(FSPK); and a 55.4 cents motor vehicle tax.

The FSPK tax is part of Kentucky's Education Reform Act to allow school districts to receive extra funding, referred to as Tier 1 funding.

The committee's report said the tax rate would produce $27,219,166 in revenue for the school district. The revenue was based on an 80 percent collection rate from the sheriff's department, Ratliff said. A higher collection rate on the sheriff's part would result in extra funds for the district, he said.

Recommendations specified that salary increases for administrative personnel be based on their base salary, not salary totals including extended employment and extra service pay.

Frazier

the board secretary.

The position of board secretary, established by state law, is charged with recording of school board minutes and the secretary is the official custodian of all school records.

At its July 23 meeting, the Floyd board voted 5-0 to replace Hager as board secretary with Frazier, but a second vote was recorded at an August 8 meeting after Hager protested his ouster. Frazier's appointment was upheld at that meeting by a 3-2 vote, prompting Hager to file suit against the board.

In his complaint, Hager contended he had been awarded a contract in 1988 to serve as board secretary for four years for a salary of $2,400 per year. That contract apparently was altered by the board in 1990 after the state's General Assembly enacted an amendment to state law which prohibited superintendents from being paid for acting as board secretaries. In 1990 the board eliminated the $2,400 paid Hager as a secretary but his salary as superintendent was increased later to compensate the loss. Board minutes from that 1990 session also indicate Hager was reappointed as board secretary only for the 1990-91 year.

Referring to the changes in state law and the 1990 board meeting minutes, school board attorney Cliff Latta argued in last Friday's court hearing that Hager's 1988 contract was no longer effective and Hager had suffered no monetary loss because his salary was not reduced when he was replaced by Frazier as board secretary.

Judge Frazier made no comments on the merits of either side's arguments in his order Monday denying Hager's request for a temporary injunction.

Prestonsburg Mayor Ann Latta sweetened that proposal earlier Monday during the public comment session of the meeting by saying that the city would purchase the existing Prestonsburg Elementary school as the learning center for the Kentucky Opry.

"This sale could take place at such a time as the board designates, and will provide additional ready funding for the high school/grade school project," Latta said. "The city is also proposing that it lease the present elementary school auditorium from the board, beginning this fall."

The mayor also cited an increase in response time for emergency vehicles if the school was built at the Middle Creek site.

"The difference between an emergency run to Clark School (across from the Middle Creek site) and the present high school is over two minutes," Latta said. "That may not sound like a lot of time, but in two minutes, a person can bleed to death. It only takes five to seven minutes when a person stops breathing for the brain to die. ... It's the difference between a major fire, with possible injuries, Floyd County Education Association (FCEA) president Carol Stumbo said after the committee's recommendations were presented to the board that the teacher's group plans "will go ahead" until the salary schedules are approved by the board. She did not elaborate on those plans.

"If you (the board) pay teachers well, Floyd Countians have the right to demand a good education," Stumbo said. "We're still concerned about teachers going back to work under the same conditions as last year. We can't have this war continue between teachers and administrators. We can't work if we're all angry. We need to work together to help educate the children of this county."

About 150 teachers, students and parents held a rally before Monday's board meeting asking for a concentrated effort to improve education in Floyd County.

Stumbo asked those gathered outside Betsy Layne High School to see what was wrong with the school system and work together to make it right.

"We (teachers) are not going to stop until that happens," Stumbo said. "If we don't get what we came after, then we'll keep coming back. This year can be a victory for us."

Becky Allen, a student at Wheelwright High School and president of the student council, said that community involvement in the school system was needed to improve education.

"We have the best teachers, but they can't do it all," Allen said. "We need modern equipment and the proper supplies. Teachers can't teach without the board of education's cooperation. We support the teachers."

Ruth Meade, a parent, said more parents need to become involved in the school system and if Floyd Countians were not happy with their board members they "need to vote them out" of office.

"If you don't like what you've got, get rid of them," Meade said. "My daughter is a teacher in Floyd County that's ready to leave because she don't have the materials she needs to teach."

Speaking on behalf of the business community, Dolores Smith told the crowd that the business community wanted to work toward improving education in Floyd County.

"The business community wants students who can think and work," Smith said. "They want students who can fill out a job application. We want students prepared when they come into the workforce in Floyd County. We need a team concept to all work together in this county; we need to get on the same side. The side of the children."

and a controllable one. It's the difference between a fist fight and a brawl."

