Latta rehired as board attorney :

Contract clouds secretary issue

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Three top posts in the Floyd County school system were up for election at Tuesday's board meeting, but only one job was definitely filled.

The agenda for Tuesday's meeting called for the selection of a board secretary, attorney and finance officer. The board made appointments to two of the positions, one of which is now being disputed.

The board of education voted unanimously Tuesday night to appoint assistant superintendent of instruction Gary Frazier as secretary to the board of the education, replacing superintendent Ron Hager.

Hager reportedly is disputing Frazier's appointment. Hager said in a published report Thursday that he is under contract until June 30, 1992 to act as secretary to the board.

Board of education records show that Hager signed an "article of agreement" separate from his superintendent's contract on June 1, 1988 to act as secretary to the board for four years.

At Tuesday's meeting, board member Eddie Billips made a motion to name Frazier as secretary to lift "added burdens" from the superintendent.

"Under House Bill 940 added burdens have been placed on Mr. Hager," Billips said. "I've even heard Mr. Hager say what a cumbersome task it is to assemble this agenda book. To relieve some of this pressure, I think we should appoint Gary Frazier as secretary to the board."

Board member James Duff asked Hager if he wanted to continue to be secretary to the board.

"Yes, but I will accept the decision of this board," Hager said.

Hager made no mention of his four-year contract as secretary at Tuesday's meeting.

But, Hager said Wednesday in a published report that he did not have the opportunity to inform the board of his contract before they voted on the issue. Hager also said that the move would allow the board of education to meet without him being present.

Board attorney Cliff Latta said Thursday that he was unaware of Hager's contract, but that Hager put the item on Tuesday's agenda.

"He said he would do what the board wanted," Latta said. "I don't know why it was put on the agenda if he had a contract. That's a good question."

Hager could not be reached for comment Thursday.

Billips said Thursday that he didn't understand why Hager didn't mention his contract at Tuesday's meeting and the move was not an effort for the board to meet without the superintendent.

Hook-ups on hold :

Growing pains hit city utils

by Tess A. Whitmer
Assistant Editor

After four years of searching for a way to fund a much needed water plant expansion for the Prestonsburg City Utilities, the company has decided to apply for a low-interest loan made available by a new state government program.

The utility company is presently running at full capacity, 3 million gallons per day, and has self imposed a tap-on ban as of July 2, effectively prohibiting any economic development in its service area until more water can be provided.

For example, a Magoffin County firm is seeking to build a 40-unit apartment complex on the Mountain Parkway, but their grant approval is contingent on water being available. Right now it's not.

"We are now in an emergency situation," said Bill Harvey Howard, superintendent of the Prestonsburg City Utilities. "Everything you do with economic development depends on water...nothing can replace water and you can't do without it."

Howard explained that well drilling has become virtually impossible since the ground table water is "no good and only tolerable with a water softener."

The monies for the plant expansion are being sought through a project approved in the 1990 session of the General Assembly. The project, called the Drinking Water Loan Fund, offers $30 million in low interest (3 percent) loan monies to four development districts, Big Sandy, Gateway, Kentucky River and Cumberland.

Prestonsburg Utilities is asking for $2 million of that money to expand plant production capacity by 2 million gallons per day. This would give the plant the capacity to serve approximately 5,000 more households (average household consumption is 400 gallons per day).

Tuesday storm keeps firefighters busy

An electrical storm Tuesday evening had Prestonsburg firefighters and others working late into the night. Due to high winds and lightning, trees were tumbling all around the city.

According to Major Mike Wells of the Prestonsburg Fire Department, the first call came at 7:45 p.m. when a tree fell on a power line on Arnold Avenue causing electrical arcing. The power company was called to turn off the electricity to the line and the firefighters cut the tree out of the road. A crew worked at that scene until 8:30 p.m.

At 7:50 p.m. emergency workers responded to another fallen tree on Mary Jane Lane off of Trimble Branch. This tree fell onto the wires and caused the power pole to snap and lean up against another tree, according to Wells. After the power was turned off the crew worked on cutting away the fallen tree until 9:10 p.m.

High water mark drowns dream

by Janice Shepherd
Staff Writer

A Middle Creek man's dream of building his own home is in danger of washing away due to a little known Kentucky law.

On July 3, Larry Dotson of West Mountain Parkway was issued a notice of violation from the Department of Environmental Protection's Division of Water for constructing "a single family residence and fill placement" along the bank of Middle Creek. Dotson had inadvertently violated Kentucky law 401 KAR 4:060. He had done what countless Kentuckians have done over the years — constructed a building near a creek.

Kentucky law requires that any one building, or filling, an area located near a stream or creek must first obtain a permit.

The purpose of flood plain management, said Russell Renaud, supervisor of Dam Safety and Flood Plain Compliance Section, is to permit all people in the area to have equal rights. The division looks at how the landfill or construction will affect others upstream, if it will cause the flood level to raise.

"The bottom line is how the floodway has been protected," said Renaud, who explained that the floodway is an area reserved for flooding waters to get by. "If we let people fill from both sides, it will raise the water level one foot," he said. "If everyone keeps filling and doesn't worry about anybody else, the next generation will have to fill in more."

"In addition to the house being

Road proposal survives scare

A federal funding package to complete reconstruction of Route 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville survived an assassination attempt Wednesday and moved closer to final approval.

A surprise amendment to the $8 million funding measure, which attempted to kill federal financing of Route 23 and other "demonstration" projects, was defeated Wednesday by a vote of 365 to 61 in the U.S. House of Representatives. The bill, sponsored by 7th District Congressman Chris Perkins, now goes to the Senate for deliberation.

If approved in the Senate and signed into law by the president, the federal funding package will allocate $8 million for the four-laning of Route 23 in Johnson County, completing the 13-mile project between Prestonsburg and Paintsville. The Floyd County section of the new road is under construction now, with financing coming from state sources.

Bid rejected, site in limbo

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

An alternate site for a new Prestonsburg High School is a possibility after the Floyd County Board of Education rejected site preparation bids for the Middle Creek site at Tuesday's board meeting.

Board chairman Ray "Shag" Campbell said Thursday that alternate sites would "probably" be looked at because of the high cost of site development at the proposed site.

"We've done some poor considering in the past about the cost of getting a site ready to build on," Campbell said. "I'm not ruling out the Middle Creek site, but that site will cost too much to develop. I'm sure the state department (of Education) would frown upon the cost. They'll probably be some other sites looked at."

"There will be a new high school in Prestonsburg, somewhere," Campbell said. "We've got a pattern in front of us, at Left Beaver, of spending too much getting a site ready."

The board voted Tuesday 3-2 to reject the $1,450,000 site preparation bid and a $735,000 alternate bid by C & W Equipment of Manchester.

Board member Eddie Billips asked project architect Randall Burchett Tuesday about "major components" costs stated in the invitation to bid.

"The advertisement to bid said there would be major components during the site preparation work that the board would be responsible for," Billips told Burchett. "Exactly what are major components and what would be the cost to this board?"

Burchett responded he did not know what the components were or what it could cost the board of education.

"John Carmen, site architect, would have to answer those questions," Burchett said. "Mr. Carmen could not be here tonight and he would have the answers to those questions."

Billips recommended the board

table the issue until Carmen could come before the board.

"We have no idea what the major components are or what the cost might be," Billips said. "I suggest we hold off on this until Mr. Carmen can explain this to the board. It would be

Fired fireman vows lawsuit over dismissal

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A sergeant in the Prestonsburg Fire Department who was fired last week claims his dismissal was related to his active role in a firefighters' union and he plans to file suit against the mayor.

