But police offer no comment on suspect or motive:

Arrest expected soon in Hueysville murder

by Tim B. Preston
and Susan Allen
Staff Writers

Local police have identified a motive and a possible suspect in the savage slaying Saturday of an 85 year old Hueysville man.

Neither state police nor sheriff's deputies would elaborate on the status of the case. Floyd County Chief Deputy Linzie Hunt confirmed Tuesday, however, that investigators had uncovered new evidence in the murder.

The body of Billie Hughes, 85, of Hueysville, was discovered by his son, Arthur Hughes, at 1:45 p.m. Saturday. Floyd County Coroner Roger Nelson said that Hughes had been shot four times with a .32 caliber handgun. Nelson said that the body was discovered approximately two hours after the shooting.

Nelson said that, of the four shots, two could have killed the man. One shot which entered the chest area severed the aortic artery, another

Hughes, was hospitalized at the time of the shooting.

Investigators returned to the murder scene on Tuesday and said later that day that they anticipated an arrest in the case soon. They would give no further details.

Nelson did say, however, that the victim may have known his killer, adding that he was usually wary of strangers.

The murder is under investigation by Floyd County Deputies Linzie Hunt and Ricky Thornsberry along with Detective Kenneth Stone of the Kentucky State Police.

Funeral services for Hughes will be held at 10 a.m. Wednesday (Today) at the Philadelphia Baptist Church at Hippo, Ky.

According to police reports Hughes was shot once in the back of the head and three times in the chest.

Local talent showcased:

First Opry 'wows' 'em'

by Tim B. Preston
Staff Writer

"It was just an outstanding performance," said Prestonsburg Mayor Ann Latta of the first Kentucky Opry concert held Sunday at Prestonsburg Community College. "They showed that they have just so much talent, and what they are capable of doing with it."

The show, which was presented for area political and business leaders, was seen as an overwhelming success. "It went real good," said Kentucky Opry President Keith Caudill. "We had a real good time. The crowd was on their feet, they just had this 'wow' look on their faces."

During the show, Caudill quoted a story from the Floyd County Times which referred to the performing group as "local musicians," pointing out that similar opry groups in other states recruit musicians from around the country. "All of these musicians are local," said Caudill. "I think we got the message across that we can develop this for tourism in the area."

The Kentucky Opry is the brainchild of Floyd County music teacher Billie Jean Osborne who seemed very pleased with the first outing by the group. "Everybody is just overwhelmed with what they saw down there," said Osborne. "There is just no end to what we can do now."

Osborne said that future Opry performances would not be limited to country and traditional music. "With a permanent facility we could expand to have gospel shows and high school band performances. Right now, our kids have to travel away to compete or perform. They could be doing that right here," she said.

Floyd County Tourism Director Fred James agreed that the program could be of great benefit to the area. "It has tremendous impact potential for music education, and provide an opportunity to have a facility where the local talent can be showcased," said James.

The next performance of the opry group will be tonight in Pikeville, when they perform for a private audience, including Kentucky Governor Wallace Wilkinson.

Special meeting called to discuss waste ordinance

A special meeting of the Floyd County Fiscal Court has been called for Thursday at 1 p.m. to hold a reading of a proposed solid waste ordinance and to set a tax rate for the county.

Although new tax assessments have not been received, the county must set a tax rate subject to the new assessments, said Delores Dingus, secretary to Judge John M. Stumbo.

It has not been determined what reading it will be of the solid waste ordinance because it has been amended, Dingus said. A first reading was held on the original ordinance.

The proposed ordinance establishes an annual $25,000 permit fee for privately owned waste disposal companies. Companies dealing with hazardous waste will pay an additional $1,000 per ounce, while companies dealing with solid waste will pay an additional $250 per ton.

The meeting will be held in the Courthouse Annex.

Drugs and money

Prestonsburg Police Chief Greg Hall (lower inset, left) and Assistant Chief Roy Roberts (lower inset, right) announced this week that a record amount of cocaine was confiscated in a raid at Dale's Citgo on North Lake Drive in Prestonsburg. Officers confiscated an undetermined amount of marijuana along with 53 grams of cocaine. The cocaine was valued at over $5,000. (Photos by Tim Preston)

Coke bust is record, police say

by Tim B. Preston
Staff Writer

"This is the largest cocaine bust ever made in the city of Prestonsburg," said Prestonsburg City Detective Jeff Stumbo as he displayed large and small bags of white powder, marijuana and $900 in cash. A total of 53 grams (approximately $5,300 worth) of cocaine was confiscated during the raid.

The drugs were confiscated from the North Lake Drive location of Dale's Citgo service station after a lengthy investigation by undercover officers. After executing a search warrant at the business, officers arrested James Dale Mosley, 37, of Abbott Creek, and charged him with possession and trafficking in cocaine and possession and trafficking in marijuana (less than eight ounces) within 1,000 yards of a school. Mosley is a part owner of the Citgo service station.

Mosley faces penalties of five to ten years imprisonment on the cocaine charges, and one to five year sentence for the marijuana charges. Mosley was arrested and lodged in the Floyd County Jail, where he was later released on bond.

Detective Stumbo said that the city police had been aware of a drug distribution operation at the service station for several months, adding that undercover officers had been working on the case for an equal period of time. "The drugs were being sold from an office in the bottom of the service station. We also recovered three bags of marijuana from a pickup truck at the service station," Stumbo said.

Report suggests higher fees

by Tim B. Preston
Staff Writer

Members of the Prestonsburg City Council spent the bulk of a two and one half hour meeting Monday night listening to recommendations for restructuring the city's solid waste collection system.

William McGehee, a representative of Solid Waste Consulting Groups, told city officials that the city is currently offering area businesses too much service at a fraction of the cost which should be charged. McGehee informed the council that city waste collection trucks cost approximately $35 per hour of operation, suggesting that the city adopt a collection rate of $3 per loose yard of waste collected. Council members took no action on the suggestions made by the consultant, however, a special meeting of the council is planned to deal with specific issues of commercial solid waste collection. No date has been set for that meeting.

McGehee also informed the council that workers should avoid waste products from two Prestonsburg nursing homes, as well as waste from Highlands Regional Medical Center. "You have problems there," said McGehee. "I thought the incinerator burned everything up. It doesn't. They are not doing as good a job as they should be, you've got to take that risk away from your people."

Prestonsburg City Administrator Sam Campbell said Tuesday that city waste collection workers accept only non-medical waste from the hospital, adding that no ash or medical waste was being picked up or deposited in the county landfill by the city.

Perkins says proposal "won't see light of day"

by Scott Perry
Times Editor

An effort to redirect a proposed new interstate highway away from Southeastern Kentucky and through Central Kentucky has Congressman Chris Perkins red hot and "more resolved than ever" to see that the road is built in the Appalachian region, a spokesman for the Congressman said Tuesday.

At issue is the proposed extension of Interstate 66 from its current stopping point in Front Royal, Virginia, to the California coast. The extension project would bring the interstate through southeastern Kentucky, near Pikeville, and across the state through Hazard, Somerset, Columbia and Bowling Green.

Perkins, who has endorsed the southern Kentucky route with Congressmen Hal Rogers and William Natcher, was angered last week by a letter from the Greater Lexington Chamber of Commerce, which asked Congressman Larry Hopkins to consider a proposal that would reroute the new interstate highway through central Kentucky.

Perkins labeled that suggestion, which proposed that the new interstate follow existing highways like Interstate 64 and the Bluegrass Parkway, as "foolish."

"Failure to go with the southern route," Perkins said in a letter to Lexington Chamber president Edward T. Houlihan, "will cost the Commonwealth of Kentucky several

Services are held for PHS senior killed in mishap

Prestonsburg High School senior Angela Michal "Micki" Sparks, 17, of Prestonsburg, died Friday afternoon after an automobile accident Thursday afternoon on Ky. 402 in Magoffin County.

The accident occurred shortly before 2 p.m. Thursday when Sparks apparently lost control of the 1989 Camaro she was driving, crossing the center line and striking a guardrail before plunging over an embankment. Following the accident Sparks was transported to a Paintsville hospital before being transferred to Saint Mary's Hospital in Huntington where

One charged in collision

A head-on collision between a car and a tractor trailer sent one to the hospital early Friday morning. Brenda Pennington, no address available, was driving a 1983 Chevrolet Cavalier and crossed into the path of this loaded tractor trailer driven by Delbert Snodgrass and crashed head-on into Pennington. Pennington was taken to Highlands Regional Medical Center with a head injury. Pennington was charged with operating a motor vehicle under the influence of drugs, according to Kentucky State Police Trooper Stacey Trees. The accident is still under investigation by Trees. (photo by Susan Allen)

In other business, council members approved a motion to have the septic tank at the Floyd County Animal Shelter pumped out as a stop-gap measure before committing funds for replacement of the system. The septic system currently in use by the animal shelter, which has been described as inadequate to handle animal waste and hair, has backed up into the animal shelter facility creating a possible health hazard.

Council also approved personnel policies for a newly adopted junior firefighters program. The program would allow 16 and 17 year old teens to act as non-certified volunteer firefighters during after school hours. The young volunteers are prohibited from any actual firefighting or operation of power equipment and vehicles.

Following a proposal to open the former location of the Dollar Store for arts and crafts displays during the Christmas season, Prestonsburg resident Chalmer Frazier approached the council to request that any licensing fees for the project be waived in the interest of promoting downtown business. Council members approved the waiver by unanimous vote.

Before adjourning, members approved free customer parking in downtown Prestonsburg for December 1-31 and approved cancellation of the December 24 meeting of the council.

All council members were present for the second regular November meeting of the council except Councilman Charles Hale. Councilman Gary Brown arrived during the final twenty minutes of the marathon session.

Clay City man dies in head-on collision

A 23-year old Clay City man was killed instantly Monday after the car he was driving collided head-on with a coal truck on Route 1498 at Jacks Creek.

Wirley Hall was pronounced dead at the scene of the accident, one mile west of Bevinville, by Deputy Coroner Glenn Frazier. Hall, who was thrown from the vehicle, died of massive head and chest injuries, said Floyd County Coroner Roger Nelson.

Hall's car flipped over an embankment and overturned, according to the KSP. He died immediately, Nelson said.

The accident occurred at 2 p.m. when Hall apparently lost control of his 1982 Chevrolet Chevette and crossed into the path of a coal truck driven by Columbus Johnson Jr., 32, of Kite, according to a Kentucky State Police report. Johnson was taken to McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital where he is listed in fair condition.

No seat belts were in use and the accident is under investigation by Kentucky State Police Trooper Eddie Crum.

hundred million dollars in interstate construction dollars which will end up going to states east and west."

Perkins also accused Houlihan of "seeking to stir up opposition to a proposal which has the potential to open up to interstates, parts of Kentucky not currently served by interstate highways..."

"Speaking only for myself," Perkins added in the letter. "I can tell you that your proposal will never see the light of day in the House of Representatives. Your opposition, however, may have the effect of hurting all of Kentucky and preventing any part of Kentucky from benefiting from our program. I have seen in the past that ill-considered and foolish jealousy within a state has killed projects."

Perkins' spokesman Dave Whalen added Tuesday that the Congressman was "totally committed" to the Southeastern Kentucky route for the proposed new interstate, adding that actual construction is "still ten to twenty years away."

"It's important, though," Whalen added, "that we have a consensus on the road's corridor through Kentucky well in advance of construction."

Big Sandy Family Abuse Center provides shelter, information

Big Sandy Family Abuse Center, which serves Pike, Floyd, Martin, Johnson, and Magoffin counties, provides shelter for abused women and their children.

The center also will provide information and referral services to counseling, medical, and legal help. The center has a 24-hour crisis line, 886-6025, available to anyone who needs to talk with "someone who cares."

The center offers the following fact sheet denoting effects of domestic violence on children:

*In homes where domestic violence occurs, children are at high risk of suffering physical abuse themselves. Regardless of whether children are physically abused, the emotional effects of witnessing domestic violence are very similar to the psychological trauma associated with being a victim of child abuse. Each year, an estimated minimum of 3.3 million children witness domestic violence.

*Children in homes where domestic violence occurs are physically abused or seriously neglected at a rate 1500 percent higher than the national average in the general population.

*Research results suggest that battering is the single most common factor among mothers of abused children.

*A major study of more than 900 children at battered women's shelters found that nearly 70 percent of the children were themselves victims of physical abuse or neglect. Nearly half of the children had been physically or sexually abused. Five percent had been hospitalized due to the abuse. However, only 20 percent had been identified and served by Child Protective Services prior to coming to the shelter. The same study found that the male batterer most often abused the children, in about one-fourth of the cases both parents abused the children, and in a few instances only the mother.

*Lenore Walker's 1984 study found that mothers were eight times more likely to hurt their children when they were being battered than when they were safe from violence.

*Children from violent homes have higher risks of alcohol or drug abuse and juvenile delinquency.

*Approximately 90 percent of children are aware of the violence directed at their mother.

*Some of the emotional effects of domestic violence on children include taking responsibility for the abuse, constant anxiety (that another beating will occur), guilt for not being able to stop the abuse or for loving the abuser, fear of abandonment.

*Boys who witness domestic violence are more likely to batter their female partners as adults than boys raised in nonviolent homes.

Pike College begins annual fall campaign

Pikeville College has begun its 1990 Annual Fund Campaign, and is encouraging alumni, friends and businesses in Pike and Floyd counties to show their support for the college by contributing to the campaign.

"The college is a great asset to this community," said Jonathan Hiers, executive vice president of First National Bank of Pikeville and former chairman of the Pikeville College Board of Trustees. "This campaign gives the community a chance to express its support for the college in return."

During the campaign, which will continue through December 10, volunteers—friends and alumni of the college—will visit individuals and businesses in Pike and Floyd counties to ask for contributions to support educational programs at the college.

"In these visits, we also want to express our gratitude to the members of the community, not only for their gifts, but for the support they provide the college throughout the year," said Pikeville College President William H. Owens. "We are fortunate to have a community that is so supportive of our students and our programs."

For more information about the Pikeville College Annual Fund Campaign, or to make a contribution, contact Phillip M. Blake, associate director of External Affairs, Pikeville College, Pikeville, KY 41501, or call (606) 432-9326.

Clinking glass is sound of pain to recovering alcoholics

"Tis the season to be jolly"....Christmas and New Year's is fast approaching. Our expectations and excitement are running high—soon it will be time to celebrate. The media is geared up with its ads that portray families around the piano singing carols, the sparkling Christmas tree, a blazing fire and champagne glasses clinking.

But what's wrong with this picture? The picture does not include the chaos and disappointment found in the alcoholic family; the depression often felt by the recovering alcoholic or the pressures put on the social drinker to drink and be merry. During the holidays, it's not only considered acceptable to drink more, it is expected. The office party, New Year's Eve, watching football on T.V. or friends dropping in are all telescoped into a short period of time and at all of these, people are expected to drink...drinking equates celebration.

There are ways to handle the holiday period—solutions for both the alcoholic and the social drinker. First of all, be aware of your family's expectations, talk about them. Substitute an activity like taking a walk for drinking. If you are invited to a party where you know the main focus is drinking, you have the right to decline the invitation.

