Workers, services caught in budget fix

by Scott Perry
Times Editor

Many federal employees in the Big Sandy region don't know this week if they are coming or going but, if a resolution to a federal budget crunch isn't found by October 19, most will be going...home. With them could go many of the governmental services on which many Eastern Kentuckians depend.

At issue is federal spending under a budget for the 1990-91 fiscal year that began October 1. The federal government has been operating under emergency spending extensions since then, including a ten-day add-on approved by President George Bush at 7 a.m. Tuesday. The latest extension runs until October 19 and, if deficit reduction measures aren't approved by then, a massive shutdown of government services is likely.

On the local front, federal employees were on the job Tuesday, but many agencies remained concerned over the prospects for solving the budget dilemma. If it isn't by October 19, vital services could be curtailed.

At the Big Sandy office for Social Security, for example, employees are facing the possibility of furloughs—unpaid leaves from work—or a total shutdown of the office if the crisis isn't resolved by October 19.

"If the budget is passed," assistant district manager John Faulkner said Tuesday, "it will be business as usual. If it isn't resolved by October 19 (when the latest spending extension expires) we'll probably have to stop all services."

Faulkner said that closing of the Floyd County field office would not likely affect or interrupt benefits to Social Security recipients already enrolled in the program. But it would affect the processing of new claims and the maintenance of existing claims.

"We have 600 applications with no decisions yet," Faulkner said, "and we get about 100 new applications a week. Work on those claims would stop."

If the budget crunch forces the closing of the Floyd County office, Faulkner said a "skeleton staff" would remain at work to "answer the phone and, basically, take care of the building."

"We pay 10,000 beneficiaries a month and distribute $15 million a month in benefits," Faulkner said. "Those services won't likely be interrupted."

Housing applications for low and very low income families could also

One-way on Arnold city says

by Tim B. Preston
Staff writer

Several residents of Arnold Avenue in Prestonsburg protested a measure which would allow two-way traffic on the street at Monday night's meeting of the Prestonsburg City Council.

The two-way traffic measure, which was proposed by Councilman Jerry Fannin as a means of increasing traffic flow into the downtown business district, was voted down by council members after nearly an hour of debate and discussion on the issue.

Residents of Arnold Avenue said they felt that the motion would cause more harm than benefit to the community. Arnold Avenue resident Ruth Hall said that she felt downtown business had already been damaged by other businesses outside of the downtown area and added, "You all are trying to lock the barn door after the horses are gone."

Mayor Ann Latta and council members also expressed regret that a greater number of downtown business owners were not present to discuss the issue, noting that the city would soon be receiving $250,000 for downtown revitalization. "If we've got $250,000 to put around your place, why aren't you here?" asked Mayor Latta.

Council members also spent considerable time discussing options regarding out of state owners of buildings in the downtown area who have been uncooperative in fixing and repairing their properties.

Following the vote and discussion of the Arnold Avenue proposal, council members approved a recommendation by Prestonsburg Police Chief Greg Hall to allow the Jenny Wiley Festival parade route to begin on South Lake Drive, ending at

Motorists: Steer clear of P'burg

Prestonsburg City Police Chief Greg Hall issued a statement this week advising drivers of trucks and other through traffic that they might want to avoid Prestonsburg on Saturday afternoon due to the heavy traffic associated with the Jenny Wiley Festival parade.

City police officers will be redirecting traffic from South Lake Drive in Prestonsburg to an alternate route on Arnold Avenue and U.S. 23, however those who normally travel the path might save time by bypassing the city on Route 114 through Salyersville, according to Chief Hall. "We suggest that any trucks or anything that needs to get through town without delay use Route 114," said Hall.

The Jenny Wiley Festival Parade will begin at approximately 3:00 p.m. Saturday at Davis Street (near Music Carter Hughes car dealership) and end at the Prestonsburg High School on North Lake Drive.

Injured in chase

Prestonsburg City Police officers were involved in a high speed chase Tuesday which ended in a collision between the police cruiser and a suspect's car. Greg Johnson of Corn Fork was injured and arrested after he abruptly stopped his car in front of a city police cruiser which then crashed into the rear of his vehicle. Johnson was a suspected of firing shots at the Eagles Club in Prestonsburg. Criminal charges are expected to be filed against Johnson in connection with the incident. (Photo by Susan Allen)

Chase, crash lead to arrest

by Susan Allen

A high speed chase on a narrow side road resulted in a collision between a Prestonsburg City Police car and the car of a man police were chasing who was suspected of firing shots at the Eagles Club in Prestonsburg Tuesday afternoon.

Prestonsburg Police Chief Greg Hall and Detective Jeff Stumbo were in pursuit of Greg Johnson of Corn Fork when the accident occurred about two miles up Corn Fork. The accident sent Johnson to Highlands Regional Medical Center after he made an abrupt stop on Corn Fork with Police Chief Hall and Detective Stumbo in hot pursuit which caused the officers to strike Johnson's vehicle in the rear.

Prior to the chase, the Prestonsburg

Police Department received a call about a disturbance between two men at the Eagles Club, according to Police Chief Greg Hall. Hall arrived at the scene and talked to Johnson at the Kentucky Motel concerning the incident. Johnson said he had been having a problem at the club and told the police officers he would not return.

"About 10 minutes later we got the call about shots being fired," Hall said. Chief Hall and Detective Stumbo were enroute to the club when they saw Johnson's Red Dodge Shadow at Briarwood on South Lake Drive. The officers turned and followed Johnson, trying to get him to pull over, Hall said.

At the intersection heading toward Jenny Wiley State Park the officers turned on their sirens trying to get Johnson stop but he kept on driving, Hall said.

"He just put his arm out the window like he was waving for us to follow him," Hall said. "He was going from 60-65 miles per hour up Corn Fork."

Johnson stopped abruptly at the entrance to a gravel driveway about two miles up Corn Fork and the officer's car collided into the rear end of Johnson's vehicle.

"When we went up to the car he was laying in the front seat like he had passed out," Hall said. "When we touched him he became very violent and we had to handcuff him and put him into the back of another cruiser," Hall said.

While officers were waiting for an ambulance to arrive, Johnson, who was laying in the backseat of the other cruiser, repeatedly kicked at Welfare measure takes effect here in 1991 :

'Workfare' is set for Floyd

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A new program to help welfare recipients participate in job-training and education programs will begin in Floyd County in October 1991 as part of a state welfare reform act. JOBS, the Job Opportunities and Basic Skills Program, is a program designed to help individuals gradually get off welfare programs and find good paying jobs where they can become self-sufficient.

Recipients of assistance from Aid to Families with Dependent Children will be required to participate in the program or risk a reduction in benefits they are receiving. Participants will also be eligible for financial assistance for child care, transportation and other expenses that are viewed as an obstacle to finding employment.

Although the program for Floyd County is in the early planning stages, the basic elements will include providing training and education in order for AFDC recipients to become gainfully employed, according to Mike Robinson, commissioner for the Department of Social Insurance.

"We will attempt to attack the barriers and obstacles which prevent those on AFDC from finding jobs," Robinson said. "The program will assist participants with child care costs and continued medical benefits for 12 months in order to help them make the transition from receiving benefits and becoming employed."

Programs will be based on the individual needs of each recipient and can include vocational training as well as college classes in order to fit the needs of each person, Robinson said. The program will also help those who need literacy assistance in order to prepare them for a place in the workforce.

"It's important for the whole family to be literate," Robinson said. "That way parents can read to their children and the children can learn to value education. We hope this will break the cycle."

Robinson stressed the change will not take place overnight and it will take a lot of work on both sides to make the program successful. The program is not just aimed at getting jobs but also improving the quality of life for the individuals participating in the program, Robinson said.

Branham, Sexton address education forum :

'Rocky roads are ahead'

by Janice Shepherd
Staff Writer

"Rocky roads are ahead," Deputy Superintendent of the Kentucky Department of Education, Dan Branham, told educators and parents attending the Floyd County Education Forum's annual meeting Thursday, Oct. 4, at Allen Central High School.

Branham explained that relationships are going to be established that could not exist before House Bill 940, Kentucky's Education Reform Act, made school-based decision making a reality. When opinions are forced to change, Branham emphasized, things don't always go smoothly. "Principals may not want to give up authority; teachers will force decisions; parents will lobby teachers," he said.

Branham indicated, however, that the road to improved education will become smoother as school councils mature.

"Everyone will be focusing on performance goals. It's not so much who makes the decisions, as the results that are achieved," he said. Branham said future results will indicate a higher order of student skills, and not just the specifics.

According to Robert Sexton, director of the Prichard Committee for Academic Excellence, two systems of achievement will be used: rewards and sanctions. Rewards will be financial awards to individual schools, and certified staff, by majority rule, will determine how the funds are to be used.

Sanctions will be brought against schools whose performance levels drop 5 percent or more. These schools will be called "schools in crisis" and staff will be put on probation. "In extreme cases staff can actually be removed," Sexton said.

'Blatant disregard' charged in Floyd grand jury report

In addition to the indictments handed down last week, a Floyd County Grand Jury has accused county officials of "blatant disregard" for the maintenance of courthouse property, citing specifically the courthouse parking lot and the plumbing leaks in the circuit court clerk's office.

Grand jury members are responsible for inspecting public facilities as part of their jury duty, and they may also make observations and recommendations.

The report also commended Floyd County Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson and his office for "county-wide patrolling, responding to calls for assistance and the crusade against illegal drugs."

The report was signed by jury foreman Don Lafferty.

Making Education Work

Robert Sexton, (standing), director of the Prichard Committee for Academic Excellence, presented an overview of Kentucky's Education Reform Act of 1990 (House Bill 940) at the Floyd County Education Forum's annual meeting Thursday. Sexton told parents and educators, "We have passed it, now we have to make it work." Pictured seated on left is Dan Branham, Deputy Superintendent Kentucky Department of Education.

Rocky roads

House Bill 940 states that a school's success shall be determined by measuring a school's improvement over a two-year period. Accountability will be moved to the student level and assessments will be based on what students can do with what they learn, Sexton said.

Two pilot school councils in Floyd County, Allen Elementary and Betsy Layne High School, expressed their progress and frustrations.

Glenda Blackburn, a member of the Allen council and a teacher at the school, said the Allen council was experiencing the rocky roads, but that "positive things are going on." Blackburn said the council had eliminated all split groups but two at the school, and had established an awards program. The council has established administration, financial, public relations, and safety committees.

A new concept achieving success at Allen Elementary school is a weekly news report that helps to encourage good language and grammar skills. Students broadcast weather, sports, and school events to their classmates through video programming.

Lack of funds, not ingenuity, seemed to be the major block with Allen's council. "Finances seem to be the big thing," Blackburn said.

Betsy Layne High School's council also expressed similar frustration. The council has established a dress code, a driving policy, and a tobacco policy, but members of the council said they didn't have money to implement all their decisions.

"We want funds now," Tommy Hall told Deputy Superintendent Branham.

Branham responded, saying that Subsection 9 of House Bill 940 includes a discretionary fund for school councils. "The language is there, but no appropriations are there," Branham said, explaining the State Board will address this proposal at its November meeting.

Subsection 8 and 9 state in part: "The State Board for Elementary Education, upon recommendation of the chief state school officer, shall adopt by administrative regulation a formula by which school district funds shall be allocated to each school council. (9) There is hereby established a school council discretionary fund to be administered by the department of education and the department shall establish guidelines to be met to qualify for such funds...The amount of funds received by each participating school shall be determined on a proportionate share basis by considering each participating school's total pupil enrollment..."

Hall then asked Branham if there was any reason why the local school board could not make discretionary funds available to the councils.

"No, except the availability of funds. You're probably getting a few dollars now," Branham responded.

Floyd County Superintendent Ronald Hager expressed disappointment that the proposed utility tax increase presented before the Floyd County Board of Education at its Oct. 3 meeting failed to pass. "We lost $1.3 million in funds. Citizens need to participate, to speak up," Hager urged.

Hager added that the local board has already adopted a policy for site-based management schools. "The board is open to revision of this policy. We've made a start and we'll amend as we go."

Hager talked briefly about the preschool program for 4-year-olds which will get underway soon. The program is for children considered "at risk" of educational failure. A parent in the audience expressed concern that her tax dollars are paying to send someone else's child to school, while she also has to pay to send her 4-year-old child to a private school so he won't lag behind the "at risk" children in kindergarten.

Jean Rosenberg, chairperson of the Forum, said that it is a proven fact that "a good start with kids at risk pays off."

State Representative Russell Bentley, participating as a member of the audience, said legislators were convinced of the benefits of the preschool program. "It got down to dollars and cents. For every dollar invested in the preschool program, it generates $7 in returns (in savings of future welfare and prison system funds)," Bentley explained.

Teachers in the audience expressed concern about training for the site-based management program. "First request, first served," Deputy Superintendent Branham stated, explaining his department has about six people qualified to train. Those interested in scheduling training, should call Jack Gray at 564-4770, according to Branham.

Judy Marshall, a teacher at Clark Elementary, asked Branham what timeline would be set up if teachers voted for site-based management to be implemented in their school. Branham said the school's council could pace itself.

Tim Jessen, a member of the Education Forum, said he was distressed at the legislature's elimination from House Bill 940 of the county wide election of school board members, leaving the election to districts. "The board race is going back to the old ways," Jessen said. "Candidates are saying, 'I'm getting schools for my district.'" Jessen said candidates were focusing exclusively on buildings and not on the key issue, which is "what kind of education our children are getting."

"How can we change this perception. Without change, reform won't happen here," he contended.

Rep. Bentley answered, saying there were many pros and cons to the issue. "This is not a perfect system, but we can work through it." Bentley, turning to Jessen, said "each board member has only one vote."

Prichard Committee Director Robert Sexton also responded, stating, "You (Jessen) raised the challenge to priorities. As you described it, the (candidates) priorities sounded wrong." Sexton emphasized that fighting over these issues at this time, however, would be counterproductive.

"There are things in this law that can deal with the way we elect board members," Sexton said, adding that the KEA is filing legal action and he expects his group to file countersuit.

"Over time, the reform act will bring focus on the right questions," Sexton concluded.

the rear window. Officers, along with Johnson's wife and sister, tried to calm him down.

Johnson was arrested and charged with two counts of assault in the fourth degree on a police officer, DUI, attempting to elude, improper passing, resisting arrest and speeding. Additional criminal charges are expected to be filed. Johnson was transported to HRMC and his condition was not known at presstime.

Kentucky State Police Trooper Eddie Crum investigated the accident and the Floyd County Sheriff's Department was also at the scene.

The Prestonsburg Police Department released its monthly activities report this week.

In September, officers investigated 478 complaints, issued 234 citations, completed 163 arrests, opened six criminal case investigations, closed three criminal cases, performed 24 accident investigations and performed 301 security checks.

those receiving AFDC if they have children at home under age three; those who work more than 30 hours a week; or persons staying at home to care for an elderly or disabled persons. But, persons in those categories can volunteer for the program.

As of Monday, the department had conducted over 500 interviews in the 18 counties the JOBS program will affect and had many other interviews which had to be rescheduled, Robinson said.

