Towns flooded, roads blocked 'as steady rainfall swells creeks

by Dodie Webb and Susan Allen Staff Writers

Three-and-a-half days of steady rain pushed Floyd County streams out of their banks Monday and swelled the Big Sandy River to within five feet of flood stage in Prestonsburg Tuesday.

The Big Sandy was expected to crest at 7 p.m. Tuesday at 35.4 feet. Flood stage is 40 feet.

Though the river posed only a moderate threat of flooding, many low lying areas in Floyd County were swamped Monday and Tuesday by rainfall that measured an average of 4.5 inches between Friday evening covered roadways Monday evening and Tuesday morning.

During that period, rainfall at David was measured at 4.68 inches while at McDowell, Martin and Toler. By

Funding for water extension finalized:

Five-year battle won

by Susan Allen Staff Writer

Outgoing Governor Wallace Wilkinson has provided the missing link to an effort to bring water to one of the most thirsty areas of Floyd County.

The announcement last month of a $7.1 million project to furnish clean drinking water to approximately 1,500 households in 15 communities on Left and Right Beaver brought to a close a six-year search for funding.

A $2 million state grant coupled with a $4.1 million low interest loan and projected revenue from new customer tap on fees will fund the water development project, said David Gardner with the Big Sandy Area Development District.

The funds will be used to expand Beaver Elkhorn Water District's plant capacity to provide 1.6 million gallons of water daily, allow for construction of nine water towers and installation of new water lines, primarily in Left Beaver.

"Everybody's been trying to get funding, one kind or another, for five or six years for water lines in Left Beaver," Gardner said. "The people in that area need water tomorrow, but

Gardner estimated that the project should be complete in about 18 months, but he added that design work could begin immediately.

"Now that we have the funding

Bar Association boosts food drive

The Floyd County Bar Association has helped stock the shelves of the six local food pantries by donating $1,470 thanks to their fifth annual fund raising drive. John Rosenberg, Treasurer of the

Floyd County Bar Association, said Monday that in the past the fund raising event was usually held between Thanksgiving and Christmas. "Due to the difficult financial conditions of the food pantries, the bar association moved the drive up to have the money available by Thanksgiving this year," Rosenberg said.

The contribution was presented to Tim Jessen, sponsor of the local

Dr. Penney Sanders, head of the Office of Education Accountability (OEA), said Monday that OEA investigators will be in Floyd County this week to talk with school officials about matters that "are currently under review in Floyd County." She declined to elaborate on specific issues and she would neither confirm nor deny that the scope of the investigation would be broadened after the intial review was completed. The OEA, established by the state legislature to police implementation of the 1990 Kentucky Education Reform Act (KERA), has made headlines recently in connection with

Education Accountability review of Boyd County, Harlan County and

In Boyd County, an OEA probe led to the resignation of superintendent Delmas Donta, while in Harlan County, charges have been filed against all five members of that county's board of education. Harlan superintendent Robert W. Shepherd also resigned under OEA fire, but Shepherd was hired by his replacement, Grace Ann Tolliver, as the system's coordinator of technology.

Under pressure from state Education Commissioner Thomas Boysen, Tolliver has apparently agreed to fire Shepherd from his new position.

No charges have been filed yet as a result of the OEA's investigation into the Letcher County system.

Members Burl Shepherd, Debbie Wet weather and high water made Stumbo and Eddie Patton discussed the budget for about an hour and a half before giving approval to the document. Questions were raised concerning a 6.1 percent employee pay raise, money allotted for a tenant service worker and approval of a budget for the Section 8 Housing program.

Executive director Julia May explained to the board that the 6.1 percent pay increase was based on an increase county employees received and that housing authority employees were county employees. May said the increase would not take effect until July 1, 1992, because that's when the county's fiscal year begins. May said the 6.1 increase was plugged into the budget based on last year's pay raise for county employees.

Patton asked that the board not vote on pay raises until the issue came up for discussion in July.

"I'd rather we wait and vote on this in July," Patton said. "I can't see why we're voting on pay raises now, if it doesn't come up until July."

May explained that the raise needed to be in the budget and the board wasn't necessarily approving a 6.1 percent increase if the budget was

Johnson judge will · hear election issue

Knight will serve as special judge in a civil suit contesting the outcome of the November 5 election for seats on Prestonsburg's City Council.

Knight had set no hearing date on the issue by presstime Tuesday, but said it would be possible to conduct a preliminary hearing this month.

The election challenge was filed last week by Dr. Gary Brown, an unsuccessful candidate for re-election to council. Brown finished ninth in the race for eight seats.

In his suit, Brown alleged that voters in Prestonsburg's Cliff No. 2 precinct had been denied the opportunity to vote in the city race. He named the Sr.

Johnson Circuit Judge James A. Floyd County Board of Elections and Cliff No. 2 precinct officers as defendants in the action.

Brown has asked the court to order a special council election in the Cliff No. 2 precinct or, alternately, order the entire city election null and void. He has also asked the court to issue an injunction, preventing the eight winning councilmen from being sworn into office.

The winners of the November election include incumbents Billy Ray Collins, William Callihan, Danny Hamilton, Mike Vance, Charles Hale and Jerry Fannin and newcomers George Archer and Gorman Collins Pearl Harbor Remembered COMING FRIDAY Konolulu Star-Bulletin1= E, SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. ident Roosevelt announ morning that Japanese plan attacked Manila and Pearl

Stumbo agreed with Patton and stipulated that the board would reserve the right to approve employee salaries in July.

The issue of a tenant service worker was raised by Stumbo and Patton. Stumbo asked what a tenant service worker was and what duties went with the position.

May explained that the authority did not have a tenant service worker and said it was included in the budget each year and she advised the board against taking out the $6,249 appropriation.

"I don't suggest you take it out because when we do hire one we would have a tough time from HUD getting the money back," May said.

May added that funds allocated for that position were sometimes used to cover shortfalls in other departments and to buy needed equipment. She said that when the housing project is completed in the Left Beaver fall. area the authority should qualify for a full-time worker.

Stumbo said she would like to see a tenant service worker hired to organize Christmas parties in the housing projects and to distribute food baskets during the holidays.

Patton asked why the board did not approve the Section 8 Housing budget and asked to see a copy of the budget which was submitted in

May told Patton that the budget did not require board approval, but she would be glad to give members a copy of that budget before it is submitted to HUD. May said she would have a document drawn up for the board that would show funding for all the various programs administered through the housing authority.

Patton also asked May about a $107,870 reserve account but a projected $77,794 shortfall for 1991.

May said that HUD would not allow the authority to have a budget surplus over $124,290 at the end of the year and that more money was purposely spent to produce the short-

"We can't have too much money left over or HUD won't let us keep it," May said. "So we either have to spend it or send it back. We have to get the surplus below $117,475."

WHY CANADA'S HEALTH SYSTEM WOULDN'T WORK HERE

by Jane M. Anderson Director, Public Relations America Society of Internal Medicine

America's health care system has been in the news a lot lately. You may have read articles or heard people talking about the idea of national health insurance that's funded and managed by the federal government, similar to the system used in Canada, where there are no private insurance companies One study even contends that the U.S. could save enough money on administrative costs to be able to provide care to everyone, rich, poor, young, old and homeless simply by adopting a Canadian-style

If this sounds too good to be true, it probably is, according to Joseph F. Boyle, MD, executive vice president of the American Society of Internal Medicine (ASIM). "The reason is simple: Americans are not Canadians. There are many reasons why a Canadian system would not be acceptable to the vast majority of us in this country, said Dr. Boyle.

How Is America different? First, there are major social and demographic differences between the

As long as Americans sue at the drop of a hat, huge amounts will continue to be spent on documentation, legal fees and malpractice insurance premiums. We will continue to practice "defensive medicine," ordering extra tests only as a defense against lawsuits, not because we need the answers. Practice guidelines will help in this area, too, giving the judicial system and our courts an understanding of what constitutes appropriate care.

Finally, Americans may find spending somewhat more money to be an acceptable price to pay for a system that emphasizes choice and innovation. In the United States we have a choice of insurance coverage and policies, as well as a choice about the kind of care we want, where we want it and when. Under a Canadianstyle system, our choices would be more limited. We might also lose our edge in medical research and technological advancement. Most everyone agrees that we have the best health care potential in the world, and public opinion polls tell us Americans expect and want us to keep it that

The fact is, we do have some major problems in our health care system, according to Dr. Boyle. Heading the list is having more than 31 million people without adequate health insurance. He also added that the U.S. spends too much money on needless paperwork and regulations in an inefficient, out-of-control bureaucracy.

The message from ASIM is clear: administrative costs can - and should be reduced. "All Americans should able care when needed. But must we throw out the baby with the bath water? The answer is no," said Dr. Boyle, The U.S. needn't abandon our current health care system and adopt one we have no way of knowing would work better here - one that could mean months of waiting or hours of travel to obtain elective surgery or the latest technology (if it's even available) another reality of the Canadian system.

Abandoning our current system in favor of an untested, foreign one is a big risk with no guarantees. In fact, our experience with Medicare suggests that the costs of red tape could increase under a totally governmentsponsored, national health insurance

So what can we do? Reducing unnecessary administrative requirements imposed by private insurers and government programs would certainly help. Reform of the malpractice insurance system and the insurance market in general would also help, as would requiring all employers to provide a basic level of health insurance coverage to their employees.

But it won't be easy. In an era of massive budget deficits and a sluggish economy as well as high unemployment, drug abuse and crime rates, it will take much work to fill the gaps and control the costs. It is, however, possible to fix what's wrong with our U.S. health care system without jeopardizing its good points. It will take all of us working together: doctors, hospitals, health insurance companies, our government and our elected officials, business, industry, labor and you.

But we can do it if we put our minds to it. That, after all, is the American way.

Senator Mitch McConnell

MCCONNELL PROPOSES WETLANDS LEGISLATION

We all realize the value of protecting our environment, particularly our water resources. After much research, we are also beginning to recognize and have a greater appreciation of the value of the American wetlands. It has been estimated that one out of every twenty acres of the world's land surface can be called a wetland. Last week, I proposed legislation to centralize the regulation of wetlands.

Currently, four federal agencies have regulatory jurisdiction over wetlands. These agencies all serve different constituencies and therefore follow different agendas. The lack of consistency has placed substantial burdens on farmers and has created much confusion regarding wetlands. My proposal, The Wetlands Simplification Act, will eliminate much of that confusion by making the Soil Conservation Service (SCS) the leading agency in wetland determinations on agricultural lands. It will also allow the various federal agencies to concentrate their scarce resources in a targeted approach rather than in the current broad, duplicative manner.