As the party giver, there are things you can do to assure everyone a good time. Be sure to have plenty of soft drinks and non-alcoholic beverages available. You can even have the choice not to serve alcoholic beverages at all. Always serve food, particularly avoiding salty ones that stimulate thirst. Set the mood—when guests arrive, introduce them, draw them out with lively conversation and games. Pace the drinks, you do not need to double up or push drink and decide in advance when to close the bar and include the time on your invitations.

In spite of all your good intentions and preparations, someone may become drunk. There is no way to sober a person up quickly. See to it that this guest DOES NOT drive home. Find another guest to take her or she home; offer your house for an overnight stay or call a taxi (M.A.D.D. Chapters even provide free service). If necessary more drastic measures like taking away keys, using physical restraint or calling the police may be called upon. The person may be angry at you the next day but you may have saved a life.

Careful planning and pre-holiday discussion can make the holidays safe and enjoyable for everyone. Remember, the Helpline is always available to provide referrals and information, if there is a problem. 1-800-422-1060.

Coffee Break

by Scott Perry

Looks like mother Hubbard will be going to the cupboard in '92 to toss poor Chris Perkins a bone. Father Hubbard, meanwhile, has set his sights on taking over the big pantry in Frankfort in '95.

Carol Hubbard, wife of 1st District Congressman Carroll Hubbard, will challenge Chris Perkins (that's Carl C. Perkins at election time) for the 7th District seat in '92 and she's actually willing to "move" to Eastern Kentucky to prove herself worthy of the job.

Her credentials are impressive, too. She's married to a Kentucky Congressman and she's a former Miss Kentucky. Both traits are important qualifications in the 7th District where politicians are routinely selected by the "Who's Your Daddy (wife, husband, mother) Merit System," which places more emphasis on blood lines than thought lines.

If you thought the '91 version of All in the Family, starring Wally and Mart Wilkinson, would be an Oscar-winning performance, wait for the sequel in '92.

Carroll and Carol and Carl and Carl.

May we have the envelope, please?

The Japanese are poised to buy Universal Studios, the second major American motion picture-making company to be devoured by the land of the Rising Sun. Sony already owns Columbia Pictures.

And what will be the first release by the new owners?
"Rambo meets Godzilla."

That's unconfirmed, of course.

The Courier-Journal reports this week that the folks in New Madrid, Missouri no longer consider a predicted December earthquake to be their number one concern.

The paper relates that New Madrid residents believe they are more likely to be run over by a television truck than be injured in the quake.

Move over Nashville, Music City is heading for the hills.

Okay, maybe that's stretching it a bit, but The Kentucky Opry, which debuted Sunday at Prestonsburg Community College certainly has the long term potential of giving the Country Music Capital a run for its money.

A place to showcase local musical talent is a great idea for two reasons. It will make a great tourism attraction, and give area artists a means of strutting their stuff.

Who knows how many more stars are shining in these hills?

Members of the Johnson County Board of Education collectively spit in the faces of educational reformers last week when they determined that bus drivers, cooks and janitors should be a part of site-based decision making committees at schools.

Bus drivers, cooks and janitors provide valuable services to our schools, no doubt about it, but should they help decide which textbooks your children should use, what curriculum your school will offer, how many people will be employed in each job, what counseling and substance abuse programs are offered by the school, what discipline policies will be developed, how student and teacher schedules are developed, what the school budget will be, what extra-curricular programs will be offered, or how school space is to be divided?

Well, the Johnson County Board of Education thinks they should and at least one principal said her school was "comfortable" with the policy.

We're comfortable with bus drivers driving, cooks cooking and janitors janitoring.

Johnson County parents should express their "discomfort" at their board's absurdities without delay.

A mind is a terrible thing to waste, and so is the opportunity for real educational reform.

Letters

Editor:

I wish to commend those responsible for the observance of Brotherhood Day last Sunday. Just wish I could have been with the congregation for the observance.

What's the old saying "It's a small world after all"? I am so happy the residents of Eastern Kentucky are waking up to the fact that "people are people" regardless of their color, race or nationality. It has not always been that broad minded. In fact, some thirty years ago, my son, Stephen Lee Best, was ostracized by some of our friends and neighbors because some of his employees of a different race were invited to a gathering in our home at Christmas time. (Come to think of it some of his friends never darkened our door again—even to this day.) We received bundles of mail from the Ku Klux Klan of Richmond, Virginia but it was quickly deposited in the trash can where it belonged. Surprisingly, no crosses were burned on our lawn!

Stephen despised bigotry and tried to promote unity and understanding all his life. Following is a copy of a poem he composed in the late sixties. It was entitled: "Questions After Reading of the Riots in Louisville."

"A stooped and cringing shape comes creeping

Down the rumbling stair of time.

In the air its hungry question,

What is mine? What is mine?

What is this shade, this specter,

This thing exuding acrid fears?

Can it never cease its trekking

Can it never join its peers?

Must it exist in ageless darkness.

Hearing naught but its own cry

Or awful yearning, maddening

sadness,

"Tell me why, tell me why."

What can end this monstrous

What can break the past's cold

chain?

What can straighten this bent spirit?

What can end this hateful game?

Will this segment of our body

Always be a dangling strand?

Must we be forever reminded,

"I'm a man! I'm a man!"

Stephen went to be with the Lord December 18, 1976—just two months after his 32nd birthday. His departure left me with no living close relative. However, I must tell you I have never wanted, nor needed, anything which has not been provided for me. I have the most wonderful neighbors on earth who take me shopping, bring the mail, take me to the doctor—even cook and bring my meals to me often. (You see, I am almost blind, an amputee in a wheel chair, but I am doing fine because of those who care.) Please don't ever feel sorry for me—just love me!

I thank my God many times a day for my precious parents, Will and Jane Stephens, who taught me that all people are God's creation and never to judge anyone because of race, creed, or color. Some of my dearest friends are Navajo Indians, Iranians, Bulgarians, Lithuanians, Cubans, Puerto Ricans, Jamaicans and blacks. I look at the person—not the nationality—and thank God for every one of them! My son, Stephen would be proud of me—he too taught me well!!

During this holy season of "peace and good will" may we all reach out in our love and prayers for "all the people of the world" and thank God for America and its leadership at this awesome time.

May everyone who reads this have a wonderful holiday season and come to realize the true meaning of Christmas.

In the words of Tiny Tim—"God bless us every one!"

On behalf of the soldiers and family members of the Fort Campbell community, I wish to extend my sincere thanks for your contribution to assist our efforts in supporting the 101st Airborne Division (Air Assault) and other installation forces which have departed for Saudi Arabia.

The past few months have been a very emotional period for us and it is heartwarming for the men and women of the Armed Forces to know their fellow Americans are behind them all the way. The display of patriotism, ribbons, signs, contributions, volunteers and other actions mean more to the Fort Campbell community than words can express.

Your gift was of great assistance to Fort Campbell and contributed enormously to the morale and welfare of our soldiers and their families as we prepare to carry out our call to duty. Again, we truly appreciate your contribution and enthusiastic support for our deployed soldiers and their loved ones.

Editor:

In the flow of news on American forces deployed to Operation "Desert Shield," one major daily newspaper carried a story about low troop morale. Yet, a letter of response from 23 men interviewed for that story saying they were quoted out of context was not printed.

Stories from the desert also tell of equipment problems caused by dusty conditions and of the mail not getting through.

I've just returned from five days visiting our forces in Saudi Arabia. The picture I saw is one of military professionals who know why they are there and they're doing a great job.

Morale is extremely high. Complaints expressed were the same complaints every person in uniform has had. After all, who likes being away from loved ones. Who likes to eat M.R.E.s (Meals: Ready-to Eat) any more than veterans of other times liked "C" or "K" rations?

What the American military has accomplished in Saudi Arabia and the Persian Gulf is remarkable. In the first 70 days of Operation "Desert Shield" more military equipment has been delivered than in any single year of the Vietnam War. This equipment is holding up well, thanks to creative efforts to deal with the less than perfect operating conditions.

Mail is getting through—70 tons a day—and military commanders urge Americans to keep the cards and letters coming.

Being away from home is never easy, but these proud men and women are making the most of it. Morale is high. Equipment is working. And our professional soldiers are ready to do their job. Our job at home is to remember the sacrifices they are making. I'm proud of them. You should be too. Write them. Let them know how you feel.

Report to Kentucky

By: Senator Wendell Ford

An interview with Wendell Ford, new Majority Whip

Kentucky Senator Wendell Ford was elected recently as the U.S. Senate's new Majority Whip. In this interview, Ford discusses the responsibilities of the Senate's second highest-ranking leadership post and what he hopes to accomplish in this new position:

What are the duties and responsibilities of the Majority Whip position?

Sen. Ford: I believe the job is best described as keeping a finger on the pulse of the Senate. It involves keeping track of Democratic Senator's stands on issues, lining up support for Democratic legislative priorities and providing input on policy decisions within the Senate.

However, regardless of my new position, my primary responsibility is, and always has been, to represent the best interests of the citizens of Kentucky. That responsibility will not change.

Why did you seek this position?

Sen. Ford: I have some definite ideas about how the Whip's office could be more active and involved in promoting and passing the Democratic legislative agenda. I also have specific ideas on how the Whip's office could improve the internal day-to-day operation of the Senate—make it as efficient as possible, operate in a businesslike manner—and I wanted the opportunity to do these things.

What does your election as whip mean for Kentucky?

Sen. Ford: It will give Kentucky a presence in the leadership of Congress. As we set our agenda for the 102nd Congress, we will face hard decisions on vital issues that will affect Kentucky and the rest of the nation. As those issues arise, I want to inject good old-fashioned Kentucky common-sense into our discussions for dealing with those issues. And you can be assured that I plan to make my voice heard loud and clear.

Has a Kentuckian ever served as whip or held positions of leadership in the Senate?

Sen. Ford: Yes. Senator Earle C. Clements of Morganfield was elected to the post in 1953. And perhaps one of the best known senators from Kentucky, Sen. Alben Barkley of Paducah, who served as Senate Majority Leader from 1937-47, was Senate Minority Leader from 1947-49 and then went on to become Vice President in 1949 and served until 1953.

What role would you like to play as majority whip in helping to shape national policy?

Sen. Ford: As Majority Whip, I hope to have a role in shaping national policy that reflects the values of mainstream Americans—hard work, compassion for those less fortunate, responsibility and honesty—those same values that are the backbone of this country. And I believe the Democratic party represents those values.

Dickens' Christmas Carol offers new twists

The Theatrical Experience, PCC's college players, will present Charles Dickens' A Christmas Carol, on Friday, December 7, at 8:30 p.m. in the Pike Auditorium on the Prestonsburg Community College campus. Children of all ages are invited to enjoy this holiday comedy. Admission will be free of charge.

According to director Dean Whitaker, of Hazard, this production offers some new twists to this cherished Christmas story about everyone's favorite miser, the sour and spiteful Ebenezer Scrooge.

Scrooge will still be visited by the ghostly Jacob Marley and those same three spirits of Christmas; and they will still manage to show him the error of closing his heart as tight as his fist.

Different from other stage versions, this adaptation will invite the participation of the audience's imagination. Set decoration is accomplished for the production with an unusual combination of cubic modules. Cast members rearrange the modules to create the play's scene locations.

Whitaker said the cast brings a variety of talent to the production, adding that each of the young people in the production has exhibited a lot of potential. Scott Montgomery will be appearing in the leading role as Scrooge. David Smith has both the roles of Fezziwig and of Christmas Present. Supporting roles are held by Katie Harmon as Christmas Past, Matthew Meek as Bob Cratchit, and David Coleman as Fred. Other cast members include Scott Burchett, Rob Hoskins, Roy Kidd, Andrea Newsome, Devonna Begley, Tracy Hall and Scott Bentley.

Higher Oil Prices Boost Interest In Coal Liquefaction Technology

Rising oil prices are bringing a new wave of interest in coal liquefaction technology, which may have a big impact on the Kentucky economy, a University of Kentucky scientist says.

Liquefaction is a process in which coal is converted to a crude oil substitute, which can then be refined into gasoline or other products.

"Recently, the price of oil has reached the level where coal liquefaction becomes economically viable," said Gerald Huffman of UK's Institute for Mining and Minerals Research.

"But to have commercial development, companies would have to be assured that prices would stay at that level for the long haul," he said. Crude oil prices have already retreated from their peak levels.

Huffman says if liquefaction comes into wide use, it will have a major impact on coal-producing states such as Kentucky.

"If just 20 percent of the nation's liquid fuels were made from coal, it would double the coal industry," he said.

Presently, liquefaction can produce a barrel of oil for between $35 and $40. "We hope that in the next few years, with improved technology we'll have that price down to $30 or perhaps $25 per barrel," Huffman said.

The cost of oil produced from coal has already been cut in half in the past ten years, he said.

UK is taking a leadership role in the field, serving as the lead institution in a consortium of five universities cooperating on liquefaction research. The consortium was established about five years ago.

Huffman says research at UK focuses on three main areas: development of catalysts to accelerate the conversion from solid to liquid; studies of the molecular structure and properties of coal; and innovative processes, such as using bacteria in the conversion process.

The other members of the liquefaction consortium are the University of Pittsburgh, West Virginia University, University of Utah, and Auburn University.

Pilot liquefaction plants are already operating in Alabama and in other countries. South Africa produces most of its gasoline through liquefaction, although it uses a different process.

Regional Roundup

Ozone level may bring vehicle tests

ASHLAND — Ashland's level of ozone pollution, the highest in Kentucky, will mean tougher restrictions on industrial emissions and could mean vehicle-emissions testing. The new federal Clean Air Act grouped areas in five categories from "marginal" — the least polluted — to "extreme," a category to which only Los Angeles belongs. All Kentucky cities are either "marginal" or, the next highest level, "moderate," except Ashland, which is labeled "serious." (The Daily Independent)

Toyota set to expand Kentucky auto plant

LOUISVILLE — Toyota Motor Corp. is expected to announce that it will double production capacity at its Georgetown plant, possibly adding thousands of jobs. The plant now has 3,400 employees and makes about 215,000 Toyota Camrys a year. The expansion is expected to mean 1,500 to 2,500 new jobs and an investment by the Japanese auto maker of as much as $1.2 billion. (The Courier-Journal)

Rowan unemployment reaches an 11-year low

MOREHEAD — Rowan County's unemployment rate dropped to four percent in September, the lowest in the Gateway District area, according to the Kentucky Cabinet for Human Resources. The September figure is the lowest since November 1978, when the rate was 3.8 percent and equals the low rate in August and May, 1979, according to Coy Conn, employer relations representative for the Cabinet for Human Resources in the Department for Manpower Services. (The Morehead News)

Rupp Arena floor will get a new paint job

LEXINGTON — University of Kentucky basketball coach Rick Pitino will get the Rupp Arena basketball playing floor redecorated, but not before the Wildcats' season opener Saturday night against Pennsylvania. Pitino's objection to dead spots on the floor, however, will have to wait until at least next season for a solution. In a half-serious digression at a news conference last week, Pitino voiced his unhappiness with the floor, refurbished at his request over the summer. The refurbishing cost the Lexington Center Corp. about $15,000. (Lexington Herald-Leader)

Hundreds attend political rally for Dr. Floyd Poore

JACKSON — Dr. Floyd G. Poore, Democratic candidate for governor in Election '90, said that although Kentucky was a beautiful and great state, "You and I are a people being ripped off." Explaining that statement at a rally held in his honor, Dr. Poore said that the state has become a "dumping ground" for out-of-state garbage. He added that 400 tons are coming into the state every day. (The Jackson Times)

Finding adequate child care is a challenge

One of the most critical issues facing parents today is finding adequate child care. The November issue of PTA Today magazine tackles this subject in a series of articles that address finding top-notch care to public schools becoming more involved.