Though jobs are scarce in Eastern Kentucky, the department is proceeding with the program on the notion those participants will be trained and prepared for jobs when they become available in the area and the prospect of a well-trained workforce would be a selling point when trying to attract industry to the area.

"It's kind of like the chicken and the egg scenario: do you wait until the jobs are here before you train the people or do you have a trained workforce first and then the jobs will come into the area?" Robinson asked.

The training will also help those persons be better prepared to find employment outside the area if they decide to move.

"That way persons won't feel trapped in a situation," Robinson. "If they decide to move somewhere else in the state or out of state, at least they will have the skills and training to find a good job. That's part of improving the quality of life."

The program became effective in 18 counties on October 1, and will begin in Magoffin County on January 1.

The program began with the Family Support Act of 1988, a bill by Congress to help low income families get jobs and support their families and to get out of the welfare cycle.

be threatened by the continuing budget dilemma. Those applications are administered through the Prestonsburg office of the Farmers Home Administration and loans in process could be halted if offices are closed.

"We're behind already in processing," Floyd County FmHA supervisor Kevin Antle said Tuesday. "It's all up in the air at this point."

Antle said employees in his office received notice about a month ago that furloughs were possible, but those leaves have been stalled by renewal of federal emergency spending agreements.

The federal budget crisis will have no impact on recipients of federal assistance including food stamps, Medicaid or WIC and AFDC entitlements. Those programs are administered through the state, Cabinet for Human Resources spokesman Brad Hughes said Tuesday. Only a total shutdown of the government would affect those programs, Hughes said.

Recreational activities in the Big Sandy region could come to an early halt, however, as a result of the funding crisis. Facilities like Dewy Lake and Paintsville Lake, which are operated by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, will be impacted if budget woes aren't resolved by October 19.

"Essentially, if the budget problems aren't resolved, 98 percent of the Corps staff will go on furlough," Big Sandy Area office director Arlie Bishop said Tuesday. "Flood control and river management services would continue with a maximum of two people at each facility," he added, "but all recreation areas would close."

Among the recreational facilities threatened is the Dewy Lake downstream recreation area, which Bishop noted was the most-used recreational facility in the Huntington Corps district.

Bishop added that portions of area lakes managed under the Kentucky State Parks System would likely be unaffected by the federal funding problems.

According to a revised five-year deficit-reduction plan adopted Monday by the U.S. House of Representatives, proposed spending cuts include $40 billion trimmed from Medicare and $13.5 billion from agriculture. The proposal also calls for unspecified tax increases on cigarettes and alcoholic beverages; reduces capital gains taxes from 28 percent to 20 percent and raises the top rate on personal income taxes to 32 percent.

The proposal would reduce the federal deficit by $500 billion over a five-year period.

Workshops in clay October 19, 20

Ceramic artists and craftspeople can learn more about the physical properties of clay and explore aesthetic considerations of the medium at "Workshops in Clay" on Friday, Oct. 19 and Saturday, Oct. 20 in the Fine Arts Building at Northern Kentucky University in Highland Heights, Ky. The two-day event is the final workshop in the 1990 series sponsored by the Kentucky Art and Craft Foundation, the Kentucky Guild for Artists and Craftsmen and the Kentucky Craft Marketing Program.

Ceramic artists Paula Winokur, of Horsham, Pa., and Byron Temple, of New Albany, Ind., will speak on Friday and Saturday, respectively.

Paula Winokur studied at the Tyler School of Art, Temple University and the State University of New York at Alfred. Winokur combines her aesthetic appreciation in clay with architectural forms that include large scale pieces such as mantels and shelves. Her work has been exhibited extensively since 1962, and she has presented workshops and demonstrations at various educational institutions and art schools around the country.

Byron Temple is a production potter and native of Indiana. He attended Ball State University and the Brooklyn Museum of Art before undertaking a coveted apprenticeship at the Leach Pottery in St. Ives, England. Temple's vessels are practical but are designed to give importance to their purpose. Temple has received numerous awards and fellowships which include a fellowship from the National Endowment for the Arts; his work is in numerous permanent collections in museum and galleries throughout the world.

Space is limited for the workshops and registration is required. The fee for the workshop is $45 for Kentucky residents. To make reservations or for further information, contact the Kentucky Art and Craft Foundation, 609 W. Main Street, Louisville, Ky., 40202, or call (502)589-0102. Deadline for registration is October 15.

Census recount requested

by Tim B. Preston
Staff writer

Contesting preliminary population figures gathered by the U.S. Census Bureau, leaders of several Eastern Kentucky cities and counties have requested recounts of their area's population. Fourteen counties and 78 cities in Kentucky, including Floyd County and Prestonsburg, have requested official recounts of persons in the area.

According to the preliminary figures, Floyd County lost nearly 11 percent of its population since the last official count in 1980. Figures from a decade ago indicate 48,764 persons residing in the area, as opposed to preliminary 1990 figures which indicate only 43,445 residents.

Floyd County Judge Executive John M. Stumbo said that he felt the census workers missed several areas of the county, saying that he had spoken to several families which were missed by the census. "We just think that it was under (preliminary census population totals) and we'd just like to find out," said Stumbo.

The city of Prestonsburg also showed a significant loss of population over the ten-year period. 1980 figures indicated 4,011 persons living in the city, while 1990 preliminary figures showed 3,545 residents.

Prestonsburg Mayor Ann Latta said that she was unaware of what areas of the city may have been missed by census workers and added that she was surprised by the preliminary population total for the city. "I didn't feel like we had lost any (residents)," said Mayor Latta.

One aspect of the census which will affect all Kentuckians is that Kentucky may lose one seat in the United States House of Representatives unless census workers find an additional three to four thousand residents in the state. According to a spokesperson for the Kentucky Legislative Research Commission, the governor of the state would be required to call a special session of the state General Assembly in order to realign voting districts to compensate for the loss of a house seat.

Census figures also determine to what extent federal funding is appropriated to the state level and communities therein.

Census workers expect to complete the recount process by late November, with the final count going to President Bush no later than December 31. Final results will be released to the public in April 1991.

Prestonsburg High School.

Mayor Latta announced that the city of Prestonsburg had retained a Gold Award from Kentucky Chamber of Commerce Certified Cities Program and read a letter of commendation for the Prestonsburg Fire Department's dive team from the Kentucky State Police. Dive team members Kenny Crisp, Mike Mays, Danny Stumbo, Mike Rose, Billy Chafins, Will Burke and Bill Callihan recently assisted State Police in efforts to recover a handgun from the Levisa Fork of the Big Sandy River.

Council members approved a motion to spend $3,345 for drain work near Howard Street. Members discussed drainage options for the area, which has been plagued by low level flooding during periods of heavy rainfall.

Before adjourning to executive session, councilman Mike Vance said that Goble Roberts residents had been complaining of a large stray dog population in that area and asked what measures could be taken to curb the problem. Council members were informed that representatives of the Floyd County Animal Shelter had been charged with responsibility for collecting stray animals, but had reportedly refused to go out and collect the strays. Members passed a motion to request a meeting with animal shelter representatives to discuss the problem.

Members adjourned to executive session in order to discuss personnel, property and litigation.

Mayor Latta said no action was taken after the executive session.

The next meeting of the Prestonsburg City Council will be Monday, October 22, 7 p.m. at the Prestonsburg Municipal Building.

Coffee Break

by Scott Perry

This is National Newspaper Week.

We who live in the land of the free tend to take for granted the role newspapers play in protecting our precious liberties, but our brothers in many foreign lands are just beginning to adopt the principle that where the press is free, society is free.

At last count at least 87 countries on this small planet were employing or testing the advantages of an unrestrained, unrestricted press. In many cases, just like our own more than two centuries ago, the price for such liberty has been paid in blood.

Such sacrifice must never be forgotten.

This week is National Newspaper Week, but we do not celebrate the occasion for ourselves. This week we honor those who paid so dearly for the rights we exercise today.

If anyone is interested in learning what it's like when the federal government goes on furlough, try working in the newspaper business.

Since we rely so heavily on the U.S. Postal Service for incoming mail like news releases, advertisements, etc., and outgoing mail for the delivery of our finished products, a shut-down hits us pretty hard.

Take Monday holidays, for example.

When the mail doesn't run on Monday, we run double-time on Tuesday.

We don't begrudge government employees a day off, but how about making Friday the official holiday day.

Then maybe we could take the holiday off, too.

The Floyd County Board of Education made the right decision last week when it reversed an earlier move to enact a three-percent utility tax.

Utility taxes, because they affect those who are least able to pay along with those who can afford the extra costs, are the least attractive of any revenue enhancing measure.

Utilities aren't luxuries, they're necessities and many people don't have the luxury of being able to afford their needs now. People also don't have the luxury of choosing which utility will provide their service on a basis of competitive pricing or rates.

If you want gas or electricity service, you pay the price you are charged, period.

Paying for education is one thing, paying to survive is another.

We applaud the board's decision to nix the utility tax.

There must be a better way.

Experts have concluded that Eastern Kentucky's population is on the decline because people can't find jobs in the area.

Geez. Is that a profound discovery, or what?

Since the early 1900s, people from this area have been arguing that we need to diversify from the coal industry if our area is to have any economic future. The future is here, but economic diversification isn't.

There is, however, a light at the end of the tunnel.

Population counts from the 1990 census indicate that Eastern Kentucky counties bordering interstate highways are, in fact, growing and prospering.

What we need to do, then, is build an interstate through each county.

It would sure be a long and winding road, but more people would have access to the region's chief industry...yard sales.

Give us your tired, your poor and your huddled masses...the wretched refuse of your teeming shore...we lift our lamp beside the golden triangle, er, door....

Freedom rings.

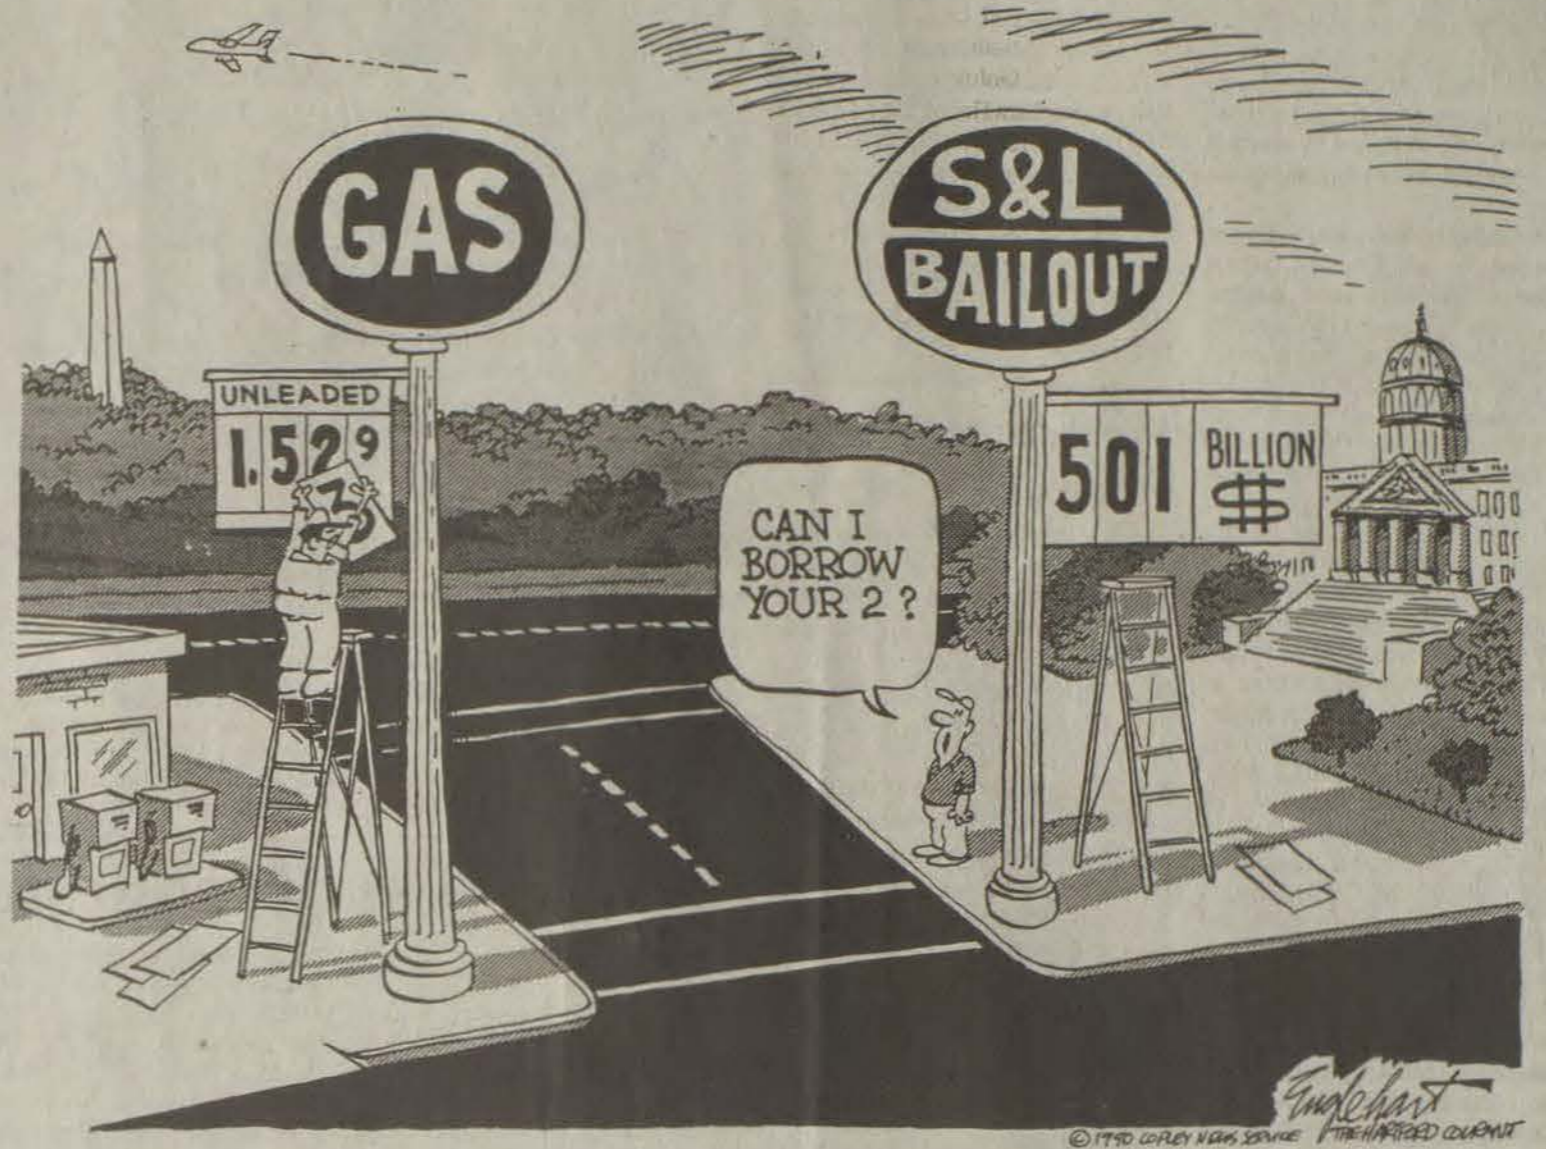

Sometimes it belches.