The Soil Conservation Service maintains a long history of working with farmers, and has the experience and technical background to oversee wetlands jurisdiction of farmland. It makes sense to let the federal agency with the most experience be the "one stop shop" for farmers seeking answers on wetlands. In Kentucky alone, the SCS operates 98 district conservation offices, with a field staff extending into all 120 counties. This would guarantee quick and accurate information to farmers across the state from a single, accessible source. Another distinct advantage of the Soil Conservation Service is an established appeals process for individual property owners to disagree with determinations regarding wetlands. In the past, landowners have been frustrated because the only process to disagree with a decision by the Army Corps of Engineers or EPA is through a court of law. Often, these appeals turn into a lengthy, complicated and expensive process.

Simply put, federal wetlands protection programs are a bureaucratic, overly restrictive mess. We must make a uniform, all inclusive wetlands program a national priority, before thousands more acres of vital wetlands are lost.

Medisin's medical waste incinerators pollute our air, our water, and our land. Medisin's medical waste incinerators are not an insurable industry for liability against accidents or damage suits. HRMC, CHS, and Medisin's liabilities to the surrounding neighborhood have risen to an ultimate level. Medisin's medical waste incinerators produce highly toxic air emissions. Just ask the birds in the vicinity of Medisin's medical waste incinerators. Medisin's medical waste incinerators create poisonous ash waste that must be disposed of at great cost. Incineration destroys resources and is a complicated solution to a simple problem. Who stands to benefit from these incinerators which would be clearly detrimental to the public? When will we realize that preserving our health and safeguarding our environment makes good business today? Where can our children and grandchildren find new air to breathe, clean water to drink and tall trees to climb if we don't act now to change our "use-it-once-andthrow-it-away" behavior? But, does Medisin care about your children or grandchildren? Medisin's medical waste incinerators have brought us new problems without solving the old ones.

Editor:

KET to air live coverage of inauguration

KET will broadcast live coverage of the inauguration of Brereton Jones as governor of Kentucky, along with the festivities that precede it, announced KET Executive Director Virginia G. Fox. The Inaugural Event will begin on KET at 10 a.m. Tuesday, December 10, and continue through the public swearing-in, which is scheduled to begin at 2 p.m.

According to Fox, "This is an example of what KET does best unite all Kentuckians with programs and events that are significant to our state. From Pikeville to Paducah, schoolchildren, viewers at home anyone near a television set - will be able to tune in and be part of this inauguration."

In the past, KET has broadcast the oath of offce, but decided to extend the television coverage this year due to an expanded initiative in public affairs programming, Fox said.

Clark gets a head start on reform

by Dodie Webb Staff Writer

The Kentucky Education and Reform Act of 1990 requires that all Kentucky schools have the primary school reform fully operational by 1996 and the restructuring begun by the '92-'93 school year.

Clark Elementary School is one of five pilot projects within Floyd County to begin the primary school program this year. Principal Wayne Combs is very encouraged and enthusiastic about the results thus far.

First, second, and third graders are to all be placed in one classroom by the KERA reform. Clark Elementary has begun the process this year by placing first and second grades together to form the preliminary primary reforms.

"We began this year because we were allowed to and (we prefer to) make mistakes now rather than later," Combs said. The program, however, is progressing very well.

Clark has five primary teachers in the program. Each classroom is set up as a family group. Teachers' roles are more like activity directors. Clark Elementary students are free to work together and are teaching each other. This system is based on the belief that young children learn by imitating, talking, and interacting with each other as well as with adults. The older children help the younger ones and Clark Elementary teachers guide student activities. Textbooks are still used but not as the sole means of "The kids move around and experience learning through a freer atmosphere," Combs said.

Combs explained that the primary teachers take thirty minutes a day to plan and discuss what they will teach the children during the day. Team and collaborative teaching methods now exist in open classrooms. Children are split into groups for different learning levels. Varied instructional strategies and exercises are being introduced.

The students work at listening stations, writing stations, word processing stations, research stations, and computer stations. Kindergarten and first graders learn basic reading skills at computers using a Writing to Read program. Second graders use their computer station and the computer program Teaching and Learning with Computer. First and second graders use the computers as learning guides twice a day for the intermediate reading and writing skills.

"We've found the kids love it," Combs said.

velop better in a non-competitive environment. Combs said that report

Another aspect of the program is that younger students grow and de-cards will not reflect As, Bs, Cs, etc. A system using only "S" for satisfactory, "I" for improving, and "N" for needs improving is being utilized and it is the hope that next year report cards will not be given at all.

"Hopefully, a progress chart on each child will be discussed in a parent-teacher conference every six weeks," said Combs.

Combs said by 1996 an individual portfolio of each child will be maintained and possibly video tapes to assess each child's progress throughout the primary school years.

Clark has integrated into their primary program a thematic curriculum, lasting four to five weeks at a time for one hour a day which incorporates the basic school subjects within an activity. For instance, the students are currently studying dinosaurs. Math may be taught by measuring the length of the dinosaur from its head to its tail. Social Studies may be taught by teaching the child the part of the world where dinosaurs once lived or were discovered. Science, spelling, basic reading, etc. are integrated within this framework.

This thematic method of learning is a creative way for children to learn and interact among themselves and is quite enjoyable for the students. Combs said the physical education, music, art, and special education teachers contribute to thematic learning by incorporating their specialty within the framework.

Parents, local civic organizations, and area businesses are invited to contribute to this learning activity and are encouraged to participate. Participation by the community in relating real-life experiences related to the interests of the child promote learning, according to the philosophy of the KERA reforms.

Combs said the Senior Citizens have discussed weather with the primary students, relating various stories of real-life experiences pertaining to weather and they plan to return for further thematic activities.

The teachers are planning a thematic involving coal production and life in Appalachia.

Administration, teachers, and the students are still adapting to the primary school package, but progress toward meeting the challenge of changing entirely to the KERA primary system is successful at this stage. Charlene Nunn said, "Teaching is now activity oriented, geared toward the child's interest with a new freedom in learning and the children like the change."

The other Floyd County pilot schools are Auxier, Duff, Harold, and Prater Elementarys.

Anyone interested in learning more about the KERA reforms or in participating in the teaching/learning process at any of the pilot schools in Floyd County should contact the Floyd County Board of Education for information.

Living Will at Methodist Hospital

Beginning December 1, Methodist Hospital of Kentucky will provide living will information to all adult admissions at the hospital in Pikeville.

A living will is a document which enables a person to make his/her wishes known regarding life-prolonging treatment in advance of the time when the person is no longer able to participate actively in decisions concerning his/her medical condition. Medical technology has become so advanced that an individual can be kept "alive" on machines almost indefinitely. If one chooses not to be placed on these machines, a living will is one way to assure that one's wishes will be honored.

Central registration agents at Methodist will give all adult admissions living will information, which they may further discuss with their physician, family, or attorney. Pregnant women are excluded from living wills until after the birth of the baby, and children admitted to pediatrics are also excluded.

All hospitals participating in Medicaid and Medicare must adopt a living will policy on December 1. Living wills must be signed by appropriate witnesses and may be canceled at any time.

Three Floyd County residents have been selected to serve as resident advisers (RA's) for the 1991-92 school year at Morehead State Uni-

Serving as RA's are:

Patricia Lynn Meade, the daughter of James and Jean Meade of Martin, who is a senior majoring in special education. A member of Kappa Delta Pi and Gamma Beta Phi honor societies and the Ştudent Activities Council, Meade will serve as an RA for Mignon Tower.

Vanessa Burke, the daughter of Donnie and Billie Burke of Martin. She is a senior majoring in special education for the trainable mentally handicapped. A member of Kappa Delta sorority and the Newman Center, Burke will serve as an RA for Fields Hall.

Brian K. Handshoe, the son of Glenn and Lora Handshoe of Hueysville. A senior majoring in elementary education, he is a member of Kappa Delta Pi honor society, Student Alumni Ambassadors and shoe will serve as an RA for Mignon Tower.

The role of an RA is to provide information about the campus and residence halls as well as assist students in adjusting to college life. An RA works with students in building a community atmosphere and a feeling of togetherness by organizing residence hall programs and activities.

The three are among nearly 90 students chosen for the RA positions.

Look Sports by Ed Taylor Sports Editor

A WORKING VACATION certainly enjoyed the time off (part time) for a week's vacation last week. That is the reason why I did not have a column in Wednesday or Friday's papers. Although I was on a week's vacation, I did find time to work some. I took in the Sheldon Clark panorama on Friday and Saturday night - much over the protest of my wife Nancy. "You're supposed to be on vacation," she said.

Vacations are for doing what you enjoy doing most. I enjoy my job, but I must admit sometimes a good thing can get tiresome.

I certainly enjoyed the panorama at Sheldon Clark. I got to see some very good basketball games each night, and it looks as if the Cardinals are going to be a real threat to Belfry this season, Coach Roger Harless has done an excellent job at Sheldon Clark since coming to the Martin County school. The folks are fortunate to have Coach Harless at the helm and can look forward with a lot of excitement about the upcoming season. This could very well be the year of the Boy, the hospitality room at the panorama was second to none. The hostess were very kind in providing the good food each night of the games. All the players, coaches, (media) were treated very well and were fed well.

Panoramas are nothing more than scrimmage games played by game conditions (except for 15 minute halves). A coach is not to take the games too seriously. After all, it just like having a scrimmage in your gym and there is really nothing to get up tight about.

Well, that wasn't the case in most of the games that were played. The Tug Valley team was whistled for three technical fouls and a player was ejected. Greenup County coach Randy Ward was up and down the sidelines coaching his team, wanting a victory over Prestonsburg, while Coach Gordon Parido was the calmest I have ever seen him. Some took the games seriously, while others used it as a time of learning.

I liked Coach Johnny Martin's outlook on the panorama games. "I have to play them in order to get to practice," he said. Allen Central's gym floor is currently undergoing a face lifting as a wooden floor is being put down. According to Martin, completion is about two weeks away. "We may be able to play Prestonsburg on it December 13," Martin explained. "It will be close. It will be finished one day and played on the

The floor has all been laid and is being sanded. Upon completion of sanding, the floor then will be painted. I'm sure the folks at Allen Central, like all of us, are anxious to see the new playing surface. BELATED THANKSGIVING

THANKS Since my column did not appear in last week's papers, I didn't get to wish everyone a Happy Thanksgiving. Well, I'll do it now and hope that everyone had a Happy Thanksgiving. We have a lot to be thankful for - family, health, friends, our country and a loving Saviour.