Board members made no comment during Latta's proposal, given approximately two hours before the discussion on Billips' proposal.

The Middle Creek site has been an issue of controversy since last October when the board voted to purchase the site for $400,000 and allow the owner, David May, to retain the rights to any coal uncovered during excavation. May later gave the coal rights back to the school board.

Since January, after Billips took his seat on the board, a group of Middle Creek residents have launched a campaign to insure the high school be built on that site.

At the May board meeting, the group's spokesman, John Sammons, said the group was preparing to take legal action against the board if the school was not built at Middle Creek.

At Monday's meeting, Billips said if the alternate proposal was feasible the board could sell the Middle Creek site.

Board member Tommy Boyd gave the second to Billips' motion and Chairman Ray "Shag" Campbell joined for the 3-2 majority vote authorizing the study.

Floyd County Arts

BUILDING AN ART COMMUNITY

Members of the Floyd County Arts group held their monthly meeting last Thursday. Brenda Lee Crouch chaired the meeting.

Crouch told members present about her recent participation in a co-op workshop held at the Harley Motel in Lexington. The workshop, sponsored by the Kentucky Art and Craft Foundation and the Kentucky Marketing Program, highlighted the legal aspects of marketing crafts. Crouch said she made tapes of the seminars which discuss craft laws, pricing, production and the forms required to operate craft businesses.

Crouch also asked members to encourage community leaders to attend a craft-co-op management workshop coming up on October 19 at Carter Caves. Kentucky is encouraging its communities to get involved in the craft enterprise, an added bonus to tourists.

Also discussed at the meeting was the Year of the Craft for 1993 which is creating quite a bit of excitement across the nation. Communities throughout the United States are encouraging craftspersons to plan special events throughout the year, since it is a year-long celebration.

Crouch said Floyd County needs to begin preparations now in order to be listed in national printings promoting the event. Floyd County artists and craftspersons were asked to contribute their ideas to make area events memorable.

This year, Floyd County has several festivals scheduled in which Floyd County artists can participate. The Squirrel Festival held annually on Slone Mountain is a festival of handcrafted goodies and homemade food. Since participants will be crafting their work at the site, festival goers will get a rare look at the hard work and the skill that goes into creating a craft.

Area artists may also display their work at Highlands Folk Festival at Jenny Wiley State Park. Crouch said those interested in participating should contact her soon in order to have a spot available. Members talked about the possibility of purchasing a tent to use at festivals.

Jenny Wiley Festival and Red, White and Blue Day are also opportunities for the group to display their works. The possibility of holding a Winter Fest was also discussed. Those interested in displaying their work as a group, should contact her for dates.

In order to expedite the initiation of the organization, a committee was formed to get the by-laws together. The committee consists of Duna Combs, Stella Greene and Janice Shepherd. Findings will be reported at the next general membership meeting.

Other business discussed at the meeting included a report of the board meeting held earlier, an update on the tourist brochure, and new business cards. Crouch told the group that the Times had published notes about the board meeting. She also said that events concerning the art group will appear regularly.

The Chamber of Commerce is in the process of compiling its tourist brochure and has included the names and addresses of approximately thirty Floyd County craftspersons.

Simple, initial business cards for Floyd County Arts is also in the process of being printed. These cards will be used when the group displays their wares as Floyd County Arts. Later, Crouch said, artists will redesign the cards using a logo which will be designed in the future. There will be a place on the card for artists to hand write their name and address.

Two new faces were welcomed at the meeting. James Daniel of Harold and Stella Greene, both members of the organization since its inception, had been unable to attend. Daniel displays his wares nationally and works with overseas marketing. He expressed interest in the future catalog planned by the group.

Two members of the art group also reported on exhibits. Susan Sanders, with Blue River Handweaving, participated in a juried exhibit at Woodland Arts Fair, Woodland Park, Lexington, Saturday, August 17. The fair also featured music; food booths were available. Promoters of the event are expecting about 20,000 people to attend. About 120-130 craftspersons participated. Hours are Saturday, 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. and Sunday, noon until 6 p.m.

Russell Rice of East Point received an invitation to participate in an exhibit, Kentucky Spirit: The Native Tradition, at Owensboro this weekend. The display is an exhibit of Kentucky self-taught artists and craftspersons. It will be held in the prestigious Owensboro Museum of Fine Arts August 17 through September 22. A banquet was held Saturday night, and open house was held Sunday.