Kevin Hedrick was fired July 19 by Prestonsburg Mayor Ann Latta for, in part, "failure to perform assigned duties," according to a memo Latta sent to Hedrick.

Latta's memo said Hedrick's attitude toward his work, his superiors and herself had been cited several times in the past to Hedrick.

"As an employee of the city, and one who is not in a policy-making position, it is not your prerogative to continually challenge the decisions and policies that have been made," the memo read. "Neither do I feel I have an obligation to continually explain to you why policies and decisions are made."

The disagreement between Hedrick and Latta apparently came to a head when Hedrick was assigned the job of Health and Safety Officer, an Occupational Safety and Health Association (OSHA) requirement. Hedrick said he was assigned the position on April 17 by fire chief Tom Blackburn. Hedrick said the city built without a permit, we also are concerned about the fill around the house. There's fresh dirt in front of the house toward the road," said Renaud.

When Renaud was told Dotson's father (Lewis Dotson), who formerly owned the land, claimed the fill dirt had been there at least 15 years, he indicated it could make a difference in the issuance of the permit. Lewis Dotson said the property, located about three miles from the head of the creek in Ivyton, had been in his possession for thirty years and had never been flooded.

After applying for a bank loan, Larry Dotson had contacted the Floyd County Judge Executive's office to find out if his property was in the flood plain. In a letter to the Bank Josephine in March, Judge John M. Stumbo told loan officers the property was "not delineated by the maps of the Federal Emergency Management Agency."

Dotson said he also called state officials with the division and was told they couldn't determine if his property was located in the flood plain map, but advised him to submit an application for a permit.

Dotson implied the permit requested latitude and longitude locations and could only be handled by an engineer, so he decided to go ahead with the building of his home, thinking his property was out of the flood plain.

When state officials discovered Dotson was working on the home without a permit, they issued a notice of violation and requested him to submit the necessary paperwork to them, including cross sections of Middle Creek.

Gary Ousley with Alchemy Engineering has compiled the necessary data for Dotson and will submit it to the Division of Water for analyzing to see if an encroachment has been made.

"Each violator could be assessed up to $1,000 a day," Renaud said, "though, usually that isn't pursued unless there are difficulties." He also said his department is willing to work with anyone requiring a permit.

"Fees are not charged for a permit. The only cost to the owner is for data collection requirements," he said.

Renaud said the state cannot make a determination if Dotson is in compliance until all the data has been reviewed. "We will not issue a permit after the fact. We close the case out, saying that we will try to bring the county into compliance as close to the criteria as required for a permit," he explained.

did not have a job description for the position at that time.

"I wasn't sure what I was supposed to be doing," Hedrick said. "But, I followed the duties outlined by the NFPA (National Fire Protection Association) adopted by the city some time ago. I asked the mayor when I was assigned this position if I had the option to refuse it. She told me I did."

Mayor Latta denied that claim. "I did not tell him he had the option to refuse it, I told him to read the personnel policy," Latta said. "As far as I was concerned, he had been in that position as of April 16. He notified me last week that he was refusing that position and, under the personal policy, that is grounds for dismissal."

The city adopted the job description for the city's health and safety officer at a special meeting on June 20.

The position requires the health and safety officer to:

- compile and maintain safety and medical records for department personnel;
- review OSHA regulations and advise the fire chief of any procedures that need to be implemented;
- submit recommendations on occupational safety and health to the chief;

• advise and make recommendations to the chief on accident prevention or special training programs needed in the department;

• distribute and post safety and health materials for the education of fire department members; and

• report any observed infractions of safety and health regulations to the chief.

In a June 19 letter to the mayor, Hedrick asked to be promoted to the rank of captain due to extra training and responsibilities required to be health and safety officer.

Latta denied the promotion in a June 21 letter saying that no captain's vacancy existed in the department; the fire chief felt Hedrick could handle the responsibilities and it was a reasonable work assignment for his rank; and that the responsibility of checking all fire hydrants was removed in order to allow him to perform as the health and safety officer.

Latta said that Hedrick was refusing the position because he would not be receiving an increase in salary.

Hedrick said he felt he deserved an increase, but that he declined the position because he felt he had the option to do so.

"If I had been ordered to accept this position, I would have done so," Hedrick said.

Hedrick said holding the position of president of the local union of the International Association of Fire Fighters and a recent OSHA inspection of the fire department was the reason for his dismissal.

"I'm being penalized for trying to get better working conditions in the fire department," Hedrick said. "This (my dismissal) definitely is related to my union activities. I've been a paid member of the department for five years and a sergeant for three years. My last evaluation, July 17, was the highest in the department. I intend to file a lawsuit."

Latta denied Hedrick's claim saying the city did not recognize the firefighter's union.

"It has nothing to do with him being union president," Latta said. "The city doesn't recognize the union. As far as the OSHA inspection, I don't even know who requested it. His attitude over the past two years was also a reason for his dismissal. I don't feel like I should have to explain my decisions to him over and over. I'm tired of explaining."

An OSHA inspection of the fire department from April 11 until May 14 cited several serious violations in the department.

OSHA's inspection reported:

- no infectious disease control program;
- no facilities for flushing electrolytes from the eyes and skin when changing battery acid;
- no face shields or goggles at each charging unit when connecting or disconnecting charger leads to battery terminals;
- no written procedure for emergency and rescue methods governing all confined space entries;
- no identification of actual or potential presence of biological hazards;
- no notice informing employees of the protections and obligations provided for under the law;
- no log and summary of all recordable occupational injuries and illnesses;
- no records of employee exposure to toxic or harmful physical agents;
- employees exposed to toxic substances were not informed of the person responsible for maintaining those records;
- employees exposed to toxic substances were not informed of their rights to access to records pertaining to such exposure; and
- there was not written standard operating procedures governing the selection and use of respirators.

Mayor Latta filed an objection to OSHA's violations. No hearing date has been set on the issue.

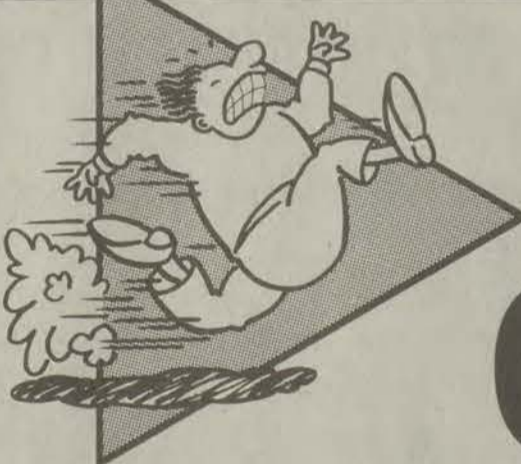

City personnel policies do not provide dismissed employees the right to a personnel hearing.

Water

However, just because the plant would have more water it won't necessarily be able to get water to areas not presently serviced with a water line. According to David Gardner of Big Sandy ADD, water lines would have to be funded through such grants as Farmer's Home, Abandoned Mine Lands or Community Development Block Grants.

The reason the city utilities company decided to go for the loan as opposed to seeking out grant money, according to Gardner, was the time period. Grant funds could push the project back as much as three years, while applying for a loan enables the expansion to be completed in approximately two years.

Once the application is submitted, which should be sometime in early August, there is a 60-day review period. If the loan is approved, plant design would take about six months and construction another 12-15 months, according to Howard.