But let me add yet another item that I am thankful for - trading time in Major League baseball. Try this one on.

Thankful for — the Los Angles Dodgers getting Eric Davis. Wow, I watched ESPN and there they came with the report that Eric "The Red" Davis had been shipped to the Dodgers for Tim Belcher. I thought, Tim Belcher. Yes, sure enough it was Tim Belcher, one of the top pitchers in the Major Leagues, I again thought. But the Dodgers are about to lose Mike Morgan (and I understand the Reds are in hot pursuit of him) to free agency. Martinez is a question mark if he, in fact, does have shoulder problems. Orel Hershiser is a on the free agent market. Who then will pitch for the Dodgers and lar high school basketball season gets underway, the Betsy Layne Bobcats were in action this past Friday night in the Sheldon Clark basketball panorama as they faced Alvin Ratliff's Johnson Central Golden Eagles. The Bobcats lost their second panorama game when they fell to the Eagles 72-71 on a last second shot by Robbie O'Bryan.

Each team had the game in their hands only to see it slip away in the dwindling moments of the game. Betsy Layne, in the person of Brian Hunter, went to the free throw line, with just 11 seconds showing on the scoreboard. Hunter misfired on the front of the bonus free throw, and the Eagles grabbed the rebound and headed up court. Jonathan Tackett fouled O'Bryan with just five ticks of the clock left. O'Bryan showed that there was no "ice water" in his veins as he also missed the front end of the one-and-one. Jason Newsome came down with the rebound for Betsy Layne and his momentum took him toward the out-of-bounds line. In a desperation attempt to bounce the basketball off the leg of a Johnson Central player, Newsome threw the ball into the hands of O'Bryan underneath the Eagles' goal, and O'Bryan dropped the ball through for the winning basket.

It wasn't that the Bobcats did not have earlier chances to salt the game away. With 1:18 remaining in the game and leading 71-70, Jody Coleman missed the bonus free throw. Again, with just 42 seconds remaining, Richard Lyons toed the charity line only to see his bonus free throw attempt bounce off to the right. The Bobcats continued to get the breaks with the clock ticking off the precious seconds. The Eagles turned the JOHNSON CEN......42 30 - 72 ball over on a charging call. Betsy BETSY LAYNE... Layne returned the favor by being

In a final tune-up before the regu- whistled for a double-dribbling violation with just 27 second to go. The Eagles, with 17 seconds to go, gave it back to the Bobcats, where they missed at the foul line.

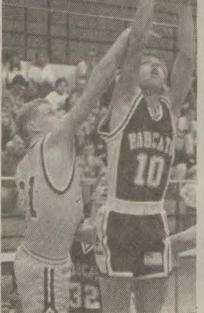

Coach Junior Newsome's Bobcats looked sharp in the early opening minutes of the game, scoring the first eight points to take an 8-0 lead. Tackett, who had 19 points to lead the Bobcats, hit a jumper off the right side and Coleman followed that with a jumper in the lane and a field goal from off the left side. Tackett's second basket on a lay up gave Betsy Layne the lead.

The Eagles finally caught Betsy Layne at the 11:07 mark of the first

Ailster's Two Free Throws Send Musketeers Past P-burg

It wasn't necessarily a very good game for either team as the Prestonsburg Blackcats and Greenup County Musketeers met on the basketball court at Sheldon Clark Friday night in the second game of the panorama's triple header. Patrick Ailster sank two free throws with 19 seconds remaining in the game to help the Musketeers to edge the Blackcats 49-48 in the final scrimmage for both teams before the start of the regular season.

Both teams struggled in the low scoring affair as neither team could find the basket in the early going. A lot of mental mistakes contributed to the lack of offense in this one.

Prestonsburg took a three point advantage, 48-45, on two free throws by John Clark with 49 seconds showing on the scoreboard. After a Prestonsburg timeout, Shawn Brown scored on a back door play to cut the lead to one, 48-47. Clark was fouled and went to the charity stripe with 27 seconds remaining in the game, Clark pulled up short on the first attempt, and Greenup County grabbed the rebound but was called for a walking violation, turning the ball back over to the Blackcats. Sophomore Corey Reitz was fouled and sent to the line with only 19 seconds showing. Reitz also missed the front end of the bonus free throw, and Clark was called for going over the back of Ailster after the missed toss.

Prestonsburg's 6-8 center, Chris Burke, had problems offensively for the Blackcats as he failed to score in the game and fouled out with 2:12 to go in the contest. Burke got into foul trouble early in the game and had to sit out most of the first half and much of the second half.

Prestonsburg established an early lead over last year's 16th Region champions and Sweet Sixteen participants, jumping out to a 8-0 lead on Clark's three point play to start the game and Aaron Tucker's three-point goal. Clark hit a field goal to make it 8-0. After Brad Stultz's bucket made it an 8-2 game, James Derossett hit a field goal and Brandon Lowe's charity toss made it an 11-3 game. The Blackcats held a 18-14 first half lead.

Greenup County came back out in the second half and began to establish dominance in the game by scoring the first seven points of the half to take a 21-18 lead. During the run, Burke picked up his fourth personal foul with 13:01 to go and was immediately relegated to the bench.

Jason Crisp tied the game at 21-21 with a three-point basket. After trail-

Lady Blackcats Have Little Trouble With Raceland In Panorama Win

The Prestonsburg Lady Blackcats had everything a team needs to win a basketball game. Outside shooting. The inside game. Fast break. Good free throw shooting and good defense. But that wasn't enough as head basketball coach Bridget Clay said that "we've got a long way to go." Clay's Lady Blackcats took it to the Lady Rams of Raceland Saturday afternoon in the Paintsville Panorama and came away with a solid 61-19 win over the less experienced Lady

Melissa Bailey controlled the "block" area with Carolyn Reffitt, Amy Reed and Raquel Cain providing the scoring from the outside. Bailey led the Lady Blackcats with 22 points and hauled down 14 rebounds as well as having four block floor? When it interferes with your basketball team's practice time! That seems to be the problem the Allen Central Rebels have run into this season as far as finding a place to practice. According to Rebel coach Johnny Martin, the practice hours have been a precious few.

Reed, playing an unusual position at point guard, had seven points in the game with five assists. But it wasn't the position that Reed will be playing once Carrie Merion returns.

"I figured up that we have practiced a total of 15 hours since practice began," said Martin, "We have to play scrimmage games in order to get some practice time in."

The Rebels are in the process of having their new floor laid in the Allen Central gym and have had to seek other places to practice such as the Maytown grade school gym.

The lack of practice time was evident as the Rebels looked tired in their final practice game before opening the season at Magoffin County (Tuesday night). Allen Central faced points, 56-54, on back-to-back threepointers by Hall with 5:30 remaining in the game. A 14-4 run by the Comets opened the lead back by 12 points, 70-58. Allen Central could get no closer than the final score of 76-67.

The Rebs had several chances to get closer but missed some easy lay ups down the stretch as they became overanxious on some shots. The Rebels were also guilty of some poor shot selections also.

Stewart Hall led all scorers with 27 points. Hall hit two three-pointers in the contest and was three of four from the charity stripe. Jeremy Clark, off the bench, tossed in 13. Todd Lucas and David Moore each scored seven while Carl Watkins and David Martin netted five. Allen Central was 13 of 23 from the free throw line.

Jason Green's 20 points led West Carter. Lonnie Roe was a close second with 19 points. Point guard Matt Grills tossed in 13 points and had 12 they face Prestonsburg.

Allen Central got as close as two assists in the game. Lester Bailey scored 10.

West Carter took few outside shots and hit only one three-point attempt and that was by Roe. The Comets relied mainly on the inside play of Green and Roe with Grills getting the ball down on the block to both.

Green struggled at the free throw line for the Comets hitting four of 11 attempts. As a team, West Carter was 17 of 27 from the charity stripe.

After an opening game with the Magoffin County Hornets (Tuesday night), the Rebels will jump into the Floyd County Conference race when they travel to McDowell Friday evening to face Johnny Ray Turner's Daredevils, Allen Central will then face Prestonsburg the following Friday night at home in still another big conference match up. Jason Newsome slipped underneath for a lay up but the Eagles, using their quickness, scored the next five points on a field goal and two free throws by Shane Moore and Nathan Salisbury's free throw, to take a 16-10 lead.

Tackett drilled a three-pointer for Betsy Layne and came back to score on a short jumper to close the lead to one, 16-15. Tackett hit his second trey to tie the game at 20-20.

Trailing 24-22 with 6:25 to go in the first half, Shawn Wallen scored from the 19'9" line to give the Bobcats the lead back at 25-24. Coleman followed suit and it was a 28-24 game.

Leading 30-26, the Bobcats saw the Eagles make a run of seven unanswered points before Brian Hunter's basket ended the Betsy Layne drought. The Eagles led at the end of the first half, 42-38.

Betsy Layne found themselves down by eight points, 58-50, late in the second half, until a 11-2 run netted the Bobcats the lead at 6.1-60. The Trailing 42-35, Greenup County began to chip away at the Prestonsburg lead as the Blackcats had problems handling the basketball. Brown's three-point basket, with 1:41 showing, cut the Prestonsburg lead to one, 44-43.

Clark led Prestonsburg with 14 points. Tucker added 10 as the only double figure scorers for Prestonsburg. Crisp finished with five shot by Keith Hamilton. Two field goals by O'Bryan and Salisbury's basket completed a 6-0 run for a 66-61 Eagle lead. However, the Bobcats were not ready to surrender yet as they ran off eight unanswered points to assume a 3-point lead at 69-66. Hunter's basket with less then three minutes remaining gave Betsy Layne a 71-68 lead. It was at that point the two teams exchanged possessions with mental errors and fouls.

Game scoring honors went to the Eagles O'Bryan with 22 points. O'Bryan had three treys in the game. Shane Moore finished with 12 points and Delong had 10. Salisbury tossed in nine points.

Tackett's 19 points led the Bobcats. Tackett also had three 3-pointers in the contest. Coleman netted 13 points with one trey, while both Wallen and Hunter finished with 10 points each. Wallen hit two 3-pointers for the Bobcats.