Area artists and craftspersons who will be participating in special events should contact Brenda Lee Crouch, or call the Floyd County Times in order to have this information published in the regular news article.

Members attending this meeting were Jodi Blackburn, Janice Shepherd, Cleve Shepherd, James Daniel, Russell Rice, Duna Combs, Stella Greene, Susan Sanders, Don Bailey and Brenda Lee Crouch.

Christ United Methodist Church women meet

Christ United Methodist Women held their monthly meeting in the Fellowship Hall of the church at Allen on August 13. Vice-President Cathy Campbell called the meeting to order and opened with prayer. Treasurer Debbie Adkins gave the treasurer's report. Secretary Linda Rice read the minutes from the previous meeting. Both reports were approved.

Mary Elswick and Kiki Bentley gave the program. All the ladies enjoyed said they enjoyed her talk.

Marena Hale read "The Purpose of United Methodist Women".

Members also discussed the club's annual Christmas Bazaar, which will be held November 2 in the Fellowship Hall of the church.

After the business meeting was adjourned, the hostesses, Elizabeth Bailey and Delores Bradley, served refreshments to members: Cathy Campbell, Debbie Adkins, Kiki Bentley, Marena Hale, Cheryl Hughes, Kay Lemaster, Connie McKinney, Jeri Mullins, Bertha Ratliff, Myrtle Ratliff, Linda Rice and Jean Watson. Visitors present were Mary Elswick, Doris Clark and Valerie Goins.

Elizabeth Bailey will give the program in September, and hostesses will be Kiki Bentley and Lisa Bertrand.

Trojan Panorama Draws Large Crowd

Hand off to Kidd!

Jamie Kidd (32) took a hand off from Bryan Combs (1) and picked up 8-yards on the carry as the Bobcats got by Allen Central 14-6 in the Trojan Panorama. Kidd carried the ball nine times for 28-yards. (photo by Ed Taylor)

Bobcats Don't Quit In Rallying Past Allen Central 14-6

Before the game started, Betsy Layne and Allen Central were 0-0 as high school football nears. After the game, both teams were still 0-0 with football nearing. But no one could ever convince the Bobcats of Betsy Layne that they were 0-0 after posting a 14-6 come-from-behind win over the Rebels in the second game of the Trojan Panorama at Wheelwright Saturday evening.

Adam Roberts plunged across the goal line for pay dirt from 1-yard out to tie the Rebels at 6-6. After an off-side penalty on the conversion play, Jamie Kidd broke tackle and scampered into the end zone to give the Bobcats their first lead at 8-6.

The big difference in the game came in the form of penalties. Allen Central was assessed 95 yards unofficially in penalties, while Betsy Layne was flagged for 50 yards in penalties.

On the ground, Allen Central had 147-yards and 42 yards through the air for a total offense of 189-yards. That was 56 yards better than Betsy Layne in total offense as the Bobcats mopped 133-yards in offense with 120-yards coming on the ground and just 13 by air.

Bryan Combs had two completions for the 13-yards while Rebel quarterback Brad Scott hit his receivers for 42-yards on two completions. His longest was a 36-yard hook up with Jamie Slone late in the fourth quarter.

Allen Central hit pay dirt first in the beginning 15 minutes of the game on a 70-yard sweep around left end at the 3:41 mark, to give the Rebels a 6-0 lead. The Rebels had taken over the football on their own 30-yard line. Slone and John Parrott moved the ball to the Rebels' 27 when Slone took a hand off from quarterback Brad Scott and found an opening in the line on the left side. The conversion play failed.

The game remained 6-0 until the end of the first half (game was played in two 15-minute halves).

The ability of the Bobcats to move the football on the ground against Allen Central showed the loss the Rebels suffered on the defensive line after graduating 16 seniors. The ground game of Betsy Layne was a very pleasant sight for the Bobcats' coaching staff.

"I told the kids at half time that we allowed them to score on mental errors," said Coach Alan Osborne, who is the principal at Betsy Layne High School, and who also is helping out with the team until a coach is named.

"We felt comfortable that we do things on the ground against Allen Central in the second half. Our kids did not quit and they came back. It was all a matter of mental attitude. I think we will be a passing team and that will give our runners some running room," said Osborne.