Gardner estimated the pay back of the $2 million to be $60,000-$70,000 per year for the next 30 years. That would increase the monthly water bills for present users by a couple of dollars a month (there are presently 4,000 residential customers). The monthly increase would be even less when the other district buyers of the company's water are figured in. Seventy-five percent of the Prestonsburg City Utilities' water goes out of the city and its rates are the lowest of 86 Kentucky cities surveyed in 1989.

The last time the plant was expanded was in 1980, at which time the production capacity was doubled from 1.5 million to 3 million gallons per day. The cost for plant and line expansion was $4.2 million; $1.7 million was through a loan and the remainder in grant money. At that time the lines were extended to Blackburn's Greenhouse and Nursery, to hook onto the Sandy Valley lines, and down to Highlands Regional Medical Center.

"We projected that this expansion would take care of us for 10-15 years," Howard said. "But we have grown beyond that expectation and now need more water."

Four years ago, the plant was operating at 2 million gallons per day with 1 million gallons in reserve. Since the water was available, the utility company sought grant money to extend lines all the way to the Magoffin County line, but there were not enough families living along that stretch of road to qualify.

Several residents of Middle Creek appeared this month before the Floyd County Fiscal Court to petition the court to get water lines extended into their area. The court previously purchased 4-inch pipe to attach to the six-inch water mains to extend water service into some areas.

According to Gardner, this has been done mostly up hollows where there is not enough population to qualify for grant money to fund such a project. Gardner also noted that the county has "maxed out" its expansion from the end of the water main on Middle Creek by placing four-inch pipe up to Overnight Trucking and down Rough and Tough.

"There are regulations on how far a 4-inch pipe can travel away from the main," Gardner said. "If too much is added the water pressure drops; it comes down to a decision of whether to service more people or to continue to provide quality service to those already on the line. If people are paying for water they expect to have sufficient water pressure to take a shower."

A recent study of the Middle Creek area estimated the cost of running water lines through the area, plus hookup, at half a million dollars. That figures out to about $4,200 for each of the 120 houses there.

"We would definitely need to seek out grant money for that project," Gardner said. "There is no way you could ask each household to pay that much or ask the rest of the customers to subsidize it."

Gardner explained that no grant for water lines would be approved until additional water was made available through the plant expansion.

"Grant agencies do not work in a vacuum, they know the plant is operating at capacity," Gardner said. "They want to get water to as many people as possible in each year, so this year they would give money to places that have the water available to fill the lines."

presumptuous and, perhaps, ill-fated to accept bids not knowing what the total costs are."

Board member Mary Hall disagreed with Billips and pointed out that Carmen was at the July 9 scheduled meeting, but Billips, Tommy Boyd and Ray Campbell were absent.

"Mr. Carmen was here, but you all were not," Hall said. "I think we should accept the bids and get these schools built instead of dragging our feet. We do know what the problems are here, but we need to accept this bid."

Billips countered Hall, saying that spending $3.3 million for site development was too high and that enough money could be saved in his alternate proposal to build another school.

Billips proposed an alternate plan earlier this year to the board that called for a new high school to be built near the existing high school and then renovate the existing high school into a new grade school. Billips claimed that would move would save enough funds to build another school.

Hall made a motion to accept C & W's bid without the $735,000 alternate bid for a new football field. Board member James Duff seconded the motion.

"I only have one more comment," Billips said. "We still don't know what major components are and what the costs might be. I don't see how we can vote blindly on this issue when we have no concept of what it is."

Hall asked chairman Campbell if the board did not accept the bid how would the project proceed.

"I don't know," Campbell said. "But, we can switch to any direction we want to. Mr. Billips asked that it be tabled, but you wouldn't have it Dr. Hall, so let's vote."

Duff and Hall voted yes to accept the bid and Billips, Campbell and Boyd voted no.

John Sammons, speaking for Concerned Citizens for a new Prestonsburg High School, addressed the board Tuesday during the public comment session of the meeting.

Sammons threatened that the group would file a lawsuit against the board if it decided not to build a high school on the Middle Creek site.

"If the board doesn't proceed with the current plan, our group is ready to proceed with litigation that will prevent all further efforts of school construction in Floyd County," Sammons said. "We feel our position is clear and always has been. We want the best for the youth of our district and all of Floyd County."

Sammons read a letter to the board from Pikeville attorney Larry Webster, who is representing the group.

Until the water plant's capacity is expanded no more businesses or households will be able to hook up, unless application was made before the tap-on ban was imposed. Such is the case with the proposed site for the Prestonsburg High School. According to Howard, water lines already go by that site and the $600,000 the board budgeted for the water system there includes the extension of sewer lines up to the site. Anyone using the Prestonsburg City Utilities' sewer lines must now agree to incorporation, which the board has requested for the new site, Howard added. If the sewer lines are extended, Clark Elementary School will also be added on "as a bonus," Howard said. Clark School is presently using a small, old treatment plant that is due for replacement.

Webster's letter said that he has researched the issue and that it would take five to six years before the board could undertake the next construction project if additional funds are spent to change the site in Prestonsburg. The letter also contended that the majority of the board committed themselves against the Middle Creek site in last November's election.

"I am looking into whether or not this is an unlawful violation of the Corrupt Practice Act," Webster's letter said.

Webster said Thursday that the group would file suit if the board voted not to go ahead with building the school at Middle Creek or if it proceeded with any school construction projects lower in the district's priority list.

Webster said the reference to "five or six years" before the board could undertake another construction cost was an "estimate." Webster said if the board wanted to change its school construction priority list it would take "a long time."

"I thought I explained at Tuesday's meeting why Mr. Frazier should be secretary," Billips said. "It's a non-paying, time consuming job. I felt it would relieve some of the increased pressure put on Mr. Hager. I'm sure it never crossed any board members' mind to meet without the superintendent."

Board chairman Ray "Shag" Campbell said Thursday that he was confused as to why Hager put the item on the agenda.

"Mr. Hager made out the agenda and put in there to pick an attorney, secretary and treasurer," Campbell said. "I don't know if he made a mistake or not. He was asked about the position and said he would do whatever the board wished."

The position of financial officer was not filled at Tuesday's meeting after it was announced that finance officer Russell Frazier was retiring.

Billips recommended that the board retain Frazier's services on a day-to-day basis until an evaluation of the district's financial system could be done.

"I think we should abolish the position of finance officer and ask the C.P.A. firm doing the annual audit to evaluate our system and draw up job qualifications," Billips said. "Handling a $30 million budget is a lot of pressure on an individual and perhaps we should consider hiring a C.P.A. to do that. We need to run the district like a business to make sure we're spending money where it should be spent."

The board agreed to ask the firm to evaluate the system.

The position of board attorney was filled by the re-hiring of Cliff Latta to represent the board on legal matters. The board voted to raise Latta's salary from $650 per month to $1,000.

A report on the board's regular business and personnel matters will appear in Wednesday's edition of the Times.

Coffee Break

by Scott Perry

Betsy Layne High School's Touchdown Club has come up with the right idea and is taking the right approach for raising revenues for the school's football program.

Bingo.
Say what?
Yep, bingo.

The club has petitioned the county school board to authorize the games by permitting the Touchdown Club to be recognized as a suborganization of the board and proceeds would be handled similarly to monies raised by other school organizations.

As a suborganization of the board, the club could meet legal requirements for conducting charitable gaming activities.

