bad defensively. We were experimenting with a 1-3-1 defense and they got some easy baskets on us."

After making some adjustments at halftime, Martin came out and scored the first 10 points of the period to go on top 40-39 with Stumbo leading the charge. The Purple Flash were playing without their leading scorer, Chad Slone who will be out the remainder of the year.

"I told Kevin (Stumbo) if he would play as mean as he acts he could score some points," said Hopkins. "He did that in the third period and he can help pick up some of the scoring slack we lost from Slone. It will take us three or four games to adjust to Chad not being in the lineup."

Martin held Justin Ray, who finished with 21 points, to just five second half points after realigning their defense. In the fourth quarter Martin really got things straightened out with a 24-13 run.

Marty Johnson led the Cougars in scoring with 23 points. Jeremy Rogers tossed in 13.

Adam Coleman came in off the bench and scored nine points to fill in for a foul prone Gearheart. Brian Conn, who fouled out, scored four points and Clayton Tackett had two.

In "B" team play, Martin scored a 30-28 victory over the junior Cougars behind the 11-point performance of Kevin Robinson. Adam Coleman tossed in six points and Mike McKinney added four. C.K. Dingus netted three while Wade Damron and Beau Tackett scored two. The victory ran the Purple Flash "B" team record to 9-0 on the year.

T. Newsome led Melvin with 12 points and Tim Johnson had seven. Jarrod Compton had three as did Jeremiah Johnson. J. Johnson had two and Scott Johnson added one.

Hamilton, Stanley Leads Harold Lady Devils past Auxier, 55-11

Jessica Hamilton and Kelli Stanley combined for 32 points to lead the Harold Red Devils to a 55-11 victory over the Auxier Lady Hornets in girls grade school basketball Wednesday night at Auxier.

Hamilton and Stanley both scored 16 points and Jessica Johnson added seven points.

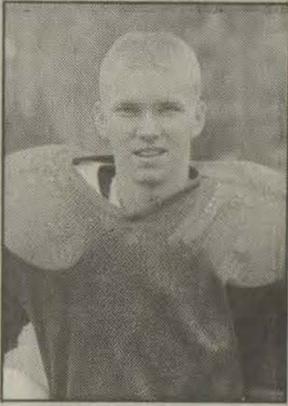

Harold scored 24 points in the first quarter to hold a 24-0 lead. Ashley Bartley, Melena Gearheart and Danita Kidd each scored four points. Compton had two.

Pigskin Predictions: Week Eleven

This Week's Games

- Kentucky vs Vanderbilt
- Notre Dame vs Tennessee
- Arizona vs Stanford
- Louisville vs Boston College
- Michigan vs Illinois
- Eastern Ky vs Marshall
- West Virginia vs Rutgers
- Prestonsburg vs Corbin
- San Diego vs Denver
- New Orleans vs Tampa Bay
- Washington vs Philadelphia
- Paintsville vs Beechwood

This Week's Consensus

- Kentucky
- Notre Dame
- Arizona
- Louisville
- Michigan
- Eastern Ky
- West Virginia
- Corbin
- Denver
- New Orleans
- Washington
- Beechwood

Several changes in the ranks this week. Ed moves into first place and Jackie takes over third and Jeff moves ahead two spots. Tim is desperately trying to clear the basement but he is going out of it backwards. Look for Tim to make a surge in the next two weeks. Corbin is favored over Prestonsburg in tonight's district playoff game (let's hope not). Kentucky to beat Vanderbilt and Notre Dame to upset Tennessee. Louisville looks to be heading for a bowl bid - Card's picked to win. San Diego and Philadelphia to win in the pros as Bengals and Browns are idle.

HOROSCOPE

November 11 through November 17

By C.C. Clark

SCORPIO (October 23 - November 21)

This is a great time for Scorpios. Keep a sense of mystery about your personal life, especially in the workplace. People will find you more intriguing.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 - December 21)

Read between the lines. You must be patient with everyone this week in order to avoid unnecessary arguments. Make sure others understand your intentions.

CAPRICORN (December 22 - January 19)

A friend will bring you some happy news this week. Take time to just reflect on life. Things are complicated, but there are key ways to simplify life.

AQUARIUS (January 20 - February 18)

Your career will need your full attention this week. Loved ones can help relieve pressure on the domestic front if you will simply communicate.

PISCES (February 19 - March 20)

Take action on a task that should have been done weeks ago. Don't depend on others to get your dirty work done. Trust yourself; you are capable of doing the job.