Osborne also said that after the panorama game his team needs to concentrate more on offense.

"Face masking cost us 45-yards in penalties," said Rebel mentor Dewey Jamerson, who is in his second year as the Rebels' head coach. "I felt the effort was there from our team, and I guess we thought we had it won and just let them back into it."

The panorama loss didn't seem to affect the outlook of Jamerson for his team. "Brad (Scott) will come along at quarterback, and we'll be alright. We'll do fine," he said. "In the first half, we moved the ball well and I was really impressed with our pass protection. The Betsy Layne defense did not get to Brad one time. The interception hurt us a lot. The receiver just ran the wrong route."

The interception set up the first score for the Bobcats when Doug Hammond picked off a Scott pass and returned the football 41-yards. After getting a "nose of the football" first down on the first series of plays, Betsy Layne then scored to tie the game and then take the lead on their conversion.

Betsy Layne drove the nails in the coffin when they scored on a 1-yard plunge by James Keathley with 10 seconds showing on the clock.

Phelps, Trojans Play To Tie In Wheelwright Panorama

After 30 minutes of football (two 15 minute halves) the Phelps Hornets and Wheelwright Trojans settled nothing as they played to a 0-0 stand-off. In fact it was all defense as the Trojans had to make their breaks on defense when their running game got bogged down.

The only score of the game was called back when Phelps Kevin Hurley ran 33-yards for what appeared to be a Hornet touchdown. However, a face masking call up field nullified the score and Phelps was penalized 15 yards. Phelps moved the ball back to the Wheelwright 29-yard line only to stall out as the Trojan defense held in the trenches.

Wheelwright, which has been blessed with depth in the backfield, had a hard time getting untracked as the offensive could not shift gears in gaining only 37-yards total offense. Seventeen yards came on the ground, while the other 20 was through the air.

It was the "yellow flags" that kept the Hornets at bay as they were flagged nine times for 55-yards including the called back score.

"We have a long way to go," said Coach Donnie Daniels of his team's offensive outing. "However, there were some positives in the game. We showed good second and third efforts at times. There was a lot of effort on the part of the players. We just didn't execute well at all but, that will come later."

Sharing the same sentiments as his coach, senior Marty Tackett said, "A few more practices and the offense will come for us. That really is the first offense that we have run." Tackett was pleased with the defensive outing of the Trojans.

Phelps seemed to run at will against the defensive line of the Trojans as Kevin Hurley gained 79-yards on 11 carries. It was the tandem of Hurley, Bo Wolford and Chris Compton that found holes in the Trojans defense.

"We were worried about contact out there," said Daniels. "I thought our kids adjusted good to it and we gave them some problems. Our kids never did bend. We ran a new offense and had some break downs in it but, they are going have to get accustomed to it, we are not going to change the offense or the defense."

While Wheelwright had trouble moving the football, the potential is there for a potent backfield. Steven Jackson carried the ball only three times for a low seven yards. Arnold Adams, whom the Trojans coaching staff is relying on a lot this year, rushed for nine yards on four carries. Ryan Johnson ended up with a minus five yards, and Chuck Hutton carried one time for six yards.

"We will be alright," he said. "We're an average team, but you win when you get above average. I'm pleased with the team this time of year. We're anxious to get started."