Henry Webb kept his hot hand going as he drilled home 36 points in the losing cause to the fourth-ranked Tornado's in the District 24 game. It was only the second loss for the Eagles with the first coming against Pikeville earlier. Both losses have been on the road.

The Eagles moved out quickly, leading 11-2 in the first few minutes of the game and looked to be well on their way to their seventh win of the year. Webb began bombing in the three pointers for the Eagles and helped Alice Lloyd to a 12-point lead, 22-10.

But the Tornados braced with a tough defense and followed the hot hand of shooting guard Brian Combs from the three point line, to a 28-25 half time lead. King College outscored the Eagles 18-3 to take the lead.

The second half was more of the same. "They picked up the intensity level and we couldn't respond," said Eagles coach, Jim Stepp. "They are an outstanding basketball team, rated fourth in the nation (NAIA) and will probably climb up to number two next week."

ONCE, TWICE, THREE TWO MANY CHANCES

Why in the world has Don Shula given Sammie Smith so many chances. Sure the guy can run, but there's no doubt in anybody's mind that Mark Higgs could become one of the NFL's premiere runners if he got the ball every week. Coming into this past Sunday's action, Smith had fumbled near the opponents goal line in three of the Dolphins last five games. So Shula reluctantly gave the ball to Higgs for this weekend's game with Tampa Bay.

How did he respond? The Owensboro native started slowly, fumbling on his third carry. But he recovered quickly, and by halftime had rushed for 103 yards en route to 131 on the day. The Dolphins still have a shot to make the playoffs and their best bet is to go with the all-Kentucky backfield of Higgs and fellow University of Kentucky alumnus Marc Logan, a graduate of Bryan Station.

HOW 'BOUT THOSE TIGERS?

Who could blame Georgetown College's Jim Reid for being just a little excited about now. The head basketball coach at the Baptist school in Georgetown has piloted his troops to an 8-0 start, including the championship of the Chamber of Commerce Invitational Tournament this past weekend.

Reid and his staff assembled a first class field for the tournament, a field which included three (Georgetown, Olivet Nazarene and Alderson-Broaddus) NAIA Top 25 teams. Two of the four games went into overtime, with Georgetown's pair of victories as the two lopsided contests in the first ever tournament.

Now Reid must wear both of his professional hats this week as he continues to coach the basketball Tigers, while helping prepare Coach Kevin Donley and the football squad for a trip to Findlay, Ohio in the NAIA playoffs. Reid the Athletic Director, must continue to rally support for a future home game should the Tigers win, and of course, do all of the necessary travel arrangements for the game. No doubt he'd like to see the double duty come to an end, but not before the Tigers bring home the National championship in football and continue their climb up in the polls in basketball.

TALK ABOUT RECOVERY

Hats off to Dudley Hilton and the folks at Bell County. When it was discovered that four of their players were ineligible, they rectified the problem and they took their punishment without crying or making excuses. What's even more impressive, the player still on the squad concentrated on the actual playing of the game, and have played well enough that they've made it to Saturday's Class AAA championship game in Louisville.

THE LONG ROAD WINDING DOWN

Speaking of football, it seems as only yesterday we were discussing the potential playoff pairings, bowl game schedules, and going through the rites of fall practice. But football will wind down in the Bluegrass this weekend as eight of the state's finest football teams converge on Louisville for the state championship con-

In Class A, Coach Bill Allara continues the tradition of Panther football as he brings the Pikeville football team back to the site of its three consecutive state championships for a contest with Beechwood. Under first year coach Mike Yeagle, the Tigers are also anxious to try and complete an undefeated season with a state championship when they meet for the title at 1 p.m. Friday.

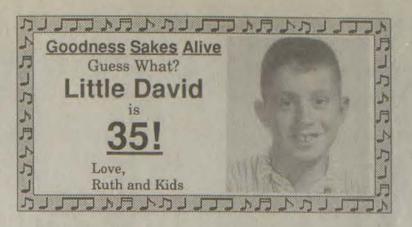

In early summer, veteran prognosticators might have looked at Class AA, and said Danville and Mayfield before they even saw them practice. These two programs are so proud, so steeped in tradition, and yes, so talented, that it seems as though they are always in the championship game. They again will appear in the finals as veteran Jack Morris brings the Mayfield Cardinals to Louisville to face Sam Harp and the Admirals of Danville immediately following the Class A game.

Class AAA gets a different look this year as the Green Wave of Meade County come to Louisville to face the Bobcats of Bell County at 1 p.m. Saturday. Don't be deceived by the Bobcats 9-5 record, they are 13-1 on the field, having forfeited four contests early in the year due to ineligible participants.

In Class AAAA, Coach Don Danko brings his version of the Hoosiers to the gridiron as the Clark County Cardinals face the Tigers of St. Xavier following the AAA game. Danko's team is senior dominated, a group of kids who have played together through grade school and middle school chamionships, and who bring their school that once-in-agreat-while dream of capturing a state championship. The Tigers have played steady, if unspectacular football all season, but appear to be coming together at just the right time. Tickets for the final games are available at the door for $7 (for the doubleheader), or may be purchased for $5 in advance from any of the participating schools.

good job she did for us at the point guard position," explained Clay. "She had to learn to play the spot in a hurry and did an excellent job for us. Merion is out with a bad knee and will even miss our first game of the season."

The 6-3 Bailey was unstoppable under the basket for Prestonsburg, getting several missed shots and putting them back in. Reed did a good job of getting the ball down low to Bailey for some easy baskets.

Beside Bailey's 22 points, Reffitt scored 15 points, hitting two threepointers. Stephanie Music, off the bench, put in a good performance with nine points and four assists. Cain finished with eight points in a good offensive outing as well as putting in a solid defensive effort. Little netted

"Stephanie did real well for us today," said Clay of her sixth man. "Melissa was unstoppable and we looked good in spots. But we still have a long way to go before we can be a good ball club. We made a lot of mistakes.

"Basically, we got a lot of things done early in the game. We had those first game jitters and, once they were gone, settled down and did some things well. We certainly missed Carrie at the point guard position. We did play good defense in the first half and stood around in the second."

Freshman Jamie Ratcliff looked impressive in the short minutes that she played. Ratcliff had six points in the contest. Jamie Clay, another promising freshman, had to stay home nursing the flu.

"At times we played good in spurts," stated Clay of her team's play. "It's just a matter of adjusting and wanting to be winners."

Prestonsburg showed some good quickness early in the game as they took Raceland out of their game plan and caused a lot of problems for Raceland. The Lady Blackcat ran the court very well and established the tempo of the game on the first play of the game when Cain went in for a basket off the opening jump ball. Bailey scored underneath off a Raceland turnover and hit the next two baskets as well for an 8-0 Prestonsburg lead. Christy Little made it 10-0 with a field goal and Reed scored off a break to send the Lady Blackcats out to a quick 12-0 lead before Lisa Ross broke the coldness for the Lady Rams with a basket.

Prestonsburg scored the final 10 points of the first half to go to the locker room with a 26-6 half time

It was all the Lady Blackcats in the second half as they had little to no problems with the Lady Rams.

"I guess I'm too demanding of my team," said Clay in her assessment of the Lady Blackcats.

BATTLE IN MARATHON

It took Tug Valley and Phelps two hours to play 30 minutes of basketball in the Sheldon Clark Panorama Saturday evening. The games consisted of two 15 minute halves and after all the delays, technical fouls, normal fouls, time outs and all the other things, the game was finally over.

SOMETHING NEW!

In the Allen Central versus West Carter game on Saturday night, three officials were used to referee the game. According to Dale Conn, one of the officials, he liked the use of three for a boy's game. There exists a need for three referees in all boy's high school games. The players are bigger, much quicker and, with the use of the three point shot, it makes it difficult for two officials to call a game. According to Jason Blanton, sports director for WSIP radio, the only thing stopping the use of three officials is the financial end of it.

VANGOES, GO!

Roger Harless, head basketball coach at Sheldon Clark, formed an interesting group of young people called the The Vangoes. The group perform at half times or between games at Sheldon Clark and are very talented in handling a basketball. They will spin the basketball on their fingers, spoons, umbrellas, whatever and do some fancy dribbling. They are a very entertaining group.

Yes, and it happens often.

"A lot of fishermen don't realize it, but a noisy trolling motor will definitely spook bass," says Guy Eaker, a well-known bass tournament competitor and member of the Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff.

"In shallow water, poor trolling motor control will send fish away from cover and out to deeper water where you'll never get them to bite. I've seen it happen frequently."

Eaker has several suggestions for using trolling motors in shallow water. The most important, he feels, is to keep the motor running constantly rather than repeatedly stopping and

"Something else I usually do, too," Eaker adds, "is that I keep moving even though I know I may be in a concentration of bass. I don't stay on top of them and keep casting. With the trolling motor on low, I'll continue moving right through the fish for 20 or 30 yards, then turn around and come through them again.

"If you're careful, you can continue to work a shallow school of bass over and over without spooking them, but if you stay on top of them and continually stop and start your trolling motor, you definitely spook

Eaker also emphasizes the importance of not bumping rocks, stumps Is it possible to spook bass before or logs with the trolling motor when working shallow water. Such mishaps send out a warning to fish and cause them to change locations.

"I believe big bass are the most easily spooked by noisy trolling motors," says Eaker. "The smaller fish, even though they may be frightened, recover quickly, and they're more aggressive anyway.

Jenkins, Robinson Help Martin To Hold Off Millard, 67-55

The stage had been set. The Mar-Flash team. Things were getting back to normal as the Martin Elementary Purple Flashes posted a 67-55 win over the Millard Elementary Mustangs last week in grade school basketball play.

The Martin parents and volunteer helpers cleaned the gym floor and did some painting to give the gym a fresh new look. Bevins, who had been out for several weeks with a broken finger, returned to his familiar position at the center post after some controversial times. But it was the combination of Thomas Jenkins and Kevin Robinson that send the Purple Flashes to their eleventh win of the year against only one loss. Jenkins scored a game high 24 points, and Robinson kicked in with 20 for the Purple Flash. Bevins, who fouled out in the fourth period, added nine points. Beau Tackett finished the game with eight and C.K. Dingus added four. Adam Coleman had two points in the outing. Bevins, a force under the basket for Martin, got into some early foul trouble and had to sit out part of the first half.

Jenkins, considered by many as the best seventh grader in the county, had nine field goals and was six of seven from the charity stripe in scoring his 24 points. Robinson, who is deceiving quicker than he looks, was two of three from the free throw line to go with his nine field goals.