A Cincinnati museum director was acquitted last week of obscenity charges after showing a photo exhibit of Robert Mapplethorpe's work.

While many of us would find Mapplethorpe's idea of "art" disgusting, it was not his work on trial last week. It was principle. The same freedom that allowed Mapplethorpe's exhibit, allows us the choice not to view it. The same freedom that allows groups like the Ku Klux Klan the opportunity to spout their racist ignorance, gives us the choice to ignore them.

Freedom...it's a mixture of the good, the bad and the ugly.

But you can't mine gold without occasionally getting your hands dirty.

Letters

Deanna Bradley Shimizer is stationed with her husband in Turkey. She has written to her friends and family here in Floyd County to express her views on the recent developments in Iraq. The following is the text of her letter.

Dear Readers of the Floyd County Times:

I am an American citizen and, I am very proud to say, originally from Prestonsburg, Ky.

I attended Prestonsburg High School. After I graduated in 1988 I joined the United States Air Force and became a Security Police Law Enforcement Specialist. I met my husband, Lee, at the first base where I was assigned.

A year after our marriage, Lee received orders to transfer to Izmir Air Station, Turkey. So we packed up our belongings and Lee, our new-born son, Trenton, and I were off to Turkey, little knowing that we were going to a country that would soon face the possibility of war.

With my family and I living in a country that seems to share the international "limelight," I thought the folks in Floyd County would like to have a "behind the scenes" commentary from the "front line."

Turkey and Egypt, as you all know, have stated that they have lost a great deal of money due to the Persian Gulf Crisis. Turkey has said that agreeing with the United Nations' position on the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait has ruined their relations with Iraq. Furthermore, Turkey thinks that the U.S. should reimburse them for their losses. I found this infuriating, especially when the U.S. agreed to raise millions of dollars to give Turkey.

It is beyond my understanding why our government has decided to help Turkey, seeing as Turkey does not currently have any of their troops assisting in the Persian Gulf Crisis and have only stated that they may send a ship down to the Gulf to represent Turkey's agreement with the United Nations policy, not to fight in the case of war.

On top of all of this, in the past the U.S. has given American warships and an air base to the Turkish military here in Izmir, without asking for payment. The Air Force pays millions of dollars a year to the Turkish government just to have the air station located in Izmir. This does not begin to count the cost of renting buildings for all of the military operations here. Yet, Turkey has said that the U.S. can use Turkish bases to land our jets only if Iraq attacks Turkey, and not before. Well, this is a "good deal!" — sarcastically speaking, of course.

But, of course, this is not the first time something like this has happened to the United States, and I am sure it will not be the last. I guess this is why Americans have to pay more taxes every year — to pay other country's bills.

Turkey is also on alert as a high terrorist threat right now. Because the Moslems say they do not want American troops on their "holy land," they have threatened to strike American places of business, such as Seven Eleven stores and McDonalds. To my knowledge, none of these have been hit — so far.

Well, putting the politics away, I think of an article I recently read in our local military paper, the Stars and Stripes. The article was about the 101st Airborne Division from Ft. Campbell, Ky. I must say, I got a bit excited when I stumbled across Prestonsburg, Ky. in the article.

It seems that, in a sense, I am a bit closer to Operation Desert Shield than I thought. Eddie Watkins, from Prestonsburg, is a .50 caliber serial defense gunner in Saudi Arabia. I went through a few years with Eddie.

It seems strange to have someone you know on the front line of a possible war zone. If Eddie's parents happen to read this article, I want to say that we are praying for Eddie's — as well as the rest of the troop's — safety in Saudi Arabia.

Our tour is two years long. Afterwards my husband will have one year left in the Air Force. We hope to receive orders to the air force base closest to Prestonsburg — Wright-Patterson A.F.B., Ohio.

After Lee's time with the military is finished, my husband and I hope to find a job as civilian police officers and a place to live — as far away from war as possible.

Yet, at the same time, I hope to be as close to the most peaceful and warmest place on earth I know — my home, Prestonsburg, Ky.

Deanna Bradley Shimizer
Izmir Air Station, Turkey

Dear Editor:

On behalf of our service men in Saudi Arabia, I want to thank all the people who sent bottled water, Gatorade, chips, pretzels, crackers, books, bibles, etc. to WQHY FM and WDOC AM. I was both amazed and truly touched in my heart by the response we received. From second graders collecting door-to-door to churches, colleges, and individuals bringing van loads.

I was especially appreciative of a very wonderful woman from Martin, Grace Flanery. She called me with her donation, then sent me a check and said to buy items to send. Many churches also took up collections for the servicemen. People like you make us all realize that individuals can make a difference.

I would also like to thank the Floyd County Times for the excellent publicity they gave this effort and Overnight Transportation Company for delivering the items to Fort Campbell, Ky. Our shipment totaled over three hundred pounds of food items and eight hundred gallons of bottled water and Gatorade.

We at WQHY FM and WDOC AM are glad to be a part of such a worthy cause.

Gormon Collins, Jr.
General Manager
WQHY FM/WDOC AM

Dear Editor:

Hello, my name is Corporal Ronnie Parsons and I am presently deployed to Saudi Arabia with the 1st Battalion, 6th Marines. Although we get very little news out here from back in the States, I have found out through my wife's letters about all the support from the people of Floyd County.

Being raised in Floyd County and living there until I was old enough to join the Marines in 1984, I have seen how the people of Floyd County can unite to show their support in situations like this. We Marines from the 1st Battalion, 6th Marines Combat Operations Section (S-3) would like to say "THANKS FLOYD COUNTY." Your support for us has not gone unnoticed.

We pray for peace, but if we have to fight, your support is what feeds our determination. Marine Corps training gives us the confidence to press forward in battle and, with God watching over us, we shall not let the people of the United States down.

I would like to say "Hello" to my wife, Alicia Parsons, and our daughter, Brandy, who are now living in Prestonsburg waiting for my return home. Also, "Hello" to my parents Barbara and Abel Parsons, my sister, Jennie, and my wife's parents, Polly and Clayton Smith.

Dear Editor:

In less than four months the Prestonsburg and Floyd County community has lost two religious leaders whose presence and counsel will be sorely missed in days to come. Both Dr. Quentin Scholtz and the Rev. Steve Hopkins have left our community to serve elsewhere. The two churches they served (First Methodist and First Baptist) are the two main "downtown" churches which serve as gathering places for community and church affairs throughout the year. So, the loss is great to the area as well as to the congregations.

But Steve and Quentin provided something more than leadership for their flocks — they attempted to address community and county needs. Those of us in the Ministerial Association with them did not always see eye to eye on every issue — at times we were in fact, divided, causing great personal distress and anguish. But, in spite of those differences, we maintained a high level of moral discourse on the issues before us and our community, and we maintained profound respect for each other and the other's position — something demanded in interfaith or interdenominational work. We wish that all questions of public policy and debate could be argued in that atmosphere of respect and honesty.

Steven and Quentin were instrumental along with other pastors in forming the cooperative Christian Ministries of Floyd County (CCM) — a low-key, cooperative effort of many churches that helps the needy, the hungry, and the poor. Too few know about the breadth of this ministry, and many who receive assistance are unaware that the churches make it possible.

These two pastors provided what any community expects from its religious leadership — provoking thought and direction about moral issues, a spirit of cooperation when cooperation was essential and, most of all, leadership which church members and other community members can follow.

We all moved to Prestonsburg in the decade of the eighties, and all of us were in our thirties for part of that time. Thankfully, this community took seriously St. Paul's advice to Timothy: "Let no one despise your youth." Thus providing a context for these young ministers to grow and flourish. We in Floyd County (including myself) will miss their leadership more than we now realize.

Dr. Timothy Jessen
Past President
Floyd County Ministerial Association

Annual Governor's conference focuses on environmental mileposts

How do we measure progress in protecting our environment?

This question and many more similar to it will be discussed at length during the 15th Annual Governor's Conference on the Environment, October 24 through 26, at the Capital Plaza Hotel in Frankfort. This year's theme, "Environmental Mileposts: Where is Kentucky Headed?" was selected to look at the changes that have occurred in environmental programs over the last 15 years and where Kentucky programs may be going in the next 15 years.

Moderated by members of the Kentucky Environmental Quality Commission, the conference will present a State of the Environment report to the legislature in 1991. This report will establish goals to enable the State of Kentucky to meet environmental needs in waste, air, water, surface mining, land resources and energy.

A series of concurrent panels will explore topics important to the environment. Among the subjects to be examined are community recycling efforts, groundwater concerns, energy impacts on the environment, urban forestry, clean air programs and environmental efforts by industry.

Preregistration for the conference is $55, if postmarked by Friday, Oct. 5. Registration at the conference is $65. The registration fee includes tickets to the environmental awards banquet, buffet lunch and reception and all of the costs incidental to the conference.

An exhibit area will be set up during the conference. These displays will inform participants about environmental programs and activities in other areas of the state. Booth space is available for $75.

Hotel accommodations should be made directly with the hotel by calling (800)372-2929. Special room rates are available by mentioning the conference and making reservation prior to October 10.

The conference is coordinated annually by the Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet.

SCHOOL BOARD MEMBER DISTRICT #1

On October 1, 1990 I spoke of the need of improved morale in the Floyd County School System. I still feel that morale is a chief ingredient for improving our schools. This can be accomplished by involving the communities with the teachers and students. All working together for the common benefit of our children. We need organized PTA groups, volunteer groups to serve as teacher aides, and open meetings to discuss the additional needs and suggestions for our schools. It is a proven fact that by this means schools have been improved very dramatically. We must be involved and need to be involved to make a difference. We have been given a wonderful opportunity to change our schools and make this the best system in the nation. More tax money and buildings alone will not make the difference, only you can make that difference. By meeting together we will be able to discuss such things as:

- 1—Bus schedules and the need for more busses or different routing.
- 2—Your child's class schedule and what their classes will be. How much time they will have in actual classroom studies.
- 3—Facility needs and improvements.
- 4—Budgets and available programs for students.
- 5—Test scores and how we can improve.

At a time when the Owsley County Board of Education has received a $150,000 federal grant to finance a program that encourages parents to get involved in their local schools ask yourself how much you have been encouraged and how you have been treated when you tried. Recently the vice-president of the United States said, "Schools must dismantle a Berlin wall of rules that allow them to operate like a communist, state-run monopoly." It's time for us to make a change in the Floyd County School System.

Hall innocent of arson charge

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Floyd County Circuit Court Judge Hollie Conley issued a directed verdict of not guilty to a 33 year-old Floyd County man charged with second degree arson.

Gary Lynn Hall, 33, of Stumbo Hollow, was indicted on the arson charge for allegedly burning a car owned by him and his wife on August 8, 1988, in order to collect the insurance money. He was indicted last November by a Floyd County Grand Jury.

According to testimony, Hall's wife, Jo, was driving the car across Sizemore Mountain, near Wayland, to a garage in Minnie to have the car repaired and Hall followed. The car caught fire on the Minnie side of the mountain.

Hall took the stand in his own defense and testified the car was burning and his wife was hanging out of the car when he came upon it.

"It was on fire when I got there and my wife was hanging out of it," Hall said. "My only concern was getting my wife to the hospital because she was hurt."

The car had died and Mrs. Hall had steered it to a wide place beside the road and apparently the car struck something on the shoulder which caused Mrs. Hall to be thrown forward injuring her hand, chest and back, Hall said. Hall then placed his wife in his car to take her back across Sizemore and on to Our Lady of the Way Hospital in Martin.

While driving back through Wayland, Hall stopped and told Wayland Police Chief Mack Stewart and Kentucky State Police Detective Wendell Scott, who was in the car with Stewart, about the burning car and told the officers his wife had been injured. Hall then proceeded on to Martin.

Hall said smoke was coming from the air vents inside the car when he removed his wife from the vehicle.

Stewart and Scott went to the scene, found the car fully engulfed in flames and called the Wayland Fire Department, according to testimony by Detective Scott.

Kentucky State Police Trooper Les Stapleton was called to investigate the accident since an injury had been reported. Stapleton testified he saw no physical damage to the car to indicate it had been involved in an accident. He said he turned the investigation over to Arson Investigator Barry McKenzie.

McKenzie testified the burned car did not display the usual characteristics of a fire which started near the motor and that traces of gasoline were found in the floorboard on the passenger side of the car. McKenzie said the fire had started inside the vehicle.

Randall Smith, 25, of Eastern, testified Mrs. Hall had bought a gallon of gas at Rogers Service Station in Eastern near the time of the incident. He testified she also purchased a rag to plug the container of gas because it did not have a lid.

Hall said his wife had spilled gasoline in the car two to three weeks earlier.

Roger Tackett, a Martin dentist, testified the car had caught fire in his office parking lot on July 11, 1988.

Judge Conley informed the jury he felt not enough evidence had been presented by the Commonwealth to place Hall in the car at the time of the fire. He then issued the directed verdict of acquittal.

Special Prosecutor Rick Bartley of Pike County presented the case on behalf of the Commonwealth and Attorney Gerald DeRossett represented Hall.

In another criminal case last Wednesday, two men were found guilty of theft by unlawful taking charges and one man was acquitted.

Jimmy Craft of West Prestonsburg and Eddie Craft of Prestonsburg were found guilty of taking aluminum rails belonging to Bush and Burchett Inc. of Allen.

William Doug Nelson of Prestonsburg was found not guilty on the theft charges. The three were indicted last September by the grand jury.

The two Craft men were fined $100 each on the theft charge.

Emergency room open house provided a view of Highlands beehive

The Emergency Room at Highlands Regional Medical Center is a busy place. Each month, 1700 to 1800 patients receive medical treatment at this facility. Last year alone, over 18,000 area residents benefited from the services offered through its emergency room. Since the emergency room is such a beehive of activity, Highlands recently took the opportunity to host an Open House to honor its staff and to show the quality of care it is providing to area residents.

Recently, employees of the admissions and nursing departments of HRMC guided visitors through the emergency room, which was completely renovated five years ago to further serve the needs of patients needing immediate medical attention.

Drema Osborne, director of nursing at Highlands since 1979, is responsible for scheduling the nine full-time RN's who staff the ER in twelve hour shifts. These RN's then work under the direct supervision of a physician who remains in the ER for a 24 hour period. "Along with the physician, two RN's and a clerk are always on duty," Ms. Osborne remarked.

The emergency room also employs a physician's assistant on Thursdays through Sundays to provide additional care that reaches beyond the normal duties of the RN such as obtaining medical histories and the suturing of minor wounds.

Ilene Stewart, director of admissions, was one of the many volunteers who escorted visitors through the emergency room, carefully explaining the various procedures and services offered. "I love showing people that HRMC really cares about its patients," Ms. Stewart stated. "You get a satisfied feeling knowing you are helping others." Mrs. Stewart also said that the emergency room and admissions are in close proximity to one another, and though separate departments, they work closely together.

