In coal tax issue :

Stumbo says loss is victory

by Scott Perry
Times Editor

Coal county legislators have all but conceded defeat in an effort to have coal severance taxes restructured during the current special session of Kentucky's General Assembly, but the proposal could draw priority attention during the legislature's 1992 regular session.

House Majority Leader Greg Stumbo, D-Prestonsburg, has spearheaded the drive to have additional coal taxes returned to coal producing and coal transportation counties, and he said Tuesday that the issue's likely death in the special session could be viewed as "a major victory."

Stumbo said many legislators who oppose action on the proposal in special session had offered to support the coal tax revision in the 1992 session, scheduled to begin in less than a year. He added that all major candidates for governor had given their support to the plan.

Stumbo said the attempt to have the issue resolved during the ongoing special session had made other members of the state's General Assembly aware of the urgency of finding a solution to Eastern Kentucky's economic woes, and he credited Governor Wallace Wilkinson for placing the coal tax plan on the special session agenda.

Without the current debate on the topic, Stumbo added, the coal tax proposal would probably not be guaranteed much attention in the 1992 session. As it stands now, the issue will likely remain on the front burner, he added.

The proposal called for revising the formula under which revenues from coal severance taxes are returned to coal counties. A current level of return of 12 percent would be upped under the plan to 25 percent, with added revenues earmarked for economic development projects. Eventually, the rate of return would increase to 50 percent.

"Technically," Stumbo said Tuesday, "we wouldn't have seen any addition returns to counties until 1992 (if the proposal had passed during the special session). By including the proposal in the 1992 budget, we won't have lost any time."

Let there be lights . . .

Sam Campbell, Prestonsburg City Administrator, said Thursday that plans to install street lighting on U.S. 23 from the GlynView Plaza to the Bert T. Combs Bridge may soon be a reality.

"Things look very positive at this point," said Campbell. "The next step will be to mail a letter to the transportation cabinet officially requesting the lighting."

One injured

One person was treated for minor injuries following a two-vehicle collision on the Bert T. Combs Bridge in Prestonsburg Thursday afternoon. According to Prestonsburg police, Virginia Branham was transported to Highlands Regional Medical Center for injuries sustained when her vehicle was struck by another car while traveling South on the bridge. The accident remains under investigation by the Prestonsburg Police Department. (photo by Tim Preston)

Classmates get real test

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A refresher course in cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) turned into a real-life drama for two Branham and Baker miners last Friday at the Holiday Inn in Prestonsburg.

Bobby Shepherd had just finished the annual training course and was sitting in the hotel lobby when a woman rushed in and said her husband needed help. Shepherd, along with fellow miner Greg Davis and CPR instructor Kathy Friend rushed outside to find the man unconscious in the parking lot.

"We went out and found the gentleman laying at the back of his car with some facial wounds," Shepherd said. "His wife said he fell and she thought he had a heart attack or stroke. The patient was turning blue."

"We ran back inside and got the instructor and then we started mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and CPR," Shepherd said.

Another miner who attended the class contacted the Prestonsburg Fire Department while the two men attended the victim.

"We got him breathing by the time the fire department arrived," Shepherd said. "The fire department had an excellent response time. They gave it 150 percent. It was excellent."

"We had just seen the man two minutes before," Shepherd added. "It's unbelievable. You're alive one minute and the next minute you can be near death. You never know what can happen."

The victim, later identified as James E. Elkins, died at Highlands Regional Medical Center. He was transported to the hospital by Respond Ambulance service.

This was not the first time Shepherd was faced with a life and death situation.

"While I was in college, a man came to my door about 6 a.m. and asked to use the telephone," Shepherd said. "Before he could do anything else, he grabbed his chest and collapsed in my doorway. He had a massive heart attack and there was nothing anyone could do."

Shepherd said he was grateful to his company for providing CPR training and he urged everyone to learn the procedure. He said people should be aware of just how many people have the training and who could respond in an emergency situation.

State wants site prep rebid for high school project

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A million dollar site preparation contract for the Prestonsburg High School will have to be re-bid after the contract submitted to the state Department of Education was rejected.

Mike Luscher, director of buildings and grounds for the education department, said he informed Floyd County Superintendent Ron Hager by letter last week the bid for $1.3 million by C & W Equipment Company of Manchester had been rejected by the state and recommended the project be bid again.

"Basically the first round of bidding was non-responsive," Luscher said. "The bid advertisement called for a base bid and an alternate. From my standpoint, this bid does not meet what it will cost to do the whole site. I've asked the board to re-bid to get a true cost of site preparation."

In addition to the cost factor, Luscher said the plans submitted did not provide the specified 18 acres at the site and instead only 13 usable acres were obtainable.

"We want to see if we can get the originally proposed 18 acres out of the site," Luscher said. "Plus, there's a competition factor. If we only have one bid it's not very competitive."

The board is not required to re-bid the site preparation package but if the bid is not state approved the project cannot proceed.

"They wouldn't absolutely have to (re-bid)," Luscher said. "From our standpoint we advise the board they should do it. But, the project can't go on until we approve it."

Of school construction contracts :

Review asked by architect

by Scott Perry
and

The architect for several Eastern Kentucky school construction projects, including Floyd County's Left Beaver High School, has asked the state's Office of Educational Accountability to review what he calls "abnormal compensation" paid to the construction manager of those projects.

In a January 24 letter to Dr. Penney Sanders, director of the newly formed Office of Educational Accountability, Pikeville architect James A. Ellis questioned construction management contracts held by Martin Engineering and Construction Company, Inc., of Martin for school construction projects in Floyd, Pike and Martin counties.

In his letter, Ellis alleges that the construction manager contracts "appears, upon casual review, to be a standard American Institute of Architects Construction Managers contract."

"However," Ellis adds, "subtle but significant modifications convert what the contract calls a 'lump sum' fee of (five percent) of the construction cost into an open-ended contract with abnormal compensation."

In Martin Engineering's construction manager contract for the Left Beaver High School in Floyd County, the company is to receive a "lump sum" of $191,422.00 for providing construction manager services on the project.

The contract calls for Martin Engineering to receive that amount in equal monthly installments of $13,673 throughout a projected 14-month construction phase.

Ellis alleges, however, that another clause in the contract allows Martin Engineering to continue to receive the $13,673 monthly payments beyond the 14-month period, and for as long as the construction phase of the project lasts.

Construction on Left Beaver High School has not yet begun, but project documents indicate that Martin Engineering has received $206,422 in construction management fees. The amount coincides with the total amount of contracted manager fees plus a $15,000 fee for the project's "pre-construction" phase.

Ellis has estimated that construction of the Left Beaver school will take another 22 months, and he alleges that Martin Engineering will continue, under its construction management contract, to draw $13,673 per month over that time. If payments are made for that length of time, the total would exceed the original construction manager's contract by $300,806 and would represent nearly 10 percent of the total estimated cost of construction for the high school.

Similar contracts for construction manager services were signed by the Floyd County Board of Education and Akers and Akers, Inc. for the James D. Adams Middle School project and with Martin Engineering for Duff Elementary.

The contracts called for Martin Engineering to receive $157,709 in fees for the Duff Elementary project and $190,000 to Akers and Akers for the middle school project. Both contract amounts were to be paid in equal

Festival plans are advancing

by Tim B. Preston

Local civic and business leaders gathered at the Prestonsburg Municipal Building Wednesday night to discuss options and ideas for the upcoming Festival of F.A.C.E.S. to be held in the city of Prestonsburg May 12-19.

The meeting served as an organizational forum for representatives of the various organizations to discuss the current status of the festival, and as a planning session for this year's event.

Several of the proposed events, such as a Saturday night performance by the Kentucky Opry and a 10K Run, were tentatively confirmed by individual event organizers Billie Jean Osborne and Rick Roberts. Ideas and suggestions, however, were the main

Boysen to keynote coalition meeting

Dr. Thomas Boysen, Kentucky's Commissioner of Education, will be the guest speaker at an event February 9 which will unite 71 community and county organizations in Floyd County.

"We are Floyd County" is the name of the coalition formed to work toward improving education, employment and the environment in the county. The first meeting of the group will be Saturday, February 9 at the new Jenny Wiley Convention Center at Jenny Wiley State Park. The meeting will be held from 9:30 a.m. until 2 p.m. A performance will be given by the Kentucky Opry.

The meeting is open to any individual or organization interested in working toward improving Floyd County.

Road woes aired by group

Truck drivers call it "the land of death".

Mud Creek residents say that close calls have been a way of life on Rt. 979 for far too long.

The 19-mile stretch of narrow pavement is the main road for approximately ten to fifteen thousand Floyd County residents, as well as one of the county's busiest coal haul roads.

Susan Pilch, who's husband Sterling Bud Hamilton Jr. was killed in a collision with a coal truck last year, presented highway officials a copy of her husband's death certificate at a recent meeting at the Greshel Volunteer Fire Department. "Half of the people at this meeting probably had a close call on the way to this meeting," said Pilch. "They will come here and give us a sugarcoated lollipop. Promise a bunch of work on the road and let it go until everybody forgets. But I can't forget. Everytime I look up on the hillside, there he (her husband) lays. We have to get something done up here. They've promised and promised, but they've done nothing."

Approximately 30 Mud Creek residents provided highway officials with petitions and requests for work on dangerous curves and narrow spans on the road. Passing lanes, water and ice removal, road widening and guardrail installation represented the majority of the residents requests.

"This road was built in the 1930's with mattocks, shovels and wheelbarrows. Before then it was a wagon trail," said Homer Hamilton, a former school bus driver assigned to Rt. 979 for 14 years. "For what it has to carry, this is the worst road in the nation. The school board hasn't got enough money to pay me to drive a busload of children on this road now."

Kentucky Secretary of Transportation Milo Bryant told media representatives last fall that passing lanes would be installed "up and down Rt. 979". According to Angie Segal, a spokesperson for Bryant, easements are currently sought for one passing lane on the road.

Other passing lanes planned were canceled due to what Segal called "channel and geometric changes," on the road. The one remaining proposed passing lane would be constructed near milemarker #12, a straight stretch of road located approximately halfway between Harold and Hi Hat.

Eula Hall, a well known resident of Mud Creek said that residents of the area would not stand for a passing

Faulty elbow causes flood at Duff

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A defective elbow joint is being blamed for a sprinkler leak at Duff Elementary last week that flooded the first floor of the school.

Frankie Francis, director of buildings and grounds for the board, said Paul Hoffman, architect for the project, had inspected the elbow joint and found it to be defective.

School was not in session due to inclement weather when the break occurred.

"The architect said the flooding was not caused by freezing water in the line but that the elbow joint was defective," Francis said. Water covered half of the first floor through a leak in the ceiling and ceiling tiles had to be replaced. No damage estimate was available.

In other construction work at Duff last week, a new addition to the school is a shed to house the Maytown Volunteer Fire Department truck to prevent the water in the truck from freezing during the winter months. The fire truck must be on school premises while students are on campus until a water tower is constructed to increase water pressure to operate the sprinkler system in case of fire.

The shed cost "$2-$300" to construct, said Birchell Duff, director of the board's maintenance department.

"We just put together enough to keep the cold off the truck," Duff said. "It took about four weeks to put up and we'll remove it when the weather breaks. We used two-by-fours and plywood, cheap stuff."

The lack of water pressure at Duff has been a problem since the school opened in September. The current state Fire Marshal's temporary certificate of occupancy expires March 8, said George Mann, from the fire marshal's office. That certificate can be renewed, Mann said. Mann said the construction of a water tower has been delayed because the design plans lack professional seals and signatures. Mann said the plans are up to code but cannot be approved with the proper seals and signatures.

goal of the meeting.

Several ideas were noted for follow up during the round-table discussion, including: approaching Floyd County School Board officials to encourage participation by county schools in a county-wide band concert performance, parade floats for school teams and organizations, and general participation in the festival; nomination of Wheelwright High School teacher Carol Stumbo as Grand Marshall of the F.A.C.E.S. parade; inclusion of the Senior Games (a senior citizens competition) in the opening ceremonies of the festival; inviting area artists and craftsmen to sell and display works in the Prestonsburg Municipal Parking Lot; establishment of a "Home Town Registry" for county residents returning to the area for the events; and organization of an antique car show and a parade float for all mayors and other city officials in the county.

Linda Ritchie, a downtown Prestonsburg merchant, told the group that city merchants were anxious to participate in the festival. "The merchants of Prestonsburg are willing to help in any way," she said. Prestonsburg City Councilman Billy Ray Collins also said that merchants were willing to help with the festival.

Charlotte McFall, representing the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce, said Thursday that the festival board is open to suggestions for the festival. "We are very interested in new ideas," she said. "We encourage anyone who might want to get involved, offer suggestions or ideas."

Anyone with an idea or suggestion for the F.A.C.E.S. festival is encouraged to contact James O. Vanhoose at The Bank Josephine (886-4000) during regular business hours, or Fred James at 886-2335.

ASCS announces changes in the burley tobacco program

The Secretary of Agriculture has announced that Burley tobacco producers will be allowed to sell additional 1990 crop Burley without incurring marketing penalties.

The maximum quantity of additional Burley pounds a producer will be allowed will be an amount equal to 5 percent of the farm's basic quota for 1990. The additional quantity that is marketed under this authorization will be eligible for price support at the same level as other tobacco marketed from the farm and will not be deducted as an overmarketing when determining the farm's 1991 Burley quota.