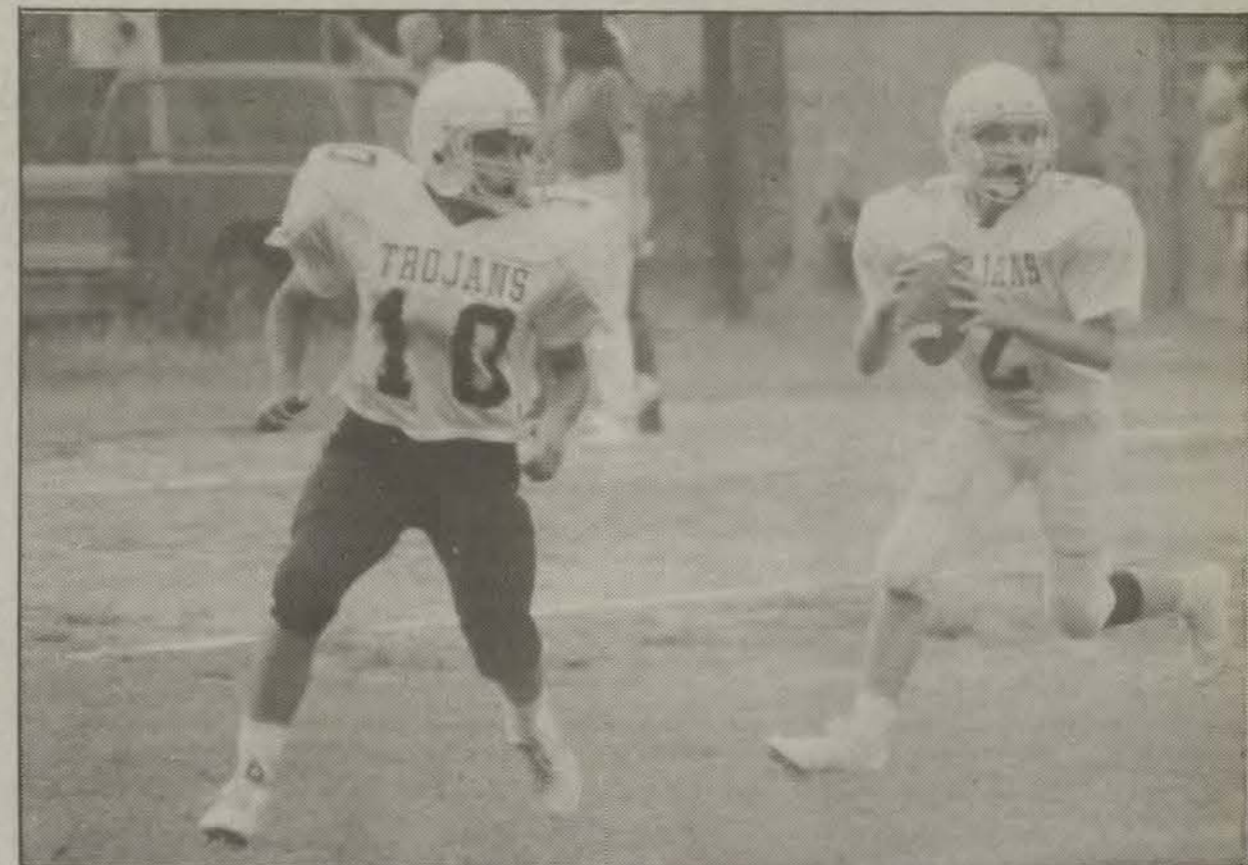

Wolford carried 11 times for the Hornets for 60 yards. Quarterback Danny Kidd had a minus six yards on four carries. He was sacked twice in the game by the Trojan defense. The surprise for the Hornets was the performance of Chris Compton who came on late in the game and rushed for 50 yards on four carries.

Wheelwright had only the one first down while the Hornets picked up five. Wheelwright's defense caused the Hornets to fumble the football once with Chuck Hutton recovering the pig skin. Wheelwright was one-for-one in the fumble department as they coughed the ball up twice recovering the ball once.

The Trojans were penalized four times unofficially for 30-yards while the Hornets suffered 55-yards on nine calls. Off sides or illegal procedure calls were the most frequent against the Hornets.

Wheelwright had a total offense of 37 yards with 17 rushing and 20 by air. Phelps amassed 189 yards total

Kiwanis Golf Outing Decided By Sudden Death

After 18 holes of golf Saturday at the Jenny Wiley Golf Course, it took an extra seven to decide who would claim the number one title as over 70 golfers took part in the annual Kiwanis Club Golf Tournament.

"It undoubtedly was the best tournament we have had," said Ted Hall, tournament director. "Many golfers came to me and told me this was the best tournament they had played in."

Hall said that the donations to the tournament was down some but, all in all, everything went well as the tournament gave away some nice prizes.

The four-man scramble team of Troy Branham, Jimmy Branham, Matt Crum and Marty Gibson won the playoff on the seventh hole over the team of Ralph Clark, Randy Kidd, Tommy Roope, Wade Baldwin and John Hale. Why five? "Because they had no 'A' player on their team like the others," explained Hall.

With each team finishing 11-under par, Troy Branham chipped in a 15-yard putt to win the tournament for his team on the seventh hole. The other three team members had failed and it all came down to Branham's shot.