ARIES (March 21 - April 19)

Friends will show great appreciation of your talents this week. Romance is in the air, but it may not come from the source you would normally expect.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20)

This is a great week for renewing commitments made to loved ones. If you are just beginning a relationship, a very important issue may come to the forefront this week.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20)

Avoid making promises you know you can't keep. Though things may look a little rosier for your financial picture, don't overspend this weekend.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22)

A child plays an important part in your life. You may learn a valuable lesson that will help you now and in the future. Good news will stem from a loved one this week.

LEO (July 23 - August 22)

Don't get paranoid, but do watch for accidents waiting to happen. It will seem bumping your knees and stubbing your toe are simply a way of life this week.

VIRGO (August 23 - September 22)

It is possible you may receive a letter from a loved one. You will need to confide your fears to a friend, and they will understand and even provide some answers for you.

LIBRA (September 23 - October 22)

Your bank account is going to experience some good luck, although it may not actually involve an increase in funds. Changes made at work will prove positive.

ENTERTAINMENT NEWS

'Knots Landing' cast, crew send video letters to troops

U.S. troops in the Middle East will be receiving "home video" letters from the cast and crew of Knots Landing. In the taped messages, Joan Van Ark mimics her role as Val, Larry Riley sings and Kent Masters-King talks about her grandfather, the first African-American Marine. The theme of the messages: "We're thinking of you; you mean a lot to us; and we hope you get home soon."

John Spencer, who played Detective Lipranzer in Presumed Innocent, will join the cast of NBC's L.A. Law as a "ruffled but talented litigator." He becomes the 14th regular cast member.

"If it ain't on the page, it ain't on the stage" is a theatrical aphorism that Jeffrey Lewis can appreciate; the creator/executive producer of NBC's new series Lifestories is recruiting outstanding playwrights as well as other top writers to create stories for the medical anthology series, telecast on Sundays. A winner of two Emmys, a Humanitas Award and a Writers Guild Award for his work on Hill Street Blues, Lewis is himself a playwright. And in his quest to assemble his first team for the writer-driven series, he has emphasized qualities many stage writers share.

Dennis Swanson, president of ABC Sports, has been named recipient of the 1990 Graham McNamee Award, sponsored by the American Sportscasters Association. It is awarded to a former sportscaster who has achieved excellence in another area of sports, or in another field.

Jane Pauley has signed a five-year contract with NBC News, and her new program, Real Life with Jane Pauley, will return to the NBC prime-time schedule mid-season as a regular weekly series. Real Life presents a fresh look at life in the 1990s. The program premiered with five specials this summer and was a critical and ratings success, examining subjects that interest the average American and probing the problems and concerns we all confront daily.

Motown 30: What's Goin' On, a two-hour special celebrating the Motown Sound and the music and artistry of African-American performers who have influenced popular entertainment, was taped live at the Pantages Theatre in Los Angeles for broadcast in November on CBS.

International superstar singer Julio Iglesias will headline his first full-length concert special for American TV when HBO presents Julio Iglesias: Starry Night, debuting Nov. 24. The hour-long special was filmed in Los Angeles at the Greek Theatre.

VIDEO BIJOU

'Niagara' makes great use of location to build suspense

By Steven Alan McGaw

Mail, mail, I'm calling for mail! Are you brave enough to veer off the beaten video path? If so, you've probably discovered a few gems you'd like to tell others about. ... Well, here's your chance. Write to Video Bijou, P.O. Box 17748, Fort Worth, TX 76102. C'mon!

The Young Lions (1958)

Yes, this movie runs very long. Yes, it seems overstated at times. But few films offer as much in return, especially in terms of great acting. That's not surprising considering the cast; Marlon Brando, Montgomery Clift and Maximilian Schell are as brilliant as one might expect. Hope Lange, Barbara Rush and, yes, Dean Martin deliver performances equal to the challenge.

Edward Dmytryk directed this unusual World War II film starring Clift and Martin as American soldiers and Brando as a confused Nazi officer who'd really rather be skiing. Their stories only loosely intertwine, and the film has been criticized for its rambling, episodic structure. Those charges may be accurate; nevertheless, the performances are powerful, the story is interesting and the conclusion is intense. (Brando's death scene, rather like something out of grand opera, is particularly memorable.) The supporting work is fine, especially Lange and a small turn by Lee Van Cleef. For a flawed but unforgettable film journey, settle down with The Young Lions.