Also ASCS will be accepting applications for new Burley quotas thru February 15, 1991.

To be eligible for a new Burley tobacco allotment, the applicant must not have any ownership or interest in any farm for which a tobacco quota of any kind is already established; must have readily available the land, equipment and other facilities necessary for the production of the tobacco; must expect to obtain more than 50 percent of his or her current year income from farming; must have experience in producing Burley tobacco in two of the last five years; must own the land which itself must be suitable for the production of the tobacco.

Anyone who is interested in this or any other ASCS program may obtain more information by calling 785-5402 or 886-8738 (Wednesdays only).

ASCS programs are open to all eligible persons regardless of color, race, creed, national origin, sex, marital status, political or religious affiliation, or age.

monthly installments over a 14-month period.

Between January 30, 1989 and July 31, 1990, a period of 18 months, Akers and Akers was paid $244,285.74 on the middle school project or about $54,000 more than the "lump sum" contract amount.

At Duff, Martin Engineering was paid $307,886.16 over an estimated two-year period or about $150,000 more than the initial contract amount.

Perkins gets first subcommittee chairmanship

U.S. Congressman Chris Perkins has been named a subcommittee chairman on the House's powerful Education and Labor Committee. Perkins will assume leadership of the Employment Opportunities subcommittee; his first chairmanship since he was elected in 1984.

The Subcommittee on Employment Opportunities handles issues relating to employment and training legislation. Perkins said the subcommittee will specifically look to improve existing programs that help disadvantaged youths and adults get jobs. This could be accomplished by strengthening the Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA) and improving Job Corps programs across the country, he said.

Besides those initiatives, the Subcommittee on Employment Opportunities will deal with issues at the federal level such as drug testing, improving job opportunities for people with basic skills, acting to overcome age discrimination and working to improve the Rural Concentrated Employment Program.

The subcommittee announcement was made by Rep. William D. Ford (D-MI), chairman of the Education and Labor Committee.

lane on a level and straight part of the road. "There are too many hills and curves that need construction work for them to put a passing lane on a straight piece of road," said Hall. "They have just neglected all of the dangerous spots on the road. We're not talking about millions of dollars here for water removal. That can be done with just a shovel and mattock. There are too many places like Freeland Tackett Hill, Branham's Creek and Minks Branch that need work for them to come in and put one passing lane on a straight stretch."

State highway workers have reportedly been working to correct problems with water and ice on several areas of the road according to residents of Mud Creek. John Bowlin of the Kentucky Department of Highways office in Pikeville said Thursday that he had not been able to inspect or verify work on the road. Hugh Sammons, highway transportation engineer for Floyd County, said work crews were slowly eliminating all of the water and ice problem spots on the road, although work was being slowed by broken equipment and wet weather. "We are working on the problems. We should have the equipment repaired soon and then they can get in there and work on ditches and other problems."

Mud Creek residents had threatened to picket highway department offices in Pikeville if work on the road had not begun.

School boards in Pike County and Martin County have similar "open end" construction manager contracts with Martin Engineering.

Payments beyond the contracted "lump sum" amounts were approved by boards of education in Floyd, Pike and Martin counties with their approval of the construction manager contracts.

Woody Barwick, executive director of the state School Facilities Construction Commission said Thursday he did not consider the added costs for construction manager services to be "excessive."

"If the Floyd County board approved the payments," Barwick said, "it's their responsibility. We (didn't) approve the contract, the Floyd County board did."

Mike Luscher, director of the state Department of Education's division of Building and Grounds, whose office reportedly is charged with approving contracts for construction manager services, did not return calls concerning the issue Thursday.

Dr. Penney Sanders, director of the department's Office of Educational Accountability, acknowledged Thursday that she had received a letter from architect Ellis requesting a review of the construction manager issue.

Martin Engineering and Construction owner Sam Martin Jr. was not available Thursday to respond to Ellis' allegations and he did not return calls concerning the issue.

Floyd County school superintendent Ronald Hager reportedly underwent oral surgery Thursday, and was unavailable for comment.

The construction manager system for school construction is designed to control costs and save money on projects.

Under the approach, school boards are effectively the general contractor for a project and materials and services are purchased directly through them. Since government agencies are tax exempt, they are not required to pay sales taxes on materials bought, and the tax exempt status represents considerable cost savings.

A construction manager oversees all phases of a project and is generally paid a flat fee based on a percentage of the total project cost. In many cases, those fees are distributed in amounts coinciding with the percentage of progress on a particular project.

Husband stays behind

Eastern Kentucky native in America during war in new home of Saudi Arabia

"December, 1990

"Dear Friends:

"We're still in Saudi Arabia and going on as usual. Abdul-ilah is still farming. I'm still teaching, and Sami and Sari still go to school with me. We see lots of American soldiers (Sami calls them G.I. Joes) everyday. We've had a few tense days when everyone seemed to think war was imminent. We now practice bomb drills at school on a regular basis. It doesn't exactly fill one with confidence, but I suppose it's a necessary evil." - from a letter Paula Al-Saihati wrote before Christmas to her aunt, Nell Ruth Spears, and her family in Pike County.

by Terry Spears
News Express
Managing Editor

Paula Banks Al-Saihati is an Eastern Kentucky native with more at stake in the Persian Gulf War than most Americans. Her husband and his family, and her home, are in Saudi Arabia, a few miles away from the Dhahran Airport which Saddam Hussein is hurling Scud missiles at.

"I left before the war started," said Saihati, who flew out of the Dhahran Airport with her two youngest children the night of January 13, shortly before the United Nations deadline expired. "I left still not knowing if there would be war, hoping and praying that there would not be."

Her husband, Abdul-ilah Al-Saihati, stayed behind, with his family and his farm. She has talked to him every day, and said, "He tries to reassure me that everything is fine. But he carries his gas mask."

One night, Abdul told Paula, he felt the house shake, presumably from an exploding Scud missile being brought down by an American Patriot anti-missile missile.

Paula Banks was born in Pikeville, the daughter of Ralph Banks and the late Sadie Johnson Banks of Wheelwright. Her mother was a Pike County native, the daughter of the late Noah and Pearl Johnson of Virgie. Her father is a Harlan County native.

Her mother died from cancer when Paula was young. A few years later, her father married Mary Carol Damron of Pike County. Her father and step-mother currently reside in Virginia. Her brother, Greg Banks, also lives in Virginia.

Paula went to school at Wheelwright, then attended the University of Kentucky. She lived in Kentucky until she was 24.

She met Abdul-ilah Al-Saihati in 1981. Both of them were working on their master's degree in California.

She married Saihati and has lived in Saudi Arabia five winters. She spends seven to eight months a year there, and the rest of the time in America. Abdul also spends some time in America each year.

Abdul and Paula have two children, Sami (5) and Sara (2). They are in Lawrence, Kansas, with Paula now, where she is spending some time with her two American daughters by a previous marriage, Angela (16) and Joy Benedict (14).

The Saihatis live in Saihat, Saudi Arabia, a farming and fishing village about 30 miles north of the now-famous Dhahran. Abdul is an engineer, but doesn't practice his profession at present. Instead, he farms, growing cucumbers, tomatoes, beans, peppers, and raising goats, sheep and cattle.

Farming is a highly-technical, very expensive trade in Saudi Arabia, where farms are located inside tunnel greenhouses, covered by plastic supported by steel.

Paula Al-Saihati is a junior high and high school English teacher at a private school in Dhahran, where she was in the middle of her third year. The school was on its winter break when she left the country, and is scheduled to resume February 2. She said she doesn't know if school will be delayed by the war, but she has no plans to go back to Saudi Arabia with the war in progress.

She said her husband hasn't told her if he will leave his homeland when the crops are in. There are no commercial planes flying out of Dhahran now, so he would have to drive across the country to catch a flight out.

Paula Al-Saihati said she enjoys her life in Saudi Arabia, despite the customs and laws which restrict women's activities. Abdul is "tolerant" of her American customs, she said, and allows her freedom to celebrate holidays such as Thanksgiving and Christmas.

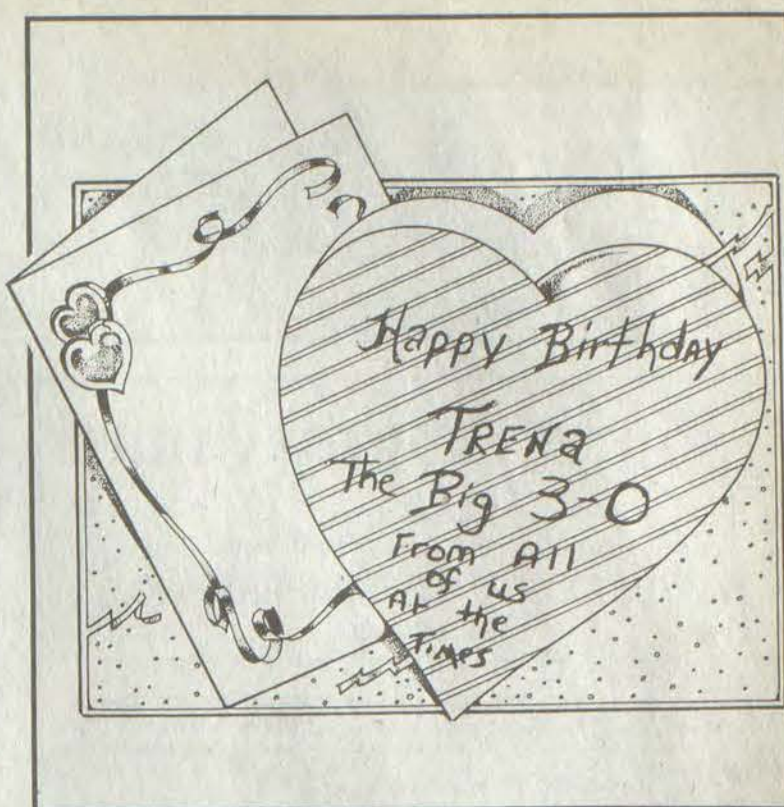

While the war goes on, Paula Al-Saihati watches CNN's coverage of the war continually, sometimes much of the night, and prays for a peaceful end. Both of her countries are involved - America and Saudi Arabia - and both have the same feeling for Saddam Hussein and Iraq.

"I saw so many young soldiers before I left. I thought it was such a shame they have to go to war. We don't want anybody to die," she said.

Paula and Sami

Paula Al-Saihati, an Eastern Kentucky native now living in Saudi Arabia, is shown above in 1987 with her son, Sami, who was two years old at the time. Sami, now 5, and daughter Sara, 2, are with their mother in Lawrence, Kansas, as the Persian Gulf War is going on near their home. The Saihatis live about 30 miles north of Dhahran, Saudi Arabia, where Saddam Hussein's Scud missiles are being shot almost daily. See story.

AAA urges motorists go on diet

Plenty of people are willing to pay premium prices for premium gas. However, car owners should not equate high octane with high quality, AAA cautions.

In fact, although 24 to 28 percent of the total gas market is for premium, less than 10 percent of the cars on the road require premium gas.

"When you pay more for premium, you're essentially paying for higher octane," said Kathy Gross of AAA. "Most newer cars run just fine on 87 octane regular unleaded." Electronic fuel injection and knock sensors automatically adjust the fuel-air mixture and the ignition timing. Older engines and high-performance high-compression engines do require higher-octane gas.

If your owner's manual recommends 87 octane unleaded and you don't hear knocks, paying for the premium is just wasting money. Many motorists buy premium gas anyway, based on some mistaken assumptions. Here are the facts:

- * Higher octane is not higher quality gas.—Implicit in the name premium is that higher-octane gas is better. It's not. Octane is a measure of "burnability", not quality.
- * Premium gas is not always higher-octane gas. The octane label on pumps isn't always trustworthy. Thirty states, including Kentucky, do not test octane at the pump. Last April, the General Accounting Office released a study verifying the accuracy of octane labels in 18 states, seven without testing programs. In those areas, the actual octane was lower than labeled in 22 to 53 percent of the cases—mostly involving premium gasoline.

* Premium gas does not provide more power or "pep". In fact, since higher-octane gas usually has more lighter-weight components, it actually delivers less energy per gallon.

* Premium gas does not improve fuel economy.

* Premium gas does not necessarily keep your engine cleaner. Most gas companies add detergents to their gas to keep fuel injectors and other engine parts clean and unclogged. And, some premium gasolines may actually make your engine and the environment dirtier. Certain compounds added to boost octane are relatively dirty fuels — they burn incompletely and increase emissions that become toxic when exposed to air and light.

In the absence of credible, complete product labeling on gas pumps, AAA offers this advice:

- * Use gas with an octane level recommended in your owner's manual. Don't pay for octane you don't need.
- * Buy gas from name-brand dealers that claim to add detergents.
- * Choose the best gas for your car by trial and error. If you encounter drivability problems after filling up at a particular gas station, avoid buying gas there in the future.
- * If you drive an older car, one which suffers engine knock with 87-octane regular unleaded, try a mid-grade. And, if you hear knocks even with a higher-octane gas, you may be a victim of octane mislabeling. Try another gas station.

Editorial:

When Johnny comes marching home . . .

by Scott Perry

American government and military officials have assured us that the war in the Persian Gulf will not be another Vietnam.

