Contractor warned of Duff water woes

A contractor who installed a sprinkler system at Duff Elementary said Tuesday he had warned the project's construction manager before the project began that there would be inadequate water pressure to operate at Martin Engineering, construction the system.

Ken Bratton, of Hydro Fire Protection based in Ohio, addressed the Floyd County Board of Education Tuesday about the situation.

Bratton said that he told officials manager at Duff, that there would not be enough water pressure at the site

Alan Stumbo, with Martin Engineering, said the plan Kaiser-Taulbee Engineers submitted indicated the water tank would be enough to operate the system.

Stumbo also said that Bratton had prediction about the water pressure at the site.

"At that time, he proposed a plan to correct the problem that would've cost about $100,000," Stumbo said. "We couldn't afford to spend $100,000 on an assumption. As it turned out, he was right. But could you imagine the public's reaction if we spent $100,000 and it wasn't needed?"

Bratton said Thursday that he had "never had so much trouble getting had trouble," Bratton said. "It took paid for a job" in the 30 years he has been in business. Francis resigns :

Latta is named counsel

Floyd County school board attorney William Francis' absence from Tuesday's board meeting was explained when his resignation was announced shortly before the meeting ended.

Superintendent Ron Hager read a letter from Francis that said, "Due to other pressing legal matters and due to other business matters, I hereby tender my resignation as attorney for the Floyd County Board of Education effective March 12."

After the board voted to accept the attorney's resignation, board member Eddie Billips made a motion to hire Prestonsburg attorney Cliff Latta. Tommy Boyd seconded the motion but Dr. Mary Hall asked for discus-

Mike Luscher, director of Buildings and Grounds for the state Department of Education, wrote a letter to the board last month recommending the contract be re-bid. Luscher's letter said the board did not receive a competitive bid since only one bidder submitted an offer; that no alternate was included in the base bid; and that the negotiated change order did not include site work for the entire project.

The agreement said the superintendent would make a recommendation before May 1991 concerning the specific work year of each administrator.

Hall told Billips he shouldn't recommend his personal attorney for the job and it could cause a conflict of interest because Latta had represented Billips in a lawsuit against the board.

Billips responded that he doubted there were any attorneys in the area who had not filed a lawsuit against the board of education.

After Hall and Billips' exchange, Boyd withdrew his second to the motion. James Duff said he felt the board needed "a few days" to think about the matter.

In a surprise move, board chairman Ray "Shag" Campbell told Billips he would second his motion to hire Latta because the board of education needed to have an attorney.

The motion carried on a 3-2 vote. Duff and Hall voted no and Boyd, after some hesitation, said, "I'm going to go for it, because we need an attorney.'

Latta said Thursday he would accept the position and "looked for-

The board voted Tuesday to reject C&W's bid and to advertise again for bids on the contract according to the original bid specifications. The board Greene, whose rendition of p.m. when church bells will toll across asked project architect Randall Burchett to include in the advertisement that bids will be accepted until the April 9 board meeting. Speakers ranged from teachers to parent groups to a high school student with each expressing their concerns about problems in the school system.

Two Prestonsburg Elementary teachers told the board they would no longer spend their own money to buy classroom supplies at the school. Debra Walker asked the board to ensure that proper supplies are in every classroom so teachers can properly teach students. Walker displayed several textbooks used in her second grade class and told the board

A double shooting near Oil Springs in Johnson County has been ruled a case of murder-suicide, according to Johnson County Coroner J.R. Frisby.

Kentucky State Police reports indicate that Rick O'Neil Baldwin, 37, and his wife Rita Baldwin, 36, were found dead shortly after 2 a.m. Wednesday, on Little Pigeon Road near Rt. 580 at Oil Springs, apparently from single gunshot wounds to the head.

Upon arrival, police found Ricky Baldwin dead in his pickup truck with a single gunshot wound to the head. Rita Baldwin was then found over an embankment near the truck, also dead from an apparent gunshot wound to the head. Both were pronounced dead at the scene by Johnson County Coroner J.R. Frisby.

Frisby confirmed reports that the shootings were part of a murder-suicide on Thursday.

"This has been determined to be a murder-suicide," Frisby said. "We aren't saying which subject was murdered at this time."

Frisby also confirmed that a .357 caliber handgun, the type of weapon believed to have been used in the shootings, was found in the Baldwin vehicle when investigators arrived at the scene.

New parking at elementary

Prestonsburg Fire Marshal Larry Adams announced this week that parents who drop off or pick up children at Prestonsburg Elementary School now have a designated spot to park, thanks to the cooperation of the Save-More grocery store.

Adams explained that in the past, parents have commonly double and triple parked cars on Highlands Avenue behind the school, blocked fire lanes in front of the school and endangered children by parking opposite the school on North Lake Drive.

representing Floyd County Parents reinstate Stumbo in her writing profor Better Schools, submitted seven requests to board members and asked for a response to eight requests submitted at the February board meeting.

Education activists Dolores Smith and Jean Rosenberg sat with Hayes at the speakers' table and also asked that the board respond to the group's requests Superintendent Ron Hager first told Hayes it would take "an hour or two" to respond to the group. Chairman Ray Campbell told Hager to "go ahead" and respond to the requests.

Last month's first request was for the board members, as a group, to tour all the school facilities in the county to get an idea of conditions at the schools.

Hager told Hayes that the school system had 120 facilities and said the board members could not get together without calling a special meeting.

Later in the board meeting, board member Dr. Mary Hall said she thought the board should call "a very special meeting" and tour the schools.

"It's sorely needed," Hall said. "We need to take a whole day and visit the schools. We need to set our priorities and it doesn't do any good to sit up here and talk about our schools if we don't know what they look like."

The board did not set a date for the tour.

Other questions by the parents' group that Hager addressed involved basic needs and repairs at schools; implementing band and art classes for all grades; and a survey to see what supplies are needed at schools to ensure equality in all county schools.

Hayes had asked that all schools have bathroom doors, toilet paper and soap. She told the board some children had developed intestinal problems because they didn't feel comfortable using a bathroom with no doors.

Hager said the system's maintenance department was working to make necessary repairs at the schools.

Hayes also asked that Wheelwright High School teacher Carol Stumbo be put in charge of the county's language arts program and, that the group was "amazed" she had the position taken away from her for "political reasons.'

Hager said he disagreed with Hayes and that "nothing had been done politically" to remove Stumbo from the program. Hager explained that the program began under a two year contract and once that program ran out, the board did not have enough funds to continue it.

Carol Stumbo's writing progra

gram.

"I feel she lost her program because of her participation in the teachers' strike," McCoy said. "I would ask that you give it back to her."

Hager told McCoy he would take his recommendation in earnest.

Other speakers included Beatrice Jacobs from Harold Elementary, who asked that a plan to move students in grades 6-8 to Betsy Layne Elementary be cancelled because parents "do not want it."

Moving the students was one consideration to ease overcrowding at the school.

Jacobs told the board that Harold students take great pride in their school, especially being number one in the county for attendance and test scores.

The board decided later in the meeting to take no action on moving those students.

The county's high school construction projects were also a topic of discussion by citizens addressing the board.

Tim Sizemore of Prestonsburg directed his comments concerning the new Prestonsburg High School to board member Eddie Billips.

Sizemore said if the new high was not built that it would be a disservice to the children and something that "would haunt us in the future." Sizemore told Billips that if he had any evidence of illegal activity concerning the project, he should "now come forward" with it. He said Billips has been stalling construction on the high school project.

"You claimed that the former owner of the Middle Creek site, David May, would reap a windfall for the coal," Sizemore said. "That obstacle has fallen when May relinquished those rights. But, you Mr. Billips voted against accepting it. Political ghosts should be put in the closet and we should move forward. Not only in District One, but in all districts."

Billips declined to respond to Sizemore's statements during the meeting, but he said he would respond to anyone wanting to discuss the issue after the meeting.

Comments concerning the Left Beaver High School construction project were made by former Wheelwright Mayor Elmer Ferguson. Ferguson said there were many rumors circulating about the project and he wanted to know if it was in jeopardy. He also asked why Prestonsburg could not be an independent district again, especially with all the controversy surrounding the project.

Hager told Ferguson he had not heard the rumors about the Left

"We've had some real problems here and the people at Save-More were more than happy to work with us to solve those problems," said Adams. "Now, parents who pick up and drop off kids at this school can park in the lot behind Save-More. The kids don't have to cross any streets and they will know where to look for their parents."

Prestonsburg Elementary School students were given a letter to take home to their parents explaining the new procedure. Many parents were observed using the Save-More parking lot the following day.

"We still are going to have a few people who will block the fire lanes and park out in the street," said Adams, "but after we feel they have had enough time to know about the parking lot, we may just go down and

Bratton said he had not been paid in 15 months for work performed at the two schools. He said Tuesday the board owes him $1,052 for work at Adams and $9,688 at Duff.

At the board meeting, Bratton asked the board why he has not been paid and, if problems exist at these schools, why he hasn't been informed.

Superintendent Ron Hager told Bratton Tuesday that he had not fulfilled his contract obligation and that problems do exist at the school.

"If there are problems, tell me what needs to be done," Bratton said. "That's why I came down here."

"If the board owes you for services performed, you will be paid," Hager said. "But, you haven't done your job."

Adams Middle School architect Randall Burchett told Bratton he had not finished correcting problems found after the school was inspected.

Bratton said he had contacted the construction manager at Adams, Ervin Akers, and he said Akers said he had "signed off" on the job.

"I talked to you, Randy, about a month ago and you said there were no problems," Bratton said. "I called the people at the state and they said there were no problems."

Hager told Bratton that he had not filled with sand the area in the parking lot at Adams where the sprinkler pipes were laid with sand.

"We have to make sure you've done your job and that the taxpayers' money has been spent right," Hager said.

As Bratton was leaving the meeting, Adams principal Thomas Tackett told Bratton, "If that parking lot sinks, it's going to be your fault." Bratton told Tackett, "I'll stand behind any work I do and I'll post a bond on any of my jobs.'

Burchett said Thursday that the board had approved Bratton's invoice "about a month ago" and that it may Burchett did say there was a "possibility" that the parking lot could sink and he would probably ask Bratton to post an extended two-year bond on his work. He said Bratton was made aware of the problems in a meeting about 5-6 months ago.

Bratton said Thursday that two meetings were held after the one Burchett referred to and the situation had been corrected.

"I came down there myself and made sure those problems were corrected," Bratton said. "And, I said at Tuesday's meeting I would post an extended bond if the contractor who did the fill work would do the same. But, they didn't seem to want to talk about that."

Bratton said he had to put the sprinkler pipes in the parking lot area because the floor at the school "had dropped about a foot" while the system was being installed.

"I knew something was wrong because our pipes weren't staying where we put them," Bratton said. "Besides, the area where we installed the pipes was sand anyway."

Bids

Superintendent Ron Hager told Reynolds the board is waiting for an attorney general's opinion and an opinion from the Kentucky School Board Association's attorney on the proposal.

The Floyd County School Administrators Association submitted a proposal dated March 5 asking that it be recognized as organization, with payroll deductions for payment of dues to be authorized by the board of education.

The association asked in the proposal that the extended employment work year for administrators not be changed; that the board adopt a policy of normal attrition for reduction of administrative staff if necessary; that any base salary increase for administrators be the same as any increase for school teachers; that administrators have the right to participate in the $10,000 term life insurance program offer to teachers; and that assistant principals be employed for all schools having an enrollment of 500 or more students.

The administrators' proposal was not discussed by the board at Tuesday's meeting.

Reynolds also asked the board to reconsider returning to a half-hour extended school day on April 8 because the extended day would have an adverse effect on school's tutorial programs. The board did not respond to the request.

On a request from the Kentucky Opry, the board agreed to let the organization begin searching for talented students in the school system for performances at Jenny Wiley Theater this summer.

Opry director Billie Jean Osborne said in a letter to board that she is working with music teachers in the county to find students to put together a musical entitled, "Friends."

Osborne outlined objectives of the proposal which include enhancing the music program in Floyd County schools; to let students choose, stage and direct a musical production coinciding with everyday school subjects; and noting that Kentucky Opry was started in the Floyd County schools.

In other action Tuesday, the board: ·Approved the submission of writing program grants for Allen Central High School for $16,900; Wheelwright High School and Adams Middle School for $25,000 each.

The latest proposal for a new Prestonsburg High School, if it proves feasible physically and fiscally, could be the period at the end of a long sentence and a compromise pleasing to all.

Given the history of the school controversy, though, it probably won't.

As Honest Abe said, you can't please all the people all the time. But, if we may borrow another time-honored phrase, perhaps it's time to give "peace" a chance.

The most recent new school suggestion- and it is just a suggestion- appears at first glance to be a have-yourcake-and-eat-it-too solution to two of the most often voiced concerns relating to the on-going debate

First, it proposes that a new high school be built.

Secondly, it proposes that a new high school be built in Prestonsburg.

Either side of the high school debate can claim success with this approach. Those who have opposed renovation of the existing high school will win, and those who have opposed relocating the school outside of Prestonsburg will win.

Few arguments have the opportunity to come to such a reasonable conclusion.

First I would like to salute the largest force of volunteers ever assembled at one time, and the magnificent job they have done in the Persian Gulf. We needed them and they came through for us. Until we need them again, where do they stand? Well, there is also another force of volunteers right here on the homefront.

As a normal rule they don't assemble in such a large force to be seen by the eyes of the public. But, when we need them they are there to do a job - they do the job very well. This ability to do that job comes from hours of training and self sacrifice on their part. It is a proven fact that if you give these volunteers the tools and equipment required to do their job they will do it without remorse of self-sacrifice of themselves or their family.

There are volunteer fire departments, rescue squads, family crisis centers, food pantries, neighborhood watch programs, candy stripers, Red Cross volunteers, and the list goes on. All of these are run by volunteers men, women, and children not so much unlike you and I.

is some people think these volunteers get paid. Well, in a way I suppose they do. Not with money but from the good feeling from the final results of their efforts. These people are not interested in money payment; a simple "thank you" will do nicely.

Then what do they want with this money they keep asking for, you ask? Yes, this seems to be the only thing that the public looks at. Questions like, what's this going to cost me? Why should I give money to a volunteer fire department?

The only thing they do is wake me up in the middle of the night with all those old red lights and sirens. They could have let me sleep. I am not concerned about someone else's house they should have been more careful. I know it ain't my house and even if it was, I would rather it burn ner of Floyd County) suffer likewise all the way down than to leave such a at the hands of Thacker-Grigsby mess. If my house gets on fire I can get all my old pictures and heirlooms out before it burns. "My family"? Oh! We will wake up in time to get dressed and escape. Anyway my insurance will pay me much more than this old house is worth. Another question may be: why should I give money to a rescue squad? I drive careful, and I have never had an accident in my life. Of course, I watch out for the other guy and I sure offices represent toll calls for us, ain't going near the water. How about this one? Why should I give money to those little old candy stripers. They will probably wind up buying flowers for some old person that is too sick to enjoy them and they will probably die pretty soon anyway. That money will just have been wasted. This all seems pretty harsh, doesn't it? Please!! Let's stop and examine ourselves. Just where do we fit in all this? Are we the ones that think it always happen to someone else so someone else will just have to pay for it? Or are we the ones who will give that quarter out of the ash tray that would probably otherwise have wound up in the garbage can with the cigarette butts anyway? Or are we the ones who will buy the chicken and dumpling dinners that in fact are quite good, not to mention economical, since we've got to eat anyway? As for you economist, I think you will find that your support for these volunteers will render quite a sizable yield on your investment. Remember it is also tax deductable.

from many complaints we have received from Louisville, Frankfort, Lexington and Richmond residents, that representatives of "Citizen Action" have claimed to be "working with" Kentuckians For The Commonwealth, Tom FitzGerald of the Kentucky Resources Council.

We deeply resent what we believe to be a misuse of our organizations' and Tom FitzGerald's names to solicit funds for an organization that has no affiliation with and is not "working with" Kentuckians For The Commonwealth, the Kentucky Resources Council or Mr. FitzGerald. We have repeatedly warned Citizen Action that our names are not to be used to solicit money for that organization, but the practice has continued. We believe that our organizations' names are being "dropped" at the door in an effort to gain credibility in order to raise money by abusing our names.

We consider the practice distasteful and misleading, and encourage any of your readers who contributed to Citizen Action because they were I guess the most ironic part of it all led to believe that the organization was affiliated or "working" with Kentuckians For The Commonwealth, Tom FitzGerald or the Kentucky Resources Council, to demand a refund of their contribution.

This letter is to express publicly my sympathy to Pat Conn of Stanville. I, too, (along with a number of other people in our "forgotten" cor-Telephone Company, located in Knott County, which is our telephone service supplier. Therefore, every call we make to McDowell, Wheelwright, Maytown, Martin, Allen, and Prestonsburg is a toll call. Now, when one lives in Floyd County, where else would one call for any kind of service but one of these locations, and of course, as Pat mentioned, all county except for the recently listed toll free line to the sheriff's office. Bless him! What makes us even more resentful is the fact that we were originally on South Central Bell and were sold out to Thacker-Grigsby. Seventeen of us at that time appeared before the Utility Regulatory Commission, now Public Service Commission, but to no avail. I have a file of correspondence several inches thick over a period of years containing letters to and from Federal and State legislators, all legislators promising to try to do something. This too, seems to have been a waste of effort, time and postage, for my telephone bills continue to be "outrageously" high, with much over half covering local (incounty) calls. My most recent bill was thirty plus dollars for just such calls. In this world there is much injustice. Of this we are all aware. I certainly consider having to pay for incounty calls just that-not only injustice but bare-faced discrimination against those who live on the fringes of the county. WE ARE STILL FLOYD COUNTIANS. I found that out just recently when I got my property tax bills. I feel that our legislators have let us down for not getting this problem alleviated. Remember, we do still have a vote! I shall be glad to join with any group who feels that something might be accomplished and will lend whatever support I can. My telephone number is 447-2974, but don't forget IT WILL COST YOU TO CALL ME! So, cheer up, Pat, you are not alone!

If you can't annoy somebody, there is little point in writing.

Sugar-free PTA

Cookies, cupcakes and candy may be the traditional fare, but the national PTA wants to sell its members and the public a whole new menu.

In its annual legislative conference this week in Washington, the national parent-teacher group is serving up hot potatoes instead of sweets. The group's legislative agenda includes support for handgun control, a national ban on paddling, opposition to national standardized student testing, support for warning labels on alcoholic beverage advertisements, backing for a national health policy to ensure medical care for all children, and support for enactment of a family medical leave act.

The PTA shift from bake sales to politics appears to have had a positive influence on the growth of associations nationwide. In Kentucky, PTA membership has doubled in the past 10 years.

Don't look for the cupcakes to disappear, PTA fundraisers will always be around. But, with this issue-oriented approach, the icing on the PTA cake is likely to be more substance and less sugar in the future, and that's just what the doctor ordered.

On normal bereavement

But, for the unquiet heart and brain, A use in measured language lies. The sad mechanic exercise. Like dull narcotics, numbing pain.-Tennyson

Death is part of life, and bereavement, likewise, is an inescapable part of the human condition. Grief is the normal, common and necessary reaction to the loss of a highly valued individual or object. I mention the latter because grief is experienced in many instances of loss other than death. Examples of object loss could include the loss of one's home, marriage, job, state of health, or social status.

people resolve their grief. It is a normal, adapting process. In other words, it is a reaction over a period of time which progresses through several stages of changing emotions and adjustments with the end result being that the bereaved person regains the capacity to have new relationships and form new attachments. As such, normal grieving should be encouraged and usually is resolved within a few months to a year without professional help. The following is an outline of the stages of grieving which are normal and expectable.

Shock and Disbelief-This early, acute phase can be incapacitating but normally does not last more than a few weeks to a month. Commonly the person feels numb, slowed down, confused, unable to think clearly, concentrate, or make decisions. He or she may lose all sense of the passage of time.

the grieving person is flooded with memories, perhaps experiences a sense of guilt in addition to that of loss and expresses his or her grief by crying and talking about the lost person or object.

Restitution or Reorganization-In this stage the person comes to terms with the loss by continuing to mourn while at the same time idealizing the memory of the lost loved one. New habits begin to replace the old shared ones and, at the end of this phase, new relationships and attachments are formed.

Unfortunately, there are ways by which the grief process can be disturbed. Most often it is the individuals' unwillingness to suffer the pain of mourning. This is not really sur-equally unsurprising then, that people recently bereaved often seek the immediate relief of tranquilizers from psychiatrists and general practitioners as if the pain of loss could be as quickly alleviated as a headache or hemorrhoids. Psychic pain, however, is not so easily dispelled. Ironically, it is often this very treatment which, by interfering with the normal process, can result in the complication of bereavement.

Since feelings don't disappear by being ignored or buried, the process of grieving can be postponed but the need cannot be removed. The pain, sadness and anger remain inside until it s faced and felt. Most commonly the complication which develops is clinical depression. Depression is a disturbance in mood and physical function that is a pathological extension of grief. It is related to grief but it is not the same. In fact, the early Mourning is the process by which phase of grief looks very much like depression in that the person has difficulty in sleeping, eating, concentrating, feeling a lack of energy and so on. However, depression is not self-limiting. It does not resolve itself after a month or so but goes far beyond grief in duration, intensity and severity and nearly always requires professional help. Other complications can involve a variety of stress-related physical and emotional disorders also requiring treatment.

What then should be done? I think there are two answers in the passage by Tennyson above. Tennyson responded to the death of his dearest friend, Arthur Hallam, by writing the poem "In Memoriam" from which the passage is taken. In it he is referring to the therapeutic value of creating poetry as a way of "numbing (the) pain" he felt. We often provide notebooks and recommend journal writing to our patients here at Methodist Awareness of Pain-In this stage Hospital. Writing can do more than simply anesthetize the sufferer; it can also help to cope. You say, "not everyone is capable of writing poetry." That's true, but language need not be poetry to be an effective therapeutic tool. Talking about one's feelings is an essential step toward recovery and any creative act can be a way of overcoming the state of helplessness, which is a part of depression, as well as a way of expressing emotion. So instead of taking narcotics we strongly recommend talking and talking solace in memories and constructive activity. The consequence of not facing the pain of loss now is that the fear of such pain can turn into a lifelong, self-imposed deprivation of relationships and new sources of personal happiness. Re-

Prestonsburg attorney appointed to task force

Karen Alfono, a Prestonsburg attorney with Appalachian Research and Defense, has been appointed to a task force to deal with improving Kentucky's system for dealing with domestic violence crime.

Declaring that "we can no longer tolerate having women at risk and entire families being torn apart, Kentucky's Attorney General Fred Cowan announced the formation of the task force.

"It is clear that our criminal justice and community service systems need change. We are not meeting the challenge of this terrible crime that strikes innocent victims of all ages," Cowan said.

The 35-member Task Force on Domestic Violence Crime will work quickly seeking both emergency recommendations and long-range solutions to domestic violence. The task force will include prosecutors, judges, legislators, law enforcement personnel, victim service agencies including the Kentucky Domestic Violence Association, and other concerned citizens.

The task force will be co-chaired by District Judges Julia Adams of Winchester and Stanley Billingsley of Carrollton.

Cowan says it is estimated that one in ten women in Kentucky falls victim to abuse by a spouse or partner.

Chaffin tours fallout shelter during seminar

Regional Coordinator David Chaffin of State Disaster and Emergency Services (DES), and Dr. Henry Hirsch of the University of Kentucky's Albert B. Chandler Medical Center examined a 1960's vintage fallout shelter water container during a recent "Civil Defense Systems, Programs and Policies" seminar in Frankfort. Sponsored by KyDES, the four-day Federal Emergency Management Agency course addressed U.S. civil defense history and current status as well as a comparison of national civil defense program worldwide.

SUPPOR

"Last year alone in Kentucky, some 11,000 cases of domestic violence were investigated, and we know the actual number of victims was much, much higher."

The task force will begin working immediately and will take testimony on various aspects of domestic violence at its first meeting March 20. "Through the testimony of victims, as well as experts, I will expect the task force to make solid recommendations that will address the entire range of issues relating to domestic violence. Foremost among the considerations will be protection for adult and child victims, the arrest and punishment of offenders, and crime prevention," Cowan says.

The task force will hold at least five work sessions over the next 90 days. Its members will divide into working committees that will tackle specific problem areas.

To help identify and prioritize needed improvements, there will be an immediate statewide survey of policies and procedures to evaluate Kentucky's responsiveness to domestic violence. The survey results will be analyzed and published by the Statistical Analysis Center within the Office of Attorney General.

Cowan says the task force may be unique not just in having members representing ever aspect of the system that deals with domestic violence, but also in that it will address immediate needs and implement emergency solutions while working within the current law and system.

'However, we must push even further to make the systematic changes and legislative reforms that will make Kentucky a national leader in protecting our women and children.'

Cowan, whose Victims' Advocacy Division assists victims and works with other agencies to prevent family violence, says it takes a tragic toll on children. "Children exposed to violence in the home are at greater risk of becoming abused or a violent abuser themselves later in life, to experience learning and mental health problems, and to abuse drugs and alcohol," Cowan says.

The public is invited to attend the first working session of the Task Force on Domestic Violence Crime. It will be held Wednesday, March 20, 9 a.m., Room 109, Capitol Annex, in Frankfort.

Employment taxes for household help family, chances are you play a lot of roles. You may be a spouse, parent, teacher, car-pool driver, employee, coach, and volunteer - all in one day. At some point, you may very well decide that you need some help. So you hire someone to help you at home, perhaps with child care. But before you let out a sigh of relief, you should know that you may have just taken on yet another role.

When you hire someone to work in your home, you may become an employer in the eyes of the Internal Revenue Service, cautions the Kentucky Society of CPAs. As an employer, you have a number of tax responsibilities. Here are some of the most common tax-related obligations you may face.

If you pay cash wages of $50 or more in a calendar quarter to a household employee, you are liable for paying Social Security taxes on his or her wages. The basic criteria for a household employee is that he or she provides services in your home. Your household help might be a babysitter, housekeeper, cook, maid, or a companion for the sick or elderly.

Keep in mind that your household help doesn't have to work full time to trigger your new role as an employer. A maid who works once a month could be considered a household employee if you pay him or her $50 or more in wages during a calendar quarter. These rules do not apply if you employ someone through an agency and the agency is responsible for who does the work and how it is

The Social Security tax applies only to cash wages. The value of food, lodging or other noncash benefits is not included when computing the Social Security tax. The Social Security tax due is divided equally between you and your employee. Although you and your employee are both required to pay the tax, remember that you are the employer and it is your responsibility to see that the

If you're part of a two-income government gets the money. If you should choose to pay your employee's share of Social Security taxes yourself, the amount you pay for the employee is considered extra taxable income to him or her.

As an employer, you file Form 942, "Employer's Quarterly Tax Return for Household Employees," with your check for the tax due. The due date for filing Form 942 is the end of the month following the end of the calendar quarter for which Social Security taxes are being paid. For example, for wages paid in January, February and March, you must file Form 942 and pay the tax due by April 30. If you own a business as a sole proprietor, you may include your household employee on Form 941, "Employer's Quarterly Federal Tax Return," rather than filing a separate Form 942.

You will probably be subject to the federal unemployment tax (FUTA) if you paid your household employee wages of $1,000 or more during a calendar quarter. In other words, not only are you responsible for your household worker's employment, but also for his or her possible unemployment as well. FUTA is imposed on you as the employer. You must not collect or deduct it from the wages of your employee.

You will probably be required to pay state unemployment taxes. If so, your FUTA tax may be substantially reduced by the amount of state unemployment tax you are required to pay on your employee's wages. When you hire a household employee for whom you are required to pay FUTA tax, you should contact your state's employment-tax office for information.

Every employer must file an annual tax return on Form 940 or 940 EZ by January 31 following the close of the calendar year for which the tax is due. If you owe (but have not yet deposited) more than $100 in FUTA tax at the end of any quarter, you must make a deposit by the end of the next month.

As an employer of household help, you are not required to withhold income tax from your employee's wages, but you can do so if you and your employee agree to this arrangement. Income tax withholding is reported and paid with Form 942, the same form used to report and pay Social Security taxes.

If you agree to withhold income tax from your employee's wages, you should ask your employee to complete a W-4 form, "Employee's Withholding Allowance Certificate." You will also need a copy of the IRS's "Employer's Tax Guide," which explains how to calculate the amount of withholding based on the employee's income and the information on the W-4.

Note that the amount of wages on which you withhold income tax may be different than the amount subject to the Social Security tax. For income tax purposes, you generally must count the value of food, lodging, clothing or other noncash items provided to an employee, as well as cash wages paid. However, the value of food and lodging provided in your home and for your convenience is generally not considered income.

You have one more responsibility: you are required to give your employee a W-2 form by January 31, showing compensation paid during the year and the amount of taxes withheld. Copies of the W-2 form must be filed with the Social Security Administration by the end of February. Generally, an employee who earns less than $21,000 and supports a dependent child is eligible for the earned income credit (EIC). As an employer, you must pay the EIC in advance if the employee requests it.

For more information, consult your own CPA or call the Kentucky Society toll free (800) 292-1754 or in Louisville 589-9239 to receive, in writing, the names of three CPAs in your area.

The campaign to expose the dangers of Prozac was initiated by the Church of Scientology's Citizens Commission on Human Rights (CCHR) following the mass-murder/ suicide perpetrated by Prozac user Joseph Wesbecker in Louisville, Kentucky, late in 1989.

According to the Jefferson County coroner, Wesbecker had a high therapeutic level of Prozac in his blood at the time he murdered eight former co-workers, wounded 12 others, and committed suicide at the Standard Gravure Printing Company in September.

Throughout 1990, revelations that disfigurement to murder and suicide, hundreds of others had experienced intense, violent suicidal reactions to Prozac, many of which culminated in media tumble which burst the drug's

> · In December, Freedom magazine ran a cover story on Prozac which chronicled the devastating year for Prozac; enumerated the other destructive drugs which Eli Lilly previously marketed including LSD, the deadly arthritis drug Oraflex, the cancerand birth defect-inducing drug DES, Lilly's heroin elixer, the extremely addictive drug methadone; and exposing the unhealthy bed-fellow link between the drug manufacturer and drug company regulators.

> . By the end of the year, a total of 25 lawsuits had been filed against Prozac's manufacturer charging damaging effects from Prozac ranging from impotence and permanent

'This psychiatric drug is one of the most horrible poisons ever to be put on the market," said CCHR Executive Director Sanford Block. "Prozac drives people psychotic, which makes millions of dollars for psychiatrists who need mental patients to survive economically, but it's killing people and must be taken off the market immediately," he said.

Hundreds more lawsuits are expected in 1991, with many in the first few months of the new year. Block stated that if the FDA has not removed Prozac within the 6 month deadline for responding to petitions provided in the law, CCHR will file suit to compel its removal. If CCHR files suit, Prozac could be facing recall by mid-year 1991.

Child feverish? :

Think twice before giving aspirins to children

Almost every family medicine cabinet contains aspirin. Probably no other drug is used so frequently by the public. During flu epidemics, the advice given by press, radio and TV for the treatment of flu is usually to "stay in bed, drink plenty of fluid and take aspirin." This advice may be alright for some adults-but for any child under 19, it can be dangerous. This is especially true if the child may have an illness diagnosed as flu or chickenpox.

There is no doubt that aspirin is extremely effective in relieving many types of pain and discomfort in both children and adults. A doctor may recommend aspirin to relieve unpleasant symptoms while allowing an infection to either clear up by itself or prescribing other medicines and treatment to fight the infection. In certain diseases, such as rheumatic fever and rheumatoid arthritis, the doctor may prescribe aspirin specifically to control inflammation.

Every parent knows that aspirin will bring a child's temperature down when he or she has a fever. It works to reduce swelling and inflammation as well as to control fever. Fever is a warning sign that your child's body is fighting some illness.

following conditions exist:

*You suspect the child has the flu. *You think the child has chicken-pox *The child has a fever with symptoms that are pulling to you.

Aspirin given under the conditions just mentioned may bring about a disease called Reye's Syndrome. This disease although very rare can be very serious and can even cause death. Therefore, your doctor should work closely with you if there is any doubt about your child's condition. If your doctor does prescribe aspirin, follow directions carefully. Many physicians are now using acetaminophen instead of aspirin in children because of this problem.

Candy-flavored aspirin tablets which are made especially for children are useful but present other problems. This is because young children like the taste and will frequently mistake them for candy. Also, parents may give their children too many of these pills believing they are not dangerous. The truth is, they are every bit as dangerous as regular aspirin if the child takes too many of them. You must be sure to keep all forms of aspirin away from your child. Always be sure to check with your Never tell your child that medicine is candy

If, after following your doctor's directions, your child's fever or pain does not go away, call your physician back. This is important. If you think your child has gotten too much aspirin or, if there are aspirin tablets missing from the bottle, look for these signs

Does your child seem drowsy? Want to sleep a lot?

Seem to be breathing deeply? and, Fighting to get a breath of air? If your child seems to have any of these symptoms, you must contact your doctor immediately. If your doctor is unavailable, don't wait, take your child to the emergency room of the nearest hospital.

All medicines, even vitamins, should be kept out of the reach of children. Aspirin in particular should be kept in a safe place away from your child, preferably in a locked medicine cabinet. Don't forget that even a two-year-old child becomes very good at climbing, and his or her first successful attempt could be to reach the medicine cabinet.

Aspirin is a safe and useful medicine when given properly. Please check with your doctor if you have any questions.

Kentucky forces join to crack down on illegal coal mines the Eastern District of Kentucky has ioined forces with lawyers of the Department of the Interior and the Department of Labor in a program of enhanced federal law enforcement against illegal strip mining and safety violations in underground coal mines in the region.

Announcement of the combined effort came jointly from U.S. Attorney Louis DeFalaise; Interior officials Thomas L. Sansonetti, solicitor; Donald Vish, associate solicitor; and Harry M. Snyder, director of the Office of Surface Mining and Reclamation and Enforcement, and from assistant Secretary of Labor Bill Tattersall, who heads the Mine Safety and Health Administration.

Agents and attorneys from Interior, Labor and the Department of Justice have formed a task force that will combat the illegal coal mining activities, DeFalaise said. He also announced the appointment of Davis Sledd as Assistant U.S. Attorney to coordinate all task force operations involving the three departments.

The addition of Sledd to the enhanced enforcement program was hailed by Interior and Labor officials

"I applaud the strong commitment of the U.S. Attorney to the continued enforcement of mine safety laws, Tattersall said. "We in MSHA look forward to working closely with Mr. Sledd."

Whose writing is better

I usually ask Linda what she thinks of the material I write before I send it to the paper. This past week she informed me that my writing was interesting but not nearly as cute as the stories her first grade students write. I said, "But what if I don't intend to be cute?"

"You know you try to be cute all the time. First grade students do it without trying. You have to try. That's what makes their work so precious." Now, that is the very kind of encouragement a would-be writer doesn't need. It sounds like this kind of assessment: you do fairly well, but I have a room of first grade students who do much better.

I then asked Linda what she would suggest that I do about this situation. I wish I hadn't asked. She said that I tusg. Elephants are like people, they should include some of the stories are kine. They do not hrt you. Since she washes my clothes, cooks my meals, (four to six per month), and generally treats me like a prince, I decided that would be the least I could do. So here are some of her "cute" stories. Please don't tell her that they are cuter than my stories. How would it look on my resume that I lost out to first grade students in writing?

Auxier students learn silent communication

Silence may be golden, but eighth grade students at Auxier Elementary have learned that language can be found in the absence of sound.

Mrs. Ramona's students have been studying the importance of communication and have learned that communication skills are important in every aspect of their lives. They began with the importance of the written word, progressed to speeches in class, and ended their study with silent communication.

The students worked independently at first with the written work and speeches. They learned to value their interpretations.

They then placed in cooperative learning teams where they listened to a poem by Shel Silverstein called "The Meehoo with an Exactlywatt." With their team members, students had to create a Meehoo and an Exactlywatt. But students were challenged in this exercise to create through si-

Strange Enough By Tim Preston

Section

Don't mess with Maxine

Well, I've got another item for the list of strange things I have done in connection with this job. Shoplifting with police protection.

The Prestonsburg Police Department has been working with some of our area businesses to help them curb shoplifting crimes. As a part of that program, Chief Greg Hall offered to have someone come into these stores and attempt to shoplift items in order to evaluate problems at the stores.

Chief Hall called me last Friday and asked if I wanted to go shoplifting with him and Roy Roberts. I had to put it off at the time, but I thought it would be interesting so we rescheduled.

So, on Tuesday we went to three stores here in town and I attempted to fill my pockets without being noticed. I discovered one thing during this episode, I don't have the nerve to be a shoplifter.

I can't say which stores we went to but I can say this, if you are thinking about shoplifting at a store with a manager named Maxine you had better make arrangements for someone to pick you up at the jail.

Maxine's store was the first of the three stores I shoplifted at and the only store where I was caught. Credit due to Maxine and staff, they spotted me acting like a shoplifter (nervous acting, looking around for employees and so on) and gave me just enough rope to hang myself. I thought I was going to successfully rip off this store, but Maxine got me before I had a chance to get out the door.

The funny part of this is that Maxine knows me and (until Tuesday anyway) she trusted me. Maxine did not want to accuse me of shoplifting even though she had seen me pocket at least one item. In spite of that she did her job, stopped me and confirmed that I had indeed taken something I hadn't paid for. When Chief Hall and Roy came out of the back room she realized that I was the planted shoplifter she was looking for. No breach of trust afterall, but I'm sure the ladies in that store will be watching me very closely until the day I die. The second funny part about all of this is that my heart rate, breathing and general mental state were no more relaxed than if I actually were out to rip off this store. When Maxine caught me my hands were shaking, my knees were knocking (and felt just like jello) and my mouth was dry as the desert. Think about this, I knew that I did not get to keep anything I got away with and I knew that I would not get in any trouble if I was caught. In spite of that 1 subconsciously knew that what I was doing was wrong and I reacted like any thief would have. Truly a strange experience. Things got a little easier at our next two stops. I shouldn't say easier, it's just that I didn't get caught. I was still a nervous wreck, Store number two was a cinch. I was very obvious about what I was doing and still I walked out with load of stolen goods. Store number three was a little harder because I was the only person in the store and the owner(?) was talking to me the whole time. Still I managed to pocket three items and eventually left the store undetected. Strange enough, while in the store, one of the first things that the owner/manager said was, "I remember you from the shoplifting seminar at the police station." That may have been why he didn't notice me taking items and pocketing them, but I'm not sure. Even though I did get away with some merchandise at those stores, I think it will be harder to shoplift at those places now. They know what to look for and more importantly they know that anyone could be a shoplifter. So, if you are someone who likes to shop at the old five finger discount, I'll say it one more time.

Two Eastern Kentucky seniors have become the first Morehead State University students to do their student teaching abroad under an exchange program with Sunderland Polytechnic, Sunderland, England. Beverly Fields of Whitesburg, left, and Melanie Reed of Prestonsburg took time before their departure to talk with Shirley Blair, MSU's student teaching coordinator, about the exchange program. Smile Awhile

Country cuisine

My husband and I have opposing views on today's food versus the quality of food we ate when we were children. And when I say opposing views, I'm talking heated discussions that would find weaker individuals in the local emergency room. In laymen's terms, we're talking homicidal.

Whenever my husband mentions that he would like to have soup beans and cornbread, he resents my suggesting that Arby's has a wonderful salad and bean soup bar.

"What's wrong with fixing them at home?" he demands.

"Nothing, except I use safflower oil, pepper, and no-salt salt. You always say they're tasteless."

"They're not only tasteless, they're atrocious!

And why in the world would I go to the trouble of preparing homemade hamburgers when we have the pleasure of sinking our teeth into a Dave's Double Deluxe or the world famous Big Mac?"

"I want some greasy fried potatoes," he announced one afternoon.

"You know that's not good for you,"Ireminded him."Anyway, have you tried those curly fries with cheese from Rax?"

"I suppose that's good for me?" he asked.

They're cooked in 100% vegetable oil. You can't get much healthier than that."

"But I want some real food!" he exclaimed.

That's when J.R. got into the discussion by saying he could go for some real food, too. A pepperoni pizza.

"That's not real food, J.R.," Jimmie chided. "Real food is breaded pork chops, fried apples, mashed potatoes and gravy, and peach cobbler.

"What's that stuff?" J.R. asked. "Don't ask her!" Jimmie shouted. "She certainly doesn't have a clue."

"That's unfair, Jimmie. I used to fix that stuff, but you said it wasn't good for you, and that we didn't need it anyway.'

'That's because it never tasted like what I was used to eating."

"Do you want to say that again over depositions" I queried.

"I don't mean it wasn't tasty. It just wasn't like Mother used to make." "Aha!" I exclaimed. "Now we're asked. getting to the point."

"You're blowing this out of pro- growing up J.R." portion, Sara," he said, as he started dodging the flying pots and pans. something extra that I can't quite put my finger on."

"Do you want me to tell you what that little something extra was!" I exploded as saliva foamed at my lips. "It was LARD! Fat-inducing, artery clogging, heart disease infested pig lard!

"Quick, J.R.! Get the strait-jacket, she's finally gone over the edge!" "Isn't it enough that I try to prepare low-calorie, life-saving meals for you and our family?" I cried.

"I understand, Honey," he said, soothingly. "I just was hoping the nutritious meals you fixed would taste more like, you know, food or something similar to it anyway."

'What's wrong with pizza?" J.R.

"We didn't have pizza when I was ther?"

"I know," he dejectedly said. "You also didn't have T.V., motor scoot-"Mother's food always had that little ers, Nintendo, or a money tree growing in the back yard. You also walked to and from piano lessons, and always did what you were told. But, it a lot."

'Sara, I know you and J.R. think for dessert. I can hardly wait.'

I'm old-fashioned, and I'll concede the fact that I might be, but I still believe the old way of cooking food was better. Why don't you just try cooking a little like your own mother did?'

"That's perfectly all right with me, but I don't think you can survive on vienna's and chicken noodle soup?"

'Is that what she fixed?" he asked. "Only because that's what we liked," I answered.

"You mean she didn't cook ei-

"Of course she cooked. Sometimes we even had bean with bacon soup and boiled ham sandwiches.'

"You win, Sara," Jimmie said, as he rummaged through the freezer for a Healthy Choice dinner. "And I sure Dad, we've got pizza today, and I like hope you have some of those tasty rice cakes with marshmallow cream

Gamma Phi Beta is chartered

Gamma Phi Beta, the newest social sorority at Morehead State University, recently received its charter and a plaque listing the names of the 41 founding members of the organization. Morehead State University students Sherry Lynn Branham and Robin Renee Roope, both of Floyd County, were recently initiated into the Epsilon Sigma chapter of Gamma Phi Beta sorority.

Branham, a senior sociology and corrections major, is the daughter of Charlie and Rizzie Branham of Wheelwright. She is a member of the Student Correctional Association and the Student Association of Social Workers.

Roope is a senior special education major. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald H. Roope of Wayland and president of the sorority.

The only chapter in the state, Gamma Phi Beta joined six other social sororities on MSU's campus earlier this year. To be eligible for membership, students must be enrolled on a full-time basis and have at least a 2.0 grade point average.

Apple power

Power is not always determined by size, and Allen Elementary has proven that hard work pays off big. Allen Elementary, with an enrollment of 358 students, collected $350,00 in Food City receipts to earn an Apple computer through Food City's Apples for Students program. Elleen Scoville, school coordinator, said representatives of the food chain were impressed with the schools achievement. Scoville said the school was able to order "the biggest computer, a printer, and oodles of software." Pictured with Scoville are her son, Mark, and Allen Elementary's principal, Daniel Branson. Floyd Home Ec. students invited to attend PEP

Morehead State University's Department of Home Economics will host a Personal Enrichment Program (PEP) for high school students Friday, March 29, and Floyd County students have been invited to attend.

Letters have gone to more than 80 high schools in Kentucky and Southern Ohio inviting students of home economics and related areas along with their teachers to spend that day on the MSU campus.

The day will include presentations by MSU faculty and students, miniclasses, special entertainment and other activities. Dr. Charles Derrickson, dean of the College of Applied Sciences and Technology, will be the speaker for a luncheon which will be prepared by the home economics faculty and students.

PEP is designed to provide high school students with an inside look at the programs and job opportunities within the home economics field, while offering them broad information on the total college experience.

Usually without pain in its early stages, scoliosis can advance rapidly during the growing years. curves that are moderate to severe may continue to advance in adulthood. Left untreated, scoliosis can cause obious physical deformity, pain, arthritic symptoms, heart and lung complications and can also limit activities.

Frequent signs of scoliosis are a prominent shoulder blade, uneven hip and shoulder levels, unequal distance between arms and body and clothes that do not hang right.

This 30 second screening for your child could prevent an adulthood filled with pain. Scoliosis awareness can make a lifetime of difference. Please attend.

For their fine showing in the girls' 15th Region basketball tournament at Sheldon Clark. Both teams advanced to the semifinals before losing out. You were exceptional representatives of the 58th District. Thanks to Coach Cassandra Keathley and Coach Bonita Compton for a great season.

DOES A CHANGE NEED TO BE MADE?

With the strong showing of the Pike County, Johnson County and Martin County basketball teams in the recently concluded season, the question needs to be asked if a change in scheduling is needed in Floyd County. In Pike County the boys' and girls' programs are scheduled on separate nights. That allows their junior varsity teams to get more games in and makes them stronger down the long run.

We need to make the change in our county to allow our underclassmen more time on the floor and less time on the bench. Let the girls' teams play their own schedule and more junior varsity games. I know they fear not being able to play before any crowds, but they can build their own crowd by putting together a winning team. More playing time on the floor for their bench will make for a stronger program.

JAMERSON HAS TRACK PROGRAM ON

TRACK AS SEASON NEARS

Allen Central track and field coach Dewey Jamerson says that over 70 athletes have come out for Allen Central's revived track and field team. Jamerson was successful in starting track in his first venture at Allen Central and last year at Betsy Layne High School.

Back at Allen Central, Jamerson has issued the call for participants in the upcoming season and many have responded. Among the competitors this season for the Rebels will be Brian Wallen, who has an excellent chance of winning the state title in discus. Wallen has been at it since his grade school days when Forrest Hughes gave him a discus and told him to start throwing.

Wallen has come close before, finishing second in the state. The Rebel thrower has had throws of over 150 feet.

I really like attending the track and field meets held at the Bob Amos Park at Pikeville. Jamerson got me into covering the regional one year and I am hooked. I look forward to a good season for the Rebels and I wish every high school would field a team. A lot of kids may not be able to play football or basketball, but a lot of them can run track.

Bryant closes career with 23 McDowell No Match For Lady Cards In Region Semifinal Loss, 65-47

When the McDowell Lady Daredevils dropped a 65-47 semifinal loss to Sheldon Clark in the 15th Region tournament at Sheldon Clark, an outstanding basketball player closed out her high school career for the Left Beaver School - Lori Bryant. Bryant scored well over 1,000 points in her four years at McDowell and established herself as one of the top girl players to come out of the 58th District

However, Bryant, in scoring 23 points in her final game, was not enough as the Lady Devils fell to the much taller Lady Cardinals. Jenny Slone tossed in 14 points in the loss.

Turnovers hurt the Lady Daredevils as they were guilty of turning the ball over 19 times in the game. Cold shooting added to the Lady Devils' woes as they only scored four field goals the entire second half and three came in the final minute of the contest. McDowell did shoot 20 free throws in the second half and connected on 17 of them.

It was all Sheldon Clark at the onset, as the Lady Cardinals followed the scoring of their All-State and Miss Bowen. Bowen scored 22 points in the game in a effortless outing. Bowen, unofficially had seven blocked shots in the game. The Lady Card standout has already signed a letter of intent with Western Kentucky University next season.

Sheldon Clark took a 23 point lead late in the third quarter as McDowell continued to turn the ball over. The Lady Daredevils managed only five points in the third period. Jenny Slone had the only field goal and one free throw.

The Lady Cardinals rolled out early in the opening period, grabbing an 11-4 lead and extending it to a 21-12 first quarter advantage. It was 36-22 at the half. A basket by Bryant had cut the Sheldon Clark lead to five points, 24-19, and it was then that the Lady Cardinals went on a 9-2 run and opened up a 33-19 margin. A three point play by Bowen just before the buzzer set the 14 point advantage.

Sheldon Clark went on top by 30 points, 60-30, mid-way into the fourth period. McDowell hit 10 of 12 free throws, outscoring the Lady Cards

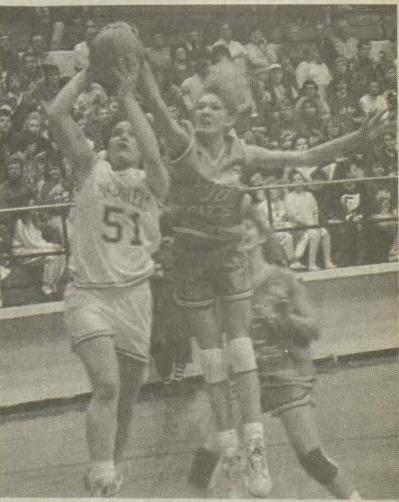

Kentucky Basketball candidate Ida 10-2, before Sheldon Clark could score again.

HOROSCOPE

March 17 through March 23

By C.C. Clark

PISCES (February 19 - March 20) This a good week to take it easy and party. Those uptight feelings you've been experiencing will melt away with some good old-fashioned fun.

ARIES (March 21 - April 19) Meeting new people will bring you great joy. This is also a good time to take up a new hobby or activity. The act of doing something will give you a feeling of accomplishment.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20) It is important that you concentrate on career concerns this week. When times get tough, make sure you have your facts straight. Be prepared to confront opponents.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20) Stick with what you know this week and things will work out for the best. Complete projects you have already started rather than undertaking new ones.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22) You will need an outlet for your creative energy this week. Put all of your excess energy to work doing good for those who are less fortunate than you.

LEO (July 23 - August 22) It seems you are surrounded by a great deal of tension. Avoid conflict because no good will come of it. Stay calm and know this difficult time will pass quickly.

VIRGO (August 23 - September 22) Take a close look at yourself this week. Certain areas of your life haven't been what you expected, but the fact is, you have the power to change it all if you want.

LIBRA (September 23 - October 22) Finances take priority. Depending on how well you manage your money, you could be in for a big windfall. Don't spend it before you actually have it in your hands, though.

SCORPIO (October 23 - November 21) A friend needs you to lend a helping hand this week. Give them all the support you can and listen carefully. You will actually benefit from helping this person.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 - December 21) Don't let friends and relatives get you down this week. If necessary, take off for some time on your own and think about what is really most important to you.

CAPRICORN (December 22 - January 19) You will inspire one who is close to you. Your wise words could change this person's life dramatically. Be careful not to get too involved with this person.

AQUARIUS (January 20 - February 18) Don't let your emotions get the better of you this week. Keep your head together and rely on others to pick up on some of the extra work load that has you bogged down.

10:05 D MOVIE: And I Alone Survived

Patrick Swayze's talents

By Polly Vonetes

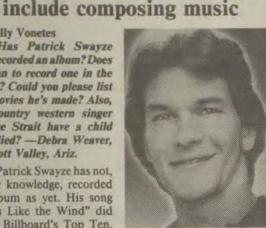

Q: Has Patrick Swayze ever recorded an album? Does he plan to record one in the future? Could you please list the movies he's made? Also, did country western singer George Strait have a child who died? -Debra Weaver, Prescott Valley, Ariz.

A: Patrick Swayze has not, to my knowledge, recorded an album as yet. His song "She's Like the Wind" did make Billboard's Top Ten. Besides dancing, singing, and acting, he composes music. I will just list his movies currently available on tape: Dirty Dancing; Grandview, U.S.A.; Red Dawn; Youngblood; Next of Kin and Road House. George Strait lost his 13year-old daughter, Jennifer, in a car accident in June 1986. She was killed instantly on her way home from a party.

Q: Why does Bea Arthur on The Golden Girls wear those "icky" looking boots? No matter whether she is casually or nicely dressed, she always has them on. Does she wear them in private life? Does she have to because of feet trouble? Her outfits would look much nicer with regular shoes. -Mrs. Lawrence Toby, Lindley, N.Y.

A: There is "no accounting for taste," and Ms. Arthur has always dressed in a very distinctive fashion. remember a few years back when she always wore a scarf draped around her neck and favored those long vests over her skirts or pants. A face-lift took care of the scarves, but I really don't know about any problems with her feet.

Q: Please settle a "triviabuster" dispute. What were the names of the characters from the series of Mod Squad? I remember Link Hayes and Julie Barnes, but who was the third? Also, what are they doing now?

Patrick Swayze

-Cam King, Miles City, Mont.

A: The Mod Squad, if you remember, premiered in 1968 and was last telecast in 1973. It starred Michael Cole as Pete Cochran, Clarence Williams III as Linc Hayes and Peggy Lipton as Julie Barnes. Peggy is currently starring on Twin Peaks. She had been married to Quincy Jones and retired from acting to raise their two daughters. Williams has been appearing in guest spots on series; he was a recent guest on Gabriel's Fire. I have not been able to find any recent news on Cole

Q: Who were the first actors to play in Dark Shadows from the '60s? -Margarita Corraly, Big Spring, Texas

A: Principal players of the original Dark Shadows included Joan Bennett, Alexandra Moltke, Jonathan Frid, Nancy Barrett, Louis Edmonds, Grayson Hall, Lara Parker, David Selby, Kate Jackson, David Henesy, Roger Davis, Anthony Georg, Jerry Lacy, Marie Wallace, Joel Crothers and the list goes on and on. Many of the performers played two roles. Please send your questions about television past and present to: Polly Vonetes, TV Pipeline, P.O. Box 17748, Fort Worth, Texas 76102-0748. an TV Listing In Jenny Yates off the bench and Jenny Wiley that opened up the Lady Rebels lead. Yates and Wiley, both just sophomores, were consistent from the outside.

Belfry fell behind 6-2 in the first quarter but tied the game at 6-6 on a basket by Hager. Hylton's basket with 10 seconds remaining tied the game at 8-8 at the first stop in a low scoring affair.

Belfry turned the ball over seven times in the third period as they trailed going into the fourth quarter 31-29. The Pirates had taken a three point lead, 29-26, their biggest of the game, but Plummer tied the game with a three-pointer. Belfry turned the ball over twice in the final 32 seconds of the third period and Claxson's basket put the Musketeers up by two.

Belfry trailed by three, 36-33, with four minutes remaining in the fourth quarter but took a one point lead on a basket by Williamson and a three point bucket by Hager. Then Claxson's field goal tied the game at 38-38 and sent the game to overtime.

Sports Commentary

By EARL COX Sports Columnist

Charles Martin Newton, better known as C.M. Newton, is not a physician, but he will go down in history as the great healer for University of Kentucky basket-

No, I'm not talking about the recruitment of Rick Pitino, who has restored UK basketball to good health. That would be enough to bring kudos to Newton, but the athletics director has done an even more impressive job of restoring the bond between the university and its former players, both football and basketball.

Last Thursday, when the Legends Luncheon was held, will go down in history as one of the great days in UK history.

Why, look there, isn't that Linville Puckett? Yep, the one and only. One of the all-time great Wildcat guards, so frisky that he and Adolph Rupp parted ways, Puckett took his talent to Kentucky Wesleyan. Once, during a team meeting, Rupp told his players, "I know where you guys are hanging out, at that dance hall called Mom's." Puckett quickly corrected him, "Coach, it's The Palms, not Mom's."

Anyway, it was Puckett, being made just as welcome as anyone varsity All-Star basketball team surprised a lot of people in the recently held East Regional Junior Pro basketball tournament held in Middlesboro. The McDowell squad, coached by Ernie Moore, placed third in the tournament and will be able to play in the state tournament in Bowling Green the weekend of March 23-25. Only the top three teams are allowed to advance.

McDowell won their first two games as they surprised a strong Madison County II team in the first round. McDowell then faced Middlesboro I team in the quarterfinals of the tournament and came away with Slone, Brent Tackett, Josh Hall, Jera big victory.

The McDowell Junior Pro junior dlesboro was supposed to be one of the top teams in the tournament. We a great job," explained Moore of his held a 23 point lead on them in the fourth quarter and were still adding."

McDowell ran into a buzzsaw in Madison County Tigers. The loss dropped McDowell to the losers' junior pro team.

Chris Moore set a new East Regional record by hitting 11 consecutive free throws in the tournament. Other team members include: Jason Tackett, Jason Shannon, Ashley Tackett, Steven Hamilton, Shannon emy Huff and Kris Branham. Newton drew the biggest laugh when he told the crowd what Rupp once told him: "Newton, you're a Shetland pony in a studhorse show!"

Ex-Wildcat Willie Rouse (excuse me, make that Mr. Will Rouse), now chairman and president of First Security Bank, was in charge of the Legends luncheon. One of his rising stars at the bank, ex-Wildcat football captain John Maddox, gave his boss a big assist in arranging the luncheon.

Beard is Still Beard

No one was happier to be back than Ralph Beard, who greeted me with a question, "Have you ever stood at the three-point line? Pardner, let me tell you, 19-9 is just an easy hook shot!"

How many could you average if you had the three-point line? Beard didn't answer, but his eyes lit up. And then came a bear hug from Alex Groza. "Hey, I read your column every week. Yes, I get your paper in California." And then Kenny Rollins asked if I had heard about his mother.

His brother Phil, who starred at Louisville, already had told me that she had suffered a fall. When she couldn't get up, she just passed the time watching the Wildcats on TV until a neighbor rescued her.

Groza, who lives in San Diego; Beard, who lives in Louisville, and Rollins, who lives in Lawrenceburg, were joined by their Fabulous Five teammate, Wallace "Wah Wah" Jones, who still lives in Lexington. The other member, Cliff Barker, was in a Florida hospital and couldn't attend.

The Best of All Time?

I spent most of the day and night answering questions. Who's that? Could he play? How good was that player? Who are the play in any era. best of all time?

too. So was Jim Line. So were McBrayer were great because all numerous others who had left were All-Americans, but I didn't UK unhappily. But best of all, see players of the twenties and Paul McBrayer was back. He was thirties. But I have seen UK the great assistant couch (maybe teams of the forties, fifties, sixtoo great for Rupp's tastes, ties, seventies and eighties and according to some oldtimers) who nineties, so I feel comfortable Centers - Alex Groza, Dan Issel, Bill Spivey and Cliff Hagan. All but Issel played on NCAA championship teams -Groza on two. Had Spivey played four years at UK, he might be considered the finest ever. Shortly before Harry Lancaster died, the longtime aide to Rupp told me that Spivey would have domi-nated the NBA had he been allowed to play.

Forwards — Kenny Walker, Wallace "Wah Wah" Jones, Johnny Cox, Jack Givens and Cotton Nash. Jones played on two NCAA champions. The shooting of Cox and Givens led the Cats to two other national titles, Cox in 1958, Givens in '78.

Guards — Ralph Beard stands alone at the top. In the words of former coach Joe B. Hall, "Ralph Beard is still the standard by which all UK guards are judged." He joined Groza and Jones on two NCAA champions. Beard and Groza are the only UK players ever to make first-team All-NBA. Rupp said Beard was so quick you could actually smell the rubber burning. He demonstrated his quickness in a film that was put together by WLEX-18 and shown to the Legends crowd, leaving a defender standing as he drove past him for a layup

My other guards are Frank Ramsey, Kenny Rollins, Louie Dampier, Kyle Macy and Rex Chapman. Ramsey, Rollins and Macy won NCAA titles. No telling what Chapman would have done had he not been run off by a jealous Eddie Sutton. Chapman's best days in the NBA are ahead of him; had he stayed at UK, this would have been his rookie season as a pro. I get sick every time I think of the circumstances that led Chapman to ave.

Ramsey and Hagan are the only members of my all-time team to play on championship teams in the NBA. Ramsey says his children drag out film of his playing days — and laugh. Don't kid yourselves, Ramsey could play — then and now. Like Beard, he had the quickness to

HERE A SKUNK, THERE A SKUNK

The Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources (KDFWR) has been flooded in recent weeks with calls from folks wanting to know what strange phenomenon is occurring and causing so many skunks to stray onto the highways?

Actually, nothing at all unusual is happening. Unless of course, you consider mating season a strange phenomenon.

What's happening now happens about this time each year (early to mid-February) when striped and spotted skunks throughout the region set about the business of procreating. And, it'll go on happening for a few more weeks, yet.

"The exceptionally warm weather we experienced at the beginning of February triggered an earlier that usual pattern of movement," said Lauren Schaaf, director of wildlife for the state fish and wildlife department.

When female skunks are in their breeding season, they become quite restless and ten to wander about freely, as do many other mammals (deer behave similarly during their rutting season). Male skunks, described by wildlife biologists as being "promiscuous" in their mating habits, follow close behind in pursuit of receptive females.

Skunks are abundant throughout Kentucky in urban as well as rural areas. They're nocturnal critters and often live virtually unnoticed in heavily human populated areas. Residential crawl spaces are favorite dwelling places for skunks, and unless they're somehow intimidated (a barking dog can touch off a "smelly" reaction), homeowners may never be aware of their presence.

The striped skunk is far more. plentiful, while the somewhat smaller spotted skunk is found much less frequently. Color patterns can vary

young skunks (upon having their scent sacs surgically removed) can be raised domestically to make excellent house pets, the state fish and wildlife department strongly discourages this practice.

Skunks are notorious harborers of rabies, according to Schaaf. As a matter of fact, of all wild species, skunks may be the foremost carriers.

"Even if you have a young skunk vaccinated against rabies, there are no guarantees that the animal will be rules and guidelines for entries, con-100 percent clear of the rabies bacterium," cautioned Schaaf. For that reason, many local health departments have enacted regulations expressly prohibiting the keeping of skunks as pets.

The state fish and wildlife department has strict regulations which govern the keeping of wildlife as pets. Permits may be issued in some instances, but only after strict requirements are met.

The best rule of thumb to remember when you encounter a skunk, is to avoid any contact with the animal. HAPPY HUNTING GROUND PHOTO CONTEST