The award-winning magazine explains that public schools can help solve the child-care crisis by offering day care and before-and-after school programs. Edward Zigler, director of the Bush Center in Child Development and Social Policy at Yale University, suggests that public schools offer year-round child care for children ages 3-12. He believes this would increase the odds of child care being safe and of high quality.

"It would also use school facilities more efficiently since it would help fill empty classrooms," Zigler said.

Pat Henry, first vice president of the National PTA, echoes this sentiment. "No one else is as well situated as are the public schools to provide the assistance that our children and families so desperately need," Henry said.

Most parents have learned that the need for child care doesn't stop when children go to school. School-age children need to be cared for during those hours before and after school when parents are at work.

According to Mary Ellen Bleeden, director of a district-wide, school-age child care program in Des Plaines, Ill., the school is a logical place for child care.

"The space is there. It's heated. It's equipped. And we don't have to put our children on the streets to get them there," Bleeden said.

Dr. Melitta J. Cutright, senior writer for the National PTA and author of "The National PTA Talks to Parents: How to Get the Best Education for Your Children", asks parents to think about the hours their children will spend in child care. It's likely that they will spend more waking hours with substitute caregivers than with their parents. Therefore, whom parents select to care for their children while they are working is one of the most important decisions they can make, Cutright said.

The author goes on to say that some parents are overwhelmed by the various options that are offered and just want hard and fast rules for the best child care. Unfortunately, few experts are able to give such rules. Many experts do agree that the most important ingredient in child care is the care giver or givers. Parents should make sure the caregivers are warm and loving, providing positive encouragement and reassurance, says Cutright.

She also says that it is essential to visit several centers/homes, check the credentials of all staff members including its director, ask for written policies and check the child-to-staff ratio.

Here are some suggestions from "PTA Today" magazine to keep your children happy at their day-care centers:

- It is common the first few days if your children are upset that you're leaving them. If this behavior persists, consider a different child-care setting.

- Observe your children socializing. Do they have a group of friendly playmates? Do they talk about their friends and what they did?

- Do your children have the same teacher or caregiver over the course of the year? Rapid turnover of teachers and other staff can signal poor child care.

- Visit the center during the day. Do the children have a variety of activities? Do they have constant adult supervision? Are they encouraged to play with other children?

Although finding the best child care can be quite a task, it is worth the peace of mind when you know your child is in a safe, stimulating and cheerful environment, says the PTA.

Rural Kentucky medical scholarship fund, inc.

The Rural Kentucky Medical Scholarship Fund, Inc. was established in 1946 as a means of providing a better distribution of physicians in rural Kentucky. The Fund offers low interest loans to qualified medical students with no payment until the physician has completed the first year of practice. The RKMSF offers a $10,000 loan for each year of medical school. The interest rate, is determined annually on May 1. Anyone who is a resident of Kentucky and has been accepted at the University of Kentucky College of Medicine or the University of Louisville Medical School and is willing to practice in a rural or critical county in Kentucky upon completion of residency training, may apply. Repayment options include low interest rates for recipients practicing in rural areas and loan forgiveness for those practicing in areas of the state with critical needs. Applications are being accepted at this time. The deadline date for filing an application is April 1, 1991.

As in the past, the fund's success has been based on the dedication of the members of the Board of Directors and the continued assistance and support of the Kentucky Medical Association. Both the Rural Kentucky Medical Scholarship Fund, Inc. and the Kentucky Medical Association are committed to addressing the physician shortage problem in the critical and rural areas of Kentucky.

Those interested in applying for a scholarship loan should contact the RKMSF Office, 3532 Ephraim McDowell Drive, Louisville, KY 40205; Telephone—(502)459-9790.

KCSA members speak up for education

In keeping with business and industry efforts to promote and support education in Kentucky, members of the Kentucky Crushed Stone Association will be distributing bookmarks which carry the theme "The More You Read, The More You Know, The More You Can Do!" The bookmarks will also display the KCSA logo and local stone producer's name and will be distributed to libraries and bookstores throughout the commonwealth during December and January.

KCSA chairman, Jodie Haydon stated, "This is an historic and crucial time for education in Kentucky. Governor Wilkinson and our legislators passed major education reform which is now being implemented by Kentucky's school systems.

Kentucky's businesses and industries have an obligation to speak up for and support education and that is what we are doing with the bookmark project."

All libraries and bookstores wanting bookmarks who have not been contacted should call the local crushed stone producer in their community or KCSA (502-223-2379).

The Kentucky Crushed Stone Association, based in Frankfort, represents crushed stone producers and related manufacturers and service companies. Its members produce the majority of crushed limestone delivered in Kentucky. Last year more than 50 million tons of crushed stone were produced in Kentucky at a value of more than $250 million.

Day Care Is Priority For Women

As the increase in two-income households continues, more parents are faced with the problem of finding quality child care arrangements. Employers, too, are looking for answers to these questions because they do not want to lose competent, well-trained employees due to a lack of sufficient dependent care programs.

Whereas salary and retirement plans were once paramount to employees when they considered new employment, today that emphasis is on health-care and dependent-care programs.

The Women's Bureau at the U.S. Department of Labor has published a new booklet, "Employers and Child Care: Benefiting Work and Family," to help both employers and employees focus on options for dependent care.

The 76-page booklet offers an overview of the many child care alternatives available to employers from on-site and off-site centers to school-age problems, sick child care, voucher systems, cafeteria benefit plans and more.

For a free copy of the publication, please send a self-addressed mailing label to Women's Bureau U.S. Department of Labor, Box EM, Washington, DC 20210.

Talk with governor and cabinet officials in Pikeville

The idea of governors travelling in the state is not new, but Gov. Wallace G. Wilkinson is the first to take his entire Cabinet on a regular basis to all areas of Kentucky.

Excluding the months when the General Assembly meets in session, Capitol to the Counties has been held an average of every six weeks during the Wallace Wilkinson administration.

Capitol to the Counties will come to Pikeville for government office hours Wednesday, Nov. 28. Following a press conference at 1 p.m., government office hours will be held at Pikeville High School from 1:30 to 4 p.m. The governor's executive cabinet and representatives of a number of state government programs will be represented. # Medicaid Reimbursement Improves Nursing Home Care

New federal rules for Kentucky's approximately 250 Medicaid-certified nursing homes should lead to more adequate funding and improved quality of resident care in the coming year.

Primary among the changes is the merging of the two existing levels of Medicaid-eligible patient care — skilled nursing and intermediate care — into a single nursing facility category under a reimbursement policy known as "Case Mix Assessment."

"Under the 'Case Mix' approach, a team of nurses assess nursing home residents quarterly and ranks them by their ability to do certain activities of daily living such as grooming, eating and dressing," said Commissioner Roy Butler of the Department of Medicaid Services.

"Based on the cumulative need of its residents, each facility will be given an average patient ranking and reimbursed according to that ranking."

In the first assessment of the approximately 15,000 Kentucky nursing home patients covered by Medicaid, more than half were classified as high dependency, about 24 percent are considered medium dependency and about 16 percent are classified low dependency.

"Facilities with more high dependency patients, who require more care, would receive a higher reimbursement for daily care than will be paid to facilities caring for more low dependency patients," Butler said.

"The move to a case mix system came about because reimbursement for care should reflect the patients' actual needs rather than the classifications of the bed in which the patients reside," he said.

Under the new system the average Medicaid rate per patient per day in a free-standing nursing facility will rise to $50.38, compared to the previous average of $48.53. Butler estimated that Case Mix Assessment will cost Kentucky's Medicaid program about $8.5 million during this fiscal year.

In order to assure that reimbursements are current and directed by changing patient needs, the costs of nursing services are figured quarterly, and adjusted accordingly, while all other costs are assessed yearly.

"Facilities still will be reimbursed for nursing care at their costs per patient subject to an upper limit on cost," said Butler. "Nursing homes that hold their costs below the upper limit will be given a financial incentive."

"This system should also give patients with heavy care needs more accessibility to nursing homes," he said. "In the past, there was almost an incentive to take patients with minimal care needs, because the cost of caring for them was less."

Butler said the federal Nursing Home Reform Act touches nearly every area of nursing home care, including mandatory patient evaluations within 72 hours of admission and continuing with required quarterly examinations after that time, and a requirement that all facilities have a registered nurse on staff for at least eight consecutive hours. If a facility can't retain a registered nurse, the requirement will be waived, but the facility can't take heavy care patients.

"The overhaul will affect the majority of the state's nursing homes because in order to receive Medicaid payments, the facility must adhere to new regulations," Butler said. "Facilities are expected to comply with the new requirements by their first annual survey."

Older Patients In Drug Stores

by Patricia A. Leatham
Consumer Affairs Officer
Food and Drug Administration

As we age, our muscle tissue declines, brain cells change in sensitivity, our liver slows down and our kidneys may lose a third or more of their efficiency. The changes may be so subtle we don't notice them, year by year or even decade by decade, but nevertheless they can pose a problem that does get our attention.

The changes often mean that drugs may stay in our bodies longer, or even act differently.

They can mean that the dose of a tranquilizer that a doctor prescribes to relax the tight muscles of a young man or woman might, in an older person, throw off muscle coordination and cause a fall, perhaps a broken hip.

Recognizing these problems, the Food and Drug Administration is taking two steps to be sure doctors have information routinely available on the workings of specific drugs in the elderly.

First, last March FDA issued guidelines encouraging manufacturers to separate out and evaluate the data on their drugs in elderly subjects.

Drug manufacturers have long included some older patients in drug tests, but under the guidelines, they would specially study older patients and would report how fast the drug acts in them and what it does: How fast it is utilized, absorbed, distributed and excreted. They would look at whether a sedative, for example, caused dizziness or confusion in some older patients.

These two steps will help doctors provide patients with a more precise and appropriate dosage of their drugs. Even so, older folks and their families should promptly report to their doctors any new symptoms—incontinence, confusion, sleeplessness or impotence, for example—that may be drug reactions.

Consumer affairs advises take medications properly

Be careful about taking prescribed medications exactly when and how and for as long as the doctor says. Taking drugs properly makes a big difference:

—The vast majority of depressed patients who took 90 percent of their doses of medication improved. None who took less than 80 percent of the doses improved.

—In the case of cholesterol-lowering drugs, good compliance with directions for taking medication produced a 39 percent reduction in cholesterol—while poor compliance reduced cholesterol an average of only 11 percent.

—Among epileptics, 60 percent of seizures occurred among poor compliers.

—Among couples using contraception, imperfect compliance meant conception rates of 3 to 16 percent.

These figures come from the National Council on Patient Information and Education, and organization supported by the Food and Drug Administration and many private pharmaceutical groups. The council's purpose is better doctor-pharmacist-patient communication about how a drug should be used and what problems to look out for.

What problems does poor communication contribute to? According to the council, more than half of patients with high blood pressure drop out of treatment with a year.

—About 75 percent of diabetics fail to give themselves their injections within 30 minutes of the proper time.

—About 16 percent of acute asthma patients take only some or none of their corticosteroid medicine.

One way to end up in a hospital is to take prescriptions in the wrong amounts or at the wrong times, to stop medication prematurely or to skip doses. The council reports that 39 percent of medicine-related admissions to hospitals resulted from this kind of poor use of prescription drugs.

World AIDS Day to be observed in December

December 1 will mark the third annual observance of World AIDS Day. Over 150 countries around the world including the United States have designated this day to draw public attention to the AIDS epidemic.

Since December 1 falls on Saturday this year, the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services has designated Monday, Dec. 3, as the date for National HIV and AIDS Awareness Day.

The focus this year is on women. Of the estimated eight to ten million people infected with HIV, over three million are women. During the 1980's, an estimated 600,000 people developed AIDS and over 150,000 were women. Projections based on current numbers indicate that of those infected with HIV, 5000,000 will develop AIDS during 1990 and 1991 alone; of these about 200,000 will be women.

In all areas of the world, women play a crucial role in preventing infection with HIV and caring for HIV-infected people and people with AIDS. As educators and caretakers, women are instrumental in raising awareness about HIV and AIDS in their families and communities. However, the stigma attached to AIDS can subject women with AIDS and women who are active in AIDS care and AIDS education to discrimination, social rejection, and other violations of their rights.

World AIDS Day will draw attention to these special problems faced by women, and highlight the need to involve more women in the global fight against AIDS. World AIDS Day will also highlight the special concerns related to HIV/AIDS and pregnancy, childbirth, and raising children.

National radiologic technology week observed

A discovery on November 8, 1895 drastically changed medical care and now, each year, National Radiologic Technology Week is celebrated at this time. That was the day that x-rays were discovered by Dr. Wilhelm Conrad Roentgen.

Being able to see the skeleton was a major medical breakthrough and Dr. Roentgen continued to investigate the rays he accidentally discovered and wrote many manuscripts describing his experiments. In 1901, Dr. Roentgen was awarded the first Nobel prize for physics for his contributions to science.

During the past 95 years many changes and advancements have occurred in radiologic technology with equipment and techniques. Dr. Roentgen and other pioneers in X-ray probably would not recognize the modern radiology room.

This year, National Radiologic Technology Week was observed November 5 through November 11 at the Pikeville Methodist Hospital. Radiology Department Director Melisa Wallace said, "We've come a long way in the practice of radiology since Dr. Roentgen took the first x-ray of his wife's hand."

"Radiologic technology is one of the most important diagnostic tools available to today's physicians. The improvements over the years in equipment and film allow technologists to use a very small amount of radiation to obtain quality x-rays which are used in diagnosing."

All of the radiological technologist at the Methodist Hospital are graduates of accredited programs for radiologic technology. All of the technologists are registered or registry eligible with the American Registry of Radiologic Technologists and are licensed by the state, Wallace said.

To obtain a Kentucky Radiologic Technologist license, a technologist must be registered with the American Registry of Radiologic Technologists and maintain 18 hours of continuing education in a two year period.

New graduates are granted a temporary license for one year. During the first year after graduation, new technologist must pass the American Registry of Radiologic Technologist examination to continue to work in Kentucky.

The strict requirements have helped Kentucky become one of the nation's leading states in maintaining high professional standards. The requirements also assure the public of professional and competent care.

Langley League to plant cedars

The Langley League met November 11 at 8 p.m. in the Maytown Baptist Church basement.

The group decided to plant two red cedar trees on the community green in town. One of these trees will be lighted with over 1,000 colored lights the first week in December. Mr. James Allen and Mr. T. Allen Combs are in charge of the planting. Caroling groups are invited to begin or end their caroling at the site of the community Christmas tree.

League members under the direction of Bill Robinson, president, voted to give ribbon prizes to homes decorated for the Christmas season in Maytown proper, Henry's Branch, Wilson Creek, and Turkey Creek. The group hopes to present monetary awards next year. The judge will be selected from outside the community and will judge after the December meeting.