Jason Dorton led Millard with 20 points. Jeff Spears added 15 for the young Mustangs.

Senior PGA Tour Includes 500,000 Purse

Plans for the 1992 BANK ONE Senior Golf Classic — including a $500,000 tournament purse — were announced recently by Lexington Mayor Scotty Baesler and BANK ONE President and Chief Executive Officer Bill Guthrie.

At a news conference held at the government center, Baesler outlined plans for the 10th annual Senior PGA TOUR event which will include a $500,000 purse. Winner of the 1992 tournament will receive $75,000. The additional purse money will come from corporate sponsors. This year's purse was $300,000 with $45,000 going to the first place winner.

Kearney Hill Links will host the tournament for the third year. The tournament will be held September 7-13, two weeks earlier than the 1991 tournament.

"We are so pleased to be able to celebrate the 10th anniversary of this tournament which will be bigger and better than ever," Baesler said. "We plan to get the whole community more involved in the event by creating a tournament advisory committee representing many segments of the community. We are anticipating many good suggestions for improvements to come from this group."

"We want the tournament to be a 'happening' in Lexington," added Guthrie. "The 1992 purse will certainly make the local tournament competitive with others and based on the 1991 purse structure will position us ahead of 24 Senior TOUR stops. We feel it will also draw the top golfers to Lexington. With all the extras, we expect the 1992 tournament to be the best ever."

Improvements will also be made to the course before next year's event, according to tournament director Shirley Watts. "In addition to these planned changes, what is already a great course will continue to improve "

At the news conference Guthrie presented Baesler with a $50,000 check for local charities. Half will go to the Senior Citizens Enhancement Foundation and half to the Sweet 16 Academic Showcase which provides college scholarships for Kentucky students.

Kentucky Afield

WHO CALLS THE SHOTS?

This time of year you generally see more hunters than any other time. Fall and winter are the two seasons when most hunting is permitted in Kentucky.

Sometimes when we see a person decked out in camouflage clothing, or wearing a bright orange cap and vest, we may wonder why some people are even interested in hunting. Lots of people aren't. Yet even though not everybody hunts, it is an activity where those who don't participate can appreciate why many people do.

If you ask hunters why they hunt you're apt to be given lots of different reasons. Many will respond that they enjoy the tradition. Others will say it's because hunting provides opportunity to enjoy the outdoors. Still more will mention that wild game makes excellent meals.

All of these reasons are legitimate and there are many, many more, including the fact that harvest of renewable resources within acceptable limits is a perfectly good practice. In fact, in some cases the absence of harvest would generate severe problems for both wildlife and humans.

Yet, what could possibly be a common, underlying reason among all hunters for engaging in this activity is that hunting provides a rare experience where success or failure completely depends on the hunter's decisions alone. In other words, lots of people, especially hunters, enjoy opportunities where credit or blame is awarded to them and nobody else. When a hunter makes the right choice, he or she earns all the recognition. Likewise, when a mistake is made, the individual alone reaps the consequences.

This insight isn't too difficult to understand when you stop and think about it. Today, there simply aren't that many chances in life where the things we do and the choices we make aren't influenced by a host of outside factors. Lots of times we just don't have the amount of control we desire over what happens to us.

On the job for example, the majority of the time someone else makes most of the decisions about what we do, and receives much of the credit. Decisions at home are often dictated by what our budget allows, what our families need, or what time allows. More and more we find ourselves asking "Who's calling the shots?" in our lives.... is it me, somebody or something else?

Well, the hunter has found a much more desirable scenario — a place where he or she can "call the shots" so to speak. When a hunter steps into the woods, everything that occurs until the time his experience concludes directly depends on his decisions and actions, and nobody elses. The level of the hunter's success and satisfaction is his alone, produced in and of himself. Making the right choices and achieving the results desired is something that just very simply, makes the hunter feel good.

One other compelling characteristic about hunting is that it can produce different levels of satisfaction. Hunting is not an activity that can only be enjoyed one way or for one reason. Those who hunt can decide for themselves what they consider success, or enjoyable. That's both important and rare. If a hunter chooses to measure "success" based on whether or not game is harvested, he or she can. If simply looking for game, seeing game or being crafty enough to be able to really watch and learn something about how wild animals act is considered success, then a hunter can also be happy with that if he chooses. There are just a lot of opportunities for enjoyment while hunting that many other activities don't provide. Hunting is rarely a simple win or lose situation. In this activity, you can set your own goals, work at your own pace and have no one to please but yourself.

So the next time you see a hunter, and wonder what the attraction is, remember there's more to it than meets the eye. Keep in mind, too, that some of the enjoyment hunting offers truly is hard to find anywhere else, and even those who choose not to hunt often have the same desires that hunting fills for many.

JAWS AND CAPS Who wants deer jaws? Biologists

Studying jaw bones gives biologists valuable information important to managing Kentucky's deer herd.

Deer hunters who participate in the deer jaw program receive a free hunter orange Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources cooperator cap for their trouble.

Here's how to qualify for a cap. Remove the lower left jaw from your harvested deer. The next steps are extremely important. Clean the jaw and let it dry in the open air for a couple of days. Pick up a jaw-return envelope from any deer check station and follow the directions on the preaddressed mailer.

And that's all there is to it. Just remember to be patient while waiting for your cap. It takes a bit of time to process all those jaws.

Leasing land to hunters may be best way to protect it

With more and more private wooded lands "posted" off-limits to hunters, some landowners are finding profits in leasing lands to small groups who are willing to pay for the privilege of restricted access.

Leased hunting also may be the best way for the owner to protect his own land and property from unwanted trespassers, said Tom Barnes, Extension wildlife specialist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

"When a landowner leases land to a group of hunters, he knows the individuals who will be on his land." Barnes said, "That reduces the uncertainties that come from not knowing what kind of person may be hunting from one week to the next whether the land is posted or not."

Barnes spoke this week at a meeting on wildlife management at Blue Licks State Park about different types of hunting leases and their advan-

"The long-term, or annual lease is the most common type, and in many cases it's the best for the landowner's interests," Barnes said. "It gives the hunter, or group of hunters, the privilege of hunting on the land for a full year or duration of the hunting sea-

Long term leases usually result in good sportsmen/landowner relationships because the landowner knows the hunters personally, Barnes said. As a result, the leases are frequently renewed for several years. The owner also knows the amount of income which will be generated annually and this type of lease requires less management than other types.

A short-term lease is usually on a per day, weekend or weeklong basis, Barnes said. It is usually granted to hunt a specific wildlife species. The traditional dove hunt is an example of this type of lease.

"This type of lease yields the highest monetary return per acre," Barnes said, "but it is the most management intensive type."

Gilbey's Gin Each 1/2 Gal. $1455 All taxes J & J Liquors

A third type of lease is based on the animal being harvested in which the owner charges for the animals bagged during a particular season. Those charges are different depending on size, sex, antler development.

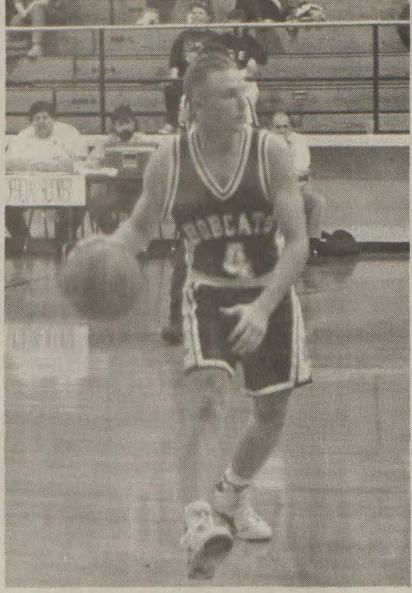

"Often there is a per day fee and an additional fee for trophy animals taken," Barnes said. "In a fee fishing operation, charges are based on pounds of fish harvested.'

The final type of leasing agreement involves the landowner leasing the right to enter his property to a sportsmen club, hunting club, or professional outfitter. This organization or individual in turn manages the access to the land and controls hunt-

"The landowner is free from most management responsibilities and knows what income will be produced," Barnes said. "However, the landowner also realizes the lowest net return and has no direct control over the hunters once the lease has been signed.'

Owners thinking about leasing their land or waters should also consider the question of liability, Barnes said. That means, for his best protection and that of his visitors, a written contract should be drawn up to prevent misunderstandings between owners and hunters.

That lease should identify the responsibilities, rules and restriction of both parties, he said. For guidelines on how to develop such a lease, interested parties can contact Barnes at UK or the county Extension agent.

A Look At Sports

Tommy "Slimfast" Lasorda next season? Then said I, is it possible? Nah, he wouldn't want Davis for that.

I'm thankful that Daryl Strawberry and Davis have finally been united with the Dodgers way out on the West Coast. I hope that Eric Davis has a good year, I really mean it. But I am glad that he is gone somewhere else besides Cincinnati.

The Reds say they are not through trading yet. Still on the block is Randy "Grenade" Myers. The lefthander will definitely be pitching elsewhere next season according to reports coming out of Redsland. Several clubs are interested in the fireballer.

The Reds want to obtain Bip Roberts from the San Diego Padres for Myers, while the Phillies are interested in shipping Von Hayes to the Reds in exchange for the left hander. Boston is also in the "bargaining basement" with the Reds over Myers.

GOOD THINGS EXPECTED OF TROJANS

I haven't been able to catch them yet, but I hear the Wheelwright Trojans will make some noise this season in the 58th District and 15th Region. Those who have seen the Trojans play in the Elkhorn City panorama said they are certainly looking good.

I am looking forward to seeing them play this week (Thursday night) in the Millard Round Robin tournament. I wish the Trojans the best for this year and hope they have a great season.

CATS RECRUITS HAVING PROBLEMS IN BECOMING ELIGIBLE AS FROSH

Tony Delk, Rodrick Rhodes, Walter McCarty and Jarred Prickett were considered the best recruiting class of college basketball prospects in the country this year. Now comes the bad news that two of the recruits have failed to meet the minimum standards set down by the NCAA. Only Delk has passed his SAT test and will be eligible for the 1992-93 season. Rhodes and Prickett learned this week that neither passed their college entrance exams the first time, but both will retake the exams later.