As soon as visitors entered the emergency room, they were aware of being in a hospital within a hospital. The large wing is equipped with five acute care beds, an obstetrics room, a cardiac room, a vital signs station, a fracture room and a holding room; each equipped and designed to manage most medical emergencies. There is also a doctors' lounge.

Located directly to the rear of the emergency room is an ambulance entrance which provides hospital personnel rapid access to incoming patients. A heliport which permits emergency air evacuation to larger hospitals when additional medical attention is required is also available.

Kentucky apple crop sweet; but supplies short

Kentucky's apple crop is sweet this year, even if it is in shorter-than-usual supply.

"Cold weather in late spring caused many buds to freeze and drop, without making an apple," said Jerry Brown, Extension horticulturist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

"However, those that developed are producing apples of superb quality," he said from the UK's Research and Education Center in Princeton.

Bill Jackson, a grower near Bowling Green, estimates that his crop this year will be about a third of his normal production, due largely to the cold weather.

Even though the size of the harvest will be less this year, Brown said the quality of the fruit will be exceptional.

"The factors that makes apples flavorful will be in abundant supply in every apple picked in Kentucky this year," he said.

Harvest dates vary widely from northeast to southwest Kentucky because of differences in temperatures and environment, Brown said. However, generally harvest is beginning now for Jonathan, gala and early delicious varieties and will conclude in early October when winesap and Rome apples reach their peak.

He advises consumers to watch carefully for the harvest dates at orchard near them and be ready to pick when the apples are ready.

TO THE VOTERS OF EDUCATIONAL DIVISION NO. 1

After the construction of the new Prestonsburg High School for the children of the North end of the county, the Prestonsburg Field House will be renovated. The Football Complex will be totally controlled by the Prestonsburg High School Program. The new high school will also have a total Athletic Complex.

The present Central Office Administrative Building will be vacated and the offices will be relocated at the "old" existing Prestonsburg High School. This will make it possible to provide space for a teacher resource center, continuing educational programs, an adult education center, student tutorial programs, a youth center, and additional space for community programs and classes in cooperation with the Prestonsburg Community College.

The future of the present School District's Administrative Building is yet to be determined simply because of the numerous opportunities it could be used for by the youth, middle age, and senior citizens of the North end of the county. The taxpayers own it and can determine it's use.

SIDS awareness week in KY

Jane Bond
Health Educator

Across Kentucky every year, nearly 100 families lose babies to Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS). Counselors say that these families need special attention during the tragedy surrounding a SIDS death.

SIDS, also called crib death, is the sudden and unexpected death of a seemingly well infant whose death remains unexplained even after an autopsy. Gov. Wallace G. Wilkinson has proclaimed Oct. 14-20 as "Sudden Infant Death Syndrome Awareness Week" in Kentucky.

Jane Bond Health Educator of the Floyd County Health Department says that the nature of SIDS deaths combined with the natural grieving process calls for special help for families.

"When a baby dies of SIDS, the parents grief is always complicated by undeserved feelings of guilt," she said. "They ask themselves what they could have done differently to prevent the death or what they did to cause the death."

The fact is that SIDS deaths cannot be prevented. So when parents are searching for answers, it's important that they have factual information that will explain SIDS to them."

Families in Kentucky can find that information from a network of SIDS counselors in health departments throughout the state.

"When we learn of a SIDS death, a counselor calls the parents and offers to talk with them," said Bond. "If they're interested, the counselor meets with them and tries to answer their questions."

"Although we can't answer the one question that they most want an answer for—"Why?"—we can give them factual, medical information that reinforces that the family is not to blame."

Counselors also talk with other children in the family. "Sometimes older children have a hard time understanding what has happened," Bond said. "And parents are going through such a rough time that it is hard for them to deal with the other children.

"It sometimes helps for the counselor to speak with the brothers and sisters—especially to address any fears of guilt they may be feeling."

SIDS counselors can be reached by calling the Floyd County Health Department at 886-2788. Kentuckians may also contact Ida Lyons, state SIDS coordinator, Department for Health Services, 275 East Main St., Frankfort, Ky. 40621.

KFTC sponsors recycling day

The Floyd County Chapter of Kentuckians For The Commonwealth will sponsor another Recycling Day on Saturday, Oct. 13, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Area residents should bring their recyclables—aluminum cans, newspaper, glass (rinsed and without lids), plastic milk jugs (rinsed and without lids) and two-liter bottles (rinsed and without lids)—to the Bruce Walters trailer-truck along the Mountain Parkway, just past the Glynn View Plaza.

Bruce Walters Ford Sales of Pikeville has donated the use of the tractor-trailer for the recycling program and Elkhorn Coal Company has made arrangements for the recyclables to be transported to Lexington. All proceeds from the recyclables will be used to promote more recycling in the area.

Coordinator hired by child care coalition

Eastern Kentucky Child Care Coalition has announced the election of officers and the hiring of a staff coordinator.

The following officers were elected by the coalition board of directors. Chairperson June Widman will also serve as assistant director for Human Development for the Christian Appalachian Project. Vice-chairperson Denise Wainscott will serve as special assistant to the director of Kentucky Communities Economic Opportunities Council. Treasurer Miriam Ellard will be the coordinator of the Head Corporation's Community Loan Fund. Secretary Judy Martin will coordinate Appalachian Communities for Children. Employed to coordinate the coalition's program is Don Manning-Miller, who is relocating to Kentucky following a career as a special projects manager for the Knoxville, Tennessee, Private Industry Council.

The Eastern Kentucky Child Care Coalition is a membership organization representing individuals and community organizations across Eastern Kentucky who are actively working on child care issues and who are concerned with increasing the availability of high quality, affordable child care in the region. The coalition assists in the establishment of community-based, developmental child care centers and family day care homes; provides resource information, training and technical assistance; and advocates improved child care for communities in the eastern part of the state.

June Widman supervises six child development centers operated by the Christian Appalachian Project and is active in the Kentucky Council for Child Development and the Kentucky Association for Children Under Six.

Denise Wainscott works with KCEOC which is the community action agency for Knox County. She also operates Head Start child development programs in a number of Southeastern Kentucky communities.

Miriam Ellard of the Head Corporation Community Loan Fund has helped finance child care business in the region. Ellard hopes to assist local groups and individuals who operate or want to operate such businesses improve their business planning and operations and secure financing.

Judy Martin, who oversees the ACC community education and related programs, is interested in linking quality child care programs with the needs of parents who are attending self-improvement education and employment training programs, or who are already working and in need of reliable care for their children.

In serving on the coalition staff, Don Manning-Miller brings a background of experience in child care, community economic development, training, and community organization. He was involved in the development and funding of the earliest Head Start programs in Mississippi. He was also director of program operations for one of the largest Head Starts in the country. Manning-Miller has operated Title XX centers and served widely as a consultant to community based organizations.

This week is Fire Prevention Week, October 7 - 13. We wanted to make everyone aware of the importance of a fire escape plan for the home. We have outlined a sample plan and encourage the readers to design their own home fire escape plan.

Fire authorities agree that hundreds of lives could be saved each year if only people knew in advance how they could get out of their homes in the heavy smoke and confusion that frequently accompany a fire. Unfortunately, not everyone has the instinct to run from a burning home. Children often panic and hide in closets or under beds.

Knowing what to do in case a fire does break out may mean the difference between life and death. The answer is an escape plan that is known and understood by every member of the family. The escape plan should be a family project. Each family member should be thoroughly familiar with every step of the plan. Very young children and elderly persons should receive careful consideration when mapping out your plan. Both of these groups need special help in escaping a home fire.

The first thing to do when preparing your plan is to draw a floor plan of your home. Mark an escape route and an alternate route from each room. Pay particular attention to the bedrooms since nighttime fires are usually the most serious. Since it is impossible to get out through a high window or to open a door that is painted shut or blocked by a heavy item of furniture, invest in a rope or folding ladder.

Always make sure that doors can be opened and are easily accessible. Explain to each member of the family how to break window glass with a chair or heavy object and how to clear away pieces of glass remaining in the frame with a shoe or similar object.

Come to an agreement on a way in which any member of the family can sound an alarm, pound on the wall, yell, use a whistle, or any method that will awaken those who are asleep. Time should not be wasted getting dressed or collecting prized possessions. Speed is of utmost importance in escaping fire.

Every family member should know how to test a door. If either the panels or knob are warm, the door must be kept closed and the alternate escape route used. If not, the foot and hip should be braced against the door and the door opened cautiously to prevent superheated air from blowing it open. If no hot air or smoke enters, it is probably safe to pass through.

If it is necessary to stay in the room, stay near a slightly open window. Place towels or clothes in the door cracks. To reach the other side of a smoke-filled room, crawl with your head about 18 inches above the floor. Hang a sheet outside the window to signal for help.

Plan ahead on an outside meeting place where everyone can assemble. Once you have made your escape, never go back inside!

Once your plan is developed, hold a practice drill and then repeat the drills periodically. If problems develop in the escape plan, they can be worked out during the practice drills. These drills are well worth the effort to know that you and your family have a better than average chance of surviving a home fire.

AAA guide helps save gas, money

To help car owners rediscover easy ways to save gasoline and money AAA is releasing a new version of its "Gas Watcher's Guide," available free to motorists.

The guide lists simple tips for motorists to save at least 20 percent of their current individual fuel use, which AAA says could collectively mean a savings of hundreds of thousands of barrels of oil daily.

"While oil supplies are adequate to meet present needs, smart car owners will become gas watchers—both to soften the impact of recent price hikes and to extend vital natural resources," said Kathy Gross of AAA.

Along with tips on good driving techniques and proper car maintenance, the 1990 "Gas Watcher's Guide" pamphlet offers advice on buying gasoline, gas-saving features to look for in new cars and even how to organize car pools.

The Goodin Brothers of Lebanon Oak Flooring Co. are accustomed to standing on solid ground. That's why they've kept Blue Cross and Blue Shield since 1953.

A lumber company has stood on this site since the 1890s. Lebanon Oak Flooring Co. itself has been in business since 1919. Today, Charles and Robert Goodin still turn Kentucky Oak into nationally renowned hardwood floors. And they still keep the health insurance company they've kept for 37 years—Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Kentucky.

"We take a paternalistic outlook toward our people. We want to take care of them. We want the best."

Sure, the Goodins have talked to other insurers in the past. Some companies have offered them lower rates than Blue Cross and Blue Shield. But Lebanon Oak Flooring keeps coming back.

"You can take your Blue Cross card and go to any doctor you want, anywhere you want."

At one time, there were 13 companies producing hardwood floors in Kentucky. Today, there are only two. Lebanon Oak survived by offering the highest quality products at fair prices.

The same is true for Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Kentucky. Health companies have come and gone. But year in, year out, none have been able to match the quality, accessibility and service offered by Blue Cross and Blue Shield for over 50 years.

We're honored to have been the Lebanon Oak Flooring Company's health insurance company for 37 years. We'd be honored to work with your company for the next 37. For more information, call us or your local Blue Cross and Blue Shield representative.

We'll put you on the ground floor of Kentucky's most popular health insurance company.

Low-cost health plans offered workers at small businesses

Frankfort-Three companies will offer basic, low-cost health insurance under a program aimed at employees of small businesses who have difficulty affording health coverage. Roger Recktenwald, executive director of the Big Sandy Area Development District said many small mining companies and independent truckers have expressed an interest in the health insurance program which is known as the Kentucky Health Care Trust. (The Courier-Journal)

Son still awaits trial 2 years after mother's slaying

Paintsville-Almost two years after being accused of murdering his mother at age 15, Donnie Davis is still awaiting trial. Davis' attorney, Martin County public defender Ransome Porter, said he would ask that the case be dismissed for lack of a speedy trial. Davis, 17, is scheduled to stand trial Dec. 4 as an adult. (The Courier-Journal)

Kentucky Lottery considering full payments, Lotto America

Lexington-Lottery players in Kentucky could get a chance at $20 million jackpots and full cash payoffs from lotto games in the next few months. The Lottery Corp. board voted last Wednesday to join Lotto America, a multi-state lottery network that has had jackpots of up to $40 million. Acting lottery president Larry Sipes said Kentucky is also considering borrowing an idea from Indiana and paying off its own lotto winners with one lump sum. (The Daily Independent)

Finalists to be interviewed for economic development job

Hindman-A search for executive director for the new East Development and Jobs creation Corp. has been narrowed to six finalists. The six, chosen from among 269 candidates, will be interviewed in Hazard on Oct. 17. The jobs corporation hopes to raise $1.2 million to start a regional economic-development fund. Among other things, the fund will provide low-interest loans for new and expanding businesses. (Lexington Herald-Leader)

Injunction sought against utility tax

Paintsville-A West Van Lear television cable company is seeking an injunction to stop the Johnson County Board of Education from imposing a 3 percent tax on cable service. Big Sandy TV Cable, Inc. claims in a lawsuit filed last week that the tax is illegal because the county school board did not give proper notification of a hearing on the issue. The company also claims the Kentucky Education Reform Act of 1990 did not "specifically authorize the taxation of television cable services. (Paintsville Herald)

Budget Deficit, Persian Gulf Make August Farm Bills Obsolete

Two versions of the 1990 farm bill passed by the House and Senate before August are essentially obsolete because of federal budget negotiations and the eruption of the Persian Gulf crisis, according to a UK agricultural economist.

"Federal budget negotiations and the Persian Gulf crisis make it clear that the assumptions used by the agriculture committees in preparing their versions of the farm bill are obsolete," said David Freshwater, an agricultural economist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

The House and Senate versions of the 1990 farm bill have to be merged in a conference committee and approved by the president. "Until that happens we don't have a farm bill," Freshwater said.

The Persian Gulf conflict could "radically change global and national, economic and political conditions," Freshwater said.

In August, when the House and Senate passed their versions of the farm bill, few could anticipate that oil would be in the $30-$40 range, he said.

Congressional leaders and the White House agreed this week on a budget plan that calls for an additional $13 billion in cuts from the baseline agriculture budget over the next five years, Freshwater said.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture will be forced to make "real cuts," Freshwater said, which means that agricultural committees will not be able to make up for savings by shifting payment dates or claiming savings from programs that were expected to decline.

"There will be pressure outside agriculture and from the White House for real cuts because you can't bring the federal deficit down unless you make real cuts," Freshwater said.

Freshwater said he expects most USDA cuts to be made on commodity programs, but the form those cuts will take is uncertain.

Agriculture interests will have a difficult time making their case during farm bill negotiations, Freshwater noted.

"As long as caps on farm program outlays are embedded in a budget agreement there is little leverage for traditional farm interests," he said.

Several factors point to a difficult farm bill conference, Freshwater said. In addition to problems caused by the federal budget and the Persian Gulf, prospects for lower interest rates are dim, commodity prices are soft and the global grain markets are destabilized.

"Conditions in agriculture and in the general economy have significantly deteriorated since August," he said. "If current trends continue, farm income is going to be hit hard by higher input costs and declining prices, which argues for higher levels of support.

"There has been a shift in projections from a continuation of the recovery that started in the mid-1980s to a concern that conditions of the early 1980s may be returning.