Bingo has been a proven source of revenues and, as you may have noticed, a ready source of news. The Touchdown Club's approach is the right way...the legal way.

As long as it stays that way, there's no reason why the games should not be allowed.

For the past three weeks we've been able to commiserate with many thousands of people who are hearing impaired, thanks to an ornery ear infection that just won't go away.

The loss of our senses (no wise-cracks, please) has left us much more sensitive to the problems such handicaps raise and acutely aware of the frustration faced daily by those who have trouble hearing.

As a matter of fact, we've been slapped right in the face.

We recognize now our own insensitivity over years of dealing with our mother's loss of hearing and we are ashamed at how we tended to blame her for not being able to participate in a normal conversation.

After walking a mile in her shoes, all we can say is we're sorry. It will never, never happen again.

City and county officials are angry, understandably so, at the latest figures compiled by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers setting flood plain levels in Prestonsburg and Floyd County.

The Corps' figures are key elements in what can or can't be built in the flood plain and how much flood insurance will cost.

Despite the fact that major floods in recent years have not impacted Floyd County as drastically as other parts of Eastern Kentucky, flood plain levels were raised by the Corps and the effect could be dramatic restrictions on development in this area.

In 1977, for instance, Pikeville was virtually wiped out by flooding. Prestonsburg suffered only minimal damage. Paintsville saw only a few spots of high water.

That flood should provide evidence that the flow of flood waters down the Big Sandy has changed and broad applications of Corps estimates are no longer applicable.

It's true that we can't control Mother Nature and the threat of flooding is an annual concern. A very wise man once said "you can't plan the future by the past." As long as the Corps favors the past over the present, development here has no future.

Do as I say, not as I do. However qualified they may be, education chief Dr. Thomas Boyesen sends out the wrong signal in his decision to hire a husband and wife team for top spots in Kentucky's reorganized Department of Education.

On local levels such an activity is frowned upon by the state's Education Reform Act and Boyesen should be the first to practice what the reform laws preach.

If nepotism is a no-no in the Floyd County school system, it's a no-no at the top of the ladder. Lead by example Dr. Boyesen.

Letters

Editor,
I am writing this letter as a means of expressing some of my feelings concerning the death of my mother, Ruby Akers. As I am sure most of your readers already know, my mother was killed in an auto accident on July 14 at the Lancer-Watergap intersection. The other car involved was driven by a Kentucky State Trooper.

I read your editorial concerning the accident. I wholeheartedly agree with your column. I, too, feel that the answers are in the hearts and minds of those involved. Unfortunately, the only one who can honestly know in their heart what happened is the trooper in question. I realize that hundreds of photos have been taken, measurements made and reconstructions done, and witnesses interviewed. Alas, the answer still lies with those involved. My mother cannot tell what truly happened. Nor can my grandfather as he has been critically injured with multiple fractures. Perhaps the answers lie with the driver of the red S-10 pickup, but I doubt it. He simply made a U-turn. This is a crime which many of us have committed and have we been pursued at a high rate of speed? I think not. This brings us to the trooper. Perhaps he has the answer in his heart. If so, I wish he would share it with us.

I really do not know why I wrote this letter. I feel that it is simply because I need to know why. I need to know why I have lost my mom in such a needless accident. I need and deserve to know why!

Editor,
My name is Archie Parsons, I am attempting to trace my family history.

I'll start with a little about myself. I am 43 years old and most of my family came from the Kentucky area. My father's name was also Archie, my mother and he were divorced when I was roughly five years old. I haven't seen him since. My mother's maiden name is Conn. My mother's dad, my grandfather, past away a couple of years ago. His first name was Elder. My father's dad was Homer, I don't know what my grandmother's name was on my dad's side. My father's brother was called D.M., I think. My grandmother on my mother's side was a Boyd, my great grandfather was Lennie "Buck" Boyd and he lived up Prater Creek.

If you happen to be family and could help fill in gaps, names, dates and places I would love to hear from you. I don't know if my real father is still living or not, the last I had heard was that he was living in Ohio.

I do get down to see my mother a couple of times a year, she now lives in Prestonsburg. Sure hope you may be able to help me out. If not, thanks for your time and hope you have a nice day.

A nation's promise to its citizens should not be broken.

The recent exclusion of veterans with less than 50% disability from some health benefits must be reinstated, as promised by our country.

These men and women answered the call to service in the 1940s as the youth of our Republic. A desperate and grateful Nation promised them health care until they died, should they be injured as a result of their service.

Now it seems the "fat cats" in Congress are too busy lining their own pockets and making new promises to care about keeping old promises.

If our nation reneges on its promise to veterans, what promises can we make to battered women, victims of crime or children in poverty that will be believed?

As you know, Kentucky consistently ranks among the top five marijuana producing states in our country. The Governor's Marijuana Strike Force works year round to combat this problem. In 1990, during its first year of operation, Strike Force agencies destroyed 536,262 marijuana plants in Kentucky. So far this year, nearly 200,000 plants have been destroyed.

I would like to ask your paper's readers for their assistance in helping us find and destroy marijuana. The Strike Force has installed a toll-free 1-800 citizens hotline to take tips on suspected marijuana cultivation. Calls are answered 24 hours a day. All leads are investigated, and all information is kept strictly confidential. Citizen leads can be an important tool in leading the Strike Force to additional marijuana plots.

In May 1991, the trustees of the Auxier Relocation Cemetery began a cleanup drive to improve the access and appearance of the cemetery. Many people donated their time and effort toward this endeavor.

We would like to take this opportunity to especially thank Floyd County Judge Executive John M. Stumbo, Magistrate Gerald DeRossett and the county work force for their help. The county provided a bulldozer and operator Sheriffe Wells to clean off the brush and trees on the unused portion of the cemetery and to give better access to the relocated section at the top of the cemetery hill. The access road to the relocated section was greatly improved and graveled.

In addition to the relocation cemetery, the county crew of Sheriffe Wells, Don Johnson, Ernest G. Burchett, Denver Shepherd, Charles Lewis and Lenville Campbell, under the able supervision of Bill Merritt, improved and created access roads to four additional burial areas in the same vicinity of the relocation cemetery. Due to their efforts, many older people are able to visit the burial sites of loved ones for the first time in years.

The trustees of the Auxier Relocation Cemetery appreciate the fine effort of these people in this worthwhile project.

Black Lung benefits bill passes first step easily

A comprehensive black lung bill crossed the first hurdle in Washington on Wednesday as it passed a key House subcommittee. The bill, known as the Black Lung Benefits Restoration Act of 1991, passed the House's Subcommittee on Labor Standards in an almost identical form as it was introduced, according to Congressman Chris Perkins, co-sponsor of the bill.

The bill, as it stands now, would improve the benefits system for miners suffering from Black Lung and their widows in a number of ways.

Here are some highlights:
 1.) Limits on Opposition Evidence: limits the evidence that any party adverse to the claimant can submit against him to one, single opinion from a physician and only one X-ray reading to supplement that opinion. Perkins said this would help keep parties opposed to the miner "from stacking the deck" against him.
 2.) Widows/Dependents: a widow or dependent would receive benefits if one of the following occurred: the miner worked 25 years or more in the mines; if the miner died from black lung (whether it was the whole cause of death or only a contributing factor); if the miner was receiving black lung benefits or had a favorable case pending when he died.