McCarty, according to his coach at Evansville Harrison High School, Will Wyman, is going to have trouble just meeting the core curriculum minimum. The NCAA requires a cumulative grade point average of 2.0 in a core curriculum of 11 academic

To spell it all out, the Wildcats, according to standards set down by the Southeastern Conference, can only carry one Prop 48 (non-qualifier) athlete next year. If McCarty, Rhodes and Prickett do not qualify on the next two attempts then two of the recruits would be lost to the University of Kentucky. Both Prickett and Rhodes will take the exam again. McCarty has yet to take the entrance exam.

UK TO PUT BRAKES ON PRESEASON

APPEARANCES, MAYBE UK basketball coach Rick Pitino said on his television show that the 20-hour limit on practicing could keep UK from scheduling trips to Alaska and Hawaii, as well as future games in the preseason NIT. Pitino said that the time could be put to better use in teaching new recruits the system. Oh, those Pitt memories, will they ever go away.

The UK loss to Pitt was the first time that UK has lost a game at Rupp Arena during the month of November. The Cats are 21-1 in November in Rupp.

November in Rupp. DELK HAS TEST SCORE BEHIND AND BURNING THE NETS

UK recruit Tony Delk has gotten the SAT test scores all behind him and has been burning up the nets in Tennessee basketball. Delk has scored 43, 38 and 28 points in three games this season.

KENTUCKY ALL "A" CLASSIC MOVED TO RUPP AND EKU

New home at two new sites is the order of business for the Kentucky All Class "A" High School basketball tournament coming up this January. The Classic ran into some scheduling difficulties in the use of Memorial Coliseum and will move the tournament to Rupp Arena for one day's session that will include a morning double header, an afternoon triple header and a evening triple header. The remainder of the tournament will be held at Eastern Kentucky's McBrayer Arena in Richmond. Until Friday, good sports everyone and be good sports!

Betsy Layne, Mullins Game Rained Out

It is not unusual to hear of a baseball game getting rained out or going ahead and playing a football game despite a downpour. But is unusual to hear of a basketball game being rained out.

That was the case when the Betsy Layne/Mullins girl's basketball game was canceled Monday night. The Betsy Layne domed gym's roof is in such bad shape that the water just poured through and caused a hazardous playing surface.

"We get a lot of water through the roof when it rains hard," said the school's athletic director, Junior Newsome, of the situation. "They were supposed to put a new roof on the gym but they have never gotten around to it as of yet."

Earlier in the year, at a grade school game, board member Tommy Boyd took me on a tour of the gym pointing out the bad spots on the floor caused by the leaking roof. At some spots, holes were in the floor — I guess to let the water run out.

The lighting in the gym is also very poor and therefore, the gym has many dark corners. The gym is one of the first of it's kind with it's domed shape that many refer to as the "turtle gym" because of the hard shell look on the outside. It has always been one of the better playing surfaces in the region but has started to deteriorate because of the lack of care. The inside ceiling has become dark color because of the heat to warm the gym, thus creating the darkened look.

If conditions persist, not only the roof will have to be replaced, but much of the floor, also,

There are no bad seats in the gym as you can see a ballgame well from anywhere you sit. But, it may be that where you sit will prove to be a wet spot when it rains.

The first polo game in America was played indoors at Dickel's Riding Academy in New York City in 1876.

Roberts Returns And Finishes Third In Turkey Trot 5K Run In Ohio

Local runner Rick Roberts thought he was through with the race course this season when he suffered an injury in the Marine Corp Marathon back on November 3. However, the run-crazed harrier just placed third in the recent Turkey Trot 5K run in Wheelerburg, Ohio last weekend. Roberts recorded a time of 17:57 to take third place behind Martin Bess and Kim Bailey. Bess posted a 16:55 and Bailey finished with a time of 17:25, 32 seconds quicker than Roberts.

Roberts has competed in 47 races this year and is currently five short of his goal of 52 that he set at the start of the year. "There are still three or four

Local runner Rick Roberts thought more races this season, but I don't was through with the race course know if I can make the 52 or not. I thought I was through for the year after the Marine Corp Marathon and the injury I suffered. But I came back and ran last Saturday in the Turkey Trot. If I make the next three or four races left, I may go down into Tennessee and see what's down there."

Roberts has finished in the top 10 in 35 of the 47 races he has run in this year. He has placed first in a fourth of the events.

Roberts will be heading back to Wheelersburg this Saturday to run in the Jingle Bell Jog 5K run and then probably his last race will be in Ashland on December 14 the Run For Reason 5 K run. The event is to raise money for the homeless around the Christmas season.

Stockdog trials are more than just sporting events. They are hobbies for stockdog owners to show off their best friend...their dog.

Stockdogs have natural instincts which enable them to gather and herd any type livestock. Their owners (handlers) then train the dogs to control those instincts and use them to each handler's best advantage.

'Stockdogs can handle anything that moves, from sheep, to cattle, to moving cars!," Weir explained, "One of our dogs can do what it takes four men to do when herding livestock."

'We can't herd our sheep without dogs" Weircontinued. "There's more demand for them now at ranches because they replace hiring more Stockdogs begin their training at one year of age. They are usually ready to work livestock within a year. Voice commands and whistles are the only signals a handler uses to train dogs.

'Generally you start training by voice," said superintendent Skip Fischer. "Once the dog understands those commands you can substitute a whistle for added distance."

Used all over, the world stockdogs were first bred in the hills of England in order to help sheep herders gather their animals. Each dog was trained to fit the precise needs of the handlers and in the area where they work.

Today stockdogs can be found herding livestock in every part of the world: from sheep and cattle in the United States and England to wild animals in Africa and reindeer in colder climates. The use of stockdogs in livestock production has marginally decreased in the last few years while the interest in trialing them has risen.

This is the first year for a stockdog trial at the North American Livestock Exposition. The first stockdog trial was held in Bala in Wales in 1873 and the first trial in the United States was on August 16, 1928 in Vermont. Trials are designed to test a dog's ability, intelligence and talent to work livestock. Trial popularity has grown since their origination late in the 19th century.

PEOPLE, PLACES AND THINGS by Beth Jones

> "Do Commercials Have Any Entertainment Value?"

There are some unreal commercials on television today. I watch them quite frequently. I sometimes am more entertained by the commercials than the programs I'm watching.

Of course, a commercial (actually, a series of them) that is interesting is the Energizer Bunny ad. Have you ever actually liked the product the company was showing only to see that stupid pink bunny come marching across the screen? When the ads first started, I got caught several times. I'm getting better at identifying them now, how-

I love all fragrance commercials. Do the advertisers actually think we believe that if we wear a specific perfume, everyone will find us irresistible. Well, maybe that would be the case if everyone who used the perfume looked like the actors in the advertisement.

Why aren't there any fat people in food ads? Seems to me that overweight actors would help the consumer to assume the product tastes good. I think small people aren't as effective in food commercials. It's something like putting sumo wrestlers in diet pill ads, in my opinion, any-

I detest phone company commercials. The two major companies are constantly trying to cut each other down in advertisements. They never say why you, the consumer, should come to their company, they only tell you why you should leave their competitor. The whole situation reminds me of mudslinging in politics.

I really like Nike commercials. This corporation has sports figures endorsing items they should know something about athletic shoes and clothing. These players aren't plugging soft drinks, underwear, or fast food. The commercials featuring Bo Jackson, Charles Barkley, and David Robinson (just to name a few) are glitzy and entertaining. They are fresh and innovative. I love

My favorite commercial at this time has to be one for Milk of Magnesia. It is the one where a middle-aged black couple is sitting on the porch and the woman tells us about her husband's... problem. If you've seen it, you know what I mean. It's really a humorous ad. We need more realistic, entertaining commercials like

I guess I like to analyze television commercials. Maybe that is one of the reasons why I'm majoring in advertising. Anyway, all commercials aren't boring. Some contain great imagination, so don't run to the fridge every time there is a break in your program. You might just see something entertaining. Later, folks.

Video tape offered about the family

"Working on the Dream" which was produced for the National Association of Counties convention held in July, is available at county governments throughout the United States.

The video tape outlines, in a delightful production, five steps to strengthen families. The Department for Human Services and the Floyd County Extension Office have copies of the tape for families to view.

Secretary of State Bremer Ehrler was invited to the French Quarter Suites in Lexington, November 18, where County Court Clerks were having a convention. As his tenure in office is winding down, friends and associates from his several different careers were gathered to wish him well and to congratulate him for his many good years in public service. It was a pleasant evening, and I was delighted to be a part of it.

OLE JOHN L. AND ME

Not that we need reminding, of course, but if a body were looking for another reason to show just how much things have changed since we were kids, all we'd have to do is take a look at how people act now toward elected officials.

Take Dan Quayle, for instance. He's been the butt of enough jokes to fill enough volumes to fill a small library. I'd have been in a bunch of trouble if my Dad had heard me make any type of derogatory remark about anybody, let alone the vice president of our country.

As a matter of fact, my mouth got me into trouble once for an uncomplimentary remark I made about John L. Lewis... and he wasn't even a to tell who was president of what. I really think if miners had been the only ones who could vote, John Llewellyn Lewis would have been president of the United States. As a matter of fact, he was held in such high esteem in those days that everybody knew the fastest way to get to the Paintsville Hospital was to stand on the steps of the Northeast Coal Company store and cuss John L.

Anyway, all I know is that when newsman Gabriel Heatter, in his optimistic tones, mentioned F.D.R., Truman, or John L. Lewis on the radio, a kind of hush fell over our a big, ugly bulldog."

You see, we got the United Mine Workers Journal through the mail, and Mr. Lewis' face dominated its pages. With his bushy eyebrows, sagging jowls and his pugged nose, I thought he was absolutely the ugliest man I'd ever seen. So, when we were eating supper one night, and as I mashed the mustard into my soup beans, I decided to let my feelings be

A day or two later, Dad was sitting in the front porch swing pulling burrs out of our cat's fur and talking with George Reynolds, one of our neighbors. Scold! Slap!

Oh well. As they say, that was then, this is now. Can you imagine anyone - even a kid - getting into trouble for saying anything about Ted Kennedy or Dan Quayle? Of course, neither of them are nearly as popular now as ole John L. Lewis was then.

GFWC/KFWC 7th District Woman's Club 73rd Fall Conference Held

The GFWC/KFWC 7th District Woman's Club 73rd Fall Conference was held October 26, at Jenny Wiley State Park, Prestonsburg. The host clubs were GFWC/KFWC Drift Woman's Club, and GFWC/KFWC Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Woman's Clubs.