Bob Evans festival continues to grow

Bob Evans Farm Festival is celebrating its 20th anniversary with traditional favorites from the first festival and new events that have kept the festival growing throughout the past two decades on Oct. 12, 13, 14.

The craftspeople who will be returning for their 20th year at the festival are Sedric and Helen Lewis of Gallipolis, Ohio, who design colonial flower arrangements and wreaths; Jim and Jane Yocum of Waverly, Ohio, who craft sheepskin moccasins; and the Salem Missionary Society of Patriot, Ohio, who demonstrate the skills of quilt making. Carl Bradford of Ashland, Ohio, and the Bradford Border Collies will be back, as well, demonstrating the control herd dogs can have over barnyard animals.

"There are several craftspeople who have been with the Bob Evans Farm Festival since it started in 1971," said Dan Evans, chief executive officer and chairman of the board of Bob Evans Farms Inc. "They have watched this festival grow from a small community event to an event that now hosts 125 craftspeople and demonstrators and more than 40,000 visitors from several states."

Dan Evans will demonstrate his award winning cutting horses for the second year at the festival. Cutting horses is a ranch-oriented sport that originated in Texas. The rider guides the horse into a herd of cattle and "cuts" or separates a cow from the herd. He must block the animal's attempt to rejoin the herd. Visitors may see Evans cutting horses at 10 a.m. Friday, Saturday and Sunday and 2 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

DIBBLE:

IS HE WORTH MORE?

The past few days have brought forth a cry from Cincinnati Reds bullpen ace Rob Dibble as to the fact that "he isn't being treated fairly by the Reds organization." Dibble is making only $200,000 per year to work for the Reds. Now, you may be saying, "wow, 200 G's for playing baseball, wow!" And perhaps, rightly so, one can say that. One who is not playing professional baseball. One who is making less than that by working a legitimate job. But let's not look at it from that perspective. Let's look at from the point of view that Dibble is looking at it. The other players around him are drawing much more than his 200 grand. Yet Dibble figures that he is worth much more than the amount he is being paid based on what others on the Reds are receiving.

Danny Jackson is getting a million plus; Tom Browning the same. Rick Mahler close to a million. Well, Dibble supposes that if these pitchers are getting that much, next year he will demand close "to a million dollars" he said in a recent statement. Dibble, 8-3 with a 1.90 ERA, has been a workhorse out of the Reds bullpen. Labeled as one of the "Nasty Boys" he says that he really isn't one of them. Have they softened late in the season. I know some games the Reds would have lost had they not had a hard thrower like Dibble. I know that $200,000 is a lot of money. But on the baseball market it is not as much as we suppose. I believe that Marge Schott should open up her pocket book and pay Dibble more than he is receiving. He deserves it after the Reds won the Western Division title for the first time since 1979.

MR. PRICE WRITES FROM LaMORQUE, TEXAS

In a recent article that we ran here in "A Look At Sports" concerning the overlapping of basketball and football season in the elementary schools and the possible danger it could cause to the high school programs, Mr. Bill Price of LaMorque, Texas, and formerly of Floyd County writes to express his opinion on the subject. His letter was lengthy and we have printed his remarks in another section of the sports section. Others have expressed their concern over the matter and agree with us that the running of grade school basketball at the time of the football season is not acceptable and that the Floyd County Board of Education should make a decision on the matter.

In our county there just doesn't seem to be that much interest in building a strong football program in our grade system. That is the future of high school football in Floyd County. I am afraid that if the current trend continues, some of our high schools will drop their football programs because of lack of interest. The coaches will tell you it gets harder and harder to get the kids out if you don't have a winning program. And during the season, lopsided scores make it more unbearable for players to participate. Coaches start losing players halfway through the season because the interest is just not there. What is the solution?

HIGH SCHOOL BASKETBALL PRACTICE OFFICIALLY STARTS OCTOBER 15

High school basketball practice officially begins October 15 as all schools can legally take to the hard wood. It should be a good year in the 58th District as no one team should dominate the county. Betsy Layne will be returning a veteran team and is our choice as the number one preseason team. McDowell will be solid and fills in the number two position. Wheelwright gets the number three spot on my list with Prestonsburg coming in fourth and Allen Central fifth. All of this from the person that picked Magoffin County to win the 15th Region last year.

Until next Friday, good sports. Remember be a good sport!

Storey's field goal provides margin

Clark Passes Blackcats Over Leslie Co., 24-14

Injuries, injuries, injuries — that was the word for the Prestonsburg Blackcats as they invaded the Leslie County Eagles nest Friday night for what was a very important high school football game, for both teams, in district play. Leslie County held a 2-0 district record while Prestonsburg came into the contest at 1-1. As things turned out, the Blackcats, behind the strong passing of John Thomas Clark and the ground play of Todd Goodman, out-passed and out-ran the Eagles, 24-14, to tie for second place in the District 2 standings. The winning points came on a 31 yard field goal, by Jason Storey, to give the Blackcats a 17-14 lead they never relinquished.

The win was most gratifying, not from the stand point of another district win, but that so many Blackcats were injured and unable to perform. Starting quarterback Aaron Tucker had to sit out the game, although he was dressed, because of an ankle injury. Allen James was injured in the Belfry game and it is doubtful if the senior running back will play again this season. Mike Hobson has also been out with an injury.

Clark, filling in for the injured Tucker, tossed eight times with four completions for a total of 121 yards passing. Goodman collected 116 yards on 25 carries to lead the ground game.

The Blackcats put eight points on the board in the first period after recovering an Eagle fumble on Leslie County's own 26 yard line. On third down from scrimmage, Clark hit Worthie McGuire with a pass from 23 yards out for a Blackcat Touch Down. Storey kicked the extra point, only to have it nullified because of an illegal procedure penalty on the Cats. The second attempt was off to the right, however, the Blackcats were up 6-0.

The lead was short lived as the Eagles took the lead 8-6 on an eleven yard touchdown pass from Greg Couch to Mike Baker. Casey Wilson ran the two point conversion. The play involved 79 yards on ten plays that took 4:37 to complete. The Eagles picked up five first downs in the drive.

With 9:34 to go in the first half, Prestonsburg took control of the football on their own 31 yard line, where 3:37 later Mike Hopson, back from an injury, on a one yard run put the Blackcats on top, 14-8 after Jonathan Leslie ran the two point conversion.

Again the Eagles were not ready to concede the game to the Blackcats as they struck with 3:43 remaining in the half on a nine-yard run by Lewis to tie the score at 14-14.

Prestonsburg seemed to have good field position with 3:37 remaining, when they took the ensuing kick off on the Eagle's 48 yard line. However, after the Cats had moved the ball to the Eagle's 24 yard line, time ran to end the half.

After the Eagles received the football at the start of the second half, the Blackcats defense tightened up and stopped the running game of Lewis. The Blackcats held the Eagles on their first possession and held good field position off the Eagle's punt at the Leslie County 37 yard line. However, on a second and nine, Prestonsburg fumbled the football with Leslie County recovering.

It was turnover time for both teams, as the Eagle's Couch went back to pass only to have McGuire intercept his pass down field with McGuire returning the ball back to the Prestonsburg 47 yard line.

Leslie picked up a hard five yards against the Eagle's defense and then John Goble, who also had a great ground game, ran for twelve yards and a Blackcat first down. Goodman picked up nine more yards on two carries to move the ball to the Eagles 21 yard line. Goodman's run moved it to the twelve yard line as the Cats were knocking at the door of Leslie County. On the nine yard line, Goodman was caught behind the line of scrimmage for a loss of seven yards bringing up a fourth and fourteen from the Eagle's sixteen yard line. Coach Bill Letton elected to go for the field goal, as Jason "Golden Toe" Storey split the uprights from 31 yards out to put the Blackcats up to stay 17-14.

The lead looked as if it also was going to be short lived as the Eagles put together a good drive and even struck pay dirt for what seemed to be a game leading touchdown by Lewis. The Touch Down was called back because of a holding penalty on Leslie County, bringing up a second and 18. Good defensive plays by Robbie Watson, broke up two Couch passes forcing the Eagles to give up the football on downs to the Blackcats.

Prestonsburg looked like a team that wasn't about to settle for a three point advantage in such an important game. When the Blackcats forced the Eagles to turn over the football with 8:31 remaining in the fourth period, the Blackcats moved the ball from their own seven yard line on a drive that took 6:22 to complete, on thirteen plays, as Goodman scored from two yards out and Storey kicked the extra point for a 24-14 lead.

The Eagles put together one last drive that ended when McGuire picked off a Couch pass on the Prestonsburg two yard line to preserved the well-earned victory.

At the conclusion of the game the top offensive and defensive players of the Bowl game were named. Goodman was the top offensive player for the Blackcats and McGuire was named the top defensive player. Keith

Maytown Goes Cold At Foul Line In 16-15 Loss To Prater

The Maytown Lady Wildcats were breezing along with a ten point lead and went cold as the Prater Lady Cougars ran off fourteen unanswered points to defeat the Lady Wildcats 16-14 in a come-from-behind win.

One of the down falls of the Maytown teams was their inability to connected from the charity stripe. Maytown attempted 22 free throws and made only three. Pam Goble shot ten and made just one.

Heather Nelson scored the first two points of the game at Maytown and it was all Lady Wildcats from that point. Melanie Hagan, Lisa Stumbo and Goble connected on baskets to give Maytown a 6-2 first quarter lead.

A scoreless second quarter by Prater Creek got them further behind as the Lady Cats ran out to a 13-2 half-time lead behind the scoring of Stumbo.

Prater's woes continued as they were unable to hit the basket. Equally as cold was the Lady Wildcats from the foul line as they shot eight free throws in the period and made only one. With 25 seconds remaining in the third period, Nelson scored the Lady Cougars second basket to make 14-4 at the end of the third period.

The basket by Nelson was the first of fourteen of the Lady Cougars would run off in overcoming the Lady Wild-

Hagans 3 FT Helps Maytown Overcome Prater, 34-32

Ask Nick Hagans what kind of game he played and he will quickly tell you — terrible. The high-scoring eighth grader missed five open lay-ups and connected on only six of sixteen free throw attempts in the game with Prater Creek Monday night at Maytown. Both phases of the game were uncharacteristic of Hagans, who is normally a good free throw shooter.

However, when the game was on the line, and Hagans too, he connected on two free throws with fifteen seconds remaining in the game, giving the Wildcats their first lead, at 33-31, on the way to an exciting 34-32, come-from-behind win over the Prater Cougars. Hagans finished the game with ten points.

Prater built a first quarter lead of 9-4 and went to the locker room with a five point advantage, 18-13. The Cougars dominated the boards and was quick out on the break in building their lead. Brent Akers 22 points led the Cougars in scoring and stayed on the front end of several Cougar fast breaks.

Prater took a 29-22 lead on a basket by Akers with 3:26 remaining in the game. A basket by John Moore and Hagans cut it to three, 29-26. With 2:53 to go, the Cougars turned the ball over, and free throws by Gary Webb and Hagans cut the lead to one, 29-28. Akers put the Cougars back up by three with a jumper, and with 1:17 to go, Hagans hit one of two free throws to cut the lead to two, 31-29.

Prater was called for a walking violation with 1:07 showing, and a basket by Chris Martin tied the game at 31-31. Chris Bailey missed a short baseline jumper, but Hagans grabbed the rebound and tried an off-balance sloop shot that missed. However, Hagans was fouled on the shot and connected on both ends of the two charity tosses to give Maytown the lead at 33-31.

Eight seconds remained in the game and Prater had the ball after a time out. On the in bounds play, Hagans intercepted the ball and was fouled. He hit one of the two free throws. Akers completed the scoring for the game with a foul shot with two seconds remaining.

Hagans' ten points led Maytown. Chris Martin finished with nine points and Webb had five.

Besides Akers' 22 points, Ronnie Hamilton added eight for Prater Creek. Maytown goes to 1-1 in the season while Prater falls to 2-2.

Blackcats

Lewis received the offensive honors for Leslie County and Jerry Bowling was the Eagles top defensive performer.

The Blackcats amassed a total of 316 offensive yards against Leslie County with 195 yards coming on the ground, led by Goodman's 116. Goble had 45 yards rushing on eleven carries. Clark passed for 121 yards on four completions — all four to McGuire. Prestonsburg turned the ball over just one time on a fumble. The Blackcats were penalized five times for a total of 60 yards. Clark was sacked once for a seven yard loss.

For Leslie County, the Eagles collected 276 yards total offense with 163 coming on the ground led by Lewis' 124 yards on sixteen carries. Couch had eight completions for 113 yards. The Eagles turned the ball over three times — two interceptions and one fumble. They were penalized 45 yards on five flags. Couch was sacked twice for a loss of sixteen yards.

Four games remain on the Blackcats schedule with two against district foes. Sheldon Clark will provide homecoming game opposition this Friday night and then Pikeville will be at Prestonsburg on October 19. Perhaps the next big game (although all are big games) for the Cats will be at M.C. Napier as they battle the Navahos who are 1-1 in district games. The Navahos have three games remaining and all three are district games. Napier will host Leslie County this Friday night.

It looks as though the injury-riddled Blackcat squad has their sights set on a playoff berth — and with the type of outing they had against Leslie County, that goal could very well become a reality.

Bryant, Johnson Leads Mustangs 61-47 Over Betsy Layne

The John M. Stumbo Mustangs went 7-1 for the year with a 61-47 win over the Betsy Layne Bobcats in grade school basketball Monday night. Joe Bryant and Steve Johnson each tossed in fifteen points to lead the Mustangs in scoring. Derrick Newsome added eleven points in the win.

"Derrick (Newsome) can really read the floor well," said Betsy Layne coach Ernie Tackett, "and he hit Bryant with some good passes under the basket."

The versatile Newsome showed that he can not only score, but dish out the assists as well.

Stumbo led 18-9 at the first stop and went out to a 38-21 lead at the half.

Mike Hunt led the Bobcats with twelve points. Randy Wallen and Ryan Newsome tossed in eleven points.

Stumbo's running game opened up some easy baskets for the Mustangs and the difference in height took a toll on the Bobcats.

Betsy Layne drops to 1-2 on the yet young season.

Stumbo (61): Derrick Newsome, 11; Steve Johnson, 15; Joe Bryant, 15; Rocky Newsome, 8; Toby Newsome, 9; Tackett, 2 at Betsy Layne (47): Mike Hunt, 12; Randy Wallen, 11; Wesley Frazier, 2; Anthony Kiser, 7; Jason Hall, 2; Rodney Hamilton, 2; Ryan Newsome, 11.