Current projects are planting tulip bulbs and burning bush at the welcome sign, and adopting the Highway 80 stretch from Maytown toward Eastern, joining with the Kentucky Farm Equipment which already has adopted the Highway 80 stretch from the Stumbo Housing Project to Maytown.

The next meeting of the Langley League will be December 9, at 8 p.m. in the basement of May Memorial United Methodist Church.

Medical center employees are recognized

Paul B. Hall Regional Medical Center of Paintsville held an employee's award and recognition day Friday, November 9, at the hospital cafeteria.

Those honored for the second quarter awards were the following individuals: Earlene Ditty, employee of the quarter; Marsha McKenzie, nursing excellence of the quarter; and Tom Copley, supervisor of the quarter. Third quarter honorees were the following individuals: Linda Blair, employee of the quarter; and Lisa Scarberry, supervisor of the quarter. Fourth quarter awards went to Karen McDowell, employee of the quarter; Sharon Hicks, nursing excellence of the quarter; and Furnell Rife, supervisor of the quarter.

Each quarterly recipient is eligible for consideration for Paul B. Hall's annual awards. Awards for 1989/90 went to Linda Blair, employee of the year; Marsha McKenzie, nursing excellence of the year; and Alice Frazier, supervisor of the year.

PBH Associate Administrator Kevin Van Hoose made the quarterly presentations while Debbie Meadows, hospital administrator, gave the annual awards.

In announcing the honorees, each member of the staff was cited for outstanding performance, leadership and achievement in gaining additional professional certification or advanced career training.

In her remarks, Ms. Meadows said, "Quarterly and annual recognition awards have been a tradition at Paul B. Hall for more than five years. And yet, I have never had a greater sense of pride than I do today in recognizing the personal and professional accomplishments of those whom we honor today. Your record of performance this year is a challenge to all of us."

Ms. Meadows noted that annual award winners become eligible for the annual corporate recognition awards from Paul B. Hall's parent company, HMA, of Naples, Florida.

Four Players Hit Double Figures As Bobcats Defeat Tigers, 82-64

In final preparations for the 1990-91 high school basketball season, the Betsy Layne Bobcats of coach Junior Newsome met the Paintsville Tigers in the fourth game of the Kentucky Number One Panorama at Sheldon Clark High School Friday night. Phillip King tallied 23 points and Adam Gearheart tossed in 20 to lead the sharpshooting Bobcats to a 82-64 win over the Tigers. Two other players hit double figures for the Bobcats as Keith Hall scored 15 points in a good outing and Chris Newsome added 11.

Betsy Layne spotted the Tigers a 5-0 lead and then outscored them 14-2 to take a 14-7 lead. Todd Porter, Paintsville's standout forward hit a jumper in the opening seconds of the game and Wesley Ellis followed with a basket to make it 4-0. Dwayne McKenzie's free throw made it 5-0. After that it was all Bobcats as Betsy Layne shook some opening game jitters and went to work behind the hustle of Keith Hall, who scored eight of the Bobcats' next 14 points. Betsy Layne's full court defense caused the Tigers a lot of problems and especially on trying to inbound the ball.

Betsy Layne extended their lead by 10 points, 23-13, with a 6-2 run with 8:02 remaining in the first half. Paintsville cut back to five, 25-20, with a 8-2 run of their own. Porter hit a three-pointer in the run.

With 2:23 remaining in the half, two free throws by Shawn Wallen and one by Gearheart sent the Bobcats out in front 39-32. Gearheart then added a two-point field goal and, just before the end of the half, the senior guard dropped in a three-pointer for a 46-34 half time lead.

Chris Newsome opened the second half hitting a trey and after Chris Lyon scored for Paintsville, Gearheart hit his second three-pointer to make it 52-36.

The Tigers were not about to give up as they tightened up their defense and ran off 10 unanswered points to close to within six points of Betsy Layne. Ellis connected on a long jumper, and Porter followed with a basket in which he was fouled on. Porter missed the free throw, but Ellis got the rebound and stuck in back in. Lyon then hit a base line jumper and Ellis scored to make it 54-48. After a Betsy Layne time out, the Bobcats outscored the Tigers 17-6 as they built the lead back to 16, 71-55. Porter scored for Paintsville and Ellis followed suit to make it 71-59. Betsy Layne outscored the Tigers 11-0 to put the game away 82-64. McKenzie and Brian Calhoun scored the last two baskets for Paintsville.

Lyon led Paintsville in scoring with 18 points. Ellis finished with 14 and Porter added 13.

Betsy Layne displayed some quickness in the game that got them some easy baskets underneath. Paintsville was unable to handle the pressure defense and quickness of the Bobcats, but the Tigers looked like they will be a contender before the seasons half way mark.

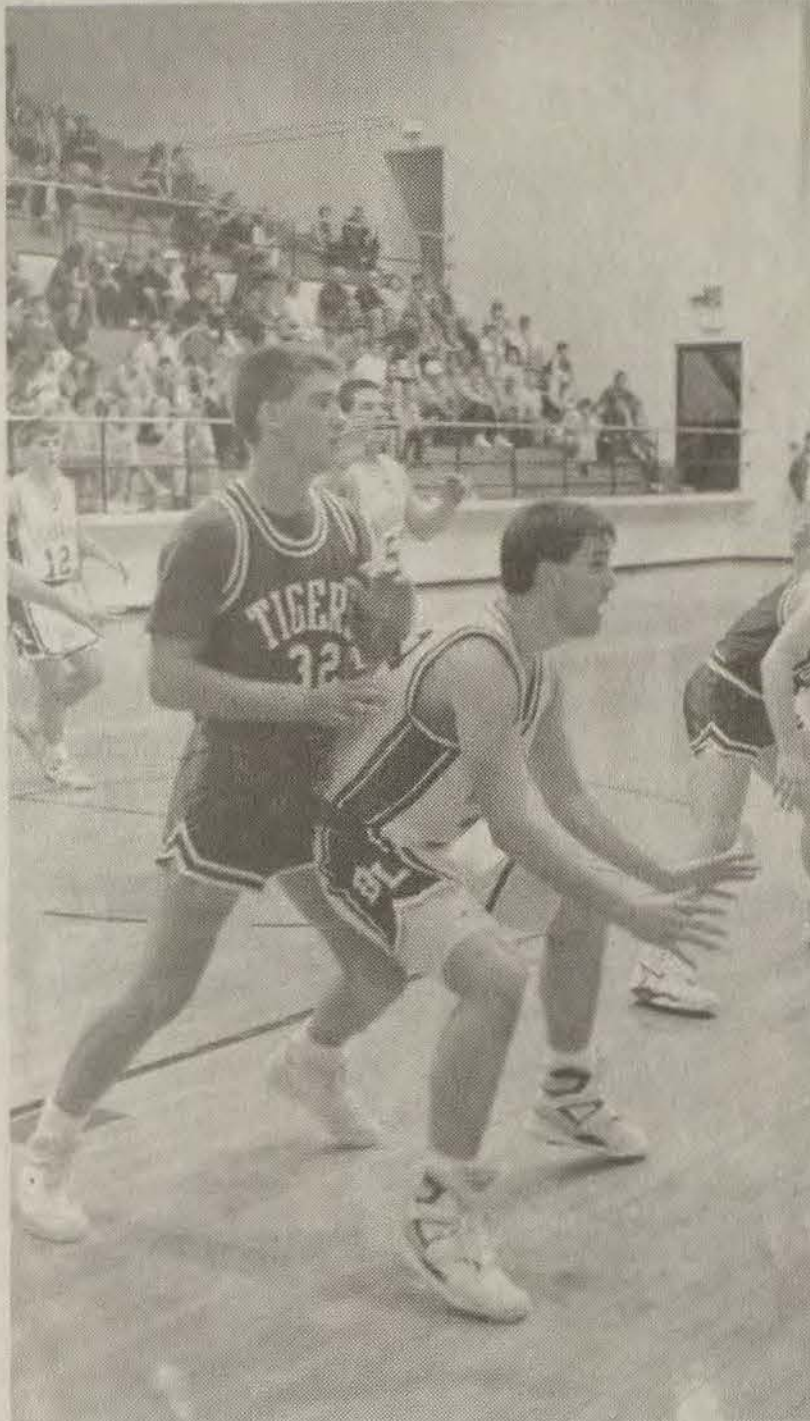

Good ball movement by the Bobcats ripped the Tigers defense also as King found himself open on numerous times for easy lay ups. The outside shooting of Gearheart, who seemed to score at will, helped open up the middle for King.

Betsy Layne shot 25 free throws, hitting 19 for 77 percent shooting from the charity stripe. Paintsville connected on 9 of 14 attempts for 65 percent. Each team hit three three-pointers in the game. Gearheart had two for Betsy Layne and Newsome hit one. Porter, Lyons and Calhoun had one each.

Allen Central Opens Season On Winning Note in 59-52 Win Over Lady Eagles

The Allen Central Lady Rebels (1-0) opened their 1990-91 basketball season on a successful note with a 59-52 win over the Johnson Central Lady Eagles (0-1) Monday night at Johnson Central.

Darnella Bradley scored 18 points and dominated the inside in leading the the Lady Rebs to their first win of the season. Stacy Moore, who looked good at point guard for Allen Central, tossed in 13 points.

"Moore played the best game she has ever played at Allen Central," said Lady Rebels head coach Bonita Compton. "She showed great floor leadership and broke Johnson Central's press." Moore had eight assists in the game. Johnson Central tried to pressure the Lady Rebels early in the game.

The Lady Rebels took a first quarter lead of 16-9 over the Lady Eagles but held on to a slim 31-28 lead at the half. Johnson Central caught and passed Allen Central in the third quarter as both Bradley and Moore got into foul trouble and were relegated to the bench. Johnson Central held a 43-39 lead at the end of the third by outscoring the Lady Rebs 15-8 in the quarter.

With four minutes to go in the game, Compton reinserted Bradley and Moore and went to a man to man defense that caused the Lady Eagles some problems. The Lady Rebels took advantage of the Lady Eagles' turnovers and went on to record their first win.

Reffitt's 3 Point Shooting Sends Lady Blackcats Past Lawrence County, 54-31

Three players scored in double figures Saturday for the Prestonsburg Lady Blackcats in their final tune up before taking to the hardwood for keeps December 4. The Lady Blackcats easily handled the Lawrence County Lady Bulldogs for a 54-31 win. Kathy Slone led the Lady Blackcats in scoring with 15 points. Amy Reed was close behind with 14 and Carolyn Reffitt added 13 points, hitting three trey's in a row.

"Carolyn sort of broke the game open for us," said Lady Blackcat

"(Teresa) Gibson sprained her ankle in the third quarter and had to come out," said Compton. "Pam Webb played a great game for us on the boards. She did not score a point, but she had a good game on both the offensive and defensive boards.

Gibson had two three-pointers in the game. Jenny Wiley added eight points in the win for Allen Central. Stacey "Mini" Moore netted six points. Jenny Yates, who Coach Compton says is too fast for her own good, had four points but was in foul trouble most of the night. Rhonda Leedy, back from knee surgery played a good game and scored two points.

Bradley was two for 10 at the free throw line and Compton expressed the need for her to improve.

April Williams led the Lady Eagles in scoring with 13 points. Susan Roberts tossed in 11. Amy Castle scored eight points while Blair and Wells tallied six.

The Lady Rebels will entertain B. J. Elswick's Lady Cougars from Elkhorn City Tuesday, December 6 at home.

Blackcats Put Scare In Eagles Before Falling, 80-62

The Johnson Central Golden Eagles looked like a team that improved 50 percent last season. The Golden Eagles have what it will take to win a regional championship...speed, size, quickness and outside shooting. Johnson Central used that and more in subduing an upset-minded Prestonsburg Blackcat squad 80-62 in the first game of the Kentucky Number One Panorama Friday night at Sheldon Clark.

What surprised most of the fans was the ability of the Blackcats to rebound with the Golden Eagles, who sport a 6' 10" center, 6' 7" forward and 6' 5" forward. At some points in the game, the shorter Blackcats were out-rebounding the taller Golden Eagles. Prestonsburg made up for their lack of size with just plain old hustle and determination.

But the guards led the Golden Eagles in scoring this time. Jason Hurt tossed in 25 points to lead the Eagles. Avery Fairchild, who was very impressive, added 20 points and Shane Moore netted 19. The Eagles got a good scoring attack from their potent line-up as they overcame a 39-34 halftime deficit.

"I told my players that I thought the turning point in the game was in the first half when we came out with just a five point lead," said Prestonsburg coach Gordon Parido. "We should have had a bigger lead than we did."

Johnson Central came out in the second half and ran off the first 11 points to race out to a 45-39 lead. Hurt connected on a short jumper and Ratliff, off a turnover, laid the ball in for two. Hurt then hit a three-pointer to show his ability to hit outside and then he connected for a two-pointer. Fairchild concluded the 11 point run with a slam dunk, his third of the game. The high jumping forward started the game with two break away dunks. After John Clark ended the Blackcat drought with two free throws, Johnson Central scored seven straight for a 52-41 lead.

Worthie McGuire kept the Blackcats within reach of the Eagles with three-point shooting that was a pleasant surprise to Coach Parido.

"The three-point shooting was a big part of our offense tonight," the Blackcat mentor said. "It is something we haven't had before. Worthie shot very well in the game. We will need to get more offense out of John and Jason (Crisp)." McGuire hit five three-pointers in the contest including three in a row, in finishing with 27 points. John Clark added 14 points in the game.

A 10-1 roll by Johnson Central in the closing minutes of the game, made the difference.

"We shot well in the game," Parido stated, "but we did not move the ball very well. We need to establish more of an inside game." Parido says that he is still undecided on a starting line-up for the opening of the season. "I just put five players out there to see how they would play together. I haven't settled on any certain five players yet."

Prestonsburg attempted 13 free throws in the game making seven of them. Johnson Central connected on 12 of 18 attempts.

Prestonsburg's defense in the first half caused the Golden Eagles plenty of problems as they turned the ball over.

"Most of our scoring, about 30 percent, in the first half came off turnovers that our defense caused," explained Parido, signaling the fact that the Blackcat offense needs to pick up some.

Prestonsburg will face a tough McDowell team Tuesday night at McDowell as they jump right into the Conference race.

Boyd, Smith Toss In 24 Points In 71-31 Win Over Mullins

Coach Bill Newsome made his return to coaching Monday night as his Betsy Layne Lady Cats ran over the Mullins Lady Tigers at Mullins. The Lady Cats got 24 point performances from Briana Boyd and Jamie Smith, both seniors. Smith scored her points coming off the bench.

"Jamie did not start because I have six seniors on the team and I consider all six of them starters. So I rotate those that start," said Coach Newsome.

The game was an easy one for Betsy Layne as they ripped the Lady Tiger defense throughout the game. Betsy Layne rolled out to a 32-8 halftime lead and Mullins trailed 44-10 after three quarters of play.

Besides Boyd's and Smith's 24 points, Nancy Shepherd added six points, Shelia Hall had five and Susan Conn scored four.

"We played good basketball tonight," said Newsome, "but we will get an early test on Thursday night." Tomorrow night (Thursday) the Lady Cats will entertain the Belfry Lady Pirates in an early 15th Region test. The Lady Pirates are picked by many to be the surprise of the 15th year.