Mrs. Alice Kendrick, 7th District Governor, presided. The invocation was given by Mrs. Libby Martin, the Pledge of Allegiance to the American Flag was led by Mrs. Louise West, of the Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Club, and the welcome was given by Ms. Marcella Bradley, of the L.G.C. Club, with Vicki Pinson, of the Pikeville Jr. Woman's Club giv-

State officers were introduced by Gov. Alice Kendrick, as follows: Mrs. Romanza Johnson, president of the K.F.W.C.; Mrs. Ester(Bitty) Hopper, 3rd vice president of K.F.W.C.; Trulla Poynter, treasurer of K.F.W.C.; Miss Ruby Akers, state chairman of the economic division of home life; Connie Gilpin, district vice govemor; and Lorene Salver, Ruby Akers, and Alma Frazier, all past district governors.

Miss Ruby Akers, chairman of the nominating committee, presented this slate of officers for the year 1992-93: 7th District Governor, Mrs. Connie Gilpin, Pikeville, Jr. Woman s Club; vice governor, Mrs. Vernell Mullins, Whitesburg Woman's club; district jr. director, Mrs. Charlene Hopkins, Pikeville Jr. Woman's Club.

The K.F.W.C. president, Mrs. Romanza Johnson, used as her theme, "Light the Way in Kentucky with the Kentucky Federated Woman's Club." She challenged each club to one new project. In addition to Education, International Affairs, Home Life, the Arts, Public Affairs, and Conservation, the state projects during her administration are AIDS Education, Adopt-a-Highway, Nutrition, and Hospice. She urged each member to get a mammogram.

Mrs. Johnson announced that the 1992 Convention would be held at the Executive West Hotel, in Louisville, this coming April.

The 7th District was the recipient of the 1991 District Award. The state treasurer, Mrs. Poynter, gave a report on the Paul Sawyer prints that are available to the clubs for $53.00, with the profit from the sales going to promote the 1994 Centennial.

The group was entertained by Mrs. Billie Jean Osborne, and members of the Kentucky Opry.

Door prizes were awarded. Reports were given by eight presidents on their club activities.

Vice governor, Connie Gilpin, announced that the winners of the Student Art Contest and Woman's Club's Arts and Crafts Contest had been selected. The selections will be taken to the State Convention in April, 1992.

New officers were installed, and will resume their duties following the aforementioned Convention. Third vice president, Mrs. Ester(Bitty) Hopper, announced that the clubs have the choice of either using the short form in reporting, or the long form, which will make them eligible to compete for the awards in their particular categories.

Mrs. Connie Gilpin presented Mrs. Alice Kendrick with the past governor's pin.

Tobacco Expo is scheduled for Lexington

A one-day "Tobacco Expo" to feature latest products and technology for tobacco production is scheduled for January 15 at Heritage Hall near Rupp Arena in Lexington.

Among the subjects to be covered is the economics for using float system technology to produce tobacco seedlings for transplant, said Gary Palmer, Extension tobacco specialist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

The meeting, which is sponsored by the Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service and the Burley Tobacco Growers Cooperative Association, begins at 8 a.m. and there is no registration fee.

Other subjects of interest to tobacco producer include sessions on greenhouse environmental controls, fertilizer, greenhouse diseases, use of conventional beds and possible use of migrant workers.

man nominated Mr. Vinson to be Chief Justice of the United States. Two weeks later he was unanimously confirmed by the U.S. Senate. His exceptional skill as a negotiator and conciliator served him and the nation as well. His success in restoring a semblance of harmony between the so-called liberal and conservative elements was one of his outstanding achievements on the Supreme Court. Chief Justice Vinson authored many landmark decisions during his term.

The Honorable Julian M. Carroll, former governor of Kentucky, made the following statement in this regard: "My several years spent in pursuit of my degree in law, made me a greater admirer of Justice Fred Vinson. In most every landmark decision studied during my years at the University of Kentucky School of Law, Fred Vinson had written the majority opinion for the court. Even today, as a practicing lawyer, my research takes me back to positions enunciated by the United States Supreme Court authored by Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson. He is known to have been one of the greatest legal minds to ever serve on our highest court."

Chief Justice Vinson died suddenly from a heart attack on September 8, 1953. He was brought back to his hometown Louisa, and buried in the Pine Hill Cemetery. All of the members of the Court attended his funeral services. A museum and library honoring Chief Justice Vinson is in the process of being established on the public square, Louisa, in the Old Jailer's Quarters where he was born in 1890, Vinson's father served as jailer at that time and the families living quarters were in the building. Expressions of support for this effort have been received from outstanding leaders across the country, including former governors of the Commonwealth of Kentucky: Hon. Bert Combs, Hon. Louie Nunn, Hon. Julian M. Carroll Hon. Martha Layne Collins, Hon. A. B. Chandler, Hon. Lawrence W. Wetherbey.

Leadership for this local effort is by the Fred M. Vinson Memorial Committee, chaired by Howard A. See and Homer Q. Potter, Post Office Box 849, Louisa, Kentucky 41230, (606) 638-9674.

State food index hits two-year low grain foods pushed Kentucky's October food price index down to its lowest point in two years, according to Kentucky Farm Bureau's marketbasket survey

Last month's price decline was just .2 of 1 per cent, or 16 cents spread over the 40-item marketbasket. But since July's survey average of $73.55, the food index has fallen in three consecutive months by a total of $4.09, or 5.5 per cent, to $69.46, the lowest figure recorded since Novem-

The survey finding represents the average cost of the 40 food items in 22 Kentucky communities, scattered throughout the state.

Cheaper pork chops and bacon helped bring pork prices down 1.5 per cent, and lower-priced potatoes and cooking oil produced a 2.9 per cent fall in fruit and vegetable products. Grain-based foods reflected a 2.3 per cent price decline, while dairy foods were off .5 of 1 per cent.

Beef and poultry prices bucked the downward trend. Beef prices rose 1.2 per cent, as costlier steaks and roasts offset cheaper ground beef. Boneless chicken breasts and eggs both registered nigher tabs, pushing poultry products up an average of 8

Cattle feeders, hit hard by higher feed costs and expensive calves, have been losing money on their fed cattle, as much as $100 per head, since June. And with steer prices down as much as $20 per hundred from earlier highs, feedlot operators have slowed production, causing at least a temporary rise in retail beef prices.

Analysts say beef marketings could pick up toward year-end, however, and if wholesale supplies return to normal, lower consumer prices could follow fairly quickly.

Pork prices, already down nearly 9 percent since April, could fall further if Department of Agriculture projections hold. That agency says farmers next year will produce more than 17 billion pounds of pork, an all-

But retail prices seldom fall as quickly as producer returns. USDA says the spread between farm and consumer pork prices could increase by 7 per cent through the end of the year. Last year's spread averaged $1.25 per pound, covering such

Lower-priced pork, produce and middleman charges as processing, transportation, labor and retail prof-

> Plentiful supplies of broilers are also adding downward pressure to meat prices. Total production this year is forecast at 19.7 billion pounds, up 6 per cent over a year ago. Wholesale prices have fallen 7 to 9 cents a pound as a result.

> The prospect of a second-straight record year of exports is keeping the price fall in check, however. The Soviet Union has requested export credits to cover more than 220 million pounds of chicken. Initial approval of $40 million in credits has started the product moving, helping to clear out excess supplies in the market pipeline.

FOCUS ON WINTER VEGETABLES

The October marketbasket survey reflected fairly stable fresh salad-type vegetable prices, with lettuce, peppers and cucumbers showing little change from earlier levels.

But a small insect called the whitefly, which is infesting winter vegetable crops in California, Arizona and northern Mexico, could have an adverse impact on supplies, and could increase prices sharply on some

Clark Biggs, with the California Farm Bureau, says the whitefly infestation is serious on many farms in or near desert areas of central California and Arizona, Broccoli seems the most at risk, with lettuce in lesser

Unlike many other insect pests, there is no affordable chemical treatment that is effective with the whitefly, Biggs notes. Researchers are scurrying to find some predator insect or biological control, but those efforts could take time.

So far, USDA predicts only a 6 percent reduction in vegetable production this year, which should preclude any major long-term run-ups in price. But if the whitefly damage is worse than predicted, or if bad weather further damages crops, consumers could find that salad bars later in the winter may be expensive to stock.

Kentucky Farm Bureau Women canvassed retail food prices in 22 Kentucky communities. According to local marketbasket averages in October Hopkinsville tallied the lowest market prices, $56.36 average, while Clinton posted the high figure for the survey, $77.22.

Salyersville's average was $65.07. Louisa posted a $76.69 average.

KET specials highlight reform

Drugs, poverty, crime, unemployment, weakness in the international marketplace, and many other problems plaguing the United States have administration's response to the all been linked to deficiencies in the country's educational system. In response, leaders from across the political spectrum have promised to improve educational opportunities for the nation's youth.

KET will highlight perspectives about the current state of education reform in the state and the nation in three special programs airing Monday, December 9.

Kicking off the education programs will be KERA Call-In with Dr. Thomas Boysen at 8 p.m. Kentucky's recent dramatic measures to improve its schools have made it a national leader in education reform. Throughout this live program, Commissioner of Education Boysen, who has been at the helm through the complex and comprehensive changes mandated by the Kentucky Education Reform Act of 1990, will answer questions from around the state about Kentucky's unique brand of education reform.

At a national level, the Bush education crisis has been outlined in the America 2000 plan. The objectives and merits of the plan are discussed by former secretaries of education Shirley Hufstedler, Terrel Bell, William Bennett, and Lauro Cavazos in Conversations with the Secretaries of Education, airing at 9 p.m. Charlayne Hunter-Gault of The Mac-NeillLehrer NewsHour will moder-

Then at 10p.m., KET will explore what education reform means for the African American in African-American Perspective on School Reform. Taped at a Louisville conference sponsored by Kentucky State Senator Gerald A. Neal, the program features Boysen and Dr. David G. Carter, president of Eastern Connecticut State University, discussing the current state of school desegregation.

Well, well December is here, and Christmas is just around the corner. So I will start the column off this month by wishing all my readers the

Cabbage Patch

This month we will probably be needing to remove the heavy snow off our hedges and evergreens, before ice forms, otherwise the weight of the snow will break the branches. Mulch shrubs and trees with shredded leaves, or other materials. On acid-lovin plants use pine needles or peat. Set berry branches and evergreen twigs in window boxes. They can be watered when needed and will last all winter.

Remove, climbing roses from their supports, lay canes gently on the ground and cover lightly with soil. Bush roses will need to be hilled up for about a foot over the crowns, and a good mulch added.