High Flying Eagles Hand Short
Handed Betsy Layne a 42-8 Loss

It was a rough outing for the Betsy Layne Elementary Bobcats Saturday afternoon at the Prestonsburg football field. The Bobcats tangled with the high flying Eagles of Allen and dropped a 42-8 loss to the Allen club. The Bobcats, playing without three of their starters, had trouble containing the running game of the Eagles. On the first four plays of the game, by Allen, the Eagles picked up four first downs on the efforts of Darren Kidd, who carried for yardage of eighteen, sixteen, ten and seven on the first four plays. On a second and one, Kidd crossed the goal line to make the score 6-0. Tony Craft got the two point conversion for a 8-0 lead. On the kickoff, Amos Smith took the football and ran it back 82 yards for a touchdown and the Bobcats tied the score on the conversion run by Smith. A bad kick by Betsy Layne put the ball on the Allen 41 yard line where, in just three plays, Lafferty scored the Eagles second touchdown to make the score 14-8. The two point conversion was unsuccessful. On their next possession, Betsy Layne went for yardage on a fourth and six, but failed to pick up the first down. The ball went over to the Eagles' possession on the Bobcats 27 yard line. On first play from scrimmage, Eagle's quarterback Jason Williams hit Craft with a 27 yard touchdown pass. The extra points brought the score to 22-8. A very poor Betsy Layne punt set up the next score for Allen from the Bobcats' twelve yard line. Again it was Lafferty scoring from twelve yards out on the first down play. With the two point conversion the score was 30-8. With 3:58 showing on the clock, Kidd scored his second TD with an eighteen yard run as Craft picked up the two points. The Eagles' final score came with just ten seconds remaining on a 59 yard run by Craft just at the sound of the horn. Allen had a total of 216 offensive yards. The Eagles rushed for 189 on fifteen carries. Williamson had the one completion for 27 yards. Kidd piled up 70 yards on six carries and Craft had 80 yards on just four carries. Smith carried six times for the Bobcats for 83 yards. Betsy Layne had 107 total offense with Smith connecting up with Marcus Stumbo on a 21 yard pass. The Bobcats managed 86 yards on the ground. Allen remains undefeated with a 3-0 record. Betsy Layne falls to a 1-2 record.

With 1:32 showing on the clock, Nelson scored on another "down towner" and stole the inbound pass to lay in a basket that tied the score at 14-14. Goble made two trips to the foul line for Maytown but missed all four shots. With 51 seconds to go in the ball game, Patricia Kidd, with the crowd hollering and "ice water in her veins" sank two free throws to put the Lady Cougars ahead for the first time and only time in their 16-15 win. Prater allowed the Lady Wildcats just two points in the second half and that was Angela Castle's and Goble's free throws in the third and fourth periods.

Nelson led all scorers with twelve points. Kidd and Boyd scored three and one respectively. Lisa Stumbo was high for Maytown with six while Melanie Hagan scored four.

What Tennessee Squirrel Hunters Did

by Lowell Branham

Recent events in the Persian Gulf stir up a wistful remembrance of the vital role Tennessee squirrel hunters once played in this nation's belligerencies.

As far back as late colonial days, Tennessee squirrel hunters were beginning to exert a pacifying influence on the wild frontier.

Hard-pressed, Indians could hardly be blamed for trying to stem the tide of white settlement with arrows and tomahawks. But the unerring aim of Tennessee squirrel hunters was one of the main reasons they decided burying the hatchet was better than burying themselves.

When England's colonial yoke grew too harsh to bear, Tennessee squirrel hunters under John Silver loaded their rifles and rode off to King's Mountain, where the hearty thrashing they gave the Redcoats helped turn the Revolution around.

Some folks who slept through history classes think America's troubles in the Middle East are a 20th century phenomena. Not hardly. Difficulties with the Arabs date back 200 years.

In George Washington's administration, the Barbary pirates of North Africa grew fat extorting tribute from American merchant men and holding U.S. seamen for ransom or selling them off as slaves.

The tolerance of the United States was remarkable even in those days, but by the time Thomas Jefferson took office, the effrontery of the seaborne bandits had stretched American patience to the breaking point.

Peace-loving Jefferson finally dispatched the Navy and the Marines to instill a little respect in the Arab rogues, and they carried out their mission with remarkable success. And no doubt there were some Tennessee squirrel hunters in the Marine squadrons that went ashore at Tripoli and sent the pirates flying.

Hostilities with Great Britain broke out anew in 1812, and U.S. forces repeatedly came out on the short end in the early stages of the war. By the time Andy Jackson led an army of Tennessee squirrel hunters — and some Kentuckians too — down to New Orleans, a peace treaty had already been signed in Europe.

But no one in America knew that, and Old Hickory and his squirrel hunters proceeded to deal the British the worst licking they endured in a war that was already over.

A number of Tennessee squirrel hunters — including Davy Crockett, the most famous one of all — were among the 187 defenders who bit the dust at the Alamo — but not before making Santa Anna and his troop of 5,000 pay dearly for their victory.

When that score was evened a decade later in the war with Mexico, so many Tennessee squirrel hunters rallied to the cause that Tennessee has ever since been known as the Volunteer State.

Thanks to strong Union sentiment in the eastern part of the state, Tennessee squirrel hunters were well represented on both sides during the Civil War, and they gave good accounts of themselves, regardless of the colors they wore.

But the most stirring feat of arms ever performed by any Tennessee squirrel hunter in any conflict was that of Sgt. Alvin C. York in World War I. The native of Jamestown in Fentress County single-handedly shot 25 Germans and forced the surrender of 132 others. He won the congressional Medal of Honor and the nation's undying adulation.

Given that proud record, it was with sad dismay that I recently read an appeal put out by the Tennessee Wildlife Resources Agency aimed at encouraging more Tennessee hunters to go squirrel hunting.

There was once a time — and it really wasn't that long ago — then squirrels were far and away the most popular game animal in Tennessee. Opening day of squirrel season was one of the year's biggest social events.

Nearly every pull-off along any country road was occupied by a car or a pickup truck, and when first light broke on opening morning, it was greeted by such a chorus of gunfire that it sounded like war was breaking out.

Those days are no more. Finding a parking spot on opening day is no longer a problem, and in vast stretches of good squirrel woods, the season is ushered in amid morgue-like silence.

Tennessee's wildlife managers attribute the decline of squirrel hunting to the remarkable resurgence of the state's deer and turkey populations. With bigger game to go after, few hunters retain any interest in squirrels.

But is that really it? Or could it be that the squirrel hunter himself is simply obsolete? In this last decade of the 20th Century, maybe armies have become so high-tech they no longer have need of long, lean, keen-eyed men with rifles.

Prices Offers Viewpoint On Grade School Football

In a letter we received on Tuesday, October 9 here in the sports department of the Floyd County Times, Mr. Bill Price writes to express his views of the dilemma of our grade school football program. The following are excerpts from that letter used with his permission.

Mr. Price left Floyd County in February of 1984 and went to Houston, Texas until he moved to LaMarque (Texas) in 1987.

Mr. Price writes that LaMarque is a 4-A school in Texas with an enrollment of just under 1,500 students in a town of about 12,000.

"LaMarque had four different youth football leagues and each of these leagues has four different age groups: ages six to eight, under 110 pounds; ages eight and nine; nine and ten; eleven and twelve (but not yet in the seventh grade)," he states in his letter. "All of these kids play a 12 game schedule and travel up to about 30 miles away to play."

"My youngest son is now in junior high (seventh grade) where there are 74 other boys fighting for positions on his team. (He is the starting defensive tackle)," continues Price. "These kids know they are not going to the varsity until their junior year of high school, but he goes to various skill level football five times a week."

"After football season, the second day we start basketball, our youth season will have 20 games and we will start our tournament when the high school tournament ends."

"We have a week break and then it's time for baseball and life goes on."

"This system has worked real well for us and many of our friends; Ron Francis (Dallas Cowboys); James Francis (Cincinnati Bengals); Jeff Banister (Pittsburgh Pirates) and Jeff Calderone (Atlanta Braves).

"We have 25 native sons in college on football scholarships; nine college baseball scholarships and five basketball scholarships," says Francis.

"In Floyd County, the school administrators want to hurry and get all the fun things associated with school over before the kids can get involved and enjoy the pleasure of being kids, growing up in the most wonderful part of this earth. In Floyd County, your winters are much more violent than ours, but in the spring the NBA is going strong and kids can relate better to basketball, and it is a wonderful alternative."

Mr. Price went on to say that Texas has a "no pass - no play" rule where any kid with a grade under 70 percent can not participate in any extracurricular activities. "That means; if our kids are sports nuts they have to work and don't have time to get in trouble," explains Price.

According to Price the system is not new and has been around for several years. Price says that the programs pay their own way in ticket sales and are instrumental in building character not to mention the scholarships that are awarded.

"By the way, Mr. Taylor, it's six miles from LaMarque to Dickenson, and yes, Andre Ware was in the same programs I have just explained. It really boosts our kids morale when Andre, Ron or James Francis show up for football practice or Jeff Banister and Jeff Calderone show up for a Little League game. It gets real exciting when we play Alvin. Nolan Ryan's kids seldom hit the field without dad in the stands."

Price relates how the LaMarque Cougars are 3-1 losing to Willowridge 21-17, which was rated by USA Today as the number seven team in the nation. "Take care of my homeland," says Price as he closes his letter.

USE IT OR LOSE IT!
SCHOOL FACILITY
CONSTRUCTION FUND

On May 21, 1987, August 18, 1988, and November 2, 1989, the Kentucky Department of Education, Division Building and Grounds conducted public hearings at the Prestonsburg Elementary Auditorium and the Prestonsburg high School Cafeteria, to allow public comment with regard to future school facility construction priorities in the Floyd County School District. Public input by the following was presented to the hearing officer:

- Mr. George Speigle, Prestonsburg Kiwanis Club
- Mrs. Linda Spradlin, Prestonsburg Elementary PTA
- Mr. Chalmer Frazier, Chamber of Commerce
- Mrs. Phyllis Herrick, Prestonsburg Womens Club
- Dr. Rob Herrick, Prestonsburg Kiwanis Club
- Mr. Bill Harvey Howard, Prestonsburg City Utilities
- Mayor Ann Latta, City of Prestonsburg
- Mrs. Delores Smith, concerned citizen
- Mrs. Francis Brackett, concerned citizen
- Mr. John Rosenberg, concerned citizen

Mr. Ron Hager Superintendent of Floyd County School District

It was determined after the public hearings that after the first four priorities were started or substantially completed, namely the middle school in Prestonsburg, elementary school at Right Beaver, and the new high school on Left Beaver, that the next priority would be a new high school to replace the existing Prestonsburg High School. The first four priorities are either substantially completed or under construction.

The new Prestonsburg High School, fully funded by the State Facilities Construction Commission, and without local funds, will be a modern, state-of-the-art facility, providing the best academic and extra curricular facility possible with a budget of $6,595,588. The new school will provide the most modern classroom and laboratory facilities, as well as a new modern out door complete athletic complex. To provide this program, new state regulations requires the school to be constructed on the site above 100 year flood plain, containing a minimum 18 acres of usable land.

There are other specifications required by the Department of Buildings and Grounds, namely, road access, utilities, geotechnical subsurface exploration, lack of environmental hazards, and fee simple title. With many months of work, all have been answered.

To construct the new high school for the north end, since this program in the next priority with regard to facility construction, WE MUST ACCEPT THE FUNDS OFFERED AND BUILD THE PRESTONSBURG HIGH SCHOOL OR LOSE THE NEW SCHOOL AND $33,000,00 FOR FUTURE PROJECTS IN THE FLOYD COUNTY SCHOOL DISTRICT.

As your board member and chairman of the Floyd County Board of Education, I would much rather build this high school and assist my colleagues or the other board members to complete their projects according to the approved school facilities plan for the children of Floyd County. In other words, I'M GOING TO USE IT - NOT LOSE IT!

YOUR VOTE AND SUPPORT FOR JAMES D. "DOC" ADAMS, FOR BOARD MEMBER, EDUCATIONAL DIVISION NO. 1, WILL BE APPRECIATED.

Paid for by the candidate, Steve Allen, CPA, Treasurer.

Rebels Will Be Looking For Third Win Of The Season

Thursday night (not Friday night) will be homecoming night for the Allen Central Rebels as the Fairview Eagles of coach Rex Cooksey come calling to the Don Daniels Athletic Complex, starting at 8 p.m.

Fairview, which earlier this year won a heartbreak game over Roger Johnson's Wheelwright Trojans (18-8), has not been competing for the district title this year because they dropped Hazard, Paintsville and Raceland from their schedule. The Eagles were thought to be short handed with players this year and elected not to compete and just concentrate on rebuilding the team.

Leading the Eagle attack will be Bruce Morrison, who was switched to a tailback position this year. Morrison was the quarterback for the Eagles last year. Also in the scheme of things for the Eagles will be this year's quarterback Chancie Roy, who possesses a good arm and is a consist-tent thrower. Fairview defeated the Rebels 41-14 last year.

Allen Central will be coming off a win over the Kentucky School for the Deaf last Tuesday evening. The Rebels, 2-5, will be looking to win their second straight and improve their record to 3-5.

Running back Tommy Gibson has started to move on offense as he piled up 92 yards against KSD in scoring two touchdowns. Jamie Rister and Jamie Slone have become more involved in the Rebels offense along with Todd Lucas. B.J. Aldrich has moved back to the quarterback spot after being out with a shoulder injury. The win at KSD may be just the booster these Rebels need in the last part of the season.

With all the homecoming festivities of the night, the two consecutive wins will be the thing on the mind of the Rebels Thursday night.

P-Burg Jr Basketball League To Conduct Sign Ups Oct. 21, 28

According to Prestonsburg Junior Pro Basketball League President Dickie Hall, the junior pro league will conduct registration on October 21 and 28, from 1 to 5 p.m. each day. The sign ups will take place at the Prestonsburg gym.

Hall said that all new players that will be signing up, and all players that will be moving up to a higher level, will be required to run, dribble and shoot the basketball. "This is not a try out for players," the league president said, "just a little drill for them to go through."

The sign up days are for players from the ages of seven to fourteen years of age (those who turned 14 after September 1). Hall said that all kids are welcome, regardless of how good or inexperienced they are.

"We are here to teach good fundamentals of basketball, to teach the kids how to be a good sport and play team ball," he explained. "We are also here to teach them how to say no to drugs."

Each player will play one full quarter in each ball game stated Hall.

For more information on sign up day, contact Dickie Hall at the Ed Walters used car lot, 886-0033 or at his home, 874-2015.

HOW "WE" CAN IMPROVE OUR SCHOOLS

WHEN I FIRST ANNOUNCED AS A CANDIDATE FOR OUR SCHOOL BOARD MY PLEDGE TO YOU WAS TO OPEN THE SYSTEM SO YOU COULD HAVE MORE IMPACT AND GET INVOLVED. HERE IS HOW "WE" CAN BEGIN TO MAKE THIS SYSTEM "YOUR" SYSTEM AND HELP CHILDREN.

1. Establish monthly meetings with parents, teachers, citizens, and the students to discuss their schools and what "YOU" feel is important and should be done.
2. Support for creative ideas that go beyond normal textbook curriculum to motivate students.
3. Establish planning programs early on in high school for students interested in college or vocational schools.
4. Use local access television channels for tutoring programs in the afternoon hours so students can have additional help if it is needed.
5. Encourage business and local leaders to be guest speakers and "teachers" in classes to help our children understand what will be required of them in the business world.
6. Establish a four week summer program for students who want to learn more of their field of interest. For example, if a student is interested in law we can request volunteer support from various attorneys to teach basic law to these students. Upon graduation from high school our children would have a better working knowledge of their field and be motivated to continue. This same idea would be applied to medicine, engineering, mechanical and vocational skills. All we need is the involvement from "YOU".
7. Involve volunteers, senior citizens for example, that want to be active in the school system as teacher aides. By doing this in the K-5 grades we could establish groups of three or five children so that they could get individual attention and help as they need.