By that, they mean our soldiers will be allowed to win this war.

The American public can do their share to guarantee no return to Vietnam, too.

Soldiers returning to this country after service in Vietnam found no hero's welcome. They found protest, hate and misguided blame from a society that held them responsible for failure in the Far East.

Some suggest that today's overwhelming support for our troops in Saudi Arabia is a case of America's guilty conscience showing...an attempt to right the wrongs suffered by Vietnam veterans.

Maybe that's reading too much between the lines.

Whatever, the public support for American troops in the Middle East is proper.

When Johnny comes marching home from Iraq, let's give him a hero's welcome. And let's ask Vietnam veterans to join the parade.

It's never too late to say we're sorry.

No Matter What

Concerned citizens for a new Prestonsburg High School met last week to discuss and ask school officials about the controversial high school project. Most were adamant about their desire to have a new high school and asked what stage the project was in and what would happen if the project was stopped.

But, the group failed to ask a vital question about the project. Has proper procedure been followed in acquiring the site and approving the excavation bid?

The group was so headstrong about NOT sending the money appropriated for the school back to Frankfort, (which can't happen because the money is already earmarked for Floyd County), that they would take a high school no matter what.

One remark, "It wouldn't look good on us not to take the money they're offering us for a new high school."

No one discussed the fact that new Education Commissioner Thomas Boyesen is interested in the situation and scheduled a meeting with board member Eddie Billips to discuss concerns about the project.

No one discussed comments made by Boyd Circuit Judge Charles Sinnenette about the legality of the deed to the property or the "apparent wind-fall" the grantor of the property would receive from the coal rights.

No one discussed comments made by Steve Yater, legal counsel for state Department of Education, concerning the board's approval of minutes of a December 28 special meeting at the conclusion of that meeting. Or Yater's question about the deed being fee simple, a state requirement.

No one asked if Floyd County taxpayers are getting their money's worth.

No one asked how much money would be left to address the school system's other pressing construction needs.

No one is arguing whether or not a new high school is needed for Prestonsburg. New schools are needed in various parts of the county. Everyone seems to agree on that point.

But do Floyd Countians want to send the message across the state that they want a new high school no matter what?

It would seem the first question to be asked should be, "Have our elected officials followed the rules?" "Is the deed fee simple?" "Why are there so many questions about this project?" And, "Why have we captured the attention of our new education commissioner?"

Hopefully, all the proper procedures have been followed and explanations will be given to answer all the questions being asked. Then, the school board can get to work on the most important project in the county—educating our children with the supplies they need and providing the proper, safe environment they deserve.

That is what it's all about, right?

Being free to criticize the government or anything else is the most precious freedom we have.

On January 28 of this year, a few people attending a rally in the Prestonsburg Municipal Parking Lot spat on a lone protester whose only offense was to wear a peace sign and to carry a sign stating American troops should be brought home "NOW".

The controversy over the Middle East conflict is only one of many issues dividing the people of the commonwealth. Whether it be the school board controversy, the waste ordinance controversy or the coal severance tax controversy, Kentuckians usually debate their differences with a minimum of violence.

The display of aggression toward Mark Vanderpool is just as horrendous as Saddam Hussein's aggressive action in Kuwait!

Let us not forget that 21 years ago the Ohio National Guard murdered four unarmed students whose only offense was to oppose the war in Vietnam.

Have we become a nation of tyrants or are we only being led to slaughter?

American author Edward Abbey once said, "In a nation of sheep, one brave man becomes a majority."

I support our troops in the Middle East, but I oppose the policies of the Reagan/Bush Administration because I have always felt they should be attending to the problems of the least fortunate, not the most fortunate.

And I oppose violent aggression of any kind.

I'm so proud to be an American
I thank God I was born on the western side

I love to see Old Glory flying.
I shall stand and say it with pride.
I back the boys who are fighting for our freedom.

In no way, I'd put them down.
I pray that God will watch over them.

Bring them home safe and sound.
They have gone to fight the devil.
A very cruel and brutal man.

He's backed by a very heartless army.

Lord don't let their blood fall on the sand.

The price of freedom is never cheap.

For this someone will die.
In war there is always casualties
In war, someone will cry,
Let us tie our yellow ribbons,
And fly Old Glory while they're gone.

Stand up proud to back our soldiers,
Prepare to welcome them back home.

This letter is in response to the story titled "Hundreds Unite For Troops." Several people are complaining about the way the story was written, but I see nothing wrong with it. After all, aren't our troops fighting for the freedom to express opinions?

The story only stated the facts and told both sides. What's really sad is how the people treated the "lone protester." To think that someone can be spit upon and cursed just for expressing his own opinion is terrible. Isn't this America — where everyone is guaranteed the right to freedom of expression? He had just as much right to be there as anyone else did. Everyone has a right to their own opinion. Our troops are there fighting for our country and everything it stands for (including the right to protest), and here we are spitting upon him and telling him he has no right to be there. It's totally unfair and it's not what America is about.

I don't want anyone to misunderstand what I'm trying to say. I support the troops in the Middle East just as much as anyone else does; I have several friends over there and one who could be called up at any minute.

But, I also believe that we should try to find a more peaceful solution to this problem. And I think that's what the "lone protester" was trying to say too. He carried a sign saying that he wanted the troops home "now"; isn't that what we all want? Shouldn't we be praying for their safe return home instead of complaining about how one little newspaper article was written? Think about it.

We in Eastern Kentucky, the "step-child" of the state, have had another whack. According to the Lexington Herald Leaders' January 23 edition, our overpaid politicians (not our representatives) have voted 88-0, with no debate, to let the Scott Paper factory take $15.7 million worth of incentives — over $7 million from the road fund in two years. By then the pot holes in our region will be craters.

They also debated about the vote-fraud law. State law has outlawed the exchange of anything of value for votes for more than a century. What are they afraid of?

Then there is the garbage problem. Will we be the Happy Dumping Ground for out-of-state garbage? A government that owns a landfill for instance, is a market-participant and is not bound by interstate commerce. Kentucky can, if it chooses, simply refuse to accept imported waste. A public owned facility would not have to take out-of-state trash. We need local control, those communities have a way to prohibit out-of-state waste. State control forces communities to accept state decision. With the track record of the Frankfort bunch permitting facilities at unsuitable sites, waiving or overlooking regulatory requirements and permitting unqualified operators (some connected to organized crime), we do not want state control.

We, as citizens of Kentucky, are required to carry insurance in our cars at all times. I understand that a person can purchase insurance for a month, then get his license plates before the month is up. It takes the Frankfort bunch at least nine months to recognize that John Doe does not have insurance on his car and finally do something about it, such as taking the license plates.

Also, the coal severance tax has been a hot subject for at least six, and maybe 10 years. We produce the coal and those who live west of Winchester reap the benefits. Do you see pot holes in the highways there? Do they not have fine schools; do they not have industries?

We in the coal producing counties such as Floyd only receive 12 percent of all coal produced here. Our overpaid politicians (not representatives) voted for the Scott Paper Co. and the airline companies in Northern Kentucky, worth approximately $175 million, and not for us to receive 25 percent of the coal severance monies. In two years imagine how much coal will be removed from here. Coal cannot be replaced. They murmur something about that in the year 1992 they can work it out. That, my friends, is too late.

There is also the DUI law. For years most states decided that a 0.10 reading meant you were drunk. Evidently, the Frankfort bunch have trouble understanding that. You are either drunk or sober, no questions. If you are drunk, you do not need to be on the highway to run the risk of killing me or a school bus filled with children. In 1990, young people between the ages of 15 and 24 years of age were killed at an estimated number of 7000.

Watch KET at 8 p.m. on Friday nights and at 8 Monday thru Thursday and see how our $35 thousand a day is being spent. If you missed the January 25th program, you missed a very informative program.

Do not sit idly by and let politics as usual prevail. You can make a difference. Election is coming up in May and November, so let your fingers "do the talking".

Our Yesterdays

(Items taken from the Floyd County Times 10, 20, 30, 40, and 50 years ago.)

10 Years Ago

(February 4, 1981)

If Department of Revenue figures are correct, Floyd County is one of 41 counties in the state that have their 1980 assessments at more than the 100 percent ideal sought by the department. Lovel Hall, Property Valuation Administrator, for this county, doubts they are. Also, if figures released by the department, showing that Floyd county has a 1980 property tax assessment-sales ratio of 107.7 are accurate, Hall said, I wouldn't see anything illegal about reducing the assessment total for this county by 7.7 percent, since 100 percent was all they demanded. Hall sees one cause of the higher assessment-cost ratio as the 18 percent inflation which was imposed by the state last year. This means that a home which sold for $50,000 in 1979, say, would in 1980 have 19 percent, or $9,000, added to its evaluation. "But that is unjust," he pointed out, because a slower economy and high interest rates kept such an increase in the sale price of such property down. The department of Revenue has held that if a county's assessment-sales ratio is within 10 percent of the 100 percent ideal—90 or 110—it is still considered acceptable. Floyd county's total assessment for 1980 was $389,650,000, of which $170,370 was listed as real estate. The grand jury convened Monday morning for a three-day session, and the first cases to be investigated were those involving the slaying of a Garrett man by his brother, and a Printer woman by her husband. Named defendants in the slaying under investigation are Frankie Gibson, accused of the shooting of his brother, Grover Gibson at Garrett, and Torrence Wright, who is under $20,000 bond in the recent shooting-death near Printer of his wife, Barbara. Indictments against the two are believed to have been made Monday, but no indictments will be reported until time for jury adjournment. Mrs. Mary Catherine Hutsiniller Smith, 49, last Saturday morning became the second Prestonsburg woman to die in her burning home within a period of a few weeks. The first such fatality was the death of Frances Jones, former Prestonsburg teacher, on December 18. Mrs. Smith was the daughter of the late Charles L. and Maxie Allen Hutsiniller and was a native of Prestonsburg. There died: Albert Bushong "Bush" Brooke, Jr., 61, formerly of Wayland, died January 23 at Alexandria, Virginia; Mrs. Dixie Tackett Tuttle, 66, of Weeksbury, died Saturday at the Huntington Memorial Hospital in Huntington, Ind., where she had been living for the past two months; Lukie Korowski, 92, of Green Acres, Prestonsburg, died Monday at the Mountain Manor Nursing Home here following a long illness; Mrs. Verniece Martin Hall, 59, of Harold, died last Wednesday at Highlands Regional Medical Center after a long illness; Mrs. Martha Hoover Hayes, 93, died Monday at her home after a short illness; Hugh Douglas Rowland, 80, died Tuesday, January 27, at his home at Langley; Elbert L. Powers, of Bypro, died last Saturday at the McDowell Appalachian hospital; Mrs. Nannie Chaffins, 68, of Ligonier, Ind., formerly of this county, died Saturday at the Goshen (Ind.) General Hospital; Mrs. Vivian T. Kimmel, 57, died last Wednesday at her home at Betsy Layne after being stricken by an apparent heart attack.

Gov. Bert Combs announced this week that the state will advertise for bids for construction of a 35-room lodge at Jenny Wiley State Park, Dewey Lake, by March 15. The Eastern Kentucky toll road from which two feeder highways will delve deep into the Mountains, linking this section with the Blue Grass, moved nearer reality this week as $38,000,000 in bonds were reported ready to go on the market Wednesday. Construction will begin within the next few days here on a building which will house the largest bowling center east of Lexington, it was announced Tuesday. Production of coal in the field represented by the Big Sandy-Elkhorn Coal Operators Association skidded as expected the first week in January due chiefly to New Year's holiday but it had not fully recovered by the week ending Jan. 21. Born: To Mr. and Mrs. James R. Camicia, of Prestonsburg, a daughter, Margaret Ann, January 27 here; to Dr. and Mrs. Norman White, of Prestonsburg, a son, Norman II, January 21. There died: Mark Tackett, 70, of Virgie, formerly of Pikeville; B.W. (Brack) Bentley, 85, Sunday at his home at Garrett; Mrs. Hannah E. Meade, 72, last Wednesday at her home at Banner; Miss Cynthia Sexton, 76, of Banner, Sunday; Rhodia McGuire, 42, formerly of West Prestonsburg, Friday in Findlay, O.; Opal Jean Smith, 14, of Brainard, last Wednesday at Louisville.

A steady fall of rain onto Monday night's snow threatened today (Thursday) to turn the Big Sandy valley's part of the nation-wide "deep freeze" into a flood. The Floyd County Board of Education owns 127 separate tracts of land for school purposes, but few of these are of the area needed and being more and more demanded by state education authorities, said County Superintendent Palmer L. Hall this week. Mrs. George Glenn hatcher announced Saturday, January 27, her intention to seek the Democratic nomination for Secretary of State and succeed her husband in that office. "If a man isn't able to eat the foods he likes he's in mighty sorry shape—imagine going through life without being able to enjoy a fine big platter of bacon eggs." That is the way Joseph N. Damillol, of Dayton, O. described his tragic circumstances before trying HADACOL, according to an ad for the timeless elixir in the Times this week. Born: To Mr. and Mrs. Lewis McKee, of David, a son, Bobby Gale, Jan. 13; to Mr. and Mrs. Edward Music, of Prestonsburg, a daughter, Judy Irene, Jan. 24. There died: John C. Coburn, 79, of Little Paint, Friday; Lula Newsom, 38, Friday at her home at Bevinsville of tuberculosis; W. R. (Bogge) Crisp, 92, Monday at his home on Turkey Creek near Langley; Mrs. Rebecca Boyd, 70, Jan. 24 at her home at Dana; Festus Reynolds, 69, Monday at his home at Ligon.