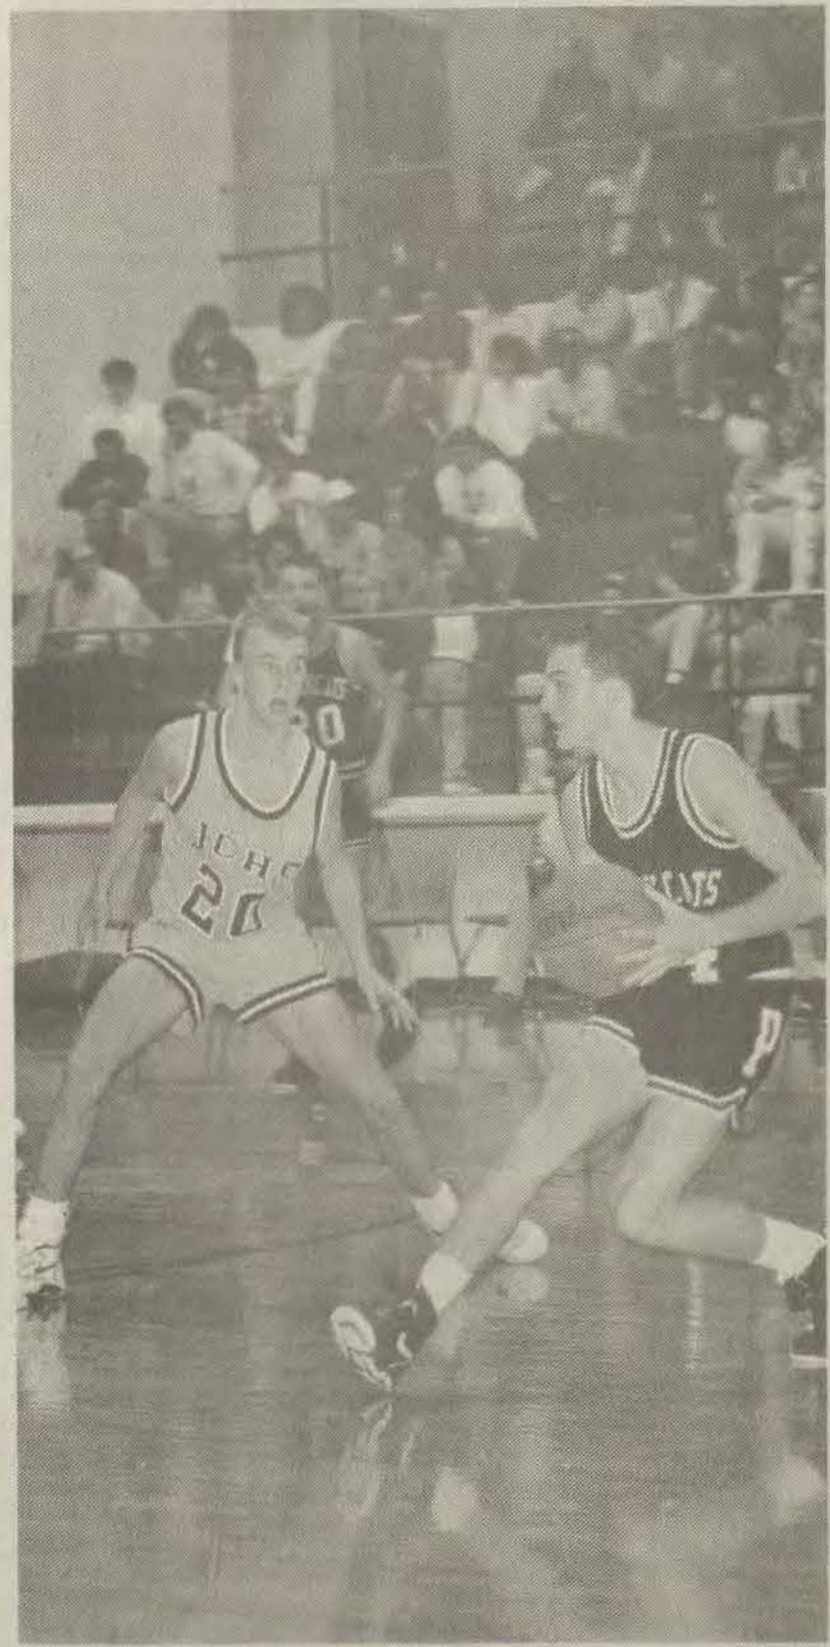

Susan Justice led the Lady Tigers in scoring with 16 points and Melissa Haynes added 10 points. R. Horn and C. Gillespie added two points each while M. Bridgeman scored one.

Boyd had a good floor game for the Lady Bobcats with 12 assists. She also hit two three-pointers in the game.

Burke's 30 Points Lead Hornets Over Falcons, 57-44

After finishing second in the MCA Invitational basketball tournament, the Auxier Hornets got back on the winning track with a 57-44 win over the Mountain Christian Academy Falcons in grade school basketball. Jason Burke keeps scoring at a torrid clip with a 30 point performance against the Falcons. The win had head coach Jerome Greathouse applauding his teams effort.

"We looked real good in winning," said the Hornet coach. "We played real good team ball and started passing the ball like we should and getting easy buckets."

Burke, one of the leading grade school players in the county, has improved his game at the free throw line. But the thing that pleased Greathouse was the scoring of some of his other players.

"It was good to see (Catrell) Farler get in the scoring column," he said. "(Greg) Richmond scored for us also."

MCA, a team that doesn't know what it is to give up, came charging back in the fourth quarter and came within four points of the Hornets before Burke put on a run himself, scoring eight straight points. The Hornets opened up a good lead by outscoring the Falcons 18-7 in the second period to take a 35-18 lead into the locker room at the half. By the end of the third period, MCA had managed to climb back into the game with a 15-6 third to make the score 41-33. "MCA is a team that plays hard and just doesn't give up," explained Greathouse. The victory for the Hornets ran their record to 8-6 on the season.

David Turner led the Falcons in scoring with 16 points. Duran Bryant added 14 and Joseph Risner tossed in seven.

Ervin Osborne had 17 points in the win for Auxier. Farler netted six and Richmond tallied four.

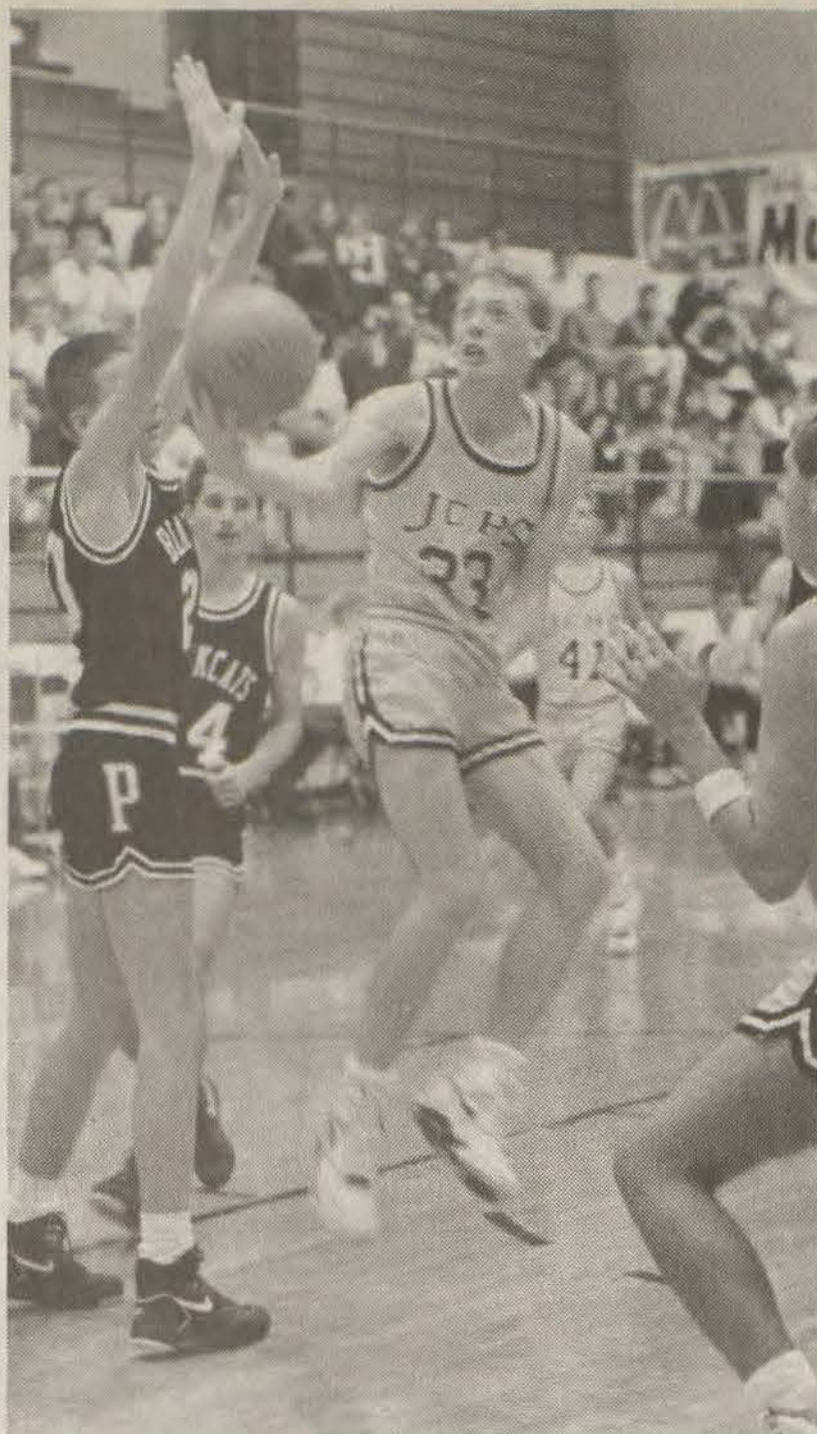

Auxier hit 11 of 15 free throws in the game and MCA connected on 12 of 20.

In the junior varsity game, MCA had seven players to score as they won over the junior Hornets 20-16. Joe Campbell had six points to lead the Falcons in scoring. Josh Lowe and Chris Cornette tossed in four points each. John Burchett and Daniel Risner scored two points each. Phillip Butler had one point.

Tony Honeycutt scored six points for Auxier while Michael Powers added four. Eddie Bentley and Greg Richmond had two each while Thomas Wright and Victor Ward tossed in one.

Brown's 3 PT Play At :04 Sends Fairdale Past Logan, W. Va., 59-57

Fairdale, 1989-90 Kentucky State Champions versus Logan, West Virginia, one of the Mountaineer state's best. That was the match-up in game three of the Kentucky Number One Panorama at Sheldon Clark High School Friday night. Fairdale, who has Mr. Basketball candidate Jermaine Brown, who recently signed a letter-of-intent to play basketball at Tennessee next year, got a scare from the boys from West Virginia as they had to come from behind to win.

Trailing 57-56 with six seconds showing on the scoreboard, Fairdale had the ball out of bounds underneath their basket. Brown slipped underneath and took the inbounds pass and laid the ball through the net. Brown was fouled on the play and converted the free throw to give Fairdale a 59-57 lead. The play before the winning basket was scored looked as if the ball had gone out of bounds off of Brown. Brown had driven to the basket when the ball seemed to have spurted out of his hand and out of bounds. However, the ball was awarded to Fairdale. Logan had a last second shot that missed its mark.

Brown, looking like the Mr. Basketball candidate that he is, was very impressive in his showing. The muscular Brown entertained the large crowd with some monstrous dunks during warm-ups. Brown started the game for Fairdale but was lifted midway through the first half (the two teams played two 15 minute halves). The game looked as if it was going to be a cake walk for the Kentucky state champions as coach Stan Hardin's team moved out to a 12-5 lead early in the game. However, Sonny Green, along with 6'8" Dan Russ, led a charge for Logan that gave the West Virginia team the lead. Green hit a shot off the right side of the key and Russ followed with a charity toss and a put back basket to make it 12-10 Fairdale. After a basket by Tim Comstock to give Fairdale a 14-10 lead, Logan ran off six unanswered points that gave them the lead, 16-14 with 5:11 to go in the half. Green scored on a lay up, and two baskets by Jeff Miller gave Logan the lead.

The lead went back and forth until Logan took a 28-23 lead with 1:48 to go in the half. Free throws by Ray Morris and Chris Kelso cut the margin to three, 28-25 at the half.

The largest lead for either team came with 9:46 remaining in the game when Logan pulled out to a 43-33 advantage on the scoring of Green and Bryan Johnson. Green hit a three-pointer at the 9:46 mark. Fairdale then went on a 9-1 run and pulled to within two, 44-42. Russ hit a basket inside to give Logan a 46-42 lead. Jeff Thompson hit a bucket and Morris tied the game at 46-46 at the 4:45 mark. A basket by Brown and Kelso put the state champions on top, 50-46. Johnson and Robert Fender came up with two big baskets for Logan to knot the game at 50-50. A tip in by Kelso and a jumper off the left side by Miller knotted the game at 52-52. A put back by Brown made it 54-52 and then Logan got a three point play from Russ to put the West Virginia team on top 55-54. Morris' jumper at the foul line put Fairdale back in the lead at 56-55 and Logan, with 29 seconds showing, claimed a 57-56 lead on a Miller basket, setting up the winning basket by Brown.

Jeff Miller, of Logan, claimed game scoring honors with 21 points. Brown finished with 15 for Fairdale while Kelso tossed in 14 points. Russ had 12 points for Logan while teammate Sonny Green added 11.

Logan attempted nine free throws hitting six. Fairdale connected on six of 12.

HITTING HARD

It's no secret that playing professional football means getting hit hard. A Sunday afternoon spent watching games on television makes one wonder if the National Football League's teams are beating each other up more than ever. In all honesty, I think the hardest hits and the hardest hitters have come and gone.

I was fortunate to play in the NFL when many of the all-time greats were playing. So many of the men I got a chance to play against have gone on to be included in the Hall of Fame. Our division was dubbed the "black 'n blue division" because of the intensity of the hitting between teams.

Entire Green Bay Packers teams from the early '60s, it seems, have gone on to the Hall of Fame. They had what it takes to really become famous in the NFL — the ability to intimidate an offense. Men like Ray Nitschke and Willie Wood struck fear into the hearts of the opposition.

Linebacker Dick Butkus had that gift of intimidation, and I can vouch for the power he possessed on the field. We met at the 1964 East-West College All-Star game, and I first learned what it was like to get hit by Dick Butkus. We both went on to play for the Chicago Bears, and I got hit plenty by him in practice. Butkus was what you call a "seven-day-a-week" player. He didn't hold back until game day.

Perhaps the hardest hitter I ever encountered was Deacon Jones of the Los Angeles Rams. I consider Jones to be the greatest defensive end to ever play the game. If you got hit by him, you knew it and would remember it well after the game. He was one of the Rams' "Fearsome Foursome" — although they were all great players — who had the ability to intimidate.

Who today can measure up to the legends? Who are the men who intimidate? The truth is that changes in defensive configurations, such as three-man-fronts, have altered the style of play and make for fewer guys who emerge as intimidating players. Players themselves also have changed. Today's players are faster and stronger across the board, making it a contest of big men vs. big men.