WE CAN DO THESE THINGS IF "YOU" ARE ALLOWED TO GET INVOLVED IN "OUR" SCHOOLS. I WANT TO HAVE EACH OF YOU INVOLVED THIS WAY AND TOGETHER "WE" CAN MAKE THIS SYSTEM. THESE THINGS CAN BE ACCOMPLISHED WITH YOUR HELP.

Remember In November!

Lady Bobcats Enjoys 37-20 Win Over Rival Lady Mustangs

In something that is rare around Betsy Layne Elementary, the Lady Bobcats are enjoying their 37-20 win over the Lady Mustangs Monday night at Betsy Layne. You see the Lady Cats have not beaten the Stumbo girls since "no one can remember" related Betsy Layne coach Shelia Ortega.

The hot shooting Jamie Ratcliff tossed in seventeen points to lead her team in scoring. Ratcliff is one of the top future high school players that is coming up. Misty Clark, who is another one, added eight points in the win.

Betsy Layne's defense held the Lady Mustangs scoreless in the first quarter as they raced out to a 13-0 lead. The score was 21-7 at halftime.

"We got to play everyone on the bench, including our fifth graders," said Ortega, "and that also is unusual against Stumbo."

The Lady Mustangs have a rich tradition of being one of the top girls team in the county. However, coach

Paul David Tackett has had to go to the seventh and sixth grades to put his team together this year. Taking lumps, may be the order this year, but the Lady Mustangs will be a team to reckon with next season.

The Lady Bobcats, one of the favorites to win the county tournament this year, improves to 3-1 overall and goes to 1-0 in sectional play.

Penny Tackett scored seven points to lead the Mustangs in scoring. Ashley Tackett, sixth grader, tossed in five points.

Stumbo (20): Penny Tackett, 3 1-2 7; Ashley Tackett, 2 1-6 5; Tera Tackett, 10-0-2; Wendy Hall, 10-0-2; Heather Newsome, 2-0-3 4.

CRANKBAITS CAN CATCH BASS YEAR-ROUND

Larry Nixon has gained a national reputation for his ability to catch bass on plastic worms and jigs, but if you look in his tacklebox, you'll find something else he can use just as effectively — crankbaits.

"Crankbaits will catch bass throughout the year," explains Nixon, a member of the Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff who has tournament winnings that total nearly $1 million. "I first learned to use them more than 20 years ago when I began guiding on Greers Ferry Lake in Arkansas, and today I always have at least one on a rod."

One of Nixon's favorite spots for crankbaits is along ledges and channels where the water depth changes very abruptly from perhaps 10 or 12 feet to 25 or 30 feet. According to Nixon, it is best to "hang" a crankbait right over the edge of the drop.

"You need a crankbait that will suspend in place or float very, very slowly to the surface when you stop reeling," explains the well known Evinrude pro. "Make a long cast, reel the lure down to the edge of the dropoff, then stop reeling so the lure just hangs, suspended right there."

"Bass often hide right along the edges of breaklines like this," Nixon added, "moving up and down vertically as they feel like it. A crankbait hovering along that breakline frequently draws a strike when nothing else will."

Nixon also fishes with crankbaits over submerged vegetation like moss or hydrilla. He prefers to begin his search for bass along the outside edge of the vegetation where it meets deep water.

"Grass patterns for bass may change rapidly," Nixon cautions, "so if you don't find fish along the outside edge, gradually move across the grass toward its inside edge."

"Make a long cast with your crankbait, reel it down so it just barely touches the top of the vegetation during your retrieval. Try different retrieval speeds, but don't reel the lure so deep it gets snagged in the vegetation."

Crankbaits can be excellent lure choices when you're trying to find bass on a new lake, too, says Nixon. He suggests looking for spawning areas before moving out into slightly deeper water, fan casting a crankbait to check different depths.

"One of the key places to look for is the first major depth change or channel break near a spawning area," Nixon explains. "A well-defined channel, such as a creek or even a deep ditch, may hold bass throughout the year."

"Use your map to locate potential spawning flats, then find them when you're on the water. Just fish your way out from the shallow water into deeper water and eventually you'll find bass."

"A crankbait will allow you to cover this water quickly until you contact fish. Once you do find bass, you can slow down and perhaps use other lures to catch more fish," said Nixon.

SNAKES OCCASIONALLY A PROBLEM FOR BASS ANGLERS

Top female professional bass

angler Linda England has enjoyed an illustrious fishing career during the past decade — except for one three-minute segment, earlier this year, that she'd like to forget.

That's the time her fishing partner accidentally hooked a very mad, extremely aggressive cottonmouth moccasin snake.

"We were practicing for a tournament," recalls the attractive Johnson Pro Staff angler, "when we saw this snake swimming across the river toward us. I had been told cottonmouths don't like the color red, and we were fishing in a red boat."

"This snake definitely did not like the color red," said Nixon. "When it reached the side of our boat, it actually reared up in the water as if to bluff us into leaving — it was scary."

England's partner that day, a local boat dealer who was showing her the area, tried to frighten the snake away by splashing the water with his rod tip. Then he accidentally hooked the cottonmouth.

"It was a full grown three to four foot moccasin," remembers the Johnson pro, "and even with all its wild gyrating, the lure's hooks wouldn't come loose. My biggest fear was that the snake would somehow get into the boat with us, and if it did, I was ready to jump overboard."

"Finally, my partner reeled the snake in, pushed his reel's freespool button, and made one of the hardest casts of his life. When the snake hit the water, the hooks came free and the snake swam away."

"The entire episode could not have lasted longer than about three minutes," she added, "but it was three minutes I'd like to forget."

Although anglers don't often hook snakes with their lures, they do encounter them rather frequently, especially when fishing in remote creeks or along brushy river shorelines. England's advice is to leave them alone, whether they're poisonous or not.

"Only a few of the snakes we encounter while fishing are actually poisonous," she says, "and most of the time, the snakes leave when an angler gets close to them."

"The cottonmouth moccasin has a reputation for being more aggressive than most snakes, especially during its mating season," she continued, "but even it will swim away on many occasions."

"Trying to frighten a snake by splashing a rod tip at it usually works if the snake seems reluctant to leave," she continued, "but you have to be careful not to accidentally hook it like my partner did."

"If that happens, you could be in for a few scary minutes. I prefer to simply leave them alone and hope they leave me alone."

Who colors the leaves?

A popular childhood tale is that Jack Frost comes around on cool nights to paint leaves the vibrant colors we all enjoy during autumn.

The process that brings color to leaves in the fall actually begins in the spring as buds open and new leaves are unveiled, according to Bill Fountain, an Extension ornamentals specialist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

"All the beautiful, vibrant colors we see in fall leaves are a combination of only three pigments — one red and two yellow ones," Fountain said. "The yellow pigments are present in the leaf from the time it is formed. We just can't see the yellow color, because it is masked by the more abundant green chlorophyll."

A combination of cool nights and shorter day lengths causes the red pigments to form in leaves, he added. The pigments are formed from sugars remaining in the leaf at the end of summer. If the summer has been relatively cool and moist, many sugars are left in leaves to be changed into red pigments.

The red pigment, like table sugar, is soluble in water, according to Fountain. As a result, much red pigment is lost from the leaves during a wet fall season.

"Perhaps you have seen leaves that become wet after falling on to the sidewalk," he added. "Often a red leaf pattern is left when the leaf is removed."

Cool, moist summers and dry falls are more common in areas of the country that boast spectacular fall colors, according to Fountain.

"By selecting plant species and cultivars that are known to produce good fall color, we can increase the dazzle and blaze of the colorful show attributed to Jack Frost," Fountain said.

Large trees that provide vibrant colors in the fall include white ash, sugar maple, ginkgo, sweetgum, and blackgum, according to Fountain. Flame amur maple and sourwood are among the smaller trees. Colorful shrubs include burning bush, fragrant sumac, and Virginia sweetspire.

"Not all of these trees and shrubs are suitable for all sites," he said. "So, for more cultural information on trees and plants that provide dazzling fall colors, contact your county Extension agent."

COLOR FORECAST ...

The first hint of brilliant fall color is developing in the mountainous areas of Kentucky. Now that sunny, cool weather has entered the region, the fall parade of leaf color can be expected to accelerate and intensify in the next few weeks. If the weather conditions hold, travelers may be in for one of the most brilliant fall color seasons in years.

About five to ten percent of hardwood trees are currently displaying their bright fall colors in Eastern Kentucky. In the forests around Prestonsburg, the maroon of dogwoods and the bright yellow of poplars are beginning to emerge.

Moving

A few weeks ago I mentioned in this column about our pet parakeet, Pete.

Well, Pete has now joined his fine feathered friends, flying high in the big blue skies.

During our move last week, my husband picked up Pete's cage by the top — Mistake #1. As my husband move toward the door, bird cage in hand, Pete began to go wild. Top to bottom he flew, as if we were actually trying to get rid of him.

My husband proceeded to go outside and down the front steps — Mistake #2. As he stepped off the porch, down one, two, three steps bounced the cage. It landed on its side with water and bird seed splattered everywhere, and both cage doors jarred open.

Pete came flying out of that cage so fast, all we could see was a small green streak.

Well, dear old Dad took off, running and chasing Pete. Both our daughters were making a noise that could shatter glass as they cheered their father, "Catch him, Daddy, catch him!"

Daddy tried, but Pete tried harder. Pete was just too fast.

My youngest daughter began one of her famous fits, raging and screaming and crying — generally carrying on, as only kids can. Her Aunt Deanna tried so to console her, but to no avail. Crocodile tears streamed from her small face as she sobbed, "Pete's not meant to live outside his cage, Daddy."

My heart broke. After all, the bird had belonged to my grandmother for over a year before he came to live with us. We get him, and lose him after three months. What Luck.

On the other hand, the rat-type critter made it through the move with flying colors.

The first night in our new house, and the little varmint kept me awake all night long. He ran and ran on his little wheel, which produces the most irritating sound I have ever heard.

Finally, I had simply had enough, "If this thing doesn't stop..." But my daughter interrupted me, "Mom," she pleaded, "it's a nocturnal animal, it sleeps in the day and is awake at ni-i-ght!"

Boy, I couldn't help but laugh. Leave it to me to lose my alarm bird, and keep my nocturnal rat-thing. Oh well, back to the clocks...until next week.

THERE'S MORE THAN ONE WAY TO TOP A PIZZA!

If you're looking for creative projects you can do with your kids, why not spend time with them in the kitchen? Hands-on fun with foods can stimulate their interest and appetites. Not only a necessary skill for their later lives, cooking is a creative experience for a growing child.

An easy pizza recipe using a pizza crust mix is a great recipe to start with. The kids can make and knead the simple dough, then form the crust circles. Let them use their own imaginations when it comes to the toppings.

KIDDIE PIZZAS

1 package (6.5 oz) crust mix
1/2 cup hot tap water
1 tsp. oil
Pizza sauce
Grated mozzarella cheese
toppings such as browned ground beef or sausage, or sliced pepperoni, mushrooms, green peppers, onions or black olives.

Preheat oven to 500 degrees. Lightly grease two large baking sheets. Combine pizza crust mix with hot water in mixing bowl. Stir vigorously with a fork until blended (about 30 strokes). Form into a ball and grease with about 1 tsp. oil. Cover and set in a warm place for 5 minutes. Place on a lightly floured board or pastry cloth. Knead dough a few times. Divide dough into 10 equal portions. Pat or roll out each piece into a 3-inch circle. Place circles on prepared baking sheets. Spread each with a thin layer of pizza sauce, top with favorite topping and sprinkle with cheese. Bake on lowest oven rack 8 to 10 minutes or until crust and cheese start to brown. Makes 10 snack servings.

When kids are in the kitchen, follow these helpful tips:

- Have adult supervision at all times and encourage kids to ask questions about things they don't understand.
- Use as many plastic and wooden items as possible, they are less likely to break and are easy to handle.

— Be sure hot pads are readily available. Oven mitts don't fit tiny hands.

— Teach children to clean up spills immediately so no one slips.

— Show kids how to slowly open the oven door so that the hot air doesn't burn them.

— Teach children that cleaning up is as important as preparation.

IT'S NOT JUST PIZZA CRUST ANYMORE

A good pizza crust mix is great to have on hand for all kinds of easy pizza and snack making. One Italian favorite made easy with the mix is a "calzone" which is like a "pizza turnover."

To make a calzone, simply prepare and roll out the pizza crust mix, top one half with your favorite pizza toppings like green pepper strips, onions, mushrooms, cheeses, pepperoni or cooked sausage, fold the dough over, seal and bake. Often the calzone is served with a spicy tomato sauce poured over top.

The following Pepperoni Bread recipe is an appetizer/snack calzone filled with spicy pepperoni, melted Swiss cheese and savory Italian seasoning. Serve hot or cold in thin slices for a great party snack. Be sure to make plenty to go around because Pepperoni Bread can be habit forming.

PEPPERONI BREAD

1 package (8 oz) Deep Pan Pizza Crust Mix, prepared according to package directions
1 package (3 1/2 to 4 oz) sliced pepperoni
2 cups (8 oz) grated Swiss cheese
2 tbsp. grated Parmesan cheese
1 egg, beaten
1 tsp. Italian seasoning

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Grease a large baking sheet. Roll pizza crust dough as thin as possible into an oval shape. Cover one half of crust with pepperoni, almost to the edge. Sprinkle cheese over pepperoni; drizzle with beaten egg. (This keeps the crust moist and chewy.) Sprinkle with Italian seasoning. Fold plain half of dough over covered half. Moisten edges with water and press to seal. Place on prepared baking sheet and bake 20 to 25 minutes. Cool about 10 minutes. Slice into 1 inch strips with pizza cutter. Makes about 12 servings.

MORE WAYS TO WARM AN AFTERNOON

Here's how to warm up an afternoon with health-conscious American foods. Invite friends in for a feast designed and created with hearts and health in mind.

Try a buffet of steaming bowls of chili, served with brown rice, salad and bread. End you buffet with a fresh fruit dessert and mugs of hot coffee, or tea, for the road.

You can prepare the chili in advance.

ALL-AMERICAN CHILI

1/4 cup olive oil
3 large onions, chopped
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 green pepper, diced
2 lbs. freshly ground turkey (lentils may be substituted for ground turkey and kidney beans)
2 tbsp. chili powder
1 tsp ground cumin
1/2 tsp. crushed red pepper
1 tsp. salt
2 cans (28 oz. each) crushed tomatoes
2 cups water

1 cup chopped parsley (or 1/4 cup dried parsley)
2 cans (16 oz.) dark red kidney beans, drained
2 cups shredded sharp cheddar cheese (1 lb.)
1 large, sweet onion, chopped

In a 6-quart Dutch oven, saute onions and garlic in olive oil until soft. Add green pepper and ground meat; cook until meat loses its color. Stir in remaining ingredients except kidney beans, cheese and onion.