After returning 152 true bills, from the examination of 218 witnesses, the grand jury of the Floyd circuit court ended nine days of work Wednesday with a final report in which it lashed out at roadhouses and enforcement of the law in connection with their conduct. Following the adoption of a plan to subdivide the big Sandy district of the Lonesome Pine Council, Boy Scouts of America, into four divisions, the first of a series of division organization meetings was held at the Valley Inn here Friday evening. Floyd county's lime program will be discussed by County Agent S. L. Isbell in a broadcast Friday noon over WLW it was announced Monday. Garrett's Black Devils defeated Wayland's Wildcats but not before staging off defeat on at least two occasions in the closing seconds of what was described as "the best tournament basketball game ever played in Eastern Kentucky," Saturday at Wayland. Born: To Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Wicker, of Martin, a son, January 25. There died: Mrs. Fanny Mayo, 63, Wednesday at her home at Hite; Mrs. Kate Stephens Spradlin, Sunday at her home on Abbott Creek; John Nelson Kelly, 56, Monday at Martin; Ezra Akers, 45, formerly of Printer, January 20 in Lakeland, Florida.

Martin Council approves audit in special meeting

by Tim B. Preston
Staff Writer

Martin City Council members officially approved the city's audit for fiscal year 1990 Wednesday night, in the only action taken at the meeting.

Councilman Joe Simpson questioned passing the audit without council members having time to read over the report. "I'm not trying to cause problems or anything, but I think we ought to have enough time to look this stuff over before we come in here and vote to approve it."

City Clerk Johnnie B. Stevens told Simpson that delays in getting the audit could not be prevented and asked him if he would understand the audit even if he did have time to read it over. Simpson said he might not understand it, but that he would appreciate time to read it over even if he couldn't make sense of it.

Martin Mayor Raymond Griffith said that the audit had to be approved by the city by the next day and further time to read the report was not available. Council members unanimously approved a motion to accept the report.

Although no other action was taken at the meeting, council members spent several minutes discussing problems related to the city's water and sewage systems before adjourning.

Mayor Griffith said that outstanding debts, possible water leaks and bookkeeping methods had to be resolved or unspecified grant monies could be jeopardized.

Collection of past debts to the city owned water company dominated the discussion as Councilman Simpson and Mayor Griffith debated about methods used to collect the debts and the alternative of adjusting water prices.

"I'm not going to pay so much as 15 cents more on a water bill just because some people won't pay their bills," said Simpson.

Mayor Griffith explained that raising water prices would be a last resort and said that water service should be systematically cut off, instead of allowing customers to run up high water bills. "I know it's a bad thing to do, cutting peoples water off. But what else can you do?" said Griffith.

Council members agreed to look over a list of suggestions compiled by the Farmers Home Administration to improve the water system and possibly take action at the next regular meeting of the council.

All council members were present for the meeting with the exception of Councilman E.P. Grigsby. The next regular meeting of the Martin City Council will be 7:00 p.m. Wednesday, February 4, at the Martin City Hall.

Floyd among areas prone to flooding

Kentucky's many streams and rivers provide its residents with a plentiful water supply, but during times of heavy rain, the abundance of this precious natural resource can threaten lives, destroy property, and disrupt routines.

The typical flood season in Kentucky occurs from November through May. However, floods may occur any time, as many people remember from their experiences during 1989, The Year of the Floods. In a nine-month period that year, eight counties (Knox, Owsley, Leslie, Knott, Lecher, Magoffin, Floyd, and Pike) were declared disaster areas three times; four counties (Jackson, Clay, Breathitt, and Perry) were declared disaster areas twice. By October, Knox, Knott and Leslie counties had been declared disaster areas for the eighth time since 1970.

The flooding began in January. By the end of February, 67 central and eastern Kentucky counties had sustained $80 million in damage. Franklin County was the hardest hit in February, when Frankfort experienced its third-worst flood causing damages worth $22 million. Then in June and July, 12 eastern Kentucky counties received $5.4 million worth of flood damage. Again in October, $11.4 million in damages occurred in 11 eastern Kentucky counties.

Because Kentuckians suffer millions of dollars in losses from flood damage virtually every year, Kentucky's Floodplain Management Section of the Kentucky Division of Water continues its prevention efforts year-round.

Members of the section visited more than 40 communities during the past year to assist local officials with floodplain management programs.

The staff helped 24 communities adopt or update floodplain management ordinances to meet federal criteria. The section's programs for regulating stream and floodplain development and for training and public information extend to approximately 240 communities in the National Flood Insurance Program.

The floodplain construction permitting program is a vital element in reducing flood losses. Not only are buildings constructed in floodplains subject to flood damage, they may hamper the free flow of high water during flood conditions. Education and technical assistance efforts by the Division of Water contributed to an increase in the number of floodplain construction applications in recent years.

The Division of Water also periodically conducts a survey of all known benchmarks within a community and establishes new ones if needed. Benchmarks are points of known elevation (referenced to mean sea level) that serve to help establish such criteria as fill heights and first-floor elevation requirements. Benchmarks are critical to floodplain management programs. Kentucky's survey is carried out under a grant from the Federal Emergency Management Agency and is available only for communities participating in the National Flood Insurance Program.

Another project to help prevent losses due to flooding involves the posting of signs to indicate flood prone areas. Tentative locations for sign posting are along the developing areas of the Ohio River in Jefferson and Oldham counties.

In addition, the Community Flood Damage Abatement Program operated between 1978 and 1990 to provide technical and financial assistance for flood control projects in the state. It helped many communities to mitigate flood damage.

Projects were funded in Fulton and Paducah in Western Kentucky, Jefferson County, Northern Kentucky at Dayton, Pike and Harlan counties in far Eastern Kentucky, and Williamsburg and Guthrie in Southeastern Kentucky, making this truly a statewide program.

For more information on flood damage protection and other flood-related programs of the Division of Water, write the Floodplain Management Section, Division of Water, Kentucky Department for Environmental Protection, 18 Reilly Road, Frankfort, KY. 40601, or call (502) 564-3410.

Governor Wilkinson proclaims February American Heart Month

Governor Wallace Wilkinson issued a proclamation designating February as American Heart Month and urged Kentuckians to support the lifesaving mission of the American Heart Association.

In the proclamation, Wilkinson noted that heart and blood vessel diseases are the leading killers in Kentucky. Such diseases took the lives of 15,754 Kentuckians during 1989, according to the American Heart Association.

Wilkinson asked for the support from the residents of Kentucky for the American Heart Association's campaign against heart diseases, stroke, hypertension and related disorders.

"Cardiovascular diseases caused nearly one million of our country's deaths in the last year and will cost our country $94.5 billion in 1990 for physician and nursing care, hospital and nursing home services, and medications, as well as the lost occupational output as a result of disability," Wilkinson said.

In 1989-90, the Kentucky Affiliate of the American Heart Association raised nearly $1,731,000. This year AHA volunteers have set a goal of $1,870,000. Individual and corporate contributions help fund research and education and community service programs. Currently, the Kentucky Affiliate is funding 24 research projects totalling more than $391,000. Programs include preschool, elementary, middle, and high school education materials, as well as employee wellness projects.

More than 25,000 volunteers in Kentucky will give their time to help with the AHA's annual educational and fund-raising drive during February. The text of Wilkinson's proclamation reads, in part:

"Whereas, cardiovascular disease is Kentucky's — and the nation's — number one cause of death; and

"Although tremendous advances are being made through cardiovascular research to improve methods of diagnosis, prevention and treatment of heart disease and stroke, 45 Kentuckians still die each day from cardiovascular disease; and

"Through research, educational and community service programs, the American Heart Association is working to decrease the staggering statistics associated with cardiovascular disease."

The American Heart Association is the nation's largest voluntary health organization dedicated to the reduction of disability and death from heart and blood vessel diseases, which annually kill almost one million Americans. Last year the AHA spent more than $172 million to support research and public and professional education and community programs.

Combat zone declaration triggers IRS tax relief

President Bush has designated the Persian Gulf a combat zone, triggering a number of federal tax relief provisions.

Members of the armed forces and support personnel in the Persian Gulf assigned to Operation Desert Storm will not have to file their 1990 federal income tax returns until at least 180 days after they depart from the Persian Gulf. No penalty or interest will be charged during this period on any tax due for 1990.

IRS also will suspend all tax return examinations and actions to collect any back taxes owed by these taxpayers for years prior to 1990 until at least 180 days after the taxpayer leaves the combat zone. During this time no penalty or interest will be added to any tax due.

These relief provisions apply not only to armed forces and support personnel serving in the Operation Desert Storm combat zone but also to their spouses.

Military pay received by enlisted personnel while serving in the combat zone is exempt from income tax. For commissioned officers, up to $500 a month can be excluded from income. The exclusion generally extends to periods of hospitalization resulting from injury or sickness suffered while serving in the combat zone.

In the event a member of the armed forces dies while serving in the combat zone, no tax is due for the year of death or any prior year in which the person served in the combat zone. In addition, any unpaid tax for years prior to service in the combat zone is forgiven.

Taxpayers, including spouses and others acting on behalf of a taxpayer in the Operation Desert Storm combat zone, should call IRS toll-free at 1-800-TAX-1040 (1-800-829-1040) for additional information on federal tax matters. If they receive correspondence about any collection or audit matter covered by these relief provisions, they should contact IRS immediately so that the action may be suspended.

Mountain Voices ————— by Willie Elliott

Look to our forefathers for ideas on conservation

Daily we hear more about how we are depleting our natural resources. When we buy something at the store today, we eventually throw nearly all of it away. (The next time you go grocery shopping, make note of how much you toss into the garbage when you get home and put the goods away.)

We do this in the name of convenience, but here convenience is a euphemism for laziness. If we could look back one or two generations, we would have some answers to our problems. Our parents and grandparents saved because it was a necessity.

Many of us, don't realize it, but saving is again becoming a necessity.

Remember when it was canning time? Let's look at a typical canning session. Peaches were brought from the orchard or bought from some enterprising soul who hauled fruits and vegetables from Georgia or South Carolina to provide a living for his family. The peaches were peeled and prepared for cooking. The peelings would be saved to make jelly or jam. Even the mush that was left from this process was put into the garden to enrich the soil. The canned peaches were put in Mason fruit jars that could be used year after year. In this whole process the only thing not saved was the lids that were used to cover the fruit jars. Even these weren't thrown away because someone would find a use for them. Today we simply buy a can of peaches, throw the can in the trash, and forget it.

A typical trip to the grocery store for our grandparents might involve the purchase of flour, lard (I suppose we have to criticize our parents and grandparents for using lard, but they didn't know how harmful it was), sugar, and coffee. In each of these instances, the container was saved for some purpose. Flour came in cloth sacks, and after the flour was used, the material was used to make quilts, blankets, and other useful items for the house. The material was sometimes even used to make clothing for the family. The containers for the other items were saved to store things. I don't know how many would be needed, but one never saw these items in garbage heaps. For the most part, one did not see very many garbage heaps.

Another area in which our ancestors were resourceful was in the area of clothing. In the first place, the clothes were made at home. When items of clothing were made, every scrap of material not used in the actual garment was saved for other purposes. Most often, the pieces of cloth would find itself in a quilt or blanket made for the comfort of the family. Children were not allowed to have new clothes simply because a new style came into vogue. Children wore the clothes until they outgrew them, and then they were handed down. I know that doesn't sound like a terrific idea in the '90s, but it would be a small price to pay if it, in some small way, helped save some of our natural resources so there would be enough for us all.

Realize that many of the practices listed above are contrary to our "modern" way of life, but the time may come when we will be glad to do those very things. Our lives may even be more meaningful when and if we do them.

Strange Enough

by Tim Preston

Back on the beat

Never in my life have I been so glad to be back at work.

I spent the entirety of last week laying on a couch in an attempt to heal injuries sustained in a wreck, and it nearly drove me crazy.

Granted, a week off work sounds good, but when you can't do anything with that week it is extremely frustrating.

So, when Monday rolled around I was more than happy to be back at the office.

So happy in fact that I walked almost every street in town and talked to anybody who would talk back. Actually I spent about sixteen hours on the job Monday, an unprecedented event for me.

You have to admit that Monday was an interesting day. The candlelight ceremony certainly took an unexpected twist, and the city council meeting that followed was equally as interesting.

As for the candlelight ceremony, there has certainly been a fair amount of criticism of my coverage of the event. Most people who called were offended that I even included the parts about the "lone protester" (as he has come to be known). All I can say is that if you want a glossed over, sugar coated version of something, as opposed to the truth of the matter, you won't find that kind of coverage in this newspaper.

It may not be popular, but the truth often hurts. All I did was tell it how it was.

That's the way it has been for years, that's the way it must remain.

Enough said?

Anyway, the city council meeting also had a lot of interesting comments and proposals. After listening to city officials and Holiday Inn representatives paint an alternately bleak and bright picture of the "problem" and the "situation" at the hotel bar, I just had to go up and check it out for myself.