3.) Attorneys: the bill would establish a fee system for attorneys and the benefits paid to them. He said this was necessary because attorneys today are very reluctant to take on black lung cases. Attorneys have frequently cited claimants' abnormally low approval rates (less than 5 percent of black lung cases are approved today) and the long delays in case rulings as reasons why they are reluctant to take them on.

A minor amendment to the bill was offered by the subcommittee chairman, Representative Austin Murphy (D-Pa.), requesting a study be done on the research and development of artificial human lungs.

The bill will now go to the full Education and Labor Committee for consideration. Perkins said the bill would come under closer scrutiny when it gets to the committee.

"The reality of this is that we're going to have to find some way to pay for this bill. The budget's not like before when you could delay paying for something until later. It's pay-as-you-go now, and it will be very difficult to come up with a plan to finance it," Perkins said.

In Loving Memory of FENEY HAMILTON STORY

July 18, 1900 - May 3, 1991

GRANDMA STORY

By: Garnet Hamilton

Her face was filled with wrinkles,
And her hair was almost white.
She never failed to steer us,
To the path that was always right.
She seemed a fountain of knowledge.
There was wisdom in her eyes.
And when we needed a helping hand,
On her we could rely.

If ever we had a problem,
She was always there for us.
She listened in her understanding way,
In her we all could trust.

No matter where life leads us,
We know that she'll be there,
In thoughts and memories always,
With all her love and prayers.

She had a heart filled with kindness,
A soul that loved the Lord above.
And so the Saviour did look down,
To watch and keep her with his love.

She was such a special woman,
Who had her own category.
It meant the world to us,
To have had our Grandma Story.

Take steps early in life to prevent osteoporosis

More than 24 million American women are affected by osteoporosis, a painful and crippling bone-thinning disease.

The disorder, which costs Americans about $10 billion a year, annually causes more than 1.3 million bone fractures, more than 250,000 of which are hip fractures.

Osteoporosis is caused by many factors, including a drop in estrogen levels in women experiencing menopause, chronically low calcium intake and not enough exercise, said Darlene Forester, an Extension nutrition specialist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Women at the greatest risk for osteoporosis are those who have an early menopause (before age 45), a family history of the disease, smoking cigarettes, and excessive use of alcohol and caffeine.

Small-boned white women also are in a high-risk category to be affected by the disease, Forester added.

Early signs of the disease may be a hip or wrist fracture, significant back pain or a loss of height.

Knowing how to prevent and recognize the disease can help women minimize their chances of being injured, Forester said.

Preventing the disease should begin early in life, she said.

"Women in their teens or early adulthood can increase the strength of their bones by eating a well-balanced diet rich in calcium," Forester said. "It's the lifetime intake of calcium that matters in a person's life, not just how much you consume today and tomorrow. It's important, therefore, to maintain a diet that includes a consistent amount of calcium."

The best sources of calcium are dairy products, such as low-fat milk, cheese and yogurt. Other foods that have some calcium include dark green leafy vegetables and canned fish with bones.

Many foods also are fortified with calcium, including some breads, flours, tortillas and orange juices.

Other ways to reduce chances of bone loss are regularly walking, jogging or other weight-bearing exercises, limiting smoking and alcohol and caffeine intake, Forester added.

The daily recommended allowance calcium for women is about 800 milligrams.

The National Institutes of Health, however, recommends 1,000 milligrams of calcium a day for premenopausal women.

During menopause, the NIH says that women should increase their daily calcium intake to 1,500 milligrams and consider estrogen replacement therapy in consultation with a physician.

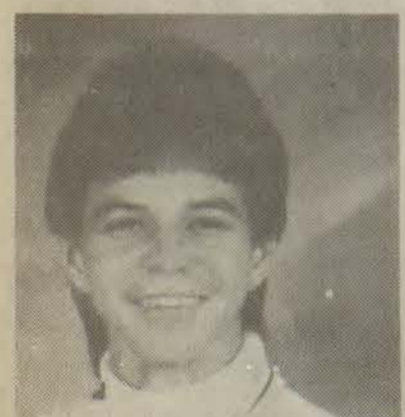

Adolescents and young adults, ages 11 to 24, now are recommended to have 1,200 milligrams of calcium daily, Forester added.

Several tests are available to determine if women have osteoporosis.

Outside the lines

Well, I've managed to make my way back down the east coast without too much trouble and re-establish myself in Prestonsburg. The trip went well, the sun shined (except for the flash flood that I drove through in Philadelphia) and overall, I had a really good vacation from my vacation.

A high point of my trip was having time to do some writing. When I'm at school or when I'm working, I find that I just don't have enough time to sit down and create, or, if I can scrounge some time, the outside world invades and I can't get my thought processes working.

I wish I could sit down and say to myself, "Self, now is the time when all good writers will sit down and crank something out." Unfortunately, difficulty arises when a writer tries to force creativity.

When I was in Connecticut, the pressure wasn't there and I was able to create some pretty respectable poetry. My writing was a relief to me, since I hadn't done anything I considered really good for quite awhile. I wasn't in a hurry, I wasn't forced and I was creative.

Creativity shouldn't have to be forced, but unfortunately, that's the way most people are brought up. I've talked to many people about writing. Some tell me, "I could never write." I'm just not a creative person."

With permission, I'd like to borrow a phrase from our illustrious editor/publisher:

"Horse hockey." Everyone has the potential to be creative. Unfortunately, that potential is usually forced out of use early in our lives. Think back to kindergarten and grade school. Remember doing coloring exercises?

I can recall being in trouble with my teachers because I broke the First Commandment of five-year olds' art:

"Thou shalt stay within the lines."

I remember being reprimanded by a teacher in grade school for drawing wings on a truck and, while doing a color-by-numbers, using pink instead of brown because I thought it would look better. I had pink dirt in a picture — big deal.

Teachers tell students early on to follow the explicit directions, stay within the lines and "make everything the way it's supposed to be." The pictures that get hung on the back wall of the classrooms are the immaculately colored pictures without a flake of color elsewhere on the page.

Why bother trying to make everything perfect? At that age, nothing's the way it's supposed to be, anyway.

What's my point, you ask? Simply that it's never too late to be creative. Every once in awhile, try just taking a break. Go for a walk or go for a drive. Get away from the stress long enough to let your creative right brain go to work. Remember how good it felt in grade school to just scribble? It still feels the same way. A little scribbling (or writing or drawing or just silliness) can save an ulcer.

Why do everything the same, extra-efficient way every time just because it's safe? Taking a roundabout route for daily routine is much more scenic, will get you there, and may show you a place (or an idea) you didn't know was there. Taking chances is a good thing, in my opinion. In the words of Jack Kreitzer, my mentor:

"There is dignity in risk." Coming from a place with an atmosphere that fosters creativity, I know that truck wings and pink dirt aren't bad, not even for adults. Give it a try.

I'll see you outside the lines. Later days.

Mountain Voices — by Willie Elliott —

GOOD OLD ROUTE 122

First they did away with the Almar Drive-in Theater at Allen (I suppose that was "the thing" for the teenagers of my generation); then they tore down the grandstands at Drift Ballpark; now they are getting ready to make another road that will replace much of the traffic on Route 122 between Martin and McDowell. These changes, for the most part, come in the name of progress.

I look forward to the new road as much as the next person. It can be frustrating to follow a coal truck all the way from McDowell to Martin. The people who have a little Evil Knevel in their blood find opportunities for passing, but we more timid souls end up driving behind the trucks until we get to Route 80 at Martin (or until the truck breaks down). Even when a driver is lucky enough to avoid the coal trucks, the road is narrow, curvy, and at times, bumpy. Having said all these negative things about the road, I go on record saying that I will miss her.

Sure, the road will still be there, but how many of us will use it when the road from Minnie to Eastern is completed? I used to tell myself that I would occasionally use old Route 23 from Allen to Prestonsburg just as a lark. I would use it as a reminder of what it used to be like getting to Prestonsburg. Well, so far I have always been in too much of a hurry not to use the more modern and direct route. Sometimes this summer we all should take that old route, but let's not all do it the same day. We would create a monumental traffic jam.

Such will be the case with the new road. We will zip across the mountain in no time at all, but the road will not have any character. Take Route 80 for example. It is a fine road and one of the things that our part of the state has needed for years, but, quite frankly, it doesn't have any character. Will names such as Drift Curve, Hunter Straight Stretch, (when you think about it, it's not that much of a straight stretch) or the Garth Curve appear? I don't think so. I know that roads are not necessarily meant to have a "character," but when one lives with one as intimately as we have with Route 122, the road takes on a character. When such a road is gone or relegated to local traffic, like any old friend, it is missed. Such will be the case with Route 122.

There is always the possibility that we will return to a way of life in which speed and convenience will not be the dominating factors of our activities. If that should happen, there is a chance that the ballpark would be rebuilt and someone could open a successful drive-in theater. Then I would be able to drive down Route 122, watch a ball game and then take a leisurely stroll down old Route 23 (and wave at Danny Branson and his faculty as they admire their new school). Afterwards, I could attend a drive-in movie at the Almar site. While I await these changes in our mores and times, I eagerly await the completion of the new road so I can zip along with everyone else. Route 122, when the new road is finished, I may not use your stretch of life from McDowell to Martin, but I will have a special place in my memory for you. Good, bad, or indifferent, you have been a big part of my life.

Soapbox

LET'S GET SERIOUS

Well, here it is almost the end of July. Before we know it the summer will be coming to an end, though, it may not seem like it with the heat wave we've been having.

by Tess Whitmer

In a few short weeks school will be starting up again. This should provide for a few good headlines. Will we see the same things we saw last year at this time, teachers' strikes, government takeovers?

Making headlines these days is the argument over the location of the new Prestonsburg High School and whether a cheerleader should be allowed her senior year on the squad. Although both are important issues, especially to those involved, shouldn't we be concentrating more on the curriculum and improving education for everyone in the county?

A lot of people are expending an inordinate amount of energy over what would appear to be a simple matter. No one can argue that having a choice is a negative thing. Granted, the land has been purchased at the Middle Creek site, but at what price? Certainly not a reasonable one. What options were looked at when that decision was made?

It seems a simple enough matter to look at both options objectively, whether to build new on Middle Creek or renovate and expand the present building, and make the most economical and feasible decision. A new school is not necessarily going to improve the quality of education. Let's make the decision and get on with more important issues.

All these people using up energy arguing the same points over and over again would better spend their time researching successful education programs around the country. There has to be a model out there somewhere which we can incorporate with little or no expense into the Floyd County educational system.

Let's look at curriculum, the quality of our educators and administrators, the length of the school day and the length of the class periods, the opportunity for vocational and alternative education, changing the emphasis from sports to academics, getting rid of the petty politicking and concentrating on quality.

Let's take off the blinders and see what is really important for the children's future. Without quality education, they have none. Look around, why are all the younger generation leaving the county. Is it the lack of jobs? Yes. Is it the high cost of living and the low pay scales? Yes. Is it the fact that they don't want to raise a family in an area with such a dim future? Yes.

There are people out there working hard to change these things and they should be applauded. New ideas need to be looked at, not shunned because they don't fit into the old mold. This is a beautiful, friendly place and I love living here but, at this point, the idea of raising a family here scares me. I am afraid that my children's future will not be a priority in the one place where they should be the sole focus...the schools. I am afraid that as soon as they turn 18 they will be gone to somewhere more progressive.

We need to put stock in our most precious commodity and make the investment. As was brought up in the Economic Development Authority meeting recently, without education we might as well forget economic development. One logically follows the other.

Ask yourself this, are our children our biggest export?

Young Eastern Kentuckians to showcase videos

Students from the 1991 Appalachian Media Institute, including a Floyd county youth, will showcase their video documentary work on Friday, August 2, at 7:30 at the Appalshop Center in Whitesburg. The showcase is open to the public and admission is free.

This year's Institute class includes Scott Jones of Harold; Shane Collins and Michael Matney of Jenkins; Mary Kay Roaden and Justin Webb of Whitesburg; Stacey Lynn Robinson and Andrew Scott of Pikeville; Jodi McAuley of Kona; Heather Raglin of Letcher; J.W. Kincer of Vicco; and Irvin Damron of Virgie. The instructors are Nema Brewer of Little Dry Fork, and David Sturgill of Cowan. Institute director Jeff Hawkins lives in Fleming Neon, and teaches media and drama at Whitesburg High School.

The Appalachian Media Institute trains young people in media skills, and works with educators to develop media arts programs in local communities. An internship program for high school sophomores and juniors, the Institute draws its student and teacher participants from the East Kentucky region. As part of their training, intern students produce video documentaries about topics of interest in their community. The students, in partnership with their sponsoring teacher, develop classroom media projects during the school year following their summer training.

Past Media Institute students have produced video documentaries about bad roads in the mountains, "mainstreaming" special education students, wildlife preservation, and care for the elderly. Students' videos are distributed to public schools and libraries, and have been broadcast on local access cable channels. Mountain Haint Tales, produced by 1991 instructor Nema Brewer when she was an intern last summer, was selected by New York's Artists Space for a national showcase of student video work.

The Appalachian Media Institute is a part of Appalshop, the arts and education center based in Whitesburg that is dedicated to producing work which celebrates the culture and voices the concerns of Appalachian people.

Howell graduates from graphic arts college

Tim Howell

Tim Howell of Auxier graduated July 20th from the ACA College of Design. The ceremony was held in the auditorium at the Museum Center at Cincinnati Union Terminal. Howell majored in computer graphics, which includes a full year of popular software packages used in the industry today (Pagemaker, Adobe Illustrator, Quark Xpress and Photoshop). Projects produced on the Macintosh include package design, brochure/publication design and illustrative techniques. Students also concentrate on corporate identity and the entire scale of marketing their services.

"Tim is a very creative student with an above average skill in the computer," relates Marion Allman, president of ACA College of Design.

The commencement exercises included remarks from Susan Schultz, public relations coordinator at the Cincinnati Museum of Natural History, who has worked with ACA students in creating three-dimensional sculptures relating to Museum exhibits and architecture over the past year. Their works will be displayed at the Museum Center soon, and items based on their artistic work will be available in the Museum of Natural History shop.

Kentucky Opry News

Monday night, July 29, Kentucky Opry will resume their schedule at the Jenny Wiley Theatre. Summer is passing much too rapidly for me.

Unless you could see these students rehearsing in hot gymnasiums throughout the county, you could not visualize how hard they are working. The students have one goal in mind, that being to perform on the stage at Jenny Wiley.

I really appreciate those of you who have come out and supported these students and the Kentucky Opry Troupe this summer, but we need many, many more of you to join us.

You cannot possibly understand the concept of Kentucky Opry if you don't come out to see the talent and what we are attempting to do.

Is it too much to dream of another Gatlinburg here in the mountains; or to visualize turning Floyd County into another Nashville? We need all of our leaders to come out and get involved in this project. Help us to tap in on our greatest natural resource, that being our talented young people. Let's build a learning and performing arts center here that we can all be proud of. Floyd County, I ask you to think about this.

Smile Awhile — by Sarah Hopson —

Sis boom bah!

After attending nearly 4,000 ball games this summer (so it seemed), I've come to the conclusion that if schools ever hope to have adequate parental participation, PTA meetings should be held at halftime of the games.

Imagine how wonderful it could be if just half of the sports fans who showed up for the games were also actively involved in the improvements of their schools.

People who had never attended a PTA meeting would be privy to information such as curriculum, scheduling, grade averages, academic accomplishments and many more interesting facts regarding their children. The results could be mind-boggling.

"And now for our halftime festivities, the secretary of the local PTA will read the minutes of the last meeting."

"At our last meeting, approval was given to send two students to Duke University for..."

"Did you hear that, Cleve!" a man in the crowd exclaimed as he crunched on his popcorn. "Some of our kids are going to Duke."

"Doesn't surprise me. Did you see how well Bodine carried the ball on that last play?"

"...and because of their GPA ratings," the secretary continued.

"I wonder what a GPA rating is?" Cleve asked.

"I think it's a sports term meaning great passing ability."

"Are you sure? That woman doesn't look like an athlete to me. She isn't even wearing tennis shoes."

"Looks can be deceiving. Those high heels could be the kind I've seen women on TV wear in that basketball commercial."

"...T.D. classes will begin at 9 a.m. providing..."

"Did you hear that? Special classes for touchdowns! Boy, am I glad to hear that. We've needed that type of instruction for years."

"Yah. What will they think of next?"

"...and weekly fluoride treatments will be initiated. If additional monies are available, new recreational equipment will be purchased."

"The sports department has needed a dental program for ages. I wonder if they're going to have orthodontists, too?"

"Probably not. But I'm glad to hear we're going to get some new sports equipment."

"You can say that again. It's getting more expensive every day. Last week it cost me 200 dollars just for a pair of basketball shoes for my son."

"They must have been a special kind."

"They were. They're the kind you wear when you're sitting on the sideline. The type you wear on the court cost 50 dollars more."

"...studies show that children who get adequate amounts of sleep and eat nutritiously enriched foods have better scores..."

"If I've told Jimmie Joe once, I've told him a thousand times that you can't score points by staying up half the night eating Doritos and drinking Pepsi."

"This is the best halftime show we've had in years. It's encouraging to know there are still people interested in our children. What I can't understand is why so many people went to the concession stand and missed it."

"That's easy. Some people don't want to get involved."

Though it's nice to think of fans waving "Go PTA" and "Make 'em Eat Dirt, Academically" banners at the games, we'd undoubtedly lose a lot of enthusiasm when it came time for the membership drive. Also, as badly as I hate to admit it, Cleve and I have a lot in common.

Board hires Daniels :

New Wheelwright Football Coach Optimistic

Donnie Daniels had two things to celebrate Tuesday night and Wednesday morning. Tuesday night he was hired at the Board of Education meeting as the new head football coach at Wheelwright High School. On Wednesday morning (11:59 a.m.) his wife Sandy gave birth to their second child, a girl that weighed eight pounds, seven ounces.

In speaking with Daniels at the Our Lady of the Way Hospital in Martin, he was rejoicing over both events that had taken place.

"Sandy is doing real well and the baby is doing fine," he said, "it's been quite a couple of days."

Daniels will head the Trojan football program this year, replacing Roger Johnson, who guided the Trojans the past four years. Wheelwright won their first game of 1990 and then dropped the final 10.

Daniels was the former head coach at Allen Central when, in 1989, after the football season had ended, he went to Wheelwright to take the helm of the girls' basketball program, a position that was held by the late Judy Eversole. Besides coaching football at Allen Central, Daniels had a successful tenure as baseball coach also.

Don Daniels, principal at Allen Central, began the football program at the Right Beaver school on a junior varsity level. Donnie Daniels then came to the school and began the varsity football program. In the four years that Daniels coached at Allen Central, he had a record of 10-30 overall.

Now he will assume the head coaching job with the Trojans and is very optimistic about the upcoming season, especially with the new district alignment.

"We will be going into the alignment this year and if a coach can win three district games he can get his team in the playoffs," Daniels explained. This year the top four teams in district play will advance to the playoffs.

"He may not get a home field advantage, but the goal I have set this year is to get Wheelwright back into the playoffs."

Wanting to call his own shots as a coach this year prompted Daniels to return to the football coaching ranks.

"I just started thinking that whoever does take the job at Wheelwright, I probably would end up helping them. I talked to Roger (Johnson) and he said he definitely would not return as coach and so I figure as head coach I could call my own shots.

"Also, I believe the players can relate better to a native Wheelwright coach rather than someone they don't know," the Trojan mentor went on to explain. "The native coach can relate to the players better also." Daniels graduated from Wheelwright where he played football, basketball and baseball.

Daniels sees the same problem that most Floyd County football schools see — the lack of feeder schools.

"No feeder schools is going to kill us," he said, "and unless we get control of the limitations of the seasons (grade school basketball interfering with football) we are going to have a problem of having high school football."

The lack of solid feeder systems in our grade school ranks has been a thorn in the side of high school football teams for several years now. Daniels says that the administration is aware of the problem but don't seem to know what to do about it.

"It comes down to the grade school administration wanting to get the county basketball season over before

"This year's seniors are not going to be puppets for next year's new school. What we accomplish this year will be for Wheelwright High School."

-- Donnie Daniels

the Christmas break," he stated. "It's like taking my little girl down and letting her learn to swim. She can take lessons and learn a step at a time or I can throw her in the pool and let her learn the hard way. It's like that in grade school and high school football. You can take a player and teach him the game steps at a time, or when he comes into high school throw him out there and tell him to learn."

Daniels has a valid point on the teaching of football in the grades and even presented a program for the county that was very workable. However, the idea fell on "stony ground." While Daniels says there will not be a drastic change in the Trojan camp this year, some changes will have to come about.

"I think the first place to start with changes will be with their attitudes," he said. "Mentality they think they cannot win. We need to install a positive attitude and they will come about with a consistent coaching style."

"We need to let the players know where we are and what level of expectation we have. We need to let them know what we expect of them as a player and as a student."

Daniels cites problems in a small community such as Wheelwright as compared to problems in a larger area.

"When you have problems, it may be minor in a larger area, but in a small community like Wheelwright it is a major thing. We hope to not have the problems and a positive, winning attitude."

"I would like to get back to the old tradition we once had here at the school," he said. "We had a set time we would practice and all the players knew it. We knew what was expected of us on and off the field. Wheelwright always had the reputation as a football school as hitting hard coming off the line. We may not have won every game, but we were traditionally a hard-hitting team."

"Every player knew the school song and after each game we would get at the 50-yard line and sing the school song — win or lose. By doing this, we might not have won on the scoreboard, but we were still winners in other ways."

Daniels said that he is a person that believes that little things accomplish a lot.

Daniels stated that he would love to have an assistant coach that could start working the grade schools (Osborne and Melvin) and revive the grade school program.

Daniels also stated that this year's Wheelwright team will be blessed with a lot of speed and he intends to use that speed to put points on the scoreboard. Another area of strength

HAP Falls To Pikeville 8-4 In District Playoffs; First Inning Errors Costly

Walks will come back to haunt a pitcher but errors will beat you. That statement has always been the philosophy of baseball coaches. The latter held true for the Harold-Allen-Prater All-Stars as they fell to the Pikeville All-Stars 8-4 in the playoff game for the District 7 title.

HAP, who were the champions of District 7, Area 2, spotted Pikeville, District 7, Area 1 champions, four runs in the first inning and never could overcome the deficit.

Two first inning errors proved costly to the HAP All-Stars as third baseman Lance Jones failed to field two grounders in the opening moments.

Pikeville, who came into the game with the reputation of being a good hitting ball club, wasted no time in living up to the reputation. The visitors hit the ball hard and did not wait around to take any pitches to see what HAP starter Brandon Castle might throw. Pikeville was sent to the plate to do one thing and that was to hit — and they responded.

Brent Coleman base hit Castle on the second pitch of the game. Derek Villegenthal hit a fly to centerfield that Chad Case made a good catch on. Eric Elswick, who started on the mound for Pikeville, hit a grounder to third that got through Jones, sending Coleman all the way to third. Coleman scored on Tom Blanton's ground ball that forced Elswick at second base. Starsky Howell grounded hard to third only to have the ball go off the glove of Jones, scoring Blanton. Steve Arnold singled home Howell who had stolen second base. Arnold completed the scoring on Leonard Mullins' base hit.

HAP made it 4-1 with a run in the bottom of the first inning when John Ortega led off with a base hit and moved to second and third on two wild pitches by Elswick. With one out, Castle roped a base hit to left center, scoring Ortega.

Pikeville used the long ball in the second inning as they scored two runs on a home run by Elswick. The blast came with two out in the inning. Coleman worked Castle for a one out walk and then Castle fanned Villegenthal for the second out. Elswick then picked on an offspeed pitch from Castle and parked the ball well over the fence in centerfield.

Harold-Allen-Prater had a chance to do some damage in the second inning but some poor base running took them out of the inning.

Chris Johnson reached on an error on second baseman Clark Batten.

Johnson moved to second on a wild pitch. Case walked putting runners on first and second with no one out. After Sam Nelson struck out, a snap throw to first from the Pikeville catcher, Mullins, was too late to nail Case at first but Johnson broke late for third and first baseman Tom Blanton's throw was waiting for him at third base for the first out. The mistake on the base paths more costly when Ortega singled after the out. Wesley Samons flied to center to end the inning.

Castle looked to be settling down

Ken's Sport Shop Softball Team Wins Tourney and Boys Heart

Lanny Spears II of Wilmore is a 9-year old cancer patient. But the kindness the Ken's Sport Shop softball team showed the youngster no doubt made a lasting impression on him. Kenny Conley decided to not only name Lanny Spears the Most Valuable Player in the tournament his team took part in, but Conley decided to give the huge winner's trophy to Spears as well.

No team meeting was necessary to make this decision, according to Conley.

"I decided on my own to give the trophy to Lanny," said Conley from his sport shop in Prestonsburg. "Whatever I decide the rest of the team pretty well goes along with. I have a great bunch of players and we get along very well. That is probably the reason we have stayed together so long."

"I thought that Lanny would enjoy the trophy more than we would," continued Conley. "Actually, the players were all tickled that we did give him the winner's trophy."

How did Spears come about being named the Most Valuable Player. "The tournament director came over to me and told me to name a Most Valuable Player off of my team being we won the tournament. I said no way I can do that. Pick one player over another. So I said there was only one MVP and that was Lanny. Everyone agreed on it and we presented him with the MVP trophy."

Conley's decision to give up the team trophy inspired Darrell Baxter manager of Lee's, to do the same. Baxter and his team presented Lanny with their runners-up trophy.

In a letter sent to the Floyd County Times from Stephen R. Boven, D.A.R.E. Officer in Wilmore, Ken's Sport Shop was recognized for their professional conduct as a team during the tournament.

"It was enjoyable to have them play here," stated Boven in the letter. "Not only were they a quality playing team, they also exhibited sportsmanship that set them apart. All the players were professional in their conduct."

Boven further stated in his letter, "I am sending you this in hopes you will print an article telling your readers of their outstanding team and of the teams compassionate heart."

"I thought of my kids when I saw Lanny," said Conley. "I really didn't know of his condition at first. When we decided to give the MVP trophy to him, his parents went home and brought him back out to the park."

Conley said that the Wilmore D.A.R.E. tournament was the best tournament that he and his team had taken part in.

"They showed us more hospitality than any tournament we've played in," he said. "They really treated us well."

Ken's Sport Shop won the tournament 14-4 over Lee's Softball of Cynthiaiana. "The tournament was presented by D.A.R.E. and that is the reason we went to it," said Conley.

Conley took one more step in recognizing Spears. He wanted Spears to be included in the team's photo.

Wilmore D.A.R.E. Champions!

Ken's Sport Shop won the Wilmore D.A.R.E. Softball Tournament recently. Members of the team are front row: J. Blankenship, J. Cole, E. Collins, Lanny Spears II, K. Conley (manager), J. Kurkowski, R. Shelton, J. Cline, J. Fultz. Second row: Steve Boven (officer), G. Shepherd, R. Little, R. Clark, T. Rice, M. Howard, K. Hale, B. King.

after the first two innings as he fanned the Pikeville side in the top of the third inning. HAP left two runners stranded in scoring position in the bottom of the inning.

In the Pikeville fourth, it was the gopher ball that caused problems for Castle. With a runner on base, Brent Coleman drilled a pitch that not only cleared the fence and billboards but landed on the walking track for a two-run home run and a 8-3 game.

Base hits by Samons and Castle scored two runs for HAP in the bottom of the fourth inning. Nelson led off the inning by being hit with a pitch in the helmet. It was the third time that Nelson had been plucked in the tournament.

Samons came on in the top of the fourth inning and shut the Pikeville All-Stars down on just one hit. However, HAP was not able to mount any kind of offense, even though they did put two runners on base in the bottom of the sixth inning. Ortega had his third hit of the game in the final inning.

Castle was the losing pitcher in working four innings. He gave up eight runs on seven hits and fanned seven batters while walking just one. Samons had no strikeouts and he walked one in his two inning stint.

Elswick was the winning pitcher for Pikeville in going all the way. Elswick struck out two batters and he walked four. He hit one batter.

The story of the game lay in the fact that HAP stranded nine base runners and committed some costly errors in the opening inning. Pikeville left three men on base.

Pikeville advances to Bowling Green to play in the state Little League tournament.

Receives Most Valuable Player Trophy

Lanny Spears II, center, received the Most Valuable Player trophy from Darrell Baxter, left, and Kenny Conley, right. Spears, a cancer patient, was awarded the trophy by Conley. Stephen Boven, Wilmore DARE Officer is in the back.

"All of that plus the fact we have some experience coming back," he commented. "My being there a year at the school will help a lot also."

Daniels feels that this will be the last year of the Wheelwright school and that he wants to carry over a positive program to the new school whether he is the coach or not.

"But, I don't want to short-change our seniors this year, who has give three hard years at Wheelwright, by saying we are trying to establish something for the new school. That wouldn't be fair to them."

Daniels says that in essence what is accomplished this year will be for Wheelwright High School and this year's seniors. "Our seniors are not here to be puppets for next year's new school."

How did his wife Sandy take it of the news of him returning to the football helm? "We sat and talked about it," Daniels said. "She has always been an encouragement to me in any thing I did. She knows how I love to work with kids and that she would stand behind me in my decision. Sandy knows that I am a football nut."