Third place went to the team of Terry Sizemore, Aaron Crum, Tommy Gibson and Craig Coleman. Again it took a three-hole playoff to determine third place in the Kiwanis outing. The team made up of Steve Halbert, Wes Halbert, Richard Stewart and Shinn Robinson battled the third place finishers as each squad finished 10 under par.

The top three finishers were not the only award winners. Kenny Damron had a putt of 22-feet to win the "longest putt" title. Damron came home with a $50 gift certificate from Helig-Myers.

The Closest-To-The-Circle prize went to Charlie Clatworthy who won a zip up bag loaded with a lot of goodies such as dinner for two, two visors, free pizza, caps and other items valued at $150.

Terry Sizemore won the Closest-To-The-Hole on hole number six. Sizemore won dinner for two and free pizza.

Hall explained the Closest-To-The-Circle award. "I put the circle out there where the good golfers don't want to hit. Like on a hill in the trees," he said. "That way anybody can win." The Longest Drive came off the iron of Ralph Clark. Clark won 40 Lotto American Lottery tickets. The closest to the Money Hole went to Tommy Gibson who pocketed $50 in cold cash. There was a second and third place winner in the Money Hole game. The second place winner received $25 in cash and the third place finisher won $10.

There was no John Daly look alike in this tournament but Todd Duff perhaps was the closest as he won a dozen roses for Closest-To-The-Hole on the number five hole.

Closest-To-The-Circle on the "V" path at number nine went to Dick Clark (no handstand relation). Clark won a car care kit for his achievement.

Putter-Of-The-Day went to Stewart Hall who had three birdies and an eagle. Hall was playing with a cast on his right arm.

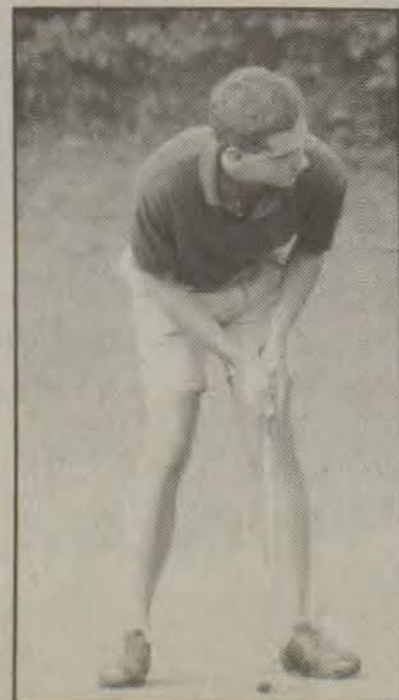

Three ladies took part in this year's Kiwanis tournament and fared well, Pat Duff, who had a birdie on the first hole to put her team one under par at the start, Orilla McGuire and Debbie Rollins.

"The ladies in the tournament really loved it," said Hall. "Everyone seemed to have a good time."

All participants in the tournament received a thermo-cup that was donated by Super America; a golf packet that included greens repair kit, tee's and other items; and a free coupon for a large drink from Kentucky Fried Chicken.

Hall said that a lot of prizes were given away in the tournament's raffle. "We gave away clocks, calculators, Russell May prints, Coleman coolers, hats, dinner for two, pizza coupons as well as numerous other items," Hall listed.

Jones Funeral Home Sweeps Central Finance

"Basketball is easier!"

Prestonsburg Blackcat head basketball coach Gordon Parido stood as he watched his putt go wide in golf tournament play at Jenny Wiley Saturday. The coach never gave up. (photo by Ed Taylor)

R.S. Jones Funeral Home of Virgie swept the Central Finance team in a doubleheader 10-2 in the first game and a shutout 4-0 victory in game two.

In the first game, five players collected two hits each for Jones Funeral Home for a 10-2 win. Leading the hit parade for the winners was James Tackett with a triple in the first inning when R.S. Jones scored one run. R.S. Jones added four more runs in the third inning to take a 5-0 lead. Mike Justice, Doug Spears and Gene Tackett had RBIs in the third inning.

Central Finance scored a single run in the fourth inning when Bill Hammonds singled and advanced to third on a base hit by Willie Johnson. Hammonds scored on a sacrifice fly by Mark Helton.