As I understand it, any problems associated with that bar are not because of any one person's actions. Sometimes, more often than not, people who drink too much get out of hand and cause problems. I think there are some things that can be done to help the situation, but we shouldn't really be trying to look too far for the source of the problem.

By the way, thanks for all of the calls and the one letter wishing me back to health. I was really flattered by the amount of attention, and the genuine concern.

Thank you all very much, I'm touched.

Then again, people have been saying that about me for years.

Love, peace, and hope

With so many of graduates of Allen Central serving in the Armed Forces, the school decided to join the show of support throughout Floyd County by tying yellow ribbons to trees on the school grounds. The project titled, "Love, Peace and Hope", was coordinated by principal Jody Sword and teacher Lowell Martin. The ceremony included talks from Mr. Sword, Mr. Martin and Mr. Dewey Ray Jamerson, coach and sponsor of Fellowship of Christian Athletes. The ribbons were tied on the trees which the student body planted 10 years ago in remembrance of the hostages in Iran. Allen Central students urge that the soldiers involved in the Persian Gulf crisis always be remembered by keeping them in your thoughts and prayers.

Children and adults encouraged to audition for Jenny Wiley theatre

Although winter has arrived late in our area, summer is fast approaching and that means audition time for the 1991 season of Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre. Prospective performers have several opportunities to try out for roles in this year's shows - "Gypsy", "Big River", "Jesus Christ Superstar" and "Is There Life After High School?"

Auditions will be held at the following times and locations:

Saturday, February 9 from noon until 6 p.m. at the College Conservatory of Music, Cincinnati, Ohio; and Saturday, February 16 from noon until 5 p.m. in the auditorium at Prestonsburg Community College. The audition at Prestonsburg will be on a first come, first serve basis and application forms will be available to be filled out at PCC prior to auditioning.

The theatre will also be participating in the Southeastern Theatre Conference as well. Auditions for the conference will be March 7, 8, and 9 at the Benton Convention Center, Winston-Salem, N.C. If unable to cast the 38-member company from these auditions, theatre representatives will attend Strawhat Auditions in New York City in late March.

This season the theatre has many roles for children ages 6 and older as well as singing and acting parts for adults of all ages. "Gypsy" needs six boys and two girls between 6-12 years old. Singing and tap dancing are desired but not required. The show also calls for a Boy Scout troop in the first act.

"Big River", the country western musical based on the book, The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn by Mark Twain, will have acting and singing roles for children ages 6 and older as well as many acting and singing roles for adults of all ages.

"Jesus Christ Superstar" has opportunities for adults and children also. According to the theatre's general manager, Tedi Vaughan, "Last season, several children were in the 'The Jenny Wiley Story'; and the experience for the children, their parents and the theatre was so wonderful we would like to invite many more local children and adults to enjoy the experience of theatre with us this summer."

Cast selection is based on quality, ability, and commitment to attend all rehearsals and performances. All adults and children should prepare one song or show tune (about 3 minutes) and a reading from a play, story or poem (1-2 minutes) will demonstrate reading ability. An accompanist will be provided, so bring music. Not all roles require singing.

Anyone interested in being an extra (walk-on) or having only a speaking part should prepare a two-minute reading from a play or poem. According to Vaughan, "It is expected that people are nervous or shy when auditioning; but we have last year's musical director, Richard Oberacker, who really helps people feel at ease and do their best. So, come. Try out!"

Rehearsals for the 27th season will begin June 7. The season plays nightly except Mondays, June 21 through August 17. The Jenny Wiley Theatre has played to almost 350,000 people since it began in 1964. Call 606-886-9274 for additional information.

Area residents make dean's list at Transylvania

Three area students have been named to the Dean's List at Transylvania University for the fall term.

Leenata Maddiwar, a graduate of Paintsville High School, David Spiggle, a graduate of Prestonsburg High School and William Terry, a graduate of Allen Central High School, have made the dean's list for achievement.

A student must achieve at least a 3.5 grade point average during the term to be named to the list.

Transylvania, founded in 1780, is the nation's sixteenth oldest institution of higher learning. Transylvania was ranked fifth among southern regional liberal arts colleges in a 1990 survey conducted by the U.S. News and World Report. It was Transylvania's third consecutive appearance in the top five, including a number one ranking in 1989.

Betsy Layne students selected for TIP

Brandice Blankenship

Brandice Blankenship and Leigh Ann Prater from Betsy Layne Elementary qualified for the Talent Identification Program (TIP) for 1990-91.

The program which is sponsored by Duke University identifies outstanding seventh grade students who score 97 percentile or better on the state adopted test. On December 8, 1990 these students were administered the ACT assessment, normally taken by college-bound seniors.

The purpose of the program is to help academically bright students by providing them with information about their ability and educational options that may be beneficial to them.

Smile Awhile ————— by Sarah Hopson

At the movies

Sometimes I'm as forgetful as a lot of other people in the world, but more times than I'd like to admit, I'm worse.

A couple of weeks ago, I asked a couple (the Doyles) if they'd like to attend the movie "Dances With Wolves" with us. When they accepted, all that was left was deciding on a time and date.

"How about Sunday at 6 p.m.?" I asked.

"Fine with me," Jean answered. "Let me check with Owen and I'll get back to you."

When she called back, she confirmed that Sunday at 6:00 would be perfect even though the football game Owen had been waiting to see would still be in progress.

"It wasn't easy," Jean said. "But he said he'd make the sacrifice since it's supposed to be such an exceptional film."

"Great! We'll meet you there at 5:50," I said.

When the big day arrived, I returned home from a shopping trip with a friend at exactly 5:45.

"Are you ready to go," I called to my husband,

"I guess so, but I'm a little hungry," he growled.

"I already thought of that. We'll have one of those giant boxes of popcorn. You can have a candy bar for dessert."

"That's what I like about you, Sara," Jimmie said, as he put on his jacket. "You plan such great meals on a second's notice."

"Don't thank me," I replied, "Mother taught me everything she knows about meal planning."

Although the weather was warm, the ride in the car to the movie was chilly until we got inside the lobby and Jimmie started smelling the popcorn.

"I see you all made it," I said to Jean and Owen.

"Two for 'Wolves,'" Owen stated with assurance.

"What?" the ticket seller asked.

"Two for 'Wolves,'" he repeated.

"The movie started 50 minutes ago. You can come back at 8:30?"

I tried to avert the three pairs of eyes that were now glaring in my direction. They had sort of a maddog look as I managed to say, "But I called and the recording said 6:00!"

"You must be mistaken," the ticket lady said. "The movie started at 5:15."

"That's right," Jean interjected. "I called too."

"Well, it should not have said 6:00," she said, adamantly. "When did you call?"

"Last week," I said, assertively.

"It was on at 6:00 last week. This week it's on at 5:15."

"Why would you change it?" I screamed.

"Yeah," Jean chimed. "Why would you change it without calling us?"

"Must have been an oversight," the ticket girl laughed.

"I've missed the game for nothing," Owen groaned.

"That's nothing," Jimmie growled. "I've missed supper."

"Oh, quit complaining," I smiled. "At least we might as well get something to drink while we're out. Let's go get a Coke."

"Sara always has these exciting little ideas," Jimmie grimaced.

Over Cokes, we discussed the movie we had planned on seeing.

"I bet it wasn't as good as everybody said it was," I said.

"It probably was over-rated," Jean agreed.

"Siskel and Ebert gave it 'two thumbs up,'" Owen mentioned.

"Is that anything like the finger Jimmie gave me when he found out he'd missed the movie?" I asked.

"I did no such thing," Jimmie said, coldly. "Let's go home."

"We'll try it again some other time," I said to Jean and Owen as they pulled away in their car.

"Never mind," Jean called back. "Owen says we'll just wait until it comes out on tape. If we want to watch it here, we'll come by ourselves."

As we drove out of the parking lot, I felt as if maybe our friends were peeved with me, so I turned to Jimmie for support.

"I really screwed things up," I cried. "I'll end up losing every friend I've got if I don't stop forgetting things."

"You might lose more than that because, in case you've forgotten, I still haven't had supper."

"I'll fix you a grilled cheese when we get home."

"When we arrived home, I discovered we were out of cheese."

"Honey," I called. "I forgot to buy cheese."

I only pray I can forget his reply to my statement.

Highlands Regional participates in nursing incentive scholarship fund

Kentucky is facing a nursing shortage, according to a survey conducted by the Kentucky Hospital Association. The survey showed that the registered nurse vacancy rate among KHA member hospitals has increased to 12 percent in 1989 compared to 10 percent in 1987. The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics estimates that between 1986 and the year 2000, the health services industry will create nearly 350,000 new jobs for registered nurses.

The Nursing Incentive Scholarship Fund was created by the 1990 Kentucky General Assembly. The intent of this bill is to provide scholarships to Kentucky residents who will be attending approved prelicensure registered nurses and licensed practical nurses education programs in the state. Low-income, unemployed Kentucky residents and licensed practical nurses who wish to become registered nurses will be given preference.

The NISF amount awarded. The applicant, in return, agrees to work at the hospital one year for each academic year scholarship funding received.

Scholarships applications for the 1991-92 school year must be completed and returned to the Kentucky Board of Nursing by May 1, 1991. For applications or additional information, write to the Nursing Incentive Scholarship Fund Committee, Kentucky Board of Nursing, 4010 Dupont Circle, Suite 430, Louisville, Kentucky 40207-4875 or contact Susan Martin at 886-8511 extension 680.

Scholarship applicants are required to obtain a health care facility as a sponsor. Highlands is interested in hearing from potential applicants from this area for the 1991-92 school year. Highlands would agree to match Highlands estimates that their vacancy rate for registered nurses is 20 percent, according to Drema Osborne, Director of Nursing. To help fill these vacancies, Highlands is participating in the Nursing Incentive Scholarship Fund program.

Education reform major focus of school boards annual conference

Education reform in Kentucky will be the focus of the 55th Annual Conference of the Kentucky School Boards Association scheduled February 15-17 at the Galt House East in Louisville.

With the theme, "Winds of Change," the conference and pre-conference workshops will help school decision makers meet the challenges of implementing the Kentucky Education Reform Act of 1990.

Kentucky's Commissioner of Education, Dr. Thomas Boysen, will address the some 1,100 school board members, superintendents and other school administrators at the Opening General Session Friday, February 15, 1-2:30 p.m.

Futurist Dr. Lowell Catlett, a professor at New Mexico State University, will also speak at the first session. He teaches and conducts research in marketing, policy, futures markets, management and futuristics issues.

Board members will have several clinic sessions from which to choose covering topics related to the education reform act. These include ungraded primary education, family/youth resource centers, school-based decision making and early childhood education.

A pre-conference workshop Friday, on "Secrets to Success in Parent Involvement" will feature Dr. John Wherry, founder and president of The Parent Institute. He will present ideas and models designed to actively involve parents in the schools.

In recent years, educators have recognized the need to "re-engage" parents in their child's education, and Kentucky's reform act provides for parents serving on school councils.

Past president of the National School Boards Association Dr. James Oglesby, a Columbia, Missouri, school board member, will address the luncheon session on Saturday, February 16, 12 - 2 p.m.

Dr. Penney Sanders, Kentucky's new director of the Office of Educational Accountability, will speak on Sunday at 9 a.m. in a General Session. The office was created under the education reform act to monitor schools on implementation of the act.

Eastern Kentuckian Dr. Carl Hurley will speak at the Closing Brunch on Sunday, February 17, 10:15 a.m. Dr. Hurley is a former professor at Eastern Kentucky University where he coordinated the University's secondary education program.

During the three-day conference, the association will present three annual awards. On Friday at the Opening General Session, two Friend of Education Awards will be presented to recognize individual and corporate support for education.

ACHS art presentation

Heath Wiley, a senior at Allen Central High School, made a presentation of art work for the principal's office. An acrylic painting of the school's mascot, the "Rebel Man," was done by Wiley in Specialized Art class. All work and framing was done by the art department under the direction of Carolita O'Quinn. The picture was a gift to Mr. Jody Sword to welcome him to Allen Central as the new principal.

A Look At Sports

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

LOCAL BROADCASTERS APPEAR ON STATE TOURNAMENT TICKET; SHOOTOUT AT PRESTONSBURG; SWIM LEAGUE MEETS; REDS NOTES

Well, being in the right spot at the right time paid off last season for the broadcasting team of B. J. Newsome and Jim Allen of WQHY. If you have your state tournament tickets, look on ticket number four in the lower right hand corner and you will see both Newsome and Allen in the picture. Joe Back, a third broadcaster, was just off to the right and did not appear in the photo. That's alright Joe!

Many Floyd Countians followed the state tournament last season by listening to the local station's broadcast. Most stations usually pick up the feed of the Kentucky Sports Network, but the WQHY sent their own team. Whether the station continues to carry the games with their own announcers is not yet known.

LOTS OF ACTION AT BELFRY TONIGHT

The 15th Region's number one and number two teams will battle it out tonight at the Virgie Athletic Center when Shelby Valley, number two, and Belfry, number one, settle in to find out just who is number one. The game is the highlight of 15th Region basketball this season. Should be a good one.