Lawrence Taylor of the New York Giants has earned his reputation as one of the real punishing hitters in the game. He may be the closest thing to Deacon Jones playing today. He plays the game like a defensive end, rushing the quarterback on nearly every play from his spot at outside linebacker.

Ronnie Lott, safety for the San Francisco 49ers, also deserves his notoriety as a vicious hitter. I know I'm glad I don't have to play against him.

There are other hitters playing now that I have failed to mention, but I think the game will continue to see a trend of fewer guys making their names as punishing hitters. The gains in overall speed and size have made for a game where the intensity of hitting is not as great a factor.

Belfry Survives Sheldon Clark Scare

If the Sheldon Clark and Belfry game in the Kentucky Number One Panorama at Sheldon Clark Friday night is any indication as to how the 1990-91 high school basketball season in the 15th Region is going to go this year, it should be an exciting season. The two teams battled it out at Sheldon Clark with the Pirates coming away with a hard fought 70-68 victory over the Cardinals. Coach Roger Harless' team showed that last year's 4-23 record was just a learning season for such a young team. The Cards will still be young this year, but with some experience.

J. J. Hylton hit for 20 points and junior center Jim Dotson added 17 point to lead the Pirates to their victory. Even though it was just a final tune up for the regular season that gets under way this week, both teams played as if the regional championship was on the line.

With Belfry holding a 69-63 lead with 1:05 remaining, Kevin Fields hit a three-pointer off the left side to make it 69-66. Sheldon Clark called time out and when play resumed, Hylton connected on a free throw for a 70-66 lead. Sheldon Clark had two shots at the basket on their next possession but was guilty of a foul on a rebound. Chris Phillips missed the two charity tosses and the Cardinals pulled down the rebound. John Slone was fouled and hit two foul shots to make it 70-68. The Cardinals were forced to foul with 19 seconds remaining and Shawn Hager was the candidate. Hager missed on both free throw attempts and the Cards had the ball and a chance to tie. Point guard Clayton Wells took an NBA three-point attempt that hit hard off the back rim and Belfry had the ball. Wells had time to move closer to the basket for his shot, but lost track of time remaining. A desperation foul by J.R. Hammonds, his fifth, put Phillips at the line with three seconds showing. Phillips missed both shots and a last desperation sling by John Slone just missed.

The lead changed hands 12 times in the first seven minutes of the game before the Pirates came up with a 37-30 lead at the half. Sheldon Clark held their lead at 17-16 when Belfry scored six unanswered points to go ahead 22-17. Cold free throw shooting by the Cardinals hampered them in their comeback attempt in the first half.

Belfry built a nine point early in the second half, 43-34 and again at 45-36. Sheldon Clark then ran off 10 straight points, including two three-pointers to take a 46-45 lead with 8:48 showing. Two free throws by Mark Williamson put the Pirates back in front, 47-46. Wells hit from outside for a 48-47 lead for Sheldon Clark. Dotson grabbed an offensive rebound for Belfry and stuck it back in and he was fouled. The big center sank the charity toss and Hylton connected on a jumper after a Cardinal turnover to give Belfry a 52-48 lead.

Trailing 57-50, the Cardinals closed the lead to two, 57-55 on a basket by Brian Pinson and a bucket by Fields sandwiched around a free throw by Hammonds. The Cards stayed within two or three points of the Pirates but never could head them in losing.

Belfry shot 43 foul shots in the game connecting on 21 of them. Sheldon Clark made 15 of 25 free throws. Sheldon Clark hit two three-pointers in the game, both by Fields. Fields and Pinson led the Cards in scoring with 17 each. Max Hale had 11 points and Slone finished with eight.

Besides Hylton's 20 points and Dotson's 17, Williamson added 13 and Timmy Kinzer tossed in 10.

TAYLORSVILLE LAKE — GOOD NEWS, BAD NEWS

There's good news and bad news from Taylorsville Lake. The good news is hybrid striped bass are rapidly reaching "keeper" size. The bad news is a bacterial infection which normally makes an annual cycle, has showed up this fall for the second time this year.

Studies conducted by the Fisheries Division, including recent reports from anglers, indicate that a few "keeper" (15 inch minimum length at Taylorsville Lake) hybrid stripers are now present. That's good news for anglers. By spring, there should be an abundance of the 15 inch hybrids, as was forecast, opening up a whole new and exciting sport fishing opportunity at the popular 3,000 acre Central Kentucky lake.

"We did some sampling this fall to take a look at how the hybrids we stocked for the first time last year (1989) were doing, and what we found were clean, healthy fish averaging around 14 1/2 inches in length," said Kerry Prather, central district fisheries biologist for the fish and wildlife department. "And the fish we stocked this past spring have already reached 9 to 10 inches. We're excited about the kind of growth we've seen in just a few months."

Definitely by this spring (1991), we'll be seeing plenty of nice 15 inch fish being caught," said Prather. "Anglers are beginning to catch a few already."

On the down side, people are seeing an increasing number of diseased fish covered with a whitish, fur-like fungus. That in itself is not all that unusual for Taylorsville. In years past, the fungus has appeared in the spring, spread throughout the warm water months, and disappeared as the water cooled in late fall. It was a problem that more or less took care of itself.

This year, for the first time, the disease strangely reappeared in the fall.

Actually, the fur-or hair-like fungus is a secondary symptom. The primary bacterial infection is marked by open sores on the body of the fish.

The stress-related infection plays no favorites relative to species — bass, bluegill, crappie, catfish, hybrids — all have been found at one time or another spotted with disease.

Black bass seem to be somewhat more susceptible to the disease than some of the other species. The infection, on the other hand, has not been found as frequently within the lake's crappie population.

"We found large numbers of infected fish 'stacked up' in coves and inlets," said Gerald Buynak, black bass research biologist. "We suspect these fish may have been trying to actually 'escape' the adverse conditions in the main part of the lake."

Biologists also believe the bacterial infection to be contagious, meaning schooling fish are likely to spread it among themselves.

The problem is not totally unique to Taylorsville Lake. Rough River users saw some hairy diseased fish this year. And Mike Larimore, who oversees the fish hatchery at Frankfort, even witnessed some instances of infection in spawning ponds.

Part of the reason for this "late" occurrence was that September was unusually dry. As a result, there was significantly less "new water" coming into lakes and other standing bodies of water. The water already present, just sort of sat there and "cooked" — becoming stagnated to a slight degree. There was less natural "flushing" taking place.

Before any Taylorsville Lake lovers hit the panic button, understand that the water there is not unsafe. The fish are edible. There's no sudden crisis. No new problems have arisen. Nothing is happening there that hasn't happened before. The lake is simply too rich in nutrients; it's too fertile. (It always has been). The scientific term is "eutrophic" (pronounced U-tro-fick, accent on the second syllable). Taylorsville Lake is the most eutrophic of Kentucky's major lakes. The problem is one that has plagued the lake since its impoundment in 1983. At times, the water quality there has even gone beyond eutrophic — to a stage called hyper-eutrophic.

TOO MUCH OF A GOOD THING

Unlike many of the state's major lakes which are surrounded by vast woodlands, Taylorsville Lake is surrounded largely by heavily agricultural properties — working farms. Fertilizers, animal wastes and other farming by-products naturally find their way to the lake each time it rains.

This natural process is called "nutrient loading." All of these nutrients (in proper quantities) would normally be healthy for a lake and aid in producing plankton and other aquatic growth necessary for cultivating fish populations. But like strong medicine, excessive dosage can be counterproductive. While two aspirins are good for a headache — a whole bottle-full can kill you. Taylorsville Lake also receives the discharge from sewage treatment plants in Lawrenceburg and Harrodsburg. And while this is a contributing factor, it's not known to what extent these discharges affect the lake's nutrient level.

Determining the degree to which all these factors affect the lake is a difficult task. The Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet's Division of Water has become involved in this long-term process.

"What we need to know and what we're trying to determine is the relative contribution of each of these nutrient sources," according to Terry Anderson, supervisor of the Division of Water's Quality Standards and Specifications Section. "We've set up a monitoring station at Glensboro which will help us get a better idea of what's coming into the lake."

Anderson stresses that it will be sometime before answers are known. We're not at the point where we can pinpoint the specific source of the problem."

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers is also actively involved in collecting and monitoring data in an effort to get a better handle on the situation at Taylorsville Lake.

There is a positive side to all of this. Fish who stay healthy grow at tremendous rates. According to Buynak, "In most cases, a 15 inch largemouth at Taylorsville will easily outweigh a 15 inch from another lake. They eat well and get really 'chunky'." And let's not paint a picture of Taylorsville Lake as a bubbling, gurgling goo. That's definitely NOT — repeat NOT — the case. The water is safe, the lake has plenty of healthy fish and ALL of the fish (including the weird looking ones) are fine to eat.

But there are some problems — problems that were forecast when the environmental impact statement was formulated prior to the construction of the dam — problems that have been around from day one.

Eventually, it may become necessary to impose stricter standards on facilities which feed treated wastewater into the lake.

And, eventually, biologists may be able to show area farmers how to set up their farms differently in order to reduce the level of nutrients generated by agricultural run off into the creeks and streams which feed Taylorsville Lake.

Ad for now, it's important to know that regulatory agencies including the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, the Division of Water, and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers are keenly aware of recurring problems at Taylorsville Lake and are working toward long term (not quick fix) solutions.

Taylorsville Lake has been and will continue to be one of Kentucky's outstanding sport fishing and recreational lakes.

Lady Blackcats — (Continued from B 1)

Clay of her team's performance. "We played good team ball and put forth a good effort. Edwinna Hale did an outstanding job for us at point guard. She saw the floor well and we all played much better than we did in the McDowell panorama. "Lawrence County is a good team and we did some things on defense that confused them," the Lady Blackcat coach explained. "It was a good defensive outing for this team and a good team effort overall."

Melissa Ratliff led the Lady Bulldogs in scoring with 11 points. Marie Chatman added night points. Edwinna Hale finished with five points while Stephanie Allen, Carrie Merion and Melissa Bailey scored two each. The Prestonsburg Lady Blackcats are expected to be a strong challenger for the 58th District title this year and are a very young, but experienced team.

LOCAL ANGLER TEE WATKINS ADVANCES TO RED MAN ALL-AMERICAN

Eight years of patience, diligence, and hard work finally paid off for East Point's Tee Watkins. A fifth place finish in the Red Man Regional Classic, held November 9 and 10 on Alabama's Demopolis Lake, clinched Watkins' berth to the coveted Red Man All-American to be held in June of 1991.

Competing against 150 of the top anglers throughout the greater south, Watkins boated 19 pounds, 2 ounces of bass in the two day tournament to establish himself as one of the Red Man Tournament Trail's top 40 anglers for 1990. Tee discovered two different patterns that insured his success on Demopolis. In the mornings, he paralleled river bluffs with a spinnerbait and then hopped a jigging spoon around the mouths of creaks later in the day.

Watkins will travel to Buffalo, New York in June of next year to compete in the Red Man All-American, the richest and certainly one of the most prestigious bass fishing tournaments in the world. The All-American will be held on the Niagara River and Lake Erie, two tough bodies of water that will test the mettle of each of the 40 competing anglers.

The Operation Bass Red Man Tournament Trail is a wickedly competitive national tournament series designed for the grass roots angler. In essence, the country is divided into 20 divisions and up to 360 anglers in each division compete against one another in a series of six qualifying tournaments. Ultimately, the top 10 anglers from each region will compete in the Red Man All-American, a tournament boasting the nation's largest cash prize awarded to a single angler. The All-American victor will not only garner the satisfaction of being proclaimed the top Red Man angler of the year, but will also take home a check for $100,000.

Now 37, Tee began fishing the Red Man circuit eight years ago. Though he has enjoyed a successful life of tournament angling, nothing can compare to qualifying for the All-American tournament. That accomplishment might take on a new meaning for you when you consider that, through the course of the year, Watkins competed against roughly 7000 anglers. Of those thousands of anglers from across the country, only 40 qualify for the Red Man All-American.

A switchman for South Central Bell by profession, Tee's avocation is bass fishing. Already feared by local tournament competitors, Watkins is making inroads into a national reputation. His skill and expertise have warranted his inclusion into several national articles in such magazines as BASSMASTER and NORTH AMERICAN FISHERMAN. Although competitive on the water, Tee is more concerned with helping fellow anglers whenever possible. Each year, he teaches an instructional class called "The Basics of Bass Fishing," a community service class offered through Prestonsburg Community College. Additionally,

Tee has initiated several anglers into the world of tournament bass angling and has been instrumental in their success. As the Big Sandy Sales Representative for Larry's Marine in Morehead, Tee also hosts angling seminars at several area boat shows each year.

Watkins, who makes his home in East Point just outside of Prestonsburg in Floyd County, says his number one sponsor is his family. His wife, Sharon Rice Watkins, provides his inspiration and unwavering support, while his son Jeremy (10) and daughter Telah (6) are his most devout fans.

It is with great pleasure that I offer my sincerest congratulations to Tee Watkins, certainly one of Eastern Kentucky's finest.

WMA Reminds Hunters Of No Hunting Zones

The Corps of Engineers at Paintsville Lake, in conjunction with the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife, has designated a few areas on the Paintsville Lake wildlife management area as "No Hunting Zones".

The Corps has posted a map and description of these areas on outdoor bulletin boards located at the Corps of Engineers office, Rocky Knob Marina, Paintsville Dam Overlook and Paintsville Dam Downstream Area.

Those hunters wishing to hunt on the Morgan County Section of the Wildlife management area can do so without any hunting zone restrictions. Those hunters wishing to hunt on the Johnson County Section are urged to check this map as a few areas close to the dam have been designated as "No Hunting Zones".

The Corps reminds all hunters that they are responsible for knowing the proper hunting zones and hunting regulations before hunting on the wildlife management area.

The Corps also posts these bulletin boards with park regulations and general hunting and fishing information. For additional information, contact the Resource Manager at Paintsville Lake, Monday through Friday, 7:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. at 297-6312 or the Conservation Officer for Johnson County at 297-1610.

Bassin' with the Pros

TODAY'S LIFE PRESERVERS OFFER MANY NEW IMPROVEMENTS

Ask any professional bass angler to name the most important item in his boat, and most will name their life preserver.

Technically known as a personal flotation device or PFD's, these sleeveless jackets can literally mean the difference between life and death in an emergency.

We've seen a tremendous improvement in life preservers in recent years," explains Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff angler Ken Cook, "which I'm happy to see.

"It's important that a PFD be comfortable to wear, because if it is, an angler or boater will tend to wear it more. It's also important to know your life preserver is going to stay on your body, in the event of an accident, and today's newer life jackets, when worn properly, certainly will."

If you need to purchase a new life preserver, advises the Evinrude pro, look for some of the following features:

* A rolled neck collar. This not only provides additional flotation, it helps to support a person's head and keep it out of the water.

* Leg Straps. These straps are vital in keeping the PFD on a person's body if they are thrown from a fast-moving boat.

* Adjustable body straps. These allow the PFD to be worn comfortably under different weather conditions where various amounts of clothing are worn. Most PFD's now manufactured for fishermen have three body straps, as well as a front zipper.