Bring chili to a boil, stirring often. Reduce heat; cover and simmer over low heat 2 to 3 hours. Stir occasionally.

To serve, ladle hot chili into large shallow soup bowls, topping with accompaniments of heated kidney beans, shredded cheese and chopped sweet onion. Serve brown rice alongside chili. Makes 10 to 12 main-dish servings.

ANOTHER SIDE OF CHILI

For centuries seasoned chefs from around the world have cooked with beer. A splash of beer makes many dishes stand out from the avalanche of ordinary tasting dips, appetizers and entrees.

Next time you're entertaining friends you may want to try this famous chili recipe from Jocks 'n' Jills sports bar in Atlanta, Ga. This recipe requires a small amount of dry beer, which many people have discovered complements food because it does not have an aftertaste.

JOCKS 'N' JILLS CHILI

2 lbs. ground beef
1/4 cup diced green pepper
2 16 oz. cans kidney beans
2 16 oz. cans crushed tomatoes
2 16 oz. cans tomato puree
1/2 large diced Spanish onion
2 tbsp. diced jalapeno
1 1/4 cups chili powder
48 oz. water
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. onion powder
1 tsp. garlic powder
12 oz. bottle of "dry" beer

Brown the ground beef, drain and set aside. Saute onions and peppers until tender. Add ground beef and all remaining ingredients except beer. Bring to boil stirring constantly. Add dry beer and simmer for 30 minutes. Top with shredded cheddar and diced red onions. Serve with saltines. Yield: 6-8 servings.

HAUNTING DESSERTS

Why not start a new tradition for Halloween? Bake a Ghost Cake for your favorite goblins, and you won't hear a boo in the bunch! Start with a First Prize Chocolate Cake.

FIRST PRIZE CHOCOLATE CAKE

1/2 cup (1 stick) butter or margarine
4 squares (1 oz. each) unsweetened chocolate
2 eggs
1 3/4 cups buttermilk
2 tsp. vanilla
2 1/2 cups sifted self-rising flour
2 cups sugar

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease and flour a 13x9x2 inch baking pan. Combine butter and chocolate in small saucepan. Melt over low heat; remove pan from heat and set mixture aside to cool. Beat eggs in mixing bowl with electric mixer for about 2 minutes on medium speed. Blend in buttermilk and vanilla. Add flour and sugar to buttermilk mixture; beat until well blended. Stir in chocolate mixture. Pour batter into prepared pan. Bake for 40 to 45 minutes or until cake begins to pull away from sides of pan and toothpick inserted in center comes out clean.

Cool in pan for 10 minutes; remove from pan and cool completely on wire rack. Makes 12 to 15 servings.

After baking your First Prize Chocolate Cake, follow these easy steps.

1. Allow cake to cool, then place on a large serving platter.

2. Cut two corners off of 9-inch side to form a semicircle for the ghost's head.

3. Stand corners against sides of cakes to form the ghost's arms. Attach corners and frost cake and arms with your favorite white frosting.

4. Decorate cake as follows: Separate 2 chocolate sandwich cookies. Use 2 halves, filling side up, for eyes; press 2 black jelly bean halves into cookie filling for little eyeballs. Use a third chocolate sandwich cookie, filling side up, for mouth.

HOSPICE VOLUNTEER TRAINING

Hospice of Big Sandy will begin offering Volunteer Training classes for anyone interested in learning more about Hospice and the work it does in our community.

Classes will begin Tuesday, Oct. 23, at 6 p.m. in the meeting rooms at the First Presbyterian Church in Prestonsburg. The classes will run for six consecutive Tuesdays, from 6-8 p.m. The final class will be Tuesday, Nov. 27.

Anyone can be a Hospice Volunteer. Hospice volunteers come from all parts of our community. They perform many roles—including such services as the direct care of a patient, running errands for family members, working around the house, or helping Hospice thrive through fund raising. The only prerequisite is the willingness to share some time and energy with people who need Hospice's help.

The classes will cover areas such as dealing with loss, helping families care for a dying loved one, coping with grief, communication skills and many other areas with which Hospice helps.

Volunteers may also provide help in areas other than patient/family care. Hospice always needs people in the community who are willing to use their energy to help with public relations and fund raising.

For further information about the Volunteer Training sessions, call the Hospice office at 789-3841, Monday through Friday, from 8-4.

Highlands Regional-AARP Healthfair

Senior citizen, Charles Bumgardner receives free EKG during Highlands Regional-AARP Healthfair.

5th Annual AARP Healthfair

Highlands Regional Medical Center, along with the Jenny Wiley Chapter of American Association of Retired Persons (AARP), recently sponsored the 5th Annual AARP Healthfair.

Participants filed through the hospital corridors to receive information and routine medical examinations which were provided free, to those age 55 and older, by area medical professionals and hospital personnel.

The purpose of the annual Healthfair is to promote better healthcare among area senior citizens, and to provide early detection of, and encourage treatment of, certain medical problems. The large turnout of participants, and the enthusiasm from the volunteers and the cooperation of the dedicated professionals who assisted helped the Healthfair successfully accomplish its goal with this year's event.

Healthfair participants received blood cholesterol tests, blood pressure and pulse oximetry tests, eye exams and glaucoma tests, dental exams, EKGs, foot care exams, and computerized cancer risk profile evaluations.

This year's Healthfair also had a Sleep Disorders Specialist, Kathryn

Hansen, on hand to provide participants with information about problems connected with getting a good night's rest — a vital component to good health. Ms. Hansen is Director of the Neurodiagnostic and Sleep Disorders Center at St. Joseph Hospital in Lexington, Ky. Through a special arrangement, St. Joseph Hospital opened a Diagnostic Sleep Disorders Laboratory at Highlands earlier this year to make sleep studies more available to patients in this region.

Local healthcare professionals who donated their time to the healthfair were Garland Godsey, Dentist; Andy Elliott, Dentist; Lee Majakey, Optometrist; Michael Minix, Ophthalmologist; and Timothy A. Webb, Podiatrist.

HRMC personnel volunteering their time and services were: Patsy Sword, Stephanie Harris, Cindy Elliott, Chicita Lykins, Myra Elliott, Don Hicks, Teresa Stone, Richard Dillion, Denice Queen, Marc Schilling, Nelva Lewis, Sina Blanton, Kathy Rubado and Kimberly Scott.

Each participant also received brochures and pamphlets containing additional information concerning general healthcare with added emphasis on preventive maintenance.

Highlands conducts the AARP healthfair annually as a community service to area senior citizens to diagnose possible medical problems which would enable them to consult their family physicians for further diagnosis and treatment.

The Cabbage Patch

by Marie Harmon

On my way home last week, after taking the Cabbage Patch manuscript up to the "Times" office, I saw a crew of men raking and bagging grass clippings at the Prestonsburg High School. I stopped and talked them out of a car load. My car trunk was piled full of junk, as normal, so I could only squeeze three large bags of the clippings in the car.

Because I did not have a compost bin ready at that time, I decided to use the clippings elsewhere. My tomato patch seemed to be the perfect place, it was ready to sow in rye and vetch and to be converted into a green manure cover crop next spring. I spread 4 - 6 inches of grass clippings over part of the patch and tilled them into the soil. This part of the patch will be now getting two green manure cover crops in one year, and it will also save me a lot of work composting, turning and tilling in the spring. When you become a Senior Citizen, you look for and GRAB every work- and time-saving opportunity that comes around.

I will be interested to see if there is any difference in the looks of the two cover crops. If it shows an improvement in growth and color, grass clippings and leaves will be tilled in rather than composted in my future gardens. I will continue to compost, there are always times when the soil cannot be tilled and places where compost can be better.

Our new Sickle Bar came in on Monday and I have been trying it out today. With all the weeds and grass I have mowed down around here (with a lot more to go), I should be able to build quite a compost. It's quite a machine. We used to use a bush hog, but there was nothing to rake up the cutting with. Our tractor needs overhauling, so we decided to try a sickle bar. It mowed over half an acre and used only one pint of gas. Quite a savings over the gallon of gas the tractor would have burned (and we all know the price of gas).

Of course, I keep harvesting. Recently, I started gathering mustard and turnip greens to freeze, but I ran out of jars and lids. We should finish digging the rest of our Irish and sweet potatoes this week. Next we'll harvest the edible soy beans and dry and shell them. Because I had such a good crop last year, with plenty left over, I only planted a very small patch of soy beans this year. From the looks of this crop, each bean made two or three plants, just like beet seed. They will keep for next year's planting. Excess seed will be fed to the goats and chickens — remember, no waste!

I do not usually do this, but I want to take the time to tell my readers how much I appreciate the many good comments I have received since I began writing this column again. It seems more and more people are reading it and my husband, Leffie, always passes on kind words from the readers he meets in town.

I have never been more pleased with anything than I was with Mrs. Greene's phone call last Friday night. She told me that she had grown up on a farm and had kept a garden for many years before she moved to town. We got to talking and, before we knew it, we discovered that we knew many of the same people. Imagine, we started out as two strangers and we finished our conversation an hour-and-a-half later like old friends — all based on our shared love of good home-grown food.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Branham of Dwaile wish to announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Margaret Lynn, to Randall Mulkey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Mulkey of Dana.

The bride-elect attended Prestonsburg High School and is a graduate of Mayo State Vocational Technical School. The groom-elect is a 1983 graduate of Betsy Layne High School and attended Mayo State Vocational Technical School.

Both are currently employed by Med-Tech Ambulance, Inc., of Pikeville.

The wedding will be held at Highland Avenue Freewill Baptist Church on Saturday, Oct. 20, at 2 p.m. The gracious custom of an open church will be observed with a reception immediately following.

CITY OF MARTIN, KENTUCKY
NOTES TO FINANCIAL STATEMENTS
for the year ended June 30, 1989

1. Summary of Significant Accounting Policies

The accounting policies of the City of Martin conform to generally accepted accounting principles applicable to governmental units. The following is a summary of the more significant accounting policies.

A. Fund Accounting

The accounts of the City are organized on the basis of funds or account groups each of which is considered to be a separate fiscal and accounting entity. Each fund is accounted for by providing a separate set of self-balancing accounts that is comprised of its assets, liabilities, reserves, fund equity, revenues and expenditures or expenses as appropriate.

Governmental Fund Types are those through which most governmental functions are financed. The governmental fund measurement focus is upon determination of financial position and budgetary control over revenues and expenditures. Proprietary Fund Types are used to account for operations that are financed and operated in a manner similar to business enterprises - where intent of the governing body is that costs of providing services be financed or recovered primarily through user charges.

The following funds are used by the City of Martin:

Governmental Fund Types
General Fund - The general operating fund of the City is used to account for all financial resources except those required to be accounted for in another fund.

Proprietary Fund Types
Water Fund - A proprietary fund used to account for the water utility services provided to the residents of the City of Martin, the operations of which are financed by user charges.

Sewer Fund - A proprietary fund used to account for sewer utility services provided to the residents of the City of Martin, the operation of which are financed by user charges.

NOTES TO FINANCIAL STATEMENTS
for the year ended June 30, 1989

B. Basis of Accounting

Basis of Accounting refers to when revenues and expenditures or expenses are recognized in the accounts and reported in the financial statements. Basis of accounting relates to the timing of the measurements made, regardless of the measurement focus applied.

All governmental funds are accounted for using the modified accrual basis of accounting. Under the modified accrual basis of accounting, revenues are recognized when they become measurable and available. Expenditures are generally recognized under the modified accrual basis of accounting when the related fund liability is incurred. Exceptions to this general rule include principal and interest on general long-term debt which is recognized when due.

C. Budgeting

The City follows the procedures established pursuant to Section 91A.030 of the Kentucky Revised Statutes in establishing the budgetary data reflected in the financial statements. Budgets for all funds are adopted on a basis consistent with generally accepted accounting principles.

Budgeted amounts in the financial statements are as adopted by ordinance of the City.

D. Other Accounting Policies

Investments are stated at cost.

Utility plant in service is stated at cost, except as described in Note 2. Depreciation has been provided using the straight-line method.

General fixed asset purchases are recorded as expenditures in the general fund and revenue sharing fund at the time of purchase. Such assets should be capitalized at cost in the general fixed asset group of accounts except for certain improvements including roads, bridges, curbs and gutters, streets and sidewalks and drainage systems. No depreciation has been provided on general fixed assets.

for the year ended June 30, 1989

Account receivable are net of allowances for uncollectible amounts. The General Fund has receivables of $14,503 and are fully reserved. The Proprietary Funds have receivables of $21,061 and have an allowance of $6,703.

Deferred revenues represent grant revenues received but unearned. Revenues are recognized when eligible expenditures are incurred.

Total columns on the combined statements are captioned Memorandum Only to indicate that they are presented only to facilitate financial analysis. Data in these columns do not present financial positions, results of operations, or changes in financial position in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles. Neither is such data comparable to a consolidation. Interfund eliminations have not been made in the aggregation of this data.

2. Fixed Assets

The City has not maintained an adequate record of its general fixed assets, therefore the combined balance sheet does not include the General Fixed Assets Account Group, as required by generally accepted accounting principles.

The City has not maintained an adequate record of its proprietary fixed assets. The proprietary fixed assets consist of the existing water and sewer systems which are considered fully depreciated and the financial statements reflect the original systems with offsetting accumulated depreciation.

During the year ended June 30, 1987 the City completed the improvements to its water system. The project's cost was $1,417,576 and was financed by grants of $1,164,000 and FMAA loan of $279,000. The project incurred additional cost during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1988 of $22,792 and accordingly the total project cost was $1,443,928 of which $1,440,368 was capitalized as cost.

The City is required to pay $808 per month to a trust account at First National Bank of Cincinnati for debt service. The trustee pays all bonds and coupons as they mature. At June 30, 1988 the trust account balance was $38,109.

The City issued $279,000 of "City of Martin Water System Revenue Bonds, Series of 1985" dated January 23, 1986 for the purpose of constructing major improvements to the water system. 4. Reserves

The City of Martin revenue bond ordinances require the maintenance of certain reserves for the purpose of payment of debt service costs on the bonds. The sewer bonds require monthly transfers of $808 from the sewer revenue to the trust account at First National Bank of Cincinnati. The bonds and coupons are paid from this account as they become due. Excess funds are invested and a corresponding reserve is maintained in the Sewer Fund. The balance of this reserve at June 30, 1989 was $41,841.

The water bonds require monthly transfers of $140 from the water revenues to an account at First Guaranty National Bank titled "FMAA Reserve Account". This account had a balance at June 30, 1989 of $4,292.

The deed which contains the legal description to the property may be examined at the Office of the Floyd County Court Clerk in Deed Book 218, Page 244 and Deed Book 221, Page 311. Farmers Home Administration holds a First Mortgage Lien on this property that will be released after the sale.

TERMS: CASH, or 10% of the bid price on the day of sale with good and sufficient bond for the balance, bearing interest at the legal rate as set forth on the Judgement and Order of Sale filed with the U.S. District Court, until paid, due and payable 30 days from the date of sale, and said bond having the effect of a judgement.