SATURDAY NIGHT SHOOTOUT

Prestonsburg coach Gordon Parido has come up with something new this season. The First Annual Prestonsburg Saturday Night Shootout. The shoot-out will take place tomorrow night (Saturday) beginning at 4 p.m. with a junior varsity game. At 6 p.m., the Belfry Pirates will take on Pulaski County and in the nightcap, host Prestonsburg will face Harrison County. Said Coach Parido, "We hope to make this an annual game each year." So, there will be a lot of basketball action, actually beginning tonight when Prestonsburg faces Pulaski County, over the weekend at the Prestonsburg Fieldhouse.

SWIMMING EXCITEMENT IS COMING

One of the finest sporting events to take place in Floyd and surrounding counties will be getting underway in June, but is currently in the planning stages for the upcoming season. I'm talking about the swim league that was the brain child of Steve Cummings, who works in the pharmacy at Highland's Regional Medical Center. (See story in sports section).

I had the opportunity to cover one of their meets at Inez last season and the only thing I regretted about it was that I did not cover more of their events. It was very exciting just to watch. I can imagine the excitement of the kids that took part in the league.

A very competitive league. The Jenny Wiley Waves were the champions last season and they promise to do even better this year.

If you have a son or daughter between the ages of seven and 18 years of age, you can sign them up to participate this summer.

BOBCAT BIRTHDAY

A belated Happy Birthday to Berne Eplin of the Betsy Layne Bobcats. We understand that Berne's birthday was this past Monday.

SAY ITS NOT TRUE

Cincinnati Reds second baseman — I say that because I believe he will be — Billy Doran says the 1991 Cincinnati Reds will be a step better than last seasons' World Champion team. Now, Billy! According to Doran, the Reds will be solid at every position as well as having one of the best benches in major league baseball. Come on, Billy! The former Houston Astro will be spending some playing time at third base this year also, according to Reds manager Lou Piniella. Other experiments will include the playing of Mariano Duncan in left field. I can't believe I'm hearing this. Lou, say it's not true!

Only two months separate the Reds last season from the rest of the National League West teams and that was April and May. In those two months the Reds won the division. After May, it was just average for the Reds.

Until Wednesday, be good sports everyone.

Big Sandy Swim Team looking for another successful year

The Big Sandy Swim Team is gearing for the upcoming swim season and will hold a meeting at the Johnson County courthouse on February 17 at 3 p.m.

The swim league got its initial start last season and enjoyed a successful beginning as teams from Floyd, Johnson and Martin County participated. Approximately 100 swimmers took part in the swim league. The league expects to be even bigger this season with the addition of Pike and Magoffin County. According to League Director Steve Cummings, the league is expected to draw nearly 200 participants.

"With the addition of the two teams and other swimmers who are showing interest in the existing teams, it would be safe to say the league will more than double its size," said Cummings. "All teams that started in last seasons' league, doubled in size from the first meet to the last one and that was without any advertisement."

Also, the league will increase the age limit from 7-14 year-olds to include 18-year-olds.

The purpose of the February 17 meeting, according to Cummings, is to discuss the upcoming schedule with parents and also to work on a schedule for 1992 with Ashland. A representative from Ashland will be at the meeting. The scheduling will just be preliminary with finalization later.

Anyone that is interested in the upcoming season is urged to attend this important meeting. The swim teams are for ages seven through 18.

"We will have a preseason meet in March at the Allen Central High School indoor pool," explained Cummings. "It will be at this time that we will handle registration and take sign ups."

Cummings said that the league hopes to get started the third week of June and will meet on Monday's.

"We are looking forward to welcoming Pike and Magoffin counties into our league," said the excited swim director. "The parents of each county have taken some of the responsibility of getting the leagues in their area underway. That has taken a lot of pressure off me."

Cummings said that this will be an exciting season for swimmers and he's looking forward to it.

There will be a registration fee. Registration fees are expected to be $10 or slightly higher for other counties.

Cummings said that he hopes to be able to use the Jenny Wiley pool as well as the one at Archer Park. "Last year we were refused permission to use the Archer Park pool," he stated, "but we hope this year enough parents will put pressure on those responsible to let us use it one day a week."

Cummings said that Judge John M. Stumbo had offered the use of Stumbo Park's pool last season and that if efforts this year fail to obtain the Archer Park facility, then meets will be held at the Stumbo Park pool, providing details can be worked out.

"Heat" gets to Devils in 88-77 loss to Paintsville in classic

The old saying, "if you can't stand the heat, get out of the kitchen" held some truth for the McDowell Daredevils Wednesday night as the Paintsville Tigers applied a lot of heat — full court — and the Devils couldn't stand it. Result: The Devils are out of the tournament.

Paintsville eliminated the McDowell squad 88-77 by causing numerous turnovers for McDowell with their full court pressure defense. McDowell seemed to be uncertain how to handle the "heat" and the Tigers took advantage of the miscues.

Todd Porter scored a game high 28 points while both Todd Porter and Brad Tiller added 16 each.

Many of McDowell's turnovers were just mental mistakes. The Daredevils tried to beat the Paintsville press by trying to dribble the basketball through it, instead of passing over the press. McDowell had seven first quarter turnovers with Paintsville scoring baskets off four of them. In all, McDowell was guilty of 22 turnovers.

However, despite the numerous turnovers, the Daredevils stayed within striking distance of the Tigers until the fourth quarter when Paintsville opened up a 16 point lead at 71-55. The Tigers scored the first seven points of the quarter on two baskets by Chris Lyons, one by Brad Tiller and a free throw by Walt Preston.

McDowell could only get as close as nine points, 81-72, late in the period, losing by 11.

McDowell looked sharp in the first quarter, jumping out to a very early 4-0 lead on two baskets by Barry Hall, who scored 10 points in the game. Paintsville then ran off the next seven to assume a 7-4 lead. Lyons scored five of the seven with Porter getting the other two.

The Devils got to within one point, 9-8 on a basket by Stacy Hall and a charity toss by Britt Stumbo. A 7-2 spurt put Paintsville on top 16-10 until baskets by Earl Cook and Dale Hinkle cut the lead to two, 16-14. Paintsville led at the first stop, 20-17.

How cold was the shooting for the Daredevils in the first quarter? McDowell missed four wide open, uncontested lay ups.

Paintsville looked sharp in the second period with excellent ball movement, but could not shake the mistake-prone Daredevils. McDowell kept the margin at three and four points through the period with Paintsville heading to the locker room at half time with a five point lead, 41-36.

Scott Stanley, a sophomore, came off the McDowell bench and tossed in eight points — two in the first quarter and six in the second. The play of Stanley was a very bright spot for the McDowell team. When Stanley was lifted in the third period after starting the second half, he never appeared again.

Paintsville took their biggest lead in the fourth quarter going up by 16 points, 77-61. McDowell fought back, when Paintsville failed to take care of the basketball, and cut the lead down to nine 86-77 on a three-point basket by Earl Cook.

Work on the defensive boards proved to be a problem for McDowell as they allowed the Tigers to get two and three — sometimes four — shots at the basket. The Daredevils seemed to be standing around and letting the Tigers have uncontested entrance to the basket.

Stacy Hall led McDowell in scoring with 17 points. Dale Hinkle added 14 points and Barry Hall finished with 10. Barry Hall had two three-pointers in the game. Britt Stumbo, who scored seven points, also had a trey. Earl Cook came off the bench to toss in six point for McDowell. Half of his points came on a three-pointer.

For Paintsville, Walt Preston scored nine points. Wesley Ellis netted eight and Kaito Bangudi tallied seven.

McDowell lost for the third straight time and fell to 8-11 on the season. The Daredevils will travel to Millard tonight for a rematch with the Mustangs. The Mustang game was the last game the Daredevils had won before the three skid began.

Gibson out for 2 weeks :

Lady Rebels strengthen hold on first place with win over P'burg

The "Gibson-less" Allen Central Lady Rebels tightened their hold on first place in the Floyd County Girls' basketball conference Wednesday night with a 51-40 win over second place challenger Prestonsburg. The Lady Blackcats, on a roll, found the defense of the Lady Rebels a little bit to much.

Allen Central played their second straight game without leading scorer Teresa Gibson, who is nursing an injured leg.

"Her leg is all knotted up," said Lady Rebel mentor, Bonita Compton. "It is real sore, and she is not able to move it or let it dangle. Just touching it bothers her."

Compton is hopeful that the sharp-shooting forward will be available for the Lady Rebels' conference match-up with third place Betsy Layne on February 9. Meanwhile, Gibson is expected to miss the Lady Rebs next four games — one a conference game with Wheelwright.

"I would rather she missed the non-conference games than an important game such as Betsy Layne," said Compton. "The doctors told her to stay off it for two weeks. That will be around the time we play Betsy Layne."

The two regional power teams played to a 11-11 tie after one quarter of play. Prestonsburg made a strong showing down low with Melissa Bailey scoring.

"They killed us down low," said Compton. "Bailey was scoring at will down under. She had nine of their 18 first half points. Why they went away from what was working for them and started shooting the three's in the second half, I don't know?"

Allen Central outscored the Lady Blackcats 14-7 in the second quarter to take a 25-18 lead into the locker room at the half. Prestonsburg couldn't get any closer than the final margin.

Leading Allen Central in scoring was Jenny Wiley, who had one of her best games since early in the season. The sophomore tossed in 17 points. Wiley has been more consistent of late.

"I had to bench Jenny earlier in the year," explained Compton, "but now she has got things together. She was really psyched up for this game. She wanted to win it real bad."

Stacy Moore, better known as "Big" Stacy, had 12 points. Stacy "Mini" Moore score only six points after averaging in double figures. Half of Moore's points came on a three-pointer.

Kathy Slone, who averages 20 points per game, was held to 13 points. She led Prestonsburg in scoring. Bailey tossed in nine and Carolyn Reffitt scored six.

"We came back in the second half and went to a 2-3 zone," recalled Compton. "Prestonsburg really put up the three's and fortunate for us they were not hitting."

"I think the loss at McDowell might have been good for this team," the Lady Rebels coach explained. "They played with a lot of hustle. They were getting tired."

Compton said her team played with "a lot of guts."

"The reason we won the game was that we wanted the win more than Prestonsburg did. It was a good game and a big win for us. Our players were knocked down; they just got back up and went on."

Compton said that a Prestonsburg win over McDowell next week would really be a big boost to the Lady Rebels chances for a conference title.

"I think that Prestonsburg can beat McDowell at home," she said. However, Compton was cautious about her team having to play Betsy Layne on the road.

"We have two conference games left," she said. "We need to win both of them and then we're in. But Betsy Layne could be a problem."

Allen Central goes to 5-1 in the conference and 10-7 overall. Prestonsburg lost for the third time in conference play and falls to 10-4 overall. Prestonsburg has won two conference battles. The loss snapped a three game winning streak for the Lady Blackcats. Their last loss went to the same Allen Central team earlier this month.

Three conference games remain on the Lady Blackcats schedule with McDowell and Wheelwright coming to the fieldhouse. The Lady Blackcats must also travel to Wheelwright for a conference game.

Prestonsburg travels to Phelps this Saturday night and to Morgan County Monday evening. Prestonsburg is 8-1 against non-conference teams.

Hunter bags 20 points:

Henry's "Road Warriors" keep rolling on the road with 55-52 win over SV

The home court doesn't mean much to Keith Henry's Betsy Layne freshmen Bobcats, because they haven't played that much at home this season. However, the team has been very successful on the road, posting a perfect 14-0 record as "road warriors."

Betsy Layne has played four times at the friendly confines of the Betsy Layne Fieldhouse and has split the four games. The well-traveled freshman team has an overall record of 14-2.

Their victim Monday night was Shelby Valley, as the junior Bobcats handed the host Wildcats a 55-52 loss. Brian Hunter led the Bobcats in scoring with 21 points.

A bucket from Barry Clark, who added nine points in the win, put the Bobcats up by four, 53-49 late in fourth period. Wesley Stewart hit a jumper with 16 seconds remaining to cut the margin to one, 53-52. Keith Hamilton toed the charity line and sank two big free throws that put the hot traveling Bobcats up by three, 55-52. Time ran out on the Wildcats.

Betsy Layne moved out early in the first period, taking a 22-15 lead. The Bobcats went into the dressing room with a 29-22 advantage.

Hamilton also scored nine points in the game for Betsy Layne. Jason Newsome had seven points, and Chris Potter added five. Damion Stepp scored four points.

Clark and Potter each had three-pointers in the game. Stewart led the Wildcats in scoring with 20 points. Damron tossed in 10. Former Melvin Cougar, Nathan Berger had six points.

Betsy Layne will host the McDowell Daredevils' freshman team Monday night as part of a double header of basketball action. The two junior varsities will play following the freshman game.

PAYBACK, AND SOME PRETTY GOOD JERKY

When I asked my neighbor, Bill Schlomer, if he would like to travel out to Western Kentucky with me for a few days of deer hunting, I had no idea that we would be paying for it for the rest of our lives.

My wife, Susie, is pretty well accustomed to my travels. Bill's wife, Denise, however, is another story. You see, Bill and Denise have four kids ranging in age from six months to seven years, and that, my friends, is more than a handful in anyone's book.

Nevertheless, Denise agreed, so Bill and I headed west for six days of hunting. (I later discovered that Denise had consented simply because, and I quote, "I can use this one for years to come!") As it turned out, I didn't even fire my rifle, but Bill downed a superb eight point buck with a spread of about 18 inches. After butchering the deer, we packed it in a couple of coolers and carted it back home on a Tuesday evening.