Check your bulbs in the basement, or cellar. If they are full of roots now is the time to force them. Mulch pansies with straw, or leaves, now that the weather has been cold for some time and the plants have hardened themselves to the rigors of Sow radishes, lettuce and cauliflower in cold frames. Mulch strawberry plants as soon as the ground freezes. Most people use straw, but sawdust works as well.

Grape vines may be pruned now, but most people prefer to wait until the lower front of the mouth. At this time, he or she may drool and refuse to eat. The gums may be swollen, and the baby might have a stomach ache. Before the teeth break completely through the gums, the molars are sometimes covered by a harmless, blister - like, bag containing bloodtinged purplish fluid. These are the most common symptoms of teething. Rarely are the symptoms more seri-

It is important to consider something else that is happening to the baby. During the first few months of life, the young baby seldom becomes ill. This is because of natural protective substance received from its mother. This protection usually disappears at about six months of age. Because of this, he or she begins to

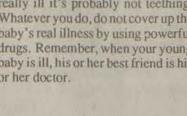

A mother has a perfect right to ask, "How can you tell that it's something else that's making him or her cry, and not teething?" If the symptoms seem more severe than just mild discomfort, it's probably not teething. It may be necessary to search further for the problem.

If the baby has a fever and rolls the head from side to side, he or she may have an ear infection. This is particularly true if he or she has a cold at the same time. If the baby is kicking, screaming, and pulling legs up toward the tummy, he or she may have a stomach ache. If he or she has nausea, vomiting, abdominal pain, and diarrhea, you should be suspicious of a bowel infection, not teething. These are all symptoms that should be reported to the baby's doctor. The decision on the treatment should be left up to him or her.

The mother's next question might be, "What can I do to help my baby feel more comfortable?" If the symptoms indicate that the baby's only problem is teething discomfort, then the mother can try home remedies. An applicator may be dipped in brandy or whiskey and rolled on the sore gums. A small ice cube tied inside a wash cloth with a rubber band, may be given to the baby to suck on. Or, if you wish, your druggist may be able to suggest a number of over-the-counter teething lotions which may be helpful.

Kosair Children's Hospital is a 235-bed pediatric tertiary care, teaching hospital affiliated with the University of Louisville School of Medicine and part of the Alliant Health System. The region's only level I trauma center especially for children, Kosair Children's is also the home of the Kentucky Regional Poison Center and has the area's only pediatric burn unit. The 67-bed neonatal nursery, special ECMO (Extracorporeal Membrane Oxygenation) team, cardiovascular surgery (including infant heart transplants), kidney transplant program, and intensive care unit dramatically set apart Kentucky's only full service pediatric hospital. The hospital's leukemia cure rate is unsurpassed in America.

GFWC/KFWC Drift Woman's Club

Woman's Club met at the Left Beaver Fire Station #2 on November 18, with the president, Mrs. Doris Lawson, presiding.

Devotions were presented by Mrs. Celia Little followed by the Pledge of Allegiance to the American Flag.

Minutes for the October meeting were read by Mrs. Celia Little, secretary, and were approved. A treasury report was given by Mrs. Jerri Turner, treasurer, and the 4th Annual Pageant was declared a success. The club members expressed their appreciation to all who contributed and participated to make this event possible.

Thank-you cards were read from Miss Ruby Akers, Ms. Karen Slone, and Mrs. Trulla Poynter.

Plans for Christmas were made. A Christmas stocking, filled with personal items, will be delivered to the Golden Years Rest Home from the sixteen members. A gift will also be delivered to a retired teacher in the community and a club member in the nursing home.

COMMONWEALTH OF KENTUCKY AUDITOR OF PUBLIC ACCOUNTS

BOB BABBAGE

Audit fieldwork completed

October 7, 1991

125 CAPITOL ANNEX FRANKFORT 40601

To the People of Kentucky Honorable Wallace G. Wilkinson, Governor Honorable John M. Stumbo, County Judge/Executive Members of the Floyd County Fiscal Court

Independent Auditor's Report We have audited the statement of assets, liabilities, and fund balances arising from cash transactions of Floyd County, Kentucky, as of June 30, 1991, and the related statement of cash receipts, cash disbursements, and changes in cash balances for the year then ended. These financial statements are the responsibility of the Floyd County Fiscal Court. Our responsibility is to express an opinion on these financial statements based on our audit.

We conducted our audit in accordance with generally accepted government auditing standards and the Audit Guide for Fiscal Court Audits issued by the Auditor of Public Accounts, Commonwealth of Kentucky. Those standards require that we plan and peform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audit provides a reasonable

Floyd County, Kentucky, prepares its financial statements on a prescribed basis of accounting that demonstrates compliance with the cash basis and laws of Kentucky, which is a comprehensive basis of accounting other than generally accepted accounting principles. Consequently, certain revenues and the related assets are recognized when received rather than when earned, and certain expenses are recognized when paid rather than when a liability is incurred. This cash basis system does not require the maintenance of a general fixed asset group or general long-term debt group of accounts. Accordingly, the accompanying financial statements are not intended to present financial position and results of operations in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles.

In our opinion, the accompanying financial statements present fairly, in all material respects, the assets, liabilities, and fund balances arising from cash transactions of Floyd County, Kentucky, as of June 30, 1991, and the related statement of cash receipts, cash disbursements, and changes in cash balances for the year then ended, in conformity with the cash accounting basis described above.

Our audit was made for the purpose of forming an opinion on the financial statements of Floyd County, Kentucky, taken as a whole. The accompanying additional information, provided on Schedules A through D, including the schedule of federal financijal assistance is presented for purposes of additional analysis and is not a required part of the financial statements. This information has been subjected to tests and other audit procedures applied in the audit of the financijal statements and, in our opinion, is fairly presented in all material respects in relation to the financial statements taken as a whole.

As required by Government Auditing Standards issued by the Comptroller General of the United States, we have reported on the county's financial statements, its internal control structure, and the county's compliance with laws and regulations.

As in prior years, we found the county's accounting procedures and compliance policies in good order. We wish to commend the county for its effort and urge that similar efforts be made in the future.

Housing affordability index continues to climb as interest rates drop

October climbed to the highest level in nearly fifteen years, surpassing the record level set in September. Continued declines in mortgage interest rates and the median home price drove today.

The index, which measures the ability of a family earning the median income to purchase a median-priced resale home, was 118.8 in October, up from the revised September index of 116.3. Last month's index was the highest since March 1977, when it was 120.7.

"However, there are many families and individuals who want to buy a home right now, but can't because they don't have a job, or their employment future is uncertain, or they feel insecure about the overall economy," she said. "It is unfortunate because with market conditions at a premium, a home buyer can literally save thousands of dollars," Helfant

The median is the midpoint, meaning half the existing single-family homes sold in October for more than the median price and half sold for less. Similarly, half the index up, the association reported the families in the United States earn more than the median income and half earn less.

NAR Chief Economist John A. Tuccillo said despite the housing market's lethargy, there are small signs of improvement as evidenced by the increase in existing-home sales and especially housing starts last month. The median home price declined $500 between September and October; the median family income rose $112; and the income needed to qualify for a loan covering 80 percent of the typical home declined $569. Also, the monthly mortgage payment declined $12 to $640 in October.

When NAR's affordability index measures 100.0, the median family income equals exactly the amount needed to qualify to purchase a median-priced home, using conventional financing with a 20 percent down payment. Because the national median income in October exceeded the qualifying income by more than $5,000, a family earning the median income could purchase a home priced estate industry.

Under October's affordability conditions, a family earning $20,000 would have sufficient income to qualify for a $65,000 home using a $52,000 loan. A family earning $30,000 would qualify for a $98,000 home with a $78,000 loan. A family earning $40,000 would have sufficient income to qualify for a $130,000 home with a $104,000 loan; and a family with a $50,000 income would qualify for a $163,000 home using a $130,000 loan.

A remarkable statement? Perhaps.

The reality is, there are more homes on the market than there are buyers. All of which means the market has softened. Home prices are once again negotiable. Most lenders have lowered their rates.

So, chances are good, your money may buy more home now than it could a year ago. It is a buyers' market.

Go ahead, it's time to make your move.

State officials urge consumer caution in buying heat detectors from in-home salespersons

Kentucky homeowners should be of heat detectors, falsely stating that cautious before agreeing to buy ex- their products were endorsed by local pensive "heat detectors" from inhome salespersons according to Attorney General Fred Cowan and acting State Fire Marshal Rodney Ra-

Heat detectors are fire alarm devices that look very similar to smoke detectors, except they are triggered by high levels of heat instead of

State officials say they've received reports that Kentucky consumers have recently been subjected to high-pressure and misleading sales pitches in their homes by persons selling such heat detectors.

Typically, sales representatives selling heat detectors will make their presentations in the consumer's home, playing upon family emotions by showing dramatic films of damages and injuries resulting from residential fires.

State officials urge consumers to resist emotional sales pitches and to make a reasoned decision based on the facts about heat detectors. "Consumers should also remember that, as with all in-home sales, they have three days after signing the contract to cancel the sale and obtain a full refund," Cowan says.

The national fire code standard for single family dwellings requires smoke detectors as the primary life protection equipment. According to the National Fire Protection Association, in a typical residential setting, a smoke detector will provide greater advance notice of a fire than a heat detector. In fact, "most fire casualties" are the victims of smoke and gas inhalation rather than burn," NFPA Pamphlet #74.

The State Fire Marshal's Office recommends, as a minimum, that smoke detectors (which are generally available for approximately $15-$30 each) be installed outside every sleeping area and on every level of the home. Heat detectors are not an appropriate substitute for smoke detectors, except in some areas where smoke detectors are not feasiblee.g., kitchens and other settings such as garages and furnace areas where fumes would cause smoke detectors to trigger frequently.

For more information about heat detectors, consumers may contact their local fire departments or the State Fire Marshall's Office in Frankfort (502-564-3626).

Several years ago, the Attorney General's Office received complaints from consumers and local officials regarding deceptive sales practices by a company dealing in heat detectors. The Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division issued a Deceptive Practice Notice demanding that their sales representatives stop exaggerating the effectiveness fire protection officials, and failing to comply with the three-day cooling-off period for in-home sales.

Consumers with complaints or other information about heat detector sales may call the Attorney General's Consumer Hotline (1-800-432-9257) or write to the Consumer Protection Division, Officer of the Attorney General, 209 St. Clair Street, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601-1875.