* Pockets. These are used for storage of various items, such as pliers, sunscreen lotion, sunglasses, or an emergency whistle. In cold weather, they're hand warmers.

"The more comfortable and usable a life preserver is," says Cook, "the more an angler or boater will tend to wear it. Personally, I wear a life preserver anytime I have my big outboard running, even if it's just at idle speed, and because my jacket is so comfortable, I often wear it even when I'm fishing and only using the trolling motor.

"One problem with older life preservers was the lack of leg straps. If a person gets thrown from a boat suddenly, the PFD can actually get thrown off him, right over his shoulders and head. The leg straps keep that from happening.

"Leg straps also keep a life preserver in place if you happen to lose consciousness in the water," adds Cook. "These, combined with the rolled neck collar, are certainly two of the greatest improvements we've seen in life jackets, and I strongly recommend every fisherman and boater use PFDs that have them."

If it has been a while since you last treated your outboard to a tune-up, consider scheduling an appointment with your Evinrude or Johnson dealer this fall. Service managers are often looking for work this time of year, and many offer off-season specials. Tune up now and you'll be ready when the fish start biting in the spring.

PANORAMA SHOWCASE FOR REGIONAL PLAYERS

I had the opportunity Friday night to attend the panorama that has been billed as Kentucky's Number One Panorama. The event, sponsored by McDonalds, was held at Sheldon Clark High School, and I have to say it was number one with me. I witnessed some good basketball games and some great basketball players.

I suppose that most of the crowd came to see the Fairdale and Logan game because that's when most of the people crowded into the gym. Jermaine Brown, who signed a letter of intent with Tennessee, put on a show during warmups for the state champions. However, the player that impressed me most in that game was Logan's Jeff Miller. Miller did things that Brown didn't do. He could hit from outside with consistency for a big man, as well as play the inside. Miller will make some college — if he hasn't signed already — a fine prospect. Ray Morris of Fairdale was also impressive.

The Sheldon Clark and Belfry game was as fine a ball game as you would want to watch. It had everything — good defense, good plays, and just good high school basketball. Belfry, no doubt, will be a powerhouse in the 15th region this year. J.J. Hylton will be a force for many teams to try to stop. And to think he is only a junior. There will be many college coaches knocking at this young man's door when the next recruiting season comes around.

But, I was totally impressed with Coach Roger Harless's ball club. Harless is a great coach. He has taken a young ball club and whipped it into a regional contender. Brian Pinson and Kevin Fields, as well as Clayton Wells, look like they are ready and capable of leading the Cardinals this year. They gave the Pirates all they wanted in the Panorama.

Prestonsburg, who many figured would have to really regroup, gave the Johnson Central team a hard first half. They were impressive on defense and from three point territory as well. Worthie McGuire will be a solid performer for the Blackcats this year. Johnson Central, second by many in regional picks, has Avery Fairchild as a leader. Fairchild is a tremendous ball player and I enjoyed watching him perform. Jody Salisbury, 6'10", and heavily recruited will be tough to handle by many teams in the region. Jason Hurt showed he could play the guard position, despite cries that the Eagles have no guards.

Betsy Layne looked as if they were ready to challenge anyone, even Belfry, for the regional title this year. There is no doubt that Adam Gearheart and Phillip King are two of the best players in the 15th Region.

In the Panorama, we saw some of the regions finest coaches. Many fans take coaches for granted. I, for one, appreciate the efforts they put forth to have a good team. Not all teams can be crowned regional champions or have winning seasons, but that does not mean that the coaches are not trying. We are blessed with good competent coaches in the 15th Region: Justice at Belfry; Runyon at Paintsville; Newsome at Betsy Layne, Parido at Prestonsburg; Harless at Sheldon Clark; Ratliff at Johnson Central. I am glad that I have gotten to know them and consider them men that deserve the respect of all basketball fans. I just named a few of the boys' coaches, but there are many good girls' coaches also.

The basketball season is under way now, and someone told me that maybe I could take it a little easier now that football season is over. I reminded them that football teams play only on Fridays. Basketball teams play every night of the week. Oh well, I enjoy it, and let the season begin.

In Friday's column look for the "most worst list." Until then, be a good sport — you'll be glad you were.

In The Service

Tess Whitmer's column in last Wednesday's issue of the Times made the Gulf crisis a bit more real to us here in Floyd County. Her account of the transition from her home and job in Prestonsburg to a totally different lifestyle in Saudi Arabia reminds us of how quickly things can change.

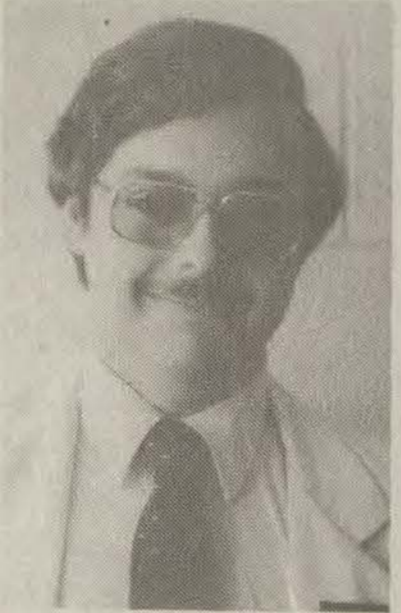

Whether or not we have followed the reports Tess has sent back to us, we need to be aware that she and many other of our finest young people have gone to the other side of the world in service to their country and to each of us individually.

Lt. Cdr. Carl Edward Steele II is another native Eastern Kentuckian now in the mid-east. He is a doctor serving on the U.S.N.S. Mercy, a hospital ship stationed in the Persian Gulf.

Tess Whitmer had flown from Massachusetts on a huge military aircraft, a journey that took 29 hours; but Eddie had gone by ship from Oakland, California, and the journey for him took a month.

in August, sailing across the North Pacific, down along Japan, with a stop in the Philippines for added supplies and crew members. This leg of the journey took two weeks.

CARL EDWARD STEELE, II

In a letter to his parents, Eddie wrote, "The crossing was not too bad, but we did have to go around one typhoon. I was pleased that I didn't get seasick."

Leaving the Philippines September 5, the vessel sailed past Singapore into the Indian Ocean. Again he wrote, "We got pretty close to the Equator, within 60 miles they said, but they were in too much of a hurry for us to have a 'crossing the line' ceremony. I'll have to wait for the return trip for that."

It took another two weeks to cross the Indian Ocean and the Arabian Sea and then to enter the Persian Gulf.

The U.S.N.S. Mercy has about 40 doctors and is staffed for 500 beds with room to expand to 1,000. It has 12 operating rooms, a recovery room and four intensive care units. Eddie reports, "We have been getting patients from the other Navy ships as well as ground troops in Saudi Arabia (both Army and Marines)."

The U.S.N.S. Comfort is a sister ship that sailed from the East Coast and the original plan was to have the two ships rotate positions.

Lt. Cdr. Steele is the son of Carl and Mablein Steele of Betsy Layne. He graduated from Betsy Layne High School in 1974, from Pikeville College in '78 and from the University of Kentucky College of Medicine in '82. He joined the Navy and served his internship at Oakland Naval Regional Medical Center. He spent one year on the U.S.S. Enterprise before transferring to the Mercy.

Joining the U.S. Navy seemed the natural thing for Eddie Steele to do, for he was born on Navy Day, October 27, 1955. His father, Carl, retired from the Navy in 1965 with 20 years of service, and his mother, Mablein, was in the W.A.V.E.S. for almost four years. He had four uncles and one great-uncle in the Navy during World War II.

Eddie is married to the former Charlene Mullins of Shelby Gap, Ky. She also graduated from Pikeville College and now works for the University of California.

Kim's Korner

Well, the Thanksgiving feast is over and as far as I can tell my relatives are alive and well (that is, after eating my first Thanksgiving dinner).

by Kim Frasure

I'll tell you, preparing those turkeys can be a real trick. Of course, I had directions to go by, from the label, my mother, my mother-in-law and my grandmother. Everyone agreed I should set the alarm for 5 a.m. to put the turkey in the oven.

This bird weighed 21.4 pounds. Dinner was scheduled for 2 p.m. So, beginning at 5 a.m., the cooking time should've been sufficient for the main course.

Around 10 a.m., Ol' Tom was done. The little popper had popped out and the aroma was oh, so wonderful, but, it's way too early.

I picked up the phone and called my mother-in-law.

"It can't be done already," she said.

"But the little red thing popped up and it's golden brown," I said.

"Did you remember to take out the liver, gizzard and neck?" she asked.

Well, I got that little pouch of gross stuff out, but there was not a neck anywhere. I swear. Actually, I did try to locate the neck, but the way I had it figured, it had to be farther back inside the turkey than I chose to search.

I tried, with some assistance with my oven mitt on, but no luck. It didn't work.

"I'm sorry," I said. "I can't do this. It's gross. So, what if the neck is still inside this bird. It won't hurt anything—Will it?"

My mother-in-law, laughing hysterically, said she'd be right over. I felt relief was near.

Not five seconds after Ol' Tom was atop the oven, my mother-in-law came out with a turkey neck. A BIG NECK!

"Wow," I said. "Was that the neck?"

"Yes," she said as the tears of laughter ran down her cheeks.

"Oh, well, glad you found it," I said.

Luckily everyone arrived early, and we had one fine tasting Thanksgiving dinner, if I say so myself.

Afterward, my mother, grandmother and I planned a shopping trip, along with a visit to my aunt's for the upcoming weekend.

Bright and early Saturday morning, we headed out to conquer our Christmas gift list. With the sun beaming down and the temperature a comfortable 63 degrees, I found it hard to get in a Christmas mood.

Traveling from store to store, listening to the tunes of Elvis dreaming of a white Christmas, I still just could not feel the Christmas spirit.

It looks like summer, feels like spring, yet Santa will be here in a few short weeks.

As I tried harder to search for that perfect gift for each and everyone I love, I found NOTHING. Well, you know what I mean, I found all kinds of things, but I'd end up talking myself right out of buying it.

I want my gifts to be special. I want everyone receiving a present to know how much I care about them and how much they mean to me.

I don't want to just pick up something and say, "Yeah, that'll do, let's go!" Doing that wouldn't make me much of a wife, mother, daughter, aunt, sister-in-law, etc., now would it?

So, maybe the weather will change and hopefully we'll see a snow flurry or two, and hopefully, I can get some Christmas shopping done.

Till next week, Happy Holidays.

Former Floyd countian retires as chief fire inspector

Robert T. Newsome, former Prestonsburg resident, bid farewell to his friends and co-workers at the culmination of his 27-year career in a retirement ceremony held October 31 in South Carolina.

Newsome had served as Parris Island's Chief Fire Inspector for the last 11 years.

A veteran civil service firefighter, he first began firefighting in 1954 at the age of 18; and not by choice as he recalls.

"I was at Hunter Air Force Base, Savannah, Ga., at the time," he reminisced. "We had just completed training (Air Force boot camp) and they had us lined-up outside. Someone came by and said everyone from here on over is going to be an MP (military police), and everyone to the left will become a fireman. I was on the left."

After serving three years in the Air Force, Newsome became disabled. When he was discharged, he entered Morehead State University for two years, to study physical education.

He married and two years later, in search of gainful employment, moved to South Carolina to live with his sister.

"I had a wife and child and it was really hard finding steady work, so I had to move to where people were hiring," said Newsome.

He waited more than five years for the civil service fireman job at the U.S. Naval Station in Charleston, S.C., to become available.

"In those years, I worked as a bus driver, milk man, and a shoe salesman before landing a job with the North Charleston Fire Department," Newsome said.

After nine years at the naval station as a fire fighter and fire inspector of the Navy's buildings and nuclear submarines, the father of two boys and two girls moved his family to Beaufort, where he became the fire chief at Beaufort South Carolina Naval Hospital.

"Moving to Beaufort and staying right here to work was, in itself, a highlight in my life; both professionally and as a family man," explained Newsome, who has more than 2,949 hours of sick leave accumulated along with two months of annual leave to his credit.

Preventing fires and teaching fire education to the hospital and depot service members on fire prevention was Chief Newsome's main goal here.

"When I first arrived, I realized the need for fire prevention," he said. "Since then, I believe I've done my job because the depot's fire record has been minimal."

As the grandfather of two girls and four boys reflects upon his job, he said he is satisfied with the mandatory retirement law for those at age 55. However, he admitted he wasn't really ready to give it all up, and he doesn't feel his age.

"Years ago you could be a fireman until you were 90-years-old," he said. "I'm in good health, however, the knees are going."

"I've seen marines here (Parris Island) come and go, and more than once I might add they ask, 'Are you still here?'" added Newsome. "I've made some good friends here that have traveled all over the world. They've told me some interesting stories of their travels and sometimes it's as if I've been there too."

Retirement is not the end for chief Newsome. He will become a Beaufort County substitute teacher this month — that is, after he "catches up on sleeping and boating."

Tid Bits

By Janice Shepherd

Not long ago, my aunt, Rosemary Ousley of Water Gap, and I discussed our chagrin at being unable to operate all these push button gadgetries science and slick sales people have enticed us to purchase. Aunt Rosie commented that children could easily operate these overwhelming pieces of equipment, but she couldn't — nor can I.

The following article is dedicated to all those individuals who have as much trouble with their appliances as Aunt Rosie and I do.

There must be an easier way

The technology of microwave cooking, video cassette recording, and remote control television viewing has promised to make my life easier at the touch of a button, but which button do I push! Temperature control buttons, memory buttons, and mode set buttons on these units have boggled my mind and numbed my fingertips.

My first experience with push-button leisure was the microwave oven. The owner's manual stated that, at the touch of a few buttons, an entire meal could be prepared in half the conventional oven's cooking time. With instruction booklet in hand, I pushed temperature control, cooking control, time set, recipe numbers, and pause buttons until the tip of my index finger turned blue. The result of this venture into microwave cooking resulted in a pot roast so hard it couldn't be dented with a hammer, dehydrated mashed potatoes, rubbery green beans, and dinner rolls that bounced off the walls because I ducked when my family took aim.

Undaunted, I advanced to the next level of finger-controlled mayhem with the purchase of a video cassette recorder. The VCR's manufacturer emphasized that any program could be recorded, day or night, even without turning on the television set. Selective television viewing seemed to be at my fingertips. I pressed button after button, setting the channel memory controls, time set controls, and tape speed controls to record my favorite shows of Geraldo and Oprah Winfrey. Alas, the only thing I recorded was two hours of static.

My most memorable attempt at conquering the labyrinth of sensory controlled electronics was operating a remote control television. The TV seemed harmless enough on the showroom floor; the salesperson easily went through the programming sequence. All I had to do, the salesman advised, was sit back, relax, push a button, and the simplified component control unit would do the rest. At home with the set, I stretched out on the sofa and pushed a button. To my chagrin, option after option appeared on the screen. I hit the panic button during this myriad of programming sequence and became lost in a maze of parental controls, sleep timer, color sentry, AFC Mode, B Cast, and video filter options.

After relentlessly pressing these push button marvels, I still haven't found my way to the easy chair.

On Fate, Chance, Kings and Desperate Men

Now, I don't claim to be a philosopher or anything like that, but I have done some deep pondering in my day. I mean, all those long, dusty summer afternoons I spent as a boy sitting on the front porch of the Northeast Coal Company store in Thealka back in the 1940's, surely must have served some useful purpose that I can apply to my later years. I'll admit that I couldn't spit nor whittle as well as some of the grown men, but even if I do say so myself, I cold flat ponder.