Denise greeted Bill with a kiss and a sly little smile, and before we had even unloaded our gear she announced that she and Susie were going to Lexington the next weekend.....and leaving the kids with us. Bill muttered something about 'payback time' as the color slowly drained from his face, so I said goodnight and slipped across the street to my home with my tail between my legs.

The next weekend, Susie and Denise packed their bags and headed to Lexington. Since my youngest, Elizabeth, is just two months old, Susie decided to take our daughter with her. That left me with Ryan, who, at three and a half, is really no trouble at all. Bill, however, had four youngsters to contend with.

After a lengthy strategy session, Bill and I offered the kids a quarter for every wagon-load of rocks that they picked up out of the yard. "Look at all those rocks," we said to them.

"If you all work hard, it won't take long to earn a few quarters." (It was a trick that my father had used successfully on me several years ago. In my defense, however, I will add that it only worked one time). So, while the kids were picking up rocks, Bill and I decided to make a little jerky from some of our venison.

With Bill's youngest, six month old Zach, looking on, we cut four round steaks into strips about a half-inch thick and six to ten inches long, and then carefully trimmed all of the fat from them. Zach enjoyed gnawing on the leg bones, so we tossed all of them down onto the floor for him.

Next, we soaked the venison strips in saltwater for a couple of hours, and then marinated them in liquid smoke for another hour or so. By this time, the kids had had their fill of picking up rocks so we gave them twelve cents (they had only picked up half a wagon-load) and made a new deal. This time, we said we would give them a quarter for every wagon-load of weeds that they pulled out of our yards. "Look at all those weeds," we said to them. "If you work hard, it won't take long to earn a few quarters."

Bill and I then spread the venison strips in several glass cooking dishes and started adding spices. We mixed three parts sugar, three parts seasoned salt, and two parts black pepper, and then sprinkled the seasoning on the venison. Next, we covered the dishes and stashed them in the refrigerator for about six hours and then fixed the kids a lunch of frozen pizza and grape pop.

After lunch, Bill and I paid the kids twelve cents (they had only picked up half a wagon-load of weeds) and then gave them a few dried beans. "These are magic beans," we told them. "If you plant these magic beans in a very deep hole and then sing the Brady Bunch song a hundred times, they will grow into giant beanstalks." And so, while the kids were tending their crops, Bill and I watched a football game and six month old Zach continued to gnaw on his leg bones.

Once the venison strips had marinated in the refrigerator for about six hours, we covered our oven racks with crushed (crinkled) aluminum foil and spread the strips evenly over the racks. Then we simply baked the venison in the oven at 140 to 150 degrees for about eight hours.

While our jerky was baking, we fed the kids leftover frozen pizza and grape pop, then put them to bed. All of the kids seemed to have contracted a mild case of the sniffles so, just to be on the safe side, we gave them each a dose of Nyquil. Then, after waiting until the sun had set, Bill and I watched another football game while Zach gnawed on his leg bones.

The girls arrived back home late that night and were pleasantly surprised to find the kids soundly asleep. We unloaded their van full of shopping bags and packages, and then sampled our venison jerky while the girls sorted through their booty. If I must say so myself, the jerky turned out exceptionally well, though it was a little on the spicy side (and not something you want to snack on when you were miles from water!).

I'd like to say that this story has a happy ending, but Susie and Denise have just informed Bill and I that they are planning another shopping trip in the near future. Oh Well, that's okay. Bill and I know where to find plenty of magic beans, and we've already stocked up on Nyquil!

But seriously, if you would like to make some jerky out of your venison, the recipe hidden in the above is actually pretty good. Though we made our jerky from round steaks, I think roasts might work a bit better. Be sure to trim all of the fat from the strips, and dehydrate it thoroughly in the oven. When done, you can store the jerky in air-tight jars or keep it refrigerated in zip-lock bags. Good hunting and fishing!

Paintsville Stuns Lady Bobcats 50-48 At Home

Sherry Green hit a three-pointer in the third quarter with 28 seconds remaining to snap a 37-37 tie as the Paintsville Lady Tigers went on to post a 50-48 win over the Betsy Layne Bobcats Monday night.

Betsy Layne led, 25-21 at the half and going into the third period. Meredith Mullins hit a basket underneath to close the lead to two, 25-23. The game was tied at 33, 35 and 37 before Greene's trey.

"We got tangled up in our defense tonight," said Bill Newsome, Lady Cats head coach. "Everybody was trying to guard someone else."

The last lead Betsy Layne held was at 33-30 with 3:08 to go in the period. The lead came on a basket by Nancy Shepherd. Green had just hit a three-pointer that brought the Lady Tigers to within one point, 31-30. After Shepherd's basket, Greene connected from 19' 9" out to tie the game. Shelia Hall's basket in the point put Betsy Layne's score back, but two free throws by Stacy Logan knotted the game at 35-all.

After a Paintsville turnover, Briana Boyd on an assist from Shepherd, rolled underneath for a basket and a 37-35 game. Mullin's basket, with a minute remaining, tied the game for the last time at 37-37.

Betsy Layne pulled to within two points on a three-point basket by Boyd. After trailing by five, the basket by Boyd brought the score to 48-46 with 48 seconds to go. Boyd scored 11 of her game high 19 points in the final quarter. But the sharp shooter seemed to be passing up opening shots.

"Yes, she did pass up some shots," said a disinterested Newsome. "A coach usually has to tell a player not to shoot, but with Briana I have to tell her to shoot. She does not shoot the ball enough." The Lady Cats held a 10-8 first quarter lead as Susan Conn tossed in four points in the period. Shepherd had a three-pointer in the quarter that gave Betsy Layne a 8-6 lead.

After Paintsville took a 11-10 lead on a basket by Greene, an 8-1 spurt by Betsy Layne put the Lady Cats up by six, 18-12. Misty Johnson, Nikki Webb, Boyd and Ashley Stanley each scored in the run.

A three-point play by Jennifer Davis and a field goal by Melissa

Arnold cut the lead to one, 18-17. Paintsville tied the game at 19-all on a bucket by Logan. Betsy Layne ran off six unanswered points to go ahead 25-19. Logan's two free throws made it 25-21 at the half.

Greene scored 14 points in the game to lead a balanced scoring attack by the Lady Tigers. Logan added 12 points and Mullins tossed in 11.

Besides Boyd's 19, Shepherd and Webb netted seven points each. Conn finished with six and Ashley Stanley scored five.

"Ashley played a good game for us," said Newsome.

Betsy Layne drops below the .500 mark at 8-9. The Lady Cats travel to Belfry Monday night.

In junior varsity action, the Betsy Layne JV's defeated Paintsville's junior varsity 32-27. Dee Dee Martin tossed in 12 points to lead the Lady Cats. Misty Johnson added six points. Rhonda Conn had four and Christy Johnson netted three. Both Amanda Hamilton and Ashley Stanley had two points each. Melissa McKinney scored one point.

Martin hit four consecutive free throws to break a 26-26 tie and gave Betsy Layne a four point lead 30-26. Tammy Blair's charity toss cut the lead to three, 30-27. Martin hit a basket at the buzzer for the final margin of 32-27.

Shelby Valley holds off late Rebel charge for 88-66 win

The Allen Central Rebels looking for some consistency heading into the final month of the high school basketball season, traveled to Shelby Valley to take on Bobby Osborne's Wildcats. Although the Rebels made a good showing, it wasn't good enough. The Rebels fell 84-66.

The loss dropped Allen Central's record to 12-11 on the season. Shelby Valley's record went to 16-2.

It was "The Chad Bowling Show" at the Virgie Athletic Center Tuesday night as the senior southpaw hit six three-pointers in scoring 38 points to lead the Wildcats.

The Wildcats grabbed a quick 4-0 lead and, although threatened, were never headed. Bowling hit a lay up and with center Bobby Keys' turn around accounted for the four Wildcat points. After Mike Allen hit two free throws for the Rebels, Bowling gathered his first trey to make it 7-2.

A pair of free throws by Todd Lucas cut Shelby Valley's lead to three, 12-9. The Wildcats outscored Allen Central 13-8 to move out to a 25-17 lead. The lead swelled to 18 points, 37-19, and it looked like the Rebels were in for a long night.

However, Allen Central caught fire, scored the last 13 points of the second quarter and closed the lead to five, 37-32. Chuck Laferty, as he has done on several occasions, led the Rebel charge. Stewart Hall buried a three-pointer to help cut the lead.

The Rebels stayed close in the third period with Shelby Valley trailing by only eight, 61-53, at the end of the third period. The Rebels closed the gap to three points on two occasions in the period, 37-34 and 39-36.

A five point margin was as close as Allen Central could get to the Wildcats in the final stanza at 68-63 on Stewart Hall's jumper with 3:13 remaining. Shelby Valley went on a 16-3 spurt to win by the final margin of 18 points.

Beside's Bowling's 38 points, Mitch Harris added 20 points. Harris had one three-pointer for the Wildcats.

Allen Central was led in scoring by Stewart Hall with 20 points. Hall hit two treys in the game. Laferty finished with 13 points including a trey. Todd Lucas hit a three-pointer in tossing in 15 points. Allen Central hit 12 of 17 free throws — an area in which they have steadily improved. Carl Watkins also had a good outing with six points.

In overtime, the Shelby Valley junior varsity defeated the junior Rebels 68-56 behind the 22 points by Jamie Roberts. The Wildcats scored the first 15 points of the overtime period. David Osborne added 21 points for Shelby Valley. Jason Martin led the Rebels with 22 points and Keith Compton tossed in 11.

Panthers hit 10 treys:

Pikeville burns Wheelwright Trojans 84-63

After playing 17 games this season, the Wheelwright Trojans still haven't shown the real talent they have on this year's squad. Little mental mistakes always seem to cost the Trojans a lead.

Such was the case at Pikeville Tuesday night when they faced the regions number three team, Pikeville in the first round of the Kentucky Class A 15th Regional Tournament. The Panthers played belly up defense on the Trojans and burned them to the tune of 84-63.

Defense was the name for Pikeville as the Trojans had problems handling the pressure. Every time a Trojan had the ball a Panther was in his face.

Wheelwright did look good in the early going, taking a four point lead at 11-7, their biggest of the game. Pikeville went on a 16-2 run to lead at the end of the first quarter 23-13.

The Panthers started finding the three-point range as they bombed in 10 treys. Lee Jones, with 22 points to lead the Panthers, had five treys while Jess Baird connected on three. At one point in the third period, the Panthers hit four straight three-pointers. Five of their six field goals in that span were three-pointers.

Trailing 23-13 going into the second quarter, Wheelwright chipped away at the Panther lead by scoring the first six points of the second quarter to make it 23-19. Free throws by Harold Johnson and Paul Hall, along with field goals by Steven Johnson and Shane McCoy, accounted for the Trojans points.

Pikeville then outscored the Trojans 11-1 to take a 34-19 lead and led at the half 40-25.

The second half was just as cruel to the Trojans as Pikeville began to extend their already large lead. After Harold Johnson hit a basket underneath, Jones hit a trey and Chris Smith followed with a basket. Then began four straight three-pointers — one each by Jones, Ben Powell and two by Chris Smith. A 12-4 run by Wheelwright made it 61-43 after three. Steven Johnson and Paul Hall shot three-pointers for Wheelwright, closing out the period.

After that, it was time for the Panthers starters to take a seat and let the bench play in the fourth quarter.

Chad Owens came off the bench and fired in 14 points on five field goals — four of those five from the charity stripe.

Harold Johnson, who led all scorers with 27 points, scored the last eight points for Wheelwright in the final minute of play. Johnson, who was ready to play, seemed to be the forgotten man on the floor for Wheelwright. The junior forward scored the first nine points for Wheelwright and then the ball seemed not to find its way to the hot-shooting Johnson.

Hall finished with 12 points as he was whistled for his second technical foul in as many games. Hall also had a three-pointer for the Trojans. Steven Johnson, who likes to shoot those NBA three's, connected on two in scoring eight points. Layne Bailey had five points in the game. He also hit trey.

For Pikeville, three other players hit double figures besides Jones' 22 points. Murray Garvin added 15 points. Garvin struggled at the free throw line, hitting just one of seven attempts. Owens had 14 and Baird ended with 11.

Wheelwright still keeps struggling, falling to 4-13 on the year. Pikeville improves to 14-4.

The Trojans play host Allen Central on Tuesday night in a conference battle and will welcome Sheldon Clark on Friday night.

Betsy Layne freshmen handle Sheldon Clark with 69-55 win

The Betsy Layne Bobcats freshmen team went to 15-2 on the season with a convincing 69-55 win over the Sheldon Clark Cardinals Wednesday night in freshman basketball action.

The Bobcats, one of the region's top freshmen teams, was led in scoring by Jason Newsome with 18 points. Chris Potter had 16 points including two three-pointers. Three other players scored in double figures with both Barry Clark and Keith Hamilton tossing in 12 each. Damion Stepp added 10 points.

The Bobcats rolled out to a 12-4 first quarter lead and held a nine point advantage 32-23 at the half.

It was a rare home appearance for the Betsy Layne squad because they have mostly played on the road.