R.S. Jones made it a 9-1 game with four more runs in their half of the fifth inning. A one out base hit by Mike Justice and Spears two single put two runners in scoring position for R.S. Jones. Tackett walked to load the bases and two runs came around to score on Andy Akers' two-run single. R.S. Jones scored their final run in the bottom of the sixth on back to back base hits by David Henderson and Chris Caldwell. Henderson scored when Hamilton's grounder to shortstop was misplayed.

Central Finance scored their final run after Bill Hall singled leading off the seventh and later came around on a fielder's choice.

In game two, Spears collected four hits in the game to lead R.S. Jones to a 4-0 victory. Gene Tackett was the winning pitcher as he allowed Central Finance only three hits in the contest. R.S. Jones collected 13 hits. Central Finance committed four errors in the game.

Mickey Johnson had a triple for the winners as Andy Akers, Johnson, John Little and James Tackett helped contribute to the second game win.

Bill Hammonds, Terry Hall and Elmer Tackett had the only three hits for Central Finance.

Three consecutive base hits by Spears, Tackett and Akers set up the two runs in the first inning for R.S. Jones. Spears and Tackett scored on Akers base hit.

In the second frame, Caldwell reached on an error and later scored on a single by Mickey Johnson. The final run crossed the plate in the third for R.S. Jones on a leadoff base hit by Spears and James Tackett's RBI single.

Grade School Football Season Could Be In Trouble Because of Basketball

"There goes the grade school football season," say some of the fans around the county since school is getting a later start. Usually in September the grade school basketball teams are either practicing or, some, already playing games.

All this means is, once the practice starts for basketball, it takes the kids out of grade school football. That, in turn, ruins any chance of a high school having a successful feeder system for their teams.

"If we don't have a feeder school we won't have a high school football season before long," said Betsy Layne assistant coach Gerald Newsome.

"The feeder schools are the heart and soul of high school football," explained Jimbo Bailey of Maytown. Bailey was one of several that worked with other parents to form the Little Allen Central Rebels grade school football team. The team was made up of players from Martin, Maytown and Duff schools.

The answer to the problem of feeder schools for our football teams lies in setting weeks for grade school football and other dates for grade school basketball.

Most grade school principals want the grade school championship tournament over by the Christmas break. That means starting the basketball season early in September. The argument also is that grade school basketball generates revenue while football doesn't.

If we in Floyd County do not regulate the seasons so that one doesn't interfere with the other, then football in our county is in trouble.

Grade school basketball could be put on hold until the middle of October and run the football season to the first of October. That would give the grade schools two weeks of practice. The basketball season could run up to the Christmas break and the championship tournament completed when school reconvenes in January.

I know the principals want the season over before the Christmas break but sometimes adjustments need to be made to fit both seasons. I certainly hope that the educators will take a look at the grade school football program and come up with some workable plan that will save the dying programs in Floyd County.

BANANA CREAM PIE IN ALMOND CRUST

- pastry
 3/4 c. softened butter
 1/2 c. sugar
 1 egg
 1 1/4 c. ground toasted almonds
 1 1/2 c. all-purpose flour
 1/8 tsp. salt
 1/8 tsp. baking powder
- 1 1/2 tsp. unflavored gelatin
 3 tsp. cold water
 1 tsp. vanilla
 1 cup milk
 3 egg yolks
 1/3 c. sugar
 1 tsp. cornstarch
 1/8 tsp. salt
 1 1/4 c. whipping cream, divided
 4 ripe bananas, sliced
 1/3 c. confectioners sugar
 1 banana, sliced for garnish

Pastry: Beat butter and sugar together until light and fluffy, beat in egg until smooth. Combine almonds, flour, salt and baking powder; stir in butter mixture until well combined. Divide into two balls, wrap in plastic and flatten. Freeze one for later use. Refrigerate the other ball for one hour. Then roll between two sheets of waxed paper into an 11-inch circle. Fit it in a 9 inch pie plate. Freeze for 20 minutes. Meanwhile, preheat oven to 350°. Line pie plate with foil; fill with dried beans. Bake 15 minutes, remove foil and beans and bake pastry 10 minutes or until golden brown. Cool completely.