In his "Holy Sonnet 6", Elizabethan poet John Donne was apparently doing a little pondering, too. Donne suggested that "fate, chance, kings and desperate men" hold dominion over all our lives. The older I get, the more apt I'm to adopt the opinion that the first two play less of a role than the latter.

I guess I'm like a lot of folks who don't take much stock in fate, thinking it a synonym for luck, and believing that, for most part, we make our own.

Likewise with chance, I think I believe that we make choices as to what we do, and that which we call chance is not really chance at all, but rather a result of the choices we make.

Yet, while I tend to resist fate and chance as factors that govern our existence on a day-to-day basis, I have more than a little problem shooting holes in the "Kings and desperate men" part of the theory.

I mean, every time I put gas in my car, I can't help but think just how accurate Donne was. Here I am in Eastern Kentucky over 400 years after John Donne lived and the simple act of gassing up my car is dictated by some mad man on the other side of the world.

I guess Donne realized that its a small world. It's a sad one, too, when someone like Saddam Hussein decides whether I buy a tank full or $10 worth.

Personally, I'm getting tired of the silly little games that those wanna be kings are playing. Here we are going into the Christmas Season and every time we turn on the TV we see images of troops and tanks and missiles and planes and other instruments of war. Yet, the sound never seems to fit the picture because—for whatever the reason—the announcer speaks in terms of settlement... yes, even of peace. Then, in the next breath he tells how many more troops are being sent to Saudi Arabia.

I guess my cynicism is showing, but I can't buy it. As I watched those old coal miners nearly 50 years ago sit on their haunches in the shade, and as I listened to them ponder out loud on the actions of FDR and John L. Lewis and Ewell Blackwell and the Cincinnati Red Legs, I noticed they never crammed their jaws full of Red Man unless they were going expectorate big time.

One things for certain, though, it didn't take all day back in those days to decide what to do with a bully. Old John Donne may have genuinely believed that we can't do much about fate and chance, but my store porch logic suggest that a swift kick in the oil-can might be all that's needed to get the attention of a few so-called kings and desperate men.

Alice Lloyd alumni dedicate memorial

A recent Newsletter from Alice Lloyd College carried an article entitled, "Floyd County Alumni Dedicate Memorial," which states in part: "At the 1990 annual meeting of the Floyd County Alumni Association, alumni and friends of Caney Junior College met to dedicate a memorial to the memory of both Alice Lloyd and June Buchanan.

"Presiding over the meeting was Association President Clara Johnson of Minnie. The monument grew out of a desire on the part of the Floyd county A.L.C. Alumni Association to contribute a memorial to the founders of Alice Lloyd College and Caney Creek Community center.

"According to Mrs. Robin Mohler, A.L.C. alumni director, "The memorial is a beautiful addition to the historic section of the campus."

Pictured with the article are Clara Johnson of Floyd county, A.L.C. alumni president; Dr. Fred Mullinax, president of Alice Lloyd College; and Adrian Hall, co-director of admissions, there.

Among those present for this event was Mrs. Anne E. England Tackett, the eldest living Floyd County A.L.C. alumnus, who is remembered by "Caney girls" and "Caney boys" as "Ma" England. Many Floyd County alumni members were on hand for this dedication ceremony.

President Mullinax assured the group that "this monument will be a constant reminder of the impact Alice Lloyd and June Buchanan had on education in Eastern Kentucky."

Christmas benefit at Methodist Hospital

The stars come out for Christmas to benefit the pediatric and neonatal units at Methodist Hospital. Over 30 of the country's favorite vocalists have teamed up to produce a very special Christmas album to benefit a worthwhile cause. . . our children.

"The Stars Come Out For Christmas" is the title of a Christmas album now available at area Happy Marts. The album was first produced in 1989 to benefit a children's hospital in San Diego, California. Because of the success of the album (22,000 copies sold in 12 days), Steve Vaus, the producer, decided to offer it to other hospitals across the United States as a means of generating additional funds.

According to Penny Stratton, director of development at Methodist Hospital, all proceeds from the sale of the album will help fund equipment that is desperately needed for our children.

"For example, we want to provide hearing testing for high risk infants because this service is presently unavailable in Eastern Kentucky," Stratton said.

Performers on the album include: Lee Greenwood, James Taylor, Ray Charles, Barbara Mandrell, Randy Travis and Patty Loveless.

"At Methodist Hospital, we believe our children should have the best diagnostic services available, however, additional funds are needed to provide the region with these services," Stratton said. "That's why we are so pleased about "The Stars Come Out For Christmas" album and Coleman Oil and Happy Mart's hand in making the project available."

Druther's raises funds for Easter Seal Society

The Kentucky Easter Seal Society has announced the results of a new fundraising project conducted by Druther's Restaurants. Called, "Put a Smile on a Pumpkin", 22 Druther's in Kentucky raised $5,816. Customers purchased paper pumpkins cutouts for $1, signed each one, and hung it as part of the store's Halloween decorations.

Top fundraiser was the Druther's in Scottsville, which raised $1,310. Bruce Dennis, manager of the top restaurant, will receive his choice of a VCR, compact disc player or 19" portable color television. Easter Seal officials will travel to Scottsville to present the award to Dennis.

Regional winners include Druther's in Scottsville, Mt. Washington, Fulton and Paintsville. Special plaques will be presented to these store managers on the Easter Seal Telethon, March 3, 1991.

Employees in restaurants which sold at least 500 pumpkins each will receive a commemorative tee shirt. All participating restaurants will receive a framed certificate.

In announcing the project results, Easter Seal Executive Producer Guion Miller said, "We are most grateful for Druther's continued support of Easter Seal projects in Kentucky. It's very appropriate that a holiday associated with happy children be used to make life easier for disabled children."

Funds raised by the project will support Easter Seal programs throughout Kentucky, which served 24,000 disabled children and adults in 1989.

By Marie Harmon

Plan next year's garden now for a session of harvests. Like most gardeners, I relish the chance for some armchair gardening in mid-winter when green life outdoors reaches its lowest ebb.

During the growing season, I am too busy doing to plan. I try to remember planting and bearing times, amounts stored, and experiments that did and did not work. I should make notes of all this as my memory plays tricks. A new season lies ahead.

This upcoming year, I will try to correct last year's mistakes (and make some new ones). Looking forward and looking back, I try to keep the best from past gardens and make a few improvements to the new one.

We depend on our garden for all our vegetables and our fruit trees for our fruit—all year. If we are to eat well, I must plan and now is the time to do it.

We eat more of some vegetables than others. The more vegetables we eat, the more nutrients our body absorbs.

Growing a wide range of vegetables is insurance against crop failure too. If our sweet potatoes don't make it maybe our squash will.

Planning for variety is easy—just curl up with all the new seed catalogs and choose. Seeds are still one of the best bargains around. A dollar gambled on a new vegetable variety usually pays off, more often than one spent on a lottery ticket. So take a few chances.

Try to plant at least one new variety each year. Some will become regulars. Even the ones you don't re-order will have taught you something. Try to keep your garden evenly divided between root crops and fruiting crops, like tomatoes, peppers and leafy vegetables.

The sooner you start picking vegetables from your garden, the larger your yield from that piece of ground will be. Starting early takes some preparation.

Order your seeds early before the spring rush. Test germination of the seeds you have saved. Wrap about 20 seeds in a damp paper towel, tuck into a plastic bag, and keep at room temperature. Count the number of seeds that have germinated within two weeks.

If you make your own potting soil for seedlings, bring in a bushel of garden soil and compost or leaf mold in late fall before the ground freezes solid.

Start your earlier seeds in flats in February, March and April so they can be set out at the correct time. Make use of cold frames and plastic row tents, bottomless glass jars and any other plant protector to get spring plants off to an early start. Winter is a good time to get the ball rolling and your materials ready.

Traveling With The Floyd County Times

10 year old Brad Johnson takes time out to read his "Times" in Missouri while traveling to Topeka Kansas to play in the Johnny Appleseed Baseball Club National Baseball Congress World Series. Brad was a pitcher and first baseman who led his team from Mansfield, Ohio with 3 home runs. Brad is the grandson of Billie Hicks formerly of Floyd County.

Joy Rasnick Harris of Prestonsburg and Rebecca Harris of Lexington relax on their tour of several Western states and read the Floyd County Times at Jenny Lake at the foot of the Teton Mountains in Wyoming on August 16, 1990.

Anna Belle Harris of Prestonsburg is enjoying the Floyd County Times and the sites in Jerusalem. Anna is pictured here at the "Wailing Wall" which was just one of her many stops while visiting Israel, Egypt and a Nile River Cruise.

Richard D. Howard shares his Floyd County Times with a young member of an Aborigines Village in a Northern Australia Rain Forest. Richard is a former Hueysville resident now living in Winchester, Ky.

The "Times" travels to the Berlin Wall with former Wayland resident James Moore pictured here at Checkpoint Charlie. James is the son of Barbara and Shelly Moore of Wayland.

Roberta Allison accompanied by her "Times" backpacked to the top of Ayers Rock, 1000 miles above the desert in the center of Australia. Not bad for a 70 year old grandmother! Roberta is the grandmother of Stephen, Jeanette, Christy and Anita Allison and the mother of Clark Allison of Prestonsburg.

County Kettle

If turkey is frozen, thaw in refrigerator or cold water. When ready to cook, remove paper.

Remove neck from body cavity and giblets from neck cavity. If desired, rinse turkey and drain well. Clean all work surfaces and utensils touched by raw turkey or juices with hot soapy water.

Stuff neck and body cavities lightly with favorite stuffing, if desired. Turn wings back to hold neck skin in place. If untucked, return legs to tucked position. No trussing is necessary.

Place turkey lifter, that usually comes with the turkey, on flat rack in open pan, about 2 inches deep. Place turkey on lifter, breast side up. Bring loops of lifter up over turkey.

Insert meat thermometer deep into thickest part of thigh next to body, not touching bone.

Before roasting, brush skin with oil to prevent skin from drying. Further basting is unnecessary.

Roast at 325 degrees. When skin is golden brown, shield breast loosely with lightweight foil to prevent over-browning.

Check for doneness. Internal thigh temperature should be 180 to 185 degrees; center of stuffing, 160 to 165 degrees. Thigh and drumstick meat should feel soft. When thigh is pierced, juices should be clear, not pink.

Let turkey stand 15 to 20 minutes for easier carving.

Traditional Turkey Gravy

Pour turkey drippings from roasting pan into 4-cup measure. Remove 1/4 cup fat from drippings; place in saucepan. Skim off and discard remaining fat from drippings. Add turkey or chicken broth to drippings to make 4 cups. Blend 1/2 cup all-purpose flour into fat until smooth, then add drippings. Cook and stir until gravy comes to a boil and thickens over medium heat. Stir in salt and pepper to taste; add finely chopped cooked giblets, if desired. Make about 4 cups.

Don't 'duck' the issue...

Turkey Talk For The Holidays

When people say "let's talk turkey," they usually want to get down to the nuts and bolts of a particular topic.

University of Kentucky food and nutrition specialists are talking turkey...and dressing. This talk can save you time and money during the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays and make them more enjoyable for your family and friends.

The following turkey talk is offered by Sue Burrier and Fudeko Maruyama, Extension specialists with the UK College of Agriculture.

Frozen turkeys usually are less expensive than fresh ones. You can save more money and get the size turkey you want by taking advantage of pre-holiday specials.

Fresh turkeys tend to be more juicy, but also are more perishable.

Check for holes in the plastic wrap around frozen turkeys. These holes can allow freezer burn, which dries out the turkey and causes unsightly spots to develop.

How big a turkey do you need? Allow three-fourths to one pound of turkey per serving on turkeys under 12 pounds. Allow one-half to three-fourths of a pound per serving on turkeys larger than 12 pounds.

If you plan to stuff a turkey, allow three-fourths of a cup of stuffing for each pound of uncooked turkey.

If you are concerned about fat, avoid pre-basted turkeys. They have hydrogenated fat added to make them more juicy.

A roasting chicken, turkey breast or duck are alternatives to buying a whole turkey.

To save time, cook the turkey in a microwave oven, covered roaster, or commercial plastic oven bag. You can also save time by cooking the turkey and stuffing separately. An unstuffed turkey takes less time to cook, and you avoid spending time to remove stuffing from the cooked bird.

Make an aluminum foil tent to keep the turkey moist, reduce oven splatter and prevent overbrowning. To brown the turkey, remove the foil 20 to 30 minutes before the bird is done.

Use leftover gravy to keep frozen turkey moist.

Leftover turkey can be used in a variety of dishes including soups, casseroles, stews, and hot or cold sandwiches and salads.

Long Term Care Case Management Project

A 2-year pilot project of long-term care case management services is being implemented in six Kentucky counties. Sponsored by Sen. Benny R. Bailey (D-Hindman) and enacted by the Kentucky General Assembly, a portion of the "Health Care Reform Act of 1990", requires the Cabinet for Human Resources to provide single-entry point, comprehensive case management for long-term care clients receiving Cabinet services.

The program is being implemented in Floyd and Magoffin Counties by the Big Sandy Area Development District. The area development district will expand upon the Homecare assessment and case management system to include persons living in the community and in nursing homes, regardless of age. Case managers will help eligible clients enter the long-term care system and obtain the services they need.

To be eligible for the program a person must live in the Floyd and Magoffin counties, be receiving or applying for a long-term care service provided by the Cabinet, and need services for 6 months or longer due to a functional impairment. Functional impairments include, but are not limited to, reduced ability to eat, bathe, dress, keep house cook, shop, and do laundry.

More information about the program can be received by calling Jody Spradlin with the Big Sandy Area Development District office at 886-2374, or by calling Dale Niswonger with the Division of Aging Services in Frankfort at (502) 564-6930.

The Goodin Brothers of Lebanon Oak Flooring Co. are accustomed to standing on solid ground. That's why they've kept Blue Cross and Blue Shield since 1953.

A lumber company has stood on this site since the 1890s. Lebanon Oak Flooring Co. itself has been in business since 1919. Today, Charles and Robert Goodin still turn Kentucky Oak into nationally renowned hardwood floors. And they still keep the health insurance company they've kept for 37 years—Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Kentucky.

"We take a paternalistic outlook toward our people. We want to take care of them. We want the best."

Sure, the Goodins have talked to other insurers in the past. Some companies have offered them lower rates than Blue Cross and Blue Shield. But Lebanon Oak Flooring keeps coming back.

"You can take your Blue Cross card and go to any doctor you want, anywhere you want."

At one time, there were 13 companies producing hardwood floors in Kentucky. Today, there are only two. Lebanon Oak survived by offering the highest quality products at fair prices.

The same is true for Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Kentucky. Health companies have come and gone. But year in, year out, none have been able to match the quality, accessibility and service offered by Blue Cross and Blue Shield for over 50 years.

We're honored to have been the Lebanon Oak Flooring Company's health insurance company for 37 years. We'd be honored to work with your company for the next 37. For more information, call us or your local Blue Cross and Blue Shield representative.

We'll put you on the ground floor of Kentucky's most popular health insurance company.

Good isn't good enough anymore.