Sheldon Clark was able to get within six points of the Bobcats but could not get closer.

R. Whitt led Sheldon Clark with 16 points and S. Davis added 14. S. Runyon scored 10 points. Both Davis and Runyon had three-pointers in the game.

Betsy Layne shot 77 percent from the free throw line, hitting 17 of 22 attempts. Sheldon Clark hit 11 of 14 for 78 percent.

Betsy Layne will host McDowell Monday, along with a junior varsity game.

Behind The Sports Scene :

Perry Jones enjoys working with Trojans for 32 years

A very popular figure in Floyd County is Perry Jones. Even everyone in the surrounding counties knows Perry Jones.

Jones has been working with the Wheelwright Trojans basketball team now for the past 32 years, doing all the assignments that coach Monroe Jones hands out.

The well-liked Jones is not only at the games but at practice sessions as well. He will do anything from sweeping the gym floor to taking care of equipment and filling water bottles.

"When I die," he recently told me, "I want to be brought back to this gym. This is where I have spent most of my life and this is where I want to spend the last three days on this earth."

Jones says that he is looking forward to going to the state tournament this year marking his 32nd straight visit to the spring event. Trojan basketball would not be the same without Perry Jones around. He is a friend that is very supportive of Floyd County sports.

I recently did a story on local fans' opinions of the war in the Persian Gulf. In an interview with Jones, he indicated in his response that in light of the war, sporting events should be canceled. However, Jones says that he didn't mean what he first stated because he became confused. Perry is a very sensitive person who hopes that the war in the Middle East will soon be settled. He is sincerely concerned for the young men and women in the Persian Gulf.

However, Jones said he does not think that sporting events here at home should be canceled. That is what startled me about his first response. No one loves sports as much as Perry Jones. It bothered him that he made the first statement, and he wants everyone to know that he does not want to see any sporting events canceled. On the other hand, however, he does not want anyone to forget the men and women that are fighting a war in the Gulf.

Kidd named new athletics director at ECU; retains head coaching job

Roy Kidd, head football coach at Eastern Kentucky University since 1964, has been appointed as ECU's athletic director, replacing Donald Combs, who retired last August. Kidd will continue to serve as head football coach at the university.

In making the announcement, ECU's president, Dr. Hanly Funderburk, said that the appointment would be effective immediately.

Dr. Funderburk said that Eastern was "fortunate to have an individual of Roy Kidd's stature and recognition to serve as athletics director. He is familiar with our program and the directions that have been set for it."

Kidd said, "I appreciate very much the confidence that has been placed in me by the University and look forward to working with my friends in the athletics program in this new role."

In his 27 years as Eastern's head football coach, Kidd has compiled 218 wins, 79 losses and eight ties. That ranks him ninth on a list of 14 collegiate coaches who won 200 or more games. Among active coaches, only Grambling's Eddie Robinson and Penn State's Joe Paterno have won more games.

His Eastern teams won NCAA Division 1-AA national championships in 1979 and 1982 and were national runners-up in 1980 and 1981. ECU has been in the NCAA Division 1-AA Playoffs a record 11 times in the 13-year history of the championship, while at the same time posting the highest winning percent among the nations 1-AA schools.

Under Kidd's direction, the football Colonels have won or tied for the Ohio Valley Conference football championship 12 times.

COLLEGIATE ATHLETICS ARE SHAPING UP

Every time you pick up the sports page these days, you read about another school that is being investigated or punished by the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA). The NCAA is getting tough, and it's about time. There is a desperate need for reform in collegiate athletics.

It's about time, because I'm tired of hearing the suggestion that successful athletic programs can't be built with stem academic requirements and strict adherence to NCAA recruiting regulations. We know they can be. It's done in the Atlantic Coast Conference schools; it's done at Indiana; it's done at Stanford; and it's done at Notre Dame.

Thankfully, more university presidents are becoming involved with academic requirements for student-athletes through Proposition 42 and Proposition 48. We have seen the recruiting of real students. Academics and athletics should go hand in hand, and I don't think we're putting too much pressure on the kids. They are, after all, in the position to get a great education on scholarship.

There is real pressure on the coach. Winning is the name of the game at any level — high school, college or professional. It is especially true for college football and basketball coaches, because those two sports are the money-makers that pay the rest of the collegiate athletics. Without winning football and basketball teams, alumni contributions and television money drop off. A coach knows that his job is always on the line. Now that's pressure.

We saw it happen recently to Boston College football coach Jack Bicknell. He's had some great years and his players did well in school, but Bicknell just hadn't won enough games in the past few seasons.

At other schools, we've heard coaches like the University of Oklahoma's football coach, Barry Switzer, complain that a strong program can't be built with so many academic requirements. I say that if you aren't able to make your athletic program work under the rules, then you should be replaced. From the president to the athletic director on down, it is the duty of a school to produce young men and women who have earned their degrees. If you can't find success with real students, you have no place in collegiate athletics.

There should be an allowance of not more than $150 a month to cover incidentals, but only as long as it is regulated by the NCAA. When I was in school, we got $15 a month, and that helped pay for laundry and toiletries.

Schools that are now under investigation, such as the University of Nevada Las Vegas and Syracuse University, know the rules. If something comes out in an investigation, the schools have no one to blame but themselves. Let them pay the price for breaking the rules.

LARRY NIXON ENJOYS THE BASS MEGABUCKS TOURNAMENT FORMAT

If bass tournament angler Larry Nixon ever decides to try professional golf, he will probably do well at it.

After all, he's won three of the four MegaBucks tournaments conducted by the Bass Anglers Sportsman Society, in which 10 anglers rotate and fish 10 separate holes on a marked course. Nixon's latest win came in November at Lake Gunterville, Alabama, and was worth about $75,000 to him.

The well-known Evinrude Pro Staff angler, whose total winnings now top $1 million, credits his ability to look at water before even fishing it to determine if bass are present.

"Years ago the men I fished with taught me to look at the features and composition of the shoreline to determine what's underwater," explains Nixon. "That's the only way they knew, because there were no electronic depthfinders then."

"During all the years I've been fishing, I still use that technique a lot, although now I also watch a depthfinder to find little bottom changes bass are likely to use."

"I fish very fast, too," the Evinrude pro continues, "and keep my trolling motor moving. Then, whenever I see something that looks good, I stop and work it thoroughly. In fact, whenever I find a good looking area, I fish it at least twice."

The MegaBucks format begins with a full field of 250 to 300 anglers who fish for three days. The field is then cut to the top 50 who fish one more day. The field is then cut again to the top 10 who compete for two additional days on the 10 hole "course."

"You don't have time for many mistakes in that format," Nixon explains, "so you really have to be conscious of every move you make. I believe the average angler spends far too much time in unproductive water. He just doesn't have the experience to realize when he needs to try another spot."

Another Nixon trait that has helped him throughout his tournament career is his ability to learn something from practically every cast. The second bass he caught told him the winning pattern.

"I caught this bass from a rocky point," explains Nixon, "but I didn't catch a second one. I moved to another spot, then returned and fished the point again, but I still didn't catch anything. Then I fished the point from a different direction and caught three bass."

The lesson to learn from that one bass, says Nixon, is to realize where there is one fish there are often more, but not all of them bite the same way. Work the area thoroughly and with different lures from various angles until you connect.

Using different lures can also make a difference, says the former world champion. Nixon used a total of seven lures ranging from topwaters to bottom crawlers, but his most productive ones were crankbaits.

Would he ever consider taking up golf?

"I don't have any plans to right now," he laughs. "I'm having too much fun fishing, but it could happen one of these days."

SOME FISH COME IN STRANGE WAYS

While the majority of bass fishermen struggle to catch the few fish they can, the tournament pros can seemingly catch them at will. At times, it almost seems as if the fish can't wait to get caught.

Witness, for example, what happened to Bo Dowden, a long time tournament competitor and winner of the 1980 Bass Masters Classic world championship. The Evinrude Pro Staff angler was competing in a tournament on Kentucky Lake when he found a bass that just had to see the inside of his livewell.

"I was pitching a plastic worm into submerged brush in one of the coves," Dowden remembers. "On one particular pitch, as I stepped forward in the boat, I slipped. It seemed like I dangled between the boat and the water for an eternity, flailing away with arms and legs, before I finally hit the water."

"Anyway, I kept a grip on my rod as I went under, and when I came back up and started to climb back into the boat, I noticed something tugging on the rod."

"I started reeling, and sure enough, I brought in a well hooked two-pound bass. The fish had taken the worm as I slipped, and all my waving of the rod as I fell set the hook."

Fellow Evinrude pro Guy Eaker can tell a story just as hard to believe. Eaker, of Cherryville, NC, once worked for a large trucking firm, but because of his schedule and a generous employer, was usually able to spend a least one day a week fishing.

"I'd been catching 30- to 40 bass per day at Lake Wylie near Charlotte," explains Eaker, "and naturally, when my boss heard about that, he asked me to take him along. The very next week I took him, outfitting him with a rod, reel, and lure exactly like I was using."

"On my first seven casts I caught seven bass, but the boss didn't have a strike. I told him to slow his retrieve, and on his very next cast something thumped his lure, and he set the hook."

"At almost exactly the same time, I felt a strike on my lure and set the hook, too. For a few moments we were both excited and reeling like crazy to see who had the biggest bass."

Bassin' with the Pros

"When we finally reeled in the fish, I could hardly believe what I saw. We had both caught the same bass. The fish had hit one crankbait, then turned and hit mine an instant later."

Johnson Outboards Pro Staff angler Jack Chancellor had to work a little longer and harder for his fish, but not much. During the 1982 Classic, Chancellor felt a fish hit his plastic worm just as he was lifting the lure to begin another cast. He immediately dropped that rod and picked up another with a jigging spoon tied on, and the rest, as the say, is history.

"The spoon never reached the bottom," explains Chancellor, "before a bass hit. I landed that fish, dropped the spoon again, and caught another. At five minutes to 11 a.m. that morning, I had not had a strike in more than three hours of fishing."

"During the next seven minutes I caught 12 bass on that jigging spoon."

It probably would have been more, had not Chancellor lost his 13th fish. It apparently spooked the school, for he never caught another fish the rest of the day. The Johnson pro doesn't really mind; he finished second in the Classic and figures that seven-minute spree was worth about $1,000 per minute to him.

HOROSCOPE

February 3 through February 9

By C.C. Clark

AQUARIUS (January 20 - February 18)
It is imperative that you don't keep secrets from loved ones this week. Even if your intentions are good, there is a possibility your motives will be misinterpreted.

PISCES (February 19 - March 20)
Loved ones may tease you about a certain dream you have, but don't let them get you down. They really don't mean any harm. It is important to stick to your guns.

ARIES (March 21 - April 19)
You may find yourself developing an interest in something you have never tried before. Ignore those who think you are being silly and just have some fun.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20)
Your talents are being judged by a person you least expect. Avoid those people who try to get close to you too quickly. They may not have your best interest at heart.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20)
Family members may not be as quick to humor you as usual and may not appreciate your kidding around. A heart-to-heart talk with a friend reveals good qualities.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22)
It seems you are always having to deal with other people's problems, but things will change for the better soon. Those who have relied on you will find individual strength.

LEO (July 23 - August 22)
Avoid arguments with family members at all costs. Loved ones will be closed-minded to the changes you want to institute. It would be better to wait until a later date.

VIRGO (August 23 - September 22)
Love relationships will take a new turn this week and the changes in yourself will surprise both you and your lover. Talk about your feelings and be honest.

LIBRA (September 23 - October 22)
Projects are coming your way seemingly faster than you can handle them, but you will handle everything with great finesse. Be on the offensive with co-workers.

SCORPIO (October 23 - November 21)
Concentrate on the goals you have set for your career. This may be the time to begin taking classes that can help you achieve those goals and make the most of your life.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 - December 21)
If you have to argue with people to get what you want, be sure to pick on people your own size or bigger. In this way you garner support from colleagues, who will help your cause.

CAPRICORN (December 22 - January 19)
You must be strong-willed when dealing with friends and relatives. They may ask you to buy something with the promise to pay you later. It is not going to happen.

VIDEO BIJOU

'Scarecrow' one of Pacino's best performances

By Steven Alan McGaw
Scarecrow (1973)
 Watching Francis Ford Coppola's The Godfather, Part III (and it is magnificent) reminded me anew what a marvelous actor Al Pacino is. And Scarecrow is surely one of his best performances.
 Pacino is a moody, sullen drifter, on the road once more after leaving his wife. He meets up with the considerably more optimistic (but no less solvent) Gene Hackman, who steadfastly believes everything will be all right as soon as he realizes his dream of opening his own car wash. Together they share a series of sometimes comic, sometimes frightening adventures as they travel across America. Both are surprised at the strong friendship that emerges between them.

 Both actors (certainly, two of the best) deliver strong performances; Pacino, in particular, arouses sympathy for a character that might not seem too sympathetic. Terrific supporting work comes from Dorothy Tris-tan, Eileen Brennan, Richard Lynch and the always reliable Ann Wedgworth. Directed by Jerry Schatz-berg, the film also boasts evocative cinematography by Vilmos Zsigmond.
 Some critics found this film too depressing, too dreary. I disagree; the film is simply very involving, and surely that's the point. Treat yourself to a fine film by watching Scarecrow.