Sprinkle gelatin over water, let soften 5 minutes. In medium saucepan bring milk and vanilla to boil. Meanwhile, combine sugar, cornstarch and salt. Whisk in egg yolks. Gradually whisk hot milk into egg yolk mixture. Return to saucepan, bringing to boil, whisking constantly. Reduce heat to low and cook two minutes, whisking. Remove from heat and stir in gelatin until completely dissolved. Refrigerate, stirring occasionally, about 35-40 minutes. Beat 3/4 c. cream to soft peaks. Gently fold in gelatin mixture. Fold in bananas and pour into cooled crust. Refrigerate 2 hours. Beat remaining cream to soft peaks. Add confectioners' sugar and beat until stiff. Spoon on top of pie. Garnish with additional bananas and serve.

Cabbage Patch

By Nell Harmon

The tuberous begonia will give you a profusion of blooms that last well into late fall. They are known, falsely, as being hard to raise and delicate; when all the time they need good soil conditions only. A good, well-drained, organic rich garden loam is all that these beauties require, unless you over-water them.

Tuberous begonias should be planted in late March or early April after the tiny pink buds begin to show. Set them in a nursery flat, moving them to a warm place but away from the light. When they get a good start, and are not damaged by moisture and excessive temperature changes, they will develop into sturdy, mature plants with few or no problems. Give enough space between tubers for plenty of early root growth. The success of your begonias depend on the early root growth.

Any sogginess in the rooting medium will severely retard the growth, and the tubers will die in a matter of a few days in a too moist mixture. This is the main problem of all plants, unless they require lots and lots of water. Few don't!

Place flats in the mild spring sun every day until a strong root system is developed. Moving the flats every day for the required sun and into a warm place at night, can become tiresome. Any moving of plants become tiresome to me at times, but I forget all about that after they are placed outside and start producing — be it flowers or vegetables.

Plants that have three or five leaves are ready to put into pots or put into the garden. Place a couple of tablespoons of fish meal in the bottom of the pot or in the hole in which they will be planted in the open garden. Do not use regular fertilizers or manure around the plants. Always use organic fertilizer. Apply liquid fish fertilizer about two weeks after the plants have been reset and are established. If needed, use this same fertilizer every two weeks.

Water only when the top of the soil is dry, as stated earlier. Water fanatics (and I am one) can spoil a begonia plant, even if the soil and climate are perfect. When conditions are right, the begonia is a fast, vigorous grower with its own way of telling you what it needs, when conditions are not right.

If it grows leggy, too tall with small leaves and no blooms, it has too little sunlight. Filtered sun that produces blooms without burning the leaves are best. If the plants grow broad leaves, squat and looks healthy without producing flowers, the soil is too rich in nitrogen. Withhold fertilizer long enough to allow the plant to use up excess nitrogen. If plants get mildew, stalks rot off and the leaves turn yellowish, you are not watering correctly. Water in the early morning to avoid mildew. Allow no water to stand around the plants. Keep the soil mounds away from the base of the plants.

Begonia need an acid soil, high in nitrogen. When the organic mixture is right, you will have no problems.

The first year is generally the hardest to grow begonias, unless you luck in. Their beautiful blooms will charm and delight you for well over 3 months. I gave up on the tuberous begonia the first year I tried them. Then I started asking questions of the neighbors who raised such pretty ones — BINGO—I did everything wrong. But no more.

RETIREMENT COMMUNITY OPTIONS CONFERENCE

Never before held in the state of Kentucky, the nationally popular preretirement/retirement living conference will be presented by the author of RETIREMENT LIVING ALTERNATIVES USA: THE INSIDE STORY, H. Wilson Worley. Mr. Worley's book (a $9.95 value) will be presented without charge to each household along with other copyrighted material.

Thousands have highly acclaimed this conference for its dissemination of information not available from any other source. During the two-hour session, participants will review full-service preretirement and retirement living concepts through a color slide series of communities from the east to the west coast.

In addition, a new and different concept in active preretirement/retirement living being considered for eastern Kentucky will be discussed to determine its potential for active adults desiring a full menu of services from home and yard maintenance to security and health/fitness programs. The concept offers options not found in lifecare, entrance fee, expensive rental packages, or resort communities. Each participant will be asked to complete a single written survey to provide direction for the development and the public's acceptance of this community.

The conference is free of charge. However, seating is limited and will be by reservation only.

Please call Ann Martin, (606) 886-9558, Monday through Friday from noon to 8:00 p.m. or write for reservations for you and your friends to RETIREMENT CONFERENCE, P.O. Box 787, Prestonsburg, KY 41653 for one of the times and locations below:
