Could open "global market" to Eastern Kentucky :

World Trade Center branch possible

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

The world market will be coming to Eastern Kentucky if plans for a satellite office of the Kentucky World Trade Center come together.

City officials and House Majority Leader Greg Stumbo met Monday in Lexington with members of the Kentucky World Trade Center to discuss locating a branch office in Prestonsburg.

"This is a tremendous opportunity for Floyd County and Eastern Kentucky," said Stumbo. "We have people in Floyd County who make as good mining equipment as anywhere in the world. With an office like this, it will give our people a chance to market their goods all over the world."

Kenneth A. Current, president of the Kentucky World Trade Center, said he was optimistic about plans to establish an office in Prestonsburg.

"There has certainly been an interest and willingness expressed to us for an office in Prestonsburg," Current said Thursday. "Right now, we're coordinating a follow-up meeting with all the local officials to work out the details. I'm very optimistic about the project."

Current explained that it is important for Kentucky businesses to realize and understand the concept of global marketing for products manufactured in the state.

"A lot of business people wonder why they should be interested in a global market for their products," Current said. "It used to be a regional economy, with local Mom and Pop stores and corner drug stores. We've went from that to a national economy, with stores like Kmart and Winn-Dixie.

"From this point, we're going to a global economy," Current said. "Most people think Kentucky is a farming state. We're not. We're now a manufacturing state. About 80 percent of businesses in the state are manufacturing."

The world trade market is a $3 trillion a year business with the United States capturing 12 percent of that market today, Current said.

"It's survival of the future," Current said.

Fred James, with the Floyd County Tourism Commission, said a World Trade Center office in Prestonsburg would be an enormous boost to the county and Eastern Kentucky businesses.

"It puts us on the map," James said. "It will provide Eastern Kentucky a opportunity to market our products globally. This will eliminate everybody trying to re-invent the wheel. All it will take now, is for the actors to sign up."

The Kentucky World Trade Center is an organization that can assist local and regional businesses to open or expand their businesses into international markets. The organization is a not-for-profit company comprised of business people helping business people. It is funded by private and federal money, but it is run by private, professionally trained people.

The Kentucky World Trade Center is part of the World Trade Center Association which has World Trade Centers in 219 cities in 54 countries.

At Wheelwright :

Harmon takes over as chief

by Tim B. Preston
Staff Writer

The city of Wheelwright is no longer without local police protection as Charles Harmon was hired to fill the position of police chief on a temporary basis.

Harmon, a resident of East Point, is a former police officer for the city of Martin and he served under Sheriffs Henry Hale and Paul Hunt Thompson. Harmon is currently employed at the Floyd County Juvenile Detention Center.

"I plan to try and give Wheelwright a modern and efficient police department, or at least do the best we can with the budget we have," said Harmon. "I would like to start a citizens' crime watch and, with the help of the Floyd County Sheriff's Department, I want to start a D.A.R.E. program at the high school."

The new police chief said he would like to hire at least one part time police officer and use others as auxiliary policemen.

The city of Wheelwright will continue to accept applications for the position of police chief until March 25. According to Wheelwright City Clerk Mary Ann Johnson, the city council may take action at the April 18, meeting of the council to officially hire a police chief.

Conn completes police training

Prestonsburg City Police patrolman Mike Conn has completed a 400 hour training program at the police academy at Eastern Kentucky University at Richmond. While training at the academy, Conn studied various aspects of police work such as criminal investigation, accident investigation, first aid/CPR, firearms, defensive driving, domestic violence, public relations, DUI detection and underwent extensive training on Kentucky penal codes.

Plugged water line causes evacuation

Inadequate water pressure to the automatic sprinkler system at the James D. Adams Middle School in Prestonsburg prompted city fire officials to cancel classes and evacuate approximately 500 students at the school Wednesday afternoon.

Prestonsburg Fire Chief Tom Blackburn said the problem was discovered when an insurance inspector conducting water pressure tests found the available water inadequate to supply the school's sprinklers.

Blackburn said the problem was corrected when workers used a two inch water hose to clear gravel and debris from a street valve. Workers found the inlet valve to be "barely open". The valve was opened and pressure tests indicated that proper pressure was then available for the sprinkler system.

Classes at the James D. Adams Middle School resumed on Thursday.

Corrective measures for Duff water problems will be costly

by Scott Perry
Times Editor and Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Fire protection for one of Floyd County's newest elementary schools remains in the trust of Maytown volunteer firefighters while corrective measures are taken to make an expensive sprinkler system at the school operable.

Water problems at Duff Elementary, a $4 million school consolidating Garrett and Wayland grade schools which opened to its first class last September, came to a boil last week when the contractor responsible for installing the school's sprinkler system requested payment for his work.

When Duff opened last fall, state officials required a fire truck to be present on campus during school hours because water pressure to the school was too low to operate the facility's sprinkler system. Nearly seven months later, the fire protection system remains useless, the fire truck remains on site, and $131,000 in corrective surgery will be required to make the sprinkler system work.

Water woes at Duff have prompted a series of debates on issues ranging from the water pressure specifications for the school sprinkler system to the effectiveness of proposed corrective measures. One issue, however, remains uncontested: school and construction officials were aware before school construction began that a potential problem existed with water pressure at the school.

Ken Bratton, whose company, Hydro Fire Protection, built and installed the school's sprinkler system, told the Floyd County Board of Education last week that he had advised the board and contractors prior to the start of construction that the

Patriotism on parade at Martin

by Tim B. Preston
Staff Writer

A large crowd bearing American flags and banners of support turned out for a Patriot's Day celebration in Martin Thursday afternoon.

State Disabled American Veteran's Chaplain Mitchell Shepherd gave the invocation at the start of the rally, and was followed by welcoming speeches from Martin Mayor Raymond Griffith and House Majority Leader Greg Stumbo.

Shepherd read a "roll call" list of names of Floyd County soldiers serving with Operation Desert Storm and former World War II prisoner of war Dewey Conn spoke to the crowd on the importance of support for American soldiers.

Marty Green's rendition of the Lee Greenwood song "God Bless The USA" turned into a sing along session for those gathered and Larry Fyffe read a poem he had written which is titled "Kentucky Boys".

Before concluding the celebration, the Martin chapter of the Disabled American Veterans performed a 21 gun salute in honor of those Americans lost in fighting during the Persian Gulf War.

Upon conclusion of the program, church bells were rung and several versions of the national anthem were played through loudspeakers on the streets of Martin.

Pike teacher found guilty of homicide

A Pike County teacher was convicted Wednesday of reckless homicide in the 1988 traffic death of a 9-year old Pike County boy.

Phamon Tackett, 56, at teacher of Elkhorn City High School, was found guilty by a Pike County Circuit Court jury and given a minimum one-year prison sentence.

Tackett was indicted on second-degree manslaughter after his car struck Stefan Eric Coleman as he was getting off a school bus.

Opry's Osborne to lead program

by Tim B. Preston
Staff Writer

The Floyd County Board of Education voted last week to authorize the Kentucky Opry's Billie Jean Osborne to coordinate music and theater education in all of the county's schools.

"This has been a dream of mine," said Osborne Monday morning. "Everything we are doing with the Kentucky Opry depends and revolves around the children of Floyd County. I have been seeing my dreams come true everyday, and this is truly something I have dreamed of. It is so exciting!"

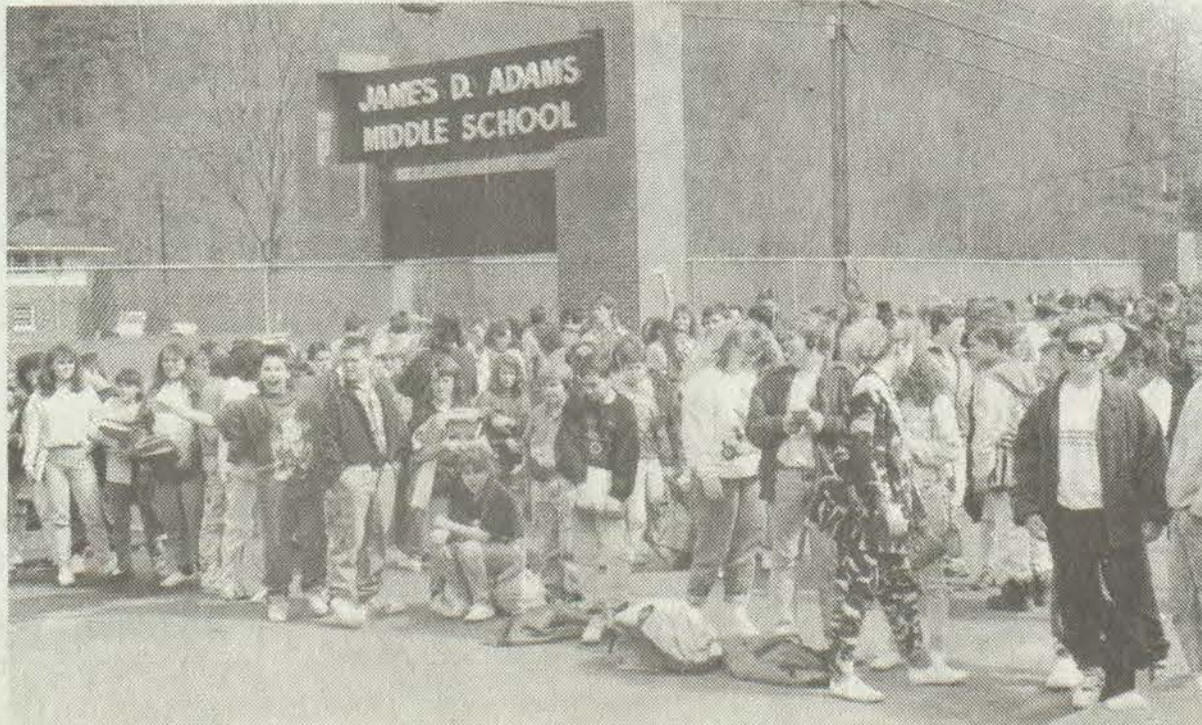

Osborne said she plans to meet with sixth, seventh and eighth grade students at every Floyd County school before the end of this week to announce plans for the program.

"What we are going to do is have each school plan, direct and produce the musical play "Friends". The musical will be performed in every community and students from each school will be selected by judges from the Jenny Wiley Theater for a summer production at the amphitheater," said Osborne.

Students selected by Jenny Wiley Theater judges will be given an opportunity to work with professional theater personnel, as well as to give public performance.

Russell Frazier, Assistant Superintendent of Finance for the Floyd County Board of Education, said Osborne was hired contingent upon funds available for the project.

An afternoon off

Students at the James D. Adams Middle School in Prestonsburg got out of school early Wednesday afternoon as fire officials worked to provide water pressure for the school's sprinkler system. State police release stats on 1990 activity for Big Sandy Kentucky State Police Post 9 at Pikeville released year end totals for 1990 this week.

During 1990, the post compiled the following statistics in Pike, Floyd, Johnson, Martin and Magoffin counties:

- Citations; 25,167
- Courtesy Notices; 15,020
- Vehicle Inspections; 57,594
- Complaints; 15,465
- Criminal Cases; 1,844
- Accident Investigations; 3,571
- Driving While Intoxicated Arrests; 1,677

Of all the accidents investigated, 47 were fatalities with a total of 53 people killed.

Floyd County had nine fatal accidents with ten people killed. Five of those accidents were alcohol related with an average blood alcohol content per driver of .19 percent. Four of the ten people killed wore seatbelts.

In Pike County there were 22 fatal accidents. Seven of those were alcohol related with an average blood alcohol content of .22 percent per driver. Only four of those killed wore seatbelts.

Johnson County had a total of seven fatal accidents with seven deaths recorded. One of those accidents was of a non-traffic nature, involving an all terrain vehicle. Two of the fatal accidents were alcohol related with an average blood alcohol content per driver of .24 percent. No seatbelts were used in any of those accidents.

Magoffin County had six fatal accidents in 1990, with nine people killed. No safety belts were used in any of the accidents. One accident was alcohol related, that driver had a blood alcohol level of .27 percent.

In Martin County, three deaths occurred in three fatal accidents. One accident was alcohol related with a blood alcohol content of .12 percent.

system would not work. Bratton has contended, too, that a pressure tank system designed to correct the water pressure problems, will not work.

Project architect Paul Hoffman said this week that water pressure problems were discovered when a flow test was conducted on lines belonging to the Beaver Elkhorn Water District, but Hoffman added that school construction proceeded, based on "assurances" that required water pressure would be available when needed.

Those assurances apparently came in a letter from Floyd County Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo. Stumbo confirmed Thursday that he had written a letter concerning water at the Duff site, but that his information indicated there would be 65 pounds per square inch of water pressure available. The school's sprinkler system requires 75 pounds per square inch of pressure, he said.

Hoffman also said that during the design stage, contractors were uncertain which company—Beaver Elkhorn or Francis Water Company, at Garrett—would supply water to the school. The water question apparently was not a concern during site selection, because the availability of utilities was not a state Department of Education requirement at that time. Hoffman said the state had only recently included utility service as a necessary factor in determining school sites.

Kentucky's Public Service Commission eventually ruled that water for the Duff school would be supplied by Beaver Elkhorn, but a spokesman for that company said he was never asked to perform a water analysis or issue a report for the project.

"We would have gotten more involved in the situation if we had been asked," Beaver Elkhorn supervisor Bob Hackworth said this week. "If we had been asked, there would be a different situation there."

Hackworth said his company could supply between 60 and 65 pounds per square inch of water pressure to the school, adding that should be sufficient to operate a standard sprinkler system. He questioned the specifications for the system in place at the school, which requires water pressure of 75 pounds per square inch.

"There's no controversy on the water (pressure)," Hackworth said, "we've got 60 to 65 pounds. The thing in question is the sprinkler system. It was my understanding," he added, "that 55 (pounds per square inch) was all they had to have (to operate a sprinkler system). I've never heard of a system (that requires 75 pounds per square inch). Why they designed it like that, I don't know."

To make the current sprinkler system work, a special pressure tank system has been designed by Kaiser-Taulbee, a Lexington engineering firm, which will cost $131,027 to install. When completed, the tank will hold 17,400 gallons of water and provide enough pressure to operate the school's sprinkler system for one hour in the kitchen and 30 minutes elsewhere, according to James Wade, an engineer for Kaiser-Taulbee.

Despite contentions from the sprinkler system designer, Ken Bratton, that a pressure tank would not solve the pressure problems, Wade said the system would provide adequate pressure to provide fire protection to the school. The corrective system must be in place and operational by May 9, Wade said.

AT&T special services are available on payment plan

AT&T has announced that Kentucky customers can purchase a cordless telephone, an answering machine or a combination phone/answering machine at discounts based on the customers' monthly AT&T long-distance charges.

Called "AT&T Quality Connections," the program allows customers to pay for the products in 12 monthly installments on their long-distance bills with no finance charge.

Depending on a customer's monthly long-distance charges, the three products will be discounted up to 25 percent. Callers who now have or who sign up for AT&T's Reach Out(R) America calling plan can earn discounts of up to 40 percent.

The AT&T 5325 Cordless Phone, priced at $179.88, the AT&T Integrated Answering System, a combination telephone and answering system, priced at $159.96, and the AT&T 1125 Answering System, priced at $129.96, are offered through the program, which also features a 30-day in-home trial.

To participate in the Quality Connections program, customers can call 1-800-242-1003, Monday through Friday between 9 a.m. and 9:30 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday between 9 a.m. and 5:30 p.m., or write to: AT&T Quality Connections Program, P.O. Box 800, New York, N.Y. 10102-1082.

Quality Connections is unavailable in some areas served by small independent telephone companies.

Representative Stumbo said the office would provide an opportunity for local artists and craftspeople to sell their goods around the world.

"I understand there is a big demand for Appalachian crafts throughout the world," Stumbo said. "They just go crazy over our arts and crafts."

No timetable has been given for when the office could open in Prestonsburg but Current said meetings to finalize the plans are being coordinated through Keith Akers, executive director of the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce, and Prestonsburg Mayor Ann Latta's office.

Allegations of police brutality in Pike

by Terry Spears
Appalachian News-Express

Pikeville attorney Larry Webster is calling for a federal investigation into an alleged incident of police brutality in Pike County, and a civil trial held in Pike Circuit Court on the matter.

Webster is representing a 67-year old Blackberry man, Ernest Slone, who claims he was beaten by Pike County Chief Deputy Sheriff Bert Hatfield on February 2, 1990. A Pike Circuit Court jury ruled in favor of Hatfield in a civil trial last week, and denied Slone any monetary damages in connection with the case. No criminal charges have been brought against Hatfield.

Webster said Wednesday he has reported the alleged incident to the U.S. Attorney's Office for the Eastern District of Kentucky, and was told to report it to the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI). He said he has been trying to report it to the FBI, but has been unable to contact a local agent.

Jim Arehart, chief of criminal investigations for the U.S. Attorney's Office in Lexington, said that allegations of civil rights violations must first be investigated by the FBI, which will then forward its preliminary investigation to the Department of Justice in Washington, D.C.

"They (the Department of Justice) make the decision whether or not to prosecute," such cases, said Arehart. Arehart said he had not talked with Webster about the incident, but that the proper procedure would be for Webster to notify the FBI of the matter.

Webster said that a videotaped beating of a Los Angeles man which recently received national attention has caused more awareness of police brutality as a problem.

"The United States Congress is going to hold hearings in front of the appropriate committee to see if the FBI really tries very hard in investigating complaints of police brutality," said Webster. "We are going to try to make this a model case for them. It is being reported to them at about the same time that Attorney General Thornburgh has warned that new emphasis would be placed upon these sorts of crimes. We are going to see if they are serious about this investigation."

Since Webster filed the civil suit on behalf of Slone in early 1990, Webster said that Slone has had three houses burn, been indicted for arson, and indicted for custodial interference with someone else's child. Webster said Slone is innocent of both charges.

During the civil trial, Webster claims that the two deputies who accompanied Hatfield during the arrest presented conflicting testimony on several aspects of the incident.

Two eyewitnesses, plus Slone, testified that Hatfield struck Slone in the head with an unknown object, perhaps his flashlight. They also testified that Hatfield then dragged him around to the back of the two police cars and hit him in the head many times, stomped and kicked him.

Slone claims that as a result of the incident, he had two broken ribs, severe loss of vision in one eye, a broken nose, and lost five false teeth.

During the civil trial, Hatfield denied striking Slone during the arrest, and said that he had dropped his flashlight, and it rolled under the car while he was arresting Slone.

The defense said in its closing arguments that if Slone received injuries, he must have received them as a result of the high-speed chase, and articles in the auto hitting him.

Slone was a passenger in the car of Richard Dotson when Hatfield and deputies James Ernest Wolford and John Daniels began pursuit of them in two separate cars at Freeburn on the date in question. Slone, a disabled coal miner, had talked Dotson into driving him from Blackberry to DeLorme, West Virginia, to buy a case and a half of beer.

Dotson was driving on a suspended license, and tried to escape the police officers, but failed to when a train blocked the railroad tracks near Freeburn.

Dotson initially got out of the car and ran, then surrendered to deputies Wolford and Daniels, according to the testimony. Slone, Dotson and 16-year old Emily New, an eyewitness, all testified that Hatfield opened the door, dragged Slone out of the car, and beat him during the arrest.

Slone was charged with resisting arrest, alcohol intoxication and disorderly conduct. He was unable to take a breathalyzer test, but Dotson, the driver, was given three—and blew a zero each time, Webster said.

Dotson testified that Hatfield also kicked him in the face and hit him in the back of the head with his flashlight, and told him to say that Slone had a gun. He said Hatfield threatened to kill him if he testified against him.

The charges against Slone were set for trial in late February, but Webster said his client didn't show up because he misunderstood when he was supposed to be in court. Slone was tried and convicted on the three charges in his absence. His sentence has not been set.

Webster said the deputies gave contradictory testimony on whether or not there were empty beer cans in the car, and whether or not Slone and Dotson resisted arrest.

The civil suit was filed in Pike Circuit Court against Hatfield and the county's insurance carrier defended the deputy. Slone had asked for medical expenses associated with the incident (approximately $1,200), and compensation for loss of sight, teeth, and pain and suffering, "or the same damages he would have gotten had he received these injuries in an auto accident," said Webster.

Webster said, "We are also going to ask that the three deputy sheriffs be subjected to a federal polygraph examination and that the federal authorities investigate to see whether or not the integrity of the jury process (in the civil trial) was maintained."

Nine members of the 12-member jury agreed on the verdict for Hatfield at the trial.

"We are asking for a federal investigation in accordance with the new L.A.P.D. guidelines," said Webster. "I'm not going to let a jury decide that this old man wasn't beaten that night."

Tarnished Triangle?

by Scott Perry

For many Eastern Kentuckians, ourselves included, Lexington has always been a home-away-from-home.

Lexington's get-away appeal is easily understood. The city is only a couple of hours drive time away for shoppers, concert-goers, sports enthusiasts or folks just looking for a break from routine.

For many of us, though, "Fat City's" greatest lure has been it's small town atmosphere despite the fact that Lexington is no small town. Unlike Cincinnati, or even Louisville, Eastern Kentuckians feel as comfortable in Lexington as they do in their own hometowns.

That image of tranquility has been fractured recently.

Reports of unprovoked assaults, warnings to avoid certain areas of the city after dark and growing indications of gang-type violence undermine our confidence in and our comfort with our adopted second-city.

After struggling for years to improve our own image, which has been drawn largely by our misinformed neighbors to the west, we find no gratification in pointing out that the golden triangle's image is itself becoming tarnished.

We consider Lexington to be our town, too. And we don't want it to lose its appeal.

Up In Smoke

We'd be the last to complain about any roadbuilding project that would benefit Eastern Kentucky, but a caller this week raised an interesting point concerning the reconstruction of Route 23.

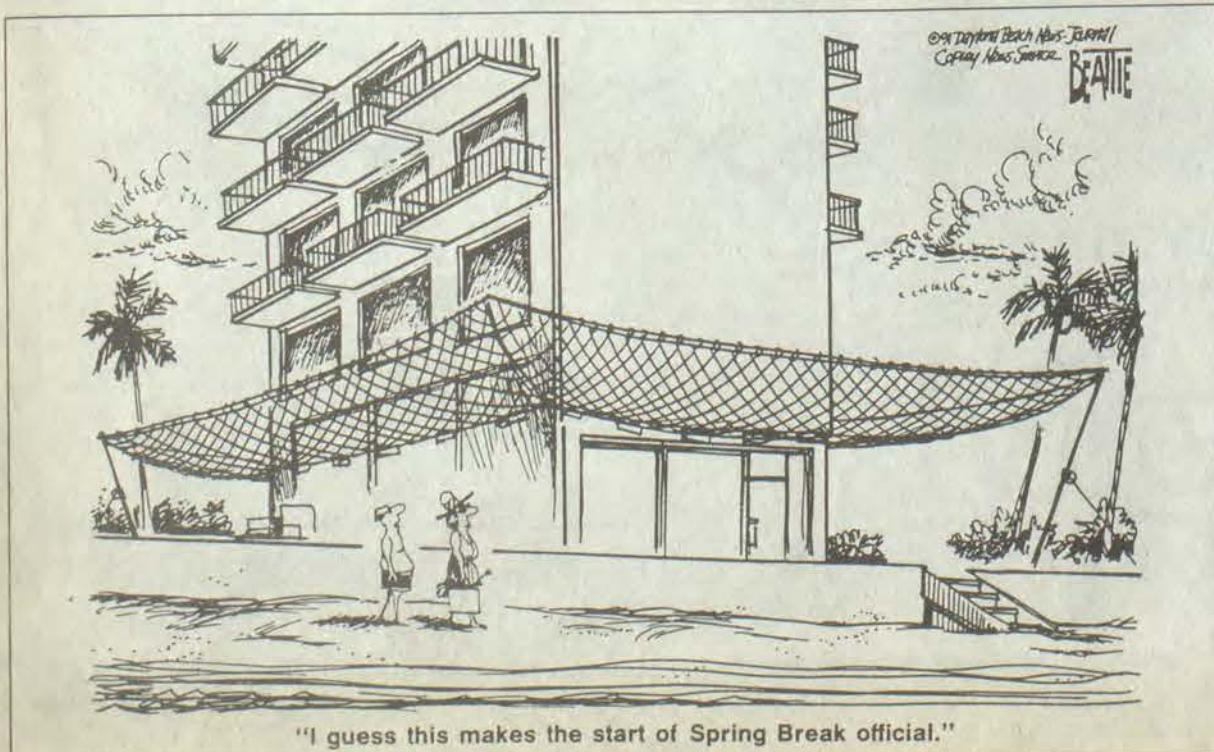

Why, she asked, are roadbuilders burning the timber that is being removed to allow for the road's construction? Good question.

Granted, some of the brush and timber cut for the new roadway has no commercial value. But, more likely than not, some of it does.

Burning it destroys that value and causes an air pollution problem for residents already inconvenienced by construction activities.

Not so long ago, if we remember correctly, Corps of Engineers officials promoted a better way to dispose of timber removed during the construction of Paintsville Lake. They invited folks to come onto the project to cut up and haul off all the firewood they could carry.

Seems that approach would be more beneficial than sending our resources up in smoke.

"I guess this makes the start of Spring Break official."

Letters

Editor:

With the coming of Easter — the opening buds of springtime — our hearts are made glad in the assurance that life is ever-lasting. These bodies in which we live may fall prey to the stinging blight of death, but they shall awaken in a joyous morn of springtime and eternal life.

For life did not begin with the rising sun of mortality — neither will the setting sun mark its termination when the stone was rolled away from the mouth of the tomb. And the Master (Jesus) walked away in the newness of life. Then the bonds of death were broken — and even in Christ shall all be made alive. Surely in springtime none can doubt life will come again.

Editor:

Recently I wrote to you seeking information on an old army buddy that I had been seeking for many years.

Yesterday, I received his address from a Mrs. America Nicholas. He is now in Utah.

I want to thank both the Floyd County Times and Mrs. Nichols for making me very happy.

I have not heard from Ben since we left Europe in 1945. Again thank you. You made my day!

Editor:

I am writing you a letter concerning the proposed Prestonsburg High School, to be built near Clark Elementary School.

I was a student in the current high school building for one year, and I think there is nothing wrong with the current building. The rooms are in good shape and so is the gym. I think that the money should be used for a new Prestonsburg Elementary School. The one we have is in terrible shape, and is about to fall down.

In any case, if a new high school must be built, I think they could find a better location than the property on Middle Creek.

The big-waste, high-tax, budget bill rip-off

by Alan Keyes

The recent budget agreement, touted by its supporters as the "largest deficit reduction program ever enacted," fails to address the root cause of the deficit explosion: government waste.

In 1983, the President's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control, popularly known as the Grace Commission, came up with 2,478 cost-cutting, efficiency-enhancing recommendations—the implementation of which could save taxpayers $424.4 billion over three years and prevent accumulation of trillions of dollars in additional deficits by the year 2000. But because the Washington establishment rejected and ignored hundreds of the most critical Grace Commission recommendations, the national debt tripled during the past decade.

The federal government accumulates chronic deficits because Washington refuses to cut waste. And this year's budget agreement only continues the tax-and-waste approach. The budget compromise contains $164.6 billion in new taxes and a minimum of $245 billion in new domestic discretionary ("pork barrel") spending.

Here are some of the expenditures our legislators consider so vital:

- $67,000 for Belgian endive research in Massachusetts.
- $995,000 for a performing arts and cultural center in North Miami Beach, Fla.
- $500,000 to restore the home of Lawrence Welk in North Dakota.
- $5 million to design and construct a parliament building in the Solomon Islands.

• $4 million for a Japanese-American museum in Ontario, Ore.

• $1 million for a Seafood Consumer Center in Oregon.

• $120 million for 56 highway demonstration projects not requested by the president.

And, of course, outrageous examples of waste still abound in the Department of Defense for large purchases of small items, including:

- $120 for a cup dispenser that retails for $25 in commercial outlets.
- $67.50 each for 4-inch-wide rubber gaskets, while similar plug-type seals for toilets sell for about $1 in commercial hardware stores.
- $1,868 for a steel-reinforced toilet cover assembly for the C-5 cargo plane, while similar covers for commercial aircraft go for one-tenth the price—about $182.

Why focus on these bathroom supplies? They are the obvious signs that our tax dollars are being flushed down the drain in Washington.

Staggering cost overruns, expensive program failures, multimillion-dollar losses in federal programs occur so often they almost seem to be our government's stock-in-trade. The budget agreement only compounds the problem by transferring additional billions from the private sector to the inefficient public sector, and from taxpayers to the congressional pork barrel.

Fortunately, this year saw the birth of a nationwide taxpayer's action movement. On Oct. 27, many thousands of people rallied all over the country to protest higher taxes and government waste. This event, known as Taxpayer Action Day, was the first time in American history taxpayers gathered in this fashion during a non-presidential election year.

Their message was simple: "Time for a clean sweep."

Time to eliminate the hundreds of billions of dollars in government waste.

Time to stop being squeezed between higher property taxes and state and federal income taxes.

Time to adopt reforms with real "teeth" in them.

As our overtaxed economy declines, as state and federal deficits soar, and as billions of new tax dollars vanish down the sinkhole of government waste, we can expect more and more Americans to join the taxpayer's action movement.

The tax-and-waste politicians in Washington may be riding high this year, but their days are numbered.

Open door for the deaf in Eastern Kentucky area

by Tina McFarland

Deaf Opportunity Out Reach, a non-profit organization which is headquartered in Louisville, has a volunteer staff of 25 persons, 20 of whom are deaf themselves. D.O.O.R. focuses its work in training deaf persons to reach other deaf persons in Christian ministry. Two of D.O.O.R.'s four departments will be working in the Enterprise and Pike County Baptist Associations later this month.

The Church Assist Department, headed by Cathy Howle, will send a team of eight, seven of whom are deaf. Upon arrival in Floyd County on Friday, March 22, the team will meet with staff and volunteers of Enterprise Baptist Association. Five teams will then begin efforts to locate and meet deaf persons in areas of Floyd, Johnson, and Pike counties. This work will continue through Saturday afternoon. The information gathered from this "visitation blitz" will be used by churches of the Enterprise and Pike County Baptist Associations to determine effective ways they can assist in meeting needs of the area's deaf population.

Following the two days of surveying, Silent Touch will be performing in several local churches. Like other D.O.O.R. program staff, Silent Touch is comprised predominantly of deaf persons and perform what is said to be "music beyond sound."

Other activities scheduled in Floyd County include a deaf awareness rally which will be hosted by Allen First Baptist Church on Saturday, March 23 at 7 p.m. McDowell First Baptist Church has scheduled the group to perform during its 11 a.m. service the following Sunday morning.

D.O.O.R.'s work among the deaf will climax with a deaf fellowship which will be held at 2 p.m. on that Sunday afternoon, March 24. All individuals who are deaf are particularly invited to attend this gathering.

In Pike County, Meta Baptist Church will host a full-length concert by Silent Touch during its Sunday evening service which begins at 7 p.m.

The Pike County Baptist Youth Association will feature Silent Touch during its March meeting. Virgie Baptist Church will host the event which is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. on Monday, March 25.

From there, the D.O.O.R. teams will be leaving for Alice Lloyd College where Silent Touch will perform during Tuesday's 1 p.m. convocation. They will return to Louisville that afternoon.

Admission to all performances is free of charge and everyone is invited to attend. If you are deaf or know those who are, you can assist in the work D.O.O.R. hopes to facilitate. Contact James and Jean Smith at the Enterprise Baptist Association. You may write to them at H.C. 74, Box 270, Banner, Kentucky 41603. The office phone number is 874-0260 and they do have a telecommunication device for the deaf (TDD).

Mind and Body

By Linda Gies, Program Manager, Psychiatric Service, Methodist Hospital of Kentucky

About sexual abuse

Recently a number of us here at Methodist Hospital went to an excellent conference at Prestonsburg Community College sponsored by the office of the Attorney General Victim's Advocacy Division. The conference was on the medical examination which follows rape or sexual abuse of adults or children. Needless to say, it was a sobering conference even for those of us who, as professional care givers, see the problem up-close every day. The statistics on sexual abuse are frightening. One out of every four women will be raped in her life time. One of every four female children will be sexually abused and one out of every 10 male children before the end of adolescence.

This is a topic I will probably write about many times because the scope is so large. What I'd like to talk about today are the adult survivors of childhood abuse, either sexual or physical, since that these are people we often treat at the Psychiatric Services of Methodist Hospital.

Children who are abused learn different ways to protect themselves emotionally and physically. Unfortunately, patterns which are "survival skills" in childhood may carry over into adult life. What were good defenses in childhood turn out to be self-defeating and the source of much unhappiness for the adult.

For example, many children simply deny that the abuse is happening to them. They may pretend that the abuse is happening to someone else or block out the memory. As adults, they may believe that it's dangerous to trust other people or their own feelings and find it difficult to form close relationships with others.

Some children withdraw since adult attention so often brings abuse. They learn that it is not safe to take chances or to express themselves. This may carry over into an adult fear of making changes, even when the familiar is really destructive.

Other kids try to protect themselves by attempting to be perfect, by excelling in school work, doing extra chores, etc., trying to win adult approval instead of abuse. These often grow up to become professional helpers: nurses, doctors, social workers and counselors, trying to give to others the love and care which they never had. Often, however, these are adults who burn themselves out by caring too much for others and paying little attention to their own fulfillment.

Some children cope by not allowing themselves to feel in order to protect themselves from pain. These grow to adulthood having trouble recognizing their own feelings, showing emotion or sharing feelings with others. These are folks who don't know how to ask for help. They become isolated, lonely and depressed.

Many children learn to act out their anger and frustration. They may become truant or have disciplinary problems at school. As adults these are people who have trouble coping with stress. They may turn to food, alcohol, other drugs or violence, including becoming child abusers themselves.

Lastly, children tend to take responsibility for abuse, blame themselves and think that it's happening to them because they're "bad". They often grow up with a deep inner sense of worthlessness thinking that they deserved the bad treatment they received as children. They may act this out in adulthood by engaging in self-destructive behaviors as mentioned above or in self-destructive relationships based on an inner conviction that they deserve to be punished.

If you were abused as a child, please know that you are not alone. Millions of today's adults were abused as children. It is possible to overcome the past and there are many people and organizations ready and willing to help you. The first thing that you can do for yourself is to recognize what happened to you. Let your memories come to the surface even though it may be painful. Place the responsibility for the abuse where it belongs: on the abuser, not on you. Stop making excuses for the abuser, ie "he was under a lot of stress" or "I really was a bad kid". Focus on your own strengths and recognize that it took a lot of courage to get through a terrible time. Congratulate yourself for that and realize that you can use that same strength and energy to create a positive future. Try to work through your anger. Talk it over with a good friend or therapist or write a journal to express your feelings.

Host a student in YES program

Share your love and home with a deserving international student and enhance the world you live in.

The Youth Exchange Service is a nonprofit, exchange student program that for 17 years has been dedicated to enriching peoples lives by placing your 'Ambassadors of Goodwill' in their homes.

The YES program is looking for caring host families from all over the United States to host teenage exchange students from Asia, Europe, South America or Mexico. These students are 15 to 18 years old and are scheduled to arrive in August for the 1991-92 high school year. Each student is carefully screened, brings his/her own spending money and is fully covered by insurance.

For information about becoming a host family, please contact the youth exchange student (YES) at their 24 hour toll free number: (800) 848-2121, and ask for Ext. No. 11.

Nine contestants vie for chance at state competition

Nine contestants in the Big Sandy Valley are vying for the title of Miss Sandy Valley and a chance to compete for the Miss Kentucky Scholarship title scheduled in July.

Jane Osborne Short, Gwendolyn Gail Cassell, Gymma Dyer, Heather Robinson, Jeri Lyn Raines, Ginger Howard, Kitty Moore, Melanie Feltner, and Conda Gail Meade will compete in the Sandy Valley Scholarship Pageant Saturday, March 23, at 8 p.m. in the Convention Center at Jenny Wiley Park in Prestonsburg.

Jane Osborne Short of Paintsville is the daughter of Joe and Billy Jane Short. She will perform a dance and vocal selection.

Gwendolyn Gail Cassell is the daughter of Phillip and Linda Cassell of Inez. For her talent competition, she will perform a dramatic skit.

Gymma Dyer of Salyersville will tap dance as her talent routine.

Heather Robinson of Pikeville is the daughter of Lewis and Teresa Robinson. She will also present a vocal selection as her talent.

Jeri Lyn Raines of Pikeville will present a piano recital. She is the daughter of Teddy and Betty Hackney.

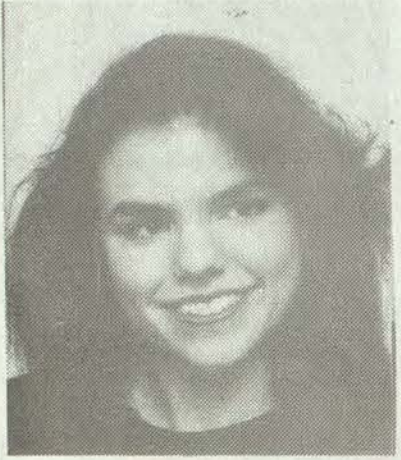

Ginger Howard of Prestonsburg, daughter of Chalmer and Kathryn Howard, has chosen a vocal presentation as her talent.

Kitty Moore of Prestonsburg is the daughter of Wendell and Jackie Martin. Her talent is dance.

Melanie Feltner of Pikeville, daughter of Donnie and Lula Feltner, will perform a vocal presentation.

Conda Gail Meade of Pikeville will perform a modern lyrical dance. She is the daughter of James Allen and Diana Meade.

Ticket for this competition will be available at the door.

Floyd County History

In the late 1890's the first missionaries of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, "The Mormons" came to Martin in Floyd County, Ky. They were Elder Earl J. Glade and Elder Mansfield. They were "taken in" by Felix Allen, Smalley Crisp, and John Halbert.

Early meetings were held in school houses, in fields, and on creek banks. The missionaries held meetings all over the Floyd County area. At this time, missionaries walked from one end of the state to the other.

Early members were from prominent families in the area: Allens, Crisps, Dingus, Flanery, Frazier, Hayes, Halberts, Howells, Hunters, Kings, Osbornes, Ratliffs, Warrix and perhaps others.

Martin Branch was a part of the Southern States Mission with headquarters in Atlanta, Ga. In 1928 the mission was divided and Martin Branch became a part of the East Central States Mission.

The first chapel in Martin was built in 1920. The choice spot of land was donated by Dollie Osborne Dingus, a non-member. The materials for the chapel were donated by the members. The missionaries, members, and a few non-members donated their labor to erect the building. Church meetings were held in this small frame building for over 30 years.

In 1948 plans were made for a new building which would accommodate the church programs: the Relief Society, the oldest women's organization in the world; the Primary for very young children; MIA, young men's and young women's programs, and other activities of the church. A building fund committee was appointed to plan ways and means of securing the necessary funds. The first committee was Marena Grigsby, chairman, Blanche Dingus, and Ed Hampton. To raise funds the committee had box suppers, swimming parties, bake sales, dinners, Halloween and spring carnivals, talent shows, dances, Fourth of July celebrations, and any other honest means of securing funds. In 1954 the new chapel was completed and dedicated by Alma Sonne, a General Authority of the church from Salt Lake City, Utah.

On January 11, 1981, the Martin Kentucky District was organized by Mission President Calvin E. Smoot and Pete Grigsby, Jr. was chosen as the first District President. The district included churches located at: Martin, Boldman, Paintsville, Salyersville, Pikeville, and Hazard. The first major objective for the district was to build a new building in Martin to serve the needs of the district and the Martin Branch.

In 1982 6.3 acres of land was purchased from the state of Kentucky with the assistance of Gov. John Y. Brown at a cost of $170,000.00. The new District/Branch center was constructed on this property at a cost of $1,200,000.00. Local members furnished 4 percent of the cost. The building was dedicated on Nov. 10, 1985 by Allen C. Ostergar, Jr., Mission President of the Kentucky Louisville Mission of which Martin District/Branch is a part.

This new building houses a Genealogical Library. The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints is recognized as the world leader in the collection, compilation and use of genealogical information. Records of any note from anywhere in the world have been microfilmed and made available to members and non-members alike. Included are indexes to millions of names, card catalogs to all U.S. States and foreign countries, international general information, ship passenger lists, cemetery records, D.A.R. records, family histories, census, etc. If all microfilm records of the Church were put in printed volumes, it would total four million volumes of 300 pages each.

All church microfilm information is available to local residents through the Branch Genealogical Library. Specialists are in the library to assist you. The service is basically free with only a small library charge for rental of selected materials. Library hours are: Tues. 9:00 a.m. to 12:00 a.m., Thurs. 7:00 a.m. to 10:00 p.m., and Sat. 9:00 to 12:00.

High school champions

Allen Central High School became the first Floyd County High School to join the Champions Against Drugs effort. In February, students listened to presentations by former Major League Baseball player, Doug Flynn, who is now executive director of the group.

Champions against drugs forms at Allen Central High School

A school-based Champions Against group has formed at Allen Central High School. Allen Central is the first high school in Floyd County to establish a Champions Against Drugs group, the regional Champions Against Drugs groups announced.

The Champions Against Drugs program was formed in the former Governor Martha Layne Collins' administration. It began with a small group of athletes who were famous for their talents. Today, it has grown to include achievers from all areas who would be role models and someone to look up to as champions.

There are regional groups for 16 regions with each forming county action groups. The mission of the program is to develop prevention/awareness programs for each community, to assist in development of special prevention programs within the school systems. The group is also responsible for sponsoring teams of students to attend the statewide teen leadership conferences in Berea. Champions is responsible for sponsoring local Teen Leadership Conferences each year.

The primary role of the school-based Champions group is to create awareness in the substance abuse areas. The students who attended the recent Teen Leadership Conference in January decided to form a group at Allen Central High School. One of Allen Central's group activities to promote awareness was in invitation to Doug Flynn, executive director of Champions Against Drugs. Flynn gave presentations to the students at Allen Central on February 14.

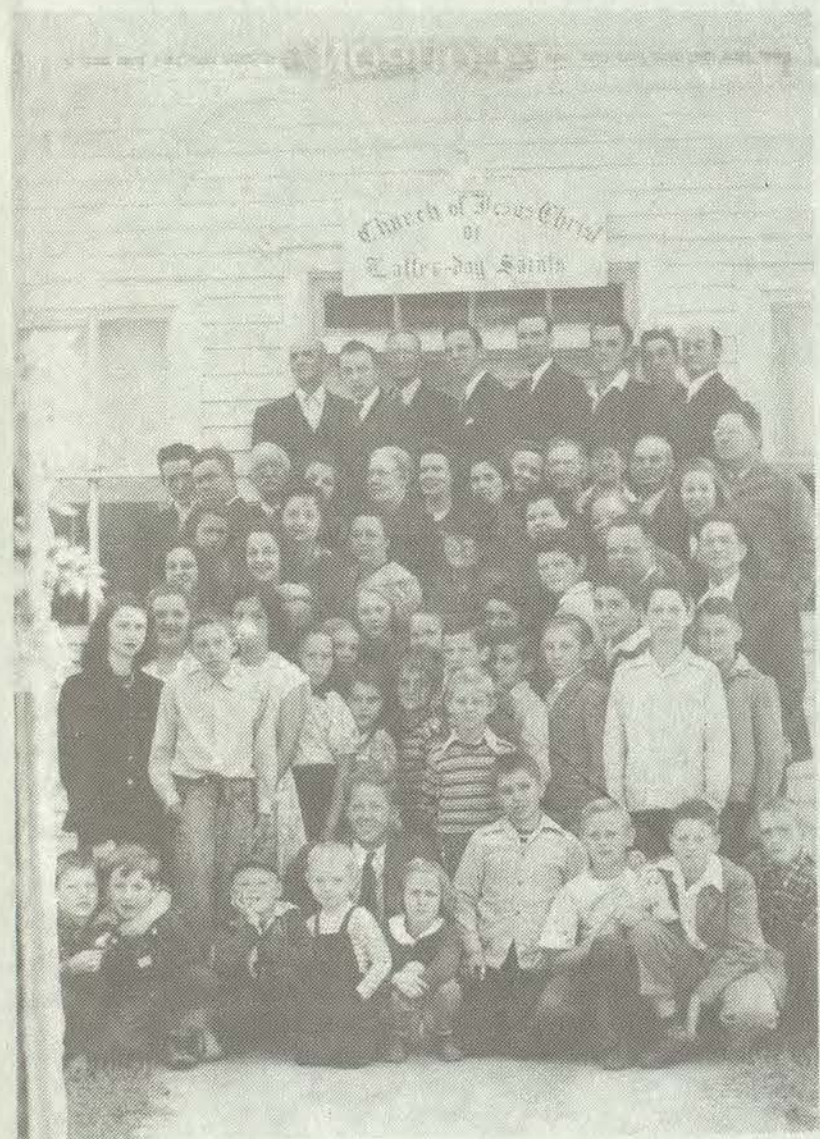

Flynn, a former pro-baseball player, was in the Major Leagues for 13 years. He played for the Cincinnati Reds and the Montreal Expos. However, he now spends his time as a guest speaker traveling all over the

Auxier students study state facts

Miss Charlene Darrell's second grade class at Auxier Elementary have recently been studying the 50 states. The students have been learning to identify the states by shapes, naming and locating the capital of each state, and determining the location of each state using cardinal directions.

The students have been working different types of state puzzles, associating their shapes with familiar objects and identifying the state's industries.

At the end of the study, students will choose their favorite state and write a brief statement explaining why that particular state was chosen.

Hall of Fame's Bill Harrell headlines family weekend

by Carol Jeffrey

Well-known area musicians, Melvin and Ray, the Goins Brothers Band will appear at Judy's 5th Annual Spring Family Bluegrass Weekend at the RedFox, Grandview Inn (formerly Holiday Inn), U.S. Route 52, in South Point, Ohio, Saturday, April 6.

Headlining the event will be Bill Harrell, recent inductee into SPBGMA's Preservation Hall of Fame, on Friday April 5.

Rebel Recording artist/music publisher and bluegrass promoter Bill Harrell joined Don Reno for ten years. Later, Bill was seen on ABC's Jimmy Dean Show, NBC's Today show in an impressive eleven-minute interview with Jane Pauley, and just about every other TV and radio show throughout the States and Canada.

"...Earning the respect of audiences in many countries including Denmark, England, Switzerland, Holland, Germany, etc.," says Bluegrass Canada Magazine. "Make no mistake about it, folks will hear more and more about Bill Harrell, the man and his music."

"As a traditional artist, everything Bill Harrell records becomes a collector's item," says contemporary bluegrass guitarist/vocalist and recording artist Tony Rice, following the 1990 IBMA Awards Show in Owensboro, Kentucky.

"After The Sunrise," the latest gospel recording from Bill Harrell and his band, the Virginians—Mitch Harrell, Dave Giegerich, Bill Budd, Carl Nelson, and Bobby Lundy, as well as other traditional treasures in Harrell's chest of collectible bluegrass recordings, will be available during Harrell's exclusive and rare Tri-State appearance at the RedFox at 2:00 p.m.

The New Tradition from Nashville, SPBGMA's 1991 Most Promising Band of the Year will entertain along with SPBGMA's 1991 Preservation Hall of Fame Songwriter of the Year inductee, Randall Hylton. Singer-songwriter Hylton was also nominated in SPBGMA's Entertainer of the Year category. SPBGMA's Hall of Famers, Melvin and Ray, the Goins Brothers Band will play Saturday. Others include Ashland's Borderline Band; Bluegrass Gospel's "Barbara;" Bluegrass-America! 1991 Competition winners Rarely Herd; the internationally famous New Coon Creek Girls; bluegrass traditionalists, Paul Mullins and Traditional Grass; and Ohio's Bluegrass Strangers.

Let's not forget the incredibly talented Bluegrass Cardinals. The Cardinals offer something for everyone from lead singer David Parmley's well-balanced country-bluegrass blend, to bass player Dale Perry's soulful gospel singing, to Ward Stout's award-winning fiddle playing, to the wonderfully talented tenor voice of Randy Graham on mandolin, and finally, if you've ever watched TV's "Beverly Hillbillies," you've heard don Parmley's banjo ring. The Bluegrass Cardinals will entertain on Saturday at 5:00 and 11:00 p.m.

From Ontario, exclusively, the impressive 1990 IBMA Showcase Canadian band, Lorne Buck and the Flatland Mountaineers, who also won

National health council reports that Easter Seals is first in program dollars spent on patient services

For the eleventh year running, the National Easter Seal Society tops the National Health Council's list of voluntary health organizations as the agency which allocated the largest amount of program dollars—$164,980,000—for direct patient services. This is almost half of the amount spent nationwide by all member organizations for patient services.

The audited financial report shows that Easter Seals allocated 94 percent of its total for all programs expenses on direct patient services—helping people of all ages and disabilities to achieve maximum independence. This is 23 percent more than the next organization, which allocated 71 percent.

The National Health Council Study, released recently and dated October 1990, reports that American voluntary health agencies spent a record $2.2 billion to combat disease and disability in 1988, the latest year for which uniform audited data are available.

"Report on Voluntary Health Agency Revenue and Expenses, 1988" provides key financial information on 34 reporting agencies. These National Health Council members represent the nation's largest voluntary health organizations.

According to James E. Williams, Jr., president, the National Easter Seal Society, "Easter Seals is proud of its service record, and challenged each year to continue providing the quality programs that we know have helped people with disabilities reach their highest level of independence." Williams explains that Easter Seals can only do this because of the enormous support the agency receives from individuals and corporations.

The National Easter Seal Society is a nonprofit, community-based health agency with 165 affiliates nationwide. Individuals of all ages, with disabilities resulting from any cause, receive assistance through Easter Seal programs. Services vary greatly, reflecting the diverse needs of the more than one million people served each year through Easter Seal programs. These include physical, occupational and speech-language therapies, vocational evaluation and training, computer-assistance technological training, equipment loans, camping and recreation, and psychological counseling and support.

The Kentucky Easter Seal Society, headquartered in Louisville, operates program centers in Ashland, Covington, Lexington, Louisville and Paducah, as well as Camp Kysoc in Carrollton, a residential summer camp. Its programs include Cardinal Hill Hospital in Lexington the only fully accredited rehabilitative hospital in the National Easter Seal Society. Over 24,000 children and adults with disabilities were served in 1990.

The Kentucky Society has ranked in the top four societies nationwide and has ranked number 1 in two years.

Easter Seals also sponsors research and is actively involved in advocacy, public education, screening to prevent and identify disabling conditions, and governmental relations on behalf of people with disabilities.

Perilous places to play

To curious children, railroad yards, abandoned houses and other off-limits locations seem attractive places to investigate. The National Safety Council reminds parents that these unauthorized play areas contain hazards that can cause serious injury or death to trespassers.

Parents should keep an eye on children, especially if there are potentially hazardous areas near your home. Never allow children to play in or around railroad tracks, freight yards, railroad trestles, mines, caves, electric stations, empty buildings, quarries or junkyards.

Teachers Meeting at the Hyatt?

There we were: forty Floyd County teachers at the Hyatt Regency in Lexington doing what might appear to be any regular in-service meeting. Any time a person turned around, he/she was face to face with someone from Floyd County. However, we were not doing the usual in-service type of things, we were all there to learn more about these fascinating things called computers. Actually what a person does at one of these conferences is find out what application he/she should tackle next.

About the time I get one application mastered enough to do minimal work, I am introduced to something else that I feel compelled to try. At this conference I was introduced to the concept of multimedia. The example that the presenter showed involved the computer, video cam, VCR, and compact audio discs. They were all integrated very smoothly to produce a presentation that was — well, the very kind of thing I would like to try.

If all forty people brought something back from the conference, we have a wealth of information about computers. It behooves us to spread that information around so that it will become available to our students. Floyd County has invested a large sum of money to purchase computers. All these computers should be used on a daily basis. If someone has a computer and doesn't know how to use it, we should teach that individual.

Then we get around to something that seems to bother some people: teachers having a good time. Yes, we had a terrific time. I simply refuse to drive all the way to Lexington and not have a good time. Some of us went to a comedy hour type of thing while others sat in the lobby and had an old fashioned side-slapping joke fest. Some got the opportunity to see the UK parade. It is even rumored that some people actually had the audacity to drink a beer. The computer sessions were good, the company was excellent, and the food, though nothing to write home about, was satisfactory. While I was thinking about all facets of the conference, I commented to someone, "this is a tough job we're doing here, but somebody has to do it."

This conference will cost the Floyd

County Board of Education quite a bit of money. As I see it, it's one of the best uses of money that has been used in a long time. If I am correct, the students will reap the benefits of this conference for years to come. If they don't, the money and time was wasted. The educational direction is beginning to change in Floyd county (and all of Eastern Kentucky) so I'm saying that the effects of this and other conferences are going to be positive and students will benefit.

Strange Enough

by Tim Preston

Just when I thought it was safe to write for the paper

I used to wonder if anyone ever read this column. After the last two weeks of jokes about heroin smuggling and shoplifting, I know that isn't the case.

It is good to know that people are interested in my somewhat twisted opinion of the world, but I think I'm going to choose my topics more carefully in the future.

If, however, I pull a Tim and write something you do not agree with, please remember that this is only my opinion. I'm sure that I would not agree with many of your opinions, so keep that in mind when you call me up to tell me how wrong I am. OK?

Bigger and better things

I got a call last week from a resident of Middle Creek who accused me, and the rest of the staff of the paper, of being anti-everything. This guy said we were anti-school, anti-progress and anti-Floyd County in general. When I asked the caller who I was speaking to, he refused to identify himself, saying only that he was, "a concerned taxpayer" and hung up on me.

First off, there is not one single person who pays taxes to Tim Preston, and the only things I am "anti" about are corrupt public officials, improper treatment of our children and people who don't have the guts to identify themselves.

No one at this paper gets any money, recognition or glory out of reporting unfortunate situations. People, on the other hand, seem to prefer negative stories. Believe it or not, we do try to balance the positive and the negative. That alone is an almost impossible task.

The Floyd County School system has been the focus of a lot of negative publicity recently. This newspaper did not cause those problems, we merely pointed them out. People involved with the school system keep telling us that we are only scratching the surface of the problems in the schools. If the things we have already seen are only the surface can you imagine who and what is at the core?

Anti-school? Quite the opposite.

If you live in Middle Creek and you have been told that the county wants to put a jail where the high school is proposed, you need to look closely at the person who told you that. At least one person spreading those rumors definitely has ulterior motives and one other involved with the concerned citizens group just wants to put down this newspaper at any given opportunity. That's the same person who told a room full of people that all of us at the Times are from Alabama. All the folks on the staff at the Times are Eastern Kentuckians, just like you.

Well, I did go through Alabama once on the way to Florida, but I hardly think that qualifies me for citizenship there.

What I am trying to say is this, you are better off believing what you read in this paper than listening to people who are trying to mislead you. We have no favorites here. There are people we respect, but none we hold favor to. As we have all seen, it is nothing unusual to be a saint today and a sinner tomorrow.

That's the way it is, and that's the way we will write it. Get mad if you want, we're used to it. If we are wrong, we will print that we are wrong. If, however, the truth steps on your toes, we have no remorse.

There are people who are trying to improve our life in these hills and there are those who want things to stay the same (academically and economically bankrupt).

To which group do you belong?

Reading teachers sponsor We Love to Read Month at McDowell Elem.

Books alive

Students of Ms. Stone's morning kindergarten class make books come alive by dressing as their favorite nursery story character.

By Roberta Luxmore

The faculty and students of McDowell Grade School held some unique events during the month of February.

The chapter I reading teachers, Ms. Roberta Luxmore, Mrs. Emma Grace Billips, and Ms. Audrey T. Hall, sponsored a "We Love to Read" program in order to motivate the students by creating an interest in reading. During the month many things happened that went a long way toward achieving that goal.

The students in kindergarten through eighth grades chose a story to read and illustrate. The classes worked on these projects as a group and the results were displayed on the individual classroom doors. All the students were proud of the work that they did. They have a right to be proud because the illustrations were wonderful. Some of the stories and fairy tales that were illustrated include "The Three Little Pigs," "Peter, Peter Pumpkin Eater," "Mother Goose Nursery Rhymes," "Black Beauty," "Be My Friend," and "The Diary of Anne Frank." The reading teachers had a contest to determine the best illustrations in three divisions. The judges for this contest were Mrs. Sally Miller, English and Speech Teacher at McDowell High School, Mrs. Roberta Fugate, coor-ordinator of Parent Planning for Chapter I, and Mrs. Sabrina Hall from the Bank Josephine. The winners were as follows: K-2nd, Carolyn's Martin's second grade class ("Mother Goose Nursery Rhymes"); 3rd-5th, Ms. Tonda McCoy's fifth grade class ("Black Beauty"); 6th-8th, Sandra Stone's 8th grade class, ("Gulliver's Travels"). The winners in each division won a prize of $35 which was to be used to buy supplies for the classroom.

During the second week of the program readers came into the school to read to the students. The readers would select reading selections and present it to the class. Mrs. Miller's speech class from the High School served as readers, and the elementary students enjoyed the experience very much.

The reading teachers were able to get several prominent citizens to come to the school and read for various classes. The list of readers from outside the school setting include John Rosenberg, Dolores Smith, Roberta Fugate, Jeff Noble (the weatherman on WYMT-TV), Joan Chaffins, Betty Rowland, Mr. Willis Hall (from the Bank Josephine), Helen Stumbo, Draxie Newsome, Ruby Akers, Edith Hopkins, Anna Sue Stumbo, Sally Miller, Bobbi Lynn Moore, Willie Elliott, Marcus Owens, and Thelma Spears.

One well-known writer, Lula Bell Stevens Akers read some of her own poetry. Her selections included "The One Room School" and "Appalachian Mother." Mrs. Akers shared her time with three different home rooms. Her writings have been published in Appalachian News Express, Appalachian Heritage (Berea), and Concur American Collegiate Poets Anthology. (San Francisco, California).

Mrs. Edith Reynolds Roberts, the widow of the late Leonard Roberts, Ph. D., widely known Appalachian folklorist and writer. She shared folk tales from Dr. Robert's book In the Pine and Sang Branch Settlers.

During the third week children portrayed characters from story books of their choice. We had Little Bo Peep, Little Red Riding Hood, Little Boy Blue, Old Mother Hubbard and The Big Bad Wolf just to name a few. There was a great deal of variety spread over the range from kindergarten to eighth grade.

Some of the stories and poems that were read include mysteries, adventure, and love stories. Willie Elliott, junior English teacher, read "Night Rider" to the groups. This was a story about a visitor from another planet. Marcus Owens told the poem about the whippoorwill and incorporated into his songs that he sang for the students. Betty Rowland read a story about a dog. The story was so moving that the students and teacher were practically into tears at the end of the story.

Two readers gave students a chance to see what reading was like years ago. Ruby Akers and Dolores Smith read from the McGuffey Reader. John Rosenberg tied his experiences into the illustration of Lucy Reynolds' room. He compared his experiences with those of the characters in The Diary of Anne Frank.

As a culminating activity, each student was presented with a Certificate of Achievement or Certificate of Recognition. Every home room was presented with 10 library books to keep in their room. Alexis Maldonado was overall winner in the school.

She is a second grader and has read 80 books. She will receive a trophy for her achievement. A pizza party will be given for those students who read 20 or more books.

The teachers express their appreciation to all the people who made "We Love to Read Month" a success. Thanks a bunch to the readers, who made "Our Month." The students loved you (so did the teachers). They would love to have you come again. Teachers also extend special thanks to principal Franklin Pack and Harry Wallace, director of Chapter I Reading Program.

One teacher, Lucy Reynolds, gave a summary of the program that expressed the sentiments of most teachers and students. She said, "Both readers were very interesting and the students enjoyed them very much. Mrs. Miller read several things including a nursery rhyme, a short story about a girl's mother dying and a short story dealing with satire. Mr. Rosenberg read several poems and he and the class discussed which ones the class liked and why. He also talked about the book The Diary of Anne Frank and how he also had to escape the Nazis during World War II."

Berea College offers free women's career training

Applications for the summer session of Berea College's New Opportunity School for Women must be requested by April 1, college officials said this week.

The school—a free, career exploration and educational program for women 35 to 50 years of age who have not attended college—is scheduled June 2-22 on the Berea campus. Participants must be of low income, have a high school diploma or GED certificate, and demonstrate motivation and an eagerness to learn.

Rooms and meals are provided at no cost and grants for travel and childcare may be requested. Children cannot accompany their mothers to the campus.

Through individual counseling, participants will identify their skills and interests before being placed in part-time jobs at the college or in the community. They also will learn to write resumes and practice job interview skills. Seminars and other special sessions will focus on computer skills, self-confidence and stress management.

Educational and cultural opportunities will include classes in writing and Appalachian literature, lectures and field trips to museums.

Requests for applications and additional information should be addressed to Jane Stephenson, director of the New Opportunity School for Women, CPO 2276, Berea College, Berea, Ky. 40404.

Marshall School plans visit to Prestonsburg

A team from the Marshall University School of Medicine will visit the Prestonsburg Community College campus Thursday, April 18, to share information about medical education and medical careers.

A group of Marshall faculty and staff will be available from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. in the Pike Building, Room 207.

The team will discuss academic requirements, admissions procedures and financial aid. "Many options are open to students in terms of how to prepare for medical school and how to pay for it," Jackson said. Members will also cover the outlook for medical residencies and medical careers.

More information about the Marshall visit is available from Jackson through the School of Medicine toll-free number (800) 544-8514 or from Dr. Jenny Bottoms at Prestonsburg Community College,

Smile Awhile

by Sarah Hopson

Disk jockey was nervous

This past Wednesday, I had the distinct pleasure of being a guest on Floyd County's WDOC-AM "Town Talk", a weekly call-in program hosted by none other than the famous (or maybe it's infamous) Dan Lyons.

A seasoned radio announcer and covert newspaper lover, Dan arm-wrestlingly convinced me that my brand of humor would be welcomed by a radio audience as fresh, bold, and interesting. This is not the first time Dan has made a serious error in judgment.

Buoyed by a mute but cooperative co-worker, and a bad case of the shakes, I arrived at the radio station twenty minutes before air time to familiarize myself with the surroundings and meet those who would be assisting Dan during the broadcast. Unfortunately, even the bright, shining faces of the able staff didn't ease my jitters when the red light signaled we were on the air.

"Good morning, Sara," Dan remarked with a smile. "It's nice to have you with us today."

"Er, ah, er, good, good..." "Isn't she great!" Dan exclaimed. "Never at a loss for words, this girl. Sara, has a lot of interesting things to talk with you about today, so just give us a call."

"Now, Sara," Dan continued. "You write a weekly column for The Paintsville Herald, Big Sandy News, and the Floyd County Times. Where do you come up with all those enjoyable topics?"

"Well, er, I. Sometimes I, well, you know, yeah. I do."

"That's certainly an eye-opener," Dan said, uncomfortably. "Let's take a break and hear from some of our nice sponsors."

With those words, my shoulders collapsed prompting my co-worker into immediate CPR procedures.

"Correct me if I'm wrong, Sara," Dan intoned. "But I seem to detect what the old folks refer to as "your nerves riding high."

"Dan," I mumbled. "One on one, I'm a power house, but I told you that I'm not any good in front of an audience."

"Sara, no one is watching, they're just listening."

"You could have fooled me. I don't hear the phone ringing off the hook. Do you?"

"Just talk about things you're comfortable with," Dan pleaded. "We can talk about your articles, your husband and son, anything. Just try not to blank when I ask you something. It makes it sound like I'm talking to myself."

"Can I talk about how flirtatious Jimmie is?" I asked.

"Certainly."

"Great! I've got a wonderful story about him and the woman who was laying outside in the bikini and..."

At that moment, Ted, the producer, summoned to us that we were back on the air.

"Sara's just telling me about her husband, Jimmie," Dan laughed. "It's a great story. Go ahead, Sara."

"Aaah, well, Jimmie likes women, and Jimmie really likes women. Er, oh, you know, well, you know how men are. They, er, he really is something."

"Hah, hah, hah," Dan said, as he wiped the sweat from his brow. "That's a dilly, Sara. Let's take another break."

"It's not going too well, is it?" I asked, as I slid out of my chair and landed horizontally on the floor.

"You're doing super," Dan lied. "Just try to be a little more relaxed. Maybe if we got you something to drink it would loosen you up a bit. What would you like?"

"Something laced with Demerol might do it," I replied.

The crew was still laughing when we came back on the air.

"Sara's such a card!" Dan announced to the dead silence. "Sara, you have a thirteen-year-old you write about. Tell us about him?"

"Boy," I started. "Boy, er, ah, yes sir."

"Okay, folks. It sounds like Sara has a really active thirteen-year-old boy! Now that's what I call funny. Say, time sure flies when you're having fun. Sara, thank you for being with us today. I'm sure our listeners enjoyed hearing how you come up with your weekly columns, and we look forward to having you back again soon, don't we guys? Ted! Wake up and sign us off. Would you like to say anything else?"

"Uh, huh," I hummed, breathing a sigh of relief.

"Be sure to tune in next week folks," Dan said through gritted teeth, "when our guest will be an honest to God person who actually forms complete sentences."

Maybe Dan should go into politics. If he could convince me to humiliate myself before thousands of unsuspecting people, I can only imagine what he could do in Washington.

HOROSCOPE

March 24 through March 30

By C.C. Clark

ARIES (March 21 - April 19)

A new point of view will spur you on to the path of success. All it takes is a little open-mindedness, and new avenues you never imagined will open up to you.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20)

Conservative advice from an old friend could prove to be quite useful. Rushing through an important project to finish on deadline may not be in your best interest.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20)

Minor obstacles that have been a great source of frustration will be removed this week. Pay close attention to details, especially on the domestic front.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22)

Just touching base with friends and family is important for you this week. Take some time to visit and really enjoy yourself; you'll be surprised at how good you feel.

LEO (July 23 - August 22)

It is important to say what you have to say tactfully, especially when dealing with loved ones. Your words can be easily misinterpreted, so be extra careful.

VIRGO (August 23 - September 22)

While you may feel in need of individual praise, remember others have worked just as hard to accomplish specific tasks. Let them know you appreciate their efforts.

LIBRA (September 23 - October 22)

Romance is unpredictable at best for you right now. This week may mark the beginning or the end of a long-term relationship. Either way, it will serve your best interest.

SCORPIO (October 23 - November 21)

A positive attitude could help you get the much-needed support you need for a certain project. A friend who has been out of your life for a while will return.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 - December 21)

Be wary of becoming involved in situations you know are impossible to get out of. Watch your finances closely and trust your own judgment regarding spending.

CAPRICORN (December 22 - January 19)

Watch out for those with a chip on their shoulder. You don't need the hassles of dealing with these people. It is important to take care of yourself this week.

AQUARIUS (January 20 - February 18)

Try to keep a low profile when dealing with authority figures. When looking for a solution to a problem, remember two heads are usually better than one.

PISCES (February 19 - March 20)

Conversations will seem to take a strange turn this week, no matter to whom you are talking. Friends and family may be heading your way soon for some fun.

Spencer Tracy, Gene Hackman give human quality to roles

By Steven Alan McGaw

Here's something for you to mull over a bit. Two of my favorite actors are Spencer Tracy and Gene Hackman, and I believe they're very much alike. Not in appearance, certainly, but in the way they approach a part. I've certainly not seen every performance by Tracy, but some of my favorites include his great comic work in Father of the Bride and his brusque, lovable efficiency expert in Desk Set. Even in the worst of health, Tracy delivered a complicated, powerful performance in his last film, Guess Who's Coming to Dinner.

Tracy was at his best, I believe, playing characters moved by passionate beliefs. His work as the enigmatic one-armed man in Bad Day at Black Rock is unforgettable. Finally, there's Tracy's fiery, vibrant performance as the Darrow-like attorney in Inherit the Wind.

Tracy always illuminated the humanity of the role and so does Hackman. Hackman's characters are always real, "life-size."

Hackman's best work is a big subject, too, but my favorites include his wily, intense lawman in Mississippi Burning, the iconoclastic loner in The Conversation, and the hoodwinked, heroic military man in the recent The Package. For a really textured, terrific, Tracy-like performance, check out his portrayal of the hot-tempered, lonely basketball coach trying to create his own redemption in Hoosiers.

Spurs, Pistons meet up again

By Steve Paschal

The defending NBA Champion Detroit Pistons will be making their fifth appearance of the season on NBC Sunday, when they challenge the San Antonio Spurs from HemisFair Arena in San Antonio.

The Spurs, led by high-scoring center David Robinson, were on top of the Midwest Division until after the all-star break, but are locked in a battle for the top spot with the Utah Jazz and Houston Rockets after hitting a mid-season slump. Just where the Spurs end up in the playoff picture depends in large part on the play of their 7-foot-1-inch, 240-pound center. Robinson, in his second year out of Navy, has been among the league's scoring leaders all season, and the former All-American is already being compared to superstar centers Patrick Ewing and Akeem Olajuwon.

Detroit received a potentially crippling blow in the quest to capture the "threepeat" that eluded the Los Anges Lakers two seasons ago. Team leader Isiah Thomas injured his hand just before the All-Star Game. Now, even with a roster filled with possibly the most massive array of talent in the NBA, the Pistons will have their hands full just trying to keep their Eastern Division crown out of the hands of the Chicago Bulls.

Coverage begins with Pat Riley and Bob Costas previewing the day's games as well as taking a look back at the week's stories on NBA Showtime. Then, Marv Albert, Mike Fratello and Steve Jones will be on hand for the second and final meeting of the season between the Pistons and the Spurs. In their first meeting Dec. 11, Robinson scored 27 points and pulled down 16 rebounds to lead the Spurs to a 95-86 victory. © TV Listing Inc.

TV PIPELINE

Gale Gordon coming up in Nick at Nite show

By Polly Vonetes

Q: I am a big fan of Gale Gordon. I loved him in Here's Lucy and Dennis the Menace. Is he still alive? Also, is the boy who plays Rocky on Sons and Daughters Martin Sheen's son? —M.W., Carlsbad, N.M.

A: Gale Gordon celebrated his 85th birthday on Feb. 22. You can see him in Hi Honey, I'm Home premiering on Nick at Nite in April. Paul Scherrer plays Rocky Lincoln. He is the son of Paul Scherrer Sr., a real estate salesman, and Gay Scherrer, a travel agency owner. They make their home in Indianapolis. He is not related to Martin Sheen.

Q: My family thoroughly enjoys watching MacGyver. We watch it nightly on the USA Network and regularly on ABC. We have learned a lot and enjoyed a lot of "MacGyverisms." Can you give me Richard Dean Anderson's address and a brief bio on him? We never see him on any other show. —Phyllis Dodenhoff, Morehead City, N.C.

A: I have recently received many letters asking about Richard Dean Anderson. So, all you loyal fans — this is for you. Richard Dean Anderson was born Jan. 23, 1950, in Minneapolis. His mother is an artist, and his father is a highly regarded jazz musician. He opted for an acting career only after his dream of a professional hockey career was shattered when he broke both his arms playing varsity hockey in high school. He studied drama at both St. Cloud State College and Ohio University. Anderson eventually migrated west to Los Angeles, where he "paid his dues" working as a street mime and juggler and as a writer/director/performer for theme park shows at Marineland in Southern California. His big break into television came when he landed the part of Dr. Jeff Webber on General Hospital (1976-81). Then, in quick succession he landed roles on prime time before landing the lead in his MacGyver series. He terms himself "your basic jock" and favors active sports in his free time, ranging from motorcycling, sky- and scuba-diving and skiing to baseball and hockey. Whiskey, his 12-year-old Australian shepherd, is his constant companion and a permanent fixture on the MacGyver set. Write him: c/o Paramount Television, 5555 Melrose Ave., Los Angeles, CA 90038.

Q: My sister and I are having a conflict about the show Parker Lewis Can't Lose. She thinks that Billy's best friend's real name is Billy Jacoby, but I think his name is William Jayne. Could you please tell us what his real name is? —M.R./W.R.B., Anchorage, Alaska

A: Tell sis she is way off base, there isn't a Jacoby listed anywhere in the cast. Mikey, Parker's best friend, is played by William Jayne. His other friend, "the nerd," is played by Troy Slaten.

Please send your questions about television past and present to: Polly Vonetes, TV Pipeline, P.O. Box 17748, Fort Worth, Texas 76102-0748.

McDowell's Bryant inks letter-of-intent with Alice Lloyd

A Look At Sports
by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

ANOTHER BLACK EYE FOR BASEBALL

Lenny Dykstra, Philadelphia Phillies, received a one-year probation by Commissioner Fay Vincent. The charges: Gambling.

The action by the commissioner's office is just another problem that baseball has been faced with over and over. Gambling, drugs and sexual-related charges have rocked the professional world of sports.

The problem with all of this is that younger fans look up to a Dykstra, Pete Rose and many of the other so-called "heroes."

I personally feel that fans today are seeing a new breed of professionals: basketball, football and baseball players. Greed is their game and they will never be satisfied no matter what they get. With greed comes resentment. With resentment comes disappointment and disappointment leads to discontentment. Examples: Jack Armstrong and Joe Oliver.

In sports the three D's needs to be observed if there is to be any success. Actually, in any phase of life the three D's are very important in regard to success.

DESIRE

There first must be a desire to be the best that you can be. One may never be the best, but there must be a desire to be the best. Mediocrity doesn't fit here. No room to be just average. Being a run-of-the-mill-player will not get the job done. There must be a sincere desire to be the best.

DETERMINATION

Once one has a desire, then determination must be in the forefront. A person can have a desire to be the best, then he or she must determine they are going to be the best they can be. Again, they may never achieve the "best" status, but if there is a desire, then there must be determination. Determination takes in the area of attitudes. Our attitudes determines the course of action we will take. If our attitudes are negative then we will react negatively. If we are positive in our desires, we react positively in reaching our desired goals. When we have a positive attitude to be the best, then we are determined to be the best.

DELIGHT

One may have a desire and a determination, but a person must also enjoy the challenge to reach a particular goal. Some athletes like the challenges a certain sport or a certain phase that life offers. They strive on the challenges and therefore their desire and determination to succeed is challenged.

An athlete must enjoy trying to be number one in his or her sport. To enjoy the challenge means sacrifice. No drugs, no alcohol or other harmful items in one's life that would hinder accomplishing what you have set out to do—being the best.

I have a genuine desire to be a good sports writer. I am determined to be a good one. I thoroughly enjoy my work. I may never be a good sports writer, but that is my desire, determination and something I delight in trying to do. Think about it!

CONGRATULATIONS TO LORI...

Congratulations to Lori Bryant who signed a letter-of-intent to play for Alice Lloyd next season. She was a real credit to the game of basketball and we wish her the very best.

GOOD NEWS DEPARTMENT

I got a phone call from the Flash. That's Joe Back. He informed me that he received his checkbook in the mail today (Thursday). Back said that someone had found it at the Raddison Hotel and turned it in. Joe was elated to say the least. Dinner's on Joe!

Until Wednesday, good sports everyone!

Inks letter-of-intent

It's spring and time for high school basketball players to put their names on the dotted line in preparation for the basketball season at the college of their choice.

Such was the case with McDowell's Lori Bryant, as she signed a letter-of-intent with the Alice Lloyd Lady Eagles Tuesday afternoon at the school library.

Present at the signing were her coach of three years, Cassandra Keathley, her mother Teresa Bryant and Alice Lloyd girls coach John Mills.

Coach Mills has been active in recruiting in the 15th Region area this season, but likes who he signed from McDowell.

"Lori is going to fit right into our plans next year," said the Lady Eagle mentor. "I want to say that we are tickled to death to have signed her and many of the returning players we have are really pleased with her choice to attend Alice Lloyd. Many are players that she played against in high school."

Mills said he anticipated signing two Sheldon Clark players to go with Bryant.

"We will sign Linda Slone and Katrina Preece after the girls state tournament is over," said Mills.

Sheldon Clark is currently playing in the state tournament.

Coach Mills explained that Bryant would probably be used two ways at Alice Lloyd.

"Lori will look to play the three position spot, which is the third guard," he said. "She has a great shooting touch and she also posts up well underneath. Another position she might play will be the smaller guard or two guard spot. She is what I consider a 'blue chip' player and we are excited about her coming to our school."

One returning player looking forward to playing with Bryant is former Betsy Layne player Brenda Hamilton, who has, according to Mills, come on strong in her game at Alice Lloyd. Hamilton became a starter at the Knott County college the middle of last year.

Bryant's mother, Teresa, could not be any happier over her daughter's choice of schools.

"I am extremely pleased that she decided to go to Alice Lloyd," said Mrs. Bryant. "This way she will be staying close to home and we can go over and watch all the home games they play. I feel that Mr. (John) Mills will be good for her and all I want is for her to be happy."

Mills, in his first season as head girls coach, finished with a 8-16 record compared to a 1-23 season the year before. "Next season we expect to win at least 16 games as the program continues to improve."

Mills said that the Lady Eagles would be a young team next season and, as far as he is concerned, you don't get hurt playing young players.

"We started three freshmen last year and the first three off the bench were freshmen. One of the things we have needed is a go-to inside player and Lori could be a help to us there also."

"In recruiting Lori, she caught my eye from the first time I saw her play," he said. "I like the way she plays and she doesn't seem to have a ego problem, but has a winning attitude. She also has a desire to win and we can work together."

'57 Chevy pride and joy

Since high school, old cars have fascinated Tom Williams

Photos by Ed Taylor

When you walk into the office of Tom Williams of Williams Wedges in Martin, you can't help but notice the trophy display and plaques lining the wall. The fruits of his labor for competing in car shows.

For Williams, there is nothing like the 1957 Chevrolet.

"It is the most popular car to show today," he explained. "I would just as soon have a nice looking '57 Chevy setting in my driveway at home as any other car I know."

Williams' infatuation with the 1957 Chevy began in his high school days. "I always wanted one," he said, "but I never did get my first one until 1979. I always drove an old truck. Not by choice, but of necessity."

Williams' eyes light up when he begins to talk of his white Chevy with its red interior and chrome bumpers. The car is truly a show piece, but for Williams, his wife Gwen and daughter Robyn, it not just for show purposes.

"We drive our cars," says Mrs. Williams. "We'll drive them to church or just to drive on a nice day and get some ice cream or just to go cruising. Tom never takes one out on a rainy day. We enjoy the old cars and they are a lot of fun."

Williams daughter, Robyn, began at an early age helping her dad restore old cars or just tinker around with them. "I love to help him work on them or just clean them for shows," said Robyn. Robyn is a senior at Allen Central High School.

"Some people like to ride in them when we go to shows," jokingly said Williams, "but they don't want to clean them when we get there."

Williams says that he only enters local shows and has never traveled out of state to compete.

"Most people, when they go to car shows will haul them on a trailer," explained Mrs. Williams, "but we don't, we just drive there."

Williams is a member of the Classic Chevy Club, an international club for 1957 Chevy freaks. It is also a place to sell or buy cars and get ideas for restoring vehicles.

Williams won his first trophy in a car show at Martin in the Red, White and Blue Festivities. He has added a plaque and/or trophy every year since 1980.

"It is a lot of fun," he said jubilantly. "I don't know why more people don't get involved in collecting old cars." Williams says that he does the mechanical work on his cars, but leaves the painting up to someone else. The car collector is constantly getting the Metro Piston magazine and scanning the pages to see what deals he might come across.

Other shows that Williams has taken part in include: the Mountain Heritage show at Jenkins; the Black Gold Festival at Hazard and Paintsville's Apple Day event. Williams says that it takes his about a week to get his cars cleaned and ready for a show.

"The judges are real strict on some things," he said. "They look at the originality of the car. The cleanliness and whether the bolts are rusted, painted or new."

Besides the 1957 Chevy, Williams also has a 1978 Indianapolis 500 Pace Car, a Corvette. "It is an original," he said. "Signs and all. You've heard people say they have an original and the lettering is still in the box. This is original."

Williams also has a 1949 Ford pickup that he enjoys driving and a 1949 Ford "log truck," that's used everyday in his business. "It does a great job," he said. "Runs good and we use it quite often."

The excited car collector also has a 1956 Mustang in his collection. "Getting parts for cars such as these locally is a problem. We get ours from O.B. Smith in Lexington" explained Williams. "The best way to get parts is to have some old ones setting in your backyard."

Williams explained that insurance on old cars is just as much as on "a fancy car."

Williams wife says that she has toured her share of junk car lots. "I'd sit in the car and he would just go and walk through the whole lot," said Gwen.

"One time I walked from one end of a junkyard to the other and it was raining, and she caught a cold just sitting in the car," Williams said laughing.

Collecting old cars. More than just a hobby to Tom Williams of Martin. It is something he enjoys doing, talking about and he loves to show his cars—his trophies proves it.

Since his high school days, his love for the '57 Chevy never died and now he has one—and is proud of it.

Bryant

Mills says that Bryant and the other new recruits will not be under any pressure to contribute immediately and they will be brought to Alice Lloyd in the summer for camps and a chance to know each other.

"I'm just glad to be staying close to home so that I can come back and watch McDowell play next year," said Bryant. "I'm looking forward to going to Alice Lloyd."

When asked of the adjustments she might have to make, she said she's got to study hard. "I also need to improve on my defense alot," she remarked, "but I am willing to do whatever they need me to do and what they want me to do to help out."

Bryant isn't too sure about the position change that might come playing college basketball. She said that she has always like the guard spot, having played it since grade school. "What ever needs to be done, I'll do it," said the shy Bryant.

"Lori will not have any trouble in adjusting to college basketball," said Cassandra Keathley of Bryant's need to make some adjustments. "I just don't think it will be a problem for her. Lori is a very talented player and, although she is a shy person, she will be able to adjust."

Keathley recalled playing with players that had talent but didn't exert themselves, but compared Bryant to a player with talent that has exemplified herself.

"Lori is unique in that she has talent and a desire to win. That is a 100 percent of it along with willingness to be a winner," Keathley said. "She has matured a lot over the three years that I have coached her. She is a good outside shooter and plays well inside."

If Bryant has one problem, it is that she may be a little to unselfish with the basketball.

"Sometimes I would have to tell her if she didn't start shooting the ball I was going to set her down," Keathley said. "We set a goal for Lori this year and that was to improve her free throw shooting from her 55 percent last year. She did that by hitting 71 percent this year," explained the Lady Daredevil mentor. "Anything that you put before her she would do for you."

"I am looking forward to having her the next four years," said Coach Mills. "In recruiting a player, I always go into the community and see what the community thought about the player. Lori has an excellent reputation in the community and the people think an awful lot of her. There have been some players that were very talented, but I scratched them off my list because they had a reputation of partying."

"I look for great things from her this year," he continued, "We are a full-court, man-to-man team and we play it for the full 40 minutes. We play an up tempo game and the 30 second clock has no bearing on us. Lori is a very versatile player and has a legitimate jump shot."

"Her father (Gary) and I are very proud of her," explained Mrs. Bryant. "She hasn't given us any trouble and we trust her and her decisions."

Bryant was one of the top scorers in the state averaging 23 points per game and 10 rebounds. She was named to the All-District team this year and the All-Regional squad. Bryant was Co-Player of the Year in Floyd County girls basketball.

Job Corps Center falls in tournament at McDowell

The McDowell Independent men's basketball tournament got underway Wednesday night at the McDowell gym. The Carl D. Perkins Job Corps Center found first round opponent McDowell (a team composed of Alice Lloyd College players) to be a tough one, as they fell to the roundballers 120-109.

Former McDowell standout and Eagle player, Henry Webb, tossed in 41 points to lead his team to victory. Webb hit eight three-pointers in the contest.

"We thought that when we went into the tournament it would be just another independent team," explained Center coach Bill Blackburn. "When we got there and saw who was on the team we were to play, our eyes got real big. But I think we did well considering we didn't have the talent they did."

Lance Hall tossed in 36 points for McDowell in the win. Mark McQuate added 10 points and former Prestonsburg great and Alice Lloyd College Eagle player, David Martin, netted 13 points.

"We had to play like David against Goliath in this game," said Blackburn. "This was a team of Floyd County All-Stars."

Tommy Marsillett, who according to his coach, never played high school basketball before, led the Perkins Job Corps Center with 39 points. Jimmy Graham finished with 19 points for the Center squad.

"James (Reese) played the best all-around game for us," stated Blackburn. "He shot well and passed extremely well and had a good game on the boards." Reese finished with 18 points.

"This young man is one of the finest all-around players that I have ever coached in the 20 years of coaching independent basketball teams," remarked the Job Corps Center coach.

Ronald "Bull" Jackson had several assists to go with his 16 points. "Bull pulled down rebound after rebound for us on the defensive board," said Blackburn. Jackson ended up with 13 points in the game.

"We lost on the scoreboard, but we won in our hearts," said the Center mentor.

Bassin' with the Pros

HOW TO CRANK IN SHALLOW BASS

Bass fishermen usually turn to spinnerbaits when they're fishing shallow, brushy cover for bass, but some of the tournament pros prefer deep diving crankbaits instead.

"It's something a little different," explains Johnson Outboards Pro Staff angler Charlie Reed, who used the tactic to help win the 1986 Bass Masters Classic on Tennessee's Lake Chickamauga.

"Another advantage is that big crankbaits often catch larger bass."

Surprisingly, adds Reed, big, deep diving crankbaits don't get snagged as much as might be expected.

"The long bills help guide the lure over logs and limbs," he explains. "As soon as the crankbait hits something, you can stop reeling momentarily and the lure will float up slightly so it passes over the object."

"This stop and go retrieve is another factor that makes these types of lures so effective," continues the Johnson pro. "A lot of strikes occur right after you start reeling again after that hesitation."

Reed believes the big crankbaits imitate crayfish, and for that reason, he tries to fish them so they actually dig up the bottom.

"To get a deep diving crankbait really deep you normally use light line and make long casts," he says, "but for this type of fishing we can use much heavier line because we're only fishing eight or 10 feet deep."

"You just pitch the plug right in around the logs or stumps and crank it back out, bouncing it off anything that gets in the way. You might call it living dangerously, but it can be pretty exciting."

In addition to fishing around stumps and logs, Reed says the deep crankbaits work well over shallow gravel, rocks and shell beds. At Lake Guntersville in Alabama, Reed found a shell bed in less than five feet of water, and caught bass as heavy as seven pounds there with a big crankbait.

"I remember using a deep diving crankbait in the Classic, too," he notes. "I was fishing a small hole in the milfoil about 10 feet deep, and I'd just caught my seventh bass on a plastic worm. I switched to a crankbait in the same spot and immediately began catching larger bass."

"I was able to cull the smaller fish, and the extra weight I gained gave me the win," Johnson said.

Commission sets deer season: One buck limit for hunters

The Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Commission met March 4 in Frankfort and set the 1991-92 deer season.

A major change was proposed regarding the deer season limit. Although the season limit will remain two deer per hunter, only one may be an antlered deer regardless of whether the hunter uses firearms (including muzzleloaders) or archery equipment.

The exception to the one-buck per hunter restriction is that additional antlered deer may be taken while participating in a quota hunt requiring advanced application. Deer taken during quota hunts are considered "bonus" deer, and do not count toward the statewide limit.

The general (gun) deer season will be Nov. 9-18, 1991. Archery season will run October 1, 1991 through January 15, 1992. Muzzle loading season will be October 19-20 and December 14-20.

In other related action, the commission passed a new procedure regarding deer quota hunt drawings for some areas. Next season, hunters who are successfully drawn for quota hunts on any one of the following areas cannot apply for a quota hunt to that same area for the following three seasons: Taylorsville Lake, Dewey Lake (adult hunt), Yellowbank and Higginson-Henry Wildlife Management Areas.

FISHIN' TIPS FROM THE TRACKER PROS

Topographic maps are a very essential part of a professional fisherman's arsenal. They can be especially important when a totally new body of water is to be fished. A well defined topo map can uncover the secrets to finding and catching fish on nearly any man-made reservoir.

Bodies of water such as those governed by the Army Corps of Engineers will tend to fluctuate during the course of a year's time. Many are drawn down to winter pool levels in anticipation of spring rainfall.

Establish the normal pool elevation and outline this on your topo map with a colored marker. Next mark the 5 foot and 10 foot depth increments with different colored markers. This will establish a shoreline reference as the lake fluctuates. Develop a library of maps for every lake fished.

Whitt, Watkins places in Red Man Tournament Trail In Tennessee

Paul Whitt, a BP distributor for Action Petroleum in Prestonsburg, won the Red Man Mountain Division season opener held Sunday on Dale Hollow. Whitt, who resides in Salyersville, landed a limit of five bass weighing 23 pounds, 6 ounces. He received $3,502 out of a total purse of $13,072. A field of 219 anglers competed in the event.

Whitt flipped a five-eighth ounce Gary Klein Weapon Jig in Wolf River. Second place went to Danny Stone of Celina, Tennessee. Stone fished three-eighth ounce Double Strike spinnerbaits in Mitchell Creek. He landed five bass weighing 16 pounds, 9 ounces and collected $1,751.

Third place went to Alex Thomason of Lexington for five bass weighing 16 pounds. Thomason flipped chartreuse/white T's spinnerbaits in Wolf River. He received $1,052 for his finish. William Hurler of Louisville placed fourth with five bass weighing 14 pounds, 1 ounce. Hurler fished lower lake points using a Bomber Model A. Fourth place paid $700. Kirby Thacker of Somerset placed fifth and brought home $630. Thacker boated four bass weighing 12 pounds, 8 ounces. He fished shallow willows near Trooper Island using Hank Parker three-eighth ounce spinnerbaits.

Rounding out the top 10 positions were: (6) Greg Green, Bowling Green, five bass, 10 pounds, 9 ounces, $560; (7) Dennis Etheredge, Livingston, Tenn., four bass, 9 pounds, 2 ounces, $490; (8) David Lindsey, Bowling Green, five bass, 9 pounds, $420; (9) Steve Moodly, Livingston, Tenn., two bass, 8 pounds, 7 ounces, $350; (10) John Daniel, Bowling Green, three bass, 7 pounds, 10 ounces, $289.

Tee Watkins of East Point finished 22nd, weighing in 3 bass totaling 5 pounds and 12 ounces.

Big bass honors went to Gary Bowns of Byrdstown, Tenn. Bowns received $1,000, a Browning/Lew's reel, and a one week vacation for a 6 pound, 1 ounce catch.

At the completion of the six Red Man qualifying events, the top anglers, determined on a basis of pounds and points, will move on to Regional Classic competition. There they will compete against fishermen from other divisions for a spot in the Red Man All-American. The winner will receive $100,000. All Red Man tournaments are catch and release events.

McDowell to begin baseball season with DH Mar. 25

The 1991 high school baseball season will get underway this Monday and the McDowell Daredevils will take to the field with an opening doubleheader against Letcher County at the Allen Park field.

"This should be a good year for all county teams," said McDowell mentor Greg Johnson of the upcoming season.

McDowell will face the Wheelwright Trojans in a conference match up on Tuesday afternoon at Allen in a second doubleheader. The games Monday and Tuesday will start at 5 p.m.

On April 1 Magoffin County comes calling on the Daredevils in a scheduled 5 p.m. doubleheader. Then Johnson's batsmen will be on the road as they travel to Wheelwright for a doubleheader.

Other games scheduled are at Shelby Valley on April 11 and a conference game with defending 58th District champions Allen Central on Friday, April 12.

Both McDowell and Allen Central will join Belfry and Mullins for tournament action at the Allen Park on Saturday, April 13.

The rest of the McDowell schedule will be released next week. Lots of high school action coming your way. Get out and support your high school during the baseball season.

NATIONAL HUNTING AND FISHING DAY TO CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY

More than 90 congressmen are co-sponsoring a joint resolution for consideration during the 102nd Congress commemorating the 20th anniversary of National Hunting and Fishing Day.

National Hunting and Fishing Day is an annual recognition of the vital role sportsmen play not only in conserving wildlife, but also in helping to provide wildlife recreation for everyone.

According to Representative Dick Schulze (R-PA), chairman of the Congressional Sportsmen's Caucus, the "20th anniversary" resolution needs 218 co-sponsors in the House before it can be sent to the White House for President Bush's signature.

"One way sportsmen can get involved in National Hunting and Fishing Day is to write their congressmen and urge them to co-sponsor this resolution," said Schulze.

Hunters and anglers nationwide have contributed more than $12 billion to finance various wildlife conservation and habitat acquisition programs through excise taxes, licenses and fees.

In addition to their direct support of conservation programs, hunters and anglers bolster the overall economy through the money they spend in pursuit of their favorite outdoor activities.

"In Kentucky, hunting and fishing related expenditures contribute over $1.5 billion annually to this state's economy," according to Don McCormick, commissioner of the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

"National Hunting and Fishing Day, traditionally celebrated on the fourth Saturday in September, was approved in Congress and signed by President Richard M. Nixon in May of 1972.

Prior to that first fishing trip of early spring most anglers have made the necessary preparations such as respooling new line, oiling reels, checking guides, sharpening hooks, etc. And most probably have taken care to see that their boat, motor and accessories are all in perfect working order.

But, many will overlook a most important step that could ruin or delay a fishing trip. That is neglecting the hubs on their trailers.

Be sure to thoroughly grease the hubs on your trailer axles. There are several good, commercial grease retainers such as Bearing Buddies which hold an ample amount of protective bearing grease. Feel these occasionally. They should stay cool even after a long trip.

Special Olympics has new area director

Ms. Brenda Bostic, a teacher at Millard Elementary in Pikeville was recently appointed the area director for Area 16 Special Olympics. The counties representing Area 16 are Floyd and Pike.

The area director is the central person behind the growth and success of the Special Olympics programs within their area. Area directors are the designated representatives of Kentucky Special Olympics who have the responsibility for successfully implementing Special Olympics activities within their assigned geographic area.

As volunteer area director, Bostic will be responsible for offering area-wide sports competitions for Special Olympians, conduct sports training schools for volunteer coaches, recruit more Special Olympians and volunteers and also help raise the necessary funds to operate an area program.

She cannot fulfill these responsibilities alone — help is needed whether monetary or voluntary support. If you would like to help in any way, please call 606-437-7169 or 606-437-4151.

Kentucky Special Olympics is a year round sports training and competition program for children and adults with mental disabilities. Over 12,000 Special Olympians throughout the Commonwealth participate in the program annually.
